Court won't hear gas use question

A Texas Supreme Court decision has ended an eight-month legal question related to the residential use of residue gas from the SACROC field.

The high court Wednesday dismissed a legal action initiated by county resident Richard E. Stoker. This action sought a Supreme Court ruling to overturn a decision in February by the 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland

The Supreme Court has now denied this request. Its decision was that the court of appeals is the highest court with jurisdiction in the case.

The action in effect affirms the decision by the Eastland court, which overturned a temporary injunction handed down in 132nd District Court here last October. The injunction had temporarily halted SACROC's announced plans to cut off the flow of the residue gas to county residences.

Since the court of appeals decision in February, SACROC has begun steps to disconnect the rural homes from the residue gas lines.

A spokesman for SACROC said Friday that about 50 of the homes using the gas had been disconnected to date.

SACROC officials announced last August that they would be cutting off the gas which about 120 royalty owners had been using since the 1950's.

The gas use had been granted the property owners as part of their lease contracts.

An Oct. 1, 1983 cutoff date was first proposed. The legal battle to prevent this was then initiated by Stoker and a second county resident, Lester Moore.

In its argument before the 11th Court of Appeals in February, SACROC pointed to the "overiding safety concern" associated with continued use of the gas.

At the time, it was noted that breakdowns in the gas purifying process could allow carbon dioxide and deadly hydrogen sulfide into the system.

This safety concern plus provisions in the SACROC contracts giving the company the right to terminate the service for safety reasons were cited in the appeals court decision.

Merchant ship sunk

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A merchant ship sank Saturday after being attacked in the Persian Gulf waters southwest of Iran's Kharg Island, shipping sources in Bahrain said.

The 17,000-ton bulk carrier, the Fidelity, was carrying steel destined for Bandar Khomeini, an Iranian port, the sources said. They said it was possibly hit by Iraqi warplanes 24 hours before it sunk. Sources in Bahrain and Dubai said that a Spanish supertanker escaped an attack at the same time.

Iraq announced early Friday it had hit two "big" naval targets near Kharg.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence in London, which receives shipping casualty reports worldwide, said the ship was hit by an unidentified missile, and was believed to have been attacked either late Friday or early today.

Lloyd's said the Fidelity was of Panamanian registry, but sources in Bahrain said it flew a Panamanian-flag but was of Greek registry.

The Bahrain sources said 21 crew members were rescued and 12 others escaped in lifeboats. A Lloyd's spokesman said it was not known immediately how many crew members the vessel was carrying.

Lloyd's agents in Bahrain issued an alert that said: "Please send any help. All ships please keep a sharp lookout. Need helicopter assistance search."

Marine sources in Bahrain, Kuwait and Dubai said the first signal picked up from the Fidelity indicated it was ablaze late Friday and the last signal, received at 1:40 a.m. Saturday, said clearly it was sinking.

They said that Panamanian-registered bulk-carrier, the Cathy Mylo, rescued some of the crew members. Iranian helicopters reportedly some crew members, also.

The sources said the Fidelity was hit in Iranian territorial waters southwest of Kharg.

Attacks by both Iran and Iraq on Arab and Western oil tankers have increased sharply. The United States has offered air cover to the vessels of gulf Arab countries.

Iran has threatened to close the gulf's Strait of Hormuz, through which passes percent of the noncommunist world's crude oil. The United States has repeatedly declared its commitment to keeping the strait open.

In Kuwait, the Cabinet of Ministers discussed the gulf tanker situation at its third emergency meeting in six days under the emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed.

Meanwhile, the operations director of the Kuwait Oil Tanker Co. said that "air protection is necessary" for tankers in the gulf.

Tim Stigred said the company's 23 tankers will "continue to operate in the gulf despite the recent attacks" on the Kuwaiti oil tankers.

READY TO ROLL — John Brown of Winters had one of the more unusual rigs among the touring motorcycles on view in Towle Park Saturday morning. Brown drives this 1981 Honda via controls in the sidecar which holds his wheelchair. He said he has been riding various motorcycles rigged for his special needs for about 10 years. Probation is revoked

Twenty-six year-old Ernest Ray Brandon of Snyder was sentenced to three years in the Texas Department of Corrections last week after having a previously granted probation term revoked.

Brandon had been placed on felony probation for three years after pleading guilty in February of 1982 to the November 1981 theft of a money bag from the East Highway Dairy Queen.

He was sentenced Wednesday after a hearing in 132nd District Court.

In revoking his probation, county officials cited subsequent arrests for the theft of a waterbed from a local residence in December of 1983 and a misdemeanor possession of marijuana charge this past April.

80 acres leased...

College farm operation ok'd

Operation of a Western Texas College farm will begin next school year as part of an expanded Agriculture Program approved last week by the WTC board of trustees.

The enterprise is expected to entail some 80 acres and will consist of both planted crop and stock animal operations.

Heading up the farm program will be Bob Doty, assistant professor of agriculture.

"We're trying to offer farm and ranch kids in this area a less expensive alternative for their first two years toward an ag major," Doty said Friday.

"Instead of having to live away from home, they can stay here and get the basics before going on to a four-year school."

He said he feels this will be particularly beneficial in the area of ag studies since Texas farmers and ranchers and now "caught in the economic crunch."

To assist in the effort, Dr. Carl Dillaha has agreed to lease an 80-acre site near the college for a $10 per acre yearly fee. The land is located on the western side of the Brick Plant Road due south of the Brick Plant.

For the first year of operation — a year which will include upfront expenses to purchase animals — a $9,117 net expense is projected for WTC. College officials say it is hoped the program will eventually be self-sustaining, however, through the sale of farm animals.

