Farm Bureau Opens Drive for Members

Workers in the annual membership drive of the Collingsworth County Farm Bureau heard three area and district workers at the kickoff meeting Thursday, January 15. These were O. K. Hoyle of Seymour, area supervisor for Farm Bureau; Charlie Scruggs, Amarillo, area supervisor for insurance; and Buddy Hedges, district personnel director from Spade.

Hoyle traced the history of Farm Bureau, pointing out that Texas was one of the states in which the movement started.

He pointed out that Farm Bureau was not a protest organization, as others had been, but to take a positive approach and solve the problems confronting agriculture.

Scruggs explained the farm bureau insurance program and recent changes that have been made in it, while Hedges discussed the membership campaign.

Organization of the membership drive was carried out by Monty Mitchell, vice president.

Trees for planting wind breaks are again available to farmers and ranchers, County Agent Bob Lynch reported.

There is a choice of Austrain pine, ponderosa pine or red ceder. The cost is $1.25 per hundred, and not less than 100 can be ordered.

Orders must be placed before March 1, Lynch said, and the shipping period is from February 1 to April 1.

These trees will probably be about knee high, the county agent added.

Application blanks for windbreak trees may be pick up from the rack outside the door of the county agent's office.

County Officials Get 10 Per Cent Salary Raise

Elective officers of Collingsworth County, with three exceptions, received 10 per cent increase in salary, the first in more than 10 years. This action was taken in Commissioners court Wednesday, January 14, when County Judge C. C. Bishop broke a tie vote and went on record for the increase.

This was the third tie vote the judge broke in the meeting. The first order was to accept the salaries as set up in the 1959 budget, which have meant a 13 per cent increase. Judge Bishop voted against the order. The second order called for a 5 per cent increase in salaries, with three exceptions. This again was a tie vote and the judge voted against it.

The three exceptions to the order that passed were the county treasurer, who was given a $600 per year increase; justice of the peace, $600. The third exception was the new tax assessor-collector, which will be set on the same level as the county clerk and county judge. Commissioners Jack Brewer and Alfred Knoll voted for this measure; W. R. Breeding and Pat O'Hair against the two higher proposals.

With salaries of elective officers taken care of, the commissioners turned to hired employees.

Salaries of the deputy sheriff were set at $3,600; deputy tax assessor, collector, $2,800; chief deputy clerk, $2,800; deputy clerk, $2,400.

The next order set the salaries of hired employees paid out of the general fund: county librarian, a $300 increase, Veterans service officer, an increase of $180; supervisor of commodities, the county's part of the county agent's salary, and the county's part of the home demonstration agent's salary, unchanged.

The next order, passed unanimously, set salaries paid out of the court house and jail general and jury funds: Janitor, a small increase; court reporter, and the county's part of the district attorney's secretary's salary, no change.

Car and office expenses were set: Veterans service officer, $600; county agent, $1,000; home demon-

Drive Opens for Trees at City Cemeteries

The first part of a landscaping program for Wellington's two cemeteries was announced this week by Zook Thomas, president of the cemetery association, with the opening of a drive to raise $575.

This will buy 300 Arizona Cyprus trees to be set out on part of the boundary lines of the two cemeteries.

"The cost of one tree is $1.75, and directors of the cemetery association are asking all who will to buy as many trees as they wish," Thomas explained.

"Several already have said they will buy as many as 10 trees, others have pledged to buy a smaller number, and others have said they will buy one tree for this landscaping program," he continued.

The money must be raised within the next two weeks, as these trees should be set out by mid-February, it was pointed out.

Plans for the drive were made in a meeting of the directors Friday night, January 16, and call for a new of trees to be set cut on the south and west sides of North Wellington Cemetery, and the south side of West Wellington Cemtery. This latter is specitically to divide the cemetery from the city sewage disposal plant.

The Arizona Cyprus is regarded as one of the hardiest evergreens for this area, as well as one of the fastest growing.

The trees will be set out at 10-foot spacing and within five to six years, they will form a solid hedge. Their present height is 24 to 30 inches, and within a few years, their height will be 15 feet or higher.

