Pirates Blank Panthers 23-0

BY BOB CRAWFORD

Take advantage of Aransas Pass mistakes and then executing well proved the difference in Rockport-Fulton's victory over the Panthers by a 23-0 margin before a somewhat gutsy home crowd who withstood rain, humidity, and mosquitos to cheer the Pirates on.

Rockport scored early in the second quarter to take a 7-0 lead, and then poured it on in the fourth period by adding an additional 16 points.

The Pirates took control of the game early in the first quarter on their first offensive possession. The Pirates put together a 42 yard drive before a fumble halted their progress at the Panther 5 yardline, but that drive set the stage for the rest of the evening with the Pirate offense executing at near perfect capacity.

The first major break in the game fell in the Pirates' favor on a Panther punting situation. The snap from center sailed high over the punter's head, and he was finally nailed on his own 16 yardline. Just four plays later, quarterback Jim Eaton confused the Panther defense by keeping the ball around his won left end for the score, picking up a nice block by Donald Allen.

David Williams kicked the point after, and the Pirates were on top 7-0.

Aransas made yet another mistake on their next possession as rover Kyle Dietze pounced on a loose football, stopping an impressive Panther drive. The Pirates moved the ball from their won 33 all the way to the Panther 22, but another fumble stopped the Pirates cold.

The Panthers made a desperate attempt to get on the scoreboard as the first half closed out, trying to go to the air. On back-to-back plays, Pirate defender George Solis knocked down a near-completion, and de-

$3,000 Pledges, Cash For Kids

Pledges and cash donations for "Jerry's Kids" in Rockport totalled more than $3,000 by 5:30 p.m. Monday when the nationwide Muscular Dystrophy Telethon ended.

Mrs. Ruth Gordon, chairperson of Rockport AARP Chapter 1536 Committee and Telethon Coordinator for the Rockport effort extended her thanks to everyone who helped make this year's telethon some $700 or $800 more successful than last year's effort.

Pledges to the MDA from Rockport area residents this year totalled $2,365 - $500 more than was raised in pledges last year.

And Mrs. Gordon said cash donations to the MDA totalled "between $1,000 and $1,100 - about $200 or $300 more than last year."

She added these were not final figures, "but they're final enough."

The Rockport drive was in conjunction with the nationally-telecast Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for MDA which was carried locally, from 8 p.m. Sunday until 5:30 p.m. Monday on KIII-TV in Corpus Christi.

Volunteers manned telephones set up in Rockport's Volunteer Fire Station, to take calls from area residents pledging money to the effort.

In addition, members of the Rainbow Girls organization from Aransas Pass set up a "fishbowl" in front of Super D. By Monday afternoon, the girls had collected more than $97, but Mrs. Gordon said a final figure would not be immediately

WIFE'S FATHER

Brought Him To Rockport

When John McDavid Sr.'s children used to get mad at him, they'd run next door to their grandparents' home.

Now, he laughs, his grandchildren do the same thing in reverse-if they get mad at their parents, they come running over to visit him!

McDavid and his wife, Clare, moved into the yellow house at 1016 Orleans after they came to Rockport in the spring of 1948. "Her daddy talked me into it," McDavid said during a recent interview in his office. "He wanted his daughter home."

Mrs. McDavid's father was Travis Johnson, and she was a native of Rockport although she was living in San Antonio at the time McDavid met her.

McDavid is a native of San Antonio, and attended St. Mary's University two years "before World War II, then I joined the Air Force."

He spent three years in the Air Force, flying C-47s "supplying Patton as he went across Europe." After the war, he attended law school for three years "although frankly, I didn't like it. But," he conceded, "law gives you a good background."

When the McDavids first moved to Rockport, he said, he went to work for his wife's uncle, Fred Bracht, in the seafood business. Then on May 1, 1953, he went to work for an insurance company, then under ownership of A. C. Glass and James Sorenson.

The business had been founded by Charlie Johnson who passed it on to his son Fred Johnson who passed it to Travis Johnson. Travis Johnson then sold it to Glass.

When McDavid joined the insurance firm, it was--

Commissioners Discuss Rabies

By Sarah L. Durdin

Recent problems with stray dogs and the increasing number of people who have been bitten by dogs prompted Aransas County Commissioners to approve a proposed rabies vaccination ordinance during their September 5 meeting. County Judge John Wendell presided over the meeting.

The ordinance would require all dog owners to have their dogs over the age of four months old given an annual rabies vaccination. Additional terms to be complied with were listed in case the animal should contract rabies or bite a person.

Dr. J.M. Spriegel said he felt the ordinance should be amended to refer to "animals" rather than "dogs," but added that a new state law would go into effect in January 1980 to require that all cats also be vaccinated.

The ordinance will become effective 30 days after its acceptance.

W.A. Purvis appeared to represent the Rincon Water Supply Corporation. Purvis requested the commissioners approve a motion to allow the water company to cross a county road, stating that there are presently 57 miles of pipe laid, and that an additional nine miles of pipe remain to be laid.

The water comes from Taft and San Patricio County, and is then sold to subdivisions, according to Purvis. Purvis stated the company requires each family on a lot to put in a meter, and the buyer is prohibited from then selling the water himself. Commissioners approved the request.

Cochran Presents Report

M. W. Cochran presented a report to navigation commissioners, stating his opposition to a report from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department concerning work at Cove Harbor. Cochran presented his oral report during the commissioners monthly meeting September 4 at the navigation office.

Saying he opposed the TP&W report because he felt it contained numerous inaccuracies, Cochran added that his report was based on his own observations of local wildlife, tides, rainfall and various other factors that were given mention in the TP & W report.

Cochran charged that the initial report was made of conclusions that were not backed up by facts, and said he felt many of the inaccuracies occurred because the report was filed on the basis of one day's study of the area. He gave an example by saying that the land in question contains 60 acres during low tide, and shrinks to 20 acres during high tide. Commissioners also heard a report from Roy Taylor, who presented an audit of the district for the year ending June 30, 1979. After discussion, and explanation of some parts of the audit, commissioners approved a motion by Commissioner Jimmy Anders to accept the audit.

State Of The Region

Discussions of whether children are being taught what they need to know to live productive lives go on year after year. To some extent, this is a matter of opinion and no one final answer can be reached.

But methods of evaluation are being studied and they may help us to determine what children are actually learning as opposed to what grades they are making.

Dr. Amelia Cirilo Medina, an educational consultant who lives in the Coastal Bend, has recently published a book which is adding to the understanding of what evaluations should include to have meaning. It is an extremely technical book, comparing the theory and practice of evaluation, but is written with the expressed hope of giving laymen some pointers to use in finding out whether the information obtained in an evaluation is valid.

Dr. Medina has been honored in this region by the American Association of University Women, sponsors of an autograph party.

One of the conclusions in the book is that in the evaluation of an educational program, which is used as an example, too many unimportant things are considered rather than the end result of what is being accomplished. It is quantitative rather than qualitative, a numbering or listing of details which add up to nothing of significance.

Dr. Medina concludes from her research that historical and cultural background play a role in learning patterns, such as the emphasis on learning to read in cultures where it was important for individuals to read the Bible themselves rather than having it read and interpreted for them. But much more important she finds to be the economic position of the family today.

She also emphasizes the distinction in the way different children learn. A child from an authoritarian home usually will learn more readily in a closely supervised and structured situation. A child from a home where initiative has been encouraged will adapt more easily to the open classroom with more alternatives.

Attitudes also influence learning, in her opinion. How the teacher feels about the subject she is teaching and how she feels about the child must be considered. If the parent disagrees with the teacher or the teaching methods, there will be an effect on the child.

This can be minimized in Dr. Medina's opinion, if the parent helps the child to understand that he must follow the methods and rules of the school, as long as they exist, even if the parent is working to change them.

Vocabulary and facility in use of the language are extremely important. The child cannot comprehend the content of the lesson, be it math or government, unless he has command of the words to define the concepts and understand what they mean.

He can learn the facts, or gain cognitive knowledge in any language in which he is fluent, and easily transfer this knowledge to any other language he knows or learns. Dr. Medina says that if his parents have only limited skills in the language in which he is to be schooled, they cannot pass on to him what they do not know.

Application of knowledge is another important factor. If children learn facts but are not taught how to use those facts and do not apply them, they will not retain them.

So they must read outside the classroom and solve problems involving mathematics in daily life for knowledge to have any importance to them. As an example, she said she gained a completely new understanding of chemistry when she was teaching its application to fire science in a college course.

She ties so much back into economics. For the child to be influenced by the important factors, the family members must have the time to spend with him, the knowledge to transmit, books and learning materials in the home, and the attitude that education is important, rather than that of "I got by without education, so can you".

