Charter Completed, Senators Plan For Quick Ratification

Final Details Of World Plan Are Fitting Together

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21. — The United Nations conference fitted into place the last details of a charter for a world-peace keeping organization today and Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Connally (D-Tex) arranged to report to the Senate on it next Thursday and Friday.

Secretary of State Stettinius, beaming with pleasure, told a news conference that everything is now ready for the eight-hour signing ceremony to start late Monday.

Truman Speaks Tuesday

The next day President Truman will make his formal address to the closing session. Present plans are for Mr. Truman to carry the charter back with him to Washington.

But if he does not go directly back, then Senator Connally will take the charter for unofficial presentation to the Senate on Thursday, at which the Texan plans to make a general report to the Senate.

Senator Vandenberg plans to supply a detailed report on the conference to the Senate on Friday. Senate ratification is necessary for the United States to participate, and Mr. Truman has urged that it come promptly — if possible, before his summer meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

Compiling Of Reports

However, blocking the chance of such speedy action is the fact that about two weeks are expected to be needed to compile reports and minutes for consideration by the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

American delegation leaders are reported balancing a determination that there must be no arbitrary delays in Senate consideration of the charter against a conviction that both Congress and the country are entitled to a "reasonable time" in which to discuss a matter of such great importance.

Stettinius said that the text of the charter was finally finished at 4 a. m. (pwt) today.

Bridge Meeting Gap

The secretary of state also reported officially—it had long been said unofficially—that the commission will bridge the gap between the conference and the first meeting of the world organization in London this summer.

Representatives of all 50 United Nations will meet here in a post-conference session on Wednesday.

Stettinius also said that Mr. Truman will be the last person to address the conference, in plenary

Wright Trial Set August 6; State To Ask Death Penalty

The state will ask the death penalty for A. J. Wright, 21, when he goes to trial Aug. 6 on an indictment charging murder of W. T. Lamb.

So announced District Attorney Burton S. Burks Thursday after Wright had pleaded innocent in an early afternoon arraignment on a two-count charge returned at noon by a 99th district grand jury that required only 1 hour 50 minutes to question 13 witnesses.

Winnie McKeever Garner, 18, similarly indicted, was in the courtroom when Wright was arraigned. Judge G. V. Pardue asked if she had employed counsel. She said she had not. Her arraignment was set tentatively for July 2, when a new term of court opens.

The girl's trial will follow that of Wright. Dallas Scarborough, of Abilene, Wright's counsel, told the court he would not controvert her sworn request, filed immediately after indictments were returned, that Wright be tried first. No counsel has appeared for her.

Scarborough waived a two-day statutory period between service of indictment and arraignment of his client.

Two Special Venires

Judge Pardue said he would summon two special venires for the week of Aug. 6—one for Monday, the other for Thursday.

The district attorney had sought to set the trials by agreement for the week of July 16, or that of July 23, but Scarborough wanted more time so that he might obtain depositions of naval doctors. Wright had served several months in the Navy, but was discharged for reasons of unfitness, defense counsel said.

Pending her arrgainment, the district attorney said he would reserve announcement of what penalty the state would ask in the case of Mrs. Garner, wife of a DeQueen, Ark., serviceman.

First count of the indictments charges Lamb, 49, was murdered with a "gun." The second alleges a "pistol."

Fatally Shot Sunday

Lamb, night attendant of Lowrimore's Nineteenth street service station, was fatally shot early Sunday when he resisted efforts of a man and a girl to rob him.

Mrs. Garner and Wright, of Abilene before setting off with the girl on a hitchhiking adventure that ended with taking an automobile in a Weatherford hijacking, robbery of a Brownfield service station, attempted robbery and shooting of Lamb, wrecking of the car and arrest Monday after an all-night manhunt, admit all those details in signed statements.

Truman Pledges New Food Setup

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 21 (AP) In holiday mood—and wearing a "Siwash" sweater knit by British Columbia Indians—President Truman went salmon fishing this afternoon after a press conference at which he promised improvement in the meat situation and forecast a single control over prices and food.

At the press conference — attended by his host, Gov. Mon C. Wallgren and by U. S. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Seattle—the President also:

Bretton Woods

Expressed confidence the Senate would ratify the Bretton Woods world monetary agreements, and gratification over its approval of legislation to extend the reciprocal trade program;

Termed General Eisenhower a grand gentleman who is entitled to anything he wants, and asserted the President would see that he gets it;

Endorsed a measure calling for creation of a Columbia Valley authority;

Told reporters the San Francisco United Nations conference seems to have accomplished its purpose and that he would leave by plane Monday to address its closing session Tuesday, after stopping off in Portland, Ore.;

Discharge Age Holds

Assured questioners he had no plans for lowering the age for discharging soldiers, adding that it is a matter strictly for the military;

And the President came out flatly in favor of postwar completion of the Alaska highway in cooperation with Canada and British Columbia government.

The President said he had no cabinet changes immediately in mind and denied reports he was getting rid of Interior Secretary Ickes. In response to a question

U. S. Now Set In Reach Of Whole Empire

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Friday, June 22 — The battle for Okinawa was declared won by Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in a special communique Thursday, giving tired but triumphant American Tenth Army troops official victory on the 82nd day of the campaign.

Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, in command at the finish, pronounced the battle won at approximately one p. m. Thursday (10 p. m. Wednesday, cwt).

Can Reach Every Corner

The conquest put American air power within reach of every part of the Japanese empire and secured for the Pacific fleet an operating base only 325 miles from Nippon's mainland.

Soldiers and Marines of the victorious Army—organized for its first campaign from half a dozen battle-tempered divisions—stamped at two remaining feeble sparks of resistance. These were Japanese pockets, all that remained of a once powerfully armed, strongly fortified garrison of 90,000.

Associated Press correspondent Vern Haugland, reporting from Okinawa, said that while organized resistance was ended it was still dangerous to move around alone or unarmed.

Japanese stragglers were apt to throw grenades from high road banks or from ruins of bleak, shattered, silent villages, the dispatch said.

Some By-Passed

The conquerors swept down the island's southern end too rapidly to clean out all by-passed Nipponese.

Japanese and Okinawan dead were scattered everywhere. The Americans were too busy with the living, still resisting Japanese and thousands of stunned, ragged, starged Okinawa civilians, to attend to burials.

Even while Nimitz was proclaiming the victory in a special Thursday communique, Tokyo radio expressed concern over where the next American thrust would come. The Japanese have reported at least two U. S. task forces already moving through the East China sea southwest of Okinawa, with supply ships and assault boats.

These reports were without American confirmation.

Nimitz' victory communique said only that "after 82 days of fighting, the battle of Okinawa

Brilliant Guerrilla Maneuver Splits Japs On Northern Luzon

Province Captial And Good Airport Captured In Drive

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Friday, June 22. — Filipino guerrillas, brilliantly led by Col. Russell W. Volckmann, have split in two the major Japanese forces on northern Luzon by crossing the Cagayan river and capturing the Cagayan province capital of Tuguegarao and its good airport, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today.

The daring guerilla blow, supported by U. S. Sixth Army artillery and Fifth Air force planes, was struck 35 miles north of Ilagan, Isabela province copital taken the day before by the U. S. 37th Infantry division.

Desperate Jap Blow Fails

The desperate Japanese, having shown little fight for the past week, flung in two armor-led counterattacks against the 37th division southeast of Ilagan, but both were broken when the Buckeye infantrymen knocked out nine enemy tanks, eight of them flamethrowers.

While the enemy was putting his strength into these vain blows, the guerillas slicing eastward out of the northern Luzon hills, crossed the river and seized Tuguegarao and large stocks of food and munitions, meeting scanty opposition.

The scene is 50 miles airline and 65 by road south of the north Luzon port of Aparri, toward which the estimated thousands of Japanese in the valley have been withdrawing.

Has Four Runways

The Tuguegarao airport has two 5,000-foot runways and two 3,000-foot strips suitable for fighters.

Seeing the trap being fashioned for them, the Japanese struck back at the 37th division the night of June 16 and morning of June 17, but were knocked back with loss of one tank.

They tried again June 19, four miles southeast of Ilagan on the trail leading towards remote Palanan bay in eastern Luzon. Again they were repulsed, with loss of eight tanks.

A spokesman at Manila headquarters said the armor undoubtedly was remnants of the Japanese Second Armored division which had been defeated origin-

Six Targets Are Pounded In Day Raid

By ROBBIN COONS
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Friday, June 22—Japan's best remaining naval arsenal and five big aircraft factories on Honshu island were attacked with high-explosive bombs by 450 American Superfortresses in daylight today in the third blow against the enemy homeland in five days.

The B-29s, flying in clear weather without fighter escort, dropped high explosives in visual-bombing attacks on objectives which included:

The Kure naval arsenal at Kure; the Mitsubishi and Kawasaki aircraft plants at Kagamigahara, 20 miles north of Nagoya, the Kawanishi aircraft plant at Himeji, and the Kawasaki aircraft plant at Akashi, both in the Kobe area; and the Mitsubishi-Mishima aircraft factory at Tamashima, 90 miles west of Kobe.

Seven Already Battered

Marking further intensification of demolition raids on specific strategic targets feeding Japan's war-making potential, today's strikes added to damage inflicted Monday on four fire-bombed towns and Wednesday on three more.

The Superforts separated into several attack formations and bombed from medium altitude.

Many of the Superforts concentrated on the Kure arsenal, one of the enemy Navy's principal supply sources.

The Hiro arsenal already had been virtually demolished in a Superfort attack May 5. That left Kure the only good arsenal remaining. It covers an area of 3,600 by 3,000 feet and is two miles west of Kure port on the peninsula forming the south side of Kure harbor.

Products Are Urgent

Guns up to 16 inches, projectiles, fuses, propellants and torpedoes are among its products.

The Mitsubishi and Kawasaki aircraft plants at Kagamigahara are only 1,300 feet apart, Mitsubishi is devoted to aircraft assembly and the larger Kawasaki assembles "Tonys" and twin-engine "Lily" bombers.

The Kawasaki plant had an area of 15,000,000 square feet.

The Kawanishi factory at Himeji, formerly a textile mill but now devoted to assembling single-engined Navy fighters, had a 2,000,000-square-foot area devoted to aircraft.

The Kawasaki plant at Akashi had been struck twice before by

Nazis 'Doped Out' Normandy But Others Proved Surprise

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, June 21.—The Germans guessed the place, strength and approximately time of the Allied invasion of Normandy, but were fooled in their expectation that a second thrust would come farther north, a supreme headquarters intelligence officer disclosed today after questioning Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl of the Nazi high command.

Other Disclosures

This officer said questioning of Jodl and Field Marshals Wilhelm Keitel and Albert Kesselring also had disclosed that:

Orders for German invasion of Britain were issued July 2, 1940, but were cancelled Oct. 6, three months later, because of the hazards and lack of training;

Hitler alone did not make the decision to invade Russia, but the German high command shared in that decision, and Jodl claimed the Russians had been strengthening their forces facing Germany;

The Allied invasion of North Africa scored a complete surprise; and the Germans were amazed by the failure of their attempt to smash the American corridor out of Normandy at Avranches last August.

Jodl was quoted as saying that although the German high command guessed the general area aid approximate strength of the D-day invasion, the Germans had expected it several weeks earlier.

Expected At Calais

The Nazis were certain, Jodl said, that the Allies would make a second, even stronger assault farther north in the Pas de Calais area, and for this reason hesitated to shift 14 divisions of the German 15th Army concentrated there to Normandy to reinforce the German Seventh Army.

Determined to hold the Pas de Calais area and its V-weapon sites, the Germans did not transfer troops from there until they had determined that the Allied divisions which they believed were being held for a landing at Pas de Calais were fighting in Normandy.

Jodl's account as given by the intelligence officer continued:

Ten days after the Normandy landings, the Germans realized they couldn't shove the Allies back into the sea without more mobile reserves, and it was then that they rushed the Second SS corps, consisting of the Ninth and Tenth SS Panzer divisions, to the west despite the sore need for them still on the Eastern front.

Wanted More Reserves

All members of the German high command had thought the invasion could be repulsed, but Jodl personally was not satisfied with the number of reserve German divisions in France. Jodl, who spent 10½ years in the high command, was the chief planner in that organization, the Allied officer said, and was a close adviser to Hitler on wartife strategic and tactical problems.

Jodl said the British invasion orders finally were cancelled because the weather and lack of training and equipment made it too hazardous.

Jodl also said it had been hoped that Britain would not continue fighting after France fell.

Attack On Russia

As for Russia, Jodl said nobody had considered an attack on the Soviet as either desirable or probable, but that late in 1940 and early in 1941 he reported to Hit-

Japs Say Wake Hit By Carriers

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21 (AP) An unconfirmed report that about 300 "enemy" carrier-based planes on Wednesday raided Japanese-held Wake island, far in the rear of action in the Pacific war, was made by the Tokyo radio today.

Wake was captured by the Japanese early in the war after a heroic stand by a little band of American Marines. The island, 2,300 miles west of Pearl Harbor, is bombed several times monthly by land-based U. S. Navy search planes or Privateers. It has not been officially reported raided by American carrier aircraft, however, since last September 3.

September Attack

In the September attack a task force shelled and bombed the tiny island, knocking out coastal guns and anti-aircraft gun positions and damaging buildings. There was no air opposition.

Today's Tokyo report, recorded by the FCC, said the attacking planes "are supposed to have taken off from more than two enemy carriers." A Domei news agency broadcast said the raiders attacked in "several waves" and were "successfully hurled back."

Another broadcast reported an air fleet of 56 planes scouted southern Japan for two hours early today, apparently in preparation for new attacks on that area of the homeland.

Radio Tokyo spent a busy day today, warning the Japanese people in one breath of invasion threats, bolstering their courage in the next and, between accounts of actual American activity, launching obvious feelers on what next to expect.

