FRANCE JOINS PROPOSAL

French-Belgians Openly Aid New Rhineland Republic

TROOPS HELP TO EXTEND GRIP TO SEVERAL TOWNS

Loyalist Attempts to Regain Control Are Quickly Smothered

COBLENZ IS CAPITAL

Military Curfew Prevents the Loyalists From Returning

By The Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Oct. 26.—Open and active French support enabled the Rhineland republic today to extend its hold over a number of small towns and villages. French and Belgian troops enlarged their policing activities in republican controlled towns and quickly suppressed disorders growing out of attempts by the loyalists to throw out the separatist groups.

Joseph Matthes and his supporters in the separatist movement still hold Coblenz, which became the capital of the new republic overnight, when the French military curfew kept loyalists off the streets while the separatists, who previously had been driven from the town, returned and marched down the streets past the French sentries and took over the government buildings.

Cook, charged with using the United States mails in carrying on oil promotion schemes, with the operations of the Petroleum Producers Association who took the stand this afternoon.

Unemployed Mob Takes Krupp Plant

Police Powerless to Dislodge Barricaded Thousands; Seven Killed and Two Hundred Wounded Reported.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A mob of several thousand unemployed seized the Krupp works at Essen today and barricaded themselves in the main buildings, says a dispatch to The Daily Express from Essen. At least seven persons were killed and two hundred wounded in a desperate fight with the "blue" police, who are described as inadequate to deal with the situation.

The attack, according to the Express correspondent, developed at noon a few hours after Dr. Krupp von Bohlen and his three co-directors in the Krupp company returned to Essen on parole from the Dusseldorf prison.

MEANEST MAN IS IN THE CITY

The "meanest man in the world," who kills little chickens, pulls up young corn, robs the baby's bank and the like has been busy in Wichita Falls again, according to Detective Chief Dave May.

The latest work of the meanest man is when he picked on a local real estate dealer. The M. M. slipped out while the realtor was gone and sawed four spokes in the rear wheel of a new Buick nearly in two. The real estate man when he came back to his car and started off, got about half a block and the wheel gave way.

The four spokes that had been sawed were brought to the detective chief's office. "A man who is that low down is too big a coward to fight and has to sneak around and do a little thing like this," was the comment of the detective chief.

Klan Will Not Be Involved Says Sen. Underwood

By The Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 26.—Declaring that the keynote of the coming presidential campaign will be the situation in Europe, and the duty of the United State toward those nations, and that the ku klux klan will not be involved, Senator Oscar W. Underwood addressed a large crowd of San Antonioans tonight in the ball room of a leading hotel. Every inch of floor space was occupied, and the crowd overflowed into the halls and corridors of the building.

"The situation is imperative and unless the United States accepts its responsibilities within the next four years, Europe will be ruined, and the disaster probably will encircle the globe," the senator said. "During the past four years, there has been nothing done through diplomatic channels or otherwise, by this government, to help poor Europe.

"As far as your government is concerned, it has ceased to function in Europe, and disaster faces the world.

"It is only reasonable to expect that a man in office, where he appoints other men to offices, will favor, where possible, his friends, and it probably is for this reason that the south has had so few men on this commission," Underwood said, adding that in eighty years, the south had not named, nominated or elected a president of the United States.

"A great many people are of the opinion that the fall in the price of cotton was due to the war, but if they will stop to think about it, they will know that they are wrong. The guns of war consumed more cotton than the mills of Manchester ever did, or ever will, but—with the opening of the conflict, England took all her ships into her own service, and left our cotton to collect at the ports like water at a dam, and to come back on us just like water does."

KELLOGG CHOICE FOR COL. HARVEY ST. JAMES POST

News of Ex-Senator's Appointment Comes as Surprise

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Frank B. Kellogg, former United States senator from Minnesota, has been selected by President Coolidge as American ambassador to Great Britain. Formal announcement is withheld for the present, but the appointment is expected to become effective soon.

News that Mr. Kellogg had been chosen to succeed George Harvey, whose resignation recently was accepted, created a stir at the capitol. Heretofore, Mr. Kellogg's name had not been mentioned prominently in connection with the ambassadorship.

After a service of six years in the senate, Mr. Kellogg was a candidate for re-election last November, but defeated by 80,000 votes in the political upheaval in the northwest, which has swept two farmer-labor senators into office from his state and resulted in the election from other states of senators who have been prominent in the non-partisan league. Throughout his political life, Mr. Kellogg has stood against these political tendencies. He has been a regular of the regular republicans, and was a close personal friend of the late President Harding.

Unlike Ambassador Harvey, who is regarded as a "bitter ender" in the league of nations controversy, Mr. Kellogg was counted among the "mildest" in the senate fight over the treaty of Versailles.

He also was a supporter in the senate and since his retirement, of President Harding's proposal for American participation on the world court.

Shain Jewelry Store Burglarized Here

Six Watches Recovered; 18-Year-Old Boy Arrested.

The Shain Loan and Jewelry company show window was broken into about midnight and an 18-year-old boy captured 30 minutes later in the railroad yards and six watches valued at $250 taken off of him.

The first report of the robbery turned into the police station was a few minutes after midnight. Officers dispatched to the scene found the jewelry store window broken open and an ice cream freezer handle laying nearby. A few minutes later men from the railroad yard telephoned a youth was trying to sell some watches to employees. Night Chief Will Allen and his force went at once in search of the young man.

Every man on duty at night in the downtown area joined in the chase for the fugitive. The night clerk of the St. James hotel left his duties and was one of the foremost in the chase. Finally the boy entered the roundhouse and walked into a trap. Railroad Detectives Somerville and McClure were in the crowd the lad approached. Asking if any of them wanted to buy a good watch, the officers allowed the boy to question them. After talking to the lad a little while, Somerville and McClure searched him and found the six watches.

The watches were two Howards, Walthams, Illinois and an Elgin. One was a ladies' wrist watch.

After the youth had been placed in jail and the jewelry taken from him, he told his story to Night Chief Will Allen. He said he had lived in Wichita Falls several years and had gone to public school here. He had worked for a local refinery and in the railroad yards as a call boy about 18 months. He said the past week he had been working for a farmer near town for $2 a day.

"For a long time I have been trying to get enough money ahead to go to California. I have a brother out there who is making $225 a month. I tried every way I could to work and get money honestly. It looked like the more I worked the harder it was for me to get by. I came to town today and kept thinking about going to California.

"Tonight I was lonesome and finally I figured if I could steal those watches and sell them I could get enough to go to California and get a good job with my brother. I watched the jewelry store window for about two hours. Finally when no one was looking, I slipped up, knocked the glass out and grabbed a bunch of watches. I then went to the railroad yards and tried to sell them to a bunch of the railroad boys I had worked with," he told the night chief.

The boy said he had never stolen anything before in his life and had paid just one fine, that for fighting. He said he just couldn't think of any other way of getting money.

From the time the jewelry store was robbed until the stolen goods were recovered, only 45 minutes elapsed. Art Shain proprietor of the store said there was a possibility of some rings having been taken by the boy and was checking up late last night.

ORDER WALTON BEFORE SENATE FOR HIS TRIAL

Trial Date Gives Governor Six Days to File His Answer

MAY START SOONER

Impeachment Bill Completed After Five Days Consideration

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 26. Governor J. C. Walton late today was ordered to trial before a senate court of impeachment on November 1 on official misconduct charges presented by the lower house of the state legislature.

The senate set the trial date to conform to the law allowing the governor six days in which to file his answer to the allegations and enter a plea. It was said, however, that should the executive reply to the charges before hand, the trial immediately would be started.

At that time a date will be set for his trial.

Date for the arraignment was set immediately after a board of house managers had presented to the court a bill embodying 22 charges, the entire number drafted by the house committee on investigation and impeachment.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 26. The impeachment articles, containing charges against Governor J. C. Walton were presented to the state senate late today by a committee of house managers headed by W. E. Disney of Muskogee, chairman of the investigation committee that drafted the bill. Tom Anglin, president of the senate, received the articles and notified the house managers that they would be given to the court of impeachment.

Immediately the senate resolved itself into a court with Chief Justice Johnson of the state supreme court presiding and the house managers prepared to place their charges formally before the court.

The house completed its bill of impeachment after five days of consideration.

The eight articles approved today charges the governor with issuing state police commissions to large numbers of "irresponsible persons," censoring the press, issuing illegal deficiency certificates on two occasions, falsifying his primary campaign expenses, abuse of the pardon and parole powers, receiving funds from various sources for his personal use and general incompetency.

The entire 22 charges were approved by the house with heavy majorities except article 14, charging the governor with an impeachable offense in that he refused to permit the capital punishment laws of the state to be carried out. This charge was approved by a vote of 91 to 42. The article charging him with abridging the freedom of the press was sustained 82 to 1. This was the largest number of votes cast for any article.

Testimony read today in the house related to the charges involving censorship of the press, the issuance of a deficiency certificate for a state home for negro orphans and campaign expenses.

Some of the bitterest words of the session were heard just before the vote on the final article of the bill, alleging general incompetence.

Representative Miller, democrat, Tulsa, urging approval of the article, declared that "after ten months of Governor Walton's administration begun under the most auspicious circumstances in the state's history, we find a great state disgraced, a treasury looted, a government corrupted.

"We have passed through an inferno," Miller said, "but the morning is here and this legislature will be reviewed in history as a legislature that had the courage to beard the lion in his den and stop this man in his career."

His remarks were concluded amid loud applause.

The house board of managers, named by Speaker McBee to prosecute the governor in his trial by the senate court, is composed of Representatives Disney, democrat, Muskogee; Stovall, democrat, Choctaw; Tolbert, democrat, Kiowa; Wren, democrat, Okfuskee; Pullen, democrat, Murray; Orjen, republican, Garfield; and Salter, republican, Alfalfa.

AGENTS FIRED; FARMERS ANGRY

Special Election Threatened in Clay County After Discharge

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Oct. 26.—An issue between the county commissioners' court and the Henrietta chamber of commerce has been precipitated following the discharge by the commissioners last week of T. B. Lewis, county agent and Miss Mary Sitton, county demonstration agent.

So greatly has the local chamber of commerce and the great majority of the farmers of Clay county resented the action of the commissioners in discharging the agents, a special election is probably going to be held to vote on the action of the commissioners.

The directors of the local chamber of commerce in regular session Friday noon passed a resolution regarding the matter which puts the issue squarely up to the four commissioners. The resolution as passed by the directors, demands the commissioners rescind their action or put the issue to a vote of the people of Clay county.

County Judge J. S. Vaden has called a special session of the commissioners' court to be held next November 2. At this time Judge Vaden will ask the commissioners to rescind their action in discharging the agent or give Clay county citizens the opportunity to show them whether they did right or wrong in the matter.

Against Commissioner Louie Brown particularly have the farmers of Clay county and the members of the Henrietta chamber of commerce expressed themselves since the two agents were discharged. The same issue came up a year ago and Brown fought strong against the appointment of the agents again. At that time the issue was a tie and County Judge Vaden voting for the retaining of the agents, resulted in the county having their service another year.

"The only thing that the farmers in Clay county have ever gotten from the county commissioners which was for the farmers sole benefit and not for the rest of the county, was the appointment of the two agents. Now that these have been taken away from us, the farmers feel they are getting cheated out of the greatest benefit they can reap from the taxes they have paid," one prominent farmer said Friday.

That County Agents Lewis and Miss Sitton have done much for the farmers of Clay county the past year is the opinion expressed here. If the matter comes to a vote, it is believed the issue will carry overwhelmingly in favor of retaining the agents. Talk of recalling, if possible, the commissioners from office and electing some that are friendly toward the interests of the farmer, is being freely made here.

The resolution of the chamber of commerce here condemning the commissioners and praising the work of the county agents is believed to be the means that will get speedy action from the court. The commissioners when asked why they apparently overrode the wishes of the great majority of their constituents in the matter, said they thought the expense of employing the agents was too much. This argument is combated by the farmers and other friends of the agents by pointing out that the state and federal government pays a great part of the expense.

TEXAS DATA IS ASKED IN PROBE

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 26.—Secretary of State S. L. Staples today began gathering data on the number of Texas prisoners pardoned and paroled during the last six years, to be furnished counsel for Governor J. C. Walton of Oklahoma. Request for this data was received today from W. R. Riddle, Walton's attorney. The statistics will require a lengthy examination of the department's records and compilation will probably require several days it was stated tonight.

CURZON-HUGHES PLANS FAVORED

Lloyd-George "Interested"; Visits Tomb of the Unknown Soldier

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 While David Lloyd George, war time premier of Great Britain, devoted today, his second day in Washington, chiefly to pilgrimages to Arlington national cemetery and Mount Vernon, and to call upon the disabled soldiers at Walter Reed hospital, public questions did not escape his attention.

The reparations situation in the light of latest developments, attracted his interest, and tonight he conferred with Secretary Hughes at the latter's home for an hour.

Invited to Mr. Hughes' residence an hour in advance of others who attended a dinner given to honor the distinguished visitor, the two had opportunity to discuss questions in which they are mutually interested. Although no statement was made concerning the conversation it was assumed that the latest phase of the reparation question, as well as other matters of public interest were discussed.

Throughout the day the reparation situation held the interest of the former premier. Walking from his hotel suite to breakfast with William Jennings Bryan, he remarked to friends that "those are remarkably interesting telegrams between Lord Curzon and Secretary Hughes in the newspapers"

In conference with newspaper correspondents, he spoke hopefully of the situation and indicated that on the basis of latest advices from Europe, he believed a distinct advance had been made toward a solution of the problem. Once an investigation is begun into Germany's capacity to pay, he declared, he would be hopeful of a successful outcome.

At both Arlington and Mount Vernon, Mr. Lloyd George paid homage to the memorial of America's dead. Accompanied by Secretary Weeks of the war department, he went to the Amphitheatre at the cemetery, and, bareheaded, approached the tomb of the unknown soldier upon which he placed an simple wreath without inscription.

After standing silent a moment, he retraced his steps to his automobile, and was driven to the mansion, which Robert E. Lee left to go to the civil war, for a brief inspection and a glimpse of the views of Washington with the Lincoln memorial, the Washington monumment and the dome of the capital standing out prominently in the panorama beyond the Potomac.

POSSE SEARCHING FOR BANK BANDITS

By The Associated Press.

EFFINGHAM, Ills., Oct. 26. — A posse of deputy sheriff's and citizens tonight were searching the countryside near here for three bandits who robbed the state bank of commerce of approximately $6,000 and escaped this morning.

A report that the bandits were holding at bay the posse and had barricaded themselves in the timber was found to be untrue.

The robbery occurred this morning shortly after the time lock on the vault was released. The three bandits unmasked and flourishing pistols, entered the bank and compelled David B. Crews, president and the cashier, the only persons in the bank, to lie face down on the floor. One of the bandits stood guard over the men while the other two systematically rifled every drawer and depository in the bank.

'BESET' ON ALL SIDES, POINCARE FALLS IN LINE

No Government Now Bars Hughes-Curzon Reparation Probe

FRENCH PRESS OBJECTS

Are Afraid Project Will Reduce Reparation Amount

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The French government has accepted the British proposal for an examination into Germany's capacity to pay reparations. It is regarded in diplomatic circles that Premier Poincare has thus avoided a bad turning in France's international relations, for this morning when the American note and Prime Minister Baldwin's speech were published here, he appeared to be beset on all sides.

Defied by the German chancellor in a speech which was regarded as presaging prolongation and intensification of the troubles with the reich, and summoned by his allied associates to accept the principle of a conference which he had hitherto steadily rejected, the French premier seemed to have been isolated, if not cornered.

His prompt acceptance of one of the alternative proposals made by the British prime minister clears the atmosphere, and while nothing is expected by French officials to come from a re-estimate of Germany's capacity France will have at least avoided the appearance of hanging back on a proposal approved by the American government.

