Stolen Mower Is Recovered In Lubbock

A riding lawnmower stolen from the residence of Keith Wied in Wilson Sunday afternoon was recovered in Lubbock and two suspects were arrested and charged with theft over $200 but less than $750, a misdemeanor.

A witness reported seeing two persons take the mower, and gave officers a description of the suspects and also of the car, which was traced through the license.

An echo meter valued at $5000 and other equipment including tools, furniture and telephone units were stolen from Wheeler Oil Co. about 9 miles northeast of Wilson last Friday night. Crime Line is offering a $300 reward in the case, and anyone with any information in the case is asked to call 998-5145.

There were reports that a drug-sniffing dog had detected possible drugs in two vehicles at Tahoka High School, but a search turned up no drugs, according to school officials.

In jail during the week were three persons for driving while intoxicated and one for expired registration and speeding.

MOTHER TO LOTS OF CHILDREN — Evelyn Boles, left, is "Mother" to 15 children, on weekdays anyway, so she definitely qualifies for her share of attention on Mother's Day this Sunday. Mrs. Boles, shown holding little Dustin Brookshire and keeping an eye on some of her "children" who seem ready for the next "tricycle-a-thon", has been a babysitter for 17½ years, one year in O'Donnell and the last 16½ years since she and her husband Charlie Boles moved to Tahoka in 1966. They have four grown children of their own, all married, and eight grandchildren. (LYNN COUNTY NEWS PHOTO)

Tahoka Teacher Serves On Regional Committee

UIL speech coach at Tahoka High School, Mrs. Leah Taylor, was invited to serve on the UIL Regional Speech and Debate Advisory Committee at the April 25 regional academic meet held at Howard College Big Spring. Mrs. Taylor was appointed to the committee by State Director of Speech and Debate, Dr. Elizabeth Bell of the University of Texas at Austin.

"The UIL speech program relies heavily on the support and expertise of Texas high school teachers," said State UIL Director Bailey Marshall, "Leah Taylor deserves special recognition for serving on the Regional Advisory Committee."

According to Marshall, at each of the 20 regional sites, these advisory committees offer their expertise to college contest directors who are often faced with unfamiliar UIL rules and procedures. These committees are comprised of outstanding high school speech teachers from across the state.

Mrs. Taylor has been teaching speech at Tahoka for 12 years. She also teaches English and journalism.

"I feel athletic teams are an important part of public school, but I feel we are not a well-rounded school without emphasis on academic teams as well," said Mrs. Taylor. "UIL academic events are an extension of the classroom where students have an opportunity to apply skills on a higher level."

"It has been my privilege to work with some of Tahoka's finest students. Serving on this committee gave me an opportunity to help insure fair competition for students at the regional contest."

WOODWORK BY DALTON

NOT TOO long ago someone asked me if I was in favor of tort reforms, and I told them I liked most of the goo-filled pastries pretty well just like they are.

"Tort, not tart," they said, and sometime later I realized that they were referring to settlements of civil lawsuits, which has not much to do with pastries, except that a lot of folks figure that suing at every opportunity is sort of like pie in the sky, in view of the generosity of most juries.

Right now the Texas Legislature is considering a broad range of tort and insurance reform measures, and personally I think there ought to be limits on judgements while still preserving the basic rights of injured individuals to seek relief through the courts.

Gov. Bill Clements, who is never shy about expressing his opinions on such matters, says that in the case of unjustified lawsuits, "we should press for measures to make plaintiffs liable for attorneys' fees and certain expenses when their litigation is found to be frivolous. Health care professionals, business people, school boards and many others are forced to pay thousands of dollars to defend themselves against frivolous lawsuits."

The governor says punitive damages also can be a windfall for a plaintiff and his attorney, and that the state supreme court recently created a new element of damage, prejudgment interest, compounded daily. "You can imagine how this will increase the size of awards and therefore increase liability insurance premiums that already are sky-high," said Clements.

