that reminds me...

Tuesday the lights went out and for 45 minutes there was no power. But don't blame the Texas Electric Service Company. A careful checkup of the cause revealed that both lines that take care of Eastland's light and power service was knocked out at the same time by the elements. To the credit of the Texas Electric Service Company and their efficient force a record time was made in having the service resumed although patrons became impatient and wondered why the service had to go out at all.

In explanation, there are two high power lines leading from the power plant to the sub-station located in the southeast part of town near the Ringling Railroad. One comes in from the southeast and another from the northeast. The purpose of the two lines are to take care of any emergency that may arise when one or the other is disabled so that service will not be interrupted.

In the instance of Tuesday through a peculiar coincidence, both lines were knocked out at the same time. During the storm lightning struck the wires of the high line on the southeast circuit and the wind blew down five poles on the northeast circuit. According to officials this has never happened before and possibly will not happen again in many years.

The Texas Electric Service Company maintains at all times skilled and experienced service men and when clouds begin to hover in this section that look menacing they are on the alert. They are to be commended for doing a quick job under serious handicaps.

We don't think for one minute that Eastland folks would consider it, but there is much effort being made by aggressive outside laundry representatives to influence the business firms to have their laundry work done in another city over a hundred miles from here. We hope that any business firm that contemplates such a move will think twice and remember that Eastland has as good a laundry and gives the very best of service, as any city anywhere. The Eastland Steam Laundry also has a good payroll here that helps support the business interests of the town and community. And boy we sure do need payrolls to keep this town going. Why build up payrolls in far off cities with Eastland money that never comes back? Think it over before your bad judgment gets the best of you.

Looks like a certain nearly city is slipping. When a town goes away out of its territory to scatter circulars with promises of giving away a whole lot of money in merchandise, they're bound to be slipping. There ain't nobody mad around here because the circulars were broadcast in Eastland, because we're used to it, but we'll bet a soaked onion against a can of tomato juice that the business interests of the town that had them scattered will be madder'n a wet hen when they find that Eastland folks won't fall for the lure of chance prizes, and feel worse at the amount of money they threw away trying to get business that they should have known in the first place that they couldn't get. Chickens are liable to grace a strange table if allowed to graze out of their own back yard.

Ranger H. D. Club Meets On Tuesday

The Ranger Home Demonstration Club met at the Cross Roads school house Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when Mrs. O. A. Hinman gave a report on the last council meeting. Mrs. G. C. She stated that 20 counties were represented at the meeting, with 33 head of registered Jersey cattle being exhibited. Mineral Wells To Send Stage Coach Caravan To Fair

MINERAL WELLS.—Plans were completed here this week by the Chamber of Commerce for a stage coach caravan from this city to the New York World's Fair. The caravan will be composed of approximately 30 stage coaches and covered wagons and the trip will require about 45 days. With the caravan will be a 16-piece orchestra and a portable stage. Each night the party will "bed-down" in frontier style and put on a free frontier show in 45 cities along the route the caravan will take. The complete itinerary of the caravan will be announced later.

Heading the caravan will be 1902 model two cylinder, right-hand-drive automobile. The local Chamber of Commerce announces that applicants to make the trip are already being received. The caravan is scheduled to leave Mineral Wells on the morning of July 15 after the selection of "Miss Texas," the official Texas entry in the Atlantic City Miss America contest. Miss Texas will be selected on the evening of July 14 during the Texas Health Festival and will officially send the caravan on its way the next morning. The winner of the Miss Texas contest will be given a trip to the Golden Gate International Exhibition, a boat trip from San Francisco through the Panama Canal to New York and will be welcomed in New York by the Stage Coach Caravan.

The caravan will carry special cachets for stamp collectors with Texas Health Festival and New York World's Fair cancellations.

Injunction Suit On Theatre Chains Is Filed In Court

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 28.—The government today filed an injunction suit in federal district court here charging 10 major movie producing companies and four theatre chains, operating in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico with monopolistic practices in restraint of trade. Charles Dierker, federal district attorney, filed the injunction at the direction of the anti-trust division of the department of justice. He said it was a forerunner of similar injunctions to be filed against movie distributing companies in other sections of the country.

The suit named these chain theatre exhibitors as defendants: The Griffith Amusement Company, operating in Oklahoma and Texas; The Consolidated Theatres Inc., operating in Oklahoma and Texas; The Westex Theatres Inc., operating in Texas and New Mexico, and the R. E. Griffith Theatres, Inc., operating in Texas and New Mexico.

RANGER SCENE OF A TWO-DAY NYA GATHERING

Between 40 and 50 National Youth Administration officials from District 7 are in Ranger today for a two-day session, during which they will visit the various shops and work projects in the city, and to attend meetings at which NYA problems will be discussed.

The visitors began arriving Thursday night for the meeting, some of them coming from as far away as Amarillo, and by Friday morning the entire group had assembled.

After the lunch period short talks were to be made by local officials, including Mayor Hall Walker and H. A. Ziegler, district supervisor, from Fort Worth, gave instructions and discussed the projects.

Scheduled for 3:00 to 3:30 was a question box, supervised by Ziegler, followed by a 15-minute recess. At 3:45 W. B. Watkins of Fort Worth was to discuss operation of construction projects and safety.

In the evening Miss Mamie B. Hines will speak on the girls' residence and Travis J. Lewis will talk on shop projects for boys.

Most of the time Saturday will be taken up with talks on various phases of NYA work, when Watkins will speak on promotion of new projects at 9 o'clock; Ziegler will discuss public contacts at 9:15; inventories will be the subject of a talk by Raymond Morton at 9:25; accounting will be discussed by E. Thomas D. Eddy and R. D. Leberman will talk on selection of youths at 9:55.

Reports on work will be made by Ted L. Weaver, Baia Williams and Jack Hale, after which Leberman will lead forum discussions for the remainder of the morning. The two-day meeting will end at noon Saturday, in order that those attending may return home for the week-end.

