Community Care: Emergency Information

By: George Baldrige

Whether from violent storms or wildfires, this time of year can produce conditions that pose a distinct threat to lives and properties. In times past, it was difficult for officials to provide important emergency information to residents of the communities under their jurisdiction. However, thanks to the wealth of modern messaging options, that limitation no longer exists.

Many communities, regardless of size, can now provide timely emergency information to anxious residents in an instant. Some have developed systems that enable emergency managers to send text messages directly to subscribers' cell phones. Others have opted to use free existing options like Facebook and Twitter. Either way, residents can now be better informed and therefore enjoy a higher level of safety in times of crisis.

The importance of effective emergency management practices has been brought to light in recent years through tragic natural and man-made disasters. The chaos that naturally accompanies any disaster situation can create numerous unnecessary circumstances. Individuals who are caught in such situations frequently need thorough, timely information regarding evacuations, established places of refuge or roadways to take to move to places of safety.

Research has found that individuals who are provided with timely, reliable information during emergency situations are more likely to remain calm, follow official instructions and act responsibly. Conversely, when people do not know what to do, they can make bad decisions that can compromise their safety – this is especially true during a crisis.

Additionally, when seconds count, first responders need lines of communication open and roadways passable. Accurate information that is provided to the public benefits emergency personnel in several ways. It can decrease the number of interested gawkers who can clog roads and decrease the number of calls to local law enforcement offices from individuals seeking information. In times of crisis, emergency personnel's attention needs to focus on communicating with first responders out in the field.

In addition to providing emergency messaging to the general public, some communities have made their emergency management plans available on their web sites. This practice makes it possible for residents to be aware of their community's comprehensive emergency plans in times of crisis and therefore, be better prepared.

It has been said that knowledge is power. During times of crisis, knowing where to go and what has numerous benefits for those affected, their loved ones and all first responders. The question is: Does your community have measures in place that help insure the safety of its residents; if not, why not?

Congratulations to all our graduates. We are proud of each of you.

Jennifer, Seth, Barbara and I were in Huntsville Wednesday through Sunday morning last week. Dorcie had college graduation ceremonies on Thursday and Friday; one for Honor Graduates and the regular graduation on Friday.

— cwe —

We stopped in Sherman on the way back home on Sunday. Ronal Wayne had hamburgers ready for us when we got there. Ronal Jr. and Ian were also there.

The rain measurement; we had two showers. Friday we received 0.17 with some hail. Sunday, 0.71 fell. Monday afternoon, it sprinkled; then later 0.38 was measured.

The Kelton Volunteer Fire Department was out from 4 a.m. to 7 a.m. Monday morning for a fire started by lightning.

— cwe —

We usually have a cloud during graduation; I do not know what the forecast is.

Remember when it used to be old people, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary? Congratulations, Gary and Becky.

Storm

Saturday morning we went to OSU for Hannah's (Darr) graduation. I know Layne would be proud of her! I know we are. I am sorry that we missed Dorcie's (Gillette) graduation in Huntsville.
 After OSU we went to Waynoka to see Michael's (Meriwether) school play. He is the principal and he directs the play. It was very good. It was "Jungle Book". The scene looked like a real jungle and the characters were animals and some people. I like the monkeys dancing and I loved the giraffe. He was very tall!
 Church in Wheeler was great. Ms. Sonya (Mercer) preached about labels. Don't let the labels that people put on you tell you who you are.

That is a good message.
 After church we went to Mel's for Mother's Day lunch. A very interesting thing happened. My dad noticed a man that came in and asked my mom if it was the man that wants to be senator from Texas. My mom said it was and she went to talk to him. His name is Beto O'Rourke. He was very nice and invited us to a meeting in Borger. We went to listen to his speech. Beto did a good job talking with the people. I think he is a very nice man and a good candidate.
 This is the last week of school and my last week of WJH. We practiced our graduation. On Thursday it is the real thing. I will miss junior high, but I think high school will be great! That's it!

Congratulation to all 2018 Graduates and a Special Congratulations to our Granddaughters . . .

On Friday, May 11, 2018, Dorcie Ann Porter Gillette graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Biomedical Sciences - Magna Cum Laude with Highest Honors/Honors College with Academic Distinction; her thesis title is Rapid evolution of CRISPR-associated Cas proteins. Dorcie Ann will be attending medical school at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, Texas, in the fall. Dorcie Ann is the daughter of Cathi Gillette of Huntsville, Texas, and the granddaughter of Louis and Barbara Stas of Wheeler, Texas.
