J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has expressed grave concern over the problem of drunken drivers on the nation's highways.

"Are we unaffected by the sight of twisted steel, shattered glass, and bloody, lifeless crash victims?" he asks. "Is the drinking driver, careening along in a speeding vehicle, an accepted part of our daily lives? Regrettably, this is an instance where the right answer, a reluctant 'yes' is the wrong answer.

"Apparently there is no persuasion, short of certain stern punishment, that will keep the drinking driver from behind the steering wheel, and bringing him to justice is no easy matter. Law enforcement officials and prosecutors agree that charges of driving while under the influence of alcohol are the toughestt traffic cases to prosecute. Some jurors apparently consider the violation to be an indiscretion, not a crime—indeed, a dereliction in which they themselves may occasionally indulge. In short, the public is unwilling to impose self-restraint and legal restrictions to control this problem."

"The question then," says Hoover," Is how long can the public consience accept the mounting toll of human lives claimed in accidents caused by drunken drivers? Certainly, more than 25,000 lives annually is a tragic loss to chalk off to indifference. To virtually ignore drunken drivers is to condone them, and the depth of guilt becomes a common shame.

"I believe the problem of the drinking driver should be handled firmly. He should know that detection, prosecution and punishment will be swift and certain. Whenever the circumstances warrant, lengthly revocation of licenses, maximum fines and substantial jail sentences should be imposed upon offenders.

"The rights and safety of the motoring public should not be imperiled by selfish, irresponsible drivers who, while under the influence of alcohol, convert the automobile into a lethal weapon."

Hoover's remarks on this subject were directed to all law enforcement officials and were published in a recent issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin.

An amendment to the football rules is among issues being voted on this spring by member schools of the University Interscholastic League. It would prohibit practice in contact equipment during the first four days of fall workouts, and would prohibit inter-school scrimmage before the sixth day of contact work. All classes, except Class 4A, would be under the same regulations. Class 4A, which has spring training, would continue to be under different regulations and would continue to begin fall workouts a week later than all others.—WACIL McNAIR

EXTENSIVE APPEALS EXPECTED

Calley Gets Life Sentence

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William Calley Jr. was sentenced to life imprisonment today by the same jury that convicted him of murdering My Lai villagers three years ago. The sentence is subject to automatic and extensive appeals.

The jury, which heard Calley's statement Tuesday, resumed their deliberations today. Judge Reid Kennedy, an Army colonel, had charged them:

"You should select a sentence that is appropriate to the offense of which you have convicted Lt. Calley, his deeds, the welfare of society and good order and discipline within the military service."

If the jurors cannot agree on a life or death sentence, they have the authority to lower the verdict to second degree murder or voluntary manslaughter. In either case, a lesser sentence could be imposed. Another alternative would be the empaneling of a new jury to fix the sentence.

Calley's plea before the jury began deliberating was brief but dramatic:

"You stripped me of all honor. Please, by your actions that you take here today, don't strip future soldiers of their honor. I beg of you." After his two-minute statement Tuesday, the jury retired for its final task: to condemn Calley to life in prison or to death on the gallows.

"I'm not going to stand here and plead for my life or my freedom," he told the six officers who convicted him of slaying at least 22 persons at My Lai.

"I would ask you to consider the thousand more lives that are going to be lost in Southeast Asia. The thousand more, that is, to be imprisoned not only here in the United States, but also in North Vietnam and in hospitals all over the world as amputees.

"I've never known a soldier, nor did I ever myself wantonly kill a human being in my entire life."

The 27-year-old Calley, a man with the stature of a stocky teen-ager, appeared even smaller as he stood alone in front of the court-martial members—experienced combat officers with their chests full of service ribbons.

His voice broke as he said:

"If I've committed a crime, the only crime I have committed is in my judgment of my values. Apparently I have valued my troops' lives more than I did that of the enemy.

"When my troops were getting massacred and mauled by an enemy I couldn't see, I couldn't feel and I couldn't touch; that nobody in the military system ever described as anything other than communism—they didn't give it a race, they didn't give it a sex they didn't give it an age. They never let me believe it was just a philosophy in a man's mind. That was my enemy out there.

"And when it became between me and that enemy, I had to value the lives of my troops. I feel that is the only crime I have committed."

It was easily the most moving moment of the court-martial.

'Copters Land Raiders

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. helicopters landed a small force of elite South Vietnamese commandos in southern Laos today for a raid on a North Vietnameae base believed to be about five miles from the border.

The North Vietnamese struck back about 125 miles to the southeast, seizing and burning most of the district capital of Duc Duc, 25 miles southwest of the northern base city of Da Nang.

President Nguyen Van Thieu told reporters at Don Ha, South Vietnamese headquarters, that the raiders "landed five minutes ago and attacked a North Vietnamese base in Base Area 611. Operation Lam Son 719 is still going on and the South Vietnamese army is still on the attack, despite the pullback of some units into Vietnam."

Lam Son 719 was the code name for the 22,000-man South Vietnamese drive into Laos now ended. The base area he referred to is south of the region swept during the incursion.

Two battalions of North Vietnamese troops carried out the attack on Duc Duc, launching a heavy barrage and ground attack Sunday night and seizing and holding most of the town Monday and Tuesday. They were withdrawing today.

At least 200 Vietnamese civilians were reported killed or wounded, and 18 regional militiamen were killed and 36 wounded.

Field reports said about 1,000 houses were burned but the North Vietnamese failed to penetrate the U.S. district advisory team compound. They blew up the team house and a senior adviser's bunker outside. One American was wounded slightly.

Pullout Resolution Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats approved today a compromise resolution calling for U. S. troop withdrawal from Indochina not later than Jan. 3, 1973.

The action at a party caucus is not binding. It commits House Democrats to work toward the goal of troop withdrawal and prisoner release during the 92nd Congress, which expires on Jan. 3, 1973.

The resolution modified an original proposal calling for withdrawal by the end of 1971.

But it went further than some House leaders preferred. They leaned toward a plan approved by Senate Democrats setting an unspecified time.

Unions Vow Legal Fight On Wage-Price Guides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction union leaders vow a legal fight against President Nixon's new wage stabilization order, but add they will "comply with the law of the land."

The labor officials were vague about how they will attack Nixon's executive order in court, but C.J. Haggerty, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO said, "with all the legal power at our command we intend to fight this plan for more equity."

Haggerty also told newsmen Tuesday the 17 craft unions involved have not decided whether they will sit on wage stabilization review boards established by Nixon's order.

The boards, composed of labor and management officials, will review wage settlements to determine if they meet Nixon-ordered restrictions. While the wage limits are flexible, they generally tie wage boosts to an average of not more than 6 per cent a year.

The administration said Monday the system of wage restraints is largely a self regulating process depending on the cooperation of unions and contractors.

Haggerty took issue with Nixon's assertion that construction union leaders had indicated willingness to cooperate in a wage stabilization plan.

He said the craft presidents "wish to emphasize that they rejected a proposal of the Labor Department for a voluntary wage stabilization arrangement, and any implication to the contrary is not consistent with the facts."

Cowboy Art Show Is In Final Day

The Cowboy Hall of Fame art exhibit was making its last stand today in the Scurry County Coliseum as attendance at the showing here zoomed into the thousands.

Today is Garden Clubs Day" at the coliseum and several visiting delegations were due to view the exhibit, which will close at 8 p.m.

Ranch Headquarters Day drew hundreds of visitors to the coliseum Tuesday afternoon and evening. A special attraction was a showing of a motion picture taken in 1928 on the Slaughter Ranch and color slides showing development of the Ranch Headquarters Museum at Texas Tech. The films were shown almost continuously throughout the afternoon and past the scheduled 8 p.m. closing time as scores of viewers were on hand until the very last.

The traveling art exhibit from the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City was brought here by the Diamond M Foundation, which sponsored a public showing Sunday afternoon, following a dinner session honoring Cowboy Hall of Fame board members on Saturday evening.

Out-of-town delegations, many coming by chartered bus, have been on hand each day during the exhibit, which is the first in this area for the Cowboy Hall of Fame art. There also have been visitors from other states here for the exhibit.

The Diamond M Art Museum has been open to the public during the special show at the coliseum as the Palette Club served as host on Monday, the local Ranch Headquarters Association on Tuesday and the local garden clubs today.

Weather Hampers Search

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Worsened weather conditions today handicapped ships and aircraft searching the ocean for 31 merchant mariners missing in the sinking of the tanker Texaco Oklahoma off the North Carolina coast.

The Coast Guard reported 12-foot seas whipped by 20-knot winds in the search area that covered some 12,000 square miles. Skies were overcast and whitecaps made it difficult to sight objects on the ocean surface.

Tuesday night, search units sighted two floating objects believed to be bodies, 240 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, but darkness and heavy seas prevented recovery.

Searching for the missing seamen were eight merchant ships, five Coast Guard ships, one Navy ship and six aircraft.

The tanker broke in two Saturday in heavy seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras.

EPA Starts Air Pollution Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency put the machinery in motion today to set nationwide standards on specific types and sources of air pollution.

Airborne emissions from industrial plants and incinerators as well as mercury, beryllium and asbestos are major targets, and more antipollution steps are to come.

Within two years, the agency said, it will set performance standards for 30 other categories of stationary pollution sources and may list other airborne substances in the hazardous category that now includes mercury, beryllium and asbestos.

In one public notice today, EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus started a procedure to establish within 210 days standards governing airborne emissions from large power plants and incinerators, and all sulfuric acid, nitric acid and cement plants.

In another notice, he began a move to set within a year nationwide standards on emissions from any source of mercury, beryllium and asbestos.

Mercury, publicized last year as a water contaminant, can build up in the human body and cause irreversible damage to the nervous system.

Beryllium, another toxic metal, attacks the respiratory system and can cause death or chronic ailment.

Asbestos dust can cause serious lung disorders.

Ruckelshaus said listing them as hazardous "does not mean that current levels in the air are dangerous.

"It means that even slight exposure to asbestos, mercury and beryllium may threaten human health, and we must carefully control any release of the substances to the environment."

