Hard freeze looms

The season's first hard freeze should hit the area tonight, with temperatures in the upper 20s and a 50 percent chance of light snow. The front responsible for the low temperatures should arrive in the area this afternoon, dropping the morning's high of 50 by 20 degrees. The area will have light rain during the day, which might freeze during the night to snow.

Two plead guilty

Two men pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in Midland on narcotics charges Thursday. Martin Sandoval Sanchez, 30, of Porviner, Mexico, pleaded guilty to a conspiracy to distribute more than 100 kilgrams of marijuana. Luis Sandoval Sanchez, also of Mexico, pleaded guilty to "misprison of a felony." The men were arrested Aug. 30, and 700 pounds of marijuana was seized after a three-month investigation by the Midland County Sheriff's office and the Midland FBI. Martin Sanchez faces up to 40 years in prison and up to a $2 million fine. Luis Sanchez faces up to three years in prison and a fine up to $250,000. Both men are still in jail.

Campfire sparks inferno

Transient leaves hundreds homeless near L.A.

A large home sits untouched, surrounded by luxury homes that burned to the ground in Laguna Beach, Calif., Thursday morning.

ALTADENA, Calif. — A homeless man named Andres Huang woke up cold and shivering in a sagebrush-covered campground just up the mountain from Altadena. So he kindled a fire.

Searing winds turned his small campfire into a raging blaze that burned 5,500 acres, incinerated 115 homes and left hundreds in the same predicament as himself — homeless.

"He was cold and confused," said Sheriff's Department spokesman Sgt. Noel Lanier. "It just got away from him and he began running down the hills."

Authorities know only this about him: A Chinese immigrant, Huang speaks no English. He is 35 years old. Before he came to this country two months ago, he had lived somewhere in South America.

Ethics panel on Packwood: Diaries raise new questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Packwood's diaries raise questions of possible criminal conduct by the lawmaker unrelated to allegations of sexual misconduct, the Senate Ethics Committee disclosed Thursday.

Sen. Packwood — Asssertion is first indication that ethics panel is looking into possible criminal wrongdoing.

As the Senate neared a debate on a subpoena for the diaries, Committee Chairman Richard Bryan, in a sharply worded five-page statement, rebutted Packwood's contention that the panel wants his diaries to rummage through his private writings.

"There is no constitutional right being violated," Bryan said of the investigation, which focused until now on allegations of sexual misconduct and intimidation of witnesses.

The panel's staff already has examined large portions of the diaries.

The full Senate was scheduled to debate — and possibly vote — Monday on whether to enforce the subpoena against Packwood.

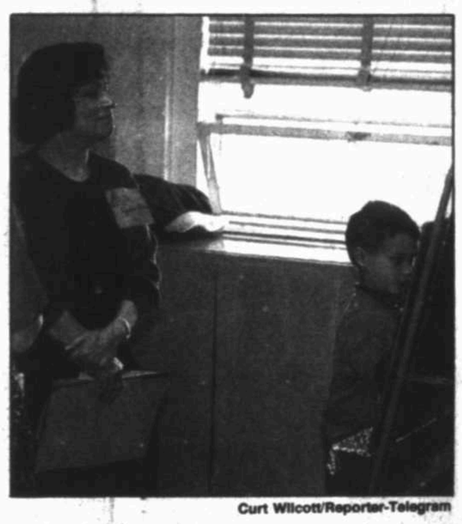

"There is no witch hunt or fishing expedition under way," Bryan said. "The Ethics Committee has no interest in pursuing information related to the private lives of members of Congress."

Fina executive opens seminar by urging proactive oil industry

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

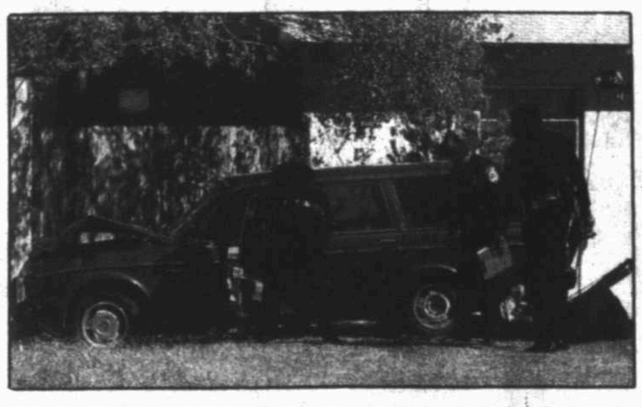

The oil industry must become proactive and not reactive in the matter of environmental affairs, said Ron Haddock, the president and CEO of Fina Oil and Chemical Co., at the opening of the Permian Basin Environmental Issues Seminar in Midland.

Haddock said the industry may have been too reactive in the past and that it must now work to respond to public distrust of the industry.

"We cannot keep on doing the same thing," he said, noting that a new industry program developed in conjunction with the American Petroleum Institute would help adjust public attitude toward the industry.

He noted that the public attitude

Wealth of new details nestle in health-care plan fine print

By Christopher Connell

WASHINGTON — If you lie to your health alliance to get a subsidy under the Clinton health plan, it could cost you $2,000.

Cigar smokers would have to pay almost four cents more for each stogie they buy, and the price of a 1.2-ounce tin of smokeless tobacco would jump by almost $1.

The nation's elderly would pay $11 more a month for Medicare's new drug benefits, and the wealthiest among them would have their Medicare premiums tripled.

Medicaid patients on welfare would pay $1 to get a prescrip-

Pro sports leagues expand; economical questions linger

By Stefan Fatsis
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — In 1959, Houston oilman Bud Adams wanted to buy a National Football League franchise. When the stodgy league didn't act fast enough, he and a friend formed the competing American Football League.

That would never happen today.

In the most fertile period of professional sports expansion since the 1970s, cities play a game of can-you-top-this. Taxpayers shell out hundreds of millions of dollars for new stadiums. Leagues charge skyrocketing entry fees.

Lost in the rush is a sticky question: Do cities benefit economically from the teams they want so badly? Many econo-

Palestinian force marches after showdown

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Forty Palestinians in camouflage uniforms proudly marched through this West Bank town for the first time on Thursday after winning a showdown with Israeli troops trying to block them.

The guards formed two columns and attempted a stiff-legged step. But they were out of sync and the formation quickly fell apart.

The new civil guard lacks arms and appeared too ill-equipped to maintain order during the transition period in which Israeli troops will begin withdrawing from the Gaza Strip and West Bank in December.

Hassan Asfour, spokesman for the Palestinian negotiating team, said during talks in Egypt on Thursday that the Palestinians would need a force of more than 25,000 officers for all of the occupied lands. He said the force should be modern and well-equipped, suggesting helicopters and patrol boats.

For now, Palestine Liberation Organization leaders have put 130 civilian guards in Jericho and 2,500 guards will soon be sent to Gaza, where three PLO officials have been assassinated since the Sept. 13 signing of the autonomy accord.

The civil guard is made up of former political prisoners, including the Hawks, underground gunmen loyal to PLO leader Yasser Arafat's Fatah faction.

In their new role they will carry billy clubs and handcuffs, but no guns. They are to protect PLO leaders and offices, chase robbers and control traffic until a proper Palestinian police force takes over.

Each unit is named after a Palestinian killed in clashes with Israel.

Oded Ben-Ami, spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin at the Defense Ministry, said the Palestinians could organize such a force as long as it was not armed and obeyed soldiers' orders.

Jamal Safi, commander of the Jericho force, said the guard was meant to make people feel safer. One rival faction also announced plans to set up several neighborhood police stations.

But on Thursday, Israeli troops reminded the Palestinians that they are not in charge — yet.

About 40 of Safi's men gathered at the local Red Cross headquarters for the march through town, along with about 50 women demanding the release of Palestinian prisoners.

But a dozen soldiers blocked the gate, saying there would be no parade of guards in uniform. After an hourlong standoff, the women pushed out of the gate, followed by the uniformed men. There was some scuffling, but the army let them pass.

Israeli officials announce gas deal with Qatar

JERUSALEM (NYT) — Israeli officials say they have held secret negotiations with the tiny Persian Gulf emirate of Qatar on a multibillion-dollar project to bring natural gas to Israel and then export it across the Mediterranean to Europe.

The officials say they could sign an agreement by early December. But Qatar's oil minister Thursday denied that a deal was in the making, calling reports of an imminent breakthrough "unrealistic and based on illogical assumption."

The Qatari news agency quoted him as saying economic relations are not possible while the Arab boycott against Israel remains intact.

While it was not clear through the thicket of contradictory statements whether a deal was on or off, there was little doubt that the Israelis have had contacts with representatives of a country that, like most Arab states, had been off-limits to them for decades.

Foreign Minister Shimon Peres met secretly with his Qatari counterpart in New York last month, and several weeks ago, an official from Peres' ministry went to Qatar to discuss economic and political relations.

In addition, Energy Minister Moshe Shahal is reported to have met in Israel with a group of Qatari energy specialists and businessmen, one of three such delegations that came here last month.

Israel's contacts with the Muslim world in general have expanded in the six weeks since it signed an agreement with the Palestine Liberation Organization on introducing Palestinian self-rule to the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Somali warlord Aidid increases power, U.N. says

MOGADISHU, Somalia (NYT) — Although clan fighting in the capital has subsided in recent days, growing tension and sporadic clashes are being reported in other areas of the country as Gen. Mohammed Farah Aidid tries to increase his faction's power base, U.N. military officials say.

The officials say the unrest and a stalemate in political talks could mean the return of civil war to Somalia, which is still struggling to recover from two years of anarchy and famine.

Aidid and close associates in his party, the Somali National Alliance, have been unwilling to meet with the United Nations, in effect delaying any settlement among clans on Somalia's political future, the officials said.

Aidid counters that it is hard for him to enter talks when the United Nations has a warrant out for his arrest, and he maintains that he is waiting for a U.N. initiative. But in recent weeks his fighters have been trying to gain control of as much territory as possible before they are forced back to the negotiating table.

The Somali general, who managed to withstand months of attacks and efforts to capture him by U.N. forces, has emerged as a strongman in a country facing a vacuum of leaders with national support.

"It's only a matter of time before serious fighting breaks out in the central regions," a senior U.N. military official said, speaking on condition of anonymity. "They're blowing us off."

"The Somali National Alliance perceives the U.N. as a very weak organization, and they're correct," he said. "I really believe the SNA wants the U.N. out or they want the U.N. on their own terms. Aidid will be the dictator of Somalia."

Aside from trying to broker a political settlement, the United Nations currently has no options. Senior U.N. officials have repeatedly emphasized over the last two weeks that the United Nations and the United States will not use military force to stop Aidid.

Guns become 'chic fashion accessory' in war ravaged Georgia

By Candice Hughes
Associated Press writer

TBILISI, Georgia — Guns have become the chic fashion accessory in the Georgian capital — a basic element of the male wardrobe.

The rich and powerful sport Italian-made berettas or American Colts. Soviet assault rifles and police pistols are like jeans: everyone's wearing them.

Evening wear, of course, demands firepower — say a grenade launcher or a sleek little pistol to compliment the cigarette and the swagger.

At the city's only first-class hotel, a metal detector graces the entrance and guns are checked at the door.

Yet elsewhere, Tbilisi is pretty much a free-fire zone where thugs and gunmen rule the streets.

Gun battles, drive-by shootings, stabbings, carjackings, armed robbery, extortion, gang wars, murder and knife fights — this is daily life in the heart of post-Soviet Georgia. And that's just nine to five.

It gets really creepy after dark. Ordinary people hurry home when night begins to fall. If you're out late in Tbilisi, you are one of two things: fair game or up to no good.

"There are a lot of guns in Tbilisi," says police chief David Zeikidze. "Thousands. Many thousands."

Tbilisi may be armed to the teeth, but Zeikidze insists things are getting better. "Before, even police stations were getting robbed," he said in an interview Thursday.

The guns, the violence and the near anarchy are a legacy of the Soviet collapse. Independence plunged Georgia into a nearly constant state of war. Political factions battle one another, breakaway provinces have become battlegrounds, and criminal gangs have flourished amid the chaos.

"Georgians genetically love guns," said Republican Party leader Ivlian Khaindrava. "And now they have chance to own them."

Some blame Soviet rule and Georgian cleverness.

Georgians were masters of the Soviet-era black market. Crime became a way of life for many people and now they just prey on one another instead of the Soviet state, Khaindrava said.

Searchers find possible U.S. MIA remains

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. specialists searching for Americans missing from the Vietnam War found human remains in all three Indochinese countries while digging at crash sites and a graveyard, a spokesman said Thursday.

If an anthropologist determines the remains found in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia could be Americans, they will be sent to U.S. Army laboratories in Honolulu for further analysis, Lt. Col. David Fredrikson said.

Plane wreckage and pieces of uniforms also were found, he said.

More than 200 American specialists are working in Indochina and neighboring Thailand to account for American prisoners of war and missing in action. Besides excavations, they are studying archive materials and interviewing people who witnessed incidents in which Americans went missing.

A total of 2,248 Americans are missing from the war, which ended in a 1975 Communist defeat of the U.S.-backed South Vietnam government.

Remains were found this week in both Vietnam and Laos, said Fredrikson, chief spokesman for the Honolulu-based military unit conducting the MIA search. He spoke in a telephone interview from Honolulu.

He said the latest remains found in Vietnam were unearthed during excavations at two plane crash sites in the country's north and one in the south. A total of 21 Americans are missing from the crashes at the three sites.

The latest search in Vietnam began Oct. 21. U.S. officials said seven teams of investigators were fanning out over 19 provinces for a month — the most ever for a single project — to investigate as many as 143 MIA cases.

One planned excavation was of a site in the northwest where a cargo plane carrying several Americans crashed on a remote mountain peak. In an earlier search, three sets of remains were found.

Chance of snow hits horizon

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies with a 40 percent chance of light rain. The morning high will be near 50, dropping to the upper 30s by late afternoon. The winds will be north to northeast at 20-30 mph. Tonight should be cloudy with a 50 percent chance of light snow, no significant accumulations expected. A hard freeze is expected with a low in the upper 20s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Saturday should be cloudy with a 20 percent chance of light snow and a light near 40.

After an overnight low of 40, Thursday's high was 73, compared to the record high for that date of 91 set in 1950. The record low was 27 set in 1980.

STATE

Temperatures are expected to plummet as a cold front brings rain and snow to most of Texas today.

In North Texas Thursday, temperatures were in the 70s. Skies were clear and winds were 15 to 25 mph with higher gusts.

Today's forecast calls for a cloudy, windy day with rain and thunderstorms.

Snow may fall in the northwest part of the region by late afternoon. Temperatures will be in the upper 30s in the west to the lower 50s in the east.

In West Texas Thursday, skies were generally sunny.

Temperatures were mainly in the 60s and 70s; winds were strong and variable across the region.

Today's West Texas forecast calls for snow from the South Plains northward and rain across the southern sections.

All areas except for the lower elevations of southwest Texas will have a chance for light snow tonight.

Temperatures will stay in the 20s in the Panhandle and drop into the 30s during the day in the South Plains and Permian Basin. Elsewhere, highs will be in the 50s to mid-60s.

In South Texas Thursday, skies were mostly cloudy. Winds were 15 mph with higher gusts in the west. Temperatures were in the upper 60s to mid-70s.

A cold front is expected to sweep through South Texas today. Skies will be mostly cloudy with a chance of showers early in the north and all day in the south.

Sleet and snow is possible in the Hill Country tonight.

Highs will range from the 60s in the Hill Country to the 80s in the south. Temperatures will drop into the 50s and 60s across the north in the afternoon after the front passes.

NATION

Winter weather moved into the upper Midwest on Thursday, with rain scattered in the Northeast and snow in high elevations of the West.

A fast-moving cold front brought low temperatures and strong gusty winds to the Plains. Snow fell in the Rockies and the upper Missouri Valley.

About three inches of snow covered the eastern entrance to Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming. Up to eight inches of snow fell in the northern Big Horn Mountains of Wyoming.

Winds on top of Squaw Mountain, Colo., gusted to 83 mph. Winds near Rollinsville, Colo., reached 76 mph.

Advisories for snow with blowing and drifting snow were posted through today across the northern mountains of Colorado.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

FOCUS: Bilingual teachers focus on children

(From 1A)

Even well-known artist and former art school teacher Amado Pena Jr. visited Midland High School students.

"I was real impressed with Pena when I learned about his situation growing up and his art," said Marcos Valdez, a MHS senior. Marcos, who studies oil painting, said painting probably will remain a leisure activity for him. "It took a lot for Pena to switch from teaching art to professional painting," the student said.

Pena, born in Laredo to a mother of Yaqui Indian descent, taught high school art for 16 years.

"Those were some of my happiest times," he said Thursday afternoon, while autographing posters he designed for the conference.

Making the change from art teacher to full-time artist came naturally for Pena. "I always did my art, and my art and teaching were never separate, one from the other. Going to it full-time was a way of giving my art a chance, and giving it my full dedication."

Years ago, Pena taught in the same school district, Crystal City ISD, with Midland teacher and conference organizer Teresa Marmolejo. He said his visit to the Midland conference was partially a favor to "an old friend" and fellow teacher.

The artist, whose work has been described as "the essence of the Southwest," said he enjoyed relating to the students at MHS.

"Students were very impressed at having him in our classroom," said MHS art teacher Larry Gilbert. "I saw a change in their eyes as they listened to Pena. He reinforced things I have told them about discipline and working hard to succeed."

At other Midland and Odessa schools, hundreds of teachers — from cities including Corpus Christi, Laredo, Huntsville, Houston, San Antonio, Victoria, Dallas, San Marcos, Spring, Austin, Denton and Mexico City — toured their classrooms.

Yellow school buses, provided by Midland and Ector public schools, loaded up with teachers to take them to visit magnet, yearround and multicultural schools.

Mariachis played a rousing rendition of "La Bamba" according to some youngsters at Carver Cultural Center, who hosted tour groups viewing the school's unit on Spain.

Following the campus tours, the teachers met at the Holiday Inn Center in Midland for the conference's general opening session.

Midland Mayor J.D. Faircloth greeted conference participants in halting Spanish, then allowed that Assistant City Manager Rick Menchaca had "tutored me for a week."

"I'm not bilingual," Faircloth said, noting that learning Spanish was not emphasized when he was growing up. "But the older I become, no matter whether I travel to Canada or China, I realize it is so important that we be able to communicate. ... Whether NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) passes or not, we need to continue our relations," he said to loud applause.

Midland College President David Daniel extended a welcome to his campus, host of the convention's bilingual curriculum exhibit, and proclaimed MC "the greatest community college on the face of the earth."

The college president also drew laughter announcing his pride in having so many visitors in Midland, "the garden spot of the world."

"As a transplanted North Carolinian, I can say that without hesitation or reservation," he said.

On a more serious note, keynote speaker of the general session, Eugene Garcia, urged educators and administrators to quit looking at students learning English as a second language as "a problem."

Garcia, director of the Office of Bilingual Education & Minority Language Affairs in Washington, D.C., said, "Language and culture are not things you divide. They are things you enhance or add on to."

"We shouldn't be subtracting, problem solving or correcting language or culture," Garcia said. "We should be enhancing and building on a resource, not solving a problem."

Appointed to his office by President Clinton, Garcia said the Clinton administration agrees "the diversity of language is to be viewed as a resource, not a problem."

"Our country is what it is because of diversity and how we deal with it," Garcia said.

He said Texas was once one of the top five states in the nation for Hispanic populations. "Now it has become one of the top 10 states. By the end of the decade, it will be one of the top 20 sates," Garcia said, noting the Hispanic population in the United States has increased 70 percent in the last six years, and is spreading from state to state.

"The demographics are a reality. Teaching bilingual students is a national issue," he said.

The De Colores exhibit of curriculum vendors and book publishers opened up at the Chaparral Center on Thursday. Pena autographed posters and was expected to close his booth Thursday night. The other exhibits will be open from 9 a.m.-7 p.m. today.

Conference sessions will continue from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today at the Holiday Inn. Sessions will include "Using Music to Teach Basic Concepts in Math and Science," "The Impact of NAFTA on Texas Public Schools," "An Oral Reading Interpretation of Original Bilingual Poetry," and "Investigating Ethnic Bias in the Mathematics Portion of the exit-level TAAS Test."

Several sessions will be conducted in Spanish by administrators from Mexico, including "The Effect of Bilingual Education on the Child," conducted by Eloisa Aguirre del Valle, education minister of Mexico.

Rudolfo Anaya, award-winning author of "Bless Me Ultima," will lead a special session 2:15-3:15 p.m. in the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium at Midland College.

Conference sessions will continue through noon Saturday.

UNITY: Consulate promotes cultural exchange

tes," said Adela Solis, president of the Texas Association of Bilingual Educators at the Holiday Inn Center.

de Cossio

Appointed by Mexico's President Salinas, de Cossio represents Mexican communities worldwide, and said he supports teacher exchange programs between the United State and Mexico.

"This program was established four years ago to promote interchange between the countries," de Cossio said. "U.S. teachers can come to Mexico to learn about culture. And we have also sent materials to the U.S. which explain how to teach math and science in Spanish."

"We are promoting collaboration and a cultural interchange," de Cossio said, suggesting that U.S. Hispanic high school students could benefit from spending a week or two in Mexico to really "find their roots and identify with their culture." He said high rates of Hispanic students may be dropping out of school and not graduating from high school due to lack of self-esteem and identity.

"There has been a presence of Mexicans in the United States for centuries," he said. "They have developed their own culture and language with manifestations of Mexican culture."

He said programs exchanging art and music between the countries are already in place.

The Mexican program director frowned upon teaching young children English before they have been in school several years learning in their "mother tongue."

"In Mexico there are 156 languages. Spanish is often taught to older students as a second language," he said. "Their mother tongue and their self-esteem is preserved."

"A child feels pride learning in their own language and that language is preserved for the first few years of school," de Cossio said. "That same theory holds for adults. Those who aren't literate are taught in their mother tongue first."

Primarily in Midland to address bilingual curriculum, de Cossio said he was also meeting with Texas teachers to discover "common threads" between Mexican Americans, Mexicans and Americans. "We are all part of a global world, and we must all work together," he said.

In another show of unity between Mexico and the United States at the conference's general session ceremony, the national athems from both countries were sung, and the pledges of both countries said to the respective flags.

SPARK: Transient's campfire fuels inferno

lationship to this fire is destined for infamy in Altadena. And for those whose homes were erased from the landscape, the slow process of starting over began Thursday.