This year and in year's past, the WTC agriculture program has relied on taking students to private ranches and farms for lab experience.

With the 80 acre site acquired, students will now plant a certain number of acres in coastal burmuda and sorghum — crops which will be harvested for feed.

Initial purchases will include 10 steers; five sows and one boar; and feeder lambs.

Doty said Friday the property has existing pens for lambs and cattle. Farrow pens for the swine might have to be purchased, he said.

Farm equipment owned by Dillaha is also part of the lease agreement.

The expanded program will entail the hiring of an additional instructor at the college. This staffer is expected to have combined responsibilities for both the agricultural and the golf/landscape technology course of instruction.

It is expected also that a WTC stock judging team for agricultural-related competitions can be formed thanks to the addition of the farm operation.

Doty said the farm's operation won't be started until next fall. Animals for the program will likely be purchased in August or September.

The college had 33 ag majors this past school year. Doty said he expects the farm addition will boost enrollment considerably.

Centennial plans include displays

The Centennial Celebration Committee of the Scurry County Historical Commission has begun mailing letters to city merchants asking them to decorate window display areas from June 28-July 4 with a Centennial theme.

Such items might include photos, antique furniture, toys, clothing, glassware, China, collections of an historic nature, or machinery pertaining to the history of the business or service.

All Snyder businesses are asked to participate.

To assist with the effort around the Snyder square, four local business operators have been asked to serve as coordinators. They are Howard Limmer of Anthony's (northside); David Thompson of Thompson's Shoes (eastside); Brian Boswell of J.C. Penney (southside); and Donna Gray of Snyder Book Store (westside).

To assist with the displays, the merchant's committee also seeks the names of locals with collections they are willing to loan for the displays.

Participating merchants will be judged and an award given for the best window display. The deadline for entering will be June 21 and the judging

It's graduation time and local merchants tell us that neckties are no longer the leading gift for male graduates.

We remember when most grads got enough ties to last them a lifetime. Of course, that was when a necktie could be purchased for under $5. Now it's difficult to find a nice one under twenty bucks.

One reason may be an ad which ran for a large department store back east. It was obviously a misprint, but the ad said ties priced from $21.50 to $5,000. It was a typographical error, of course, and the tie was really priced at $50.

Graduation is a time when seniors are told to think big, to have goals and to pursue the best. Seniors over at Rule High School started early.

They sent a special invitation to President Ronald Reagan, asking him to be the school's commencement speaker. After months of waiting, Rule officials finally got notification that "Reagan's schedule would not permit him to attend."

On Friday night, WTC's Don Newbury gave the commencement address at Rule High School. Reagan couldn't come, but they did get a president of something.

Newbury said something similar happened a few years ago. The Rule chamber of commerce invited him to speak at the annual banquet. Upon arriving, he found he was not the first choice. President Nixon had already declined the invitation to speak.

A nearby graduation speaker reminded seniors that since they're finally leaving the nest, they each owe their parents $240,000 for services rendered.

Revealing he had learned his economics lesson, a grad inquired of his dad, "Can you take my check and hold it a few years."

Centennial Year Footnotes: In 1945 12 members of the Pyron High School senior class spent the weekend fishing in Christoval. They were Elvira Hess, Naomi Wells, Gilly Hale, Bobbie Harmon, James Lauw, Alma Faye Manning, Virginia Robertson, Cortez Williams, Joe Roemisch, LaVerne Gilmore, Jean Schoppa and Stella Mae Light.

Ask Us

Q. — How does Snyder High School plan to spend the $10,000 granted by the Rockefeller Foundation?

A. — School officials said Friday that this is still to be determined. The guidelines are that it must be spent to support the fine arts program and that the entire student body must benefit. One consideration is to place the money in some type of sustaining program rather than a one-time purchase.

Local

Beneficial rain visits area

Much needed rainfall briefly settled in the Snyder area Friday afternoon and evening.

Snyder received .65 of an inch of rain Friday night, upping the year's total to 1.54 inches.

The Clairemont area reported 1½ inches moisture.

Hermleigh received ½ inch rain Friday afternoon and another .7 was recorded that night.

Another ¼ inch of rain was reported south of Lake Thomas.

Ira received .45 of an inch of moisture and Fluvanna received 1.10 inches of rain

Motorcycle mishap Friday

A Snyder motorcyclist was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital around 2 p.m. Friday for treatment of injuries sustained in an accident.

Weldon Marvin Key of Snyder reportedly suffered numerous abrasions and lacerations.

According to Department of Public Safety troopers, he was riding a late model Honda cycle on Farm Road 1609 about 4.5 miles southwest of Snyder.

Officers say he had to "lay" the bike down to avoid collision with a 1982 GMC pickup driven by Stephen Douglas Bickle of Snyder.

The Bickle vehicle was making a left turn onto a side road at the time of the mishap.

Consolidation due session

A meeting to discuss the proposed consolidation of the Hermleigh and Hobbs school districts is planned for 7 p.m. Monday in the Hermleigh High School auditorium.

School officials urge residents of the Hermleigh district to attend. Hobbs residents in Fisher County have been invited also.

Tea in honor of teacher

Elizabeth Brinner will be honored next Thursday with a retirement tea given by the North Elementary faculty.

It will be in the fellowship hall of Colonial Hill Baptist Church from 2 until 4 p.m.

Planting date is Monday

The uniform planting date set by members of the Scurry County Cotton Producers Association is Monday — May 21.

County farmers are asked to comply with the date to insure an emergence of cotton late enough in the summer to curtail the boll weevil population.

