SEARCH ENDS — The eight-day search for Johnny Turner Jr., 6, of 1028 E. 29th St., ended sadly in a canyon northeast of Slaton Thursday morning. The child's partially-clothed body was found by Det. J. D. Ussery about 10:05 a.m. following an hour search. An arrow indicates the approximate location at which the body was discovered

Stab Wounds Found On Boy

By FRANK PATRICK
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

CAPITAL murder charges were filed Thursday against Philip Carey Brasfield, accused of the slaying of a 6-year-old Lubbock child.

The bearded, heavy-lidded suspect, 29, was arraigned on the capital charge about seven hours after officers found the tiny body of Johnny Turner Jr. lying face down in a ravine in the rugged Yellowhouse Canyon area north of Slaton.

The grisly discovery capped a two-day search, perhaps the most intensive in Lubbock County history, through the wind-raked canyon area.

Suspect Ordered Held Without Bond

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ordered Brasfield, a Slaton carpenter, held without bond.

The first grader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Turner of 1028 E. 29th St., reportedly was found at 10 a.m., with searchers acting in part on anonymous information received by a local bail bond company employee.

The body was later sent to an Amarillo funeral home where an autopsy was being conducted Thursday night by Dr. Jose Diaz.

Repeated Stab Wounds

Investigators at the scene Thursday said the approximately 55-pound victim had suffered repeated stab wounds.

Reports said there was scalp cut near the area behind the right ear. Stab wounds also were reported on the left side of the stomach and under the chin.

There were cut marks on the fingers of the left hand, leading investigators to feel the victim might have raised the hand in a defensive motion.

Arm Appears Broken

The medically untrained observers also indicated that, from visual examination, it appeared the boy's right arm might have been broken.

The victim's pants and undershorts had been pulled down below his knees, with the body nude from the knees up.

Pants, socks, shoes and shorts were taken into custody by Department of Public Safety lab technicians. A search within a mile-wide radius of the body had failed to turn up a shirt, police reported.

The capital charge — filed shortly before 5 p.m. and prior to the Amarillo autopsy — alleges Brasfield killed the child "by manner and means unknown."

Charge Cites Kidnapping

The charge also alleges Brasfield, reportedly married and a father, killed the youngster "in the course of committing the offense of aggravated kidnapping."

The allegation that murder was committed during the course of a kidnapping elevates the charge to a capital one.

If Brasfield is convicted of capital murder, he will receive either life imprisonment or the death penalty, the only

POUND DROPS

LONDON (AP) — The British pound lost almost three cents against the U.S. dollar in foreign exchange trading Thursday, closing at $1.80, partly because of overseas concern over labor unrest in Britain.

Energy Conferees Seek To Speed Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate leaders, facing the possibility that Congress may fail to complete work on a national energy bill this year, sought ways Thursday to speed up work on a compromise.

But one leading Senate Democrat said President Carter still may not get the energy legislation until just before Christmas and had better cancel his plans for an overseas trip later this month.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd arranged to have two conference committees instead of one work on the legislation.

One conference committee will continue working on nontax aspects while the new one will begin meeting next week to discuss energy taxes.

The step was opposed by Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the single conference unit now trying to fashion a compromise measure. He claimed there was no need for two panels to work on the energy bill.

Air Hijacks Condemned By U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly approved a resolution Thursday condemning airliner hijacking and calling on all nations to take "all necessary steps" to stop it.

The resolution, adopted nearly unanimously without a vote as a statement of consensus by the 149-nation assembly, is the first anti-hijacking measure put on the record here. Although nonbinding, the resolution is expected to put pressure on countries that have been granting asylum to air pirates.

Sanctuary Nations

Among nations that have given sanctuary to hijackers are Algeria, Cuba, Libya, Uganda and North Korea. North Korea is not a member of the United Nations and hijackers avoid Cuba these days because they are usually arrested when they land.

In Montreal, U.S. Transportation Secretary Brock Adams told reporters the United States may take unilateral anti-hijacking action if other nations do not tighten airport security.

"We have the power to suspend the operating rights of carriers dealing with a country that is not taking anti-hijacking procedures," said Adams, who was in Montreal to address a special anti-hijacking meeting of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

"Heavy Sanction"

"This could mean many countries. But this is a very heavy sanction, one that is not to be taken lightly," he said.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations postponed a two-day strike against hijacking to see whether the United Nations would do something to combat airborne terrorism.

The strike threat was made after the hijacking of a German Lufthansa jetliner last month by four terrorists. All 86 passengers and crew were rescued by West

New Dickerson Trial Sought

ATTORNEY Phil Brown Thursday produced an affidavit indicating jurors in the Harold Wayne Dickerson burglary trial were aware the complainant in the case had been murdered two days after reporting the offense to police.

The sudden development could gain a new trial for Dickerson, who is facing an 11-year prison term after being convicted of the burglary.

Brown, a court-appointed attorney, disclosed the new information in a motion filed Thursday asking for a new trial.

Dist. Judge Thomas L. Clinton set a Nov. 22 hearing date on the motion.

Dickerson, 32, was convicted Aug. 9 of the 1971 burglary of the Naomi Miller Martin residence at 4511 42nd St.

Two days after reporting the burglary to police, Mrs. Martin was found dead in her home, sprawled across a living room couch.

Autopsy reports indicated she had been stabbed at least 25 times in the chest and neck. Investigators also found tooth marks on her chest and a wrist, charred areas on her chest and head bruises.

Jurors at Dickerson's trial were not told Mrs. Martin had been murdered.

Former Asst. Dist. Atty. Mary Anne Wiley alluded to the death in final argument, however, noting that testimony during the trial had been given by homicide detectives.

Miss Wiley also said in argument that it would "be lovely" if the complainant were able to be at the trial.

Juror's Affidavit Included

With the motion filed Thursday, Brown enclosed an affidavit by Leslie C. Hill Jr. of 4809 41st St., who served on the jury.

"During the course of deliberations, one or more jurors discussed prejudicial matters that were outside the record," the motion stated at one point.

"Such discussion so inflamed the minds of the jurors that it caused the jury to render a guilty verdict, notwithstanding the court's charge to consider only those matters properly in evidence," it continued.

Hill's affidavit stated that, when the jury retired, someone asked why Mrs. Martin was not present at the trial.

"Another juror, I don't remember who, responded in the presence of all of us that Naomi Miller Martin had been murdered two days after the burglary," Hill's affidavit said.

Quick Verdict Returned

The eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated only 33 minutes before returning a guilty verdict. Clinton, at a hearing last month, imposed the 11-year punishment.

In another portion of the motion for new trial, Brown stated that the verdict was in part based on "hearsay testimony" of police Sgt. F. C. Hargrave.

According to Brown, the evidence was without "probative force."

Portions of Hargrave's testimony concerned the tracing of a color television set, allegedly stolen from Mrs. Martin's home.

Hill referred in the affidavit to testimony purportedly matching the serial number of the television set introduced into evidence with the number of the set stolen in the alleged burglary.

"I presumed that he (the witness) obtained the serial number from the owner of the TV set, Naomi Miller Martin," the affidavit reads.

SOCIETY is at odds over how to deal with youngsters who break the law, one of the country's leading authorities on juvenile justice said here Thursday night.

This conflict, Allen Breed told a Lubbock Memorial Civic Center seminar, stems from society's compassion for children, yet abhorrence of delinquency.

"Our social policy toward youth calls for help and supervision," said Breed, who has been a consultant to the White House and several state and federal agencies on delinquency prevention.

"But our social policy toward crime calls for suppression," he said.

It continues: "If not I don't think the alleged stolen TV set that was present in the courtroom would have been tied back to Naomi Miller Martin. This was also the general consensus among the other jurors." — FRANK PATRICK

Zoners Deny Professional Offices Plea

HEEDING the impassioned pleas of area homeowners, the Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night denied for the third time a request for a specific use permit to allow professional offices north of 66th Street and west of Quaker Ave.

Bobby Day's request for the zone change was turned down after several nearby property owners told commissioners they did not want an office building in the residential area.

Vernon Perez, representing several of the homeowners, said he had told Day the group would accept medical offices, and added that the homeowners later reversed their position. Under no terms would the homeowners accept any type of professional office building, Perez said.

Decision Delayed

Commissioners continued until Thursday a request to legalize a tortilla factory in a residential zone.

Eloisa Gonzales' request that her tortilla factory be allowed to remain north of 54th Street and west of Oak Avenue will be considered after the commission tours the site.

Such a factory is permitted in a light manufacturing (M-1) district, but because of a language misunderstanding, Mrs. Gonzales placed her business in a single-family residential (R-1) zone.

The commission approved a request by Bill Steele for R-1 zoning on several lots south of Erskine Street and west of

HOTEL ROCKETED

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas claimed responsibility Thursday for a rocket attack that caused damage estimated at more than $1 million to a luxury resort hotel at Victoria Falls.

Youth Policy 'Calls For Help'

While it's not easy to resolve that conflict, Breed said public pressure must be exerted to make punishments of juvenile offenders fit their crimes — something that's rarely being done now.

He said alternatives must be used to straighten out youths who do not pose a threat to society, while maintaining a humane but effective corrections systems for those in more serious trouble.

Breed spoke at the opening session of "Juvenile Justice: The Human Dimension," sponsored by the Junior League of Lubbock.

Also addressing the 200-member audience, composed of school officials, judges, lawmen and social service representatives, were Enrique H. Pena, an El Paso district judge and juvenile law instructor, and Robert F. Leonard, president of the National Association of District Attorneys.

Pena said the juvenile courts in Texas and other states are being asked to perform an "impossible task" in controlling delinquency — because they can deal only with those youths brought before them.

"The most fruitful place to start prevention is within the family unit itself — the parent," he said.

Pena said juvenile problems should not be isolated from other family crises in the courtroom. He advocated a "one family-one court" concept, in which a single judicial agency would handle all family problems, from divorces to juvenile cases.

In this way, juvenile problem can be addressed in the context of the family, he said.

"People expect far too much from their juvenile courts," Leonard said. They have become a "dumping ground" for problems that other agencies — schools and social services, for instance — should be handling, he added.

The seminar continues at 9 a.m. today with an address by William Lucas, sheriff of Wayne County (Detroit), Mich.

The seminar is open to the public.

Toll On Water Supply Continues To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — You probably didn't notice it, but you used about 172 gallons of water around your home yesterday. And you'll do it again today.

The U.S. Geological Survey also reports that the average use of water from public supplies is continuing to increase.

Almost all of this water is used by individuals for home use although usage by some industries and commercial establishments is included in the category.

In 1970, the Survey reported, the use of water from public supplies amounted to 166 gallons per person. In 1975, the figure had grown to 168 gallons per person. Since then, water usage has gone up about two percent per year, the Survey estimates.

So where did all the water go?

For starters, a bath would have consumed 30 to 40 gallons while a shower would have taken 20 to 30 gallons. Every flush of the toilet consumes four to six gallons and it takes 20 to 30 gallons to do a load of laundry. Washing dishes takes eight to 10 gallons of water while a leaky faucet can waste 10 gallons an hour.

Running tap water for the garbage disposal or to get it hot or while shaving uses about two gallons of water per minute.

And then there's water for the lawn or garden — lots of water in some parts of the nation and in some months of the year.

Actually, the home use category is only a small part of the nation's overall water use. Overall use rose to 2,000 gallons per person this year, but was not growing as fast as in previous years, officials said.

The Survey assesses American water use every five years. The figures released Thursday showed average use of about 420 billion gallons of water a day, or 1,900 gallons per person, in 1975. This water was used for public supplies, commerce, industry, irrigation and rural water supplies. A regional breakdown of the water consumption report was not immediately available so the report did not assess the impact of the western drought on consumption there.

"The 420 billion gallons per day represents a 12 percent increase in off-channel water use since 1970 and about a 110 percent increase since we first started making estimates in 1950," said C. Richard Murray of the survey's national center in Reston, Va.

But, Murray added, "despite the doubling in water use in the last 25 years, the 1975 figures indicate a slowing down of the rate of increase."

Based on an annual increase of two percent, he estimated 1977 water use at 435 billion gallons per day, or 2,000 gallons per person.

Best estimates, according to Murray, are that daily water use will reach 450 billion gallons per day by 1980.

Overall, Murray said, "the nation as a whole has ample supplies of water. For example, average annual streamflow in the 48 adjacent states, a simplified measure of the total potential water supply, is about 1,200 billion gallons daily or nearly three times our present water use, and ground water supplies are even larger."

Some areas, however, already face serious regional water shortages because they are using more water each year than normally falls in the area.

About 16 percent of the water withdrawn in 31 eastern states was consumed or made unavailable for return by evaporation or other causes, Murray said.

"Consumption in the western states averaged 49 percent and ranged from 30 to 75 percent ... Consumption actually exceeded the estimated dependable streamflow in the Rio Grande and Lower Colorado regions and nearly equalled it in the California region," he said.

Murray noted that while water use around the country averaged 1,900 gallons per day in 1975, it varied greatly from state to state, ranging from 160 gallons in Rhode Island to 21,000 gallons in Idaho.

25 Die As Torrential Rains Overflow Rivers In Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Torrential rains swept down hills and overflowed rivers Thursday in Athens and its port city of Piraeus, leaving behind 25 dead and damage estimated at millions of dollars.

Water stood 3.3 feet deep in major highways into the city and hundreds of cars sat abandoned in the streets. Some archaeological monuments at the foot of the Acropolis had to be pumped out.

A fall of 2.7 inches of rain in a 15-hour period Wednesday night and early Thursday, described as "unprecedented" by local weathermen, clogged sewer systems with debris.

The rain knocked out the control tower equipment at Athens international airport for some time and caused innumerable electric and telephone line failures. Maintenance crews struggled throughout the day to restore some form of normalcy to the two cities, which looked as though they had been struck by a major hurricane.

While Athens and Piraeus lay partially paralyzed under floodwaters, an earthquake rumbled through northeastern Greece and neighboring Bulgaria early Thursday. Although no serious damage or injuries were reported in Greece, the quake created panic in the Thracian port city of Kavalla, where thousands of residents fled into the streets in their pajamas.

In Bulgaria the official news agency BTA said the quake damaged buildings and railway lines southeast of Sofia, the capital, but reported no casualties.

Among those killed in the Greek floods were a mother and her three children, trapped inside their car as water poured down a main street in one of Piraeus' low-lying districts. All of the deaths occurred in the port city. Some of the victims were drowned as they slept in basement apartments.

Premier Constantine Caramanlis held an emergency session with his top ministers to assess the damage and find ways to assist the victims as quickly as possible.

As the rain increased in intensity Wednesday night, thousands of persons threatened by the rising waters in Piraeus' working class districts sought emergency assistance. Firemen and police, supported by army units, rushed to the stricken areas to pump out flooded homes and take persons to safety.

A huge hill in Piraeus turned into mud, rolled onto a major highway and cut communications to nearby suburbs.

Residents of the Piraeus suburb of Moschatos close to Phaleron Bay gave harrowing accounts of being pulled by swift currents as they scurried to high ground.

The Kifissos and Ilisos rivers, normally shallow, slow-moving streams in the summer, turned into full raging rivers with waters rising 6½ feet and overflowing their banks.

Authorities reported most of the damage was caused by the torrential river waters. The two rivers run through parts of both cities.

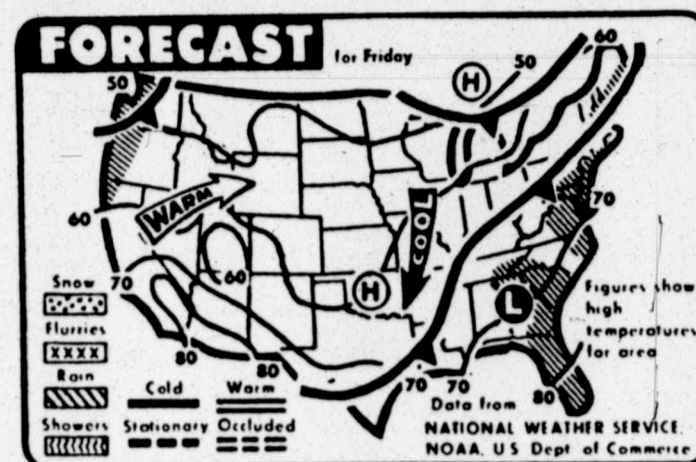

As the rains ended and waters receded after dawn, police discovered most of the dead in flooded basements.

Dry, Cool Days Seen

Crisp cool weather will continue to dominate the South Plains through Saturday as a high pressure system building southward across the area will keep the days sunny and dry.

No precipitation is forecast through Saturday with today's high to be slightly cooler than Thursday's.

The National Weather Service expects the mercury to nudge the middle 60s range today before plunging to the upper 30s tonight. Winds today should be variable at 5 to 10 mph.

The forecast for the 2 p.m. kickoff time Saturday for the Texas Tech-TCU football game in Jones Stadium calls for fans to bundle up in coats as they watch the Red Raiders in cool weather—probably the middle 60s.

Across the state Thursday, partly cloudy to cloudy skies continued over east Texas while sunshine was the rule in the west.

Some scattered light rain was reported in eastern portions of the state, otherwise temperature readings were generally in the 70s in the west and low 60s in the east.

Sadness, Resignation Mark Death Of Child

By PAT TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Sad resignation was the prevalent emotion in an East Lubbock neighborhood Thursday, where word had circulated that 6-year-old Johnny Turner's body had been found about 10 a.m. in a canyon in southeast Lubbock County.

The neighborhood where Johnny lived — hardly a pretty area — is a cluster of mostly vacant and vandalized apartments where most amenities are conspicuously absent, but the thing on most folks' minds Thursday was the discovery of the youngster — a happy, reticent first-grader who disappeared after the supper hour Oct. 26.

A cousin stood nearby on the Turner family's small porch, smoking a cigarette.

"They know," he said, referring to the child's family. "In a way they do."

That was before the family was driven to nearby South Plains Funeral Home where the child eventually was taken in an ambulance by AID attendants Robert Bailey and Stuart Johnson.

Ella Mae Cook, 34, of 1018 E. 29th St., said she heard the news that an eight-day search for Johnny had ended.

"I was sad," she recalled. "I have teenagers of my own."

Debra Hargrove, 16, a student at Dunbar High School, said she learned of the child's fate from her mother.

"I just didn't think it was really right for him to be taken," she said. "There's been quite a bit of talk (of the incident) all over and at school."

But most in the neighborhood were philosophical about what they considered theirs' and the Turner's loss.

It could have happened to anyone, they said.

At least two men expressed outrage, however, and said they would have sought to avenge their own child's death under similar circumstances.

Friends arrived at the Turner home much of the day, trickling in and out to offer condolences to the family.

A memorial fund for Johnny has been established at the Plains National Bank by concerned mothers in Christ the King Church.

The fund was established, Marie Responbek said, to help the family defray the expense of accommodating guests in the home, and to make up for financial losses incurred when work was missed by both parents, and to defray the cost of burial.

"It's a way for the people of Lubbock to pull together in something positive," she said.

Contributors are urged to take their donations to the bank and make them payable to the Johnny Turner Jr. Memorial Fund.

At the Lubbock Police Department Thursday, and at other local law enforcement agencies, the mood was of relief and sadness.

AN EDITORIAL:

Props 4 And 5 Deserve 'Yes'

AMONG CONSTITUTIONAL amendments to be decided by Texas voters Tuesday is one that would provide tax relief for cultural, historical and natural history preservation and another dealing with assessments by farm production and marketing associations.

The Avalanche-Journal recommends a "for" vote on both proposals.

Proposition 5 would validate a 1967 law authorizing the formation of producer associations and the collection of assessments from members on their sales of raw agricultural products.

This law was ruled unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court insofar as it required payment of the assessments.

IF PROPOSITION 5 is approved, the Legislature could establish a program supported by mandatory assessments but permitting a producer to demand and receive a refund if he were strongly opposed to paying his share.

This would eliminate lingering constitutional problems, supporters say, and clear up the question of the assessments being considered a tax.

AN EDITORIAL:

Take With A Bushel Of Salt

IF TAKEN AT face value, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's proposed moratorium on all nuclear explosions and a reduction in all atomic weapons would have to go down as one of the more momentous in recent years.

But taken in the context of Russian actions and past flip-flops on foreign policy, it has to be nibbled with a heavy dose of salt.

In a statement marking the Soviet Union's 60th anniversary, the Communist leader nevertheless left dangling an intriguing question, one with which other nuclear nations must contend.

INITIAL U.S. reaction—as expressed by Sec. of State Cyrus Vance—was that the test ban and the eventual reduction in atomic arsenals would indeed be a welcome one.

Neither went into specifics, and observers noted that both Brezhnev and Vance carefully avoided spelling out any possible details.

Also of import, the role other "Nuclear Club" members, e.g., France and China, will play in any such historic decision was not mentioned.

Without their cooperation, neither the U.S. nor the Soviet Union would dare reduce their atomic stockpiles very much.

WITHOUT MEANING to toss cold water on what could be a major step toward world peace for all of mankind, we must observe that Utopia is not yet upon us.

And if it is approaching, then in the next

Proponents believe these self-help programs, in which farmers assess themselves to promote their poultry, livestock or crop production, are superior to government-run programs.

Opponents object to the mandatory nature of the proposed assessments, saying a producer who doesn't want to participate should not have to go through the time-consuming refund process.

The Avalanche-Journal believes, however, that such assessments are a desirable and effective way to promote Texas-grown farm products and benefit every farmer and rancher.

PROPOSITION 4 on Tuesday's ballot would authorize the Legislature to provide for property tax relief to encourage the preservation of the state's heritage.

It could exempt culturally and historically significant properties from the state ad valorem tax and permit local governments to likewise exempt them at their discretion.

Although the law would need to be carefully drawn to prevent abuses, the goal of preserving these resources for the benefit and enjoyment of future generations is a worthy one justifying a vote for Proposition 4.

few months—and certainly in the immediate years ahead—there will be ample opportunity for the Soviets to demonstrate that they are indeed interested in seeking a formula for living with the rest of the world.

As long as Moscow continues to adhere to its philosophy that Communism eventually must replace all other forms of government, as long as Russian and Cuban soldiers invade such nations as Angola, and as long as much of Eastern Europe remains behind an Iron Curtain, then the real threat remains.

THIS IS NOT to belittle the idea of defusing the Nuclear Threat. Far from it.

While keeping the reservations in mind—and pressing that they be eliminated also—the U.S. should move carefully but definitely to see just how far Moscow will go in seeking a way to cut down on the danger of an Atomic Armageddon.

Surely Kremlin leaders are as aware as those in the Pentagon that there most likely would be no winner in an atomic war. At the moment we have "peace by atomic stalemate." So any concrete move the super powers make toward reducing the growing stockpile of arsenals to destroy man ten times over has to be a plus factor.

In that context, Mr. Brezhnev's proposal should receive serious consideration and a challenge to see just how far Moscow is prepared to go in seeking a better working arrangement. There is no such thing as an offer one can't refuse.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Dope Takes Back Seat When Panama's Aboard

WASHINGTON—Two new developments threaten to blow the lid off an already explosive debate on the Panama Canal.

First, there are some mounting allegations that Panamanian strong man Omar Torrijos—along with members of his immediate family—has been heavily involved in the narcotics traffic that has flourished in his country.

Recent disclosures suggest the files of the Drug Enforcement Administration are or used to be crammed with data on this subject.

Second, there is evidence that the Carter administration, fearful of the impact on the canal treaties, is engaged in a coverup of the charges about Torrijos and his family.

In particular, the administration has been reluctant to make known the contents of the DEA files concerning Panama, despite repeated requests from members of Congress.

SOME ASPECTS of the DEA files, however, have made their way to public view. Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas referred in floor debate to having in his possession 44 specific DEA file codes concerning drugs in Panama.

Included in these codes are such entries as "GF-Torrijos-Herrera, Moises," "GF-Torrijos-Herrera, Hugo ZC" and "Torrijos-Herrera, Omar."

Also included are file headings referring to other Panamanian nationals and a so-called "Deacon 1" file reportedly referring to involvement in the Panama drug traffic of Cuba's Fidel Castro.

ANOTHER DEA investigative report referred to a Panamanian national allegedly involved in the cocaine traffic. This report says:

"DEA advised that (the named individual) worked directly with and for Gen. Torrijos in Panama and that between the two of them they controlled the contraband traffic from the free zone of Colon, Panama."

This report contains several other statements linking Torrijos and individuals in the narcotics traffic.

On Oct. 14, Sen. Helms wrote Atty. Gen. Griffin

Bell concerning charges of this nature and urging him "to report to the American people on what steps DEA and the Department of Justice have taken to investigate these allegations." To date, there has been no such report.

INSTEAD, ACCORDING to Sen. Dole, steps have been taken to conceal the files in question, and concern is expressed on Capitol Hill that they may have been purged of incriminating evidence—though enough is known about them to detect this if and when they are turned over. In remarks on the Senate floor, Dole asserted:

"I am especially troubled to learn that an overt attempt was reportedly made to keep this information out of public purview by moving the intelligence files to another location for temporary safekeeping."

"I am advised that, just recently, perhaps to avoid embarrassment, these files were returned to the DEA's central office."

Dole called on the Carter administration to turn these files over to the appropriate Senate committees, but several weeks have passed with no such action being taken.

MOREOVER, THE Senate subcommittee on separation of powers has sought to subpoena records concerning intercepted phone conversations of Panamanian officials—now believed to bear on the question of drug traffic—and has met with a firm refusal from Atty. Gen. Bell.

In similar vein was the official State Department reaction under the previous administration when John Murphy, D-N.Y., revealed that Gen. Torrijos' brother, Moises, was wanted in New York for alleged involvement in a heroin-smuggling scheme.

Murphy's office says the State Department tried to get him to sit on the information to protect the treaty negotiations.

"Narcotics is way down on the list of State Department priorities," says a Murphy spokesman. "The treaty is foremost."

On The Comeback Trail

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Hard Times Ahead

JERUSALEM—Although resumption of the elusive Geneva conference is closer than ever before, the decision of Prime Minister Menachem Begin to exclude any semblance of the Palestine Liberation Organization is not subject to change whatever the Arabs and President Carter say.

That determination helps explain the bunker mood here that the U.S. and Israel may be on collision course.

ANDREW TULLY:

A Lesson Of Sport

WASHINGTON—This is the time of the American woman's annual purgatory on earth. First the regular-season games, then the playoffs, and then the presumptuous Super Bowl will keep some 50 million fans glued to the tube as the National Football League dawdles to the end of its violent whodunit.

Since nothing can be done about it, we all might make the best of this fascinating lunacy by approaching it as a sociological exercise. Don't go away. I'm not about to turn curbstone shrink.

But I suggest that all these games tell us something good about racial democracy. I have made no head count, but it would be impossible to dispute the assertion that a whopping number of the stars seen in this round-robin display of legalized thuggery wear black skin.

IT IS A HAPPY coincidence. None of those players made it with his team because he was black. All of them made it because they were, and are, outstanding football players.

There is no racial tokenism involved, no quota system. No black wears an NFL uniform because a civil rights law was invoked.

Unlike some of our leading politicians, the NFL's bosses didn't get together and decide they had to have some blacks on their teams. They turned a lot of young men loose on their practice fields and let the better players win.

The attitude was a simple and pragmatic one, best expressed by a specially luminous colleague, the late Vince Lombardi.

"I WANT TO WIN," Lombardi said when he was coaching Green Bay. "I don't give a (bleep) if everybody on the team is polka dot." Certain New Leftists might recall that Lombardi was of Italian origin the next time they accuse so-called "ethnics" of racism.

True, it has taken time. It was only a relatively recent year that Jackie Robinson became the first black player in major league baseball, and for a long time a black professional football player was a member of a conspicuous minority. But it has happened.

Today, when one thinks of baseball, one cannot overlook the Reggie Jacksons, the Hank Aarons, and the Jim Rices. Almost all the stars in pro basketball are descendants of African immigrants.

INDEED, IT SHOULD be argued that professional sports is the only field of endeavor in which there is absolutely no discrimination because of race. As the '76 Presidential campaign revealed, there is still a self-consciousness on the part of many whites.

On one side, the black was championed because he was black; on the other, he was often neglected for the same reason.

Sure there are some black and white cliques on sports teams. That's because athletes are just as human as WASPs who prefer the company of WASPs and Poles who socialize with Poles.

But a lot of blacks and whites are on-the-road roommates, which is more than you can say for the crowd at the Federal Reserve System or General Motors. Anyway, the question of palship off the field is irrelevant.

It has nothing to do with Sam Cunningham's capacity for averaging four yards per carry. Instead, I suggest that from the White House on down, the country's leaders would do well to learn from the experience of pro sports and opt for a strict merit system.

If, that is, they really want to win the biggest ball game.

Outside the handful of Communists in the 120-member Knesset, the exceptions are a few brave, unconventional politicians who feel that "discussing" the future of the West Bank with non-PLO "notables"—without the PLO present—is like a wedding with no bride, only bridesmaids.

"Discussing"—not negotiating—the West Bank was a limitation agreed to in the U.S.-Israeli working paper early last month.

ISRAEL IS READY for "negotiations" leading to final peace treaties with Egypt, Syria and Jordan—but as regards the West Bank, the operative word is "discuss."

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan put it explicitly to the Knesset: "We will discuss the issues of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip—not a peace treaty and not the establishment of a state."

"Jimmy Carter's notion of the Palestinian issue is one that we cannot stomach," one highly-informed official told us. Carter has long favored a homeland for the nearly 1.5 million Palestinian Arabs, but Israeli leaders feel they have not foiled that objective and blunted his flirtation with the PLO.

BUT IN ADDITION to Israel's determination to insulate Geneva from any taint of the PLO, Begin is pushing an Israeli formulation covering the future status of the West Bank that defies definition.

The government describes this future status as a "functional arrangement," including vague ties to Jordan but no Jordanian or any other sovereignty.

When this formulation is affixed to the ban on the highly politicized PLO, what emerges is a murky autonomy for the Palestinians, local administration under Jordanian law, possible seats in the Jordanian parliament, possible membership in the Jordanian cabinet, Israeli defense lines on the Jordan River and down the spine of the Samarian Hills.

IF THE PLO could be made to disappear, and if some similar (and probably unavoidable) substitute Palestinian nationalism could be magically ruled out by edict, the plan might conceivably work.

It might preserve a West Bank-Gaza Arab population as docile inhabitants in a greater Palestine dominated by Israel.

Jordan's inundation by the PLO led to a dangerous threat to Hussein's Hashemite monarchy in 1970 before his army expelled tens of thousands of Palestinians. Moreover, if the PLO virus could be killed, it might do a service for Egypt.

President Sadat is perceived by Begin as a peace-seeker and thus not hostile to measures designed to smother PLO activities.

SYRIA IS correctly viewed here as a larger problem. Syrian concern over the growing power of the PLO propelled President Assad's army into Lebanon to cut it down, thus denying Israel a pretext—or a reason for invading southern Lebanon.

But despite that, Syria for years has been a prime PLO sponsor. The Begin government seems so caught in the rectitude of its plan that even Syria is given a chance—"at one minute to midnight"—of going to Geneva with only slight concessions by Israel, if Egypt attends.

The Begin plan may be more substantial than it appears. It is designed to leave Israel with these assets: peace with Jordan, Egypt and possibly Syria; a consensus among moderate Arab states that the PLO, as a loose cannon, must be silenced; continued Israeli dominance of greater Palestine.

But while not ceasing to hope, realists here fear deeply—and for good reason—that the plan probably won't wash in Assad's Syria, Sadat's Egypt and even Hussein's Jordan.

If not, it won't wash in Carter's Washington, which explains the bunker mood. With Begin's bag of considerable concessions just about empty, that would mean very hard times ahead for Jerusalem and Washington.

The Squire of Brookville says his wife has a compartment in her purse which she calls "the Bermuda Triangle" because things drop into it and are never seen again.

JAY HARRIS:

The ERA Caper...

THOUGHT FOR Today: Sometimes the message has to be blunt for some to get the point.

OVERHEARD: Faith is what enables us to enjoy our religion, our democratic form of government and hot dogs.

THAT REMARK by President Carter about Texas being "bought" along with Alaska proved two things as far as most people in the state are concerned.

One, Mr. Carter still is shooting from the cuff when he ought to be doing his homework. Two, he needs to read up on Texas history.

There apparently isn't much that can be done about the first problem. But, W. L. Thompson, president of an Austin-publishing firm, is doing something about the latter.

Mr. Thompson, who heads up Shoal Creek Publishers, Inc., says he is sending the President a copy of the recently published book, "The Bugles Are Silent," a novel of the Texas Revolution by John Knaggs.

TAKING EXCEPTION to Mr. Carter's remark that Texas was "bought and paid for" by the United States, the Austin man enclosed a letter with the book.

"Texas, Mr. President, was 'bought' with the lives of gallant men at Gonzales, the Alamo, Goliad and San Jacinto," Thompson wrote.

"It was 'paid' for by the anguish of the Texian families forced to flee their homes in advance of an invading army."

Thompson quoted from the inscription on the San Jacinto monument near Houston that says the battle was one of the most decisive of the world: "The Freedom of Texas from Mexico won here led to annexation and to the Mexican War, resulting in the acquisition by the United States of the states of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, California, Utah and parts of Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas and Oklahoma."

It's a great heritage. And not one to be sold out now, by Mr. Carter or anyone else, not in Texas, the Panama Canal zone or Washington...

SLIDE ROAD Sam Says: If the Good Lord had meant for us to pay income taxes he would have made us smart enough to prepare the returns.

THE GENERATION gap isn't hard to pinpoint. It starts at the age when a person believes it's possible to have music without a guitar.

TODAY AND Saturday are special days on the campus at Texas Tech, and for hundreds who will be back for Homecoming.

Texas Tech University, and its Exes and Old Grads, as well as the new ones, have every right to be most proud of the institution's and their own accomplishments.

It has been only slightly over a half century since the fledgling college opened its doors to what then was a record first-year attendance. The place has been setting records ever since.

Much money, tireless time and devotion far beyond the call of duty have gone into the Dream that is now a Reality.

It's all been worth it. All of Texas, indeed the nation and part of the world, can be proud of the contribution to a better way of life, and wholesome men and women who have studied here.

IN VIEW of the grain surplus, what this country really needs is a car which eats oats.

A COLLEGE freshman said, "We modern students can tell exactly what a person is thinking." "In that case," said the prof, "I humbly beg your pardon."

SPEAKING OF Mickey Mouse confusion in Washington, and who isn't, the latest goings-on regarding the Equal Rights Amendment has to take the cake.

Faced with almost certain failure of the controversial ERA proposal to gain the needed 38 states by the March 22, 1979 deadline, proponents, including the White House, have come up with a new gimmick.

It is Just extend the deadline another seven years from the original seven allotted for that purpose.

Congress has such authority, Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. John Harmon told a House Judiciary subcommittee studying such legislation this week. He said Congress could change the deadline by a simple majority vote because the limit was not in the proposed amendment, only in the resolution sending the amendment to the states.

AND TAKING the charade one step further, the assistant attorney general says that states who wish to withdraw ratification by their state legislatures cannot do so.

States can only ratify amendments and cannot change their minds once the action is taken.

