Tunnel Under English Channel Discussed As Project

Commons Poll Is In Favor Of Giant Engineering Task

Twenty-One Mile Passage Between France and England Is Proposed by Two Nations; May Be Built

Costs $150,000,000

Commercial Companies Of Countries Plan Vast Feat; Parliament Vote To Be Asked Next Week

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 19—A poll of the house of commons by Sir William Bull was said today to show an overwhelming majority favors the much sugggested English channel tunnel.

When parliament reassembled Tuesday, Ernest Thurtle, laborite, will ask Premier Baldwin when the question can be formally discussed in parliament.

Another project is a 21-mile channel bridge.

Military Opposes Move

British military strategists, arguing for national security, violently have opposed the bridge project as well as the tunnel through all the decades of discussion.

The question to be decided is whether the world war altered England's isolation as a tight little island. Those who favor the tunnel say this country is open to attack from the air, to seige by submarine If they can convince military strategists of this, the tunnel project at last will enter practical politics.

Commercial companies exist both in England and in France to carry out the tunnel scheme, which would cost about $150,000,000

Lubbock Building Continues Active

Past Week Finds $65,050 In Permits Issued; City Is Still Near Top In Permits Over Texas

Lubbock is more than likely still sticking to the sixth place among Texas cities, in record of building permits for the past week, the place held by this city for the first two weeks of this year, although it is possible that it has climbed up the list toward the top.

The past week's record of building shows a total of $65,050, bringing the month's, and therefore this year's record to $175,250, for 43 permits issued. Saturday's record was $13,500 for three permits, issued to the following:

Permits Saturday

J. P. Middleton, 2104 Sixteenth street, six-room brick veneer residence, $3,500, W. S. Moss, contractor.

John Palmer, 2902 Twentieth St., seven-room brick veneer residence, $10,000, C. M. Mitchell, contractor.

E. M. Thorp, 1716 Fifteenth street, two-room addition and repairs to residence, $1,000, W. A. Sthol, contractor.

With 10 more working days to go, this January has only $59,705 in permits to achieve, in order to reach the record set for the same month last year, when a total of $234,955 was recorded.

City Slicker's Work Good Here

No telling how many victims, —but it is known that at least five, and they prominent men about town and for a genuine city slicker game. These five are minus $10 each, plus a wee bit of worldly wisdom. Here's how:

A man arrived in town about the middle of the week. He inquired around certain sources for the names of bootleggers' customers. Said he had a load of "good bottled in bond whiskey" to unload.

To these "customers" he would say:

"Ive got an automobile full of good whiskey, just east of town. Had hard luck. Car was run into. Had to walk to town. Am a stranger here. Got just a dollar. Need money to haul car in. Loan me $10. It's a gambler's chance, I know, but when I deliver my car full of whiskey, I'll you you the ten, and bring a nice package to you in appreciation."

They did.

He hasn't been seen since.

Dallas Jailbird HasNew'Racket'

DALLAS, Jan. 19. (AP)—A Dallas jailbird had a new "racket."

He was in the same jail with Bennie Aldridge, sentenced to electrocution for an attack on a 17-year-old girl. Crowds had thronged the jail. looking at Aldridge, until he refused to step forward when one of the visitors would ask: "Which is Aldridge?"

Aldridge's cellmate decided he would capitalize on the doomed man's bashfulness, when the next group of sightseers entered, he stepped forward with this chatter: "Step right up this way, folks, and see the man facing the electric chair. If you want to see how a man facing death acts I will point him out to you for only a dime, 10 cents."

He got 80 cents before jailer Gorman interrupted.

Hardy's Campaign On Pro Violators Gets Good Results

Three More Alleged Liquor Peddlers Added to List Of Arrests Last Night; Hi-Jacking Attempted

The arrests of three white men, on charges of violating prohibition laws, and the attempted hijacking of a Lubbock citizen by two armed men, were reported late Saturday night from the sheriff's department.

One of the alleged pro law violators arrested was S. F. Gentry, who was released from the county jail last week under $1,500 bonds on charges of the sale and possession of liquor, He was arrested by city and county officers at his home on north Avenue H. and will face further charges of sale and possession of intoxicating liquor. officers said.

Sheriff Wade Hardy stated that a large quantity of liquor was found at the place where Gentry was arrested, the officers' searching the premises uncovering the contraband hid under door steps in piles of ashes and other unusual locations.

The two other arrests were made at a house near that of Gentry's and, although the men arrested succeeded in destroying a considerable quantity, officers stated, they were successful in confiscating enough for evidence. The men arrested were, H. B. Wynn and J. D. Wynn, father and son, They will face charges of sale and possession of liquor.

Reconsideration Of Mellon's Stand On Fund Is Asked

Three Prominent Dry Leaders of Nation Telegram Secretary to Change His Opposition On Funds

Read To Senate

Message Declares Unless Stand Is Taken For Enforcement, Question Of Sincerity Will Arise

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Three prominent dry leaders in a telegram to Secretary Mellon today requested "a prompt reconsideration" by the treasury head of his opposition to a proposed additional appropriation of $25,000,000 for prohibition enforcement.

The dry leaders declared in their communication, read in the senate by Sheppard, democrat, Texas, author of the 18th amendment, that unless Mellon rescinds his disapproval of the increase, questions inevitably will arise whether the treasury department "sincerely desires efficient enforcement" and whether it is able to develop an adequate program.

Churchmen Sign Wire

The telegram was signed by Bishop James Cannon, chairman, and Eugene L. Crawford, secretary of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the Anti-Saloon League.

"It will be difficult for the average citizen to believe," said the communication, "that there is much zeal or eagerness on the part of the Secretary of the Treasury to secure adequate enforcement if he refuses this opportunity to develop and carry out an adequate program."

The "opportunity" referred to is an amendment to the deficiency supply bill by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, to provide an additional $25,000,000 for prohibition enforcement. Secretary Mellon, writing to the senate after the Harris proposal was approved by the senate

A typical cowboy, the legislator did not discard his broad-brimmed hat when he went to Austin. Neither did he change his dress of the range.

Annual Convocation Of Episcopalians Of Northwest Texas Opens Here Today

Presides Over Annual Convention Of Episcopalians Of North Texas

THE RT. REV. E. CECIL SEAMAN

More Than Hundred Delegates To Be In Sessions

With a large number of delegates already in the city and with others expected this morning, the St. Paul's-on-the-Plains Episcopal church of Lubbock will swing open its doors at 10:30 o'clock this morning to the nineteenth annual convocation of the Protestant Episcopal church in the missionary district of Northwest Texas.

More than 100 delegates representing all sections of this 70,000 square mile district have been predicted for the three-day session here.

In connection with this convocation will be held the annual meeting of the district branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Council, with Mrs. Henry Gooch, of Amarillo, president of the organization, presiding.

Seaman to Preside.

The Rt. Rev. E. Cecil Seaman, D. D. of Amarillo, bishop of this district, will preside at all sessions of the convocation. He arrived in the city on the noon train yesterday and while here will be a guest in the home of Dean Mary Doak of the Tech college.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, of New York, field secretary of Episcopal college work throughout the nation, has been added to the already elaborate program, and will address the conference Monday afternoon and night it was announced yesterday by the Rev. L. C. H. Williams, minister of the local church. It is probable that the Rev. Glenn will speak before a convocation of Tech college students at the college gymnasium Monday morning, Rev. Williams said.

Confirmation Class Slated.

A confirmation class will be held by Bishop Seaman this morning in connection with the initial number of the program. The opening ser-

Lawmakers Face Education Bills During Next Week

House and Senate To Act On Questions of Importance to Texas Education; Age Limit Is Debated

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 19.—Both branches of the legislature will devote attention next week to education bills, a number of which, in all stages of development, are scheduled to come up for discussion.

The house will have before it a proposal from the senate to make the scholastic age six to 18 years instead of 7 to 18 years, as it now is. The senate has passed the measure and a house committee has approved it. It is estimated that the total population of school age would be increased 100,000 by the measure.

Another bill, introduced in each house, would bridge the gap between the compulsory attendance law and the child labor law. As the law now stands a child must attend until fourteen years old. The labor law prohibits the child from working until it is 15 years old. It is proposed to make the maximum attendance age 15 years.

State Superintendent of Schools S. M. N. Marrs estimated today that school revenues for the present year will be sufficient to guarantee a $16 per capita. The present allotment is $15 per capita.

CAMERON, Jan. 19. (AP)—W. H. (Uncle Bill) Dukes, 79, Milan county pioneer, died here today of heart disease.

"Rip," World Famed Eastland Horned Frog, Who Lived In Corner Stone For 31 Years; Is Dead

(By Associated Press)

EASTLAND, Jan. 19.—"Rip" is dead.

The old boy, world famed horned frog taken from the Eastland county courthouse cornerstone months ago amid allegations that he had lived therein for 31 years without food or water and mayhap without air, left the cynosure gracefully and with dignified unostentation.

The body was found late today. Rip's head was protruding above the leaves and sand in which he had been hibernating since his asserted emergence from the stone, witnessed by pastors and other leading citizens, some of whom signed affidavits to the genuineness of the veteran's removal.

No Inquest Is Held

While there was no inquest, the popular verdict was that Rip, lured out by the sunshine, was chilled fatally.

Details concerning the disposition of the body have not been announced.

The story told when Rip was brought into the public view was that he was put into the cornerstone more than 31 years ago when the old county building was erected. The occasion for taking him out, during ceremonies in connection with a new courthouse, was based on the tradition that a West Texas horned "toad" can live without food and water indefinitely.

In this case, the citizenry claimed Rip actually had done so and scientists over the country argued pro and con for weeks only to dismiss Rip when other news made him like yesterday's paper,

Johnston Facing Five Impeachment Charges, Works On Charges Expected to Be Presented to Senate Monday; Oklahoma Executive Keeps Up With Duties

(By Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 19.— Under five charges of impeachment adopted by the Oklahoma House of representatives, Governor Henry S. Johnston continued today to administer the state's executive affairs.

Suspension from office, asked by the House investigating committee which returned ten impeachment articles against the governor yesterday awaited action of the senate, constituted court of impeachment. It was expected impeachment charges would be submitted to the senate soon after it convenes Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock as a committee for that purpose was appointed in the house after the first article was adopted yesterday. Four more charges were adopted later. Adjournment of the senate over the week-end prevented the transmittal of the charges.

Authorities Are Divided.

Legal authorities in the senate were divided as to whether acceptance of the charges automatically would suspend the governor, elevating the Lieutenant Governor, W. J. Holloway, to his office pending trial. A supreme court decision, handed down during the impeachment proceedings against J. C. Walton, ousted governor in 1923, holds that suspension is automatic.

Gov. Johnston today signed a bill appropriating $100,000 for the salaries and expenses of members of the legislature. His only recognition of the impeachment charges was a

Turns Of A Bookworm

Due perhaps to his death in the latter part of the fall, one of the books which has proven most popular with early winter buyers has proven most popular with early winter buyers has been "The Mad Professor" by the German, Herman Suderman. "The Mad Professor" is in one sense autobiographical, by admission of the author it describes his student days. It was published in early December by Liveright.

Now and then, apparently from nowhere, a heretofore unknown author will meteriorically blaze a trail to literary fame and monetary fortune. Such is apparently true in the case for Louis Krenenberger, for several years reader for a large publishing house in New York. Although only 23 years of age, a manuscript from Kronenberger, entitled "The Grand Mannor" so impressed the editor at Liverights that it was accepted for spring publication. The book is autobiographical fiction, the writer says.

It may be especially interesting for book lovers of this section to know that out at picturesque Three Rivers, New Mexico, Eugene Manlove Rhodes is busy preparing a volume of reminiscences, the work having been ordered by Governor R. C. Dillon of that state. When finished the volume will be published by Houghton-Mifflin Company.

Percy Marks, who credited the "Plastic Age," and therefore might by one twist of philosophy be credited, or blamed, for the wave of popularity which has so engulfed Miss Clara Bow, a screen actress, has written another book, and it has just been published by the Century Company. It is ittled, "A Dead Man Dies." It is Mr. Marks' most mature and most dignified book and shows us some of the most charming aspects of the younger set.

One prominent New York critic has designated "Mexico and Its Heritage," by Ernest Gruening, as the book of the season. The critic predicates his assertion upon the timeliness of the literary work. He points out that affairs between this country and Mexico are now at the point where a mutual understanding between the two nations might have far reaching results. Century is the publisher.

Robert Frost, one of the outstanding modern poets, has just come out with an entirely new volume of verse, "West-Running Brook."

We are unaware of its age, but we do know that for love poems, burning, passionate, expressive love poems, "India's Love Lyrics" as compiled by Lawrence Hope, is as good as anything in the sentimental category. These poems are generally pervaded by oriental philosophy but some of them are beautiful, rythmical, and—yes we'll use the word—bewitching.

"The Tragedy of the Italia" is the way an Appleton book published this month is advertised. The book tells the story of the Italian dirigible's flight, of the attempts made to succor the ill-fated crow and of the death of the brave men who gave their lives both in the original exploration and in the rescue efforts. The work is uncensored and is said to be a true, narrative account. It is by the lone newspaper correspondent of the expedition, David Guld-

Cupid Given Rush Here Saturday; 13 PurchaseLicenses

Saturday was rush day for Dan Cupid.

Just about every official, who has the authority to officiate at the performance of wedding ceremonies, was called into service at the Lubbock county courthouse :

Even the county judge officiated. It was the first wedding ceremony that Judge Robert H. Bean ever performed, the couple being Lloyd Findley and Miss Louise Findley.

Both justices of the peace officiated at similar ceremonies, "Uncle Billy" Clark marrying his 236th couple, Eddie Gard and Miss Cora Donovan, while Judge G. R. Scott presided at the ceremonies of James Gordon and Miss Lenora Freeman, and E. H. Hightower and Miss Minnie Flippens.

And that is not the end of the tale. The day resulted in the issuance of 13 marriage licenses by the county clerk to the following:

Johnnie Turpen and Miss Bess Douglas; C. R. Seagler and Miss Essie Smith; Leonard Shell and Miss Esther Jay; John Abbe and Miss Grace Smith; James Gordon and Miss Lenora Freeman; H. T. Jennings and Miss Hattie Mae Ellison; E. H. Hightower and Miss Minnie Flippens; Eddie Gard and Miss Cora Donovan; Lloyd Findley and Miss Louise Findley; Ray Horton and Miss Georgia Carver; Norman Lusby and Miss Pearl Meador; Ambus Burger and Miss Thelma Strickland; Dan Kilpatrick and Miss Gertrude Willbon.

With the 13 marriage licenses issued Saturday, the record for last week was 23, while that for the year is 45.

How Your Furniture is Designed

DO YOU ever wonder why authentic reproductions of such masters of furniture design as Hepplewhite, Adams, Chippendale are available at such small cost?

MODERN furniture manufacturing makes this possible through mass production methods. From one genuinepiece of furniture a skilled and highly paid designer makes a model. This huge initial expense is pro-rated among the hundreds of machine-made reproductions, so that by the time it reaches you it has reached the point where Rix's offer the best in design, construction and finish at a truly moderate price.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSN.

Tuesday evening the P.-T. A. met as announced, at 7:15 o'clock, at the Grade auditorium. A very brief but appreciated program was given. Mrs. W. A. Bell presided in the absence of the President, Mrs. L. J. Dunn, who is ill. The minutes of two previous meetings were read, followed by two musical numbers on violin, played by Miss Bess Baldwin. Her numbers were "The Old Refrain," by Kreisler, and the "Dawn of Love," by Bendix. Mr. W. P. Toone, superintendent of city schools, gave a very interesting talk which every listener enjoyed. The ladies quartet, composed of Mrs. J. J. McGowan, Mrs. E. V. May, Mrs. J. L. Cruce and Mrs. H. R. Winston sang "I'm Drifting Back to You," and "Honolulu Moon."

MAIDS AND MATRONS CLUB

The members of the "Maids and Matrons" club met in call meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. R. L. Bowers, on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, for transaction of business, after which Mrs. Bowers served tea, fruit and cake to the ladies present. Officers for the two ensuing years elected at this meeting were, Mrs. Leo Holmes, vice-president; Mrs. W. H. Dallas, president; Mrs. B. D. DuBois, secretary; Miss Elizabeth Dumas, corresponding secretary and treasurer; Mrs. E. V. May, critic; Mrs. R. L. Bowers, parliamentarian. Reports of the committees for the year were heard. Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. W. A. Bell and Mrs. Dallas will entertain the club Tuesday afternoon January 22, in the home of Mrs. Holmes, at which time Prof. Murphy will address the club on "The Way of All Flesh," an English novel by Samuel Butler.

SEVENTH GRADERS ENTERTAIN

The low-seventh grade students were host and hostess, in honor of the high seventh class, who are entering high school this term, at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McSpadden on the night of January 12. This was a pretty and merry affair when bunco and "42" were played, while other amusements afforded pleasure to those preferring a different form of entertainment. Delicious hot chocolate and cake was served by those in charge. Students attending were Misses Martha McClish, Bernice Carpenter, Johnny Carning, Lataine Eiche, Mary Handley Endersen, Ruth Adams, Stella Mae Parks, Marion Hill, Marjorit Moore, Eva Mae Wooldridge, Anna Letha Hamilton and Messrs. Dempsey To Be Offered Place Vacated By Rickard If Miami Bout Succeeds

Financial Outcome Of Fight To Test Promoter Dempsey

Manassa Mauler Will Be Given Empty Chair That Stands Before Rickard's Desk If Bout Goes Over

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—They're putting the acid test on the vaunted drawing power of William Harrison Dempsey down under the waving palms of Florida's playgrounds.

Not a fighter who pulled close to $10,000,000 through the turnstiles as the greatest ring attraction of all times, but as a promoter, is the big test of the old Mauler being made. The makers are directors of Madison Square Garden and the reward of success is the empty chair that stands before Tex Rickard's bronze desk in the Garden.

That chair will be offered Dempsey if the clash of Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach, February 27 turns out a financial success. Otherwise Dempsey must return to fisticuffing to rekindle the interest of the Garden directorate. The quest of a successor to the late promoter will follow other channels.

This analysis of the troublesome situation in boxing left by Rickard's death is made by one of the Garden's most powerful directors. He won't sign the confession, but he swears it's the truth and is willing to elaboate.

Dempsey, it seems, has agreed to serve his apprenticeship, to stand or fall as a promoter and the successor of Rickard, on the outcome of the battle.

Grimm And Lands Win Bickcle Race

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—Willie Grimm and Dave Lands won the 46th international six-day bicycle race which ended tonight in the Kingsbridge Armory.

During the racing of the 18th sprint at 11:14 p. m. Cesar Debaets went down with a crash on a high bank in the wooden saucer and suffered a broken collar bone. The team of Benezzato and Debaets were declared out of the race. Benezzato continued however, insisting on going on himself as only a few minutes more would see the finish of the race.

DANN WINS GOLF TITLE

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP)—Carl Dann, Jr., of Orlando, Fla. conquered the veteran Harold Webber, of Toledo, Ohio, 3 to 1 today to win the national tournament of Golf club champions.

Dann set a terrific pace that Webber was able to even only once in the 36 holes of play.

McMillan Retains Kansas Position

"Bo" Will Not Consider T. C. U. Post Further, He Phones from Manhattan; Decision Regretted

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Jan. 19.—Bo McMillin will not be the next T. C. U. coach.

That fact became established today when McMillin announced he had decided to retain his position as head football coach at Kansas Agricultural College.

In a long distance telephone conversation with the Star-Telegram he said:

"Since returning here and thinking the problem over from all angles, I have decided not to further consider the change."

McMillin spent Wednesday and Thursday in Fort Worth conferring with a committee in charge of selecting a successor for Madison Bell who will go to Texas A. and M. in September. He returned to Manhattan, Kansas, Friday.

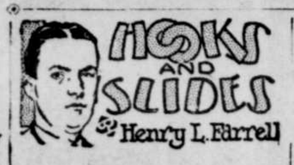

"We are sorry McMillin has withdrawn his name," said Dan D. Rogers, chairman of the committee charged with the duty of recommending a coach, "that is about all that can be said."

Other prospects will be interviewed within a few days and a selection may be announced during the week. Names of applicants are being kept a secret, but two or three are said to be nearly as well known as McMillin.

Lubbock To Have Municipal Course

Lubbock is to have a new, 18-hole, municipal golf course, as soon as the 115 acres secured for it can be placed in readiness for patronage by the general public. The course will be located about 1 1-2 miles northeast of town, in the bend where the Idalou highway connects with the Plainview road.

The course will be open to the public at all times, and work on construction of the dam for a small lake, that is being built in it, will start Tuesday. G. H. Higginbotham and W. G. McMillan, local building contractor, are installing the course and will operate it when completed.

THEY DON'T KNOW

The statement of the directors of Madison Square Garden that "we don't know what we'll do about the Sharkey-Stribling fight" shows just what a job they are going to have to fill the place of Tex Rickard. The man who is gone never hesitated. He did his thinking before he stepped out, and when the step was made every one that followed was forward.

It is understood that Rickard had obligated himself to the extent of about $150,000 for the Sharkey-Stribling fight. Sharkey was said to have been guaranteed $100,000 and $25,000 and a cut of the gate had been promised to Stribling.

Rickard had a characteristic way of reaching a verbal agreement with his men and having the contracts signed at some time that was handy and convenient for the parties concerned.

The dead promoter wasn't in his grave when the under officers at the Garden became curious to know if any real contracts had been signed. It would be a good out if there was nothing in black and white, and the under officers made their opinion plain that $100,000 was much too much for Mr. Sharkey.

SHARKEY GETS MAD

Sharkey came to New York from Boston to pay his respects to the dead, and when he was leaving the building he was called into the executive offices and asked about his contract. He said he didn't know. His manager handled all that kind of business for him.

When he left the conference he was in a heat and said that they had tried to put the chisel on him. They gave him to understand, he said, that verbal agreements may have worked around there once, but that they didn't go any more and that they were retroactive.

Stribling was placed in another position. He has signed a contract to appear in three contests against any opponents, Rickard might select, and all Rickard had to do to get him into the ring in Miami was to tell him the man and the date. But his position is none the more secure because he can't fight unless the new manager of the Garden gets a man in there, and they'll have a tough time getting men.

DEMPSEY NOT FOND OF 'EM

It is understood that Jack Dempsey is not at all disposed to work for the Garden directors. He heard that they raised a holy row about the price Rickard paid him for his two fights against Tunney. He also heard that the directors were after his pal on several occasions, and that didn't increase his personal regard for them.

There is no doubt that Dempsey intended to fight once more for Rickard and for the general business of prize fighting. It was pointed out to him that he owed a debt to the dead promoter to go through with one more fight as his memorial, but the former champion is said to believe that he owes nothing to the Garden directors and that the estate of his deceased pal would profit very little by the fight and that if it went over big (which it would) some glory would be taken away from Rickard.

The Garden directors could then say there was no genius in putting over a battle of the century. That it was just a matter of business and that as buisness men they had no superior.

Abilene Poloists Beat Austin Team

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Mounted on polo ponies shod with Lucky Horse shoes, the riders from Abilene had a big day here today when they defeated the Austin Wonders 21 to 7 for their third consecutive victory in the low-goal events of the sixth annual southwestern mid-winter tournament.

The Eagles set an unique record of scoring four times on Austin in a single frame.

The unhobbled invaders were donated six goals as a starter, but Abilene didn't need any help.

Longhorn Quintet Bombards Ponies To Win 29 to 19

Brilliant Texas Five Out-Play and Outfight Mustangs to Score Victory; Brock Leads Scoring

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—A brilliant and aggressive Texas Longhorn basketball quintet bombarded S. M. U. tonight, and won, 29 to 19.

The steers outplayed and outfought their foes from the start.

Holly Brock, Longhorn captain, was high point man with nine poits; Wray and Rees, Texas guards displayed a brilliant defense. For the Mustangs, captain Albo Brown was the outstanding star. He led a rally by the Ponies in the last half that for a time appeared destined to draw up alongside the Steers.

Tech Basketeers Leave for Series Of Abilene Games

Matador Cagers Will Meet A. C. C., Simmons and McMurry During Week; Play Christians First

Coach Victor Payne and his squad of Matador cagers will leave here this morning for Abilene where beginning Monday night the Tech team will take on the three Abilene institutions for a series of five basketball games lasting through Friday night.

The Tech outfit will hook up with Coach Dalton Hill's A. C. C. Wildcats tomorrow night and the following: Simmons Cowboys will enteraain the locals in a single game on Wednesday night in the Cowboy Corral and the McMurry Indians will furnish the opposition on Friday and Saturday nights.

From all indications the crimson basketeers will have their hands full when they encounter the awo association teams and the one Texas conference aggregation. The Christians have demonstrated their strength on the local court in dividing a two-game series with the Matadors. Unless scholastic difficulties prevent several veterans of the Tech squad from making the trip, the Matadors should be able to gain at least an even break with the Felines in the four game argument.

Coach Frank Bridge's Simmons basketeers have started off the cage season with a bang and are being boomed as certain contenders for the Texas conference championship. Tech sharpshooters will have to be right Wednesday night if the Baptists are defeated.

Although McMurry has more veterans on this year's team that the other Abilene institutions, Coach Medley's basket loopers have yet to prove their mettle. The St. Edward's Saints were hard put to nose out a one point margin over the fighting Redskins last week.

Fresh air, a comfortable bed with a soft, low pillow and warm feet are good safeguards against sleeplessness.

High Jumpers To Compete Feb. 9

Brilliant Athens High School Five Passes Way to 29 to 20 Victory Over Ralls Jackrabbits In Fast Contest

East Texas Cagers Display Excellent Team-Work To Down Ralls Quintet In Hard Fought Game

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

RALLS, Jan. 19.—The famed Athens Hornets passed their way to a hard-fought victory over the Ralls Jackrabbits here tonight by the score of 29 to 20. A crowd estimated at more than 1,200 saw the 1927 state champions take the local basketeers into camp with a superior passing attack.

Although the Hornets were slow in getting started, the second quarter found them hitting the basket with greater frequency. The visitors were leading 4 to 3 at the close of the initial frame, but pulled away before the half was over to take a 17 to 6 margin as the whistle sounded.

The East Texans give one of the best exhibitions of floor work and passing seen here in many seasons.

Hopkins, Athens forward, led both teams in scoring with 14 points. Guy Richards was high scorer for the Jackrabbits with 6 points to his credit.

In the preliminary contest of the evening, the Estacado girls team defeated the Ralls sextette 21 to 8.

Following the Athens-Ralls game, the Ralls all-stars walked off with a 25 to 16 decision over the Monroe all-stars.

Snyder Basketeers Defeat Post Five

SNYDER, Jan. 19.—The Snyder High school Tigers opened their official basketball season here last night with an overwhelming victory over the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes. The score was 19 to 7.

Snyder Tigerettes, who will be hosts here to the West Texas high school girls A. A. U. basketball tournament next month, defeated Hermleigh high school girls 22 to 8

Five hundred fans witnessed the two games.

Fielding Bunts Spelled Downfall Of Allan Sothoron In Big Show; Virtually Bunted Out of Majors

Newly Appointed Manager Of Louisville American Association Team Carried Stuff to Majors

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Sports Writer for Central Press and The Avalanche-Journal

The other day Ping Bodie, one of baseball's old-timers, announced his positive retirement from baseball.

Ping Dodie, based on his desire to crash out ringing base hits, was one of the great batters of the game. All any manager had to do to ruin the day for Ping was to suggest to him that he lay down a bunt. He just couldn't se bunting.

And as far as Allan Sothoron, newly appointed manager of the Louisville American association team, is concerned, his baseball life would have been one grand sweet song to date had all ball players been like Ping.

For Sothoron's inability to field bunts blasted hopes that he might have held of becoming a great pitcher. He was virtually bunted out of the major leagues.

He carried "the stuff" with him when he broke into the majors. The St. Louis Browns bought him from Portland of the Pacific Coast league at the close of the 1916 season. He had stood the Sunset Coast league on its head that year by winning 30 ball games, losing but 17. He had broken into 57 games and hurled a total of 397 1-3 innings, indicating that he had earned the laurels won.

Not only that but he had twisted his shoots around the necks of the wily old vets and keen-eyed youngsters of the league for a total of 202 strikeouts.

But his awkwardness in fielding his position spelled his ruin. As soon as it was discovered the crafty big league batter began to work on it. They literally bunted him to death.

