On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

Just about everybody these days are wondering when it will rain. We wouldn't pretend to guess but we will say that it is too early yet to become alarmed about dry weather. We have seen a good many springs in this country when it was rather late before rain came, but they almost always come in plenty of time to make a crop.

FARM NEWS PROGRAM

from the County Agricultural Conservation Committee

New Provisions in Cotton Law

New cotton legislation recently passed by Congress provides for minimum 1950 acreage allotments based on one of three provisions. Hulet Williams, member of the county PMA committee, said today.

The revised allotments are based on the larger of (1) 65 percent of the average acreage planted to cotton (or devoted to war crops in place of cotton) in 1946, 1947, and 1948; (2) 65 per cent of the highest acreage planted to cotton on the farm during any one of the three years; but (3) not more than 40 percent of the 1949 acreage which was tilled on the farm or in regular rotation.

Any owner or operator of a cotton farm in Mitchell County who believes he is entitled to an acreage increase and wants to be considered by the county committee for possible allotment adjustment under the legislation must file an application not later than April 28, 1950.

"We urge owners or operators who want their farms considered for revised allotments to file applications by this date," Mr. Williams said. "Farmers who are satisfied with their present allotments need not file applications. However, those desiring increases will be considered by the county committee after applications for such increases are filed in the county office."

Each operator of a farm for which an application is filed will receive a notice from the county committee of the revised 1950 cotton acreage allotment. When the new allotment notice is mailed it will replace any previous 1950 allotment notice already received by the farm operator.

Application forms may be obtained from the county PMA office.

Special Election To Name 7 Trustees

The Board of Trustees of the Loraine Independent School District in a special meeting held Wednesday voted to call a special election to correct an error in the recent election of Board Members.

A misunderstanding had been had over the correct method of proceeding after the consolidation of the dormant school districts with the Loraine Independent School District due to conflicting information secured upon investigation of the matter and through the failure of the law books in the school office library to carry an amendment to the Public Laws of Texas which was enacted into law by the 49th Legislature in regular session in 1945. However, opinions from both the Texas Education Agency (formerly the State Department of Education) and from the law offices of McCall, Parkhurst, and Crowe, who are representing the company which has contracted to purchase the bonds recently voted by the school district, now advise that the correct proceedure is to elect a complete slate of new trustees instead of proceeding in the ordinary manner.

The question had arisen prior to the holding of the election as to whether this action would be necessary but the information available in the office of the school showed that the latest law relative to this matter, Art. 2806 read as follows: "Common school districts may in a like manner be consolidated with contiguous independent school districts, and the district so created shall be known by the name of the independent school district included therein, and the management of the new district shall be under the existing Board of Trustees.". All questions relating to this matter had brought out the fact that certain newspapers in the area were publishing the fact that the "Gilmer-Aiken" laws as passed by the 51st Legislature which met in regular session in 1949, had made it mandatory for an election of 7 new trustees in each district that had had consolidations. All of the provisions of the Senate Bill 116, (the so-called "Gilmer-Aiken" laws) were searched thoroughly by the school and advice was given by others that there was no change necessary because of these laws due to the reading of Article 8 of such bill which reads: "The provisions herein for the consolidation of school districts by order of the County Board . . . . shall not be construed to repeal, supersede or limit any existing statute providing other methods for school district consolidation and annexations."

It was therefore thought that sufficient evidence was present that under the existing laws there was not any necessity for electing a complete set of trustees since the newly created district was formed under the rulings of Article 2806 which clearly stated that this was not necessary, even though there was evidence that in some instances such action was necessary where consolidations were held under laws other than Article 2806, such as grouning elections as held by a neighboring school district.

All actions taken by the Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Trustees were taken after deliberate thinking and upon what was deemed to be authoritative sources and were quoted as such until it was ascertained just Tuesday of this week that the above mentioned Article 2806 was amended in 1945 and had not been printed in the supplements to the Texas School Laws available to them.

An election is now being called for Saturday, May 6, 1950, in which seven trustees will be elected in accordance to the provisions stated in the amended law. This election will be held 20 days from the date of the posting of notices and any names may be submitted for the ballot provided that they are submitted by petition of five (5) or more qualified voters at least ten (10) days prior to the date of the election or by request of the person who desires to have his own name placed on the official ballot. The names of the persons on the ticket in the election held April 1, and not elected were placed on the ballot of the coming election by petition from members of the present Board of Trustees.

Rehearsals Begun On Lions Play Aunt Silly

Casting is almost completed and rehearsals are under way on the funniest of comedies, "Aunt Silly", which will be at the Loraine school gymnasium on Thursday and Friday of next week. The play offers opportunity for a wide variety of talent to blossom forth with comedy roles, serious music and otherwise, and a specialty show.

The play, based on the ever popular "Charlie's Aunt", concerns itself with a man who is forced to pose as an eccentric old lady, and finds himself in some pretty hilarious situations. There is a senator, for instance, who proves that love is blind by falling in love with Aunt Silly (for her money, of course). Between the acts will be the beautiful Pink Ladies and the Millstream Girls, and prominent men of the community will lend their combined talents as the lovely chorines. Kiddies from the early grades will make the older performers look to their laurels.

Sponsors of the play are the Lions Club, who are expected to have a few extra tricks up their sleeves before the play, in the way of entertainment. Proceeds will go for community improvements and glasses for children who are needing them. The production is under the direction of Miss Gertrude Adams, and taking part in the performance will be Mrs. John Hamblen, Claud Woods, Ray Preston, Eddie Jones, Dr. Joe Terry, and Dr. John Hamblen.

Announcement was made by two miniature trumpeters who faced the table centerpiece holding a large staff with a treble clef sign on it. The centerpiece carried out the chosen colors of the bride. An aqua and yellow treble clef was inscribed with a floral lettering which read "Jane and John, May 27." Flowers were yellow roses, jonquils, blue cornflowers and ranuckles.

Background strains were played by a music box.

Place cards were held by small treble clefs of aqua, surrounded by yellow flowers.

FFA Has Western Style Banquet

The Loraine F. F. A. chapter held a western style banquet on April 11, for their mothers, fathers, teachers, school board members, chapter Sweethearts and others who have contributed to the agriculture program.

The invitations were in the shape of a horse head which read, Saddle up that horse and join the F. F. A. at a barbecue April 11, at 8:00.

The gym was decorated with saddles, branding irons, harness, saddle blankets, collars and bridles. The walls were decorated with corn yellow and national blue brands. "Howdy Pardner" was written out with rope on the wall. The tables were covered with western style paper and the napkins were also western style. The programs were white booklets with a cowboy on front. The food was served buffet style and old pots and pans were used to serve the food from. The girls who served wore blue jeans and plaid shirts

The menu consisted of barbecue, potato salad, ranch style beans, onions and pickles, white bread, coffee, ice tea, pie and cake.

