Princess Margaret Dances The Twist As Royalty Has A Ball In Old Blenheim Palace

WOODSTOCK, England (UPI)—Princess Margaret, her hair tinted orange and swept up into a new hairdo, danced the twist—but sedately—until dawn Saturday at a glittering party in Blenheim Palace for the rich and famous of the United States and Britain.

Blenheim's biggest party in 25 years was given by the Tenth Duke of Marlborough, 68, and his eldest daughter, Lady Sarah Russell, to mark the debut of Lady Sarah's 18-year-old daughter, Serena of Lenape Farm, Berwyn, Pa., and the 22nd birthday of his youngest son, Lord Charles Spencer Churchill, a junior at Vanderbilt University.

Sir Winston Churchill, who is in Middlesex Hospital suffering from a broken left thigh and complications, was born in a Blenheim Palace cloak room 87 years ago at the height of such a ball when his mother unexpectedly got premature labor pains. The room was closed out of respect for Sir Winston.

Margaret, her husband, the Earl of Snowdon traveled to Blenheim last night from Charlbury where they are spending the weekend with the Marquess and Marchioness of Blandford. The marquess, called "Sonny," is the Duke's heir. The Marchioness is the former Tina Onassis, ex-wife of Greek millionaire shipowner Aristotle Onassis.

Lady Sarah is married to Edwin F. Russell, publisher of Vogue Magazine and the Harrisburg, Pa., Patriot-News. Miss Russell, who wore a white strapless lace dress, was born in Blenheim as was Lord Charles.

Russell met Lady Sarah while he was serving here in the U.S. Navy during World War II and she was working in a war munitions plant in Oxford.

The ball was held in the 180-foot-long library which was banked with tons of lilies, carnations and gladioli. Security officers patrolled the corridors and grounds because of the millions of dollars worth of gems worn by the guests.

Outside the palace, floodlights bathed the main facade and shimmered on the fountain in the Italian garden and on the water of the terraces. Lights on the palace lake and hunting lodge glowed in the darkness as the dancers spun around the floor or strolled in the early morning air.

Among the 1,100 guests were U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, Charlotte and Anne Ford of Detroit, daughters of Henry Ford II, Richard Pershing, grandson of General of the Armies John J. Pershing, and a group of 35 American friends of Miss Russell.

Miss Russell will have another debut dance in Philadelphia in December.

"The first foundation of friendship is not the power of conferring benefits, but the equality with which they are received, and may be returned."

Billie Sol Creditors In For Wait

By JAMES T. YOUNG
EL PASO (UPI) — More than 500 of Billie Sol Estes' 564 creditors face a long wait before they find out if there is hope of getting any cash from his bankrupt estate.

The long list of unsecured creditors may not get a penny. There will be no way of telling which way the bread will be cut.

That will come after the secured notes are foreclosed and the whole estate is liquidated.

Secured creditors rushed to file motions Friday asking the court's authorization to foreclose following the adjudication of bankruptcy by Federal Judge R. Ewing Thomason.

Faced Filing Deadline
The rush was caused by law, stating all foreclosure sales must be held the first Tuesday of the month and notices of such sales have to be posted 21 days before the sale.

Monday is the deadline for posting for the August sale.

Secured creditors not present at the bankruptcy hearing will have to prepare their notices in time for the September sale.

Unsecured creditors will have to wait at least until after that sale before trustee Harry Moore Jr. can start to figure how much each will receive in a pro rata division.

Moore indicated Friday the secured creditors may take it all when he said:

"It looks like they're going to liquidate it for me."

Unsecured Creditors Hurt
Another lawyer who represents both secured and unsecured creditors said a payoff of 10 cents on the dollar is too much for unsecured creditors to expect.

"I don't think they will get one penny on the dollar," he said.

Estes listed only 46 secured debts in his statement of assets and liabilities filed in U.S. District Court last month.

That would leave 518 without securities. However most lawyers think this figure is too high.

Those secured creditors given the right to post notices in a modification of a stay order by Thomason will have to wait for Moore to study their claims before they can foreclose.

Must Study Claim
Creditors Committee Chairman J. F. Hulse of El Paso said Moore will study the claim to determine if the estate deserves any equity from the sales.

The court then will rule whether the secured creditors should hold the sale and turn over excess above the mortgage cost of the sale to the trustee.

The alternative would be for the trustees to hold the sale and take any equity they find, Hulse said.

Pampa Girl Enters Miss World Show

Pampa will be represented in the Miss World Beauty Pageant Aug. 4 in Amarillo by Miss Ruth Ann Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Guthrie, 1340 Christine St.

The Amarillo Pageant will be a preliminary to the U.S.A. event to be held in Huntington, West Va., Sept. 18. The winner of the West Virginia pageant will represent the United States in London in November of this year.

Miss Guthrie, sponsored in the Amarillo pageant by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, will be one of some 25 entries expected in the pageant which is part of the Amarillo Diamond Jubilee celebration.

Miss Guthrie is accustomed to winning beauty pageants, having recently been crowned Miss Irish Rose of 1962 and also declared the winner of the Lions Beauty Contest in the District 2-T-1 convention in Amarillo.

Key Club Boys Report On Trip To West Coast

Five Pampa Key Club members reported to their Kiwanis Club sponsors Friday on the International Key Club convention held July 1-4 in Long Beach, Calif.

Don Sears, lieutenant-governor of District 6, told of the trip to and from the West Coast which included side-tours to Disneyland, San Francisco and the World Fair at Seattle, Wash.

Report on the convention sessions was given by Raymond Nance, president of the Pampa Key Club. Sears and Nance were the official delegates from the local club.

Also in attendance at the convention and the other stops on the trip were Jesse Jones, Jon Gilpatrick and Wayne Lemons. Gilpatrick and Lemons showed films of the convention trip.

The Key Clubbers conducted the regular business session at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting Friday in First Methodist Church while President Weldon Adair and other officers sat in the audience.

President Nance announced that the Key Club holds meetings monthly during the summer, and that the next meeting of the club will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the film room at Pampa High School.

Announcement also was made at Friday's meeting that Arthur Aftergut, ex-president of the Pampa Kiwanis Club, will be a candidate for lieutenant-governor of the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International at the district convention to be held in Oklahoma City in October.

Balloon Launch Set Wednesday

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The United States, fresh from its spectacular Telstar success, plans to try another communications experiment in space next week—this time with a huge, silvery balloon.

The balloon, which stands 135 feet tall when inflated will be lofted into space by a Thor rocket on a brief "up-and-down" flight.

The launching is set for early Wednesday morning. Scientists said that if the sphere reaches its planned 950-mile altitude it might be seen by much of the eastern half of the United States.

The balloon, catching the first rays of the sun, should be brighter than the most brilliant star in the sky during its brief trip.

Success of the shot will open the way to the launching of a similar balloon into orbit as a sparkling new U.S. communications satellite before the end of the year.

Scientists Keep Eye On Telstar

ANDOVER, Maine (UPI)—With history-making communications firsts out of the way, scientists settled down during the weekend to see how well their "switchboard in the sky"—the Telstar satellite—will stand up in the rigors of space.

The principal effect they seek to study is that of radiation on the instrument-crammed moonlet which this week was used for the first direct transmission of television pictures between England, France and the United States.

Texan Sentenced By Court Martial

BERLIN (UPI) — U.S. Airman 1-c Robert J. Clements, 24, of Midland, was sentenced to two years' hard labor by an Air Force court martial here Friday.

Clements was found guilty of taking part in the rape of a 20-year-old German girl. He was acquitted on a charge of robbing her.

The airman also was sentenced to loss of all pay and allowances and a bad conduct discharge, an AF spokesman said.

Youth Arrested In Motel Murder Case

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Police arrested a 19-year-old Negro youth Saturday and questioned him as a suspect in Friday's slaying of Bert Anderson, 68, a Haltom City motel clerk.

Anderson was shot down apparently as he sought to telephone police following an attempted hold-up.

Hearing On City Water Rates Set At Tuesday Meet

Officials of the Fairview Cemetery Association today urged Pampans to attend Tuesday's meeting of the City Commission when possible revision of the city's current water rate ordinance will be considered.

Tuesday's public hearing was set at a meeting one month ago when City Commissioner L. P. Fort requested that the current water rate ordinance be killed and new legislation be set up to equalize rates for all consumers.

Since that time the Cemetery Association has been conducting a postcard campaign urging the City Commission to leave the cemetery water rate as it is.

City officials also expressed the hope at the June 14 meeting that there would be a good attendance on the part of the public at Tuesday's public hearing when the various categories of water rates would be discussed.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell said at the time:

"This is a matter that has been kicked around pro and con for some time. The public hearing July 17 will give everyone who has anything to say for or against a revision of our present rate ordinance a chance to voice their approval or disapproval."

The Tuesday meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. in the commission's regular meeting room at City Hall.

Little Relief Due From Heat

Not much relief is in sight from the near 100-degree temperatures recorded in Pampa yesterday, as forecasts call for continued hot weather today.

The forecast calls for sunny skies throughout the area with a high around 95.

Borger Rep. Ballman Also Cites Need For Remedial Legislation

By JOHN KNAGGS
United Press International

AUSTIN (UPI) — Slanted-hole drilling and the need for "remedial legislation" will be considered by the House General Investigating Committee, chairman Rep. Charles Ballman of Borger said Saturday.

After hearing Railroad Commission Chairman William J. Murray behind closed doors, Ballman said the committee felt "there is a definite need for legislative inquiry into slanted-hole drilling."

"Since the conspiracies involve a great number of people," Ballman said, the committee has decided to enter into the investigation.

Murray said he gave the committee "a detailed status of deviated-hole drilling in East Texas and reviewed (railroad) commission regulations on making surveys."

Speaker James Turney made recommendations that the committee enter the probe to study a possible need of additional legislation. The committee has been investigating alleged game fixing of Southwest Conference basketball games.

Rep. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi, a committee member, said no remedial legislation was immediately considered. Hale said the committee would determine if the Railroad Commission had enough statutory power to control drilling.

Asked what a "great number of people involved" meant and if state employees were involved, Hale said "we are investigating something a great deal different from shop lifting where a person or two might be involved."

Murray had outlined steps in deviated drilling early in the investigation when he said four parties or agencies would have to be involved—a commission employee, a well operator, a well drilling contractor or representative and an oil well survey firm.

The probe spread to Harris County this week when Atty. Gen. Will Wilson secured a restraining order against operators of a well in the Webster field, one of the richest in Texas.

Earlier restraining orders have been against operators in the East Texas and Hawkins fields Rusk and Gregg counties.

Directional surveys have revealed 57 wells were slanted beyond the 3-degree limit specified by the commission. Most of those wells have been slanted more than 30 degrees from vertical.

Tornado, Heat Plague Texans

By United Press International
A tornado swept through the West Texas town of Loraine during a thunderstorm Saturday, unroofing a warehouse and damaging several houses and buildings. No one was injured.

While most of Texas sweltered in 100-plus degree heat Saturday, Pampa's unofficial high was near the century mark, registering 98 at mid-afternoon.

The unseasonable summer twister struck about 3:30 p.m. in a business and residential section of the small Mitchell County town, located about 20 miles west of Sweetwater. About one inch of rain fell, along with some hail.

A drive-in cafe was damaged. The front door was blown off the First State Bank of Loraine. Three frame houses were reported blown down and several others were damaged. A lumber yard building was unroofed and a drugstore was damaged.

The twister also broke a plate glass window at the Mitchell County News, a weekly newspaper. (See WEATHER, Page 3).

Beck Still Gets $50,000 Pension From His Union

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Teamsters' President Dave Beck is still receiving $50,000 a year from the union's pension fund even though he is serving a five-year sentence in McNeil Island penitentiary for income tax fraud.

But prison rules forbid him from spending more than $15 a month. The remaining $49,820 must be sent to relatives or placed in a bank.

Teamsters' attorneys said Saturday the pension could not be revoked since it was "payment for past services" for the union. A spokesman added that the pension plan, authorized by the Teamsters' 1947 convention, contains no "forfeiture provisions" to penalize pensioned officers for misconduct.

Beck, who is known for his love of luxury and expensive clothes, now wears a baggy blue twill uniform. He moved from a $160,000 home into an 8-man cell with iron bunk beds.

Cleveland Mayor Gets Cabinet Job

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday named Anthony J. Celebrezze, 52, mayor of Cleveland, to his cabinet as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. The nomination came as a surprise.

Celebrezze, second Roman Catholic named to Kennedy's cabinet and a strong exponent of civil rights and urban renewal, had not even been mentioned as a possibility to succeed former Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff, who resigned Thursday to run for the Senate in Connecticut.

Color T-V Moon Shots Set For Next Launches

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Color television pictures of the moon will be attempted by a six-camera package on the next four Ranger spacecraft launches.

Scientists at the California Institution of Technology Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Friday the close range pictures would be a prelude to a manned lunar landing.

JPL is responsible for unmanned lunar and planetary exploration for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Four spacecraft in the Ranger series already have been launched. The camera subsystem will be aboard a similar shot scheduled next year.

Dr. William H. Pickering, JPL director, said the slow scan, high resolution television cameras will show details of the moon's surface, not discernible in photographs from earth.

Pictures will be transmitted to the NASA-JPL deep space instrumentation facility at Goldstone, Calif., and recorded on 35 millimeter motion picture film.

"This close look at the lunar surface will supply data for the design of a manned spacecraft capable of landing on the moon," said Pickering.

TICKETS ANYONE? — An intensive ticket sale campaign was launched Friday evening in door-to-door contact for Pampa Little Theatre's play, "George Washington Slept Here," to be presented Aug. 9-10 in the Pampa High School auditorium. The play, written by Moss Hart and George Kaufman, is being directed by Mrs. Elbert Walker. Pictured here, powdered wigs and all, counting the remaining tickets left from the first night's sales are ticket chairman, Dr. Frank Hatcher, left, and John McCausland.

La Farge of Clark Dodge & Co.
has detected a sequence of un-

"gaps" during the market's re-

time-tested measurements related to this particular sequence produces a projection of 671 DJIA market advance. He says this seems a rather high figure but it should be remembered that a cut in the corporate tax rate would add enough to this year's justified at present.

Driver Education Course Keeps Wide Teen-Ager Participation

By WANDA HUFF
Pampa News Staff Writer

Because of four instructors and a summer course in driver education, 116 Pampa teen-agers can today be considered better insurance risks, and safer, more courteous, more observant drivers.

Four driver education instructors each began June 25 to teach 30 teen drivers to stop, look and listen before pulling into traffic. Deck Woldt and Otis Holliday are instructors for high school students, Harold Moore, for Pampa Junior High and Mack Choat, for Robert E. Lee Junior High.

Choat lists the three central lessons as observation, courtesy and safety.

"I would say at least 90 per cent are potential drivers and about 10 per cent have never been behind the wheel," he said. "One of our purposes in this course is to break the bad habits of these potential drivers and teach them the correct way."

Instructor Woldt said, "We teach them to apply safety first, rather than the rule of who has the right of way."