I HAVE FOR LONG HELD THE CONVICTION THAT a local newspaper is its town's show window. Consider this a newspaperman's conceit, but a conceit to be forgiven. Such a believer must necessarily be one who is constantly aware of every facet of the newspaper, the quality of writing, appearance, makeup, layout, accuracy, integrity. The list could go on.

People are curious and rarely does a stranger spend more than a day or so in a town without examining the home newspaper, if only because he seeks the time of services at the church of his choice, or because he is curious about real estate values.

A first impression on the part of a layman when he picks up the paper is that it has a clean look, pictures are sharp. Or the paper is dirty, too black, inky. But that last almost belongs to the past; cold type and the offset method of printing having all but totally replaced hot type and the old flatbed presses so common to the weekly field.

However, the layman with no technical knowledge of newspaper makeup can still get a good or bad impression even though he may find it difficult to express it in words. He somehow notices that the newspaper package he is about to explore has an inviting look, it is neat, orderly, headlines are intelligent, meaningful. They tell him whether he wants to read the story or not, rather than cause him to feel that if he wants to know what it is all about he must read it.

MUCH OF THE CREDIT FOR WHAT IS KNOWN AS modern newspaper design belongs to a college journalism professor, Edmund Arnold. In recent years he has redesigned many of this country's foremost newspapers.

Arnold believes that the paper should "invite" the reader. That means easy to read type faces, and plenty of white space. To Arnold as much as anyone belongs the credit for the disappearance of those long, thin black column rules, the end of cutoff rules and arty gimmicks at the end of stories. They served no purpose except to clutter.

Ah clutter! How often does a newspaperman hear contest judges complain of clutter, only the phrase they use is "too busy," especially when it comes to nameplates. Let me offer a fine, however extreme, example. I once knew an East Texas newspaper with its name on page one surrounded by line drawings of cattle, coons, collard greens, cabbages, a guitar. There may have been more.

In any event the editor and publisher, who disdained those titles as "uppity" and referred to himself as the printer, claimed his town was the world capital for collard greens, etc., etc.

Do I whet your appetite for a copy of this newspaper which I have not named? I will go further. Once a two deck streamer head on the front page in big bold capital letters read something like this:

COURTHOUSE DOME ABOUT TO FALL
LOOSE COWS INVADE TOWNSTREETS

The printer enjoyed a measure of renown. He had a fine sense of humor and was full of original rustic philosophy. His paper was fun to read. But was it a newspaper? I think not.

Feature stories, editorials, columns are in a very large sense the hallmark of a good newspaper. They indicate that the editor thinks, cares about his newspaper. None of those things rate as "must." Instead they prove that the editor and his staff go beyond the basic call of duty—which is to present the reader with the straight factual news of the town. Those last words should appear in bold type.

Unfortunately in the printer's newspaper every story was somewhere between an editorial and a column. The printer didn't tell his readers what actually happened at a city council meeting. Instead he told them his version and opinion of the event. Thus, instead of a newspaper, readers each week received the printer's personal chronicle of events. And so, if the newspaper is as I have contended, the town's show window, the printer and not his newspaper became the show window.

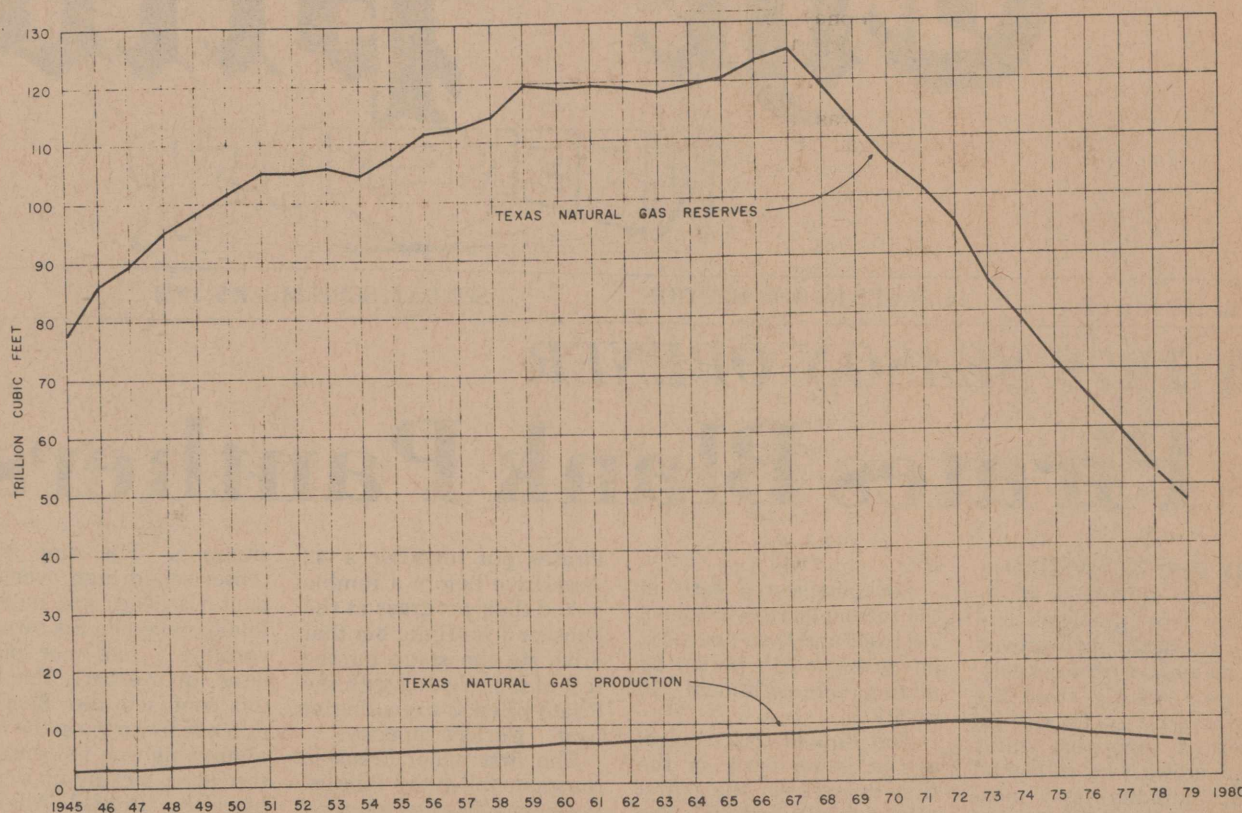

I very much doubt that citizens of any community will agree that they and their town should be depicted by any single editor, no matter how capable and popular he might be. Nor on the other hand do I think there are many, if any, editors possessed of such vanity.

BEING THE PERSON RESPONSIBLE FOR THE show window can be an awesome responsibility. Let me give you a couple samplers, one that is low key, another on the sensational side.

Joe Smith, a longtime resident, well-known but not necessarily prominent, ends a long illness by committing suicide. Should the editor collect all the unpleasant details, even speculate on what went on in Joe's mind, seek out everyone who might have seen him during his last hours in this vale of tears? I think not. I should say handle the story, print it by all means, but in low key. Hasn't Joe left a grieving family? Why slap them in the face with a sensational headline?

Sampler number two: Bill Jones is a well-known bank official, well liked and active in all facets of community life. Then it is discovered that he has been taking from the till for years. He takes his own life.

Certainly his story deserves more prominence than that of Smith. But again the editor should, in my opinion, use good taste, consider his family and other circumstances. But still, of course, report the event. Perhaps it can best be summed up thusly: The editor who depends upon sensationalism to sell his newspaper shows little respect for the intelligence of his readers. Compare if you like, the difference between the Corpus Christi Caller and the San Antonio Express, or to be even more explicit, compare the difference in character and intellect between the editors of the New Yorker magazine and Hustler.—ahab

TEXAS NATURAL GAS PRODUCTION, RESERVES

Letter To The Editor

Says Commissioner Jim Nugent...

New Discoveries Don't
Replace Depleted ReservesMr. Perry Carter
Rockport Pilot
1002 Wharf
Rockport, Texas 78382

Dear Mr. Carter:

When I was appointed to the Railroad Commission in January, I was eager for the challenge of what I felt would be an important and active role. I had no conception of how fast or how hot the energy problems would become.

In my short time as a Commissioner I have had an in-depth study made of our present Texas positions in oil and gas production and reserves. What I have learned is most interesting. Despite going to 100% allowances in 1972, Texas oil production is in a steep decline, as in national production. Reserves are also declining. Our nation is importing almost 50% of its petroleum needs (up from roughly 20% just 10 years ago) at a cost which may reach $60 billion this year.

