Reagan answers panel's questions on Iran arms sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today answered questions for the first time from a three-member panel investigating the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and other programs undertaken by the White House's National Security Council staff.

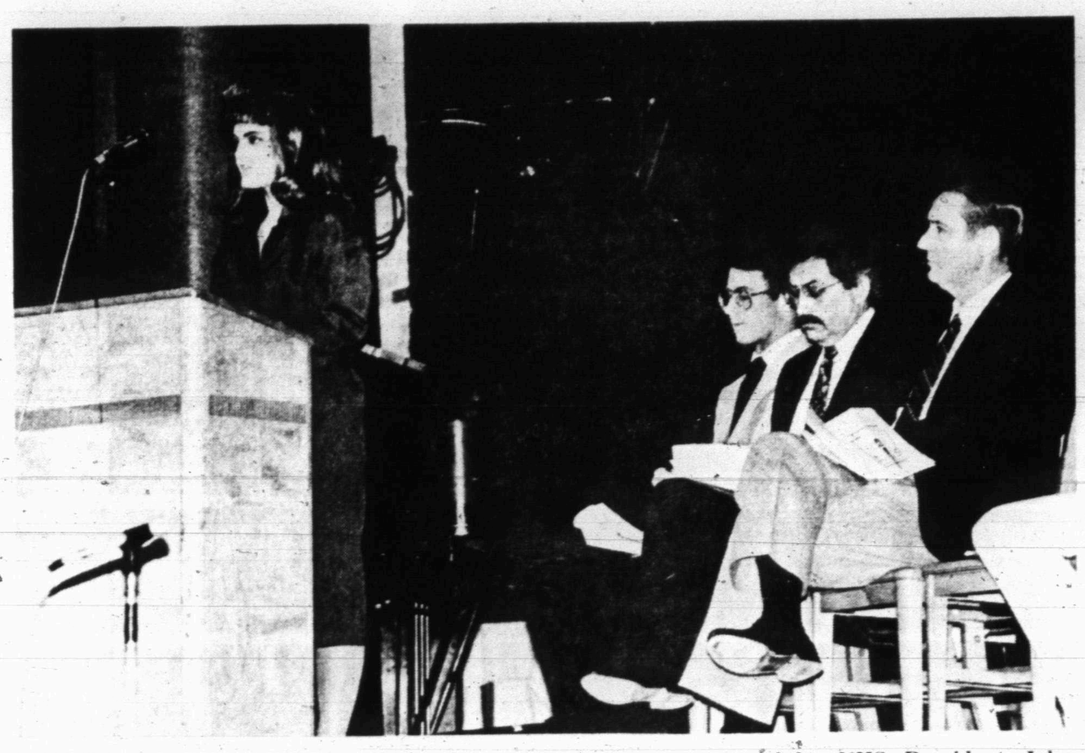

Accompanied by two aides, the president met in the Oval Office with the panel he appointed last Nov. 26 after disclosing that profits from the arms sale had been diverted to the Nicaraguan rebels. The NSC played a central role in what has become the most serious crisis of Reagan's presidency.

For the interview, lasting one hour, Reagan was joined by White House counsel Peter Wallison and Charles Brower, the deputy to David Abshire, the president's point man on the Iran-Contra scheme.

Despite heavy snow in Washington, all three commission members attended: former Sens. John Tower, R-Texas, and Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, and Brent Scowcroft, the national security adviser in the Ford administration. Two committee staff members also were present.

Reagan has maintained that his chief motivation was an attempt to reopen U.S. dealings with a strategically important nation and that gaining the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon was only a secondary goal.

White House officials said Reagan's comments at the meeting would not be released.

Interview process motion denied in $2 million lawsuit

A request for individually scheduled interviews of prospective jurors was denied Monday morning in the $2 million civil lawsuit filed against Scurry County and the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The jury selection process—with questioning underway as a group—was continuing at noon Monday in the case filed by the Glenn Polk family. Some 66 prospective jurors were sworn-in just after 9:30 a.m. in 132nd District Court.

Alton Griffin, attorney for the Polks, had asked for individual questioning of the jurors, but that request was denied by District Judge Gene Dulaney.

The Polks filed suit against the county and chamber in January of 1985 seeking some $2 million in compensation for the death of their son Jeff.

The 12-year-old sustained fatal head injuries after falling through the suspended ceiling of the Scurry County Coliseum on October 4, 1984.

The Polks are alleging negligence on the part of both the county and chamber.

NEW MEMBERS — These 26 juniors and seniors at Snyder High School were initiated into the local chapter of the National Honor Society Sunday afternoon. Coverage mulled by court

Commissioners discussed county insurance needs Monday as part of a plan to renew the county's comprehensive automobile insurance which covers all county-owned vehicles.

That current policy is due to expire March 4. Cost for the coverage is now some $18,781 on 82 vehicles. That price will likely increase with additional vehicles.

The action followed a lengthy discussion of all county policies covering buildings, general liability insurance and coverage for elected officials.

At issue was an insurance plan developed by the Texas Association of Counties (TAC) specifically for county governments. Clyde Hall with Snyder Insurance Agency noted the TAC proposal covered less than the county's current coverage. "If we use the TAC plan, we will still need almost every policy we already have," County Auditor Bernhard Bartels told the court.

Although Scurry County's general liability plan was renewed last December, commissioners compared the two proposals. The premium on the county's current plan is listed at $19,323 with no deductible. TAC's

SHL rep slates return to Austin

Snyder's representative to the Silver Haired Legislature (SHL) will be back in Austin Tuesday and Wednesday to attend SHL meetings planned in conjunction with state officials.

Delbert Downing, elected last year to the state's first SHL group, will be attending as a representative from the West Texas Council of Governments district.

Formed like the state's congressional body, the senior group has no legislative authority. SHL members vote on issues important to Texas' senior citizens and present those issues to the state legislature.

During their first session in October, SHL members approved several resolutions. Six priority resolutions and four additional follow-up resolutions were tapped for presentation to state lawmakers during the current session.

Listed as first priority by the SHL is a resolution to maintain funding for programs provided for the elderly by federal and state sources at the levels provided in the original 1986-87 budget and to increase funding as possible.

SHL members will request state legislators to maintain primary home care programs, family care programs, home delivered and congregate meals including the Meals on Wheels program and other in-home services.

Priority I also supports appropriation requests by state agencies which provide health care services for senior citizens.

The five other top priority items request the state to eliminate the Medicaid income gap by raising the state

Quilt shop opens here

Snyder's first "quilt shop" is now in operation on the eastside of the downtown square.

Memories Made, located at 2524 Avenue R, specializes also in fabrics, sewing notions and arts and crafts supplies.

Handmade gifts are also stocked and classes are offered in quilting as well as arts and crafts. Terrisu Sims, a Snyder native, is the owner, and store hours are Monday through Saturday from 9:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Memories Made opened here prior to Christmas.

Sims graduated from South Plains College in Levelland with an associate degree. She attended Texas Tech also. She returned to Snyder three years ago, first working for Chevron.

Even though this is her first business venture, Sims said she has had "lots of retail experience."

'Terra Nova' crew returns to campus

Cast and crew for the Western Texas College production of "Terra Nova" returned to Snyder during the weekend after their performance in Fort Worth at the five-state regional festival for the American College Theatre Festival.

WTC was one of eight plays chosen to perform in Fort Worth based upon its performance at the El Paso ACTF contest.

The two plays chosen to advance from the weekend festival were "Brighton Beach Memoirs," performed by the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville; and "Female Transport," performed by Tulane University in New Orleans.

Director Jim Rambo noted, "Even though we didn't advance, you can say the critics received our play very well.

"One who saw it in El Paso said it was rare that a play improves between festivals, but he thought ours had."

Other than advancement, there were no other production awards presented at the Fort Worth show.

There were four judges at the competition to include Rose Arrick and Rochelle Oliver, both New York actresses and acting teachers; Jeff Koep, a theatre instructor at Indiana University; and Dr. Max Culver of Illinois State.