Whipped by the fierce winds, the fire raced through Eaton Canyon in this community in the foothills of the San Gabriel Mountains, 15 miles northeast of Los Angeles. The fire early Wednesday was one of 13 blazes that destroyed nearly 600 homes and burned 113,000 acres from Ventura County, north of Los Angeles, to the U.S.-Mexico border.

From Eaton Canyon, the fire spread into the exclusive gated community Kinneola Canyon Estates and sent 26-year-old Jim Bonaccorso scrambling down another hillside.

"I woke up and heard explosions," Bonaccorso recalled Thursday, standing in the smoking embers of the home he shared with his parents. "I thought it was power transformers bursting."

What he heard were the exploding gas tanks of his neighbors' cars. The back of his own house was on fire, and Bonaccorso, struggling out of a deep sleep, realized his driveway was a wall of flame.

"I ran through my neighbor's property and fell down the hillside," he said. "My whole backside is bruised."

Then Bonaccorso faced the task of calling his parents in Mexico, where they had gone to celebrate his father's retirement, and telling them that the house his father had built 18 years ago with his own hands was gone, along with virtually everything in it.

Gerry and Sal Bonaccorso came home to find their Jaguar reduced to junk in the driveway, alongside the smoking hulk of their son's truck.

Their hillside neighborhood smoldered in a random pattern caused by fickle winds that consumed one house in fire, only to leave the next intact. The fire department had already affixed red and white tags to the mailboxes of burned homes reading "condemned."

DETAILS: Big charges nestle in fine print

(From 1A)

tion filled and $2 to go to the doctor under Clinton's plan.

Those are among the wealth of details nestled in the fine print of President Clinton's 1,342-page Health Security Plan.

Many features of the sweeping proposal for restructuring the $900 billion U.S. health system have been known and widely discussed for weeks — for example, Clinton's proposed 75-cent tax increase on cigarettes. The current 24-cent federal excise tax on each pack would climb to 99 cents on Oct. 1, 1994.

But Clinton's health reforms would exact a price from every other form of tobacco, too. Small cigars, now taxed at one-tenth of a penny, would be hit with a 3.9-cent levy.

Big, fancy cigars — the kind Clinton himself likes to chew on but not light up — would be taxed at up to 12.4 cents apiece.

There would be a 35-fold increase in the tax on smokeless tobacco. The 2.7-cent tax on those 1.2-ounce tins would climb to 96.4 cents.

Roll-your-own tobacco would be taxed for the first time (at $12.50 a pound), and higher levies would be slapped on pipe tobacco and cigarette papers, too.

In another area, if families fudged their income to qualify for subsidies on their health premiums, states could hit them with penalties of $2,000 — or three times more than the amount of their ill-gotten discount.

The draft Clinton plan that surfaced in September would have let nursing home residents on Medicaid keep $12,000 in assets, up from $2,000 currently. The actual bill simply says states "may" liberalize the eligibility criteria that much.

The president would force people who want to sue a doctor or hospital for malpractice to first submit an affidavit with a written report from a "qualified medical specialist" certifying that the suit had merit.

Elderly and well to do? Medicare beneficiaries with modified adjusted gross incomes above $90,000 for a single person and $115,000 for couples would have to pay 75 percent of the cost of their Part B coverage.

EXPAND: Cities play big-time game of can-you-top-this mists say no.

"Sports as a development tool just does not induce the kind of economic growth that spending that money on other things does," said Robert Baade, an economist at Lake Forest College in Lake Forest, Ill.

The question is part of a broader debate over whether cities and states should give financial inducements to attract companies, such as Alabama's recent package of up to $300 million to land a Mercedes-Benz plant.

This week, the NFL awarded a franchise to Charlotte, N.C., and on Nov. 30 plans to announce a second new team for 1995. Major-league baseball added two teams this year. The National Basketball Association has increased by four teams since 1988, with a fifth to start play in 1995. Five teams have joined the National Hockey League since 1991, including two this season.

Why the growth spurt? Baseball and football have faced antitrust lawsuits and political pressure from municipalities and Congress to expand, even though team owners would rather limit the supply to inflate the value of existing franchises.

Basketball is capitalizing on the popularity of stars like Michael Jordan. Hockey, lacking a major television contract, is trying to market its way out of doldrums; four of the league's five new teams are in California and Florida, two owned by corporate heavies, Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. and Walt Disney Co.

Finally, sports TV revenue is declining, and expansion fees help ease the blow. Entry payments to current owners range from $32.5 million for the latest NBA franchises to $140 million for the NFL newcomers — nearly nine times the price when football last expanded in 1976.

"If the outlook of television revenue was not as positive as it was, an alternative source of generating money is expansion," said Steven Matt, who advises prospective franchises for the consulting firm Arthur Andersen & Co. in Dallas.

While pro sports offer intangibles such as civic pride and bragging rights as a big league town, economics is trickier, especially when public money is spent on stadiums.

Some economists say the addition of a pro team simply reshuffles local spending, rather than adding money. In other words, people who buy football tickets cut out other entertainment expenses.

Also, much money generated by pro sports goes to team owners, vendors and players who take it out of the region. Another argument is sports takes from other business investments with better long-term potential than a football team that plays a maximum 10 home games a year.

In a forthcoming study, Baade concludes that only one of 47 U.S. cities with a professional sports team or stadium from 1959 to 1988 — Indianapolis — registered statistically significant personal income growth as a result of the investment.

Three cities showed a decrease because of the sports investment, according to the study, to be published by the nonprofit Heartland Institute in Detroit.

Equally dismal are assessments of the effect of stadium construction on city finances. In a 1990 study of 14 stadiums, Pepperdine University economist Dean Baim concluded that municipally owned facilities generated a net loss of taxpayer wealth after including fixed costs such as debt payments and foregone property taxes.

The new Charlotte franchise, called the Carolina Panthers, hopes to avoid some of the pitfalls.

For one, the city and state are spending $57 million to buy the land for a new 72,000-seat stadium, relatively modest by today's standards. The $160 million stadium will be paid for privately — $100 million from citizens buying season ticket rights and the rest raised by team owners.

Aristide seeks total embargo of Haiti

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — The deposed president of Haiti called on the United Nations Thursday to impose a total trade embargo on his country to force its military rulers to resign and said he would not return there or ask Parliament to approve an amnesty for them until they had surrendered power.

But at United States urging, the Security Council is expected to move cautiously over imposing new sanctions on Haiti, both to allow more time for a negotiated settlement and because of the devastating effect a complete economic blockade could have on what is already one of the world's poorest countries, diplomats said.

Under the terms of a United Nations-brokered settlement signed in July by the Haitian president, the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide, and the country's military ruler, Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, Aristide was supposed to return to Port-au-Prince tomorrow after Cedras and other junta leaders had handed over power to Prime Minister Robert Malval.

But the junta has refused to resign, and the Security Council 10 days ago reimposed the oil and arms embargo it had issued on Haiti earlier this year but lifted after the settlement was signed. The United States, Britain, France and Canada are among countries that have sent warships to Haitian waters to enforce the embargo.

Aristide also did his own cause little good in his General Assembly address by calling for Taiwan's admission to the United Nations, a move certain to infuriate China, which has a veto on Security Council decisions.

In an emotional address spoken in French, with occasional remarks in his native Creole, and at a news conference afterwards, Aristide said repeatedly that he is ready to return home but only after Cedras has given up power.

Analysts: Sugar is key to NAFTA battle

MEXICO CITY (NYT) — After years of discussion, the prospects for free trade in North America may hinge on this arcane question: will Mexicans decide to sweeten their soft drinks with corn syrup instead of sugar, and then try to export the extra sugar north?

As the U.S. Congress prepares to vote on the North American Free Trade Agreement next month, Mexico is coming under heavy pressure from American lobbyists, legislators, and government officials to promise in writing that the sugar will not be shipped north.

In the balance are a dozen or more members of the House of Representatives who might then be willing to vote for the treaty, possibly insuring its passage.

Mexican soft-drink makers dismiss as unfounded the fears among American sugar producers that, like their counterparts in the United States and other countries, the Mexicans might switch to so-called high fructose sweeteners.

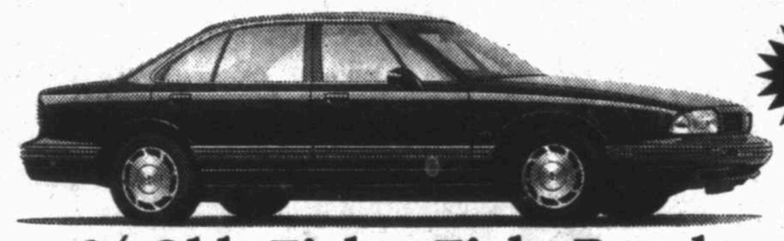

Soft-drink makers in Mexico say that the country's famous sweet tooth is likely to prove more powerful than the incentive they might have to turn from costly refined sugar to the less expensive corn sweeteners.

American sugar producers say, however, that such a switch would enable Mexico to flood the highly protected U.S. sugar market with the sugar it had left over.

"There are more votes that would come to the agreement if we could do something about sugar than all the other issues combined," said Rep. Jim Kolbe, an Arizona Republican who is a leading supporter of the agreement.

FBI reviews claim that man warned of trade center plot

NEW YORK (NYT) — The FBI is reviewing the allegations of an informer who said after the World Trade Center explosion that he had warned law-enforcement agents of a plot to build a bomb, and that if they had worked with him, they would have prevented the blast, officials said.

But some officials disputed important parts of the informant's account Thursday, saying that conversations with him took place half a year before the attack on the trade center, and months before the bomb was actually built.

The comments of the informer, Emad A. Salem, are in transcripts of telephone conversations with the police and FBI agents that Salem secretly recorded.

In the transcripts, Salem is quoted as saying that the bombing could have been foiled but for an FBI supervisor's rejection of a plan to have him work with the plotters building the bomb, then substitute harmless powder.

Clinton declares fire disaster, deploys aides

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — President Clinton declared fire-ravaged portions of Southern California a disaster area Thursday, opening the way for federal assistance to victims.

Clinton dispatched Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt and federal emergency chief James Lee Witt to California to coordinate the government's aid response.

The president, speaking to reporters in the White House Rose Garden, said his announcement followed a "heart-rending" conversation he had hours earlier with Gov. Pete Wilson while more than a dozen large fires continued to blaze across the southern part of the state.

Flames whipped by hot desert winds roared across dry brush, destroying or damaging more than 500 homes, injuring more than two dozen firefighters and charring more than 100,000 acres, fire officials said.

Some of the fires were deliberately set, and at least one person was in custody in connection with a blaze near Pasadena in the community of Altadena.

The dry winds diminished overnight and were replaced by cooler, moister breezes blowing ashore from the Pacific Ocean. Weary firefighters worked during the lull setting small fires to create firebreaks in the path of the wildfires.

U.S. Marines worked with coroner's officials Thursday in the coastal enclave of Laguna Beach, searching for victims in more than 100 houses that burned in the firestorm.

The wildfires included a 26,000-acre blaze that started Tuesay in suburban Ventura County and continued burning Thursday in the Santa Monica Mountains near the city of Malibu, threatening homes in the hills and coastal canyons.

On Thursday morning, authorities in Orange County, south of Los Angeles, were urging residents in the upscale Coto de Caza area to leave their homes as a precaution.

Another fire in Orange County burned hundreds of expensive homes in the oceanfront colony of Laguna Beach, in nearby Laguna Canyon and the expensive Emerald Bay area, then raced across miles of brush to threaten a housing tract near the University of California at Irvine. Yet another fire damaged at least 30 homes in Anaheim Hills and Villa Park.

A Riverside County blaze scorched more than 21,000 acres near the community of Winchester, destroying at least 100 buildings.

The 5,500-acre Altadena fire was still burning out of control in steep, inaccesible terrain, after destroying more than 100 homes worth an estimated $11.5 million, said Los Angeles County Fire Inspector Clark Pierson.

Committee may move gun bill into fast lane for passage

WASHINGTON (NYT) — A House committee is expected to move the Brady Bill onto a fast track to passage today after Democratic leaders this week abandoned any hopes of passing the gun control measure within a comprehensive crime bill.

Left in the slow lane will be such divisive proposals as expanding the death penalty and limiting appeals for death-row inmates — two provisions that have helped defeat three previous comprehensive crime bills.

"Once and for all, the Brady Bill will be on the president's desk before we get out of here in November," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., during Thursday's meeting of the House Judiciary Committee.

In a letter to the committee, White House budget director Leon E. Panetta said President Clinton also wants the bill passed before the winter adjournment. "It is time for us to act without delay," Panetta said.

The committee Thursday passed Clinton's $3.4 billion plan to hire up to 50,000 new police officers in the next six years.

The Brady Bill would impose a national five-day waiting period on handgun purchases.

Clintons offer new health plan as sure cure

BALTIMORE (AP) — Doubts will give way to support once Americans learn what's in his revamped health-system overhaul, President Clinton suggested Thursday.

"It begins with you knowing about it. Please help us," the president told a crowded auditorium audience at Johns Hopkins University, first stop as he and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton set out to sell the plan. Medical students in white coats lined up along the sides.

Mrs. Clinton — the president's principal health-care adviser — conceded that the legislation faces a difficult journey in Congress. "This debate will be a vigorous one. There's a lot at stake," she said.

"We want people to become informed in order to rebut the kinds of attacks, the misinformation, the advertising campaigns that will be stirred up in the next months," Mrs. Clinton said.

'It begins with you knowing about it. Please help us.'. . .to provide 'health care that is always there. . .really there. . .'

— President Clinton

Public opinion polls have shown that support for the plan has dropped off since Clinton presented a broad outline in a nationally televised speech five weeks ago.

On Capitol Hill Thursday, some lawmakers complained about the plan's potential costs as well as the idea of creating new entitlements that would be tough to hold in check.

"It is not possible to cut back on entitlements," said Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I. "Anyone who says, 'We'll see how it works and cut back if necessary' is living in a never-never land."

Another senator, Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan of New York, said as many as 100 million Americans would be forced to pay higher premiums if the plan is approved.

Health Secretary Donna Shalala, testifying before Moynihan's Finance Committee, did not dispute Moynihan's estimate. But she added, "The president's plan does provide a peace of mind that no actuary can price."

Later, aide Ken Thorpe said roughly 71 million Americans might pay more at the start. But he said that in the long run nearly 70 percent would pay less or the same as now, assuming the Clinton plan would hold down increases in overall health costs.

Clinton continued the pitch for the health-care plan at a political rally in New York for the city's Democratic mayor, David Dinkins, saying his program would provide "health care that is always there. . .really there when people show up the next day."

He said for the program to work would require partnerships between cities and the federal government. "We must still have the clinics in the cities," Clinton said. "We must still make sure the great hospitals can prosper and provide care."

Clinton, in Baltimore, declared that "100 percent of the people benefit from this plan."

Pluto's strange orbit caused by gravity dance, scientist says

NEW YORK (AP) — What made Pluto's orbit so bizarre? A scientist is proposing it was a gravitational dance with Neptune back when the solar system was still forming.

Neptune could have pulled Pluto out of a fairly circular orbit and put it into the more egg-shaped path it follows today, the scientist says in her study.

Pluto's orbit is unusual because the other known planets follow almost circular paths. Pluto's path is so distorted that although it is the outermost planet for most of its 248-year journey around the Sun, it periodically cuts inside of Neptune's orbit before going back out again.

Collisions are avoided because the two planets orbit in a lockstep that keeps them away from each other.

Pluto's orbit is also unusual in that it is markedly tilted in comparison to the orbits of the other planets.

The reason for Pluto's orbit has long been a mystery. Some have suggested Pluto is an escaped moon of Neptune, or that it alone survived while many similar objects were destroyed or hurled away by Neptune's gravity.

The latest proposal is presented in last Thursday's issue of the journal Nature by Renu Malhotra of the Lunar and Planetary Institute in Houston.

"I'd say it looks pretty good," commented Scott Tremaine, a professor of physics and astronomy at the University of Toronto in Ontario, Canada.

He said it was the first explanation for Pluto's orbit he had heard that "really sounds like it might have the ring of truth about it."

Malhotra's scenario takes place more than 4 billion years ago, as the planets were in the final stages of forming out of a huge, whirling disc of dust and gas.

Pluto started out in a relatively circular orbit beyond Neptune's orbit, Malhotra suggested. Then, Neptune's orbit began to expand because of gravitational interactions with objects called planetesimals, small bodies left over from the planet-building process.

As Neptune wandered farther from the Sun, its gravity began to tug on the tiny Pluto .

Unlikely drug seen as treatment for addiction

By Sandra Blakeslee
N.Y. Times News Service

Driven by a deep sense of frustration that efforts to cure drug addiction are going nowhere, federal researchers are testing a bizarre, mind- altering drug called ibogaine as a possible new treatment for cocaine and heroin addiction.

The drug, drawn from the roots of a West African shrub, has been tried on only 60 people. But several doctors and patients say that the compound works wonders, often banishing symptoms of withdrawal and craving for months if not years. Intrigued and at the same time skeptical, researchers have decided to see if the drug works as well as its supporters claim.

Their work with ibogaine has opened the door to a new theory of how the brain becomes addicted to substances like heroin, cocaine, nicotine and alcohol.

The theory, which runs counter to current models of drug dependency, suggests that addiction is rooted in the cerebellum, the area of the brain where the connections for motor coordination, memory and dreams meet, and that it involves the same kind of ingrained conditioning that informs learning to walk in early childhood.

Ibogaine advocates claim that a single dose of ibogaine taps into this critical brain circuit and banishes withdrawal symptoms and drug cravings, sometimes for extensive periods.

But scientists who are familiar with the drug urge caution. "At this point, there is no credible scientific evidence that ibogaine cures addiction," said Dr. Herbert Kleber, a psychiatrist and director of the division of substance abuse at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. "All the evidence is anecdotal and not based on carefully controlled scientific studies."

Nevertheless, since every effort to find a cure for cocaine addiction has so far failed, "it is appropriate to look at any promising agent to see if it works," Kleber said. "It would be foolish to rule anything out."

And, indeed, driven by this sense of frustration and a congressional mandate to seek effective treatments for drug abuse, federal researchers are taking a close look at ibogaine. In the last year the National Institute of Drug Abuse has sponsored 18 animal studies on the compound. And in August, the Food and Drug Administration decided to let researchers begin limited testing of the drug in humans. At least three clinical trials are planned.

"The FDA recognizes drug-abuse disorders as being lethal disorders with no good current therapy," said Dr. Curtis Wright, a medical officer at the agency. "Right now we don't have any other candidate drug that looks as good as ibogaine. At least we have a group of patients and doctors who say this stuff works."

Used in pubertal initiation rites in Gabon, ibogaine induces a powerful altered state for at least 48 hours, during which young people are said to come into contact with a universal ancestor called Bwiti.

In 1962, when psychedelic drugs were newly popular in the United States, a group of 20 recreational drug users, including a young heroin addict named Howard Lotsof, heard about the drug and decided to try it.

Report: Smog hits children hardest

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Air pollution poses a greater health threat to children than to adults, and current air quality standards would fail to protect children even if they were met, according to a report released by an environmental group.

Researchers with the Natural Resources Defense Council conducted a two-year review of the latest medical studies and concluded that Southern California children are highly at risk for long-term health effects from smog exposure.

"Because of their higher breathing rates and their higher activity levels, children receive greater doses of air pollution," said Veronica Kun, chief author of the NRDC report that was released Wednesday. "This long-term, repeated exposure during childhood may lead to chronic health problems later in life."

The report criticizes federal, state and local air quality agencies for failing to develop comprehensive clean air plans that will protect children, and for lacking the political will to impose rules outlined in the plans that have been adopted.

Jim Lents, executive officer of the South Coast Air Quality Management District, said that air quality officials have not lost their resolve to clean up the air, but they have modified their approach because of the sagging economy.

"I think there has developed in maybe the last year and a half considerable concern over the jobs (loss) and business retention issues here that are maybe overshadowing the health concerns," Lents said. "I think we've tried to respond without giving up the basic goal of clean air."

In announcing their findings, NRDC officials were joined by leading pediatricians who called for greater efforts to set air quality health standards that take young children and sensitive groups, such as the elderly and asthma sufferers, into account.

"We've become used to this idea that, 'Well, the air is unhealthy, so what?' " said Harvey Karp, Chairman of the Southern California Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics' Committee on Environmental Health.

"But we need to recognize that this insult to the lungs is going on day after day, and it has lasting effects," Karp said. "It's time for a review of the health standards which were set 20 years ago. The new studies show that the standards don't provide adequate protections."

Lents said air quality officials need to continually review medical studies and be prepared to revise emissions standards.

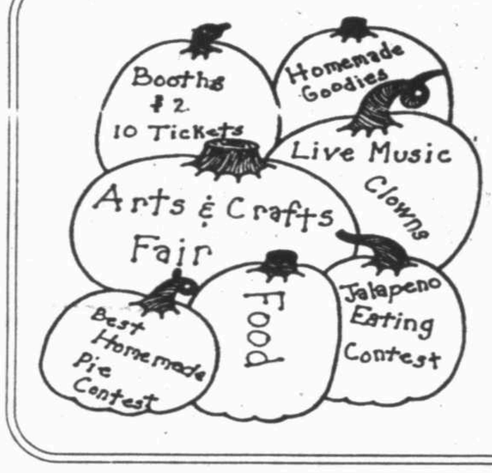

"I think the concept that children are at much greater risk to smog has worried all of us, and it is one of the key reasons why everybody supports getting rid of smog," Lents said.

The NRDC report estimates that 2.5 million pre-adolescent children living in Southern California breathe unhealthful air in a region that has posted an average of 95 smog alerts a year for the past three years.

It notes that the region needs to reduce hydrocarbon emissions by 85 percent and oxides of nitrogen emissions by 65 percent to meet federal clean air standards. But even if those standards are attained, recent studies show that pollution levels still would pose a threat to the very young.

The report provides a check list of actions parents can take to protect their children including monitoring smog reports in the media, knowing when smog levels are highest in their neighborhoods.

It suggests that parents plan outdoor activities when smog levels are lowest, and watch children carefully for signs of labored breathing or chest discomfort and curtailing their activities during smog episodes.

One-armed ball team: 'These guys can play'

By Dan Sewell
AP Sports Writer

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — The easiest part was coming up with a team name: "One-Arm Bandits."

And the hardest?

"The hardest part was just coming out here to play," recalled Gustavo Berdugo.

He plays for a fast-pitch softball club with 15 players who have only one arm. The only handicap for players of the opposing teams in their league is getting caught by surprise if they aren't ready for the Bandits' quick bats and fielding.

"These guys can play some ball," said Alex Valero, moments after his team was beaten by the One-Arm Bandits, 17-7. "It's not like we were overconfident. We had heard about them."