Mrs. Lindbergh Is Back In The U. S.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and her two children arrived today from France on the French liner Champlain, and came ashore with an escort of 75 policemen.

Trapper Shoots Self Aiming At Weasel!

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Mont.—Steve Tok, 60, a hermit trapper, called on a rancher friend but got no farther than the gate. There he shot himself with a .30-30 rifle, the bullet entering under his jaw and emerging beneath his right eye.

His friend called the undertaker, but just as they were putting Tok into the "dead wagon," he came too, and asked if "the weasel" got away. "I was aiming at a weasel," he said, "and must have shot myself."

Roosevelt Sleeps While Hitler Talks

HYDE PARK, April 28.—While Adolf Hitler was addressing the German Reichstag and every man, woman and child in Germany, the man whose appeal for peace he was answering, President Roosevelt, was in his bed sleeping. Mr. Roosevelt regarded Hitler's speech, it was said authoritatively, as a speech only and in no sense an answer to the appeal he made to Hitler and Mussolini on April 15. He anticipates a direct reply from both of them.

VARIED VIEWS EXPRESSED ON HITLER'S TALK

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Official and congressional quarters commented in guarded fashion today on Chancellor Hitler's address.

Administration officials said nothing for publication, but privately some expressed the view that Hitler's statement seemed to leave only a slim prospect for peaceful negotiation of European differences.

A few congressmen and senators indicated the speech was not as strong as had been anticipated. Others, however, thought it foreshadowed increased danger of war.

Sen. William Borah, republican, Idaho, the ranking republican member of the foreign relations committee, said Hitler apparently believed that he had "ended all discussions" with the address.

Warsaw, Poland, April 28.—High political circles expressed belief today that Adolf Hitler had not definitely closed the door to future negotiations between Germany and Poland.

Political quarters said it appeared that Poland had no choice except to recognize the German denunciation of the non-aggression treaty, scheduled to run until 1944. It was emphasized, however, that Germany, and not Poland, was abandoning the agreement. Actually official circles were not surprised by Hitler's action and the opinion was expressed the door to future negotiations remained open.

S. Baxter. One hundred persons attended the event which was held at Forest Park.

Mrs. Childress, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter, was accompanied by her husband. A retired railroad construction foreman and at present operator of two hotels in Fort Worth, Mr. Baxter is 73 years of age. His wife is 69.

They have lived for 20 years in Fort Worth and formerly lived at San Angelo. Natives of Mississippi, they both came to Texas with their parents at an early age.

Descendants include three grandchildren, who are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Childress. Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter from the state attended the anniversary.

Management For Farms Called Next

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Farming is no get-rich-quick scheme, you can take it from J. E. McCord, professor of farm management at the Pennsylvania State College. However, you can make a good living at farming provided you are a good manager. In a seven-year survey between 1930 and 1937 in Centre county, Pa., Prof. McCord found that the total receipts per farm per year averaged only 23 per cent of the capital invested in the business. Land, buildings, equipment and livestock were included in the capital investment.

HITLER REJECTS PEACE PLAN AND MAKES NEW DEMANDS IN HIS SPEECH

Adolf Hitler, who Friday morning made his long-awaited speech before the German Reichstag, in answer to President Roosevelt's plea for peace. His talk was received in world capitals with mixed reactions.

GRAND JURY ENDS WORK OF MARCH PERIOD

Grand jurors of 88th district court completed their March term work Thursday afternoon and reported to Judge B. W. Patterson. They returned 12 indictments Thursday, bringing total for the term to 38. Four indictments were for misdemeanors. The jurors had been in session a total of 10 days and had examined 193 witnesses.

Indictments returned Thursday were for chicken theft, one, driving drunk, four; auto theft, two; burglary, four and reckless driving, one.

L. H. Herring, foreman of the jurors, and John D. Harvey, secretary, in the written report thanked bailiffs, Sheriff Loss Woods and staff and Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., for the cooperation.

The jurors also expressed satisfaction with the keeping of the county jail, saying that it was sanitary and commended the work of Jailer Crossley.

Minister Uses A Dummy To Add To Appeal Of Sermon

BATON ROUGE, La.—The Rev. John D. Brown, crusading Baptist minister, has found that a somewhat rustic edition of Charles McCarthy is an aid in impressing his sermon upon his congregation, and besides, it appeals to the children.

Mr. Brown's Charley McCarthy is "The Wandering Boy." The clothes he wears are hardly those Edgar Bergen would put upon Charley. Since some of the famous woodenhead's repartee would be beside the subject in sermons, "The Wandering Boy" keeps directly silent.

The minister's dummy wears clothes fashioned from the suit of a youth who donated them to a "deserving orphan" just before he stepped into the stripes provided by Angola penitentiary.

"It will be rotten," he said, "by the time I get out."

The youth's donation will be more valuable, Mr. Brown believes, on "The Wandering Boy." The dummy will serve, he said, as a "real life example and warning against the evils of false literature, dancing, gambling, alcohol and bad theaters."

So the dummy sits upon the pulpit as he delivers his sermons.

Germany Terminates Naval Agreement

LONDON, April 28.—The German charge d'affaires, today delivered a note to the foreign office, denouncing the British-German naval treaty.

By United Press
BERLIN, April 28.—Adolf Hitler today rejected President Roosevelt's peace message, caustically and point-by-point. He denounced Germany's treaties with Great Britain and Poland. He demanded the return of Danzig and a German path across the Polish corridor into East Prussia.

He offered direct negotiations with any other power.

In a strongly worded speech to the Reichstag that was packed with defiant threats and declarations of peace, Hitler characterized President Roosevelt's message as a breach of good manners. He chided the president for not solving his own domestic problems.

All of Germany and a large part of the world listened as Hitler spoke. Every form of activity in Germany was suspended.

Hitler laid down his position clearly. He considers the Polish-German treaty of friendship and non-aggression abrogated by the military guarantees of Britain to Poland. He considers the British attitude has nullified the naval treaty under which the German navy was limited to 35 per cent of the British.

Hitler said that Danzig is German and never will be Polish and therefore must be returned.