In addition to the University of Arkansas and Tulane, schools represented at the festival included Texas Tech University, Texas Wesleyan in Fort Worth, North Texas State University in Denton, Centenary College in Shreveport, La. and Southeastern Oklahoma State in Durante, Okla.

Navy crash

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — U.S. forces searched today for seven crew members of a Navy aircraft that crashed in the central Mediterranean, a U.S. Navy spokeswoman said.

The plane went down shortly before midnight Sunday, said Chief Journalist Patricia Hooks.

She said the aircraft was on a routine flight in support of 6th Fleet operations.

Others details, including the type of aircraft, were not immediately available, Hooks said.

She said a special investigation was under way to determine the cause of the crash.

The identities of the crew members were being withheld until relatives could be notified.

The 6th Fleet ended a week of maneuvers on Sunday that were described as the largest exercises in the Mediterranean in the past year.

Oil rigs down

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of working oil and gas rigs in the United States dropped this week to 837, down 49 from a week ago, according to the latest Hughes Tool Co. rig count released Monday.

Last year at this time, the count was 1,671.

Hughes officials had forecast the weekly count would continue to sag because of a traditional seasonal decline. A week ago, the number of working rigs had dipped by 30.

The rig count last year, when oil prices fell to as low as $9 per barrel, bottomed out in July at 663 — the lowest number since the Houston-based oil toolmaker began tracking the rigs in 1940.

By contrast, 4,500 rigs were active in December 1981 at the height of the oil boom.

Find remains

AUSTIN (AP) — Authorities have identified the skeletal remains found in the back of a submerged car as those of a woman missing for over three years.

The remains were those of Betty Ratliff Bewley, 58, who disappeared July 13, 1983, after leaving the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Austin, said Dr. Robert Bayardo, Travis County medical examiner.

The bones were found Saturday inside a car that was submerged in Town Lake.

A suspect is in custody in another state on an unrelated charge, police said Sunday.

Kohl's party suffers setback

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative coalition was elected to another four years in office despite his party's worst showing since 1949 and impressive gains by the anti-NATO Greens.

Kohl's conservative Christian Democrats and their Bavarian allies, the Christian Social Union, won just 44.3 percent of the vote in national elections Sunday, down 4.5 percentage points from 1983.

It was an embarassing setback for the party that guided West Germany out of the ashes of World War II under Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

"It's like a wedding where the bride doesn't show up," said a commentator on ZDF television.

The official results showed the opposition Social Democrats also slipped from their 1983 returns, winning 37 percent of the vote compared with 1983's 38.2 percent.

The business-oriented Free Democratic Party, part of the governing coalition with the Christian Democrats and Christian Social Union, received 9.1 percent of the vote, up from 7 percent in 1983.

The Greens, which first entered Parliament four years ago as a loose coalition of pacifists and former student radicals, received 8.3 percent of the vote, well up from the 5.6 they got in 1983.

A few independents picked up the remaining seats in the 497-member Parliament.

Kohl, 56, who had campaigned on West Germany's buoyant economy and loyalty to the NATO alliance, said his party's results were "gloomy" and marked a "painful loss."

But he said in a nationally televised address, "We reached our goal of continuing the coalition, and that is the important thing."

The official voting results give each party the following representation in the new 497-member Parliament: the Christian Democrats-Christian Social Union, 223 seats, down from 244; the Free Democrats 46 seats, up from 34; the Social Democrats 186 seats, down from 193; and the Greens 42 seats, up from 27.

High-tech war set against illegal aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first sensor will tell the Border Patrol that illegal aliens have likely crossed into the United States. The second may give an indication of their route. The third may tell exactly which road they're going to take.

Their pictures may even appear on a Border Patrol television monitor.

Hundreds of these sophisticated sensors, including some that trigger television cameras, are part of the Border Patrol's high-tech war against illegal aliens as the new immigration law takes hold.

But the chief of the patrol, Hugh J. Brien, said all the state-of-the-art equipment that money can buy won't stop illegal immigration if undocumented workers can still get jobs in the United States.

The immigration law signed by President Reagan on Nov. 6 is based on the theory that illegal border crossings will slow down when jobs dry up.

Beginning June 1, employers hiring illegal aliens will be subject to heavy fines if they knew any of their workers hired after Nov. 6 were ineligible for employment in the United States. For the first year of the program, employers will be given only warnings for the first offense.

"Even if we had people arm to arm on the border, unless we reduce the magnet, they're still going to come for the economics," Brien said, referring to the ease which which illegal aliens have been hired in this country until now.

In a recent interview, Brien added, "We believe if we can cut off that magnet, the numbers would diminish. If there were no jobs, the magnet drawing them up here would diminish."

For that reason, the Border Patrol is combining its new equipment with old-fashioned public relations. Its agents are speaking to employers to inform them of the sanctions program and dissuade them from hiring undocumented workers.

Nobody knows why yet, but illegal crossings at the U.S.-Mexico border have declined steadily in the 11 weeks since the law was signed.

The Border Patrol covers a 2,000 mile area on the Southern border, stretching from Brownsville, Texas, to San Diego.

Reagan may enlist Congress's campaign for competiveness

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who fended off trade legislation in each of the last two years despite heavy pressure from lawmakers, is expected to soften his stand in his State of the Union message this week.

But instead of embracing the "protectionist" brand of trade legislation that he has opposed so often, Reagan is expected to talk up the concept of sharpening America's competitiveness in world markets.

"Competitiveness," perhaps the most stylish word on Capitol Hill this month, came into the spotlight two years ago in a widely hailed report from a presidential panel studying the nation's trade problems, which generated a projected $173 billion in red ink last year.

Actually, Democrats often accuse Reagan of attempting to shunt aside the report of the President's Commission on U.S. Industrial Competitiveness, which found that the United States has failed to meet the challenge of newly industrialized nations in eastern Asia and elsewhere.

The administration denies that.

Either way, sounding the competitiveness theme in his State of the Union message at 9 p.m. EST Tuesday puts Reagan squarely in line with an idea that is gaining momentum fast on Capitol Hill.

"Competitiveness goes beyond simple trade legislation," says Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., a co-chairman of the newly launched, 150-member Competitiveness Caucus.

Congressional Democrats on Saturday took a conciliatory tone on trade reform efforts.

Woman said charged with selling baby girl

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities say a woman tried to sell a 7-week-old baby for $10,000 to an undercover police officer after she allegedly drugged the child's mother.

Ronda Elaine Harris, 32, remained in the Harris County Jail in lieu of $22,000 bond on charges of aggravated kidnapping and child sale, a jail spokeswoman said Sunday.

The baby, Elizabeth Berge, was placed in custody of the Harris County Children's Protective Services. Ms. Harris' two children and teen-age sister also were in protective custody.

Ms. Harris was arrested Friday night in a west Houston restaurant parking lot after she allegedly accepted $10,000 for the infant, police said.

Houston police Juvenile Sgt. J.B. Woodruff said Ms. Harris had spread the word on the street that she had a baby for sale. An undercover vice officer contacted Ms. Harris about buying the baby and arranged to hand over $10,000 in cash for the child.

Before leaving the apartment she shared with the baby's mother, Ms. Harris allegedly put a strong drug in the woman's drink, incapacitating her so the baby could be taken, Assistant District Attorney Pat Kelley said.

Britain's Princess Elizabeth married Philip Mountbatten in 1947 in Westminster Abbey.

Holiday Mail Brings Men In Uniform Close to Home

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Don Grimes, chairman of the America Remembers Campaign, asked me to help America remember their men and women in uniform who would be away from their homes during the holidays. "We'll call it 'Operation Dear Abby II,'" he said.

I said, "Yes! Dear Abby readers are the nicest people in the world." Well, you didn't let me down. Don called to say that when he arrived in Germany and visited the offices where our servicemen were working, they were inundated with bags of mail. Handmade cards and decorations sent by school children covered walls and hung from Christmas trees.

These young men were 18, 19 and 20 years old, and many of them had never been away from home before. Shouts of laughter filled the air as they opened the envelopes, exchanging with others so each would get mail from their home state. After working a long hard day, they were still up until 3 a.m. opening mail!