A high official of the foreign office tonight declared that M. Poincare's decision was largely influenced by the American approval of the project. France, he added, was particularly happy to welcome and facilitate all she could such participation by the United States in settlement of the European tangle as the American government saw fit to undertake.

"Lights Europe"

LONDON, Oct. 26.—America's decision to lend her advice and co-operation in a conference for the settlement of the German reparation muddle seems to have lighted Europe out of the slough of depression.

Secretary Hughes' prompt and decisive response to Marquis Curzon's plea for American assistance has given impetus to a situation which has heretofore been marked by utter inertia, and for the first time today British officials began to see a rift in the mists which have so long enveloped the problem.

America's voice, stressing the imperative need of finding a suitable financial plan to prevent economic disaster in Europe, found prompt echoes in Paris, Brussels and Rome, for it became known late this afternoon that the British foreign office that France Belgium and Italy had all accepted the possibility of an advisory conference of experts.

While the British authorities would have preferred a full conference of ministers to liquidate the reparation troubles, they hope the plenipotentiary conference of experts will lead to a larger council of all concerned and American statesmen.

France's consent to enter the advisory conference of experts will involve the question of acceptance of the American principle that the inter-allied debts and German reparations must be divorced, a point upon which Premier Poincare heretofore has differed from Great Britain and the United States.

France will also have to face the question of reducing the amount of indemnity expected from Germany under the Versailles treaty which in the past has been fixed at 6,600,000,000 pounds sterling, or 132,000,000,000 gold marks. This sum, and the question of granting a moratorium to Germany, were the points which led to the failure of the last expert bankers' commission, of which J. P. Morgan was a member.

PHILANTHROPIST SUDDENLY DIES

William Buchanan Has Recently Created Large Charity Fund

Special to The Record News.

TEXARKANA, Texas, Oct. 26.—William Buchanan, capitalist, lumberman and railroad president, died at his home here at 7:30 o'clock this morning, after a lingering illness. His funeral will be held here at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Buchanan was one of the earliest settlers of Bowie county, coming here over 50 years ago, shortly before the organization of the town of Texarkana in December, 1875. He brought with him a small sawmill which was used to cut into lumber the trees that were felled when the streets were laid out. From this little mill grew the great lumber industries now controlled by the Buchanan interests, with seven mills in operation, two of which have a capacity of 250,000 feet of lumber per day. The Buchanan lumber companies give employment to between 4,000 and 5,000 men.

Mr. Buchanan's railroad interests were centered in the Arkansas and Louisiana Railroad company of which he was president and to which for the past ten years he devoted the major portion of his time. In equipment and physical condition, the road is regarded as one of the finest small lines in the country. Its 300 miles of track connect Hope, Arkansas, and Alexandria, La., with a branch line from Minden to Shreveport, and another from Packton, La., to Vidalia, Natchez, Miss.

On October 8, Mr. Buchanan created the William Buchanan foundation, which he endowed with a million dollars, the revenue of the foundation to be used for the alleviation of suffering and distress of humanity.

Mr. Buchanan is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hannah C. Buchanan, one son, W. J. Buchanan; one daughter, Mrs. Helen Buchanan Seeger, and two little grand daughters, Mary and Hannah Seeger. His brother, J. A. Buchanan, is a resident of Texarkana, Ark.

'BESET' ON ALL

of Germany's capacity to pay reparations strikes the afternoon newspapers as futile and objectionable, because they see in it an effort to reduce the amount of reparation. They find it futile because they say the question is political rather than financial. Germany, they assert, is hopelessly bankrupt as any economic expert must agree, but if by some means she could be inspired with a desire to pay, then she could clean house and pay, for her capacity in the future is entirely dependent upon her good will.

"Germany's trouble," says the Temps, "is caused by her fraud, the occupation of which alone will assure payment of reparations and by British credit, for which British industry today is paying the penalty."

The newspaper asserts the latter is due to the fact that Great Britain broke the allied entente and co-operation, which, had it been maintained, would have avoided German resistance and the present chaos.

The Temps says the British policy, which dates back to the first Duke of Marlborough and still survives in Lord Curzon's mind, "is to prevent the creation on the Rhine of a political situation that would guarantee France's security.

Berlin Pleased

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—Much satisfaction was expressed in government circles today over the report that the plan of Secretary of State Hughes for the appointment of an international commission to ascertain Germany's capacity to pay reparations had been accepted as the basis of a proposal for a discussion of the subject. It was pointed out that Germany has been a constant supporter of the program of Secretary Hughes from the moment it was put forward by him in his speech in New Haven last December.

Notwithstanding what was deemed the caution manifested in the American reply to the British government's "feelers" regarding the conference, official quarters evinced satisfaction over Premier Baldwin's speech at Plymouth Thursday night and what were termed the frank utterances of General Jan Christian Smuts, the South African premier, in his two recent talks on the subject of reparations. The speeches of both statesmen were characterized as material contributions to the attempt to revive discussion of the question of Germany's ability to pay reparations.

League Favorable.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Oct. 26.—The proposal to hold a conference on reparations is heartily favored in league of nations circles. Indirectly, but warmly the proposal was strongly supported at today's session of the international labor conference, when the labor leaders, headed by E. L. Poulton, British delegate, laid emphasis on the urgency of remedial economic measures for Europe "if mankind is to be saved from annihilation."

Cricket's Song Reproduced Good In Radio Test

One of the most astonishing stories yet credited to radio is now being circulated among broadcasters all over the United States. This story concerns the successful broadcasting of a cricket's song by KHJ, Los Angeles station.

This stunt was the result of an exeriment with some new storage batteries which have just been installed at KHJ.

Mr. K. G. Ormiston, operator of KHJ was just closing up the station after the first evening's program in which the storage batteries had been used. In a bunch of flowers in the studios, he heard a cricket chirping merrily and a bright idea struck him at that moment. Placing the flowers close to the microphone, he started the automatic piano playing very soft music. Then going into the operating room he listened in on the studio microphone and in a few moments the cricket started its song again. Switching on the announcing phone, he announced a special midnight concert kindly volunteered by Miss Cricket. Then the main microphone was switched on.

Over a hundred letters were received congratulating KHJ on the novelty of such a program and the clearness with which the tiny cricket's chirp came through the air. The Willard Storage Battery company, from whom Mr. Ormiston had obtained the storage batteries had claimed that they would clear up the broadcasting to a wonderful degree, but Mr. Ormiston had never expected the results would be so perfect. KHJ received one letter from New Zealand reporting on this novelty. This station had never received word before that its broadcasting was "getting out" so far.

'BAT' THRILLS LOCAL AUDIENCE

Famous Mystery Performance Is Enjoyed by Full Theatre

Who is the Bat, That is what kept the audience in suspense at the Palace theatre last night at the first performance of "The Bat," the play taken from the book of the same name by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood. The theatre was filled almost to its capacity, and the interest of the listeners held them silent through many of the tense portions of the drama.

The first scene opened in the living room of Miss Van Gordon's Long Island home. It was then that the mysterious performances of the Bat began. The servants were hysterical, and a sense of mystery pervaded the atmosphere. The second scene was laid in the same place and the intensity of the situation increased. The little romance which was connected with the story kept it from becoming too serious.

Carrie Weller as Lizzie, the house maid, and the maid of Miss Van Gordon, played her part with skill, and her humorous speeches brought much applause.

Candle light, murder and mystery lent a foreboding feeling to the last scene which was in the garrett of the Long Island home. Mable Wright as Miss Cornelia Van Gordon, Orrin Shear as Billy, the Japanese butler, John S. Clubley as Brooks, the gardener, Ellen Crowe as Miss Dale Ogden, Ernest Howard as Dr. Wells, G. A. Wilson as Anderson, the detective, Gordon Eldrid as Richard Fleming, Chas. Merriwell as Reginald Bereesford, and Robert Dunbar as the unknown man proved their work as artists.

"The Bat" will be given today in the matinee and tonight. The production was thrilling and mysterious and was aided by music from an excellent orchestra which played during intermissions.

Fans Want Norma as "Juliet."

Norma Talmadge established herself as Chicago's favorite Juliet and gained considerable publicity for her current Windy City attraction, "Ashes of Vengeance," by wining a contest conducted by Mae Tinee of the Chicago Tribune.

Miss Tinee conducted the contest in order to test public sentiment in regard to the player most favored by Chicago theatergoers for the role of "Juliet" in a contemplated screen version of the Shakespearean classic. After seven days of balloting, the First National star was returned the winner with a plurality of more than three thousand votes. Rodolph Valentino won the verdict in the "Romeo" contest with Conway Tearle, one of the stars of "Ashes of Vengeance," leading contender.

Comment From Electra.

Wednesday's "Stage and Screen" mentioned Anna Katherine Green, the 47-year-old author of several film successes, as "Miss Green;" and referred to her home in Rochester, N. Y.

This morning's mail brings us a letter from Iva Green Troxel of Electra, who reads the "colyum" and is interested in stage and screen folk.

"I'm an old Buffalonian," Mrs. Troxel says, "and Anna Katherine Green has always lived in Buffalo. She's always been one of our distinguished citizens of whom we were proud. She is not a 'Miss' but a 'Mrs.'—in private life her name is Mrs. Chas. Rohlfs, her husband being an eminent reader of Buffalo, N. Y."

"I never had a personal acquaintance with Mrs. Rohlfs," the letter continues, "although I knew both her and her husband by sight. I always read anything about her with interest and thought maybe you didn't know some of the foregoing."

"We didn't know about her husband, and that her home town was Buffalo instead of Rochester, and we think this bit of personal news very interesting. Write in again, we enjoyed your letter.

Scaramouche Opens.

Rex Ingram's production for Metro, "Scaramouche," opened at the Shubert-Academy in Baltimore last week for an indefinite run. The house is now sold out for many weeks ahead, it is reported.

"Scaramouche" opened for indefinite runs last Sunday in three cities; at the Al Woods theater in Chicago, at Cox's theater in Cincinnati and in New York at the Forty-fourth Street theater.

The picture will open in several other large cities within a few days, and within a short time it is set to play in every large key city in the country.

Half Completed.

More than half of the scenes for "The Marriage Circle," the first production which Ernst Lubitsch is making for the Warner Brothers, have been completed at the Warner's studio in Hollywood. Following the completion of the feature, Lubitsch will begin production of another Warner classic.

Players Added to Cast.

Three important players have been added to the cast of William S. Hart's production, "Wild Bill Hickok," which he is making for Paramount release.

Omar Whitehead has been cast for the role of Abraham Lincoln, Charles Dudley in the role of ill-fated General Custer and William DeVaull as General Sheridan. Clifford Smith is directing the picture.

Kirkwood and Lila Lee.

James Kirkwood and Lila Lee have been signed by Thomas H. Ince to play the leading roles in a special production entitled "The Painted Woman," according to advices from Hollywood this week.

Wallace Beery and Matt Moore will also be in the cast. Production work is to start very soon.

Farnum Picture Finished.

The latest Dustin Farnum picture, completed at the William Fox West Coast Studios, is "The Grail," a George Scarborough story directed by Colin Campbell. The scenario is the work of Charles Kenyon. Peggy Shaw and Alma Bennett assist the stars.

HIGH SENIORS TO GIVE A PLAY

At a meeting of the senior class of the high school recently, the members decided to give a play within the near future. A comedy-drama, "Niobe, All Smiles," by Harry and Edward Paulton, was chosen.

The cast will be chosen next week from the members of the senior class, with Miss Juanita Kinsey as director.

TODAY IS NAVY DAY

In view of the fact that October 27 has been designated by the Navy League of the United States as a day of observance of our interest in our navy, it is fitting to recall some of its services to our country in peace as well as in war.

It should be said that the navy is not a financial burden, but an industrial asset that has returned more in economic values than its cost; that it has never caused a war or tempted the country to go to war, but has been one of our greatest preservers of peace; that it is standing guard over our people in every quarter of the globe; that it is training, developing and educating thousands of young men in the best school in the world; that it is turning them back to civil life better neighbors and better civilians, with increased earning power, through skill in many trades.

We believe it important that our citizens, every one of whom is a stockholder in the navy, should take pains to know what his navy is doing in order that this great organization that stands guard over America shall not suffer through the apathy or ignorance of its owners, the people.

The following letter of the president of the United States is quoted in setting forth the purpose of Navy day and the necessity of the proper maintenance of our navy:

"My dear Mr. Secretary:

"It has been pleasing to learn of the plans to continue this year the observance of October 27th, birthday of the late President Roosevelt, as Navy day. The date is appropriate in view of the part President Roosevelt played in making our modern navy, of his historical writings dealing with it, and of the demonstrations which, as president, he gave regarding the effective utilization of naval power as a guarantee of peace.

"Our country has undertaken as its proper contribution to ameliorating the burdens of armament in the world, to place certain strict limits on our naval establishment. In view of these, which it need not be said will always be strictly observed, it becomes desirable that the highest efficiency, in men and material, be maintained. The navy is the first line of defense. Our national situation makes it peculiarly important to us, for we have never been committed to the policy of a large army, relying to a greater extent than less favored countries might, on the advantages of our location and our confidence in an adequate navy. The traditional devotion of the navy to the highest usefulness and efficiency makes it especially fitting that Navy day be so observed as to show the country's appreciation of this splendid service.

"Most sincerely yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE."

"Hon. Edwin Denby,
Secretary of the Navy.

WILSON'S BLACKLIST

Woodrow Wilson has advised the voters of Tennessee to retire John K. Shields to private life. Senator Shields would not vote for the ratification of the league of nations as the covenant was writ. This made him an enemy of the House of Wilson.

The former president advised the democrats of Missouri to retire Senator James A. Reed to private life. Fifty thousand Republicans voted with the Reed democrats and the fighting senator from the west was given another term of six years. Something like this may happen in Tennessee.

The former president is a citizen of New Jersey. He is a friend of Edwards, the wet senator from New Jersey. Politics make strange bed-fellows.

WHAT HAPPENED?

President Coolidge asked the American railway operators or rather recommended to them that they reduce wheat and petroleum freight rates. Then the stocks tumbled in Wall Street.

There are American politicians who insist that railway property should be taxed peak valuations by state authority and that the national authority shall reduce the valuations of railway property to the lowest figure.

There are others who insist that rail employes should be paid the highest of wages while others are demanding that freight rates shall be cut to the bone.

Some problem, this rail and freight problem now agitating the American people. How would the people like to go back to the ox-cart period of civilization?

PANTOMIME -:- By J. H. Striebel

But They Don't Seem to Go

Black Money

BY J. S. FLETCHER AUTHOR OF "SCARAWAY KEEP," "THE BOROUGH TREASURER," ETC.

"Oh, I don't know," responded Lord Morradale. "If Matherfield nabs those fellows they will give in and tell where their captives are. Anyway, there is nothing else to trust to—we must trust to Matherfield."

But that afternoon another clue developed. Mapperly, noting the stationer's name on Mme. Listorelle's letter to the care-taker of the flat, had with some difficulty found that he had sold paper similar to a man who had had the address "56, Little Smith street," embossed on it. And the purchaser's description was that of Dr. Cyprian Baseverie.

A directory showed that "56, Little Smith street" was occupied by a lodging house run by Mrs. Hanna Mallett, and thither they hastened, to be met by Mr. Garsten, whom Maperly had left on watch. He materialized suddenly, apparently from nowhere, and smiled.

"Afternoon, Mister,' he said to Hetherwick. "Ain't been a soul in or out o' that house since you left, Mapperly. Seems to me it's locked up."

Hetherwick advanced boldly to the door of Number 56, and knocked loudly on the stout panel, supplementing this with a ring at the bell.

He heard the sound of a stout bold being withdrawn; then of a key being turned. The door was opened—only sufficiently to show an unusually big woman, an Amazon in appearance.

"Is Doctor Baseverie in?" he inquired.

"Nobody of that name here!" she answered and suddenly banged the door to, narrowly missing Hetherwick's hand. A second later the bolt slipped and the key turned And Hetherwick, as with a swift illumination, comprehended things.