Hours and hours of eranest practice on Sothoron's part failed to improve his efficiency in recovering the teasing grounders and whipping them to first without delay.

In 1918, with the Browns, he finished next to last in fielding among the pitchers. Despite this he won 13 and lost 12 games for a second division club. Two years later the records showed him ranking last in fielding.

Sothoron bobbed around the American league, however, for six or seven years, moving from the Browns to the Red Sox and later bobbing up with the Cleveland club, where Tris Speaker labored hopefully to correct Sothoron's fault where other managers had failed. Then he drifted out of the American league—joined the St. Louis Cardinals and for a time worried the Giants and other clubs.

Razorbacks Beat Own Scoring Mark In Baylor Victory

Arkansas Cagers Get Scoring Machine In Action To Swamp Bears 71 To 23 In Second Game

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 19.—Arkansas University's great scoring machine shattered its own high score record for the Southwest conference when it smothered the Baylor University quintet, 71 to 23, in the second game of the series here tonight. The previous high mark, 66, was set against Texas Christian University two weeks ago.

Captain Tom Pickell, giant Porker center, gave the Bears the works tonight. He dropped in 21 points to regain his individual scoring lead in the Conference which he lost the previous night to Schoonover, his teammate. He nosed out Schoonover by three points.

From the first whistle the Razorbacks clicked off against the demoralized visitors, and as the game grew older Coach Schmidt's players gathered momentum. The half found the Bears trailing 22 to 6, they having registered only one field goal for the period.

Even the Porker guards joined in the scoring spree, each finding the hoop for 10 points. Smith and Kiersky led what little offense the Bruins were able to offer against the Porkers' five-man defense, Smith scoring 10 points.

The victory gave Arkansas a clean slate for its six conference engagements to date.

Coaching School Set For Aug. 19

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

DALLAS, Jan. 19.—The athletic Department of Southern Methodist University has been very fortunite in securing unusual talent for its summer coaching school. Announcement comes today that Dr. R. N. Blackwell, business manager of athletics, has just completed arrangements with Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, head coach of Stanford University, and Knute Rockne, head coach of Notre Dame University, to conduct a two weeks coaching school in Ownby Stadium at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, August 19 to 31 inclusive.

These two men are recognized as the two outstanding coaches of America today. Both Warner and Rockne have very impressive records. With Tad Jones of Yale, they have become very popular throughout the United States in furnishing daily sport stories to many of the leasing newspapers under the name of the Warner, Rockne, Jones Syndicate.

He said the only change to be made in the Nebraska coaching staff would be the addition of Ed Weir, former track and football star, as end coach.

HEADS SWIMMERS

C. D. Clary Captains Texas A. and M. Swimmers

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 19.—C. D. Clardy of Galveston, back stroke and free style swimming ace of the Texas A. and M. Swimming club, has been elected to captain the 1929 aquatic team of the club during the coming season. Clardy is swimming his fourth year with the team and has won honors in several meets which establish him as one of the outstanding southern swimmers.

As a member of the Aggie team and as an individual competitor he has won many laurels in swimming meets over the state. Last year he placed second in both the back stroke and mile free style at the Southern A. A. U. swimming meet. Clardy has planned nine prospective meets fo rhis team this season and he hopes this extensive campaign will do much toward obtaining recognition of swimming and other aquatic sports in the Southwest conference.

Fly Chasers And Pitchers Furnish Worry for Robins

Uncle Wilbert Robinson Has Intact Infield But Has Promising Youngsters For Other Positions

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—President-Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn baseball club, must decide on a pitching staff and outfield. The rest of the lineup will take care of itself. The infield is believed to be fairly well arranged with Del Bissonette at first, Jake Flowers taking care of second, Glenn Wright, the former Pirate, stationed at short, and Walter Gilbert assigned to third. This plan would leave Dave Bancroft, former Boston manager, in the role of utility infielder.

The outfield is not so simple. Max Carey will continue to act as first lieutenant to the manager but probably will do little playing. Harvey Hendrick and Babe Herman can hit well enough to play on any team but in other years their fielding has left something to be desired. Robbie has definitely decided to abandon thought of having these two sluggers play the infield. Another outfielder brought over from last year is Rube Bressler, and the three are numerically strong enough to fill the outposts if they can dispose of a small army of minor league outfielders trying to break in.

Rosenfeld Promising

Two of the promising youngsters are Max Rosenfeld, from Birmingham, and John Frederick from Memphis.

With Jess Petty gone to Pittsburgh for Wright, the honor of being the club's star southpaw must be contested by Big Jim Elliott and Watson Clark. There is no pitcher in sight threatening to wrest the right hand honors from Dazzy Vance. Douglas McWeeny and Rube Ehrhardt will be back again with a flock of young pitchers willing to accept nominations. Win Ballou former Washington and St. Louis pitcher, was drafted from Milwaukee. Elzie Dudley from Atlanta and Kim Richardson from New Haven are also conceded better than even opportunities.

One of the trio of 1928 catchers, Hank Deberry, Johnny Gooch, and Walter Henline, may be displaced by Alphonse Lopez, who spent a profitable season in 1928 on the Brooklyn farm at Macon.

Simmons Defeats St. Edwards Five

ABILENE, Jan. 19. (AP)—Jumping into a lead at the outset and never relinquishing it, the Simmons University five inaugurated its Texas Conference cage campaign by defeating the St. Edwards' University Saints, 30 to 23, tonight.

St. Edwards' did not score in the first 13 minutes of play, but Sullivan, Saint forward, got his eye on the basket in the second half and the visitors climbed to within two points of the Cowboys at one time. Sullivan's 10 points gave him scoring honors. Fitzgerald scored nine for Simmons.

Westerners Crush Redskins In Fast Basketball Tilt

Morgan Crew Display Best Form of Season In Downing Hardeman County Five; Peel Leads Scoring

Lubbock high school cagers went on a rampage last night to wallop the Quanah high school Indians 39 to 9 in a one-sided basketball contest. Coach Del Morgan's proteges excelled in every department of play and took the measure of the Hardeman county lads with little difficulty.

Displaying the best all-around form they have shown this season, the Westerners assumed the lead in the initial period and increased their lead steadily as the game wore on. Coach Morgan sent nine players into the contest and each contributed to the scoring.

Holmes, flashy little forward for the local five, started the fireworks soon after the game started with a field goal fired from close range. Peel, Dowell, Green and Tannery soon got into action and piled up a 20 to 3 margin for the locals at the end of the first half.

Scoring Continues

The barrage of field goals continued to rain scores for Lubbock in the second half. Coach Morgan sending in practically a new team after the game had been salted away. Of these, Powers and McGeehee played leading parts in the scoring. For Quanah, Hall, Frazer and Hollis performed crediably on the defense.

Peel, Lubbock forward, carried off high point honors of the contest with 10 points. He was followed closely by Dowell, who accounted for 9. Dowell's long shots were important factors in the Lubbock win.

The local quintet will meet Athens high school on the Tech gymnasium Monday night. The Hornets carried off the state title in 1927 and were runners-up last year.

Marion Turpie Is Amateur Champ

New Orleans Woman Wins Pan-American Golf Title From Mrs. Melvin Jones In Finals

BILOXI, Miss., Jan. 19. (AP)—Miss Marion Turpie, New Orleans, Southern champion, annexed the Pan-American women's amateur golf title today, defeating Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago, former western champion, 7 and 6, in tournament finals on the Edgewater Golf course.

Miss Turpie's victory over Theolympia Fields, veteran, was overwhelming. The 21-year-old girl went over today's 30-hole route spectacularly, breaking women's par based on yardage rulings of the Western Women's Golf Association.

She started the morning round by taking four holes in a row from Mrs. Jones. Only toward the end of the early round did the latter menace to cut the lead to three. In the afternoon round Miss Turpie halved the first two, Mrs. Jones took the third, and then Miss Turpie won five holes in a row.

Mrs. Jones halved the ninth, won the tenth and halved the eleventh, but her greens playing which had cost her dearly earlier in the day, again failed and Miss Turpie captured the twenfifth hole with a six, and the match was over.

Georgetown Star Wins "Thousand"

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—James Kennedy of Georgetown won the Brooklyn College "thousand," first of the indoor track season's traditional events, at the Brooklyn College meet tonight.

Kennedy finished only a few inches ahead of Sam Martin of the Boston A. A., with Phil Edwards, star of the New York University and Canadian Olympic teams third about two feet farther back. The time was 2 minutes, 20 2-5 seconds.

PIRATES TRIM JACKETS

BROWNWOOD, Jan. 19. (AP)—The Southwestern University Pirates, 1928 basketball champions of the Texas Conference, opened their 1929 conference campaign with a 40 to 30 victory over Howard Payne College here tonight. Mikulik, Pirate forward, was high scorer with 15 points.

T. C. U. Basketeers Pushed Farther Down Conference Ladder by Defeat At Hands Of Texas A. and M. Quintet

Game Featured by Defensive Brilliance of Both Teams; Aggies Boosted By Win Over Frogs

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 19. (AP)—In a hotley-contested game featured by the defensive brilliance of both teams, Coach Chuck Bassett's Texas Aggies downed the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs, 27 to 22, in a Southwest Conference cage tilt here tonight.

So closely were the sharpshooters of both teams guarded that at the half the score stood 11 to 4 in the Aggies' favor. Fully six minutes had been played before either team registered a field goal. The Frogs had only one field goal at the best period.

Noah Webster's 11 points gave him individual scoring honors for the night.

The win boosted the College Station quintet up the percentage ladder, with two victories and one loss.

Before the game started Matty Bell, Texas Christian mentor recently selected to succeed Dana Bible as head coach at A. and M. was presented to the Aggie cadet corps. He was given a tremendous welcome.

Nurmi Sets Mark In Special Race

Flying Finn Wins First Contest In American Campaign Over Fair Field; Time Not Official

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's flying phantom, galloped to an easy victory in the first start of his new American campaign, out distancing a fair field to win a 3,000-yard special race at the Brooklyn college track meet at the 13th regiment armory here tonight. The time, 7:43 2-5 was announced as a new world's record although no official mark for the distance is recognized.

The best time on the books was made by Nurmi nearly four years ago when he covered the distance in 7:45 3-5 at Baltimore.

Ove Anderson, another Finn, who lives in New York, finished second, 100 yards behind, beating out Gus Moore, national cross country champion, who kept the pace with the peerless Paavo up to the last half mile.

At the start Moore went out ahead with Irving Totten of the Millrose A. A., New York, second and Nurmi third. Paavo jumped the leaders before the end of the first lap and set his own pace for the rest of the way, timing it close to the world's best marks at every point where the watches were snapped.

Four years apparently have taken little from Nurmi's speed at distances over a mile. His time at the first point, 2,000 meters, was 15 seconds slower than the record and at a mile and a quarter he was about the same distance away. At 1 1-2 miles he was only eight seconds away from the record while the last three times were announced as new records, 6:58 for 2,500 meters, 7:23 2-5 for 1 5-8 miles and 7:43 2-5 for 3,000 yards.

Runyon Leads In El Paso Tourney

EL PASO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Paul Runyon of Little Rock, Ark., took the lead in the first flight of 18 holes in the El Paso Open Golf tournament today with a score of 68. Al Espinosa, Chicago, Johnny Rogers of Denver, and Harry Cooper of Buffalo, were a single stroke behind him.

Runyon went out in 35 and took 33 coming in.

Bobby Cruickshank, of Purchase, N. Y. Was followed by a sizeable gallery during his round and turned in a 3-36--71 card.

Joe Kirkwood, who entered the tournament late turned in a 76.

tOher 18 hole scores included: Larry Nebholtz, Houston, 37-41—78 Dr. James Vance, El Paso, 39-39—78.

Houston Tourney To Be 36 Holes

HOUSTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—Fashioning their tournament after the national amateur, the Houston Country Club tournament committee announced today that the qualifying round of the invitation golf meet here will be over a 36-hole route.

The committee also announced that the championship flight will be made up of the low 16 qualifiers this year and that all match play contests will be over a 36-hole route

The change will eliminate the usual element of luck in 18-hole qualifying tests and 18-hole matches

Finals will come on Sunday, February 24. The first day of qualifying play is set for Tuesday, February 19.

RELEASE OUTFIELDERS

Max West and Overton Tremper Leave Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP)—Max West and Overton Tremper, outfielders, were released today on option by Brooklyn, West to Newark, of the International League, and Tremper to Macon of the South Atlantic Association.

West, purchased from Waco in the Texas League at the close of the 1927 season, played last year with Atlanta.

Ganna Walska, 'Flop' In Opera, Tells For The First Time Why She Went Into Mere Business To Gain Fame

BY HELEN MOGGE
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Avalanche-Journal

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Ganna Walska! Newspapers everywhere—it seems—have carried the name. Wife of Harold F. McCormick, Chicago multi-millionaire who some years ago was divorced from Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller. Ganna Walska, whose operatic aspirations have so persistently been defeated—well, here she is in business on Fifth Avenue.

A striking Polish beauty sitting behind a desk, which somehow does not become this exotic creature, an animated person, vibrant with energy, she says that music still is the center of her interest.

In fact it is for music's sake that she is going into business, she avers. Her theater in Paris—the Champs des Slysee—and a symphony orchestra are continuing to pile up huge deficits, as musical institutions generally do. Thus to pay these huge deficits, she says with a naive charm, she is opening a beauty salon on Fifth Avenue in New York.

A Beautiful Puzzle

Looking at this beautiful person, whose wealth and social position could afford her the luxuries and ease so desired by womankind, one wonders what there is back in her mind that so persistently drives her into a field of activity foreign to her station in life.

"But what does a life of social activities and pleasures offer?" she counters, groping for English words, yet lapsing into French and Polish. "After a little, it becomes dull and tiresome. In the midst of it my mind would turn longingly toward work. And I have worked—worked hard at my music. I still am determined to bring before the people the best that I feel I can attain through persistent effort and let the people themselves decide as to the merit of my achievement.

"But best of all I like to work in America," she continues in her pleasant combination of languages. "I love the American way of doing things — the businesslike manner—the concentration of time —The promptness and alertness with which things are done here appeal to me."

Then one wonders again. How much does this lady, reared in luxury and comfort, know about the strain of real business life? Would she like the long rides to work in subways and trains every morning and evening? Would she enjoy the hurried luncheons at crowded counters and tables?

And all the details of her exquisite attire, could they be selected in the scarce few moments snatched during a lunch hour, or among the pushing, hurrying crowds of a Saturday afternoon?

Madam Walska thinks the American woman's delightful — charming — but — Oh, these terrible make-ups! "Everywhere I turn," she says, "be it in the subway or along fashionable Fifth Avenue, I see faces appallingly alike. It is clear that American girls make up too heavily and with too little art.

"The ridiculous practice of covering natural lines by lipstick and other make-up robs the faces of their natural features, making them uninteresting and standardized. If these women would only understand that the greatest claim to beauty lies in the subtle difference of a face, and one should take pride in enhancing this individual difference.

"Bu," Madam Walska hastens to add, "a woman's charm does not depend upon her face. Even though charm is hard to define and depends upon individual taste, I would venture to say that to a certain degree it can be cultivated and acquired. There are innumerable subtle ways in which a woman can make herself attractive. It may have something to do with clothes, manners, or education.

"The most important essential, however, in my opinion, is a delicate kindness—inherent rather than intentional—an innate desire to please. And no beauty salon has a substitute to offer for this. "But," she hastily adds, pulling herself together, "I almost forgot about my business. Remember that a delicate individual perfume adds greatly to the alluring charm of a woman."

Report Given Of Fire Inspector's Visit To Lubbock

State Fire Inspector Lee D. Olive, of Austin, arrived in Lubbock Saturday for several days of inspection here for the state fire insurance department.

In commenting on the state inspector's visit here, City Fire Marshal L. H. Simpson stated that there would be few places to be found in the entire city of Lubbock, to which the inspector could object as a fire hazard.

Some Hazards Found

"Of course, there are some places where folks have permitted old papers, lumber and other refuse to pile up, adjacent to buildings or other inflammable things," said Mr. Simpson, "and these will be found. Where such hazards have been found here, on my own rounds of regular inspections, I have experienced hearty cooperation on the part of citizens, but sometimes they are dilatory in changing things and a second trip might result in strict enforcement of laws. It is the state inspector's duty to report any and all fire hazards. Sometimes this results in fire insurance policies to be cancelled. Other times it results in a raise in policy rates."

Mr. Simpson further stated it was his belief that Lubbock holds a place near the top of the list of cities in Texas its population, when cleanliness, lack of fire hazards, and fire fighting equipment are compared.

Legion To Meet Tomorrow Night

The regular monthly meeting of the Allen Brothers Post, of the American Legion, which is to be held Monday night, will be featured by the presence of Guy Gibbs, of Plainview, district commiteeman.

Fifteen members of the Slaton post have signified their intention of being present and several from the Amherst post are also scheduled to attend. Discussion of plans for the local post's new building and arrangements for a membership campaign will obtain, and a large attendance is urged.

Paving Program Of $100,000 Started

City Gets Additional Pavement During Next Month Or Two; Alleys Are Included In Program

Beginning of the construction of paving on a number of downtown alleys, during the past week, calls attention of the citizenship of Lubbock again to the fact that approximately $100,000 is being spent here for paving work by the city this year. The Panhandle Construction company is doing the paving, which consists of 2 1-2 inch vertical fibre brick, on 4-inch concrete base, as stipulated in the order for its construction.

The work consists of raising, grading and filling, and paving and installing concrete curbs and gutters. Streets included in the paving program are listed as follows:

Paving Work Listed

Avenue G, from Thirteenth to Eighteenth street. Eighteenth St., from Avenue G to Avenue F. Fourteenth street, from Texas to Avenue H. Avenue L, from Broadway to Main streets. El Tiana avenue, from Nineteenth to Twentieth streets. Twentieth street, from Avenue X to El Camino avenue. Avenue M, from Nineteenth street to Twenty-Third street. Avenue G, from Eighteenth to Nineteenth streets. Avenue X, from Sixteenth to Nineteenth streets.

Alleys to be paved are as follows: North and south alley, from Main to Tenth street. East and west alley, from Avenue J to Texas. North and south alley, from Broadway to Main. Six Murder Mysteries, All In One Family, Basis Of Doctor's Defense

OLATHE, Kas., Jan. 19—A mysterious curse that brought death to six members of one family in the course of a third of a century is cited by Dr. S. C. Netherton, retired Olathe physician, as the real reason for the murder of his wife nearly two years ago.

And this strange explanation, unsatisfactory as the courts thus far have found it, Dr. Netherton bases his hope of being freed from serving the rest of his life in prison.

He was convicted some months ago of the murder of his wife, and is now wating for the Kansas supreme court to pass on his appeal. His appeal is based on his denial of guilt and his suggestion that the weird, unexplained curse that, he says, hung over his wife's family was responsible for her death.

Now he says he fears for the life of his 9-year-old daughter, Dorothy.

"I'm afraid she is the next on the murderers' list," he says. "If I go to prison, she will be left to the mercy of those who appear bent on wiping out my wife's family."

A graduate of Johns Hopkins University and a world traveler, Dr. Netherton retired and settled on a suburban farm here with his wife a decade ago. Mrs. Netherton was well-to-do; she possessed property worth $100,000, but none of the neighbors ever suspected it. The Nethertons lived frugally. The only money they ever spent for anything except actual necessities went to buy dresses and toys for little Dorothy.

In February, 1927, Mrs. Netherton was found, shot to death, in the basement of their home. The bullet had come from behind.

Circumstantial evidence pointed to Dr. Netherton, and he was arrested and brought to trial. He insisted he had been in town at the time of the murder, but was unable to prove it. His attorneys tried to bring into court the tale of the previous murders in Mrs. Netherton's family, but the judge would not admit the evidence. Dr. Netherton was convicted.

Dr. Netherton admits that he is unable to explain the strange chain of killings. He firmly believes that some person or persons have followed his wife's family for years, trying to wipe it out of existence, but why this is being done he has no idea. At any rate, here is his list of the crimes:

In 1882 Dode Strahl, a traper, and a nephew of Mrs. Netherton's mother, was shot to death near Deadwood, S. D.

A few years later Roll Strahl, Dode's brother, was found shot to death in a farm wagon at Exira, Iowa.

The same year, Colbert Strahl, father of the two slain men, was shot to death while riding on his horse from the town to Exira to his farm.

In 1916 Arthur Strahl, a first cousin of Mrs. Netherton, was shot to death in Chicago.

Four years later Paxton Muir, a second cousin of Mrs. Netherton, was found murdered in a Los Angeles hotel.

No arrests were ever made in any of these murders.

It is upon this story that Dr. Netherton depends to save him from serving the life sentence to which he has been sentenced.

The tourist "industry" is now quoted as Canada's second greatest source of income amounting to $275,000,000 a year.

Dorothy Netherton, 9, and her father, Dr. S. C. Netherton.

New Chemistry Building At Tech Is One Of Finest In The Southwest

Structure At Rice Institute Is Only One In Texas To Compare With It; Many Features Are Apparant

With final construction only a short time off, the new $275,000 chemistry building of the Texas Technological college is fast being made ready for occupancy.

The building was designed throughout to fit the special needs of the science of chemistry and in almost a day's time every room could be turned into chemistry labratories. However, by adjustments and planning it has been possible to adapt parts of the building for temporary use into departments of physics, biology and geology.

A perfect system of ventilation is used in all of the rooms from the basement to the attic, where are placed 40 fans.

Many Are Constructed.

Within the past few years a number of great chemical labratories have been constructed in America, the most noted among these being the Sterling Chemistry labratory of Yale, costing $2,000,000; the Baker Chemistry labratory of Cornell, valued at slightly less than this figure, and in Texas the $700,000 chemistry building of Rice Institute.

No chemistry building in Texas with the exception of the one at the last named institution can compare with that at Tech. Experience acquired in the erecting of these labratories was extensively drawn upon in the planning of the chemistry labratory at Tech.

There has been some question arising over the fact that the building faces the north. The present construction is only one unit of three buildings. Directly in front of it will be the Physic Hall and attached to the cloisters at either end will be the auditorium of the college. It is planned at present that this hall be an facsimile of the famous Alamo. The plaza formed in the space between the three buildings is two or three feet higher than the ground on the rest of the campus.

Is Large Structure.

The Chemistry building is 240 feet long, 62 feet wide, with a wing at the east end and extending to the south some 40 feet. There is a ground floor four feet below the level of the raised court, the first floor and the second floor.

The history of chemistry is depicted in the decorations of the building which are very unique. The keystones of the cloister arches have carved on them the symbols of the elements as used by Aristotle, by the ancient alchemists, and by Dalton, the father of modern atomic theory. A disk over one of th side entrances is similar to one at Rice Institute. Surrounding the disk is an inscription in Latin which upon being translated reads, "Having visited the interior of the earth for the purpose of purification you shall find the hidden stone." This is part of the philosophy of the alchemists who tried to turn base metals into gold.

Even Moon Included.

The old idea of atoms is illustrated as well as volubles and non-volubles. A small moon represents silver and a sun, gold.

At the rear of the building*high over the main entrance is placed a shield of crossed retorts and a benzoin ring. The retorts represent the part which chemistry played in the late war and the benzoin ring stands for the beginning of modern inorgaic chemistry.

Thus for chemists the symbols ad disks, ad grids bear out a defiite historical significance and in later years they may read from them the state of progress that modern chemistry had made when the building was erected.

Present arrangement of space in the edifice provides for the sharing of the physics and chemistry department on the ground floor and the part of the first floor which is not used for class rooms and the general office. On the second floor there is an L formed which is to be occupied by a lecture room, which will seat over 200 students. Under the lecture room for the present year the chemistry labratories will be placed.

In addition to three class rooms seating 45 students, one room which seats 20 students, and two lecture rooms for 90 students each, offices and labratories for faculty members, stock rooms, shops, dark rooms, transformer vault, machinery room, etc., there are labratories for the four sciences.

Cheer Up! It Cannot All Be True!

Many Divorces Are Filed But Even So Daniel Cupid Is Still Ahead By A Score Of More Than Four To One

Judging from the divorce petitions filed in Lubbock courts one would think that Daniel Cupid was not the unblemished, angel-like child indicated by his spotless reputation, but rather a faltering, decrepid, and crippled old man bobbling along in the sea of matrimony with his head barely above the water as he grasped for the proverbial straw.

To take literally the many petitions filed here in a year would be to depict a condition whereby scores of heartlessly cruel husbands beat their wives into submission, constantly cursed them and made them get out and make a living for the family.

1928 Shows Increase

During the year 1928, 136 petitions for divorce were filed in the two district courts located here. Of this number 106 have already been granted, an increase of thirteen over the 93 divorces granted during the previous year.

This condition appears less grave, however, when it is taken into consideration that while 136 divorce petitions were being filed, 571 marriage licenses—more than four times as much—were being issued. Last year's marriage license total was in increase of 54 over the previous year, which in turn had a 2 to 1 increase over the 258 total of 1926.

Cruelty Popular Plea

Between eighty-five and ninety percent of the divorce petitions filed here allege some form of crulty, and virtually all of the others are based on the grounds of abandonment. A few of the divorce suits are brought by the husbands, although, the big majority are filed by the wives, who are, the petitions would lead us to believe, "kind and affectionate to the defendant, but he, unmindful of the duties and obligations of his marital vows, began a course of cruel, harsh, unkind treatment toward plaintiff which rendered their further living together insupportable."

Often, the petitions inform, husbands curse and abuse their wives, applying to them vile, opprobrious and almost unmentionable epithets without cause or provocation. And still other times the husbands become infatuated with other women and lose all of their former love for their wives, and it is not uncommon, the petitions state, that the husband falsely accuses the wife of infidelity, which is, of course unreasonable. Failure to support is another popular form of cruelty alleged as the basis for divorces here.

Very Few Contested

Very few of the divorces are fought, only two of the more than a hundred tried last year being contested, and then only for the custody of children or the division of property. There has been only one case in the last four or five years when one of the parties fought the proceedure merely in an effort to prevent the divorce. That was several years when an aged man filed against his wife. She fought the action because, it seems, she wanted to do the filing of the divorce petition herself.

Alimony during the pendency of the divorce suit, the only kind, that is allowed in Texas, is more or less uncommon in Lubbock, only a few wives asking for alimony in connection with petitions filed last year.

December of 1928 had the highest total of divorce petitions filed of any month of the year with twenty petitions. August was next with seventeen. July with only three petitions filed had the lowest number. The other months ranged from six up to fourteen.

Forces of discord in marriage life apparently are in full swing with the beginning of 1928 as a total of thirteen divorce petitions have already been filed in the district clerk's office.

Abilene Woman Says It's Worth More Than $1,000

Had Been Down In Bed 5 Years; Was Weak And Nervous Until She Took Orgatone

"I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for the good Orgatone has done me," said Mrs. C. P. Shelnutt, who resides at 1033 Oak St., Abilene, Tex.

"It may sound strange, but I had suffered with stomach trouble and nervousness for the past five years until I got to the place where I was down in bed and was so weak that I couldn't get up without help. Every thing I ate soured on my stomach and made trouble for me, in addition to the stomach trouble I had sick dizzy headaches that would almost drive me crazy at times. I just lived in misery all the time and had almost given up hope of ever seeing a well day again.

"I am just finishing my second bottle of Orgatone, and it's surprising the way I have improved, considering that I haven't been entirely well before in five years. The stomach and indigestion trouble is gone as well as the headaches and dizziness and I can eat anything I want and digest it. I have gained some in weight, am able to do my work and feel good all the time. I want everybody to know what Orgatone did for me."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowen's Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Orgaton representative.—adv.

Crosbyton Annual Trade Banquet To Be On January 29

Committee Is Appointed To Formulate Plans For A County Fair During The Coming Year

CROSBYTON, Jan. 19.—The directors of the Crosbyton chamber of commerce in their regular meeting last night set the evening of January 29 as the date for the annual banquet of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce.

All twelve of the directors were present and much enthusiasm was manifest over the past years work and plans were talked for the coming year. Unanimous appeal was made to have a Crosby county fair here this year and a committee appointed with O. W. Young as chairman to work toward that end.

The annual report of the president, E. H. Hendricks of the accomplishments of the year was read and accepted by the board. This has been a year of much building in Crosbyton and many accomplishments of the chamber of commerce was brought to the attention of the directors. They expressed themselves as being well pleased with the years work and pledged themselves to work for an even greater program for 1929.

