Cambodian President Flees

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A tearful President Lon Nol flew into exile today in a move that opened the way for possible peace talks with Communist-led insurgents.

He departed to the sound of three rebel rockets exploding near his plane.

As he left, possibly never to return, Cambodian military commanders moved troops to block breaches in the city's defense line to keep Khmer Rouge rebels from breaking through. The rebels are within four miles of the besieged capital.

The ailing president flew first to the U.S. B52 air base at Utapao in Thailand aboard an Air Cambodge Caravelle jet with his family and staff members and then on to Indonesia. Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said he would remain about 10 days before continuing to the United States.

Before he left, Lon Nol reviewed a guard of honor drawn up in the palace courtyard and bowed with clasped hands in a Buddhist tribute before the Cambodian flag, tears in his eyes. He then boarded a helicopter with his wife and three children for the airport. Both the marshal and his wife were weeping openly.

U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean spent 90 minutes at Pochentong airport today, at times crouching from rebel rocket fire, waiting to say goodbye to Lon Nol, a man that political sources said left Dean less than impressed with his leadership.

When Lon Nol finally arrived, Dean strode out to his plane, shook his hand briefly and then watched his aircraft lift off from the dangerous airport where up to 30 rockets fell in the first five hours today.

"It won't have an adverse effect," Dean said when asked about the significance of Lon Nol's departure. Cambodian sources say the U.S. Embassy, led by Dean, played a significant role in persuading Lon Nol to leave.

The Cambodian president was considered a major stumbling block to the possibility of peace negotiations. The Cambodian insurgents and Prince Norodom Sihanouk, their nominal leader, have said they would never negotiate with the Lon Nol regime.

Despite Lon Nol's departure, most political and diplomatic observers expressed belief that the insurgents will not agree to negotiate a peace settlement especially considering their overwhelming military advantage.

Rebel troops today partially overran one of the government's last provincial strongholds, the Mekong River town of Neak Luong where an estimated 60,000 troops and refugees have been encircled for two months.

Street fighting was reported in the city 32 miles below Phnom Penh and the military sources said "they're in control of a good part of the town, they may have half of it. It looks like its going to fall."

Even more significant, the sources said the fall of Neak Luong would free thousands of insurgent troops to turn their attention to Phnom Penh.

Within hours after Lon Nol departed Phnom Penh, India recognized Prince Sihanouk's Royal Government of National Union of Cambodia based in Peking. The Indian decision was announced in a joint communique issed at the end of a four-day visit to New Delhi by the Sihanouk government's foreign minister, Sarin Chhak.

Lon Nol said he was appointing the president of the senate, Lt. Gen. Sau Khamkoy, to be caretaker president in his absence as provided in the constitution.

"I appeal to you to cooperate with the government in resolving the Khmer problem and defending national integrity," he said in a speech released after his departure.

Ford Calls Kissinger

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford faced with a rapidly deteriorating military situation in Southeast Asia, is summoning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger here earlier than expected, White House sources indicate.

Kissinger, originally scheduled to confer with Ford Friday or Saturday, is now expected here by midweek to review developments in South Vietnam and Cambodia with Ford and to chart U.S. Indochina policy.

The President planned to get a report Saturday from Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand, the former U.S. military commander in Saigon who is now now on a fact-finding trip to South Vietnam.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday Ford attributes the South Vietnamese military debacle on two factors. Violation of the Paris peace treaty by Hanoi and "failure of Congress to put up the money" for more military aid to South Vietnam, which Ford feels affected the morale of the South Vietnamese army.

But he insisted the President was not assigning blame.

Kissinger held an extraordinary meeting at the State Department Monday with some of the top foreign policy advisers of past administrations, many of whom presided over the deepening U.S. involvement in Vietnam under Lyndon B. Johnson.

They included former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former presidential adviser McGeorge Bundy, former Undersecretary of State George Ball and former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Saigon—Tank-led North Vietnamese troops overrun coastal cities of Qui Nhon, Tuy Hoa and Nha Trang. Government defenses crumble, increasing threat to Saigon by the hour. Communists now control northern half of country.

Saigon—Coup rumors sweep capital. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu abruptly cancels meeting with the U.S. Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick Weyand. President Ford's special envoy on the eve of his departure for the United States.

Saigon — International flotilla of more than 20 ships assigned to evacuate refugees from Da Nang remains anchored off port, unable to reach 1.5 million panic-stricken refugees because of enemy gunfire.

Paris — Former Cambodian President Cheng Heng, marked for death by the Khmer Rouge, arrives in Paris seeking political exile.

Tokyo—Viet Cong again appeal for ouster of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, offer to negotiate with his successors and repeat its program for lenient treatment of soldiers, police and officials of the Saigon government who defect to the Viet Cong.

Phnom Penh (8 cambodian President Lon Nol flies into exile from his besieged capital, clearing the way for possible peace negotiations with the Communist-led Khmer Rouge insurgents.

Washington—U.S. Agency for International Development Director Daniel Parker says there is still slight hope that more homeless South Vietnamese may get out of Da Nang.

Voter Turnout Moderate Election Officials Say

By TEX DeWEESE

At 11 a.m. today election officials described the voter turnout in Pampa's city election as "moderate."

Announcement Monday of a write-in slate of candidates for the mayoralty and two commissioner posts to be filled apparently stirred more interest in today's election than had been expected.

There are three candidates for mayor. They are incumbent mayor R.D. Wilkerson and H. Clovis Shipp, whose names are on the ballot, and write-in candidate Robert (Bob) Muns.

Voters also had a choice of three candidates for Ward 1 city commissioner. They are incumbent H. Ray Thompson and Robert J. Schaub, listed on the ballot, and write-in candidate Mrs. M.D. (Caroline) Hood.

Incumbent Leo Braswell was opposed by write-in candidate H. Herman Keith, write-in candidate for Ward 3 commissioner.

The polls opened at 8 a.m. and will close at 7 p.m.

In the early forenoon balloting, electors were voting at the rate of almost one a minute in Wards 1 and 2, where the heaviest turnouts always are registered in city elections.

Election judges at the Ward 2 polling place in North Fire Station E. 17th reported nearly 150 votes at 11 a.m. More than 125 had voted in Ward 1 at City Hall at that hour.

In Wards 3 and 4, at the Optimists Boys Club and South Fire Station, totals of about 20 votes each were reported at the same time.

There are approximately 8,000 eligible voters in Pampa. Last year less than 200 of them went to the polls in the city election.

The pick-up in today's balloting was attributed to the interest aroused by the announcement made Monday by the three write-in candidates.

Political observers were uncertain whether the stepped up balloting was to insure election of the incumbents or put new officials into office at City Hall.

Backers of candidates whose names were on the ballot and supporters of the write-in candidates reportedly were busy Monday night and today telephoning voters to go to the polls and vote for their favorites.

The telephone and personal contact campaigning was expected to continue right up until the polls close tonight.

Counters were working in each ward to keep apace with the balloting. City Secretary Stanley M. Chittenden said this would facilitate making results of today's election known at an early hour after the voting ends.

Election officials indicated the final vote count should be known between 7:30 and 8 p.m. today.

UN Appeals For Assistance For Refugees

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has appealed to "all who may in a position to help" to rush humanitarian assistance to refugees in South Vietnam.

The U.N. leader issued a special plea Monday night, asking all sides in the Vietnam fighting to make effective efforts "to limit the suffering of innocent people, especially women and children."

He said any nations not wishing to contribute directly could funnel their aid through the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees and the U.N. Children's Fund.

The United Nations refugees commission already has a $12 million program to help Laos, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government help resettle refugees in rural areas.

UNICEF is operating an $800,000 program to supply emergency shelter, drugs and other assistance for displaced mothers and children in South Vietnam.

Commissioners Meet, Discuss Sr. Citizens

Pampa city commissioners went into executive session at 11 a.m. today to discuss the possible purchase of real estate.

Mack Wofford, city manager, said the meeting was called to confer with a member of the Advisory Committee to the proposed Pampa Senior Citizens Center.

The city manager said the meeting was to discuss city participation in the purchase of a building to house the senior citizens' planned activities.

Opposes Gas Bills

The board of directors of the Pampa Industrial Foundation today concurred with action of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in opposing two bills introduced in the 64th Texas Legislature which would levy a one-cent per gallon tax on the manufacture of gasoline, diesel fuel and gasoline produced from natural gas.

The PIF directors, meeting at 10 a.m. today in the Chamber of Commerce conference room, agreed with the WTCC in strong opposition to what it called "discriminatory proposals of H.B. 17 and H.B. 657 which would create unfair competition for Texas manufacturers of gasoline, diesel fuel and gasoline from natural gas."

E. Bruce Street of Graham, chairman of the WTTC State Affairs Committee, in a statement presented to the PIF board members said:

"Under H.B. 17 and H.B. 657 such a tax could not be passed along as a cost of business due to federal price controls and competitive conditions, thereby penalizing refiners and gasoline plant operators in West Texas and the entire state at a rate of one million dollars a day."

The bill, if passed, according to Street, would depress capital spending for industrial expansion, cause workers in West Texas and over the state to lose their jobs, create a further shortage of fertilizer and other agricultural chemicals, and create a threat to other Texas industries.

"Should the legislature embark on such an ill-advised principle of taxation," Street said, "it would be the first step toward similar taxation on other products manufactured, grown or processed in Texas."

The PIF board also voted opposition to another bill proposed in the State Legislature to permit cities and counties to issue revenue bonds to attract industry.

Board members said they felt it would place a financial burden on cities and counties in the event an industry, supported in that manner, failed or went into bankruptcy.

Tornado Victims in Lefors

They Lost Yet Feel Thankful

By THOM MARSHALL

The tornado that struck Lefors at 12:40 a.m. Thursday came without warning — but at least one of the 800 residents of the town, a woman who lost her home and most of her possessions, said the lack of warning may have saved lives.

"If a warning had sounded," she said, people would have been looking out to see what was coming, or they would have been trying to get to shelter and they would have been caught in the middle of it."

The storm levelled at least a third of the town, killed three-year-old Stephanie Ann Anzaldua, and injured more than 50 others.

In less than a minute, more than 150 homes and businesses were totally destroyed or heavily damaged.

Leta Bradley lost her beauty shop and almost everything in it, except for a few dryers and some furniture.

"I didn't have any insurance," she said. "It would have cost more than I could pay."

Ms. Bradley hasn't made plans for the future yet.

"I just don't know what I can do. I'm still collecting a few things from the ruins," she said.

She divides her time between trying to salvage things from her demolished beauty shop and helping out at the Lefores High School Cafeteria.

The Red Cross has offered to help Ms. Bradley but she said, "I haven't gone and applied because there are others worse off than I am."

Ms. Bradley said her home escaped the storm and her garage has served as a storage place for salvaged items of the tornado victims.

"I have deep freezers in my garage," she said, "and I have had some company. But most of them seem to be staying with friends or families and some of them already have apartments in Pampa."

Plenty of food, clothing and other necessities are at the school for the taking, but all those who need aren't taking.

"I think they are finding it difficult to go get the things they need," Ms. Bradley said. "People who have never received any help before are reluctant to go."

Asked if she thought Lefors population would shrink as a result of th storm's damage, Ms. Bradley said, "Some of the people are going to leave. I think older people will be relunctant to get loans, even at a low interest rate."

Clark Stanton's home escaped the wrath of the tornado. He believes most of the people who lost houses will rebuild them.

"They'll get some loans and get started again," he said. "They're just as well off here as they are anywhere."

Billy Keith, an employe of Cities Service Gas Co., was on vacation in Florida.

"My son, Dennis, called me at 3:30 in the morning," he said. "He told us what had happened and said we'd better come on home."

The home the Keiths came back to was a pile of rubble.

"We were fortunate," he said. "We were able to save most of our personal stuff. The house and furniture was totaled out, but the pictures and stuff were okay."

Keith was asked if he plans to rebuild in Lefors.

"Hopefully, yes," he said. "If I can get something to go on. I've got a settlement with my insurance and it is a good settlement."

