Hurricane spares populous island

LIHUE, Hawaii — Hurricane Iniki steamrolled over the resort island of Kauai, leveling buildings, clogging roads with debris and severing communications. At least two people were killed on Kauai and one on neighboring Oahu.

At least 98 people were injured on Kauai, including seven who were hospitalized, said Phil Palmer, president of Wilcox Hospital, the island's largest hospital. The island suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damage, Mayor JoAnn Yukimura said.

Yukimura confirmed that two people on Kauai were killed by the storm, but further details on the deaths weren't immediately available. One person was killed on Oahu Island in a fire caused by a candle used during a power outage. Oahu is separated from Kauai by an 80-mile-wide channel.

Oahu, Hawaii's most populous island, was spared the brunt of the storm.

Clinton's not only one who avoided draft

■ As Vietnam generation takes reins of leadership, resumes show many politicians found ways to avoid service.

By Jackie Koszczuk
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — If Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton avoided the draft during the Vietnam War, he had plenty of company. Many men who find themselves in positions of political leadership today — and quite a few of Clinton's Republican critics — likewise found ways to keep a safe distance from combat in Southeast Asia.

Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, a College Station Republican who may seek the presidency in 1996, was of draft age during the Vietnam era but got a series of deferments from 1965 to 1970 that kept him out of the military, according to records of the U.S. Selective Service System.

Other top Republicans were exempted from the draft for college study, for medical reasons or because they were fathers. The list includes Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich.

"I think a number of high-ranking Republicans live in very fragile glass houses," said Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, who joined an Army reserve unit during the Vietnam War.

The Republican nominee has impeccable military credentials, and President Bush's story of being shot down as a young Navy pilot is a campaign staple

Septemberfest makes splash

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff writer

"Don't push it," said Dr. Shelton Viney, a Midland surgeon.

He was too late.

Splash. He came up for air in the dunking booth at Septemberfest, which continues today from noon to 5 p.m. at the Museum of the Southwest, and saw the next youngster who had been handed a ball.

"Oh, this does not look good," he said, preparing himself to hit the water again.

But try as hard as he could and despite the fact that he hit the right spot, 10-year-old Daniel Foley could not get the bar to release Viney into the dunking booth Saturday.

"We've got a good perch this time," Viney said. He laughed too soon. Jimmy Bridges, who was responsible for picking up the balls and handing them to the next culprit, hit the bar, dousing Viney as he did.

The idea was contagious. On his way out, Daniel ran by the bar, waving "Bye, Bye" as he popped it with his hand. Down Viney went again. Those waiting their turn laughed. They agreed Daniel, who is the son of Keith and Linda Foley, deserved his turn.

The next participant hit the bar in just the right spot twice in a row. Viney came up for air and as he climbed back up, he laughed and said, "That's hard on an old man."

Then he retaliated by throwing pecans he had picked up off the ground at his opponent.

Midland students surpass national SAT average

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Scholastic Aptitude Test scores among high school students in Midland remained ahead of national and state averages, despite spending $1,000 less per student than the average Texas school district, MISD officials said.

The 1992 SAT combined score for Midland Independent School District students is 917, 18 points higher than the national average and 43 points above the state average.

"This caliber of output is remarkable when you consider our district's input factors," said Joseph Baressi, MISD superintendent.

MISD spends an average of $3,934 per student. The state average for each student is $4,934.

'We are pleased with the overall results of the SAT. These scores speak well of the hard work of our students, teachers and their parents.'

— Joseph Baressi, MISD superintendent

"We are pleased with the overall results of the SAT. These scores speak well of the hard work of our students, teachers and their parents," Baressi said.

SAT scores also rose a few points nationally, the first increase since 1985.

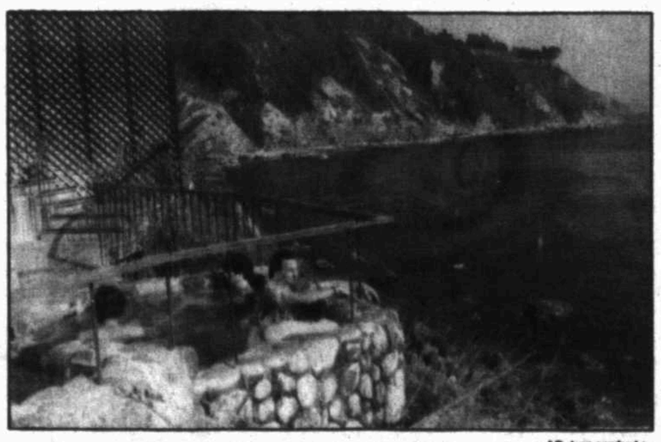

Midland officials stressed the importance of high scores.

"Millions of dollars of scholarships are given out based on these scores, so they are important," said Bill Denton, assistant superintendent for MISD.

The 1992 SAT results included four National Merit Finalists, five National Merit Semifinalists and 11 Commended Scholars.

Additionally, Midland students ranked in the top 10 percent of their class and reported an average score of 1111 — 54 points above their state peers and 14 points higher than the national average. Those numbers only included students who reported their scores.

Americans seek a state of bliss

EDITOR'S NOTE — Nearly everyone says it from time to time: "If only (fill in the blank), then I'd be happy." Though such longing is human nature, it has never been more intense. Generations past may have made do with a parish priest or a visit to the neighborhood tavern, but no more. Today, millions of people are spending billions of dollars on the path to fulfillment, often only to find it neverending. The first of a three-part series, "Are We Happier?," looks at the great American pursuit of happiness.

BIG SUR, Calif. — Not long after dawn, the Esalen Institute's communal hot tubs begin to fill with early risers and some bashful others dodging peak-hour crowds.

It's quiet at first, a handful of bathers contemplating the ribbon of fog stretched along the Pacific shoreline far below. Grown-ups wearing no more than a wristwatch, sloshing about like awkward, overgrown children.

ey's who said the doctor "saved my life," pointed out to Viney that he had 25 minutes left. The person waiting to throw added the following encouragement — "Doctor, you're moving kind of slow."

As Viney counted the minutes until he could escape the dunking booth, 4-year-old Stacy Fitzhugh, the daughter of Anette and Eric Fitzhugh, was in a totally different frame of mind. The last thing she wanted to do was leave the petting zoo in the Kinderfest area at Septemberfest.

"I still want to stay here," she said, looking somewhat forlorn. She had just captured the chicken for the second time, but it had escaped.

"She loved that chicken," her mother said. "Anything you can hold, she loves."

Stacy's attention was diverted to the other animals in the zoo — goats, sheep and a rooster. Suddenly, the chicken came within her reach again. As she tried to nab it, her father said, "Stacy, leave that chicken alone. That chicken is tired."

He was right. The chicken took a break, nestling her head under her wing.

The chicken was not the only tired body at Septemberfest Saturday by 5 p.m. The Las Manos volunteers had worked since early morning, yet none seemed to be complaining.

"It's an excellent turnout," said Debbie Springer, chairman of Septemberfest. "The weather's wonderful. The Preview Party was a huge success."

The estimated head count for children and adults by 4 p.m. Saturday was 8,000. General admission for the Friday night preview party had been 544 in addition to the 450 sponsors at the event.

"Our local artists are doing great," Mrs. Springer said. "We have artists from as far away as Laramie, Wyo. A good deal of artists have already told me they have doubled their sales — what they did last year for the whole weekend, they have doubled by this point this year."

Carole and Don Schupp were among those artists pleased with the response.

"We've more than doubled what we did last year at this time," said Mrs. Schupp of Enamels, etc., from Regina, N.M., and Mesa, Ariz., who was among the artists here last year. "People remember."

Out of the 70-plus artists at this year's event, which continues today on the museum grounds, 40 percent are new, Mrs. Springer said.

"I think we've covered all price ranges this year," Mrs. Springer said, adding that the prices vary from $10 and up. "Even though the sales have increased, there's still plenty to buy."

Septemberfest is a fund-raiser sponsored by Las Manos, the museum's auxiliary organization, and takes about 1,000 volunteers to present.

In addition to the artists booths, the event features Foodfest, cuisine prepared by local organizations and clubs; Kinderfest, activities for children such as "Pan for Gold," "Confetti Eggs" and "Cookie Decorating"; Carfest, a 1993 car show; and Musicfest.

Today's performance schedule features Advocate, a Christian rock band, at 1 p.m. and the Sandhills Blue Grass band at 3 p.m. Also on the venue are Jiminez Tae Kwan Do, Oops Alley Clowns, Las Adelitas, Harlin the Magician, Pickwick Players, Suzie's C&W Dancers and Z4U-Zachary Brothers.

Hours are noon to 5 p.m. today at the museum, 1705 W. Missouri Ave. Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens, $1 children 3 to 12 and free to those under 3.

Inside the museum, people will find an exhibition of works by 16th and 17th century Dutch, Flemish and German painters, including a Rubens and an exhibition of works by sculptor Allen Houser.

In addition, the Marian Blakemore Planetarium, located on the museum grounds and adjacent to Haley Park, is showing programs hourly today.

damage estimate for Kauai of $350 million to $500 million, but added, "It is clear it will be over that, maybe over a billion dollars."

Power was out throughout the island and there was no estimate on when it might be restored.

"I saw total devastation. It broke my heart," she said. "Our whole island is really devatated. It was islandwide. There is incredible human suffering in terms of loss of homes and dislocation of their lives."

Yukimura spoke at Lihue Airport after returning from an aerial tour of the island with Gov. John Waihee.

The governor said the Poipu resort area appeared the worst damaged, with beachfront homes and businesses destroyed by waves.

"Where once you saw a beautiful beach park, now you don't see it," he said.

Waihee said he expected the disaster to far surpass that caused by Hawaii's last Hurricane, Iwa, in 1982.

"Hurricane Iwa was just a preliminary compared to this," he said.

Jim Whaley, a Hawaiian Telephone Co. employee who flew over the island by helicopter, said the damage he saw reminded him of what south Florida looked like after last month's Hurricane Andrew.

More than half of the homes in Lihue appeared to have suffered substantial damage, he said, many with roofs blown off. Several helicopters at Lihue Airport were overturned and boats at the Port Allen harbor were piled on top of each other or on their sides.

In Poipu, he said, some hotels were heavily damaged and many houses were destroyed.

"Houses were knocked off their foundations or knocked flat," he said.

With sustained wind of 130 mph and gusts up to 160 mph, Iniki was the most powerful storm to hit Hawaii this century and the island chain's first hurricane in a decade. It veered onto a course that took it over the lightly populated western side of Kauai on Friday afternoon.

President Bush, who had been criticized for a slow response to Hurricane Andrew after it ripped through Florida and Louisiana last month, declared most of Hawaii a federal disaster area at Waihee's request.

Lihue Airport, its control tower knocked out, was ordered closed to civilian aircraft for at least 48 hours. Hawaii Air National Guard cargo planes took off from Honolulu at dawn to deliver communication equipment, portable kitchens, medical and other relief supplies.

Rescue teams and supplies also quickly poured in from the mainland.

California sent two 56-member search and rescue teams to Hawaii. Six National Guard planes from California flew in to help transport supplies, including Meals Ready to Eat, Yoshioka said. More than 1.2 million military MREs were ready to be sent to Kauai from Oahu, Stickney said.

Bush made federal aid immediately available to the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, Niihau, Lanai and Kahoolawe.

Temperatures climb to 90

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies, a high near 90 and south winds at 10 to 20 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in the mid-60s.

Monday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 90s.

After an overnight low of 59, Saturday's high was 87 compared with the record high for that date of 101 set in 1930. The record low for today's date was 49 in 1959.

STATE

Flooding rains hit parts of the lower Texas coast Saturday and spawned a funnel cloud in Poteet, 28 miles south of San Antonio.

Showers and thunderstorms slowly pushed inland, south of a line from just east of San Antonio to just south of Eagle Pass.

Mostly cloudy skies were reported over a cool North Texas. The normal high temperature at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport for Sept. 12 is 91 degrees. As of 3 p.m., the airport had reported a high of 86.

Afternoon temperatures across the state generally were in the 70s and 80s.

In North Texas, the weather will be warmer today under partly cloudy skies. Scattered thunderstorms are possible.

Meteorologists say South Texans will see cloudy skies through Monday. Lows will be in the upper 60s in the Hill Country.

NATION

High surf washed the Hawaiian Islands on Saturday, one day after Hurricane Iniki slammed the island of Kauai with sustained winds of 140 mph. Heavy rain caused some minor flooding in Texas.

By midday, rainshowers and thunderstorms extended over parts of southern Texas, Florida, central Nebraska and the northern Rockies.

Thunderstorms in Texas dumped 4½ inches of rain at Raymondville between Friday evening and Saturday morning. Some streets were flooded in the city and in Brownsville.

Heavier rainfall during the 6 hours ending at 1 p.m. CDT included 1.48 inches at Kingsville, Texas, and 1.06 inches near Corpus Christi, Texas.

Wind gusts of 50 mph were reported at Casper, Wyo., at midday.

Record low temperatures for the day included the 38 at Youngstown, Ohio, which tied the 1967 mark.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. CDT ranged from 50 degrees at Mullan, Idaho, to 100 degrees at Needles, Calif.

Industry grows to offer contentment guides

Associated Press

Some of the oldest and still most practiced "how-to's" of happiness can be found in that all-time best seller, the Bible. But the road between those long-ago scribes and today's gamut of gurus is long — and crowded.

Well over 4,000 self-help books are published each year, heirs to an American tradition that stretches back to the first Puritan settlers who read books such as Samuel Hardy's "Guide to Heaven," published in 1673.

By the 18th century, a more secular style emerged in the writings of one of America's original success stories, Benjamin Franklin. He published a number of books through the mid-1700s, including "The Way to Wealth" and "Poor Richard's Almanac."

During the Industrial Revolution's unprecedented economic opportunity in the mid-1800s, books on the pursuit of wealth and self-made dreams-come-true appeared in growing numbers. But by the turn of the century, there emerged a more philosophical bent, exemplified by Ralph Waldo Emerson's transcendental meditations and Bruce MacLelland's "Prosperity through Thought Force."

The self-improvement movement has taken firm root in the 20th century, with classic books defining such genres as how-to success (Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People" in 1936), how-to spirituality (Norman Vincent Peale's "The Art of Living" in 1938) and how-to health (Gayelord Hauser's "Look Younger, Live Longer" in 1950).

Among the biggest sellers are self-help guides for women, the first Victorian volumes of which had names such as the "Ladies Guide in Health and Disease. Girlhood, Maidenhood, Wifehood, Motherhood" and "Chastity; Its Physical, Intellectual, and Moral Advantages."

About this time, the psychoanalytical theories of an Austrian guy called Sigmund Freud were beginning to catch on. A half-century later, some 450 therapeutic schools of thought exist, from bioenergetic therapy to primal scream to Rolfing and other forms of "deep-tissue" massage.

Tens of thousands of psychotherapists hold office hours in the United States today, their methods ranging from the traditional (Freudian and Jungian analysis) to the alternative (Masters and Johnson's sex therapy).

As the millenium winds down, support and recovery groups have moved to the forefront of the self-help phenomenon. From a few chapters in the 1930s to some 50,000 in the 1990s, Alcoholics Anonymous has provided the blueprint for countless 12-step programs for dealing with the most obscure of problems.

George Gallup Jr.'s polling data indicate one in three Americans have participated in some kind of support group. Millions more have tried psychotherapy, and just about everyone has picked up a self-help book or scanned the advice column in a magazine.

"People long for some type of happiness and they're willing to spend money," says psychologist Gerald Rosen, who chaired the American Psychological Association's now-defunct self-help task force.

"It's is a big industry," Rosen says. "No question. A very big industry."

SEARCH: Americans seek elusive happiness

(From 1A)

drove up from Hollywood for a weekend retreat at this, the granddaddy of all human-potential centers. "But I don't like to call it that."

For an instant, the woman looks puzzled. Then her eyes widen and her head begins to bob: "Ohhh," she chimes. "I know what you mean. When you come expecting heaven, things always fall short."

An uneasy silence follows, broken only by the barking of sea lions at play in the surf beneath Esalen's cliffside perch. It sounds like a taunt: "See how easy it is?" they seem to say. "This is happiness."

But evolution has played a nasty trick, drawn us into a perpetual game of hide-and-seek with this thing the Declaration of Independence only guarantees the right to pursue. In 1992, happiness is a sophisticated business.

The number of books on the topic has quadrupled in recent years and the therapy industry has more than tripled in size. Excruciatingly frank talk shows dominate afternoon TV, and entire catalogues are devoted to marketing meditational tapes and inspirational videos. People pay hundreds of dollars and travel thousands of miles to retreats like Esalen.

Generations born after World War II grew up hearing how happiness was theirs to grab. After all, America was No. 1, the undisputed postwar leader in science and technology. The economy was booming, educational opportunity expanding, social barriers crumbling at every turn.

Soon women were going to have equal rights, and minorities their civil rights. Drugs promised higher consciousness and the sexual revolution promised freedom from old Victorian convention.

This generation of young people would have "careers" rather than jobs, spouses who were sensitive, bodies that were beautiful, goals fulfilled, selves completely actualized. They would have it all, or at least have a great time trying.

And so, rich and poor, many young people showed up at life's buffet assuming their plates would be filled. Maybe their Depression-era parents and grandparents were satisfied just to have food on the table, but things were different now. Something more profound than getting by was out there.

It was just a matter of finding it.

"We watched our parents live with misery. They basically settled," says Penny Sharbino, hoisting another beer at Woody's Ice House. "For us, we were told things would be better, that we'd have all these choices. Then we became adults."

It's past 11 p.m. on a Thursday. Voices echo through the drafty mechanic's garage cum poolroom on the edge of Natchitoches, a rural Louisiana town rimmed by historic plantations and several bends of the Red River.

The music is loud and by now, after several rounds, people's tongues are loosened on convenient new best friends. Sharbino, 26, and Sherry Byers are hunched on barstools, assessing love and marriage in 1992.

Byers is divorced. Sharbino, a pretty Southern blond, does not know that six weeks later she and her husband will be deep in the process. Right now, she's still counting on marriage counseling. Maybe they can learn to relate.

"I've known I was unhappy in my marriage a long time. But do I want to leave it?" she says. "Maybe our parents were happier not knowing so much. The problem is, the more educated you are, the more you want and expect."

Baby boomers are four times likelier to say they're not satisfied with their lives than are people of their parents' generation, according to an Associated Press poll. Experts estimate the incidence of psychological depression is 10 times what it was pre-World War II.

Expectations have vaulted higher and higher — perhaps so high that real life inevitably would fall short for some. At the same time, just as this thing called happiness seemed an attainable goal, the rules were changing.

Giddy sexual freedom ground to a halt with AIDS. Recreational drugs and drinking landed millions in rehabilitation clinics. The price of an afternoon at the movies climbed to $7 and comfort foods were demonized for their high cholesterol.

The 1980s wound down in recession and permanent lay-offs for 1.4 million white- and blue-collar workers. Those with jobs sense thinner ice with each round of factory or corporate layoffs. Neither union brotherhood nor the mother company are guaranteed life preservers.

We know that a hole has opened in the ozone, that smoking kills, that one in four girls are sexually abused, that the known rape rate has quadrupled, that the violent crime rate has quintupled, that half of all marriages end in divorce.

We've been told that 96 percent of us come from dysfunctional families and may consequently harbor a "wounded child within." Not me, you say? Perhaps you're in denial.

"It seems we are all victims. And if we're not, then we're repressing something," says the Rev. William Nolte, 69, a Roman Catholic priest in Martinsburg, W.Va. "Ever since World War II, the idea of putting on a smile and sacrificing for others has been out of style."

This draws a laugh from two young colleagues who have joined Nolte in the sun-splotched rectory living room. They've heard mixed messages.

"People yelled at me, 'Eh, why are you leaving? You're earning good money and have an excellent future,' " says John Bocan, 28, who left the banking fast-track in Pittsburgh to become a pastoral minister at St. Joseph's.

"Me, I had a lucrative job in the Army. I was a helicopter pilot and homeowner. But it wasn't enough," says Herb Peddicord, 33, now director of religious education for the small-town parish.

They don't make much money. They're both still single and unsure of the future. But there's this banner flapping out front the church's 12-foot Greek Revival columns. "Come On Home," it says.

"Being part of a community, working with people instead of against them — that's spirituality. That's what's missing: spiritual peace," Bocan says.

"There's a lot of surface happiness out there. But I think deep down people — especially young people — are just very lonely," says Peddicord. "A lot of people feel cut off."

The majority of Americans live in urban or suburban areas, away from nature and its consoling rhythms. Communities have fragmented, children migrated to better jobs, mom and pop's Main Street store replaced by strip malls that look pretty much the same from one town to the next.

We may listen to television talk at us rather than talking to one another. On warm evenings, we often are inside by the air conditioner rather than out on the porch, shooting the breeze with neighbors or passers-by. We drive around in cars and are mostly in a hurry.

Half of those polled for the AP by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., said marriage, friends and family contribute most to their happiness — four times as many as credited such individual pursuits as career or hobbies.

But the standard 1950s nuclear landscape has been reshaped by feminism and economics. More than half of mothers today work outside the home, many coexisting uneasily with a guilty sense that neither the job nor children are getting enough attention.

Men are supposed to pitch in, and many do. But studies indicate the vast majority still find child care and housework more or less optional activities, certainly not the sort of thing their fathers had to do.

Women shuttle between the promise of strength and equality and warnings about the perils of loneliness, barrenness, flabby thighs. Men wonder why they're folding laundry when Robert Bly's best-selling book urges a search for their warrior souls.

"And all the while, these questions are brewing: Am I doing the right thing? Have I done what I set out to do? Am I happy?" says Kim Bragg, who works at The Tot Spot in Middletown, Va. "I think about where I could be. I think about that every day."

The child care center's walls are lined with cut-out lambs and flowers. Two dozen little bodies bounce here and there, laughing and clamoring for attention. Bragg loves these kids, too many of whom are from troubled homes.

She's doing her best with two toddlers of her own. But this isn't the career she planned. In the late '70s, when she was in high school, the world was her oyster. Maybe she'd try nursing, or a singing career.

"I never wanted children until I was 30. It happened before I got all my running around done," says Bragg, whose husband's business keeps him on the road a lot. "I love my kids, but it's hard sometimes."

Ninety-two percent of Americans say they're satisfied with their lives, according to the AP poll. But of those, one in four use self-help books, recovery programs or counseling to make themselves happier.

"It's a perpetual search for Mr. Goodbook, the idea that maybe the next one will be the one that solves all my problems and finally makes me happy," says Steven Starker, author of "Oracle at the Supermarket: The American Preoccupation with Self-Help Books."

"It's like buying a lottery ticket. You know you're probably not going to win," he adds. "But there's always a chance."

Bill Wilson and Dr. Bob had no idea what they unleashed when they came up with 12 steps to alcoholic recovery in 1935. Today, their formula provides the blueprint for Gamblers Anonymous, Sex-oholics Anonymous, Messies Anonymous, Overeaters Anonymous, Shoplifters Anonymous, Parents Anonymous, Spenders Anonymous, Emotions Anonymous and on and on ...

"Groups are developing left and right. I just got across my desk a group that's forming for people who have been struck by lightning," says Edward Madara of the American Self-Help Clearinghouse in Denville, N.J.

It may sound laughable, he admits, but in fact his own daughter had a boyfriend who was killed by lightning.

"There's a tendency to trivialize or think it's funny, but these groups are opening doors on issues and giving people some sense of community. When they walk into the room, they know they're not alone."

These groups — to which an estimated 12 million to 15 million Americans belong — represent a new kind of community, a modern religion binding people together in understanding. Talking openly about incest or wife-beating, alcoholism or unemployment has afforded millions relief from isolation.

If even one family's destructive cycle is broken, one child protected from harm, then who would say the new awareness isn't all to the good?

But where to draw the line? Some say we are becoming a nation of victims, paralyzed rather than empowered by what we know. Do we really need another star's confession? Another chat show featuring born-again cross-dressers for peace? At what point does healthy self-awareness become unhealthy self-absorption?

"I wonder if in the '90s we're not beginning to see a shift back toward an appreciation of close relationships and a communal mentality. For all our pursuit of individual happiness, there's no evidence that we're happier today than when we had much less," says David G. Myers, a social psychologist and author of the new book "The Pursuit of Happiness: Who is Happy — and Why."

Maybe Dorothy was onto something. Forget the land of Oz, she said. Happiness is found in the gardens we tend, the people we love. Maybe, in the words of the late songwriter Harry Chapin, "It's got to be the going, not the getting there that's good."

Arlene Savakus sighs, smiles and leans back in her booth at the Delaware Water Gap Diner, a neighborhood place just off Interstate 80 in eastern Pennsylvania. Starting with Reichian therapy some 40 years ago, she's devoted a lot of time to questions of self-fulfillment. She's thought a lot about happiness and watched her thirty-something kids grope toward it.

"For a long time, we were all walking around with a lot of shame kept behind a facade. 'You shouldn't know my pain,' that's what we were taught," says Savakus, a part-time tax consultant whose bangles and flowered pedal-pushers betray a Bohemian bent.

"Then we all were told to open up, get in touch with our feelings, learn about our dysfunction. But dysfunctional doesn't have to mean nonfunctional," she says. "We are all wounded birds. But ultimately, we have to accept responsibility and get on with life."

Moments later, a gray-haired black man who refuses to give his name looks up briefly from his bowl of soup and crackers:

"The problem is that young people today say you've got to make yourself happy before you can make anyone else happy. That's a spoiled way of thinking," he says. "Sometimes you're better off just looking down and being happy there are vegetables in your vegetable soup."

Then he swivels back to the counter, back to enjoying his lunch.

NEXT SUNDAY: Since the time of Plato, people have yearned for self-improvement, striven to make the best possible life for themselves and their children. But over the last three decades of plenty, the tide of promises has steadily pushed expectations to a high-water mark. The second part of a three-part series, "Are We Happier?," examines the megaindustry that caters to — and promotes — the search.

SAT: Midland students surpass national average

(From 1A)

MISD officials believe the high scores are also impressive because of the high percentage of local students who took the test, slightly over 51 percent of Midland high school seniors.

"High participation speaks well of the high expectations of our students but usually leads to a lowering of the mean score," said Joe Cummins, executive director of planning, evaluation and testing.

Officials of the College Board agree with this analysis, stating "the most significant factor in interpreting SAT scores is the proportion of eligible students taking the exam — the participation rate. In general, the higher the percentage of students taking the exam, the lower will be the average scores.

"In some states, for example, a very small percentage of the college-bound seniors take the SAT. Typically, these students have strong academic backgrounds and are applicants to the nation's most selective colleges and scholarships programs. Therefore, it is to be expected that the SAT verbal and mathematical averages reported for these states will be higher than the national average," according to the College Board.

The SAT is a 2½-hour, multiple-choice test that measures developed verbal and mathematical reasoning abilities related to successful performance in college. SAT scores are intended to be used with the secondary school record and other information about the student in assessing readiness for college-level work.

Student performance on the SAT is reported on a scale of 200 to 800 on math and verbal sections of the test, with a standard error of measurement of about 30 points.

DRAFT: Resumes show many politicians found ways to avoid service

this year. But war-hero resumes for men who aspire to become the nation's commander-in-chief are becoming rare as the Vietnam generation takes the reins of leadership.

The Vietnam War, one of the most polarizing eras in modern American history, altered perceptions of patriotism held during World War II and the Korean War, said George Christian, who was press secretary to the late president Lyndon Johnson, who escalated American involvement in Vietnam in the 1960s.

"For a period in American history, it was your patriotic duty to serve," he said. "If you didn't do it, there was presumed to be something wrong with you unless you had a good excuse. I think that's fading away."

In Congress, about two-thirds of the lawmakers who were of draft age during Vietnam never served in the military.

That rate reflects the experience of the general populatation of draft-age men at the time. Of the 27 million men who came of age from 1964 to 1973, less than half of them, about 11 million, served in the regular armed forces or in reserve units. Many young men were exempted for medical or family reasons, got deferments or were simply not called up in the draft or the lottery, which began in December 1969 and effectively eliminated deferments. Only 2.2 million actually served in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Congress also reflects one of the lingering embarrassments from the war.

A policy of protecting the nation's brain trust with the academic deferment system resulted in a disproportionate number of minorities and people from the low-income strata fighting the war. The current generation of politicians tends to be drawn from a white, elite segment of the population that went to college, graduate school or law school and so were not drafted as readily as minorities and working-class men.

"The Army and all the armed forces had a large proportion of blacks in combat units, a larger proportion than the general population," Christian said. "There was a heck of a lot of young white men getting deferments. During World War II, your number came up and you went."

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., who won the Medal of Honor and lost a leg in Vietnam, said Thursday that the draft issue has unnecessarily resurrected the pain of Vietnam. Addressing himself to the president in a Senate floor speech, Kerrey said, "The choices you faced were much different than the ones Bill Clinton and I faced. ... The nation became so polarized that we only saw two choices: total victory or total withdrawal."

Clinton's critics charge that he used inordinate means, not available to the average young man, to dodge the draft, and they cite recent reports that a now deceased uncle may have pulled strings to secure a slot for Clinton in the Navy reserves.

Earlier in the campaign, Clinton acknowledged that he had signed up with the ROTC program at the University of Arkansas to avoid induction, and that the deferment allowed him to do graduate work as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University in England.

Clinton has said that he opted out of the ROTC deferment after having second thoughts, was then vulnerable to the draft when the lottery was created but got too high a number to be called.

"On the surface it appears he tried to be a little slippery about it," said Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, who received a student deferment during the war. Barton later was exempted from military service when he failed the physical exam because of high blood pressure.

Other attacks have focused on Clinton's willingness to accept what were then quite common student deferments. There, his critics in the GOP are vulnerable to glass-house rebuttals.

"My many friends among veterans are outraged," said Rep. Jerry Solomon, R-N.Y., a Marine during the Korean War. "Especially those who served and sacrificed when Bill Clinton was enjoying a post-graduate scholarship in England. A lot of good men marched through the rice paddies of Vietnam so that Bill Clinton could throw darts and drink ale in English pubs."

The reality is that Solomon could be describing any number of his friends and colleagues in both political parties who got exemptions for advanced study or who avoided combat in other ways.

The roster of leading Democrats who were of draft age but opted out of active duty in Vietnam includes House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., a Democratic presidential candidate in 1988, and Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, both of whom joined National Guard units.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., who also has harbored presidential aspirations, joined an Air Force reserve unit. Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of a House task force on missing American prisoners of war in Southeast Asia, received academic deferments to study at Brandeis and Columbia universities.

Four years ago, Democrats were quick to attack Vice President Dan Quayle for using the connections of his influential family to secure a spot in the Indiana National

VIETNAM: Politicians' resumes show many avoided service

(From 5A)

Guard during the war. As in Clinton's case today, the debate then had strong elements of class fairness, exposing the old wound of Vietnam.

Jim Brazee, an attorney who heads Vietnam Veterans of America, said, "It is now popular for political candidates to want to be considered as having served in some capacity in the Vietnam War. It is the same in all walks of life. People want to show, 'I did my part.' "

Gramm, 50, criticized Clinton during the GOP convention last month for coming "as close to military service as ROTC at Arkansas." But Gramm, as a young man, got no closer himself.

After registering for the draft at age 18, Gramm received two student deferments, first as an undergraduate student and then as a graduate student of economics at the University of Georgia at Athens, where he completed a doctoral degree in 1967.

When he left school, Gramm in 1968 was classified 1-A, which means, "available for military service," according to Selective Service records. At the time, inductions were reaching the highest levels of the wartime period, with close to 300,000 men drafted in that year alone.

Gramm got a job as an assistant professor at Texas A&M University at College Station and was granted three occupational deferments through 1970, the records show.

While deferments for teachers and college professors were left up to the discretion of local draft boards, many of the boards automatically granted them.

"Gramm was a peon when this was going on," said Tom Saving, an economics professor at A&M who was a senior faculty member when Gramm was hired there. "He was just like the other peons. The routine was for the university to apply for occupational deferments for every assistant professor. I don't remember that there was ever a person who was denied one."

Mel Greenhut, professor emeritus of economics who hired Gramm at A&M, said he initiated a letter to Gramm's local draft board in Columbus, Ga., because he wanted to keep Gramm on the faculty.

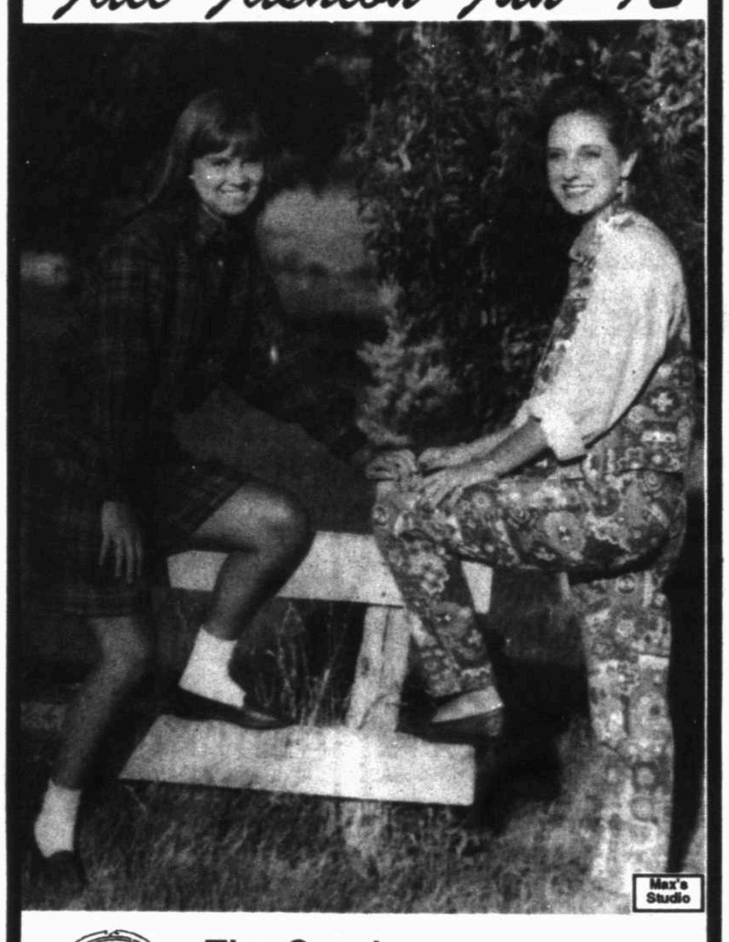

"Phil struck me as a most exciting and promising scholar," Greenhut said. "I wanted to hold on to this fellow. I wrote a letter to the Georgia draft board on my own initiative. I wrote that as far as I was concerned, Phil Gramm is worth more as (an assistant) professor at this university than as a candidate for military service."

Larry Neal, a spokesman for Gramm, said the senator was unavailable for an interview for this story. Gramm said last year during an appearance on the Evans & Novak television show, "By the time the draft was at its peak, I had a Ph.d. in economics, I was at Texas A&M, I was in a very competitive field. I just didn't feel that it made sense for me to go into the military."

Gingrich, R-Ga., another critic of Clinton and the Democrats, got student deferments to study at Emory University in Atlanta and then as a graduate student at Tulane University in New Orleans, where he finished a doctorate in 1971.

Gingrich has said he didn't think he would have made a difference by serving in Vietnam and that "there was a bigger battle in Congress than in Vietnam." He later softened that position, telling the Christian Science Monitor in 1988, "A large part of me thinks I should have gone over."

Serbs fail to meet weapons deadline

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Serb forces failed to fully meet a Saturday deadline to place heavy weapons under U.N. supervision, but officials said the process had begun and they blamed heavy fighting for the delay.

U.N. officials said the Serbs complied around Sarajevo but not around Bihac and Jajce, where Croatian radio reported heavy fighting Saturday.

"Although this process is not yet completed, we believe this is a start," U.N. envoy Cyrus Vance said in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

European Community foreign ministers meeting near Hatfield, England, agreed Saturday to support a U.S. proposal to impose a "no-fly" zone over Bosnia and said Serbia should be denied Yugoslavia's seat at the United Nations.

But they decided to hold off on any action after their peace negotiator, Lord Owen, reported the Bosnian Serbs had partially complied with the weapons deadline.

Sarajevo was relatively quiet, but overnight artillery and small-arms fire were reported around western suburbs. The Bosnian Health Ministry reported 31 people killed and 189 wounded across Bosnia in the 24-hour period ending at noon Saturday.

Fighting also was reported around the eastern city of Gorazde.

More than 10,000 people have been killed in six months of warfare since Bosnia's Muslims and Croats voted on Feb. 29 for independence, touching off a Serb rebellion.

Under a recent agreement, Bosnian Serbs were to place their tanks and rocket launchers around Sarajevo, Gorazde, Bihac and Jajce under U.N. supervision by Saturday.

All four are predominantly Muslim or Muslim and Croat cities that have been under siege by Serbs.

Vance said in a statement that the Serbs had finished moving weaponry at 11 sites around Sarajevo, but not in Bihac, in northwestern Bosnia, or Jajce, about 60 miles northwest of Sarajevo. The former U.S. secretary of state said the Serbs had already moved their guns away from Gorazde.

"The monitoring has begun for all the positions in Sarajevo, and we expect the same in Bihac and Jajce this weekend," said Shannon Boyd, a spokeswoman for the U.N. Protection Force in Zagreb, Croatia.

But at Bihac, "the local commander has declared heavy weaponry but has so far declined to concentrate his 82-millimeter mortars, and discussions are continuing," Vance said.

He said fighting around Jajce prevented U.N. observers from "making effective contact" with Serb commanders.

Fischer wins seventh game

SVETI STEFAN, Yugoslavia (AP) — Bobby Fischer ground out a confidence-building victory over Boris Spassky on Saturday, tying their $5 million chess rematch at 2-2 after seven games.

The victory after 44 moves and five hours of play gave the temperamental American a needed psychological boost. He had lost two of the previous three games and barely managed a draw in the third.

"Overall, I think I played fairly well," Fischer said.

"Boris lost it on the opening and never recovered," said American grandmaster Yasser Seirawan, who watched the game.

Fischer may have drawn comfort from a thick wall of glass put up for the first time between the chess players and the sparse audience in the converted hotel dining room.

The glass was installed after Fischer's repeated complaints of too much noise from the generally silent audience. It is the latest in a number of modifications to the hall Fischer had insisted on.

The light in the hall also seemed to be bothering Fischer because he wore a brown leather visor on his forehead for the second day.

Playing white, Fischer used his favored Ruy Lopez opening.

Fischer, 49, had been clearly struggling to recover the playing flair that made him the most feared competitor in chess until he retired after defeating Spassky in 1972 for the world championship.

Fischer escaped with a draw in Thursday's game after losing the two previous games. His only previous win was on the first day of the match, Sept. 2.

Chess experts say Spassky, 55, a naturalized French citizen, is playing his best game in years.

The victor will be the first to win 10 games and will collect a record prize of $3.35 million. The loser will get $1.65 million. Draws do not count, and if both players win nine games the match is considered a tie and the prize money is split.

Fischer considers the match the world championship because he never acknowledged the decision of the International Chess Federation to strip him of his title in 1975 for refusing to play Soviet challenger Anatoly Karpov. The federation's current champion is Garry Kasparov.

The purse for the Fischer-Spassky rematch is being put up by Yugoslav businessman Jedzimir Vasiljevic.

The match is being played in defiance of international sanctions against Yugoslavia for its role in the war in Bosnia-Herzegovina, less than 100 miles away.

Report finds women, not men, are breadwinners in most of world

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women, not men, are the family breadwinners in most of the world, where sex discrimination against them is a major cause of poverty, according to a Worldwatch report released this weekend.

But women worldwide still earn less, the report says, echoing the conclusions of an International Labor Organization report last week.

Women in African countries spend more hours cultivating, harvesting, transporting, storing and processing food than men, says the new report by Worldwatch researcher Jodi L. Jacobson.

"A condition that afflicts every social institution from individual families to international development organizations, gender bias is an enormous stumbling block on the road to a sustainable economy," the report says, citing statistics, studies and Ms. Jacobson's own research in India.

In countries with 3 billion of the world's estimated 5.5 billion people, women are the primary earners for their families, putting them in a key economic role, the report says.

But, because they are discriminated against in wages, land ownership and lending, they are inhibited from contributing to their nations' economies, it concludes.

Bias against women is also the single most important cause of rapid population growth, says the Worldwatch report. Worldwatch is a Washington-based non-profit, independent research group that studies a variety of global problems.

"Where women have little access to productive resources and little control over family income, they depend on children for social status and economic security," Ms. Jacobson said in the report.

At a news briefing on the study, she said that even though overpopulation is a major problem for Third World countries, governments need to focus more on increasing the productivity of women rather than simply reducing fertility.

"National statistics often overlook women's work," Ms. Jacobson said. "Governments need to recognize women's work as a valuable economic asset and invest in women accordingly."

In too many countries she said, women both earn the family living and care for the children, while men tend to use their earnings for alcohol, cigarettes and consumer products, usually for themselves or other women.

The report says gender bias exists in every country and is often compounded by discrimination based on class, caste or race.

But it is most pervasive in the poorest areas of Africa, Asia and Latin America and ranges from exclusion of women from development programs to "systemic violence against females."

The report includes select data, including a United Nations "human development index," which says women in Sweden have 96 percent of the options that would allow them to lead as good a life as men, while women in Kenya have only a 58 percent chance.

Other countries listed are Finland, 94; France, 92; Paraguay, 88; the United States, 86; Canada, 85; Britain, 85; Italy and Portugal, 83; Sri Lanka, 79; Philippines, 78; Japan, 77; Ireland, 74; Costa Rica, 70; Swaziland, 68; Korea, 65.

Scientists aim to authenticate czar's bones

MOSCOW (AP) — Bones believed to be those of murdered Russian Czar Nicholas II and his family will be flown to Britain on Tuesday for final identification, Russian and British experts said Saturday.

British forensic experts will compare genetic material from the bones with samples from the czar's living relatives to conclusively identify the remains, according to a statement issued by the project participants.

"This is a no ordinary case, and it should be carried out at the world level," Dr. Pavel Ivanov, a Russian expert who will take the bones to England, said in an interview published in Saturday's editions of the Moskovsky Komsomolets newspaper.

"It is necessary to apply the entire arsenal of modern examination techniques to try to answer the direct question of whether these remains belong to the royal family and who is who," said Ivanov, who works with Moscow's chief forensic medical examiner.

The bones will be taken to the British government's Forensic Sciences Laboratory at Aldermaston, near Reading, for about six months of testing, according to a statement from Applied Biosystems, the British company paying to bring the bones to England.

Bolsheviks in 1918 carried out an order from Soviet founder Vladimir Lenin to execute Russia's last imperial family, the Romanovs, in the Ural Mountains city of Yekaterinburg. The killers dumped the bodies in a pit near the city, known as Sverdlovsk during the Soviet era.

The bones were found in July 1991. Russian and foreign experts have been studying them with the aid of a computer to match skulls, teeth and bones with photographs to determine if the remains are those of the Romanovs.

A team of six American experts in July confirmed the earlier identification by Russian scientists of the skeletons of Czar Nicholas, his wife Alexandra, their eldest children, Olga, Maria and Tatyana, and the family doctor, Sergei Botkin.