Among the accomplishments listed were: improving the city park, organization of a business men's luncheon club and Rotary club, important road work, work with rural communities, sponsoring agricultural short course at Crosbyton, assisting West Texas Old Settelers association, clearing old fair debt, and a number of other accomplishments.

LAIDLER TO VISIT TECH

Harry W. Laidler, Ph. D., of New York, a noted author and lecturer will visit Tech this week on January 24.

Dr. Laidler is a graduate of Wesleyan University where he was awarded a Phi Betta Kappa key.

He has spent several years in newspaper work in the city of New York and served as editor of the Socialist Review from 1919 until 1921. He was admitted to the bar in 1911 and is an authority on social and economic problems.

During trips to Europe, Dr. Laidler came in touch with leaders of labor, and the cooperative and socialistic movements in many countris. Since 1910 he has lectured in many colleges and universities.

TO TAKE BAND PICTURE

Members of the Tech band are urged to meet in front of the Administration building on the south side tomorrow at 4 o'clock where a group picture will be taken for the annual.

Harry LeMaire, band master requests that instruments be brought and the sweaters worn, but it is not necessary to wear the uniforms.

STUDENTS PLAN BANQUET

Several Methodist students have been designated as Junior Stewards and the list of over 600 Tech Methodist students divided so as to furnish each one with eleven members on his list.

A banquet is planned for January 30 as the entertainment for the winter term.

ANNOUNCE CONTEST POINTS

Following the announcement a few weeks ago of the contest for an acceptable school song for Tech college a number of inquiries have been received. The Tech Chamber of Commerce offered a prize of $25 to any one submitting a song that was accepted.

The points and rules of the contest are that any person in Texas is eligible to enter, and his composition will receive careful judgment, but it is preferred by the committee that either a Tech students or some one familiar with the college write the song.

The music and words must be submitted at the same time, and while no definite date is set for the close of the contest, it is desired that entries be made as soon as possible.

The judges of the songs are to be members of the organization sponsoring the contest and members of the Student Council. The five songs selected as among the best will be sung to the Student body at a convocation, where the students may have the privilege of accepting or rejecting them.

An advertising campagn is to be carried on in the leading news papers of the State in order to get as many submissions as possible, but it is earnestly hoped that Tech students will make the best contributions.

First Annual Tech Farm Short Course Set For Next Week

Farmers of Section Invited For Agricultural Instructions; Experts Slated For Lectures

Texas Technological College's first annual Farmers' Short Course, an institution which is expected to grow to a point of prime importance in the agricultural development of the South Plains in future years, will be held here January 29 and 30.

Subjects and problems of vital importance to the farmers of this section will be discussed by some of the outstanding agricultural authorities of the state in the two-day session of the short course. It is planned to make this an annual affair, one which will grow in significance with each year's program.

Dr. Horn To Make Address

Registration will be held on the morning of the first day in the auditorium of the Tech Engineering building. Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the college, will deliver the welcome address. A men's session will be held throughout the morning with H. J. Bower, of the Tech Department of Agronomy, as chairman. D. F. Eaton, Lubbock county agricultural agent, will talk on "Seed Selection and Breeding," and J. D. Tinsley, of Amarillo, agricultural agent of the Santa Fe railway company, will talk on "The Winter Wheat Program and Seed Improvement."

A general meeting will be held the afternoon of the first day with the following addresses scheduled: "Soil and Soil Moisture Conservation," by R. E. Dickson, superintendent of the state experiment farm at Spur; "Possibilities of cooperation on the South Plains," by Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Tech; and a general discussion led by J. D. Coughlan, director of Field Service of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association of Dallas.

Agriculture Men In Charge

Selection and breeding of farm animals will be the subject of the mens' meeting at the Stock Judging Pavillion on the morning of the second day of the course. The meeting will be under the direction of W. L. Stangel, R. C. Mowery and F. G. Harbaugh, of the Tech Department of animal husbandry.

The remainder ofthe day's program follows: "Development of Dairying," by F. G. Louthan, of Hale Center; "Value of Testing in Dairy Herd Improvement," by R. B. Davis, agricultural agent, Brownfield; "Dairy Products That Can Be Produced on Farms in the South Plains," by K. M. Renner, head of the Tech Dairy Manufactures department; and "Dairy Cattle," by W. L. Stangel, head of the Department of Animal Husbandry of Tech College.

All of the women's meetings will be held in the Home Economics building with Dean Margaret Weeks as chairman.

Crosby Grand Jury Returns 31 Bills

Crosby grand jury

A total of 31 felony indictments were returned during the past week, by the grand jury of the Seventy-Second district court, in session at Crosbyton, according to Judge Homer L. Pharr, of that court, upon his return to his home here for the week-end.

The grand jury returned 23 felony indictments the first three days of the week, sending in eight more Friday afternoon when it recessed until February 4, the last week of the court's session in Crosby county.

Judge Pharr stated that the last two weeks had been set aside for trial of criminal cases, but on account of the large number of indictments returned some of these cases will probably come to trial next week. Several arrests have already been made, following the indictments, and prisoners are in jail at Crosbyton.

TAX PAYING IS SLOW

Collector Clark Has Poll Tax Receipts Aplenty

"Tell the folks that we have a very ample supply of poll taxes on hand for everybody," was the remark made Saturday by County Tax Collector A. J. Clark. Although a large number of poll taxes have been paid, so far, no count of them has been possible. There have not been as many as there were last year, however.

To date, automobile passenger car licenses for 1929 have been issued in Lubbock county to the number of 6,555, in addition to 627 motor truck licenses.

January Court Of Honor For City To Be February First

Regular monthly Court of Honor, for the Lubbock Boy Scouts, will be held on Friday night, February 1, it was announced Saturday by K. N. Clapp, scout commissioner. First aid and civics classes are to be held next Saturday night, it was also announced, John Mast and Warren P. Knox to preside in first aid instructions, while George Dupree will be in charge of the civics class.

Board of Review will be held Tuesday night, January 29, for first and second class scouts, and on Wednesday night, January 30, for merit badges. All advancement must be in the scout offices at the city hall by 5 p. m. on Monday, January 28.

U. S. Steel Moves To Another Record High On Exchange

Heavy Buying of Old-Time Favorite Forges Shares to 89; Week-end Profits Are Heavy

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—Prices again moved irregularly higher on thestock market today, as further heavy buying of U. S. Steel helped to restore speculative confidence, and traders were inclined to take a less pessimistic view of the unexpected developments of the week in the money market.

U. S. Steel was boosted more than eight points to another unprecedented price at 1.89, representing a gain of 24 points in three days, or an appreciation in the market value of the stock of about $175,000,000. This old time leader came back to the head of the list in grand style, after a protracted period in which it had been in comparative retirement.

Week-end Profits Heavy

Week-end profit-taking was fairly heavy in spots, but the Associated Press price averages again mounted, those for rails and utilities touching new high levels. Trading was in fair volume for a short session, total sales running to 2,603,200 shares.

The strength of market yesterday, in the face of the unexpectedly large increase in brokers' loans, gave considerable satisfaction to the bull party, and powerful efforts were made to get a large public following. There was a tendency to regard the increase in loans as in a large part due to new stock financing. The increases in the bankers' acceptance rates failed to shake confidence, for although such increases have foreshadowed a jump in the reserve rediscount rate, these are largely attributed to the desire of the reserve bank to broaden the acceptance market.

The persistent firmness of time money, however, was pointed out in banking circles as clearly indicative of a sustained period of tight money and the opinion prevailed that some readjustment would eventually be necessary.

The upturn in U. S. Steel led to rumors of another stock dividend. Indications of good earnings in the last quarter and the federal tax refund of $26,000,000 had previously led to expectations of at least an extra or an increased dividend.

There was little in the news of the day to affect the market. Steel scrap prices were raised 25 cents a ton at Chicago, in sympathy with previous increases at other centers.

Cotton Trading Extremely Quiet During Saturday

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19. (AP)—Cotton trading was extremely quiet today with the trend of prices slightly downward owing to further liquidation in advance of the census bureau's ginning total next Wednesday. Following an early gain of 3 to 4 points the market weakened and eased off slowly March trading off from 19.64 to 19.57 and closing at the latter figure or a net loss of 4 points. The general market closed steady at net declines of 3 to 4 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady and first trades here showed gains of 3 to 4 points in sympathy. Initial sales proved to be the high points of the day with January selling for 19.61, March 19.64 and May 19.66.

Last Gin Report Wednesday

The liquidation and week-end evening up set in right after the start in very sluggish trading. The fact that Wednesday's ginning report will be the last until the bureau's final report for the season to be issued in the latter part of March tended to hold trading in check with operators showing a disposition to hold off contracts until after Wednesday's totals are known.

The lowest of the day were reached in final trading when January sold at 19.53, March 19.57 and May 19.60, or 6 to 8 points under the highs. The close was at the lowest.

Receipts 28,799; for year 7,629,073; exports 56,387; for year 5,228,396; last year 4,281,726. Stock 2,283,944; last year 2,312,454. Stock on shipboard 127,843; last year 127,100. Spot sales 17,390; last year 13,167.

R. F. Huie's Grandmotrer Dies In Anson

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Huie have returned from Anson where they attended the funeral of Mr. Huie's grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Jane Huie, who died Friday of last week. Mrs. Huie was Jones County's oldest citizen and although she died at the age of 98, she had lived in 100 calendar years. She is survived by 54 great grand children and 24 grandchildren, a son, two daughters and a brother, all of whom were at the funeral, with the exception of two grandchildren.

Daily Markets

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 19. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—A stronger undertone featured the hog trade most of the week, and although receipts were liberal, closing rates are from 10 to 25c over a week ago; the closing top rested at 9.45 at St. Louis; total arrivals for the week were 789,050, compared with 725,163 last week, and 796,865 the same week a year ago.

Fat lambs sold very unevenly, but final prices are sharply higher than a week ago; values ranged from 25 to 85c higher; choice fed westerns scored 17.35 to shippers for the extreme top at Chicago, while at the river markets the best stopped at 16.65; aggregate were 298,850, against 288,005 last week and 255,758 a year ago.

A very dull trade featured the fed steers and yearlings market and closing levels are mostly 25 to 50c lower with extreme cases 50c to $1 under a week ago; she stock closed weak to 50c lower with lower grades selling to best advantage; choice heavy steers scored 15.90 and best yearlings made 15.75 for the week's top at Chicago; arrivals at the 11 markets for the week were 224,950, compared with 193,760 last week and 218,595 a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 19. (AP)—It was a nip and tuck race for grain market leadership today between wheat and corn. Temporary wheat was foremost, and the July delivery of wheat went above any former high-price record this season. At the end of the day's trading, however, corn was dominating, and as a result of free profit-taking and because of rain reports from the drought district in Argentina both corn and wheat finished unsettled and lower.

Closing quotations on wheat and corn alike were nervous, wheat at 1-4c to 5-8c net decline, corn 1 3-8c to 1 3-4c down, oats 1-8c to 1 1-8c off, and provisions varying from 7c setback to a rise of 5c.

Ft. Worth Market Cleared In Short Session Saturday

FORT WORTH, Jan. 19. (AP)—It only took a very short session today to clear the livestock yards here of the few cattle and hogs offered it was strictly a clean up affair and generally lacking in quality.

A load of light steers that arrived late yesterday sold this morning at 10.25. The other cattle represented by less than half a dozen loads of mixed classes that sold about in line with yesterday's offering.

A few cows sold at 4.50 to 7.15, or about in line with sales through the latter part of the week.

Odd lots of heifers sold at 8.00 to 9.00, with a few yearlings at 10.00 to 11.50.

Stocker cattle represented by about three loads of stocker steers that sold at 10.00. Nothing of any consequence offered in other classes of stocker cattle.

No sheep offered, but values considered steady.

Trade in hogs was in line with yestaerday's market and the best rail butchers sold at 9.25—two loads of medium butchers. The best truck butchers at 8.25 to 8.65. One or two head at 8.75. Packing sows sold at 7.50 to 8.00, and pigs continue to find a narrow demand at values at 5.50 to 6.50.

New York Cotton Has Quiet Session

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—The cotton market was very quiet today. After selling up a few points in response to relatively steady cables, it reacted under week-end realizing. March contracts sold off from 20.26 to 20.20, closing at 20.22.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 3 points. There appeared to be some overnight selling orders in the hands of brokers, and the active months eased off slightly during the first few minutes, with January selling at 20.15 and May at 20.23, or 1 to 2 points net lower. Buying promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and a favorable interpretation of weekly reviews from the cotton goods trade, absorbed these early offerings and caused rallies during the middle of the morning. January sold up to 20.20 and May to 20.28, making net advances of 2 to 4 points, but the market eased again later under week-end liquidation.

Mule Driver Found King Walt

(This is the third of a series of stories of new major and minor league managers, by Norman E. Brown. Others follow.)

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Sports Writer for Central Press and The Avalanche-Journal

The generalissimo of a mule train in Idaho tipped off the Washington ball club to the ability of Walter Johnson.

Three days after he joined that team he pitched against the Detroit Tigers and struck out 13 batters. Listed in the lineup of the Tigers were Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, Jim Delehanty, Claude Rossmand and a few others of their ilk with the bat.

Now these facts regarding the debut of Walter Johnson, the master of American league pitchers, may not be as vital as the long list of statistics regarding the number of shutouts he has pitched, the total number of strikeouts registered, the total won and lost record, etc., but they are important in this respect—that they are in a way typical of Johnson and his career—a career that millions of fans will recall again when he steps onto the diamond in April for his debut as a major league manager, as pilot of the Washington club.

Johnson comes back to the majors, after a year's absence—a year spent as manager of the Newark club of the International league.

Those who know Johnson, even merely in a baseball way, will appreciate that it was fitting that he should step into the front ranks of baseball in an unobtrusive fashion. Johnson never intruded.

Major league club owners today are paying from $50,000 to $100,000 for pitchers whom they don't expect to deliver for a year or more after reporting to the major league camp the first time Johnson delivered three days after he arrived—broke into 14 games after he delivered in mid season—and was credited with winning five and losing nine games while pitching a total of 112 innings. The next year he broke into 36 games and won 14 and lost the same number with a mediocre club. The following year, in 40 games, he came out victor but 13 times, as against 25 defeats. But get this. He struck out 164 men, and allowed an average of just 2.20 earned runs per game. And for 10 years after that was a winning pitcher every year—regardless of the ups and downs of the Washington club.

And in six of these years he allowed an earned run average of less than two runs a game. In 1918, in a total of 325 innings he permitted just 1.28 runs a game—but we're getting into the statistics now.

There was that season of 1913, too when he won 36 games and lost 7, for a winning average of .837. And that year he allowed just 1.09 earned runs a game—which shoots that remark about 1918 into the waste basket. That's the trouble with the statistics of King Walt.

Johnson's career is usually hooked up with the reign of Clark Griffith as manager and later manager and president of the Washington club, but old Pongo Joe Cantillon was manager of the Senators when Johnson reported. It was Cantillon who took the word of Mike Shea, brother ball player and at the time chaperoning the mule train that Johnson was good.

That was in 1907. As far as actual competition in professional ball is concerned Johnson can be credited with stepping into the big league in his first year as a regularly employed player. He had been pitching semi-pro ball in the west and north west and some time in 1906 the Tacoma club of the Northwestern League signed him. Records agree, however, that he never actually played with that club, but spent his time between then and his debut with Washington playing semi-pro ball with the Weiser, Idaho, team.

And, oh yes. Thirteen years after he began pitching major league ball—in 1920 that was—he had a sore arm. The first of his career. Four years later he won 23 games while losing 7 and helping pitch Washington to its first pennant.

It's an easy task to figure what Johnson meant to Washington financially. For the club was out just his railroad fare from Idaho and three days' hotel expenses the day he struck out those 13 Detroit batters. That and Cantillon's time in thanking Mike for passing along the word.

99th Court Swings Into Second Week

The 99th District court will swing into its second week of the January term tomorrow with the trial of jury civil cases before Presiding Judge Clark M. Mullican.

The week's docket includes the following civil cases: Garrett against Izard; McClatchy vs. Worsham; Champlin vs. Clark; and Ragland vs. Gunn.

Non jury matters were considered by the court during last week. The civil docket will continue for the next five weeks, after which the settings for the second half of the term will be made.

The 72nd District court is still in session at Crosbyton this week with Judge Homer L. Pharr on the bench.

In New York

By Swan

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Whenever and wherever the eccentric and fantastic are mentioned in connection with Manhattan's famous "400" the name of Harry Lehr heads the list.

That he died the other day in Baltimore, in utmost poverty, is but a fittingly ironic epitaph for one who staged something very close to a satire in real life.

The "prince of climbers," he arrived in New York with $10 in his pocket and crashed his way through barriers that were said to be impregnable; he became the court jester of the richest and gayest group in New York's social history, married one of America's richest women and created what has become famous as Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish's "circus set."

In those good old days of the Mauve decade, when you opened the Sunday supplements and saw therein the hilarious and sensational tale of a "monkey dinner"—it was Harry Lehr. When you read of the talking parriot that upset the staid society affair—again, Harry Lehr. He literally clowned himself into social eminence, and once entrenched he furnished endless topics for lurid discussions.

It was Harry Lehr who went wading in full dress suit in a fountain, accompanied by one of the primmest of the elderly matrons. It was Harry Lehr who staged the famous Newport monkey dinner, which shocked our grand-dames. It was Harry Lehr who dressed another monkey in a dress suit and turned him loose at an ultra-fashionable dinner. It was Lehr who staged the then ultra-ultra bathing suit ball and who allowed newspaper photographs of himself to be taken knitting with the late Mrs. George Gould.

In vain did the leaders of an older generation cry that he was tearing down the very foundations of their staid society fortress.

So many were his amazing exploits that one wonders if this Lehr might not have been a supersardonist, a fellow who deliberately set out to turn the life he led into a satire of itself. Certainly he had ample opportunities. For he stepped into a time when leaders of society were fighting each other for absolute eminence, and originality of ideas and entertainment were the weapons in use. At first he was the "power behind the throne" in the social success of Mrs. William Astor's parties.

It was through Mrs. Astor that he stepped into his place of power. The son of a German consular official, stationed at Washington, he had come to Manhattan after cutting a swath in Baltimore society. He got a job as agent for a big wine and champagne concern and met Mrs. Astor while introducing his brand to the best social circles. He was an excellent musician, amusing and accustomed to mingling with society folk. Within a brief time, he was making suggestions to Mrs. Astor concerning her fetes, and was actually assisting her. When the famous Ward McAllister, and his social dictatorship, passed from the picture—in came Lehr.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, seeking the social scepter, started to cultivate him. It was not long before he made her the prize topic of the Sunday magazine sections.

The stories concerning him are endless, but one of the most amusing concerns the mean trick he played upon the ancient dowagers who were distributing scandal about him in order to oust him from social eminence. He staged the "bathing suit" ball and insisted that all attended garbed in bathing suits. The elderly queens looked most at disadvantage in such costume, and Lehr had a camera man with flashlight hidden to photograph them as they appeared. He gave these pictures to the daily press and gave the whole nation a laugh.

El Pasoans Who Risked Lives Procuring Rare In Hunt For Rare Fossils Must Forego Rich Mineral Research

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to the Avalanche-Journal)

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 19.—Risking their lives to unearth valuable specimens of early American animal life from an unexplored cave on their own initiative, three youths of El Paso have been balked at every turn in their efforts to further pursue their discoveries after negotiating with 28 museums before their finds were recognized.

The cave is on government land 45 miles from here that nobody cared a whit for until the boys' discovery. Now Yale university and the United States National Museum have made a deal to do the future exploring and share the finds, and the amateur geologists who paved the way are only looking on!

The youths, Ewing Waterhouse, Wilson Esterly and Carlos Rushing, are musicians by vocation. In the cave they found a ground sloth, characterized by Prof. R. S. Lull, director of the Peabody museum at Yale as "the most interesting animal ever come to light."

The discovery dates back to a Sunday school picnic when Rushing chanced on the cave. His interest was aroused after dropping rocks within and not hearing them hit bottom.

Years passed. Rushing had an automobile. With Esterly and Waterhouse he went for a drive. Then he remembered the cave. They considered the high extinct volcano crater country hereabouts and conjectured that animals of old might possibly have roamed there and fallen into the apparent death trap.

Equipped with 1,700 feet of rope, Rushing and Esterly descended, an extremely dangerous undertaking, owing to the steep sides and depth of the funnel shaped cavity, forming an almost certain death trap. They found the floor covered with guano, deposited by myriads of bats, the only living inhabitants.

The youths came upon speciments of a ground sloth which they later learned is if special value because of its comparative youth—about 50,000 years—and its remarkable preservation. Professor Lull has described the animal as belonging to a curious race which flourished in South America. The animals ranged in size from that of a bear to a huge elephant, although longer of body and having shorter limbs.

Government officials heard of the discovery and ordered the youths to keep away from the cave. The boys countered by filing a placer mining claim for a section of land about the cavity to get the guano deposits. They lost on a technicality. Meanwhile they got their specimen out and tried to market it.

Waterhouse dug in deeper. He read a score of palentological books. He made minute drawings and measurements and photos of every part of the animal. Finally, Yale recognized him. As soon as Yale did so the National Museum claimed title to the fossil because it was found on government land. But Yale had possession and held on. The two wound up with a joint agreement to explore the cave further and share the results.

Meanwhile the boys have been trying to obtain an oil and gas lease on the land. The department of interior has not approved the application and the National museum is hastening to gut the cavern of any new finds.

Remarkable Growth Is Made During Past Year By Central Plains Scout Council, Headquarters At Plainview

Annual Report Is Filed By Scout Executive In The Surveying Of Work Accomplished by Group

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 19.—The Central Plains Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which serves the counties of Hale, Floyd, Lamb, Briscoe, Swisher, Deaf Smith, and Castro and a part of Hall, has had a remarkable growth in activities during the nine months of its existence beginning April 1, 1928, according to Scout Executive E. Lloyd Roberts who has just filed his annual report with the directors of the organization.

On April 1, when the council was organized, there were 36 registered scouts in the area. On January 1, that number had increased to 387 or an increase of 900 percent.

There are at present three scout troops in Plainview; two in Floydada; one each in the following places: Happy, Dimmitt, Kress, Garrison School, Abernathy, Hale Center, Silverton, Lockney, and Quitaque. Other troops are organizing in Hereford, Matador, Roaring Springs, and Jumbo School, and will be complete in ninety days.

Five hundred and eighty one tests have been passed. Seventy three boys have become second class scouts. 26 first class scouts, 7 have passed and become star scout, and 3 life cout. One application for an Eagle designation has been filed. This is the highest award that can be earned by a scout. One hundred ninety eight merit badges have been passed before expert examiners in each subject. Thirty-one courts of honor and boards of review have been held in the area. One hundred forty boys attended the summer camp. Of this number 38 were taught to swim, and several passed life saving tests. Over 1000 belts awards have been given during the year for camping activities and efficiency. Thirty six overnight hikes and camps were conducted by individual troops during the summer. One area rally was held with eight troops in attendance.

The scouts have participated in the following community activities: Boys week, exhibits and booths at practically all the county fairs in the area; the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railroad celebration at the various points in the area, where the new railroad entered; The Panhandle-Plains dairy show at Plainview. The school fair parade at Plainview, and the Christmas chairities.

Roberts has set an aim for 1929 to extend the scouting program to the farm boys who are too far away to make regular attendance in the troops in the cities.

In the performance of his duties as the executive of the organization Roberts points out that he has visited various troops 37 times not including the courts of honor sessions. secured over 1200 inches of newspaper publicity for the organization conducted twelve sessions of a leaders training course, made 152 trips to towns in the area; has made approximately 20 talks before various churches and civic clubs; driven over 16,000 miles in the performance of his duties; attended the national training conference for scout executives at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

L. S. Kinder, of Plainview, is president of the Central Plains Area Council of the Boy Scouts.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hightower were Lorenzo business visitors here Saturday.

Death Takes Four Persons Saturday In Lubbock County

Influenza and Pneumonia Are Causes; Mrs. Amanda L. Hairriss to Be Buried This Afternoon

Mrs. Amanda L. Hairriss, 80, died Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at her residence on South Avenue T following a brief illness in which influenza pneumonia developed.

Mrs. Hairriss is survived by a brother, F. M. Edwards of Lubbock; two nephews, Ross Edwards of the Edwards Dry Goods Company, and Harry Edwards of Fort Worth; one niece, Mrs. Baylor Crawford of Abilene.

Harry Edwards and Mrs. Crawford were here at the time of the death.

The deceased was a member of the First Christian Church of this city from which place funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock with the pastor, Rev. W. T. Jennings, officiating. Burial will follow in the Lubbock Cemetery with the Bynum Brothers funeral directors in charge.

Cecil Wayne Bratcher Dies In Idalou Early Yesterday

Cecil Wayne Bratcher, five-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bratcher, of Idalou, died at the family residence at an early hour yesterday morning as a result of influenza and pneumonia.

Mr. Bratcher, father of the deceased, is a former Lubbock cafe owner and business man, living here for a number of years up until about a year ago.

Other than the parents the child is survived by four brothers: Guy, Bundy, J. R., and Charles Franklin; and three sisters: Willie Mae, Violet, and Fannie Bee.

Funeral services will be held at the Idalou Baptist Church at 3 o'clock this afternoon under the direction of Bynum Brothers. The Rev. W. R. White, pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city, will officiate, associated by Rev. Wilson of Idalou. Burial will be in the Idalou Cemetery.

Mrs. Josie Brooks to Be Buried In Melrose, N. M.

Mrs. Josie Brooks, 52, died late Friday night at Idalou, and was brought to Lubbock Saturday, the remains being prepared for burial by the Rix Morticians, and sent to Melrose, N. M. Saturday. Funeral services will be held at Melrose at 3 p. m. today.

Survivors are, her father, P. B. Battenfield, and an aunt, Mrs. A. E. Burgess, of Idalou.

Gore Funeral Set This Afternoon at Abernathy

Funeral services were held at Abernathy Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock for C. T. Gore, 80, who died at the home of P. T. Sims, at Monroe, on Friday night, Rev. Michael, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating.

Burial was in the Abernathy cemetery, under direction of the Rix Morticians.

Mr. Gore is survived by several great grandchildren, who are his nearest living relatives.

sheriff's department has made about a dozen arrests on liquor charges since January first, Sheriff Wade Hardy, at the time of taking office making the declaration that he was going to "make it hot" for the bootleggers. In many of the raids that have been made, the sheriff's force has had the co-operation of the city police force, under Chief of Police John Lemond.

The attempted hijacking occurred early Saturday night, at a point about a mile north of town on the Plainview highway, The man, whose name could not be learned, whom the two highwaymen tried to hold up, stated to Sheriff Hardy that, as he finished fixing a flat tire and had started to get into his car, the two men walked up to him with two pistols in their hands.

Jumping into his automobile, the man speeded away before the hijackers succeeded in robbing him. They did not shoot at him, he said.

at Trinity University, Waxahachie, Carothers is said to be a student at Texas University, Austin. Confusion which attended the accident and subsequent rushing of the injured to various hospitals made it difficult to allocate the persons to the three cars which figured in the crash.

Traffic Jam Is Cause

A traffic jam after the first accident in which two cars figured was held partly responsible for the second and more disastrous crash. The driver of the third car, said he was so intent upon weaving through the traffic that he did not see the obstacle until he was within 10 feet of it. Wreckage was strewn over the viaduct and officers spent an hour straightening out the snarl of traffic.

Police said charges would be filed tomorrow.

VAGRANCY COMES HIGH

On a plea of guilty for a charge of vagrancy, a white man paid $50 and costs, in all, $59.15, in Justice of the Peace G. R. Scott's court late Saturday night. The man was arrested earlier in the evening by Deputy Sheriff O. B. Conley.

Griffith Rejoins Avalanche-Journal

Former Advertising Manager Sells Printing Plant; Will Take Charge of Promotion Work

Joe E. Griffith, former advertising manager of the Avalanche and Journal, and for the past month, proprietor of the Dow printing plant, 1002 Texas Ave., has announced the sale of his lease of that business to James L. Dow, effective immediately. Mr. Griffith will return to the Avalanche-Journal organization as assistant to Dorrance D. Roderick, publisher. His first work will be the organization of a promotion department for the Lubbock papers and the El Paso Herald and Times, purchased last week by J. Lindsay Nunn and Mr. Roderick.