The Bandits were 1-2 after three games, coming off a 6-5 loss Oct. 24 in the Cuban American Softball League.

Won-lost records are secondary, though. Their season became successful when they took the field for their first game and proved they could compete with full-bodied players.

"It was a big challenge," said Berdugo, 42, a Colombia native who lost an arm at age 9 in a New Year's Eve fireworks accident; other players' limb losses range in dates from birth to just a year ago.

"Some people thought I was crazy starting a team like this," said Victor Rosario, born without a right arm. Rosario, 38, has played softball on regular teams for years. "A team like this is something I've wanted to do for a long time."

A security specialist at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital, Rosario has seen people suffering the trauma of a sudden loss of a limb.

"I thought it would be good therapeutically, recreational and uplifting for people who were trying to get their lives back in shape," Rosario said. "So I said, 'Let me try this and see what happens.' "

Rosario began recruiting players in March. He already knew a few, such as Roscoe Jones, who works for Dade County Corrections, and more came to him after notices in newspapers. He even recruited one player after spotting him in a shopping mall.

Besides the 15 one-armed players, he has four full-bodied players. One plays shortstop, one center field, one pitcher and the fourth usually only pinch-hits.

They practiced much of the summer, played scrimmage games and in a three-team tournament, and opened league play Oct. 3.

"It's fun, but I really came out to do it for kids," said Jones, 33. "I want them to see you don't have to sit back and feel sorry for yourself. I hope kids see us and say, 'I can do it!' "

Jones suffered severe injuries during a football game for his Waycross, Ga., high school team in his senior year. His right arm was amputated, ending his dreams of a collegiate football career 15 years ago.

Two players, both former soldiers in Venezuela, lost their arms only a year ago during civil unrest in their homeland.

"I felt this team would be good for me psychologically," said Edwin Barrios, 30, who lost his arm to a grenade.

Cesar Mera, 30, injured in an army truck accident, said he has little baseball experience.

"Soccer is my game. But I saw him playing," Mera said, pointing to Rosario, "and I thought, 'Why not me?' "

Jones enjoyed recounting the stunned looks on the opposition faces in the Bandits' first game when they pulled off two double plays.

The first was a third-to-second-to-first double play started by Rosario, who stabbed a hard groundball with the glove on his left hand, tucked the ball and glove against his right shoulder, deftly removed the ball with his left hand, then whirled and fired to second.

Most of the Bandits use 23-ounce bats, several ounces lighter than those preferred by two-armed players.

"It's gone great, being that most of the other teams have played together for years," said Rosario.

Most baseball fans are familiar with New York Yankees pitcher Jim Abbott, who threw a no-hitter this season. Abbott has no right hand.

But the Bandits' spiritual hero is Pete Gray, who lost his right arm as a youth but made it to the major leagues during the war year of 1945. He played outfield, appearing in 77 games for a third-place St. Louis Browns team.

Gray heard of the team from relatives in the Miami area. Gray, 76, has been ill, but relatives said he was pleased and touched when told of the Bandits.

Rosario hopes to take his team to Gray's Nanticoke, Pa., hometown for an exhibition game, "where he could come out and see us play."

Rosario's team motto is: "The Will Is Stronger Than The Limitations." It's picked up a sponsor, Central Orthopedics, and has so many inquiries from would-be players Rosario hopes to start a second team.

"I want to expand this as far as it can go," he said.

Gourmet chef once cooked for mafia, now cooks for FBI

By Rick Hampson
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — "The Mafia Cookbook" makes it clear why the standup guys are a dying breed. If the feds don't get them, cholesterol will.

As presented by author Joseph "Joe Dogs" Iannuzzi — an underworld Paul Prudhomme who started out cooking for the Gambino crime family and wound up serving the FBI — the Mafia's menu is as lethal as its hitmen.

Joe Dogs claims to have learned his craft as saucier at a swanky restaurant in Cleveland. One day he stole a car and drove to New York, where he worked in various restaurants, cooking food and making book.

He became friendly with some mobsters, and says he cooked his way into the Gambino family one night in 1974 with a meal of savory stuffed artichokes, Sicilian style; breaded and sauteed steak and greens; and zabaglione, a desert prepared with egg yolks, sugar, marsala wine and fresh fruit.

Mobsters, he found, "know what they like, and when they like it they eat all of it. And then more." They eat all the time, before crimes and after them. "When there are no crimes," Joe Dogs adds, "they eat while waiting for them to happen."

"Any meal may be their last," he notes, "so it better be a good one."

But Joe Dogs was as deadly with a stove as any mobster with a .38; his larder had more butter, cream, and beef than a dairy farm.

Occasionally he'd serve something relatively healthy, such as cicoria insalata (dandelion greens salad); more typical is his recipe for shrimp scampi, which calls for a half pound of butter and two cups of sour cream.

"When serving guests with more normal appetites, just keep the sauce on the side," he wisely advises his readers.

Similarly, Joe Dogs' baked pork chops Philadelphia ("a man's man's kind of dinner I'd picked up from a Philly mobster vacationing in Miami") calls for four, inch-thick chops, as well as a half stick of butter, 1¼ cups heavy cream and several shots of cognac and white wine.

His recipe for mussels in light sauce requires 10 pounds of fresh mussels. His osso buco is made with veal flanks 1½ inches thick. His veal marsala, prepared en flambe, starts with two sticks of butter and gets progressively richer.

The Mafia Chef had one problem: Although mafiosi are big eaters, most are unimaginative ones; not meat-and-potatoes men, perhaps, but certainly veal-and-pasta ones.

"But that didn't stop me from experimenting," Joe Dogs writes. "I'd never tell the crew what I was cooking if it wasn't a recipe from the old country. They wouldn't have eaten it (and they might have shot me)."

A volatile killer named Tommy Agro, the author's link to the Gambino family, was a particularly touchy diner. "When TA was nervous, I liked to stay traditional," Joe Dogs explains. "It only upset him more when I experimented in the kitchen."

Fittingly, the turning point in Joe Dogs' criminal life came in a kitchen — Don Ritz's Pizzeria on Singer Island, Fla.

Possibly because Joe Dogs was three months late with some loan shark payments, Agro and his thugs beat him to a pulp. Tommy was about to personally cut off Joe's right hand with a meat cleaver when the restaurant owner's wife walked in and screamed, scaring off the attackers.

The beating drove Joe Dogs to the FBI. Soon he was spying on his old friends and cooking his new ones steak au poivre — with 10-ounce cuts of filet mignon, because they also liked to eat.

At the end of the book Joe Dogs explains that he is in the federal Witness Protection Program, somewhere in "wahoo land," eating in restaurants that advertize "Italian night" and serve macaroni and ketchup instead of pasta.

But that apparently changed earlier this month, when he flew to New York in hopes of appearing on David Letterman's "Late Show" and was expelled from the witness program for breaching security — even though Letterman canceled his appearance.

"What am I gonna do now?" he asked in a telephone interview. "Well, I can always cook."

"The Mafia Cookbook" is published by Simon & Schuster.

Bilingual educators build future bridges

Bilingual educators in Midland for the 21st Conference of the Texas Association for Bilingual Education are discussing topics of vital concern: strategies to use to make them better teachers and how to teach all students who face the problem of living in a world of two languages. The conference on bilingual education touches topics of concern for all Americans — topics that will become increasingly important for the nation's future.

The conference, one of the largest in terms of attendance in many years, will bring together bilingual educators from throughout the state in order that they may discuss mutual concerns, problems and teaching strategies. One of the major topics to be discussed is "stress due to testing," according to Julie Luna, an English-as-a-second-language teacher in Culberson Independent School District.

Midland, long known for its attentiveness to education, is proud to be the host city for the Texas Association of Bilingual Education Conference. The problems facing bilingual education can be resolved if all concerned work toward a common goal.

The bilingual educator is helping to bridge the language gap and as that gap disappears, society in general will benefit.

We extend a hearty welcome to all those present for the conference. We're glad you're here!

Safe trick or treating still can be enjoyed

The witching hour approaches and Saturday or Sunday evening, thousands of "ghosts, goblins and things that go bump in the night" will be out on Midland's streets to conduct the annual "trick or treat" ritual.

While the Halloween observance has fallen into disfavor with a segment of the American population in recent years, there are still literally millions of youngsters across the nation who go out "trick or treating" while others attend school carnivals, block parties or church festivals. As a result, motorists should pay particular attention while driving down dark streets and, particularly, through neighborhoods.

Fortunately, the attention directed to the holiday by various school and civic groups have helped publicize the dangers inherent in the Halloween observance and various medical facilities help to "screen" the goodies trick or treaters collect to ensure that pins, needles, glass, tacks, poison or other foreign objects placed inside Halloween treats by society's real "monsters" do not turn the observance into a human tragedy.

Halloween can remain a fun observance for those who wish to participate in it, as long as adults exercise the responsibility to guard their children against its dangers.

Have a safe and enjoyable Halloween!

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Oct. 29, the 302nd day of 1993. There are 63 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 29, 1929, "Black Tuesday" descended upon the New York Stock Exchange. Prices collapsed amid panic selling and thousands of investors were wiped out as America's Great Depression began.

On this date:

In 1618, Sir Walter Raleigh, the English courtier, military adventurer and poet, was executed in London.

In 1682, the founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, landed at what is now Chester, Penn.

In 1901, President McKinley's assassin, Leon Czolgosz, was electrocuted.

In 1911, American newspaperman Joseph Pulitzer died in Charleston, S.C.

In 1923, the Republic of Turkey was proclaimed.

In 1940, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson drew the first number, 158, in America's first peacetime military draft.

In 1947, former first lady Frances Cleveland Preston died in Baltimore at age 83.

In 1956, during the Suez Canal crisis, Israel launched an invasion of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

JACK ANDERSON

Guess where your tax dollars go?

WASHINGTON — Its own chairman calls it a "little-known, arcane regulatory commission." But the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission spends money as if it were in the bureaucratic big leagues.

Anderson

The commission may be asking the federal government to fork over an extra $80 million — or $67,000 per FERC bureaucrat — for a new office complex here. Yet the agency has only 1,200 employees and an annual $146.5 million budget. FERC officials argue that this new complex — including a $91,000 fitness center — is a necessity.

Christine McGue, FERC's newly appointed executive director, cites other concerns: "slow and cumbersome" elevators; the offices lack "zone temperature controls," so some are less comfortable; and the use of microwaves at lunch starts "blowing fuses everywhere."

McGue told our associate Andrew Conte that plans for FERC's new building will provide "the best bang for the buck for taxpayers." But FERC, which is responsible for setting rates for the transportation and sale of natural gas and electricity, is already foreseeing budget overruns.

It requested $5 million to $7 million in "above standard costs" — Some of this extra money is earmarked for essential computer centers and hearing rooms. But there's also a frill factor: $64,000 for two locker rooms (in addition to the fitness center); nine smoking lounges for $31,000 total; five private kitchen and private bathrooms for the convenience of the agency's commissioners at a cost of $83,000 total; two escalators for $90,000; and $270,000 for a day-care center.

No one has ever accused FERC of frugality. When the agency built a day-care center for its current site in 1989, it cost over $1 million but initially only enrolled six children. A 1992 investigation by the Government Operations Subcommittee on Environment, Energy and Natural Resources, headed by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., determined that FERC's problems with wasting money "appear to stem in large part from an attitude by administrative managers at FERC that the commission is somehow a 'special' entity."

FERC also fits into a larger picture of federal office space profligacy. We reported earlier this year that while the nation is already awash in 400 million square feet of unoccupied office space, the federal government has $11.4 billion of office construction underway. In cities where commercial office vacancy rates are as high as 30 percent, the federal government continues to fuel a building boom in a bust market.

Should GSA decide against McGue and FERC, the agency's lawyers have already drawn up a wish list for renovations to the old offices. They have asked for an expanded law library that should be next door to their offices. They fret that if it's moved to another floor, they would have to walk too far to gain access.

FERC's moving request comes against the backdrop of Vice President Al Gore's National Performance Review, which is trying to win disciples to the cause of "downsizing." Gore seems to have won few converts at a "little-known, arcane regulatory commission."

BOONDOGGLE OF THE MONTH — An unemployed factory worker was recently retrained to become a massage therapist. Here's the rub: It was done with $16,700 of taxpayer money under something called the Trade Adjustment Assistance program, which was designed to help workers deal with the threat of imports and global competition.

While the average cost of training each worker is only $4,467, prices can vary. TAA spent $27,617 to help one worker receive a bachelor's degree in ceramics; $16,000 for an experienced laborer to become a chef; and $20,423 for a maintenance worker to receive a master's degree in art education.

CHARLEY REESE

Folks should thank Gonzalez for honesty

There is, believe it or not, a move in Congress to make some slight reforms to the Federal Reserve System.

Alan Greenspan, the chairman of the central bank, naturally is predicting the direst economic consequences if Congress dares meddle with the Fed.

Reese

Of course, the nation has suffered dire economic consequences as a result of the Federal Reserve since the day it was created. That's what central banks do — make a few insiders rich and create dire economic consequences for everyone else.

You should write Rep. Henry Gonzalez, chairman of the House Banking Committee, thank him for being honest and say, "Attaboy, Henry, go get 'em."

What, you might ask, is the Federal Reserve? Well, it is the crown jewel of the Eastern Establishment, a carbon copy with minor cosmetic changes of the central banks of Europe which ripped off people long before a foolish Congress imposed one on us in 1913.

While those who designed the Fed, principally the henchmen of the Rockefellers and Morgans, were careful to make it complicated lest people figure out how they were being taken to the cleaners, the guts of the engine are fairly simple to understand.

The Constitution authorizes Congress to coin money and set its value. Congress could, if it wished, issue money on the good faith and credit of the United States government. That's what Abraham Lincoln did when he found out how much interest the banks wanted to charge the government for loans to finance the civil war.

The trouble with the government issuing its own money — from the bankers' point of view — is that they can't make money on the deal. Consequently they prefer to dupe or bribe governments into creating a central bank.

That's what the Federal Reserve is. It is a central bank — a bank for the government and a bank for the banks. Consequently, it is the Fed, not the government, which issues money. The bills in your wallet are Federal Reserve Notes.

Instead of the government issuing its own money, interest free, it borrows money at interest from the central bank. Well, you might think, that's fair. If the government borrows money from the central bank, it ought to pay interest. But, aha, you don't know where the central bank gets the money it lends to the government. It creates it out of thin air, with the stroke of a computer key. How can the Fed create money out of nothing and then charge interest for it? Because Congress gave it the power.

In short, the government instead of creating its own money interest free, authorizes the central bank to create money and then lend it to the government at interest. As Thomas Alva Edison once pointed out, this is stupid. If the government can issue a bond backed by its faith and credit, it can also issue a dollar bill.

The Fed, by the way, is privately owned — it is not a government agency. There is a Federal Reserve Board made up of seven people appointed by the president to long and staggered terms. The other five members are presidents of the regional reserve banks, whose stock is owned by banks, and whose officers and directors are chosen by banks.

The General Accounting Office cannot even audit the Federal Reserve. The board meetings are closed to the public. That's two of the things Gonzalez wants to modify.

It is this central bank, however, that determines if money is short or loose, whether we have inflation or deflation, high interest or low interest. History shows these decisions are made, not for the benefit of the people, but for the benefit of banking and financial insiders who created the system. In short, the whole scheme is a rip-off of the American people.

School fails on report cards

How much money is being spent this year on mailing out report cards for the elementary school-agers? As tight as Midland Independent School District (MISD) indicates their budget seems to be, couldn't this money be used elsewhere?

Why are these eager and impressionable children being taught that they are not responsible enough to carry home their report cards and return them to school with their parents' signature? How can you instill responsibility in a child if you don't begin at an early age?

How does MISD know for a fact that these report cards are being delivered to the correct address, the correct person or that the mail is not being intercepted before getting to the proper person? Nothing has to be signed and returned for this verification?

Report cards are an important aspect of school in our household. It shows what is being accomplished by the combined efforts of teacher, parent and child. Report cards supposedly went out around Wednesday, Oct. 13th; we received our 6th grader's report card on the 20th. Our 6th grader has been rewarded for her efforts in school, but our 3rd grader has to wait unjustly for his reward because someone in MISD has not been responsible enough to insure this report card is delivered timely or accurately. Yes, we have filled out all the forms the schools have sent home and verified or notified the schools of any changes in a timely manner. For you see, we teach by action in our home. We show responsibility in our actions, therefore we instill responsibility in our children. What is MISD doing?

Rich need to 'join real world'

In response to the letter you published on Oct. 17 about our airport making a bad first impression:

I find it very hard to express any support for building a new airport. If the wealthy businessmen and women of this community are so concerned with impressing outsiders with material things rather than with the good people of our city, then let them pool their money and build one. I for one cannot afford more taxes. It's a daily struggle to house and feed my family as it is. Isn't the federal government putting enough of a tax burden on us without our city government adding to the problem?

If I am going to have to pay additional taxes, why not make it for a worthy cause such as a better education for my children. Our school system could put that money to better use to be sure. The students are forced to share some of their textbooks because there aren't enough to go around. We need more teachers and with better pay. Just to name a few.

If the people of this city are so concerned with first impressions that they forget about what is really important such as our children, the homeless, the sick and the poor, then they need to come out of their glass houses and join the real world. I live here and I for one am NOT impressed!

TV-7 aims lesbians at children

What's the deal?

Just when I thought it was safe to turn on the television, the local CBS affiliate, KOSA Channel 7, aired "Other Mothers." The story line centered around a young man's difficulties he encountered in joining the high school basketball team when his peers and faculty discover that his "parents" are two lesbian women. The program closed with his triumphant entry into a basketball game with his lesbian "parents" cheering him from the stands.

The program did not stop at condoning homosexuals as parents, but also closed with Meredith Baxter, the co-star, recommending two books on the subject of homosexuality for further reading. While most of us condone reading, I'm not convinced most parents would make the study of the homosexual lifestyle and its influence on the family recommended reading to our children. As an aside, I wonder how many young people in the U.S. decided to engage in a homosexual relationship strictly as an attention getting device after watching this program.

What made this program particularly reprehensible is that it was aired at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on a weekday as a children's special. This is a time when most parents should not be home, and those parents that were home would be extremely unlikely to be concerned about what their children were watching, especially a designed-for-children special.

OPENS: Industry 'must be proactive'

(From 1A)

toward the oil industry, according to an API opinion poll, was very negative and discouraging. The report said:

■ 60 percent of Americans don't approve of the job being done by the industry to reduce air pollution.

■ 74 percent believe oil companies would rather pay a fine than clean up the air.

■ 76 percent said they would pay no attention to oil industry views.

■ 64 percent said even more regulation was needed to clean up the air, despite recent clean air legislation.

"While the industry's environmental record has been good, we must get better and do better to improve our credibility. It doesn't matter how much you paint yourself green, it only matters how well you do." said Haddock.

He said the API's program, Strategies for Today's Environmental Partnership (STEP), would help spell out the programs to allow the industry to meet its environmental responsibilities. Among the programs listed for STEP are: management policies for oil companies; a marine spill response corporation; fuels research and environmental performance documentation.

In morning sessions following Haddock's opening remarks, Alan McArthur, vice president Central Environmental Inc., detailed standards for Normally Occurring Radioactive Materials (NORM); and Conoco Director for Safety, Health, Environmental and Regulatory Affairs in Midland Robert Kiker provided a list of oil-field practices that have been both commercially and environmentally sound.

"Some environmental projects can be a win-win situation," Kiker said. "They don't have to put a drag on your authorization for expenditures."

He said the projects implemented by Conoco include:

■ replacing pipelines with fiberglas rather than steel to prevent leaks

■ V-shaped mud pits which resulted in less area and fewer solids

■ chemical containment vessels on the lease

■ a vapor recovery system that can break even on as little as 1 mcf per day

■ landforming with drill cuttings to reduce disposal cost.

Frank Yates, vice president of Yates Petroleum, spoke on environmental problems in New Mexico, and noted that the oil industry had been discriminated against in environmental matters.

He said an independent group had studied bird mortality rates for three months at 28 sites in New Mexico and had found one dead bat. Despite the finding, however, the Fish & Wildlife Department will require the industry to modify equipment along the Peco River to prevent nesting. Yates noted that "birds do die of natural causes."

While environmental groups have suggested that tens of thousands of birds are killed each year by oil-field equipment, Yates said that number is probably closer to 1,700.

An advocate of free-market environmentalism, Yates said about 20 percent of the environmental regulations are obviously right and do not need to be resisted, but that another 20 percent are obviously wrong and need to be strongly resisted. He also noted that 60 percent of the regulations fall into a gray area, and needed to be confronted with facts and possible other alternatives.

In the afternoon sessions, new OSHA and BLM iniatives were discussed by Pat Bradley, area director for OSHA, and Tim Kreager, assistant district manager for BLM.

Wildlife biologist Steve Nelle, USDA Soil Conservation Service in San Angelo, explained to the oil group that several publications available in Austin would help them determine if an area was subjected to endangered species.

Steve Hartmann, director of West Texas Operations for the University Lands System, said attendance at the environmental seminar was 385, up from 360 last year. "This was our best attended seminar to date," Hartmann said. The seminar is co-sponsored by the University Lands System and the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

DIARIES: Senate nears debate

(From 1A)

Packwood has said such information is in the diaries.

Bryan said the writings were "not strictly personal, handwritten diaries" as Packwood contended.

They were transcribed by Packwood's Senate secretary and the senator "told the committee that he was considering using the diaries to write a book," Bryan said.

Bryan's statement infuriated Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, who rose on the floor to attack the reference to possible criminal violations as "almost a prejudgment."

"It seems to me that now that the question has been raised publicly, it ought to be followed up by a charge or it ought to be retracted. This is the kind of news a lot of people like. Nail somebody, particularly a senator," Dole said.

Providing the most comprehensive account of events that led to a committee subpoena for the diaries, Bryan said ethics committee staff was permitted by Packwood this month to review some 5,000 pages of diary entries covering 1969-89.

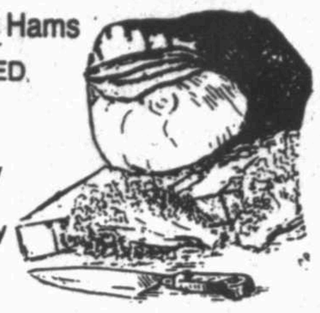

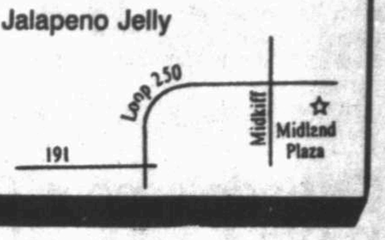

But Packwood stopped cooperating, Bryan said, when the committee counsel "came across information indicating possible misconduct by Sen. Packwood unrelated to the current inquiry" of sexual misconduct and intimidation.

