A.M. BRIEFING

Marlene Joyce wears a T-shirt with a picture of David Koresh as she attends a third anniversary memorial service at the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Friday.

Looking back

WACO — Clive Doyle stood on a patch of Texas prairie, the sun beating down and the wind whipping his face, and cried. Doyle was among more than 100 people who gathered outside Waco on Friday amid the ruins of the Mount Carmel complex to remember the 81 Branch Davidians who died three years ago in the fiery end to a 51-day standoff with federal agents. Doyle escaped the compound's chapel minutes before it burned to the ground, but lost his 18-year-old daughter, Shari, in the inferno. He urged people to "stand for truth. We are not here to worship those who died, but we do want to remember them," he said, his voice trailing as he wiped away tears. "All those who died were members of one family."

Tainted blood

NEW YORK — Drug companies offered on Friday to settle a decade of litigation over AIDS-tainted blood clotting products sold in the early 1980s by paying every person or family affected about $100,000. The deal requires nearly unanimous acceptance among the 6,000 or more U.S. victims, or it will be withdrawn. That presents an agonizing dilemma: Many of the hemophiliacs sickened by the products don't have much time left to live and may feel obliged to accept the offer even if they think a jury would give them a better deal. Others who are still healthy might feel forced to accept it for the sicker victims' sake.

Midlander loses control of truck, hits, kills pedestrian walking on shoulder

By Joe Gaines
Staff writer

A 45-year-old male, Kenneth Michael Brunt of Navasota, was killed Friday around 3 p.m. after he was hit by a 1-ton pickup hauling a camper trailer on State Highway 394, three miles north of the city limits in Martin County.

George B. Buescher III, of Midland, and two others were leaving on vacation heading north when Buescher lost control of his vehicle.

Buescher swerved left into the southbound lane to avoid the man, but swerved back when he saw an oncoming vehicle, hitting the man. The man was walking north on the east shoulder of the highway, Robin Wilson, a trooper with the Texas Department of Safety said.

The speed limit in the area is 70 mph. It is unknown if any citations were given to the driver.

Brunt was pronounced dead at the scene and his body was taken to Lubbock for an autopsy.

He was a transient and had receipts on him from states in the northwest, according to the funeral home.

The accident is still under investigation and the DPS is asking anyone who saw the accident occur to call them at 697-2211.

100s pause for 168 seconds of silence

■ Mourners mark anniversary of the Oklahoma City bombing at the site where federal building once stood.

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Where there had been sirens, screams and smoke, on Friday there was silence broken only by the chirping of birds and the faint cries of a baby.

At a ceremony marking the first anniversary of the Oklahoma City bombing, hundreds of mourners paused at 9:02 a.m. for 168 seconds of silence at the grassy site where the federal building once stood — one second for each person killed when a bomb exploded exactly one year earlier.

Motorists on highways nearby pulled over, their headlights on in remembrance. A flyover of four F-16 jets and the tolling of a bell in a bomb-damaged church signaled the end of the silence.

Then the names of the 168 people who died were read slowly in alphabetical order, the speakers' voices at times cracking with emotion. During the litany, family members, some sobbing and embracing, laid wreaths, flowers and teddy bears on the site of the demolished Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

"Ted Allen ..." Allen, an administrator at the Department of Housing and Urban Development office, left a widow and six children.

"Baylee Almon ..." Baylee's bloody, limp body was photographed in the arms of a firefighter moments after the blast. The photo became a symbol of the 19 children killed in the blast.

"Rebecca Anderson ..." A nurse, Anderson was killed by falling rubble when she rushed to the scene to rescue people.

"Peachlyn Bradley ..." Peachlyn's mother, Daina Bradley Bruce, gave birth Thursday to another child.

Just under half of Texas' teachers consider career move, survey says

AUSTIN (AP) — Forty-four percent of Texas teachers are seriously considering leaving the profession, with many citing poor working conditions or low pay as the reason, according to a new survey.

Of those who may quit, 39 percent cited such drawbacks as paperwork, stress, administrative hassles and a lack of time to teach, said the survey released by the Texas State Teachers Association at a Friday meeting in El Paso.

Another 21 percent of those contemplating a career change said it was because they aren't paid enough. The average teacher in Texas is a 45-year-old woman making $33,134.

Another 8 percent of those considering a move cited student discipline and lack of motivation, while 28 percent were retiring.

The need for more pay is reflected in the increasing number of teachers holding outside jobs during the school year — 30 percent, or 78,000 teachers — and a drop in the number of male teachers to less than 14 percent of faculty, said TSTA President

MISD officials hope to educate voters on need for bond election

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

With the assistance of local media sources, school district officials are trying to educate voters about the need for the proposed $110 million bond election set for June 1.

School officials agreed that tax money should not be used to educate voters on the bond issue, Superintendent Joseph Baressi said.

At a Friday lunch meeting, Midland Independent School District officials met with media representatives to present their reasoning behind the record-setting bond proposal.

"MISD has completed comprehensive facility needs assessments, conducted campus feasibility studies, worked on programming with campus focus groups and has held five community meetings to seek input from the citizens of Midland about a potential bond question," said Wilson Heidelberg, executive director of auxiliary services.

part from a cease-fire, he said would try to revive and ngthen the 1993 agreement he ered in which Israel and bollah pledged not to target ians.

hristopher said he wanted the ord "written down this time," a senior U.S. official said he oted Hezbollah would be orded the recognition of signing a pact with Israel.

The Shiite militants are trying to force Israel to shut down a security zone inside Lebanon's border. They violently oppose recognition of the Jewish state's right to exist by Arab nations and groups.

Christopher condemned Hezbollah as the "proximate cause" of the fighting that has taken a large civilian toll.

French Foreign Minister Herve de Charette was quoted as saying in the region that "we hope to achieve a quick cease-fire in order to avoid more catastrophic events in the future."

In Moscow, President Clinton and Russian President Boris Yeltsin issued a statement saying they were "seriously concerned" by the fighting. They urged an immediate cease-fire and declared that "only a political solution can provide a lasting settlement to the present crisis and enable a resumption of the peace process."

"We give our full support to the efforts undertaken to that end," they said.

In the meantime, the shelling continued. Guerrillas fired rockets into northern Israel Friday to retaliate for the deaths of at least 75 refugees in a bombardment of a U.N. encampment close to Hezbollah missile sites.

Christopher received the assurances of support from Lebanese Prime Minister Rafiq Hariri and Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa. In Beirut, Hariri told reporters his government was talking to Hezbollah officials in an effort to arrange a cease-fire. He predicted a truce by the middle of next week.

Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres already has declared he would order a stop to rocket attacks on Hezbollah positions in Lebanon if Hezbollah stopped its shelling.

Israel has said it made a mistake in hitting the refugees, and State Department spokesman Glyn Davies said Friday the U.S. objective was to stop the shelling and "not to inflame the situation further by condemning Israel."

Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said Christopher hoped to strengthen a 1993 agreement between Israel and Hezbollah not to target civilians and to build from it "a long-term solution" to their dispute. He said Christopher's stay in the area would be "open-ended."

Israel considers the three-year-old accord insufficient. Hezbollah has killed 62 Israeli soldiers since 1993.

Traveling in Russia, Clinton said "we have a chance" to stop the shelling. But the White House spokesman, Mike McCurry, said he was "not aware of anything to lead us to believe" that a cease-fire was imminent.

Brazilian police open fire on protesting peasants; at least 23 dead

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Even given the bloody history of the eastern Amazon rain forest, the violence was shocking. State police with rifles and machine guns opened fire on hundreds of peasants demanding land, killing at least 22 of them.

Dozens more were wounded in the attack in Eldorado do Carajas, a remote village in the state of Para, 1,250 miles northwest of Rio. One policeman was killed and six were wounded in the confrontation.

"One (policeman) said, 'It's time for the landless to die,'" Orlando Galvino said by telephone from Maraba, about 80 miles from the scene of the attack.

Galvino is a member of the Landless Peasants Movement, which organized a national day of demonstrations April 10 to protest Brazil's widely unequal distribution of land — 20 percent of Brazilians own 88 percent of the land, while the poorest 40 percent hold just 1 percent.

Some 2,000 peasants gathered in southern Para for a march to Maraba, but they only made it as far as Eldorado do Carajas.

Survivors said state authorities had promised to send buses and food for the families. When the aid failed to come, the peasants blocked the road. Late Wednesday, two state police battalions arrived. What happened next is in dispute.

According to police, the officers tried to negotiate with the protesters but were pelted with rocks and shot at.

"We came to talk and open the road and they started shooting," a police officer who identified himself only as Lt. Furtado said by telephone from Maraba. "We just returned their fire."

Survivors claim the officers didn't say a word.

"They didn't even try to negotiate," said Galvino. "They came off the trucks shooting tear gas and firing into the air, then lowered their sights."

The peasants, armed with sticks, stones, machetes and some handguns, were quickly cut down or scattered in panic. Human rights activists contend that some of the victims were killed execution-style.

"The survivors tell the same story: people dragged off into the brush and later turning up dead," said Wanderlei Martins Ladislau of the Para Society for the Defense of Human Rights.

"Around here," he added, "this happens a lot."

In the past decade, at least 961 peasants and their supporters have been killed in land disputes, according to the Pastoral Land Commission.

Today to be sunny, high mid-80s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies and a high between 80-85 with winds from the northeast at 10-20 mph becoming south in the afternoon, according to the National Weather Service.

Tonight's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a low near 50.

Sunday is expected to be mostly sunny with a high in the low 80s.

The high for Friday was 88, compared to the record high for that date of 94, set in 1964. Friday's low was 54. The record low is 37, set in 1953.

STATE

A batch of heavy thunderstorms slid across parts of East Texas Friday night, causing winds and hail damage while spawning several tornado warnings.

"We've had several funnel clouds spotted — three or four of them — but none have touched down," said Jeanne Tuley, dispatcher for the Lamar County Sheriff's Department. "We've had a bunch of hail damage; I don't know to what extent. I do know our patrol cars that were out there were all torn up."

Ms. Tuley said baseball-size hail and heavy winds knocked out car windows and left other damage, but the full extent of that damage wouldn't be revealed until today.

Severe thunderstorms broke out along a dryline from near Hillsboro in Central Texas to near Paris and Clarksville along the Red River.

A wind gust overturned a light plane parked at an airport near Rockwall and caused roof and tree damage east of Dallas from Kaufman to Mesquite to Garland to Greenville. Hail ranging from dime-size to baseball-size accompanied the storms.

Where it wasn't wet Friday, it was unseasonably warm and humid.

San Antonio reached a record high for April 19 when it hit 101 degrees around 4:30 p.m., breaking by two degrees the record set in 1951.

At 3 p.m., temperatures across North Texas ranged from 83 degrees at Addison Airport north of Dallas to 98 degrees at Fort Hood.

Skies across South Texas were partly to mostly cloudy with southerly winds from 10 to 20 mph. Temperatures were generally in the 90s. Drought conditions continued as abundant sunshine and gusty south winds continued to dry soil across south and southeast Texas. Mandatory water conservation was imposed in San Antonio.

Much of West Texas was behind the dry line. Skies were generally clear and winds were westerly from 10 to 20 mph. Temperatures were generally in the 70s and 80s.

At 7 p.m., a line of thunderstorms from southwest of Waco to east of Dallas was drifting slowly eastward.

Today's North Texas forecast called for a chance of thunderstorms, some possibly severe, with a high from 78 to 85.

Today in South Texas was expected to remain cloudy after the night with a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms developing over the northern half of the region. High temperatures were expected to warm into the 80s and 90s.

In West Texas, highs today and Sunday were forecast to be from the 70s north to the 90s along the Rio Grande.

In a story in Friday's edition on Missoula Children's Theatre production of "Jack and the Beanstalk," set for 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. today, the names of the children playing the lead characters were inadvertently omitted.

Those children are:

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the omission.

SERVICE: Nation remembers bombing victims

(From 1A)

"Mickey Maroney ..." Maroney, a Secret Service agent, played on the University of Arkansas' championship football team in 1964.

"Christi Rosas ..." Mrs. Rojas was one of the last three victims recovered from the rubble, more than a month after the bombing.

"Chase Smith ... Colton Smith ..." The death of the Smith boys prompted their grandfather Glen Wilburn to mount his own investigation of the bombing.

After the names were read, the families walked five blocks to the Myriad Convention Center for a memorial service open to the rest of the public.

Brian Fields, a paramedic who responded one year ago, said he watched the procession with a mixture of pain, fear, numbness and relief.

"It looked like it hailed glass and rained blood," he said, recalling the scene a year ago. "The smoke was so thick you couldn't see across the street."

Arlene Blanchard, a former Army sergeant, was in the Army Recruiting Office on the building's fourth floor when the bomb exploded.

'It has been a long year...We saw the face of evil, but we have also seen the face of love and compassion.'

— Rev. Don Alexander
First Christian Church

"I had to come here today. I had to face it," she said. "What I would take home today is peace of mind. It kind of set my soul to rest. It was just like anvils being taken off my shoulders."

Moments of silence were marked around the country. In the nation's capital, a somber tolling of bells interrupted the silence on a plaza outside the Transportation Department, and a lone trumpeter played taps. The Senate and the House also stopped briefly.

At the bombing site, mourners streamed to the service, many in tears, most wearing haunted expressions as they looked around at the shattered buildings that still stand near the bombing site.

Volunteers and members of the U.S. Attorney's victim assistance unit passed out teddy bears. One little girl, wrapped in the jacket of her father's suit against the morning wind, clutched the bear to her chest and stared wide-eyed at the buildings and the crowd.

A few moments before 9:02 a.m., an honor guard raised a flag on the parking garage, the only part of the building left standing. The flag was then lowered to half-staff to match the other flags snapping in the spring breeze. Bagpipers played "Amazing Grace."

"A year has passed since the traumatic shattering of so many lives," the Rev. Don Alexander of the First Christian Church told the mourners as the service opened. "It has been a long year. A difficult year. We saw the face of evil, but we have also seen the face of love and compassion."

Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols, the two men charged in the bombing, spent the day in their cells at a federal prison in Englewood, Colo. They are awaiting trial in Denver sometime late this year or early next year.

Signs of increased security were everywhere Friday at the bombing site. Sharpshooters scanned the area from surrounding rooftops, and officers moved among the crowd, their eyes in constant motion. One plainclothes officer tried to stay vigilant despite the tears that welled up in his eyes.

Rolanda Jimenez, 20, traveled from Lubbock, to visit the site where her uncle, Antonio Reyes, died. Reyes, who worked for HUD, had bought Jimenez her first set of golf clubs. In his memory, she placed a golf bag-shaped glass filled with balloons, flowers and a flag at the bomb site.

"He was with me my first time on the course," she said. "I go through my days where I sit and cry. It's going to take a long time."

VOTE: MISD wants to educate public schools were growing quickly, he said.

(From 1A)

A staff architect was hired in 1990 to supervise the refurbishing and upgrade of these schools and the board began a project of renovating two schools a year out of the existing budget.

State Comptroller John Sharp determined in 1994 that if a bond issue was passed and these schools renovated over a five-year period, the taxpayers of Midland would save $5.4 million.

With many of these schools built in the boom years of the 1950s and 1960s, the annual repair costs were growing on a large number of schools, Heidelberg said.

The board has historically spent far less than the average of the 50 largest districts in Texas — of which Midland ranks 34th.

In fact, Midland has spent between 45 to 50 percent less per year on renovating school facilities than the average of these 50 districts.

"We have, perhaps, underspent in some (areas) to the detriment of our students," Heidelberg said.

The annual repair costs of these aging facilities is a whopping 73.5 cents per square foot — compared to 3.9 cents per square foot for new or newly renovated properties, he said.

In addition, many schools need to be upgraded for the additional programs and technology that have come about since the buildings were originally constructed, he said.

These needs are coupled with federal regulations in the Americans With Disabilities Act and the Title IX regulations calling for equal facilities for female athletics.

"Girl's programs have increased tenfold and they are still using the same dressing room facilities built in the 1950s and '60s," Heidelberg said.

"The total MISD tax rate has not been increased since 1991-92," said Art Martin, director of finance.

For each penny increase in property taxes, the state provides more than half the amount raised in matching funds, Martin said.

If a bond is passed this year, the school district stands to receive $5 million in addition to the these state matching funds and regular funding, Martin said.

"A bond issue is a necessity to allow the district to meet building and life cycle replacement needs, legal and safety issues, building comparability issues, program needs, increased enrollment and technological needs," Heidelberg said.