Ruckelshaus must publish proposed standards for these three substances within 180 days and hold public hearings on them within 30 days thereafter.

Legislators Have Full Schedule

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas legislators had a busy day ahead of them today—from multi-million dollar tax plans to measles shots for school kids.

The House calendar called for debate on two Senate-passed bills.

One would establish "rules of the road" for Texas motorists to conform with the federal Uniform Vehicle Code and insure a continued flow of federal funds for Texas highways.

Another Senate-approved bill would make it compulsory for pupils entering public school to have eight different innoculations including polio, diphtheria, two kinds of measles, whooping cough and tetanus. Texas now requires only smallpox.

The Senate was scheduled to resume discussion of a resolution that would prevent any new tax plans from suddenly appearing during floor debate without first having a public hearing. The Senate version of a tax bill is expected to be ready about April 12.

Senators planned an executive session at 11:30 a.m. to consider a long list of gubernatorial appointments. The appointments up for a secret vote include Mrs. Edward W. Clarke, wife of the former U.S. ambassador to Australia, to the Board of Regents of State Senior Colleges, and Joe Burkett to the Texas Alcoholic Beverages Commission.

One of the legislature's chief unfinished problems was to be considered in Washington today and Thursday. A delegation of Texas legislators, headed by Rep. Delwin Jones, Lubbock, chairman of the House Committee on Congressional and Legislative Districts, and Sen. J. P. Word, Meridian, head of the Senate committee, flew to Washington to confer with the state's congressmen.

Hoffa Up For Parole

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Parole Board decides today between freedom or continued imprisonment for Teamsters President James R. Hoffa. Parole would almost certainly enable Hoffa to resume control of the world's largest union.

The Board's decision was to be announced by Chairman George J. Reed immediately following a late-morning session with two Hoffa attorneys. The Justice Department said it would have no representative at the hearing.

The department has confirmed it would not oppose a parole for the 58-year-old president, of the 2-million-member Teamsters Union.

If the board decides to parole Hoffa, it could set the condition that he not be permitted to resume control of the union, but legal sources said Hoffa probably could tie up such a decision in the courts and continue to run the union while the issue is decided.

Wife takes her sister's word

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife's sister [I'll call her Myrtle] married a bum who has been AWOL from the service several times. Myrtle spent time, on two different occasions, in a mental hospital, and this last time when she came out, she decided to go back to her no-good husband.

My wife and her whole family tried to talk Myrtle out of it, because this guy will have Myrtle back in the mental hospital in no time. He runs around with other women. [He is a regular sex maniac.]

Myrtle won't listen to anybody. Here is where I come into it: When my wife was trying to tell Myrtle what a louse her husband was, Myrtle said that I was no better—that I had made several passes at HER. This is a dirty, rotten lie. Myrtle is ugly as a bullfrog, and I wouldn't spit on her if she was on fire.

My wife believes her sister. How can I prove to my wife that Myrtle is lying? TRUE BLUE

DEAR TRUE: You can't. It's your word against Myrtle's. It seems to me that your past record [and Myrtle's] should speak for both of you.

DEAR ABBY: Stan had a beard before we were married so my father was against our marriage from the start, but he decided to be friends with Stan when he shaved off his beard for our wedding.

Well, after five months of being married, Stan decided to grow another beard, so my father told us he wanted nothing to do with me or my "hippie" husband.

Here is my father's reasoning: My younger brother got the courage to let his hair grow long because of Stan's beard. My husband's beard is not a bushy, wild one. It is neat, well trimmed and looks very nice.

Is my father being fair? He doesn't have to kiss my husband or even like the beard on him. I'm the one who has to live with it, and I like it. We would like your opinion and the opinions of others. STAN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your father is being grossly unfair. But I must admit that I am prejudiced. I find well-manicured beards extremely attractive.

DEAR ABBY: I have three sons under four, and I have a lot of laundry to do. I have no basement or clothes dryer so I hang my clothes outside. It is all right in the summer and spring, but in the winter it's no good because my clothes freeze when it snows.

My husband says, "My mother didn't have a clothes dryer and neither did Columbus, so when it snows, why don't you do what the Indians did?"

My question: What did the Indians do when it snowed? FROZE OUT

DEAR FROZE: They let it snow. But that's an old joke, and doesn't solve your problem. Tell your husband to skip the comedy and take you to the laundromat.

DEAR ABBY: If you could give the young parents of today just one piece of advice, what would it be? NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Start early! A child must learn that no means NO! It doesn't mean maybe. And maybe doesn't mean yes.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Ira's Play Takes First

HOBBS—Ira High School had the winning play, the top actor and another member of the all-star cast in the University Interscholastic League District 6B one-act play contests here Tuesday.

The winning play was titled "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals."

Donald Sellars was named the best actor, while Judy Scott of Loraine was named best actress. Others in the all-star cast are Reggie Baker of Fluvanna, John Hughes of Hobbs, Gaines Price and Debbie Stewart of Highland, Jane Roddie of Ira and Rhonda Oliver of Loraine.

Loraine's play placed second and the Hobbs play placed third in the contest.

The Ira cast will compete in the regional contest April 22-24 at Lubbock.

Firemen Called Five Times

City Firemen answered five calls yesterday.

They extinguished grass fires at 4:15 p.m. in the 100 block of Twenty-eighth Street, at 5:45 p.m. 20 miles northwest of the city, at 7 p.m. east of Wilson Motors, and at 7:30 p.m. at Avenue S and Twentieth Street. The other call was to the 1900 block of Gilmore at 5:15 p.m. Damage was minor.

4 Perish, 12 Injured In Fire

BOSTON (AP) — Flames swept the upper floors of an apartment building early today. Fire officials said four persons died, 12 were injured and others were missing in the glaze of "suspicious origin."

Lt. George Lee, public relations officer of the fire department, said there had been two other fires of suspicious origin in the [illegible]-story brick structure during the past year.

Lee reported seven deaths at first but revised the figure later.

The dead included a baby. Neighbors said they thought most of the victims were older persons.

Many students and elderly persons lived in the block-long building. About 150 of them fled to safety or were rescued. The injured were treated for burns and smoke inhalation.

The first of the 250 firemen who fought the blaze arrived just after 12:30 a.m., and rescued about 40 persons on ladders from apartment windows. Other tenants made their way through smoky hallways or metal fire escapes to exits.

Stewart Thayer, 52, who came down a ladder from his bathroom window, said when he left he heard someone screaming "get me out, get me out."

"I heard people running downstairs," he said, "but I couldn't get out. I broke through a screen on my bathroom window and yelled for help."

Witnesses said dozens of persons were perched on window sills and ledges outside blazing rooms when fire equipment arrived.

The apartment complex, in the Back Bay section not far from the Red Sox' home Fenway Park, contains 40 apartments housing about 160 persons.

Fire Chief George Paul said damage to the building was about $150,000.

Hog Prices Tumble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hog prices tumbled again last month and by mid March averaged $16.90 per hundredweight, compared with $25.60 a year earlier, the Agriculture Department reports.

In January hog prices dropped to $15.20 per hundredweight, reflecting the big increases in production and marketing last year. But the average price climbed a bit and averaged $19.20 at mid-February, the department said Tuesday.

Agriculture Department officials have said they do not expect to see much of an uptrend until farmers carry out an intended cutback in pig production this spring.

All prices received by farmers for a variety of products averaged the same in March as they did in February, the department's crop reporting board said in its monthly report.

Higher prices for vegetables, including sharp rises for lettuce and tomatoes helped offset declines for other products, officials said.

The leveling-off in average prices received by farmers was accompanied by a slackening in their expenses. The cost index was reported unchanged from February.

The halt in both farm costs and prices received meant that the historic parity ratio also remained unchanged at 70 per cent, the same as in February.

Under a new base formula comparing prices and costs with 1967 levels, the ratio was 95 per cent, also the same as in February.

All beef cattle were quoted at an average of $28.60 per hundredweight, compared with $28.50 in February and $28.80 a year ago.

Corn was $1.43 per bushel, the same as in February, but 30 cents more than for March 1970. Soybeans were $2.91 per bushel, down one cent from February but 49 cents more than in March last year.

Two Killed Near Lamesa

LAMESA, Tex. (AP) — A two-car collision near Lamesa on the South Plains killed an elderly couple and injured an El Paso man last Tuesday. Killed were Horatio Hardage, 67, and his wife, Emily Belle Hardage, 68 both of Lamesa. The driver of the other car, Avalino Ortiz of El Paso, was reported in satisfactory condition.

Hart Challenges US War Interest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Declaring "truth has suffered enough," a Senate Democratic dove and oil industry critic has challenged allegations U.S. oil interests are behind continued American involvement in Vietnam.

Michigan Sen. Philip A. Hart thus bolstered Nixon administration denial of a charge that has been promoted in recent months by Another Mother for Peace, a California-based anti-war group.

"Are the potentially rich oil leases off the coast of South Vietnam responsible for the Nixon administration's failure to get our sons out of Vietnam?" Another Mother for Peace asked last January in demanding a congressional investigation.

The question provoked new friction between the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the State Department and prompted speculation on what connection, if any, exists between the continuing war and oil off the Vietnamese coast.

Hart, who as chairman of the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee conducted hearings sharply critical of the U.S. oil industry, studied the Vietnamese oil matter.

"The articles have attracted wide attention and belief," Hart said in a speech scheduled to be given today, but postponed until Thursday. "Unfortunately they are inaccurate and misleading."

No oil has been found in or off Vietnam and no concessions granted to U.S. companies, Hart said, adding:

"It is possible that there is oil off the coast of Vietnam. But for a variety of political and economical reasons, racing to develop the potential does not presently make sense for American oil companies."

"Truth has suffered enough as this war has dragged on," Hart said. "We who criticize the war and urge our involvement be ended have been acutely aware of the role of the half-truth in Vietnam debate and have decried its use."

"This error must now be corrected," Hart said of the oil question, "to protect the effectiveness of the best antiwar tool—truth."