"This information raised questions about a possible violation of one or more laws, including criminal laws," Bryan said, without specifying the potential misconduct.

When Packwood refused to provide copies of the newly discovered material, the committee voted 6-0 to subpoena all of Packwood's diaries from Jan. 1, 1989 to the present — an order the senator defied.

Packwood has said his diary totals 8,200 pages and includes references to the sex lives of a current House Democratic leader and a senator.

Speaking briefly on the Senate floor Thursday, Packwood said, "To ease the mind of anyone concerned ... it is not a sitting senator."

Doris Duke, tobacco heiress, 'richest girl in the world,' dies at 80

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress whose father's fortune made her the "richest girl in the world" and propelled her into an international circle of celebrities, died Thursday. She was 80.

Miss Duke, whose family gave Duke University its name, died of a buildup of fluid in the lungs, resulting in cardiac arrest, said Howard J. Rubenstein, a family spokesman.

Bernard Lafferty, a longtime friend and adviser, and several nurses were with her at her Beverly Hills home, one of five she owned around the country, Rubenstein said. She lived mainly in New Jersey.

Her wealth was estimated this year at $750 million, 110th on Forbes magazine's list of the nation's richest.

Though Miss Duke shunned the media and struggled to protect her privacy, her life was fodder for the gossip columns from the day in 1925 when her father died and left her most of his $300 million estate.

Six decades later, the media attention continued. In 1988, she posted $5 million bail for her friend Imelda Marcos, wife of the late Ferdinand Marcos. Mrs. Marcos was acquitted of federal charges she helped her husband loot the Philippine treasury when he was president.

"Doris Duke epitomized the word friendship," Mrs. Marcos said in the Philippines after learning of her death. "She was a true friend and a beautiful human being whose friendship was pure."

A week after posting bail for Mrs. Marcos, Miss Duke adopted a 35-year-old former belly dancer and Hare Krishna devotee, Charlene Gail "Chandi" Heffner. Miss Duke was 75 at the time and had no children.

By February 1991, Ms. Heffner was persona non grata on Duke property and Miss Duke was quoted as saying the adoption was "the greatest mistake I ever made in my life," Stephanie Mansfield wrote in her 1992 Duke biography entitled "The Richest Girl in the World."

Ms. Heffner subsequently filed a breach-of-contract lawsuit.

Miss Duke was 12 when her father died in 1925 and left the bulk of his $300 million estate to his only child. Most of the Duke millions came from the American Tobacco Co., the Duke Power Co., and real estate investments.

Miss Duke led a sheltered life as a girl. That changed after her father's death and her debut in 1930, when her world travels, romances and escapades became fodder for gossip columnists.

Canada's new NAFTA stance breeds worry

NEW YORK (NYT) — The Clinton administration expressed uneasiness Thursday at the aggressively negative approach the Canadian prime minister-elect, Jean Chretien, is taking toward the North American Free Trade Agreement.

White House spokesman Dee Dee Myers reiterated President Clinton's opposition to renegotiating the trade pact involving the United States, Mexico and Canada and contended that Chretien was not seeking a full-scale reworking of the pact.

A senior administration official said, however, it was not clear what the new Canadian leader, who will take office next week, wanted with regard to revamping the deal.

"Who the hell knows?" the official said. "It's way too early to tell."

Chretien, leader of the left-of-center Liberal Party, has spoken with Clinton and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari since his victory Sunday but said he did not talk about details of his objections to NAFTA with either.

Barring additional controversy, Clinton and Chretien are not scheduled to meet in person until a Pacific-rim trade meeting in Seattle on Nov. 19.

The North American pact would remove almost all governmental barriers and tariffs on trade between the three countries by the end of the decade, creating a massive trading bloc of 360 million people.

Although the Canadian parliament has ratified the treaty, Chretien is holding to the view that its formal approval is incomplete.

"In Canada, no law is effective until proclaimed, so we still have this option," Chretien said Wednesday. He called for changes in NAFTA's definitions of subsidies and dumping and changes in the energy provisions.

2 congressmen from Texas seek Aspin's ouster

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Two Texas Republicans demanded Thursday that Defense Secretary Les Aspin resign for "inexcusable negligence" they contend led to the deaths of Americans in Somalia.

Reps. Bill Archer of Houston and Sam Johnson of Dallas circulated a letter to President Clinton among their House colleagues for signatures. They said 39 had signed by Thursday morning, mostly Republicans.

Archer and Johnson said Aspin turned down urgent requests to send better armor to U.S. troops in Somalia, failed to react to a warning of a Somali attack and called helicopter pilot Michael Durant, seized by the Somalis in the most devastating two days of combat involving Americans, a "detainee" instead of a prisoner of war.

"Aspin's negligence . . . has left troops wounded and led to the loss of American servicemen," Archer said. "I believe Secretary Aspin is guilty of inexcusable negligence in a Somalia policy that put political motivations above the safety of American troops. To the American public, this has been a colossal betrayal of trust."

Contending Aspin's refusal to send more armor was prompted by a "political" decision to avoid letting the public know the Somalia combat was escalating, Archer said Aspin no longer deserves to be "entrusted with the grave responsibilities of this important post."

After an Oct. 3 battle in Somalia that killed 18 Americans, Aspin said he realized he should have made a different decision on the request for equipment.

But Johnson, who was a prisoner of war in Vietnam, said the criticism of Aspin and the Clinton administration goes beyond that battle.

Q. Why do several fire units respond to even the smallest building fire?

A. Every responding unit has a specific purpose at a fire. The first engine makes an attack on the fire; the second engine supplies water from the hydrant. A third unit is the rescue unit, which supplies air tanks. All vehicles supply manpower and equipment essential to fighting and controlling fire.

Questions about emergency medical services and firefighting should be sent to Lights & Siren, P.O. Box 1152, Midland, 79702-1152.

New stores

Rex Stores Corp. announced this week it will open 21 new stores between now and the end of January of 1994, and three of them will be in Midland, Odessa and San Angelo. Officials said the openings in West Texas are the result of a major expansion that includes stores in 13 other states. The company currently operates 112 stores in 20 states, primarily in the Midwest and Southwest. A press statement said Rex stores feature a wide variety of consumer electonics and appliances, including televisions, camcorders, VCRs, stereo speakers, receivers, cassette decks, compact disc players, car audio systems, washing machines, dryers, dishwashers, refrigerators, freezers, ranges, air conditioners and microwave ovens. The stores are expected to be open by the first day after Thanksgiving to take advantage of the traditional high volume of holiday sales. The locations of the stores were not reported.

Town meeting

A town meeting to discuss crime and other city concerns Thursday evening attracted only a handful of interested citizens. City Council representative Pat Schneider, who called the meeting at the police substation at Midland Park Mall, and police Lt. Jeff Marugg both expressed disappointment at the low turnout. Police officers discussed how the Police Department works, recent national accreditation, community-oriented policing, bicycle patrols and juvenile vandalism.

Board names Midlander to Heritage Hall of Fame

Staff report

Midland rancher, historian and author J. Evetts Haley has been selected for induction into the State Fair of Texas Heritage Hall of Fame in 1994. The announcement, listing all seven of next year's inductees, was made this week.

Frank K. Cahoon of Midland, who serves on the board of directors for the Heritage Hall of Fame, said Haley was chosen because of his contributions to ranching in the state of Texas.

Haley termed the honor "very nice." The prolific historian and author whose literary works include more than 30 books and hundreds of magazine articles dating from the 1920's, will be inducted into the Heritage Hall of Fame at the same time as one of his historical subjects — the late George Washington Littlefield of Austin.

Another of Haley's literary subjects, Col. Charles Goodnight, was inducted into the Heritage Hall of Fame last year, the first year inductees were chosen.

In addition to his writing career, Haley, 92, has three ranches in Texas and Oklahoma. He was inducted into the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City in March of 1990.

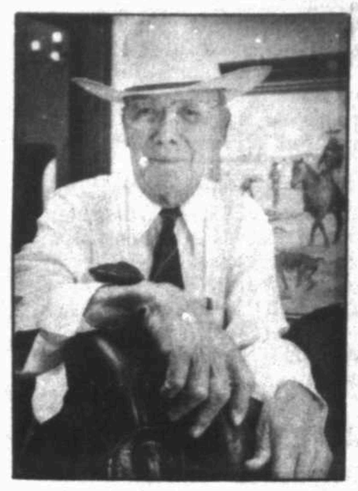

"So he enters the Hall of Fame with two personalities that he has done major works on," noted Cahoon. Those two works are "Charles Goodnight: Cowman & Plainsman" and "George W. Littlefield, Texan."

Cahoon noted that Midland rancher Frank Cowden Jr. was among the nominees last year, and Haley was nominated along with ranchers Clayton Williams Sr. and Clarence Scharbauer Sr., for induction in '94.

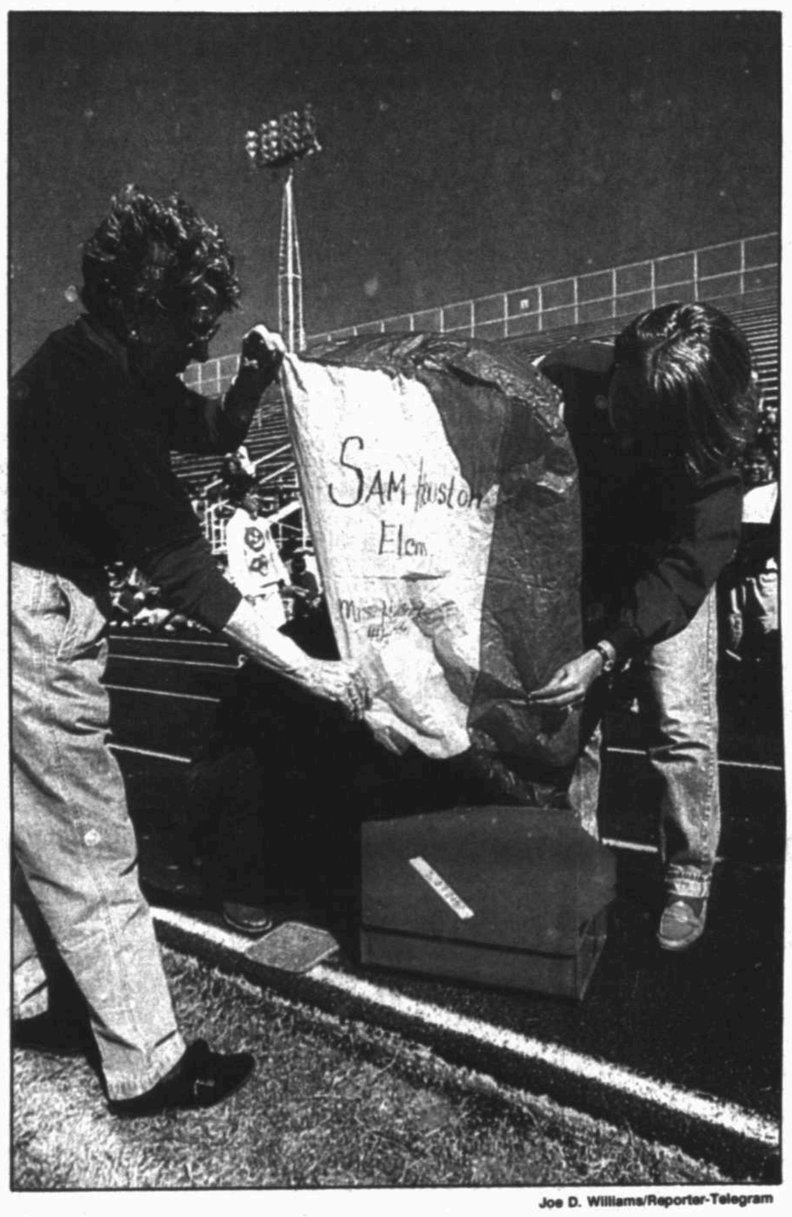

The names of Cowden, Williams and Scharbauer will remain in the list of potential inductees for possible selection at a later date, Cahoon said.

Besides Haley and Littlefield, other '94 inductees include ranching tycoon John B. Armstrong, former president and chief executive officer of the King Ranch; the late Isaac Leonard Ellwood of Colorado City and Lubbock, a barbed-wire pioneer; boot baron John S. Justin Jr. of Fort Worth, now chairman of the board and CEO of Justin Industries Inc.; the late Robert Lee "Bob" Miers of Del Rio, legendary sheep rancher; and the late Christopher Columbus "C.C." Slaughter of Dallas, who once controlled a million acres of ranch land in the Midland-Big Spring region.

Although induction is planned for the fall of 1994 at the State Fair of Texas, Cahoon said he has asked the board of directors of the Nita Stewart Haley Memorial Library, named for Haley's first wife, to honor Haley for the recognition with a function prior to next year's event.

Hutchison team asks to present her side of case

■ Senator won't appear unless lawyers are allowed to present her side to panel.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison will not voluntarily appear before a grand jury unless her attorneys can present their side of the case to the panel, her defense team said Thursday.

Attorney Dick DeGuerin of Houston asked State District Judge Robert Perkins to allow him to give a half-day presentation to the 12-member grand jury.

He accused prosecutors of misleading the panel in its investigation of Mrs. Hutchison's tenure as state treasurer. Mrs. Hutchison was indicted last month on charges of official misconduct, but the charges were dismissed because of a technicality. The investigation has been taken up by another grand jury.

DeGuerin also asked Perkins to explain to the new grand jury state laws concerning the conduct of public officials.

"We're not asking for special treatment, only fair treatment," he said.

The Travis County District Attorney's office said Mrs. Hutchison was asking for privileges that no one else is allowed before a grand jury.

First Assistant District Attorney Steve McCleery said grand juries only determine whether there is enough evidence to bring someone to trial.

"What they (Mrs. Hutchison's attorneys) are trying to do is turn the grand jury presentation into a trial, That's not what it's for. That's what jury trials are for," he said.

Prosecutors insisted that they also

Defense lawyers: Reno, Sessions may be called as witnesses in Davidian trial

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno and former FBI Director William Sessions likely will be subpoenaed to testify at the trial of David Koresh followers accused of killing four federal agents, lawyers say.

The federal trial, set for Jan. 10 in San Antonio, stems from last February's botched rain on the Branch Davidians' compound near Waco by agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"You can assume that we'll call many of the major players: Janet Reno, the ATF people, Bill Sessions, absolutely," Rocket Rosen, an attorney for defendants Kevin Whitecliff and Livingstone Fagan, said in Thursday's San Antonio Express-News.

Eleven defendants face trial on charges of murder and conspiracy to murder in the deaths of four ATF agents. Some of the defendants also are charged with possession of firearms during the commission of a violent crime, and with lesser crimes.

The murder charges carry mandatory life sentences without parole, attorneys said.

Koresh and more than 85 followers,

Program urges public to join forces with law enforcement

Staff report

A community awareness program aimed at encouraging the public to join forces with local law enforcement agencies by reporting crime and suspicious behavior has been established for Midland and Odessa.

The program, developed and underwritten by Southwestern Bell Mobile Services (SBMS), is called Cellular on Patrol (C.O.P.)

The law enforcement agencies involved are the Midland and Odessa police departments, the Midland and Ector County sheriff's departments and the Department of Public Safety.

Media co-sponsors are the Reporter-Telegram, the Odessa American, Newman Outdoor Advertising, KWES-TV and KNFM Radio.

The 12-month campaign will feature a C.O.P. Membership Kit made available to the general public free of charge, with newspaper, billboard, radio and television public service announcements encouraging all citizens to help "call a stop to crime."

Screening juries: Some Texas judges say it is time for stronger measures

By Mary Ann Roser
N.Y. Times News Service

AUSTIN — Some Texas judges say it's time to screen jurors aggressively to prevent mistrials and the scrapped indictments that shook Harris and Travis counties, including the indictments against U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

"This is kind of a wake-up call," said Tarrant County Criminal District Judge Joe Drago, who took the unusual step of checking the backgrounds of grand jurors he empaneled earlier this month. "Judges need to be very sure everyone is qualified."

Although judges in Dallas County already screen grand jurors, Drago said his wake-up call came last month when he saw what happened in Harris County.

Court officials there discovered that a grand jury foreman had been indicted on a bad-check charge, forcing them to toss out 500 indictments.

A similar misdemeanor charge against a grand juror in Travis County jeopardized 463 indictments besides those of Hutchison, two of her aides and the indictment of convicted murderer Kenneth McDuff, who is charged in an-Honorary pallbearers will be Marlon Cook, Billy Rasco, Mike Syler and Arnold Dixon.

Memorials may be made to the Second Baptist Church in Midland or to a favorite charity.

POLICE REPORTS

Theft

A former Midland resident was arrested by Midland FBI officials in Phoenix, Ariz., Wednesday for theft charges in Midland.

Ronald Lee Reese, 38, was wanted by the Midland County Sheriff's office for Theft of Property over $20,000 and violation of probation.

Reese is currently in custody of state authorities in Arizona and will be extradited to Midland for the local charges.

Mail fraud

Ten people indicted by a Midland Federal Grand Jury last week were arrested in Houston Thursday on charges of mail fraud, money laundering and conspiracy.

John Willard Broussard, 29; Patrick Lee Johnson, 29; Andrew Landry III, 29; Leroy Marshall, 26; Eddie Sandoval, 25; Renee Hamilton Adewola, 34; Iris Davis, 50; Sharon Ann Polley, 44; Paula Cassandra Sneed, 29; and Glenda Davis Prudhomme, 37, will be taken before a U.S. Magistrate and then returned to Midland to face charges, officials said.

The arrests were the result of a four-month investigation by the Midland Police Department and Midland FBI into a major telemarketing and money laundering operation.

Officials already have a Midland man, Youfif David, in custody in connection with the investigation. David pleaded guilty in August.

Shooting

ODESSA — Odessa officials arrested three teen-agers Thursday in connection with a shooting that occurred Saturday.

George Flores Gutierrez Jr., 19, was arrested at his home in west Odessa and was in jail awaiting arraignment, according to a police report. Officials also arrested two 16-year-old males, who were transported to Ector County Youth Center. All three teen-agers are being held for attempted murder, officials said.

The arrests were in connection with the shooting of Randy Craig Medina, 17, who was shot once in the head by someone in a moving vehicle while he was standing in the parking lot in the 700 block of West Clements Street last Saturday. Medina underwent surgery and is currently listed in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital.

Narcotics

ODESSA — Four Odessa residents were arrested last Wednesday in two separate narcotics arrests by Odessa officials.

Officials executed an arrest warrant at 900 N. Dotsy St. at 3:30 p.m. and found approximately 66 pounds of marijuana with an estimated street value of $168,300 and approximately 30 grams of cocaine, with an estimated street value of $9,000, according to a police report.

Arturo Barragan, 31, and Oscar Salcido Montoya, 26, were both arrested and charged with possession of marijuana. Montoya had been released on bond Thursday and Barragan was still in custody with a $20,000 bond.

Manuel Munoz Machuca, 42, and 43-year-old Espiridion Prieto Quiroz were arrested as a result of an undercover investigation by the Special Investigations Unit of the Odessa Police Department, the Narcotics Unit of the Midland Police Department, the Ector County District Attorney's office and the Drug Enforcement Agency, according to a police report.

Both were arrested in the 300 block of East Interstate 20 and officials seized approximately three ounces of heroin, with an estimated street value of $54,000, and approximately 72 pounds of marijuana, with an estimated street value of $183,600, the report stated.

Machuca and Quiroz were both charged with aggravated possession of heroin and aggravated possession of marijuana and bond was set at $30,000 for each charge for both men.

Oct. 28 — Burglary of a Building: A burglary of building and residence report was filed for 3101 Bankhead Highway at 4:12 p.m.

Burglary of a Residence: Lester Evans reported that two men entered a window at 2438 Whitmire Blvd., #27B, at 3:20 a.m.

Stolen Vehicle: Angel Sosa reported a 1976 GMC Blazer taken at 4405 N. Garfield St. at 8 a.m.

Stolen Vehicle: Jan Mull reported a green 1954 Ford F-100 pickup taken from 3904 Douglas Ave. at 8:46 a.m.

Vandalism: Damage over $750 was reported at 5009 Rio Grande St., #12D, at 10:42 a.m.

REPORT: Police hope public will help

(From 1B)

The C.O.P. Membership Kits, which are available at sponsors' locations, consist of:

- A CrimeWatch Tips brochure that explains the warning signs of crimes in progress, tips on how to recognize suspicious activity that warrants reporting to the police department, and guidelines on how to report suspicious activities and crime to the police;
- A window decal for members' vehicles.

"Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems has always been supportive of the fine work of the law enforcement agencies in the Permian Basin," said Sherry Witt, regional director of the company, "but we wanted to do more."

"We saw a way our customers and all citizens could be involved in the continuing fight against crime and violence," she said. "We realized what a powerful weapon we had in cellular communications with its availability and immediacy. We hope the presence of tens of thousands of window decals throughout the Permian Basin will help serve as an effective crime deterrent itself."

With this program, customers who witness suspicious activity in Midland County can dial *MCOP free from their cellular photo and be patched directly to the dispatcher for reporting purposes. In Ector County, the call is made to *ECOP, and for motor vehicle accidents outside either city limits, the call is made to *DPS.

In addition, C.O.P. program materials encourage people who do not have a cellular phone to be on the lookout for crime and to call 911 to report police emergency (life-threatening) situations, 333-3641 to contact the Odessa Police Department or 335-3050 to contact the Ector County Sheriff's Department. In Midland, call 685-7110 to contact the Midland Police Department or the Midland County Sheriff's Department. Call 697-2211 to contact the Department of Public Safety.

"This program is for everyone and costs nothing to join," Ms. Witt said.

The program will be officially launched Monday at a 10 a.m. news conference at the Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems offices, located on Highway 80 at Coors Road.

other killing.

At issue is an 1876 law that does not allow people to serve on juries if they have been "convicted of or who may be under indictment for theft or any felony." Although lawmakers may have included theft in the original statute to cover horse stealing, which was a hanging offense in the 1800s, modern legislatures have left the law unchanged.

A bounced-check offense is considered a theft, and neither judges nor lawyers interviewed yesterday had a quarrel with the law.

"I have no problem with it," said Harris County District Attorney John Holmes, who pursued new indictments when the old ones were scrapped.

The Legislature's "clear intent was to prevent anyone with a moral turpitude of theft, any kind of theft, from serving. . . . The concept is . . . if you'll steal, you'll do 'purt-near' anything," he said.