Panhandle Wheat Harvest Starts With Adequate Labor, Equipment

(By The Associated Press)

Harvesting of wheat will be in full swing in the Texas Panhandle bread basket by the week's end, the Texas Extension Service said yesterday. Prospects were for adequate labor and equipment and a yield which would exceed earlier and gloomier estimates.

Farm labor was moving into the Plainview - Amarillo area from the South Plains, where dry weather, until yesterday had reached drouth proportions.

Scattered rain over the South Plains area yesterday broke a 35-day dry stretch that had set row crops back a month. Farmers believed the moisture would put the earth in shape for immediate planting.

Wheat harvest was nearing its end in Plains counties of Hale and Floyd. The yield averaged from three to 20 bushels an acre.

The Kansas extension farm labor routing office was directing numerous combines and crews into the North Panhandle and machinery was being transferred from Crosby and Floyd counties, the Texas service said.

The Oklahoma extension labor office also was requested to send harvest hands, Caesar Hohn, Texas extension farm labor supervisor said.

Available equipment and crews, "will take care of the situation in good shape," J. B. Kidd, Plainview, farm labor field assistant said.

Combines Needed

But Amarillo reported the labor or supply might be shorter than expected since yields were going beyond original estimates. The need for combines was urgent at Tulia, Canyon, Amarillo and Hereford, the Amarillo report said.

Rains halted cutting temporarily Wednesday and hail damaged some wheat in the Panhandle area.

But a yield at least ten percent greater than the department of agriculture's previous estimate of 36,000,000 bushels for the state was forecast by the Texas Extension Service. Even so, the 1945 crop was expected to be 45 per cent less than last year's.

For that reason, Hohn said, storage space probably would be ample.

B-29s Convince Japs Cities Are Too Large

(By The Associated Press)

The Japanese home affairs ministry has decided that Nippon hauled off and built its cities too large and henceforth there shall be none on the islands with more than 3,000,000 population.

(EDS NOTE: This project has the earnest co-operation of U. S. Superfortresses, which for some time have been laboring with might, main and fire bombs to get Tokyo's population down to more seemly proportions — also Osaka's which likewise is over three million.)

A Tokyo radio commentator said it was to be hoped that the program for reducing the population of cities would be accomplished in the "not-too-distant future."

(In view of what American air generals have promised the Japanese in the way of bigger and better air raids, it may be assumed the commentator said a mouthful.)

Three Billion Gift For Britain Urged

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP) — A New York Federal Reserve bank officer recommended that the United States give Great Britain $3,000,000,000 to stabilize her economy.

The recommendation was made to the Senate Banking and Currency committee by John H. Williams, the bank's vice president and Harvard university professor of economics.

He termed Britain's economic stabilization essential before the Bretton Woods international monetary agreements can be successful.

"Unless that is done first Bretton Woods will be another international failure," Williams forecast.

The witness said he had heard of some proposals that the United States extend Britain grants of $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000 but he estimated $3,000,000,000 would accomplish the desired purpose.

Gen. Ike Given Great Ovation By Hometown

ABILENE, Kans., June 21 (AP)—General Ike Eisenhower came home tonight after blazing a 150-mile trail of glory across eastern Kansas—and the entire population of Abilene and persons from miles around crowded around the little station to give him a heart-warming home-coming.

"Boy, I'm glad to be back here," the general said as he rushed off the train to receive the official greeting, the key to the town where he grew up, and the greeting he has traveled thousands of miles to receive.

"Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," was struck up by a gaily decorated cowboy band as the general and his wife left the train, wreathed in smiles and surrounded by thousands.

General Eisenhower arrived at 9:30 p. m. c. w. t. aboard a ten-car special train that brought him from Kansas City after a great celebration there.

He shook hands joyously with Joner Callahan, drug store proprietor where he used to hang out nearly forty years ago, C. M. Harger, editor and old-time friend, Bud Huffman, mail carrier; Orin Snyder, his old football coach now farming here, C. A. Case, a retired merchant, and Paul Royer, local attorney.

It took Ike ten minutes to free himself from the greeters and board a car with his 83-year-old mother to drive to their old home, five blocks distant.

Eisenhower rushed from the rear car of the train as it pulled in, in order to draw the crowd away

200 War-Weary Vets Of Famous 36th Back Home For Discharge

(By The Associated Press)

APPROXIMATELY 200 point-heavy war-weary veterans of Texas' 36th division were rolling by troop train last night to San Antonio and civilian life.

All had more than 85 minimum service points required for discharge and within a few days they will return to civilian existence.

On the same train were remnants of the 2nd and 45th divisions which arrived in New York Sunday from overseas and were shuttled to Camp Shanks, N. Y.

All of these men had more than 85 points needed for discharge and the average, according to Major R. L. Utley, commander of the 3rd Battalion, 38th Infantry, Second division, is about 100 points. Major Utley is from San Antonio.

The train stopped in the Fort Worth yards for about 25 minutes while it took on water and ice for the steaming cars.

First off the train while it was still moving was a veteran of the 36th, Sgt. Raymond Jeter of Fort Worth. He had been riding on the lower step for 200 yards as the train puffed into the yards.

The sergeant, who had not been home for almost three years, ran into his wife's arms. Mrs. Jeter cried a little.

"Here are about 500 men who may help relieve the labor shortage," said the major from San Antonio, "but not for about 60 days."

The major predicted that the veterans will do exactly nothing for about that period of time, that it may be a year before they finally adjust themselves to the tempo of peace.

T-Sgt. M. P. Dickerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dickerson of McKinney, and whose wife and three-year-old son live in Mineola, will return to the farm. Dickerson has 112 points.

"I haven't seen my boy since he was nine months old," said Dickerson. "I don't suppose I'll know him. But we're going to get acquainted."

Dickerson is a member of the 2nd Division, 38th Infantry.

The unheralded return of the combat veterans found the Fort Worth freight yards as dusty and deserted and as hot as they were yesterday when the first section of the 86th (Blackhawk) division came through.

A small restaurant half a block from the yards ran out of soft drinks.

There was nothing of the movie or story-book soldier about these men. They were sweaty and un-

Writer Aboard Ill-Fated Nashville Recounts Jap Suicide Bomb Attack

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is by a United Press war correspondent who was aboard the USS Nashville when it was hit by a Japanese suicide plane, killing 133 officers and men and wounding 190 others. The badly damaged cruiser has been repaired at Puget Sound and is back in service).

By RALPH TEATSORTH
United Press War Writer

SOMEWHERE IN THE PHILIPPINES, (Delayed by Censorship)—One minute all was peace aboard the USS Nashville, the next it was chaos.

It was 3 o'clock the afternoon of Dec. 13, when a lone Japanese fighter sneaked over our convoy and made a suicide dive into the sleek, light cruiser amidships. The Nashville was the only ship damaged in the convoy carrying American forces to Mindoro.

No Jap Planes Sighted

All day we had received reports of Japanese planes in the vicinity of the convoy, but we hadn't actually seen any. I had been napping beside the forward, six-inch gun turret with two other correspondents.

Suddenly, I was awakened by the roar of a plane. It lasted five or six seconds. Then came the crash.

There was an explosion that sounded as if all the cruiser's guns had fired simultaneously, then a layer of flame that seemed to cover 100 feet of deck, and finally clouds of smoke and hundreds of successive explosions from five-inch and 40 mm. shells.

The ship's ammunition kept exploding for 15 minutes. Debris flew in all directions and no place topside was safe. Men wounded, burned and bleeding screamed fore and aft.

Terrific Damage

Naval officers believed that the plane carried two small bombs. The main force of the explosions struck the starboard side but the damage was terrific over the entire width of the ship.

The plane's gasoline drenched the deck, burned fiercely, and probably set off most of the ammunition. Several gas-splattered men were charred in their tracks.

Several high ranking Navy and Army officers were killed. Brig. Gen. William C. Dunckel, who commanded the Mindoro operation, was in his cabin, a few yards from where the plane crashed. Shrapnel pierced the steel walls and a large chunk of metal just missed his head. He was wounded in the head, right hand and left thumb. Later he told us that the same thumb had been pierced in the first World war.

Aide Blown To Pieces

"I guess they're out to get that thumb," he said.

Dunckel's chief of staff, Col. Bruce C. Hill, was blown to pieces. Two air force officers in the general's cabin were wounded seriously.

Capt. E. W. Abdill, chief of staff to the naval commander, Rear Adm. Arthur D. Struble, was killed on the bridge. Lt. Cmdr. W. O. Beach of Struble's staff died in his cabin.

The Nashville's crew performed admirably during the 15 minutes of chaos that followed the explosion. Hoselines were strung from all parts of the deck and tons of water were poured on the flames. First-aid teams functioned speedily and efficiently.

Gutters Red with Blood

After the attack, the gutters on the main deck literally ran red with American blood washed down by water from the hoses.

Many men lay dead or dying at their posts. One naval officer with both legs shot away lay on a stretcher, conscious and entirely rational. As he was being carried below for surgery, he looked up and said, "what a beautiful sun."

It was the last sun he ever saw.

Death Of Captain Hall Is Announced

Capt. J. Leslie Hall, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall of 1220 Ave. O, lost his life last October in the sinking of a Japanese ship loaded with American prisoners of war being taken to the mainland, according to a report here to his uncle and aunt.

Capt. Hall, first interned at Santa Tomas prison in the Philippines, was one of several doctors who were being moved to Japan when the re-taking of the Philippines was imminent. The ship he was on was one that was torpedoed by the U. S. Navy.

A 1936 graduate of Texas Tech, Capt. Hall held a medical degree from the University of Texas school at Galveston. He and Capt. John Hopper were partners in the Hopper and Hall clinic in Stanton before both went into service at the beginning of the war.

Meat Board Official Predicts 1945 Supply

CHICAGO, June 21. (AP)—The nation's 1945 meat supply will probably be about 2,125,000,000 pounds less than in 1944, but will be more than 5,000,000,800 pounds above the average for the 1936-40 prewar period, R. C. Pollock, general manager of the National Livestock and Meat board, said today.

In a talk prepared for the organization's annual two-day conference, Pollock said the reduced 1945 figure would be due principally to a drop in hog population. Present total estimates for 1945 meat production approximate 22,400,000,000 pounds, he stated.

The number of hogs slaughtered under federal inspection during the first five months of 1945 was 48 per cent below the number for the same period a year ago, he added. Livestock production and meat output for 1944, however, was the greatest of any year in our history, Pollock declared.

Youth Has Lion's Share Of Troubles

C. M. Stanley, 17, had a lion's share of troubles Thursday.

Arrested for drunkenness and disturbance early that morning by police, he allegedly used abusive language when taken to jail, and before his case had been completed in city, precinct and county ramifications, he had been:

Fined $50 for drunkenness.

Fined $100 for abusive language toward an officer.

Fined $25 and court costs for malicious michief.

Placed under a $1,000 peace bond.

Oficials charged Stanley went to 615 Ave. F and threw rocks through the window of a private residence occupied by Mrs. Beulah Reed. Police said he went to the place "twice with a tire iron."

The drunkenness and abusive language pleas were entered in corporation court, the malicious mischief plea in county court, and the peace bond application was filed in the court of D. W. Robertson, justice of peace.

Eisenhower Tells Homefolks U. S. Must Adequately Train Her Youth

KANSAS CITY, June 21 (AP)—Back in the Middle West where he began, General Dright D. Eisenhower, gazing across the statues of the pioneer mother and scout from Liberty Memorial hill today said that America must give its youth adequate and full military training if it is to uphold its position in the world.

"Adequate and strong youth training" was one of three points which the supreme commander in the defeat of Germany told his homefolk must become the United States foundation for future peace.

Must Also Cooperate

America must trust and cooperate with others, and live in a spirit of toleration, and we must live by those righteous principles embedded in our constitution and which made us strong," General Ike told a sweltering audience.

"I'm only a simple soldier," Eisenhower said, "but I speak the thoughts of many other simple soldiers like myself when I tell you America must be guided by these three things, the first of which is strongly trained youth."

Gazing off across the broad high hills rising back from the memorial, Eisenhowed called attention to the characters of the pioneers and the scout and said it was their greatness that made American soldiers great.

World Problems Ous, Too

"But," he continued, "we must understand this in our future conduct with the world; the problems of Europe and the world are our problems whether we like it or not.

"This has been called the heart of isolationism. I don't believe it. No intelligent person can be isolationist, and the ratio of intelligence here is high. If there are a few who believe we can isolate ourselves, he had better face the facts — rockets, robots swarming through the air at great speed and great distances. If another war should come, even in only five or ten years, no one can say these can't reach us, no matter from what distance launched."

Great Family Reunion

General Eisenhower spoke from familiar surroundings, close to his home in Abilene, Kas., where he journeyed tonight by special train with his mother and four brothers and many other members of the family for the greatest Eisenhower family reunion in 20 years.

General Eisenhower said the world's greatest needs today are moral leadership and food. The Middle West, he said, has contributed President Truman as a leader, and must, despite floods and drought and whatever other hazards, contribute food, because without food, there can be no peace. Continued peace means food and the eyes of the world are on this great production center.

Truman's Remarks

"That's nice," Eisenhower said earlier when he learned President Truman had said Eisenhower was entitled to anything he wants, and that he (Truman) would see to it that he got it. "I don't think I should comment further on what the commander-in-chief said," the general remarked.

"Myself and my associates" was the term constantly used by Eisenhower in accepting the bi-state homecoming prepared here for the five star leader and fifty three Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska heroes from Germany and France.

Plan Boosting Oil Prospecting Offered

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP)—A program to encourage prospecting for new oil reserves, under which the power of the secretary of the interior would be limited was advocated today by A. C. Mattei, president of the Honolulu Oil corporation of San Francisco.

Mattei recommended to a special Senate committee investigating petroleum reserves that the United States in leasing land should "not go into the oil business by endeavoring to tell its lessees, when, where, how deep and how many wells shall be drilled and by substituting his judgment, but the lessees' money, in the determination of operating practices which have no necessary relation to sound conservation principles."

