At least one City Council member thinks concrete paving is the answer to deterioration woes on Wadley Avenue. It's a proposal that the Public Works Department is just beginning to study.

Pope defends stance on Holocaust

- Weather mars Texas preparations — 2A
- Related stories and photos — 2A, 5A

MIAMI (AP) — Pope John Paul II, in a long-awaited meeting with Jewish leaders, today defended his predecessor popes against accusations that they were silent about the Holocaust, and proclaimed that such horrors must happen "never again."

The pope said Jews have a right to a homeland "as does any civil nation." But that right "also applies to the Palestinian people, so many of whom remain homeless and refugees."

The pope made his remarks after a tour of a traveling exhibit of Judaica from the Vatican collection.

Rabbi Mordecai Waxman, former head of the Synagogue Council of America, stressed in his remarks that difference remained.

"However, this opportunity for us to express the pain and anger of the Jewish community in face-to-face meetings and for you and leaders of your church to listen with respect and openness, represents an important confirmation of the progress our communities have made in recent decades," Waxman said.

The meeting, on the first full day of John Paul's nine-city tour of thr United States, had nearly been canceled after the pontiff's meeting in June with Austrian President Kurt Waldheim, who has been accused of complicity with Nazi war crimes against Jews and partisans in the Balkans. Waldheim has denied the allegations.

Following a Mass in Tamiami Park, the pope was head for Columbia, S.C., for a meeting with 27 Protestant leaders and then on to New Orleans.

He received a rousing welcome to South Florida on Thursday, with an airport greeting by President Reagan and a public motorcade that followed the Orange Bowl Parade route. If the crowds were smaller than had been expected — and they were — the promised protests were microscopic.

"I come as a friend — a friend of America and of all Americans: Catholics, Orthodox, Protestants and Jews, people of every religion, and all men and women of good will," the pope said at his arrival.

In his speech today, the pope dealt head on with accusations that the church did little to stop the Nazis from murdering 6 million Jews.

The popes' efforts were "strong, unequivocal," he said. Pope Pius XI, who reigned from 1922 to 1939, said the swastika was "an enemy of the Cross of Christ," and history will show "how hard and effectively" he worked to assist Jews during World War II, John Paul said.

The pope used the word "Shoah"— the Hebrew word for the Holocaust — and said the suffering of the Jewish people strengthens the church's "common bond with the Jewish people and with their treasure of spiritual riches in the past and in the present."

The pope did not refer to Waldheim today, but on the flight to Miami Thursday he had insisted that the meeting with the former secretary-general of the United Nations was not a mistake.

Suspects questioned in robbery-slaying

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Three persons have been questioned and are suspected of the brutal robbery-slaying of a 41-year-old convenience store clerk a week ago, Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said this morning.

The suspects, a 24-year-old man, and a man and a woman in their thirties, were questioned by investigators after Midland Crime Stoppers received "information" about the killing early this week, Painter said.

The suspects have not been charged, and the sheriff declined to predict whether capital murder charges will be filed in the case.

Sheriff Gary Painter described the information as "pretty good" this morning, but added that lawmen have found no physical evidence linking the suspects with the crime.

"I would say the information that we've got is substantial," Painter said. "We have a feeling of confidence, but as far as actually being able to tie it down now, no.

"I do believe more information will be forthcoming, because it was such a brutal murder."

Verna Peace was killed just after 11 p.m. Sept 4 at the Town and Country Food Store on U.S. Highway 80 near the entrance to the Airline Mobile Home Park.

She was shot three times, including once in the back, according to investigators. Less than $200 was taken from the store's cash register, reports of the crime said.

Bullock planning bid for lieutenant governor

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock, who has spent several unpopular years spreading news of the state's economic crisis, said Thursday he will run for lieutenant governor in 1990.

"All visitors are welcome," was all Bullock said in two brief paragraphs announcing his candidacy. The comptroller then headed out to hunt birds and could not be reached for comment.

Railroad Commissioner John Sharp said Thursday he wants to make the race to succeed Bullock. But Sharp, who won election just last year, said he still has work to do at the commission and does not want to get into a three-year contest now.

"It would be premature for me to announce at this time, no matter how likely it is that I'll do it," said Sharp, who said he's eyed the comptroller's job for eight years. Within two hours of Bullock's announcement, Sharp said at least 50 people called him to ask if he would run for comptroller.

Bullock, a Democrat who aborted a 1986 campaign for governor, becomes the first announced candidate for the spot being vacated by Bill Hobby.

Hobby, who has presided over the Senate since 1973, has said he will not seek re-election so he can devote his time to solving the state's economic problems.

A possible opponent to Bullock is State Treasurer Ann Richards, who has said she is considering running for lieutenant governor, or possibly governor, but has not yet made a formal announcement. A handful of state senators have indicated an interest in the post.

Bullock, 58, has been Texas' chief tax collector and official estimator of state revenues since 1975. He served as secretary of state in the early 1970s and as a member of the House of Representatives from 1957 to 1960.

Bobby Gene DeLap kneels before the grave of Ollie, a Boston terrier who died this year. Ms. DeLap bought Peaceful Gardens Pet Cemetery three years ago because she was concerned about its unkempt condition.

Place of rest caters to pets

"My little baby fighter. I love you so much and miss you terribly. You brought me so much love and joy. I know you are smelling over the green grasses of heaven now, and I'm going to find you there my little fellow."
— From the headstone of "Rebel" Johnson, 1971-1984.

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Bobby Gene DeLap said dogs go to heaven. So do cats and parakeets. Even a boa constrictor is eligible to slither past the pearly gates.

She should know. Ms. DeLap oversees — here on Earth anyway — a pet cemetery.

It all started when her Boston terrier, Molly, died in 1984, she said Thursday.

That's three years ago to Ms. DeLap, but 21 years to the average Fido.

When Ms. DeLap drove onto the grounds at Peaceful Gardens Pet Cemetery about 2 miles north of the city limits to inquire about a funeral for Molly, she instantly "became upset at the conditions of the cemetery," she said.

The man who ran Peaceful Gardens "wasn't taking good care of it. So I bought it," said the 61-year-old Ms. DeLap. "The weeds were knee-high on Wayne even."

Wayne Stratton, 22, lives at Peaceful Gardens. He is neither a dog nor dead. He is the manager.

Stratton has never seen a dog or a cat ghost, he said, but admitted almost shooting a paper boy as he rode up the drive one dark night.

"People had paid good money to have their pets buried there" Ms. DeLap continued, adding her belief that "it just wasn't right" to have them resting in such unkempt conditions.

About 3,000 animals have been buried at Peaceful Gardens since it opened in 1955, she estimated.

The majority of resters are dogs and cats, but the spirits of three parakeets and a boa constrictor call it home, too.

Headstones cast of bronze, cement or a red or blue plastic-looking material regimentally dot the grounds.

Miniature Virgin Mary or monk-like icons — smaller that what one might expect on a human grave — accentuate some of the plots and lend an air reminiscent of Resthaven, the human cemetery a mile south of Peaceful Gardens on State Highway 349.

Names on the headstones vary, but a sample survey found "Prissy" and "Prissie" to be very common pet appellations. "Snoopy" was popular also, but Stratton said pet names come in trends just like peoples' names do.

"Turbo" and "Misty" are hip, 1980s names, while "Fifi" was popular in the post-Kennedy era, he said.

A dog named "Coors" is found resting just a few spots down from "Frigga." The next row — perhaps to the delight of Texas A&M University alumnae — contains the final home of "U.T."

"Fuzzy Wuzzy" sleeps in eternal peace near "Rhett" and "Mai Mai Ling."

Just who pays upwards of $85-$200 to have their pet buried so elegantly? Most often, it is someone who treated their animal like a part of the family instead of merely a lower life form, Ms. DeLap explained.

Technically there are no funeral services, but Ms. DeLap said she will "say a few words" if the family requests it. "If it was their only animal, I'll tell them — maybe not now — but that they should probably get another one.

"It won't take the place of their pet, but it will fill the void," she said.

Iran, Iraq exchange bombs as U.N. peace mission begins

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq and Iran said they attacked shipping in the Persian Gulf and bombarded each other's factories, as U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar set out for a weeklong peace mission in the region.

The fighting Thursday raised questions about whether the warring countries would observe a cease-fire during the peace mission, as Perez de Cuellar had demanded.

Several senior U.N. diplomats expressed doubt the trip would succeed in halting the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. But Perez de Cuellar, leaving New York Thursday, told reporters he was hopeful and had "plenty of ideas, plenty of suggestions for both parties." He is due in Tehran tonight after an overnight stop in Paris.

Baghdad has vowed to continue its raids until Iran complies with the cease-fire resolution the U.N. Security Council passed July 20. Iran has responded ambiguously to the measure.

For six weeks after the resolution's passage, an informal truce was observed in the gulf "tanker war" on commercial shipping. Attacks resumed two weeks ago.

Iraqi warplanes raided an unidentified vessel Thursday night in a tanker holding area east of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal, the official Iraqi News Agency said. There was no independent confirmation of the report.

Earlier in the day, speedboat-borne Iranian commandos attacked the Cypriot-flag supertanker Haven with rocket-propelled grenades, causing damage but no casualties, gulf-based salvage executives said.

Throughout the day Thursday, "large formations" of Iraqi warplanes launched "destructive raids" on factories, power plants and communications centers deep inside Iranian territory, the Iraqi agency said, quoting a war communique.

Iran's news agency confirmed that Iraqi jets bombed several of its industrial centers, and said several civilians were killed or wounded.

Official Tehran radio said Iranian Revolutionary Guards shelled the southern Iraqi port city of Basra, causing "heavy damage." Industrial targets were also bombarded and set afire in three nearby Iraqi cities, and military installations in Iraq's southern port of Umm Qasr were shelled, it said.

Texans in Congress fighting for border economic projects, initiatives

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Texans in Congress are pushing for a variety of federal projects and initiatives to help economically distressed communities on the U.S.-Mexico border.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and four Texas members of the House of Representatives, Thursday urged a Senate Appropriations subcommittee to approve $54.2 million to build and repair bridges and stations to accomodate the border patrol, customs and other federal activities.

And Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said he would introduce next week legislation aimed at cleaning up what he called "a tide of pollution that is infecting the Rio Grande."

Senate hearings last August revealed that border station facilities need to be replaced, repaired or renovated, said Bentsen.

Bentsen was joined by Democratic Reps. Ron Coleman of El Paso, Albert Bustamante of San Antonio, E. (Kika) de la Garza of McAllen and Solomon Ortiz of Corpus Christi in writing a letter to the chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service and General Government asking for a major improvement of the border stations.

The Texans recommended these construction projects to Chairman Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.,:

— El Paso: replace the Paso del Norte-Santa Fe Bridge border inspection facility; construct a new border station at Ysleta-Zaragosa and expand the Bridge of the Americas, $9 million.

— Del Rio: expand and improve the border station with a longterm goal of complete reconstruction, $14.3 million.

— Eagle Pass: repair and alter the border station, for $480,000.

— Laredo: replace the Juarez-Lincoln Bridge facility and upgrade the Convent Street Bridge facility, $10.5 million.

— Falcon Dam: replace the border station, $480,000.

— Rio Grande City: improve the border station, $800,000.

— McAllen: extensive safety and efficiency modifications to the border station; replace Los Ebanos ferry crossing with a bridge and new border station, $8.2 million.

— Brownsville: expand and improve inspection facilities at Gateway Bridge, replace the border station at the Brownsville-Matamoros Bridge and construct a river border crossing at Los Indios, $12.8 million.

Reagan says U.S. ready for new arms accord with Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the United States stands ready to reach another sweeping arms accord with the Soviet Union, one that would slash the superpower arsenals of long-range strategic weapons in half.

The president's spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, bolstered Reagan's assessment, saying a strategic missile pact could be reached by the end of next year.

Reagan on Thursday also said a pact to eliminate medium-range nuclear missiles now depends on "Soviet willingness to get down to...hard work."

The president's upbeat comments on the status of the superpower arms control talks followed his nearly hour-long meeting with Pope John Paul II at a lavish villa in Miami. Reagan and his wife, Nancy, traveled to Florida to greet the pontiff at the outset of the pope's coast-to-coast U.S. pilgrimage.

Noting that the two men had discussed prospects for improved U.S.-Soviet relations, Reagan said he told the pope: "The United States is unshakeably committed to the establishment of an enduring world peace and to the expansion of human freedom around the globe. Indeed, without freedom there can be no peace."

On arms control, Reagan said, "His Holiness and I discussed the nearness of an agreement that would eliminate all American and Soviet INF (intermediate nuclear force) missiles.... Of course, all this depends upon Soviet willingness to get down to the hard work of completing an agreement."

The president said the United States also stands ready "for another historic agreement — one that would reduce strategic arms on both sides by half."

On Wednesday, the president told reporters at a state dinner in Washington that he believed "there are grounds for great optimism" for an INF accord. The president also said that while several issues remain unresolved, he believes a November summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev is possible.

Fitzwater, who accompanied the president on his journey aboard Air Force One, cautioned reporters Thursday about expecting a summit date to be fixed during next week's visit to Washington by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Fitzwater confirmed that Reagan plans to meet at the White House with Shevardnadze prior to the Soviet minister's talks with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

"November has always been the general timetable we have always looked at, ...so that is the most likely time," Fitzwater said. "But we have not had any indication of any specific date from them.... It's presumptuous to expect an announcement" next week.

However, the spokesman added when pressed further about a possible November summit, "We think it's the best time and the most likely time, assuming the kind of progress we are now seeing."

The spokesman voiced optimism that if agreement on eliminating medium-range weapons is reached, progress on the tougher issue of long-range, strategic (START) weapons could be made.

"START is the next step after INF," Fitzwater said, adding that the administration has "done a lot of thinking" about the issue.

"If we can wrap up an INF agreement this fall, conclude a summit by the end of this year, there's a very good possibility of getting a START agreement by the end of next year," the spokesman said.

But Fitzwater cautioned that such an accord is not just around the corner. "It presumes a lot of things. If we had a year to work on it, we're close enough we think substantial, real progress can be made."

Raging wind topples Mass-site scaffolding

Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — A raging wind Thursday evening smashed the twin 12-story decorative towers of the West Bexar County papal altar, sending them crashing to the ground minutes after workers scrambled to safety.

The 150-foot scaffolding towers tumbled backwards one at a time away from the altar platform shortly after 6 p.m., causing an estimated $100,000 in damage.

No one was reported injured.

The Mass by Pope John Paul II, however, will go on as scheduled at the site Sunday, but the towers will not be rebuilt, Richard J. Hemberger, state media coordinator for the visit, told reporters at the scene. "The towers will not go back up. No way."

Workers fled from the area when a volunteer firefighter who heard radio reports of the fast-approaching storm warned them with his bullhorn, Sheriff Harlon Copeland said. Minutes later, the towers came crashing down in winds estimated at between 70 and 80 mph.

"They just bent from the force of the wind," said Becky Sweetland, 28, who lives a half-mile from the site. "You could see the towers shake and they started moving."

Like a toppled toy set, the altar was a twisted pile of orange scaffolding with the pieces of about a dozen of the 16 smaller towers representing each of Texas' dioceses scattered about.

Colorful banners with roses and other symbols of peace on them lay strewn around the site, with some draped over mounds of the crumpled metal.

Jim Smith, assistant site manager, said about 60 workers had labored throughout the afternoon to put up banners and other finishing touches. He said he was clearing workers with his back to the altar, when he heard "a loud crack."

He said he turned to face the altar and saw the right tower falling. Two to three seconds later, the left tower fell. Crew bosses accounted for all 60 crew members.

Smith said the towers had been built to sustain winds of up to 41 mph — even with the banners.

The towers "did meet specifications. This was just one of those freak winds that came out of nowhere...and down they went," Hemberger said.

Hemberger said the altar platform itself is about 90 percent salvageable, and workers were laboring throughout the night to repair the damage so the Mass could go on as scheduled Sunday, he said.

"All the people working on this have been instructed to bring in whoever they need to get this thing fixed," he said.

Religious students look forward to meeting

AUSTIN (AP) — For Sister Maria Sanchez, a novitiate in the religious order of the Missionary Catechists of Divine Providence, the prospect of seeing Pope John Paul II when he addresses men and women in religious life is awesome.

But that doesn't mean she agrees with all his views on Catholicism.

"It affirms his acknowledgement of us, the future leaders of the church," said the native of the Rio Grande Valley town of San Juan. "He is also acknowledging us as a Hispanic people and acknowledges the tensions that are there" between the Vatican and the church in America.

"He is the leader of 800 million people. And his witness to the world does make a difference not only in the church but in the political realm, too. He sets a way of living our values, of living a way of life," she said.

Bertha Domingues of Del Rio, a resident affiliate prenovitiate, said the pope's address to the religious people will be a show of support for a life that often is difficult and filled with sacrifice.

John Paul will speak to a group of those studying for religious vocations Sunday afternoon at San Fernando Cathedral.

Sister Marta Luisa Salazar, also of Del Rio and at 22 the youngest novitiate, said she feels honored at the possibility of talking to the pontiff or touching him.

Joe Aviles, a seminarian at Assumption Seminary from Uvalde, sees the pontiff's message of unity in work service as a challenge to unite Catholics.

"We as leaders have to play the role of unifiers just as he does now," Aviles said. "So will I have to do as a parish priest, whether it is on a large or small scale."

"The reality of the American church is its pluralism because of the society itself," said Richard Bulkowski, a man of Polish descent who grew up in Grand Rapids, Mich. "The church needs to deal with that."

Controversial issues that will affect the lives of seminarians and novitiates are the ordination of women as priests and whether priests will someday be allowed to marry.

"Marriage is a vocation, too," said seminarian Bill Hudson of Lansing, Mich.

SUSPECTS

One of the suspects — who Painter declined to name — was released from state prison in May after serving three years on a burglary conviction, according to Texas Department of Corrections records.

That suspect "isn't saying anything," Painter said.

All of the suspects are Midland County residents, he said.

Town and Country Food Stores has offered a $10,000 reward for information that leads to the conviction of Ms. Peace's killer.

A man who lawmen believe was in the store minutes before she was shot, and who owns a .38 caliber handgun, is no longer considered a suspect, Painter said.

However, because the murder weapon was a .38-caliber or nine-millimeter handgun, ballistics tests still may be performed on the man's gun, Painter said.

Despite the progress investigators have made, "it is going to be a hard case to put together," said the sheriff. "We are being painstakingly slow to make sure everything in the investigation is done right."

POPE

"It was necessary. It's necessary to show the same appreciation, the same esteem, for every people. He comes as a president, democratically elected, of a people, of a nation," the pope said.

About a dozen protesters were outside the Metro-Dade Cultural Center, including six in concentration camp garb with yellow Stars of David sewn on.

"We are insisting the Vatican recognize the state of israel," said New York Rabbi Avi Weiss, chairman of the Coalition of Concern.

The Jews had threatened to boycott John Paul's visit because of Waldheim, but after a meeting at the pope's summer residence at Castel Gandolfo on Sept. 1, Jewish leaders said enough progress had been made to allow them to open the way for their attendance at the Miami gathering.

Waxman today called upon the church to expand its efforts against anti-Semitism. It should always be noted, Waxman said, that the prime victims of the Nazis were Jews.

He also urged that the Vatican extend diplomatic recognition to Israel, a step that the Holy See has refused to take, citing disputes over Israeli borders and questions about the status of Jerusalem.

"Such a step would be a positive and constructive contribution by the Vatican to the peace process, and it would send a strong signal to the international community that the Holy See recognizes Israel as a permanent and legitimate member of the family of nations," Waxman said.

At a dinner meeting of 500 Jewish leaders Thursday night, Cardinal Johannes Willebrands, the president of the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity, brought a message of reconciliation.

The Dutch prelate did not mention the Waldheim controversy directly, but said "we should forgive each other when there are ... faux pas."

He promised the church will begin discussions in December of the Holocaust and would eventually create a Catholic document on Jewry.

John Paul's first day on his U.S. tour included two meetings with Reagan — the first on the airport tarmac, the second at Vizcaya, a Renaissance-style villa.

PETS

"I usually just give them time alone with their animals, and I'd imagine I'd cry along with them. I'm real soft-hearted, and I love animals. I hate to see people who love them lose them."

"We did have one couple who wanted to be buried next to their animal," Ms. DeLap admitted, but she told them, "No."

There are those who continuously bring flowers to the grave and then again, there are those like the former owner of Faubaucher, a kitten.

Not only did a man of the cloth assist when Faubacher was laid to rest, but the kitty's former owner travels to Peaceful Gardens daily to pay respect to his feline friend.

When the owner had knee surgery and was unable to walk for a spell, he drove to the cemetery, sat in his car and gazed at Faubaucher's grave from afar.

The animals' coffins come in a variety of sizes and are made of a material called "high-impact styrene." The coffins range from the deluxe styles — complete with blue or pink satin linings — to the plain and unlined almond-colored variety.

Cremation is no longer done at Peaceful Gardens "because it got too messy," Ms. DeLap said.

She will usually go and pick up the animal from the veterinarian's office and take it to Peaceful Gardens for burial preparation.

They try to get the animals buried "as soon as possible" because they are not embalmed, she said.

Prices for funerals go by the weight of the animals. "It would be a Great Dane or an Old English Sheep Dog that would run $200," she said.

A reunion of mourners of sorts will be held this weekend at Peaceful Gardens.

In observance of "National Pet Memorial Day" Sunday, the cemetery is having an open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., replete with refreshments.

"It is in tribute to all of our beloved companions that have meant so much to us all," Ms. DeLap said.

She has five Boston terriers — including Molly, 1984 — buried at Peaceful Gardens. There is her "old girl," Angel, 1985; as well as Val, 1979; Cupid, 1980; and Ollie, 1987.

Ms. DeLap, who is divorced and has no children "but my dogs," has been raising the terriers since 1979, she said. The Fort Worth native moved to Midland in January 1949 and worked as a senior draftsman and geophysical technician until 1984, when her company, Aminoil, was bought out by Phillips Petroleum Co.

Ms. DeLap will own Peaceful Gardens "until I drop dead." At that time, the cemetery will wind up in the hands of Stratton, his mother and stepfather, she said.

The 3,000 or so plots that cover the 3.75 acres leave room for an estimated 4,000 more animals, Ms. DeLap said.

"I'll be long planted before this place ever is."

BORDER

Gramm said his bill would authorize the secretary of state to negotiate with the Mexican Ministry of Foreign Relations a set of agreements to include a longterm, comprehensive examination of the river's water quality and the joint creation of water treatment facilities.

In addition, Gramm said, the legislation would empower the International Boundary Water Commission to supervise the planning, construction, operation and maintenance of water treatment plants. And it would authorize funding for the U.S. share of the cost of cleaning up the river.

The senator said he has had reports of dangerous bacterial pollution in stretches of the Rio Grande.

"The Rio Grande is not merely a border betrween Texas and Mexico; it is the major natural resource that allows cities such as El Paso, Del Rio, Eagle Pass, Laredo, McAllen and Brownsville to exist," Gramm said.

It is estimated that 12-15 billion tons of raw sewage are dumped into the river each year before it reaches the Gulf of Mexico. "While there has never been a comprehensive study of Rio Grande water, a broad range of individual tests conducted on river water show alarmingly high fecal bacteria counts, particularly in the lower reaches of the river," Gramm said.

The worst pollution is found south of Laredo-Nuevo Laredo, where levels of bacteria sometimes exceed accepted safety margins by several thousand prcent because Nuevo Laredo has no treatment facilities, Gramm said.

"He's done a good job as comptroller and he thinks he can do a better job as a lieutenant governor," said Tony Proffitt, a spokesman for Bullock.

Proffitt said Bullock has "unofficially" been a gubernatorial candidate a couple of times. The day Mark White won election in 1982, Bullock announced his candidacy for the 1986 governor's race. Two years later, he pulled out of the campaign, saying "there has been no great public clamor for my services as governor."

Born in Hillsboro, Bullock received his undergraduate degree from Texas Tech University and a law degree from Baylor University School of Law. He practiced law in the 1950s before becoming assistant attorney general in 1957 and a governor's aid in 1959.

Woman enjoys well-knit community centered around shop

By JOHN FOOKS

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — One of Juanita Lanier's neighbors found three hungry puppies discarded in a small paper sack by uncaring owners one morning six years ago.

One of the puppies, later named Prince, found its way into Mrs. Lanier's home and today weighs 85 pounds. Its sidekick, Shay, a white poodle of the same age who arrived at about the same time as a gift to Mrs. Lanier, weighs 4 pounds.

Mrs. Lanier, 92, who never had previously owned a dog, enjoys the pets, which help protect her 45-year-old knitting and yarn shop.

Old friends and customers still visit the tiny Lanier Yarn and Hooked Rug Shop, which faces the Highland Park Baptist Church, where Mrs. Lanier has attended for 55 years.

They come, as they always have, to buy knitting needles, buttons or thread — or to glance through any of the dozens of knitting and crocheting magazines Mrs. Lanier keeps on hand, some of which are collectors' items dating back 40 years or more.

But mostly they come for the congenial atmosphere and small talk that has always been the hallmark of the little shop. Like men talking around the cracker barrel, the women sit around a coffee table in straight-back chairs or on the old, stuffed sofa, and spin yarns as succinctly as their hooked needles work the wool in their laps into artful crochet pieces.

"For years and years, this was the only shop of its kind," said Dorothy Dixon, one of Mrs. Lanier's two daughters. "Women would come in droves, and mother would teach them how to knit or crochet."

Ms. Dixon said her mother started the business with no money, no experience and no knowledge of how to knit or crochet.

"All she had is a lot of guts," she said. "A store downtown closed out its knitting and wool thread department and made mother a good deal on the merchandise, and that was it.

"She learned the business from the ground up, learned how to knit and crochet, built up a good clientele and she's been here ever since."

Right after she went into business, Mrs. Lanier joined the Business and Professional Women's Club in Texarkana, Ark., and still is a member today, as is Ms. Dixon. The two attend the bimonthly meetings together.

"Her hearing's not as good as it used to be, and she doesn't like to talk very much anymore, but she's still as active as ever," Ms. Dixon said.

Woman writes westerns under male pen name

By SHERRI MOORE

Mrs. Wetherbee attributes the success of her books and all western novels to the fact that "men want to be entertained just as women do," she said.

EAST MOUNTAIN, Texas (AP) — An editor at a publishing company told a budding East Texas writer, "nobody would buy a western novel written by a woman."

After all, the most famous names in western action fiction are Zane Gray and Louis L'Amour.

So Earlene Adkins Wetherbee, writing in this community of 800 north of Longview, became Erle Adkins, writing for Zebra Books-Kensington Publishing Corp.

To date, Earle Adkins has published four western novels. One more is due out in November and two more are on the drawing board.