The people of Lefors have kept surprisingly high spirits as they dig their ways out of the disaster.

"People are happy they're living, I guess," Keith said.

They have managed to see humor in situations like the warning siren that didn't go off before the tornado but was sounding about every 15 minutes Friday because of an electrical short.

And the people of Lefors aren't facing the monumental rebuilding project alone.

"There's nothing like good neighbors," Keith said.

April Fool's Day Caper?

Wagons Trek Northward

TORONTO (UPI) — A covered-wagon train fitted out with all the Old West trappings rolls out today on a 3,000-mile trek to a rugged pioneering life in northern Alberta.

For the 50 or so people on board it is serious business, a chance to escape the rat race of the city and make a fresh start out where it's uncrowded and unpolluted.

But to skeptics downtown, it's one of the greatest April Fool's Day capers of all time, certain to backfire on those taking part.

Some are even taking bets on how far the caravan will go before the "pioneers" drop out and the venture collapses.

Wagonmaster Gordon Roberts, 46, brushes aside the jokes and the criticism.

"We are going through, come hell or high water," he vowed Monday.

The homesteaders, many of whom have sold belongings or spent a large part of their savings to make the trip, will set out with 20 covered wagons, a red-and-yellow stagecoach, an open wagon and a frontier-style medicine man's traveling box of tricks.

They hope to cover 20 miles a day and reach Alberta's Peace River area by late August. After a year's residence in the province, they hope to get parcels of homestead land from the Alberta government.

"We have been told the powers-that-be are waiting for us with open arms," said Roberts, a former movie-studio ranch and wildlife park operator.

"We know it will be hard going but we are prepared for that. I just want to get away from Ontario where people are always telling each other what to do."

For motorists zipping along the Trans-Canada highway, the slow-moving cavalcade promises to be a mind-boggling sight — and a potential danger.

"And that's one of the things we are concerned about, the welfare of the animals," said Tom Hughes, executive vice president of the Ontario Humane Society. "If we find they are suffering unnecessarily or are exposed to too great a danger, we shall remove them."

Animal inspector Donald Hepworth reported the travelers had 34 horses, four mules, one llama and a performing pig.

"No, I don't know why they want a performing pig," he said. "But they could eat it if they get hungry."

Hepworth said, "These people are in for a lot of cold hands, cold faces and sore bottoms. Six hours in the saddle at this time of year is not wonderfully desirable."

FRB's New Targets

While it is keeping mum on just which one it is considering, the Federal Reserve Board has acknowledged that it is eyeing a number of shaky corporations and financial institutions. The reason: the Fed feels it has responsibility for their survival.

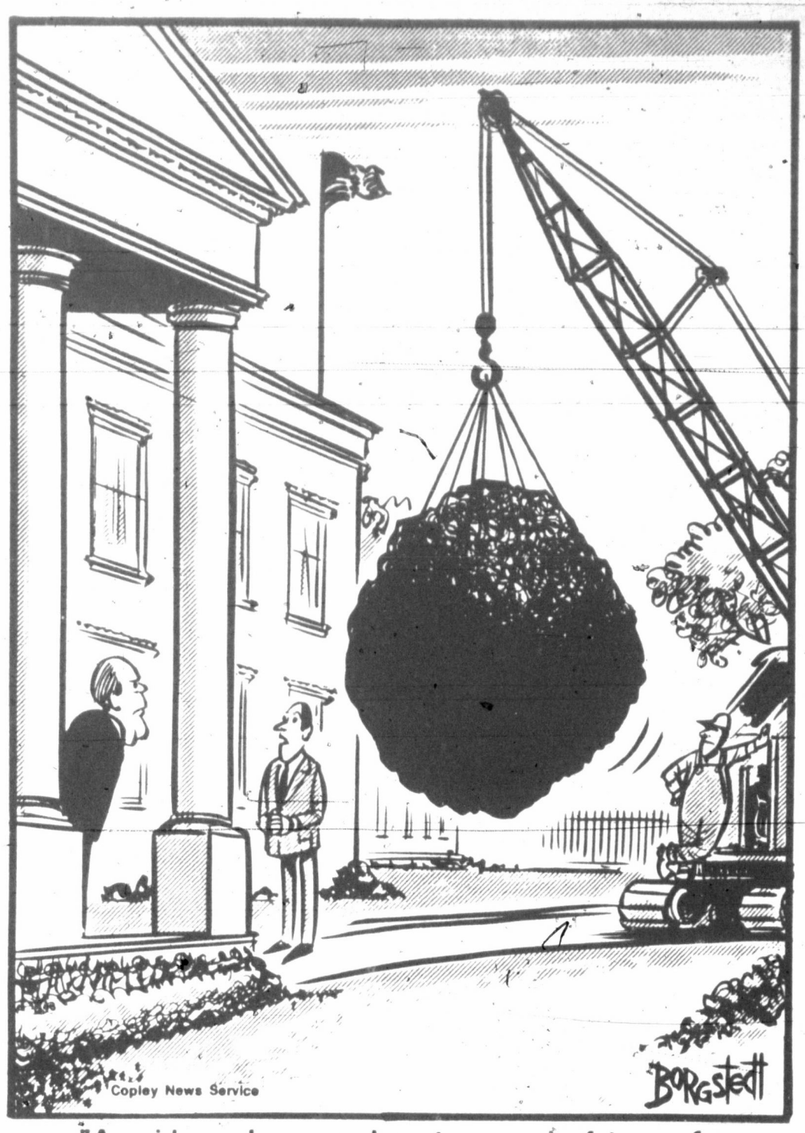

This handful of 50 or 60 institutions rank as those whose failure, the FRB claims, would set off a series of bankruptcies in the economy. The Fed is scheming to arrange emergency loans.

If that seems insane in an economy whose government will have to borrow from private institutions to pay off its deficit, keep in mind that our economy is riddled with bureaucratic insanity. The plan is a brand of back-door socialism in which the Fed, presto, will create dollars.

That kind of fiat action, rather than borrowing, takes dollars from the people, who in turn will be taxed through inflation. The Treasury Department, meanwhile will borrow dollars from American financial institutions. If that sounds weird — that's because it is weird. And irrational.

The government is acting on the un-American assumption that enterprises which cannot manage their affairs sufficiently to make it on their own need to be bailed out by tax subsidies.

As Nicholas von Hoffman put it in the New York Review of Books, March 6: "We may be forced to accept the extreme libertarian-free market view that banking in which more dollars are lent than are depositied is theft, and outlaw it."

"Any ideas, Jerry, on how to recycle 4 tons of melted down WIN buttons?"

The Coo And Squawk

Living in an immense country, Americans have an understandable tendency to view happenings elsewhere on the globe as isolate events. Vietnam, Israel, Portugal and Mozambique are not commmonly associated in any kind of pattern. Yet one world links all three — oil.

Israel is the wedge that interrupts the Soviet Union's influence among the Moslem nations that encircle the Middle East oil supply and form a crescent on three sides of the Mediterranean tanker route.

Vietnam is to the east of the Persian Gulf what Portugal is to the west — a flanker on the shipping line. Morever, Vietnam sits atop the Indoenesian fields.

Mozambique, until recently a Portugese colony now in the process of being turned over to revolutionists, sits atop South Africa which commands the Cape of Good Hope. This is the southern most tip of Africa a third tanker route out of the Persian Gulf.

Thus the doves on Vietnam or Africa-for-black-africa — who have become hawks on Israel really have been arguing with themselves. They have jeopardized what they now profess to protect. It will be interesting to see whether they confess any previous errors as the oil drama unfolds around the Indian Ocean.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

FOR PRESIDENT
Laird To Run Ford Campaign?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, APRIL 1 — Former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird is President Ford's first choice to direct his reelection campaign next year.

This has been discussed between them. However, final determination will not be made until later this year.

But one decision has been definitely and irrevocably made.

This is that the President's campaign will be conducted in the traditional manner — by the Republican National Committee. There will positively not be a separate electioneering organization sucfi as former President Nixon set up in 1972 — with ensuing explosive political and financial reverberations.

It is President Ford's emphatic intent that the National Comittee have complete and sole charge of all aspects of his re-election activities.

That means the national chairman will be the campaign manager.

In turn, that portends replacement of national chairman Mary Louise Smith.

While active in party affairs for some years, Mrs. Smith is not deemed of sufficient experience and stature to direct a nationwide presidential campaign. Her political background includes Iowa state vice chairman and national committeewoman, delegate to the 1968 and 1972 national conventions and national chairman in 1974 before being designated chairman last September.

When and how Mrs. Smith will be supplanted depends on developments.

Long — Time Buddies

For Laird, managing the President's reelection campaign would be a climaxing chapter in their long and close relationship going back when both were young and relatively obscure Middle West Congressmen.

It was Laird who masterminded Ford's meteoric rocketing ontothe national stage in a coup in 1964 that unseated Republican leader Charles, Halleck of Indiana.

Halleck had aroused much resentment amoung rank and file GOP legislators by arbitrary and abrasive high-handedness. Laird astutely rallied this strong undercurrent of disaffection, and at an opportune moment Halleck was deposed at a specially convened party caucus.

Ironically, at the same time Laird was decisively defeated when he sought to supplant Rep. Leslie Arends, III, as Republican Whip.

Arends, veteran of many years' service, had not participated in the anti-Halleck coup. On the other hand, among the rank and file Arends was not associated with Halleck. So when the Laird — Ford group sought to displace Arends, they were sharply rebuffed — and that ended Laird's efforts to become a top House leader.

Through the seniority system he became 'a ranking GOP member of the powerful Appropriations Committee — but nothing else. In January 1969, he quit Congress to become Secretary of Defense in the first Nixon cabinet.

Ford and Arends continued amicably as top House Republican leaders until the former was appointed Vice President in 1974 upon the resignation of Spiro Agnew.

Arends, by then a 40-year veteran, made a stab at succeeding Ford as floor leader — but got nowhere. Rep. John Rhodes, of Arizona, won easily.

Arends thereupon announced he would retire at the end of the term.

What's He Up To?

Sen. George McGovern is going to Cuba.

Accompanying the South Dakota radical will be Frank Mankiewicz, one of his top 1972 campaign aides and producer of a controversial "documentary" film on the Castro — ruled island.

Inside word is Mankiewiz is largely instrumental for the McGovern junket.

As a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, McGovern is in a position to obtain State Department clearance for a visit to the Communist-dominated island. It goes without saying the South Dakota leftist would be welcomed by Castro — and the same goes for Mankiewicz, who has amply demonstrated his pro-Castro sentiments.

Big question is the purpose of the trip.

In 1971, when McGovern was gearing up his presidential drive, he embarked on a foreign junket. While the South Dakotan firmly disavows any 1976 presidential ambitions, no one is taking any bets on that.

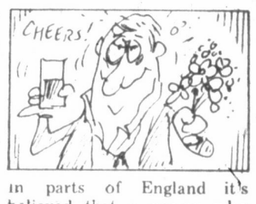

Other politics have said that, and have wound up running furiously.

New Medical Boss

Dr. Donald Fredrickson is slated to the named to the prestigious office of director of the National Institutes of Health.

Now head of the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences and former acting director of the National Heart and Lung Institute, the noted medical scientist will be appointed NIH director by President Ford by the end of this month.

The selection is certain to be popular in both public and private research quarters. In addition to being a leading scientist, Dr. Fredrickson is an able and experienced administrator.

In parts of England it's believed that a person who picks marigolds will take to drink.

SHE RANG THE BELL
Woman Pays For Nixon Expose

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Mary Walton Livngston is suffering in silence in an unwanted transfer resulting from her ringing the bell on a false $576,000 Nixon tax deduction.

Mrs. Livingston, a supervisory archivist in the Office of Presidential Libraries at the National Archieves, was forthright and courageous in testimony breaking open the conspiracy involving the tax affairs of the President of the United States.

She stayed by her story although it was contrary to testimony given by White House lawyer Edward P. Morgan, Frank De Marco Jr. (Nixon's tax lawyer), and Frank Newman, a Chicago appraiser of documents.