A committee composed of Thomas, Woody Wood and Claude Savage has contacted a nursery regarding the trees.

"Any contract the cemetery association enters into with a nursery will carry the guarantee that the trees will live, and any that die within the first year will be replaced by trees of a size to those in the hedge," Thomas explained.

"This landscaping project is one part of the improvement of our cemeteries, which began several years ago, and which will continue until our two plots are places of beauty," he continued.

"The public has been generous with its support of the cemetery association in the past.

"In this drive, we ask that you give funds for as many trees as you feel you can, whether it be one tree or a hundred," the chairman urged.

Jail "Deplorable"

Court Visits Jail and Road Projects

Members of the commissioners court inspected the county jail and part of the road work coming under the disaster program.

The road inspection, since it covers work in many parts of the county, was not completed and will be continued Tuesday, January 27. Gene Jenkins, county road supervisor, is in charge of this part of the tour.

Sheriff John Rainey showed the group through the jail, which has been called unsafe by the state health department.

"Something will have to be done of we'll have to haul our prisoners somewhere else to keep them," Judge C. C. Bishop commented at the end of the visit. "It is in deplorable condition and I think any fair minded person would say that."

As the 47 year old building has settled, part of the cell doors cannot be locked, and prisoners cannot be kept in them. The court members gave attention to the ancient plumbing and other conditions cited in the health department report.

"I'll be glad to take anyone interested through the jail and they can see for themselves," Sheriff Rainey said.

Awards Dinner

Stevenson Cited For Conservation Work

J. B. Stevenson became the first farm implement dealer in Wellington to be recognized for his outstanding contribution to soil conservation Monday night, January 19, at an awards dinner given by the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District.

The veteran Allis-Chalmers dealer, in a presentation that was a complete surprise, received the Dealer-District Award for his outstanding contribution to soil conservation.

Mr. Stevenson has been in this work 23 years.

At the same time, Jim Noble, of Elk City, Okla., district manager for Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, presented the Salt Fork SCD a plaque as second place winner in the state in the Goodyear contests. This is the second year the district has won the award.

Walter Camp, young Dodson farmer, was recognized as the outstanding farmer in the Goodyear program and received a certificate. Certificates also went to each of the supervisors, Pat Bradley, John Robert Henard, Orville Vaughan, Frank Coleman, and Zook Thomas.

Mr. Noble, speaking briefly, said that in this day of enlarged plants, people think of industrial areas first, and have forgotten the farms, yet from the farms must come both food and the raw materials for industry.

"In years to come our soil must be asked to produce more, and to prosper we must have soil conservation," he said.

"We want you to go back and tell Goodyear they are doing an important job in soil conservation," Zook Thomas, toastmaster and SCD supervisor told Noble. He then recognized certain groups for help they have given the district: its board of supervisors, the co-operators, the SCS Personnel, and the Wellington Leader for its co-operation in soil conservation.

Yeary Goes to New SCS Work at Haskell

J. C. Yeary, soil conservationist with Soil Conservation Service two and a half years, has been transferred to Haskell and promoted to work unit conservationist. He will begin his new work Monday, January 26.

Yeary will work with two soil conservation districts, the Wichita Brazos district, which has headquarters at Knox City, and the California Creek, with headquarters at Stamford. The SCS unit at Haskell is responsible for all ASC work and the Great Plains program in Haskell County.

With SCS three a half years, Yeary came here from Ballinger.

Mrs. Yeary and their children, Jimmy, 11, and Sara Lee, 8, will remain here for the present. She teaches social studies and language arts in junior high.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Yeary were reared at LaGrange. He was graduated from Texas A&M in 1941 and served in the Pacific during World War II.

Here he is a master sergeant with the National Guard Unit, a teacher of the men's Bible class in First Baptist Church, and chairman of the district advancement committee for the Comanche Boy Scout District. He also is a mason and on the Troop committee of Scout Troop 31.

Mrs. Yeary, a graduate of Baylor University in 1956, is a member of Excelsior Club and teaches the young married couples class of First Baptist Church.