19 Arrested On Drug Charges

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Local, state and federal officers arrested 19 persons early today in Hidalgo County on charges involving the sale and possession of heroin, LSD and marijuana.

Those arrested were indicted Tuesday by the Hidalgo County grand jury, Dist. Atty. Oscar McInnis said. He said the arrests stemmed from a lengthy investigation by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

McInnis said Hidalgo County sheriff's officers, DPS men from the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Corpus Christi and San Antonio, Texas Rangers, U.S. Customs officers and police from seven Hidalgo County cities took part in the arrests.

Hidlago County Sheriff Claudio Castaneda said those arrested included seven from Alamo, four each from Weslaco and McAllen, three from San Juan and one each from Mission and Pharr.

Castaneda said he believes the arrests on heroin, caps and marijuana charges were the most ever made in a single day in the county. He said the arrests took place between 1 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. today.

Freed On Bond

Kenneth O. J. Rogers was charged in Justice of the Peace Court yesterday with driving while intoxicated, second offense. He was released on $1,000 bond. He was apprehended by City Police and by Highway Patrolmen Sunday.

Many Protest Calley Verdict

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reaction against the murder conviction of Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr. mounted today in campaigns to set aside the verdict, protests by public officials and formal pleas for clemency.

Those who raised their voices overwhelmingly appeared to feel that Calley had been unfairly singled out for punishment for his part in the 1968 My Lai massacre.

"I believe it's the wrong person they've convicted," said Herb Haas, a Cincinnati men's shop clerk, in a typical comment.

"But how do you convict the federal government?"

Retired Army Maj. Gen. Raymond Hufft termed the verdict a "damned shame" and recalled issuing a "no prisoners" order himself as a lieutenant colonel during World War II.

"We just didn't have time to corral 'em, time to disarm 'em, and time to transport 'em to the rear," Hufft said Tuesday in New Orleans. "We shot everything that moved."

He said he rescinded the order when the area along the Rhine River was taken, but added: "If the Germans had won, I would have been on trial at Nuernberg instead of them."

Throughout the country, newspapers and radio and television stations reported receiving numbers of calls from citizens who said they wanted to express their opinion. Most said they opposed the verdict.

U.S. Rep. William L. Dickenson, R-Ala., said in a House speech that he had sent a telegram to the President asking that he pardon Calley. A resolution backing the petition was to be introduced in the Alabama Legislature.

A similar motion in the Mississippi Senate was sent to the Rules Committee for study after several lawmakers objected that it would not benefit Calley or the country to show that the nation is divided.

Hundreds of telegrams were sent to Ft. Benning to the jurors who will not see them until they complete deliberations. All but one supported the lieutenant. The one, from Hawthorne, N.Y., said, "Hang Calley."

Two men, both veterans of World War II and Korea, turned themselves in to Cushing, Okla., police for what they said were war crimes. They were locked up at their request, then released when police said they had no jurisdiction.

"We shot up villages under orders," said Stanley Gernter, a former Marine master sergeant, now manager of a discount store, "We feel like if this man is guilty then he is guilty for the same things we did."

Richard Whalen, a former Army sergeant, said, "If Calley is guilty so are the thousands of pilots who have dropped bombs in past wars killing civilians."

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap

Minor damage resulted from a two-car collison at Twenty-fifth Street and Avenue O at 3:50 p.m. Tuesday.

Involved were the 1970 Model Rambler of Debbie Jean Williams, Route 3, and the 1969 Model Chevrolet of Ofelia Rios, 3010 Avenue E.

Officer Brian Blair investigated the mishap.

RANCH HEADQUARTERS DAY — Tuesday the Ranch Headquarters Association was hosts to a large number of guests at the art exhibit of the Cowboy Hall of Fame which is on exhibit at the Scurry County Coliseum. The art exhibit was brought here by the Diamond M Foundation. Mrs. Elizabeth Connell (left) is serving Wallace Jones cake and Mrs. Dewey Odom is serving coffee. They are all members of the Association. The serving table was covered with a beautiful calico print table cloth and held an antique biscuit warmer filled with old fashioned tea cakes and an antique desert holder containing cake. A lovely arrangement of spring flowers centered the table.

Law Students To Have Internship Program

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors learn to become doctors through internships. Now, law students are learning the same way in Houston, performing duties just short of practicing law.

The internship program, called the first of its kind in Texas, was initiated in January by South Texas College of Law, District Atty. Carol S. Vance and two Houston defense attorneys.

"They plan," explained Garland R. Walker, South Texas law dean, "is to bridge the gap between the academic classroom world and the actual practice of criminal law."

Walker said six senior students are in the program, four of them in Vance's office and two who work with criminal defense lawyers.

The interns, who receive two credit hours for the program, work several days a week with the lawyers, assisting in pretrial investigation, helping to interview witnesses, planning courtroom strategy and sitting in at the trial.

During the trial, the interns aren't permitted to speak but do participate in all conferences and discuss points with the attorneys on their side.

Dean Walker said civil law internships will be offered to 30 of the 776 students enrolled at the downtown law school.

He said students will be placed in some of the top civil law firms in Houston to study under practicing attorneys.

"It won't be like a legal aid clinic," said faculty member John F. Ensle who co-ordinates the civil program. "Their experience will come in an efficient law office...where there is a little bit more reality than a moot court setting.

POLYNESIAN CHERRY SAUCE

A spanking-new recipe for maraschino-cherry fans.

1 jar—4 ounces—red maraschino cherries
½ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 can—8½ ounces—crushed pineapple
¼ cup finely chopped drained preserved kumquats
1½ teaspoons each butter and lemon juice
¼ teaspoon vanilla
Chopped macadamia nuts or flaked coconut, if desired

Drain cherries, reserving syrup. Sliver cherries. Add enough pineapple juice to cherry syrup to measure ¾ cup. In a small saucepan blend sugar and cornstarch; stir in syrup mixture.

Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils ½ minute or is thickened and clear. Add cherries, undrained pineapple, kumquats, butter, lemon juice and vanilla. Stir over low heat until butter melts. Serve warm or cold over ice cream. If used, sprinkle with macadamia nuts.

By JOHN WOODFIELD
Associated Press Writer

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — A genuine Hogarth it was not, but the wife of Maryland's governor didn't care one whit.

"All I know is that it's magnificent," Mrs. Marvin Mandel said as she unveiled the huge tableau of Horatio Sharpe, an early Marlyland governor, and his family in the stately dining room of the governor's mansion.

"I loved it right from the start," Mrs. Mandel said. "Then when they came here all excited and told me it was a genuine Hogarth, I didn't want to say 'who's he?'"

The story began some months ago when Mrs. Mandel asked that the Sharpe portrait be refinished.

Mrs. William Preston Lane, herself a former Maryland First Lady who had donated the painting to the state in 1951, agreed to pay half the cost.

Mrs. Lane had purchased the portrait from a Boston gallery in 1950 for $6,500, with the understanding it was done by a minor English artist, Gawen Hamilton, in 1753.

But when the painting was shipped to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., for restoration, examination showed a label on the back bearing the inscription, "By William Hogarth," a famous English artist of the 18th century.

Accepting this as official authentication, state officials made elaborate preparations.

They had a brass plaque inscribed with Hogarth's name. Invitations were issued to the state's four other living first ladies to attend the official unveiling and insurance was taken out in the amount of $300,000.

But then, a few days before the big event, two other art experts told Governor and Mrs. Mandel the painting was not a Hogarth, but a Hamilton after all. So the plaque was discarded and the insurance policy reduced by $100,000.

At the unveiling, which went off on schedule, Mrs. Mandel was not disappointed.

"Have you ever liked something just for what it is?" she asked afterward. "That's just the way I feel about this painting."

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS....

Standard Data Is Often Misinterpreted

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The collapse of the Penn Central Co. occurred "under the noses of the largest concentration of financial and business writers in the world," said Rep. Wright Patman, suggesting that they didn't smell a thing.

This observation by the chairman of the House Banking Committee may require some qualification because some faint scents were picked up, but it cannot be dismissed either because it is not completely false.

It also raises questions about the character and availability of the raw materials of reportage.

So complex are modern financing and accounting techniques that even public accountants have been known to badly misinterpret what was placed before them.

As Patman stated, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission, relying on standard data, also "failed the public miserably." And many financial men, relying on standard data, misled other financiers.

Dun & Bradstreet, for example rated Penn Central a prime investment just weeks before the collapse. And Goldman, Sachs & Co., which marketed millions in Penn Central notes, said it believed one month before the collapse that the company was sound.

"There was no adverse news at the time," said Robert Wilson, partner in charge of commercial paper. "The last quarter of 1969 and the first quarter of 1970 showed an earnings loss," he said, "but [illegible] that against it being the large[illegible] railroad in the world."

Wilson perhaps succu[illegible] to the same weakness sometimes attributed to the financial press, which is that big business is held to be sacrosanct, that its surface statements are always correct and according to form, that its word is to be taken uncritically as gospel. It is a weakness shared widely.

Sufferers of the weakness, among others besides the press, include the regulatory agencies, accountants, commercial paper dealers and the rating firms that evaluated the railroad's notes as a prime investment medium.

Many inside the Penn Central didn't know what really was going on, specifically some directors, as well as the financial officers of other companies who purchased Penn Central paper.

Many companies that uncritically snapped up Penn Central commercial paper, or IOUs, were convinced that somebody else had looked into the value of such paper, and so they read only the standard reports on the company.

Some of these purchasers, shocked and chagrined, now are suing the dealers, claiming they were misinformed or improperly informed.

The dealers claim they have little obligation other than to present all available information and that, furthermore, all purchasers of commercial paper have equal access to the facts on their own.

California Is Challenged

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans are tired of Californians trying to claim the first woman president of a state medical society.

Texas Medical Association files show that Dr. Roberta Fenlon, San Francisco, recently elected president of the California Medical Association, actually is at least the fourth woman physician to hold such a job.