Special Service At M. E. Church Easter

"The Life of Christ", an Easter morning worship service, was presented at the Methodist Church at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday with the Rev. S. H. Salley reading the scripture narrative from Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. Combined choirs the Cherubs, Juniors, Youth and Adult, wore white vestments.

A memorial tribute of Easter lillies made an impressive decorative note. Mmes Frank Johnson, Frank Beights, Frank Crownover, Wiley Walker, Dale Johnson and Clyde Smith were in charge of sanctuary decoration.

The hospitality committee were Marvin J. Martin, Bennett Blair, Lynn Hamilton, Alva Bennett and Roy Wells.

This beautiful sacred service was observed by a large congregation in attendance as the Methodist people met for the second time in their new church. Many out of town visitors worshiped with the congregation. A welcome is always extended at the Methodist Church.

Stockholders Elect Three Directors

The smallest number of stockholders in the Loraine Cooperative Association ever to assemble in annual meeting met the the Lions Club building here Saturday afternoon to hear the report of the auditor on the past years business and to elect three directors.

The auditor's report showed that the plant had an operating loss of $6,893.94 during the past year. The plant was built for a cheese and locker plant and for several years during the time cheese was being manufactured showed profits enough to almost wipe out the indebtedness on the plant. No cheese has been made for more than a year, the locker plant alone carrying the load for the entire plant. All the directors can hope for is that it will not be too long before farmers will again milk cows so that cheese can again be manufactured.

J. Wiley Walker and Harry Cranfill were re-elected to the board of directors and Paul Barron was elected to take the place of H. W. Hallmark, who retired. Holdover directors are W. A. Taylor, Loyd Brame, L. A. V. Coldewey, and J. W. King.

Directors organized immediately after the stockholders meeting and retained J. Wiley Walker as president, and W. A. Taylor, vice president, and elected J. W. King, secretary.

The directors voted to discontinue meat inspection at the plant. This means there will be no more meat sold at the plant either wholesale or retail.

Directors have tried during the time since cheese manufacturing had to be discontinued to do something that would raise the revenue of the locker plant to help carry the load of expenses. They tried wholesaling meat to local markets but lack of cooperation on the part of markets kept meat sales so low that no money could be made. They then tried retailing meat over the counter but not enough volume could be maintained so that has been discontinued. So the locker plant is the only source of revenue at this time except buying and selling of cream.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Accused 'Spy' Ridicules Charges; Johnson Says U.S. Defense Okay; Britain to Cut Purchases in U.S.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

LATTIMORE:
"Pure Moonshine"

Owen Lattimore, mustachioed, mild-mannered United Nations employee, was the big news of the Communist expose which Senator Joseph McCarthy had instigated and of which the highlight was McCarthy's charge that Lattimore was Russia's top spy in the United States and that he was in the employ of the U.S. state department.

IN AFGHANISTAN on a U. N. mission, Lattimore when informed of the charge, cabled a press association that McCarthy's "rantings" were "pure moonshine."

It appeared that McCarthy was out on the shakiest limb of his political life. Loudly asserting that he would base his entire case against the state department, which he charges was infiltrated with Communists, on the truth or falsity of the Lattimore case, the senator appeared to be off on the wrong foot at the start.

Lattimore was working for the U.N., not the state department. He had not been connected with them for five years, the state department said. His lawyers hung a libel suit threat on McCarthy, contending that when McCarthy named Lattimore as the "top Red spy" in a private session with newsmen, he was outside senatorial immunity.

LATTIMORE expressed pleasure that McCarthy was basing his whole case upon him for, he said, when he returned to Washington and testified, McCarthy would "fall flat on his face."

Meanwhile, there was much controversy over whether FBI files should be opened to the committee studying McCarthy's charges. McCarthy contended the proof he needed were in these files and in other confidential files. FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover argued that the files should not be open because of the bad effect it might have on "many innocent people" and the fact that it would destroy FBI usefulness in many ways.

BRITAIN:
Less Buying

Great Britain, stipulating many "ifs," planned to cut purchases from the United States and other dollar countries by as much as 25 per cent in the period from July 1, 1950 to June 30, 1951. By this action, the government hoped to cut its annual gold-dollar deficit in half by mid-1951.

THE DESIRED GOAL could be reached only under the following conditions, the government said:

1. Continued good business in the United States.
2. The lid is kept on wages, prices and dividends in Britain.
3. British productivity goes on improving with no sharp increases in costs.
4. Exports to dollar markets increase sufficiently to offset the cut in the value of the pound last September from $4.03 to $2.80.
5. Gold-earning exports to South Africa can be stepped up.
6. THE DOLLAR NATIONS demonstrate readiness to accept imports and to invest capital in non-dollar areas.

JAPAN:
Treaty Urged

With Gen. Douglas MacArthur and U.S. roving Ambassador Philip Jessup agreed on the desirability of the move, strong pressure was building up inside the Truman administration for an early peace treaty with Japan.

THERE is conflict on the issue. It is a group principally within the state department which seeks an early treaty, while many others believe that the treaty project should be shelved in order to prolong indefinitely the present American control.

Added strength was given the treaty proponents when Great Britain urged months ago that a treaty should be completed.

AS might be expected, the Russians had to put their oar in. Moscow insists that there be a big-power veto over all treaty terms, but the trend in Washington seems to be for the western powers to proceed by themselves if Russia should refuse to join in under acceptable conditions.

The Japanese treaty is seen by proponents as one line of action the United States could take to strengthen its position in that quarter of the globe.

Named to AEC

Thomas E. Murray, mechanical engineer who holds more than 200 patents and is an important figure in the auto and banking worlds, has been named by President Truman to succeed David E. Lilienthal on the U.S. atomic energy commission.

DEFENSE:
How Adequate?

The people, themselves, would have to decide who was right in the controversy on how adequate are our national defenses in the event of another war.

Two highly important gentlemen in the defense setup had disagreed on the status of American defense strength.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of Allied forces in World War II, had declared publicly that he feared United States defenses had "fallen below the danger point."

THE GENERAL'S REMARK stirred a wave of apprehension in many quarters and set some congressmen on a road which may lead to another look at military budget paring.

But, Louis Johnson, U.S. defense secretary, didn't agree with General Eisenhower. After a long conference with President Truman, he emerged to assert that our national defenses are "sufficient . . . unto the needs of the moment."

Just what Mr. Johnson meant by that was not clear, but it was quickly apparent that there could be read into the statement a conclusion that we are safe "at the moment" because no war has been declared. But those jumping to conclusion would immediately query: "How sufficient are these defenses at some other moment—say in the next six months, or next year—if war should come?"

JOHNSON SAID he had not discussed the situation with Eisenhower since the general's statement concerning defense and declined to discuss specific quotations from the Eisenhower speech. Asserting that he was in no "controversy with Ike," he pointed out that the present defense budget was put together by the joint chiefs of staff, of which Eisenhower is chairman.

General Eisenhower has been asked to tell congress what he thinks of the current defense setup, and Johnson said: "When he appears before congress I don't want it to appear that I talked with him and tried to influence him in any way."