Mrs. Livingston's testimony buttressed corroborative memos and letters that invalidated Nixon's tax deductions on the $576,000 gift of vice-presidential papers by establishing that the gift could not have been deeded before a July 26, 1969 deadline. Morgan, De Marco, Newman and Nixon to the contrary.

There is no doubt that Mrs. Livingston told the truth. Morgan has pleaded guilty to fraudulently backdating Nixon's papers; De Marco and Newman were indicted for allegedly backdating the dead and signing false affidavits to cover it up.

Mrs. Livingston told investigators that Newman had not seen the Nixon papers until Nov. 3, 1969 — six months after the White House insisted he had valued them.

The Nixon White House said the papers were a valid gift and deeded before July 26, 1969 — when a law terminated the right to claim federal tax deductions on such governmental papers.

In September, 1974, after Nixon had resigned and Gerald Ford had become president, Mrs. Livingston was transferred from the Office of Presidential Libraries to the records appraisal staff.

When congressional investigators learned that Mrs. Livingston was not happy about the transfer, they contacted her to determine if she was being penalized for having cooperated in exposing the fraud.

There are laws that make it a criminal offense for any official of government to use his autority for retribution against a government official for cooperating with a congressional investigation, although these laws are seldom enforced by the politics-dominated Justice Department.

Mrs. Livingston, aware of the bureaucratic viciousness that too often pursues the whistle blowers on government frauds and mismanagement, told investigators for two committees that she was displeased with what she considered a forced transfer, but that she did not want "to become a cause celebre."

In sympathy with her desire, congressional investigators have dropped the matter.

Dr. James B. Rhoads, archivist of the United States, acknowledged that the transfer was related to Mrs. Livingston's testimony on the Nixon papers, but denied that it was a retribution against Mrs. Livingston.

"I considered the transfer to be a voluntary one and not an adversary action against Mrs. Livingston, whom we all admire very much," Dr. Rhoads said.

"I thought that Mrs. Livingston agreed with us and I was not aware of any displeasure on her part, although I knew she liked the wok she was doing," Dr. Rhoads said.

Dr. Rhoads said the initial conversations dealing with the need to transfer Mrs. Livingston "to avoid embarassment" took place before Nixon resigned, "but it was decided that it would not be a good idea to transfer her while the matter was pending."

"Initially, we are going to put Mrs. Livingston in charge of a training program for archivists for all of the presidential libraries, because training had been part of her duties and she did it so well," Dr. Rhoads explained. "But that fell through, and the next thing I heard Mrs. Livingston had found a place on the records appraisal staff."

Dr. Rhoads emphasized that "it is very important work, we do not consider it a demotion, and she receives the same salary ($23,433)."

The courageous archivist declines to discuss her problem with the press, but confirms that she discussed it with congressional investigators and says, "I suggest that you put your questions to my superiors."

U.S. Rep. Edward Mezvinsky (D-Iowa) said the transfer of Mrs. Livingston "is a sad commentary on values at the National Archives.

"Mrs. Livingston is transferred from a job that she liked to avoid embarassment for those who might resent her truthful testimony in exposing a major tax fraud.

"We need to encourage the bell ringers, if we are every going to make the executive agencies fully accountable to Congress," the Iowa Democrat said.

Let Us Not Forget The Past Decade

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

From the mid-1960s until the end of U.S. imvovlvment in Vietnam, America was threatened by revolutionary violence and subversion.

All that is is essentially ignored now since the 94th Congress abolished the House Internal Securitry Committee and congressional 'sensation-seekers to destroy the effectiveness of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Let's not forget the ordeal of the past decade: the tumult on the Berkeley Campus of the University of California, the chanting mobs which made it impossible for President Johnson to appear on college campuses, the fire-bombing of ROTC centers, and the explosion which destroyed the Army mathematics laboratory at the University of Wisconsin.

Don't forget the attempts to stop troop trains at Oakland, California, and harass nuclear-submarines at New London, Conn.

Have Americans forgotten "The weathermen," the band of Marxist revolutionaries which engaged in violent, illegal acts? Have they lost sight of the destruction of power lines in the West during that period of the killing of policemen by self-proclaimed revolutionaries?

Have our people forgotten the revolutionary braodcasts from Cuba beamed at the U.S. reaction of Maoist cells in the San Franciso Bay Area? Lastly, have they forgotten the filthy mob which sought to invade the Pentagon and rampage in the streets of Washington?

No sensible American shuld forget the revolutionary groups of the 1960s and early 1970s. They were a very real threat to our free and orderly society. The revolutionaries — American citizens — were doing the work of foreign powers, chanting for Ho Chi Minh and seeking to intimidate our government.

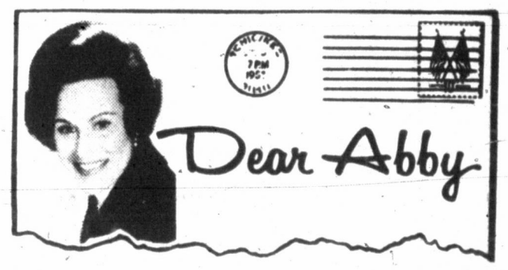

If our government had failed to investigate those revolutionary groups, it would have been terribly remiss. The CIA certainly had an obligation to determine whether North Vietnam and other communist powers were directly linked to the domestic revolutionary organizations.

The participants in those un-American organizations and actions of the 1960s and early 1970s are still with us. No doubt they are rejoicing that Congress killed the Internal Security Committee and that a cabal in Congress is attempting to cripple the CIA. The Jane Fondas and Ramsey Clarks must be pleased that things are going their way. Americans concnerned about the safety of our country in an age of subversion can oly be dismayed at the incredible yielding to militant opponents of national security.

Pride And Postmarks

Ever since the U.S. Postal Service began dropping the names of cities and towns from postmarks, some traditionalists have felt offended. Now the Postal Service, which has more than its share of public relations problems, is considering a restoration of the two-name postmark on some types of mail from which it had been removed.

Seeing the name of our community on a postmark is fine for local pride, but if the Postal Service has to go to additional expense or detour the processig of mail in order to apply it, then we think that local should take a back seat.

Guests in her house aren't asked to use the john

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After three generations of Johns, my son prefers a nickname. Anything but "John."

He was named John for his father, grandfather and great-grandfather. Also after Saint John. Not a toilet!

Abby, how did that ridiculous fad ever get started? It has become such an accepted part of our language now that even visiting friends have asked: "May I use your john?" I reply: "Of course not!"

What is wrong with using, "restroom, bathroom, or lavatory"? Please, anything but john.

WIFE AND MOTHER OF A JOHN

DEAR WIFE: My consultant on words, Ted Bernstein, informs me that since the earliest times, there have been countless synonyms for "toilet" because people were reluctant to use that word. He suspects that "john" came from the word "jakes," an old English word which means privy. Jakes is a far cry from John, however. Perhaps someone from Flushing has the answer.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it. Here I am, a 78-year-old woman, writing to Dear Abby! At age 32, I was married by a Presbyterian minister.

Before we were married, my fiance and I discussed our true feelings for each other. We admitted we weren't wildly in love, but we felt that we could be good companions, work together in a compatible way, and have a good life together. And it turned out that way.

After I was 40, I gave birth to two sons. We were very successful in our farming project, accumulated acreage, and became financially well off.

Now, my oldest son's wife tells me that because I married without being in love, I lived the life of a prostitute. She keeps throwing it up to my son that his mother was a "prostitute."

Abby, my husband and I lived together in peace and harmony for 30 years, and we would be together today but death took him from me. Meanwhile this daughter-in-law who calls me a prostitute has a very stormy marriage, and if that's the result of a "love match", I will take my kind of marriage any day.

Would you say that a woman who married without being passionately in love led the life of a prostitute?

NEEDS BACKING UP

DEAR NEEDS: Certainly not! Your reasons for marrying were nobody's business but your own. Too bad you didn't keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, we had a gathering of friends and family in our home. One of the guests removed his shoes and stockings and proceeded to put his foot up on the coffee table on which I had chips, dips and food for nibbling. (He said his feet itched!)

My husband and I were both upset, but neither of us said anything because we felt it would have been poor manners to correct a guest in our home.

We felt that his wife should have quietly said something to him, but since she didn't, we let it go.

Later, another guest told us that we were wrong to have ignored such gross behavior. How do you vote?

HOSTESS

DEAR HOSTESS: With you. Don't invite him back.

Peace For Parents Of Runaways

HOUSTON (UPI) — Above the hum of the long distance telephone line the young girl's voice, strained and pleading, asked someone to give her parents a brief message:

"I'm okay. Don't worry about me. I'll be home sometime. I just had to get away for a while. I still love you."

For the small staff and 100 volunteers at Operation Peace of Mind the calls take on a familiar pattern in the drama of fractured relationships between parents and runaway children.

"We started out to meet the crisis and the panic feeling in the air at the time of the mass murders mainly to relieve the minds of parents who might have thought their child was one of the unidentified bodies," said hotline director Grace Surguy.

Operation Peace of Mind began in 1973 within weeks after the bodies of 27 teen-aged boys were taken from shallow graves at three southeast Texas locations. The youths, many from the same neighborhood, were victims of a sex-torture murder ring.

The national hotline number of 1-800-231-6949 and a Texas toll free number of 1-800-392-3352 went into effect shortly afterwards, funded by Houston area contributions.

"At this point we feel we are an organization that brings peace of mind not only to parents but also to runaways. We are more of a communication bridge between the runaway and the parent," Miss Surguy said.

"We hope we can make it easier for the runaway to contact home on his own. We hope we can provide an out for them when they call so they don't have to turn to crime on the streets."

Miss Surguy, 23, a sociology graduate of Texas Tech University in Lubbock, has directed the program for the last 15 months. The staff of three and volunteers field between 150 and 250 calls a week and run a telephone bill around $3,400.

Miss Surguy said in a recent interview that many of the calls come from the curious who have seen the posters describing the service. She said few of the initial calls are urgent, but callbacks usually mean business.

Most runaways are junior high school age seeking shelter, counseling, medical or legal aid, she said.

"Seventy-five per cent of the calls are from young girls," she said. "The common age is 15. They are usually white."

Everything is handled in confidence and the operation has no way of searching out lost youngsters for distraught parents.

"We are entirely dependent on the missing person calling in," she said. "We have no way to find anyone."

Her experience in handling hundreds of anxious calls has taught Miss SKURGUY

That a communication loss between parents and children accounts for most runaway situations.

Commodity Prices Dip Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The prices received by farmers for their commodities declined for the fifth straight month, plunging another 2 per cent during the month ending March 15, the Agriculture Department reported Monday.

The latest figures indicate farmers are receiving 15 per cent less for their commodities this year than in March, 1974. The last time farm commodity prices rose was in October, 1974, when they registered a 4 per cent increase.

Then the downward spiral degan —off 1.5 per cent in November, 3 per cent in December, .5 per cent in January and 3 per cent in February.

The Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Service blamed the price decline since mid-February on lower prices for wheat, corn, upland cotton, soybeans, tomatoes and milk. Higher prices for cattle, onions and apples partially offset the decline.

Corn, selling at $2.67 per bushel, dropped 19 cents from mid-February and was one cent below a year ago. Oats at $1.46 were off 12 cents a bushel, barley dropped 34 cents during the month to $2.55, and grain sorghum at $4.03 per hundredweight was down 18 cents. Only oats were selling at more this year than in mid-March, 1974.

The feed grains index dropped 6 per cent by mid-March.

Wheat, at $3.65 per bushel, was down 30 cents from mid-February, rye dropped 26 cents to $2.15 per bushel and rice dropped 20 cents to $10.60 per hundredweight. This category, known as food grains, was 28 per cent lower on an average than one year ago and 7 per cent lower than last month.

Soybeans accounted for most of the 8 per cent drop in prices received for oil-bearing crops. Soybean prices averaged $5.31 a bushel in mid-March, down 41 in the past month and 65 per cent below March, 1974. Smaller declines were also recorded for cottonseed and flaxseed.