"The community's support and passage of a bond now are vital to enable the district to borrow the money necessary to address more facilities needs over a shorter period of time and for a much lower cost," Heidelberg said.

FDA advisers recommend sale of nonprescription nicotine patches

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Smokers should be able to buy two nicotine patches to help them kick the habit without a prescription, scientific advisers told the Food and Drug Administration on Friday.

The committee voted unanimously that both Nicotrol and its competitor Nicoderm should be sold over the counter, giving smokers a choice of a one-dose patch to replace their cigarettes' nicotine or a patch that weans them by slowing dropping nicotine dosages.

Nonprescription patches will help "those who are addicted to nicotine to hopefully break their addiction," Dr. Louis Sullivan, former Health and Human Services secretary, told the FDA committee.

The FDA isn't bound by advisory committee decisions but usually follows them. It already has allowed nicotine-dispensing chewing gum to sell over the counter — nonprescription Nicorette hit pharmacy shelves Thursday.

Patch makers plan to warn smokers not to overdose, either by smoking while the patch is still oozing nicotine or by wearing too many patches at once.

That might be especially dangerous for smokers with heart disease or certain other health risks, who should consider consulting with a doctor, the patch packages will warn.

But the FDA's advisers said such a warning is just a precaution, and might even be a barrier to patch sales, because no studies so far show a real risk from patches, while cigarette smoking kills 400,000 Americans a year.

"I want lots of people to use" the patches, said committee chairman Randy Juhl, pharmacy dean at the University of Pittsburgh.

"We always believe someone is better off on the patch than they are smoking," agreed Dr. Tony Temple of McNeil Consumer Products, maker of Nicotrol.

The pharmaceutical industry is banking on renewed interest in what has been a dormant market for anti-smoking products. Prescription sales of both the nation's four nicotine patches and Nicorette have stagnated in recent years as the withdrawal symptoms held smokers' success in quitting to about 20 percent.

Patch makers hope to join Nicorette over the counter by year's end. Their potential market is huge: Studies estimate that three-fourths of the nation's 46 million smokers would like to quit.

QUIT: Many teachers consider career change

(From 1A)

Richard Kouri.

In 1980, the first year the teacher group did the survey, 38 percent of teachers were considering leaving, 22 percent moonlighted and 20 percent were men.

"It should surprise no one that Texas teachers say the moonlighting adversely affects teacher recruitment, job stress and efficiency," Kouri said.

Nearly 17 percent of the nation's 2.4 million full-time teachers hold another job during the school year, but just 5 percent of all U.S. workers hold second jobs, he said.

"Serious consideration by the Texas Legislature to bring Texas teacher salaries up to the national average will go a long way in recruiting and maintaining more male teachers and will be an incentive to discourage second jobs outside the classroom," Kouri said.

The survey, which was conducted in February, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percent. Questionnaires were mailed to 599 teachers, with 289 responding.

Kouri said they were being assigned too many extra tasks, meetings and paperwork.

He said TSTA wants to work with the Legislature, State Board of Education, Texas Education Agency and local school administrators to reduce paperwork, hire more clerical help and "lighten each teachers' curriculum assignment."

People gather at Davidian compound site to remember those who died

WACO — Clive Doyle stood on a patch of Texas prairie, the sun beating down and the wind whipping his face, and cried.

Doyle was among more than 100 people who gathered outside Waco on Friday amid the ruins of the Mount Carmel complex to remember the 81 Branch Davidians who died three years ago in the fiery end to a 51-day standoff with federal agents.

Doyle escaped the compound's chapel minutes before it burned to the ground, but lost his 18-year-old daughter, Shari, in the inferno. He urged people to "stand for truth."

"We are not here to worship those who died, but we do want to remember them," he said, his voice trailing as he wiped away tears. "All those who died were members of one family."

Doyle, 55, had trouble keeping his composure as he recounted how the siege drew to a close.

"They told us this was not an attack ... in spite of the front door being penetrated by a tank," he said, referring to a tear gas attack by the FBI that began several hours before the fire.

Debris from the compound still is scattered and in piles. Only cement slabs remain where buildings once stood.

As Doyle spoke, several children who left Mount Carmel before the fire scampered about and played on the piles of rubble where many of their family and friends died, seemingly oblivious to the memorial.

Davidian Sheila Martin arrived with her two children, Kimberly, 7, and Daniel, 9, and lay two wreaths of flowers at the edge of the complex.

Despite losing her husband and four other children in the siege, Mrs. Martin said she feels no rage. She was at Mount Carmel until March 21, 1993, while Kimberly and Daniel left March 2.

"Our hope is still in the word of God — that God is still going to work this out — that all this happened for the sake of the truth being known," said Mrs. Martin, 49.

David Thibodeaux, who survived the inferno, caused the most stir from the crowd with his comments on the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the FBI.

"Can you spell murder?" he asked over the loudspeaker.

Many in the crowd shouted "ATF!" in response.

Also speaking was former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, who represents 56 relatives of Davidians who were killed and a few survivors in a civil lawsuit against the government that asks for hundreds of millions of dollars in damages.

Clark said he is gathering evidence to help prove the government was at fault.

Doyle, who now works in a Waco health food store and was acquitted of all charges resulting from the siege, said he is disappointed that none of the federal agents involved were prosecuted.

Budget deficit rises 6.7 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit climbed to $47.3 billion in March, up 6.7 percent from the February imbalance, but still below the pace set in 1995.

The Treasury Department reported Friday that the March deficit compared to an imbalance of $44.3 billion in February. For the first six months of the current fiscal year, the deficit totals $128.2 billion, 12.6 percent below the midpoint last year.

The Clinton administration is projecting that the deficit for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, will total $145.6 billion, down 11 percent from the $163.9 billion imbalance for all of 1995.

Last year's red ink marked the third straight year the deficit has declined, something that President Clinton often points to as evidence that his 1993 deficit reduction program is working.

Even though the fiscal year is half over, much of government is still operating under a stopgap spending plan because the administration and the Republican-controlled Congress cannot agree on a program to totally eliminate the deficit by the year 2002.

The increase in the imbalance had been expected by analysts. Marilyn Schaja, an economist at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette in New York, said that part of the deficit increase occurred because tax refund checks were mailed out on time this year unlike in 1995.

Last year, IRS computers delayed 7.4 million refunds — the inadvertent fallout from a crackdown on fraud.

The March deficit reflected a shortfall between government tax receipts, which totaled $89.15 billion, and government spending, which totaled $136.29 billion.

As usual, the biggest spending categories were Social Security, Department of Health and Human Services programs, the military, and interest on the national debt.

Social Security payments amounted to $31.4 billion for the month and $182.68 billion for the year so far. HHS payments, including Medicare and Medicaid, totaled $26.4 billion in March and $155 billion for fiscal 1996 so far.

Military spending totaled $21.6 billion in March and $122.9 billion so far this year. Debt interest amounted to $20.7 billion for the month and $171 billion so far this year.

Drug companies offer hemophiliacs difficult choice

NEW YORK (AP) — Drug companies offered on Friday to settle a decade of litigation over AIDS-tainted blood clotting products sold in the early 1980s by paying every person or family affected about $100,000.

The deal requires nearly unanimous acceptance among the 6,000 or more U.S. victims, or it will be withdrawn.

That presents an agonizing dilemma: Many of the hemophiliacs sickened by the products don't have much time left to live and may feel obliged to accept the offer even if they think a jury would give them a better deal.

Others who are still healthy might feel forced to accept it for the sicker victims' sake.

"We've lost about 4,500 members of our community and the death rate is now up to two per day," said Wayne Swindlehurst, vice president of the advocacy group Committee of 10,000. Even though many victims feel the offer is insufficient, "there are a lot of good reasons for some people to take this," he said.

Dana Kuhn said he was infected in 1983 through a single blood-clotting treatment, but wasn't diagnosed with HIV until 1987. He said he unknowingly infected his wife, who died and left him with two children.

"I have a strong case, but now I have to choose between taking care of my children's future or giving up on my suit and letting everybody get a piece of the pie. I don't think that's much of a choice," said Kuhn, a hospital counselor in Richmond, Va.

Many others will have similar quandaries, said Swindlehurst, a former salesman from Hudsonville, Mich., who has hemophilia and AIDS.

"For most of the members of our community, this is going to be the hardest decision they've ever had to make in their life," he said.

The four major producers of blood-clotting factors said they made the $600 million settlement offer to end the U.S. hemophilia litigation, just as they did last month in Japan.

The four are Germany's Bayer AG; Baxter International Inc., of Deerfield, Ill.; the Armour Pharmaceuticals division of French-owned Rhone-Poulenc Rorer; and Alpha Therapeutic Corp., a division of Japan's Green Cross Corp.

The companies are accused of intentionally selling AIDS-tainted clotting products in the early 1980s and ignoring sterilization methods that would have killed the virus. They contend that those methods were unproven until late 1983 and say they should not be held responsible.

New estimates in old debate on 'Net use

Various surveys place Internet use somewhere between 16 million-22 million

By Peter H. Lewis
N.Y. Times News Service

Millions of Internet users have vanished without a trace since last summer. Millions more have reappeared since December. And a couple of million disappeared again just Tuesday, when Nielsen Media Research revised its estimates of Internet use among adults in the United States.

More than half a year after the most ambitious attempt to count the number of people using the Internet, Nielsen and its academic advisers — looking at the same set of data — appear to be hopelessly split on how to interpret the numbers. Depending on whom — and when — one asks, there were 22 million adult Americans on the Internet last August. Or 19.4 million. Or 16.4 million.

Meanwhile, no one knows for sure what the population of cyberspace is in April 1996.

And after months of a surprisingly rancorous dispute over the normally dry science of statistical weighting, the companies that commissioned the survey have come up with their own conclusion: The results of last summer's head count simply do not matter any more.

The companies intend to keep on doing what

Splitting Hairs Over a Head Count

Using the same survey data, Nielsen Media Research and its principal academic adviser have arrived at different estimates of Internet use in the United States last year. A heated debate began in December, when the adviser — Donna L. Hoffman, a business professor at Vanderbilt University— said the Commercenet/Nielsen Internet Demographic Survey may have "significantly inflated" its findings. On Friday, Professor Hoffman and others released their latest conclusions. Nielsen lowered its estimates Tuesday.

More RAM, more dividends

Q: I run a PC using Windows 3.1, and have noticed that the machine actually slows down during the day. If I turn it off and let it sit for 10 or 15 minutes, it will run well when I turn it back on. What do you think causes this problem, and what can I do to correct it? L.R., Alpharetta, Ga.

A: My best guess, without knowing all the specifics of your computer, is that you have a tight RAM situation and after a while you're probably being forced into using virtual memory, which would account for the slowdown.

This can happen even if you have enough RAM when you start the computer, because some applications have a nasty tendency of failing to release some of the resources they've been using, even when you close them. Others might start with a certain amount of RAM and slowly demand more.

In the short run, your restart strategy will continue to work, but don't bother with waiting 15 minutes before you turn the machine back on. The restart causes the computer to clear all of its memory and start over, which is all you need to regain your speed.

In the longer run, you'll probably want to look at adding more RAM to your computer. Windows 3.1 can run on 4 megabytes, but you'll realize huge dividends for every meg you can add on.

Q: I want to add a larger monitor to my Macintosh, but I'm not sure what it will do to my system. Do I need to make any changes to my programs? Are there any hardware-related problems to consider?
S.W., Duluth, Ga.

A: You won't have to make any changes to your programs, but there are some very important hardware issues to consider.

Computers use a special kind of RAM called Video RAM to operate their monitors. The amount of Video RAM in your machine will depend heavily on the model and when it was made. If you don't have enough Video RAM, you'll have to upgrade before you can add a larger monitor.

To find out how large a monitor your Mac can support, check with your dealer. Or, if you have access to the Internet, check out MacWeek's site at http:// www.zdnet.com/~macuser and download the utility Mac Catalog Database. It lists every Mac ever made, and includes information of the video capacity of each machine.

Unabomber fascination runs deep in cyberspace

By Edward Rothstein
N.Y. Times News Service

"Man, is this ever weird," reads a posting on a Usenet news group that is called "alt.fan.unabomber." "There is now a news group about the guy who despises technology."

Weird, indeed. Since the arrest of Theodore John Kaczynski as the suspected Unabomber, related postings and pages on the Internet have grown into a miniature World Wide Web of links. The suspect may have lived in a cabin without any water or electricity, but in cyberspace, he has found a high-tech home.

■ Cyber Issues

He has inspired fans (He "was attacking societal scum ... guilty for their crimes against humanity.") and aspiring correspondents ("Write him a sincere note and maybe he would respond," one posting says. "Just be REALLY careful with any replies you receive," another cautions.)

His predilection for two-wheeled transportation has also given him wry attention in the rec.bicycles.off-road news group ("They did show his bike on TV the other day. I didn't see the brand but it was some kind of beater bike, most likely a Trek. It did have bar ends on it, and unsuspended. Can ya believe it?"). Comedy is latent in the suspect's predilection for hunting and his basic diet ("Given the ingredients: fresh-shot snowshoe rabbit, white flour, dried vegetables, and maybe Spam," a posting asks, "what would the dish be?")

The suspect's past as a mathematician may even inspire new interest in the boundary properties of continuous functions (a Kaczynski bibliography has been posted in the news group sci.math).

And in forums on Compuserve and America Online, debates energetically respond to an editorial in The Weekly Standard about his Luddite celebration of nature: "If it were fair to blame Rush Limbaugh for Timothy McVeigh," the right-wing magazine argues, "surely the

If you're sticking with DOS, make sure to line up support

By Bill Husted
N.Y. Times News Service

While listening to National Public Radio not long ago, I heard an interview with a fellow from Finland who had just finished the strangest recording of Elvis Presley songs imaginable. All the songs are in Latin.

"Love Me Tender" in Latin reminded me it was time to write a column for folks who still use DOS as the operating system for their personal computer.

Neither DOS nor Latin is a dead language. But try ordering a hamburger in Latin next time you're in the mood for fast food, or try asking a co-worker for the DOS command to create a bootable floppy disk. You won't get a hamburger, and you won't get any help at the office.

That's a shame, because there are still millions of computer users who depend on DOS. Some are running all their programs in DOS. Others are still using Windows 3.1, which, unlike Windows 95, requires DOS.

The first thing to know, if you're sticking with DOS, is that you'll need a good support group for the reasons I just mentioned. You can't depend on your co-workers or even magazines for help. While you'll find entire magazines devoted to Windows, most computer magazines have pretty much written DOS off.

There are still DOS manuals to be found, but they're getting scarce, too. If you don't

Netscape to improve speed, performance of Java applications

N.Y. Times News Service

Netscape Communications Corporation (Nasdaq: NSCP) and Borland International Inc. (Nasdaq: BORL) this week announced Netscape's plan to improve the speed and performance of Java (TM) applications running inside Netscape Navigator (TM) by including Borland AppAccelerator (TM) "just-in-time" dynamic compiler for Java applications. As a result, Netscape Navigator users will enjoy an enhanced Internet experience with faster execution of the thousands of Java applications available on Web pages and corporate Intranets worldwide. Currently Netscape Navigator is the only Internet client software commercially available that supports the Java programming language. The non-exclusive agreement between the two companies extends Netscape's leading Java support by enhancing Java application performance throughout Netscape's leading open software platform.

Netscape plans to incorporate Borland's AppAccelerator technology, which enables Java applets and applications to run five-to-10 times faster than unenhanced versions, into future versions of Netscape Navigator. Even greater increases in speed may result when executing software applications that involve a significant number of computations. Terms of the agreement were not announced.

"By including a Java just-in-time compiler in Netscape Navigator, we will provide Netscape Navigator users with faster execution of Java applications. As a result, customers will experience significant performance enhancements across the breadth of Java-enabled content on the Web," said Bob Lisbonne vice president of client marketing at Netscape. "Borland is an expert in compiler technology and we're excited about Borland bringing AppAccelerator to market so quickly."

JAVA: Over 20 million Netscape navigators used

(From 1B)

"Borland is both excited and pleased to license our AppAccelerator technology to Netscape. We believe it will help energize the wholesale adoption of Java as a corporate standard for Intranets and distributed client/server computing over multi-platform networks," said Paul Gross, senior vice-president of research and development at Borland.