He said he would ban the "onerous" leasing provisions which "virtually place the secretary of the interior in possession of the capital of the lessee" and which have hindered prospecting and "culminated in an almost complete revolt of the oil industry."

Contending "the war has demonstrated beyond doubt that the naval reserves (Elk Hills, Buena Vista, and Teapot Dome) are inadequate," he urged improved federal policies to encourage a "healthy" industry to make new discoveries.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

ACCORDING to a study just completed, members of the Women's Army corps have some very definite ideas about what they want after the war.

The First Air Force survey reveals fifty per cent of WACs questioned have plans for using their mustering-out pay. They intend: to save it, to buy a home, to get an education, to invest it in a business. Only one in six intends to spend that money for a vacation, the purchase of a new car or entertainment.

Of the entire group, 18 per cent intend to go to school, more than half to college, almost half to vocational or business schools.

As a result of the special skills acquired in the Army, and the lessons learned from group living, the average WAC feels herself better equipped to hold a more responsible position upon her return to civilian life.

STUFFED PINEAPPLE

IF your family hasn't tired of pineapple but you are hard pressed to find ways to serve it and are weary of canning it, perhaps you'll be interested in this recipe for stuffing the popular fruit.

Cut off the top of the pineapple about three inches down from the stem. Hollow out the inside, saving the food part, cut into cubes, and the juice. Mix this with strawberries, seedless grapes, blackberries, raspberries, orange pulp, grapefruit pulp, melon pieces or any other fruit you may have in the refrigerator. You will not use all of these fruits at once, of course, but certainly you will not use any canned ones mixed in.

Fill the pineapple with whatever mixture you have prepared, chill thoroughly and replace the top of the pineapple, which you will remove at table to serve the fruit from the shell. Thin cookies go well with this.

VITAMINS AND BEAUTY

YOU who complain about the luxury tax on the cosmetics that are still so plentiful at counters in stores should listen to tales of deprivations told by nurses who were prisoners of war of the Japanese.

When limited cold cream supplies disappeared, smelly coconut oil was used in the hope that lubrication would do its bit to allay dryness of half-starved skins. They watched over the rags they used to roll up lost permanent waves as carefully as you guard bobby pins. Soap was so scarce that clothes had to be washed over and over in clear water to loosen up dirt before precious suds were applied.

When rumors spread that the Americans were coming, all lipstick remnants which had been hoarded by individual owners, were pooled, melted down and mixed with lard, so the girls would present a courageous appearance. Any woman will know how important that lipstick need was to the nurses.

Although their hair lost its gloss and much of it came out because of the limited diet, and the nurses' complexions were broken out with sub-surface bumps, already through proper nurture, they are presenting the appearance that was theirs when they entered Manila's Santo Tomas Internment camp.

Liberated prisoners were put back on a balanced diet to supply all body requirements, in particular one which stepped up intake of Vitamin A and the Vitamin B family. These are the vitamins so necessary to the health and beauty of skin and hair.

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP) — A friendly American greeting was extended today to the new Parri government in Italy by Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew.

Texas Set For Road Program

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 21.—When the government gives a "go ahead" on highway building, Texas will be ready to launch a $172,000,000 program on federal-aid projects to be carried out over a three-year period.

The program was outlined today by Dewitt C. Greer, Texas state highway engineer, and Charles E. Simons, vice president of the Texas Good Roads association, in conferences at the Public Road administration.

Want Data On Time

"The object of our trip is to try to find out how soon we can get started," commented Simons.

"Naturally, no one can say at the moment, but as soon as the war situation permits the release of equipment and manpower for road construction we are ready to go."

He said that the three-year program, half of which would be financed by the state, was for only that work which was needed badly and improvements which have been held up because of the war.

A huge backlog of other highway projects is ready to be carried out after the three-year program is completed, he said.

Confers With Others

Greer has been conferring with other members of the design standards committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials at the roads administration.

The objective of the group is to work out standardized plans for highway construction, with the best features developed in the various areas to be adopted wherever they can be put to good use. Greer's role in the conferences is based primarily on his experience in building farm roads.

Broader Educational Benefits Proposed

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP)—Broad expansion of educational benefits under the GI "bill of rights" is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Pepper (D-Fla).

Pepper said in a statement that the legislation embodies recommendations of the American Legion and National Education association.

It proposes an increase in dependency allowances for veterans obtaining an education under the GI bill.

The Pepper amendment would allow $100 a month for two dependents, $125 for three, and $150 for four.

Men over 25 no longer would have to prove that their education was interrupted when they entered service, but would be entitled to the same benefits as veterans under 25.

The Pepper proposal would grant qualified students in professional courses up to seven years.

Patients Spend Busy Days During Convalescence In LAAF Hospital

By OPAL DIXON
Avalanche Staff Writer

Convalescence is a busy time for patients in Lubbock Army Air field Station hospital, which in April ranked first in the Central Flying Training command in man hours spent in rehabilitation activities.

The recovering soldiers stuff toy elephants, donkeys and ponies, embroider and block print scarves, make tables and other furniture, raise gardens, weave mats, do leather work, and otherwise make convalescence a time of accomplishment.

Keeps Away Boredom

The rehabilitation program "keeps them from lying on the bed and counting the cracks on the ceiling or the nails," said Lt. Ben E. Cowling, convalescent service officer. "It keeps them from being bored."

Perhaps it is difficult to imagine men embroidering initials, or block printing flower designs on nylon scarves, or sewing toys.

They not only do those things, but they add their own ideas to the patterns.

For instance, women who assist in the handicraft project left a scarf with one soldier. When they returned, he had completed the scarf and made handkerchiefs with the remnants.

The women cut the pieces for stuffed toys of rejected Alpaca wool the Army set aside for the rehabilitation program. The men stuff them and add their own touches, a red mane, a set of teeth made with yarn, or other added work giving the animal "personality."

Ingenuity of the men—and frequently their frame of mind—is evidenced in expression of some of the toy animals they have made. Some are dejected and some exuberant in appearance.

Three Classes In Program

The activities all come under the heading of the Army Air forces rehabilitation program, which includes three classifications: Physical, which provides for exercise of some type for every patient from the time he enters the hospital; education, consisting of handicraft, occupational therapy, educational movies and other features; entertainment, including 16 mm. feature-length movies furnished by the Red Cross, local talent shows furnished by Lubbock civic and college groups, and other activities.

The number of man hours averaged in rehabilitation work in April, when the LAAF hospital ranked first in the Central Flying Training command, was 5.43.

"We feel we have a very excellent program," said Col. Paul V. Colvin, post surgeon. The activities fill "a very definite need" in convalescence," he said.

Objects which the men make are theirs.

The handicraft work is conducted under auspices of the Officers Wives club, with 26 women helping. Mrs. A. E. Conard, wife of the chaplain, is chairman. The women spend from 1 to 4 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at the hospital. They began the program about six weeks ago.

Intended For Flying Suits

The rejected alpaca wool originally was intended for lining for high altitude flying suits, but proved unsatisfactory. Scrap cotton is used to stuff toys.

Nylon which was rejected for parachutes is used in embroidery and block printing work and also used for an altar curtain.

Men frequently embroider either their initials or those of persons to whom they will present scarves. One embroidered the Air corps insignia.

The wood work shop is in another part of the hospital, and is conducted under an experienced instructor. Men make varied objects. Wednesday afternoon one soldier was making duck decoys of wood and cork, to be used in duck hunting.

Articles there were a cedar chest, tables, a lawn chair, picture frames made of plexi glass, cuspidors, serving trays, a plaque with hand carved design of a man and horse and a set of book ends with carved Indian and horse, and others. The book ends were left incompleted when a soldier was dismissed from the hospital and transferred, but he expects to return to complete them even if it is after he is out of the Army.

A knife and scabbard made by Lt. Cowling and used as model for others were evidence of much painstaking. The blade was made of steel shaped from a saw blade and the handle of alternate sections of wood and metal. One soldier made a carving set, using plexi glass for handles.

Produce from the garden which is planted and tended by soldiers is used in the hospital.

In the gymnasium are rowing and bicycling equipment, punching bag and various other gymnasium equipment to give the soldier the types of exercise prescribed.

And—in event they need rest—there is the recreation room with colorful curtains and comfortable furniture where they may read or lounge and where they gather for entertainment.

BUMPER GRAIN CROPS

MEXICO CITY, June 21 (AP)—There will be no scarcity of corn or wheat in the republic during the present year and no need for importing them, the agriculture department announced. Crops of both are sufficient, it said, to cover the country's needs.

Release Of Cotton Acreage Proposed

It was recommended that cotton not up by Monday, June 25, be released and the acreage used for another crop by the community committee of the Agriculture Adjustment agency at a lengthy Wednesday afternoon session in the agriculture building, 14th and Ave. Q, Walter Y. Wells, AAA administrative officer, said Thursday.

Hail in various sections of the county ruined some of the irrigated cotton stands and farmers were reporting to Wells Thursday seeking insurance adjustments.

The official said that letters had been mailed to those farmers with insurance instructing them to turn into the AAA office the cotton acreage and their share in the crop. This must be done, Wells said, on regular forms in his office before the adjuster can make his survey and release the crop and land for some other use.

Cold Meats Practical For Parties

JUNE is a month that calls for parties, what with showers and weddings for young brides, and farewell festivities for June graduates. Naturally, we're keeping our entertaining on the simple side. Informality encourages good fellowship, and elaborate meals and entertainment are looked upon as pre-war extravagances. But that doesn't mean that good friends cannot get together and enjoy a "cup of cheer."

For an easy, practical, company meal or buffet spread—take advantage of the ready-to-eat meats at your market, suggests Jessie Alice Cline, home economist. These meats are popular for their tastiness; they're moderate in cost; and they furnish approximately the same nutritional values as fresh meats.

Variety Usually Available

Usually, a variety of different kinds of cold meat is available—including the ready-to-eat sausage products (such as bologna, liver sausage, salami, and summer sausage) and any number of prepared meat loaves. A varied assortment of these delicious meats may be arranged on a platter or tray, along with relishes or salads, crackers and cheese, or cold sandwiches. The result is decorative and alluring, a perfect high-light for a party!

Here are two suggested menus, which may be varied as you choose. The first includes a hot dish; the second features sandwiches with the cold meats. Either one is a full meal.

Party Menu I
Assorted Cold Meats
with Relishes
Casserole of Baked Macaroni and Cheese
Hot Rolls
Butter or Margarine

Fresh Fruit Cup
Cookies or Cup Cakes
Iced Tea or Coffee

Party Menu II

Individual Jellied Salads

Assorted Sandwiches
(peanut butter and prune; cheese spread; egg salad)

Potato Meat Pie Will Make One-Dish Meal

Lubbock county home demonstration women, under direction of Miss Clara Pratt, agent, recently made and endorsed the following recipe for Potato Loaf Pie:

1½ lbs. short ribs, beef in 2" pieces
2 tablespoon salad oil
5 cups boiling water
5 bouillon cubes
5 small peeled white onions quartered
1 teaspoon celery seed
4 cups hot mashed potatoes
1 clove garlic minced
2 teaspoons parsley
8 medium carrots
1 qt. Brussels sprouts or 1 pint peas
¼ cup flour
½ cup cold water

Brown beef in salad oil. Add next 6 ingredients. Simmer, covered, 2 hours. Add carrots cut in half lengthwise and crosswise and cleaned Brussels sprouts. Simmer, covered, 20 minutes or until tender. Then gently stir in flour and cold water, blended together. Arrange in 2 qt. casserole; top with mashed potatoes. Place under broiler until well browned. Serves 5 or 6.

Asparagus Baked Dish That Is Different

2 cups (inch length pieces) cooked asparagus
½ cup chopped ripe olives
2 cups white sauce
1 teaspoon paprika
3 tablespoons grated quick-melting American cheese
3 tablespoons melted butter substitute
½ cup soda cracker crumbs

Combine asparagus, ripe olives, white sauce, paprika and cheese, and blend lightly. Pour into a casserole and cover with blended melted butter substitute and cracker crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown. Serves 4.

Exciting things can be done with small bits of left-over meat, declares Jessie Alice Cline, home economist. The easiest way to handle the small pieces is to run them through the food chopper; the ground meat may then be used in sandwich fillings, salads, casseroles, or baked foods.

Try adding 1/3 to 1/2 cup ground cooked meat, especially ham, to plain muffin batter. (The sugar in the recipe may be omitted.) Or combine meat with softened margarine and seasonings, and spread on biscuit dough; roll like a jelly roll, slice, and bake. For a delicious and satisfying lunch on a warm day, serve these meat muffins or pinwheel biscuits with a salad of garden vegetables, and glasses of cold milk to drink.

Scalloped Dried Beef

¼ lb. dried beef
3 medium-sized potatoes, cooked
4 hard-cooked eggs
2 onions, sliced
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup grated cheddar cheese
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 ½ cups milk

Place layers of dried beef, sliced potatoes, onions and hard-cooked eggs in a greased casserole until ingredients are used up. Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan. Remove from flame, add flour and pepper and mix to a smooth paste. Return to stove, add milk, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Pour sauce over ingredients in casserole. Sprinkle cheese over top. Bake at 375 degrees until top is nicely browned.

Spicy hot dogs in casserole and warm rolls for dinner

Family Will Like Dish Made With Spicy Frankfurters

TIRED of frankfurters? Then try this casserole for dinner and you'll be surprised and pleased.

Spicy Hot Dogs
(Serves 6-8)

One quart cooked tomatoes, 1 medium sized onion, diced, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon mustard, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 1-2 pounds frankfurters.

Combine all the ingredients except the frankfurters and cook slowly about 30 minutes or until the sauce thickens slightly. Cut the frankfurters in half and put them into a well greased two-quart heat resistant glass casserole. Pour the sauce over the meat and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes. Serve with warm rolls and a crisp green salad.

String Bean Shaggies
(Serves 6)

Two cups frozen or fresh cooked frenched string beans, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup enriched flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Measure beans and add to them onion and salt. Sift over them flour mixed with baking powder. Add real mayonnaise and mix lightly with fork. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto lightly greased shallow pan and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 minutes or drop into moderately hot skillet and brown slowly on one side. Turn and brown on the other.