"Three Days to Tucson" was her first release in 1980. The book's sequel, "Dayton's Revenge" was published earlier this year. Her most recent books are "Pecos Blood" and "Revenge in Laredo." "Blue Maze" will be available in November. "Cry of the Ghosts" and "Purple Sage" are still in the works, she said.

Mrs. Wetherbee describes her novels as "suspenseful with an element of whodunit."

She drafts her books in longhand before turning them into a typewritten, ready-for-mail manuscript. "I can get more writing done sitting in front of the television and writing in long-hand than I can staring at the typewriter," she said.

Once she moves to her typewriter, Mrs. Wetherbee says she adds the meat to her books. "I put in the shootouts, the violence and more specific dialogue."

Zebra Books limits their writers to about 60,000 words for paperbacks. Mrs. Wetherbee says her books range from 55,000 to 60,000. She says she tries to use good grammar but editors spruce up the rough spots. "The only thing they can't change is the spoken word. You may want your character to be the type of person who says 'ain't'. So they don't change that," she said.

Mrs. Wetherbee began writing seriously more than eight years ago. Her first effort was a romance novel which she submitted to Harlequin and Silhouette under her own name. The book, about a modern-day female who meets Mr. Male Chauvinist, was rejected by the two leading publishers in the romance industry.

"The editors commented that it had a good storyline, well-developed characters but not enough sex," she said. "One girl wrote, 'We want sex in the second chapter.' "

Feeling that she couldn't give the romance industry the kind of novel it wanted, she turned to her first love — westerns. "Growing up in the era that I did — with heros like Hop-A-Long Cassidy, Roy Rogers and Gene Autry — I decided to do the westerns. They were easier," she said. "It's easier to blow off a man's head with a hot .45 (caliber pistol) than to end with a hot love scene."

She recalls her first effort in 1980.

"I remember I submitted the manuscript to Zebra and waited. In a couple of months, I received a registered letter and I will always remember what it said. It said 'Dear Earlene, I am considering buying your manuscript. Call me at your earliest convenience.' It was signed Louise Applebaum."

"If I wouldn't have had these braces on my legs, my knees would have shook," she recalled. She has worn braces since she was 5 years old and injured her back in a fall from a porch swing. She walks with crutches. Her handicap doesn't limit her, she said — she works 10-hour shifts as an assembly lineman at a Longview manufacturing plant.

"Three days to Tucson" introduces the world to Drew Williams. An army scout, Williams is entrusted with the welfare of a senator's daughter threatened by three desperados who want to kidnap her. Williams has three days to get the not-always cooperative female safely to her father in Tucson.

Mrs. Wetherbee was paid $500 for her first effort and seven years later, after prompting from her publisher, she wrote the sequel. Her second novel earned her $1,000.

"Dayton's Revenge" reacquaints readers with Caleb Dayton, the murderer of his pregnant wife, Melissa, the senator's daughter Williams protected in the first novel. Taking the law into his own hands, Williams hits the vengeance trail into the hot Arizona wastelands in search of the desperado.

"Pecos Blood," which hit the bookstores in June, tells the story of Joe Howard — a character created in honor of her husband, Howard Joseph Wetherbee.

"Pecos Blood" is a classic tale of misidentification. Howard rides into Pecos for the night and is mistaken for an outlaw accused of raping the daughter of a circuit court judge. Howard, faced with a hangman's noose, sets out to find his look-a-like and bring him to justice. Naturally, complications continue to arise.

Mrs. Wetherbee attributes the success of her books and all western novels to the fact that "men want to be entertained just as women do," she said. "It's just a different kind of entertainment."

Mrs. Wetherbee recalled an autograph session at a Longview bookstore where a customer approached her display with an Erle Adkins book in hand.

"He walked up to my husband and started talking to him as if he was Erle Adkins. Finally my husband told him if he wanted to talk to the author, he needed to talk to me. The man looked at me and put the book down. I asked him what was wrong and he said he couldn't buy that book because a woman wrote it. I told him the book had everything he was looking for and if he bought the book and didn't like it, he could send it back to me. I gave him my address and told him I would personally give him his money back. To this day I haven't heard from him."

Alleged document falsification ring broken; Eight charged

STATE

HARLINGEN (AP) — Newly arrived undocumented aliens allegedly were able to buy falsified documents from a South Texas business showing they had lived in this country long enough to be eligible for amnesty under the new immigration law, officials say.

Eight people have been charged with falsifying documents, visa fraud and inducing aliens to enter the country illegally, including 54-year-old Ernesto Castaneda of McAllen, believed to be the leader, authorities said.

Castaneda remained in the Cameron County Jail late Thursday in lieu of $100,000 bond, while two of the people charged had not yet been arrested, officials said.

"If you just crossed the river yesterday and went into his office, he would sell you these documents," said Roy Sutton, supervisory special agent with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service's Harlingen District.

INS agents seized a notary seal, duplicating and laminating equipment, typewriters, records and allegedly falsified documents from offices in McAllen and Brownsville, Sutton said Thursday.

Forty customers were waiting when agents made arrests at the McAllen office, he said.

"You're talking about thousands of dollars," Sutton said.

The organization — operating as Immigration and Nationality Assistance Inc., among other names — also had an office in Pharr and a location in at least one other undisclosed Texas city, he said.

The INS allegedly discovered in an investigation involving informants, undercover agents and surveillance that the suspects allegedly sold for various prices a "complete package" of documents for gaining amnesty.

"They wanted $850 from us to take one of our people all the way through the process," Sutton said.

In addition to the packages, the group allegedly sold letters for $100-$125 stating that the individuals had lived in the United States since 1981. The documents were used to travel north or to get work in South Texas, Sutton said.

Allegedly false documents included letters from purported landlords and employers.

INS Special Agent Philip Tutak said investigators believe some farmers, ranchers, business owners and property owners were paid to participate in the scheme.

Tutak said the investigation showed several unrelated applicants to have worked for a particular employer "pruning and harvesting" on the exact same dates.

"At one little residence, we must have had 500 people living there," Sutton added.

The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 offers temporary legal residency to aliens who can prove they have lived in the United States since Jan. 1, 1982.

A one-year amnesty period began in May, while an 18-month amnesty period began in June for certain aliens able to prove they worked in agriculture in this country before May 1986.

Another man was charged with harboring illegal aliens in connection with the organization.

In another case, a Pharr couple were arrested Thursday on charges including allegedly coaching aliens to make false statements in amnesty applications and selling invalid work authorization letters.

Charges against Joe Vera Jr. and Gloria Vera are: visa fraud, making false claims and statements, aiding and abetting aliens to obtain immigrant visas illegally, procuring immigrant visas with false claims and statements and withholding information from the INS.

Joe Vera Jr. also was charged with inducing aliens to enter the country illegally.

The Joe Vera Jr. Amnesty Center in Pharr is a "qualified designated entity" that was authorized to assist aliens in applying for amnesty until its credentials were suspended Aug. 13.

Parents of foreign students fight public schools, draw in ACLU

ARLINGTON (AP) — Foreign college students fighting Arlington public schools' demands to pay tuition for their young children have drawn the American Civil Liberties Union into the battle.

"We believe the school district is acting in a disgraceful fashion, violating the U.S. Constitution and the tradition of American public education as well," said Jim Baerwaldt, an associate professor of psychology at UTA and board member of the ACLU's Greater Fort Worth affiliate.

"I'm mad as hell and getting madder every day," he said Wednesday.

The ACLU plans to file suit on behalf of the students' parents who are attending the University of Texas at Arlington, he said.

The district plans to charge $275 a month for elementary students and $300 a month for secondary students because school officials say the foreign students are not permanent residents.

Baerwaldt and the ACLU say the students should be considered residents because they live in Arlington and already pay school property taxes.

"You're paying taxes here and the amount of taxes you pay is irrelevant," he said at a meeting with some of the parents.

Last week, U.S. District Judge David O. Belew declined to rule on the legality of the Arlington district's policy, saying he has no jurisdiction in the case until the district enforced the policy and the students filed suit.

School officials decided last fall to delay enforcement of the policy until Belew made a decision on the matter. Baerwaldt said the ACLU suit will be filed in Belew's court.

Baerwaldt urged parents to decide soon whether to join the case.

"We have to work fast to get this together over the weekend," he said.

One of those attending the meeting said he was glad of the help.

One still sought in hostage deal

CANTON (AP) — Authorities continued searching for fifth person believed to be involved in a drug deal that went awry when $30,000 disappeared and two men were taken hostage.

A fourth person, 21-year-old Kevin Lloyd Johnson of Dallas, was arrested Thursday on extortion charges and was held in the Dallas County jail, FBI spokesman Woody Specht said.

Stacy Jones of Dallas also was being held after her arraignment on extortion charges Thursday before U.S. Magistrate John B. Tolle. Bond was set at $10,000, but a second hearing is planned for Monday to determine a possible change in her bond, a deputy clerk said.

Ms. Jones was arrested Wednesday following the Tuesday arrests of Ernst Mollenberg, 34, of Arlington and Michael James Gilbert, 21, of Dallas.

Mollenberg was scheduled to appear before U.S. Magistrate Judith Guthrie of Tyler in a detention hearing Friday, and Gilbert was to appear next week. Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Sievert, saying the two men were dangerous to the community, filed a motion asking Guthrie not to set bond for them.

Both men are also charged with extortion and are being held in Smith County Jail, Specht said.

Darren Kelly Etheredge of Harrison County and Russell May of Daingerfield were taken hostage late Sunday, caught in the middle of a bungled drug deal involving a drug called "Ecstasy," he said.

A deal apparently had been arranged for another person to supply some buyers with $30,000 worth of the drug, but that person "took the money and ran," Specht said.

"These two people (Etheredge and May) were held responsible (by the prospective buyers) for the loss of the proceeds from the drugs, and were miserably beaten up," Specht said. "Etheredge called his parents and said he would be killed unless a ransom was paid."

Summoned by Etheredge's parents, FBI agents arrested one of the alleged kidnappers Tuesday afternoon when he brought Etheredge to the drop-off point. A second man was arrested when he later brought May to receive the second half of the $40,000 ransom.

Nurse's son turned over to state

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A nurse who was convicted in a girl's murder lost custody of her son to the Texas Department of Human Services in a court hearing.

Genene Jones watched tearfully Thursday in a juvenile courtroom as the state was awarded permanent custody of her 15-year-old son.

Ms. Jones agreed with the Texas Department of Human Services' request to be granted managing conservatory powers of her child, said her attorney, Royal Griffin.

Bexar County Juvenile Court Judge Tom Rickhoff granted the state's request.

The nurse is serving sentences at Huntsville for the murder of a 15-month-old girl and causing injury to a month-old boy.

"We've been carrying it as a temporary (custody) case for four years," said Assistant District Attorney Melanie Cowart after the hearing. "We can serve him better if he is long term."

Ms. Jones' son will be released from the state's custody when he is 18. Caseworkers who deal with children requiring short-term assistance had been assigned to the boy, said Ms. Cowart.

The teen-ager now will receive more long-term planning to prepare him for adulthood, she said.

Ms. Jones dabbed at her eyes with a tissue during the short hearing at the Juvenile Detention Center. She met with attorneys, Rickhoff and her son in the judge's chambers before the hearing, then visited with her son for 10 minutes.

After the hearing, Griffin said the action does not mean Ms. Jones is not the boy's mother.

"When this happens, the rights and responsibilities as a parent are not terminated," said Griffin. "She is unable physically to take care of him."

The nurse retained her right to contact her son by written and telephone communication and visit with him, said Ms. Cowart.

Ms. Jones and the boy's father are divorced and the man cannot be located.

Rickhoff described the boy, who was living in a private group home, as a "very pleasant child."

Famous Amos gives money to passers-by

LUFKIN (AP) — A white-clad man who called himself Famous Amos and gave money away to passers-by last week now says he was actually working for a local radio station.

Amos, who told reporters as he gave away money and business cards last week that he was "selling nothing" and "promoting nothing," said the money give-away was part of a KAFX radio promotional campaign.

Pope John Paul II clasps the hands of well-wishers during his visit Thursday to St. Mary's Cathedral in Miami. The pontiff is on a 10-day U.S. tour.

Pontiff will see complex, evolving church

Hearst News Service

MIAMI — Pope John Paul II arrived from Rome Thursday for a whirlwind tour of the United States that will bring him face to face with a complex, evolving U.S. Catholic Church of 50 million members.

President Reagan was on hand when the pope arrived at Miami International Airport Thursday about 2 p.m. amid unprecedented security. It is the third papal visit to the United States and the first south of Washington, D.C.

Millions of Catholics are expected to line papal parade routes and attend papal Masses in the next 10 days as the pope visits nine cities in seven states, mostly in the South and West.

The pope will find a generally loyal yet independent church that will cheer him loudly while going its own way on the traditional Catholic teachings that he embraces, on such matters as marriage, heterosexuality, monogamy and procreation within the confines of marriage.

Beneath the pomp and pageantry, the pope will encounter the most sensitive issues facing his church and America — from the survival questions of nuclear disarmament to moral quandaries such as hunger, abortion and divorce and the outcry of Latinos, blacks and women for a share of church power.

In his U.S. flock, the pope will face not only a very independent people but also one of the most heterogeneous national churches anywhere.

In the course of 44 formal talks, he will gaze into the faces of U.S. Catholics: Cuban faces awash in a sea of tiny flags here; Mexican-American faces in Texas, Arizona and California; Haitian and Jamaican faces here and black American faces everywhere; white faces; Asian faces; youthful faces; and the deeply etched faces of the elderly.

In each city, serious issues await:

— Miami will mean brief arms-controls talks with Reagan, a discussion of declining morale with U.S. priests and a condemnation of anti-Semitism with Jewish leaders.

— In Columbia, S.C., Friday, the pope will ignore the fundamentalists who have condemned his visit as that of the "Antichrist" and accept the extended arms of established Protestant leaders.

— In Louisiana Saturday, he will meet black Catholic leaders, who would like to see more black priests and bishops. Blacks account for 2 percent of U.S. Catholics but only 1 percent of the 55,000 active priests. Eleven of the nation's 375 bishops are black.

— In New Orleans, he will hear from officials of the nation's Catholic schools, who face dwindling enrollment. He also will meet Catholic university leaders, worried by the Vatican's harsh crackdown on free-thinking scholars who have dared to challenge dogma.

— In San Antonio, the pope's host will be the nation's first Latino archbishop, Patrick Flores. The pope will be cheered by as many as half a million people, including about 150,000 Mexicans expected to cross the border 150 miles away to attend the pope's only Sunday Mass of this trip. The quest of Latinos for a greater role in the church, in which they are more than one-third of the membership, will be the backdrop for the visit.

— In Phoenix Monday, nearly 20,000 American Indian Catholics will be on hand when the pope attends the annual Tekakwitha Conference, named for a Mohawk convert who died in 1680 while ministering to smallpox victims. The pope will smoke a peace pipe and discuss Vatican approval of translations of the Catholic liturgy into the languages of the Navajo and the Choctaw.

— Los Angeles could be the most important stop of the tour when the pope meets the nation's bishops Wednesday. Just last year, the past head of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops warned of dangerous rifts between the bishops and the Vatican. The bishops will be taking a series of grievances to the pope, and the pope is expected to signal just how much independence he will countenance.

— In Monterey, Calif., Sept. 17, he will say Mass in a race track and, it is expected, speak for the rights of farm workers.

— In San Francisco Sept. 17-18, the pope will visit with AIDS sufferers, talk with religious and lay leaders, visit the Golden Gate Bridge and say Mass at Candlestick Park. The Vatican's staunch attacks on homosexual behavior and its refusal to allow Catholic gay groups to meet on church property will be the rallying point for many demonstrators.

When he meets nuns from religious orders, the pope is expected to hear complaints from those who feel like second-class citizens in the church.

Some fundamentalists deny ecumenical spirit, won't meet with pope

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Pope John Paul II is venturing into this Bible Belt state today to meet with 27 religious leaders and lead an inter-denominational prayer service. But some leading fundamentalists — including one who considers the pope the antichrist — don't share the ecumenical spirit.

Planners estimated 250,000 people would line the streets on the pope's motorcade route or file into the University of South Carolina football stadium for the service.

The city's population is 105,000, so officials planned for massive traffic jams.

People hoping to see John Paul started trickling into the state capital Thursday and downtown hotels were full. Many employees who work downtown planned to put in a half-day on the job.

The pope, scheduled to land at the metropolitan airport at 3:30 p.m. under partly cloudy skies and a temperature near 90, planned to lead a prayer for an invited group of Roman Catholics at St. Peter's Church, meet with the church leaders and lead the prayer service shortly before nightfall.

The pope meets with former President Jimmy Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, at the airport just before departing for New Orleans.

Southern Baptist is the dominant religion in the state and the percentage of Catholics is one of the lowest in the nation — 2 percent of 3.3 million people.

"Some Roman Catholics must be wondering why he's coming here," said Don Jones, a theologian and chairman of the University of South Carolina's Department of Religious Studies in Columbia. "The ecumenical service is appropriate for this setting because the theme is unity."

"The pope has chosen to be with evangelical Christians in their territory," said George Hunston Williams, professor of divinity emeritus at Harvard University. Williams, the author of "The Mind of John Paul II," a cultural and intellectual biography, is the chairman of a committee that organized the ecumenical service.

"I think providence wants an ecumenical dialogue to begin and has chosen this spot and this time for it to take place," said University of South Carolina President James Holderman.

The ecumenical leaders represent churches that broke from the Roman Catholic church centuries ago in direct reaction against papal authority.

They include Lutherans, Southern Baptists, American Baptists, Greek Orthodox, Episcopals, United Methodists, Pentecostals, Presbyterians and Disciples of Christ.

But the ecumenical message — that unity among Christians should be promoted worldwide — has its opponents, particularly among fundamentalists. Among them: the Rev. Jerry Falwell, the fundamentalist head of the South Carolina-based PTL television ministry.

Falwell said Thursday he would have refused an invitation to meet with the pope and the other ecumenical leaders, had one been offered, because he is against ecumenism.

Labor Day deaths took a big fall

The Texas Department of Public Safety only recorded 24 traffic fatalities over the Labor Day weekend, 18 less deaths than had been predicted. But it's much too early to assume that Texans have learned the lesson that fast speeds are deadly, particularly when they're mixed with alcoholic beverages and carelessness.

Actually we'd be delighted if that were the case. But there are too many variables at play here. For example, how much did seat belt usage affect the holiday death count since wearing a seat belt is now a state law requirement and are more Texans also waiting to do their drinking until after they arrive at their destinations rather than sipping as they drive? It's now illegal for the driver of any vehicle to be drinking anything alcoholic while driving, although passengers may continue to do so. No doubt those two measures affected the death count in a positive way to some degree.

There were plenty of complaints aired as the seat belt law and the "open container" measure were both debated and enacted. A lot of opponents apparently wanted to turn the proposed laws into "civil rights" issues. They're not that. Rather, they are measures that mandate by force of law what Texans should have accepted through common sense years ago: Speeding, drinking while driving and failing to use safety belts make those traveling Texas' highways much more prone to meet with tragedy than those who obey the law or through their own volition recognize the dangers inherent in drinking while driving, speeding and going beltless.

We're not going to claim that the other 18 people who were expected to die on the state's highways over the Labor Day weekend are alive today as a result of the seat belt law and the one banning driving while drinking alcoholic beverages. That would be next to impossible to prove. But we honestly believe there are 18 people walking around in Texas today who can thank their lucky stars those measures were enacted.

Death reveals need

My husband and I didn't realize how much Midland Memorial Hospital was lacking in procedures until on Friday, June 19, 1987, we suffered the traumatic experience of giving birth to a stillborn baby son.

The hospital staff in labor and delivery didn't seem to offer much advice, help or suggestions on how to proceed in this matter. We were confused about making funeral arrangements, requesting an autopsy, obtaining keepsakes of our baby, naming our son and quite simply what we could do, how to do it and when. After looking back to the events, that went so fast, we regret not being told of certain choices or options.

For example, we were not asked to name our son and truly regretted it later. We have since written to the Texas Department of Health in Austin to see if we can change the death certificate and name him.

We would like to encourage more parents, especially those who have suffered the loss of a baby or a similar tragedy like miscarriage, to please write to the hospital and give their opinions on how the hospital staff could now or could have improved matters. Maybe then the hospital can begin to develop procedures better suited to pleasing its patients. Or perhaps it could even organize a support group that could help parents through in such a time of need.

Midland Memorial Hospital is truly a fine hospital and has done so much to improve the physical condition and surroundings for childbirth. We only hope we can help improve matters for those future parents who unfortunately must go through what we did. Our heart goes out to them.

Decision disappointing

The decision of the mayor and city council to reopen the two fire stations was a disappointment to me.

It was my understanding that the council had made an in-depth study of the situation and determined it was not economically feasible to continue to maintain these two stations because of their limited use. It was also my understanding that the residents in the areas concerned were still to be served by the Midland Fire Department.

However, in the wake of opposition from 200 to 300 residents and a piece of paper containing 3,000 signatures (certainly not a majority of Midland residents), the mayor and council either determined they had not studied the situation sufficiently or they lacked the courage to carry through their decision. Whichever reason prevailed, neither is commendable.

Hopefully in future decisions the mayor and council will be responsible to all citizens of Midland and not be dictated to by a vocal minority.

Urge vote for Bork

We now have an opportunity as Christians to secure a Supreme Court majority opposed to Roe v. Wade, the murderous decision which has allowed over 20 million unborn babies to be put to death.

This decision could soon be overturned. Don't miss this opportunity. Please write to your U.S. senators and ask them to vote yes on the Bork nomination. Most of all, pray as if lives depend on it. They do.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 1987. There are 111 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 11, 1777, during the American Revolution, forces under Gen. George Washington suffered defeat at the hands of the British in the Battle of Brandywine near Wilmington, Del. Washington's troops were forced back into Philadelphia, which fell to the British.

On this date:

In 1789, Alexander Hamilton was appointed Secretary of the Treasury.

In 1814, a U.S. fleet scored a decisive victory over the British in the Battle of Lake Champlain in the War of 1812.

In 1850, the "Swedish Nightingale" — Jenny Lind — gave her first concert in the United States, at Castle Garden in New York.

In 1885, author D.H. Lawrence was born in Eastwood, England.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Boulder Dam, now known as Hoover Dam, by pressing a golden key in Washington to signal the startup of the first hydroelectric generator in Nevada.

In 1941, in a speech in Des Moines, aviation hero Charles A. Lindbergh charged "the British, the Jewish and the Roosevelt administration" were trying to involve the United States in World War II.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill met in Canada at the second Quebec Conference.

In 1971, former Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev died of a heart attack at the age of 77.

In 1973, Chile's President, Salvador Allende, was deposed in a military coup. The new leaders said Allende had committed suicide.

In 1985, Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds cracked career hit number 4,192 off Eric Show of the San Diego Padres, eclipsing the record held by Ty Cobb.

CHARLEY REESE

Truth about Soviets reveals deceit

The first step toward clear thinking in foreign policy and defense issues is to arrive at a decision about the nature of the Soviet Union. This is the continental divide on foreign policy and defense matters because what you think about the nature of the Soviet Union determines what you think about everything else in those two fields.

Charley Reese

If, for example, you assess the Soviet Union as hostile, conspiratorial, and expansionist — as an ideological empire the aim of which is the destruction of the United States — then you will view matters such as Cuba and Nicaragua and arms control in one fashion.

If, however, you think of the Soviet Union as a nation which, while totalitarian and perhaps unpleasant by American standards, is essentially non-aggressive — a nation whose differences with the United States are a result of mistakes on both parts — then an entirely different set of views and decisions necessarily follow.

It is essentially the difference in assessment of the Soviet Union which divides today's conservatives and liberals. It is the chief difference between the current crop of Democratic and Republican presidential candidates.

That assessment of the Soviet Union's nature is the keystone of clear thinking is demonstrated by the Soviet Union's enormous propaganda effort, the basic aim of which, is to prevent an accurate assessment of the Soviet Union. Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachev, or Comrade Spot, augments this propaganda effort with his current peace offensive.

A Soviet peace offensive is a cause for alertness because one pre-requisite for a successful pre-emptive nuclear strike is a peace offensive. I have no knowledge of Soviet intentions in this regard but they have gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to acquire the capability.

No one should ever assume that because something hasn't been done before that it won't be done or that because something is horrible to contemplate it's also impossible to experience.

I, of course, assess the Soviet Union as hostile, aggressive, expansionistic, and intent on our destruction. I arrived at that assessment because it coincides with the Soviet ideology, Soviet practices, Soviet history, and the shape, size, and configuration of the Soviet armed forces.

Edward Luttwak, an intelligent strategic analyst, made a pointed statement when American liberals were in their usual dither after the Soviets had shot down a Korean airliner and murdered an American officer in East Germany. We just don't understand, the liberals were saying.

Well, it isn't hard to understand the Soviet Union's actions, Luttwak observed. Just recognize that the Soviet Union is a nation at war with the West and everything it does makes perfect sense.

And so it does.

Many people over the decades have written about the greater mystery — why so many in the West stubbornly refuse to recognize the nature of the Soviet Union. Indeed, they go beyond. They expend enormous energy trying to discount persistent and unarguable evidence as to the nature of the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union really doesn't have to make excuses for any atrocity it commits for there are those in the West who will make excuses for it. It doesn't matter how many times the Soviets break treaties or other commitments. There are those who will trust them to keep their word this time.

It's strange and amusing, in a bitter sort of way, that people who have no faith in the word of South Africa's government that it will end apartheid have endless faith in the Soviet Union's claim that it only wants peace. It's strange because South Africa is to the Soviet Union as a naughty child is to a mass murderer.

Some small percent of these, of course, are merely Soviet agents. The larger percentage, however, are just people who can't control their fear. When the truth is scary, they prefer lies — even to themselves.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

If you get a prayer rug, don't send it back!

People often send me solicitations they have received from an evangelist hot on the scent for money.

Falwell "must" have your money in 24 hours or PTL will be down the toilet (where it belongs), Swaggart needs a million here and a million there or he's going off the air, and Roberts is up in his prayer tower doing another deal with God that he wants you to finance.

Grizzard

But the Rev. Frederick J. Eikerenkoetter II — known to millions as the "Rev. Ike" — still has to be, according to his enemies, the Number 1 hoodwinker who ever stood behind a pulpit and looked at his Bible and saw dollar marks.

I wrote several months ago of Ike's "prayer cloth." You hung the cloth in your window, took it out the next day and sent it back to the Rev. Ike with your "seed offering" and somebody would be delivering your new Cadillac before you could say "aluminum siding."

Well, the Rev. Ike is back with a new, improved angle, a "prayer rug." A reader sent along the prayer rug he received in the mail.

It's not a rug at all. It's a piece of paper with a picture of what appears to be a bathmat. That's on one side.

On the other side is a drawing of someone the Rev. Ike identifies as Jesus. (Actually the individual looks more like a skinny Grizzly Adams, but let's not nit-pick here.)