He also demanded a lifeline into East Prussia, which is cut off from the Reich by the Polish corridor. The road would be a German controlled highway that Germany would not regard as of a military nature.

Hitler said that Germany threatens no nation. All the 31 nations mentioned by the president as threatened replied "no" when Hitler asked them if they felt in danger.

The German chancellor replied that President Roosevelt's proposal for a general peace and disarmament conference was futile. Germany is fed up with round-table conferences and will enter no more such meetings except with an armed nation behind her.

Hitler made concrete proposals to Poland. In return he said that Germany was prepared to recognize all Polish rights in Danzig. To assure Poland a free harbor in Danzig, to accept the present boundaries between Germany and Poland as final, and to conclude a 25-year non-aggression pact with Poland. In return Hitler asked that Danzig must be given back as a free state within the Reich and Germany, in addition to the road through the corridor must have a railway line at her disposal.

Explanation Given On Cause Of Juice Cut-Off on Tuesday

Texas Electric Service Company officials stated Friday that both high lines leading into the sub-station southeast of the city were put out of commission by Tuesday's lightning, causing an interruption of 45 minutes in electric service. Lightning struck the high line southeast of the city and the wind blew down five poles on the northeast circuit.

Two highlines lead into the sub-station in order to take care of any emergency in the event one is put out of commission. In Tuesday's instance for the first time both lines were disabled.

The Texas Electric Service Company state that they are grateful for the patience of the citizenship of Eastland and offer the above explanation as to the cause of the suspension of service during the 45 minute period.

Court Denies Plea Against Proration

HOUSTON, April 28.—A three-judge federal court today denied the application of two oil companies for an order to enjoin the Texas Railroad Commission from enforcing its April oil proration scheduled in five Gulf fields.

The case was the application by the Harrison Oil company and the Abercrombie Oil company, for a permanent restraining order requested on April 5, naming the railroad commissioners and other state officials.

The companies claimed the April production schedules were unjustified, arbitrary and discriminatory.

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Betty reaches the Barr household. She is surprised to find that the owner, who she has heard of, is a very nice man. He is a Mexican, and he is very friendly to her. He is a very nice man, and he is very friendly to her. He is a very nice man, and he is very friendly to her.

CHAPTER XIX

IT was not difficult for Betty to win the confidence of a young woman inside Luis Barro's ranch home. Her 22 cartridge again was enough. She soon discovered also that there were armed guards posted discreetly around the buildings. She realized that Barro would need an armed force if he expected to do much smuggling of aliens. A Mexican man outside apparently loading against a rock, would in reality have a repeating rifle leaning nearby; and it is common for men to wear pistols in Mexico so that guns excited no notice here.

Betty Mary also deduced easily that the surprising number of people present were mostly aliens waiting to be shipped over the line at night. Barro was using his ranch home as their assembly place. During the few hours there Betty Mary saw four cars come up and discharge passengers. They were admitted to Barro's living room much as she herself had been and she knew that the guards and servants probably had thought she herself was another "stranger" alien—at first.

"Will be more than 100 señorita," one young Mexican woman told her, after tactful probing. "They will be taken over to the New Channel Crossing, as you know, while the decoys are being sent over a mile upstream. Is it not clever?"

"Indeed it is!" answered Betty Mary. "Luis has given it detailed thought."

THE New Channel Crossing! She repeated that to herself, to make it indelible in her memory. Doubtless Hope and Sherry would know where it was even if she didn't. And Barro would have a decoy crossing a mile upstream! Betty Mary's heart was pounding with excitement anew. Now, if she could just worm one more essential crumb of information—

"Friday will be a good night for the crossing," she ventured. "Maybe there will even be rain."

"But is not Friday, is Sunday!" the Mexican girl declared.

"Oh! Then he did change it. Well, I haven't had a chance to talk with him in private yet, you know. And that's one of the things I have to be ready on."

"Seguro si, señorita. You are perhaps the one who arrange the cars to take them away after they cross, eh? It is important, too."

"Of course," Betty Mary nodded, striving to keep calm. She had her crumb now!

"I am starting to El Paso within an hour," said the Mexican girl. "I am a citizen of the United States, too. I can cross freely. So I am to be one of Don Luis' guards on the other side. Maybe I will see you again, señorita."

"Goodbye," Betty Mary smiled. She wished she knew what kind of guards. Where would they be? How many? She would have to warn about that too when she could get back to inform Hope and Sherry.

She realized that her position in the Barro household was a precarious one but she also knew that Barro himself was attracted to her, very definitely. She felt that he would make violent love to her when the time came, and it might be soon now that she was visiting him. Fortunately, she might have to try posing as one seeking help to smuggle over her alien friends, as she had planned. Her detective work to date had been almost too easy, she was thinking. Her one important mission now was to get back to El Paso with her information as soon as possible. And yet, she must not appear too hurried; she would have to bluff her way through one or two sketches of his house at last.

LUIS BARRO did not come to visit with her, as promised, for more than two hours. She had removed her hat and wrap and then with her bag in the sun room, taken her sketching pad and sauntered out to a porch, a shaded alcove giving a gorgeous view. All at once, it seemed, he came to her there. He was ultra-formal and there was a significant new gleam in his eyes. Betty Mary caught it at once, and it alarmed her.

"The señorita has been kept waiting," he lamented. "But then—shrugging characteristically—"is no hurry now, since it is to remain long time with us, eh?"

"Oh, but I really must go, Don Luis," she was using her glib tourist mannerisms again. "I did so want to sketch you in your home setting, but I can see you are very busy this week. I—I shall call again. I really must hurry back soon now."

"Is no hurry, no hurry at all, señorita. Is best you rest right here. So you can travel well, when the time comes!"

Travel? Betty Mary looked carefully at him, trying to retain her pose and her poise.

"You mean—"

"I mean, señorita, that is long long way to Durango, or maybe Zacatecas. And, of course, Barro the grand smuggler could not use the ordinary trains. He might even have to walk, quien sabe?"