Java is the popular new programming language from Sun Microsystems for building platform-independent distributed computing applications over networks, including the World Wide Web, using Internet protocols. Borland's AppAccelerator reads the intermediate byte code produced by Java development tools and translates it "on-the-fly" into machine-executable instructions on the local client system. Initially, AppAccelerator will be available for Windows 95 and Windows NT clients.

Netscape continues to lead the market by providing support for Java throughout its leading Internet software platform to give users access to the wealth of live online content on the Internet today. Netscape Navigator, the first commercially available client software to support Java, is the most-widely used client software on the Internet with over 75 percent market share. Over 20 million Navigators are in use worldwide today. Netscape FastTrack Server (TM) software and Netscape Enterprise Server (TM) software, now available in beta for immediate download from the Netscape Internet site, are the first web servers to support Java and JavaScript (TM).

Already shipping, Borland C++ Development Suite 5.0 includes the "just-in-time" compiler, as well as a graphical program debugger and an integrated version of Sun Microsystems' Java Development Kit.

Borland International Inc. is a leading provider of products and services targeted to software developers. Borland is distinguished for its high-quality software development tools, which include Delphi, Delphi Client/Server, Borland C++, Visual dBASE, Paradox and InterBase. Borland's award-winning products are supported through comprehensive programs for small- and large-sized software developers, corporate developers, value added resellers and systems integrators. Founded in 1983, Borland is headquartered in Scotts Valley, California.

Netscape Communications Corporation is a premier provider of open software for linking people and information over enterprise networks and the Internet. The company offers a full line of clients, servers, development tools, and commercial applications to create a complete platform for next-generation, live online applications. Traded on Nasdaq under the symbol "NSCP," Netscape Communications Corporation is based in Mountain View, California.

Copies of previous Borland press releases and additional corporate and product information are available on Borland's Internet World Wide Web (WWW) site, at http://www.borland.com. Additional information on Netscape Communications Corporation is available on the Internet at http://home.netscape.com, by sending email to infonetscape.com. DOS: Some users prefer text-only World Wide Web have a good one, start looking now. Before long, they'll be even more difficult to find.

Even if you have good books about DOS, there are times — no matter how extensive your library — you'll need to ask another DOS user for advice.

Luckily there are other places to turn. If you have access to the Internet's Usenet newsgroups, try comp.os.msdos.apps and comp.os.msdos.misc. You may be able to solve your problem just by browsing questions and answers others have left behind. But, if you can't, you can leave a note asking for help.

When you do, you'll discover the good part of speaking a dead language is that the people who still speak it form a real brotherhood. You're a lot more likely to get expert help and a lot less likely to get sarcastic responses.

There's also help on the World Wide Web. Try the DOS Command Index page at http://www.csulb.edu/murdock/dosindex.html for explanations of the DOS commands.

America Online users can use the keyword DOS to get to that service's DOS Forum; CompuServe members can type Go MSDOS, and Prodigy members can jump to the Computer BB and from there to the Operating System topic.

It's a lucky thing that DOS users aren't interested in being trendy. I don't know of any Internet service providers who offer software for DOS users. (If you know of some, I'd love to hear about them, by the way.)

But if you're stubborn (and if you're still running DOS, you probably are), there is a way. You'll find a sparse selection of DOS-based Internet software at a home page that originates in the Netherlands: http://snt.student.utwente.nl/service/apps/msdos-software.shtml. And you'll get advice in the newsgroups I mentioned earlier.

Some people even prefer the text-based World Wide Web browsers for DOS. They're blindingly fast compared with Windows and Macintosh versions since they just load text and no graphics from the page.

So, if you're still happy with DOS, why switch to Windows 95? After all, Elvis may have been wrong when he sang "Nunc hic aut numquam" ("It's Now or Never").

UNABOMBER: Kaczynski 'digital monster from the Id'

(From 1B)

media could find room to blame the Unabomber on Al Gore."

But on the Net, the Unabomber has a mythic presence. The reasons are not simple. Recall again the manifesto, printed last year and now available on numerous Web sites.

"Primitive man," it asserts, "suffered from less stress and frustration and was better satisfied with his way of life than modern man is." The problem is that technology has been a "disaster for the human race," breaking down social order and creating a sense of "purposelessness."

In this world of anomie, action must be taken to restore humanity to a "positive ideal," which the Unabomber finds in "WILD nature" — a world "independent of human management and free of human interference and control." People must become "peasants or herdsmen or fishermen or hunters."

"Factories should be destroyed," the Unabomber wrote, "technical books burned."

Apart from the apocalyptic sentiments, such views are more than 200 years old (beginning before the followers of Ned Ludd became the first Luddites, destroying textile machinery in England). Last September, in The Nation, Kirkpatrick Sale chided the Unabomber for his ignorance of this strain of thought, which he traced back to William Blake and Mary Shelley (his essay is reprinted on the Pathfinder Web site).

'The fascination with the Unabomber on the Net runs so deep partly because the lure of the Net is often just what the Unabomber seeks: autonomy.'

— Rod Steger, who lives in Malibu, Calif.

But the real influence on the Unabomber, if he and Kaczynski are one and the same, may be recent Luddites like Theodore Roszak or Charles A. Reich. Both articulated the Romantic ideals of the counterculture, condemning technology and "the system," during the years when Kaczynski taught mathematics at Berkeley.

Interestingly, some of the alumni of the counterculture returned to technology via the PC, which was seen as an instrument for personal liberation. Timothy Leary began to describe the advantages of cyberspace over acid trips. David Bunnell, a veteran of Students for a Democratic Society, founded PC Magazine. The originator of the Whole Earth Catalogue, Stewart Brand, began the Well on-line service.

Wherever he may have been during the 1960s, the Unabomber of more recent times did not find his way to the Net. He rejected all machinery except the typewriter and the letter bomb, becoming a Rube Goldberg of destruction, a technologist who spent 17 years perfecting his murderous craft.

There may have also been a kind of twisted revenge at work. The Unabomber's manifesto blames technology for breaking down societies, tempting individuals "to move to new locations, separating themselves from their communities."

The manifesto also refers to the sorry fate of young people who should be growing in "contact with the real world," but who are "pushed into studying technical subjects, which most do grudgingly." And he adds: "No one stops to ask whether it is inhumane to force adolescents to spend the bulk of their time studying subjects most of them hate."

These resentments may or may not match Kaczynski's feelings about his isolation and his studies. But his mathematical specialty dealt with constraints and limits that circumscribe "well-behaved" curves (the adjective has a mathematical meaning) — a subject that must have had some personal resonance when he rebelled against his middle-class constraints.

The Unabomber surely did something similar in the course of his career, embracing a series of shocking discontinuities. "In order to get our message before the public with some chance of making a lasting impression," the Unabomber writes, "we've had to kill people."

The fascination with the Unabomber on the Net runs so deep partly because the lure of the Net is often just what the Unabomber seeks: countercultural autonomy. One posting on the Unabomber news group proclaims that he would have felt at home on the Net, which "subverts the old industrial system."

But the bomber's violent subversion of moral boundaries also makes him, for most, too close for comfort, bearing the mark of Cain. The Hotwired Web site (www.hotwired.com) dismisses his manifesto as "old thinking for an old medium."

Some postings also express relief that his crimes won't sully the Net, if Kaczynski is found guilty of the bomber's crimes: he was thoroughly unplugged. But the mythology of the Net and the mythology of the Unabomber share origins. As another Hotwired essay puts it, the Unabomber remains "our digital-age Monster from the Id." As hero and demon, he looms over cyberspace.

USE: Disputes arise on actual numbers

they have been, pumping billions of dollars into the Internet and its World Wide Web on the assumption that if they build it, the multitudes — whatever the number — will come.

"At this point, we don't want to be involved with the bickering over which statistical technique is accurate," said Asim Abdullah, acting executive director of Commercenet, a consortium of more than 130 high-tech companies interested in Internet commerce that commissioned Nielsen's original report. "Our members have other things to worry about."

"Yeah, we're in a hurricane, and they are arguing about whether the wind is blowing 150 miles an hour or 120 miles an hour," said Mark Resch, general manager of advanced technology business services for Xerox Business Services in Palo Alto, Calif. "The argument is intellectually interesting, and it totally misses the point. Activity on our Web site is up 10 percent a month, steadily."

Based on an ambitious telephone survey last August that was designed by Nielsen Media Research and Profs. Donna L. Hoffman and Thomas P. Novak of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, the researchers initially reported that there were 22 million adult Internet users in the United States.

The numbers, which more than doubled previous estimates of Internet users, were quickly embraced by companies hoping to strike it rich in electronic commerce.

But in a departure from the normally staid realm of academic debate, Professor Hoffman in December publicly disavowed the Nielsen report, saying that its conclusions were invalid. She said her own analysis of the survey data indicated that that there were fewer than 10 million Internet users in the United States and Canada combined.

Professor Hoffman said she went public only after Nielsen officials did not respond to her concerns.

But Jack Loftus, a Nielsen executive, said the company was surprised and stunned in December by what he described as Professor Hoffman's "brutal, bitter and unprofessional attack on us."

"That really hurt us," Loftus said. "It caused us all kinds of trouble. Sales came to a screeching halt." Nielsen had been selling the report for $5,000 a copy.

Last Friday night, after a more detailed analysis of Nielsen's raw numbers and methodology, the Vanderbilt professors, joined by William D. Kalsbeek, a researcher in biostatistics at the University of North Carolina, posted a report on the World Wide Web, calling Nielsen's analysis "seriously flawed" and "grossly inflated."

A more reasonable estimate of Internet users, the professors concluded, was 16.4 million. 7hile significantly higher than the 10 million figure Professor Hoffman proffered in December, it still represented 5.6 million fewer users than Nielsen's count. The discrepancy, the professors said, was due to fundamental mistakes Nielsen made in interpreting the raw data.

Further, she and the other professors contended, Nielsen's estimate of 16.9 million American users of the World Wide Web should have been 11.5 million. And Nielsen's conclusion that 1.97 million people had purchased something on the Web should have been 1.51 million, the professors said.

Nielsen, a unit of Dun & Bradstreet that is best known for providing advertisers and broadcast networks with estimates of television viewership, responded with its own Web posting over the weekend, accusing Professor Hoffman of deliberately misrepresenting the company's research and "jimmying the numbers."

And yet, shortly after the professors' posting, Nielsen officials sharpened their pencils and took another look at their own numbers. Tuesday, explaining that it had analyzed the data using a more complex weighting system — placing more emphasis on age, for instance, and somewhat less on income — Nielsen released a new cyber census.

While insisting that the original count was also accurate, Nielsen officials said that this new interpretation of the August numbers would yield the following results: 19.4 million Internet users, 14.6 million Web users, and 1.9 million people who had bought something on line.S

Sunil Gupta, a business professor at the University of Michigan who also had access to the Nielsen raw data, said it appeared that both sides had made mistakes in their first attempts to measure the size of the Internet.

"Nielsen did a great job in the way they conducted the survey, but they got really sloppy at the end in how they analyzed the data," Gupta said. "Still, whether you agree with Donna Hoffman or with Nielsen, it is probably the best survey among all that have been done."

Windows '95 books on most every shelf

By Lonnie Brown
N.Y. Times News Service

Remember what your mom used to say? Eat your vegetables. Wash your hands. Pick up your clothes.

Today, Mom says: "Don't forget the mouse right button. Especially don't forget to right click everywhere to see what pops up."

The quote is from "The Mother of all Windows 95 Books." At last count, there were almost two dozen of these thick (about two inches), heavy (about two pounds) and pricey (about $40 for most) books that explain Windows 95 in great detail.

Windows 95 is supposed to be so easy to use that the official manual is almost non-existent. So why do all these thick books abound?

While most of the day-to-day aspects of Windows are easy enough to learn, the program is filled with nifty, helpful little things that you might never find unless you're the type who pokes around a lot. And one day, there will probably come a time that you'd like to know something about doing something with Windows: setting up a logon scripting language for the Internet, or making a DOS program run full-screen instead of in a window. Maybe Windows' "help" feature isn't that clear. That's when these books pay for themselves.

A few — notably "The Mother of All Windows 95 Books" — are pretty entertaining just to read. Nearly all of it is in understandable English, although some parts may require some slow reading. Open the book, find something you're interested in, and start reading. It won't be long before you'll run across some useful tidbit (like the tip to click the right mouse button), or learn something that may come in handy later.

"The Mother of All Windows 95 Books" (hereinafter: Mother) has 11 chapters ranging from the simple to the complex. One of them deals with the most sacred ground of Windows 95: the Registry. (There is a way to edit the Registry, but I have sworn to a technical support person at Microsoft that I will not tell readers how to do this. If you take out the wrong file, you can get into a LOT of trouble. Don't go there alone unless you know what you're doing, or are following along with Mother.)

Mother makes it clear that the book isn't "Windows for Dullards." It's for people who want to know the helpful shortcuts and how-tos. But it's a fun book to read, mainly because of the postage-stamp-sized pictures of Mom (the main character who presents her views in a "you better believe it" way), and her friends who add additional — and sometimes differing — points of view.

Anti-terrorism bill provision sparks protests from immigrant groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of foreigners who entered the United States illegally would be at risk for expedited removal from the country under a little-noticed provision in the anti-terrorism bill.

The measure, which President Clinton is expected to sign next week, sharply curtails the sometimes cumbersome immigration hearings process, making it far speedier to kick illegal aliens out of the country.

The rights of federal courts to review deportation and exclusion decisions would be sharply reduced as well.

And, immigration officials would be given new authority to refuse entry to asylum seekers arriving without valid travel documents. Immigration officers at airports and other ports of entry would immediately decide the merit of claims by asylum requesters without valid documents. That would bypass the current asylum hearings process before an immigration judge.

Immigrant-rights groups and civil-rights advocates Friday denounced the provisions as "horribly" punitive, saying they amount to an unwarranted attack on individuals' due process rights.

"This has nothing to do with terrorism. It's about accomplishing a pretty ugly immigration agenda by stealth," fumed Cecilia Munoz of the National Council of La Raza, a leading Hispanic advocacy group.

The head of the National Immigration Forum, which opposes many immigration constraints, denounced the asylum provisions, which could affect several thousand people annually.

"You're going to have a low-level inspector being given the power — without review — to make life and death decisions," said Frank Sharry. "It's like giving a toll collector the right to decide whether to administer the death penalty."

Republican congressional staffers, speaking on condition of anonymity, acknowledged that the immigration provisions have some rough edges that may have to be refined later.

"No one is intending to yank someone out who's been here 35 years on the say-so of an immigration officer who can't find a legal document," said a House Republican aide.

Immigration and Naturalization Service general counsel David Martin said the Clinton administration would work to modify the provisions in the anti-terrorism legislation when the Senate resumes deliberation of a stalled immigration bill.

Supporters of immigration cutbacks applauded the legislation.

"It's a long overdue change to the immigration laws to restore the balance between the government's power and those who crash our borders and use asylum to lie their way in," said Dan Stein, executive director of the Federation for American Immigration Reform, which favors an all-out war on illegal immigration.

"The process of apprehending and deporting illegal aliens has turned into a farce. As a result, no one gets deported."

Under the measure, illegal aliens living here who are unable to prove they had been lawfully admitted upon first arrival could be summarily removed.

Half of the estimated 4.4 million illegal aliens in the United States entered illegally; the others overstayed temporary visas.

Practically, undocumented aliens' risk of apprehension is minimal. The United States deported 51,600 illegal aliens last year, nearly two-thirds of them convicted criminals.

Bomb threat closes down Texas City Ship Channel

TEXAS CITY (AP) — The Texas City Ship Channel, a branch of the heavily travelled Houston Ship Channel, was closed Friday by federal authorities after a bomb threat was called to a police emergency operator.

Two devices described as dummy mechanisms were discovered Friday at two plants but authorities said there was no way they could have detonated.

"There is a report received by 911 that there are seven bombs in the facilities in Texas City," Coast Guard Lt. Emile Benard said. "We're working now with the FBI. What we're doing right now is not taking any chances."

Texas City Fire Chief Gerald Grimm said no evacuations were planned but he suggested people who lived in the vicinity of the plants might want to go elsewhere until they were certain it was safe.

"Certainly, if I lived by one of the plants in Texas City and I had another place to relocate to, that's what I would do, but we are not recommending that," he said.

Benard said the Coast Guard had established a security zone that barred vessels from travelling into the waterway that leads to a number of petrochemical plants in the city about 35 miles southeast of Houston.

Six vessels already in the channel were allowed to leave.