Skeletons were not found for the czar's youngest children, Anastasia and Alexei, whose whereabouts remain a subject of legend and controversy.

Russia finds KAL jet black box

MOSCOW (AP) — A transcript of the "black box" flight recorder from the KAL jetliner downed in 1983 will be handed over to South Korea, President Boris Yeltsin said.

Soviet fighter jets shot down the Boeing 747 off Sakhalin Island, killing all 269 people aboard, after it strayed inside Soviet airspace.

Yeltsin's decision to hand over the flight recorder came days after he canceled a trip to the Far East, including Japan and South Korea, because of a territorial dispute with Tokyo. The move could help Russia improve relations with South Korea.

Black boxes record the conversations of pilots, and the KAL recorder also could help resolve mysteries about the plane crew's actions.

The airliner was on a flight from New York to Seoul via Anchorage, Alaska, when it was shot down on Sept. 1, 1983.

Soviet officials initially kept silent about the disaster but later responded to international outcry by saying the jet was on a secret spy mission when it entered Soviet airspace.

The Soviet government previously said it never found the flight recorder for Flight 007. But Western officials doubted the claim, and the downing of the plane worsened Soviet relations with South Korea and the United States.

Yeltsin said Thursday that Russia would turn over "materials" about the incident but didn't identify them.

On Friday, he told reporters that the "black box" transcript would be among the materials. It was the first confirmation that the device had been found.

Three arrests cap victorious week for Italy's Mafia fight

ROME (AP) — Three Sicilian brothers accused of laundering hundreds of millions of drug dollars for the Mafia were returned to Italy on Saturday after their arrest in Venezuela, which offered them haven for years.

A U.S. official in Rome called them among the most important Mafia figures outside of Sicily, and their arrests capped a week of major victories in Italy's fight against the mob.

Four other alleged high-level gangsters have been arrested since Sept. 5.

The arrest of Pasquale Cuntrera, along with his brothers Paolo and Gaspare, was a posthumous victory for slain anti-Mafia prosecutors Giovanni Falcone and Paolo Borsellino. They had signed his arrest warrant in 1985.

Pasquale Cuntrera also is wanted in Miami on a heroin-trafficking indictment, said the U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Cuntrera was described in press reports as the boss of a large Sicilian mob organization. His brothers were wanted for questioning, Italian news media said.

Italian authorities had sought the brothers for years, but Venezuela never granted extradition requests until ordering their expulsion Saturday.

"We had a new element," said Alessandro Pansa, a police official in the financial crimes section who worked on the case since the early 1980s.

He said the Venezuelan government was notified that there were indications Cuntrera companies were exporting large quantities of chemicals used to refine drugs.

Pasquale Cuntrera was taken through Rome's Leonardo Da Vinci airport in a wheelchair, clutching a handkerchief. Gaspare Cuntrera shouted at photographers as officers led him away and Paolo Cuntrera covered his manacled hands with a newspaper.

They denied any illegal doings when asked for comment by reporters at the airport, the Italian news agency ANSA said.

The brothers left the tiny Sicilian town of Siculiana in the early 1960s for Venezuela. By 1985, according to an Italian police report, they had invested at least $400 million worth of illegal drug earnings, said ANSA.

The figure is believed to be $1 billion today, the agency said. The brothers' holdings were said to include apartment buildings, hotels, ship companies, chains of bars and restaurants, cattle dealing companies and a record company.

Pansa said he and his investigators followed the trail of $33 million through 52 banks across three continents. He estimated the brothers' empire allegedly recycled $165 million a year.

Officials alleged the Cuntreras also controlled the movement of cocaine from South America and heroin from the Far East to Canada, the United States and Europe.

French show indifference to unity treaty

EPINAL, France (AP) — Jean-Francois Boillot sipped his beer, looking bored, and expressed a fairly common view of the coming referendum on European unity.

"People are getting sick of it," he said. "We heard about it some in the papers. Now school's starting again, and people just don't want to talk about it.".

Polls indicate the French are evenly divided about the treaty, which would link the European Community's 12 nations with a single currency and common foreign policy by 1999. France has been a prime mover toward unity, and rejection by its voters probably would scuttle the accord.

Boillot, 42, a trucking executive, said he will vote yes in the Sept. 20 referendum, if he votes.

Not all French voters are indifferent. Twenty-three million tuned in to a televised debate on the treaty last week. But Boillot reflects a widespread cynicism about the Maastricht treaty, named for the Dutch town where it was signed last December.

Epinal is the constituency of conservative lawmaker Philippe Seguin, a leading foe of the treaty. Seguin, mayor of this town of 36,000 people in the Vosges region of eastern France, argues that Maastricht would cede French sovereignty to EC bureaucrats in Brussels.

The mood of Epinal was decidedly apolitical a little more than a week before the referendum. No campaign posters were up. The town newspaper had a lot of local news, but just a half page on Maastricht, on page 22.

Lyazid Bendjedia said he would not vote. He is angry about the separate EC plan to create a single market by opening borders in January. Like several people interviewed, he mistakenly thinks that change depends on the referendum.

"Think how it will affect jobs," he said during a break from pinball at Le Rivoli cafe.

"All those foreigners," Bendjedia said. His father is Algerian, but he was born and raised in the Vosges as a French citizen.

"But they won't be 'foreigners,' they'll be 'Europeans'," interjected a friend, Maurice Jeannerey, a civil servant.

Jeannerey supports the treaty.

"Look, if the no wins, it's not the end of Europe," he said. "But France and Germany must be the leaders. If France says no, it will be Germany alone."

Many people feel the treaty has not been explained adequately. Some voters are only now receiving eight-page booklets full of complex legalese.

In Belfort, 40 miles southeast of Epinal, an out-of-work man who gave his name only as Sylvain said he supports the idea of European union but is indignant at how the treaty has been put to the electorate.

"I'm not going to vote, but if I did, I'd go drop in a sheet of blank paper because they haven't tried to make us understand," said Sylvain, 25.

Patrick Landbeck, a 30-year-old caterer, said he will vote yes for personal reasons: "My brother married a German, and he's a German citizen now. But soon we'll both be 'Europeans,' and can move about freely."

Belfort, population 50,000, is the bastion of an odd ally for anti-Maastricht conservatives: Socialist dissident Jean-Pierre Chevenement, a member of Parliament and twice a Cabinet minister.

Anthony Perkins, star of 'Psycho,' dies of AIDS complications at age 60

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anthony Perkins, who played the murderous motel keeper Norman Bates in the classic thriller "Psycho," died Saturday of AIDS complications. He was 60.

Perkins died in the bedroom of his Hollywood home with his wife and sons at his side, his publicist, Leslee Dart, said.

Earlier this week, Perkins put together a statement about his condition, Ms. Dart said.

"I chose not to go public about this because to misquote 'Casablanca,' 'I'm not much at being noble but it doesn't take much to see that the problems of one old actor don't amount to a hill of beans in this crazy world,'" he said.

"There are many who believe that this disease is God's vengeance, but I believe it was sent to teach people how to love and understand and have compassion for each other. I have learned more about love, selflessness and human understanding from the people I have met in this great adventure in the world of AIDS than I ever did in the cutthroat, competitive world in which I spent my life."

Other stars who have died of AIDS include actors Rock Hudson, Brad Davis, Amanda Blake and Robert Reed, pianist Liberace and rock star Freddy Mercury.

Perkins, the son of stage and film actor Osgood Perkins, gained fame playing awkward, often neurotic young men. Later, his name became synonymous with horror films.

He broke into movies in 1953, appearing in "The Actress" with Spencer Tracy, Teresa Wright and Jean Simmons. He won an Oscar nomination for best supporting actor playing Gary Cooper's yearing son in "Friendly Persuasion" in 1956, and portrayed baseball player Jimmy Piersall in the 1957 film "Fear Strikes Out."

He co-starred with Gregory Peck and Fred Astaire in the acclaimed 1959 antiwar film, "On the Beach," and played an awkward basketball player in the 1960 romantic farce "Tall Story," which starred Jane Fonda in her first role.

Clinton holds 15-point lead in Newsweek poll

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrat Bill Clinton held a 15-point lead over President Bush among registered voters and seven in ten disapproved of Bush's handling of the economy in a Newsweek poll released Saturday.

Forty-seven percent said Clinton would handle the economy better, according to the poll appearing in the Sept. 21 issue of Newsweek.

The poll by the Gallup Organization was based on telephone interviews with 750 registered voters Sept. 10-11. The margin of error was plus or minus 4 percentage points.

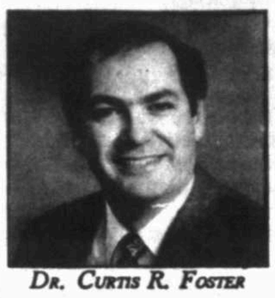

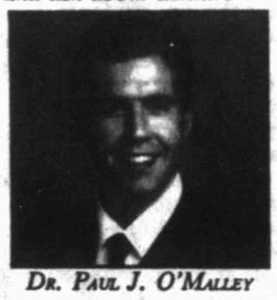

It showed Clinton ahead with 53 percent to 38 percent for Bush and 9 percent undecided. That represented a slight change from an Aug. 27-28 Newsweek poll in which it was Clinton 49 percent, Bush 39 percent and 12 percent undecided.

Sixty-one percent of those polled said Bush has the power to improve the economy and 69 percent said the country as a whole is worse off because of Bush's economic policies. Fifty-eight percent said they were worse off personally than they were four years ago.

Sixty-seven percent said the federal budget deficit is a serious problem and 75 percent said reducing the deficit would help promote more jobs, increased investment and long-term growth.

You're Welcome, Ronda.
It's 36 miles from Ronda's Kwik Stop in St. Lawrence to Cap Rock Electric headquarters in Stanton, but to hear Ronda Halfmann talk, the two companies sit side by side.
There's the time high winds knocked out power to her store and all the frozen food started to melt. "They were out here in a flash, fixed it and we ate all the soupy ice cream together," she laughs.
And the time they were making a routine repair call at her home. "I had a snake under my house, so the guys got rid of it for me," she said. She recalls the heavy boxes lifted, the faulty water heater fixed.
"I've lived here all my life, and I couldn't tell you everything they've done for me," she says. "They're Good Samaritans as well as being electricians."
Cap Rock Electric understands that being a good neighbor is part of running a successful business. And it shows.
We recently won a top national award for outstanding customer service from the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.
To small business customers like Ronda Halfmann, we're not just any utility.

Universities open crime records under new disclosure law

Associated Press

Dana Getzinger says she was naive and unsuspecting — a typical college student — when a stranger in a ski mask sneaked into her room and tried to rape her while she was a sophomore at the University of Georgia.

Getzinger was stabbed and nearly died in the 1988 attack, which she later learned was at least the fifth within three months on students in her neighborhood near the campus.

"The universities tell you nothing," she said. "Schools are placing a greater importance on their image than on student safety."

More than 4,000 violent crimes — among them 16 murders and 493 rapes — were reported last year to security officials at the nation's 580 largest universities and colleges, The Associated Press found through a review of figures being released this month under a new federal disclosure law.

The federal Campus Security Act for the first time this year requires all universities and colleges to provide students, faculty, staff and prospective students and their parents with crime statistics for the previous three years, as well as a description of security precedures.

The law covers 2,222 colleges and universities. Schools that don't comply risk losing eligibility for federal money.

Many public institutions previously released such information, but most private institutions kept it confidential.

"Part of their sales pitch was, 'Come to this idyllic, safe-appearing campus,'" said Dorothy Siegel, director of the Campus Violence Prevention Center at Towson State University in Maryland. "They were not recognizing that gradually crime was creeping in."

The crime statistics are being handed out to students on most campuses this month.

"The most difficult thing in dealing with violent crime is convincing people that it will happen," said Marvin Herrington, chief of police at Stanford University, where an employee was fatally shot on campus Tuesday. "You get lulled into a false sense of security."

The schools surveyed by the AP enroll 5.6 million students. Collectively, they reported 2,528 aggravated assaults, 928 robberies, 5,081 car thefts and 15,313 burglaries during 1991.

Victim advocates question the value of statistics furnished by some universities and colleges.

"If the initial reports are that crime is vastly below what we're seeing in broader society, I would be very skeptical of that," said David Beatty, a spokesman for the National Victim Center.

Democrats kick off voter registration drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Clinton kicked off a national voter registration drive Saturday that will be led by Jesse Jackson in an effort to add thousands of black voters to the rolls in anticipation they will vote the Democratic ticket.

But questions remained as to whether relations between the men have warmed in the wake of Jackson's complaints of a "push-off" strategy by the Clinton campaign.

Jackson sought to add the first unregistered voters to poll books during the seventh annual Black Family Reunion here, saying the vote "has so much power."

He recounted how many voter registration activists died in the 1960s and said black voters "have a chance to change the course of our country."

Clinton staffers said the drive would include 300 events in 30 cities. On Saturday, they included an appearance by Hillary Clinton in Arizona, Tipper Gore in Maryland, former Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm in Florida and Al Gore Sr., father of Clinton's running mate, in North Carolina.

Staffers also said voter registration booths were set up at football games across the country.

Clinton sought at the Black Family Reunion to shore up his support among urban black voters. The event is sponsored by the National Council of Negro Women to call attention to problems suffered by black families.

Later, Clinton appeared at a crab feast in Falls Church, Va., a Washington, D.C., suburb and one of the nation's wealthiest communities. The crowd there was almost all white.

A group of demonstrators met Clinton with chants favoring President Bush as the Democrat arrived at the private residence where the event was held. Two later interrupted a Clinton speech inside the big backyard where the candidate with chants of "Bush-Quayle '92."

They were quickly shouted down by about 300 Clinton supporters in attendance and pulled from a platform where they were standing.

"Don't throw them in the crab pot," quipped Clinton.

He said: "They have to scream and shout me down because they can't run on their record."

Still later, Clinton went to a private fund-raising dinner in Middleburg, Va., at the home of longtime Democratic benefactor Pamela Harriman. On the way, Clinton stepped from his limousene in Middleburg to mingle and shake hands with several dozen onlookers.

At the Black Family Reunion, Clinton continued taking shots at the "family values" theme of the Republican campaign, saying "many who have used those terms have used them in divisive ways."

"I like seeing people who came to celebrate and honor the idea and the reality of the black family," he said, "not who to use the term family to divide the American people as an excuse to divert attention from the urgent problems before us."

Clinton and Jackson spoke briefly backstage after the event, held at an outdoor amphitheatre in the shadow of the Washington Monument.

Four die during church outing

SUN CITY CENTER, Fla. (AP) — Three teen-agers and a chaperone on a church outing were killed when a car plowed into them as they stood near their disabled bus on Interstate 75, police said Saturday. Ten people were hurt.

The group's bus was stranded with a flat tire when the accident occurred shortly before midnight Friday, the Florida Highway Patrol reported. It had been carrying 25 young people from the First Assembly of God Church in Naples to the annual "Night of Joy" music festival at central Florida's Walt Disney World.

The car left the highway, traveled about 450 feet along the shoulder, glanced off a service truck into the rear of the bus and careened into the group of people, state troopers said.

The 10 hurt included eight young people, an adult from the bus and the car's driver.

The highway patrol identified the car's driver as Thomas P. Duckett Jr., 28, of Quitman, Ga. No charges were filed against Duckett, who was listed in stable condition at Tampa General Hospital with a spinal fracture.

He was administered a blood-alcohol test to determine if he had been drinking, but results weren't expected for several days.

The other injured included a boy, about 7 to 9 years old, who was hospitalized in critical condition, and an adult who was hospitalized in stable condition, said Tampa General spokeswoman Linda Fischer.

Endeavour flying high in orbit with history-making crew

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Endeavour roared into orbit Saturday with a slew of animals and a history-making crew: first married couple in space, first black woman in space and first Japanese to fly on a U.S. spaceship.

"I gotta tell ya, this is a great way to commute to work," astronaut Jay Apt gushed two hours into the flight.

Vice President Dan Quayle, head of the National Space Council, was among some 15,000 visitors at Kennedy Space Center who witnessed NASA's 50th shuttle launch. He was accompanied by his wife, Marilyn, and two of his children, Benjamin and Corinne.

"On behalf of the president and all Americans, we just wish you and your crew good luck and Godspeed," Quayle told the astronauts minutes before liftoff. "We know it's going to be great."

"We very much appreciate your support," replied shuttle commander Robert "Hoot" Gibson.

Endeavour rose from its seaside pad at 10:23 a.m. The shuttle left a crooked, white trail of vapor as it arced over the Atlantic Ocean and headed up along the East Coast on its way to space.

Packed securely in the shuttle were two fish, four frogs, 180 hornets, 7,600 flies and 30 fertilized chicken eggs, the prime subjects of the laboratory research mission.

It was the first time since 1985 that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration launched a shuttle on the appointed day at the appointed moment.

"What a fabulous day," said shuttle deputy director Brewster Shaw, an ex-astronaut who commanded the punctual 1985 launch. "We had an on-time launch, a very clean countdown, and we now have seven individuals on orbit and a healthy machine."

Added launch director Bob Sieck: "It's a good reward for the team."

Once Endeavour was settled in its 187-mile-high orbit, payload commander Mark Lee began powering up Spacelab, the bus-sized laboratory module in the cargo bay that's connected to the crew cabin by a tunnel.

Lee was the first one to float into the laboratory, followed by Japanese nuclear scientist Mamoru Mohri.

Astronaut Jan Davis, Lee's wife, was back in the cabin getting ready to go to sleep, as was Mae Jemison, NASA's first and only black female astronaut.

Lee and Davis are working opposite 12-hour shifts during the seven-day mission. Lee joked before the flight that he'd probably see more of Davis if he stayed behind and watched shuttle video beamed down to Mission Control.

The two fell in love while training for the mission and got married in January 1991. After a few months of fretting, NASA made an exception to its policy barring husbands and wives from flying in space together.

Lee spent his first hours inside Spacelab struggling with a leaky valve in a water-circulating system needed to cool glass, metal and crystal furnaces, all Japanese experiments. The instruments remained off as engineers on the ground assessed the problem.

Endeavour's flight is the first U.S. space mission devoted to Japanese research.

The National Space Development Agency of Japan supplied 34 of the 43 Spacelab experiments, including the fish, flies and chicken eggs. The United States has seven experiments, including the frogs. Two tests are shared by both countries.

Japan contributed $90 million toward mission costs, estimated by NASA to be at least $363 million.

If all goes as planned, NASA's newest shuttle will land at Kennedy next Saturday. The ship has flown in space only once before, in May.

Officials release jailed teachers to attend talks

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Eighteen striking teachers, cited for contempt and jailed by a judge, were released temporarily Saturday so they could get back to negotiations aimed at ending the 11-day walkout in nearby Warwick.

The teachers, some handcuffed, were driven in state vans to a Labor Commission building where talks resumed after a lunch break Saturday afternoon, said Jamie Horowitz, a teachers' union spokesman.

State mediator Thomas Zona said he was prepared to hold negotiations around the clock.

Meanwhile, teachers in East Greenwich, who ended their strike without a contract last week, resumed negotiations in the same building in Providence. In Detroit, striking teachers were reported to have settled one issue of their strike.

The Warwick strike, involving about 1,000 teachers in the state's second-largest school district, has idled 12,000 students who were to return from summer vacation the day the teachers walked out.

The teachers who were jailed Friday included six union leaders. They were the first to be subpoenaed at the request of Warwick Mayor Charles J. Donovan for violating the return-to-work order Superior Court Judge Paul Pederzani Jr. issued Wednesday.

Children on Medicaid to be screened for lead poisoning

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Responding to new medical concerns about the harmful effects of exposure to even low levels of lead, the federal government is requiring that virtually all young children on Medicaid be screened for lead poisoning. But the federal directive allows states to continue using a test known to be inaccurate in measuring small amounts of lead in the blood.

The new policy, in instructions to state Medicaid officials that take effect later this month, is intended to prod states to be more aggressive in testing children for lead poisoning. The policy reflects the conclusion of federal health officials that levels of lead once thought to be safe can cause mental retardation, learning disabilities, stunted growth, hearing loss and behavior problems in children.

"All children ages 6 months to 72 months are considered at risk and must be screened for lead poisoning," say the instructions from the Federal Health Care Financing Administration, which supervises the Medicaid program for low-income families. "Complete lead screening consists of both a verbal risk assessment and blood tests."

Lead poisoning is one of the most common child health problems in the United States. The government says it afflicts 3 million to 4 million young children — one in six youngsters under 6 years old. The highest risk occurs among low-income children, the very ones entitled to screening under Medicaid. Many of them live in old, dilapidated inner-city housing with peeling lead-based paint. But the government emphasizes that "no socio-economic group, geographic area or racial or ethnic population" is exempt from the risk of lead poisoning.

The new directive will affect hundreds of thousands and eventually millions of children. More than 6 million children under 6 are on Medicaid. Experts say that fewer than half have been screened for lead poisoning.

More extensive testing will presumably find more children who need treatment. But neither federal nor state officials could estimate the cost.

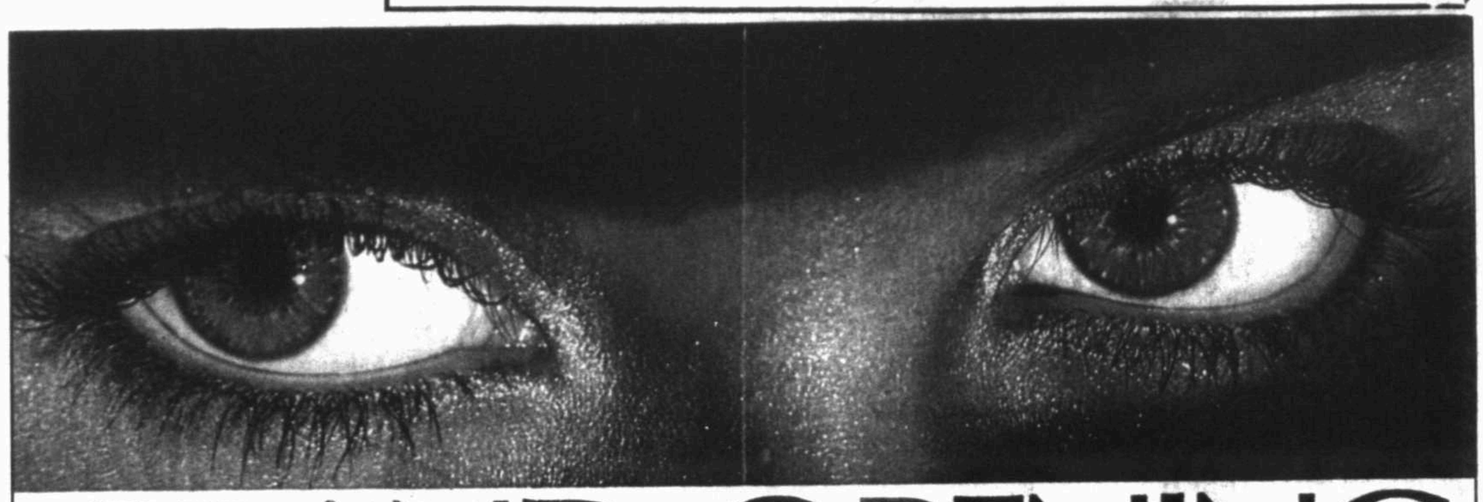

Medicaid is jointly financed by the federal government and the states. If Medicaid recipients suffer lead poisoning, Medicaid usually pays for treatment and may pay for efforts to identify the source. Private insurance also pays for some lead screening. But Medicaid and private insurance usually do not pay for removing paint, dust and other sources of lead, and it is often unclear who is responsible for cleaning up contaminated sites.

Until now, criteria for screening, like many details of the Medicaid program, varied from state to state. A recent report by the U.S. Public Health Service said, "Many states do not conduct much screening."

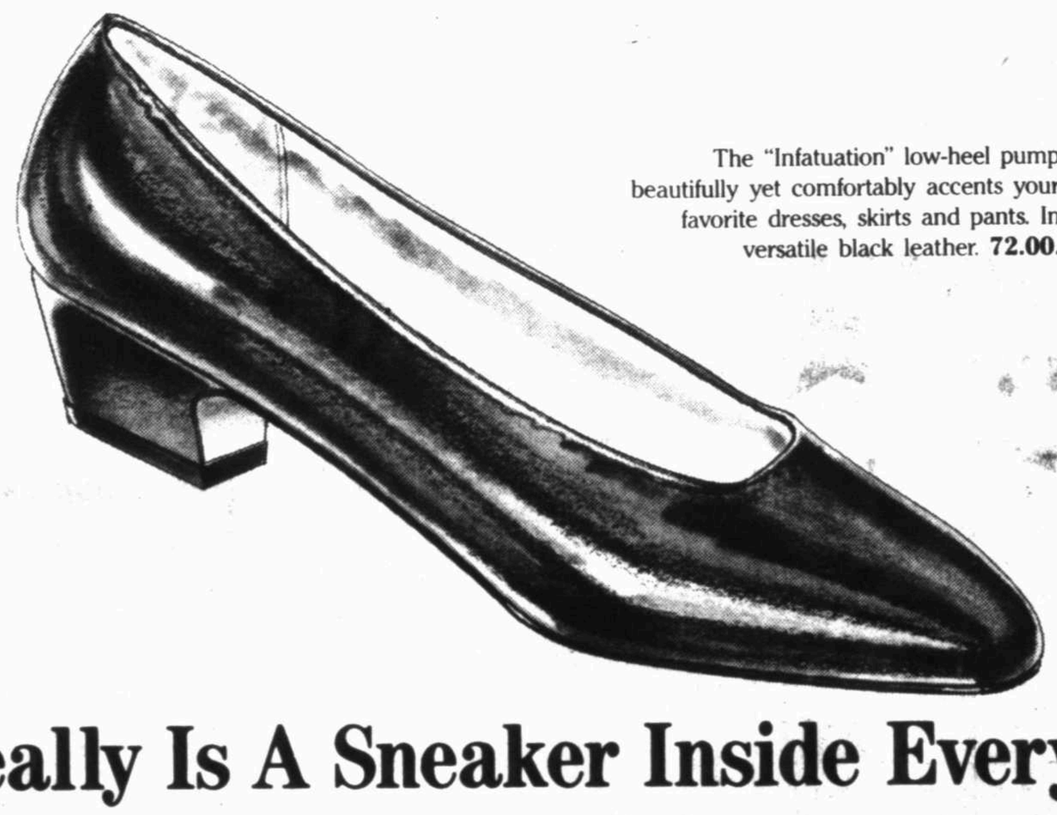

In October 1991, the Public Health Service said there was "overwhelming and compelling" evidence that children had been harmed by lead in concentrations as low as 10 micrograms per deciliter of blood. The test widely used for the last 15 years is not sensitive enough to detect levels that low.

Chavez retains title

LAS VEGAS — Hector "Macho" Camacho made a fashion statement Saturday night, but he made it at a boxing show and the star of that show was Julio Cesar Chavez.

The unbeaten Chavez was not dazzled by Camacho's colorful and unusual garb, nor by the challenger's boxing skills as he easily retained the WBC super lightweight title before a sellout crowd of 19,100 at the Thomas & Mack Center.

The champion from Mexico battered Camacho for 11 of the 12 rounds, closing his left eye and cutting him above the right, smashing his body and almost knocking him down in the final round.

The 30-year-old Chavez has won all 82 of his pro fights. It was the second loss for Camacho, also 30, of Puerto Rico, against 41 wins.

Judge Howie Gibbs of England scored it 120-107, Carol Castellano of New York scored it 119-110 and judge Dalby Shirley of Las Vegas scored it 117-111, all for Chavez.

The Associated Press scored it 119-109.

"My style is going to frustrate him," Camacho said before the fight.

It didn't bother Chavez in the least.

Leaf earns 100th win

MHS falls, 24-7, as Monterey coach reaches win milestone

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

Lubbock Monterey handed new head football coach Buster Leaf his 100th coaching victory at Memorial Stadium Friday night as his Plainsmen rolled over the struggling Midland High Bulldogs, 24-7.

This is only Leaf's second game as a head coach at Monterey and on the Class 5A level, but his overall head coaching mark now stands at 100-32-2 while going through places like New Deal, McCamey and Levelland.

So, was this factual bit of information a motivational factor for the 2-0 Plainsmen?

"Not at all," Leaf responded. "In fact, I didn't mention this to the kids at all this week. I heard our coaches tell the kids after the game. I was aware of it, but we didn't make a big deal of it."

But Monterey made a big deal of it on the field as tailback Gary Shepherd rushed for 147 yards and two touchdowns and fullback Chris Welton added 121 rushing yards as the Plainsmen were on the way to 358 rushing yards.

Monterey had only one yard passing, but even that hurt the 'Dogs as that one yard was from quarterback Wil Leftwich to Theo Unbehagen for a second quarter touchdown with no time remaining in the first half and a 17-0 lead.

"As you can see, we don't throw the ball much, but we feel like we have a couple of outstanding running backs," Leaf said. "We felt like we had control of the contest most of the night, except for the third quarter when we had a couple of big penalties that allowed Midland to get into scoring position."

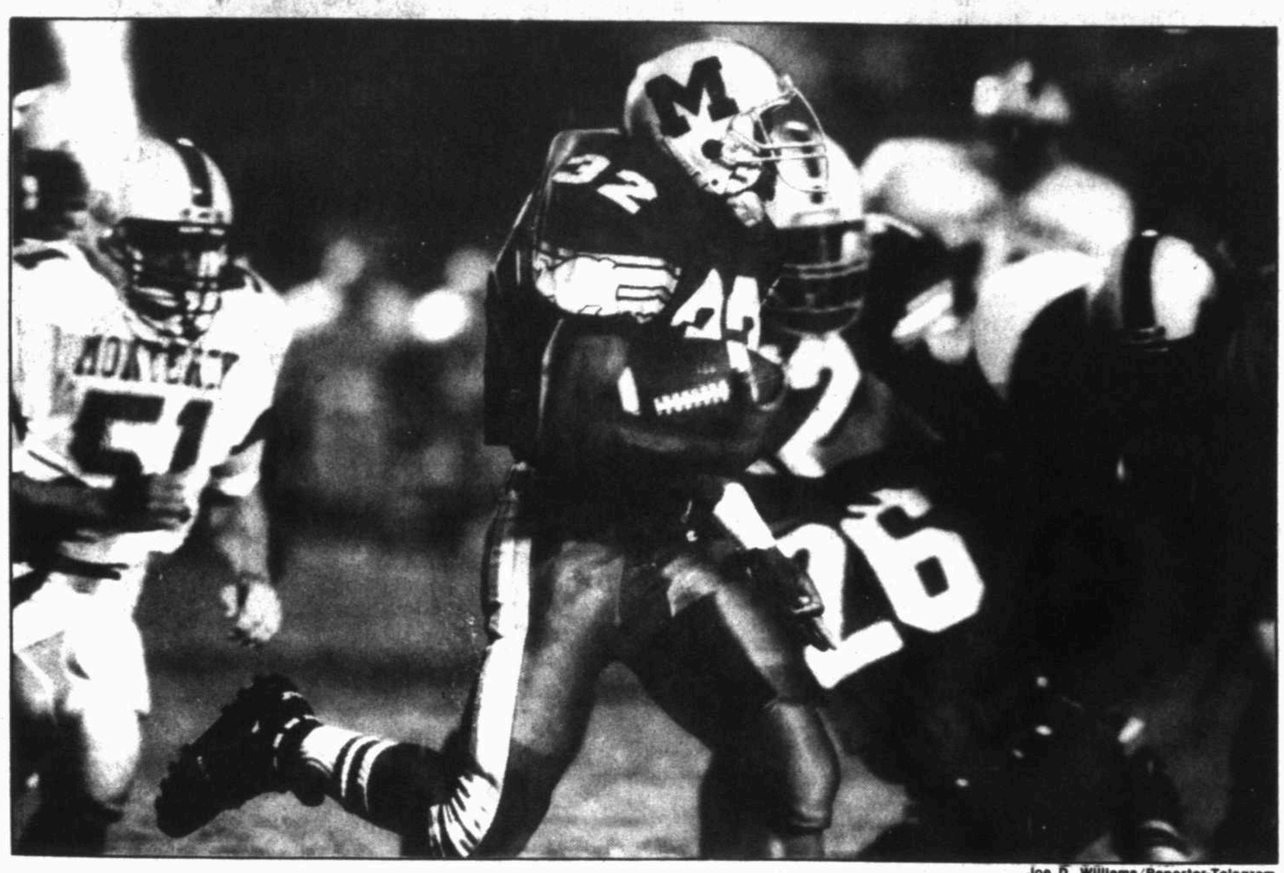

While Monterey was rolling, Midland High was losing for the 11th consecutive time, and unlike last week, there were few bright spots.

The Bulldogs gained only 60 yards rushing and another 25 in the air while making only seven first downs, three of which came on Monterey penalties. The showing left new head coach Ronnie Reeger less than pleased.

"I don't know what to say," Reeger said. "We didn't play very well in any phase of the game. We didn't block in the line. The backs didn't block. On defense, we didn't tackle or go to the football.

"Right now, our kids are not mentally or physically tough for this game, and until we get that way, we're going to have more of the same. We're the type of team that looks good in practice, but

LUBBOCK — Amid the din of the postgame interview room, Texas Tech head coach Spike Dykes spotted Lloyd Hill and said, "My gosh, I never saw anybody like you."

Hill, a junior receiver from Odessa Permian, tied a school record with 12 catches in the Red Raiders' 49-32 win over Wyoming Saturday night at Jones Stadium.

His dozen catches netted 222 yards, the seventh best by a Southwest Conference receiver, and one touchdown. And, according to Hill, it was a new wrinkle in the Tech offense that allowed him to get open.

Bulldogs dismantle Lady Rebs

■ The District 4-5A volleyball season opens with the Midland High Lady Bulldogs levelling the upstart Midland Lee Lady Rebels.

By Joe Wyatt

Preceded by a marathon match between their respective junior varsity teams, the Midland High vs. Midland Lee District 4-5A varsity volleyball opener must have seemed like nothing more than a brief encounter to the 300 fans sitting in the Rebel gymnasium on Saturday.

A brief, one-sided encounter.

In a matter of just 38 minutes — a span which included six timeouts and an intermission between games — Midland High dismantled the Lee machine, 15-6, 15-9.

"I expected a barn-burner of about two and a half hours in scope," said delighted MHS coach Sonja Pittman after the underdog Lady Bulldogs stormed past the host team with relative ease, raising their record to 5-8 overall and 1-0 in the all-important loop.

"I'm thrilled about it," Pittman added. "We spent more time preparing mentally and emotionally for this game than we did in physical preparation.

"And frankly, it was kind of nice to be the underdogs for once because we didn't have the pressure. We just had a great team effort and took control. Of

Notre Dame, Michigan tie 17-17

Florida QB's 340 yards passing leads Gators by Kentucky

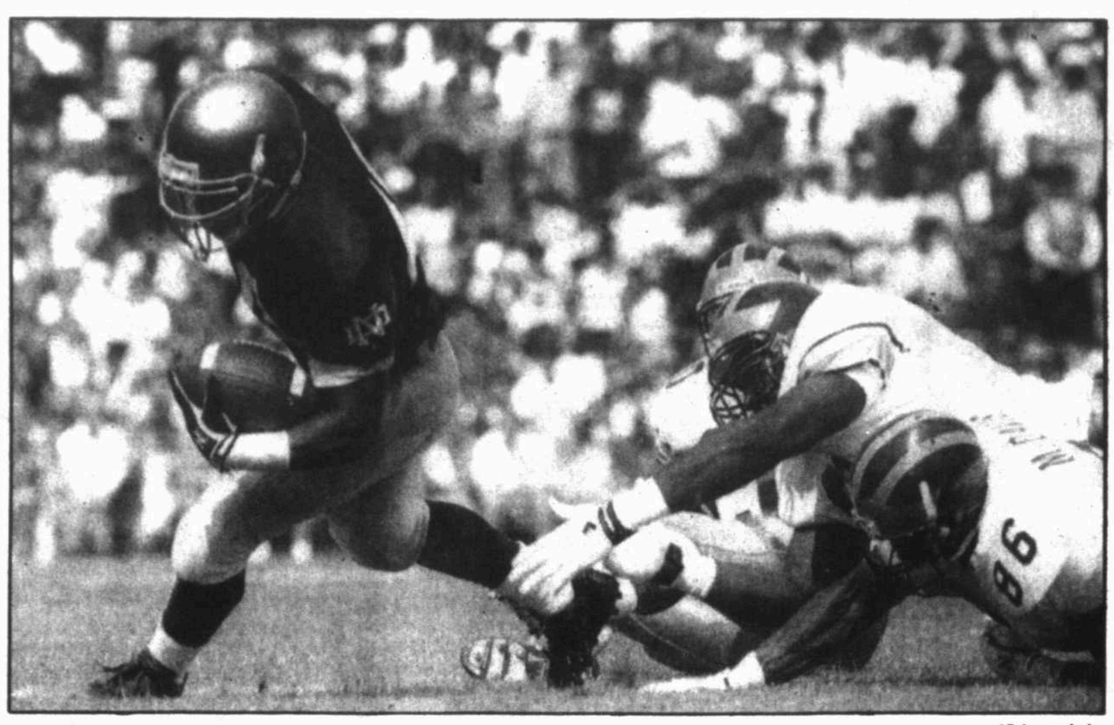

Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Craig Hentrich kicked a 32-yard field goal with 5:28 left and Jeff Burris intercepted a Michigan pass with 65 seconds remaining as third-ranked Notre Dame rallied to tie the No. 6 Wolverines 17-17.

Michigan appeared to be driving toward a go-ahead score in the closing minutes, but Elvis Grbac's pass was picked off by Burris at the Notre Dame 12. It was the third interception thrown by Grbac, who was hit by Greg Lane as he released the ball.

Notre Dame couldn't move the ball, however, and the Irish were forced to settle for their first tie since a 13-13 deadlock at Oregon in 1982.

It was Michigan's first tie since a 17-17 draw against Iowa in 1988, and the first tie at Notre Dame Stadium since 1969, when the Irish and Southern Cal fought to a 14-14 standoff.

Grbac had a mixed day. Other than his three interceptions, he completed 17 of 28 for 239 yards and two touchdowns. Notre Dame quarterback Rick Mirer was 14-of-27 for 171 yards with no touchdowns or interceptions.

It the season opener for Michigan and the second game for Notre Dame, which beat Northwestern 42-7 last week.

Michigan took a 17-7 lead on a 28-yard field goal by Peter Elezovic in the third quarter and a 30-yard TD pass from Grbac to Derrick Alexander early in the fourth period. Notre Dame rallied to tie it on a 2-yard touchdown run by Jerome Bettis with 11:23 remaining and Hentrich's field goal, which was set up by Brian Ratigan's interception.

No. 4 Florida 35, Kentucky 19

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Shane Matthews resumed his assault on Florida's record book Saturday, throwing for 340 yards and four touchdowns to lead the fourth-ranked Gators over Kentucky.

The two-time Southeastern Conference player of the year completed 28 of 47 attempts and tossed two scoring passes to Harrison Houston and one each to Monty Duncan and Willie Jackson.

It marked the 13th time in 24 starts that Matthews has thrown for three or more touchdowns in a game. He also moved past John Reaves on the school's career TD list with 55, one behind Kerwin Bell's SEC-record 56.

No. 2 Washington 27, Wisconsin 10

SEATTLE — Billy Joe Hobert ran 60 yards for a touchdown and passed for another score in the opening quarter but the second-ranked Washington Huskies sputtered thereafter in beating Wisconsin.

The Huskies (2-0), who were 32-point favorites, were unimpressive in a tuneup for next Saturday's game against No. 11 Nebraska.

A crowd of 72,800 went home disappointed. The Badgers (0-1) held Washington sophomore sensation Napoloen Kaufman to 43 yards in seven carries. Kaufman had runs of 70 and 63 yards in Washington's opener at Arizona State last Saturday.

A frustrated Kaufman was ejected after being called for a personal foul in the third quarter.

Hobert completed 17 of 29 passes for 185 yards, including an 18-yard touchdown pass to Joe Kralik in the first quarter.

Mark Brunell, the Rose Bowl MVP two years ago and now Hobert's understudy, also got considerable playing time.

Midland frosh split

The Midland Freshman High School football teams split their openers as the Gold team beat Lee Freshman's White squad 15-6, while the Purple team fell 47-0 to Odessa Nimitz.

The MFHS Gold took an early lead over Lee White when Ricky Cunningham sneaked in from the two-yard line in the first quarter.

Lee went ahead 7-6 in the third quarter, but the Gold came back in the fourth when Nathan Pallanez ran in from six yards out.

David Leaderton added a 27-yard field goal with five minutes left to play.

Mustang JV rolls

The Midland Christian junior varsity football team rolled over Victory Christian of Carlsbad, N.M. Saturday, 47-6.

It was the season opener for the Mustang JV, which got three touchdown passes from Neil Truex to Alan Awtry.

MHS thinclads place in Odessa

ODESSA — The Midland High junior varsity finished in sixth place while the MHS varsity was 10th Saturday at the Ector County ISD Cross Country Meet.

Jerry Robinson was MHS' lone medalist at the event, taking sixth place in the individual competition.

The Bulldogs next outing is slated for next weekend in San Angelo.

Ranger spikers fall

GREENWOOD — Big Spring got the best of three volleyball matches here Saturday as the Lady Steers beat Greenwood's freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams.

However, Greenwood coach Patty Purser said her charges played much better than some of the scores indicated. Greenwood's frosh fell 15-5, 15-13.

The Ranger JV lost a 15-0, 15-6 decision. And the Steer varsity claimed a 15-6, 15-6 victory.

"Colleen Alderson and Joanne Pallanez played real well today, and Kristie Schraer did a good job for us in the back court," Purser said.

MCS spikers 5-0

WICHITA FALLS — The Midland Christian varsity volleyball team kept its perfect record in tact Saturday with a swift intra-district victory here over Notre Dame.

The Lady Mustangs won the match 15-9, 15-5 to lift their overall record to 5-0 and their league mark to 2-0.

MCS plays again on Tuesday, at Lubbock Christian.

Sampras, Edberg meet in men's finals

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Pete Sampras lurched off court and lay cramped in pain in the referee's office for more than an hour after toppling No. 1 Jim Courier Saturday night to reach the U.S. Open final against Stefan Edberg.

Sampras, suffering dehydration despite his quick victory on a cool evening, clutched his aching stomach as he retreated from the court to recover after his 6-1, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 victory.

The pain hit him late in the match, and he played most of the final game grimacing from the severe cramps. He walked around between points, hoping the cramps would subside, and he served out the match with the help of his 11th ace as if he knew he couldn't go on much more.

Edberg, weary but pain free, took more than twice as much time — a record five hours, 26 minutes — to beat Michael Chang 6-7 (7-3), 7-5, 7-6 (7-3), 5-7, 6-4.

The final pits the 1991 Open champion and No. 2 seed, Edberg, against the 1990 champion and No. 3 seed, Sampras.

Courier blamed himself for the loss, rather than crediting Sampras.