In announcing the disposition of his recently acquired business, Mr. Griffith said, "the program of expansion launched last week by the owners of the Lubbock newspapers offers me an opportunity for a connection I have long desired. My application has been on file for some time and I am very much pleased to have been favored with this appointment."

Unsettled Weather Is Western Outlook

CHICAGO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Unsettled weather, with rain, snow and changing temperatures, was the outlook for the middlewest today, as it emerged from the winter's worst storm, which swept six states and killed eleven persons.

While the wind was of gale proportions, the temperature did not drop much below 15 above zero in the wake of the storm. Its victims were three persons in Missouri, one in Mississippi, three in Illinois, two in Kentucky and one each in Ohio and Indiana.

Most of the dead were killed by flying timber of falling buildings although one was electrocuted and another drowned.

Two men reported drowned in the Ohio river near Madison, Ind., during the storm were found alive today. They had succeeded in swimming ashore after the boat capsized.

"Lubbock is the only city of its size in Texas—and perhaps in the entire United States—which has not made any appreciable effort to secure air business!"

That statement, coming from one of the most experienced and widely known aviators and air transport executives in the country, should and does furnish food for thought. Incidentally, it went even further than that—it caused the directorate of the Board of City Development, the members of the City Commission and other business men to immediately plan for action.

Bond Issue Soon

Lubbock needs a permanent airport and before long the citizens here will be faced with the opportunity of voting 'yes' or 'no' on a bond issue to provide funds for the purchase of airport grounds and for the erection of necessary buildings thereon. From the lay of the land now it appears that the bond issue will and must be called in the amount of $75,000 and that not only will the city commission be glad to call such an election but that the majority of the people will be delighted to vote 'yes' on the proposal.

The B. C. D. airport committee, under the direction of its chairman, George E. Benson, has secured an option on what visiting airmen and airport managers have described as a 'perfect' section of land. Further than that this committee, composed of Mr. Benson, John Dalrymple, Jo Dick Slaughter, Roscoe Wilson and the writer, has made an extensive study of airports and their needs so the only thing which now remains to be attained is the action of the citizenry in approving the project.

Expansion Is Coming

The year 1929 will see unprecendented progress in commercial aviation. The Texas Air Transport company, operating two mail contracts in Texas, has already purchased additional equipment in the neighborhood of $150,000 and will, in the near future, start its operation of express and passenger lines which will literally blanket Texas. From Amarillo to Laredo, from Galveston to Ft. Worth and Dallas, from Texarkana to El Paso, the planes of this company will soon be making daily trips—running on schedule—to place the principal cities of Texas within three to five hours of each other. The project of the Texas Air Transport is probably but one of the aviation plans which will come to successful climax in the state this year. As Lubbock is equipped at the present time, this city will be unable to share in this new business. It must have an adequately equipped airport to take its place in this new era.

Look To Future

It is not the plan of the city commission or the airport committee to over-do this airport business. Rather, it is their plan to equip Lubbock for its present needs yet at the same time be sure that when expansion is essential it may be attained at the least possible cost.

The city's needs from an aviation standpoint now are these:

First—a municipally owned plot of level ground, adjacent to a highway, unobstructed by phone or power lines and within five miles of the business section. This ground should be no less than a half section and better, a full section.

Second—A hangar, capable of housing at least six planes.

Third—a waiting room for passengers, an executive office from which the field may be managed, a parts room.

Fourth—facilities for refueling planes.

Fifth—an airport manager to enforce rules and regulations which must be placed upon every airport.

People Must Know

This question of air transportation is important today but will become more so as time goes on. It is incumbent upon the people of Lubbock to study it so when they are faced with making a decision at the polls they will be fully informed in the matter.

This much is certain—the day of the air is here and the city which fails to realize it will be badly handicapped in the future.

TO BUY OIL FIRM

Grayburg May Sell Out To Independent

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Negotiations practically are complete for purchase of the Grayburg Oil company of San Antonio by John W. Choate, independent oil operator, and an associate, Silas M. Newton, of New York Choate told a representative of the Morning Times last night.

The deal probably will be closed Choate said, when Newton goes to San Antonio early next week. Properties of the Grayburg company were said to be valued at $8,000,000

Report Of Average Month's Operation Shows City Is Prospering

Various Departments Are Shown To Be In Good Condition, Audit Made Covering Month Of November Shows

Electric Light Department Costs Most To Operate But Also Returns Larger Amount Of Revenue

As reflected in the report of an average month's operation of the city of Lubbock, that institution, of which every citizen is a stockholder, is on a paying basis. Taking the average month as a basis of figuring, which shows more than $5,000 net revenue a year's time gives the city more than $60,000 net revnue city more than $60,000 net revenue several departments.

An insight into the inner workings of the city government is gained from an inspection of an average month's report of expense and revenue. You will note that the electric light department is responsible for the greatest expense and the greatest revenue. Of the 22 departments listed, there are only eight credited with bringing any revenue to the city during this average month.

Figures Tell Story

With a total expense of $10,044.78, the light department shows a total revenue of $15,982.03. The entire net revenue is just about on a par with the light department's revenue record.

The average month selected is that of last November, the following statement being given for that month with the first item showing total expense and the second showing total revenue:

Legislative, $285.19, no revenue; manager's office, $285.53, no revenue; secretary-treasurer's office, $506.05, no revenue; tax collector and assessor's office $375, $1,340.17; legal department, $230, no revenue; engineering department, $361.01, $77; building department, $440.10, $1,042.65; corporation court, $125, no revenue; police department, $1,-971.87, $2,369; fire department, $1,-667.35, no revenue; health department, $305.60, 201.75; street department, $833.84, no revenue; street cleaning department, 0328.74, no revenue; garbage removal department, $580.83, $25; sanitary sewer department $125.24, no revenue; sewage disposal department, $166.20, no revenue; parks, $151.95, no revenue; warehouse $147.92, no revenue; city hall, $290, no revenue; fire hydrants and street lights, $2,444.36, no revenue; water department, $5,-176.44, $10,613.08; light department, $10,044.78, $15,982.03. Total expenditures, $26,626, total receipts $31,-660.68, net revenue $5,034.68.

Snyder-Roswell Railroad Plans Now Completed

Work Of Construction To Be Started When Legal Technicalities Settled, So Advices Say

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 19.—Plans for the construction of the Snyder, Roswell and Gulf railroad, to be financed by Houston capital, have been completed, according to M. G. Evans, secretary of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Evans, in Houston conferring with Ed Kennedy, promoter, said the proposed road had been financed by Mr. Kennedy and associates and that grading will start when legal technicalities have been complied with.

The Snyder, Roswell and Gulf railroad, also known as the East and West Railroad, will extend 210 miles west from the terminal of the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific railroad at Fluvanna, Mr. Evans said.

"This road, which will cost around $3,500,000, will open a virgin territory of many thousands of acres," Mr. Evans explained. "A great part of this territory now is located as far as 125 miles from any railroad. It is devoted almost entirely to the cattle industry and oil development, with its agricultural possibilities not scratched.

The road will make connections with the proposed road from Corpus Christi, San Antonio and San Angelo, forming a link that will save millions of dollars in freight rates to cotton and wheat farmers and giving an outlet for South Texas vegetable production."

Extending from Fluvanna, Mr. Eavns said the road will run through O'Donnell, through the oil fields of Tatum, N. M., and on into Roswell, N. M.

Plainview Pastor Seeks To Boost Wayland; Offering Prizes To Winners Who Show School's Worth

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 19.—P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church, Floydada, is offering two prizes for best essays to be submitted in a contest at Wayland college in which all students are eligible. Essays are to be written on the two subjects, "The Advantage of a Junior College," and "The Advantages of Wayland College." Fifteen dollars is the award in each contest.

The essays will be printed in pamphlet form for distribution over the territory according to O'Brien. Wayland College officials are endorsing the contest, and Dean Z. T. Huff will have surpervision of the contest.

Building Is Spirited

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 19.—During the first half of January, building permits at Plainview totaled $72,-470.00.

The largest item is the permit for Jarvis-Tull Machinery company for the erection of an implement house to cost approximately $40,-000.00. Other permits include residences, and one business house, that of Abbot and Woodall to cost $4,500.

New Business Open

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 19.—Two new business houses opened for business in Plainview this week. The Soda Grill, operated by Jake Stephens, and The Baker Furniture company owned by the same people that operate a store by the same name at Lubbock.

The Soda Grill is a complete confectionery and sandwich shop. The Baker Furniture company occupies the building formerly occupied by the Amarillo Furniture company.

$325,000 Assets To Loan Company

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 19.—Showing an increase of $125,000 during 1928, the Plainview Building and Loan association issued its annual statement this week giving the total assets at $325,000.00, with $930,000.00 worth of its stock subscribed. The association declared a ten per cent dividend on paid up and installment stock.

The stockholders elected the following officials for the next fiscal year; C. D. Russell, president; A. E. Boyd, secretary-manager; D. Heflefinger, treasurer; C. C. Gidney, A. G. Hinn, C. G. Goodman, Guy Jacob, C. B. Harder, E. M. Carter, directors. W. E. Risser, for years a member of the board of directors, resigned on account of his removal to California. Carter took his place.

In addition to the ten per cent dividend the assocaition passed $668 over to the undivided profits fund. In its several years existence the associatio nhas never paid less than a ten per cent dividend. Since its founding, it has only made two foreclosures. Its authorized captial stock is $1,500.00.

Hoover Asked To Take Hand In Price Situation

CHICAGO, Jan. 19. (AP)—The heel of striking dairymen today pressed more firmly on the source of Chicago's milk supply.

Strikers of three states, seeking $2.85 a hundredweight instead of the $2.50 Chicago distributors are paying, have asked President-Elect Hoover to take a hand in the situation.

"In line with your policy of immediate relief for farmers," said a wire to Mr. Hoover by W. C. McQueen, president of the Pure Milk Association, "Our organization composed of dairymen supplying Chicago with pure milk, requests aid in his fight for a complete settlement of the marketing situation through arbitration."

Democratic Whip Explains Letter That Set Party In Uproar

Outspoken Texan Has Party In Uproar

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Avalanche.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—Congressman John C. Box of Texas loaded up his political shotgun recently with a letter to Franklin Roosevelt, New York state's newly-inaugurated governor, and fired it at Mr. Roosevelt—both barrels.

All Mr. Box meant to say, it appears, was that all good Democrats—he himself being one and Gov. Roosevelt another—ought to engage in a full, frank discussion of their party's position, which is not an altogether enviable one as a result of the last election, with a view to putting it on a better basis.

The interpretation put on the Box letter, however, was to the general effect that the Texan demanded the termination of the Smith-Raskob control of the Democracy, as the only means of saving it from hopeless ruin.

This was a heavier charge than Representative Box had intended to ram into his shooting iron.

It was rendered still heavier due to the fact that the Lone Star congressman is the new Democratic whip of the house of representatives, a highly responsible post.

The sequel was, when the representative pulled the trigger, that his gun's recoil nearly kicked him over.

I found him still breathless, in his office on Capitol Hill, when I dropped in to ask him what his idea was in peppering Gov. Roosevelt so energetically.

"I supported Gov. Smith loyally," he reminded me, "—not in the convention, indeed, but during the campaign. I'd support him again in the same circumstances.

"My letter's intention was to point to the urgency of an agreement by the Democrats on their essential policies, and this can only be accomplished by talking them over freely and candidly—not as if they had something to hide.

"My aim is to make the Democrats' position so clear, as a party of progress, that no progressive voter can be in any doubt that progress is what he is voting for when he casts a Democratic ballot. Outspokenness is the only method by which we can dot it."

Ralls C. C. Has Annual Meeting

RALLS, Jan. 19.—In a general meeting of the Ralls Chamber of Commerce held in the Municipal Auditorium last night officers and directors were elected for 1929. J. Edd McLaughlin was elected president and Reed B. Loflin was elected vice-president and treasurer. A. V. Bullock will continue as secretary.

The old board of directors were re-elected as follows: Dr. H. F. Schwab, Bruce Spencer, Roy Cooper, M. G. Hargraves, Ben Cole, Jr., W. F. Taylor and P. B. Ralls. Five new directors were elected as follows; Henry Hylliards, Clarence Hillan, Will Marr, Forrest L. Robbins and E. E. Elms.

Dr. H. F. Schwab, retiring president gave a general review of work done and things accomplished during 1928.

Data Bearing On Project Will Be Carefully Taken

Present Prospects, Actual Conditions, Cheering To Committee Which Backed Proposal Of Plant

BY LLOYD A WILSON
Special Correspondent

SLATON, Jan. 19—A thoroughly comprehensive survey of Slaton and surrounding territory to gather an array of facts bearing upon the feasibility of establishing a large creamery in Slaton has been started by the field representative of a well-known creamery concern.

The survey will be finished within a week, it is expected, after which definite announcement will be made as to building the creamery. Expense of the survey will be made as to the building the creamery . Expense of the survey will amount to several hundred dollars, due to its extreme thoroughness, officials said.

To Compile Data

General conditions in the city of Slaton and nearby sections will be carefully investigated, data will be compiled as to the number of dairy cows actually being kept by farmers and dairymen now, and all kinds of statistics affecting the success of such an enterprise will be collected.

The Slaton Chamber of Commerce, through its milk plant committee of 18 men, headed by J. H. Brewer, banker, as chairman, is cooperating in making the survey.

A surprisingly large number of encouraging facts have already been uncovered by the survey, causing local men to predict the creamery's establishment. If final results of the survey justify building the creamery, detailed plans will be announced. The plant would be owned and operated by thoroughly experienced and capable people, it is known here. The plant would cost nearly $50,000.

Cash Income Is Large

The amount of cash income received in 1928 by Slaton farmers in selling farm produce, such as cream, eggs, poultry, butter and milk, is approximately $250,000, excluding that portion used for home consumption. It is known also that there are at least 1,200 dairy cows in this territory, which, supplemented with cream to be purchased in surrounding towns and cities, would give an adequate supply for permanent operation and steady growth of a profitable creamery in Slaton, leaders have agreed.

If the plant is built, its output will be butter and ice cream, furnished to local and foreign markets. Farmers and business men here have pledged their co-operation to the plan. Bankers are very much interested. Farmers say a creamery will furnish the market outlet needed to develop the dairy industry here on a large scale, bringing permanent prosperity to the entire area.

New Warehouse Is Opened In Lubbock

Utmost Protection Is Given Against Fire By Firm Now Available To Business Men of City

Offering a new service which will save hundreds of dollars annually for the merchants and jobbers of Lubbock and the South Plains, the Lubbock Bonded Warehouse, 702-4-6-8 Texas Avenue, the only sprinkled and bonded warehouse in this section of the state, is now open for business with 35,000 square feet of available floor space.

Merchants will now be able to save freight rates by ordering in car load lots whereby the wholesale companies pay the freight, then store the merchandise in this new warehouse.

Equipped with the latest type automatic Grinnell Sprinkler, the Lubbock Bonded Warehouse affords the utmost safety against fire. The three-story brick building is equipped with electric elevators and modern equipment throughout. Ample trackage permits immediate delivery of car load shipments.

F. C. Olds is manager of the warehouse and H. C. Wooten, of Abilene, is president of the company. The entire plant entolls a total expenditure of about $75,000. It is now open for the inspection of the public.

Life Membership Campaign Starts In PTA Of State

Committee Formed In Each District To Enlist Ten Memberships Each; State Board Has Plan

The formation of a "Life Membership Enlistment Committee" in each of the fifteen districts of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations was authorized at the January meeting of the board of managers of the organization. This was done upon the recommendation of the state life membership chairman, Mrs. Edward Kneeland, Dallas, who after a year's rest from active work again consented to direct this work of the congress which she inaugurated and has so ably conducted for many years. The state committee as formerly, will be composed of the state chairman of the fifteen district presidents, while each of the district presidents, Mrs. W. K. Rose, Fort Worth; Mrs. M. A. Taylor, Bonham; Mrs. J. H. Moore, Deport; Mrs. A. W. Harrison, Woodville; Mrs. E. H. Marek, Yoakum; Mrs. Sidney Gilmore, Sonora; Mrs. James E. Morris, San Marcos; Mrs. J. M. Crain, Claude; Mrs. E. O. Siecke, College Station; Mrs. Harbert Davenport, Brownsville; Mrs. J. J. Devoti, Houston; Mrs. R. W. Robbins, Athens; Mrs. Frank Creighton, Wichita Falls; Mrs. J. E. Griggs, Lubbock, and Mrs. E. R. Russell, El Paso, will head a district committee composed of ten members appointed by the respective presidents.

The specific duty of each member of the fifteen committees will be to secure at least one life membership during the year. As there are ten members on each committee this means 150 life memberships as a minimum for the year 1929. From past records it is seen that this is a reasonable minimum number as some of the districts as first, second and eleventh, almost doubled that number during the last year, eleventh receiving the award of the loving cup for securing the greatest number, which was 19.

Preparing Leaflet

Mrs. Kneeland at the request of the board is preparing a leaflet with the present plan of the work outlined with general information about life memberships, and with a list of the thousands of life memberships that are now held in the congress. This leaflet will explain that while aligning with the Texas congress for life, those people who are interested in the organization's great purpose of child welfare, the life membership fee of $25 is a real source of power and a great help in the educational work and extension program of the organization.

The financial air from this department if the minimum of 150 memberships is secured will be $3,750 for 1929, and that amount can do much wisely expended. As an incentive to the districts to speed up this program, Mrs. Kneeland has secured an award of $50, donated by the Wilkins Trunk Manufacturing company of Dallas, which amount will be invested in life memberships for the district securing first its minimum of ten life members. These two memberships may be presented to any person the winning district wishes to honor.

To aid the district life membership enlistment committee, the board of managers approved and authorized the appointment of a life membership committee in every one of the local associations whose duty it will be to carry on a program of education in this work. Also the program of every district convention this spring will present a speaker on life memberships. Pledges will be taken at these spring conferences and all locals are asked to instruct their delegates about pledging.

Beige Continues To Hold Its Own In Spite Of Efforts To Reduce It

A beige lace gown from Mag-Helly is charmingly correct for spring evening wear.

BY ROSETTE

NEA Service Writer

PARIS, Jan. 19—It is curious how beige continues to hold its own in spite of the efforts of the couturiers to replace it by such colors as red, blue and vanilla. These were obviously launched to try and dethrone beige, apparently without avail, although we have all called it common and lacking in distinction.

Experience has taught us that there is an infinite variety of beiges and the ingenuity of French manufacturers is never at fault to find something new. They have recently created for a few of the leading couturiers certain exclusive shadings in beige that can never be found in a store and the whole crux of the question evidently resides in that fact. If a beige ensemble worn by a smart woman is easily distinguishable from the other shades seen on the street, that beige will always look aristocratic. The thing was to find this out.

Again—Beige Preferred!

A Chaney ensemble in one of these exclusive beiges was seen a few days ago worn by a well-known society woman who was lunching at the Ritz. The color scheme was carried out even to the close-fitting toque and shoes, and the sweater possessed the only touch of color in the form of red, blue and yellow stripes disposed around the shoulders in a yoke effect. Chanel has repeated these stripings in the lining of her coats accompanying such ensembles, and the effect is undoubtedly smart. Although such an ensemble in red, blue or a dark brown would look equally smart, beige invariably seems to have the preference.

Beige has even invaded the realm of evening gowns and quite a fair number of gowns in this color now can be seen, even at formal functions. Patou's robe de style in beige tulle grading from dark to light has been very successful, and even dressy evening gowns will often be made of blonde mousseline and lace combined.

Grey Difficult to Wear

Grey does not seems to have found much favor, even though many couturiers have shown it in both their winter and mid-season collections. It is perhaps a difficult color to wear save for the young and very fair complexions, but a recent bride appeared at a tea-party clad in pearl grey from head to foot and was a tremendous success. Her hat, shoes, stockings and the fur on her coat all matched exactly and the grey she had chosen was almost white.

Apparently we shall see neither daring nor aggressive shades this coming spring, but unobtrusive blues—from turquoise to purple—and much of chartreuse greens and yellows. Black and white combined is a foregone conclusion, naturally, and we shall certainly see a season of satin-tailored suits in block with white blouses. Blue seems to be one of the coming evening shades and some advance evening models show pink and black combinations for evening wear. One gown in particular was made of a pink moire bodice embroidered in diamante with a drooping black velvet skirt.

Cast Is Selected For January Play Of Local Theatre

"Sun-Up", Representative American Production, To Be Next Offering Here Of Little Theatre

A cast for "Sun-Up", Little Theatre play to be presented on January 31, has been announced by the director, Miss Ruth Pirtle. Practice for this play has been going on for several weeks although the entire cast has just been selected.

"Sun-Up" which was written by Lulu Vollmar, is described as a representative American play and it is one of the popular plays being shown in New York now. Virtually every Little Theatre organization in Texas and the South has produced this play which is also proving popular with chautauqua circuits.

The mountaineers of North Carolina and Kentucky are represented in the play.

Widow Cagle, one of the leading roles in the play will be played by Mrs. T. A. White, a popular reader here.

George Smallwood, of the Technological college faculty, has the part of Pap Todd and Mrs. Leta Flo Edgar, who played recently in "Nothing But the Truth", has the part of Emmy Todd.

Leroy Vaughan is cast as Bud and J. B. Galland has the part of Sheriff Weeks. Earl Sparks is cast as Rufe Cagle, E. W. Provence is cast as the Preacher, Gaylord Hankins has the part of the Stranger and Charles Lackey has the role of Bob.

This play will be the first that has been produced this season under the direction of Miss Pirtle, who is at the head of the public speaking department of the Technological college, although she has directed other Little Theatre productions here.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Allene Sumner

All sorts of punishments for violators of the prohibition amendment were suggested by thousands of entrants participating for the W. C. Durant prize money for the best plans for prohibition enforcement. Many of the contestants favored punishment as a deterrent and suggested such cheerful forms of it as being given poison in the liquor, banished to barren islands, suspended from the ceiling by the thumbs, and similar bits of pleasantry.

CRUEL WOMAN

Comment is made that most of the punishment suggestions were by women, and that the most fiendish forms were unearthed by the frail sex.

It probably only means that more women competed than men, women having the contest bug to much greater proportion than males, or it may only mean that that women, having suffered most from violation of the prohibition law, feel the need for revenge more. Mothers of sons, and all that.

WHY?

The body of a 21-year-old college girl was washed up from under the rocks at the foot of a cliff the other day. Every means, including the chartering of an airplane to skim over the lake looking for the body had been employed by the girl's prosperous father during the several days of the girl's disappearance. Bloodhounds finally trailed her to the cliff's edge twice.

REASONS

Nervous prostration and melancholia over her illness were advanced as cause of the suicide or accident. "Flaming youth" can not be cited as a cause, for college authorities remarked on the girl's quietness and absorption in her studies. Other analyzers will seize upon too much study as a cause and wonder why girls go to college, anyway.

But nobody knows just why and how it all happened. Just one more challenge to the men of mental science who are needed today even more than physicians for the physical.

ETERNAL HOPE

An 80-year-old Civil War veteran obtained one of the last Reno divorces of 1928 on the grounds of excessive jealousy. He was married a few hours later to another lady. Rather strangely enough, I find more optimism than anything else in this little human anecdote. It is a symbol of the hope that springs eternal in the human breast, sometimes.

HUMAN DEPRESSIONS

Humans in the main are apt to get too discouraged at the prospect of the coming years at times. At 20 one regards 30 as hopelessly old, at 30 one is inclined sometimes to laugh at 20's idea and sometimes to believe it's viewpoint is right. As one grows older it is increasingly difficult to believe that the best years are not gone or that there is anything ahead.

The spectacle of the 80-year-olds daring to cast off the old and be on with the new is good for all of us.

Social Club Formed Among Group Of Girls Friday

There have been a number of social activities among the high school groups during this week-end. Seniors, who have been divided into eight social groups this year, enjoyed parties on Friday evening and other affairs were attended.

Animation Is Dominating Note Of Fashion

BY MME. LISBETH

Animation seems to be the dominating note of fashion in these bustling days. Draperies and floating panels, anything that sways and swings, is used to give this vivacity. Particularly is this true in the evening or formal mode.

Pictured are two striking costumes for formal wear, one for evening and one for daytime, outdoor service. At the left the frock is rose chiffon fashioned on slender lines, but with capelets of flesh colored chiffon embroidered to the right shoulder and left hip, giving width and animation. The decolletage is unusually high for the type of dress. It is an American design.

The stunning afternoon ensemble, right, is worn by Jeanette Loff, featured picture player. Black and cream are skillfully blended in it. The coat is made of black transparent velvet with a collar of marten bleached and dyed a deep cream. An attractive feature is the double sleeve which gives a semi-cape effect.

The black velvet skirt has an uneven hem. The closely fitted bodice is of cream lace, which is also used to finish the lining of the coat, where it joins the black lapels.

The hat is of black and cream handkerchief felt and black lace. A long necklace of crystal is a charming accessory.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

Does each of your children have a supply of clean, whole, plain, handkerchiefs—the kind that is not too fine for use and that has no fancy colors or stitching that will run in the boiling?

Every child should have at least a dozen and a half—enough for him to help himself to a clean one twice a day.

Don't hold up your hands and talk about the washing. Better washing than doctor bills, and if necessary the handkerchiefs can be dried evenly, folded neatly in squares, and used without ironing. They will not be quite so absorbent nor so soothing to sore little noses, but at least they are clean and antiseptic, and that's the big thing in these days of influenza and head colds. As to expense, you can get some good ones for a nickel apiece.

Learn About Hankies!

Handkerchief education is important; more than that, necessary. And yet children go daily from homes where napkin and towel service is given the strictest attention, without a handkerchief in their pockets, or else some flimsy little excuse of one that becomes soiled and wrinkled with one blowing, and stays so.

The first thing is to see that each child has a substantial clean handkerchief in his pocket each morning, and if that one has been used, another at noon.

The second thing is to teach him that when he coughs or sneezes he must use his handkerchief to cough or sneeze into.

School rooms are more or less germy. New system of ventilating and the custom of "flushing" the room occasionally with pure outside air, help a great deal, but it would be impossible to keep the air entirely germ free. Every time your child sneezes or coughs into it, he adds to the collection.

With clean handkerchiefs should go clean hands. Make the children wash their hands thoroughly and often, particularly just before meals.

PIANO CLUB MEETS

During the evening Ruth Holland read and music was enjoyed. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Frank A. White is ill at her home, 1411 8th Street, with the influenza.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

MME. RUBINSTEIN

From inertia we passed to wriggling, and from wriggling to squatting. Now we're beginning to get somewhere in this long drawn out process of evolution. Truly, it seems to me that the most doubtful point I can think up against the entire theory of evolution is the utter lack of conception of such patience as both the master mind and the structure it works upon would have to possess. How can life or nature or God have waited endless centuries to perfect a serpent so that it might eventually develop frog like tendencies?

So to go back to the exercises with which I am infinitely more familiar, and let me explain largely that the group I have classified under the mammal variety are the "all-four" exercises. Man is now beginning to rise from the ground, and find new use for legs and arms—not only as propellers, but in hanging and grasping. Naturally, as they attained this new growth, more strength developed. Nature has a way of fitting her results to our needs. So we begin to discover a certain balance between arms and legs, a gradual strengthening of the spinal column the abdominal wall growing stronger and firmer so that the delicate inner organism is protected even in a suspended position.

All your exercises now must work toward the accomplishment of this end. Try to perfect a half dozen or more variations of the "all-four" exercises. Many modern physicians claim that if man were to spend even a little time daily on "all-fours," the results would be very beneficial.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BY SISTER MARY

Breakfast — Tangerine oranges, cereal, cream, creamed potatoes, broiled cottage ham, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Scalloped lima beans and Spanish onion, tomato and banana salad, toasted muffins, milk, tea.

DINNER—Rabbit pie, baked winter squash, curly endive and celeriac salad, apple snow pudding, milk, coffee.

A garnish of pickeld beets adds much to the dinner salad. The beets can be cut in fancy shapes or finely chopped and sprinkled over the thinly sliced celriac. Either French or mayonnaise dressing can be used but for this particular meal mayonnaise is a good choice since the rest of the dinner is not heavy.

Tomato and Banana Salad.