The avalanche received in Korea was so voluminous that they had to ship some of the mail to our troops in Japan! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: A great big thank-you from all of us on Okinawa. I'm assistant charge nurse of the Newborn Nursery at the U.S. Naval Hospital here, and cards and letters made their way up to our ward.

Being away from family and loved ones during the holidays is extremely difficult, but that mail assured us that we had not been forgotten. A heartfelt thanks to all who participated.

CONNIE PENNELL, LT., U.S. NAVY

DEAR ABBY: I am a sergeant in the U.S. Air Force stationed at Osan Air Base, Korea. You cannot imagine the excitement that mail created when it hit this base! I hope that everyone who wrote to us receives a response. Thanks, Abby, for making this the best possible Christmas the troops could have so far from home.

TOM CASTLE

DEAR ABBY: The men and women of the 122nd Signal Base in Korea want to express our sincere appreciation for all the wonderful letters and cards that came our way because of Operation Dear Abby II. It made us all feel closer to home during the holidays.

GINNY PARKER, CAMP CASEY

DEAR ABBY: When you printed the addresses of remote bases, I decided to write to someone just for fun. Since then, I've been corresponding with Cpl. Ken Jones. He's stationed in Cuba now, but he'll be out in April and I'm sure we will meet. My own brother goes into the Army in a few weeks and I hope somebody writes to him. Thanks, Abby, for making sure our troops were remembered.

KELLY ROGERS

DEAR ABBY: I am on a ship overseas. I have a beautiful wife and two lovely children back home, and I miss them very much. I couldn't believe the sacks of mail from good-hearted people from all over the U.S.A. Our ship alone got at least 10,000.

The outpouring of love and support was unbelievable. Please tell your readers how grateful we are.

TIMOTHY WOODS, ON THE U.S.S. VINSON

DEAR ABBY: Just a note to say thank you! I haven't been in Seoul, Korea, long enough for my own family to send cards and letters for Christmas. But when I went to the recreation center yesterday, there they were — stacks of mail! I picked out those from my home state, and one of those letters contained the warmest holiday greeting I had ever received.

Tell your readers that this was the most wonderful thing they could have done for all of us serving our country so far away from our loved ones.

PVT. J. JOHNSON, SEOUL, KOREA

P.S. And now I am hearing from readers saying they were delighted and surprised to receive letters of warm gratitude from our men and women in uniform who were the recipients of their holiday greetings. Aren't people wonderful!

Schools in isolated W. Texas towns turn to educational TV

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Space age technology is allowing isolated rural school districts in West Texas to take courses not normally available to them and taught by teachers their districts could not afford to hire.

The districts are using educational television on a private network that is beamed to the districts via satellite.

School officials in towns like Dell City, Fabens and Fort Hancock say they are hooked on the idea.

And the same system is being used to train teachers, administrators and even school board members.

The supplier is not your typical corner store renting video tapes but a satellite hovering 22,000 miles above Earth.

The districts are using TI-IN Network facilties in suburban Houston that transmit live educational programming from San Antonio to 150 schools and education centers in 14 states from coast to coast.

"We've just scatched the surface of its capability and what it can do," Dell City School Superintendent Joe Spaulding said of the emerging trend in Texas rural education.

Students enrolled in "distance learning programs" learned the content and material just as well or better than students in regular classes, according to the preliminary findings of a study commissioned by the Texas Education Agency.

It makes courses such as creative writing, foreign language and advanced math courses available to high school students in Dell City, a small farming community 90 miles east of El Paso. The school subscribed to the network alst year.

Students can monitor the lessons on a television screen and have the option of using a cordless telephone to communicate with the instructor.

"The network allowed us to meet the demands of House Bill 72 (the 1984 school reform legislation) without the astronomical personnel costs," Spaulding said.

"It gives us a lot more flexibility," Spaulding said. "We can offer courses that five years ago were totally out of the realm for these youngsters."

In addition to high school credit courses, the network also offers student entrichment programs, staff development programming and college credit courses.'

The investment is worthwhile, Spaulding says, especially for a district that has trouble recruiting specialized teachers.

The districts pay $15,000 to cover the cost of installing a satellite receiving dish, additional hardware and a basic subscription and programming fee. Then they pay an annual subscription fee estimated at $4,000.

The cost of inservice training is based on school size. Costs also vary from school to school for the network's offering of 20 high school credit courses.

Customs agent says American truckers are at disadvantage

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — American chambers of commerce are helping Mexican truckers gain an unfair advantage over U.S. truckers along the border, says a veteran U.S. Customs agent.

Mexican trucks with Mexican drivers are allowed to range freely along the border trade zones, Brownsville customs supervisor Ernest Tijerina told a small business conference in Harlingen last week.

He said even twin-plant operators must either have a Mexican union driver in the cab or pay an extra Mexican driver's salary when taking material to their Mexican plants.

But when attempts are made to impose similar regulations in the United States, chambers of commerce become alarmed over potential loss of trade, Tijerina said..

The twin plants, or maquiladoras, straddle the U.S.-Mexico border where Mexican workers assemble American parts into various products.

Tijerina said allowing Mexican trucks to make deliveries along the border unfairly competes with local truckers because Mexican drivers are paid only about $3 a day. And their trucks aren't subjected to the same rigid safety inspection requirements as U.S. trucks.

Until 18 months ago, Tijerina said, the Mexican trucks weren't even required to have insurance.

Rudy Perez of Central Freight Lines, which has offices in three Rio Grande Valley cities, said that besides safety hazards from bad brakes and improper lighting, the trucks are often overloaded. Perez said the Mexican trucks also do not contribute license fees to help repair damages to local roadbeds.

Tijerina, who has spent most of his 17-year career along the border, said the Mexicans need to do business in the U.S. worse than Americans need to do business in Mexico. He said the Mexicans would adjust to regulatory changes much like they do to bridge toll and fee increases, which also are usually opposed by border town chambers of commerce.

Tijerina said when bridge tolls are increased or users' fees imposed, traffic falls off up to 30 percent for about a week. After that, it inches back to normal, he said.

Ex-teacher cleared of marijuana charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A former high school teacher, fired in 1985 after being charged with possession of marijuana, has been acquitted of the charges.

Arnold Houston, 35, was cleared Saturday of the misdemeanor charge of possession of less than 2 ounces of marijuana by a county criminal court jury.

The former teacher's attorney, Kent Schafer, said Houston Independent School District security officers in 1984 asked police to investigate the teacher. Houston police juvenile narcotics officers responded by placing a youthful looking undercover officer in Houston's class.

The attorney claims officers lied by saying Houston bought a small bag of marijuana.

"Not only did we accuse the cops of lying, I guess we proved it," Schaffer said after the verdict was returned.

Houston was a social studies teacher at Lamar High Schol until he was fired in March 1985, about five months after he was arrested.

Justice Dept. against merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Baker International Corp. executive said he was optimistic about a proposed merger with Hughes Tool Co. despite opposition from the Department of Justice.

The Justice Department said Sunday it would sue to block the merger of the California firm and Hughes Tool, two of the world's largest oil-well drilling equipment producers.

The proposed merger would violate the Clayton anti-trust act by lessening competition in two major markets of the drilling industry, said Charles F. Rule, acting assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's anti-trust division.

The Justice Department had indicated it would drop its opposition to the merger if Baker were to sell off its rock bit and pump operations, said Max Luken, vice president and chief financial officer of the Orange, Calif., firm.

"We're still in the negotiation process and we're very happy and optimistic about the eventual outcome," Lukens said in a telephone interview from his California home. He wouldn't say how the company was willing to change the merger agreement to meet the department's objections.

Calls to Hughes Tool Co. in Houston went unanswered on Sunday.

The firms, with combined total sales of $3.2 billion in 1985, are two of four major producers of tri-cone rock bits and electric submersible pumps used in oil wells, officials said.

"If this merger is allowed to proceed there will be only three significant competitors in each market," Rule said.

The merger would force up prices within the oil industry, he said.