Betty Mary's heart seemed to swell. He must surely see her strained expression in that moment, she feared.

"You see, señorita," he purred now, "I am make very suspicious, when so many of my plans fall at once. My lady with the doll, my men with the submarine—you think Luis Faustino Rodarte y Barro is fool?"

He half rose from his chair at that and Betty Mary jumped to her feet, hand to her mouth in a quick frenzy of fear.

"But I—you—" she was incoherent watching him.

"In your purse, my pretty one, was the rifle shell, the .22 which have been used by my friends. I find him myself, while you wait here for me. Now what you think, eh?"

She could only stare at him wildly.

"Sit down, sit down and rest, señorita! Maybe so Sunday night late we travel much, eh? Maybe we even go to ocean and take the long a trip, the vacation. You like Luis Barro. You dance with him; make the pretty talk; make the pretty picture—YAH!"

He ended with a veritable growl and got up from the table scowling like the criminal he was.

He beckoned to two men. They came from within—Betty Mary had not even seen them waking in the shadows—and in her frantic state now they appeared almost fiendish.

"Take her to—the kitchens, the laundry, anywhere so she can work. Work, señorita! You have make fool of me, now you work for me!"

"No! Let me go! There's a mistake, I tell you! Let me—"

It was her first word of protest, so alarmed had she been.

"Sure, the mistake, and you make him, señorita! Men have die for make the mistake with Luis Barro. But a so beautiful señorita—"

With a truly fine gesture he dismissed the whole matter, turned from them and strode back to his big living room. She had an instinct to shriek for a moment so frantic was she. But a strong man was holding each of her arms, now, and she found herself walking between them.

By sheer force of will she took a deep breath, squeezed her eyes shut for a long moment and controlled the hysteria that threatened to engulf her. Resistance who knew, would be foolish at this time.

Police Are Recast In Mexico City

By United Press
MEXICO CITY.—New methods of handling riots and big crowds have been put into effect by the metropolitan police.

When Gen. Federico Montes became chief of police last spring, he found the corps of gendarmes operating under the old-fashioned system of imposing itself by the fierce looks of its rifles. The gendarmes, whenever called to riot duty, or even to managing the crowds at the bull-ring on a Sunday afternoon, almost always appeared dragging a rifle—to use either to hit people with the butt if necessary, or to shoot as a last resort.

Gendarmes no longer carry rifles whenever a Communist, Nationalistic or anti-Semitic or some other sort of riot breaks out. Gen. Montes realizes that this is an era of effervescence, what with the reaction from the Spanish civil war, the Mexican presidential campaign, and other factors constantly agitating the people here. He therefore has worked out a system of quietly and efficiently handling disturbances when they occur.

Motorcycle "flying squadrons" are constantly on duty at headquarters. Mounted police are not used. Whenever called, the motorcycles with their sidecars dash to the scene of action, without making any fuss. They are then followed by trucks with about 20 policemen, about one out of five of whom carry tear-gas guns.

Once at the scene they size up the situation and decide what to do. Generally the first thing they do is to seek to prevent any traffic tie-up. Once the automobile lanes are opened up, then it's easy to get the pedestrians started to moving.

Montes invariably goes to the scene of trouble himself. He is an old-time revolutionary, with a record dating back to 1910. He is small, strong and universally respected.

Incidentally, the word gendarme is an inheritance from the days of the French intervention. It has become a Mexican as well as a French word.

Yesterday, Barro suspicious Betty, tells her so and then she is carried off by two of Barro's lieutenants to another part of the house. She retains her hysteria because resistance is useless.

CHAPTER XX

ON the afternoon that Inspector Hope Kildare, of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, admitted that he was in love with Betty Mary Jordan, the first coolness in all their memory came between him and Sheridan Starr.

The Kildare and Starr families had lived in another part of Texas side by side. The parents had been close friends. Young Sheridan and young Hope had enjoyed first fights as small youngsters, but only in teamwork fighting some one else. They had romped and enjoyed life through grade school, high school, thence into college. Perfect athletes, they had achieved wide fame as football players. What one had attained the other had shared, always. And now there was conflict over pretty Betty Mary Jordan.

"Well, Hope," Sheridan said that evening when they would have gone to supper together as usual, "if it's not a sin for you to love her, I guess it's not a sin for me either. I guess we can't either of us help it. You ready to go eat now?"

Hope did not look at his friend. He was staring vacantly away.

"Reckon I'm not hungry," he said finally.

Sheridan went without another word. He did not depart whistling, or bantering with other officers in the headquarters offices as he was wont to do. He just walked glumly out, alone.

He didn't know how long he had walked, but when he came to himself at last it was dark. From force of habit he drifted to a favorite cafe and told the waitress there to bring him anything—just anything. She put down a good meal but he ate less than half of it. He got up and wandered out without thinking even to pay his check. The cashier saw him, but didn't disturb him; she knew he was an excellent, steady customer.

"Mr. Starr acts like he's lost his best friend," the waitress commented.

"Got the blues, I guess," said the cashier. "Well, we all get 'em."

He'll snap out of it. He's young."

"Gee, he's grand!" the waitress murmured.

"You said it!"

Sheridan surprised his landlady by stalking into his room at 9 p. m. She even came out to inquire about him.

"Not going away or something, are you, son?" She was a kindly soul who tried to mother him.

"No'm, Mrs. Bascom. I—well, I'm a little weary. Thought I'd get a good night's shut-eye."

"We're proud of you and Mr. Hope, the way you boys have been breaking up narcotic smuggling lately. Your friends are all talking about it."

"Thank you ma'am."

"I'll just set a pot of coffee on the stove for you, and there's half a coconut cake on the second shelf, son. You might want a snack before you lie down."

He thanked her but he didn't eat. He went to bed and pulled out the light—and lay there thinking in circles until midnight. Then he slept until dawn.