NEW 'BRAIN':
Great Things

Factory workers may become obsolete in the future if a new mechanical brain—resembling a pinball machine on a jackpot rampage—will do what its inventor claims it will.

THE DEVICE, described as capable of operating an entire factory without human aid, is designated officially as the magnetic-drum-digital-differential analyzer. The inventor, 31-year-old Floyd Steele, calls it Maddida for short. What Maddida can do was demonstrated at the opening of a three-day conference on computing machinery at Rutgers university college of engineering.

Steele, who is also an aeronautical engineer at Manhattan Beach, Cal., said the machine was the forerunner of the completely automatic factory—where goods will be produced without help form the human hand or the human brain.

SQUEEZE PLAY

Reds Knock U.S. Dollar Down to 4 Rubles

The Russians had come up with an economic squeeze play, and the U.S. was vigorous in its protests. Moscow had set a new 4-to-1 ruble exchange for the American dollar. The United States charged the new exchange rate was "completely unjustified."

A note delivered in Moscow demanded that the former exchange rate of 5 rubles for $1 granted to the American embassy be restored.

Moscow served notice last in February that, effective July 1, the U.S. embassy would have to pay $1 for four rubles. The effect of this, U.S. officials said, would be to increase the cost of operating the embassy by nearly a million dollars a year. While not a too-important development, the action was another aggravation.

BIG THREE:
GOP Advisor

John Sherman Cooper, Kentucky Republican, former U.S. senator and now U.S. representative to the United Nations general assembly, was signally honored by the national Democratic administration. He was chosen by U.S. State Secretary Dean Acheson as one of his principal advisors during a series of major meetings in London in which the western nations will chart strategy in the cold war.

THE MEETINGS will consist of a session of the 12-nation North Atlantic council and separate conferences of the "Big Three," Acheson, British Foreign Minister Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman. All the meetings will deal with various aspects of the struggle of the western powers to build up their strength against Soviet communism in Europe and Asia.

Selected, too, as an advisor was U.S. Ambassador-at-Large, Philip Jessup, who was accused by U. S. Sen. Joseph McCarthy of having an "affinity" for Communistic causes, a charge Jessup hotly denied.

The Cooper appointment obviously was designed to improve relations between the state department and congress and to build a backfire against Republicans who have been assailing Acheson and his policies.

WHAT THE APPOINTMENT would do to Cooper's standing in his own GOP ranks was something which only the future would devulge. It was logical to assume there would be some GOP stalwarts who would feel that Cooper had "sold them out" by accepting the assignment from Acheson, when they were trying their best to get Acheson out of the government.

And with Cooper a potential gubernatorial candidate in Kentucky in 1951, it would be interesting to see whether his connection with Acheson and the Democrats would imperil his chances in that state, should he elect to make the race for governor.

TRUMAN:
Won't Open Files

President Truman has refused flatly to surrender federal loyalty files to congress in the current spy investigations, but he was establishing no precedents. Neither was he in any hazardous position in indicating he would ignore congressional subpoenas commanding him to surrender the files.

In fact, so far as could be ascertained officially, no President of the United States ever has honored a similar congressional subpoena.

SO, it would seem that congress could fume and stew all it pleased, but it wouldn't get the files it wanted until President Truman changed his mind. Nevertheless, following the President's announcement that he would not surrender the files, the senate group investigating charges of communism in the state department promptly issued subpoenas for the records.

The President's action, in a way, would provide sort of an "out" for Sen. Joseph McCarthy who touched off the state department spy hunt with charges that Russia's "top spy" was connected with the department and that it was infiltrated with persons with Communist sympathies.

CHALLENGED to produce proof, McCarthy countered that evidence to support his charges was locked in federal loyalty files and in the files of the FBI. With both files closed to him and the investigators, McCarthy might still be in a technical position to continue his charges and claiming that official action in high echelons was preventing him from proving them.

Off-Season Santa

Herman F. Luhrs, Detroit, chairman of the American Legion public relations committee, presents a toy to a French boy who manages a smile despite the unwieldy brace he must wear as a result of a broken neck. The toys being distributed are some of 42 tons donated by American children and collected by the American Legion for European children.

SUBMARINES:
May Be Scourged

According to a top U.S. navy expert, the feared submarine menace in the event of another war may not be so fearful after all. Rear Admiral C. B. Momsen has declared that he has reason to believe that a development is "just ahead" that would enable the United States "to drive submarines off the seas." Admiral Momsen is the inventor of the Momsen lung, used in escaping from submarines.

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET

Human Nature Acting As It Does These Days, You Don't Have to Look Far for Top Story Plots

By BILLY ROSE

In Battle Creek, Michigan, on July 30, 1949, a Mrs. Zilpha Perske asked her husband for a hundred dollars, and when he wanted to know what it was for she refused to tell him. One word led to a thousand others, and finally the hysterical housewife ran into the bedroom, took a rifle from the closet and shot herself.

Mrs. Perske hung on for two days, and during that time her husband not only gave his blood to keep her going but persuaded friends to do the same. A few minutes before she died, he learned what she had wanted the hundred dollars for—to surprise him on his birthday with a new hunting rifle.

One night in the Spring of 1924, in the middle of the Illinois flatlands, the engineer and fireman of a fast mail train found themselves looking into the barrels of a couple of guns. The men behind the guns told them to stop the train and back it up to a crossing they had just passed.

Billy Rose

At the crossing, four men wearing gas masks stepped out of a sedan. After shooting the glass out of the mail-car window, they tossed a tear bomb inside, and when the mail clerks came out the bandits went in. When they drove off, they took with them 60 bags of registered mail which contained two million dollars in cash, jewels and negotiable securities.

The case was assigned to Bill Fahy, the post office department's ace inspector, and in a matter of hours, road blocks were set up, suspects were being questioned, and detectives from New York to San Francisco were on a 24-hour shift.

Two days after this historic heist, one of the army of dicks working on the case got a phone call from an underworld character who offered to give him the name of the man who had masterminded the stick-up. His motive for squealing, he said, was revenge, and when his yarn was checked the man he named was arrested and convicted, and most of the two million recouped.

The thief, as corny and contrived as it may seem, was Inspector Bill Fahy, and when he planned the hold-up, he was certain he'd get away with it because he knew he'd be assigned to track himself down. The thing he didn't figure on was the resentment of the underworld because he was muscling in on its racket.

ON AN EARLY morning broadcast out of Berlin a few weeks ago, Bill Downs of CBS relayed the following:

Shortly after the war, a German Hausfrau was notified that her soldier husband had died in a Russian prison camp. After the usual formalities, the Berlin authorities issued a certificate of death, and a few months later the woman remarried.

Last month she was informed by the commandant of the prison camp that her husband was alive and would arrive by train on a certain date.

The woman showed husband No. 2 the notice, and the couple decided that the sensible thing was for the three of them to sit down at a table and talk the matter out.