The whole bit is just one more example of how far the ERA proponents, aided and abetted by President Carter and his wife, will go to get the measure into law.

It also should serve as a warning to all who care about how their nation is run and what is happening to their freedom. All who do should join in a mighty protest against such shenanigans, literally flooding Congress and the White House with letters and phone calls condemning such undemocratic behavior.

Many in Congress, fortunately, see the latest move as one which could backfire against ERA. We see it as something more serious—an attempt to thwart the will of the majority and change the rules in the middle of the game. Sadly, it is no game...

Abortion Compromise Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House rejected on Thursday a Senate-proposed compromise on guidelines governing when the government should pay for poor women's abortions.

Instead, the members adopted a temporary funding resolution which would insure that the 3½-month-old abortion dispute would not affect the paychecks of thousands of federal employees.

The resolution, which also would continue appropriations for the District of Columbia government, passed on a voice vote. It expires on Nov. 30.

The House scuttled plans for adjourning Thursday night for a three-week recess. The members were to remain for a Friday session in case the Senate failed to go along with the resolution.

The Senate had adjourned for the day before it could take up the funding resolution.

The abortion disagreement has delayed passage of a $60.2 billion appropriations bill providing funds for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare along with some smaller, related agencies.

The agencies technically are operating without funds because the stopgap measure Congress passed to provide funds has expired.

The proposal rejected by the House was developed by the Senate after conferees from both sides failed to agree on what kind of abortion policy to recommend to Congress.

In an unusual move, the senators used two separate roll call votes to come up with a proposal they thought the House would accept. The second time, only one word was changed.

The House rejected it 193 to 172.

Doctors Find New Way To Diagnose MS

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors say they have found a way to determine before birth whether a baby will be crippled by a usually fatal, inherited form of muscular dystrophy.

The researchers said that with the results of their test, mothers may decide to have abortions rather than bear children afflicted with the illness.

Doctors say their method, a kind of prenatal blood test, can identify Duchenne's muscular dystrophy. This is a form of the disease that strikes only boys, but it is passed on to them by their mothers, who do not suffer its symptoms.

An account of the research, performed at Yale Medical School and other colleges, was published in Thursday's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Health officials say 600-700 babies are born each year with Duchenne's muscular dystrophy. This accounts for 20-50 percent of all cases of muscular dystrophy.

Children born with Duchenne's disease usually die in their late teens or early 20s.

The doctors found that blood from fetuses that will develop muscular dystrophy contains unusually high levels of an enzyme called creatine phosphokinase.

Using a fine, lighted tube, doctors can draw a tiny amount of blood from the placenta that connects the fetus with its mother. Then they examine the blood to find the level of the telltale enzyme.

In recent years, women who are suspected carriers of Duchenne's muscular dystrophy have undergone amniocentesis, a sampling of the amniotic fluid which tells doctors the sex of the fetus.

Often, doctors say, the women will abort all male fetuses rather than risk having a diseased child. However, only about half of the male babies of these women actually have muscular dystrophy.

"What many families have elected to do is either have no children or have only girls," Maurice J. Mahoney, a Yale physician who worked on the research, said in an interview.

"There has been a lot of desire to differentiate the male fetus with the disease from the male fetus who would be normal and to give the family the option of selectively aborting only the fetuses that have the disease," he said.

Mahoney said similar prenatal blood tests have been used to identify children with sickle-cell anemia and thalassemia, a disorder of the blood hemoglobin.

Wholesale Price Index Hikes Signal Higher Grocery Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose 0.8 percent in October as farm prices turned upward for the first time in six months, signaling higher grocery prices this winter.

The increase was the biggest since a 1.1 percent rise in wholesale prices last April, just before farm prices began a dramatic decline.

Farm prices had plunged nearly 13 percent in May through September, and this helped slow the rise in prices at the grocery store.

But in October, wholesale farm prices jumped 2.4 percent. This, coupled with higher costs for new 1978 model cars and trucks, pushed overall wholesale prices up 0.8 percent.

Wholesale prices generally foreshadow prices consumers pay, but there are time lags and the relationship isn't always precise because of costs added by middlemen and processors.

While retail food prices are likely to rise at a faster pace this winter than during the fall and summer months, government economists and White House officials said there is no evidence of a dramatic surge ahead.

"I think we'll still see some moderation in grocery prices because of the sharp wholesale price declines during the summer that have yet to be fully reflected at retail," said Maynard Comrie, a top Commerce Department economist.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the administration was "disappointed the months of decline did not continue. However, we do not believe this indicates any acceleration in the basic inflation rate."

He said that despite the increase in food products, "we do not expect to see any immediate reflection" in terms of higher retail food prices.

But Republican party Chairman Bill Brock was less optimistic and issued a statement calling the October price report "devastating news for working Americans and senior citizens."

Citing the inflation figures and an unemployment rate remaining at near 7 percent, Brock said "it is becoming increasingly evident to the American people that the Carter administration is incapable of managing the economy in an effective manner."

The administration has predicted an inflation rate of about 5 percent during the second half of the year after rates approaching 10 percent at the start of the year.

Retail grocery prices are expected to be in the 4-to-4½ percent range in the next year or so. These prices have risen less than 1 percent in the past three months after rapid increases last winter.

Despite the October farm price rise, the Agriculture Department is counting on this summer's bountiful grain crop — the biggest since the early 1960s — to help moderate food prices this winter.

With large supplies of corn and other animal feed available at relatively low prices, officials say farmers have an incentive to produce more grain-fed pork, beef and poultry.

In October, wholesalers got higher prices for livestock, grain, fresh fruits and vegetables, grain and oilseeds. Prices declined for eggs, green coffee, cocoa beans, tea and milk.

Processed food prices were up 0.8 percent after declining four consecutive months.

A 2 percent rise in transportation prices, reflecting the 1978 model car and truck prices, pushed the costs of industrial commodities up 0.6 percent last month — a somewhat smaller increase than in September.

Lumber, machinery and other products all increased in addition to car prices.

Finished goods, which soon show up on retail shelves, increased 0.8 percent in October following an 0.4 percent rise in September and three months of little change.

In October, the wholesale price index stood at 196.3, meaning that goods selling for $100 in 1967 now cost $196.30. Over the past year, wholesale prices have risen 5.9 percent.

First Ladies Of Mexico, U.S. Meet

JUAREZ (AP) — The first ladies of the United States and Mexico met Thursday to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the return to Mexico of a controversial chunk of land.

Rosalynn Carter and Carmen Romano de Lopez Portillo spoke at the Chamizal monument here at the start of a series of day-long events dedicated to strengthening the ties between the two bordering nations.

El Chamizal, a 630-acre tract between Juarez and El Paso, became an issue after the Rio Grande shifted course in 1864, placing the area on the Texas side of the border. It remained an issue for nearly a century, becoming a point of friction and trouble between the United States and Mexico.

But in 1963 the United States agreed to give up the land and to build a permanent channel for the river to avoid similar problems in the future.

Mexico turned the area into a park, planting a forest and setting up picnic areas.

Mrs. Carter said the Treaty of Chamizal "represents the settlement of a dispute with intelligence, good will and friendship," and added, "we are here also to continue that tradition of consultation, discussion and the exchange of ideas and information that benefits our two countries."

Mrs. Lopez Portillo called Mexico a country that "respects the sovereignty of nations and gives full support to respect for human rights," and praised Mrs. Carter as a "good and kind person with simple ways."

Guests at the monument, a series of marble blocks and slabs with pools and fountains, included U.S. ambassador to Mexico Patrick J. Lucey, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, Gov. Jerry Apodaca of New Mexico and Terrence A. Todman, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

Several thousand people, mostly children carrying pictures of the two first ladies and waving Mexican and U.S. flags, gathered at the monument.

Mrs. Lopez Portillo briefed Mrs. Carter on her cultural, educational and economic development plan for the border region.

Rufner Ends Testimony; Denies Part In Killings

AMARILLO (AP) — Defense witness W.T. Rufner denied Thursday that he was the gunman who shot four persons in 1966 at the Fort Worth mansion of millionaire Cullen Davis, but said he heard he would be "the fall guy" in the case.

He told the jury in Davis' capital murder trial he encouraged his girlfriend Carme Green to provide him an alibi that night because he considered his life in danger.

The stormy witness wound up two days of bizarre testimony after contending there had been an attempt on his life in January 1977 and that word from the "street" was that he was "the fall guy" in the mansion shootings.

Davis is on trial for his life in the shooting death of his stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn, 12, one of two killed in a midnight assault at the mansion.

Davis' estranged wife Priscilla, 36, was wounded, her lover Stan Farr, 30, was killed and Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, was crippled in the gunfire.

"Were you afraid you were going to wake up dead with a certain pistol in your pocket?" prosecutor Joe Shannon asked.

"Yes sir," Rufner replied.

"Had you heard there was money out on the street for people who would assist in making you the patsy in this case?"

"Yes sir."

"Had you heard this once or more than once?"

"More than once."

"Had you heard that police had not located a murder weapon?"

"I had."

"Had you heard that police had not located a wig?"

"I had."

"Did you hear the plan of the defense is to lay this whole thing on a dead man?"

"I did."

"Did you hear it would be easier for the defense if both you and Carme were eliminated?"

"Yes sir."

"Did you hear that dead men tell no tales?"

"I know that for a fact."

"Did you kill Stan Farr?"

"No sir."

"Did you kill a 12-year-old girl named Andrea Wilborn?"

"No sir."

"Did you shoot Gus Gavrel?"

"No."

"Did you shoot Priscilla Davis?"

"No."

The bearded Rufner, an ex-boyfriend of Davis' estranged wife, did admit that he and Mrs. Davis became lovers four months prior to the Davis' separation in July 1974.

And while that relationship was less than idyllic, Rufner said he did not at any time threaten to kill Mrs. Davis and Farr, who succeeded him as her lover.

"That's a lie. I never said that to no one," he testified outside the presence of the jury.

Both in and out of the presence of the jury, Rufner admitted he talked with Mrs. Davis since her testimony here about the picture in which he appears nude except for a striped stocking covering his genitals.

As Mrs. Davis had testified previously, Rufner said he couldn't recall when and where the picture was taken.

Rufner invoked his right against self-incrimination 11 times Thursday during questioning about guns, drugs and a knife incident, two using his Fifth Amendment privileges in the jury's presence.

He also sought to use that privilege in refusing to answer to the question of whether he had seen Mrs. Davis since she returned to Fort Worth after ending her testimony in September.

Defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes pointed out that the Fifth Amendment did not protect him from responding to that question.

It was an incredible session, spiced with humorous and heated exchanges between the boisterous witness, the attorneys and the judge in the longest murder trial in Texas history. But mostly it was a duel between Rufner and Haynes.

Mrs. Davis, Gavrel and another survivor, Gavrel's girlfriend Beverly Bass, 19, who escaped unharmed, have testified that Davis was the "man in black" who triggered the shooting spree.

Rufner admitted encouraging his girlfriend on several occasions to sign a statement swearing he was with her at home on Aug. 2, 1976, the night of the shootings.

Haynes asked if during the time he was living with Mrs. Davis at the mansion, she ever tossed him a "plastic bag with a white powdery substance in it."

State District Judge George Dowlen sent the jury out before Rufner answered and it was then that Haynes quizzed the witness about the use of drugs at the mansion.

Rufner said his attorney had advised him not to respond to questions concerning certain things that occurred after his March 1974 arrest on a drug charge. He is now on probation.

The witness first invoked the Fifth Amendment when Haynes asked: "Did you ever see any narcotics—cocaine, or heroin, Amyl Nitrate, anything we might call a narcotic, an illegal drug — on the premises at 4200 Mockingbird?"

Haynes also mentioned several persons whose names have been linked to the case, asking if they ever possessed a narcotic substance in his presence.

"I'll take the Fifth," he replied repeatedly.

Among those mentioned by Haynes was Miss Bass.

In the presence of the jury, Haynes asked Rufner about a knife he carried.

"Did you once use that knife to cut off the clothing of Priscilla Lee Davis?"

Rufner again took the Fifth Amendment.

Later, Haynes asked: "When you were living at 4200 Mockingbird, did you keep a weapon there at the residence?"

"May I take the Fifth on that, your honor?" Rufner asked.

"In the several months after the events of Aug. 2, have you told anyone an assault had been made against your life?"

Haynes asked at one point.

Rufner said he believed a car accident in January 1975 "was not an accident."

Mistrial Declared In Case

A mistrial was declared by Dist. Judge Deniz Bevers after jurors were unable to reach a unanimous decision in the theft trial of 25-year-old Rudy Hernandez.

Hernandez had been accused of participating in the alleged swindle of an elderly Idalou woman Nov. 6, 1976.

The majority of jurors hearing the case in Bevers' 72nd District Court reportedly favored acquittal for the defendant, who took the witness stand to say he was ignorant of any theft scheme.

Testimony indicated that a co-defendant — one who already has pleaded guilty in connection with the case — went to the elderly woman's home and represented himself as an insurance agent for the company with which the woman did business.

The woman testified that she gave the man a $636 check, but became suspicious when the man — who, she said, wrote the check out for her — did not put the name of the insurance company as recipient. The man told her he would stamp the name back at the office, she indicated.

The witness said that, after conferring with relatives, she called her bank to stop payment on the check.

According to evidence presented by Asst. Dist. Atty. Sam Oatman, Hernandez later tried to open a business account with the check at a local bank. The prosecution relied on circumstantial evidence to attempt to convince the jury Hernandez must have had knowledge of how the check was obtained.

Responding to questioning from defense lawyer Byron Chappell, Hernandez said he had presented the check at the local bank in good faith.

He said he had known the co-defendant for a number of years and that the other man had promised him funds to start a business.

Hernandez said he went to the local bank with the other man, but indicated that, at the last minute, his companion asked him to take care of the check.

Senate Support Indicated For Payroll Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate indicated support for a proposal to make employers pay a larger share of Social Security taxes Thursday by killing a plan to keep splitting payroll taxes equally between workers and employers and rejecting an attempt to delay the bill.

Although the votes indicated support for the Finance Committee's plan to increase employers' share of payroll taxes, the Senate has yet to consider several amendments to that plan.

The delaying attempt was killed 54-to-36 even though several senators had pleaded to put the multibillion-dollar bill aside until members have a chance to understand it better. The measure came out of the Finance Committee only Wednesday, the day debate was started.

"I don't know what the hell — what the heck — the bill does," shouted Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del.

Others hinted they had no desire to vote now on the huge payroll-tax increase, since the energy bill now being worked on by a conference committee is likely to include around $40 billion in new energy taxes. That would mean two votes within a period of weeks on two of the largest peacetime tax increases in history.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the committee that wrote the bill, said the closer the 1978 elections come, the more difficult it is going to be to get Congress to vote for the tax increases needed to shore up Social Security.

"If anybody here can tell us there's going to be an increase in political courage" among members of Congress within the next three months, then that might be reason to delay a vote, Long said.

The vote not to delay action came after the Senate voted 49-to-41 to reject a Republican proposal that would have retained equal shares. The Republican plan also would have meant lower-income workers would have to pay proportionately more of their wages in payroll taxes than would others higher up the income scale.

One of the hottest questions surrounding the fight over Social Security is whether the traditional 50-50 split of the tax between employers and employees should be retained. The Finance Committee bill would, for the first time, require employers to pay a larger share.

There is general agreement among government officials that unless Social Security gets a new infusion of money, one of its funds will be out of cash in 1979 and the other by 1983.

The tax increases would become effective on Jan. 1, 1979.

The Social Security bill prepared by the Finance Committee would raise taxes on employers and employees by a total of $72.2 billion between 1979 and 1983.

Under the Finance Committee bill, the maximum tax on a worker would rise to $2,390 by 1987. But if an employer had any workers earning $75,000 a year or more, he would pay $5,250 tax for each of those employees in 1987.

The GOP plan rejected by the Senate would have resulted in a maximum tax of $2,288 for worker and employer in 1987.

The maximum annual Social Security tax on any worker now is $965. The employer pays an equal share.

Guy Lombardo Still Critical But Stable

HOUSTON (UPI) — Band leader Guy Lombardo Thursday was in critical but stable condition with a lung, heart and kidney problems that have complicated his recovery from major arterial surgery five weeks ago.

"He appears to have a pulmonary problem associated with some kidney and heart failure," said a spokesman for noted heart surgeon Dr. Michael E. DeBakey. "The pulmonary (lung) condition is not related to the surgery."

Lombardo, 75, a 40-year New Year's Eve tradition for millions, had a weakened and ballooned section of a major blood vessel removed by DeBakey Sept. 23.

The operation to reconstruct a section of the blood vessel near his heart was declared a success and he was released from Methodist Hospital in "excellent" condition Oct. 18. But he was readmitted Oct. 27.

A New York spokesman for Lombardo said his wife of 41 years, Lillibell, was in Houston and his brother, Joseph, an interior decorator unassociated with the Royal Canadians orchestra, had visited earlier in the week.

"I think (the staff's) feelings are that we're hoping he'll come out of it," the spokesman said.

"We only know what we read in the papers and we're just (glad) he's alive, he's in good hands and we're certainly hoping that he'll come out as do millions of his fans and friends."

The orchestra continues to work, with Lombardo's brother Lebert and brother-in-law Kenny Gardner, traveling with them. Another brother, Victor, is recuperating from major surgery in Florida.

DeBakey operated on Lombardo for arterial problems once before, in 1968.

Lombardo, a Canadian by birth, came to the United States in 1923 and began a long and profitable association with radio the next year.

His Royal Canadians' distinctive smooth, danceable music has survived swing, jazz and rock 'n' roll with little change.

Chicago critic Ashton Stevens gave him his theme, "the sweetest music this side of heaven." He has had hundreds of recordings and 300 hit songs.

He also has been a speedboat hobbyist and an astute businessman who owns two music publishing companies and a restaurant in Freeport on Long Island, N.Y., which is his home.

Miss Lillian Sheds Slip For Charity

ATLANTA (UPI) — "Don't breathe a word about that," said Miss Lillian Carter after shedding her slip, autographing it and giving it to college fraternity men to auction in an anti-leukemia drive.

President Carter's mother, while off camera, told television host Phil Donahue not to say anything about her "gift" while in Atlanta for a taping of his syndicated show Thursday. But the word got out.

Fraternities at the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech asked Mrs. Carter Wednesday for "something personal" to auction off during their fund raising drive.

She asked a member of Donahue's staff to fetch a pair of scissors and then snipped the straps of her slip. It dropped to the floor. Mrs. Carter autographed the garment and handed it to the smiling fraternity brothers.

POLISH PARTITIONS

For 118 years, between 1795 and 1918, Poland did not exist. The last of three partitions among Russia, Prussia and Austria, in 1795, erased the nation of Poland from the map of Europe and not until after World War I did it reappear.

House Defeats Social Security Standby Bill

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes October 20-26.

HOUSE
SOCIAL SECURITY Rejected, 196 for and 221 against, an amendment to prevent "standby authority" under which general Treasury money could be used to pay Social Security benefits. Defeat of the amendment left intact proposed authority for the Social Security fund to borrow from the Treasury if its reserves fall perilously low. The amendment was proposed to HR 9346, a bill increasing Social Security taxes on employees and employers and making several other changes in the pension program. It was headed for final passage and consideration by the Senate.

Rep. Jake Pickle (D-Tex.), sponsor of the amendment, said: "I feel the worst thing that the House could do to erode public confidence is to pump funds from the general Treasury into the system."

Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore.) an opponent, said Americans will be heartened that Congress is "saying we will backup that Social Security trust fund to the full extent of the American Treasury....This is the signal they are looking for."

Members voting "nay" favored putting the U.S. Treasury behind the Social Security fund.

Reps. Samuel Hall (D-1), Charles Wilson (D-2), James Collins (R-3), Ray Roberts (D-4), Bill Archer (R-7), Jake Pickle (D-10), W.R. Poage (D-11), Jack Hightower (D-13), John Young (D-14), Kika de la Garza (D-15), Richard White (D-16), Omar Bursleson (D-17), George Mahon (D-19), Henry Gonzalez (D-20), Bob Gammage (D-22), Abraham Kazen (D-23), Manuel Lujan (R-1), Harold Runnels (D-2), and Dale Milford (D-24) voted "yea."

Reps. Jim Mattox (D-5), Bob Eckhardt (D-8), Jack Brooks (D-9), Barbara Jordan (D-18) and Robert Krueger (D-21) voted "nay."

Reps. Olin Teague (D-6) and James Wright (D-12) did not vote.

SOCIAL SECURITY Adopted, 386 for and 38 against, an amendment to prevent compulsory Social Security coverage for federal, state, and local government employees and employees of non-profit organizations. The amendment, attached to the bill making changes in the Social Security system (see above vote) set a two-year study of how to bring about universal Social Security coverage.

It eliminated a proposal that universal coverage begin in 1982, in order to bolster the Social Security trust fund. Government and non-profit workers covered by pension plans other than Social Security were to have their equity safeguarded in the integration procedure.

Rep. Joseph Fisher (D-Va.), sponsor of the amendment, said: "Security in old age is one of the most important issues in anyone's life. I do not believe that Congress has never levied a tax like that...even during the war."

Members voting "nay" favored universal Social Security coverage beginning in 1982.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Mattox, Archer, Eckhardt, Brooks, Wright, Hightower, Young, de la Garza, White, Bursleson, Jordan, Mahon, Gonzalez, Krueger, Gammage, Lujan, Runnels, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Pickle and Poage voted "nay."

Teague did not vote.

BUSING Adopted, 230 for and 186 against, a resolution instructing House conferees to insist on anti-busing language when they meet with Senate conferees on the Legal Services Corporation Act (HR 6666). Both chambers have passed the bill extending the life of the agency, but disagree over whether Legal Services attorneys can participate in school desegregation cases. The Senate says participation should be allowed and the House is opposed to it. This vote reaffirmed the House's opposition.

Rep. Samuel Devine (R-Ohio), a supporter, said the Congress "should not go forth in the area (busing to achieve integration) that seems to be contrary to the wishes of the overwhelming majority of the American people."

Rep. Robert Kastenmeier (D-Wisc.), an opponent, said the resolution was unnecessary from a parliamentary standpoint because the House position was already clear. "This is a waste of time, except for the rhetoric that may be devoted to the question," he said.

Members voting "yea" favored reaffirming the House position.

Hall, Wilson, Collins, Roberts, Lujan, Runnels, Pickle, Poage, Wright, Hightower, Young, White, Bursleson, Mahon, Gammage, Kazen and Milford voted "yea."

Mattox, Eckhardt, Brooks, de la Garza, Jordan, Gonzalez and Krueger voted "nay."

SENATE

OPIC Passed, 68 for and 12 against, a bill (S 1771) extending the life of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) until Sept. 30, 1981. OPIC insures certain foreign investments by U.S. companies, guarantees loans by U.S. banks to developing countries, and provides direct loans to developing countries. Although a wholly-owned U.S. government corporation, it requires no appropriations out of the Treasury because it turns a profit. S 1771 was sent to the House.

Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.), a supporter, said OPIC has proved its worth by "encouraging the kind of productivity and productive business which is good for the American economy and the economies of the developing countries."

Sen. Clifford Case (R-N.J.), an opponent, criticized OPIC on grounds that it harms the U.S. economy by "granting special incentives" to U.S. companies to shift operations abroad, and also because the development OPIC fosters does little to make poor countries self-sufficient and less dependent on imports.

Senators voting "yea" favored continuation of OPIC.

Lujan, Runnels, Bentsen, and Tower voted "yea."

PANAMA VOTE Tabled, 69 for and 13 against, an amendment indirectly related to the Panama Canal treaties issue. The amendment was proposed to S 1771, the bill extending the life of the Overseas Private Investment Corp. (OPIC) until September 1981 (see above vote). It was directed at an understanding between U.S. and Panamanian negotiators that OPIC would loan $20 million is part of about $300 million which Panama would receive through international lending agencies; although treaty negotiators agreed on that financing, it is not written into the treaties the Senate eventually will debate.

Sen. Clifford Case (R-N.J.), a supporter of tabling, said the amendment "dangerously and wrongly...impinges upon the treaty-making power of the U.S. and enters through the side door into an area that should be handled very scrupulously...."

Sen. James Allen (S-Ala.), an opponent of tabling and sponsor of the amendment, said "this is the first opportunity that we have had to have some sort of congressional say in the side financial agreements of our negotiators on the Panama Canal."

Senators voting "yea" favored killing the amendment.

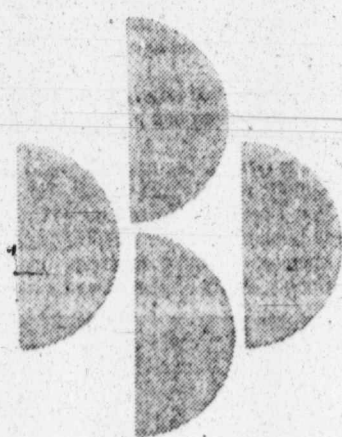

Bentsen, Tower, and Domenici voted "nay."

Schmitt voted "yea."

ABSENTEEISM Directed, 77 for and four against, the Sergeant at Arms "to request the attendance of absent senators." Due to conflicting business elsewhere on Capitol Hill, only 11 senators were able to answer a quorum call. That prompted Majority Leader Robert Byrd (D-W. Va.) to call this vote, the effect of which was to populate the chamber and expedite action on an energy bill. There was no debate.

Bentsen, Tower, Schmitt and Domenici voted "yea."

Police Probe Collision Of Van Into LCC Wall

Police Thursday were investigating an afternoon collision between a vehicle and a wall at Lubbock Christian College at 5601 19th St.

Malcolm Henderson told police someone deliberately drove a 1969 Chevrolet van into the west wall at a motor pool building, causing an estimated $300 damage to the van and about $1,000 to the wall.

Meanwhile, Warren Newsom of Slaton said someone broke into an office safe at 3423-B 50th St. Wednesday or Thursday.

After entering a locked room, burglars reportedly broke into the corner safe, grabbing $376 in cash and checks before exiting.

D. C. Fair Jr. of the Lubbock Housing Authority said someone broke into that agency's office at 512 N. Zenith Ave. Wednesday night, then swiped a $60 AM/FM radio. The loss was compounded, Fair said, by the $50 in damage caused when a window was broken.

Two Lubbock men — Ronald Hunt of 2721 60th St. and James Calvin Price of 6709-A Hartford Ave. — reported stolen bicycles Thursday.

Each man told police his stolen bicycle was worth about $125.

A 20-year-old Lubbock State School student was in serious condition in Methodist Hospital today after school officials belatedly told police he was injured by a roommate last week.

According to reports, Friday's incident apparently stemmed from a disagreement over some books which a fellow student wanted to buy from the victim. The suspect reportedly hit the young man in the head with his fist, knocking him to the floor and causing him to lose consciousness.

Wednesday's report indicated the injured student was taken to the school infirmary, and transferred to Methodist Hospital Saturday.

In other reported activity, the recent cold-weather snap possibly has discouraged many would-be burglars and thieves, as theft reports declined during the past 24 hours.

Maggie Flores of 1010 E. 29th St., No. 80, told officers someone broke through her rear window Tuesday and made off with a television, two tape decks and two 22-caliber rifles.

A rear door reportedly provided entry for whoever stole Mary D. Herrera's radio and destroyed a large amount of clothing at her 2422 Auburn St. house Wednesday.

According to George Marcy of 1718 E. 1st St., two watches and an undetermined amount of change was the take for a burglar at his home Wednesday. Access to the residence apparently was through a rear window.

A 27-year-old Dickens man received a six-year penitentiary sentence Thursday after pleading guilty to theft.

Pleading guilty in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th Dist. Court was Walter Sherill Morris.

Morris admitted in stipulated testimony that he had stolen a pickup truck in Lubbock April 22. According to the defendant, he drove the vehicle to Dickens and Spur before running out of gas and leaving it near Lubbock.

The vehicle was stolen from David Hunt, who had left it parked near a business at 5201 Ave. Q.

Change In Military Code Of Conduct Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter Thursday opened the way for future U.S. war prisoners to give their captors more than name, rank, service number and birth date if they are tortured.

The White House said Carter had ordered the first change in the military code of conduct in more than 20 years "to reduce guilt feelings in prisoners who are coerced into giving more than name, rank, service number and date of birth."

Carter acted on the recommendation of a special civilian-military committee which reviewed the military code in the light of the experience of Americans held prisoner by the Communist Vietnamese.

Many POWs acknowledged, after they were freed in 1973, that they had provided more than the traditional basic information after they were tortured and otherwise coerced.

Some POWs, however, refused to go beyond the narrow limits of the code and there was considerable bad feeling directed at those who had provided the North Vietnamese with extra information.

The changes in the code come down to only two words.

The 1955 code, in effect until now, said that a U.S. war prisoner is "bound to give only name, rank, service number and date of birth."

The changes approved by Carter replace the word "bound" with "required," something the Pentagon committee recommended because it believed the word bound is out of date and not easily understood by many servicemen.

The key change came in the deletion of the word "only" from the sentence. Under Carter's order, the code now reads,

Parole Likely For Many In Mexican Jails

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department expects that 50 or 60 of the 585 Americans now in Mexican jails will be free as soon as they are returned to the United States next month, an official said Thursday.

Others will be held for a short period and probably be granted parole in January, said Michael Abbell, who is directing the exchange program.

The exchange will occur under a treaty and enabling legislation that President Carter signed last week allowing the United States to exchange prisoners with Mexico and Canada.

Abbell said the officials who will process the prisoners will meet in San Antonio next Tuesday to go over their plans. They will go to Mexico Nov. 11-14 to inform the prisoners of their rights and duties if they seek repatriation.

Abbell said the Justice Department expects to charter four airplanes to take the Americans out of Mexico around Dec. 9. Initially, they will be taken to a prison near the border, but federal prison officials won't disclose the name of the prison until the prisoners have arrived.

Abbell said initial interviews with the 585 Americans held in Mexico indicate that about 240 of them will probably return next month.

One group of 188 has not yet been tried and the treaties stipulate that prisoners cannot be exchanged until they complete their trial and appeals. Another group of 50 to 80 apparently still have active appeals, Abbell said.

Of the rest, Abbell said that 31 were convicted of immigration law violations and one of a political crime. Those categories are not covered by the treaty. Another dozen are Mexican residents although they retain U.S. citizenship, he said. And, there are about 60 who for various reasons prefer to stay in Mexico, Abbell said.

Abbell said 240 are expected to return. About 50 or 60 of that group have accumulated enough time off for good behavior to make them immediately eligible for release, he said. They should be out within a few days of their return.

The rest will begin parole hearings shortly after they return. Abbell said he expected "a goodly number" to win quick paroles, probably in January. The rest, he said, may have to serve more of their sentences before they are paroled.

In Mexico, there is neither parole nor time off for good behavior for drug offenses, of which many of the Americans have been convicted. The treaty allows parole and time off when they return to their native country.

Abbell said federal privacy laws prohibit releasing the names of those being held in Mexico.

University Mixer Slated At Tech

The Texas Tech Student Foundation will sponsor an all-university mixer, "A Warm-up for the Slopes," at Coldwater Country, South University and Loop 289 from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., Friday.

The program will feature modeling of ski fashions, ski films and dancing. One couple will receive a ski trip to Red River Ski Area during the weekend in January or February. The weekend package includes housing for two nights and breakfast and lunches for two days.

The mixer is one of a series of events sponsored by the student foundation to support academic recruiting, freshman orientation, scholarships and recreational sports.

The student group sponsored the "Senior Challenge" last spring as a project and solicited graduating seniors for three-year pledges of $10 each per year. More than $5,000 in pledges were received.

WORLD'S LARGEST TELESCOPES
The world's four largest reflecting telescopes are located in the United States, at Hale Observatory (200 inches), Calif. and McDonald Observatory (107 inches), Tex.

"I am required to give name, rank, service number and date of birth," thus permitting a POW to tell his captors more if he cannot stand the torture or other coercion.

However, the new executive order does not change a requirement in the military code that a captured American serviceman "will evade answering further questions to the utmost" of his ability.

Carter also signed an order intended to make clear that the senior-ranking officer, regardless of branch of service, will be in command of all Americans of lower rank in the same prison.

After the release of the Vietnam POWs, some of those who returned accused others of refusing to obey the commands of senior officers in their compounds on grounds they were not obligated to do so if those senior officers belonged to a different branch of the armed services.

The controversy which developed among freed POWs over just what the code of conduct required of them brought demands that the code be updated and made less rigid.

The 11-member committee concluded last November that the code "is a valid and necessary instrument which establishes high standards of behavior for all members of the armed services."

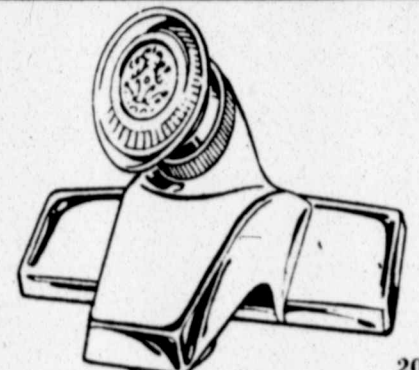

The Ford administration left the committee recommendation for the new Carter administration to consider.

Radio Control Models Stage Replica Air Race Near City

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Outdoor Editor

The three planes were poised at the starting line; the engines whined louder as the checkered flag was raised. The flag came down and the planes sped down the runway, lifted off and banked around a pylon.

It might have been a scene from the Bendix or Thompson Trophy Air Race, but the race was being staged just west of Lubbock, and the whine of engines came from model airplanes.

Controlled by radio transmitters, the small planes banked around another pylon to jockey for position. The speeds reached more than 100 mph to remind the bleacher of observers that model airplanes have lost their toy image to become a hobby and sport for all ages.

Lubbock has two organizations especially for radio controlled aircraft enthusiasts. The South Plains Area Radio Kontrol Society (SPARKS) was formed in 1970. A newer organization, Lubbock Radio Control Contest Association, was formed about a year ago for people interested solely in competition flying.

John Cone, secretary-treasurer for the contest association, said, "There are several contests in the Southwest that draw model airplane buffs from all over the U. S. Midland has a big contest every year; just last week Albuquerque hosted a contest; Plainview always has a couple every year, Fort Worth has an annual event; El Paso has two big contests every year, and Abilene hosts a scale model event."

Two of the aircraft finally ran out of fuel and came in for landings. The third plane's pilot, in an effort to use up the fuel, put his aircraft through some complicated maneuvers. As he watched his high flying craft, he worked the controls of his transmitter. The signals from the ground made the plane go into a series of rolls, loops and spins. Finally the engine quit and the plane was brought in for a beautiful three point landing.

"Here in Lubbock, we have only recently hosted a contest event," continued Cone. "We had a contest last June that drew 45 contestants. They came from Albuquerque, Oklahoma and the Dallas-Fort Worth area. This was our first year and it generally takes time for word to get around, so we expect the Lubbock event to get bigger and better every year."

Years ago, model planes consisted almost entirely of balsa wood and were covered with silk. Now plastic foam has taken over, especially in beginner's aircraft such as trainers. Plastic foam, the way model manufacturers are molding it, has an amazing strength to weight ratio. Some of the planes can be built in two evenings and they are very easy to repair. Quick setting glue will have a damaged plane back in the air in a few minutes.

