Panhandle North Plains Region Soaked by Recurring Downpours

Precipitation in City 3.55 Inches Friday to Today

Pampa and the North Plains section, in common with West Texas in general, received soaking rains during the week-end period. Precipitation at 9 a. m., today had reached 3.55 inches according to the government rain gauge operated by The News. While oilfield work was at a minimum on account of soft roads, farmers were jubilant in their belief that no more moisture will be necessary to guarantee a big wheat crop.

Streets and roads were almost impassable last night. Buses failed to arrive until noon today, when a bus from Clarendon got through. Up to press time there was no service to Amarillo The last bus to make the trip from Amarillo arrived here yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

Conditions of rural roads was not as bad as city streets. Gas, sewer, and water ditches recently made were caved in, making traffic on several streets dangerous. Wreckers and tow cars were kept busy all day yesterday and today pulling cars out of bar pits.

Wheat farmers wore broad smiles this morning having bucked mud to get into Pampa to discuss the wheat situation. Reports that a bumper crop was assured were denied by most wheat farmers. They declared conditions were good but that the wheat was thin and in some cases already heading out. It was the general opinion that the crop would be better than last year, however.

Cattlemen assert that ranges were never in better condition. Despite the heavy hail, in some sections of the Panhandle very little damage was reported. The worst appeared to be southwest of Miami, where a 50 per cent loss in a small area was estimated. South of LeFors, considerable damage was done to vegetables and fruit trees.

The heavy rain failed to damage the local airport and a plane could have taken off this morning without danger. The landing field is well drained.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 13. (AP)—Flood waters from heavy downpours continued to menace Oklahoma lowlands today after having caused one death, damaged crops and interfered with highway and railroad traffic over the week-end.

Commissioner Drowns

The body of John L. McGehee, county commissioner of Noble county, was found yesterday in the swirling waters of Squaw creek, southeast of Red Rock He apparently had been carried away by the high water when he attempted to cross a flood swept bridge on his way home. His car was found abandoned on the road and it was believed he had left it to walk the rest of the way

Highways in Eastern Oklahoma were inundated in many places. U. S. highway number 73 was swept by flood water from Pryor creek near Pryor and by an overflow from Blue river southwest of McAlester. Derdy creek blocked the Muskogee-Fort Smith highway near Warner. North of Talequah on state highway number 10 abridge was washed away.

At Muskogee the Arkansas river was two inches above flood stage and rising at the rate of eight inches and hour.

SHERMAN, May 13. (AP)—Water over bridges halted bus traffic out of Sherman in some directions today, but no bridges save a few small structures on lateral roads, were reported out. The rain yesterday and last night was 6.4 inches.

DALLAS, May 13. (AP)—Soaking rains punctuated here and there by hail and high winds, benefited Texas crops immeasurably today. The downfall lasted all of Saturday and Sunday and was general over the central, north, east plains and Panhandle sections. From one quarter to five inches fell in the Panhandle and South Plains areas. Damaging hails were reported from a number of places, the most costly one occurring at Miami where crop losses were said to run between 10 and 60 per cent.

Paducah reported five inches of rain Sunday, four inches of which fell in two hours. Cold winds were reported in the Borger section where wheat was benefited by the rains. Unconfirmed reports said that two houses were blown down on a farm near Tyler. A farm home south of Tyler burned to the ground after being struck by lightning but no one was injured.

CORSICANA, May 13. (AP)—Rain that started falling here yesterday continued today, greatly benefiting crops. No property damage was feared.

BROWNFIELD, May 13. (AP)—A high wind accompanied a rain of nearly two inches in the Brownfield vicinity last night and today. No damage was reported.

BRECKENRIDGE, May 13. (AP)—Heavy rains over the week-end broke a threatened drouth in the Breckenridge area.

PLAINVIEW, May 13. (AP)—Hale county wheat received some much-needed moisture when 1.12 inches of rain fell during the week-end.

GAINESVILLE, May 13. (AP)—South-rain yesterday and last night was 4.6 was derailed near Gainesville and three persons were injured in an automobile accident as a result of 4.2 inches of rain here yesterday and today. The train arrived in Gainesville three hours late after a baggage car had been derailed on a soft track near the Red river crossing.

KANSAS CITY, May 13. (AP)—More damage was threatened today as floods insections of Kansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma swirled to new heights and light rains continued to fall.

Three lives were lost and great property damage was the toll exacted over the week-end. Most of the damage followed sudden downpours in Central Kansas where the waters engulfed parts of Council Grove, Herington, Gypsum, Lindsborg, and other towns.

Two Mexicans lost their lives in Herington. John L. McGehee, commissioner of Noble county, Oklahoma, was drowned near Red Rock. Flood waters from Kansas today bore down on Northeast Oklahoma.

THE WEATHER VANE

WEST TEXAS: Fair, cooler in east-central portion tonight; Tuesday partly cloudy, warmer.

—AND A SMILE

NEW YORK, (AP)—Jack Dempsey, who has been indoors much of the time because of a cold and a sore throat, telephones the Mrs. at Hollywood daily His secretary says as to one conversation: "It was full of such endearing terms I had to duck out of hearing."

Theft of $20 Is Reported Today

About $20 in bills and small change was stolen from the Pampa Lubrication station sometime last night. Entrance to the building at the corner of Foster avenue and Somerville street was made by prying loose a piece of the sheetiron wall of the building.

The money had been left in a steel filing cabinet. A tire puller was used to open the cabinet. Nothing else was stolen.

The thief is believed to have worn gloves, as no fingerprints were found when Jeff D. Guthrie, city officer and fingerprint expert, arrived at the station in answer to a call early this morning.

ACTION WILL BE RUSHED ON PRISON BILL

Failure May Cause Moody to Make Campaign

AUTO FEE IS STILL ARGUED

Senate's Board Plan Aimed at Marrs, Claim

By R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, May 13. (AP)—If the legislature can wind up prison concentration, effect organization of a state board of education in compliance with the constitutional amendment voted last November and pass gasoline tax and automobile registration fee bills in the eight days remaining of the special session it may rightfully ask for a place in the sun.

It is believed a real genuine effort will be made to dispose of penitentiary concentration, hanging fire ever since Governor Moody became chief executive.

The house has gone on record almost unanimously that the system should be centralized on lands now owned by the state. The senate, if it follows the desire of Governor Moody as expressed in the Holbrook bill, will favor retaining the Darrington and Ramsey farms and permitting a board to sell the other holdings, and, if necessary, buy outside properties as a site for the central prison.

It is believed that should prison legislation fail, this session Governor Moody will take the matter to the people, with at least three strong speeches on the subject. It is known some of his friends are urging him to do this believing that when the people get the facts of the prison situation from his lips, sentiment will force the legislature to carry out his wishes in enacting corrective measures.

It looks as if there may be a slip in getting the educational bills over The senate has engrossed its bill providing for a board of education of nine members, the superintendent of public instruction to be appointive. Animosity of friends of Superintendent S. M. N Marrs was aroused by action of the senate in providing that to be eligible to hold the superintendency one must have a master of arts degree. Superintendent Marrs does not have one, and his friends stated this was intended as a dart at him.

Former Quanah Woman Charged in Husband's Death

SONORA, Calif., May 13. (AP)—Scientific evidence that Carroll Rablen, Tuolumne county lumberman, was killed by poison in a cup of coffee which the state contends was handed to him by his mail order bride from Texas, Mrs Eva Brandon Rableh, confronted the woman's defense today. Mrs. Rablen is charged with murder.

The evidence was contained in a report made by E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, to District Attorney C. H Grayson of Toulumne county. Heinrich declared he had found poison in the cup which Rablen was said to have received from his wife at a dance on the night of April 26.