During the summer school term, no age limit is set for the course, except the 14 years minimum set by state law. Anyone 14 years old must take the course before applying for a license. Any adult may have private driving lessons by paying the $25 fee for the course and calling any of the instructors.

Each instructor is certified and qualified with three college hours of driver education and three hours of first aid and safety.

Each year, the school rents new cars with automatic transmissions from local dealers. The four cars, a Ford, Pontiac, Dodge, and Oldsmobile, are equipped with a dual control brake on the instructor's side to prevent accidents.

Choat said, "The instructor has to be alert. If not, he may be run over or the student may run into someone. They (the students) are never faced with many emergencies and are not used to drivers suddenly pulling out in front of them."

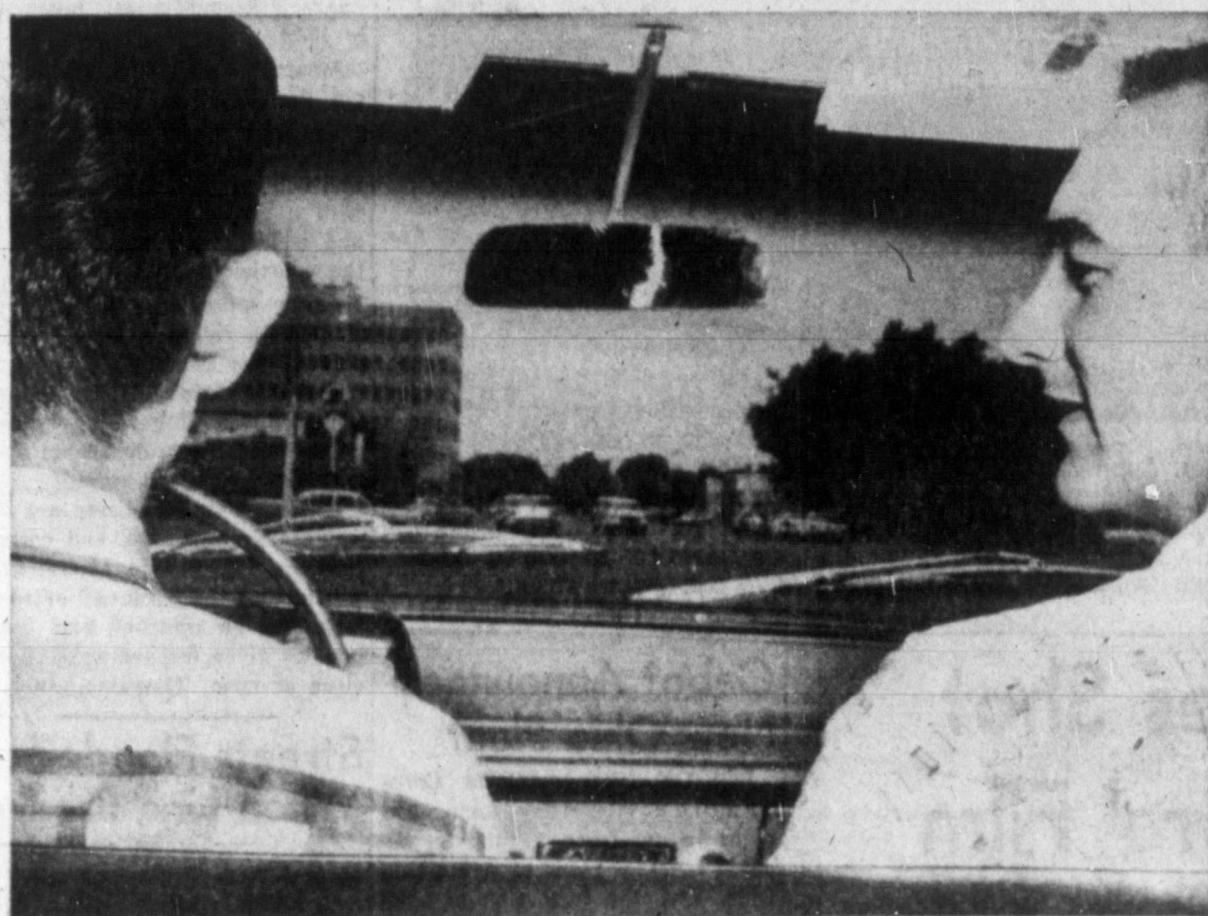

"Last semester I was teaching a 14-year-old girl when a truck pulled out of an alley in front of her. When she panicked and couldn't even touch the brake I had to stop the car," he added.

"We've never had a car involved in a wreck during a practice session," Woldt said.

The summer course started June 4 with 30 hours of classroom instruction of two hours a day for the first 15 days. After this was completed, each student received a certificate signed by his instructor, and by L. J. Edmondson, superintendent of schools, and Cameron Marsh, high school principal.

After receiving his classroom instruction certificate, each student took the state written examination of road rules, signs and violations test. Virgil Walsmith, drivers license patrolman for Pampa, administers the exam.

Students who made the passing grade of 70, received learner's permits, permitting them to drive with a licensed driver in the front seat.

The 116 students began driving with a learner's permit June 25. A minimum of six hours behind the wheel with a certified instructor and six hours of observation of another student driver and the instructor is required to pass the course.

After completing his 12 hours of driving, he must pass the driving test administered by patrolman Walsmith before he can pay the $3 to get his Texas operator's license.

"Not many fail to get their license. Most of our failures are caused by nervousness, excitement or forgetfulness," Choat said.

"If they break a law during the test, it automatically disqualifies them," Woldt added. "Each male student who receives his two certificates and passes the drivers examinations, will receive a 10 per cent reduction in his insurance rates. The insurance companies honor certificates of male operators under 25 because the insurance rates in Texas are higher than those for girls and because those who take the course are better, safer, drivers," Woldt said.

Each instructor teaches by different methods," Choat said. "In the first hour of driving, I let them get acquainted with the car by taking them out on a farm-to-market road and let them make their own mistakes before I start instruction."

He added: "I teach by the handbook because I believe if a person would drive by those rules, he could be an expert driver."

"In class we discuss penalties for traffic violations, first aid techniques and procedures following an accident."

"After I produce a class of drivers I often see them driving and observe their methods. Once I watched a teenage girl that I had taught and saw her switch lanes right and left as she went around 'the drag.' When she saw me she stopped and broke into a pattern of perfect driving."

Woldt said:

"I start mine with the necessary maneuvers and let them drive only in the residential areas for the first two weeks. For the next week they learn approaches to the city limits and highway driving in and out of the city."

"During the fourth week, they get acquainted with city traffic and in the fifth, they learn passing situations in city traffic and on the highway."

"In the final, sixth week I include all of what they learned in the first five weeks. Throughout all driving hours, I try to include every possible traffic situation, including changing a tire and night driving. If a student needs extra time for a difficult maneuver, I keep him driving as long as he has difficulty."

"I suppose the most difficult part is parallel and angle parking. Although angle parking is not included on the driving test, I include it in my instruction, because they have to learn how sometime."

"In class we've often made cardboard traffic signs, slogans and silhouettes of traffic and pedestrian violations."

"Our five drive education films are 'City Traffic Problems,' 'Driving on Highways,' 'The ABC's of an Automobile Engine,' 'Driving on Turnpikes and Super Highways,' and 'Beginning Drivers,' which shows a preliminary driver education course taught in an Arizona elementary school."

"Those grade school drivers drove small electric cars and had a miniature driving range on the school grounds, complete with a small village and every traffic problem and situation possible."

"Also we show slides to cover every traffic phase and problem."

"Next year, driver education will not be taught in high school and will not be a credit toward graduation as it has been. Classes will be taught next fall and spring in Pampa Junior High and Robert E. Lee Junior High," Woldt concluded.

Air Conditioning experts agree... WATER cooling is BEST!

Youngsters learn mighty early about the cooling effect of water when the weather's hot. And air conditioning engineers know that water cooling is far more efficient than air cooling. The reason is simple... 85° water can absorb more heat from your home than 100° air.

That's why ARKLA-SERVEL Sun Valley's GAS air conditioners are WATER cooled! Water cooling, plus Sun Valley's "no moving parts" principle, gives you two big advantages unavailable with other air conditioners. One, a Sun Valley gives you CONSTANT EFFICIENCY, while air cooled units lose as much as 15% efficiency. Two, Sun Valley operating COSTS REMAIN CONSTANT, while air cooled equipment operating costs rise as much as 23%.

KING-SIZED FILTER

double Sun Valley's double filtering capacity STOPS ALL HOUSEHOLD ODORS! It even takes cigar and fish odors, giving your home Spring-like freshness all year long.

NO MOVING PARTS

... in the heating or cooling cycles of the Sun Valley... nothing to wear out or break down! Sun Valley is year-around comfort for the mortgage life of your home!

CONSTANT EFFICIENCY

Sun Valley has no comfort-robbing friction to run up your operating costs. It doesn't cost a penny more to operate the Sun Valley for an hour when it's 115° than it does when the temperature is 90°.

Report Of Land Damage During 'Blow Season'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The final report of land damage in the Great Plains during the 1961-62 blow season (December - May) shows that 1,430,000 acres suffered from wind action.

This compares with 2,324,000 acres damaged by wind during the comparable period a year earlier.

The land damaged during the current season includes 1,148,000 acres of cropland, 233,000 acres of rangeland, and 49,000 acres of other land.

The Northern Plains states reported 734,000 acres damaged compared with 1,633,000 acres damaged a year earlier. The Southern Plains states reported 696,000 acres damaged. A year ago the southern plains damage covered 691,000 acres.

As of May 31, land damage in the Southern Plains was: Colorado, 36,000 acres; Kansas, 70,000 acres; New Mexico, 96,000 acres; Oklahoma, 22,000 acres; and Texas, 472,000 acres. Damage in the Northern Plains: Montana, 77,000 acres; Nebraska, 140,000 acres; North Dakota, 140,000 acres; South Dakota, 106,000 acres; and Wyoming, 171,000 acres.

The Soil Conservation Service said emergency tillage was applied on about 2.3 million acres during the current blow season. Texas reported the largest acreage (2 million) of emergency tillage. Several states reported it effective in keeping the total acres of land damage to a minimum.

Alexander Graham Bell gave the first public demonstration of his telephone at the Philadelphia World's Fair in 1876.

Classes will be taught next fall and spring in Pampa Junior High and Robert E. Lee Junior High," Woldt concluded.

Washington Window

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To put the new National Republicans Citizens Committee in focus, it is necessary to know:

(A) NRCC was not formed, as advertised, at the June 30 all-Republican conference which assembled at the Eisenhower farm in Gettysburg.

(B) NRCC is, for the time being, a headless horseman of sorts.

The committee was organized before the June 30 meeting with the blessing of former President Eisenhower. The organizing energy and brains were contributed by Walter N. Thayer, president of the New York Herald Tribune.

The Herald Tribune is self-styled independent Republican. It is coming to be the accepted Eastern newspaper voice of the Republican party. Especially it is so accepted since its voice became so sharp that President Kennedy couldn't take it and canceled all 22 White House subscriptions. A party voice could not be more highly honored.

Has No Hero

NRCC is a headless horseman of sorts because it lacks a candidate, a headman. Citizens' committees need heroes for whom to shout, parade and contribute money. They are organized for that purpose. Sen. Barry Goldwater R-Ariz., was quick to protest that the Republican party had no need for an adjunct such as NRCC; that citizens' committees were for campaign years when there was a president to be elected.

The organizers of NRCC for the most part are from the party fringe far removed from party discipline, such as that is. The committee is suspect by such as Goldwater and the congressional Republican leadership on grounds that it may have a candidate in seclusion somewhere and one whom the old line Republican partymen will not want. There is uneasiness, also, lest NRCC dabble in party policy.

Makers of Policy

The Republican congressional leaders consider themselves the policy-making, working chiefs of the Republican party. They are making Republican policy in Congress and they expect the party to conform to the policy they make. At that point, the congressional Republican leadership and the new NRCC are likely to draw apart, assume aggressive postures of defense and, shortly, to engage in a public political brawl. That will delight the Democrats.

The new NRCC was not formed or organized at Ike's farmyard conference. It just looked that way. The six-page NRCC memorandum appealing for funds and naming the organizers was dated June 30, the day of the conference, and postmarked in the afternoon of July 1 at Gettysburg. It contained a covering letter from Eisenhower to Thayer dated June 28.

By United Press International Washington-Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., influential chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, urging that President Kennedy be given greater discretion to allocate aid to Yugoslavia and Poland.

"Having weighed this matter carefully, I feel it would be a terrible mistake if we departed from our present policy — the policy of Eisenhower and Kennedy."

Statue Of Lincoln To Be Unveiled

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A statue of Abraham Lincoln made by a Mexican sculptor will be unveiled at a busy intersection here next February on the anniversary of Lincoln's assassination.

A "Committee for an Abraham Lincoln Monument" said Robert Todd Lincoln Beckwith, grandson of the famous U.S. President and now visiting Mexico, accepted an invitation to attend the inauguration.

Lincoln frequently is compared here with Benito Juarez, considered Mexico's greatest humanitarian, who also was President during the early part of the second half of the last century.

The statue will be erected in the "Glorietta" at the intersection of Division Del Norte and Universidad Avenue. "Glorietas" are enclosed circles in the center of major intersections.

Sculptor Ignacio Asunsolo said he has begun the figure, which will be standing.

Program Starts For McLean's Lovett Library

McLEAN (Sp) — Mrs. Erma Hester, librarian, has released the program for the summer reading program at the Lovett Memorial Library, which started this week and will continue until Aug. 24.

All ages, including pre - school children, may participate. Requirements are suited to age levels and reading club certificates will be issued to those who have met the requirements when the program ends.

Pre-school age through 7 years may participate in a story hour each Friday morning with qualified story tellers in charge.

Assisting Mrs. Hester in the project, besides the story tellers, are Sue Green, Janice Barker and Joyce Beasley, all high school students.

Weekly Report To Texans

By SEN. JOHN TOWER

Senator Barry Goldwater (R-Arizona), as guest of Senator John Tower (R-Texas), on his weekly report to Texas constituents, commented on the foreign trade policies of the United States. The text of the report:

"This is Senator Barry Goldwater, Junior Senator from Arizona, and I am pinch-hitting today for my very good friend, John Tower, who has asked me to be his guest on this program. I was very happy to accept this invitation, because, as you people in Texas all know, I have the utmost regard for John Tower. I think he is one of the ablest men who has come into the United States Senate in many years, and I hope that the people of Texas, in their good wisdom, keep him here for the rest of his life.

Today, I thought I'd discuss with you the ramifications of the Tariff Bill, as it's called. This bill has passed the House of Representatives, and is now slated for hearings before the Senate committee.

It envisions, in the long run, the United States participating in, if not actually, at least paralleling the Common Market. I happen to believe that the Common Market is a good concept. We, in the United States, have worked with a common market all of the years of our existence. The founding fathers were very wise, in my opinion, in preventing the various states from placing trade barriers between them and the other states. In fact, they recognized the necessity for inter-state commerce by the writing of the Constitution.