TMA records show that Dr. Evelyn F. Frisbie was president of the New Mexico Medical Society in 1915-16, Dr. Leslie S. Kent was president of the Oregon Medical Association in 1947-48 and Dr. May Owen was the first woman president of the Texas Medical Association in 1960-61.

Negro Dropout Ratio Decreases

DALLAS (AP) — Three predominantly black high schools in Dallas-Lincoln Pinkston and Franklin Roosevelt—are reporting a significant decrease in pupil dropouts this year as compared with the 1969-70 school year.

On the other hand, predominantly white Sunset High recorded the highest dropout rate during the fall semester with 1[illegible] pupils leaving school.

The statistics are from documents filed by the Dallas Independent School District in answer to a pending federal court integration suit.

School officials credit new community guidance centers located in many black schools with helping to lower the dropout figure. About 600 Anglo high school pupils, 250 blacks and 70 Mexican-Americans left classes during the fall semester.

Name Change Is Authorized

DALLAS (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has authorized Air Freight, Inc., to change its name to Santa Fe Freight Co.

Authority to change the name was sought to better identify its activities as a part of Santa Fe's overall transportation sales effort.

Santa Fe was authorized to acquire the air freight forwarder in October 1970. The company has agencies in all the states as well as foreign countries throughout the world, and is involved in expediting package shipments or volume consolidations.

Junior Editors Quiz on SCIENCE

QUESTION: Since plants give off oxygen, and Eskimos have no plants, how can the Eskimos breathe?

* * * *

ANSWER: Before we start pitying the poor gasping Eskimos let's remember a few important facts. First, upper left, our fortunate earth is surrounded by a fine layer of air, (1). This is about 600 miles thick and 21 percent of it is oxygen. The air blows around, sometimes driven by winds moved also by the rotation of the earth — so it's air is available to all parts of our friendly little globe. Another thing: Eskimo-land is by no means entirely devoid of plant life. Tiny plants swarm in the northern sea; we have drawn an arrow going up from a northern ocean in which an Eskimo is hunting walrus in his kayak. When you realize that oxygen makes up eight ninths of the weight of water, and that water is constantly being evaporated (2), you'll breathe more easily by realizing the Eskimo is breathing easily, too.

Tribute To Middle Age Overdue

Middle age, like marriage, is an honorable estate.

Why, then, doesn't somebody pay it honor?

Whoever blew a bugle for middle age? Whoever marched in a parade for it? Whoever fired even a one-gun salute for middle age? Whoever issued a stamp in its honor?

Who did? Nobody did. But it is high time somebody did.

This country is always looking for something to celebrate, and since there doesn't seem to be anything else on the horizon right now worth celebrating, why not hold a celebration for good old middle age?

A tribute to middle age, which has long been made ~~noteworthy more by its aches~~ than its paeans, is long overdue.

"For Pete's sake, why should anybody be honored just because he is middle aged," some may grumble.

To which there is only one sensible rejoinder: "Well, for Pete's sake, why not? Can you think of a better reason?"

Reaching middle age in America is a feat, and surviving are a miracle. The tough years are those between 40 and 65, when middle age waxes and wanes, flowers and fades.

No period of life is more unpopular—either among the masses or the classes. Nobody looks forward to middle age, and most people are more than halfway through it before they will even admit to themselves that they have stepped into it.

The U.S. middle-ager is the anonymous martyr of our time. The elderly regard him as still an upstart, and the teen-ager looks upon him as a mortal enemy because to him he is the voice of caution.

He does most of the nation's work, most of its worrying, and pays most of its taxes. His wife, his kids, and his Uncle Sam all turn to him for support-and all take him for granted. He is goaded like a donkey until retirement, when he is turned out to pasture at half fodder and forgotten.

Should this faithful servant of mankind trudge into the darkling dusk without accolade? If homage is due him—and it is—how should that homage be paid?

There are several possibilities:

Couldn't we reduce National Pickle Week to six days and declare the seventh National Middle-ager Day? Then it would become the duty of every younger man to take to lunch the middle-ager whose job he is trying to get.

How about listening to a middle-ager at least once a month? Nobody listens to one now—except when he's talking to himself.

How about everybody getting off the middle-agers' back for a while and let him lift his head and walk upright just once?

Grand Jury Will Wait

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge ruled Tuesday that a grand jury in Buffalo, N.Y., will have to wait until summer to question the owner of the Houston Astros.

Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Honan of New York's Erie County asked Judge Joe Guarino to issue subpoenaes for Judge Roy Hofheinz, owner of the Astros, and four other Houston men to appear in Buffalo. The grand jury there is looking into negotiations surrounding a proposed domed stadium for Buffalo.

Guarino refused to hold a hearing on the matter after a lawyer for three of the men, State Rep. Jack Ogg, requested a continuance on the grounds that he was busy in the Texas Legislature.

Acting under a law which makes such postponements mandatory, Guarino put off the hearing on the subpoenaes until July 23.

Besides Hofheinz, Honan sought subpoenaes for William McDonald, an associate of Hofheinz, and three architects —Robert Minchew, James Mueller and Ralph A. Anderson Jr.

Hofheinz was a principal in a corporation which sought to lease a domed stadium if it was built by Erie County. The three architects worked on designs for the stadium.

Two Erie County legislators were indicted by a federal grand jury after the project was scrapped early this year. They were accused of taking money to influence their votes on the project.

Lawyers for the five Texans indicated all would have been willing to give sworn depositions concerning anything they knew about the stadium, or even to fly there at their own expense to testify voluntarily.

Honan insisted, however, that Guarino issue a subpoena for each. He said the five had not been asked to appear voluntarily but a subpoena "is an invitation."

"I don't understand a subpoena to be an invitation—it's a demand," said W. Erwin James, a lawyer for Hofheinz and McDonald.

"The whole thing appears to be political," James said. He asserted that Erie County's Dist. Atty. Michael Dillon was using the investigation to further his own political career.

Haywood To Seattle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In ways known only to those involved, the contract dispute of Spencer Haywood has been untangled, and the young basketball star will return next season as the undisputed property of the Seattle SuperSonics.

A breach of contract suit brought by Haywood's former club, the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association, was settled out of court Tuesday. U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson dismissed a federal jury that was hearing the case.

The Rockets had been demanding that Haywood live up to a $1.9 million contract he signed last year after winning Most Valuable Player honors the previous ABA season.

It was expected that a settlement would involve some concession to Denver, but attorneys for both sides have refused to discuss details, as has the usually voluble Sam Schulman, owner of the SuperSonics.

Schulman, who last week was permitted by National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy to keep Haywood in exchange for a $200,000 "fine," said only that the settlement was "mutually satisfactory."

Under the settlement, Haywood is released from all contract obligations to Denver.

The 6-foot-9 Haywood, the star of the 1968 U.S. Olympic team, signed with Denver as a hardship case during his sophomore year at the University of Detroit. After one season, he jumped to Seattle, contending his contract had been misrepresented.

Though the signing violated a[illegible] against signing a [illegible] class has [illegible]eattle was [illegible]wood, first [illegible] Supreme Court deci[illegible] and eventually, by Kennedy's ruling last week.

Stars Skip Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus are skipping the $190,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament. And, reluctantly, so is singer Glen Campbell.

Palmer, the season's leading money winner with almost $100,000, and Nicklaus, the current PGA and British Open champion, are—as scheduled—taking time off to prepare for next week's Masters.

Pittsburgh, Texas Win ABA Tilts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Brisker knew it was his last game of the season in the American Basketball Association. He got in his points before the clock ran out.

Brisker, the Pittsburgh Condors' scoring leader, led his team to a 149-132 victory over the Kentucky Colonels Tuesday night with 42 points. He scored 31 of his totals in the second half.

The Condors, fifth in the ABA East, aren't included in the league's eight-team playoff system, so Brisker and teammates ended their season against Kentucky, which made the playoffs.

Dan Issel led the Colonels with a 51-point output.

In other ABA games, Carolina defeated Indiana 114-112; Texas toppled Memphis 99-86; Utah downed the New York Nets 115-97; and Denver beat Virginia 129-119. The ABA regular season ends tonight.

Bob Verga scored 29 points and Larry Miller 27 for Carolina, another non-playoff team. Indiana Coach Bob Leonard rested the starters on his ABA West champion team. Don Sidke hit 28 and Rick Mount 22 for the Pacers.

The Cougars led most of the game before the Pacers pulled within one-point—111-110—with 25 seconds remaining. Miller got the winning margin 10 seconds later with two foul shots.

Texas ripped off 10 straight points at the start of the last quarter as it surged to victory over Memphis. The Chaps had been trailing by four at that point.