In the course of my study of this situation, I had the Commission staff develop some charts which graphically display some of these facts. I have found these most helpful -- and well received -- in discussing the energy crisis with civic groups and the like, and I thought you might find them useful and informative background for your news work. A concise explanation of the charts is also enclosed.

If you have any questions about this information, or if I or my Commission staff can provide you with additional information, please feel free to call on me.

Respectfully yours,
James E. (Jim) Nugent

AUSTIN (Spl.) -- Texas Railroad Commissioner James E. (Jim) Nugent says new oil and gas discoveries are not coming close to replacing the amounts of energy being used from Texas reserves. "Because Texas has provided the bulk of domestic production for many years, our supplies and reserves are greatly reduced," Nugent said.

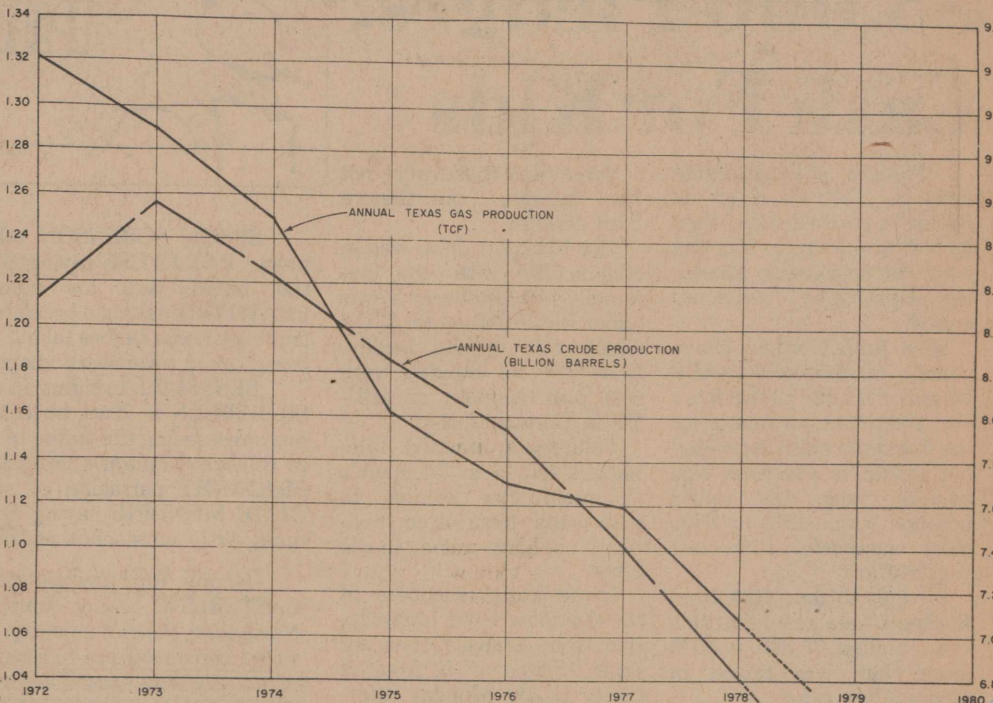

Threatens Texas' position as the leading energy state," Nugent added.

Nugent, who recently met with President Carter and other national energy policymakers, believes the nation, and especially Texas, must do more to encourage discovery and development of domestic energy sources. Nugent said he believes alternate energy sources must be developed with all deliberate speed, but he emphasized that "oil and gas will be our primary energy sources for the foreseeable future."

While the Texas Railroad Commission has no jurisdiction over gasoline supplies and prices, the Commissioner assailed the high crude oil prices recently adopted by OPEC countries which supply almost half of our crude oil. "Our dependence on foreign oil endangers our national security, weakens the dollar and makes us a target of international blackmail," Nugent stated. "We must do everything possible to become more self-reliant in energy production."

Nugent, who has served on the Railroad Commission since January, has conducted extensive research on the Texas energy situation, much of which he has been using in recent statewide speaking engagements. He previously served 18 years as a state representative from the Texas Hill Country area, and was speaker pro-tem of the House when appointed to the Railroad Commission.

ANNUAL TEXAS OIL, GAS PRODUCTION

"Low Down"
FROM THE
Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)REPRESENTATIVE
TIMOTHY E. WIRTH (Colo.)

"...Earlier today I introduced the Radial Tire Excise Tax Repeal Act of 1979. This measure would eliminate the Federal excise tax on radial tires thus providing an incentive for consumers to purchase radials thereby saving gasoline.

"Motor vehicles consume more than 25 percent of this Nation's fuel; therefore, one of the best ways to reduce energy consumption is to make vehicles more energy efficient.

"Recent tests conducted by the Transportation Systems Center for the Department of Transportation as well as a variety of other tests by the tire industry and other organizations indicate that the use of radial ply tires can increase fuel economy 3 to 10 percent.

"This variance depends on the speed traveled, the age and tread wear of the tire, tire inflation, and other factors. Radials are most efficient with proper inflation at speeds of 50 miles per hour...The average rolling resistance of a radial ply tire is 12 pounds per foot, per 1,000 pounds, compared to 16 pounds per foot per 1,000 pounds for the conventional bias ply tire.

"This reduction of the rolling resistance of 25 percent amounts to an average fuel savings of 5 percent, with a 10-percent savings for sustained speeds. The savings amounts to an extra mile per gallon and almost $2 per tankful--if all cars traveled on radials, the fuel savings would be over 6 billion gallons per year...

"The excise tax on radial tires is 10 cents per pound, or 5 cents per pound for offroad vehicles, such as farm equipment. This tax has been in place since 1932...

"The revenue generated from this tax in 1978 was under $850 million...The repeal of this tax would more than make up the loss of revenue...The repeal of this tax would reduce the price of a radial tire by as much as $5...

"This idea is not new--similar initiatives have been undertaken in the past. A provision of the Energy Tax Act of 1978 repealed the Federal tax on radials used by trucks and buses, with a resulting fuel savings of about 6 percent.

"This measure is one of the many initiatives that must be taken in the drive to reduce the demand for energy resources. The Radial Tire Excise Tax Repeal Act of 1979 contains little cost, many benefits and no liabilities. I urge its swift adoption."

CRUMP'S GRASS
ROOTS COMMENT

The Trucking lobby can take credit for the repeal of the tire tax on trucks and buses. With no "peoples lobby" it's doubtful if the bill will get out of committee.

Dear John: I understand there are many federal agencies which will give advice and help to people, particularly senior citizens.

But the government and the bureaucracy are so vast, how does one know what agencies do what, and how to get in touch with them? — B.J.

Dear B.J.: I presume you are talking about agencies other than Social Security, with which most senior citizens are familiar, and which have offices throughout the land. Other agencies — all of which have toll-free phone numbers — together with what they do, are as follows:

The Consumer Product Safety: It aids people to evaluate the safety of products and takes reports on injuries or deaths related to manufactured products. Phone number is 800-638-2666.

Federal Crime Insurance: A hotline provides information about low-cost residential and commercial crime insurance. This is now available in 20 states and the District of Columbia. 800-638-8780.

Travel: A federal travel hotline will answer questions about touring attractions, transportation and lodging in the United States. 800-323-4180.

The Interstate Commerce Commission: Takes complaints about moving of household goods and rail or bus passenger problems. It also gives information on independent truckers. 800-424-9312.

National Flood Insurance: A hotline funded by HUD provides information on federally subsidized flood insurance. 800-424-8872.

Federal Election Commission: Information available about federal elections fundraising regulations. It provides financial records on candidates for federal offices. 800-424-9530.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration: Accepts reports about hazardous working conditions. 800-555-1212.

Federal Tax Information: Help offered on federal tax questions. Call toll-free directory assistance for your regional number. 800-555-1212.

Davises' Lives Filled With Variety Aboard 40-year-old Gypsy II

By Pat Blair

In Sandy Hook, New Jersey, Riley and Shirley Davis' cat "jumped ship" in hurricane season.

In a river in Louisiana, Mrs. Davis was chased by an alligator.

In Galveston, they ran aground and lost their rudder trying to get off a sandbar.

But the Davises, docked in Rockport's Turning Basin for the past month, tend to take that sort of thing in stride. When you're traveling around the world in a 42-foot sailboat, things happen.

The boat, the "Gypsy II", is a Chesapeake Bay buguey built in Smith Island, Virginia, in 1940. It's 42 feet long, 15 feet wide, has a five and one-half foot draft, and is distinguished by its two raked (backward-slanting) masts. Davis bought it in 1972 and has been living aboard it since; Mrs. Davis joined him in 1974.