Drago said that although the Harris County situation caught his attention, the turmoil in Travis County indicates to him that there could be a serious problem with empaneling jurors.

Grand jurors take an oath that they are qualified, and regular jurors sign forms saying they do not have a criminal record. Background checks are not routinely done.

Earlier this month, Drago had the local district attorney's office check criminal records before he seated a grand jury. Although a misdemeanor theft charge would show up in Tarrant County, it might not in other Texas counties. Likewise, a crime committed outside of Tarrant County might not show up in a local check, Drago said.

"What I'm going to do in the future is bring them (all jurors) up and talk to them one at a time," he said. "It will take a little bit longer, but it could save a lot of problems in the long run."

Harris County judges, at their November meeting, plan to discuss the possibility of doing criminal checks.

"I don't have any objection to it," said Judge Miron Love, Harris County's administrative judge. But, "I don't think it's that necessary."

including 17 children, perished April 19 when fire swept through their cult compound after a 51-day standoff. Six Branch Davidians were killed in the initial raid.

U.S. District Judge Walter Smith of Waco, who is presiding over the case, ordered the trial moved to San Antonio after defense attorneys contended they couldn't get a fair trial in Waco. The compound where Koresh and his followers engaged in the standoff is about 12 miles east of Waco.

Defense attorneys had pushed for the trial to be moved to Austin, but Smith said both federal courtrooms in Austin are assigned to sitting judges and the Branch Davidian trial would cause too much disruption.

Some of the court-appointed attorneys have said they may have to step down from the case because the move will be too costly.

present evidence favorable to Mrs. Hutchison to the grand jury.

McCleery said he believes the grand jury would like to hear from Mrs. Hutchison, but DeGuerin said she will not appear unless he can give her side of the case to the grand jury.

"We're not going to play on a field where the DA holds all the rules, makes all the rulings, controls all the information. That's not fair," he said.

Asked if Mrs. Hutchison would testify, DeGuerin said, "If we get equal access to the grand jury she'll be there with bells on and the grand jury won't indict."

Perkins said he would rule Nov. 5 on DeGuerin's requests and one by prosecutors who have asked for an order to prevent Mrs. Hutchison's lawyers from mailing anything to the grand jury.

Hutchison's attorneys had sent a 200-page packet of material stating the senator's case to members of the earlier grand jury.

That grand jury indicted Mrs. Hutchison, 50, on charges that while she was treasurer she used the office for personal and political purposes and then destroyed records as part of a coverup.

But those indictments were dismissed earlier this week after Mrs. Hutchison's attorneys found there was a grand juror who was ineligible to serve because of a pending theft charge.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, has denied any wrongdoing and calls the charges a Democratic plot to discredit her.

She appeared before the first grand jury after being subpoenaed. McCleery said no decision has been made on whether to subpoena her again.

During the hearing before Perkins, both sides accused each other of trying to drag out the proceedings and playing to the media.

On Wednesday, prosecutors confirmed that they granted limited immunity from prosecution to several witnesses in the case.

Court documents showed that Martha Wolfe, a former assistant to Mrs. Hutchison had received limited immunity, and The Dallas Morning News reported that three others had.

Wreck leaves 1 man dead

A Midland man died Thursday after he lost control of his vehicle and drove it into the side of a residence.

Robert Muldrow IV, 63, was traveling northwest on Mitchell Street at about 1:40 p.m. Thursday when he apparently began having medical difficulties and lost control of his vehicle, police officials said. The vehicle ran into the yard at 214 Mitchell St. and then hit the side of the residence at 218 Mitchell St.

Emergency personnel used CPR on Muldrow at the scene, but were unable to revive him, officials said. Muldrow was transported to Memorial Hospital and Medical Center where emergency room personnel were also unable to resusitate him.

He was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine, who ruled Muldrow died of natural causes.

There were no other injuries in the incident.

Dr. Ruth unveils program to cut into hepatitis B risk

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Ruth urged college students and other young adults Thursday to be more cautious about sexual partners because of a rise in hepatitis B.

Dr. Ruth Westheimer, a leading sex educator and "safer sex" advocate, used the 69th annual Associated Collegiate Press convention in Dallas to unveil a program aimed at cutting into the runaway incidence of hepatitis B among the nation's youth.

"People should have a relationship before they go to bed together. You ought to know the person you wake up in the morning with, so you won't have to worry and say . . . 'Oh, my gosh. I wonder' . . .," she said.

Dr. Ruth is a major spokesman of the American College Health Association in its effort to wipe out hepatitis B, one of the most dangerous of sexually transmitted diseases.

The organization says 300,000 Americans — three-fourths of them in the 15-to-39 age range — contract hepatitis B each year.

The disease is 100 times as contagious as the HIV virus that causes AIDS, and almost half of those who contract the disease do so through heterosexual activity.

"No woman should be naked in bed with a man unless she has decided to be sexually active with this man. The older I get, the stronger I feel people should have a relationship before they have sexual activity," Dr. Ruth said.

She said if young people have any doubt about their sex partners, they should be vaccinated immediately.

"For anybody single, separated, you have no choice but to be careful. Only a small amount of people are getting vaccinated," Dr. Ruth said.

Although hepatitis B is incurable, it can be prevented by a series of three shots over a six-month period. The series of shots cost a total of $60 to $100 and are available in colleges, high schools, and communities across the nation, officials say.

The ACHA announced new recommendations in June calling for all college students to be vaccinated against hepatitis B. Officials say fewer than 1 percent of the 28 million sexually active young adults at risk have been vaccinated.

Hepatitis B is prevalent among young people, but many college students have never even heard of it, said Dr. Richard J. Dumas, executive director of the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases.

The effects of the virus range from flu-like illness, loss of appetite, yellowing of the skin, nausea and vomiting to the development of liver cancer and cirrhosis.

But many people who contract the virus suffer no symptoms at all. They may not even know they are infected and, as a result, can pass it to others unknowingly.

Officials say the source is never discovered in the cases of about one-third of those who contract hepatitis B.

The "Hepatitis B Campus Prevention Program" includes MTV-style brochures and posters, a hepatitis B hotline (1-800-HEP-B-873), and a five-minute educational video for presentation at campus health centers, residence halls, sororities and fraternities and campus-wide assemblies.

The video features Dr. Ruth and a young hepatitis B patient, Wendy Marx, who went into a coma and almost died from hepatitis B just five months after graduating from Duke University.

Officials give tentative OK to 2 programs

AUSTIN (AP) — Border education opportunities got a boost Thursday from the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, which gave preliminary approval to two doctoral programs at the University of Texas-Pan American.

An international business degree would be the first doctorate ever granted by the Edinburg university under one proposal, which includes a working relationship with the flagship UT-Austin.

The board also endorsed a cooperative doctoral program in educational administration. That degree would be granted by UT-Austin but offered through the Edinburg campus, where officials in the future hope to take over the program.

Both proposals are up for final approval Friday.

"It is a challenge ... We have to prove that we can meet the challenge," UT-Pan American President Miguel Nevarez said of the new programs. "Obviously, we're going to work our hearts out.

"It's going to take funds, and it's going to take hard work. It's that simple," he said.

The business doctorate, which previously has received development funding, is estimated to cost $4.6 million over five years. The education degree has a projected five-year cost of $2.8 million.

Higher education officials have said they'll keep working to enhance border education programs even though the Texas Supreme Court recently overturned a lower court ruling that the current system denies Mexican Americans on the border equal education opportunity.

Merging the Edinburg university with the UT system several years ago was part of the effort to upgrade border programs.

In endorsing the business degree, the Coordinating Board said it will evaluate the program's future success before considering additional doctoral degree-granting authority for UT-Pan American.

Officials said they didn't mean that provision as a threat, but a signal of the program's importance.

Although some have expressed concern about the proposal, which includes a business administration major and international business program, Nevarez said cooperation with UT-Austin will help make it a success.

The proposal includes a mentor relationship between the Edinburg and Austin faculties, and Nevarez said technology will allow UT-Pan American to take advantage of the larger school's superior library facilities.

The business program will fill a unique niche, especially considering the border location and the current emphasis on free trade, he added, predicting graduates will find jobs not only in teaching but industry and government.

And the need for the education program is evident because just a small number of South Texas educators, including school superintendents, have doctoral degrees, officials said.

Nevarez recalled that when he graduated from high school in the Rio Grande Valley in 1954, "I was told that I shouldn't be going to college."

Judge grants immunity to former treasury official

AUSTIN (AP) — A judge Wednesday approved granting immunity from prosecution to a former aide of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in exchange for information in the investigation into Mrs. Hutchison's 2½-year tenure as state treasurer.

Prosecutors investigating Mrs. Hutchison had agreed to grant immunity to Martha Wolfe, who was an assistant to Mrs. Hutchison at the Treasury. State District Judge Robert Perkins approved the agreement.

Last month, Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, was indicted by a Travis County grand jury on charges that while she was treasurer she used the office for personal and political purposes and then destroyed records as part of a coverup.

Mrs. Hutchison has denied any wrongdoing and calls the charges a Democratic plot to discredit her.

On Tuesday, the indictments were dismissed after Mrs. Hutchison's lawyers discovered that one of the grand jurors was ineligible to serve because of a pending theft charge.

But prosecutors say they have taken the investigation to a second grand jury: Eight people, including Ms. Wolfe, have been subpoenaed to appear before the new grand jury and provide information related to the treasury probe.

According to an agreement between Ms. Wolfe and the Travis County district attorney's office, her testimony that she has or will give to the grand jury cannot be used against her in any criminal case.

She could still face criminal charges if she makes false statements, or evidence against her is gained independently, under the agreement. According to the agreement, its is not intended to imply that Ms. Wolfe has committed any criminal offense.

NASA plans up to 10 shuttle missions to Russian station

HOUSTON (AP) — NASA administrator Daniel Goldin says the agency plans up to 10 shuttle missions to the Russian space station Mir as the two countries prepare to work together on a joint international station.

Goldin, speaking at a space exploration conference in Houston Wednesday, said the plan to dock shuttles five to 10 times with Mir is contained in a NASA proposal he plans to present to the White House next week.

That proposal will outline NASA's plans for working with Russia on the recently redesigned space station, temporarily named Alpha.

A shuttle fly-around of Mir is scheduled for next May, and NASA had previously planned just one docking, in June 1995. The Atlantis crew at that time is supposed to pick up an astronaut launched three months earlier aboard a Russian Soyuz rocket.

Goldin has taken two trips to Russia in recent weeks to negotiate the countries' strategy on building a space station. The project also includes the European Space Agency, Japan and Canada.

Ultimately, Russia could be called on to provide propulsion, guidance, navigation and control systems for the station.

"I think there is a very positive attitude in Russia toward working with the United States," Goldin said. "There is a very positive attitude in the United States toward working with Russia."

NASA hopes for approval by the end of the year.

Current plans call for the 10-year-old project to be finished and permanently manned about a decade from now at a cost of approximately $19.4 billion.

Goldin also took a shot later on Wednesday at his congressional critics.

Speaking to a NASA Alumni League dinner in nearby League City near the Johnson Space Center, Goldin said he was envious of the Russian Space Agency, which gets support even through a poor economy and political turmoil.

"I'm getting sick and tired of having to have NASA employees explain what they're doing day after day, week after week," Goldin said. "We have everyone come down on our heads why we're not making progress, while yet, we have nine votes (on the space station in Congress).

FAMILY MATTERS

Daughter's behavior upsets family's mornings

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I am having a terrible time getting my 9-year-old daughter up in the morning to go to school. I have tried everything that I know to do, but each morning for most of this semester we have almost been late to school. Not only that, it completely disrupts the rest of the family and our morning.

May

She started off just being difficult to get out of bed, but she would eventually get up. Then she started crying and that has now turned into screaming and yelling. I have to go back into her room three or four times to get her out of bed. Each time it's just awful. Sometimes she's flopping and flailing around and hits me, but I think that it's accidental.

I know that it's just something she does with me because she never has this problem on the weekend (except for church sometimes). She will also get up for her father, my mother and when she's at a friend's house, without all of this grief.

I just don't know what to do, but I have to do something. I kept thinking that it would get better, but it's gotten worse. My mother says that I'm being too easy on her, that I should just yell right back and physically make her get up. I really don't want to do that. I just want her to get up like everyone else. DREADS MORNINGS

DEAR DREADS: Consider having a family meeting with your husband and daughter to discuss establishing a morning ritual that would work for everyone. Recognize your daughter's desire to modify the ritual in some way. However, her present behavior is inappropriate and unacceptable. Her options are limited — yelling, screaming and hitting are not among them.

Try to find out your daughter's beliefs and feelings on this matter. I believe listening to the child's point of view is very important, in order to avoid solving the wrong problem. Acknowledge what she says. You may even consider summarizing he responses with something like, "I see, you don't want to get up in the mornings to go to school because ..." Encourage her to identify other alternatives to her behavior that would work for her too.

Agree on some approach to try. If it fails, meet again and modify the plan until you find one that works for your family. Some ideas you might consider include: letting dad get her up in the morning; empowering her by giving her an alarm clock to wake up to; simply helping her out of bed without talking and assisting her to the bathroom; putting her to bed progressively early in 30-minute increments until she gets up pleasantly the next morning (consequence); letting her do some activity she likes in the morning if she gets up and dressed by a certain time (reward). Associate a "matching" consequence/reward with the child's behavior.

Involve your family in the solution process, then follow through in a firm and consistent manner. I believe that it is very important that we model problem solution techniques for our children so that they can learn to address and solve their problems outside our home.

THE FOLLOWING PARENTING TIP ON RAISING HAPPY CHILDREN IS OFFERED BY THE CENTER FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES:

A 40-year study at Harvard University has uncovered some enlightening facts about raising happy children. The study, which began as an effort to understand juvenile delinquency, followed the lives of 456 teenage boys from inner-city Boston, many from impoverished or broken homes. When these men were compared at middle age, one fact stood out: regardless in intelligence, family income, ethnic background or education, those who worked as boys, even at simple chores around the house, led happier and more productive lives. They earned more money and had greater job satisfaction, better marriages and closer relationships with their children. They were healthier, lived longer and most of all they were happier — far happier.

One facet of the study conducted detailed interviews with the men at ages 25, 31 and 47. There appeared a startlingly sharp link between what the men had done as boys and how they turned out as adults. Those highest on the boyhood-activity scale were twice as likely to have warm relationships with various people, five times more likely to have well-paying jobs, and 16 times less likely to have been significantly unemployed. In contrast, the group who had worked least in childhood were much more likely to have been arrested, 10 times more likely to have suffered mental illness, and six times as many of them had died. Intelligence (IQ), educational background and family social and economic class made no real impact on their happiness quotient.

Jim May is the director of the Family Wellness Center.

Weather vanes are collectibles

Associated Press

Weather vanes have become a highly collectible form of folk art — to the point where there are stories of thieves roping them from helicopters. More agile thieves are apt to scramble up a ladder under cover of darkness, Bruce E. Johnson wrote in an article in the current issue of Country Living, to remove a valuable work of folk art from a rooftop.

The value of any weather vane will be influenced by its age, condition, design, craftsmanship and history. All weather vane collectors face the problem that antique weather vanes are difficult to authenticate and easy to replicate. Some forgers have spent years tracking down original cast-iron molds to manufacture new weather vanes identical to those known to be more than 100 years old.

The most convincing forgers have learned to duplicate the patina found on authentic copper, zinc, iron and wooden weather vahes. Collectors must learn to distinguish between the patina that an antique has acquired naturally and one that has been chemically induced. Learning to look for normal wear versus wear that has been duplicated with steel wool is also important.

One area where many forgers stumble is the interior of a hollow form. Bright, shiny copper, aluminum and fresh solder are warning signals that you are holding a reproduction or, at best, a heavily restored antique.

The first step a collector must take is to learn as much as possible about the types of vanes he or she plans to collect. One of the best places to begin is a museum where period weather vanes are on display. The Shelburne Museum in Shelburne, Vt., houses the country's largest public collection of American weather vanes.

Weather vanes date back to ancient Greece. During the ninth century, the pope ordered that a metal or wooden rooster crown each church to remind the congregation of Peter's betrayal of Christ — and the duty to attend Sunday Mass. These roosters developed into weather vanes, which became known as "weathercocks."

In medieval England, the right to display a weather vane was reserved for manorial lords; in France, only a landowner who had served victoriously in battle could display his banner — a metal coat of arms — atop his chateau's spire.

By the time the American colonies were settled, the weather vane had lost its association with the Catholic Church and European nobility. It was viewed as a decorative architectural element and a reliable means of forecasting the weather. Thomas Jefferson at Monticello attached his weather vane to a pointer in the ceiling in the room directly below it so he would know the direction of the wind without going outdoors. After the Revolutionary War, President George Washington ordered a dove with an olive branch in its beak to top his home at Mount Vernon.

No collector should invest a great deal of money in a weather vane that comes without reliable documentation as to date of manufacture, original site, type of material and degree of restoration. Buy authentic weather vanes only from reputable antiques dealers or auction houses that guarantee their merchandise in writing.

DEAR ABBY

Sister with bad attitude needs 'a word from the wise'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a younger sister who is 18, and very naive. She has lived with me since our parents died seven years ago.

Van Buren

One night, she went out on a blind date and came home with a hickey on her neck. The next night, she had her boyfriend over, and they were watching TV. I was sitting in a chair, but she and her boyfriend were on the couch, kissing and lying all over each other.

After he left, I told her how embarrassing her behavior was for me. Then she told me flat out that her behavior was none of my business, to which I replied, "When it is happening in front of me, it is my business, and if you don't have any respect for yourself, you should have a little for me."

Abby, I don't know how to handle this. — PHILADELPHIAN

DEAR PHILADELPHIAN: You are on the right track. As long as your sister lives under your roof, her behavior is your business.

She is heading for trouble if she's necking with a blind date (a stranger) one night and lying all over her "boyfriend" the next. I think you and she are overdue for a serious talk about how to make mature decisions and how to protect oneself from sexually transmitted disease. Don't postpone it.

DEAR ABBY: As more and more people leave their hometowns and relocate across the country, this important question is usually put "on hold" and is rarely resolved.

When a family member dies, where should that person be buried? Should the grieving spouse bury her husband where she is living now, or take his body back to where his parents and grandparents are buried? What are your thoughts on this, Abby? — NEITHER HERE NOR THERE

DEAR NEITHER HERE NOR THERE: The "right" answer to that question varies from family to family. Because the majority of people find the subject of their own mortality so unpleasant to face, that issue remains unresolved in many families.

Since none of us has a contract with God, the subject of mortality should be discussed with spouses, parents and children long before the need arises — so their wishes can all be taken into account. Of course, the final decision should be our own.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the letter about the bridesmaid who forgot to put the information about the bride's gifts on the shower invitation, I can top that:

When my friends gave a wedding shower for me, they forgot to put my name on the invitation! I'm sure the invitees were scratching their heads in puzzlement until they received a second invitation that read:

"Have you every heard of a surprise birthday party? Well, how about a surprise shower where the name of the bride is the surprise! The name you are searching for is Lisa Johnston. Hope you can come."

— LISA JOHNSTON LONG, HOUSTON

DEAR ABBY: About six years ago, I attended the wedding of a college friend. I did not, however, bring or send a wedding gift. We lost touch with each other and I still feel very guilty about this. How can I make up for my lack of judgment?

I really had no reason for not bringing a gift to the wedding, and I did not know that I had the option of sending one to the bride's home. In any event, I would like to redeem myself.

I recently bumped into the bride's sister and I do know where the couple is living. Please, let me know how I can handle the embarrassing situation. Is it too late to send a gift? — EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: No. (A gift received out of the blue may be more appreciated today than it would have been six years ago, when the couple received many!)

Just enclose a short note saying that you have always been bothered by the fact that you didn't give them something at the time of their marriage.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Study refutes stereotypes

By Lauran Neergaard

Phillip Robinson, 100, tells the story of his life during a visit at the retirement home where he lives. Robinson is part of a $3 million University of Georgia study of centenarians.

ATLANTA (AP) — The year was 1908, the Cubs were playing the Giants and 15-year-old Phillip Robinson was in the stands.

Eighty-five years later, he remembers it clearly, reciting the starting lineup, recounting the inside-the-park home run. For the record, the Cubs won 3-1.

"I remember it very well, how it was so exciting," Robinson said. "They had the best double-play lineup, Tinker to Evers to Chance."

Robinson refutes stereotypes about the elderly. At 100, he's independent and sharp, with a memory that stretches back to when he was a mere 5 and watched troops go off to the Spanish-American War.

And he's one of a select few whose lives hold a secret the world craves to know: Why do some centenarians never lose their quality of life?

Psychology, answers Dr. Leonard Poon. Early results from his $3 million study indicate that optimism, the ability to cope and religion or some similar guiding philosophy link the healthiest, most independent centenarians.

"They are the ultimate survivors," Poon, a University of Georgia gerontologist, said. "They have seen two lifetimes."

The Georgia Centenarian Study is an in-depth look at more than 100 Georgians who are 100 or older, cogent and still live independently — the third of Georgia's centenarians who aren't institutionalized.

BEGUN IN 1988, it's one of a handful of attempts to understand the lives of our oldest old. France, Sweden, Hungary and Japan are conducting similar projects.

The nation's 54,000 centenarians survived the Depression, two world wars, the creation and demise of the Soviet Union. Some drank the first Coke in 1892, popped that new wonder drug aspirin in 1899. They went from the horse-and-buggy era to cars to space shuttles.

It's enough to boggle any mind.

Then add that they've outlived relatives, and that their own life expectancy at age 100 is only 36 months.

But are Poon's centenarians depressed, anxious, overwhelmed? No way. They're optimistic, philosophical, opinionated. Mostly, they're satisfied with their lives.

"Their findings are confirming a lot of important things" about the role of psychology on well-being, Ilene Siegler of Duke University said.

And they could have major implications for how the nation responds to its burgeoning elderly population, Poon contends.

"We have had no reason to really pay attention to older people because they were a minority," he said. "Whether people like it or not, they are starting to dominate, and they can do it either as contributors to society or as burdens."

THE BEST functioning centenarians have traits like optimism that help them cope with emotional trauma, Poon said.

The daughter of a sharecropper told Poon religion alleviates the sting of lifelong poverty. Robinson minimizes trauma, shrugging off the medal he won for bravery in World War I and discussing just the good times with the two wives he has outlived.

Advanced education and an imaginative, opinionated personality help, too, although Poon doesn't know why.

Robinson, a retired investment broker who moved from Milwaukee to Atlanta to be near his children, has his own theory about longevity: "Moderation in all things," he advised. "And have good friends, do what you enjoy if you can and be interested in things."