Well, most of us will agree that insurance of all kinds is much too high. But whether limiting the amounts plaintiffs can get for damages, or whether other reforms will lower the premiums is not known, at least not by me. But at least it might give the companies less excuse for raising rates.

By the way, my own agent says his favorite song is often sung in church: Blessed Insurance.

THE SUPREME COURT came up with a stupid ruling the other day, saying that local standards and beliefs on what is obscene make no difference, and that the standards of "reasonable people" should apply, even if they don't live in the area where a case comes up.

This means that the standards of film makers and smut peddlers will be applied to determine what is obscene, even in this part of the country where most folks don't agree with the accepted standards of the TV and book industries which try to tell us everybody has sex with everybody else (both heters and homos), and everybody uses gutter language as a matter of course.

Twilla Gwen Talkmitt of San Antonio and William Mack Garrett of Castroville exchanged wedding vows at 5 p.m. Saturday, May 2, 1987, St. Paul Lutheran Church, Wilson with Rev. David Rohder, pastor, officiating.

The altar featured candelabra accented by a bouquet of snowball flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a cotton satin gown, designed by the bride, with fitted bodice which featured a ruffle edged sweetheart neckline and elbow length puffed sleeves with double ruffles and self bows. The bouffant skirt was accented with double ruffles and a deep flounce hem. Her fingertip veil was attached to a pouf bow. She carried a bouquet of wildflowers featuring bluebonnets with blue and white satin streamers.

In keeping with tradition; something new was her dress, something old, her grandmother's pin, earrings were borrowed from her sister and she wore the traditional blue garter. A wheat penny was worn in her shoe for good luck.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Janis Beard of Houston, sister of the bride. She wore a blue cotton tea length dress with pleated skirt, scoop neckline and puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet similar to the bride.

Best man was Carl Garrett, father of the groom.

Flower girl was Lena Beard of Houston, niece of the bride. She wore a pink flowered tea length dress of cotton.

Ring bearer was Beau Beard of Houston, nephew of the bride.

Candlelighters were Shay Beard of Houston, niece of the bride and Tiffany Garrett, daughter of the groom. They wore pink flowered dresses.

Ushers were Darrow Talkmitt and Quintin Talkmitt of Wilson, brothers of the bride.

Pam Wicker of Houston, sang the "Lord's Prayer" and "Today" accompanied by Sharon Isham of Wilson, organist. The organist also played selections from Sound of Music.

Mrs. Pam Patschke of

Roosevelt registered the guests. Following the ceremony a reception was held in St. Joseph's Catholic Hall in Slaton.

The bride is a graduate of Wilson High School and attended Texas Tech. She is employed by Valero Energy Corp. in San Antonio.

Phebe K. Warner Study Club News

The Phebe K. Warner Club met April 28 in the home of Mrs. Lois White with Mrs. Twila Gibbens-Rickman as co-hostess. There were 15 members and five guests at the meeting with Edna White, president, presiding.

The program began with a short talk by Rochelle Reid, sophomore student selected to attend the Hugh O'Brien Leadership Institute in Dallas. Rochelle attended several seminars and heard from various leading personalities in the worlds of business, government, and entertainment, including Hugh O'Brien. She stated her appreciation to the club for the opportunity to participate in the seminar and to enjoy the benefits which it brought to her personally.

The second part of the program was presented by Ms. Cindy Wright, representative for United Blood Services of Lubbock. Ms. Wright reported that in the Lubbock area only 5 percent of those eligible to donate blood actually donate. Her job is to educate groups on the blood donor program, answer questions and allay fears, and to encourage people toward blood donating.

One pint of blood produces the following valuable components: red blood cells used for surgery patients, plasma used for burn patients, platelets used for cancer and leukemia patients, and cryoprecipitate used for hemophiliacs. Ms. Wright assured that with the screening tests each donated pint now undergoes, a person's chances of contracting AIDS from a blood transfusion are less than 1 in 100 million. She especially encourages two groups of people to give blood: older persons (even persons over age 80 may give blood twice a year with a doctor's permission) and high school students. The older population represents a relatively "safe" source of blood donations and young people's blood is much less likely to contain the cytomegalovirus which, if present in a blood transfusion to a newborn, can be fatal. Screening tests have shown that 52 percent of all adult blood donations contain this virus; therefore, young donors are a valuable donor source.