"Mapperly!" he exclaimed. "Sure as Fate!" Those ladies are in there! Trapped!"

The kidnapping, it turned out, was a scheme to get some gems Mme. Listorelle had. Matherfield goes in search of them while Hetherwick dened admittance to a boarding house where a clue had led them, believes the women are concealed there.

Ambrose

Going down the street and retreating into a doorway the three men held a consultation, suddenly interrupted by Garsten.

"The woman's leavin' the house!" he said. "Lockin' the door behind her, too! Goin' up the street!"

"Follow!" Hetherwick ordered.

Garsten and the hurrying woman presently disappeared round a corner.

"That's the result of our call, Mapperly!" said Hetherwick. "She's gone somewhere—to tell somebody! We'll keep a close watch on the house, until Garsten comes back."

The woman came first, hurrying up the street, flustered, distressed, upset and reentered the house.

Garsten came and told the story.

"Round that corner," he said, "you get into a regular slum. Little streets, alleys, and so on. In one of 'em, Pencove street, where there's a sort of open-air market, there's a good sized piece of blank wall, with an iron-faced door in it. Well, the woman went in there—let herself in with a key that she took from her pocket. The door's faced with iron, or steel, as I said—jolly strong. The wall's ten feet high covered with broken glass at the top. She came out again in about ten minutes—looked to me, too, as if she hadn't had a very pleasant time inside. Upset! And she set off back here."

Mapperly sent for the police, and, acting on Hetherwick's orders, met him and Garsten at the Pencove street place.

With him was Sergeant Robmore and other officers. They procured a ladder, climbed the wall and entered the house within. There was not a sign of life in it.

"Nobody here, apparently," murmmured one of the men. Flown!" But a sudden shout came from Garsten, who had gone to the upper rooms.

"Come up here—come up, all of you. Here's a man here, a-sittin' in a chair—dead."

Robmore and Hetherwick reached him first.

The head of the dead man lay against the padding of the chair and the face was fully visible. It was—to Hetherwick—the face of a stranger; yet he was certain that he was looking on the man known to them by repute as Ambrose—disguised of course; he had shaved off the dark beard and mustache.

"That's—that's just how Hannaford looked when he died in the railway carriage!" he whispered."

"Poisoned!" exclaimed Rodmore. "Well, what about the other man?" "Baseverie!" exclaimed Hetherwick.

"Why not? To rid himself of an accomplice! Well the Little Smith Street landlady is living, and we'll make her find her tongue! Of course, she came in here expecting to find this man, and to tell him somebody was on the lookout. And—she found him dead! Come round there with me, Mr. Hetherwick, at once."

The door of Mrs. Mallett's house looked more closely barred than ever, but it opened at a touch and for the second time that afternoon Hetherwick walked into a place that seemed to be wholly deserted.

"I'll tell you what it is, Mr. Hetherwick!" exclaimed Robmore. "This house is empty! Empty of people, anyway."

It struck me that this might be the place where the two ladies were detained," remarked Hetherwick.

"We'll soon see about that," declared Robmore. "We'll search the place from top to bottom."

He led the way up the main staircase. On the upmost ploor there were only two rooms—one was unfurnished; at the door of the other, a few inches ajar, the detective paused.

"Look, Mr. Hetherwick!" he said. "Here's recent work! Do you see that—a strong bolt, more like a bar has been fitted on the outside of this door? And the door itself fitted with a new patent lock—key outside. And good Lord—a chain as well! Might be in a jail! But what's inside?"

He pushed the door open and revealed a large room, fitted with two small beds, easy-chairs, a table on which newspapers lay.

"Jail, did I say?" he exclaimed. "Why this is a jail! Windows fitted with iron bars. This, probably, is where these ladies were locked up. But—they're gone! I figure it out like this: the landlady who's acted as sort of jailer, when she made that discovery round yonder, came back here, got her outdoor things and cleared off. But before she went, she'd the decency to slip up here, undo that chain, slip the bolt back, and turn the key! Then, no doubt, she made tracks at express speed, leaving the ladies to do what they liked. And they, Mr. Hetherwick, having a bit o' common sense about 'em, did what I should ha' done—they hooked it as quick as possible. That's that, sir!"

"Then I'm off, Robmore said Hetherwick. "Probably they'd go to Penteney's office."

At the office he found that Penteney, however, had gone out after getting a telephone call, but at his chambers, he met his caretaker.

"Been a young lady inquiring for you, Mr. Hetherwick," said the man. "She said—but there she is, sir—oming back."

Hetherwick saw Rhona coming across the square. Hurrying to meet her he took both her hands in his in a fashion that brought the color to her cheeks.

"You're all right—safe?" he asked quickly. "Sure?"

"I'm all right and quite safe, thank you, she answered.

Hetherwick led her into his sitting-room. Then suddenly and impulsively he bent and kissed her.

"By gad!" he said in a low voice, "I didn't know how anxious I was about you until I saw you."

Rhona detailed her adventures which were just as the officers had figured out. As she ended a wire from Matherfield arrived. "Meet me Waterloo arriving eight-twenty" it read.

The vast space between the station buildings and the entrances to the platform at Waterloo was thronged when Hetherwick and Rhona arrived, and were greeted by Robmore who also had a telegram. They talked a short time when a sharp exclamation from Rhona made both men turn to her.

"Baseverie—himself!" she said. "There—going toward the gates!"

Robmore slipped away and spoke to a couple of quiet looking men who presently glanced at Baseverie.

Baseverie was glancing at the clock. Soon out of the gloom the train came sighing up the side of the platform. The passengers emerged and began filing toward the exit. Hetherwick's arm was suddenly gripped by Rhona.

We saw a man going down street yesterday with an ice cream colored suit on. We do not know how he felt, but someway he reminded us of a comet.

The information comes to us that the banana crop has failed. Do you suppose that fool banana song was responsible? Anyhow, we get a crumb of comfort out of the fact that having accomplished what it set out to do "Yes, We Have No Bananas" probably will retire and give something else a chance.

A Britisher has in the process of invention a substitute for sleep. It is an electrical contrivance of some sort. Personally, we hope his invention will prove a failure. Sleep is one of the greatest joys of life. If a fellow didn't sleep any he wouldn't enjoy the great satisfaction of getting away from himself.

The would-be-inventor says it will revolutionize work. Bunk. People wouldn't like to work any better if they had 24 hours to labor than they do now. It would simply mean that the wild boys of the country would consume more gasoline and bootleg liquor. Then, too, what would become of prohibition with the bootleggers working 24 hours a day.

Our guess is that the inventor referred to has accomplished about all that he is going to—viz: He got his name in the paper.

Whether the women appreciate these dresses with one hundred and one buttons and no buttonholes or not, the men do. Now if the style artists will just figure out some way to abolish hooks and eyes, we'll be one hundred per cent for 'em.

It's a rather unimportant citizen these days who isn't being "mentioned" for congress or the presidency.

Carrott Coffee

One Mother Says:

My youngsters begged for coffee "like Dad drinks." I have resurrected an old colonial recipe called "carrot coffee" which I serve them at their play "dinner parties" in regular coffee cups. Wash, scrupe and slice carrots and parch in a moderate oven until a rich brown. Cool and pound into a coarse powder. To make the coffee, pour two cups of boiling water over one-half cup of the parched carrots, bring to boiling point and remove from stove, repeat this four times and let stand where hot ten minutes. Add one half teaspoon of vanilla and serve with cream and minted sugar. Minted sugar is made by dropping one drop of mint oil on each cube of sugar.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

SCORPIO

The important tasks of the day should be done before noon as the vibrations then are very good. As the day wanes the aspects become adverse bringing about tendencies to irritability, hasty words and actions.

A child born today will be energetic and ambitious and rather too versatile to be expert at anything.

You are both acquisitive and ambitious if today is your birthday, and life will award you a handsome reward because you want it and are willing to take sufficient pains to get it.

Your mind is neither brilliant nor resourceful but it is unusually clear and thorough. You will be envied right through life by people with brilliant plans and pretty accomplishments. Your brain is logical and sufficiently exact to make your estimates very nearly as accurate as your measurements, and a great deal easier. You have a shrewd financial sense and an ability to keep all your assets constantly at work which amounts almost to genius.

You have also the gift of making unusual connections out of friendships and vice versa. A quality which will be of great benefit to throughout life.

You are resolute and industrious and firm in a resolve you have once made. This is not because of stubbornness but because you are almost always right and know it.

You have a rare gift of expression. You choose simple words and weave them into logical propositions which appeal to the reasons of your hearers. You should be both a persuasive public speaker and an interesting writer.

You are neither idealistic nor moral but you have a good sense of the practical and your behavior is righteous simply because you know in the long run it is the easiest way.

Your marriage will be a hasty one and contrary to the customary rule it will turn out very happily.

Sucessful people born on this date are: Theodore Roosevelt, 26th president of the U. S.; Whitelaw Reid, journalist and diplomat; Kenyon Cox, designer, illustrator and writer.

Haiti Eradicates Rabies

By The Associated Press.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct.—When the American Sanitary Service found itself confronted with an epidemic of rabies in Port-au-Prince, it went to the heart of the matter by going after the dogs, the numberless dogs that infest the city streets, and remind world-wide travelers of Constantinople, so they tell us.

The citizens were given due notice, and then a liberal supply of poisoned meat was distributed throughout the city. The resulting mortality met the most sanguine expectations, and the menace of rabies came to an end.

HOME WORK

Time was when I said in elation,
As a volume I hurled on the floor,
"No demon quadratic equation
Shall keep ME up nights any more.
This algebra stuff—I admit it—
Is a meaningless puzzel to me,
But now, thank the Lord, I can quit it;
I've passed my exams, and I'm free."

I said the same thing of the treatise,
Translated by Butcher and Lang,
Which told of the gods and their sweeties
Which Sappho (or Sophocles) sang.
The Greeks, in my eyes, had no glamor,
And when the last page I had read
Of their dull and laborious grammar
I was glad that their language is dead.

But while Tommy his pencil is nibbling,
And the wind 'round the chimney-top whines,
A half sheet of foolscap I'm scribbling
With x's and radical signs.
The same dismal meshes enfold him,
He is plunged in the same horrid plight,
And in a rash moment I told him
I would help with his home work tonight.

And if I can solve the equation
Which the years have made tenfold more hard
I shall have to take up the translation
Of some over-prolific old bard.
I know it's my part to endeavor
To help out the poor little chap,
But with lessons and lessons forever
This life isn't much of a snap!

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

AMERICANIZATION EFFORTS PRAISED BY POLISH MINISTER

"The Americanization movement must be regarded as one of the most important manifestations in the current national and social life of the United States," declares Dr. Wladyslaw Wroblewski, Polish minister to the United States, in a recent interview. "To an envoy of a country sending emigrants to America the Americanization movement might seem at first glance adverse to his country's interests. Certainly its working, so far as some other countries —among them Poland—are concerned, tends to reduce the valuable civic element of those countries at the rate which this element becomes assimilated by America and increases the number of American citizens.

"Such a conclusion would be indeed superficial. I have come to this realization after a study of the American viewpoint as well as the point of view of the mother countries of emigrants, especially that of Poland and after reflecting on the reactions of the process of Americanization on the general interests of mankind.

Program Should be Welcomed.

Americanization as I understand it means a program of preparation of the inhabitants of this republic to become American citizens, fully alive to their national duties as well as to their privileges. The ultimate goal is to reach the highest attainable level of American patriotism for all American citizens. Whoever loves his own country enough to wish her a similar development of national conscience can only welcome from the bottom of his heart the realization of such a program in America.

Undoubtedly the Americanization plan must consider chiefly the immigrants—those who come here with an inadequate or no knowledge of American ideals and seek to become citizens. I cannot refrain from expressing my admiration at the way in which American authorities and organizations stretch forth a helping hand to those who arrive from other shores. The core of the American method seems to be to treat each immigrant from the very outset as a prospective fellow-countryman.

Aliens Find Sympathy.

The American people, far from regarding him with suspicion or distrust, offer him sympathy and guidance in his ambition to achieve American citizenship. This spirit of goodwill shown to immigrants is the secret of the magnificent display of patriotic fervor among former aliens and their children which was witnessed on America's entry into the world war.

Any campaign, inside or outside of America against this process of making patriots out of aliens would be at once useless and senseless, for the success of Americanization is a mystery which can be found only in the depths of the American soul. So long as American citizenship means the opening of the largest opportunities of life, securing of the greatest protection yet evised for the enjoyment of life and liberty, the United States can accept every criticism of Americanization with an undisturbed peace of mind."

THE COLONIZATION QUESTION-AIRE.

Clearing and Plowing Before Selling.

It will be remembered by those who have been following this series of articles on the attitude of the land owners on certain matters in connection with colonization that the average price asked for farm land was about $100 per acre.

In yesterday's article we gave the land owners estimate of the cost of clearing and plowing brush land and found that it ranged from $3.00 to $25.00 per acre.

Following the question concerning the cost of clearing and plowing brush land the owners were asked "Are you willing to clear and plow your land before selling it at the price you have set?"

One man says he will "If people prefer it that way."

Another man who evidently expects to sell his land, all prepared to raise a crop, says "Yes, all ready for the water."

Five said "No."

One man said "Yes."

Whether or not it will be profitable to clear and plow their land before offering it for sale will be a question that will face a number of land owners whose land is now in brush.

In many cases it will pay well to clear and plow the land before offering it for sale, and in other cases it will even pay to put it in a crop, and then offer it for sale.

If handled on a large scale and with proper equipment clearing and plowing can be done cheaper than where the individual has to do it without proper equipment.

EMIGRATION TO U. S. ALARMS NORWAY

By The Associated Press

CHRISTIANA.—A series of conferences of a semi-official nature are shortly to take place under the aegis of the Norwegian home office to consider the best means of stopping the costant exodus to Norwegian subjects to America.

During the last 12 months the number of emigrants from the country has reached an alarming figure, so much so that the military authorities in some districts cannot obtain the necessary quotas of men for the yearly conscriptive training.

One suggestion being put forward is that the sparsely populated northern provinces of Norway should be colonized, the colonists to be encouraged by state aid to cultivate the land, form communities and otherwise utilize the vast areas that are as yet entirely wild.

Homemakers' Guild Seeks Notice of Achievements

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Churches, schools and community centers are called upon to honor the achievements of the Homemakers' National Guild on Homemakers' Day, October 31, in a letter sent to the thousands of members by Mrs. T. Vernette Morse, founder and executive secretary at national headquarters here. Special observance programs are urged for the day.

The fifth anniversary of the Junior Homemaker schools also will be celebrated at the time.

"When homemaking is recognized as a learned profession, the schools will be proud to accept it as a fundamental principle in the development of all education," the letter said. "Homemakers make the schools and the teachings of those schools can never rise higher than their source. All homemakers intuitively conduct their home on the fundamental principles of life and growth. If that were not true there would be nothing left of human life in a few years.

"The educational and social life of the Junior Homemakers is conducted on the plan that there is no dividing line between home and public school activities. In order to produce intelligence, their activities must be interwoven. This plan holds parents equally responsible with the teachers in the educational development of child life. Exhibitions and programs arranged for juniors and seniors will be helpful in promoting these principles."

Ancient Omen Forecasts Bloodshed in Europe

GENEVA, Oct. 2 .—The "blood of the Burgundians" has appeared again on the water of Lake Morat, near Neuchatel, portending more trouble for old Europe, if ancient legend is to be believed.

The reddening of the water of this lake is caused by the flowering of an aquatic plant, which, however, blooms very rarely. The phenomenon was seen in 1476, when 36,000 Burgundians under Charles the Bold were defeated near the lake by the Swiss. The last time the waters were red was in 1914, just before the outbreak of the world war, a circumstance said to justify the old saying, "When blood is seen on Lake Morat there will be bloodshed in Europe."