The two struggling oil-field services companies announced Oct. 22 they planned to merge in a stock-swap deal valued at $456.5 million.

The agreement, approved by both companies' directors, would create a new company named Baker Hughes Inc. to be headquartered in Houston.

To lock up the deal, each company granted the other the right to buy 18.5 percent of the other's stock, and Borg-Warner Corp., which owns 18.6 percent of Houston-based Hughes Tool's stock, agreed to vote in favor of the deal.

Some numbers drive politicians mad

AP analysis

That's the pocketbook theory of politics.

Then why aren't Republicans already making plans for the 1989 inaugural celebration? With unemployment dropping and inflation at the vanishing point, what can break the GOP hold on the White House?

The answer lies in other numbers, the bad news that often seems to alternate with the good.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American economy is looking like those good-news bad- news jokes that were popular a few years ago and it's leaving politicians wondering who will be laughing a year and a half from now.

Consider the numbers issued by the government in recent weeks.

The civilian unemployment rate in December was the lowest since early 1980, a number sure to set Republicans smiling.

The news was even better on inflation. Prices went up only 1.1 percent last year, the smallest increase in 25 years.

And, of course, there's that crazy bull that's been tearing up — and down — Wall Street. The Friday session opened with a rally apparently heading to new highs as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials soared 64 points by midafternoon. That was the good news. Then, within about an hour, came the bad news, as the average plunged more than 110 points. Then it recovered its losses and plummeted again.

The good-news numbers are the kind that keep incumbents in office and encourage voters to shrug off headlines about secret arms sales to Iran and money being slipped to the Contras.

The nation's trade deficit for 1986 is expected to top $170 billion, a new record.

That deficit was blamed for the anemic state of the economy as measured by the gross national product for 1986. The Commerce Department reported last week that this measure of economic health rose only 2.5 percent last year, the weakest growth rate since the GNP declined during the 1982 recession.

Add to the trade deficit the persistent federal budget deficits.

Shortly after the new year began, President Reagan sent Congress his proposed budget for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1 and declared it would meet the $108 billion deficit reduction target.

But that prediction was based on economic assumptions which have a way of not meeting expectations.

There is a sense the numbers not only defy prediction but that they have a life of their own beyond the control of economists and politicians.

Even where some national numbers look good, conditions in specific regions — the Farm Belt and in oil producing states — are bad.

Just as economic performance is spotty and hard to predict, so, too, is the reaction of voters.

The Democrats won back control of the Senate last year and were helped by victories in Farm Belt states like North and South Dakota. At the same time, the Republicans did well in Oklahoma, a state battered by problems in both the farm and energy sectors.

Meanwhile, Republicans and Democrats are looking ahead to the 1988 presidential election year and the Democrats are determined to make trade a campaign issue.

The Democrats tried to make trade an issue in 1984, but they couldn't dent Reagan's popularity.

But Reagan will be off the ballot in 1988 and if the trade numbers are off the charts, it could be a Democratic year. On the other hand, if good economic news dominates and the long-forecast trade turnaround occurs, Republicans could have reason to smile.

Refineries show profits in 1986

DALLAS (AP) — Texas crude oil refineries finished 1986 with an average profit margin of 36 cents per barrel, according to a petroleum industry analyst.

The average Gulf Coast refinery had to cope with falling wholesale prices for refined products, Purvin & Gertz analyst Robert Hermes said.

In addition to negative operating margins, most refiners also suffered losses from inventory write-downs in the first quarter, Hermes said.

But after the fall in crude prices that occurred in the first quarter, demand for petroleum products picked up strongly, Hermes said.

The increase in demand and the relatively low crude price led to an enormous jump in the average operating margin to $1.66 per barrel in the second quarter. It also led to a big increase in operating capacities.

"During the second quarter, U.S. refineries operated at higher utilization rates than have been seen in a number of years in order to meet gasoline requirements," Hermes said.

But while the product demand remained strong, the trend could not be sustained.

"In the third quater, it was just too much of a good thing," he said.

Operating margins for the Gulf Coast refiners remained in the black for the second half of the year, but leveled off significantly to an average 11 cents in the third quarter and 4 cents in the fourth quarter.

American Petrofina spokesman Don Miller said his company's performance generally followed the industry trend in 1986.

"The second quarter of 1986 was the best, the third was OK and the first and fourth not too swift," he said.

Hermes said the strong margins in the second quarter and the netback crude pricing arrangements encourage excessive refinery runs that caused inventories to build.

"The inventory overhang depressed prices for the remainder of the year and crude oil prices also strengthened," he said.

The netback deals, which guaranteed a profit margin to refiners on crude purchases, were instituted in 1985-86 by some Persian Gulf producers. The deals created a surplus situation that continues to have a negative impact on the domestic refining market, Texas refiners say.

"If they truly eliminate netback deals, we will see better margins in general for the industry," said Marty Zanotti, president of Valero Refining, a unit of Valero Energy in San Antonio.

In 1921, President Warren G. Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. The inscription on the tomb reads, "Here rests in honored glory an American Soldier known but to God."

Plain and simple wins the day

It's sad when a bridge player exhibits a kind of muddled vision that won't let him see the forest because of the trees. Declarer won the opening heart lead with dummy's ace and immediately played his diamond ace and then the diamond queen. When West failed to cover the queen of diamonds, declarer discarded a club from dummy. Then he played a low diamond and ruffed in dummy. East overruffed and returned a spade. Declarer gamely played out all his high trumps, hoping that West, who had to hold the diamonds, would be caught with club length and squeezed. But East had clubs well under control and South now had to go set a trick.

Here is some good advice. When you are in a small slam, look for an easy, sure way to make your contract. If you find it, take it. Do not indulge in adventure for overtricks. Here South had a simple play. He should take his ace of diamonds at trick two and ruff a low diamond in dummy. Now he should draw trumps. Next he can play the queen of diamonds to force out the king. Although diamonds do not split evenly, he can get rid of his losing little diamond on dummy's A-K of clubs. That's 12 tricks without any pain. It's a line of play that a thinking declarer should take in this small slam contract.

WTC hosts Clarendon at 6 & 8 in coliseum

Western Texas College basketball teams entertain Clarendon in double header action tonight at Scurry County Coliseum.

Tipoffs for the Western Junior College Athletic Conference contests are 6 and 8 p.m.

The women's game at 6 o'clock should serve to help break a four-way lock on first place in the WJCAC standings. Western Texas' Dusters are 3-1 in conference play while Clarendon is 2-1. The other teams with only one conference loss are South Plains and Odessa, both 3-1.

Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters, ranked eighth in the nation, are 18-3 for the season. The Clarendon Lady Bulldogs are 9-4.

Chadwick said his Dusters will have to be prepared for the press tonight.

"They come at you with every defense you've heard of and some you haven't. We'll have to be able to handle their press. I guess that's the thing that concerns me most going into the game," he said.

A top player for the Bulldogs is Sheila Adams, a 5-10 sophomore, who averages 19.6 points and 11.5 rebounds an outing.

In the 8 o'clock men's game, Coach Phil Spradling's Westerners hope to build on last Thursday's victory over New Mexico Military Institute. The 100-79 win snapped a six-game losing streak and leaves the Westerners with a 2-5 record in conference play; 7-12 overall.

Clarendon is 2-3 in the WJCAC and 6-10 on the season.

Western will have to battle well on the boards. WTC averages only 31.7 rebounds an outing while the Bulldogs average 41.7.

In other men's games tonight, Odessa (13-6, 3-3) is at Hobbs, N.M. to play six-ranked New Mexico Junior College (20-1, 8-0); New Mexico Military (4-15, 1-6) plays South Plains (14-4, 4-2) in Levelland and seventh-ranked Midland (18-1, 6-1) goes to Borger to play Frank Phillips (7-14, 0-7).

The only other women's game has sixth-ranked Odessa (17-2, 3-1) at Hobbs, N.M. to play NMJC (8-14, 1-5).

Tigers face Mustangs and Pecos this week

Snyder varsity basketball teams take on Sweetwater and Pecos this week in District 2-4A competition.