"He didn't serve that well. I played a really poor match," said Courier, who had 38 errors to Sampras' 26. "The first game I felt out of synch, out of rhythm. That's probably the worst tennis I ever played in a big match. I have to say, I beat myself out there.

"My serve never really allowed me to get into the rhythm I like."

Courier, winner of the Australian and French opens, seemed unaware and unfazed that he could lose the No. 1 ranking.

"C'est la vie," he said with a shrug.

Sampras was unable to talk about the match, referee Tom Barnes said, because of his stomach cramps.

Courier, beaten badly by Edberg in the final last year, was wiped out almost as easily by Sampras, who forced the action at the net, outplayed Courier from the baseline and dominated throughout the first, third and fourth sets.

"You try different things to pick it up," Courier said. "You've got to keep trying to win a game and get into the match. I tried to stay out but I couldn't quite handle it.

"It's a great mystery. Everybody wants to know why they can't play the best every time. If we knew that we'd play the best every time."

Courier didn't pick a winner between Edberg and Sampras, his friend and Olympic doubles partner. He noted that Edberg probably was fatigued after the Chang match, and that Sampras may not be healthy. Sampras suffered dehydration, which caused the cramps and might not present a problem for him in the final Sunday.

"He's playing very confidently," Courier said of Sampras. "I didn't think he played the best he could, but that's what champions do. They win when they're not at their very best."

Courier was critical of the computer rankings that could tumble him.

"I had a fantastic year grand-slam wise. The best grand-slam year of anybody," he said. "To me that's No. 1. The ranking system is a little screwy."

Edberg wasn't at his best, either, yet he also pulled out a victory.

Worn down by Chang's chases after volleys, flustered by his own vulnerability on serves with 18 double-faults, Edberg came up with three gutsy shots at the end to close out the match.

San Angelo pounds Prairie View, 33-3

PRAIRIE VIEW — Wilbur Odom passed for two touchdowns and 277 yards in Angelo State's 33-3 victory over Prairie View on Saturday night.

Prairie View (0-2) scored first on Bradley Hays' 27-yard field goal, the first time the Panthers have led in a game since they brought back their football program in 1991.

Angelo State (2-0) logged 446 yards and held the Panthers to 101 yards.

Odom's TD passes were for 42 yards to Carlos Beatty and 6 yards to Wayne Mathis.

Mike Jinks added a 27-yard touchdown pass to Rodney Sims, and Peris'he Moore scored on a 3-yard run.

SW Texas State 39, Texas Southern 34

SAN ANTONIO — John Hugh threw two touchdowns and ran for two more Saturday as Southwest Texas State outlasted Texas Southern 39-34.

Hugh completed nine of 12 passes for 130 yards and ran for 100 more on 21 carries to lift the Bobcats (2-0). His performance overshadowed that of Texas Southern quarterback Stacey Moore, who completed 16 of 33 passes for a career-high 368 yards and five touchdowns.

Montana St. 13, Stephen F. Austin 6

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Rob Tesch caught a touchdown pass and set up another score with a reception as Montana State came from behind in the rain to edge Stephen F. Austin in a clash of Division I-AA teams.

It was the first victory for new coach Cliff Hysell as Montana State of the Big Sky Conference improved to 1-1. Stephen F. Austin, which hasn't won a game on the road since 1989, also is 1-1.

Tesch finished with five receptions for 136 yards, including a 63-yard scoring strike from freshman quarterback Chad Mayer.

Fort Lewis 46, West Texas St. 35

DURANGO, Colo. — Thad Trujillo threw four touchdowns, three of them in the fourth quarter, to give Fort Lewis a come-from-behind victory over West Texas State.

Trujillo hit Johnny Cox on a 46-yard scoring pass play late in the first half to give Fort Lewis its first lead of the game at 21-14.

West Texas State took the lead back with Duane Joubert's 95-yard kickoff return in the third period and Codie Scott's 7-yard TD pass to Brian Bailey and Ernie Cooke's 36-yard scoring romp in the fourth quarter to lead 35-24.

Trinity, Texas, 30, Tabor 0

SAN ANTONIO — Alan Balch scored two touchdowns as Trinity ended a seven-game home losing.

The Tigers won their season opener for the first time since 1984 and held an opponent scoreless for the first time since 1987, when they beat Colorado College 14-0.

Balch scored on runs of 2 and 1 yards and finished with 10 carries for 46 yards.

Texas Colleges

Tarleton St. 17, Cameron 6

LAWTON, Okla. — Jimmy Hering threw two touchdown passes, leading Tarleton State past Cameron.

Hering threw a 41-yard TD pass to Steve Pinnell in the first quarter and came back with a 27-yard touchdown throw to Kevin Benjamin in the fourth quarter.

Trampas Wilson kicked a 27-yard field goal for Tarleton State.

Midwestern State 31 Missouri Valley 2

WICHITA FALLS — Derrick Wagoner rushed for 112 yards and scored three touchdowns as Midwestern State beat Missouri Valley.

Midwestern State (2-0) scored on its first three possessions in the first quarter. Missouri Valley (1-1) scored its only points with a safety on an intentional grounding call in the second quarter.

McMurry 27, Southwestern, Kansas 12

ABILENE — Anthony Robinson threw a touchdown and ran for another, leading McMurry past Southwestern (Kan.).

Southwestern took the early lead on Derrick Singleton's 1-yard run. Singleton also completed 17 of 33 passes for 291 yards.

Austin College 24, Azusa Pacific 17

SHERMAN — Chris Sanders scored three touchdowns, including an 18-yard run with 3:24 remaining, giving Austin College a victory.

Sanders scored on runs of 4 and 14 yards earlier as the Kangaroos took a 17-7 lead. Azusa rallied for a tie on Shawn Anderson's 36-yard run late in the third quarter and Michael Wade's 20-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter.

Colts seek 2nd win of year against Houston

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Running back Rodney Culver lettered four years at Notre Dame, so he's not used to losing. He figures that's one of the reasons the Indianapolis Colts picked him in this year's NFL draft.

"They know I'm used to winning and they want some of that to rub off on some of the people who have been here," said Culver, who was selected in the draft's fourth round.

Culver says the Colts aren't plagued by a losing attitude, even though the franchise has been to the playoffs only once since 1977.

"This club drafted people from winning programs in Steve Emtman, Quentin Coryatt and myself," he said. "They felt bringing in guys with a positive attitude, it could improve the whole team."

It looked that way Sunday, in the Colts' 14-3 victory over Cleveland. An aggressive defense held the Browns to just 145 yards on offense, achieving a franchise-high 11 sacks to go with two interceptions.

"With them performing like they did, it made it so much easier on the offense," Culver said. "They performed so well, they gave the offensive linemen time to rest and for us to follow the game plan."

Culver, who rushed for 52 yards and had 78 more on seven receptions, is part of a threesome that coach Ted Marchibroda plans at running back.

"All three are very equal at this point and I plan to give all three playing time," Marchibroda said.

The other two are Anthony Johnson and Ken Clark, who was listed as questionable for Sunday's game with a hamstring injury in his right leg.

Culver knows the plan.

"My role is to do just what is asked of me," Culver said. "One week I might get 20 carries. This week, I might get only five and catch more passes. Other times, I'll be in there primarily to block."

This Sunday, the Indianapolis defense faces another challenge with the Houston Oilers and Warren Moon, who was stung for five interceptions in last weekend's opener against Pittsburgh. The Oilers were beaten 29-24.

Houston allowed 381 yards against Pittsburgh, a figure coach Jack Pardee blamed in part on the absence of defensive end Sean Jones, cornerback Cris Dishman and defensive end William Fuller. Jones announced his retirement earlier but rejoined the team Wednesday. Dishman and Fuller were holdouts.

"That makes a big difference when you're dealing with three starters from last year, plus (linebacker) Lamar Lathom is playing injured," Pardee said. "That does affect us a whole lot."

Winning the season opener was especially important to the Colts, Culver said.

"If we had struggled, some people would have said, 'Oh, they're the same old Colts,'" he said.

"Coming out and playing like we did sends a message that we're for real. We're going to fight and scratch until the bitter end."

MHS: Loss is eleventh straight for Bulldogs

won't play on game night."

Reeger was upset with the results, but the Bulldogs did play with seven players out due to illness, injury or discipline problems. And the Bulldogs received another big blow against Monterey when sophomore running back Michael Acrey broke an ankle and will face surgery this week.

Marcus Anderson, who led Midland with 28 yards rushing, was playing in his first game this year. Starting quarterback Brad Heidelberg was out with a virus and junior Johnny Paredes went most of the way, completing four of nine passes for 25 yards. He was intercepted once.

Monterey wasted no time in making a statement, driving on its first possession for a 28-yard field goal from sophomore Cory Jones. Possession No. 2 covered 49 yards with Shepherd scoring from the one.

Meanwhile, Midland was stymied on offense in the first half, gaining only 38 total yards compared to Monterey's 178.

In Midland's two games this year, the Bulldogs have played well in the third quarter and marched 53 yards in 11 plays to close the gap to 17-7 when Anderson scored from the one and Jeremy Hernandez added the point after.

It was looking better, but it was only a mirage as the Midland defense again allowed Shepherd and Welton to go wild as the Plainsmen answered the Midland score by marching 80 yards on 11 plays for the final margin as Shepherd ran off the final seven yards.

Midland High, now 0-2 on the year, will have to get its offense in gear against Andrews next week. The Class 4A Mustangs have already scored over 90 points in only two outings — and Acrey won't be available to help ignite the engine.

SELES: Sanchez Vicario cites lack of patience as problem

clear demonstration of the grit and determination that elevated her to her first Open final and makes her one of the most determined players in the world. She just wasn't strong enough to beat the defending champion, the grunting, groundstroking assassin who is clearly the best.

For the second straight year, the 18-year-old Seles closed the Grand Slam season by winning her third of the four major tournaments, cementing her No.1 ranking and adding $500,000 to her ample savings account. She lost no sets during the Open fortnight. She dropped only 20 games. Adding Saturday's 90-minute exercise, her court time amounted to about seven and a half hours, which was slightly less than the time she spent waiting in the locker room for Stefan Edberg to outlast Michael Chang.

"Last year was special because it was the first time I won the Open and up until that, I didn't play well here," said Seles, who lost in the Wimbledon final to Steffi Graf. "This year, I wasn't feeling too well in the second week, though the only match I really felt sick was the one with Patricia Hy."

If the virus that caused her dizziness and laryngitis had lingered, she at least would've had almost all of Saturday afternoon to relax. The men's semifinal drove both players a little crazy. Neither could bear watching the numerous momentum swings in the day's opening match. They didn't know what was the right time to eat. At one point, Seles said she took a 10- or 15-minute nap. Both said the uncertainty of the day wrought havoc with their nerves.

The difference was how they responded once they were summoned to the Stadium Court — Seles like a caged champion prize fighter, Sanchez Vicario like an unsure challenger. Before Sanchez Vicario, who at 17 won the French Open title in 1989, realized where she was, she was in a hole five games deep that had swallowed up any chance she had of putting doubt in Seles's mind.

The Spaniard's strategy was to mix up her shots, keep her groundstrokes deep, attempt to get Seles on her heels and draw her to the net, the only place Seles is uncomfortable on the court. That, Sanchez Vicario said, is what earned her the one victory in 11 previous matches against Seles, in three sets this summer at the Canadian Open. But Saturday, she made too many unforced errors, 43 to Seles's 23.

"I was not the same as when I beat her," said Sanchez Vicario. "I was more patient then."

Trailing by 0-5, she finally held her serve, broke back at 30, and then, in a sign of what would come later, she fought off five set points and forced Seles to serve out the set in the ninth game. Even in that game, Sanchez Vicario was not without an opportunity, which she blew by netting a forehand volley with the court open at 30-all.

"I was rushing, trying to end the points too fast," she said.

A set in hand, Seles broke Sanchez Vicario at love to start the second set, held at 15 for 2-0, and later broke for a 4-1 lead. Again, just when Seles appeared to be coasting, here came Sanchez Vicario to belatedly create some fear, running down balls on points others would not have bothered with. Sanchez Vicario saved two match points in the seventh game for 2-5, then broke Seles at 30 to draw to 3-5.

Appropriately, Seles found herself thinking of Sanchez Vicario as "kind of like a Chang," simply because, at this stage, she seemed positively determined not to go away without stretching the match to the limit.

In the ninth game, Seles reached double match point, but Sanchez Vicario hit backhand and forehand winners for deuce. She would save one more match point before hitting forehand wide to set up the sixth match point, on which her forehand volley would kiss the net cord, and float invitingly toward the lethal Seles forehand.

"By that time I was just so happy to see the net cord," said Seles, who spanked the forehand crosscourt, a clean winner for the match.

Given her ability to move Sanchez Vicario side to side, she was overstating the threat. Probably it was just the natural anxiety of nailing down a Grand Slam title that made Seles say she was "really, really nervous."

From the beginning, she was the front-runner here and that's how she played, with the exception of those first five match points.

Sooners now 2-0 with 61-0 defeat of Arkansas State

Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — Cale Gundy and Earnest Williams led a first-half barrage that saw No. 13 Oklahoma score on every possession on its way to a 61-0 victory over Arkansas State.

The Sooners (2-0) got the tuneup they wanted before meeting Southern Cal next week. They outgained Arkansas State 532-73 and were able to rest their starters throughout much of the second half.

Second 10

Arkansas State (0-2) is in its first year back in Division I-A after 10 years in I-AA. The Indians have been outscored 110-0 so far, having lost 49-0 to Toledo last week.

Gundy's 1-yard sneak with just over four minutes elapsed started the rout. Oklahoma went on to score the most points in a half under fourth-year coach Gary Gibbs. The previous high was 38 in a 73-3 victory over New Mexico State in 1989.

Williams, who had 116 yards on 11 carries, scored on a 60-yard run to give the Sooners a 14-0 lead after the first quarter.

No. 11 Nebraska 48, Middle Tenn. 7

LINCOLN, Neb. — Lance Lewis and Derek Brown broke loose on runs of 42 and 44 yards in the first two minutes after halftime, sparking No. 11 Nebraska to a 34-point second half and a victory over Middle Tennessee.

The Cornhuskers (2-0), who face No. 2 Washington next week, struggled against the Division I-AA Blue Raiders (1-1) through two quarters, leading only 14-7 at halftime.

After a 2-yard touchdown run by Calvin Jones in the first quarter for Nebraska, Middle Tennessee evened the score on Kelly Holcomb's 61-yard pass to Vince Parks early in the second quarter.

Quarterback Mike Grant ran 15 yards on an option 8:26 into the second quarter to put the Cornhuskers ahead 14-7.

The Huskers needed two plays to shake off the first-half doldrums, with Lewis bouncing out of a cluster of players to score 33 seconds into the third period.

Purdue 41, No. 17 California 14

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Purdue's young defense came up with four turnovers and held tailback Russell White to 79 yards as the Boilermakers built a big halftime lead and cruised past No. 17 California.

Purdue scored on its first six possessions and opened a 38-3 halftime lead in its season opener. California (1-1) managed to outgain Purdue 376-306 but suffered from three intercepted passes and one lost fumble.

Boilermaker fans, who have watched their team post just one winning season since 1980, mobbed the field and pulled down one of the goal posts after the game.

Purdue Coach Jim Colletto had said he was worried about having two dozen underclassmen on his two-deep depth chart.

But his worries were quickly set aside as three first half turnovers were turned into touchdowns. Purdue mixed the precision passing of Matt Pike, who completed 7 of 8 passes for 106 yards in the first half, with the running of Jeff Hill and Arlee Conners, who scored two TDs each.

LSU 24, No. 18 Mississippi St. 3

BATON ROUGE, La. — Louisiana State's defense held off No. 18 Mississippi State long enough for backup quarterback Jesse Daigle to lead a late 21-0 uprising in LSU's Southeastern Conference victory.

The outcome left each team at 1-1 overall.

Daigle broke a 3-3 tie in the fourth quarter, hitting Wesley Jacobs for a 66-yard touchdown pass. The score came two plays after Nate Miller knocked the ball loose from quarterback Sleepy Robinson and Anthony Williams recovered it on the LSU 33.

Minutes later, Carlton Buckels intercepted Robinson on the LSU 40 and returned it 38 yards to the Mississippi State 32. Four plays later, freshman running back Robert Davis ran 17 yards up the middle for a touchdown.

Mississippi State next fumbled on the LSU 45, then jumped offside on fourth-and-1 to keep LSU's drive alive. On the next fourth down, LSU faked a field goal attempt to pick up the first down. Germaine Williams added another touchdown for the Tigers on a 7-yard run.

Daigel, who replaced starter Chad Loup in the third quarter, was 4 of 7 for 89 yards, one touchdown and one interception. Loup was 5 of 8 for 44 yards in the first half.

Robinson completed 11 of 21 for 123 yards. He was intercepted four times and sacked twice.

Until LSU came to life in the fourth quarter, the offense offset a good defensive effort with sloppy play and an inability to take advantage of big breaks. But Mississippi State wasn't able to do anything either.

The last second of the first half was ticking off the scoreboard before either team could put any points on it.

With one second left, Mississippi State staged its third field goal attempt of the half. Chris Gardner, who missed a 38-yarder and had a 32-yard attempt blocked, hit a 47-yarder — the longest of his career.

No. 19 North Carolina St. 14, Maryland 10

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Eddie Goines made a spectacular touchdown catch with 11:31 left and No. 19 North Carolina State beat Maryland despite giving up 501 yards.

N.C. State (3-0 overall, 1-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) was held scoreless after its opening drive until Goines caught a 38-yard pass from Terry Jordan while falling backward near the back of the end zone and with Maryland's Mike Lacy only inches away.

Maryland, 0-2 overall and in the ACC, dominated the statistics but couldn't turn the yardage into points and was thwarted in its attempt to give new coach Mark Duffner his first victory with the Terrapins.

Maryland twice moved deep into Wolfpack territory in the closing minutes. But safety Mike Reid intercepted a pass by John Kaleo with 1:35 left and, after the Terrapins got the ball back, time ran out as Reid deflected Kaleo's pass to Richie Harris near the end zone.

Kaleo threw a school-record 56 passes, completing 31 for 264 yards. But he had three interceptions and fumbled once. Running back Mark Mason rushed 28 times for 164 yards, and Frank Wycheck caught four passes to become Maryland's career receiving leader with 109.

The winning drive began on the Wolfpack 39. On third and 8 from the 41, Jordan passed 21 yards to Robert Hinton. Jordan then avoided a heavy rush and lofted the game-winner to Goines.

The Terrapins put together a 15-play, 78-yard drive on their first series of the third quarter to take a 10-7 lead. Shortly after Kaleo completed a 17-yard pass to Marcus Badgett to the Wolfpack 35, Ricky Turner was called for interference in the end zone. Doug Burnett then bulled in from the 1.

No. 20 Tennessee 34, No. 14 Georgia 31

ATHENS, Ga. — Heath Shuler's second touchdown of the fourth quarter, a 3-yard run with 50 seconds remaining, lifted No. 20 Tennessee over turnover-prone No. 14 Georgia on Saturday.

Heath's game-winning score capped an 80-yard drive after Garrison Hearst's third touchdown, a 17-yard run, had given the Bulldogs a 31-27 lead with six minutes remaining.

The Volunteers (2-0 overall, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) came up with six turnovers in the game, including a big fumble recovery with 14 seconds left after Eric Zeier had completed a 38-yard pass to Andre Hastings to the Vols' 34.

Reggie Ingram recovered the Hastings' fumble and the Vols ran out the clock as Georgia fell to 1-1, both games in the SEC.

The winning drive was kept alive when Shuler connected with Ronald Davis for 22 yards to the Georgia 18 on a fourth-and-14 play with 2:15 to play.

Shuler, a sophomore, had given the Vols a 27-17 lead on a 4-yard quarterback draw to cap an 80-yard drive with 12:36 to play.

A&M survives Tulsa scare

N.Y. Times News Service

COLLEGE STATION — There's an adage about he who laughs last laughs best, but there were more sighs of relief than chuckles in the Texas A&M locker room Saturday night.

The Aggies defeated Tulsa, 19-9, before 58,926 fans at Kyle Field, gaining a measure of revenge for a 35-34 defeat against the Golden Hurricane last season. It was A&M's only regular-season defeat in 1991.

"I just wanted another chance at them," said senior linebacker Marcus Buckley, an Eastern Hills graduate. "I didn't want to go out and lose to Tulsa again."

The Aggies prevented the Golden Hurricane from claiming another unofficial Southwest Conference championship, as they did a year ago. But A&M didn't exactly pound Tulsa into submission.

In fact, the Aggies had to come from behind. They trailed, 6-3, at halftime, but scored two touchdowns in the second half to win.

That was enough for the seventh-ranked Aggies to improve to 3-0. Tulsa had its two-year, eight-game winning streak snapped, and dropped to 1-1.

Instead of burying the Golden Hurricane, the Aggies praised them.

"I think Tulsa's a great team," linebacker Jason Atkinson said. "They're going to win a lot of games this year. They'll be in the top 25."

They might have made it this week if not for a dominating performance by the A&M defense and a second-half resurgence by tailback Greg Hill and the Aggies offense.

The defense held the Golden Hurricane to 184 total yards and three field goals. Tulsa's scores were the direct result of A&M turnovers and came after "drives" of 5, minus-2 and 3 yards.

"It was a major milestone tonight the way we held them out of the end zone," Atkinson said.

The offense recovered from an inept first half to gain 191 yards and score 16 points in the second. Hill, who had 29 yards after two quarters, finished with 125.

"We came out in the second half and executed," Hill said. "It seemed like every time we ran the ball it was working."

Still, even Hill acknowledged that the Aggies won this one with defense.

"The offense seems to struggle at times," he said. "The defense never struggles." The A&M defense was good in the first half, holding Tulsa to 136 yards and two field goals. It turned it up in the second half, holding the Golden Hurricane to just 48 yards.

"On offense we couldn't do anything in the second half," Tulsa coach Dave Rader said. "Their defense was dominating."

It had to be to make up for the A&M offense, especially in the first half. The Aggies managed just 95 yards and a field goal in the first two quarters, and presented Tulsa with two gift scores thanks to fumbles by quarterback Jeff Granger and running back Rodney Thomas.

Granger's fumble came at the A&M 10. The Golden Hurricane managed just 5 yards though, all on a defensive holding penalty, and settled for Eric Lange's 27-yard field goal with 30 seconds remaining in the half.

It appeared as though the score would be tied at halftime, but Thomas fumbled on the Aggies' 21 on the first play after the kickoff.

This time the Golden Hurricane lost 2 yards, but Lange's 40-yard field goal gave Tulsa a 6-3 lead.

"The first half was scary," Granger said. "Things just didn't click. It reminded me of the second half against Tulsa last year."

No wonder. Last season the Aggies built a 28-10 halftime lead but collapsed in the final two quarters.

But this time, the second half belonged to the Aggies. An 8-yard touchdown run by Hill in the third quarter and a 12-yard TD pass from Granger to Hill in the fourth gave the Aggies the winning points. Terry Venetoulias' 36-yard field goal clinched it.

Late TCU field goal forges 17-17 tie

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Jeff Wilkinson kicked a 39-yard field goal with 1:51 remaining Saturday, helping Texas Christian salvage a 17-17 tie with Western Michigan and spoiling a career-best 336-yard passing performance by Broncos quarterback Brad Tayles.

Western Michigan (0-0-1) led 17-14 and appeared headed for victory after Pierre Hixon intercepted a Leon Clay pass at the Broncos' 33 with 6:55 to go.

But TCU's Manvel Hopes intercepted Tayles' pass at the Frogs' 44 three plays later to set up the game-tying kick for Wilkinson, who had missed from 42 and 44 yards in the first half.

Tayles completed 27 of 43 passes and was intercepted twice for Western Michigan of the Mid-American Conference. The Horned Frogs (0-1-1), who lost their opener 24-7 to New Mexico, remained winless under first-year coach Pat Sullivan.

Clay passed for 151 yards and a score and Curtis Modkins carried 22 times for 106 yards to lead TCU.

Jay Barresi's 40-yard field goal had given the Broncos a 17-14 lead with 7:09 remaining. The kick, which culminated a 68-yard drive, was set up by Tayles' 44-yard pass to John Morton on a third-and-9 play.

The Horned Frogs tied the game 14-14 with 17 seconds remaining in the third quarter on Clay's 3-yard touchdown pass to Mike Noack.

Angry Buffs get even with Baylor

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

WACO — No. 12 Colorado wanted to even a score, and did so by almost blowing out the fuses in the Baylor scoreboard.

Kordell Stewart, playing only a half because of a foot injury, ignited a wild offensive show with three touchdown passes and hit 16 of 17 passes for 251 yards as the Buffaloes gained some sweet revenge with a 57-38 victory over the Bears on Saturday.

Stewart, who passed for a school-record 409 yards last week, led Colorado to a 33-3 lead in the first half as the Buffs avenged a 2-point loss last year to the Bears at Boulder.

Stewart completed a school-record 13 consecutive passes.

"Everything was open," Stewart said. "If we keep doing what we're doing, we'll probably break a lot of records this year. Colorado has been a rushing team, so passing records are easier to break."

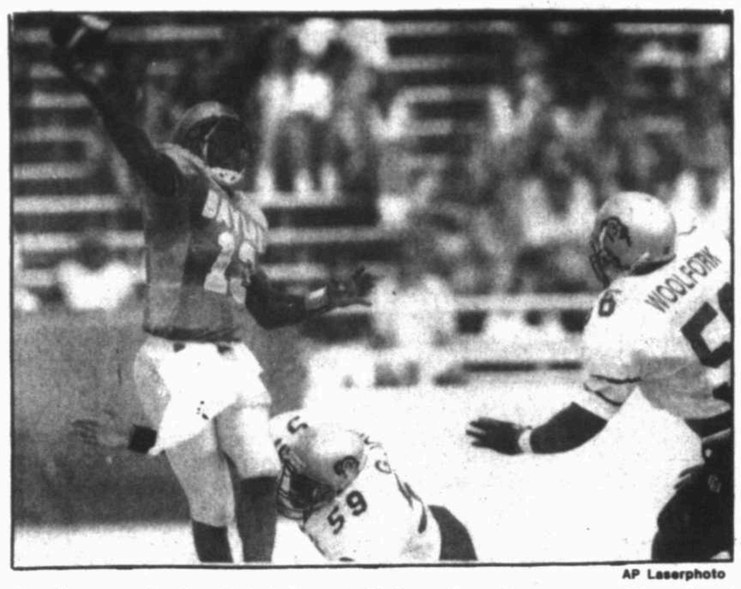

Colorado coach Bill McCartney said he is falling in love with his passing offense.

"The offense has been satisfying for two weeks." he said. "Stewart played super on a gimpy ankle."

Baylor coach Grant Teaff said Colorado's passing game was unstoppable.

"Stewart is a great athlete, very impressive," Teaff said. "He killed us on third down. It was very discouraging because we just couldn't stop him."

Colorado of the Big Eight Conference improved to 2-0 while Baylor of the Southwest Conference dropped to 0-2 before 34,202 sun-baked fans in Floyd Casey Stadium.

AP Laserphoto

It was the most points the Bears had allowed at home in the 21 years that Grant Teaff has been the coach and matched the most ever allowed at Waco, when Texas beat Baylor 57-0 in 1914.

Trying to even the score for last year's 16-14 loss to Baylor at Boulder, Stewart had the scoreboard clicking and the Baylor secondary reeling. He only played in the first half because of a sprained left foot.

His only incompletion came when he intentionally grounded the ball.

Stewart's touchdown passes went 6, 35 and 52 yards to tight end Christian Fauria, split end Charles Johnson, and wingback Michael Westbrook.

Tailback Lamont Warren scored three times on short runs as the Buffaloes proved they could also run the ball.

Baylor struck first on Trey Weir's 28-yard field goal after Melvin Bonner had dropped a sure touchdown pass in the end zone.

Colorado charged back and also got a 50-yard field goal from Pat Blottiaux, a 1-yard scoring run from Warren, and a safety when Baylor quarterback J.J. Joe grounded the ball in his own end zone.

Baylor only had two first downs in the first half. One came on an 80-yard scoring pass from Joe to David Mims.

Baylor's Robert Strait scored on a 5-yard run and Joe threw a 33-yard scoring pass to Melvin Bonner in the second half. The Bears, however, couldn't stop Warren, who ran for scores of 4 and 14 yards.

Mark McFarland returned an intercepted pass 46 yards for a touchdown off backup quarterback Duke Tobin in the fourth quarter.

Tobin came back with a 39-yard scoring pass to Donnell Leomiti. Joe threw his fourth touchdown pass with 2:02 left, a 30-yarder to Reggie Miller.

Orangemen go deep, burn Texas

Longhorns fall to 0-2 for only fifth time in 100 years

Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — All day long, Syracuse receivers kept telling Marvin Graves not to be so short-sighted.

Graves listened, coming up with two big pass plays in the second half that helped No. 9 Syracuse rally past Texas 31-21 on Saturday.

Graves teamed up with Shelby Hill on a 51-yard pass play to set up John Biskup's go-ahead 20-yard field goal midway through the final period. He connected on a 58-yarder to Qadry Ismail to set up Syracuse's final touchdown in the waning seconds.

"Shelby was telling me it was there. Other receivers that ran the route told me it was there. So I stopped looking under and tried to look deep a little bit more," Graves said.

"They had the under receivers covered well. Shelby and Qadry were open and made some great catches. Put it in their hands, you never know what can happen."

"They weren't exactly giving it to us. It was our execution on the route," said Hill, who caught three passes for 115 yards. "When you can do it again and again, it breaks their backs."

"You have to be able to stop those big plays," Texas coach John Mackovic said.

Syracuse (2-0), trailing 21-13 late in the third quarter, tied it with 2:04 to play in the period on Graves' 10-yard pass to Kerry Ferrell and a 2-point conversion pass from tailback David Walker to Graves.

Graves' 51-yard pass to Hill was the highlight of a 13-play drive that finally stalled at the Texas 2. Biskup's 20-yard field goal gave the Orangemen a 24-21 lead.

Graves, who completed 11 of 18 passes for 284 yards, threw a 58-yard bomb to Ismail to set up the clinching Syracuse score.

TECH: Raider receivers cause Wyoming some major headaches

do," Hill said. "I felt like I couldn't miss."

Hill wasn't the only weapon the Raiders were successful in using either, as quarterback Robert Hall was 20-for-33 passing for 349 yards and two TDs. I-back Byron "Bam" Morris gained 107 yards on 16 carries, including a 51-yard scoring jaunt with 9:16 to play in the third quarter, putting Tech ahead for good at 28-24.

The Raiders needed every bit of yardage they could get from that offensive trio, because for the second time in as many games, the Tech defense allowed more than 30 points. With last week's 34-9 loss to Oklahoma, Tech is giving up an average of 33 points a game.

Wyoming quarterback Joe Hughes completed 17 of his 29 pass attempts for 213 yards, as the Cowboy offense amassed 395 yards. The only problem for Wyoming was that the Red Raiders rolled up 532 yards.

"It's a concern that we've given up some points the last couple of games. But tonight we did some things well and played well when we had to," said All-American defensive back Tracy Saul.

"Our defense was a little porous," Dykes admitted. "We just couldn't seem to get the fire put out. In the second half we put it out a little bit, but these passing teams are that way with their three and four receivers."

And maybe that's where Dykes and Tech offensive coordinator Dick Winder got the idea to throw in some four-receiver formations.

"We had a pretty diversified offensive plan. I really thought it was well conceived and executed. That's the main reason we won the football game," Dykes said.

Winning the game was somewhat in question for the Raiders for the first three quarters, though.

The Cowboys got on the scoreboard first when Dwight Driver ran across the goal line two and a half minutes into the game.

Tech rallied on the next possession, however, as Saul returned the Wyoming kickoff 55 yards to the Cowboy 36-yard line. Then Hall hit Hill for a 21-yard gain, and Hall's seven-yard TD run two plays later tied the game.

Wyoming came right back to score on a 10-play, 74-yard drive, with Hughes finding Ryan Yarborough on a 14-yard TD pass. The Cowboys scored again on their next possession, as Kris Mindlin nailed a 22-yard field goal with 13:49 to go in the second quarter for a 17-7 lead.

But the Raiders suddenly found their high gear. A 65-yard drive drive that was highlighted by a diving, fingertip catch by receiver Derrell Mitchell was capped with Morris' three-yard dive, cutting the Wyoming edge to 17-14.

The Raiders' final score of the first half came when Hall hit Mitchell on a 16-yarder that put Tech ahead 21-17 42 second before intermission.

Wyoming surged to another TD on the second half's opening drive, retaking the lead as Hughes and Yarborough connected again, this time for 30 yards and a 24-21 Cowboy lead.

Tech's offense would not be denied, and two minutes later scored on Morris' 51-yard run. The Raiders finally went up by two touchdowns when Hall and Hill hooked up for an 18-yard score with 12:31 left in the game.

Driver scored again for Wyoming with 8:32 on the clock, and Hughes hit Yarborough for a two-point conversion pass that made the score 35-32.

But Hill broke Wyoming's back when he hauled in a 40-yard pass to the Cowboy 4-yard line, setting up Morris' third TD of the game.

Tech's final score came when safety Marcus Coleman carried an interception of Hughes 65 yards into the end zone.

"Texas Tech moved the ball well. Hall creates a lot of problems. They did a good job of making the right throw and the right catch," said Wyoming head coach Joe Tiller.

SMU defeats UNT, evens record

Associated Press

DALLAS — Reserve Kevin Shepard ran for two second-half touchdowns and Brian Berry caught a 65-yard touchdown pass to lead Southern Methodist past North Texas 28-14.

The Mustangs of the Southwest Conference and North Texas, a Division I-AA team, are each 1-1.

immediately, bursting through for 20, 11 and 2 yards before his first 1-yard touchdown gave SMU a 21-14 lead.

The Eagles answered by moving to the SMU 11, but the drive stalled when Mustangs linebacker Bill Kiely stuffed Terrance Brown on fourth and one as the final quarter began.

SMU sealed the victory with an 89-yard drive aided by a North Texas penalty that wiped out an interception in the end zone.

The Mustangs benefited from an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against the North Texas band for playing as SMU set up a formation. Shepard again scored from the 1.

Freshman Ramon Flanigan's TD pass to Berry in the second quarter broke a 7-7 tie. The 65-yard play was SMU's longest scoring pass since 1989.

SMU receiver Jason Wolf (33) has the ball knocked away from him by North Texas defender James Augustus.

Flanigan, who led the Mustangs for most of the second half in a season-opening loss to Tulane, left the game with a sprained left thumb after SMU's next drive and didn't return.

North Texas quarterback Mitch Maher combined with Scott Ford for most of the Eagles' first-half offense.

Officer campaign needs city support

Long gone are the days when the friendly neighborhood police officer could patrol the streets of Midland — or any city — with the assurance that his next traffic stop would be "routine." Nowadays it could be his last.

The carefree days of law enforcement depicted in Andy Griffith's television town of Mayberry became a victim of the drug cartels and the increasing violence on our streets. When a law enforcement officer stops a vehicle today, he has no idea what he will be confronting and the sad statistics in the State of Texas and across the nation reflect the danger: 14 officers killed in the state last year, 138 killed in the nation.

Besides being prone to violence, today's criminal also is armed better than those in earlier times. Many carry larger caliber weapons that are semi- or fully-automatic. That puts a police officer at a significant disadvantage.

Bullet-proof vests can provide an added measure of protection for officers, and to that end a campaign to "Save a Police Officer," sponsored by the Reporter-Telegram and KTPX, Channel 9, was launched Wednesday in conjunction with the opening of a police information center at Midland Park Mall.

The program is patterned after one in El Paso. Individuals or corporations that donate the full $500 cost of a bullet-proof vest will have their name placed on the police vehicle of their choice. Others donating $100-500 will receive certificates. Donations can be sent to the "Invest in a Vest" campaign at the Midland Police Department, 601 N. Loraine or Neighbors Against Burglary & Drugs, P.O. Box 2424, 79702.

The vest program is important because it gives law enforcement officers extra protection in their quest to safeguard the public against the criminal element. But the program also locks the arms of law enforcement officers with the general public in the fight against crime.

Law enforcement officers are our first line of defense against the criminal. We need to make them as safe as possible. Invest in a vest today and give our law enforcement officers an edge over the criminal.

Cost of hurricane will affect everyone

There have been a few hopeful economic signs in recent months. But for every plus a couple of minuses have emerged. Thus, the total picture was of a sluggish national economy, with barely perceptible growth.

And along came Hurricane Andrew.

It is reported that insurance and reinsurance companies in the United States and elsewhere around the globe expect to pay sums approaching $8 billion or more for damage wrought by Hurricane Andrew in Florida alone; the figures aren't yet in on Louisiana. Already Andrew is the costliest natural disaster in history.

Ultimately, the costs for Hurricane Andrew will lead British underwriters to charge American insurance companies more for the reinsurance. That's going to increase insurance rates for everyone. It will also increase the cost of doing business.

There will be some economic stimulation as a result of Andrew. Rebuilding South Florida will revitalize the construction industry there, at least for a time. But in the context of the total national economy, that will hardly make a blip — while the costs of Andrew will put a damper on business activity not only in Florida but elsewhere. It's not what the fragile economy needed at all.

Money rankings place Texas schools high

Rice is No. 1 — again. William Marsh Rice's institute-turned-university remains the nation's best buy in higher education for the second straight year in Money magazine's rating of 100 U.S. schools.

And Rice is but one of seven Texas schools among Money's "good buys." . . . (University of Texas, ranked 14th; Texas A&M, 33rd; Baylor University, 35th; Trinity University, No. 38, St. Mary's University, 81st; and Austin College, 93rd).

Congratulations to all of them. Rice is one of Houston's proudest native achievements — a university of excellence that began tuition-free and continues with a growing $1.25 billion endowment. Though it now charges an $8,825 annual tuition, most students receive assistance.

And — in contrast to other "rankings" — the (magazine's) factors were not related to football.

Money's school ratings clearly demonstrate that our state offers a well-rounded higher education program, ranging from rural to urban schools from public to private ones.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Sept. 13, the 257th day of 1992. There are 109 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 13, 1788, the U.S. Constitutional Convention authorized the first national election, and declared New York City the temporary national capital.

On this date:

In 1989, Fay Vincent was named commissioner of Major League Baseball, succeeding the late A. Bartlett Giamatti.

Quayle helps white-collar criminal

WASHINGTON — Had Michael Dukakis known that then-Sen. Dan Quayle had interceded with the Justice Department on behalf of a federal convict and Indiana GOP supporter in July 1988, he might have had a white-collar version of Willie Horton to hurl back at Republicans.

Anderson

A month before pegging Dukakis as a soft-on-crime liberal, Quayle fired off a letter to Justice on behalf of Stephen Goot. Goot had been convicted in March 1988 of racketeering and conspiracy charges in connection with a six-year federal undercover investigation into local court corruption. He was sentenced the following June to 20 years in prison for his role in fixing drunk driving tickets with a former local prosecutor.

Dated July 7, 1988, and marked "RUSH REQUEST/IMMEDIATE ATTENTION," the letter we obtained shows Quayle asking that Goot be assigned to a minimum-security prison because "there is a concern for his physical safety if he is not assigned to a penitentiary with other 'white-collar' criminals."

Twelve days later Goot was moved from a detention center in Chicago to a minimum-security federal prison camp in Duluth, Minn. — once dubbed "Club Fed" for its country club comforts, at least by penal standards. Goot believes that without Quayle's intervention he would have ended up in a much harsher medium security prison.

Goot also believes that Quayle and others had "written letters and were supportive of my character." But Goot strongly disputes any notion that his life was in danger in prison, which was the very reason on which Quayle pressed Justice.

"There was never a threat against my life . . . not at all," Goot told us.

Justice wrote Quayle back on Aug. 23, 1988, stating that Goot had been transferred because it was the Bureau of Prisons mission to "provide a safe and humane environment for individuals placed in their care." But one congressional source familiar with prisoners' assistance requests said that in respect to the Quayle letter, "It's fair to say this goes beyond ordinary practice for a Senate office."

Goot, who describes himself as a former Quayle fund-raiser and contributor in his two Senate drives and was long active in Indiana Republican politics, says he feels grateful for Quayle's help, and has even thought about dropping him a note of thanks over the years.

In June 1988, the Gary Post-Tribune editorialized about the case that was dubbed Operation Bar-Tab: "The ticket-fixing sleaze tree has deep and widespread roots. Two judges, a clerk, some lawyers and employees have been caught so far in the Lake County court schemes that mocked the law." Regarding Goot's part in the ticket fixing and that of a former prosecutor, the newspaper wrote they "are both paying a high price for dishonesty, and they should."

How high a price did Goot pay? Goot, who was released last November, served his time at the Duluth Federal Prison Camp, whose population consists largely of drug offenders as well as other white-collar offenders. It's also the type of prison Republicans usually rush to hold up as an example of the "coddling of criminals."

The Bush administration has been under heavy assault recently for giving white-collar crime short-shrift. The Democratic platform accuses Republicans of "leniency toward white-collar crime. . ."

Despite campaigning hard for Quayle in the 1980 Senate race and his re-election in 1986, Goot is among the undecided this year.

"I don't know, quite honestly," said Goot of his vote. "I haven't made up my mind."

GEORGE WILL

Answers may make voting for Bush easier

WASHINGTON — The search for reasons to re-elect George Bush resembles, for many, the 19th century search for the source of the Blue Nile: hard going. Here are some questions which, were he to answer them, might make it easier for many to vote for him with ungritted teeth.

Will

Vice President Quayle wants voters to clarify responsibility in Washington — to elect a president and Congress of the same party, both Democratic or both Republican. Do you agree?

When you said in Houston that Clinton's election would mean "a rubber-check Congress and a rubber-stamp president," were you not predicting a Democratic Congress in 1993? Are you not really recommending your re-election on the ground that you can stymie Congress and enforce the (supposedly) dreaded "gridlock" of government?

Most second terms are (even) worse than most first terms. Your argument for a second term is: Hey, don't blame me, I couldn't deal with a Democratic Congress. If you couldn't deal with it after the 40-state sweep of 1988, how will you be stronger if you stagger into lame-duck status only because people decide Clinton would be even worse?

Out where one-eighth of all Americans live, California's Republican governor has dispelled some of the fatalism about statism. It is the belief that there is a leftward-working ratchet in contemporary society, so that government growth can be occasionally slowed but never reversed. Wilson did it by resisting various supposedly irresistible factions and enduring some chaos and acrimony. Can you convincingly promise similarly constructive chaos and acrimony–a less kind and gentle Bush, beginning now, by vetoing the $2.3 billion legislative appropriation bill, the money Congress spends on itself?

Loyalty is a virtue, up to a point. You have passed that point. What are the ten-thumbed hands of Messrs. Darman and Brady doing, still on the tiller of economic policy? You say this election is about "trust." Should we just trust you to sack them, someday, over the rainbow? On the other hand, when you say Congress is to blame for everything, does that mean you see no reason to change your advisers?

But, then, you may be thinking, "To blame for what?" You recently said of the country's economic condition, "I'm not sure it's worse than four years ago." Really? More people are in poverty than in 1989, median household income is down, as are average hourly earnings in the private sector. (Probably not in government, of course.)