Mrs. Rablen formerly lived at Quanah Texas

Large Audience Hears Baccalaureate Sermon at Baptist Church as Commencement Week Is Begun

Final Service to Be Held Thursday Evening

Despite the rain and mud, which are especially undesirable to wearers of the caps and gowns, seniors of Central high school had an ample audience at the First Baptist church yesterday to hear the baccalaureate sermon.

Dr. W. Y. Pond took his sermon text from Paul's letter to the Romans: ". . . . I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God to salvation to everyone that believeth."

Continuing on this theme, the speaker said he was not ashamed of the Gospel because of its authorship, the beauty and truth of the words spoken, the deeds of the Master, the power of the Book itself, and the easy terms of salvation—"everyone that believeth."

"Woe betide our country if students lay aside the Gospel, for education without the Great Teacher cannot preserve the nation," Rev. Pond said. "Radiate in your lives the spirit of Christ to the thousands whose lives you will touch.

"You may think you have worked hard, but I must tell you that you are just getting ready to study and go to work. I commend you for what you have done but I pray that you may achieve great lives. I hope all of you finish in some good college and then keep on studying. . . . . Have faith in yourselves, your government, your fellow beings, and in God. Remember the words of Paul, who was better educated and had a better trained mind than any of us. And never leave the words of Jesus out of your lives."

The graduating class members entered as the high school orchestra, directed by Thomas Fannell, played the processional. The invocation was by Rev. A. A. Hyde, minister of the Presbyterian church. Ralph Butterfield, local tenor, sang "Dear Old Mother of Mine," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Tom Brabham. Rev. D. H. Truhitte, Baptist pastor, read the Scripture lesson. Just before the sermon, the high school male quartet sang "Strong Arm of God," accompanied by Mrs. Martha Fannell.

After the sermon, Mrs. Fannell and Miss Wanda Barnard played the inspiring piano duo, "March Hongroise," by Korvalski. The benediction was asked by the Rev. James Todd, Jr., then the seniors filed out as the audience stood and the orchestra played the recessional.

Tomorrow evening at the Central auditorium the seniors will entertain and will present the class key to the junior class president. The addresses of the valedictorian and salutatorian will be given.

On Wednesday evening the seventh grade graduation exercises will be held at the auditorium. High school commencement exercises will be held Thursday evening at the Methodist church. Dr. P. W. Horn, president of Texas Technological college, will deliver the address.

First Train on C. & O. W. Line to Be Run Soon

F. L. Myers of Amarillo, assistant general manager of the western lines of the Santa Fe railway company, and J. B. Briscoe, superintendent of the Plains Division of the Santa Fe which includes the new Clinton and Oklahoma Western line from Pampa to Clinton Okla., arrived here last night and left this morning on an inspection trip over the new C. & O. W. line.

The two officials will make an inspection of the line preparatory to its formal opening, which will likely be Wednesday. Unless plans are changed the first train will leave here Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock it has been announced by Santa Fe officials.

There will be no celebration to mark the official opening of the new line which has been under construction for the past year. At the request of company officials celebrations along the line may be held later in the month.

English Boys Like Panhandle

Arnold Brown, nephew of M. K. Brown and the former's chum, Donald Saby of London, England, left this morning on the 3 o'clock train for California where they will visit before returning to England by way of Canada, where they will visit relatives. The two young men visited here for three weeks and made many friends.

Before leaving they said they were "sold" on the Panhandle and intended to make another trip here. They were impressed with Panhandle hospitality and the friendliness of the people.

Fire at Refinery Is Not Damaging

Fire of an unknown origin broke out at the Pampa Refining company's plant two miles west of here at 3 o'clock this morning, but was extinguished before any damage was done. The Ford-chemical truck and three local firemen answered an alarm from the plant and had the fire out and were back to the city in half an hour.

One large tank of chemical was used to extinguish the burning gasoline which had apparently leaked from a pump between two tanks. Refinery employes kept water playing on the tanks nearby until the fire department arrived with chemicals.

Thirteen Borger Men Burned in Gas Well Fire

BORGER, May 13. (AP)—Thirteen men were in a hospital here today suffering from burns as a huge gas well in the Borger oil field roared in flames.

Fifty million cubic feet of gas under tremendous pressure today was feeding the fire which was ignited accidentally at noon yesterday. An entire crew, repairing a gas leak, was burned. Steam was thrown on the fire today, but if that fails to extinguish the flames nitro glycerine will be dropped into the well in an attempt to close it.

The well is at Sanford, 15 miles from Borger.

Yesterday, while workmen fought the flames, 60 tank cars, in groups of threes, loaded with gasoline were rushed down railroad tracks less than 50 feet from the well. None of them ignited.

Two years ago this month 12 persons were burned to death in a series of oil well fires in the Borger field.

STUDENTS TO TRY TO SAVE CREDIT UNITS

Order for Return to Classes Given Today

CLOSING WAS TRUSTEE PLAN

President of Board Cleared After Probe

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 13. (AP)—Des Moines university, ordered closed "until further orders" by the board of trustees following student riots Saturday night, was reopened today by issuance of an injunction restraining invocation of the order of the board.

Dr. Harry C. Wayman, president of the university, was notified of issuance of the injunction by telephone and without waiting for formal serving of the district court's order summoned the students to return to their classes immediately.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Wayman, who with the remainder of the faculty had been released by the trustees, said he would carry out to the letter the order of the trustees suspending all classes and lectures in the university until further notice from the trustee board.

Application for the injunction was made by six students of the university and asked that the president of the school and its board of trustees be restrained from closing the university during the remainder of the current semester and from taking any action which might interfere with the regular operation of the university. The petition further demanded the defendants be restrained in any way from limiting the degree of instruction or limiting the granting of credits.

TORONTO, Ont., May 13. (AP)—Exonerated of charges in which a female secretary's name had been linked, the Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the board of trustees of Des Moines university, arrived at his home here last night and received a vociferous greeting at the station from members of his Baptist church congregation. Mrs. Shields was among the welcoming throng.

To Reopen College

The university, closed because of a student riot which broke up a meeting of the board of trustees called after an investigation of rumors involving Dr Shields and Miss Edith Rebman, his secretary, will reopen after a complete reorganization of the faculty, Dr. Shields intimated.

DES MOINES, May 13. (AP)—Des Moines university, its walls splashed yellow by eggs hurled during a student outbreak Saturday will remain closed one trustee said today, until the students experience a change of mind from their rotten egg and broken glass state.

Dr. T. T. Shields, 61-year-old president of the board of trustees, left town under police protection following the outbreak, being hustled aboard an east bound train as students swarmed about the station seeking him. Only a few hours before, the board in charge of the Baptist institution's affairs had ended a lengthy session during which they listened to and found to be without foundation charges of alleged indiscretions on the part of Dr. Shields and Miss Edith Rebman, secretary of the board.

Canadians Cause Trouble

With Dr. Shields back in his home town of Toronto, Ont., late last night another demonstration of student feeling occurred. Nearly 100 of them stormed the residence of the Rev. Carl Ganschow, Lutheran minister who had given shelter to three students of the university from Toronto. The students Morris and Frank Rose, brothers, and John F. Dempster, were surprised in front of the Ganschow home.

This demonstration revealed another cause of student unrest which previously had been variously attributed to conflict between Fundamentalists and Modernists, ann to the rumors, found groundless by the board, concerning Dr. Shields and Miss Rebman.

"It's Like This—"

WILL MOVIES, in monopolizing the stage with marvelous inventions of science, eventually create a cycle of popularity which will mean revival of legitimate productions? A reader advances this idea, and it is a likely conclusion.

* * *

Anything, no matter how perfect, loses in popularity even though it achieves all the naturalness of life except the presence of the actors. In other words, there will develop a keen demand for actors in the flesh, and for music that is not mechanically reproduced.