Three more pilots placed their planes on the starting line. While each pilot checked his transmitter, a companion started the engine. Distant observers exchanged information with officials at the starting line via walkie-talkie. The flag cut through the air and the planes raced down the runway.

"This event is called the Quickie 500," said Cone. He explained, "All of the racers have a minimum of 500 square inches of wing area. It's a racing event that is designed for the widest possible participation of average weekend flyers." He added, "This formula keeps the race open to pilot ability and not just to people with the most money and fanciest equipment."

Some of the airplanes in the Quickie 500 have been clocked at a little over 100 mph, so there's enough speed to keep the sport interesting.

A simple plane kit will cost $20 to $30, and a stock non-racing engine will have a price tag of $30 to $45. The sport is a lot less expensive now than it was some years ago. In 1965, most radios for model planes cost $400; now a good radio will be about $200. A beginner can get into a complete basic package, consisting of radio and plane, and be flying for about $250.

Other events with the radio controlled planes include aerobatics and precision flying and landing. In one event called Blackjack, a plane lands on numbered grids in an effort to reach a total of 21 points. Sometimes helium filled balloons are released and the planes are maneuvered to hit the balloons.

"This is pretty much of a year 'round sport. If it's calm and not raining, we'll be out with our planes any Saturday or Sunday during the daylight hours," said Cone.

The Lubbock Model Airport site was donated by Reese Air Force Base to the city specifically for model airplane flying. The field can be reached by going out the Levelland Highway from Lubbock toward Reese AFB. Before reaching Reese, turn north on Farm Road 179 and continue for about a quarter of a mile. The 10 acre field is surrounded by a chain-link fence.

"The public is always welcome to come out," said John Cone, "members of both clubs will usually be here. It's a great way for the family to spend a Saturday or Sunday afternoon."

Visitors to the Lubbock Model Airport will find the pilots and their families are a very friendly, sociable group of people. They're also evangelistic about their hobby. They enjoy telling other people about the planes and will offer advice on getting started in the sport of radio controlled airplanes. It's a common occurrence for a family to visit the field and return the next week with their own plane. It's an activity that might turn you on. Contact!

Protestor Thrown Out Of Meeting

AUSTIN (AP) — Police Chief Frank Dyson personally arrested atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair after she said would continue talking through the customary prayer that opens city council meetings.

Mrs. O'Hair was taken to city jail and charged with disrupting a public meeting, a Class B misdemeanor, punishable by a fine up to $1,000 and up to 180 days in jail.

"I cannot be quiet while you continue to mock the law," Mrs. O'Hair told Mayor Carole McClellan after the mayor called upon Rev. John W. Auer of St. Martin's Lutheran Church to give the invocation.

"I'm sorry it's necessary for me to interrupt, Mayor McClellan," Mrs. O'Hair said. She said prayer at public meetings is "illegal and unconstitutional" as well as "immoral" and against the teachings of Jesus Christ in the Sermon on the Mount.

The last apparently was a reference to Jesus' statement that Pharisees prayed on the street to be seen of men but that his followers should pray in private.

Both Mrs. O'Hair and the mayor spoke calmly during a 10-minute exchange. Two visiting third-grade classes from St. Elmo Elementary School looked on with big eyes.

The mayor told Mrs. O'Hair she could address the council during a period set aside for citizen comments.

With television cameras on her and microphones thrust into her face, Mrs. O'Hair said she will be on the agenda for the next six weeks to talk about church-state issues but that in addition to that she would try to halt the prayer.

"I will continue to talk during the prayer," she said.

The mayor said she had received legal advice that public prayer is lawful.

"Your legal advice is very bad," Mrs. O'Hair said.

"I will have you escorted from the council chambers," the mayor said, turning to a deputy city manager and directing him to see that she was removed from the chambers. The deputy city manager, Homer Reed, gestured to the police chief who, with two plainclothesmen, approached Mrs. O'Hair.

"Don't touch me when you do it or I will charge you with assault," Mrs. O'Hair said.

The chief told her she was under arrest for disrupting a public meeting. They led her from the building.

The mayor called after her, saying she could visit with council members individually.

"She cannot visit me," said council member Jimmy Snell.

Mrs. O'Hair called Snell a "token black."

Outside, Mrs. O'Hair told the chief she was glad to meet him because she wanted to know what he planned to do about church bingo games.

The chief said he would look into future violations.

The preacher gave the invocation.

State Lodges Protest Versus Carter Projects

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' top state energy officials joined Gov. Dolph Briscoe Thursday in a protest against most of President Carter's energy program now being considered by Congress.

Special attention was given to the proposed crude oil equalization tax.

The Texas Energy Advisory Council unanimously adopted a long resolution of opposition directed to the House-Senate conference committee while Briscoe was in Washington lobbying with the committee.

The different bills that passed the Senate and House setting out the national energy policy are being considered by the conference committee in hopes of reaching a compromise.

"One area in which I am hopeful is that of killing the oil equalization tax attempt outright," said Attorney General John Hill, author of the resolution presented to the council.

Hill said the proposed oil equalization tax, which was approved by the House, was unfair and basically a tax on consumers who would eventually pay the cost.

Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace said the rebates that would be made to fuel oil purchasers from the tax income was an "unfair, purely political move."

"This tax is an attempt to solve technical problems with political answers," said Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

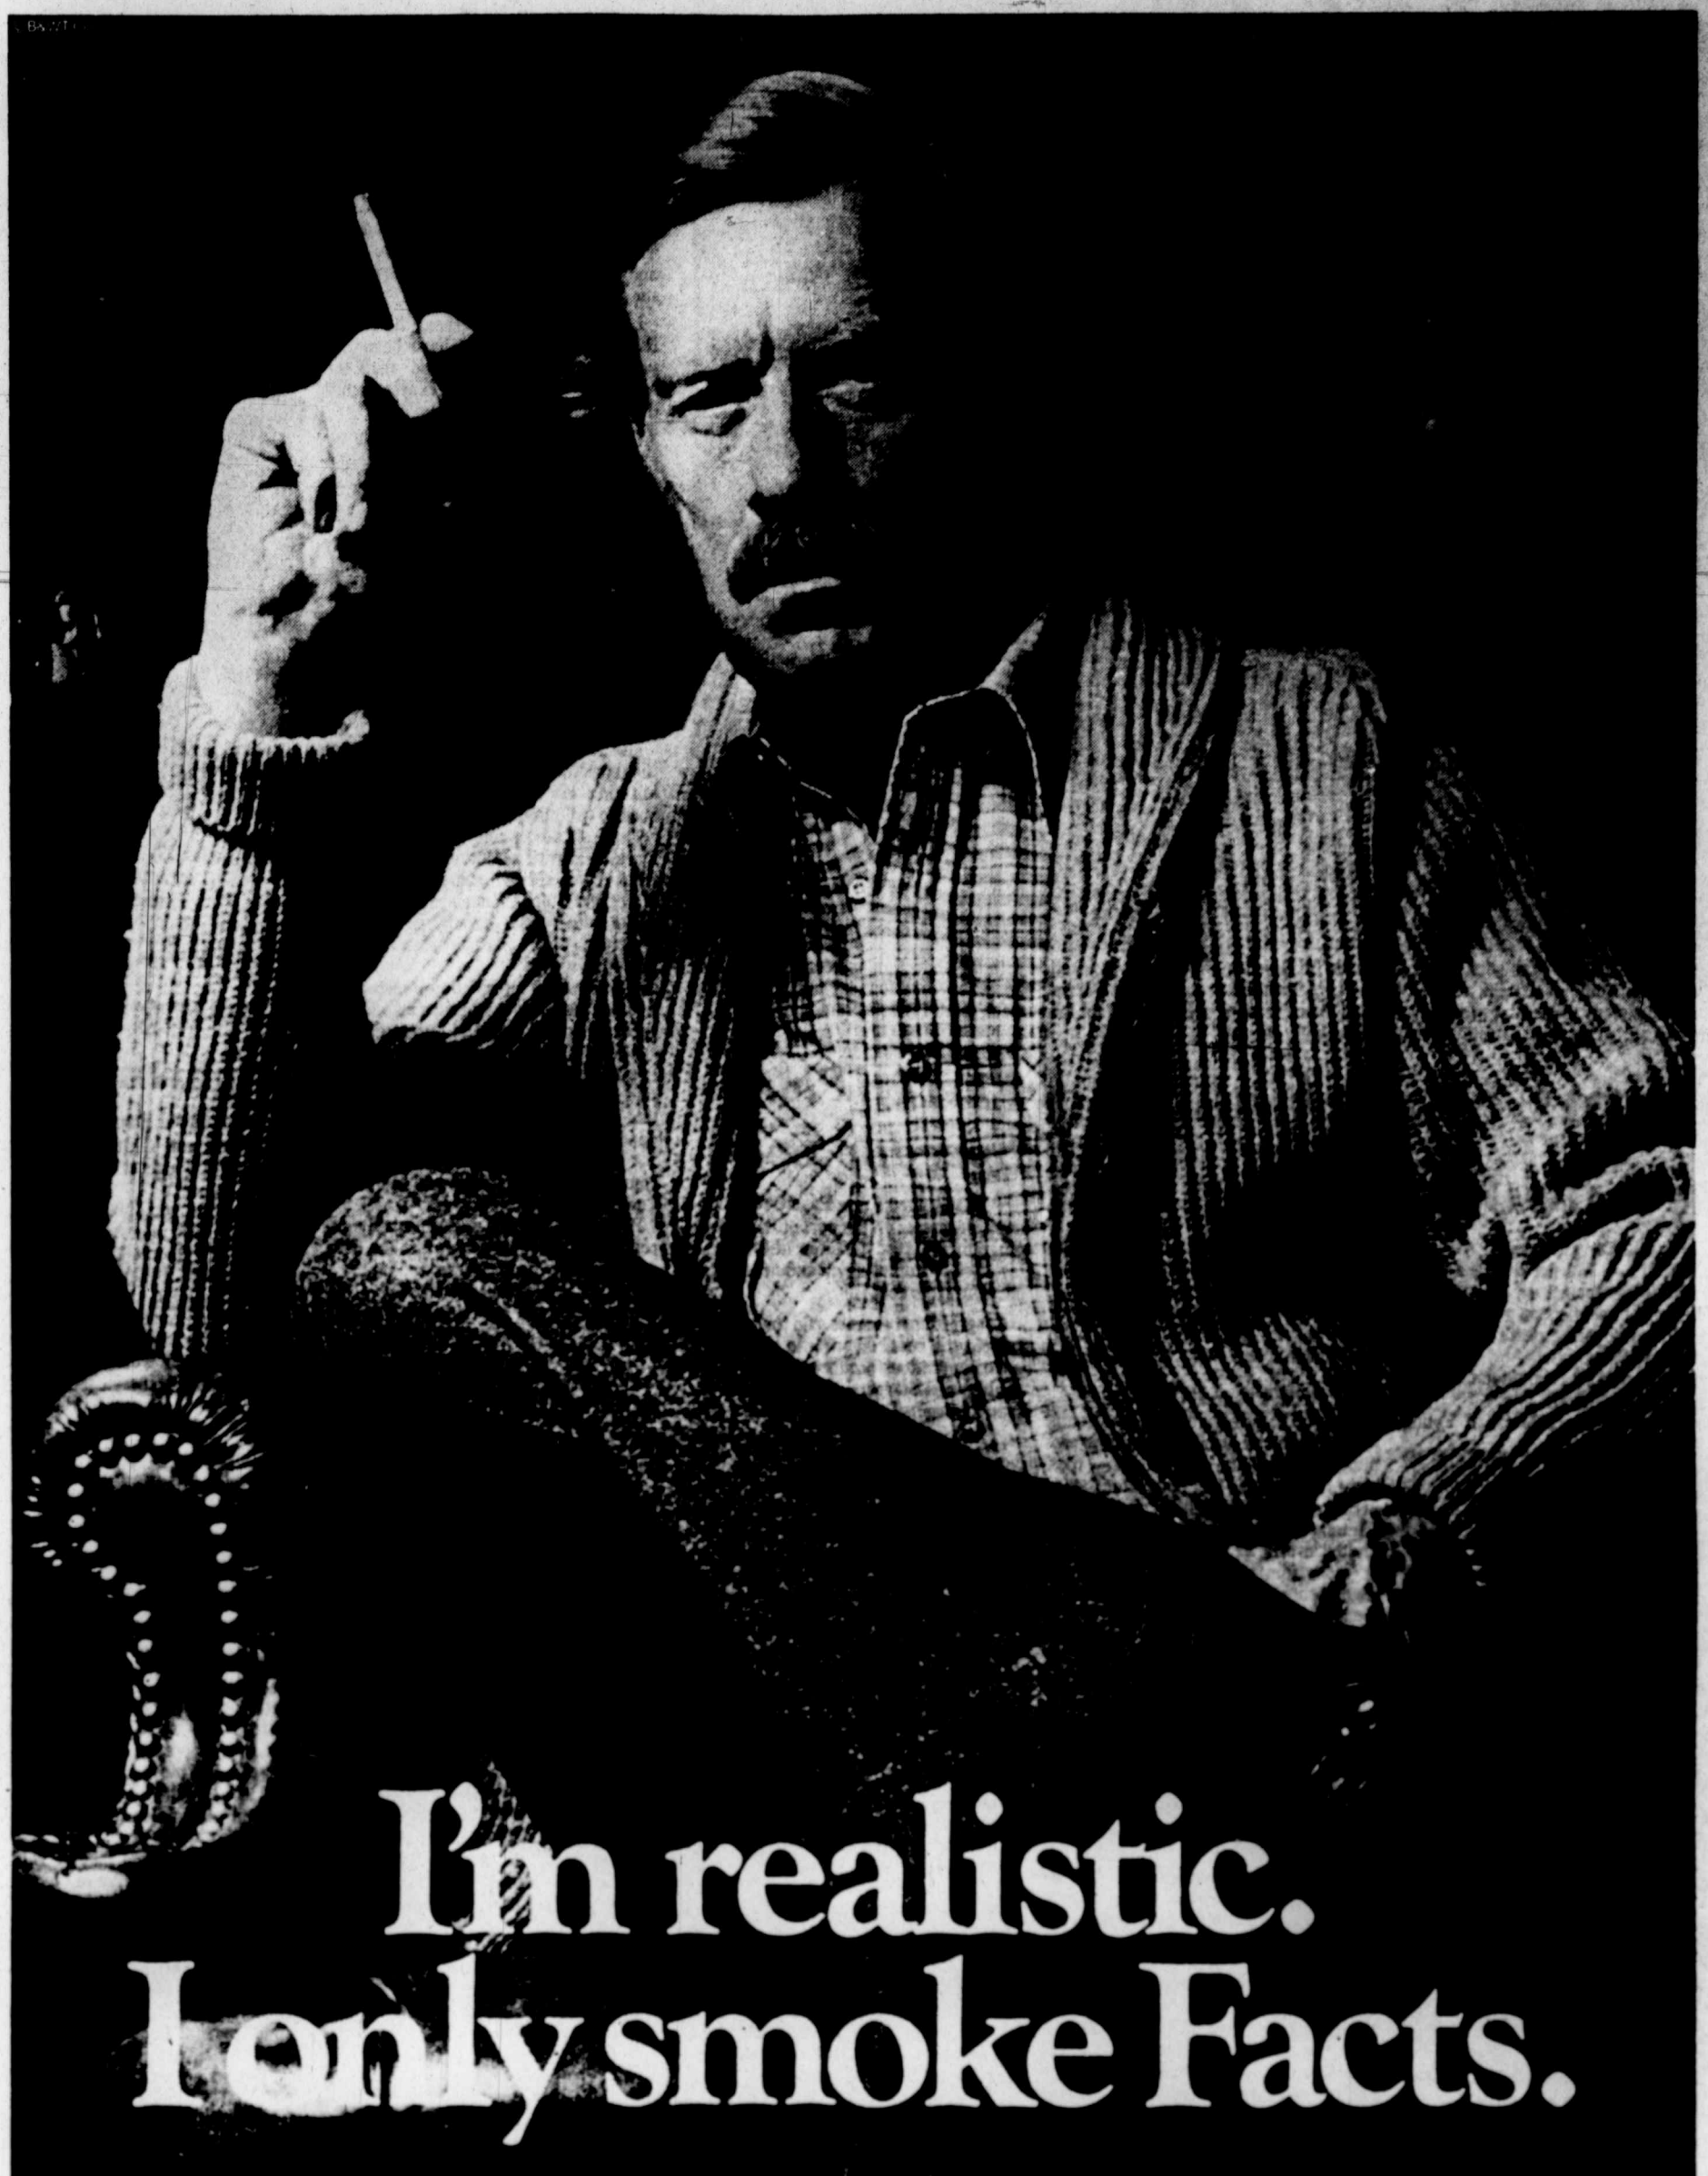

Wallace's amendment stressed that any national policy should include incentives for full production. "Consumers are not going to get relief until we get full production," he said.

McKnight added an amendment pointing out that an oil equalization tax would in effect cut off much of Texas' tax income that has supported state government for many years.

Speaker Bill Clayton added an amendment that urged Congress to search for alternative oil and gas resources while trying to solve the current crisis.

Other portions of Hill's resolution urged phased deregulation of natural gas prices, as passed by the Senate, and to reject plans to tax utility and manufacturing plants which are unable to convert from natural gas to coal immediately.

Humphrey Wins House Ovation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey shattered a number of the rules and precedents of the House of Representatives on Thursday and from all appearances the members loved every minute of it.

Never before in the 200-year history of the House had it convened in special session to honor a senator. True to his reputation, Humphrey spoke for 20 minutes, far longer than House rules allow.

"One of the reasons I never ran for the House," said the Minnesota Democrat, "I found out they have a two-minute or five-minute rule."

Woman Acquitted Of Theft Charge

A Lubbock woman, 19, was acquitted by a jury Thursday of a charge that she had stolen furniture from a local apartment complex.

Found innocent of theft by the jury in Judge Deniz Bevers' 72nd Dist. Court was Patty Sharp of 4818 44th St.

The panel deliberated approximately two hours and 30 minutes before returning the verdict.

Miss Sharp had been accused of stealing a couch and chairs from the Railhead Apartments at 2324 5th St. June 28, 1976. The defendant had been employed at the apartments, and was acting as manager on the date of the alleged offense.

Apartment owner Leo Hatfield testified that he saw the missing furniture at a 5th Street home occupied by two men, and that Miss Sharp was present with the men.

The defendant took the stand to say she had loaned the furniture to the men, one of whom was a boyfriend. Testimony indicated that the men had recently moved into the house and needed additional furniture in order to give a party.

At questioning from defense attorney Patrick Abeyta, Miss Sharp testified that, acting as manager, she had not felt it necessary to contact Hatfield before agreeing to lend the furniture. Testimony indicated the owner was often out of town.

Miss Sharp's boyfriend, Joe Knighten, corroborated Miss Sharp's account.

During floor debates, speeches by House members are limited to two or five minutes in length. Senate rules include no restrictions on how long a member can speak.

"We have wonderful rules there," said Humphrey.

The House tribute was the second time in a week that his congressional colleagues had gathered for emotional tributes to Humphrey, who recently returned to Washington and his Senate duties after treatments for cancer doctors have described as inoperable.

A year ago, Humphrey underwent surgery for removal of his bladder. In August, doctors discovered a large tumor in his abdomen.

Although his illness has left his body frail and thin, Humphrey has participated in the climactic Senate debates on President Carter's energy proposals.

When Humphrey entered the House chamber at 2:22 p.m., the members and spectators stood and applauded for nearly five minutes. They ignored the sound of Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill's gavel when he tried to restore order.

It was an outpouring of affection similar to that which greeted Humphrey a week earlier in the Senate.

O'Neill led off the tributes by describing Humphrey as "the most genuine liberal this country has ever produced" and as "America's little man's greatest friend."

Democrats and Republicans followed O'Neill to praise Humphrey as a man of principle who had fought throughout his career for the underprivileged.

"He thinks we should do something about our problems," said Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz. "Someone said, 'Hubert's got more solutions than we've got problems'."

A veteran of many unsuccessful campaigns for the presidency, Humphrey spoke from the rostrum just below the speaker.

"I know where I'm standing," he said. "I'm standing where the president of the United States gives his State of the Union address. My goodness."

He brought the house down.

CIA Denies Magazine's Allegations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA last year made three attempts to kill Jamaica's leftist prime minister, Michael Manley, according to a Penthouse magazine article published Thursday.

The CIA broke its traditional no-comment rule to call the allegations "absolutely untrue."

A spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Committee, which is assigned to oversee CIA operations, said the panel "is making a preliminary inquiry into the allegations" because it must check "allegations of all sorts."

Manley, who was in Sweden, said he believes the CIA meddled in Jamaican affairs last year. But he declined to link the agency directly to any plots on his life, saying only, "I can confirm not a shot was fired."

Reporters Ernest Volkman and John Cummings, both of the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper Newsday, alleged in their December Penthouse article that the CIA murder plots against Manley were supposed to take place July 14 and Dec. 15, 1976, in Jamaica, and Sept. 23 in Toronto.

"It was only a combination of CIA ineptitude, luck and circumstances that enabled Manley and his government to avoid collapse and, at worst, Manley's death," they said.

They quoted U.S. intelligence officials as estimating the agency spent at least $10 million on a combined operation aimed at killing Manley and sabotaging the Caribbean island's economy.

They said they got their information from "senior American intelligence sources" and foreign agents for nations "friendly to the United States."

The authors said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, with President Gerald Ford's approval, decided to mount a "secret war" against Manley and his government for two reasons: Its increasingly friendly relations with Cuba and its threats to interfere with U.S. Canadian bauxite supplies.

Bauxite is aluminum ore. Much of America's supply is mined in Jamaica.

Describing the alleged July 14 assassination plot, the article accused the agency of recruiting disaffected members of Manley's army, who stopped him at a roadblock in the Jamaican interior.

"The soldiers looked nervous so Manley immediately began shouting orders at a major," it said. "Temporarily flustered, the major and his soldiers hesitated and Manley calmly sped away before anyone could react."

On Sept. 23, the article said, the CIA sent Cuban exiles to shoot Manley as he addressed a rally of expatriate Jamaicans in Toronto.

"But the arrival of known Cuban exiles in Canada tipped off Canadian security officials that something was up," it said. "... The CIA, realizing that the cover had blown, canceled the operation."

In the Dec. 15 attempt, it said, agents released from prison "a dozen hardened gunmen who were then retrained and moved toward Jamaica Government House, which contained Manley's office and quarters."

"Again, Manley's luck held out. The gunmen fell to quarreling among themselves, some security forces personnel returned to help out, and Manley took advantage of the temporary disarray to flee his quarters and hide out until the crisis passed."

Longtime Kansas City Editor Ends 30-Year Career In News

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — W.W. Baker, 56, a member of The Kansas City Star and Times for more than 30 years, Thursday resigned as editor of the newspapers and as president and director of the Kansas City Star Co.

No successor has been named, according to James H. Hale, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company.

Baker said he agreed last February, when the Star Company was purchased by Capital Cities Communications, Inc., to remain as long as necessary to assist in a smooth transition of ownership.

"In my opinion the transition has been completed and I have contributed as much as I could to the process," Baker said.

"I have worked co-operatively with Jim Hale and with Capital Cities in spite of some differences in philosophy and procedure. I now believe that my own personal interests and the interests of the newspapers would best be served if I moved on," he said.

"I hope that no one will interpret my decision to resign as an indication of dissatisfaction with the direction of the newspapers since the sale to Capital Cities."

"Certainly it was a matter of personal trauma, as I told the readers of the Star and Times then, to see both the end of employee ownership and of local ownership of the papers take place while I was president. But I have every confidence in the intent and the ability of the new ownership to make the Star and the Times even greater newspapers."

Hale said, "In the months that I have known Bill Baker I have come to admire and respect him as one with an outstanding journalistic ability."

"It was the efforts of men like Mr. Baker and others who carried on the tradition of the founder, the late William Rockhill Nelson, that made the Star a great institution in the Midwest. I know of no man who possesses more integrity, honesty and compassion for his fellow man."

Baker, a native of Kansas City, joined the Times staff as a reporter in 1947 after graduation from the University of Michigan and four years in the Army in World War II. He was a copy editor and makeup editor of the morning paper before becoming an editorial writer in 1957.

He later was named associate editor and in 1967 was named editor of the Star and Times. Baker moved up to the post of executive vice president in 1971 and in 1975 succeeded Paul V. Miner as president.

Baker said he had no definite plans for the future except to spend more time with volunteer activities.

"Later I may launch a new career in teaching or do some writing that I've had in mind for some time. But frankly I want to relax for a while and catch up on some of the reading I have been unable to do the last 10 years," he said.

"I am grateful to The Star and most especially to the men and women with whom I have worked in the last three decades," Baker said.

Neutron Bomb, Cruise Missile Development Given Go Ahead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress Thursday gave President Carter authorization to go ahead with development of the neutron bomb and the cruise missile.

The Senate passed a $476.4 million supplemental defense authorization bill and a $2.6 billion military energy authorization measure which also include provisions for experimenting with a successor to the B-1 bomber.

The House passed the two bills Wednesday, but Congress must still appropriate the funds for the programs in a supplemental money bill now in conference.

After protracted and stormy passage through the committee stages when both the neutron bomb and the future of the B-1 roused angry controversy, the bills got final congressional approval with minimum debate and by voice vote in the Senate.

The $2.6 billion authorization bill for military applications of the Energy Research and Development Administration — now part of the new Energy Department — includes funds for the neutron bomb, which kills through intense radiation but inflicts less structural damage than current nuclear weapons.

Carter asked Congress to approve funds for the bomb pending a final decision on production and deployment. The legislation added $12.6 million to funds already appropriated for the bomb in fiscal 1978, bringing the total authorization to $22.6 million.

Although Congress cut some of the administration requests, it provided authorization in the defense bill for modernizing the B-52 so that it can be used as a penetrating bomber well into the 1980s — the role originally envisioned for the B-1.

In addition, Congress authorized funds to see if commercial planes, such as the Boeing 747, could be turned into carriers which would launch cruise missiles outside the borders of an enemy nation.

Congress also authorized funds for two prototypes of a stretched-out version of the FB111 — an existing fighter bomber — to see if it could take the place of the B-1 as the successor for the B-52 in a fleet of manned, penetrating bombers.

Low Turnout Expected For Amendments Election

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A mere 32 absentee ballots have been cast for next week's constitutional amendments election. The count, described as "awfully light" by Lubbock County Clerk Frank Guess, suggests an extremely low voter turnout for Tuesday.

The deadline for voting absentee is 5 p.m. today. Ballots are available in the county clerk's office on the second floor of the Lubbock County Courthouse.

Latest figures from Russell Hardin, county tax assessor-collector, peg the total number of registered voters in Lubbock County at 79,110. County officials had authorized the printing of 40,000 ballots for Tuesday's election on seven proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. Guess has not released his prediction for Tuesday's turnout. However, county officials expect only a fraction of the printed ballots to be used.

In contrast to the 32 absentee ballots cast so far for this year's special election, a total of 313 persons voted absentee in 1975, when a proposed new state constitution was put on the line.

Nearly 18,000 Lubbock County citizens turned out on election day in that 1975 balloting. Officials forecast a much lighter turnout Tuesday.

In the 1976 presidential election, Lubbock County produced 3,430 absentee votes and 63,000 votes overall.

Hardin, whose office handles voter registration, said the "only requirement for voting in this election is that you have been registered 30 days prior to the election."

They have died or moved out of the county, Hardin said. "Most people should have their voter receipt card," he said. "Anybody who is not sure whether they're registered voter registration list or attest that they are eligible, election officials said. The constitutional amendments to be decided Tuesday include proposals to:

—Expand current constitutional provisions for denying bail to persons accused of felonies.

—Enlarge the Court of Criminal Appeals from five to nine judges and allow it to meet in panels of three judges.

—Increase the Judicial Qualifications Commission from nine to 11 members, change its name to State Commission on Judicial Conduct and give it more power to investigate the conduct of judges, reprimand them and remove them from office.

—Allow the legislature to pass laws providing for tax relief for historic sites, unique natural areas or other significant sources.

—Allow the Veterans' Land Board to issue and sell $200 million more in bonds, and make unmarried surviving spouses of veterans who died in the line of duty eligible for the program.

—Allow collection of fees for producers of a particular commodity. These would be used for product promotion, research, education and administration.

—Permit such devices as automatic teller machines to be located away from bank buildings. It would make clear that such devices do not violate Texas' constitutional ban on branch banking.

Lubbock Ponders HUD Edict On Federal Housing Funds

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The City of Lubbock, fresh from a funding dispute with the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), probably will not be affected by a new federal proposal to further regulate Community Development spending, a city official says.

However, via a letter from Mayor Roy Bass, the city has protested the proposal to President Jimmy Carter, U.S. Rep. George Mahon and HUD Secretary Patricia Harris.

In his letter, Bass objects to Mrs. Harris' proposal that at least 75 percent of a city's CD grant be spent directly on low and moderate income neighborhoods.

The proposal is an arbitrary one, "and is another example of HUD's arrogant attempts to legislate on its own," Bass' letter said.

Lubbock probably would not be affected by the proposed mandate because at least 90 percent of the fourth-year program funds are allocated to low and moderate income areas, CD Coordinator David Kitten said.

The recommended program, drafted Wednesday by the Community Development Advisory Committee (CDAC), would split the $4.5 million available into the following projects:

—$2,170,579 for code enforcement and housing rehabilitation;

—$130,000 for traffic signals along Avenue A, at 30th Street and Avenue H, East 24th Street and Quirt Avenue, and Parkway Drive and Zenith Avenue;

—$250,000 for a day care center in East Lubbock;

—$175,000 to repay a HUD loan;

—$57,025 for administrative costs to administer the CD program;

—$1,325,593 for various projects including street paving, park and park road renovations, street lighting, and the addition of a Parkway Neighborhood Center and a senior citizens center; and —$403,303 for contingency funds. Kitten said every project in the program, which will go to the Lubbock City Council for final approval, will be in a low-income area and will benefit directly low-income people.

Because of a dispute last summer with HUD over the eligibility of third-year CD projects, the city more strictly applied eligibility guidelines to the fourth-year proposals, Kitten said.

The city lost that fight with HUD and was forced to reallocate $543,600 originally designated for park and lighting improvements in Southwest Lubbock. The department rejected the projects because they did not primarily and directly benefit low and moderate income areas, meet an urgent health or safety need or eliminate slum or blight.

According to HUD's interpretation of the act setting up the CD program, one of those three objectives must be met in each project suggested. Now, Kitten said, HUD is trying to narrow the guidelines further.

Mrs. Harris' proposed 75 percent mandate tends to "knock out the block grant programs, and emphasize a return toward the categorical grants, which prove so harsh, unworkable, and often times downright silly in times past," Bass' letter says.

Kitten agreed that the mandate would give the federal government more centralized control over how the money can be spent.

Congress adopted the block grant program in 1974 to replace six disparate urban aid programs and to give cities more flexibility in deciding how to spend the funds.

Now, Bass and Kitten contend, the opposite effect will be achieved if HUD's guidelines are adopted.

And, according to the National League of Cities, the result is that "HUD has put themselves in the position of setting the priorities of the local government."

One HUD official warns that the 75 percent mandate could have a marked impact on cities between 100,000 and 200,000 population because they already may have done all they can in low-income areas.

Kitten said Lubbock would not have that problem because "we still have quite a few unpaved streets and park, water and sewer improvements."

"And of course, housing," he added. "There's always housing."

House members have criticized the new proposal. Members there rejected a formula specifying low and moderate-income aid.

Public comment on the proposal will be aired in Congress on Nov. 18. And if approved, the mandate would not become effective until April 1, 1978, HUD says.

Lubbock's fourth-year CD program was hammered out Wednesday by the CDAC with little dissension. The final proposal approved is a modified version of City Mgr. Larry Cunningham's plan.

The 17 CDAC members present deleted Cunningham's recommendation that $215,000 be spent on water pump station supervisory controls. The group also reduced by $100,000 his recommended amount to be spent on unassessable street paving.

Additions to Cunningham's proposal include the $175,000 needed to repay HUD, the administrative costs for the CD program and $25,000 for a traffic signal at Parkway Drive and Zenith Avenue, if a study deems it feasible.

Accompanying the committee's program proposal will be a recommendation to the city council that contingency funds not be used to meet project cost overruns be spent on housing rehabilitation.

Pearl Bailey Plans For College

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Pearl Bailey, who dropped out of school more than 40 years ago to pursue a show business career, plans to start college this January as a fulltime freshman at Georgetown University.

"I always wanted to be a school teacher," she tells anyone who asks.

Several weeks ago Miss Bailey, 59, met with the dean of Georgetown's College of Arts and Science, the Rev. Royden B. Davis, to discuss her academic program.

"She's always wanted a college education. It's been one of her great desires," Davis said Thursday, adding that she has not yet decided what courses to take because the spring schedule has not yet been worked out.

The university's assistant vice president for academic affairs, the Rev. J. Donald Freeze, said Miss Bailey has indicated she wants a general liberal arts program. Georgetown students have two years before they have to declare a major.

Freeze said Miss Bailey, who was awarded an honorary doctorate of humane letters from Georgetown last May, told him: "Now I want the real thing."

"At long last, she has the time and financial status to do what she wants," Freeze said. He added that she will have to move to the capital.

Miss Bailey, who was in Washington this week, said she did not want to discuss her reasons for going back to school.

"A lot can happen between now and January," said her manager, E.B. Smith. "She'll hold a full press conference around the first of the year to answer any questions."

Miss Bailey, who started her career as a dancer in the mid-1930s, has been a frequent guest at the White House since Dwight D. Eisenhower was president. She became a particularly good friend of President and Mrs. Gerald R. Ford. When she retired from show business two years ago, Ford appointed her to be a special adviser to the U.S. mission at the United Nations.

Freeze said Miss Bailey will be given no special privileges at the university. "That is her wish," he said. But he added that unlike most freshmen, she will not live in a dormitory.

Construction Up In Big Spring

A-J Correspondent
BIG SPRING—Construction accelerated in Big Spring during October, with $360,000 construction costs for two commercial projects alone.

Total expenditures for the month came to $551,200, compared to $212,300 for October last year. This boosted the total for the year to $3,220,468, still below the $4,357,763 aggregate for 1976.

During October, 35 permits were collected as opposed to 24 for October of 1976. Total for the year to date is 309, 26 more than last year at this time.

Largest project for October was the proposed construction of the Shepard Funeral Home. Estimated costs for the project was $260,000.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How many types of hepatitis are there? Just how contagious is it? How many ways can it be transmitted? If poor hygiene is one way, please elaborate. How can one become an innocent victim? — Mrs. A.N.O.

The liver is the body's great filtering system, both for blood and for the lymph system, which continually collects and drains body fluids. Hence, it is very susceptible to various sources of infection.

Hepatitis means inflammation of the liver, and there are a great many ways this inflammation can occur — from cirrhosis, chemical poisoning, certain drugs, for example. These forms are usually distinguished from those caused by organisms, such as parasites and viruses.