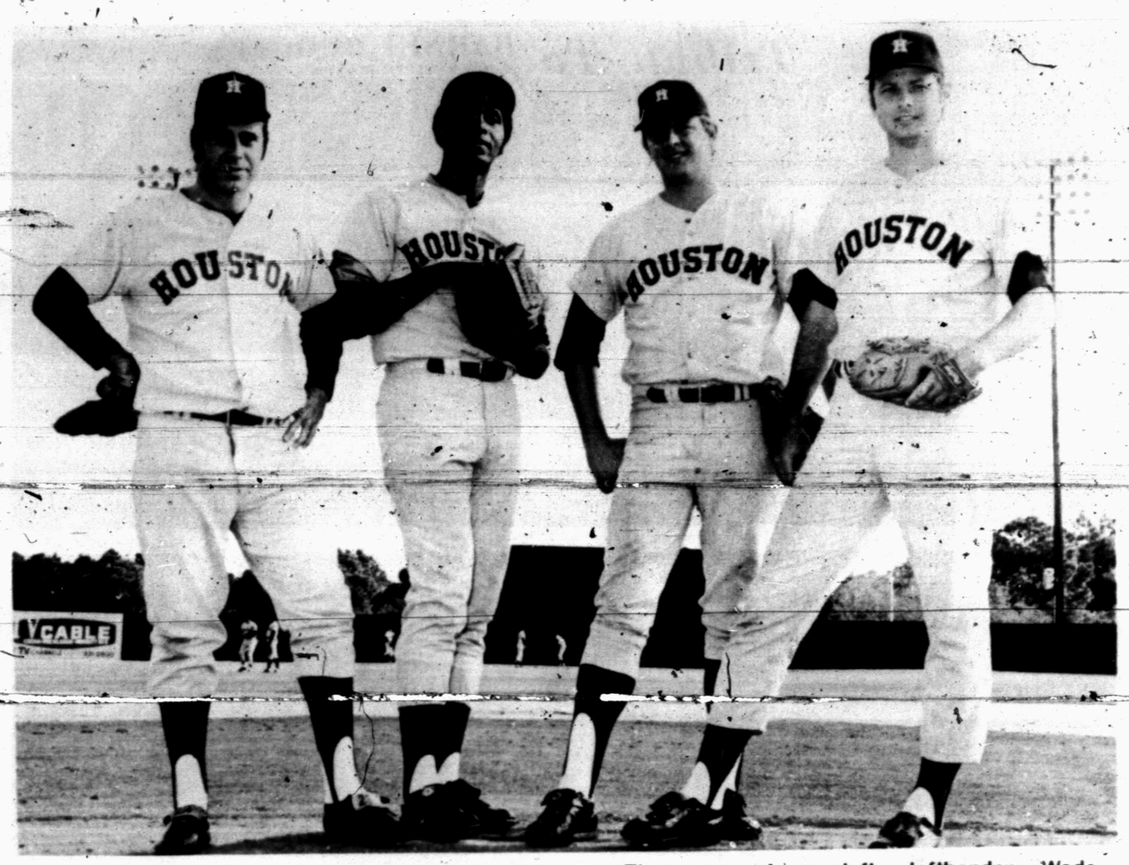
Gene Moore led the winners with 21 points and 28 rebounds while Levern Tart added 23 points. Charlie Williams scored 33 points for the Pros.

Utah ended its regular season with a 38-point explosion in the final quarter. The Stars outscored New York 17-2 in the first 4½ minutes and held a 10-point lead for most of the contest. Rick Barry was high scorer for the Nets with 28 points while Ron Boone had 23 for the Stars.

Denver's victory kept the team eligible for the final playoff spot in the Western Division. It is tied with Texas with 29-54 records.

Ralph Simpson got 28 points and Julius Keye 28 rebounds for the Rockets. Ray Scott led the Squires with 20 points.

In the National Basketball Association playoffs New York beat Atlanta 113-107, Milwaukee tripped San Francisco 114-102, Baltimore whipped Philadelphia 120-105 and Chicago turned back Los Angeles 112-102.



THE BIG FOUR — The Astros are relying heavily on this foursome to be starting pitchers in the 1971 baseball season, opening in the Astrodome on April 5. They are, from left, lefthander Wade Blasingame, and righthanders Don Wilson, Larry Dierker and Jack Billingham.

Hawks, Warriors, 76ers All Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's good reason to believe that, by Thursday night, Atlanta's Hawks, San Francisco's Warriors and the Philadelphia 76ers will feel like April fools.

All three teams slipped within one game of elimination from the National Basketball Association playoffs Tuesday night, the Hawks losing 113-107 to New York, the Warriors falling 114-102 to Milwaukee and the 76ers bowing 120-105 to Baltimore.

Only one of the four series is still a horse race—or, more accurately, a Bull race. Chicago's Bulls charged back to even their series with Los Angeles at two games apiece, ripping the Lakers 112-102.

In the American Basketball Association, still in regular-season play, Pittsburgh walloped Kentucky 149-132, Texas mauled Memphis 99-86, Carolina nipped Indiana 114-112, Utah bounced New York 115-97 and Denver dumped Virginia 129-119.

After taking today off, all four series resume action April Fool's Night and, by evening's end the Eastern Conference finalists may well be known.

New York's defending champion Knicks, leading Atlanta three games to one in their best-of-seven semifinal, will go for the clincher at home in Madison Square Garden.

And the Bullets, who went the full seven before losing in last year's post-season play to the Knicks, will take their 3-1 series lead into their Civic Arena with a chance to eliminate the 76ers and take another shot at the New Yorkers.

It'll be anything but a happy homecoming for the Warriors. They haven't been able to beat the Bucks all year and trail 3-0 in their Western Conference series.

But the Lakers will no doubt be overjoyed to get back to Los Angeles. They won their first two games in the Forum before dropping a pair in the Bulls' pen.

Walt Frazier led New York with 26 points but it was five successive free throws by Willis Reed and Dick Barnett that pulled the Knicks comfortably away from a 101-101 deadlock in the closing minutes. Lou Hudson had 30 for Atlanta.

The Warriors scrambled back from a 15-point deficit to within a point of Milwaukee at 94-93.

But San Francisco center Nate Thurmond threw away one pass and teammate Jeff Mullins lost another and the Bucks, converting both miscues into points, were safely ahead once again.

As in the earlier games the Warriors stayed close in the early stages only to fall far behind. They were down by just two points after one period but at the half the Bucks led 55-42. Lew Alcindor of Milwaukee topped all scorers with 33. Jerry Lucas had 25 for San Francisco.

Earl "The Pearl" Monroe, clicked for nine points in the final 1:46 of the first half that enabled Baltimore to climb to a 62-62 intermission deadlock and the Bullets just kept climbing the rest of the way, leading the 76ers by a substantial 98-81 after three periods.

Jack Marin had 15 of his game-high 27 points for Baltimore in the last period. Archie Clark had 24 for Philadelphia.

Bob Love connected on 17 of his 36 points in the last period for the Bulls, who trailed the Lakers 83-78 going into the crucial quarter. He hit 11 straight Chicago points that opened a 93-89 margin to 104-93.

Wilt Chamberlain intimidated the Bulls early as Los Angeles surged to a 14-2 lead but, after going without a basket for nearly half the opening quarter, Chicago caught fire and tied it at 16-16. Gail Goodrich led the losers with 32 points.

Star, Cougar Tempers Flare

By JIM CHURCH

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Relations between the Utah Stars and Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association were at the boiling point today after the Cougars signed the Stars' No. 1 draft choice, All-American 7-footer Jim McDaniels of Western Kentucky.

"Jim McDaniels will not play for anybody other than the Utah Stars," declared an angered Vince Boryla, the Stars' general manager.

"We played by the rules," he said. "We want McDaniels and will do whatever necessary to get him."

Boryla, visibly shaken, told a sportswriters' luncheon Tuesday that McDaniels had jumped to Carolina. A few minutes later, in Greensboro, N.C., it was announced that McDaniels had signed a multi-year contract with the Cougars. No terms were announced.

Boryla, who traded Donnie Freeman and Wayne Hightower to Texas for Ron Boone and Glenn Combs, plus the draft rights to McDaniels, said it was a personal services contract.

"He can do anything for Carolina," Boryla said, slamming his hand on a table, "but he will not play basketball for them."

McDaniels averaged 27.8 points and 10.5 rebounds a game and led Western Kentucky to third place in the NCAA playoffs. He was drafted by Seattle of the National Basketball Association in the second round.

Carolina's No. 1 choice had been another 7-footer, Elmore Smith of Kentucky State.

Other ABA owners had urged him to let Carolina have McDaniels for the good of the league, Boryla said, "but the other owners don't care about us."

Texas Relays Set April 2--3

AUSTIN (AP)—World record holders Randy Matson, Curtis Mills and Ralph Mann will compete in the Texas Relays April 2-3, the first major outdoor track meet of the year.

Matson, a former Texas A&M star who appears to be aiming for the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, set the world shot put record of 71 feet 5½ inches in 1967.

Talent Abounds In Oriole Camp

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "It wasn't an outstanding year for him," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "it was a real good year by normal standards. But it's the type year we expect from him."

The subject of Weaver's words was Boog Powell, the hulking 6-foot-4, 250-pound first baseman who hit .297 with 35 home runs and 114 runs batted in, leading the Orioles to the American League pennant and world championship while annexing the MVP crown for himself.

And it's typical of the Orioles' collection of talent that Weaver doesn't consider the year Powell put together in 1970 outstanding. But, then, maybe Weaver is taking a little off his pitch in order to add some psychological punch to Baltimore's drive for a third consecutive pennant.

For Weaver also hangs out a dynasty shingle for the Orioles to grab at.

"Three pennants in five years is pretty close to a dynasty," he says. "If we get another one or two pennants out of the next three years, I'd say you'd have to call us a dynasty."

That the Orioles are capable of grabbing that shingle seems obvious from a reading of their roster, despite the fact that age could become a factor with slugging outfielder Frank Robinson 36 and third baseman Brooks Robinson, outfielder Don Buford and 24-game winner Mike Cuellar 34.

But there are youngsters just waiting to get a shot if one of the aging stars falters and the Orioles moved to bolster their pitching with the addition of Pat Dobson, a 14-game winner, from San Diego and Grant Jackson from Philadelphia.

If there's any team in the American League looking to topple the Orioles this is the talent they're competing against:

—Powell, who at 30 is in his prime.

—Frank Robinson, who hit .306 with 25 homers and 78 runs batted in.

—Brooks Robinson, who hit .279 with 18 homers and 94 RBI.

—Outfielders Buford and Paul Blair, who collected 17 and 18 homers, respectively.

—Outfielder Merv Rettenmund, who plays when one of the others doesn't and led the Orioles in hitting with a .322 average in 109 games.

—Three pitchers who were 20-game winners—Cuellar, Dave McNally and Jim Palmer.

—Several youngsters whose talents would indicate they could play regularly for other clubs.

Included among those is catcher John Oates, back after a year's military duty to challenge light-hitting Elrod Hendricks and Andy Etchebarren behind the plate, the one position where the Orioles might need help.

Also around are outfielder Curt Motton and infielder Bob Grich, who swung away at a .383 clip with Rochester.

It's doubtful, however, that they can break in with an infield of Powell, second baseman Dave Johnson, shortstop Mark Belanger and Brooks Robinson and an outfield of Buford, Blair and Frank Robinson, along with Rettenmund.