A native of New Mexico, Davis spent most of his life in California where he had a ranch. Then he sold the ranch, Mrs. Davis said, and he and a friend went to Nova Scotia where they bought a 100-foot schooner which they sailed to Norfolk, Virginia, and sold. That was in 1971.

In Norfolk, Davis saw the buguey. "It had gotten flipped upside down, and they broke the masts on a buoy towing it in," Mrs. Davis said, but Davis decided he wanted it and he got it—even though he had to go to Fort Pierce, Florida, to get it.

In 1976, the Davises traveled from Key Largo, Florida, up to Newport, Rhode Island, for the Bicentennial gathering of the "Tall Ships." It was on that trip, in Sandy Hook, that the cat jumped ship.

"We got him back, though," Mrs. Davis said. "We went back and he was on the dock waiting for us."

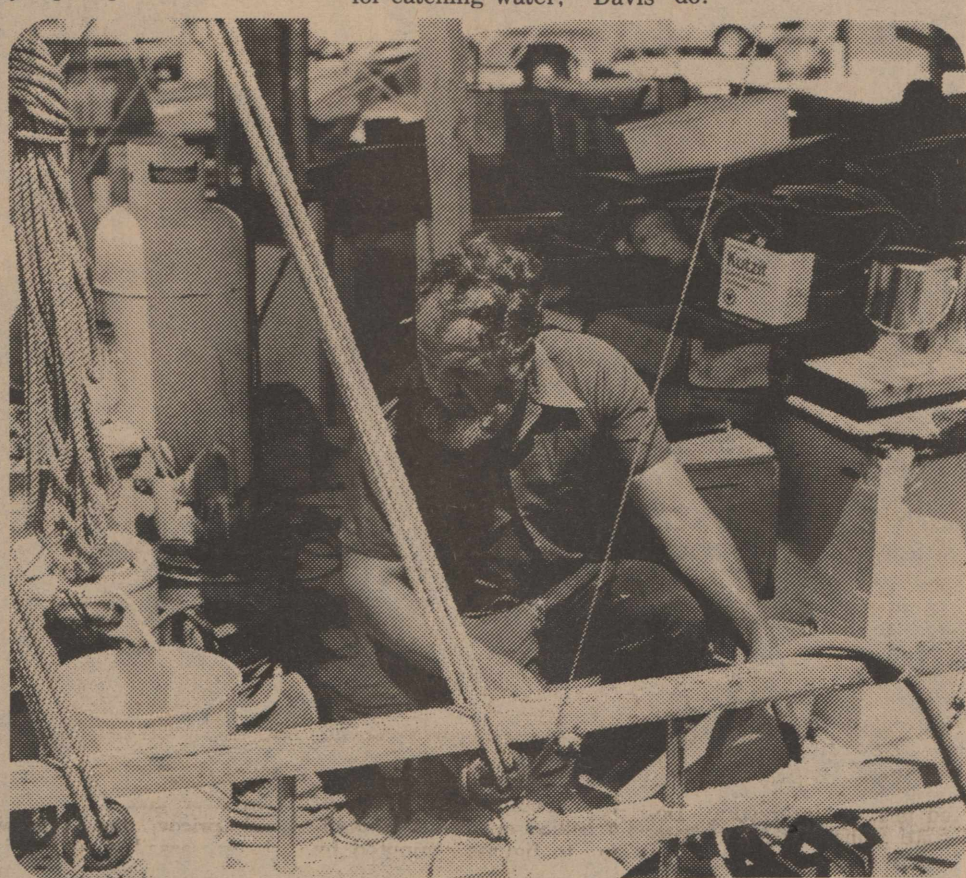

Cat aboard, the Davises began the next leg of their journey—up the Erie Canal and down the Mississippi. "We were on our way to Texas," Mrs. Davis continued, "but we ran out of gas and money, so we ended up in Morgan City (Louisiana)."

It was on the way to Morgan City that Mrs. Davis was chased by an alligator, while she was swimming in one of the Louisiana rivers. "I was swimming," she said, "and Riley came on deck. He said, 'There's an alligator!' I didn't look to see how close—I just came in." After she was out of the water, she looked back, and "that old alligator was coming right toward me."

The Davises spent two and a half years in Morgan City, and while there, Davis replaced the masts. "We had to take the masts out to go through the Erie," Mrs. Davis explained. The replacement masts are pressure-treated telephone poles, painted white.

In Morgan City, too, the Davises lost their cat. "He got run over. We have a polly parrot now," Mrs. Davis added. "He won't jump ship."

DAVIS CHECKS TO SEE IF REPAIRS NEEDED

From Morgan City, the couple sailed to Galveston where the "Gypsy II" ran hard aground and had to be towed off a sandbar. She lost the rudder and Davis spent a week and a half in Galveston building a new one.

About a month ago, they put in at the Turning Basin and since then Davis has been putting in repairs on the "Gypsy II" and Mrs. Davis has been enjoying Rockport.

"I get my bike and go visit the art galleries and shell shops," she said. "What I really enjoy here is having churches within walking distance. I've been going to two different churches, and the people are nice and friendly."

"I really enjoy this town and its people," she said. "I think it's one of the best places we've been."

In addition to the "Gypsy II", the Davises have in tow an 85-year-old dinghy—built in 1894 in Newfoundland—that they bought about three and a half years ago in Key Largo.

"It comes in real handy for catching water," Davis commented, and his wife added they caught all their drinking water in it coming through the Louisiana bayous.

The Davises plan to stay in Rockport until October, when they can get the northern winds, then they'll set sail for the British Honduras. Davis has relatives in California and one thing they think about—though they haven't made a decision yet—is going through the Panama Canal into the Pacific and up to California.

"We worked hard all our lives," Mrs. Davis said. "And one thing you think about when you work that hard is having a boat so you can travel around the world—being free. That's what we want to do."

It is, she commented earlier, the kind of life where "we don't know what'll happen from one time to the next."

But in the meantime, in spite of the alligators and sandbars, the Davises appear to be enjoying themselves. That's something a lot of people never do.

CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY AT PINE TREE PARK

Workmen put up the frame at the new Pine Tree Office Park on Highway 35 North between Palo Alto Trailer Park and Live Oak State Bank. Jad Smith, designer of the office buildings, said only the exterior walls will go up; interior walls will be built to suit tenants' needs after the offices are leased. Smith said the offices are designed in 600-foot sections and the tenant can lease one or more sections. Delmar Hiller is contractor for the project, and Security Real Estate will handle leasing. Projected completion date is January 31, 1980, Smith said. [Pilot Photo by Pat Blair]

Tides Of The Mind

by Sarah L. Durdin

I never had a sister and neither did Debbie, but if we did it would have been each other.

I met Debbie when we were both 14 years old. We were assigned to the same gym period, and I can't even remember how we drifted into being friends, but whatever prompted the initial interest in each other has been a steady force for the past eight years.

We watched each other suffer through the required sit-ups and the almost obligatory first REAL boyfriend, and over the years have come to know what the other is thinking before she speaks.

We've seen each other through one brother's bum marriage and subsequent remarriage, a mother's death, a brother's death, a father's remarriage, the marriage and fading away of a mutual friend, and the separation to different colleges and lifestyles.

Our respective world views at 14 strayed for one, and stayed true for the other, but the changes that came to pass in the journey from 14 to 22 never separated us.

Debbie wanted to be a nurse, and after a year of preparatory nurses training at a small college she decided she'd rather stay close to home. She has since given up school, and now works in the accounting department for the Southland Corporation. She has a husband named Rich, and if I ever get married I hope I'll love my husband as much as Deb loves Rich.

After years of declaring I would, I ran away to college, and got lost in the big world of UT in Austin. I always knew I wanted to write, so I put in my duty on the high school paper, the college paper, and did some freelancing for a small daily, all for the purpose of eventually ending up in Rockport.

Having weathered four years of high school together, we promised we'd write and phone, and while we don't take pen in hand quite as often, we are still close friends. There has never been a time when I didn't feel I couldn't call her in the middle of the night and ask for help. When my brother died, she was the first person I called, and through the next few days she kept just showing up, shuffling people, opening the door, and shifting the flowers.

Maybe she knew what to do, because her mother had died just two years earlier. She came home from college one Friday night, and found out her mother had died the night before. I was home that weekend too, but I didn't get to see her, although we did talk on the phone. I've always felt it badly that Debbie was such a help to me when I needed her, and I wasn't there when she could have used someone to shuffle the flowers and shift the people.

Since members of the family don't die every day (thank God for that), our friendship has found outlet in making a celebration of living.

