'Fire In The Spacecraft' Shouted Split Second Before Astros Perish

Perish In Accident At Cape Kennedy

Blaze First Ever To Erupt Inside Capsule

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — An Apollo 1 astronaut cried "Fire in the spacecraft!" and in an instant the entire moonship was engulfed in a sudden fatal flash of fire, the Apollo program director said Saturday.

Grimly, Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips told of the tragedy that killed the Apollo 1 pilots and set back America's man to the moon program perhaps months.

Phillips — who as program director headed up a preliminary investigation team probing the blackened wreckage of Apollo 1 — said astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee were waiting to pick up the count in a rehearsal of their planned Feb. 21 launch date.

HATCH CLOSED

"The test started in the early morning, and the crew went inside at 1 p.m.," he said. "The hatch was closed at 2:50 p.m.

"The spacecraft was closed and was pressurized with oxygen. At 6:31 p.m., observers in the pad area and on the TV monitor in the blockhouse heard a report originating from one of the astronauts — who has not yet been identified — that there was a blaze."

Blockhouse crewmen said they heard the words: "Fire in the spacecraft!" from inside Apollo 1 at the instant of death. They hoped to identify the astronaut who said it by listening to tape recordings made during the countdown.

INTENSE HEAT

A split second later, fire "that originated from inside the cabin" penetrated to the outside of the spacecraft and surrounded the moonship in an instant - "split seconds," Phillips said.

Emergency crews had the Apollo 1 doors opened in five minutes, he said, but were confronted with intense heat and very dense smoke. Twenty-seven rescue workers were felled by smoke inhalation, dropping like dominoes as each rushed to help.

Their efforts were in vain. Grissom, White and Chaffee apparently died instantly. The only escape available to them was to open the hatch doors from inside the spacecraft, the program director said, and scramble to safety.

CHARRED BODIES

The spacecraft doors "can be opened quickly with a crank-type tool," he said. Apparently, they did not live long enough to try. Saturday, the badly charred bodies of Air Force Lt. Cols. Grissom and White and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Chaffee were in an infirmary 1½ miles from the launch pad where they were to blast off Feb. 21 to spend up to 14 days orbiting earth to test spacecraft operations. The bodies were expected to be transported to Houston, Tex., for services, But arrangements were not complete.

Grissom, 40, flew the second Mercury spaceship and first manned two-man craft; White, 36, was the first U.S. astronaut to leave his ship and become a human satellite. Chaffee, 31, was a fledgling spaceman looking forward to his first mission.

CAUSE PROBED

The program director said the exact cause of the blaze had not yet been determined.

He also refused to speculate on the accident's impact on America's lunar landing program, saying only that "I'm not prepared to discuss our plans for the flight events to come."

But the holocaust, which capped a long series of troubles with the Apollo 1 spacecraft and damaged it severely, is certain to call for a soul-searching look at high levels before other lives are risked.

Phillips said all data had been impounded and would be turned over to a board of inquiry named Saturday by Dr. George B. Mueller, NASA associate administrator for manned space flight.

Giant Shadow Cast Over Moon Project

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP)—The catastrophe that killed three astronauts inside a flaming Apollo spaceship cast a giant shadow on the U.S. man-to-the-moon project, stalling the $23-billion program for perhaps several months.

Top project officials would not predict how long the delay might be. They said only that the maiden manned voyage of the three-man spaceship had been postponed indefinitely.

Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom, Lt. Col. Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee were scheduled for a flight of up to two weeks starting Feb. 21. But death came suddenly on a Cape Kennedy, Fla., launch pad Friday night when a flash fire swept through tht cabin.

WHAT HAPPENED?

"I am not prepared to discuss our plans for the flight events to come," said Maj. Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, at a Cape Kennedy news conference.

No doubt it will be several months before a spaceship can be readied for the Apollo 1 mission. An investigating board must first complete its report, and spaceships must be redesigned, if necessary. Officials then must start over with weeks of vehicle tests and astronaut training.

Uppermost in all minds Saturday was: How did it happen and how can such a grim accident be avoided?

FIRE REVIEW

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration named a seven-man investigating board to probe the accident. Also, Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., chairman of the Senate Space Committee, said a Senate inquiry would follow the NASA probe.

Anderson described the Senate investigation as a full review of the fatal fire.

Phillips said the exact cause of the blaze had not been determined. However, he noted the spaceship was filled with pure oxygen—as used on all American spaceflights—which has flash fire potential when sparked.

Should NASA decide to discard the fatal vehicle, described officially as "heavily damaged," it has other spaceships. However, any redesign would take weeks, even months, to work out and test.

JEOPARDY

Also, NASA could choose to scrub the Apollo 1 mission completely and move directly onto Apollo 2, a more complex rendezvous flight. Planning before the accident called for three manned Apollo missions in earth orbit, followed by a fourth with the capability of landing men on the moon.

It was known that NASA had been hoping for a lunar landing sometime in 1968, more than a year ahead of the nation's goal of placing men on the moon by 1970. But, officials said all along any 1968 try depended on a "success schedule."

The tragedy placed such an optimistic schedule in jeopardy.

Widows Of Three Astros To Get $100,000 Each

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Each of the widows of the three Apollo astronauts killed in the flash fire at Cape Kennedy will receive $100,000 from life insurance policies.

The free policies are part of a contract under which two publishing firms hold exclusive rights to stories and photographs of the personal lives of astronauts and their families.

The widows also will continue to receive, for the life of the contract, the lucrative annual payments specified in the document signed in 1963 by Field Enterprises and Time Inc. The contract now provides $16,250 a year for each astronaut but the figure is expected to drop soon to $9,811 when 19 new astronauts who began training last year start receiving the benefits.

NO OPTION

Final negotiations now are under way with the 19 new space trainees. With their addition, the annual payments will be made to 47 astronauts and six widows. Three other astronauts were killed in plane crashes.

The contract extends until 1971, provided Time and Field exercise next Aug. 31 their option to continue. The astronauts have no say on the option.

Such contracts have been in existence since the early days of the original Mercury manned space program.

MONEY SPLIT

Field Enterprises puts up $320,000 a year for the annual payments and time adds $200,000. The money is divided equally among the participating astronauts, regardless of the number.

Jury Begins Weighing Case Against Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) — A jury of six men and six women Saturday took to a small room off U.S. District Court Room 21 the case of Bobby Baker who built a fortune while serving as a Senate employe.

Its duty is to decide whether Baker, in his complex financial dealings, evaded income taxes, committed theft and conspired to defraud the government, as the government has charged.

48 YEARS POSSIBLE

"What the verdict will be is your sole exclusive duty and responsibility," Judge Oliver Gasch told the jurors, mostly Negro, before turning the case over to them at 11:47 a.m. The trial started Jan. 9.

Baker, 38, a slender, partially bald man in a black suit, sat in the courtroom with his lawyers. His wife and a teenage son, one of their five children, sat among the spectators.

Conviction on all the charges could mean for the one-time Senate page a maximum of 48 years in prison and $47,000 in fines.

Woven closely into it all was the name of the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., who died Jan. 1, 1963 — 10 months before Baker resigned under fire in October 1963 as secretary of the Senate Democratic majority.

POCKETS $80,000?

Baker said he turned over to Kerr in 1962 $99,600 collected by California savings and loan firms executives for political campaigns. The government said Baker pocketed $80,000 of that.

Gasch told the jurors that if they found the money was entrusted to Baker to be delivered to Kerr, and was turned over to Kerr, then they must acquit him on the larceny charges and also on the charge of income tax evasion against him for 1962.

Texan Handed Death Penalty

GRAHAM, Tex. (AP)—A jury convicted Claude Edwards of murder Saturday and assessed the death penalty in the slaying of Clarence Swaim following a filling station robbery at Breckenridge.

Edwards, 24, of Ranger, sat stonily smoking a cigarette as the verdict was read. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Edwards, sat in apparent shock for a moment. Then his mother began to cry.

A witness also charged in the case, Gene McCain, 21, of Eastland, turned state's witness Friday and quoted Edwards as saying, "We're going to have to kill the — — — to keep him from identifying us."

The verdict was reported in the heavily guarded courtroom in this North Central Texas town.

The defense did not say at once that it will appeal, but courthouse observers expect such action.

The slaying took place July 4 in a freshly plowed field south of Breckenridge. Swaim was shot 10 times.

Giant Snowstorm Cleanup Remains

By The Associated Press

The snowstorm which dumped most of its load on the Midwest — 23 inches at Chicago, 28 at Kalamazoo — moved into northern New England and eastern Canada on Saturday showing reduced intensity.

Chicago and other cities paralyzed by drifts of five to 15 feet succeeded in reopening their traffic arteries by dint of round-the-clock work by thousands of diggers, but most neighborhoods still were snowbound.

Sixty-eight deaths were attributed to the record storm in five states — 42 in Illinois, 17 in Michigan, 5 in Wisconsin, 3 in Indiana and 1 in Ohio.

COPTERS HELP

Gov. George W. Romney of Michigan appealed for organized shoveling by residents in many Michigan communities with more than two feet of snow cover. "Otherwise," he said, "emergency situations will overwhelm us and many will not only suffer, but some will die."

Snow-buried streets, many of them blocked by abandoned vehicles, disrupted distribution of food to neighborhood stores. Thousands of emergency missions were flown by helicopters or carried out by drift-bucking tractor-plows and trucks to supply isolated communities or stranded groups of motorists.

MANY MAROONED

Many of the marooned were liberated as main roads were hacked open again. One fire station beside the snow-choked Calumet Expressway in Chicago's far South Side area gave up 1,000 refugees.

Ugliness came in the wake of snow paralysis, also, as bands of looters broke into more than 100 untended taverns, groceries, pawn shops and deserted delivery trucks on Chicago's West and South sides. Most of the looting stopped after 100 arrests and deployment of more than 600 policemen.

A 10-year-old girl was killed in an exchange of gunfire between looters and Chicago police Friday night, and two persons were wounded in other Chicago shootings.

Despite a turn to colder weather which dropped temperatures into the teens during the early hours Saturday, the progress in restoring traffic and communications was notable.

GARY HARD HIT

Gary, Ind., was still largely immobilized, but hundreds of stranded persons were moved from steel plants by equipment organized by the New York Central Railroad. At Bethlehem Steel's big new plant at Burns Harbor, workers bottled up by the storm opened a road to US 12 and liberated themselves. Estimates placed the number of plant and construction workers who had been stranded at 5,000.

In Michigan, where Kalamazoo, Flint and Lansing were among hard-hit communities, the slow work of restoring movement was making headway.

Max Barr's Steer Is Reserve Champ

Maxwell Barr's senior class Hereford copped the reserve grand championship of the Junior division of the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show Saturday.

The victory insures the young Vincent cattle expert of a chance to try for the grand championship of the whole show next Thursday. He will compete against the grand champion of the junior show and the grand champion and reserve champion of the senior show at that time.

IN OPEN SHOW

Last year, Dolores Lankford's junior show entry not only won the top honors in that division but went on to take the grand championship of the entire Fort Worth show.

Barred from competing as a junior by a rule which makes a grand championship winner ineligible to enter the junior show, Dolores is to go into the ring on Monday against the senior entries. She has four steers at the show.

Maxwell's victory was not the only honor the local 4-H club youngsters scored at the show.

Mark Barr, Maxwell's older brother, took first place in the summer yearling division in the junior show. Mark also placed 16th in the junior division.

Robert Haney won first place with the best pen of three steers fed by one boy. He also took a fourth and an eleventh place in the junior class.

PROSPECTS GOOD

James Shelton, assistant county agent, said the judging was a long and ardous ritual and was not over until nearly 8 p.m. Saturday.

He said that Dolores' animals look very good and that she has a good chance to make an excellent showing Monday in the competition in the open show.

It is possible, if she could place either champion or reserve, she might be in the ring on Tuesday in competition with her fellow club member, Maxwell Barr, and the other top winners for the grand championship of the entire show.

The Howard Countians do not plan to sell any of their 10 steers, Shelton said.

There was some uncertainty as to what a new permit to Trans-Texas Airways will mean in air service, but company spokesmen said that beside Big Spring response to TTA it could only mean improved service. During the week TTA announced it was moving its maintenance shops from San Angelo to Midland.

A contract for $1,113,000 has been awarded to a San Antonio firm for the FM 700 improvement project from Goliad to US 80 west. Work is expected to get started next month on this project which has been discussed for several years and which has been in the mill for more than three years.

What gives with the post office building project? General Services Administration has indicated that bids may be asked late in March, and Olen Puckett, architect, has been asked to meet this schedule. Funds were appropriated last year, but the budget message last week included an identical request for $951,000 for the building.

Saturday Mrs. Sharon Walls, 20, continued in a critical condition from injuries sustained in a highway mishap about 14 miles east on IS 20. She was driving a pickup toward Big Spring when the pickup careened and rolled over several times. Her brother, Garland Dunlap, 5, miraculously escaped serious injury. At the start of the week, Randy Brock Allen, 19, and Joan Eddy, both of Midland, were hurt when their small car rolled over several times on the Moss Creek road.

Strangler Draws 99 Years In Pen

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury convicted Stanley Means, 22, Saturday of murder in the Aug. 26 strangling death of Mrs. Sylvia Daniel and set his punishment at 99 years.

Mrs. Daniel, 41, was found dead in a Houston hotel room.

Defense lawyer Jerald Mize said he will file for a new trial for Means, a Texas City dredge boat seaman, on grounds the prosecution suppressed evidence.

Jail, Once Courthouse Of Glasscock, Is Renovated

By SAM BLACKBURN

GARDEN CITY — In 1894, a two story stone building, constructed of rock gathered from a nearby hill, was erected on a block of land in the heart of what is now Garden City.

This stone building, the first permanent structure on the site of the town, was the Glasscock County courthouse and jail, erected on order of the county's first county commissioners court.

Early this month, the county commissioners of the present day Glasscock County decided the original old building stood in bad need of repairs. Nearly three - quarters of a century had left it the worse for age and wear.

The court entered into a contract with Pioneer Builders of Big Spring to renovate the building. The contract calls for expenditure of $8,420. This is nearly $2,000 more than the $6,500 original building had cost in 1894.

GARDEN CITY LANDMARK GETS FACE LIFTING
County's original courthouse, built in 1893, being renovated

IT'S THE POKEY

The building is no longer the Glasscock County courthouse, nor has it served that purpose for 57 years. However, since the foundation of the county it has been the county's jail. When it has been provided with new steel casement windows, its crumbling concrete patched, its interior replastered, and new plumbing, wiring and other facilities installed, it will continue as the county's jail.

Also included in the contract is a plan to install cells for detaining women prisoners and juveniles.

Certain old - timers have watched the discussion of the old jail's fate with deep interest. There was some talk of a plan to tear the old building down and build a new jail as an annex to the courthouse and adjacent to Sheriff Booger Pruit's office. This was later abandoned as too costly.

J. L. Parker, who came to Glasscock County in 1909 and who has lived in the county since, is one of the older residents who is pleased that the ancient jail is to be preserved.

Also pleased is John Chaney, Big Spring. Chaney came to the Glasscock County area in 1890 with his father, the late W. E. Chaney, who was the founder of Garden City.

"My father," said John Chaney, who is a retired painting contractor, "had four sections of land in the general area of Garden City.

GAVE SITE

"He took a quarter section and plotted out a townsite on the west 160 acres. A surveyor came in with him and was given half of the town lots for surveying the land and laying out the streets. My dad gave the county commissioners of the new county (it had just been organized) a block in the middle of the townsite and dug a well on the tract. This, he stipulated, would be the site of the county's courthouse."

The commissioners accepted the gfit and then took steps to build the courthouse.

At that time, Chaney and Parker point out, there was a much older Glasscock County community, located about three miles north and a little east of the present town.

"The place really didn't have a name," said Chaney. "It was a sheep shearing center. There was a store, a blacksmith shop and my aunt ran a hotel there. The man who had the store was named Gardener and that's what they called the settlement."

NEW CALIFORNIA

The elder Chaney called this town "New California." People began to move in. The first dwelling, Chaney recalls was just west of the courthouse block.

"Man named Skippens," he said, "moved the house in. It's still there."

The older town had two problems. One was that it was located in a valley (the site is now on the Calvery Ranch) and the second problem was that water was scarce, and wells, such as they were didn't produce much water.

"The last time I was out there," said Parker, "you could still see the remnants of a few of the foundations of the old buildings."

"The Gardener residents came to my dad," said Chaney, "and told him if he would change the name of his town from New California to Garden City, all of the old town would move over to his site. He agreed."

POST OFFICE COMES

It was also a part of the agreement Chaney said, that the change of names would expedite the establishment of the post office. This was established April 5, 1893.

The first courthouse was proposed at the second meeting of the commissioners in April, 1893. The first meeting was on April 6. At that meeting — the place it was held is not stated — the commissioners ordered the clerk to buy two tables, six chairs, a writing desk and a "good safe" for the county. They also instructed him to find a temporary courthouse. No reference is made to this in subsequent minutes.

The commissioners, probably spurred by Chaney's gift of land and a well, met on May 9, 1893 and agreed to issue $7,000 in bonds to pay for the courthouse and jail. They signed an agreement by which J. T. Noyes, Houston, was to build the structure. He was paid $6,500. It is presumed the other $500 went for books, desks and supplies.

COMPLETED

Somehow things lagged and it was late in 1894 before the courthouse appears to have been completed and put to use.

"The contractor got the stones to build the courthouse from a little hill just a short distance from the building site," Chaney said.

According to the census for 1890, Glasscock County had a total population of 208 persons. Therefore, despite its rather limited floor space, most of its adult citizens could have been assembled in the building.

In the next 10 years the county grew slowly and showed an increase of only 78 in 1900. Things pepped up in the following decade and by 1910, the population of the county had climbed to 1,143.

This sudden growth probably stirred the commissioners of that time to decide the old courthouse was no longer adequate for so flourishing a county. It was decided to make a jail of the original building and build a new courthouse. This was started in 1909.

NEW COURTHOUSE

The town was enjoying a boom which began in 1908 and died in 1910. "There was bad drouth in 1910," said Parker.

In the boom years, the town had a bank, a newspaper, (The Garden City Gazette was published from 1905 to 1913), numerous real estate offices, stores, and a busy school.

Probably it was this boom which caused the commissioners of that time to look at the old courthouse and decide that a thriving place like Garden City needed something a little better.

The present courthouse was started in 1909.

Parker said that it had bad luck from the outset. The contractor ran into difficulties. "His workers wouldn't stay on the job," said Chaney. "It was hot and dry and they'd quit because of the heat."

Finally, Parker said, the builder threw in the sponge and left the building only partially completed. The bond holders, according to Parker, took over and hired workers to finish the building.

"I worked there for a while," said Parker, "I carried mortar to the masons in a big bucket."

The new building left the old structure to serve as a jail.

For the last 73 years — and particularly the last 57 — it has had its share of prisoners. Some have been pretty tough characters, Sheriff Pruit points out. Once, however, a mesquite tree grew up at the door.

The courthouse used today is an attractive old style structure with numerous towering trees on the land about it. The old jail, dwarfed by its much larger successor, belies its historic interest by its very utilitarian appearance.

No historic marker identifies it but for years of continuous public service it rates as one of the older bastiles in this part of the state.

Sentence Is Passed On Two

Avery Foster, who pleaded guilty to a charge of murder without malice several days ago, was formally sentenced on Friday afternoon to serve two years in the state penitentiary.

Felipe Juarez, convicted some weeks ago of possession of marijuana, was also sentenced at the same time as Foster. He got five years in prison.

Foster was indicted for the murder last July 5 of Jessie Palmer. Palmer died following a fight with Foster.

Foster had at first asked for a trial, but after a jury had been empanelled, he changed his plea of not guilty to one of guilty to the reduced charge of murder without malice.

Judge Ralph Caton, 118th District Court, pronounced sentence on the two men.

Perfect World Would Be Dull?

FORT WORTH (AP) — Rep. Olin Teague of College Station said Friday, "A perfect world would be a dull world."

He said it would be "A conformist world, a world without patterns—a world without sorrow but also a world without joy."

Teague spoke to about 2,000 North Texas high school pupils attending Texas Christian University's annual citizenship and career conference.

The congressman said too many people—teachers and government and business leaders—are trying to force upon the world their own concept of perfection to the detriment of the human race.

"This is something that your generation must resist at every turn," he told pupils.

He went on to say that man's goal also must be infinitely various and that each must achieve his own kind of happiness in his own particular way.

He termed success that does not bring happiness to an individual or to others "the most pitiful kind of failure."

He told his audience a student should select a career without being swayed by what others say or think. "Think only of what you want to do," he declared. "It's your life."

He warned, however, that no one can fulfill himself "by occupying a job that offers no challenge to our capabilities—which does not tax our brains or our potential."

Beef Production Course Is Slated At Gail Feb. 6-9

W. W. (Bill) Holtzapple

A beef production short course for adult farmers will be held Feb. 6-9, under the sponsorship of the Borden County High School Vocational Agriculture Dept. according to Supt. James McLeroy and Sid Long, teacher of vocational agriculture.

W. W. (Bill) Holtzapple, beef production specialist with the vocational agriculture division of the Texas Education Agency and the department of animal science at Texas A&M University will be the instructor.

Holtzapple is a graduate of Texas A&M, majoring in Agricultural Education with much of his work done in livestock production. He served as county agriculture agent for nine years in San Augustine County. This is his third year with the specialist program.

The short course at Borden County High School is scheduled to begin Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the vocational agriculture building. During the dates the short course is in progress, Holtzapple will be available to assist cattlemen with individual problems and to provide on-the-farm instruction, according to Long.