Infectious hepatitis, which is presumably what you are speaking of, is caused by the hepatitis "A" virus. This can be transmitted innocently from foods handled by persons who harbor it. Or it can invade a water supply through faulty plumbing or contaminated water sources. Kissing, eating contaminated foods and sexual contact, are other routes. The hepatitis B virus is usually transmitted by way of a contaminated needle or in blood transfusions — any contact with the blood of a person who has it. It's called serum hepatitis for this reason.

Infectious hepatitis is highly contagious, so public health officials are on alert for cases occurring in a single locality. The first order of business is to pinpoint a common source and eliminate it. Persons known to have been in contact with such a source can be injected with immune globulin as a preventative.

Hygiene is quite important in preventing hepatitis — washing hands before handling food, washing fruits and vegetables to be eaten raw, and so on. Cooking kills the organisms that cause it. Caution in using toxic chemicals is also important.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I find a lot of good information in your column — usually. I say usually, because I think some of the letters you choose to answer involve insignificant problems. I'm thinking of the woman asking about one breast being larger than the other, and so on. I wish you'd stick to the medical problems and not waste space on such drivel. — J.D.

I assume your own breasts are symmetrical. One person's drivel may be another's real concern. My theory is that for every question I get in the mail there are hundreds of other readers with the same question on their minds. Years of screening millions of letters has not altered my opinion. I don't think I'll change it at this point.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it normal for a person to carry a temperature of 99.4 during the day and at bedtime be 98? — Mrs. J.S.

Normal temperature (98.6) can rise during the day depending on the amount of activity. It can also fall slightly at night with inactivity. You tell me (in another part of your letter) that you have had extensive tests to rule out some of the less common disorders, so I would be content with the situation. Generally, temperature that rises toward evening is more suspect than one that lowers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have chronic catarrh, from nose and sinuses. It runs down my throat and inflames my vocal cords. I have another problem. I get unusually cold in mild temperatures and am miserable. My doctor did tests and found I have an underactive thyroid. He has not prescribed any medicine for that. I am in my late 50s. Can you comment? — A.A.R.

First, allergy should be investigated. A few skin tests might reveal an offender. Second, I do not understand a reluctance to prescribe thyroid medication if tests show it quite low. Correction of that might even relieve your nasal problem. Another opinion on this seems in order.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes the urinary bladder to sag, and what can happen if nothing is done to correct the sag? Thanks. — Mrs. F.A.

This is called cystocele. It is more common among women in later life, and they should be on guard for it. Childbirth and other strains can weaken muscles and allow the bladder to change position.

Should surgery be considered? Yes, I think it should. Without correcting the bladder sag, there is always danger of infection setting in and perhaps spreading to the kidneys.

At the very least, the urination problem that can result is enough of a nuisance to make correction advisable for many women.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What do the initials "P.A.T." mean in connection with the heart? — E.G.

"Paroxysmal auricular tachycardia," a form of heart rhythm irregularity.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to him, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am in my seventh month of pregnancy and because of my husband's attitude, I feel as if I have been carrying this baby for a year. He has shot off his big mouth to everyone who will listen that if I don't have a boy he will leave us both in the hospital.

Everyone laughs it off and so do I, but it really does hurt. Ann, if I should have a girl I will feel as if I have failed him. To make matters worse, his two brothers' wives have had three girls apiece, and they say they are "through." I'm afraid my in-laws are counting on me to have a son, although they have been gracious enough to say it doesn't matter.

Please give me something to hang on to — a few words of wisdom and emotional support. I am — Plenty Shaky

Dear P.S.: These clattertraps who specify a preference are a strange breed of jackasses for which there is no known cure. If your husband were the King of Siam, he might have a throne problem. What's eating your clown?

It never fails — husbands who advertise they want sons always wind up nutty as fruitcakes over their daughters. If you have a girl I'll bet you a blue bootie against a pink rattle that he'll follow the pattern.

Dear Ann Landers: You are nuts. In a column that appeared recently you said, "It is good manners to phone or write to a hostess after you have attended her party." Then you added, "But don't be too hard on the lazy or socially imperfect. Not everyone knows all the fine points."

What a lot of banana oil! I have never left a party without saying thank you to the hostess. One of the fine points of being cultured is learning not to overdo things.

People who say "Thank you" three times at the door, then telephone the next day or feel compelled to send a written note are just plain insecure. I hate these boot-licking, ankle-kissing types... and I'll bet you are one of them. — Glad I Said It

Dear Glad: I feel sorry for you — and all the other cold fish in the world — so "controlled," reluctant to appear too friendly or eager to please, afraid of expressing a warm thought or a tender emotion for fear you might expose too much of yourself.

The person who writes or phones to say thank you for the lovely evening is neither insecure nor obsequious — and every hostess appreciates such messages.

Dear Ann: I am a guy, 17. My girl Rita is 15. Mom invited her to dinner Sunday. My aunt and uncle were invited, too. He is a minister but not one of those square types. Real neat. His wife is OK, too.

After dinner Rita came over and sat on my lap. We weren't making out or anything like that. She was just sitting there. My mom didn't say anything but she gave me one of those looks I know so well.

Girl Scouts Win Energy Merit Badges

Four Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts from Lubbock will climax their attendance at an Atomic Energy Merit Badge Seminar in Amarillo with a trip today and Saturday to Kirtland Air Force Base and Sandia Laboratory in Albuquerque, and to the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, Los Alamos, New Mexico.

Mira Roberson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Roberson; Joan Signor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Signor; Sharon Tiffany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cooper; and Lisa Whitehead, daughter of Mrs. Kay Whitehead are attending from Lubbock.

The Atomic Energy Merit Badge Seminar took place in Amarillo on four Saturdays in October, sponsored by the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, Sandia Laboratories, and Pantex Plant of Amarillo.

As part of the seminar, the scouts worked with cloud chambers, electroscopes, geiger counters, model reactors, irradiated seeds and other test apparatus. The work was done under the direction of atomic scientists, engineers and technicians.

AMERICAN CREATION

Liederkrantz cheese, which sounds as if it might have originated in some small Bavarian village, is actually the creation of Emil Frey, a New York cheesemaker from Monroe country. It was introduced in 1893 to members of the Liederkrantz, a popular New York City singing society of that time.

CAULIFLOWER

When you are buying cauliflower — it's available year-round — look for a cream-white rind and green jacket leaves. (The edible white portion is called the curd.)

This morning she told me Rita should have had better sense than to sit on my lap in front of company and I should not have let her do it. I think mom is wrong. Do you? — Jeff

Dear J.: No. She's right. What's the problem? Are you short of chairs in your house? A young lady who visits in her boyfriend's home should maintain some dignity — and this means no lap-sitting.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I never go to a college reunion that I don't come away feeling sorry for all those paunchy, balding jocks trying to hang onto youth.

I feel sorry for the men too.

Mayva and I always sit together. We seem to be the only two in the class who have fought the battle of middle age and won.

"How do we do it?" I whispered, watching the class of '49 dance away in merciful darkness. "I feel like Marie Osmond at a Prune Festival."

"I know, what you're saying," said Mayva. "Look at Ginger Horvich. Can you believe she's wearing glasses this thick? 'Blind as a bat'."

"Where?" I asked, digging in my purse and holding my bifocals to my nose like a lorgnette.

"And what about Marcel Miller? Who is she fooling with that cat?"

"Mayva, at I have always said, 'You show me a woman in a cat and I'll show you a lot of fat that doesn't fit.' Incidentally, isn't that cat a lot like you?"

"No," said Mayva irritably. "mine has no waist. Oh my goodness, would you look at who just came in. Mary Moosebaum with hair as white as the driven snow. Who does she remind you of?"

Thomas Edison.

Exactly. Of course, we shouldn't laugh. Someday our hair will start to turn and we'll no longer be.

Henna No. 4. Hey, look at the next table. It's the class success, Barbara Judson, our newly-elected Senator. They're sure making a big fuss over her, but I respect her. If you have to work to make ends meet, you have to work. Besides, it might lead to something big. At least she's not like Paula Pringle."

"That vicious old broad," said Mayva. "Never has a kind word to say about anyone. I'm going over and tell her how much I've missed her."

As Mayva left the table, I couldn't help remarking to my husband, "Mayva looks old. Wonder how long it will take me to start showing my age?"

FIVE GENERATIONS — For the second time five generations exist in one family. Seated from left are: Mrs. Karon Durham and her daughter Kary Nicole of Lubbock; Mrs. Bessie Payne of Levelland and Mrs. Mary Bess Edwards of New Home. Standing is Mrs. Maggie Eade of New Home. The five generations happened the first time when Mrs. Payne's mother, Ma Crawford was living. She has 11 children, 27 grandchildren, 39 great-grandchildren and four great great-grandchildren.

Opening lead — Ace♠

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY
Here is a hand from the finals of the 1961 Vanderbilt. Howard Schenken, one of the great players and the only one of the four at the table who is still alive sat South.

Hal Sims was West, Sherman Stearns, North, and William Karn, East.

Hal elected to open a semipassive one spade and remained silent from then on, but William Karn elected to sacrifice at four spades. But Howard wasn't going to give up and went to five hearts.

He ruffled the ace of spades lead and after long thought came to the conclusion that Karn would have a singleton high heart and most of the missing high-card strength. In other words, he read Sims for having just about what he did hold.

After that it became a simple matter to find the winning line of play. Howard led a low heart. William won with his singleton king and promptly led a small diamond. Any other lead would have given Howard no problem. Neither did this one. Howard was so sure of the location of the diamond king that he let it ride around to dummy's queen and made his five-heart contract.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Darling Mothers:

This column is for mothers who have young babies and/or children in diapers or training pants.

Wow....

Have patience! And it's going to take lots of it to get through this period, little angels. All mothers go through this period, but "this, too, shall pass," as my mother told me. And it did.

I do believe that the first child born to a mother makes us become a fanatic. That word might not fit, but I know at the time it fit me.

I wanted my firstborn to be the first to have a tooth, the first to be toilet trained, etc.

Don't worry about it! This is what makes mothers age much too fast. I did. I know. We are going to talk about the pressure on a mother when she just can't break a child into toilet training and saving our nerves (which makes us a far better mother if we do!) and taking a fact when it occurs.

From diapers to training pants, all little ones have accidents. Don't ever punish them for this.

But, to save on mother's nerves and what I call "heavy washing duties" to cleaning "heavy accidents," why don't you just take one of the baby's diapers and cut it up into about six equal pieces and insert it in the crotch of either the diaper or training pants. These can be pinned at both the front and back of training pants with diaper pins!

It's a blessing in disguise. Really! You have no heavy cleaning of the training pants, cleaning up of carpets, etc.

Your child has been used to the soft feel of that specially manufactured diaper and, all of a sudden, we mothers put training pants of an entirely different fabric and feel on their bottoms.

How would you like to give up your soft nylon panties that we wear today and go back to those old panties our mothers used to make up out of unbleached domestic? It adds up to the same thing within itself.

It is my opinion that we would not like it, but, if we had had a soft piece of nylon panties pinned inside of the hard, unbleached domestic when our mothers did this to us, how different it would have been.

So, you cut up a diaper into six parts when you put that little baby you are trying to train into their training pants — ah, how nice it would be! That would be at least part of home to them.

What's one diaper missing from the everyday washing, when you make a baby happy? After all, you are trying to get him out of those diapers, anyway.

I always inserted a scrap of diaper into my children's diapers when I put them to bed at night. Sure saved me lots of scrubbing the next day.

I have told so many of my friends this the last 20 years that they now call it "Heloise's Security Diapers."

Ain't that a laff for today?

A kiss to all your babies. Tell 'em I love them, too. — Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever opened a can of evaporated milk and used a couple of tablespoons and put the can in the fridge? Then, have no more need for the rest of the milk, it spoils, and you have to open a new can the next time you need canned milk.

Well, I finally got smart.

I put the milk remaining in a can into an ice cube tray and freeze it. Then, when frozen, I put the cubes of milk into a plastic bag to keep in the freezer.

Now when I need a small amount of canned milk to make a rich sauce, etc. I just toss in a couple of cubes. — Barbara Hayes

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

I have been worried all my life about old age coming on, but, of course, now I don't have to worry about it anymore.

This is because I've already gotten there. — Scotty

Dear Heloise:

I always take my shower cap with me when I go to the beauty shop.

Why?

Because I put this over my hair when I leave until I get home... It seems to "set" my hair, not only because of humidity or a sudden light rain, but leaves it lovely for a few days.

Mine is the normal woman's shower cap. — Selma Scotten

THIS COLUMN is written for you...the homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column whenever possible.

Metric Measurements Cause Women Alarm

LONDON (WNS) — British housewives and working women did not complain too much when the government insisted on changing its traditional pounds-and-shillings money system to the decimal system. But now that the politicians insist on dropping feet-and-inches measurements for the metrical system used by other European Common Market nations, the ladies are in a panic. As model Jo Wilson put it: "The new system makes us feel enormous. My size 10 will change its bust measurement from 32 to 81. The waist will go from 22 to 56, and the hips from 34 to 85. How will the size-16 woman feel when she had to deal with 192 as her hip measurement?" The new measurements take effect in February in England.

SURPRISE VISIT

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS) — Irma Ruth Krueger, 52, got the surprise of her life when the husband who deserted her almost 20 years ago returned home and wanted to move in. Only one problem. Irma Ruth had divorced him and now has another legal mate. No problem for Hans, hubby No. 1. He moved in with a neighboring widow whom he had courted before he met Irma Ruth.

GORDON HOWARD RUSSELL JR. ... turns out windmills

Hale Center Man Turns Hobby Into Profitable, Fun Business

By MARIE HARRIS
A-J Correspondent

HALE CENTER — "Necessity is the mother of invention." Nobody knows this any better than Gordon Howard "Howie" Russell Jr. of Hale Center, who three years ago—finding himself out of Christmas money and no job available—discovered an interesting hobby that turned into a profitable enterprise.

Home on vacation from West State University, broke and bored, Howie walked into the shop at Hi-Plains Hospital here where his father Gordon Russell is administrator, and started "playing" with the equipment.

The result was a model miniature windmill, a symbol of the Plains and the West. Howie never had art lessons and never welded before, but somehow it came natural to fashion the various sized windmills, which now are so popular he has filled one order for 70 models. He presently is working on an order for 50 windmills 12½ inches high wanted by the Visitors and Convention Board of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

The Amarillo group gives these to VIPs who come to the city. Keepsake windmills already have been presented to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, the captain of the new cruiser USS Texas, and musicians Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson and Neil Sedaka.

The order for 70 metal windmills was from the Amarillo Bowling League, which was hosting the state bowling convention and used them for centerpieces and door prizes.

The 25-year-old disc jockey, farm editor and newscaster for radio station KEEN has rented space from the Gingerbread House, 416 S. Main St., Hale Center, for his shop to build the windmills. Orders may be phoned there, 806-839-2292, where samples of Howie's work are on exhibit. Hardy Dent of Hale Center will assist Howie when the work gets heavy. His firm name is "Windmill International."

"I have made windmills out of steel welding rods, beater bars from a combine, tuna fish cans for tanks, rusty five-gallon cans and anything in between," explained Howie. He sprays them with flat black paint and finishes by hand-spraying treasure jewelry, a wax material to give a gilt appearance.

Howie has built self-contained models which actually pump water into a tank in a circulating system with operating sucker rods. Wheels turn freely and fans run smoothly. Such models require 60 hours of work.

His dad has Howie's first and third models in his office — the second one Howie made was purchased by Mayor Bob Brown, encouraging Howie to continue.

"My first models were crude, but Dad is as proud of them as if they were my present $350 models," Howie stated. His windmills sell from $12.50 up and he has sold between 100 and 150.

Howie's windmills often include bases featuring realistic western landscapes with corrals, water tanks, cattle trails and other western paraphernalia. The theme was inspired by the rugged setting below the Caprock in Motley county — native home of his great-grandfather, J.T. Russell, Texas Ranger, sheriff of Motley County and cattleman, his grandfather, Jonathan Edward Russell, who was a Motley County deputy sheriff; and his father.

Howie broke the tradition by being born Oct. 12, 1952 in Hempstead, N.Y., at Mitchell Air Force Base on Long Island, where his father was base hospital administrator. Then they moved to Crane, Mo. Dimmitt and to Hale Center in 1959. He was graduated in 1971 from Hale Center High School, and in 1976 from WTU, where he received a bachelor of science degree in speech, with emphasis in radio and television. While in college, Howie was dorm adviser for Guenther Hall.

Also specializing in miniature outhouses, Howie created one as a pen set for Dean Trice, dean of men at WTSU, who was presented the souvenir as a "peace offering" in an incident whereby some of Howie's dorm "charges" planned a real outhouse on the campus.

In Canyon, Howie operated his shop across the street from the museum. Visitors enjoyed watching him build his windmills. He has exhibited his work in arts and craft shows in Amarillo, Lubbock and Plainview.

Before entering the radio field in May, Howie was maintenance man for apartment complexes in Canyon and an oil field area at Pampa. Presently he is taking a course at Texas Tech, beginning work for a master's degree in public administration.

One of Howie's most ardent admirers of his work — and who possesses all the butterflies he has fashioned — is his fiancée, Phonda LeRoux of Dallas, an accounting major, will finish at WTSU in December. They plan to be married Feb. 25.

When he has time after his midnight-to-7 a.m. shift at the radio station, Howie likes to "fool around" with his windmills, hunt birds, go trap shooting, read science fiction or go motorcycling over the "boondocks."

'Tramp Art' Desirable As Collectors' Items

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Tramp art. The phrase has a charming sound, but defining it is difficult. A large body of wooden pieces, frames, boxes and even pieces of furniture can be included in the phrase "Tramp art."

There are a few distinguishing characteristics. Once seen it is easy to know that a piece can fit somewhere in the grouping. Tramp art is usually chip carved. Small shaped pieces of wood are cut from the edge of a piece of wood to form a design. The piece is usually made by placing layers of wood together into a pyramid-like shape. Wood was often used from old cigar boxes which were easily obtainable and simple to carve. Some of the tramp art had other decorations of geometric types or even patriotic symbols. Many of the pieces were painted.

Tramp art in America was made from the 1860s to the 1930s. Most of it was made by "itinerant travelers" better known as the tramps and hobos of the day. Many were skilled craftsmen who had newly arrived in this country.

Tramp art is considered a special form of folk art. It is one to be admired and collected.

Q. What does a davenport desk look like? I thought a davenport was a type of sofa.

A. In England the word davenport means a special type of desk. The word davenport means a sofa in the United States. The English desk is shaped like a large rectangular box. The drawers on one side, resemble a chest. The top of the desk has a slanted top with a lift-up cover. The style was a 19th century idea.

Q. What is a whitesmith?

A. A whitesmith was a specialized type of blacksmith during the 18th and 19th centuries. He made highly polished wrought iron, steel, or tin-coated iron or steel. Iron would rust and there were few ways to prevent the corrosion. It could be painted, highly polished, or coated with tin.

For your booklet, "Preserving Old Paper," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Know Your Antiques, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa, 50306.

Q. My grandmother left me a set of blue willow pattern dishes decorated with a blurred blue design. On the bottom it says "Pearl Stone Ware."

A. The term "Pearl Stone Ware" was used by many 19th century English firms. It was a name used for a special type of earthenware body.

Q. How old is Hull pottery?

A. The A.E. Hull Pottery Company of Crooksville, Ohio was started in 1905. The factory started making art wares for the florist and gift shop trade after 1917. By 1921, they not only made pottery, but imported and sold European pieces. The firm still is working, but they are not making art wares.

Q. What is a bandelure?

A. Bandelure is the 19th century English word for yo-yo.

10-Cent Stamp To Be Issued

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

A new U.S. 10-cent regular stamp in the Americana Series will be issued in coil and sheet form at two separate locations in November. The stamp will be the third in the Americana Series to highlight one of the four freedoms guaranteed in the Bill of Rights. It emphasizes "The right of the people to petition the government for redress of grievances."

Earlier stamps in the series were based on "freedom of the press" and the "right of people peaceably to assemble."

The 10-cent denomination does not mean postal rates are decreasing, but rather going up! The stamp will meet the proposed new postage rate for postal cards expected to be implemented in May 1978.

The coil version of the stamp will be placed on sale at Tampa, Fla., on Nov. 4, the opening of FLOREX 77, the annual exhibition of the Florida Federation of Stamp Clubs. The sheet version will be issued in New York City on Nov. 17 during the annual National Postage Stamp Show of the American Stamp Dealers Association.

Orders for first day cancellations should be addressed as follows: "Petition for Redress Stamp, Postmaster, Tampa, Fla. 33602" or "Petition for Redress Stamp, Postmaster, New York, N.Y. 10001." The cost is 13 cents per cover and the U.S. Postal Service will affix a Francis Parkman three-cent stamp to meet the rate for first class postage.

Recently we reported that the 1977 special stamps and embossed envelopes urging energy conservation and energy development would be issued with no formal first day of issue ceremonies. The place of issuance is Ridley Park, Pa., where the first new U.S. postal facility to have a solar energy system is situated.

Diamonds, precious stones and jewelry have appeared on postage stamps of many countries. But never before has a jewelry firm been honored and shown on a stamp. That is, until this year when the Netherlands Antilles commemorated the 50th anniversary of Spritzer and Fuhrmann, the largest jeweller in the Netherlands, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The company is designated as "Purveyor to Her Majesty Queen Juliana of the Netherlands."

The 20-cent stamp depicts the carillon of bells adorning the main buildings of Spritzer and Fuhrmann. The 40-cent stamp features the Caribbean archipelago as the center of the Americas. The highest value of 55 cents symbolizes the close tie between the company and the country.

The Republic of China on Taiwan has honored the 60th anniversary of the International Association of Lions Clubs with the issuance of two new stamps. The central design features the emblem of the Lions Club together with the 10 major activities promoted by this organization with activities in 148 countries. In China, the 60th anniversary has a special meaning. The Chinese calendar signs of "heavenly stems" and "earthly branches" form a cycle every 60 years.

The stamps are available from your local stamp dealer.

Sturgis Disputes Accusation; Bears No Malice To 'Friend'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Watergate burglar Frank Sturgis said Thursday he was trying to help, not hurt, a former CIA informant who claims Sturgis shot at President Kennedy the day of his assassination in Dallas.

Marita Lorenz, Cuban premier Fidel Castro's onetime lover, had Sturgis arrested Monday night on harassment charges as he entered her luxury East Side apartment.

Sturgis, who was security head of Castro's Air Force, won release from jail Wednesday night on $10,000 bail raised by friends, but said he bore no malice to his "friend," Miss Lorenz.

"I have tried to help this young lady who I have known for a long time," he said at a news conference arranged by his lawyer.

"There are elements behind her that have pressed her to do what she has done. It's something I'd like to find out myself."

Miss Lorenz reportedly has talked to the House Committee on Investigation about Sturgis' alleged link to the Kennedy assassination and her own role in a plot to kill Castro.

Sturgis said he first learned of her story from House Committee aide, Al Gonzalez, who allegedly asked him to check it out.

He said he came to New York Monday, however, at Miss Lorenz' request — with plane tickets she bought — to talk to her about her story. Police investigation of Sturgis' arrest said they too had learned she purchased the tickets.

Charro Takes Off 10 Years, Now 26

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Charro, the buxom Latin singer and wife Charroof band leader Xavier Cugat, says she is 10 years younger than her passport said she was.

The Spanish-born singer swore in an affidavit filed in federal court Wednesday that she was 26. Her Spanish passport said she was 36.

The affidavit was submitted as an amendment to her citizenship application. She was scheduled to be naturalized later this month.

U.S. District Judge Roger Foley approved the amendment.

Charro, legally Rosaria Pilar Martinez Molina Cugat, said in her amended declaration that she was born January 13, 1951 in Murcia, Spain.

Lubbock Man Named In Robbery

A man accused of stealing $140 from a motel maintenance man was charged Thursday with robbery.

Named in the charge was Curtis Pegues, 22, of 306 Sherman Ave. The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $15,000 bond.

Pegues is accused of robbing Jose Martinez, 29, about 4 p.m. Monday.

According to Martinez, an employee of the Sands Motel at 310 Ave. Q, a guest at the motel approached him to ask for a ride to the area of 10th Street and University Avenue.

Martinez said that he agreed to do the favor. He said that when he had driven to the requested area, the man suddenly asked if he had any money.

According to Martinez, the suspect grabbed Martinez's arm and stated, "Okay, let's have it."

The motel employee said he handed over $140. The man then jumped out of the car and ran toward some apartments, Martinez said.

In another case, Willie James Harris, 25, of 4205 E. 65th St., was charged with burglary of a habitation.

Harris is charged with the Oct. 22 burglary of the James Henry Moss residence at 4201 E. 64th St. A television set and shotgun were among items reportedly stolen.

Also Thursday, Jose Maria Deleon, 41, of 409 Ute St., was charged with possession of marijuana.

Firm To Investigate Cheap Electricity Ruling

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) is "very interested" in the Public Utilities Commission's formal encouragement of inter-company sales of cheap electricity, an SPS official said Thursday.

Carroll McDonald, SPS's Lubbock division manager, said the company will look into the commission's resolution, passed Wednesday, urging power companies across the state to begin sale negotiations.

No Lubbock Power and Light (LP&L) officials were available for comment.

SPS is not interconnected with any other Texas companies and so may not be affected by the commission encouragement, McDonald said.

He explained that other companies have been hesitant to link-up with SPS because it is an interstate company under the Federal Power Commission's jurisdiction.

The commission's resolution, sponsored by Alan Erwin, encourages power companies to study the feasibility of selling economy power to each other. Although no timetable for the studies was set, a commission spokesman said the issue will be considered again by the commission.

Contracts to sell economy power would have to be approved by the PUC, the spokesman added.

The three man commission also approved 2-1 a $44.1 million, 13.2 percent increase in electricity rates for Texas Electric Service Co.

Commissioner Garrett Morris argued unsuccessfully for a $32.2 million increase instead. He complained TESCO's customers are being assessed too high a portion of the cost of constructing new lignite and nuclear-powered plants.

Morris also suggested TESCO customers are entitled to credit for money the Fort Worth-based utility makes on sales of its cheap excess power to other utilities.

Erwin said state officials can determine how the proceeds from sales of excess power will be used when utilities began submitting contracts worked out by negotiators.

Erwin proposed the resolution pushing well-off utilities to sell electricity to other power companies as a way to curb spiraling costs in areas facing excessive fuel costs.

During September, for example, an Austin resident paid $47.48 for 1,000 kilowatts of electricity compared to $30.85 paid by a Fort Worth resident using the same amount of power.

Austin's municipal power generators were operating at near capacity, Erwin said, while more than 40 percent of TESCO's generating plant remained idle — "costing its ratepayers but benefitting them little."

TESCO officials and representatives of Houston Lighting & Power Co., Texas Power & Light, Dallas Power & Light, Gulf States Utility Co., El Paso Electric Service Co., Central Power & Light of Corpus Christi, West Texas Utility, and municipal utilities in Austin, San Antonio and Brownsville, endorsed the plan to push economy sales.

A spokesman for Central Power & Light and West Texas Utility said economy sales have saved Central customers more $6 million in the past two years and delayed the need for an increase in rates charged West Texas customers.

Frederick H. Ritts of Washington, attorney for Tex-La Electric Cooperatives, opposed the move, saying the Utility Commission lacks authority to issue such a directive without adopting a formal rule on economy sales.

"I think the resolution is a public statement of our desire to tell the utilities of this state to try to work in the direction of trying to furnish electricity as cheaply as possible to citizens of this state," said Commission Chairman George Cowden.

"We are paying through the nose for our own energy needs and if there is a way to reduce costs, we must identify it and utilize it," Erwin said.

United Way Needs Big Boost

The annual victory luncheon for the United Way fund-raising campaign, scheduled at noon today in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, may not be a celebration.

Campaign chairman Owen Gilbreath said today that the description of "victory luncheon" lacks validity because the goal has not been reached.

He said, "We must have a tremendous amount of activity occur prior to noon

Friday if we are really going to have a victory luncheon. There are many divisions over the top, others are far away from achieving their goal at this time. In order to have a successful campaign finished Friday, many, many people must put out super-human effort."

The campaign's third report meeting last week totaled 93 percent of the $1,461,822 goal. Since that time, said Gilbreath, another three percent has been added, leaving the campaign approximately $60,000 short.

The campaign's first report meeting on Oct. 10 brought in 58 percent of the goal. The second report meeting brought the total to 76 percent.

"With only a few percentage marks out and the gains we've shown at other report meetings, it looks easy. It's just at this point the money that is out is in small amounts and in many places. I challenge every volunteer to complete his work and bring it in Friday. Let's end this campaign on time as we have in preceding years," the campaign chairman said.

As in past report meetings, employee groups and volunteer teams are expected to qualify for individual awards. Also participating in the program will be Betty Tolley at the organ and the Five Flames.

Journalist Warns Of Press Problem

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A former White House press spokesman warned Wednesday that President Carter is "headed for a lot of trouble with the press."

George Reedy, who served as press secretary for former president Lyndon B. Johnson, said most recent American chief executives have started out pledging "an open, honest administration."

"But it all comes out as the same thing, not so much because presidents want to conceal the facts but because they want to shape them," Reedy said. "To politicians, a fact is something that must be reshaped to bring to reality their visions of a great society."

Only two Americans haven't had all-out battles with the press — Gerald Ford and William Henry Harrison.

Agents Seize Rare Birds

SAN PASQUAL, Calif. (AP) — Ten tiny Tahitian birds were being flown halfway around the world on Thursday — in an airplane. The rare blue lorries will be spending 90 days in the home of Rosemary Low in the London suburb of New Barnet before being returned to the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

The birds, native only to two South Pacific Islands, were seized by U.S. Customs Service agents on Oct. 8, when two men were arrested on smuggling charges. Because the birds are so rare, authorities agreed not to destroy them, as is usual practice.

Instead, they are being sent to Mrs. Low, a recognized expert on lorries, for care and quarantine to make sure they are free from disease before housing them in the San Diego park.

Capitol Leaves Up For Grabs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Anyone who wants souvenirs from the state Capitol can have some for free. The Utah Building Board is giving away leaves from the Capitol lawns — 10 truckloads of them.

The board decided it would be cheaper to give the leaves to anyone willing to pick them up than to have them hauled to the dump.

Randy Manning, Capitol facilities coordinator, said the leaves are in piles near the Capitol greenhouse. He said they are good for mulch or composting.

Film's Title Kept Secret

BEMIDJI, Minn. (AP) — Theater owner Bud Woodard wouldn't even tell his employees what film would be shown at the second benefit for the Beltrami County Senior Citizens Council.

Residents were "bombarding my help on the street" with questions about what film would be shown, Woodard said, but he kept the secret.

Officials say contributions to the council, which is trying to raise $200,000 for a multipurpose center in this northern Minnesota community of about 11,500, increased after the first benefit, which featured the X-rated "Erotic Adventures of Zorro." That sparked high interest in Wednesday night's "take a chance" benefit.

Woodard kept the audience guessing through one cartoon, then another, then a 20-minute wildlife feature. Finally, the feature attraction: "Saddles and Spurs," starring William Boyd as Hopalong Cassidy. The film was made in the 1940s, before movies were rated. But, Woodard said, "It would definitely be G-rated."

Youngster Subdues Angry Bull

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — When Beverly Birnbaum telephoned police to report that a bull was munching on a pine tree in the front yard of her home in this Kansas City suburb, five officers and two animal control officers responded.

Within two hours, the bull had flattened the pine tree, rammed Mrs. Birnbaum's car and an animal control truck and driven the officers and the homeowner into hiding, helplessly watching the bull continue to munch on nearby trees.

Then, 13-year-old Bobby England happened by. He picked up a board, approached the bull and gave it a healthy whack on the head. Subdued by the authoritative swat from the child, the bull was walked peacefully down the road to the home of its owner.

Couple Wed Over Paradise

LIVINGSTON, Mont. (AP) — It was a strange request, but the Rev. Ernie Meador honored it anyway. He married William Duffy and Romona Townsend in an airplane flying over the scenic Paradise Valley.

He said it was a "little crowded and awkward" in the Piper Cherokee. "But I wouldn't mind doing it again. We had a good time. It was a good ride."

Besides Meador and the happy couple, the six aboard the plane Sunday included the best man and a photographer. He said the ceremony took about 15 minutes but the plane ride lasted an hour.

Although the plane flew over the reception area before landing, the bride waited until she was on the ground to throw the bouquet.

Bug Target Of Car Thieves

SEATTLE (AP) — Around here, car thieves like Volkswagens.

"They're stealing these damn little Volkswagens all over the place," says a detective in the Seattle Police auto theft section.

VW owner Charles Harrah said his has been stolen twice in six months. His 1962 bug was damaged on one occasion, he said, when thieves "tried to run it off a hill" and left it dangling from a precipice.

Clayton Martin, another VW owner, said he was surprised when thieves nabbed his battered 1966 bug.

It was "just transportation" for somebody who found it easy to steal, he said. "That is the only justification I can think of. Nobody else would want my car."

Coaster Find Last Chance

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Reinhold Isaak's ranch is just the right distance from the foot of 6,325-foot MacDonald Pass for motorists who run out of gas coming over the pass to coast up to the ranch.

During the past 30 years, Isaak says he has helped many a motorist — giving them a little gasoline, inviting them in for coffee and calling tow trucks. The goodwill apparently has rubbed off on others.

Isaak said that in the 1950s a man ran out of gas and coasted up to the ranch. "I gave him a can with my initials on it. I told him to pass it on, just like I did, to somebody who needs it."

Seven years later, he said, another gasless car rolled up to his house.

"I looked at his gas can," Isaak said. "It had been banged around quite a bit. But it had my initials."

"I asked him where he got it," the rancher said. "He said somebody gave it to him in Michigan. Who knows where that can had been."

Yard Scrap Fell From Sky

BOSTON (AP) — The piece from the Eastern Airlines jet shuttle fell from the sky into Innocenzo Diccio's backyard when no one was looking.

Diccio didn't notice the jet's landing gear hatch Tuesday until his son pointed to what he thought was a "piece of scrap metal" in the grass.

The three-foot long aluminum nose gear door weighed about 25 pounds, Boston police said. An Eastern spokesman said the company was trying to determine the cause of the incident as the plane came into Boston from New York.

Space Suit Made For 'Bubble Boy'

HOUSTON (AP) — The scientists who sent man to the moon have developed a simple space suit that will permit a little Houston boy to wander from the womb-like plastic bubble in which he has lived for the six years of his life.

Researchers at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), using the knowledge gained through the many space projects, perfected a system whereby Little David can crawl down a plastic tunnel and into a germ-free suit that will make him an astronaut on his own planet.

It will permit him for the first time in his life to look out the window of his hospital room at the parking lot below, identify the cars that he had only known from pictures, and walk the corridors of the hospital to visit with other patients.

David suffers from a disease known as severe combined immune deficiency. His body has no defense against germs nor bacteria.

What would be the sniffles for a normal child would be death for David.

At a Thursday news conference, officials of the Baylor College of Medicine and the Johnson Space Center displayed the miniature space suit and backup system that will allow David to sit or stand at a desk with his teacher; play pitch with a rubber ball with his nine-year-old sister and to communicate more directly with his doctors, nurses and family.