When we were in ninth grade there were about half a dozen of us who "ran together", (that's what my grandmother calls it, and it seems more appropriate when speaking of wild pakes of dogs, but it fits the action). As each one ticked off a birthday I began to appoint myself the designated birthday cake maker, only to see my work get demolished at lunch the next day. Debbie had the last birthday, and since I figured she would be expecting a cake, it wouldn't be a surprise. So I gave her a flower instead. And baked a cake, and talked my science teacher into letting me out of class during Deb's lunch period.

I think we covered a three table radius handing out that cake to anyone within reach.

Physically, we even sort of look alike. We stand within an inch or two of each others height, and we both have longish blonde hair. The only real difference is our eyes. Debbie's are the color of a country sky on a July afternoon: the kind of blue you can see miles through. Mine range from dark green to grey, depending on just about anything: my clothes, the weather, my mood and even the date. Our eyes give both of us away.

I don't have a sister, but Debbie and I don't need matching birth certificates to feel related.

And God said, "Let there be light!"

And a spokesman for the EPA asked, "Have you filed an Environmental Impact Statement?"

And God asked, "What?"

"An Environmental Impact Statement. And then of course, there'll be hearings."

"What kind of hearings?"

"Public hearings, so you can tell the people what you want to do, and they—"

"But there aren't any people," God interrupted. "First I have to create a world, then I can create the people."

"What are you talking about—world," the EPA spokesman asked. "I thought you were talking about 'light'."

"The light is the first step," God explained. "I have to create the light before I can create the world. The creatures on it—"

"What 'creatures'? I thought you were just going to create a 'light'."

"Not 'a' light. Light. And as I told you, that's just the first step. I'm going to create a whole universe, with stars and planets, and on this one planet I'm going to create rivers and oceans, with plants and animals living in them, and more plants and animals on the dry land, and people—I'm going to create people—"

"Hold it, hold it, hold it." The EPA spokesman raised a hand. "You're going to just 'create' all these plants and animals running around."

"Yes."

"You can't do that."

"Why not?"

"Why not? Because you don't know how they're going to effect the environment!"

"They are the environment!"

"Can't do it." The EPA spokesman shook his head. "Not until you file the Environmental Impact Statements."

"What do you mean 'statements'?"

"Well, obviously, in a project this size, one statement just won't do. I mean—you already need one, just for the light, and then there are all these stars and planets—you'll need separate statements for those of course—"

"Separate—"

"Well, we might let you combine two or three of the smaller ones in a single statement. But only the small ones. And those rivers and oceans, and of course the plants and animals—"

"Separate statements."

"Separate statements."

And God considered, and he asked, "These people

I'm going to create . . . Are they going to get bogged down in this kind of bureaucracy?"

And the EPA spokesman said, "Of course. How else will they get anything done?"

And God said, "Forget it." And He did.

EMS Report

Paramedics for the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service report answering 21 calls during the week beginning August 27.

A total of 748 miles were logged, and the average response time was six minutes and 40 seconds.

Bills may be paid at the Rockport Chamber of Commerce on Austin Street.

Gifts Total $670

Aransas County residents gave $670 in memorial gifts to the American Heart Association during the AHA's fiscal year that ended June 30, according to Mrs. Frances Hitzfeld of Rockport, local AHA Memorial Giving chairwoman.

Some 75 contributions were made in memory of 50 persons, most of whom died of heart attack, stroke or some other form of cardiovascular disease.

Mrs. Hitzfeld said memorial gifts accounted for 12 per cent of the $5,300 received by the AHA from all donations in Aransas County.

Memorial gifts are usually given following a cardiovascular death, Mrs. Hitzfeld said, but she added contributions can be received on other dates such as birthdays and anniversaries.

She added that memorial giving can also be an "excellent" Christmas gift. "Memorial giving is both an effective way to pay tribute and a meaningful way to remember," she said.

Memorial contributions to the AHA can be made to Mrs. Hitzfeld at P.O. Box 1313, Rockport, Texas 78382. The name of the individual to be honored, the name and address of the next of kin and the contributor's name and address should be included, she emphasized. She added that checks should be made payable to the American Heart Association and donations are tax-deductible.

The largest percentage of the monies raised by the AHA is used to fund research projects and assist in the continuing education of the medical profession.

The AHA also provides community service through such projects as cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and hypertension screening.

Southwestern Bell Expansion Projects Nearing Completion In Rockport

Southwestern Bell is spending more than a quarter of a million dollars in the Rockport area to improve and expand telephone service.

"Two projects were begun in the spring and are expected to be completed this fall," said Fred Ackerman, construction manager for Southwestern Bell.

The first project involves placing 1500 feet of jelly-filled buried cable for the Bayhouse Condominiums in the Fulton Beach area.

"The jelly compound makes all the difference in the world when it comes to keeping water out of the cable," Ackerman said. "If a puncture occurs, the jelly compound retards water from spreading and the result is less damage and better service."

Rust and corrosion problems are as native to the Texas Coast as shrimp and palm trees. Because of this and the low water table, the telephone company also is using a fiberglass closure for its cables.

Ackerman said the fiberglass unit is another preventative measure the company takes to keep moisture from affecting service.

The other Rockport project involves providing facilities to the new Aransas Bay apartments on Highway 35.

"We're laying 500 feet of buried cable to serve the 40-unit complex," Ackerman said.

"Even though the initial installation cost of buried cable is higher than the cost of aerial cable, buried cable produces cost savings in the long run," Ackerman continued.

"Aerial cable primarily is used when we encounter solid rock or deep water where buried cable isn't feasible," he added.

Plans for both Rockport projects were provided by Al Reyna, Southwestern Bell network services supervisor.

"Before ground is ever broken on these projects, we look at the short term and long term capacities of the construction," Reyna said. "This allows for more effective additions in the future."

Last year, Southwestern Bell spent more than $1 billion on service expansion in Texas.

This year, the company will spend $1.3 billion on construction in Texas.

Betty Walters Named Artist Of The Month

Mrs. Betty Walters of Key Allegro has been selected as the First National Bank Artist of the Month. Her oil paintings will be shown in the bank lobby through September.

Mrs. Walters' paintings of land and seascapes have been in local art shows, including the Rockport Art Festival. Her oils and acrylics, and lately some decoratively-painted antique items, will be offered to the public at this year's Seafair.

She and her husband, Dwight, moved here two years ago from Corpus Christi, where Dwight still works. "We frequently came to Rockport to visit our friends, Herb and Betty French, and decided that it would be a nice place to live," she said.

Her first training in art came at age six from a neighbor who lived down the street in her native Mississippi. "Her husband died, so she wanted to spend her extra time teaching us kids how to paint," Mrs. Walters explained. "However, I didn't begin painting full-time until about ten years ago when all my kids had married. Now I eat, sleep and breathe painting."

"I stay away from impressionistic work," she said, "I want my paintings to look real." Recently, she began to paint clocks and antique items, some of which will be seen at the Seafair in October.

"I've had a number of good teachers," said Mrs. Walters, "among them Steve Russell, Dick Turner, Francis Crane and Windburg—I learned a little something from every one of them."

Mrs. Walters also keeps her paintings at El Barrio Plaza in downtown Rockport. She was chosen as Artist of the Month by Mrs. Gladys Gibson, chairman of the bank's art committee.

Police Report

More than $400 in currency and change was taken from a burglary at Capt. Cady's Bait House, and a burglary-theft at Hull's Used Cars netted a radiator, police reported this week.

The bait house, located on the north side of Rockport's Turning Basin, was burglarized sometime between 9:15 p.m. Monday, September 3, and 7 a.m. Tuesday.

The burglar(s) reached an open window to unlock the rear door, then entered. The cash register was forced open and $53.20 in change taken. Also taken was $356.20 in currency and change from a bank money bag concealed in the ceiling timbers of the back room.

Police said there was no walkway around either side of the building and the only way the burglar(s) could gain access was by water.

The burglary was reported by Mrs. Michael Jean Aiken of Fulton.

A radiator was taken from a 1972 Ford Bronco in the lot of Hull's Used Cars at Liberty and Gagon at approximately 8:40 p.m. or later Tuesday, September 4.

Police said someone cut the coolant hoses and broke the plastic fan shroud, then unbolted the radiator. Only the radiator was taken—the broken shroud and hardware were left.

Melvin Hull Sr. who reported the theft said he called police about 8:43 p.m. Tuesday night because of a prowler on the lot. Hull said he saw a young adult male run from the west end of the car lot toward Liberty Street and get in on the passenger side of a van which then sped off without turning on its lights.