Cattlemen interested in attending the short course should write or call the superintendent of schools, Supt. McLeroy or Long. An entry fee of $2 will be charged.

Digging Turns Up Several Railroad Tunnels In Texas

It's of little consequence, some tell me—these shoot-the-moon days—but you used to be a railroad engineer at heart; and you were either a trestle or a tunnel man. I mean, just for scary fun. I was for trestles, because secretly I figured we didn't have enough tunnels in Texas for shucks. I was wrong on that.

Now Killeen publisher J. C. Gresham is a tunnel man. He hunted down what we have, found one on the scenic old Fredricksburg and Northern, thrusting through hills toward Comfort, north of San Antonio. He dug hard; the books indicated just one other train tunnel; he asked where it is. One other? More like three.

HELP FROM GARDEN CITY

Garden City's E. B. Thompson has ridden one up High Plains cliffs on the Fort Worth and Denver branch, Childress to Lubbock, between Quitaque and South Plains.

"The track climbs from the lower Quitaque Valley through the Caprock and tunnels part of the escarpment on its way . . . maybe four-tenths' mile. The train always warned it was coming, because the coach got pitch dark as you passed through."

Wichita Falls' Mrs. Mack L. Keck wonders "if he referred to the old San Carlos coal mining route in Big Bend? We made a trip down there over Christmas holidays and passed through that tunnel (Brack's Canyon, Rooney Ranch) on the way out from Candelaria to Ruidoso and across Eagle Mountain Range to Van Horn on US 90."

She thinks the tracks went down in the '90s, but inferior coal caused them to be abandoned.

Muskogee, Okla., railroad buff Avery von Blon adds one more, almost forgotten, on the original Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio (now SouPac) at the Pecos gorge, prior to the first high bridge. A little south, toward the highway span, the tunnel scars yet stand.

Well, that straightens the record for tunnel-man Gresham. We had more to dig than we figured. And mossbacks like me? I'm still a railroad engineer at heart.

CANYON FLOATS

The Mack Keck family, winter-campers (as more of us should learn we can, down here), explored the upper and lower views of beautiful Capote Falls, up from tiny Candelaria, which is in the western top of the Big Bend. (Permission, Bill Middleton, Box 40, Crosbyton; ranchgate keys, Candelaria general store.) She adds, after thought:

"As you can guess, we've seen as much of that country as possible and have made float trips down two of Big Bend's canyons, Mariscal and Boquillas. Santa Elena's next on our list."

(Note: You stopped writing too soon. Many an OBT-explorer would like to know more of those spectacular but safe canyon floats before spring.)

Big Spring's William Steagald hunts a long ago, grisly cavalry patrol: "In 1949, I came on information never confirmed . . . a skirmish between the Comanches and a cavalry detachment out of Fort Chadbourne (south of Sweetwater) or Concho (San Angelo). I want date and possible location . . . I've been all over that country."

(Note: Anybody for Nolan's lost patrol, Negro troopers in one of the grimmest ordeals for survival, in the 1870s.)

ANGLO CABEZA DE VACA

Austin's Bill Thompson thinks that first Texas traveller Cabeza de Vaca scarcely preceded English wanderers. "I read that some of (Freebooter English Captain) Hawkins' men walked across Texas in the 1500's, escaping afoot from Vera Cruz. How come the word's just now coming . . . is this fact?"

(Note: Fact. How come is the way history turns . . . somebody digging. The year was 1568, the wayfarer, English sailor David Ingram, who walked Texas from Tampico to Canada. We should have markers. Anybody want to take this pilgrimage from there?)

SPECIAL HELP FOR MANUEL YBARRA

Program For Blind Pupils Set Up For Local Schools

By SAM BLACKBURN

Manuel Ybarra, 18, is a junior in Big Spring High School.

He has had extremely poor eyesight from birth. His vision is diminishing steadily; in the relatively near future, he will be blind.

He can still see enough to make his way around without a cane, and by extreme effort he has been able to continue his schooling despite his terrific handicap. His grades, the teachers say, are good considering his problem. "He is failing in some, passing in others," said one teacher.

Manuel is the Big Spring High School's first student to become a ward of the Texas Commission for the Adult Blind. Effective this week, he has begun work as a student under Nolan Underwood, 629 East Harris, San Angelo.

TEACHER IS BLIND

Underwood is one of the corps of home teachers for the Commission for the Adult Blind. Blind himself as result of a school chemistry laboratory explosion, Underwood is a competent instructor in the reading and writing of Braille.

He is the instructor for 63 adult blind persons in the West Texas area he serves. Only four of these are students like Manuel.

The training program for Manuel was set up last week through the cooperative efforts of Mrs. Harold Rosson, student counselor, Mrs. Perry Mathis, school nurse, and Noel E. Reed, director of personnel services of the high school staff.

Manuel makes his home wtih an older sister, Olga Hernandez. His father, Miguel Ybarra, is dead, and his mother, Manuela Hernandez, lives in California.

VISITS WEEKLY

Under the plan operated by the Texas Commission for the Adult Blind in cooperation with the school and through the cooperation of Bill Winkley, Lubbock, vocational counselor, Manuel will study with Underwood a minimum of two hours each Thursday learning to read and write Braille. He will learn to function as sightless people must function. Later he will be enrolled as ward of the commission in a specialized school where he will be taught some trade by which he can earn his own living.

The teachers in the high school who have Manuel in their classes are giving all-out cooperation to Underwood. He said that in addition to the textbooks and equipment essential to learning Braille, Manuel will be given "a talking book"—a specialized record player. The government will supply Manuel with an endless selection of books which have been transcribed on records for use on the Talking Book.

SELECT "TALKING" BOOKS

Mrs. Rosson and Mrs. Mathis, with Underwood, were busy Wednesday selecting textbooks from the lengthy list of instructor records available to Manuel.

Underwood will also begin working with another Howard County youth who has visual difficulty. He is Tracy Faulks, a student at Howard County Junior College.

Faulks has been left near blindness as result of a disastrous automobile accident a year ago. Underwood said he has one other student in Big Spring, Mrs. Ernestine Harris. All will receive similar instruction.

NEEDS DRIVER

The school is watching the experiment with keen interest. If it is successful, perhaps the way will be open to help other students with eye difficulties.

Underwood sounded an appeal for one small measure of community cooperation.

Being blind, he cannot drive, and he needs someone to transport him from one student to another while he is instructing pupils here. Anyone who will volunteer to perform this service is urged to contact Mrs. Rosson, or Mrs. Mathis, or write him at 629 East Harris, San Angelo.

BACKGROUND OF KENNEDY-MANCHESTER HASSLE

Controversy Over 'The Book'

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP)—On March 23, 1964, Pierre Salinger, then White House press secretary, telephoned Evan Thomas, chief editor in a New York publishing house, and advised him that plans were being formulated for an authorized history of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

This was the first step in a sequence, long and painful, that led to a monumental controversy, one of the greatest in the annals of literature.

It began even before William Manchester completed the book, "The Death of a President."

It impelled scholars, critics and commentators to join the fray in written defenses of the chief protagonists, Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., on the one side and Manchester and the publishers on the other.

MAY FLARE ANEW

And it may flare anew when the full text of the book appears.

This is the story behind the great dispute.

It is constructed from interviews with the principals and an examination of a mass of written material. Some of the key figures opened their files and disclosed records of letters exchanged, memoranda they dictated immediately after conferences, dates and summaries of long telephone conversations.

The one between Salinger and Thomas begins the story.

Evan Thomas, chief editor in the publishing house of Harper & Row, edited John Kennedy's "Profiles in Courage" and worked with Robert Kennedy on "The Enemy Within."

MISGIVINGS

From the first, it appears, he had misgivings about the projected book on the assassination. He told Salinger he would not be interested in "commercializing the assassination."

Nonetheless, after a second telephone call from Robert Kennedy's office, and because of his previous associations, Thomas went to Washington to talk about the book.

In the office of the then attorney general, Thomas was introduced to Manchester. Kennedy assured him that "this is not going to be an ordinary commercial venture." He and Manchester already had drawn up the "memorandum of understanding"—a key document that was to explode some two years later.

It contained 11 clauses, the third of which read:

TO BE REVIEWED

"The completed manuscript shall be reviewed by Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Robert Kennedy and the text shall not be published unless and until approved by them."

Back in New York, Thomas dictated a file memorandum of the conference.

Manchester is a former reporter on the Baltimore Sun. He joined the Marines in 1942, was wounded on Okinawa, and was discharged as a sergeant in 1945. He had taken his degrees in literature at the Universities of Massachusetts and Missouri. He had written a biography of John Kennedy, "Portrait of a President," and was working on a book about the Krupps, the German industrial family, and the Franco-Prussian War when he was approached with respect to the book about the tragedy in Dallas.

This was in February, 1964, some 10 weeks after the assassination.

Already, however, Kennedy intimates say the family was being "deluged" with requests from writers for cooperation on books about Kennedy's death that they were planning. The family decided to have a single, authorized and accurate version.

Salinger recommended Manchester. The Kennedys, who had liked "Portrait of a President," agreed.

Principals on both sides in the fight that was to develop agree that Manchester did a super thorough job of gathering details and information. But, as will be shown, the Kennedy aides questioned his judgment in some of the material he put in early versions of his book.

On Feb. 15, 1966, Manchester delivered his 1,200-page manuscript to Thomas.

CALLED OTHERS

About a month later, Robert Kennedy telephoned two of his former assistants in the Justice Department, John Seigenthaler, now editor of the Nashville Tennessean, and Edwin Guthman, national editor of the Los Angeles Times. Kennedy asked them to read the manuscript.

They did and these were some of their original reactions:

"Very painful reading; if it's this way for me think how it's going to be for Jackie and Bob. . . . Some beautiful writing. . . . Some serious and disturbing inaccuracies, personal and political, of fact and judgment. . . . Greatly overwritten and needs much work."

Others read the book.

Historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. called it "a remarkable and potentially a great book." However, an informant in the publishing world said Schlesinger "objected to the portrayal of New England grace contrasting with Texas vulgarity."

By mid-May, Thomas wrote that he was "deeply disturbed" by some passages in the book.

On May 16, he wrote a letter to Seigenthaler and Guthman, asking their advice. He offered to pay each of them $500 because he said he realized he was asking them to be "more than 'just' Bob Kennedy's proxies."

The letter said the book "is, in part, gratuitously and tastelessly insulting to Johnson, and for that matter of the late President Kennedy." He said he wanted to do everything "humanly possible to make this the great book which it can be."

JOB IS TO EDIT

Richard Goodwin, former State Department officer, and one of the Kennedy representatives on the book, released portions of Thomas' May 16 letter last Sunday.

In response, Thomas wrote a statement which said in part:

"The function of an editor is to edit and that's what my job was in connection with the Manchester book."

Changes were suggested. Revisions were made and revisions of revisions. There were innumerable discussions of them between Thomas, Guthman, Seigenthaler and later Goodwin. "We were talking about 140 to 150 different changes," a Kennedy aide said.

Manchester, the principals on both sides say, began to be deeply pertiro. He is quoted as saying he wondered if his book ever would be published.

NOTE

However, on July 29, he wrote Mrs. Kennedy a note about the serialization of the book — which by then had been contracted for — which read in part:

"Yet, I do want you to know that nothing was spared to make certain that the book was as good as it could be. Five gifted Kennedy men — John Seigenthaler, Edwin Guthman, Arthur Schlesinger, Richard Goodwin and Evan Thomas — have read every line and some read it three times. Their suggestions have been incorporated in the manuscript and they are good suggestions."

But this was the rub, Kennedy aides say. A cryptic note in one private file, dated June 30, says, "Photo copies being mailed. Some changes not made."

"NO OBSTACLE"

In July, Robert Kennedy sent Manchester and the publishers a communication which said, "Members of the Kennedy family will place no obstacle in the way of publication of his (Manchester's) book."

Kennedy then discovered that the publishers considered this to constitute approval of the manuscript as it then stood. He sent a second note advising them that "no approval has been given."

The next development came when Manchester and his representatives concluded the agreement with Look magazine to serialize his work.

"HORRIFIED"

Mrs. Kennedy, who had just returned from Hawaii, was described as "horrified" when she heard the amount of money to be paid the author — $650,000. This was much larger than had been anticipated. In fact, it was four times greater than a publisher's aide had estimated earlier.

Now the question of "commercializing the assassination" reappeared in the rapidly accelerating disagreements.

More more

The misunderstandings and disagreements all came to a head in a furious scene in Robert Kennedy's Washington office in early August. Present were Kennedy, Seigenthaler, Manchester and Thomas.

DUELING PISTOLS

Immediately after the conference ended, a lengthy memorandum was dictated and later sent to lawyers for one of the participants. The memo reconstructs the discussion attributing these statements to the four men:

"Manchester: "I suppose we should face each other with dueling pistols."

Kennedy: "Why can't we stop this Look thing?"

Manchester: "I have a contract with them."

Kennedy (holding a copy of their memorandum of understanding): "You have a contract with me, too."

Manchester: "I told you I don't want to get rich out of it and Harper doesn't want to get rich out of it."

Thomas: "Additional steps have been taken by Harper & Row to see to that."

HAD HARD TIME

The memo then quotes Manchester as saying that he had been through "a great deal." He said he had had a writing job when he was asked to undertake the Kennedy book, that he was happy and was enjoying a happy family life.

Kennedy: "I'm fully aware that you weren't looking for this assignment. I know you have been through a great deal. Mrs. Kennedy has been through a great deal, too. And so have I. I just want to review the facts to see if we have an understanding as to what the facts are."

Kennedy ticked off his points on his fingers.

Kennedy: "First, you agreed that nothing would appear in Look unless Ed (Guthman) and John (Seigenthaler) approved. Second, Evan Thomas assured me that Harper & Row would publish nothing unless there was approval."

Thomas (breaking in): "You are quite right, senator. We didn't want to publish this book in the first place."

VOICES RAISED

Kennedy: "You and I and Evan talked about this at the outset and agreed that no one wanted to make the death of President Kennedy a commercial project. And now I just want to know if you are going to live up to this."

One of those present says "voices were raised" at this point.

Continuing, the memo says Seigenthaler said he had heard Look's proposed seven installments would run from October to January — which would mean an installment would be on the news stands on Nov. 22, the anniversary of the assassination. He asked, "Is that a fact?"

Manchester: "They publish on alternative weeks and they would not have an issue on the stands on the anniversary."

Seigenthaler: (expletive) "They will change their publication dates just so that an issue will be out on Nov. 22."

CALL TO MAGAZINE

Manchester, according to this version, repeated at length his earlier statement about what he had "been through." He said he intended to make "substantial contributions" to the Kennedy Library from the money coming from Look and that, in fact, he would be the "most substantial contributor" of all.

At that point, someone suggested that Manchester should obtain Look's galleys and give them to Guthman and Seigenthaler. The memo says Manchester replied that would take five days.

Kennedy: "Will you call Look? Or do you want me to call them?"

The memo says Manchester made no reply. Kennedy then said he would make the call and he walked to his desk to place the long distance call to New York.

Manchester is quoted as saying, "There is something wrong here. That is not the brother of the man I knew."

CONTRACT

Kennedy said he had spoken with John Harding, Look's legal officer. The senator is quoted as saying, "I told him we are disturbed and I asked them (Look) to hold up publication. They said they have an iron-clad contract and are going ahead. It looks as though they are going to be difficult."

A source close to Mrs. Kennedy says she tried to get the Look galleys in late August.

"Manchester and Goodwin flew to Hyannis Port," the source said. "Everything was amicable. Most of us went swimming and Jackie water skiied. Then she sat down with Manchester and Goodwin to talk business."

Mrs. Kennedy said, "I've talked to Dick about the changes I think should be made, and he can show you."

COULD TALK IT OUT

Manchester and Goodwin both live in Middletown, Conn., and the informant said, "We thought they would just walk across the street, or sit on a park bench, and work it out."

The Kennedy informant said Manchester thereupon telephoned his agent and told him to have the galleys flown to Hyannis Port, addressed to Goodwin. He said the package arrived at the airport but then, somehow, it was returned to New York. Goodwin did not see it.

A publisher's representative snorted, "That package was held in Sen. Kennedy's office for weeks."

The struggle over revisions continued unabated. When Goodwin began reading the book, Seigenthaler wrote Goodwin:

"BAD JUDGMENT"

"Dear Dick: Since you are now the 'reader', I think I should alert you to the difficulties I had in dealing with Bill Manchester. He is a great writer, but in my opinion he has very bad judgment and is extremely sensitive when faced with the prospect of editing his work.

"About three weeks ago, I found that almost none of the several editing changes Ed Guthman and I thought should have been made had, in fact, been made."

Not long afterward, Cass Canfield, chairman of the executive committee of Harper & Row, and Thomas flew to London to see Manchester. They discussed revisions. They found the writer in bed at the Connaught Hotel with a temperature of 104 the next day. A source said Manchester "did not receive the changes happily. You can't blame him. The poor guy had been through hell."

But the changes agreed to at that point, the last revisions Canfield and Thomas said they would ask of Manchester, were not all the ones the Kennedys were demanding.

MEETING

In October, a large Kennedy meeting convened in the senator's New York apartment, designed to work out compromises. It lasted five hours. Present were Schlesinger, Salinger, Seigenthaler, Goodwin, Burke Marshall, formerly of the Justice Department, James Greenfield, formerly of the State Department, and John Douglas, son of former U.S. Sen. Paul H. Douglas of Illinois.

"The question of a lawsuit was put down as a last resort," an informant said. "It was barely mentioned."

However, when the expected compromises were not reached, Mrs. Kennedy announced in mid-December that she would bring a suit to stop publication of the book. She called it "tasteless and distorted."

ENDED—FOR NOW

An out-of-court settlement, effected recently, said the deletions she had demanded had been made.

And so, for the moment, the great literary battle has ended. But it is not likely to remain so.

Manchester is scheduled to go on a nationwide television program, "Meet the Press", Feb. 12.

Columnists and commentators have written a spate of speculative articles about the effect on Kennedy's political future and on Mrs. Kennedy's public image. When the full text of Manchester's book appears, in all probability the disputes will break out anew.

Library Group Hears Talk On Hospital Work

Mrs. Mary Cochran used the topic "Linus and His Security Blanket" in her talk to the Friends of the Howard County Library group on Thursday night.

Her version was the story of Linus Jones, a businessman, who lost touch with the world and became mentally sick. He lost, she said, his security blanket. She then detailed how the workers at the Big Spring State Hospital helped Linus to regain his security and a new footing in the life of his community.

James Brooks, president of the group, presided at the meeting. Mrs. Opal McDaniel, librarian, discussed the weekly story hour program held each Tuesday from 10:30 to 11:30 for young children. The program is presented in the garage building at the rear of the library.

WINGS OVER BIG SPRING

Airlift Today To Benefit Campaign

Two more pilots and another airplane have been added to the list of volunteers helping stage the March of Dimes Airlift this afternoon at Howard County Airport.

All residents who would like to ride in an airplane, and at the same time help the campaign to fight birth defects, are invited to the airport today between 1 p.m. and dusk, Howard Loyd, chairman of the event, said.

The charge for a flight over the east edge of the city will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for students, he said. McGibbon Oil Co. is furnishing the gasoline, Mrs. B. Broadrick is in charge of concessions, and Air Scouts will help board passengers.

Pilots flying their own planes will be Cecil Hamilton, Clyde McMahon, McMahon Concrete Co., Patricia Petosky, Bert Andries, Dr. Clyde Thomas and Dr. P. W. Malone.

Others who have volunteered airplanes include Mike Craddock, Big Spring Aircraft (2), Big Spring Flying Club (2) Howard County Flying Club (2), and Forsan Oil Well Service.

Pilots who will be donating their time and talents, include Sgt. F. N. Thomas, Robert Lebkowsky, Jo Polone, Clayton Bettie, Billy J. Taylor, John Stanley, J. W. McClendon, B. G. Weaver, C. A. Ross, O. D. Landrum, Keith Swim, Wayne Bartlett, A. M. Farris, J. E. Fort Jr., Garland Sanders, Howard Loyd, Don Loyd, Ken Bates, Charles Dodson, Donald McKinney, Frank Sabbato, Betty Ray Coffee and Robbie Sanders.

• • •

Another instructor pilot recently qualified at Howard County Airport. Robbie Sanders, who made his solo flight on his 16th birthday, qualified for his instructor's certificate at the end of December. He previously won his private pilot and commercial licenses, and has about 300 hours of flying time.

• • •

Howard County Flying Club members kept the organization's two craft busy during the week. Byron Orand was up twice, and Robert Lebkowsky was out three times. Other making flights were Joyce Green, Jim Beam, Sam Dennis and Jackie Romine.

Flying the Big Spring Aircraft planes during the week were Jerry Jordan, Art Clonts and A. J. McNallen.

Four pilots flew the Big Spring Flying Club planes, including Clayton Bettle, Don McKinney, John Stanley and Hunka Stewart.

• • •

Howard Lloyd last week gave FAA check rides to two who qualified for private pilot's licenses. They were Elmer Donald Holland and Richard Helmecki.

Oilmen Oppose Higher Taxes

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association has urged Gov. John Connally to take a new look at proposals to increase oil industry taxes as part of the means of financing rising state costs.

Russell J. Ramsland, president of the basin association, wired the goevrnor that "basically, we are in agreement with it (the governor's budget proposal). However, we respectfully recommend another and still closer look at means of raising the additional tax sums."