The question is: What does the President ask for, and what will it do? The President has requested some authority which I don't think he needs. I don't think the President should be given the sole authority to raise or lower tariffs, tariff points, or quotas, in this country. I believe this is too much of a concentration of power in the hands of the Executive, and I believe it is contrary to the concepts of the Constitution. It is my feeling that tariffs can be regulated very easily by the Tariff Commission, and if there's some tendency to slowness there, I think the Legislative Branch can take care of that factor.

There are, however, some things that have to be done before the accomplishments which the President has in mind can be reached—at least in my opinion. This opinion, I might say, comes from a lifetime spent in business before I entered the field of politics. First of all, our tax structure has to be seriously modified. I don't mean that any special class in America should receive any benefits over and above anyone else. But, certainly, we must make it more attractive for United States investors to invest money. We have to make it more attractive for manufacturers, or let's say the business side of our society, to invest money in new plants and equipment.

Mind you, we have, between 95 and 100 billion dollars worth of obsolete machinery on the floors of our factories. Unless we give the manufacturer, the merchant, or whoever it might be, the ability to buy new machinery and equipment, through a liberalization of the depreciation allowance, we cannot bring our economy up to the rate of growth which it must maintain if we are to successfully compete in the world market.

I would like to see the President submit a much broader program than he has suggested under this trade bill, which is a billion and a half dollars. The problem is 95 to 100 billion dollars. If he would do this, I am sure that the economy would start rising at a rate faster than it has ever run before, and it would provide the two to two and a half million new jobs that are going to have to be provided in the next ten years, if we are to continue our competitive ability.

On the whole, I think the present economic situation, whether it's domestic, or world wide, rests upon the President's determination to see to it that American business can compete with foreign markets, and can grow internally.

LONDON — An official at the Goomhill control room, commenting on the reaction of scientists to the successful relay of a British television program into American homes:

"I heard a lot of noise and excitement and then I heard someone say 'good show' and all that."

T. L. SALMONS
... program director

Music Training Program Slated By Local Church

A religious music training program will be conducted at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Street Church of Christ starting Monday. The program gets underway at 8 p.m. Monday and continues through the following Sunday. Director of the program will be T. L. Salmons of Midland, who studied music at the University of Chattanooga in Tennessee and Cadek Conservatory of Music, also in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Salmons sang seven years for the Chattanooga Opera, had a television show in that city and sang several seasons with the Washington Choral Society.

A tentative schedule calls for morning classes from 9 to 10 o'clock for 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades; and from 10:30 to 11:30 for 4th, 5th and 6th grades.

In the afternoon, classes will be held from 2:30 to 3:30 for Jr. High and High School grades and from 4 to 5 for private voice group.

In the evening, song leaders will have class from 7 to 7:50 with a general assembly to start at 8.

On Sunday, July 22, at 2:30 p.m., there will be congregational singing in the church auditorium directed by Salmons.

Weekly Pay Of Factory Worker Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The weekly pay of the average U.S. factory worker climbed to a record high of $97.03 in June, the Labor Department reports.

It said the number of workers on non-farm payrolls increased by about a half million to a record peak of 55,654,000. The average factory work week—regarded as a key economic indicator—failed to show its usual mid-summer advance, however.

Working hours in manufacturing plants averaged 40.6 hours last month, an increase of only six minutes. The work week usually expands by three or four times that amount in June.

The department reported predominantly season increases in manufacturing and non-farm payroll employment in June. There were better-than-usual job gains earlier this spring. Dr. Seymour Wolfbein, department manpower expert, said the decline in work hours and the flattening out of the job improvements did not indicate a business downturn ahead.

He said it was hard to view the job picture as deteriorating when total employment, pay and hours all were up substantially over last year.

Fun In The Sun? It's A Mad, Mad, Mad World!

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
Hollywood Correspondent,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (NEA) — The title, "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" couldn't have been more appropriate for a film on location in the summer at a "fun-in-the-sun" winter resort.

Fun in the sun? The temperature zoomed to 115 degrees. A 300-pound cake of ice, ordered for a publicity photograph, melted to the size of an ice cube in less than three hours.

An electric boss warned a crewman: "Your are light is smoking." "And it isn't even LIT," quipped Buddy Hackett.

Make-up men used Turkish towels to sop perspiration from the faces of Sid Caesar, Milton Berle, Ethel Merman and Dorothy Provine. Between scenes Jonathan Winters, the cut-up, shuffled into an Indian rain dance accompanied by unintelligible chanting and drawing symbols in the sand.

Eddie Adams brushed sand flies from her arms, calling out: "Fly man, fly man!" A make-up man with a can of insect repellent sprayed her from head to toe. At lunch, which was served under a huge tent, the barbecue boss apologized for the overdone roast beef.

"It was half-cooked," he grinned, "before we could get it into the oven."

After lunch, Mickey Rooney feigned madness, shouting, "We've all gone crazy — and I'm the leader."

There were amazed looks from passing motorists on the Palm-to-Pines highway which snakes up the steaming, rockpile mountains southwest of Palm Springs to cool, mile-high mountain resorts.

A film location company at work in the burning heat of the California desert in July was crazy enough. More startling to passersby were the eight stars in argument as hot as the temperature. They stood beside four autos, parked on a dusty promontory 3,000 feet up the highway's grapevine grade.

Who, after all, had ever seen Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, Ethel Merman, Mickey Rooney, Dorothy Provine, Buddy Hackett, Eddie Adams and Jonathan Winters together anywhere, let alone playing a scene together on the desert in 115 degree heat?

They were there, haggling over how to split a fortune in buried loot, because of Stanley Kramer's decision that it was "time" for something a little less serious. After a career of heavy drama, he was out in the hot sun for laughs. The plot — greed turns people into monsters — was a message he could deliver with laughs.

No chase in movie history could compare with what Kramer was brewing. By auto, plane and on foot, with dynamite, blowtorch and chicanery, the eight stars go berserk, even involving police captain Spencer Tracy in their madness.

For Sid Caesar, the film was his movie debut and the script gave him the wildest sustained comedy sequence with Eddie Adams.

Attorney Gets 7 Years For Murder

FORT WORTH (PI)—Attorney Jack Mackin was convicted of murder with malice and sentenced to seven years in prison Friday for the fatal shooting of Clarence A. Loudon Jr.

The jury deliberated eight hours before returning the verdict. It was the second trial for the 34-year-old Mackin. The first trial ended in a hung jury. A poll of the jury showed an 8-4 vote for acquittal.

The state charged Mackin shot Loudon, a swimming pool contractor, after a night club argument on Aug. 4, 1961.

Jackie Gleason Wants To Quit His Performing

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jackie Gleason, professionally and physically one of the biggest stars in show business, wants to quit performing.

"What I would like to do is stop acting," Gleason said. "When I say that, I mean three years from now. I'm committed until then."

There's a possibility Gleason may be committed even further if current negotiations result in more pictures for him.

Gleason now is starring in "Papa's Delicate Condition," his first Hollywood movie since 1948.

Sitting in a dressing room trailer, Gleason waved toward his next-door private nightclub, a comfortable hideaway with red velvet walls, small bar, stools and necessary liquids. The spot was provided by the picture's thoughtful producer.

"The last time I was out here they wouldn't buy me a drink, much less a nightclub," he said of filmland's producers. "I've got to go along with them. I wouldn't drink with me then either."

Sunflowers May Be Cash Crop In Near Future

Farmers throughout West Texas may be growing sunflowers as a cash crop in the near future, if scientists at the High Plains Research Foundation are successful in their attempt to breed improved varieties for commercial use.

The sunflower plant, which was being used by the Indians when the earliest European explorers discovered North America, offers considerable promise as a potential cash crop for West Texas. Of particular importance is the fact that it is a drought tolerant plant well adapted to our soil and climatic conditions. It can be grown with less water than most other crops such as corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, cotton, and castorbeans.

Several hundred plant types from Russia, Canada, Chile, Columbia and South Africa are under study at the Foundation. Dr. Earl Collier, Chief Agronomist, and Barry Love, Assistant Agronomist and Paul Belcher, Technician, are conducting the plant breeding program. Superior plants are being self-pollinated for use in developing high yielding varieties adapted to complete mechanization. The goal of the breeding program is to develop varieties that can be harvested with a regular grain combine.

The sunflower seed could be marketed as an oilseed crop to oil mills, sold directly to feed mills, or consumed on the farm as feed for poultry and livestock. The whole seed is an excellent feed for poultry and livestock. It contains a higher percentage of total digestible nutrients, protein, and fat than many other feed crops, particularly corn, oats, and wheat.

Sunflower seed contain approximately 30 percent oil or fat, which is classified as a very high quality semi-drying oil, and approximately 22 percent protein. The oil is used in the manufacture of drugs, shortening, salad dressings, oleomargarine, and liniments. The meal or flour from the sunflower seed is an excellent source of protein, minerals, and vitamins. It contains about 30 percent protein, is unusually rich in calcium, an excellent source of thiamine or vitamin B1, and particularly outstanding in its supply of niacin. From the standpoint of nutritional value, sunflower meal would be a very desirable ingredient in human food products.

On commenting about the future of sunflowers as a crop for the future, Dr. Collier stated, "sunflowers could be an important cash crop for the farmers of West Texas, since it can be grown with less water than most crops. With our declining water table throughout the High Plains of West Texas, crops of this type will be essential in our farming program in the future."

Fred MacMurray Writes On Problems Of Daily Tension

By FRED MACMURRAY
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The consequences of anger are often more harmful to the person experiencing it than its causes." I read this a long time ago—how long I won't say—when I was in college. One of the wise old Greek philosophers said it. It has remained with me ever since. Although it was written many years before Christ it has more pertinency today than ever before.

Think about it. The modern world, and especially America, is full of wonderful conveniences and pleasure—making devices making life easier for so many of us. Yet all of us tend to get annoyed and irritated by petty things.

Let me give you a few examples.

I was driving home down a traffic-heavy street one evening from work after a rough day that had begun early in the morning before the "Son of Flagger" cameras at Walt Disney Studios. Some crazy driver bent on going nowhere cut in front of me. I jammed on my brakes just in time to avoid hitting him.

Of course, I was furious. Furious enough to chase the other car for over a mile, thoroughly

Twenty years ago, a civic leader and "man of God," devoted to the service of His people, came to Pampa to pastor the First Baptist Church.

Dr. E. Douglas Carver and his family will be honored Sunday in a 20th anniversary service and dinner in the church following the sermon by Dr. E. S. James of Dallas, editor of the Baptist Standard Magazine.

Dr. Carver is a product of the Panhandle and has watched and helped Pampa grow in size and stature since he came here in 1942. Known for his pride and devotion to Pampa citizens and support of community enterprises, Dr. Carver joined the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club in 1942 and is past president of the Rotary Club.

Past president of the Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which includes 13 counties in Texas and three in Oklahoma, he is currently a member of the board of directors. During his tenure as president, the dining hall at Camp Kiowa was built on Lake Marvin.

A member of the first board of directors of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, he was a member of the association for three years and this year was given the responsibility of securing the Cowboy Band of Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene to provide rodeo music.

"Pampa has nearly doubled in size since 1942 because its civic leaders are progressive and because its people are civic-minded, public-spirited, aggressive and cooperative," Dr. Carver said. "I'm glad to live in a forward-looking community."

"This town used to be a wheat, farming and ranching town and now we are reaping the products of oil. I was preaching in my first church in White Deer when oil was discovered here in 1927. Pampa had a population then of 2,000. "When I came here, Pampa had three cooperating Southern Baptist Churches, First, Central and Calvary. I believe our churches have helped to create a Christian atmosphere by being aggressive and true to the teaching of the scriptures."

Dr. Carver was born Feb. 23, 1903, in Palo Pinto County and moved to Wheeler in 1907. After graduating from Wheeler High School in 1921, he attended Way-

His Personal Projects Busy Raymond Burr

EDITOR'S NOTE: UPI Hollywood correspondent Joseph Finnigan is on vacation. Raymond Burr CBS-TV's "Perry Mason" is one of Hollywood's busiest actors. In a guest column, he outlines some of his projects.

By RAYMOND BURR
As Written For UPI

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The second most frequent question I'm asked (for first, of course, is "When is Perry Mason going to lose a case?") is "How do you manage to do all the things you do?"

The question is usually asked as though a magic secret were expected. There is no secret, and there is no magic. The answer is simple: I enjoy everything I do—or I don't do it.

The range of my activities and interests is wide, but probably no wider than those of many other men. Mine have enjoyed more attention though, because I'm an actor and therefore more noticeable than most other men.

In addition to acting—as Perry Mason on the CBS television, and in other roles when I have the chance—I have a number of other projects.

There is, for example, my art gallery in Beverly Hills. I've always been interested in art, there's nothing unusual in this. But I've been fortunate enough to be able to do more than visit galleries. I've enjoyed collecting works of art, and I find enormous enjoyment in this further step I've taken that lets me be a participant in art by presenting the work of painters who deserve the attention of the public.

Ask Inevitable Question
People who are aware of the demanding production schedule of the "Perry Mason" series—we work 12-hour days on a five-day-a-week basis—asked the inevitable question: "How can you do it?"

They might as well ask a man how he finds time to go to the baseball game or to go fishing. This is recreation to me; the fact that it's a business doesn't alter the fact that I enjoy it, that I find it stimulating and exciting.

The same is true of the other things I do. I spend much of my time traveling around the country addressing both professional and lay groups on the law. I'm not a lawyer, but I couldn't have played Perry Mason for so long, and enjoyed it so much, without learning something about his profession and about the philosophy that underlies the principles of the law.

I haven't studied these things as a duty so much as I have learned them as a matter of personal interest. I do think it's a duty to know and understand the law—but it's by no means an onerous duty. Ignorance of the law is no excuse—and it's also no fun.

Interested in Safety
Another interest I have is in accident prevention. This is, in a way, an outgrowth of my interest in the law; a large amount of the state, county and municipal bodies of law—motor vehicles codes, building regulations, industrial codes—are intended specially to prevent accidents. Yet law is not enough in itself to prevent accidental death or injury to people and damage to property. The law must be supplemented by education and by safety techniques.

One such technique, which I'm proud to say I had a hand in developing, is the blueprint for life now in effect in greater Cleveland, Ohio. It combines and coordinates the safety campaigns of a number of agencies that hitherto had been conducted separately. I also spend a considerable amount of time doing what I can to help several charitable causes, such as aid to crippled children and to victims of muscular dystrophy and cerebral palsy.

land Baptist College in Plainview until 1923. Wayland grew into a four-year baptist college and conferred the honorary Doctor of Divinity degree upon Dr. Carver in 1953.

For a year, 1923-24, he coached football, taught grade school math and music and was a grade school principal in Brownfield. In 1924 he entered Hardin-Simmons University and graduated in 1926 with a B.A. degree.

"Aug. 23, 1927, two days after she graduated from Hardin-Simmons, I married Miss Earnestine Rosser of Abilene. We were married in the church where she was organist and pianist while going to school. In February, 1927, I was called to my first pastorate in White Deer.

"I did seminary work at the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Ft. Worth by commuting by car and train while we lived in White Deer."