One of your finest achievements is the North American Free Trade Agreement. But critics say it is part of a sinister plan to further depress American wages by exposing workers to cheap foreign competition. Is your conservatism compatible with government measures to help workers cope with the rapid change that is the consequence of the internationalization of economic life?

A few days after your running mate told grateful workers in Michigan there would be billions spent upgrading tanks that your administration recently said should not be upgraded, you were in Humboldt, South Dakota. There, in a speech warning against a Clinton "spending binge" and announcing a sweetening of agriculture subsidies, you told the farmers you favored "keeping government off your back." Do you wonder why people think your words reflect no ballast of belief?

The Republican platform (surely it was just a bluff jocularity when you said you hadn't read it) says: "We believe a free market in art — with neither suppression nor favoritism by government — is the best way to foster the cultural revival our country needs." Does that mean, as it seems to, that you will fight to abolish that fountain of favoritism, the National Endowment for the Arts — and, while you are at it, public television subsidies?

RUSSELL BAKER

Observer thinks baseball shouldn't be owned

The newspapers say the baseball owners pressured the baseball commissioner into resigning. I want to say, "Hold it right there, newspapers. How can baseball be owned?"

Baker

I have been thoroughly soaked, marinated you might say, in the propaganda of baseball. When you say "baseball" to me, I think of church, and not just because the average baseball game nowadays lasts longer than a month of Sundays. It's "baseball owners" that puzzle me. Church can't be owned, can it?

When you say "baseball" to me, I think of the Fourth of July, the flag and the Gettysburg Address. I wouldn't want to live in an America where the newspapers spoke of the "Fourth of July ownership" or "Gettysburg Address owners" as though it weren't repugnant to have sacred matters resting in capitalism's sweaty paw.

I hope never to see the day when real, true, genuine, etcetera American goodness can be captured by a band of entrepreneurs so suspicious of each other that they need an American Goodness commissioner to keep them from doing something terrible to that goodness.

Yet this apparently is what has happened to baseball. I had begun to suspect something like this was afoot after making a pilgrimage to the new temple of the Baltimore Orioles, known in Maryland as Oriole Park At Camden Yards Where Cal Ripken Jr. And Assorted Other Ripkens Are On Display.

As one who remembers that 50 cents bought a pretty good seat when "Pooch" Puccinelli, Art Graham, Murray Howell & Company played at old Oriole Park on 29th Street, I was startled at the $12 price for a seat in the new shrine. Anybody who has ever watched a baseball game through a mail slot will know what this seat was like.

There were plenty of seats from which a lot of the game could be seen, but you apparently had to put big, big bucks in the plate to get one.

Or so I guessed after noticing that most bore the names of corporations, which led me to guess that they'd been bought by the kind of people permitted to charge entertainment costs off their income tax, from which I guessed that, in addition to paying for my own seat, I was also contributing to the pleasure of those who had seats with a view.

Five dollars to park the car didn't seem baldly felonious to one who has paid to park the car in midtown Manhattan, but the price on everything edible and potable seemed to start at $2.75. After a quick calculation on the cost of enough hot dogs, peanuts and soda pop to fill four children, I was so grateful I hadn't brought even one that I offered a silent prayer of gratitude to the baseball ex-commissioner.

The reverential mood became harder to support when someone told me that Oriole Park At Camden Yards was built at public expense. I knew, of course, that football people were not above putting a gun to the public head and making the taxpayers build them a nice place to make money in.

That's football. What else should we expect of a business whose purpose is to amuse mass audiences with television spectacles in which huge men, unidentifiable except by large numbers on their backs, knock each other down?

Football is business. Business is expected to extort subsidies from the public in return for helping finance the election of statesmen who will stop public handouts to the unworthy.

Baseball, however, is church, the flag, the Gettysburg Address and hot dogs. Abstract, old-fashioned 25-cent hot dogs, if not the $2.75 variety. That's why these news stories about baseball being owned are so distressing.

The owner, I gather, is CBS. It paid the teams a bankruptive sum for rights to televise games, then didn't do it after deciding that golf, tennis and bowling were lots more fun to watch, even though golf lasts even longer than baseball.

The CBS gold was divvied up among the players, leaving not much for the middlemen who pass the millions from CBS to shortstops, relievers, pitchers and all.

It's these middlemen who call themselves "owners." Blasphemy, not baseball, is their game.

Mayor Faircloth needs to visit with Freckles

The Pot-Bellied Pig issue voted down by Midland City Council exemplifies why impeachment processes were created. Not only were the nearly 1,000 citizens that signed a petition ignored, Mayor J.D. Faircloth went so far as to ridicule the petitioners and the system that put him in office: "I don't understand how we are even considering this... This is ridiculous."

What is "ridiculous" is the fact the city council did their dead-level best to remain "ignorant" of the true nature of the miniature pet pig.

Mayor Faircloth, did you not realize that the pigs that you represented as animals we would like to have as pets — via a KOSA news report — would not pass the ordinance in question? Did you not know that the news report was of a breeding farm? Did you even read the ordinance?

Please be honest, Mr. Faircloth. When we discuss this ordinance again, let's compare apples to apples. Or better yet, perhaps you should conveniently schedule a meeting with Freckles.

George Bush is master at creating illusions

Sorry, Jack Edwards, but, "That old dog won't hunt."

Is he telling us that the thousands of young men who chose to finish college before serving the military are not fit to be president? Why would our government make legal such a provision if it would not benefit our country and make it illegal for these people to ever become president? It's not logical.

Just who is Edwards to make such judgments? By his standards I could call George Bush a bloodthirsty war-monger, but I won't. I will just review the facts!

He left home at 17 to join the fight. That was considered macho in the old days. I know, I am older than Bush. This pattern of fast on the trigger has followed him all the way, right to the present time.

He destroyed a city and killed hundreds of people to arrest a little smart aleck dictator whom we created, while we sat in our living rooms and cheered our great leader. He entertains us, boosts his ratings and all is well on the farm.

Then he needs to improve his foreign policy, so he starts another war. This is slight of hand so while you read his lips and magic mirrors he shuts down our oil business, putting thousands out of work, under the illusion that he is getting us cheap oil.

By the time we escort that cheap oil out and fight wars to protect it, it is costing us $150 dollars a barrel while we sit on our West Texas oil which he has made impossible for us to have. We can't afford that cheap foreign oil, the jobs are gone.

The illusion of the past several years that our economy is great, is now only disillusionment. But the illusion that George is so good at foreign policy has yet to be exposed. It's like love and marriage, horse and carriage; the two go together.

George Bush is — or has been — good at creating illusion. And don't let another military venture cloud your vision.

I'll take a president any day who uses his brain and logic. After all, that's why we allowed our young men to continue their education before military service. They are our hope fulfilled and our time has come!

It takes heart to lessen the causes of abortion

While I do not apologize to my detractors (Letters, Aug. 16) about my original Aug. 9 letter against the apparent insincerity of many in the anti-abortion movement, please let me clarify my views by stating I am not for abortion on demand. Nor do I truly believe that the majority of abortions are performed for "necessary" reasons, such as in the cases of rape, incest, danger to the mother, or the likelihood of a deformed fetus.

But since my first letter pertained to those reasons, let me ask my aforementioned critics the following: if you successfully humiliate the proverbial 15-year-old girl from having an abortion, will you then support public expenditures to build more orphanages to care for the resulting child you "save"? If you make women who become pregnant through rape or incest have their children, will you support day care centers or household subsidies to insure those kids receive proper care? And if you "save" fetuses who grow up seriously crippled or retarded, will you at least keep quiet about "declining neighborhood property values" when a non-profit organization tries to establish a group home for those same disabled people in your nice, respectable, suburban block?

If your answer to any of the above is "yes," then I apologize to you who were sincerely offended by my original letter. If not, then I remind you that it doesn't take any love or courage to hurl accusations of Naziism upon abortion clinics. It takes more heart and determination, though, to lessen some of the causes of the tragedy of abortion.

Police officers deserve our respect and thanks

If so many people in America think that police officers are the enemy, why then when those same people need help or get into trouble do they place the first call to their "enemy," expecting the person they respect the least to save them from the situation? They gracefully accept the officers' help and then spit on the job they've done.

Has America forgotten what the badge really means? Do we forget that these men and women chose their profession not for themselves, but for every person who deserves a safer world to live in? I have witnessed the prejudice against police officers and with every scornful word my heart aches. Why do we swear at the people who only wish to help us? Why do we spit on those who have devoted their lives to protecting us?

Wake up America! It's the police officer that arrests the pusher that would have given poison to your babies, and patrols the streets so you and I can sleep peacefully at night.

To every police officer in America, I urge you to remember the words of Epictetus:

"Be not diverted from your duty by any idle reflections the silly world may make upon you, for their censures are not in your power, and consequently should not be any part of your concern."

Officer Williams, you are appreciated!

Earnings limit removal, OAA funding are needed

I urge your readers to contact and urge the president, senators, and representatives to modify and approve a House-passed measure (H.R. 2976) to raise the Social Security earnings limit as part of legislation to reauthorize the Older American Act (OAA).

The House-passed bill would hike the earnings limit to $20,000 by year 1997 for Social Security recipients age 65 to 69. I am not aware of the provision for recipients age 62 to 64.

The legislation passed by the house should have provided:

(1) For the elimination of all limits on earnings by Social Security recipients regardless of age, now and retroactive.

(2) Modification of federal income tax (FIT) law (rules and regulations) to provide for a simple, equitable, and just tax for all taxed including those with Social Security benefits.

OAA provides monies for home-delivered meals, legal counseling, and senior centers.

Please act immediately. Both the earnings limit removal and the OAA funding are needed, not by 1997, but now.

Ask that a simple statement of position on this legislation be made in their address to the public. All residents of the U.S.A. need to be informed. The SS and FIT question is of vital economic importance to all and of all ages, some sooner, some later. A SS and a FIT record should be used as a yardstick to measure a public servant's credibility by. There should be no ambiguity regarding SS or FIT in that record.

Being a volunteer is privilege and pleasure

As a volunteer for various non-profit organizations in Midland, I would like to pay tribute to those in our community that have consistently played a vital role in the success of recent endeavors.

The Reporter-Telegram has been generous in its continued support of the American Cancer Society and the Midland Crime Prevention Commission. Since no project can enjoy success without publicity, I especially appreciate the benevolence of the Reporter-Telegram and its support of local volunteers and their goals to make Midland a better place in which to live.

I also wish to extend high praises and my deepest appreciation to our local law enforcement agencies for the enthusiastic cooperation, support and assistance I received during National Night Out. It has been a great pleasure working closely with Sheriff Gary Painter, Police Chief Richard Czech and their respective officers and staffs in organizing our neighborhoods against crime. The community spirit which resulted from these efforts is tremendous.

Thanks to the support of these and others, being a volunteer in Midland is not only a privilege, but a pleasure as well!

Voting for lesser of 2 evils is still voting evil

As I listen to the braying between the media's two "anointed candidates," I am still baffled as to why they are bringing up all the dirt on each other. It is apparent that the two parties most responsible for everyone's inability to earn a living, the overburdening of taxes and the hidden taxes of regulation by government agencies are the Democrats and the Republicans. Their "benevolent governing" has destroyed our freedom. If you can't afford to leave or have any power to change, you are a slave, an indentured servant.

Do you understand that a person that controls your income controls your "real" freedom? Sure, you're free to own a home at Pebble Beach, right on the 18th green. Why don't you? Either you're not a golfer, you don't want to work for it or you're a businessman-entrepreneur regulated into borderline poverty.

The media gleefully report that the fed has "increased our money supply... perhaps in preparation of lowering interest rates," like we're supposed to rejoice the fact that the dollars we are now paid have been devalued by our government "counterfeiting" our own money and our saving's interests are now threatened again. Terrific! Now some people on welfare are driven to survive any way they can and crime increases. Regulations cut off the bottom rungs of the climb out of poverty. Government agencies rake off large sums of money before the money goes to work. Both of the two "annointed candidates" call for more regulation, more giveaways. With what? Who could fund this "health plan" they both will unveil? Who could afford to feed and train the truly needy? You know, we could fund our own health plans, help train our own needy, if we were allowed to keep more of our own money; if our government would quit "counterfeiting" our money, devaluing our savings.

Hurricane Andrew has proven once again that Americans will respond to a true need. Welfare was established because everyone wants to help the needy and temporarily disadvantaged. It is not working. The drug war is spent imprisoning many of the people the government is claiming to want to help. If you think it's bad now, vote for either of them this year and then wait and see.

Voting for the lesser of two evils is still voting for evil. You have a choice this year. Vote Libertarian.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

North American Free Trade pact is mixed bag for oil

By Bob Krueger

In mid-August, the White House Office of the Press Secretary released a statement by President Bush announcing an agreement between the heads of state of the U.S.A., Canada, and Mexico on a North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). The statement began, "Today marks the beginning of a new era on the North American continent." Yet, the accompanying seven-page "Fact Sheet" on the new agreement entirely omitted any mention of energy, even though it is Mexico's largest single export to the U.S.A.

Krueger

The reason for its omission is clear: very little happened in U.S.-Mexican negotiations on energy in the NAFTA. Nothing whatsoever was included for the "independent" or non-major oil and gas producers who were hoping for the opportunity to take their expertise and capital for finding new oil and gas to a nation that has probably the largest untapped reserves of oil and gas in this hemisphere. The official 44-page "Discussion of the Proposed North American Free Trade Agreement" summarizes in one chilling sentence the prohibitions against American oil and gas exploration and investment in Mexico: "In the NAFTA, Mexico reserves to the Mexican State goods, activities, and investments in Mexico in the oil, gas, refining, basic petrochemicals, nuclear and electricity sectors."

Even the independent power projects, which Mexico had earlier announced might be available for private investors, were hamstrung with new restrictions. If a Texas company wants to build gas-fired facilities to produce electricity in Mexico, it apparently must purchase its gas from Pemex, Mexico's national oil company, which is a monopoly, rather than from itself. It would then have to use Pemex pipelines to ship the gas. Finally, it would then have to sell the electricity it produces to CFE, the state-owned provider of electricity, rather than to the private customers using the electricity.

In sum, the agreement has nothing for independents. But perhaps that was to be expected, since the Reagan-Bush Administrations have done nothing for independent oil and gas producers for many years.

On the other hand, in fairness, one must recognize that our negotiators achieved significant gains for the major oil companies and providers of oilfield services. And that is no small achievement, since energy negotiations touches on Mexico's most acute national sensitivity, and reaches to the heart of Mexico's national pride. The nationalization of the Mexican oil industry in 1938 is still celebrated today as a Mexican national holiday. Oil and gas are viewed as part of the national patrimony, like family jewels. And any political figure who is viewed as having sold even an interest in the family jewels risks popular rejection. My conversations with some of those involved in the negotiations indicate that the Mexican negotiators claimed not only that their Constitution prevented foreign ownership of oil and gas, but that President Salinas feared national contempt and harsh criticism from his political opponents if he allowed any private ownership of them.

What the major oil and petrochemical companies got was this: before NAFTA, 34 basic petrochemicals were off-limits to private investment and ownership; after NAFTA, only five will be off-limits. Secondary and tertiary petrochemicals, previously restricted to minority ownership, are now open to full foreign ownership. Environmental restrictions that have made operating petrochemical plants difficult in the U.S.A. will cause some American companies to see this Mexican opportunity as encouraging.

Our oilfield service companies gained guarantees of expanded opportunities to bid for contracts through government procurement. Since Pemex accounts for over half of all Mexican government procurement, the worldwide technological lead held by American energy service companies should bring them increased market share and rich rewards. It will thereby help keep alive a once robust service industry now emaciated from the decline in U.S. domestic drilling. The net result is a mixed bag for the American energy industry: nothing for the independents, something for the majors, and additional opportunities for service companies.

Overall, then, U.S. energy negotiations in NAFTA did not come out as well as many of us had hoped. But those of us who have negotiated with Mexico know by experience that, when energy questions are involved, the emotional pressure points on the Mexican body politic are so many that wholeness cannot be expected.

Even though energy has constituted Mexico's largest export to the U.S.A, it is only part of a much larger package. The NAFTA Agreement brings together 360 million people in a $6 trillion economy — the largest trading bloc in the world. U.S. exports to Mexico from 1986 to 1992 have more than tripled, from $12.4 billion to an estimated $44 billion. Since 85 percent of these exports are manufactured goods, and since 44 percent originate in Texas, the positive impact on our economy from this new market is already large, and potentially stupendous.

Energy remains the largest provider of jobs and income of any sector of the Texas economy, and we therefore hoped that Mexico would be as open in that area as it was in others to increased trade. To judge from preliminary reports, the NAFTA is not a home run for Texas, but it's a base hit. And if we continue in the right direction, we should eventually bring home an economic win for Texas.

World follows America's concern for family values

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor in Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

NORTH SALEM, N.Y.— We in America tend to think our social problems — crime, drugs, deterioration of public education, the breakdown of family life — are not only a lot worse than anywhere else, but in many respects are unique to us.

Hearst

I suppose that's understandable. We wake up every morning to face our own problems. Other people's problems are something we read about in the newspapers.

But the truth is that, in confronting the social decay around us, we have lots of company, as Bernard D. Kaplan, our papers' foreign news commentator who's based in Paris, pointed out to me last week.

There isn't a country in Europe that hasn't been struck by most of the same ills. What many of us think of as America's social crisis is really universal or very fast becoming so.

For this reason, the so-called family values debate that emerged early in the presidential campaign and now seems to have slipped several notches on the list of significant issues has stirred strong interest among election-watchers abroad.

Thoughtful Europeans, Kaplan says, look on the family values controversy here as the opening salvo in a debate they expect will soon be worldwide.

Here's Bernie's report.

For good or bad, Europeans long ago conceded that what happens in America today will happen to them tomorrow. As far as the collapse of the traditional family and what goes with it are concerned, many Europeans acknowledge tomorrow is already here.

The London Times observed last week, "Like many significant developments — mass production of cars, landing on the moon, microwave ovens — the Americans came up first with the fatherless family as a widespread phenomenon. But we're copying them and catching up."

The British paper noted that one child in four in Britain is now born to a single mother, a 300 per cent rise in just 15 years. One in three is being raised by a single parent.

"Like the Americans by the end of the century, we will probably face a situation in which fatherlessness is as common as the traditional male-headed family," the Times said.

"America's political leaders have awakened to the negative implications for society.... British politicians are still dozing, refusing to accept that the disappearance of the family endangers the very roots of the nation. We can only hope the American debate will prod them into wakefulness.

Jean Raspail, a prominent French writer on social problems, took a similar view, asserting that "what the American debate (on family values) is really about is whether social values or economic conditions are the most important in determining how well a society succeeds."

Writing in the magazine L'Esprit, he went on: "For half a century, Europeans and Americans alike confidently believed the solution to social ills lay in economic betterment.

"Ours has been the first epoch in history to believe this. Now, everywhere, we see proof of how terribly wrong we have been."

Raspail declared that "in Europe and America, 40 years of unprecedented affluence ran parallel to accelerating social disintegration. Material progress has done nothing to halt the steady increase in criminality, family disintegration, teenage pregnancies and the general breakdown of civilized values."

The fallacy in the thinking of many politicians on both sides of the Atlantic was to insist that, notwithstanding the evidence, economic improvement holds the key to overcoming the blight, he said.

Also entering the debate, the Paris newspaper Le Figaro defended U.S. politicians, at least when stacked up against many of their European counterparts.

"Although American politicians often are derided for a certain lack of subtlety and intellectual rigor, they have a way of tackling big issues in a straightforward manner which our own more sharp-witted politicians avoid whenever possible."

The French daily said the family values debate is a case in point.

"One French marriage in three now ends in divorce compared with one in five only 20 years ago; in the same period, the number of pregnancies among unmarried teenagers has tripled," Le Figaro declared. "The impact of these sad statistics on French life is already profoundly disturbing. The prime factor contributing to spiraling delinquency among the young is not racial prejudice or poverty. It is the absence of a father."

In spite of this, Le Figaro declared, "We have yet to hear President (Francois) Mitterrand or any other leading politician in this country discuss the subject at length as the Americans are doing."

Bills-49ers matchup today's highlight billing

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

When a top team from the AFC takes on a top team from the NFC it's called a possible Super Bowl preview. Sunday, it is the Buffalo Bills at the San Francisco 49ers.

And it is a preview with real possibilities.

Joe Montana isn't the 49ers quarterback. But Steve Young and backup Steve Bono, who completed 15 of 22 passes for 187 yards and two touchdowns after relieving Young in last week's 31-14 win over the Giants, leave San Francisco well armed.

"They're still a superior team," Bills coach Marv Levy said. "They have changed some players but they still have a lot of continuity. They still have Jerry Rice, John Taylor, Tom Rathman and that's plenty."

Rathman did much of the damage against New York, catching three touchdown passes. Meanwhile, Ricky Watters, playing his first NFL game, gained 100 yards in 13 carries.

Buffalo may be a better team than the one that was 26-6 over the past two regular seasons, both of which ended in Super Bowl losses. Bruce Smith returned after missing almost all of 1991 to get two sacks in the 40-7 rout of the Rams last week and Thurman Thomas had the first four-touchdown game of his career.

Asked about facing Jim Kelly and Buffalo's no-huddle offense, 49ers coach George Seifert said, "To me all the offenses we face are like that. Every week they're monumental."

Atlanta (1-0) at Washington (0-1)

The last meeting of these two was in last year's playoffs, a 24-7 Washington victory in the rain at RFK.

But a worse omen for the Falcons may be that they opened their new home in the Georgia Dome with a 20-17 win over the Jets. Jerry Glanville has a habit of getting his team up one week for big home games, then watching it sag on the road.

Washington looked like anything but Super Bowl champs in a 23-10 loss to Dallas Monday night.

"We didn't do anything well," Joe Gibbs said. "They played very well, and we didn't."

Chicago (1-0) at New Orleans (0-1)

The Bears ended the Saints 7-0 start last year with a 20-17 win at the Superdome. That's something the Saints don't have to worry about after their 15-13 loss in Philadelphia last week.

One interesting matchup — the Chicago offensive line, with rookie Troy Auzenne at offensive tackle, against a New Orleans defense that sacked Randall Cunningham six times. Auzenne had his problems in the 27-24 win over Detroit last Sunday, and although the Bears didn't allow a sack, the Lions' front seven isn't to be compared with the Saints.

Jim Harbaugh was the hero for the Bears last week, moving them down the field for the 6-yard TD pass to Tom Waddle with one second left that gave them the victory.

New York Jets (0-1) at Pittsburgh (1-0)

Browning Nagle did everything but beat the Falcons in his NFL debut, throwing for 366 yards. But the Jets lost 20-17 because Nagle fumbled a snap and Jason Staurovsky missed two field goals.

Still, New York is a slight favorite — on the road — against a team that went into the Astrodome, picked off five Warren Moon passes, and came out with the upset of the first week, 29-24. Coach Bill Cowher has Pittsburgh fired up, which should fire up the fans in the home opener.

"It's encouraging, but I don't think I'll make my Super Bowl reservations yet," tackle Tunch Ilkin said.

Miami (0-0) at Cleveland (0-1) (Monday night)

The Dolphins, whose home opener was postponed by Hurricane Andrew, will become the last NFL team to play a regular-season game when they take the field against the Browns.

They have to be looking forward to it after Cleveland's performance against the Colts.

"It definitely is going to get better, the problems are correctible," coach Bill Belichick said of the 11 sacks allowed by his offensive line, which was playing together for the first time after the trade that brought center Jay Hilgenberg from the Bears.

Minnesota (1-0) at Detroit (0-1)

Wayne Fontes, ever the optimist, takes heart from the fact that the opening-week loss this year was 27-24 to the Bears instead of (as last year) 45-0 at Washington.

But the 42-point turnaround was tempered by the fact the Lions allowed Chicago to march down the field in the final 1:12 and lost on a fourth-down TD pass with one second left. This while the Vikings were edging the Packers in overtime 23-20 to make Dennis Green's debut a success.

This is Barry Sanders vs. Terry Allen (12 carries for 140 yards against Green Bay). And it's almost a must for Detroit — next week the Lions at are Washington, to whom they lost by a combined 86-10 in two games last season.

Los Angeles Raiders (0-1) at Cincinnati (1-0)

The Raiders will see something they've never seen before from the Bengals — an attacking defense that Ron Lynn has installed to take advantage of personnel deficiencies. It worked in a 21-3 win over Seattle and Kelly Stouffer; whether it works against the more experienced Jay Schroeder is another question, although Schroeder doesn't always read blitzes well.

Los Angeles' problem in Denver was John Elway, who had a horrible game until he drove the Broncos for the winning touchdown, the 20th time he's pulled out a game on the last drive. "We weren't on his list but he finally got us," the Raiders' Howie Long said.

Seattle (0-1) at Kansas City (1-0)

A "revenge is sweet" game.

The Kansas City quarterback is Dave Krieg, who was the Seattle quarterback for eight years before being left unprotected this year. Krieg, usually hot or cold, was medium in the 24-10 win over San Diego last week — 15 of 25 for 154 yards. That may be because the Chiefs' usually solid running game sputtered.

Kelly Stouffer may enjoy this game more than he enjoyed the loss to Cincinnati, simply because the Chiefs' defense is better than the Bengals and doesn't have to blitz. So things will probably be more predictable, if not more pleasant.

Philadelphia (1-0) at Phoenix (0-1)

If Timm Rosenbach got clobbered in Tampa, what's going to happen against the Eagles. Rosenbach probably will start despite the concussion he got in the 23-7 loss to the Bucs last week.

NFL Report

Philadelphia, 15-13 winners over New Orleans at home, comes in wary. The Eagles have lost to the Cards at home the past two seasons and have a habit of losing games they should win. So let Randall Cunningham give us the party line:

"They're a team a lot of people don't respect because they don't have big name players," he said. "But you have to give them credit. Don't take them lightly."

San Diego (0-1) at Denver (1-0)

Stan Humphries, having been force-fed the Chargers system after being acquired from Washington, is the quarterback of the week for San Diego after relieving Bob Gagliano in the 24-10 loss to Kansas City.

The quarterback of the decade for the Broncos is John Elway, who last week for the 20th time in his 10-year career won a game with a fourth-quarter drive. "We have a Super Bowl-caliber defense," said Elway.

New England (0-0) at Los Angeles Rams (0-1)

Were the Rams horrible at Buffalo, where they lost 40-7, or are the Bills that good? A little of both, but it might be advisable for New England to win this one. On paper, the next six opponents are all tougher than the Patriots, so the Rams could be looking at 0-8.

This is the opener for New England, which was hurricaned out in Miami. The big question is whether Dick MacPherson's enthusiasm, a large part of the jump from 1-15 in 1990 to 6-10 last year, can lift the Patriots much further this year.

Green Bay (0-1) at Tampa Bay (1-0)

The battle of the Bays has been an afterthought game for most of the last decade, but it may be spiced up by coaching changes and Tampa's new orange pants.

Sam Wyche and the pants combined to beat Phoenix 23-7 last week and the Packers looked decent in a 23-20 overtime loss at home to Minnesota. But Mike Holmgren's team still has its two basic problems — running and stopping the run.

Miami Says

"We Will Rebuild."

Will You Help?

In the early morning hours of Monday, August 24, Hurricane Andrew devastated a huge swath of Dade County, Florida, in the region just south of Miami.

The catastrophic result: 63,000 homes destroyed, close to 300,000 left homeless, losses of more than $20 billion.

It was the costliest natural disaster in American history.

Now, the people of Miami and Dade County are digging out, caring for each other, rebuilding their shattered community.

It will be a Herculean effort. No American community has ever faced physical destruction on such an epic scale. And we are determined to build a better, more just and promising community than before, not just restore the world that Andrew's ferocious winds swept away.

The civic and business leaders of Miami and Dade County have come together to get this job done. We have formed a new organization called WE WILL REBUILD, led by many of our most committed citizens, drawn from all sectors of our wonderfully diverse community.

This broad-based effort has the full and active support of President George Bush, Governor Lawton Chiles and many, many Miamians dedicated to binding the wounds of today and building a better tomorrow for all our citizens.

WE WILL REBUILD needs your help. Now.

COWBOYS: NY will key on Smith

(From 1B)

Rod Rust coordinating the defense, and and now there are a lot of questions about the Giants' ability to stop the run.

In his NFL debut last week, Ricky Watters of the San Francisco 49ers gained 100 yards on 13 carries in a 31-14 win over New York as the 49ers gained 172 yards rushing.

If Smith has the same kind of day Sunday against the Giants, the Cowboys could give Jimmy Johnson his first win in New York and Dallas its first 2-0 start since 1986.

The big difference in the Giants' defense this year is the play of the cornerbacks. With Bill Belichick as the coordinator, the corners were responsible for forcing the run and turning it back to the middle.

In the new system, the corners are more responsible for pass defense, with the linebackers and linemen handling the run.

Smith said he saw the new defense and was surprised how easily Watters got to the outside. He also doesn't expect that to happen this week.

"I saw the San Francisco game and the Giants did not play the way they are capable of playing," Smith said. "I'm sure they will be better this week."

Giants nose tackle Erik Howard hopes so.

"We have to play strong team defense and correct all the mistakes we made last week," he said. "We have to shut the holes. There is no question Emmitt will have the ball. If we don't plug the line well, Emmitt will kill us."

That would be something new. In four games against New York, Smith has carried 53 times for 203 yards and two touchdowns. He has also caught 10 passes for 74 yards.

Smith, who gained 140 yards on 27 carries in the Cowboys' 23-10 win over Washington Monday, has improved in each of his games against New York. His best effort came here last Nov. 17 when he gained 97 yards on 17 carries in a 22-9 loss, the last time Dallas lost a regular-season game.

"Emmitt is a guy who needs to carry the ball a whole bunch," Johnson said.

Velarde homer gives Yanks sixth-straight win

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Randy Velarde's three-run, seventh-inning homer carried the New York Yankees to their sixth straight victory, an 11-9 triumph over the Kansas City Royals.

George Brett collected four hits in five at-bats to draw within 18 of 3,000 career hits for the Royals.

Don Mattingly opened the seventh with a single off Mike Magnante (4-9), the fifth Royals' pitcher, before Mel Hall beat out an infield hit and Velarde lined his seventh homer into the left field seats on a 3-2 pitch. The homer gave the Yankees a 10-8 lead after the Royals had gone ahead 8-7.

Mattingly doubled in the Yankees' final run in the eighth with his fourth hit of the game.

John Habyan (4-6), the third of six Yankee pitchers, pitched one inning of one-hit relief to earn the victory. Steve Farr pitched the ninth for his 26th save.

New York took a 4-0 lead off Royals starter Hipolito Pichardo by scoring twice in each of the first two innings but the Royals tied the score with a four-run fourth.

Danny Tartabull picked up an RBI on an infield out — his 12th RBI in the last four games — as the Yankees scored three times in the fourth to take a 7-4 lead.

Twins 7, Angels 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett had four hits, including a homer and two doubles, and drove in two runs, helping Mike Trombley to his first major-league victory as the Minnesota Twins topped the California Angels 7-2.

Puckett hit his 19th homer of the season off Bert Blyleven (8-8) in the first inning.

He delivered again in the third. After Shane Mack drove in the Twins' second run with a groundout, Puckett grounded a double just inside the left-field line, scoring Chuck Knoblauch from second.

Puckett has four four-hit games this season.

Trombley (1-1), making his third start after being recalled from the Twins Class AAA Portland farm club Aug. 18, allowed four hits in six innings before being relieved by Mark Guthrie. Guthrie pitched three innings for his fifth save. Trombley walked four and struck out five.

Blyleven, who allowed five runs on seven hits over six innings, remained at 287 career victories, one behind Tommy John for No. 21 on the all-time list.

The Twins defeated the Angels for the seventh time in eight meetings this season.

The Angels cut the lead to 3-2 with single runs in the fourth and sixth innings, on an RBI double by Hubie Brooks and a homer by Luis Sojo, his seventh of the year.

The Twins scored twice in the sixth, on a RBI infield single by Pedro Munoz and a sacrifice fly by Brian Harper.

Athletics 5, Mariners 4

OAKLAND, Calif. — Mike Moore won for the first time in five starts, and Oakland beat Seattle in a game featuring 12 pitchers.

The A's won for the 13th straight time in Oakland over the Mariners, who lost their 10th straight overall and who have not won in Oakland since July 31, 1990. Oakland, 9-0 over Seattle this season, stayed six games ahead of second-place Minnesota in the AL West.

Moore (14-11) gave up eight hits and two runs — one earned — in 5 2-3 innings. He was followed by five relievers, including Dennis Eckersley who pitched the ninth for his 45th save. Eckersley pitched out of a jam after giving up a one-out double to Pete O'Brien.

Besides the numerous pitching changes, the teams combined to leave 24 men on base, 13 by the Mariners. The A's left the bases loaded three times, twice with less than two outs.

Rookie Troy Neel hit his third home run for Oakland, a two-run shot in the second, to put the A's up 2-0 off Seattle starter Tim Leary. Harold Baines walked and scored ahead of Neel's homer. Leary (6-9) lasted only 3 1-3 innings, giving up four runs on eight hits and walking three without a strikeout.

Indians 5, White Sox 3

CHICAGO — Glenallen Hill's tie-breaking single in a two-run eighth inning led the Cleveland Indians to a victory over the Chicago White Sox.

It was the third straight win for Cleveland and the third straight loss for the White Sox.

Carlos Martinez doubled with one out in the eighth off loser Kirk McCaskill (9-12) and Mark Whiten was walked intentionally. Hill singled to score pinch-runner Wayne Kirby and send Whiten to third. Whiten scored on Brook Jacoby's sacrifice fly.

Blue Jays 4, Rangers 2

ARLINGTON — Jack Morris became Toronto's first-ever 19-game winner and the Blue Jays beat the Texas Rangers, increasing their lead in the AL East to four games.

The Blue Jays widened their edge over Baltimore, which lost to Milwaukee 5-0.

Morris (19-5), in his first season with Toronto, had been tied with Dave Stieb, who won 18 in 1990, for the team record in victories.

Brewers 5, Orioles 0

BALTIMORE — Milwaukee's Jaime Navarro pitched his third shutout and snapped a personal three-game losing streak, scattering five hits and pitching the Brewers past the Baltimore Orioles.

The win was the first for Navarro since August 21, and his first on the road since July 27. He was in complete command against the Orioles, as he improved his record to 15-11, equaling the career high win total he posted last year.

Navarro did not allow more than one man to reach in any inning in pitching his fifth complete game of the season. He struck out five, and walked one. The only runner to reach second was Chris Hoiles, who doubled with two out in the seventh.

The Brewers staked Navarro to a four run lead in the first inning. Pat Listach doubled on the first pitch of the game from Craig Lefferts (0-2). Kevin Seitzer hit Lefferts' next pitch for another double, putting the Brewers in front.

AL Roundup

Braves roll to ninth straight

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Dave Justice homered twice and drove in four runs as the Atlanta Braves won their eighth straight game, beating Houston 9-3 Saturday night for their 13th consecutive victory in the Astrodome.

Rookie David Nied (2-0) pitched three scoreless innings of relief. Atlanta starter John Smoltz lasted only 3 2-3 innings and gave up three runs on seven hits.

Brian Williams (7-6) allowed six runs on six hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Trailing 3-2, Atlanta scored four times in the fifth inning. Mark Lemke walked, Neid singled and the runners advanced on a sacrifice bunt by Otis Nixon.

Terry Pendleton hit an RBI single and Justice hit a three-run homer. Justice hit his 17th home run in the seventh, making it 7-3.

Atlanta took a 2-0 lead in the second when Sid Bream walked and Damon Berryhill hit his 10th home run of the season. Steve Finley hit a solo homer in the Houston third.

The Astros took a 3-2 lead in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Williams and an RBI single by Finley.

Cardinals 11, Cubs 3

ST. LOUIS — Ray Lankford, Felix Jose and Todd Zeile all homered and St. Louis strung together five straight singles in a four-run sixth inning as the Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs.

The three homers gave the Cardinals 50 for the year at home, their highest total since 51 in 1970. Jose had three hits and drove in three runs.

Rheal Cormier (7-10) won his fourth straight decision, going the distance and giving up 10 hits. He did not allow a runner in the last three innings.

Mike Morgan (14-7), who had won his four previous decisions, allowed a season-high seven earned runs in five-pls innings.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the third as Doug Dascenzo, who had been in a 1-for-17 slump, doubled

Reds 7, Padres 4

SAN DIEGO — Jose Rijo pitched eight shutout innings and hit a two-run single as the Cincinnati Reds hammered Bruce Hurst in a win over the San Diego Padres.

Hurst (14-8) allowed five runs on 12 hits in 7 1-3 innings, including Barry Larkin's solo homer in the eighth and Willie Greene's triple, which gave the rookie his first big-league RBI.

Expos 4, Mets 1

MONTREAL — Dennis Martinez matched a career high with his 16th victory and Tim Wallach hit a three-run homer as the Montreal Expos beat the New York Mets.

Martinez (16-11) gave up five hits, including Chico Walker's home run in the ninth, struck out four and walked one for his sixth complete game of the season as the Expos beat the Mets for the 10th time in 14 games.

Pete Schourek (5-7) gave up seven hits, struck out two and walked two in five innings for his first loss after three straight wins.

Martinez has won 16 games on three other occasions — in 1978 and 1982 with the Baltimore Orioles and in 1989 with the Expos.

Through the first four innings, Martinez pitched to a regulation 12 batters by helping to turn two, line-drive double plays.

Wallach's ninth homer of the season put the Expos ahead in the second after leadoff singles by Larry Walker and Greg Colbrunn.

Pirates 9, Phillies 7

PHILADELPHIA — Jay Bell tripled home the tying run and scored on Andy Van Slyke's single as the Pittsburgh Pirates rallied for three runs in the ninth inning and beat the Philadelphia Phillies.

Lloyd McClendon singled to lead off the ninth against Mitch Williams (3-8), moved to second on a balk and went to third on a grounder. Bell tripled for his third hit of the game, extending his career-best hitting streak to 17 games, and Van Slyke singled.

Dodgers 7, Giants 0

LOS ANGELES — Pedro Astacio pitched his third shutout in seven major league starts and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants.

Astacio (3-3) scattered six hits and lowered his ERA to 1.56. He walked none and struck out four.

VOLLEYBALL: Bobcats up next for Lee

Lee never got untracked ... we know what a powerhouse they are."

The varsity win gave MHS a clean sweep on the Lee floor as the Bulldog JV came away with a hard-fought 15-6, 13-15, 17-15 victory over the Rebel JV that lasted well over an hour and pushed the start of the varsity match back some 30 minutes.

But the Bulldog varsity made up for the late start, blitzing the Rebels with ease in the first game, then staving off a late Lee rally to win Game 2 and drop Lee to 10-4 for the season and 0-1 in 4-5A.

"We didn't play," Lee coach Anita Corder stated flatly. "The same thing happened to them (Lady Rebs) in the championship game of the Pecos tournament against Seminole. They get these dazed looks on their faces, they frown at each other and they just never get untracked.

"Midland High did a good job," Corder said. "They kept their shots in play while we self-destructed. The girls are pretty disappointed about it."

In other district openers, Odessa Permian (4-9, 1-0) defeated Odessa High (10-4, 0-1) 3-15, 15-9, 15-6, and Abilene High (10-5, 1-0) downed Abilene Cooper (10-4, 0-1), 15-8, 15-2.

That means the three teams with the best overall pre-district records fell victim to three teams with lesser marks.

And San Angelo (7-5) split a non-district dual match, losing to Pecos and knocking off Snyder.

Lee grabbed a quick 3-0 lead in the first game, but a service ace by Jodie Strain pulled MHS even, and the Lady Bulldogs never trailed again in the game — or in the match.

Corder used her two timeouts in Game 1 with Lee trailing 7-3 and 13-6, but each time play resumed, MHS scored the subsequent point. The Lady Bulldogs clinched the opener on a Stephanie Saxon serve that was never returned. And they scored the first five points of the second game as Michel Ann Thompson's serve gave the Lady Rebels fits.

But after MHS mounted a 14-4 lead in Game 2, the Lady Rebels began to rally just a bit. Lee started with a smash off the fist of Roxanne Furrow for its fifth point of the game, then Tekeira Strambler served three quick points to make bring the score to 14-8. After Heather Huff's sizzling serve closed the gap to 14-9, MHS called for time, recovered service and won the match when Thompson went high to block a shot by Lee's Courney McHugh at the net.

"We respect Lee, but we weren't going to let them intimidate us," said MHS captain Shena Salsido, who led all defenders with seven digs, some of them diving efforts that left her sprawled on the hardwood. "We just played like we like to play. I'm so proud of the team, we didn't let up once."

MHS gets a few days rest to relish its victory over the cross-town rivals with an open date on Tuesday, while Lee takes to the road Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. game at San Angelo.

Norman closes in on Lietzke

PGA

OAKVILLE, Ontario — Bruce Lietzke went nine shots higher than the day before. His lead was cut in half.

But he accomplished what he set out to do Saturday in the third round of the Canadian Open.

"I'm still in position," Lietzke said after watching Greg Norman trim his lead to two strokes.

"That's what we're all trying to do; get in position on Saturday to be part of the golf tournament on Sunday.

"I'm in a position that I know I'll be part of the golf tournament on the back nine Sunday, and that's all you can ask for," Lietzke said.

The 41-year-old veteran, who moved four strokes in front of the field with a second round 64, had to be content with a 73, one over par on the Glen Abbey layout that, he said, "was a different golf course today.

"I knew as soon as I got out there today, there'd be no 6-under-par rounds. With a south wind, the golf course just doesn't give you anything."

The starry group chasing him — including Fred Couples, Norman, Curtis Strange and Nick Price — thoroughly agreed.

Strange, like Lietzke a two-time winner of this title, said "the golf course played longer and harder than I've ever seen it."

"Very long. Very difficult," said Norman, like Strange trying to find an end to a two-year non-winning string.

Norman reeled off 14 consecutive pars before scoring consecutive birdies on the 15th and 16th holes, then hit into the water on the 18th and made bogey.

"That leaves a little bit of a bad taste in your mouth," the Australian star said.

"But I'm very pleased" with a 71, he said. At 210, he was two behind Lietzke's leading 208 total.

Couples, the Masters champion and winner of more than $1.2 million already this season, was three off the pace at 211 after a 71 that included a less-than-friendly exchange with a spectator by the 18th green.

Couples got his second shot into a very difficult position in a greenside bunker on the 18th, and was unable to get it out on his first swing. A nearby spectator laughed.

"I don't like to be laughed at or heckled," Couples said. "Without thinking, I just told him that if he thought he could do any better, he was welcome come down and try."

The two swings from the sand cost him a bogey that left him in a tie with Greg Twiggs, who had a 70.

Strange, with a 70, was tied at 212 with Corey Pavin, rookie Fran Quinn and Nick Price, the defending title-holder and PGA champion.

"The golf course bared its teeth today," Price said after a 73. Quinn shot 72 and Pavin 71.

Lietzke, winner of the Colonial tournament earlier this season, said the wind, blowing in the opposite direction from a day earlier, and the tucked pins made scoring extremely difficult.

And the results confirmed the assessment.