SCOOP meeting set Sunday

SCOOP (Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People) will meet at 3 p.m. Sunday at the First Christian Church. The meeting is open to the public and anyone interested in helping establish Friendship Home are invited to attend.

Ralph Kanter, recently hired as SCOOP's consultant, will also be available to answer questions regarding the organization.

Friendship Home will be a shelter for abused and neglected girls.

Grand jury will re-indict

A special grand jury session has been called Monday in 132nd District Court.

District Judge Wayland G. Holt said the grand jury which met May 7 has been recalled to reconsider three indictments previously returned.

Errors in the wording of those indictments require that the cases be brought before the grand jury for reindictment. The error was caused by a recent change in Texas law, he said.

In addition, District Attorney Pete Greene said that two felony cases filed since May 7 will be presented to the panel for possible indictment.

Jurors need not appear

A district court jury called for Monday has been cancelled.

132nd District Court officials note that those summoned need not appear.

Benign growth found

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors discovered a small polyp in President Reagan's large intestine during a physical examination, but the growth was not cancerous and physicians have not decided whether to remove it.

The polyp was found Friday during the course of the president's physical at Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said. He said the growth has not caused any discomfort to the president.

Polyps in the lower intestine are not uncommon and often appear with advancing age. But to make sure the 73-year-old Reagan did not have colon cancer, the Navy physicians removed part of the abnormal growth and performed a biopsy, which is a microscopic examination of the tissue.

The tests showed it was benign, Speakes said.

Admission forms are needed now

Students planning to enroll at Western Texas College for the first time in the summer session starting May 30 are encouraged to complete admissions forms this week.

Having a completed admissions form on record will simplify registration on May 29, Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services, points out. The forms are available in his office in the administration building.

Information from the admissions form is stored in the computer and persons who have previously enrolled will not need to repeat the process.

Students planning to enroll under the Early Admissions program for high school seniors are asked to bring their Early Admissions form.

Under the summer schedule now in effect, the Student Service office is open from 7 a.m. to noon and 1-6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, Thursday hours are 7-12 and 1-5. For additional inofrmation, students can call the college at 573-8511.

Cosmetology interviews set June 1

Anyone interested in enrolling in the cosmetology class starting in September at Western Texas College are to meet with the instructor, Judy Border, for personal interviews on June 1.

The interviews will be conducted in the cosemtology lab on the east end of the campus from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and all interviews will be scheduled on June 1.

Cosmetology students receive 1,580 hours of instruction in a 12-month period. Upon satisfactory completion of the training, students may take State Board of cosmetology examinations for licensing.

For more information call Border at 573-8511, ext. 267. Her office is open Tuesday through Friday.

WHAT NOT TO DO ON YOUR VACATION

It seems that with the "good and affluent life" has come a need to outdo, outdistance and outvacation not only the neighbors, but also the previous family holiday. And so, every year, millions of Americans take to the highways and airways determined to cram as much into as short a period as possible. In doing so, they are not using good judgment or maximizing the potential of truly enjoying their vacations.

What it all boils down to is we have sought a good life with more leisure, but most people just don't know how to handle it when they get it. We travel too far; we run too hard; we eat too much; we play too vigorously. We overindulge ourselves in every category of activity and very often find ourselves nursing an upset stomach, a strained back, head and body pains, or some much more serious health problems.

Doctors of chiropractic can tell you about many of the illnesses that are brought on by vacation activities, because they have treated all of them from the upset stomach that came from eating a strange food to the back strain that came from lifting the twelve bags brought by six persons. So the American Chiropractic Association has compiled a list of DON'TS.

(1) Don't try to cram too much into your vacation.

(2) Don't try to drive too far in a single day.

(3) Don't eat junk foods. Don't skip meals; don't overeat.

(4) Don't rush.

(5) Don't miss your sleep.

(6) Don't try to do things that you are not in physical shape to do.

(7) Don't take too much luggage.

(8) Don't be the "workhorse" for the whole family.

(9) Don't sit in the same position for a long time.

(10) Don't get too much sun.

In spite of these warnings, on your next vacation you will probably overeat, undersleep, overindulge, keep long hours, push yourself, lift too much, and get into strained positions . . . mainly because you're human and you're going to try to keep up with the crowd.

So here's the most important advice of all. It pertains to what you should do.

When you get back from that glorious vacation . . . and periodically thereafter . . . visit your family doctor of chiropractic for a spinal examination.

First Baptist Church sets 'Celebrate Life'

A group of about 40 young adults will present "Celebrate Life," a popular Christian musical-drama at First Baptist Church on Sunday and Monday nights.

"Celebrate Life" is probably the most well-known of all contemporary Christian musicals. Written about 10 years ago by Buryl Red and Ragan Courtney, it has stood the test of time and is still being widely performed.

Many of the cast members for this presentation were in high school when the church presented the musical 20 years ago.

Playing the lead roles of the four disciples are Bobby Wells, Matthew; Rich Hopper, Mark; Mike Dennis, Luke; and Terry Bowden, John.

Soloists for the production are: Bowden, Kay Hopper, Steve Miller, Paula Bowden and Jim Patrick.

The musical will be presented on Sunday evening at 7 p.m. and again on Monday evening at 8 p.m.

Actress says 'perservere'

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Award-winning actress Helen Hayes told graduates of a New Jersey arts school that they must perserveer in the face of great odds in order to succeed as thespians.

"Even if you don't make it as an actor, it's an act of courage to try," said Ms. Hayes, who was presented with the du Cre School of the Arts' Humanitarian Award at the institute's 57th annual commencement Thursday.

The 83-year-old actress also offered a sharply negative opinion of the state of the theater today.