When the train pulled in a few days later, however, husband No. 1 didn't get off. The Russian officer in charge informed the wife that the excitement of the homecoming had been too much for the ex-prisoner, and he had died of a heart attack the night before.

When the woman got back to her flat, she found her second husband had committed suicide. A note explained that, under the circumstances, it was the only decent thing to do.

This Is Your Paper

What Is A Newspaper?

By William R. Nelson

EVERY AMERICAN old enough to read is familiar with the home town newspaper. Yet, how much do the readers know about it? How well do they understand its problems and actions; its place in their lives, in the community, state and nation? Just what is a home town newspaper?

Dictionaries have varied definitions of "newspaper", but none contains the full meaning of the word. Even journalism's "Hall of Fame" editors have given widely differing definitions of what we in the United States call newspapers.

Services are Varied

A home town newspaper, such as this one, is so many things, all of them important, that it cannot be defined in a few words. It is similar to but still unlike every other business, profession, and institution in this community. Yet its services are so numerous and varied that it is a vital part of all of the others. And more, too.

The local newspaper is a mirror of its community; a clearing house for ideas; a library of local information; a market place; a sentry constantly watching over civic and official affairs; and a partnership in which the owners, the advertisers, the readers and the community all have interests. In addition, it is a manufacturing plant for production of printed matter.

Unlike a food store, it cannot feed its community's people. But its advertising columns can nurture the food store.

It cannot render banking service, but newspapers have been banks' best protection against the damage misinformation or misguided interference might cause.

Tasks to Perform

This newspaper does not practice medicine, but it can play a vital part in preventing disease or the spread of epidemics. It is not a lawyer or a court, but it can prevent or correct injustice.

Neither the publisher, the editor, nor the other members of the paper's staff will claim superior status in the community. They admit only that the paper tries to do its job. But to the outsider, whether President of the United States or traveling salesman, when the mood and measure of this community is desired, the place to go for the information is the office of the home town newspaper.

A world-wide search has been instituted for the six most beautiful women in the world and the six handsomest men, to portray the leading roles in Albert J. Cohen's "Prehistoric Women", for Eagle Lion. Sounds ambitious!

Stefan Schnabel, of "This is Nora Drake", son of the famous pianist, Arthur Schnabel, has an impressive record as an actor in radio, the theatre and motion pictures. His latest picture was "The Iron Curtain". Perhaps because he was so convincing as a Nazi on the screen, the U.S. office of strategic services used him in Europe during the war.

Dan Seymour has been made chairman of the board of judges of the Boys' Club of America. The Board screens thousands of recommendations to select the national boy of the year, a citation for outstanding junior citizenship.

Alan Dale, of "Sing It Again" (CBS Saturdays,) must be the hat industry's best customer. Bobby-soxers have snatched four of his in the last two months. But his 35 fan clubs made up for that when they learned that the singer had been laid low with a virus infection. They sent him 46 assorted remedies. Dale played safe and stuck to his doctor's prescriptions.

When 40 New York high school reporters interviewed Robert Q. Lewis, m.c. of "The Show Must Go On", one brought along a bowl of goldfish. He asked the humorist to swallow them to make his story and pictures better!

A little more than a year ago Steve Cochran and Robert Webber, both broke and jobless, met at a party in New York. Then Steve was signed as Mae West's leading man in "Diamond Lil", and did "White Heat" and "The Victim"; Webber also landed a stage job, with Melvyn Douglas. They met again on the Warners lot; both have starring roles in "The Two Million Bank Robbery".

THE FICTION CORNER

SANE AND SENSIBLE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

GAIL WATCHED TOMMY Berkley and Rita Young disappear down the moon-flooded path toward the beach. His arm was about her waist and Rita's red head was very close to Tommy's blond locks.

Tears blinded Gail's vision. "That's what you get," she thought bitterly, "for being sane and sensible all your life. For being virtuous and loyal." Loyal! The word provoked a laugh. Loyal to what? To Tommy Berkley? That was ridiculous. You couldn't be loyal to a man who didn't know what you were up to. Or at least it lost its effect.

3-Minute Fiction

Gail turned and started back toward the lodge. Two months ago she had come up here with her folks for the summer. The day after their arrival she had met Tommy Berkley. They had danced and Tommy had looked down at her and said: "You're not pretty or beautiful, you're glorious, which is really a weak word to express what I mean."

Gail had known then why all her life she had been sane and sensible. It had been for Tommy.

At the point where the path skirted the tennis courts before coming to the lodge steps, Gail saw a figure and stopped, catching her breath.

"Hi there, Gail. I saw you walking down this way and followed."

Even without the help of moonlight to etch out the features of the man Gail recognized the voice. It was Clark Davis. Davis was tall and good looking and dark. He was considered wild. He had a reputation. Mothers warned their daughters not to go out with him, though they didn't say why.

"Clark!" she forced a laugh. "You frightened me at first."

"Sorry." He came close. "I guess I've been frightening you ever since you came up here. I wish I didn't."

A path of molten gold streamed across the lake. Tentatively, Clark Davis slipped an arm around her waist. And when she offered no objection he stopped and swung her to face him. "Gail!" he cried hoarsely. "Gail!" And he took her into his arms. She yielded, gave him her lips in a long kiss. When it was over she broke away, suddenly, unaccountably, regretful, guilty, ashamed.

"Don't! Please! I—I think we'd better go back."

But Clark Davis didn't understand. He couldn't understand. He seized her wrist and jerked her up close to him. "Listen," he said tensely. "I love you! Do you hear! I want you—have wanted you since the first day you arrived here. And you want me!"

Clark's feet went out from under him. He fell groaning.

"No. No, Clark! You don't understand. I was a fool to come here with you. Please let me go."

QUICK FOOTSTEPS sounded along the pebbles. A figure loomed out of the gloom. Davis felt a heavy hand on his shoulder. He swung around, saw Tommy Berkley. Angrily he swore and struck out. But Tommy sidestepped the blow and drove home a hard fist, catching Davis behind the ear, following it with a second blow to the jaw.

Clark's feet went out from under him. He fell groaning.

"You dirty dog!" Tommy said, coldly brutal. "You ought to be hung" Then he turned to Gail, where she had sunk to her knees. He helped her up.

They walked along the beach. Tommy's arm supported her. They stopped at the foot of the path. "The dirty dog," Tommy said. "Why can't a man like Davis accept the fact that there are some good girls left? Why does he have to think they're all alike?"

"Oh, Tommy!" She smiled, dabbing at her eyes. "It—it's all right now. I—I was foolish to have come here with him. If you hadn't come along—"

He grinned. "Lucky thing for both of us. Rita and I were sitting on the big rock beyond the point. When we heard you cry out we thought there was trouble and she went back to the lodge by the road. I came over to investigate. I'm glad I found you, because now you'll be the first to know of Rita's and my engagement."