100 Pints of blood are needed daily by United Blood Services' blood bank and each pint received has a shelf life of just 35 days. Thus, all those who are able are encouraged to contribute this special "gift of life" each time the opportunity avails itself.

In the club's business meeting, members voted to sponsor the ice cream booth at the hospital auxiliary's Fun and Food Festival on May 2. The club sold over 280 cups of ice cream, contributing about $140 to the hospital auxiliary.) President Edna White reported that the club had won six different awards for its various programs and projects which were awarded at the recent Caprock District Convention in Lubbock. Mrs. Lois White added that it was voted in the convention that each district of the T.F.W.C. in Texas would buy and dress three dolls to place in an exhibit at the state headquarters in Austin showing each of Texas' First Ladies. In closing, the club bid farewell and best wishes to a long-time faithful member and good friend, Mrs. Juanita Warren, who is moving to San Angelo.

Stenholm Bill Would Allow Doctors' Appeals

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Charles W. Stenholm has introduced a bill to revise the Medicare peer review program's system of physician sanctioning.

The Stenholm bill is one of five pieces of legislation introduced last week to deal specifically with the health care problems facing rural areas. All the bills, which were announced simultaneously at a press conference in Washington, D.C., were sponsored by the Rural Health Care Coalition, a bi-partisan group formed this Congress to address rural health issues.

Congressman Stenholm's legislation is entitled "PRO Due Process and Equity Amendments". It would require that physicians and providers have the opportunity to appeal a sanction before it goes into effect, except where there is imminent danger to patients.

"The current PRO guidelines do not allow physicians the rights afforded other citizens in our country," Stenholm said. "Currently, the doctors are sanctioned immediately without a chance to adequately defend themselves or present witnesses. This implies a 'guilty until proven innocent' attitude. Our bill insures due process to those threatened with sanctions."

The Stamford Democrat said, "I want to emphasize that I will not defend bad practices or bad medicine in Texas or anywhere else in the country. In fact, this bill would be more stringent than current law on those physicians who clearly are presenting a severe and immediate danger to their patients. However, for the vast majority of doctors who are practicing good medicine and deserve better, our bill provides the avenue for a just and fair evaluation system."

Along with the right to appeal before being sanctioned, the Stenholm legislation also requires the Inspector General to act on PRO proposed sanctions within five calendar days when the PRO indicates severe and imminent danger; the notification of state licensure boards of severe and immediate findings; that physicians and providers sanctioned without due process because of a finding of severe and imminent danger receive a hearing within 30 days of the imposition of the sanction; and 50 percent on-site review of rural hospitals. Other changes in procedures are also outlined in the bill.

The four accompanying bills included the Rural Health Care Preservation Act establishing a Deputy Under Secretary for Rural Health Care to coordinate activities relating to rural health care; the Medicare Rural Hospital Amendments requiring improved data collection and a report on alternatives for more accurate, equitable wage indices; the Rural Nursing Care Access Amendment extending the swing bed program to hospitals with up to 150 beds; and a concurrent resolution expressing concern over the serious financial problems facing small town hospitals.

Some other consequences of letting the state run out of money; The Medicaid contract with the state's private insurance carrier would lapse, cancelling the payments to nursing homes for thousands of elderly residents...the highway department would be forced to stop usual maintenance and seal coating before the end of the warm weather period, leaving highways vulnerable to winter decay...state employee pay checks might not be cashable for 7 to as much as 60 days after issuance, or might be discounted by banks like warrants during the 30's depression...businesses that supply and contract with the state would not get paid on time, perhaps putting them in technical default with their own suppliers.

Stenholm also contacted Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng asking for a clarification as to the rationale for this action.