"I know I shouldn't sound like an old fogey, but theater is not the way it used to be," she said. "There's too much difficulty with economics. Playwrights are not free to write with charm and excitement. They have to write a play with a small cast or small set or no set. There are so many limitations."

I love reading those stories on how much it costs to raise a child.

A couple of years ago, it was something in excess of $100,000 to nurture a child from infancy to age 18, give or take a few cases of catsup. By the time my kids were 11, they had blown their entire lifetime budget on pizza.

We were in a panic. We still had two overbites, one astigmatism, a set of tonsils, 37 pairs of Adidas, and seven months of May to go.

For the overbites and medical bills we could borrow on our insurance, and I could put off my operation for the Adidas, but the seven months of May, multiplied by three children, was scary.

If you don't know about the month of May, it's because you're not a parent. Everyone I know lives in dread of the month. It's a time when your children wake up in the morning with their hands outstretched and every sentence is prefaced by "I need."

The education that you thought was free back in September turns on you. "I need $12 for a book I lost." "I need $6 for a bus for the baseball playoffs." "I need $3 for a present for Miss Weems who is retiring." "I need your gas card and your car to drive to a party." "I need $40 to sand a desk that someone who looks like me put my name on."

The kid who dressed like a wino for 12 years suddenly has a social life which requires a wardrobe. "I need a $12 necktie for senior dress-up day." "I need a pair of hard shoes for the class picture even though I'm in the row." "I need a dress for awards day."

Parents who endure the last May of their fiscal responsibility to their child should be eligible for disaster relief. It's the senior send-off. "I need a car of my own to show everyone my parents love me." "I need a $120 suit to wear under a graduation gown." "I need $30 for a yearbook." "I need $60 for a class ring." "I need $70 to go to dinner before the prom." "I need rental fees for my tux." "I need money for flowers."

And just when a parent thinks it's safe to write a check again, their offspring announces, "I'm going to college and become a doctor."

Roughly that amounts to one car, a wife (or husband), a small unplanned baby, a modest allowance, and ... six more months of May.

Air controllers lose in appeals court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air traffic controllers who were fired during an illegal strike three years ago have lost a critical round in their legal battle to get their jobs back.

A panel of judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit on Friday upheld the dismissals in 10 cases that reflected essentially all the arguments advanced by the hundreds of controllers who have filed appeals with the court.

"There is no basis whatsoever for ... (the) claim that it was improper for the government to adopt a uniform policy of removing each employee whose participation in the illegal strike was proven," concluded Chief Judge Howard Markey, writing for the panel of five judges.

About 11,400 air traffic controllers working for the Federal Aviation Administration were dismissed in August 1981 when they refused to return to work after launching a strike. Government employees by law are prohibited from striking.

After unfavorable rulings by the Merit System Protection Board, about 2,500 of the controllers appealed their cases to the federal courts.

Dispatcher would not send aid

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman testified she was raped by a man who had been pounding on her door, shortly after a Harris County sheriff's dispatcher explained she could not send help unless the attacker was in the victim's residence.

The 24-year-old victim testified Friday that Terry L. Guidry broke down the door and raped her, telling her he had killed before. She said Guidry took money from her purse before leaving, Assistant District Attorney Glenn Gotschall said.

Guidry, a 23-year-old mechanic, was convicted in state district court Friday of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit sexual assault and sentenced to 50 years in prison.

At the time of the assault, Guidry was free on bond on a murder charge filed in the June 11, 1983, shooting death of Tommy F. Smith, 19. Investigators said Smith was shot after he was found talking with Guidry's estranged wife.

His trial on that charge is pending.

Gotschall said a female sheriff's dispatcher told the woman no officer could be sent unless the man was in her apartment. He said the assault occurred between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. Jan. 26 at the woman's apartment in northwest Harris County.

He said the woman testified that she had met Guidry four years earlier when they worked at the same company — she as a clerk and he as a mechanic.

As Guidry tried to break in, Gotschall said, the woman called Guidry's employer to ask why the man was there; her apartment security guard, who asked if the problem was a domestic quarrel; and her cousin, who told her not to open the door.

She also tried to call her mother, but could not reach her, Gotschall said.

Gotschall said investigators were unable to obtain the dispatch tapes because they had been erased. He said there was "nothing sinister" about the erasure.

Exhibit to continue at museum

The Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College will continue a photographic exhibit titled "Out of the Forties" through May 25, Eunice Irwin, director of museums, has announced.

The exhibit is made up of photographs taken in Texas from 1943-50, most of them in small towns and rural areas. The 114 photographs of Texas were culled from more than 6,000 made as part of a public relations project by Standard Oil of New Jersey. The exhibit is made available by the Amon Carter Museum of Fort Worth.

Photographs in the Trans-Pecos area of West Texas will remain on display in the Diamond M Mumseum at 909 25th Street though today (Sunday).

Sunday hours in both the Scurry County and the Diamond M museums are 1-4 p.m. The Scurry County Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Diamond M Museum is closed on Monday and open from 10-4 Tuesday through Friday and 1-4 p.m. on Saturday. There is no charge for admission at either museum.

WTC summer courses named

The following classes will be offered at Western Texas College this summer. Registration will be held May 29.

Computer Applications

Computer Applications (CS 238) will be offered at two meeting times during the summer classes at Western Texas College to better accomodate different student groups.

One class will meet from 1-5 p.m. on Thursdays and the other will meet from 6-10 p.m. on Tuesdays. Jo Ann Pylant will be the instructor.

Computer Applications is designed for non-computer science majors and includes a brief survey of programming microcomputers such as the Apple and TRS 80. A survey of available software and the use of this software will also be presented. Finally, topics and projects are selected to give the student actual experience in the use of software with the computer.