"This is not routine," Benard said of the action. "This type of thing doesn't happen at all."

Besides ships, trains carrying petrochemicals also were moved out, Grimm said.

The threatening call apparently came from a convenience store pay phone Thursday night.

"The caller said there were seven devices, three of which were dummies, placed at refineries," Texas City Mayor Chuck Doyle said.

Grimm said the caller was a male who identified himself with an international terrorist group.

"The message was garbled by design," he said.

Grimm described the two fake devices as "very rudimentary."

"They do represent and resemble, quite frankly, exploding devices," he said. "But they would not create a spark, a fire."

Asked for specifics, Grimm said he could not elaborate and said the FBI was pursuing the investigation.

The FBI had no immediate comment and officials from petrochemical plants in the Texas City port also declined to comment.

"There does not appear to be anything that's really of a serious nature," Mike Cox, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety, said. "There is concern. We just want to be safe rather than sorry."

Cox said troopers also were halting car and truck traffic to a highway, Loop 197, that winds through the refineries.

After-school activities for Texas City's 6,000 students were cancelled, Janet Willie, a spokeswoman for Texas City's school system, said.

Lubbock can't catch Lee's 22

■ Lady Rebels hammer Lubbock High 22-0 in bi-district softball.

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK — On paper, Midland Lee's first 1996 ssoftball playoff game was not supposed to be close.

And even though the game played on grass and dirt and not on paper, the Lady Rebels didn't disappoint those looking for a lopsided affair over Lubbock High, taking home a 22-0 Region I bi-district win at the Berl Huffman Complex.

For Lee, 24-7 for the season, just getting the run-ruled win out of the way is a relief and focusing in on its area round game with El Paso Andress is the next goal.

"This is one we are glad to get over with," said Midland Lee assistant coach Lee Anne Clarke. "This is a no-win type of situation."

Lee's game with Andress, the District 1 champion, is tentatively scheduled for next Saturday in Carlsbad, N.M. at noon CDT. The game will precede Midland High's first-ever playoff game. The Lady Bulldogs will play El Paso Irvin at 2 p.m. CDT For the Lady Rebels, it is time to get serious.

"We will have to prepare for a more experienced team," said Lee shortstop Susanna Reed. "One bad game and you are out. It gives you some anxiety."

This game showed signs of a blowout early on. Lee took it to Lubbock High (6-20) with 13 runs in the first two innings. The early start that included just five Lee hits, nine walks and four Lubbock High errors was just what the Lady Rebs needed.

"We came out in the first inning, looking to score," said Reed. "We knew the JV beat them and we tried to stay focused. It would have been easy (to not be focused)."

The lead kept expanding with nine runs in the last three innings. The game saw every Lady Rebel starter drive in a run and there were some big individual per-

Cap crunch hinders Dallas draft options

■ Cowboys don't have the money to make deals like those of the Jimmy Johnson era.

By Denne H. Freeman
Associated Press

IRVING — Don't look for the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys to make a big splash in the NFL draft on Saturday. They don't have the money.

The Cowboys are less than $2 million under the salary cap, and they will likely renegotiate running back Emmitt Smith's contract, which has only a year to go.

■ Related coverage/2C

Picking dead last at 30th, the Cowboys would be moving up to big bucks country if they tried to trade up the draft, which was a common ploy in the Jimmy Johnson era. Johnson's at Miami now, and Dallas owner Jerry Jones has joked: "Jimmy likes to trade, and so do we. Who knows, we might make a deal."

Highly unlikely. First-round draft picks cost money, and Dallas can't go on a spending spree.

The Cowboys could be trading down out of the first round if they don't think they can find a player who could fit their needs as a backup or special teamer.

"Our starters are secure on offense and defense," said scouting director Larry Lacewell. "Anybody who expects us to draft a starter is just daydreaming."

The Cowboys shored up their desperate linebacking situation with the free-agent acquisitions of Broderick Thomas from the Minnesota Vikings and Fred Strickland of the Green Bay Packers. They'll replace Robert Jones and Dixon Edwards who left for free-agent money. Darrin Smith, a restrict-

Oilers wave Brown

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers on Friday waived running back Gary Brown, who within two seasons rose from backup to star before sliding down the depth chart after signing a big contract.

Brown had 293 yards and no touchdowns on 86 carries last year as rookie Rodney Thomas became the Oilers' top ball carrier. In five seasons, Brown ran for 2,115 yards and 12 touchdowns on 477 carries.

By cutting Brown and the final year of his $5.25 million contract, Houston freed up money to help sign draft picks. The Oilers have the No. 9 choice in Saturday's draft and have been rumored to be interested in Eddie George, the Heisman Trophy-winning running back from Ohio State.

Brown's agent Tony Agnone told KRIV-TV that the Oilers had asked Brown to take a large cut in his scheduled $1.375 million salary. Brown agreed and made an offer, but Houston wanted an even bigger cut, Agnone said.

"So we said we'd like to shop him, which they allowed us to do," Agnone said. "There was significant interest in Gary."

Agnone said the teams include Pittsburgh, Baltimore and San Diego.

"It's one of those situations where most teams knowing where the Oilers were cap-wise knew at some point Gary would have to be a casualty," he said.

Brown became a surprise star in 1993, his third season, when he took over for injured starter Lorenzo White. He gained 1,002 yards and had five 100-yard games while starting the final eight games.

In July 1994, he signed a three-year, big-money deal but couldn't sustain his success. He hurt his ankle in an exhibition game.

BOYS REGION I GOLF TOURNAMENT

Welcome back Rebs

Lee boys return to postseason golf with hopes of making run at state

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland Lee boys golf team is headed back to the Region I golf tournament after a two-year absence and will shoot for a state berth Monday and Tuesday at Lubbock's Meadowbrook golf course.

The Lee team earned the region berth by placing second in the District 4-5A race behind defending champion San Angelo Central.

The Rebels will have to put their best club forward over the two-day span against the elite of northwest Texas in order to earn that state berth in Austin in two weeks.

But Lee is not without some guns to fire, and the biggest gun comes from senior Charlie Prince, the only three-year varsity player on the squad and the District 4-5A medalist by one stroke over San Angelo's Brandon Sanders.

In fact, Prince may be capable of earning a trip to state even if the team doesn't make it. The top two teams and the top two individuals

MHS locks in on final three district games

■ Bulldogs still have chance to sneak into baseball playoffs.

By Sean Wallace

While the rest of the District 4-5A baseball coaches will be scoreboard-watching next week, Midland High-'s Lew Kennedy will be taking a different approach.

"It's really the only attitude you can take," said Kennedy, whose Bulldogs are on the outside looking in on the district playoff picture right now. "When you start figuring what can happen if you win and what other teams can do, it just gets crazy."

Midland High (15-9 overall, 4-5 in district) travels to Odessa for a 2 p.m. game with the Bronchos in what already amounts to a playoff-type game, and Kennedy has his Bulldogs focused on the task at hand.

"It seems like every game in the district has been big all year long," Kennedy said. "We've got to take care of our business and play one game at a time. We can't worry

McCarthy joins area players for McDonald's all-star football

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland Lee senior Toby McCarthy, who is bound next fall for Texas A&M University on a football scholarship, has been chosen to play in the Texas High School Coaches Association's McDonald's North-South All-Star football game.

The game will be held at Rice Stadium on Tuesday, July 30, in Houston as part of the THSCA summer convention.

In addition to McCarthy, Odessa Permian's David Bobo, Big Spring's Daniel Franks, Lubbock Monterey's Aaron Humphrey, Alpine's Kevin Losoya, Roscoe's Jerry Chavira and Wink's Josh Haynes were other Midland area athletes to be picked for the North team.

"I was really happy to be accepted for the game. It's a great honor for me," McCarthy said. "It's something I've always wanted to do."

McCarthy joins a long list of former Lee graduates who have played in the all-star game.

"We've been lucky to have a number of our kids be chosen for the all-star game," said Lee football coach John Parchman, who once coached the North squad as an assistant under Earl Miller, the former Lee boss. "I think it's a credit to the young man and the program. We take a lot of pride in the all-star game."

The all-star game, however, means a long season for McCarthy, who has hauled in just about every football honor there is this past

Maneuvering mounts with approach of draft

Dave Goldberg
Football Writer

NEW YORK — In the last few days, there's en a growing consensus on the first six picks Saturday's NFL draft. Because subterfuge the rule in all drafts, that means they probly won't be taken in the order that most peo- think.

For while a dozen likely first rounders were New York, taking a boat around New York rbor and partying at a trendy club, the teams the top were still maneuvering for positions what figures to be a deep and productive aft.

At No. 1, the New York Jets are reportedly gotiating with Illinois linebacker Kevin rdy with the idea of getting an agreement th Hardy that they'd then offer their real oice, wide receiver Keyshawn Johnson of uthern California.

At No. 2, Jacksonville was hoping Johnson uld fall. If not, the Jaguars would look to ade down and still select Simeon Rice, rdy's pass-rushing Illinois teammate.

At No. 3, the Cardinals were talking to teams out dealing the unhappy Eric Swann for a ndle of players and draft picks, a deal that uld change their plans. Meanwhile, owner ll Bidwill reportedly wanted to draft UCLA ckle Jonathan Ogden; defensive-minded ach Vince Tobin wanted Hardy.

At No. 4, Art Modell who created the Balti- ore Ravens by moving out of Cleveland, said would stay where he is. That's because it w looks like he could get Nebraska running ck Lawrence Phillips by staying where he

And at No. 5, the New York Giants were hop- g that Hardy drops to them rather than gden or Phillips. That means they could trade wn.

"We have about 10 players we're looking at," said George Young, the Giants' general manager, a classic pre-draft non-committment if there ever was one.

But the consensus is that Young will get the run-stopping, all-around linebacker he wants in Hardy. Nothing sure, but ...

The Jets will take Johnson with the first pick; the Jaguars will take Rice if they can't trade down; the Cardinals will pick Ogden; the Ravens will grab Phillips and the Giants Hardy.

Then St. Louis will take Tim Biakabutuka, the Michigan running back.

"No question about it, the best player can be the one you need," said general manager Steve Ortmayer, who originally was going after Phillips when he traded Sean Gilbert to Washington for that No. 6 but seems perfectly happy with Biakabutuka.

Then it becomes a free-for-all with a run on pass rushers — hybrid defensive linemen-linebackers like Regan Upshaw and Duane Clemons of Cal; Tony Brackens of Texas and one pure defensive lineman, Cedric Jones of Oklahoma. Running back Eddie George of Ohio State, the Heisman Trophy winner, and his teammate, wide receiver Terry Glenn, figure somewhere in that mix.

Five of the top six players were in New York for what's become an annual pre-draft celebration. The only one missing is Phillips, who has kept out of the limelight after pleading no contest to misdemeanor assault and trespassing charges.

He was invited by league officials who suggested to his agent, Mitch Frankel, that since he hasn't talked since the incident he probably wouldn't want to participate in a media feeding frenzy.

Most or all of the others who enjoyed the NFL's hospitality were expected to go in the top 20.

They include Upshaw, Clemons, George, Jones, running back Leeland McElroy of Texas A&M; cornerback Alec Molden of Oregon and linebacker John Mobley of Kutztown. Mobley, who was a sleeper until an outstanding performance at the Senior Bowl jumped him into the first round, was a late addition to the list.

Overall, this figures to be a draft deep at running back, wide receiver, tight end and to some extent in the defensive line.

"In some positions, I've never seen anything like it," says John Becker, the Rams' director of player personnel.

"It's the best."

Oilers look for another gusher of rusher in draft

George could have Houston hoping for Campbell-like running ack.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston ilers may be hoping history epeats itself as they target reign- g Heisman Trophy holder Eddie eorge in the first round of Satur- ay's NFL draft.

The last time the Oilers tabbed Heisman running back as their op pick, it was Earl Campbell in 978.

Campbell went on to consecutive MVP seasons in his first three ears in the NFL.

The Oilers have made running ack a top priority in the draft and hey consider George a top candi- date.

The Oilers brought Nebraska's Lawrence Phillips in for an interview but they don't anticipate him being around by the time they make their selection. George, however, still may be available when their No. 9 slot comes up in the first round.

The Oilers don't see George having the same impact as Campbell, but they do see similarities since George rushed for 1,984 yards, scored 24 touchdowns and averaged 5.9 yards per carry last season for the Buckeyes.

"You're not going to find other running backs like George," general manager Floyd Reese said. "He's 6-3, 230, runs a 4.47 40 and can catch the ball and do some things."

Added Oilers scout Dub Fesperson: "There aren't many holes in this young man. I like his size, his speed. He can catch the ball."

The Oilers were concerned that Rodney Thomas fumbled too often and had problems catching the ball out of the backfield last season as a rookie and Gary Brown has been slowed by injuries the past two seasons.

"Rodney did a good job for us," Reese said. "It's as much for depth as anything that we'd go for a running back. You know how difficult it is to have a running back that can survive 16 games and 60 minutes. We feel if we would get some depth there, you don't put the burden on one guy."

Texas A&M's Leeland McElroy Tim Biakabutuka of Michigan also rate high on the Oilers' running backs list.

"I think McElroy has great speed," scout C.O. Brocato said. "He was timed at 4.3 in ideal conditions but anyone with that kind of speed can run anywhere."

The Oilers also are very interested in wide receiver Terry Glenn, George's teammate at Ohio State. Glenn, 5-10, 185, runs a 4.45 40-yard dash.

"He's another one of those late-bloomers," Fesperson said. "He has outstanding quickness, and he catches the football as well as any I've seen. He has great possibilities."

If all their running back and wide receiver possibilities are gone, the Oilers could trade down in the first round and hope to still fill another need—defensive line.

The Oilers got only 30 sacks last season so they have looked to bolster that area, possibly with Tony Brackens of Teas or Marcus Jones of North Carolina.

"Jones right now is probably a notch ahead of what you are looking for," Brocato said. "Brackens has a chance to be better than Jones but I gave them both the same grade."

"Jones right now is probably a notch ahead of what you are looking for," Brocato said. "Brackens has a chance to be better than Jones but I gave them both the same grade."

49ers lose lineman to Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Free-agent offensive lineman Steve Wallace has signed a one-year contract with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Terms of the deal, signed Wednesday night, were not announced by the club Thursday.

His agent, Leigh Steinberg, said the 31-year-old left tackle will receive $750,000 in base salary and a $300,000 signing bonus, the Philadelphia Daily News reported.

Wallace was the San Francisco 49ers' fourth-round draft pick in 1986. He played 10 years in San Francisco, earning three Super Bowl rings and a Pro Bowl berth in 1992.

The 6-foot-5, 280-pound lineman was released by the 49ers, who felt his scheduled salary for 1996 of $1.625 million was too high after his production declined last year.

"Steve Wallace is a big addition to our offensive line," Eagles coach and former 49ers assistant Ray Rhodes said. "Like the veteran free agents we signed last year, he's a leader on the field and in the locker room.

The Eagles also signed deals with six other players Thursday, including five veterans of the 1995 club.

Punter Tom Hutton, running backs Vaughn Hebron and Derrick Witherspoon and tight ends Jimmie Johnson and Ed West all returned to the Eagles.

Hutton signed a three-year deal, while the others contracted for one year each.

Former San Diego Chargers defensive tackle Sebastian Barrie, 25, was signed for one year.

Dolphins' Johnson eager to offer 'fair' deal

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — While making 55 trades in five seasons with the Dallas Cowboys, Jimmy Johnson formulated his own definition of a fair deal.

"If somebody says, 'I want to be fair,'" Johnson suggests, 'what they're really saying is, I'm trying to screw you, but I don't want you to know that you're getting screwed.'"

> "What they're really saying is, 'I'm trying to screw you, but I don't want you to know...' "
> — Jimmy Johnson, Miami Dolphin head coach

By that standard, Johnson's deals in Dallas were more than fair. His one-sided trades transformed the NFL's worst team into the club that won three of the past four Super Bowls.

As the new coach of the Miami Dolphins, Johnson is in the market to resume dealing during this weekend's draft. Many of his best trades with the Cowboys involved draft choices.

"People were receptive to making a trade," he says. "Whether they're going to be receptive to making a trade (this weekend), we'll find out."

When dealing with other NFL coaches, Johnson won't trade jobs, salaries or Dan Marino. But everything else will be on the table when the draft begins Saturday.

The Dolphins go into the draft with eight picks in the seven rounds, including the 20th choice in the opening round. Johnson seeks help on defense, where he lost Troy Vincent, Bryan Cox and Marco Coleman to free agency, and at running back.