"IT'S like this, Mrs. Bascom," Sheridan Starr was drawing at breakfast, "I don't aim to stop any man from loving a girl, especially a friend, but in a case like this I figure it hit us both at once and we ought to sort of draw straws to see which one steps out. Now I studied about it hard last night, and—"

Sherry was eating with Mrs. Bascom herself, on one of the rare occasions when he ate where he had a room. He was a guest, partly because she had shrewdly seen something disturbed him.

"Like, she soon had him everything; he really needed a talk."

"No, son," she interrupted, "that wouldn't do. It might do if you boys were quarreling over money, or anything else valuable—except a girl. But you can't draw straws for a girl."

"Why can't we, ma'am? Hope's square. And I'm sure I could step out of the picture if I lost."

"No. It doesn't matter that both of you are square, as you of course are. That's not it. The loser might think he could just back off and forget it. But he couldn't. He just couldn't. It would rankle and gnaw inside him and eat his soul out, Sheridan!"

Sherry swallowed hard, laboring over his food, his handsome young face strained.

"Now I'm an old woman, son, and I've seen a lot. Let me tell you, there's only one person can decide between you boys and that's the girl herself. If she says she doesn't want one of you, then you can moon around a few weeks and maybe forget it all, after that; or maybe you can never forget, maybe you'll just go on loving her always, regardless. But, in that case, if she does choose the other fellow, then you'd know it was right and proper, even if you did lose. You can just bury your feelings as a sorrow. The other way, you try to buy it but it swells up as a bitterness and an anger, and first thing you know you just have to fight, some way. It's the man in you that does it. son. Now you and Hope go and have that understanding between yourselves, in advance."

Sheridan thought it sound advice.

He had a profound respect for old Mrs. Bascom. By 8 o'clock he was downtown looking for Hope, but when they met, Hope was still so cold and so oddly formal that he couldn't bring himself to say much.

"Lordy, Hopey, why'n't we go somewhere and get it off our chest," he suggested, finally. "Where we can talk. We can swap our ideas about the matter and maybe get somewhere, can't we?"

Hope still wouldn't look into his friend's eyes.

"Don't see anything to talk about."

"Well, we still have to work together, don't we? Or do we? What about that, Hope?"

"I guess so. That—that hasn't anything to do with it. Betty Mary hasn't anything to do with—with the jobs, I guess. It's just that—well, she damn sure can't marry both of us, and—"

"She hasn't said she'd marry either of us yet," said Sherry. "Or maybe she has! Say, have you asked her?" A sudden alarm had struck Sheridan.

Hope ignored that, but put in another significant point.

"More important now, it seems to me, is that her window signals are still missing."

"Good lord!" Sherry jumped up. "I plumb forgot about that! Did you look to see? This morning?"

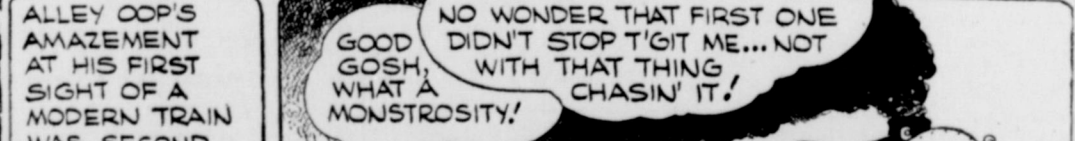

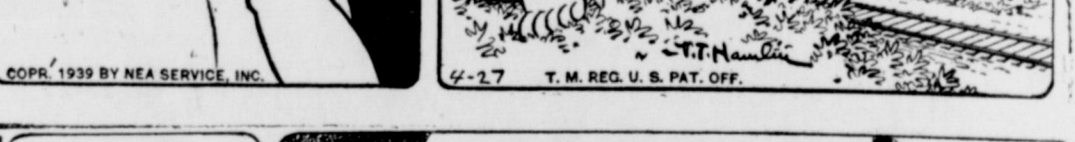

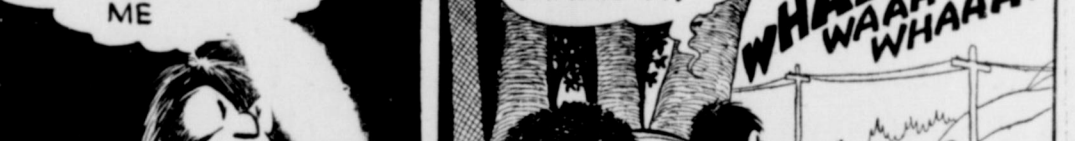

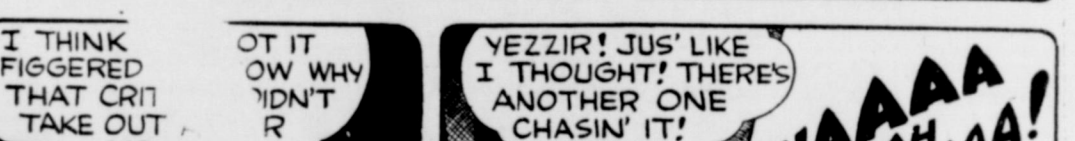

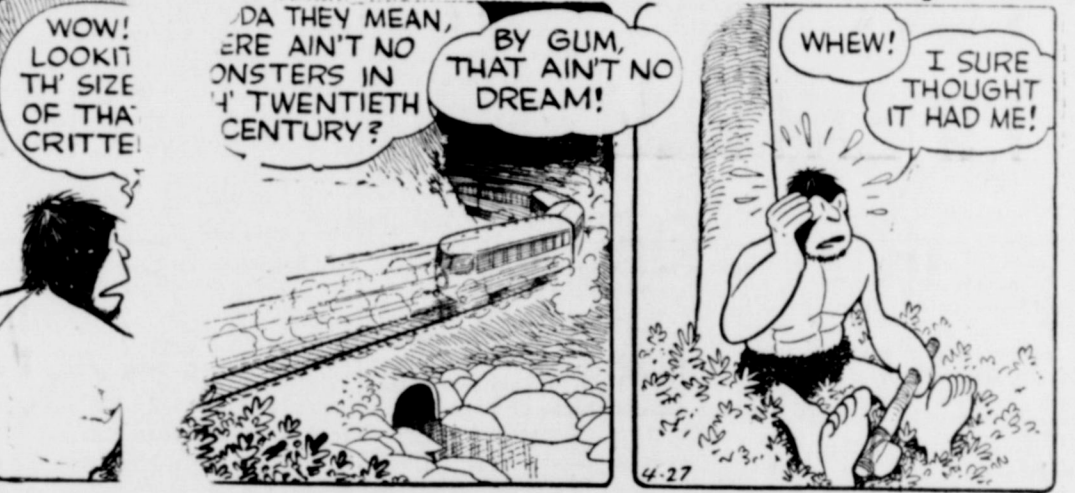

Gosh, Hopey, I been mooning around all night, and—say, let's go look at her window now!"