All beef cattle prices averaged $27.80 per hundredweight —up 90 cents during the month —and helped the meat animal price increase register a slight 1 per cent increase by March 5. Cow and steer prices also increased, but hog prices dropped 10 cents to an average of $30.30.

Sheep and lamb prices also increased, but the meat animal prices still averaged 20 per cent below the levels of March, 1974.

Cotton prices dropped 6 per cent, with upland cotton selling at 30 cents a pound, down 2 cents from mid-February and 23.4 cents below March 1974.

The market prices fell an average 5 per cent for the farmers' vegetables, with decreases for tomatoes, asparagus, lettuce and sweet corn. Prices were higher for cabbage, onions, snap beans and cauliflower, the report said.

The cauliflower prices of $25 per hundredweight for the month ended March 15 were a record, and the overall vegetable price index was still 29 per cent higher than one year ago. Despite the five straight months of declining farm prices, food prices at the retail level have been inching up because of continued increases in the middleman spreads.

Texas Senator To Request Constitutional Election

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Bob Gammage, D-Houston, believes the Texas Constitutional Convention of 1974 will not be a total waste.

Gammage said he would ask the Senate today to approve a series of resolutions sending to the voters next November the major constitutional articles rewritten by the legislators who served as delegates to last year's ill-fated convention.

He said he is optimistic the resolutions will pass because each will require a two thirds vote of the houses of the legislature and not a two thirds majority of the entire lawmaking body as in the 1974 convention.

The proposed constitution failed in the final hours of the convention, largely because of opposition to the so-called "Right to Work" provision banning union and agency shops in Texas, not included in Gammage's constitutional revision package.

There are eight revised constitutional articles, each virtually identical to the articles laboriously revised by the seven-month convention.

Voters in a Nov. 4 special election would be asked to approve or reject each article. If most or all were approved, the 99-year-old Texas constitution would be in effect rewritten into modern language.

guage.

Speaker Bill Clayton said last week he believes the Gammage approach can work, but Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby has gone on record calling for a new convention composed of ordinary citizens to revise the state charter.

The Senate met briefly and adjourned Monday and the House continued its Easter recess. A House subcommittee working on a compromise version of five bills to reform the state's complex school finance system met and tentatively approved an increase from $32.8 million to $61.1 million in the state's share of public school transportation.

Hall's Try Fails

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — No evidence exists to prove an ailing juror in the trial of former Gov. David Hall was impaired in any way, U.S. Attorney Bill Burkett told a federal court Monday.

Burkett replied to a request by defense attorneys to interview Mrs. Dell Meyer and other jurors to determine whether her physical and mental condition affected her judgment.

"Such fishing expeditions have been condemned as not only useless but harmful to the jury system," Burkett said.

Mrs. Meyer, 65, stated after the trial she intended to vote for acquittal but was exhausted and under the influence of Demerol, a synthetic narcotic painkiller, and "just gave up."

Burkett said both medical testimony and Mrs. Meyer's appearance disputed defense contentions Mrs. Meyer was impaired in her jury duties.

Hall and Dallas financier W.W. "Doc" Taylor were convicted of an interstate bribery-conspiracy scheme. They have not been sentenced. Their attorneys have asked the court either to issue a directed verdict of acquittal or order a new trial.

US Recalls Ambassadors To Mideast To Reassess

By United Press International

The United States has recalled its ambassadors to Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Syria to help reassess U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Egypt Monday became the first of the nations involved to make a formal request for resumption of the Geneva peace conference, but diplomatic sources in Cairo said the talks would not start again until the United States comes up with new ideas on peace in the region and the Arab nations agree on how to proceed.

Military sources in Israel said Lebanese army gunners Monday fired artillery shells at laborers fixing a barbed wire border fence near the frontier settlement of Idmit and Israeli cannons returned the fire.

No one was hurt in the exchange.

In Jerusalem, government sources said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Israeli officials were studying the possibility of talks between Israel and Egypt at some site outside the Middle East.

Cairo sources said Egypt appears to be betting on strong American pressure on Israel to agree to withdraw its troops from two strategic mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oil fields in the Sinai Desert.

In exchange, the sources said, Egypt would give assurances of no military hostilities rather than a formal nonbelligerency declaration, a difference in terms that was a major factor forcing Kissinger to call off the talks March 22.

In Riyadh, Saudi Arabia's Kin Khaled said he will seek cooperation with the West on oil matters and solidarity with the Arabs to "liberate Jerusalem from the Zionist grasp."

In a statement broadcast by Riyadh Radio, the new king said there will be no change in the policies pursued by the late King Faisal, who was assassinated last Tuesday.

The king said Saudi Arabia would "continue placing all its human and material potential" behind the war effort of Egypt, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, which Faisal supported with grants of millions of dollars.

"The core of the settlement of the Palestinian problem is the liberation of Jerusalem from the Zionist grasp," Khaled said.

Utility Regulation May Lower Bills--Hopper

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A state utility commission could —contrary to claims of House Speaker Bill Clayton —reduce electricity rates in Texas, a legislative consultant testified Monday night.

Jack Hopper, who served as a consultant to the ad hoc House committee on utility regulation and Senate consumer affairs subcommittee last year, testified before the House-State Affairs Committee on technical aspects of several proposals to create a utilit commission in the only state without one.

"I'm not going to guarantee anything dramatic, but I think I can show that there is a lot of fat in the utility rates today," Hopper said. "I think if we had a utility commission one year ago, we wouldn't have some of these high rates we have today."

Clayton said last Friday he had his office conduct a survey of electrical rates in cities in other states with utility commissions. Clayton concluded from the survey a state commission would not result in lower rates in Texas.

Hopper told the committee there are cities in 14 other states which have more expensive producing costs for electricity yet have lower rates than comparable Texas cities.

He said he personally supports a bill by Reps. Lathan Boone, D-Navasota, and Ed Watson, D-Deer Park, to establish a nine-member commission to regulate electric, telephone, natural gas and water rates in Texas.

"I think this bill is fair to both the consumers and the utility companies," Hopper said.

John Tyler, 10th president of the United States, was born March 29, 1790.

Tornado Boosts Action At Local Glass Shops

By BOBBYE COMBS

The signs of the tornado disaster will be seen in Lefors for a long time, but residents of that town of 800 appear anxious to get as much done as fast as they can.

A Monday afternoon check by The News revealed that action is brisk at establishments replacing vehicle glass and at lumber yards.

Buck Worley, manager of Elco Glass Co. 416 S. Cuyler, was too busy with pickup truck and automobile glass repairs for a telephone interview but an office attendant stated that they were "covered - up with many many estimates."

Ford's Body Shop, 111 N. Frost, "Is having real, real heavy traffic, according to shop foreman, Robert McCain. "We are only replaicing windows, so people can drive their cars at the present," he said. "Most folks are just leaving their cars with us and our warehouse is full. We will fix them as soon as possible," he stated.

"We're not working any extra hours, but if there, are any body repairmen in the area wanting to work, we will hire them today" he said. "We don't really know if we're coming or going."

Mrs. Phyllis Hunter, an employe of Pampa Glass and Paint, said "They are coming in to Pampa. The one ones that still have homes are doing their own measuring for window glass and coming in to pick it up. We haven't gone into the town (Lefors) yet, just waitning for the insurance adjustors to give the word."

Dennis Caldwell owner and manager of National Auto Salavage Co., west of city, said "We have sold a lot of windshields and tail lights and have been flooded with body repair shops and garages calling for all kinds of automobile parts.

John Fielder, assistant manager at I.W. Tinney Lumber Co., Price Road reported fairly heavy traffic Monday.

"It's a little early yet, he said Monday afternoon, but people are buying plywood to patch windows. We will start estimates on the scene late Monday and Tuesday."

"We've been selling all kinds of building materials, plywood, sheetrock, two - by - fours anything for temporary general repair" said Spud Dalton, manager Houston Lumber Co., 420 W. Foster.

Jerry Holmes, manager of White House Lumber Co., 101 S. Ballard, said, "We haven't sold any big items yet. It's a little early and the community is too torn up to rebuild at the present time. We have sold temporary repair materials, some glass and lumber items."

Civic Culture Club Studies Conservation

Mrs. Frank Grantham of Groom was hostess to the Civic Culture Club recently with Mrs. D. A. Rife, president, presiding.

Mrs. Rife encouraged all the members to attend the District Convention of the Federated Clubs to be held at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo April 4—5.

Mrs. Carl Smith presented the program on Conservation. "Conservation of soil and energy should concern us all" she said, and then discussed the problems of suburban areas in regard to increased run — off of water from roofs; how it may effect the lawn or basement and how it may be channeled to prevent erosion; and how residental tracts may be prepared to control water.

Suggestions were given for arranging flower beds for best consumation of water, and much energy may be saved in cooling homes by trees in yards.

When buying a house, a lot or an area for building, it is well to consider the factors that are involved in conserving the water and energy," Mrs. Smith concluded.

Members attending other than those mentioned were: Mmes. W. L. Anderson, Irvin Cole, A. B. Cross, A. D. Hills, A. C. Houchin, Carrl Patchin, Teresa Reed, W. F. Taylor, H. W. Waters, Cester Williams , A. W. Skewes, and Emmett Gee.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. A. B. Cross April 8, with Mrs. Teresa Reed co — hostess.

Howdy Seniors'! It's so good to be back with all of you. We had 61 at Thursday's meeting at Lovett Memorial Library.

Door prizes went to Mrs. J.C. Mosley and Joe Shelton.

Good to have Ruby Stovell and John Parker back. Ruby recently spent three months in Fort Worth visiting Ted Clipper and family.

Muriel Kingery spent last week in Booker with her daughter and family, Dick Kuehl.

Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Mosley ahd three of his sisters visiting last week with them.

Mr. and Mrs. O.L. Ray attended the funeral of Mrs. Ray's brother, Arthur Patton in Wichita Falls Monday.

Mrs. Georgia Guest left Sunday for Kilton, Iowa for a three weeks vacation.

Mrs. Genia Noland spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Rudelle Lightfoot in Amarillo.

Gertie Shaw and sisters arrived home from Colorado Springs, Colo., after a two weeks stay with the Fred Palmer children, while her nephew and wife had a vacation and wonderful 10 days in Hawaii.

L.E. Henderson is a patient in Highland General Hospital.

Mrs. Bunah Walling was a visitor today.

Thanks to all Seniors for the flowers received during our stay in the hospital, George Higgins and Edith Laurence.

Girl Scout Troop 217 made and gave the favors on all the tables, they were cute.

Pythian Sisters serving sandwiches, cookies and coffee were Joyce Howell, Cordilia Mayes, Helen Cain, Lola Mae Fugets, Bernice Keen, Annie Brown, Cevil Dawes and Marie Parsley.

Altrusans present were Katherine Sullins, Louise Sewell, Lora Dunn, Olive Hills, Lillian Snow, and Ruth Sewell.

MEN'S WEAR

Although men's formalwear is traditionally black, color accounts for 25 per cent of the formalwear rented. Over 85 per cent of the formalwear business is done on a rental basis. Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, points out.

MUSICAL KINDERGARTEN — Mrs. Lois Fagan, 317 Purviance, presented students in a musical program for parents recently in the studio of her home. Performing were from left, Donna Denham, 4, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Ray Denham, 1008 S. Sumner; Jyeton Jaco, 5, daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jaco, 804 N. West; Tracy Free, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Free, 609 N. Somerville; Keri Moxon, 5, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Wayne Moxon, Lefors; and Shannon Free, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Free.

Forum Members Presented Review On Will Planning

Robert L. Finney, Pampa attorney, spoke to the Twentieth Century Forum Study CLub concerning wills and estate planning at the Club's recent meeting.

Finney outlined the formal requirements for making a will and three basic types of wills recognized by Texas Law. He discussed problems associated in validating oral wills and hand written wills.

Concerning the wills drafted by attorneys, the study club was informed that anyone over the age of 18 years, or who was married, or who was in the armed forces of the United States could draft a will.