Because of Miami's multiple needs, there's been speculation Johnson will trade his first pick for two lower selections, as he did to acquire Kevin Williams and Darrin Smith for Dallas in 1993. Or Johnson may trade up and take a running back, as he did with Emmitt Smith in 1990.

Johnson also traded for picks that allowed the Cowboys to select Russell Maryland, Daryl Johnston, Darren Woodson, Erik Williams and Leon Lett. Each went on to the Pro Bowl.

His most celebrated deal was with Minnesota in 1989, when he landed seven draft picks — including three No. 1 choices — and five players for running back Herschel Walker. The following year, Johnson sent quarterback Steve Walsh to New Orleans for draft picks in the first, second and third rounds.

The picks acquired in those deals put Dallas in a position to make other trades. In Miami, Johnson's bargaining power is limited because the team has relatively few picks and a roster dominated by players perceived as overpaid underachievers.

"We had more ammunition in Dallas," he says, "so we were able to do some stuff."

Johnson rules out trading Marino, his most valuable asset even at age 34.

The salary cap makes trades more difficult than when Johnson started at Dallas in 1989. And other coaches may be wary of bartering with Johnson because of his reputation for shrewd deals.

"You've got to have two to make a trade. I think they know I will," Johnson says.

"Some teams and some people just will not make a trade. The biggest reason is they're afraid of making a mistake and losing their job, and job security is so difficult in the NFL. Some people would rather not do anything and be safe, rather than doing a deal and getting criticized and losing their job."

Job security is the least of Johnson's worries. He's willing to gamble and eager to upgrade a team that stumbled to a disappointing 9-8 record last year.

And so, when the draft begins, the spotlight will be on Miami's new coach.

Johnson says he can discuss deals with such teams as Oakland and San Diego, because Al Davis and Bobby Beathard are secure in their jobs.

And what about Dallas?

"I'd love to make a deal with them," Johnson says through a grin. "I'd give them a fair deal."

DRAFT: Eight rookies made '95 Cowboys

(From 1C)

ed free agent, will return on the ast year of his contract if he oesn't decide to hold out.

"We won't feel as pressed now to draft a linebacker," Lacewell aid. "We can get back into that est-athlete-available deal again. think we can get a good player. There aren't a lot linebackers out here anyway this year. We can breathe easier because of the free gents we signed."

Eight rookies made the Cowboys eam last year out of 10 selected, ut none developed into an impact layer. It was a draft where the Cowboys traded out of the first ound and went for backups and pecial teamers.

Three players remain with the lub from the 1994 draft out of the even selected. The best was uard Larry Allen, a second-round hoice and the 10th offensive linenan selected overall.

"We've been criticized for our rafts in the last two years, but we ot a big impact player in Allen and a lot of special teams help," Lacewell said. "You have to remember where we've been coming from."

Michael Irvin's trial on cocaine and marijuana possession charges, scheduled for June 24, has complicated the Cowboys situation at wide receiver. Deion Sanders will play a lot of downs at wideout, and Kevin Williams developed late in the season.

The Cowboys will be taking a look at some of the receiver crop to see what's available.

Also, Dallas could use depth in the defensive line and at cornerback where Super Bowl MVP Larry Brown left for the Oakland Raiders along with tackle Russell Maryland. Kevin Smith is recovering from an Achilles' tendon tear suffered in the first game of the season last year. Smith is about 90 percent, and the Cowboys are hoping he will be ready to go full speed by the start of the regular season.

"You could make a case for any of these areas: cornerback, linebacker, defensive line, receiver," Lacewell said. "Depth is becoming a big problem for us because of all the free-agent raids. It's hard to tell which way we will go because we have a lot of different needs and could use help in a lot of places."

The Cowboys helped themselves last year when a depth problem arose at running back.

"We got Sherman Williams, and he was a quality backup," Lacewell said. "We didn't feel like the game was over if we had to use him. He produced, and that's the kind of players we are looking for, the producers."

Lacewell added, "the only answer I have for our draft critics is that we must be doing something right. We keep winning Super Bowls."

It could be a long wait at Valley Ranch. It should be some three to four hours after the draft starts at noon before the Cowboys' number is called.

Rangers one run short of record in 26-7 win

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — The Texas Rangers scored 16 runs in the eighth inning — one short of the modern major league record — and scored the most runs by an AL team in 41 years Friday night, routing the Baltimore Orioles 26-7.

Kevin Elster's grand slam off backup infielder Manny Alexander highlighted the biggest eighth inning in baseball history.

Juan Gonzalez homered and drove in six runs, Dean Palmer homered twice and Will Clark also connected in the highest-scoring game by an AL team since Chicago beat Kansas City 29-6 on April 23, 1955.

The Rangers combined eight hits and eight walks in the eighth against Armando Benitez, Jesse Orosco and Alexander, the first position player to pitch for the Orioles since catcher Jeff Tackett in 1993. Alexander walked four, three with the bases loaded, and gave up Elster's slam.

Texas posted its biggest inning ever, breaking the mark of 12 in the 15th inning against Oakland on July 3, 1983.

The Chicago Cubs scored 26 runs last season in Colorado. The White Sox, in 1955, and Boston in 1950 hold the modern record of 29 runs in a game. The Red Sox set the modern record of 17 runs in an inning on June 18, 1953.

A crowd of 41,184, largest of the season at The Ballpark in Arlington, saw Will Clark hit a solo homer in the fifth inning that put Texas ahead for good at 7-6. The Rangers have won nine of 10 home games.

The game lasted 4 hours, 15 minutes, one minute short of the AL record for a nine-inning game and three minutes shy of the major league mark.

Brady Anderson led off the game with a home run for Baltimore. The Orioles, who began with the best record in the majors, lost their second in a row for the first time this season.

Palmer hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning and another two-run shot in the eighth, and finished with five RBIs. Gonzalez hit a three-run homer, highlighting a five-run first inning, and had a two-run double in the eighth.

Darryl Hamilton had four of Texas' 19 hits and also walked.

■ AL Roundup

Clark opened the fifth inning with a home run off Kent Mercker (1-1). Mickey Tettleton walked with one out and Palmer met reliever Jimmy Myers with a 430-foot drive to center field.

Dennis Cook (1-0) pitched three innings of two-hit relief for the win. He left in the seventh with runners on second and third, and Cal Ripken's single off Gil Heredia made it 9-7. The Rangers escaped further trouble when Hamilton made a running catch on B.J. Surhoff's drive to center field.

Rusty Greer's RBI double in the seventh pushed the Rangers lead to 10-7.

Ed Vosberg pitched 1 1-3 innings for his fourth save.

Indians 9, Red Sox 4

CLEVELAND — Albert Belle hit his 200th career home run as Cleveland extended its dominance of Boston.

The Indians swept three games from Boston in the opening round of the playoffs last October and have won all five meetings so far this year.

Boston got home runs from Mo Vaughn and Mike Stanley but lost for the eighth time in its last nine games. The Red Sox dropped to 3-13 for only the third time in franchise history.

Kenny Lofton, who scored three runs, and Belle each had three hits. The Indians have won six of seven since getting off to a 2-5 start.

Twins 7, Yankees 1

MINNEAPOLIS — Dwight Gooden's comeback took another step back Friday night.

Gooden (0-3) failed to get out of the fourth inning in his worst outing of the season. The right-hander, who returned to the majors this season after a 1 1/2-year suspension for violating his drug aftercare program, has lost all three of his starts and has an 11.48 ERA.

In three-plus innings, he was tagged for six runs on six hits and four walks. The Yankees had said Gooden's status would be re-evaluated in the near future,

Paul Molitor had four RBIs for the Twins.

Frank Rodriguez (2-1), got the win.

Cleveland Indian Albert Belle hits a two-run home run Friday against the Red Sox in the first inning as Boston catcher Mike Stanley looks on.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Greg Vaughn homered into the left-field fountains and John Jaha followed with a home run as Kansas City won its fifth straight.

Vaughn had three hits, including a two-run single in the ninth inning. He has driven in at least one run in six consecutive games.

Ben McDonald (3-0), Milwaukee's most significant offseason acquisition, pitched seven strong innings.

After Vaughn homered, Jaha went the other way for his home run off Chris Haney (0-3).

Angels 4, Tigers 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Don Slaught's one-out single in the ninth inning scored pinch runner Dick Schofield with the game-winner.

Mark Langston (1-1) pitched a seven-hitter to become only the second Angels starter to record a victory this season. The left-hander struck out five and walked four in his first complete game since July 8 of last season.

Tim Wallach went 2-for-4 with a solo homer and an RBI single as the Angels won their third straight.

J.T. Snow singled to open the ninth off reliever Mike Myers (0-1), and moved to second on Garret Anderson's sacrifice. After an intentional walk to rookie George Arias, Schofield ran for Snow and scored when Slaught singled sharply through the middle.

Blue Jays 10, Mariners 4

SEATTLE — Joe Carter hit two home runs and Toronto ended Seattle's team record-tying eight-game winning streak.

Carter drove in all of the Blue Jays' runs against Bob Wolcott (1-2). The Seattle starter gave up six hits, hit two batters and walked one in seven innings.

Carter hit two-run homers in the first and sixth innings in support of Pat Hentgen (3-1), who pitched six innings, struck out five and walked six.

Hentgen got his 50th career win. Brian Bohanon got his first save.

Cubs homer six times to beat San Fran 10-6

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Brian McRae hit a go-ahead grand slam and Ryne Sandberg and Mark Grace followed with solo shots in the sixth inning as the Chicago Cubs homered six times Friday and beat the San Francisco Giants 10-6.

Sandberg hit two homers and Ozzie Timmons and Sammy Sosa one apiece for Chicago on a blustery day at Wrigley Field, when the wind blew from right to left at 17-to-25 mph. It was the fourth straight win for the Cubs.

Mark Carreon, Steve Decker and Matt Williams homered for San Francisco.

All of Chicago's six runs in the sixth were unearned. Timmons started the inning by reaching on an error by Williams at third.

Allen Watson (1-2) allowed five homers and 11 hits.

Kevin Foster (3-0) picked up the win.

■ NL Roundup

Astros 13, Reds 5

HOUSTON — Sean Berry drove in five runs and reliever Doug Brocail pitched a strong 5 1-3 innnings after replacing injured starter Greg Swindell Friday night as the Houston Astros routed the Cincinnati Reds 13-5.

Jeff Bagwell and Derek Bell had three RBIs each for the Astros, who equalled a season-high with 18 hits.

Brocail replaced Swindell in the second inning after the Houston starter strained his left groin chasing down a bunt by Reds starter Pete Schourek. Brocail allowed only three hits and struck out six before tiring in the seventh. He retired 10 batters in a row before being chased on pinch-hitter Willie Green's two-run single. It was the longest outing of the right-hander's career.

The Reds have lost three straight games and five of their last eight.

Schourek (3-1) gave up nine hits over five innings. He struck out three and walked two.

Houston fell behind 3-0 in the first inning before taking a 4-3 lead in the third.

The Astros got four more runs and a season-high five hits off reliever Tim Pugh in the sixth on RBI doubles by Bagwell and Bell, a run-scoring single by Berry and James Mouton's sacrifice fly.

Notes: Berry's career-high is six RBIs in one game. ... Jeff Bagwell has hit a home run off each of Houston's opponents this season. ... Braves 7, Padres 1

ATLANTA — John Smoltz, who one-hit San Diego over eight innings in his last start, limited the Padres to three hits.

Smoltz (3-1), whose no-hit bid last Sunday was ended by a controversial double by Tony Gwynn in the seventh inning, struck out six and walked two in his first complete game since June 19, 1995 at Cincinnati.

In 17 innings spanning his last two starts, Smoltz has allowed one run and struck out 19.

Ryan Klesko hit his NL-leading eighth homer for the Braves. Fred McGriff and David Justice drove in two runs apiece.

Joey Hamilton (3-1) allowed seven runs and eight hits in five innings.

Marlins 5, Dodgers 0

MIAMI — Kurt Abbott hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run, two-out rally in the eighth inning.

Pat Rapp, Jay Powell and Robb Nen combined on a three-hitter for Florida. Powell (1-0) left the game in the ninth with an apparent back injury, and Nen retired the final three batters.

Joe Orsulak led off the eighth with a single, his first hit for Florida, against reliever Darren Hall (0-1). Orsulak had been 0-for-15.

Jesus Tavarez ran for Orsulak and remained at first with two out. Terry Pendleton then singled, and Tavarez scored when right fielder Raul Mondesi allowed the ball to get past him for an error.

Greg Colbrunn followed with an RBI single, Charles Johnson walked, and Abbott hit his first home run.

Expos 2, Pirates 1

MONTREAL — David Segui led off the ninth inning with his first homer of the season as Montreal ended Pittsburgh's winning streak at four.

Segui, who had the first four-hit game of his career Thursday night, drove a 1-1 pitch from Dan Plesac (0-1) over the left-field wall as the Expos ended the Pirates four-game winning streak.

Reliever Barry Manuel (1-0) pitched two perfect innings for the win.

Trailing 1-0 in the eighth, the Expos tied it on Mark Grudzielanek's third homer.

Cardinals 1, Phillies 0

PHILADELPHIA — Royce Clayton hit an RBI double with two outs in the ninth inning, and St. Louis tied an NL record by using six pitchers in a shutout.

Cory Bailey (2-0) pitched one inning for the win. Dennis Eckersley worked the ninth for his fourth save.

The Cardinals matched the NL mark, last done by St. Louis in 1994, for using the most pitchers in a shutout. The major league record is seven.

Russ Springer (0-2) took the loss.

Rockies 5, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Dante Bichette hit a two-run homer and Larry Walker followed with a solo shot in the fifth inning for the Rockies.

Bichette's second homer this season and Walker's fifth sent the Mets to their third straight loss.

Walt Weiss continued to pound Mets pitchers by going 3-for-4 for the Rockies. He is 10-for-18 (.556) this season against New York.

Kevin Ritz (2-2), lifted for a pinch-hitter in the sixth inning, struggled for the win. He gave up three runs and seven hits.

Curt Leskanic put the tying run on in the ninth but got two strikeouts and a popup for his fourth save.

Pete Harnisch (1-1) was the loser.

Angels get wild 15-14 win over Wichita to end series

Staff report

WICHITA, Kan. — The Midland Angels keep finding ways to keep a game interesting, but they keep finding ways to win them.

The Angels scored four runs in the second and seven in the fifth, but had to wait out a ninth-inning thriller before taking a 15-14 victory from the Wichita Wranglers at Lawrence-Dumont Stadium.

The win moves the Angels to 11-4 on the season and keeps their Texas League Western Division lead over El Paso at 3 1/2 games. Wichita (7-9), which lost four of the five games in the series to the Angels, falls to 4 1/2 games back.

Jose Monzon went 3 for 5 with five RBIs and was only a triple away from hitting for the cycle and Aaron Guiel was also 3 for 5 with two RBIs, including what proved to be the game-winner on a home run in the ninth inning.

The Angels led 14-12 heading into the ninth when Guiel went deep for the third time this season to give the Angels what looked to be a safe 15-12 lead.

But as many times as one team scored on this game, the other would strike right back. The Wranglers scored twice in the ninth on three hits and a costly dropped pop up by first baseman Tony Moeder to draw within a run when Mike Freehill struck out Larry Sutton to end the game as the tying run was left stranded at third and pick up his fourth save of the year.

Midland starter Sebach (1-0) picked up the win for the Angels, which begin a five-game series tonight in El Paso against the second-place Diablos. Wichita starter Tim Byrdak (1-1) took the loss for Wichita.

A four-run second for the Angels was wiped out by a five-spot put up by the Wranglers in the bottom of the inning. Midland came back to score twice in the fourth only to see Wichita take a 7-6 lead when Sutton connected for a home run off Sebach, his second of the year. Sutton drove in five runs for the Wranglers on the night.

Midland busted the game open in the fifth with seven runs, its biggest run-producing inning of the season.

Center fielder Bo Ortiz doubled to extend his hitting streak to 13 games and tied it when he scored on a Keith Luuola RBI single. Edgar Alfonzo followed with his first home run of the season, a two-run shot, to put Midland ahead 9-7. Greg Shockey then connected for a single off Wichita starter Tim Byrdak, sending him from the game.

Toby Smith came in but gave up an RBI ground out to Jamie Burke which gave Midland a 10-7 lead. Guiel singled in his first run of the night to make it 11-7 and Monzon capped the inning with a two-run single.