His second pastorate was in the First Baptist Church, McPherson, Kans., in January, 1934 until May 1935. He preached in the First Baptist Church of Harlingen from 1935-41 and at the University Baptist Church in Abilene before coming to Pampa July 15, 1942.

His two recreations are golf and horseback riding. He keeps a saddle horse, named Cherokee, on Clyde Organ's farm, east of City. Dr. Carver grew up on a farm and ranch and still takes time to help Panhandle ranchers brand and work cattle and has belonged to the Pampa Roping Club.

people and has a sincere devotion in his prayer life that gives us all confidence under stress."

Dr. Carver said: "When I was a young minister, I feared that my income in the ministry might be so meager I couldn't make a living, but I haven't found this to be true. People have been good to us and we have always hated to leave any church when called to another."

"No man should enter the ministry unless he feels a distinct calling from God and unless he is willing to forego many of the things other people desire. He must realize that he is to be a servant to all and should say with the apostle Paul, 'This one thing I do.'"

"Thinking of the ministry frightened me at first because of the central responsibility to God and to the people to whom I might minister. A man who becomes a preacher does so without reservation. He has one goal and no life divided from God and His will. If I had my life to live over, I wouldn't change the direction."

Like all preachers, Dr. Carver never has a 40 or 50 hour week. He is "on call" all the time yet still takes time for study and prayer, usually early in the mornings or late in the evening.

During his pastorate in the First Baptist Church, two new three floor educational buildings have been completed, additional land properties were bought and a $40,000 lodge was built to house 48 guests at Glorieta, N.M., a Baptist assembly near Santa Fe.

Since it was built in 1929, the First Baptist Church has progressed until today its resident membership totals 3,000. Its membership additions total 5,670 with 100 added yearly by baptism. Its gifts to foreign missions total over half a million; its present property evaluation, is $1,332,761 and in the past 20 years it has established three missions that are now full-time churches in Pampa and has assisted other churches in Burlington, Colo., Casper, Wyo., Miles City, Mont., and Bismark, N.D.

"Our aim in starting local missions is to put a church where the people are, instead of trying to get them all to come to the First Baptist Church," Dr. Carver said. The church welcomes visitors during the service and following anniversary celebration Sunday.

250,000 TEXANS PREFER STATE FARM

HERE'S WHY:

When Texans choose one brand of insurance over another, as they have with State Farm, they must have some pretty solid reasons. Take cost for instance. Texas policyholders have come to expect dividend savings from State Farm Mutual (eligible policyholders have been receiving them for the past 27 years). State Farm's present 25% dividend makes the actual net cost of State Farm car insurance lower than most other companies. What about service? State Farm has more agents in more places to provide more service than you'd find almost anywhere. Most important, you get top-notch protection and famous "hometown" service wherever you travel. Car insurance due? Check with me before renewing your present policy.

Dodgers Increase Lead In National League Race

Los Angeles In Win Over Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, running wild in an eight-run second inning and a six-run sixth inning, stretched their National League lead to 2½ games Saturday by crushing the New York Mets, 17-3 under a 16-hit barrage.

A crowd of 37,253, lured in part by a Dodgers-Giants "Old-Timers" game preceding the regular game, saw the Dodgers come within two runs of the highest scoring game in the major leagues this year.

Leading the assault on five Mets' pitchers were Willie Davis and Maury Wills with three hits each. Davis and Wills each had a home run, as did pitcher Stan Williams who went all the way for his eighth victory of the year.

The Dodgers scored all their 17 runs before the Mets got their three off Williams.

After Davis' solo homer in the first inning, the Dodgers chased Met starter Craig Anderson and reliever Ray Davault, neither of the second inning uprising. Ken MacKenzie finally stopped that splurge but was knocked out himself in the sixth inning rally.

Davis and John Roseboro each drove in three runs and Wills, Wally Moon, Frank Howard and Williams two each.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates extended their mastery over Houston Saturday with a 4-2 triumph that marked their seventh consecutive win over the Colts and their 11th in 14 meetings.

Right-hander Vernon Law scattered eight hits for his eighth victory and his sixth complete game. The Pirates banded out 11 hits for their fourth straight victory and their 18th in the last 23 games.

Law struck out six and allowed no walks.

Joe Amalfitano tabbed the first pitch thrown by Law for a single and Roman Mejias lofted his 20th homer over the left field wall to account for all the Houston scoring.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Shortstop Bobby Wine, a daddy for only 24 hours, hit a two-out single in the 10th Saturday to score pinch runner Jackie Davis from second base and give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The victory, second in a row over the Giants, was at the expense of Stu Miller (4-5), the fourth San Francisco pitcher. Jack Baldschun (3-5) was the winner in relief of Dallas Green.

Roy Sievers opened the winning rally with a single. Clay Dalrymple forced pinch runner Billy Klaus and Davis ran for Dalrymple. Don Demeter was hit by a 3-2 pitch, pinch batter Wes Covington fled to deep center but then Wine's line drive over short meant the ball game.

The Phils had an early 5-0 lead on two-run homers by Tony Gonzalez and Sievers, both off starter Juan Marichal and a run-scoring single by Demeter off Don Larsen in the fifth when the Giants came up with a game tying six-hit, five-run inning in the seventh.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ron Santo's 12th homer capped an eighth inning of four unearned runs Friday to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-3 win over the Cincinnati Reds. Marty Keough, who had been sent into the game for defensive purposes, dropped Billy Williams' high fly to score Lou Brock with the winning run. Moments later, Santo drove in Williams and George Altman, who had walked, ahead of himself with his blow.

Glen Hobbie, who had lost nine games this season, won his second and first from the Reds.

Cincinnati starter Jim O'Toole lost his 10th game against eight victories. He was chased from the game for protesting Santo's home run which was near the foul line.

The Cubs did not score until their weekend catcher, Dick Bertell, hit a pinch homer in the fifth.

St. PAUL MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Chuck Hinton's two-run single in the eighth inning Saturday gave the Washington Senators a come-from-behind 4-3 win over the Minnesota Twins and enabled Bennie Daniels to post his first victory since opening day.

Hinton's line drive came off reliever Joe Bonkowski with the bases loaded and two out. The Senators rallied for three runs in that inning to overtake the Twins.

Harry Bright accounted for the other Washington run in the eighth when he walked with the bases loaded. Hinton also drove in the first Senators' run with a double in the fifth.

Jim Kaat, who retired the first 12 men to face him and was sailing along until the eighth, was charged with his ninth loss in 17 decisions.

Harmon Killebrew accounted for all the Minnesota runs with a three-run homer in the first. It was his 21st round-tripper of the season.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Frank Baumann's four-hit pitching enabled the Chicago White Sox to run their winning streak to five games Saturday with a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers and move into fifth place in the American League.

Baumann, giving manager Al Lopez a fifth straight route performance, yielded his first hit in the fifth inning, when Steve Boros whacked his first pitch for a home run.

Floyd Robinson belted a two-run homer off loser Jim Bunning in the first inning. The White Sox scored two more runs in the third inning when Charlie Maxwell singled home Joe Cunningham and Robinson.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Ernie Broglio tossed a second consecutive shutout at the Milwaukee Braves and his St. Louis teammates backed him up with a six-hit attack, which included Julio Gotay's first major league home run, for a 2-0 victory Saturday.

Broglio, who shutout the Braves the last time he faced them, struck out 9 and walked only 2 while giving up six hits. He and Braves started Bob Shaw were in a torrid pitching duel until the seventh when Shaw was lifted for a pinch hitter.

The loss went to Shaw, his seventh of the year and fifth in a row. Broglio is now 5-4. The Cards scored an unearned run in the second when Kenny Boyer was safe on Eddie Mathews error, took third on Stan Musial's single and scored on Curt Flood's sacrifice fly.

Gotay's homer, his first in 308 major league times at bat, came in the fifth.

Doves Are Available Two Days

United Press International — The Texas whitewing dove season will be held to two days in Texas this year, and hunters will find bag limits cut at least to 12 daily bag and 24 in possession. That is some of the more disappointing news the State Game and Fish Commission received this week from Washington, where the Fish and Wildlife Service announced the year's basic season and bag and possession limits for dove and waterfowl.

Commission executive secretary Howard Dodgen said the whitewing bag may be cut as low as 10 daily limit. The commission gets the seasons and bag limits for doves, at its meeting next Friday.

The service noted changes in doves' breeding populations before setting the outside dates and limits. The service said Texas can choose a 60-day season, for mourning doves with shooting confined to half of each day.

In southern Texas counties in which whitewings are hunted as well as mourning doves, the white wing season will be two days in September and the mourning dove season can be 58 additional half-days. Shooting hours for whitewings will be from 2 p. m. to sunset. Mourning dove shooting time will be from noon to sunset.

Mourning dove bag limits are expected to be 12 daily and 24 in possession.

Except for the mourning doves and whitewings, basic hunting regulations will be the same as last year.

Dodgen said the wildlife situation is better, considering rains over the state recently. He said hunters can expect a decent normal season.

Eugene Walker, commission assistant director for program planning, said dove breeding numbers declined this year, causing the revision in bag limits from 15 daily and 30 in possession to 12 and 24.

If a hunter is a real sportsman, he can change the pace of the slow summer season to tackle one of Texas' most elusive animals—the mountain lion. The cat from the mountains of Mexico ventures across the Rio Grande to search for food in the brush country of South Texas.

Most of the lion hunting is by professionals for bounties paid in many counties, but amateur hunters find tracking the lion, or cougar, as he is called formally, an exciting venture.

The lion country in Texas is mostly along the border and in the trans-Pecos area. Some occurrence is reported periodically farther north, into the Plains.

EAGLES SIGN TWO PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles said Tuesday that signed contracts for the 1962 National Football League season have been received from offensive right tackle J. D. Smith and line-backer Bob Harrison. The Eagles open their pre-season training camp at Hershey, Pa., July 22.

TIGERS OBSERVE ROOKIE DETROIT (UPI) — Howie Koplitz, recently discharged from the Army, will pitch batting practice for the Detroit Tigers the next few days. The Tigers then will decide whether to place the 24-year old right-hander, who was the minor leagues' top pitcher in 1961, on their roster.

The Lions held down first place in the Older Boys league with a 7-1 record. American Legion and Perryton Motors were tied for second place with 3-2 marks.

Bryan Oil and McGibbon Oil were tied for the top spot in the Men's Softball loop with identical 3-1 records. First National was in second place with a 2-2 record.

First National also led the Girl's softball league with a 4-0 record. Jennie Jones was in second place with a 3-1 record.

Lefors Wins Over McLean Nine, 15-12

LEFORS (Sp) — Lefors Inter-City League. The Twins' was host to the McLean team last Sunday afternoon, on the Optimists ball diamond north of the city.

The Lefors team edged the McLean boys in a battle to the finish, the final score being 15-12.

Tommy Smith pitched two innings in the game for Lefors, with Woody Trusty the remainder of the innings and gaining the win. The coaches considered Woody's pitching in the game one of the best since the beginning of the season.

James Coleman showed outstanding hitting ability, getting four for four, three singles and one double.

Tommy Smith connected two for four, one being a triple and one a single.

Phil Woodring got a double for one of his two hits.

Neal Cates also knocked a triple and showed remarkable ability in centerfield, doing his best when under pressure.

Jerry Lane also played an outstanding game throughout the afternoon at second base.

Red Sox In Win Over A's

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Arnold Earley took advantage of his first major league starting assignment and pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 win over the Kansas City Athletics here Saturday.

The Red Sox's left-hander, who built up a 3-1 record in relief, scattered five hits in chalking up his fourth win. He needed ninth inning help, however, from Earl Wilson and Chet Nichols.

Early was greeted in the ninth by Gino Cimoli's triple, followed by Heywood Sullivan's home run. After Billy Consolo drew a walk, Wilson entered the game and gave up a single to pinch-hitter George Alusik. Another pinch-hitter, Jose Tartabull, sacrificed the runners to second and third. Nichols replaced Wilson and faced Jerry Lumpe who hit back to the mound.

Nichols trapped Consolo coming into home and in the ensuing run-down both Athletic runners wound up on third base.

The pickets, who identified themselves as members of the Harlem Consumers Committee, demonstrated outside a Chockful-O-Nuts Restaurant at 125th St. and Seventh Ave. Robinson is a vice-president of the firm.

A spokesman for the committee said Robinson had written a column in the New York Amsterdam News in which the Hall-of-Fame ballplayer accused the committee of being "anti-Semitic" in its protests against white merchants along 125th St. in the predominantly Harlem Negro neighborhood.

The committee spokesman said a letter had been sent to William Black, president of the restaurant chain, informing him the demonstrations would continue until Robinson retracted his statement.

The pickets Saturday chanted: "Jackie must go—Old Black Joe" and carried signs which read: "Who Picked Jackie Robinson for our Leader?"

Powers Overcomes Exhaustion To Win White Deer Swimathon

By DICK RABE

News Sports Editor

WHITE DEER — Barbara Powers of White Deer overcame exhaustion and fatigue Saturday afternoon to win the first annual Swimathon at the White Deer swimming pool.

Miss Powers, age 13, left the crystal clear waters of the pool after 25 hours and 50 minutes of a water-logged venture in a water marathon. The teen-age mermaid outlasted 14-year-old Scott Rader, 2108 N. Wells, who called it quits after 24 hours and 50 minutes in the heated depths.

The battle seemed to be a complete stalemate for awhile with both kids refusing to give up the ghost. Miss Powers, showing the burning effects of a warm Texas sun, finally managed to muster up enough endurance and fortitude, however, to capture first place in the first annual event.

Miss Powers received a Brownie camera, transistor radio, $25 check and season swimming ticket for the White Deer pool.

Rader received a radio and $10 check plus the season's ticket for his second-place finish.

Julie Puckett, 13 of White Deer, finished in third place following a dramatic comeback in which she came back after a seemingly "bushed" feeling to overtake another fellow swimmer and end up behind Powers and Rader.

Miss Puckett received $40 worth of records plus a box of candy and a season's ticket to the pool.

The prizes were awarded by Pampa merchants and Radio Station KHHH. The swimathon was sponsored by merchants of White Deer and KHHH radio.

Starting at 2 p. m. Friday afternoon, 16 youngsters, ranging in age from 13 to 21 hit the water of the White Deer pool to begin a grinding day and night endurance test which was to weed out all but two of the entries by Saturday afternoon. It was then that Miss Powers claimed victory at 3:50 p. m. and the swimathon title.

As the day progressed Friday, the kids became weeded out right and left, either by virtue of stomach cramps or just plain "too tired". Finally, at nightfall, parents of the entries fortified their youngsters with thermos bottles filled with hot coffee and chicken broth and also brought along a ready reserve of blankets and towels for their aquatic offsprings.

The field of entries became narrowed as the night progressed and then at 7 a. m. Saturday morning the participants had been narrowed to three. A few minutes later, however, Miss Puckett returned to the fore and gave it a gallant try until 12 noon when she had to retire from the gruelling ordeal with stomach cramps after 22 hours in the water.

Scurrying crews of parents and friends utilized the 10-minute breaks every 50 minutes to rub down their entries and apply liniment or vaseline whenever needed. The entries survived the nine-foot depths by floating, treading water or just plain bouncing from the bottom to the top of the pool time and again.