Finney further advised the study club that the advantages of having a will prepared by an attorney are great. First, a will can evidence the intent of the maker concerning the passing of property to the maker's heirs.

In many cases, the expression of the written intent of the maker dimenses many intra — family disputes concerning the wishes of the deceased as to the division of "his" property. Secondly, wills can be used as an important Federal Estate Tax savings device.

He outlined to the study club the workings of establishing a legal life estate and the resulting estate tax benefits.

Finally, wills can be used to avoid guardianship problems associated with minor children inheriting property while under the age of 18 years.

Finney advised members of the study club that trust funds can be effectively used to circumvent many time consuming and expensive Court appearances involving the rights of minor children.

The program was closed with a question and answer period.

Mrs. David Holt was Mrs. Jack Ward, president, conducted the business meeting.

Delegates were elected to the Top of Texas District Federated Club to be held in Amarillo.

"Refreshments were served to the following members Mmes. Glen Larsen, Richard VanKluyve, M. McDaniel, Frank Kelley, Cranz Nichols, Vintor Raymond, Holt Barber, Aubrey Steele, Jerry Wilson, Robert Finney, Homer Johnson, Richard Steele, Larry Cross, Robert Malecon, and Robert Finney.

Bank Robber Needs Practice

VENICE, Calif. (UPI) — The young woman bank robber appeared nervous behind her dark glasses. It may have been her first attempt at a holdup, and she obviously needs more education in the fundamentals of the trade —such as knowing where the money is.

Walking up to a teller at the Security Pacific Bank Monday morning, the woman produced a note demanding all the teller's money.

"You're at the wrong window," the teller replied. "This is 'new accounts', so we don't have any money." The flustered would-be robber asked for her note back and fled.

FASHIONETTES

United Press International

Strong fashion colors for spring and summer this year are natural ones in the beige range, from chamois and khaki to taupe, mushroom and off-white.

Even for summer, knits are the number one fabric for women's wear. Included are new blends of polyester with natural fibers such as linen, silk or cotton.

New from Bill Blass, for evening, are a blazer and skirt covered with navy sequins and worn with a white silk crepe shirt.

To dress up plain clothes or patch up worn ones, try appliques. The newest designs include pandas and other animals and birds, fruit and flowers.

One manufacturer of trimmings is showing a special bridal collection for spring. It includes embroidered laces and trims to tie bouquets, make a bridesmaid's crown or accent dresses for the bride and her attendants.

Batik is the outstanding ethnic design in fabrics for spring and summer. One version, called blue indigo, is suitable for both clothing and home decorating.

Bandannas, calicoes and patchwork have replaced the gingham check as the new classics, says the Women's Fashion Fabrics Association.

Married Men Are Healthier, Wealthier

Copley News Service

Every month nearly 200,000 men become husbands. Most do so due to inclination, tradition, parental urging, or, in some cases, fast-approaching fatherhood. In recent years, however, some growing anti-marriage activity has surfaced in informal or communal living arrangements, pockets of militant bachelorhood, even a proposal by a Canadian scientist to drain off Niagra Falls, a traditional haven of honeymooners.

Nevertheless, a man who does get married, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, joins a large and thriving group. According to U.S. Census statistics, there are some 48,700,000 married men in the United States and they represent two-thirds of the country's adult males.

Besides being numerous, husbands seem to be better off financially than men who remain single. Men comprise 63 per cent of the nation's top wealth-holders and five out of six of these males are married according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Married men also have a greater percentage of workers among them than any other group. At ages 25 to 44, for example, about 98 per cent are in the nation's labor force. According to the institute, this age-group of men whose family responsibilities are at a peak is also among those who purchase a major share of ordinary life insurance to protect their families.

Besides being employed, a great many married men also keep busy helping their wives at home. A study by the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell University showed that husbands often help in cooking meals, washing, drying, putting away dishes, shopping and taking care of children. Married men, in fact, average about 1.5 hours a day on household chores, whether or not their wives had outside jobs. The Cornell Study did not indicate methods of persuasion.

The region of the country which abounds with most husbands? The South. It contains almost a third of the nation's married men.

Nobody knows exactly why the South is so favored. Demographers, when pressed are likely to cite earlier marriage patterns, heavy concentration of population and other rationales. Some non-demographers attribute the husband proliferation in the South to a combination of climate and just plain friendliness.

One thing is certain. For most husbands, the habit is hard to shake. Despite Oscar Wilde's characterization of a man's remarriage after his wife's death as "a triumph of hope over experience," a great many widowers and divorced men marry again and happily.

While a divorced male often has to pay alimony and sometimes even share generously with an ex-spouse ("He got to keep whatever fell off the truck," noted one observer of a recently divorced notable) many remarry. The rate of remarriage for divorced men is nearly 25 per cent a year.

Some husbands, in fact, like to stay that way with a minimum of interruption. A Los Angeles man, an 18-time loser, declared recently: "I'm too busy thinking about No. 19 to worry about the past."

Besides the companionship, love, and sometimes, tax breaks they enjoy, one other advantage married men gain over nonhusbands is that they live longer, says the institute.

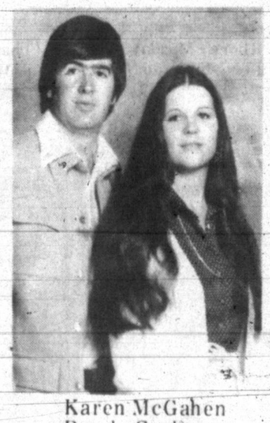

CHILD ABUSE

If a child has been once abused or neglected, chances are that he may sustain further abuse or neglect from parents or guardians, Mrs. Ilene Miller, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

Most Home Accidents Are Not Accidental

ST. MEINRAD, Ind. (UPI) — Most home accidents are not accidents in the strict sense of the word. They are avoidable mishaps with a variety of causes, including environmental carelessness, stress and too much noise.

A study of home accidents, which kill 30,000 Americans a year and injure or disable thousands more, turned up some surprising explanations.

One case cited by Rodger Dean Duncan in an article in Marriage & Family Living, a publication of St. Meinrad Abbey, involved 200 railroad company employes whose accident rate was much higher than that of other plant employes. A psychologist's report on the situation was being printed when the departmental superintendent was transferred. A sharp decrease in accidents followed in his old department and a sharp increase in his new section.

Duncan refutes the long-held theory about children whose accident rate is high. They are not clumsy, awkward, dull or neurotic, he wrote, but they tend to be physically precocious, while average in other ways.

He cited cases of four-year-olds who were hurt while riding two-wheel bicycles. Most children that young lack the skills and maturity to ride safely, he added.

Duncan's home accident checklist suggests:

Place beds within easy reach of a lamp or light switch so you won't trip over furniture if you get up during the night.

Be sure there is an easy-to-use emergency exit, such as an unblocked window, for quick escape from your bedroom in case of fire.

If you hang pictures or other articles on the wall above your bed, attach them firmly to the wall so they cannot fall on you while you sleep.

Sleep with your bedroom door closed. This provides some protection against smoke and poisonous gases if a fire should break out.

Never use more than one kind of cleanser at a time in bath, kitchen or elsewhere. Mixed together, some produce highly toxic gases that can be fatal when inhaled.

Avoid using power tools when your hands are perspiring; even that little bit of dampness can cause a shock.

Wooden Out In Style, UCLA Thrashes Kentucky

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Fittingly, John Wooden has gone out a winner.

The man who turned out the greatest dynasty in college basketball history did it again Monday night—his final game of coaching.

If Wooden, the wily Wizard of Westwood, was conducting some kind of psychological warfare when he announced his retirement Saturday after UCLA's 75-74 overtime win over Louisville in the NCAA semifinals, it worked.

For the 10th time in 12 years, his UCLA Bruins won a national championship. Two days after Wooden's dramatic announcement, his Bruins beat Kentucky's take-no-prisoners defense, 92-85.

"UCLA played a tremendous and inspired game," said Joe B. Hall, the Wildcats' coach.

In beating Kentucky for the first time in his fabled coaching career, Wooden used only six players against a team that had been nicknamed, "The Slaughterhouse Five" because of its ability to maul opposition.

Kentucky's defense had been able to knock off the No. 1-ranked team in the country, Bobby Knight's Indiana Hoosiers, in the Mideast regionals.

"I just can't believe a team could only play six men against such a fine, physical team as Kentucky and win," said Wooden. "But we did it."

Closing his 27-year UCLA tenure with a remarkable 620-147 record, Wooden won the big title of college basketball with the legendary Kentucky coach, Adolph Rupp, sitting in the stands.

Rupp, now 73, retired as Kentucky's coach three years ago after running up an amazing 879-190 mark. In three meetings with Wooden, he won them all.

But Wooden's 10 NCAA championships were six more than Rupp could put together.

Poker-faced Richard Washington, a slick 6-foot-9 sophomore from Portland, Ore., fired in 28 points for UCLA and was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tournament. All-America Dave Meyers added 24 for the Bruins, who were 28-3 in Wooden's final season.

Washington and Meyers offset a 34-point explosion from Kentucky's fine 6- senior forward, Kevin Grevey.

"My feelings at this moment are a combination of sadness and happiness," said Wooden in his farewell post-game interview session. "This was by far our most physical game of the year. But I tell my players they must be in better condition than their opponents.

"Maybe it's the power of positive thinking. But if I can't work them into condition, I try to talk them into it. I have never had a conditioning problem with my UCLA teams."

At 64, Wooden stepped down four years before he had to, for a myriad of reasons, which he said he did not want to go into. UCLA Athletic Director J. D. Morgan said after the game that he would have an announcement on Wooden's successor, "in the relatively near future."

However, it will not be Louisville Coach Denny Crum, a former Wooden player and chief assistant. In a hastily called news conference 25 minutes before the Cardinals' consolation game with Syracuse, Crum announced that he would remain in Kentucky to fulfill the final four years of his five-year contract.

Louisville won the third-place game 96-88 in overtime.

For Wooden, the victory came in a season in which he was not supposed to win. A year ago, the Bill Walton-led Bruins were the favorites but had a string of seven consecutive national titles snapped in the NCAA semifinals at Greensboro, N.C., by North Carolina State.

"We tried to play Kentucky heads up," said Meyers. "They were very physical on the boards but we played a lot of tough board teams this season, like Oregon and Southern California in the Pacific Eight. We wanted to slow things up near the end and set up for the good shot, especially for Richard. He's like (pro star) Bob McAdoo."

Washington, who beat Louisville with a shot with three seconds left Saturday, said Wooden's resignation gave him extra incentive.

"I remember in his pre-game talk tonight, I was thinking I'd better listen because it was his last one," Washington said. "I thought he had to go out in style and ten is a nice round number for championships."

Wooden singled out the defensive performance of Pete Trgovich on Kentucky captain Jimmy Dan Conner, who was held to nine points, as a key factor in the win and Hall referred to to the Bruins' sixth-man, 7-1 Ralph Drollinger.

Drollinger played only 16½ minutes but contributed 10 points and a game-high 13 rebounds. Drollinger, who started the second half in place of Marques Johnson, also admitted to giving an extra effort because it was Wooden's final appearance.

"I don't think Coach Wooden had to tell me anything before the game, though," said Drollinger. "I have so much respect for the man. I wasn't holding back at all. I knew it was my last time under him and I was really pleased for the coach."

Hall had only a 13-13 season a year ago and did not appear to be too dejected after Kentucky failed in its bid to win its first national championship since 1958.

"I want to congratulate Coach Wooden on a great year, a great career, and his invaluable contributions to college basketball," Hall said. "The main reason for the defeat was our poor shooting. I would chalk it up to the inexperience of our big men.

Kingman Listener

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some people are born lucky. They're gifted with such beautiful voices, they sing like birds. Others have all they can do to hum, and still others can't so much as hold a note. In the music world, they're known as listeners, and there you have David Arthur Kingman—he's a listener, a real good one.

"I listened to everybody," he says. "That was my downfall. I listened to too many people."

Some of the people with his new ball club, the New York Mets, say right-handed hitting 6-foot-6 Dave Kingman listens beautifully. Some of those with his old club, the San Francisco Giants, say the same thing but add a conditional phrase.