Takes Over Estate

MELBOURNE.—The new government is about to adopt a policy of taking over private estates under compulsion, if necessary, to facilitate the establishment of temporary training farm for emigrants. New arrivals will be allotted holdings of this land, and the immigration of boys to Australia is to be particularly encouraged.

Intermediate Senior League Party Tonight.

The Intermediate Department of the Senior League No. 2 of the Floral Heights Methodist church will give a masquerade party at the church tonight at 8 o'clock. Young people are invited to attend.

Master Carl Bailey, Jr., Host to Little Friends.

An event of last week proving unusually enjoyable to a group of little folks, was the birthday party given by Carl Bailey, Jr., at his home on Grant street.

The guests upon their arrival were ushered into a veritable witch's den. The living room and dining room were decorated in the Hallowe'en motifs with black cats and witches dancing on the window curtains and Jack o'lanterns glaring from spooky corners. Scores of gas-filled balloons clung close to the ceiling only to be jerked down and claimed by the merrymakers.

The host was assisted by his cousin, Miss Evelyn Hope Trimble, in distributing horns and caps with bells on them to the guests, after which the fun commenced. A snake dance, confetti throwing, drop the handkerchief, London bridge and pinning the black cat's tail on were the games most enjoyed until all were invited into the dining room where another surprise awaited them.

The table was artistically decorated with autumn leaves and small jack o' lanterns amid which stood three beautifully decorated cakes, the center one bearing the birthday trimmings of lighted candles. At each plate was a Hallowe'en bon bon which exploded and uncurled a fortune.

Brick ice cream of black and orange with cake was served to Estell Heyser, John Tabor Burris, J. I. Staley, Jr., Jack Staley, T. R. Boone, Jr., Teddy Norwood, Nois Silkwood, Jack O'Neal, Roy Riner, Jack McNees, James Lee, Edward Sills, Rufus King, William Huff, Jr., Betty Lee, Alice Moore, Evelyn and Kathleen Yates, Rose Marion and Pauline Jane Art, Montrose Patterson, Airdeen Silkwood, Mart Louise Baller, Vercella Lucius, Margaret Breneman, Slyvia Marie Riner and Jack Rinehart.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

ALL READY FOR THE PARTY

Billy and Betty Cut-out rose with the birds Saturday, put on their oldest clothes, and ran to Natalie's to spend the day getting her yard in spick and span order for the Hallowe'en party. Half the neighborhood was there to help, and all worked busily raking leaves and putting on the finishing touches, so that by night all was in readiness, for the first arrival.

The last corner of your party box will be complete when you set up a favor grab bag. The tripod may be made of meat sticks. A circle of orange paper makes the bag. It is tied at the top and hung in place after the small favors, jelly beans, candy corn or peanuts on strings have been put aside.

The Cut-outs are going to have the time of their lives. Every surprise will come off just at the right time. Natalie's sister, Marjorie, is getting up the best one. Look for her and "it" next week.

WELFARE MEET BEGINS SUNDAY

Beginning Sunday afternoon, November 4, at 3 o'clock at the First Methodist church, south, the first meeting of the annual convention of the Texas Conference of Social Welfare will be held.

According to Mrs. E. B. Gorsline, secretary of the welfare council, this is to be a general inspirational meeting. Several talks will be made, including one by Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith and by Dr. Claude Simpson. Special music by the Rotary Glee club which makes its initial appearance will be given under the direction of R. E. Shepherd.

"All the citizens of Wichita Falls are urged to come to this first meeting of the convention," said Mrs. Gorsline Friday. "Not all the speakers will be here then, and we want those who are here to feel that the city is interested in the meeting."

Well known speakers from various sections of the United States will be in Wichita Falls ofr the meeting.

It may be that true Americanism is flagging, but it isn't flogging.

Ecru and Orchid Dinner Dress

Chiffon, lace and ribbon fashion the dainty dinner dress illustrated here. The chiffon in an orchid shade is used for the foundation of the frock and forms a columinous draping about the arms.

The neckline is quite high and a lace bertha covers the front of the blouse. The back of an evening gown is sometimes cut lower than the front by some of the courturiers.

The skirt is completely covered by the ecru lace and is of medium length. The girdle is of vari-colored ribbons in pastel shades. They are wound about the waist two or three times and there is a corsage slightly to the left from which long streamers flow to a few inches below the hem of the dress.

A good many of the frocks from Paris modistes show fullness in the skirt somewhere, but differ from the soft, all-around effect of this model by keeping the fullness to the front, the back being flat.

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: Of late I have been reading in your column of mothers who have trouble making their children, especially girls, obey. I am writing that other mothers may profit by my own experience and to ask two questions.

At what age should a girl cease to be spanked by her parents?

Who should whip her, the father or the mother?

I have three daughters whose ages are seven, nine and thirteen years. Up to three years ago I tried to make my children obey by other methods than the stick, but failed. When one of my daughters disobeys me I tell her to come to my room before retiring. After taking off al her clothes except her essential underwear I lay her across my lap and use the hair brush or cane. I prefer the hair brush because it produces the same effect without leaving a mark.

YOURS FOR BETTER GIRLS.

There is wide disagreement in regard to the punishment of children. So much has to be taken into consideration such as the temperament of the child, the extent of disobedience, the effect other kinds of punishment have had, etc. Some children are too sensitive to be whipped and if that method of punishment is adopted, the spirit of the child is broken. Other children are so wilfull and indifferent to the wishes of their parents that nothing short of whipping seems to help. It is difficult to say at what age whipping should stop. Personally I think every other form of punishment should be tried before such violence is resorted to, and in case whipping has been found necessary I think it should be discontinued as soon as some other method, such as cutting the amount of an allowance, of privileges of play, can be substituted. Also it cannot be determined whether the father or the mother should whip. Circumstances entirely govern the matter of punishment. Sometimes one parent is so lenient that the burden of punishing falls entirely on the other. Besides this, both parents are nre not apt to be together when the punishment is needed, and therefore the responsibility falls on the one who sees the error of the child. Personally I do not believe in carrying tales of misbehaviour. It is most unfortunate when a mother threatens her child with the words, "I will tell your father when he gets home." Loyalty between the mother and the child is a great thing and it is preferable for a mother to do her own punishing to betraying the child's misconduct.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a stenographer, twenty-nine years old. There is a man about ten years my senior who comes into the office frequently, is very pleasant to me but does not ask me for a date, which I wish he would do. Would it be proper for me to invite him to spend an evening at my home, or would he ask for my company if her cared for it? I lead a very lonesome life. Another young man wishes me to marry him. I do not love him and do not care for his company, although I have nothing against him. LONESOME.

It would not be advisable to ask your office acquaintance to your home unless he shows some more definite interest in you than he has as yet done. Let him make the advances. Real love not only lasts but grows stronger and deeper after marriage, though somewhat less demonstrative.

Dear Mrs. Thomsun: I met a girl about two years ago and fell in love and married her but she deceived me and also her mother deceived me by talking about her being such a dear, good girl and perfect lady. She had been ruined, but with my blinding love I believed her mother's two-faced talk.

We were married last fall and lived happily for about a year. Then I had it dashed up to me what she was and it certainly did hurt. To make things worse, when I asked her if it were so she admitted it. She said she could not help it then and wanted me to forget and forgive. One day I got word she has been free and easy with a fellow for a yer. Then I was ready to give up, but she begged forgiveness and I forgave.

Then her mother started things and put my wife up to paying no attention to me and to doing as she pleased. I could not stand that and I told her so. The girl still said she wanted me, but her mother was not satisfied and she finally got her away from me for a while. But she came back and I forgave her, but she was not the same as before.

Now she has gone again through her mother's influence. I don't believe her father ever said a word. I think he is a perfect gentleman and I do not think he knows anything about his daughter's bad habits before marriage. He is an honest, hard-working man. But the mother is a corker.

My wife loves me and says she does, and she well knows I love her, but she is afraid of her mother. She is young yet, only twenty-two in January, and I am a great deal older. She told me the last talk I had with her that she would not say she did not love me. Then her mother showed her face and my wife would not say anything except she would not come back.

Would you try to forget her, or would ou try to win her love back?

LONELY HUSBAND.

Perhaps you have been tactless to your wife regarding her unfortunate past, and have humiliated her when you did not intend to. You said that her mother represented her as "a dear, good girl and perfect lady." Surely you think of her in the same way in spite of her mistakes or you would not love her so dearly. The fact that she has made mistakes in her youth and ignorance does not wipe out her sweetness and lovable character.

By all means go on loving her with your whole heart. Love her so much that you will never mention the past again. Love her for what she is, and forget the unpleasant part. She will never be happy with you if she feels you consider yourself purer and holier than she is.

Try not to think too harshly of the mother. Your wife loves her mother, and she will want you to overlook the mother's failings and show respect to her.

Let love and kindness guide you, and I am confident that in time your wife will return.

Correct this sentence: "Here children," invited the father, "you may look at the comic section first."

FOOTBALL

What is the correct time to use the drop or placement kick?

Answered by

MAJOR C. D. DALY

Head Football Coach Army 8 years. Also Assistant Coach Harvard. 4 years Five of his teams during this period unbeaten. Three times All-American Quarterback. Founded American Football Association.

An opportunity to score on a kick arises whenever the ball is held inside the opponent's forty yard line. The score may be effected by either a rush, pass, or scoring kick. The scoring kick—that is the drop or placement kick—that is the drop or placement opponents are ahead and more than three points are necessary to win. It is most effective in the first part of the game, not so much for the points it yields as for its effect on paving way for scoring pass or run on some later occasion. This situation is reduced to rule of thumb as follows: a. On the first or second time down to the opponent's goal and stopped, kick or pass may be decided before the game. b. On the remaining opportunities the attack being stopped threaten the kick and run or pass. The adorit handling of scoring opporunities marks the expert field captain.

VERNON-QUANAH GAME DELAYED

Postponement Comes Too Late to Save Special Expense

By CHAS. C. WOODSON
Special Correspondent

Jupiter Pluvius got out his sprinkler and saturated the Vernon gridiron so completely th. the much heralded Quanah-Vernon football game had to be postponed until next week, probably next Friday. It was a severe jolt for Quanah fans for a special train had already been chartered and the money raised. Ft. Worth and Denver off.. a speeded things up and ordered the special out of Wichita Falls with a twenty-four hour cancellation limit.

According to interscholastic league contract signed between Vernon and Quanah athletic authorities, Vernon on whose ground the game was to be played, had until 10 o'clock Friday to cancel the game providing one thing happened, rain. Thursday and Thursday night it happened and the game was cancelled but not soon enough to save the Ft. Worth and Denver the time and expense of making up the Quanah special. Quanah business men will absorb the loss it was announced early Friday morning. Enthusiasm over the coming game had been worked up to the boiling point at Quanah and when the interscholastic league ruled that the game must be played at Vernon instead of Quanah or Childreothe as local fans had hoped, the Quanah bugs decided to charter a special and go enmasse in order, as the high school cheer leader put it, "To make Vernon feel like she was away from home on her own gridiron."

The winner of the Quanah-Vernon game will take on the powerful Wichita Falls team which has mowed down all opposition so far. Quanah is undefeated and unscored on this season. Vernon has defeated all comers except Quanah whom she played to a scoreless tie several weeks ago. Vernon has been scored on.

However, the two teams are evenly matched as the scoreless tie will indicate, and football fans from this section will gather in Vernon when the big game takes place next week.

BLEACHERS FALL; SCORES INJURED

By The Associated Press.

BELTON, Oct. 26.—Ben Adrain, 20, and J. C. Baker, 39, are in local hospitals seriously hurt and more than a score of others are slightly injured as the result of the collapse of 60 yards of bleachers in the Temple section at the Temple-Belton high school football game here this afternoon. Four of five of the other injured are badly, but not dangerously hurt. It is estimated six or seven hundred persons fell to the ground in the collapse.

The U. S. Navy Anchor Formation

The navy has always had trick plays, but the trickiest of all is the anchor formation shown above. This was invented by the Ancient Mariner Davey Jones, and used by him when he shot a forward pass to Al Batross in the game with the old Soldier's Home in '98. Davey used to play for the Marines, but didn't get into many games. In fact he was only a sub marine. One thing about this trick play is that the offense has no line—it's a curve. In the naval chart above the dotted lines slows where the ball is passed, thus giving an anchor-like effect to the play when seen by a sea gull flying above Annapolis at the time.

All four backs run around left end, but the ball doesn't go with them. That's the trick. They have a deep hole dug in the ground and drop the ball down it before they start runnin. It's a good thing they run, too, because inside the ball is a depth bomb, which explodes at the proper level, confusing the opposition's secondary defense. As a rule this trick is so effective that the game is won by default as both the ground and the ground rules are badly broken.

NOTABLE STRUGGLES ON GRID TODAY

By The Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 26.—With southern conference games already having critical effects on team standings, ten conference elevens swing into action on Dixie grids. Of these Vanderbilt and Tulane, playing at Nashville, open their conference schedules, while the other contestants have played one or more scheduled games.

Virginia Poly Institute and Washington and Lee clash at Lynchburg, Va., and Virginia Military Institute takes on North Carolina State at Lexington. At Memphis, Mississippi A. & M. plays Tennessee and Maryland meets the University of North Carolina on the former's grounds, College Park.

The Vandy-Tulane game gives promise of being a notable struggle. Both have good records and both were beaten by Texas U., although the Texans' score against the Commodores was less than half that piled up against the Louisiana men.

GAMES TO NARROW "BIG TEN" RACE

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—The race for the "big ten" gridiron title will be further narrowed tomorrow when Minnesota meets Wisconsin in a game that will result in the elimination of the vanquished team. This will be the only contest between unbeaten championship contenders and is the center of interest of tomorrow's schedule as Chicago and Illinois are conceded too great an advantage over their opponents. Chicago will meet Purdue in their annual battle at Stagg field, while Illinois will tackle Northwestern at the Chicago National league park. Michigan will stray from the conference circles to take on the Michigan Aggies at Ann Arbor in what promises to be a gallop for the Wolverines. The Iowa-Ohio tilt at Columbus is regarded as a consolation affair since both teams have suffered defeat.

Elevens, Through Casualties, Can't Muster First Strings

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—With practically all the major elevens unable to muster their full first string strength, chiefly because of an unusually heavy casualty list, eastern college football faces tomorrow its mid-season tests, including several of the keynote engagements of the fall.

Prominent among games holding the center of the eastern gridiron stage are those between Penn State and Virginia, in the Yankee stadium; Harvard and Dartmouth, at Cambridge; Princeton and the naval academy, at Baltimore; Pennsylvania and Centre at Philadelphia; Yale and Brown, at New Haven, and Columbia and Williams, at New York.

Five important contests of intersectional character also illuminate the program. Besides the clash between Penn and Centre's "Prayin' Colonels," they include the contests between Oberlin and Amherst, at Amherst, Mass.; Marquette of Milwaukee and Boston College at Boston; Washington and Jefferson and Detroit university, at Detroit, and Colgate and Ohio Wesleyan at New York.

Seldom have the eastern elevens entered such important battles under the handicaps they will face tomorrow, according to reports from camps which indicate a long array of injuries and other mishaps.

KANSAS BATTLE TO BE CLOSE

By The Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—The University of Kansas-Kansas Aggie clash at Lawrence promises to be the outstanding game of the Missouri Valley conference football play tomorrow. In the opinion of followers of the game the contest is a toss-up.

Both of the Kansas rivals have defeated Creighton on home grounds by the score of 6 to 0 and the dope puts them about on a par.

Nebraska will visit Missouri at Columbia and are doped to win from the Tigers. Tomorrow's game will be the second between the two schools since football relations were resumed last season after a lapse of a number of years.

Ames will be in St. Louis for their clash with Washington university and should score an easy win in view of Washington's overwhelming defeat at the hands of Oklahoma last week.

Drake and Grinnell will play at Grinnell in the remaining conference game of the day.