SPORTSCOPE By JOE MAHONEY

SPORTLIGHT

Winners, Near Winners and Stars

By GRANTLAND RICE

THERE'S A BLUEBIRD singing on baseball's cedar post this spring. By which we mean that in a series of entertainment slumps and crashes, the old game faces a record year.

Almost every other form of entertaining for the restless human soul has taken a dive, big or little, except Florida racing and baseball. Miami turned out 25,000 cash customers for its first two games and every hamlet or city in the citrus circuit has shown the best average attendance ever recorded.

Grantland Rice

They have cracked records at St. Petersburg, Tampa, Sarasota and practically all other spots from coast to coast. As these attendance figures include a large number northern and midwestern tourists soaking up all the sunshine in sight, it indicates a nationwide interest in the game. Reports from the Pacific coast indicate the same general public trend in the direction of the home run and double, plus the error and the bases on balls.

The 1948 season set a new big-league attendance record. Last year the total was up close to the 1948 record-breaking figure. If there is any sort of close race, 1950 should reach or pass 22,000,000 and thereby keep the ballplayer collecting his share of the swag.

Whether Ted Williams is actually getting $125,000 or Joe DiMaggio is actually collecting $100,000 is doubted by more than a few big-league club owners — and they ought to know.

But the stars are drawing far more pay than they ever drew before, which has made baseball a profession worth following for those with fast legs, strong arms and a healthy batting eye. The club owners are taking in enough at the gate to pay a pretty fair ballplayer from $10,000 to $45,000 which is more than Wagner, Lajoie, Matty, Jackson and Walsh ever drew in their historic primes.

For example, last year Chicago's Cubs and Pittsburgh's Pirates drew over a million with two teams that seldom exuded the fragrant scent of rosebuds. A comfortable ball park was the main Cub lure and Ralph Kiner added to the Pirate attendance.

The only team that had a melancholy year was the Browns. And they have grown accustomed to the morbid things of life by now. There was a day when a team had to finish 1-2-3 to draw over 500,000. That day has departed.

The Possible Drawback

There is only one sad note that might affect attendance for the year ahead. This is to have some club in either league make a runaway of the race. That could happen.

The Red Sox or the Yankees might turn this trick. I don't think either will but there is still the chance.

The Dodgers might get the jump and open up a big gap if pitchers Ralph Branca and Rex Barney pitch about two-thirds as well as they ought to pitch.

No club in the American league —barring Red Sox and Yankees— has a chance to stampede the race. No other club beyond the Dodgers has the same chance in the National.

But even then those clubs with stars wouldn't suffer too much. The Pirates proved that last year when Ralph Kiner hit 54 runs and drew in a big part of the 1,400,000 and more spectators. The populace at large either wants a winner, a near winner or a star. If they can't get a 1-2-3 team they want a Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Stan Musial, Country Slaughter, Ralph Kiner or someone of higher than normal stature.

The stars still draw. The Yankees are lucky in having Joe DiMaggio, Henrich, Page and Rizzuto. The Red Sox are just as lucky in having Williams, Dom DiMaggio, Parnell and a smashing infield. And Zarilla is no part of a second-rater.

There is another tall, slender workman on the Red Sox club who might be one of the game's best. His name is Maurice McDermott.

McDermott is only 21 years old. He is 6-feet-2 and weighs 165 pounds. He is built like a whip and he throws like a whip. He was born in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and his record so far hasn't been too hot. But he has all the stuff one left arm is supposed to carry, including hurricane speed.

"How've you been going?" I asked McDermott. "Wilder than two hawks," he said.

Youth and speed don't lead to perfect control. McDermott may be one of the best left-handers of many years before the season ends.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Hair Styles Need Grooming to Retain Their Beauty

By Ertta Haley

WHETHER YOU WEAR your hair long or short, the beauty of your coiffure depends on the real care and grooming you give to those tresses. For some, short styles are becoming and youthful, while to others, slightly longer, more curly hair is best. In the final analysis, however, how your hair looks to others depends not so much on the style you wear it, but rather on its sheen, cleanliness and orderliness.

Fashion, this season, allows opportunity to change your hairdress. Though shorter hair is still fashionable, there is indication that a longer, more curled hairdress is on the way. However, no matter which trend you choose to follow, true hair beauty depends upon the health and cleanliness of the actual hair.

Unless you have real problem hair, a minimum of care will give maximum results. Brushing, which takes a little effort, will give your hair a sheen and gloss such as nothing else. A weekly shampoo or a shampoo every two weeks will keep the hair full of vitality and prevent it from becoming matted.

Hair cuts and permanents, when indicated for your particular type of hair, will do the rest. The daily and weekly care suggested above will then help you keep the hair in best possible appearance daily with the least possible effort.

There's one thing about hair care which pays big dividends: be faithful about it. Though you may have an attractive style and good permanent, don't neglect the daily brushing and shaping to the head which will train the hair to fall in exactly right places.

Brush Hair Daily For Best Results

Hair will not get exercise unless you put forth the effort. The scalp needs stimulation, and you must provide this with brushing if you want the tresses to have vitality and glow. Besides, once you get into a daily brushing habit, you won't give it up readily.

A good plan includes a five minute brushing in the morning, and then 10 minutes in the evening. Use a natural bristle brush of medium stiffness for best effects.

When you get rhythmic strokes into brushing, this little beauty routine goes along rapidly. Direct the movement up and out from the scalp. A little half twist of the wrist as you complete each stroke helps carry the brush to the very tip ends of the hair.

It's an advantage to use your brush, too, for smoothing, thus letting you help train the hair into the pattern of your coiffure. If there is any stiffness present in the hair after it has been shampooed and set, brush out the curls before you readjust them with a comb. In this way you help the hair look more natural.

Shampoo Hair When Necessary

There's no hard and fast rule as to when the hair must be shampooed. If the hair is oily, if it is exposed to dirt, grime, soot, etc., it will probably need more frequent shampoos. Beauty experts say the best rule to follow is to wash the hair when it needs it. With so many good shampoos and rinses on the market, you don't have to wait for a barrel full of rainwater to have the essential shampoo!

according to facial contours.

Curl Short Hair

The wispy hairs in the neckline section which used to be covered with long page-boy bobs or flowing curls have become a problem with short hair styles. Unless these little ends curl into the line of the coiffure, and stay there, they can spoil the loveliest hair-do. Midget-sized spin curlers which come with home permanent have been specially designed for the wispiest short hair, solve the problem.

Start the shampoo with a warm water rinse. This removes the surface dirt and makes it easier to spread the shampoo through the hair. Two sudsings are usually enough to clean the hair well, but three are necessary if the hair is excessively oily.

If you have not tried a creme rinse for the hair after washing, you'll be delighted with results. A small amount of the preparation is diluted with warm water, then poured through the hair. Rinse hair in clear warm water.

This type of rinse softens the hair, a fact which you will appreciate if living in a hard water area, and helps get out all the soap. Your own natural hair color will gleam and shine since there is no mineral film dulling the highlights. It also helps eliminate the tangles and snarls which so often cause you to tear the hair and give you unruly lines with which to cope while dressing the hair.