Even with a 13-7 deficit, the Wranglers continued to battle. A Jeremy Carr home run in the fifth and four runs in the sixth got Wichita back within a run at 13-12.

The Angels took an early 4-0 lead in the second. Shockey walked, went to third on a double by Moeder and scored on Guiel's ground out. Guiel got picked off of first base to stall the rally, but Monzon picked it up with an RBI single. Derrin Doty followed with his second homer of the season, a two-run blast which gave the Angels a 4-0 lead.

ANGEL DUST: After a five-game series in four days with the Diablos, the Angels come home for five games against Wichita...The Angels won four of ive against Wichita, its third straight series win...Matt Beaumont (2-0, 4.76 ERA) will face El Paso's Joe Ganote in today's series opener...Sunday's double header will be the Angels third this season. Midland swept one and split one with San Antonio to open the year...Freehill is 4 for 4 in save chances this year...

BEETLE BAILEY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Although material success means little to you, developing your creative abilities will win you both a comfortable lifestyle and a host of admirers. An unexpected opportunity to travel or love abroad could complicate romance. Know what is essential to your happiness. Loved ones who feel neglected could look elsewhere for companionship. 1997 brings a new emphasis on spiritual values. A chance encounter leaves you determined to raise funds for a special cause.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Jessica Lange, baseball player Don Mattingley, singer Luther Vandross, acting coach Nina Foch.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Open affection and considerate treatment will touch loved ones in a special way. A purchase for your home delights others. Projects you start or refine today will turn out great.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your personal magnetism will draw friends and family together for stimulating talks. Be more daring where the pursuit of romance is concerned. Go ahead and let a newcomer know that you are interested.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone influential finds your wit and charm irresistible. You make an indelible first impression on a new arrival. A creative project is a smash hit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your wonderful way with words wins support for your ideas. You are hailed as a brilliant innovator! Keep in touch with longtime friends. Someone's attempt to play Cupid may flop.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An opponent could come forward to point out past mistakes. Remain dignified at such times — it makes your enemy look petty. A new pet could draw a parent and child closer together.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your sensitivity helps you get through some trying moments with a sibling or close friend. A legal problem requires immediate handling. A spur-of-the-moment trip may be unavoidable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your mate or business partner's confrontational tactics could take the wind out of your sails. Seek solitude if your nerves are on edge. Children need supervision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be prepared to swallow your pride in order to keep the domestic peace. Today is a better time to grant favors than to ask for them. Avoid revealing marital secrets to a prying in-law.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Direct your energies into projects that will produce tangible rewards. Your finances are improving but may be more complicated than you would like. A love affair will develop slowly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are highly creative and expressive now. A dramatic performance could produce the big payoff. Luck and love are in full bloom. Be choosy when deciding with whom you will share your good fortune.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Although an authoritative attitude may be justified, it won't work with family members. They will either rush away or shed tears. Be patient.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lady Luck favors those who seek new outlets for their talents. Make overdue changes. People who depend on you are more adaptable than you think. If you want to socialize tonight, stick to familiar territory.

Feminist author Hite feels she has more freedom of expression, respect in Europe

BONN, Germany — Shere Hite says German women get more respect than their American counterparts, and that's one reason she renounced her U.S. citizenship.

"I feel I have more freedom of expression and autonomy when speaking from Europe," said the feminist author, who became a German citizen earlier this year.

Shere Hite renounces her U.S. citizenship because she feels German women get more respect.

In Bonn to promote her autobiography, which for now is available only in Germany, the 53-year-old Hite complained about a "reactionary mood" in the United States that she likened to the McCarthy era.

She said Germany has achieved a lot in the area of women's rights: "Germany even has a woman speaker of Parliament. Germany has a minister for women's affairs in every town and on the federal level who is charged with trying to see that women have equal rights."

Hite moved to Europe in 1987. She has divided her time among London, Paris and Cologne, home of her husband, German composer Friedrich Hoericke.

In 1976, Hite published the best seller "The Hite Report: A Nationwide Study of Female Sexuality." The second Hite report delved into men's sexuality. The books earned Hite $2.5 million despite widespread criticism of her methodology.

ROME — Thanks to the new love of his life, Luciano Pavarotti says his voice is soaring and his girth is shrinking.

In an interview with the gossip magazine Chi released Thursday, the singer declared himself "in love like a little boy" with his 26-year-old secretary, Nicoletta Mantovani.

"And I'm singing as if I were 20 years younger," he added. "I want to live with Nicoletta until the end of my days."

He ascribed his "recent triumph" in "Andrea Chenier" at the Metropolitan Opera to Ms. Mantovani. He said she imposed a strict diet and forced him to exercise every day — 10 minutes on a walking machine and 120 situps. As a result, he said, he lost more than 30 pounds.

Pavarotti and his wife of 35 years, Adua, agreed to separate last month after Chi published photos of the tenor and his secretary walking arm-in-arm and kissing.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Ace guitarist Steve Wariner is becoming a member of the Grand Ole Opry next month.

"It's the supreme achievement and the ultimate stamp of approval. I am profoundly honored to belong," said Wariner, also a singer and songwriter with nine No. 1 country hits.

He first played on the legendary radio show at 17 when he was a member of Dottie West's band.

"The Opry put me in the company of the most beloved performers in the world as well as gave me a much appreciated first-hand look at our musical heritage and history," said the 41-year-old Wariner, who will be inducted during the May 11 show.

Wariner's hits include "If I Didn't Love You" and "The Tips of My Fingers."

OREGON CITY, Ore. — Tonya Harding has obtained a restraining order against her estranged husband, saying that he has threatened her and kicked in her bathroom door.

"He threatened to make me have pain," she wrote in her request for a restraining order against machinist Michael Smith. "He also has come after me and he broke a table and would not leave."

Tonya Harding gets restraining order against estranged husband.

The restraining order was granted Thursday.

The former figure skating champion, still on probation for her role in the attack on Nancy Kerrigan, filed for divorce two weeks ago after just 3 1/2 months of marriage.

Smith did not telephone calls seeking comment. But his mother, Doris Smith, defended her son.

"I'm just upset to see she would stoop back into the lying and deceit and the trying to control public opinion and make someone else look bad," Doris Smith said.

She said the table Harding mentioned was made of pressed wood and glass and had been broken before her son gave it a shove.

Waiting for first pole torturous for Craven

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — The toughest thing about Ricky Craven's first Winston Cup pole was the wait.

Craven turned a lap of 93.079 mph Friday as the fifth driver in the qualifying line, then had to wait nearly an hour until the last of 42 competitors fell short of his speed on Martinsville Speedway's .526-mile oval.

"I'd rather make 500 laps on this track than go through that again," a grinning Craven said. "That was killing me. It was torture."

The closest anyone could come was Kyle Petty, who was 34th in line and wound up second at 93.010. That lap was just 0.015-seconds slower than Craven's.

"After we got through Kyle, I said, 'Hey, this is for real,'" said Craven, the 1995 rookie of the year, whose first career pole comes in his 40th race. "Then it got real tough to wait.

"We came close last year and we were really trying hard to get in the Busch Clash," Craven added, referring to a race each February for the previous year's pole-winners. "It's very comfortable having done this now."

He became the sixth different pole winner this season and joined rookie Johnny Benson Jr. as the only first-time winners.

Craven, who will turn 30 on Wednesday, has said all along that the team owned by Larry Hedrick has a plan that it follows to assure continued growth and maturity.

But they are also off to a very fast start this season, with Craven fourth in the points after four top-10 finishes in seven starts.

"Our plan has been altered since we left Daytona, and that's good," Craven said. "We're going to take what's given to us.

"I've got to admit I underestimated our potential a bit," he added. "But we've still got a long way to go."

Petty, off to a slow start this season, was visibly disappointed that he came up short of the pole.

"The car was faster in practice and we lost a little somewhere," said Petty, who is 16th in the season points. "But I shouldn't feel too bad starting second. That was a good effort and our team needed this."

Bill Elliott, who has had to take provisional starts each of the last two races, made a major improvement this week, qualifying third at 92.997, followed by Mark Martin at 92.937 and Rusty Wallace at 92.901.

Ken Schrader, whose luck this season has been runniing badly, demolished his primary car in a crash during the opening practice on Friday, but moved to his back-up car and qualified sixth at 92.883.

Right behind his teammate, at 92.874, was Terry Labonte, whose team had to change an engine after practice. On Sunday, Labonte will start his 514th consecutive race, dating to the first event in 1979, breaking the record he now shares with retired Richard Petty.

Ninth place, at 92.846, went to Dale Earnhardt, the seven-time series champion who comes into the weekend trailing leader Dale Jarrett by just two points in the current standings.

Rounding out the top 10 were unheralded Stacy Compton, a late model stock car driver from Hurt, Va., who qualified at 92.833 for his first Winston Cup event, and last year's pole-winner Bobby Labonte at 92.774.

Jarrett was 12th at 92.624, just ahead of defending series champion Jeff Gordon at 92.574.

Mayweather promises to do it his way today

■ Atlanta hopeful will not fight opponent's style when box-off continues.

■ Olympic Boxing

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Floyd Mayweather did it his opponent's way Friday night. Now he promises to do it his way.

"I stood flat-footed," Mayweather said after outpunching Augustine Sanchez 20-8 and forcing another bout to determine who will be the 125-pound representative on the U.S. Olympic boxing team.

"Tonight I fought his game, throwing combinations, outhustling the guy," Mayweather added. "I'm not a brawler, I'm a boxer. I'll fight much differently tomorrow.

Sanchez, 18, of Las Vegas, was one of two Olympic trials champion to lose Friday and only the third to lose in the two-day, 12-bout box-offs.

Joseph Mesi of Tonawanda, N.Y., upset trials champion Lawrence Clay-Bey of Hartford, Conn., the 1995-96 U.S. champion 26-11 at super heavyweight. Mesi, 22, outpunched the 30-year-old Clay-Bey 16-3 in the third round and forced him to take a standing 8-count.

In the other Saturday bout, challenger Albert Guardado of Topeka, Kan., will oppose Jauquin Gallardo of San Leandro, Calif.

Asked why he played Sanchez' game, Mayweather, 19, of Grand Rapids, Mich., said: "I had to win tonight."

Of course, Sanchez, who constantly applies pressure could force Mayweather to fight again instead of box on Saturday.

When Sanchez beat Mayweather 12-11 in the Olympic trials final earlier this month, Sanchez won on the last scoring blow of the bout.

"I thought I won that fight much easier than I want this one," Mayweather said.

A crowd of about 2,500 got its chance to roar when hometown boxer Brandon Mitchem challenged trials champion Fernando Vargas of Oxnard, Calif., at 147 pounds.

"I gave it all I had and I thought I did enough to win the fight," said the 18-year-old Mitchem after Vargas won 17-14. "He fought good, too."

Vargas, who thought the crowd might have influenced the judges, built a 6-2 margin in the first round, and that was the difference.

The first trials champion to become an Olympic team member Friday night at the Augusta-Richmond County Civic Center was Eric Morel at 112.

Morel, 20, of Madison, Wis., picked up the pace in the second and third rounds and nipped Ramases Patterson, 20, of River Rouge, Mich., 15-15, 43-40 on the tiebreaker.

Morel had outpointed Patterson 16-15 in the trials final.

Other trials champions who made the Olympic team were David Diaz, 139, and Antonio Tarver, 178.

"He had the hand speed, but I was the aggressor," Diaz, 19, of Chicago, said after outpointing Zabdiel Judah, 18, of New York.

"He's not going to win a gold medal for the U.S.," Judah said.

The 27-year-old Tarver, a world and Pan American Games champion, dominated Anthony Stewart, 23, of Chicago 17-0 at 178 pounds.

Winning berths on the Olympic team Thursday night were Zahir Raheem, Philadelphia, 119; Terrance Cauthen, Philadelphia, 132; David Reid, Philadelphia, 156; Rhoshii Wells, Riverdale, Ga., 165; and Nate Jones, Chicago, 201.

Lee golfer loses Region berth after grandfather's death

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland Lee golfer Sean Clements is the odd man out as far as the Region I golf tournament is concerned.

Clements, who played on Lee's No. 1 team in all four rounds of the District 4-5A golf tour, will be the alternate player Monday and Tuesday when Lee enters Region I play at Lubbock's Meadowbrook golf course.

Lee golf coach Bobby Dunn told his players earlier in the year that if the team got past district play, the top five scores from district play would make up the Region I team. After a bad round on the final day of district play, Clements was No. 6 on the list.

"What we have is two players who shot very well for us and then we have four or five players who are really close," Dunn said. "I told the kids we would use the top five scores from district to make up the team. Unfortunately, for Sean, it was a bad move for him."

Clements learned of his grandfather's death the day before the final district round.

"I tried to put that behind me," Clements said. "I didn't tell anybody about it because I didn't want to use that as an excuse, but obviously, it affected me more than I thought it would. I found out about my grandfather's illness right before district play started and he just kept getting worse. He passed away right before the final round."

Clements feels he has earned the right to be on the first team.

"Considering that I was on the varsity all year, it was very disappointing to be moved down," he said. "It is disappointing to me since two players had never beaten me in qualifying. I felt like if I had a chance to qualify for the position, I would win it.

"However, Coach (Dunn) had to stick to his word and I understand that. I was just disappointed that the other guys wouldn't have a qualifying round under these special circumstances. But that's the breaks, I guess."

Dunn, too, feels bad for Clements.

"Sean is the most improved golfer we have," Dunn said. "He had that one bad round, and I'm sure the death in the family had something to do with that. I didn't even know about his situation before that final round of play. I really feel bad for him, but I felt like we had to stay with the decision we had made earlier."

LEE: JV players get playoff experience

(From 1C)

formances. Adrian Nobles scored three runs, drive in two and went 2-for-3 from the plate. Chrystal Smith scored four times and Kim Murphy had three RBI as did Stephanie Gentry.

The lopsidedness of the win also gave Perry Young chance to see some players moved up from the junior varsity at the end of the season. Jessica Wellborn, Marissa Underwood and Ceresa Mays saw time at the end of the game.

"We got to see some players we moved up from JV and see if they could handle the pressure," said Clarke. "This was a game where we could work on offensive situations."

Defensively, Smith handled the Lady Westerners' offense. The junior pitcher, 21-6, struck out the side in all but one inning en route to 14 K's for the game. Smith also allowed only two hits and needed only 64 pitches on an extremely windy day.

More than anything, this game exposed the inexperience of the first-year Lubbock High program, which finished the season as the third-place team of District 3. However, head coach Marsha Coates knows that this game will pay dividends on the line for her program and its seven starting sophomores. After all, if a team is going to take its lumps who better to do so than against the 1995 state semifinalist.

"I told them it was David versus Goliath and we learned from the game," said Coates. "With seven sophomores, you can't do anything but get better.

"Lee is a well-coached team and disiplined. They are on a top level and maybe in the future we can take a step up where we can compete."

DISTRICT NOTES: In other playoff action, Abilene Cooper defeated Lubbock Monterey 26-0. The Lady Coogs will play El Paso Hanks, the District 2 champion, Friday at 5 p.m. at the Bill Williams Complex in Midland.

will be Austin bound.

"Charlie just never gets rattled," said Lee golf coach Bobby Dunn. "If he hits a bad shot, he puts it behind him. And when he's playing bad, he can be a grinder and get the ball up and down."

"Really, I would like the team to make it to state. I think we have a chance to do that if everyone plays well," Prince said. "I just want to go up there and play my best and see what happens. I definitely want to compete for the medalist title and I might be able to make it if I play well.

"Of course, Sanders will be there and Cory Driskill of Lubbock Coronado is very good. El Paso Hanks has Adrian Quintela back. Those are three golfers who I have played against and I know they are good."

One of the biggest surprises in district play, however, came, not from Prince, but from Thomas Brantley, a junior. Brantley was second on the team in scoring, never producing a round over 79 on the four-stop district tour.

"Thomas was in our fifth period golf class a year ago. He wasn't even in our sixth period class," Dunn said. "This is his first year to letter and never played in a tournament until he was a sophomore."

Brantley worked hard last summer, playing in as many tournaments as he could. The results paid dividends.

"It's a pretty big jump from fifth period golf to the varsity," Brantley said. "I played a bunch of tournaments so I could play better under pressure. I never thought I would get to play in something like this. I've been consistent lately. I just hope it sticks with me."