Hull discovered the missing radiator about 2 p.m. the next day (Wednesday).

Brownies Search For Leader

Brownies of Troop 321 which meets at the Little House in Fulton are looking for a leader for their troop. Anyone interested in helping should apply to Miss Elizabeth Whitney, 729-5217.

Other troops will begin their fall meetings the week of September 10. Scouts re-registering or any girls wishing to join should attend the meeting of the troop of their choice or call the leader of that troop.

Brownie Troop 411 meets Mondays at 3:45 p.m. at the Scout House, Corner of Linden and Live Oak streets; leader, Mrs. Barney Green, 729-5076.

Monday evenings at 7 p.m., Cadette Troop 361 meets with Mrs. James Langston, 729-0245, at the Scout House.

Mrs. Robert Boyce and Mrs. Robert Yardley, 729-2199, are leaders of Junior Troop 448 which meets Tuesdays at 3:45 p.m. at the Scout House.

On Tuesdays at 3:45 p.m. Junior Troop 516 meets at the Peace Lutheran Church, with Mrs. Robert Crawford, 729-5913.

Wednesdays at 3:45 p.m. Mrs. Kenneth Lyman, 729-3749, and Mrs. Charles Eady, 729-7696, lead Brownie Troop 431 at the Scout House.

This year, Fulton Junior Troop 517 will meet at the Fulton Fire Station, at 3:45 p.m. on Wednesdays. Leaders are Mrs. Dorothy Biggs, 729-0925, and Mrs. Charles Potter, 729-3989.

Mrs. Robert Tillison, 729-2999, is the leader of Junior Troop 469 which meets at the Scout House on Thursdays at 3:45 p.m.

Registration for the year beginning October 1, 1979 will be $3 per scout. This includes accident insurance coverage for any scouting activity.

All Rockport-Fulton Girl Scouts with their leaders will march in the Seafair parade on October 6.

Young heads of households

By 1990 it is expected that 22 million "heads" of the household will be between 25 and 35 years of age.

However, in 1970 there were only 10.5 million heads of the household between 25 and 35 years of age. — CNS

Cuero Gets Ready Oct. 6-7 For 'Great Gobbler Gallop'

When was the last time you were in Cuero, Texas at the Turkey races?

Yes, the turkey races, and if it's been over a year, that's too long! It's time to plan to come to Cuero, the Turkey-fest and Great Gobbler Gallop.

This year's fest will be held October 6 and 7. The last heat of the Great Gobbler Gallop will be staged October 7 at 3.

The first heat is being run in Worthington, Minnesota at the King Turkey Day celebration on September 15 and 16. It promises to be a race full of excitement and competition (Ruby Begonia's honor is at "steak" since she has lost the last three races in succession).

Along with the races is two days filled with fun and frolic for everyone. The first day for the fest opens with a spectacular two-hour parade at 10.

Back in 1908 Cuero's first turkey dressing house was opened and turkey raising began on a large scale on DeWitt County farms. Early in November the growers would drive their turkeys down country roads and through the city streets to the packing house and the northerners would marvel at the sight.

They enthusiastically expressed their interest to local citizens and year by year the number of visitors who would come to Cuero to watch the turkey drives grew.

In 1912 a group of businessmen in the Chamber of Commerce sensing the interest of these visitors and wanting to encourage turkey raising and advertise South Texas turkeys, decided to stage a celebration with a turkey drive down the city's main streets as the main feature.

In 1973 a group of Cuero citizens decided to add to the Cuero Turkey Trot. A full South Texas spectra of turkey based food recipes, carnivals, gala parades, free mall areas in the downtown streets, continuous live entertainment, home tours, street dances in addition to a "herd" of wild turkeys parading down the streets all climaxed with the "Great Gobbler Gallop".

This final event is an annual cross-nation turkey race between the city of Worthington, Minnesota and Cuero. It's a two-heat race - one heat in each town each year and the average of the two races determines the winner.

The prize is a four foot trophy "The Traveling Turkey Trophy of Tumultuous Triumph" and the title of the "World's Fastest Turkey".

The event is most successful bringing crowds of 50,000 into Cuero for the annual two-day event which is now called "The Turkey Fest" as it is indeed a grand festival.

Irish Optical Plans Grand Opening

John Carrigan said the reason he and his wife Rita decided to open Irish Optical in Rockport was because it's a clean town with no smog. Coming from an optician you know that's got to be a good sign.

The Carrigans have just opened Irish Optical, located across from H.E.B., in what was formerly the Little Coffee Shop. John said he and Rita, along with their six-year-old son Michael, started from Galveston and just drove down the coast until they found a town they liked. Things in Rockport looked even better when they found a location for Irish Optical the second day they were here.

John has 13 years experience as an optician. Rita will be in charge of the office management. They plan to keep office hours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with the exception of Wednesday, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

Patients will be treated on a first-come-first-serve basis, and John emphasized that there is a play area with entertainment for children.

John received on the job training as an optician when he began working for Texas State Optical in San Antonio, and later when he worked for Dietzen-McClean, one of the biggest wholesale optical supply companies. He later went back to work for TSO, and worked in the Houston area as a contract optician. He said his work as a contract optician was hard, never knowing where he would be the next day, but because he experienced so many different kinds of problems, he said it was the best training experience he could have received.

He pointed out that there's a difference between an optometrist and an optician similar to that of a doctor and a pharmacist. The optometrist diagnoses the problem, and prescribes a treatment. The optician fills the prescription, and takes care of the patient's reaction to it. In addition opticians face strict licensing and practice laws.

John also emphasized that at Irish Optical the patient will never be charged for minor repairs, like a loose screw or a lens that popped out, and adds that he intends to sell service rather than just products.

Scriptures selected by The American Bible Society

Happier than other children most of the time.
Sadder than other children some of the time.
Kathy's emotions always seem gigantic to us.
Because she is ours!
That's why we're giving her a Truth to live by.
A Faith to fall back on — and go ahead again.
A church that is home on Sundays,
A cherished center of life every day.

Rockport Speaks Out

Do you favor a council-mayor or a council-manager form of government for Rockport?

I think the manager ought to run the city and the council should set the policies for him to follow. W. G. Blake, Crescent Drive.

The mayor is doing all right, so I'm in favor of that form of government. Marvin Mille, South Water Street.

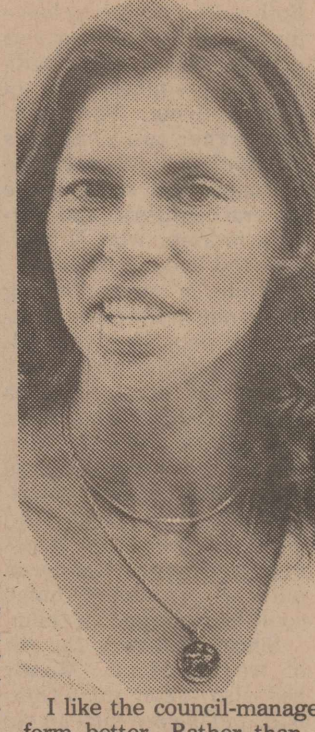

We need a city manager, and we need a change now. To manage the city sounds better anyway. Bess Hall, Donnie Drive.

The council-mayor form, because it seems better. Janie Garcia, South Fugua Street.

As a member of the charter commission, I'm in favor of the council-manager form of government. The city manager would be a professional man with training in running a city, and he could be free of the politics. It would also free the mayor to take care of his necessary social and political chores. Walter Clark, Magnolia.

I like the council-manager form better. Rather than a person who has to satisfy the electorate of the town, you have someone who can do their best for the town. Thursey Sutton, Corpus Christi Street.

I have no preference. Jean Miller, Rockport.

The council-mayor. To me it sounds better. Mrs. Tommy Malvonado, Rockport.

Many of us wish to keep our real property in the family now and in the future. But can we do that at the expense of inheritors' rights to sell the property?

Q. Our family has lived on a farm in Iowa for three generations, and I want to preserve that tradition in the future. Can I make legal arrangements to keep the farm in the family, without fear of future sale, through my 4-year-old grandchild and his family?

A. Iowa statute (Code Sec. 558.68) says that every disposition of real property is void which suspends the absolute power of controlling it for a longer period than the lives of persons then living, and 21 years thereafter.

The Legal Way

This is called the rule against perpetuities, which recognizes the principle (in all states, with variations) that the right of sale could not be suspended by deed or will for an unreasonable length of time (Am. Jur. 2d, Ref.). Perpetuities and Restraints on Alienation, Secs. 93-119).