How to Have Success In Home Permanents.

Pick a day and time of day when you're not too tired to give the permanent adequate time and attention. If you feel you need help, be certain your helper will be as free from other cares and tasks, just as you.

Give yourself the pre-permanent shampoo. Use no rinse except warm water on the hair before the permanent.

Follow directions for blocking the hair and making the curls, so they aren't just scattered hit and miss over the head. The resulting wave will look more professional when the hair is properly blocked.

Watch the timing of the wave carefully. If you try to hurry the wave, the hair may be curly through the first shampoo or two, but then waves relax and you may not feel you're getting enough good from the permanent.

Give the neutralizer plenty of time and opportunity to do its work since this is the chemical which makes the permanent wave.

The shorter the hair, the longer the wave will last. If you have very heavy hair, it's a good idea to have it properly thinned so the weight of the hair does not pull down the curls.

Proper brushing, shampooing and other daily grooming will help you keep the wave looking nice for a long time.

The current trend is toward slightly longer, more curled hair. The hairdresses for Spring, however, will be sleek, whether long or short. Most of the long hair will be molded to the head with flat, forward turning curls.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Main Concern Is Baby's Welfare

"WHAT ARE WE TO DO with a girl of 19 who for two years has defied all home authority?" writes Lanna Lawson from Minneapolis. "Her father and I have tried prayer, coaxing, scolding, advice, threats, cutting down her allowance, refusing the use of the car — all in vain. She continues hard, rebellious, utterly unmoved.

"My older daughter and my husband's daughters by an earlier marriage have all been affectionate, manageable girls," the letter goes on, "and we have made for them and my son a hospitable loving home. All four are happily married now, my stepchildren regarding me as being as much their mother as my own children do.

"Janice is, therefore, all the more a mystery. Even in high-school days she would stay away over the dinner hour; even then her room was a pigpen with faded gardenias, smeared lipstick, movie programs, questionable magazines, candy boxes. Even then we could not reach through her hard, smiling exterior. She was in more than one night accident, and on one occasion we had a painful session with the juvenile police officers. Nothing touches her.

Unwanted Child

"Now the climax. Or rather the beginning of lifelong tragedy. She expects a child. The reputed father is a young married man, who refuses acknowledgement, and observes airily that the girl is of age, and that he has no desire for a divorce from his present wife. Janice is half-mad with resentment and fright, and shows at last something of the little-girl panic of 10 years ago.

"I won't dwell on my own heartbreak and shame, but simply give facts. Janice and her father stubbornly persist that she shall stay here, face the music, and live down the long punishment. I want her, long before anyone suspects, to leave home on some pretext, go to some other city, not so far but what I can visit her, and give her baby out for adoption. Not far from us is an agency that follows up adopted babies for actual years, and makes sure of their care and environment.

". . . my own heartbreak . . ."

"As you may suspect, I am half-frantic, and don't know what is right to think or do. Should we publicly accuse the man, hoping thus to force a divorce? Or if she stays here should we quietly announce a secret marriage and try to bolster up that story, no matter how much people suspect? I am sick of talk, worry and prayer. Her sisters and brother have no suspicion of the matter, but merely know that her conduct has been more than usually distressing to her father and me.

"Please Advise Us . . ."

"Janice has her amusing and lovable side, when she is not being criticized, and her brother and sisters always give her the benefit of the doubt. Please advise us.

My answer to this letter went by wire; a letter followed. My decision agreed with that of the mother, and my own view of this case is far from hopeless. Janice has made a young fool of herself, playing about with a married man, and she is going to pay in slow months of loneliness and helplessness, with the strain of childbirth, and the agony of letting her baby go. For that is what they have decided to do.

Such a decision on my part isn't only for Janice, nor for her father and mother, nor even for the brother and sisters who are so entirely innocent in the affair, and always ready to "give her the benefit of the doubt." Eventually, she'll come back to them a sensible girl, ready to take a job and her evening pleasures and her home obligations on a decent, self-respecting scale, as must every woman who wants to live reasonably and usefully— and enjoyably, too.

She thought she was smart, and she wasn't smart. She thought she was just being loving and generous, and her love belonged elsewhere, with the people who really love her, and her generosity was thrown away upon a rat.

No, my concern isn't for anyone but the baby. Had her father or had Janice thought—when they so heroically and dramatically decided that she must face the music right at home—about the baby?

The boy baby would grow into sturdy, confident little boyhood to discover that he had no father, that people were saying things about his mother, that her other children, born of a later marriage, were on a different footing, that he had no place in society. A baby girl would grow into shy sensitive girlhood.

H-Bomb Theory Never Secret

U.S. Better Target Area Than Is Russia

WASHINGTON. — There is no hydrogen bomb "secret" any more than there was ever an American held basic secret of the atom.

Nor is it a secret of Generalissimo Stalin that the hydrogen bomb is a weapon particularly suited to destroying America's civilization.

A hydrogen bomb, when and if one is built, may be able to demolish New York or Washington in a split second. The United States has may such targets, some within reach of a bomb carrying submarine or freighter that could creep into a harbor and deposit its cargo.

The Soviet Union has only a few such targets. Its industries are scattered and its major cities land locked and well ringed by defenses.

There are some of the open secrets about the hydrogen bomb discussed in a recent issue of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists.

The Bulletin was founded four and a half years ago by scientific men who helped make the A-bomb, then became concerned with helping master it. The March issue is an H-bomb issue, dedicated to the proposition that Americans have not debated the issues exploded by this and other new weapons.

It is now common knowledge that top scientists believe you can set off an explosion in some forms of hydrogen, using the explosion of an A-bomb as the trigger.

In 1946 the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists received a copy of a book by a distinguished Austrian scientist named Prof. Hans Thirring. It contained a whole chapter about the reactions on which a superbomb might rely.

The Bulletin's editors refrained from printing this or other articles like it, for fear of giving the appearance that the United States was building this bomb.

Plaintiff Burned by Match Snatch

By Will Bernard, LL.B.

Is it a Crime to Snatch A Package of Matches From Someone?

One fine day a grocer stationed himself in front of a competitor store and began passing out free matches—with his own name and address printed on each package. Soon the competitor stormed outside, ordered the man away, and angrily snatched a package from his hand. The first grocer promptly summoned a policeman and had the competitor arrested for assault and battery. At the trial, the latter insisted that grabbing a package of maches was not serious enough to justify criminal charges. But the court disagreed and found him guilty. The judge said that any rude and angry touching, no matter how insignificant, may amount to assault and battery.

The janitor of an apartment house was arrested on a charge of molesting the three-year-old daughter of one of the tenants. At the trial, the child was put on the witness stand and—in halting baby talk—repeated her complaint. However, when the prosecutor wasn't able to offer any supporting evidence, the judge threw the case out of court. His Honor said that to send a man to jail on such unreliable evidence would be to "trifle with justice." The word of a child that young would not stand as evidence in itself.