The area congressman said citizens still have a chance to have their say about the regulations. The proposed rules have a required comment period open to the public until May 13, 1987. "I encourage anyone who feels strongly about these guidelines to write USDA and let them know how you feel."

Letters should be addressed to: Room 227-E, U.S.D.A., 14th and Independence Ave., S.W., Washington, D.C. 20250. Congressman Stenholm also requests that copies of the letters be sent to him. Address the copies to: Congressman Stenholm, 1226 Longworth, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Community In Need Of Foster Parents

There are many children in our society today who have lost their parents due to death, illness, divorce or desertion. Others have been abused or neglected. These children dream of having a real home and normal family life. The answer for many of these is foster care.

Foster care is temporary or substitute family. The ultimate goal is to reunite the children with their biological parents once the family unit is restored. Children are removed from their homes only in life-threatening situations or when it is absolutely necessary.

Foster parents are very special people who possess a tremendous amount of patience, understanding and love. The removal of a child from his/her home is very traumatic to him/her, and the foster parents must support the child and help him/her adjust.

There are no strict limitations on who can be a foster parent. Some have natural children of their own, others have none. Both parents may work as long as one is in the home when the child is present. Some foster parents are single adults or single parents.

The only income requirement is that foster parents be able to meet their own financial obligations. Foster parents are paid a standard rate of $8 daily for children nine and under and $9 daily for those 10 and older. Most of the children in care also qualify for Medicaid.

Foster parents may care for more than one child, depending on the number and age of natural children and space in the home. The foster child may have a room of his own or share with another child of the same sex. Every effort is made to keep siblings in the same home. The length of stay depends on the particular needs of the child at the time.

Any person interested in becoming a foster parent or learning more about the program may contact Aneda DeLeon, 675-2367.

City Supports Area Site For Supercollider

Tahoka City Council Monday night approved a resolution supporting the Lubbock city council's campaign to get the supercollider located in the South Plains area, specifically, near Levelland.

Council members also heard a report from Police Chief Ray Woodall regarding activities of his department during the last month.

Other than payment of bills and discussion items, there was no other business. All council members were present, including Wayne Tekell, Dayton Parker, Nick Summit, Leonard Dunn and Milt Uzzle. Also present were City Manager Barry Pittman and Mayor Jim Solomon.

Cotton Today

NCC Calls For "Reasonable" Conservation Rules—The National Cotton Council this week told a House Agriculture subcommittee that final rules for the 1985 farm law's sodbuster and high erodible land provisions should be delayed until reasonable requirements can be worked out in consultation with local landowners and farm operators in various conservation districts. Robert A. Carson Jr., Marck, Miss., cotton producer, said the Council supports efforts to preserve the nation's land resources but must oppose conservation measures so restrictive as to force high productive cotton farms into alternative crops.

He said last year's interim rules could force major shifts out of cotton into high residue grain crops or grasses. "Our industry would strongly oppose such requirements," he stated.

Whittington Praises Cotton Program: National Cotton Council President Aven Whittington says the cotton program has operated "even better than we dared hope." He praised the courage and skill of both industry and government leaders for their roles in passing the 1985 farm law, saying it has "changed things for the better and brought the industry progress."

He said the industry is working to keep the farm law intact and oppose any further payment limitations. In addition, the Council is seeking legislation for a non-refundable research and promotion assessment to apply to the cotton content of textile and apparel imports as well as U.S. grown and imported raw upland cotton. Implementation of this proposal -- subject to a producer referendum -- would greatly bolster Cotton Incorporated's market development activities, he said.

"Our observations at the NY Institute for Child Development indicate sugar as a critical culprit in producing symptoms of hyperactivity and learning disorders," states their new book "Treating Your Hyperactive and Learning Disabled Child," published by Anchor Press, NY. "The large intake of sugar in the U.S. is a hazard ... diets high in sweets — sodas, jellies, flavored fruit punch and gelatins, cupcakes — leave the child undernourished."