Ramsland said that the oil industry, particularly the independent operator, long has paid a disproportionately large share of state taxes. Further taxation, on top of spiraling costs with well head prices at 1957 levels and service station pump prices at 1937 levels, could be ruinous, said Ramsland.

Juvenile Officer Reports '66 Load Of 225 Youngsters

More Big Spring youngsters were involved in difficulty sufficient to get their actions referred to the county juvenile officer in August 1966 than in any other month of the year.

Bob Wakefield, county-city juvenile probation officer, said that he dealt with 30 cases in August. Second largest case load was in February.

For the entire year, Wakefield reported he dealt with 225 juveniles. Of this total, 56 were girls. January saw the fewest youngsters before Wakefield, when only eight were cited.

Wakefield told the county juvenile probation board he was called upon to deal with 4.5 boys for each girl who got into difficulty.

In the year, he said, the girls who were brought to his attention were involved in the following incidents: 14 were runaways; 12 were accused of glue sniffing; six each were involved in burglaries and theft; and four were minors in possession. There were four morals and four disturbance offenders. The other six of the 56 total were cited as having been concerned in other offenses.

Strange to relate the statistics on the boys show only four brought before the officer for glue sniffing, compared with 12 girls.

BOB WAKEFIELD

Ninety-three boys were involved in theft; 32 in burglaries; 15 were runaways; 15 were involved in acts of vandalism; 14 were apprehended for possession of intoxicants; seven were involved in fights; nine for auto theft (including joy riders); five were brought before the officer for non-attendance at school. There were five others whose offenses were not specifically listed.

Theft was the most common offense for which referrals were made, Wakefield said. Thirty-nine per cent of all the offenders were implicated in offenses of this class. Burglary was a close second, with 38 referrals; and running away from home third with 29.

There were 13 juvenile age individuals who were committed to the Texas Youth Council for placement in the state training schools. Eight of these were boys and were dispatched to Gatesville, and five were girls who were entered in the school at Gainesville.

Sixty-five youngsters were 16 years of age; 30 were 10 years old; 26 were 11 years old; 25 were 12; 21 were 13; 32 were 14; 54 were 15. Three were 17—all females.

The probation officer received referrals for youngsters from numerous sources. The law enforcement agencies made 207 such referrals.

Some of the offenders had to be confined in the county jail. Wakefield said that of the males, the average stay of the 39 who were placed in detention was 3.49 days. There were 11 girls detained for an average stay of 5.78 days.

Wakefield pointed out many cases referred to him are dismissed at the intake level, if they are neither felony charges nor repeaters in the juvenile office and if the cooperation and interest of the parents and the child appear good. A record is made of each case however.

Wakefield's report included a breakdown on school attendance statistics and showed that 47 per cent of all boys and girls in the schools was listed as good. Thirty-four per cent were classified as "fair" in attendance. At the time the report was compiled, 14 per cent were truant and five per cent not in school.

Wakefield also made a study of the church attendance habits of the juveniles who were referred to his attention.

Only 22.6 per cent were regular in their church attendance, he said. He found 30.5 per cent who were casual in their attendance at services. This left 46.9 per cent who did not attend church at all.

CBS Making Try To Bring Back Drama

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie - TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Most critics and many viewers consider the 1950s to have been television's Elizabethan era, when live television produced vital drama that hasn't been matched since.

CBS is making what appears to be a brave attempt to bring back at least a semblance of that era. The network has contracted for a series of special dramas for "CBS Playhouse." The first is a story of the Vietnam war, "The Final War of Olly Winter," which will appear Sunday.

Significantly, the producer is Fred Coe, a name revered for his association with such early series as Television Playhouse, Philco-Goodyear Playhouse, Playwrights 56 and Playhouse 90.

Coe, who turned in recent years to producing plays — "The Miracle Worker" — and films — "A Thousand Clowns" — seemed delighted to be back in the medium in which he began 20 years ago.

Coe's drama will be opposite NBC's top-ranked "Bonanza." He was asked if CBS wouldn't be accused of cowardice in not scheduling "Playhouse" where it had a better chance to gain a rating.

"I don't think CBS is presenting this series as a popularity contest," the producer replied. "I'm sure everyone would be very happy if our show does as well as 'Death of a Salesman,' which made a very good rating although it didn't beat 'Bonanza.'

"The aim seems to be not to win viewers away from 'Bonanza,' but to attract new viewers who seldom watch television. There is an enormous minority of nonviewers who don't want arty shows or ballets, but are only seeking some originality in television. Since they seldom find it, they don't watch TV."

DEAR ABBY

Love Will Help A Lot

DEAR ABBY: I have never had to worry about my children's playmates, but something has come up that I don't know how to handle. My 12-year-old daughter has a best friend who, herself, is a very nice little girl. But Abby, her mother!

She ran her husband off when he objected to the way she carried on with other men, and they are now being divorced. In the meantime this mother entertains men friends night and day. Apparently she has no shame before her children from the things her daughter tells my daughter. Abby, some of the goings-on in that house are just terrible!

I have told my daughter the facts of life, but it's nothing compared to what her girl friend tells her. What can I do? Should I forbid my daughter to have anything more to do with her friend? It hardly seems fair, but Abby, I am stumped.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: It is extremely unlikely that your daughter will be corrupted by anything she hears from her girl friend. It would be unfair to punish the child for her mother's behavior.

You could do the girl a tremendous favor by making her especially welcome in your home, where wholesome attitudes and decency prevail. She needs understanding and kindness—not punishment and penalties for a situation over which she has no control.

DEAR ABBY: Cyril and I have been married for nearly four years. We were only 18 and 19 when we married. We went together all through school. We separated three months ago, at his request, but we are still good friends and see each other often. My problem is how to get him to come home and stay home.

I love Cyril and I know he loves me, but here's the situation. When we got married, Cyril had about a year left in the Marine Corps, and he never actually had a life as a so-called civilian all by himself, so he felt he should have his fling now before we had any children, instead of waiting until he was 30 or maybe 35. I know it sounds strange, but in a way it makes a lot of sense to me. How long should this fling take?

CYRIL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If a man is going to have his "fling," it should be flung BEFORE he takes a wife. Tell Cyril to come home where he belongs if he wants to stay married. A husband with "flinging" privileges could fling indefinitely.

Witnesses To End Assembly Today

More than 700 Jehovah Witnesses will conclude a three-day assembly here today at 6 p.m. following a feature public address by L. M. Dugan, New York City, the Watchtower Society district supervisor for West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

At the opening session Friday evening, there were 721 registered from 17 congregations from Artesia, N. M. to Big Spring and from Levelland to Fort Stockton.

A good part of Saturday was given to members making contacts with homes in the city, and this was to be done Sunday starting at 9 a.m.

Dugan's address, one of the highlights of the assembly, will be at 3 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium, and his topic will be "Satisfying Man's Greatest Need." Afterwards, there will be a series of short addresses until adjournment at 6 p.m.

Saturday afternoon the Witnesses had a baptizing, followed by home ministries. There was a color film projection Saturday evening in which highlights of the Bible were summarized.

The assembly here was one which the Witnesses hold quarterly in the area.

Aged Texans Up Use Of Medicare

By The Associated Press

Older persons are gradually increasing their use of medicare, a check of several key Texas cities demonstrated Saturday.

Hospital authorities reported that about one-third of their beds are occupied by medicare patients and that they are inclined to remain in the hospital longer than younger persons.

This still is not as great as in some places outside Texas, where up to 60 per cent of beds are being used by medicare recipients.

PAYMENTS IMPROVE

The paperwork and slow payment problems that harried accountants at first seem to be improving but perfection seems still far away.

In a great many places, medical work that normally would have been performed immediately has been delayed because of the medicare-caused shortage of beds.

But to a great many of the elderly, medicare is a great solution and some hospitals have difficulty persuading them to leave the hospital.

DISILLUSION

On the other hand, Dr. Milford Rouse of Dallas, president-elect of the American Medical Association, said in a recent speech, "The elderly are being disillusioned as they find it is not the bonanza they expected. And its complications are confusing them.

"Hospitals not only find their beds rapidly filling with elderly persons whose hospital stays are longer than younger people, but hospitals are going through financial problems because it takes them longer to collect their bills."

An example of the longer stays was noted by Waldo Hill, assistant administrator at Brackenridge Hospital in Austin. He said medicare patients stay an average of 12 days, while others average 7.5 days.

BIG BURDEN

"It's a burden," said Hill, "but we can live with it."

The same situation was reported by E. M. Collier, administrator of the Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene.

"We are having a problem in getting them (medicare patients) out. We hate to fight with the patient and with his family, but we need to find a way to get these patients out faster," Collier said.

Collier added that most of the patients who stay are persons with "a couple of insurance policies who are making money by staying in the hospital. If they left and went home, they would have to hire help there, so they just stay." He said about 80 per cent of the medicare patients are obtaining returns from private insurance companies on their illnesses.

LITTLE CHANGE

Lubbock was one of the cities reporting little change because of medicare, with an increase of only 3 to 5 per cent in the number of patients over 65 years.

At Lubbock, there was a quick upsurge from about 35 patients to 75 or 80 when the plan started, but George Brewer, administrator of the 300-bed Methodist Hospital, said this increase was short-term.

C. L. Hollingsworth, administrator of the 119-bed West Texas Hospital, said only a few more patients over 65 are in the hospital than a year ago. He said that this means to him that elderly persons were being well cared for before medicare.

The major hospitals in Dallas report that medicare has not made any great difference in the number of elderly patients.

But at Denton, Flow Memorial Hospital administrator Robert M. Dickson said the facility has experienced a steady increase in the number of elderly patients.

LOCAL PLAN

Bruce Frazier, a Big Spring nursing home operator, has a plan to meet these requirements for a fee.

This plan would be for the records to be mailed to a consulting firm which could pass on the case. "Having these boards of review will sharpen the practice of medicine in many areas," he said.

His plan also would extend to some of the other requirements of the medicare law, including consulting services for dieticians; medical records; physical, speech and occupational therapy; social work; pharmacy; dentistry; and general laboratory work.

"What we are doing is hiring consultants in all these areas for our own nursing home and then offering to share them with the world," Frazier said.

Y's Member Drive Past Half Mark

YMCA braves poured in the wampum at the end of the week to give the participating membership drive some real impetus.

A total of 534 beaver hides had been hung on the lodge hall for a total value of $7,060. This is over 56 per cent of the objective of $12,500 for this division.

Frank (Great Wind) Hardesty, big chief of the campaign, said that he would toot on the elk's horn to summons his warriors for an accounting early this week. A number of braves have not yet reported on their scouting efforts. Later, he may reorganize his scouting parties to go after prospective members who have not been contacted.

Fourteen of the braves should wear proudly the coups of quota busters. They are Tito Arencibia, Mrs. Jack Cathey, Dr. Charles Warren, Frank Hardesty, Pat Nelson, Mrs. W. D. Broughton, Jack Price, J. W. Dickens, Mrs. H. B. Duncan, Mrs. Jim Gilbert, Harold Davis, Lowell Jones, Mrs. E. C. Bell and Mrs. J. P. Darby.

The sustaining division, under direction of Mrs. O. S. Womack, had 15 of 25 workers to report in for a total of $5,482, or about 52 per cent of a $10,500 objective. Their work will continue through the week.

Congressman Says Domestic Funds May Be Big Issue

The biggest issue confronting Congress in the current session will be domestic spending, in the view of Rep. J. J. Pickle, who was here Friday evening to visit his father, J. B. Pickle, on the occasion of the latter's 91st birthday.

Rep. Pickle had flown to Abilene with Rep. Omar Burleson, who represents this 17th District and who hosted the appearance of Secretary of State Dean Rusk at Hardin-Simmons University. Rep. Pickle said that he thought the President's budget would be trimmed, but that those in the domestic area would not make a great showing because it accounts for a relatively small per cent of the total budget. There may be some paring of defense requests, he said. He doubted that the President's request for a 20 per cent increase in Social Security will go through on any such scale.

Although Rep. Burleson was defeated by two votes in Democratic caucus for a place on the Ways and Means Committee, this is a testimonial to Burleson, his colleague said. It was an uphill fight and still might have been won if half a dozen Southern congressmen had not been away at gubernatorial inaugurations at the time, Pickle said.

Mrs. Walls Still In Critical State

Mrs. Sharon Walls, 20, continues in an extremely critical condition and had what her physician rated as a poor night Friday. She is in the Cowper Hospital and Clinic with extensive injuries suffered on Thursday when the pickup truck she was driving ran out of control and turned over. No improvement has been noted in her condition, it was said.

Gerald Dunlap, her 5-year-old brother, who was with her in the pickup is making satisfactory recovery.

Mrs. Walls continues unconscious as she was when found at the scene of the wreck six miles east of Coahoma.

TEXANS BUY COLOR TVs

What Became Of Your $27 Billion Share?

AUSTIN (AP)—Personal income in Texas last year was nearly $27 billion, and if you're wondering what happened to your share, the Bureau of Business Research says you spent it on things like color television the week before Christmas.

There was one more shopping day in the week before Christmas in 1966 than in 1965, and retailers needed it to top the December 1965 sales total.

Retail sales were $1.7 billion last month, 7 per cent above the previous December, but it would have been lower instead of higher except for that extra day.

The 7 per cent compares with a national increase of only 4 per cent.

STEREOS SELL

"Despite press reports during the Christmas shopping season that sales of the more expensive items of home equipment, such as color television sets and stereo sound equipment, were running below expectations in both Texas and the nation, the final December sales totals for furniture and home appliance stores registered above-average gains from the previous December of 11 per cent in Texas and 7 per cent in the nation as a whole," the bureau reported.

The specialized home appliance stores in Texas, including those that sell television sets and radios and phonographs, apparently had an even better sales gain, the bureau said.

EMPLOYMENT UP

For the entire year, Texas retail sales increased 7 per cent in 1966 over sales for 1965. The 1966 total was $16.4 billion. The 7 per cent growth rate was about the same as the national growth rate.

The Texas areas that had the greatest 1966 growth rates in retail sales were Texarkana and Sherman, with 12 per cent and 10 per cent, and McAllen and Brownsville, with 11 per cent and 8 per cent.

Personal income in Texas was up 8 per cent in 1966. Total employment rose about 4 per cent and the average income per employe increased about 4 per cent.

Dr. Lara Hoggard, director of the Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchestra and Chorale, had praise here last Saturday to the contribution that Big Spring musicians and singers are making to the organizations. Nearly a score of them stood when he presented local artists to the Big Spring Concert Association audience. Dr. Hoggard stressed that the aim was not to make this a two-city group, but rather to make it an area-wide cultural undertaking. He confessed that he had told his singers and musicians that he wanted good concerts at Midland and Odessa, but he especially wanted the one in Big Spring to be outstanding—and they made it just that.

Two Are Charged In Jewel Theft

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men have been charged with theft of $14,000 in jewelry last Sept. 24 from the Houston hotel room of Mrs. Blanche Long, widow of former Louisiana Gov. Earl Long.

Jerald Menefee, 30, and Marion Samuel Jordan, 21, both of Corpus Christi, were arrested in Corpus Christi last week. Charges of burglary and felony theft were filed with Justice of Peace Jack Treadway of Houston. The two are being held in jail at Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Long, of Baton Rouge, La., was in Houston with several other persons for the Rice-LSU football game and reported the theft occurred while they attended the game.

Voter Registration Hits 9,050 As Deadline Nears

Business over the counter was not too brisk in the office of the county tax assessor - collector Friday, but nevertheless, the number of voter registrations climbed sharply for the day. The total at 5 p.m. Friday was 9,050.

Mrs. Zirah LeFevre, tax assessor, said that the bulk of the registrations added to the total were mail applications which were processed by Mrs. LeFevre and her deputies during the day. Some of these had been in the office for several days.

Deadline for registering to vote is now just two days away. After 5 p.m. Tuesday, no more applications in person will be accepted by the assessor-collector.

There is no charge for registering. Electors who do not register will not be eligible to vote in 1967 elections.

Mail applications which bear Jan. 31 postmarks and are in the hands of the tax office not later than Feb. 5 will be honored. Those received after that date, even if they do have Jan. 31 cancellations, cannot be accepted.

Alamo City Firm Has Low Bid For FM700

Low bid for the FM 700 rebuilding project in this county was submitted Friday by Jarbet and Co., San Antonio, of $1,113,320.32. The bid does not include engineering fees.

Joe Smoot, resident engineer, said it was probable that Jarbet's bid will be accepted. If so, he said that work can be started on the job within 30 days if all goes well. All preliminary details are out of the way. All right of way has been secured, and plans and specifications are complete.

However, Smoot said that it is estimated the road cannot be completed and open to use before the summer of 1968.

He said there are not that many days' work involved, but that two summers will be needed to insure the hot weather for laying the road bed.

The state had allocated $1,250,000 for the road which means that Jarbet's bid is well under the money.

The finished road, including the costs of the right of way, will be over $1,500,000. The county expended about $400,000 acquiring right of way.

The project will pose a major traffic problem while it is under way. The road now carries a heavy burden of vehicles. It is widely used by the employes and airmen at Webb AFB, as well as by the hundreds of residents who live in Webb Village, Douglas Addition and other developed areas southwest of town.

Included in the project are plans for an overpass on US 87, which intersects FM 700 on South Gregg near Highland South Shopping Center. This half million dollar structure will take months to build and will tie up considerable roadway.

Smoot said that only the wholehearted cooperation of everyone who uses the roads will keep the situation from becoming critical.

The road will involve building three miles of four lane highway. It will begin at Goliad Street and extend west, along Scenic Mountain to a point near the National Guard Armory. A new road, northwest across the Edwards property, will begin at this point. The road will join US 80 near the site of the Sands Motel.

Detour routes will have to be worked out to serve the traffic. At present FM 700 and US 87 are two of the heaviest travelled thoroughfares in the city.

Fifth Annual Spelling Bee Dates Announced

By SAM BLACKBURN

The Big Spring Daily Herald's fifth annual Howard County Spelling Bee has been announced.

Once again this newspaper will sponsor the bee and will send the Howard County spelling champion to the Regional Elimination Bee in Lubbock. The regional bee this year is being held April 29. Tentative plans are for the county spelling bee to be staged April 15.

Winner of the regional spelling bee wins a free trip for himself and his family to Washington, D. C., where he will compete in the national bee June 5-10.

Don Hickson, who was the 1964 and 1965 Howard County spelling champion, won the regional in 1965. He was the Runnels Junior High School champion that year and also the previous year.

Scott McLaughlin, who was the 1966 champion was fifth in the Lubbock meet, competiting with champion spellers from 22 other West Texas counties.

McLaughlin, who was the Goliad champion in 1966, is planning to try for his second county title. Any student in the schools of the county, who has not passed the eighth grade and who will be under 16 years of age by the time of the National Spelling Bee, is eligible to compete.

OTHER AWARDS

The winner in the county bee not only wins a free trip to Lubbock and a chance to win the regional meet, but he also gets an attractive plaque, as well as other special prizes.

All county schools are cordially invited to take part in this annual spelling bee. The project involves the selection of classroom champions and the determination of the school championship for each school.

A champion and a runnerup from each school are designated. The runnerup will be accepted in the county bee if the champion from a school does not appear or cannot compete. So far in the four years, this situation has not arisen.

All words used in the spelling bee at county, regional and national levels are from a special booklet titled "Words of the Champions."

BOOKS COMING

These official books are sold for 15 cents each. The Herald has ordered a supply of the books and they will be on hand this week.

Copies of the official rules for the county and for the regional bees will also be provided all applicants.

Sam Anderson, superintendent of the Big Spring schools, has announced that Keith Swim, of the school administrative staff, will be coordinating officer for the city schools.

All of the Big Spring elementary and the two junior high schools, as well as the parish school at the Immaculate Heart of St. Mary Catholic Church and the St. Mary's Episcopal Church are eligible to enter champions. All county schools — Coahoma and Forsan — are cordially invited to enter spellers.

Walker Bailey, county superintendent, has agreed to serve as chairman of the spelling bee. He has filed that post each year the bee has been held.

Announcement will be made of the day the spelling books arrive and when the official rules are ready.

Fashion Designer Out-Does Minis

PARIS (AP) — Emmanuel Ungaro today went the miniskirt one better. He eliminated skirts, as such, altogether.

Kneecaps were covered, with high, white, elastic - topped socks. Above the socks a good five inches of bare leg appeared.

Cuffed Bermuda briefs and for later in the day an occasional full bloomer leg were visible. Then, moving upward, the dress, or coat—no longer than a tunic—came into view.

BEWARE OF AMATEUR MEDICAL ADVISERS

It seems that almost everybody is eager to practice medicine. Mention having an ailment of any kind and everyone from helpful friends to advertising medicine men offer a treatment. They are like the blind leading the blind.

The fallacy of amateurs is that they only treat symptoms of sickness, not the cause. Only a physician has the knowledge to diagnose what is causing the trouble. Once this is known, a cure more often results. The physician prescribes the particular medicine his long studies and experience decides is best. That is why prescriptions are more effective than patent medicines. We can fill any prescription.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound and dispense yours?

LOOK OVER SUNDAY CLOSING AGREEMENT
H. M. Jarratt, Ralph White, W. Ray Echols

Teams To Seek Signatures For Closing On Sundays

Several teams of laymen from the Citizens for a Better Howard County will begin contacts Monday seeking to obtain pledges from businessmen to remain closed on Sundays.

The effort will embrace Coahoma as well as Big Spring.

Signatures will be sought on the basis of "being in favor of operating our business establishments on six-days a week in order that we and our employes may use one day each week as a day set aside to worship, rest and be with our families."