Four hot-house tomatoes, 3 bananas, 1 head celery, lettuce, mayonnaise.

Peel tomatoes and cut in slices. Line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves which have been carefully washed and crisped. Arrange slices of tomatoes on bed of lettuce and over them place bananas cut in slices. Sprinkle with celery cut in short match-like pieces and serve at once with mayonnaise.

If fresh tomatoes are not procurable a tomato jelly can be made from canned ones. The bananas and celery can be added to the jelly when stiffening or the stiff jelly can be cut in slices and the salad arranged in the same way the fresh vegetable is used.

City Needs New $350,000 High School, Duncan Says

Superintendent of Schools Issues Statement Explaining Reasons For New High School; Asks People's Aid

Urges Patrons to Lend Aid In Securing Needs Which Present Themselves; Aim Of All The Same, Says

Declaring that the schools of the city are facing a problem of expansion which must be solved by the patrons and citizens of the city as a whole, M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the system yesterday went on record as favoring the construction of a new high school building to cost not less than $350,000 fully equipped.

Pointing out that under present conditions plus additional scholastics at the opening of the school term next fall the half-day session would have to be resorted to in the high school. Mr. Duncan urges the city to look carefully to his school problems. He also advises that time and thought, in unstinted quantities, be given the subject.

Makes Complete Statement

His statement in regard to the new building, including his reasons and his future plans, follows in full:

"I regard it my business to let the people know the conditions in their schools and to suggest what seems to me the best means of meeting their needs. It is the people's business to correct those conditions if they do not seem right to them. I have studied the school situation here very carefully. In fact, I am studying it all the time and think I keep pretty well up with it, and I feel that the only adequate solution to the present problem of the congestion in the schools is a new senior high school building to cost not less than $350,000 including the equipment.

Community Is Growing

"This may seem to be a good deal of money to invest at one time in a school building, and it is; but we must remember that we are a rapidly growing community, with an increase each year in our school population of not less than five hundred, and that it will take only a few years to fill such a building. We have an increase this year over last year of 685 pupils and the prospects are that we shall have an even greater increase for next year over this year, judging from the present rate of growth in our schools and the tendency of people to come this way. Another increase of 685 would mean an increase of 1,370 for the two years or nearly enough to fill the proposed building. No one would say that we should build for a shorter period than two years. We already have an overflow of seven rooms in our present senior high school building, which with the ten room son half day session in our grade schools, means that we shall need at least 25 additional rooms to take care of the increase in the schools at the beginning of next year.

Reasons Are Given

"But to state the facts as briefly as I can, we need a senior high school building for the following reasons:

"1. Our senior high school, grades 9 to 11, inclusive, for which this building is proposed, has long ago outgrown the present building, and is using seven rooms that rightfully belong to the junior high school.

"2. The present senior high school building was completed more than six years ago when no one could foresee the high school needs of Lubbock at the present time, and, as a result this building is entirely inadequate to accommodate the present high school student body and provide facilities for the kind of work we are trying to do. The facilities in nearly all departments are very inadequate. This is especially true in home economics, the sciences, the businesses department, mechanical drawing, and physical training. We must have better facilities nearly everywhere if we maintain a first class high school. The state high school inspector was with us one day during the past week. She complimented the work that we are doing very highly, but said that we must provide additional room if we maintain our standing with the state department of education and the southern association of accredited schools. It is thus not a matter of what we should like to do, but of what the state department at Austin will require us to do to maintain with them our affiliation.

"3. A building for the senior high school is the only satisfactory means of relieving the congestion in all the schools at the present time. A new grade building in the southwest part of town would relieve Dupre, but it would not help Geo. M. Hunt, K. Carter, or the high school. A grade building in the northwest part of town would relieve K. Carter, but it would not help Geo. M. Hunt, Dupre, or the high school. A building in the southeast part of town would help Geo. M. Hunt, but it would not relieve the other schools named. It is clear to any one in touch with the conditions in our schools that it would require three grade buildings to relieve the congestion in the grade schools, and that even three grade buildings would not help the high school.

Explains Plan

"With a new high school building, however, we could use the present high school and junior high school buildings or grades six to eight, inclusive, all over the city, and still have sufficient room left in those buildings to accommodate the lower grades from the west and the northwest part of town. We could take the sixth grade from Dupre and thus relieve the congestion there. We could take the sixth grade from Central Ward and make it possible for that school to take care of the overflow from both Geo. M. Hunt and K. Carter. A senior high school building would thus relieve the congestion everywhere in the schools and make it possible for all grades in all schools to run on full day session.

"In fact, as I see the situation, if some better plan does not suggest itself I am going to recommend that the senior high school be run on half day session next year. By such an arrangement, we would make it possible to accommodate grades six to eight, inclusive, in the junior high school building and thus relieve Dupre so that that school could have all grades on full day session. By taking the sixth grade from Central ward, we would make it possible for that school to take care of the overflow from Geo. M. Hunt, and K. Carter, so that both those schools could run on full day session.

Half Day Session Bad

"The half day session for the high school is not an ideal arrangement and it should be resorted to only in an emergency, but it is the only adequate means of taking care of the situation at the present time, and I mention it here so that the patrons may understand that the congestion in our schools is really due to the overflow in high school and that a new high school building would take care of the crowded conditions in all the schools. A new high school building would release the present high school for junior high school and grade work and thus provide just that many more rooms than may be provided by a half day session in that school.

"I am giving the facts so that the partons of the schools may have opportunity to study the problems with us, and that we all together may arrive at a proper solution. We all have just one aim and that is to take care of the schools in an adequate way and with the least cost to the school district. We all want the best school advantages for the children at the lowest possible cost. That is my aim and I am sure it is the aim of every one. I am trying to build no monument for myself except in the lives of the children and I am sure no one would object to such an ambition. I realize that any high school building that may be erected now will be so inadequate ten years from now that the people then will wonder at our lack of vision. But it is my business to do the best I can now and let those who come after me think what they please of my vision. No man has the vision to see what will be here ten years from now, and, if one did have such a vision he would be so much in the minority as to be helpless to persuade those around him to provide adequately for the future".

Slaton Postal Receipts Grow

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, Jan. 19.—Slaton postal receipts in 1928 compare very favorably with the record of 1927, according to Postmaster Jmes S. Bates. The 1928 total was $15,813.84. This was also a nincrease over 1926.

The present year will stand out as an important historical date for the Slaton Post Office, due to establishment of city mail delivery which began on Jan. 2.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BIG SPRING, Jan. 19.—According to records in the Tax Collectors office of this city, 2500 auto licenses have been applied for this year with approximately 2000 more cars to be registered. Up to Jan. 1, 1929 a majority of the cars on the streets of Big Spring bore license plates from other states.

HEAT JAIL

Install System In Howard County House

BIG SPRING, Jan. 19.—The commissioners court of Howard county awarded the contract today for hte installation of a heating system of the county courthouse and jail. The contract was awarded to A. P. Kasch plumbing and heating comapny of this city for a consideration of $15,000. The county jail is now being remodeled and a 30 day notice has been given the city by the court that it will be necessary for them to provide a separate place of cofinement for their prisoners due to lack of space in the present building.

A NEW "RACKET"

Youth's Scheme Lands Him Behind Bars

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 19. (AP)—It was just a new "racket" and neither unmoral nor immoral, officers discovered, although it was rather embarrassing to the young ladies whose measurements were taken.

The youth established a school here where he advertised he would train girls as models. He measured applicants and charged a $5 fee. But when they didn't get jobs some of them compalined, and the investigation resulted.

And now the racketeer is in jail charged with fraud. The girls are no nearer a modelling job than before.

COLORFUL KERCHIEFS

Orange, red, black and blue are some new modernistic kerchiefs that come in sets of three, one each for the head, neck and waist.

This Is Mexico

Twelve Saloons and Few Tourists

PRESIDIO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Cotton production in the vicinity of Ojinaga, a small Mexican village opposite Presidio, is on the increase; but the town isn't building so rapidly.

Situated on a hill overlooking the Rio Grande, the typical Mexican "pueblo" has twelve saloons, few tourists and seldom change for a five dollar bill. There is not a well in the place boys hauling water on burros, sitting astride the patient little animals, urging them on with an iron rod. Water is transported in sheepskin bags.

Wood also is transported on burros. Hogs in the town are tethered by the leg under ramshackle sheds.

Ojinaga boasts two cotton gins and two flour mills. Ginners say the present 600-bale crop of cotton is to be increased to 5,000 bales annually. The flour mills once ground wheat but little of that is grown now.

Visitors are treated with the greatest courtesy—if they have money. One North American resides in the place, a saloonman who married into a high class local family.

Charles Dickens wrote a "Life of Christ" specially for his children. Although the manuscript still exists, it has never been published.

FREE BED COSTLY

Lodging In Jail Brings Vagrancy Fine

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 11 (AP)—Charles Butts, who said he was a wanderer from New York, discovered the luxury of San Angelo's best hotel would have been cheaper than the discomfort of a cot in the county jail. His request to sleep at the jail one night was granted.

Later he was fined $28 in county court on a charge of vagrancy when he was unable to show visable means of support.

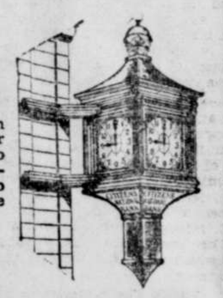

It has recently been found that hailstones often contain bacteria probably because the water vapor condensed on particles of organic dust.

County's Highway Problems Continue As Paramount

Poll Tax Funds Mount Steadily As Citizens Sense Future Efforts To Pass Bond Issue For Better Roads

BY AL HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock county road question continues very much alive.

It remains the subject of innumerable conversations.

It is, undoubtedly, the cause of an increase in the number of poll taxes now being paid in the county, which might not have been paid, were this question either answered or had it never been raised.

Defeat of the $1,000,000 county-wide bond election of Saturday, January 12, in which it was proposed that bonds be voted to pave all the county's designated state and federal highways, not only did not silence the query of Lubbock county's good roads problem, but it seems to have increased inquisitiveness among the citizens of every part of the county.

Believe Court Is Right

Some seem to see a happy event in the action of the county commissioners' court, early in the past week, when they decided not to create an independent road district, as requested in the petition filed with them Tuesday morning. By holding up action on this request, it is thought by quite a number of far-seeing citizens of the county, including some in the city of Lubbock and some in the city of Slaton, that the commissioners made a wise gesture towards creating county-wide harmony.

Harmony among Lubbock county citizens is possible, and it is predicted, in Lubbock and in Slaton, that a county-wide road-paving bond issue campaign can be originated, wherein united action by the majority of the leaders in all parts of the county may be obtained.

Elsewhere on this page you will find an editorial reproduced, which appeared in The Slaton Slatonite. From it you can gather a reflection of the feeling of Slaton leaders regarding the road bonds question. Also, you will find a very wisely written article on the question by C. E. Maedgen, who was chairman of The Tax Payers, the organization which sponsored the last road bond issue.

Here's The Situation

By reading these two expressions, we gain further enlightenment.

Before reading them, however, unless you have already perused them, it might be well to pause for a few statements.

Opinion, generally expressed, seems to be that there should be no big hurry about calling the county's next road bond issue election. Many opinions declare that the first one was called at a bad time of the year when folks were beginning to plan on Christmas spending. Others state thrt the last election was called at particularly a bad time—right in the middle of everybody's tax-paying troubles.

"How could any bond issue carry at such a time?" is asked.

Therefore, while we are biding our time in between elections, the light of closer study should be turned on various phases of Lubbock county's better roads problem.

Can't Specify Type

First, according to County Judge Robert H. Bean, County Commissioners J. T. Pinkston, W. L. Brashear, L. C. Denton and N. A. Payne, with many others who have closer contact with the problem, the idea that this, or any other county, can declare specifically, in their election calls, that bonds are to be voted for concrete roads—or any other particular type of road construction—must be eradicated from our minds.

Emphatic declarations, heard many times and in many places, have been to the effect that citizens are determined to vote only for a road proposition that ties the county commissioners court and the state highway department strictly to the building of concrete roads, or nothing.

Judge Bean and the commissioners contend that they can do nothing, except in accordance with the state laws. In reality, the state highway department has the final say as to what kind of paving is to be placed on any and all highways. They would resent the counties telling them how to build their roads, it is said.

Rules for Order

When the county commissioners' court makes out an election order, it must be done in accordance with the following section of the Texas General Laws, as stipulated in Section 2, Chapter 16, of Senate Bill 287:

"Upon the petition of 50 resident taxpaying voters of any county, the commissioners' court of such county, at any regular or special session thereof, shall order an election to be held in such county to determine whether or not the bonds of such county shall be issued for the purpose of the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, and whether or not taxes shall be levied on all taxable property of said county, subject to taxation, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity. The election order and notice of election shall state the purpose for which the bonds are to be issued, the amount thereof, the rate of interest, and that ad valorem taxes are to be levied annually on all taxable property within said county sufficient to pay the annual interest and provide a sinking fund to pay the bonds at maturity."

Might Cause Red Tape

For the benefit of the laymen, it is taken by the above section that any election order issued by any commissioners' court that does not conform, to the letter, with the wording of this section, then the sale of any bonds that might be voted would be impossible, from a legal and technical reason.

So much for that.

Some criticism of the county commissioners' court, in failing to act on the petition filed last week calling for the creating of an independent road district, has been heard.

The court is fully within its right. They are not compelled to act on any petition for creating any road district, unless they so desire. The law grants the commissioners' court the power to create independent road districts, of themselves, the process being simply the details of designating the metes and bounds desired by the court for such a district.

Notice Must Be Posted

However, the petition on file will have precedence over any other petition that might be filed with the court, in which a request for another independent district might be made. Even if the court should follow this, or any other request, to the letter, the law requires them to post notices of their intention and to hold hearings from all sides of such a proposition, before they can make any final decision.

In the meantime, Lubbock county's far-seeing citizens are talking, thinking and desiring county-wide harmony. It is hoped that such a spirit will prevail by the time the next road bond election is called.

Present indications, as observed by this writer, point to a conservative, logical, fair, well-thought-out, fool-proof, almost-impossible-to-be-criticised plan that will meet with a "whoopee" of county-wide approval.

That is, if the present session of the Texas legislature does not decide to immediately take over the job of paving all our county roads. Such an occurrence would be quite miraculous and we really are looking for Lubbock county citizens to be compelled to wrinkle their brows in solutions of their own particular road problems.

Lubbock County's Problems Concerning Paved Roads

By C. E. MAEDGEN.

There has been so much said in the newspapers since the bondelection of Saturday, January 12, I think it appropriate that some expression be given, with reference to what might happen within the next twelve months, possibly within the next three months, in regard to whether or not Lubbock County is to remain in the spotlight of highway development in this section of the State.

There could be much said in the matter of the two previous bond elections, both for and against, as to why the bond issues failed to carry. We should not undertake to criticise those who favored the previous issues, nor condemn those who opposed them, but on the contrary, we should be more enlightened as to what our road building program in this county should be.

All For Good Roads.

It would be a reflection on anyone's intelligence to say, though they voted against the bond issue, they are not for good roads; anyone who is abreast of the times is certainly in favor of good roads; however, the manner in which to build good roads is a much debated question. I, for one, am of the opinion that to build roads by bonded indebtedness, with a taxation on the property of a county or even a state, is economically unsound. I think it wrong, as a principle, to tax railorads with an ad valorem tax to construct highways, which afford means of traffic and travel in direct competition to their business. It is also unsound to tax the property of any citizen, who possibly does not even own an automobile, to furnish a roadbed for people to travel over, who own nothing else but an automobile. It would probably be the proper thing to construct highways in such a manner that the man who travels over them should pay for their cost of construction and maintenance, out of a proper vehicle tax or out of a proper vehicle tax or out of a tax on motor fuel in the form of gasoline or such other motive power, as might be used.

Must Face Conditions

Whether we are for bond issues for building highways, or are of the opinion the State should build them on a vehicle tax, we are still confronted by the fact that there is no provision at this time for the constructton of highways, and there may never be, other than the issuance of bonds by the counties. We are also confronted with the fact that if Lubbock county remains in the limelight of development, it is highly essential that some provision be made for the construction of adequate concrete highways, sufficient to take care of the traffic and to have sufficient endurance to last the life of the bonds. We are seriously handicapped in this county at this time by reason of our delay in highway construction. Whether we are for bond issues or whether we are against them, we are face to face with a problem, which we should solve for the protection of our commercial interests and property values.

Consequently, it behooves the best brains of Lubbock county to cooperate with the hope that a satisfactory solution of the road building program in this county might be arrived at. It is, therefore, very likely that another bond election will be called during the first half of 1929.

County Is Fortunate

Lubbock county is so fortunately situated at this time, as to the number and location of state and federal designated highways and those in process of being state and federal designated highways in the near future, that we should not think of a division of the county, but that the entire county should be linked together in one program of road construction on the state and federal designated highways and those which might hereafter, within a short time, be designated highways.

The bond issue, which was voted on, on January 12th, would have provided funds sufficient for the construction of approximately one hundred miles of highway.

There has been much said with reference to the attitude of the Slaton voters and as to their opposition to any road building program, in which they would not get their just share of road building. Slaton is composed of a high type progressive citizenship, who, I am convinced, would only want what is fair to them. I feel sure that their opposition to the bond issue voted on, on January 12, was due to misinformation and lack of study of what really their share is and what the rest of the county is entitled to.

Percentages Seen

According to the information and figures obtained in the Lubbock County Tax Assessor's office, the total amount of assessed taxable values in Lubbock county is $22,092,101.00. The total amount of taxable values in Road District No. 1, which comprises the town of Slaton, is $1,573,220.00. It is therefore apparent from these figures that the total value of property in Slaton Road District is just 7 per cent of the total amount of values in Lubbock county. There are several miles of highway No. 7 between Slaton and the Lynn county line. If Slaton district should have been charged with a few miles of highway between Lubbock and Slaton, it is safe to say that Slaton trade territory would have received 10 per cent of the total miles of highway to have been constructed in Lubbock County on the Million Dollar bond issue. It is therefore evident that Slaton's 10 per cent of highways would have been more than she was entitled to on her 7 per cent assessed values.

In the previous bond elections, it was contemplated that present outstanding bond indebtedness on Road District No. 1, amounting to $22,000 would have been taken up by the rest of the county, not included in Road District No. 1. This $22,000 would have been a total loss to the county as a whole, and if Road District No. 2 is created, that amount would be saved to the county, and would still be a tax burden to the citizenship of Slaton and other taxpayers within Road District No. 1.

Sees Better Times

I feel sure that when Slaton people are fully informed, that they will be for a road building program covering all the highways in Lubbock county, on the grounds that they will be getting their just share.

There has been some criticism of the attitude of the Commissioners' Court in refusing to act on the petition to create Road District No. 2. I personally believe that they have acted wisely, for the reason that there might be hopes of harmonizing Slaton's attitude with that of the rest of Lubbock County. It is certain that the County Judge is charged with administering justly the affairs of the entire county; and the commissioners, themselves, although they may be the representative of a definite commissioner's precinct, are also charged with the responsibility of administering the affairs of the county as a whole; and I feel that our commissioners are men, who have the welfare of the entire county at heart, as well as the welfare of their separate precinct. I think it just to the Commissioners' Court that the sentiment of the people uphold them in their action to keep the county united, until it is definitely proven that a division of the county into road districts is necessary.

Consolidation Is Seen

If the Commissioners' Court find it necessary to create Road District No. 2, for the purpose of building roads in Lubbock county by bond issues, it is quite apparent to those who are thinking on the subject that a consolidation of highway No. 7 with highway No. 9 from Post City through Tahoka and Lubbock is the solution to the problem. This is based on the information that the State Highway Department will construct a paved highway from Post City to Tahoka, and that Highway No. 9 from Tahoka is also to be paved; this would only increase the mileage from Post City to Lubbock over highway No. 8, by way of Tahoka, about nine miles. In doing so, Lubbock, Lynn and Garza counties and the State Highway Department would save approximately a million and a half ($1,500,000.00) dollars in the construction of Highway No. 7 from Post City to Lubbock, by way of Slaton.

Organization Needed

If it is the attitude of the Slaton people to oppose the rest of Lubbock County in a road building program on the State and Federal designated highways and those in process of being designated, the chances are very good that they will be left off the highway map, which in my opinion would be detrimental not only to the citizens and property owners in Slaton, but would be detrimental to all interests of Lubbock County. It is imperative to my mind, that the best brains of Lubbock county, to be represented by the tax payers and business interests of Slaton, Lubbock and representatives from each of the voting boxes in Lubbock county, organize themselves at once into a Lubbock County Highways association, for the purpose of arriving at a satisfactory solution of the road problem, such as we are now confronted with. I think it important that such an organiaztion be perfected at a mass meeting of such proper representatives of this county, to be called together as soon as it is possible to do so. When this is done, I feel that if Slaton does not want to join in the road building program such as would bring about the construction of hard surfaced roads on all of the State and Federal designated highways and those in the process of being designated, then the Lubbock citizens and the rest of Lubbock county would be justified in joining together and concentrating their efforts and energies on the consolidation of highway No. 7 and highway No. 9, from Post City to Lubbock, via Tahoka over highway No .9, and eliminate any construction whatever on highway No. 7.

If I can have my wishes in the matter satisfied, there will be no election ordered until all of the conflicting interests of Lubbock county can be harmonized, even those with reference to the location of highway No. 53.

Editorial In Slaton Paper Tells Why People Of Nearby City Voted Against Recent County Bond Issue

Neighbors To Southeast In Accord Over Own Problem But Hope For Better Day In Road Situation

That the people of Slaton and the outlying community have their own highway problems as well as those which pertain to the county as a whole, was brought out in an editorial which appeared in a recent edition of the Slatonite, newspaper in the neighboring city. The editorial is being reproduced below for the benefit of the people of the entire county:

WHY SLATON VOTED AGAINST THE BONDS

Slaton voted against county road bond issue last Saturday. That isn't news. To some, who do not know the facts and who have not seen them in their true perspective, it may appear that Slaton is unprogressive. This is not the case.

Slaton voted against the bonds last Saturday for more than one reason. A big reason was that Slaton, under the proposed plan of road building, was not getting what she is entitled to get. True enough, when the election was held on Dec. 1, at which time we voted on a road plan that would have given Slaton her share—and no more—of the roads, Slaton people did not vote for that bond issue by a two to one majority. Two Slaton voting boxes did give that bond issue more than a two to one vote, but the city as a whole turned it down. Why?

It wasn't because Slaton people did not want what they were entitled to. It wasn't because we are unprogressive. It was for other reasons, one of which was that the advocates of that bond issue believed the county as a whole would turn the issue down, and therefore did not do the intensive work in behalf of the bonds that they would have done if they had believed the issue had a chance. Hence, the vote was light, the opposers voting, while scores of the advocates did not vote. Those who opposed that plan did so for various reasons, one of which was that they opposed the increased taxes, and another was that they favored the statewide bond issue plan, which would build roads from taxes levied on gasoline instead of on property.

When the last bond election was called, and when its defects and unfair provisions became evident, sentiment began growing rapidly in Slaton that the bonds should be defeated very severely. This sentiment grew until the heavy adverse vote was given at the polls last Saturday.

Among these defects should be mentioned the road that was provid for from Idalou north to the Hale county line. From any angle, the inclusion of that road was not fair for Slaton. It was good for Lubbock and for the part of the county it would have passed through, but not for the county as a whole, especially on a comparative basis.

Then, there was a serious shortage in the amount of the bonds as proposed. To make up for this by issuance of county warrants would have been unwise. Better to have enough to begin with, thus insuring quality roads over every mile of the county. Juggling of the figures, and ignoring Slaton's commissioner, J. T. Pinkston, in preparing the plan, might be considered a chief cause of opposition by Slaton citizens.

At last, but perhaps not least the selfishness of the plan, made as it was by men who apparently thought only of Lubbock and themselves, went against the grain" with the people of Slaton. It was not easy to forget that Lubbock voted against the other bond issue by a good majority, when Slaton had her share—and no more—of the roads proposed. This "got under the skin" of the fellows who didn't even vote in the first bond election. And the people of the communities around Slaton felt the same way about it, and proved it when they voted last Saturday.

Apparently it has never occurred to Lubbock voters that they made the mistake of their lives in failing to support the first bond issue. They didn't realize, it seems, that the success of that plan would have been the "making" of Lubbock, as well as th erest of the county. Lubbock didn't live up, in that instance, to the reputation she admits having—that she grows as the South Plains grows, that she realizes that she must depend upon the South Plains and the other parts of Lubbock county in particular if she makes any progress at all, and that she rejoices in good things coming to others, because she depends on the others for much of her subsistence.

Rumors were afloat before the final returns were in from the bond election last Saturday saying that Lubbock will create a road district in the county, leaving Slaton out, and vote road bonds. Maybe so. If Lubbock feels that way about it—if she can't see her mistake in taking that attitude then she will probably go ahead. Doubtless she could carry such an issue, even if the rural territory opposed the plan. Slaton would probably not suffer from such an arrangement—there are those who believe it would be the best thing for Slaton and the worst thing for Lubbock.

It seems to us, however, that a plan might be agreed upon—a happy medium between the first plan and the second plan—one upon which Lubbock and Slaton might agree and support unitedly to their mutual benefit. If this could be done, it would be far better for the entire county. Why not now get together and work harmoniously for the progress of Lubbock county as a whole?

Health Officers Condemn Overheated Homes

In a widely published survey by The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, health officers of 225 cities state that in their opinion, overheating of living quarters and frequent colds make one susceptible to pneumonia and tuberculosis. This statement gives a still more serious aspect to the discovery of Dr. C.-E. A. Winslow (professor of public health, Yale School of Medicine) in New York City schools, where overheating by only two degrees caused a 70% increase in respiratory illness.

BEING UNPOPULAR

It is a very regrettable thing that some people—many people have come to the conclusion that they are compelled to sacrifice principle if necessary to be popular. Compromising with the ways of the world in order to be counted in on social affairs seems to be the general trend of the minds of many people in this day and time. In America now, as never before in the history of the nation, there is a great laxity of modesty among the women, and the men have to a great extent lost their former respect for womanhood. Today, as never before, there is less of that refinement among the American people. There is more slang used. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the people to disregard sex in their conduct, and it seems to be encouraged to a very great extent by writers who are asked for advice along that line. As an example a writer recently, was asked by a mother what she was going to do with her daughter, who acknowledged that she drank, and smoked cigarettes, and the answer came back, do every thing you can to have your daughter to do these things in a very moderate way, but it was necessary that she do both if she continued in society. That is an awful admission, to our mind, and it seems that the general trend of socsity is downward. No one will deny that it adds nothing to the charms of a young lady to smoke or drink, on the other hand it is an admitted fact that it ruins their complexion, their health, and their general good manners. While men pretend that they do not mind it, and possibly encourage it, they do so merely through formality and it does not appeal to them, in a sincere honest to goodness way. Few men seeking a wife will choose one of that type in preference to the one who is modest, refined and abstainer from drink and smoke. We are of the opinion that the womanhood of America is going to have to call a halt along this line if they are to have the respect of men of character. The danger to which the women of our land is drifting should be shouted from the pulpits, from the court benches and from the newspapers, if the nation is to be saved from the precipices over which they are sure to plunge in the future. Mothers should take a hand in the training of the daughters, and if they have done these things before, they should know the harm, and the dangers in them, and should surely use their efforts to prevent the daughters from making the same mistakes. Men should be more gentlemanly and the girls should be more modest, and when both determine to do this, there will be a wonderful improvement in the moral tone of the nation, and there will be fewer divorces. There will be fewer cases in court, less crime, and a bitter nation in general. Its time to call a halt. Do not wait for the other fellow to begin, but begin now, yourself.