Dr. Buford L. Nichols, David's attending physician, said: "This is an important feature in the cultural enrichment of the boy. He is now learning the concepts of space, developing physical skills which cannot be done within the bubble and is advancing the education for this very bright young child."

Bill Carmean, project director at NASA for the tiny space suit, said: "I think this shows how we can advance to mankind what we have learned in the space program. This simple space suit can be used, probably, for a variety of diseases. For example, the young leukemia patient who is quite vulnerable to infection during periods of regression."

The cost for development of the suit was $20,000.

The design of the suit was a spinoff from the Apollo lunar missions.

The suit is made of rubberized non-porous fabric similar to that used in life-afts.

For added protection, it is covered with a white silky material, identical to real space suit fabric. There are form-fitting rubber gloves and shoes, topped by a clear plastic bubble for the head, all in one piece.

There is a filter system and a large umbilical cord attached to a push cart that pumps air into the suit, giving it a slightly inflated appearance.

Little David can also ride on the push cart if he becomes tired.

Doctors said after David's first experience in the suit in late July, "he was so excited. He was so happy. The first thing he did was go look in a mirror at himself."

An eight-foot long tube leading to the space suit is connected to David's bubble by a large metal ring and chamber sealed off by more rings. The chamber is sterilized. David can cross to the sterilized tunnel to his space suit. The process is reversed when the boy returns to his isolation.

David spend his time between a sterilized bubble at home and one at the Texas Children's Hospital. He breathes filtered air, eats sterile food and has yet to feel the skin-to-skin touch of a mother's caress.

Doctors have refused to identify the parents.

at the edge of the familiar. The outside world is not at the edge of David's familiar. The mobile isolator will help David to grasp the concepts of space and size.

She said, "he is looking forward to walking on grass, although he won't be able to feel the grass. He is a child thirsting for knowledge."

The scientist showed a brief film of David's first experience in the mobile isolator.

In one scene, it showed his mother lifting him into her arms and hugging him.

Dr. Nichols said there is a ray of hope that David's body is building slowly the cells needed to protect him from the germs and bacteria.

He said, however, that this is "no more than a hope, but we are making some advancements. David has given us the opportunity to study this disease and to perhaps some day find an answer."

The doctor was asked if there was any hope that David would some day leave the bubble and he said: "There is always hope."

Nichols, who said that although David's three trips in the space suits, two for two-and-a-half hours and one for three, had been confined to the hospital, the future holds a visit to the zoo, to NASA and to a fire station, "because there is nothing David really wants to see more than a real fire engine."

Brynn Holcombe, a nurse who has worked with David over the years, said: "It took him a little time to decide to crawl down that tunnel out of the bubble and into the space suit. He was apprehensive, but once he did and once in the space suit, all you could see were those big, big eyes and a big, big smile."

He said to me, 'well, let's take a walk'."

Dr. Murdina Desmond, professor of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine, said, "we can only begin to teach children

According To FAA Concorde Flights Becoming Quieter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration said Thursday the first few flights of the British-French Concorde in and out of New York's John F. Kennedy airport were quieter than earlier tests at Washington's Dulles Airport.

The FAA said its readings were still inconclusive and were based on only three takeoffs and three landings since the supersonic jet began its trial service to JFK.

The figures are generally lower than readings taken in another survey at Dulles but those figures were compiled over the course of a year and covered 619 takeoffs and landings.

Meanwhile, the House environment subcommittee met without publicity Thursday to discuss a Concorde noise report prepared by its own investigators.

None of the conclusions given to the closed meeting were disclosed publicly, and subcommittee aides said they would not be released until approved by the parent Government Operations Committee.

The FAA figures on the Concorde experience at JFK showed that on departure from runway 31-L, the average effective perceived noise levels in decibels were 87.7 at Howard Beach and 107.5 at Belle Harbor.

On approaches, the decibel level at sites near the flight tracks was 99.7. At Dulles over the course of a year, departure noise levels have averaged 119.4 while landings have averaged 116.5.

In general, FAA believes the Concorde is twice as loud on takeoff as subsonic jets and about the same on landing.

The figures also showed that at Howard Beach a 707 jet on takeoff produced a reading of 95.8, louder than the Concorde.

Welfare Workers Accused Of Soliciting Recipients

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton said Thursday it was "shocking" to him for public welfare workers to go door-to-door soliciting new food stamp users.

Clayton cited the case of an El Paso regional officer of the Department of Human Resources who offered free dinners to welfare workers who brought in the most new food stamp recipients.

"This is all being done under the guise of helping the state's poor, but it is a blatant attempt to stuff more recipients on the rolls and to avoid any reduction in the work force (of the welfare department)," Clayton said in a statement.

There was no immediate comment from the Department of Human Resources.

Clayton said he had been informed about such practices from memorandums sent out by at least some regional directors of the state agency.

"What appears to be happening is that supervisors are telling their workers that their jobs are threatened by cutbacks if they can't increase the state's welfare rolls," Clayton said.

Clayton quoted from a memorandum he said was issued July 12 from the El Paso area by Antonio Ortiz, regional director of financial services. The memo said in part "we must increase our food stamp caseload to avoid a second reduction in force. . . I challenge every supervisor to be more creative in their own area and operate their own mini-outreach program with their present staff."

Clayton said that on Sept. 19 Ortiz again wrote all personnel to "take an active part in our efforts to reach each and every eligible family" and offering "a dinner for two to the employee with the most valid referrals by the end of October."

Clayton said "here we have state employees competing to see which one can do the most to swell the welfare rolls and win a dinner at state expense for doing it. . . In my opinion it is not the role of the Department of Human Resources to go out on the street and drag people and attempt to qualify them for welfare."

Federal Reserve Hits Expanding Money Supply

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's money supply, closely watched as an indicator of future inflationary trends and the source of a dispute between the Carter administration and federal banking officials, increased in the latest reporting week.

Such hikes, if not quickly checked, are believed by many economists to foreshadow an increased rate of inflation. The latest money-supply boost was expected by analysts, however.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York Thursday reported that the narrowly defined measurement, known as M1, rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $334.6 billion in the week ended Oct. 26 from $333.2 billion the previous week. The broader money supply measurement, M2, increased to an average of $801 billion from $798.9 billion a week ago.

The money supply has been generally on the increase in recent months, and the Fed has been active in the money markets in an attempt to slow the growth by tightening credit.

Two weeks ago, the White House criticized the actions of the Fed, but the independent agency has continued to actively set and try to reach money-market goals.

The Fed reportedly has been draining reserves from the market, and in some cases, later replacing the reserves.

Its actions led Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., to say in a floor speech Thursday that Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns' "analysis of what ails" the economy "is seriously defective and his conclusions about what we should do about these ailments are misleading and wrong."

He said the Fed should "base its monetary policies on the real needs of the economy—not to rigidly pursue monetary growth targets that may be inadequate to the realities of today's economy."

For the latest four weeks, M1—the total of checking account deposits plus currency in circulation—averaged $334.1 billion. That is a 9.1 percent rate of gain from 13 weeks ago.

M2, which includes currency in circulation plus all private bank accounts except those large ones represented by certi-rates, averaged $799.8 billion in the four weeks, an 8.5 percent rate of increase.

In the Fed's report on key interest rates for the week, federal funds averaged 6.50 percent, up from 6.49 percent the previous week. Three-month Treasury bill rates averaged 6.14 percent, up from 6.11 percent.

The average rate on 90-to-119-day dealer-placed commercial paper declined to 6.55 percent from 6.57 percent a week earlier.

Commercial and industrial loans at major New York banks rose $156 million in the week ended Wednesday, compared with a rise of $386 million the previous week and a gain of $342 million at the same time last year.

Solon's Expense Accounts To Get Many Restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee has voted new restrictions on how congressmen can spend their expense account money.

Renting a tuxedo is out. So is paying for flowers, trophies or greeting cards. No more giving money away in the form of donations.

The new regulations follow by less than a month a report by the House clerk on how congressmen were using their expense accounts. That report showed some congressmen used their taxpayer-provided expense money to entertain constituents, buy automobile insurance, pay bar association dues and, in one case, rent a tuxedo.

It also showed congressmen using expense accounts to send flowers and greeting cards and award trophies to constituent groups.

"These new regulations provide members with a basic set of guidelines on which to base their own decisions as to which expenditures of their offices are 'official expenses,'" said Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., chairman of the House administration committee.

"They are intended to take the 'guess work' out of the system."

The committee, which approved the new rules Wednesday, will continue reviewing expense account regulations, staff members said.

The committee also voted to consolidate nine existing House expense account funds into two accounts to simplify book-keeping and continued the requirement for all expenditures to be reported publicly.

The new rules permit House members to use their expense account allowances for "ordinary and necessary business expenses incurred in support of ... official and representational duties."

House members will be prohibited from using their expense money for the following:

— Expenses relating to the hiring of staff, including paying employment service fees.

— Expenses relating to purchase or rental of items "having an extended useful life" or a value of greater than $25 at the end of a congressman's term. Purchases from the House stationery store are not covered by the rule.

— Expenditures for holiday greeting cards, flowers or trophies.

— Expenditures for newspaper advertisements other than those announcing meetings.

— Donations of any type.

— Dues or assessments made to groups other than congressional support organizations, such as the Democratic Study Group.

— Educational expenses of congressional staff members where the House would not benefit or if the training is generally available. This would prohibit House members from sending an employee to secretarial school, but would permit aides to receive specialized education.

— Purchase of time on radio or television.

Sales Jump Of 19 Percent Announced By Auto Makers

DETROIT (AP) — The "Big Four" auto makers said Thursday that October domestic sales jumped 19 percent from the strike-hurt year-earlier period to the third-best mark ever for the month.

The carmakers delivered 869,920 autos last month. The daily rate, the industry's yardstick in computing sales, was 33,458.

The record for the month was set in 1971, followed by the second-best total in 1972. Last year, monthly sales were 730,216. However, a United Auto Workers strike sent Ford Motor Co. sales plummeting during the period. There were 26 selling days in both October 1976 and 1977.

General Motors Corp. sales gained 10 percent this October from a year earlier. Ford sales were up 34 percent; Chrysler Corp.'s 11 percent; but American Motors Corp.'s lost 31 percent.

An industry analyst called the monthly figures "nothing spectacular, but certainly acceptable.... Neither GM or Chrysler is crying in their beer about 10 percent increases. But AMC has to be in the dumps."

The industry observer said the real gain from last year, minus the effects of the UAW strike at Ford, was about 9 percent.

Import sales totals were not immediately available.

General Motors, the nation's largest auto maker, reported October sales of 485,637, or 18.678 a day. It was GM's best October since 1972.

So far this calendar year, GM's sales are up 10 percent from last year to 4,345,594. About 56 percent of all cars sold in the United States are GM models.

Ford, which had depressed sales figures in October 1976 because of the month-long UAW strike, reported deliveries last month of 235,481 for a daily rate of 9,826.

For the calendar year to date, Ford's sales are up nearly 14 percent to 2,145,566. Its market share for 1977 is 28 percent.

"October was an excellent sales month," said Bennett Bidwell, Ford's vice president for sales. "Our total sales were at record rates for the month, with trucks a strong record and cars within one percent of their previous high."

Chrysler's sales in October rose to 113,568 for a daily rate of 4,368. The nation's third-largest carmaker is off 4 percent in year-to-date sales at 1,062,122. It holds 14 percent of the market for 1977.

American Motors' sales for the month were down to 15,235, or 586 a day. For the year, AMC is off nearly 24 percent from last year's pace to 156,819. It holds 2 percent of the domestic market so far this year.

But the company said sales of its new luxury intermediate, the Concord, were high.

"The luxury AMC Concord demand continues to grow in every section of the country and production is rapidly being increased to meet demand," said Dale Dawkins, AMC vice president of marketing. "As output increases, retail sales will build."

Court Rejects Newton's Federal Records Plea

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Thursday turned down Black Panther leader Huey Newton's efforts to gain access to documents and records of five federal agencies.

It denied without comment his request that it order a lower court to issue subpoenas which would provide him such information.

Plainview Jaycees Slate Motor-Cross

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The Plainview Jaycees Gran Prix Moto-Cross will be held Sunday in Running Water Draw Park at the intersection of I-27 bypass and U.S. 70 here. Race time is 2 p.m.

The moto-cross course will consist of varying track surfaces including paved and dirt roads, plus hills.

Competition will be held in four size categories — 100-125 c.c., 126-200 c.c., 201-250 c.c. and 251 c.c.-open. All contestants' motorcycles are required to have spark arrestors and silencers, but need not be street legal.

Entry blanks may be obtained by contacting the Plainview Jaycees, P.O. Box 1056, Plainview, Tex. 79072.

An overnight camping area will be available for contestants, their families and other race fans.

The state Court of Appeal rejected a similar petition Oct. 21.

Newton faces trial on charges of murder and assault in connection with an Aug. 6, 1974 shooting which resulted in the death of a 17-year-old girl and the Aug. 16, 1974 beating of his tailor.

He has been trying to obtain federal records on surveillance of his activities to back his claim that pressure of the surveillance had a bearing on his part in the events for which he is to be tried.

Newton has alleged there is "a massive law enforcement conspiracy to disrupt, discredit and destroy" him and the Black Panthers.

The agencies involved are the U.S. attorney's office, the federal Organized Crime Strike Force, the FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency and the Treasury Department's Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division.

Increasing Reliance On Oil Imports Predicted

NEW YORK (AP) — The growth rate of energy consumption and the actual amount of gasoline used in the United States will decrease through the 1980s, but the nation nevertheless will become increasingly reliant on imports, according to a study released Thursday.

The report, by the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, contradicted some important elements of President Carter's energy plan, and disagreed with some estimates made by government agencies and industry officials since Carter's plan was introduced last April.

One of the prime goals of the President's plan is a reduction of oil imports from the average 8.5 million barrels a day this year to 6 million barrels a day by 1985.

But the foundation estimated that imports in 1985 will be around 9.6 million barrels a day.

"It's not just that his plan is not being accepted by Congress. The plan itself could never achieve the President's goal," said John H. Lichtblau, executive director of the foundation, which is partially supported by oil-industry funds but has a reputation for independence.

The General Accounting Office estimates the 1985 level of imports at 11.9 million to 12.9 million barrels a day, and Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil firm, estimates it at 12.5 million.

The foundation predicted that the high prices for oil and government programs would cut the growth rate of energy demand between now and 1985 to about 2.1 per cent from the current 4.3 per cent. The President said his plan would result in a growth rate below 2 per cent.

All of the foundation's predictions were based on a lower level of general economic growth during the period than the level assumed by the administration. Generally, a lower level of economic growth would be expected to result in reduced growth of energy demand.

The report said that gasoline demand, after a modest increase during the next two years, would decline through the 1980s and by 1990 would match the demand of 1976 despite the fact that there would be 40 percent more vehicles on the road.

The foundation said the projection was "based entirely on more efficient gasoline utilization in new cars from 1978 on, as mandated by existing legislation, and a growing switch from gasoline to diesel engines beginning in the early 1980s because of the latter's much higher fuel efficiency."

The report also predicted:

—Coal supply and demand will rise at more than three times the historic growth rate. "Coal's limitations will be on the demand rather than the supply side; that is, the U.S. energy market will not be able to absorb all the coal that could be produced."

—Nuclear power will show the fastest growth rate of any energy source, contributing more than 11 percent of the total U.S. energy supply by 1990, compared to less than 3 percent in 1976.

—Natural gas will not be in short supply in the residential market even over the next 4-5 years when supplies will continue to decline.

Investment Figures Reveal Caution Among Businessmen

NEW YORK (AP) — American businesses will increase investments in new plants and equipment by 11 percent next year, but this is not necessarily a sign that the economy will improve, a new report said Thursday.

The semi-annual survey by McGraw-Hill Publication Co.'s Economics Department said businesses will spend $153.11 billion in 1978 for new plants and equipment, an 11 percent increase over this year.

However, real gain, after adjusting for a projected 8 percent inflation rate for capital goods, will be about 3 percent, said Douglas Greenwald, vice president of the Economics Department.

"I would say I was disappointed at the figures," Greenwald said. "I thought it would be bigger. But there's a lot of uncertainty about the energy program and tax proposals and so on, and businesses are cautious."

"Counting inflation, the rate of growth is only 3 percent, and that's very low," Greenwald said. "Everybody is counting on capital investment next year to help the economy. From what companies are telling us, that 3 percent figure is low and not a very positive element for the economy, as I would interpret it."

He said the outlook for the steel industry is not as bleak for next year as this year" and that "more steel will be sold in the U.S. next year than this year."

The survey reflects the current plans of companies in 25 major industry groups. It said that most industries expect to pay 8 percent more on the average for capital goods they buy in 1978.

The survey also indicated there would be a 5 percent jump in prices manufacturers will charge for the goods and services they sell next year.

"Every major industry expects a 1978 sales rise in dollar terms," Greenwald said in the report.

The range in forecasts for sales gains runs from 14 percent in the steel industry to 8 percent for nonferrous metals, electrical machinery, food and nondurables such as the apparel, leather, tobacco, printing and publishing industries, the survey said.

"While impressive dollar sales figures are partially reduced by inflation, the physical volume of sales will continue to increase," the survey said. "After adjustment for price increases all except one industry expect a gain in physical volume of sales next year." The exception is the nonferrous metals industry, which forecasts no change in unit sales.

Companies reporting in the survey account for more than two-thirds of all capital spending in the group of industries where capital investment is the highest, the survey said. The companies employ nearly 12 million persons — 48 percent of total employment in all industry.

New Factory Orders Rise 0.4 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — New factory orders rose 0.4 percent in September as businesses spent more money to install equipment, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

Virtually all of the increase was confined to the durable goods industries, which increased 0.9 percent from August. Nondurable goods orders were unchanged.

Economists were encouraged by an 8.7 percent increase in orders for non-defense capital goods, the largest increase since a 9.3 percent rise in July 1976. This segment is an important indicator of business confidence in the economy because it measures long-term investments.

Contributing most to the increase were communications equipment, aircraft parts, shipbuilding and railroad equipment. For the quarter, however, non-defense capital goods were $45 billion, down slightly from $45.2 billion in the second quarter but up from $43.4 billion in the first quarter.

Among increase in the durable goods industries were electrical machinery, household appliances, communications equipment and aircraft.

The total of $112 billion in new factory orders, adjusted for seasonal variation, was 1.1 percent higher than the total a year ago.

Shipments of manufactured products increased 0.2 percent, as a $400-million increase in durable goods was partially offset by a $200-million decline in non-durable goods.

Inventories held by manufacturers rose 0.7 percent to $176.4 billion, also because of more demand for durable goods.

Inventories have risen 5.9 percent, from $166.6 billion in December 1976 to $176.4 billion in September 1977, the Commerce Department said.

As a result, the ratio of inventories to shipments has remained virtually unchanged, 1.59 in December 1976 and 1.58 in September 1977.

Scientists Study Ions' Effect On Behavior

By HAL AIGNER
Pacific News Service

Why is it that a walk by the sea or a visit to a waterfall can be so invigorating while a day in the city can leave you tired and irritable even when you've been relaxing?

Research conducted for two decades at the University of California, Berkeley, under the direction of Dr. Albert Paul Krueger, professor emeritus of biometeorology, suggests the answer may lie in understanding electrical balances in the air and the role played by ions.

Ions are tiny clusters of airborne gases attached to a negative or positive electrically charged molecule. They occur freely in nature, generated from many sources, including cosmic rays and ultraviolet radiation, energy emissions from radioactive substances in soil and rock, the spray from waterfalls and the crash of surf on coastal shores.

Despite their infinitesimal size, these ions are capable of producing strange and powerful physiological and psychological effects, according to previous studies by Dr. Felix Sulman of Israel and others. This is true particularly for the 15-30 percent of the population that especially weather sensitive.

Now, on the basis of 75 research papers from his own laboratory and several thousand papers detailing the work of fellow ion researchers in other countries, Dr. Krueger can attest to a long list of these ion effects—a list that is both unnerveing and encouraging.

Air laden with positive ions is damaging to humans and some other animals tested. Inhalation of excessive doses may cause aching joints, insomnia, irritability, hot and cold flashes, diarrhea, vertigo and inhibited delivery of oxygen to various parts of the body.

In positive-ion heavy air, sinuses turn against hay fever victims. Asthmatics develop lung congestions. Secretaries and bosses snap at each other. Elderly people become depressed, apathetic, fatigued.

But negatively charged atmospheric ions, supplied in modest quantities of from 3000 to 5000 per cubic centimeter of air, relieve all of those symptoms. In addition, they stimulate increased energy, exhilaration, spontaneous activity, greater sexual inclination and enjoyment and improved mental alertness in psychomotor performance.

In negative ion-laden air, psychoneurotic and somatic complaints have been known to disappear, viral and bacterial growths, including influenza, are severely retarded, and burns heal faster with fewer scars. Houseplants thrive.

Also, there appear to be no detrimental side effects from negative ions in any dosage. Says Dr. Krueger: "As far as negative ions are concerned, I don't know of any limit. No one has shown any adverse effects."

Generally, both kinds of ions are generated together. There are places and times, however, where they occur unevenly.

At waterfalls and near ocean surf, the positive ions tend to sink down in larger drops of water while the negative ones rise with the spray and therefore occur densely in the surrounding atmosphere.

In desert and mountain regions during certain legendary ill winds, positive ions are overabundant. Such winds are the Rocky Mountains' chinook, the Mideast's sharav, and the foehn of the Northern Alpine Valley. In Southern California, there is the Santa Ana, described by Raymond Chandler in a short story "Red Wind".

"There was a desert wind blowing that night. It was one of those hot dry Santa Anas that come down through the mountain passes and curl your hair and make your nerves jump and your skin itch. On nights like that every booze party ends in a fight. Meek little wives feel the edge of the carving knife and study their husbands' necks. Anything can happen."

One explanation holds that as winds blow through arid areas, they stir up dust and lose their negative charge, for dust and other particulates leech out negative ions. As they breeze into populated areas, they then poison bodies and souls with a surplus of the positive.

Cities tend to duplicate man of the natural conditions that favor positive ions. Urban pollutants react with ions in much the same way as natural particulates. Auto exhaust, factory fumes, tire dust and tobacco smoke all drain the beneficial electricity out of the downtown environment and leave the detrimental behind.

In addition, cities tend to create large pockets of air with no ions at all. Plastics, synthetic fibers and other objects that pick up electrical charges remove ions from the air. So do the metal ducts covering heating and air conditioning outlets, and so do metal screens.

The Soviets have experimented with raising mice in an ion-depleted atmosphere. Within a few weeks, all of them died.

The Japanese have found that ion-depleted air can induce somnolence and depression.

Unlike other grim environmental reports, however, this one points to a hopeful development: Electronic designers have developed several models of low-cost negative ion generators, ranging from small devices for personal use to major factory systems.

A Swiss bank installed one and reported that employee work days lost to respiratory illnesses dropped markedly.

But there's a problem. The history of ion generator sales is not unblemished. During the 1950s, similar devices were marketed under spurious claims. They were, for example, hawked as cancer medicine. The federal Food and Drug Administration clamped down and has not lifted its ban on the machine yet—which explains why new ions and their effects hasn't much left the lab and seeped into the popular consciousness.

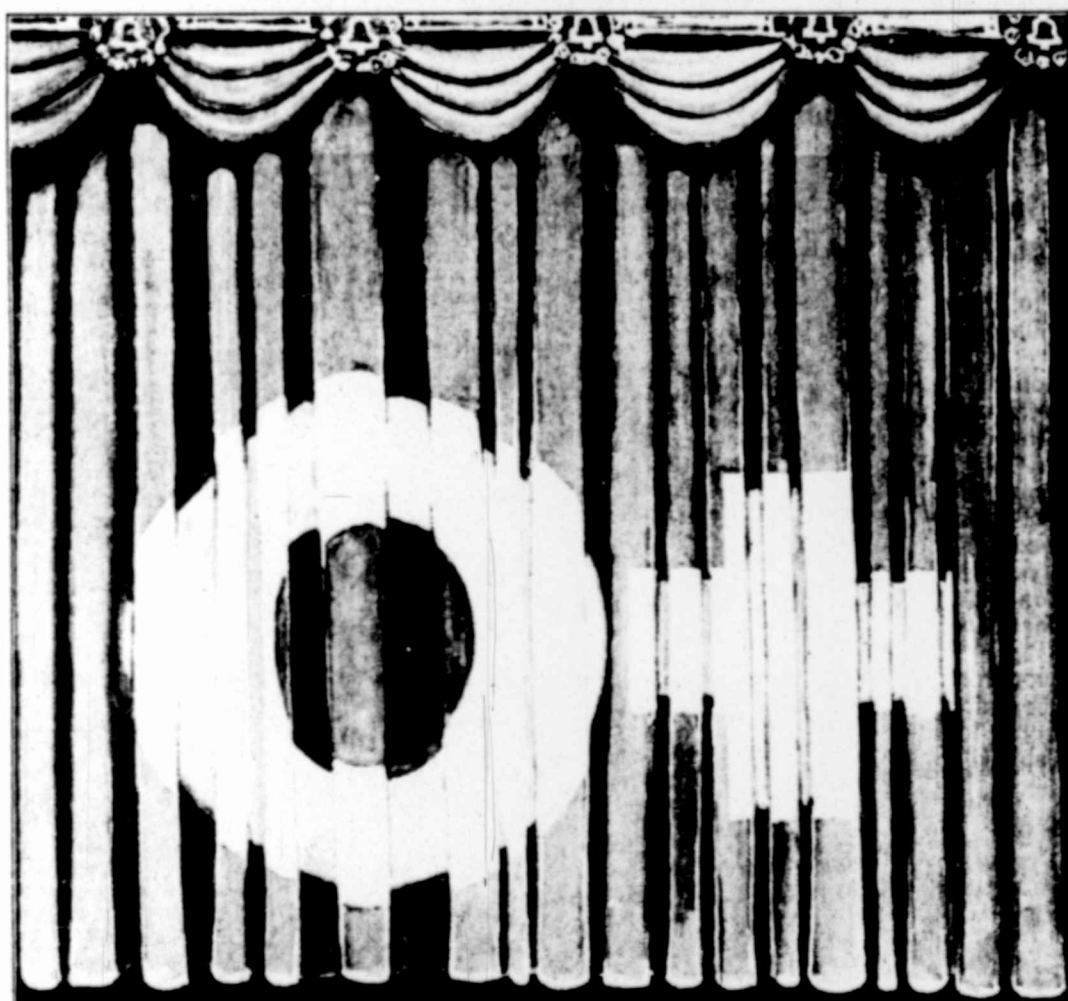

As scientific data continues to accumulate, however, Dr. Krueger predicts that "There's every reason to expect engineers and environmentalists to get together and supply us with air that is not only pollutant free but also has the air ion level and charge restored to that which prevails in nature."

If your phone number begins with 745, 746, 742, 743 or 828 . . . you can make Zero-Plus long distance calls beginning November 7.

You're already accustomed to dialing your own station-to-station long distance calls the fast and convenient One-Plus way. Beginning November 7, with Zero-Plus dialing you will also be able to dial your own collect, person-to-person, credit card and bill-to-third-number long distance calls.

How Zero-Plus Dialing works

Just dial "0" (zero), plus the Area Code if it's different from yours, plus the distant number. When the operator comes on the line and asks, "How may I help you?" explain the type of call you've dialed and give the necessary information. (Regular operator-handled rates apply for all Zero-Plus calls.)

For calls you dial within your Area Code, just dial "0" plus the distant number. You don't need to dial the Area Code.

ZERO-PLUS

Dial 0 (Zero) + the Area Code (if different from your own) + the number. Use for Collect, Person-to-Person, Credit Card and Bill-to-Third-Number calls.

Georgian Leading OMB After Lance Resigns

ATLANTA (AP) — Bert Lance has made his exit from the Washington scene but his old department, the federal Office of Management and Budget, is still in the hands of a Georgian.

Jim McIntyre, a 36-year-old native of Vidalia, is running the key federal agency as deputy director, and there has been speculation that President Carter will name him director.

It would not be the first time McIntyre served as Carter's budget chief. He ran the Georgia Office of Planning and Budget during Carter's tenure as governor of the state, while Lance was serving as head of the Georgia highway department.

"I'm not campaigning for the job," McIntyre said in a recent telephone interview.

"I'm not trying to be another Bert Lance. There's no one who can replace Bert. I'm trying to be Jim McIntyre and do the best I know how. The future of the directorship is entirely up to the president," he said.

Like many of the other Georgians serving in the Carter administration, McIntyre is loyal to the boss. He puts in long hours and is a member of the old Carter team that ran state affairs in the Georgia Capitol for four years and then moved into the White House.

Short and somewhat bookish looking, McIntyre does not possess the outgoing personality and booming voice of a Bert Lance. He is an intense man who can occasionally relax by exchanging barbed comments with those he knows well.

"He is level headed, competent and an excellent administrator," said one former co-worker at the Georgia Capitol, where McIntyre was still head of the budget department under Carter's successor, Gov. George Busbee, when he was offered the job in Washington.

In presenting Carter's and then Busbee's budget proposals to an often critical legislature, McIntyre never forgot he was the governor's man. He never went soft on a position," said the co-worker.

"He wasn't loved by the legislature, but respected. He was not the type to get into fights. He handled himself in controversy without getting into personal disputes."

Now McIntyre is running the federal budget agency, concentrating on Carter's budget for the 1979 fiscal year and on reorganization. As with the budget, it is not the first time McIntyre has worked for Carter on reshuffling government agencies.

When Carter set about reorganizing Georgia's state government, he assembled a team of aggressive young planners, accountants and lawyers. McIntyre, a lawyer, served as a legal advisor and legislation writer for state reorganization.

A graduate of Young Harris College and the University of Georgia, McIntyre's first job was with the Institute of Law and Government at the University. Later he became general counsel for the Georgia Municipal Association.

In 1970 McIntyre was named deputy state revenue commissioner and in late 1972 became director of the state Office of Planning and Budget.

The obvious difference between what he had been doing for Carter-the governor and what he is doing for Carter-the President is that the issues involved are much more complex and the monetary figures are far more staggering.

"The federal budget is very much an instrument of fiscal policy, and budgetary decisions have a real impact on our economy. I'm not sure that was true to the same extent in Georgia," McIntyre commented.

"Issues are extremely complex. A number of alternatives have to be carefully thought through, particularly policy implications."

Even with the complexity, he said, "I'm enjoying it. I'm having a good time."

And, he said, he's too busy to make future plans.

PIDGIN TALK

Pidgin English, spoken by an estimated 50 million people around the world, originated in the 17th century when traders along the South China coast bartered for tea, silks, ivory, and jade. "Pidgin" reputedly is the Chinese contraction of "business English." At least three-fourths of the words are derived from English but their pronunciation has been so changed and the grammar so simplified that only students of pidgin English can understand it.

COTTON SPINNING FOR DENIM—Mrs. Roy B. Davis of Lubbock, whose late husband helped inspire the American Cotton Growers (ACG) concept, recently visited textile operations at the ACG mill in Littlefield. Bobby Jones, a plant supervisor, explained the open-end yarn spinning process, one of the first steps in turning raw cotton fiber into denim.

European Denim Market Eyed By Cooperative

By KETH HENLEY

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer
LITTLEFIELD — American Cotton Growers (ACG), a 3,000-member cotton cooperative on the High Plains, has initiated a campaign to market denim in Europe.

The popular fabric, manufactured at the organization's mill here, currently is being turned out at an average of 400,000 square yards a week.

Chief customer for the mill's production is Levi Strauss and Co. which presently takes about 65 per cent of the output.

"We believe this percentage can be inched upward over time," a spokesman said. "but we still have a fairly large amount of yardage (non-Levi), considering the mill produces enough denim each week to stretch nearly 230 miles — from Lubbock to Amarillo and back."

Fred Eddins of Littlefield, assistant manager of the ACG textile division, has been named denim sales manager for the effort to move non-Levi-designated inventories into the European market. He returned this week from a visit to prospective buyers.

Eddins noted that higher prices for oil has materially affected the economies of the European continent. Inflation has dulled the denim market as well as that of many other commodities, he added.

In addition, some countries insist that their domestic factories use "home-manufactured" denim and even impose "invisible" tariffs to enforce the policy, said

Eddins.

However, Europeans have an attraction to American-style jeans manufactured from first grade denim, he said, and cutters on the continent very much like the appearance of High Plains denim.

"My trip essentially was to establish the identity of American Cotton Growers as a major manufacturer of superior grade denim," Eddins explained. "Many European users were impressed with our unique 'field-to-denim' operation and indicated their preference of dealing directly with the manufacturer."

"It will take some time but I believe we can interest European cutters in our fabric and this will be a good market for us," he predicted.

The sales trip was preceded by a mailing campaign of promotional material, including swatches of ACG denim and a booklet entitled "The Denim Farmers of West Texas."

"Europeans are fascinated by their impression of the rugged west and Texas," said C. L. Boggs of Lubbock, ACG general manager, and they have a terrific attraction to heavyweight jeans. So our campaign is keyed to a 'West Texas' theme.

"We believe the overall image that our association portrays can be a distinct advantage — that of 3,000 West Texas cotton producers who have built their own first class denim mill and are turning out a superior grade of denim in a field-to-denim operation."

"We believe we can do well in Europe once our identity is established," he added.

Some of the tough, blue fabric from the Lamb County mill already is moving into the European market this fall, Boggs said. Textile concerns in West Germany and France currently have denim enroute.

Additionally, a large U. S. manufacturer recently purchased 500,000 square yards in a single order, he said.

"Inquiries are beginning to pick up," Boggs noted, "and I feel our sales program will soon produce results."

Ginners Study Module Systems

With the amount of cotton stored in modules more than doubling this year, gin managers need to carefully plan their handling systems to take advantage of the efficiencies of moduling, says Herb Willcutt, Cotton Inc. (CI) manager of agricultural research implementation in Raleigh, N.C.

"Last year, some seven per cent of the U.S. cotton crop was stored temporarily in either modules or racks," says Willcutt. "This year, as much as 17 to 20 per cent of the crop will be handled with module equipment."

"With this change in methods of handling seedcotton, ginners are faced with a different set of management decisions," he explains. "Decisions that ginners make now will affect whether they can take full advantage of the increased gin plant efficiency that comes with moduling."

"Moduling cotton allows the gin to operate at a constant rate, thereby reducing the gin's unit cost," says Willcutt. "With the longer ginning season that comes with moduling, the ginner can make more efficient use of his machinery and labor."

Because seedcotton storage relieves pressure on the gin during the peak harvesting period, the gin can better serve its customers and can even accommodate more customers without altering the existing physical plant, he says.

"However, to take advantage of the benefits of moduling, the ginner must work closely with his customers. He should know the handling system each one plans to use, as well as knowing those producers who might become his customers."

The gin communities that have benefited most by the moduling system have been those that planned their handling and ginning systems in advance, taking into account the comparative advantages to the producers, the custom harvester, and the ginner, says Willcutt.