A gruelling, exhausting, but wonderful time was had by all and seemed assured of making future swimathons a real big success in the White Deer pool.

Baltimore Wins Over Indians, 4-3

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jim Gentile hit his 22nd home run, leading off the 14th inning, to give the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Gentile's blast came off Gary Bell, who relieved Cleveland starter Dick Donovan in the 10th inning.

The Orioles loaded the bases against Bell with none out in the top of the 10th but failed to score. Bell gave up two singles, two walks and a wild pitch in the scoreless inning. Dick Hall pitched the last four innings for Baltimore for the win.

Coach Anglin is expected to move to Canadian in August, Supt. Woodie Beene said.

Anglin is a native of Mount Pleasant. He attended Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene and, after four years in the Army graduated from West Texas State College. He holds both BA and MA degrees from WTSC.

Anglin played on service teams during his army enlistment. He has had five years coaching experience, one year at Dalhart and four at Dumas.

He is married, and has one child.

AAU Head Cites Real Sports Tie-In

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) —

The President of the U. S. Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) is a globe-trotting North Carolina attorney who believes there is a definite relationship between religion and sports.

"The original Olympic games, founded long before Christ, were founded on a religion of gods and goddesses," said Louis J. Fisher of nearby High Point, "and I think there's still something religious about pure amateur sports."

"If your body's clean, it helps make your mind and morals clean."

Fisher, 58, was elected president of the AAU last December at the height of a power struggle between the AAU and the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA) for control of amateur athletics across the nation.

The Connecticut native's pixie-like expression and disarming smile belie a tenacious temperament. Fisher is the High Point prosecutor and he'll fight law-breakers and certain NCAA policies with vigor.

"The NCAA says the AAU is autocratic," said Fisher with fire most Democratic organization in the world, modeled right after country's government.

Robinson Is Prime Target

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jackie Robinson, who broke the color line in baseball and became its first Negro star, was the target of a demonstration Saturday by Negroes in the heart of New York's Harlem.

Robinson, however, was at the time in North Harlem, where he was guest of honor at baseball old-timers day ceremonies in the Polo Grounds, home of the old New York Giants. Robinson played for the old Brooklyn Dodgers.

The pickets, who identified themselves as members of the Harlem Consumers Committee, demonstrated outside a Chockful-O-Nuts Restaurant at 125th St. and Seventh Ave. Robinson is a vice-president of the firm.

The Dodgers scored all their 17 runs before the Mets got their three off Williams.

After Davis' solo homer in the first inning, the Dodgers chased Met starter Craig Anderson and reliever Ray Davault, neither of the second inning uprising. Ken MacKenzie finally stopped that splurge but was knocked out himself in the sixth inning rally.

Davis and John Roseboro each drove in three runs and Wills, Wally Moon, Frank Howard and Williams two each.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates extended their mastery over Houston Saturday with a 4-2 triumph that marked their seventh consecutive win over the Colts and their 11th in 14 meetings.

Right-hander Vernon Law scattered eight hits for his eighth victory and his sixth complete game. The Pirates banded out 11 hits for their fourth straight victory and their 18th in the last 23 games.

Law struck out six and allowed no walks.

Joe Amalfitano tabbed the first pitch thrown by Law for a single and Roman Mejias lofted his 20th homer over the left field wall to account for all the Houston scoring.

McColl Forsakes Grid Career For Medicine

CHICAGO (UPI)—The decision of Bill McColl to spurn a probable five figure income and life in the United States for the uncertain existence of a medical missionary wife and six children for a minimum period of two years as an orthopedic surgeon in a missionary hospital in Taegu, South Korea.

But his decision simply is added evidence that football alone is not a lifework for the 1951 graduate of Stanford, one of the all time stars of Palo Alto football.

McColl wouldn't sign to play pro football for the Bears until owner-coach George Halas assured him that he could complete his medical education in Chicago, just as numerous other Bears had done, such as Dr. Bill Osmanski and Dr. Danny Fortman.

Then McColl agreed. While he was blocking and tackling on the football field, he attended the University of Chicago Medical School and was graduated in 1955. He continued football for four more years before he quit after the 1959 season.

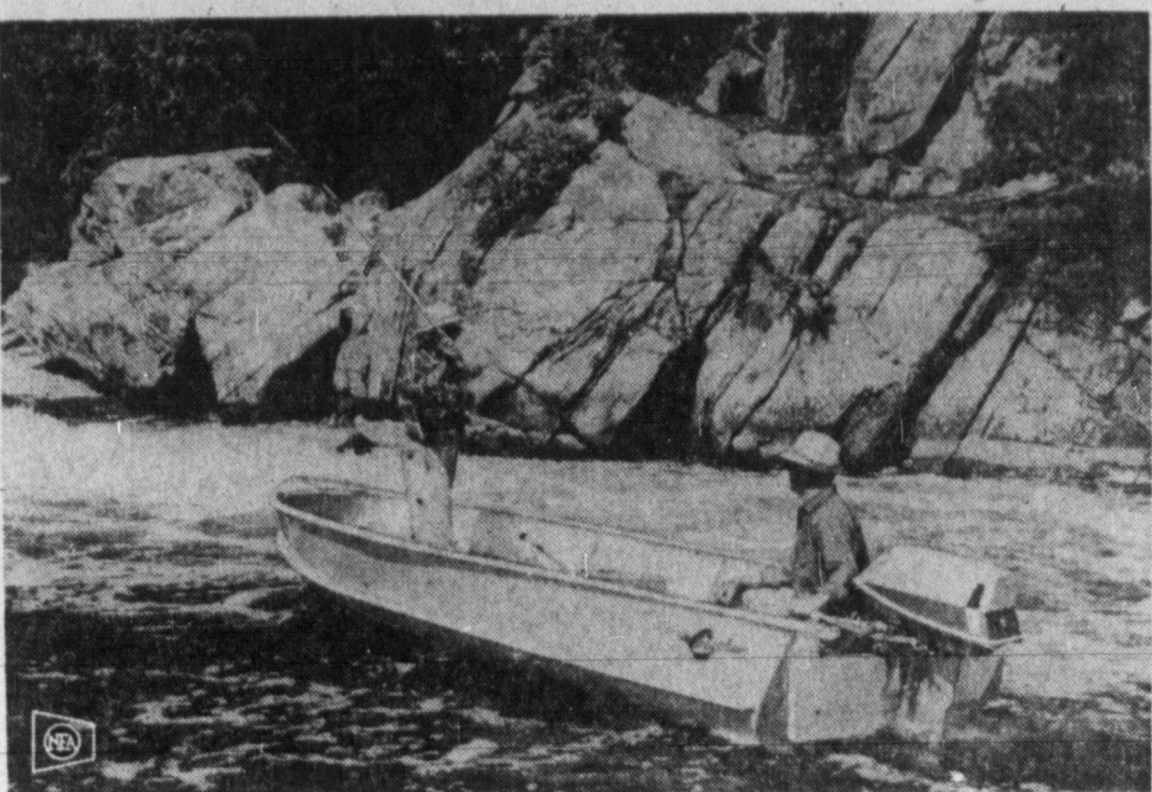

Likewise, he continued his medical training, in orthopedic surgery at the University of Illinois Medical Center. Now, his residency in surgery completed, he has made his decision for the future.

McColl has sold his house and with his family will spend some time in Michigan, then on to San Diego before embarking for Korea in September.

"I've had this on my mind for a long time," McColl said. "At first I was discouraged because most of the places were interested in general practitioners. The opening in Korea met my aims for the practice of medicine and the comfort of my family."

McColl, who was in the five figure income bracket for the Bears, will get about $6,500 a year in Korea. His church, in suburban Oak Park, is raising the estimated $17,720 needed for two years in the Presbyterian hospital mission.

"You never know," he said. "I just might stay there." His work in Korea will be extensively with war refugees and patients in a leprosy hospital, helping rehabilitate both groups.

Kennedy Stressing Need For Fitness

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Kennedy, in a copyrighted story in this week's Sports Illustrated Magazine, declared that one-quarter of America's school children are unable to pass the most minimal fitness tests.

Writing his second article for the magazine on the state of the nation's physical fitness, Kennedy made public a report from Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma football coach and director of the President's physical fitness program, on what he termed the "frightening" condition of America's youth.

"Never in history," Kennedy wrote, "has the United States been represented by a more gifted group of athletes in national and international competition. Yet we must not allow our pride in these few men to obscure the fact that over the past decades the level of our citizenry has been far below any reasonable national standard."

Kennedy pointed to the great reliance placed on the strength and vigor of the individual in the ancient Greek empire, as well as in the birth of our own nation, and he quoted Disraeli as saying: "The health of the people is really the foundation upon which all their happiness and all their powers as a state depend."

Two Tied In Public Links Tournament

TOWN OF TONAWANDA, N. Y. (UPI)—Amazing Hung Soo Ahn of Honolulu and defending champion Dick Sikes of Springdale, Ark., were deadlocked today midway through the 36-hole final of the 37th National Amateur Public Links Golf championship.

The deliberate Hawaiian, playing strong golf, shot three birdies over the 6,897-yard Sheridan Park course. Sikes, the 22-year-old University of Arkansas senior bidding for his second straight public links crown, carded his second 69 of the tourney, giving him two-under-par for 18 holes.

Sikes, three down after 10, hit an eagle three on the 506-yard par-five 11th while the steady Ahn posted one of his birdies. The champion reduced the deficit with a birdie-two on the 16 and pulled even when Ahn bogeyed the rugged 17th.

They then halved the 18th to remain tied.

The 32-year-old Ahn, refusing to go along at Sikes' fast pace, ran into trouble on the second hole when he ranged his second shot against the fence about 20 feet from the pin. He tried to blast out from behind the fence but had to concede the hole.

The bad break didn't seem to rattle Ahn. The slender Hawaiian won the par five 477-yard fourth when Sikes rapped his tee shot out of bounds for a two-stroke penalty.

Wills Was Rea Thief In Classic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — They don't like to knock themselves out in the All-Star game because it actually doesn't matter who wins—the money will find its way into the pension fund anyhow and too many guys have been racked up badly in the past.

Ted Williams broke his collar bone in one of them and Dizzy Dean suffered a broken toe which spelled the beginning of the end. So most of them give it the take-it-easy-Charley and we'll all go home fat and happy.

But you can't sell that to Maury Wills.

The lightning-footed little lead-off man of the Los Angeles Dodgers gave it the full-steam, professional try last Tuesday and it spelled the difference in a 3-1 National League victory.

"Why," asked one when it was over, "were you out there breaking your back?"

Maury looked at him silently for a moment, seemingly amazed at the idiocy of the question. When he answered, his voice was patient, as if explaining a point to a child.

"If they didn't feel I was going to put out, they wouldn't have selected me."

Maury knows only one way to play. Go man, Go.

He has been the stolen base champ of the National League for the past two years and is leading the majors by a country mile this season with 46.

So there wasn't anything too unusual about the exhibition he put on in running over the American League.

His first chance came when he was sent in as a pinch runner for Stan Musial, who led off the sixth inning with a single. Maury stole second base and then romped all the way home on Don Groat's single through the hole to break the ice for the National League.

Then, in the eighth inning with the nationals leading 2 to 1, he got them an insurance run with those flying feet.

Maury led off with a single left. When Jim Davenport singled, Wills steamed into second and seemingly put on the brakes. Rocky Colavito, fielding the ball in left, was suckered. For a moment, Wills was stuck. Then he heaved the ball to second, as to nail Wills there, and Maury simply shifted into high gear and beat the relay to third.

It took a driving slide. Maury wasn't playing it easy. He ripped open the back of his left hand but, more important, he was safe.

"Shucks," he said, "that was anything. It's nothing."

It was something to the American League. For when Felipe Alou fouled to Leon Wagner down the right field line—and not a deep—Wills raced in toward the plate. Wagner's throw pulled catcher John Romano just shade to the right of the plate as Wills slid safely in under his desperate lunge.

Old Casey Stengel, a National League coach who has been having a rough season as manager of the new Mets, couldn't say about much else but Wills was it was over.

"He's amazing," old Casey glowed. "An amazing slider, y' bet. When he makes that snappy move, you can't hardly catch him."

The American League agreed unanimously.

Dallas Cowboys Drop Two From Pro Gridiron Roster

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys of the NFL Saturday dropped two rookies for physical reasons and added another rookie to their roster.

Bucks Hubbard Alexander of Tennessee A&I and Rufus Jones of Central Oklahoma State were dropped when they failed to pass physicals.

Charles Sells, a six-foot, seven-inch product of Washington State, joined the squad. Sells was a prep football star at Seattle but passed up the sport in college to concentrate on basketball and track.

He will attempt to earn a berth on the squad as an offensive end.

North, South Share Advantages In All-Star Contest

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The Texas League All Stars will clash Tuesday in a game that will develop into a contest between the first class pitching of the North and the hitting of slugs on the South.

Manager of the North team, El Paso Oiler Field Boss Whitey Wroblewski will be able to call to the mound Tulsa hurlers Gordon Richardson (9-1) or Joe Shipley (8-2), two of the leading pitchers in the loop.

The South team, dominated by hitters from the El Paso Sun Kings, will present a formidable array of power in Jesus Alou and Felix Malondo, both Sun

King outfielders. Alou is hitting .347 with 9 homers while Maldonado has .328.

However, both teams are loaded with top performers. The North team is not lacking in hitting with the loop's top home run producers in Jeff Long of Tulsa with 21 and catcher Billy Bryan, Albuquerque, with 20.

The North also has the league's top hitter, Tulsa outfielder Joe Patterson, who is hitting .378.

The South pitching staff is bolstered by the leading game winner and strikeout king, Harvey Shipley of San Antonio. Branch has won 10 while losing 7, and has struck out 137.

The South's top home run hitter is Charles Peterson, El Paso shortstop, who has belted 19 roundtrippers, hitting .339 and leads in RBIS with 82.

The South team consists of catchers Jim Hay, Austin, 249 and Tim Talton, El Paso, 314; first base Don Davis, San Antonio, .288; second base Don Hunt, Austin, .296; shortstop Peterson; third base Don Eaddy, San Antonio, .289; utility infielder Bill Lucas, Austin, .323; outfielders Jesse White, .310, and Bill Ott, .263, both of San Antonio; and Alou and Maldonado, both of El Paso.

The South pitching staff will consist of Branch and Morris

Stevens, 8-5, of San Antonio; Russ Henrichs, 6-2, and Denis Ribant, 5-8, both of Austin; Monte Tarrh, 7-2, and Lazaro Gomez, 9-8, both of El Paso.

The North team will have catchers Chuck Boone, Amarillo, .293 and Bryan, .317; first base Long, .292; second base Jerry Marx, Tulsa, .292; shortstop Horace Clarke, Amarillo, .293; third base Mike Mathiesen, Amarillo, .298; utility infielder Davey Davis, Amarillo, .324; outfielders Ron Solimini, .306, and Sam Miley, .358, both of Amarillo; Patterson and Gary Kolb, .282, both of Tulsa.