Tuesday's opponent is Sweetwater. Coach Larry Scott's Tigers play the host role at Scurry County Coliseum, while Coach Ken Housden's girls hop on the bus.

Friday, the girls will host Pecos at the high school gym while Scott's boys make the trip.

Varsity games are slated for 7:30 p.m. tipoffs - or immediately following 6 p.m. junior varisity contests.

Tuesday's girl's game is for a share of second place in the district. Snyder's girls are 7-4 in 2-4A play while Sweetwater is 7-3.

Azinger cops win at Phoenix Open

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) - Paul Azinger, who had let so many get away from him, had a little talk with veteran Andy Bean before the final round of the Phoenix Open golf tournament.

"I told him I'd learned a lot from his last year at Kapalua (in Hawaii, where Bean won), the way he played his own game and didn't worry about anyone else," said the lanky young man called "Zinger" by his fellow pros.

"He told me, 'Play your own game, kid. Shoot at the middle of the greens, take what it'll give you, and go.' That's what I did."

The result was a solid 4-under-par 67 on Sunday and the first victory of a pro career that had been slow in developing.

"A dream come true," said Azinger, who twice lost his playing rights due to lack of performance and made a total of four appearances at the Tour's Qualifying School.

The victory was secured with a four-day score of 268, 16 shots under par, and was worth $108,000 from the total purse of $600,000.

He won by a single stroke over defending champion Hal Sutton, who had a share of the top spot until he missed a 5-foot putt and bogeyed the final hole on the new TPC course at Scottsdale.

"I don't want to sound like I'm making an excuse, but I was putting through my shadow," said Sutton, who played about 15 minutes in front of Azinger.

"I put a good stroke on it, but I just didn't have it lined up right. There was nothing wrong with the stroke. Something about the shadow. I never got it lined up right."

That miss gave Azinger the margin he needed and he brought it home with a great sand save on the 16th and decisive pars on the 17th and 18th.

Sutton, who blitzed the front with a 30 and scored an eagle-3 on the 15th, was second alone at 269 after a closing 64.

For the third week in a row, Mark Calcavecchia tied for third and pushed his season's earnings to $122,200. He had a closing 68 and was tied at 272 with PGA champion Bob Tway and Fuzzy Zoeller. Tway had a closing 69, Zoeller a 70.

Corey Pavin, Mark O'Meara and Bobby Clampett were next at 273. Clampett closed with a 66, O'Meara shot 69 and the frustrated Pavin, the third-round leader who was seeking a rare second consecutive victory, struggled in with a 2-over-par 73.

QB Simms is MVP...

Giants destroy Denver, 39-20

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - The New York Giants had it all. They were relentless. They were innovative. They were lucky. And they had the one ingredient that was doubted: the quarterback.

In the Super Bowl which would certify John Elway's status as football's most dynamic and dangerous quarterback, it was Phil Simms who starred. He merely was the hottest quarterback in NFL playoff history, setting a record for passing efficiency by completing 22 of 25 - 88 percent - as the Giants won their first NFL championship since 1956 Sunday with a 39-20 romp over the Denver Broncos.

They did it with all the power they displayed during a 14-2 regular season that was capped by a nine-game winning streak, and in two playoff games they won by scoring 66 points and allowing three.

They did it with a big-play offense bolstered by some trickery and piloted by Simms, a quarterback who silenced his critics with a near-perfect passing performance.

"This dispelled for the last time any myth about Phil Simms," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said. "He was absolutely magnificent today. ... He quarterbacked as good a game as ever had been played."

Simms passed for 268 yards and three touchdowns. He dueled Elway on nearly even terms in the first half, then led a Giants assault in the second half by hitting a Super Bowl-record 10 straight passes.

"In my wildest dreams, I couldn't have hoped it would work out this way," Simms said. "Everything we tried I felt was there. I didn't throw one ball today where I said, 'I wish I had that one back.'

In the first quarter, Simms and Elway staged a dazzling shootout in which Simms hit all six of his passes on a 78-yard TD drive. Elway came right back by connecting on four straight throws and scoring from four yards on a quarterback draw.

No Super Bowl had ever seen such precision passing from the outset.

The Giants, who gave New York a sweep of the World Series-Super Bowl crowns for the 1986 seasons, were supposed to win this game with defense. And their defenders were superb in the third quarter, holding Denver to two yards total offense. But they had been pushed around in the first half and, team captain Harry Carson said, the difference was Simms and the offense.

Simms took the Giants 78 yards in nine plays, hitting all six passes for 69 yards, including a 6-yarder to Zeke Mowatt for the touchdown and a 7-3 lead.

He couldn't get the Giants any more points in the first half - New York's George Martin did sack Elway in the end zone for a second-period safety - but the eighth-year pro was unstoppable in the second half.

"They took many more chances and they were more wide open with their offense," Broncos All-Pro linebacker Karl Mecklenburg said. "It wasn't anything we couldn't handle on defense. They just outplayed us."

Trailing 10-9 entering the second half, the Giants gambled with a fake punt on fourth-and-1 from their 46. Backup quarterback Jeff Rutledge sneaked for two yards.

From there, the Giants moved to the go-ahead touchdown, a 13-yard pass to Mark Bavaro. The Broncos were broken.

"It took a while to get going," running back Joe Morris said. "But we knew we would."

Morris ran for 67 yards on 20 carries and scored one touchdown. That was set up by a flea-flicker pass on which Simms handed to Morris, who pitched back to Simms, who hit a wide-open Phil McConkey for 44 yards to the Denver 1.

McConkey caught two passes for 50 yards and a touchdown and returned a punt 25 yards to set up a field goal. He also was the Giants' main cheerleader, leading them onto the Rose Bowl field before the game and at halftime, waving a towel and "getting the crowd involved," he said.

"It tastes as sweet as I ever imagined," McConkey said. "I couldn't have dreamed of this at the start (of the season) when I was in Green Bay."

The game was a culmination of the Giants' greatest season in three decades. They hadn't been in an NFL championship game since losing their third straight in 1963.

But they have been in the playoffs four of the last six years, including the last three seasons. In 1984 and '85, they lost playoff games to the eventual Super Bowl winners, San Francisco and Chicago, respectively.

All of which made this victory even more satisfying.

"It's the realization of a dream come true for not only me but the whole organization," said linebacker Harry Carson, a 12-year veteran whom teammates call the soul of the Giants. "It has been a long time coming."

Through 30 minutes, it didn't seem to be coming at all. Elway had taken the Broncos on drives of 45, 58, 74 and 47 yards in the first half. He had the Giants' vaunted defense off-balance, and confused.

But Denver managed only 10 points out of those drives, on a 48-yard field goal by Rich Karlis, tying the Super Bowl distance record, and Elway's TD. The Broncos failed to score after a first-and-goal from the New York 1 when Karlis set a dubious Super Bowl mark by missing from 23 yards, the shortest miss ever. He also botched a 34-yarder with 13 seconds left in the half.

"It hurt us so badly when we couldn't get into the end zone in the first half when we were first-and-goal," Elway said. "What a turning point that was! You know that anytime you don't get points when you have the opportunity, it hurts."

It hurt Karlis the most. The barefoot kicker's eyes were red from tears after the game.

"I feel like I let everyone down," said the kicker who beat Cleveland 23-20 with an overtime field goal in the AFC Championship Jan. 11.

Martin's sacking of Elway in the end zone began New York's streak of 26 straight points. But it also signaled that the Giants defense had had enough of Elway's creativity.

The National Football League reports at least 9 million women watch at least one NFL game every week of the season.

Super Bowl

By The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Notes from Super Bowl XXI, won by the New York Giants 39-20 over the Denver Broncos:

Most Valuable Player

New York's Phil Simms, the 1986 Super Bowl Most Valuable Player, is the ninth quarterback to win the award. His 88.0 completion percentage (22 of 25) was the highest for any of the 213 NFL post season games with a minimum of 15 completions. The old record was 84.2 percent (16 of 19) by Miami's David Woodley against New England in an AFC first round game Jan. 8, 1983.