ROBINSON CERTAINLY is. Aside from his love of baseball and travel, he discourses on politics, history and authors from Conrad to Thackeray.

"In the short term there are a lot of changes, but really, over the long haul, society's not much different," he said. "But this whole aging process is changing the country. It's making a problem for society — what to do with these old so-and-so's.

"I have mixed feelings about being 100. But I have to say I enjoyed life really to the full. It's been a lot of fun."

Down time for 'Dogs, 'Cats

■ Tonight's matchup between Midland High and San Angelo Central features teams that have both suffered through disappointing seasons.

By Bill Petitt
Staff writer

When Midland High football coach Ronnie Reeger and San Angelo coach Dan Gandy meet today in their teams' game in San Angelo they can share war stories about what has been a disappointing season for both.

The similarities between the two squads are striking.

Both teams played difficult non-district schedules against the state's Class 5A top 10.

Both teams made midseason changes at quarterback.

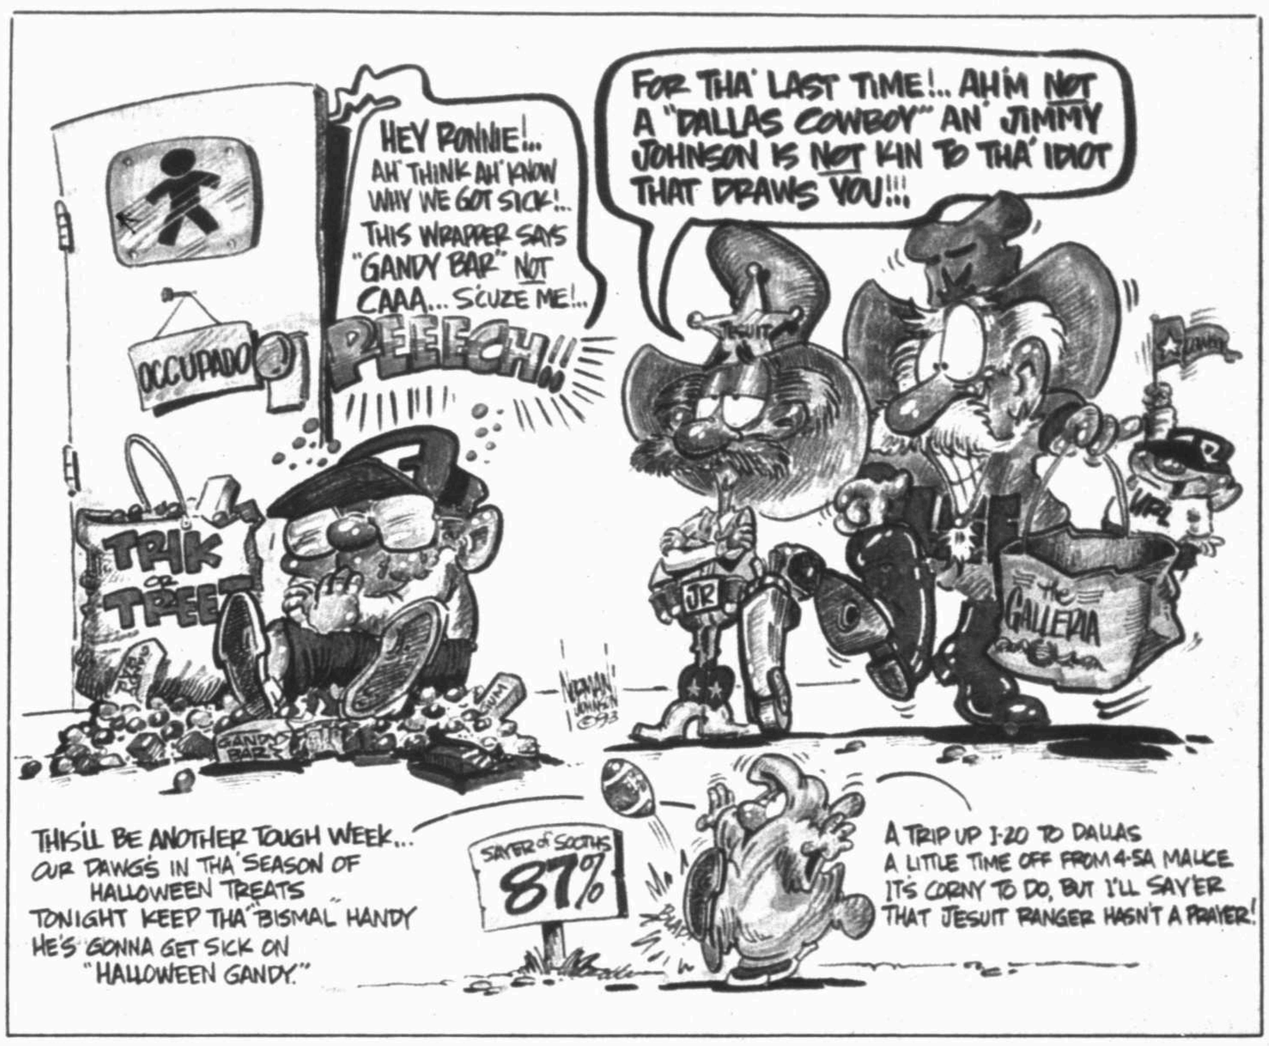

And both teams will be staying home during the playoff season.

"It's the second time in eight years we've been out of the playoffs and it's a shock to my system," said Gandy. "The Lee game probably set us back because it was such an emotional game. Every year we play, the loser of that game has lost the following week."

San Angelo was eliminated from the playoffs two weeks ago following a 25-24 loss to Odessa High. San Angelo needed to beat the Bronchos by eight points to get into the playoffs with a tie-breaker.

With the Bobcats ahead 24-22 and less than three minutes to play, Gandy opt-

Lee playoffs

The Midland Lee girls volleyball team will face either Amarillo Palo Duro or Lubbock Coronado in the bi-district round of the Class 5A state volleyball playoffs.

Palo Duro and Coronado tied for third place in District 3-5A and will have a district playoff Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in Plainview at Wayland Baptist College. The winner will go against Lee, 4-5A's second place team, either Monday or Tuesday at a site still to be determined.

San Angelo, District 4-5A's champion, owns a bye and will not have to play until next weekend.

Odessa Permian, 4-5A's third place team will play the loser of the Amarillo High-Amarillo Tascosa playoff, which is also set for Saturday in Amarillo. Tascosa and Amarillo tied for first place. The winner of that playoff will draw a bye while the loser will catch Permian in bi-district play at date and site still to be determined.

Tech SWC pick

DALLAS — Defending national champion Texas Tech was picked to repeat as the Southwest Conference women's basketball champion in a pre-season poll of the league's head coaches.

Lady Raider junior Connie Robinson, the National Junior College Player of the Year in 1992-93, was given a rare double honor by being selected as the player and newcomer of the year.

She also is a member of the pre-season all-SWC first team, along with teammate Noel Johnson. Tech sophomore Michi Atkins was selected for the second-team.

Saul tries hoops

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Former Texas Tech free safety Tracy Saul says he's considering a basketball tryout.

Saul, who set a Southwest Conference football record with 25 career interceptions in 1992, returned to Texas Tech this fall after the Chicago Bears cut him from the roster.

Basketball coach James Dickey said he expects Saul to show up at the Red Raiders' first workout Saturday. He is eligible to play one year of basketball.

Air cools it

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan, enjoying the freedom to sleep late and play golf whenever he wants, is warning fans not to await his return to the Chicago Bulls.

"I can't say never, but right now I'm very happy," Jordan told Oprah Winfrey, on a show that was scheduled to air Friday in most cities.

Jordan, the world's most popular athlete, called it quits three weeks ago after leading the Bulls to three straight NBA titles.

Lee road trip has little meaning

■ Midland Lee's non-district contest with Jesuit gives the Rebels a break from high-pressure games.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

DALLAS — Midland Lee's football Rebels have reached the point in the season where they hope the bumps and bruises this week come only from the long bus ride.

Lee will face Dallas Jesuit here today at 7:30 p.m. in a non-conference game that literally has no playoff implications. In fact, the 2-5 Rangers are members of the TCIL and not aligned with the University Interscholastic League.

Still, Gary Pasqua's team usually plays an ambitious and state-crossing schedule. The Rangers' two victories this year have come against UIL schools, 35-0 against Woodrow Wilson and 37-7 against Houston Strake. They have lost almost as impressively in the five losses.

This is the second meeting between the two schools, with Lee winning the inaugural event by a uninspired 28-7 margin last year in Midland.

Even Lee coach Earl Miller is having trouble staying focused on this one.

"It's a tough trip for our kids, up and back in the same day, and it doesn't have much meaning win or lose," Miller said. "We hope this is just a rehearsal for travel in the playoffs."

And the only way Lee will be traveling in the playoffs is to beat Abilene Cooper next week in Midland.

"Certainly our thoughts are on the game with Cooper. That game means everything to us," Miller said. "We control our own destiny. We win, we're in.

Ex-Midland player AL rookie of year

By Ken Peters
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. — All outfielder Tim Salmon wanted this season was to establish himself as a major leaguer.

He did a bit better.

He became the fourth American Leaguer ever unanimously voted Rookie of the Year.

Salmon, a third-round selection by the California Angels in the 1989 amateur draft who played for the Midland Angels in '91 and lived up to expectations, hit .283 with 95 RBIs and 31 homers, tied for ninth in the AL.

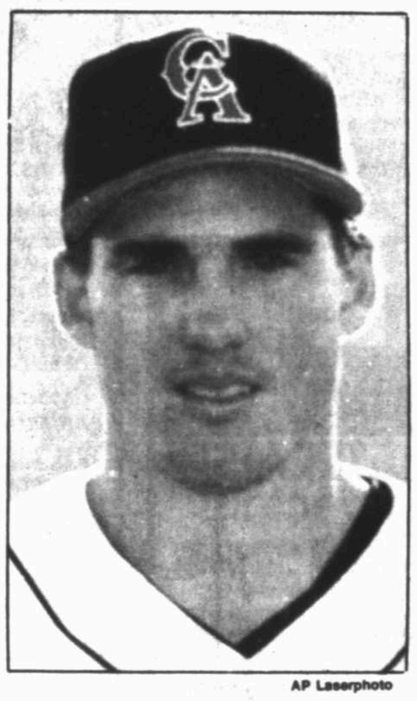

Salmon's victory Thursday completed a sweep by the Los Angeles-area teams. A day earlier, it was announced that Dodgers catcher Mike Piazza was unanimously voted NL Rookie of the Year. The only other time both awards were won unanimously was in 1987, by Oakland's Mark McGwire and San Diego's Benito Santiago.

Salmon, 25, joined McGwire, Carlton Fisk (1972) and Sandy Alomar Jr. (1990) as the only AL rookies to win unanimously and became the first Angel ever to win the award.

"Going into spring training, I wasn't trying to reach any marks," Salmon said by telephone from Hawaii, where he's vacationing. "I wanted to get my feet wet, get a rhythm going, get myself comfortable in the box every day.

"To have the kind of year I had, you can't even describe it. I did not expect that. This is something you dream about achieving, maybe after four or five years in the game, but not in my

Shula picks bad week

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

Don Shula could have picked an easier opponent than the Kansas City Chiefs as he tries to tie George Halas' career record of 324 wins on Sunday.

He'll just have to take them as they come, though, and it's the Chiefs who are coming to Joe Robbie Stadium.

■ NFL Picks

And it won't be Dave Krieg vs. Scott Mitchell, either. The Chiefs will probably go with Joe Montana even though he's played only 12 of the 24 quarters this year. It would be nice to have a Montana-Dan Marino matchup for this game, but Marino's out for the season with an injury.

Marino's absence is one reason the Dolphins are favored by just a point. Last week, against Indianapolis, Shula

Lee runs out of room for 4-5A ties

You asked the question. Here's the answer.

Question: If Odessa High beats Abilene High tonight and Midland Lee ties Abilene Cooper next week, who would go to the state playoffs, OHS or Lee?

Williamson

Answer: District rule 300.21 covers the subject. "The team having the highest percentage of district wins shall be declared the district champion. If two or more teams have the same number of district wins, the number of district losses shall be considered in determining the champion."

Under this scenario, Lee would finish at 3-1-2. Odessa High would be 4-2 and the playoff representative by virtue of most wins.

It must be noted, however, that the NFL treats ties as ½-game won and ½-game lost. If that were the rule in 4-5A, both Lee and OHS would virtually be tied with the same winning percentage of .667. Lee still loses the playoff bid under this form of breaking ties by virtue of head-to-head competition when Lee lost to OHS 13-9.

Still, the NFL system seems to be better than the district's current approach. Under the 4-5A system, a tie game might as well be treated as a loss unless the two tied teams end with the same number of victories. In other words, a 5-1 record is worse in 4-5A play than a 5-0-1 mark by virtue of less losses, the second determining factor in the above rule. In any other case, a tie might as well be a loss, and a tie should be considered better than a loss in just about anyone's mind.

With Cooper's Mike Rose rushing for over 200 yards last week against Austin High, Permian's John Williams with 171 yards against Lee and Lee's Phillip Sims' 154 yards against Permian, Midland High's Roy Coats had the silent 183 yards rushing in a loss to Odessa High.

The career best performance of Coats was somewhat overlooked as the league's super stars had great games. Still, Coats must be recognized for his effort, which was almost nine yards per carry.

Coats now has 605 yards rushing, second in the city behind Lee's Sims, who has 670. Sims looks to have a chance at 1,000 yards and will easily get that mark if the Rebels make the playoffs. Coats will have to have two more career games to reach 1,000.

With a 29-11 (.725) record in the District 4-5A picking game, here's how this week will turn out:

Odessa Permian 28, Abilene Cooper 21: The winner will be the district champion, but the two schools are headed in different directions in the state playoffs. This game will also leave Permian coach Tam Hollingshead laughing at the critics that said he should have gone for a win over Lee. Permian leads the overall series by a 27-5 margin.

San Angelo 30, Midland High 21: This just might be closer than most think. On the other hand, the Bobkitties might just recover about now from the shock that they won't be in the playoffs. San Angelo leads the series 20-11-1 since 1961.

Odessa High 34, Abilene High 13: This is one of the tightest series in 4-5A, all tied at 16 wins each since 1961, but the Eagles are no match for this year's Broncho team. An OHS win also places great pressure on Midland Lee, who will have to beat Cooper next week in order to dislodge OHS from the playoffs.

Midland Lee 55, Dallas Jesuit 7: This is nothing but a long road trip for the Rebels, but the score might be a lot lower since Lee is expected to play a lot of people in the time out before another Gettysburg next week.

Central beats Midland High JV

San Angelo Central's junior varsity scored 21 points in the first half on its way to downing Midland High's JV Thursday in Midland, 28-14.

The Bulldogs had two long touchdown runs from Leighton King in the second half — one of 91 yards and one of 79 yards. King finished with over 220 total rushing yards. Paul Howard played well defensively for Midland and David Leaverton kicked well with two extra points.

Three officers make All-America

The Midland Police Softball team recently added to its lists of achievements this year when three of its players were named to the All-America team.

Joe Wahers, Larry Honeycutt and Alvin Navarette were named to the All-America team. The team recenlty placed fourth in the National Law Enforcement Softball Tournament in Oklahoma City and fifth in the Texas Police Olympics.

The team is comprised of officers from the Midland and Odessa police departments, the Midland County Sheriff's office and the Department of Public Safety.

MHS baseball sweeps Odessa

The Midland High baseball team ended its fall schedule with a sweep of Odessa High last weekend and a 19-5 record.

In the first game, a 3-1 MHS win, Keith Lant got the win and Clay Johnston, Gabe Lawson and Rick Lawson had singles. Midland coaches cited Abel Sanchez for good defensive play.

Jason Rogers two-run home run led a six-run sixth inning in the second game, an 8-5 Midland win. Sammy Alvarado got the win in game two with Johnston getting the save. Sanchez, Johnston and Chris Ward had two hits with Sanchez and Johnston getting doubles.

Lee White downs Bowie, 20-15

Fred Pertile rushed for 165 yards on 32 carries and scored two touchdowns to lead Midland Lee White to a 20-15 win over Bowie Thursday. White finishes its season at 6-2-1 in the Midland-Odessa Conference.

Lee White's other score came on a 60-yard fumble recovery by Savinsky Dickens. Corey Pertile and Chito Subia also had fumble recoveries for Lee White and Chris Bailey and David Smith had interceptions.

Greenwood JV shuts out C-City

Colby Lee passed for one touchdown and ran for another as Greenwood's junior varsity football team beat Colorado City 28-0 Thursday. It was the Rangers fifth straight win, making them 6-3.

Victor Urias returned the opening kickoff 80 yards and Casey Otho had a 1-yard run and scored a two-point conversion for Greenwwood's first two scores. Lee then passed 55 yards to Jamie Presley and ran 50 yards for TDs.

Crockett tops Midland Gold

ODESSA — Odessa Crockett scored three touchdowns in the second quarter and went on to beat Midland Gold here Thursday 28-7.

Gold scored on its first possession of the third quarter on a 4-yard run by Richard Henigan which followed a 74-yard scamper by Norman Young. Russell Dunlavy kicked the extra point. Playing well defensively for Gold were Nathan Reed, Russell Marlow and Henigan.

Crowder nails second ace

Call it lucky No. 11 for Jim Crowder. The Midland Country Club golfer aced the 165-par hole for the second time Thursday. He used a 5-iron while playing with Bill Franklin, Chuck Cowell, Jim Fredericks and Tim Nesbitt.

SWC hoop teams take aim at UT

DALLAS (AP) — The biggest question at Thursday's Southwest Conference basketball kickoff luncheon was whether the Texas Longhorns could go from next-to-worst to first.

SWC coaches have already put the No. 1 bulls eye on coach Tom Penders and his talented Longhorns.

He's not unhappy about it but says there are a lot of things which need to be accomplished between now and March.

"We're going to have more depth than we've had since I've been here," said Penders. "We should be stronger physically up front. We'll also be bigger in the backcourt than we've been."

Penders sounds like he trying to sell himself on the idea the Longhorns can be the best.

He said the Longhorns could look shaggy early on.

"We could have some rough and tough spots in December," Penders said. "We're going to have a lot of new people and we need to work out a rotation. It could the time developing a rotation."

Penders won't have to play as much zone defense instead of the man-to-man he prefers because of his depth.

"We won't have to worry about foul trouble because we'll be two-deep almost everywhere," Penders said. "We're going to the 35-second clock this year and depth is going to be real important, more so than ever in the college game and that works to our favor."

Center Albert Burditt has regained his eligibility and could be a force on the inside along with 6-9 Michigan transfer Rick McIver and Tremaine Wingfield, a 6-7 transfer from Louisville.

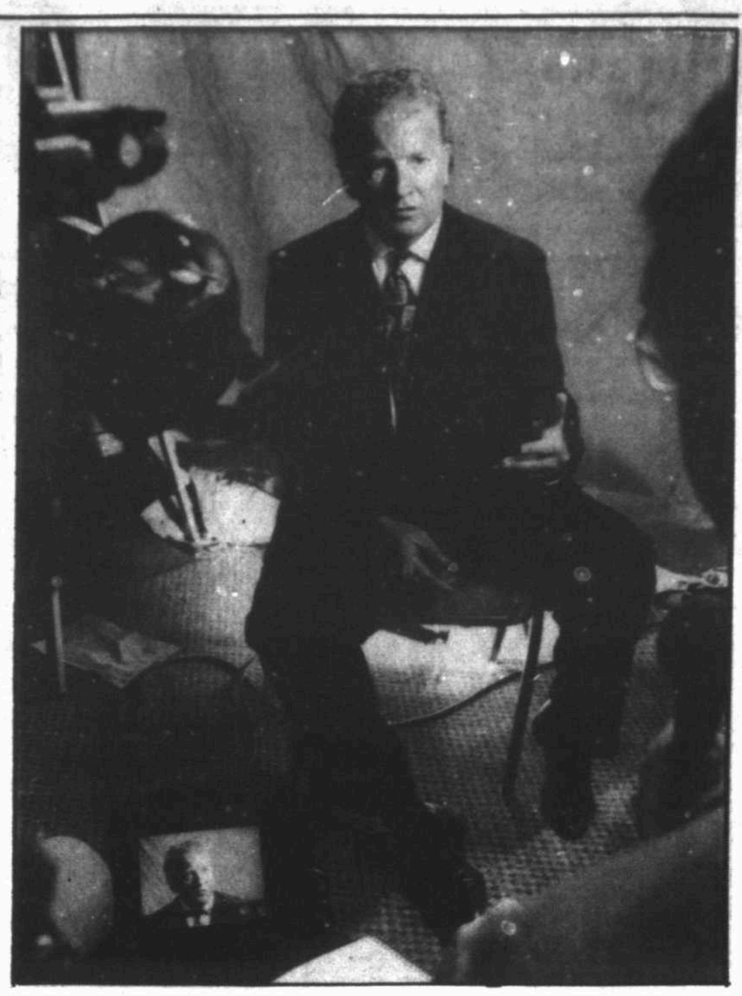

In mid-December, guard B.J. Tyler will return to the team after spending the first semester at the John Lucas Center in Houston for undisclosed problems off the court.

Texas also has one of the top junior college players in the nation, guard Roderick Anderson.

Penders said it won't be a cake walk for the Longhorns.

"Look out for Texas A&M and Baylor is going to be better in its second year under Darrel Johnson," Penders said. "Texas Tech will be good again and Houston is always good. Both SMU and Rice have turned the corner. This could be a good old-fashioned run-and-gun league with a lot of scores in the 90s. That's great for national exposure."

Penders added: "I'd rather be picked first than seventh. It's no fun down there."

Abilene Cooper seeks loop title vs. Mo-Jo

DALLAS (AP) — Abilene Cooper coach Randy Allen returned to his alma mater in 1989 with a three-step plan for a return to glory.

"We wanted to have a winning season to start with. Then we wanted to get to playoffs. Then be district champs and advance in the playoffs," Allen said.

So far, so good.

And it could get better with a victory at home Friday night against none other than No. 4 Odessa Permian, the state's marquee team and a longtime district foe.

A victory over Permian would give the Cougars their first district title since 1979, which happens to be the last time they broke Mo-Jo's magic spell against them.

This District 4-5A battle highlights the ninth weekend of high school football, a time when district titles could be settled and the playoff picture becomes clearer.

The only game between ranked teams pits Class 1A's No. 5 Bremond and No. 7 Iola.

Cooper (6-1-1) is an underdog against Permian (6-0-1), but the only reason they've lacked attention outside West Texas is because of the large shadow cast by the Panthers.