Be American! Buy Foreign-Made Goods . . .

The Tennessee Valley Authority, a tax-fed power unit supported by the taxpayers of this nation, has just bought three new 54,000-kilowatt hydroelectric generators at a cost of $2,637,135 of United States tax money —from a foreign manufacturer in Baden, Switzerland.

Three American firms who bid on the generators were by-passed because the federal government forced them to pay their workers so well they could not compete with foreign companies who pay their workers very little.

The lowest American bidder was the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. of Milwaukee. Allis-Chalmers needed the business. It recently had to lay off 2,300 workers. These workers are among the citizens of Wisconsin who have, during the past 25 years, contributed almost $26 million of their paychecks to support TVA.

This follows the announced and demonstrated policy of the U. S. government. That is, simply—to give foreign nations the equipment and technical help to set up factories to compete with American factories; then force American factories to pay minimum wages which make it economically sound to buy the cheaper foreign product than the American.

This policy, and it is a policy of both political parties, can and will destroy American industry in the final analysis, and along with it the entire economic system of this country. And without American industry and without the American economic system, there can be no such thing as American freedom and independence.—The Ralls Banner.

Scientifically Confused

We are acutely conscious that the world about us, in many ways, has gone off and left us. Not only do we not understand satellites and cyclotrons, but we no longer can change the sparkplugs in our own automobiles. Failure of the electric lines leaves us virtually helpless; and a truck strike decreed by a distant labor monopolist can have us desperate for food in a matter of days.

We are confused by business structures so large that employees are numbers on badges and time cards, and so complex that one big corporation uses 26,000 other firms as sub-contractors and suppliers.

Government gets beyond the range of our mental images when we find that, if a Congressman spent one hour considering each $1 million of the appropriations on which he voted, he would still be working on the 1959 budget during the early years of the 21st century.—Ed Lipscomb, National Cotton Council.

Paradise Lost

The sad plight of seagulls on the St. Augustine, Fla., coast who are "starving to death in the midst of plenty because they have forgotton how to fish" is related in a recent issue of The Early American Magazine.

The gulls used to live on the waste from the local shrimp fleet. They didn't have to catch fish—or teach their young the techniques of fishing.

Then the shrimp fleet moved away to Key West and their paradise was lost.

The Early American says: "A few of the birds had the intuition to follow the fleet. A few more were enterprising enough, or had instinct enough left, to take to the sea once more. But many of them can be seen sitting sadly where they were left, starving to death because no one will bring them shrimp, while in the Gulf there is food for the taking."—Current and Quotable.

How to Get It

One of Missouri's most persistent advocates of more citizen participation in government is Atty. Gen. John M. Dalton.

"The amazing thing about Democracy is not that it works so poorly but that it works at all," he remarked at a Kiwanis Club banquet.

And how correct he is in that statement!

If citizens of this Democracy would bother to keep themselves informed about government; if they would study the issues and candidates; if they would participate in the political party of their choice, there would no longer be times when pressure groups would actually be running the government.

Instead of lobbies by business groups, labor groups and others of a narrow nature, there would be one overwhelming people's lobby.

The result would be better government for all groups —even today's big pressure groups.—Clinton (Mo.) Daily Democrat.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where a Houston wife got accused of hiring some outside help to hurry-up the cash-in on her husband's life insurance money.

My pot-bearing neighbor says a lady don't ever need to go to any extra expense like that, on account of there is so much free help available.

Like, for instance, the magazines and the newspapers every day print numerous recipes for fast do-it- yourself widow-making with the cook stove.

* * *

I see where a Special Committee reports that Social Security is a sound proposition and we can safely rely on it to finance our old age.

My bled-turnip neighbor says his business would be sound, too, if everybody had to trade with him whether they liked it or not, and he could keep raising his prices.

Says, in fact, he don't see how Social Security could ever get in any strain, with million of auto drivers striving to hold down the number of folks who live long enough to be burdens on the fund.

* * *

I see where some folks are complaining about the new U. S. flag, on the grounds that the star field looks unorderly, like maybe it was laid out with a shotgun.