"It isn't necessary," Hope declared, somewhat sourly. "I have just looked. In fact I looked all night. I changed out my uniform, spent the time from 9 last evening until daybreak searching every nook and corner in Juarez. She's holding her room, but the Montezuma Hotel had no knowledge of her whereabouts and I couldn't find a trace of her anywhere."

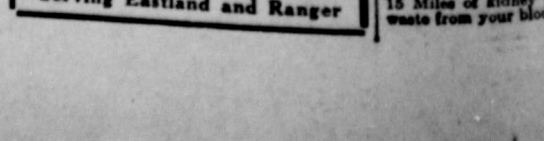

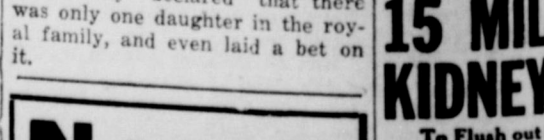

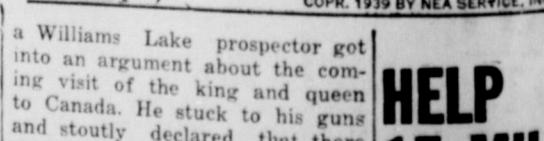

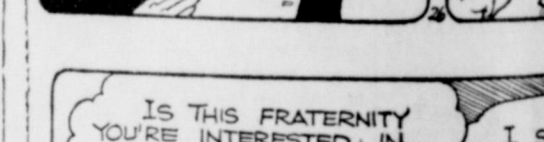

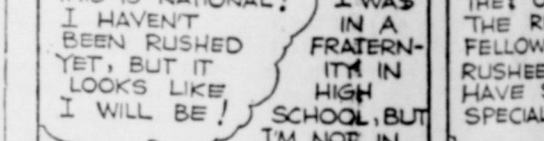

"Whew!" breathed Sherry Starr, consternation in his voice.

GREATER SHOW MONTH STARTS TODAY IN EASTLAND

The Lyric Will Present 19 Outstanding Hits During the Period April 28 to May 31

Comedy, Action, Romance and drama along with Hollywood's top-notch stars is on tap for The Lyric Theatre patrons in the 19 outstanding pictures that have been booked for the Lyric's greater Show Month, April 28 to May 31st.

Eastland can be proud of the fact that never before has a theatre anywhere shown as many truly great pictures in a month's time as those booked for Greater Show Month, and it will be July before the theatre patrons in the larger cities will have an opportunity to see all these big hits.

The Hardy Family's latest and 6th straight hit, "The Hardy's Ride High" with the usual cast of Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker and Fay Holden has been booked to start the big parade. Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers will be seen Sunday and Monday in "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle" which has Fort Worth as its main locale. "Calling Dr. Kildare" the second of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's great series featuring Lew Ayres and Lionel Barrymore will be shown on Tuesday and Wednesday and "Thanks for Everything," a scandalously funny picture about "Mister Average Man" starring Adolphe Menjou, Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Tony Martin, Arleen Whelan and Binnie Barnes will be the Thursday offering.

Starting the second week of the month will be "Tailspin" starring Alice Faye, Nancy Kelly and Constance Bennett, this picture will be shown on Friday and Saturday, May 5th - 6th. On Sunday and Monday, May 7th and 8th with a Midnite show on Saturday, May 6th comes Warner Brother's mighty Calvalcade of the West, "Dodge City" starring Errol Flynn, Olivia DeHavilland, Ann Sheridan and a cast of thousands including Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh and Alan Hale.

Tuesday and Wednesday, May 9 and 10, ushers in Metro's latest Musical hit, "Broadway Serenade" starring Jeanette MacDonald and Lew Ayres. On Thursday, May 11th, Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Henry Armetta and Slim Summerville will be seen in "Winner Take All."

"Man of Conquest" based on the life of General Sam Houston with Richard Dix as the star will be the lead off picture for the last half of the month and it will be followed by "Lucky Night" with Robert Taylor and Myrna Loy, "Dark Victory" with Bette Davis, "East Side of Heaven" starring Bing Crosby and Joan Blondell, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up" with Deanna Durbin as the star, "Wife, Husband and Friend" with Loretta Young, Warner Baxter and Binnie Barnes in the leading roles, "One Third of a Nation" with Sylvia Sydney, "Lucky From

The Hardy Family Wins New Acclaim

"The Hardys Ride High," sixth of the famous series dealing with the popular screen family, opened at the Lyric Theatre today, and won immediate plaudits from a capacity audience.

The new picture is different in every respect from the others, but the beloved Hardys remain the same. Now they inherit $2,000,000 and move to Detroit to claim it. On the plane, their changed status first effects Aunt Milly, played by Sara Haden, and she falls for a business man who is a fellow passenger.

In Detroit, overcome by sudden wealth, Mickey Rooney, in his role as Andy Hardy, steps out to a cabaret and falls desperately in love with a chorus girl, Virginia Grey. Likewise, swayed by her new position, Marian Hardy (Cecilia Parker) orders lavish gowns and charges them to Judge Hardy.

Only the Judge (Lewis Stone) and his wife (Fay Holden) maintain their equilibrium. Back in Carvel, Ann Rutherford, as Polly Benedict, accepts attention from a new young man while she awaits word from Mickey.