* * *

Just now is a difficult period for musicians, yet just as the talkies have revived interest in the spoken word and oral device, so will good music engender a desire to hear good orchestras. Eventually there will be room for a legitimate stage theatre in every city—not merely for revues and road shows of typical vaudeville calibre, but for better productions.

Movies capitalize on youth and personal appearance. The legitimate stage, too, must develop younger players and not depend so much upon keeping casts intact for years. The public is getting tired of seeing middle aged actresses in the roles of girlish lovers. Talking movies bring naturalness to the screen; the stage must do the same thing. Some casts require as much license as the movies in getting over the romantic atmosphere with personnel that "totters" like Mary Garden.

THE FLOYDADA HESPERIAN boasts that it is a "good Saturday town". But Editor Steen sees some disadvantages even in this evident fact of prosperity.

* * *

The Saturday afternoon rush causes merchants to increase their "overhead" in providing extra clerks. Those who do not make this extra expenditure suffer loss of trade by not being able to wait on customers.

* * *

It is pointed out that the Saturday trading habit really means less shopping satisfaction, and that better service can be given on other days of the week. Moreover, the leisurely shopping that women like to do is not so demoralizing of store service and not as strenuous for the clerks if done earlier in the week.

* * *

But the stores wish the trade and have helped to create the Saturday habit by offering special bargains on Fridays and Saturdays.

* * *

Little cities have more good days than Saturdays, a fact that distinguishes them from the good big towns. City merchants learn to advertise for business on other days than late in the week. In this age of fast auto travel, the "go to town Saturday" movement is passed. And it is illogical not to advertise to get business from the hundreds who "come to town" many nights a week to the movies or other attractions.

TOLL BRIDGES are not decreasing, as might be imagined, but in fact 29 are now under construction in this country, according to the Woman's Home Companion. The reason is that they are needed, and that no moves are being made by counties or states to build them.

Bridges should be owned by the states, even though tolls are charged. If it is necessary to have tolls to retire bonds based on contemplated income the assessments upon traffic should be on a strictly non-profit basis.

Unfortunately, many states, including Texas, have no fixed policies of providing bridges where needed in counties which themselves can ill afford to build them. The Texas road commission will not help build roads to toll bridges.

One of the good examples of the problem is near home. The territory north of Pampa is cut off for lack of a bridge over the Canadian river. There is no satisfactory road to the north plains. The worth of a bridged road north would be nearly as much as a railroad in that direction. What can be done about it?

If it is necessary to build the bridge as a toll proposition, it should be done, for the state could the more quickly see the need for it and advisability of taking over the project. Pampa needs a bridge and the north plains needs the use of one. It is not a question of promotion for profit, for the state has clearly indicated that it intended to own all the traffic lanes of this type. The problem is how to get the bridge at once.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter has had what is by all odds his brightest idea since first he proposed to save the farmers by turning the boll weevils and the corn borers loose on each other and letting them eat each other up.

The senator wants to divide Congress into rival cheering sections, with cheer leaders and megaphones and regulations. When members cheer now, as they did the other day when they heard how the police had killed a young man in a rum-running car, the noise is only spontaneous and disorganized, with none of the net effect on the galleries which Senator McWhorter is sure could be reproduced with a little planning.

It must be admitted that McWhorter's interest is not altogether unselfish. Everyone knows that he can make more noise than an ambulance driver going home to lunch. The mere clearing of his throat is louder than the combined bellowing of six ordinary senators.

The Senator Is Silent

Thus the senator is really a born cheer leader. His magnificent voice has been going to waste lately because the young man who formerly wrote his speeches raised his rates, leaving McWhorter with only four or five speeches to his name. The senator has delivered the one about the flag and the one about the Bolsheviki and the one about his political opponents so many times now that whenever he rises to speak two or three of his colleagues promptly pretend to faint and the Senate is adjourned in their honor.

"But don't you go supposing that I am thinking only of myself," admonishes Senator McWhorter. "My program for organized cheering would benefit everybody in both houses of Congress.

"You know how important it is to keep on the right side of Bishop Cannon and how when Bishop Cannon says he wants anything he is sure to get it. Well, when they cheered in the House the other day about how that wicked rum-runner was killed, Bishop Cannon said it was one of the healthiest indications he had heard of in a long time. With Bishop Cannon on record to that effect you can just imagine the cheering and clapping and stamping that will be heard the next time any bootlegger gets shot. And if Bishop Cannon himself comes to the gallery on such an occasion everybody will be trying to outshout each other until we all get out of breath.

"But it ought to be organized. If it is important enough to organize a few thousand college boys at a football game for cheering purposes it is certainly important enough to organize the U. S. Congress. I am quite convinced that the louder our applause the more zealous will become the efforts of our prohibition enforcers because goodness knows they need encouragement.

"Of course, I would not always make cheering compulsory. When a bootlegger is sent to the morgue or the hospital it will be quite all right for his customers to remain silent. We will all understand the grief of such colleagues."

Rebecca Rogers On Trial Today

LA GRANGE, May 13. (AP)—Rebecca Bradley Rogers went to trial here today for the robbery of the Farmers National bank at Buda, Texas, without her attorneys having made any attempt to delay the proceedings.

The first two hours of interrogation of veniremen failed to yield a juror. State questions as to the infliction of the death penalty for robbery with firearms, the offense Mrs. Rogers is alleged to have committed, brought strenuous objections from her husband, Otis Rogers, one of the defense lawyers. Rogers' examination of veniremen indicated that the robbery will be admitted but that temporary insanity will be claimed.

Mrs. Rogers was attired in a plain, light green dress. She sat next to her mother and behind her husband.

CITY OFFICER ROUGHLY TREATED SATURDAY

Two local young men paid fines of $25 and one paid $13.50 in city court yesterday when charged with disturbing the peace. The fines grew out of disturbance near the Pla-Mor auditorium Saturday night when City Officer Charlie Pipes was roughly handled.

Chief J. I. Downs says that others will probably be arrested and charged in connection with the same affray.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The one time meek and quiet Cinderella of drama, born as a peep show and despised in its nickelodeon youth, the silent movie, now is becoming a thing of song, dance and gorgeous color.

Many musical-talking pictures now in vogue are enriched by glowing color sequences, such as in "The Broadway Melody" and "The Desert Song," the first screen operetta.

Gus Edwards' screen revues rank among the pioneers in short all-color musicals; "burlesque" and numerous other new pictures wil lhave their color scenes, as will the various feature length revues soon to be released.

"On With the Show,' recently completed, is the pioneer feature all-color musicals talkie and is being followed by "Gold Diggers of Broadway" in the same medium.

So the talker in colors as the rule rather than the exception apparently is not far away.

FASHION PARADE

And the effect will be, in the opinion of Earl Luick, creative designer and fashion expert at Warner Brothers studio, to make the movies more influential in setting fashions for women than ever before.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Aloysius is the original "ham actor" of the talkies. (The pun, be it added hastily, is his press agent's, not ours.)

At the age of two months, this healthy young pig makes his movie debut as a pioneer in the new school of animal actors demanded by this modern screen technique which paradoxically has "silence" for its watchword.

In the good old days of silent pictures, animal actors had to be trained, of course, but they could be directed with shouted orders from behind the camera. In the talkie regime the animal trainers must be as tongue-tied under the merciless microphones as the directors, and like them, must transmit orders to their players by means of gestures or signs.

So Aloysius has been educated to act his part in "Smiling Irish Eyes" by obeying gestures from Colleen Moore, with whom he appears in several scenes.

Musicians To Order

In this Irish romance Miss Moore joins practically all the rest of Hollywood in the talkie field, and she will be heard in several songs. In preparation she has been studying her music like an aspirant to grand opera. Her leading man, James Hall, will sing also, but he has had musical comedy experience. He is called on to play the violin, however, and the fiddling he does for the screen will be the fruit of very recent lessons.