Largest Scoring Margin

The Giants 105-23 scoring margin over their playoff opponents is the largest total in history for a Super Bowl winner. New York defeated San Francisco 49-3, Washington 17-0, and Denver 39-20. The previous record was 91-10 margin set by Chicago last year. The Bears defeated New York 21-0, Los Angeles 24-0, and New England 46-10.

Attendance

This is the fourth time the Super Bowl was held in Pasadena. The 101,063 attendence was the smallest of all games previously played in the Rose Bowl.

Three in a Row

The NFC has won nine of the 21 Super Bowls, including the last three. San Francisco and Chicago won the previous two NFL Championships.

Super Bowl MVP

The Most Valuable Players of the 20 Super Bowls games, as selected by Sport Magazine (x-multiple winner):

Tropical oilseeds put pinch on U.S. farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soybean farmers have had to keep an eye on lots more than the weather in recent years, including rising production in Brazil and Argentina, government programs and competition from other oilseeds around the world.

One of the most important competitors, in U.S. domestic markets as well as in other countries that consume vegetable oil on a large scale, is palm oil produced in tropical regions. Malaysia and Indonesia are the biggest producers and exporters, but other countries in Africa and Asia also grow the crop.

Soybeans are sources of high-protein meal used mostly to enrich animal and poultry feeds, and oil, which has a variety of food and other uses.

Thus, according to Agriculture Department economists, soybean prices paid to farmers depend on many factors beyond the normal supply-and-demand readings for most farm crops. If prices and demand for either meal or oil get too far out of line, producers will feel the effect.

According to a recent USDA supply-and-demand analysis, the average farm price of soybeans in the 1986-87 marketing year that began last Sept. 1 is expected to average in a range of $4.50 to $4.90 per bushel, down from $5.10 last year and $5.78 two years ago.

The decline in soybean prices has been accompanied by a buildup in year-end surpluses. Those totaled 316 million bushels two years ago, 536 million bushels one year ago and are projected at 615 million bushels when this marketing year ends on Aug. 31.

Other USDA reports show how palm oil has lately become a larger intruder into the fortunes of American soybean farmers, in the domestic market as well as on the world scene.

In 1981-82, the United States consumed 104,000 metric tons of palm oil. Except for one year when there was a slight decline, consumption increased annually to 268,000 tons in 1985-86. Total U.S. palm oil consumption in 1986-87 is projected at 280,000 tons.

Most of the palm oil imported into the United States is refined for use in food products, according to USDA officials. Industrial use is small, accounting for less than 10 percent of total palm oil consumption.

Only five other countries are expected to use more palm oil than the United States this year: India, 775,000 tons; Indonesia, 714,000; Nigeria, 700,000; Pakistan, 580,000; and Malaysia, 512,000. The United Kingdom and the Soviet Union are large palm oil users, at 265,000 and 250,000 tons, respectively, projected this year.

Two of the top five users, Malaysia and Indonesia, are also the leading producers of palm oil.

According to the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, which took a look at palm oil in a recent report, world production of vegetable and marine (fish) oil increased from 26.6 million tons in 1972-73 to an estimated 48.7 million tons in 1985-86.

In the same period, palm oil consumption rose from 2.3 million tons to about 8.3 million tons.

"The growth in palm oil's market share of world consumption has been nearly continuous since 1973-74," the report said. "Conversely, soybean oil's share of world consumption peaked in 1979-80 and has decreased its share of consumption since then."

In some South Asia countries, including Indonesia, Pakistan and Bangladesh, consumption has shifted from soybean oil to palm oil, with "a significant impact upon international vegetable oil trade patterns," the report said.

The major factors cited for palm oil's growth have included: lower prices compared with other oils.

Clements, other officials are now sparring

AUSTIN (AP).— It might have been one of the shortest political honeymoons in recent years. It's only Gov. Bill Clements' second week in office, and the sparring is under way.

Here's the line-up as it now stands:

— Clements said the agriculture commissioner should be appointed, not elected. The current elected agriculture commissioner responded with a comment about Clements' program being made up of Silly Putty.

— Clements wants lawmakers to give him authority to transfer emergency funds for prisons. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Clements "apparently did not understand."

— A Democratic state senator said the Republican governor is not helping by threatening to keep lawmakers in session all year if they don't balance the budget Clements' way.

Despite the spats that could brew into fights, this week in the Legislature is expected to include a harmonious note. The Senate is expected to approve Clements' nomination of Jack Rains as secretary of state, possibly today.

Rains, a lawyer and businessman, won 6-0 backing from the Senate Nominations Committee last week.

Also on the Senate schedule is the Economic Development Committee's first hearing on bills, including a proposal on bingo prizes.

The budget battle will continue in the Senate Finance Committee, which will review spending requests from the Commission on Human Rights and the Texas Indian Commission.

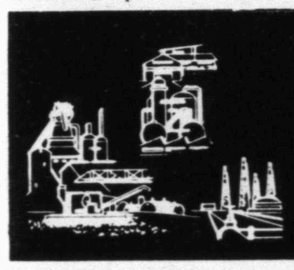

The House Ways and Means Committee and House Appropriations Committee have scheduled organizational meetings this week.

The budget work on both sides could lead to further friction between Clements and lawmakers and other state officeholders. The governor touched off the first battle Friday by backing his task force's call for an agriculture commissioner appointed by governor.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, a Democrat, said Saturday he is ready for a fight with a governor he thought was preaching harmony.

"I think this kind of reveals what his administration is going to be based on, which seems to be Silly Putty," Hightower said.

Clements also drew some heat from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a Democrat, for talking about getting lawmakers to give more budget power to the governor.

Creative Touch offers several classes

A new year has started and it is always nice to start on a new project. Creative Touch has a whole new list of classes that have already started, but there are still a few vacancies available in some of the classes. The schedule is as follows:

—Monday 9:30 a.m., beginner folk art and 6:30 p.m., advanced folk art;

—Tuesday 9:30 a.m., anything for advanced students and 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m., children's classes and beginner folk art;

—Wednesday 10 a.m., free make it and take it and Donna Holt's calligraphy;

—Thursday 9:30 a.m., beginner folk art, 1 p.m. and 6:30 p.m., pot luck painting; free classes or make-up classes and 6:30 p.m., advanced folk art;

—Saturday 10 a.m., pot luck painting.

On Friday, February 27th, Bill Huffaker will be here to teach a class on his famous roses. There are only a few openings left for this class.

Marsha Carpenter will also be teaching a ladies canvas class on Saturday mornings.

Creative Touch is moving the first of February to 1801 25th, the previous location of La Casa de Blanco.

Marsha Carpenter will be making the ever popular denim dresses, jumpers, skirts and T-dresses. They can also be hand painted on at Creative Touch.

Monogramming is another new feature you will find at Creative Touch and it will be expertly done by Marsha Cribbs.

Splatter paint for your sweatshirt painting can now be found at Creative Touch and they now have a large supply of the ever popular slates available. They have several new pieces of wood in stock and new books and wood are arriving weekly.

There is always someone available at Creative Touch to help you if you are having a problem with one of your projects, so don't hesitate to go in.

Sherry Hodnett and her staff extend a special thank you to all their many students and old friends for their support these past two years. And to say "thank you", they are offering classes for only two dollars a lesson and if you bring a friend that signs up with you, you will both receive a free gift the first day of lessons.

Little ones are always welcome at Creative Touch and the new shop will feature a Kiddie Korner stocked with neat toys and books to keep them entertained while you shop.

A Red Dot Sale is in progress now so this is a good time to take advantage of savings on gifts, books and supplies.

Stop by Creative Touch February 2nd, 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. at their new location, 1801 25th and browse and have a cup of coffee.

White House condemns hostage taking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration today condemned the seizure of foreigners as hostages in Lebanon as a declaration of war against civilization, but told Americans there to get out, warning that "there's a limit to what our government can do" for them.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said the government "will not make concessions to terrorist groups despite their threats."

He said it would only endanger other Americans "to yield to their demands."