Oklahoma will play a non-conference game in its contest with Oklahoma Aggies at Norman.

'BO' M'MILLAN NOT QUITE SURE

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 26.—Alva "Bo" McMillan and 30 husky football players representing Centenary college of Shreveport, reached Fort Worth today and prepared to tackle Matty Bell's T. C. U. football squad at Panther Park Saturday afternoon.

"I'm scared stiff for the first time in my life," said McMillan. "This game means a great deal to me. It's the first real test my boys have had this season. I'm running up against a good team in T. C. U., and to be honest with you, I don't know whether we'll go out there and beat them 30 to 0, or whether they'll beat us by that score. All I can tell you right now is, we're in fine shape, had a grand ride coming up from Shreveport, took a light workout this morning and we'll be in there Saturday with all of the clean fight we're capable of."

LONGHORNS TO GET STIFF GAME

Battle With Southwestern Saturday Expected to Be Close One

By MOULTON COBB.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 26.—Coach "Doc" Stewart is drilling his Longhorn players as hard for the Southwestern university game that will be staged here Saturday as he did for the Vanderbilt contest in Dallas last week. The Pirates have a real football team this year and Coach Stewart realizes that Saturday's game will be close, much closer than most fans expect.

In past years it has been the tendency of Longhorn football teams to let down after a great triumph. Every effort is being made to avoid that kind of playing this year. The Texas Aggies were able to win over Southwestern only by 13-0. A. & M. then was able to win only by resorting to forward passes. Football critics who saw both the Longhorns and Aggies in action recently in Dallas agree that A. & M. had the superior team. Therefore, they say the Longhorn-Southwestern game will be very close.

Lane Tynes, the star Longhorn captain, will be out of Saturday's contest. Joe Ward, who is a tower of strength to the Texas university line, was injured again this week and will be unable to play.

On the other hand the Southwestern Pirates are in their best condition. Recent additions to the eleven have materialy strengthened their already excellent team. Akin, a big 200 pound end and former University of Texas student, is certain to make trouble for the Longhorns. Longhorn scouts who have seen the Pirates in action, state that the Georgetown squad is getting better with every game.

Pirate-Longhorns.

By The Associated Press.

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Oct. 26.—The Southwestern Pirates will lock with the Texas Longhorns in Austin tomorrow, and a badly crippled Pirate crew will invade the Steer field. Aiken, Matter, Reynold, Bachtel, and Duncan being on the sick list.

Shade Gets Decision.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Dave Shade of California won the judges' decision over Billy Wells, welter weight champion of England, after 15 rounds of fighting in Madison Square Garden Park tonight. Shade weighed 147 pounds and Wells 145.

It is a little difficult to believe in woman's intuition when you observe the general insignificance of the typical bigamist.

Waurika Society and Personals

Bud Stuard Entertains.

The opal hued days of autumn are with us. Days when the blue and gold wind of summer has given way to the wine and orange wind of October, with a tang of frost in the trail it leaves behind it. The acrid smell of dry leaves is not unpleasing as you trudge through them in your quest of autumn fruits and flowers. And it's well that these nights are peculiarly bright and golden for now is the time of year when ghosts, witches and all the other folk that people the world of fancy, are out, casting magic and strange spells upon those whom they happen to meet. So, bewore, and be ready with the mystical incantations which allow you to pass unharmed through the latter days of this most glorious month.

Saturday night Bud Stuard entertained a jolly group of the younger social set of Waurika at his home where a very pleasant evening was spent. Hallowe'en decorations were used throughout the house and games in keeping with the season of the yehr were enjoyed. Late in the evening lovely refreshments were served, the favors being tiny red devils, perched on the plate. Those present to enjoy Bud's hospitality for the evening were Misses Edna Harris, Maurine Clifton, Frances Lemons, Charlotte Bridges, Mildred Chandler, Eva Cashion, Louise Holden, and Thornton Wright, Andrew Dillard, Clinton Maupin, Glen Beatty, Paul Dillard, Haskell Davidsin and Joe Porter Ballard. Misses Luellie Wilson, Jennie May Kirby and Lelia Anderson assisted in the entertainment of the guests.

Another Hallowe'en Party.

Saturday night there was another party in Waurika at which Hallowe'en customs were observed, when Miss Elizabeth Billinger had a birthday party at her country home.

The house was beautifully decorated with black cats, ghosts, pumpkins, and all the time-honored trappings of Hallowe'en, while the 22 guests were all in dominoes and costumes, suitable to the occasion. A jolly good time was enjoyed. There was a witch, who stirred a cauldron and told fortunes, and the veil of the future was pierced in several ways during the evening.

Lovely refreshments were served at a late hour to those who came to wish Miss Elizabeth many more years of happiness. Assisting Mrs. N. A. Burnsides in entertaining were Misses Alma Steves, Polly Anne Heacock, Emma Ruth Burnsides and Verna Davidson.

Missionary Society Meets.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church had a most enjoyable meeting at the church Monday afternoon when the lesson was from the Missionary Voice and was one dealing with Orientals in America. Mrs. W. R. Sparks gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the "Oriental's Religion in America," which was conceded to have been one of the most interesting talks given in regard to missions. She was followed by Mrs. Dorothy McKinstry with a splendid paper on "Christ Winning Orientals in America." Mrs. Will Merrison gave "Glimpses of the Woman's Missionary Society in China," which was an intimate talk on the workings of the society away from home. Mrs. W. G. Turnage closed the program with the reading, "The Burden" which was greatly enjoyed. Much of the pleasure derived from the members in the Monday's meeting was due to the fact that the president, Mrs. J. W. Biffle, who has not been able to met with the society for the past three months, was in Waurika and attended the meeting and presided, Mrs. C. A. Plumlee being leader for the afternoon.

Kureans Meet.

The Kureans met last Monday afternoon at Rose Hill farm, the country home of Mrs. Ed T. Capps and Mrs. W. E. Capps. The meeting opened with the devotional and business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. J. W. Aydelotte. The program which was a lesson on hypocrisy, was very ably handled by the leader, Mrs. A. E. Landon, in her opening talk which was "Religion Is the Best Armor, But the Worst Cloak." Mrs. Fred Pittman gave five Biblical instances of hypocrisy, and Mrs. Heacock gave their parallels in modern living. The lesson closed with a beautiful story, "The Black Cross," written by Mrs. J. W. Aydelotte, in which she gave a vivid pen picture of a hypocrite.

The hostesses served lovely refreshments consisting of chicken sandwiches, fruit salad, cream puffs and coffee. Goodbyes were said which unusual reluctance as this will be the last meeting of the Kureans at Rose Hill farm for some time, as the Capps family is moving to Waurika within the next few weeks.

Soresis Club.

Soresis club held its regular meeting last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. R. Beatty. The short business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. H. W. Lemons, at which time two delegates were elected to attend the state bi-ennial convention of the Women's Federated clubs which will be held at Enid, Nov. 14, 15. Mrs. E. B. Ellis and Mrs. H. W. Lemons were selected by the club as delegates.

A most interesting lesson followed under the leadership of Mrs. Gail Durham, on "Civics and Politics," with a roll call answered to by current events.

Mrs. Robert Pruet gave a splendid talk on "The Great American Parties," while "Platforms of Each Party," by Mrs. Donald Stewart; "What Part Should the Parties Play in Election," and "What Qualities Shall We Demand In Condidates," by Mrs. C. V. Maupin were equally well handled. Parliamentary drill on "Subsidiary Motions" was conducted by the parliamentarian, Mrs. E. B. Ellis.

Lovely refreshments were enjoyed at the close of the lesson.

Delphians.

Delphians met last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. T. F. Bush, the president, Mrs. F. E. Watkins, presiding over the short business session at which time Mrs. A. E. Landon was asked to represent the Delphians at Enid at the State Convention of Federated clubs.

The lesson, which was most enjoyable was on early English history, under the leadership of Mrs. Cora Adams, and the following topics were very interesting and instructive. "From the Accession of George I to the Present Time," Mrs. C. A. Martin; "The Children in the Coal Mines," and the "Catholic Emancipation" by Mrs. W. F. Carter; "General Survey of English Literature," Mrs. O. E. Heacock, "Geoffrey Chaucer," Mrs. G. A. Nelson; "The Prologue to Canterbury Tales," Mrs. George A. Stevens, with the paraphrase of the rest of the poem, by Mrs. P. C. Largent, Mrs. F. E. Watkins and Mrs. Cora Adams. Much interest was given the meeting by "Side Lights," given on the various topics by Mrs. A. E. Landon. The meeting this week will be at the home of Mrs. W. N. Browning.

Thursday Bridge.

Thursday Bridge club met on its regular day last week at the home of Mrs. Gail Durham, with a full membership present. Mrs. P. F. Dawson won high points and Mrs. W. T. F. Bush high honors, and each were remembered with the club prize. A lovely plate luncheon was served after the games were over. The meeting this week will be at the home of Mrs. W. Y. Dilley.

Complimentary to Mrs. Nelle Phelan Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Phelan entertained with a one o'clock dinner Sunday. A lovely three-course dinner was enjoyed by the guest of honor and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kizer. The occasion was the anniversary of the birth of the honoree.

Dorcas Class.

The Dorcas class of the M. E. Sunday school met at the home of Mrs. W. Y. Dilley on Tuesday of this week, with Mrs. Dick Coleman assistant hostess. The Dilley home was lovely with Hallowe'en decorations and baskets of gay autumn garden flowers.

The lesson on Genesis was very interesting and instructive. The program was opened with "The Introduction to the Book of Genesis," by Mrs. P. C. Largent.

"Willian Lyns Phelps' Interpretation of Genesis," Mrs. Chas. C. Morris; "Trace Jacob's ancestry from Adam and name the 12 sons who became the founders of the 12 tribles," Mrs. Harry Sutton; "Character Sketch of Abraham," Mrs. Earl McGraw; "Genesis 23rd to 50th Chapters, study the burial customs of that age," Mrs. George Horne; "Study of Joseph," Mrs. Fred Koeniger. After the lesson was finished Mrs. Harry Sutton conducted a quiz on the book of Genesis.

A lovely plate luncheon was enjoyed by the members of the class after the lesson was over.

Mrs. W. H. Snook, who was called to Wichita, Kansas, by the sickness, death, and burial of her brother, Ed Stettler, came home Sunday night. Her aged mother who started home with her, was taken ill at Kingfisher and was unable to make the rest of the journey.

Mrs. Myrn Durham has been ill at her home this week but is improving.

WORK TO START ON GAS MAINS

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Oct. 26.—Preparations are under way by A. T. McDannald of the new gas company, to put a force of 25 to 30 men at work the latter part of this week digging the ditches for the gas mains. The first work will be done on Front street coming west from the city limits. It is planned to do all work by hand labor as it was found upon investigation that a machine could not dig the ditches because of the water pipes.

The line coming up Front street will be laid with a six-inch main, which will be connected up with four-inch connecting lines. The second line which they plan to lay will be north on Dunbar street in the west part of town.

As the work progresses, Mr. McDannald plans to put more men at work and he believes that they will have no difficulty in giving service to all parts of town within 90 days from date.

It is the plan of the organizers of the new gas company to incorporate at some later date.

FEW DUCKS SAY ELECTRA MEN

A few days ago, an airplane from Fort Sill flew down the river near the toll bridge and frightened thousands of ducks down stream.

NO EASY TIMES FOR FREE LANDS

Secretary Work Says Vets Will Take Chances in Homesteading

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2.—The soldier of the World War who wishes to homestead land has plenty of vicissitudes in front of him, Secretary of Interior Work explains in a frank statement just made public.

Every few days the department of interior announces opening of land for soldier entry. Most of the land openings are in far western states. But the question arises:

Is it profitable for a war veteran to avail himself of these opportunities? Will the homestead of which he ultimately becomes the owner after moving his family and undergoing the hardship of pioneer-farming compensate him for his expense and his labor? Is the value of the public lands being thrown open to the ex-service men worth homesteading?

No government in the history of the world has been as generous in the distribution of its national territory to the citizens as the United States. The result has been that the size of the public domain has been reduced from 1,442,200,828 acres in the beginning to 185,933,242 acres, the decrease during the past ten years being approximately at the rate of 10,000,000 acres a year.

It is from this remaining 185,933,242 acres of the public domain that the government at the present time is throwing open to ex-soldiers from time to time large and small parcels of land with the preferences right of entry to the ex-service men of the World War. What sort of land is it? The question answers itself. It is what is left after a century of picking over by veterans of other wars and by hundreds of thousands of the early pioneers who went west to build future homes and future fortunes. Some of it is semi-arid or arid requiring irrigation. Some of it may be partially timbered, or located on mountain slopes with scrubby growths of timber. Other tracts consist of stony and sandy soil making agricultural development a difficult and expensive undertaking. While a portion of it may be developed into productive farms without unusual effort, the larger areas, in their present condition, are better adapted to grazing than to ordinary farm culture. The question has been propounded that if the remaining lands are of this character why does the department of the interior continue to announce tracts open to entry. The answer is that the laws of Congress specifically provide that our public lands must be opened to entry after survey, or on restoration from withdrawals. But in order that the ex-service men may have the first choice of our remaining public lands, as they are opened to entry, Congress has also given the veteran a preference right of entry for 90 days as against every one except claimants under prior equities. It is true that the public lands we have left are not very desirable, but it is also true that the ex-soldier is given the best we have.

"There appears to be no little misapprehension among ex-service men as to the procedure that must be followed in order to homestead a tract of government land," says Secretary Work. "Some veterans are apparently of the opinion that all they have to do is file an application for a tract, fill in a blank, signing their names, and then wait a couple of years and become the owner of the property. They are under the impression that no capital is required. But this conception of the conditions is a mistake. The ex-service man must pay his railroad fare to the local land office in the particular western state where the public land is located that he wishes to homestead, for no provision has been made by law for the assistance of the soldier in reaching his land. He must then decide whether he intends to make entry of a grazing homestead, comprising 640 acres, or an enlarged homestead composed of 320 acres, or an agricultural homestead which includes only 160 acres. Upon making a choice on one of the three classes of homesteads he must next go over the plats at the local land office and ascertain what lands are open to entry, and then ascertain by personal inspection whether any of these vacant tracts are desirable or suitable for his purpose, or whether they may not be already occupied by a settler who has not yet filed his claim, all of which requires a personal visit to the land before an entry can be made. This necessity for a personal inspection of the land is apparent when it is remembered that the applicant at the time of entry must make oath as to the character of the land, and to the fact that it is then unoccupied. Having seen the tract and being satisfied with it, the next step for the ex-service man is to return to the local land office and file an application to enter the land. There are fees and commissions which he must pay the government in this connection, one amounting to $10, and the other varying from $6 to $24.

"The entry having been made, the war veteran must make certain improvements that will cost him sums ranging from $200 to $800, besides building a home, the cost of which will vary in price in accordance with the standard of living he set for himself and family. On a grazing homestead comprising 640 acres, he must make improvements to the amount of $1.25 per acre, or a total of $800 within five years. Enlarged homestead entries, or entries of 160 acres require on final proof a showing of cultivation, and the erection of a habitable house. There are other requirements that must be fulfilled before the veteran obtains complete ownership and is given a patent to the land. He must actually live upon it for seven months out of the year for a period of three year, with credit for military service. He must establish residence within the time, and during at least the first year of his entry reside on the land, and otherwise comply with the law in the manner required of other persons; but may at any time after the first year of his entry submit his proof, when he can show that the period of his compliance with the law after establishing residence and his military service, equal 36 months; the maximum credit for military service being two years."