Chocolate Indians

¾ cup sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped nuts
1-3 cup shortening
½ cup chopped dates
1 cup sugar
3 egg yolks
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 squares melted chocolate

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Stir in nuts and dates. Cream shortening, add sugar, eggs, vanilla and chocolate. Stir in flour, nut and date mixture. Bake in a shallow, greased eight inch square pan at 350° 30-35 minutes. Cut in squares before removing from pan.

Special Roast Potatoes

4 medium-sized potatoes
3 tablespoons drippings
¾ cup cracker crumbs
Salt and pepper
1 egg

Wash and pare potatoes. Dry thoroughly. Melt one tablespoon of drippings and brush potatoes with it. Roll potatoes in seasoned crumbs, then in beaten egg and in crumbs again. Place potatoes in greased ovenproof dish. Melt remaining fat and pour over potatoes. Cover and bake at 350° one hour or until potatoes are tender.

FLOATING ISLAND

2 cups milk, scalded
Few grains salt
3 eggs
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup powdered sugar

Combine one whole egg and two egg yolks slightly beaten with salt and sugar. Gradually stir in hot milk and cook in top of double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture coats a metal spoon. Add vanilla and cool. Serve in individual dishes topped by other two egg whites beaten stiff with one-quarter cup powdered sugar.

Beef Loaf

2 pounds lean beef
1 cup diced salt pork (about ½ pound)
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup fine, dry bread crumbs
2 teaspoons
½ teaspoon pepper
4 or 5 dashes tabasco sauce

Combine all the ingredients and use the hands to mix thoroughly. Bake the loaf in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 1 1-4 hours. Do not cover the pan and do not add water.

REMINDER

When judging the degree of doneness of a roast by a time table, remember that small roasts (which are more in evidence now) require longer cooking time per pound than large roasts.

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

HOMEMADE BISCUIT MIX

8 cups sifted flour
¼ cup baking powder
4 teaspoons salt
1½ cups lard

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Cut in lard until the mixture has a fine, even crumb. Place in closed container and keep in refrigerator, using as desired.

Never rely on a risky makeshift for reaching high places. Use a ladder.

Japs Show Queer Streaks As They Drum Hard On Propaganda Lines

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press War Analyst

The busy Toyko radio has three favorite themes these days—Allied disunity, the imminence of an invasion of the Japanese homeland, and Japan's ability to repel it by the prodigious efforts now being undertaken.

Perusal of the Japanese output for a 24-hour period, as recorded by the Federal Communications commission, gives a fairly representative cross-section of the enemy propaganda line. Newsworthy items in this material is made available to the press through the Office of War Information but a study of the undigested mass gives a more connected picture of Japanese thought—and hopes.

They Spread It Out

Every hour of the 24, the stuff is poured out in Japanese, Chinese, English, Spanish, Portuguese, French and other languages. Principal broadcasts include those to western North-America; to Brazil (in Portuguese) and to the rest of Latin-America in Spanish; to Greater East Asia; China and the South Seas; the Japanese home and empire service; from Peiping and Shanghai in Mandarin; from Batavia and Singapore in English and other languages.

The broadcasts include some objective staright news and a great deal more than is slanted; some fairly smooth propaganda and a lot that is vicious or stupid. An FCC analysis of the 24-hour period in the Japanese language to Greater East Asia, after dealing with the broader aspects of the broadcasts, notes that the usual items gleaned from the Allied and neutral press, carefully chosen to highlight Allied dissension, anxiety concerning the future of the war, bestiality and imperialistic greed, round out the radio output for the day.

Allied Leaders Quoted

Brendan Bracken, British naval minister, is quoted on the unprecedented ferocity of the present war. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's press interview in which he stressed the tremendous supplies of men and material needed against Japan is given good coverage, and worldwide criticism of the new British plan for Indian independence receives repeated mention.

Reprecentative items picked almost at random from the voluminous report include:

A Japanese version of the arrest in the United States on espionage charges of two government employes and two editors of the magazine Amerasia. Tokyo reports, by way of Stockholm, that 15 American Communists have been rounded up for espionage, two of them being State department officials, one a naval information officer and 12 writers "for the American Communist paper Amerasia." A Washington official is quoted as pointing to possible grave effects on American-Soviet relations.

Dutch East Indies

Several long dissertations on independence for the Indonesians of the Dutch East Indies, who are represented as co-operating with the Japanese and burning with enthusiasm to defend their homeland to win freedom from the Dutch.

Some fantastic figures on United States naval losses off Okinawa.

A naval commentary promising greater kamikaze suicide efforts and gloating over the prospect of sinking such great troop-laden liners as the Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth when they are diverted from Europe.

A great deal on the contract (favorable to Russia) between Soviet and Anglo-American methods in occupied Germany. An article telling how "British traditional policy" against the Soviet union has been resumed.

India And Russia

Quotes from a talk by Subhas Bose, Indian Quisling, on British-American-Soviet disunity and a "March on Delhi."

Pieces about Soviet pressure on Chungking in favor of the Yenan Communist regime.

A long and violent propaganda broadcast in Spanish to Latin-America, dealing with "Yankee imperialism" and inhuman policy toward defeated nations.

Probably the prize of the collection is an hour-long broadcast to the American forces in Australia and the South Pacific. Called "Zero Hour," it offers "music as you like it, news from two fronts, a little bit of this and that, and a thought for the day."

The music, interspersed at intervals, is from American popular records, accompanied by a Japanese verison of snappy platter jockey patter. The broadcast begins with news from the various fighting areas. Then there is the reading of a supposed letter to a GI from his kid sister, presumably to induce nostalgia.

Some Corny Comedy

After some extremely corny comedy and a little music, there is home front news—about the debate on post-war military training, jobs for veterans, the San Francisco conference, the Big Three meeting, Secretary Stimson denies Gen. Marshall is resigning, and Hollywood items of Deanna Durbin's marriage and Shirley Temple's graduation.

At the end comes what appears to be the thought for today. It is a supposed GI speaking in his own quaint idiom, Japanese style. This lugubrious fellow lays it on thick about American casualties ahead on Okinawa. "There will be a hell of a lot of boys going to be done for," is his theme.

Legion Seeks Drums, Bugles For New Corps

Allen Bros. post of the American Legion plans to organize a drum and bugle corps of veterans of the present war and would like to have as many bugles and drums to start with as possible.

The post, through its committee headed by Walter Smith, is asking for the return of all drums and bugles formerly owned by members of the Sons of Legion Drum and Bugle corps. The equipment is the property of the legion.

The legion also issued an appeal for donation of bugles to the corps as they are not available now for purchase.

Bond Rally To Be Today At O'Donnell

O'DONNELL, June 21. (Special)—Approximately 2,000 are expected to attend a bond rally here Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock when Lt. Fred Harris, flight officer on the famous aircraft carrier, Franklin, appears as principal speaker of the big Seventh War Loan program.

Because of the gasoline and tire problems, the same program presented here at 5 o'clock will be presented at a similar rally in Tahoka Friday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Hervie Gardenhire, who is in charge of the program, announced that Pvt. Warren Smith, recently liberated from a German prison camp, will tell of the work of the Red Cross among war prisoners. Lt. Harris, who is touring the state in behalf of the war loan drive, will tell a vivid story of the gallant Franklin which limped home after being hit by a Jap suicide plane.

O'Donnell merchants will be closed to permit employees to attend the rally.

The Lubbock Army Air field band will provide music for the rally. Harley Sadler of Sweetwater has indicated that he will make every effort to be on hand for the program.

4-H Club Council To Meet Saturday

Lubbock 4-H club council, composed of all individual club officers in the county, will meet Saturday, June 30, in the district court room, county court house, according to an announcement by W. B. Griffin, assistant county agent.

Discussion will be concentrated on plans for rally day and play day, with committees to be appointed to work out programs for the two events. No date has been set for either of the fetes.

Texans Showing "Piker" Complex In Important Seventh War Loan

By FRANK LA COKE
United Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, June 21.—The great state of Texas — bragging and bragged about across the world—is beginning to show a piker complex.

Big-hearted, war-winning Texas, swollen with war industries, and bulging with post-war plans, is falling down on the home front job the fighting men overseas consider most essential.

That was the attitude expressed today by state war finance headquarters here.

Boiled down, it amounted to this:

Little Buyers Quit

The little bond buyer isn't buying enough "little" war bonds during the 7th war loan drive.

J. S. James, jr., executive manager of the state bond organization, said today that the sale of series "E" bonds as of yesterday stands at only 67.3 per cent of the goal. Only 28 counties of 254 in the state have reached their "E" bond quotas.

The big hold-back in bond-buying by the little guy is mainly in large cities, James said.

"A small percentage of the drop in "E" bond sales can be attributed to the war's end in Europe," James said. "Some Texans just quit buying bonds when Germany surrendered.

"Another reason for the lag is that some war-workers are being released from their jobs. However, the number of workers being released is only a fractional amount of the total number of workers. It shouldn't affect the sale of bonds the way it has.

"The way it looks now, Texas stands a darn good chance of failing to meet its "E" bond quota for the 7th war loan drive," James concluded.

So far, Texans have bought $113,006,570 worth of "E" bonds. The quota for the 7th bond drive is $168,000,000.

And the drive ends officially in 10 days.

Selling $55,000,000 worth of little bonds to little buyers in 10 days is a tremendous chore.

Texas—so far—has a reputation for handling tremendous chores. However, it stands a good chance of failing in this job.

That sure would ruin the state's claim that it is winning the war practically single-handed.

Slaughtering Legal For Harvest Crews

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 21. (AP)—John N. Varnell, district OPA director, said today that it was not a violation of OPA regulations for farmers to slaughter beef to provide meat for their harvest crews.

He said it was a widespread belief among state farmers that slaughtering of beef animals for employes was not permitted by the OPA. Varnell said that farmers may provide beef for their families and their employes.

He pointed out that the only restrictions are that the farmer may not slaughter beef to sell without registering as a farm slaughterer, collecting red points and delivering the points to his county rationing board.

Merchants Warned Of Check Forgeries

In Lubbock several days a U. S. Secret Service agent has warned all merchants and business people in general to require unequivocal identification of payees of U. S. treasury checks before cashing them, because of forgeries being probed here.

A great number of these checks, such as allotments and mustering out pay, are being stolen over the country, he said, adding that:

"Persons accepting such checks are losers where illegal payments later are disclosed, being responsible as 'second endorsors.'"

Be Sure Of Identity

"The safest way for the merchant and other business men is to be sure of the identity of those endorsing the checks. Require positive identication, through numbers on drivers licenses. Make a notation of those numbers. Social security numbers won't help."

Above all, it was suggested, "be at home, or have someone else authorized to be there acting for you, about the time you expect the postman to arrive with such checks."

That was said for protection of individuals to whom checks are mailed by the government.

Police here had docketed several complaints of unknown individuals having apparently "followed the postman" and stolen the checks, which later turned up cashed in other cities.

Orders Revealed On Invasion Of Britain

PARIS, June 21. (AP)—An intelligence officer of supreme headquarters who questioned Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl and other high German officers said today that Nazi armies were under orders to invade Great Britain for three months after the fall of France.

The plans finally were canceled as too hazardous.

The interrogation of Jodal, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and Field Marshal Albert Kesselring brought out these additional points, the officer said:

The German high command had guessed the place, strength and approximate date of the invasion of France, but could not press Gen. Eisenhower's forces back into the sea.

Hitler's decision to invade Russia—previously believed to have been solely that of the fuehrer—was shared by the high command, which declared there had been a progressive buildup of Soviet forces in the East.

Ickes Avoids Direct Answer To Rumors

WASHINGTON, June 21. (U.P.)—Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes wouldn't give a positive "yes" or "no" today to rumors that he will be leaving the cabinet soon.

Concluding a press conference at which reporters sought a concrete statement about his status, he said:

"I rather think we shall meet again."

He had pointed out to newsmen that he was "the resigningest member of the cabinet that ever went to town." He said he had resigned six times in his cabinet career—that is, he had made his resignation available to the president. His latest resignation was submitted in writing the Saturday morning following the death of the late President Roosevelt.

In answer to questions, Ickes said he had not discussed his resignation with President Truman.

Queried on reports suggesting a variety of names for the post of secretary of interior, Ickes said: "If there should be a vacancy, I might not be consulted."

Meal Costs Heavily For Dallas Customer

DALLAS, June 21. (AP)—Stanley Toupal told police he was eating in a Dallas cafe when the proprietor rested an elbow on his shoulder while talking to an employe in the next booth.

"I would enjoy this chicken better," Toupal said he told the man, 'if you didn't lean on me."

Forthwith, Toupal said, he was struck on the head with fists, sugar bowl, a beer bottle, a salt cellar and with other items the customer said he did not remember. His nose was broken.

The check was steep, too, said Toupal, and there wasn't any butter.

Police are investigating.

Tom Abel's Condition Is Reported Improved

In Lubbock Thursday morning was John Abel of Rio Vista, Calif., after a visit with his father, former Sheriff Tom Abel of Lubbock, with the report that the father will be removed today from Shannon Memorial hospital at San Angelo to the San Angelo residence he and Mrs. Abel recently bought.

Abel had been treated for a dangerous illness believed occasioned by a debilitated condition resulting from influenza and a "touch of penumonia."

He had "run 103 to 105 degrees of temperature; his blood count was low, and we feared for his recovery several days," the son said.

"He is much improved now."

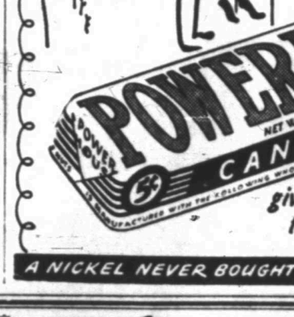

Sheriff Abel, who served 12 continuous years as sheriff here, also has a residence at 2118 Main in Lubbock. He and Mrs. Abel went to San Angelo so Abel could rest, without intention of making it their permanent home.