Speakes said President Reagan met with his advisers, including Chief of Staff Don Regan and national security adviser Frank Carlucci, to discuss the seizure of three more Americans this past weekend in Lebanon and "certain decisions" were made. But he declined to go into specifics.

Speakes said the U.S. embassy in Beirut would not be closed. Some members of Congress proposed such a measure in view of the danger to Americans.

The spokesman said the United States has continually warned Americans in Lebanon of the dangers of staying there and said there are limits to what the government can do for people who are seized.

"Americans who ignored this warning clearly did so at their own risk and their own responsibility," Speakes said.

Eight Americans are being held by terrorist groups, including three kidnapped on Saturday. There were reports today that two more foreigners had been seized, their nationality unknown.

Asked by reporters if the United States was considering military action against the kidnappers, Speakes sidestepped the question. "We have resorted to military action in the past," he said. "There are many options at our disposal, but I will not speculate ..."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Sunday he would favor military action if there were evidence that a government was behind the hostage-takings.

Speakes was also asked if elements in Iran might be able to use their influence to gain the release of the hostages. He said "the direct influence of the Iranians over those who hold Americans and other hostages has ebbed and flowed ... I can't speculate any further about what the Iranians might be able to do."

The spokesman reiterated previous warnings about Americans traveling to Lebanon. To back up that warning, Speakes raised the possibility that passports will be made invalid for travel to that country.

But, in response to questions about why the U.S. embassy would not be closed, he said there had been "no particular problems" for American diplomatic personnel.

"We will not allow terrorists to run the U.S. government out of the Middle East," he said.

On Sunday, Treasury Secretary James Baker said it was his "personal view and I think that's the administration's view as well" that U.S. citizens should not be in Lebanon.

Pell agreed, saying "we really should not have American citizens there."

But, Pell added, if the kidnappers carry out their threat to kill one of the Americans, "It would give grounds, if there's clear evidence of a connection (with a government), and I don't think the evidence is clear yet, if there's clear evidence, for a military response."

The officials spoke in the aftermath of the weekend kidnapping of three Americans from the campus of Beirut University College in west Beirut.

Baker, a member of the Natonal Security Council who was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," said, "We're not sure who took them."

In Beirut, the Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio reported Sunday that responsibility for the abduction had been claimed by a group of pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem extremists calling themselves the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth.

Drug possession filed following traffic stop

A 29-year-old Snyder man was being held in the Scurry County Jail Monday mornng in lieu of bond set at $5,000 on a felony charge of possession of a controlled substance.

City police arrested Melvin Riggins Jr. of 2009 Ave. J at 7:45 p.m. Saturday following a routine traffic stop for suspicion of DWI in the 2400 Block of Ave. J.

Riggins was taken into custody after police found 16 pills believed to be the drug dilaudid in his possession.

The pills are to be sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory for confirmation of their content.

Riggins was also charged with misdemeanor counts of driving on a suspended license and possession of marijuana in a quantity less than 2 ounces.

Bonds on those charges were set at $500 each.

A 22-year-old man riding in the car with Riggins at the time of his arrest was also charged with a misdemeanor count of public intoxication.

Criminal mischief charge follows shots being fired

Police jailed a 33-year-old Snyder man on criminal mischief charges following a shooting incident near the intersection of 35th St. and Ave. M Sunday around 11:30 p.m.

According to police, the suspect is alleged to have fired several shots from a 20 gauge shotgun, breaking out the front windows of Mary Davis' Galaxy Cafe and the tail lights on a Datsun 280 Z owned by Alvin Ollison of Snyder.

The suspect was arrested for two counts of misdemeanor criminal mischief and released from jail Monday morning after posting bonds of $500 on each charge.

The incident reportedly occurred following a dispute over money. The suspect indicating some $200 was taken from him by an unidentified individual, who reportedly was to bring him change.

Police are investigating a misdemeanor theft complaint filed by the suspect in connection with this allegation.

Although court members took no action on the proposal, they indicated they might allow liability insurance for elected officials to lapse when current coverage expires Feb. 19. Cost for the insurance is due to rise from some $6,335 for $500,000 coverage with a deductible rate at $7,500 last year to over $7,940 this year.

In other action, commissioners appointed seven members to the Scurry County Historical Commission. Chairman Billy Bob McMullan, Britt Canada, Betsy Griffin, June McGlaun, Shirley Leftwich, Drew Bullard and Barbara Hamlett will be registered with the state commission in Austin.

In addition, court members approved 35 individuals as associate commission members. Those whose term will expire at the end of the year include Jean Everett, Harry Krenek, Elizabeth Connell, Peggy English, Margaret Drum, Aline Parks, Tim Riggan, Lois Bartels, Polly and Ned Underwood, Hugh Boren Jr., Charles Anderson and Mike Monroe.

Those appointed to serve through 1988 were Mary Keith, Sue Lloyd, Wanda Hudgins, Carol Bullard, Elizabeth Potts, Jo Alyce McMullan, Roy Baze, Janice Mitchell, Frank Pruitt and Jeanna Duke.

Also serving two-year terms will be Hassie Sneed, Ernest Sears, S.H. Gillum, Ray Courtney and Carolyn Derouen.

allowable income level for Medicaid eligibility from just over $672 to $1,008 and will ask lawmakers to develop a catastrophic health insurance program for all citizens.

SHL members will ask the legislature to place a freeze on homestead taxes for persons 65 years of age and over and will emphasize safeguarding homesteads as already provided by the State Constitution.

The senior body will request a state resolution restricting the transfer of monies from the Teachers and State Retirement Funds to the general budget.

Four follow-up resolutions — to include a request to reduce spending and sales tax, the creation of a Health Care Costs Review Commission, development of a long-term care insurance program, and endorsement of a Texas' House of Representatives resolution to provide for the long-term needs of persons with Alzheimers and related diseases — may also be presented.

In addition to discussions of the group's priorities, SHL members plan to hear other committee reports and will discuss problems with the SHL Foundation and a lack of coordinated efforts between the SHL and some state agencies.

5 arrested for misdemeanors

Police jailed five suspects on misdemeanor charges over the weekend.

Two were charged with driving while intoxicated and one of these additionally charged with counts of driving on a suspended license and evading arrest.

Two suspects were picked up on warrants for failure to pay misdemeanor citations and the fourth was a juvenile arrested for public intoxication.

Vehicle in-tow overturns here

A vehicle being towed by an out-of-state motorist overturned here Sunday afternoon.

Snyder-based Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen investigated the accident which occurred at 3:45 p.m. some 6 miles northwest of Snyder on U.S. Hwy. 84.

According to the report, Ramon Elaine Donland of Norfolk, Va. was driving a 1973 Chevrolet and towing a 1973 Dodge.

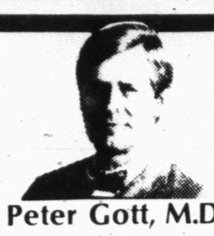

According to patrolmen, Donland lost control of the rig and the Dodge overturned after breaking loose from its tow bar.

Three treatments can help allergies

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our son, 13, is constantly blowing his nose, and his voice gets funny from drainage in his throat. The ENT doctor did cryosurgery on him a year ago, but that didn't help. The allergist just says he's allergic to dust and mold. Could something be done for the boy?

DEAR READER — Your son seems to be showing the classical signs of inhalation allergies. If, as the allergist suggests, he is sensitive to dust and molds, desensitization shots may help.

With any allergy, there are three basic treatments: avoidance of the substance, use of medicines to control symptoms and administration of injections to reduce the severity of symptoms.

Dust and mold are so prevalent in our environment that avoidance is virtually impossible; antihistamines do reduce nasal congestion and mucus production. However, the only suitable long-term solution to your son's allergies is probably a program of regular injections. Ask the allergist about this treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I breast-fed my child until he was 10 months old. Now my breasts are soft. What can I do to firm them up?

DEAR READER — When breasts are producing milk, they enlarge and become firm. After a woman stops nursing her child, the milk glands shrink and the breasts become smaller (and softer). I am not aware of any natural method to enable you to regain the characteristics of lactating breasts. However, synthetic methods — such as plastic surgery — are worth looking into if the condition of your breasts really bothers you.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've read that a person living next to a power plant might have his heart rhythm upset by all that electricity. Is this true?