Troubles

A few of the numerous difficulties which arise in talkie-making, as compiled on the sound stage where Al Santell is directing "Twin Beds," and expressed in the strange new jargon of the films of '29, with more or less intelligible English equivalents:

"System hum"—noisy recording.

"Low frequency"— trouble with the "juice."

"Over cutting"—noises too loud for the wax records.

"Popping mike"—the michophone itself makes a noise.

"Galloping motors"—the camera motor skips.

"Underspeed motors"—cameras out of step with the recording.

"Air line bad"—the wire connections go "haywire."

"Talent breakdown"—the mere actor forgets his lines, or misses his cue, or coughs, or makes any of a hundred false steps the tense silence might provoke in a "talkie-nervous" human being.

Any of these, as the director points out, may occur to ruin a scene, or all of them may.

All Music Pupils Place High in Amarillo Contests

Pampa finished with colors flying in the Panhandle music festival contests in Amarillo, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. Entering almost every event of the contests, in which more than 1,200 students competed, pupils in vocal and instrumental music and organizations of the local school brought home several blue ribbons, awards in the highest division in each group, while no student or organization placed lower than the second division. The first division denoted a grade of 95 or above and the second division, 85 to 95.

The Pampa contestants were pupils of Thomas Fannell, voice and wind instruments; Mrs. Fannell, piano, and Mrs. Dorothy Ives, violin. Mr. Fannell directed the organizations, while Mrs. Fannell played piano accompaniments for organizations and soloists.

The high school orchestra was given a ranking of 96, the highest score accorded an orchestra this year. Having no competition, it was given first place in the second-year class as a matter of course.

The boys' quartet won first place over Amarillo, with a grade of 95 against Amarillo's 88. The girls' glee club lost first place to Amarillo by only a point, making a grade of 95. Audrey Noel won second place in the vocal solo with a grade of 95, one point below that of the winner of first place.

James McKee tied with a Memphis boy for first place in the saxophone contest, on a grade of 94. Glen Twiford placed in the first division on piano solos for boys under 10 years of age. Betty Anne Fannell, 9 years old, placed in the second division, with a grade of 93, competing with 35 girls of her age. Virginia Lee Bechtelheimer, with a grade of 89, placed in the second division of the class from 8 to 10 years of age.

Mr. Fannell, head of the music department, expressed the appreciation of the faculty for the co-operation given by parents of the students, members of the Parent-Teacher associations, and others in furnishing transportation for the contestants, and to the board of trustees for funds to pay entrance fees to the contests.

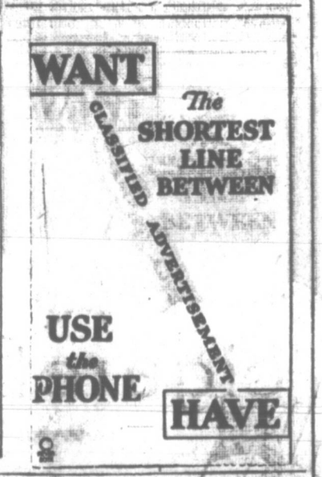

Baptist Revival Has Big Crowds

Large crowds continue to attend the evangelistic services at the First Baptist church, despite the very unfavorable weather. Dr. W. Y. Pond spoke last night on "The Potter and the Clay.' Four additions to the church roll were made. The sermon for this evening will be "We Must Be Saved."

The Wednesday evening service will be held at 7:30 o'clock, half an hour earlier than usual, in order that the auditorium of the church may be used for commencement exercises of the junior high school, which will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

McLean to Have Full Time Man in Chamber Work

M'LEAN, May 13.—Employment of a full-time secretary to serve both the McLean Chamber of Commerce and a Retail Credit Men's association, which is to be organized, was ordered recently at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. The organization and maintenance of a credit association was advocated as a means of protecting merchants from bad accounts and "hot" checks.

Traffic regulations, with special emphasis on parking in the business section, highway problems, and other matters of public interest were discussed in the same meeting, with a view to suggesting a solution. The Chamber of Commerce granted expense money for a preliminary survey of a proposed star mail route from McLean to Alanreed and LeFors.

The high school band of McLean has been invited to give concerts one day at the Tri-State fair in Amarillo next fall. The invitation is given by Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the Tri-State Fair association and general manager of the Amarillo News-Globe.

The vocational agriculture classes of McLean high school made an outstanding record in the recent contests at A. & M. college. More than 1,700 boys took part in the agriculture and industrial contests, the largest yet held in the United States.

Fred Hunt of McLean won first place in soldering, receiving three pounds of acid core solder as a prize. The shop team lost first place by only seven points, placing second in soldering, third in hardware, third in concrete, third in saw filing. Ward Ault was third high man in the contest.

The poultry team won second in egg judging and fourth in exhibition hens, winning third place among 94 competing teams. Orville Smith, Ward Ault, and Gordon Billingslea are members of the poultry team.

Morse and Hase Waters, who compose the livestock team, won fourth place in beef judging and fifth as a team, with 91 teams contesting.

Damage Suit Is Called for Trial

N. F. Maddix is suing E. E. Morris for $1,500 damages in 31st district court today. The suit is the result of an accident on the Amarillo road last year in which Maddix ran into a house which Mr. Morris was moving to Pampa.

W. M. Lewright is representing Mr. Maddix. H. E. Florey has been secured to represent Mr. Morris.

At press time a quorum of the grand jury had not arrived here but it was expected that enough would be here later in the afternoon.

Giants Needing More Victories to Offset West Losses

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

With the first western invasion of the Polo Grounds drifting into its final phase, the Giants remain in need of victories as the Cards and the Cubs make the race out in front together While the Clan McGraw can exhibit but three victories against five defeats and one tie for the western stand, the Red Birds have won seven out of nine and the Cubs six out of nine with one tied on their easter trip.

The Giants ended the more difficult part of their stand against the west by playing a 6 to 6 tie with the Cubs yesterday with the Cubs before a capacity crowd of 50,000. The game was broken up at the end of the eleventh by a sudden rain-storm.

The Cardinals, of course, defeated Brooklyn. The score this time was 13 to 7, giving the Red Birds a sweep of three games in Brooklyn and running the Robin losing streak to six. The Reds had little more difficulty in subduing the Braves at Boston by 9 to 3 behind the fine left-handing of Eppa Rixey.

The Phils and the Pirates got the day off because no Sunday ball is played in either city.

The American league race was plunged into a deadlock as the Tigers won their second straight from the Yankees while the Athletics met rain in Cleveland. The Bengals were unduly familiar with the offerings of Waite Hoyt all along, and Durocher helped to gum things up by fumbling a double-play ball in the second. The final balancing showed the Tigers in the lead by 9 to 7. It was Hoyt's first defeat.

The Browns are taking it out on the poor Red Sox, after being manhandled by the Athletics and the Yankees. The score yesterday was 15 to 3 in a game broken up in the seventh by rain.

The White Sox rallied sharply in the ninth to pull out a victory over the Senators for old Red Faber by 3 to 2.

Derby Trotters Face 55 Miles in Jaunt Today

MINERAL WELLS, May 13. (AP)—The bunioneers resumed their long trek across the United States today, leaving Mineral Wells at 7 a. m., for Breckenridge, 55 miles away.

More than 2,000 miles had been covered since C. C. Pyle's corn carnival left New York, and Pete Gavuzzi, England, retained his narrow hold on first place over John Salo, the Passaic, N. J., policeman in elapsed time.

Giusto Umek, Italy, who yesterday picked up an hour and advanced to within 13 hours of second place, was watched by the others as a possible contender for first place. In two weeks he has come from fourth to third place.

The total elapsed time for the 12 leaders when they started for Breckenridge today follow:

1—Pete Gavuzzi, England, 288:41:27.
2—John Salo, Passaic, N. J., 290:11:-12.