Chris Mertz, another junior, also came through for the Rebels. He started the first two district rounds on the No. 2 team before being promoted.

"Chris has as much ability as anyone we have," Dunn said. "He hits the ball better than anyone. He just hasn't been consistent. He's only going to get better."

Mertz says that he just tried to keep his game at an even keel despite which team he was playing on.

"I started on No. 2 and Coach moved me up after I shot good enough in the first two rounds," Mertz said. "There is more pressure playing on the varsity because you are playing with better players, but I try not to think about that. I just want to keep my own game together whether I'm playing on the second team or the first team."

For senior Kelly McClatchy, the region tournament is a high in his up-and-down golf career. The two-year letterman broke his finger right before district play last year and missed the district tour.

"I was disappointed last year, but when I broke my finger, it made me work even harder," McClatchy said. "I wanted to contribute. I think all the seniors want to be the best they can be and leave the impression that Lee was there. This is something that we all have looked forward to."

Dunn said, "Kelly has been pretty consistent, but there always seems to be one hole that bites him. In the last district round, he shoots a 79 and it could have been easily a 74 if it hadn't been for one hole."

Senior Tommy Munoz will round out the Lee golf team, getting a second chance at the varsity in the most important tournament of the year. Munoz started the season on the varsity, but was replaced by Mertz for the final two rounds.

"Tommy could be the key for us," Dunn says. "If he plays well, we might have a chance. He shot rounds of 77 and 80 the last two rounds on the No. 2 team."

Munoz wants to make good on the second chance.

"I didn't play very well in the first two rounds and I don't blame Coach for putting me down on the second team after that. But I played hard the last two rounds and it paid off for me. I feel a little bit of pressure in this situation, but this team is capable of playing well in the regional tournament."

To win a state berth, Lee will have to defeat some strong Region I powers. Mansfield, Lubbock Coronado and San Angelo all figure to be strong. Also, Hanks, the defending state champion, is back.

about what happened in the past."

The Midland Lee Rebels, however, have a little easier road to the playoffs. The Rebels (15-11-1, 7-3) host Odessa Permian in a 2 p.m. game at Ernie Johnson Field which could inch them closer to a third straight district title.

"Permian's been swinging the bat pretty well and we've got to be ready for them," Lee coach Jesse Benavidez said. "The last time we played them it was a close game."

Lee is tied with Abilene High (16-8, 7-3) for second place in the district, 1 1/2 games ahead of fourth-place San Angelo Central with MHS in fifth. A Lee win, coupled with a Central loss to Abilene Cooper today, would secure no worse than a tie for third and at least a district playoff game. The Rebels can win the district if they win their last three and Cooper loses its last two.

The scenario for Midland High is a little more cloudy, but the Bulldogs can make the most of their opportunities in the next three games.

Following Odessa High, the Bulldogs face the two teams they have to catch in Abilene High and Central. If MHS runs the table — winning their final three games — and Central loses to either Cooper today or Permian on Tuesday and Abilene loses to Permian next Friday, the Bulldogs would tie Abilene for the No. 3 spot in the district and force a one-game playoff.

"We feel like we can do that, and that's really all we can do," Kennedy said. "We just have to go out and win our games and see how the cards fall. Our only shot is to win those three."

The first of those three comes today as the Bulldogs try to recapture some of the momentum they had in the first half of the district race. MHS started a three-game winning streak with a win over Permian in the first half, and last Saturday's victory over the Panthers has them believing they can do it again.

"The Permian game really picked us up in the first half," Kennedy said. "If you would have told me at the beginning of the season that we would sweep Permian I would not have believed it, but here we are."

The Bronchos (7-16, 0-10) have come close to winning a few district games, but inevitably something would go wrong late in the game to steal defeat from the jaws of victory.

Kennedy doesn't want the Bulldogs to be the first one bitten.

"They're capable of beating anyone in the district and I hope we're not the first one," he said. "I really feel like they're going to win one this year and we're preparing for a tough ball game. They've got some talent."

Given the task of shutting down the Bronchos is right-hander Keith Lant (7-2, 2.53 ERA). The senior three-year starter has become Midland High's most solid pitcher and Kennedy hopes he can help pull the Bulldogs back into the district race.

"Every staff's got a stopper and Keith's really filled that role for us," Kennedy said. "He's done the job when he's been called upon."

The Rebels will send Mike Hale (2-1, 3.92 ERA) to the mound against Permian in what is a switch for Lee. Benavidez normally uses Hale out of the bullpen but is giving the 6-3 junior the start, who has struck out 25 batters in 25 innings this year. Permian counters with Heath Moody (2-0, 5.64), making his fourth appearance of the season.

FOOTBALL: McCarthy chosen as center year.

"They want us to report on July 25 and play the game on July 30," McCarthy notes. "I have to start football at A&M on Aug. 1, which means I have to leave from the all-star game to college. That will make a long season.

"But it will help get my mind on football practice early, and maybe it will give me a little head start on some of the other freshmen coming to A&M. At least, I hope it will. It will help to get used to the humidity in Houston before going to College Station."

McCarthy was chosen to the team as an offensive center, the same position he played in high school and where he is projected to play at A&M.

The game will have a 7:30 p.m. kickoff. The North squad is coached by Eddie Peach of Arlington Lamar. Peach's Lamar team ousted Lee from the state playoffs in the third round last season.

The South team will be coached by D.W. Rutledge of Converse Judson. Judson defeated Permian in the state Class 5A Big School finals to win the state championship. That means that Permian's Bobo will get another chance at beating Rutledge.

Rankin's 6-foot-5 post Tomas Wrotten had previously been selected to play for the North in the All-Star basketball game, which is scheduled for Monday, July 29, at Hofheinz Pavilion at the University of Houston.

Lee coach Jon House served on the basketball all-star selection committee this year.

Also on the North cage team is Lubbock High's Ryan Jama, who did a lot of damage to Lee in the state basketball playoffs when the Westerners eliminated the Rebels in the bi-district playoffs.

'Da Kid' makes preps-to-pros jump an NBA success story

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Da Kid needed just three NBA games to prove he wasn't just any kid. He needed only half a season to become a starter and only two more months to show true star potential.

Kevin Garnett completes his preps-to-pros ascendance this weekend when the Minnesota Timberwolves finish another woeful season. Questions about whether the 19-year-old can play in the NBA are gone, replaced by new questions about who will be able to stop the spindly, spunky forward if he continues to develop as quickly as he did his first year out of high school.

"Normally, you would rate a guy like him less than a rookie because he didn't play in college," said Chicago's Scottie Pippen. "But he's so poised and confident. He's a special player."

That's the kind of appraisal Garnett got around the league after he became only the fourth player to jump directly from high school to the pros.

Players admire his talent and his attitude. Fans gasp at his flashy moves and are energized by his youthful enthusiasm. His coach, Flip Saunders, is so certain Garnett's rapid development will continue that he thinks Garnett could lead the hapless Wolves to the playoffs as soon as next season.

William Nelson knew it all along.

"He is absolutely the most complete player I've seen in my whole life," said Nelson, who coached Garnett last year at Chicago's Farragut Academy. "I've never seen any player who is basically 7-feet tall with all those skills. I have no doubt that some day Kevin will be the best player in the NBA."

That might sound like hyperbole, but there have been enough superlative moments during Garnett's rookie season to see that Da Kid — he gave himself the nickname — has loads of potential.

He had season highs of 19 rebounds (March 6 at Philadelphia), 33 points (March 27 against Boston) and seven blocks and seven assists (both at Dallas on Feb. 3).

He set a team record for blocked shots with 128 heading into the final two games, and was fourth among all NBA forwards in that category. He started 40 straight games before the final weekend, scoring in double figures in the last 31.

As a starter, he was shooting 53 percent from the field and averaging more than 14 points, eight rebounds and two assists, and his season totals in every category were far better than the last two players to jump from high school to the NBA (Bill Willoughby and Darryl Dawkins, both in 1975).

Seattle star Shawn Kemp, a 1988 high school graduate who didn't play in college before he was drafted in 1989, averaged 6.5 points and 4.3 rebounds his first season. Only Moses Malone, who went from high school to the ABA, fared better as a rookie, averaging 18.8 points and 14.6 rebounds.

"You look at where Garnett is today and where he was two months ago or three months ago or at the beginning of the season, legitimately he's going to be a guy that's going to be able to carry a team," Saunders said.

AP Laserphoto

From the time he blocked a Vlade Divac shot in his third game out of high school, Kevin Garnett showed he could play in the NBA.

"When we open camp next year, there's not going to be any question if he can play or not. It's going to be a question of how good is he going to be this year."

That wasn't the case after the Wolves took a chance by using the fifth pick overall in last summer's draft to pick Garnett.

A native of Mauldin, S.C., he played his final high school season in Chicago, leading Farragut to its only city championship.

He made himself available for the NBA draft only after failing several times to pass college entrance exams. So instead of signing with Michigan, Maryland, North Carolina or South Carolina, he signed a three-year, $5.6 million contract with the Wolves.

That got him a Lexus, a Toyota Land Cruiser and, by midseason, a $750,000 house in ritzy Minnetonka with plenty of elbow room for the three boyhood friends who live with him.

But all the money didn't make the transition any easier.

Rail thin when the season began, his pointy elbows and knobby knees stood out sharply in the muscle-bound collage of bodies under an NBA basket. The physical play, along with the vagabond NBA lifestyle, wore him down through the first half of the season.

"The biggest adjustment," Garnett said, "was that I had a lot of responsibility as a young guy. That's all. That's what it all boils down to. Hard. Dedicated. More responsible. I know this is the most responsible I'll be ever in my life, because I'm growing up and everything."

That's exactly what he did as the season neared the midway point.

He learned to handle his new life, bulked up in the weight room and gained confidence on the court. When he was injured during his first start, against the Lakers on Jan. 9, and missed the next two games, his presence was missed.

"You can't teach know-how or a feel for the game, and that's what he has," the Lakers' Magic Johnson said. "He's got the whole package, and he's calm and cool about it."

And when things go well for the Wolves, his joyful demeanor becomes infectious, spreading not only to his teammates but also to the fans. On a team where losing fewer than 60 games is considered progress, Garnett was a bright spot.

An extremely private person, Garnett can be surly and evasive with reporters. But he was spotted hugging one reporter and boxing playfully with another during the season, and his buoyant personality and wide, engaging grin have made him the most popular Wolves player.

"One thing about his chance to be good in the NBA is he loves to play basketball," said Denver coach Bernie Bickerstaff. "When you get young people who take it as just a job, then you have problems. But when you've got young people like Garnett, then you've got a chance."

Garnett's rookie success has been a temptation to other talented prep players struggling to meet academic standards needed to play in college. Nearly everyone who praised Garnett this season also said he should have gone to college, but a handful of prep stars still have caught the attention of NBA scouts this year.

Marty Blake, head of the NBA's scouting service, said those youngsters are fooling themselves.

"We will not see another Kevin Garnett for many years," Blake said.

Garnett still must get bigger and much better. Good won't be good enough next season, and Garnett still is a long way from meeting the All-Star expectations many have for him.

He is likely to be only a second-team All-Rookie selection, just another talented player in the talented NBA Class of '95. Randall Lane, who tracks sports marketing for Forbes magazine, said Garnett "isn't even on our radar screen yet."

But Da Kid has lived up to and even exceeded hopes for his rookie season. He turns 20 on May 19, and for now the only question seems to be how long it will be until he becomes Da Man.

"He hasn't fallen on his face, so score one for him," Lane said. "That's better than a lot of people expected, and we'll see where he goes from here."

End advance for April 20-21

Celtics win third game in four outings, topping Nets by six

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Dana Barros scored a season-high 27 points and hit a go-ahead 3-pointer with 2:29 left, helping the Boston Celtics beat the New Jersey Nets 112-106 Friday night.

Former Net David Wesley had 21 points and 14 assists for the injury-riddled Celtics, who hit 12 of 18 from 3-point range and won for third time in four games.

Shawn Bradley had his second straight triple-double for the Nets, getting 17 points, 13 rebounds and 10 blocks. Armon Gilliam scored 15 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter as the Nets overcame an eight-point deficit.

Gilliam hit two free throws to tie it at 100 with 2:53 to play.

After a Boston timeout and with the 24-second shot clock about to expire, Barros hit his fifth 3-pointer in as many tries to put the Celtics ahead 103-100. Wesley added a free throw with 1:19 to go, and Barros sank two more free throws with 40 seconds left to give Boston a six-point lead.

A free throw and a dunk by Bradley got New Jersey within 106-103 with 22 seconds remaining, but Dee Brown hit six free throws down the stretch to clinch the victory.

Hornets 115, Knicks 108

NEW YORK — Charlotte did all it could to stay in the playoff race, overcoming Patrick Ewing's first career triple-double and beating New York Knicks.

The victory wouldn't matter, however, if Miami defeated Milwaukee later Friday night and beat out the Hornets for the final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Ewing had 28 points, 15 rebounds and 11 assists for New York's first triple-double since 1991, but he had three crucial lapses late in the fourth quarter that helped Charlotte wrap up the win.

Larry Johnson had 28 points and 18 rebounds despite a sore ankle, Dell Curry had 22 points and Glen Rice 21 for Charlotte, which swept the season series 3-0.

The Hornets shot 24-of-26 from the free throw line, including 6-of-7 in the final 30 seconds, and 55 percent from the field.

With the score 98-98 with 3 1/2 minutes left, Kenny Anderson drove around Derek Harper and made a twisting layup over Ewing.

Raptors 107, Bullets 103

TORONTO — Doug Christie scored a season-high 30 points and Toronto overcame a 22-point deficit to beat Washington.

Juwan Howard scored a career-high 42 points for Washington, including a 3-pointer with 14 seconds left that cut Toronto's lead to 105-103. However, Acie Earl of the Raptors made two free throws with nine seconds remaining to clinch the victory.

Tracy Murray scored 27 points for the Raptors, who trailed by 22 points in the first half. Oliver Miller had 10 points, 12 rebounds and nine assists for Toronto.

Brent Price had 14 points and 11 assists for the Bullets, who were eliminated from playoff contention Wednesday by the Boston Celtics.

Magic 112, 76ers 92

PHILADELPHIA — Shaquille O'Neal had 23 points and 10 rebounds as Orlando pulled away from Philadelphia in the second half.

O'Neal had 12 points in the third quarter as the Magic, who led by only four at the half, put away the undermanned 76ers, who have lost eight of 11.

Both teams close out the regular season Sunday, with the Magic playing at Charlotte and the 76ers playing at Toronto.

Clarence Weatherspoon lead the 76ers with 18 points, while the Magic got 15 points from Anfernee Hardaway and 14 from Horace Grant.

After the 76ers closed within three early in the third quarter, the Magic turned to O'Neal and broke open the game with a 16-5 spurt.

O'Neal opened the run with a basket and contributed three forceful dunks. Anthony Bonner also contributed four points as the Magic assumed an 80-66 going into the fourth quarter.

Grizzlies 92, Nuggets 78

DENVER — The Vancouver Grizzlies won for only the fourth time in their last 40 games, beating the Denver Nuggets 92-78 Friday night.

Gerald Wilkins scored 15 points and Eric Murdock 14 for the Grizzlies, who opened a 20-point lead early in the third quarter before withstanding a Denver rally that cut Vancouver's lead to seven.

Although outrebounded 59-34, the Grizzlies shot 49 percent compared to Denver's 35 percent. Denver committed 27 turnovers, tying its season high, and the Grizzlies converted those miscues into 31 points.

Wilkins scored 10 points in the second half, and Murdock had 10 in the fourth quarter.

Blue Edwards and Anthony Avent added 13 points apiece for the Grizzlies, who are 14-67 in their first season.

LaPhonso Ellis had 14 points and 17 rebounds for Denver, which was eliminated from the playoffs last Monday. The Nuggets suffered their worst loss of the season Thursday to Dallas, 132-98.

Heat 106, Bucks 100

MILWAUKEE — Alonzo Mourning scored 28 points as Miami clinched the final Eastern Conference playoff spot with a victory over Milwaukee.

Miami is a game ahead of Charlotte with one game left for each team. But the Heat would have the tiebreaker advantage over the Hornets should they both finish 42-40 because of a better conference record.

Head-to-head competition is the first tiebreaker, but Miami and Charlotte split their four games.

The Heat can set a club record of 43 victories with a win Sunday.

Texans to be featured in six-man all-star game with players from four states, Canada July 27

RANGER, Texas (AP) — Texas likes to brag that it plays the best high school football in the world. Some six-man players are ready to try living up to the billing.