But my non-censorious neighbor says this ragged-looking star pattern maybe represents confusion, and there is nothing wrong with having something on the flag to symbolize Washington.

Says, though, while changing the flag it would have been fitting to make the red stripes much wider, in honor of our glorious red ink complex.

* * *

I see where a couple of ladies are going to tell the Supreme Court about how contrary old Texas won't let them go to school with the A&M college boys.

My individualist neighbor says being as Togetherness is now our national theme, he expects the Court will give this discriminating state a good spanking, and maybe send in the Army.

Says he hopes when the people-equalizers get sexes, colors and intellects all homogenized, they will go to work to stop stores and banks from discriminating against folks on account of their credit rating.

* * *

My thinking neighbor admires the Army's system of marking its men with stripes, bars, etc., to show how important they are, and with little colored ribbons to show where they have been and what they have done.

Says civilians ought to take this up, on account of, say, if a man is real important he could let the world know with some little silver stars lots cheaper than with Cadillacs.

And a man could wear a grandfather ribbon with stars to show how many grandchildren he has, and save having to work the conversation around to get in this item every time he meets a stranger.

* * *

I see where a statistics hound says it adds about $570 to the cost of a house for construction workers to take morning coffee breaks.

Sounds like this news comes from some old fogey who thinks he is cheated if he pays for eight hours of a man's time, or eight cans of beans, and gets only seven.

Or maybe somebody is just trying to run down coffee, which after all most of it is a pretty vile-tasting fluid that wouldn't sell near as well if folks didn't draw wages while drinking it.

White Deer Takes Duo from Rockets

By Jo Ann Langford

Wellington Rockets and Rockettes met the White Deer Bucks, on the Skyrocket's home court, Saturday night, January 17, when White Deer took home both victories but not before they had to work for them. White Deer girls defeated the Rockettes 50-40, one of the closest games of the year. The boys game wasn't as close however, as the Bucks came from behind and beat the Rockets, 50-34.

WTSC FINE ARTS BUILDING

Outside structure of West Texas State College's new million dollar Fine Arts Building is nearing completion, and the building, which will house the art, music and speech departments, is expected to be ready for use when the fall semester opens in September 1959. The building will feature such equipment as a hydraulic lift for the orchestra pit in the auditorium, completely isolated hearing clinic, and air conditioning throughout the building.

Raburn Holds Record as House Speaker

When the 86th Congress convenes on January 7th, Sam Rayburn will take up the gavel he has wielded for a record-breaking 15 years as speaker of the House of Representatives.

The Texas Democrat has held the post almost twice as long as any other speaker. But two Republicans gave the speakership the power that has caused some experts to rank it as the second most important office in the nation.

Henry Clay was the first to turn the office to political advantage. The speaker was simply an impartial moderator before Clay's election in 1811. But, the "Great Compromiser" used the office to argue so forcefully for the War of 181 that it was called "Mr. Clay's War."

However, the speakership was transformed into a political tool almost as powerful as the presidency by Thomas Reed and "Uncle Joe" Cannon.

In 1890, Reed cracked down on the delaying tactics of minority groups by counting all members present as a quorum --- a number sufficient to conduct business ---- even if they did not vote.

The move earned Reed the nickname "Czar," but the Supreme Court later upheld the rule.

Reed's methods were only the starting point for Joseph Cannon, who ruled the House like a dictator in the early 1900's.

Once, after putting a question for a voice vote, "Uncle Joe" declared, "The ayes make the most noise but the nayes have it."

Even some members of Cannon's party rebelled. In 1910, on St. Patrick's Day, a coalition of Democrats and about 30 Republicans set out to strip Cannon of much of his power.

Because of the "St. Patrick's Day Revolution," Sam Rayburn has little of the formal authority which Reed and Cannon delegated to themselves.

He still has the important "speaker's eye," or the power of recognizing members who wish to speak on the floor.

But most of his strength comes from in informal source --- the party discipline he can maintain as leader of the majority party in the House.