He outlines twelve areas where ginners need to plan their ginning operation to handle modules:

—Plan for a mixture of seedcotton storage and ginning to accommodate the customer's harvesting capacities and the gin's ginning capacity. Plan a ginning schedule so that each producer has a part of his crop ginned at least every three days to prevent possible reduction in quality because of high moisture content, high temperature or other problems.

—Keep in mind that new handling systems require a better trained yard crew to load and handle the modules. Some managers gin modules during the day because usually the day crew is better trained.

Other managers gin modules at night because the larger loads of the modules require fewer trips in the dark. When a gin is using both a module system and a trailer system, it is best to have the same crew handling the same system continually to avoid retraining each crew.

However, at least one person on each crew should be familiar with both systems in case there is a need to switch systems during a shift to keep ginning.

—When a gin is preparing to switch from ginning from trailers to ginning from modules, with an automatic feed system, load the automatic gin feeder to capacity and have another module ready on a transport vehicle.

—Be prepared for changing harvest conditions to change the mix of modules and trailers coming into the gin.

With a module system, a producer is not restricted by the number of trailers available, so he might harvest a large volume of high moisture cotton right after a rain. This puts added pressure on the gin to gin the wet cotton quickly.

—On the other hand, during adverse weather the volume of seedcotton arriving on trailers is low. Also, more than an inch of rain may delay the hauling of modules from the fields.

So have at least two days of ginning on modules in the gin yard for such slack period.

—Coordinate hauling of modules from fields according to gin yard and gin plant capacities and insurance coverage. Plan for long hauls by holding enough modules on the yard to keep ginning at a steady pace.

Where possible, haul directly from field to feed station to avoid the extra cost of hauling. Extend suction telescopes so that a module can be set on the floor and ginned while the transporter retrieves another.

For longer hauls, an alternative is to stockpile modules on the yard, then take one module from the field, and one from the yard. This cuts down on the number of transport vehicles needed.

In any system, have a back-up trailer or transporter in case of machinery failure.

Plan the gin yard to accommodate modules and trailers separately, since modules require at least 50 feet additional space at one end to be retrieved.

—Block modules according to insurance coverage and restrictions and keep a record on file of the weight of each module, module numbers and location of each module. Such records will facilitate submission of claims in case of fire.

Where insurance coverage is on a fixed dollar value per group of modules, follow the market to ensure that rising prices do not cause you to exceed the insured value for a group.

—To avoid fires, allow three days to a week after harvesting before moving a module to the gin yard for storage. Most fires from harvesters will surface in this time. Keep transport equipment in good repair and use diesel power where possible to avoid sparks.

Before unloading, check modules for any cigarette butts that might have been thrown on them during transport and have a yard man inspect stored modules at least once a day for fire. Locate the yard away from possible sources of fire and keep the yard clear of trash and loose cotton.

—Plan the gin yard so that the module gets maximum exposure to sunlight. Align the module in a north-south direction to cut down on shade. Leave two feet between modules.

Have a yard man check and remove modules with ponded water on tarps. Remove banked snow from the sides and sweep snow from the top.

—Advise the producer if his modules need more compaction, if his modules are high in moisture content, or when there are other difficulties. Tightly packed modules handle better.

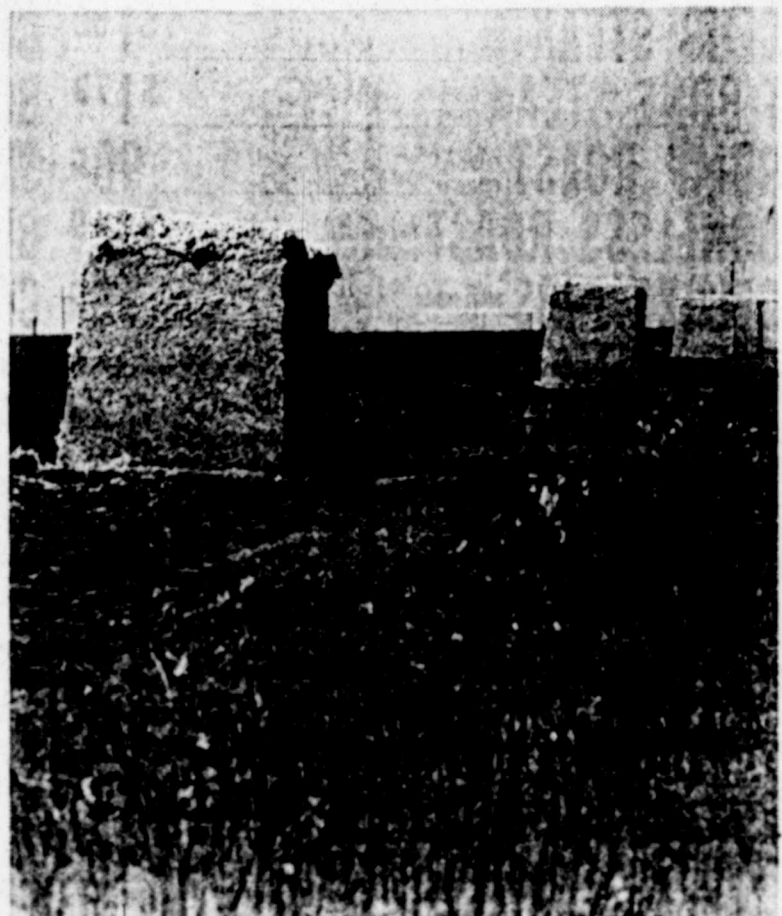

Sometimes the most expensive cup of coffee is the one the producer did not have because he rushed out in the field in the morning before his cotton had adequately dried. Damp cotton costs both the farmer and the ginner.

—The producer should coordinate the sale of stored cotton with the gin. Some growers need to have a portion of their crop ginned by a specified date so they can repay bank loans or close out their books for the fiscal year. Check with the customer to find out what his needs are and work out a way to accommodate his needs in the overall plan.

—Because of the savings to the gin by storing cotton, some gins pay growers several dollars for every bale stored, especially if the producers own most of the seedcotton storage equipment. In some cases, if the gin owns the storage equipment, it may charge a fee for financial compensation in advance.

Willcutt points out that research shows modules can increase gin plant efficiency by about 35 percent, regardless of the feeding system used.

However, he adds, "Unless a gin manager is careful about how he organizes his handling system, he could lose that 35 percent advantage that comes with a module system."

POPULAR STORAGE METHOD — Cotton modules, such as these on Ronnie Darby's farm southeast of Lubbock, have become a popular method of storing cotton in the field until it is ready to be ginned. This year, it is estimated that as much as 20 percent of the U. S. cotton crop will be handled by module equipment, up from seven percent a year earlier. (Staff Photo by Holly Kuper)

Corn Harvest Near Completion

WASHINGTON (AP) — This fall's corn harvest, currently estimated at a record 6.3 billion bushels, was about 70 percent finished by Oct. 30, according to the Agriculture Department.

Officials said this week in a weather review that planting of winter wheat also neared completion during the week of Oct. 24-30, including a boost from rains in parts of Texas, California, Washington and Oregon where dry soils had delayed seeding.

The corn harvest pace of 70 percent was about 4 percentage points behind a year ago but well ahead of average for this time of year, the report said.

As of Oct. 30, about 70 percent of the Illinois corn crop was harvested, compared with 65 a year ago. Other states and harvest progress compared with a year ago included: Indiana 65 percent and 55; Iowa 71 and 81; Kansas 85 and 70; Kentucky 71 and 65; Michigan 35 and 61; Minnesota 85 and 94; Missouri 67 and 81; Nebraska 70 and 75; Ohio 50 and 45; South Dakota 60 and 95; and Wisconsin 60 and 80.

The sorghum harvest was about 80 percent harvested compared with 83 percent a year ago, and soybeans 67 percent against 75 a year ago. The cotton crop in the 11 southern states was 60 percent picked by Oct. 30, compared with 31 percent a year ago.

9,448 Cotton Bales Ginned

A-J Correspondent

PADUCAH—A total of 9,448 bales from the 1977 cotton crop for Cottle and King counties had been ginned by Tuesday night, with 826 bales left in trailers on gin yards.

Panhandle Compress and Warehouse Co. reported they had weighed in 8,179 of these bales.

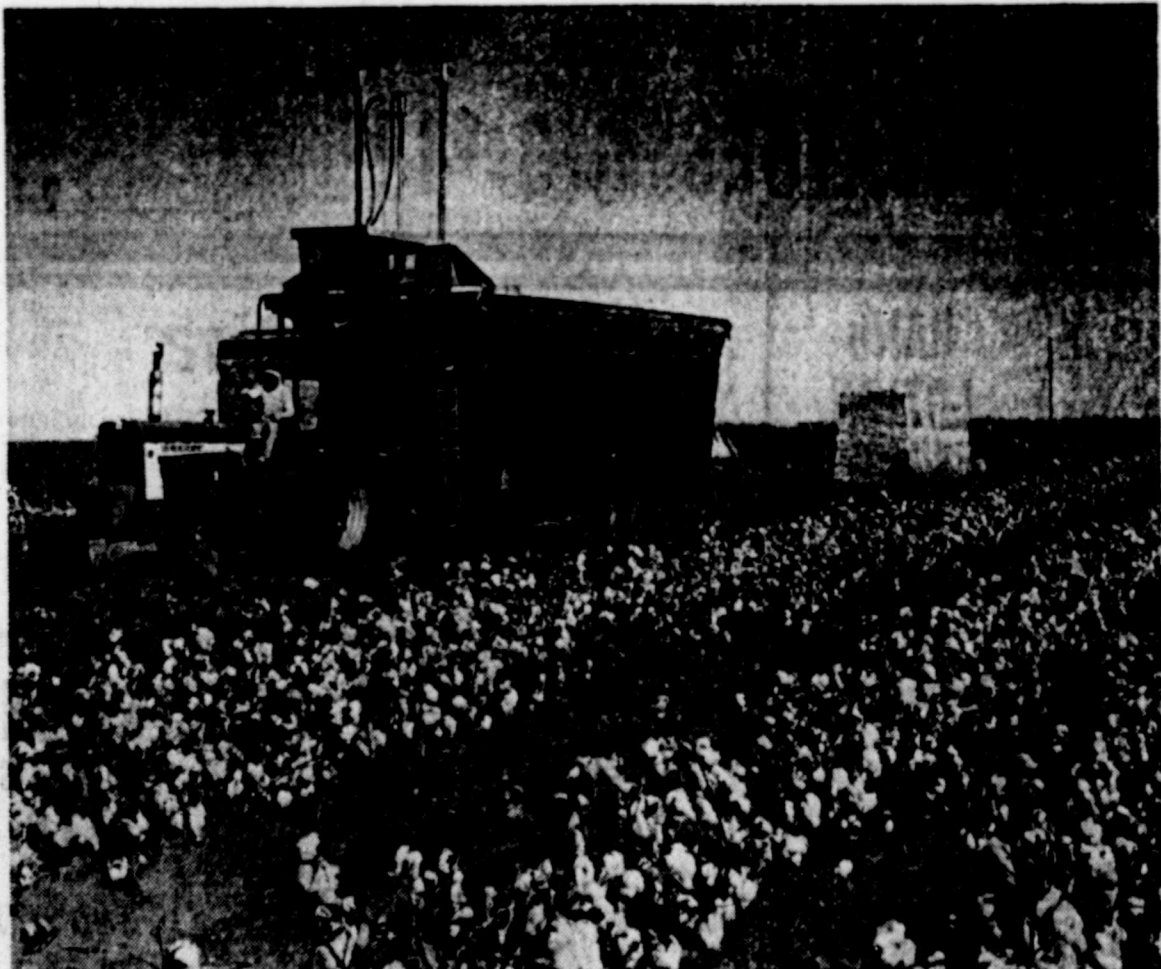

The second cold front in two days Tuesday halted stripping activities when the 25 mile per hour winds blew the cotton bolls from the stripper baskets and trailers.

In King County, a Grow Gin employee reported Monday that 400 bales had been weighed in for the best day this season, bringing the total to 2,000 bales ginned with total to 2,000 bales ginned with 281 remaining on the yards.

The three Paducah gin companies accounted for 6,290 bales ginned with 355 bales in the yards.

The two Cottle County gins, in the Ceevee and Chalk communities, had processed 1,266 bales and had 260 bales on the yards.

Price was quoted at 42 and 43 cents a pound for cotton and $62 a ton for seed. Last year it was 60-65 cents a pound for cotton and $100 per ton for seed.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE CATTLE INDUSTRY SHOULD WORK harder to develop export markets for beef and to develop a favorable political climate for American agriculture, former U. S. House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma told the Texas Cattle Feeders Association this week in San Antonio.

Albert, who retired two years ago after a 28-year congressional career, was among speakers at the TCF's 10th annual convention. More than 700 cattle feeders and allied industry members attended.

Leon Miller Jr., owner and operator of Alta Verde Industries of Eagle Pass, was elected president of the association, which represents cattle feeders in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

He succeeds O. J. Barron Jr. of Spur. Miller has been a member of the TCF board of directors since 1969 and served the last two years as first vice president.

R. L. "BOB" BLISS OF TULIA IS THE new first vice president, Gene Newman of San Angelo is vice president, and Charles E. Koonce of Olton is treasurer.

New directors include Paul Engler of Cactus; Rolla Hinkle of Roswell, N. M.; H. C. Hinch Jr. of Guymon, Okla.; Dave Hopper of Hereford; Robert D. Josselyn of Amarillo; A. J. Kemp Jr. of Fort Worth; Allen McCloy of Morse; Leon Swift of Amarillo; Leo D. Vermedahl of Dalhart; and Dick Waterfield of Canadian.

The new TCF president founded Alta Verde Industries in 1966. His company now has a 25,000-head feedyard and 3,000 acres of irrigated farmland. It also operates an alfalfa dehydrating plant, imports and processes molasses from Mexico, and exports grain to Mexico.

Miller is a director of the National Cattlemen's Association and is immediate past chairman of the Feeders Council. He is a past president of the American National Dehydrators Association, a past president and current director of the Eagle Pass Chamber of Commerce, and a past director of the University of Corpus Christi, the Winter Garden Production Credit Association and the Eagle Pass Independent School District.

LOOKING BACK OVER HIS CAREER in Washington, Albert said the farm bloc once had been the strongest force in Congress but since had reached the point where "it is one of the weakest."

The former House speaker urged cattlemen to take a more active role in government, to work for and get to know their representatives.

He said the livestock industry has been missing the boat on exports. "My friends from Japan tell me there is nothing in the world they like better than American beef," he said, "but they can't afford it. A steak costs about the same as a suit of clothes."

Albert said the industry should work to eliminate trade barriers which keep American beef out of Japan and asserted that the place to start is the U. S. Congress. "Other industries wouldn't stand still for that," he said, "and the beef industry shouldn't."

The beef referendum, which was approved on the High Plains but which failed to gain the necessary two-thirds margin in a national referendum of cattlemen last August, "would have been a step in the right direction," Albert said. "I had hoped it would give you the tools to work on some of these problems," he said.

BARRON, THE RETIRING TCF PRESIDENT and chairman of the Beef Development Taskforce which spearheaded the beef research and promotion effort, said he hopes Congress can be persuaded to amend the Beef Research and Information Act to make it easier to win approval in any future referendum.

The act requires that two-thirds of the voting producers favor the checkoff program. Barron said he hopes this can be changed to allow approval by either a simple majority or a weighted majority (half the voters or those representing two-thirds of the cattle).

The opening convention session was dedicated to the late Jack Carrothers, the first TCF president. Carrothers was president of Friona Industries when he died last month.

Carrothers was praised as having been instrumental in the development of the cattle feeding industry.

Farmer Invents New Cultivator

A-1 Correspondent

HEREFORD — A new concept in crop cultivation developed by a High Plains farmer is being marketed by Branson's Manufacturing Co. of Guymon, Okla.

Vernon Meeks, sales manager for the firm, is currently demonstrating a cultivator designed after the old draw-back stalk cutters of former years.

The implement, known as the Branson Cult-Chopper, utilizes blades which chop up weed growth and bury it.

The rig also can be fitted with a furrowing out plow which features adjustable wings. The wings are designed to lift the lower leaves of row crops and crowd dirt in against the plant without disturbing it.

Meeks explained that the new cultivator rig "throws enough dirt to cover the weeds, but it won't hurt the crop. You can cultivate at much greater speeds than are now common in this area."

Although the rig looks somewhat like the popular rolling cultivators now in use, Meeks explained that the cutters mounted on the front of the cultivator perform three important functions.

"The blades put all residue back in the bed, and this helps to hold moisture and keep bacterial growth active. It also insures that the soil moisture will be more constant," said Meeks.

The plow features two gangs of cutter blades, which are ground-driven at a 2-1 ratio.

"We feel like this rig is more effective than a rolling cultivator, and the cost is about equal. Rigged with various equipment, this implement could save a farmer several trips across the field," Meeks emphasized.

The implement was developed by a Dalhart farmer, Glen Scribner, who recalled severe erosion problems faced in his area and the use of the old-style stalk cutters to cope with this problem.

Invented two years ago, the plow can be built to specifications from 2 to 12 rows in width.

The implement can be converted from row crop to wheatland use with a solid set of blade gangs in about an hour, according to Meeks.

"We think one of the big advantages of this cultivator is that a farmer can get on with his work so much faster without worrying about burying his crop," Meeks commented. "And this rig can be mounted with furrowing plows to pulverize clods and bed the ground all in one operation."

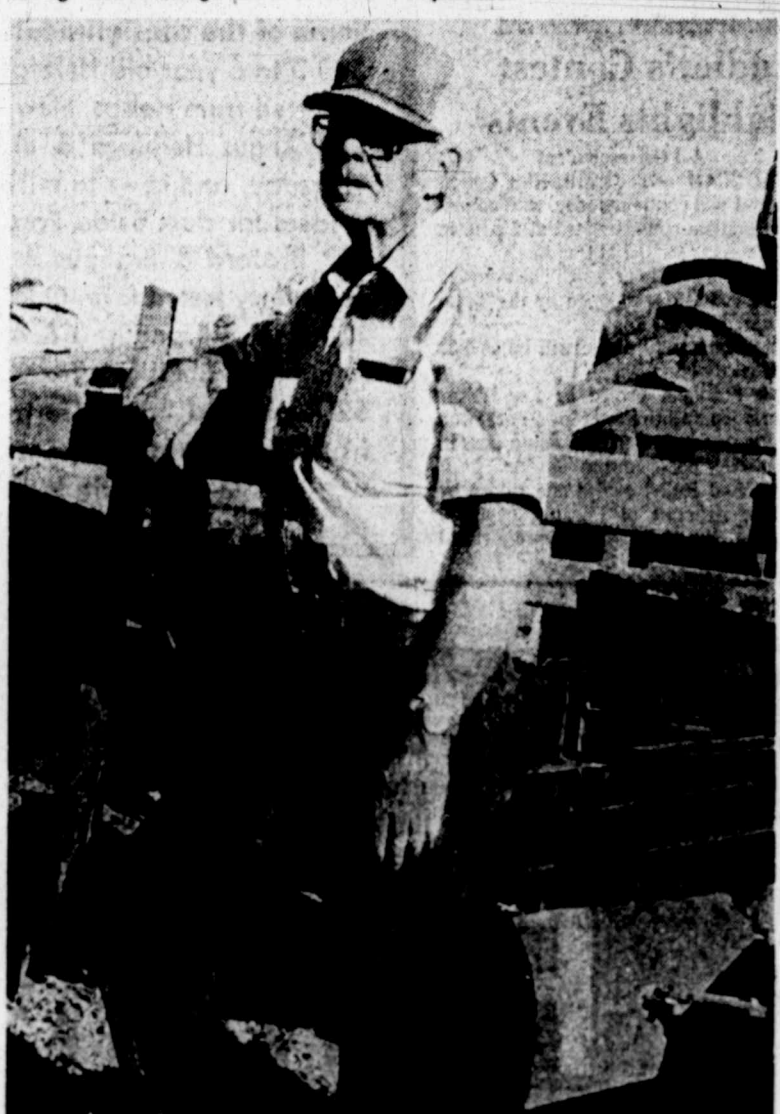

"We think it has a lot of potential when applied to a planting and fertilizing operation in one pass," he added.

Meeks pointed out that the implement should be effective in incorporating preemergence herbicides as well, and added, "when used as a cultivator, you can utilize it at an earlier stage on small plants than a sweep."

The cutter was patented on a commercial basis in June, and two of the implements are now available for demonstration on the High Plains and in West Texas.

The Branson facility in Guymon currently turns out one plow a day, and Meeks explained that the production goal is three per day by Jan. 15.

The 25-year-old Branson firm markets furrowing plows, stabilizers, tool bars, markers, clamps, cultivators and any custom equipment ordered in states including California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

No Widespread Strike Support Seen Coming

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Dr. Kenneth Bader, executive director of the American Soybean Association, said this week a national farmers strike, if it comes on Dec. 14, probably will be localized in the western wheat belt.

"From what I can see, the support for the strike seems to be limited, particularly to the wheat belt," he said. "I don't think it will be widespread, farmer along with farmer."

"For example, our state president in Kansas says he understands why the association will not take a stand, and yet he has said he personally will strike. But the same reaction has not followed in Iowa at this time."

Farmers in the wheat belt have threatened to strike in protest against low agriculture prices. Bader predicted the areas hit hardest probably would be in Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska.

"Most of the phone calls we are receiving now about it seem to be coming from Kansas, Nebraska and only a few from Iowa and Missouri," he said.

Bader said the splintering of the farmers comes because "of the diversity in the corn belt."

"The corn producers in Iowa are often hog and cattle producers as well as growing some soybeans," he said. "And the prices for those commodities at this point are pretty good, so they are perhaps feeling the pinch a little less."

"Farmers in some of the other areas have their eggs all in one basket with just wheat or just corn."

"Farmers have always been independent and absolute about it and don't choose to follow the pack. However, all those who are concerned with the strike are strongly and emotionally involved in it."

Bader said the success of the proposed strike will be measured by the objectives which the farmers set for it.

"If they are attempting to bring attention to their plight, the disastrous marketing and the problems of agriculture in general, they should have success," he said. "And in some cases, they are already doing that."

"But, if they try to establish a labor-management situation there will be problems. It hasn't worked in the past and shouldn't work now."

He said although he will not recommend his group take a position on the question "I will urge any member who feels strongly to take a personal position on it or to take a personal stand."

Cattle Futures Close Down In Mixed Trades

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures fluctuated near the previous session's settlement throughout the day Thursday and closed off 37 points of up 12 on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

January was the weakest contract in a heavy volume of 12,440 trades. Futures fell early in the day on carryover selling.

Local short covering later trimmed losses but persistent outside selling held nearby prices on the defensive. Despite a firm tone to carcass beef, the market closed near the day's lows.

Bear spreads strengthened the deferreds. Wholesale beef was unchanged at 64 1/2 cents per pound for all weights. Cash cattle were steady to up 50 cents with a top at $43.25 in Omaha.

The day's slaughter was estimated at 147,000 head. The six markets expect 11,700 head to arrive today.

Live hog futures recovered from earlier losses to close 17 to 30 points stronger. Only December showed a loss falling five points. Volume was 5,604 exchanges.

Sharply higher cash hogs and the possibility for light runs today helped to firm futures, traders said. The six major terminals expect receipts of 24,700 head today.

Earlier selling diminished in light of heavy short covering by a major commission house, floor sources noted. Fresh chart support was noted in the area of $37 per hundredweight, basis February.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to off one-half cent per pound at 85 to 92 cents.

Wheat Producers To Get Payments

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — Text as wheat producers will receive $62.6 million in wheat deficiency payments on the 1977 crop, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said Thursday.

Bentsen said the U. S. Department of Agriculture advised that payments on allotted acres will be 65 cents per bushel, while a 22-cent per bushel payment will be made on allotted acres.

Checks will be mailed from county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices beginning Dec. 1, he said.

Deficiency payments are made on designated crops when the average market price falls below a predetermined target price.

f.o.b. river points. Cash hogs were steady to $1 higher with a top at $41.25. Slaughter was estimated at 332,000 head.

Pork belly futures (bacon) recovered near the end to post closing gains of 15 to 55 points. The locally dominated trade totaled 4,216 turnovers.

Despite easing tendencies in cash bellies, sharply higher cash hog markets encouraged late support in the market. Traders said. Upward moves also were attributed to technical adjustments following the previous day's close near lows of the session.

Grain Sorghum Studied By Korean Visitors

A group of six Koreans, members of the feed industry in South Korea, visited Texas Tech this week for seminars and lectures concerning the use of grain sorghum as a livestock feed.

The group was addressed by Dr. Robert C. Albin, chairman of the Department of Animal Science. He discussed the nutritional value of sorghum for cattle.

Dr. C. Reed Richardson, animal science instructor, discussed Texas Tech's new feedmill and methods of milling grain sorghum. Dr. Donald E. Orr Jr., also an animal science instructor, outlined the use of grain sorghum as a feed in the swine industry.

The group's visit was sponsored by the U. S. Feed Grains Council in cooperation with the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Their visit in Lubbock was hosted by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, represented by Elbert Harp, executive director.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON

U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was moderate on Thursday. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy but grower offerings were moderate to light. Demand was moderate.

Farmers sold mixed lots of new-crop cotton at 115-485 points over 1977 loan rates. Gins paid $37-470 per ton for cottonseed, mostly $43-64.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations remained unchanged.

Cleaning officials graded 79,000 samples on Thursday. The season's total is 727,800, compared with 41,000 last year. About 305,000 bales were carried over as uncleaned.

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U. S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.5, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse on the market.

Price trend: Steady on Thursday.

Examples Of Flagrant Waste By Military Officials Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — High ranking military and civilian officials systematically misuse military aircraft and have kept some Air Force pilots so busy flying generals they had no time for required combat training, Pentagon auditors said Thursday.

The Defense Audit Service made the finding in a report that said the military and civilian defense officials use military planes for personal trips or for low priority missions at an annual cost of at least $52.3 million.

The report was made public by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who cited it as an example of flagrant waste.

The secretary of defense last year ordered that the military's "special air mission" aircraft be used only for official business and only when commercial transportation was not available. But Clement E. Roy, deputy director of the audit service, said military aircraft continued to be improperly used.

The audit examined the improper use of aircraft by the Air Force, Army, Navy and Marine Corps at military installations around the world. It found rank to be the most important factor in obtaining a free military flight, not the relative importance of the mission involved.

"The stature of the traveler should not be a factor unless specifically authorized," Roy said.

The report said the Air Force's 104 T-39 jet trainers primarily were at the call of senior military and civilian officials and were used extensively for other non-training missions.

It said the Air Force programmed 111,000 flight hours for its T-39s in fiscal 1977, far more than the 33,000 hours required for readiness training. That cost an estimated $26 million in excess flying time and some 24 million gallons of aviation fuel.

The auditors reported that while the pilots were flying such missions safety regulations prevented them from accomplishing the training, which requires multiple landings, one-engine landings and high level flight.

"As a result, additional training missions must be flown for the pilots to satisfy their training requirements," the report said.

The report added that after the audit was delivered to the office of the secretary of defense the Air Force simply changed the mission of the T-39s from training to support.

The report has these other findings:
— In one Army command alone, 119 support aircraft valued at $24.9 million were being used for non-essential purposes.

— Fifty-five percent of the domestic flights and 17 percent of the foreign flights in a sample of 2,700 military airlift missions could have been avoided by using scheduled commercial air transportation. The estimated cost to the government was $1.4 million.

— The Navy and Marine Corps operate a semi-regular helicopter taxi service between Norfolk, Va., and the Washington, D.C., area although it duplicates regular commercial service and costs far more.

— The Marine Corps had an aircraft squadron to carry VIPs and a policy decision was made to fly an extra emergency backup plane behind every plane carrying a general or admiral.

— The auditors' review of 6,000 Navy and Marine Corps support flights found that at least 1,500 had no passengers on board who were on official business.

Proxmire, who used the report as a basis for giving the Pentagon his "Golden Fleece of the month" citation, said the audit gives "a picture of every high ranking officer or civilian in the Pentagon simply being able to request government transportation free, regardless of its cost or mission — simply on the basis of rank."

"This internal audit puts the lie to the age-old excuse of the military services that transportation of the generals and admirals is appropriate because the aircraft have to fly anyway, and there is no additional cost if the brass go along," he said.

Proxmire said Defense Department auditors "should get a commendation for uncovering the massive misuse of government aircraft for non-essential and wasteful purposes," Proxmire said.

EMS Official Asks For Equal Footing

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Publicly funded ambulance systems deserve to be put on the same footing as police and fire protection services, the chairman of a new regional organization for better emergency medical care says.

"When you walk up to a county commissioners court or a city council and ask for $15,000 or so for a modern, well equipped ambulance, they're likely to go into shock," said Post Mayor Giles McCrary, chairman of the South Plains Emergency Medical Services Inc., board of directors.

"On the other hand, if a similar request for money should come from a fire department or law enforcement agency, public officials may not even flinch. They already know how vital those services are," McCrary said.

"The point is, a good EMS system is no less important than a good fire or police department, and it needs the same kind of attention from our local governments. They not only have a moral obligation, but a legal obligation to see that adequate emergency medical care is available," he said.

McCrary's group is not out to hound public officials in the 15-county South Plains region to upgrade their EMS systems, he said. The organization has neither the authority nor the inclination to do that, he added.

"This is strictly a volunteer organization. We're not trying to impose or enforce anything on any community," McCrary said.

"What we are trying to do is establish a cooperative effort in determining what the region needs with regard to EMS and how we can work to meet those needs," he said.

For years, McCrary explained, ambulance services were run mainly by the private sector — namely, funeral homes. But with encroaching regulations from the federal government and greater needs in the community, public entities have had to take over the responsibility, he said.

"For the most part, they've done a good job," McCrary said of the counties and cities now running EMS systems. "But this has been in spite of, not because of, planning."

"There's still a lot to be done in the way of training emergency medical technicians and securing up-to-date equipment. It's not a matter of neglect or oversight on the part of public officials. In so many instances, they haven't been made aware of what makes up a good EMS unit."

An immediate goal of the regional group is to educate the public and elected officials about the EMS concept, McCrary said.

Also, with the entire South Plains area working together, the organization hopes to apply for federal grants to assist local communities in upgrading and coordinating their ambulance operations, he said.

"So typical of many situations, the feds are looking over our shoulder," McCrary said. Unless local governments assume responsibility for improving emergency medical care, the federal government may step in with a set of regulations and red tape, he said.

The regional EMS group has been made possible through cooperation by the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, Lubbock County Hospital District, South Plains Association of Governments, South Plains Health Systems, the area Texas Department of Health staff and other groups, McCrary said.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible.

I John 5:5-18, The Living Bible

5 But who could possibly fight and win this battle except by believing that Jesus is truly the Son of God?

6,7,8 And we know He is, because God said so with a voice from heaven when Jesus was baptized, and again as He was facing death—yes, not only at His baptism but also as He faced death.<sup>2</sup> And the Holy Spirit, forever truthful, says it too. So we have these three witnesses: the voice of the Holy Spirit in our hearts, the voice from heaven at Christ's baptism, and the voice before He died.<sup>3</sup> And they all say the same thing: that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.<sup>4</sup>

9 We believe men who witness in our courts, and so surely we can believe whatever God declares. And God declares that Jesus is His Son.

10 All who believe this know in their hearts that it is true. If anyone doesn't believe this, he is actually calling God a liar, because he doesn't believe what God has said about His Son.

11 And what is it that God has said? That He has given us eternal life, and that this life is in His Son.

12 So whoever has God's Son has life; whoever does not have His Son, does not have life.

13 I have written this to you who believe in the Son of God so that you may know you have eternal life.

14 And we are sure of this, that He will listen to us whenever we ask Him for anything in line with His will.

15 And if we really know He is listening when we talk to Him and make our requests, then we can be sure that He will answer us.

16 If you see a Christian sinning in a way that does not end in death, you should ask God to forgive him and God will give him life, unless he has sinned that one fatal sin. But there is that one sin which ends in death and if he has done that, there is no use praying for him.

17 Every wrong is a sin, of course, I'm not talking about these ordinary sins; I am speaking of that one that ends in death.<sup>5</sup>

18 No one who has become part of God's family makes a practice of sinning, for Christ, God's Son, holds him securely and the devil cannot get his hands on him.

AUDI FOX BEATS CHEVY CORVETTE!

If you're a little wide-eyed, we can't blame you. We were a little surprised ourselves when our 4-door sedan, the 5-passenger Audi Fox, beat the Chevy Corvette in a Slalom Test conducted by the American Testing Institute. But it's true. The Fox won!

Under identical conditions, with the Institute's test driver handling both cars, the Audi Fox beat the Chevy Corvette. Over and over, and over again.

And our test (7 to 50 to 8 seconds). Audi Fox is also frugal (37 mpg city, 23 mpg city — based on EPA estimates using standard transmission. Actual mileage may vary depending on how you drive, car's condition and optional equipment).

That's how legends are made.

Hearst Plans To Appeal Robbery Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As Patricia Hearst's lawyers readied an appeal Thursday of a ruling upholding her bank robbery conviction, her onetime fugitive companions, William and Emily Harris, prepared for a court appearance on charges of kidnapping her four years ago.

Miss Hearst's attorney, Al Johnson, said his 23-year-old client was optimistic that her guilty verdict eventually would be overturned.

Earlier, Miss Hearst assailed the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which upheld her conviction Wednesday, as "incapable of rendering a purely just decision."

Johnson said, "She is disappointed about the appellate ruling but is optimistic about what the final result will be." The last resort is the U.S. Supreme Court.

Miss Hearst was convicted in March 1976 of joining her terrorist kidnappers in the 1974 armed robbery of a San Francisco bank and was sentenced to seven years in prison. She is free on $1 million bail.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. said the government had no plans to seek her re-imprisonment until all appeals are exhausted.

Meanwhile, Miss Hearst's accused abductors prepared to open their legal battle Friday in Oakland against charges that they kidnapped the newspaper heiress amid a volley of gunfire on Feb. 4, 1974.

The much-delayed preliminary hearing for the HARRISES, among the few surviving members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, comes after a year-long fight by the couple to get attorneys of their choice appointed to defend them at public expense.

The California Supreme Court agreed with the HARRISES' position. Last month Los Angeles attorney Leonard Weinglass was named to defend Harris and San Francisco lawyer Susan Jordan was appointed counsel for Mrs. Harris.

Weinglass represented the couple last year in Los Angeles when they were convicted of kidnap and assault charges stemming from a series of SLA crimes there. They are serving 11 years-to-life sentences.

The volatile HARRISES, who repeatedly interrupted previous court appearances with outbursts against the judge, have vowed to flavor the trial with their radical political beliefs.

"It is clear the SLA will be on trial here," Mrs. Harris said at one of those court sessions. The defense, she said, will convey "the objectives, motivations and philosophies of this organization."

The SLA, a ragtag tribe of less than a dozen active members at its peak, burst into prominence with the kidnapping of Miss Hearst, granddaughter of the late newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst, and claimed her as their most famous recruit.

In tapes sent to news media in the spring of 1974, Miss Hearst reviled her parents and pledged allegiance to the SLA. She eulogized six who died in a fiery shootout with Los Angeles police in May 1974.