Those who now observe this pattern of operation will be asked to sign that they will continue. There is a proviso that "this agreement . . . is signed with the understanding owners and operators of other businesses of a like nature agree to close beginning March 5, 1967."

W. Ray Echols, representing Coahoma at a meeting a week ago to organize for this effort, urged that Coahoma be included. He said contacts had indicated that Coahoma would be shut down with the exception of two small cafes.

Earl Brown, district manager for Furr's Super Market, expressed a willingness Friday not only to sign the agreement but also the hope that the program could be put into effect earlier, according to Dr. H. M. Jarratt, president of the citizens group.

Fire took it easy Friday as only one fire was reported. A mattress caught fire at 416 NW 4th, and was quickly extinguished by firemen. Firemen believed the stove was too close to the bed when the mattress caught fire.

Rehab Center Has Increase In Work Load

A revised budget, calling for expenditures of $27,817, was approved by directors of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, meeting Friday for the first time this year.

The budget was scaled down some, in view of less money being available from the United Fund.

However, a report from the physical therapist, Jim Thompson, showed that the Center's patient load continues to climb.

Total number of treatments (in physical therapy and speech therapy) for the last three months of 1966 was 1,617, as against 1,006 for the corresponding three months of the year before. Total number of patients the last quarter was 358, number for the year before was 185.

Directors approved in principle a formal statement of personnel policies, made plans for a dinner in April to recognize volunteer workers, and called for support for the annual Easter Seal campaign, from which it will derive some funds. The Center will observe an "open house" during the campaign.

'Funny Numbered' Checks Needed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas will not process checks which do not carry the magnetic ink symbols of the writer's bank after Sept. 1.

Officials of the 11th Federal Reserve District here said the restriction was imposed in the name of efficiency.

They pointed out that the four offices under the jurisdiction of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank process more than 1.1 million checks daily. Computers sort checks with the magnetic symbols at the rate of 60,000 an hour. But only 1,500 checks an hour can be handled on low-speed machines that do not require the symbols.

After Sept. 1, officials announced Saturday, non-preprinted checks will be handled as a non-cash collection. This means that credit cannot be given the receiver of the check until it has been completely processed through the drawer's bank.

The announcement said that drug stores, department stores and super markets are being urged to withdraw their counter checks, which do not have the "funny numbers" on the bottom.

Job Corpsman Has Training But He Has Major Problem

By ROBERT SETTLES

Aubrey R. Ragon, 18, Job Corps graduate, has a certificate and a problem.

Two months have passed now since he was graduated from his training as an electrician's helper, but so far he hasn't been able to get a regular job.

"What good is a certificate," he mused, "without having a chance to prove why I got it."

This, and some other aspects of his Job Corps experience have been disillusioning, but Aubrey is glad he had the chance.

Aubrey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ragon Jr., 1111 W. 6th, and he took his training at Atterbury Job Corps Center in Edinburg, Ind. His certificate says that he has demonstrated skill performance and general education requirements that recommend him for employment as electrician's helper, household appliance, television repair and antenna installation and radio repair.

AUBREY R. RAGON

LUSTER FADES

He joined the Job Corps Feb. 21, 1966 in response to an advertisement and completed his training Nov. 16, 1966.

Things were new and impressive at the outset, but as time went on some of this luster faded. Facilities weren't new, as he first thought, and some were crowded. This was true in housing accommodations. At first, he was in a room with three other boys, but finally shared a room with only one other lad.

Two major problems arose. One was stealing. A lot of this went on, and with only 300 staff members for 3,000 boys little apparently could be done about it.

Lack of discipline was another problem. A lot of the youths were from urban centers in the North and East, and when they caused trouble there was little that the 10 security guards or staff members could do.

TOO MANY

On Friday nights, the young men were free to go and not come back until Sunday at midnight.

"It was a small town, and when 3,000 corpsmen were released all at once, there was quite a disturbance in town," he said. "Many of the men would get drunk and return to camp to cause trouble.

"I liked attending public school better than I did the corps for several reasons but mainly because of the discipline. In the Job Corps the corpsmen could smoke and not really pay very much attention to the teacher. In public school there is a certain discipline, and therefore one can learn more.

"I really was surprised after I had been there awhile, because my first impression had suddenly changed. The buildings were not very modern, and it was pretty crowded when four boys have to share a room. In some places eight boys were together.

"But I am really glad I joined the Job Corps because I have accomplished my goal in learning something about electricity. But ever since I have returned, it seems that this education is being wasted."

ODD JOBS

"I have my application in at several different places but after two months I have heard nothing. So I am doing a few odd jobs now and then until I can get an opportunity to prove my ability."

The Job Corps is a major youth program in the President's War on Poverty. Job Corps training provides the basic education and work skill training required to make young men and women 16 through 21 employable. It also is designed to teach them proper work habits and attitudes. The routine day starts at 6 a.m. and after breakfast classes are held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. with corpsmen free after supper until 11 p.m.

Most of the young people (about 70 per cent) who complete their training are placed in jobs; 21 per cent of them enter the Armed Forces, and the remaining nine per cent return to school.

So Aubrey Ragon, Job Corps graduate, will continue his odd jobs until his hope of employment as an electrician's helper comes.

Crippled Children's Clinic Proposed To Serve Area

A proposed crippled children's clinic, to provide a diagnostic and treatment evaluation service to youngsters in the Big Spring area, was given an approval Friday by the board of directors of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

The clinic would operate through cooperation of professional medical people, and would serve as a sort of diagnostic testing service to determine which children need rehabilitation therapy and which do not.

It is proposed that the clinic would function probably every three months, employing the services of a pediatrician, orthopedic surgeon, physical therapist, speech therapist and brace man.

Children in areas without rehabilitation service — such as Snyder, Colorado City, Lamesa, Stanton, Sterling City — as well as those in Big Spring would be served. They would be referred by family physicians, school nurses, public health nurses, etc.

The Rehabilitation Center would provide facilities, and professional fee costs would be borne by the Easter Seal Society.

Sunday Rites For Mrs. Era Dunn

COLORADO CITY (SC)—Miss Era May Dunn, 46, former Dunn resident, died at Rockport Thursday morning after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Dunn Methodist Church, with the Rev. Jesse Dea, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Dunn Cemetery under the direction of the Kiker and Son Funeral Home.

Miss Dunn was born in Dunn, Tex., Sept. 27, 1920 and had lived there until she moved to Rockport in 1950. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

She is survived by three brothers, Russell Dunn of Colorado City, Drue Dunn of Kerrville and Ollie Dunn of Lubbock; one sister, Mrs. Vera Eitel of Rockport.

Jones Low Bidder On State Project

Jones Construction Co. Inc., Big Spring, was the apparent low bidder Friday on an addition to the warehouse building of the Big Spring State Hospital. The bid was $54,316.

The projected extension will double the hospital's warehouse area. There are seven alternate proposals in the bid which the state can accept or reject. Two of these would detract from the base bid and the others would add work to it.

The contract will be awarded later when the bids have been studied.

Other bids on the building ran as high as $57,997.

Youths Booked For Building Defacing

SNYDER — Two Snyder youths may be in serious trouble because of the slogan, "Curse you, Red Baron."

Justice of the Peace J. P. Billingsley said two youths, Brad Harmon and John Brinner, 18, had been charged with malicious mischief and had each made $1,000 bond.

The phrase was spray painted along 30 feet of the north side of the Snyder High School building and the entrance to Towle Park. Sand blasting may be required for removal.

Arnold Palmer Leads Brewer By 4 Strokes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, dropped five sizable birdie putts to take a four-stroke lead over Gay Brewer Saturday in the third round of the $100,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer, who won this tourney at the 6,821-yard, par 71 Rancho Park Municipal Course in 1966 and 1963, fired a four-under par 67 for a 54-hole total of 201—12 under par. The 37-year-old pro put together nines of 35 and 32.

Brewer, a personable 11-year tour veteran from Dallas, Tex., also made five birdies, but a pair of bogies gave him a 34-34 —68 and 205.

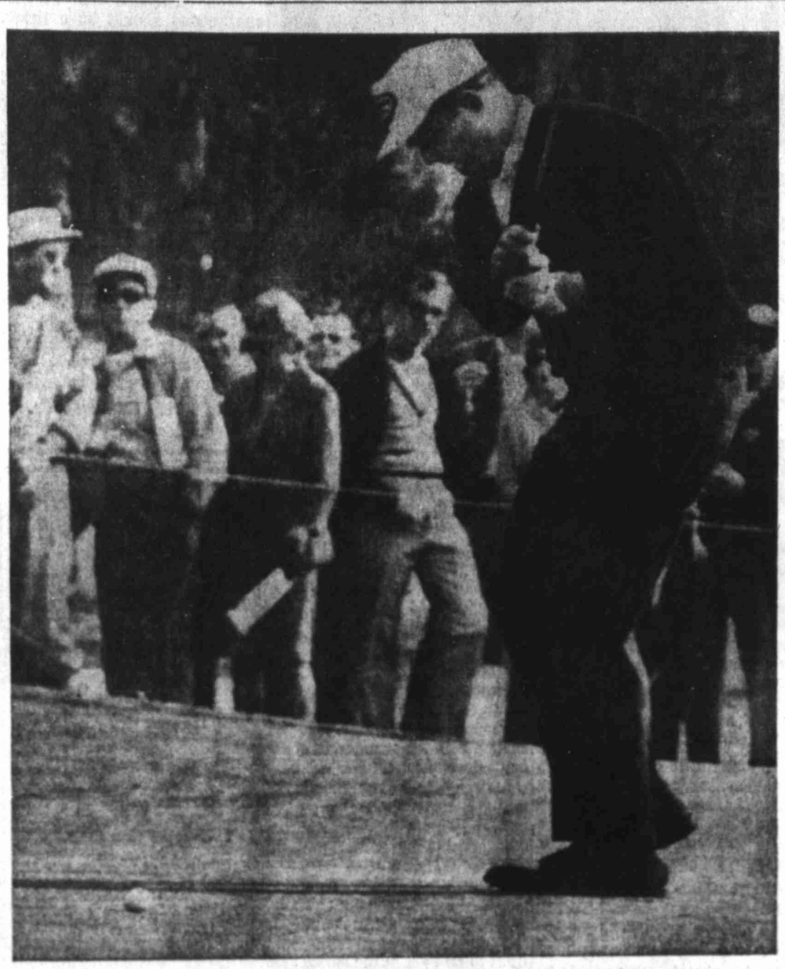
Another stroke back at 206 were the second-round leader, Don Massengale of Jacksboro, Tex., who faltered to a three-over-par 74 when he failed all day to make a birdie, and Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., who shot a 67.

Julius Boros, the 46-year-old former U.S. Open champion, was alone at 207, after a strong 68, and four other professionals — led by current Open winner Billy Casper — were deadlocked at 208.

With Casper, who equaled the day's low round of 66 with five birdies and no bogies in a virtually flawless display, were young Steve Oppermann, Australian Bruce Crampton and a local favorite, Pete Brown of Los Angeles.

Oppermann also shot a 66, while Crampton came in with a 67 and Brown a 69.

Palmer, seeking his first 1967 victory in the third tourney of the winter tour, sank birdie putts of 10, 20, 10, 8 and 10 feet. The Laurel Valley, Pa., pro's only bogey came at No. 5 where he missed a three-foot putt.



Oh, Pshaw!

Don Massengale waves his putter in disgust as he missed a short birdie putt on the 6th hole during Saturday's third round of the Los Angeles Open. He was trying to protect the two-stroke lead with which he began the day. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Astros Take Chance, Pick Dick Varney

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Varney, a strongboy catcher who was a No. 1 pick last year but did not come to terms with Kansas City, was claimed Saturday by the Houston Astros in the special phase of the major league baseball draft.

The assembled 20 major league clubs, making their selections in a plush midtown hotel, tapped 108 players with free agent status in the regular phase of the winter selection meeting before heading into the special phase.

In the special phase, players who previously have been drafted but have not agreed to terms are thrown back into the hopper and can be selected by any team with the exception of the club that tapped them previously.

MAY STAY PUT

The Astros, picking first, went for Varney, a 17-year-old 6-foot-3, 215-pounder from North Quincy, Mass., who is attending Deerfield, Mass., Academy and was picked by the A's last August as the No. 1 selection in the draft of American Legion players.

The Astros admitted that there was some risk involved in selecting Varney, who appears to prefer remaining in school at the moment.

"Our information is that the boy may not sign immediately and may play baseball at Deerfield this coming season," said Tal Smith, the Astros' vice president and director of player personnel. "That, however, would still give us time to sign him before the next draft."

The clubs making selections have until 15 days before the June draft to sign players, or lose them.

"We'll contact Varney as soon as we can," said Smith.

Irving Weighs Offer Made By Murchison

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) —Clint Murchison Jr., said in effect Saturday it was up to the people of suburban Irving whether his Dallas Cowboys play football in a stadium proposed there or continue in the aging Cotton Bowl.

"I can make just as much money at the present stadium," the National Football League club owner said. "I think I owe the efforts I am making to those many thousands of Cowboy fans who don't have parking passes or box seats and are the real reason the Cowboys stay in this city."

Murchison told a news conference he looked with favor on the proposal offered by a group of Irving businessmen to build a stadium there. He said neither the State Fair of Texas, operators of the Cotton Bowl, nor the City of Dallas have made a move toward a new stadium with better parking facilities and street access than presently available at Fair Park.

He said the land and cost of stadium construction at the Irving site would be $12.5 to $13 million. At that price a stadium seating more than 55,000 persons would be economically feasible, he said.

Murchison said he presently owns or holds options on all except 16 acres of the 105-acre site proposed in Irving.

He said the type stadium for which he had plans drawn would have mostly sideline seats and all would be in the shade except for a few in the end zone.

"It would be the finest football stadium to be built in the world," he said.

Speaking of the Irving site, he said, "It is a wonderful place. I hope we can work something out. I think a stadium should be built. I'm going to try and do the best I can by them—the Cowboy customers."

Irving officials said there have been no discussions on how to finance the plan. In all probability Irving residents would be called on to approve a bond issue.

Murchison said he was prepared to lend financial assistance, but no amount was mentioned.

He said for the Cowboys to play their home games in Irving could have a tremendous effect on the city of 71,000 because it would get nationwide exposure from television.

Murchison said he originally planned to announce the Irving proposal at a news conference Monday. Saturday's conference was hastily called upon his return to Dallas, Murchison said, after the plans were made public Thursday night by Bill Stevens, Irving Chamber of Commerce manager, at a Farmers Branch Lions Club meeting.

Longhorns Golfers Beat Six Foes At San Angelo

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Steers are making the other District 2-AAAA golf teams sit up and take notice.

BROADRICK

Dan Lewis' Longhorns won their third straight practice match at the San Angelo Country Club here Saturday, leaving six other teams far in their wake.

Paced by sophomore Ronnie Broadrick's one-under par 70, achieved by piecing two 35's together, the Longhorns had a four-man aggregate score over 18 holes of 302.

Closest pursuers were host San Angelo and Abilene Cooper, each of whom registered a 311. Abilene High and Midland High finished in a tie for fourth, at 316. Snyder was one stroke back, at 317, while Midland Lee wound up dead last, at 319.

Others who figured in on the 'kill' for Big Spring were Mike Weaver, who had a 76; Randy Nicholson, who finished with a 77; and Mike Hall, who made the rounds in 79.

Four other Big Spring linksters made the trip and shot for record, although Tommy Wilson was unable to finish his 18 holes. Bill Schwarzenbach settled for an 81, Don Kasch had an 83 and Ken Chadd an 85.

On his round, Broadrick had five birdies to offset the effect of four bogies. He had birdies on three, nine, 10, 11 and 18 and bogies on one, six, 13 and 14.

(Tournament officials used a variation of the 'shotgun' start and Broadrick started his round on No. Ten).

Ronnie chipped in with a wedge from 30 yards away on the 441-yard par-four 18th hole for a bird.

Lewis will take his team to Midland's Hogan Park Wednesday for a practice round and the Steers will host several schools in another practice match next Saturday. The Longhorns and other 2-AAAA teams launch district competition Friday, Feb. 10, in Abilene.

American Links Team Selected

NEW YORK (AP) — Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., twice U.S. national amateur champion, heads the 10-man team named Saturday to represent the United States on the Walker Cup team against Britain at Sandwich, England, May 19-30.

The squad includes two other former amateur winners — William Campbell, 43, of Huntington, W. Va., 1964, and Bob Murphy Jr., 23, of Nichols, Fla., victor in 1965.

Others are Edgar Tutwiler, 47, Indianapolis; Donald Allen, 28, Rochester, N.Y.; Downing Gray, 28, Pensacola, Fla.; James Grant, 24, Wethersfield, Conn.; Bob Dickson, 23, McAlester, Okla.; Ron Cerrudo, 21, San Rafael, Calif., and Jack Lewis Jr., 19, Florence, S.C.

Jess Sweetser, former U.S. and British amateur champion from Washington, D.C., was selected non-playing captain. He handled the Eisenhower Trophy team in Mexico City last year.

Only Dickson, Grant and Lewis have not played on previous international teams.

The last Walker Cup match was played in Baltimore in 1965, the Americans staging a rally to gain an 11-11 tie.

The 1967 event will be played on the Royal St. George's course, one of the most famous and demanding in the British Isles.

The U.S. Golf Association, at its annual meeting here, also changed the format of the National Public Links Tournament from match to medal play; awarded Dick Tufts of Pinehurst, N.C., the Bob Jones Trophy for outstanding contributions to the game, and raised prize money for both the men's and women's Open championships.

Weather Playing Havoc In Sports

By The Associated Press

The crippling snowstorm which paralyzed transportation in the Midwest continued Saturday to force postponements and cancelations of numerous sporting events, including a National Basketball Association game between Detroit and Chicago.

Ed Coil, the Pistons' general manager, said the Bulls had been unable to arrange for air transportation out of Chicago and could not reach Detroit by car or bus since highways between the two cities are impassable.

Coil said the game, originally scheduled for Saturday night, will be rescheduled at a later date.

The situation was much the same as a basketball game between Ohio State and Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., was postponed, a swimming meet between Northwestern and Minnesota was canceled and a rifle match between Air Force and the Royal Military College of Canada was called off.

The Ohio State-Northwestern basketball game was postponed until Monday night when Northwestern officials learned the Buckeyes would be unable to make the trip from Columbus, Ohio.

Northwestern was unable to make arrangements to get to Minnesota, forcing cancelation of their swimming meet and the Air Force pistol and rifle team arrived in Detroit en route to Kingston, Ont., but were unable to get any further.

Meanwhile, the storm, which forced postponement of UCLA's test against the Illinois basketball team from Friday to Sunday, forced the calling off of Brigham Young's game against Loyola of Chicago on the same Chicago Stadium program.

The four teams were supposed to play in a doubleheader Friday but late arrivals due to transportation difficulties forced the shifting of the program to Sunday.

Officials at Brigham Young, a Morman school, said the religion prohibits Sunday sports activity.

"We believe in athletics," said Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson, BYU president. "But they do not supersede the Ten Commandments."

Bruin Rally Kayoes Tech

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Darrell Hardy sparked Baylor to a 71-66 come-from-behind Southwest Conference basketball victory over Texas Tech Saturday night.

Hardy, the conference's leading scorer, accounted for 23 points and 12 rebounds as the Bears overcame Tech's eight-point lead late in the second half.

Tech led at halftime 44-39 after the lead had changed hands 11 times. After Tech had taken its biggest lead 51-43 three minutes deep in the second half, the Bears outscored the Raiders 18-9 in the next 11 minutes.

Hardy's seventh point in this spree gave the Bears a 61-60 lead with 5:48 to play. Baylor scored six more points before Tech was able to hit from the field.

Vernon Paul led the Raiders with 22 points and his total of 17 rebounds has been exceeded only three times in conference play by a Tech player.

Two Odessa boys (in white) try vainly to block shot

Steers Delight Fans With 67-58 Victory

The Big Spring Steers delighted their growing army of fans by defeating Odessa High, 67-58, here Friday night.

The success not only kept the Longhorns one game off Abilene's pace setting pace in the torrid District 2-AAAA race but was their 23rd of the season—which leaves them only one shy of the school's all-time record for wins. The locals have five more games to play. (The 1957-58 Steer team, which went to the Regional finals, holds the all-time Big Spring record for wins).

Friday night's game was the easiest victory the Steers had posted against league competition this season. The Big Springers built up a 15-4 advantage at the end of the opening period and at one stage in Round Three led by 20 points, at 58-38.

Only in the last couple of minutes, largely against Steer reserves, did Odessa pull as close as it did.

Robert Jackson was on the beam again for Big Spring, leading the tattoo the locals beat on their goal and grabbing off 20 rebounds. The all-district senior piled up 20 points and was never in foul trouble.

Danny Clendenin, who went to the sidelines with his fifth foul in the final minute of play, had ten points and ten rebounds.

The Steers connected on 14 of 36 field goal tries for 39 per cent the first half and ten of 27 the final two periods for 37 per cent.

At the free throw line, the locals hit eight of 16 the first half for 50 per cent and 11 of 17 for 65 per cent after the intermission.

The Steers, now 6-3 in the league derby compared to Abilene's 7-2, visit Abilene Tuesday for a crucial test with Cooper. Cooper is tied for second place in the race with Big Spring.

Odessa had only one player in double figures. He was Eddie Wagnon, who settled for 11 points. The Bronchos were the pre-season favorite to win it all but now are tied for the cellar spot.