DEAR READER — It's false. The heart is not affected by external electric or magnetic fields. Therefore, living near power plants or transmission lines is not harmful — although nuclear power plants might cause concern for other reasons. In short, living near a power plant is more likely to foul up your television reception than your heart rate.

Electricity can be damaging in only two cases. First, when electricity enters the body directly — such as in a case of electrocution — it can stop the heartbeat and cause cardiac arrest.

Second, artificial pacemakers are definitely affected by electromagnetic fields, since pacemakers depend on a steady, battery-powered electrical impulse. This is why patients with implanted pacemakers must avoid such microwave sources as broadcast or radar transmitters, security devices or — in some cases — microwave appliances.

Farmers watching cases filed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Analysts predict a new provision in fedaral bankruptcy laws designed to help farmers stay in business may have the negative effect of scaring away agriculture lenders.

Congress established Chapter 12 of the bankruptcy code in November to give farmers last-chance protection from creditors while the landowners reorganize their debts.

But some industry observers say the law may cause bankers to shy away from making new loans to farmers.

The Chapter 12 provision forces lenders for farmers with up to $1.5 million in farm-related debts to write off the difference between the face value of the debts owed and the depressed value of today's farm assets.

Experts say the write-offs probably will run in the tens of thousands of dollars, often into the hundreds of thousands of dollars on each loan.

"We definitely will take a stronger look at repayment ability," said Gary Vaughn, vice president for loan administration at the Federal Land Bank of Texas in Austin. "And that's not to say we haven't already been doing so in the past."

The Federal Land Bank has $2.5 billion in farm real estate loans and is one of three Farm Credit Banks of Texas, the largest single lender to farmers in the state.

Chapter 12 will not necessarily cause his institution to refuse farm loans, Vaughn said. But provisions of the chapter might cause the system to set limits on farm loans based on the Chapter 12 write-downs for the value of the collateral, he said.

Only seven of about 50,000 borrowers in the Farm Credit Banks of Texas have filed Chapter 12 petitions, Vaughn said.

About 30 West Texas Farmers are said to be in the process of filing Chapter 12 petitions, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday. Officials at the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Fort Worth say only two Chapter 12 petitions have been filed there.

Bruce Magness, a Lubbock lawyer who specializes in farmers' legal problems, says only about 5 percent of the nation's bankrupt farmers have been able to get the required creditors' approval to reorganize and continue under the Chapter 11 bankruptcy code.

Water diversion agreement collapses

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A compromise between the city and opponents of a plan to divert water from Lake Texoma collapsed after three-hours of negotiations, sending both parties back to square one.

Mayor Dean Gilbert says the $34 million plan to pipe water from Lake Texoma, which is about 15 miles north of Sherman, is vital for the city's future growth.

Today the city's 30,000 residents drink from underground wells. But city officials want a source of surface water as a backup.

The city and the North Texas Municipal Water District would share the cost of the project.

The Lake Texoma Association, a coalition of people who own businesses on the lake — primarily marinas — have voiced fears the project would lower the water level too much and hurt business. The association has threatened to challenge the project in court.

The Army Corps of Engineers late last year granted a permit to build an intake structure at the lake without an environmental impact statement. The association had wanted the statement included in the plans.

"I want this compromise to work," Gilbert said. "But I'm not going to North Texas (water district) until the Lake Texoma Association agrees. Otherwise, it'll blow the deal."

A proposed deal fell through after Thursday's meeting, Gilbert said.

Mike Bishop, president of the association, said his group wants:

— The Army Corps of Engineers to administer the agreement between the association and the water district.

Study group chief criticizes comments

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The head of a U.S.-Mexican study group criticized a top State Department official for saying Mexico is leading leftist forces in the Contadora group to impose a Central American peace treaty favoring Nicaragua.

Hugo Margain, chairman of the independent Study Commission of Mexican-U.S. Relations, called Elliott Abrams' comments last week "unjustified" and "inopportune."

"This manner of proceeding seems to me absolutely unfounded and contradicitory," Margain, a Mexican senator and former ambassador to Washington, said at a Saturday night news conference.

Margain said the Contadora group, which includes Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama, is working for a peace treaty to benefit all Central American nations. He said Contadora has the support of the Organization of American States and the United Nations.

"No one who is against Contadora has demonstarted that any of its principles are in violation of the OAS or United Nations," he said. "Opposed to this, a great power has suffered a condemnatory verdict specifically for its acts of violence."

Margain apparently was referring to U.S. support, including $100 million, of Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

The study group was formed last September with no government ties to study the future of U.S.-Mexican relations. It first met in October and concluded a two-day meeting Saturday. Two more meetings are scheduled this year.

U.S.-Mexican relations have suffered severe strains in recent years, most notably over allegations in Washington that Mexico is not doing enough in the war against illegal drug trade.

The Mexican government has not commented on Abrams's statements. Margain's comments were the first by a high level Mexican official, although opposition parties earlier had condemned Abrams for his comments.

On Friday in Washington, Abrams, an assistant secretary of state for Inter-American affairs, said Contadora is engaged in "fake negotiations" because it is not prepared to bring pressure on Nicaragua to make concessions and that its proposed peace treaty favored Nicaragua at the expense of its neighbors.

Chemical Pump Service Serves Many Oil Patch Needs

Chemical Pump Service, owned locally by Tom Machen, serves the needs of the oil patch, by carrying a full line of Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors. The 4100 Series Texsteam Injectors are positive displacement, plunger-type pumps which are gear driven and utilize electric motors, V-belts or other rotating drives as the power source. The unit's gear drive is housed in a precision-bored, heavy cast iron case with anti-friction bearings on the high speed shaft. The output gear, made of high strength alloy iron, is supported in a special bearing arrangement assuring extremely long life with maximum rigidity.

The entire worm-gear drive mechanism runs in a lubricant bath for longer operating life, even under the most adverse operating conditions.

The Texsteam 4100 Series can by used for chemical injection and for handling corrosive fluids.

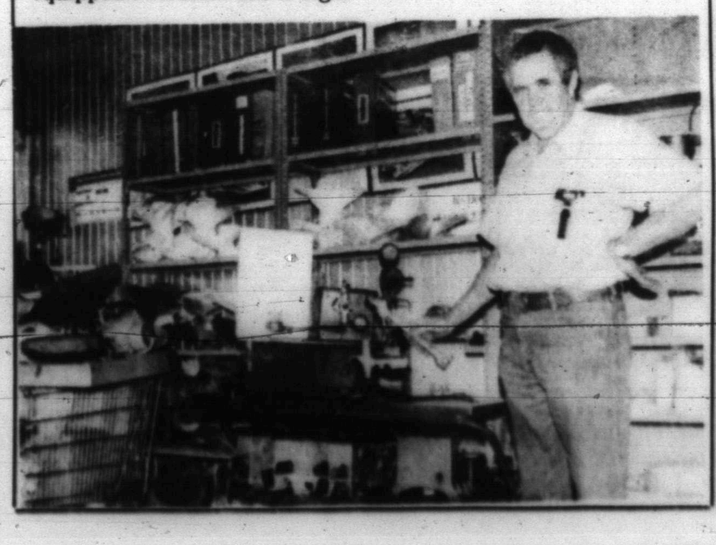

Because these units can be equipped with from one to eight heads, a wide range of additives may be accurately handled from one installation. This versatile pump has found wide acceptance for use in refineries, LACT units, salt water floods, tank batteries, process plants and in water treatment for boilers

The Texsteam 4100 Series Injectors are easy to install. No expensive foundation or piping is required. These pumps will give you many years of economical and trouble-free service.

In addition to Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors, they also carry Western, Calgon and Percision Pumps and Bendix, Wico, Fairbanks Morse and American Bosch Magnetos.

Also ask about Magneto sells and repair as well as Poulan and Shindaiwa chain saws and all types of chain saw sharpening.