"He listens, all right," agrees one member of the Giants. "He listens and he tries, but unfortunately he seems to have a concentration span of only three minutes. You tell him something, and he'll forget it three minutes later."

Kingman says that isn't true. He says he simply was given too much advice about hitting adjustments.

"One person would tell me to do this, and another person would tell me to do that," he says. "I was unable to relax. I couldn't have fun out there. Things went badly, and never got better. The pressure just kept mounting."

But that was with the Giants. Now, with the Mets, people approach Dave Kingman wanting to know what suddenly has gotten into him. How come he's the biggest, most terrific, thing to come along for the Mets since Tom Seaver? He has eight home runs, 15 RBIs and a fancy .358 batting average so far this spring and promises to enjoy himself at Shea Stadium this summer following four dismally disappointing seasons in San Francisco.

"Over here," he says, meaning with the Mets, "they've left me pretty much on my own. Phil Cavarretta, the team's batting instructor, said 'I'm gonna watch you for a coupla' weeks and not say anything.' He's been real patient. Oh sure, he talks with me and gives me little suggestions. But he doesn't say 'do it;' he says 'think about it.' I've never had anybody say that to me before."

The first time the Giants saw the huge 210-pound Kingman swing a bat, they were fascinated by him. They followed him and saw him deposit baseballs 450 feet over the fence, and farther, so naturally they hoped he'd do the same thing for them and that was why they drafted him after he received his degree at the University of Southern California.

Kingman did provide the long ball for the Giants, hitting 29 homers for them in 972.25 in 1973 and 18 last year. Those figures were more than offset, however, by his .225, .203 and .223 batting averages the past three seasons, and his strikeout ratio, of once every three times up, was merely an added indictment.

"I tried too hard," says Kingman. "I put too much pressure on myself with the opportunity given me. But I think I'll benefit from the whole situation. Certain ballplayers need a change, and I felt I needed a change.

"Now, with the Mets, it's a complete switch, a new situation, a new everything. It's a fantastic feeling being over here."

Kingman is a relatively young man yet at 26. His baseball future still could be all in front of him and he's aware of that. He doesn't hide the fact e always wanted to play in New York. Why? For the same reason Catfish Hunter did and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar does. More exposure, and more opportunities.

"I like the town," he says, "and I've always hit well in Shea Stadium."

Another factor could be that Kingman does promotional work for United Airlines, a company his father worked for for 33 years before he died a year ago. If he does well with the Mets, his possibilities, both on and off the field, are limitless and he knows that.

With the Giants, Kingman really had no one fixed position. He played first base, third base and the outfield for them. He even pitched in a couple of games. The Mets are thinking of him as an outfielder. Later, they may reconsider and give him a shot at first base, but right now he's an outfielder.

As far as Dave Kingman is concerned, there's nothing in the world like baseball.

"It has taught me an awful lot already," he says. "I've found it's not all roses all the time. It's not that easy."

UCLA'S MVP

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Richard Washington, UCLA's 6-foot-9 sophomore from Portland, Ore., was voted the Most Valuable Player of the NCAA championship basketball tournament Monday night after leading the jbruins to a 92-85 victory over Kentucky for their 10th title in a dozen years.

Washington and 6-8 teammate Dave Meyers were named to the all-tournament team along with Kevin Grevey of Kentucky, Allen Murphy of Louisville and Jim Lee of Syracuse.

TOWE WINS AWARD

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Monte Towe, North Carolina State's 5-foot-7 playmaker guard, Monday night was named 1975 recipient of the Francis Pomeroy Naismith Hall of Fame Award as the nation's outstanding senior guard under six feet tall.

Towe helped spark the Wolfpack to the NCAA title a year ago. He was a three-year starter on the team which boosted 27-0, 30-1 and 32-6 records.

Spahn To Return For Opening Day

Warren Spahn, baseball Hall of Famer who delighted Pampans a year ago with his still impressive pitching exhibition, will return to the city May 10 for the Optimist Club's Opening Day baseball ceremonies.

The ceremonies will kick off at 4 p.m. with a barbeque, which will last until 6 o'clock. The baseball festivities, at which Spahn will speak, are set for 7:30 p.m.

Spahn, considered by some to be the greatest left - handed pitcher in history, won 363 games with the Boston Red Sox, Milwaukee Braves, New York Mets and San Francisco Giants.

Tickets are available for $3.00 from Paul Sims at The Pampa News or from any Optimist Club member. Children six and under will be admitted free.

Queens After Crown

GALLUP, N.M. (UPI) — The undefeated Flying Queens of Wayland Baptist College in Plainview, Tex., are seeking their second straight AAU women's basketball title in the national championships which open today at Cathedral Gym.

The Flying Queens, which have a 23-0 record coming into the tournament, are one of 24 teams competing for the title. More than 330 players and coaches are expected to participate in the five-day tournament.

Also on hand for this year's championship is John F. Kennedy College of Wahoo, Neb., which finished second in last year's meet.

Opening round games will be played at Cathedral Gym, with the semifinals and finals to be played at Gallup High School Friday and Saturday. The national tournament has been held in Gallup eight of the past 10 years.

Attorney, Union Claim Jabbar's Fine Wrong

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Fleisher, attorney for the NBA Players Association, said Monday he would pull out all stops in assisting the American Civil Liberties Union in combating the $300 fine levied against Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar by Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

Paul Silas of the Boston Celtics, president of the Association; Wes Unseld of the Washington Bullets and Bill Bradley of the New York Knicks also were adamant in their belief that "all athletes have a right to speak out and that a player's feelings should be not be muffled by the learue.

In Milwaukee, General Manager Wayne Embry announced that the Bucks have paid the fine and said, "The Bucks are sending the money with the provision made by the NBA that if Kareem's appeal is successful it will be refunded. We support Kareem but we can't take a chance on his suspension."

Fleisher, a guest speaker at a lunch announcing the joint sponsorship of the NBA Players Association and the YMCAs of the United States in promoting junior basketball competition, said "it was improper for the league office to fine a player for stating his opinion about officiating" in the NBA.

Abdul-Jabbar enlisted the aid of the ACLU after being rapped by a stiff fine for calling referee Jerry Loeber inept in his job.

Abdul-Jabbar was soaked $200 for what he said to Loeber in public and another $100 for entering the referees' quarters.

College To Hold Golfing Lessons

BORGER — Frank Phillips College is starting a five — session "Beginning Golf for Adults" course at 7 p.m. today here.

Adults wanting to learn golf fundamentals from a professional may enroll by contacting the FPC Office of Continuing Education or by attending the first classmeeting.

The class will last one hour every Tuesday for five weeks. The course is taught by FPC Men's golf team coach and former Borger Country Club pro Joe Houck.

Houck will cover golf rules, selection of equipment and swings and their application to each individual's style. THe class is open to men and women and will meet in the FPC gym. Outdoor sessions are also planned.

Registration fee is $6.00.

Lefors Coaches Among Afflicted

Leonard Tobert, head coach at Lefors High School, did not suffer material loss in Thursday morning's tornado but is among the many residents feeling the sad effects of the disasterous event.

Monday, Tolbert was busy helping Lefors coach Jim Allen relocate. Allen, in Breckenridge visiting relatives when the tornado struck, returned to Lefors Friday to find his house among the 150 homes destroyed.

"I think we found him an old house out in the country that he can move into for awhile," Tolbert said.

"So many of them lost their homes. The rest of us are pitching in, trying to help a little bit. Everybody's just working their tails off. We have people here that probalby haven't slept in two or three days."

The tornado affects Tolbert in yet another way. His track team is not working out and the Lefors Invitational Track Meet, set for April 11 — 12, has been canceled.

"One — third of the school kids lost their homes," Tolbert said, reading from a list which included the names of athletes left homeless.

"Here's one kid that had damage, one lost his home, another lost his his home, another had damage, and right on down the line. Six or seven kids on the track team lost their homes completely. More of them had damage.

"We're just going to pitch in and help the people around town until this place gets cleaned up. I feel a little more responsible towards the people in the city than I do other people. We're not having workouts or anything. Our town is more important."

It isn't known how the tornado will affect te Lefors football team in the fall. The Pirates were state semifinalists last season, and like one person said, "the football team put us on the map and the tornado took us off."

Story-Book Finish For UCLA Mentor

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — In his final post-game interview session Monday night, retiring UCLA basketball Coach John Wooden admitted he thought "we had a chance" to win the Bruins' 10th NCAA championship.

"I guess to say that I thought we would go this far would be stretching the point," Wooden said, following UCLA's 92-8 victory over Kentucky in the national finals. "But I did think we had a chance."

For Wooden, who announced his retirement Saturday, it was a story-book finish for a man who came to Los Angeles from Indiana State Teachers College in 1948.

"My feelings at this moment are a combination of sadness and happiness," he said. "I'm sad at leaving the young people whom I've been associated with so many years, members of the media with whom I haven't always agreed and the other players, coaches and administrators it has been my pleasure to be associated with over the years."

Of the game, Wooden said, "We made no adjustment at halftime to get more rebounds even though we were outrebounded by six in the first half and outrebounded by 12 in the second.

"I stress conditioning from the first day of practice through the championship game of the season. I keep working them in practice but it's up to them to keep up physically between games.

"This, by far, was our most physical game of the year."

Richard Washington, who scored 28 points against Kentucky and was chosen the Most Valuable Player of the tournament, said:

"I remember in Coach Wooden's pre-game talk, I was thinking I had better listen because it was his last one. I thought he had to go out in style. Ten is a nice round number for championships."

Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall was not dejected.

"We had a great year," he said. "I'll never forget our six seniors. I wish I could adopt all of them. UCLA's defensive board work turned things around for them. Ralph Drollinger had three baskets real quick in the second half and he was a thorn in our side most of the time he was in there.

"I felt we had some chances to win it but it didn't seem to be meant for us. We took some questionable shots but that is no criticism. We wanted to stay loose in our shooting.

"Kevin Grevey had a great night. I'm very happy for him. He's been a great player for Kentucky."

Rangers Win, Houston Falls

By United Press International

The Texas Rangers came up with the hits; the Houston Astros didn't.

That was the story in exhibition baseball for the two Texas teams Monday as the Rangers pounded three Atlanta Braves pitchers for 10 hits and a 5- victory.

Dennis Blair held the Astros to six hits in 7 2-3 innings to help the Montreal Expos to a 7-1 win.

Lenny Randle's three singles led the Ranger attack. Second baseman Dave Nelson and shortstop Roy Smalley each chipped in two hits for Texas.

Jackie Brown, whom manager Billy Martin says has been the Rangers' best pitcher this spring, allowed four hits as Texas boosted its spring record to 14-11. Atlanta is now 7-16.

Three of the Houston hits and the Astro's only run came in the eighth when Blair tired.

The Expos took advantage of Houston starter Tom Griffin's wildness to score five runs in the first inning on a combination of four walks and three hits. Pete Mackanin's double drove in two runs.

'Spend Tax Rebate on Expensive Item'

The best way consumers can help end the recession, an economist says, is to take the tax rebate when it arrives and use it as a down payment on an expensive item.

"We'd get tremendous impact out of that," Alan Murray of First National City Bank of New York, said Monday.

If consumers use their $98 to $200 tax rebate as a down payment to buy something on the installment plan, Murray said, the $22.8 billion tax cut would be multipled several times as it rippled through the economy.

But the major question is not whether consumers will buy something on installments but whether they'll buy anything at all.

Otto Eckstein, director of Data Resources, a major economic consulting group, believes at least two-thirds of the money will be spent, and the rest saved.

"The whole theory of the present tax cut is to reduce the decline in purchasing power, increase consumer spending and have the whole economy catch fire," said Eckstein. "We think it will."

But, he addded, "Our concern is that it will peter out too quickly. When all the one-shot cuts are over, then the economy has enough momentum to carry forward or it doesn't."

Eckstein said the tax rebate should stimulate consumer spending enough to raise consumption by 6 per cent and produce "positive" growth in the Gross National Product in the next three months for the first time in more than a year.