The message to the recipient of the prayer rug goes like this:

"1. Look into Jesus' eyes. They are closed. But as you look at them, you will see them open and look at you."

(Not really. Whoever drew the picture drew the figure's eyes closed, and then put eyeballs on top of the eyelids. A 4-year-old could figure it out, but people who send money to the Rev. Ike aren't that intelligent.)

"2. Decide what you want."

(I want a Lear, a million-seller, a new pair of Gucci's and Kim Basinger.)

"Then go into a room ALONE and either kneel or spread the rug over your knees. It must touch both knees.

"3. Place it in a Bible on Phil. 4:19.

"4. In the morning, please return it to me so I can mail it on to another Dear Soul that (sic) also needs a blessing.

"5. Place your seed offering on Jesus' picture. Just like you are investing in what the Bible promises to you. PLEASE, DO NOT KEEP THIS. Another soul is waiting for it!"

I laughed at all that when I read it, and probably you did, too. But this individual raises millions with garbage like that.

Not only is he scary, but think how many people are walking around loose who are ignorant enough to fall victim to him?

What I can't understand is why somebody doesn't introduce legislation making such solicitations illegal. If what the Rev. Ike and others send out isn't mail fraud, then what is?

I know someone who went to jail for three years for mail fraud. He took in peanuts compared to the Rev.'s Flim-Flam.

If you receive a prayer rug from the Rev. Ike, don't send it back. Take it on your next camping trip to start a fire or for another use — which I can't mention in a family newspaper.

RUSSELL BAKER

Bork drinks a strict constructionist's martini

Judge Bork has a brilliant mind. He is eminently qualified.

The president is entitled to put anyone he wants on the court.

The Bork appointment has nothing to do with politics.

Judge Bork has a brilliant mind.

He is eminently qualified.

Anyhow, Democratic presidents made plenty of Supreme Court appointments for political reasons.

Russell Baker

Judge Bork is charming, witty and good company.

He drinks martinis, made in the true way with gin, and served not on ice, which dilutes and moderates the gin, but without ice, which leaves the power of the gin intact. His martini is the strict constructionist's martini. It is the martini that the Founders created when they assembled in Philadelphia to draw up the great document that begins, "We the people, in order to create a more perfect cocktail ..."

Judge Bork is eminently qualified. He has a brilliant mind.

Judge Bork's martini is not made of vodka, the drink of the Russian army, as well as the ingredient today's so-called "yuppies" favor in their so-called "martinis." Nor did Judge Bork go to Woodstock and dance in the nude under the influence of drugs and sexually suggestive rock music lyrics when he was young, as the so-called "yuppies" did.

Even if President Reagan did appoint someone for political reasons, what about Democrats like Roosevelt, Truman and Johnson appointing people like Hugo Black, Sherman Minton and Thurgood Marshall for political reasons? What about President Kennedy appointing Whizzer White for football reasons?

Judge Bork is not as conservative as the left-leaning, liberal press says he is. Actually, he is a moderate, though not a dangerous moderate like Howard Baker.

Even if he were a conservative, Justice Brennan is a wild-eyed liberal, isn't he?

Justice Scalia was supposed to be a conservative, too, when President Reagan appointed him to the court, but we still can't say prayers at school. If Judge Bork should astound everybody and turn out to be a conservative, so what?

Brilliant mind.

Eminently qualified.

Judge Bork does not take an olive in his martini. He prefers a twist of lemon, that delightfully tart fruit which is indelibly associated in the American mind with the Sun Belt, home of small spenders, low taxers and philosophers who understand that you have to get tough with welfare chiselers, especially the millions with roots in steamier climates where indolence is a way of life. Those warm, indolent climates have traditionally been associated in the American mind with olive trees, olive oil and olives, the fruit Judge Bork does not take in his martini.

The Saturday night massacre is irrelevant. For one thing, he was only doing his duty, and if he hadn't the whole government would have collapsed. For another, the Saturday night massacre happened so long ago that half the people now alive never heard of it until last week and 90 percent of the rest have forgotten what it was.

The point is that Judge Bork has a brilliant mind.

As for qualifications, on a scale from "ludicrously unqualified" to "stupefyingly overqualified," Judge Bork has been awarded the American Conservative Columnist Association's second highest rating: "eminently qualified."

Left-leaning, liberal senators should be ashamed of themselves for saying that Judge Bork's appointment will bring back the old days when colloquialisms like "darkies" and "pickaninnies" were on every lip and judges weren't so persnickety about policemen using the boot and rubber hose. They should remember Judge Bork is a Yale man, like Dink Stover, Frank Merriwell and the late Henry Luce.

Anyhow, those old days were not so bad. "Amos 'n' Andy" was just as funny as "The Bill Cosby Show" and it was rare for the police to beat confessions out of people who didn't deserve to be locked up for something, whether or not it was the crime they confessed to.

Judge Bork has a beard, but it is not a Lenin beard, nor a hippie-style beard. It is a beard just like the beard of Horace Greeley, who was one of the great founding Republicans as well as an upright, unbiased journalist in the days before newspapers turned into the left-leaning, liberal organs we now call "media." As a bearded drinker of strict-construction martinis, Judge Bork is an inspired choice for the Court.

He has a brilliant mind.

Eminently qualified.

Worse: If it rejects him, the Senate may have to give the court seat to its colleague Orrin Hatch.

NATION in brief

Navy cancels visit to Costa Rican port

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy warship canceled a port visit to Costa Rica because authorities there insisted the Navy certify the crew was free of AIDS, according to military sources who called it a "clearly troubling" development.

Moreover, Pentagon officials are convinced the Costa Rican demands may be tied to a long-running "disinformation" campaign by the Soviet Union aimed at blaming the United States for creating the AIDS virus.

"This is the kind of thing the Soviets are trying to stir up around the world with their propaganda," one official said Thursday. "And this was quite an irrational reaction on the part of Costa Rica."

"It can give ideas to others and so it's clearly troubling us," added another source.

According to the officials, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified, the Costa Rican government demanded the Navy provide a roster of crewmen on the destroyer USS Luce and "certification" that every sailor was free of AIDS, a deadly ailment that destroys the body's immunity to disease.

The Navy tried to explain its testing procedures for AIDS to the Costa Ricans, but to no avail, leading to cancellation of the port call last week, one official said.

AIDS family seeks help

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Florida family driven from their community after their three hemophiliac sons tested positive for the AIDS virus asked Congress today to help others avoid the rejection and persecution they have experienced.

"I know there are many families suffering the same sort of discrimination we have," Louise Ray of Arcadia, Fla., said in testimony submitted for a Senate hearing on an AIDS testing, confidentiality and discrimination bill.

"We hope you will help families like ours," she said.

Mrs. Ray recounted for the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee a story of threats and harassment that began when young Ricky, Randy and Robert tested positive for the AIDS virus. The boys are believed to have been infected through blood transfusions; none have symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome or AIDS-related complex.

Science grades falling

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. students have slipped in science achievement since 1970, and even advanced students compare poorly to English and Japanese youngsters, according to a new international study.

The study, the first in 17 years to compare students in 24 nations in science performance, found, for example, that in 1970 over 80 percent of U.S. 5th graders and 90 percent of 9th graders correctly answered how long it takes to travel to the moon ("a few days."). By 1986, only 47 percent of 5th graders and 55 percent of 9th graders could do so.

One reason for the slippage: U.S. youngsters were found to be doing one to two hours less homework per week than their 1970 counterparts.

Preliminary findings from "Second IEA Science Study" by the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement were made available to The Associated Press.

Wedtech deal explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former head of the Small Business Administration says the agency never would have approved a $32 million, no-bid contract for Wedtech Corp. without the interest of the White House.

Ex-SBA Administrator James Sanders testified Thursday that James Jenkins, the top aide to then-White House counselor Edwin Meese III, contacted him in the spring of 1982 and "emphasized the administration's desire to see some employment generated" in the economically devastated South Bronx area of New York City.

Under questioning by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., Sanders conceded that Bronx-based Wedtech, which at the time had hired former White House political director Lyn Nofziger to help it win government contracts, was "the only game in town" in the South Bronx which conceivably could perform such work for the military.

Sanders said he assumed Meese, currently under criminal investigation for his involvement with Wedtech, knew what Jenkins was doing on behalf of the defense contractor.

Democrats oppose Nicaraguan aid plan

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are lining up in opposition to the administration's new aid request for the Nicaraguan Contras, contending the proposal could scuttle the Central American peace process.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., a longtime critic of the administration's Central America policy, said Thursday the request was "the worst possible signal" the administration could send to the region.

He said the administration may be embarking on a "significant, profound, historical mistake."

Dodd made the statement after hearing Secretary of State George P. Shultz outline the administration's plan to seek $270 million for the Contras over an 18-month period to head off "a communist victory" in Nicaragua.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Shultz said additional aid to the Contras is the best insurance that Nicaragua will comply with terms of the Central American peace agreement it signed last month in Guatemala.

President Reagan responded to reporters' queries about Shultz's remarks just before the president began a private talk with Pope John Paul II in Miami on Thursday.

"Just because an agreement has been signed that calls for some waiting, you can't let them starve," Reagan said.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, who has played an increasingly influential role on the Central America issue, said it was inappropriate for the administration to make a request for more Contra money while the peace process was under way.

"Such a request would anticipate the failure of the peace process. I don't anticipate the failure of the peace process. I anticipate success," he said.

Before Shultz's announcement, Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, the main architect of the Central American peace plan signed Aug. 7 in Guatemala City by five Central American leaders, said he would not support additional aid to the Contras even if the Sandinistas fail to comply with the agreement.

"I will never defend that," Arias told television interviewer John McLaughlin. "I am not in favor of a military solution."

Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., said approval of more Contra aid would be interpreted as a signal of bad faith by the United States in Central America.

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., a member of the House leadership, said, "The administration is preparing to use the club of Contra aid on the dove of diplomacy."

The Guatemala agreement, among other steps, calls on the Sandinista government to arrange a cease-fire and implement democratic reform measures by Nov. 7, about five weeks after the current $100 million Contra aid allotment expires.

Schroeder says money may not be obstacle to race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Patricia Schroeder says a "phenomenal" response around the country has removed money as the obstacle to a bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, bringing her a giant step closer to entering the 1988 race for the White House.

She says she is now trying to decide whether a campaign organization can be built in a short period of time and determine how deep the enthusiasm she sees on the campaign trail actually is.

"It's been absolutely phenomenal," the Colorado Democrat said in an interview Thursday. "It just keeps going. There's never been a day where we haven't had more money come in than the day before. There's hasn't been a day we haven't had phenomenal crowds. It's just not plateauing."

The dean of the women in the Congress, Mrs. Schroeder is looking toward an announcement at the end of September of whether she will be the first woman in the 1988 Democratic presidential race. And she sounds as if the answer will be yes.

"We keep knocking down one wall after another," she said, adding: "They are certainly taking the 'easy outs' away.... Obviously, between now and September 30, everything can change.... You never know.'

Seven men are already in the Democratic field.

When she announced earlier this summer she was looking at a candidacy, Mrs. Schroeder said raising adequate funds for a campaign was the big issue. "No dough, no go" was her phrase.

Asked if the answer to her question now looks like "The dough is there," she replied:

"Well, that's right.... I guess that is just not an issue."

Her worries about financing have been largely relieved, she said, by the "incredibly positive" results from a recent series of small direct-mail appeals by the firm of Craver and Matthews.

"I kept thinking this is just a summer novelty," she said. "But ... no, that's not it. They are sending checks."

"The money is there. It's tappable," she quoted fund-raisers as saying.

Schroeder aides said last week the exploratory committee has $400,000 in the bank, with thousands flooding in every day from the direct mail appeals.

The next big milestone for a Schroeder candidacy comes Sept. 20, when supporters around the country have been asked to hold "Run, Pat, Run" parties to "focus on what kind of grass roots support I could get out there.

"We had hoped to have maybe 250 or so around the country.... We're over 500 and the mailing just went out last week," the 47-year-old politician said.

The other major obstacle facing Mrs. Schroeder is putting together a campaign organization. With only five months before the first caucuses in Iowa, the job is tough.

She described the task as "scrambling around looking for people. You know: What are you doing October 1? How would you like to quit" and work on a campaign.

Mrs. Schroeder is quick to make it clear she is not just running as a token female candidate.

"I'm not saying to women: 'You're not a woman unless you back me.' I'm saying: 'Here I am, I'm a candidate. I want men's support. I want women's support. Here's my record. And I think you ought to support me on my record, not my gender,'" she said.

Stufflebeam's attorney feels military jury acted properly

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — The attorney for Marine Sgt. Robert Stufflebeam says a military jury acted properly by clearing the former Moscow Embassy guard of charges he had sex with Soviet women and lied about it to superiors.

The eight-member jury deliberated more than two hours Thursday night before convicting the seven-year veteran on only two misdemeanor charges of dereliction of duty stemming from his drinking in an off-limits Moscow hotel bar on two occasions.

It acquitted him of seven counts, including failure to report fraternization with Soviets and lying to investigators.

"The major charges that they tried to allege fell by the side," defense attorney James Bagley said.

The jury was to return to the Quantico Marine Corps Base courtroom today to hear evidence to be used in sentencing.

Stufflebeam faces a maximum one-year prison term. Had he been convicted on all nine counts, he would have faced up to 14 years in a military prison.

After the verdict, which followed a three-day court-martial, Stufflebeam insisted he was innocent.

"This whole thing is pretty much a fabrication of the NIS (Naval Investigative Service)," the 25-year-old Stufflebeam said. "I feel very much relieved. There was no way for the government to prove their case."

The prosecution made no comment.

The Bloomington, Ill., man was the second-in-charge of the Marine security detachment at the embassy in the summer of 1985.

He supervised Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, a former guard who was convicted of espionage by a military jury last month and sentenced to 30 years in prison.

Cpl. Arnold Bracey, another guard whom Stufflebeam supervised, was initially charged in the case, but the charges against him were dropped in June.

"I would like to say that not everything that the Marine Corps has allowed to be said concerning the Marines who were with me in Moscow were true," Stufflebeam said outside the courtroom Thursday night. "I only wish that the Marine Corps would have backed these Marines up more."

The prosecutor, Capt. Neal A. Puckett, told the jury Stufflebeam admitted to investigators that he repeatedly had sex with Soviet women.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight...a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms...a few possibly severe. Lows mid 60s. Southeast wind 5 to 10 mph. Saturday...partly cloudy with isolated thunderstorms. Rain chance less than 20 percent. Highs upper 80s. South and southeast wind 5 to 15 mph.

Cloudy skies anticipated

From Staff and Wire Reports

Skies will remain partly cloudy tonight with a 20 percent chance of scattered thunderstorms, some possibly severe, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland Regional Airport. The low temperature is expected to be in the middle 60s. Southeast winds will blow at five to 10 mph.

The chance of thunderstorms will reduce slightly to less than 20 percent Saturday. The high will reach the upper 80s with south to southeasterly winds at five to 15 mph.

Thursday's high of 87 was 13 degrees below the record high of 100 set for that date in 1964. Today's low of 57 was seven degrees under the record low of 50 degrees set for this date in 1935.

STATE

Showers and a few thunderstorms developed in the Hill Country and parts of South Texas today as a weak cold front moved across the state and forecasters expected scattered rainfall to continue into the weekend.

The front stretched across the central plains and western Oklahoma into the Texas Panhandle near Amarillo. Showers and thunderstorms dampened parts of the Panhandle and the northwest section of the South Plains.

Light rain was falling from near San Angelo to parts of South Central and South Texas. Light rain was also falling along the Texas-Louisiana border near Toledo Bend.

Skies were clear over the Permian Basin and far West Texas and partly to mostly cloudy over the rest of the state.

Winds were northerly across the Panhandle behind the front at 10 to 15 mph and variable elsewhere at 5 to 10 mph.

Early-morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s, with 50s in the Permian Basin and far West Texas. Extremes ranged from 52 degrees at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 84 degrees at the Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi.

NATION

Thunderstorms rumbled through sections of the Midwest, Southwest and South today, while much of the rest of the nation was under partly cloudy to cloudy skies.

Showers and thunderstorms spread from western and central Kansas into the Texas Panhandle and from southwest Texas into eastern Texas.

Another group of showers and thunderstorms ranged from western Tennessee and Alabama into Georgia and the Carolinas.

The problem isn't how little we care. The problem is how little we do about it.

We think of ourselves as a nation of caring people. And, in principle, it's absolutely true.

Most of us contribute money to at least one cause. Nearly half of us contribute time. Confronted with a direct appeal, we respond instinctively with help.

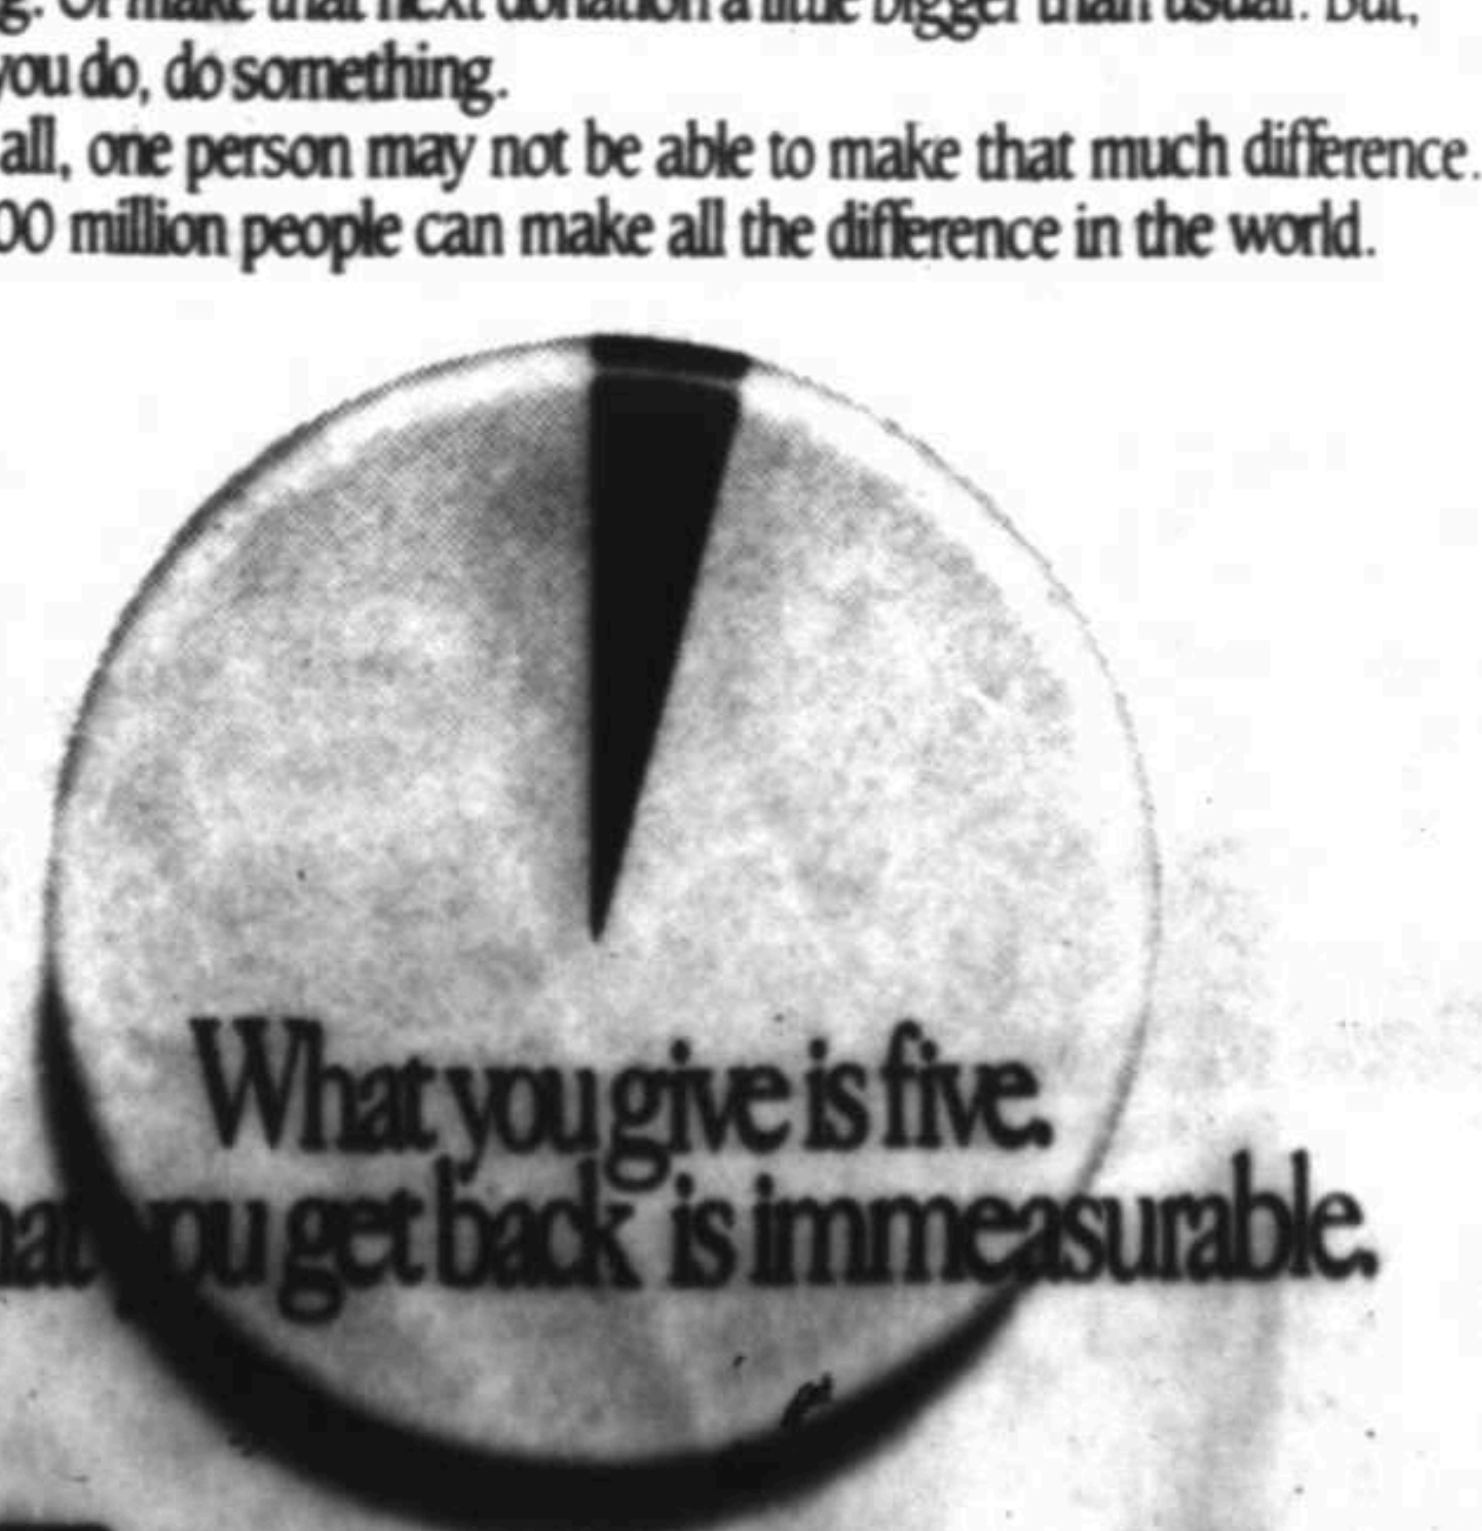
The trouble is that, too often, it's not much more than token help. A dollar here, an hour there, and then it's back to the concerns of our own lives.

But think about it, for a minute. If we all gave just five hours a week to the causes we care about, it would be like mobilizing a force of more than 20 million full-time volunteers. If we all gave just 5% of what we earn, it would come to $175 billion a year.

It has to start with somebody, though. And not somebody else. Us.

So take a look around your own community and find something that needs doing. Or make that next donation a little bigger than usual. But, whatever you do, do something.

After all, one person may not be able to make that much difference. But 200 million people can make all the difference in the world.



What you give is five.
What you get back is immeasurable.

'Wadley's woes' may end where pavement begins

By RICK BROWN
Assistant City Editor

At least one City Council member thinks the answer to continued deterioration of Wadley Avenue lies in the hard realities of concrete paving.

It's a proposal that the Public Works Department has just begun to study.

"I want a success story," said Councilman Bill Williams this morning. "I'm tired of failures on Wadley, and I think it's time we put a good street together that everybody can be proud of."

Both Williams and Public Works Director Fred Baker agree that part of Wadley's problem lies in asphalt-deteriorating drainage water that flows during heavy rains.

"Anybody who doesn't think that's a duel purpose street — well, that's a street and a waterway," said Williams.

While concrete paving would hold up better against the rain, the costs of initial construction are about double that of asphalt, Baker said this morning.

The public works director cited a cost of $12 to $15 per square yard for asphalt, compared to almost $30 for the harder surface.

Baker's office began investigating the concrete paving proposal in depth this week after the subject was broached during a Tuesday council meeting, he said.

"We're exploring," said Baker, who had told the council he knew of only two West Texas projects that had utilized concrete paving in the past few years.

Both of those were highway undertakings: the U.S. Interstate 20 underpass near Midland Regional Airport and a stretch of U.S. Highway 287 near Childress.

What the Public Works Department seeks to find out is whether special soil considerations or other factors prompted the concrete use.

The surface is an unusual occurrence in West Texas in recent times, said Baker, although many towns — including Midland — still maintain concrete streets paved by the Depression-era Works Progress Administration.

Also a consideration in the decision are costs associated with water, sewer and utility lines that would be located underneath the concrete, Baker said.

The department will try to predict how many cuts would be necessary to access faulty lines, a process that is easier and cheaper to complete with asphalt paving.

Baker's office also is seeking information from the National Concrete Paving Institute to find out the various types of concrete paving and their success and failure rates, he said.

"Once we get that information and have a chance to review it, we can make some definite statements," he said.

Williams remains convinced that some combination of concrete and asphalt is the solution to Wadley's woes.

"A good part of the street is going to have to be concrete," he said, postulating that the center turn lane at least offers a prime opportunity because "it's constantly under water."

But Williams allowed: "When we get the costs, it may be unrealistic. But I want us to take a good look at it."

Ex-postal worker files lawsuit

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Artillia Akins, a former United States Postal Service counselor and clerk in Midland, has filed in federal court in Midland a discrimination suit against her ex-employer.

She is seeking re-instatement of the U.S. Postal Service job from which she resigned in 1984.

Ms. Akins, who was an ad hoc Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) counselor for the U.S. Postal Service, had worked for the Postal Service for about 20 years before she resigned.

"She resigned. We didn't ask her to," said Stan Sartain, manager of customer services for the U.S. Postal Service. "She resigned of her own free will."