George Stallings, Famous Baseball Player, Is Dead

HADDOCK, Ga., May 13. (AP)—George T. Stallings, who won fame in 1914 by capturing the world's baseball championship for the Boston Braves, died today at his home near here.

Death came at 5 a. m., after an illness of several months which had forced his retirement from the managership of the Montreal club of the International league. He was 63 years old.

Stallings was given the name of the "miracle man" in the baseball world after his remarkable record in 1914 in leading the Boston Braves to the world championship.

He was a native of Augusta, Ga., but had lived near here for 35 years except during the times when he was absent attending to his baseball duties.

A widow and three sons survive. His sons are White Stallings of Chicago; Vernon Stalings of New York, and George Staillings, Jr., of Haddock.

Two brothers, T. P. Stallings of Augusta and Frank Stallings of Akron, Ohio, survive.

Peckinpaugh Is Under His First Suspension Order

CLEVELAND, May 13. (AP)—Suffering with a concussion of the rain inflicted by a baseball fan's pop bottle, Umpire Emmett T. Ormsby was in the constant care of a physician today. Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Cleveland American league team, was under five-day suspension for protesting a decision which preceded a demonstration during the game Saturday.

The decision curbed an Indian rally and gave the game to the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 2. It was not Ormsby's ruling that caused the trouble, however Umpire William (Brick) Campbell had called Lew Fonseca, Cleveland first baseman, out for interfering with a throw to first after laying down a bunt in the eighth inning.

Peckinpaugh protested. As howls and jeers in the stands grew louder the fans rained bottle on the field, striking Ormsby in the back of the head, and two members of the Philadelphia team Joe Bowley, shortstop, and Kid Gleason, coach.

It was the first time in Peck's baseball career of nearly 20 years that he has been under suspension.

Mike McTigue to Return to Ring

NEW YORK, May 13. (AP)—At 36, bold Michael McTigue, former light heavyweight champion, returns to the ring tonight after a retirement of nearly a year.

The Irishman, who twice held the 175-pound crown, hung up his gloves, apparently for good, after his one-round knockout by Tuffy Griffiths last September. Now he is booked to fight Paul Hoffman of Holland in the semi-final bout at the St. Nicholas arena tonight. Bold Michael insists he's returning to the ring because he likes to fight. Some observers say, however, that speculation has depleted McTigue's once ample bankroll and forced his return to the squared circle.

Waco Cubs Take Two Off Houston Then Go North

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Waco Cubs have proved their ability under fire. They invaded the far north country today with the stimulus of two straight victories over Houston and a two-game lead over the same Buffs.

There were predictions aplenty Saturday that Dell Pratt's youngsters had come to the end of their rope, and that the dawn of Monday would see them a notch or two down the pennant ladder. Instead, the fighting Cubs took two falls out of the Bisons and regained part of the handsome lead which they had seen slip from them in the preceding week.

A pair of youthful southpaws proved the Cubs' salvation in their important week-end series with Houston. After Stein had tamed the Herd on Saturday, Dumovitch took the hill yesterday and repeated the dose, 6 to 4. He limited the Buffs to seven blows, while the clouting Cubs were mounting Watt and Schuman, Dallas castoff, for 17.

Shreveport maintained a firm grip on third place in the standing by coming back to sweep a double bill with Dallas Sunday, 9 to 2 and 5 to 2, after Dallas had taken the series opener on Saturday. The first game was a slugfest, with three hurlers performing for Dallas and two for the Sports, but Tuero turned in a fine game for Phelan's forces in the nightcap.

Cecil Stewart, Shreveport's rookie second baseman, committed his first bobble of the season in the first game of the doubleheader. He had handled 177 chances without a miscue, one of the most remarkable performances of the year.

Fort Worth crowded up into the first division for the first time in many moons by winning the first tilt of yesterday's bargain bill with Wichita Falls, 8 to 6. The second game was called on account of darkness after seven innings had resulted in a 4 to 4 tie.

San Antonio divided a double bill with Beaumont, losing the first, 7 to 5, and copping the second, 8 to 4. The split gave them two out of three with the Exporters.

Thrice A Captain

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Albert B. Booth, Jr., Yale freshman star, has broken one all time Yale record. He is the first ever to captain three Yale teams, varsity or freshmen.

He recently was elected to captain the frosh baseball team, after previously leading the football and basketball teams. Although the lightest and smallest member of the football and basketball squads, he stars in both sports.

Booth is 20 years old is five feet seven inches tall and weights 145 pounds. One of his grid fortes is kicking. He can consistently boot the ball 60 yards.

He was prepared at New Haven high school and Milford school. He is quarterback in football, a forward at basketball and plays shortstop with the baseball nine.

Helen Wills Is Like Hagen As Title Gatherer

By ALAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, May 13. (AP)—Helen Wills, off on her fifth invasion of European courts, carries the same threat of conquest at tennis that Walter Hagen does in golf.

Each has accounted single-handed for more American victories abroad than any other competitor in any sport. This is no ordinary achievement when it is considered that since the war, the United States has sent nearly all its champions, including Molla Mallory, Bill Tilden, Bobby Jones, Walter Hoover, Jack Kelly, Charley Paddock, Bud Houser, Ray Barbuti, Glenna Collett, Gertrude Ederle, Martha Norelius, and Johnny Weissmuller.

Miss Wills began her European invasion successfully when she won the Olympic tennis crown in 1924. She was runner-up at Wimbledon the same year and in 1926 lost her memorable encounter to Suzanne Lenglen on the Riviera but she hasn't been beaten since.

The Californian has just been formally introduced at Buckingham but she needs no introduction to Wimbledon, where the center court is the world spotlight of tennis. In two years Miss Wills has lost only one set in championship competition, here or abroad, and that was in an early round at Wimbledon in 1927 to Gwynneth Sterry.

The British are prepared to crown Queen Helen a third time after she is through campaigning on the continent.

GLENNA COLLETT WINNING

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 13. (AP)—Glenna Collett, American title-holder, began her quest for the British Women's golf championship with a five and three victory over Marjorie White of Roehampton, today.

Most feared among the four American entrants, Miss Collett played a sterling brand of golf to down her first British opponent in a decisive fashion. She took the lead at the first hole and never relinquished it.

Talks To Parents

TOO MUCH FUSS

By Alice Judson Peale

Having heard the virtues of what are known to educators as "free play materials," Chester's mother bought him a fine set of paints. There were six jars of paint, an easel, three good brushes and a pack of large sheets of paper. Chester was thrilled.

Before permitting him to begin painting his mother gave him a large apron, spread newspapers on the nursery floor, explained how to pour out the paint, how to avoid mixing, how to hold the brushes and how to wash them, and how, finally, to put everything away neatly on a particular closet shelf.

So impressed was her emphasis on all these details that Chester, eager to please his mother, concentrated most of his attention on them. By the time he was ready to paint pictures he was so involved in complicated manipulations that he could think of nothing to paint except dreary, conventional little houses, which he made over and over again, while he worried over each blot and drip.

When we give our children new play materials it is wise to give them those which are simple enough to be handled without too much concentration on technique. If we chose to give them such complex things as paints we must let them begin with only a few colors, and we must be ready to put up with what may seem to us like misuse of materials.

For the time being we must resign ourselves to ruined brushes, spotty clothes and general disorder. The experience will retain its genuine worth for the child only if we give him a minimum of technique while we allow him complete, uncritical freedom of expression.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE meets STEPHEN ARMITAGE when he rescues her fox fur from a thief. Their friendship grows until PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of Mildred's employer, tries to lure him away from her. HUCK CONNOR becomes infatuated with Pamela and she plays both men. Her brother, HAROLD, is in love with Mildred, who tries to keep him from gambling with Huck's crowd.