In the B game, Odessa won in the overtime period, 48-44. A Big Spring player converted a free toss with one second remaining of the regular game but the pitch was ruled out when an official said another local player stepped in the lane.

Ronnie Wrightsil and James Newman each had ten points for Big Spring in the game while Ronnie Alvey paced Odessa with 11.

Vanderbilt Rips Maroons, 79-64

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt scored 22 free throws in the second half Saturday and came from far behind to defeat Mississippi State 79-64 in a key Southeastern Conference basketball game which was televised regionally.

Vandy, now with a 7-1 SEC record, went into the game tied with Tennessee for the league lead.

Kenny Gibbs scored 17 points for Vanderbilt and Bob Warren pulled in 16 rebounds to lead the Commodore comeback. Dave Williams scored 20 points for Mississippi State and Gary Washington added 18.

Vanderbilt did not sink a field goal in the first five minutes of play and fell behind 13-2.

The Commodores got only four field goals in the first 10 minutes with Mississippi State employing an effective zone defense. But Vandy found the range late in the half and during a five-minute stretch outscored State 15-4 to trail at halftime 30-29.

Riverside Race To Start Anew

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Stock car drivers will be back at the wheel Sunday for the resumption of the $85,000 Motor Trend 500, interrupted by rain last Sunday, at the Riverside Raceway course.

Sunny skies and warm temperatures are forecast for continuation of the running — 365 miles — and a crowd of 60,000 is expected.

When the late model stock cars take off again, the leader, Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill., will be in the pits with a flat tire.

Bisons Have Close Shave At Slaton

SLATON—A free throw with two seconds on the board gave Stanton's boys the boost they needed to win an over-time contest with Slaton here Friday 78-76.

Stanton's girls, however, faltered and dropped a 43-40 tilt to Slaton.

Slaton apparently had the boys' game won when a time-out was called with two seconds. But Slaton had exhausted its quota of times out, and Jerry Cox sank the free throw which tied the game at 68-68. In the overtime, Stanton sank the first goal as teams repeatedly swapped field goals. Allen Springer poured through 29 points. Carl Holloway was lost through fouls. Mason, with 28, and Washington with 23, kept Slaton in the contest.

The Stanton girls grabbed an early lead and held to a 23-20 lead at the half. A cold third quarter proved their undoing.

Stanton will entertain Denver City at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in a pair of district games.

Boys' game:

Ashe Leading Aussie Ace

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Arthur Ashe, America's top tennis hope, closed in on a final berth in the Australian Tennis Championships Saturday by building a 12-10, 9-9 lead over John Newcombe of Australia before darkness forced suspension of their match.

In order to complete the semi-final match which will send the winner against Roy Emerson, Australia's five-time winner of the title, a Sunday ban on spectator sports in Adelaide will be lifted.

The decision to play Sunday was reached because Emerson would have a decided advantage if the Ashe-Newcombe match was completed Monday followed by the final later in the day.

Because of the exception, the public will be admitted free for the conclusion of the match on the Memorial Drive courts.

Emerson, the 30-year-old wiry Aussie who may be playing his last year of big time tennis, reached the final in a four-hour marathon semifinal against Tony Roche, outlasting his countryman 6-3, 4-6, 15-13, 13-15, 6-2.

Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., gave the United States an entry in the women's final when she disposed of Kerry Melville of Australia 6-4, 6-1. Miss Richey will meet Lesley Turner, Australia's No. 1 player, in the Monday wind-up.

Miss Turner defeated another American, Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 4-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Tokyo May Land Next Title Go

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese organization said today heavyweight champion Cassius Clay and former champion Floyd Patterson have agreed to meet in a title bout in Tokyo, April 29, if Clay defeats Ernie Terrell in Houston, Tex., Feb. 6.

The Art Life Association said provisional contracts have been signed but formal announcement will be made after the Texas fight.

Different Tactics Used By Ring Foes

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell, the two claimants of the world's heavyweight boxing title, have emphasized different tactics during public preparations for their Feb. 6 showdown at the Astrodome.

Clay, the concensus champion, has let his sparring mates pound away at his body, confining his own punches to brief late stages of most workouts.

Terrell, the World Boxing Association's champion, has emphasized offense and has pounded away aggressively at partners who have sought to imitate Clay's speed.

Sam Solomon, Terrell's trainer, has had to stop several sparring matches in the second and third rounds when Eddie Brooks and Slim Jim Robinson appeared groggy from consistent poundings.

Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he prefers, insists he is not placing particular emphasis on defense in that most of his offensive tactics are being polished in his hotel, out of sight of the thousands who have paid $1 admission prices since Jan. 10 to see the workouts in the special training site set up in the 500,000 square foot Astrohall adjacent to the domed stadium.

"I just might have to take a few punches and want to be ready," Clay said in explaining why he has let Jimmy Ellis and Mel Turnbow continue their barrages of body punches.

"I let them hit me in the stomach because I know Terrell likes to throw punches to the belly."

In his hotel, Clay said he is polishing the Ali shuffle that he also refers to as the "double-clutch shuffle."

"I'll do the double-clutch shuffle and when that works I'm going to give him my windmill combination," he said. "It's a combination of 15 punches."

Solomon says Terrell is determined and confident.

"He's never looked better," Solomon said. "He's sharp and ready to fight. We know Clay is a counterpuncher and if you keep a counter-puncher busy he can't do anything."

Both Solomon and Angelo Dundee, trainer for Clay, have indicated their fighters will begin tapering early in the final week of training.

Meanwhile, the promoters continue their silence on predicting the gate and turnout for the second heavyweight title fight to be held in the 60,000 seat Astrodome in less than three months.

The $5 to $100 ticket prices have been scaled for an $800,000 house. This is a bit short of the total for a $5 to $50 scale for the Nov. 14 fight at which a record indoors crowd of 35,470 paid $461,290 to see Clay whip Cleveland Williams in less than three rounds.

The reluctance to forecast the Feb. 6 turnout results from Williams having been a hometown favorite. Some observers think the Clay-Terrell crowd will drop to about 20,000.

TCU Rally Sinks Arkansas, 78-61

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Using the zone press as a springboard, Texas Christian came from behind to defeat Arkansas, 78-61, Saturday to remain undefeated in Southwest Conference basketball play.

The Horned Frogs lead the conference race with a 4-0 mark and the victory sets the stage for Tuesday night's battle with defending champion Southern Methodist University in Dallas. The Mustangs did not play Saturday and are in second place with a 4-1 mark.

The first half lead constantly changed hands and TCU finally tied it at 31-31 before two free throws by Wally Freeman and another by Tommy Rowland of Arkansas in the final seconds made it 34-31 at intermission.

The Horned Frogs opened the second half with the zone press and quickly forced Arkansas into costly errors. Arkansas did not get a field goal in the first five minutes of the last half when Rowland gave the Hogs their last lead at 38-37.

Reserve guard Carey Sloan came off the Texas Christian bench to hit a career high of 19 points, including two big three point plays and hitting the final two points of the game.

Mickey McCarty, the season's leading scorer for Texas Christian, hit 16 and played a flawless floor game, intercepting many Arkansas passes.

Freeman led all scorers with 23 points, including 14 of Arkansas' 16 points at one stretch in the second half.

For the game, TCU hit 31 of 68 from the field for 45.6 per cent completions, and 19 of 34 in the second half. Arkansas netted 21 of 51 for 41.2. The Hogs hit only eight of 25 in the final minutes.

TCU held a 41-39 rebound advantage, with McCarty grabbing eight.

Arkansas committed 16 turnovers, with 12 coming in the last half when pressed by the Horned Frogs' zone.

DALLAS (AP)— Defending champion Houston Memorial High School won the 10th Southern Methodist Invitational Swimming and Diving Relays Saturday with 222 points.

Memorial won five of the six events, placed second in the one it lost and set the only new record.

The record was made in the 800-yard free style relay with a time of 7:54. Memorial set the previous mark of 7:55.8 last year.

Memorial also won the 400-yard free style relay in 3:28, the 300-yard breast-fly in 2:59.4, the 300-yard backstroke in 2:54.6, the one-meter diving with 306.35 points.

Highland Park, which finished third with 120 points, won the 200-yard medley relay in 1:45.6.

Midland was second in team scoring with 144 points, Fort Worth Paschal was fourth with 80 and Dallas Thomas Jefferson was fifth with 78.

Drake Upset By Eagles

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Ron Miller's 25-foot shot at the gun sent North Texas past Drake 79-77 Saturday in a regionally televised Missouri Valley Conference basketball game.

Willie McCarter of Drake had made one of two free throws to tie the game with nine seconds to play.

North Texas put the ball in play and called time out. Miller's shot from outside the free throw circle was in the air when the gun sounded.

Drake Coach Maurice John said he will file a protest of the game. After McCarter's free throw, the Eagles threw in the ball and called time out without the clock changing.

John contended that at least one second should have ticked away on the throw in.

The victory upped the Eagles' record to 9-6 for the season and 2-3 in the conference. Drake has 5-10 and 1-4 marks.

Rubin Russell was the leading scorer for North Texas, hitting 12 of 24 shots from the floor and added one free throw for 25 points.

High for Drake were Bob Netolicky with 21 points and McCarter had 22.

Opinions Differ Widely On Use Of TV Replay

TEXAS CITY (AP)—Use of video tape instant replay, recently banned by the NCAA Football Rules Committee, is highly praised by some Texas high school basketball coaches but the expense has limited acceptance.

One coach fortunate to have the electronic device is Joe DeCuir of Texas City.

"It is a valuable instrument in coaching our boys and showing them their mistakes," he said. "The time we save with the tape is well worth the cost."

The instrument Decuir has at his disposal belongs to the entire Texas City school system.

DeCuir says that although it is possible, he does not replay the first half of his team's basketball games during intermission.

"We use it the next day or the day after that, but we aren't going to use it during halftime," he says.

Texas City is tied for first place in the south zone of Dist. 12-AAAA.

How do rival coaches feel about DeCuir using the device?

"I can see how it might be to his advantage to use it," said Coach Leroy Carey of La-Marque. "There's no reason to object to using the system."

Carey believes it is an excellent teaching tool for coaches and is an aid to players.

The LaMarque school system has a video tape machine, Carey said, but "our gym isn't constructed for us to use it."

Coach Flash Walker of Brazosport said that if the University Interscholastic League does not ban the instrument, "it'll probably become pretty common."

"I'm not implying that the UIL would raise any objections to using them," he said. "If they're used right I wouldn't see any reason why they should."

George Hatch, coach at Galveston Ball, said it is "one of the finest things going."

"I don't see anything wrong with Joe using the replay. I think it is real fortunate that he gets to use it. Just because we don't have one isn't any reason to hold it against a more fortunate system," Hatch says.

Top Drivers Prepping For Daytona Event

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A United Nations of auto racing will be on hand at Daytona International Speedway for the next seven days.

There will be drivers from all over Western Europe, Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, Canada and the United States preparing for the 24-hour Daytona Continental which starts at 3 p.m. EST next Saturday.

The low slung sports cars they will drive around the 3.81-mile course are just as international in flavor.

Ferrari from Italy and Porsche from Germany will challenge the American built Ford Mark II and a pair of Jim Hall's Texas-built Chaparrals with Chevrolet engines in the top speed sports prototype class.

Ford's new Class J cars may start, but they have been disappointing in tests on the speedway. Indications are Ford will put all its strength in the Mark II's which swept the first three places last year.

"The Continental has more international interest and more cars of top caliber than ever," said Bill France, speedway president. "The field is as good as LeMans or more so."

Ferrari's new 12-cylinder P4 cars will have such first class drivers as Lorenzo Bandini and Ludovico Scarfiotti of Italy; Chris Amon of New Zealand; Mike Parkes of England; Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Jean Guichet of France.

Ford's six Mark II's will be in the hands of some of America's best — A. J. Foyt, Dan Gurney, Richie Ginther, Mario Andretti, Lloyd Ruby and Ronnie Bucknum among them — plus Frank Gardner of Australia, Lucien Bianchi of Belgium, Bruce McLaren, who has moved from New Zealand to England and Dennis Hulme of New Zealand.

Porsche's 6-cylinder Carreras, introduced here a year ago, will have a driver group including Oerhard Mitter and Hans Hermann of Germany, Joachin Rindt of Austria, Gijs Van Lennep of Belgium, Nino Vaccarella of Italy, and Dieter Spoerry, Rico Steineman, Charles Vogele and Herbert Muller, all of Switzerland.

One of Hall's Chaparrals will be the latest model with the strange looking spoiler elevated several feet above the low slung car. Acting like an airplane flap, the spoiler helps save the brakes on the automatic transmission car.

Drivers for the pair of Chaparrals wil be Phil Hill, Bob Johnson and Bruce Jennings of the United States and Mike Spence of England.

Although one of these cars and drivers almost certainly will win, many smaller cars will compete along with the big ones for prizes in their classes. The international note continues through the field of 65 entries.

Speed weeks begin Friday with a new event, an international sedan race known as the Trans-American 300. It will use the same asphalt course as the Continental — a combination of the outer 32-degree banked speedway and a flat, winding infield road.

After the Continental, the speedway belongs to the late model American sedans. There will be races Feb. 12 to determine pole positions for later features.

The Auto Racing Club of America will hold its winter 250-mile championship Feb. 19.

The richest of all National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) events will follow Feb. 24-26, climaxing with the Daytona 500 which is expected to draw more than 100,000 people this year and carries a prize bundle of nearly $200,000.

Globetrotters Will Play In Odessa Gym Feb. 3

One of sportdom's big attractions — the Harlem Globetrotters of basketball — are heading toward West Texas.

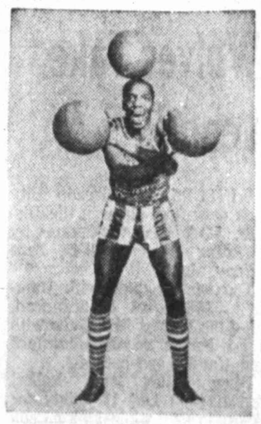
The magicians of the hardwood court will take on the New York Nationals at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3, in the Ector County Coliseum, Odessa.

In addition to the cage setto, which will have more than its share of entertainment besides the playing thrills when the Trotters' great array of showmen break loose, the team is bringing along its finest assemblage of added variety acts signed in all parts of the world. These turns will go on before the start of the game and also between halves.

It's the forty - first consecutive season of worldwide activity for the Trotters.

Abe Saperstein, the original owner of the Trotters, died last March 15.

Abe asked that the team be kept alive and this has been done by the executors of his will, who have incorporated the organization as Abe Saperstein Enterprises, Inc. Most of the ownership of the team is in the hands of his surviving wife, and son and daughter. A board of seven directors has been set up to handle finances. His competent staff is running team, scheduling and promotional details.



MEADOWLARK LEMON

The 1966-67 squad is in keeping with Saperstein tradition. It is tall, talented, star - studded and replete with showmanship and comedy finesse. Only great players have survived the cuts after tryouts embracing a large and capable group of candidates. The coaching is in the hands of the veteran Inman Jackson, who had been with Saperstein as a player and aid almost from the start.

Golfing Robot Has Perfect Shot On Tee

CLEVELAND (AP) — Scientists have worked for two years and spent more than a quarter million dollars to create a robot that swings a golf club just the way the best professionals do.

Better than the top pros, the robot can repeat its super-shots with a variance of not more than one-half per cent in velocity. Noise or a sudden motion in the gallery doesn't faze it.

In Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., on Monday, the mechanical golfer will demonstrate its classic swing at the PGA Quarter Century Club Tournament.

Scientists at Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus developed the golf robot for True Temper Corporation's Golf division at Geneva, Ohio. The device is powered by compressed air and has a light-sensing device to measure club-head velocity. A camera records accurately timed pictures of a specially marked ball after it leaves the club head.

"We've not built a machine to prove robots make better golf players than people," Vice President Gurdon Leslie of True Temper said. "After all, our machine can't line up a putt. . .but any way in which modern science can help improve golf equipment is bound to improve the game."

Using any club, from driver to pitching wedge, the mechanical golfer simulates the professional golf swing pattern as determined by plotting on a graph the movement of club shaft and head in action films of outstanding golfers.

With a machine that time after time can drive or chip or loft a golf ball to a nearly identical spot up the fairway, testing of design changes in club shafts and heads become simply a matter of mathematics.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

2-4A Boys Hard To Recruit

By TOMMY HART

The song which goes "Abilene, Abilene, prettiest town I've ever seen" might have been written about Ike Eisenhower's home shire in Kansas but try to tell the people who reside in its Texas namesake such a story . . . There may be something in the water which galvanizes the loyalty of coaches and athletes there or could it be the community's claims to Ivy-league precepts? . . . Whatever it is, able Merrill Green has rejected a better shake at the pay table and more security at Midland in order to remain at Abilene Cooper . . . I'm quite willing to accept his story that he did not want to get out of coaching—would that there were more like him . . . However, there was one account making the rounds concerning the developments that led to Green's decision to stay in harness at Cooper that may have keyed his decision . . . The story was that Merrill had an audience with the Midland school trustees and came away convinced that the trustees were unwilling to deputize him with more power to rebuild the athletic department from the junior high level up than they gave the deposed Audrey Gill . . . School officials who usurp an athletic director's authority in that manner are only deluding themselves if they entertain the thought that it does not take a coordinated effort from the ground level up to build strength and oneness of purpose . . . Jack Ed Irons, the former Big Spring football hero who recently moved to Dallas where he had accepted work as an electrical engineer, says he wants no more of coaching . . . Irons was freshman mentor at Texas Western College the past fall . . . The only basketball coach in the history of the University of Kansas who wound up with more career losses than victories was the man who invented the sport, Dr. James Naismith, whose record for nine seasons was 53-55 . . . Kansas has won an average of seven of every ten games played since the endeavor was started there in 1898 . . . Since Naismith, the Lawrence school has had only four head basketball mentors.

When Big Spring laid it on Midland Lee in basketball here the other night, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan E. McDonald of Canyon, parents of the Steer basketball coach, were in the stands, watching one of Don's teams play for the first time in many years . . . They had hardly been conditioned for the thrills that ensued and were as nervous as the alligator which stumbled into a shoe factory long after the caldron of excitement had ceased to bubble . . . They say that Odessa's Winston Beam came on strong at Texas A&M his freshman year following a lacklustre senior year with the Bronchos and is going to make the Aggies a tremendous football player . . . Delnor Poss, the well-known Big Spring cage arbiter, played basketball in independent circles a few years ago with Max McGee, the Green Bay hero in the recent Super Bowl football game . . . Buddy Travis, the HCJC cage mentor, says he finds it harder to talk with District 2-AAAA athletes than with those in schools of corresponding size because, in many instances, the boys have been led to believe they are more proficient in the round-ball game than they really are . . . Gene Arrington, currently active in the YMCA Adult Basketball league here, was a regular for Texas Tech back in 1960 while another adult league performer, Buddy Rumsey, performed for McMurry College . . . Ex-West Texan Billy Maxwell failed to make the 54-hole cut in the Crosby Golf tournament by a single stroke . . . He had a 228 for the distance . . . In the Crosby Pro-Am, Maxwell paired with tennis great Tony Trabert and the two were 18 strokes away from staying eligible for the last 18 holes with a 54-hole score of 216 . . . In the same competition, Dean Martin and Don Cherry (who 'sold' last year's Odessa Pro-Am to the public) wound up at 212 for the distance . . . All members of the Green Bay Packers and the Kansas City Chiefs paid the state of California several hundred dollars in income tax off their earnings before they departed for their homes . . . Once, when hard-nosed Bernie Bierman was coaching at the University of Minnesota, he returned to his team's hotel to find the building on fire . . . He ran through the floor where his boys were staying, yelling: "Regulars take the fire escape. Reserves jump!"

HC's Bill Sinches comes down with ball in Odessa game

Hawks Handed 1st Conference Defeat

Odessa College jockeyed for position for 37 minutes, then raced by HCJC, 74-72, here Friday night to hand the Jayhawks their first Western Conference loss.

The Big Springers, who played lacklustre ball throughout, had a five point lead with three minutes to go but couldn't hold it.

Lawrence Thompson, the game's high point man with 23, intercepted an HCJC pass and took it down court for a basket that put Odessa ahead to stay. Odessa later moved four points to the fore to seal off the Hawks in their bid for a win.

The defeat was the eighth of the season for HCJC, compared to 12 wins. Odessa is 13-10. Within the league, Odessa is 5-1 while HCJC is 3-1.

HCJC led by as much as nine points in the first half but that melted away to two points at the half.

Rusty Heskett and N. S. Hurd gave Thompson a lot of help in the scoring department, getting 21 and 17 respectively. Hurd was very cold at the start but warmed up toward the end.

Lee Leonard, again hitting well from outside, paced HCJC with 20 points while Bill Sinches had 19.

HC beat the Odessans badly from the court, making 32 buckets to 26 for Odessa. However, 24 fouls were called against the Hawks, compared to 14 for Odessa. Leonard fouled out late in the game for the locals.

Odessa didn't go into a stall until the final minute of the game but it paid off once coach Larry McCulloch called for the strategy.

Fears Named Saint Coach

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Tom Fears, who was schooled in coaching by the great Vince Lombardi, has been selected to mold New Orleans' new National Football League team into "a championship contender as soon as possible."

Fears' selection as head coach, was announced Friday night by John W. Mecom Jr., president and chief stockholder of the New Orleans Saints.

Fears, 43, was chief offensive coach for the fledgling Atlanta Falcons this past season.

It was learned that Fears got a five-year contract. No salary was disclosed by Mecom.