Ms. Akins, who characterized herself in the lawsuit as "black," said in the lawsuit's petition that she was denied "equal employment opportunity for an initial job assignment, promotion, wages and other terms and conditions of employment...solely because of her race and color."

Defendants in the lawsuit include the U.S. Postmaster General; Midland Postmaster Bill Williams; Vern Greggerson, manager of the Management Sectional Center; Jerome Batson, Management Sectional Center director of employee and labor relations; Ray Fernandez, Management Sectional Center employment specialist; and Robert Hernandez, EEO specialist.

Ms. Akins alleged that the U.S. Postal Service "follows a policy and practice of discrimination in employment against blacks on account of their race."

She alleged that the U.S. Postal Service:

— Follows segregation practices by placing people in a "white job" or a "black job" when they are hired, assigned, promoted or demoted.

— Depresses "all wages of black employees on the basis of race by assigning white employees to "white jobs" and paying black employees the lowest wages as possible under the circumstances."

— Excludes "all or substantially all" blacks from supervisory, managerial, professional or clerical jobs on the basic of their race.

— Assigns black employees to "lowest paid and least desirable jobs" which generally demand "the most strenuous and continuous physical exertion, often in an environment of extreme heat or cold, dirt, dust and noise."

"We have black supervisors," noted Sartain. "We have black carriers. We have black clerks."

In Ms. Akins' complaint, which was filed in her behalf by Midland attorney Edward T. Garza, Ms. Akins noted that she previously had filed discrimination complaints with the federal EEO but that agency in 1985 found "no discrimination" on the part of the U.S. Postal Service.

"Dissatisfied with that decision," Ms. Akins asked for an investigative hearing on her complaint. Subsequently, an Equal Employment Opportunity Commission complaints examiner found "no discrimination." In 1986, Ms. Akins appealed to the EEOC. And in August 1987, the EEOC Office of Review and Appeals affirmed the agency's "no-discrimination" decision.

In bringing the case to federal court, Ms. Akins is asking U.S. District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton to rule on her discrimination allegations, to enter a declaration judgment that certain U.S. Postal Service practices are unlawful, to stop the U.S. Postal Service from allegedly discriminating and to assign her to her previous job with the U.S. Postal Service and to compensate and "make whole" Ms. Akins for all earnings, wages and other benefits that she would have received "but for the discriminatory practices" of the U.S. Postal Service.

All-black repertory ensemble to dance Theatre Midland

By GEORGIA TODD TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

"A Celebration in Dance" featuring the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble is set for 8 p.m. Oct. 16 at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., it was announced today at a luncheon, sponsored by the Midland-Reporter-Telegram, at Theatre Midland.

The event, which is sponsored by the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs and Theatre Midland, spotlights the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble performing the dances that have made the group internationally known.

"We are thrilled to be involved in bringing a dance troupe of this quality to the area," said Linda Bond, director of development and marketing for TM. "Our local dance groups are constantly expanding their repertoire and experience, and bringing in a troupe of this stature offers an exciting opportunity for dancers as well as for the general public."

Formed in 1974, the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble is an all-black ensemble. Under the artistic direction of Sylvia Waters, a former Ailey dancer, the group has studied and performed works from the standard Ailey repertoire, as well as original works by choreographers such as Milton Myers, Christine Lawson, Gus Solomon and Dianne McIntyre.

In addition, the ensemble has maintained the historical perspective of dance with the inclusion of such dances as "Games" by Donald McKayle and "The Road of Phoebe Snow" by Talley Beatty.

"The Alvin Ailey dancers are wonderfully eclectic, incorporating themes from the deep South, classical ballet, and inventive works by young choreographers," Ms. Bond says.

The inspiration for bringing the dance troupe here, began with Robbyne Fuller, president of the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs. Mrs. Fuller discovered from Eric Strong, president of the Roots Historical Arts Council of Lubbock, that the dance troupe was scheduled to perform at Texas Tech.

"I told James (Fuller, her husband) that it would be a wonderful idea if we could get them to Midland," Mrs. Fuller says.

"At about the same time Linda Bond from Theatre Midland called, and I set up an appointment with her," Mrs. Fuller says. "We were talking about different things Theatre Midland could do that would help the theater reach all segments of the Midland community. I mentioned to her, along with James, about the Alvin Ailey dancers and that I had made contact with them, and they said they would be glad to come to Midland if we could schedule a date. So we formed a joint venture to get them here."

All tickets are general seating. Cost is $12.50 in advance and $15 at the door. Tickets may be purchased through Theatre Midland's box office, 682-4111, Tom's Pharmacy, 682-3204, or PrintMatic, 683-8304.

A reception in the Theatre Midland lobby will follow the performance.

James Fuller is task force chairman of the Jubilee II Celebration, the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs' annual celebration, which includes seminars, cultural events and presentations designed to enhance the cultural, educational, social and economic quality of life in the community.

"We pride ourselves on being a multi-ethnic organization, and it's our way of enhancing the cooperative spirit in the Midland community," Fuller says.

In addition, the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs and Theatre Midland are working on possible future projects as well.

"Theatre Midland suggested that James and I set up a task force to get people to talk with one another about the different things they would like to see at Theatre Midland that would work in the entire community," Mrs. Fuller says. "We're in the process of setting up that task force."

The Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, formed about 18 months ago, works in many areas, including minorities and with women, Mrs. Fuller says. "We are part of the total community and anyone can join. The cultural affairs area is just one area."

Jubilee Two is associated with the "Coming Home to America's Roots" celebration which is going to take place in July in Dallas and Fort Worth, Mrs. Fuller says.

"Coming Home," which has been 18 years in the making, is the outgrowth of a series of Black Rodeos which Periscope Associates produced in the East in the early 1970s and consists of a variety of entertainment events all designed to highlight the proud role of black America's western heritage.

Septemberfest kicks off this weekend

From Staff Reports

Septemberfest 1987, featuring artwork from 72 artists from across the U.S., will kickoff this weekend on the grounds of the Museum of the Southwest.

Activities will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, sponsored by the museum's auxiliary, Las Manos.

Las Manos will have a preview party and art auction from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight at the museum, with dinner provided by Chez Vous. Tickets, priced at $25 per person, will be sold at the door. Guests are asked to dress casually.

Septemberfest activities will kickoff before dawn Saturday with the annual Septemberfest Fun Run.

Runners planning to enter the Fun Run should register at 6:30 a.m. Saturday. The 2-mile or 10-kilometer race will start and finish at the J.E. Borren Store, located on the square downtown. Winners will be honored during Septemberfest ceremonies beginning at 2:45 p.m. Fun Run applications are available at J.E. Borren, the YMCA and The Midlander.

A trip for two to Tokyo, Japan also will given away in a free drawing sponsored by American Airlines. Entry forms will be available at both the entrance area and the American Airlines booth.

REMAX Real Estate will offer a hot-air balloon ride, weather permitting. The company also plans to fly the balloon over the city to draw attention to the fair and will inflate the balloon throughout the day. In addition, REMAX will host a children's coloring contest.

Volunteers interested in working at any one of a number of Septemberfest activities should call 687-2029 or 699-1343.

Money bundles claimed thanks to 'wise' wrapping

HOUSTON (AP) — About 80 people tried to claim more than $13,000 found along a busy interstate highway two months ago but only a Houston used car salesman could identify the cash because it was wrapped with strips of paper featuring pictures of owls.

"An owl has always meant good luck," Alfonso Flores Jr. said Thursday after properly identifying the bundles.

Flores said he lost the money in June when he noticed a suitcase mounted on the luggage rack of his car had popped open in Chambers County, blowing clothes, jewelry and the money all over the road.

"I back-tracked all the way to Lake Charles, La., but all I ever found were a few shirts. No money," he said.

Two families from Baton Rouge, La., found the money when they pulled over on the side of the freeway to quiet their cranky children and turned the cash over to police.

"I can't believe there still are some honest people in the world," Flores, 34, said.

Chambers County Sheriff C.E. Morris said Flores was the only person to identify the money because it was wrapped with the owl-decorated paper strips.

"We had inquiries from people claiming every conceivable thing in the world," he said. "Several said they'd lost it while changing a tire. Others said they'd lost it after stopping by the bank while one woman blamed her kids for throwing it out the car window with the trash."

AIDS, sex education topics of seminar

From Staff Reports

Gene Antonio and Colleen Mast will be featured speakers at a seminar sponsored by the Permian Basin Eagle Forum, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Petroleum Club.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Antonio will speak on AIDS and Ms. Mast will speak on sex education.

Antonio, an investigative reporter, has written a comprehensive book on acquired immune deficiency syndrome. It has been acclaimed by leaders in the church, government and medicine.

He has appeared on more than 100 radio and television programs, including James Dobson's "Focus on the Family" and Marlin Maddox's "Point of View."

He has a BA degree in psychology and economics and a Master of Divinity from Concordia Theological Seminary, having done pastoral counseling with homosexuals, drug addicts and prostitutes.

Ms. Mast wrote "Sex Respect" after searching in vain for a sex education program to teach her health class, one which incorporated the philosophy of abstinence until marriage.

"Sex Respect" is being taught in many junior highs, middle schools and high schools throughout the country.

Ms. Mast holds a BS degree from Quincy College and a MS degree in health education from Western Illinois. She has served as an educational consultant and curriculum development specialist.

Bullock to run for lieutenant governor

AUSTIN (AP) — With a 22-word announcement, state Comptroller Bob Bullock has further scrambled the Democratic Party's 1990 political races.

Bullock on Thursday said he "intends to run for lieutenant governor," a post held since 1973 by Democrat Bill Hobby.

The announcement was made in three-line, typewritten statement distributed to reporters, and comptroller's spokesman Tony Proffitt said his boss was in South Texas bird hunting and not available to comment.

Hobby, a Democrat, announced July 27 that he would not seek political office in 1990, the last full year of his current four-year term.

Attorney General Jim Mattox already has indicated he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor in 1990 year, but no one other than Bullock has announced for lieutenant governor.

State Treasurer Ann Richards, considered by many a possible Democratic candidate for governor or lieutenant governor, said recently it was too soon to say what her political plans are.

Bill Cryer, her spokesman, Thursday said Ms. Richards was in McAllen to attend a political event and not immediately available to comment on Bullock's decision.

John Weaver, the Texas GOP's executive director, said that although the Republican Party didn't challege Bullock in the 1986 election, the 1990 race would be different.

"In 1990, we're going to field a strong slate from U.S. Senate all the way down the ballot to the last statewide office," Weaver said.

"The comptroller's race is now wide open. The lieutenant governor's race already was wide open. It (Bullock's decision) just enhances our position," Weaver said.

Asked about the timing of the announcement for a race that is still three years away, Bullock's spokesman said, "Everyone else seems to be declaring for their races."

Proffitt said Bullock has won a good reputation during his tenure as comptroller.

"He's been comptroller since 1975. We've got a good agency, a good department. It's won national awards. I think he wants another challenge," Proffitt said.

He also noted that Bullock had served in the House and been secretary of state under Gov. Preston Smith before being elected comptroller.

"He was a member of the Legislature. His interest lies more in the practical, legislative side than it does in the policy-making of the governor's office," Proffitt said.

He also said Bullock had "gotten some encouragement from people since Hobby made his announcement. I'm sure that played a part in his decisions."

Bullock had said on election day 1982 that he would run for governor in 1986 but later withdrew as a candidate.

"Frankly, there was no great public clamor for my services as governor. If I were looking for a draft, I think I can now quit waiting," Bullock said in July 1984.

Printers keeping 'hot-lead' print alive

By GORDON ZEIGLER

PLAINVIEW (AP) — The machines still go clickety-clack and the lines of the printing alphabet are still squirted into place, line by line, within the bowels of a creaking, groaning Linotype machine.

That could describe numerous hybridized printing operations around Texas, where a few hot-lead machines still perform some of the tasks of printing, working side by side with new-fangled computerized cold-type equipment.

What makes one Plainview job shop and its still-functioning hot-lead department unique is the two diehard printers who keep the operation going.

"You've heard of the last of the Mohicans? Well, you're looking at 'em," quipped Norman Hardin, 81, a printer and pressman at Eaton-Craig Stationery for almost 40 years.

Nodding in agreement and grinning was his co-worker and longtime friend, Jess Ludrick, 79. Both men have spent the better part of their adult lives as printers. Ludrick retired as production manager after many years at The Plainview Daily Herald, where Hardin also worked part-time.

Stan Lancaster, fulltime printing superintendent at Eaton-Craig, praised the men for their vast knowledge, saying he has appreciated the opportunity to work with his "part-timers" who have helped greatly expand his know-how in printing.

"One of the big advantages I have over most printers is this," Lancaster said. "Never does a question come up that one of these men can't answer."

Lancaster, who usually runs the newer presses, found himself in a near-panic last December when both Hardin and Ludrick were sidelined due to illness.

For two months, he got a hands-on training in Linotype, presswork and other tasks he had only observed before.

"I never realized how much I missed them until they both went in the hospital at the same time," Lancaster said.

Harding and Ludrick keep up a continuous banter with each other during the work day, but each has a word of praise for the other.

"Norman is the best broach man I've ever seen," Ludrick said, pointing at his skill of creating intricate lined and ruled jobs, taking a lot of skill in sawing, measuring and positioning the lead.

"Jess, to me, is the personification of a man who loves to work. He doesn't ever have a slack minute. In fact he drives himself, sometimes unmercifully," Hardin said.

Together, Harding and Ludrick have amassed over 130 years of printing experience. They both recall entering the field as teen-agers, coming upon their first jobs almost by accident.

Hardin's first day was March 16, 1917, at a daily newspaper in Corsicana. It was his brother's birthday and he had agreed to fill in for him for one day.

But once was not enough for Hardin. He says the printing bug bit him that day and never let go.

Ludrick was a high school student in Lawton, Okla., working on Saturdays as a shoe department salesman and picking cotton during the week.

In November 1924, The Lawton Constitution called him to "take another guy's place for two weeks." Time went by and Ludrick was called back for a third weekend. He found himself working all Saturday night and then on Sunday. The other guy never came back.

Within three years, Ludrick had mastered the Linotype, was a card-carrying union printer and found himself in charge of the Constitution's "ad alley" — the department that set up all the merchants' advertisements. Ludrick says ad makeup has always been his favorite specialty — one he did for many years at The Herald.

Hardin and Ludrick both moved to Plainview in 1947, Ludrick to work at The Herald, and Hardin to take a job at Thatcher Printing, later purchased by Eaton and Suddeth. That same year, they become co-workers and eventually close friends when Hardin began filling in at the newspaper on Saturday nights as a Linotype operator.

AP Laserphoto

Norman Hardin, 81, right, a printer and pressman at Eaton-Craig Stationary in Plainview, for nearly 40 years, talks with co-worker Jess Ludrick, 79. Both men have spent the better part of their adult lives as printers.

Ludrick, who has owned his own job shops in Oklahoma and worked in college publishing before joining The Herald, enjoyed building his own part-time business, Caprock Rubber Stamp Co., making rubber stamps in his backyard shop.

After retirement, Ludrick and Hardin both wound up working at Eaton-Craig as part-timers.

In the years between, both reared families at homes only several blocks apart. Since Ludrick began working with Hardin again, the two team up regularly to ride to work.

Of his printing career, Hardin says:

"I've seen printing change five times in my lifetime, the biggest being the introduction of offset (or cold type) 30 years ago," he said. "There was a definite advantage in the speed. Sheet fed presses had a tops of 5,000 impressions per hour while a good offset could run 10,000 to 12,000 per hour.

"About printing, I would have to say it gives you an opportunity to obtain a wide range of general knowledge — most of it useless. But if your are turned in that direction, you can sit in almost any gathering and follow the conversation," he said.

"Printers coming into the trade today are specialists," Ludrick said. "The old style printer was trained to do it all...run a press, operate a Linotype, set up a form of type to print it."

DEATHS

John Lokey

John Lokey, 70, of Midland, died at a local hospital Wednesday.

Services were to be 1 p.m. today in the Ellis Chapel, with the Rev. Marshall Mason of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church and the Rev. Bob Porterfield of Kentucky Street Baptist Church officiating. Burial was to follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Lokey was born Dec. 18, 1916, in Big Sandy and was reared in Henderson. He met Margarite Barnes there, and they were married July 4, 1936. In 1941, they moved to Houston, where he was employed by the Coca-Cola Company.

During World War II, he was in the Navy, serving in the South Pacific and in the Atlantic theaters as a fireman. Following his discharge, he returned to Houston and his job with Coca-Cola. He retired in 1978 as service manager. At that time, he returned to Henderson and worked part-time in the Cockran Brothers hardware store. He moved to Midland Aug. 5, 1987.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church in Henderson and a member of the Keen-age Choir.

Survivors include his wife; one son, James Lokey of Brenham; one daughter, Beverly Alstrin of Midland; two sisters, Juanita Bennett of Henderson and Kara Bozeman of Longview; six grandchildren; and one great-granchild.

Pallbearers were to be Dick Reed, Ron Britton, Steven Pruett, Stephen Alstrin, K.F. Lehenbauer, Thurman Wyatt, Michael Alstrin and Dick Clutter.

Bringing the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble here is one in a series of events planned by the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs in advance of the July celebration and is called a Celebration advance — "A Celebration in Dance."

Last year, the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs brought Project Replica to Midland. Project Replica, a miniature unit of the black soldiers and cowboys of the West, is presented by the Lubbock-based Roots Historical Arts Council.

Residence burglary under investigation

From Staff Reports

Police Roundup

Midland County Sheriff's investigators are investigating the burglary of a residence that netted burglars items valued at nearly $1,000.

According to reports, a microwave oven valued at $375, clothes dryer valued at $350, stereo system with speakers and several tapes valued at $200, and a ceiling fan valued at $50 were reported stolen from a vacant residence in the Country Village Mobile Home Park.

The burglars may have entered the home, which is owned by a Fort Collins, Colo., couple, through the back door, reports said.

Damage to the residence and to an air conditioner at the home was estimated at $1,000, according to reports.

The burglary occurred sometime between Sept. 6 and Thursday, reports said.

Spears announces retirement

AUSTIN (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Franklin Spears says he will retire Oct. 1, 1988, creating the second vacancy on the all-Democratic high court for Republican Gov. Bill Clements to fill.

Spears' current term expires at the end of 1990. He said Thursday he plans to return to a private law practice when he retires.

Chief Justice John Hill announced last month that he would resign Jan. 1.

"On Oct. 1 of next year, I will have completed my 20th year as a judge. It has been my intention for the last six years to retire on that date," Spears said.

"The reason I would be retiring would be so I could go back to San Antonio, join a law firm that will pay me for my experience, expertise and files and see if I can't make enough money to retire on," he said.

Spears is a former San Antonio district judge. He says many friends have urged him not to retire, so Clements would not be able to make two appointments to the court.

"I have given that some consideration, although I haven't really changed my plans yet," Spears said.

In addition to the two retirements, three of the courts remaining seven justices must stand for re-election next year.

Libertarian candidate called 'major talent'

AUSTIN (AP) — An officer of the Libertarian Party in Texas said today the party's nomination of former Texas congressman Ron Paul for president moves Libertarians from the minor to the major leagues in American politics.

"Dr. Paul is not a peanut farmer or a movie actor, but I still think he can be elected president," said Gary Johnson, secretary of the Texas Libertarian Party.

Paul, said Johnson, "is a giant among dwarfs."

Paul, 52-year-old obstetrician from Lake Jackson, was elected to Congress four times as a Republican, in 1976, 1978, 1980 and 1982. He lost in the 1984 GOP primary for U.S. senator.

He joined the Libertarian Party in February, and was nominated for president at the party's convention in Seattle, Wash., on Sept. 5.

"In the past, we have run earnest and boring college professors for president. This time, our standard bearer is an experienced leader who has demonstrated he can be taken seriously as a candidate, raise money, and win public office," Johnson said in a prepared statement.

WEST TEXAS IN BRIEF

Suggs to address group on Gospel of Matthew

From Staff Reports

Suggs

Dr. M. Jack Suggs, Dean of Brite Divinity School in Fort Worth, will be speaking at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Dr. Suggs, also a professor of New Testament at Brite Divinity School, at TCU, will be speaking on the Gospel of Matthew. The lecture series will continue at the Sunday morning church services, beginning at 10:50 a.m., and at the evening vesper service at 5 p.m.

Named Dean of Brite Divinity in 1977, a Fellow of the American Council of Learned Societies and member of the Society of Biblical Literature, Dr. Suggs is also on the Council on the Study of Religion Committee for ACLS.

The lecture series is free and open to the public.

Lecturer to address DAR

From Staff Reports

Stephen Pratt, a nationally known lecturer on American Constitutional government, will be the guest speaker at the Daughters of the American Revolution Luncheon on Tuesday at the Woman's Club.

"Constitution Week," Sept. 17-23, annually is proclaimed by the President of the United States, by act of Congress.

Pratt is on the speakers bureau for the National Center for Constitutional Studies in Washington.

In 1986, he presented a unique teaching technique before the nation's Bicentennial Commission. He has since published this method in a widely distributed booklet, entitled, "Why the Constitution?"

Pratt graduated with a master's degree from Brigham Young University and completed post-graduated studies at the University of California at Berkeley.

After teaching college for seven years, he became an independent businessman and consultant.

While serving on the research staff of the National Center for Constitution Studies he has assisted in the publishing of a monthly magazine and two major textbooks.

The luncheon is a joint Constitution Week observance with Col. Theunis Dey Chapter, NSDAR, Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Colonists, Colonial Dames, and U.S. Daughters of 1812.

Cheerleader clinic begins

From Staff Reports

A cheerleader clinic is slated for 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Midland High School Youth Center.

Varsity and Junior Varsity cheerleaders at MHS will teach chants and yells to the participants.

Fee will be $10, which includes the cost of a snack and lunch.

Janice Strickland, a teacher and cheerleader sponsor at MHS, will coordinate the clinic.

Farmers to have real 'field day' with tours beginning Monday

Kiker

The 1987 Agricultural Field Day and Media Appreciation Day has been scheduled for Monday, beginning at 8:30 a.m., at the Midland County Extension Office.

Being aware of advances in agricultural research is an essential part of successful farming. And, diversification in agriculture is on the minds of many of today's farmers.

This year's field day features a tour of the Ervin Bauman farm, the Guy Richards farm, and the Vernon Holcomb Aquaculture farm. The tour will concentrate on cotton research, but will also allow you to see current research in agricultural diversification.

Cotton — "king of the south" — still remains the leading agriculture commodity of West Texas in planted acres. Research in cotton production continues to be of utmost importance with the approximately 250,000 acres planted in the four-county area of Midland, Howard, Martin and Andrews in 1987.

Cotton varieties, crop rotation, irrigation systems, insect control, plant population, planting dates, weed control and fertilization are only a few of the result demonstrations conducted in these four counties.

The development of the Permian Basin Farmers' Market and the market locations in Odessa, Midland and Big Spring have brought about a new income potential for agricultural producers. Current daily markets at the Midland location is providing from $5,000-$6,000 income to the sellers. With the establishment of this new agricultural opportunity, there is an increased need for horticulture research in vegetable and fruit crops.

This challenge is being met by the area county Extension staffs through demonstrations in canteloupe, tomatoes, onions, asparagus, watermelons, blackberries and peppers.

Aquaculture here in West Texas? You got it! A very interesting and exciting business with a potential in West Texas.

With the philosophy of the Extension, People Helping People, a desire of a West Texas rancher, Vernon Holcomb, and the professional advice of Johnny Harrison, retired County Extension Agent, Ward County; Dr. Jim Davis, marine biologist, TAMU; and Gary Clevenger, Martin County Extension Agent, shrimp, redfish, trout and oysters are a few of the seafood products being researched with shrimp being the most successful.

• • •

Another Extension meeting of interest to pecan producers has been scheduled for Tuesday at the County Extension office beginning at 7 p.m.

The 1988 year of activities will be planned, as well as the Permian Basin Pecan Seminar, scheduled for Oct. 9-10 at UTPB, will be discussed.

The meeting will also include an ice cream social, so you are asked to bring a freezer of ice cream or a cake.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Earnest C. Kiker is Midland County Extension Agent for Agriculture.

Raw products prices consistently low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices farmers got for raw products in August dropped 2.3 percent for the second straight month, the Agriculture Department says.

The August decline, which left prices at their year-earlier average, was identical to a 2.3 percent drop in July. During the first half of 1987, the price index rose in six consecutive months.

Lower prices for cotton, apples, potatoes, corn and soybeans contributed most to the decline from July to August, the USDA said Monday. Higher prices for broilers, cattle and milk helped offset some of the decline for the other commodities, however.

"The decrease in the average price of cotton was due mainly to a shift in cotton marketings from the normally higher priced western areas to the southwestern areas where the new crop harvest has begun," the report said.

"Most feed grain and oilseed prices dropped from a month earlier, while rice and all wheat continued unchanged," it added. "Calf prices increased to $81.60 per hundredweight, the highest since March 1980. The beef cattle price increased from July, while average hog prices were lower."

Prices for livestock and livestock products as a group were reported up 0.7 percent from July and averaged 1.4 percent more than a year ago. The index of prices for poultry and eggs was up 4.8 percent from July but was down 26 percent from August 1986.

However, the all-crops price index dropped 7.5 percent in August and averaged 3.9 percent less than a year ago, the report said. Cotton prices led the decline, averaging 17 percent lower than in July but still 27 percent more than in August 1986.

The preliminary August figures were based mostly on mid-month averages and will be subject to revision.

No new figures were reported to show what happened to prices paid by farmers to meet expenses. The most recent average computed in July showed farm expenses running 3.1 percent higher than a year earlier.

Feed grain prices declined 5.8 percent in August, averaging 6.9 percent less than a year ago. Decreases from July were reported for corn, barley and sorghum, while oats and hay increased.

Potato and dry bean prices as a group declined 19 percent from July and averaged 4.3 percent below a year earlier. All of the drop was due to lower potato prices, which fell from $6.89 per 100 pounds in July to $5.38 in August.

Clone-like cattle may be on horizon

DEFOREST, Wis. (AP) — An experimental process similar to cloning produced two female calves earlier this year and could permit future cattle breeders to create entire herds of cows with the same genetic makeup, scientists say.

"The effect is the same as cloning," said Robert E. Walton, president of American Breeders Service, the world's largest such service for dairy and beef cattle. "We can almost tell them where the spots will be on a Holstein cow."

ABS scientists, working with University of Wisconsin-Madison scientist Neal First, succeeded with "an early example of cloning" when the two calves, named Fusion and Copy, were born in May and June, Walton said Tuesday.

The experiment, he said, meant scientists could produce "many sets of identical twins," and the process could lead to breeders and farmers having a herd of cattle comprised of genetically identical animals.

"Our fundamental objective is the improvement of livestock, creating cattle that produce more milk efficiently or produce meat more efficiently," he said.

Advantages of the process would include more precise advance knowledge of the production capabilities and disposition of cattle, he said.