On July 27, a Texas all-star team will take on a squad of stars from New Mexico, Kansas, Colorado, Montana and Saskatchewan, Canada.

The game will be played at Ranger College. The traditional-sized field will be marked down to six-man specifications, as was done this past year in Brownwood for a special game between teams from Texas and Colorado.

Tommy Wells, who publishes "Six-Man Illustrated" magazine, sponsored that game and is behind this summer's contest.

Each team will have 22 players. It's being called a North vs. South battle, although the South squad will be all Texans.

"The only way to break it down was to get one person from every district in the state. That includes UIL, TAPPS and TCAL," Wells said.

The North will be coached by Rocky Chysyk of Bjorkdale, Saskatchewan, who won the Class A Saskatchewan title. His assistant will be Kirk Smock of Peetz, Colo., which won the Colorado state title.

The South will be coached by David Mixon of Mineral Wells Community Christian, which was a state runner-up in TCAL. Gary Rickard of Happy Hill Farm, a state quarterfinalist in TAPPS, will be Mixon's assistant.

The Texas team will feature six-man football's all-time leading rusher, Petey Salaiz of Mullin. Another top standout, Dewayne Miles of Amherst, has been invited but has yet to respond.

Making the right call of the Wild Turkey

Associated Press

There are many different types of turkey calls out there, and in certain hunting situations, one will out perform the others.

"The hunter has got to match the call with the sound he is trying to make," said David Hale, president of Knight & Hale Game Calls.

That doesn't mean a hunter has to carry a half dozen calls, but he has to decide which are best for him.

The major calls are the slate call, box call, mouth call, push-pull and tube calls.

A successful spring turkey hunter is the one who uses calls to sound like a love-sick hen. The calls break the male's pattern of gobbling and strutting to call the females to him, prompting him to seek this mysteriously seductive female.

Different gobblers respond to different calls. The hunt starts around dawn, while the bird still is roosting in a tree.

"You start with a cluck, to see if you can get that bird to gobble," Hale said. "Then you sit still and let him get on the ground. Give him a little time. He's going to start and gobble a few minutes. Then make a cluck and soft yelp. It's wake up time for that gobbler."

If the bird doesn't start moving toward the hunter, then he may have other hens in mind, possibly birds that roost with him.

Then the hunter should make aggressive sounds, purrs, cuts and excited yelps, Hale said.

If a bird hasn't been lured by 8 a.m., try a gobble or cutting sounds.

Hale said the best overall call, if it's a really good one, is the tube call, which is blown like a small horn.

"You can gobble on it, you can get volume as well as the lowest sounds," Hale said. "One can learn to make anything you want with it."

The slate call, usually a slate disk that you rub with a wood or plastic stick, is best for purring and clucking.

The box call, a small rectangular wood box with a hinged lid that can be rubbed across the top edge of the box, makes the best yelps.

"It gives you volume, and its call is a great locator," Hale said.

The mouth call is among the hardest to learn. It's a disk with one or more reeds in it that fits in the roof of your mouth. Its great advantage is the hunter doesn't have to move to make calls. A turkey's eyesight is very sharp, and the gobbler can spot almost any movement.

Hale said that call is particularly good for cuts, cackles and excited sounds.

The push-pull is a good call for beginners. Smaller than a box call, it is a box with a spring-loaded rod through it. It makes calls by pushing and pulling the rod through the box, causing the box to vibrate.

"It's really easy to do, and you can use two simultaneously," one in each hand, he said.

"You can sound like two gobblers or two hens fighting. There are great advantages to that call."

Watson leaves wrench in office, ties for lead

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Greg Norman gets faxes of support. Tom Watson gets putters — lots of them, in all sizes and configurations.

"You ought to see my office," Watson said after successfully using his putter Friday for a second straight 67 and a share of the lead with Jeff Sluman midway through the MCI Heritage Classic. "I got seven putters at Augusta (the Masters) and a wrench."

Watson didn't need to work on mechanics during most of the round at Harbour Town Golf Links.

He rolled in a 20-foot birdie putt on his first hole, the 10th, and tied Sluman with a six-foot eagle putt on his 11th hole, the second. A birdie on No. 3 pushed Watson to 9-under. But missed short putts on No. 4 (for bogey), and No. 5 (for birdie) brought him back to 8-under 134, where he has a chance at his first PGA Tour win in nine years.

Sluman, who hasn't won since a PGA Championship victory in 1988, also had a second straight 67 to tie Watson.

The two were a stroke in front of Colin Montgomerie, Jeff Maggert, Larry Nelson and first-round co-leader Loren Roberts at 7-under 135. Brian Kamm got to 6-under with a 63, the day's low round on the par-71 layout, and was joined by two-time Heritage winner Davis Love III, Rocco Mediate, Chip Beck, Jim Carter and Andrew Magee.

Defending champ Bob Tway led a group at 5-under and Norman, who still hasn't counted all the faxed messages of encouragement sent him since he dropped the Masters a week ago, shot a 69 and stood at 4-under. Nick Faldo, winner of the green jacket Norman lost, also was four shots back.

Norman brushed off questions and hustled back to his 87-foot yacht, Aussie Rules, parked in the Harbour Town marina.

There were 78 golfers who survived the cut at even-par 142, lowest in the tournament's history. Those going home on the weekend included former two-time Heritage champ Payne Stewart and ex-U.S. Ryder Cup captain Lanny Wadkins.

Watson, who has eight major titles and career earnings of more than $7 million, has struggled the past decade with short putts. They used to move strongly to the cup, but now more often than not, spin away at crucial moments.

He lost the 1994 Pebble Beach tournament to Johnny Miller in the final round when his putter failed him and last month was runner-up to Scott McCarron at New Orleans after a last-round 74.

Watson is frustrated that he can't count on the putter like he used to. He said there have only been a few good putting tournaments for him in the 1990's.

"That's a lot different than all the time in the '70s and '80s," he said. "Hopefully, this weekend a light switch will turn on for me."

Seniors' Championship

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — Buddy Allin posted a 67 early and watched as his 5-under-par 139 held up on to lead midway through the PGA Seniors' Championship.

Hale Irwin, whose 66 grabbed the first-round lead, stumbled to a 74 and was one stroke behind at 140, along with Isao Aoki, going into Saturday's third round.

Bob Charles and Larry Gilbert were two strokes back.

"I got lucky," Allin said. "I was shaky coming down the last few holes. They're scary."

Allin, who hasn't won anywhere since the 1980 New Zealand Open, made ground early in the round, as everyone has on the Champion Course at PGA National Golf Club this week. He made six birdies before turning into the eight difficult closing holes.

"They're not as hard when you are 5-under," Allin said about his finish. "I birdied 9, 10 and 11 and then I just tried to finish."

Allin started his round by hitting a wedge to 4 inches on the first hole and made birdies on Nos. 3 and 4. His only bogey came on No. 2 when he missed the green, chipped to 10 feet and missed the putt.

Asked if he expected to win against Irwin and some of the other big names on the Senior PGA Tour, Allin said: "I'm not in their category. Never was and don't plan to be."

But the way the wind was blowing and the way the last eight holes on the Champion Course have been throwing big numbers on the scoreboard, anything could happen.

LPGA Chick-fil-A

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. — The Chick-fil-A Charity Championship seems to bring out the best in Karen Weiss.

The 30-year-old Weiss shot a career-best, 6-under-par 66 to take a two-shot lead in the Chick-fil-A Charity Championship.

Weiss made six birdies en route to her best round since last year's Chick-fil-A, in which she shot a final-round 68.

The third-year pro credited putting for her success.

"I tried to hit solid putts," Weiss said. "I didn't have to make anything long, either."

Weiss shot 32 on the front nine, with four birdies. She made a 3-footer on No. 3 and a 6-footer on No. 6 for birdies.

Endless stream of encouraging words finds way to Norman

TEQUESTA, Fla. (AP) — Inside the offices of Great White Shark Enterprises, Frank Williams sat behind a desk piled high with thousands of faxes and letters that arrived since Greg Norman's stunning Masters collapse.

"I'm sick of getting teary-eyed," Williams said Friday as he read a letter that especially touched him.

"So many of these are about kids. So many are about how Greg was such a perfect role model for how to handle adversity."

For a full week, the fax machine in Norman's business office in the three-story smoky-gray building on the Florida coast has cranked out an endless stream of encouraging words, humorous thoughts and poignant insights.

From all over the world the words came. Ardent fans, casual observers and people who know nothing at all about golf wrote to tell Norman of their shared pain in his defeat and passionate pride in how he handled it.

"Victory is one thing, but it is transient," read one fax. "Grace and dignity in the face of pressure are permanent values."

Another read: "The way you took your second place at Augusta showed the world what a great champion really is."

This one read: "Everyone I know who watched you on Sunday literally bled for you."

And the words on another said: "Your good humor, dignity and grace in defeat were an important lesson for my kids."

With that good humor and gracious refusal to make excuses, Norman reached inside people and touched a secret part of anyone who has ever had a disappointment in life in a way he never did with any of his victories or any of his other second-place finishes in major championships.

"He's like all of us want to be," Williams said about the man he has known since 1979 and now serves as an agent. "The older you get the wiser you get — we hope."

While millions worldwide took note of Norman's pain, those closest to his Florida home juggled feelings of empathy and disbelief.

About the distance of a good Greg Norman 2-iron from the Great White Shark offices is the Lighthouse Restaurant. It's the kind of place where the waitress plops a cup on the table before asking, "What'll it be, hon?"

Bryan Riddle sat contemplating his cup of coffee, its steam spiraling in the sunlight that slipped through the shades.

"It's tough to watch any athlete go through that, especially one who has scars," Riddle said, referring to Norman's past failures on Sunday in majors. "He should have been able to handle it. There is no question he will win again."

Riddle and his friend, Andy Lemmel, said Norman keeps to himself when he is home at nearby Hobe Sound, not far from Palm Beach on the Atlantic side of Florida.

"We see his helicopter flying around," Lemmel said. "And he spends a lot of time in his boat."

Like the thousands who faxed and mailed letters to the Great White Shark offices, Lemmel felt that whatever shortcomings Norman showed as a golfer in losing to Nick Faldo were more than made up for by the way he handled his unravelling.

"Great golfers find a way to win, but he didn't do it," Lemmel said. "I love the guy. He was a gracious loser, if there is such a thing."

Back inside Norman's business office his staff tries to keep the fax machine loaded with paper and tries to silence the constantly ringing phone.

"Great White Shark Enterprises," said Lynne Cook as she answered yet another phone call. The call is for Williams, who is unable to tear himself away from reading the stack of mail.

"I do have work to do, but how can you stop reading this stuff? It's incredible," he said, nodding toward a two piles of letters each about a half-foot high.

"We have gotten more than 3,000 so far," Williams said, "and only two have been negative. One just said: 'Choker' and the other read: 'You ass. You're too rich.'"

Capitals come back on Penguins again, lead 2-0

Associated Press

■ NHL Roundup

PITTSBURGH — The Washington Capitals rallied from a two-goal deficit for the second straight game, riding Peter Bondra's go-ahead goal Friday night and a rejuvenated power play to a 5-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins and a 2-0 series lead.

The heavily favored Penguins, who recovered from 3-1 deficits to oust Washington in 1992 and 1995, wasted an early 2-0 lead and a four-minute power play late in the third period to lose their second straight at home.

Since the NHL's best-of-7 format was introduced in 1939, only nine teams have won a series after losing the first two at home. The Penguins twice rallied from 2-0 en route to Stanley Cup championships in 1991 and 1992, but those losses were on the road.

The Capitals, 0-for-20 on the power play against Pittsburgh during the season, scored three power-play goals — two by Pat Peake and the other by Bondra. They also got an empty-net goal from Michael Pivonka with 51.3 seconds left, moments after Pittsburgh couldn't score on four shots during the four-minute power play resulting from Pivonka's high-sticking penalty.

Washington coach Jim Schoenfeld's gamble to sit down star goaltender Jim Carey for backup Olaf Kolzig, who hadn't started in six weeks, paid off as Kolzig — who replaced Carey in the Capitals' 6-4 win in Game 1 — stopped 33 of 36 shots. So did Mark Tinordi's constant shadowing of Lemieux as the NHL scoring champion was held without a goal for the second straight game.

Red Wings 4, Jets 0

DETROIT — The Detroit Red Wings tied a club record with two shorthanded goals in a win over Winnipeg, putting them up 2-0 in their Western Conference series with the Jets.

The best-of-7 series resumes in Winnipeg for the next two games, beginning with Game 3 on Sunday.

The Red Wings, who won an NHL-record 62 regular-season games, haven't won the Stanley Cup since 1955. It is the league's longest drought.

Paul Coffey, Doug Brown, Kris Draper and Igor Larionov scored for the Red Wings, who blew the game open with three second-period goals. They outshot the Jets 17-6 during the period and 34-16 for the game.

It was the second career playoff shutout for Chris Osgood, who tied for third in the NHL with five during the season. Osgood sparkled with three very good stops. He robbed Craig Janney in the first and Eddie Olczyk in the second, then preserved the shutout with big saves on Keith Tkachuk and Igor Korolev in the third.

Blackhawks 3, Flames 0

CHICAGO — Ed Belfour made 32 saves and Jeremy Roenick scored his first goal in five weeks as the Chicago Blackhawks took a two-game series lead over Calgary.

Chicago can complete the sweep by winning Games 3 and 4 in Calgary on Sunday and Tuesday.

Only 27 teams have rallied from 2-0 deficits since the NHL adopted the best-of-7 format in 1939. The Flames have even more history going against them: They haven't won a playoff round since beating Montreal in the 1989 Stanley Cup finals.

Gary Suter and Jeff Shantz also scored for Chicago, which would have won handily if not for a dozen spectacular saves by Rick Tabaracci. The Blackhawks have seven goals this series after getting only five in going 0-2-2 against Calgary during the season.

Rice shuts out Texas A&M, 5-0

HOUSTON (AP) — Shawn Onley struck out 10 and walked one, going the distance as Rice beat Texas A&M 5-0 on Friday.

Onley (7-1), a junior from Mount Pleasant, spaced out five hits in his second complete game in a row.

Adam Herndon provided all the support Onley needed with a solo home run in the fifth inning for Rice (30-15, 5-10 Southwest Conference)

Shane King (6-3) gave up three unearned runs in the sixth as he went the distance for Texas A&M (31-15, 8-8).

Jason Richards reached first on an error by the Aggies' Jason Stephens to lead off the sixth for Rice. Bubba Crosby struck a one-out single, then Jacques Landry crushed a three-run homer, give Rice a school-record 61 for the season.

The Owls closed out the scoring when Crosby scored Richards with an RBI single.

The win was Rice's fifth in a row and snapped a six-game A&M win streak.

Ringener top seed going into Bud Lite finals

SAYVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Philip Ringener is the top seed for the second straight year going into the stepladder finals of the PBA Bud Lite Championship.

Ringener beat Dave D'Entremont 213-193 in the final match play game Friday night to clinch top spot. In last year's title match, Ringener missed a pair of single pins in a 237-236 loss to Jess Stayrook.

Ringener is looking for his first career title. The right-hander is the winningest non-titlist on the PBA Tour with more than $450,000 in career earnings. Ringener finished with a 10,083 pinfall total and went 19-5 in match play.

Joe Firpo downed Mike Scroggins 211-184 in their final match to surpass D'Entremont and move into the No. 2 position. D'Entremont is seeded third in the stepladder finals.

CAR AND DRIVER'S CAR OF CHOICE.

In a recent Car and Drivers road test of economy sedans, the Mazda Protege not only swept the field, it stole their hearts. "Wow!" wrote one test expert. "I'm impressed... This car is a ball to drive." We quickly underscore that the Protege is also safe and prudent and practical. "Even correcting for hydroplaning is a cinch-easier than in the Honda. Dual air bags and the best basic warranty in its class will add to your peace of mind. And our patented curve-hugging suspension will hooster your confidence even further This is a sport sedan built for safe carriage in a class known for compromises and sacrifices (among them the Pontiac Grand Am SE, Saturn SL2, Nissan Sentra, and Honda Civic LX) the Protege ES stands alone earning a Perfect 10 from Car and Driver for fun to drive. The most athletic car of the lot from the most passionate engineers of the bunch, Mazda.

"BY UNANIMOUS OPINION... THE MOST ATHLETIC CAR OF THE BUNCH."