If there's any question about the Orioles it's about their pitching. Despite three 20-game winners, only Palmer's earned run average was below 3.00. Palmer had a 2.71 with McNally 3.22 and Cuellar 3.47. Dobson's addition should help.

The bullpen appears strong with Pete Richert coming off a year in which he had a 1.96 ERA.

All that is very likely the reason Weaver says flatly:

"I don't see any holes."

Maybe it's because there aren't any.

The most inventive presidents were George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

Big League 9's Trade

The Detroit Tigers, shooting for the top of the American League's East Division, and the Chicago White Sox, trying to avoid the bottom of the West, have both completed their second trade in as many days as baseball's spring training season steams toward its completion.

The Tigers, searching for more pitching in the wake of the fractured skull suffered by Joe Coleman last weekend, acquired veteran Dean Chance and promising Bill Denehy from the New York Mets in exchange for pitcher Jerry Robertson.

That trade came 24 hours after Detroit had acquired discontented Bill Zepp from Minnesota for infielder Mike Adams and a player to be named.

Meanwhile, the Sox, who had swapped utilitymen with Washington on Monday, sending Tom McCraw for Ed Stroud, came up with a multi-player swap Tuesday. Chicago sent catcher Duane Josephson and pitcher Danny Murphy to Boston for reliever Vicente Romo and first baseman Tony Muser.

In other player moves, the Red Sox optioned outfielder Farwis Tatum and pitcher Jim Lonborg, a 22-game winner in 1967 to Louisville of the International League. Cleveland cut pitchers Mike Paul and Ed Farmer and the New York Mets optioned pitchers Jon Matlack and Jim Bibby, catcher Randy Bobb and utilityman Mike Jorgenson.

BoSox Get Catcher

After acquiring Josephson in a deal Tuesday, Boston General Manager Dick O'Connell virtually confirmed reports that the Red Sox are trying to get big Frank Howard from the Washington Senators.

"I've been on the phone with Bob Short at least once a week since last October," O'Connell said. "He wants players and cash. I'll continue to talk with him."

Short, owner of the Senators, admittedly has "the shorts" as far as his baseball club goes. He has cited big operating losses while trying to obtain contract concessions for games at Washington's Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

Despite his fielding deficiencies, Howard would be welcome addition to the Red Sox as cleanup hitter behind three-time American League batting champion Carl Yastrzemski.

The 6-foot-7, 285-pound slugger hit 44 homers last year and is a virtual destroyer in Boston's Fenway Park with its chummy left field wall.

The Red Sox reportedly have offered at least a couple of players, including first baseman George Scott, and a pot of cash for Howard. Some reports have Short demanding as much as $300,000 as well as the players.

Josephson, 28, a right-handed hitter whose .316 average included a .440 mark against the Red Sox last year, will step in immediately as Boston's No. 1 catcher. He moves ahead of Don Pavletich, Tom Satriano and Bob Montgomery, one of whom will head elsewhere.

Neumann In All-Star Tilt

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The East-West Senior All-American Basketball Classic here Thursday will feature a sophomore—Ole Miss star Johnny Neumann.

Neumann led the nation in scoring last season averaging 40.1 points per game and last week announced that he was dropping out of school to sign with the Memphis Pros of the American Basketball Association.

He will play on the East team coached by former St. Louis Hawks' star Bob Pettit.

Boyd Is Going Back To Alpine

SWEETWATER—Joe Boyd, head football coach and athletic director at Sweetwater High School for the past five years, has resigned to return to Alpine, where he coached before taking the job in Sweetwater.

In the past five years, his Sweetwater teams have won 31 games, while losing 18 and tying one.

He will resume his duties at Alpine High School at a salary of $11,800 per year. Alpine is in District 6AA.

Study Suggests Antitrust Laws Hindering Efforts

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A new petroleum industry study suggests some antitrust laws may be hindering maximum efforts to combat environmental problems.

It suggests the White House clarify the extent companies may cooperate with each other and, if necessary, seek further legislation that would authorize the most effective means of dealing with environmental problems.

The two-volume report of the National Petroleum Council's special committee on environmental conservation says antitrust laws properly prohibit conspiracy or collusive action by competitors in matters affecting commerce and public economic interests.

However, to achieve the goal of improving the environment, in a few situations it may be that the best interests of society would be to exchange information on a voluntary basis or jointly take actions regarding the modification of products or procedures in the public interest," the report says.

"For example, where environmental hazards exist, such cooperation may be the most feasible method to shorten the time for correction."

In its section on water and land, the report says the potential hazard of oil spills can be minimized but cannot be entirely eliminated. It suggests specific well-staffed and well-equipped oil spill control centers are needed and should be established in strategic areas of high pollution potential.

"Methods of meeting this need are under study by the petroleum industry and substantial progress is being made in some geographical areas," the report says.

It acknowledges that technology is not presently available to contain major oil spills under conditions of strong currents or heavy seas, adding that little effective attainment or recovery is possible today at sea where wave heights exceed three feet or surface currents exceed one knot.

In addition to saying much research is needed on containment and recovery methods at sea, the report calls for additional research on off-loading tankers at sea in emergency situations, improved identification of oils so as to permit proper identification of sources of pollution, and advance techniques for rapid and efficient beach and shoreline cleanup and restoration.

The report defines the role of government as that of ascertaining the effects of pollutants, prescribing workable standards of air, water and land quality to be maintained, and, in general, to leave to private initiative the means whereby the standards will be achieved.

"The United States should not pursue a policy of precluding or delaying exploration and development of the potential petroleum resources of its submerged continental margins," the report says.

"It is a fundamental responsibility of government, after consultation with the petroleum industry, to update periodically the existing regulations for offshore drilling and production."

The report says conflicting jurisdiction and authority among and within governments hamper effective control and enforcement and should be effectively resolved.

Present laws, the report says, divide jurisdiction and authority on offshore oil spills among several federal agencies.

"States of the union as well as other nations are also involved in this matter," the report said.

The council is an industry advisory body to the secretary of the interior.

Downed Pilot Treks To Safety

SAIGON (AP) — A 21-year-old helicopter pilot shot down in Cambodia trekked four days through an enemy base area to safety, the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division said today.

CWO Craig J. Howser of Connersville, Ind., was flying his OH1 Scout helicopter at treetop level over Kratie Province on March 10, searching for the enemy.

There was a burst of ground fire, "I heard an explosion and felt [redacted] the aircraft," Howser said.

The little chopper hit the bank of a stream, slipped under water and exploded. Howser worked his way out of his safety harness, got out of the burning craft and up to the surface.

Howser said he reached the south bank of the stream as enemy troops fired from the north bank at the Cobra helicopter gunship patrolling with him. It was maneuvering overhead, drawing fire away from the downed Scout.

When the shooting stopped, Howser found he had a .38-caliber revolver, a flare gun, buck knife and survival compass. He knew he was 12 to 18 miles north-northwest of the Cambodian town of Snuol, "and if I could find Highway 13 and follow it, I'd be alright."

He made less than a mile through the jungle the first day, started again at dawn and walked until noon the second day. He came to a pool of stagnant water and took his first drink since the crash, then slept near the water that night.

He kept on walking the third day and passed a number of buildings where North Vietnamese supplies and rice were stored, "lucky for me they were unoccupied."

He climbed a hill that night, camouflaged himself and tried to sleep. During the night he heard what he thought were three enemy soldiers walking past, but they didn't see him.

The morning of the fourth day, he found Highway 13 and decided to follow it.

"That was dangerous in itself," he said, "but I was extremely tired." Then at a rubber plantation just down the highway, he found a parallel dirt road and took that.

Howser said he spotted two Cambodians on bicycles, stopped them and borrowed one of the bikes. He rode a short distance and came to a South Vietnamese soldier who took him to a military compound. An American helicopter flew in and took the weary pilot back to Vietnam.

Thurmonds Have Daughter

GREENWOOD, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, the 68-year-old Republican from South Carolina, peeked through the window of the hospital nursery at his one-hour-old daughter and said, "We just may have some more, several more."

Thurmond and his 24-year-old wife Nancy, 1966 South Carolina beauty queen, became parents Tuesday afternoon of a 7-pound, 11-ounce daughter.

Physicians said the mother and child were "doing fine." The senator said he "really wasn't too nervous" over the birth of his first child.

Thurmond stood with a group of newsmen as he watched his daughter cry and fidget.

"I believe she's staging a filibuster," he said, Thurmond holds the record for the Senate's longest filibuster — 24 hours, 18 minutes.

The balding senator quipped that "she has more hair now than I have."

Later, he said:

"We believe the baby will add more happiness to our already happy marriage. I'm a pretty proud father."

The baby girl arrived about three hours after Mrs. Thurmond was admitted to Self-Memorial Hospital.

Thurmond plans to return to Washington today. His wife will remain in the hospital for several days and then spend some time at their Aiken, S.C., home.

Thurmond and the former Nancy Moore were married Dec. 22, 1968. It was her first marriage. His first wife died in 1960 after 12 years of marriage.

Normal temperature of a dog is usually about 101 degrees.

Transit Career Outlook Bright

(2nd of 3 parts)

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Urban mass transit looks like a Cinderella career field of the 1970s. The Federal government recently started the ball rolling by voting billions of aid dollars through the 1970 Urban Mass Transportation Assistance Act. If local governments and private enterprise do their share to solve urban transportation problems, thousands of good jobs will be available during the 1970s -- some immediately.

Although the crash effort is to save existing systems and keep transit companies from cutting off public service by going out of business, plans to solve problems of the future are exciting. In a recent speech to transportation specialists, Carlos C. Villarreal, Administrator of the US Department of Transportation's Urban Mass Transportation Administration, talked about research and development projects:

"We'll be working within the next year or two to come up with a noiseless, non-polluting bus engine . . . and a steam-operated bus engine . . . new types and sizes of buses as well as newly designed buses . . . and dial-a-ride operations, which will allow the commuter to telephone for neighborhood shuttle bus service to major rapid transit lines.