The process, as described by Walton, involved:

— Taking nuclei from 16-cell bovine embryos and placing them in bovine eggs whose nuclei had been removed.

— Maturing the new embryos and then transferring them into adult cows, which later gave birth to the calves.

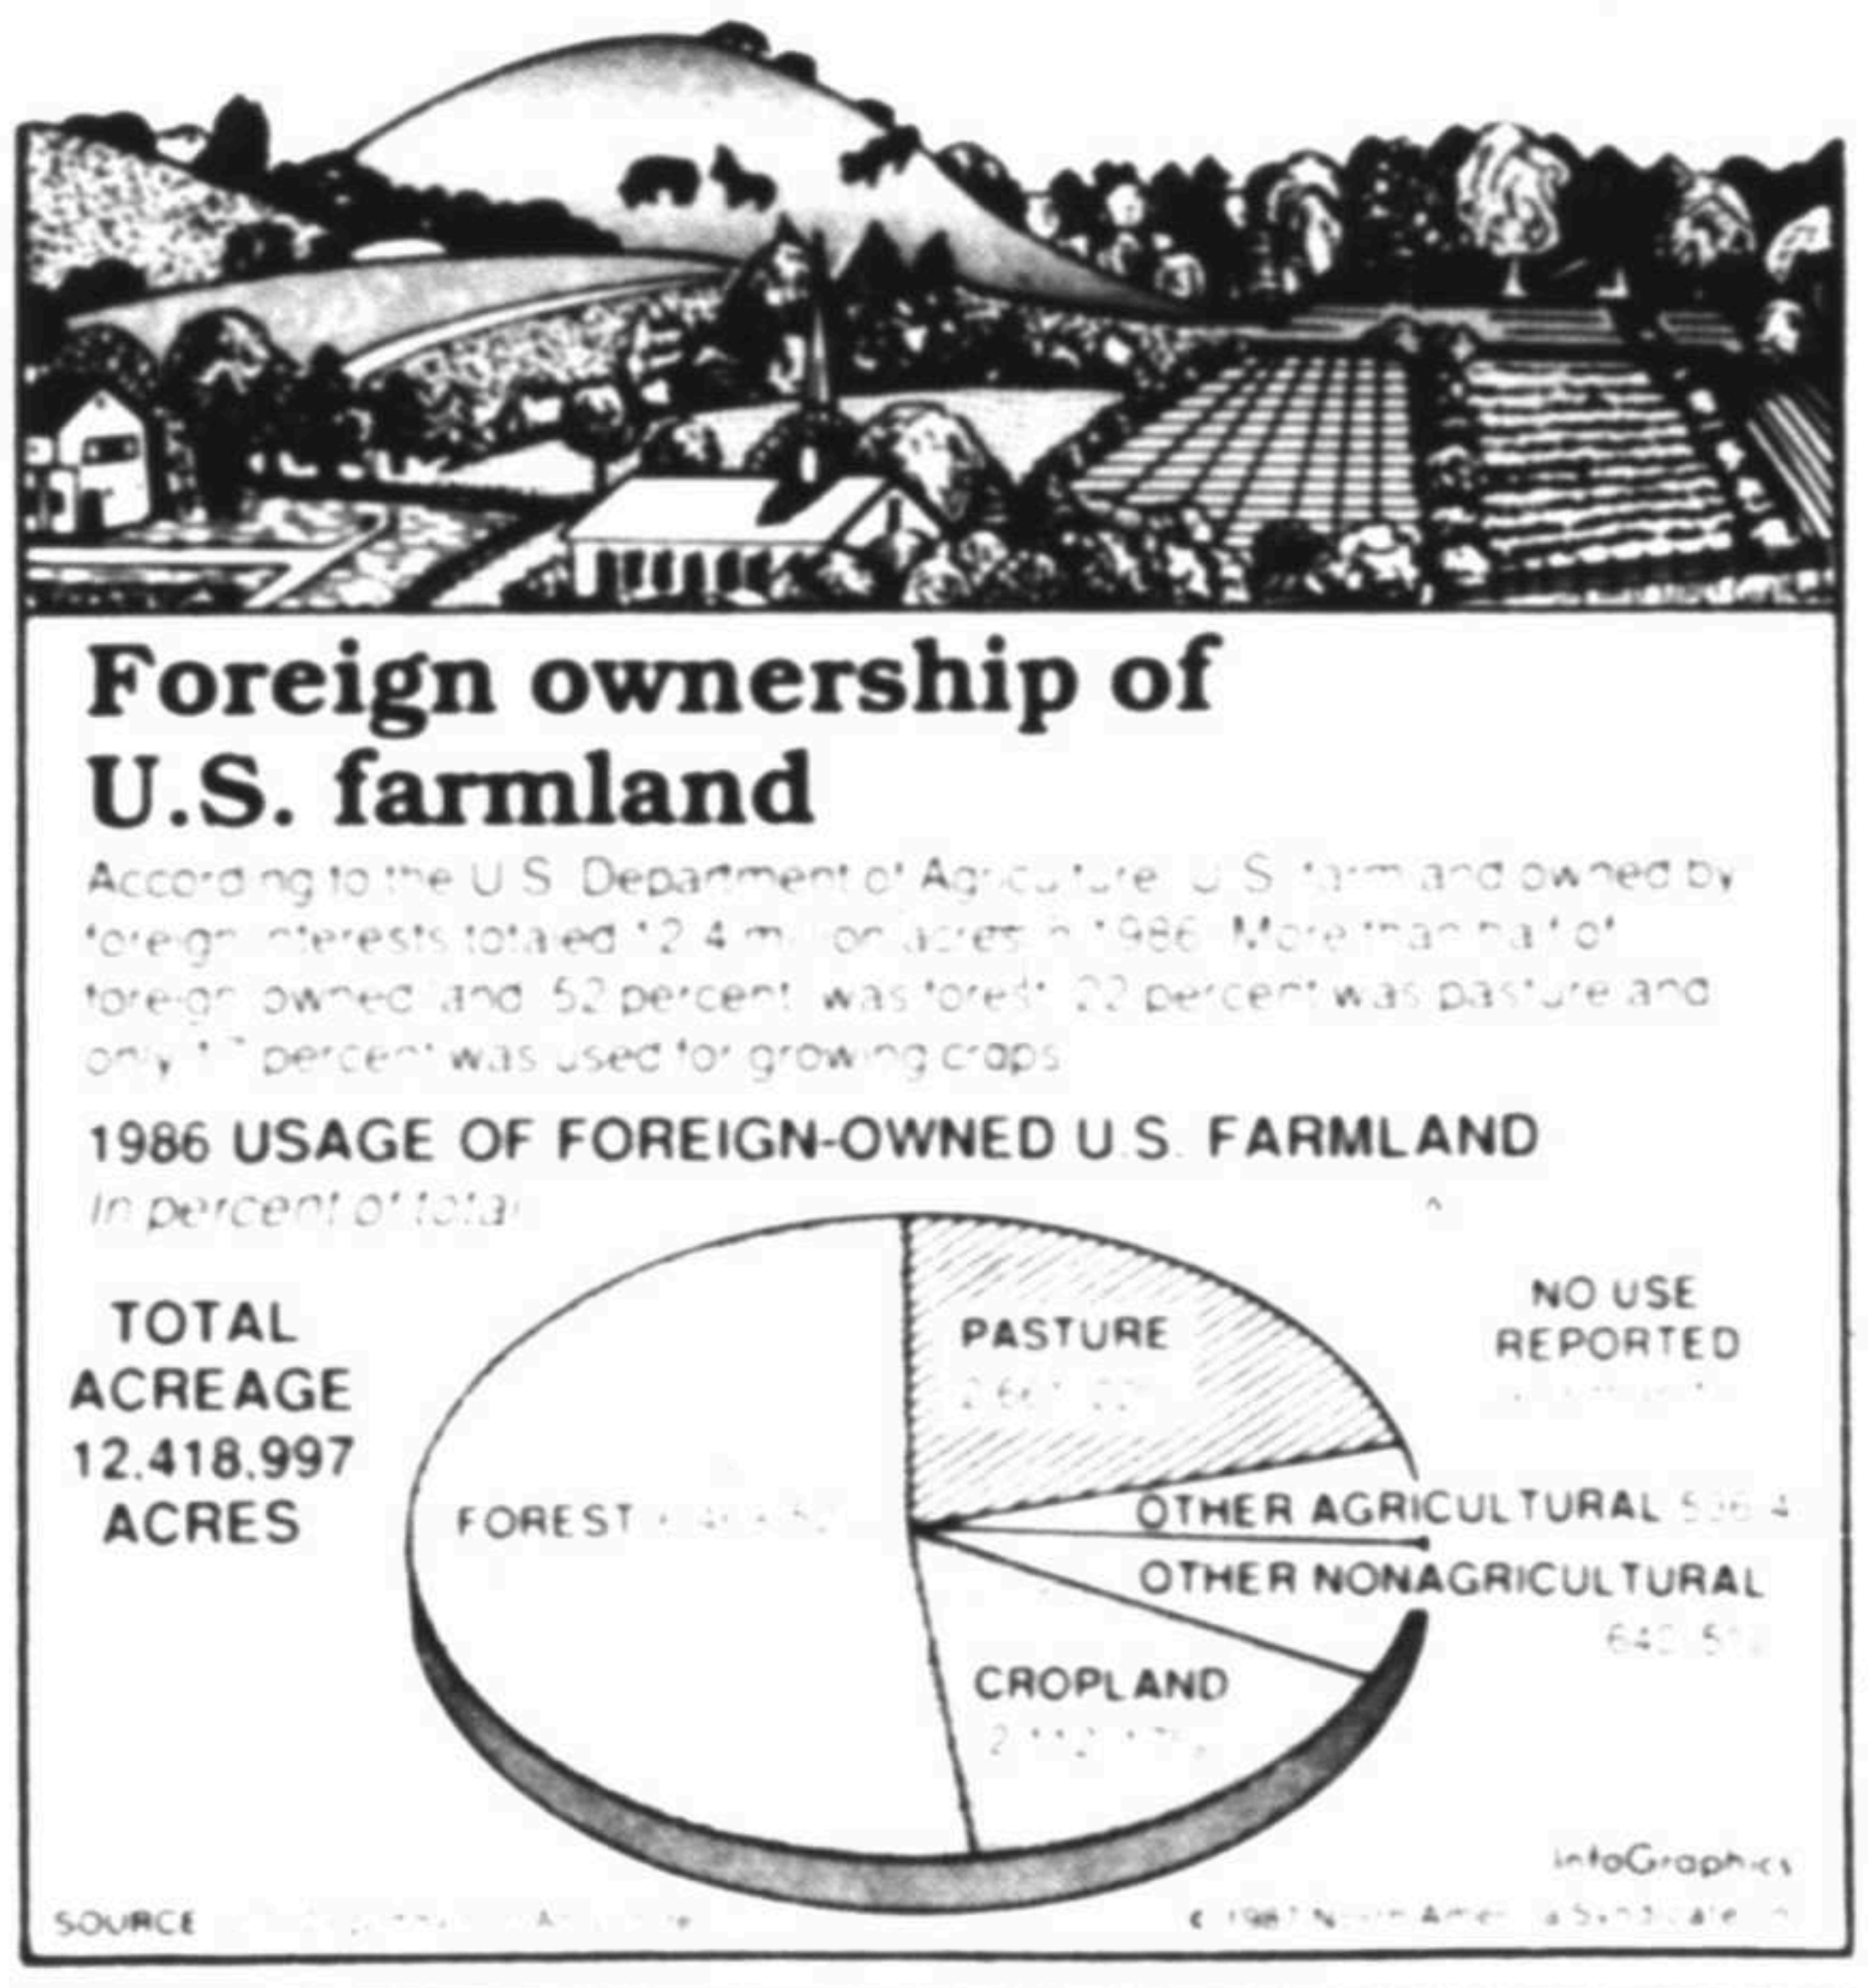
The process would bypass the point in the reproductive process when cells and genetic material are divided to form individuals whose genetic characteristics thus can differ.

"This lets us bypass that problem so we know what we've got," Walton said. "We can offer a fertilized embryo to one of our customers and say without a doubt what it is."

ABS, which had about $40 million in sales last year, is a division of W.R. Grace & Co. and has worked for five years to develop the process, Walton said.

The new process does not create carbon copies of the original cow and bull but instead involves cloning of the embryos they produce, First said.

The embryos can be cloned and the resulting calves compared. Identical embry so that have been frozen can be thawed later and cloned to produce cows with the desired characteristics.



Foreign ownership of U.S. farmland

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, U.S. farmland owned by foreign interests totaled 12.4 million acres in 1986. More than half of foreign-owned land, 52 percent, was forest; 22 percent was pasture and only 17 percent was used for growing crops.

Killer Carolina weed sought by men on horses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Horse-mounted USDA patrols are scouting the back country of North Carolina and South Carolina in quest of a 10-inch plant that can wreak havoc with such crops as corn, sorghum and sugarcane.

The plant, known as witchweed, has wiped out the capacity of many parts of Asia and Africa to produce agricultural goods.

In this country it is confined to the Carolinas.

To prevent a recurrence of the devastation in Africa and Asia, the Agriculture Department's animal and plant health inspection service is attempting to eradicate the slender, red-blossomed, parasitic weed.

"The entire program to eradicate witchweed hinges on knowing where it is, and that's where horses come in," says Haywood Cox, the service's assistant southeast regional director.

Ron Lowry, a service employee, was the first to suggest that the horse might succeed where driving over the terrain and infrared photography from airplanes had failed.

"When you're steering a vehicle, you have to watch out for potholes, for snakes, for trenches," Lowry said. "If you're busy doing your job looking for witchweed, you can miss these hazards — but a horse won't."

Horses, which Lowry rented to the service for a dollar, soon outdistanced cars and a foot patrol in the search for the weed.

This year, two horses, Ginger and Summer Two, crisscrossed 2,500 miles of Carolina countryside, ridden by their owners, Lycurocis and Lyavans Lowry of Pembroke, N.C. And the Lowry family mule, Francis, was added to the team.

Fat increasing with age is 'myth'

WASHINGTON (AP) — USDA researchers, doing their bit in the war against middle-aged flab, say it's a myth that as you get older your metabolism slows down and your weight picks up.

It isn't middle age but the amount of time people devote to aerobic exercise that determines their fat level, says physiologist Carol N. Meredith of USDA's human nutrition research center on aging.

She and her colleagues at Tufts University in Boston compared the fitness level and exercise habits of 12 highly active men — six in their 20s and six in their 50s.

All had been running, rowing or cycling regularly for at least two years.

"Their fat level had nothing to do with their age," she said, "only with the amount of time they spent exercising."

RICHARD MINZENMAYER

Ants are 'social insects,' prefer sweets

Minzenmayer

Ants are social insects that are easily distinguished from other insects because their body regions are distinctly defined by very narrow attachments. The abdomen is attached to the thorax (segments bearing the legs) by a one or two segmented slender attachment called a petiole. Ants may have one or two bumps or nodes on their petioles, depending on the species. They have large distinct heads with elbowed antennae, easily seen eyes, and chewing mouthparts. The first antennal segment is long and is attached at right angles to the rest of the antenna, which is segmented and may end in a club. Ants use their chewing mouthparts for constructing nests, gathering food or defending the colony, but they feed solely on liquid foods.

Odorous house ant workers are brown to black and one-eighth of an inch long. The thorax does not have spines and the petiole has only one segment. The petiole has a very small node that is hidden by the rest of the abdomen. The best identifying characteristic is the "rancid butter" smell these ants produce when they are crushed, thus their name.

Odorous house ants are native ants that often nest outdoors under stones or logs. They can also nest indoors in wall or floor voids, especially around heat sources. These ants are much like Pharaoh ants in that they seldom swarm, mating in the nest and forming new colonies by "budding" off the original colony. Each nest will have several females, each of which lays one egg a day. The eggs hatch in 11 to 26 days, the larval stage takes 13 to 29 days and the pupal stage lasts eight to 25 days.

Odorous house ants are like Argentine ants in that they travel in trails and prefer sweets, although they will eat almost any household food. They usually invade homes during rainy periods when honeydew on plants has been washed off.

Odorous house ants prefer sweets but they are not easily controlled using sweetened baits. The most effective control is accomplished when ant trails are followed to find the nest. The nest can be treated with residual insecticide sprays and dusts. Bendiocarb, carbaryl, chlorpyrifos, diazinon, fenthion, malathion, propetamphos, propoxur, pyrethrine plus diatoms or silica gel, and resmethrin can be used to control odorous house ants.

Richard Minzenmayer is Extension Agent for Entomology in Midland, Martin and Howard counties.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Attention to detail will not be as important as flexibility this year. Make firm business decisions in October. Do not wait for others. Take direct action when things need to be done. You will get a romantic commitment only when you are able to make one yourself. Sell your business associates on your sterling ideas and high ideals. Once you decide to do something, nothing can dampen your enthusiasm!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: columnist H.L. Mencken, Olympic great Jesse Owens, comedian Ben Blue, actor Maurice Chevalier, "Dallas" star Linda Gray, publisher Alfred A. Knopf, newsman Frank McGee, singer Barry White, animal trainer Gunther Gebel-Williams.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Asserting your independence by pursuing a far-flung interest could play havoc with a personal relationship. The choice is up to you. Be receptive to change — it will make you grow.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work and health conditions require your attention today. Your expectations regarding a parent or partnership may be unrealistic. Taking a more practical approach will prevent disappointment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Any doubts about a decision should be put to rest. You find the answers to a puzzle when you ask the right questions. Probe beneath the surface. Romance shows new promise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Surprising news involving a family member or close friend reaches you. You may have to cancel some travel plans. You get a chance to relax tonight. Enjoy a quiet evening with mate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may find yourself pulled in several directions. Try to concentrate on one project at a time. Scattering your energies too widely would be a mistake. Loved one enlightens and entertains you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A much more relaxed atmosphere surrounds you now. Try to be more flexible when dealing with mate and family members. TLC heals bruised feelings quickly. Be willing to admit your mistakes. Understanding grows.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bite your tongue today or you could set off major fireworks at home. A social affair will distract someone from dwelling on a touchy domestic matter. An unexpected check relieves financial woes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): When you are charged up, you have a tendency to overdo things. Slow down and you will get better results. Spend more time with your family. A visit from a friend makes the evening memorable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stop being envious of someone else — and show more confidence in your own abilities. An important change is just ahead. Your timing is excellent. Approach an influential friend with a clever idea.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Try to get a better perspective on your own and your partner's actions before making a major decision. If you ask the right questions, you will get answers. Your intuition is right on target.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your perseverance begins to pay off. A tricky financial situation turns the corner. A personal relationship could change from one minute to the next, testing your patience. Avoid issuing an ultimatum.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Despite domestic disruptions, your plans are on safe ground. Ignoring a stubborn person may be your best move. A close relationship is put to the test. Following your intuition pays off handsomely.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♢	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡

To get the most out of this column, cover the East and South hands with your thumbs and decide how you, as West, would defend against six clubs. The auction has told you little other than that South has a very strong hand with good clubs.

You lead the king of hearts, and you already have collected your book. Because another heart might prove costly, you shift to a trump at trick two. Declarer wins and rattles off five more trump tricks. Which five cards do you give up?

From the bidding, you can assume that South started with a singleton heart—he would not leap to six clubs with two fast losers in a suit. Because there is now no entry to dummy, you can safely let go all three of your hearts.

The fourth discard is also easy. Even if declarer has a side five-card diamond suit—hardly likely, for with that holding he would have bid the hand as a two-suiter—your jack will still stop the suit, so you can afford to part with a diamond. But what about your last discard?

You should know that declarer cannot have a losing diamond. If he did, he would certainly have ruffed it in dummy. Therefore, you can afford to sluff another diamond.

The one card you cannot spare at any time is a spade. If you don't believe us, it's time for you to look at the full diagram. If you parted with a spade anywhere along the line, the slam will roll home when declarer's ace-king of spades picks up all your side's cards in the suit, and his low spade becomes the fulfilling trick.

Isn't defense easy if you just use the knowledge available to you?

Committee of Style completed report

From The Associated Press

Tuesday, Sept. 11, 1787

1787 Constitution Daybook

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Jacob Hiltzheimer noted that it was exceedingly warm. He attended the Assembly in the forenoon, where a bill to liberate Paul Houghman, jailed over his accounts as a tax collector, was discussed.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

As they had since Sept. 3, the delegation from New York and Virginia and single delegates from Massachusetss, Pennsylvania, Maryland, North Carolina and Georgia met on the floor of Congress, found no quorum present, and adjourned.

William Knox wrote from Roxbury, Mass., to his brother Henry in New York.

"This morning a Corvette or Royal Vessel arrived here in the Harbour of Boston in forty days from Brest with orders for the fleet under Viscount de Reaumont to repair immediately to France in consequence of which orders have been given to the fleet to sail tomorrow morning. This has a serious appearance and produces various conjectures. The probability is that hostilities are commenced or expected soon to commence with the powers in the different interests of Holland."

And thus did the secretary of war gather intelligence in 1787.

CONVENTION TODAY

Secretary Jackson recorded in the journal:

"The House met — but the Committee of Revision not having reported, and there being no business before the Convention — The House Adjourned."

DELEGATES TODAY

William Livingston (N.J.) wrote his son-in-law John Jay in New York to thank him for forwarding the packet of papers to John Tabor Kempe in London, "as it will be of real importance to him if he receives it before the commissioners he mentions have finally reported relative to his confiscated property in the State of New Jersey. I am also obliged to you for your promise of paying me a visit on my return to Elizabeth Town, & the more so as there is another promise to it, of bringing with you a certain little gentleman (grandson Peter Jay) whom I greatly long to see. I shall inform you of my arrival without loss of time. But my hopes of returning by the time expected are a little clouded by reason of there being certain creatures in this world that are more pleased with their speeches than they can (prevail) upon anybody else to be."

LOOKING BACK
The Committee of Style

On this day, the five members of the Committee of Style — William Samuel Johnson (Conn.), Alexander Hamilton (N.Y.), Gouverneur Morris (Pa.), James Madison (Va.) and Rufus King (Mass.) — completed their report for presentation tomorrow. Between the afternoon of Sept. 8 and the evening of this day, the committee had reorganized and compressed the preamble and 23 articles into a preamble and seven articles of remarkable force and clarity.

Little is known about how the committee proceeded. Johnson's diary indicates that he met with the committee after dinner on Sept. 8, and met them again on the 10th and 11th. It seems likely that the committee met on the 8th, worked out an outline, agreed on where each of the 23 articles fit into the new outline and assigned a member or members to do a draft. The draft was probably prepared on Sunday the 9th, reviewed and reworked as necessary on the 10th, and given any needed final touches on the 11th. All of the available evidence points to Gouverneur Morris as the draftsman, although the other four members wrote exceptionally well.

It is known, however, that what they accomplished was to give us the language we have cherished, and been governed by, for two centuries.

As an example, they took:

"We the people of the States of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North-Carolina, and Georgia, do ordain, declare and establish the following Constitution for the Government of Ourselves and our Posterity.

"ARTICLE I

"The stile of this Government shall be, 'The United States of America.'

"II

"The Government shall consist of supreme legislative, executive and judicial powers" and turned it into:

"We, the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, to establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

While historians have suspected that Gouverneur Morris, through careful selection and arrangement of words and punctuation marks, artfully bent the meaning of some provisions closer to his personal views — he later claimed as much — this was not a Convention which could be easily flim-flammed. What Morris did is to present the Convention's work in language which has endured.

PEOPLE

DALLAS (AP) — Toddie Lee Wynne Jr., a Dallas Cowboys founder who had a reputation for large and successful business ventures throughout the state, died Thursday of a heart attack. He was 62.

The businessman who got his start in Texas oil fields, was instrumental in developing Six Flags Over Texas, as well as various business buildings such as the Great Southwest Industrial Park, the Plaza of the Americas in Dallas and the Dallas Skyway.

He also started Space Services Inc., which launched the first private space rocket off Matagorda Island in 1982.

Wynne was president of American Home Realty Co. and Star Brand Cattle Co., both owned by American Liberty.

He is survived by his wife, Jacque; three sons, Wreno Smith Wynne of Houston; James Young Wynne and William Benjamin Wynne of Dallas; and a daughter, Tancy Wynne Spence of Wyoming.

• • •

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Lorne Greene was back on the critical list today after doctors tried unsuccessfully to clear his infected lungs, officials said.

Greene's condition was downgraded from serious to critical Thursday, said St. John's Hospital spokesman Armen Markarian.

Greene, 72, is suffering respiratory distress "due to a prolonged infection and an inabliity to clear his lungs of resulting secretions," Markarian said.

Greene, who played patriarch Ben Cartwright to three strapping sons on the long-running TV series "Bonanza," underwent abdominal surgery Aug. 19 for a perforated ulcer. He contracted pneumonia while recovering and for a time needed oxygen to ease his breathing.

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Charles Glass, the American journalist who escaped in August after two months of captivity in Beirut, says he has been showered with offers to tell his story but will just give a few lectures.

"There is just something wrong with...making a lot of money out of being a hostage while friends are still hostage," Glass wrote in the weekly Spectator, published Thursday.

He said the lectures would be aimed at launching a new plan to benefit other captives. He did not describe the plan.

There are 24 Westerners still missing in Lebanon, including eight Americans. The longest-held hostage is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was seized March 16, 1985.

FAMILY MATTERS

Cancer patient unwilling to talk

By JIM MAY

May

DEAR FAMILY: My mother has recently been diagnosed as having cancer. It has been very traumatic for us all. But what makes it worse is that she is not willing to talk about it with us at all. She is scheduled for surgery next week with some treatments after that. Dad does not talk about it either, but they both seem very tense to me. I really don't know what I should do or say. I try to cheer them up and be very positive about everything, but I can tell that mother is not buying it. When I try to find out some details of the cancer or the treatments, they won't tell me anything except that she has cancer and everything is going to be fine.

My mother has always been very independent and I feel very helpless in not being able to say or do anything that seems to help. What can I do to help? WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR WORRIED: In my experience, no matter how much someone might know about cancer intellectually, a diagnosis of cancer comes as a real blow, like being "hit by a truck."

During this stage, just hearing the word "cancer" from the physician often prevents a patient from hearing the complete diagnosis and the indicated treatments. It is very important that a support person be with the cancer patient to be able to assimilate the information. For example, in your mother's case, she simply may not know the details of her cancer or the treatments.

Many cancer patients experience anger with the diagnosis. That anger may range from bitterness to open hostility. Anxiety is unavoidable and you may observe crying, a lack of concentration, or preoccupation.

It is very common for many patients diagnosed with cancer to experience depression and question "Why me?"

Your mother and father may be grappling with all of this and have chosen to say nothing and suffer quietly. I have found that many older people in West Texas are very stoic about cancer.