Albert Sindlinger of Sindlinger & Co. said recent surveys indicate the rebate won't work because the majority of people will use the money to pay bills, mostly for utilities, or save it.

Sindlinger said surveys taken two years ago showed "tremendous hedge-buying" in cars and houses to beat inflation. "People were even buying canned peas to beat rising prices," he said.

Therefore, he said, there is not a pressing need for cars and houses. "Without housing and cars, the economy can't possibly turn around," he said.

Murray, the Citibank economist, said the debate over whether consumers will spend or save their rebates has been "exaggerated way out of proportion."

"If a consumer doesn't spend any of it," he said, "one way or the other he puts the funds in the hands of people who will spend it."

—The New York Stock Exchange Monday completed one of its best first quarters in its 183-year history. The total value of of NYSE shares rose nearly $100 billion in January and February and between an estimated $30 billion to $50 billion in March. Trading volume was the heaviest ever.

—L. William Seidman, an economic advisor to President Ford, said in Philadelphia that although the economy "is still going down," there will be a bottoming out in mid-summer. Seidman said the first signs of the economic recovery will be in housing and mortgage rates.

Amateur Radio Club Relay Lefors Messages

Shortly after the tornado struck Thursday more than 25 amateur radio operators from Pampa, Amarillo, and other parts of the Panhandle were helping to provide emergency communications with Lefors.

Amateur Radio Club repeater station, WR5AFA, was activated when news of the disaster reached Pampa. Mobile amateur radio operators were on the scene shortly afterwards and began handling messages to and from Lefors.

Hams from all over the Panhandle relayed messages and requests for additional food, water and supplies. Key amateur radio stations in Lefors were set up near Red Cross disaster units to maintain the Red Cross in Pampa. Messages were delivered by amateur radio to destinations as far away as New Hampshire. Emergency communications with Lefors was maintained until telephone service was restored Thursday afternoon.

WR5AFA went into service last summer and was constructed by Pampa Amateur Radio Club members with this type of emergency in mind. Messages from Lefors to Pampa through the repeater were then passed to other amatuers who relayed them on to their destination using local phone lines or the amateur shortwave bands.

Texas Escapees Rob Bank in Mississippi

GUNTOWN, Miss. (UPI) — A Texas jail escapee and his younger brother held up a bank Monday and tried to shoot their way out of a police trap. Officers wounded one of the men and the two surrendered.

Lee County officials said Thomas Milton Wilson, a recent federal fugitive from a Tyler, Tex., jail, and James Wayne Wilson of Prentiss County were charged with the $16,000 robbery of the People's Bank. The two men were jailed at Tupelo.

Wilson was the third escapee to be recaptured from a group of five men who broke out of the Smith County jail in Tyler last week. Authorities are concentrating on the North Texas area in their search for convicted police killer Thomas Walter Shaw, 38, and Tony Leroy Petty, 39.

Officers said two men armed with .38-caliber pistols walked into the Guntown bank about 12:30 p.m. Monday, took the mone and fled in a brown pickup truck.

A Highway Patrol unit spotted the truck minutes later on Mississippi 30 about 10 miles north of Guntown in Prentiss County and gave chase.

"They turned off on a gravel road, stopped the truck and came out firing," a patrol spokesman said. "One subject was shot in the leg. It was a flesh wound, nothing serious. Both subjects were apprehended and the money was recovered."

No injuries to law enforcement officers were reported.

Smith County Sheriff Harlan Long said Monday he was not surprised the five men were able to break out of jail.

Long said he did not have a large enough staff to watch inmates closely enough at night. He said between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. there is one jailer on duty who also has to act as a radio dispatcher.

Calls Amnesty Program 'Depressing Failure'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union said today President Ford's conditional clemency program was "a depressing failure" and the ACLU might file suit against the government over two provisions of the program.

Applications to the program expire at midnight.

Under the plan persons in legal jeopardy because of Vietnam-era related draft resistance or desertion are given clemency following alternate service work.

"This clemency is so punitive and intentionally demeaning," said Henry Schwarzschild, director of the ACLU's project on amnesty, "that well over 80 per cent of those eligible have not applied."

Schwarzschild said the ACLU is considering court action against the Selective Service System because it had "secretly promulgated" a rule which would not count an applicant's time while waiting for a federally approved job as part of his alternate service time.

Originally, Selective Service regulations gave returnees "good time" credit against the alternate sercice requirement if neither they nor draft officials could find a job.

"This makes war resisters pay dearly for the failure of state Selective Service directors to do their legal duty of finding jobs for the clemency returnees," Schwarzschild said.

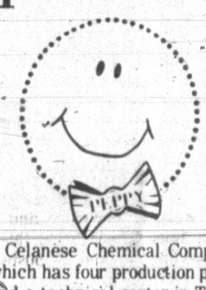

In addition, Schwarzschild said if the ACLU doesn't receive satisfaction from Attorney General Edward Levi over Immigration and Naturalization Service policies forbidding young men with Canadian citizenship into the country, it would consider taking the Justice Department to court.

"The INS prevents people who have not been convicted or even charged with a draft violation from visiting their families in the United States by simply excluding them at the border, without any semblance of due process," he said.

Immigration law allows the government to refuse entry to the United States to aliens who fled the country to avoid the draft.

Schwarzschild said the ACLU would continue to advocate universal and unconditional amnesty.

Celanese Pays Millions Around Pampa in '74

The Pampa plant of Celanese Chemical Company spent $30.5 million on the purchase of supplies and services in Texas during 1974, C. E. Steel, plant manager, announced today more than $26.2 million — 86 per cent — was spent within a 50 - mile radius of Pampa.

Steel said the local plant's 1974 payroll amounted to more than $6.6 million. The Pampa plant also paid out more than $450,000 in state and local taxes during 1974.

Celanese Chemical Company, which has four production plants and a technical center in Texas, spent more than $165.6 million for the purchase of supplies an services in the state during 1974. The company's consolidated payrolls at the five Texas locations exceeded $42.2 million. State and local taxes paid the by the five Celanese installations amounted to more than $5.7 million.

Says Environmental Quality Man

Population Gain Biggest Problem

DENVER (UPI) — Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the U.S. Council on Environmental Quality, said Monday population growth is one of the world's most severe problems and no nation can afford to delay acting on the situation.

"Time is of the essence," Peterson said. "Delay in acting on population will make a solution, other than an increase in the mortality rate, impossible.

"If the present growth rate continues, world population will reach 8 billion within the next 35 years," Peterson said. "Although recession, inflation, energy, food and environment command our attention, the most pressing world problem is population. It exacerbates the other problems."

Peterson and Don Paarlberg, director of agricultural economics for the U.S. Agriculture Department, both spoke at a special seminar on Colorado's role in the world population and food situation.

"Population is the prime cause of the food problem around the world and unless population growth is curbed, there can be no long-term solution to the food crisis," Peterson said. "Yet whenever leaders or analysts discuss the problems of the day, rarely do they mention population."

Paarlberg, the official U.S. delegate to last fall's World Food Conference in Rome, said the prospect for feeding the world's people was questionable during "the long run" depending on whether some control can be achieved over the rate of population growth.

"Projected at present rates, world population growth simply runs off the page," he said. "There are signs that progress is being made. If these signs materialize, one can be reasonably optimistic, long-term as well as short-term."

At present, Paarlberg said, the prospect is pessimistic because of the poor crops in various countries during two of the last three years.

Rabbi Says Nixon Needs Money for Legal Costs

DALLAS (UPI) — The chief public supporter of Richard Nixon says the former president's health is improving but he is nearly broke and needs hundreds of thousands of dollars to help pay legal fees.

Rabbi Baruch Korff opened his appeal Monday to Texans to contribute to a money-raising drive for Nixon. Korff spoke at an open house held by Dallas businessman Jimmy Asaff and was scheduled to address a luncheon meeting today.

He said Nixon's health has improved "more rapidly in recent weeks than in the preceding months" and said once Nixon "recovers emotionally and physically, my impression is he will be available for peace missions."

Korff said Nixon is involved increasingly in private observances of the Quaker church, the faith of his parents, but "his preoccupation remains affairs of the nation."

Asaff said as many as 5,000 Dallas area households including a handful of millionaires could be expected to contribute to the fund.

Korff said $148,000 has been raised out of the minimum $350,000 needed for the "President Nixon Justice Fund" to pay legal fees in Nixon's attempt to get control of his presidential papers.

He said Nixon, who receives a $60,000 annual pension, is in bad financial shape and has less than $2,000 in his bank accounts.

Korff said Nixon has already spent almost all of a $17,000 advance on a book and had used up $200,000 allocated by Congress for "transition" expenses.

He said Nixon has sold 19 acres of the San Clemente property, consisting of "all but the house and the ground it stands on." He said the former president's estate in Key Biscayne, Fla., is up for sale for $500,000.

Extension Agent To Conduct Pattern Meet

Personalizing patterns is the main theme of the pattern alternation workshop being conducted by Elaine Houston, County Extension Agent on Thursday afternoons. If you missed last Thursday you're not too late to get-in on the workshop, Mrs. Houston said.

Women who attend the workshop will use their body measurements to determine amount of change needed. "We will study problem areas where alterations will be needed then the participants will test the altered patterns by pin fitting. A final test will be made by making a muslin or fabric garment by the altered pattern," she added.

The workshop is from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. For further details call Elaine Houston at the County Extension Office.

Sales Tax Rebates To Be Monthly for City

State comptroller Bob Bullock has announced that monthly rebates of city sales taxes to Pampa will start April 15.

This first monthly payment will replace the old quarterly payment system with its 90 day lag time which had been in effect since the city sales tax was passed in 1967.

S.M. Chittenden, city secretary, said that the rebates will begin monthly for Pampa although "I don't know what advantage it will be." He said the city knows about how much money it will receive and he believes it will just add to the cost of the system — sending out 12 checks a year instead of 3.

Payments to the 800 towns and cities which have the one per cent tax will be more than $200 million a year, according to Bullock.

He said that junking the quarterly sustem "means we've quit burying the cities' money in the backyard in fruit jars for three months at a time."

The state collects the city's sales tax and then returns it.

April Clinic To Offer Child Vaccines

A clinic April 10 in Carver Center will offer vaccines to protect against childhood diseases such as polio, diphtheria, lock jaw, whooping cough, measles and rubella.

Vending Machines

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate State Affairs Committee has voted to abolish the Texas Amusements Machine Commission and let the state comptroller collect taxes on juke boxes, pinball and other amusement machines.

The committee approved a bill Monday by chairman William T. Moore, D-Bryan, who said the state did not need to give the committee funds to collect taxes.

"They spent $300,000 last year to collect taxes, and they've asked for $800,000 for this year just to collect taxes," Moore said. "It was created by some people who wanted to control the industry. It's a sham and a disgrace."

"It's like putting the coyote in charge of the chickens," said Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg.

The commission was created in 1971 to collect taxes and issue licenses to control competition within the amusement machine industry.

The Texas Supreme Court in June, 1974 declared unconstitutional the bill creating the commission, limiting its activities to collecting taxes. The Legislative Budget Board recommended the lawmakers abolish the commission this year, and declined to recommend funding for the agency.

Arrests Jews

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Moscow Jews arrested last month in a demonstration outside the Linin Library to back demands to emigrate to Israel went on trial today in a closed courtroom in north Moscow.

It was the first time Jewish activists have been brought to trial for public protests here.

Mark Nashpits, 27, a dentist, and Boris Tsitlyonok, 31, a former plumber, were charged under Article 190 of the Russian Federation Criminal Code forbidding the organization or participation in groups disturbing public order. Each faces a maximum three years in prison, if convicted.

Western newsmen and about 40 Jews who went to the court building in the Babushkinsky region found a notice on the door saying the court was closed for a day's cleaning.

Police confirmed a trial was under way inside but said the courtroom was full. They refused to allow newsmen or activists inside.

Nashpits and Tsitlyonok were among nine Jews arrested in the short-lived Feb. 4 protest. Both men have been seeking to emigrate to Israel for more than two years.