For additional information call 573-8910.

Real Estate

Real Estate 131, a required course for all persons seeking a real estate license, will be offered in evening classes this summer at Western Texas College.

Classes will meet from 6-10:10 p.m. on Mondays with Pat Cornett as instructor. The course includes an overview of the total real estate industry, current market trends and real estate terminology.

For more information call 573-8511. Ask for Bill Halbert.

Chemistry

An introductory course in chemistry will begin May 30.

The course is Fundamentals of Chemistry (CHM 141) and is designed to meet requirements for landscaping, vocational nursing, associate degree in nursing, agriculture and non-science majors.

Classes will meet from 8:20-9:35 a.m. Monday through Thursday. Labs will follow from 9:40-10:55 a.m. each day. John McRae will be the instructor.

Astronomy

An introductory course in astronomy will be offered for evening students.

"We will be using science fiction films and video tapes, NASA films, and handouts as course materials," Dr. Shell Hillis, instructor, said. "We will study astronomical features such as constellations, stars, and galaxies. Theories of cosmology and time and life in the universe will be discussed. The lab for this course is modular and will be individualized.

Classes will meet from 8-10:10 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. For more information contact Hillis.

Microbiology

Microbiology, which is required for biology and pre-professional health majors, will be offered in evening classes.

Classes will meet from 6-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Labs will follow from 8-10:10 p.m. Dr. Shell Hillis will be the instructor.

Microbiology 247 is the introductory course of morphology, physiology, and taxonomy of representative groups of microorganisms. Topics of discussion include pathogenesis, disinfection and sanitation.

Biology

Two biology courses have been scheduled.

Principles of Biology I (BIO 145) will meet Monday through Thursday mornings from 8:20-9:35 with labs to follow from 9:40-10:55. Dr. Shell Hillis will teach the course, which is an introduction to biology and levels of organization with emphasis on the unity and diversity of animals.

Human Anatomy and Physiology I (BIO 241) is a study of human form and function. Lectures and lab work include materials from the subcellular to the organismal levels. This course meets the requirement for biology and pre-professional health majors. Classes meet from 6-8 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays with labs to follow from 8-20 p.m.

Each course requires a $10 lab fee.

Nutrition/ Food Chemistry

Nutrition and food chemistry will be studied in Chemistry 233.

"Americans are bombarded with information about nutrition," says John McRae, instructor. "Some of this information is scientifically sound, but much of it is half true, misleading or downright false. Our course is designed to correct misinformation concerning nutrition and meets requirements for pre-professional health majors and other degree plans requiring nutrition."

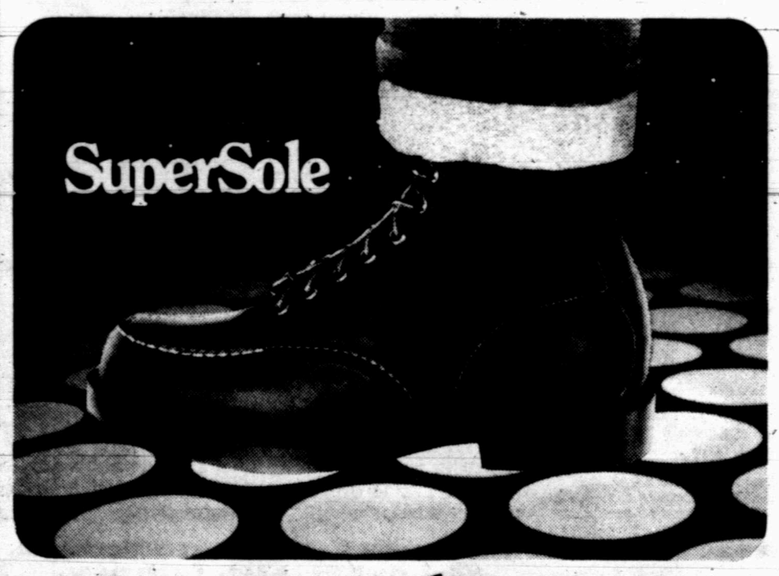

The course does not require a lab or prerequisites. Classes meet from 6-10:10 p.m. on Wednesday nights.

Canyon takes series...

Tigers play tough, but fall 7-5

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

CANYON -- Ron Bostic's three-run homer in the fourth inning provided the winning run as Canyon defeated Snyder 7-5 in Game Two of their best-of-three series here Friday, giving the Eagles a two-game sweep and the bi-district championship.

Snyder provided all of the action over the final three innings, but could never get the key hit that would lift them back in contention. In all, it was a disappointing loss yet a fine season for the Tigers, who with only two veterans returning were picked fourth in District 2-4A this season.

"Guys, we had a good season and you went out fighting. You don't have anything to hang your heads about. We're just as proud of you as we were last year (when Snyder won the state championship)," said Coach Albert Lewis to his troops after the game. "I want to say thank you to all of you, and to you seniors, I wish you well, and to the rest of you, we'll get back after it next year."

After trailing in the third inning, Snyder grabbed a 3-2 lead in the top of the fourth. Canyon came back to tie the game on a single from Lynn Vanlandingham in the bottom of the stanza, after Tate Eldridge had singled and Danny Byrd had reached on an error. Next up Bostic then drove righthander Paul Tate's pitch over the right field fence to put the hosts up 6-3. Clint Olsen and Terry Nix sandwiched singles between a fly out by Dale Holligan before Rick Mosier got a basehit for Canyon's final run of the game.