Let me share some suggestions with you about what you can do to help. I have found that establishing some concrete action plans seems to really help the family and the cancer patient. The action plans include the following:

■ Learn the specific illness-related procedures associated with the cancer. Successfully performing those procedures reimparts a sense of independence and control.

■ Seek relevant information about the cancer. This is primarily an intellectual exercise, but it is consistent with our prior educational experiences — the more we know about something, the less helpless we feel.

■ Seek our support groups and self-help organizations to help relieve tension and share concerns.

■ Set immediate concrete goals concerning going away to a special place on a specified date, going back to work on a specified date, and so on.

I also encourage your mother and father to attend the "I Can Cope" program offered by the American Cancer Society. The program is a patient education program for adult cancer patients, their families and friends. It covers many of the issues we have discussed and more. The next series will start 7 p.m. Sept. 22 at the Midland headquarters of the American Cancer Society. I hope you and your parents can attend.

DEAR FAMILY: My husband's brother is a racist. He makes fun of blacks and Hispanics. Both my husband and I are offended by what he says, but rather than making a scene, we say nothing. I don't think it is realistic to think in terms of doing anything about him, he is family. However, I would like to be able to tell our children something in response to his utterances. Any suggestions? DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Teaching children to respect all groups, not just specific groups, is one of the most difficult responsibilities parents have. It is especially difficult when a member of your own family espouses racial prejudices.

I suggest you tell your children that you do not agree with what their uncle says and in your house, their house, such racist views are not tolerated.

I believe it is very important to teach children to respect each human being regardless of how they differ from one another. Each human being has the right to be respected. However, the children also must be taught the difference between respect and approval. For example, your children will be taught by your actions to respect their uncle, but not to approve his racial statements.

Jim May is the director of the Family Wellness Center.

DEAR ABBY

Teen's tantrums trip up parents' weekend plans

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have two daughters, 12 and 14. The 14-year-old hates to go anywhere with us — even to the corner store. I usually let her stay home, but we're planning a long weekend trip, and she's begging me not to make her go. Frankly, I would just as soon stay home than have her with us complaining about the long drive and whining all the time because she's bored. She says she can stay with her girlfriend if I let her stay home. It would make a more pleasant trip for me. I'm torn both ways. I keep telling myself: "Why should I give in and let her stay with her friend? I don't know the friend's parents that well, and she's only 14. I'd worry about her."

On the other hand I say to myself: "If she is forced to go with us and sulks, whines and complains, I could ignore her. But why should I have to suffer and have my trip ruined?"

Please help me, Abby. — GOING CRAZY IN SANTA ANA

DEAR GOING: Your daughter is manipulating you. She whines and complains so you will not want her around. Lay down the law. Insist that she go with you and refuse to put up with her childish tantrums. When she knows her scheme is not working, she'll make the best of it and lighten up. If you let her win, you will be sending her the message that all she has to do to get her way is be obnoxious and you'll knuckle under.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 33-year-old woman who has been married four times. None of my marriages lasted over a year (two divorces and two annulments). I'm beautiful, intelligent, rich (Daddy's money) and miserable. I've experienced both alcohol and dope addiction, been hospitalized twice, but I'm clean now. So why am I writing to you?

I've kept a daily diary for 17 years, and I'd like to send you my diaries so you can tell me if you think my life's story would make a good television series. (My psychiatrist thinks it would.) I don't expect you to read the entire 17 years' worth, but how about if I sent you the last 10 years?

Before I send these diaries, I need to be sure you will return them — registered mail, of course, at my expense. Thank you. — MY SIGN IS LEO

DEAR LEO: Please don't send me your diaries. I'm sure they would make fascinating reading, but I am not qualified to evaluate material for possible use as a television series. You need a literary agent.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning a one-week vacation to San Francisco and already have my airline tickets (they are non-refundable). My son, 18, is insisting that I have an AIDS test when I return from my vacation. He says you can pick up AIDS from saliva, and since I will be eating in lots of restaurants and am also staying in the home of a gay friend, I am taking a large risk.

What do you say about this, Abby? Although I pretended to my son not to be worried, now I am becoming concerned. I think the medical world is trying to downplay the AIDS epidemic to avoid panic in the general population. Can it be that it is really worse than they are letting on? Please tell me if you think the risk is really great. Naturally I don't plan on having sex with anyone, or kissing anyone while I am there. — FLORIDA ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: Your son is mistaken. You cannot pick up AIDS from eating in a restaurant, or staying in the home of a gay friend –unless, of course, you engage in unprotected sex with the gay friend and he is infected with the virus. Call "information" for your local AIDS hot-line, then call and ask any questions concerning AIDS that come to mind. A trained, knowledgeable person will answer your questions.

Teenagers acquire an orphan wish

By ERMA BOMBECK

Bombeck

Did you ever notice how teenagers have an orphan wish? There is a reason for this. Around the age of 11 or 12 they realize that mothers are like dental floss. They should never be seen in public ... if at all.

From that moment on, a teenager's past is shrouded in mystery. He was never conceived in passion nor born of woman like everything else mortal. He just appeared one day like an apparition. He has no car and is not old enough to drive, yet every day at school he alights from one which is driven by a phantom. He has no visible means of income, yet he always has money and wears clothes with all the right names on them. When he is called and is not home, someone takes his messages.

I remember once at a skating rink, I was instructed by my two teenagers to park the car on a side street and let them out so everyone would think they took the bus. I was given explicit instructions that if I opted to go inside the rink and wait (the other option was to freeze to death in the car), I was not to acknowledge them in any way. When they were ready to go home, they would go to the door and I would follow discreetly five or 10 minutes later so as not to stir up suspicion.

About an hour into the afternoon, I was talking with a group of mothers when one of the kids skated over and said, "Mom, you got an extra dollar. I'm hungry." I said, "Whatsa matter, kid, lose your mother?"

A mother in California writes, "My teenage son needed a ride to a football game and as we were going too, we offered him a ride. Our son said, "No one goes to games with parents!" But he went, got out of the car and distanced himself from us. So I shouted to him, "Hi, how is your mother? Tell her I'll call her next week for lunch. Why don't you meet us at the gate? I told her we'd give you a lift home after the game.' "

The woman from California is a saint. I'd have been tempted to leave him there and have him picked up for vagrancy.

Quick reactions, advance planning important during an emergency

Associated Press

In an emergency, do you know the quickest way to get medical help? Seconds count, so you have to react automatically. You may need to summon an ambulance.

Make the following advance preparations now, suggests Better Homes and Gardens magazine:

■ Be sure your house number can be clearly seen from the street, day or night. The number should be prominently posted on the house. Consider having the number painted on the street curb as well.

■ Post all emergency numbers — ambulance, police and fire — by each telephone. Many emergency services provide phone stickers.

■ If you are in an area with a 911 emergency system, dial 911. In the many communities without this service, call a private ambulance company or a fire department that handles emergency calls.

■ If you're not in a community with the 911 emergency system, make certain the private company or agency you call can provide life support services in addition to offering transportation.

■ State the precise nature of the emergency and do not get upset when the dispatcher asks questions. With the proper information, ambulance technicians will be able to bring the necessary equipment into your home when they first arrive.

■ Turn on porch lights and other inside lights if it is dark. If possible, have someone go outside to watch for the ambulance.

■ Move furniture and other obstacles so a stretcher can be brought as close to the patient as possible.

■ Lock up pets in another room.

■ Be ready to show the ambulance technicians any medication the victim is taking. Provide the name of the person's physician.

Diplomats 'skeptical' of peace mission

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Thursday he was hopeful his visit to Iran and Iraq would produce commitments to a U.N. peace plan, but a senior diplomat said others aren't so optimistic.

"We are looking for a message from Iran that they accept and will implement the resolution. ...But there is a universal feeling in the Security Council that he won't get that," said the diplomat.

The 15-nation council last week instructed Perez de Cuellar to elicit from Iran "a definitive and unambiguous response" to its July 20 resolution demanding a cease-fire in the 7-year-old war.

Iraq said it would comply with the resolution if Iran did. But Tehran officials have taken an ambiguous stand, saying they neither accept nor reject it.

The senior diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity, said council members are skeptical Perez de Cuellar will get a better answer during his 4-day visit.

"He'll get some ambiguous answer and then it will be up to the council to decide what to do," the diplomat said in a telephone interview.

The United States has said it will urge the council to impose a worldwide arms embargo against Iran unless its leaders embrace the U.N. resolution during Perez de Cuellar's trip.

Despite Soviet and Chinese reservations, the diplomat said chances are good the council will impose an embargo.

"It won't end the war. But it will show the world we can bite as well as bark," he said.

Some diplomats are calling the peace mission Iran's last chance to agree to a cease-fire and negotiate a settlement of the war. It represents one of the strongest efforts by the United Nations to settle a major military conflict in recent years and has received unanimous superpower support.

Without giving details, Perez de Cuellar said: "I have plenty of ideas, plenty of suggestions for both parties."

Perez de Cuellar is scheduled to arrive in Tehran on Friday night. He said he would spend two days speaking with Iranian President Ali Khamenei, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, Parliament speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani and Prime Minister Hussein Musavi.

Perez de Cuellar said he had requested a joint meeting with Iran's leaders, but that "they might have difficulties" with such a session. He did not elaborate, but Iran's leaders are believed to be divided on the extent to which they should make peace with Iraq.

WORLD

An Analysis

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran and Iraq appear ready to escalate their fighting if United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar fails in his mission to bring peace to the oil-rich region.

Perez de Cuellar planned to arrive in Tehran tonight for two days of talks with Iranian leaders, then fly to Baghdad, seeking an end to a war that has dragged on longer than World War II.

If he does not persuade Iran to accept the U.N. Security Council's July 20 cease-fire resolution, the region faces the threat of a widening conflict in which the United States and other foreign powers could become embroiled.

Iraq, which has failed to exploit its air superiority in the past against Iran's economy, now appears to be more prepared to use its most potent offensive weapon to hammer Tehran's oil lifeline.

The air force has been pounding Iranian industrial centers almost daily since Aug. 10, and Baghdad has vowed to sustain the offensive until Tehran agrees to a permanent cease-fire in the 7-year-old war.

For its part, Iran is keeping up the pressure on the battlefield, where it has the advantage.

The Iranians claim to have killed or wounded nearly 15,000 Iraqis since the cease-fire resolution was passed.

A Western military analyst in Baghdad, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Iraqis are "increasingly dissatisfied with the Soviet Union's reluctance to let the Security Council impose an arms embargo on Iran" for not complying with the cease-fire resolution.

The Soviets are Iraq's main arms suppliers but have recently been courting Tehran in an apparent effort to mediate an end to the war. The Iraqis, the analyst said, "believe that Soviet policy on Iraq is unstable."

At the same time, Iraq has been tilting to the West, particularly the United States, which seeks to prevent an Iranian victory in the strategic region.

After meeting several senior Iraqi officials Thursday, the Western analyst said: "They're ready to cooperate with Perez de Cuellar and give him the chance to talk the Iranians around.

"But they say they can't let Iran go on exporting as much oil as it could if Iraq halts its air raids on their terminals and tankers."

After a 45-day lull, Iraq resumed air strikes against Iranian oil targets Aug. 29, adding urgency to the U.N. effort.

Iraq has said it will observe a cease-fire if the Iranians will. Tehran has neither rejected nor accepted the resolution.

The Iranians have said they will talk to Perez de Cuellar but insist there can be no breakthrough unless the United Nations brands Iraq as the aggressor.

Iran says Iraq started the war when it invaded on Sept. 22, 1980.

The Iraqis claim the conflict began nearly three weeks earlier when Iranian artillery shelled border villages in a dispute over the Shatt al-Arab waterway that forms the southern border between the countries.

The analyst said the Iraqis believe the Iranians will not accept the Security Council resolution and are playing for time until the U.N. General Assembly reconvenes in October.

"The Iranians think they can muster more support in the assembly against what they consider a U.S.-inspired resolution and bypass the Security Council," he said.

Iran's Parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said Thursday night after a war council meeting in Tehran that the U.N. resolution contained some "positive points," but that "we don't accept other articles."

He stressed there would be no cease-fire until the Security Council brands Iraq the aggressor and "prohibits other countries from interfering in the imposed war," a clear reference to U.S. and Western intervention.

The danger of a sharp escalation in fighting has been heightened by the naval buildup in the gulf by the United States and its European allies.

By the end of this month, there will be more than 50 U.S., British, French and Italian warships in or near the gulf, including at least two aircraft carriers and the U.S. battleship Missouri with its 16-inch guns and 32 Cruise missiles.

That's the biggest international naval armada since the Korean War more than 30 years ago.

The Dutch have also said they will send two mine hunters to help keep open shipping lanes in the gulf, through which 20 percent of the non-Communist world's oil passes.

Iraq has tried to internationalize the conflict by bringing in outside powers against Iran, in order to end a war it cannot win.

The Iranians so far have shown no sign they can win by breaking through Iraq's formidable defenses. But radical Islamic forces in Tehran, including revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, believe the war must continue to cement Iran's 1979 revolution.

Amerasian entry into U.S. to be simplified

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. officials have agreed to simplify procedures for resettling thousands of children fathered by Americans in Vietnam during the war, the official Vietnamese radio said Thursday.

The Voice of Vietnam, monitored in Bangkok, reported on results of a meeting in Hanoi on Tuesday, the second time the United States and Vietnam have held direct talks on the Amerasians issue. The two sides previously met under United Nations auspices.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Bangkok said Bruce Beardsley, director of the U.S. Orderly Departure Program office in Bangkok, headed the American side.

Amerasians previously were resettled under the program, which allows Vietnamese refugees and migrants to take regular flights to the United States.

The migration ended after Hanoi suspended the program in January 1986. The United States later agreed to hold talks on Vietnam's request to establish a separate resettlement program for Amerasians.

At the meeting, the Vietnamese delegation said the presence of Amerasian children in Vietnam "is a humanitarian issue which must be solved quickly," the radio reported.

Amerasian children face social rejection in Vietnam and are looked down upon by other Vietnamese.

Rally brings injury, arrests

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Police fired in the air and set off tear gas canisters Thursday to disperse thousands of stone-throwing demonstrators protesting the conversion of a downtown park into a market area.

At least 60 people were injured, including a federal parliament member, and 219 were arrested, authorities said.

The demonstration had been called by West Bengal unit of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress Party to protest a decision by the state's ruling Marxist Communist Party to lease out the park for commercial use.

The trouble began shortly after the demonstrators burned an effigy of the state's Chief Minister, Jyoti Basu.

The explosion of a firecracker hidden in the effigy and the onset of a rainshower set people running for cover, and some tried to break through a police cordon at the gate of the park, witnesses said.

Police charged with wooden batons and shot about 40 teargas canisters before opening fire in the air with pistols.

Stones and bottles were thrown at police and passing buses. A police van was set on fire, police said.

Ambassador tours region

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — The new U.S. roving ambassador to Central America met with Costa Rican President Oscar Arias to discuss a regional peace plan.

Morris Busby flew to San Jose Thursday and talked for an hour with Arias, author of the accord signed Aug. 7 by the five Central American presidents.

Busby told reporters he wanted to discuss regional developments with the Costa Rican leader, but provided no details.

The accord calls for a cease-fire in Central America's warring countries, amnesties, democratic reforms and an end to foreign aid for rebels.

Philip Habib had been the U.S. special envoy to Central America from 1986 until his resignation last month.

Details of Busby's itinerary were not released. He was in Honduras on Wednesday meeting with President Jose Azcona Hoyo.

Honecker concludes trip at Dachau

Honecker

DACHAU, West Germany (AP) — East German leader Erich Honecker visited the site of the former Nazi concentration camp at Dachau today, as he concluded a historic trip to West Germany.

The Communist leader arrived at the World War II camp after holding talks in Munich with Franz Josef Strauss, the arch-conservative governor of southern Bavaria state.

Honecker was not scheduled to make any speech during the 30-minute tour of the former concentration camp site, located about 9 miles north of Munich.

Honecker traveled to Bavaria this morning for talks with Strauss, who has helped the Communist country receive West German credits and has supported greater trade. Honecker and Strauss have met several times in East Germany.

Bavarian authorities deployed 2,000 police for Honecker's visit and banned a demonstration by an extremist anti-Communist group in front of Dachau. Several other groups were preparing to protest human rights violations in East Germany, while West Germany's small Communist Party planned a rally in support of the 75-year-old East German.

Honecker, the first East German leader to visit West Germany, surprised listeners during an emotion-filled trip to his native Saarland town of Wiebelskirchen Thursday, when he predicted the countries would eventually share a normal border.

Speaking at a dinner in the town hall, Honecker said the two states are neighbors on German soil, but belong to different political alliances.

"It is understandable then that under these conditions the borders are not what they should be," Honecker said.

If the German nations expand cooperation, as outlined in a joint communique signed during his five-day visit, "then a day will come when the border will no longer divide us but will unite us," like the border between East Germany and Poland, Honecker said.

He did not elaborate.

The 11-page communique emphasized the differences between the countries, but also stressed the need to cooperate.

West Germany has repeatedly called on East Germany to scrap its shoot-to-kill orders, a heated point of contention for decades.

West Germany's Inner-German Relations Ministry said the orders, mines and other deadly traps have claimed the lives of at least 188 would-be escapees since the Berlin Wall was built in 1961 and then expanded along the border.

In Bonn, chief government spokesman Friedhelm Ost welcomed Honecker's remarks and said East Germany was moving in the right direction.

Honecker left his native Wiebelskirchen in 1935 and was imprisoned by the Nazis for a decade. Before Thursday's trip, he had not visited his hometown since 1948.

The two German states were formed in 1949 following the German defeat by the Allies.

Honecker on Thursday toured the house where he was born and spent about two hours visiting his 70-year-old sister, Gertrud, who still lives in Wiebelskirchen.

The two then paid a private visit to the local cemetery where their parents are buried.

West German rock star Udo Lindenberg said Thursday he gave Honecker a leather jacket so the East German leader could "wear it on the streets and meet the kids."

Chad accepts cease-fire with Libya

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — Chad has accepted a cease-fire in its territorial war with Libya, according to a statement released today by the Organization of African Unity.

The OAU said it arranged the truce and Chad's Cabinet agreed to it Thursday night in an emergency session. The cease-fire was to begin at 11 a.m. today.

Libyan radio, monitored in Nicosia, announced that Tripoli had also accepted the cease-fire. The radio said Libya hoped the truce would "put an end to Chadian suffering and would help in finding a solution (to the conflict) under the aegis of the OAU."

The Chadian government said in a statement today that the cease-fire did not necessarily indicate a settlement in the conflict over the disputed 43,000-square-mile Aouzou region.

Bulldogs host out-numbered Mustangs

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Andrews first-year head coach W.T. Stapler has a note of concern in his voice when speaking about tonight's West Texas battle between his Mustangs and the Midland High Bulldogs at Memorial Stadium. His boys are badly outnumbered and there's no sign of a cavalry.

"We platoon here too," said Stapler. "The same players play forever. We have an offensive platoon, defensive platoon and kicking platoon but it's all the same people. We've always liked the two-platoon system but we just can't do it this year."

Part of Stapler's numbers problem — only 27 Mustangs suit up for varsity — stems from the oil crunch that's hit the Permian Basin. Move outs over the summer hurt Andrews severely.

"We had some kids move out this summer that really hurt, one that has started two years and four others who would have started. Three others have played a lot," said Stapler. "In all, five players we penciled in this spring as starters, and another three on junior varsity, are gone."

THAT CREATES a problem both coaches have brought up this year: Inexperience.

"In essence, we're a junior varsity football team playing a varsity schedule," said Stapler, who has 12 underclassmen scheduled to start in tonight's 8 p.m. game. "We'll have to play to our utmost potential to even stay on the field."

Midland High head coach Doug McCutchen has said several times this year, "Our players have to gain some experience, mature, if we're to have a good football team."

Inexperience is part of the Bulldogs' offensive problems, if an offense that piled up 350 total yards against Monterey can be considered troubled.

"We felt last week, even though we gave a great effort, we still lacked execution," said McCutchen. "It's a big thing this week to improve our execution on offense and cut down on the turnovers."

In all, the Bulldogs fumbled the ball away twice, threw it away three times and were flagged nine times for 55 yards.

Inexperience aside, the Mustangs and Bulldogs both have players and units that make the other coach a little leery.

"I think they play outstanding defense," said Stapler. "I think they're an excellent defensive football team. There's no doubt (Dwane) Roberts is an excellent halfback. They can throw the ball too."

"Their quarterback, Joe Don Finley, is definitely a threat to run," said McCutchen. "He can throw the ball a long way. They've got a split end, Kid Estrada, who caught long passes in both scrimmages and against Hereford last week."

White breaks long one, lifts Steers past Mats, 18-13

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — You couldn't blame Big Spring coach Quinn Eudy for having a few nightmares this week, but he woke up at Lowrey Field Thursday night with his Steers on the right end of an 18-13 victory over Lubbock Estacado.

Eudy's nightmares came from all directions. After all, his Steers lost their season opener to El Paso Riverside on a long road trip, 48-21, and then he faced the prospect of meeting Estacado, a team that drilled Big Spring 56-6 a year ago in Big Spring's own backyard. To add to Eudy's woes, Estacado defeated 5A Plainview last week, 19-13.

The victory over the Matadors wasn't easy, but at least Eudy won't be having those nightmares this week.

"I don't mind telling you that I feel lots better after that," Eudy said of the victory, which left both teams at 1-1. "And we don't even have to come back from El Paso."

The Steers, however, kept their coach wondering if the nightmares would end. Big Spring led by a 12-0 count at one point, but ended up having to pull out a come-from-behind victory after trailing 13-12 in the third period.

Steer running back Charles White, who had 123 yards rushing on the night, gave the Black and Gold the win when he busted a 74-yard TD run with 10 seconds left in the third period. White broke a tackle at his own 35 and raced the rest of the way untouched.

When Eudy was asked if the broken-tackle run is a designed play, he said, "I think we learn to veer into people instead of around them. But I'll take the final result."

WHITE GAVE the Steers a 12-0 lead in the second period with a one-yard TD plunge. Shawn Shellman, starting at quarterback for the first time, scored on a 10-yard run in the first quarter for the Steers' first score.

Big Spring was dominating in the first half, holding Estacado without a first down until 2:01 before the half. Fourteen seconds later, Matador quarterback Wes Isaacs hit wide receiver Ronald Collins for a 44-yard TD to cut Big Spring's lead to six.

Isaacs and Collins teamed again for a 27-yard TD in the third period and Omar Moore's extra point, the only successful kick of the night, gave the Mats a brief 13-12 lead. But Big Spring's White was an accident waiting to happen and his 74-yarder was all Big Spring needed.

WHEN BIG Spring was burned on defense, it was through the air, but the Steer front wall was a tough nut to crack. Kenneth Banks, Steve Raines and Kyle Carroll were outstanding, and Matt Burrow, Jason Phillips and Adam Ramirez all came up with big defensive plays. Danny Williams had a key interception.

The Steers also got 95 yards rushing from Bruce Jones. Shellman completed five of 10 passes for 66 yards in his debut, but did throw two interceptions.

"I think (Shellman) is our quarterback," said Eudy. "I thought he did a good job, considering he had never done this on a Friday night."

The Steers now face the home debut of 1987 a with District 2-4A game against San Angelo Lake View.

"This win will be good for us heading into district play. We needed to face some adversity and have something good happen," said Eudy.

And the good things may just be beginning for these Steers.

Davis' three homers wasted; Astros lose 8-7

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Glenn Davis had three home runs for the Houston Astros, but Thursday night's hitting hero was pinch-hitter Rob Nelson, who was making his first appearance for the San Diego Padres.

Nelson, who came to San Diego last week in a trade with Oakland for pitcher Storm Davis, got his first major-league RBI when he singled in Garry Templeton from third with one out in the bottom of the ninth to give the Padres an 8-7 victory.

Nelson had faced the Houston relief pitcher Manny Hernandez when both were in the Pacific Coast League early this year.

"I had fared fairly well against him," said Nelson, who arrived in San Diego only hours before the game. "I had seen him three or four times this year and knew what he was throwing."

Davis drove in five runs with his homers as he became only the third Houston player to belt three in one game.

The three homers came on his first three trips to the plate. On his fourth time up, he faced reliever Lance McCullers, who threw him three consecutive balls before Davis hit a broken-bat grounder to second.

"It looked like the bottom just dropped out of it," said Davis of McCullers' last pitch.

White ends slump with towering homer

Associated Press

Former Midland Angel Devon White found what he was looking for, and gave the California Angels a victory in a game that went into extra innings after nine runs were scored in the ninth.

With one out in the bottom of the 10th inning Thursday night, the California rookie outfielder went to the plate to face Steve Howe.

"I just went up there looking for a good pitch to hit. It was a fastball, and I swung," White said of Howe's first pitch.

The towering home run over the center field fence, his 23rd of the season, gave the Angels an 8-7 victory over the Texas Rangers.

White had been in a prolonged slump, getting only one hit in his last 16 at-bats and 11 in his previous 100 going into Thursday night's game. The home run was his third hit of the game and the first home run allowed by Howe in 21 innings since he joined the Rangers.

"Right now, Devon White is a very frustrated player," White said, overlooking his first-year accomplishments, which include 93 runs scored and 82 RBI.

California led 3-2 going into the ninth inning before Texas erupted for five runs and a 7-3 ;ead. But the Angels knotted the game in the bottom of the inning when Mark Ryal hit a pinch-hit grand slam, setting the stage for White's game-winning homer.

American League

"That's a lousy way to lose a game," said Texas Manager Bobby Valentine, citing the two infield hits and a walk that preceded Ryal's homer off Dale Mohorcic. "I didn't think much of that inning at all."

Bob Brower hit a two-run homer for Texas in the second inning.

Brewers 4, Tigers 3

Paul Molitor broke out of his hitting slump with two doubles, a single, a walk and three stolen bases as Milwaukee defeated visiting Detroit. Glenn Braggs drove in two runs for the Brewers.

Molitor, who had only nine hits in 57 at-bats since his 39-game hitting streak was snapped Aug. 26, singled in the first, stole second and scored on Braggs' single.

Detroit's lead in the AL East was cut to one game over Toronto.

Red Sox 5, Orioles 4

Spike Owen tripled in the tying run in the bottom of the eighth inning and scored the winner on John Marzano's single as Boston beat visiting Baltimore.

The victory was the third in a row for the Red Sox and seventh without a defeat this season against the Orioles. The Orioles have lost four straight.

Athletics 3, Royals 2

Jose Canseco walked with the bases loaded and two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning to force in the winning run as Oakland edged visiting Kansas City. The Athletics, second in the AL West, pulled within 2½ games of Minnesota.

Gene Garber, Kansas City's fourth pitcher, came on to face Canseco, got ahead of the count 0-2 and walked him.

Losing pitcher John Davis, 3-2, left after giving up a one-out, infield single to Mickey Tettleton. Terry Steinbach hit a pinch single off Jerry Don Gleaton and, after a fly out, Luis Polonia beat out an infield single to load the bases and bring on Garber.