"We will be a well-disciplined ball club," said Fears, when asked how he intended to coach.

Fears, now a balding 43, was a top receiver for the Los Angeles Rams for nine seasons. His NFL record of 18 pass receptions in one game still stands.

In 1950, Fears was the NFL's Most Valuable Player.

He retired from playing at the end of the 1956 season and three years later joined the Packer coaching staff during Lombardi's first year. He went to the Rams coaching staff for 1960 and 1961, then returned to Green Bay for four campaigns.

Week Of Decision Ahead For Forsan Cage Teams

WATER VALLEY — Forsan swept two games here Friday night, the girls defeating Water Valley, 71-61, and the boys winning easily, 71-43.

This brings Forsan to a week of decision in District 67-B. The boys can virtually sew up the title by clipping Bronte here Tuesday. Bronte is not expected to give the girls trouble, but on Friday when Robert Lee comes to Forsan, the title may be on the line. Robert Lee has lost but one game and that to Forsan by a single point.

Molly Condron hooped 26 points and Sherry Walraven 27 to pace the girls to their win. For 2½ quarters, it was a fairly close game, then Forsan broke away and the reserves finished it. Sally Munn had 43 points for Water Valley.

Forsan's boys hopped off to a 25-6 first quarter lead, and with the McKinnon brothers — Ray and Clayton — hitting consistently, the Buffs were never seriously pressed.

Clay's Life Is Insured

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Astrodome Championship Enterprises Inc., promoter of the Feb. 6 Cassius Clay-Ernie Terrell heavyweight championship fight, bought $300,000 worth of life insurance for 24 hours on Clay Saturday.

Clay plans to go to Cleveland Sunday to attend a dinner for Jimmy Brown, former Cleveland Browns fullback. He is to return to Houston about noon Monday.

"This is unusual for a fighter to leave town this close to fight time and we took out the insurance to protect our interests," a spokesman for the promoters said.

The spokesman said the insurance was in three policies with three different insurance companies and the amount was all that could be obtained on such short notice.

Clay made the commitment to attend the dinner several months ago, even before he fought Cleveland Williams here last November, the spokesman said.

New Commander Named For 3560th FM Squadron

Capt. William H. Hickson Jr. has assumed command of the 3560th Field Maintenance Squadron, having completed a 12-month tour in Thailand, where he served as night supervisor of all industrial shops in a field maintenance squadron.

Capt. Hickson explained that his squadron served 24 hours a day, seven days a week, servicing and repairing combat aircraft.

He left for his Southeast Asia tour from Patrick AFB, Fla., where he had served for more than two years. The greater portion of the time, Capt. Hickson was an officer in the organizational maintenance squadron. He served for three months in the maintenance control branch. In systems command, the captain was working with aircraft involved in missile telemetry.

Prior to the Florida assignment, Capt. Hickson graduated from Maintenance Officer School, Chanute AFB, Ill., after having completed Officers' Training School at Lackland AFB in March, 1962.

Capt. Hickson graduated from Georgia Tech in September, 1961, with a bachelor of industrial engineering degree.

He replaces Maj. Ernest E. Pannell Jr. as FMS commander. Maj. Pannell assumed command of the squadron following the departure of Maj. James R. Hamilton late last year.

To New Frontiers

By JO BRIGHT

The fanfare was quieter and the audience smaller — but the prize — a certificate of graduation from Big Spring Senior High School — was a reward worth earning to the 39 graduates presented in the high school auditorium Thursday evening. These students, for various reasons, chose to receive their diplomas at mid-term and perhaps go on to the "new frontiers" described by S. M. Anderson, Superintendent of Schools. Many will continue their education at colleges, some will go to job training and others are preparing for marriage.

Accepting their diplomas were Ronald Anderson, Sandra Biffle, Vivian Bledsoe, Jackie Bowen, Rene-Ann Burson, Linda Caldwell, Wynelle Collins, Barbara Crenshaw, Joyce Cross, James Davis, Kevin Fryar, Gloria Gale, Elizabeth Hernandez, Sonyia Hudgins, Glenn Hyden, Janis Johns, Glynda Kilgore, Patrick Martinez, Donna Merrick, Michael Moore, Aurora Moralez and Maudella Murphy.

Also, Joyce McCartney, Georgia McDonald, Nora O'Bannon, Paul O'Brien, Barry Parker, Pamela Parker, Elaine Puckett, Carol Russell, Grover Smith, Michael Spradling, Linda Stewart, Edward Thomas, Ruth Tolbert, Larry Willingham, Bobby Wood, Ira James Worthan and Freda Urias.

The a capella choir was directed by Mel Ivey, and Annelle Fitzhugh was pianist for the ceremonies. Donald Anderson, ministerial student at Baylor University, gave the invocation.

Supt. Anderson was the speaker, and Harold D. Bentley, assistant principal, introduced the graduates. Diplomas were presented by John Smith, principal, and school board members, Joe Moss, Jerry Currie and Jimmy Felts Jr.

Miss Cynthia Jones Weds Jon Burnett

The wedding of Miss Cynthia Kay Jones and Jon Earl Burnett was solemnized at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the chapel of the First Methodist Church with the Rev. Leo K. Gee, pastor, officiating.

White cathedral tapers in seven - branched candelabra illuminated the wedding scene as vows were exchanged before an altar graced with emerald palms and a sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones, 1601 Eleventh Place, and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Earl Burnett of Temple.

Miss Sherri Alexander, organist, presented a prelude of traditional nuptial selections and accompanied Danny Johnson who sang "Because."

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a street-length dress of ivory wool and silk fashioned with an A-line silhouette. Her headpiece was an ivory silk Dior bow adorned with a face veil, and her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of feathered white carnations centered with a white orchid and showered with white picot satin. It was held atop a small Bible and heirloom handkerchief carried by the bride's maternal grandmother in 1907.

MRS. JON EARL BURNETT

Mrs. Eddie Everett of Denton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore an A-line dress of pink silk crepe and carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

Dr. Burnett served his son as best man, and ushers were Keith Rogers, Temple; Terry Isbell, College Station; Jimmie Jones, brother of the bride; Eddie Everett, brother-in-law of the bride; and Jimmie Dee Jones, her nephew.

The flower girl, Jan Burnett, sister of the bridegroom, wore a dress of pale pink linen and carried a white basket from which she scattered pink rose petals. Bobbie Walker, the ring bearer, carried the rings on a velvet pillow. Miss Harvelyn Adams and Miss Pam Lurting lighted the altar tapers.

RECEPTION

The bridal couple was joined by the parents and matron of honor in receiving guests during the reception which was held in Fellowship Hall. Miss Lynn Heith presided at the register.

Members of the house party were Mrs. Irma Harrison, Mrs. Albert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Dwain Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Adams, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Lurting, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Creighton, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Kasch and Mrs. Jimmie Jones.

The refreshment table was laid with an ivory linen cutwork cloth and appointed with crystal and silver. The centerpiece of white carnations and pink roses was flanked by white candles in silver holders, and the three - tiered wedding cake was topped with wedding bells. Miss Paula Leonard and Miss Cheryl Kasch served.

Guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Burnett, Marble Falls; Mrs. Lucille Willis, Mrs. Virgil Burnett and Mrs. Homer Parker, all of Brownfield; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Massey, San Antonio; Tommy Massey, Stephenville; David Spencer, Ft. Sill, Okla.; John Kee, El Paso; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Norman, Nancy and Wayne, all of Temple; Dwaine Woodard, Abilene; and Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Prude, Ft. Davis.

SCHOOLS

Mrs. Burnett was graduated from Big Spring Senior High School where she was active in the Tri-Hi-Y and is now attending Patricia Stevens Career College in Dallas. Burnett, a graduate of Temple High School, attends North Texas State University in Denton where he is a business major.

For a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, Mrs. Burnett wore her wedding dress and the orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet. The couple will reside at Matador Apts. No. 211-B, Eagle Drive, Denton.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Dr. and Mrs. Burnett were hosts for a rehearsal dinner held at 8 o'clock Friday evening at Coker's Restaurant. Twenty family and wedding party members attended.

Families In Knott Entertain Guests

KNOTT (SC) — Julian and Susanna Hudgins of Stanton were Tuesday guests in the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Mike Davidson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Haston of Big Spring visited friends here Wednesday afternoon.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Roman Sr. were Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Roman Jr. and family of Hereford; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roman and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blick, all of Big Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Clay of Midway and J. L. Metcalf of Coahoma were guests Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jeffcoat.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jeffcoat have returned from Odessa where they visited their granddaughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Lilly and sons.

Couple Married In Candlelight Ceremony

Miss Nora Louise O'Bannon became the bride of Randy Atwood at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. John Black in the sanctuary of the First Christian Church.

The altar was illuminated with branched candelabra holding white cathedral tapers and enhanced with palms of greenery and tall baskets of white gladioli and emerald foliage. During part of the ceremony, the couple knelt on a white prie-dieu.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smart, 1809 Settles, and Sam O'Bannon of Monahans. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Atwood of San Angelo.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Lynn Puckett, organist, presented a musical prelude and accompanied the soloist, Miss Annelle Fitzhugh as she sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer." Traditional strains were heard at the conclusion.

Edwin B. O'Bannon escorted his sister to the altar and gave her in marriage.

The bride wore a formal gown of white taffeta and Chantilly lace, the scalloped neckline of the molded bodice sprinkled with seed pearls and the lace sleeves ending in petal points over the hands. The cutaway overskirt swept to a chapel train and revealed tiers of buffant lace ruffles. Her veil of illusion was edged with a border of French lace and fell from a tiara encrusted with seed pearls and iridescents. The veil was sent from France, a gift of the bride's aunt, Mrs. F. L. Montgomery.

The bridal bouquet, carried atop a white satin Bible, was formed of white orchids encircled with carnations and showered with streamers of picot ribbon.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Miss Robbie Smart, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Freddie Hamiester of San Angelo, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Frank Biggs of San Angelo and Miss Jewel Sneed. Their scooped - necked dresses of royal blue velvet were street-length and styled with bracelet sleeves and fitted bodices. Blue veiling accented their matching headbands, and each carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses tied with pink satin ribbon.

Dalton Atwood of Paint Rock served his cousin as best man, and groomsmen were Joe Biggs, Frank Biggs and Buddy Campbell, all of San Angelo. Ushers were Buddy Ray and Mike Schaffer, and lighting the altar tapers was Danny Dee Smart, the bride's brother.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception at the church and were joined by their parents and feminine attendants in receiving guests. Miss Gloria Gale presided at the register, and members of the house party were Miss Debbie Jones, Miss Becky Frayser, Miss Kittie Campbell, Miss Linda Burnett, Miss Sandra Sessions, Miss Claudia Sullivan and Miss Karla Wadsworth.

The bride's table was laid with white lace and centered with an arrangement of white carnations and greenery. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom and decorated with flowers and bells.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Nora O'Bannon, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar O'Bannon and Mr. and Mrs. W. Stafford, all of Lamesa; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gray and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Huelster, all of Fort Stockton; and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Biggs and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Atwood, all of San Angelo.

For a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, the bride chose a knit sheath and mohair coat of turquoise with winter white lizard accessories and a white mink hat. Her orchid corsage was taken from the wedding bouquet. Upon returning, the couple will reside at 407½ N. Baird, Midland.

Mrs. Atwood, a Big Spring Senior High School graduate, was a member of the band, a cappella choir and Latin Club. She was an Industrial Cooperative Training student and was a student nurse at Cowper Clinic and Hospital.

Members of the Cactus Chapter of the American Business Woman's Association entertained the Scenic Chapter with a salad supper Thursday in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Mrs. Billie Childers and Mrs. Tom Phillips presided at the guest register table which was centered with a melon - colored amaryllis.

White cloths covered the dining tables and a patriotic theme was used in the decorations. An "Uncle Sam" hat in red, white and blue was used on the serving table, and miniature flags flew over the quartet tables.

Mrs. Robert McDonald presided at the coffee service and Mrs. Clarence Trantham poured punch from a milk glass service. Mrs. Oville Bryant extended the host club welcome, and Mrs. Tony Barron responded from the guest chapter.

Thirty-three attended.

A Devotional For The Day

That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able . . . to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge. (Ephesians 3:17-19)

PRAYER: Our Father, we pray Thou wilt give to us an increasing understanding of the mystery of Thy matchless love which knows no dimensions. Help us to express gratitude for it and better interpret it to others. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Patience And Then Some More

Contract has now been let for the improvement of FM 700 from Goliad westward to an intersection with US 80. The project will cost over $1.3 million and will result in making FM 700 an arterial thoroughfare. Thus, it will climax years of effort in this direction.

But there will be a period of inconvenience, and this is putting it mildly. Before it is all over, some residents may think that it is confusion confounded by conspiracy.

Make no mistake, at some stages of construction the matter of detours will get to be a real problem. Routing will be by devious means, because this road is virtually the only direct means of travel to and from the southwest part of town. It is by far the most convenient and fastest from west to the southeast. Pinch off any part of it and you have traffic trouble.

The job cannot be chopped up into small sections, for when these become uneconomic, the contractor has some rights in the matter. So does the public, so it will take a lot of the best thought that can be mustered to anticipate these developments and get around them as best we can. It could be that some thought might be given to some temporary roads which would bridge undeveloped gaps which now exist.

Before we embark upon this experience, we plead for patience — and then more patience. After it is all over, we'll forget about this and rejoice in the new road.

Double Blessing

The City of Big Spring sanitation department has just completed a fill of a ravine on the eastern edge of town and is returning to the old dump ground area to resume its sanitary fill operations.

From all appearances, the use of the ravine for disposal has accomplished two things: The landowner has had an ugly and useless scar virtually leveled, or at least put back to where the land might be utilized; and the city has had another place where disposal could be effected, thus resting the old dump area.

With as many ravines as we have in this vicinity, surely there are others who will make them available to the city. It could be a double blessing.

When A Blue Norther Struck

If the weather hasn't turned frigid by the time you read this, something is out of whack.

There might be some substance in the viewpoint that winters are not as severe as they were years ago, because it does seem, in digging into deep recesses of memory, that January and February turned up some powerful bone-chilling days and nights with regularity.

THE DIFFERENCE could be in the way we live. Nowadays, you read or hear that the thermometer reading will get to five degrees, so what? The gas comes in at a faster clip, and houses generally stay in the comfort zone.

There was a time when a wintry blast created a crisis of a sort around the old homestead where I was the lowliest urchin on the family totem pole.

PAPA WOULD come home late in the evening, about this time of year, and would announce — if wasn't already getting colder outside — that "there's a blue norther on the way." How he knew this, was something of a mystery. There was no radio or television to give those scientific reports. But the signs must have been right, because there would be no question but that the blue norther would strike.

This was the signal for all hands around the house to make suitable preparations, as regards the water supply. If it were going to turn cold, then the pipes were going to freeze, and that was that.

MAMA CLEANED the kitchen cabinets bare of all manner of vessels—the teakettle, all wash pans, all basins, all sauce pans and stewers, and call 'em what you will.

Each was filled with water, and then placed in the all available spots around the kitchen, and perhaps even into other rooms, until the house looked like a water hazard on a steeplechase course. There had to be water available for cooking, for drinking, for performing at least the minimum daily chores for cleanliness, and even enough to make the drains work.

WHEN ALL pots, buckets and pans were filled, then Papa cut the water off, opened the faucets and drained all the pipes. Come zero weather, we were stocked with water as if the family had to withstand a siege.

It was when that blue norther slipped in after bedtime, and the precautions hadn't been taken—that was when things got serious. Sure enough, all the plumbing in the house would be frozen solid.

THIS CALLED for mounting the tower on which rested an open tank, right by the windmill. This was the household supply.

It became necessary to get up there, chop a hole in the ice on top of the tank, dip buckets in to get the emergency water, and lower them to the ground for transporting to the house for the usual routine. And hope all the time that every pipe on the place wouldn't be busted when the thaw came.

There may be colder weather in a lot of places every year, but no one can convince me that it could ever be colder than up there on top of that tank tower, breaking ice and lowering water. It was enough to make a kid shiver right out of his skin.

Good old days? Well, in some ways . . .

World's Week

Tragedy And Upheaval

By The Associated Press

War, warlike gestures, revolution and revolutionary plots ringed the globe in a week of tumult—and tragedy at home.

The U.S. effort to set a man on the moon by 1970—Project Apollo — suffered a grim setback when the three prime Apollo I astronauts were killed by a flash fire at Cape Kennedy that trapped them aboard the huge spacecraft.

The victims were Air Force Col. Virgil Grissom, the first man to soar twice into the heavens; Air Force Col. Edward White II, the first American to walk in space, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee, a rookie who had not flown in space.

THE THREE were locked behind sealed hatches when the tragedy struck. They were hooked into a pure oxygen breathing system in their spacesuits and the oxygen fed the fire.

They were involved in a full-scale simulation of the Feb. 21 launch that was to take them into space for up to 14 days of orbiting.

The tragedy postponed indefinitely the scheduled blast off, but space officials and President Johnson vowed to press ahead with the moon program.

"Three valiant young men have given their lives in the nation's service," Johnson said. "We mourn this great loss and our hearts go out to their families."

IN CHINA, Mao Tse-Tung and his Communist party opponents seemed set for a prolonged power struggle.

Wall posters in Peking told of unrest in Chinese-occupied Tibet, an anti-Mao outburst in Inner Mongolia and the formation of an army of 10,000 armed services veterans against Mao in Sinkiang Province. More than 100 persons were said to have been killed in Sinkiang disorders.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk conceded that he and other American officials "don't know exactly what is happening" in Red China, and said Mao is probably in the same boat.

Relations between Red China and the Soviet Union worsened. Moscow police roughed up 69 Chinese students attempting to place a wreath on Stalin's tomb, saying they had shouted anti-Soviet slogans and provoked fights.

IN PEKING, Thousands of Mao's young Red Guards and workers staged a protest demonstration outside the Soviet Embassy.

Israel and Syria, which have been skirmishing along their border, emerged from talks sponsored by the Syrian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission with mutual accusations of renewed hostility, and the situation continued tense.

In Nicaragua an abortive 20-hour uprising against President Lorenzo Guerrero's government left more than a score dead and more than 100 wounded.

In the Dominican Republic, police rounded up dozens of persons accused of conspiring to overthrow President Joaquin Balaguer.

NIKOLAI V. PODGORNY became the first president of the Soviet Union to visit Italy and was greeted by a series of bombings of Communist party headquarters in various cities.

The U.S. military command began a buildup of combat forces in South Vietnam's rice-rich Mekong Delta, long a Viet Cong stronghold.

Eventually it is expected that 30,000 or more American soldiers will be committed to trying to pacify the area.

At the same time, informed sources in Washington revealed that American planes have been barred from bombing within five miles of the center of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital.

The restriction followed reports, widely circulated in the world's press, that many U.S. bombs had landed in civilian residential areas. The United States has vehemently denied ever deliberately bombing civilian areas.

SOUTH VIETNAM'S ruling military junta underwent another of its periodic shakeups with the dismissal of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Huu Co as deputy premier and defense secretary. Co's duties as defense minister were assigned to Lt. Gen. Cao Van Vien, chief of the general staff.

President Johnson submitted to Congress a $169.2 billion national budget, including $21.9 billion to pay for the continued fighting in Vietnam. The budget was up $15.6 billion from the current fiscal year, and there were rumbles in Congress that domestic welfare programs will have to be pruned.

The President's proposal to raise Social Security benefits by 15 to 59 per cent, however, generally were welcomed, although there were congressional differences over the amount of any increases and how to finance the increases. Republicans proposed that benefits be increased 9 per cent which, they said, wouldn't require tax increases. Johnson's plan would raise the rates.

THE NATION'S banks began easing the tight credit which has been blamed for, among other things, sharp declines in automobile sales and housing starts.

Optimistic Outlook But Slower Signs

By DAVE SMITH
AP Business News Writer

PROSPERITY WITH BRAKES

- Chase's interest cut is not followed widely
- President predicts $788 GNP; up by $47 billion
- Auto makers slow, GM lays off 4,700; Chrysler rotates
- Economic advisers appeal for observance of guideline

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson sounded a firm note of economic optimism for 1967 in his annual economic report to Congress this week. Most of the nation's largest banks extended a cooperating gesture by cutting prime interest rates on business loans.

But the automobile industry hummed a different tune. In the face of lagging new car sales, the automakers ordered more production cuts and layoffs.

President Johnson told Congress on Thursday we must plan now to avoid a recession that could follow "the welcome day of peace" in Vietnam. More immediately, he predicted a moderate growth in the economy through 1967—though at a slower rate than in 1966 — as well as smaller price hikes, continued near - full employment and loosening credit.

BANKS DIFFER

But the nation's banks differed on how much they would go toward easier credit by cutting prime rates.

Chase Manhattan, the nation's second largest, reduced its prime rate to 5½ from 6 per cent Thursday. One smaller bank went along.

Friday, Chase's cross-town rival, First National City Bank of New York, sliced its rate to 5¾ per cent. Other large banks followed, including the giant Bank of America in San Francisco, the largest in the country.

Late Friday, Chase said it had no present plans to change its 5½ per cent rate. Bankers speculate how long it could hold out.

The prime rate is the interest charged borrowers of the highest credit rating, usually large corporations. Other rates are scaled upward from it.

For 1967 Johnson predicted a $47-billion rise in the gross national product — GNP — to a record $787 billion, a 6.5 per cent increase compared to 8.5 per cent last year. When probable price raises are taken into account, the increase in the GNP — sum of all goods and services produced—shrinks to 4 per cent.