The rest of the action belonged to Snyder, which closed the gap to 7-5 in the fifth inning and threatened in both the sixth and seventh. Tate meanwhile kept the Eagles to only six batters over the next two innings.

Snyder rallied in the top of the fifth when Eddie McClure walked and pinch hitter Willie Greathouse singled. Leadoff batter Chad Peterson then slammed starting pitcher Bostic for a double to the fence, scoring both runners. Canyon brought in Elridge to pitch, and he immediately hit Chris Sanders with a throw, putting a second runner on base.

That was all for the Tigers however, as Charles Bollinger flew out to right field and designated hitter Jimmy Cain rapped into a double play.

With two outs in the sixth, Snyder put a pair on base as Jimmy Velasquez and McClure walked. Eldridge got Jay Mayo to line a shot directly to the third baseman, who stepped on the bag for the third out.

In the seventh, Snyder threatened again. Peterson opened with a single but Sanders and Bollinger both hit into fielder's choices. Cain then delivered another single and Snyder had runners at the corners.

Canyon elected to bring in top pitcher Holligan to face Norman Malone at that point. In a bizarre play, Malone slapped Holligan's toss back toward the mound and it hit the pitcher in the foot. Holligan managed to pick up the ball and fire it to first-sacker Vanlandingham for the final out.

"If he hadn't booted the ball, it would have gone right up the middle for a clean hit," said Coach Lewis.

"Well, it was a lot better game than it was the other day. Our bench did a good job and we hit the ball well. We don't have any excuses. Canyon has a fine team. They should do well (in the playoffs)."

Canyon had taken a 2-0 advantage in the third inning when Byrd doubled and Vanlandingham singled him home. Two outs later, Nix knocked in Olsen who had reached on a fielder's choice and gone to second on a single from Holligan.

Snyder took the lead in the fourth, 3-2. Sanders reached after Bostic clipped him with a pitch and Bollinger drew a walk. Cain then singled to score Sanders, and Malone doubled to bring in Bollinger and Cain.

Bostic, 8-2, took winning pitcher honors on five hits, four strikeouts and two walks. Eldridge gave up two hits, struck out one and walked two. Holligan earned a save.

Tate 7-3, allowed 12 hits, struck out four and walked two. He gave up only five earned runs as Tiger outfielders over-ran several hits, allowing extra bases for the home team.

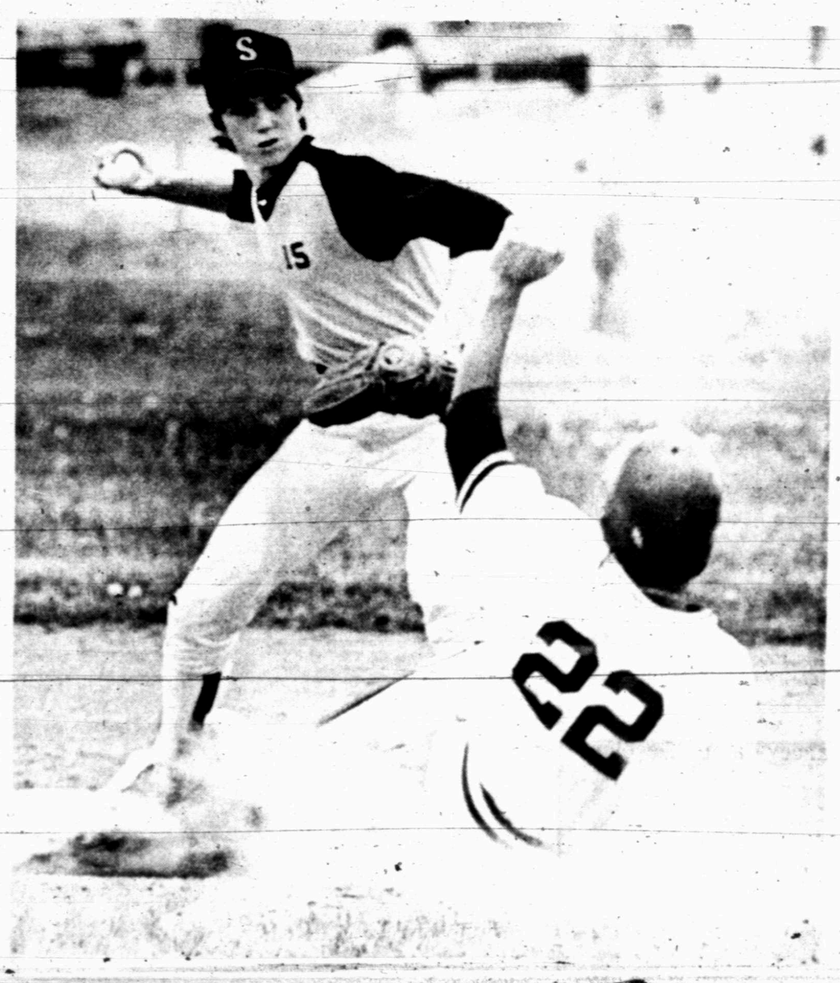

Peterson and Malone were both two-for-four with a couple of RBI apiece. Cain was also two-for-four with an RBI and

Ward slugs Rangers past Kansas City, 2-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Gary Ward, hitting .187 at game time, slugged a two-run homer in the eighth inning Friday night to lift the Texas Rangers to a 2-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals and spoil the return of George Brett and Willie Wilson.

Loser Bud Black, 4-3, took a 1-0 lead into the eighth, but Billy Sample singled with one out and Ward followed with his fourth home run.

Brett, who suffered a knee injury in the final spring training game, doubled in his first at-bat of the year and scored on Hal McRae's single to give Black a 1-0 lead. Brett went 3-for-3 in his return to the lineup.