An atheist was expounding his views in a public park one morning, when a policeman came up and arrested him. At the suggestion of the district attorney, the man was brought to trial on a charge of "conducting public worship without a license"! Atheism, insisted the district attorney, is really a religion in itself. However, the court disagreed and found the speaker not guilty of the charge. The judge said that worship is based on the concept of a Divine Being—and that's just exactly what atheism denies.

If a Bully Chases You Off the Sidewalk, May You Collect Damages?

A man was so afraid of his terrible-tempered neighbor that he always tried to avoid him. One evening, while walking home, he noticed the neighbor following him—with a stick poised in his hand. When the man started to run, the neighbor gave chase—but the fugitive managed to duck inside his front gate. Later he decided to sue for assault. At the trial, the neighbor argued that he was not liable because he had never gotten within striking range of his target. However, the court held him responsible anyhow. The judge said that the chase in itself constituted an illegal assault—whether it was successful or not.

"WAS I MISTAKEN — OR DID I HEAR A FAINT WHISTLE?"

Smile Awhile

No Control

A young lawyer was fighting his "first case" brilliantly but felt that the judge showed a definite leaning to the other side. In fact he went so far as to tell the judge so. His Honor rebuked the young lawyer and the ensuing exchange of words brought the wrath of the bench on the lawyer's head.

"Young man," the judge exploded, "you are extremely offensive."

"We both are," the lawyer retorted, "but I am trying to be and you can't help it."

Shabby Gesture

Mrs. Smith stormed into the lawyer's office.

"This is an outrage," she cried. "Here I give you the best years of my life to my husband and he cuts me off without a cent."

"Oh, but there must be some mistake," said the lawyer.

"No, there ain't," insisted Mrs. Smith. "It says right here that he left everything to his beneficiary and I know darn well that he never had one. In fact he never could even stand the smell of fish."

Somewhat Crowded

"Scushe me, shir," apologized an intoxicant, bowing to a lamp post into which he had bumped. Starting again, he collided with a fire hydrant. More apologies. On trying a third time he walked headlong into a telephone pole, which sent him flat. "Well (hic)," he said, "Gyesh I'll jesh sit down here (hic) till thish crowd gits by."

The Hard Way

"The thing for you to do," said the doctor to the man with the frazzled nerves, "is to stop thinking about yourself—to bury yourself in your work."

"Gosh!" returned the patient, "and me a concrete mixer."

Hadacol Is Praised At Famous Spa

HADACOL HAS SPECIAL OFFICE IN HOT SPRINGS TO HELP SUFFERERS

Hot Springs National Park, Ark.—(Special)—Health is a major topic of conversation in this world famous Spa and more and more conversation turns to the marvelous, health-giving blessings being brought to so many by HADACOL.

Realizing the importance of Hot Springs as a health center, Dudley J. LeBlanc, Founder and President of LeBlanc Corporation, makers of HADACOL, established an office in Hot Springs to advise suffering folks on how HADACOL can benefit their systems with its wealth of B Vitamins and important Minerals.

In this HADACOL office in Hot Springs are records of folks who have found improved health in a bottle of HADACOL. That is one reason why per capita sales of HADACOL in Hot Springs are among the highest in the country.

Look at the record of Mrs. Joan Waers, of Hot Springs, who started taking HADACOL only two months ago but now has her husband and other relatives and friends taking HADACOL with the same wonderful results. Here is her statement:

"I started taking HADACOL about two months ago with wonderful results. I was run down and suffered with indigestion and gastric disturbances. Food didn't agree with me. I was nervous. After taking HADACOL I feel stronger, eat what I want to without indigestion. I just feel better all the time. I have tried many remedies before taking HADACOL, but HADACOL has done me more good than all the medicines I have ever taken. My husband also took HADACOL because he was run down and suffered with nervous indigestion and headaches. He is a well man today due to HADACOL. I have several relatives and friends taking HADACOL with fine results."

Mrs. Waers was suffering a deficiency of B Vitamins and important Minerals, which HADACOL contains.

A lack of only a small amount of the B Vitamins and certain Minerals will cause digestive disturbances. . . . Your food will not agree with you. . . . You will have an upset stomach. . . . You will suffer from heart burns, gas pains, and your food will sour on your stomach, and you will not be able to eat the things you like for fear of being in misery afterwards. Many people also suffer from constipation. And while those symptoms may be the results of other causes, they are surely and certainly the symptoms and signs of the lack of the B Vitamins and Minerals contained in HADACOL. And if you suffer from such a disorder, there is no medicine, drug or treatment that will cure you except the administration of the Vitamins and Minerals which your system lacks.

HADACOL contains not only one, but five of the B Vitamins. HADACOL contains not only one, but four of the necessary Minerals. It comes to you in liquid form, easily assimilated in the blood stream so that it can go to work right away. You cannot be satisfied with just temporary relief. HADACOL attacks and cures the source of such deficiency diseases.

It is easy to understand, therefore, why countless thousands have already been benefited by this amazing tonic, HADACOL. Accept no substitute—insist on the genuine HADACOL!

So, it matters not who you are . . . it matters not where you live . . . or if you have tried all the medicines under the sun, give this wonderful preparation a trial. Don't go on suffering! Don't continue to lead a miserable life. Many persons who have suffered and waited for 10 to 20 years, or even longer, are able now to live happy, comfortable lives again because HADACOL supplied the Vitamins and Minerals which their systems needed. Be fair to yourself. Give HADACOL a trial.

We are so firm in our belief that HADACOL will help you that we sell HADACOL on a money-back guarantee. If you don't feel perfectly satisfied after using HADACOL as directed, just return the empty carton and your money will be cheerfully refunded. Nothing could be fairer.

Sold at all the leading drug stores. Trial size only $1.25, but save money—buy the large family and hospital size—only $3.50.

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny postcard. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or the $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied.—Adv.

Dessert Contrasts

IF YOUR MAIN DISHES for the season are of the lighter variety, then your dessert patterns should be just a shade richer than usual to give the menu variety, balance and contrast.

To avoid loss of interest in food entirely, which is so apt to come at this season of the year, select some interesting desserts such as are featured in today's column. You have your choice of ice cream, puddings and cakes, all of which are unusual and good, too!

There's always audible approval from youngsters and grownups alike when cream puffs are served. And cream puff shells made especially tempting with a filling of ice cream are a dessert that really goes places. The cream puff shells are flavored with chocolate and filled with cool mint ice cream.

Chocolate Mint Ice Cream Puffs
(Serves 6)

- ¼ cup butter
- ½ cup boiling water
- ½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon cocoa
- 2 eggs, unbeaten
- 1 quart mint ice cream
- Hot fudge sauce

Add butter to boiling water; heat until butter melts. Sift together flour, salt, sugar and cocoa; add to butter mixture, all at once, stirring thoroughly. Cook, stirring, until mixture leaves sides of pan. Remove and cool a minute. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls on greased baking sheet, two inches apart, shaping with wet spoon into rounds. Bake in hot oven (450°) 10 minutes. Reduce heat (350°) and bake 25 minutes longer, until lightly browned. Cool and cut off tops. Fill with peppermint ice cream and top with hot fudge sauce.