But at her bank robbery trial, she testified the tapes were made under threat of death. She said the HARRISES beat her and mentally tormented her until all three were arrested in San Francisco in September 1975.

Carter Schedules TV Address On Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, attempting to save his energy program, will address the nation Tuesday night "to refocus public attention" on the energy problem, White House officials said Thursday.

ABC, NBC and CBS said Thursday that they will broadcast live on radio and television President Carter's energy address at 8 p.m. CST Tuesday.

The House and Senate are nearing the end of their work on Carter's energy legislation and the White House, in a three-paragraph announcement, said "the president feels the remaining areas of controversy should be presented to the American people."

Carter originally unveiled his plan in a speech to the nation on radio and television April 18. Two days later, he detailed it in an address to Congress.

"He believes the time has come to refocus public attention on this problem, which he feels and has said is the most serious domestic problem likely to be faced by this administration," the White House announcement said.

The congressional work on the program has threatened to delay or cancel Carter's planned four-continent trip, still officially scheduled to begin Nov. 22.

The president has said several times in the past few weeks that he would remain in Washington if necessary while Congress completes work on the program.

The energy legislation is currently before a joint House-Senate conference committee.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Thursday that no final decision has been made on whether to go ahead with the trip as planned. However, he said the president had no plans as of Thursday to reveal the decision on the trip during the energy speech.

Companion of Princess

'Must Remain Enigma'

LONDON (AP) — Roderick Llewellyn, the 30-year-old companion of Princess Margaret, 47, said Thursday he was "anguished" by his friendship with the sister of Queen Elizabeth II.

Since Margaret announced officially 18 months ago that she and her husband, Lord Snowden, were separating, newspapers have been linking her with Llewellyn, son of Olympic show jumping gold medalist Sir Harry Llewellyn.

But, in an interview with the tabloid London Sun, the younger Llewellyn said his friendship for the Princess was a "very difficult and unique situation...."

"All I can say is that for the moment I must remain an enigma. I am tired of hiding in cupboards. I think the time has come to hold my head up and smile."

Llewellyn said he has met Queen Elizabeth II.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I am a woman who has never earned over $7,000 a year. I may soon come into $10,000. At my age (55) I would like to invest for a decent return when I retire. I have some savings certificates which will pay double my initial investment at maturity, but in the meantime I have to pay income taxes on the interest. That is very difficult for me. I've been acquiring E bonds by salary deduction. Is this wise?

A. You've raised several questions, related only by the all-important fact that you are getting by — and also trying to plan for your future — on a small salary.

1) You say you want to invest now for "a decent return" when you retire. Assuming a 10-year period to retirement that phrase has no meaning. I haven't the foggiest idea what a "decent" yield will be in 1987. Your present task is to keep that $10,000 "safe and growing" over the next 10 years and see what sort of "decent" return you can get THEN.

2) "Safe and growing" is hardly a definite phrase, either. It could mean putting it into basic, sound common shares; into E bonds; into insured savings certificates. Depends upon how much risk and worry you can take.)

3) Those savings certificates which will "pay double": Money deposited at 7 1/4 percent will double in 10 years IF the taxes are paid from "another source" — which source, in this case, is your pocketbook. So, in effect, you are helping to make the "doubling" possible by not drawing out your interest and by, in effect, adding the required income tax money every year. I'm not saying it isn't a good deal — but you should understand what makes this "doubling" possible: the piling up of any current income from your savings and the addition of required tax money. If you need income now or if payment of income taxes on this savings account imposes a heavy burden on you (which it could do, considering the modest earnings) then the savings account should be called on to bear more of the burden via withdrawal of interest from time to time.

4) E bonds are always a handy asset. The interest accruing is not now taxable. However, only your tax return can show whether 6 percent, tax-deferred, is better for you than 7 1/4 or 7 1/2 percent taxable.

Knowing your modest income, but without any clues to your other resources or responsibilities, I'm reluctant to talk stocks. But if it's any comfort to you tax-wise, a couple thousand of this $10,000 gift invested in stock paying only 5 percent would bring in $100 a year free of income taxes. And you would, at the same time, build some hope of offsetting inflation. But stick to the "tried and true" stock issues, if you buy any.

Q. I have a loss on some railroad stock which I want to sell. I also have some H bonds obtained in exchange for Es (which had accumulated interest on them). I've been considering the sale of enough H bonds so that the interest will be offset by the loss in the rail stock.

A. Nope. The accrued interest in the H bonds (carried over from the Es) is interest, not capital gain. The loss on the rail stock can be used to a limited extent to reduce your taxable income, but is not a dollar-for-dollar offset to any accrued interest, per se.

Bond Ratings: Some recent bond offerings, as listed by Moody's bond survey:

Rated AAA -Indiana Bell Telephone 8s of 2014.
Rated AA -Iowa Power & Light 8 1/4s of 2007, Baltimore Gas & Electric 8 1/4s of 2007, Central Power & Light 8 1/4s of 2007, Houston Lighting 8 1/4s of 2007, Household Finance 8.20s of 2007, Public Service of Indiana 8 1/4s of 2007.

Tomorrow: "What's wrong with 11 percent?" and some high quality preferences.

Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. HEARTLINE: I had an insurance agent at my house last week trying to sell me a policy that supplements my Medicare. It seemed to be a good policy but I did not buy it. I was afraid to obligate myself to a long-term contract of this sort. Do you have any comment on this? -C.K.

A. If you did not buy the policy only because of the fear of a long-term debt, your decision was not a wise one. There is no long-term contract involved in buying insurance. You can cancel at any time by giving written notice to the company, or you can simply not pay the premium when it comes due.

For those people who are needing to buy health insurance, "Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance" has been developed to help them better understand insurance policies. It covers many of the ambiguous clauses in insurance policies, the basic coverage a policy should contain, and includes a policy checklist so you can find out the exact coverage your policy has.

For yours, send $1.50 to "Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance," Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa, 50306. This book is completely guaranteed. If you are not satisfied, your money will be refunded. Please allow six weeks for delivery.

HEARTLINE: I was told that when I file a claim for Social Security retirement benefits next year I should bring a copy of the 1977 W-2 withholding statement I used for filing my income tax. Why is this? -T.C.J.

A. If your benefits will start in 1978, all your earnings through 1977 may be used in figuring your benefits. Since employers only send in calendar quarter wage reports to Social Security and since it takes time to process these reports, all of your 1978 earnings may not yet be shown on your earnings record.

By bringing in your W-2 form, you can be sure you will receive the highest benefit for which you are eligible starting with your first check. Otherwise, your benefit will have to be refigured later when Social Security finishes processing the employer reports.

HEARTLINE: I see a lot of advertisements in the paper and magazines for ordering merchandise through the mail. Frankly, I am afraid to do this. Do you know of any way that I can feel safe in ordering from a mail-order house? -J.C.

A. Heartline has a pamphlet on how persons can protect themselves against mail-order frauds. You can get a free copy by writing Heartline-Mail Order, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

HOLD THE PHONE—Texas Christian's record-setting pass receiver Mike Renfro spends more of his time on the field reaching for passes than on the sidelines talking on the telephone. The SWC's all-time receiver in total yardage, Renfro is 13 catches shy of the league record on that category, a mark now held by Jerry Levias of SMU. Renfro will be playing for TCU against host Texas Tech Saturday.

Don Henry ...Of Recollections And Records

MIKE RENFRO REMEMBERS last year's TCU-Tech game. He remembers the finish, too.

As a marked man—just as much as if he had a large neon arrow pointing toward him at all times—Renfro has drawn a crowd of defenders just about every time he has crossed the line of scrimmage at full speed.

As a wide receiver—THE wide receiver—he has latched onto passes at record-setting paces. And, with the Frogs in the grips of an ever-enlarging losing string the past few years, passes were as necessary as headache remedies.

This year alone, Renfro has caught 30 passes; he has 142 for his career. So, the football is in his vicinity quite often.

On the goal line, in the final seconds of that 1977 game, however, it wasn't. It was in the vicinity of the Tech goal, although Renfro had caught five passes for 127 yards—including a 77-yard bomb—that afternoon.

"I thought we could beat them there at the end," the Horned Frog all-America candidate remarked this week. "But, they picked off a pass down there close."

How close and down there was at the lip of the goal with a minute to play.

"I forget what kind of route it was," Renfro said. "I think it was meant for a runningback. But, the pass was to the other side of the field (from him). Old Eric Felton, I believe it was, made a big play."

Felton intercepted at the 7 and ran it out a few steps. And with just 59 seconds on the clock when the play expired, Tech was able to run out the time for a 14-10 squeaker in a game at Fort Worth.

IT'S AN ENTIRELY new scheme, new way of playing, for Renfro and his mates this year. . . . A new coaching staff. . . . a couple of victories. But, whether it's thrown from the Notre Dame Box or the veer, a forward pass still spirals, leaves the hands of one player behind the line of scrimmage and must fall into the hands of another before touching the ground.

So, says Renfro, "Running routes in running routes. It (the coaching switch) hasn't changed that much. Maybe we're not passing as much. Of course, we have a little better running game than last year. So we can rely on that a little more than in the past."

Renfro, after hauling in 49 and 42 the past two seasons, has caught 30 so far. But, catching passes should not be that much of a surprise, since his dad earned his living in the pros that way.

FATHER RAY WAS Little All-America footballer and sprinter at North Texas State, then catapulted straight to the Cleveland Browns in the Otto Graham years. So, a football around the Renfro house was not a big deal.

"I've been around football since Day One," says Mike, "but I probably started in kid leagues at about 8 or 9 years, like everybody else."

Mike went the runningback route until his junior year at Fort Worth Arlington Heights, "then everybody started outgrowing me (6-0, 185 now), so I moved to receiver. I liked runningback, because you get the ball more."

"He (father Ray) helped me with basics (of receiving) in high school after he quit coaching, but, since I've been in college, he hasn't told me too much. He just kinda showed me the way."

Rice at SMU—Sometimes the records don't indicate it, but coming from the lower levels of the league, both teams have shown improvement the last few games. SMU has the better of it, and if coach Ron Meyer can locate enough Mustangs to limp onto the field, their spunk and kick could be enough. Smew by a few.

District Titles On Line

By WALT McALEXANDER
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

First came the zone winners—or representatives as the case may be: Ropesville, Motley County and Wellman.

After tonight's action, 16 of 19 South Plains districts or zones could have determined champions and a 17th could be determined Saturday night.

The two exceptions are District 3-AA, where four teams currently share the top spot, and 3-A, where the Kress-Vega showdown next week will decide matters.

But tonight, the football connoisseur will have little trouble locating numerous games to whet his appetite. In fact, all one has to do is decide which class he likes and go from there.

Going by districts, here's a rundown of the important games tonight:

District 3-AAAA: Amarillo faces Tascosa in an intracity battle. The Golden Sandies, defending district champs, are 8-1, 3-0, and Tascosa is 7-1, 2-0. Amarillo is No. 3 on area AAAA poll; the Rebels No. 4.

District 5-AAAA: Saturday's game matching San Angelo and Odessa Permian could wrap up the loop playoff right for mighty Mojo. Permian is ranked No. 1 in area and No. 3 on both state polls. The Panthers are 8-0, 5-0, but the Bobcats are just a step behind at 6-2, 4-1.

District 1-AAA: Perryton, ranked No. 1 in area and also No. 1 on UPI state poll (but No. 6 on AP's), tries to conclude its second straight undefeated season. The Rangers are 9-0, 3-0 and face Borger, which is 7-1, 2-0.

District 2-AAA: Andrews and Fort Stockton vie to keep an unbeaten record intact. The Mustangs are 7-0-1, 3-0 and Fort Stockton is 8-0, 3-0. Andrews is ranked No. 2 in area and 7th (AP) and 9th (UPI) in state; Fort Stockton is No. 3 in area.

District 3-AAA: Defending loop champ San Angelo Lake View, ranked No. 4 in area and No. 8 in both state polls, could wrap up a district tie with a win on road against Sweetwater, which is 4-4, 2-2. The Chiefs have 8-0, 4-0 marks.

District 4-AA: Idalou, which has never been in the playoffs as a Class AA school, has an opportunity to write a bit of history, but the Wildcats will have to beat perennial champion Floydada. Idalou is ranked No. 1 in the area and No. 3 on both state polls. Floydada, which has failed to win or share a league crown just once under coach L.G. Wilson's tutelage, is 6-3, 2-1 and faces a "must-win" situation. Idalou is 8-0, 2-0, and Tulsa, idle tonight, could get a third share of the league lead if the Whirlwinds triumph tonight.

District 5-AA: Slaton, which has never won an outright title, could take a gigantic step toward that end tonight against Tahoka. The Tigers are ranked No. 2 in the area and No. 7 on both state polls. Slaton has won 22 of last 23 regular-season games, including all eight this year and is 8-0, 4-0. Tahoka is 5-3, 3-1 and could throw race into possible three-way deadlock with a win. And a Bulldog triumph would set up another showdown next week with Frenship, which is 7-1, 3-0.

Monterey Breaks Away From LHS In Last Half

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Just as the underdog Lubbocks seemed to pound Monterey onto the ropes, the heralded Plainsmen defense delivered a punishing knockout blow.

Tied 7-all early in the third quarter, the Westerners were marching inside the Monterey 30, when LHS tailback Ernest Day headed to his left sideline as he carried on a pitchout. MHS safety Mike Thomasson introduced himself to Day and unleashed a blow which knocked out the LHS runner.

The Westerners managed 9 yards of offense the rest of the way and LHS showed how much it needed Day—just as much as Monterey needed Ron Reeves, the bruising quarterback who scored four times and led MHS to a 28-7 victory Thursday night at Lowrey Field.

Whether the score would differ with Day in the game is up for all you pigskin geniuses to figure out. But the fact remains that Lubbock led in total yards 223-164 until the costly injury. Three plays later, Day's reserve, David Rush, fumbled a similar pitchout, Gary Hatchett recovered the loose ball for MHS, and the Westerners hardly fired a shot the rest of the way.

Those events set the stage for the Plainsmen to break the tie, raise their record to 8-0-1 and clinch the District 4-AAAA football playoff berth for the second straight year. And the Plainsmen fans can shudder to think what would happen in the playoffs if a similar injury would dismiss Reeves from nearly half of a game.

But for now the Plainsmen bellcow stays alive and well and living in the Westerner end zone on four occasions. Reeves almost made it another time late in the third quarter after Day departed in his woody condition.

After Hatchett's tumble recovery, the Plainsmen drove from their 19 to Lubbock's 3. But on fourth and 1 at that point, Reeves stumbled as he headed to his right and Westerner Roy Reyna covered the quarterback for a loss of 2 yards and the ball at the 5.

Without Day, though, the Lubbocks moved only 3 yards in the next three plays. And a 29-yard punt gave MHS the

Coronado Hosts Plainview; 3-AAA Teams Go On Road

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Do the Dunbar Panthers have one eye on tonight's clash against Snyder and the other on next week's potential District 3-AAA showdown contest with San Angelo Lake View?

A cock-eyed question, no doubt. But still one with some merit to it.

Nil, says Panther boss Van Jefferson. And he put a little added emphasis on the word.

"We are only looking at Snyder right now," Jefferson said during a Thursday afternoon practice session. "At least, I hope we are. We know if we don't get by them (Snyder) then we are out of the running (for the district title)."

The Panthers, currently tied with Estacado for second place in the loop race both with 3-1 marks, are just one game behind unbeaten Lake View. Estacado plays at Lamesa tonight (7:30), and at Lowrey Field, Coronado hosts Plainview in a District 4-AAAA contest.

Observers say the 7:30 p.m. game in Snyder has an upset smell to it. And a strong one at that.

"You know we are in the position we want to be in right now," Jefferson said trying to dispel any thought of an upset bid by the Tigers. "We have everything under control and we are in the position to determine our own fate. That's what we like."

"The kids know what they have to do and they'll do it," a confident Jefferson replied.

Jefferson, whose teams have been in this similar position (with outside shots at the title) for the past couple of seasons, says Snyder has been improving each week although the group's won-loss record (3-5 season, 2-2 district) may not indicate it.

"We know they (Snyder) are tough," Jefferson said about the team that was eliminated from the chase last week when it was beaten by a determined Estacado 21-14. "And we know we are going to have to contain their outside running game, especially by their quarterback."

Running the show for Snyder is junior-quarterback Clay Johnson who hit five of 10 passes for 74 yards and rushed for 17 more last week.

Johnson will be joined in the backfield by speedster Richard Crayton who was held in check by the Matadors. He failed to gain a yard on 12 carries against the Mats.

Although more than a foot or two of Ace bandage was seen on the Dunbar practice field, Jefferson said his troops would be ready to go.

"It is getting to be the time of year when players have to play with those little hurts," Jefferson said.

ESTACADO-LAMESA

The matchup between the Matadors and the Tors at 7:30 p.m. in Lamesa is an important one for both teams.

Estacado (2-1 in district play) still has an outside shot at the loop title if it can get by the Tors this week and Sweetwater the final night. On the other hand, a win by the Tors just might keep it out the cellar.

"This has been a disappointing season

Baseball Clubs Start Picking Names From Free-Agent List

NEW YORK (AP)—The setting is perfect.

Manhattan's plush Plaza hotel charges anywhere from $47 to $95 a night for a single room and between $125 and $250 for suites. That's good preparation for the baseball brass checking in because they'll be paying plenty more for the many of the players they select in today's free agent draft.

Some 86 players will be available in three categories and a few of them like pitchers Mike Torrez and Rich Gossage, and outfielders Larry Hise, Lyman Bostock and Richie Zisk are expected to attract seven-figure contract bids after the draft.

Besides players who completed their option years by working without signed contracts in 1977, the draft consists of six-year veterans who have declared for free agency and players who had big league contracts in 1976 but were outrighted to minor league teams this season.

The 1977 draft class lacks the run of top name talent like Reggie Jackson, Don Gullett, Joe Rudi and the others who were up for grabs a year ago. But there are some outstanding major leaguers available and anxious to see what they can command on baseball's open market place.

That's how Torrez, a 17-game winner with Oakland and the New York Yankees last season, explained his presence in the pool. "I'm curious about my value, what value other teams place on me," he said.

When Torrez came to the Yankees in April, he was unsigned. His agent, Gary Walker, negotiated throughout the season with New York President Gabe Paul.

The Yankees reportedly started at $750,000 for five years and as Torrez' contribution to their world championship season grew, the price went up. By the end of the year, after Torrez had added two World Series victories to his total, the Yankees were prepared to go for $1.5 million.

"If they had offered me in July what they wound up offering me, I would have signed then," said Torrez. But by season's end, the pitcher had decided to find out how much the rest of the teams think he's worth.

The negotiating for Torrez will be carried on with Walker, who is the same agent the Yankees dealt with when they signed the controversial Jackson for $2.9 million last year.

None of this year's free agents can expect to match Jackson's numbers, which were the highest in the first free agent auction. But a range of between $1.5 and $2 million is not unreasonable for some of the players.

Toronto owns the first choice in the draft followed by Atlanta, Oakland and the rest of the teams selecting in inverse order of their final won-loss records last seasons. Ground rules permit each of the eligible players to be drafted 13 times and for his former team to also participate in the bidding.

Mean Joe Becomes Mad Joe In Discussing NFL Referees

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "If I get half a chance, I'll punch one of them out."

"I wish a bolt of lightning would come down and strike one of their hearts out."

"If they get in the way, I'll just clear 'em in the spine."

"I'll call them the dirtiest name I can think of. I'll talk about their momma."

Joe Greene, defensive captain of the Pittsburgh Steelers and nicknamed Mean Joe Greene, was quoted as saying all of those things about National Football League officials in Thursday morning's edition of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

And after practice Thursday afternoon, Greene stood by his statements and said the article reflected just what he intended in his angry tirade after practice the day before.

"That's exactly what I meant," Greene told a reporter who approached him with a copy of the story.

"It's right there. There's no need to add to it."

The Steelers lead all of professional football with 66 penalties for minus 520 yards, and Greene was particularly upset by three offside calls against him last Sunday in Baltimore.

Greene, who claims game films clearly showed he was not guilty of offside in Baltimore, was asked how he expected NFL officials to respond to his strident remarks, carried nationally by the Associated Press.

"I'm trying to tell you I don't care what they think," Greene said in his practice uniform as he stood at his locker stall.

"I really do hope that they feel about it as bad as they can. I want them to feel bad about it because they have done a very shabby job."

I go out there and work. I do the head-busting and all the training, and here's a man who's got a striped shirt on who has just as much influence on the outcome of that game as I do.

Greene said he was aware his statements could draw a fine from the National Football League office.

"We are aware of his comments," an NFL spokesman said Thursday afternoon.

"That's good. I want them to be aware," Greene responded in a calm tone.

"I want them to watch me and watch the officials, 'cause I'm going to go out there and do my job to the best of my ability. I'm not going to have any infractions. I want them to put the camera on me and watch me and watch the guy I'm playing against and watch the officials. They are wrong."

Greene didn't shout those words, but he spoke in a firm tone. While he wouldn't retract his hot, threatening rhetoric of the afternoon before, Greene did suggest that he really wasn't out to dismantle any officials.

The reporter mentioned to Greene that by talking about physical confrontations he had gained more attention than he would have gained with a more sober complaint.

"I wanted it to. That's what it was in there for," Greene said. During the interview, his Steeler teammates listened from their locker stalls. Some made wisecracks.

"Here we go again, the second episode of the Joe Greene story," defensive tackle John Banaszak yelled with a laugh as he stood a few feet from Greene.

"It's all in the morning paper. Just read that," shouted another Steeler.

"That's exactly right," Greene yelled back. "It's right there in the paper."

"What I'm saying, and I hope it's interpreted as, is this game is bigger than all of us. We play it, the coaches coach it, and I don't know what the hell Rozelle is doing up there, but as it stands right now, the officials are not doing the job."

"That's what I'm saying. There are too many inconsistencies in their calls."

The Steelers play Sunday in Denver. Does Greene expect the officials might be even tougher on Pittsburgh, which tied an NFL record in Baltimore by giving the Colts nine first downs on penalties?

"We just set a record. It can't get any worse than that," he said.

Better Blocking, Runs Aided MHS In Last Half

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
James Odom walked off the field looking like he didn't know whether to laugh or cry. Chances are he could have done a little bit of both at the time.

The Monterey coach certainly had more to laugh about at the time.

After all, the Monterey Plainsmen had just beaten rival Lubbock High 28-7 to clinch the District 4-AAAA football title for the second straight year.

But still Odom looked like a man who had just been informed that the warden had decided to go fishing rather than sign a pardon.

"It was one of the toughest games we have played this year," Odom said, following the game. "They certainly came to play."

"They" were the Lubbock High Westerners. And, yes, they certainly came to Lowrey Field Thursday night to give the state-ranked Plainsmen a run for the Silver Spurs.

The Plainsmen and the Westerners engaged in hand-to-hand combat much of the night with LHS dishing out more than it was receiving particularly during the first half which ended 7-0.

Maybe that was what worried Odom.

"We didn't really make any changes at halftime," Odom said. "But we did decide to run a little more than we had. We adjusted our blocking some, but that was it."

Odom believes the biggest change was in the Plainsmen's attitude. "We came out to play in the second half."

The Plainsmen, who stung LHS for 278 yards on the ground, picked up 145 of those in the second half with quarterback Ron Reeves doing the majority of the dirty work.

"In the second half, we just had some great blocking," Reeves said. "(Dudley) McMinn just did a great job getting his man and that let me get outside on them."

Reeves, who scored four touchdowns which broke his own school record for points in a season, said Monterey wasn't blocking that well in the first half particularly when he was trying to pass.

He also added that he didn't think LHS was necessarily keying on him during the game.

"If they had keyed on me the whole game I would have just given the ball to (Jeff) Harp or McMinn," Reeves said. "They can do the job."

Reeves ended the evening with 150 yards rushing.

Lubbock High coach Rusty Talbot said the Westerners had to stop Reeves to win the game. And they didn't do it.

"We knew Reeves was the key," Talbot said. "And there were times that he killed us. Monterey executes so well. They take advantage of every mistake and that's what makes them so good."

Talbot said the Westerners "came to play as hard as they could and did."

The start of the downfall for Lubbock High was when runningback Ernest Day left the game with a head injury after being knocked out of bounds on an end sweep.

Following the loss of Day, Lubbock High managed only 9 yards total offense.

"It hurt us when he went out," Talbot said. "He was having a good night."

Day ended the night with 80 yards on 11 carries.

Odom agreed with his coaching counterpart that the loss of Day certainly hurt the Westerners.

"I don't know if the defensive people made any changes after he (Day) went out or not," Odom said.

Defensive mentor Bobby Moegle said Monterey made no such changes after Day's departure.

"We just didn't execute that well tonight," Moegle said. "The way we played anyone was capable of getting yardage."

Texas Tech's women's tennis team will play SMU in Dallas today and follow that with a match against Trinity in San Antonio Saturday.

Play today will begin at 2 p.m. on the SMU varsity courts and a 1 p.m. Saturday.

good field position at Lubbock's 37. On the first play after the kick, Robby McDaniel slammed straight ahead for 4. Then on second down, Reeves rambled to his left and jumped over LHS strong safety Jimmy Garza as he turned the corner and scooted 33 yards down the boundary for the touchdown.

Reeves leaped over Lubbock's Mark Vickery at the goal with 11 seconds left in the quarter. Phil Brueidigam added the conversion kick and MHS led 14-7.

Lubbock's Garza dug the Westerners into a deeper hole on the ensuing kickoff when he fumbled at his 21. Thomasson covered the loose ball for the Plainsmen and Monterey needed seven plays to move the 21 yards for an insurance score. The bullish quarterback kept for a first down on fourth and 1 at the 12. Then with third-and-goal at the 5, Reeves rolled to his left and cut past LHS tackler Chris Bigham for the score with 9:07 left to play. Brueidigam kicked the PAT again.

Another costly turnover allowed Monterey to drive only 16 yards for its final tally. On third-and-9 at the Lubbock 10, Westerner quarterback Ricky Moreno desperately heaved a toss for tight end Kelly Roberts. Mike Carter lunged for the interception at the 16.

After McDaniel bolted 2 yards behind his right guard, Reeves took the honors again with 4:50 left in the game. The quarterback sprinted to his left on the option play for a 14-yard scoring run.

The score finished Reeves for the night with 150 yards in 18 carries. His four touchdowns lifted his scoring total to 102 points for the season, 6 more than his previous school scoring record of 96 set last year.

Reeves also reached paydirt on Monterey's first possession of the night to lift MHS ahead 7-0. After Lubbock's 24-yard punt died at Monterey's 47, the winners marched 53 yards in nine plays, all on the ground. Reeves sneaked behind his right tackle for the final 2 yards with 6:48 left in the opening stanza.

Lubbock answered that score by reaching Monterey's end zone on its next possession, but LHS failed to score any points. On third-and-4 at the LHS 26, Day tossed a halfback pass to wingback Larry Dupree, who juggled it and bounced to the turf at the MHS 3. But safety Greg Isler slammed into the receiver and the ball rolled loose into the end zone for a touchdown.

Not to be discouraged, the Lubbocks reached the end zone again on their next possession and tied the count at 7-all. The Westerners moved the ball from their 20 to Monterey's 22 with running plays.

Then on second-and-12 at the 22, Moreno connected with receiver Vickery near the right boundary. Vickery snagged the pass away from defender Andy Barron and angled toward the flag for a score. Day booted the extra-point kick.

Day rushed 11 times for 80 yards before the injury. Fullbacks McDaniel and Mitchell added 77 and 75 yards, respectively, on the ground.

Rodriguez Duo Ties For Lead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Wise-cracking Chi Chi Rodriguez and Victor Regalado blended their talents for a 10-under-par 62 and a tie for the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 Walt Disney World National Team Golf Classic.

"Rodriguez and Regalado," quipped the Puerto Rican Chi Chi. "Double R. And it ran like a Rolls-Royce."

They shared the top spot with Gibby Gilbert and Grier Jones, who played their back nine with a better ball of 29.

Rodriguez made six of the 10 birdies recorded by his team on the 6,951-yard Palm Course, the easier of the two layouts used for the first two rounds of this unique event. They'll play the 7,197-yard Magnolia course today. Jones and Gilbert played Magnolia and will switch to the Palm for the second round. Both carry pars of 72. Scoring is based on the better ball of each two-man team.

"Victor calmed me down a lot," said Rodriguez. "I'm a lousy putter because I putt too fast. He kept telling me, 'take a couple of practice swings before you putt.'"

It worked. Rodriguez birdied three in a row early in the round capped by a 45-footer that triggered Chi Chi's bull-fighter act. Regalado, the only Mexican on the American tour, holed a 25-foot putt on their final hole for a share of the lead.

Only one stroke off the lead at 63 were Terry Diehl and Lyn Lott, roommates in their college days at Georgia; Lee Elder and Jim Wiechers; Charles Coody and Lou Graham.

At 64, 8 under par and 2 strokes off the lead, were Eddie Pearce and Terry Caltelt. Andy Bean and Gary Koch, Steve Melnyk and Andy North, Forrest Fezler and Roger Maltbie, Keith Fergus and Phil Hancock, Lynn Rosely and D.A. Weibring.

PGA champ Lanny Wadkins and his brother Bobby were in a large group at 65. Also at that figure were Johnny Miller and his Japanese partner, Tsuneyaki Nakajima, who chipped in twice.

Defending champions Bill Kratzert and Woody Blackburn shot a 66. So did the favored team of Hale Irwin and Tom Weiskopf.

Former champions Hubert Green, the current U.S. Open titleholder, and Mac McLendon were well back at 68.

Arnold Palmer and Leonard Thompson, a winner last week in Pensacola, could do no better than a 71, 1 under par, and must improve drastically if they are to make the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Tech Opens Swim Slate

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (Special) — Texas Tech's men's swimming team will open its season today and Saturday for a dual meet against Arkansas. Action will begin at 1 p.m. both days.

Lettermen Bill Mason, Mike Butler and Eric Muehlberger are expected to lead the Raider swimmers this season.

Mason, a senior, will swim the 200 breaststroke, while Butler, a junior, will swim the 100 and 200 freestyles. Muehlberger will swim the 100 and 200 backstrokes. Muehlberger, a senior, was in the NCAA meet last season.

Newcomers Steve Krueger, Dan Redfern and Al Sutton are expected to bolster the Tech squad, also. Freshman Krueger will swim the 200 backstroke and the individual medley. Sutton, also a frosh, will swim the 50 and 100 freestyles, while Redfern, a junior college transfer, will be a butterflyer.

Tech's first home meet of the year will be versus SMU Nov. 11.

Tech Coach Ponders Team's Mental State

By CARTER CROMWELL

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The question has been asked all week —will Texas Tech be ready to play versus TCU this Saturday after last weekend's disheartening loss to Texas? Thursday, Steve Sloan didn't have a definite answer.

"It's just hard to say," the Raider head coach said. "We had good concentration in practice (Thursday), but didn't have a whole lot of spirit. It's hard to describe the feeling—businesslike, I guess."

The Techs still have a great deal to shoot for this season—a possible 9-2 record and a bowl game, which would be virtually assured if the Raiders win their last four games to finish 9-2.

Dallas Fans Due Aerial Fireworks

DALLAS (AP) — There will be an aerial battle in Dallas and a bitter struggle in Houston Saturday in the top two matches of the Southwest Conference.

The top two passers in the conference, playing for teams with weak defenses against the pass, will face each other in the Cotton Bowl when Mike Ford of Southern Methodist and Randy Hertel of Rice take their teams to the field.

Meanwhile, Arkansas, fighting to stay in the battle for the conference title and keep its chances for a bowl bid alive, hosts dangerous Baylor, and TCU goes to Lubbock to play Texas Tech in a homecoming game.

There is not much at stake in the SMU-Rice game, but the contest should be a good match between Ford and Hertel, both freshmen.

Ford ranks ninth nationally in passing with 13 completions per game while Hertel is 15th with 12.

They are also 1-2 in the conference.

Ford is the man coach Ron Meyer is counting on to bring SMU, now 2-3, some national recognition in the next three years. Ford passed for 273 yards against Ohio State, 259 against Houston, 253 against Texas, and 287 against A&M. He also has nine touchdown passes.

"I am not pleased," Ford said this week. "I've completed 48 per cent, which is terrible, and had 15 interceptions, which is worse. I haven't been able to throw as hard this as I did in high school."

Ford has been hampered by injuries, but Meyer said next year the opponents will see a much more improved Ford.

"What Ford needs and will get is a real hard off-season weight and conditioning program," Meyer said. "He's never had to do that. But he will. And you won't see the real Ford until next year."

Top-ranked Texas, 7-0, goes to Houston still thinking of that 30-0 loss to the Cougars last year.

This will be the time to get even. The Cougars are without their top quarterback Danny Davis and the team has been placed on probation by the NCAA for alleged recruiting irregularities.

The Cougars, 4-3, feel that it was Texas that turned them in to the NCAA and are not happy about it.

Basketball Slate Draws Few Games

Only a handful of high school basketball games are on tap this weekend, with Witharrral at Union the only game slated tonight.

Saturday, girls games find Valley hosting Jayton in a rematch of Tuesday's season opener which Valley won 71-67. Meadow at Klondike, Spade at Bledsoe and Nazareth vs. Follett at the Darrouzett Clinic.

Ray Narleski of the Detroit Tigers was touched for four grand slams during the 1959 season.

However, after the loss to Texas, Tech is out of the SWC race, for all practical purposes. That's unusual, since the Raiders were in the race all the way last season and was in contention this year until last weekend. With the Cotton Bowl a faint goal, at best, the task for Tech is to redefine its goals.

"We've talked to them about this, and the players have talked about it among themselves," Sloan said. "We must realize that we can still have a fine season if we don't let down."

"This game and the next three are important to us as far as getting into a bowl goes." Bowl invitations can first be extended at 6 p.m. on Nov. 19. Tech plays Houston that night. It will be Tech's next-to-last game of the season.

Following Thursday's workout, Sloan said quarterback Rodney Allison looked the best he's looked since he returned to practice.

"I expect him to play some against TCU, but it's tough now to say how much," Sloan said. "We just can't seem to get Mark (Johnson) well." Johnson, troubled by a thigh bruise, hasn't been able to run well this week.

Sloan said that, based on the situation now, Tres Adams will start at quarterback for Tech against the Horned Frogs.

Strongside guard Greg Wesels has improved and will start Saturday, but Greg Mahoney will see action, too. Wesels has been troubled by a back injury all season, and Mahoney, his replacement, has been hobbling with a pulled hamstring since the Rice game Oct. 15.

Strong safety Larry Dupre, who suffered a hip pointer against Texas, is questionable for Saturday's game. Greg Frazier, normally the free safety, will start in his place, and Larry Flowers will assume the free safety slot.

Lettermen's Group Plans Breakfast

The Texas Tech Lettermen's Association will have a breakfast at 7 a.m. Saturday at Furr's Cafeteria in Town & Country Shopping Center, according to Association president Junior Arterburn.

Tech head football coach Steve Sloan, head basketball coach Gerald Myers and school president Cecil Mackey will speak at the affair, which will be staged as part of the homecoming activities.