Of course, none of the difficulties upon securing a homstead under present conditions is insurmountable, but it is to the interest of the veteran that he should know practically what price he will have to pay in labor and money for his homstead, and what it may be worth to him when secured. So far as the forest lands are concerned they present no difficulties not encountered by the settlers of the eastern and middle states, under pioneer conditions of danger and privations that do not exist in any part of our country now, and as to arid and semi-arid lands, the reclamation service the desert land laws, and the Carey act go far toward reducing them to conditions of possible use. But it must be remembered that we have no longer in our public domain any fertile prairie lands open to entry; that the homestead of today offers no speculative inducement to the settler, and that he is confronted with adverse conditions at the outset; but there is no reason why, with equal thrift and industry, a large proportion of these western lands will not ultimately make as good a return as similar lands did in New York, Pennsylanvia, and Ohio.

"From the foregoing it will be seen that the law offers an equal opportunity to all veterans, but those who do not reside in the public land states must realize, as a practical question, that their comrades living in the vicinity of the lands open, or to be opened, possess a very great advantage—knowledge of the climate, the character of the lands, the conditions of the roads, the location of streams, and accessibility of markets—and that there are few localities in which there are not now a sufficient number of qualified veterans to appropriate the most desirable areas," Secretary Work concludes.

TODAY'S RECIPES
Parker House Rolls

One and one-half cups sweet milk, one-quarter cup butter, one teaspoon salt, one-third cup sugar, one egg well beaten, one compressed yeast cake, one quart flour. Currants and raisins may be added if desired. Scald the milk, add butter, sugar and salt and when cool, beaten egg and yeast. Mix to a soft dough; let rise till light, knead down and rise again. Roll out on a molding board, cut with biscuit cutter, dip top side in melted butter and fold top over. Let rise again and bake. These are delicious warm, good when cold, may be reheated at breakfast time. This recipe makes 20.

Tomato Salad

Arrange crisp leaves of head lettuce on salad plates. Place two slices of red tomatoes and one of yellow (of the large variety). Cover liberally with mayonnaise dressing. This makes an attractive and nutritious salad, and does not take long to prepare.

Brown Bread

Three cups Graham flour, one cup white flour, one-half cup cornmeal or rolled oats, one-half cup molasses, one-half cup brown sugar, one teaspoon salt, three cups buttermilk, one cup raisins, three teaspoons soda (level), one egg. Bake in tin cans two hours and fill cans only two-thirds full. Flour raisins so they will not sink to bottom. This is nice for sandwiches as the round slices are attractive.

HALLOWE'EN PARTIES

Hallowe'en is a splendid time for giving a party. In ancient times huge bonfires were built on the tops of hills to proclaim that mystic and sacred rites were being performed to ward off evil spirits that were supposed to be on mischief bent on this day.

If the weather permits why not have an outdoor party with a picnic supper cooked over a fire? A bonfire with faggots for each guest to burn during the telling of a ghost story would be one part of the entertainment. If this is impractical the idea could be carried out around an open fireplace or even a gas log.

Jack o'lanterns are the most appropriate decorations, of course. Real pumpkins should be used if possible, but very good substitutes can be found at the favor counter of a department store or at the "five and ten." Candles make the best light for hallowe'en and vegetable candlesticks should be used. Carrots, turnips, potatoes and tiny squashes can all be utilized for this purpose and make delightful spots of color.

The guests may pop corn, or large bowls filled with it may be placed on tables around the room with baskets of apples and chestnuts for roasting.

WILL ELECTRIFY SWISS RAILROADS

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA.—A new water power plant is being constructed in the Alps at an altitude of 6,233 feet near Martigny, Canton of Valais, for the purpose of supplying electric energy to the Swiss federal railways.

A dam is being built across the Barberine cascade, whose waters flow into the River Rhone, to form an artificial lake of 40,000,000 cubic metres. The cost of the dam will be 20,00,000 Swiss francs, but with the electric installation the amount will be run over 60,000,000 francs. A total energy of 60,000 horsepower will be supplied.

The work will be finished in 1928. It goes forward slowly, for at this high altitude the cold and the snow permit of only 100 working days a year.

DETROIT STARTS TALLEST HOTEL

Completion Is Assured for the Fall of 1924; Will Cost $16,000,000

DETROIT, Oct. — Completion of Detroit's new twenty-nine story Book-Cadillac Hotel the tallest transient and comercial hotel building in the world, is assured for the early Fall of 1924.

This building, which altogether with several other properties in Detroit, representing an investment in excess of $16,000,000, is announced by the Developments Corporation of Detroit, owned by the Book estate.

Construction is now being rushed with the completion of the financial plans by which S. W. Straus & Co. investment bankers, have purchased a first mortgage 6 1-2 per cent bond issue of $9,000,000, secured by the leasehold estate in the land on which the hotel is being built and by the new hotel, its furnishings and equipment, together with several other properties owned in fee by the Book estate, represented by J. B. Book, Jr., Frank P. Book and Herbert V. Book.

The hotel will have 1120 guest rooms and twenty stores. Because of the increased shortage of hotel accomodations of the better class, the Book-Cadillac building is assured a daily rental to capacity and a high income on the investment.

In contrast to other large buildings in Detroit, the Book-Cadillac will have a caisson foundation the largest foundation job Detroit has ever seen and the first job in Detroit to go down to hard pan.

Construction work on the foundation is well under way, for approximately one half of the caissons are already down to a depth of 110 feet.

The ground floor will be given over to shops with a wide arcade running through the building from street to street. In addition to the shops, there will be spacious entrances, giving access to broad stairways, which will lead to the public floors above. The lobby and its appurtenances, consisting of a restaurant, cafe, tea room, ladies lounge, offices, galleries, men's grill, brokerage offices, beautiy parlor and barber shop will occupy the entire second and third stories, the lobby and restaurant being two full stories in height. Immediately above the lobby floors will be the social floors, comprising the fourth and fifth stories of the building. Here will be located the West Ballroom, 45 feet wide by 105 feet in length and two full stories in height. There will also be an East ballroom, 45 feet wide and 100 feet long, one story in height, and opening into a garden court. The remainder of the building will be given over to 1129 guest rooms each with bath, which will be furnished and equipped in the best modern style. No effort or expense will be spared to make the furnishings and equipment of the hotel equal or superior to those found in any other fine hotel in the world.

COFFEE EULOGIZED

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—"Coffee is a beverage which, properly prepared and rightly used, gives comfort and inspiration, augments mental and physical activities and may be regarded as the servant rather than the destroyer of civilization."

Professor Samuel C. Prescott, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, after three years of scientific research on the subject, today made this sweeping reply to those who have been attacking coffee. The occasion was the annual convention of the National Association of Coffee Roasters meeting here.

As head of the department of biology and public health of Massachusetts Tech., Professor Prescott had direct supervision of the long study which cost $40,000 to make. During the continuous experiments the entire laboratory was given over exclusively to purposes of coffee research and more than 1,000 reports were reviewed and digested.

"It may be stated," Professor Prescott stated in his address to the convention today, "that after weighing the evidence a dispassionate evaluation of the data so comprehensively surveyed has led to no conclusions that coffee is an injurious beverage for the great mass of human beings but on the contrary that the history of human experience as well as the results of scientific experimentation point to the fact that coffee is a beverage which properly prepared and rightfully used gives comfort and inspiration, augments mental and physical activities and may be regarded as the servant rather than the destroyer of civilization. The time and place do not permit a recital of the great masterpiece of literature, music and art which have been produced under its beneficient exhilaration or more than a suggestion as to the place caffein containing beverages take in the dietary of the progressive nations of the earth.

"Coffee if properly prepared has a remarkable stimulating and fatigue relieving effect due to the action of the caffein which acts on the central nervous system. It promotes heart action, vidly increases the power to do muscular work and increases the power of concentration of mental effort and, therefore, is an aid to sustained brain work. It has no depressing after effect. It is not habit forming and does not require continually increasing quantities to give satisfactory stimulation. The action of caffein might be likened for purpose of visualization to lubrication of machines although the analogy is imperfect."

LOWDEN IS FOR CO-OP MARKET

Address at Dallas Names Joint Marketing as Farmer's Solution

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 26.—Declaring that "co-operative marketing is the only hope for solution of the farmer's problems," and that "there will be no return of prosperity until the proper relationship between the farmer and the rest of the people is restored," former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and republican leader of nation-wide influence, spoke convincingly on the problem facing agriculture at the State Fair of Texas.

"Regardless of what immediate measures of temporary relief the government may see fit to extend to wheat farmers of the country who are suffering from low prices of that commodity, the permanent solution of wheat farmers' problems lies in commodity co-operative marketing such as is successfully in practice in California and in the cotton and tobacco growing states of the south and east," he said.

"You naturally ask how we shall restore the normal relationship between prices of farm commodities and service and other commodities and services. Many co-operative societies for the sale of farm products have been and are being formed. Organizations now being formed under the directions of the American Farm Bureau Federation are based upon sound economic principles, looking towards the orderly, intelligent marketing of the various commodities.

"Now is the time for the farmers of America to show their loyalty to their organizations, and to give their support to marketing co-operative societies. They are recognized as legitimate in the business world. The Federal Reserve Board has recognized them through the extension of credit. The business world generally sees in the co-operative movement a new and mighty force in the marketing and distribution of farm products.

"Co-operative marketing is the only hope for the solution of the farmers' problems and there will be no return to prosperity until the proper relationship between the farmer and the rest of the people is restored," Governor Lowden said.

Mr. Lowden is one of the foremost figures in American agriculture and a foremost support of the farm bureau movement. He is also a "dirt farmer" having holdings in several different states, and is one of the largest consigners of cotton co-operatively in any of the eleven marketing associations of the south. Mr. Lowden is also one of America's foremost Holstein breeders and last month was elected chairman of a committee to form an association for the co-operative marketing of the 160,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat in America.

Germans Stand as Band Plays French Anthem

By The Associated Press.

ZURICH, Switzerland.—There was a tense moment during the recent congress in this city of the International Cycling union—when German and Austrian delegates met the French representatives—but it came out all right, for the Germans arose and stood at attention while a band played the "Marseillaise," the national anthem of France.

It was the first cycling congress since the war, and envoys of all three countries sat down around the same table to discuss the sport from an international standpoint. It developed upon Mr. J. Breton, chief delegate for France, to make the closing address. It is the custom, at these gatherings, for the band to strike up the national anthem of the speaker's country as soon as he concludes.

While Mr. Breton was speaking the predominant thought was, what will the Germans do when the band plays "Allons enfants de la patrie"? What they did was to stand up as did everyone else, and remain stiffly at attention until the music stopped. Everybody was greatly relieved.

"Sports are designed to bring the nations of Europe together on friendly terms quicker than the exchange of sugar coated acid notes," Mr. Breton said later in the day, pointing to Walter Rutt, the veteran cyclist from Germany, chatting in an amiable manner with Gabriel Poulain, the forty-year-old champion of France.

Night Life Flourishes Despite Berlin Police

BERLIN.—Since reformers started out recently to put an end to all night life of Berlin, ingenious bootleggers have conceived all sorts of schemes to outwit the police. Despite the regulations, all-night cafes have been exceedingly popular here, and bring in handsome profits for their managers.

Clandestine cabarets and drinking places have been springing up like mushrooms, chiefly for the benefit of profiteers and their friends who usually do not feel like going to their homes when ousted by the police at midnight from the down town licensed cafes. The bootlegging joints are easily found. To the late diners in the regulation cafes, the addresses of the secret resorts usually come unsolicited in whispers from the waiters. Many of these waiters have an interest in the illicit places, or else receive fees regularly for their "good will."

Six weeks ago Karl Schlesinger, a banker, left his apartment in a fashionable part of Berlin and started on a long planned vacation with his family in an automobile. When he returned a policeman answered the door bell instead of the butler. Schlesinger's supply of champagne, Rhine wines, liquors and cigars were gone, and his butler and servants were in jail accused of having operated a full fledged all night resort.

Premier's Old Sweetheart Witnesses His Triumph

By The Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 20.—The commune of Predappio, where Premier Mussolini was born, recently acquired the house of his birth and gave it to him. He was present at the ceremony, and the people acclaimed him deliriously.

In the crowd was a woman still unmarried who, years ago, said to Mussolini as he wooed her with the impetuosity of youth: "We are both as poor as can be, and if we married we should only bring into the world beings equally poor to suffer and want. It is better that we agree to part." "By all means," replied Mussolini, and went his way to become prime minister.

Louise of Saxony, Notorious For Her Escapades? Is Now in Poverty

By The Associated Press.

MONTREUX, Switzerland, Oct. 24. The escapades of some royal ladies of Europe in the days before the war, romances in some cases and in others just plain scandals, have pursued their more or less thorny paths of recent years without attracting much attention. People have had more important things to think about. But now more lightsome topics find room for discussion, or the end of some woman's search for happiness will revive memories of the "beautiful princess" who, a score of years ago, left the beaten tracks and went off at a tangent looking for love in a cottage.

Today the rate of exchange on German marks is showing up as a big factor in the final chapters of the lives of more than one such woman. So long as marks were good, the allowances paid by generous families anxious to preserve what was left of the ancestral name, sufficed for comfortable and quiet living at some Italian watering place. But the income in marks that equalled $10,000 or $15,000 a year a dozen years ago is now no more than a few francs a month. So Louise of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, in a Paris hotel, is considering the offer of a casual American acquaintance to give her the money to pay the funeral expenses of her count, Geza Mattitich, and Louise of Saxony, actually described as "a little old woman, in in penury on a beggarly stipend is in great physical misery, spending most of her days in prayer in a bare chapel."

Two years ago an elderly woman, calling herself Madame Toselli, rented a little house near Montreux. No one then remembered her as Louise, crown princess of Saxony, or as the Countess Montignoso. It was only when she asked the Saxony authorities to increase her allowance, in marks, that her identity became known. No increase was granted, and the income that in 1912 gave this woman $10,000 a year, now amounts to less than 20 cents a day.

Her brother, at one time Archduke Leopold of Austria, is now plain Leopold Woelfing, a Swiss citizen. He was compelled last year to seek pauper's aid in Regensburg.

Louise of Saxony, whose husband later became the Saxon king, found court life dull in 1902, and ran away with Andre Giron, the tutor of her children, of whom she had six. They went to Geneva, where the princess said the royal rank of the crown prince, her husband did not make up for his royal stupidity.

Giron did not last. The princess' friends said he was only a means to an end, liberty. Saxony gave her an allowance, the title of Countess Montignoso, and let her go. But for years there was bickering over the children particularly the baby, Princess Anna Pia Monica.

Louise lived in England, with frequent visits to the winter resorts of Italy. She met an Italian pianist named Enrico Toselli. Music was a bond between them, and she married Toselli in London in 1907. She was then 37 years old and he was 24. Referring to her earlier life Louise then said: "Now my future is going to be happy as plain Madame Toselli."

But this Louise was not so fortunate as Louise of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, who could say the other day in Paris, referring to her husband: "I have lost him who was the whole world to me." Five years after the London marriage the Saxon Louise was estranged from her musical husband, and they were quarreling about their only child, a boy.

Louise displayed her musical ability by writing an opera, "The Bizarre Princess," which failed, however, to do what she most wanted, bring in a little money. Also she published an autobiography in 1911 in which she treated some of her relatives without gloves.

During the war Madame Toselli was lost to the public view. Now she has emerged again in this cottage at Montreux, 52 years old living in sorrow and poverty, trying to raise money, spending most of her time in prayer, thinking of the days when her bold escapades created one of the greatest scandals in the courts of Europe.

Tractors in Arctic Fail to Displace Dogs

By The Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN.—Dog teams still hold the leading position as a means of conveyance in the frozen north; a certain type of power tractor has been tried in their stead but found wanting, in the opinion of Lange Koch, the Danish explorer, who has just returned to Copenhagen after experimenting in northern Greenland with the machines. It is almost impossible to substitute self-propelled machinery for dogs, he says.