When Stephen continues seeing Mildred, Pamela has her discharged and also turns Stephen against her by saying that she is trying to marry Harold for his money. Bitter at Mildred, Stephen permits Pamela to maneuver him into an engagement when she tells him that is the only way she can break with Huck.

Huck commands Harold to prevent Pamela's marriage under fear of exposure concerning a forged check. Harold says he can't force Pamela so Huck plans to dispose of Stephen. He has one of his gang frame him for stealing a firm car, and the detective arrests him after finding a roll of bills, a gun, and the auto keys which have been planted in his room.

Stephen calls Harold and asks him to bring Pamela to his cell. She refuses to go or even send a word of sympathy and Stephen is in despair. But as soon as Mildred reads of his arrest she goes to see him and promises to try and free him but will not say how. She begs Harold to tell her what hold Huck has over him and to help her clear Stephen but he dares not. Soon she has another worry when a threat comes to her over the phone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

"LISTEN, sister," Mildred heard. "this is a friendly tip to lay off tryin' to make young Judson spill his insides, see? It ain't healthy to know too much. Get me? An' there ain't gonna be no second warnin'."

The strange voice clipped off crisply and before Mildred could collect her startled wits to form an answer she heard a bang that told her the wire connection was broken.

Her head was in a whirl as she turned back to her work. She was not fool enough to underestimate the danger that threatened her. Whoever had put Stephen in jail would not stop at anything to protect himself, she knew.

Her fingers refused to type the correct business letter she sought to finish. She could not work until she had calmed herself.

"I'm not afraid," she told herself courageously, but the echo of that cold, brutal voice mocked her.

"Anyway, Harold is giving in," she reasoned. "He must be if they're afraid I'll make him talk."

She wondered if Harold had told of her attempts to coerce him into a confession. It hardly seemed likely.

Bending her mind back over the past week, Mildred recalled that on several occasions she had received an impression of being followed when she was with Harold. The impression had been too vague to disturb her. She had put it down to nervousness and an overworked imagination.

But now she was convinced that someone had been spying upon her. Her fingers trembled as she slid a new sheet of paper in her typewriter and began the letter afresh.

SHE realized that matters had come to a crisis. The cowardly threat she had just received meant that she must give Harold one more chance to confess before she went to Stephen with what she knew.

After that, whatever Harold did, she must take the consequences. The thought of what they might be terrified her, for Mildred had heard enough of underworld methods to know that she might pay with her life for her interference.

For a moment she was tempted to save herself, but then she remembered that she had been urging Harold to face a danger he seemed to fear as much as death itself for the sake of justice. What right had she, who had prated of courage, to shrink when the same demand was made of her?

But to pit her courage against utter ruthlessness and villainy? Suddenly she put her head down on her typewriter, shaken and overcome.

Her employer came out of his office a short while later, observed that she appeared greatly upset and inquired what was wrong. Being denied an explanation, he decided she was ill and advised her to go home for the rest of the day.

Mildred was glad to go. She wanted to be near her mother—the only protector she had.

But as soon as she reached home she telephoned from place to place trying to get in touch with Harold. She had to content herself with leaving a message for him at the Judson Hotel.

Her mother hovered about anxiously while she sat at the telephone, not satisfied with Mildred's excuse for leaving her work. The girl's white face and dilated eyes alarmed her. In spite of the "headache" Mildred claimed, she did not appear to her mother to be ill.

It was 6 o'clock before Harold called her up.

"I want to see you. It's terribly important," she said breathlessly.

"After dinner?" Harold suggested. He had just returned from Westchester, where he'd been dragged by some friends who told him he looked as if he'd been grown in a mushroom cellar and wouldn't let him off, though they later regretted their insistence. Never had anyone played a poorer game of golf than Harold played that afternoon.

"Can't you come immediately?" Mildred urged.

"I've just come off the links," Harold explained, "but I'll only stop for a bite after I've changed."

* * *

HE turned away from the telephone and hastily removed his tweed golfing coat and sweater he'd worn under it. Mildred's anxious tones had warned him that she was deeply troubled. He could guess that the matter had to do with Stephen.

Something like a feeling of doom came over him as he realized that he was going to her, that he wasn't going to flunk it, that he even was making haste.

A knock came on his door as he tore off his tie and he called out to come in, thinking it was his valet.

In the mirror of his dresser he saw his visitor.

It was Huck Connor. Harold wheeled defensively and braced himself.

Huck stepped farther into the room, pulled out his cigaret case and extracted a cigaret before answering.

"Just a friendly visit," he said insolently, "to advise you not to go near your meddlesome little girl friend uptown for a while."

Harold glared at him. "I'll do as I damn please," he said defiantly.

"Take it easy," Huck advised. "It won't be for long."

His assurance brought a suspicious query from the boy. "What are you up to now, Connor?" he asked.

"I'll tell you if you'll keep quiet," Huck surprised him by saying.

Harold nodded.

"I know this girl, Mildred Lawrence, is interested in Stephen Armitage," Huck began, eyeing Harold closely. "And I know that you're chasing her. Don't forget, you told me yourself she is suspicious of me. Assuming that she might have guessed that you know something, I made it a point to find out. Now and then a word or two of your conversation with her has been overheard." He paused and allowed a sneer to distort his cruel mouth.

"She's got you going," he went on as Harold stared at him wildly, "but you're not going to talk."

Harold swallowed hard.

"You're a fool to let yourself get trapped by a girl who is out to save another guy," Huck continued witheringly. "But if you're so set on helping her get him just keep off for a while. If you don't, you're the guy who will take the rap, but it doesn't suit my purpose to give it to you. I'm ready to meet you half way."

* * *

"WHAT do you mean?" Harold whispered hoarsely.

"Keep your trap shut and I'll arrange to have one of the boys who's due to get a stretch up the river make a confession that will clear Armitage. That will put you right with the girl and make it an even rivalry, if he feels like going after her."

"And in the meantime," Harold said tensely, "what will you be doing?"

Huck flicked the ash off his cigaret and smiled. "Well," he said slowly, "if you don't force my hand by compelling me to cable your father, I expect to occupy my time in becoming your brother-in-law."

Harold essayed to laugh. "With Pamela not even looking at you?" he taunted lightly, but his knuckles gleamed white where he gripped the dresser's edge. "Putting Armitage out of the running didn't get you a thing even if Pam did break her engagement to him."

He wanted to bring Huck out in the open, to learn, if possible, whether the man intended to have Pamela against her will.

Huck frowned. "Well," he said unpleasantly, "she'll look at me when I'm ready.

"You can't blackmail her as you have me," Harold retorted, leading him on. "She's through with you, Connor. You were just a novelty to her. You couldn't interest her now any more than an old shoe."

"Is that so?" Huck sneered, his real self cracking through his veneer. "Get this. I'll make her whine just as you have. Taming her will be . . ."

He did not finish the sentence. Like springs uncoiling Harold's hands let go of the dresser and doubled into shaking knots. He sprang at Huck in a fury of rage.

Huck's change from a stance of ease to a defensive position was lightning quick. He met Harold's attack with a stiff uppercut that sent the boy reeling backward, staggering to keep his feet.

"You're through, I tell you," Harold shrilled at him sobbingly when he found his voice and came on again. "You're through."

Huck stood off and stopped him with well-aimed but not crushing blows. He was cursing himself for having overplayed his hand.

"You fool," he gritted, "do you want to go to prison?"

* * *

HAROLD screamed back at him. "I'll go anywhere before I'll let you get your hands on Pamela! She's my sister! You'll never get her! I'll tell her what a crook you are! I'll tell Armitage who framed him!"

His words were now coming in broken gasps as he tore in, trying to reach Huck with one of his powerless blows.

"You're through," he repeated again and again as Huck held him off. The words gave him a feeling of victory. He was using them as the magic passwords that unlocked the dark prison where his spirit had dwelt in fear and self-contempt.