The North pitching will consist of Richardson, Shipley and Weldon Mauldin, 6-4, all of Tulsa; Ed Merritt, 6-9, and Paul Erickson, 6-2, both of Amarillo; and Jose Santiago, 8-7, and John O'Donoghue, 4-6, both of Albuquerque.

ANTWERP, BELGIUM (UPI) — Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson of Australia advanced in the Antwerp International tennis tournament Thursday while Mal Fox of Baltimore, Md., lost to Antonio Palafox of Mexico, 6-4, 6-0.

LL Tournament Is Slated Thursday

CANADIAN (Spl) — Little League baseball schedules for next week will be suspended, managers decided last night, while a little league All-Star team is hastily organized and coached for the annual little league tournament competition which begins next Thursday afternoon.

The team representing Canadian little league will meet a Texas team at 6 o'clock next Thursday evening in Spearman in the first tournament game. The winner is to meet the winner of a Fritch-Spearman game Friday night for the area I title.

Team managers and coaches met Wednesday night, voted to go ahead with a tournament entry, and selected an all-star team.

Named to the 14-player tournament team were Jerry Hornberger, Charles Ortega, and Hal Roberts of the Dodgers; Eddie Longhofer, Keith Wood and Gary Miller of the Cardinals; Joel McGraw, Terry Robinett and Mike Miller of the Yankees; and Bobby Goodwin, Richard Purnell and Randy Pennington of the Red Sox.

Yankee manager Claude Hodges is named manager of the tournament team, and Dodger manager

W. G. GATE HOUSTON (UPI) — The gate from the Eddie Machen-Cleveland Williams heavyweight bout was $13,000 short of the state record of $73,000.

Earl Gilliam, promoter of Tuesday's fight, said that of the total gate of $60,000 Machen and Williams would get "more than $15,000 apiece."

He said only 9,984 persons paid their way in. The sellout failed to reduce the record gate when $15 and $10 seats went unsold. Gilliam said.

Machen and Williams fought to draw.

ger Roger Wootton will be coach. Games tonight (Cardinals vs. Dodgers) and tomorrow night (Yankees vs. Red Sox) will be played as scheduled. No games will be played next week. Little League schedules will be resumed after the tournament.

One Little League stand-out, Stanley Whitsett of the Red Sox, who is leading the batting averages so far this season, is missing from the tournament squad and will be missing from the Red Sox line-up next week. He's moving away.

Tournament players are selected from the ranks of 11 and 12-year-olds.

Perjury Is Foreseen In Cage Cases

AUSTIN (UPI)—Basketball referee Odell Preston's testimony before the House General Investigating committee will be turned over to the Travis County district attorney to see if there is grounds for a perjury charge, chairman Rep. Charles Ballman said today.

The committee is investigating alleged point shaving by referees in Southwest Conference basketball games. Two witnesses identified Preston Friday as the man who made a telephone call from a Bassett, Tex., cafe to a Dallas number. Preston denied making the call.

"I believe there is sufficient information to bring to the attention of the district attorney," Ballman said. The committee temporarily suspended its basketball probe and went behind closed doors to discuss an investigation of the slanted-well oil scandal in East Texas.

ISN'T IT EXCITING about the orbiting communication satellite, Telstar? "The switchboard in the sky" wish we had direct contact with it as it zooms over the United States... think of all the interesting items we could pick up for this column!... maybe even with pictures, yet... seriously, though, as the television comedians say... isn't it a scientific marvel?... almost beyond comprehension... especially for those of us who went through the "radio by ear-phones day"... we remember that because our mother brought a set to our crib one day... speaking of "spies in the skies"... we saw our old summertime friend last night "Little Sir Echo" still wending its way from west to east almost directly overhead with a slight inclination toward the south... still as bright and perky looking as ever... we've come to look upon "Little Sir Echo" as sort of like a relative who comes to visit every summer... of course, it doesn't stay as long... only about 15 minutes from horizon to horizon.

MEANWHILE BACK ON EARTH... right from the very beginning Helene Huff, bride-elect of Wilfred McCormick of Albuquerque, N. M. said, "No Showers, please" when her many friends asked to extend these social courtesies but all brides should have "no showers" like the one that was given for Helene and The Colonel on Saturday evening last by Margaret Dial, Mary Jones and Lenore Sloan... the hostesses and guests are members of an art group and their gifts were objects d'art, over which they had labored long and lovingly... made with talents and time that have no price tag... the party began with a summertime supper in the patio garden of Mary Jones home on Chestnut... then everyone traipsed around the corner to Lenore's patio garden on Beech for the gift opening.

THE VERY NEXT AFTERNOON, Evelyn and Otis Nace invited artists and authors to a tea in their home... so that those who had not had the opportunity could meet The Colonel and his attractive children, Kathryn, who as just graduated with honors from the University of New Mexico and Bob, who is in an accelerated class in school... guests brought written words of advice for wedded happiness or their favorite recipes for Helene is a gourmet-chef (just what is the feminine gender for chef?... or is it when speaking of a lady, it's just plain cook)... quite a few illustrious literary people turned out for this one... among them Laurene Chinn of Borger and Loula Grace Erdman of Amarillo, who had just that day completed an assignment for Readers' Digest and had sent the manuscript on its way to the editors... Evelyn's sister, Ann Pierce of Wichita, Kan., was a member of the houseparty... all of Helene and Mac's friends are writing a "they lived happily ever after" ending to this romantic story.

THIS LITTLE DOLL must be sick... last week we mentioned a doll hospital, which specialized in treating doll ailments and we also said that it was located on Wells Street... well, all along we meant 716 N. West... "Dr." Laramore, who is the resident doctor there and holds a diploma in Doll Technology, very kindly informed us of our error... wonder if she can fix this doll's head?

TALK ABOUT THE vanity of women!... the other morning on a television program a representative of the cigar industry said that for some time now cigar manufacturers had been designing cigars in different shapes and sizes so that they would look well when stuck in a man's face... can we women tie that one for vanity?... and in this month's edition of a popular man's magazine we came across an editorial that criticized the criticism women make of other women's fashions... quote we've never heard such criticism in a man's world and never expect to. Men are too busy to pay much attention to what other men wear. Not so with women. The prettier the girl, the faster the claws leap out. Jackie Kennedy is a prime target. One female fashion designer says Jackie's clothes are "ill-fitted, pulled and twisted, skirts are too short; she has a big face and too much hair." Claire Luce says the first lady should always be thinking, "What do these clothes I wear do for the United States?" Girls, the editorial concluded, the clothes you wear don't do a thing for the United States unquote.

Famous Mis-Quotation: Did George really sleep in all those places? — Martha Washington.

BON MOTS... Linda Horitor of Fort Worth, who, herself, will become a bride on August 4, came up for Heidi Schneider and David Kent Roupp's wedding last Sunday... and went back home to Fort Worth to attend an endless round of parties honoring her and her fiancé, James Allen Selby... she has asked Carol Triplehorn, a high school classmate, to be one of the bridesmaids... there were so many pretty parties given for Heidi prior to her marriage on July 8... and one of the nicest was the "family affair" that Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Doucette, Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Doucette and Mr. and Mrs. Berton Doucette gave for members of the immediate family in the Doucette home on West Browning... heard that Ann Kenney, who does a bang-up writer-editor job for the Altrusa's monthly bulletin, looked the picture of fashion recently in wide-brimmed natural straw with a wide, tan and white polka-dot band... isn't all fun and play during the summer vacation for those who go to school in the winter... hear that Mrs. J. B. White who teaches school has been going to school herself this summer... at the University of Texas, where she's been studying new material and gathering new ideas for her second grade class next year... Roberta (Pete to her friends) and Don Hickman... their daughter's, Beth and Kathy... really received the "red carpet" treatment in Westminster, British Columbia, where they were chosen "Lucky Tourists"... from the number of interesting places they visited during their vacation, it would seem that they were lucky tourists before they even left town!

LOW-CAL FARE... that's a healthy looking garden that Tom Rose has... corn almost as high as a baby elephant's eye... fat-looking green beans and fresh lettuce... mmmmm when served with fresh-baked cornbread oozing with butter and a glass of ice-cold buttermilk... man! that's living!... which reminds, wonder Stormy Jordan has had his annual Okra and Black-Eyed Peas Dinner yet?... understand that is a summertime ritual in Stormy and Lillian's home... Jean Rogers is back in town for the summer visiting with old friends... and catching up on all the happenings that occurred during her winter in Washington... she's lovely and gracious as ever... Susan, who has just graduated from Mount Marymount, Mary Catherine and Robert are with her back home keeping dad company during his summer session in congress are Walter Jr. and Tammy, who are attending summer school sessions... John is now a Navy lieutenant, junior grade... stationed on the West Coast... also spending the summer in Washington is the family pet... a miniature French Poodle... Jean and her family are staying in the Wiley Reynolds home on North Charles... s'all for this week... your grounded Telstar... Peg.

McCoy-Kilmer Vows
Solemnized In Service

Wedding vows of Miss Barbara McCoy and John E. Kilmer were solemnized in a double-ring service performed in Portales, N.M. by the Rev. Homer Akers, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, at four o'clock on July 8.

Miss McCoy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McCoy, 2205 N. Christy. Mr. Kilmer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Kilmer of Belen, N.M.

BRIDE

Escorted to the altar on the arm of her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of Imported Silk fashioned with a Sweetheart neckline, elbow-length sleeves and a bouffant skirt of silk organza.

Her waist-length veil of Illusion silk was applied with imported lace and draped from a lace crown. She carried an arrangement of white carnations and stephanotis atop a white satin Bible showered with white satin streamers tied in love knots.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Carolyn McCoy, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore an aqua silk organza dress complemented with matching shoes and headpiece. She carried an arrangement of white carnations showered with aqua satin ribbon.

James Ates of Portales, N.M., friend of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Kenneth Holloway of Portales and Carl Clapp of San Francisco.

Double-ring vows were repeated in a setting of white gladioli and aqua-mist carnations flanked by seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers.

Mrs. John Walker of Portales, organist, played the traditional processional and recessional and served as accompanist for John Walker as he sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. McCoy wore an aqua silk sheath with matching accessories and a corsage fashioned from white carnations.

RECEPTION

The bride's table, at the reception held following the ceremony in the Fellowship Hall of the church, was appointed with an arrangement of aqua-mist carnations.

Mrs. James Ates and Miss Bessie Fickel of Carlsbad presided at the punch and cake service. Mrs. Randall Kilmer of Clovis was guest registrar.

For a wedding trip, the bride traveled in a beige shantung sheath topped with a jacket and complemented with white accessories. She wore the white carnations from her wedding bouquet.

During the summer, the couple will make their home at 308 River

Miss Harrington Shower Honoree

CANADIAN (Spl) — A pre-nuptial shower honored Miss Sue Harrington, bride-elect of Louis Cecotti, Friday afternoon in the First Christian Church. Hostesses were Mmes. C. H. Hext, Frank Cook, Homer Thomas, Calvert Norris, Danny Urschel, Charles Davis and Albert Bernson.

Dora Mae Hext registered the guests who were greeted by the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Warren Harrington. Both ladies wore white mum corsages tied with pink.

The bride's chosen colors of pink and white were carried out in the serving table arrangements which featured a bride and groom on an elevated pink cloud framed at the base with white pom mums and flanked by pink tapers decorated with white pom mums.

Assisting the hostesses were Georgia Newell, Carolyn Harrington, Mrs. J. D. Kerby and Mrs. C. D. Reagan. Miss Nedra Reagan assisted the honoree in opening and listing her gifts.

Those attending and sending gifts were Barbara Edens, Janet Stone, Kahra Dake, Loetta Chumbley, Mary Garcia, Georgia Newell, Jo Brown, Mmes. Warren Harrington, Mike Reagan, Danny Urschel, Melvin Walser and the honoree.

Ruth Millett
Supermarket Replaces
Old-Time Sewing Circle

What's the real neighborhood social center for busy housewives living in the suburbs?

Why, it's the supermarket, of course. And it has gained its place just as naturally as the country store once turned the cracker barrel into a sort of round table.

For a week or two at a time, a housewife may not have time to visit a neighbor. But every day — if she hies herself to the supermarket that most of her neighbors patronize — she can visit up and down the aisles and while standing in line at the check-out counter.

While she pokes a cantaloupe and matches up potatoes according to size, she can find out just about everything that is going on in the neighborhood.

If a conversation gets really interesting she just parks her basket and stands and talks as though she were at an afternoon tea or morning coffee.

Of course, she does her marketing at the accepted time in her neighborhood — the time that is sure to be the most crowded.

Managers of markets may wonder why women crowd in a certain hours of the day instead of making their marketing easier by going at off hours.

The reason is, of course, that women don't like an empty store any more than they like to be the first to arrive at a party.

They want a crowd, around — even though it means standing in line — because in the crowd there will be familiar faces and a chance to turn what could be a boring chore into a bit of pleasant chit-chat.

That is what has turned the neighborhood supermarket into the neighborhood social center.

Dear Abby.... Baby-Sitter Runs Into A Masher

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter came home from a baby-sitting job last night and told me the man of the house got "fresh" with her. (I mean really fresh. He tore the buttons off her blouse.) His wife wasn't home at the time. They are supposed to be nice people, Abby. She will never go into that house again, but I am worried about other young girls who might. If I tell my husband I'm afraid he'll go over there and push this man's teeth down his throat. Should I phone the wife? Please help me decide to do. I think something should be done, but I don't know what.

FRANTIC
DEAR FRANTIC: Tell your husband, but first make him promise he won't do anything impulsive like roughing up the old lecher. This is a man-to-man affair. Let your husband handle it.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a daughter who uses her mother as a servant? The mother is mine, and the daughter is my sister. This sister has been married and divorced. Mamma took her two children when one was 10 months old and the other was 2. She is raising them in her little home while my sister keeps her own apartment and "visits" the children when she feels like it. Sis is a "career" woman and is well paid. She gets alimony, too. This has been going on for three years. It is a disgrace. Mom doesn't say anything because she loves the children but it kills me to see her getting old and not being able to have a life of her own. She's a widow and will be never be anything else if she doesn't get my sister to raise her own children. The situation grips me. What's the solution?

GRIPED
DEAR GRIPED: There is nothing you (or anyone) can do as long as your mother willingly assumes the responsibility of raising your sister's children. Mothers who permit their children to "use them as servants" must enjoy it, or they wouldn't put up with it.

DEAR ABBY: How and then we are invited to a home for dinner. When we get there, most of the time the lady of the house is taking a bath and we sit and wait, which makes us feel very uncomfortable. I always thought you were supposed to be ready to receive your guests at the time you asked them to be there. Am I wrong? What would YOU do?

ON TIME BUT TOO EARLY
DEAR ON TIME: I wouldn't "wait" for the same hostess twice. The second time I was in-

Shoes Approved by the AMA?

The American Medical Association does not approve or disapprove of any shoe, book, or toy. Shoemen seldom rate compliments but I believe that here is one that should be appreciated. By refusing to pass judgement on shoes the medical profession implies what one doctor told me personally — "Look, my medical school didn't teach shoemaking and I never spend more than fifteen minutes in a shoestore. Why should I set myself up as an authority on a subject that I never studied? I tell my patients that no shoe is any good unless it is properly fitted so the choice of a good shoefitter is more important than the brand of shoes he may sell."