Q. I would like to change my first name and add "III" to the end of my last name. I am 19. How do I go about this?

A. You may change your name through the Probate Division of the county Superior Court in your state, Arizona (Const., Art. 6, Sec. 14) and in other states. The applicant files an affidavit with the court, giving the reasons for the desired change.

The court usually grants the application if the person has no ulterior motive, such as to defraud creditors. Discuss your application with one of the court's commissioners.

Q. A creek flows through my property and my neighbor's in Nebraska. Now my neighbor plans to dam the creek to get more irrigation water for his crops. This will cause damage to my crops. Does the law allow him to dam the flow?

A. Nebraska Rev. Statute (Sec. 25-1062-64) says an injunction may be granted by the District Court of your county to stop his damming of the creek, if you can show his act would be an injurious invasion of your right to the water (Am. Jur. 2d, Ref: Injunction, Secs. 23-68). Demonstrating potential injury to your crops would show that your rights have been violated.

Write, without a charge, E.J. Demson, Copley News Service in care of this newspaper for what the law says about your legal problem. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

This investment is for new plants and other facilities required to serve the electrical needs of the company's customers. He indicated that in addition to the significantly increased capital costs to finance this construction, the high rate of inflation has caused a dramatic rise in current operating costs.

Range noted that detailed studies are now underway which are necessary for the filing before the cities are the PUC, and that those studies will be far enough along within the next few days to state the amount of the requested increase.

COUNTY

Bob Dingenary also appeared before the commissioners, requesting that the direction of three Peninsula Oaks lots be changed from west to south. Dingenary stated that the lots would be used to build lake front houses, and if the lots were left facing west, only one home would actually face the lake.

The lots are contiguous, and each is approximately 100 by 300 feet, so changing the directions would not change the lot proportions. Commissioners gave tentative approval, saying they would have to see the original plan before they could give final approval to the plan.

A uniform body of property tax law was the subject of a letter to the commissioners from Allena Jones, County Tax Assessor-Collector. Mrs. Jones stated in the letter that the law would apply to the appraisal district, and commissioners had until September 15 to decide time or another during the interview, along with a few stray friends and neighbors thrown in for variety.

Part of the reason for all the commotion was the back-to-school rush. Both Philip and Penny are teachers with the Aransas County Independent School District. Philip teaches drafting at the high school, and Penny rides herd over a fifth grade class at Rockport Elementary School. They both resumed their teaching duties when school started on Tuesday.

"We moved to Rockport 30 years ago," Philip explained. "We got out a map and wrote to all the little cities along the coast, and the Rockport school system was the only one that wrote back."

"This is our 30th year here, and we celebrated our first wedding anniversary in Rockport," Penny added.

if they wanted to participate in the program. Commissioners approved a motion by Commissioner Ray Longino to join the program.

A request from Sheriff Bob Hewes to appoint Carson D. Woodell as chief deputy was approved by commissioners.

A $10,000 performance bond for road work near City By The Sea was approved, to be made out to the Aransas County Commissioners.

County Attorney James Anderson reviewed the terms of a lease to Dr. C.M. Patterson for the military mess hall at the county airport. Patterson has agreed to make improvements to the building, and commissioners requested that the improvements be completed within the first six months of Patterson's lease.

Commissioners agreed to write a letter to the attorney for the county airport stating his services were terminated, and advising that he submit his final bill for consideration.

Bills totalling $48,774.66 were read and approved.

Bonnie and Betty, two of their four girls, were also getting ready for school. Both were packing to leave for college and the car was getting loaded down with all the requirements of college living. The Baldwins' other two daughters include Becky Merritt, who participated in some of the general confusion, and Barbara Shirley, who is married and lives in Kansas.

While a tree-climbing dog is one of the more flamboyant pets they've had, Mandy isn't the only animal to have found a home at the Baldwins. Over the years they've also housed an assortment of dogs, cats, rabbits, chickens, hooter rats and gerbils, along with strays that happened to wander in until a permanent home could be arranged for them.

Since mastering the art of tree climbing, Mandy has also taken up tetherball, and is now such an old pro at the game that Philip says he's embarrassed to play it with her. In fact, Mandy got so enthusiastic about the game at one point that she broke the ball.

"Now we have to get a new tetherball game, and Mandy will be the one who'll play with it. I keep thinking this is ridiculous," Penny said, laughing all the while.

One thing for certain is that no one can accuse Mandy of barking up the wrong tree. Chances are she climbed it first and scouted it out before she began any serious barking to the world about being out on a limb.

REPORT

Anita Dingenary appeared before the commissioners with questions concerning who is responsible if bulkheading of a private property creates a hazard in waters belonging to the navigation district. Navigation District Attorney Reese Rozzell answered that the number of possible circumstances prevented him from giving an immediate answer. Chairman Dave Maguglin requested Rozzell to research the question for further discussion.

A bill from the Garrett Construction Company was discussed for payment. The invoice totalled $3,940.11, and was for construction work that had been done to previous work by the Vermilion Construction Company. The matter was tabled until a conference to discuss the bill further could be arranged with workers of the Garrett company.

A letter concerning attendance to the Intracoastal Canal Association Convention was read by Commissioner Anders. He stated that the convention was to be held in Houston on October 5-6, and reservations would have to be made by September 21. Commissioners tabled the matter until it could be determined who would be available to attend the convention on the dates given.

A request by Howard Gilliam for a five year lease in exchange for clearing away pilings on the property in question was rejected by the commissioners.

Commissioner Ken Faulkner brought up a discussion on the matter of inequities in boat rents. Harbormaster Bernie DeForrest stated that the use of water and electricity in part accounted for the differences. Maguglin requested Commissioners Faulkner and Hillis Dominguez to study the matter further and give their report at the next meeting of the navigation commissioners.

The next regular meeting of the Aransas County Navigation District Commissioners will be held at 7:30 p.m. on October 2 at the navigation district office.

Healthful Hints

Q. Lately, it seems as though my memory is going, and I experience a certain mental confusion. My mind just sort of "slips into neutral" sometimes. What I mean? It's nothing really serious; but I would like to know what vitamins might help.

A. Yes, I know what you mean. What did you ask?

PIRATES

fensive end Mark McDonald followed up on the next play by sacking Panther quarterback Kurt Whiloughby for a huge loss.

The third period was a seesaw affair, with neither team accomplishing too much in the way of threats; however, as the quarter ended, the Pirates were again on the march, only this time a rushed pass was snagged by a Panther for an interception. Before the interception, the big play in the series was a 27 yard Eaton to Dennis Hull pass.

The neighboring rivals seemed to pick up momentum with the Pirates' failure to cash in on the opportunity. Tailback Curtis Young began churning up yards for the Panthers. Aransas moved out of mid-field. A costly penalty hit the Panthers' surge when a Panther receiver committed offensive pass interference against Pirate Kenneth Smith.

Eventually, the Panthers had to punt, and Esequiel Hernandez took the punt and returned the ball 33 yards to the Panther 40 yardline. On the very next play, sophomore tailback Ernest Gonzales took the ball, followed his blocking, and then broke clear on a run for paydirt. Williams added the kick, and Rockport led 14-0.

The Pirates kicked off to Aransas, and the Panthers took over at their own 27. Again, the Pirate defense made the big play as Larry Sammons made a diving leap at the Panther quarterback, knocking the ball from his hand, and Pirate Scott Meyer came up with the pigskin.

On first down, Eaton passed a ball which Pirate receiver Mark Goodin snared 15 yards down the field, giving the Pirates another first down at the Panther 16. Gonzales retraced his steps on his earlier run as he went over for the touchdown. For the third time, Williams hit for the extra point.

As time was running out in the game, the Panther quarterback was forced back in his endzone on a tremendous rush by line-backer Gary Ondrej, and McDonald nailed the ball carrier for a safety, running the score to 23-0 for the Pirates.

Coach Brian Connolly had many good things to say about his victorious Pirates following the game. "Obviously, we have to be pleased with the win. I am proud of the poise our kids showed, especially the line with all of the moving Aransas Pass was doing," he stated, "and we played as a unit," he pointed out, indicating that many times a player would wipe out the blockers so that a teammate could have clearer shot at the ball carrier.

Youngsters throughout the area went door-to-door to collect money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Top collector, Mrs. Gordon said, was Rosendo Ramirez who got $195.28. Next-highest collector was Rhea Morales with $146.44.

Dawn Robbins, who last week began selling her drawings to raise money for "Jerry's Kids" collected some $101.30 for MDA.

Mrs. Gordon said the totals included "several contributions in the hundreds of dollars," but added the contributors had asked to remain anonymous.