"No more of your crooked gambling in this hotel!" he exulted, losing his head entirely with his sense of escape from mental degradation.

Huck swore under his breath. He'd have to settle the kid once and for all now, he told himself. He realized that Harold was beyond fearing him any longer. His power over the boy was at an end. Huck himself was now the one who feared. He had no armor to withstand the onslaught of a turning worm. He saw nothing to serve his purpose but complete annihilation of the boy he had driven too far.

Stepping in quickly and unexpectedly, he grappled with Harold and appeared to be trying to subdue him by wrestling. In reality he was maneuvering his intended victim closer to the open window from which there was a sheer drop of many stories to the roof of the building below.

Harold struggled to plant a blow on Huck's chin but the man's superior strength kept his arms pinioned close to his sides. Unwittingly Harold allowed himself to be brought to within a foot of the window sill before a premonition of Huck's deadly intention came to him.

Accident Toll Four in Texas

DALLAS, May 13. (AP)—Four people were killed and a number injured in week-end automobile accidents in Texas. J. Bolton, 40, was killed near Midland when his car turned over. Three others in the car received minor injuries. Tommie Henderson or Austin died an hour after a head-on collision near Buda in which eight others were injured. Mrs. Frank Besenberg of San Antonio was the victim of the third crash which occurred near Gonzales. Mrs. Richard Atkinson, 22, who lived in Galveston, was killed when the car in which she was riding hit a telephone post.

The strangest accident of the week end occurred at Tyler, where a miniature tornado swept an automobile from the road. William Powell of Tyler was seriously injured, but two companions were unhurt. The automobile was one of several on the road, but was the only one struck by the freak wind. Horace Beard, 11, of Tyler was in a hospital suffereing from lacerations received when the car in which he was riding was wrecked.

"Alibi" One of Best Pictures of Present Year

The story of "Alibi" is too intriguing to reveal to those who have the treat in store for them. It's about gangsters and their girls, police and their never-ceasing warfare against organized crookdom in the big city underworld, pleasure-mad night club habitues, wise-cracking, sharpshooting racketeers along the great White Way. The picture smacks of realness, sincerity. The crooks act and talk like real crooks; the cops behave like the cops you meet in everyday life. The handsomest actor in "Alibi" is a crook—and he doesn't reform and marry the girl just before "The End." He commits the unpardonable faux pas—in police circles—of using officers for targets, and what they don't do to him is nobody's business!

Acting honors are well divided. Many of the players are former stage favorites new to the screen, but who acquit themselves gloriously in their first picture. The director has had the rare courage to go to the speaking stage for some of the finest personalities and voices in "Alibi." Chester Morris, Eleanor Griffith, Harry Stubbs, Regis Toomye, Purnell B. Pratt—all new-comers to the screen—give remarkable performances. Pat O'Malley and Mae Busch both old favorites with the film public are excellent.

Others who score heavily in their characters are Herman Cripps, Al Hill, Irma Harrison, James Bradbury, Jr., De Witt Jennings, Elmer Ballard and Edward Brady.

Two of the highlights in "Alibi" are the night club and theatre sequences in which musical acts are presented with all the tunefulness and lavishness of Broadway productions.

The Rex theatre doesn't have to alibi "Alibi". It's a great picture.

Airplane Crashes Take 5 Lives in Sunday Mishaps

(By the Associated Press.)

Five persons were killed and two others were injured in Sunday airplane crashes. One of four airplanes involved in the accidents was an army pursuit ship and two others were borrowed planes.

Staff Sergeant Homer Johnson was killed, and Lieut. C. K. Roath was injured seriously when the army plane crashed shortly after taking off at Little Rock, Ark. The ship was one of 36 army planes that had stopped at Little Rock on the way from Galveston, Texas, to Dayton, Ohio, for air maneuvers.

Raymond Kettenofen, 23, radio repair man and amateur pilot, and his brother, Gordon, 36, a bank teller, both of Los Angeles, lost their lives in a crash of a borrowed plane in a windstorm near Compton, a Los Angeles suburb.

An apparent attempt to stunt at a low altitude in a borrowed plane resulted in the death of Kenneth Graham, 25, a licensed pilot, and serious injury to Richard Dobbs, 23, a student pilot, at Eureka, Kans. Witnesses said the plane went into a spin at 400 feet and crashed.

Christopher Evans, chief instructor of the Granby, Quebec, Airplane club was killed trying out a Moth plane at the club's field. A wing tore and the plane crashed 1,500 feet.

Bronte Newspaper Damaged by Fire

SAN ANGELO, May 13. (AP)—A fire loss amounting to approximately $17,000 resulted at Bronte last night when a building housing the Bronte Enterprise and an automobile storage garage burned.

D. M. West, publisher of The Enterprise, placed his loss in printing equipment and household goods at $12,000, partially insured. Fifteen automobiles belonging to the Home Motor company of Bronte and J. R. Fomby of San Angelo were burned.

The fire was believed to have started in the storage garage.

GIRL'S BACK BROKEN BUT RECOVERY EXPECTED

FORT WORTH, May 13. (AP)—Although her back is broken and she is suffering with other serious injuries, Miss Nancy Sutton, 18, Dallas, victim of an automobile mishap Saturday night, will recover, physicians said today.

Miss Sutton Sunday was placed in a cast, in which she must remain for nearly two months.

Her automobile was hit by another.

PENDLETON GANGMEN ESCAPE

ELDORADO, Ark., May 13. (AP)—Search was continued today for four men, three of them alleged members of the Pendleton gang, who locked the jailer and a trusty guard in cells and staged the second break from Union county's new "break-proof" jail yesterday.

The four, Claude Burnett, Joe Streiter, Owen Edwards and Carl Bray, were believed hiding near the Ouachita river.

Owen Edwards was held here for several weeks last year. He was believed to have been implicated in the robbery of the First National bank. He was also held on charges of theft but was never tried. He was turned over to Oklahoma officers on charges which fell through.

Spy Helped Lee Trap Union Troops

Disguised as Negro Girl, Confederate Crossed Federal Lines, Was Caught and Sentenced to Die, but Escaped With Plans of Attack

ELECTRA, May 13. —When veterans of harrowing experiences during the Civil War start swapping yarns at the Confederate reunion at Charlotte, N. C., in June, few of their stories will equal that of Major Ed C. Wilson, Jr., of Electra.

For Major Wilson believes he is the last of the spies attached to General Robert E. Lee's staff and, according to available records, he is the only survivor of those present at Lee's deathbed.

Promoted to the rank of major at the beginning of the war and placed on Lee's staff as a spy, Wilson's duty was to stay within the Union lines, find out the enemy's plans and report them to Lee.

Major Ed C. Wilson, Jr.

Helped Lee Beat Federals

To be caught meant death. But Wilson recalls how, by use of his wits, he not only saved his life, but indirectly was responsible for the victory Lee won in the fall of 1862 over the forces of the Union general, N. P. Banks, near the Rapidan river in the vicinity of Spotsylvania, Ky.

According to Wilson, he entered Banks' camp disguised as a negro girl, selling butter and eggs. For a while, all went well. Then, Wilson says, a Union officer accidentally brushed his sleeve across the spy's face, revealing the blackface makeup.

Courtmartial followed and Wilson was sentenced to be shot by a firing squad the next morning.

Meanwhile, Wilson recalls, he learned Banks intended to attack Lee in two days. To fail to report to his general meant the Confederate forces probably would be taken by surprise; and it also meant Lee's chance to take Banks' army by surprise would be lost.

So that night, after his guards were asleep, Wilson started digging a hole underneath the boardwalk surrounding the tent which served as a makeshift prison. He dug for hours, with his fingernails his only tools. Then he clambered out and dashed for his horse, picketed in the thickets nearby.