The party left Copenhagen in a small motor schooner in July, 1920, and by the following March had built a base 125 miles north of Thule, in latitude 78 north. The first difficulty with the tractors was experienced in unloading them from the boat and getting them on inland ice. In 12 inches of snow up a slight incline, but at a very slow speed the tractors dragged a load consisting of nine barrels of petrol, a barrel of oil, a barrel of benzine, tent materials, etc. It is therefore necessary for the tractor to drag great weights which consist mainly of its own fuel and oil. While the motor worked very well at 30 degrees below zero, considerable difficulty was experienced at lower temperatures, and finally it was necessary to abandon the use of the tractors entirely, as they held up the progress of the expedition and showed signs of wearing out quickly.

The Koch expedition was organized as a scientific and mapping expedition and in this capacity was eminently successful.

Red Cross Gets a German Contribution

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—The German Red Cross society has just made its annual contribution to the expenses of the League of Red Cross societies, thus furnishing material contradiction of the supposition that is entertained in some quarters that the league is an "Allied and Associated" concern.

The German contribution, the equivalent of $100, was in the form of French paper francs, and represented in German paper money 15,000,000,000 marks.

Nineteen societies contributed in 1922 to the budget, $200,000 a year, which is guaranteed by the American Red Cross.

Twelve new members have sent in their contributions to the league and it is expected that all the old members will respond, bringing the total membership this year to 31 societies.

Says Polar Regions Will Become Cold Again

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct.—The warm weather reported from the Artic regions is not to be taken seriously, acording to Prof. Kale Kassner, of the Berlin Meteorological Institute. A hot wave hits the North Pole about every 35 years, and this is the time it is due. The climate does not really change. Warmer weather comes in cycles, and history is merely repeating itself. Antics of the sun are supposed to be responsible for the changes which come in the Artic regions, as well as elsewhere in the world.

The rise in temperature in the Artic regions has been going on now for several years, Dr. Kassner continues, if the reports of Norwegian fishermen may be believed. Dr. Boel, the Norweigan scientist, discovered new coal fields in Spitzbergen last August because of the thin covering of ice which lay on the ground. A Norwegian captain who has sailed the Artic for 34 years reports that he began to notice the appreciable lessening of the ice five years ago and that the flower and animal life have been much changed by the milder climate.

Charity Organization Says It Is Doing No Soliciting

At the invitation of the chamber of commerce of Electra, the Salvation Army of Wichita Falls will establish an outpost there begining December 1. The organization will have charge of the city relief work and will continue to carry on religious services.

According to Ensign L. F. Corliss of the Salvation Army, reports have come to headquarters that tambourine collections have been taken in this city and in other neighboring towns for the Salvation Army.

"We have nobody, absolutely, nobody soliciting for the Salvation Army," declared Ensign Corliss. "The organization does not do any solicitation work, and those who do, represent some other organization than the Salvation Army."

Devotes Life to Aid of Freed Convicts

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct.—The movement which resulted in the incorporation several months ago of the Sam S. Williams Voucher Club a national organization of friendly interest toward men leaving prison, has extended to include other large cities and its organizers expect a nation-wide representation within a short time. It is a non-profit order.

Sam S. ("Daddy") Williams of Cleveland, is president of the society, which has for its chief purpose the prevention of crime, constructive prison reform, aid in rehabilitation of prisoners paroled or released from prisons, and encouragement of more liberal use of probation systems.

The program also includes providing ex-prisoners with surroundings that will prevent them from taking up the old associates and protecting them until they are self-supporting and a fund for taking care of the families of prisoners.

"Daddy" Wiliams has spent 47 years getting men out of prison, and helping them keep out, directing this work here for the last 14 years. In that time he has helped an average of 150 men a year to obtain work and get a new start. His records show only one backslider.

Warlike Filipino Tribes Prefer Trade to Fighting

By The Associated Press.

MANILA.—The Ifugaos, one of the most warlike peoples of the mountain provinces, are becoming more friendly to the lowland settlers in that province, and have started trading with them, it is reported here.

Deputy Governor Dosser, who has been working for months toward establishing peace between the mountain people and the lowland settlers, succeeded in getting more than 150 Ifugaos to take rice, vegetables and baskets to Duluog, a town on the boundary between Ifugao and the province of Isabela. These were exchanged with the lowlands for pigs and chickens. As a result of this venture several markets have been established and trading between the erstwhile warlike peoples is becoming the order of the day.

GUAM NOW HAS GOOD SCHOOLS

First Professional Teachers There Open for Business

By The Associated Press.

AGANA, Guam.—The first professional American teachers ever brought to the Island of Guam, which the United States took over from Spain 25 years ago, have just arrived here.

Chaplain W. L. Thompson, U. S. N., who was detailed as head of the department of education of Guam in 1921, says he will now be able to modernize the school system of the island. Uptodate text books have arrived from the United States, and the chaplain will now be able to extend the course of studies for the native children. One-third of all the revenue of the island government is expended for education.

The new American teachers, Dr. Thomas Collins and four young women, will perform a veritable missionary work in giving the Chamorro children a knowledge of the English language, which Chaplain Thompson says is the most necessary element in the effort for general development. Chaplain Thompson and Dr. Collins have started a normal school which will give the native teachers their first opportunity to learn accurate English and approved methods and principles of teaching.

The rapid increase in native population since the American occupation, according to the governor of Guam, Captain H. B. Price, U. S. N., has brought the number of children in school up to 2,500. Of this number approximately 300 are more than 12 years old and attend school voluntarily. There are now 16 school buildings with 63 native teachers in charge.

For the first time in the history of American rule in Guam, the native communities surrounding the schools are showing an active interest in education, Governor Price reports. One group of Chamorros recently salvaged a 70-foot spar from the beach, dragged it many miles up hill and helped install it as a flag pole in front of a school building. In the village of Piti, the people recently voluntarily painted their school house.

The supervision of schools in the more remote districts has its hazards. Chaplain Thompson and Dr. Collins make monthly inspection trips through dense jungle and swamp, mounted on bulls. These plodding animals, gentle enough when handled by a native, become suddenly spirited at the unfamiliar touch of white men, and riding them adds a certain sporting element to school teaching in the tropics.

The naval medical officers on Guam have accomplished remarkable results through examining all school children and treating them at the navy hospital here for defects of the eyes, teeth, and their general health. The superstitious fear of the hospital gradually is being overcome, and some natives have actually entered a hospital voluntarily. In outlying villages the navy hospital corps look after the children, give first-aid lessons to the native teachers, and serve the medical needs of the community in every way.

MOSCOW GIRLS MOURN JAZZ

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 2.—A score or so of charming Moscow girls, taught to one-step and fox-trot by the men of the American Relief Administration during their stay in Russia, are waiting with longing hearts and itching toes for someone to come back and dance real U. S. A. with them again.

The A. R. A. personnel houses frequently have dances, and the Russian girl employes learned to like jazz better than their own waltzes, one-steps and fox-trots. There are one or two cafes in Moscow where a sort of syncopation is played nightly, but the dancing by the public does not begin until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. These places, too, are expensive and beyond the purses of the former A. R. A. girls, many of whom are now without jobs.

Aided by phonographs and American dance records, some of these sad young women have been trying to teach Russian men to dance in the American manner, but the girls say they put too much heel clicking and leaping about into the measures and try to turn a fox trot into a ballet.

The girls are frankly miserable about it, and whenever a stray American who can dance turns up in Moscow, he can be surrounded by willing dancing partners as long as he is able to keep going.

Every time a girl gets a letter in English from some former A. R. A. man, she takes it around to all her acquaintances and they sigh, turn on the phonograph, and think of old times.

First Sight Love Starts Royal Romance

BRUSSELS, Oct.—The engagement of Prince Humbert of Piedmont, heir to the throne of Italy, to Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, which is to be officially anounced November 4, is the culmination of a love match of long standing.

In 1916, Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, desirous of placing the little princess—she was then 12 years old—outside the range of airplane raids and big guns continually shelling La Panne, where the Belgium royal family had their modest war home, took her daughter to Florence, when under private teachers she studied English and Italian.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by the Princess, spent the 1917 vacation at Venice. There, under the constant menace of Austrian airplane raids and German-Austro offensives, the Prince a youth in a sailor's costume and the Princess, wearing a plain white dress, met for the first time.

It was love at first sight.

When Prince Humbert visited Belgium last year there were many who noted that although the tour was supposed to be officially conducted, the heir to the throne of Italy preferred the company of the Princess, now a beautiful young woman to receptions and listening to addresses by Burgomasters.

The engagement has been very popularly received here.

Texas Representatives Step Up In Congress Committees This Session

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS

WASHINGTON, D. C. Oct. 2.—Practically every member of the Texas delegation in congress has advanced high on his committees as a result of retirements and deaths of democratic colleagues and if the democrats gain control of the house in 1924, Texas will hold chairmanships of some of the most important house committees, an examination of house committeeships today showed.

Many of the climbs by Texas members have come since congress adjourned on March 4. Seventeen members of congress, many of them veterans and holding high places have died since March 4th.

Congressman John M. Garner of Uvalde, acting democratic leader on the ways and means committee, during the long illness of Congressman Claude Kitchen of North Carolina becomes its actual ranking member since the death of Kitchen. Garner, in the event of democratic control of the Sixty-ninth congress will have his choice between the chairmanship of the powerful ways and means committee and the speakership, a choice that will be difficult to make for there is little choice between them in power and general desirability.

Representative Marvin Jones of Amarillo moves to third place on the agriculture committee through the retirement of Representative Jacoway of Arkansas and death of Representative Rainey of Illinois.

Representative James P. Buchanan becomes second on the powerful appropriations committee through the retirement of Representative Thomas U. Sisson of Mississippi.

Representative Morgan G. Sanders of Canton takes second democratic place on the census committee, through the death of Representative Tyson of Alabama.

Representative Clay Stone of Galveston remains ranking democratic member of the coinage, weights and measures committee and will become its chairman in the event of democratic control. Representative Claude B. Hudspeth of El Paso is ranking member and in line for the chairmanship of the election committee. Representative Briggs is also second on the flood control committee, due to the death of Representative Humphreys of Mississippi and will be its chairman in event of democratic control. Williams is at the top of this committee after serving only a few months of the last session.

Representative Tom Connally of Marlin remains fourth on the foreign affairs committee, no changes having occurred on this committee.

Representative John C. Box, remains fourth on the immigration committee, no changes having occurred there, and Representative Sam Rayburn, Bonham, and Hatton W. Summers, Dallas, each are second on the interstate and foreign commerce committee and the judiciary committee respectively.

Representative Fritz G. Lanham of Fort Worth is ranking member of the industrial arts and exposition committee and will become its chairman in the event of democratic control. Lanham also goes from fifth to third place on the public buildings committee, due to the death of Representative Cantrill, Kentucky, and the retirement of Representative Rucker, Missouri.

Representative Eugene C. Black of Clarksville, in the event of democratic control, can have his choice of the chairmanship of either the reform in civil service committee or labor committee. He remains fifth on the banking and currency committee.

Representative Joseph J. Mansfield of Columbus becomes second on the committee on rivers and harbors due to the retirement of Representative Overstreet of Georgia.

Representative Daniel E. Garrett of Houston remains sixth on the democratic side of the military affairs committee, and Representative Harry M. Wurzbach of San Antonio is twelfth on the republican side of the same committee.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene is second on the District of Columbia committee and second on expenditures in the labor department.

Representative Luther Johnson of Corsicana is a new member and has not yet received his committee assignments.

Men of Wealth Sell Estates in Ireland

By The Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Oct. — There is today an exodus from Ireland of members of the wealthier classes. Lord Ormonmore and Browne is selling his property in Mayo, and other territorial magnates are taking the same course. Their estates in land come under the operation of the land purchase acts, which transfer them to the tenants at a fixed price, and they have nothing left but their mansion houses and demesnes.

The destruction of the past year has wiped out many of the mansions. The fact that a higher income tax is payable in the free state than in Great Britain and northern Ireland also accounts for the desire to leave.

Yet the exodus is by no means general, and there are many men of wealth who prefer to stay in Ireland. When the Earl of Mayo, who is a free state senator, was burned out of his family place in county Kildare, he took up his residence in the house of a gamekeeper on the estate, and resisted all attempts to drive him out. It is the desire of the free state government to encourage such men to stay in Ireland.

STOCK MARKET STILL SAGGING

20 Leading Industrials Sink to New Low Level; Foreign Up

Market Features

Total stock sales 692,000 shares.

Twenty industrial averaged 86.01; net loss .42.

High 1923, 105.38; low 86.01.

Twenty railroads averaged 80.20 net loss .31.

High 1923, 90.51; low 79.53.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. — Stock prices continued to melt away in today's quiet market with the average of 20 leading industrials sinking to a new level for the year. The so-called pivotal stocks, such as United Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker and American Can, gain held relatively firm, but sporadic selling pressure broke out in the tobaccos, sugars, rubber and certain specialties, many of which broke through their previous low prices of the year.

Cable reports that France, Belgium and Italy had accepted with reservations Lord Curzon's proposal for a reparations conference failed to stimulate trading in stocks, but it brought about a very sharp recovery in the foreign exchanges. Demand sterling advanced 2 3-8 cents to $4.50, buying of these bills also being influenced by Premier Baldwin's denial that any inflationary policy had or would be considered.

French francs advanced 16 1-2 points to 5.33 cents, Belgian francs moved up 17 1-2 points to 5.13 cents and German marks sold as high as 1.6 cents a billion, or just double the rate quoted earlier in the day.

Chief activity in the stock market centered in Famous P. r.s, which opened 5 5-8 lower at 60, sagged to 52 1-2 and then rallied feebly to 53 1-4 for a net loss of 12 3-8 points on the day. Selling of this issue was based on the announcement that production of new pictures would be suspended for the time being and reports of new financing.

U. S. Rubber, common and first preferred, touched new 1923 lows, but made up nearly all of their losses later.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent and advanced to 5 in the last hour. The time money market was dull with maturities up to 4 months available at 5 and 5 1-4 being asked for the longer dates. The bulk of prime commercial paper continues to move at 5 1-4 per cent.

Fort Worth Livestock.

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 26.—Trading in the cattle yards Friday was featureless. Receipts amounted to 3,000 head of cattle and 2,000 calves. Buyers were out at a seasonable hour, but they were not talking trade very seriously, and the market dragged from the start to the finish. Calves sold generally 25c lower, the loss for the week being around 1.25 on the good light grades and 1.75 on other classes. On fat cattle the market held in a level that was about in line with the low time of the five day period. Nothing of very desirable quality was around. Two cars of good steers went at 6.00. Inferior canners are having to sell at 1.00@1.50, the lowest level that have been posted within many weeks. Cutters are going at a general spread of 1.85@2.50. Fair to good cows are bringing 2.75@3.25, and the best are going at 3.50@4.25. Bulls were about steady, the good kinds selling mostly at 3.00@3.50.

One car of calves sold at 6.00 and another at 5.75 for a high range.

Active trading developed in the hog division where receipts were limited to 1,000 head. Prices were unevenly quoted but seemed to average around steady to 10 cents higher. The best hogs here sold to packers at 7.35 and bulk sales made a spread of 7.00@7.35. Quality was not very desirable, but the top hogs were good. Pigs remained about steady, most of the good kinds selling at 5.50@6.00, although a few went to outside buyers at 6.25@6.50.

Receipts of sheep were limited to about 8.00 head and the market was not subjected to any material change.

New Orleans Cotton.

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—Weather and crop news was considered unfavorable in the cotton market today and on top of this were private cablegrams from Liverpool which asserted that more business was being done in the Manchester cloth market. A much more favorable opinion of the European political situation gained ground making for a steady undertone throughout the session.

The early trading brought advances of 30 to 36 points and these gains were widened to 35 to 43 points by the middle of the morning, carrying December up to 30.52 and all months to new high records for the season. Realizing by longs met this advance and a gradual sag set in.

The close was 10 up to 3 down net, with December at a range of 30.16 to 30.19.

The market was supported by mixed larger mill takings than expected.

The local spot market was 25 points higher, which sent middling to the new high price of 30.50 cents a pound.