A 68 by Mark O'Meara and a 69 by Bart Bryant were the only two rounds in the 60's returned by a field of 72.

Lietzke was two over for the day when he hit a 9-iron third shot to four feet and birdied the 13th.

A 6-iron tee shot that caught the back bank and spun back to within a foot of the cup on the 15th set up the birdie that got him back to even for the day.

Dill increases lead at Seniors Classic

Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Terry Dill, who has never won a PGA event, shot the best round of the tournament Saturday to build a four-stroke lead in the Bank One Senior Classic.

Dill's 66 put him at 11 under, four strokes better than Mike Hill, who had a 68 to follow his opening day 69 on the par-72 Kearney Hill Links public course.

The senior tour's star rookie, Raymond Floyd, moved into contention with a 5-under 67 to put him in a group of three in third place at 6-under for the tournament.

Dill, who lost a playoff earlier this year at Scarborough, N.Y., in his only other sniff at victory, blistered much of the Kearney Hill Links.

He had eight birdies and two bogeys for the round, including a near-eagle on the 531-yard No. 18.

Hill, the senior tour's second-leading money winner this year, had six birdies and two bogeys to follow his opening-day 69.

Dale Douglass and Rolf Deming followed their opening 70s with 68s to move into third place with Floyd.

Gibby Gilbert, a three-time winner this year on the senior tour, was alone at 5-under. Seven golfers were tied at 4-under, six shots off the lead.

Floyd's inaugural appearance on the old-guy's tour brought out the best. All of the 10 leading money winners this year are in the field and golf legend Arnold Palmer also joined his colleagues.

The Senior Classic, which was in danger of losing its stop on the tour just last year, responded with a record second-day crowd of 23,400.

Floyd had five birdies and no bogeys in his second round, but missed several other birdie putts on the front side.

Bruce Crampton made a run, reaching 8-under at one point. But he faded to a 1-under 71 Saturday and was among the group at 4-under.

Local boy Gay Brewer, who attended high school in Lexington, won his second-straight Classics tournament for the over-60 crowd.

Brewer defeated Don January in a one-hole playoff to claim the $11,000 check. Brewer also won last week in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Both men finished 36 holes at 3-under and will also compete for the $500,000 Senior Classic purse.

Cap Rock co-op prepares for annual meeting

■ A concerned group of citizens may seek to voice concerns at Cap Rock's Membership Meeting.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

LENORAH — While Myrl Mitchell and some other cotton farmers and ginners — called the Cap Rock Concerned Citizens — are somewhat wary, the Stanton-based Cap Rock Electric Cooperative is expanding its suburban and rural markets through mergers and direct competition with its power supplier, the Dallas-based Texas Utilities (TU) Electric.

And at 6:30 p.m. this Tuesday, the Concerned Citizens may seek discussion of their concerns at Cap Rock's 53nd annual Membership Meeting in Midland College's Chaparral Center.

Those concerns date back at least a year.

In 1991, the co-op, which was established in 1939 in Big Spring, merged with the Colorado City-based Lone Wolf Electric Cooperative.

That union expanded Cap Rock's service area from 14 counties to 17 counties.

And just last week, Cap Rock won approval of the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas to merge with the Hunt-Collin Electric Co-op in Celeste in Northeast Texas. That merger will bring Cap Rock's service area to the rural and suburban parts of 20 counties.

In the intervening time, Cap Rock, which last year generated $36.38 million in revenue and paid out $36.27 million, borrowed money, bought a four-story downtown Midland office building for less than $250,000 — about $5 a square foot — and sought investments.

Cap Rock's upper management is to move to the Midland office to better serve its Midland-area customers and to better compete with TU for new customers.

"We sincerely hope that everything they've done works great, ... and the cooperative makes money," Mitchell said of Cap Rock's management. "But you can see where the risk is."

Mitchell, a 60-year-old Lenorah cotton farmer and ginner, is president of the group called Cap Rock Concerned Citizens, which was organized last July 15 by the 6,326 member-customers in Cap Rock's 14-county Stanton Division.

In its petition, the Concerned Citizens had asked Cap Rock's 11-member board to fire David Pruitt, Cap Rock's general manager and chief executive officer since 1987; to stop the Hunt-Collin Electric merger; to revoke Cap Rock sub-corporations that might benefit Pruitt and the board; to "dispose" of Cap Rock's Midland office, and to secure an independent audit of Cap Rock's financial status.

The group represents less than 1 percent of Cap Rock's members, and Cap Rock spokeswoman Peggy Luxton said "the vast majority" of members are "very satisfied

Aviation program to offer 2 certifications

Staff report

Midland College has received the second certificate from the Federal Aviation Administration to become a full-fledged Aviation Maintenance Technology School.

When the program began last January, the FAA granted only the airframe certification. Added to that last week was the powerplant certification.

"At this time, we are completely certified by the FAA to operate an Aviation Maintenance Technology School and may certify students who complete both programs as A&P technicians," said Bud Staple-

Reception set to honor Republican candidate

Staff report

A reception honoring Henry Bonilla, Republican candidate for the 23rd congressional seat, is set for 10:30 a.m. Monday at the local Bush-Quayle Phone Bank, 3 Oak Ridge Square.

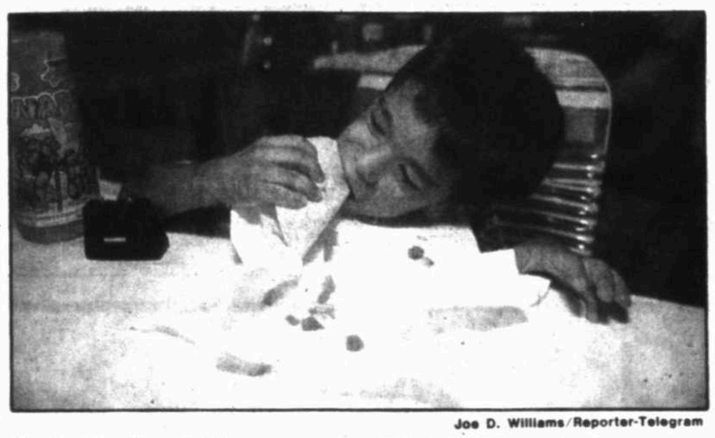

The public is invited to attend.

First lady Barbara Bush was in Midland last Thursday to officially open the phone bank, which is located at the northeast corner of Wadley Avenue and Garfield Street. It is part of the Texas Victory '92 Phone Bank system. Locally, the chairman is Bill Shaner and the co-chairman is Billie Ross.

Bonilla of San Antonio is challenging Democratic incumbent Albert Bustamante in the November general election. Following redistricting, a portion of Midland County now falls within the 23rd congressional district.

The Midland phone bank will be in operation from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. six days a week between now and the election.

The day captains are as follows: Ella Barnett, Monday; Kathy Armstrong, Tuesday; Debbie Atwell, Wednesday; Denise Burns, Thursday; Jane Harmon, Friday; and Margaret Rhea, Saturday.

Mexican music, dancing, food and drink highlighted a Diez y Seis de Septiembre (Sept. 16) celebration Saturday that will continue today at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

"It's to celebrate our cultural heritage, the 16th of September — (Mexico's) Independence Day," said Elvia Hernandez, president of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce.

"We have food booths, game booths, arts and crafts, and live entertainment," she said.

"The Mexican culture likes to be happy ... we work hard and we party hard," Ms. Hernandez said.

The annual celebration is sponsored by FAMA (First Association of Mexican-Americans) of Midland, an organization for

Barney Fife's political views could shake up election

Let me see if I have this straight:

Warren Beatty is supporting Bill Clinton. Charlton Heston, on the other hand, is in President Bush's camp. So is Tom Selleck. And Arnold Schwarzenegger. But Stephen Stills, the old rock 'n' roll star, is backing Clinton. Richard Dreyfus has gone so far as to organize a group for Clinton, as has John Ritter, the former star of that incredibly silly TV show, "Three's Company." But then there's the perennial Republican, Bob Hope. He will again be raising money for Bush.

Ott

On and on the list goes.

Hollywood is back in the political game. It happens every four years.

And, as usual, I'm left wondering, "Who cares?"

This is one of those situations that has always baffled me ... famous people, who have nothing in common with me or any other ordinary citizen, going on the national airwaves to encourage us to cast our ballots for a particular candidate.

Let's take Tom Selleck, for example. Why should I, a 40-year-old newspaperman in Midland, Texas, care about the political views of a make-believe private investigator? It makes no sense. I like his acting ability just fine, but it doesn't mean I want to rush out and vote for his choice for president.

I might not be the smartest guy around, but I don't need some blow-dried celebrity telling me how to cast my ballot.

I'll do it myself, thank you very much.

This is not to say Hollywood stars — or even thick-necked sports heroes, for that-matter — are not entitled to their opinions. They have every right to endorse candidates. Indeed, there is nothing wrong with them making impassioned speeches, hosting fundraisers or even making public spectacles of themselves by hugging and kissing their preferred candidate — ala Sammy Davis, Jr., with Richard Nixon in 1972 — if they so choose.

It is just that I don't have to care.

Of course, celebrity endorsements are nothing new. Stars have been pals with politicians for years. Frank Sinatra, for example, was buddies with John F. Kennedy back in the late '50s and early '60s. And Beatty, who has long been active in Democratic circles, was George McGovern's friend, in addition to being his biggest fundraiser.

The logic behind these high-profile endorsements is obvious. It is assumed that when the average Joe Blow sees that his favorite star is voting for a particular candidate, he will be inclined to do the same.

That's all fine and good, but if we want to carry that logic to its proper conclusion, then we, the mindless public, would need to know who the characters those stars portray are going to vote for. After all, that's who we identify with.

For example, I don't give a hoot who Don Knotts favors for president, but I just might be swayed by the opinions of Barney Fife.

Likewise, with Buddy Ebsen. His vote is strictly up to him. It means nothing to me. But Jed Clampett? That's a different story. He's the salt of the earth. I just might want to know his thoughts.

It is all in our perception of the character.

Here are some of those "people" who might be able to get me to change my vote:

■ Lou Grant. The one who was Mary Tyler Moore's boss, not the newspaperman. He was a short, round man who could be both gruff and soft-hearted, all within a 30-minute TV show. I would expect no less from his choice for president.

■ Mr. Rogers. President Bush once promised a "kinder and gentler America." No way, though, can he compete with Mr. Rogers on that issue. They don't get any kinder and gentler than him.

■ The Professor on "Gilligan's Island." Hey, the man knew everything.

■ Samantha Stevens. Great legs, especially in the later episodes, and like any weak man I can be swayed by a good-looking woman.

■ Lois Lane. Despite her remarkable inability to determine that Clark Kent was really Superman, Ms. Lane, as a working woman in the '50s, was far ahead of her time.

■ Dobie Gillis. Nerds should be heard, too.

■ Fred Flintstone. See Lou Grant.

■ Ward and June Cleaver. If family values is indeed the No. 1 issue in this election, then we might as well learn from the masters.

CAP ROCK: Co-op won approval to merge with Hunt-Collin

with our operations," including the new directions that the Cap Rock management is taking.

"We've got a small group of people up here (at Lenorah-Tarzan) that don't want us serving the oil country, don't want us getting bigger, don't want us trying to save money for all the other customers, " Ms. Luxton said.

Lenorah and Tarzan are farming-ranching communities north of Stanton.

In response to the Concerned Citizens members' assurance that they are pleased with the performance of Cap Rock's employees and service, 100 Cap Rock employees, including Ms. Luxton, signed a petition that defended Cap Rock's management, particularly Pruitt's leadership.

"Our high level of performance is due to the style by which we are treated by Cap Rock's management and board," the petition's letter says, and notes that Pruitt "encourages us to do our best for Cap Rock's customers."

The petition, published Friday in the weekly newspaper, Stanton Enterprise Reporter, was addressed to Mitchell, Roy Crim, D.V. Cook, and Morgan Cox.

If the Concerned Citizens members are "pleased with (Cap Rock's) employees' performance and service ..., how can you say that your efforts to undo our good work will not affect employees?" the letter stated and closed with, "It is impossible to attack them (management and board) without attacking us" employees.

In buying its power wholesale from TU Electric, Cap Rock last year paid out $24.21 million for power or 66 percent of its $36.38 million 1991 revenue. That left about $12 million for operations, including salaries, maintenance, and capital expansion. Net margin in 1991 was less than 1 percent of revenue. The 1990 net margin was 5.5 percent of revenue, according to Cap Rock's financial statements.

Cap Rock offers "the best service of any company anywhere," Ms. Luxton said. "We work hard at it. That's where we make our difference — in service."

At Tuesday's meeting, four of Cap Rock's 11 directors are seeking re-election: C. Ray Russell, who represents the Gail area and the northern portion of the Big Spring area; Newell Tate, who represents the Grady, Andrews and Odessa areas; Teddy Stewart, who represents the Stanton and Greenwood areas, and Hubert L. "Skeet" Dunn, who represents the Lone Wolf Division.

Of the four directors, only Tate is opposed. Running for Tate's District 6 slot is Sammy Yates, who farms in the Tarzan area and who is a member of the Concerned Citizens.

Repeatedly, Mitchell has said that he is "pleased" with Cap Rock's service. "The rates are comparable" to TU's, and Cap Rock's employees, which now number 120, are "wonderful."

Members of the board are good people, Mitchell said, "but they won't answer our questions" about certain investments.

Ms. Luxton said that the board has responded to questions by Mitchell and the Concerned Citizens.

"We answered their questions," Ms. Luxton said and "gave them information they were supposed to have."

Meanwhile, the Concerned Citizens have joined with the Cap Rock management in offering rewards for "information leading to the arrest and conviction" of the person or persons who sent a "threatening letter" to members of Cap Rock's board management and staff.

Cap Rock is offering a $500 reward. The Concerned Citizens is offering a $1,000 reward.

Cap Rock, which is one of 75 Texas co-ops that distributes power to the more sparsely-populated areas not serviced by the giant, power-generating utilities, including TU Electric, currently buys electricity from TU.

"When you spread your overhead costs over more units, it cheapens the cost per unit for every member," Ms. Luxton said of the mergers. "That's why we have to get bigger.

"We've got to cut costs. We've got to be innovative. We've got to be aggressive. We've got to do things that nobody every did before," Ms. Luxton said. "That merger with Hunt-Collin is something that has never been done before — the first merger of noncontiguous co-ops."

Mitchell said that he and the Concerned Citizens do not have "any problem" with the Lone Wolf merger.

"That joins us. It's right next door," Mitchell said. "They can work and see after it."

But, Mitchell questioned the prudence of Cap Rock's merger with Hunt-Collin Electric. That co-op's headquarters in Celeste is more than 350 miles from Stanton.

"We're concerned about Cap Rock members," Mitchell said. "We're not concerned about Hunt-Collin members" in the Greenville area of Northeast Texas.

The merger, Pruitt said last week, is a "significant victory" for Cap Rock and for "all" Texas electric co-ops. "It's a victory for our members and a sign to a few critics of this venture that what we're trying to do is good for our company, good for our customers, and vital to the future of our cooperative."

Ms. Luxton said that memberships of the Lone Wolf and Hunt-Collin co-ops overwhelmingly sought to merge with Cap Rock. By the merger, expenses can be consolidated and reduced.

Cap Rock did not buy the four-story First Banker Trust & Saving Building in Midland as investment, "but it may very well prove to be a good investment," Ms. Luxton said. "It was bought because we could not secure a building to fit our needs by rent."

"And if we get four extra stories that we don't need, we're not going to let the space go to waste," Ms. Luxton said. "We are going to put that space to use and make money. It will give us cost-free office space in Midland. Rentals will pay for the building."

?Cap Rock's management, including Pruitt, who now lives in Midland, is to move to Cap Rock's Midland office, but Cap Rock's operations "always" will remain in Stanton, Ms. Luxton said.

"We have a big financial impact on the (Stanton) community," Ms. Luxton said of Cap Rock. "We understand why people would worry that we would be moving to Midland. But we are not moving to Midland. Operations will always be here (in Stanton). Always. We've got millions invested in this plant," which was built in the 1940s and expanded in following years.

Man says friend asked for help in killings

LEAGUE CITY (AP) — A man charged with two murders told police his best friend first asked him to help kill his stepfather and then begged to be killed so relatives could collect on an insurance policy.

Tim Alan Black, 24, of LaPorte is accused in the fatal clubbing of Bryan Darrel Brewer of Dickinson, and the kidnapping and slaying of Brewer's stepfather, Franklin Emmitt Day, 57, of League City.

"He said it was because Bryan asked him to," League City Police Detective Barry Dupuis told the Houston Chronicle Friday. "They were best friends."

Black, a security guard for Exxon Chemical, remained in League City Jail Saturday in lieu of $200,000 bond for Brewer's murder. He is being held without bond for Day's capital murder.

Police said Black admitted participating in Day's Aug. 21 slaying in LaPorte. He said Brewer, 28, wanted his stepfather killed to retaliate for Day's alleged physical abuse of Brewer's mother.

Although the couple was divorced, they had lived together in the Houston suburb of League City for the past nine years, police said.

"It appears that, according to Tim Black, he knocked Frank out and restrained Frank until Bryan Brewer arrived and shot him twice," League City Police Sgt. Pat Bittner said.

Bittner said Brewer and Black then drove Day's body to League City, where his body and his pickup truck were found three days later. Day had been shot twice in the head.

"Even though he (Black) may or may not have pulled the trigger, he was a significant contributor to the death of Franklin Day," Dupuis said.

On Aug. 30, Brewer, who was considered a suspect in Day's death, was found dead near an abandoned house in far south Houston. He had failed to report to work since Aug. 28. An autopsy showed he had been struck on the head with a large club.

"According to (Black), it was Bryan's idea," Houston police Sgt. Doug Bacon said.

"Bryan wanted to commit suicide, but he wanted to make it look like a murder," DuPuis said Black claimed.

Day was last seen Aug. 21 heading for LaPorte for what he believed was a lawn-mowing job. DuPuis said police later learned the alleged job was at Black's address.

Day's ex-wife, Earleene Brewer, filed a missing-person report the next day. When Day's body was found, an unidentified informant fingered Brewer, DuPuis said.

But Brewer, who was an employed office worker, denied any knowledge of the slaying.

Two drown in northwest Texas

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Hours after an East Texas man's body was found in a Bossier City reservoir, a Shreveport man drowned trying to get stray cattle out of an oxbow lake just inside Caddo Parish.

Sam Huglon Jr., 39, was among several workers who waded into a shallow lake after the cattle Friday afternoon. He apparently stepped into a hole, and divers found his body in 7½ feet of water, the Caddo Parish Sheriff's Office said.

The body of Billy Johnson III of Waskom surfaced Friday morning in Black Bayou Reservoir, ending almost five days of searching by police divers from three jurisdictions.

Johnson's body was discovered about 100 yards from where divers had been searching, about 250 yards from the reservoir's dam.

Johnson, 22, fell Monday while waterskiing.

Hispanic cultural heritage made up of nine groups.

"Last year was our first fiesta and all (money raised) goes into the scholarship funds for each organization," Ms. Hernandez said.

Last year more than $6,000 was raised at the "cultural fiesta." About 5,000 people are expected to attend. "We may come up with $7,500" this year, Ms. Hernandez said.

One group attending the celebration on Saturday was Rosa Salazar of Odessa and her two daughters, Jessica, 10, and Crystal, 5. Ms. Salazar's grandmother, Apolinar Esparaza, also accompanied them.

"I like Mexican music. That's mostly the reason we came and to take the kids out and have a good time," Ms. Salazar said.

The fiesta continues today from noon to 10 p.m. Admission is $2 and children 12 and under are free.

Mexico's official celebration of Diez y Seis de Septiembre in Midland will be hosted by the Mexican Consulate.

The celebration — which will include traditional Mexican folk dancing and songs — will take place Sept. 15 beginning at 6 p.m. at Centennial Plaza.

The traditional ceremony commemorates "El Grito" (the cry), or the summons for a rebellion made 182 years ago by a priest who led Mexico's independence from 300 years of Spanish rule.

The cry for independence refers to the speech, "El Grito de Dolores," given by a Roman Catholic priest, Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla on Sept. 15, 1810. At his church in the town of Dolores, the priest, before a group of Indians and mestizos, called for a rebellion against Spanish rule.

A revolt ensued but ultimately failed. Hidalgo was captured and executed by Spanish troops in 1811.

Insurgencies followed and Mexico finally gained its independence in 1821.

Organizations that make up FAMA are the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, East Side Lions Club, Knights of Columbus, Ballet Folklorico, Midland Association for Bilingual Education, Hispanic Scholarship Society, Midland LULAC, Permian Basin LULAC, and Midland College Latin-American Student Society.

ton, director of the school.

He noted that airlines and other flight maintenance centers may employ persons with only one of the two certificates, but almost all those working in the aviation maintenance industry hold the joint A&P certificates.

"We have started 20 new students this semester, teaching four new courses that were not offered during the 1992 spring semester or the summer session," Stapleton said. "Altogether, there are almost 40 students currently enrolled."

Completion of the A&P certification program requires almost two years of full-time study. Some students do enroll as less than full-time students, but Stapleton noted that it is unusual and requires several years to complete the program.

For more information about enrolling in the next class at the Aviation Maintenance Technology School call Stapleton at 563-8952.

DEATHS

Vincent B. Conklin

Memorial services for Vincent B. Conklin of Midland will be at 2 p.m. today at the Ellis Chapel with Steve Stephens, pastor of St. Mark's United Methodist Church, officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Conklin

Conklin died Friday at his home.

He was born Oct. 22, 1925, in Asbury Park, N.J., where he was reared.

He married Dorothy Bogart on Sept. 27, 1952, in Red Bank, N.J., and they moved to Midland in 1954. Conklin attended Kingspoint Merchant Marine Academy and became the youngest boat captain at that time.

In 1972, he graduated from Sul Ross State University with a bachelor's degree, and in 1980 he received his master's degree from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Conklin also was a graduate of the FBI academy and was a former president of the FBI National Academy Associates of Texas. He had been employed with the Midland Police Department until his retirement. He then joined the Midland County Sheriff's Department, and became a bailiff in the 238th District Court.

He taught classes at UTPB and Midland College and served on the boards of several local organizations. He was a strong advocate of upgrading education in law enforcement.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge, the local Shriners group and the Scottish Rites.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Kevin Conklin of Corpus Christi and Regan Conklin of Midland; one daughter, Adrienne Conklin of Corpus Christi and five grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland, P.O. Box 2621, Midland, Texas, 79702.

Claudia Egan to host second town meeting Monday

Staff report

District 4 City Council member Claudia Egan will host a second town meeting Monday night at the Dellwood Senior Center at Dellwood Mall.

The meeting, intended for residents of District 4, will run from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

"Our first meeting on August 10 was quite successful and I urge you to take a few minutes and take a part in your city government in an informal atmosphere," Mrs. Egan said.

Representatives expected to attend the meeting include:

- Midland Chamber of Commerce president Janna King, who will give an update on chamber activities.
- Karen Hoffman, assistant director of Animal Control, who will give a short presentation explaining how the Animal Control Shelter operates and what can be done to help homeless animals.
- George Logan and Chuck Swallow, director and assistant director of community services, who will update city plans concerning Dennis the Menace Park.
- Midland Fire Department Captain Gary Chastain, who will answer questions about the department and discuss current plans.
- City attorney Keith Stretcher will answer any legal questions.

Additionally, all city department supervisors have been invited to attend.

A suggestion box will be available for citizens who prefer not to ask their questions in public.

Women Voters to sponsor discussion

Staff report

The Midland League of Women Voters will sponsor a panel discussion on the Texas political campaign process at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 3301 Neely St.

Panelists will include State Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland; City Councilman Bill Morrow; Midland County Elections Administrator Bettye Calvert; and Midland County Democratic Party Chairman Chris McCormick.

Among the topics to be discussed will be election laws, ethical issues, representation and disclosure, and legislative remedies. Panelists will be available for a question-and-answer period following the presentation.

For additional information, call the League of Women Voters at 697-2168.

Prosecutors consider second charge in child's death

AUSTIN (AP) — If Austin prosecutors file charges in a girl's death, it would be the second time in three years that authorities have sought jail time for a woman for failing to protect a child from her mate.

Gene DeLaCruz, 21, was charged Wednesday with serious injury to a child, a first-degree felony, in the death of 2-year-old daughter, Lindsey Beth Ochoa. She died Tuesday.

Prosecutors said charges may also be filed against the woman if it is decided that, having a duty to protect Lindsey, she failed to do so, knowing that DeLaCruz posed a danger to the child's safety.

In 1990, similar charges were filed in another high-profile Austin child abuse case.

A week after her 2-year-old son's 1990 beating death at the hands of her husband, Gerald Christopher Zuliani, Robbi Boutwell was charged with injury to a child by omission.

Later that year, Ms. Boutwell agreed to a plea bargain in which she was sentenced to five years in prison, followed by a 10-year probated term that includes one year in the Travis County Jail. Zuliani was sentenced to 10 years in prison and could end up serving less time than Boutwell.

Officials say that in the latest case, the woman ignored warnings from a judge, state child abuse caseworkers and counselors who told her not to allow DeLaCruz near the girl.

The warnings came after DeLaCruz admitted in 1991 that he broke Lindsey's right leg and foot.

After that attack, the state took custody of the child and placed her with relatives. DeLaCruz was sentenced to seven days in jail and a year of probation that ended in April.

Cholesterol Discovery Passes Mom's Test

WASHINGTON -- The mother of a research scientist recently lowered her cholesterol more than 20% without changing her eating habits.

After a visit to her doctor, a Florida woman learned that her cholesterol level was an elevated 308 and she was encouraged to change her eating habits. When she returned 10 weeks later, the doctor was astounded that her cholesterol level had dropped to 243. Asked if she achieved the amazing results just by dieting she replied, "No I didn't diet at all, in fact I ate the things I shouldn't eat like bacon, sausage and ice cream. The only thing I did different was take some tablets my son gave me."

The woman's son is Dr. William Morris, director of research and development at National Dietary Research, an organization that seeks nutritional solutions to health problems. Dr. Morris admits that the tablets called Vancol 5000 were designed as a dietary supplement to be used with a low fat diet plan. "She just wanted to put the tablets to the test," says Dr. Morris. "Of course I was pleased with the results she achieved, but now were working on reducing some of the fat in her diet to lower her cholesterol even further."

Vancol 5000 is a chewable food tablet that contains extracts from foods known to lower cholesterol. According to the exclusive distributor for Vancol 5000, inquiries about the new discovery are being received from all over the country and has peaked the interest of doctors used to prescribing expensive cholesterol lowering drugs. A 30 day supply of the Vancol 5000 Chloesterol Lowering Plan is only $29.98.

LETTER FROM COLLEGE

College offers activities for small business owners, entrepreneurs

By H.A. Tuck

Although registration has ended, activities certainly haven't.

Owners of small businesses, along with would-be entrepreneurs, have two opportunities on Tuesday to learn how to become more effective while expanding their businesses.

Tuck

The monthly Breakfast for Small and Minority-Owned Businesses, along with managers and opportunists, will be at 7:30 a.m. in the Student Center's Chaparral Hall. Cost is $5 per person, payable at the door.

The first of seven weekly seminars for Small Businesses begins Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. in Meeting Room A of the Student Center. Each of the 90-minute programs is designed to give small business owners/operators a better understanding of the aspects of business management which can help assure success.

The entire, seven-week seminar costs just $25 or any single night costs $5, payable at the door. The first sessions will deal with the legal forms of business. Subsequent topics include bookkeeping, financial statements, financing, worker's compensation, payroll issues, and income taxes. Persons planning to attend any of the seminar sessions should call 685-4639.

Who do you contact if you wish to have a meeting at the college which isn't college-related?

Doris Muehlbrad, assistant to the president, is responsible for scheduling of all physical plant facilities for both instructional programs and non-college use. That does not include Chaparral Center, which handles its own scheduling. Mrs. Muehlbrad had been handling the non-instructional portion of the physical plant scheduling for a number of years, but recently was assigned to handle the credit-course scheduling as well.

Due to limitations, the college will not schedule regular meetings of groups which are not college-related. However, the college encourages organizations to hold occasional meetings on the campus. For most of these meetings, food service can be arranged. As with any public facilities, long-range reservations are needed.

If you are interested in knowing more, call Mrs. Muehlbrad at 685-4528.

Alice Freidline has been named to a full-time post as Continuing Education Coordinator. Based on what she's done in the past, it merely confirms her full-time status. Previously a part-time employee as Adult Vocational Assessor, Alice seemed to be spending at least 40 hours at the campus each week even prior to her new assignment.

She has an M.Ed. in Counseling from Texas Tech.

Rankin High School plans homecoming activities

Staff report

RANKIN — Homecoming activities for Rankin High School are slated for Sept. 25-26. Classes to be honored this year are 1942-43, 1952-53 and 1972-73.

Highlight of the weekend's events will be the Friday night football game between Rankin and Water Valley. Following the game, former students will have a social at Rankin Country Club.

Saturday activities include a parade, beginning at 10:30 a.m., which will involve local residents as well as former students.

The Ex-Student's Association will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday at the junior high school to honor past classes and former faculty members. New officers will be elected at that time.

Teachers from the 1950s are to be honored this year. They include Joe and Eleanor Scrivner, who now live in Burkburnett, and Mrs. Helen Reynolds, formerly of Irran, who currently resides in San Angelo.

The Rankin Chamber of Commerce will sponsor an arts and crafts show at the Rankin Swimming Pool on that day. Other activities include a volleyball tournament, water polo, a petting zoo for children and a barbecue, beginning at 5 p.m., sponsored by the Lions Club.

A western dance that night, to be held at the Rodeo Grounds, will conclude the two-day event.

Weight Loss Discovery

Nutritional researchers discovered that one of the ingredients in the product VITA•TEC actually caused people to lose weight even through specifically asked not to alter their normal eating habits. According to the International Journal of Obesity a majority of dieters abandon any planned diet within a few weeks. VITA•TEC aids in appetite control by stimulating the body to send "I'm Full" signals to the brain, and thereby, helps increase the will power to break long established habits of overeating. Researchers speculate that the weight loss is also due to its effect on carbohydrate metabolism.

Overweight people are benefiting from the discovery. A computer operator at a Houston medical clinic lost 17 pounds in two weeks while using the product. A grandmother, who had previously tried many diets, lost 21 pounds in two months using VITA•TEC and was never hungry. An additional benefit discovered in the study is that cholesterol levels were significantly reduced in obese patients.

VITA•TEC contains only natural ingredients and is available through physicians and pharmacists.

EDUCATION IN BRIEF

A nip of fall is in the air and Lee High School Homecoming weekend begins with a parade Thursday.

The 1992 Homecoming parade will begin 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Fairmont Church of Christ, 3813 N. Midland Dr. The parade will travel south on Midland Drive and turn left on Neely to LHS. A bonfire will follow the parade.

Parade marshalls are retired LHS faculty members Shirley Stephenson and Paul Stueckler.

A Friday reception, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m., will honor all Lee alumni, former faculty and staff. Former students are free to roam the school halls and visit their teachers.

Friday night is the homecoming football game at Memorial Stadium. The homecoming king and queen will be crowned during halftime.

The student council will sponsor a semi-formal dance 9:30 p.m.-12:30 a.m. Saturday at Lee Youth Center. Tickets are $10 per couple in advance and $20 per couple at the door. A local professional photography studio will take memory photos at the dance.

Former student council members, cheerleaders, band students, football players, Dixie Dolls, and homecoming court members may call the school to be recognized during homecoming game halftime festivities.

Viola Coleman High School was just named one of the Top Ten centers in the state and one of the top 11 centers nationwide that serves at-risk teenagers.

The U.S. Basics Bulletin, a publication of the U.S. States Basic Skills Investment Corp, honored the alternative high school for Midland Independent School District as one of the top 11 schools nationally for its effective use of resources in serving the needs of at-risk students.

Only three other schools in the southwest United States — Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Houston and Hillsboro — shared this designation.

"The 11 efficient operations were open for an average of 591.8 hours during the spring quarter with a center utilization of 127 students. The average cost for each hour of instruction at these centers was $2.40," according to U.S. Basics.

Basics also cited Coleman as having best overall student performers and best instructional outcomes. Only 14 schools nationwide received these honors.

During the 1991-92 school year, Coleman served 425 students in the morning, afternoon and evening sessions. These students completed 744 courses, 588 academic courses and 160 vocational courses. Fifty-five of these students completed the coursework necessary for high school graduation.

The Texas State PTA (Parent Teacher Association) is striving for "333 in 1993," or 333 new PTA members registered with each PTA local unit in Texas, bringing the total state membership to 900,000.

Midland PTAs are now recruiting new members. Cost for membership is set by the individual school with maximum dues of $3 per person.

Money raised through PTAs fund programs for drug awareness, youth protection, parent education, donations to schools, newsletters, cultural arts contests, teacher appreciation, and student and teacher scholarships.

The organization is not limited to parents. Any person interested in the welfare of children and youth may join.

The fall PTA drive will continue through Oct. 15. For more information call your child's school or call 697-3563 or 694-1651.

Toastmasters to host speech class

Staff report

Harold E. Jones, Toastmaster Area 21 governor, and Dennis Hart, president of Tall City Toastmaster Club, will coordinate a "Speechcraft Course" from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Graduate Center, located at the intersection of N. Main and W. Illinois streets.

Jones

Course fee is $25 and participants are asked to bring a sack lunch. The fee pays for the curriculum and membership costs, plus dues in the Toastmaster Club through April 1, 1993.

To participate in the Speechcraft Course call Jones at 684-0044, or Hart at 697-0378 (nights). Enrollment will be limited to 12 people, 18 years of age and older.

Those interested need to call by Thursday.

The purpose of Toastmasters is to help participants learn good speaking, listening and presentation skills, thereby insuring job security and better salesmanship quotas.

The one-day Speechcraft Course may not get "rid of all the butterflies, but at least the butterflies will be flying in formation by the end of the day," organizers said.

All Midland organizations and companies interested in forming their own Toastmaster Clubs can contact Jones for details.

If the cable TV legislation is supposed to protect you, how come you'll end up getting soaked?

In the next few days, Congress will vote on a bill that was intended to protect you from higher cable rates.

Unfortunately, it doesn't do that.

While it started out with good intentions, it has become so overloaded with special interests, it could actually increase your cable rates.

In fact, if this law passes, your monthly bill for basic cable will go up, not down.

You have the power to stop it. But only if you act now.

MC hosts 7-week seminar for small business owners

Staff report

A seven-week seminar for owners of small businesses is being offered at Midland College, starting Tuesday.

Topics for this seminar are the financial and tax issues that often frustrate small business operators, even leading to business failures.

Each of the seven programs is self-contained. The seminars are being presented from 7-8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays in Meeting Room A of the Student Center.

Cost is $25 for all seven programs or $5 per individual session. For advance registration call 685-4639.

Persons wishing to attend individual sessions may pay at the door.

Topic for this Tuesday is Legal Forms of Business. Attorney Mike Morgan will talk on the differences of sole proprietorships, partnerships, and corporations.

Bookkeeping is the Sept. 22 topic. Mary E. Glenn, CPA, will explain how to organize records and set up books.

Ms. Glenn also is presenting the Sept. 29 program, which deals with financial statements, including balance sheets, income statements, and statements of cash flow.

Financing Your Business is the topic for Oct. 6. Presenters are Garth Wright, vice president for commercial loans, First City Bank-Texas; and Denis McCaghey, Small Business Administration.

Worker's Compensation Issues will be the topic for Oct. 13. David Hurta, Alexander & Alexander, and Stuart Robertson, hearing officer with the Texas Worker's Compensation Commission, are the instructors.

For the Oct. 20 program on payroll issues, the presenters include: Mary E. Glenn; Belle Harris, Internal Revenue Service; Burt Clyde, U. S. Department of Labor; and C. R. Gillard, Texas Employment Commission.

Ms. Glenn and Ms. Harris are presenting the final program, which deals with income taxes.

Logan to speak at graduation ceremony for Project Blueprint

Staff report

The importance of community and a person's responsibility to the community in which he lives forms the philosophy behind Marian L. Logan. She will explain that philosophy when she speaks Monday at the United Way of Midland Project Blueprint's 14th Board Institute graduation.

Logan

The event will begin at 6 p.m. with a social hour at Southeast Community Senior Center, 1803 E. Indiana Ave. The graduation ceremony will begin at 7 p.m. for the 24 graduates. It is free and open to the public.

Ms. Logan is a native of Fulton, Mo., where she received her elementary and secondary educational training. It was during her early years that the foundation for involvement in community and volunteerism was laid.

She received a bachelor of arts degree in government in 1973 from Southern Illinois University in Cardondale, and a master of arts degree in 1975 from Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo.

Her volunteer work covers the political, religious and civic spectrum including:

- State delegate to the 1984 Missouri Democratic Convention.
- Campaign Volunteer for the 1984 Missouri Democratic Convention.
- Three-year appointee and chairperson of the City of Columbia Human Rights Commission.
- Chairperson on the Council of Ministries at St. Luke "Community" United Methodist Church in Dallas.

Currently, Ms. Logan is a member of the Dallas Partners for Success Advisory Council, the St. Phillip's School and Community Center Development Committee and the Dallas Association of Director of Volunteers.

In 1989, after 13 years in the insurance business, Ms. Logan changed her career to the nonprofit sector. She now serves as coordinator of volunteer services with the Association for Retarded Citizens of Dallas. In addition to recruiting, training and placing volunteers for the Dallas ARC, she is an affiliate speaker and representative for the United Way of Metropolitan Dallas.

Ms. Logan also is a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and in 1982 she was voted Outstanding Young Woman in America.

Board Institute graduates will include Georgia E. Allen, Sylvester Cantu, Damita Sur Cornelius, Delilia Diggs, Adel Dominguez, Marty Harris, Mary Hernandez, Rosa Hernandez, Victor Hernandez, Victor Holland, Virginia Mason and Karen Mosley.

Others include Joe Perales, Ora Lee Poole, Gina Rendon, Mary Laverne Smith, Rachel Stone, Minnie Sustaita, Dolores Torres, Mingo Valencia Jr., Elmila D. Walton, Elma Westphal, Linda Williams and Jose Zertuche.

Project Blueprint is a program of United Way of Midland in which minorities are recruited, trained and placed in leadership roles within United Way and its agencies. Graduates must attend 12 hours of Board Institute classes and participate in a community service project.

Funding for Project Blueprint comes from the ARCO Foundation, Southwestern Bell Telephone, Chevron U.S.A., Inc., and the Permian Basin Area Foundation.

For more information about Project Blueprint or the graduation, call the United Way office at 682-4358.

Parents voice concern after student opens fire in school hallway

AMARILLO (AP) — For parents like Pam Ezell and Theresa Gerber, recollections of a disturbance in high school 20 years ago include an occasional shoving match between two delinquents.

And as mothers they have always been more concerned with getting their children to school safely than with the kids' safety once inside classes.

Those images were shattered Friday at Palo Duro High School, where a 17-year-old male student opened fire in a hallway as students were returning from a pep rally. Six were wounded by the gunfire; another student was trampled in the panic.

"She's not coming back, ever," Mrs. Gerber said as she picked up her daughter, sophomore Tiffany Gerber, from the school Friday. "I'll keep her at home if I have to."

Mrs. Ezell shared the anger of many Palo Duro High School parents.

"If someone brings a gun and is shooting, my son doesn't need to be here," she said. "It depends on how they resolve this (if he will return)."

The teen-ager believed to be the shooter and a second student found with a gun were taken into custody, said police spokeswoman Helen Smith. The suspects were expected to be arraigned Monday, police said. Neither was identified.

Two of the wounded students were reported in serious condition and four in satisfactory condition, according to a hospital spokesman. A 16-year-old girl who was trampled was treated and released.

School officials said the students were returning to classes from a pep rally for the football team when the violence erupted Friday morning.

Witnesses said the student, who was new to Palo Duro High School, pulled a gun after he and another student got into a fight.

Some students said the shooting was gang-related, but police and Amarillo Independent School District Superintendent John Wilson dismissed that as speculation.

"It was a gang thing," said one Palo Duro junior who refused to give his name.

"Me and my boys was looking for him to fight. When we found him, my friend punched him in the face. He ducked down and came up with a gun and started firing."

"I was freaking out. Gunpowder was spraying on my face. I thought I was going to get it, too."

Heather Fisher, a friend of wounded student Delmond Carruthers, said she watched Carruthers punch the gunman in the face, then saw the gunman hunch over, pull out a gun and fire a shot at Carruthers.

"I said it was a cap gun and to hit him again," she said. "Then he fired another shot into Delmond's arm and I saw the blood."

She said the gunman ran through the hallway firing shots to clear his way.

"I don't think he meant to shoot anyone else. He was just trying to get out of there. It was total chaos."

School remained in session following the shooting, although several hundred of Palo Duro's about 1,500 students went home early, said John Williams, executive director of student performance for Amarillo Independent School District.

Carruthers, 18, was in serious condition with .22-caliber bullet wounds to the chest, shoulder and leg, said Northwest Texas Hospital spokesman Dalton Stewart.

Another wounded student, Donyel Austin, 15, was also in serious condition. Four others were in satisfactory condition.

Student Ryan Long complained that security needs to be improved at the school, located in a blue-collar neighborhood on the city's northeast side.

Weight policy discriminates, flight attendant says

DALLAS (AP) — Sixteen years ago, Adrienne Wolchik launched her career as a flight attendant for Delta Air Lines.

Now the Dallas woman wants Delta to drop a policy she says snubs anyone who's not youthfully thin.

Ms. Wolchik is leading a group that contends Delta's weight policy discriminates against women and those who are older or have medical conditions. They want the weight standards abolished.

At least 400 current and former Delta flight attendants joined the group planning to file a complaint Monday with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, she said Friday.

But Delta spokesman Neil Monroe said the matter doesn't need to hit a federal level. Delta will announce a "very significant change" in the policy in the next two weeks, he said.

"We're disappointed they've done this," Monroe said. "We've been in a review for several weeks now and have a moratorium on (weight policy) enforcement."

Ms. Wolchik disagreed. She and others met with Delta officials in July and never received a promised proposal modifying the policy, she said.

"They say the general public and business travelers want flight attendants to look a certain way," Ms. Wolchik said.

MC nursing program achieves 100 percent pass rate on test

Staff report

Graduates of Midland College's Associate Degree Nursing program in May of this year upheld a tradition by achieving a 100 percent pass rate on their state licensure examinations in July.

"We received notification this week that all 17 students who were in this year's May graduating class had passed their boards and have been named Registered Nurses," said Celia Harris, Ed.D., director of the college's ADN program.

Since its first graduating class in 1984, all graduates from the Midland College Associate Degree Nursing program have been licensed as registered nurses.

In 1990, Midland Memorial Hospital and the Abell-Hanger Foundation provided a grant to double the size of the college's ADN program.

"A large majority of our ADN graduates remain in the Permian Basin to work for area hospitals, clinics, health care agencies, and private physicians," Ms. Harris said.

MC to offer five short courses

Staff report

The Midland College Department of Continuing Education will offer five short courses beginning the week of Sept. 21, 1992.

Courses are as follows: Steve Forbes will be teaching "CPR/First Aid for Adults" on Sept. 22 and Sept. 24 from 6-10 p.m. From this course you will learn how to provide first aid in emergencies.