The guards were aroused and the chase began. Wilson made it to the river and plunged in astride his horse. The Yankees followed, firing, forcing Wilson to abandon his mount and swim the remainder of the distance under water.

Joined Lee After War

Wilson says he reported to Lee about sunrise and Lee, armed with the spy's information, ordered an attack that evening. The Federals were taken by surprise at their evening meal and the victory was Lee's.

When Lee was made president of Washington College after the war, he summoned Wilson to Lexington, Va., and gave him the position of college clerk, a post he held until Lee's death in 1870 Wilson lived at the Lee homestead and was with the group of mourners at Lee's side when death came.

* * *

Major Wilson is an aide-de-camp on the staff of General A. W. Goodwin, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and is also sergeant-at-arms of the organization. He was active in planning the organization of the veterans late in the eighties.

He is the sole survivor of his regiment, the Third Louisiana infantry, commanded by his father, Colonel Ed C. Wilson, Sr., which was virtually annihilated at Gettysburg. Major Wilson's father and four of his brothers were killed in the engagement.

Major Wilson is known as the "Grand Old Man of Electra" and has served in various capacities as a city official here for 20 years.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT C. PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—One can't pass thru Statuary hall in the capitol building now without stopping for a moment to inspect the new marble statue just unveiled.

It is the one of former Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

Jo Davidson fashioned this striking likeness of "Fighting Bob." He regards it as his greatest piece of work. Certainly this long personal friend of the late Wisconsin senator has caught the spirit of the man.

La Follette is shown in his most characteristic pose. Crouching in his chair, both hands gripping the arms he seems ready to spring to the floor of the senate to engage in debate.

A glance at the face and it easy to understand how he shattered all records by speaking 18 hours and 20 minutes during a filibuster in the upper house.

Everything Changes

Much was said about the life and achievements of the great progressive by those who came here to be present at the unveiling of the statue. We were particularly interested in the story told by his son Phillip of an event that occurred some 11 years ago

"We were sitting in my father's office in the basement of the capitol," said young La Follette. "Gathered about him was a small group of his friends. The rage and hatred of the press and others were stirring to fever heat the passions of men in a time of war.

"His friends were urging him to silence. He listened to their pleas and then turned to the group and said:

"'The children may live to see the day when sentiment will change toward me and what I am about to do. I never shall.'"

"Then," said the son, "he walked out of that room to the floor of the senate and took a position from which he never wavered and which brought down upon him the attacks which are now history."

Power To Sway Them

Charles H. Crawnhart, justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, told us of the great power La Follette had over the common people.

In one of his campaigns for governor of Wisconsin he spoke at Superior. He had been preceded by a former United States senator of the state who opposed him. At the conclusion of his opponent's speech the crowd was with him. Every thrust at La Follette had been cheered with great enthusiasm. La Follette's followers were downcast.

Then "Fighting Bob" mounted the stand. And Justice Crownhart says that for three hours he held that meeting under perfect attention, and when it was dismissed the people left silently as though a benediction had just been said by their pastor.

A distinguished western senator once approached La Follette and said:

"Bob, you never compromise; therefore, you never win."

And La Follette replied:

"Bill, you always compromise, thereby delaying for years—for centuries, perhaps—the ultimate victory."

About New York

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

NEW YORK—In the spring a New Yorker's fancy turns to summer sports and among them swimming. He can hardly wait to give up the town's diversions, grown a little stale with the passage of winter, and play again like the fishes.

In fact, some don't wait. Already they are telephoning the swimming pool architects daily to find out where they can splash with pleasure, and their requests are answered with a list of neighborhood pools.

Throughout the winter the four or more hotel tanks in Manhattan, as well as other indoor pools, are well patronized, especially at night, by persons in search of good clean fun. But spring brings more tender thoughts of the ol swimmin' hole and the pools are crowded with people come to bathe away their nostalgia.

Those who collect statistics may be interested in knowing that there are more than 6,000 swimming pools in the country, including the one that Edsel Ford had installed recently in a club house built by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at Seal Harbor, Me., where their families go in the summer.

A contractor reports that the east is just now building pools in a big way, the vogue coming from the inland plains. Chicago especially is credited with starting the hotel and apartment pool fashion which has been adopted by New York.

Some of the most elaborate private pools in the country are hereabout. Walter Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company, has one at his estate in East Portchester, Conn. In the same room is a breakfast nook and gymnasium equipment, including bicycles and a mechanical horse.

BELL HOP DETECTIVES

A suitcase no longer is sure of getting admitted to a metropolitan hotel. So many gyppers have left the inns holding empty bags in lieu of room-rent that bell boys now give the clerk a sign if the luggage feels suspicious. If the weight or something seems irregular the boy slowly tips the bag forward. The signal means "skipper baggage" and the clerk usually tells the would-be guest that he must pay in advance, or simply regrets there is no room for him.

SEEN AND HEARD

Joan Lowell, locally famous since publication of her salty story of sea adventures, denies she talks that way.

Mrs. Valbourg Palmer, wife of a scientist, lost her job as personality expert for a chain of restaurants when William Childs was ousted from its control. She was responsible for the individuality of the decorations, including the aprons worn by the waitresses and the color schemes of the food they served. She is said to have been the one who recommended a change from the early nickel and tile to the later bronze and stone.

Dorothy Vedder, a portrait painter is amused by the young New Yorkers who are very continental, speaking French on the slightest provocation, or no provocation at all, if a third person is present to be impressed. Yes, they are quite numerous.

COMMENCEMENT PLAN CHANGE ANNOUNCED

Commencement exercises for the junior high school will be held Wednesday evening at the Baptist church, instead of at the Central auditorium, as it had been previously scheduled, Supt. R. C. Campbell announced today. The program is to begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Daily News' want-ads bring results.

Big Audiences at Christian Church

Two large audiences heard the evangelistic services conducted yesterday at the First Christian church by the Rev. A. G. Smith and his party. In his sermon last night, "The Undenominational Church," the Rev. Mr. Smith made an appeal for Christian unity, declaring that the division in Protestantism is delaying the Christianizing of heathen nations throughout the world. Denominationalism in one faith is difficult of understanding for the peoples whom the several churches are attempting to reach through their missionaries. The Chinese, he said, find it impossible, even, to give each church a name that approximates the English name.

Beginning with the ministry of Jesus, the speaker traced the history of the Christian church through 300 years in which it was one and undivided.

The Booster chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Hannah, will give a special program tomorrow evening. Bible drills and songs which the chorus has rehearsed each afternoon of the meeting will be features of this program. One of the largest and one of the smallest Bibles in the world will be displayed during the service. The sermon subject for tomorrow evening has not been announced, but that for Wednesday evening is "Sodom or Pampa."

Great Mexican Fire Controlled

NOGALES, Ariz., May 13. (AP)—After burning more than 15,000 acres the greatest forest fire in the history of this section of Arizona today was believed to have been brought under control by 100 weary men who had fought the blaze for six days.

Cowboys rode before the fire driving herds of terrified cattle down sun-baked slopes ahead of the flames which licked at scrub oak on a ten-mile front.

Buildings and equipment of mining properties were consumed, while miners fled to Henshaw, a village near here the blaze was stopped a few miles from town.

The conflagration started when a miner stumbled and dropped his carbide lamp in dry grass.

Wrestling Match Postponed Week

The wrestling match between Arthur Saxon, strong man, and Oscar Dotson, local blacksmith, scheduled for Thursday night at the Pla-Mor auditorium has been postponed until the following Thursday night. The postponement was caused by weather conditions, J. J. Denebeim said this morning.

Saxon claims to be the strongest man in the world. He allows cars to run over him, twists horseshoes, and does other acts of strength. He weighs only 190 pounds. When the strong man and Dotson meet it will be an exhibition of science against brawn.