The family is on edge, figuratively hanging over the precipice of new-found wealth, when the Judge discovers evidence to prove that he is not the legal heir. He can destroy the evidence and retain the fortune, or produce it and give up everything. There is never a question in his mind.

The Hardys are brought back to grim reality. They return to Carvel, poor as ever but proud of their heritage of honor and none the worse for their interlude in the realm of luxury.

Without exception, every member of the cast turns in an excellent performance. George Seitz, director of all six of the Hardy pictures, has again done a superb job of combining human understanding with the foibles of family life familiar to everyone of every age.

"Kentucky" starring George Raft and Ellen Drew, "Union Pacific" Paramount's Great Story of the winning of the west, "Cafe Society" featuring Fred MacMurray and Madeline Carroll.

We say that this is one of the greatest array of pictures of the year and if you see any one of them and can truthfully say to yourself that you did not like it we will refund your admission.

TO PLAY AT THE LYRIC

Charles Farrell, Alice Faye, in "Tailspin," coming to the Lyric May 5th - 6th. The cast includes Constance Bennett and Nancy Kelly.

GENE AUTRY WINNER AND STILL CHAMP OF COWBOYS

Gene Autry, star of the Republic Picture "Mexicali Rose," which opens today at the Connellee Theatre, has again won the Motion Picture Exhibitor's poll to determine the Number One Cowboy Of the Screen.

This is the second consecutive year Autry has won the coveted award. Each year theatre owners all over the country vote on which western star is the most popular in their city. In every section of the United States Gene was far ahead of his nearest competitor, and apparently his popularity is increasing with every picture.

In "Mexicali Rose" Autry again comes through with an excellent performance that will please his millions of fans, both children and adults.

The story deals with Gene's adventures while attempting to expose a phony oil company, that is operating at the expense of his Mexican friends. He is ably supported by his side-kick Smiley Burnette, and an excellent cast including Noah Berry, Luana Walters, Leroy Mason, Roy Barcroft, William Royle, Dick Botthel, Vic Demorelle, and many others.

"Mexicali Rose" was directed by George Sherman from a screen play by Gerald Geraghty.

Our Record Not Perfect, but Better Than Most

A lot of people, discussing the conquests of the Germans, Italians and Japanese, dismiss the whole matter by saying, "Oh, well, it's no worse than we did ourselves when we were expanding."

That's a very easy answer, but unfortunately, like many easy answers, it isn't so.

The aggressions and conquests of today are worse than our own. People who speak so about American expansion just haven't followed Al Smith's suggestion that we "look at the record."

The American record in territorial expansion is no lily-pure sheet, and it falls far short of ideal standards. But in practical comparison with that of other countries it is way above the average.

The record of ruthless warfare and repeatedly broken faith in conflict with the aboriginal Indians is not pretty. We came, we saw their lands, we took them. We killed many.

Yet it might have been worse. Ever since, we have been shelling out millions to keep them in a style to which we would like to have them become accustomed, and there are probably more of them today than there were when Columbus landed.

Our first big expansion was Louisiana in 1803. This vast western area, which raised by 140 per cent the American land area, was bought for 80,000,000 francs. A cheap price, certainly, yet one which Napoleon was glad to get, and which was important money to a struggling and poor young republic.

When we took Florida from Spain, there was coercion certainly, yet we assumed claims up to $5,000,000 against that government. Conscience money? Perhaps, but it at least shows that we had a conscience.

Many still regard the Mexican War as naked aggression. Perhaps it was. Yet just before it broke, we had Slidell in Mexico vainly trying to buy California, and after the utter defeat of the Mexicans, we still paid $15,000,000 for New Mexico and California, and assumed heavy claims of Americans against the Mexican government.

Alaska was bought outright from Russia for $7,200,000. Does it look like a small price? Many people thought Seward was crazy to pay so much.

Even after the complete military defeat of Spain in 1898, when we found the Philippines rather unexpectedly on our hands, we paid $20,000,000 for them. Cuba has been made free and independent.

After the Boxer uprising in China, the U. S. got $24,000,000 of the indemnity, and, deciding in 1907 that it was $13,000,000 too much, handed back that amount to China.

We're not arguing that the American record in imperialistic expansion is 99 44-100ths per cent pure. It isn't.

We only contending that, when stacked up against the record of some other countries, our record of 50 and 100 years ago, remembering that much of the land concerned was practically uninhabited, presents some things of which we can be proud.

The conquerors of Czechoslovakia, Albania and Manchuria must not be allowed to get away with their continual implications that, "Oh, well, you were just as bad 100 years ago."

We weren't. Not by a country mile.

New Ranger Clinic Building Started

Doctors Walter L. Jackson and C. L. Jackson have signed a contract with W. M. Gaudreau, Ranger contractor, for the erection of a new Ranger Clinic Building on North Austin street, near the post office, and across the street from the Oil Belt Motor Building.

The contract calls for a Colonial type sunstone brick veneer building, using sheetrock with textone finish in the interior. It is to be insulated with rock wool.

The building was started Thursday, and should be ready for occupancy in about 45 days. The two Doctors Jackson will remain at their present location on Pine street until the new building is complete.

Wholesale Grocery Gets Car Load of Tea

The C. D. Hartnett company, wholesale grocers of Ranger and Weatherford, has received a full car load of 3-Meal Tea, which is being distributed to grocers here and in other towns served by the wholesale grocery firm.

The tea is a choice orange pekoe and pekoe tea, making a delightful blend, and it can be obtained at all grocers. This is one of the largest single shipments of tea ever received in this part of the state.

Care Is Urged In Filling Out Forms For Social Security

SAN ANGELO — Employers whose wage reports show inaccuracies in reporting the social security account number and the name of each employee are receiving letters from the Social Security Board requesting correction and more care in the future, according to W. O. King, manager of the Social Security Board's field office at San Angelo. He pointed out that even minor discrepancies between the name and account number, as reported by the employer and as they appear on the employee's account number card, cause difficulty and delay in posting wages.