All Tech lettermen are invited to attend.

Kuhn Visits Capitol Hill, Talks Franchise Plans With Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn made another visit to Capitol Hill Thursday to offer encouragement to a group of congressmen who still want to see baseball returned to the nation's capital which lost the Senators to Texas six years ago.

"Nothing definitive was decided," said Rep. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., who arranged the meeting. "It was more of an informational meeting."

Dodd authored a letter that was co-signed by 15 House members last summer asking Kuhn to assure that baseball will be returned to Washington.

"We met with him to discuss what we could do to help bring back baseball," said Dodd of the meeting which originally was scheduled for immediately after the World Series but was delayed because of congressional business.

Dodd said Kuhn made several suggestions but "he also told of some of the difficulties, not the least of which is Baltimore nearby and how we would have to work around that."

Dodd also said Kuhn was not critical of the franchise plans.

Charles O. Finley, whose Oakland Athletics have been for some time the team most likely to be moved to another city.

"He (Kuhn) told us that no one has any idea of what Finley wants to do," said Dodd. "He did feel that it is not too soon to pull things together."

Dodd said a major concern in bringing a team to Washington is the finding of some one or group to finance the franchise. He said Kuhn had offered to be helpful with any person or group that could be found.

Others attending the closed meeting were Reps. Mendel Davis, D-S.C., Marty Russo, D-Ill., Leon Panetta, D-Calif., and B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., and Walter Fauntroy, the delegate from the District of Columbia.

With Kuhn, representing baseball were Dan Galbreath, the president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Sandy Hadden, the general counsel for baseball.

Kuhn, who grew up in Washington, long has been a proponent of returning baseball here and has spent much time on Capitol Hill offering help to interested Congressmen.

Buc Pitchers Reach Today For Bucks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rich Gossage and Terry Forster, who spent last season in the Pittsburgh Pirate bullpen, will pitch for the "bucks" today in baseball's re-entry draft.

Unsigned by Pittsburgh, each may be drafted by as many as 13 teams. Then they can negotiate with any of them, including the Pirates.

The 26-year-old Gossage, nicknamed "Goose," had a live goose as a bullpen mascot last season, and the Pirates played a wild goose call over the public address system when the 6-foot-3 right-hander pitched.

But he seems certain to take his fast-ball elsewhere, and his agent, Jerry Kapstein, is reportedly seeking a $2.2 million, multi-year contract.

Last season, Gossage struck out 154 batters in 132 innings and compiled an 11-9 record and a 1.64 earned run average.

Forster, a 25-year-old lefty, will command considerably less money. Though he was American League Fireman of the Year in 1974, he was bothered by arm trouble the next two years.

Last season, he compiled a 4.45 earned run average and a 6-4 record in 87 1/3 innings with Pittsburgh.

Both Gossage and Forster came to the Pirates from the Chicago White Sox last December in a trade that sent Richie Zisk to the White Sox. Zisk, represented by Kapstein, will also be up for grabs in the re-entry draft.

The Pirates, who'll need some relief help in 1978, may draft Rawly Eastwick, who's played out his option with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"There will be some people who will say we are not willing to spend enough for quality players," Pirate Vice President Harding Peterson said this week.

"And there will be people who will say we are right for not paying such a high price for players."

Vet Hires F. Lee Bailey In Horse-Switch Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Veterinarian Dr. Mark Gerard, suspended from practice at Belmont Park for "possible racing fraud" in the New York race horse switch scandal, hired attorney F. Lee Bailey Thursday and issued a statement denying all allegations against him.

In the statement — issued by attorneys Neil T. Shayne and Bailey — Gerard said: "Allegations have been made that I have been involved in deliberately switching a fast horse named 'Cinzano' for a mediocre horse named 'Lebon' at Belmont Race Track. These allegations are false."

The statement then was broken down into five paragraphs which read:

"(1) Two horses were identified for me at Kennedy Airport on June 4, 1977, one as Cinzano and one as Lebon.

"(2) Because the NYRA (New York Racing Association) does not require identity by tattoos on imported horses, I have no way of knowing whether the original identification to me was true or false.

"(3) The horse known to me as Cinzano suffered destructive injuries by accident on June 12, 1977. After examining this horse, I determined that it would have to be destroyed.

"(4) I had the carcass removed from the premises as soon as possible for obvious reasons, particularly including the well-being of the other horses in the stable, but after examination by another veterinarian.

"(5) Irresponsible, leaks to the press from the New York Racing and Wagering Board have resulted in unfair and prejudicial opinions being formed by the public. I now wonder whether anyone is still interested in making careful evaluation of the facts."

The scandal began when a horse listed as Lebon won a race at 57-1 odds on Sept. 23 at Belmont Park. One better, later identified as Dr. Gerard, won $77,920 on the horse.

The Racing and Wagering Board suspended Dr. Gerard after accusing him of "possible racing fraud," but that suspension was lifted on Wednesday by State Supreme Court Judge Theodore Velsor, who said the doctor must be granted a hearing before the board.

John Van Lindt, an attorney for the Racing and Wagering Board, said an appeal of Velsor's ruling would be filed today, giving State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz enough time to prepare his appeal, which probably will be filed at the same time.

Dr. Gerard's hiring of Bailey, a noted criminal lawyer who was on the defense team in the Patty Hearst trial, came one day before a Nassau County grand jury was expected to begin hearing testimony in the scandal. It also came a day before the FBI said its field agent in Nassau County would meet with U.S. District Attorney David Trager of Brooklyn to attempt to determine whether there has been violation of federal law.

"There are a number of possibilities we are theorizing on," said a spokesman for the FBI's New York office. "Interstate transportation to aid racketeering, there might be violation of the fraud-by-wire statute because of allegations being made about possible insurance fraud."

The spokesman said the FBI would continue its investigation, but ultimately it was up to the U.S. attorney to determine whether there were any prosecutable federal violations.

Meanwhile, a five-man investigatory team arrived in Montevideo, Uruguay

Thursday to try to establish a positive identification of the horse called Lebon, which currently is under heavy guard at Belmont Park.

"All I can tell you is that we are looking for evidence that will stand up in court," said Joseph Mayer, director of investigations for the Racing and Wagering Board.

Also on the team were Dr. Norman Lewis, a board veterinarian; Dr. Manuel Gilman, horse-identification supervisor of the New York Racing Association; Alfred Garcia of The Jockey Club, and J. William Moxsen, a Nassau County district attorney's vice squad detective.

Mayer and the others went directly from the airport to the local jockey club where they began interviewing persons connected with the two horses.

Van Lindt also said the team would be taking blood samples of the sires and dams of the horses, "if they are still alive."

Asked if blood samples could make positive identification, Van Lindt replied: "I don't know if it's definite. I'm not an expert. I'm not a veterinarian. It gives you an answer."

Apparently, blood testing can determine if two horses are not related but cannot determine positively if they are related.

Earlier this week, four other horses were named in the investigation by the Racing and Wagering Board. The board said it was investigating whether a horse named As de Pique II may not actually be an Argentine stakes winner named Enchumao, which was destroyed last winter in Florida.

Ponies Finish Year Against Plainview

for Lamesa. "Estacado coach Louis Kelley said. "They have played well but they just couldn't win their games."

Lamesa, beaten last week by doormat Brownfield, has certainly had its share of close ones this year.

Of the four loop games the David Bonds troops have lost, the most lopsided setback has been 7 points by Snyder. The Tors lost to Dunbar and Brownfield by 1 point and to state-ranked Lake View by 4 points.

"I was talking to Coach Bonds, and he says they are ready," Kelley said, indicating his team is ready to butt noggins too.

"We are ready to keep winning," Kelley said.

Only speedster Kenzey Burrell, who has been bothered with a sore shoulder for the past couple of weeks, is considered much of a question for the Matadors. And Kelley said Burrell isn't that questionable.

Schoolboys

District 4-A: Lorenzo, which has yet to earn a bronzed football for its trophy case, can do so tonight against Petersburg, a school that is no stranger to the playoffs. Petersburg is ranked No. 2 in area and shares No. 10 ranking in AP state poll. Only loss was 10-0 to AA Idalou. Tonight's game concludes regular season. Lorenzo is 6-2, 4-0 and still must face Ralls. Lorenzo's setbacks came against Seagraves and Frenship.

District 5-A: Seagraves, the state's No. 1 ranked unit, has won 26 of 27 regular-season games over last three years and could wrap up playoff rights with a win. Eagles 8-0, 2-0. Plains (6-2, 2-1) could throw things to a possible coin toss involving Stanton or O'Donnell, with a win. Both Stanton and O'Donnell are 1-1 in league play and clash tonight in Stanton.

District 3-B West: Borden County and New Home are both 4-0 in zone outings and clash tonight. Coyotes were in pre-season Top 10 but were riddled by injuries early. BC is 5-4 on year, NH 4-4.

District 3-B East: Any one of three teams could get the playoff rights, but the Roby-Forsan game is the feature, as both teams are 3-1 in zone, as is Jayton. If Jayton beats Sterling City at home and Forsan beats Roby, then Jayton is the representative. If Roby wins tonight, then it gets the playoff spot no matter what Jayton does.

District 3-B (Six-Man) South: Another complicated situation that involves Hermleigh, Highland and Trent. Hermleigh can keep things simple by beating Highland. But if Highland wins and Trent beats Hermleigh, there will be a three-way deadlock and a coin flip will be needed to see who plays Wellman for the league crown.

In District 3-AA, Dimmitt and Friona's clash headlines the action, as both are 2-1 and the winner will still be on top, as will Muleshoe and Littlefield, provided they can beat Olton and Morton, respectively.

In District 3-A, it matters not how Vega and Kress fare tonight against Bovina and Springlake-Earth, respectively, for next week's showdown will determine the playoff representative.

Last week's 52-12 (.813) mark topped season's average to .748 (440-148).

CORONADO-PLAINVIEW

The Coronado Mustangs will be the first city team to finish the '77 football season as the Don King-coached club goes against Plainview tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field.

Plainview (1-1 in 4-AAAA action) still has an outside shot at the loop title, while a win by the Mustangs would only even its season record to 5-5.

King, who compared his club to the Texans at the Alamogordo during last week's 40-7 loss to state-ranked Monterey, said the Mustangs will try to regroup against the Bulldogs.

"We are going to try to get back together," King said. "It's a big challenge because Plainview has excellent personnel."

King pointed out that Plainview has "better speed than anyone else in the district."

The Bulldogs are led by quarterback Jamie McAlister, tailback Billy Williams and fullback Royce Coleman. The group will be joined by defensive ace Ricky Ellis, the loop's defending 100-yard dash champion.

King said the Mustangs "just didn't have enough kick" to get by Monterey last week. However, he was proud of the way the team performed.

"We could have given up early but didn't," King said.

King pointed out that quarterback Buck Williams played one of his better games against the Plainsmen.

LCHS-NMMI

The Lubbock Christian High Eagles will travel to Roswell, N.M., to meet New Mexico Military Institute in an interstate matchup starting at 8:30 p.m. CDT.

The Eagles will attempt to rebound from a thrashing handed it by Fort Worth Christian.

Dartmouth Coach Resigns Position

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — John Jake Crouthamel, one of Dartmouth's most successful coaches and greatest running backs, has resigned as the college's head football coach, effective the end of this season.

"My association with Dartmouth and Dartmouth football has been a long and meaningful one," Crouthamel said Thursday. "I have appreciated the support I have received from the administration, students and the alumni. However, at this time, I wish to pursue other interests."

Since Crouthamel took over as head coach from Bob Blackman at the end of the 1970 season, he led the Big Green to three Ivy League titles and five winning seasons. This year's team is 6-1 overall, 4-1 in Ivy League play and tied with Yale in the Ivy League race.

Crouthamel starred at Dartmouth as a two-way halfback, starting every game for three years from 1957-59.

NEW DIAGNOSTIC COMPUTER SYSTEM INSTALLED for Gene Messer Ford's Service Department

Tommy Evans, Service Manager for Gene Messer Ford, announced that final installation and training procedures for Gene Messer Ford's new automated diagnostic computer had been completed. The system, Sun's 2001 Diagnostic Computer, makes sophisticated and time-consuming testing simple and quick, eliminating technical and mechanical errors.

The revolutionary system gathers information from the car, computes specific tests being performed and displays the results on a television-type screen. The mechanic then knows precisely what repairs or adjustments are necessary. When the work is completed, a second testing is performed to be certain everything was properly repaired and is functioning correctly.

Gene Messer's technicians have been trained by Sun's computer representatives who have extensive training in both the computer and automotive fields. Preprogramming of the diagnostic computer eliminates the possibility of technician error when tests are performed.

The computer performs over 100 separate tests, either automatically or manually—performing a basic set of fifty-nine preprogrammed tests in five minutes, saving up to eight hours. The computer tests the starting system in a cranking type test, the charging and electrical system, idle and emission tests, low and high speed cruise tests, snap acceleration tests, gas efficiency, timing and timing advance, three types of compression tests and numerous others to assure peak performance and dependability.

For additional information contact Tommy Evans, Service Manager, Gene Messer Ford, 19th and Texas, 765-8801.

'Carelessness' Caused CBS To Mislead Fans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public may have been misled about the "winner-take-all" aspect of the CBS "Heavyweight Championship of Tennis" but the network did not do it intentionally, the House communications subcommittee was told Thursday.

Robert Wussler, president of CBS Sports, blamed it on carelessness.

"Never did we sit in a closed room and come up with a gimmick — how can we deceive the public," Wussler told the committee. "It was sloppy procedure. Sloppiness should not be confused with attempts to deceive the public."

The subcommittee ended its two days of hearings into the relationships of television with sports by taking a close look at the CBS tennis series which were described on the air and in advertisements as "winner-take-all" when, in fact, both participants received money.

Jimmy Connors was featured in all four matches against Rod Laver, John Newcombe, Manuel Orantes and Ilie Nastase over the past two years.

The last match in the series was held in Puerto Rico March 5 when Connors received a $500,000 guarantee, win or lose, and Nastase collected $150,000. Millions of television viewers were told on several occasions that the prize was $250,000 — winner take all.

Even though staff counsel indicated that top CBS officials, including Wussler, should have known that the nature of the tennis matches were not as advertised, Wussler testified that he did not learn of it until after it was reported in newspapers. He said he then took action to have an apology made on the air.

Wussler blamed the problem on a changeover in personnel at CBS, "no continuity on the job, no written procedures."

He said the CBS Sports Division had been reorganized and that in August he had instituted new administrative procedures in an effort to prevent a repeat of the incident.

"We have reorganized the division so that what we present to the public is what we say it is," he said. "It is too late for these tennis matches but we have taken action to prevent it in the future."

In a report to the subcommittee, the staff said CBS may have violated several sections of the Federal Communications Act in its failure to acknowledge promotional considerations during the tennis telecasts.

The subcommittee did not question the CBS officials, who included Barry Frank, senior vice president, and Alan Levin, vice president for business affairs, about this because the FCC has the alleged violation under investigation.

Young Denies Connections With Palermo

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jimmy Young and his co-managers vehemently denied Tuesday speculation that the heavyweight contender is connected with Frank "Blinky" Palermo, a convicted racketeer figure who was involved in the boxing scandals in the 1950s.

Rumors about a Palermo-Young connection flew through this gambling center just two days before Young was scheduled to fight Ken Norton in a nationally televised 15-round bout.

Co-manager Jack Levin, who operates a lighting fixtures business in Young's hometown of Philadelphia, said that he knew Palermo and that Palermo had dropped into his store on occasions. He also said that he discussed boxing with Palermo but that's as far as it went.

"I'm going to ask him to stay out... in a nice way," said Levin. "I'm going to tell him 'Look, a story got out and I don't want to be seen with you.'"

"I wouldn't know him if he was in this room unless you introduced him to me," said Young, who added he could not understand what all the furor was about. "This sounds like a joke to me."

Bobby Brown, a co-manager who has been with Young for most of the fighter's career said, "Do you think for one minute that this young man trying to go somewhere in life and me coming from nothing and trying to make something of myself would do something to mess ourselves up?"

The third manager, Ray Kelly said, "The hell with Frank Palermo, he doesn't have anything to do with us in any shape or form."

Levin said he and Kelly got involved with Young when they bought the fighter's contract from Frank Gelb and that they and Brown are the only ones connected with the No. 2 heavyweight contender.

DISTANCE RUNNERS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Three American runners will compete in an international women's marathon this weekend in Puerto Rico, the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union announced Thursday. They are Miki Gorman of Los Angeles, Julie Shea of Raleigh, N.C., and Charlotte Lettis of Amherst, Mass.

Norton Remembers Ex-Sparring Mate

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Ken Norton remembers very well a sparring partner he had four years ago—a moving target named Jimmy Young.

"He was very difficult to hit to the head," Norton recalled Thursday of the fighter he used to help get ready for a fight with Muhammad Ali four years ago.

Norton fights Young Saturday night in a scheduled 15-rounder and he realizes that Young has improved greatly as a slight-of-hand fighter.

"He's a spoiler, he's a clutch," said Norton. "He has a way of making you look bad while he's looking good."

There's no doubt that, win or lose, Jimmy Young can make his opponent look foolish, and this concerns Norton who feels he needs more than just a victory.

"If I win decisively, it'll help my bargaining power with Ali," said Norton. "It'll help force him to fight me."

Ali has promised to give a title bout to the winner of the fight between the two contenders in the world. Norton is ranked No. 1 and Young No. 2 by both the World Boxing Council and the World Boxing Association.

But there are boxing people, including Norton, who feel that Ali is far from anxious to fight Norton or Young again. Ali has beaten Norton twice in three tough fights, including a controversial title bout, and scored a disputed decision over Young in a title match.

Ali has signed to fight in February the winner of a Leon Spinks-Alfio Righetti fight, according to Top Rank, Inc., and the champion reportedly has a second fight lined up.

There has been confusion, which in boxing is normal, over what the status of Norton, Young and Ali would be if Ali does not fight the winner of the nationally televised bout at Caesars Palace.

In his latest pronouncement, Jose Salaiman, president of the World Boxing Council, said that Ali would be allowed to fight either Norton or Young by next April or risk being stripped of WBC title recognition.

Should Ali be stripped of the title, Salaiman said the winner of the Norton-Young fight would fight another contender for the championship.

Young, who gained his No. 2 ranking by outpointing George Foreman, has taken some verbal shots at Norton's ability, calling him "The Mechanical Man."

But Norton doesn't believe he is cast in a particular fighting mold. "I'm learning with each fight," the 32-year-old boxer-actor said. "I'm getting older but I'm learning."

A lesson he said he learned from his disputed title-fight loss to Ali was that he wasn't physical enough. He plans to be physical against Young, use his greater strength, "plus I can box."

And there is one thing he doesn't plan to do. "I don't plan to play his hand."

If Norton doesn't play Young's hand, which is cat-and-mouse boxing, then he will hold some powerful cards in the heavyweight division.

The fight will be part of an ABC telecast which will run from 8-10 p.m. CST.

Championship Bout Tops Mat Card

Champion Harley Race will put his title on the line against Cyclon Negro in a world heavyweight championship bout which headlines tonight's wrestling program at Fair Park Coliseum. The championship bout is sanctioned by the National Wrestling Association. Action on the program starts at 8 p.m.

Along with the main event, Dick Murdoch takes on J.J. Dillon; the Brute and the Angel combine to meet Ricky Romero and Ted DiBiase in a tag-team match; Super Destroyer tangles with Rip Hawk; Don Kernodle goes against Johnny Starr and Reggie Parks wrestles Lobo Hernandez.

Playoff Games Spice Menu For New Mexico Schoolboys

Avalanche-Journal Correspondent

It's all over for some New Mexico football teams. For others, the fun is just now beginning.

The regular portion of the 1977 football season came to a close for the state's Class AA and A schools last weekend, so — for the elite few — the state playoffs unfolded this week.

Count among the survivors Jal and Eunice in District 4-AA and Hagerman and Tatum in 4-A.

Eunice is probably the only surprise in that playoff field. Before its head-knocker with Lea County rival Jal last week, coach Tommy Gruber's Cardinals were only 2-6 overall. However, they put together their best game of the year to upend the favored Panthers and make their way into the playoffs.

Eunice and Jal finished with the same 2-1 record in 4-AA, but Jal got the nod as the league's No. 1 playoff representative because the other Eunice league win was a double-overtime verdict over Dexter three weeks ago. Jal ended 2-AA runner-up Moriarty (5-5) and Eunice got 2-AA champion Clayton (4-4) in the opening round of the playoffs.

Tatum will go against defending state champion Carrizozo (5-1-2), the District 3-A kingpin, in the first round of Class A playoff games. The Coyotes are in the playoffs as the No. 2 team from District 4-A, while Hagerman goes as the top representative from the league by virtue of its 22-0 victory over Tatum last week. Hagerman faces 3-A runner-up Capitán.

One week of regular-season action remains in Class AAA, but Artesia is already assured of a shot at a fourth straight state title. The Bulldogs, rated no better than third in this week's state Class AAA poll, clinched a tie for the 4-AAA championship by tripping Tucumcari last week and can make its fourth district title in a row official by stopping luckless Lovington this week.

Portales and Tucumcari, both with 1-1 records in 4-AAA, will be fighting for the remaining playoff spot from 4-AAA in the other conference game.

Things aren't that clear yet in 4-AAAA, but Clovis definitely has the inside lane in the title chase with two weeks remaining on the schedule. The Wildcats stopped highly regarded Carlsbad 14-0 in a showdown for the top last week and has Roswell Goddard and Hobbs left on its schedule.

Carlsbad, the favorite now to grab the No. 2 playoff ticket from that league, faces a must-win situation when it goes against Roswell this week.

Martial Arts Expert Demonstrates To UT

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A 30-year-old psychologist and martial arts expert barely flinched when a Texas Longhorn tackle pummeled his body in a demonstration Wednesday of how to prevent injuries.

"It wasn't any barroom swing, but I jabbed him pretty good," Steve Massey, 6-3, 242, said of punching Ted Gambordella, who weighs only 175.

"He absorbed the heck out of 'em. I've never had anybody say, 'Hit me,' before. He told me later I was only the second guy to ever move him. That made me feel better," Massey said.

Gambordella, of Alexandria, La., staged the demonstration after telling Coach Fred Akers, "Give me five minutes and let the biggest player on your team hit me in the ribs as hard as he can."

"Nothing I do is mystical," Gambordella said. "It's mind control techniques based on relaxation. It's something that's new. It's how to get hit without getting injured."

"He gave a lesson on how to breathe and control your breath during contact," Akers said. "If it will decrease injuries, we're for it."

Gambordella said he holds a master's degree in guidance and psychology from LSU, a fifth-degree black belt and also knows karate, jujitsu, zen and yoga.

He said he has worked with the Houston Rockets and the New Orleans Jazz pro basketball players and with athletes at Rice, Baylor and LSU.

He has tried to interest New York publishers in two pamphlets he published himself but says they tell him to get an agent first, and agents tell him to publish a book first.

Akers agreed to have Gambordella return during spring drills next year, when he will charge $10 per player for five lessons of 15-30 minutes.

"They (Texas) spend $12,000 a year on tape," Gambordella said.

"A lot of these players today didn't know how to fall forward. None of them knew how to fall backward. The coaches would all say, 'You know how to do that.' The coaches may have told them how but never showed them," he said.

He said he teaches 12 techniques, including how to fall, flexibility, how to get hit, balance points, relaxation, meditation and peripheral vision.

On balance points, Gambordella said he could push over anybody, no matter how big, with just one finger. This would help pass-rushers and pass-blockers, he said.

RECEIVER ADDED

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Keith Hartwig, a wide receiver from the University of Arizona, was signed Thursday as a free agent by the Green Bay Packers to fill the place on the roster vacated by the injured Gary Weaver.

Opree Hosts Blue Grass Music Fest

ODESSA (Special) — Saturday, is "South Plains College Night" at the Odessa Brand New Opree which is held in Odessa's famous Globe Theatre. Six great country/bluegrass bands will be featured. Showtime is 7:30 p.m.

South Plains music majors come from all over the nation. For instance, Sandy Naylor hails from Montpelier, Vermont and was majoring in Russian at the University of Vermont. She is now a mandolin player with the "New Level City Ramblers." Brock Cromwell, guitarist with the Ramblers, was studying environmental geography at a Canadian University; David Hollender, drummer and banjo player was a semi-professional performer teaching music in Nashville, Tennessee and V.O. Johnson, fiddler, was performing at a large amusement park in Arkansas. They read about the SPC program in one of the few college level programs of its kind in the world.

The young college musicians will be featured on instruments ranging from dobro to piano to pedal steel guitar and saxophone. They will perform a variety of country and bluegrass hits, both old and new — "Rock Bottom," "Blue Light," "Sugar Foot Rag," "Amanda," "The World's Waitin' for the Sunrise," and "Hot Burrito Breakdown" to name a few.

"Three's a Crowd," a faculty trio, boasts two top guitarists, John Hartin, program director and Tim McCasland, country/bluegrass instructor and Dan Hanson, stage band and "Baker's Dozen" sponsor, pianist.

A veteran group to perform will be "Texas Gold," a five piece progressive country band which provided the warm-up music before each performance of "Texas, Cradle of the Giants." SPC's country music road show which made its debut this past summer. They include guitarists and vocalists Eddie Hill and Carl Sims, saxophonist/harp player Buddy Faulks, pedal steel guitarists, Baxter Vaughn and drummer, Randy Henderson.

"New Level City Ramblers," a bluegrass ensemble features: Sandy Naylor, Brock Greenwell, Randy Ellis, Don Miller and Wallace Pryor.

"Pseudo Mountain Boys," also, a bluegrass ensemble members include: Randy Ellis, Tab Tabscott, David Hollender, V.O. Johnson, Wallace Pryor and Gary Perkins.

Members of the "SPC Wire Choir" are: Randy Ellis, Bruce Boggs, Barry Canter, and Diane Harris.

The huge "South Plains Country Band" members are: Joan Woodruff, Darrel Jackson, Lisa Gruf, Rocky Reynolds Ray Sellers, Lanny Engler, David Hollender, Paul Barker, Billie Halliburton and Danny Crunk.

Under John Hartin's astute leadership, the country and bluegrass program at SPC in Levelland has grown from the seven students in its 1975 inception to a record number of 33 students this fall. Hartin has come a long way in the music field from an humble beginning. His first guitar was bought secondhand at an auction and his first instruction booklet from the local drugstore for a quarter; he taught himself to play. In the more than twenty years that have passed, he has risen to professional stature as a guitarist and now topped his career with the country/bluegrass directorship at SPC.

Because of the Permian — San Angelo football game, the Globe box office will open for ticket sales at 6 p.m. instead of 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students and senior citizens and 50 cents for children under twelve. There are no reservations — first come, first served. For a seat — come early.

False Beards Typify Movie's Realism

NEW YORK (AP) — Speculating about conspiracies in the assassination of John F. Kennedy has been a national pastime since Nov. 22, 1963. Now Hollywood — why not — is dredging up Abraham Lincoln's murder.

Was Lee Harvey Oswald the lone assassin of Kennedy? Was he the assassin at all? Who was behind him? The Cubans? The FBI? The CIA? Just change the name to John Wilkes Booth and the answers to the Confederates, the War Department, the National Police, and you have "The Lincoln Conspiracy," being ballyhooed around the country as the latest word on the events of 1865.

The Civil War is fertile ground for conspiracy theorists for a very simple reason — there were any number of conspiracies. Even the war itself can be viewed as a conspiracy by venal Southern slaveholders or Northern abolitionists, depending on which side you favor.

So "The Lincoln Conspiracy," purportedly based on long-lost and long-suppressed documents, would seem to have something going for it. Doesn't it seem unlikely that Booth acted only with a gang of second-rate accomplices to assassinate Lincoln?

But the problem with "The Lincoln Conspiracy," produced by Sunn Classic Pictures and featuring Bradford Dillman as Booth, is that it is so plastic, you're likely to walk out of the theater laughing rather than pondering the possibilities.

Those possibilities — facts, according to the movie — are that Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton and a group of radical Republican senators conspired with Booth to kidnap Lincoln because they feared Lincoln would impose too easy a peace on the South.

Booth, the movie says, went ahead and killed Lincoln and then escaped after a former Confederate captain involved in the plot, James W. Boyd, was killed and passed off as Booth by Stanton et al.

Civil War Times Illustrated, a magazine for Civil War buffs, has spent considerable time and money debunking those allegations, and it has done it convincingly. The magazine's editor, William C. Davis, sent several people over the same trails purportedly followed by researchers for the movie. They found, among other things, that several companies depicted in the film never existed and that Boyd, supposedly killed on April 26, 1865, was actually slain in a gunfight on Jan. 1, 1866 in Jackson, Tenn.

But even if the alleged facts are true, the movie is so flimsily put together it has trouble making its point. It takes an extremely complex period of American history and makes it something out of a fourth-grade textbook.

Even more harmful to the point the producers are trying to make is the amateurish texture of the film. Though all the actors are Americans, they are so wooden, they often seem dubbed; and the beards worn by John Anderson as Lincoln and Robert Middleton as Stanton are clearly false ones pasted on about as well as those worn by children at Halloween parties.

The sad thing is that there is a real need for historical films if they are done well. And there are many aspects of the Civil War that could stand examining — including hints of a plot against the government in 1862 by some Union army officers and politicians. But "The Lincoln Conspiracy" can only add to the distorted impressions we have of our history.

Book Recreates Flavor Of Jazz Festival

NEW YORK (AP) — "Newport Jazz Festival," a recently released, illustrated history of the internationally known festival, has much of the flavor of a family photograph album.

Interspersed with chatty recollections about individual performances are 300 never-before published photos of the annual musical celebration.

The book covers, in year-by-year sections, the period from the festival's premiere in July 1954 to the July 1976 festival in New York City.

Among the many candid pictures, for example, are ones of tenor sax player Zoot Sims pitching to trumpeter Clark Terry outside Freebody Park in Newport, R.I., Billie Holiday preparing to go on stage and Langston Hughes waiting to read his poetry.

Photographer Burt Goldblatt has captured in his pictures and accompanying text the feeling of the festival that eventually outgrew the small New England resort city where it was born. The death knell for the festival in Newport itself was sounded in 1971 when hordes of wine-drinking youths stormed the festival's fence and swarmed over the field and stage.

This year, festival promoter George Wein, citing staging costs in New York City, decided to move the festival upstate to Saratoga Springs, where it will be known as the Newport Festival-Saratoga. The New York festival will be renamed the Big Apple Festival.

No matter where the Newport Jazz Festival has been staged, it has created its own atmosphere. As Goldblatt says in his foreword, "... the Festival has for more than 20 years provided a unique forum for jazz musicians."

The outdoor setting of the festivals in Newport-by-the-sea in the 1950s and '60s brought jazz out of the nightclub and into the mainstream of American culture. By 1968, total festival attendance had passed the one million mark. Broadcasts and recordings of the performances reached a far wider audience.

"Newport Jazz Festival," published by Dial Press, is the first comprehensive history of the festival which has given jazz the kind of worldwide attention it never enjoyed before those summer days at the Newport Casino in 1954.

Cody Revives Solid Rock Act

UNION, N.J. (AP) — Commander Cody, who brought boogie-woogie piano to the world of rock, is back on the road with a streamlined band and a new album full of the crazed rock 'n' roll tunes that first brought him prominence.

"It's about time for me to establish a solo identity," Cody said in a telephone interview. "We're doing the kind of music I do best — not country, not truck-driving tunes, but lots of that boogie-woogie piano with a solid rock beat."

Cody, born George Frayne 33 years ago, spent seven years as the head of a San Francisco musical collective called the Lost Planet Airmen. The band became concert headliners through an eclectic mixture of rockabilly, spoofs of country ballads, western swing and older boogie-woogie tunes like the '40s hit, "Beat Me Daddy, Eight To the Bar."

"Back in 1967 we were the first rockers to get into country — before the Burritos, New Riders, anyone," he said. "Later we realized we weren't appealing to a specific part of the rock audience — other people were doing just country-rock, straight country, just swing."

"It was too much, too many directions at once," Cody said. "We didn't sell any records so we had to spend 300 days on the road just to break even. By last year we knew we had to go our separate ways."

There were four lead singers in the Airmen, but it was Cody's growling vocals on "Songs like the band's one AM hit, 'Hot Rod Lincoln,' and the oldie 'Riot In Cell Block No. 9' that got the crowd jumping."

So Cody decided he had enough stage presence to front his own band and concentrate on piano-dominated rock and boogie-woogie tunes. He kept two of his former Airmen buddies, added three other musicians and brought in two female singers to support his gruff voice and supply a change of pace in concert.

"Nobody ever says they're going to come and hear me in concert — they say they're going to come and see me," Cody said. "So you have to give them a show, something worth their money." So despite his six-foot, husky build, Cody dances while singing, leaps over his piano and leaps over his guitarist.

Cody said his boogie-woogie playing started in high school after his mother forced him to take piano lessons. The lessons stuck and Cody joined a band while attending the University of Michigan, where he was awarded a master's degree in fine arts. He left for California in 1969 to form Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen.

"My name came from a 1940s serial, 'Kommando Cody, Sky Marshal of the Universe.' It was a pretty esoteric thing — this guy put the ozone layer around the earth to help protect it from deadly cosmic rays. Back in the '60s we were really into that kind of thing."

His music, meantime, is moving even closer to old-time boogie-woogie. "The next album will concentrate on piano leads, more archetypal boogie, good ol' Tommy Dorsey style," he said, hoping today's rock audience is ready for it.

Separate Country Holds Appeal For Many People

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ernest Callenbach, a tall, skinny guy with bushy hair, has become a cult hero in some parts of the country for suggesting that the Northwest should secede from the Union.

In 1974, after dozens of publishers turned him down, he created his own company with a $3,500 investment to publish his strange tale, "Ecotopia," about a new country formed when the Northwest secedes.

Now Bantam Books, which had rejected the manuscript, has published the paperback edition. A West Linn, Ore., street has been named after the book, and piles of Ecotopias are sitting on the front counters of bookstores in Berkeley. It's required reading in courses there and at two dozen other universities.

In the novel, Ecotopia is born in 1980 when northern California, Oregon and Washington — disgusted with society's wasteful ways — split from the United States and shut their healthy borders to Americans.

The convivial society that results is governed mainly by women. Automobiles are banned and travel is by foot, bicycle or high-speed train. Loud public arguments and ritual war games replace violent sports as a way to release aggression and sex is freer and easier, with four holidays a year reserved for copulation.

Everything, down to plastic houses that self-destruct when buried, is recycled. And everyone seems happier about everything.

"It puts together a coherent picture of what a decent life might be like in America, which people really are hungry for," says Callenbach.

The book's hero is Will Weston of the New York Times-Post, who ventures into Ecotopia in 1999 to write a series on the country. He finds it comical and unreasonable at first, but ultimately decides to stay.

"When young people give Ecotopia to their parents to read, which many do, inevitably the parents say, 'Gee, that's what I remember life was like,'" says Callenbach, 48, who edits natural history guides and Film Quarterly for the University of California Press.

"Technically, virtually nothing in the book could not be done by 1999," he says. "The question is not whether we could do it but whether we want to."