Love that mandate.

Hair Needs Attention In Summer To Prevent Damage Done By Sun

By ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
You may think you look great when exposure to the sun has added tawny streaks to your hair. But you'll pay for those streaks for months to come with dry, brittle hair.
During summer, your hair needs even more attention in order to prevent the damage wrought by sun, salt and chlorinated water. Always wear a cap when you swim, and shampoo your hair as soon as you get home from the beach. A hat to protect your tresses while you sit on the sand is also a good investment. To stimulate your scalp and promote the flow of natural oils that keep your hair soft and silky, adhere to faithful brushing morning and evening. Hot oil treatments are helpful, too. But if you feel they are too messy and time-consuming, there's a new heatless conditioner available that can be quickly applied before or after shampooing. It can even be used while tinting your hair. You can leave it on all day, for it adds body and sheen while it does its work for you.

Take It From Kathy

by Kathy Peterson

Dear Kathy: The hair fashions of today are "teased." Everyone wears hair that way now—everyone but me! My mother despises it and forbids me to look as my friends do. If I don't do something soon, all the kids will be calling me "flathead."

I think that a 16-year-old girl should be allowed to pick her own hair style, even if it isn't attractive to the older set who once wore their hair plastered down. Please advise me. — Sincerely, Flathead.

Dear Flathead: The very exaggerated look (hair worn three or four inches high), done by an amateur, and worn with skirts, sweaters and sneakers is enough to give fashion experts the shivers, and is guaranteed to make any mother feel like disowning her daughter.

For the uninitiated, "teasing" means combing the hair backward to make a fluffy, tangled mass which is then covered by a layer of smoothly arranged hair to give the effect of height at top and sides. It can be strikingly attractive when done by an expert, but if the tiniest bit of tangle shows, the effect is just plain sloppy.

Not being able to check your friends, my best references to what "everyone" does in a fashion sense are models and advice found in newspapers. If you check carefully you will find that the teasing technique is used a great deal, but not universally. Fashion experts show the extreme bouffant effect with very sophisticated clothing. Casual outfits call for a less contrived hairdo.

Teen models achieve a soft, full look most of the time with their hair set. Once in a while teasing is used, but just enough for a face-framing lift. Why don't you take a cue from them?

Teen-agers: Please send your personal problems to Kathy Peterson in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

The Mature Parent

Are You Plotting
To Banish Childhood?

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Peptic ulcers—that stock symptom of nervous grownups—are now showing up in 4-year-old children.

In an article appearing in the June issue of Red Book magazine, "The Plot To Abolish Childhood," author Norman M. Lobenz assembles much of the depressing evidence of the American parent's attempt to turn his children into grownups. He reminds us of the precocious toys we buy them—the make-believe electric shavers and cosmetic kits, the sophisticated dolls languorous as fashion models, the games that teach Johnny how to beat out a competitor in a real estate deal and play the stock market.

He writes of our toleration of the existence of 10-year-old "wall flowers" rejected by dates at their formal dances, of our encouragement of 8-year-old "status seekers" whose club and athletic activities teach the arts of social politicians, of busy busy days so packed with lessons in everything from ballet to bowling that no time is left for just being a child. Lining up a battery of authorities including child psychiatrists, educators and family counselors, Lobenz ascribes the plot to abolish childhood to the American parent's passion for "getting," to his inflated ambitions and his worship of speed for speed's sake.

Myself, I think that there's another deeper, truer cause of our national frenzy to telescope childhood, to rush Johnny and Linda over its precious years.

I think that we are scared of being grownups. We find it convenient to pretend that Linda and Johnny are grownups too, not needing the leadership, the moral values, the supports we suspect we cannot give them.

I think that the plot to abolish childhood is a plot to get parents off the hook of adult responsibility in a world that has grown too big and frightening for many of us to understand.

If we can allow 10-year old Linda to "date," we can pretend that she is old enough to start looking after herself. If we can play stock market and real estate games with Johnny, we can pretend that he knows how to deal with a competitive and slighting friend. If Janey's mother-daughter dress encourages her to believe there's no difference between mommy and her, it also encourages mommy to believe that her little-girl dress erases difference between her and Janey. If we can rush 5-year-old Timmy into long trousers, we can forget that the legs inside them are shorter than dad's. Let Fred take delight in the toy electric shaver we bring home to him—we too can take delight in the fantasy that we've got a man on our hands who can work out his hurts and confusions without any assist from us.

It is hard to accept adulthood today. By trying to turn children into grownups we've found a way to try to turn ourselves back into children.

ASK THE DESIGNER by gaile dugas

Dear Gaile: My husband and I are planning a trip to Italy, a two to six months' stay. We will probably go by boat. I have a beige silk-and-linen suit with which I wear brown shoes, brown dot silk blouse, beige handbag, brown hat. Is it suitable? What clothes shall I take? I am 63. I am 5 feet 3 inches tall, weigh 118 pounds. I have white hair and blue eyes. I wear pastel shades very well. Any help you can give me will be deeply appreciated.—Mrs. J. T.

Dear Mrs. J. T.: To begin with, your beige costume is excellent. The balance of your wardrobe has been planned for you by Stanley Herman, designer for Mr. Mort. He says:

"Begin with two short chiffon evening gowns which you will need both on the boat and in Italy. Have one in pearly gray chiffon with an expertly cut bias skirt which is semifull.

"Have the other in black with a high neckline and illusion top. This one might be sleeveless. Have a silk coat in black to wear with both of these. Have a silk linen dress in turquoise with bell skirt to play up that lovely white hair. And one easy sheath in re-embroidered lace in one of the soft sea colors; turquoise or pale green or even royal blue.

"You also should have a silk linen for daytime in coral or turquoise. And a silk printed shift in colors, shading from teal blue to green. By all means, take a lightweight wool coat, a wool suit, some of those loopy, fuzzy mohair stoles in brilliant colors and some lightweight wool and double knit dresses.

"Have a printed woolen dress for daytime in a lovely Paisley print. And be sure to take a good sized leather handbag and several pairs of the new oval-toe shoes with stacked heels. The cobbles of Italy can rip apart high heeled shoes!"

Please send your fashion problems to Gaile Dugas in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer

Nothing is more flattering to a hostess, her house and her guests than many lighted candles. They give a festive air to even the simplest gathering. But be sure they are placed so as not to be a fire hazard.

Candles on the dinner table should be tall enough so that their flickering is above the eye level of seated guests. To keep the man from turning on the electric lights over the dinner table, have enough candles so guests can see each other. If candles alone aren't sufficient, supplement them with a lamp on the serving table or a pair of attractive wall sconces that are electrified. Flowers on the table should be low enough so guests can see each other across the table.

In my book, lighting candles in the daytime is taboo. The only possible excuse would be that they were needed for illumination of a luncheon table on a dark and stormy day.

Never use colored candles unless they are temporary as part of a party theme. Use white, ivory or natural bayberry. Burn the tips of new candles a wee bit when making replacements.

Mrs. Walden Wins In Coast To Coast Annual Air Race

CANADIAN (Sp)—Mrs. Elaine Jordan Walden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jordan, was co-pilot of the second-place winner of the 1962 Powder Puff transcontinental air race which began Saturday in Oakland, Calif. and ended Wednesday in Wilmington, Del.

Pilot of Mrs. Walden's plane, a Comanche 250, was Betty Miller of Los Angeles.

Winners of the 2,547 mile race were Francis Bera of Long Beach, Calif. and her sister co-pilot Mrs. Edna Bower of Sale Beach, Calif. Mrs. Bera is a five-time winner of the annual race.

Point standings are computed on a handicap system. The winner is not known until the last plane crosses the finish line and final figures are computed. Mrs. Walden called her parents Wednesday to report that she and her pilot were second place winners. She reported a good flight with no trouble. The women flew over 11,000 foot mountains, and used light oxygen.

Mrs. Walden is a research mathematician on the executive staff of Hughes Aircraft Research and lives in Los Angeles. Mrs. Miller and her husband are co-owners of the School of Aviation at Santa Monica.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. In Spite Of Warning

Even the most dissolute proaigals have a sense of their own survival which causes them some measure of restraint. Curiously, in so far as the U.S. government is concerned, the prodigious instinct has become so pronounced that even looming disaster which is readily recognizable fails to halt the headlong rush into crisis.

Take the following well known facts:

1. The stock market has plunged downward in the second worst decline in history.
2. Corporate and company profits are way down, some reduced by as much as 50 per cent since 1950.
3. There are enormous governmental deficits at every level, federal, state and local.
4. There is an unfavorable balance of payments abroad.
5. When our President slapped a high tariff against the Common Market countries of Europe, he received a high tariff slap in the face in return.
6. New programs to encourage government spending are being thought of and implemented as rapidly as possible.
7. Our gold reserves have gone down below the point where all gold obligations could be met if the demand occurred.
8. Bankruptcies of our citizens are on the increase as are business failures.
9. Corruption has reared its ugly visage in several places, notably in the infamous Billie Sol Estes scandal, one of the worst to ever rock this country.
10. We are embroiled on several domestic fronts over such things as race and religion, not to mention labor bossism, government regulation and what not.

Now, in the face of these mounting problems and the ominous note signaled from virtually every point of the compass, the official policy of the Kennedy administration is that foreign aid must be continued at all costs. Why is foreign aid so vital?

Obviously, it is not particularly vital to foreigners. There is a grave question if the people in the foreign places where our aid flows have ever been aided by it, even remotely.

Yet every administration since Roosevelt and a few before him, believed in foreign aid. Since Roosevelt, foreign aid has been one of the major problems and programs of the American government.

It is obvious that foreign aid does not prevent war, nor even active hostility. In World War II we were engaged in sending aid to several of the nations on both sides of the belligerent camp before we finally wound up shooting our own way in and out of it.

So, that aid didn't prevent the war nor did it keep us out of it. In the South Korean debacle, we had been giving aid to South Korea and yet we found ourselves involved in a shooting war. We gave aid to Guatemala, and almost had a war there. We gave a great deal of aid to Cuba and observe the results. We have given aid via the U.N. to all kinds of places including the Belgian Congo.

India has received $2 billion in U.S. aid, and was able, thanks to our financial help, to take over aggressively three tiny plots of land which posed no threat to her whatsoever. Now India wants to spend some of the $2 billion we have given her for some Russian MIG fighters.

Ceylon, which has received some $71 million in foreign aid, got around recently to expropriating some $20 million worth of American oil installations.

Brazil, which only picked up $1 billion in aid from the American government, has added to its assets by expropriating some $14 million of U.S. private property.

In view of the obvious storm warnings and the precarious condition of our own economy, now is not the time to continue the foolishness known as foreign aid. Yet it is to be continued and increased.

At least we can say that whatever happens to us, it will never be a mystery for future generations to unravel. With one accord they will be able to put their fingers on the policies adopted in our government, and proclaim them the villains and the cause.

Consistency

According to Professor Sirokin of Harvard, the only consistently criminal class is that of the professional politician.

Faith And Fact

There are two great areas of human consciousness. One is the area of faith. The other is the area of fact.

It is a fact, however, that men are often more motivated as a result of their faith than as a result of something that they know. Humankind is emotional, and even where facts are available we remain unmoved. It is our BELIEFS which shake us out of our lethargy and cause us to make far from ordinary effort.

It is obviously true that men are motivated by their faith. Whatever it is that men believe to be true at a given time, or place, this belief will cause them to do or not to do whatever occurs.

But this is sensitive ground, for many times people have a faith which, while exciting and even satisfying, is wholly contrary to fact. Such a faith will unquestionably inspire action. But the action will be in error for the faith is in error, however pervasive.

Essentially, this is the error with which we have to contend at this particular point in history.

Most men in this world, and certainly a majority of them in this country have a faith respecting government. They believe that government is necessary. They believe it is the prime requirement in their lives. They believe that government is a most tangible good. They believe that government can provide them with prosperity, with money, with jobs, with security in old age or sickness.

So firm is this belief that any challenge of it is apt to be met with an emotional frenzy.

Events demonstrate that the belief and faith that people have in their governments, are false. That is to say that governments are not as necessary, as good, or as capable as the current faith has it.

Most people don't like to face up to the fact that their faith is misplaced. When they find government robbing them, controlling them, regulating them into ruin and destroying the present for themselves and the future for their children, they can always alibi the conditions they see. They shouldn't (they suppose) lose faith in government; if they could just change the name of the chief administrator, then all would be well.

But government can feed no one, house no one, supply no one. It is a non-creative, non-productive agency. If government comes forward posing as a benefactor, it is only because government has previously despoiled someone and is in process of dividing these ill-gotten gains.

This is what so many people cannot see, or do not really want to see. They do not want their faith upset. They do not want their beliefs challenged. They take the attitude that if they only believe in government firmly enough and

Pull Up A Chair

By Neal O'Hara

The less soundly you sleep, the longer is the duration of your dreams, research at U. of Chicago indicates. Your deepest sleep comes in the earliest phase of slumber (first 60 to 80 minutes), and if you have any dreams then they tend to be briefer than later on. Men, even more than women, favor self-service in stores, a survey shows. But before merchants convert a department, they are advised to make certain that self-service will make shopping easier for the customers.

Headline in the Boston Traveler: "Hits Woman in Back Bay." Breakdown: The present annual salary and fringe benefits of the President of the U.S. currently amount to the following: Salary, plus expense allowance, $150,000; travel allowance, $40,000; servants' pay and upkeep of White House, $893,000; upkeep of planes, helicopters and pay of crews, $616,000; upkeep of cabin cruisers and pay of crews, $83,000; White House chauffeurs, $50,000; other expenses, including upkeep of Camp David and cost of military personnel in White House, $250,000; total, $1,882,000.

Today's favorite gag: The city man decided he wanted to be a farmer, so went to his bank to draw out his savings to buy a farm. "I hope you understand all about farming," the banker said cautiously. "Sure!" the man replied. "You make a down payment on the place, buy the implements on credit, and by the time you get everything going, there's a drought. After that, the government steps in and keeps you going."

Purely psychological: Apples are often packed in purple because purple, as a background for some apples, heightens and enriches the red color of the fruit. On the other hand, because a lime shade of green is a favorable background for yellow, that color of paper is used for showing off to the best advantage other kinds of apples.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. There's the New Yorker who moved to Los Angeles a year ago and now writes back to his friends in the East that his new place of residence is the only U.S. city that is mentioned in the Bible—where it says: "Then Solomon went forth and went down in the Valley of the Nuts." 2. For all their special information and stout convictions as to which team should win an important contest, baseball and football sports writers don't go in much for betting on their judgment. In a lifetime of contact with them, we've never known of a baseball or football expert who made a substantial bet on the outcome of a game.

3. Sports scrivener who cover horse racing, though, are less reluctant to back up their opinions with cash. We know of one Washington sports scribe who proved to the federal income tax bureau that a portion of his livelihood depended on his expert race track wagering—and was permitted to deduct $800 for losses incurred in a bad year of personal handicapping.