Truck Fire Probed In Chicago Strike Area

CHICAGO, June 21. (AP) — A fire in four parked trucks was being investigated today as more troops poured into Chicago to haul goods tied up by a strike.

The Office of Defense Transportation, Federal Bureau of Investigation, military police and Chicago police were hunting causes of the fire at the consolidated freight lines terminal.

Six thousand soldiers were expected by the Army to arrive today to supplement those who moved in starting Monday to assist 1,700 government-seized truck lines in hauling cargoes.

Japs Believed 'Hopped Up' For Their Suicide Antics On Okinawa

By ROBERT GEIGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ON "HARA KIRI" MESA, Okinawa—Members of the 383rd Infantry's Second Battalion medical section believe the Japanese were "hopped up" for some of their wild antics as they were driven from this mesa, including grotesque suicides which gave the place its battle name.

The "medics" had very little opportunity to examine the Japanese before death, because so few were caught still alive. But two that were treated for wounds were "filled" with narcotic, said Lt. Harry Hartmann of Cairo, Ill., forward station chief.

Had Received Hypos

Pfc. Hewey J. Smith of McEwen, Tenn., medical corpsman, declared "these prisoners undoubtedly had received hypos of dope while the Americans were assaulting the twin peak of Yuzatomui." Hartman nodded assent and added:

"The pupils of their eyes showed they had had sufficient to stimulate them to the point of fanatical courage. They also displayed other evidence of being under the influence of narcotic."

The forward aid station was only 300 yards behind the front lines at the time and afforded an excellent opportunity to view the Japanese tactics on twin peak, for which a ten-day battle was fought.

American assault troops finally reached the base of the peak's escarpment—a 120-foot perpendicular coral cliff rising from the tree-dotted hill slopes.

Japs Fire From Above

The 383rd regiment's Third Battalion tossed ropes over fingers of coral jutting from the face of the cliff and attempted to climb up hand over hand. From some place in the clif, a hidden Japanese machinegun opened up. Snipers also were hidden in trees. They shot the Yanks in the backs. Nipponese on top of the cliff hurled boulders and poured down blazing fluids.

Artillery opened up and American guns battered the escarpment for days, finally clearing the way for the infantry to gain the top. Then a bitter hand-to-hand battle took place.

The Japanese fought so fanatically that the Yanks had to hunt them down, root them out and kill them individually.

Casualties treated at this station indicated the ferocity of the fighting. And thirteen of the section's medical corpsmen were wounded during one operation.

Nips Infiltrate Nightly

The Japanese infiltrated every night and the night of June 16, 12 were killed within a few yards of where blood plasma was being administered to American wounded.

But members of the section declared that tough as the escarpment fighting was, the earlier battle for Kakazu ridge was tougher.

"There," said Smith, "the Japs were on a high ridge from which they had our boys under crossfire. Our boys were averaging 75 casualties a day and we were losing lots of medics. At one time we were down to six litter bearers."

Van Zeeland Appears Choice In Belgium

BRUSSELS, June 21. (AP)—Paul van Zeeland, former prime minister and a staunch royalist, appeared today to be King Leopold's most likely choice to attempt to form a new government.

But with Liberal, Socialist and Communist parties still hostile to the monarch's return, the immediate chances of success on van Zeeland's part seemed slight.

Negotiations to form a new government which would support Leopold's return have proceeded in an atmosphere of secrecy, with only Catholics and conservatives considered in the running.

Entirely unconfirmed rumors were heard that Leopold had summoned the presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies to Salzburg in an attempt to avert an open conflict with parliament.

Plans Launched For Annual Country Club Golf Tourney

The annual Lubbock Country club invitation golf tournament will take the field Aug. 9 to 13 with a championship bracket of 32 players shooting for the top prize of a $100 war bond. These minor changes on the general plans were adopted at a meeting held Thursday night at the local club.

The championship field was moved up to 32 to provide keener competition in the fight for the top money, and to care for the top flight of golfers that are expected to descend upon the city for the big meet.

Extend Meet A Day

The raising of the field in the championship flight will mean the adding of Aug. 13 to the dates already announced for the meet. The semi-finals and finals will be played on the added day. This change will be in the championship flights only.

There will be as many flights of 16 as scores turned in will warrant, but these will be played off in the regular dates.

The prizes announced at Thursday's meeting will include a $100 war bond to the winner and a $50 bond to the runnerup in the championship bracket. The winner of the championship consolation will receive a $50 bond.

Winners in all other flights will receive a $50 bond, with $25 bonds going to the runnerups and winners of consolation brackets.

Committees Being Set

The groundwork was set up Thursday night for the rationing of the work in getting the tournament staged. None of the committees were completed at the Thursday meeting, but will be completed within the next few days.

Questions of entertainment, housing, transportation and feeding of the visiting golfers were discussed at the meeting. Committees will be appointed to work out each of these problems.

The success of the tournament appears assured with one of the largest fields in the history of the meet. A total of 53 entries have already been received by the tournament leaders. Forty of these came from Odessa. At Thursday night's meeting, 12 Lubbock members, and one from Big Spring were turned in.

J. R. Farmer of Big Spring was the latest out of town entry, and was present at the meeting Thursday night. Dinner was served to 16 members prior to the meeting.

Roach Reaches Site Of Bond Show Bout

HOUSTON, June 21 (AP)—Lavern Roach, a likeable, big-shouldered 20-year old product of the Texas Plains, arrived by Navy plane today for his five-round bout with Gilbert Garcia which tops off next Tuesday night's E-bond boxing show here.

Accompanying Staff Sergeant Roach from Cherry Point, N. C., was his trainer, Sgt. John Abood, who fifteen years ago was fighting welterweights like Billy Petrolle.

Apparently in excellent shape, Roach limbered up this afternoon. He will spar tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

Like Garcia, Roach and his trainer were pleased that the fight was scheduled for five rounds.

"Lavern whipped Garcia convincingly at Chicago, having him on the floor in the first round," said Abood. "I think he can win ever more decisively in five rounds."

Roach, Plainview native who boxed in two state Golden Gloves tournaments, can hit with both hands. His knockdown of Garcia at Chicago was set up by a left hook followed by a sharp right cross.

He expects to weigh in Tuesday night around 146 and may have a decided weight advantage because Garcia said today he was down to 138 pounds.

Roach fought as a flyweight in the 1941 state tournament, losing to Jesse Gonzales Spivey, Houston boy fighting for Allen academy, in the semi-finals. In 1942 he fought as a bantam. He enlisted in the Marines in 1943.

Hank Greenberg To Return To Tiger's Lineup As "Test"

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—Hank Greenberg is returning to the Detroit lineup, and no athlete ever had more horseshoes or other good luck tokens draped about his neck than the genial giant from the Bronx. There isn't a fan or a rival player who doesn't wish for Big Hank anything but the best of luck.

The fans wish him well because he always was a gentleman and a credit to the game, and because they admire him for his army record.

The players are pulling for him because, in addition to being a fine fellow, he is more than just a baseball player trying to resume an interrupted career.

He will be watched as a symbol of hope to all the other ball players in the service who fear their absence from the game might impair their effectiveness and money-earning capacity. He is in the nature of a test case; the answer to the question: can the major league stars in the service come back?

He is the first of the really outstanding stars to try a comeback after prolonged service during which he and baseball were strangers. Many of the stars have had ample opportunity to at least keep in practice by playing on service teams.

But Hank had none of these blighty assignments from the time he swapped his Tiger shirt with the big "5" on the back for a dog tag bearing serial number 36114-611. That was May 7, 1941, more than four years ago. He's been around a lot since, but not around the major leagues. Around the world would be more like it.

Large Tennis Field To Compete Monday

EVANSTON, Ill., June 21 (AP)—A field of 60 college tennis players from 26 schools—largest entry since the war—is ready to open the 61st Annual National Collegiate Championship tournament on the Northwestern university courts next Monday.

Francisco (Pancho) Segura, of the University of Miami, Fla., is returning to defend the singles title he captured in 1943 and 1944 and he's bringing along a schoolmate, Tom Burke, who will be making his initial appearance in the tournament.

Should Segura succeed in winning his third straight singles title, he will be the first collegian to turn the trick since a boy by the name of M. G. Chase of Yale scored a trio of titles back in 1895.

Entries from southern schools are Frank Willett and Howard McCall of Georgia Tech and Kenneth Crawford of Southern Methodist. The latter, a 17-year-old freshman, recently captured the Southwestern Conference tennis singles title.

Yanks Drive Ferriss From Hill, Win 14-4

BOSTON, June 21. (AP)—Dave Ferriss, Rookie pitching sensation of the Boston Red Sox, was clubbed from the mound for the first time in his major career today as the New York Yankees, only major league club ever to defeat Ferriss prior to today, triumphed by a 14 to 4 score.

Ferriss, who won eight straight before being stopped by the Yanks two weeks ago, had allowed only two hits when the dam burst in the fifth. He was clouted for five hits and nine runs before being relieved and the Yanks went on from there to score 13 times in that frame, coming within one run of their own league record for tallies in an inning.

Seventeen batsmen went to the plate in that frame and nine of them bashed out hits and four passes. The Red Sox contributed two errors to build up the huge total.

Nazi Plans For New War Found

By TOM REEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 21 — A Senate committee said today it has obtained secret German documents showing how the Nazis intend to "hide" in strategic industries while planning "a third attempt at world conquest."

The announcement was made by Chairman Kilgore (D-WVa) of the war mobilization subcommittee of the Senate military group.

Kilgore said his committee will open hearings next Monday "on the economic base for German aggression" and that additional facts will be brought out.

Strasbourg Meeting

The announcement contained a report on a meeting of German industrialists at Strasbourg, Aug. 10, 1944, intended to make post-war plans.

"Masquerading as 'neutral businessmen' without political allegiance, they (German industrialists) have already conceived vicious plans for a third attempt at world conquest," Kilgore said.

The document on the secret meeting quoted a Dr. Scheid, SS obergruppenfuehrer of the Hermandorff and Schonburg company, as saying that "each industrialist must make contacts nd alliances with foreign firms, but this must be done individually and without attracting suspicion."

At another meeting, Kilgore said, the Nazis told the industrialists that the war was lost and "they must prepare themselves to finance the Nazi party which would be forced to go underground."

It was suggested further that the big firms set up small research units not connected with their factories, adding:

"These bureaus will receive plans and drawings of new weapons as well as documents which they need to continue their research and which must not be allowed to fall into the hands of the enemy."

Said Kilgore:

"After the defeat of Germany, the Nazi party recognizes that certain of its best known leaders will be condemned as war criminals. However, in cooperation with the industrialists, it is arranging to place its less conspicious but most important members in positions with various German factories as technical experts or members of its research and designing offices."

Vets' Discharges

shaven. None had had a bath in three days. When they docked in New York harbor they were wearing woolens. They were issued one cotton uniform each. These were considerably rumpled.

'Just a few more hours now,", said Sgt. William Bulen, son of Mrs. L. M. Bulen, Dallas, as he stroked a small dog which attached itself to the 45th in Austria. A buddy, Cpl. J. B. Watkins, whose sister, Mrs. Emma Tooley, lives at Dallas, offered the dog a piece of pineapple to see if he would eat it. He did.

Crack Infantry Outfit

The 36th (Texas) Infantry division, is one of the crack infantry outfits of the American Army, distinguished for its record in two world wars. First to land on the European continent, the 36th wrote immortal history as it fought its way from bloody Salerno through the heart of Italy as a part of the hard-hitting Fifth Army.

At Cassino the 36th again lost heavily but won additional glory. Then through the bitter winter campaign of 1943-44 the 36th, once called the Panther division back in the days of World war I, slugged it out along the muddy battlefields of Italy.

Quietly removed from the lines during the fierce Italian campaign the 36th became one of the spearhead units of the American Seventh Army that struck the beaches of southern France in the summer of 1944. The 36th participated in some of the bitterest fighting in France and the borders of Germany before the final breakthrough.

Racing through the heart of southern Germany the 36th helped to deal the final knockout blow that spelled the death of Nazism. When Germany surrendered unconditionally the 36th was strung along a battlefront part of which was in Austria and another part in or along the borders of Czechoslovakia.

The 36th's most famous captive was Reichmarshal Herman Goering. The division also captured a huge amount of German loot in art treasure and in gold reserves.

Has Long History

The 36th division was a National Guard unit. In World war I. It trained at Camp Bowie, then at Fort Worth in 1917, and went overseas in 1918 participating in the big Meuse-Argonne offensive. The division was activated again in 1940 and again trained at Camp Bowie, this time located near Brownwood. In 1942 the division went to Camp Edwards, Mass., and after additional training landed in North Africa but was kept in reserve. Some elements praticipated in the Sicily invasion but the first action as a whole division was at Salerno.

The 36th was announced Monday as one of the divisions which would remain as part of American occupation forces in Germany.

The Forty-Fifth division is composed of veterans of the North Africa, Sicilian, Italian, French and German campaigns. Activated in 1940 from National Guard units from Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona. The division first trained at Fort Sill, Okla., but received most of its training at Camp Barkeley, near Abilene.

Girl Is Held After Attempted Suicide

SHREVEPORT, June 21. (AP)—A 20-year-old Houston girl was held for investigation today after two policemen finally succeeded persuading her to give up her idea of jumping from the top of a two-story downtown building in a suicide attempt last night.

The girl, identified as Sally Schlanbach of Houston, Tex., said she was tired of living and was going to "end it all by jumping to the street."

Temple Pair Freed On Ration Charge; Two Are Indicted

DALLAS, June 21. (AP)—Mayor W. Guy Draper of Temple, and Edith Smith, chief clerk of Temple's ration board, have been cleared of charges accusing them of conspiracy to violate OPA regulations.

The announcement was made today by assistant District Attorney Clyde G. Hood who said that J. Warner Zimmer of Fort Worth and Thelbert C. Whitley of Temple, had been indicted in the same case in which the mayor and ration board clerk had been charged.