Lynn County Residents Visit Mayan Ruins Of Yucatan

BY LENNIE BLACKWELL
Have you ever wished that you could go through a time tunnel that would take you back in time to hundreds or even thousands of years ago? That is exactly what seemed to happen to us this past week when I, my husband Ted, the E.L. Blankenships of Wilson and Lahrie Tippit of Tahoka visited the Mayan ruins of Yucatan in Old Mexico.

Actually, the name Maya for these people is a misnomer according to our guide Jose Humberto Gomez. He said that when Columbus' brother came to this country in 1502 and asked them where they were from, he understood them to say Maya which actually meant "I don't understand you." Anyway, the name has stuck and even today we call them Mayas. Incidentally, our guide said he was a descendent of these Mayan people.

Our first stop in this land of the Mayas was Merida which used to be a Mayan city and meant five hills. It was founded in 1500, and many of the old buildings are still standing. Today, there are 1,000,000 people living there.

The city square of Merida is used like an office building with different people sitting in certain places to wait for other people to come and contract them for a job. A person can come here to hire a carpenter, plumber, dentist or whatever. When the day is over, then the person brings the worker back to the square after paying him for the day's wages.

The first archeological site we visited was Dzibilchaltun which gave us our first taste of what this highly civilized tribe of Indians achieved even before the birth of Christ... the ruins that we saw here were of the pre-classic period.

On our way from Merida to Uxmal, we saw a lot of sisal growing. To me, this plant looks a lot like a pineapple plant, and its leaves are used for making rope, bags, etc. We were privileged to visit a sisal plant where we watched the raw product go through the whole process and then end up as rope or other finished products.

The Mayan buildings of Uxmal were constructed during the peak of the classic Mayan period (7th-10th centuries A.D.). After seeing all the buildings by day, we returned that night for the light and sound program which gave us a graphic account of what occurred during this period and also gave us an idea of how colorful these buildings were when these Indians first built them.

We left Uxmal to go to Chichen Itza to see the ruins of the classic and post-classic period inhabited from 550 B.C. to the middle of the 16th century A.D. One of the things that impressed me here was a ball park the Mayans had between two of their buildings. On one of these buildings we could still see the carvings of all the six players on each team. Also on each building was a huge ring attached that was used in playing a game of ball. There was one definite difference in the way these Indians played and the way we do today. We were told that the captain of the winning side would be killed which to them seemed to be an honor to be sacrificed to one of their gods.

Our next stop which was in walking distance of the ball park was the sacrificial well that was in the woods nearby. This well was really a cinote which is a circular water hole that was formed from water seeping out of the ground. It was rather awesome to see this and to think that it was used hundreds of years ago to sacrifice boys and girls, some as young as 11 years old, to the rain god. This sacrifice was probably performed just in extreme cases such as drought.

Another impressive thing at Chichen Itza was the castle which looked just like a pyramid, and inside it could be seen the walls of an earlier structure...Then inside of this structure was a room containing a statue of a red jaguar which was considered a religious throne. Back of this were human bones imbedded in rock. In front of all this was the Chac Mool sacrificial altar. Chac Mool was their rain god. In order to see all this, we had to climb 63 steps inside a very narrow passage way which was very stuffy. If I had understood our guide correctly, I probably would not have attempted the trip, for I almost got claustrophobia from it. I thought he said six steps to climb instead of 63.

To prove how intelligent these Mayan Indians were, we saw the ruins of their observatory which was the only perfectly round circular-type building in classic time, and the way some of it was built helped them to observe Venus and movements of the earth. The Mayans had their own calendar and calculated periods of time by days and months somewhat similar to the way we do.

Many of the Mayan ruins have not been excavated yet, but when they are, perhaps we will be able to learn a lot more about this mysterious group of highly intelligent people called the Mayans.

Coming back as if through the time tunnel, we found ourselves again in the present when we arrived in the city of Cancun, which did not even exist 20 years ago. Now it is a booming, thriving resort city with over 100,000 people.

After a week's tour of this land of the Mayas and a brief stay at Cancun, we were ready to come back home.