4. One of the few sports writers to become a millionaire, the late Damon Runyon, owned his own string of thoroughbreds and lived lavishly, but he was a cautious about horse bets. At Florida, California and New York tracks you might see him placing an occasional bet, but it was invariably at the $2 window.

without wavering, then sometime, somehow, things will come right and their faith (which in itself may be noble) will cause a nobility to reflect thru the maze of government.

Alas, it is not so. However emotionally satisfying a faith may be, if the faith is removed wholly from fact, then the faithful are in for some pretty serious intellectual bumps.

But the real problem here is not only one of revealing the facts which may contravene the faith; it is making certain that in the process, faith or belief is not taken for fact.

We have every respect for any person's faith, whether we share it or not. A person has a right to believe in any magic formula he wishes to believe in. And most people always have believed in some magic formula, from the tiny tot who believes in good fairies to the adult who believes in the something-for-nothing panacea of socialism.

But we must insist on drawing the line between faith and fact. Those who wish to adhere to a particular faith are welcome to do so. But we must specify those things which fall into the

Sensible Precautions Keep Boating Enthusiasts Safe

Pleasure boating has become enormously and justifiably popular in recent years. Countless numbers of us spend afterwork hours, weekends and holidays on lakes and at sea.

For the protection of the vast army of pleasure boaters, authorities at the University of Rochester have provided the following tips for avoiding exposure to some of the serious health hazards to which amateur boatmen may be exposed:

—Do not use a blow torch to burn off old paint. The vaporization of mercury and arsenical compounds may result in the inhalation of fumes that can produce discomfort and even fatal poisoning.

—Exercise great care in handling turpentine. Remember that it is flammable and may be ignited by a spark from a cigarette or pipe. In addition, inhalation of its fumes may cause dizziness and irritation of the kidneys.

—If the motor is tuned up in the boathouse before launching, make sure that the area is well ventilated. Inhalation of carbon monoxide may produce dizziness, blurred vision, loss of consciousness or death. Even when the boat is afloat, carbon monoxide poisoning may occur under which circumstance the danger is increased since the victim may fall out of the boat and drown.

—Expert care in cleaning out sludge with solvents containing naphtha or naphtha derivatives. When vaporized, these chemicals are capable of producing a state similar to that of acute alcoholism.

—When using "mek" (methyl-ethyl-ketone) as a hardening agent in the coating or repair of a boat, be careful to avoid skin contacts. The flammable chemical may produce a chemical burn and may ignite if sparked by an ash.

—Finally, keep toxic and flammable materials out of the reach of young fry when stored in the boathouse. Stopper all flammables tightly. Post "No Smoking" signs on entrance doors. Keep at hand a usable fire extinguisher both on shore and afloat. Wear rubber gloves when handling toxic substances.

category of unsupported belief and those things which are factual and demonstrably so.

If we confuse a belief with a fact, simply because we are prejudiced in favor of the belief, then we sully our own intellectual integrity, and few things have more tragic consequences than that.

Facts are not enough and most of us must be sustained by a faith. But the faith we support must be in harmony with the facts that are known or we will come to grief. Faith in government, any government, is misplaced. The evidence is overwhelming. Surely, we can find something better to believe in than this.

AND NOW "VICTORY" IN LAOS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert Morris, Past President of the University of Dallas, was formerly chief counsel of the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security.)

Washington's delight with the settlement of the Laotian crisis is a symptom of the mood that prevails among our policy planners that is leading our nation to disaster. The "settlement" is virtual surrender to Khrushchev since the Communists and crypto-Communists have the upper hand in the coalition. The surrender is being sugar-coated and we are to finance the resulting political monstrosity.

In many respects outright surrender would have had advantages that formation of this coalition government could not bring. It would have had a sobering effect on Washington for the long pull and would have dissipated the unreal feeling there that the Soviets have been losing the cold war. For as long as that feeling is being carefully fostered by the Walt Rostows and promulgated by the Ed Murrows, the people will be kept asleep and more Soviet victories by "neutralization" will continue.

If the formation of the coalition had even been announced solemnly as a defeat for the West and a triumph for Soviet aggression, it could be defended as a desperate measure to salvage a little time. But it is being trumpeted as a success for our State Department. So let us have more Laoses. As one newscaster broadcast, "This settles the differences between the Right and the Left that have been plaguing us for many years in Laos."

Thus the solemn warnings of July 1954 by the then President of the United States and by the newly-created SEATO, that they would tolerate no more Soviet aggressions in Southeast Asia, have been formally proven hollow. In fact we are acting as if no aggression has been committed at all and instead are equating the defense of their homeland on the part of the Laotians with "extreme right-wing activity." Thus do we soften up other patriots in surrounding countries who would defend their homes and hearths.

The unseemly details are coming out. The head of the coalition is not a "neutralist" at all. Prince Souvanna Phouma has long been a sympathizer of Khrushchev. His half brother, one of the two deputy premiers, Prince Souphanouvong, is a hard core Communist and head of the dread Pathet Lao.

It is reported that Pheng Pongsavann, a Souvanna Phouma man and Communist collaborator, gets the vital post of Minister of Interior. This post is always vital in a coalition since it controls the police and internal security. The important Information Minister goes to Phoum Vongvichit, the Secretary General of the Pathet Lao itself. The all-important Defense Minister is Quim Phoulense, a long-time Soviet collaborator.

When you add all this up and then compound it by the fact that the United States will finance this thinly concealed Communist State, the dimensions of our latest diplomatic "success" become apparent. This makes a mockery of our professed firmness in South

Viet Nam and Thailand, both of which have now been outflanked.

This is the pattern of the Congo all over again. Reports from Africa have it now that the coalition we fabricated there is turning more and more toward the Communists. In the Congo, the situation was even more outrageous because we had the upper hand militarily. Moreover Laos is being hailed because it "prevented a confrontation between Red China and the United States." That, too, is exactly how our planners hailed the disaster in the Congo, substituting the USSR for Red China.

Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the first lady of embattled South Viet Nam, spoke wisely recently when she said, "Cowardice never pays. Since the end of the Second World War the free world has never stopped retreating before the tests of strength imposed by the Communists." She then deplored "the multiplication of neutralists, who either create confusion by their dissonant screams and ill-timed sermons when they do not fearfully keep silent or slavishly echo the Communists, whom they have learned—through the behavior of the free world—to fear madly."

When will Washington learn this elemental fact?

Business, Personal Tax Cut Proposals Readied For President's Decision on When, How, How Much

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Treasury experts are now busily preparing a number of proposals designed to slash personal and business taxes this year.

This unannounced drafting is being done on direct order of President Kennedy.

The exact nature and extent of the multi-billion dollar tax reduction and the timing of its submission to Congress are still undetermined. Under present plans, this decision will be made by the end of the month.

These far-reaching questions have been the principal purpose of those frequent mystery-shrouded meetings between the President and Treasury Secretary Dillon.

Another significant tip-off on what is underway behind the scenes was the Senate Finance Committee's laying aside the House-passed tax bill to take up the trade liberalization measure.

The House passed this tax bill (with the hotly controversial withholding provision on interest and dividends) nearly four months ago, and the Finance Committee was expected to vote on it by the middle of this month. Instead, the measure was suddenly sidetracked until the trade bill was disposed of.

Committee insiders say two reasons were behind this legislation juggling:

(1) To give the President, additional time to make up his mind about a tax cut; (2) to enable the House-passed tax bill to be used as the vehicle for enacting a slash in personal and business taxes.

That is, amendments to this purpose would be written into the House Ways and Means Committee with an entirely new tax bill.

WHAT'S IN THE WIND — The various tax reductions being drafted by the Treasury experts cover a wide range. Each is being accompanied by a detailed estimate of the "cost" in curtailed revenue.

In the President's private discussions, he has indicated he wants to limit this year's tax cuts to an overall total of not more than $5 billion.

For this reason he favors confining the slashes to personal taxes.

Corporation tax reduction would be put off until next year. It is the President's contention business already is certain to get a big tax cut this year in the revised depreciation schedule that will shortly be announced by the Treasury.

Under these new regulations, business will get tax relief of from 1 billion to 1.5 billion.

Personal tax cuts most favored by Treasury insiders would reduce the maximum surtax from 91 to 88 per cent, and the minimum surtax from 20 to 17 per cent. This would have the effect of slashing individual rates by 3 points in all brackets.

Estimated saving to tax payers would be $5 billion to $7 billion.

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., has recommended a different proposal to both the President and Secretary Dillon. Under Humphrey's plan, both personal and business taxes would be cut 2 points across the board—for an estimated overall tax saving of $5 billion this year.

The President is under mounting pressure for an immediate tax cut.

With few exceptions, that is being strongly urged by Democratic state and local leaders coming to Washington for strategy talks. They are telling the President and other party chiefs that sentiment in their sections is overwhelming for a tax slash.

Less openly but quite emphatically some of them are bluntly warning there is growing disapproval of a "Kennedy dynasty."

Midwesterners particularly are stressing this. They are saying the heavily-financed senatorial candidacy of the President's 30-year-old brother "Ted" is causing much head-shaking among Democrats as well as Republicans.

One prominent Ohio Democratic leader sent a conference into roars of laughter with the following caustic conundrum:

"What do Laos and the U. S. have in common? Answer: Three princes!"

POLITICALS — President Kennedy will definitely make a "non-political" trip through the West in August. He will concentrate on four states — Idaho, Utah, Colorado and California. In each he will make at least one major speech dedicating a federal project—and incidentally take occasion to boost Democratic state and congressional candidates. In California, he will probably speak both in the north and south. Timing of this significant tour is still being worked out. The White House itself is dishing out some 6,000 so-called "summer jobs" in government agencies in the Capital. Usually, the agencies handle these temporary jobs, but this time all applicants are being deferred directly to the White House. When a member of Congress or some other politico wants one for a constituent, he no longer can arrange that directly with the agency. Instead, he is referred to the White House, which then handles the matter as a personal favor from the President. The intent of this new system is obvious. To put member of Congress in the President's debt, and to win for him the goodwill of the students and other lucky job winners.

Sharpest retort to Senator William Proxmire, D-Wis., when he demanded a $200 million slash in medical research funds of the world-famed National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., came from a Republican — Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Me. A member of the Appropriations Subcommittee that considered the NIH budget, Mrs. Smith bitingly told Proxmire, "While I certainly agree with the Senator from Wisconsin that we must start curbing federal expenses, at the same time I ask: Why should we begin with medical research, when a little extra money might be used to such good purpose in the case of a breakthrough in the many grievous ailments afflicting mankind." Proxmire made no reply.

Telephone Co. Tells How To Save $$ On Calls

Telephone customers in Pampa will be able to reduce their Long Distance telephone bills by the correct use of Direct Distance Dialing which comes to Pampa customers on July 23. That's the word from George Newberry, local manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Newberry said the new customer Long Distance dialing system was designed to be used on station-to-station telephone calls. Newberry explained this is the type of out-of-town call where the customer agrees to talk with anyone who answers the phone. He pointed out that this type of out-of-town call costs about one-third less than a call to a specific person in the distant city. "In addition," he said, "a person-to-person call must be placed through a Long Distance operator which means the call doesn't go through as quickly."

He said that some customers are willing to pay a higher basic charge for the call rather than take a chance on the person they want not being at the distant phone. "Yet," Newberry points out, "surveys made by the telephone company show that this type of Long Distance calling costs the customer more in the long run than if he had used the station-to-station method." He said this was particularly true with business firms who place a lot of out-of-town calls each month.

According to George Newberry, many business firms place all of their calls person-to-person when in reality several different people at the distant telephone could handle the request the caller will make.

He said that firms which now make a policy of station-to-station calls have found that they can still complete the majority of their business on the first call and that telephone costs in the long run are lower, even when they sometimes have to call back to talk to a specific person.

He said the savings are realized over a period of time since the station-to-station method costs less and because call backs to a specific party are limited because most people will make every effort to make sure the call is not wasted even though they don't reach the person they wanted.

"In these cases," he said, "they usually find some one at the distant number who can help them so they won't have to go to the expense of another call."

Foreign Commentary

By CHARLES W. CORDRY

United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The defense Department is in the throes of deciding on the design of a radically advanced jet fighter plane that will mean $2 billion in production contracts for a prime manufacturer and thousands of subcontractors across the nation.

The twin jet, multi-purpose manned aircraft was one of the first—and indeed one of the few new weapons projects undertaken by the Kennedy administration. For the most part, the administration's increased military outlays have gone into speeding up weapons and related projects that were inherited.

Yet, after 18 months of consideration, there is a question whether selection of the new plane design is much closer to reality than it was many months ago. A new 60-day delay has just been ordered for more studies.

The plane is known now as the TF-X for "Practical Fighter-Experimental." When it goes into production, it will be the F111. The Air Force will supervise production but the plane is intended to be suitable for both Air Force and Navy use.

In that latter fact, to a large extent, lies the explanation for the seemingly endless delay in choosing the design for a plane that President Kennedy said in his defense message of March 28, 1961 would be needed for the 1965-75 era. The time when the 1965 deadline can be met is fading rapidly.

The tri-service fighter died when the professionals of the Navy, Army and Air Force were called in. First it was decided that the TF-X would shed the mission of close support for field troops—which was given to a new aircraft project called Va-X—but would do all the other chores—interception of enemy planes, interdiction of enemy supplies, low level tactical bombing.

It soon became evident that Navy and Air Force requirements differed as they always had, and that this was inherent in the nature of their operation and in the environment in which they operated.

By this week, the Navy and Air Force still had not reached agreement on the design of the TF-X. Industry studies continued and the Defense Department had put off selection of a design until September. That meant no contract before October.

The two contractors battling for the contract, when and if it is let, are Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., and Convair of Ft. Worth, Tex. A peculiar development is that the engine for the plane—a Pratt & Whitney turbofan—was selected before the design of the plane itself was settled.

LOST IN THE END

SALISBURY, N.C. (UPI)—The rat-killer formula whipped up by a friend of J. D. Woodrow, who was troubled with rats around his house, worked fine.

Woodrow tried it out Wednesday night in his garage and storage shed and reported the rats fled in many directions.

The only trouble was that the concoction exploded and the shed and garage were destroyed in the ensuing fire.

announced June 17. Ford will match at the rate of $1 for $3.

On the list of 21 liberal arts colleges receiving similar matching grants totaling $41.6 million, Sewanee was one of five to receive the maximum. The others were Amherst, Bryn Mawr, Mount Sewanee was the only recipient in the lower southeast, sharing with Berea (Kentucky) and Austin College (Sherman, Texas) the distinction of being one of three in the South to receive the grants. Sewanee has the smallest enrollment of the 21 recipients.

Dr. Edward McCrady in a special statement said, "Sewanee's plans for use of the Ford money are carefully drawn. At this time we know that we will spend the $655,000 we are to receive this fall as follows:

$125,000 for faculty and staff salary increases and fringe benefits;
$50,000 for library plans and specifications;
$100,000 for faculty and mar student housing;
$100,000 for student ships;
$280,000 for an undergraduate dormitory.