Wilander ends 'Swede Killer's' reign of terror

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Mats Wilander slew the "Swede Killer" at the U.S. Open Thursday night, ensuring that his country will be represented in the finals.

Third-seeded Wilander beat No. 5 Miloslav Mecir 6-3, 6-7 (5-7), 6-4, 7-6 (7-0) in a groundstroke duel to move into the semifinals, where he will meet countryman Stefan Edberg on Saturday.

Earlier in the day, second-seeded Edberg overpowered unseeded Ramesh Krishnan 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 to advance to the semifinals for the second straight year.

Mecir, who holds a 28-18 advantage over Sweden's top players, had beaten Wilander three times in a row, including a fourth-round victory at last year's Open. The 23-year-old Czech eventually lost to Ivan Lendl in the final.

In the earlier match, Krishnan's finesse game was no match for Edberg's serve-and-volley attack.

"Right from the beginning, he was all over me," said Krishnan, the last unseeded player left in singles play. "We were always fighting it out on my serve. I thought I was very well prepared. I played the way I wanted to, but I thought he was a little bit quicker on the court."

Edberg, who has yet to play a seeded player in the tournament, needed five sets to beat Krishnan in the third round at last year's Open.

"I think I've improved as a player since then," the 21-year-old Swede said. "I started off very well today. I didn't give him anything."

The highlight of the match was the 24-minute, 38-point third game of the second set. Krishnan had seven game points, but Edberg ended up winning the game to take a 3-0 lead.

"That may have been the longest game I've ever played," Edberg said. "He couldn't win it; I couldn't win it. Finally, I won it."

Krishnan, ranked 42nd in the world, said he was pleased with his showing in the tournament.

"Even today, I felt I was well prepared," the 26-year-old Indian said. "I just got outplayed."

Edberg, who lost to Lendl in last year's semifinals, has a 4-6 lifetime record against Wilander. But Edberg has beaten his countryman the last two times they've played, including a semifinal victory at a California tournament in February.

"Mats is playing very well from the back of the court," Edberg said. "I have to play him the same way as Mecir — serve well and attack."

In the other men's semifinal Saturday, top-seeded Lendl meets No. 6 Jimmy Connors.

Lendl, who is seeking his third consecutive Open title, beat John McEnroe in straight sets Wednesday to move within one victory of his sixth straight Open final.

Lendl leads his series with Connors 18-13, including 13 straight victories dating to 1984. Lendl has beaten Connors in three semifinals this year, most recently at last month's Canadian Open.

Asked if was was looking forward to playing Connors again, Lendl said, "I'm eager to play in the semifinals of the U.S. Open. I don't play the opponent. The moment you start playing the opponent, your game will suffer."

Rangers' owner says he wasn't fined $250,000

TORONTO (AP) — Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles is denying published reports that he has been fined $250,000 by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth for calling up of pitcher Steve Howe.

"Nothing has happened," Chiles said after a quarterly meeting of baseball owners. "I haven't written out any checks."

According to today's Dallas Morning News, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Rocky Mountain News, the penalty was issued during an executive session of owners on Thursday.

Chiles did not want to discuss the reported penalty.

"Sometimes, you just have to let sleeping dogs lie," Chiles said. "I don't want to stir anything up."

Howe, who was making a comeback after a series of drug-related problems, was signed by Texas to a minor-league contract on July 12 and was called up by the Rangers on Aug. 6.

Ueberroth, who has unilateral power to levy the fine, asked clubs this year to have players returning from drug rehabilitation remain in the minor leagues for 60 to 90 days to make sure they have their problem under control before elevating them on a major league team.

A spokesman for Ueberroth said even if a fine was levied would not be announced.

"Such fines when they are levied are confidential," Rich Levin, baseball's director of news, said. "It wasn't on the agenda but that doesn't mean it wasn't brought up."

Stewart can't match dollars with Strange, Mahaffey, but tied at 65

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Ray Stewart had fun playing hockey and lacrosse as a youngster growing up near Vancouver, British Columbia.

Now, at 33, he's looking for fun as a golf pro while struggling to make a living on the PGA Tour.

With earnings of just $35,000 since first joining the tour in 1983, Stewart found himself in strange company today as the $500,000 Bank of Boston Classic headed into the second round.

Stewart was tied for the lead with two of golf's multimillionaires, Curtis Strange ($2.886 million) and John Mahaffey ($2.363 million).

And just one stroke back was all-time great Lee Trevino, still laughing his way to the bank at 48 with PGA earnings of $3.3 million.

Stewart admitted he enjoyed his lofty standing with the super stars, but insisted "I'm not thinking of winning" after earning a share of the lead with a 6-under-par 65.

"Curtis Strange has got me by about $670,000 this year, so I don't think he's worried about me," said Stewart, who has won $27,000

Buffs ready for home debut

From Staff Reports

Stanton will be hoping to keep its unblemished pre-district record intact 8 p.m. tonight when it welcomes Coahoma for the 1987 home opener.

Coach Dale Ruth is looking for his second straight win over Coahoma, which opened the season with a 7-3 decision over Seminole. He's also looking for some offensive improvement after an uninspired three quarters against Seagraves.

"For three quarters we didn't look very good offensively, we weren't executing," Ruth said. "We made a lot of typical first game mistakes. But our key players played well when we needed them."

The Buffaloes pulled out a close 12-7 game over Seagraves in their opener last week thanks to a big defensive play by Robert Schoolcraft and some poised offensive play by quarterback Skip Hopkins.

Schoolcraft recovered a Seagraves fumble near midfield with 2:20 to play to give the Buffs one last gasp try at a go-ahead score. Earlier middle linebacker Schoolcraft intercepted a pass to set up the only other Stanton score.

But it was Hopkins who directed the Buffs 42-yards in the closing minutes to give Stanton an opening night win. Hopkins scored both Stanton touchdowns despite rushing for minus-7 yards all night.

Schoolcraft and the rest of the Buff defense will need to control Mike Rowell of Coahoma who romped for 193 yards in Bulldogs' opener.

In other games around the area, Greenwood will travel to Reagan County for the Owls opener; McCamey will host Crane; Lamesa hosts Brownfield; Rankin at Sterling City; Iraan hosts Eldorado; Monahans is at Carlsbad, N.M.; Denver City is at Kermit; Fort Stockton is at Alpine; Plains is at Forsan.

'DOGS—

Finley, a 158-pound junior, is actually the Mustangs' starting left halfback, but also plays quarterback at times. Senior Robbie Carruth is scheduled to start at QB for the Mustangs.

"ON DEFENSE they're very aggressive," said McCutchen. "They run a lot of stunts. They've got a defensive end, Ronnie Seals, 215-pound junior, on the strong side and Michael Hernandez at middle linebacker and both are very aggressive."

Roberts, the MHS halfback Stapler hopes to hold back, had an awesome debut in a purple and gold uniform against Monterey last Friday. The Midland Lee transfer student rushed for 138 yards on 15 carries and caught three passes for another 55. On one play he showed breakaway speed when he sprinted into the Monterey end zone for a 62-yard touchdown.

EVEN THOUGH this is a battle of 5A Midland against 4A Andrews, McCutchen "expects a tough ball game because it always is. They have a lot of tradition."

"Why would they be afraid of Andrews when they've got to play, Lee, Permian, San Angelo, all those people," said Stapler. "They've been in there with the big boys. We certainly didn't need Hereford and Midland High back-to-back but they're on the schedule and we have to play them. I hope the kids play real hard."

Afraid of the Mustangs, or not, there was a time just a few short years ago when the Mustangs used Midland High as a punching bag. If not fear, at least respect has grown from those days.

The Bulldogs bring a 1-0 record into the game while Andrews is 0-1.

Sports in Brief

Football

From Wire Reports

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — NFL owners voted unanimously to continue the season even if the players strike, using already discarded free agents and "whatever players are available to play."

They also announced they had been awarded a line of credit, reported to be $100 million, to keep them going in the event of the strike.

At the same time, however, Jack Donlan, executive director of the Managment Council, announced that negotiations with the NFLPA will resume Saturday at a site still to be determined...

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota quarterback Rickey Foggie was suspended for two games by the NCAA for accepting a loan for an airplane ticket from assistant coach Larry Beckish in 1985.

The NCAA eligibility committee heard Foggie's appeal via a conference call and reduced what was originally a three-game suspension to two games.

The ruling means Foggie will miss Minnesota's games against Northern Iowa Saturday and California next week...

Golf

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Chi Chi Rodriguez shot a 5-under-par 67 to take a one-shot lead over Gary Player in the first round of the Paine Webber World Seniors Invitational.

Rodriguez played the back nine first with birdies on No. 11 and No. 14 and shot a 3-under-par 34.

Horns' best pass rusher injured

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' best pass-rushing lineman, defensive end Thomas Aldridge, will miss the football game Saturday night with Brigham Young.

Aldridge, a 6-foot-2, 221-pound senior, has a torn muscle in the arch of his foot.

U.S. OPEN—

Connors hasn't won a singles title since he beat Lendl at the Tokyo Indoor final on Oct. 21, 1984.

"Getting to the semis is good, but it's not satisfying," the five-time Open winner said. "I was in the semis at Wimbledon this year and a couple of other tournaments. I need to get over that semifinal hump."

Connors has been hobbled by a mysterious foot injury throughout the tournament, but he says it won't slow him down Saturday.

"There is no miraculous recovery," he said. "It's just a pain in the foot."

In the men's doubles final Friday, the top-seeded team of Edberg and Anders Jarryd will play the No. 2 team of Ken Flach and Robert Seguso.

In Thursday's semifinals, Edberg and Jarryd beat third-seeded Sergio Casal and Emilio Sanchez 6-4, 6-4, 6-0. Flach and Seguso downed No. 4 Andres Gomez and Slobodan Zivojinovic 6-3, 7-6 (8-6), 7-5.

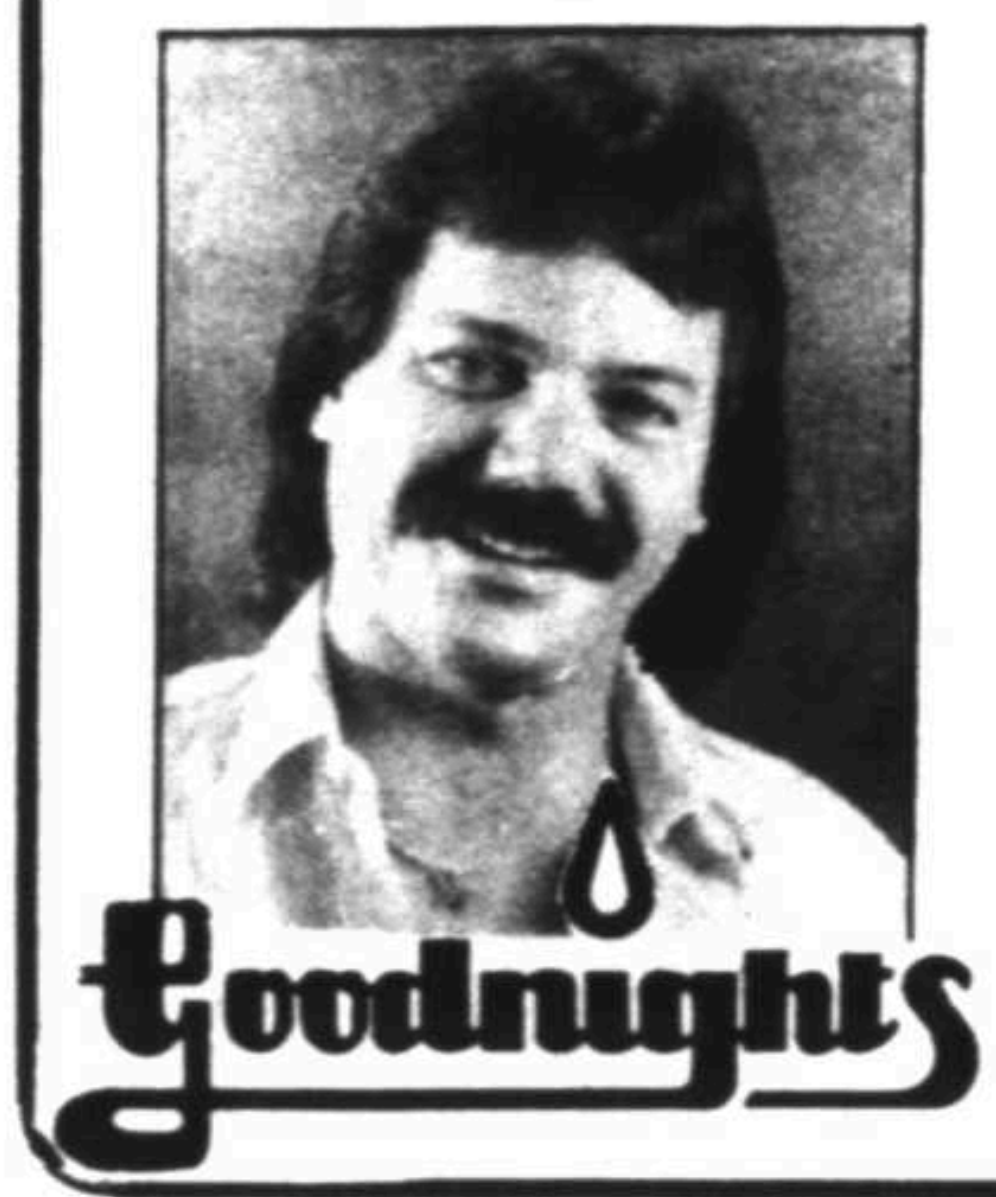
NOW APPEARING MATT RIX



Matt Rix is not just another pretty face within the contemporary song writing establishment. His musical act ranges from 50's material to Top 40, Country and Rock, Blues and Jazz, Fogelberg, Croce, Chapin, Mason Williams, Cat Stevens, and many more. This does not even include his liberal amounts or original and comic material. Matt has appeared on stage with many well known entertainers such as Ray Charles, John Denver, Emy Lou Harris, and the Smothers Brothers. He is a humorist, storyteller, singer, and guitar player, who by his own admission is a little crazy, but well worth an evening you'll spend laughing and singing along with him.

Oil prices up

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices strengthened for a second straight day as traders looked for signs that OPEC might find a way to rein in its surplus production.

At the New York Mercantile Exchange Thursday, contracts for October delivery of West Texas Intermediate closed at at $19.67 per barrel, up 29 cents from Wednesday.

Analysts said the price move came mainly on technical factors and some short-covering by traders.

They disagreed over whether the market was affected by OPEC pricing committee meetings going on in Vienna.

MONEY

Dollar steady

LONDON (AP) — The dollar held steady in light European trading early today. Gold bullion prices were little changed, but silver jumped 21 cents to $7.82 an ounce.

Selected midmorning dollar rates compared with rates in Europe late Thursday:

—1.8045 West German marks, unchanged

—1.3180 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3225

The British pound firmed to $1.6485 from $1.6460.

The dollar edged down in Tokyo, closing at 142.53 Japanese yen, compared with Thursday's close of 142.65 yen.

London's five main bullion houses fixed a recommended gold price at midmorning of $460.90 a troy ounce, down from an opening bid of $462.50 but up from $460 late Thursday.

The metal was bid at $461 in Zurich, up from $460.

By midmorning today, silver was trading in London at a bid of $7.82, up from Thursday's $7.61.

STOCKS

Dow climbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks rose for the second straight day Thursday after a week of declines, and traders attributed the reversal to a strengthened dollar, improved bond market and speculation that the trade deficit may have narrowed.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had been down more than 173 points from its record high of 2,722.42 set Aug. 25, advanced 26.78 to 2,576.05, a more substantial increase than the indicator's 4.15 gain Wednesday. Broader measurements of stock prices also rose.

OPEC dispatches anti-cheating mission

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has decided to dispatch three oil ministers on a tour of cartel capitals to urge an end to some members' cheating on production controls.

A committee of ministers from five OPEC members decided on the diplomatic initiative Thursday, fearing a major drop in oil prices soon. The committee was to meet again today to arrange the details.

Oil prices in the open market rose moderately after the decision was announced, but industry analysts were divided on whether the spurt was a reflection of confidence in OPEC's move, which had been expected.

The panel was not expected to agree on any other measures to curb oil production.

The three officials selected for the 13-nation diplomatic tour are OPEC President Rilwanu Lukman of Nigeria, Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Venezuela and Indonesia's Subroto, who goes by one name. The panel has no powers of enforcement.

The three, and the oil ministers of Saudi Arabia and Algeria, met in emergency session in a Vienna hotel suite Thursday to determine the degree of cheating on national production quotas set at a June OPEC meeting.

Cartel sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said OPEC's own staff of technical experts was unable to present the ministers with definitive figures on output because three members — Iraq, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar — and failed to provide data.

The experts' estimates of August production, based in part on figures from such independent sources as the International Energy Agency, ranged from roughly 18 million to 19 million barrels a day, the sources said.

OPEC had said in June that it would limit its output to 16.6 million barrels a day for the rest of the year, despite financial pressures on such countries as war rivals Iran and Iraq to increase their output.

Iraq never signed the accord, saying it was biased in Iran's favor. Iraq is believed to be producing about 2.2 million barrels a day, compared with its notional OPEC quota of 1.54 million barrels daily.

Belkacem Nabi, the Algerian minister, said after Thursday's meeting that he hoped the tour of OPEC capitals would begin before the end of this month.

James Audu, an OPEC spokesman, told reporters that the diplomatic mission would "solicit the solidarity" of all member governments in adhering strictly to the production quotas set in June.

The five-man committee that met Thursday "agreed that there is overproduction; how much and by whom doesn't matter," Audu added.

The chief violators are reported to be Iraq, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Iran and Qatar. The International Energy Agency said Saudi Arabia and Libya also produced substantially above their quotas in August.

An Iranian oil delegation was in Vienna Thursday, but it did not participate in the formal conference because it is not a member of the committee. The deputy Iranian oil minister, Hossein Kazempour Ardabili, held informal talks with Lukman before the committee's session.

Afterward, Ardabili said Iran wanted Saudi Arabia to play the role of "swing producer" — cutting its oil production when world supplies were too great — in order to shield OPEC from a major decline in oil prices.

Iran assails 'Saudi failure'

By STEVEN GREENHOUSE
New York Times News Service

VIENNA, Austria — Iran's deputy oil minister attacked Saudi Arabia Thursday for not doing more to pressure Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Iraq to limit overproduction.

Oil analysts said the Iranian's open attack could mean the end of the Saudi-Iranian detente that enabled the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to restrain output earlier this year to stabilize prices.

The Iranian official, Hossein Kazempour Ardebili, made his attack on a day when OPEC announced that its chairman and two other ministers would visit all 13 OPEC member nations to urge production restraint.

Several ministers said overproduction had already been reduced.

Ardebili of Iran and Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, Venezuela's oil minister, said OPEC production was now about 17.5 million barrels a day, down from 19.7 million barrels a day in August but still above the group's official quota of 16.6 million barrels.

Peter O'Sullivan, editor-in-chief of the Houston Post, discusses the sale of the newspaper with the newsroom staff following Thursday's announcement of the $150 million sale.

Singleton pays $150 million for Post

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post's new owner, who was earlier thwarted in his bid to buy the competing Houston Chronicle, says he plans no staff cuts but plenty of competition for his larger rival.

William Dean Singleton announced Thursday that an affiliate his MediaNews Group, which owns the Dallas Times Herald, had acquired the Post from its Canadian owners for $150 million in cash.

"We firmly believe that, under Texas ownership, the Post will thrive and grow in its competition with the New York-owned Chronicle, Houston's evening newspaper," Singleton said.

The purchase of the Post from Toronto Sun Publishing Co. of Ontario marks the first time daily newspapers in the state's two largest markets have come under single ownership.

In March, Singleton bid $415 million for the Chronicle, but was turned down by the non-profit Houston Endowment Inc., which signed a deal with the Hearst Corp. for $400 million. Hearst later upped its price to $415 million after the state attorney general's office questioned the lower bid's acceptance.

Donald Hunt, the Post's publisher since 1983, will remain, and Singleton said he did not plan any reductions in the staff of 1,200.

"Don Hunt and his management team have met the challenge of operating profitably in the tough Texas economy while showing impressive growth both in advertising market share and circulation," Singleton said.

Post editor Peter O'Sullivan said he was pleased with the sale.

"I was asked to stay (as editor) and I wouldn't have done it if I didn't feel good about it."

Leslie Loddeke, a reporter, said she believes some changes are in store for the newspaper and said she got a good impression of Singleton during an hour-long meeting.

"I think that what I really like is this man is a native Texan," she said, adding she believes Singleton can better understand the readership.

Singleton said he has been trying to buy the Post for a year, making two previous offers. He would not discuss any details of those offers.

The morning Post and the all-day Chronicle are fierce competitors, much like the Dallas Times Herald and the larger Dallas Morning News.

Gene McDavid, vice president and general manager of the Chronicle, said he expects the competition between the papers to continue.

"The competition has been so severe, I can't imagine anything could happen to make it worse," McDavid said.

The Post's circulation for the period ending March 31 was 309,400 daily and 356,424 Sundays. For the same period, the Chronicle's circulation was 406,084 daily and 531,528 Sundays, according to the Audit Bureau of Circulation.

Singleton said the Post was bought by the Gloucester County Times Inc., a Woodbury, N.J., affiliate of Dallas-based MediaNews. The transaction is expected to be completed Nov. 1.

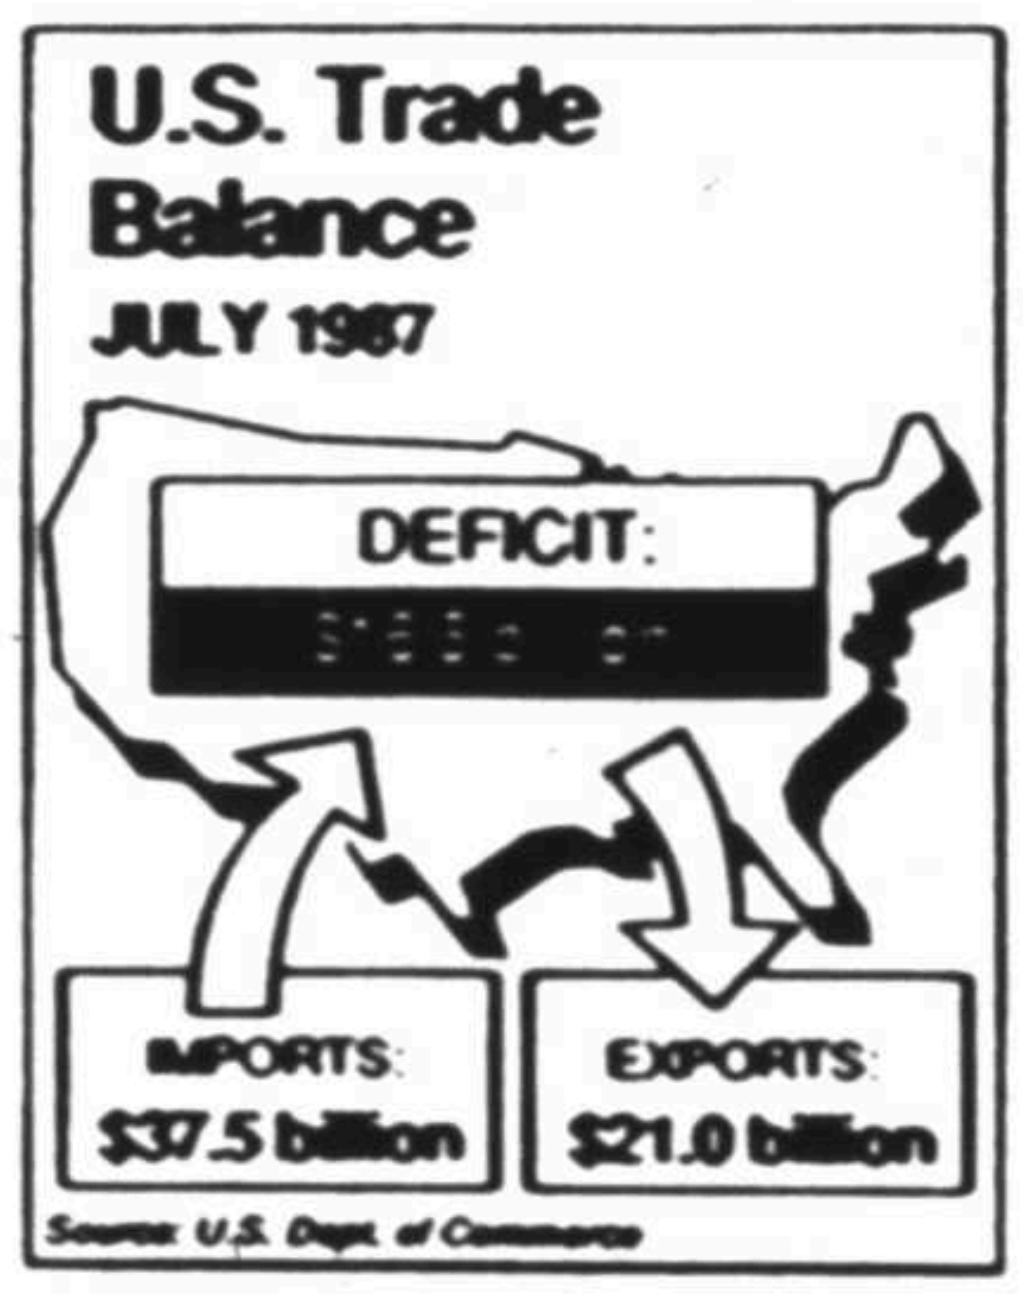
Toronto Sun Publishing bought the Post in 1983 for $100 million from H&C Communications Corp., privately held by Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston and her son, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Sun president Doug Creighton said the newspaper has remained profitable since then, despite troubled economic times.

MediaNews will pay $150 million in cash, plus an additional amount on March 31, 1993, based on the gross revenues of the Post over a five-year period ending Dec. 31, 1992, Singleton said.

Trade deficit at record, inflation rate flat in July

By BILL MENEZES
AP Business Writer



Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce

A plunge in U.S. exports helped propel the nation's trade deficit to a record $16.5 billion in July, the fourth monthly increase in a row, while domestic wholesale prices remained flat in August for the first time in nine months, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the widening of the gap between exports and imports followed a $15.7 billion deficit in June. For the first seven months of 1987, the trading shortfall has been accumulating at an annual rate of $168.7 billion — above the record $156.2 deficit for all of 1986.

Lower food costs and early end-of-the-model-year auto discounts offset slightly higher energy prices to keep the Labor Department's Producer Price Index unchanged in August for the first time in nine months.

The news of the widening trade shortfall pushed the dollar lower in foreign-exchange trading today, dealers said.

Earlier, speculation that the trade report would not be as bad as previously expected had helped the financial markets regain ground lost because of last month's negative trade news.