Two of the Jews participating in the demonstration were released immediately. The other five received 10 to 15 days in prison, the usual penalty imposed in past cases.

Both Nashpits and Tsitlyonok have participated in several previous demonstrations. Some Jews have said authorities told them the men were selected for trial because they had been warned repeatedly to cease e further protests.

Police Cadets

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mayor Fred Hofheinz said Monday he will investigate police academy entrance requirements including a rigorous physical test stiffened recently at the request of police officials. A class of 64 cadets, all men, began training for the force Monday. The last class was half women.

The test in question requires an applicant to pull a 150-pound duffel bag the length of a gym floor in 10 seconds, to jump a 6-foot fence, to chin up and hold on for 10 seconds, to broad jump from a standing position six feet and to run a gym track in 75 seconds.

Renames School

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The San Antonio Independent School District will rename an elemenary school to honor Cleto L. Rodriguez, the first Mexican-American to win the congressional medal of honor.

The San Antonio native received the nation's highest military decoration for gallantry during World War II operations in the Pacific. He also won a silver star, two bronze stars, six purple hearts, combat infantryman's badge and numerous campaign medals and commendations.

Trying to Kill

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jury selection began Monday in the trial of Kerry A. Crocker, charged with castrating and trying to kill his son Kirk, 13, with radioactive cessium. The father has admitted handling the radioactive substance in his work, but he denied every exposing his son to it.

Mamie 'Very Good'

FT. GORDON, Ga. (UPI) — Mamie Eisenhower, widow of former President Dwight Eisenhower, will remain at Ft. Gordon Army Medical Center longer than expected to regain her strength, officials said Monday.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who is listed in "very good" condition, was hospitalized for treatment of intestinal bleeding a week ago today, and doctors first said she would be released in seven to 10 days. Physicians attending the former first lady said she is now eating a normal diet and gradually increasing her activities.

Beall Resigns

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — George Beall, the prosecutor who toppled Spiro T. Agnew from the vice presidency, has resigned as U.S. attorney for Maryland to join a private law firm.

Beall's successor, former State Sen. Jervis S. Finney, 43, was nominated for the post Friday by President Ford and was sworn in on an acting basis Monday pending his confirmation by the Senate.

Beall, 38, said for the next two years his only political activity would be to help his older brother, Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., win re-election in 1976.

In Private Room

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gen. Omar Bradley was described Monday as "progressing satisfactorily" in his recovery from brain surgery following a cerebral stroke March 16.

A source at UCLA Medical Center said it was too early to say when Bradley, 82, might be returning home. He has been transferred from the hospital's intensive care unit to a private room.

"He is doing all right," the source said. "Everything is progressing satisfactorily."

FBI Reports Crime Highest Yet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Serious crime in the United States increased 17 per cent in 1974, the biggest increase in 14 years and possibly the biggest ever, the FBI reported today.

Crimes against property—burglary and theft—went up as the economy declined.

Attorney General Edward H. Levi blamed the increase on a "dismal and tragic failure" of the criminal justice system to prevent crime.

In 1973, crime rose 6 per cent in 1973, and in 1972 it declined 4 per cent. Much of the 1974 rise came from a 19 per cent increase in the last quarter—when unemployment first went above 6 per cent.

The Uniform Crime Report is compiled from reports of federal, state and local agencies.

"It is estimated that about one third of the violent crimes committed go unreported," said Levi.

The FBI said the increase is the biggest since 1960, the latest year for which true comparisons can be made because earlier reports used different categories. An FBI official said if comparisons could be extended to earlier years the 1974 increase possibly would be found the biggest since the reports began in 1930.

Murders were reported up 5 per cent, rape 9 per cent, robbery 14 per cent, and aggravated assault 9 per cent. "Property crimes" rose even more—burglary 17 per cent, theft 20 per cent and car theft 4 per cent.

The report also showed crime is shifting from cities to suburbs. Rural areas showed even bigger spurts.

Hepatitis Vaccine Okayed After Animal Experiments

HOUSTON (UPI) — An experimental vaccine to combat a liver disease that annually kills 3,000 persons in the United States may soon be tested on humans.

Dr. Joseph L. Melnick, chairman of the Baylor College of Medicine Virology and Epidemiology Department, reported Saturday a vaccine for Hepatitis B Virus has been tested successfully on animals. He said researchers hope to get approval to use it on humans.

Support and approval for human tests must come from the U.S. Public Health Service.

At least one million persons in the United States are carriers of the liver disease, Melnick said. About 50,000 cases are reported annually. In some foreign countries, the carrier rate reaches as high as 20 per cent of the population.

"All that remains now is working out the logistics," Melnick said, "and we can do this rather quickly with sufficient financial support."

Melnick said researchers made a breakthough in producing antibodies for the hepatitis B antigen.

"We struggled and struggled trying to grow the virus in tissue cultures in the laboratory without good results," he said. "Now we can do it much simpler and on a larger scale than ever imagined.

"We took out all the component parts and found 10 different segments. The segments are like the building blocks of a house, some more important than others."

He said several of the component parts, when injected into animals, produced antibodies against the virus without infecting the animal. The antibodies are the key which prevent infection and may innoculate the person for life, he said.

Melnick said scientists for years believed hepatitis B was transmitted only by "dirty needles" or by blood transfusions from carriers. Hepatitis A, milder of the two, was believed passed through foods such as contaminated oysters or through oral contact such as kissing.

Hepatitis B also is believed responsible for a rare liver cancer known as hepatoma. Melnick hopes the same antibodies produced by the vaccine to battle hepatitis B will also stop the cancer.

Ford Foundation Plans To Cut Grants In Half

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Ford Foundation has announced plans to reduce the amount of money it gives away each year by about half in 1978. The foundation cited the "extraordinarily bad financial weather of 1973 and 1974."

Foundation President McGeorge Bundy wrote in the organization's annual report for 1974, released Sunday, that the cuts were made so the foundation could "remain a force for the long run."

The report said the foundation's program budgets, which have been running about $200 million a year, will be cut to about $100 million by 1978 because foundation assets have been badly depleted.

Credit Group From Canadian To Attend Meet

Directors and officers of Canadian Production Credit Association (PCA) will hear a congressman, a governor and a president when they go to Fort Worth April 3 for the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston's annual meeting. They are Congressman Jerry Litton; D - Missouri, Gov. Malcolm Harding, head of the Farm Credit Administration in Washington, D.C., and President W.H. Calkins, the Houston bank's top executive officer.

Representing Canadian PCA at the meeting are board members Wallace Hamker, Booker, chairman; James D. Skaggs, Pampa, vice chairman; C.B. Henderson, Wheeler; Lloyd R. Buzzard, Spearman; and Hugh F. Parsell and L.F. Etheredge, both of Canadian. Etheredge is the association's official delegate.

PCA officers attending include Larry Albin, the association president; John A. Beasley, first vice president; and Neal Flathers, vice president, of Canadian.

Supreme Court To Decide On Drug Busts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether federal narcotics agents unconstitutionally entice a suspect into committing a crime when they provide him with heroin to sell illegally.

The case, to be argued next term, could serve to further define when a defendant is "entrapped" by police and therefore cannot be convicted.

Narcotics agents frequently supply suspects with drugs and arrest them when the drugs are sold. But federal and state courts have differed over whether this practice constitutes unconstitutional entrapment.

Before starting a two-week recess, the court also:

—Suspended former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and his former assistant, Robert Mardian, from practice before the Supreme Court for 40 days because of their Watergate cover-up convictions. They will be disbarred unless they can present arguments against the action.

The drug case is an appeal by Charles Hampton, who was convicted by a federal court in St. Louis on two counts of distributing heroin and given a five-year suspended sentence and five years' probation.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY

Your birthday today: Catches you somewhat unprepared for the future. Spend this year brushing up on your skills, seeking knowledge and learning from experience. Expect little in the way of windfalls, lucky breaks or speculation. Relationships are under stress and require your steady concern. Today's natives have a natural talent for classifying and comparing people with their possessions.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Recent overestimates lead rivals into overdoing nearly everything. Don't react as though any of this is permanent. If you've been "making a point," stop and change direction.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Now it's a case of being so engrossed in details you lose perspective. Spend your time on a routine that requires no decision-making. Leave your money in reserve earning interest.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: So near yet not quite right! Your creative urges are about to scatter into conflicting assertions, so that you and your loved ones possibly experience vexing circumstances.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Home conditions distract you from your job. You can't assume that anyone understands what has been confidential or knows the details. You can decide what to do next in the evening.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: It's a great day to solve old riddles or get to the bottom of a mystery. When you get the answers, they probably won't be welcome or easy to live with.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Quit while you're ahead, before you push issues too far or insist on perfection beyond reach of people concerned. Results on an inquiry or search finally begin to come in.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: View today as a clumsy, uneven rehearsal for tomorrow. Fill any shortages or gaps with conventional routine efforts. Evening brings a complete change of mood! Express yourself!

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Put a little distance between yourself and friends. It isn't your responsibility to know their errors or to be involved. Money is elusive, hard to gain and too easily spent.

Sagittarius [Nov.22-Dec. 21]: Concentrate on standard procedures in performing routines. What seems like a burning issue isn't. Tomorrow you'll find out and take a new tack.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Competition arises and possibly involves personalities. You're better off being somewhat formal and avoiding any specific reaction. It all wears off soon if you let it.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: If there are too many variables, loose ends or moving parts, something is almost bound to malfunction today. Improvise temporary arrangements; postpone basic changes.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Sit back and watch the today's circus; timing is off, and nothing quite meshes. Changes made now create future challenges. Think about your behavior.

Harold Barrett Ford

THE BARRETTS OF BROWN STREET — Gene Barrett, left, and his father, Harold Barrett, expect a good year at Harold Barrett Ford, 701 W. Brown. (Pampa News Photos)

DEPARTMENT HEADS — W.L. Norton, left, Bill Harris, and Don Snow help keep things running smoothly at Harold Barrett Ford.

New car sales have been reported down in recent months over the nation, but Pampa's picture is brighter than most.

"Our new car sales are off a little," said Gene Barrett of Harold Barrett Ford, Inc, 701 W. Brown. "But that is comparing them to 1973 which was a banner year for us. Our loss has been considerably less than the district average (the district is Texas and Oklahoma). And the district average is less, by far, than the national average."

The company employs 33 and has an annual payroll of more than $325,000.

"Our parts and service department has doubled in the past year," Barrett said. "We have expanded the body shop from three stalls to 10."

Harold Barrett bought the Ford dealership and moved to Pampa in 1961. Gene, his son, joined him the following year.

"We have a very small turnover rate among our employes," the younger Barrett said. "Most people have been here 10 years or more."

He said that recent growth includes adding a 4,000 square - foot parts department. And, "we are expanding at the present time, adding a Scotti Muffler Center."

The new center will be open by April 15. A new employe has been added for that facility and Barrett said he expects to add two more in the future.

"We believe that economy is good in Pampa," Barrett said. "We've invested heavily in the business. We bought the building and property about a year and a half ago."

The lot has a 300 foot front and is 650 feet deep.

"We are using about half of it now," Barrett said. "So we have room for more future expansions."

In 1974 a Courier franchise was added to the inventory at Harold Barrett Ford. Estimates at the business are that about 60 of the small pickups will be sold in 1975.

Bill Harris, sales department, said that about 30 to 35 per cent of the new car sales are to people who live outside of the area.

"That brings more revenue into Pampa," he added.

The large service department is a point of pride to Barrett.

"In any new car business, it is the heart," Harris said.

In addition to car and truck sales Harold Barrett Ford is the home of Barrett Leasing Co., started in 1964.

"We've got full - line leasing," Barrett said, "from a feeder truck to a pinto. Our daily rental fleet is from four to eight cars."

The firm employs a computer system for bookkeeping and for a parts inventory control system.

Barrett expects Harold Barrett Ford to continue to grow because, he said, "We believe that Pampa will grow and that it probably will lead West Texas in growth because of the exceedingly strong, diversified economic climate we have in our city."