Hood said: "No indictments have been returned against Mayor Draper and Edith Smith. As far as they are concerned we have closed our records. No complaint against them now exists."

Zimmer, who headed a Fort Worth ration board, and Whitley, who was connected with the OPA in Temple, were indicted under two separate counts on charges of violating the Second War Powers act. They were indicted in connection with the acquisition of an automobile.

The automobile was one which Hood said was later transferred to Mayor Draper.

The first count charges that Zimmer and Whitley "unlawfully acquired a 1942 Chrysler car." The second count accuses the men of conspiracy to acquire and transfer the automobile.

Hood said a trial for Whitley and Zimmer will be held at Fort Worth.

has been won" and that two small Japanese pockets of resistance were being mopped up.

The Okinawa campaign was the costliest of any of the central and central western Pacific island-taking jobs.

Adm. Nimitz announced Tenth Army forces on Okinawa through June 19 suffered the following casualties:

Army—Killed and missing 4,417; wounded 17,033.

Fleet Marine force: Killed and missing, 2,573; wounded, 12,565.

Total—Killed and missing, 6,990; wounded 29,598.

Navy Casualties Not Given

Navy casualties were not announced.

Last official Navy casualty list through May 23 in the Okinawa operations showed killed and missing: 4,270; wounded 4,171.

End of the major fighting left the occupation forces free to develop the strategic island's airfields and harbors, some already in use.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander-in-chief of U. S. Army Air forces, said in Manila only a few days ago that Okinawa would bring all of Japan and its Asia mainland holdings, including war production of Manchuria, within range of American planes.

Another hint of future large-scale action came in the announcement that Gen. Joseph W. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell would take command of the U. S. Tenth Army, which conquered Okinawa.

The announcement was made by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Manila, as commander of Pacific Army forces, just before Nimitz issued the communique which, in effect, released the victorious Tenth Army for its next job.

It was led in the last three days of Okinawa action by Marine Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, who succeeded Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, jr., after that Army veteran was killed by a Japanese shell Monday while observing battle action.

Brig. Gen. Claudius M. Easley, Texas-born assistant commander of the 96th Infantry division, was killed less than 24 hours after Buckner.

from the special car. He said his mother was "played out" after her great day of glory in Kansas City where she greeted her illustrious son.

Eisenhower's train halted briefly at Lawrence, Topeka, Manhattan, Fort Riley and Junction City before reaching here four and a half hours out of Kansas City. In each he made a victorious rear platform appearance and spoke briefly, the most seriously at Junction City.

"Any Kansan always is happy to be home," he said there. "I'm particularly happy to stop here where my brother Roy lived for so long. He was the only one of us who lived to maturity who now is gone. I know what you've been doing for so long and on behalf of every soldier in this war, I want to thank you a lot," he said.

Eisenhower's four living brothers were with him on the train. They were Milton, Arthur, Earl and Edgar. Roy died in 1942.

At Fort Riley where he once served, Eisenhower said, "let me tell you something. I'm coming home and I'm glad to be here. When I get out of this uniform, this is the country I'm coming back to."

Moisture Peps Up Farm Plans

Farmers of several Plains sections hit by substantial rains Wednesday night and early Thursday prepared yesterday to get their planting equipment into action as soon as fields dried.

The season is generally considered too far along for the successful planting of cotton but many farmers, it is believed, will "take a gamble." Farm authorities said there was little doubt that the Lubbock area would put in one of the largest feed crops in its history.

Varying Amounts Near

The Lubbock vicinity received varying amounts of Moisture. The Central Fire station registered 1.08 inches, Texas Tech .74 and the agricultural experiment sub-station .36.

Rain bypassed the South Plains area last night, telephone calls to several towns and the Santa Fe railway at Slaton indicated.

Accompanying the rain, in several sections, were severe electrical displays and hailstorms. Hail damage was reported in northeast Hale county, northwest and east Lubbock county.

Acuff Reports Hail

Acuff, in east Lubbock county, reported severe hail damage to cotton on irrigated farms and "from three to five inches" of rain. Hail damage was also reported south and west of Shallowater, where rainfall was said to have averaged more than an inch.

Very Little Cotton Planted

Very little cotton has been planted on the South Plains this season. Only on irrigated farms and where farmers planted to be covered by provisions of government crop insurance had plantings been previously made.

Don L. Jones, superintendent of the experiment station, several days ago had declared that the deadline for planting cotton was June 20 but his records at the station reveal that there have been numerous instances where cotton was planted after that date and made a fair yield.

The rain in the northern part of the area, Hale and Floyd counties, cut into the wheat harvest which was reported practically finished. Only a few days more and the harvest would have been completed.

The weather picture yesterday afternoon appeared as follows:

Seminole .25; Brownfield .50; Seagraves .50; Levelland .32; Ralls .50; Post .10; Spur 1.00; Shallowater 1.08; Plainview .65; Lockney 1.00; Hale Center, trace; Petersburg .75; Abernathy .50; O'Donnell 1.00; Tahoka .76; Lubbock 1.08; Slaton 1.08; Daugherty .50; Littlefield .08; Muleshoe, none; Morton, sprinkle; Lamesa, sprinkle; Wolfforth .50; Acuff 3.00; Olton .65; Sudan .30; Anton .15.

World Conference

session late Tuesday.

The final action at the charter-working stage came today in unanimous approval by a conference commission of plans for a world forum. Delegates then settled back to wait for Tuesday.

Nine Weeks Of Effort

Then the curtain will come down on nine weeks of intensive effort by statesmen of 50 nations guided by a determination that the world never again shall become embroiled in ruinous war.

The last major segment of the charter to be fitted into place by a conference commission sets up the political and security functions of a general assembly of all the United Nations. The chairman of the committee which engineered this section, Victor Andrade of Bolivia, declared the assembly "will be the fortress where human aspirations are defended."

It is to be a structure whose doors seldom will be closed to public and press. For it was agreed unanimously that the assembly should adopt regulations providing "that, save in exceptional cases, the sessions of the general assembly shall be open to the public and the press of the world."

Truman To Witness Signing

Mr. Truman will witness the signing of the charter, receive the delegates who devised it, and make his closing address at 6 p. m. (cwt) Tuesday.

For most delegates the stresses and strains of the conference were over. A score of crises and controversies, big and little, were things of the past. In public commission sessions, speakers said that compromises had forged an instrument on which the world's peoples may rely with confidence to preserve the security they cherish, even though it may have its flaws.

Opinion Given On OPA Injunctions

GALVESTON, June 21. (AP) — District courts have jurisdiction in the trial of OPA injunction cases, the Court of Civil Appeals here ruled today in an opinion written by Associate Justice T. H. Cody, in a suit styled Chester Bowles, OPA administration, vs. Mary C. Angelo, Houston, doing business as the Angelo cafe.

Some time ago the OPA filed suit seeking a permanent injunction restraining defendant Angelo from violating restaurant ceiling prices. Judge W. W. Moore in district court at Houston held that district courts have no jurisdiction to try such OPA cases. The decision today reverses this ruling.

ally on Luzon's central plains shortly after the Americans landed in January.

Aussies Make New Landing

Meanwhile the Australians who invaded the big island of Borneo on June 10 accomplished another unopposed amphibious hop, going ashore two days ago at Lutong, 80 miles down the coast southwest of their original landing site on Brunei bay.

The landing, after extensive bombardment preparation, placed units of the Australian Ninth division in the heat of the still-flaming Miri and Seria oil fields. The Japanese put the wells and storage facilities to the torch last week.

Allied planes operating from Labuam airfield on the island of Labuan, in the mouth of Brunei bay, damaged a number of grounded Japanese planes at Kenningau, Borneo, and attacked personnel areas elsewhere.

Heavies Batter Borneo

Medium bombers struck the Kudat area to the north and heavy bombers again lambasted the southeastern Dutch Borneo port of Balikpapan with 130 tons of incendiaries and explosives and set fire to the Kuching shipyards.

While the Borneo campaign thus progressed and the northern Luzon cleanup was being hastened by the guerrillas and regular Army troops, the long, grinding drive on the southeastern Philippine island of Mindanao continued without notable developments.

MacArthur reported that two American planes were lost in attacks on enemy defenses on Mindanao, which were hit with 254 tons of bombs.

Fastest developments in the Southwest Pacific fighting were on Luzon, in the Cagayan valley corridor.

Sleuthing Ambition Leads Man To Jail

A 25-year-old Lamesa man wanted to be a detective but instead became an inmate of the Lubbock county jail.

The man appeared Wednesday at Parrish rooms, Broadway and Ave. G, said that he was a detective and that he intended to "investigate" the shooting there Tuesday of Lloyd Halford, 16.

He reportedly told the lady in charge that he had always wanted to be a detective and thought "this was a good time to start." The landlady wasn't impressed and called officers.

Authorities tend to believe the shooting was accidental although they continue to hold another 16-year-old in connection with the shooting. Halford's condition was reported "satisfactory" last night.

Officers were told that Halford was shot when the other youth was showing off a gun. The bullet went into his lower left abdomen.

Truman's Pledge

he said he had nothing on reports of a change in the State department, headed by Secretary Stettinius.

Mr. Truman embarked with Senator Magnuson and Governor Wallgren, from whom he borrowed the gaudy Indian sweater, on a bureau of fisheries boat the "Brant," for an afternoon outing on upper Puget Sound.

At his press conference, the President spoke reassuringly of the food situation and said the administration was at work on a plan for single control over prices and ood but did not disclose how it would function.

He said the meat shortage would automatically be straightened out as soon as Rep. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NMex) takes office as his new secretary of agriculture and war food administrator. Mr. Truman added that it would have been straightened out under the contemplated program under Marvin Jones, retiring food administrator, as well.

Land Price Raise Is Deplored By Duggan

KANSAS CITY, June 21. (AP)—I. W. Duggan, Farm Credit administration governor, puts it bluntly: "We are on the brink of a national disaster unless something is done to curb rising price of farm and ranch land."

If land prices continue to rise, Duggan fears that farmers will begin a one-way trek to the foreclosure wringer, just as they did after 1918.

Tenants who are tempted to buy farms while income is at its present high level are reminded by the FCA governor that short term loans depend for payment on a steady price range for the products of the land and that the "war income period" is getting shorter daily.

Duggan cites statistics to show that farm land prices are soaring faster than during the last world war. Over the entire United States, he said, there has been a 53 per cent jump in farm land prices from the 1935-1939 level. In Kentucky and South Carolina, sale prices have doubled; in 18 other states the figure has risen 60 per cent.

Man Found Dead But Food Was Plentiful

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., June 21. (AP)—When William F. Carr was found dead, apparently of a heart attack, at the wheel of his automobile, police went to the Roseville home where the factory worker, unmarried lived alone.

Stacked in the rooms of the house, Patrolman William Burke reported, were some 1,000 cases of canned goods, sacks of sugar, a refrigerator full of meats, cases of beer and ale piled almost to the ceiling.

In the yard were two new tires and three drums of gasoline.

The cases piled in every room contained soap chips, soups, chocolate, preserves, fruits.

Nazis Refight War

ler that the Russians were building up their forces against Germany. Hitler, Jodl continued, felt that if he did not attack, he soon would be faced with Russia's entry into "weaker states" of Europe.

Jodl said the North African invasion gave the Nazi high command its first complete surprise, that the Germans had no idea such a blow was contemplated until Allied convoys were seen moving through Gibraltar. Even then, the Germans didn't know where the landings would come.

Didn't Want Italy In

The German command, he continued, disapproved of Hitler's friendship with Mussolini, and didn't want Italy to join in the war. Jodl, Kesselring and Keitel all said Italy was considered a liability rather than an asset ,the intelligence officer reported.

If, Jodl said, the Germans had given up the Avranches attack and fought a rearguard action on the Seine, the Allies never would have broken through the Siegfried line because the Germans would have had time to man it properly.

Questioned about the Ardennes offensive, Jodl said the Germans realized the war was lost when that blow failed last December, but that Germany continued to fight on in hopes of a political miracle and a stand behind the Rhine. Seizure of the Remagen bridge over the Rhine upset that schedule, he added.

Party Leaders Said Wary Of Truman Plan

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP) — Republicans in Congress said today President Truman's own party leaders are wary of his presidential succession plan for fear it might put a Republican in the White House.

Mr. Truman has asked Congress to designate the House speaker next in line of succession, after the vice president, as the official who "can be most accurately said to stem from the people themselves."

Existing law puts Secretary of State Stettinius next in line.

Republicans immediately jumped to help carry out Mr. Truman's recommendations.

The New York curb exchange will consider similar action tomorrow morning, it was understood.

Governor Studying Bills, May Veto One

AUSTIN, June 21 (AP)—Approximately a dozen bills from the general session of the legislature remain on Gov. Coke R. Stevenson's desk and he indicated today he will veto at least one of them before the June 25 deadline for considering them.

He said he had under study, for probable veto, a measure reducing the penalties for conviction for keeping or exhibiting gambling devices.

At a press conference he explained the reduced penalty might encourage gambling rather than result in more convictions as sponsors of the measure had claimed. House proponents of the bill said juries were reluctant to convict under present law which stipulates a penalty of two to four years imprisonment.

The bill proposes to reduce the punishment to not more than two years in prison or 30 to 90 days days in jail or a fine of $50 to $500 or both a fine and jail sentence.

The governor said he thought fear of the present penitentiary sentence would do more to deter gambling than the reduced penalties.

He filed without his signature a bill tightening regulations governing the installation, storage and transportation of butane gas and butane gas equipment. He was of the opinion the measure contained some conflicts which might invalidate it.

Still on his desk were several major appropriation bills awaiting action. These include the judiciary appropriation which authorizes a pay increase for all district and appealate court judges.

Houston University Salaries Increased

HOUSTON, June 21. (AP)—University of Houston instructors heard good news about salaries today.