For Attack, Disaster

TEXAS ALLOTTED 78 EMERGENCY HOSPITALS FOR CIVIL DFFENSE

Texas has been allotted 78 emergency hospitals to be stored by local civil defense officials and put to use in the event of enemy attack or widespread natural disaster.

Announcement of Texas' quota was made by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization and sent to the state's Division of Defense and Disaster Relief, a part of Governor Price Daniel's office.

Eventual goal, said Claude Yuan, operations officer in the state defense office, is to ring the major population centers with stored hospital units and spot them near target areas over the rest of the state. The quota is based on one hospital unit for each 70,000 people in a metropolitan target area.

At the present time hospitals are in storage or have been approved for storage in the cities of Fredericksburg, Springtown, Weatherford, Kemah, Mercedes, Brownsville, West Columbia, Alpine, El Campo, Floresville, Devine, and Stephensville, Texas. In addition hospitals have been applied for by the cities of Robstown, Nacogdoches, Keene, Longview, and Jefferson County.

Immediate goal, said Yuan, is to have at least 30 of the hospital placed by July, 1959.

Each packaged hospital contains equipment for wards with 200 beds, three operating rooms, a triage room, a pharmacy, X-ray room, clinical laboratory, sterilizing room and central supply room. It can all be set up within a matter of hours and has been done in practice sessions in 55 minutes.

Except for perishable supplies, which are checked and rotated, the boxes cannot be opened except with OCDM permission to be requested through the state office. However, the state has two units which are used for training sessions.

Total cost of a packaged hospital is $21,316.11, but there is no cost to the city receiving it except that of providing proper storage and care.

Civil defense officials in West Columbia (near Houston) have stored their hospital boxes in two large vans obtained from the Texas Surplus Property Agency. The vans are in the county barns where there are trucks which could take them immediately to wherever they might be needed. The local school has been designated as the probable site for setting up the hospital, and each box of hospital equipment has been color coded to show the room in the school to which it should be taken.

The hospital storage program has been in actual operation only about a year, said Yuan. There is no mandatory "assigning" system, he said. The units are sent upon request of responsible local officials who can show a need in that area and definite provisions for safekeeping at least 15 miles from the nearest target area. Despite the voluntary nature of the program, Yuan said he felt it was progressing well toward the desired scattering over the. state Both the state office and large target cities have been working to encourage smaller towns to obtain hospitals.

As yet, none of the stored hospitals has been opened nor has a request to open one been made. "It would take a really mammoth disaster to justify this," said Yuan. "one that would wipe out all regular hospital facilities for miles around. I can't really imagine its happening except in war."

SS Survivor Change Listed

Two of the most important recent changes in the social security law related to the families of workers who have become too disabled for further substantial gainful work, and to dependent parents of workers who have died.

The first of these concerns families of insured workers who are no longer able to do substantial gainful work. While monthly benefit payments to qualified disabled workers have been made beginning with July 1957, until now, no payments were possible to their families. Payments to them could not be made until the disabled breadwinner reached age 65 or died before that time.

Insurance protection in the form of monthly benefits is now provided the disabled person's children under 18 and any older child under a disability beginning before he became 18. Benefits are also payable to the disabled person's wife if she has in her care a child eligible for benefits or is age 62 or older.

Before the enactment of the 1958 amendments, an aged parent, however dependent, could never get benefit payments based on the earnings of a son or daughter if there was a surviving wife, dependent widower, or child who was entitled or who could later become entitled to payments. This restriction applied even in cases where those survivors never actually became beneficiaries. Under the law, as amended, the dependent parent can also be eligible for survivors' benefit payments.

Since an application must be filed before benefits can be paid, persons receiving disabiliay insurance benefits who have eligible dependents should contact the social security district office. Parents of deceased workers who were financially dependent on the deceased son or daughter should also contact the social security office. The district office serving this area is located at Amarillo, Texas.

Faubus Tells Weekly Editors of Inroads of Communists

Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas told newsmen last week that the Communists are now concentrating on infiltrating the colleges, the clergy, the newspapers radio and other information media and methods.