The skills and techniques you will practice will help you to make decisions and take appropriate steps to keep a victim alive and keep injuries from becoming worse until EMS arrives. These skills and techniques are presented in a way that teaches you both the rules and the important exceptions in first aid emergencies. Certificates of First Aid and CPR will be awarded upon successful completion of the skills test.

"Travel Career Training" will be taught by Marjorie Edwards on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6-9 p.m., Sept. 22 through Oct. 8. Students will learn skills and gain knowledge unique to the travel industry. The basic information covered will provide participants with training to compete for positions in all phases of travel-airlines, cruises, travel agencies, and sales. Topics will include an overview of ARC rules and regulations, basic travel industry operations, vacation packages, ticketing and agency ownership. All class materials will be provided.

Mary Worland will be teaching "T-Shirt Painting" on Wednesdays from 12:30- 2:30 p.m., Sept. 23 through Oct. 28. Students will explore a creative hobby in this introduction to techniques of painting on various fabrics. They will learn how to take a plain T-shirt or sweatshirt and turn it into a work of art. Students will gain a working knowledge of pattern transfer methods, paint, medium, and adornments. A supply list will be available at the first class meeting. The class will be limited to 15 students.

"Flyfishing" will be taught by John Sheffield on Thursdays from 7-9 p.m., Sept. 24 through Oct. 15. Student will perfect their flyfishing techniques is a never-ending challenge. They will learn the basics of this age old sport, including: equipment, casting techniques, use of different flies, and much more.

Cande Myers will be teaching "Medical Spanish" on Thursdays from 6-8 p.m., Sept. 24 through Oct. 29. This is a class for health care workers who need to communicate information to patients in Spanish. It will teach Spanish phrases and questions to relate to physical conditions and requests for medical treatment. The course fee includes required text which is available at the first class session.

For more information on these and other Continuing Education short courses come by the Office of Continuing Education located in the Administration Building or call 685-4518.

For the years: 1985-1991

This is a combined Citation by Publication only for the deliquent tax suits listed above, there being no consolidation of these suits, and each and every suit remains separate and is to be treated as such for all purposes.

The Midland Central Appraisal District, collecting property taxes for the City of Midland, Midland Independent School District, Midland College District, Midland County Hospital District and the Midland/Andrews County Education District No. 1, Plaintiffs, collects taxes and the above amounts reflect all base tax amounts, exclusive of penalties and interest due those taxing units for which it collects taxes. The County of Midland, Texas is Impleaded Defendant Taxing Units in the above referenced causes.

Listed in the caption above are separate suits, now pending, in which Petitions have been filed to collect deliquent property taxes and to foreclose applicable liens. The listing for each suit sets out: (1) the suit number; (2) the Plaintiff Tax Unit; (3) the Defendants cited by publication and personally served; (4) the date the petition was filed; (5) the return date of this Citation; (6) the property description; and (7) the amount of taxes, exclusive of penalties and interest due the Plaintiff.

IN THE NAME AND BY THE AUTHORITY OF THE STATE OF TEXAS, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN AS FOLLOWS:

TO: All Defendants named above.

EACH SUIT IS FOR: (1) Delinquent property taxes owed to Plaintiffs on each property described above in the amounts shown above and additionally for all penalties and interest due Plaintiffs up to and including the date of Judgment herein; each suit is also on file to establish and foreclose tax liens on each such property; and (2) All delinquent property taxes, penalties, interest and costs which may be proved by any of those taxing units above named as impleaded party defendants who may intervene and set up their respective tax claims against any of the named properties.

COPIES OF PLEADINGS: Filed with the District Clerk (Rule 72, Texas Rules of Civil Procedure). A copy of the Petition with citation is not required (Rule 117a, Texas Rules of Civil Procedure).

ADDITIONAL NOTICE: No further notice or citation to you is required on claims of Plaintiffs and other taxing units, including additional taxes which may be shown to be delinquent up to the date of judgment. Parties to this suit must take notice of and answer to all claims and pleadings filed by other parties hereto.

This citation lists the Defendants in each separate suit whose names are known, the descriptions of the properties in each suit on which property taxes owed to Plaintiffs are delinquent, due and unpaid and the amounts of such deliquent taxes now due on each property, exclusive of penalty, interest and costs. When attached to any pleading in each suit, this citation is made a part of such pleading for all pertinent purposes.

In addition to the Defendants listed by name above, whether the same be person, corporations, trustees, joint stock associations or other legal entities or juristic persons, there also are made Defendants in each suit with regard to each property where application:

Group 1. Any and all undetermined, unnamed and/or unknown person, proprietors, corporations, trustees, partnerships, joint stock associations and other legal entities or juristic persons owning all or any part of the properties described in this citation or having or claiming any interest, legal or equitable, in and to all or any part of said properties, or liens thereon, including adverse claimants;

Group 2. Undetermined, unnamed and/or unknown stockholders of all Defendant corporations;

Group 3. Undetermined, unnamed and/or unknown members of all partnerships, joint stock associations and other legal entities which are Defendants;

Group 4. Undetermined, unnamed and/or unknown spouses of all named individual Defendants and all individual Defendants designated in Groups 1 through 3; and Group 5. Undetermined, unnamed and/or unknown successors in title (of whatsoever nature and by whatsoever means), heirs, assigns, devisees and legal representatives of all named Defendants and Defendants designed in Groups 1 through 4, whether or not such Defendants be deceased or under some legal disability.

For the purposes of citation, if and when the names of the foregoing designated Defendants, can by determined and made certain, each such Defendant may be cited by name when such information becomes available, together with a brief description of the capacity in which each name has been made certain.

Defendants, properties and taxes involved are listed separately for each suit in this citation under separate property numbers, the Defendants named under each property number being those who own the property described under that same property number or have or claim some interest, legal or equitable, in and to said property, or liens thereon, or interest in property comprising all or part of pooled and/or unitized tracts and mutations of such property. Taxes shown due under each property number are those deliquent on the property described under that same property number. All lot, block, survey and group numbers, etc., herein are inclusive of all numbers appearing. All property herein was located within or had a taxable situs within the county named above and also within the geographical boundaries of the Plaintiff tax unit at the times taxes were assessed. Where descriptions herein refer to Deed Records or other records, such references are to volumes and pages in the specified records of the County named in the caption hereof, and to such records referred to herein reference is made for all purposes.

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear and defend each suit listed herein in which you are named as a Defendant on the first Monday after the expiration of forty-two (42) days after the date of issuance of this citation here of, the 2nd day of September, 1992, same being the 19th day of October, A.D., 1992 (which is return day of such citation), before said honorable District Court in the courthouse of said county, then and there to show cause why judgment should not be rendered for such taxes, interest, penalties, attorney fees and costs, and condemning said property and ordering foreclosure of the constitutional and statutory tax liens thereon for taxes due the Plaintiffs and any other taxing units, together with all interest, penalties, attorney fees and costs allowed by law up to and including the day of judgment herein.

ISSUED UNDER MY HAND AND SEAL OF SAID COURT on the 2nd day of September, 1992.
Vivian Wood
District Clerk

Angie Welch
Deputy

My Blue Heaven...

By Sonja Merrick

A winding path, curved flower beds and trees gently swaying in the breeze lead to a home that so light-filled, so delightful, so peaceful, it seems that someone stole a bit of heaven to build it with.

Open the leaded glass doors to a large entry foyer — its shiny white tiled floor gleams and sparkles. Ahead lies an expansive, carpeted formal living area. The high ceiling is beamed. One wall boasts a fireplace and is flanked by two sets of French doors. Another wall contains massive ceiling-high built-ins. Plush blue carpeting covers the floor — in a shade of that's soft, yet has a definite presence.

To the right of the formal living area lies a cozy family room. A brick wall houses a fireplace that's flanked by two high windows. A complete wet bar is tucked inside a large closet.

A formal dining room is situated to the right of the entryway. Wood chairback railing and wallpaper border adds color, sophistication, to the white painted walls.

Continuing right, find a heavenly kitchen — a room that's truly a dream come true. A huge skylight brings in lots of light. The vast profusion of cabinets are rich, warm cherry wood. A center island boasts lots of storage and a Jenn-Air grill. A large desk affords plenty of paper-work space. The breakfast area lies just beyond and its window captures a lovely view of a large second yard.

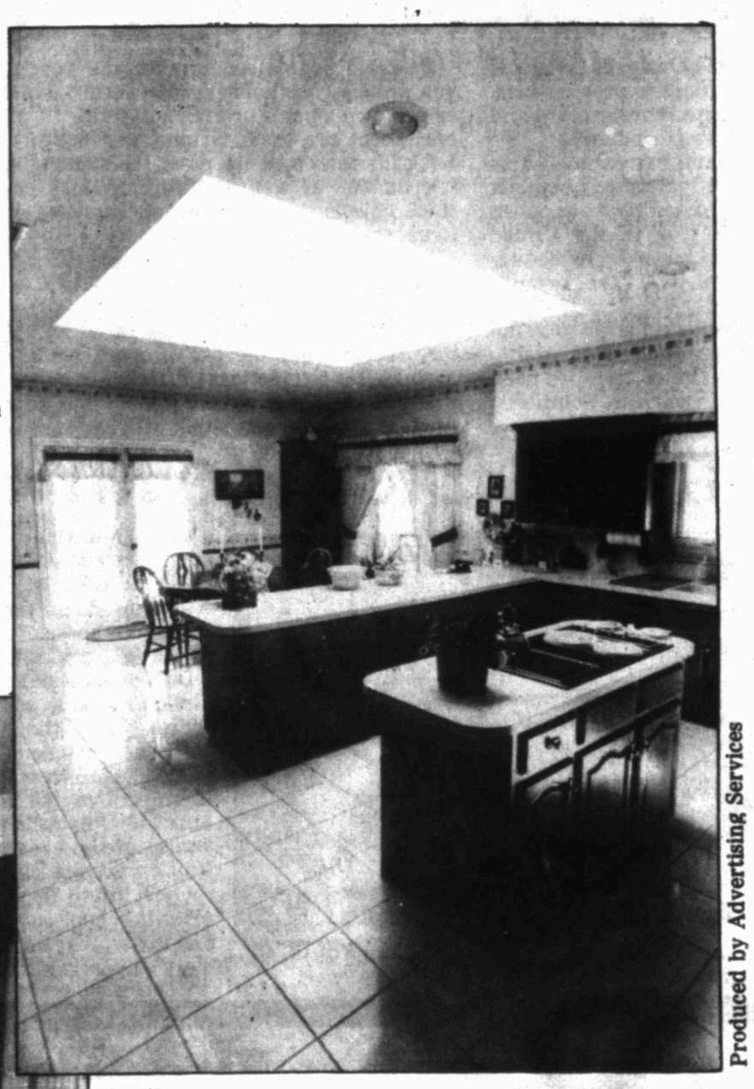

A left turn from the kitchen leads through the family room and to a small hallway. To the right lies a sequestered guest room with its own full bath. To the left a huge laundry area. Straight ahead, a door opens to a three-car garage.

To the left of the foyer are three large bedrooms. Two are connected by a spacious full bath with double vanity. The third has its own full bath, which also opens to the hall.

A luxurious, sequestered master suite lies to the right of the formal living area. The huge master bath has double vanity, two large walk-in closets, a sunken oval tub and separate oversize shower.

Other amenities in this five-bedroom, five-bath Trinity Meadows home include two patios, sprinkler systems for both yards, water softener, RO system and central vacuum. Also zoned air and heat and security system.

The home is being offered by Langston Realtors for $275,000.

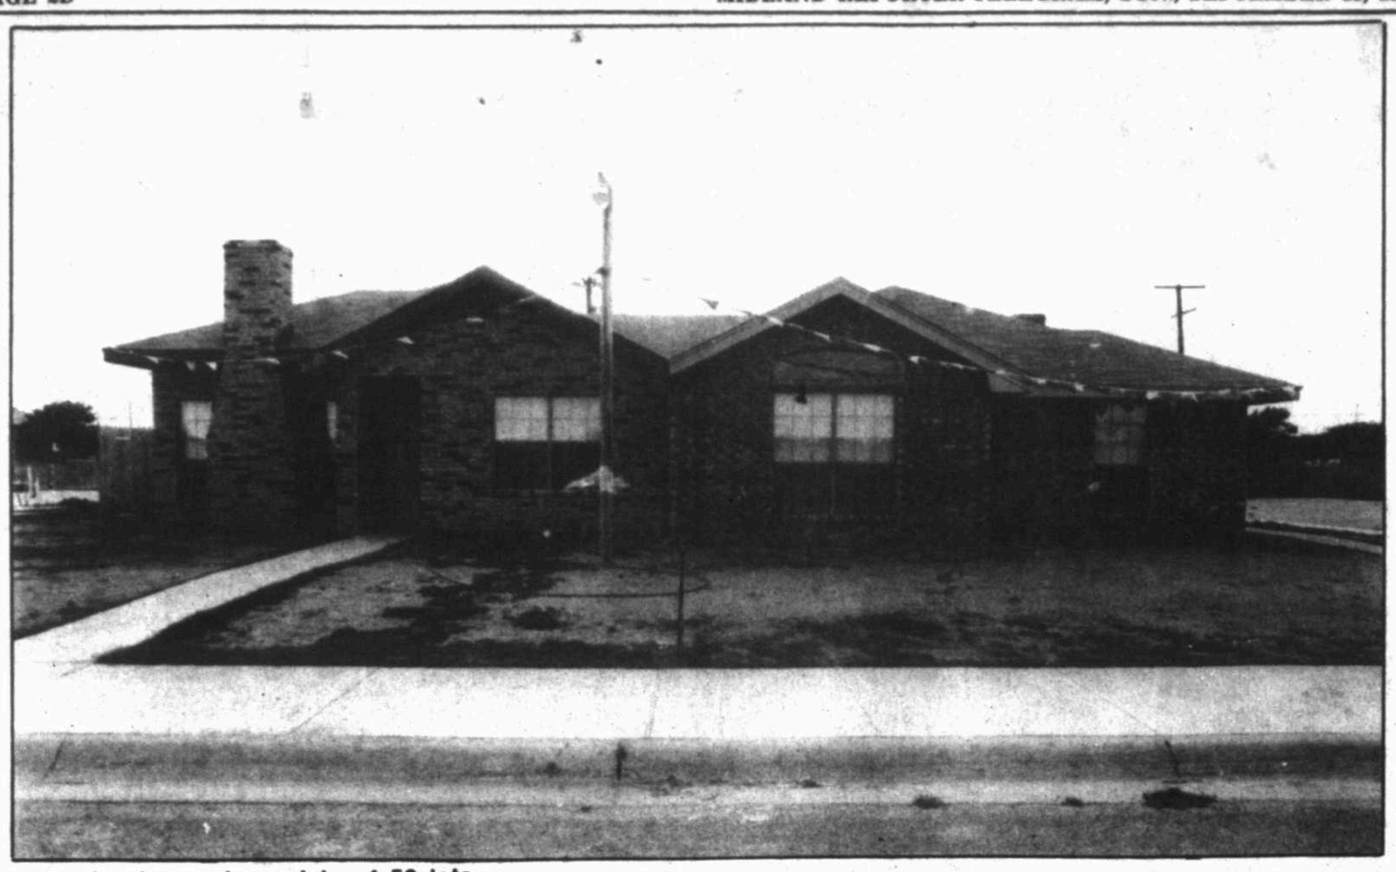

This home will be open from 2 to 4 p.m. today. Call 683-3424 or 682-9495 for information.

Energy-wise townhomes now under construction

Charlie Goss, who has home construction experience dating back to the 1940s, has begun work on a professionally planned community of townhomes in Midland. This development consists of 52 lots and will ultimately have its own community center. Featured are two to three-bedroom townhouses with two full baths each. Five different floor plans will be offered.

These high-efficiency, low-maintenance homes are to feature fireplaces, dishwashers, washer-dryer hookups, ceiling fans, ceramic tile tubs and showers. Also large kitchens with lots of cabinet space, cable TV outlets, skylights, walk-in closets and attic storage. Other amenities are rear-entry double car garages, fireplaces, pantries and linen closets.

Prices are set to begin at $50,840.

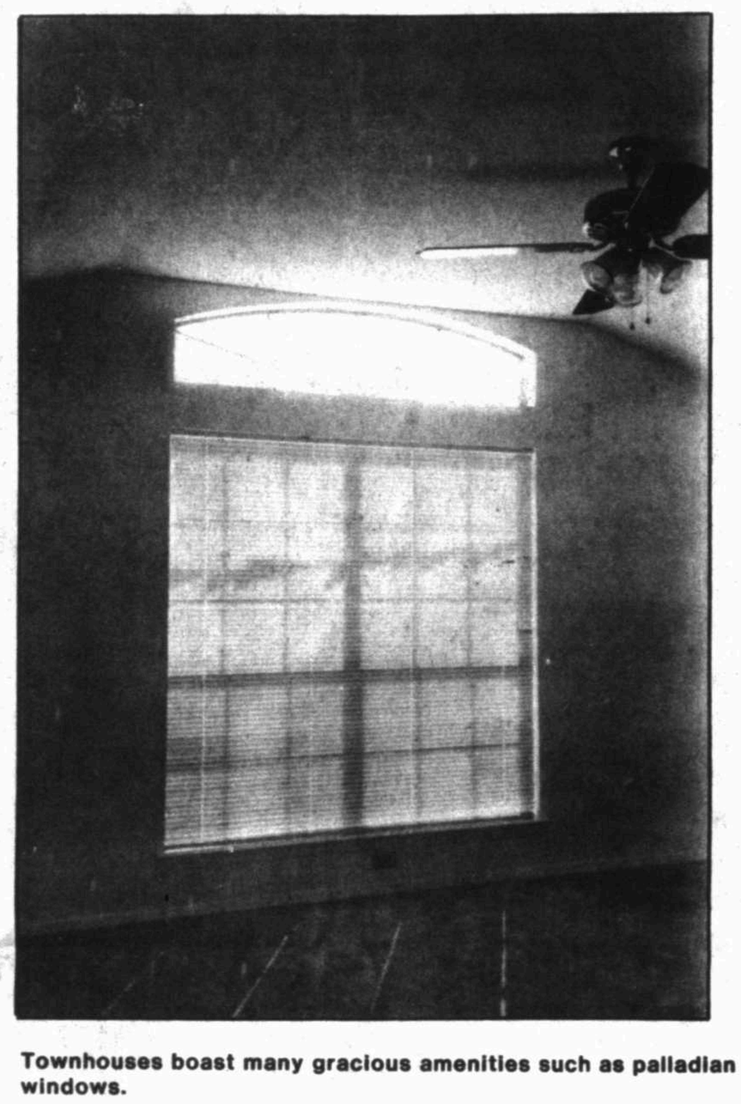

"With financing being at 7% to 8 percent, we believe these homes will be an excellent choice for those thinking about retiring or buying their first home," Goss said.

Goss has been living and working in the construction industry Midland since 1973.

The homes are located at the intersection of Shell and Geraldine, just east of Midland drive. Call 694-8662 for more information.

Each building is to house two to three homes. Rear entry garages are among the amenities offered.

Townhouses boast many gracious amenities such as palladian windows.

How to calculate a home's tax bill

By Pat Paxton

Paxton

Calculating your home's tax bill can be a challenge for the homeowner! It pays to keep track of what you spend — and what you earn — for every home you own.

As a service from the Midland Association of Realtors, the following article is reprinted from the September 1992 issue of Real Estate Today, a publication of the National Association of Realtors:

Buyers and sellers are bound to have some tax questions beyond how to calculate the basis and gain on a home. Here are suggested answers to some basic questions. As always, if buyers or sellers have specific questions about their situation, they should consult a tax expert.

1. Can we deduct points?

Buyers can deduct points in the year they're paid if:

- The loan is made for the purchase of a principal residence and is secured by the residence
- Charging of discount points is an established business practice in the area where the loan is made
- The number of discount points charged doesn't exceed the amount generally charged in the area.
- The cash paid by the buyer equals or exceeds the amount claimed as discount points (including earnest money deposit applied at the closing, down payment, escrow points and funds actually paid at the closing).
- The points aren't paid with funds received from a lender

Sellers can't deduct discount points they pay, but they can use the amount they've paid in points to reduce the amount realized (sales price — selling expenses) from the sale.

2. How does the IRS treat a prepayment penalty?

If owners sell their home before the mortgage is amortized and pay a prepayment penalty, the penalty is treated as additional interest. Thus, they can deduct it in the year it's paid.

3. Can we deduct moving expenses?

If sellers are being transferred and their move conforms to the IRS's time and distance requirements, they can deduct certain costs of selling an old house and buying a new.

What are the requirements? The transferees' new work location must be at least 35 miles farther from their old residence than their old work location was from their old residence. And they must be working full-time within 13 weeks of the move. (Technically, the rule says transferees mist work full-time at least 39 weeks with the 52 weeks after they move.)

Moving expenses can be classified as direct or indirect expenses. Direct expenses — the cost of moving household and personal goods and the cost of transportation to the new house — are fully deductible in the year they're paid.

Indirect moving expenses — the costs of selling an old home and buying a new one — are also deductible in the year they're paid, up to a point. The costs to sell the old residence are expenses that sellers would normally deduct from the amount realized in calculating gain. When used as a deduction, these costs can't be used to reduce the amount realized in the residence replacement rule.

The costs of buying a new home are expenses that buyers would normally add to their basis. When used as a deduction, these costs can't be added to the basis of the new home.

There's a limit. Up to $3,000 of indirect moving expenses are tax deductible. Within that amount, up to $1,500 can be used for househunting trips and temporary living expenses in the new location. Any qualifying expenses that can't be used as a deduction can be used to reduce the amount realized in the sale of a house or can be added to the basis in the case of a home purchase.

4. What's our after-tax house payment?

As you know, the biggest tax benefit of home ownership is the deductibility of property taxes and interest payments. But if buyers want to know the after-tax cost of owning, they should first consider what other deductions they might itemize.

If buyers' Schedule A deductions — excluding interest and property taxes they'll pay on the home — exceed the standard deduction, their effective after-tax house payment is their total payment minus the sum of their interest and property tax payments multiplied by their marginal tax rate: PITI — (interest + property taxes) x tax rate.

However, if their Schedule A deductions — excluding interest and property taxes — are less than the standard deduction, they must modify the calculation. They'll need to subtract from their interest and property tax payments the difference between the standard deduction and their other Schedule A deductions before multiplying by the marginal tax rate: PITI — (interest + property taxes) — (standard deduction — other Schedule A deductions) x tax rate.

Pat Paxton is president of the Midland Association of Realtors, one of more than 1,800 local boards and association of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors (NAR). As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice of Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspect of the real estate industry.

Identify, protect against termite problems

Our homes are our most valuable personal assets so we take precautions to protect them. We install security alarms, burglar bars and extra locks to protect us from burglars. We install smoke detectors and fire extinguishers to protect us from fire. Surprisingly, experts have estimated that termites cause as much property damage each year in the United States as fire. Unlike fire, however, homeowners have more control over the termite problem.

Termite flourish in warm climates, so as the temperature rises, so does the risk of infestation. Although some classes of termites need lots of moisture to survive, the Southwest "dry-wood" termite needs very little moisture.

How can you detect termites and how can you protect your home against them? Whether you own a home or are considering buying one, there are some termite warning sings. Look for holes in fence posts, trees and building timbers as well as wood shavings near these objects since termites like to "dine on" items such as these.

Once inside the home, termites eat cloth, books and paper. They may even attack and destroy house plants.

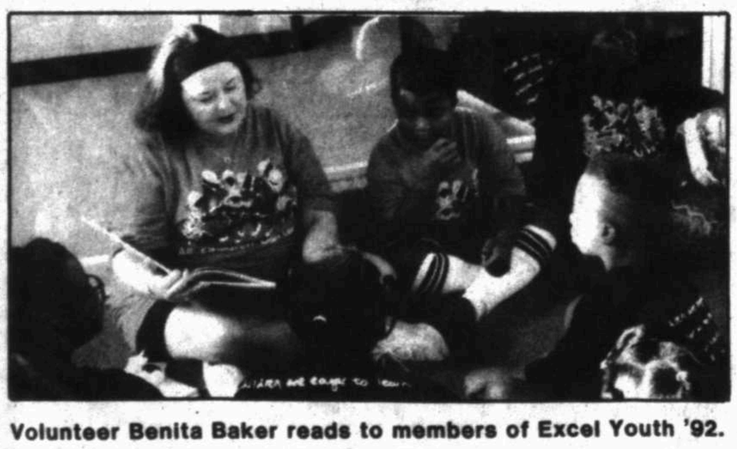

The United States Department of Agriculture recommends the use of stone, brick, or concrete for foundations of trestles or support posts of buildings. Where timber has to be used, it should be treated with creosote or other insecticide that deeply penetrates the wood. Most termites will die if their supply of moisture is cut off.

To maintain the value of your investment, do-it-yourselfers can obtain pesticides to treat the ground around the foundation or pest control companies can spray your home. As with any preventive techniques, these are not absolute cures but the success rate is high.

Although keeping a home in good condition takes more effort, the benefits homeowners can enjoy from year to year are well worth it and the value of their investment is secured for years to come.

Book fair for Excel Youth '92 held by ERA

Volunteer Benita Baker reads to members of Excel Youth '92.

ERA John Muldrow, Realtors recently hosted a local book fair event at their office on Illinois Ave. The Black Chamber Entrepreneurs sponsored the Excel Youth '92 program.

Dr. James Fuller, head of the Black Chamber, provided the facilities where the program met. Attendees included Clem Johnson of Mobil, ERA associates and staff, volunteers in the program, parents of the children and the "stars" of the event, the children who participated in the program.

Excel Youth '92 was a six-weeks-prior-to-school summer reading and math program. The program's main emphasis was to get children ages kindergarten through sixth grade ready for fall term schooling. "All Children Can Learn"was the theme of this summer's program. Strong reading and math programs along with tutorial sessions were offered.

Volunteers were commended and children were awarded with encouragement and presented with T-Shirt awards. Johnson, an associate of the Black Chamber, provided a grant to the program. Kerri Muldrow of ERA Associates was a participant counselor and tutor in the program. She encourages community involvement in well-deserving programs such as this one.

I'm looking for a nice looking guy who will take care of me. I am 31 years old, have green eyes and blonde hair and I weigh 120 pounds. I like to stay at home sitting by the fireplace with a light dinner in the evening and I enjoy camping trips. I prefer ages 27 - 40. MP-532

DO you like to laugh and have fun? Do you like to travel, skiing, exercise, theatre, and so much more? Do you enjoy a traditional family life-style? Are you 32 - 42, Caucasian, intelligent, financially stable, honest and faithful? Do you look for the same in a woman? If you answered yes to the above questions, we might be great together. Please write and enclose photo. MP-534

Polished hazel-eyed 24 year old blonde would like to meet a gentleman to ages 40 who would enjoy being the best of friends and lovers with an attractive, assertive, spontaneous, confident & vivacious woman. Honesty, communication & sincerity a must. I'm not into play games and respect the same. Looks are important but must be able to go deeper than that. So send a descriptive letters, a picture, and tack a chance your won't regret! MP-535

I'm a Caucasian female. I would like to meet a gentleman for a friend & companion or dance partner. Somewhere close to 60 - 72 years old. I'm 68 years old, 5'8" tall, 130 lbs. I like C&W music and dancing, travel, sports, movies, eating out and rodeos. Please no drinkers or drug users. I will answer all letters. MP-537

Attractive Caucasian lady in late 50's wishes to meet a gentleman about same age for dining out and togetherness. Will answer all replies. MP-540

Attractive single Caucasian female, 29, is looking for a man who still thinks treating a lady like a lady is important. I have old school values and would like to meet a man with the same values. I am a light drinker, non-smoker, non-drug user. I like dining out, long walks and being with a special person. If you fit this description, I want to hear from you. I like men with family values. Children are fine. So let me hear from you. Please include phone number. Only sincere replies. MP-541

I'm looking for that special person to be educated, financially secure, not afraid of commitment, communication, or attention. I love being spoiled and pampered but enjoy spoiling and pampering too. I feel romance, honesty and communication are the keys to relationships. I am not looking to play "The Dating Games" and would respect the same. I want someone to love me for me, and who can be loved in return for who they are. I do believe that looks are important for getting the attraction started to build the chemistry needed between two people, but also feel that judging a book by its cover alone sometimes leads to missing a "Good book". Written by an attractive and confident 24 year old Caucasian female with blonde hair, hazel eyes, and is 5'4" tall. MP-542.

32 year old attractive, 5'5", slim, single, blond widow, Mother of 2 young boys, financially stable, seeking Hispanic or Caucasian male ages 30 - 36 also financially stable and loves children. I just want to get out of the house once in a while with a companion. I like dancing, travel, movies, camping, sports, etc. Please reply with picture & phone number. MP-539.

KENT OIL, INC.

KENT KWIK CONVENIENCE STORES

WHY KENT OIL COMPANY?

Kent Oil (operating Kent Kwik convenience stores) is a West Texas-based company, thirty five years old and still growing. We offer many benefits to our employees. These benefits include:

- Company-assisted medical, dental and life insurance
- Paid vacations
- Sick pay program
- Tuition reimbursement program
- Special incentive programs for all employees
- Profit-sharing and retirement plan
- Intensive new hire training
- Structured continual management training
- Flexible scheduling
- Full and part time hours available
- Work close to home
- Affiliation with Odessa 66 credit union

We attempt whenever possible to promote from within. All of our current store managers, middle and upper management started with the company at the entry level. It is possible to move up quickly based on your experience and level of education.

Working in a convenience store is both exciting and challenging. You have to be outgoing and enjoy serving the public, while at the same time be a self-starter, as you receive very little on the job supervision.

If you are considering a career in the retail industry, give Kent Oil your consideration. Please apply (and be ready for interview) at the Kent Oil office Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. 3314 N. Loop 250 in Midland.

OIL REPORT

Oil & Gas Activity/3-6E
Activity Indicators/4E
Meetings Notices/8E

Serving 54 counties in West Texas and New Mexico

BRIEFING

Prices gain

A lone pumpjack is dwarfed by the West Texas sky.

Permian Basin pumpjacks could be lifting more oil and gas as prices were on the rise during the week, largely on technical factors.

Futures prices for West Texas Intermediate were just over $21.90 most of the holiday-shortened week. The posted price was at $20.75.

Please see GRAPH/4E

Rigs multiply

The U.S. and Permian Basin rig counts were on the upswing for the week ended September 4, according to Baker Hughes Inc.

The Basin rig count inched up two to 92 for the week, one below year-ago levels.

Baker Hughes reported the U.S. count surged 38 for the week to 706, closing the gap with the year-ago count of 798.

Among oil producing states, Texas saw an 11-rig increase, Oklahoma a 13-rig jump and New Mexico gained two rigs.

P&P drilling

Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. has announced the completion of its 1992 development drilling program for the comany's Midkiff Unit in the Spraberry field.

Current daily production from the Midkiff Unit is now in excess of 4,000 barrels of oil per day, an increase of 110 percent from 1991 second quarter daily average production of 1,900 barrels of oil per day.

The 1992 Midkiff drilling program consisted of 66 wells and constituted phase three of a comprehensive development program initiated in 1990. It is anticipated an additional 66 development wells will be drilled in the fourth and final phase during the first quarter of 1993. Parker & Parsley has a 65 percent working interest in the Unit.

Parker & Parsley operates 4,250 producing oil and gas wells and is the largest operator in the Spraberry field of the Permian Basin.

Exxon in Moscow

IRVING, Texas — Exxon Corp. has formed a company to evaluate and buy attractive exploration and production business opportunities in the former Soviet Union, Exxon officials announced.

Exxon said it will pursue accreditation of the new company, Exxon Ventures (C.I.S.) Inc. with the Russian Ministries of Foreign Economic Relations.

An office in Moscow has been opened to handle the new operations in the Commonwealth of Independent States. Nicholas Govoroff, who previously was vice president and general manager of Esso Exploration (West Africa), has been named president of the new company and will be in charge of the Moscow office.

DOE issues study on deliverability

■ A DOE study on natural gas cites a critical need for an information system on deliverability.

Staff report

Establishing an information system that can reliably and accurately report the deliverability of natural gas supplies is critical in building a more efficient, cost-effective and more competitive natural gas market that will benefit producers, transporters and consumers.

That's the conclusion of a study issued this week by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). The study is a culmination of a two-year cooperative effort by a task force of government and private sector representatives. It concludes that federal and state regulatory agencies need to work with the private sector to overhaul the current outmoded reporting system on natural gas deliverability.

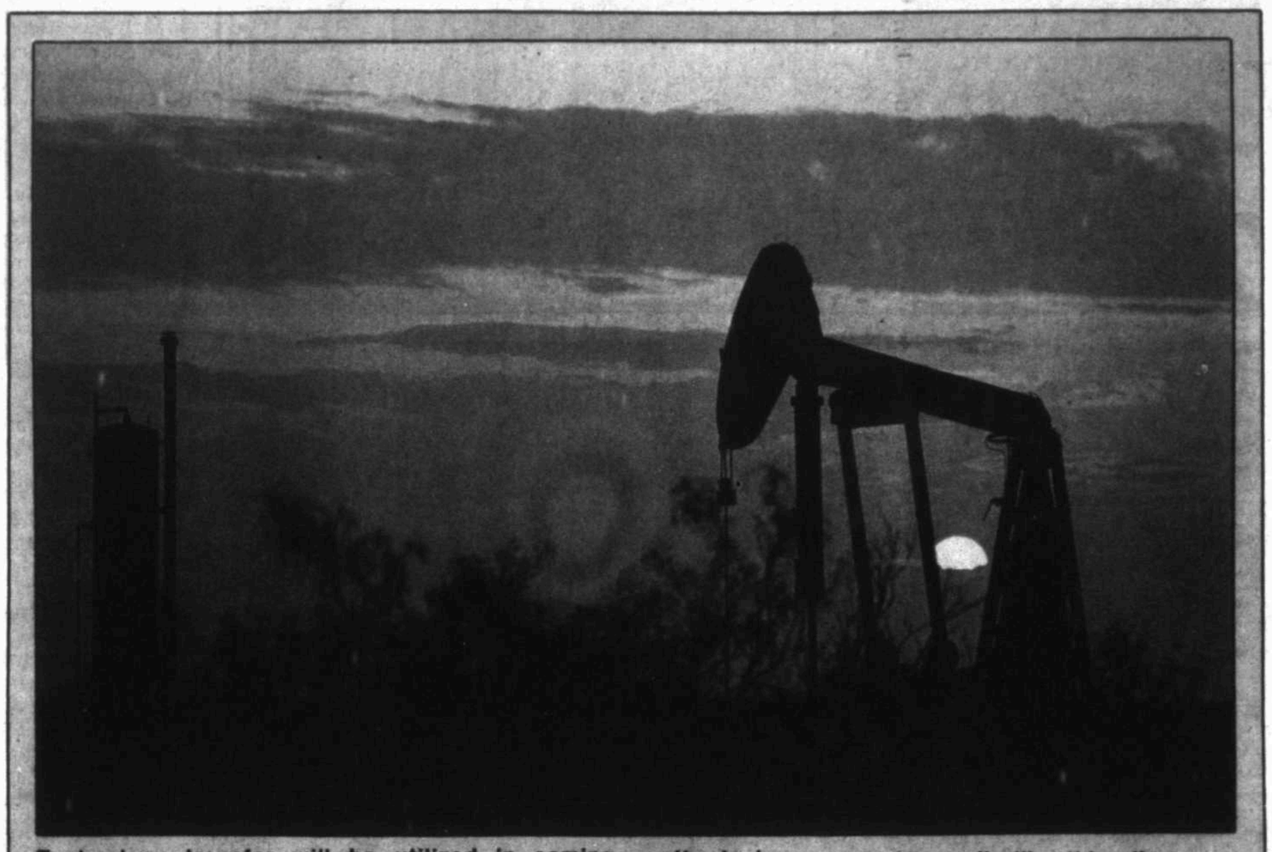

The task force was co-chaired by FERC Commissioner Jerry J. Langdon and DOE Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy Randy P. Parker.

Secretary of Energy James D. Watkins called the report an important step toward meeting President Bush's National Energy Strategy goal of enhanced use of natural gas. "The Nation's energy markets are becoming more and more competitive and complex," said Watkins. "For natural gas to meet its potential, reliable and accurate information on its supply and demand is critical."

"The members of the task force have done the Nation, the government and the natural gas industry a tremendous service in compiling this deliverability study," added Martin L. Allday, Chairman of the FERC. "It was no easy task, particularly since task force members had to attend to their everyday jobs and responsibilities. I have read the report and believe it pinpoints a number of issues that deserve serious consideration by the public and government. I want to thank Commissioner Langdon, Randy Parker and all the members of the task force for a splendid job."

The report found that the natural gas information available today - based on requirements built for a highly regulated 1950s and 1960s industry structure - is fragmentary, unable to provide timely information and focused on outdated is-

Technology transfer will be utilized in coming months to keep numerous wells like this alive.

Technology transfer arrives

■ Sharing knowledge holds key to success of domestic industry.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

The newest buzzword in the oil patch is "technology transfer." Basically, it means the sharing of good, workable ideas and technology, and it is destined to become a growing ingredient in the oil field.

Says Randy Parker, deputy assistant secretary for fossil energy for the Department of Energy (DOE): "Technology transfer is basically an education process. It is taking ready technology off the shelf and applying it to the field."

Parker and an entourage of speakers were in Midland, Thursday to conduct a workshop for independents entitled: "Oil Technology Opportunities for the Permian Basin." He noted that with the industry in dire straits and the infrastructure of the industry falling apart, that technology transfer was taking on a whole new meaning.

"The energy future of the Permian Basin will be based upon two things — enhancing the economic value of its reserves and growing new markets for natural gas," explained the former independent operator from Fort Worth. "Tech transfer allows us to maximize the value of reserves, so just about everything we do at DOE now is a form of technology transfer."

He gave an example of of how the process works. "A small stripper operator has a well where the sucker rods keep parting. He can't very well afford to do extensive research to determine the cause, but we (DOE) can take the rods to a lab and determine why they keep failing."

In this instance, he explained, minute differences in metallurgy were detected that made it possible for the manufacturer to make a small adjustment at the factory and take care of the problem.

"The operator was able to cut down on the number of rod jobs and reduce operating costs on his marginal wells," said Parker.

In another example, he said Exxon had been having trouble with a downhole logging tool that kept failing under high temperatures above 400 degrees. He said the tool

Tech transfer organization is planned

Initiated by the Independent Petroleum Association of America several years ago, technology transfer workshops are growing so fast that an umbrella organization to coordinate the process industry-wide has been proposed.

Randy Parker, Department of Energy deputy director, says a meeting was recently held in Dallas with DOE, TIPRO, SPE and other industry groups to discuss the possibility of such an organization.

"We don't know what it will be called, exactly how it will be organized or where it will be located, but it will be a staffed organization," said Parker, who noted that there was great enthusiasm in the

Will the Department of Energy (DOE) put a permanent research and administration facility in the Permian Basin? "That's a possibility," said James Watkins, secretary of energy in a visit to Midland this week.

Watkins said that if and when the National Energy Strategy is passed the DOE will take a good look at the possibility of continuing research and knowledge transfer seminars at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification (CEED) on a permanent basis.

Randy Parker, principal deputy assistant secretary for fossil energy at DOE, said he was convinced that getting to the field, and getting the agency's feet on the ground is essential. He also noted that DOE technolgy transfer and research would be an on-going effort, but said he could not predict where DOE facilities might be located.

Ed Sharpe, interim president of the University of Texas Permian Basin, which has responsibility for CEED says a committee of industry and community leaders has been working on a role for the institution, and the outlook for CEED as a research or technology transfer facility was very favorable. # Did Albert Gore really, truly say that?

Pitts

The 1992 Battle of the Labels has begun in earnest, and it began right here in Midland, Texas.

Republicans want desperately to stick the "L" word (liberal) tag on Clinton and Gore, who are fighting like crazy to be thought of as moderates and would love to slap the "do-nothing" label on Bush

The stakes are high, because in the last three elections, republicans have won the White House by successfully pinning the scarlet "L" on their opponents. Despite liberal courts, liberal congressmen, a liberal press and liberal bureaucrats, the majority of American voters are conservative — a fact both Bush and Clinton are aware of.

The intense, hositility of the label battle, became very clear this week when Secretary of Energy James Watkins visited Midland and tried to put the liberal, environmental extremist tag on Sen. Al Gore of Tennessee.

Worse than liberals, the oil industry fears environmental extremism. Watkins knew exactly what buttons to push. He told the oilmen that the next vice president of the United States could be a man who favored a carbon tax (a tax on all hydrocarbons to limit consumption) and opposed drilling in all the coastal waters of the U.S.

"Opposes drilling in all the coastal waters of the U.S.?" Did I hear right? Did he really say that? If he did, it could be political suicide in the oilpatch. Even before Watkins had finished his speech, I had made up my mind to double check and verify Gore's statement.

But upon returning to my office two faxes were already on my desk. One was from the Bush-Quayle press office. It was a briefing on Watkins' remarks about Gore and attached was a transcript of a television interview in Santa Barbara, Calif., where Gore made the remark about a ban on coastal drilling.

I read the transcript, provided by the Bush-Quayle office. There it was in black and white.

Edie Lambert, the reporter for KEYT in Santa Barbara asks: "So, you're saying you'd like to see the Marina Sanctuary extended beyond, you know, south of San Luis Obispo?"

Gore responds: "I think that a ban on offshore drilling ought to be extended on the . . . to all of the coastal waters of the United States."

The other fax was from the Clinton-Gore office in Austin. The giant, bold headline read: MAURO SAYS WATKINS' STATEMENTS DON'T HOLD WATER. He had already heard about Watkins' charges.

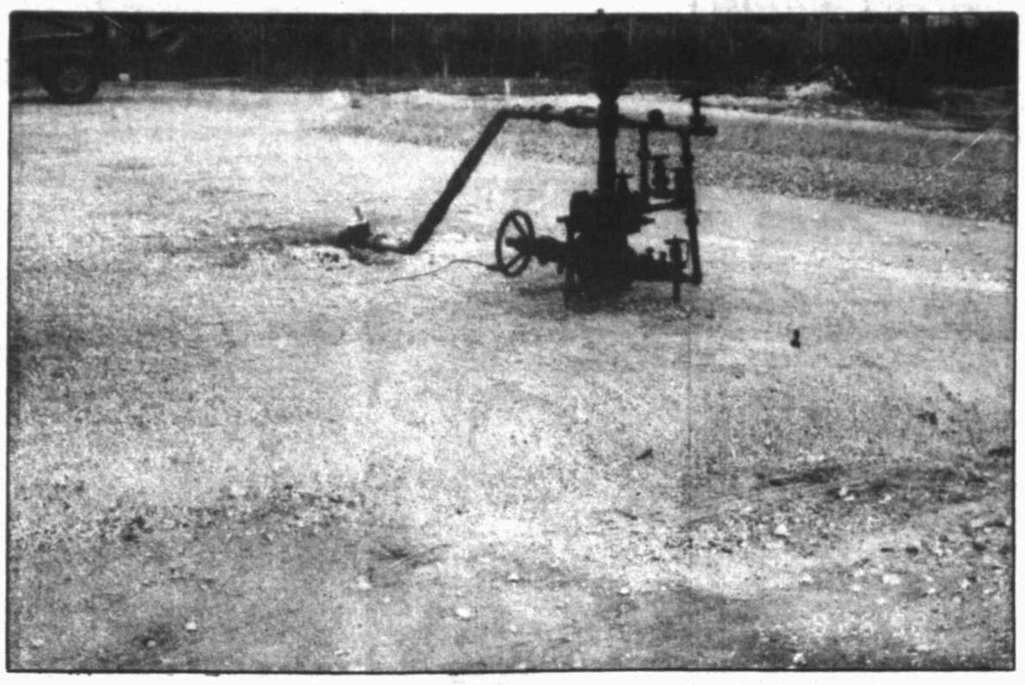

I called Garry Mauro, general land commissioner of Texas and chairman of the Clinton-Gore campaign in Texas for his reading on the Gore's remark.