A new school budget, adopted by the board of regents yesterday afternoon, provides for an overall salary increase of $80,000. It was included in the school's $683,380 budget for the coming year.

Of the $80,000, a total of $30,000 will go for salary increases for the present personnel. The remaining $50,000 will be used for salaries of personnel yet to be employed.

A new salary schedule adopted by the regents was described as "the best of its kind in Texas."

Receivership Orders Set Aside By Court

GALVESTON, June 21. (AP)—The court of civil appeals here today set aside orders setting up receiverships in a number of loan company cases brought in Houston by the state attorney general some time ago. The district court had set up receiverships for the companies involved.

In today's decision Associate Justice George W. Graves dissented. The majority opinion said the trial court exceeded its discretionary powers in granting receiverships in addition to injunctions provided by a section of the law regulating loans without giving an opportunity to be heard.

Seventh War Loan Tops Goal, But 'E' Bond Sales Lagging

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The $14,000,000,000 goal of the 7th war loan drive was reached today.

Heavy investments by corporations put the drive technically "over the top." But treasury secretary Morgenthau cautioned against overconfidence concerning the war finance situation. He said the war loan can't be considered a complete success until the quota for individuals was met.

Total sales have climbed to $15,982,000,000. That includes corporation sales of $9,782,000,000 and individual sales of $6,200,000,000.

The quota for corporations is $7,000,000,000 and the quota for individuals is the same.

Sales of series E bonds, the popular securities for small investors, are $2,779,000,000—against an E bond quota of $4,000,000,000.

A Meaningless Term

Let's Junk "Common Man" Stuff!

ABOVE the noise of clashing economic panaceas and general confusion there has been heard a lone voice crying for consideration of "the uncommon man." The voice belongs to Dr. William C. de Vane, dean of Yale college. And it might be a good idea if we all hushed up and listened to him.

"Some things," he says, "have not changed since the dawn of history, and bid fair to last out time itself. One of these things is the capacity for greatness in man—his capacity for being often the master of the event and sometimes even more—the changer of history itself."

It is his conclusion that today's life and thought may be stifling that capacity for greatness, "a very precious gift," and that democracy cannot thrive without "the uncommon man."

We agree with Dr. de Vane. And we think one of the first and best ways of promoting the uncommon man's welfare would be to banish the term "common man" from our speech and our thinking.

The term is meaningless. The very fact of being human commits man to individuality, not commonness. No man in the honest depths of his heart thinks of himself as being "common." And when you hear an individual thump his breast and piously proclaim, "I am just a common man," put him down as a thundering hypocrite and hang onto your pocketbook, because he's after something—usually votes or money.

THOSE who speak of the common man as someone apart from themselves may be motivated by sincerity and good intentions —those durable paving stones of the nether regions. But they are guilty of a snobbery as stuffy as that of any blue-blooded, gouty old moneybags.

What the well-intentioned and social-conscious mean by the common man is the poor man, the unfortunate man, the exploited man, the uneducated, or unintelligent man. But they have coined the euphemism "common," and have tried to convince the people to whom they apply it that commonness is a virtue, and that it is a mark of honesty to be stripped of individuality and branded as one of a herd.

THEY have fostered the idea that by the mere fact of being classed as "common," a segment of society has the right to receive some of the world's goods from its uncommon brethern and give nothing in return. They have put the witch's curse on individual ambition. They have confused the mere fact of wealth with evil, and of poverty with good, without regard for attendant circumstances.

It is certainly the duty of all men to try to improve the society they live in, to increase opportunities, and to distribute that society's wealth in such a manner that each member may live in decency and comfort.

But men should not get the idea that decency and comfort are the end, or that any one of their fellow men must be compelled to live by bread and sociology alone. Decency and comfort should simply be the setting commensurate with the dignity of being a man, a setting in which whatever promise a man has of uncommonness and greatness may develop unfettered.

They Still Walk To Fight

EVEN in this most mechanized of all wars, shoe leather is playing no insignificant role as means of soldier transportation. The Army's requirements for 1945, as recently announced, run to 30,986,000 pairs of shoes. If tens of thousands of American troops are doing most of their fighting sitting down in planes, tanks, trucks and jeeps, somebody is obviously doing a lot of marching in these millions of pairs of boots.

One reason why Army life is hard on shoes should be apparent to anyone who knows anything at all about soldiering. The doughboy does a tremendous amount of walking and very little of it under the most propitious circumstances. His strolls are more often across muddy fields, down rocky creeks, and through mined and debris-filled towns and woods than along well-paved pavements.

Another good reason why the Army's shoe requirements are the greatest of the war is the need of refitting the feet of most of the troops shifting from the European to the Pacific theaters. Every type of battlefield from the desert to the Arctic and from the tropics to the volcanic dust of Iwo Jima requires its own specialized type of footwear.

Meanwhile, civilians, whose footwear is also showing signs of wear after three years of war and rationing, will have to struggle along as best they can.

And it won't hurt any of us to do it.

Another tough reconversion problem will be getting the women out of war plants back into the kitchen—or from nuts to soup, as it were.

Believe It Or Not --- By Robert Ripley

The American House

By Virginia Chase

(Copyright, 1945, NEA Service, Inc.)

VI

When we took over the American House, we had only one regular boarder. This was Mr. Martin Tapley, who owned the dry goods store. Mr. Tapley was a bachelor, middle-aged and growing bald. He dressed very untidily. His teeth were stained, and his skin was sallow. ("That's what comes from his smoking so many cigarets," people said, nodding wisely.) But smoking wasn't the worst of it. . . .

He had a good business—people were careful to point out that he had inherited it—but he took it lightly, seeming not to care whether his books showed a profit or loss. He seldom appeared in his dry goods store until noon, leaving everything to his two officious clerks.

You could always count on Mr Tapley to be contrary. He called himself a Socialist and kept a picture of Eugene Debs in his office. Whenever the Censoring Committee of the library banned a book—one by Henrik Ibsen or George Bernard Shaw or Upton Sinclair or Robert Ingersoll, for instance — he sent away and bought a copy and then carried it around openly under his arm.

Naturally, there was a lot of talk about him. People didn't approve of his never going to church. They didn't like the idea of his selling his house—it had been in the family for three generations—and moving into a hotel. There was talk, too, about the way his family lot was kept. There wasn't even a marker on his mother's grave.

Mr. Tapley's mother had been a very important person in the village. No project was ever begun without her approval or completed without her zest. She was superintendent of the Sunday School, president of the Thursday Circle, and founder of our branch of the W. C. T. U.

"What a blessing it is that she isn't alive to see the way her son has turned out," her friends said, sighing.

Mr. Tapley's drinking had become almost a legend. Whisky was like water to him. What he drank regularly—in a prohibition state—would have kept anyone else unconscious, so the story ran. Yet he boasted that no one had ever seen him drunk. Even tipsy

My mother was one of the few women in the village who had a good word to say for him. "I believe if that girl had stood by him . . ." she said one day long before we moved.

"What girl, Mama?" we demanded. It seemed impossible.

She was never one to gossip. "There is no point in digging up the past," she said firmly. "It was just that he had a girl who didn't dare stand up against his mother. She married someone else."

By this time we were all ears. "Who was she, Mama?"

"Was she someone from around here?"

"Now, now," she said. "I'm sorry that I ever brought it up. You just go and play some game."

But it was too late.

"Just tell us if she was someone from around here, Mama."

"Just tell us if it was someone we know."

My father couldn't stand teasing. "Tell them," he said. "Now that you have gone this far."

"Well," she went on reluctantly. "But see that you don't repeat it to anyone."

We promised.

"It was Eunice Sawyer. She was Eunice Hinckley then."

"Eunice Sawyer," we gasped.

Eunice Sawyer was a plump, hearty farm woman with a husband half her size and three robust boys. They liver five miles out of the village. It was hard enough to believe any middle-aged people we knew could have ever felt romantic love. But Mr. Tapley and Eunice Sawyer . . .

"Oh, Mama," Sue said.

"She was a real pretty girl," my mother insisted, "and I guess she makes a good wife, too."

One Saturday evening late in May Julia and I were sitting on the steps of the American House watching the farmers come in to trade. In one of the buggies that passed we recognized Luther Sawyer and Eunice, weighing down her end of the seat.

We looked at each other, remembering. Then we looked back at her. She was still pretty in a heavy, faded way. Too pretty, at least, we decided, for the little pinched man who tied the horse on the railing of the general store and without a word headed toward the baber shop.

We watched her get out, pat the horse, pick up her basket, and start off.

"Do you suppose she will go to his store?" asked Julia.

I had just been wondering that.

We didn't take our eyes off her as she passed from one store to another. First the meat market, then the hardware, then the cobbler's across the street again to read the notices on the Post Office. Then toward the long line of gray buildings where the dry goods store was. Would she go in?

She didn't go in. She didn't even look in. Head up, eyes straight ahead, she went on to the bakery.

We watched the next Saturday, the next, and the next. She had gone into every store but his.

Had they met face to face since their quarrel? We wondered.

What would happen if they did?

AAR Gives Total On Freight Cars Loaded

WASHINGTON, June 21. (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today that 872,674 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 11,611 cars, or 1.3 per cent compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 4,819 cars, or 0.5 per cent compared with the corresponding week a year ago, and increase of 4,388 cars, or 0.5 per cent compared with two years ago.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

HERE is my wife's latest pronunciamento:

"It is absolutely ridiculous to have men plan kitchens!"

What brought it about is that our kitchen sink is too low.

Our house was remodeled about five years ago, and is supposed to be about as nice a house as a remodeled house can be — that is in a modest sort of a way.

BRANDEIS

But the kitchen sink is too low.

When my wife washes the dishes she has to stoop over until her back starts to hurt her.

"Why don't you sit down on the stool?" I asked her with a husband's typical naivete.

So she showed me that when she sits down on the stool she can't get her knees under the sink.

And while she was at it she pointed out a few more foolish things that men do when they plan kitchens and household appliances.

"Look how carefully golf sticks matched and how you are sure to buy only those that are exactly right for your size.

"Look how you see to it that tennis racket is just right for your grip.

"Then look at vacuum cleaners and brooms and irons.

"Everything the same—no matter whether you are tall or short.

"That's because men design these things."

Then she showed me that our pantry is in the wrong place. Entirely too near the chimney. And why doesn't somebody produce a coffee pot with a handle that doesn't burn your hands?

Now, mind you, I may not be entirely accurate. But I think you get the idea. And I think, furthermore, that my wife has got something there.

I wonder why women are not consulted more on matters pertaining to housekeeping?

Could it be, perhaps, that we males are so sure of ourselves and consider ourselves so superior to the female sex that we hold it beneath our dignity to take a woman's advice?

I do understand that in some organizations women are actually being taken in as designers and consultants now.

But that hasn't as yet become a general rule.

A thousand new conveniences are now in the making.

In a few years, from all I hear, housekeeping will be as much of a pleasure as it was a drudgery in our mothers' time.

So why not take my wife's advice—and I think a million women will agree with her — and make housekeeping not only easier but household appliances handier as well?

I hope you'll excuse me for sticking my nose into something that doesn't seem to concern me. But then I believe in "Looking at Life" not only from my desk and my typewriter, but from the kitchen as well.

After all, a man's got to eat.

Alcohol The Tip-Off?

Big Quantities To Go To Russia

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

DIPLOMATIC speculation about Russia's possible entry into the war on Japan has been intensified by the War Production board's public announcement that shipment of made-in-America industrial alcohol to the Soviet Union will be resumed immediately.

WPB's statement appears to be all the more significant because it coincides with Harry Hopkin's return from a Moscow mission which President Truman has described as eminently satisfactory. It also furnishes a material prelude to the forthcoming meeting in Berlin of Truman, Churchill and Stalin.

Last, it gives further meaning to the current journey of Prince Konoye of Japan to the Kremlin. It is believed in the highest circles here that this member of the royal family will offer the USSR any inducement—Manchuria, North China, Korea — to remain neutral.

TUCKER

The resumption of alcohol exports at this time seems peculiar, save for the reasons given above, because in peacetime Russia produces all the high and low proof liquid she needs for beverage and industrial purposes. Her imports of the fluid in prewar days were negligible.

Now she wants it in huge volume. With Germany defeated, it is a logical conclusion that she seeks it for combat use against some other power. Alcohol is an essential ingredient of high explosives, engine fuel and non-freeze solutions.

The alcohol will be produced from Midwest grain, for the Russians prefer that kind to the petroleum product. Until WPB issued its new directive, this type of alchy was used in making synthetic rubber. But now, as exclusively revealed here a few days ago, the United States is manufacturing a million tons of artificial rubber annually — or more than the Allies will require for the defeat of the Land of the Rising (?) Sun.

MOUNTAINS: Our heavy losses on Okinawa portend terrific casualties for the United Nations forces if it becomes necessary to invade and conquer the main islands of Japan.

Military experts who know the enemy's fanatical fighting qualities and the topography of the hostile country think it only fair that the American people should be informed of the fierce struggle that lies ahead unless Tokyo surrenders in the meantime because of our blows and under Russian pressure.

In its geological formation Okinawa is a miniature Japan. But areas came into being from the process of volcanic formation; they are mountains rising above the surrounding ocean.

Except for narrow levels along the shore, Nippon consists of steep ridges, high peaks and ravines. It is poor terrain for the tanks and artillery and even the planes which spearheaded our advance through the comparatively flat fields of Europe. The infantry will have to bear the brunt of the battling in this kind of territory.

FLAMES: The mountains are of granite structure above the timber line, but their bases are of a porous material. Caves and underground passages abound everywhere in the interior, and the Japs have had plenty of time and warning to transform them into strongholds like those we have had to liquidate with flame on Okinawa.

The caverns have been enlarged and interconnected. It is presumed that food and weapons are stored there to resist a siege. The defenders will have to be dug out, burned out or buried in these subterranean forts.

Allied armies will need new weapons. The first of a long list of novel arms designed for this sort of fighting is the new flame-thrower that will hose its fire around corners and for a distance of 500 feet.