The occassion was the annual meeting of The National Editorial Association where Gov. Faubus held a press conference that was attended by some 470 editors representing every part of the United States.

Faubus declared that the Reds had switched their target to the intelligentsia after being mainly unsuccessful in organizing the poorer classes.

He said the Reds are now concentrating mainly on three segments of the American people in this order: (1) information media, (2) the clergy, and (3) educators.

Faubus submitted to a mass interview by publishers from 32 states who were there to attend a National Editorial Association and the Arkansas Press Association. Many of the publishers were from northern states.

Hotel Arlington's Fountain Room was jammed to the walls for the interview and hotel attendants had to open up doors to an adjoining room to accommodate the overflow.

Unlike many Faubus press conferences attended by out-of-state newsmen, this one lacked tension and biting questions. Obviously enjoying the experience, Faubus appeared as relaxed as television's Ferry Como.

Referring to the "bad press" given Faubus by some northern newspapers during the Central High School crisis, a New Yorker wanted to know if the governor had any reason to believe that any of the stories were Communist-inspired.

"I have no proof," replied Faubus. "However, in all honesty, I must say that I have reason to think that some parts of the press have been infiltrated by Communists. I believe some reporters may be so inclined without knowing it. The extent, however, is minor I think and I see nothing alarming about it at present."

Faubus said the Communits definitely had played a part in the Little Rock controversy.

He said the now-famous stroll past national guardsmen at Central High School by Negro students Elizabeth Eckford was a planned propaganda stunt "exploited to the fullest."

Faubus said Lee and Grace Lorch were known Communists, that they had been active in the Little Rock affair, that Mrs. Lorch had not shown up by accident to comfort the Eckford girl in the celebrated bus stop affair, and that, significantly, the Lorches have left Little Rock. He explained that the Communist method is to transfer their workers when they become too well known in a community.

Faubus was asked if Little Rock schools will ever be integrated. He replied that peaceful integration will never be accomplished until a majority of the people accept it.

"Every time you find an integrationist, in most cases he wants it for somebody else but not for himself," declared Faubus.

He said some Little Rock church leaders, who have favored school integration, will not accept Negroes in their congregations.

A Louisiana editor wanted to know how long Little Rock will need outside contributions to support its private school, Faubus replied that he doesn't believe such aid will be necessary next school year, that legislation is now being drawn, and that a constitutional amendment is being considered.

Wishcamper New President of AP Managing Editors

The Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Association named Ed Wishcamper president at the close of their annual meeting Sunday, January 18, in Corpus Christi.

Wishcamper, managing editor of the Abilene Reporter News, succeeds Felix R. McKnight, executive editor of the Dallas Times Herald, in that office.

Reared at Dozier, he is the son of A. F. Wischkaemper and the late Mrs. Wischkaemper. He graduated from Shamrock high school and received his degree from McMurry College, Abilene. While a college student, he began work as a reporter for the Reporter-News and has worked for no other newsapper.

Wishcamper appeared on the program before the AP managing editors to report on the work of the AP committee on freedom of information and also that of a joint committee of the APME, the Texas Press Association, Texas Daily Newspaper Association and Sigma Delta Chi. He heads both committees, which are working for legislation guaranteeing availability of public records and calling for public meetings of governmental agencies.

Owens Attends Phillips Sales Meeting Wed.

Amarillo — Steve Owens a Phillips 66 jobber, in Wellington Wednesday attended the larged closed circuit telecast sales meeting ever held in the petroleum industry.

He was one of approximately 20,000 Phillips sales people who watched their company's sales meeting on TV screens in auditoriums, theaters, and hotels located throughout Phillips 35-state marketing area. Shown simultaneously in 37 major cities extending from Spokane, Wash., to Miami, Fla., the meeting was the biggest in Phillips 66 history.

K. S. Adams, Phillips chairman, had commented that the Sales Department's theme of the program "The Best Year Of Our Lives" was well chosen, stating "Your continued emphasis on the best for Phillips customers—unequaled service plus top quality product, backed by research—will again pay off in 1959 and in the years ahead." To those present he cited the nation's increasing population and the growing number of automobiles traveling the country's spreading network of highways as adding up to a steadily increasing use of gasoline and oil and tires. Adams also referred to the new fields for petroleum which are opening up because of increasing mechanization of farms, use of more oil for power and fuel, and the rapidly expanding market for liquefied petroleum gas.