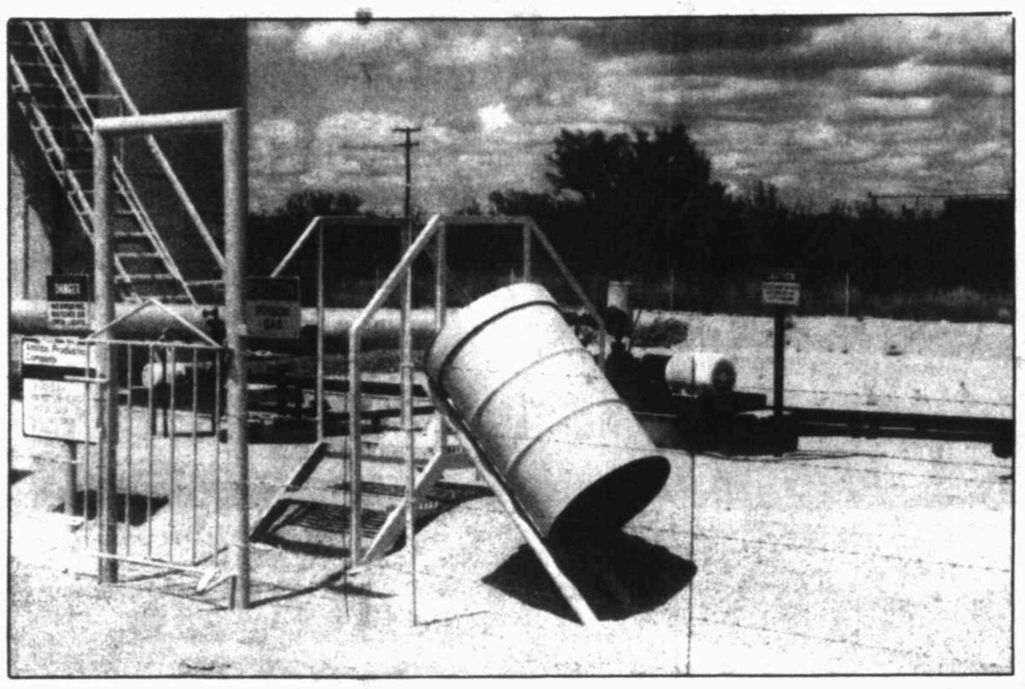

"I don't care what it says," Mauro said heatedly. "Even if he did say it, he didn't mean it. It's either out of context or mis-spoken. I know what he supports. He doesn't oppose drilling in the Gulf of Mexico and he doesn't support a carbon tax."

Mauro said Gore once supported a carbon tax (a tax which would penalize all hydrocarbons to maintain certain carbon dioxide levels) in a book he wrote about the earth, but has since

Cleaner leases

Amoco has announced a multi-million dollar program to remediate hydrocarbon-bearing soil at all its well sites, as shown above, and to find and plug abandoned water wells on its leases. The company has already cleaned up 300 sites and its North Cowden Unit and will clean an additional 100 this year. The Permian Basin office has already found and plugged 160 abandoned water wells.

Exxon and Mobil form partnership to bid on Russian oilfield projects

N.Y. Times News Service

DALLAS — The nation's two biggest oil companies, Exxon Corp. and Mobil Corp., said they would join forces to bid on oil-and-gas exploration and production projects in one of Russia's largest oilfields, the West Siberian basin.

The Exxon-Mobil partnership is a rare one in recent years between two corporate giants that mostly have gone separate ways or teamed with other oil companies during the last 20 years.

It revives an alliance whose biggest undertaking, along with Chevron and Texaco, was developing oilfields in Saudi Arabia under the Aramco banner. The giant Middle East operation was purchased by the Saudis between 1972 and 1980.

The companies have not detailed the size of their commitments to the project, which they said covers 86 million acres in western Siberia with daily output of three million barrels of oil, about half the production of the large western Siberian fields.

The two companies so far have had little success bargaining on their own in Russia. Chevron, Conoco and Marathon signed deals in other regions earlier this year and Texaco is bargaining for production rights near the Arctic Circle.

By combining expertise in finance, pipelines, seismic analysis and drilling technology, Exxon and Mobil hope to persuade Russian negotiators to grant them concessions in what many geologists consider to be potentially huge, undiscovered reserves in western Siberia.

Some geologists believe the oilfields are among the world's largest and that Russia's reserves will eventually prove larger than Saudia Arabia's 256 billion barrels. Russia's proven reserves last year were 57 billion barrels.

Few Western oil companies are producing oil in Russia, an indication of daunting uncertainties that remain on taxes, royalties and other aspects of government concessions, analysts said. Political unrest has also deepened as the economy has slid further into depression, presenting even larger risks for Western oil companies.

"Every company I've talked to is very nervous about risking large amounts of capital on exploration and production projects in Russia," said William L. Randol, senior oil analyst at Salomon Brothers Inc. The Exxon-Mobil pact "is a partnership that is spawned by the need to spread risk."

A Mobil executive, who insisted on not being identified, acknowledged that working with Exxon reduced concerns of potential losses, but she said that there were benefits, also. "We feel that between us, we have a lot to offer Russia," she said.

One of the first partnerships in the West, between Salomon's Phibro Energy Inc. and Anglo-Suisse Inc., called White Nights, scaled back its output in the same western Siberia region last spring after the Russian Parliament increased taxes on exported oil. White Nights continues to produce and hopes to resume exports soon at a reduced tax rate, the company said Thursday.

Chevron Corp., the nation's third-largest oil company, told Wall Street analysts last month that it had been unable to produce oil in Kazakhstan because of delays in building new pipelines, which must cross the boarders of several former Soviet republics.

Chevron signed a deal in May to develop the Tenghiz oilfield in Kazakhstan, with an estimated 6 billion to 9 billion barrels of recoverable crude.

Exxon and Mobil both lost out earlier this year on competing bids to develop the huge offshore gas fields of Russia's Sakhalin Island. The contract was awarded to a group including Marathon Oil, McDermott International and Japan's Mitsui.

the center would definitely play a role in assisting local operators prepare proposals for reservoir research in conjunction with DOE Shallow Shelf Carbonate Reservoirs, and that there was possibility of continuing activity after that.

Sharpe said that with the new emphasis on technology transfer in the oilpatch the timing was very good. "I am clearly convinced that more can and needs to be done out here to support the oil industry," he noted.

He added that UTPB was working to develop partnerships for the utilization of CEED.

One of the partners is University Lands. Steve Hartmann, director of University Lands in Midland, noted that it was in the best interest of University Lands to participate in programs that help operators improve and sustain production.

"We have lands, geologists and engineers that we could offer to research and technology transfer programs," said Hartmann. "We also have a very extensive data base of production, drilling and seismic data that could be utilized."

Tucker Drilling tests Nolan well

Staff report

SAN ANGELO — Larry J. Tucker, Cheif Executive Officer of Tucker Drilling Company, Inc. (Company), announced the company's recent completion of a well in the South Lake Trammel Field, Nolan County, Texas.

The Harris #1 well flowed 149 barrels of oil and 107 MCF of gas during a 24 hour initial potential test through a 12/64 inch choke. The Company is the operator and owns a 25% working interest (19.5% revenue interest) in the well, and the right to earn, by continuous drilling, the same interest in approximately 1,000 acres in the prospect.

Mr. Tucker added that the well is currently shut-in awaiting connection to a gas pipeline, that the allowable oil production rate for the well would be 102 barrels per day, and that future production rates could be less than the allowable rate.

was sent to Sandia Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M., where several minor adjustments were made to extend its life from two hours to 200 hours at 400 degrees.

The intent of the workshop at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification is to get problems and the right people together. The workshop program set up by Secretary of Energy Watkins will be presented in 24 cities in the next five weeks.

The workshop at CEED, was also used to explain the Department of Energy's intent in its Class II Shallow Carbonate Reservoir studies. The department will be working with area operators to study methods and technology to prevent the premature plugging of wells in these reservoirs. The Permian Basin contains 62 percent of all shallow carbonate reservoirs in the U.S.

"Operators will utilize technology transfer on three condition," said Harry Spannaus, executive vice president Permian Basin Petroleum Association, a co-sponsor of the workshop. One, it must be of value. Second, it must be affordable, and third, it must not be burdened by bureaucracy. The moment independent operators run up against bureaucratic hassle they will check out."

Parker said DOE was making every effort to keep bureaucratic hassle out of the technology transfer arena.

Mesa clears hurdle in CNG offer

DALLAS — MESA, Inc. announced today that it has cleared a critical hurdle in its offer to finance the conversion of public- and private-sector fleets in Phoenix to natural gas.

Mesa and Southwest Gas, the areas natural gas distribution company, have successfully completed negotiations for a pipeline tariff and supply agreement for fueling facilities.

The new contract signals a willingness by local natural gas distribution companies to provide transportation and supply services to support the development of the growing natural gas vehicle market, said Mesa's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Boone Pickens. Pickens also serves as chairman of the Natural Gas Vehicle Coalition.

Mesa working Through its Fort Worth subsidiary, Mesa Environmental, has offered to finance fleet conversions to natural gas in Phoenix and five other U.S. cities. For participating fleets, Mesa will also finance the installation of fueling facilities.

"Completion of this contract moves the large-scale conversion of natural gas vehicles within individual communities one step closer to reality," said Pickens, who praised Southwest Gas for their support of the Mesa Environmental Clean Fleet program.

The Mesa/Southwest Gas contract outlines the responsibilities each company will have in developing a natural gas vehicle market in Pheonix.

Mesa's program is called "Mesa Environmental - Clean Fleet." Mesa plans to recoup its investment, and earn a profit, through fuel supply agreements with participating fleets in which Mesa provides natural gas at, or below, the price the fleet operator would otherwise pay for gasoline. A gallon equivalent of natural gas now sells for about half as much as a gallon of gasoline.

PITTS: Say what, Al?

(From 1E)

changed his mind.

I asked about Mauro's specific reference to the Gulf of Mexico when he answered for Gore. Mauro added that Gore does support a drilling moratorium in some coastal waters.

Then he lashed out at Watkins with a "do-nothing" pitch: "He is worst Secretary of Energy in the history of the United States. He's an embarrassment to Texas and the energy industry."

To give Gore the benefit of the doubt and make sure he was not misquoted, I called Edie Lambert, the TV reporter in Santa Barbara.

She doesn't think Gore said it, but nevertheless cues up the tape and reruns the interview. "He said it!" she says. "He said a ban on offshore drilling ought to be extended to all the waters of the United States." At the same time, she tells me that their station is doing a follow up story on the remark, and as a result of my phone call and the transcript sent out by the Bush-Quayle headquarters.

I thought about trying to call Gore personally to get his real intentions on his remarks, but before I can work the channels, I am handed a fax from Clinton-Gore.

Gore has obviously been apprised of the controversy over his remarks and has issued the statement to clarify the situation.

In statement, he called Watkins "confused" and accused the Bush administration of flip-flopping on offshore drilling. Gore said he supports President Bush on his offshore drilling moratoria. There is no mention of his Santa Barbara statement or his own personal view on offshore drilling.

He then goes on to tell how he and Bill Clinton are strong proponents of natural gas, and concludes: "The difference between a Bush-Quayle administration and a Clinton-Gore administration is that the American people will always know exactly where they stand and what we say won't depend on who's listening."

Uhhh...uhhh...right, Al!

STUDY: Hopes to boost natural gas market

(From 1E)

sues. According to the study, price decontrol and interstate open access policies - major initiatives implemented over the past decade - are creating an entirely new industry structure that needs a new information base to support it.

The report's recommendations centered on three themes.

■ Information needs to be refocused to serve those who buy and sell both natural gas and pipeline capacity, instead of the current emphasis on serving the needs of traditional regulators.

■ Buyers and sellers need easy and timely access to information, so electronic bulletin boards should be incorporated at major market centers.

■ The information system should be retooled to encourage private sector flexibility and innovation.

"The new, competitive natural gas market will function much more efficiently once a modern, state-of-the-art information system is in place," said DOE's Randy P. Parker. "This new system will allow the U.S. natural gas market to evolve more rapidly."

The report relied in part on three independent panel reports prepared by a total of 59 panel members who represented the technical, regulatory and industrial communities. A summary of some of the key recommendations are:

■ Standardization of Reporting Production and Transportation Data. Federal and state agencies should work together to develop a standard method of reporting production information. Producer organizations and states should develop more accurate and more timely production data. FERC should consider standardizing the format of Electronic Bulletin Boards mandated in FERC Order 636.

■ Publications. The Energy Information Administration (EIA) should continue its annual report on gas reserves, but it should also be developing other reports that could help standardize terminology and be a standard reference for information on gas deliverability.

■ Storage Deliverability. EIA should consider establishing a system that compiles all storage and supplemental deliverability data into one easily accessible electronic database. EIA and the states should consider how to close the current gaps in reporting, including gathering capacities and flows, intrastate volumes, intrastate sales, and distributor sales.

■ Timeliness. The Secretary of Energy should consider asking the National Petroleum Council to look at ways to improve the timeliness of reported data, including the possible sue of real-rime telemetering of production data from states to a central collection point. This study should also look at the use of trunkline and/or hub telemetering to provide instantaneous monitoring of regional flows of natural gas.

FERC Commissioner Langdon commented, "The overwhelming desire by market participants to take advantage of competitive forces at work in today's natural gas industry has outpaced the development of essential information infrastructures. This task force report is the government's first step in partnership with state agencies and the public to inventory the utility, reliability, timeliness and cost of current data in a new age. Reliable information is the fuel which will energize efficiency in the marketplace."

Implementation of the recommendations will begin immediately. The joint task force will meet in January of 1993 to review progress made in implementing the report's recommendation.

Copies of the report, entitled "Deliverability of Natural Gas in the United States, Is the Data Reliable?" are available by calling the Department of Energy's Office of Fossil Energy at 202-586-6503.

Eddy reentry yields 12.1 Mmcfd find

Staff report

A marginal Wolfcamp producer in the Winchester field of Eddy County, N.M. has been recompleted as a Bone Spring gas discovery.

CHI OPERATING INC., Midland, recompleted the No. 1 Winchester Federal "1" for a calculated absolute open flow of 12.12 Mmcfd with 96 barrels of 60.2 degree condensate on a 20/64 inch choke. The well flowed from perforations 6,146 to 6,300 ft., which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid and fractured with 60,000 gallons of gel and 150,000 lbs. 16/30 sand.

Originally drilled to 11,400 ft., the well was plugged back to 8,800 ft. with a cast iron bridge plug. Operator set 4 1/2 inch casing at 11,390 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 4, T20s, R28e.

Atoka find recorded in Eddy County

SANTA FE ENERGY OPERATING PARTNERS has recorded an Atoka discovery in Eddy County, N.M., three miles northeast of Atoka production in the Sand Dunes field, eight miles northeast of Loving.

The No. 1 P.G. "4" Federal was completed for a calculated absolute open flow of 5.6 Mmcfd from perforations 13,718 to 13,748 ft., which was acidized with 3,000 gallons of gel.

The well was drilled to 15,175 ft. and plugged back to 14,100 ft. with a cast iron bridge plug. Seven inch casing was set at 12,0765 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,346 ft., include the Ramsey at 4,184 ft., Bone Spring at 8,143, Wolfcamp at 11,630, Strawn at 13,334, Atoka Clastics at 13,558, Atoka AC at 13,644, Atoka Bank at 13,715, Lower Atoka Lime at 13,790, Pure Gold Sandstone at 14,193, Morrow at 14,284, Morrow Clastics at 14,448, Morrow B Sandstone at 14,656, and Lower Morrow at 15,019 ft.

Location is 900 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from west lines of Section 9, T23s, R31e, 40 miles northwest of Jal. Bottomhole location is 825 ft. from south and 2,145 ft. from west lines of Section 4. The well was

The well was drilled vertically to 600 ft., deviated north between 6,000 and 12,000 ft. and completed vertically.

Ward field gains Bone Spring well

A Bone Spring discovery has been completed in the Quito field of Ward County, seven miles north of Barstow.

CHUZA OPERATING, Midland, reentered the No. 1 Caroline "H" and completed it to flow 230 barrels of 42 gravity crude, 62 Mcfd and 50 barrels of water on a 24/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 600 psi. The well flowed from perforations 9,470 to 9,499 ft., which had been acidized with 7,000 gallons of HCL.

Originally drilled to 15,470 ft., the well was plugged back to 11,152 ft. with 9-3/8 inch casing set at 11,395 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,588 ft., formation tops include the Delaware Limestone at 4,682 ft., Cherry Canyon at 5,878, Bone Spring at 8,220 and Wolfcamp at 11,080 ft.

Location is 760 ft. fromsoutheast and 1,980 ft. from southwest lines of Section 225, Block 34, H&TC survey, Abst. 290.

The well was originally drilled by Amarillo Oil Co.-Hisson Drilling Co. as the Caroline H. Gas Unit and abandoned in November 1988.

Eddy reentry nets Strawn gas strike

A former Atoka West (Morrow) producer in Eddy County, N.M. has been recompleted as a Strawn discovery.

YATES PETROLEUM CORP. reentered the No. 1 West Dayton "AJR" Com., testing it to flow 95 Mcfd on a 15/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 55 psi. The well flowed from perforations 8,220 to 8,332 ft., which had been acidized with 4500 gallons of acid and fractured with 12,375 gallons of gel and 12,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Originally drilled to 9,200 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 9,665 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,366 ft., include the San Andres at 902 ft., Glorieta at 2,326, Wolfcamp Limestone at 5,726, Canyoin Limestone at 7,620, Strawn at 8,108, Lower Strawn at 8,310, Atoka at 8,572, Morrow Clastics at 8,814, and Chester Limestone at 9,074 ft.

Location is 990 ft. from south and 2,310 ft. from west lines of Section 16, T18s, R26e.

The well was originally completed as a Morrow producer, flowing 245 Mcfd on a 1/4 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 150 psi from perforations 8,900 to 8,914 ft.

Chaves discovery flows 108 Mcfd

McKAY OIL CORP. has completed an Abo discovery in Chaves County, N.M.

The company tested the No. 1 April State to flow 108 Mcfd on a half-inch choke from perforations 2,514 to 2,524 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,000 gallons of 7.5 percent acid.

Drilled to 2,725 ft., the well was plugged back to 2,625 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 2,681 ft.

The well topped the ABo at 2,371 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and 990 ft. from west lines of Section 4, T4s, R20e.

Pogo Producing tests Lea County discovery

Lea County, N.M. has yielded a Delaware discovery, 1.5 miles southeast of another recent Delaware find, 15 miles southeast of Halfway.

POGO PRODUCING CO. completed the No. 1 Federal "27" to pump 50 barrels of crude, 64 Mcfd and 200 barrels of water from perforations 8,330 to 8,391 ft. No treatment was reported.

The well was drilled to 8,850 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 8,813 ft.

Location is 330 ft. from south and 2,310 ft. from west lines of Section 27, T22s, R32e.

Eddy County field gets Delaware opener

Delaware production has been opened in the Willow Lake field of Eddy County, seven miles southeast of Malaga.

NEARBURG PRODUCING CO. tested the No. 1 Emerald "32" Fedral to pump 34 barrels of crude, 22 Mcfd and 202 barrels of water from perforations 5,114 to 5,137 ft. No treatment was reported.

Total depth was 6,650 ft. and the well was plugged back to 6,528 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 6,643 ft.

Nearburg Producing tests Penn strike

NEARBURG PRODUCING CO. has tested an Upper Pennsylvanian discovery in Eddy County, N.M., 3.5 miles south and slightly east of Upper Pennsylvanian production in the Penasco Ranch field, five miles west of Lakewood.

Nearburg plugged back the No. 1 South Boyd, testing it to pump 18 barrels of 42 gravity crude, 83 Mcfd and 1790 barrels of water. The well produced from perforations 7,712 to 7,802 ft., which had been acidized with 8,000 gallons of 20 percent HCL.

Drilled to 9,555 ft., the well was plugged back to 7,723 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 9,439 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from north and west lines of Section 27, T19s, R25e.

Production opened in Concho County field

Production has been opened in the Speck South (Strawn C1) field of Concho County, 2-7/8 miles northeast of the field opener, 1-3/8 miles north-northeast of the Dark Horse (Goen Lime) field, seven miles northwest of Eden.

HOLLIS R. SULLIVAN INC. completed the No. 1 Ellis to pump seven barrels of 39 gravity crude, 7 Mcfd and 30 barrels of water. The well produced from perforations 3,669 to 3,672 ft., which had been acidized with 750 gallons of acid.

The well was drilled to 3,883 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 3,856 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,009 ft., include the Palo Pinto Limestone at 2,810 ft., Camar Sandstone at 3,510, Goen Limestone at 3,660 and Ellenburger at 3,840 ft.

Location is 1,457 ft. from south and 2,250 ft. from east lines of Section 2, John H. Gibson survey, Abst. 1170.

Eddy County find pumps four barrels

YATES PETROLEUM CORP. has completed a San Andres discovery in Eddy County, 14 miles southwest of Lakewood.

Yates reentered the No. 5 Mimosa "AHS" Federal, completing it to pump four barrels of 34.9 gravity crude from perforations 1,305 to 1,390 ft., which had been acidized with 3,000 gallons 20 percent NeFe and fractured with 25,000 gallons of gel and 45,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

The well was cleaned out to 1,868 ft. with 8-5/8 inch casing set at 1,893 ft.

Location is 1,998 ft. from north and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 5, T20s, R24e, 15 miles west of Lakewood.

The well was originally drilled as the No. 1 Hamilton Federal by Magnolia Petroleum Co. and abandoned at 3,592 ft. in June 1950.

We stack the deck in your favor.

By developing and patenting our Continuous Mix Gel (CMG) System, Smith Energy Services created the industry standard for liquid fracturing gel systems.

This saves you time and money by improving well performance and delivering high quality gel "on-the-fly" with no wasted materrials or disposal problems.

And there is no tank-to-tank viscosity or pH variance as with batch-mixed gels.

We have a full range of products including refined guar, HPG and CMHPG which have been formulated to yield maximum hydration in a minimum amount of time, even at lower temperatures.

The dynamics of our system allow tapered gel loadings with flexible viscosity at the highest rate in the industry. And with the in-line viscometer and mass flowmeter for exact measurements, it is the best monitored and most easily controlled fracturing gel system.

So when you want uniform, high quality gel mixed "on-the'fly," without paying for unused materials, try our CMG System. It's all part of our commitment to excellence.

And you'll have the ace in the hole.

1992 PERMIAN BASIN OIL SHOW

OCT. 21-22-23

When it comes to advertising for the 1992 Oil Show the Permian Basin Oil Report is your most logical choice.

Distributed to every oil and gas company and service company in the 54-county area of the Basin, it is the most widely read energy publication in the nation's largest oil and gas producing province.

With a staff of award-winning oil and gas writers that include petroleum engineers and geologists, the Oil Report also provides the most extensive and comprehensive coverage of oil and gas news in West Texas and New Mexico.

During the Oil Show the Permian Basin Oil Report plans to publish the largest edition ever produced for an oil show. Additionally, we will publish an update edition each day of the Permian Basin Oil Show.

We have a highly professional staff of advertising representatives available to assist you in planning and creating your Oil Show advertising.

Mitchell Energy earnings up 20 percent

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Mitchell Energy & Development Corp., citing increased prices and production of oil and condensate, reported second-quarter earnings rose 20 percent from a year ago.

For the three months ended July 31, Mitchell earned $9.5 million, or 20 cents per share. That compares to earnings of $7.9 million, or 17 cents per share, for the same period in 1991.

George Mitchell, chairman and president of The Woodlands-based company, said the company's profits also were bolstered by improved pipeline earnings.

He said the company's energy operations did not gain full benefit in the second quarter from recent improvements in prices for natural gas and natural gas liquids. If sustained, the gains — along with recently acquired additional natural gas liquids production capacity — will improve in periods to come, Mitchell said.

For the first six months of this year, the company lost $6.2 million, or 13 cents per share, compared to earnings of $17.1 million and 37 cents per share during the first two quarters of 1991.

Mesa offers to convert Oklahoma fleets

OKLAHOMA CITY — Dallas-based MESA Inc. has offered to finance the conversion of an estimated 215,000 fleet vehicles in Olkahoma City and Tulsa to natural gas.

The offer was outlined by Mesa's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Boone Pickens, during a morning news conference with Oklahoma Governor David Walters and U.S. Rep. Mike Synar, D-Oklahoma. Pickens was in Oklahoma City to address the Continental Conference on Alternative Fuels.

Mesa is one of the nation's largest independent natural gas producers. Through its Fort Worth subsidiary, Mesa Environmental, Mesa has presented the same offer to public - and private-sector fleet operators in Phoenix, New Orleans, Baton Rough, Kansas City, Las Vegas and Tucson.

Mesa's program, called Mesa Environmental - Clean Fleet, includes the financing and installation of natural gas fueling facilities.

In exchange for the conversions, Mesa plans to recoup its investment, and earn a profit, through fuel supply agreements in which the fleet operators purchase natural gas from Mesa at, or below, prevailing gasoline prices. A gallon equivalent of natural gas now sells for about half as much as a gallon of gasoline.

Pickens said Mesa is extending the offer to Oklahoma fleets partly because of Governor Walters' aggressive support for natural gas vehicles. Oklahoma offers 50 percent tax credits for vehicles that convert to natural gas. Through the state's Alternative Fuels Conversion Fund, government and school vehicles that convert to natural gas can receive state reimbursements of up to $3,500. New natural gas fueling facilities are eligible for reimbursements of up to $100,000.

"Oklahoma clearly recognizes the tremendous economic and environmental potential of natural gas vehicles," said Pickens, noting that Oklahoma is one of the nation's largest natural gas producers.

"Oklahoma is leading the effort to take America's clean-burning natural gas head-to-head against dirty foreign oil," said Pickens. "We can reclaim the transportation marketshare that we've steadily lost to OPEC."

Walters expressed support for the fleet conversion program.

"This is the sort of market-based initiative we need to kick Oklahoma's natural gas vehicle movement into high gear," said Walters. "With Oklahoma's incentives and Mesa's offer on the table, fleets throughout Oklahoma are going to be hard-pressed to explain why they aren't shifting to this clean-burning, American fuel."

Pickens, who also serves as chairman of the Natural Gas Vehicle Coalition, is one of the America's most outspoken proponents of natural gas as a clean-burning, U.S. transportation alternative to foreign oil.

"Through the Oklahoma incentives and our Clean Fleet program, the economics are in place for large-scale fleet conversions to natural gas in Oklahoma," he said. "The forces are in place to reinforce Oklahoma's reputation as a leader in the development of this critical new market. I want to work with Oklahoma to make that happen."

Pickens said Mesa's offer will appeal to government and private-sector fleet operators who are being forces to switch to clean-burning fuels by the Federal Clean Air Act, but are hampered by a lack of funds and a concern about fuel availability.

Natural gas is rapidly emerging as the clean-burning alternative fuel of choice because it is an abundant, safe and economical domestic fuel. Natural gas vehicles can achieve up to a 99 percent reduction in carbon monoxide emissions, a 30 percent reduction in nitrogen oxide emissions and a 90 percent reduction in hydrocarbons in comparison with gasoline and diesel vehicles. Unlike other alternative fuels, natural gas contains virtually no carcinogenic particulates.

Pickens predicted that by the year 2000, about 20 million U.S. vehicles will be powered by natural gas. There are currently 187 million cars and trucks operating on the U.S. roads.

Pickens cautioned that it would be at least six months after Mesa agrees to contracts with local natural gas distribution companies before vehicles could be converted under the program because of the regulatory hurdles that must be cleared and the individual analysis that must be performed for those interested in the program.

Mesa trades on the New York Stock Exchange as MXP.

PBPA hosts CO2 symposium

Staff report

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association will host a symposium on CO2 applications Sept. 24 at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Convention Center.

Entitled "CO2 Utilization in the Permian Basin for Independent Producers," the symposium begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. and welcoming speech at 9 a.m.

The keynote speaker during lunch will be Bill LeMay, director, Oil Conservation Division for the State of New Mexico.

From 9:15 to 10 a.m., Jerry Casteel, manager, chemical and gas flooding for the Department of Energy will speak on "DOE Technology Transfer Projects."

Laura Buckner of KPMG Peat Marwick will speak on "CO2 EOR TAx Incentive and EOR Tax Code" from 10:15 to 11 a.m.

She will be followed by Chuck Wilkinson, director of business development at Enron Oil & Gas, who will speak on "CO2 Pipeline Distribution and Transportation" from 11 to 11:45 a.m.

Following lunch, William Flanders, president, Transpetco Engineering, will speak on "CO2 Performance and Profitability of CO2 EOR Projects" from 1:30 to 2:15 p.m.

The symposium will conclude with panel and open discussions until 4 p.m

Cost is $20 until Tuesday, $30 until the 24th.

CO2 enhanced oil recovery in the Permian Basin is becoming more feasible for independent producers and the symposium is designed to address issues of concern to independents as they seek to recover remaining domestic oil. It will address the advantages to independents of exploiting the potential that some "majors" are bypassing.

Oil recovery courses set

Staff report

"Improved Oil and Gas Recovery: A New Reality for Independents" will be the theme of a symposium at the DoubleTree Hotel in Austin September 28-29.

The symposium is sponsored by the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association and the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin.

TIPRO and the Bureau of d veloped a series of technical short courses to provide Texas independents with access to new technologies critical to the survival of the domestic industry and production of millions of barrels of crude and trillions of cubic feet of natural gas.

Three technical courses will be presented by faculty members three times during the two-day symposium. The three courses are Oil Reserve Growth, Gas Reserve Growth and Exploration Strategies.

Faculty for the Oil Reserve Growth course are Dr. Noel Tyler, Dr. George Asquith, Dr. John McDonald and Dr. Martin Chenevert.

Faculty for the Gas Reserve Growth course are Dr. Robert Finley, Dr. Stephen Holditch and Ercill Hunt.

Faculty for Exploration Strategies are Dr. Bob Hardage and Dr. Milo Backus.

Texas Gov. Ann Richards has been invited to address the luncheon on the first day, and Dr. Charles Brandenburg of the Gas Research Institute will speak at the luncheon on the second day.

Cost for the entire seminar is $150, $125 for the first day, $100 for the second day or $75 for a half-day.

Information is available by writing TIPRO, 515 Congress AVenue, Suite 1910, Austin Texas 78701.

MEETINGS

San Andres framework topic of SEPM meeting

The Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists will meet Tuesday at the Midland Center beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Guest speaker will be Charles Kerans, who will speak on "Sequence Framework for the San Andres Formation: Implications for Improved Reservoir Characterization and Exploration."

According to Kerans, the San Andres formation is the most prolific reservoir interval in the Permian Basin. A sequence framework for the San Andres is presented based on outcrop, seismic, well log and core data.

Cost is $7 per person and reservations can be made by calling 683-1573.

PBWLA to host Bureau Economic Geology rep

The Permian Basin chapter, Society of Professional Well Log Analysts, will meet Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the Petroleum Club.

Guest speaker will be F. Jerry Lucia of the Texas Bureau of Economic Geology. His topic will be "Archie-type Petrophysics: The Key to Integrated Multidisciplinary Characterization of Carbonate Reservoirs."

IADC officials to visit Permian Basin chapter

The Permian Basin chapter, International Association of Drilling Contractors, will meet Thursday at the Petroleum Club beginning at 11:45 a.m.

Brian Petty, senior vice president of government affairs for the IADC will discuss issues concerning the Alternative Minimum Tax, Section 29 tax credit, recent development at the national Republican Convention and other national political issues affecting the industry. He will also preview issues to be discussed at the annual IADC meeting on Sept. 20-22.

Also attending will be George Williford, IADC director of committee operations, chapters.

Cost is $15 per person and reservations can be made by calling 550-2318.

PBPA schedules annual meeting, symposium

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association, celebrating its 30th anniversary, has scheduled its annual meeting and environmental seminar for November 5-6.

Advance registration is $75 per person or $130 per couple; after October 31, cost is $90 per person or $150 per couple.

Tenneco enters second phase of turnaround

By Anne Pearson
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON –In his first hundred days at Tenneco, Mike Walsh cut the dividend in half, slashed spending by $500 million, put $1 billion in assets on the block, sold $516 million in new stock and warned he would put at least 6,000 people out of work.

Then he closed the executive dining room and sold the company yacht.

As he winds up his first turbulent year here, Tenneco's 50-year-old chairman, along with the directors who recruited him and those who track the company's stock, declare his radical surgery a resounding, if painful, success.

In 12 months, Walsh completed a grueling $3 billion restructuring and quenched the financial ground fires threatening to singe Tenneco's credit standing and perhaps even throw it into bankruptcy.

But despite the accolades he's collecting, Walsh is the first to admit the revival of the nation's 27th largest industrial company –and Houston's second-largest – is far from complete.

"The first phase was to avert a crisis," Walsh said from Tenneco's downtown office tower. "The second phase is to get us back on track to respectable profitability."

Last year was trouble. The company lost a record $732 million, or $6.09 a share, on lower sales of $13.7 billion.

But 1992 is looking better. Analysts expect Tenneco to make $1.50 to $1.60 a share and as much as $3 a share in 1993.

Case Corp., the company's farm and construction equipment subsidiary, made money last quarter despite a 20 percent drop in the farm and construction markets, and the natural gas division increased operating income 9 percent despite an unexpected collapse in natural gas prices in the first half of the year.

Walsh expects every Tenneco division to earn at least 15 percent to 20 percent more in 1993.

Just a year ago, Tenneco was in serious trouble. High debt and weak cash flow put the company on the verge of violating loan covenants with its banks, and its investment-grade bond rating was on the ropes. At the same time, shareholders had filed lawsuits complaining that Tenneco had inflated sales at Case to artificially prop up its sagging stock price.

Case, formerly known as JI Case, was threatening to suck Tenneco dry.

The Wisconsin construction equipment and farm tool maker, which one analyst described as "a Bermuda Triangle," accounts for nearly half of Tenneco's assets but yields only about a third of its sales. Mostly it has bled red ink.

Through $1.5 billion in asset sales, a December stock sale and sweeping cost-cutting, Walsh has trimmed Tenneco's debt-to-capital ratio from almost 70 percent in the third quarter of 1991 to about 57.5 percent today. The lawsuits have been settled.

Walsh now must prove he can operate Tenneco's diverse businesses at a profit and make them grow.

"He's done a lot of the quicker and maybe easier things he could do," analyst David Fleischer with Prudential Securities Research in New York said. "What's left is all the little things that have to be done up and down this company to make it operate more efficiently."

In addition to manufacturing tractors, Tenneco operates natural gas pipelines, builds and repairs ships, makes car parts, and manufactures chemicals and packaging materials.

Walsh readily admits he's no pro in any of those industries.

"When I came here (last year), I'd never heard of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (the pipeline regulatory agency), Mega-NOPR or cosmic settlements," Walsh said, referring to deregulation catchwords in the pipeline business.

"I don't even think I'd ever even heard of Newport News," he said of the home of Tenneco's shipbuilding business in Virginia.

Tenneco directors admired the turnaround he engineered at Union Pacific Railroad Co., another industrial company that had fallen on hard times. In five years, he doubled its profits.

"We knew we had a fellow who had the intestinal fortitude to carry these things out," said Tenneco director Belton K. Johnson, a San Antonio rancher and hotel operator who has served on Tenneco's board since 1979. "Getting as much done as he has in this kind of economy is just amazing."

Walsh politely avoids a critical post-mortem of predecessor James L. Ketelsen's mistakes, but he acknowledges he is reforming the corporate culture and the management credo of Ketelsen's Tenneco.

The problems Walsh inherited at Tenneco are "prototypical of industrial America," he said.

"Tenneco committed all the sins of the 1980s," Walsh said, borrowing too much and relying on defense contracts that are drying up in the post-Cold War era.

The cuts at Case ultimately will result in 10,000 layoffs over a two-year period – about a third of its work force.

Whereas Ketelsen had mostly alienated Wall Street, Walsh is making more of an effort to cozy up to analysts. A lengthy conference call with reporters has become a quarterly ritual.

Wall Street's opinion of Tenneco already has improved dramatically, even if the stock price is still in the doldrums.

"I think there's a much more bullish outlook for the company," said Henry Harris, vice chairman emeritus of Smith Barney, Harris Upham in New York and a Tenneco director since 1968. "There's nothing Wall Street likes better than to see the debt come down."

Those who know both men well say Ketelsen, who launched his corporate career from a Big Eight accounting firm, is a "numbers man." Walsh, who went to Yale law school and started his professional life as a public defender and later a U.S. attorney in the southern district of California, is "a people person."

In deference to the thousands of people he's put out of work and the big chunks he's whacked out of his managers' operating budgets, Walsh has made a point to tone down the trappings of his office.

Closing the executive dining room and getting rid of the yacht in the Bahamas, as well as a luxury suite at New York's Park Lane Hotel, are mostly token gestures from a cost-saving standpoint, but Walsh thinks they're important.

Analysts and investors will be watching eagerly to see what Walsh will do with Tenneco's diverse companies in the long term.

"The question is, what does Tenneco want to be when it grows up?" analyst Harris of Oppenheimer said.

Its most promising businesses, according to Harris, are the automotive parts companies – Monroe Auto Equipment, Walker Manufacturing and the Tenneco Brake division – and Packaging Corporation of America. The pipeline is a stable earner, but regulated companies have less potential for earnings growth, Harris said.

Some analysts believe the company is due for a new corporate structure, separating the prosperous parts from their cyclical sisters that have limited growth potential. The aim is to increase Tenneco's stock value.

Walsh is mum on that proposal or other strategic possibilities, but he believes industrial "behemoths" like Tenneco are still viable organizations with good management.

"The simple answer to the future is continued management intensity."

BRIEFS

Fina gives Midland firm top rating

DALLAS — Fina Oil and Chemical Company's Retail Marketing Division says that Cura Inc., an environmental engineering and consulting firm of Midland, was rated number one among Fina's national environmental consultants for top quality performance. Fina's total quality rating criteria was based on responsiveness, communication, innovation, technical expertise, quality of reports, knowledge of regulations, safety, minority vendor programs, and service value.

Cura Inc. specializes in geology/hydrology, engineering, air and water quality, solid/hazardous waste, and regulatory compliance.

Western Co. names sales manger

The Western Company of North American recently named Vern Johnson as Regional Sales Manager for the East Texas Region. He will be responsible for sales in Mineral Wells, Dallas, Fort Worth, Tyler, Kilgore, Texas and Bosier City, Louisiana.

Maxus man heads TMCOGA committee

AUSTIN — Steven G. Crowell of Rockwall, senior vice-president, operations, Northern Hemisphere, for Maxus Energy Corp., (formerly Diamond Shamrock Corp.) has been named chairman of the General Arrangements Committee for the 73rd Annual Meeting of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, according to the Association's chairman, Albert Hrubetz. The convention is scheduled for Wednesday-Thursday, September 16017, at the Hotel Crescent Court in Dallas.

Maxus to evaluate Siberian areas

DALLAS — Maxus Energy corp. and Yakutskgeofisika of Republic Saha-Yakutia today announced the signing of a technical evaluation agreement (TEA) that incorporates three areas in Eastern Siberia. The three areas were selected pursuant to an agreement signed in January 1992. The three areas cover approximately 37.5 million acres, each area being approximately 12.5 million acres.

The agreement calls for a four-year work program, during which Maxus will conduct evaluation of existing seismic data, seismic reprocessing and additional field work. At the conclusion of the four-year agreement, Maxus will have the option to pursue further operations.

Partners plan Mexican MTBE plant

SAN ANTONIO — A joint venture comprised of Valero Energy Corp.; Promociones Industriales Banamex, S.A. de C.V.; Grupo Infomin, S.A. de C.V.; Dragados Construcciones, S.A. has executed a Memorandum of Understanding with Petroleos Mexicanos (PEMEX) to construct a world-scale, 13,000 barrels per day (BPD) MTBE plant in Mexico. The plant would upgrade butane into methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) which is a high-octane, oxygen-rich, clean burning gasoline blendstock. MTBE will assist Mexico in the continuing effort to clean the environment.

Under the agreement, PEMEX would enter into a long-term contract to purchase all or a substantial portion of the plant's production under a pricing formula which would minimize the risk to both the project partners and PEMEX. All of the butane feedstock required by the plant would be purchased form PEMEX under market-related pricing.

MidAmerica Resources now Seaboard Oil

MidAmerica Resources, Inc. is changing it's name to Seaboard Oil Co. effective September 15, 1992. The address, phone number and Taxpayer Identification Number will remain the same, according to Gary B. Gilliam, President, COO.

SPE plans Asia Pacific conference

RICHARDSON — The Society of Petroleum Engineers (SPE) will sponsor a stand-alone conference in the Asia Pacific region, Feb. 8-10, 1993, in the Raffles City Convention Centre in Singapore. The inaugural Asia Pacific Oil and Gas Conference & Exhibition will address on- and offshore exploration, drilling, production, and transportation operations.

GDS to build data files for Yemen Hunt

Yemen Hunt Oil has contracted Geological Data Services (GDS) to build a proprietary digital geologic data file to assist Yemen Hunt's exploration efforts in Yemen. GDS, a Dallas based geological services company, has over 8 years' experience in building geologic data files in the United States. The Yemen Hunt data file is GDS' first international project.

CARPAL TUNNEL TROUBLES

If you've experienced a tingling, numbness or pain in your wrist or hand, there is a possibility you have tunnel troubles — better known as carpal tunnel syndrome.

While not a life threatening problem, carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS) can cause severe pain. If left untreated, it can escalate into acute, persistent pain, and can even become so crippling that people can no longer do their work or even perform simple tasks at home.

Stated in simple form, CTS is a common, painful defect in the wrist and hand, according to The Bosby Medical Encyclopedia (BME).

It is most commonly associated with tasks that require repetitive finger and hand motions for a long period of time. However, this syndrome also is linked to broken or dislocated bones, arthritis, fluid retention, gout, thyroid disease, diabetes, chemical imbalances, emotional stress and sometimes hormonal changes associated with menopause. According to the BME, it is most often seen in women, especially in pregnant and in menopausal women, but also strikes men, women and children of all ages.