It will not comfort Hirohito to let him know that Ordnance and the Chemical Warfare Service are cooking up new death-dealing devices, and that our European warriors will be thoroughly trained in their use within the next few months.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

IF ALL GOES well, there may be a few more items to wear this Fall.

Unfortunately, the break will not come in time to assist the demobilized veteran in replenishing his wardrobe. Suits and overcoats will be scarcer than they are now. The greatest shortages in nearly every line of men's and women's apparel will occur in the next weeks.

Reports from the country show that clothing store personnel and customers have confused ideas about this crisis. They have been led astray by recent overoptimistic statements from Washington, hinting that owning to military cutbacks the pinch will be eased.

This is the truth so far as the long-range picture is concerned. The immediate prospect is bleak, especially in cotton and worsteds. Even after mills stop making uniforms, blankets, sheets, etc. for Uncle Sam, it will take some months to fill distribution channels for civilians.

LEMAN

The following forecasts are based on the latest information from the highest Government sources and from top men in the New York and New England textile industry:

John D. Small, chief of staff, War Production board, told the writer, "Textiles are in an acutely short supply now. I see no real relief for many months — perhaps not before the middle of next year. The worsted situation is unusually tight."

New England mill owners reveal that cotton spinning in the last recorded month was 78 per cent of capacity it was 87 per cent in the same period last year. At a private meeting of the Trade Association Executives in New York is was disclosed that all textile firms are so crucially short of help that many plants are abandoning three shifts for two.

The manpower dearth may be mitigated by the new increase in the minimum wage rate to 55 cents an hour and by the War Labor board's permission to pay a wage premium on third shift operations. OPA Administrator Chester Bowles is expected to allow mills a higher price, probably through a subsidy, on all production directly due to the establishment of this extra work stretch.

Textile machinery is so scarce that the WPB has put it on the urgency list and has promised manufacturers to whom the rating applies that they will be given adequate labor.

SUITS: Months ago this column predicted that by Fall men would face the greatest famine of their lives in suits and overcoats. That has now come true.

Men's furnishings already are at their lowest ebb since the war began. Overcoat stocks are depleted more than they have been in 20 years by the time cold weather sets in there will be scarcely a retailer with any for sale.

The Wool Associates of the New York Cotton Exchange admit that there is no assurance that the output of civilian woolens for July, August and September will exceed that of the skimpy second quarter. Government procurement services have informed them that new contracts for the end of the year will be substantial.

The outlook for women's wear is fully as bad. New York executives see no sign of a modification of the 100 per cent freeze in wool tops and worsted weaving yarn. The rumor that the curb would be lifted in July or August was knocked in the head at a conference of the Wool Industry Advisory committee.

Most mills are a month behind in Army-Navy deliveries. They will be busy on current orders up to October. As it takes two months to change over, the likelihood of any production of worsted fabrics for women's use next Fall and Winter is remote.

"Noise is a deterrent to digestion," asserts a physician. Does soup disagree with you?

World Co-Operation Program Is Looking Up

Administration Nears Its Goal

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Prospects look bright now in the Senate for the administration's whole international co-operation program, both political and economic.

The request for authority in the Reciprocal Tariff bill to make an additional 50 per cent reduction in tariffs looked like the biggest hurdle. It was surmounted, 47 to 33—a margin of victory that was surprising as well as encouraging for two other phases of the program still to come before the Senate.

One is the bill for an International Bank and Stabilization fund embodied in the Bretton Woods agreements, which the House passed overwhelmingly. The other is the charter for the World Security organization now being completed at San Francisco.

STOKES

Two weeks ago, administration leaders were worried about the Reciprocal Tariff bill. It got through the House with none too comfortable a majority for the additional 50 per cent tariff cut authority, and only after a hard fight. There was even discussion among Senate leaders of the possible necessity of reducing the leeway in bargaining with other nations—25 per cent being suggested—after the Senate Finance committee had eliminated the 50 per cent provision, 10 to 9.

But the situation improved considerably during the week's debate in the Senate.

A shift in Republican ranks there contributed to the victory. Nine Republicans voted for 50 per cent reduction authority sought by the administration. They more than offset the negative votes of eight Democrats from the West and New England.

This Republican support was larger than administration leaders had counted on. At the outset they had figured on only four or five, and they lost fewer Democrats from the cattle and mining states than they had expected.

A MAJORITY of Senate Republicans still stood against the extra tariff-reduction bargaining authority, as a majority of Democrats were for it. The step backward toward economic nationalism which a majority of the Republican party took in the Senate, as it did in the House, is discouraging.

But there is a brighter side worth noting in the courage of the minority in the Senate which refused to follow the standpat element led by Senator Taft (O). Those courageous senators were mostly the newer and younger members who have shown a progressive viewpoint on other issues, economic and international.

Perhaps the most hopeful way to look at it is that these men may be a leaven that will work effectively in time.

Dewey Led Parade

Governor Dewey of New York, the titular party leader, came out boldly before Senate consideration of the Reciprocal Tariff bill for a broad program of international co-operation, including the Reciprocal Tariff. His timely reminder may have had some influence in the Senate. Certainly before that no one had counted upon as many as nine Republicans leaving Senator Taft.

The bolting Republicans apparently were influenced by several considerations which were well set forth by one of them, Senator Smith (N. J.), in his speech announcing his change of position.

THESE included the belief that economic co-operation with other nations must go hand in hand with political co-operation, the lack of any real injury to any industry by previous Reciprocal Trade agreements, assurances by State department officials that they would do nothing to hurt American industry in future negotiations, and an antipathy to return to the old method of writing "tariff" bills on the floors of Congress in tedious detail, under the influence of trading and log-rolling and with an annoying swarm of lobbyists of special interests hanging around like bar flies.

An analysis of the Senate vote on the Reciprocal Tariff also indicates a diminution of the tariff as a party issue, with emphasis now rather on it as a local issue. That is shown, for example, in the way both Republicans and Democrats from the Western cattle and mining states joined in opposing authority for further reductions with, of course, some exceptions.

Mother Shoots Baby, Then Self In Car

KANSAS CITY, June 21. (AP)—An 18-year-old mother, Norma E. Carver, early today shot and killed her one-year-old daughter, Mary Ellen, then committed suicide, in a motorcar parked on a Jackson county road, Sheriff J. A. Purdome said.

Purdome said the woman left a note chalked in yellow on the windshield of the car. It stated:

"I love you, Dick."

Purdome said the young mother shot her baby in the left temple with a .22 caliber rifle. Then she placed the muzzle of the gun in her mouth and pulled the trigger again.

Officers were checking in an effort to locate "Dick" and to trace ownership of the 1934 model car in which the bodies were found.

TWO MURDER GUESTS

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Buses are overburdened as never before. A crisis is near. With more men, tires and gas going to war, present service can barely be maintained. Each day brings greater loads. When you must travel locally, let this be your creed:

1. Do Not Ride in Rush Hours, except to and from your job.
2. Have Exact Fare Ready, saves time and fuss.
3. Move Back When Driver Asks, speeds your ride.

This simple creed will work wonders.

Pattern Of Pacific Attack Takes Form Of Eisenhower 'Team' Idea

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press News Analyst

SIMPSON

The pattern of an Allied Army, Navy and Air Force organization beyond the Pacific for the final assaults on Japanese armies at home or in China is beginning to emerge clearly even before actual redeployment of forces released from Europe by Germany's collapse is more than well started.

In that pattern so far as it has been officially revealed, can be detected implementation of about the only two recommendations in that regard voiced by General Eisenhower when he spoke to Congress as "just another American citizen" rather than as a military strategist.

Two Prime Lessons

Those two prime lessons learned in Europe, the former supreme Allied commander against Germany said, were coordination of all forces, ground, sea and air, into a single combat team; and bringing to bear on the foe the full weight of available overwhelming superiority in all military categories. It was that which Eisenhower said brought total victory in Europe and minimized Allied casualties. It could bring the same result against Japan, he added.

General Eisenhower came back from Europe so much impressed by the "single-team" idea that he later expressed his own wish that American ground, sea and air forces would some day wear "the same uniform." He doubted it would due in inter-service rivalries, but despite the dual MacArthur-Nimitz command team now beyond the Pacific, something of the same one-team organization that prevailed in Europe is beginning to emerge.

The selection of General "Vinegar" Joseph W. Stilwell by General MacArthur to command the 10th Army on Okinawa is a case in point. The death in action of Lt. General Simon B. Buckner, jr., original 10th Army commander, opened the way for Stilwell's new post as a combat leader, certainly a role against Japan he prefers to his previous assignment as chief of Army Ground forces.

Man Kills Two, Takes Own Life

EL PASO, June 21 (U.P.)—John R. Phillips, 60-year-old retired contractor, killed his former wife and stepdaughter today, then turned the gun on himself and committed suicide, police said, after a family quarrel.

In addition to Phillips, the dead were Mrs. Phillips, 55, and Mrs. Harold O. Womack, 23, a daughter by a previous marriage.

Infant Not Harmed

Left unharmed was the stepdaughter's infant baby, found crying lustily in a pool of blood near its mother's body.

Although no eyewitnesses to the shootings could be located, police pieced together the following chain of incidents:

Phillips left his apartment and went to that of his ex-wife's, where Mrs. Phillips and Mrs Womack, whose husband is overseas, were preparing breakfast.

Neighbors heard an argument, during which Phillips was heard to remark, "I'll show you I can keep my word." One neighbor said she heard a conversation about return of some diamonds given Mrs. Phillips at the time of their marriage.

Then shots were heard.

Phillips then returned to his apartment where he was later found shot to death, a .45 caliber pistol with five fired shells beside him.

The couple was divorced last April, and neighbors said that Mrs. Phillips had talked about placing her husband under a peace bond, but that she "feared publicity."

In 1510 Bartholomew Green, jr., brought the first printing press from Boston to Canada.

Gen. Easley Killed At Front Where He Habitually Stayed

By ROBERT GEIGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH U. S. 96TH DIVISION ON OKINAWA, June 19 (Delayed) — In a front line setting of bursting mortars and flying bullets which was his daily background, Brig. Gen. Claudius M. Easley, assistant commander of the 96th Infantry division, was killed today by a Japanese machine gunner.

Easley was killed less than a day after Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, jr., Tenth Army commander, was killed by a shell fragment on the Marine front east of the 96th's sector.

Stayed At Front Lines

General Easley, a Texan whose home was in Washington, D. C., made personal bravery and excellent marksmanship his code. Almost every day since the start of the Okinawa campaign 80 days ago, he was in the front lines.

He had been assistant commander of the 96th since it was activated at Camp Adair, Ore., in August 1942. The division took its name of "deadeye" from Easley's reputation for excellent markmanship.

Only three days ago, Easley, while autographing a shortsnorter bill and being chided for his perpetual frontline meanderings said that a general in his post was the eyes and ears for a division general and that he could prefer no better death than at enemy hands.

Lectures His Men

Shortly before he died he lectured a frontline group for having let a Japanese sniper pin them down. "You should be ashamed to let one Jap make you take cover," he told them.

Easley was killed on this plateau after another staff officer was struck by rock splinters chipped off by a Japanese machinegun bullet.

Easley crawled to the summit of the hillock trying to outflank the Japanese and direct the fire against him. Another Japanese machine-gunner shot him through the head.

He was wounded and hospitalized for three weeks on Leyte. He held the Legion of Merit for work with the 96th Infantry and the Silver Star for gallantry on Okinawa.

Easley has been in the Army since he was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in 1917 after graduation from Texas A. and M.

He was on the War department general staff prior to 1941 when he was given an infantry regiment of the 82nd division.

His widow and one son, Maj. C. M. Easley, jr., survive. Mrs. Easley lives at Broadmoor, Washington, D. C.

He will be buried tomorrow in Okinawa Army cemetery overlooking the sea.

Plain Block To Mark Roosevelt's Grave

NEW YORK, June 21. (U.P.)—A plain block of white marble, planned in detail by the late President Roosevelt in 1937, will mark his grave in the rose garden of the Roosevelt Hyde park estate.

The 15-ton monument will be made from the same Vermont marble used for the Jefferson memorial in Washington. It is now being finished by the Vermont Marble company, Proctor, Vt.

Basil O'Connor, an executor of the late president's estate, said yesterday there would be no markings but the simple one Mr. Roosevelt wanted on the stone.

Memorandum Given

Mr. Roosevelt's memorandum, dated Dec. 26, 1937, specified:

"A plain white marble monument—no carving or decoration—to be placed over my grave, east and west as follows: length, 8 feet; width, 4 feet; height, 3 feet. Whole to be set on a marble base extending two feet out from the monument all around but said base to be no more than six inches from the ground.

"I hope that my dear wife will on her death be buried there also and that the monument contain no device or inscription except the following on the south side:

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT
1882-19—
ANNA ELEANOR ROOSEVELT
1884-19—"

Dallas Living Cost 25.5 Per Cent More

DALLAS, June 21 (U.P.) — The cost of living has shot up 25.5 per cent in Dallas since war broke out in Europe in 1939.

And it costs even more than that to live in Dallas, says Regional Director Arthur A. Smith of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Dr. Smith said most people have more income than they did six years ago and, thus, are spending more than 25 per cent additional to live.

Food prices in Dallas, he said, are up 48 per cent over 1939. Clothing costs 31 per cent more. Only one item has gone down in price. Fuel and light, he said, cost only 89.1 per cent of the 1939 average.

1944 Total Admitted To Prisons Is 1,611

HUNTSVILLE, June 21. (AP)—A total of 1,611 new inmates, 44 of them women, were received in the Texas prison system in 1944, according to the annual report of J. C. Roberts, chief of the bureau of records and identification, who said the average daily count in the system last year was 3,461.

There were 1,579 new inmates received in 1943.

The report shows approximately 66 per cent of the average daily population was released on parole or conditional pardon, or left the system by reason of discharge, escape or death.

The report said that 673 more inmates were released than were received as new prisoners during the year.