ORANGE DESSERT CAKE needs no frosting, since the orange juice and sugar make a wonderful glaze for the top of the cake.

Orange Dessert Cake

- 1 orange, medium size
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup raisins
- ½ cup shortening
- 2 eggs, beaten slightly
- 2 cups sifted flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in milk
- 1 cup evaporated milk mixed with
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cut the orange and squeeze out 2 tablespoons of the juice. Add to this juice ¼ cup of the sugar and reserve for glazing the cake. Cut out and discard the central core and the seeds of the orange. Grind the orange with the raisins, using the medium blade of the food chopper. Cream shortening and sugar together. Add the beaten eggs. Sift flour with salt. Add alternately to the egg mixture with the milk, beginning and ending with flour. Stir in the orange and raisin mixture quickly. Pour into a greased 8x8x2 pan and bake in a moderate oven (375°) about 45 minutes. After baking and while still hot, cover with the two tablespoons orange juice and sugar mixture and let stand in pan until juice is absorbed. Do not dissolve sugar entirely, as it should glaze the top of the cake.

BUTTERSCOTCH pecan cake-pudding is a dessert that offers a surprise. Although this luscious pudding begins with batter in the bottom and pudding mixture on the top, it doesn't end that way. During the baking, the batter rises to the top, a wonderful tender cake, with the luscious butterscotch pudding on the bottom. There's a generous share of crisp pecans all through the pudding for flavor and texture interest.

Butterscotch Pecan Cake-Pudding
(Serves 6—8)

Batter:

- ¼ cup shortening
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup evaporated milk
- ½ cup pecans

Blend shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Gently fold in the beaten whites. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to egg mixture alternately with the milk. Stir in the pecans and turn batter into a greased 1½ quart casserole.

Pudding:

- 1½ cups brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup evaporated milk
- ½ cup grapefruit juice

Blend sugar and flour. Stir in the milk and grapefruit juice. Mix well and pour gently over batter. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for one hour. Serve warm.

Burnt Sugar Cake
(Makes 3 9-inch layers)

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup boiling water
- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup shortening
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Place one cup of the sugar in a skillet and heat, stirring constantly until sugar melts and becomes brown; remove from heat, add boiling water and stir until sugar is entirely dissolved. Cool. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening with remaining sugar until fluffy. Add unbeaten egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each is added. Add vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients and caramel sirup alternately in small amounts, beating thoroughly after each addition. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased pans and bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes.

LYNN SAYS:
Fortify Leftover Foods With Extra Flavor

Slices of cold roast veal make an excellent sandwich when treated with a spread of anchovy paste and butter and fresh rye bread slices.

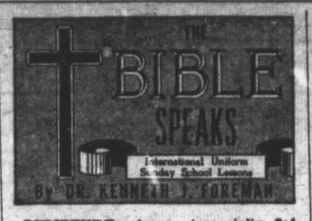

Extend that bit of grape juice in the refrigerator by mixing with cranberry juice. Serve chilled for an appetizer.

Serve that last bit of cauliflower with a tangy cheese sauce and shower with toasted, salted almonds for a genuine flavor treat.

Roast beef hash takes on improvement when it's served with a smooth, tart hollandaise sauce. You can skip the poached eggs since there's so much egg yolk in the sauce.

On the second or third night that you serve spaghetti sauce, try it with slivers of ham, sauteed mushrooms and a sprinkling of sweet basil.

Leftover sweet potatoes take an extra flavor and glaze when they are heated wit a bit of orange marmalade.

SCRIPTURE: Amos, (especially 3:6-5; 7-7-15; 8:1-3).
DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 42: 1-8.

Rugged Prophet

Lesson for April 16, 1950

DON'T MAKE the mistake of thinking that the "minor" prophets of the Old Testament were less important than the "majors." The 12 men whose writings end our Old Testament are in no way less important than Isaiah, Jeremiah or Ezekiel. They are called "minor" only because their writings cover fewer pages. First in point of time came Amos.

Ranch-Hand Preacher

AMOS WAS NO city preacher, in fact not a preacher at all. He would not even call himself a prophet. He was a ranch-hand from the back country, more like what we would call a hired hand than a farmer on his own. He had no presitge, no backing, no social or official position, no money, no high education, no national reputation, in fact none of the things that make us "take notice" of a strange speaker. He had no lecture bureau, had no luncheon-club, he could not even hire a hall.

Dr. Foreman

But the Lord had spoken to him and he knew it. He was determined that the wealthy people who crowded the temple yard in Bethel should hear him. No doubt the mere sight of the man would attract attention. In his rough working clothes he would look as out-of-place in that well-polished crowd as a huckleberry in a pan of milk.

As his voice, trained in the wide open spaces, rang out over the crowd, a few people may have laughed at first. But a circle of respectful silence would grow around him. Indeed they liked what he said, at first.

Roll-Call of Doomsday

"FOR three transgressions of Damascus, yea for four ... I will not turn away the punishment thereof," he began. Damascus was capital of Syria, for generations their country's bitter and all too successful enemy. So when Amos predicted a crash for Syria, you may imagine the applause would be loud.

Then, one after another, as Amos points his finger east, north, south, the lightning of God's curse is called down on enemy after enemy of the nation of Israel. Fire, hurricane, defeat and disaster are foretold for every one.

Too Close Home

EVERYTHING Amos had said was true, and came true; every nation whose downfall he predicted collapsed just as he said it would. But that was not the main reason he had tramped all the way to Bethel. He had some things to say to the very people before him, something about themselves and their own country. So when he had his audience in the palm of his hand, just as they were gloating over the terrible fate of the nations they hated, Amos dropped his bomb on their complacent heads.

"Thus saith the Lord: For three transgressions of ISRAEL, yea for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof." The roll-call of doomsday includes every sinful nation. God has no pets, he plays no favorites. His laws are the same for all men. Naturally, Israelites could well believe that God hated the sins of their enemies. But their own? That was a different story.

Amos plunged from being the most popular sidewalk preacher of his day to being the best-hated man in Israel. In fact, because he dared to name the king as sinner number one, he was accused of treason, a capital crime in any country.

"One Man With God Is a Majority"

AMOS WROTE OUT his prophecies at some later time and they have been handed down to us, with all their fire and force, in the book that bears his name.

We shall see in later lessons some of his great messages. What stands out here is this: Truth is sometimes popular, sometimes not, but the living power of truth has nothing to do with the number of people who believe it, or whether it is pleasant, or with the prestige of the man who proclaims it.

If it is God's truth, it will live even if the only man who believes it is banished, as Amos was, to the silent wilderness.