Included in the bills were two bills totalling $5215.44 from Texas Emulsions System, a $6,875 bill from Texas Star Service Inc., a $2519.02 CP&L bill, and a $12,141.31 bill for mosquito control. There were also bills for $3,777 from Rockport Climate Control for air conditioning repairs, $4,080 from M&P Machinery, and $2,232.89 was spent for rocks.

The next regular meeting of the Aransas County Commissioners will be held at 9 a.m. September 10, at the Aransas County Courthouse.

plete without acknowledging the offensive line of Jeb Beall, Bubba Scott, Larry Sammons, Dennis Hull and the Allen Twins, Ronald and Donald, who had to win the war in the trenches. As Coach Connolly pointed out, "In order for our sweep to be successful, Dietze and Hull have to seal off the inside, and the Allen twins have to get out in a hurry to lead the runner around the end." To indicate how successful the blocking was, Gonzales and running mate Michael Simmons combined for nearly 200 yards.

Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition

(Sorry, I couldn't resist that.)
The B-vitamins appear to be very important here. Even a mild niacin deficiency can cause memory impairment and mental confusion. B-1 and B-6 deficiencies also can cause forgetfulness, confusion and irritability. (Don't forget that, if you take individual B-vitamins separately, you need to back them up with a good B-complex supplement.)

The mineral, magnesium, has also been shown to be helpful in cases of mental confusion.

Q. What foods are rich in trace mineral, selenium?

A. Selenium occurs naturally in the bran and germ of cereals; in vegetables such as onions, tomatoes, and broccoli; and in tuna. However, the selenium content of food depends upon the extent of its presence in the soil on which the food was grown. Selenium levels in animal products are derived from what the animal feeds on (back to the soil).

Services Held For Father Of Rockportian

Funeral services for Marvin H. Dunneho, 68, of Corpus Christi, father of Mrs. Janice Marie Scott of Rockport, were at 10 a.m. Thursday, September 6, at the Seaside Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Larry Louks officiating.

Burial was in Seaside Memorial Park. Mr. Dunneho died Tuesday morning, September 4, at his home.

He had lived in Corpus Christi 11 years and was former owner of Dudes Radiator Service.

Other survivors include his wife, Martha Nuchols Dunneho; two sons, Michael Edward Dunneho and Larry Patrick Dunneho, both of Corpus Christi; a brother, Thurman Dunneho of Poplar Bluff, Missouri; and five grandchildren.

McDAVID

as was typical for small towns of that era, he added--associated with the First National Bank.

"That was in the old, old building," he added: "the old dungeon. There was a little tiny directors' room not as big as this (he indicated his present office), and there was two desks back there."

Because the office was in the bank, he said, the insurance agent had to keep "banker's hours"--open at 9:30 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. "I knew that wasn't going to work," McDavid said, "so I moved."

In 1974, Glass, Sorenson & McDavid moved to its present location at 1102 Laurel, across the street from the bank.

By then, McDavid's son, John M. McDavid Jr., had joined the firm which is now incorporated.

Besides John Jr., the McDavids have another son--Andy, 21, a premed major at the University of Texas--and two daughters, Betty Dimaline of Houston, and Lisa Duncan of Cherry Point, North Carolina. John Jr., who lives next door to his parents--in the house his grandparents once owned--has a son, John Travis McDavid who will be two years old in November.

Mrs. Dimaline has a daughter, Clare, 4, named after her grandmother.

The McDavids have been married 32 years, he said, and added, musing, "When my mother and father told me they'd been married 25 years, I thought that was forever."

McDavid has been active in community affairs since he came to Rockport. He's served in the Lions Club, as president of the Rotary, has been active in Scouting and is a trustee for the Aransas County Youth Council which administers and owns the Boy Scouts' Hut.

He's one of three trustees for the Girl Scout Hut, is a former member--and secretary-treasurer--of the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department.

He's served as member of the board and president of the Chamber of Commerce and is chairman, the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District board of directors.

Members of the board are elected to six-year terms and McDavid said he "really doesn't know" how many terms he's served but figures it's been about 15 years.

"I went on (the board) when Harold Picton was president, not too long after the district was formed," he recalled.

For relaxation, McDavid said, "I do a little hunting in the fall with Jimmy (James Sorenson) and my son. We have a lease, and they laugh at me because they get up in the middle of the night to go stalking out there (hunting), and I won't go 'til 8:30 or 9 after I've had my coffee."

But he recalls once, his friends got a little upset because they "went charging out in the middle of the night" to hunt and didn't get anything, and McDavid "got up at my usual time--about 9:30, was hunting for about 15 minutes and got a lovely buck."

"Kill a deer maybe once in five years," he added, "because I'm not going to strain myself."

Besides hunting, McDavid also spends a lot of time caring for his car. "My friends laugh that I've got the cleanest car in town," he said, "It's always been a habit to take care of my car. I think it's a habit from the Depression years when if you got it, you took care of it."

He also enjoys "piddlin' in the yard," he said, "and on Sunday the children check in to tell me their problems."

He also found himself, quite unintentionally, "locked in" to pool maintenance when he had a swimming pool installed at his home. But, he added, it serves as a focal point for a lot of family gatherings.

He's never regretted coming to Rockport. "I look back on moving to Rockport," he said, "and it's the finest thing that ever happened to me."

There's not much to add to that.

Jimmy Silberisen Celebrates 72nd

Rockport pioneer Jimmy Silberisen celebrated his 72nd birthday August 31, and in honor of the occasion friends and relatives gathered from as far away as Dallas to celebrate the occasion with a party at the home of Mrs. Bess Hall.

Silberisen was born and raised in Rockport, and is considered to be the owner of the first crab house in the city, which was located on Laurel Street. He also enjoys quite a reputation in the area as an experienced fisherman.

His parents, Bill and Florence Silberisen were among the early settlers of Rockport. Bill was one of the first German settlers to sail into Indianola, and after coming to Rockport he worked for many years as a custodian at the school house.

Silberisen is a member of the Church of Christ, and his brother-in-law, Clyde (Scatter) McLain was the first pastor of the church. McLain was the brother of Silberisen's wife, the late Ozzell McLain.

Guests at the birthday celebration included his daughters and their husbands, Jo Ann and Jerry White, and Dorothy and Ray Wallace, all of Rockport. Martha Tanner, and her husband John, attended the party from Dallas.

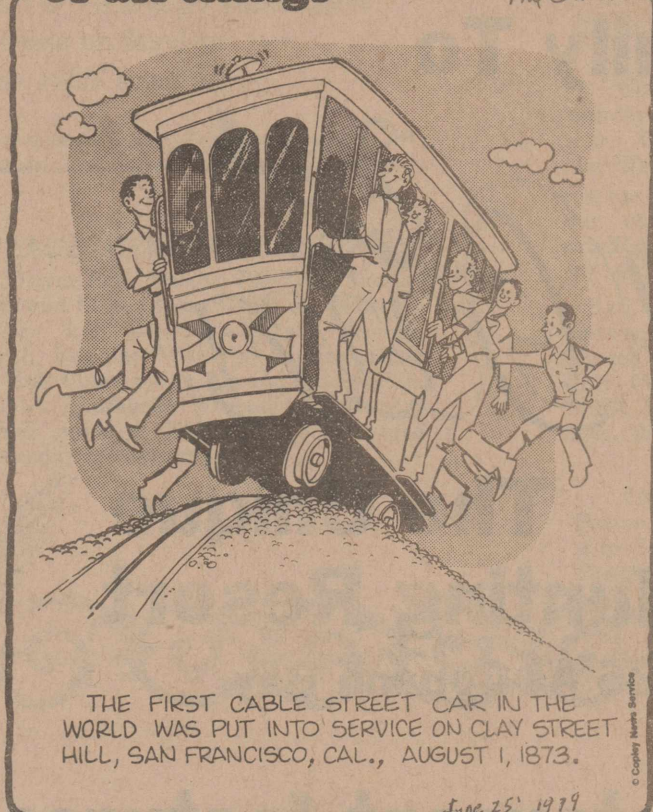

Our of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Swenson of Austin.

Silberisen's grandchildren, Donna and Catherine White, and Ray and Lee Wallace, were also attending the party.

Rockport guests included Mrs. Pauline Procknow, Mrs. Lester Housewright, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kuehn, Mrs. Paul Hoover, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Brown.

Refreshments at the party included cake, finger sandwiches, punch and coffee.

COURAGE

Courage indicates strength, power, the ability to stand in spite of opposition. Noah showed it in building his ark. Daniel showed it when he found himself in a lion's den. Stephen showed courage in the face of death. It would have been easy for them, as it is for us, to give up, but they didn't. And we don't have to. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." [Phil. 4:13]