'SUSTAINABLE'

He said his $135 billion spending budget, aided at midyear by a proposed 6 per cent surcharge on business and individual income taxes, will provide the proper fiscal mix to keep the economy on a course of "sustainable expansion" — fast enough not to stall, slow enough not to overheat.

He also said "extremely high" interest rates on mortgages, which put the housing industry into a depression in 1966, "are moving down from their peaks." "Our housing industry," the President said, should be "moving smartly forward by the end of 1967 and ready for one of its best years in 1968."

Accompanying the President's 23-page report was the 285-page report of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, which called for continued observance in 1967 of its anti-inflationary wage - price guidelines. The council rapped some industries for not cutting prices where the guidelines indicated cuts would be appropriate and said, "Automobile prices are doubtless such a case."

PULL IN HORNS

The four largest auto builders, facing an already overstocked new car market, made further large cuts in production schedules already trimmed since the sales slowdown began last year.

General Motors, the biggest of the Big Four, announced indefinite layoffs for 1,900 Chevrolet workers after already laying off 2,800 other GM workers.

Chrysler said that of its seven plants, the Detroit Lynch Road, Los Angeles and St. Louis, Mo., plants would shut down for one week each in February, while the one at Hamtramck, Mich., would shut down for two weeks. Chrysler's February production —111,100 last year—would thus be trimmed to about 94,800 cars, after having been trimmed once already.

Ford Motor Co. effected its production cutbacks by means of eliminating some overtime and by putting some plants on four-day work weeks at staggered intervals.

SLOWER SALES

American Motors, whose plants reopened on Monday after a two-week shutdown, meanwhile was turning out 1,100 cars a day — 500 fewer than before the shutdown.

Resistance To LBJ's Budget

WASHINGTON — For many of the spectators the President's presentation of the budget was like the act of a sleight-of-hand artist. Though the hand in this accomplished act is swifter than the eye, the onlookers leave the performance with troubling doubts unresolved.

On two principal points the doubters remain unconvinced by the budget figures. First and foremost are the spending estimates for defense and the Vietnam war.

MEMBERS OF Congress with expert knowledge believe that the rate of spending on Vietnam has been for some time considerably above the $22 billion that the budget allocates for fiscal year 1968 beginning on July 1. Rep. Melvin Laird, ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, is convinced that over-all defense spending in the last half of 1967 has been running at a rate well over the $73 billion that is the figure in the budget for the next fiscal year.

ALONG WITH Chairman George H. Mahon of the Appropriations Committee Laird knows as much as any member of Congress about the intricate involutions of the defense budget. He notes that with the need to replace 500 aircraft, a buildup in spare parts and, in the minds of most observers, a faster and larger growth in the American forces in Vietnam than the budget allows for the $73 billion is likely to be a gross underestimate.

THE SECOND point is on the optimistic estimates of federal revenue for the next fiscal year. With receipts put at $126.9 billion the deficit in the administrative budget is $8.1 billion. That reflects the relatively optimistic outlook of the President's economic report for the calendar year 1967, which continued growth in the Gross National Product, although at a rate below that of 1966. But the report masks the private uncertainties of some of the President's principal advisers and the public doubts about which way the economy will turn.

AS FOR THE so-called Great Society programs, the President has tempered the political wind to the shorn lamb. Responsible Republicans say the proposed increase of $300,000,000 for the war on poverty would bring the money available for fiscal year '68 to less than what is being spent in the current year. It would actually be a reduction in the spending rate for the battle against poverty.

By almost any calculation from whatever source the amount proposed to try to stem the decay of the cities and break down the wall of the ghettos is pitifully small. By cutting back so far the President may have thought he would forestall Congress and keep at least a respectable front for his domestic program. If that was his expectation he is bound to be quickly disillusioned.

NOR DOES the Republican opposition have to get out in front when it comes to shaving the sums in the budget on the domestic side of the ledger. For the majority whip of the Senate, Russell Long of Louisiana, was sharpening his axe even before the budget went to Congress. He is opposed to virtually all the programs that would ease city tensions and begin to correct ancient abuses.

Long wants to show that by deeper cuts than Johnson has made there will be no need for even a temporary tax increase such as the White House proposed in the six per cent surcharge. He is aided and abetted by other Southerners in powerful posts where a veto or simply long-drawn-out resistance can frustrate the administration.

Billy Graham

I am a teenager, and like others of my age, I like to dress a little "wild." Is it wrong for teenagers to dress according to their age? I would like to know. S. J.

No, it is not wrong for teenagers to dress according to their age, but some teenagers mode of dress is an expression of their defiance and rebellion. As one teenager said, "Long hair on boys is strictly a rebellion by some teenagers who want to stand out from the crowd."

It is normal, however, for kids in their teens to want to be a little flamboyant. When I was a boy it was the style to wear odd socks: one blue one, and one red one, for example. The modern teenagers have their own fashion, and as long as they dress clean, modest and without defiance, I see nothing wrong with it. However, there are other ways that young people can be distinctive besides dress. How about being distinctive by showing less prejudice than your elders, by being more temperate than the previous generation, and by finding a purpose like the young people who have joined the Prince of Peace Corp. How about living clean lives — and going to church — and reading the Bible? This would "hit your elders," not only where it hurts, but where it helps! It might even inspire him to join in the rebellion against the things that are destroying our homes, and threatening the security of our nation. Be different! But on the positive side.

The Calorie Count: Ham Vs. Beefsteak

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are a group of junior high school teachers engaged in verbal battle over the calorie content of ham vs. beefsteak.

One faction insists that a 4-ounce serving of lean ham has fewer calories than a 4-ounce serving of sirloin steak. The other says the opposite. Please settle it for us.

I might add that each group has a book that proves it is right. So far the most recent copyright, 1962, is winning. — M.B. & R.M.

There are several important variables, a very important one being the fat, which increases the calorie total greatly. A marbleized steak (meaning a lot of fat between the fibers) will be far higher in calories than beef from a lean steer.

Latest reference I find is dated 1964. It does not give data on sirloin, but rates 3 ounces of porterhouse at 293 calories, and 3 ounces of cured cooked ham at 340 calories.

Thus I would say that the ham lovers lose—but that unusually fat beef could come close to or exceed ham.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I am on a low-salt diet due to a weak heart and kidney condition, so of course I don't even drink ginger ale and other soft drinks.

However, having to drink and cook with fluoridated water is quite a worry because of wondering what the sodium fluoride will do to me. — A.A.

I shall in this instance make no remarks at all about the dispute of fluoridated water, and discuss just the sodium.

The amount (one part per million) is so small that you may disregard it. It is too small to have any effect on your sodium intake.

There is no such thing as a "no-salt" diet. Many foods contain a little natural salt. You get vastly more of it in meat, and I mean completely fresh meat with no salt added, than you do in the one part per million in water.

We all must have a little salt. A low-salt diet means avoiding anything to which salt has been added, in cooking or otherwise.

You are correct in avoiding soft drinks, because they contain some sodium, too.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Some mornings when I get up I feel sick to my stomach, as though I hadn't eaten for days. The only solution is to eat something right away. Do you think it possbile that a slight meal at bedtime would solve this? — B.F.

This sometimes bothers people who are troubled with periods of low blood sugar. It may seem odd to you, but the answer to low blood sugar is NOT to eat more sugar because the pancreas is stimulated to produce more insulin, the sugar burns up rapidly, and one gets into an alternating high-low cycle.

The better answer is to eat protein food instead, since it releases its sugar more slowly, and maintains a moderate sugar level over a longer time. A small meal high in protein at bedtime might help—a meat sandwich, a hard-boiled egg, a cheese snack, a bit of fish or seafood. A glass of milk with it might help.

* * *

Note to F.M.A.; That "article" you quote was an advertisement and you can forget about the man's supposed "discovery" of how to grow hair. You note that the article says he refuses to tell what is in his concoction other than "herbs, lotions and drugs." Thus it is futile to ask whether "anything has been done to test this preparation in the United States." It's typical of some patent medicine people to claim to have a wonderful discovery but refuse to tell what it is.

To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms; treatment; how to speed recovery—write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald for his booklet, "The Pesky Prostate," enclosing 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to cover cost of printing and handling.

* * *

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

And Now, A Book On Manchester

WASHINGTON — There has been so much controversy over the William Manchester book, "The Death of a President," that the only solution to the problem would be for Mrs. Manchester to commission someone to write the official version of what happened when her husband tried to write the book.

In this way history would be served and the principals in the drama would not have to talk to a lot of writers who are planning to do books on how Manchester wrote his book.

THE FIRST thing to do would be to find a writer whom the Manchester family trusted. Since the writer would have access to very personal matters, as well as letters and documentation, he would have to agree in a signed contract to submit the manuscript to the Manchesters before it was published. The Manchester family or their representatives would have the right to delete anything that might prove embarrassing to the Manchesters, Harper and Row or Look magazine.

It should be understood that anybody who undertakes the assignment will not profit by it and that all the money earned from the book will be turned over to the Middletown, Conn., public library. The author would keep magazine and newspaper rights and would have to pay all legal fees in case Manchester tries to stop him from publishing the book.

FURTHERMORE, all the tapes and notes taken during the research of the book will be turned over to Mrs. Manchester and will not be made available to the public until her husband writes another history.

In exchange for making him the debacle, the Manchester family would speak to the writer at length and would tell him the most intimate details of what happened while the book was being written. He would also be given permission to interview all the lawyers involved in the case, as well as Manchester's doctor, literary agents, Look publisher Mike Cowles, Harper and Row publisher Cass Canfield and, of course, the editor of the German magazine Der Stern.

IT WOULD be assumed that the writer would also talk to the Kennedy family and ask them their version of what happened. But since the Manchesters commissioned the book, they would have the last say as to how these facts would be represented.

The one fear of authorizing such a book is that it could show Sen. Robert Kennedy in a bad light, and the Manchester family would have to avoid this at all costs, particularly during an election year.

THERE IS the danger that the pro-Manchester people might twist and turn events in such a way as to make the Kennedys look bad, but much of this material could be edited out of the final draft with the help of the writer and Mrs. Manchester's lawyers.

If this couldn't be worked out amicably, the Kennedy family could always commission someone to write their version of how Manchester wrote his book. It could keep Look magazine going for years.

Contest Upcoming For School Beauty

James Gilberts Will Reside In Lubbock

Mr. and Mrs. James Michael Gilbert will be making their home at 2406 Main, Apt. 19, Lubbock, following their wedding Saturday evening in the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church. Immediately after the reception, the couple left on a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination.

The bride is the former Jacquelynn Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Buchanan, 1605 Air Force Bouvelard, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Gilbert, 1304 Dixie.

The Rev. Francis Beasley, OMI, officiated for the ceremony. Gracing the church sanctuary were arrangements of white gladioli and pompon chrysanthemums, with ruffle and leather leaf ferns, placed on Grecian pedestals accented with satin bows.

Mrs. Leslie Green, organist, played traditional selections and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Harold Talbot, as she sang "Ave Maria," "Blessed Be This Day" and "Thanks Be To God."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown fashioned with bodice of Chantilly lace, embroidered with sequins and pearls, and long, petal - point sleeves. The peau de soie skirt flared from a pointed waistline in front and back, and a panel of peau de soie fell from a Dior bow. Her shoulder-length veil of French illusion was attached to a feather cap of illusion sprinkled with seed pearls. She used the traditional bride's items and wore a single strand of pearls belonging to her mother.

On a white satin covered Bible, the bride carried a bouquet of gardenias nestled in a hand - styled arrangement of stephanotis and white velvet leaves.

Mrs. Donald McWhorter, the matron of honor, was attired in a dress of blue and green satin brocade fashioned in the Empire manner and accented with bows at the waistline. Her headpiece was white tulle over a Dior bow, and she carried white carnations tied with braided yellow satin ribbon and garlands of Frenched white carnations. Miss Patti Jane Buchanan, sister of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid and was attired similarly to the matron of honor and carried a smaller version of the same bouquet.

William Gilbert, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and ushers were David Campbell and Rodney Buchanan, brother of the bride. The junior groomsman was David Morton. The flower girl, Arna Bea Nanny, was attired similarly to the other feminine attendants and carried a lace basket filled with rose petals. Mark Young, was the ring bearer, and altar boys were Mark Sanders and Paul Gertsner.

RECEPTION

The reception was held in the church hall and joining the couple in the receiving line were the parents and feminine attendants.

The bride's chosen colors of blue and white were used in Dutch irises and candytuft which formed the centerpiece for the bride's table. The cloth was blue linen, overlaid with white lace, and crystal and silver appointments were used. Five other side tables held crystal vases filled with blue cornflowers, wedding bells and white maline.

The cake, in the form of an open Bible, was topped with wedding bells, doves and a miniature bride and groom. Lace and satin ribbon formed the base.

Members of the house party were Mrs. William Thompson, Mrs. Floyd Young, Mrs. A. D. Nanny, Mrs. Robert L. Gilbert, Mrs. John R. Gilbert, Mrs. Wayne Lister and Mrs. Charles Newsome.

Guests from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Nanny and family, Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. John Ater, Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Buchanan and family, May; and Mrs. L. A. Lister and Mrs. Frank Heller, both of Sweetwater.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert were graduated from Big Spring Senior High School and attended Howard County Junior College. She was a member of the Future Homemakers of America and was employed by C. R. Anthony Company. She will attend Texas Tech in Lubbock where her husband is now a student. He is employed by Southland Corporation.

SEC. D BIG SPRING, TEXAS, SUNDAY, JANUARY 29, 1967 SEC. D

Cable TV Expands To Eight Channels

Big Spring Cable TV has broadened its spectrum of programming to include seven television stations and one FM-stereo (music) channel. It plans, within a matter of weeks, to add another station.

New on cable channel choices are KTVT, Fort Worth, an independent station which features a wide choice of movies as well as local features; KERA-TV, an educational station in Dallas; and FM music from Abilene.

It is planned to add soon the programming of WFAA-Dallas, major regional ABC outlet.

Some channel changes have been made.

The switchover to full-band service was accomplished at midweek, and the station today is announcing its new services as a local observance of National Cable TV Week.

Lubbock, Midland, Odessa and Monahans have been available to cable subscribers, along with the local Channel 4.

To "pick up" the more distant stations in Fort Worth-Dallas, the local company has become a customer of a common-carrier microwave service, which hitherto had not come this far west from the metropolitan area. The reception of the new microwave service entailed an extensive revamping of equipment, with additions.

Microwave service originating in Dallas - Fort Worth has repeater points at Abilene, Sweetwater and Colorado City (from where service is extended northward to Snyder and Lubbock), and now is brought into Big Spring, to be received by special antenna, reflecting and frequency - conversion equipment at Big Spring Cable TV's tower atop South Mountain. This 220-foot structure has mounted on it special antenna tuned for each of the originating stations, and all of those which have been in use are being modified and improved. Much new equipment has been involved.

With use of the new microwave service, the local tower takes the television signals (at six megacyle range) by means of a reflector which points the signal down into a "dish" containing the special antenna. There also is a frequency conversion system to change the signals back to frequency for standard receiving sets.

All signals coming into the various antennas are then, of course, sent by ground cable through the city into subscribers' sets. This cable signal is boosted by amplifiers at strategic locations over town.

In simplest essence, the Cable TV Company originally had tower and antenna which could "pick up" the West Texas stations, but now with microwave service, can take the signals of the more distant metropolitan stations.

Cable Service Broadened During Five-Year Growth

Five years of steady growth and progress in Big Spring are being observed by Big Spring Cable TV, Inc., the organization which operates the city's television cable network.

The city of Big Spring granted the company a franchise to install and operate a cable TV system here in February, 1961. For the right to use streets and alleys, the company pays the city two per cent of the service charges paid by the subscriber. The cable has a contract with Texas Electric Service Company for permission to rent or use the latter's poles, but the cable company uses its own poles in some cases.

86 MILES OF CABLE

Construction of service lines started almost immediately after the franchise was granted, first cable coming down Birdwell Lane and 16th. From this, some 86 miles of cable have been strung so that now the system has service available to at least 7,000 homes. The company is now serving approximately 2,500 subscribers.

The 86 miles of line are fed by approximately 300 amplifiers which may be seen mounted on poles throughout the city. Some of these locations contain equipment valued at $300 to $400 each.

24 HOURS

This equipment operates 24 hours a day, using more than 1,000 electronic tubes, plus many solid-state transistor devices. With the company's new conversion to all-band operation, most of the equipment in use is of the solid-state type. Aluminum trunk line cables are now being used, for better service and less maintenance.

Improvements are being made daily, said Manager Jim Lancaster, cable and equipment used and proved by the industry being installed as soon as they prove practical and reliable.

The system is now capable of carrying 11 TV channels and six FM channels. Currently it offers seven TV programs and one FM-stereo listing. It is planned to offer another Dallas station within a few months.

EDUCATIONAL STATION

Among the additions are an educational station, in Dallas, and FM - stereo programming out of Abilene. The new listings, which have brought about a change in some channel tuning, are offered at no increase in rates.

The company maintains free service to subscribers, although it is not in the TV set repair business. Calls about reception will be taken care of promptly, and if the trouble is in the cable, will be repaired. Set malfunction is for the owner to have repaired. Four radio equipped service vehicles are used in the local operation to improve and speed service. Seven people are employed in the operation, four of them in installation and service.

BETTER RECEPTION

"We are proud to be a part of this community," Lancaster said. "At the same time, we like to think the community benefits from the cable system, not only because of better television reception but because the system makes available a beneficial service at a reasonable rate. "We hope in the future we can expand our services to include more channels and other services in addition to the present facilities. We will continue to build new plants until all areas within the city limits are served."

"We would like to thank all of our friends and customers in Big Spring who helped make these past five years possible. The public can rely on Big Spring Cable TV to always strive to provide the best equipment, service and techniques available to bring the best possible television reception into local homes."

Educational TV Offered

The expansion of Big Spring Cable TV brings to subscribing vejwers a type of programming not hitherto available locally.

That is educational TV, and coming through the local cable KERA-TV, Dallas.

This station is operated by a non-profit, area - wide organization, headed by a voluntary board of directors of 50 people participating in the educational and cultural life of the greater Dallas area.

Federal Communications Commission rules forbid use of commercials on educational television, so the Dallas station is maintained through membership subscriptions and endowments.

It not only augments school classroom training, but many of its programs are directed at adults. Currently KERA-TV is offering pre - school classes; classes in Spanish (first through sixth grades); adventures in reading (first through sixth grades); health and science (first through eighth grades); home and family; advanced mathematics; and driver education.

Programs ranging from homemaking to courses in physics, mathematics and fine arts are produced by the station, based on the principle that exploration of the liberal arts is the most satisfying leisure occupation of all.

In addition to approximately 15 hours of locally produced classes, films from National Educational Television provide both in-school and after-school viewing of courses from throughout the United States.

Programming planned for the future are filmed productions such as:

Public affairs — a series which ranges from the United Nations in action to prominent Americans, who are authorities in their respective fields, discussing atoms for power, nuclear power and foreign aid issues.

Humanities — a series including discussions of semantics, great literature, poetry and philosophy, and musical and dramatic presentations.

These will be augmented by programs on "Views of the News," "Your Health," "Community Problems," "Pioneering in Science," plus programs dealing with subjects such as child care, family financing, gardening, hobbies, etc.

More Educational Stations Ahead

National Education Assn. reports that educational television outlets are expected to double or triple within the next five years.

Some 62 such stations are in operation now in the country.

Experts predict 1,000 such stations by 1972.

New Channel Listings

Big Spring residents receiving Cable TV service now have a choice of seven television stations plus FM music, for a wide variety of viewing and listening.

Some channel changes have been made, and listings are as follows:

KMID, Midland, NBC network channel 2—cable channel 2
KERA, Dallas, educational channel 13—cable channel 5
KTVT, Fort Worth, independent channel 11—cable channel 6
KOSA, Odessa, CBS network channel 7—cable channel 7
KVKM, Monahans, ABC network channel 9—cable channel 9
FM - stereo music—cable channel 10
KCBD, Lubbock, NBC network channel 11—cable channel 11
KWAB, Big Spring, ABC, CBS, channel 4—cable channel 13

Remote Areas Receive TV Via Community System

Big city television programs are reaching hundreds of thousands of homes in remote desert and mountain areas where video reception was once impossible.

This entertainment boom for rural families has been brought about by a thriving but little known enterprise named Community Antenna Television.

CATV is a special relay system which picks up programs and transmits them to homes that are either out of range of broadcasting stations or located in areas where mountains obstruct the TV beam.

CATV systems — over 1,700 are in operation—provide television for more than three million persons who otherwise would not receive it. The number is growing.

Each system is privately owned and operated on a profit-making basis. Customers are charged an installation fee that averages about $30. A monthly service charge usually runs from $4 a month, to $8 a month. Here's how CATV works:

A giant antenna, often as high as 750 feet, is erected within range of a station's TV beam. Then a cable is strung along telephone and power utility poles from the antenna to the town.

CATV customers have wires from their sets hooked to the cable. No roof-top antennas are required.

Many CATV areas are serviced by master antennas that are in range of two or more broadcasting stations.

The result is that towns of only a few thousand population have more TV channels than some metropolitan areas.

Winona, Minn., has an antenna that picks up nine stations in Austin, Minn., LaCross, Wis., and Mason City, Iowa.

Some CATV businessmen supply their customers with uninterrupted music on the channel not used for television.

Residents of rural areas are not the only CATV subscribers. The system is also used by citizens of San Francisco and Seattle who live where hills or mountains block TV beams.