REVIEW

Passing of time, is as the passing of an army. We see those who have rendered service, pass not as an army, but one by one they pass off the stage of life, and are gone except for the memory we have of their life, and their usefulness here. We see the pioneesr of the South Plains, and of Lubbock gradually passing from active list of citizens into the inactive list, and finally on to another world. We see them go, and with a tinge of genuine regret we lay them away in the city of silence, only to carry on through the memories of the past. The old line of workers for Lubbock is each year becoming thinner, and few of the faces of the leaders of the pioneer forces are seen these days. The same is true of the State. We read with regret day after day of the dropping out of some noble character, who has wrought well, who has served his state as a leader, who has made it possible by his great and active life, many of the conveniences and the comforts of life, that the present generation enjoys. By their efforts have made laws that makes life more pleasant. By their life they have preached the doctrine of love, and harmony and fellowship. By their efforts educational institutions have been established, and brought within easy reach of many. By their efforts facilities for carrying on have been given a good strat, and so on down the line, as each have worked in their individual sphere, the trail has been blazed, and the progress of those to follow has been made easier. This passes on into the national life, where we find figures passing that have been instrumental in making the paths of the nation more pleasant, and on and on into the various branches of industry, each playing an important part in making life more pleasant. And Internationalaly we face the passing group of men and women who have been prominent in matters of international importance. This brings to mind the serious illness of King George of England and then the reported seriousness of the great Marshall of armies during the World war, Ferdinand Foch, and George Clemenceau, of France, who was likewise prominent in the great conflict and who has had a leading role in reconstruction, and getting the nations in line for a better and more peaceful life. The passing of William Jennings Bryan, and President Woodrow Wilson, and others of our own nation who have had much to do with the betterment of living condition nationally and internationally.

We come to the realization of the fact that the years are rolling on. Time is passing, and with it the lives of friends and relatives, and we are following in our own period in their foot steps, and may it be that we shall have made life more pleasant to those who have lived with us, and shall follow in our steps. We know not the day nor the hour, and it is important then that we shall be prepared for the summons should it come this hour or this minute, which it might, to the seeming healthiest of us, and to those least expected. A good thought for today is, Are We Ready?

OLD SPANISH SPIRIT LINGERS IN LIMA, BUT NORTH AMERICAN INFLUENCE GAINS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is another story describing conditions in Latin America by Rodney Dutcher special correspondent for the Avalanche-Journal and NEA Service, who toured Latin America with the Hoover party.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
(Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—In Lima remain more than traces of ancient Spanish rule, but the stamp of North America is being ever more deeply impressed as the diversified infiltration of American capital and American trade continues to increase.

Some of us in the Hoover party stepped from the centuries-old cathedral, largest in this hemisphere, into a street paved by contractors from the United States and enters a North American-made motor car to be driven to a North American-built hotel or country club.

En route to the country club, with its polo field, swimming pool, golf course and tennis club, its background of Inca ruins and its Swiss servants who speak French, German and English, one passes over splendid American-made boulevards and highways through replicas of our own suburban developments, with their houses made of adobe brick but for sale on the installment plan in the American fashion.

Build in U. S. Style

Earthquakes and high prices for cement and steel maintain adobe as Lima's favorite building material, but very lately some seven and eight-story buildings have actually been erected in the heart of the city. One of these is that of W. R. Grace & Company, which would be a magnificent office building in any country.

The Grace activities in Peru illustrate the diversity of American interests which make our influence here so obvious. The Grace steamship lines operate from New York, New Orleans and San Francisco to the South American west coast. The concern carries on a large import-export business in all sorts of commodities, notably machinery. It has sugar plants and cotton mills inland including the world's second largest textile plant, and controls one of the Lima banks.

Meanwhile the Cerro de Pasco Company, American owned, produces for export some 10,000 tons of copper and lead each month, and the Ingersoll Rand Company supplies most of the mining machinery.

You can hear the Two Black Crows on the phonograph in every mountain mining camp. Every steamer brings down a hundred or more Crow records.

In 1920 the Foundation Company of New York made a $50,000,000 contract with Peru for a sanitary improvement program in 30 cities, including modern water and sewer systems, new pavements and macadamized roads and so on. The Foundation Company also established a cement plant and a refrigerated warehouse, which is the only place in Lima where animals may be legally killed for consumption.

Standard Oil controls 70 per cent of Peruvian oil production.

The Singer Sewing Machine Company, which has a remarkably effective organization in South America, sells to natives all over Peru on three-year payment plans.

Here, as throughout Latin America, Hollywood supplies nearly all the motion pictures. Lima likes them and there are so many movie fans who attend their theater everey day that programs have to be changed daily. Society attends the cinema on Saturday and Sunday.

ROLLING REDUCES YOUR EXCESS FAT FROM HIPS, THIGHS

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Before Operation

"I HAVE a little son aged eight years, who, the doctor says, has a bad appendix that should come out. However, he never complains of a pain there and seems very lively and full of pep. When the doctor pressed on his right side, he jumped a little and therefore the doctor said his appendix was affected. He is taking a medicine before meals which the doctor prescribed for him. I don't want to have him operated on if I can possibly help it. Do you think it advisable to take him to another doctor, or have an X-ray taken?

LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D.

"My husband is under the impression that a person can never live longer than 15 years at the most after the appendix is taken out. Will you please advise me if there is any truth in this, which he says he read in a reliable magazine.

"MRS. E."

Before any serious operation that isn't urgent, a patient is justified in asking for a consultation with another surgeon. In your case, I would ask for a consultation with a children's specialist.

That a person cannot live longer than 15 years after the appendix is taken out, was not read in a reliable magazine, as your husband thinks, Mrs. E. It sounds like a cultists' or faddists' magazine. It is utter nonsensense, no truth in it at all.

Mrs. R. has lost 45 pounds, but she is still too fat in the hips and thighs. What to do?

This unequal distribution of fat bothers a great many. The only thing to do, besides general reduction, is to take special exercises and massage for those parts (except the breasts). Good exercises for the hips are rolling and kicking, and brisk walking with long strides. You have to keep them up for a long time before you begin to see results. I told you of a woman friend of mine who was overfat only around the hips. She took the kicking exercises—kicking back and forth and sideways—twice a day, in relays of 100; and in three months she had kicked off three inches. She found that the exercise improved her health. She did not need to diet.

Rolling is a splendid exercise. You can do this without becoming dizzy if you don't keep rolling over and over. Simply lie on your back and roll over until you are on your back again; then go back. In this way you automatically compress and massage your hips and abdomen. Our exercises for the trunk muscles will be effective. The trunk muscles are the most neglected muscles in the body, and they should be exercised vigorously every day because they are so vital.

M.—If you have catarrh with an inflammation of the nasal sinuses (the passages leading from the nose), undoubtedly that may be part of the cause of some of your halitosis. And the little pieces of whitish matter that you can press out of your tonsils most assuredly add more than a little. These little masses are decomposed material made up of the epithelial cells cast off from the tonsils, food debris and germs. You have what is known as cryptic tonsils. You should be taking treatments from a nose and throat specialist for both your troubles.

PUBLIC OPINION

Lubbock, Tex., Jan. 19, 19229.
To The Editor:

As is well known, two recent road bond elections in Lubbock county have met defeat, but I am not convinced by this action that the people do not want paved roads. On the first proposition, the voters registered their opposition to building lateral or county roads in no uncertain terms and further effort in that direction is useless.

I think there was three causes for the defeat of the second proposition, and it is my purpose to point out what I think they were in this letter.

First, the State Highway Department said one million dollars was not enough money for the county's part to build first-class roads, and the people don't want to vote money for roads that will be worn out in a few years.

Second, the election order bound the Highway Department to a specific routing of Highway No. 53 into the town of Lubbock. Ninety-five per cent of the voters of Lubbock are not concerned in the routing of Highway No. 53, but they do think the specific routing of this highway should be left to the highway department, the same as it is on the other highways.

Third, the last election order was so worded that the county could never furnish but one-third of the cost of construction on any road, and this was unfair to the people on the Brownfield road, the Levelland road and the Becton road, as those roads could never have been built unless they were Federal designated. If we can get two dollars for one on most of the highways, we should be willing to meet the State halfway on the balance of them, as the State will maintain them forever.

I hold that a bond election worded as follows will receive 75 of the votes in Lubbock county.

PETITION.

We, the undersigned resident property taxpaying voters of Lubbock County, Texas, respectfully pray this Honorable Court to order an election in said county to determine the following proposition:

Whether or not bonds of said county shall be issued in the sum of $1,270.000 for the following purpose:

"The issuance of county bonds for the purchase of district roads and the further construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, gravelled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, throughout such county, as follows:

1. Bonds to be issued in the aggregate sum of $22,000, for the purpose of the purchase of district roads in said county, and which bonds shall be issued in similar denominations, bearing the same rate of interest, having the same date or dates of maturity and with similar options of payment as the bonds heretofore issued and now outstanding against Road District No. 1, of said county.

2. Bonds to be issued in the aggregate sum of $1,248,000 for the further construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, throughout such county, and which bonds may mature serially or otherwise at the discretion of the commissioners' court and may run for a term not to exceed forty years from their date and shall bear not more than five per cent interest per annum.

We further pray your Honorable Court that at said election there shall be submitted to the resident property taxpaying voters of the county the question as to whether or not an ad valorem tax shall be annually levied upon the property of said county, subject to taxation, for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity.

We further pray your Honorable Court that the proceeds derived from the sale of said bonds to the extent of $1,248,000, if necessary, be expended in the construction, maintenance and operation of paved roads and highways, or in aid thereof, in Lubbock County, as are now designated or may hereafter be designated, in accordance with the amount set opposite each of the following sections or units of road construction, or so much of said amount as may be necessary, to-wit:

Texas State Highway No. 7 via Slaton, Lubbock and Shallowater, $325,000.

Texas State Highway No. 9, via Woodrow, Lubbock and Monroe, to Abernathy, $275,000.

Texas State Highway No. 53, via Idalou, Lubbock, and Wolffarth, $371,000.

Lubbock went to the county line on Lubbock-Levelland road, $137,-000.

From Idalou via Becton to county Line on Idalou-Silverton road, $150,000.

Total, $1,248,000.

Bonds shall be issued, sold and delivered as if and only when the State Highway Department shall ask the county to deposit in escrow its prorata part of the cost of the construction of each of said highways or sections thereof.

WORTH IT.

Experts from the department of commerce figure that folks in the United States spent five billion dollars on Christmas shopping. Perhaps it was a few million one way or the other. What is a million or two among friends? And we are all friendly at Christmas time. The spending was a good thing. It put a lot of money in circulation, helped everybody, added to the general prosperity. As to the kindly Christmas spirit, how do you feel about that today? Does the glow last.

GOOD NEW ENGLAND NEWS.

The rest of the country has been feeling sorry for New England. Much of the cotton mill business has moved south. North Carolina today becomes what Massachusetts used to be. Comes now good news that in various lines of manufacturing New England is booming. New activity is reported from Maine to Connecticut. Good news for New England and good news for all the rest of the country.

FAITH.

Faith keeps you going even when the facts are against you. Fosdick, one of the soundest and straightest thinkers of the day, says: "How to keep one's heart in the midst of life's stress and to maintain an undiscourageable front in the fact of its difficulties is not an achievement which springs from anything that a laboratory can demonstrate or logic can affirm. It is an achievement of faith."

Faith does not call upon us to believe incredible things, but faith gives us the courage and hope to believe that a proper and intelligent adjustment to the facts of life will bring a better day.

You have the makings of a strong personality if you can carry your own weather. Most of us are dependent on atmosphere. If it is a dark, dull, and dreary day we are dark and dreary, too. The biggest people carry their own scenery. Sings Sdna St. Vincent Millay:

"The soul can split the skies in two
And let the face of God shine through."

SO THINK WE

We think one of the most vital needs of the city of Lubbock for consideration at this time is the school conditions. Public schools are the pride of the South Plains, but we cannot stand by and not keep abreast with the rapid development of everything else and not make provisions for the schools and see them continue to grow.

—o—

The six hundred and eighty five increase in our school population in one year, from October 1, 1927, to October 1, 1928, indicates an increase of about four and one half times that number in our total population, or an increase of more than three thousand.

—o—

With an increase of near one hundred per month from last October till Christmas and with about two hundred students enrolled since the holidays, it shows an increase of nearly five hundred students since the first of last October. Our buildings are overflowing, and part of the school is being operated on a half day basis now.

—o—

We do not wish to mislead people and have them believe that there is a grand rush to Lubbock, for there is not. As these new pupils comes in many are transferred to other schools, but at the same time we are gaining every month. Our city is showing a healthy substantial growth, and the need of a new and modern high school is becoming more eminent every month. The statistics of the school shows that the increase in school population is three times what it has been for any previous year, and it will mean that at the beginning of the school term next year seven or eight hundred new students will have to be taken care of. This is a pretty good sized school of itself, and more buildings will be needed.

—o—

According to Superintendent Duncan this will require twenty additional rooms to take care of this increase. Lubbock people cannot afford to let the public schools suffer. It is one of the greatest assets the town has—her schools. It is something that we have been years in building, and have accomplished wonderful things, and now we must go on with it.

—o—

We think it not wise to wait till the schools are so crowded that we must take some emergency steps to take care of them, but we should begin now, while there is time to build before the need becomes so great that temporary arrangements will have to be made. Begin now on a system of buildings that will keep the school going, and growing and increasing in efficiency instead of allowing it to suffer because of neglect and inadequate facilities, as it will in a few months more.

—o—

Of course, it would be easier for us to live in a town that is not growing as rapidly as Lubbock and where the school facilities do not have to be enlarged as often. Some of us may not like the constant sary to keeping our school system in running order. However, we suspect that few of us would be willing to building and reorganizing necessmove back to the sticks where things continue to be done in the same "good old way." Most of us are proud that we are in the growing West where things are being done and where the people have a vision. None of us would stop the growth of Lubbock if we could, however, much it might add to our ease and comfort. We are all proud of our little city and its growth and we are going to provide for our schools in such a way that they will be able to do the very highest grade of work and maintain the high standards they have always held.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE, Boston stenographer, meets her wealthy employer, HOLLIS HART, while cruising through the West Indies. Ashtoreth goes ashore at Dominica, and almost the first person she sees is Mr. Hart. She is fearfully excited at the chance encounter, and very happy—because Ashtoreth, for some months, has been exceedingly interested in her millionaire boss.

And small wonder. Hart is rather handsome and has such a wonderful personality! He is old enough to be Ashtoreth's father, but he certainly does not look it.

Before leaving on her cruise to the Indies Ashtoreth had heard that Mr. Hart was in South America. He left Boston hurriedly following a little fracas with a girl named SADIE MORTON, whom he had befriended, and who tried to take advantage of his good nature.

Shortly afterward Ashtoreth had a breakdown and her mother, MAIZIE, procured a job in order to earn enough money to send the girl away for a rest.

Mr. Hart proposes that they visit his house on the mountain.. And Ashtoreth, in a mad moment, determines to miss the boat. That, of course will complicate things.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV

Mr. Hart was happy as a schoolboy.

"I've a proprietary interest in this place already," he boasted. "Quite as if I'd discovered it. I have, as a matter of fact, bought a place up on the heights, and some day I shall build a little house and come to it when I am very tired and weary, and want nothing better than to fill my soul with peace."

He spoke softly.

"It is beautifully romantic. Nights on the mountain are simply divine. Soft and sweet, and full of the most anguorous fragrance. Last night there were a million fireflies abroad, swinging golden lanterns. And I sat on my little porch and heard the mournful cooing of the doves, and

'The moving moon went up the sky,
And nowhere did abide;
Softly she was going up,
And a star or two beside.'

"You'll see them tonight—that moon of mine 'and a star or two besides'."

"Oh, I'll love it!" she cried.

"I know you will, Ashtoreth," he said . . . and his voice caressed her name as it fell from his lips.

"You make me love my name," she told him. "No one else says it as prettily as you. You mustn't ever call me 'Miss Ashe' again. It makes me so happy to hear you say 'Ashtoreth'."

"Then you mustn't be formal with me," he retorted. "I know I'm old enough to be your father and all that. But couldn't you forget it just for tonight?"

"You old!" she exclaimed. "My goodness, you're not old. Besides, I don't like awfully young men. They're so inexperienced. I think almost all girls like older men. I know I do. A girl gets so tired of boys these days. They're all alike. All they want to do is just dance, and pet, and chatter. And be awfully silly. It's dreadful the way they drink, too. Now, it's different with an older man. You're different, anyhow."

Hollis Hart smiled.

"Little flatterer!" he murmured. . . . But Ashtoreth knew he liked it.

"But you are," she insisted. "I mean it. A girl could talk about serious things with you."

"My dear," he protested, "you're not going to be serious!"

She blushed.

"Because I couldn't stand it," he told her. "Not on a night like this. We're going to look on moon and stars and the sea. And we're going to breathe the night from the top of the mountain. . . . And we're going to be utterly banal . . . and happy as fools!"

They found their car in the little village square. It was growing dark. And as they turned their faces toward the mountain, a purple twilight began to fall. Swiftly, as it does in the tropics. Below them the ocean shimmered in luminous haze. And all about them, in the gathering dusk, stretched the incredible world. . . . . Ashtoreth leaned back and smiled contentedly.

Adventure lay ahead . . . and she knew it.

Presently Hart took her hand in his and held it gently.

"It's lovely," he said, "having you here. I've wanted so to share it all. What is it Byron says?—

'All who joy would win
Must share it—happiness was born a twin.'

"That's it, isn't it? It's the idea anyhow. Well, that's what I've been feeling. And I can't tell you, Ashtoreth, how glad I am to be with you. Don't let me be selfish now, and forget that time flies. We can't have you miss that boat. I don't know that there's a hotel or anything of that sort in the place."

He glanced at his watch. "Oh, well, we've lots of time. We'll have to make the most of it."

Ashtoreth's heart beat excitedly. . . . Not a hotel in the place! Well, what of it? There must be some place a girl could stay. Anyhow she wasn't going to get on that dreadful boat again . . . and be snubbed by those impossible people.

"Not a chance!" she told herself . . . and leaned a little against Mr. Hart. Just a little.

"It's so nice," she whispered, "finding you."

He pressed her hand . . . and they rode for miles and miles.

And all the while Ashtoreth's soul was chorusing, "Adventure! Adventure! Oh, lovely, lovely Adventure!" . . . And she leaned a little closer. . . . Just a little.

It was dark when they reached the little house on the mountain side, and servants came to meet them with flaming torches.

"We rather rough things here," he apologized as he helped her dismount. "But Lisa will give you a good dinner, I know. And while she's laying an extra plate I can show you my garden in the moonlight."

He laughed. "You'd think I'd planted it myself—the way I love it."

They wandered about hand in hand like children, or lovers. And he told her a verse that made him think of her, he said.

"It's a pretty little thing," he said. "Would you like to hear it?"

"If it makes you think of me," she told him, "I certainly would."

"Well," he amended, "let's say of you and me. Because, personally,

"'I was morn idle, and meant for summer days,
Where the sea is ever blue
And the palm forever sways.
O how I hate winter and all his ways!

I was born idle to sit upon a throne,
With a queen forever YOU,
Like a lily scarcely blown.
With your eyes carved out of a big moonstone.

I was born idle to dream my life away,
With a young moon ever new,
And the world forever May.
And the sound of streams in my years alway . . .'"

He spoke it softly, with his arm about her shoulders. And they sat beneath a flowering seman that showered them with pink and fragrant blossoms.

He put his fingers beneath her chin and tilted her mouth to his.

"Oh lips as red as my hibiscus!" he whispered. "I kiss—and question not."

She drew away, puzzled, and shaking a little.

"You shouldn't do that," she reproved him primly.

"You shouldn't have come out in the garden!" he retorted.

"I guess you forget," she countered, "that I'm your stenographer and you're my boss."

"Oh, no, I don't!" he retorted. "That's just the trouble. It would be so much nicer if you were only a princess—and I was your fairy prince."

"And then what would we do?" she asked.

"I'd shut you up," he threatened, "in a 'castle all of pearl with towers that touched the tip of the moon'—and I should be yours, and you should be mine, forever and ever—week in—week out."

"And we wouldn't ever go to the office?" she cried.

"Never," he pronounced solemnly. "We'd pick flowers all day and stars all night. And we'd go to sleep in the tops of the trees."

She smiled at his tender nonsense.

A black woman came through the garden wall. On her turbaned head she bore a tray, which she placed on the ground beside them. Then, with a swizzel stick she whipped the sweetened rum she had, to a frothing bead.

"Everybody drinks punch here," Hart remarked, "but don't take it unless you care for it, Ashtoreth."

She thought that he would think more highly of her if she refused.

"You really don't mind?" she queried.

"Not a bit," he said. "As a matter of fact I hate to see women drinking. I suppose I'm a bit of a puritan."

He sent the servant away.

"Tell Lisa to hurry," he instructed her. "I'm afraid Miss Ashe is very hungry."

He offered her his cigarets then. But she shook her head.

"No—I don't smoke either," she said . . . and hoped he would not notice the yellow mark on her fingers. She had previously been rather proud of that stain. It looked sophisticated, she thought—as if she had been smoking for years and years. As a matter of fact Ashtoreth did not care particularly for cigarets.

"You don't mean to tell me," he exclaimed, "that you neither smoke nor drink!"

"I don't even pet," she informed him saucily and, taking a semaj blossom, patted his nose with it. "They're like powder puffs, aren't they?" she said. "I never saw blossoms so dainty and sweet."

"Sometimes it's called the Powder Puff Tree," he told her.

The black woman came paddling softly back through the garden wall.

"Dinner is served," she said.

It was a feast for the gods. Flying fish and "mountain chicken" (which was, really, frogs), and little roast guinea birds, and the most surprising vegetables. And for dessert a custard that floated in a sea

TO DAISIES, NOT TO SHUT SO SOON

Shut not so soon; the dull-eyed night
Has not as yet bun
To make a seizure on the light,
Or to seal up the sun.

No marigolds yet closed are,
No shadows great appear;
Nor doth the early shepherd's star
Shine like a spangle here.

Stay but till my Julia close
Her life-begetting eye,
And let the whole world then dispose Itself to live or die.

of coconut cream and rose petals.

"We'd better hurry," cautioned Hart as they lingered over their coffee. "It's going to be rather dark going down the mountain, and we won't be able to make very good time. I want to show you my begonias, too, before you go. You won't recognize them for begonias, Ashtoreth. They're so tall you won't be able to reach the blossoms."

"Begonias!' ' she cried. "Why Mother has lots of them. In flower pots, I mean."

"Wait till you see mine!" he exulted. "They grow like Jack's bean stalk."

Ashtoreth was getting a little panic stricken. The boat had gone, hours ago. She wondered if, perhaps, the servants knew anything about it. If Mr. Hart might learn of its sailing before they started down the mountain.

"Come," he proposed. "We'll go to the gallery for a minute and you can see the lights in the village below, flickering like celestial flames, all gold and shifting. And you can see the lights on the boat, too—the boat that will bear you presently, away from me."

He took her hand and they went from the dining room into the night.

"See," he said, "that's Roseau down there. And over here—why, Ashtoreth, the boat has gone!"

"Gone!" she repeated foolishly.

"It certainly has!" he declared, his voice rising in excitment. "She sailed away while we were at dinner!"

He stepped through the long door into the house and called to a servant, speaking in patois.

"Yes," he announced, reappearing in a moment. "Chere says she left on schedule. My dear, you must have made a mistake. I'm fearfully sorry. I scarcely know what to say. I should have verified the time. It was stupid of me, but I was anxious to bring you here as quickly as possible. There is a wireless station in Roseau. We can send a message to the boat and ask if she will return for you. I'm rather afraid, though —we've lost a great deal of time, you see. Chere says she left hours ago. I'd no idea how time was flying."

His manner was so concerned that Ashtoreth found no difficulty in seeming herself disconcerted. In truth, she had begun to be apprehensive. Mr. Hart was so obviously upset.

"I was just proposing that we send a wireless," he explained, "but, on second thought, I'm afraid it is rather a preposterous notion. We might be able to get a motor boat on the next island. Your boat will be there several hours, and I've no doubt we could make it on time. But—it's an all-night trip, you see —my dear, I am sorry!"

"Oh, Mr. Hart, all those dreadful women on board! What would they say? They'd never get over talking about it."

"No," he agreed, "I suppose they wouldn't. But, see here, Ashtoreth, I thought we'd agreed to be a bit informal. What do you mean—Mistering me—on a night like this!"

"I didn't mean to—Holly—honest."

"Well, don't let it happen again!" he admonished sternly. "Or I'll be forgetting we're a couple of gypsies and begin dictating directly. seriously now, though, what am I going to do with you, Woman?"

She smiled at his distress.

"Honestly, I don't know. Haven't you got a dungeon anywhere about?"

"You vagabond!" he cried. "I don't believe you care."

"Oh, yes I do," she assured him, big-eyed and serious. "I'm absolutely petrified. I haven't an idea in the world what's going to become of me or how you propose getting rid of me . . ."

"Well," he suggested, "I suppose there's a boarding house or something of the sort in Roseau. Would you be afraid of staying up here if I should go down?"

"All alone?" she cried.

"But I've a dozen servants," he reminded her. "And you'd be safe as a bug in a rug."

Ashtoreth shivered.

"I wouldn't stay for the world," she declared. "I'd be scared to death that I'd wake up with my throat cut!"

"Well, then—how'd you like to try life in a boarding house?" he proposed.

She demurred prettily.

"Why can't I stay up here with you? You've ever so much room. And I never steal the spoons, nor set fires, or anything like that. I'll be good as gold."

"My dear child!" he expostulated. "What a scandal that would be!"

"Who'd know?" she demanded.

"Well, my servants, to begin with," he pointed out. "And half the town by morning. You've no idea how scandals become immortalized in these parts. Nor how they spread! Why, dear child, your mother in Boston would hear the echoes!"

Ashtoreth giggled naughtily.

"What are you going to do with me then?" she demanded. "I simply won't stay up here alone. I'd absolutely die of fright. And I can't go to an old boarding house all by myself. And the boat's gone. And—you're just dreadfully out of luck, Holly—but here I am!"

He chuckled grimly.

"Little vixen," he said, "I'll wager you did it on purpose."

She protested earnestly. "Oh, no, I didn't! Honestly, I didn't. My goodness, you must think I'm a dreadful girl! If you're going to talk that way I'll go this very minute!"

"Oh, no—you won't!" he cried. "I will too!" she defied him. "If you think I missed that boat just to be with you—!"

"I didn't say you missed it to be with me," he retorted.

She poutedd provocatively.

"Wouldn't I be just desolated if I had?" she demanded. "I'm about as welcome as the measles!"

"You know better than that," he told her gravely. "I'm delighted to have you. I'm only thinking of your own good."

"Well, don't!" she commanded. "I've noticed that things that are good for a girl are usually stupid."

Chicago Man Waging Battle To Secure Allotment Of Wave Band To Portable Broadcaster

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 — The fight of the "roaming" radio station for a place in the broadcast band is being waged, virtually single handed, by C. L. Carrel, of Chicago, veteran operator of portables who has carried his case to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

Carrel's appeal followed the refusal of the federal radio commission to grant his application for renewal of licenses of stations owned and operated by him for several years. Last May the commission signed the "death warrant" of all portable broadcasting stations effective July 1, 1928. There were 13 portables at the time. The commission said there was a constant source of interference due to changing geographical locations and to the lack of proper equipment.

Carrel charges the commission failed to fix a time for hearing on the order or to give him an opportunity to be heard as provided in the radio act of 1927. The commission says that provisions were made for hearings of portable stations but at their request the hearings had been continued from time to time.

Carrel declares a hearing was finally granted December 12, at which time he introduced evidence to show public interest and convenience would be served by granting his applications. The commission, he contends, offered no evidence to refute his testimony but "sought to introduce evidence of an expert character" to show from engineering standpoint that the existence of portable stations under the new allocation was inadvisable.

"The intended expert wholly failed to qualify as such and the applicant through his counsel moved to strike out the testimony, which motion was overruled by the commission," Carrel sets forth. "The commission erred in this respect."

Carrel claims the records show his stations have never been a source of complaint.

KRAKATAO VIOLENT

Four Thousand Eruptions 24 Hours There

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 19. (AP)—Four thousand eruptions during the past 24 hours are reported to have taken place on the famous island volcano Krakatao, which is showing a rapid increase in its renewed activities.

Eye witnesses report burning material has been hurled several thousand feet high with vapor clouds going still higher. Increasing tremors are felt on the sea.

No loss of life or damage has been reported.

Sul Ross Museum Gets Artifacts

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ALPINE, Jan. 19.—The museum of the Sul Ross State Teachers College, already rich in specimens of Indian life from the Big Bend of Texas, has enlarged its collection of relics of that phase of western history by the addition of two boxes of artifacts received from E. B. Sayles of Abilene a few days ago. All these relics were found in the vicinity of Abilene and are considered, by men well versed in Indian life, to be fine specimens. As yet the boxes remain unopened, but among the items listed are found handaxes, a good many scrappers, hammerstones, blades, knives, large blades, and spearheads.