The Board's highly mechanized system of record keeping makes it essential that the employee's account numbers and names given on wage reports agree exactly, both as to the numbers and the spelling of the names, with the employees' original records filed with the Board.

Mr. King explained that even a slight difference between a worker's name, as reported, and as he gave it when he applied for an account number—such as transposition of the letters "e" and "i", the use of a single instead of a double letter, or the omission of a final "s" or "e"—must be corrected before the reported wages can be credited to the proper account. Similar difficulties occur if two digits are transposed in reporting the account number. In such cases the employee's wage report is automatically thrown out of the regular stream of work and requires special handling before it can be posted to the proper employee's account.

E. G. Aycock, chairman of the committee on reservations, said that 63 junior chambers had indicated they would send 453 delegates. Among the cities to be represented are El Paso, Galveston and Tyler—all of which are bidding for the 1940 convention.

Another outstanding speaker scheduled to appear before the Jaycees is President T. O. Walton of Texas A. & M. College. Dr. Walton will address a luncheon group on April 28.

Longhorn May Go On Auto Licenses

By United Press
EL PASO, Tex.—A proposal that the State of Texas adopt the Texas Longhorn as its emblem on automobile license plates was made here by J. Frank Dobie, University of Texas professor.

The longhorn has made more history than any other bovine breed that ever lived, the author and authority on Southwestern folk lore said.

"It is the symbol of Texas," he said. Dobie is on leave of absence from the English department at the University, writing a book on the Texas longhorn, its history, natural history, range tales of mavericks, rawhide, and bull fights on the vast ranches of the west.

Europe would be an ideal place for Daniel Boone. Every day it has new frontiers.

Fishing Season Opens May 1
Fishing season is just around the corner. Many are now beginning to get the fishing tackle in readiness for the grand opening on May 1st. There will be many who will start trying to catch that big bass soon after midnight. Along the shores of our lakes and streams there will be the fishermen with their tackle all ready for the midnight run to sound and send them in all directions. Each trying to be the first to land a keeper, or outsmart the big prize winner that you have had spotted all during the closed season.

From all indications the lake fishing in this section of Texas should be at its best this season. Many lakes have reported a good spawn, but in many cases somewhat later than usual. As a rule the lakes are damaged to some extent by the large number of fish that are taken during February of each year. However this past February was very unfavorable to game fishing thereby giving us a larger number of fish to spawn during the time that they are protected; thus giving us bigger and better bass to catch this coming season. Most of the lakes have maintained a uniform depth during the closed season, and for this reason we will get a larger percent of the spawn hatching successfully.

During the hustle and bustle of preparing for the trip to the favorite fishing spots many are likely to forget some little things that mean so much. If you are an artificial bait fisherman, be sure that you have your license handy, in case an agent wants to see it. It must be remembered that any one who uses artificial lure regardless of age must purchase an artificial lure license. Another thing that will come in handy is a little ruler or some measuring device to see if the fish will stand inspection in case the occasion presents itself.

Resident Fishing License
There are 22 counties in Texas that require any resident citizen of Texas, except those persons under the age of 17 and ones fishing on the land on which they reside, fishing in the following counties to have a resident fishing license costing 55 cents. The holder of an artificial lure license will not be required to hold such license. This law applies to the following counties: Mason, Menard, Kerr, Schleicher, Crockett, Sutton, Kimble, Real, Edwards, Blanco, Llano, Kendall, Gillespie, El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson, Val Verde, Kenny, Maverick, Terrell, Brewster and Harris.

Handle Fish Carefully
If one catches a small fish that will be returned to the water, the hands should be wet before catching hold of the fish. Then handle him as little as possible. This prevents the disturbance of the slime that covers the fish. Should this be broken, sores will form on the fish. The fish should be returned to the water carefully and not thrown thirty or forty feet to the water. Do not take more fish than you can use. The surplus that one takes will usually be wasted and will never do any one any good, whereas if they are left in the water or some friends will have a chance to catch him later.

"Did you know that every fish that the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission raises for free distribution costs seven-tenths of one cent each? Eleven years ago this same fish cost about 47 cents each. About 4,000,000 fish were distributed to Texas waters last year. Cost of production has gone down and volume gone up. From this you can see that the science of fish production has been for your benefit. It is up to you fishermen to help us conserve our fish."

Eastland County Has Large Group Sector Dairy Show

The District Dairy Day held at Abilene was well attended by Eastland County delegations. More than 75 men, women, girls and boys from Eastland County attended the event. Rising Star had the largest delegation to attend from the county. All of the Eastland County extension workers, representatives of the Farm Security office, and several vocational teachers attended, each carrying delegations with them.

Jack Walker, member of the Alameda Dairy Calf Club, exhibited his registered Jersey bull and registered Jersey cow and was awarded a blue ribbon on each animal and was awarded a grand champion ribbon on his bull, this animal being declared the best Jersey bull according to type as established by the American Jersey Cattle Club at the show. Chester Ervin was awarded a red ribbon on his Jersey heifer and Earl Ervin was awarded a white ribbon on his animal. Chester and Earl are both members of the Desdemona Boys 4-H Club. Over one hundred head of Jersey cattle were exhibited at this Dairy Day show. These cattle came from several counties.

A judging contest was conducted in the judging of dairy products and also one in judging of dairy cattle. Mrs. Schrader of Rising Star was the winner of second place in the dairy products judging contest. In the dairy cattle judging contest L. C. Love, Alameda 4-H Club member, tied for first place, making 385 points out of 400 points.

Bones Believed Those Of '63 Fire Victims

By United Press
BIVALE, N. J. — Skeletons of persons lost in a fire on East Point, off this fishing settlement, 76 years ago, were believed to be the bones unearthed by W. P. A. workers digging draining ditches. A fire swept a hotel on East Point more than three-fourths of a century ago and several persons were reported missing after the blaze. Natives believe four skeletons dug up are those of the missing persons.

Another theory was that the skeletons were bones buried in an old Indian cemetery on East Point. Indians had camps throughout this section of Cumberland county at one time.