The first CATV antenna was erected in Astoria, Ore., in 1949. The idea spread rapidly during the next three years due to the Federal Communication Commission's freeze on telecasting stations construction.

But when the freeze ended the expected station building boom did not take place. So CATV kept growing. The expansion is still going on. Last March, four new units went into operation.

CATV officials find themselves involved in the pay-TV controversy. They explain that CATV is not pay television. One official says:

"In pay-TV you are expected to purchase programs individually on a pay-as-you-see-basis. In CATV you pay for the convenience of being connected to a fully equipped master antenna. CATV's entire function is like that of any other TV receiving antenna."

But he concedes that if pay-television ever becomes popular CATV will be able to supply it to customers.

Communications Patterns Changed By CATV Concept

The designation of National Cable TV Week is new this year. It is going to be an annual event of increasing importance, however, simply because cable TV itself is destined to be increasingly important in the communications patterns of the future.

As recently as 1949, the first community antenna, or cable TV, system was built in Astoria, Ore. This was a non-commercial venture, but the first commercial system followed in 1950, in Lansford, Pa. After that, CATV's growth for several years was steady, fairly rapid, but hardly spectacular. Even as late as four or five years ago, CATV was relatively unheralded.

Then something happened. The number of CATV systems in operation and under construction took off on a sharply rising curve. Today, there are systems functioning in some 1,750 communities. Franchises have been granted for an additional 1,250 systems. And about 1,500 other towns and cities have applications under consideration. In fact; there are only about 100 places with a population of more than 2,500 in the entire United States in which CATV is not operating, about to go into operation or at least under consideration.

Inevitably, along with this sudden growth, CATV began to attract quite a bit of attention. Large companies of many types became system owners. Major banks and investment houses made sizable financial commitments. The industry began to acquire the earmarks of stability and maturity.

At the same time, the National Association of Broadcasters, although many of its members operate CATV franchises, has taken an official position in favor of very stringent regulation of CATV. The telephone companies, after a late start, are trying to make up for lost time in the cable TV field. Some of their activities are being challenged by the CATV industry in the courts and before the Federal Communications Commission.

IT FITS IN

There are questions of copyright liability and government regulation to be resolved, too. The FCC, the Congress and the courts all are looking closely at this upstart industry, trying to decide just how it really fits into the rapidly changing communications picture.

But of one thing, almost everyone appears convinced. That is that CATV does fit in—somewhere, somehow. And in this very exciting climate, the cable TV industry itself is pausing briefly this week to look at its past, its present, and, most of all, its future.

Just what, then, is CATV anyway? What is the reason for its growth?

DISTRIBUTOR

Simply defined, CATV is a method of picking up — or in some instances, of originating—television signals at a central point and distributing them by coaxial cable to individual TV sets in the surrounding "community." While this is principally a geographic designation, it could refer to communities of interest or endeavor as well.

In its most basic form, CATV provides a superior TV reception service—clearer, interference-free pictures, and more channels to choose from. But the CATV system of the future, provided it is allowed to develop logically and sensibly and in the best public interest, has the capability to do much more.

For example, it can free portions of the broadcast spectrum —the wide band of frequencies used for television—by shifting to cable much of the entertainment programming now carried over the air.

MORE PROGRAMS

It can provide additional programming of a local or special interest nature for audiences too small or too fragmented to be served adequately by conventional TV stations.

And it may even turn the TV set of tomorrow into a true home communications center, stead of the vastly under-utilized instrument it is today. Cable TV could provide a means for electronic communication of newspapers, books and messages . . . for all sorts of data transmissions . . . and for arm chair shopping.

Some of this sounds pretty far out, but it is not nearly so remote as you might suppose. By no means is it pure "pie in the sky." Just such home communications possibilities have been envisioned by such tough-minded realists—to name only a representative few—as Gen. David Sarnoff of RCA; Dr. J. R. Pierce, the noted Bell Laboratories' scientist, and Stanford Smith, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

DISTANT SIGNALS

Dr. Pierce, for example, pointed out in a recent speech that, thanks to television and other forms of rapid modern communications, we are approaching a society in which there are no longer any "sticks" or "boondocks." He credited CATV with an important part in bringing this about through its ability to bring in distant, as well as local, signals to a community.

"CATV," Dr. Pierce continued, "seems to me to be a tremendous advance, a real wave of the future compared with anything else on the television horizon. It will be interesting to see whether CATV will continue to thrive."

This from one of the telephone industry's top scientists, a man with a reputation as a "frontiersman" in communications science. We truly have a situation here which was neatly phrased by another observer, Sol Schildhause, the head of the FCC's task force for dealing with CATV matters.

"You took television's own limitations, as it were, and made something of them," Schildhause said.

An apt analogy for the cable TV industry might be that of a low - budget motion picture which becomes a box office hit.

IN SMALL TOWNS

Unlike most of the innovations that have shaped the technological, sociological and economic history of our nation, CATV did not begin in the cities and creep out to the countryside. Instead, it originated, almost by accident, in small towns. And it has come now to certain sections of even New York City and Los Angeles — where there are reception problems to beat anything the small town viewer has to put up with.

J. A. (Jim) LANCASTER

J. A. (Jim) Lancaster, vice president and general manager of Big Spring Cable TV, brings to his work a broad background of education and experience in the electronics and communications fields.

Lancaster has been with the local organization since February, 1962, and in December, 1964, was named vice president.

Prior to his coming to Big Spring from Brownwood, Lancaster has been associated with Southwestern States Telephone Company for more than 10 years.

Lancaster and his wife, Jean, make their home at 610 Colgate. They have two children, a son, Stephen, and a daughter, Pamela, both in Big Spring High School.

"We appreciate the good acceptance given us here," said Lancaster, "both in the business and as citizens of Big Spring."

With Cable Service, Roof Antenna Gone

A sign of social prestige once was a television antenna towering above the rooftop.

That was in the early days of television, when an antenna on the roof meant a TV set in the living room.

But the modern miracle of technological development has reversed the prestige picture.

The unblemished silhouette of a house now is a sign that the residents are "on the cable."

In Big Spring, the "cable" is supplied by the Big Spring Cable TV, Inc., and the city is one of about 2,000 communities throughout the United States served by Community Antenna TV systems (CATV).

Cable TV is a way of giving Big Spring residents (who are among the four million Americans who are on CATV systems) better television reception from coaxial cables strung throughout the community.

Being "on the cable" means Big Spring residents have their choice of the wide range of programs offered on the ABC, CBS and NBC networks plus the best in independent programming.

Once in Big Spring, the signals are amplified, filtered and sent by coaxial cable into the homes.

Better television reception . . . clear pictures.

More channels . . . full network coverage of ABC, CBS and NBC.

Greatly increased home safety . . . elimination of the dangers of rooftop antennas.

Low - cost monthly service for well - rounded program selection.

Basically, a CATV system such as Big Spring Cable TV is a means of distributing superior television reception in a fringe area by means of electronic amplification and cable distribution.

Big Spring Cable TV does not claim to offer "picture perfect," "crystal clear" or "trouble free" reception.

But it does offer — and give — consistently superior reception with a minimum of trouble that could not be duplicated with a rooftop antenna.

Besides being ugly, rooftop antennas have other disadvantages. They provide inferior and limited television viewing, and they are dangerous.

Manufacturers of the antennas say that any antenna over two years old has lost about half of its efficiency. In other words, the pictures are about half as good as when the antenna was first put up.

This is caused by natural rust and corrosion of the antenna itself — something that cannot be avoided.

If the antenna is more than three years old, according to the experts, it should be taken down, cleaned, new guy wires put on, and new lead-in wire installed to make it safe.

Emergency Use Is Under Study

The National Industry Advisory Committee of the FCC has been asked to study the use of AM, FM, and TV broadcast stations to alert the general public in emergencies. The committee is also authorized to suggest peacetime uses — such as weather warning, threats to life and property, etc. — for this system.

A special NIAC Working Group has been appointed under the chairmanship of John F. Meagher, NAB vice president, with J. Leonard Renisch, NCTA member and executive director of the Cox stations as vice chairman, to concentrate on the program, including a review of all present arrangements and procedures.

Reguests for the study was made by the Emergency Communications Committee of the Department of Defense and the FCC as part of their review of defense requirement for non-government emergency communications program for which the FCC is responsible.

Engineering Back Of Your Picture

Like many other devices for modern living, cable television is taken for granted in the homes it serves.

In theory, it's quite simple. You build a big tower on a hilltop, or out in the wide open spaces, run coaxial cable from it to subscribers' homes — and, presto, they enjoy more and better TV pictures.

In practice, however, there's more to CATV than meets the eye. Its "magic" is the end product of a complex and exacting communications system.

ANTENNA SITE

Not even the selection of the antenna site is left to chance. While a homeowner is confined to his own rooftop or back yard in placing an antenna, the cable TV system operator seeks the very best location in the surrounding area.

Sometimes the antenna site may be many miles from the homes it serves.

To find it, trained engineers use delicate instruments to determine signal strengths, interference and other factors. In many cases, where rough terrain is involved, the search is carried out by Jeep, on horseback, or even by the helicopter.

The "head end" portion of the CATV system includes not only the antennas and the poles, platform or tower on which they are mounted but also a complicated assortment of preamplifiers, amplifiers and other electronic gear for processing the signals before they start their journey through the cable network.

CRITICAL

The antennas are particularly critical. They must be properly aimed and "stacked" to pick up each channel. The incoming signals are amplified to a desired level, filtered, converted to proper frequencies and fed into the coaxial cable.

Since the signals gradually lose strength as they travel over the cable, they get a boost from amplifiers at periodic intervals. Spacing of the amplifiers is very carefully calculated. Automatic gain controls keep the signal levels exactly right. Other devices perform such jobs as compensating for the fact that the cable weakens some channels more than others and adjusting to changes in temperature.

Controls must be rigid all along the line. When signals are sent through a long series of amplifiers, even minor flaws or variations become magnified. Too much signal strength will cause what is known as the "windshield wiper effect" — a dark vertical shadow moving back and forth across the screen. Signal weakness results in tiny white dots of "snow" on the screen.

FEEDER INES

From the main trunk line, so-called "feeder" lines branch off to carry the signal down each street or alley. From the feeders, in turn, individual "drops" bring the signal to each house. Here the signals are passed through a small isolating transformer to the regular terminals of the television set.

Keeping the cable TV system functioning properly is a 365-day — and night — job. Trained technical personnel monitor it constantly, ready to isolate trouble quickly and correct it — and often before subscribers realize that anything is wrong.

It's their job to make the highly complicated cable TV system continue to appear deceptively "simple."

THE TOWER
Carries many gadgets

Hospital Visiting Via Television

According to the American Hospital Association, "electrical visiting" will soon be in operation in many hospitals throughout the United States.

Two Florida hospitals, Hialeah and Mercy, in Miami, have rangements allowing small children not ordinarily allowed in hospital rooms to be seen on a screen in the parent's sickroom while they talk together.

Telstar Programs

More complete programming with present facilities is the only effect Telstar will have on the TV industry within the forseeable future.

This is the opinion of Charles E. Clements, past vice chairman of National Community Television Assn. and a prominent CATV engineer.

Writers Of Music Worry About Typecasting Too

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It isn't only the stars of motion pictures who resist typecasting. John Barry writes the music for the James Bond movies, BUT, he points out, he also writes music for other, different-flavored films.

His best-known tune probably is "Goldfinger," but "Born Free" is a likely second.

"A successful score is one that is accurate to the subject," the 32-year-old English composer says. "Of the scores I've done, I think 'Goldfinger' was very accurate; 'Seance on a Wet Afternoon,' 'The Ipcress File' and 'The Knack' were. I don't have any particular favorite; I'm most pleased when music works for a movie.

"A lot of producers want the title song to be a hit. 'Goldfinger' was a hit and worked in the movie—the best of both.

"'The Ipcress File' music away from the movie wasn't all that successful and 'The Knack' the same.

"The song always causes differences of opinion among the lyricist, the composer, the producer, the director. I like to get a song that is the basis for my thematic approach for everything—instead of just a song stuck on the front. If the movie is exciting, the song has to be of that nature. You can't kick off a movie with a more hummable song that falls apart when you develop it—you have to get a song that fulfills both functions.

"I know a lot of people write a song and the rest of the music is unrelated. I think it is important to relate—that's my hang-up.

"In 'The Knack,' the theme was used throughout the movie in varying ways, from jazz organ treatment to Hollywood romantic treatment with big strings. It helps hold the movie together; it's a zany conglomeration of a movie with very quick action."

Barry has a new recording out on Columbia, "Great Movie Sounds of John Barry," on which he conducts selections of his own music from 10 movies.

His James Bond movies and "The Knack" soundtracks are on United Artists; "The Ipcress File" on Decca and "Born Free" on MGM.

The movies are bringing him to records, but it was recording, largely, which brought him to the movies five years ago.

Barry led and composed for a rhythm and blues group called the John Barry Seven which played one-night stands and recorded. He also produced records of vocalists for the company. One vocalist, Adam Faith, got a part in a movie, "Beat Girl," and suggested Barry to the producer to do the music. "It was a lot of neurotic party music," Barry says. "It was a low-budget movie and I was in the category of a low-budget composer, that is for sure."

Barry said movie composing is as difficult to break into in England as in the United States, but he got a similar job with Adam Faith's next movie, "Never Let Go," starring Peter Sellers.

"I wrote that in hotel rooms, touring around the country with the group," he recalls. "It wasn't ideal.

"After that, I had a very quiet 18 months, only did 'The Amorous Prawn,' a B comedy, and then somebody said, 'He has done two movies,' and I was asked to arrange the main title tune of 'Dr. No.'

"Dr. No" proved Barry's launching pad; he has composed and arranged all the James Bond movie music since and has been generally in demand.

He first looks at rough cuts of the movie and confers with producer and director about where music is going to be needed and what its function will be, then he goes to work writing a song and themes.

"You don't write a tailor-made score until they have the fine cut. From the fine-cut stage to the recording date is three - five - six weeks, depending on when the distributors are screaming they want the release date. I might add, on Bond movies, the time is murderously short.

Francoise Dorleac and David Niven

Laughs, Thrills Packed Into Niven's New Film

Thrill piles on in "Where the Spies Are," and in between the spine-chilling moments there are plenty of laughs and love scenes in this romp in espionage starring David Niven and Francoise Dorleac.

Filmed in Panavision and color on exotic locations in the Middle East, the suspenseful film is based on James Leasor's best-selling novel, "Passport to Oblivion," revolving around the mild English country doctor, Jason Love, whom circumstances turn into a secret service agent for the British government and who risks life and limb in remarkable adventures taking him from London to Rome and on to Beirut, Baalbeck and Byblos in the Lebanon.

Niven portrays the doctor, with Miss Dorleac seen as Vikki, the mysterious fashion model who crosses his path and becomes inextricably involved with him, both romantically and in espionage intrigue in which she plays a game of cat-and-mouse. Is she on Jason's side or is she secretly working for the enemy? This is one of the film's suspenseful situations which keeps the audience guessing right up to the explosive climax.

But before this arrives, the spectator will be sitting on the edge of his seat through such sequences as the crash of a plane on which Jason Love had been slated as a passenger; a cold - blooded murder taking place amidst the eerie ruins of Baalbeck; a love tryst between Jason and Vikki which is interrupted by vicious killers; the episode in which Jason prevents the assassination of a pro-British prince during the latter's state visit to Beirut; the hair-raising scene in which Jason, escaping from pursuers, is rescued by a helicopter from which he dangles in the sky at the end of a rope; and the deadly machinations aboard the "Dove of Peace," a Russian aircraft supposedly on a global goodwill mission, on which Jason has been made a prisoner.

Does the doctor-turned-agent reveal what he knows about the British espionage system or will he live to love another day? And how does the alluring and enigmatic Vikki come out in the proceedings? These are among the questions that are resolved before the pulsating action ends.

Playing leading roles with Niven and Miss Lorleac are Cyril Cusack, John Le Messurier, Nigel Davenport, Eric Pohlmann, Paul Stassino and Richard Marner. The picture's suspenseful music was written by Mario Nascimbene.

BOOK REPORT

Fascinating Tale Of Atlantic Ocean Crossing

TINKERBELLE
By Robert Manry. Harper. $5.95

If you are interested in every last detail of Robert Manry's amazing 77-day crossing of the Atlantic in his 13½-foot sloop Tinkerbelle, you had best trot down to the store and pick up a copy of this book.

Forty - seven - year - old Manry, a copyreader for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and father of two children, took off on his voyage without telling anybody on his paper, or hardly anybody else outside his family, just what he was up to. Months later, approaching the British Isles on his course from Falmouth, Mass., to Falmouth, England, he was surprised no end to find himself a celebrity.

Reconstructing it himself, adding a tiny cabin and convincing himself it would float like a corked bottle in any sea, he decided on the lone voyage after plans blew up for one with a companion in a 25-foot boat. Until the very last, he let his friends think it was the two-some trip he was going on, rather than the singleton.

Although washed off his craft seven times during the voyage, and frequently forced to furl sails, put out sea anchor, and ride out a storm inside his cabin, Manry apparently encountered no real storm or other peril aside from the possibility of being run down by some ship. This was due partly to good summer weather on which he had counted, partly to his own planning and solid handiwork, and partly no doubt to good luck.

The whole adventure fascinates Manry even more than it may a reader, but there is an endearing naivete about the account, as about Manry himself, that makes it unique among books of this ilk. He is the only one I can think of who has given a convincing explanation of why on earth a sane family man would ever undertake a voyage such as this one.

"Tinkerbelle" comes with an unusual number of drawings and photos; the drawings unfortunately leave something to be desired.

Knotts Stars In Space-Age Comedy

Don Knotts' talents are given full play and the result is a hilarious comedy in Technicolor, "The Reluctant Astronaut," which comes Thursday to the Ritz Theatre. And while it is the star's antics that do most to tickle the funny-bone in the title role, he gets outstanding support performances from his co-stars, Leslie Neilsen, Joan Freeman, Jeanette Nolan and Arthur O'Connell.

DON KNOTTS

In "The Reluctant Astronaut," Knotts is a timid soul so afraid of heights and flying that he has to muster all his meager courage to retain a job as operator of a space ride at a children's amusement park. Without his knowledge, he is volunteered by his doting father, portrayed by O'Connell, for training as an astronaut in Uncle Sam's space program.

Through a bizarre set of rib-tickling circumstances he finds himself chosen to man a fully automated capsule rocketed into orbit. His numerous hairbreadth escapes from disaster are presented in Knotts' celluloid style of the galloping jitters, which even greater entertainment than in his former Universal picture, "The Ghost and Mr. Chicken."

Leslie Neilsen is the world-famous astronaut who befriends the little man several times. His sweetheart, played by Joan Freeman, has an important part in unwittingly sending Don into orbit. O'Connell's wife, and Knotts' mother, is portrayed by Jeanette Nolan, who has been O'Connell's wife on the screen several times, most recently in the video special, "The Menace of Old Age."

Edward J. Montagne, who manages to be unique in an industry in which the unique often is commonplace, produced and directed "The Reluctant Astronaut." He is one of but a handful of film producers who are second generation picture makers, and on the same lot where his late father started his tenure at the studio some four decades ago. Montagne has a distinct flair for comedy fare, having warmed up with McHale's Navy, both as video and feature productions, and the Phil Silvers (Sgt. Bilko) show, and for which he earned an Emmy. He also produced and directed Knotts' former well-received Universal picture, "The Ghost and Mr. Chicken."

The writing team that did that film created the very funny original screenplay for "The Reluctant Astronaut." They are James Firtzell and Everett Greenbaum.

New Immigration Law Outlined In Filmstrip

When President Johnson signed the new Immigration Bill at the Statue of Liberty on Oct. 3, 1965, a whole era in U.S. immigration policy came to an end. The President said:

"This bill says simply that from this day forth, those wishing to immigrate to America shall be admitted on the basis of their skills and their close relationships to those already there. This is a simple test, and it is a fair test."

In its first year and a half, the law has made dynamic changes in U.S. immigration. What are these changes? What is it like to immigrate to the U.S. today? And how has the image of the immigrant himself changed since early times?

FOR STUDENTS

These questions are discussed in "A Nation of Immigrants," one of a new filmstrip series on contemporary issues, being provided by The Herald for junior and senior high schools in this area. It is the fifth in the series and will be distributed next month.

The series, called Special Report, is intended for use in social studies, civics and history classes. It is being prepared by the Associated Press, the world's largest news gathering organization and by Guidance Associates. This paper is a member of The Associated Press.

The filmstrip follows an Albanian family of eight as they pile off a plane in New York and go through all the necessary clearance procedures for entry into the U.S.

HAPPIER ERA

They, like most of today's immigrants, are not the poor, tired huddled masses "the wretched refuse" of Emma Lazarus's poem. They have a happier image and an easier journey toward realizing their vision of a life in America.

The Vuksanajs aren't the only ones with a vision. In an exclusive interview, one famous immigrant, movie producer-director Otto Preminger, says, "I had this dream of coming to America even when I was very young . . . and I always felt that this we call the New World would be very exciting and I am still excited by it."

This American dream began with the first immigrants — the Pilgrims. And it continued as people from all countries packed into the U.S. Driven by hunger, political upheavals, the desire for land, they came.

This filmstrip tells their story. The history of our country cannot be separated from the history of its immigrants. They discovered it. They helped build it. And they continue to help keep it strong, to pour in a rich mixture of new ideas, old cultures and a hardy modern day pioneer spirit.