The weather was regarded unfavorably because of further rains in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas and because of freezing weather in Northwest Texas and low temperatures over the northwestern division of the belt generally. Private claims were that recent weather had cost the Oklahoma crop 200,900 bales.

MONEY At Work

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Is an "unfavorable balance of trade," as it is commonly called, always unfavorable?

The ideal trade between nations would be equal trade, where each would buy and sell in equal amounts, and none would be in debt. It would be better than the so-called "favorable" balance of trade, which means that the "favored" nation sells more than it buys, so that other countries owe it money. Such debts must be paid in gold, if possible. At present the debtor nations can't pay. What good then does it do to pile up the debt?

If we buy more than we sell, which is called an unfavorable balance of trade, the other nations could pay off their debts in goods.

There is too much gold in the United States. We need goods, not gold. We can't eat, drink, wear or live in gold. Apparently, then, an unfavorable balance of trade for awhile would be a good thing.

TRADE VOLUME IS GOOD—BRADSTREET

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"Despite irregularities due to weather conditions or the urge of conservation, the latter bred largely by price uncertainty, the general volume of trade and the pace of industry is fairly well maintained and apparently about equal to this time a year ago, when, it will be recalled, business was moving forward in about the best volume reached since the spring of 1920. Warm weather early in the week, with heavy rains in wide areas midway of that period and cool bracing atmospheres later on, have tended to lend an irregular appearance to retail trade, which needs steady, cool weather for its best expression. Jobbing trade, on immediate delivery account, is reported about as good as at any time this fall. Trade in primary channels is under the check rein of conservatism as regards spring and beyond.

Cottonseed Oil.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Shorts ran cottonseed oil prices up 21 to 30 points early in the session, October advancing to 12.75. Bullish advices from the south, small spot supplies and the firmness of lard brought in considerable new outside buying. Later the market reacted in response to realizing sales due to the setback in cotton and final prices showed 5 to 17 points net gain. Sales 25,900 barrels. Prime crude 10.00 (sales). Prime summer yellow spot 12.50@12.75; October closed 12.50; December 11.29; March 11.53; May 11.47, all bid.

Do not overlook our special terms of $5.00 down and $7.50 per month on Thor washers this month only.—Wichita Falls Electric Co.—Adv.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—After selling into new high ground for the season during today's early trading, the cotton market reacted under realizing. December contracts which had sold up to 31.05, declined to 30.61 and closed at 30.67, compared with 30.58 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed barely steady, net 12 points higher to 33 points lower, with the near months relatively firm.

The opening was steady at an advance of 8 to 24 points. A good deal of realizing was encountered at the 31 cent level for December, but the market showed continued strength and activity during the middle of the day. January sold up to 30.43 and March 30.47, but at these prices, or at about 40 to 47 points above yesterday's closing quotations, the market became rather nervous and unsettled. January sold off to 30.05 and March to 30.06, or about 38 to 40 points from the best, and the close was within a few points of the lowest.

Another private report was issued this morning estimating the crop at 10,300,000 bales compared with an indication of 10,000,000 bales towards the end of last month. These figures combined with the cold and unsettled weather in the south, seemed to increase confidence in a bullish crop report from the government next week and this was considered largely responsible for the forenoon advance. The afternoon declines were followed by renewed talk of unfavorable conditions in the cotton goods markets. Exports today were 35,091, making 1,500,544 so far this season. Port receipts 50,021. U. S. port stock 742,556.

MORRIS SHEPPARD VISITS MAYFIELD

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 26.—Morris Sheppard, senior U. S. senator from Texas, visited his new colleague, Earle B. Mayfield, Tuesday, and talked politics with the junior Texas senator during luncheon.

Sheppard predicted, in a guarded discussion with newspaper correspondents, that outcome of the predicted fight against Mayfield will hinge wholly on the extent to which republican senators feel they can make political capital out of the situation. He declined to express his personal view out of the outcome of the contest, but apparently does not fear any serious danger to Mayfield's being unseated.

Sheppard called at the governor's office to pay his respects to Governor Neff, but found that Neff had not yet returned from his Washington conference with President Coolidge on law enforcement.

Senator Sheppard will not return to Washington until a few days before convening of the new congress, he said. He has accepted numerous engagements in various parts of the state, which will occupy his time fully a month, he said.

Senator Sheppard visited several friends in various state departments, and shook hands with old and new acquaintances.

WHEAT MARKET IS AGAIN WEAK

Hopeful Outlook on Reparations Fails to Halt Slumping

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Despite a more hopeful outlook for an agreement as to German reparations and notwithstanding interest shown at Washington regarding proposed plans for government financing of wheat and flour exports to Germany, the wheat market weakened today after a brief bulge in prices at the outset. Profit taking sales as well as other selling here against purchases at Winnipeg had a bearish effect. The close was unsettled 1-8 to 5-8 to 3-4 cent net lower, with December 1.06 3-4 to 1.00 7-8 and May 1.11 3-8 to 1.11 1-2. Corn gained 3-8 to 5-8 cent, oats 1-8 to 1-4 cents and provisions 5 to 20 cents.

In corn the prevailing big discount for futures deliveries as compared with immediate delivery tended to restrict selling. Oats reflected firmness of corn.

Better demand gave a lift to provisions.

RATE ON WATER IN DISCUSSION

C. of C. Business Council Questions Present High Figure

Discussion of water rates and cheaper rates were heard at the luncheon of the Business Council of the chamber of commerce at the Kemp Friday.

F. N. Layton, manager of the city water department, described in detail the pumping of water from Lake Wichita, telling of the method of filtration. The water is treated with lime and alum and filtered through sand and gravel, followed by "aeration" and treatment by chloride. The water must go through this process before it is let into the mains to be used for drinking.

In speaking of the irrigation project, Mr. Lawton said that amount of water brought here would not materially affect the rates of Wichita Falls. "The irrigation project is entirely separate from the water department; our greatest expense is in operation and treatment of the water and the laying of extensions. The water department is now on a paying basis; we have been able to take care of some extensions and keep out of debt. I am in favor of a cheaper rate if it can be had without damage to the department which is now on a self supporting basis."

Bert Dean discussed the proposition saying, "A 30 cent rate for water in Wichita Falls is an outrage. We should have a maximum rate of not over 15 cents. Our money and our credit are tied up in the irrigation project and we were promised at the time that there would be a material reduction in rates when the irrigation project was completed."

"Wichita Falls is furnishing the plant; we are paying taxes on the bonds which were voted to purchase the water company; we are taxed on the irrigation project, and there has been no reduction in rates since the days when the water company was privately owned," Judge A. H. Britain said in his discussion of the water rate.

"With an abundant water supply now at our command, there is no reason why we should not have a water rate that would enable us to make this city a real beauty spot," he stated.

Frank Queisser thought that it might be possible to increase the supply of water and maintain the present minimum monthly charge.

A motion was made by Luther Hoffman to appoint a committee to confer with Mr. Lawton and the city officials concerning the water supply at the present rate. The motion was passed and the committee appointed is composed of Judge A. M. Britain, R. A. Thompson and Luther Hoffman.

There was no report from the trained committee of which O. W. Maer is chairman. The matter has been taken up with the M. K. & T. railroad, but no answer has been received.

Reports were given by J. W. Bradley and N. M. Clifford, street commissioner, on the lighting of the white way lights. The total of the city electric bills for the past few months were given by Mr. Bradley and the council thought it best not to keep the lights burning throughout the night. It was decided, however, that it would be well to keep the lights burning during the hours of two and three in the morning when the morning trains arrive.

Mr. Queisser reported that the city council had agreed to furnish and construct signs in the safety zones and in the two-hour parking areas.

An announcement of the Texas Conference of Social Welfare which meets here November 4-7 was made by Luther Hoffman, who urged the attendance of and cooperation of all members of the council.

TAX STATEMENTS BEING MAILED

More than 3,000 tax statements for 1924 have been mailed from the office of Guy Raley, county tax collector, the last few days.

Raley has worked out a system of tax collection declared by many to be one of the best ever tried. The tax statement, itemized, is sent to the tax payer. On the back is a form for a sworn statement which is to be filled out before a notary.

By this system the tax payer does not have to come to the tax colector's office and find out how much he owes. In fact he does not have to come at all as he can sign the blanks enclosed and mail in the amount he owes.

About 13,000 of the statements are to be mailed. This job is expected to be completed by the end of next week, Raley said Friday.

Football season.

RAIN TOGS ARE IN DEMAND

Storms Bring Stores New Trade

Raincoats, rubbers, golashes, overshoes and umbrellas have been selling famously at the local shops since the weather man has been generously sprinkling a little humidity over the landscape.

The sales are mostly among school children, and distracted mothers who are "shoeing" their brood of ducklings complain that "Willie would rather step in a puddle to see it splash than walk around," or "I simply can't teach Betty to keep her feet dry, she comes home with mud on her shoes clear up to her ankles."

Many little girls wear rain capes with hood attached, but some are asserting their independence and insisting on rain coats and slicker hats, short in front and long behind, "like brother's." Rain is a small worry to the children.

Ladies' parasols and umbrellas are being bought in great numbers. The ladies' rainstick of today is quite different from the one carried by her grandmother. Dainty silk models in dark colors and attractive shapes are ample protection for new fall hats. The silk sheds water, will not split like the first taffeta parasols that came out, dries quickly and withstands successfully rain snow and sleet. The day has gone when women carried big black canopies that poked passerby in the ear and knocked hats onto wet slippery streets or made passage through a doorway impossible.

Men look at the dainty silk umbrellas with ivory tips and handles or amber finishings and say, "You don't think that thing will keep the rain off of you, do you?" and Miss Wichita trips by through the shower and stays safe and dry under her pretty but practical little umbrella.

Ancient And New Violins Are Here

Violins of today differ quite radically from the stringed instruments of the ancient Egyptians, as a comparison of those in the window of S. M. Glidewell, Indiana street violin maker show.

The old Egyptian "viol" is the property of a local woman who loaned it to Mr. Glidewell for display. Her father, who was on a research expedition in Egypt, brought the instrument back with him and according to data collected at that time the tomb from which it was taken was over 2,000 years old.

The viol is made from a turtle shell with pigskin stretched tightly over the front. The long neck of the instrument extends from the neck of the turtle shell and has pegs for two strings which fasten over a small wooden peg at the other end of the viol that serves as a tailpiece.

Decorations were once elaborate but quite faded now. Designs are painted in red and gold on the neck and the drumhead effect that serves as a resonator. Modern strings and a modern bridge have been put on the instrument, as the ones the Egyptian fiddle artist used probably got lost in the shuffle.

Doubtless this viol was used by one of the jazz bandits in the glory of Cleopatra's court, who played at the royal banquets before Tony came to whisper sweet nothings to her under the Egyptian stars.

WILL VOTE ON PAVE QUESTION

Owners on Ohio and Indiana Will Be Allowed to Choose

The property owners on Ohio and Indiana avenues will themselves decide by ballot the kind of paving they prefer and the city council will not in any manner try to influence them, city officials said Friday.

In order to allow the property owners to chose between brick and bitulithic paving cards will be mailed out by the city secretary to each of 112 property owners in the zone where the paving is to be done. On these cards the property owners are designated whether they favor brick or bitulithic. In this manner, city officials believe, it can be determined better what kind of paving is desired by the majority.

The city council recommended brick paving as more economical. At a meeting of the city council last Monday night a number of property owners were present, insisting on bitulithic paving.

The idea of cement paving is not being considered. This is because cement paving would make the streets inaccessible for a month or more, officials say.

CHARGED HE DROVE WHEN DRUNK, "60 DAYS," SAYS COURT

Charged with driving a car while intoxicated S. A. Nichols plead guilty before Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law Friday and was sentenced to 60 days in jail.

A civil suit in which L. L. Bain was suing L. B. Chambers for debt resulted in a judgment for the plaintiff in the amount of $697.50.

TRACE ADDRESSES OF DELINQUENTS

Addresses of a number of delinquent tax payers are being compiled in the office of W. R. Anderson, recently appointed by the county commissioners to collect a number of delinquent taxes found due when a compilation was made by the tax collector's office going back as far as 1885.

Anderson says the long period of time which is covered by the compilation means the addresses of a number of delinquents have been lost. These are all being traced down and the job will be completed soon, according to Anderson.

Hi Girls Turn Out Champ Cookery

"Can she bake a cherry pie Billy Boy.
Billy Boy.
Can she bake a cherry pie, Charming Billy?"
She can bake a cherry pie quick as a cat can wink it's eye,
"She's a young thing, and cannot leave her mother."

And cherry pie isn't all she can bake. She can bake cheese souffle, potatoes au gratin, sweet potatoes a la creole, and she can turn out a roast of pork that would make a Child's chef quit his job—if she's a high school home economics student.

High school girls nowadays are learning to cook attractively, economically, sensibly and deliciously. A budding culinary artist can take a whole ham, rub it with mysterious savory things, stud it with cloves, bake it for three inches of cream and serve the delectable dish with skill that is artistic. Or she can take a tough cheap cut, a flank steak for instance, and pound it full of flour, fry it golden brown, pack it in a casserole with vegetables, swim it in gravy, bake it all afternoon at just the right temperature and serve a dish so delicious that the fortunate man who eats it will propose on the spot.

There will be no "ammunition biscuits" served by the students of the high school coures in domestic science when they prepare their first meal of married life.

Strange as it may seem, they are teaching their mothers things about the gentle art of cooking.

PAUL SAYS IT WITH APPLES

Yes, Dave Paul, prominent local jeweler, has plenty of apples.

Apples in a jewelry store seem far from having any relation. The nearest this ever happened before, until Dave got the idea, was when Solomon wrote something about apples of gold in pictures of silver.

Dave's apples are not of gold. They are far from ornamental, but are the proverbial red, ripe, juicy kind which Eve ate and then recommended to Adam. Dave has 250 bushels of the aforesaid apples.

The jeweler is not going to be stingy with them. He expects by late tonight to not have any of his apples left. Today, Dave is going to give a bushel of apples to everybody making a $5 purchase at his jewelry store.

The purchaser of the jewelry will not have to take his luscious bonus home under his arm either. Dave promises to deliver the bushel of apples to the customer's home.

If his plans carry apple pie will be served in many Wichita Falls homes Sunday. A month from now some of the apples may wake up to find themselves converted into cider.

LEGION TO HOLD HALLOWE'EN BALL

A masquerade ball will be given Hallowe'en night at legion hall under the auspices of the American Legion, it is announced by commander Sam Beattie. Costumes and masks according to the laws of Hallowe'en ghosts will be worn, and everybody is invited to attend. Many legion members and ex-service men are expected to be present, and a suitable program will be offered before the dance, starting about 8:30.

Zona Marie Ehlert, the popular nine-year-old girl dancer, will entertain with solo dancing. F. M. Shappard of Little Rock, who was a member of the famous 142d Infantry quartet during the war, which entertained at Camp Bowie and overseas, will give a number of vocal selections. To add the topping zest to the Hallowe'en program, Roy "Happy" Thomas, well known musician and vocal entertainer, will sing a selection of "blues."

According to legion officials, everything will be decorated to suit the occasion and a real enough Hallowe'en mask ball with prizes and everything will be there. A small admittance fee will be charged.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

In answer to the many inquiries that come to me daily about getting out for the band concert at Maskat Temple, I want to state that through the kindness of Mr. Albritton the street cars will run to the fair grounds on the night of the concert starting at 6:30.

Another question that is being asked is: "Why are you having the concert so far out?" The answer to this question is: Maskat Temple is the only practical place we have for a concert of this kind. The Thavis band is an organization of 50 people including singers, ballet and members of the band. Maskat Temple is the only building that will accommodate the great number of people who want to hear this concert. The loudest and most delicate passages will be heard perfectly and the stage is being so arranged that all can see every movement of both conductor and dancers and hear the singers.

This is the opening concert of the season of 1923-24 and I am hoping to create an enthusiastic interest in the community in the concerts that are to follow during this season and others.