A crowd of 27,573, the largest of the season in Kansas City, gave Wilson a standing ovation. The all-star center fielder was reinstated on Wednesday from a suspension imposed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for drug involvement. He had made his first appearance of the season in Chicago on Wednesday.

Brett doubled off Dave Stewart, 2-6, with two out in the first and raced home on McRae's bloop single.

A controversial call at second base in the fourth inning cost the Rangers at least one run and got Texas Manager Doug Rader ejected for arguing. With one out, the Rangers loaded the bases on singles by Buddy Bell and Larry Parrish and a walk to Dave Hostetler.

Ned Yost then grounded to second baseman Frank White, who tossed to shortstop U.L. Washington covering second. Washington's peg to first for the double play was late, as Bell scored. But umpire Rich Garcia signaled a double play, saying that Hostetler had left the basepath sliding into second in an attempt to disrupt Washington's throw.

Stewart pitched seven innings for the victory whle Dave Schmidt worked the last two innings for his first save.

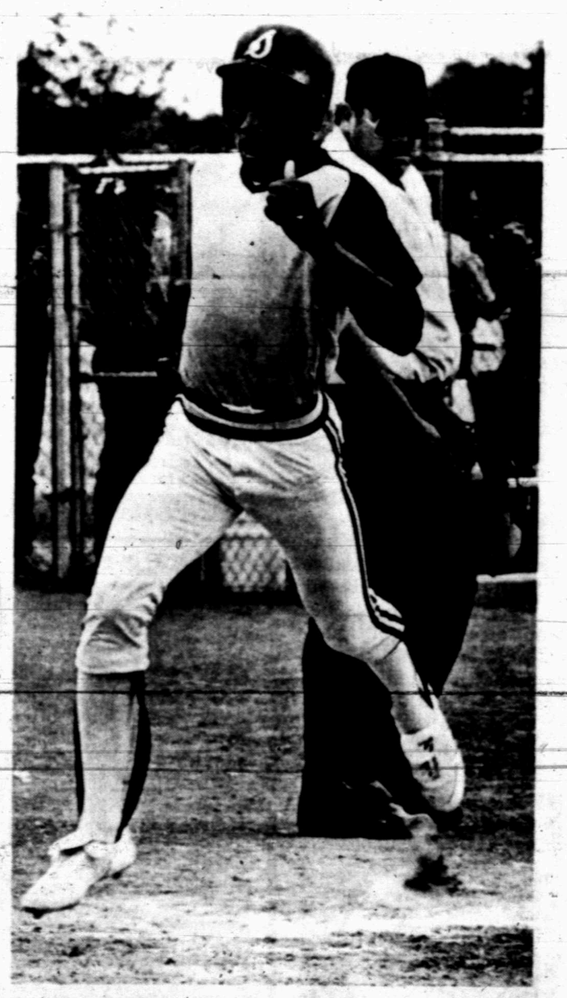

Chicago 7, Houston 6

Gary Woods drew a walk from Frank DiPino with the bases loaded to force in the winning run to climax a two-run ninth-inning rally that gave the Chicago the win.

After Houston had broken a 5-5 tie on Enos Cabell's solo homer off Tim Stoddard with two out in the top of the ninth, Gary Matthews led off with a wind-blown fly down the right-field line that fell in for a double. Stoddard, 3-0, eventually became the winner.

Dave Smith, 0-1, took the loss.

Kuzushi is a Judo term which means to break an opponent's balance.

COMING HOME -- Pinch hitter Willie Greathouse slapped a single in his only time at bat Friday, then came home on a double from Chad Peterson. (SDN Staff Photo)

Going for 8th title...

Dropped baton hurts Odessa

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - Moments after the baton had been dropped between Chris Kent and David Payne in a qualifying 400-meter relay race at the national junior college track and field championships, a dejected group of Odessa College athletes met under the goalposts at Angelo State University's stadium.

"That hurt us a whole bunch," Odessa College sprinter Damon Polk said after Friday night's accident.

"We had a team meeting under the goalposts afterward and said we've won seven consecutive national titles and we're still after that eighth."

The night's activities ended with OC in third place behind Ricks College (Idaho) and Wharton County Junior College (Texas) going into tonight's (Saturday) third and final evening of the national meet.

Ricks leads with 44 points, followed by Wharton with 33 points and Odessa College and Central Arizona tied for third at 27 points.

Odessa College has won the last four indoor championships and the 1982, 1982 and 1983 outdoor crowns.

In women's competition, two-time defending National Junior College Athletic Association champion Eastern Oklahoma grabbed the lead despite Ricks' upset victory in the 3,200-meter relay.

Eastern had 53 points, followed by Mesa (Ariz.) Community College with 49 and Ricks with 41.

Ricks won the women's 3,200-meter relay in 8:56.49, a meet record, shattering the old mark of 9:09.21, set two years ago by Mt. Hood (Oregon). Eastern Oklahoma also eclipsed the old mark, finishing in 9:07.30.

Wharton's men got first-place finishes from Marvin Lewis in the shot put, with a heave of 59 feet 1½ inches, and from Bobby Bankston in the 100-meter dash, whose time of 10.31 seconds beat Odessa College's Clark Waddell by .09 of a second.

Southwestern Michigan's Keith Talley was a double winner. He captured the 110-meter hurdles in 13.5 seconds and leaped a NJCAA record 26 feet 1½ inches to win the long jump, 1½ inches past the old record set a decade ago.