Those attending the meeting got face-to-face answers to their sales problems from Adams and other key Phillips executives including Paul Endacott, President; Stanley Learned, Chairman of the Executive Committee; W. W. Keeler, Executive Vice-President; R. W. Thomas, Vice-President of Research and Development; E. H. Lyon, Manager of the Sales Department; and George Lovey, General Sales Manager and George Glatfelter Senior Assistant General Sales Manager.

The program included an economic outlook for 1959 by William I. Spencer, Vice-President of the First National City Bank of New York and the announcement of expanded sales and service plans to help dealers, distributors, and salesmen better serve the driving public.

The telecast originated at Bartlesville, Okla., the company's headquarters, with President Paul Endacott serving informally as moderator and coordinator for the program. Sales planning and promotion for 1959 were the chief topics discussed. Jonathon Winters, nationally known TV personality, was featured in several sales promotion skits. Prior to the telecast portion, sales division personnel conducted sessions at each of the meetings.

Lory and Glatfelter speaking for Phillips sales management, stressed the four basic supports on which Phillips sales program is based: good product, advertising and sales promotion, service, and careful management. They told the audience "No three of these sales 'legs' will stand the buffeting of today's competitive market without the other."

McIlhany Says Taxes of Top Consideration

Representative Grainger McIlhany, before leaving for Austin for the opening of the 56th Legislature, outlined some of the problems facing lawmakers at this session.

Uppermost in his mind was the problem of how to raise new or additional taxes ranging upwards of $200 million to run the state for the next two years.

Although he is a veteran of 10 years experience, Rep. McIlhany pointed out that he will share with the newest members the unusual experience of starting business with a $35 million deficit in the general revenue fund. This is in sharp contrast to the opening of the session in 1957, when the state's general revenue fund had an anticipated surplus of $50 million.

McIlhany said he had an open mind in searching for sources of new or additional taxes but that he was opposed to a general sales tax or a selective sales tax if there are any other possible sources.

He said he also was of the opinion that oil and gas and associated industries are paving their share of the state tax bill.

He pointed out that the proposed state budget envisions the spending of almost $29 million more from the general revenue fund than is presently being spent — which would push the giant tax needs well above the $200 million mark.

"One thing is certain," McIlhany said, "there is going to be strong opposition regardless of where or how we raise this tax money. I am going to study this tax picture with a magnifying glass before I make up my mind for sure where it should come from.

BOYS RANCH DORMITORY

Pictured above is an architect's sketch of the cottage-type dormitory to be built at Cal Farley's famous Boys Ranch near Amarillo, as the 1959 project of the United Peace Officers of America. The national organization was created in 1955 to assist in the building program at the Ranch.

Boys Ranch Dorm Aim of Peace Officers

Construction of a cottage-type dormitory at Cal Farley's famous Boys Ranch near Amarillo, Texas is the 1959 project for the United Peace Officers of America, according to Sheriff Day Thompson of Vega, president of the national association.

The project was approved this week at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization. The new dormitory will be designed especially for boys in the four to eight year age bracket, Thompson said.

In the new building, eight of these smaller youngsters will live with a man and his wife. The housemother will prepare all meals and the entire surroundings will be as nearly like a real home as possible, and there will always be a houseparent on hand to look after the little fellows.

At the present time, 17 boys below 8 years of age are living in the Old Tascosa courthouse, and it has long been the aim of Ranch founder Cal Farley to be able to provide a more homelike atmosphere for them. Most of the small boys came to the Ranch along with older brothers so that the brothers would not have to be separated and also in many cases, to remove the little fellows from unwholesome environments, Sheriff Thompson explained.

In 1955, the United Peace Officers of America was organized to assist Boys Ranch in a building program. The first project was the Boys Ranch Independent School.