It hasn't always been that way.

Allen and several of his assistants played in the district when it placed a team in the state finals each year between 1965-68. Permian and San Angelo won the first two years and Cooper and Permian lost the next two.

Now many of them have sons on Cooper — including Allen's son, Zac, who's the team's starting quarterback — and the coaches want them to enjoy the same success.

"Having played here when Cooper was successful in state playoffs, one of my goals was to get back to that level. This is one of the games you play to get to that level," he said.

Allen began reaching his goals last year when Cooper went 7-4, its first winning season since 1981. The Cougars also made the playoffs, though they lost 20-17 to eventual semifinalist Amarillo in the first round.

Abilene fans have responded to this season's continuation of their success, packing the parking lot before school Monday to snatch up tickets.

"It's probably the first time since '79 that we've had that kind of demand for tickets," Allen said.

A Cooper victory Friday locks up the 4-5A title, leaving the season finale against Midland Lee as a playoff tune-up. The Cougars are assured a return trip to the playoffs.

If the Panthers win, they must beat San Angelo Central the following week for the 4-5A crown. Should they beat Cooper and lose to Central, Cooper could take the title by beating Lee.

Allen acknowledges the district title has less meaning now that the top three district finishers reach the playoffs, but he said there's still pride.

Pittsburgh beats Rutgers

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Johnny Majors avoided what would have been the longest losing streak of his 26-year college coaching career with the only thing that's worked for him at Pitt this season, a Thursday night game.

"I'd like to think we ought to play on national TV on Thursday night now," Majors said after Pitt (2-6, 1-3 Big East) snapped a six-game slide with a 21-10 victory over Rutgers (4-4, 1-3).

"We made a lot of progress," Majors said. "I'm very pleased with the attitude of this team. We've never given up. Our team has improved 180 degrees since the second or third game of the season."

NFL: Fish should win

(From 1C)

reverted to the pre-Marino days as Mark Higgs and Terry Kirby combined for 172 rushing yards.

That will be harder to do against the Chiefs. And Neil Smith and Derrick Thomas will be in the face of Mitchell, who makes his second NFL start.

Still, he's handled the pressure well so far. And the emotion behind Shula makes it …

DOLPHINS, 20-17

Detroit (plus 4) at Minnesota

OK, it's only the NFC Central, but this is still for first place.

Minnesota's problem is that it needs the defense to score touchdowns. Detroit's problem seems to have been solved — Wayne Fontes says Rodney Peete IS the quarterback.

As long as he's healthy …

Washington (minus 9) at Buffalo (Monday night)

Game III in the Bills' attempt to sweep the teams that beat them in Super Bowls.

No Problem.

BILLS, 24-3

The problem for the Eagles isn't that the Cowboys remain the best team in the NFL. The problem is that they've given up on themselves.

That NFC Central again.

Assume that Brett Favre and Sterling Sharpe are locked in again, even if last week's show was only against Tampa Bay.

PACKERS, 17-9

Los Angeles Rams (plus 13) at San Francisco

The only question here is whether Jim Everett's record for consecutive starts gets broken in Chuck Knox' "obsolete" offense or whether T.J. Rubley runs into the second week blues.

Both.

Kotite spurns line in Cowboy game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Rich Kotite rejects the notion that his Philadelphia Eagles must play a perfect game Sunday to beat the highly favored Dallas Cowboys.

"When you say you have to play a perfect game, that means that we're really not worth a damn," Kotite said Tuesday. "I don't believe that. Nobody plays a perfect game."

The Eagles are 11-point home underdogs against the Cowboys. Nobody can recall when in the last decade the Eagles drew such little respect at home.

Kotite doesn't think it's lack of respect, nor does he agree that the Cowboys deserve to be rated 11 points over his crippled team.

"I think that every week point spreads are sometimes lopsided, and teams do overcome that," the coach said.

"I think that basically what the prognosticators or whoever does those point spreads probably is saying is, 'Well, they're without Randall (Cunningham). They're without Freddy (Barnett). They're without Kenny Rose.' I think that's what it's based upon. I don't know if the word is respect or whatever."

Kotite said the big number in a series between such bitter rivals didn't bother him or his players.

"I sometimes think that when we're a favorite it bothers me more than when we're underdogs," he declared.

Kotite is fully aware that the Super Bowl champions are on a roll now with four straight victories. The Eagles have lost two after opening with four straight wins.

"But our records are the same (4-2)," he said. "Who knows what it's going to be? We still think we're a respectable, good team. We're a competitive team. And we're going to do all we can to go out and beat the Dallas Cowboys."

Kotite conceded that the Cowboys have one of the most powerful offenses in the NFL.

"It's important that we limit their time on the field. We have to sustain drives and score points," he said.

Is running Herschel Walker 25 or more times a game to keep the clock running a viable option?

"Yes, but Herschel used in other roles also is a viable option," Kotite said. "Sometimes your short passing game is construed as a style of run in . . .keeping the chains moving."

Someone asked if Kotite had any tricks up his sleeve for the Halloween day game.

"You don't go out there and try to gimmick Dallas," he responded. "The gist that I get is that we better have a double flea flicker pass to get into the end zone. I think that there are some things that we do well and we have to be ourselves, do the things that we do best."

The Eagles are hurting. They have 11 first-rate players who won't play in Sunday's game: quarterbacks Cunningham and Bubby Brister; wide receivers Barnett and Jeff Sydner (also a kick returner); defensive tackle Keith Millard; linebackers Rose and Scott Kowalkowski; tight end Tim Harris; offensive linemen Rob Selby and Eric Floyd; and strong safety Andre Waters.

For all his team's injuries, Kotite said, "it's easy as hell to feel sorry for yourself because you have some built-in things (excuses) that you can use if you want. We have to work our way out of this.

"We have to be as good, as tough and as smart as we can to contain Emmitt Smith. He's a great player. We went back to fundamentals during our bye week. We weren't blocking. We weren't tackling the way we should have been. And that's the foundation of this game ever since it was first played."

Ken O'Brien, who joined the team Oct.4, a day after Cunningham broke his left leg, is starting because of an injury to Brister in the first quarter of the game against the New York Giants two weeks ago.

"I've had the extra week, more chance to get repetitions, to get used to the guys who are out there. And for them to get used to me. that should definitely help. Every day I'm around it gets a little easier."

What's at stake is remaining in contention for the division lead. The Giants at 5-1 lead the Cowboys and Eagles by one game.

Schiller candidate to head baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Harvey Schiller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, is one of the final candidates in the search for a new baseball commissioner.

Schiller, 54, joins Lynn Martin, a Labor Secretary during the Bush Administration. Although owners have attempted to conduct the search in secrecy, New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner confirmed Thursday that Schiller remained under consideration.

"Harvey is one that is under consideration," said Steinbrenner, a USOC vice president. "Harvey Schiller is a tremendously capable guy in any position he's ever been in. He's a doer. He's a get-things-done guy. Harvey has tremendous abilities, as he's demonstrated here. He has been a tremendous executive director. It certainly would be a loss if he left the Olympic committee."

Schiller refused to comment on whether he is a candidate or say if he had been interviewed. Two other sources, speaking on the condition they not be identified, confirmed that he was interviewed for the job and said they were under the impression the list had been pared to three candidates.

"There are a lot of fine people who have applied for the job and been interviewed," Steinbrenner said.

Gallagher's 63 leads PGA play

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Gallagher stared at his card in astonishment, inspecting it ever so closely, and discovered a mistake after shooting an Olympic Club record 63 Thursday in the first round of the Tour Championship.

In this richest of tournaments, a $3 million gathering of the PGA Tour's top 30 money winners for a $540,000 first prize, Gallagher shot an 8-under-par round for a five-stroke lead.

In the scorer's tent, he turned to playing partner Gil Morgan to point out the error. Morgan had given Gallagher a birdie-4 on the 17th, where Gallagher had actually made par.

"Hell, I made everything else," Gallagher said as he corrected the card.

The way Gallagher played — an eagle to start, seven birdies and just one bogey tucked in the middle — Morgan's mistake was understandable.

Gallagher took five minutes to go over his card, make sure it was absolutely correct before he signed his name and consigned it to history at this most beautiful of old, forested courses.

"It's only the first day, but I'm off to an awful dang good start," said Gallagher of Greenwood, Miss.

Gallagher, still pumped from his Ryder Cup victory over Seve Ballesteros last month, jumped ahead of Scott Simpson, Corey Pavin and David Frost at 68. Six other players were tied at 69.

■ Tour Championship

The three players in the race for the major seasonal honors — Greg Norman, Nick Price and Paul Azinger — were nine shots off the pace at 72.

In gorgeous, blue-sky weather, shadows slanting across the fairways from the thousands of cypress and eucalyptus trees, Gallagher carved out a round that simply had to end with a birdie. And so it did, with a 20-foot putt from the fringe on which, he said, "the hole just got in the way."

It was that kind of enchanted round, a mere 23 putts, beginning with a 15-footer for an eagle on No. 1.

"I started it with a bang and ended it with a bang," Gallagher said. "I putted so good. You can ask Dr. Gil. He gave me a birdie on 17 because he just assumed I would make it from 12 feet."

Gallagher's lead is hardly safe. But along with his Ryder Cup success, this 63 was affirmation that, at age 31, Gallagher is up there with the best players even if he's just No. 21 on the money list.

It was also a long way from his first experience at the Olympic Club, where the previous record of 64 was shared by Rives McBee.

Courier ousted

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Jim Courier, Boris Becker and Sergi Bruguera — the Nos. 2, 3 and 5 seeds — lost in the third round Thursday on a day of sweeping upsets in the $1.65 million Stockholm Open.

■ Tennis Roundup

Marc Rosset used a powerful serve-and-volley game to defeat Courier 6-7 (7-5), 6-3, 7-6 (7-3) to reach the quarterfinals. Becker, a three-time champion, lost to Mali-Vai Washington 6-1, 6-3. Bruguera, the French Open champion from Spain, fell 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 to Jonas Svensson of Sweden.

No. 9 Petr Korda nearly went tumbling out, saving six match points in the decisive set against wild-card entry Anders Jarryd of Sweden to win 3-6, 6-2, 7-6 (10-8).

No. 6 Stefan Edberg and No. 4 Michael Stich were a bit steadier in surviving their third-round matches at Globe Arena.

Edberg, a two-time champion who has dropped to a No. 6 ranking, his lowest since 1984, ousted Andrei Cherkasov of Russia 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. Stich beat Magnus Gustafsson 7-6 (7-2), 6-4 in a match that ended at 1 a.m.

Edberg and Stich will meet in the quarterfinals Friday night. Stich is 5-0 against Swedish players in Sweden in the past month.

No. 8 Goran Ivanisevic of Croatia, the defending champion, advanced to the quarters with a 6-2, 6-4 victory over No. 10 Todd Martin.

Thursday's upsets came after Carlos Costa of Spain, ranked 30th in the world, knocked off world No. 1 Pete Sampras in three sets in a second-round match that ended just before midnight Wednesday.

Becker, who won the Stockholm Open in 1988 and 1990-91, dropped his serve twice in each set against Washington.

"Boris started a little bit slow and I was able to run through the first set pretty quickly," Washington said. "Today I got a good look on his serve and I read the ball pretty well."

For Becker, it was the fourth consecutive time that he made an early exit in an ATP tournament. Last week, the German lost in the first round at Lyon, France.

The setback virtually ended Becker's chance to defend his title at the ATP Tour World Championship next month in Frankfurt, Germany. The top eight in the point standings qualify to the ATP's year-ending tournament.

Nokia Grand Prix,0101

ESSEN, Germany — Anke Huber of Germany, who has trouble winning in her country, and Julie Halard of France were surprise losers in the Nokia Grand Prix.

The third-seeded Huber lost 6-2, 6-4 to Natalia Medvedeva of Ukraine, while South Africa's Elena Reinach outfought the eighth-seeded Halard, 6-3, 6-7 (5-7), 6-4.

Top-seeded Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario of Spain also struggled before slipping past Miriam Oremans of the Netherlands 7-5, 2-6, 6-4 to reach the quarterfinals.

Winning has down side for KSU

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State is like the penniless clerk who wins the lottery only to learn rich people have problems he never dreamed of.

When Kansas State was chugging along winning one or two games every season, nobody worried about how much the football coach made. Nobody cared.

The Wildcats may have been humble during those long decades of gridiron destitution, but they also were free of the police blotters and jealous professors.

And if once during those bad old days Kansas State ever had tied a national power, the lucky coach would have been cheered, not hounded.

Now, in the new good old days, however, coach Bill Snyder's 10-year contract has created a simmering controversy that reached to the highest offices of state government. Many in the academic community are in an uproar.

Two players recently were suspended after being charged with possession of a controlled substance.

And a week after the fact, Snyder still is catching heat for settling for a 16-16 tie with then-No. 16 Colorado.

Welcome to the big time, Kansas State. You wanted it, you got it.

The No. 25 Wildcats, who this week broke into the national rankings for the first time since 1970, face Oklahoma on Saturday. And perhaps it's fitting the Sooners are the opponent. If anybody's an expert on the perils of football affluence, it's No. 14 Oklahoma, which this time comes into the game relatively free of conflict.

"It's hard for (players) to remain focused for this ball game," said Snyder, whose annual contract of more than $250,000 was disclosed by order of the state attorney general. "It's been extremely hard for me. Obviously, I haven't dealt with it very well yet. But I will, and I'm sure our football team will."

■ MORE SPORTS/9C

The Sooners are making their first trip to Manhattan since 1987. Both schools agreed to play only at Oklahoma for a while since crowds at Kansas State had grown so puny and the Sooners always sold out.

"It's certainly going to be different," said Gary Gibbs, who in five years as Oklahoma head coach never has known Kansas State as anything but a home game.

Now that victories are rolling in, the Wildcats have been averaging almost 32,000 at KSU Stadium.

"The thing everybody has told me ... it's a very difficult place to play, very loud, a lot of enthusiasm," Gibbs said. "They've got a lot of confidence playing there at home. Everybody I've spoken with has mentioned it's a tough, tough place to play."

A victory would make Kansas State 1-1-1 in its three-game march through perennial Big Eight powers Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma and put them in position for a possible 9-1-1 record and a major bowl.

The players say they won't worry about such things as their coach's salary and what their history professor thinks about it.

"I think we're a lot more mature than that," said cornerback Thomas Randolph.

"We've got to beat Oklahoma," said running back J.J. Smith. "Who cares what he gets paid?"

Ohio St. coach's stock rises quickly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After Ohio State lost its first two Big Ten games last season, many fans wanted the school to fire John Cooper. Now Cooper is a leading contender for coach of the year.

No wonder.

The third-ranked Buckeyes (7-0) are off to their best start since 1979, have their highest ranking since 1986, and hold the outright lead in the Big Ten for the first time in seven years.

Instead of calling radio shows to criticize Cooper, fans are now talking about Ohio State's chances of winning its first national championship in a quarter century.

"Sure we think about it," Cooper said. "We set our goals high at Ohio State."

The Buckeyes are even wearing the same style jerseys as Woody Hayes' 1968 title team, with black stripes and numbers on their sleeves. But the comparison won't be taken seriously unless Ohio State wins its last four games, beginning with Saturday's showdown against No. 12 Penn State. The rest of the Buckeyes' schedule also is demanding, with games against No. 21 Wisconsin, No. 23 Indiana and No. 24 Michigan.

"This is the time of year when the pretenders fade and the contenders step up," safety Chico Nelson said. "We think we're contenders, and we're ready to prove it."

Although Cooper has won 66 percent of his games in six seasons at Ohio State, many Buckeye rooters still think he has a lot to prove. They point out that he is 0-4-1 against arch-rival Michigan, 0-4 in bowl games and 5-13-2 vs. ranked teams since coming to Columbus.

"They're right," said Cooper, who previously coached Tulsa and Arizona State. "We haven't beaten Michigan and we haven't won a bowl game. And I'm as disappointed by that as anyone."

Expectations are always high at Ohio State, where Hayes won 13 Big Ten titles and two AP national championships during his 28-year reign from 1951-1978. Just ask Earle Bruce, who was fired in 1987 after compiling an impressive 81-26-1 record with the Buckeyes.

"The only thing that satisfies Columbus is an undefeated season and the Rose Bowl champion ship," said Bruce, now a sports talk show host on a local radio station. "It's always been that way. If you don't win all the time, they're going to hit you in the head with a shovel."

Ohio State gets so much attention because there's no competition from pro sports. Although Columbus is the largest city in Ohio, it doesn't have an NFL, NBA, NHL or major league baseball team.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Forge ahead despite any barricades you encounter. You have the ability to move mountains and now is the time to do it. Greater financial security is promised you early in 1994. Although a romantic partner is fanciful at times, the two of you make a great team. Set shared goals. A strong emphasis on exercise and good nutrition will keep you in the best of health.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Richard Dreyfuss, actresses Kate Jackson and Winona Ryder, singer Randy Jackson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tact and diplomacy win people over to your way of thinking. Travel, educational pursuits and other mind-expanding activities are favored. Romance looks more rewarding than ever.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A good day for contacting people who wish to remain behind closed doors. Handy types can save money by doing their own home repairs. Do not take any unnecessary risks in romance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Catch up on odd jobs before beginning a large project. Discuss ways to accumulate savings with interested parties. Good communication will help strengthen a business or personal relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Self-employed people can increase their profit margin now. The fewer restrictions placed on you, the better off you will be. Friends could prove very helpful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Detail work should be checked and rechecked to prevent errors. Anything that promotes team effort enjoys favorable influences. Differences at home can easily be ironed out. Show more affection to mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stay calm, even if other people resort to panic measures. Higher-ups will be impressed by your aplomb. Show more initiative on the job. You and a co-worker are completely in tune.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Higher-ups may be difficult to please today. Your going along with their program will improve relations. A fun lunch provides a welcome breath of fresh air. Practice moderation in all things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone may be on edge and quick to flare up now. Keep a cool head and clear mind. Once you hit on a solution that works for you, stand tall. Defend your beliefs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Adopt a new business approach. Thanks to the help of loyal associates, you will have little difficulty getting what you want today. Romantic partner may demand more of your time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Turn down a business or financial offer that has too many strings attached. Keeping your temper under control will help you fare better at work and home. Harmony is quickly restored.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Welcome an opportunity to make important decisions. Other people look to you for leadership. Dig deeper to come up with the right answers. A new admirer gives you a meaningful gift.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An unusual financial scheme begins to work in your favor. Contact an influential person to get the best results. Romance occupies your thoughts. A move to another state prompts a big decision.

Opening lead: Ten of ♣ Accurate defense is a real test of one's deductive ability. You see only half your side's assets and what seems obvious is not necessarily correct. Consider this hand.

The opponents land in a routine four-spade game after a straightforward auction. Note North's jump raise with only three-card support. Since that player is a passed hand and a response of two diamonds, which is no longer forcing, might get passed, North had little choice except to raise spades to the appropriate level.

West led the ten of clubs and East won the first two tricks in that suit. What would you, as East, do at the third trick?

The ten of hearts is the obvious shift. Declarer can then rise with the ace, cross to the ace of diamonds and, carefully preserving all of dummy's trump entries, ruff a diamond. Declarer gets back to the board with a trump for another diamond ruff. Should either defender show out, declarer reenters dummy with a trump and leads a heart toward the queen and the contract will hinge on the location of the king of hearts. But when both defenders follow to the third diamond declarer uses one of dummy's remaining trumps as an entry to ruff out the last diamond and another to take a heart discard on the fifth diamond, making 10 tricks.

If East reasons that any heart losers declarer has can only get away on diamonds, the winning defense emerges from the shadows—attack dummy's entries. East must return a trump at trick three and one of declarer's dummy entries is spent before it can be put to productive use. As the cards lie, declarer will go down.

Guardian Angels' Lisa Sliwa to leave crime-fighting Curtis

NEW YORK — Lisa Sliwa said she's leaving her crime-fighting husband, Curtis, after 12 years of marriage. But they'll continue to spar on the radio.

"My feelings changed over a period of time," she said this week. "I didn't feel emotionally the way I felt before, but I still enjoy working with him."

Sliwa, who founded the Guardian Angels civilian patrols, wasn't as definite about the split as his wife was, and expressed hope they could patch things up.

"My feelings haven't changed about her," he said. "I love her more than anything I can think of in the world."

The two married in December 1981. They will continue their morning talk show on WABC.

NEW YORK — Go Jackie and Janet, Jermaine and Joe. On Randy and Reebie and Tito. And don't forget Michael.

The Jackson family will reunite on television for a two-hour NBC special to be broadcast around the world Jan. 10. It will be the first time in 19 years that the singing family will perform together on TV.

Aretha Franklin, Smokey Robinson, Dionne Warwick, Reba McEntire, Boyz II Men and Lou Gosset Jr. will salute the clan.

The show will be taped Dec. 11 in Atlantic City, N.J. La Toya Jackson was invited to participate in the special, but organizers hadn't heard back from her.

"Our family will also present Elizabeth Taylor and Berry Gordy with Life Time Achievement Awards, honoring old friends for their important global contributions," Jermaine Jackson, one of the executive producers, said Thursday.

Some of the proceeds from ticket sales to the show, the "Jackson Family Honors," will be given to charity.

NEW YORK — Pearl Jam isn't just making records. They're breaking them.

The rock band's second album, "Vs.," set a sales mark in its first week of release. Nearly 1 million copies were sold in five days, said Mike Shallett, chief operating officer of the record sales-tracking firm SoundScan.

"This is not a record done with a lot of pre-release airplay, video or hype," Shallett said. "This is a fan's record. These are real hard-core fans out this week."

The album was released Oct. 19. Pearl Jam's debut album, "Ten," sold 5.4 million copies domestically and remains in the top 25 best-selling albums nearly two years after its release.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Madonna caressed herself with the Puerto Rican flag during a concert. Not too smooth, said some pro-independence politicians.

David Noriega, an Independence Party legislator, said she desecrated the flag in front of 26,000 fans during the San Juan show Tuesday.

He called it a "monumental lack of respect for our country." Madonna's critics in the island's Legislature plan to file a resolution condemning her use of the flag.

Madonna's appearance in Puerto Rico already had religious leaders fuming. They called her "Girlie Show" indecent and immoral because of topless female dancers. They urged residents to tie black ribbons to trees in protest.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Arnold Schwarzenegger's new movie will have plenty of bangs and booms and blazes. And all are supposed to be environmentally correct during Florida scenes.

Filming of "True Lies" begins next month in the Keys. Stunts that include driving a car off the old Seven Mile Bridge and igniting a gasoline fire on the water rated a thumbs-down from state environmental regulators.