"We are working on standards and specifications for completely new rail commuter and subway cars. There'll be a 150 m.p.h. tracked air cushion vehicle near Washington, D.C. and in Los Angeles -- the feasibility work is nearly complete. The Department of Transportation is starting to build a test track at Pueblo, Colo., for all types of new transit equipment, including a 300 m.p.h. tracked air cushion vehicle test car. We have started a project at West Virginia University to build an automated circulation and distribution system, known as a 'people mover.' " (A people mover is an automated distribution system which can be thought of as functioning like a horizontal elevator -- moving walkways, moving chairs, or small cars, etc.)

WHERE THE JOBS ARE. The kinds of workers employed in urban mass transit range from executives and engineers to technicians and clerical personnel. Among the chief types of employers:

(1) EQUIPMENT MANUFACTURERS, which produce such products as transit vehicles, emission-control devices, automatic fare collection systems, propulsion systems, brakes, computer systems and vehicle seats. Examples are: General Steel Industries, Rohr Corp., Pullman Inc., General Electric, Westinghouse Air Brake Co., Westinghouse Electric, General Signal Co., IBM, Garrett AiResearch and General Motors. This is not to say that these particular firms are hiring at the moment, but to illustrate the types of employers to which you can apply. For job-lead ideas . . .

A listing of equipment manufacturers is contained in the "1971 ATA Directory," available for $2 from the American Transit Association, 815 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20006.

(2) CONTRACTORS. These are usually the same builders engaged in highway and public works construction. Also, many construction subcontractors hire substantial numbers of "hard-hats," technicians and engineers.

(3) PRIVATE CONSULTING ENGINEERING FIRMS. Such firms are retained by local, state, Federal and foreign governments to conduct studies and prepare plans for urban transportation systems. The challenge offered by these consulting firms is the opportunity for involvement in a variety of geographically widespread and diverse projects -- often several running concurrently. To mention just 2 project examples -- the BART system in San Francisco, and the METRO system in Washington, D.C. Jobs vary from technical to administrative. For names/addresses of consulting engineering firms specializing in urban mass transit, see "1971 ATA Directory," address above.

(4) TRANSIT SYSTEM OPERATORS. Some systems are privately owned; others are operated by local government commissions on a municipality, bi-state or regional basis. A listing of transit system operators is contained in "1971 ATA Directory," address above.

(5) GOVERNMENT AGENCIES, with urban mass transit responsibilities. Jobs are mainly administrative, liaison, and technical advising, planning, design and research. At the municipal level, jobs are often found in departments of public works, streets, urban planning or traffic engineering. At the state level, jobs may be in departments (or agencies) of transportation, urban affairs, planning or highways. There are also regional transportation and planning agencies, which encompass more than 1 state. At the Federal level, jobs are mainly for the Urban Mass Transportation Administration or the Federal Highway Administration (both are administrations of the US Department of Transportation).

(6) EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS, such as the Transportation Center of Northwestern University.

CANCER CONTROL MONTH PROCLAIMED — Mayor Bobby McCormick signes a proclamation designating April as Cancer Control Month in Snyder as Mrs. Wilton N. Jones looks on.

Carrier To Cost $765 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed 95,000-ton aircraft carrier, already scheduled to be the highest priced warship in history, is headed for a cost record of at least $765 million.

Adm Elmo R. Zumwalt, chief of naval operations, has told Congress that another year's delay in starting construction of the nation's fourth nuclear-powered carrier will add about $125 million to the cost.

A year ago, the Navy said the carrier would cost $640 million.

The Navy declines to give an updated total cost estimate, which suggests the price has jumped again and it is reluctant to talk about the total dollars involved because the figure might arouse congressional opponents.

Two other nuclear carriers of the same class, already under construction, have far outrun original Navy predictions and may get more expensive because of inflation and other factors.

The Nimitz, priced at $428 million in 1967, is now listed at $594 million, a climb of $166 million.

The Eisenhower, which was supposed to cost $510 million, is up to $616 million an increase of $106 million.

So the three Nimitz class carriers, with nuclear power plants designed to operate for 13 years without refueling, far outstrip the cost of the pioneer nuclear carrier Enterprse, a $474 million vessel.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird agrees with naval judgment that four nuclear powered carriers are required for the 1980s.

Laird told Congress "our responsibilities in the Atlantic, the Pacific, the Mediterranean and the other ocean areas will require construction of an additional nuclear powered carrier."

Cancer Crusade Is Slated In April

The Annual Scurry County Cancer Crusade will begin officially tomorrow simultaneously with observance of Cancer Control Month.

Mayor Bobby McCormick has signed a proclamation officially designating April as Cancer Control Month in the city. Earlier, Gov. Preston Smith had made a similar proclamation for the state.

The mayor's proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, the President of the United States by direction of an Act of Congress has proclaimed April as Cancer Control Month and

WHEREAS, the Governor of Texas declared April as Texas Cancer Control Month and

WHEREAS, Cancer will strike more than 50 million Americans now living if present rates prevail, and

WHEREAS, it is known that at least one out of two of every cancer patients could be saved if more people saw their physicians for early detection, diagnosis, and treatment and

WHEREAS, results of research alone can save in the future all cancer patients, and

WHEREAS, to win the final victory over cancer the American Cancer Society must intensify its efforts to bring life-saving facts to the public to improve the care of the cancer patient and to accelerate its research program

THEREFORE, I, as Mayor of Snyder, do hereby designate the month of April 1971 as

and urge all citizens to observe and participate through increased support of the American Cancer Society and by learning the facts about cancer that are vital to personal protection from this disease.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 31st day of March, 1971.

Hijacked Passengers Treated Well

HONG KONG (AP)—An American businessman aboard the Philippine airliner hijacked to Canton said Wednesday the Chinese Communists "treated us courteously. We were not treated badly in any way."

"Very few questions were asked of us," said Eldred Fewkes of Burley, Idaho, who is in business in Manila.

"They called a conference between 11 o'clock and 11:30 last night and told us we would be sent back at 10 o'clock next morning."

The passengers spent Tuesday afternoon and part of the night in the Canton airport terminal building, he said, and then were taken to a dormitory in the airport complex.

The two women passengers and the stewardesses were given separate accommodations while the men slept in rooms which had four beds each.

Tot Sleeps Through Lecture

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — Professors at Kansas Wesleyan University don't care that Scott Fisher sometimes sleeps through their lectures.

And he doesn't have to worry about missing anything because his mother or father will be taking class notes.

Scott is the 3-month-old son of Randy and Lavonne Fisher. Fisher is a senior majoring in pre-law and his wife is a speech and drama sophomore.

Scott only attends college when his parents have classes at the same time. They take turns watching him.

Stolen TV Is Returned

PARIS, Tex. (AP)—Somebody stole Dan Vanderburg's color television set from his home recently.

He called police, who found no trace of it.

The next day, Vanderburg came home to find the television set back in its place—the result either of conscience or cold feet.

On-Campus Nursery

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Incarnate Word College thinks it has a solution to the problem of mothers with small children who would like to go to college this summer: bring them along.

Incarnate Word announced the on-campus nursery school will be open daily in the morning hours this summer for children of college-bound parents.

A spokesman said the nursery school is part of the home economics department, serving as a demonstration school in early childhood development. A modestly priced babysitting service for one student is a three-credit course for another.

The program has been nicknamed "Operation Papoose" by some campus wags.

Dog For Sale?

SAN CARLOS, Calif. (AP) — An ad in the San Carlos Enquirer put it this way:

"For Sale. Nice dog. May be heard between 1 a.m.-5 a.m. Inquire next door ... "

Unlike most other deer, caribou females, as well as males, have antlers.

High Levels Of Metals Found In Waterways

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — State health departments are being alerted to an Interior Department report showing unacceptable levels of poisonous metals in more than 50 public water sources.

Interior released Tuesday results of a nationwide spot check showing dangerously high levels of arsenic or cadmium in 12 waterways used to supply public water systems. These substances are not removed by ordinary water treatment.

The department's Geological Survey, which performed the water sampling last fall, reported undesirable arsenic concentrations in more than 40 other public water sources.

Equally high levels of these and other toxic metals—lead, mercury and zinc—were found in more than a hundred water samples, taken downstream from municipal-industrial complexes, and even in a few samples from areas remote from human activity.

The survey said high levels of these metals were not widespread although the data "indicate potential problems in a few areas."

Public water sources were reported to contain unsafe levels of arsenic or cadmium at 12 locations in North Carolina, Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Louisisna, Missouri and Pennsylvania.

And more than 40 public water sources were at or above PHS-recommended limits for arsenic in 19 states.

Geological Survey's study was prompted by last year's discovery that poisonous mercury was finding its way into man's food supply through the waterways.

The survey reported concentrations of cobalt in water but there is no health standard with which to compare them.

The survey took 714 samples of water last October and November, including 154 from public water sources; 512 below municipal-industrial complexes; and 48 from remote "benchmark" sites.

Some 8 per cent of all samples contained toxic metals above health limits for drinking water, and another 22 per cent at undesirable levels. This relationship held generally true in all three categories of sample.

The report said more than 50 micrograms of arsenic or 10 of cadmium per liter of water are grounds for rejection of a public water source.

A liter is slightly more than a quart; there are 454 million micrograms in a pound.

Federalized Welfare More Costly

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith says the federal government should take over the entire welfare program, but the secretary of health, education and welfare says it's impossible at the present time.

HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson also says it would cost the nation about $30 billion a year, compared to the total of $13 billion now spent annually by local, state and federal governments.

Smith has said he felt the federal government should take over both the financing and administration of welfare.

Richardson told newsmen during a visit here Tuesday that the range of welfare benefits from state to state is "grossly uneven."

If the entire welfare system were federalized, he said, "you have to face at the outset the question of whether the federal level of benefits is at the low end of the scale, as in Texas, or at the high end of the scale as in, say, New Jersey, or somewhere in between."

He said the high end of the scale would be chosen, because otherwise there would be a federal floor "on which the states would still have to supplement the basic federal payment."