The dollar edged higher Thursday as currency traders awaited the Commerce Department's report.

In New York, the dollar rose to 142.42 Japanese yen from 141.82 yen late Wednesday.

Interest rates declined in the bond market in response to the strengthening dollar, with yields on the bellwether 30-year Treasury bond falling to 9.57 percent from 9.62 percent late Wednesday.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 26.78 points to 2,576.05 and broader market indexes advanced. Analysts credited the improvement to the stronger dollar, lower interest rates and buying opportunities created by the market's recent decline.

Early support for the dollar Thursday came from Japan's announcement that its trade surplus narrowed in August for the fourth consecutive month.

The dollar has slumped since last month's report that the United States had a record $15.7 billion trade deficit in June, on sentiment that the currency would have to weaken further to make U.S. products competitive enough to shrink the imbalance.

RJR's smokeless smoke ready?

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is expected to announce next week that it has mastered the technical problems of making a "smokeless cigarette," according to a television report Thursday that the company would neither confirm nor deny.

Cable News Network reported that the tobacco giant is advancing the announcement of the product because too many employees are learning of the secret project to keep it quiet. Reynolds also is reportedly concerned about potential competition in the race for the smokeless cigarette, CNN said, quoting unidentified sources.

Contacted at his office in Winston-Salem on Thursday night, company spokesman David Fishel said he would neither confirm nor deny that there was a new product or that the company would make an announcement next week.

"It's standard policy for us not to comment on speculation or rumors," Fishel said. "I understand they (CNN reporters) got their information through an advertising agency. But I can't comment further."

The network said that production of smokeless cigarettes, which could be a boon as smoking comes under wide attack in the workplace and other public places, would not begin until this winter.

Bank failure refrain familiar

Associated Press

Liberal spending and soured loans forced federal regulators to declare two more Texas banks insolvent, bringing to 38 the number of bank failures in the state this year.

The Waxahachie Bank and Trust and the La Marque Bank, southeast of Houston in Galveston County, were shut down Thursday. Both were scheduled to reopen today under new ownership.

The Waxahachie Bank and Trust's two offices will reopen as branches of Merchants State Bank of Dallas, and its depositors automatically become customers of the new bank, subject to the court approval, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. spokesman Bill Olcheski said.

The La Marque Bank, which had only one office, was to reopen today as a branch of the First Bank of La Marque, he said.

The Waxahachie bank had total assets of $68.6 million, according to Kenneth W. Littlefield, Texas banking commissioner.

Littlefield said liberal lending practices of former officers, "coupled with inadequate credit administration and supervision by the board of directors, resulted in losses exceeding the bank's capital."

The La Marque Bank had total assets of $5.7 million. Littlefield said the bank had experienced "steady asset deterioration over the past two years."

"Significant losses arose from loan participations purchased from an affiliated bank which failed in 1985. The resulting capital deficit could not be remedied," Littlefield said.

Depositors of the La Marque Bank automatically become customers of First Bank of La Marque, also subject to court approval, Olcheski said.

First Bank of La Marque will assume about $6.1 million in 1,800 deposit accounts and has agreed to pay the FDIC the purchase premium of $155,000, Olcheski said. He said the bank also would buy some of the failed bank's loans and other assets for $4.8 million.

The FDIC is advancing $1.3 million to First Bank of La Marque and will retain assets of the defunct La Marque Bank with a book value of about [illegible].

First City chief proven 'tough boss'

Abboud

HOUSTON — A. Robert Abboud, who is taking over as chief executive of First City Bancorporation under a government bailout plan, brings with him a hard-driving reputation that overshadows his accomplishments in the financial world.

Abboud, 58, was ousted as chairman of First Chicago Corp. and later resigned as president of Occidental Petroleum Corp. because of management confrontations and disagreements. He was named one of the nation's "10 toughest bosses" by Fortune magazine in April 1980, as he was winding up his tenure at First Chicago.

Analysts say the Harvard-educated Abboud's tough management style may be just the medicine First City needs. Regulators have tentatively approved a $970 million bailout of First City, which has suffered massive losses in energy and real estate loans in recent years.

Charles Vincent, vice president and bank stock analyst of the Provident National Bank in Philadelphia, says Abboud turned around First Chicago, which had also been plagued by bad real estate loans.

"There were a number of senior management losses at First Chicago because of his confrontational style," Vincent said. "He would criticize anybody if he felt it was proper to do so. He was the boss and wanted everyone to know it."

Abboud had worked his way up through the ranks at First Chicago for 22 years, specializing in international finance. Named as chairman and chief executive officer in 1975, the board of directors dismissed him in April 1980 after a power struggle with his deputy chairman, Harvey Kapnick.

"He's a tough manager, but that may be what is necessary at this time at First City to get it turned around," Vincent said. "He takes a very strong disciplinary approach. I don't know if he's mellowed or not over the past few years. If he did, he will get along just fine."

Vincent said one of Abboud's problems at First Chicago was inheriting a mangement team. As head of First City, he may bring in his own management team and avoid some of those problems.

"At First City, he may want to get rid of their people," he said. "If he has his own people come in, things may go more smoothly."

After his First Chicago firing, Abboud joined Los Angeles-based Occidental Petroleum and worked closely with the company's autocratic chairman and founder, Armand Hammer, on major acquisitions, including Iowa Beef Processors Inc. and Cities Service Co. He left after the two had a disagreement over the direction of the firm.

Occidental and China combine for venture in PRC coal mining

BEIJING, (SWN) — Vice Premier Li Peng of the People's Republic of China, and Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman and chief executive officer of Occidental Petroleum Corp., today joined a delegation of international businessmen and Chinese officials to officially open the An Tai Bao coal mine in Shanxi province.

The opening ceremony in the mining area of Ping Shuo marks the completion of the largest joint venture in China.

At full production, the An Tai Bao surface mine will be one of the world's largest open pit coal mines, producing some 15.52 million tons of raw coal per year.

Total investment for the mine and associated infra-structure is approximately $1 billion. Investment for the mine structure itself is $650 million, of which foreign investment accounts for $400 million. Of the $400 million, the Bank of China Trust and Consultancy Co. and Occidental have each invested $200 million.

The foreign investment is borrowed from a consortium of 39 international banks, led by Bank of America, Bank of China, Industrial Bank of Japan, Credit Lyonnais and the Royal Bank of Canada.

During the opening ceremony, Vice Premier Li Peng, Hammer and the delegation observed the first official commercial coal from the mine being loaded into railcars for shipment. The first shipment of coal through Qinhuangdao Port, east of Beijing on Bohai Bay, is for sale to Hong Kong Electric.

Joining Vice Premier Li Peng and Hammer for the dedication ceremony were Occidental President Dr. Ray Irani, Huang Yichen, vice chairman of the State Planning Commission of China, Yu Hongen, China minister of coal, Wang Deyan, chairman of the Bank of China, a partner in the project, and Rosemary Tomich, Paul Hebner and John Kluge, members of the Occidental Board of Directors.

Dignitaries from various banking institutions, manufacturers and major suppliers from the United States, China, Canada, West Germany and Japan were among the some 300 people who observed the loading of the first shipment of coal.

In remarks at the mine, Hammer said, "Occidental's commitment and interest in the future of China is so strong that I am happy to report that we now plan to enter into negotiations with our Chinese partners for phase two and three, which would increase total production to 45 million tons per year of raw coal."

The An Tai Bao surface mine, located approximately 230 miles southwest of Beijing, is a joint venture between Island Creek of China Coal Ltd. and Ping Shuo First Coal Company.

The mine will produce approximately 12 million tons of marketable coal each year. Approximately 9 million tons per year is scheduled for export markets and approximately 3 million tons is scheduled for domestic markets. The main export sales are expected to be in the Pacific Rim area.

Oklahoma firm to explore in Ecuador

OKLAHOMA CITY (SWN) — Texas International Co. announced today that its wholly owned subsidiary, Phoenix Resources Co. of Ecuador, has agreed to explore for oil in and around the Gulf of Guayaquil, Ecuador. The company said its subsidiary has a 25 percent participating interest in a joint venture that is about to begin drilling for oil on two million acres onshore and offshore, along Ecuador's Pacific coast, west of the major port city, Guayaquil.

The company said the operator for the group, Belco Petroleum of Ecuador, a subsidiary of Enron Oil & Gas Co., is presently preparing an offshore drilling and production platform for initial drilling 16 miles offshore in 110 feet of water. The platform is on location, and drilling is expected to begin within the next few weeks. Target depth for the well is approximately 8,000 feet below sea level.

Additional exploration sites have been selected for later drilling. Another platform is under construction in Ecuador for installation on a second drilling location. The company said its subsidiary expects to spend $3 - $4 million in the joint venture during the remainder of 1987.

Oxoco Energy attempts ANPC buyout

HOUSTON (SWN) — Oxoco Energy Co. a wholly owned subsidiary of Oxoco Inc. announced that it had signed a letter of intent to acquire approximately 45 percent of the total outstanding shares of American National Petroleum Co. from David G. Eller, chairman and CEO of ANPC, members of his family, and certain other members of management.

The proposed purchase price is $3.90 per share, subject to adjustment based upon a valuation of certain properties, plus additional future cash payments conditioned upon the outcome of pending litigation and the performance of certain properties.

The transaction is subject to the execution of a definitive purchase agreement.

Oxoco is engaged in oil and natural gas exploration and production and, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, the operation of an intrastate gas transmission system in Texas. A group of venture capital investors led by Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners of San Francisco owns 71.6 percent of Oxoco Inc.

Valhi, NL discuss merger alternatives

DALLAS (SWN) — Valhi Inc. and NL Industries Inc. announced that the two companies are engaged in discussions with NL's independent directors regarding alternatives to Valhi's existing merger proposal.

Although Valhi has neither withdrawn nor modified its existing proposal announced on Aug. 24, the companies and the independent directors are discussing means by which all NL common shareholders could be provided with an opportunity to participate in a recapitalization of NL on the same basis as Valhi. The companies said that their discussions continue to contemplate a redemption of NL's outstanding Series C Preferred Stock Depositary Receipts for cash.

The companies stated that there could be no assurances that Valhi's existing proposal would be modified as described above or in any other way or that the independent directors will recommend Valhi's proposal or any modification of Valhi's proposal.

Enserch announces field service restructuring

DALLAS (SWN) — Enserch Corp. announced plans to undertake a restructuring of its oil field services segment. A registration statement will be filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission in connection with the proposed sale of 20 percent of the restructured assets.

The restructured oil field services organization will succeed to the name and substantially all the current business activities of Pool Co., based in Houston, and currently wholly owned by Enserch. No management changes are contemplated.

W.C. McCord, Enserch chairman and president, remarked, "establishing a market value for Pool Co. should be well regarded by the shareholders of Enserch Corp. as well as by the employees of Pool Co." Details of the proposed restructuring and public offering will be available when the registration statement is filed later this month.

Proceeds of the transaction will be used to reduce outstanding debt of Enserch.

Mobil discovery offshore Southern Nigeria

NEW YORK (SWN) — Mobil Oil Corp. announced that its Nigerian affiliate, Mobil Producing Nigeria (MPN), as operator for the Mobil/Nigerian National Petroleum Corp. (NNPC) joint venture, recently discovered a new oil field, the Inuen Field, offshore Southern Nigeria.

The Inuen-1 discovery well was spudded in May in 176 feet of water, 30 miles south of MPN's Qua Iboe Terminal in the Cross River State. The well tested up to 4,600 barrels of 38-degree API crude oil per day.

Last year, Mobil Producing Nigeria made a similar discovery in another part of its offshore leases.

MPN started production in Nigeria in February 1970, and has produced over one billion barrels of crude oil.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Interest rate forecast dictates bond action

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Four years ago, I invested $82,000 in a unit investment trust which holds municipal bonds. Since then, I have received monthly tax-free dividends amounting to approximately 10 percent annually. However, the value of my investment has fallen about 10 percent.

With interest rates steadily rising, the outlook for bonds and unit trusts holding them is not too bright. Should I sell now, or wait for interest rates to fall and the value of my investment to appreciate?

A. I can't answer that question with anything approaching certainty, for the simple reason that I am not clairvoyant. You're asking me if interest rates are going to fall, taking the market values of already issued bonds up, or if interest rates are going to rise, sending bond prices lower.

As has been repeatedly stressed in this column, no one — repeat, NO ONE — can make an accurate prediction on that. Many of the best-known Wall Streeters and economists have ended up with egg on their faces from dead-wrong interest rate forecasts.

A unit investment trust such as you have is somewhat similar to a municipal bond mutual fund. Each holds an investment portfolio of municipal bonds, which pay interest not subject to federal income tax. Both pass that money along to shareholders as dividends, also free from federal income tax.

The mutual fund's portfolio is "managed," meaning bonds are bought and sold with reasonable frequency. The unit investment trust's portfolio is fixed and changes only under unusual circumstances.

However, as bonds the unit investment trust holds mature or are called for early redemption, the trust receives the redemption values of those bonds. That money also is passed on to shareholders — technically "unit" holders. After all the bonds are redeemed, the trust is dissolved.

By that time, you will have received back the original value of the units you bought — as your share of the bonds redemptions. Meanwhile, you will receive tax-free dividends at a rate determined by the interest rate of the bonds put into the trust's portfolio at the time the trust was organized.

You should have been aware of all this before you invested the $82,000. If you didn't understand the details, the broker through whom you invested should have explained them.

You're getting high tax-free dividends because municipal bond interest rates were high when the trust was established. Assuming you're satisfied with that income and are in no rush to recoup your investment, my advice is to stay with that unit investment trust.

Q. If I buy a one-year certificate of deposit issued by a bank or savings and loan association, I get a rather low yield these days because interest rates have fallen.

However, if I invest in a unit investment trust holding municipal bonds, I can get a higher yield — as much as 2 percentage point higher — and it's exempt from federal income tax.

Can you explain this contradictory situation?

A. There could be one or two reasons.

The municipal bonds held by the unit investment trust might be of relatively low quality. The lower the rating on a bond, the higher interest it must pay to attract investors. Although many unit investment trusts hold highly rated municipal bonds — often guaranteed by private insurers for payment of interest and principal — some of those trusts hold lower rated bonds. That's something you should check out, before putting money into a unit investment trust.

The other and more likely reason is that the bonds held by the trust won't mature for quite a number of years. The longer the maturity, the higher the interest.

You know you'll get your money back from a one-year CD is 12 months. You might have to wait many years to be made whole with a unit investment trust.

ECONOMY

Interest rates have soared since then because of the sentiment that a falling dollar would mean higher inflation and declining foreign investment in U.S. securities, and the stock market weakened in turn.

Separately, the Commerce Department on Thursday estimated business investment spending would grow by a modest 1.4 percent this year, curbed by rising interest rates and the new tax law.

Spending by businesses for expansion and modernization will total an inflation-adjusted $387.9 billion for all of 1987, the department estimated.

The new estimate, based on an industry survey completed in August, represents a downward revision from a May survey which showed businesses planning to boost investment by 2.8 percent this year.

Spending fell by 2.6 percent last year.

IRAN

In a statement that analysts said showed new Iranian hostility toward the Saudis, Ardebili said, "The United Arab Emirates and Kuwait have started overproducing, and I think the Saudis have to do something about that to show whether they are sincere about maintaining prices."

He added that if the Saudis "do not take measures to get their friends to help the price, they will be contributing to a price war."

One Middle Eastern oil analyst who asked not to be identified commented, "People might make open criticisms like that in the West, but in the Middle East that just isn't done."

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Hisham Nazer, declined to respond.

Some analysts say the Saudis and Iranians might put their antagonisms aside to limit oil output. But other analysts suggest that Saudi Arabia is happy to see the Gulf states overproduce and drive down the price, thereby reducing revenues for Iran.

Iraq has vowed to ignore its OPEC quota and try to produce as much oil as Iran does. Iraq's quota is 1.54 million barrels a day, but last month it produced an estimated average of 2.2 million barrels a day. Iran's quota is 2.4 million, but it produced about 2.8 million barrels a day in August.

Another problem is the magnitude of the overproduction by Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates. Last month the UAE produced 1.7 million barrels a day, far beyond its quota of 948,000, while Kuwait produced 1.4 million barrels a day, compared with its quota of 996,000.

Bryant opposes Bork nomination

By PEGGY ROBERSON

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Saying he hoped other public officials would follow his example, Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, Thursday spoke out against the nomination of Appeals Court Judge Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Bryant said he believes "it is time a Texas voice other than that of Gov. Bill Clements was heard in this debate."

Clements is co-chairman of a new national group that intends to spend $2.5 million to support Bork's confirmation to the Supreme Court.

"It is perhaps instructive that President Reagan's lobbying campaign for this nominee would be co-chaired by a governor, who, as a university trustee, sanctioned payoffs to football players," Bryant said. "He is, in my opinion, the last person who should speak for Texas about matters involving our judicial system."

Clements replied through a spokesman in Austin, describing Bryant as "a shrill partisan" whose opposition to Bork "runs counter to the opinions of people in his district, Texas, and the country as a whole. Bryant is an extreme liberal."

After he was elected governor last November, Clements acknowledged that he authorized payments to Southern Methodist University athletes when he was chairman of the board of trustees.

Clements' spokesman, Reggie Bashur, said the governor's involvement in the pro-Bork campaign was "limited to using his name on a letterhead."

Bryant accused the Reagan administration of "manipulating many well-meaning and concerned religious groups, convincing them that the appointment of Bork — an agnostic who is not a member of any church — would somehow be consistent with and advance their beliefs."

Bork's views are "far outside the mainstream of American thinking," Bryant said. "His confirmation would elevate another extremist unearthed by the White House staff — this time to a lifetime position on the nation's highest court."

Specifically, Bryant said Bork's opinions already on the record through speeches and legal rulings indicate he would be a Supreme Court justice who, among other things, believes it is constitutional to deny a hotel room, restaurant service or a seat on a bus because of the color of a person's skin and would roll back other civil rights rulings.

Boulter co-sponsors Contra aid package

By PEGGY ROBERSON

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, on his return here after a "fact-finding trip" to Central America, Thursday signed on as co-sponsor of a bill to give Nicaraguan counter-revolutionaries, called "contras", $310 million in military and non-lethal aid over the remaining 17 months of President Reagan's term.

Boulter joined Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. in proposing the legislation and said he would like Congress to vote on it "as soon as possible."

Most members of Congress appear to be reluctant to bring the aid bill to the floor while a peace plan agreed to by five Central American countries is in the works.

Kemp led a delegation that included Boulter and 59 leaders of conservative political groups, the "Christian right," and journalists from conservative newspapers on a visit to Honduras, El Salvador and Costa Rica.

An aide to Boulter said the group was invited to meet with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega but rejected the opportunity.

Boulter, Kemp and Helms said they will push for new funding for the contras before funding ends Sept. 30.

Boulter said Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte and Honduran President Jose Azcona Hoyo had questions over whether Nicaragua's Marxist regime will live up to the terms of the regional peace plan signed by five Central American presidents in Guatemala City Aug 7.

STATE IN BRIEF

Ex-U.S. Senator John Tower, wife of 10 years divorcing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divorce agreement between former U.S. Sen. John Tower and his wife of 10 years was accepted by a District of Colombia judge.

The only term of the agreement announced Thursday was that Tower, 61, drop his request that the case be moved to Texas, a community property state where alimony is not paid.

Under District of Columbia law, specific terms of uncontested divorces are not divulged.

Tower agreed to relinquish any claim to the family's Washington home and provide his ex-wife an unspecified amount of support, which will be taken directly from the former Republican senator's government retirement fund, a friend, who wished to remain anonymous, said.

TDC admitting new inmates

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — After being closed for eight days, the Texas Department of Corrections will admit new inmates today, prison officials said.

The 27-unit system was forced to close on Aug. 31 when the inmate population rose over a state-mandated 95 percent population capacity.

The Thursday count of prisoners showed 38,371 inmates, or 94.80 percent of capacity, prison spokesman David Nunnelee said. Some 156 inmates were released Thursday, leaving the system 79 beds under legal capacity.

The most recent shutdown, the 21st of the year, also was the longest — covering eight working days, officials said.

Nunnelee said prisons also would be open Monday.

Mattox obtains court order

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said Thursday he has obtained a temporary restraining order against a Dallas-Fort Worth company under the Texas consumer protection act and a new law regulating job-listing services.

Mattox said State District Judge Harlan Martin of Dallas signed the order, which prohibits Texas Homes and Jobs Inc. from charging consumers fees for locating jobs, pending a court hearing.

Mattox said his Dallas office had received more than 30 complaints against Texas Homes.

His lawsuit alleges that the company promises consumers that permanent employment will be found for them but first charges a $80 fee.

A new law, which Mattox said Texas Homes is challenging, prohibits companies from charging up-front fees before consumers have accepted jobs on referral from personnel service companies.

IF YOU FEEL FORTUNATE YOUR CHILD JUST SMOKES MARIJUANA, THEN YOU SHOULD KNOW MORE ABOUT MARIJUANA.

Shall we start with the facts?

Marijuana makes your child lethargic, apathetic and paranoid.

That's frightening. But so is this: Marijuana also causes mood shifts. And it causes your child to lose his memory.

It gets worse.

Marijuana causes a loss of motor coordination. Think about that next time your child drives the car home at night.

Had enough? No?

OK. Marijuana affects your child's reproductive system as well. It decreases your son's testerone level. It can even lead to infertility.

Your daughter's reproductive system can suffer, too. With marijuana, unfortunately, come menstrual irregularities.

There's more.

Marijuana also does damage to your child's lungs. You think cigarettes are bad? Marijuana is far worse.

There are other effects that seem to show up with this "minor" drug: decreased productivity, absenteeism, impaired performance as well as impaired judgement and impaired learning capability.

Put it this way. It doesn't do much for your child's education.

If you'd like more information about marijuana or any other problem drug, contact your local agency on drug abuse.

Article I
LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Section 1: Description. The legislative branch of government, or Congress, makes all the laws. It has two parts, or houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives.

Section 2: House of Representatives. Members of the House of Representatives serve a 2-year term. They are elected by the people. Representatives must be at least 25 years old, citizens of the United States for at least 7 years, and citizens of the state they represent.

The number of representatives from each state depends on that state's population. In order to decide on the number of representatives from each state, the government must count the people every 10 years. This is called a census.

Section 3: The Senate. The Senate is made up of two senators from each state. Senators have a 6-year term. Senators must be at least 30 years old, citizens of the United States for at least 9 years, and citizens of the state they represent.

The Vice-President of the United States is in charge of the Senate, but may only vote in case of a tie.

Sections 4-7: Rules. Instructions on how to operate both the House and the Senate are covered. Behavior of members, record keeping, pay, and how a bill becomes a law are covered.

Sections 8-10: Duties. The exact jobs of Congress are listed. Congress makes all money and trade laws. Congress decides how people can become citizens of the United States and can declare war if necessary. Powers Congress and the states do not have are also listed.

Article II
EXECUTIVE BRANCH

Section 1: Description. The executive branch is made up of the President of the United States and those who help carry out laws passed by Congress. The President manages the government. A President and Vice-President are elected to a 4-year term.

A President must have been born in the United States, must be at least 35 years old, and must have lived in the United States for at least 14 years.

Sections 2-4: Duties. Some of the President's jobs include carrying out the laws made by Congress, responsibility for all the armed forces, pardoning crimes, and reporting to Congress at least once a year on what the nation is doing. The President makes treaties and appoints government leaders; the Senate must give its approval.

If the President does wrong, he may be removed from office.

Article III
JUDICIAL BRANCH

Section 1: Description. The judicial branch of government is the federal court system. The Supreme Court is the nation's highest court. It has the final say in all matters of law. Judges are appointed, not elected to office.

Section 2: Duties. The federal courts have a say in all cases that are not entirely within a state.

Section 3: Treason. The crime of treason, trying to overthrow the government, is explained.

Article IV
THE STATES

Sections 1-4: Rules about the states. All states must accept acts, records, and laws of other states. A citizen of one state must be given the same rights as the citizens of another state he or she may be in. The governor of one state may send an accused criminal from another state back to that state for trial.

New states may be added to the United States. The United States government will protect all states from enemies.

Article V
AMENDMENTS

Making changes. The Constitution may be amended, or changed.

Article VI
HIGHEST LAW

Above all others. The Constitution of the United States is the highest law in the land. State laws must be under this law. All national and state lawmakers and offices must support the Constitution.

Article VII
PASSING THE CONSTITUTION

Ratification. This Constitution becomes law when 9 of the 13 states ratify it, or approve it.

AMENDMENTS
The first ten amendments are known as "THE BILL OF RIGHTS"

Amendment I: Congress may not make rules to change freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, or the right of people to come together in a peaceful way or to send petitions to their government.

Amendment II: The people have the right to keep and bear arms.

Amendment III: During peacetime, the government cannot make citizens put up soldiers in their homes.

Amendment IV: People or their homes may not be searched unreasonably.

Amendment V: Persons accused of serious crimes have the right to a jury trial. They may not be forced to give evidence against themselves. Their lives, freedom, and property may not be taken from them unfairly. If the government takes a person's property for public use, it must pay the owner for it.

Amendment VI: Persons accused of serious crimes have the right to a speedy and public trial. They must be told what they are accused of. They have the right to have a lawyer. They have the right to see and question those who accuse them.

Amendment VII: In most cases, there must be a right to a jury trial.

Amendment VIII: Punishment may not be cruel and unusual.

Amendments IX and X: If the Constitution does not give a certain right to the United States government, and also does not forbid a state government to have that right, then the states and the people have it.

Amendment XI: The power of the judicial branch is limited to certain kinds of cases.

Amendment XII: Electors vote for President and Vice-President separately.

Amendment XIII: Slavery may not exist in the United States.

Amendment XIV: People born in the United States or naturalized here are United States citizens. They are also citizens of the states they live in.

States may not make laws that limit the rights of citizens of the United States. They may not take away a person's life or freedom of property unfairly. They must treat all people equally under the law.

Amendment XV: No citizen may be denied the right to vote because of race.

Amendment XVI: Congress is allowed to pass an income tax law.

Amendment XVII: United States senators are elected by the people.

Amendment XVIII: Liquor may no longer be manufactured or sold in the United States.

Amendment XIX: No citizen may be denied the right to vote because of sex.

Amendment XX: Presidents start their new terms on January 20. Congress starts its new term on January 3.

Amendment XXI: The eighteenth amendment to this Constitution is repealed, or taken back.

Amendment XXII: Presidents are limited to two terms in office.

Amendment XXIII: Residents of Washington, D.C., have the right to vote for President.

Amendment XXIV: Citizens need not pay a tax in order to vote for President, senators, or members of Congress.

Amendment XXV: In case the President becomes too ill to carry on the job, the Vice-President will take over as Acting President until the President is better.

Amendment XXVI: No citizen who is 18 years of age or older may be denied the right to vote because of age.