E. B. Sayles, who is a prominent lawyer of Abilene, has been interested in archeology for several years.

INSTALL WHITE WAY

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BIG SPRING, Jan. 19.—A white way lighting system has been installed in Washington place, a new subdivision in the south part of the city. A standard lighting system, the same as used in the business section has been installed on Washington Blvd. Additional street lights will be installed in the other districts of the city.

Brownfield Now Center Of Buses

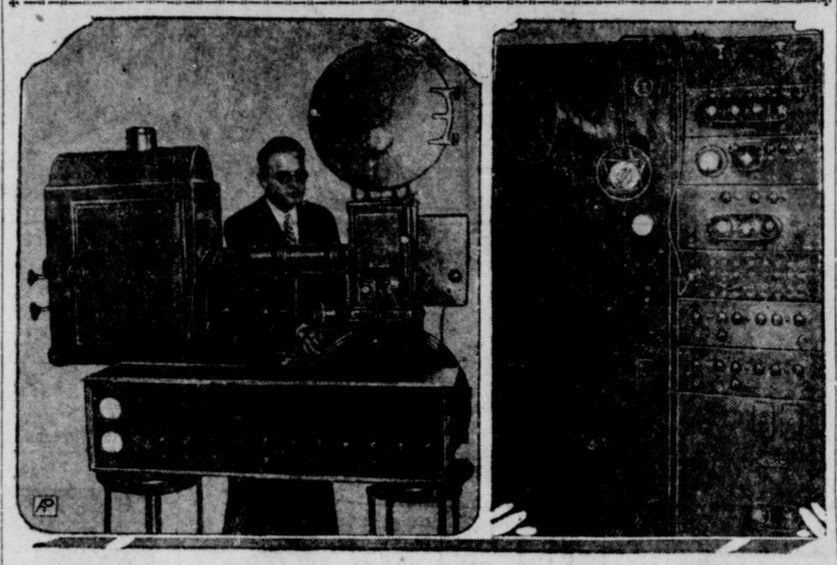

Schedules Operated From Terry Capitol In Three Directions; Change In Rail Time Planned

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BROWNFIELD, Jan. 19.—Brownfield hasnow reached a position to where it would be considered a division point for three different motor bus lines who operate schedules in all directions with close connections at other towns for points both in and out of the state.

The Pioneer Motor Lines, operate from Lubbock to Brownfield and from Brownfield to Roswell on a double daily schedule. Connections are made at Roswell with Pickwick stages for El Paso and California. The South Plains coaches operate double daily to Post City, with close connections at each end of the line and the Watson stages, offer double daily service for Lamesa and Big Spring. The Santa Fe raiway has recently arranged to reverse their schedule which has been in operation ever since the rails were laid in to Brownfield and the change will result in better mail service from points north of Lubbock and the whole transportation system for this section will be vastly improved by reason of the changes and additions.

Radio Movies Possible With This Televisor

McDonald, Great Explorer, Turns To Manufacturing

Zenith Radio Corporation President Has Had Glamorous Career As Adventurer, Business Man

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—If it is not "Gene" McDonald getting into the newspapers it is his radio company that is.

"Gene," or more formally Eugene F. McDonald, jr., pal of explorers and archeologists, and himself explorer, yachtsman and hunter, is president of the Zenith Radio company. Seven years ago he bought patents from R. H. G. Matthews and Karl Hassell, who were building radio sets on a hand-to-mouth basis, built a factory and went into business on a larger scale. Hassell now is chief engineer, Matthews is a lieutenant commander in the navy, and both are wealthy.

The first year's profit was $20,000; that of 1928 is estimated at above $2,000,000. The company's stock, which went on the Chicago market last February at $32.50 a share, has crossed $200 and been split four for one after a 300 per cent dividend.

McDonald, sr., was a real estate man in Syracuse, N. Y., when McDonald, jr., asked the Franklin Motor company for a job. An executive suggested a berth in an office, but the youth went into the factory at $6 a week, advanced to the mechanic's bench, became a salesman and then ran across Hassell and Matthews.

He first got "radio fever" when he heard a "blooper' set in a Pittsburgh garage. He tried to buy a single tube set in Chicago and so encountered the Zenith inventors. The rest of the story is written in the history of the company, the name of which was taken from a broadcasting station operated by "Zenith."

McDonald, now 40, twice has ventured into the Arctic. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, a lieutenant commander in the United States naval reserve and a host and entertainer of distinction.

You Can't Tell

Sports Editor Is Fine Announcer

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 19 (AP)—Never can tell what will happen to a left handed pitcher!

Take the instance of William Chenault Munday who started his career as a portside hurler for the University of Georgia and who, as a result, is nationally known as a radio announcer and may soon be a screen Adonis.

Bill Munday's first love was baseball. Next was newspaper work. George Stallings, then manager of the Rochester club of the International League, saw Bill twirl college ball and signed him for his club. Later Munday was traded to the South Atlantic League. But he gave up that career when his athletic activities found him a place on an Atlanta newspaper sporting staff.

When the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech came into national prominence during the past season, Bill was present. He worked the Tech-Notre Dame game and helped Graham McNamee radiocast it. His efforts proved so satisfactory that he was invited to aid in broadcasting the California-Tech game from the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

While in California, Munday's voice clicked with a talkie-movie impresario and now the Georgia left-hander is waiting the result of a silver screen test.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 20 (AP).—Officials of WSB say the Atlanta station was the first in the country to adopt a slogan. Soon after WSB was designated "The Voice of the South," other stations became "voices" and adopted slogans, station attaches say.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20(AP)—To promote the safety of life at sea, all naval stations broadcasting weather, hydrographic information and press dispatches, halt their transmission for three minutes twice each hour to listen for distress.

Amateurs Afford Link To Home For Exploring Party

Cooperation Of Operators Throughout The World Is Praised By Those On Carnegie Ship

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Starting on the second lap of a three year cruise of the seven seas, a little band of scientists and sailors are singing the praies of radio, which links them daily with civilization. They are the men aboard the non-magnetic ship Carnegie of the Carnigie institution, now cruising the Pacific after encircling the North Atlantic on a scientific expedition, which will include all oceans and all latitudes from the Arctic to the Antarctic ice fields. Lawrence Jones, young amateur of Brooklyn, N. Y., is the radio operator.

The work of Jones and the cooperation of amateurs throughout the world is highly commended by Capt. J. P. Ault, commander of the ship in letters to the Carnegie institution. "Jones has contact practically every night with some station in England, France Holland, Germany, United States or Brazil," he said.

"I was sitting in the radio room one night talking to Jones as he dipped her and there into space for a 'ham' in tune with him, when he said: 'Here's a man from Hendersonville, N. C., I said: 'Ask him if he is near Morganton and if he will take a message.'

"The answer came back 'yes.' I wrote a message of greeting to my wife and two girls, who had just gone to Morganton to visit friends. What was their delight to receive this message the next day almost direct from the Carnegie.

Radio Fright Is No Respector Of Public Speakers

Often Most Amatuerish Of Talkers Are Least Affected By Microphone, Announcer Asserts

(By Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 19.—Little children and people who seldom speak or perform before the public often are least likely to become speechless before the radio microphone, says Lambkin Kay, veteran director of station WSB.

"It is surprising the way some men, accustomed to speaking or performing before large audiences, become paralyzed when they enter alone into a radio broadcasting room and appear before the microphone," Kay says.

"One of the most striking examples was a Florida civic leader who came to the station for an address. He was accustomed to speaking before audiences, and was considered a good speaker. He came here a week ahead of time to 'get his bearings' before the microphone.

"I was at home that night and heard my assistant introduce him. There was a pause. Then my assistant's voice came back on the air and began delivering a speech. Later I learned that the man was struck dumb before the microphone and handed his speech to the announcer and asked him to read it.

"Often we get vaudeville stars to sing, play or speak before our radio audiences. A ukulele player once made three bad starts before he was able to begin all over again and go through his number. He was a regular stage entertainer, too.

"I think they would do much better if they thought the power was off and they were talking or playing to themselves. Little children who are not too timid to read, play or sing before small audiences generally make fine radio 'appearances' because they do not become flustrated before the microphone. I do not know why, but some of the men and women who become least excited before the microphone are those who have never appeared before public audiences.

PREFER AMOS, ANDY

Black Face Comedians Are Shown Most Popular

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 19 (AP)—Amos 'N' Andy, black face comedians of WMAQ, Chicago were voted the most popular entertainers in the 1928 artists contests conducted by WDAF, the Kansas City Star station.

Amos and Andy are Charles J. Correll and Freeman F. Gosden, former vaudeville performers.

Other radio entertainers approved by readers of the Star and Times included Ike and Mike, the Katz, Sunny Jim and His Dandies, the A. K. hour, Chicago symphony orchestra and the educational hour with Walter Damrosch.

POLL RADIO BIRD

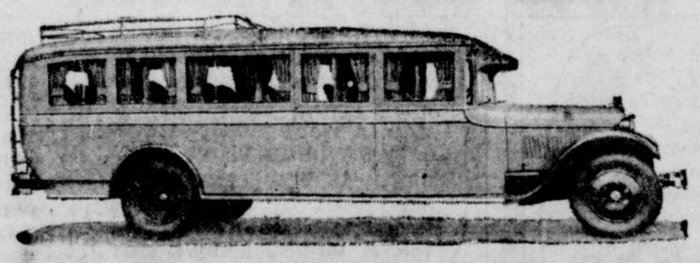

"California's Own" Will Be Chosen By Contest

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20 (AP).—A contention over the selection of a wild bird to be regarded as "California's Own" will be carried into the state legislature.

The contest, conducted by KGO, developed to statewide proportions with thousands of votes being cast. The race narrowed down to a choice between the quail and the bluebird with various organizations supporting each, and the former having a commanding lead. Then, in the nature of an ultimatum, Mrs. Bertha M. Rice, director of the Western Out of Doors club, announced that if quail should be chosen, her organization supporting the bluebird, would ask that killing of quail be prohibited holding that it was inappropriate to permit the shooting of the official state bird.

The legislature also will be asked to make official the result of the radio poll.

Lubbock Market Mecca For Farmers Of South Plains

All Varieties Of Produce Receive Ready Sale Here

Large Amounts Of Eggs And Poultry, Livestock And Grains Are Sold In City Each Year

An easily accesible market is an essential to profitable farming. Lubbock's array of produce houses, its groceries, its cotton buyers, and its numerous grain elevators furnishing the "marketing" element to make for profitable farming on the Plains.

Figures on the amount of livestock and produce marketed in Lubbock yearly are indeed difficult to compile, chiefly because of the number of small purchasing agents who operate here and from whom figures are not obtainable.

In 1925,eleven million eggs were produced in Lubbock county. This year, with advancement in the diversification theme given so much stress here recently, it is conservative to say that more than 15,000,000 eggs were produced locally.

Demand for Poultry, Eggs.

Produce houses here, at least five of them which buy eggs and poultry, report an approximate half-million pounds of poultry and eggs bought from local farmers during the past year. Poultry and eggs find a ready sale here.

During 1927, the bottom dropped out of the local egg market—the price dipping to as low as six or seven cents a dozen—but formation of an Egg Marketing Association, ready to operate this year, served to stabilize and boost the price to a level allowing a comfortable and fair margin of profit.

Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, figured that in 1928, a total of $17,018.04 was realized by women and girls in her county clubs from the sale of poultry alone.

Much Cattle, Hogs Used Here.

The scattered remnants of the once spacious Plains ranches, which still produce large amounts of cattle find a market for surplus stock at the McDonald Packing Company and at Armours' and Swift's houses here.

Approximately 800 beeves are sold and slaughtered here each year. McDonald buys an average of eight a day, or 56 a week. Swift and Armour buy somewhat smaller amounts. Nearly 5000 hogs are used here each year.

Most of the grain and feed produced around Lubbock is either shipped to outside markets or is used for home consumption. Considerable quantities of maize, wheat, corn, feterita and other sorghums find their way to the local grain companies, however.

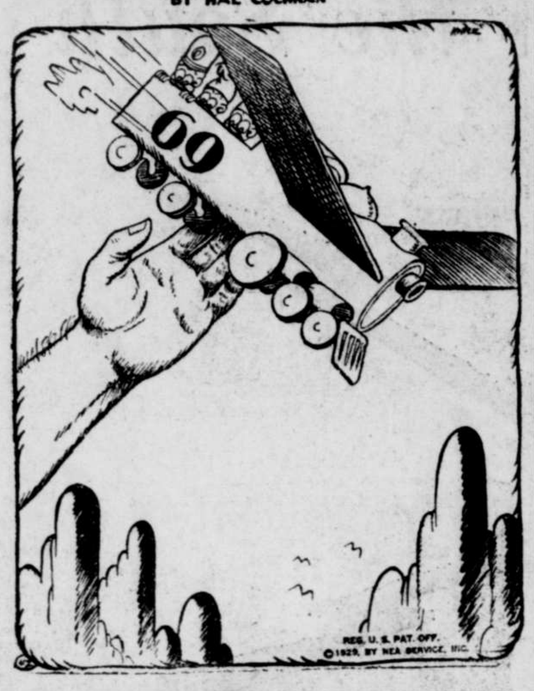

Truck farmers, of whom there is a steadily increasing number near Lubbock, sell mainly to individual grocers here. There is a constant demand for their products.

There are a score or more of independent and 'chain" cotton buying concerns in Lubbock and their activities widely known among the farmers.

The goal of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Farm Bureau and otehr organizations interested in marketing is to secure for the farmer the same market prices, minus freight and carrying charges, as are obtainable in the better known market centers elsewhere.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"Well, now I guess we're set to go, and gee, I'll bet we'll travel slow", said Scouty. "With our engine small, it can not make much speed. But, we don't care. Come on let's fly, and soar around up in the sky. We've loafed down here too long. A real nice trip is what we need."

"You're right," cried Coppy. "All hop in. 'Twill be real sport to take a spin. But first, how will we start the wings to flapping up and down? There is no crank for us to turn. Think hard now, 'cause we strongly yearn to speed away, and travel till we reach some brand new town."

"Don't worry, lads," a voice replied. "The thing to do is hop inside. I'll start your engine going. Why, I do not mind at all.' Then up to them there quickly ran a very funny looking man. His arms and legs were long and he was thin, and very tall.

Into the engine they all hopped. Before the wings the queer man stopped. "Already now!" he shouted. Then he pushed the wings real quick. "Up, up, you go," the man exclaimed. "For starting things like this I'm famed." And, sure enough, the engine 'rose. It was a clever trick.

"Oh, thanks a lot," one Tiny cried. "We know that we'll enjoy this ride." And soon they sailed right out of sight. The man was left behind. Said Scouty, "My, I like his sort. He's treated us to flying sport. I hope we meet again some day, 'cause he is very kind."

Just at this moment came a thump, and Clowny cried, "What did we bump?" They feared that they were due to fall, and wondered where they'd land. But, though the engine stopped real still, the Tinies didn't take a spill. And then they saw that they were held in someone's great big hand.

(The Tinies meet a friendly giant in the next story.)

Hub-Hi Happenings

A Weekly Column Of The Doing Of Senior High, Its Pupils And Its Faculty Members

Members of "Ye Scribblers" club, a journalism organization of Lubbock high school, are to edit this column weekly. The purpose of the news is to give Lubbock citizens an insight of happenings in the high school.

The second semester of the school year began January 14. Excellent work is usually done in the last half of the school year because there is no interruption for holidays, but if the crowded condition of all classes continues students are likely to be unable to do as well as they would if they could receive more personal attention.

The sociology room is exceptionally crowded. In some classes there are as many as sixty five students.

Plan Honor Society

Instructors and officials of the school are making plans for forming an honor society. To be eligible to this society a student must make not less than 80 on any subject and must have an average of 90 on all subjects for a half year. Probably pins will be given to members. If the student who receives a pin for one semester's work fails to keep up his average he will have to return his pin.

Need for such an organization has long been felt, because recognition of good scholastic work will arouse interest in the students.

A new form of class organization was instituted in the sophomore, junior and senior classes this year. These clases are uually so large that few or no social entertainments can be given; so each class has been divided into five or six groups, with forty or fifty students in one group. Each division has a vice president, with other vice presidents and the president of the whole class forms an executive committee which deals with the affairs of the entire class.

One New Teacher

Mrs. J. W. Bennett is the only new teacher in Lubbock high for the new semester. She fills Miss Ann Howard's place in the arithmetic and bookkeeping departments. Mrs. Bennett received her A.B degree from Baylor university and came from Ropes here, where she was principal of the high school.

Miss Henderson of the state board of education inspected the Lubbock schools Wednesday. She seemed pleased with the general condition of Lubbock high, but a definite report from her will not be sent in for two weeks.

Miss Lomax's senior group was entertained by the Parent-Teachers association Friday evening at the home of Cecile Horne. The entertainment was in the form of a "kid" party, and games suitable to the occasion were played. Taffy pulling and fudge making were in order, after which each member performed some stunt.

Year Book Progresses

H. C. Garrard, editor-in-chief of the senior year book, "The Westerner," reports that work on the book is progressing well. The first year that Tech published an annual the high school publication was changed from an annual to a senior year book, as it was said that the business men of Lubbock could not afford to advertise in both a Tech and high school annual.

Under the leadership of Mr. Duncan, superintendent, the teachers of the Lubbock public schools are endeavoring to put into use the group estudy plan as outlined by Dr. Macguire of Wisconsin university.

Beginning with next Sunday's paper there will appear from time to time papers by prominent students of Lubbock high school, which will give their ideas of and reactions to this new method of teaching.

Farm Motorcade Out February 2

West Texans Expected To Go On Expedition Sent On Agricultural Tour Of California

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

STAMFORD, Jan. 19.—The Agricultural motorcade to California, being sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which has been delayed on account of lack of bus facilities will start Saturday, February 2.

This was the announcement made after a communication with R. C. Bowen, of the West Texas coaches, of Fort Worth, by telephone today by members of the Stamford headquarters office of the regional organization. Mr. Bowen explained that several of the big busses belonging to the company were in the repair shop. These were to substitute the bus chartered by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for the journey while it was away on the trip to California.

B. M. Whiteker, agricultural manager, who is sponsoring the trip is coonluding the details of the trip at this time, and accepting last minute reversations.

Move Old Structures At Big Spring

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BIG SPRING, Jan. 19.—Three Big Spring landmarks are being removed from the business section to be replaced by modern brick business houses. These frame structures have stood in the business section for the past thirty-five years. The frame shack near the foot of Main street will be replaced by a small tile structure. The building will be constructed in an "L" shape which will fill the space on Main street and the space on West First street. The two frame buildings being removed on Scurry street will be replaced by a modern brick business house 100x140 feet at an approximate cost of $75,000.00.

The Completion of the Lubbock Bonded Warehouse and Transfer Company

"The Only Sprinkled and Bonded Warehouse On The South Plains"

This new warehouse opens to fill a long needed demand for a service of this kind in a fast growing Lubbock and South Plains—a service that will save hundreds of dollars annually for the merchants and jobbers of this territory—a service that you will appreciate as quickly as you fully realize the importance.

The new building is three stories high and is equipped throughout with the very latest Grinell Sprinkler equipment which makes the fire proof building 100 per cent safe for the storage of any imaginable article. Over 35,000 square feet of floor space permits the handling of a tremendous amount of merchandise. Electric elevators and other modern equipment makes it the most modern structure of its kind South of Kansas City.

The location is accessible to all the wholesale houses and an ample trackage permits immediate delivery of car load lots.

Rates will be given on application to Mr. Olds, who will be glad to explain the tremendous savings to be had by using this new warehouse. Also, we cordially invite people of Lubbock and the surrounding towns to come in and carefully inspect this new, ultra modern edifice.

Workers Start On Palace's New Booth; Lindsey Will Close Down; Palace Programs To Continue

With the announcement that installation of equipment for sound pictures has begun in the Palace theater and that the Lindsey is to be closed down beginning Monday to undergo a complete remodelling for Vitaphone talking pictures, Lubbock theater goers stand upon the threshold of a new era of entertainment.

Sensing that the growth of the city demands the latest in amusement as well as in other lines of endeavor, C. C. Lindsey, manager of the Lindsey theater enterprises has inaugurated plans for the latest improvement in both the show houses here. The booth of the Palace is being remodelled and equipped for the sound machinery this week. Regular screen programs will not be interrupted by the work. At the Lindsey, the entire building will be changed especially for the requirements of the pictures.

Places Theaters in Lead

"Talkies," as the pictures are named, eptomize the perfect synchronization of sight with sound. Through the installation of this new form of pictures, the Lindsey theaters step into the breach occupied by the leading theaters throughout the country which have capitalized this latest development of the motion picture. This development is considered the greatest step forward the screen has made since its very inception thirty years ago.

Through the presentation of the new pictures, the theaters will be in a position to offer the best of talkies and augmented attractions with the greatest stars of the screen, vaudeville, concert and opera fields. The gifted talents of opera stars, heretofore available only to those who could spare the prohibitive prices entailed by this type of performance will now be accessible to movie goers at regular motion picture prices. The presentation of sound in the motion picture thus more closely than ever brings the diversions of cultural developments of the urban centers to the small city and hamlet.

Are Only Two Years Old

Talking pictures, as they are now presented, are only two years old, although their development has entailed more than twelve years of study, laboratory work and perfection. In the short time that they have been in operation throughout the United States, they have revolutionized an industry and transformed the world's most popular medium of entertainment.

The Palace theater is to receive the innovation early in February, while the Lindsey will produce them probably about April.

The Lindsey is to be converted into an arena type theater according to the plans drawn up by J. N. McCammon, Inc., of Dallas, a firm which has made a special study of the new type of theaters to be used for the sound production. The interior of the building is to be enlarged and a unique seating plan used whereby all the seats will be on the same level with the exception of the loges which will rise for several feet to the rear of the auditorium. The present balcony of the theater will be abolished. The seating capacity will be approximately 900 when the new autditorium is completed.

Exterior Revamped Also

The exterior of the building is to be revamped also, a semi-Italian-Spanish architectural style being combined in the plans. The present building was constructed in 1915.

Local contractors are to be in charge of the work but their selection has not been announced. The total cost of the remodelling of the building and the installation of the equipment will be in the neighborhood of $40,000.

With the production of sound pictures comes greater screen attractions to the city as only the major companies are producing the new type of entertainment. Only the stars who can stand the test of voice requirements and stage movements alike are to appear, producers have decreed.

Announcement of the initial productions will be made within a short time, Mr. Lindsey said yesterday.

Talking Pictures Are Old Stuff In West Texas Town

PECOS, Jan. 19.—Calling the talking movies a new idea, or racket, is all the bunk, according to the Pecos Enterprise, for they have been known to theater goers for the last 17 years.

Seventeen years ago George Landrum, the popular potentate of the local flickers, introduced the "talkies" as is evidenced by the following clipping from files of 17 years ago:

"The talking pictures at the Music hall last night were something novel and unique and are another forward step in the scientific world. Mr. Landrum is making his place very popular by the high class entertainments he is giving the public."

There it is in black and white, the true story of the origination of the talking movies.

Just how Mr. Landrum introduced and ran his inovation is still fresh in the memories of old timers. One of his pet tricks was to step out on the stage in front of the screen, while the picture was going on and tell the crowd something of humorous interest. He'd also give away a bunch of gifts.

From the very name of the theater, "The Music Hall," you can tell it was good, and that the "talkies" were never improved upon. Geo. Landrum will never be forgotten by those who used to attend his shows.

Bandits Repulsed In Chicago Raid

Find Bank Employes Armed And Ready In Attempted Daylight Foray; One Fatally Wounded

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 19—Five negro bandits who invaded the Franklin Trust and Savings Bank in the negro district Friday, flourishing guns, found four bank employes prepared. When the shooting was over, the cashier, assistant cashier, and a guard were wounded and the robbers fled with less than $2,000 after two of their number were believed to have been shot.

When the robbers entered the bank, Martin French, 75, negro guard, answered with pistol fire which disconcerted the robbers and gave Edgar Olson, cashier, Leo Poquette, assistant cashier, and William John, teller, opportunity to fire also.

Within five minutes more than 50 shots had been exchanged before the quintet escaped.

French was wounded probably fatally.

Olson and Roquette dropped as the robbers fired on the employes at random.

About 30 employes and customers were in the bank during the holdup.

Wire To Mars Has His Doubts About Party

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 19 (AP)—The scientific experiments of experts trying to send wireless messages to Mars have been seized on by a Belgrade antiques dealer as an advertising medium.

At the office of the Belgrade Radio company he announced he wished to send a message to Mars. The director worked out the cost, but this came to an amount which the poor man was not able to even dream of paying. After much bargaining, it was settled he should pay 2,000 dinars (about 40 dollars) and this message was sent out:

"Mars station, universe:

"Inform if you have any antiques.

"Vlaka, Ignatchevitch, dealers in antiques, Belgrade, Europe, the world."

No reply has been received.

'The Wind', Story Of Plains To Be Shown At Palace

Dorothy Scarborough's Book Of West Texas Appears In Film Form In City This Week ;Plot Is Strange

And now comes "The Wind, Dorothy Scarborough's story of the Plains of West Texas which created so much disturbance in this section because of its alleged unfairness of plot and theme. The story is shown at the Palace in screen version on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Lillian Gish, queen of the emotional stars, comes back to where she started in the films in her portrayal in "The Wind." She leaped to fame by playing a Southern girl in "The Birth of a Nation," and now for the first time since she again plays the daughter of the Old South in this new picture.

Most Dramatic Role

It is perhaps the most dramatic role she has ever played ;a role in which almost crushed under the weight of hardship and the incessant roar of the wind, she is called upon to sacrifice the only remaining thing she holds dear in life. It is probably the greatest achievement in characterization in her history.

West Texas sandstorms play an important role in the film also for it is around them that the plot of the story entwined. The sandstorms in the film, however, are the made-to-order type so typical to the movies. They are, however, said to be almost incomparable to the ones which swirl over these Plains at intervals, regardless of the fact that a series of fans and other wind-making machines played havoc with dunes on the Majave desert in making the picture.

Sandstorm Is Background

The story, familiar to most West Texans, is laid in the gigantic vistas and forces of nature which drive a woman almost mad. A whole empire spreads forth as a background; the tornado, gigantic convulsions of nature, the desert sandstorm, and raging tempests from the setting in which this strange story of a woman's soul is enacted.

Lars Hansen carries the role of "Lige", the strange lover of Miss Gish in the picture.

AND NO WORK

Mistress: Er—Perkins—can you—er—run a lawn mower?

New Chauffeur: I fear not, madam. My mechanical education has been strictly limited to motor cars, submarines and airplanes.—Passing Show.

Paragraphs On New Pictures

"Eternal Love" is the final title of John Barrymore's new picture directed by Ernst Lubitsch. The film was made under the tentative title "King of the Mountains."

James Kirkwood is returning to the screen shortly in a film version of "The Time, the Place and the Girl," a talker to be made by Warner Brothers.

Jack Mulhall seems to prefer blondes. He has played opposite them in all his recent pictures. Dorothy McKaill and Gretta Nissen were the principal blondes of his later pictures and now he is co-featured in "Naughty Baby" with Alice White, First National's new blonde star.

Tom Mix the big "he man" from all out-doors, can feel justly proud when he can boast of fildom's greatest stars as his former leading women. Clara Bow ,the most popular, (according to box office record) played opposite Mix three years ago when he was with Fox. Colleen Moore played with him six years back, then came that adorable Billie Dove in her first big role, opposite Tom in "Soft Boiled." To date, no one can boast of having this trio, except Mix.

The fame which she has gathered since coming to the United States is nothing new to Lily Damita, the new French sensation whom Goldwyn imported from Paris to play opposite Ronald Colman in "The Rescue." No one calls her by her first name any more since "Dynamita' was given her.

Thomas Jefferson, son of the famous Joseph Jefferson, creator of the stage conception of Rip Van Winkle, was signed last week for an important supporting role in Paramount's special production with Charles Rodgers and Nancy Carroll titled "Close Harmony."

An original musical comedy to be sound-screened with William Haines as its star is being prepared by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Production is to start sometime during the next two weeks. Fox company is undertaking to film an original musical with its "Fox Follies."