The carpal bones extend across the hand at the wrist in two rows of four bones each. Strong tissues called ligaments bind the carpals in place, but they also permit movement.

The carpal tunnel in the wrist is formed by ligament and bone, according to information from the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA). Tendons that run through the tunnel in the wrist control the action of fingers and thumbs. When the membranes surrounding these tendons become irritated, they can swell and squeeze the median nerve that runs from the forearm to the hand causing the discomfort of CTS, according to information from the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons.

"A healthy hand will not have this expansion," said Dr. Sylvan Bartlett, a hand surgery specialist. In a hand suffering from CTS, "The nerve is being offended by the swelling." The inflammatory changes puts pressure on the nerve next to the ligament and obstructs the venous return, he said.

THE BME STATES, "Symptoms may result from a blow, swelling, a tumor, rheumatoid arthritis or a small carpal tunnel that squeezes the nerve. The middle nerve serves the palm and the thumb side of the hand. Pressure on the nerve causes weakness, pain when the thumb is bent toward the palm, and burning, tingling or aching that may spread to the forearm and the shoulder. Weakness and wasting of muscles may occur from lack of use, getting in the way of full use of the thumb and fingers. Pain may be infrequent or constant and is often most intense at night. Drugs given by injection often brings quick relief from bad pain. An operation to relieve nerve pressure usually corrects the syndrome for good."

Treatment for CTS varies with the severity of each case. For accurate treatment, a doctor should be seen.

In the first stages, Bartlett said the patient usually experiences intermittent pain. At this stage, rest is best, therefore, splinting the wrist is helpful. Splinting puts the wrist in the proper position and forces it to rest from movement. Injections of cortisone can help knock the inflammation. In addition, Barlett said, 200 miligrams of vitamin B6 have proved helpful.

Once the pain become almost constant or never goes away, Bartlett said you are working against high pressure. Nerves begin to die. Surgery is usually the best solution in these cases.

The procedure Bartlett preforms entails a small incision on the palmar side of the wrist and takes about 30 minutes. "This problem can be caused by various aspects, so looking inside(the wrist) is very important," Bartlett said. He also leaves a drain in the wound for a couple of days following surgery to allow the excess blood to drain, preventing stiffness and soreness.

"Most patients have relief almost immediately, and they can do light movements, but it takes three weeks for the wound to be strong. Then they can return to their normal activities," hd said.

Although Bartlett does not recommend physical therapy to help the condition, some people turn to physical therapist to learn to adjust their work area, handle tools or perform tasks in a way that puts less stress on the body.

"They may teach employees a number of stretching and flexing exercises to do during work," according to the American Physical Therapy Association information. They suggest short rest breaks after two hours of using the hands.

CTS IS CLASSIFIED as one of the cumulative trauma disorders, which attack the body's musculoskeletal system. The musculoskeletal system is made up of muscles that pull on tendons and move the bones at joints. The joints are held together by ligaments. Carpal tunnel syndrome specifically affects the sensitive nerves and the blood supply that feeds the hands and wrists.

With the specialization of many jobs now, numerous workers are required to use only a small number of muscles repeatedly. With the growing number of people using computers, both at work and in the home, the problem is believed to be increasing. Studies have shown that while other workplace injuries have leveled off, CTS, like other cumulative trauma disorders, is on the rise.

Some of the symptoms of CTS include tingling or numbness in the fingers; aching in the thumb, perhaps moving up as far as the neck; burning pain from the wrist to the fingers; change in touch or temperature sensation; clumsiness in hands; weakness of grip, ability to pinch and other thumb actions; swelling of hand and forearm; change in sweat functions of hand, and symptoms worsening at night.

In addition to these physical symptoms, CTS exacts a psychological toll. Many people fear the disease will take their jobs from them. Others are harassed by their co-workers who accuse them of faking illness to get out of work, due to the lack of readily visible symptoms from CTS.

In the home, those with CTS suffer from daily pain and loss of freedom. Some cases become severe enough that the sufferer cannot drive a car or pick up groceries. Low self-esteem and depression can be secondary attributes of the syndrome.

The U.S. Department of Labor has cited CTS and other cumulative trauma disorders as the cause of 48 percent of all industrial workplace illnesses. It is believes to affect more than 5 million Americans.

"Most people who have had the surgery don't understand why they waited so long to do something about their pain," Bartlett said.

Rumbley entertains ladies association

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

Members of Ranchland Hills Country Club Ladies Association opened the fall season recently with a Mexican buffet luncheon and program by Dallasite Rose-Mary Rumbley.

McKnight-Harrison

Ms. Rumbley, who is well-known to Midland audiences for her book reviews and original programs, spoke on the topic, "The Kicks on Route 66."

Following a Route 66 Travel Guide, Ms. Rumbley spent two weeks traveling and researching the famous highway that began in Chicago and ended in Los Angeles, encompassing eight states and three time zones. It is now, for the most part, known as Interstate 40.

Her talk was filled with humorous tidbits about people and places along the way. "The Mother Road," as described by John Steinbeck in "The Grapes of Wrath," was completed 66 years ago come November, she said.

Baskets of fresh mixed flowers decorated the tables and were later awarded as prizes. A social hour preceding lunch featured margaritas.

Among those spotted in the crowd were Ardis (Mrs. Wendell) Smith, Sylvia (Mrs. John) Hampton, Barbara (Mrs. Charles) Wolle, Pat (Mrs. Leon) Jeffcoat and Marsha (Mrs. Jimmy) White.

THE SUMMER MUMMERS literally ended its 44th season on a high note Labor Day Weekend when the curtain opened during the sing-along portion of the olio, and there stood members of the Lee High Rebel Band playing "Dixie," which is a traditional part of each show. What a surprise to song leader Scooter Tilley, whose usual accompaniment was provided by the Mummers Band.

Former Midlander Bryan Patterson of Dallas was the winner of the all-expense paid trip to Ocho Rios, Jamaica, which was this year's grand prize.

A party at Diane and Sandy Faulkner's home after the Saturday night performance gave the cast and crew a chance to gather one last time. They enjoyed a hot dog supper with all the trimmings and a special awards presentation. Greg Dove, Gary G. Hall, Barbara Olson and Carolyn Sutton each received the designation of "Mummer of the Year" for their outstanding service to one of Midland's oldest "art forms."

Producers Melissa and Terry Martin reported that almost 12,000 persons saw the melodrama, "Machinations Over Midland," during the summer. They announced that the Mummers' annual meeting will be Sept. 20 at 5 p.m. at the Yucca Theatre, with a critique session before hand at 4 o'clock.

THE MIDLAND COUNTY Republican Women will hold their Pink Elephant Ball, traditionally with a part of each Presidential Election Year, on Sept. 26. The event will take place from 8 p.m. to midnight at Midland Country Club.

The evening will include dancing to the music of the Park Avenue Band and a breakfast buffet served at 10:30 p.m. Black tie is optional. Proceeds will benefit the Republican candidates.

LaVerne Foster is chairman of the ball.

TWENTY-NINE PERSONS recently enjoyed several days of fun, fellowship and great music on the fifth annual Opera Lovers Adventure Trip, sponsored by the Music Ministry of First United Methodist Church.

The group stayed in Santa Fe's historic St. Francis Hotel and enjoyed the culinary delights of such popular eateries as Julians, La Casa Sena and La Tertulia.

Before leaving for the famous outdoor opera house, the group assembled to hear a synopsis of that evening's fare by one of Midland's leading opera buffs, Jane Ward. They attended Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" and Mozart's "Don Giovanni."

In addition to taking advantage of the many shops in New Mexico's capital city, the group enjoyed other interesting activities, including an excursion led by Bob Ward to the cliff dwellings at Bandelier National Monument, a backstage tour of the opera house, an evening at Rancho de Chimayo, and a round of golf at Los Alamos' famous hilltop course. Some were privileged to hear Doug Montgomery, one of Santa Fe's most noted pianists, perform at Vanessi's.

The opera goers included Aida Dunlap, Margaret Cerf, Bettie Terry, Joyce Brickey, Mary White, Marge and Tom Savage, Lulene and Arthur Oldham, Ruth Roberts and her daughter, Lee Thompson, of Austin, Ruth and Joe Thompson, Dorothy and Bill McReynolds, Jane Schulte, Blanche Strauss, and Jane and Brad Kisner and son, Evan.

Joining Mr. and Mrs. Ward were their children, Carol Ward of Dallas and Teresa and David Compton of Longview. Also making the trip were Evan Kisner's grandparents, Sara and Gordon Collins of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Tess and Bob Gregory of Enid, Okla.

DEAR ABBY

'Please call police' banner helps drivers

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I want you to know how helpful your "Please Call Police" banner was for me. On the Sunday night before Labor Day, at 11 p.m., I was driving home alone after visiting my brother, who lives 12 miles away. One of my tires blew, so I pulled off the main highway, left my outside and inside lights on, and displayed my "Please Call Police" banner across the rear window.

Van Buren

I had already made up my mind that I wouldn't get out of the car, even if I had to stay until morning. I waited and waited as the traffic whizzed by. I said a prayer and was no more than finished when up pulled a lady highway patrol officer followed by two police cars from two different areas. Boy, did I get help! One man even changed my tire!

I am a firm believer in the power of prayer and know that mine was answered. A truck driver saw the banner. I am ordering two more for friends of mine. — ELLEN CAMPBELL, HAMILTON, OHIO

DEAR ELLEN: You are not the only person I heard from on the subject of the usefulness of the "Please Call Police" banners. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my car went dead on a busy highway. Thank the dear Lord I had a "Please Call Police" banner, which I was able to place on my windshield. Within minutes, two police cars came to my rescue. They not only started my car, but followed me home to make sure I arrived safely.

I have told this beautiful story to just about everyone I've met, and they all ask me where they can get one. Unfortunately, I misplaced the address, so would you please send me instructions again on how to order these banners? Needless to say, I think that this is absolutely one of the most important items a driver should have in his or her car. — JANE DE CELLES, SILVER SPRING, MD.

And, the ultimate compliment!

RE: PLEASE CALL POLICE BANNER: We would like to request two banners for our "Women Alone" program. The program is designed to assist women in prevention of sexual assault. Enclosed is a $10 contribution. Thank you for your assistance in this matter. — J.C. WOOLFORD, CONSTABLE, CENTRAL SAANICH POLICE DEPARTMENT, SAANICHTON, B.C.

DEAR ELLEN, JANE AND CONSTABLE WOOLFORD: Thank you for sharing your experiences so that I can remind others to order the "Please Call Police" banners, which can literally be lifesavers in a roadside emergency.

To order, write to WCIL Banners, P.O. Box 66955, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066. You will receive one "Please Call Police" banner as a premium for a $5 contribution to WCIL, and another banner with each additional $4 contribution. (Many people want two, one for the windshield and one for the rear window.)

Make your check or money order (U.S. funds only, please) payable to WCIL-Banners. Allow eight weeks for delivery. WCIL — the Westside Center for Independent Living — is a not-for-profit organization that helps disabled people live independently.

Surgery corrects rare condition

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Some politicians hire spin doctors to salvage careers. The doctor sometime candidate David Price needed was a real surgeon, who stopped his hands from sweating so much that puddles formed at his feet.

Price, a 42-year-old video producer and head of the Republican committee in Mount Oliver, perspired profusely from his palms until a four-hour operation this spring.

Excessive perspiration, or hyperhydrosity, complicated Price's 1988 run for the state House of Delegates. Forty to 50 times a night, he used the quick-draw routine: drying his hands on his trousers or a handkerchief before shaking hands while campaigning.

He lost the race in his heavily Democratic district of Mount Oliver, a district surrounded by Pittsburgh. But he didn't blame the perspiration. "It was more of an inconvenience than anything," Price said. "I've always had a pretty good gift of gab, so I was able to make up for it."

Now he uses moisturizers to prevent cracked skin where he once had embarrassing wetness. Dry hands are a side effect of a sympathectomy, the procedure that instantly corrected Price's problem, said his neurosurgeon, Dr. Jack Wilberger of Allegheny General Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Wilberger severed nerves in each of Price's shoulders, breaking the connection from his brain to his sweat glands. The rest of his body still perspires enough to regulate his body temperature.

AT WIT'S END

Parents' advice can be wrong

By Erma Bombeck

A young reader named Mike wrote recently to ask what is the worst advice I ever gave my children.

Bombeck

Actually, most of the time my kids lived by Stewart's Law: It is easier to get forgiveness than permission. But that never stopped me from dispensing advice hourly. It's my job. As a parent, I know the rules. Never ask a child if he wants your opinion. He will say no. No matter how it turns out, a slick parent can always find a way to be right.

OK, Mike, there were moments when even I had to admit I was wrong. At the risk of breaking the secrecy code of Parents United and possibly losing my lifetime membership, these are some of my less-than-finer moments:

■ "Get rid of those boxes of old baseball cards. Who wants to see Pete Rose with his hair down to his shoulders? They're just taking up space."

■ "What we're going to do is forget the 2,000-word paper on Frank Lloyd Wright. We're going to bed and get a good night's sleep and tomorrow we can dash it off when we're fresh."

■ "Even bullies want to be forgiven. Trust me. You march right up to this thug and say, 'I'm going to give you one last chance to apologize.' You'll be surprised."

■ "Of course rabbits can swim. Just put him in the water and watch him paddle to shore."

■ "I know. All the other girls will be in strapless dresses, but you'll be different because you're covered."

■ "Tell him you're eating dinner. He'll call back."

■ "Take all your math classes at summer school. You'll thank me next fall."

■ "You don't need a cracker to take castor oil. Just bolt it down."

■ "If you pierce your ears, you will bleed to death or destroy your brain."

■ "She has a nice personality. I'm not asking you to marry her ... only take her to a movie."

■ "I don't care if the car is a classic. You'll never get your money out of it."

■ "Look, it's only a puppy. Put it on the back porch even if it cries all night."

■ "Call collect."

This is only a partial list, you understand. Upon written request, my kids can send out reams of the bad advice I laid on them. But the system probably won't change. There's another law that says, "Being boss doesn't make you right; it only makes you boss."

SEEDS FOR THOUGHT

Blue-ribbon gardens grow in West Texas

By Deborah A. Benge

You may be the gardener with the winning fruit, vegetable, tree, shrub, vine or foliage plant entry. So if you've ever wondered what that blue ribbon plate of tomatoes had over all those other fine-looking tomatoes, we can teach you what to look for.

Benge

For selecting a winning entry of fruits or vegetables, your entry should be:

- True to type,
- Good quality,
- Correct stage of maturity,
- Free from pest or mechanical damage,
- Clean,
- Correct number of specimens for that entry, and
- No leaves attached.

Uniformity key to an excellent entry. A winning sample should be uniform in size, shape and color. For example, an entry of tomatoes consists of three fruits, all of which should be the same size, shape and color. The tomatoes should all have stems or no stems. Uniformity in addition to the points listed above is sure to send you home with the ribbon.

Cleanliness and preparation of an entry is also important. A sample clean, but different species require different cleaning methods. For example, root crops (carrots, radish, beets and potatoes) should never be scrubbed. Scrubbing leaves marks and causes the vegetable to break down quicker.

The cleaning practices on leafy crops should merely be a good rinsing. Cucumbers, melons, squash, tomatoes and peppers should be cleaned with a moist cloth.

Stems and roots should be trimmed at the same length. The papery covering on onions should be left in place. Specimens with long storage life should have stems about one inch long. All stems should be cut with a sharp knife — no tearing.

Fruit with a bloom, which is a white waxy covering that is commonly seen on grapes and plums, should not be rubbed off. These too merely need a good rinsing.

The best time of the day to gather your show-quality produce is early morning. Avoid gathering during the heat of the day or afternoon for your exhibits. Entries gathered in the heat will wilt and shrivel very quickly.

For horticulture entries like flowers, vines, trees and shrubs, use these guidelines:

- Cut specimens early morning.
- Sear hollow stem specimens with an open flame (example, dahlia).
- Cut stems with sharp shears, knife to avoid crushing tissue.
- Place cut stems immediately in warm water.
- To ensure the freshest of material, recut stems under water.
- Hold specimens in a cool, still location until entry.
- Woody stems may need several two- to three-inch vertical cuts up the stem to improve water uptake.
- Cut stems with plenty extra length, they can always be shortened once you get to the show.
- Tree, shrub and vine specimens should be between 20-30 inches, 20-30 inches and 12-24 inches, respectively.
- If at all possible, have the variety or cultivar name of your plant specimen with you for entry.

Be sure to bring your "green thumb" entries to the Horticulture, Floriculture and Flower Show 3-8 p.m. Tuesday to Building A, west of the Ector County Coliseum in Odessa. Any grower in the Permian Basin can enter this horticulture show.

If you have an artistic flair there is also a floral design category. There are some specific sizes and criteria for this category and you will need to get a copy of the flower show schedule so you can prepare your designs. For a copy of the flower show schedule, come by Building A of the fair grounds on Monday or Tuesday.

Be sure to attend the "Preparing Entries for Show" 10:30 a.m. Monday at the Ector County Fairgrounds in Building A. Local experts will show you how to select fruits and vegetables, groom plants for show and demonstrate floral design.

'Clacking' injuries on rise

By Jan Gehorsam
N.Y. News Service

NEW YORK — Sweeping her aching hands across the keyboard, free-lance writer Kathryn Davis Fishman types noiselessly, gracefully, without stretching her fingers, behaving utterly unlike the furious "clacker" she used to be.

"We've had people burst into tears when they first saw themselves on video. They had no concept that they looked so terrible," says her doctor, Emil Pascarelli, who directs the Miller Health Care Institute at St. Luke's/Roosevelt Hospital Center in New York.

After retraining nearly 800 injured musicians, Dr. Pascarelli and his colleagues are taking a similar approach with typists who suffer the same problem: repetitive stress injury (RSI).

Many, like Ms. Fishman, 55, have always been hardcore clackers, hitting the keys too hard and fast, without enough breaks, with their wrists arched and shoulders hunched. Her doctors believe those errors in technique, repeated thousands of times daily, left Ms. Fishman with tendinitis, throbbing thumbs and a weakened grip — symptoms typifying an overuse syndrome that afflicts at least 2.5 million "computer athletes."

UNLIKE ATHLETES, however, few of these keyboard users ever trained for their all-day workouts. And most have depended on equipment — monitors, keyboards, chairs, tables and phones — that were designed to fit a single body type, if any.

Now, after more than a decade of unprecedented computer use, it's widely believed that this labor-saving technology exacts a bodily toll. In 1990, RSI, also called cumulative trauma disorder, accounted for 56 percent of reported work-related illnesses. In 1982, that number was 21 percent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics says.

The majority of the 185,000 recent cases stem from cumulative damage to the hands, wrists, shoulders, neck and upper back. Pain comes from scarring, muscle shortening and spasms, swollen tendons and potentially crippling nerve damage. This problem, while not new, has never been so widespread, and researchers are scurrying to figure out how much of it stems from computer use and why similar equipment causes injuries in some people and not in others. They don't know how long recovery takes, whether workers will ever be as productive as they once were or if they will ever be pain-free, even without typing.

Doctors also disagree about how to treat the injuries. Some rely on occupational therapists, who can relieve symptoms, prescribe exercises and make ergonomic adjustments to fit equipment to the worker. Physicians also are increasingly resorting to surgery or advising patients to find jobs that do not rely on computers.

But after treatment, workers often are sent back to the same jobs to perform their tasks in exactly the same way, says Neal Taslitz, president of the BackCare Corp., a computer ergonomics resource center in Chicago. Without repositioning or retraining, the likelihood of reinjury is "extremely high," says Dan Ortiz, an ergonomics researcher at Georgia Tech.

LACKING FEDERAL ergonomic standards or coherent medical recommendations, most American corporations have yet to make physical improvements or adapt working conditions. If anything, companies that reduced their work forces during the recession have demanded more typing, not less. Mounting lawsuits against keyboard manufacturers, rising worker's compensation claims and enforcement of the new federal Americans with Disabilities Act may trigger an about-face. Experts in the field expect to see:

- A "kinder, gentler" corporate culture that encourages computer breaks and exercise at work.
- Keyboard modifications and other equipment adaptations.
- Radical changes in typing techniques.

An essential step, in Dr. Pascarelli's view, is to break bad typing habits. After 150 of his patients learned how to exercise and perform properly, most of them were able to type again with less pain, he says.

DR. PASCARELLI and several other experts make these recommendations:

- Don't bend your wrists, up or down, or angle them to the sides.
- Tilt the keyboard away from you, so the keys are level with your wrists. This recommendation is controversial, but several researchers support it. You can prop up the thin end of the keyboard with notebooks or blocks of wood, or buy an adjustable rack. Use a wrist rest, made from a soft block of foam no higher than the keyboard, to help position your hands. Type with hands a half-inch above the wrist rest.
- Don't stretch fingers to reach far-off keys. Pretend fingers are enclosed in a mitten; then move the entire hand to remote keys. Use index or middle fingers to strike those keys.
- Don't hold up thumbs, a habit typists develop to avoid hitting the space bar. That tightens the other fingers. Keep your pinkies down, too. Flex and stretch hands before you start typing, and build up speed slowly. "Think of these as warm-ups, as if you're a musician doing scales or a runner doing stretching," says Dr. John Kella, a typing coach trained in biomechanics, who works with Dr. Pascarelli.
- Hit the keys lightly and take frequent short breaks. Constant heavy keyboard use causes microscopic muscle damage that cannot heal before the next day's work. Over time, scar tissue replaces muscle tissue, causing weakness and pain, Dr. Pascarelli says.

Some face higher risk of RSI

N.Y. Times News Service

Is your computer putting you at risk of bodily injury? In 1990, repetitive stress injury (RSI), accounted for 56 percent of reported work-related illnesses. While researchers are at a loss to explain why similar equipment causes injuries in some people and not in others, they have pinpointed factors that make some more likely to develop RSI:

- Slender build.
- Being double-jointed.
- Being out of shape (weakened arm muscles).
- Prior injuries to hands or upper body.
- Underlying disease, such as hyperthyroidism, which impedes muscle movement.
- Fibromyalgia, characterized by muscle inflammation and nodules, or other chronic pain anywhere in the body.
- Incessant, fast typing, performed incorrectly.
- Stress.
- Long fingernails.
- Vision problems that make you strain to see the screen.

TAFFETAS

Photos by Joe D. Williams

Everyone remembers "The Taffetas." Four sisters from Muncie, Ind., who went to New York City and made it big as a singing group in the 1950s.

What? The name isn't familiar?

Sure it is. In the 1980s, this all-female singing group was invited to step back in time to reminisce about one of their more memorable moments in 1959 at the NBC studio.

The name still isn't familiar?

Come on. "The Taffetas." They sing and dance while they perform all the popular songs from the 1950s.

The name still doesn't ring a bell?

Well, maybe that's because "The Taffetas" is a creation of Rick Lewis, who originally presented his musical in 1988 at the Cherry Lane Theatre, New York City.

Please see TAFFETAS/2G

Bert Bostic is musical director for the show.

Cheryl (Pam Six) and Peggy (Patsy Allen) hawk "Galaxy" products during a commercial.

Prior to opening night, Pam Six, from left, Patty Loftis, Patsy Allen and Dana Ritter spent a good amount of time getting in sync for MCT's current production with the help of Jan Collerd, choreographer.

TEXAS the band

If Terry Fator, lead singer for "Texas the band," could best describe the music his group plays, he would say "fun." "We believe that the purpose for music is to help people forget about their everyday problems and to take them to another place, and that's what we do with our music. When people hear a 'Texas the band' song, we like for them to forget about their past due bills and act like it's New Year's Eve and just have a great time."

And that's the goal the band has in mind when they bring their show to the Permian Basin this week for performances at the Permian Basin Fair and Exposition at Ector County Coliseum. The band will perform Friday through Sunday.

Since forming "Texas the band" in May of 1988, the Corsicana-based group has released two singles off the album "Big D," which charted on the the country charts "Southern Girl" and "Forever Love."

The five members of "Texas the band" met while touring for a major production company based in Florida. During that time, they performed for more than one million people in more than 4,000 shows in 49 states and Canada.

Please see TEXAS/2G

TAFFETAS: Show includes music popular from the '50s

(From 1G)

Midland Community Theatre is presenting its production of "The Taffetas" to area audiences through Sept. 26.

The musical is set for the most part on a television stage with the local audience as the viewing audience. Although it seems simple to perform, it isn't. At least that's what Midland Community Theatre's cast members discovered after the auditions.

"There was a lot more choreography involved in doing this show than I expected," said Patty Loftis, last seen on MCT's stage in "Lend Me a Tenor."

"That aspect has been very, very challenging for myself as well as the other cast members. I feel like I will be more comfortable with movement in the future as a result of this experience, but I'll probably never be a real dancer."

Pam Six, last seen on MCT's stage in "Quilters," also underestimated the production. She auditioned for much the same reason as the other cast members did — she enjoys musicals.

"I had thought this is a musical comedy revue which means the major portion is music, which is kind of my forte, and only 17 minutes of dialogue in the whole show," Ms. Six said. "I thought this will be a snap because I can do the singing and there won't be a lot of dance because it's the 1950s."

She was wrong.

"As it's turned out, it's been quite a challenge," Ms. Six said. "Our musical director sort of summed it up best when he said the girls of the 50s are not the air heads that we thought they were because the harmony is much tighter than we gave that music credit for being."

Ms. Six said, working on "The Taffetas" has taught her "a greater appreciation for people who can sing and dance at the same time. Even small movements, because they have to be in sync with everyone else, are much more of a challenge than we think they are."

She isn't alone. Patsy Allen, last seen on MCT's stage in "Evita," saw a production of "The Taffetas" performed at the National Festival for Community Theatres last year. It won second place.

"It's a really fun show," said Ms. Allen, who was competing at nationals herself in the Permian Playhouse of Odessa's production of "Side by Side by Sondheim."

"It's gonna look like an easy piece to do, but it's not. It's got to look easy, but it's not because everything has to be in zync."

Dana Ritter, last seen on MCT's stage in "Steel Magnolias," was also in the "Side by Side by Sondheim" cast at Nationals and saw "The Taffetas" production.

"I loved the music, unfortunately I remember all of it because I was alive during the 50s," Ms. Ritter said. She laughed. "I think we're doing more with the show. They had three girls and we have four so we're having that extra harmony part which really gives it a good sound. We're doing a lot of dance routines with all the numbers — practically every number is choreographed, which is killing my feet. I'm not a good dancer."

The musical includes another cast member, G. Thomas Harlow as Rick Lang, the host of Spotlight on Music and the person who discovered "The Taffetas."

"I like to do broad comedy," said Harlow, when asked why he auditioned for this musical. "I feel very comfortable doing real broad caricatures that have a funny angle to them, and that's why I like this character."

Harlow, who said he's "having a blast," insisted that he's had the easy time in this production.

"I've had the easy part. The four ladies are the ones who had all the work to do. I sing and dance, but mine is solo. Theirs is all four-part harmony, and the harmonies they have had to learn are not standard four part-harmony."

Bert Bostic, musical director for this show as well as for MCT's productions of "A My Name is Alice" and "Pippin," said he finds "that the music of the '50s was in style and composition all so similar that it sometimes is hard for the singer to tell the small differences between the actual stage numbers.

"It's really pre-rock 'n' roll music and very simple in its structure, and the simplicity of it makes it very difficult. This bebop music is basically just three or four chords, they are interchanged so often between musical numbers it really makes it hard for the girls and the fact that they have so much dance to do.

"The movement on the stage is crucial to selling the show. They all have to do the same thing in the same time and the background ensemble music has to be just next to perfect."

Jan Collerd, choreographer for the production, agrees that it is difficult to sing and dance at the same time and make it look effortless and perfect.

"There's so many things that they have to remember," Ms. Collerd said. "And they are not synchronized as far as, 'You do this certain step on this word.' We try to do it as much as we can, but sometimes musically it doesn't work that way."

The show, co-produced by Shell Oil Company Foundation, features a wide variety of songs that were popular during the '50s. Ranging from Top 10 hits to movie and television theme songs, they include "Sh-Boom," "Mr. Sandman," "The Three Bells," "Tonight You Belong To Me," "Johnny Angel" and "Love Letters In The Sand."

Cost of staging the production locally will be "slightly under $10,000," said Don Bachmann, executive director of MCT and director for this the season's fifth membership production. The production crew also includes Eddie Taylor, light and sound designer; Mae Dawson, costumer; and Paul Fiorella, set designer.

'Actually 'The Taffetas' is what we call a memory piece, and the purpose of the play is to evoke memories for those people who were around in the '50s, and for those people who might have been too young, they can borrow the memories of those who were there.'

— Don Bachmann

"Actually 'The Taffetas' is what we call a memory piece, and the purpose of the play is to evoke memories for those people who were around in the '50s, and for those people who might have been too young, they can borrow the memories of those who were there," Bachmann said.

"It's an entertainment revue," he added. "There's no deep thoughts inside of the show; it's not that kind of a play. All the big numbers from the '50s are in it. Music has a way of evoking emotion, and we want people to walk out of the theater and feel good."

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A partnership proves particularly rewarding. A new love interest is likely in November if you are single. December brings travel and a desire to further your education. A reconciliation gets 1993 off to a wonderful start. Free-lance assignments will add to your income next spring. Business and pleasure will mix especially well in June. A climactic emotional scene late next summer could lead to a major change in lifestyle.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actresses Jacqueline Bisset and Claudette Colbert, singers Nell Carter and Mel Torme.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A little effort on your part can help someone over a rough patch. Tackle one project at a time to avoid leaving loose ends. Tonight, make a schedule for the busy week ahead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The emphasis today is on quiet contemplation, fresh inspiration and spiritual growth. Strive for calmness and serenity. Set a good example for your offspring.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An interesting experience gives you food for thought. Jot down your impressions for future discussion. To avoid interference with your plans, forgo publicizing your ideas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stimulating social contacts can be made today. Your partner and friends prove most cooperative. Someone may invite you to take a short trip. Follow your heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep a close eye on the family budget now. Impractical financial schemes will only put you further in the hole. Older people may need care only you can provide.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Guard against quarreling with your mate or a close business associate. Something you say in haste could come back to haunt you. Quiet meditation will do much to restore your poise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Not a good day for borrowing or lending money. Paddle your own canoe and encourage others to do the same. Staying on good terms with a difficult friend poses a challenge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Resist someone's pleas that you handle his finances. No matter what you do, this person may find cause for complaint. Suggest that a relative take a new approach to an old problem.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Contact relatives you have not seen for some time. Once you heal a rift, family ties become rewarding. A teen-ager wants to confide in you but does not know where to start.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Something that happened yesterday is still on your mind. Stop fretting over a situation that you cannot change. Your friends and family will applaud a decision you make regarding romance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A chance encounter could be quite dramatic. The financial picture changes for the better. You find yourself much closer to a goal than you expected.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A wonderful time for granting favors, paying compliments and gaining the upper hand. You are unafraid to speak up. The colors coral, pink and yellow will bring you luck.

For almost two decades now, Jeff Meckstroth and Eric Rodwell have been one of the most succesful pairs on the world bridge scene. This hand, played in the second round of the Spingold Teams at the recent Summer North American Championships in Toronto, bears testimony to their skill.

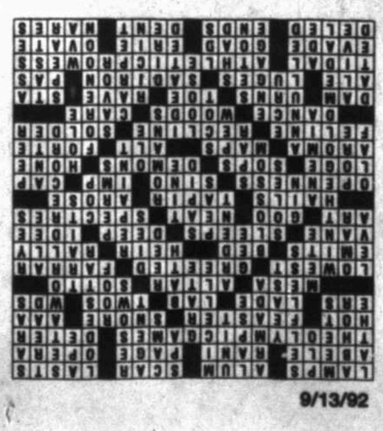

At both tables the final contract was four spades by South, after similar auctions. Note Meckstroth's decision with the North hand to bid three spades at his third turn rather than three no trump—his hand was well suited to a spade slam if that's what South was angling for, and confirming three-card support could be important.

The bad breaks in the major suits resulted in the opposing South going down a trick at four spades. Rodwell won the diamond opening in dummy with the king and immediately took the losing heart finesse. West continued with a diamond to the ace. The ace and king of clubs took care of the remaining diamond and a heart, and declarer led a heart to the jack and ace.

A heart was ruffed on the table with the nine, and East could not overruff. A club ruffed in hand was followed by another spade ruff with the seven, still too high for East to overruff. With eight tricks in the bank, declarer simply led a trump to the jack. West could win the queen, but no matter which trump the defender returned, declarer was guaranteed two more tricks and the game.

ODESSA — Western Corral, 4204 Andrews Highway, is planning "Super Saturday" this coming weekend.

Gospel featuring Charles Harrington, Becky Mingus and Jerilyn Patton begins at 7 p.m. Saturday followed by country at 8 p.m. featuring Bill Provance on lead guitar.

Tickets, which may be purchased in advance at T-H Western Wear, are $3 in advance and $4 at the door. The doors open at 6 p.m. the night of the show.

■ Group hosts sequel

FORT WORTH — Casa Manana has announced the return of quick-change artists Jatson Williams and Joe Sears in the sequel to "Greater Tuna."

"A Tuna Christmas" will be presented Tuesday through Oct. 10. This four-week run opens Casa Manana's winter season. Tickets range from $15 to $24 and are available through the Casa Manana box office, 1-817-332-CASA.

Unlike many sequels, there's no need to be familiar with "Greater Tuna" to enjoy "A Tuna Christmas."

Williams and Sears portray all 22 characters during the holiday season in Tuna, Texas, the fictional third smallest town in the Lone Star State.

■ Walker to perform

FARWELL — Jerry Jeff Walker performs here at the El Cid Horse Ranch, Farm to Market 2396, as part of the El Cid Futurity Sept. 20.

Walker's latest of 23 albums is "Hill Country rain." He will perform with his band, The Gonzo Compadres.

Showtime is 7:45 p.m. For ticket information call 1-505-769-2311.

■ Fall exhibit to open

The fall exhibit at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum & Library Hall of Fame will be "Fire and Smoke: The Kuwait Oil Well Fires."

The exhibit opens Saturday and closes Oct. 30.

A public lecture is planned Oct. 21 with Mike Shellman, exhibit sponsor, and David Thompson, firefighter with Boots and Coots, Inc.

■ Chamber hosts fair

RANKIN — Arts and crafts people from West Texas are invited to participate in the Rankin Chamber of Commerce's Arts and Crafts Fair Sept. 26.

The fair will be held at the Rankin Swimming Pool Park, south of the junction of highways 67 and 349.

Booth spaces are available for $10. Those participating are requested to be set up by 9 a.m. Registration must be in by Sept. 20. To receive a booth, send checks made payable to the Rankin Chamber of Commerce, attention Carolyn Shankle, Box 551, Rankin, Texas 79778.

■ Beckham to show art

'Light, Land and Sky," an exhibition of paintings and drawings by Midland artist Travis Beckham, begins the fall season at Gallery 1114, 1114 N. Big Spring St.

The art in this show, which remains through Oct. 22, deals with the West Texas landscape.

Beckham is a native to the area who has exhibited locally and regionally. He is a founding member of Gallery 1114 and has been president since 1989.

Gallery 1114 is a cooperative center for modern and contemporary art. New gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Thursday through Sunday.

■ Mandrell to perform

Barbara Mandrell and The Do-Rites will perform Oct. 21 at Chaparral Center, 3600 N. Garfield St.

Tickets, priced at $17.50, are on sale Monday at the center, 685-4584, or through Endless Horizons Records.

■ Kerrville festival set

KERRVILLE — The Texas Heritage Music Festival, featuring a tribute to Jimmie Rodgers, is set for Thursday through Sept. 20.

New events this year include a Texas Music Seminar Friday at Schreiner College with Buck Ramsey, Roxy Gordon, Glen Alyn and Schreiner students. The Texas Record Fair takes place Saturday and Sept. 20.

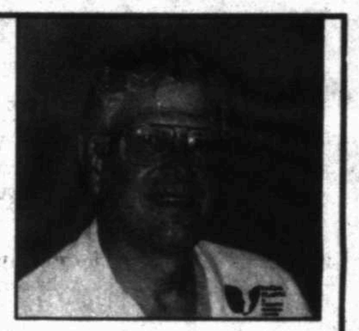

Tickets are $5 daily or $10 for a three-day pass. For more information call Kathleen Hudson at the Texas Heritage Music Foundation, Suite F at the Inn of the Hills, or 1-512-895-4442.

The festival kick off Thursday will be at La Zona Rosa, Austin, with cowboy poets Buck Ramsey, Andy Wilkinson and Don Hedgpeth. A tribute to the cowboy in song is planned at the cowboy Artists Museum, Kerrville, Friday.

The festival moves to Schreiner College Saturday and Sept. 20. The two full days of music will include performers such as Flaco Jimenez of the Texas Tornados, Townes Van Zandt, Tish Hinojosa, Van Williams, Tom Swatzell, Dusty Britches, Delta Blue, Fritz Morquecho, Roulette, Roland Davis, Glen Alyn and Jimmie Dale Court, Rodgers' grandson.

TEXAS: Band has group of hard core fans

(From 1G)

Other members of the group are Bill Golicki, bass guitar; Robb Beard, lead guitar; Jep Fator Jr., rhythm guitar; Gary Scow, drummer; and Walter, Terry Fator's dummy.

That's right. Fator's a ventriloquist. Walter entertains audiences by yodeling and singing country songs. Besides being a dummy, Walter is different from the other members in another way. None of the musicians in "Texas the band" drink, yet Walter has been known to pass out on stage.

Brothers Terry and Jep Fator were born and raised in Texas. The other three members of the band hail from other parts of the country. Scow is from Montana. Golicki is from New York, and Beard is from Colorado. All are in the music business for the same reason.

"All five of us guys have grown up with a passion for music," Fator said. "It's in our blood. Since we were little kids we've enjoyed playing and singing and performing in front of people. While there are a lot of other ways to make a living, this is the thing that we enjoy the most."

"Texas the band" has earned a reputation for enjoying what they do and has gained a hard core group of fans, ranging in age from early teens to senior citizens, some of whom drive for hours each weekend to follow the band.

For Fator, success means "being able to bring your music to as many people as possible. If I can make people forget about their problems and just feel good for a little while, that's success. And the ultimate goal is to bring that feeling to as many people as possible all over the world.

The sound is definitely country.

"Our music defines young country," Fator said. "When you hear our music, that's the first thing you think of — 1990s country. A lot of fun, but unmistakenly country. But we don't get into the crying in your beer kind of stuff. We feel like the best cure for a broken heart is to have a good time."

Permian Basin Fair & Exposition to open

Staff report

ODESSA — The Permian Basin Fair & Exposition is set for Wednesday through Sept. 20 at Ector County Coliseum.

YOUR CHILD DESERVES A COLLEGE EDUCATION.
WE WANT TO HELP MAKE IT HAPPEN.

Write Your Way to COLLEGE
ESSAY CONTEST

A college education for their children is every parent's dream. It offers a chance for children to grow, learn and become anything they want. Now, your friends at Gandy's Dairy Products and this newspaper want to give you a chance to make that dream come true with the Write Your Way To College Essay Contest.

It begins when your child writes an essay telling us why a college education is important. Simply mail the essay, a completed entry form and six proofs of purchase from select Gandy's Quality Chekd products*, and cash register receipts by October 15, 1992. Two $5,000 scholarships will be awarded: one to a student 12 years old and under, and one to a student 13 to 18 years old.

So have your child write and tell us why a college education is important. He or she just might write his way to a $5,000 scholarship.

* Only proofs of purchase from the following Gandy's Dairy Quality Chekd products will be accepted for entry in the "Write Your Way to College Essay Contest." One-gallon or half-gallons of Homogenized, Super Proteen 2%, Low Fat 1-1/2%, Slim-n-Trim, Buttermilk, half-gallons of Ice Cream, Slim-n-Trim Ice Milk and Lite Time Yogurt. Entry blank must be signed by parent or legal guardian for essay to be eligible for judging.

Write Your Way to College Essay Contest

To enter, mail your official entry blank, essay telling why you want to attend college, proofs of purchase and receipts to: Write Your Way to College Essay Contest, Dept. No. 921723, Lubbock, TX 79491-1723. Entries become property of sponsor and will not be returned.
You may obtain entry forms from advertisements in the Abilene Reporter News/Midland Reporter Telegram/Odessa American/San Angelo Standard Times or from Write Your Way to College Essay Contest point of purchase displays in participating stores carrying Gandy's Dairy products.
Enter by handwriting your essay of 1,000 words or less and attaching it to an official completed entry blank with the required (printed or typed) information. Mechanically reproduced entry blanks and photocopies are not permitted. Mechanically reproduced and typed or computer written essays must be accompanied by a hand written copy. You must also include six (6) proofs of purchase (UPC codes) from the following Gandy's Quality Chekd products per essay entry: one-gallon or half-gallons of Homogenized, Super Proteen 2%, Low-fat 1 1/2%, Slim-n-Trim, Buttermilk, half-gallons of Ice Cream, Slim-n-Trim Ice Milk and LiteTime Yogurt. You must also include the original cash register receipt (s) for these purchases with the Gandy's items circled. You may enter as often as you want, but each entry must be sent separately via First Class mail and be received no later than midnight October 15, 1992. Not responsible for lost, late, misdirected, incomplete, illegible, or postage due mail/entries. Essays will be judged equally on originality and subject matter. Winners will be selected by a panel of qualified judges with judges' decision being final. Winners will be notified by mail.
Two Grand Prizes:
One $5,000 college scholarship in the age division of 13 to 18.
Total prize value is $10,000. One prize per household or family. By accepting prize, winner consents to the use of his/her name and/or likeness for advertising and promotional purposes without additional compensation. Scholarship money will be awarded to winner's choice of school upon presentation of a letter of acceptance to an accredited college or university as specified by Gandy's Dairy and said newspaper sponsors. The cash scholarships will be awarded on a per semester basis and will be monitored by a financial institution or college bursar prior to and during college attendance. If winner does not comply with regulations set forth by appointed scholarship administrator, remaining winnings will be forfeited. An alternate will not be chosen if the winnings are forfeited. Prizes are non-transferable. No substitutions will be made. Void where prohibited. Taxes on prizes are the responsibility of the winner. Prizes won by minors will be awarded in name of parent or legal guardian.
Contest is open to residents of Texas who are 18 and under at time of entry. Employees of Gandy's Dairy, HM&C, United Marketing Services, the Abilene Reporter News/Midland Reporter Telegram/Odessa American/San Angelo Standard Times and their respective distributors, retailers, sales reps, advertising and promotional agencies and the immediate families of each are not eligible. Winners will be required to sign and return an affidavit of eligibility and a liability release within 21 days of notification. Non-compliance with this condition will result in selection of an alternate winner. In the event of a tie, an additional 50 word essay will be required on the same basis as the qualifying essay event.
To obtain an official winners' list, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope postmarked by December 31, 1992 to Winners List, Dept. No. 921724, Lubbock, TX 79971-1724.
Entries must be submitted in entrant's own name. Essays must not have been published and/or cannot have won prizes or awards in other contests, and must not be restricted in any way. Submission of essay gives Gandy's Dairy and said newspaper sponsors the right to modify, edit, publish, and/or use essay in any way without, consideration or payment to entrant.