The Keys are a national marine sanctuary featuring the largest coral reef in North America. The car stunt could damage fragile sea grasses, regulators said. And the gasoline fire is an absolute no-no.

"Our philosophy is accommodate, but don't violate," said Michael Phillips of the state Department of Environmental Protection.

The filmmakers agreed that the car over the side of the old bridge will be lifted out by barge, not dragged across sea grass.

Prices retreat

NEW YORK — Oil prices fell again on Thursday despite an absence of news to encourage selling. The price drop accelerated as investors bailed out of their positions before prices could fall further.

December delivery of West Texas Intermediate settled at $17.37 per barrel, down 28 cents at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Crude prices, which rose sharply at the end of September as OPEC agreed to hold production steady for the next six months, have been dropping in recent weeks as traders have come to believe that prices went too high.

Crude has fallen $1.40 since the end of September, partly on doubts that OPEC can adhere to its latest production agreement. Prices are now closing in on the $17 per barrel mark last seen just before the OPEC agreement.

After trading ended for the day, an official of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said the cartel was confident members were sticking to the latest quotas. The OPEC official tried to downplay the significance of estimates that will be released soon by oil industry observers.

The official said any October production estimates released before the end of the month would be speculative.

Dollar falls

NEW YORK — The dollar slid against most currencies on Thursday as investors sold off the greenback in response to figures showing U.S. economic growth picking up.

Gold prices dropped. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold for current delivery closed at $369.10 a troy ounce, off 40 cents from Wednesday.

In New York, the dollar finished at 108.18 yen, down from 108.75 Wednesday.

Other dollar rates in New York compared with late Wednesday: 1.6750 German marks, down from 1.6795; 1.4785 Swiss francs, down from 1.4810; 5.8585 French francs, down from 5.8690; 1,626.00 Italian lire, down from 1,634.00; and 1.3228 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3179.

Record Dow

NEW YORK — Promising economic news and encouraging corporate financial results buoyed the stock market Thursday, hoisting blue chips to a new high.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 23.20 to 3,687.86, reaching its second record this week. It reached the previous peak of 3,673.61 on Monday.

The popular market measure swept past 3,700 for the first time ever and spent much of the session there before retreating back below the psychologically significant threshold in afternoon action.

Economy picks up in third quarter

■ Budget deficit in 1993 falls to lowest level in three years.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Economic growth picked up considerably in the July-September quarter, and the budget deficit in 1993 fell to the lowest level in three years.

President Clinton attributed the improvements to his policies and declared, "Now we're beginning to see real results."

The $5.1 trillion economy, as measured by the gross domestic product, the sum of all goods and services produced in the United States, grew at a seasonally and inflation-adjusted annual rate of 2.8 percent in the third quarter, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

That was the best growth so far this year, surpassing the modest 1.9 percent rate of the second quarter and the anemic 0.8 percent performance of the first. It came despite billions of dollars in crop damage from floods in the Midwest and drought in the Southeast.

The report helped boost the stock market, where the Dow Jones industrial average rose 23.20 points to 3,687.86, its second record this week.

Meanwhile, the budget deficit for fiscal 1993, which ended Sept. 30, totaled $254.9 billion. That is the lowest since 1990, down from a record $290.3 billion in 1992.

"Lower deficits and lower interest rates have sparked the beginning of a significant economic recovery," Clinton said.

But private economists pointed out that third-quarter rate only matches the weakest of the four quarters during George Bush's last year as president. And it was not strong enough to boost the job market out of its slow growth, they said.

"The economy is in a sedate expansion," said economist Robert G. Dederick of Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "I call this the disbelieved expansion. It's gone along, and no one has believed it's been there. Accordingly, business have been very cautious about hiring."

Laura D. Tyson, chairwoman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, said fourth-quarter growth should be stronger than the third because the Midwest flood no longer will be detracting from growth and auto manufacturers plan a substantial increase in production.

"The economy is on track for sustainable economic growth with low inflation," she said.

Lewis Alexander, the Commerce Department's chief economist, said growth for all of 1993 quite likely will exceed the administration's forecast of 2 percent and meet the 3 percent forecast next year.

But economist Jerry Jasinowski, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, cautioned that U.S. growth will continue to be held back by weak economies in Europe and Japan.

"For the next year, the outlook for the American economy will depend critically on the anticipated recovery overseas," he said. "Until exports pick up, the growth rate is unlikely to achieve a decisive breakout above the 3 percent threshold."

Third-quarter growth would have been even better — 3.4 percent — if not for corn and soybean crop losses from the deluge that swamped farms along the upper Mississippi River and the drought that seared the Southeast, the Commerce Department said.

Pilots to poll for sympathy strike moves

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines' pilots union said Thursday it will poll its members to find out whether they would join the carrier's flight attendants in a strike.

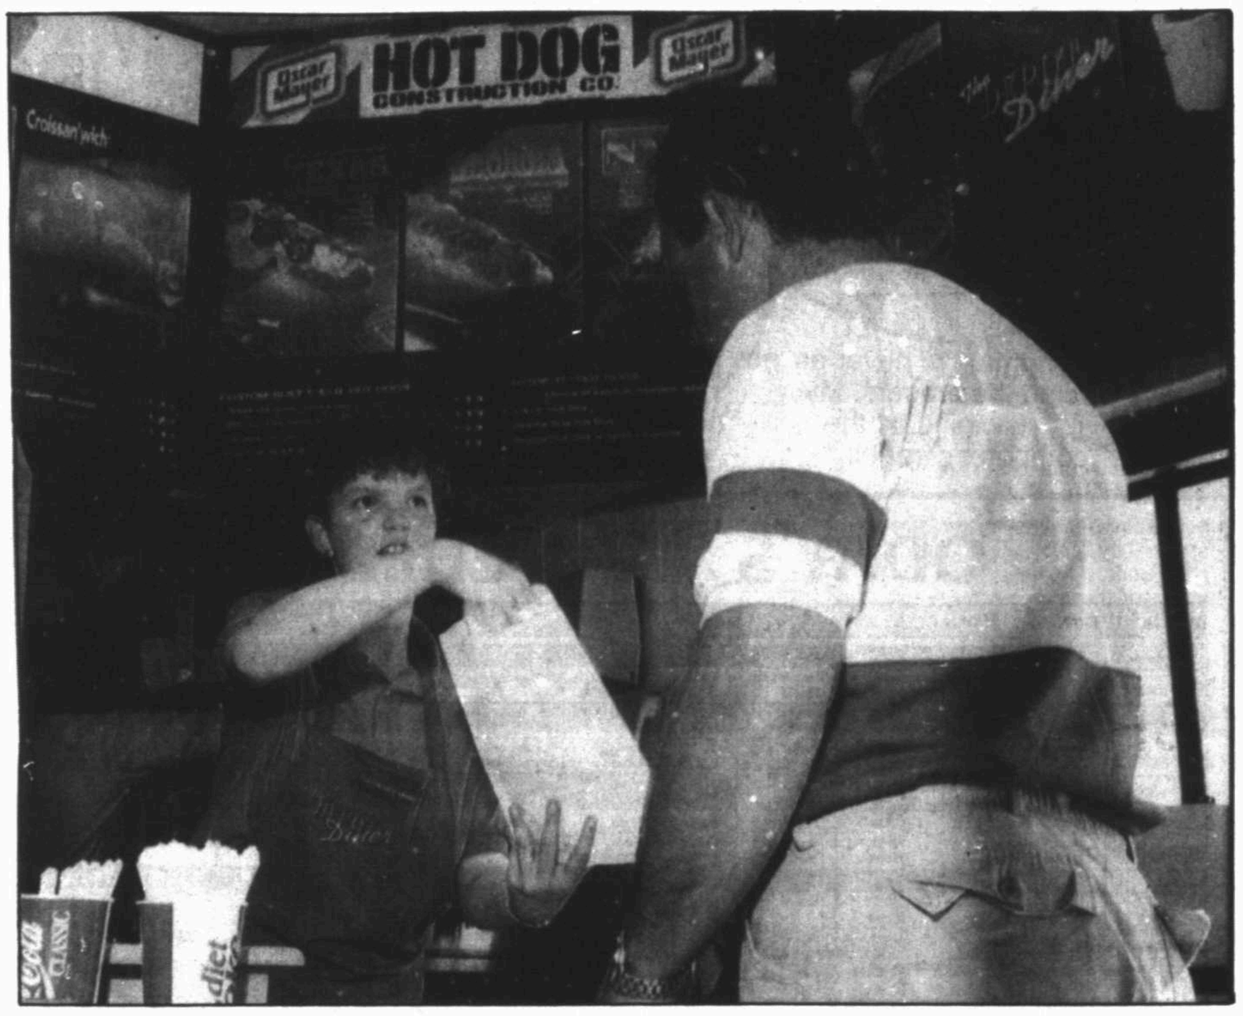

The board of the Allied Pilots Association, which represents 11,000 pilots flying for American and two of its American Eagle commuter airlines, pledged to support the flight attendants in the contract fight. The board, which met in San Francisco this week, also authorized union president Rich LaVoy to begin mailing out sympathy strike ballots.

The ballots will be due back in time for the flight attendants' union target strike date of Nov. 22, said Gregg Overman, spokesman for the pilots' union.

The ballot would allow the group to decide on an official sympathy strike. But individual pilots still can honor any Association of Professional Flight Attendants picket line, LaVoy said.

"Many individual APA pilots have already made that pledge," he said.

Negotiators for the union and the airline have been meeting in intensive negotiations since Monday in an attempt to agree on new contract terms. Joshua Javits, senior member of the National Mediation Board, is overseeing the talks.

Mortgage rates rise from 25-year low dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages rose to 6.86 percent this week, after hitting a 25-year low the previous week, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported Thursday.

This week's average was up from 6.74 percent a week ago. It was only the second increase in 13 weeks and the 10th consecutive week that rates averaged less than 7 percent.

The rate started 1993 at 8.07 percent and has been falling for most of the year, except briefly during the spring when investors became temporarily nervous about inflation.

GM narrows its third-quarter loss to $113 million

DETROIT (NYT) — General Motors Corp. said Thursday that it lost $113 million in the third quarter, compared with a $1.1 billion loss a year earlier, as red ink from its struggling North American auto operations overwhelmed profits earned abroad.

The loss was smaller than Wall Street had expected, particularly since GM reported Monday that it would take a $950 million charge against its earnings for the quarter, or $589 million after taxes, to pay laid-off workers.

The earnings worked out to a loss of 49 cents a share of common stock; GM shares, which had already climbed more than 9 percent since Monday's close on the New York Stock Exchange, rose further on the news.

GM shares were the second-most actively traded issue Thursday, closing at $49 each, up $2.125 a share.

GM, the world's largest auto maker, was the last of the Big Three to report earnings for the third quarter. Wednesday, Ford Motor Co. reported that it earned $463 million in the period, and at mid-month Chrysler Corp. reported profits of $423 million. The third quarter is historically a weak period, in part because of summer production shutdowns as plants prepare for new models.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Switching mutual funds can bring hefty tax bill

By Bill Doyle

Q: I am a 75-year-old widow. My late husband and I bought into a stock mutual fund in 1959. We paid $50 a month for 10 years, always reinvesting the dividends and capital gains distributions. I now have more than 9,000 shares, with a total value around $100,000.

Doyle

I called the fund's headquarters recently to arrange to receive monthly payments. They suggested the account be transferred to an income fund, which pays higher dividends.

Is that a good idea? I am petrified of making a wrong move.

A: As well you should be. Based on the information in your letter, the suggested switch would be a bad move. It would result in a large tax bill, leaving you with less money to put into the income fund.

It's true that income mutual funds are more suitable for senior citizens than stock funds. That's because income funds hold bonds and other fixed-income securities, making them less likely to bounce around in value than stock funds.

But the tax bite of the move you're contemplating would be severe. The move from one fund to the other would be a redemption — sale — and a purchase. Your profit from the sale would be a long-term capital gain, taxable at 28 percent.

The following numbers won't be exact, but they will give you the general idea:

You put $6,000 into the fund via 120 $50 monthly purchases. Let's say, over the years, you reinvested $6,000 of dividends and $6,000 of capital gains distributions. Your "basis" — cost for tax purposes — would be $18,000. By redeeming your shares at $100,000, you would have a profit of $82,000 — the difference between the redemption amount and your basis. At 28 percent, the long-term capital gains tax would be $22,960. Subtract that from the $100,000 redemption price and you would have $77,040 to buy shares of the income fund.

Rather than make that switch, my advice is to stay with the $100,000 stock fund account and set up a periodic withdrawal plan from which you receive steady checks. The money would come, first from dividends, next from capital gains distributions and, if necessary, from the redemption of some of your shares.

Q: My husband and I, both retired, have $25,000 sitting in a 2.46 percent savings account and $60,000 in certificates of deposit. He does not want to tie any of the $25,000 in a CD or anything else. I want to put $2,500 in a no-load stock mutual fund.

I carefully researched funds before picking this one. I am aware it is not guaranteed like a CD and could fall in value. I am willing to take the risk, but my husband is hesitant. Inflation and low interest on savings is hitting us hard.

Do you think my idea is sound?

A: Yes, for the reasons you mention. Historically, the share values of mutual funds holding stocks as investments have outpaced inflation.

Your proposal to put a small part of the family assets in a stock fund makes good sense. You wouldn't be going off the deep end and endangering a major part of your wealth.

Q: There are references to "average annual total return" in most mutual fund literature. Can you give an explanation of that term and the calculation used to determine the figure?

A: Total return is the generally accepted measurement of mutual fund performance over a period of time. It includes dividends and change in share value, assuming all dividends and capital gains distributions are reinvested to buy more shares.

It is arrived at in four steps, by multiply the number of shares owned by net asset value per share, subtracting the original investment, dividing by the original investment and multiplying by 100.

Say you invested $10,000 in a mutual fund, made the reinvestments and your shares are now worth $16,000. Go through the four steps and the final number is 60 percent.

Annual total return is the number for one year; average annual total return the average for whatever number of years are being calculated.

Five-foot-three back nears 2,000 yards

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Jessie Starling doesn't look the part of the leading rusher in the state of Texas.

At 5-3 and 150 pounds, Starling looks more like an undersized shortstop than the most dominating halfback in the state.

But with two games to go in the regular season and who knows how many more in the playoffs, Starling is just 12 yards shy of 2,000.

His teammates and friends call him "Bushwick" after the diminutive Bushwick Bill of the rap group Geto Boys. Coach Mike Clyde calls him "money."

"We have run seven different running plays this year. We run them out of different formations, but we basically run seven plays," Clyde said. "Five of them are to Jessie.

"Like my momma and daddy taught me, if it ain't broke don't fix it."

Starling's 248.5 yards per game has powered the 8-0 Mustangs to a No. 6 state ranking in Class A. His total of 1,988 leaves him with a shot at finishing among the top yard-gainers in Texas high school history, and his season total has led the state's premier Class 4A and Class 5A backs nearly every week.

State rushing yardage for Class 1A through 3A is not kept, but it is believed that Starling's total leads all runners.

Careerwise, though, Starling has slightly less than 2,700, because he hasn't had the opportunity to explode like he has this season. When he first joined the varsity as a sophomore, Clyde was going with a two-back offense that left Starling in a mop-up role.

And when it appeared Starling was poised to take over a superstar role, gaining 650 yards in his first five games last season, grades got him.

"It was a history (class)," Starling said. "I missed four or five games. I had to walk around in the bleachers. I hadn't done that since elementary. It was sad."

When this year's six-weeks grading period came up, there were a lot of nervous stomachs around Overton, but the Pepto Bismol bottle stayed capped at the Clyde home.

"The thing I'm most proud about Jessie Starling this season is, there wasn't any question mark about his eligibility," Clyde said. "He's asked tutors for help; he asked outside people to help. He is going to do everything he can to graduate.

"I think it was a complete lack of maturity. He had a lot of early success on the football field, and maybe he didn't quite handle that success the right way."

Clyde's candor comes within easy earshot of Starling, who shows no signs of disagreement with his coach's assessment. Help from his mother, his younger brother and a year to grow up helped him discipline himself, he said.

That success could have overwhelmed Starling seems inconceivable, judging by the friendly, shy-natured 17-year-old. He says he understands he will probably never get a shot at big-time football because of his size, but he is more concerned with getting his high-school diploma and going to junior college to continue his football career.

Starling's thighs may only span one-third of those of the East Texas runner by which all others are measured, Earl Campbell. But Starling shares one common trait with the NFL Hall of Famer besides wearing No. 34.

"The first tackler doesn't get me most of the time," Starling said with a slow grin. "I just run low to the ground and try to get by them."

Of course, Starling typically ducks under linemen's outstretched arms rather than power through them Campbell-style, which is fine by Clyde. In fact, anything Starling does on-field is fine by Clyde.

"I can't coach him," Clyde said. "When we coach him, we say, 'Run to the grass, son. Run to the green area.' It seems to be working."

Clyde, who coached at Oklahoma State as a graduate assistant from 1983-84, said Starling reminds him of a few major-league backs he worked with then.

"I was around Thurman Thomas and another All-America back we had, Earnest Anderson," Clyde said.

rookie year."

Chicago White Sox pitcher Jason Bere got 18 second-place votes and was runner-up with 59 points, well ahead of Boston pitcher Aaron Sele, who had 19 points and finished third.

Salmon's statistics would have been even more impressive if he hadn't missed the final 2½ weeks of the season. But an inning after hitting a grand slam in the Angels' 15-1 rout of Seattle on Sept. 15, Salmon broke his left ring finger while fielding a line drive.

"There has been a build-up to this point, so it hasn't been a total shock," Salmon said. "But to hear Jack (Lang, the secretary of the Baseball Writers Association of America) say 'unanimous,' that did surprise me.

"That means everybody who saw me play thought I was above and beyond all the rest of the rookies, and that means a lot to me. It's been a tremendous season for me, I've really enjoyed it, and this is just the icing on the cake."

Salmon said the biggest things to him in terms of accomplishments were his 95 RBIs and the 93 runs he scored.

Salmon came up to the Angels after hitting .347 in 1992 at Edmonton, leading the Pacific Coast League in homers with 29 and RBIs with 105. He was voted the PCL's most valuable player and selected minor league player of the year by several baseball publications.

He hit just .177 in 23 games with California in late 1992, but was assured a starting spot in their outfield for 1993.

"Salmon is the story of the year," Angels manager Buck Rodgers said at the end of the season. "He had twice the home run and RBI production we expected."

At the start of the season, more attention was focused on another highly regarded California rookie, first baseman J.T. Snow. Salmon didn't get off to a spectacular start, but Snow briefly led the AL in hitting. Snow then fizzled and was sent back to the minors before a late-season recall.

Salmon played at Grand Canyon College before the draft, hitting .356 with 19 homers and 68 RBIs in 65 games his senior year.

ed to go for a fourth-and-four at midfield. Odessa stopped the drive and went on to score on a game-winning 32-yard field goal by Brian Cook.

Last week, San Angelo returned to its high-octane offense of old, defeating Abilene High 35-6.

The San Angelo offense has been sparked by senior quarterback Byron Bode. Bode missed three weeks of the season before replacing Elliott Bowman. Bowman was moved to wideout where he has given the 'Cats a fourth receiver.

"Were starting to play a little better," said Gandy. "We had so many problems early. Bowman is a great kid, but he needed to be a receiver. Bode really wasn't ready after hurting his shoulder the second game.

"I think if we would have had him during those game he was out we would have had our best team since I've been here."

Last week against Abilene, Bode passed for 245 yard and three touchdown while running for another. Bode spread the ball around to his receivers.

Bowman, senior Andrew Graves and senior Bennie Dupre each caught touchdowns last week. Dupre is second in the district with 30 receptions for 415 yards and six touchdowns.

"They throw so much," said Reeger. "Bode is accurate and runs with the ball real well.

"Their receivers do a good job after they catch the ball. Looking at film they caught several balls 15-20 yards downfield and then picked up 15 more yards."

Midland High will start senior quarterback Johnny Paredes. Paredes, who was replaced by junior Craig Coleman, played in the fourth quarter of last week's 34-14 loss to Odessa High. Paredes completed five of seven passes for 41 yards and scored on an 8-yard run.

"Johnny has had the hot hand in workouts and last week when he was in there," said Reeger.

The offense will also look to junior running back Roy Coats. Coats had his best outing of the year with 183 yards on 21 carries and a touchdown.

Defensively, the Bulldogs will have to stop the Bobcats without linebacker Bill Kaul. Kaul has not practice this week after suffering an injury last week and is listed as doubtful. Linebacker Chad Stanley is also questionable with a bruised tail bone.

Defenders Matthew Gilmore, Joel Taylor and Jeremy Kimbell will miss the game as well as center Jacob Hernandez.

BREAK: Lee travels to Dallas

(From 1C)

We lose, we're out. That's all you can ask. At least we don't have to depend on someone else to do the job for us.

"That was the pleasing thing about the tie with Permian, that we keep control of our own destiny. We played about as well as we could play against Permian and Permian showed me a lot of character with that 90-yard drive on us late in the game. They showed why they were ranked No. 1.

"Still, I'm very pleased with our team, especially the offensive side of the ball. They impressed me against a tough Permian team. We had a lot going against us in that game. Permian had two weeks to prepare for us and we had one week to get ready for them. Then the week we had, there was bad weather to deal with. I don't think we could ask much more of our kids."

The break in the district schedule is good news, however, to Miller.

"We need a game right now where the pressure isn't as great. We can go out and work on some things and just have some fun. It doesn't mean much," Miller said. "The team is also healthy. We will hold Undra Graves out for the third week. He has a deep thigh bruise, but he should be able to play against Cooper. I know we could have used him in the secondary against Permian. We've been playing with three juniors in the secondary."

As far as the Rangers are concerned, Miller doesn't fully know what to expect.

Campanelli's suit dismissed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lou Campanelli, abruptly fired last season as California's basketball coach, had his lawsuit dismissed Thursday by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge Fern Smith said Campanelli, who claimed the firing damaged his reputation and his job prospects, failed to allege that University of California officials publicly disclosed the grounds for his dismissal or said anything to stigmatize him.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:

- You may request a quote, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.

- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

PARENT POSITIONS

We have been providing a positive path for children for over fifty years. Most of this positive influence is attributed to our home parents. Our home parents live in the home in their own private apartment, have a high school eduction and receive extensive training in parenting skills. Currently a need exists for home parent trainee couples at each location. If you have the desire and dedication to be a home parent, please write a letter of interest to:

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?
YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just wa ! to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?
Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?
Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
An initial $100 refundable deposit is required.