An all-colored story, "The Melancholly Dame" by Octavus Roy Cohen is ready for distribution by Paramount. It is filmed with a hot colored band in an all-talking picture, launching the first of these fiction tales in the true colored dialect as spoken in the original published stories in the Saturday Evening Post for the past twenty years.

"The Wild Party," a 100-per cent talking picture with all the "whopee' and "hey-hey" spirit of the flaming youth portrayed by Clara Bow has gone into production. Imagine the "It" girl of "The Fleet's In" and "Three Week Ends" doing her stuff with her tongue as well as with her eyes and actions.

Glenn Tyron Is Cast In Comedy Today At Lyric

"Happiness Boy" To Appear In 'How To Handle Women'; Story Carries Theme Of Newspaper Office

Glenn Tryon, known as "the happiness boy", comes to the Lyric today in his Universal-Jewel hit, "How to Handle Women."

Tryon is one of the newest stars to gain fame in comedies and Carl Laemmle, the head of Universal Pictures, rightly predicted that in a short time he would be among the most popular players in the country.

Audiences who remember him in "Painting the Town" know his gifted personality, while those who haven't seen him yet have a new and pleasurable treat in store for them.

Marion Nixon, called "the sweetest girl in pictures" by her admirers, plays the featured feminine lead. Miss Nixon has a string of excellent portrayals to her credit and her present one of Beatrice Fairbanks, the newspaper reporter, in "How to Handle Women," displays her charm and clever acting ability as never before .

Mexican Rebel Head Captures Two Towns

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19 (AP) — Special dispatches from Suchiate, on the Guatemalan border, report that General Ubico has revolted and captured the towns of Rethaluleu and Maetenango. Communcations with Guatemala City are reported cut off and all border traffic stopped.

Farewell Stage Show Bill Holds Boards At Palace

Today and Monday finds Jimmy Gassaway and "Happy" King's Palace is discontinuing this type of entertainment in favor of the sound pictures. The stage shows have been a regular Sunday-Monday attraction for the past ten weeks at the Palace.

The farewell program, billed as "Appreciation Show" takes on a host of additional local talent featuring the band, Don Baxter, local dancing instructor "and company", Louise Pearce, petite dancer and David Powell, who scored a popular hit in the New Year's Frolic staged by the theatre. Other local artists are scheduled for the program which is slated to be bigger and better than any previous stage offering.

The screen attraction for the two days is "The Baby Cyclone" with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle, a Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer picture adapted from the George M. Cohan stage play, a hilarious account of the havoc wrought among romantic couples by a little pup, whom the women adore and the men hate. Cody plays a debonair clubman, whose fiancee, played by Miss Pringle, "gives him the air" in preference to the dog—and he gets a black eye, faces arrest and has all kinds of trouble before he finally wins back his loved one.

NEGRO ESCAPES

AUSTIN, Jan. 19 (AP)—Frank Blackwell, negro, held here for Williamson county authorities on murder charges in the killing of a negro, broke out of the county jail here yesterday.

COMING PICTURES

Alice White and Jack Mulhall in "Naughty Baby"; Dorothy McKail in "The Whip"; Mary Brian and Buddy Rodgers in "Someone to Love"; Rod La Roque in "Love Overnight"; Thomas Meighan in "The Mating Call"; Lon Chaney in "West of Zanzabar"; Marion Davies and William Haines in "Show People"; Joan Crawford and Nils Aster in "Dream of Love"; Dolores Del Rio in "The Trail of '98"; "Interference" with William Powell and Evelyn Brent and Buddy Rodgers and Mary Brian in "Abie's Irish Rose."

"Be Careful" Accused Bandit Grammar Shark

DALLAS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Reporters today were especially careful of their grammar in stories they wrote about an indictment returned against John Wesley Meyers, educated alleged bandit, for robbery of a chain department store here on Dec. 24.

When Meyers was arrested he told officers he was in love with a girl and wanted money to pay his debts so he could get married. Newspapers quoted him to that effect, and Meyers complained that they attributed "ungrammatical language' to him. He asked them to be careful.

The afternoon newspapers today were so careful that they didn't quote Meyers at all.

CAST IN NEW ROLE

Esther Ralston Appears In Parisian Picture

As Lena Smith, fought against, stripped of her child and jailed, Esther Ralston has the strongest dramatic role of her screen career in Paramount's "The Case of Lena Smith," which Josef von Sternberg directed and which the Palace theater will feature next Tuesday and Wednesday.

This star, known as "Paramount's gorgeous blonde," is the most elated person in Hollywood for being given the leading role in this tragic romance of a Hungarian peasant girl and also for the opportunity to work under the direction of Josef von Sternberg, who has produced four consecutive successes for Paramount within the last year and a half.

In the vivid holiday costume of the peasant girl, Esther Ralston has dropped her dancing pumps for red leather boots, her tight fitting evening gowns for fifteen petticoats and diamond necklace for black and rose head shawls. In the Prater, the Coney Island of Vienna, where she goes for adventure, Miss Ralston wears this interesting costume.

Improved Pontiac Retains Old Price

PONTIAC, Mich., Jan. 19.—One of the major surprises registered at the first showing of the new Pontiac Six, is the fact that the Oakland Motor Car company has been able to retain the original price of $745 on a car so completely eclipsing previous Pontiacs in size, speed, performance and beauty.

"Immense purchasing power and the vast economies of quantity production are the secrets behind the increased value which the new Pontiac Big Six presents," explained W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales.

"Incidentally, when an automobile is improved and enlarged so radically as is the new Pontiac Big Six, the major changes in factory tooling and equipment and in all the infinite detail of building a motor car, present a genuine problem which subjects the cleverest manufacturing brains to the ultimate test, "Mr. Tracy continued.

Oldsmobile Shows Advanced Styling

The complete line of body types now consists of seven standard models, all available in special and de luxe types. The line contains a landau sedan, four-door sedan, two door sedan, sport coupe, business coupe, sport roadster and sport phaeton. Six of the special models and two of the de luxe models are new additions to the line.

Coincident with the announcement of the new added features in Oldsmobile a price reduction was made. The new low prices are: Standard body types—two-door sedan, $875; coupe, $875; four-door sedan, $975; landau sedan, $1035; sport coupe, phaeton and sport roadster, $945. Special body types—two-door sedan, $950; coupe, $950; four-door sedan, $1050; landau sedan, $1110; sport coupe, phaeton and sport roadster, $1020. De luxe body types—two-door sedan, $1005; coupe, $1005; four-door sedan, $1105; landau sedan, $1165; sport coupe, phaeton and sport roadster, $1075.

INCREASE SALES

Oakland-Pontiac Sell Total Of 260,246 Cars In '28

Final sales figures for December —5,175 cars—just reported to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce by the Oakland Motor Car Co.—bring the total Oakland-Pontiac sales for 1928 to a new high record of 260,246 cars.

This total is 67,280 greater than during the preceding year when 192,966 Oakland and Pontiac Sixes were sold to dealers.

The new Pontiac Big Six production is now under way and it is expected that within a short time the production of this new model will be brought up to 700 cars per day, with even greater production promised for February.

There is every indication that 1929 will be the greatest sales year in the history of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes. According to factory executives, the total sales for the current year now being expected to exceed 310,000 cars. Reports from the New York show where the public quickly put its stamp of approval on both the Pontiac Big Six and the Oakland All-American Six, indicate that again Oakland will continue as one of the country's four leading builders of motor cars.

Looking Into Real Estate Purchase

A Series Of Articles Dealing With The Problems Surrounding Home-Owning

COUNTIES GIVE HOME OWNERS GREAT LEEWAY IN PAYING BACK TAXES—BUT BETTER PAY THEM OR SOMEONE ELSE WILL

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles prepared by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and published by this newspaper for the information of its readers on real estate matters.

A man who owes a balance on his piano is seldom given any grace when the bill comes due. If he doesn't pay, the store takes back the instrument even if he is giving a party the same day. But a man who owes taxes on his home in most states gets two years to make good on his deliquency, says the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Home ownership is so clearly recognized as advantageous to society as a whole that county governments give the holder of real estate greater leeway in the payment of taxes than he is given for the payment of any other bills submitted to him during his lifetime, points out the association.

The statutes in the various states operate to help the home owner keep his property even when it falls into the hands of professional "tax buyers" who make a business of settling the bills of delinquent property owners. It is interesting for those unacquainted with this practice to know how the "tax buyer" proceeds and how the law, by a series of steps, gives the home owner every chance to remove the participation of such "tax buyers" in his property.

What happens when a "tax buyer" pays your taxes?

The Association quotes Mr. Ervin R. Barney, special tax attorney for the Chicago Title and Trust Co. (Chicago, Ill.) an authority on this subject. Mr. Barney's statements have in mind the activities of "tax buyers" in the various states.

Pay your taxes promptly or someone else may pay them not to aid you but to place a lien on your property and thereby cloud your title, says Mr. Barney.

Professional "tax buyers" operate in every part of the country and the owner who falls into their hands cannot sell his property or borrow money on it until he redeems his holdings, which is usually a costly proceeding, states the tax expert. For example, titles are clouded in this way on more than 45,000 pieces of property every year in Cook county, Illinois, says Mr. Barney.

What Happens When Taxes Are Delinquent.

"Property taxes are due once a year in each state. Property owners are given a certain length of time to make payments, the time varying in the different states. Owners who have not paid their taxes at the end of this period are declared delinquent and are penalized so much per month according to the statutes of the various states. At this period the county treasurer who is ex-officio county collector publishes a list of the delinquent tax payers and declares in this announcement that within a certain time (varying in the different states) application will be made at the proper court for judgment and order of sale on all property upon which taxes have not been paid at the date of judgment. And here is one place where the statutes in all states were drawn to protect the interests of the property owner to keep his property.

"But, unfortunately, few people every see the publication of such lists as they are printed in fine type in the last pages of newspapers. And this is one of the reasons why the property owner himself should be on the job and see that his taxes are paid, or this machinery is likely to start against him without his knowledge.

"After such publication the delinquent owner is given another breathing spell before the tax buyer can reach him. He has from the time of the granting of the judgment to the time of the actual 'tax sale' to pay his taxes, and this period, varying in the different states, is usually a matter of weeks. During this time the owner can still pay his taxes, together with the monthly penalties described above provided by the statute.

How Tax Buyers Operate

"It is at the tax sale the 'tax buyers' begin their activities. The county treasurer, together with the county clery, offers for sale all properties upon which the taxes are delinquent at that date. Tax buyers make their money by adding, to the sums due the county and which they pay for the delinquent owner, additional penalties which must be paid to them by the property owner for release. The penalties exacted by the tax buyers are regulated in all states. For example, the state of Illinois permits a tax buyer to ask a maximum penalty of 12 per cent every six months for a period of two years from the owner whose tax bills he has paid. However, there is competition among the tax buyers and sometimes it is not possible for them to secure the maximum rates. At the tax sale there is competitive bidding among the tax buyers; if a property up for sale for delinquent taxes looks good to a buyer, he may bid under the maximum rate in order to try to get the property away from a competing tax buyer. The statute rate may be 12 per cent and one buyer may bid 12 per cent, another bid 10 per cent, and another bid 7 per cent. The property goes at tax sale to the tax buyer making the lowest bid. In the illustration used above, the tax buyer bidding seven per cent would 'get the property.' This is another efort of the local governments to protect the property owner by giving a lien on his property to the tax buyer who will exact the least from him.

Certificate Clouds Title.

"The statement that the property 'goes to the tax buyer' at a tax sale does not mean that the tax buyer gains possession of the property through this process, or that he can take it over and move out the owners. It means that the proper authorities will issue the tax buyer a tax certificate which clouds the title to the property thereby hindering resale until this lien is removed and makes it impossible to put a mortgage on it or borrow money on it from any reputable bank or broker.

"If the property has not been redeemed in the two-year period (this period varying in length in the different States) the tax purchaser is entitled to a tax deed, upon complying with certain provisions in the statutes, these provisions having to do with giving sufficient notice, etc., and varying in the different states.

"Now the tax buyer adds new penalties to the bill he holds against the property owner which must be paid before he will release his lien on the property (represented by the tax deed.) In some states there is no limit to the amount the tax buyer can ask for release at this period; other States regulate this figure.

"The property owner can apply to the courts and usually show that the tax buyer omitted some provisions required by the law before securing the tax deed but this process is costly and lengthy and it is often as cheap to settle with the tax buyer.

"In some states, after a certain period, the tax buyer holding a tax deed can gain possession of the property if he has compiled with the provisions covering this subject in the statutes. But every effort is exerted on the part of officials in such States, through the statutes, to protect owners in such a position by making it difficult for this to happen. However, it does happen.

"Tax buyers are not unscrupulous Shylocks. They conduct a legitimate business and are an aid to local governments, because without them, thousands upon thousands of taxes never would be collected, and revenues would be consequently curtailed. It was reported many years ago that a group of officials, including members of the bench, in Cook County, Illinois went to a group of tax buyers and asked them to make as many purchases as they could in order to fill the coffers of the couhty so their salaries might be paid.

Pay Your Taxes

"Pay your taxes promptly. Make a note of the day when they are due. If you are absolutely unable to pay them, go to one of the many organizations where you can borrow money at legal rates of interest and where you can arrange to repay such sums in monthly payments. Don't let the matter go and find yourself paying possibly as much as 24 per cent a year in addition to the county penalties.

"Remember there is no excuse in not paying taxes because notice is not received. Perhaps you are not getting the notices due to some error. Changes of ownership are often not reported. Perhaps you are receiving the wrong notices. You may think that the officials are letting your delinquency slide while all of the time a person entirely unknown to you is securing a lien on your home.

"If anyone gets rich from your property, let it be yourself. Pay your taxes and keep your title intact so that when a good buyer comes along and you want to sell you will not have to turn him down because you have been remiss."

Change Of World Atitude Was Factor Bringing Auto Sales Boom, Willys Says

TOLEDO, Jan. 30.—An Indian maharajah's scorn of press accounts which attribute novel characteristics to his royal automobiles typifies to John N. Willys the spirit of world-wide acceptance of motor vehicles as necessitates instead of luxuries.

The Toledo automobile manufacturer, who as chairman of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce foreign trade committee has completed a survey of export condtions, says the future of the motor industry hinges upon the recognition of automobiles as necessities.

In order that American automobile manufacturers may not have any fanciful ideas as to the type of mtor vehicles purchased by the ruling princes of India, one of the maharajah's worte:

"We ruling princes of India cannot buy a standard motor car without afterward reading that it has an ivory steering wheel, a jeweled carburetor or a completely fitted cocktail shaker in the rear axle.

"The automobile is not a pleasure car. It is something which we buy for utilitarian purposes."

"In that statement," Mr. Willys says, "is summed up the whole philosophy of a major change which has been taking place the last few years in the world attitude toward the motor vehicle.

"That the Indian prince is not alone in his viewpoint and that our export trade in motor vehicles has become stabilized along business lines are facts capable of demonstration. In the first eight months of 1928 approximately 360,000 motor vehicles manufactured in the United States were sold for export out of a total production of about 2,700,000 units."

In other words, one out of every seven cars built here was distributed around the world for adaptation to transportation uses of other people in other countries. This volume could not have been maintained, Mr. Willys believes, if the automobile was purely an article for pleasure.

"The influence exerted by this movement on the stabilization of employment her and th continuance of a large domesic output cannot be disregarded by any student interested in the continuance of sound general business conditions," he says.

Billion Of Pieces Made By Goodrich

AKRON, O., Jan. 19.—Total annual production of rubber products of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber company runs into billions of pieces. More than 30,000 different rubber products contribute to this huge total. The items that come under the general heads of rubber footwear and tires total more than 40,000,000 pieces. Under a general head of mcehanical goods, a total of 63,000,000 pounds is the annual output. In this department more than 25,000 different articles are made, including rubber hands which help to swell the huge total of pieces.

During the past year, Goodrich reached the greater volume in production and sales of any year during the history of the company. The greatest number of tires produced in one day was 46,000. Production on tubes frequently runs to 50,000 a day.

CHEVROLET

A SIX IN THE PRICE RANGE OF THE FOUR

Smoothness

Never Before Achieved in a Low-Priced Automobile

Of all the exceptional performance qualities resulting from the advanced design of the new Chevrolet Six, none is more impressive than its remarkably smooth operation.

Although the new six-cylinder motor develops 32% more power with higher speed and faster acceleration . . . although it delivers better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline——its outstanding feature of performance is a degree of smoothness never before achieved in any low-priced automobile.

Whether you are flashing away from a traffic stop with the accelerator to the floor, whether you are rolling along at twenty-five miles an hour or doing well above sixty on the open road—the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration.

To achieve such remarkable performance in a car of such low price, Chevrolet spent years in development work. Over 100 different engines were designed, built and subjected to over a million miles of testing at the General Motors Proving Ground before the present motor was adopted. The new power plant has many unusual feaures, such as the new acceleration pump, the new gasoline pump and filter, and the new automatic lubrication of the rocker arms.

The four-wheel brakes have been newly designed to assure positive, quiet action. Steering has been made easier. And the new Fisher bodies with their new lines, new colors, adjustable driver's seats and new appointments, represent new heights of style, distinction, comfort and outstanding value.

We extend you a cordial invitation to see and drive the new Chevrolet Six. We want you to know how finely the new Chevrolet Six is built and how smoothly it performs!

THE REMARKABLE NEW
"FINGER-TIP CONTROL"

Greater beauty and improved design in new Whippets and Willys-Knights

The ultra-modern lines and larger bodies of the new Superior Whippet are winning the enthusiastic praise of Four and light Six buyers, while the new style Willys-Knight Six is the largest, most beautiful and most powerful Knight-engined car ever offered at so low a price.

See and examine these superb cars without delay! An immediate order will aid in early delivery.

What it means to you in driving convenience and safety

Willys-Overland is the first producer of automobiles to equip all its passenger cars and commercial vehicles with the wonderful new "Finger-Tip Control."

A single button, conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This fundamental improvement does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button. You can keep your foot always on the brake when starting or re-starting on a hill—an obvious safety advantage of major importance.

"Finger-Tip Control" also avoids changing from the comfortable driving position to reach a light switch on the dash. You can at all times keep your eyes on the road, and the hand that operates the button flashes back to the rim of the wheel in any steering emergency.

Road-Building In U. S. Endangered By Toll Highways

American Auto Association Denounces System Which Places New Burdens On Car Owners

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The battle cry of freedom, as far as the highways of the United States are concerned, resounded in a vigorous ddeclaration of national road policy issued from the headquarters of the American Automobile Association here today.

The A. A. A. statement, made under the signature of President Thos. H. Henry, was a reaffirmation of the policy of the national motoring body to fight to the very limit any and all proposals to foist toll roads on the car owners of the country.

Free Highways Needed

Free highways, continuation of government and state cooperation under the Federal Aid policy, express highways as needed but under state control and owned by the people must be the fundamental conception underlying and motivating the road policy of the nation, Mr. Henry asserted.

"The agitation of private interests for charters for toll highways threatens all these principles," he said. "It offers a particular threat to the Federal Aid principle which has made possible our great interstate highways."

Pointing out that at the moment high-powered attorneys for private corporations are planning to appear before legislatures to secure charters, preliminary to buying rights of way for toll roads, the A. A. A. president urged the states to stand fast by the free principle and warned them against any move that will tend to alienate the rights-of-way that are vital to the construction of the roads of the future.

Great Reception Given Studebaker

The most enthusiastic reception ever accorded new Studebaker models greeted the introduction of the new President Eight and the new Commander at the National Automobile Show in New York last week according to word received from New York by the Gough Motor Co., Studebaker dealers here.

"Two of the smartest cars in the show were the Commander Convertible Cabriolet and the new five passenger brougham on both the President Eight and the Commander chassis. The Commander Cabriolet was finished in a smart new shade of canary yellow with black running gear, wire wheels, and many bright touches of gleaming chromium plate. Many critics judged it the smartest car in this year's motor exhibition.

"The new features contributing to comfort, easy handling and safety on the new cars received much favorable comment. Many motorists commented particularly on the increased width and roominess of both front and rear seats, on the adjustable front seats of the President and Commander models, and on the comfortable driving position assured by the stering wheel, clutch, brake pedals and adjustable driver's seat.

Sale Of Electric Plants Increase

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Shipments of individual electric plants during the year ended December 31, 1928, by the Delco-Light company, subsidiary of General Motors, totaled 25,318 units, it is announced by H. W. Arnold, general manager. Battery shipments totaled 33,000 and "D-L" Electric Water Systems totaled 10,002 during the year.

Chrysler Motors New Auto Force

The far-reaching significance of recent Chrysler operations was not fully grasped either by the trade or the public until announcement was made yesterday that the great group of manufacturing properties under the direction of Walter P. Chrysler is hereafter to be known as Chrysler Motors.

The purpose of this highly important move was tersely expressed by Walter P. Chrysler when he said:

"The one and only justification for a grouping of motor car properties is to render a better public service. Chrysler Motors will accomplish mutual efficiencies and savings which will give new benefits to the buyer of individual and commercial transportation in quality, service and economy. That is its sole purpose."

All of the products of Chrysler Motors are manufactured in one great group of plants and therein, Chrysler experience has proved, rest the economic possibilities for overhead reduction, conservation of facilities and the application to all units of a common policy of purchasing, engineering and quality manufacturing.

Chrysler Motors manufacturing facilities and financial resources are so vast and their combined distributing agencies so numerous that every price class in every country in the world is supplied with a Chrysler Motors car and each ranking as a leader in its class.

Science Aids New Auto Development

To develop the motor car to its present state of efficiency, the automobile industry has drawn from every form of scientific research and from every branch of labor, it is pointed out by G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon Motor Car company.

Though it is the function of the automotive engineer to develop and perfect new and more efficient points of design and construction, it also is his duty to keep abreast of advancements throughout the world of science for often, in some remote corner of the earth, a new idea may have an important effect on the automobile industry, Mr. Williams continued.

To draw an interesting illustration, Mr. Williams declared that even the half-savage native in far-off Africa who finds a better way to remove the gum from a rubber tree is a contributor to the progress of America's greatest industry. Most manufacturers, such as Marmon, he said, maintain a board of engineers which regularly collects and analyzes reports from all branches of science.

Goitre Not A Disease

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. E-43, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect anad recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. MORE GAS POWER

Hudson-Essex Feature High Compression In New Car

"It takes little in the way of engineering knowledge to realize that the trend in automobile power plants is constantly toward greater speeds and higher compressions," said Courtney Johnson, general sales manager of the Hudson Motor Car company at the show last night. "Our own contribution to this branch of progress is the high-compression, high-efficiency F-head motor in which acceleration, power and fuel economy are more noteworthy than ever.

"Heretofore the trouble with high-compression motors has been the fact that they were subject to spark knocks, pre-ignition, roughness and other undesirable features. For these defects the solution has been found in the Hudson F-head design which gives us a combination valve-in-head and valve-in-side engine in that the intake valve is located in the head and the exhaust valve in the side.

Willys Overland Expand Company

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Widespread acceptance of the Whippet and Willys-Knight models has enabled the Willys-Overland company to expand its dealer organization to 7,152 retail sales and service outlets as compared with 4,013 dealers last January, President John N. Willys announced. This is an increase of 3,139 dealers, or 78 per cent in one year.

The company's dealer organization will be further increased during the next few months to handle Willys-Overland's aggressive production and sales program which calls for production of 130,000 units during the first quarter of this year and 300,000 during the first six months. Mr. Willys is confident that the dealer organization will exceed 10,000 before the end of the current year.

Reports from all points reflect the unprecedented reception accorded the new Superior Whippet Fours and Sixes and the new style Willys-Knight. Dealers have been drawn from hitherto considered impregnable organizations in the industry who have been attracted by Willys-Overland's new line. January orders on the books are breaking all records and shipments for January are expected to exceed 30,000 cars.

Dodge Business On Big Increase

With the total 1928 production of Dodge Brothers cars 12.8 per cent above the 1927 mark, according to figures announced today, Dodge Brothers corporation is entering 1929 with prospects of the largest year in its history. Monthly shipments of cars and trucks have exceeded the corresponding months of 1927 in nearly every case and, under the guiding genius of Walter P. Chrysler, the company expects to establish new production records, according to Charles W. Matheson, general sales manager.

The New Dodge Brothers Six, introduced at the New York show, is attracting unusual attention.

The rich unique color combinations, graceful line and roominess of the eight body types evoke much favorable comment from visitors at the show and hotel lobbies. Orders have exceeded all expectations.

The spacious Dodge Senior, introduced late last summer has enjoyed unusual popularity for those who seek the highest quality in motor cars. The Senior is available in eight body types, and is being shown with the New Dodge Six models.

EAGERLY BOUGHT . . .

because of its greater value

The motoring public has found something in the new De Soto Six that sets it completely apart from others in its field.

It is not surprising that a car so beautiful, so comfortable, so powerful and responsive, and so safe and easy to drive should find a ready market.

But it is significant that even such a car should set a new sales record for the industry during the first five months of its existence.

The answer must lie in a widespread public conviction that the genius and resources of Chrysler confer upon De Soto a standard of value that is unmatched by any car of comparable price. 313

Civic Consciousness That Will Work For Advancement Of City and Region Is Goal Of Two Lubbock Civic Clubs

Big Turn-Out For National Convention Is One Main Objective Of Rotary In Current Year

A better citizenship working for the good of Lubbock and the South Plains is the aim and major objective of the two luncheon clubs of Lubbock, short interviews with the two presidents, Dorrance D. Roderick, of the Kiwanis and Robert J. Murray of the Rotary, revealed yesterday.

As in the past, the two clubs plan to work hand in hand, not in any specific movement, but for the good of the community as a whole.

"Our work during 1929 shall be to create good will and a better understanding between members, citizens of Lubbock and the South Plains, and the personnel of the Tech student body and faculty," President Murray of the Rotary club said. "We intend to foster the identical relations with other towns as we do with our own in working for a greater development of the section."

Aids Existing Groups

Mr. Murray then took occasion to point out that the Rotary club had no specific work to perform but merely functioned through its members in aiding existing organizations in carrying out their plans. He reviewed the activities of the club in the past which have brought into existence similar organizations at Slaton, Ralls, Levelland, Littlefield, Post and Brownfield. The club has always ranked among the high four in attendance among the 58 clubs of the 41st district.

The greatest task of the Rotary club for the year will be in gaining representation in the two conventions the district convention in Ranger during March and the international convention in Dallas During May.

"The opportunity is not presented often," Mr. Murray said, "for members to attend an international convention and, for this reason, the club will attempt to have an attendance of 100 per cent at the Dallas meeting." Dean James M. Gordon is chairman of the "On-to-Dallas" committee which will begin its work within the next few weeks.

Clubs Co-operate

"Rotary appreciates the co-operation shown by the Kiwanis club during the past," Mr. Murray declared, "and it is hoped that a greater community can be built through this co-operation."

The plans for the Kiwanis club during the coming year, according to President Roderick, include greater concentration on the organization's objectives, especially that of the "under-privileged child." The club's Christmas cheer fund, totalling near the $300 mark during the past holiday season, will be increased this year and maintained not only during the holidays but all through the year through the work of the club, Mr. Roderick said.

The committee on this work, of which J. T. Trigg is chairman, is composed of men particularly interested in this work. An effort will be made to administer to the needs of the city's poor at all times during the year.

Promote Better Understanding

The work of the club in promoting a better understanding between the city and rural communities of the county will be carried to an even greater degree during 1929, it was learned. More meetings will be held in the rural schools over the county. C. J. Meyers is chairman of the committee in charge of the work.

One of the principal tasks of the club for the year will be to work for the 1930 district convention for Lubbock. A delegation of members will go to the convention in Tulsa in September to make a bid for the convention.

A questionnaire is being sent out to the club members asking for their preference on programs in a move to make the meetings more interesting and gain more attendance, thereby.

The important committes of the club for the year consists of workers for inter-city and inter-club relations and public affairs. Their work being to continue in the main objective of developing a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship.

Director Is Sued By Society Girl

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19 (AP)—Mrs. Clifford Slater Wheeler, formerly Ann (Nancy) Hellman, San Francisco society girl, today filed suit for divorce from the motion picture director who married her while she was working as an extra in Hollywood's film studios 13 months ago.

Mrs. Wheeler charged cruelty, alleging her husband "addressed all women in endearing terms", and refused to provide her with clothing, although he kept a kennel with four dogs and a man servant for himself.