Thus it would be an expensive undertaking, he said. If the benefit level were on the New Jersey basis, for example, "the cost would be an additional $30 billion a year."

"It's obviously not feasible to undertake to do this over any very short range period," Richardson said. He added that the nation can "move in the direction of more uniform federal standards and benefits" through proposals such as those recommended by the Nixon administration.

NEW CORRECTION MACHINE — Bill Bowlin, owner and operator of Bill's Tire & Auto, 2403 Twenty-fifth Street, operates an Amermac vibration correction service machine, which cuts the high spots off the tread of a tire, making it perfectly round. This service can be performed for as low as $4 per tire on any tire. It all adds up to a smoother ride and longer life for both your tires and car. Just dial 573-9027 for prompt attention to your car repair needs.

Machine At Bowlin's Prolongs Tire's Life

Bill's Tire & Auto, 2403 Twenty-fifth Street, has a new Amermac vibration correction service machine.

A belted tire has to be rounder than the old conventional biased-ply tire," said Bill Bowlin, owner and operator of the business.

He pointed out that most rims have 2-64th to 3-64th radial runout not to mention the radial runout on the tire. Bill's experienced mechanics can check the tire on a car with a radial runout gauge to determine the amount of runout. If the runout is 5-64ths or less, the tire can be trued and made perfectly round on the Amermac correction machine. If there is more than 5-64th radial runout on the tire, then it is advisable to have it adjusted.

"We can adjust B. F. Goodrich tires on the spot," said Bowlin.

Tires with radial runout wear out faster and they wear out the suspension, causing wear on the front end. It shortens the life of the tire and the car as well as causes a rough ride.

It's easy to correct radial runout on the new Amermac vibration machine. It has a blade that acts like a lathe. It trims the high spots off of the tread, making a perfect circle out of the tire. The tire is customized to the rim. Then it is put on the car and balanced, making for a smooth ride.

"The Amermac vibration correction service can be performed for as low as $4 per tire," said Bowlin.

Bill has new and used B. F. Goodrich tires for sale at reasonable prices. Financing can be arranged.

Master Charge cards and Bank Americards are honored at Bill's Tire and Auto. The company's experienced mechanics also perform front end alignments, wheel balancing, tuneups, and work on brakes and shocks.

US Army Has Escape Clause On TV Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has the option of canceling on 24-hour notice its $10.6 million prime-time recruiting campaign if the Vietnam fighting escalates or if the United States becomes involved in another war elsewhere.

The escape clause is written into contracts with the nation's three major television networks and more than 1,200 radio stations carrying the Army's soft-sell recruiting message.

Known on Madison Avenue as a catastrophe or strike clause, "it gives the Army protection in case something drastic happens," explained Don Reath, spokesman for N.W. Ayre & Son, the Army's advertising agency.

Airlines use a similar clause to pull their ads from newspapers and broadcast stations on short notice should one of their planes crash.

"It's just good sense," said Reath. "If something drastic happens, you want your money back."

In the Army's case, the contract provides cancelation of the 13-week advertising program "upon 24 hours" notice in the event of the involvement of U.S. armed forces in a military engagement in foreign territory other than the present involvement in Indochina or in the event of a significant escalation of the Indochina involvement."

An Army spokesman said the escape clause is based on the assumption that an all-volunteer force "will go out the window" if the United States mobilizes for another war.

"There just wouldn't be any point spending millions of dollars in advertising to get men to, say, fight on the Jordan desert or against Red China if they came into Vietnam," the spokesman said. "If we're caught in a situation without enough volunteers, we'll turn to the draft."

The Army says the escape clause was N.W. Ayres' idea even though the contract describes it as "provisions set forth by the U.S. government."

"The Army didn't suggest it," Reath said. "We put it in to protect our client."

Juvenile Crimes Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate was told today continued and alarming increases in juvenile crime since the adoption of an ambitious federal program three years ago have raised questions about continuing the project.

"It is evident that the efforts of the federal government have either fallen painfully short or have been merely money down the drain," Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said in remarks prepared for the start of a two-day hearing by his Senate Judiciary subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency.

The subcommittee hopes to measure accomplishments of the 1968 Juvenile Delinquency Prevention and Control Act and determine whether it should be extended beyond its June 30 expiration date.

Bayh said violent crime by youths under the age of 18 increased 148 per cent in the 1960s and property crimes increased 85 per cent, while 50 to 80 per cent of juveniles released from correctional institutions were sent back again.

Juveniles now account for 50 per cent of all arrests for violent crimes and 54 per cent for property crimes, he said.

Bayh laid the blame on the Nixon administration and its Department of Health, Education and Welfare for making the juvenile act "a complete and total failure, marked by delay and indecision," Bayh said.

While the act authorized appropriations of $150 million over three years, a subcommittee aide said budget requests totaled only $49 million and Congress appropriated $36 million.

Bayh said the lip service given the act leaves doubts whether it should be extended under these circumstances.

UT Deans Announced

AUSTIN (AP) — Two new deans for the reorganized former College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Texas-Austin were announced Tuesday.

Dr. Samuel P. Ellison Jr. will be the first dean of the new College of Natural Sciences at UT-Austin.

Dr. Bryce Jordan, acting UT-Austin president, also announced the appointment of Dr. Stanley N. Werbow as dean of the new College of Humanities, effective May 1.

The two colleges were created under the board of regents' order that reorganized the huge College of Arts and Sciences into three colleges—Natural Sciences, Humanities, and Social and Behavioral Sciences.

A dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences and a vice provost who will serve as dean of interdisciplinary programs will be named later.

Dr. Stephen H. Spurr, now vice president of the University of Michigan, will become president of UT-Austin July 1.

Ellison was acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences from Aug. 1, 1970, until the regents' order on Jan. 15. He has been a member of the geological sciences faculty at UT-Austin since 1948, and chairman of the department from 1952 to 1962.

Werbow has been chairman of the Germanic language department at the university since 1969. He joined the UT-Austin faculty in 1953 after experience at Ohio State University and Johns Hopkins University.

The Roman Catholic Church claims the allegiance of more than 90 per cent of the population of Quebec.

Crash Kills Officers, Prisoners

PAULS VALLEY, Okla. (AP) — A deputy U.S. marshal, a federal constable, and two federal prisoners the officers were escorting to a Texas prison were killed in a headon car crash near here late Tuesday. Three of the men were from Texas.

The federal officers were transporting the prisoners from the federal reformatory at El Reno, Okla., to the federal correctional institute at Texarkana, Tex., when their car traveled across a center median and struck another vehicle.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol said the car swerved to avoid hitting a water truck which just pulled onto Interstate 35 about eight miles north of here.

The two prisoners, Gary Sweeney, 27, Hutchinson, Kan., and Loncell Robets, 20, Dallas, Tex., were trapped inside the car, their hands, midsections and legs manacled. They died in a Pauls Valley hospital.

Hilton E. Shorre, deputy U.S. marshal, and E. G. Moya, deputy constable, both of Corpus Christi, also died in a Pauls Valley hospital.

James V. Ditto, 48, Ardmore, Okla., driver of the other car, was listed in critical condition Tuesday night but an Oklahoma City hospital spokesman said he was conscious and was able to talk. Ditto was rushed from Pauls Valley to Oklahoma City, about 55 miles, for further emergency treatment.

Chief deputy U.S. marshal Mike McGrew, Oklahoma City, said his office did not have information regarding the prisoners or prison terms.

Weismann Speaks At AAPG Meet

HOUSTON (AP) — A geologist told his colleagues Tuesday that large reserves of natural gas may exist in hitherto little-explored areas where igneous rock formations are found.

Dr. T. J. Weismann spoke at the convention of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists.

He said scientists at Gulf Research and Development Co. have been able to demonstrate that such future gas supplies may be found in relatively unexplored areas.

Through studies of stable carbon isotope content of natural gas, he said, it has been found that an inorganic, high temperature mechanism may be responsible for the origin of some of the largest currently producing natural gas reservoirs.

Eli Whitney invented his cotton gin within two weeks.

DURABLE BUILDING — The new automobile facility at Les Francis Chevrolet Company was built by Wadleigh Construction, Inc. Wadleigh builds durable, handsome steel buildings for many purposes, including farm use, commercial and industrial. The firm does a turnkey job, from drawing board to completion.

Wadleigh Construction Becomes A Corporation

Wadleigh Construction Company is a corporation now.

The firm has made steady progress and has grown at a steady pace over the years, and it was only natural that it would become a corporation some day.

"I would like to express my appreciation to the citizens of Snyder and Scurry County for their support over the years," said J. L. Wadleigh, president of the corporation.

While attaining success in the construction business, Wadleigh, Inc. has won several outstanding dealer awards. Star dealers are separated into five groups according to dealership size. Each year, Star holds a sales contest in each group with awards for total volume and total units. Quarterly, there are prizes awarded in each group with a grand prize for the best yearly totals. And, for the past three years, Wadleigh, Inc. has won outstanding dealer awards.

In 1968, the corporation won first place for total volume of business. In 1970, Wadleigh won first place in building units.

Each of the awards won for the past three years states: "Presented for distinguished leadership in the steel building industry, for progressive leadership in the community, dedicated service to its customers and for outstanding sales achievements which have gained the highest esteem and admiration of its many customers, associates and friends."

These awards are signed by R. D. Hall, president, and L. S. Shealey, vice president of Star Manufacturing Company of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Wadleigh erects Star steel buildings for many purposes, including farm, commercial and industrial. A good example of work being done by Wadleigh is the recently-completed automobile facility for Les Francis Chevrolet Company.

"We're also completing several buildings for the oil patch," said Lanny Wadleigh.

Whatever purpose you want the building for, Wadleigh guarantees a turnkey job from drawing board to completion. Their Star buildings are engineered to offer maximum strength and durability yet hold costs to a minimum. New Du-Lite paint affords protection from the elements and assures that the buildings will retain a handsome, new look for a long time. These quality buildings can be completed in record time.