Harry Reynolds of Butler County (Kansas) Community College set a record of 45.47 seconds in the 400-meter dash, which he won. The old mark of 45.91 seconds in 1979. In the 800, Sante Fe (Florida) Community College's Octavius Clark had the best heat time with a 1:49.08.

Spradling inks coaching pact

Phil Spradling, named Thursday night as the new men's basketball coach at Western Texas College, signed a one-year contract Friday.

His annual salary will be $25,000 for coaching basketball, as well as teaching both lecture and activity classes in physical education.

Oilers 'deep threat'

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers are counting heavily on two new players - speedy wide receiver Butch Johnson and rifle-armed quarterback Warren Moon - to reinforce an offense which ranked 24th among 28 teams in the league last season.

The club's offensive coordinator Kay Dalton hopes the two bring back the bomb, a play missing from the Oilers' repertoire in recent years.

"One thing that we weren't able to do last season that we wanted to do was to score from far out," Dalton said during a break in the Oilers' minicamp. "It wasn't because we didn't try, though. We controlled the ball pretty well at times.

"We moved the ball pretty well. But we didn't finish off enough drives. This season, I believe things will be different," said Dalton.

The Oilers, who won only two games last season, averaged 306.3 yards per game, fifth from the bottom in the National Football League.

"There's no question that we can be quite a bit better than last year," Dalton said. "One reason we whould be better is that the players have a year of experience with our system. That makes an awful big difference."

Moon, who signed a five-year $5.5 million contract with the Oilers during the off-season, is learning the system quickly, Dalton said.

"He's started to get a visualization of what's in front of him," Dalton said. "He's got excellent skills, ther's no doubt about that. But he's picked up the other stuff faster than I thought he would."

Moon has worked out almost daily at the Oilers practice facility and has been an eager participant in both Oilers minicamps.

"In our system, one of the key parts is for the quarterbacks to throw on rhythm," Dalton said. "Warren's getting better rhythm every day. The key to throwing on rhythm is experience, the experience of throwing to the same receivers and to know those receivers."

Tim Smith won a starting job as a wide receiver last year with 83 catches, tops for a wide receiver in the NFL.

SCOOP tourney set

There will be a men's slowpitch softball tournament to benefit SCOOP on June 8-9-10 at Winston Field here.

Deadline to enter the double elimination tourney is Wednesday, June 6, at 9 p.m.

Entry fee is $85.

Cowboy ownership officially transferred

DALLAS (AP) - The 24-year ownership of Dallas Cowboys' founder Clint Murchison Jr. came to an end when a consortium headed by businessman H.R. "Bum" Bright officially assumed control of the National Football League club.

During a transaction at the Republic National Bank on Friday, the team's ownership was transferred to the Bright group by Murchison; the estate of Murchison's late brother, John; Toddie Lee Wynne and Fritz Hawn.

NFL owners approved the sale during their winter meeting in Honolulu on March 19. Although club officials have refused to divulge the sale price, various reports have placed it at near $80 million.

Bright will be general partner of the new 10-member limited partnership, while Tex Schramm, the club's president and general manager, will assume the duties of managing partner.

Bright has emphasized the Schramm will continue running the club, as he has for the past 24 years.

"We are all very pleased that the transaction is completed," Bright said. "Now we will move forward and do our best to give the fans what they've come to expect from the Cowboys. The team will continue to operate in the same excellent manner in which it has operated in the past."

Other members of Bright's group include L. Brad Camp, president of Yancey-Camp Development Co., Dallas; Craig Hall, chairman of the Hall Real Estate Group, Dallas; J.L. Huffines Jr., board chairman of Bank of Dallas; Ed A. Smith Jr., president of Alamo Barge Lines Inc., Houston; Arthur Temple, of Diboll, chairman of the board, Exeter Investment Co.; George M. Underwood Jr. and George Underwood III, Dallas real estate and land developers; and S. Foster Yancey Jr., president of Yancey-Camp Management Co. of Dallas.

Border Peso rates jump

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Soaring peso exchange rates along the border are having a "snowball effect" on already-widespread fear that the Mexican government soon may devalue its currency again, U.S. bankers and merchants say.

"A snowball effect has been building up because of the fear, then when the rates increased so did the fear."

In Mexico City, government officials said Friday night that the Mexican government has made no official statement about any peso devaluation.

"We have said nothing officially in Mexico or the States," said a government spokeswoman who spoke on the condition that she not be identified.

State National, one of El Paso's largest banks, was buying pesos at 200 to the dollar Friday and selling at 194 to the dollar.

Hit and run among city mishaps Friday

City police investigated a hit-and-run accident in the 3800 Block of Noble Dr. at 4:54 p.m. Friday.

It was one of four minor traffic accidents reported here during the day.

According to reports, a parked 1976 Chevrolet owned by Ross Blanchard of 1809 38th St. was struck by an unidentified vehicle.

The day's second minor mishap was reported at the intersection of 37th St. and Houston Ave. at 6:20 p.m.

Involved in this two-vehicle accident were a 1976 Buick driven by Glenda Freeman of 2214 43rd St. and a 1984 Ford driven by Melinda Whittenburg of Rt. 1, Snyder.

Friday's third accident at 8:29 p.m. was at the intersection of 25th St. and College Ave. It involved a 1982 Pontiac driven by Russell Kesner of Ira and a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Jeffert Gilbert of Rt. 3, Snyder.

The day's last accident was reported at 1:05 a.m. at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. I.

Involved in it were a 1978 Ford driven by Leo Michael Martin of 215 25th St. and a 1979 Ford driven by Jerrell Lee Hodges of 2503 ½ 27th St.

No injuries were reported in any of Friday's mishaps.

Bike found by officers

Snyder police recovered Friday a bicycle reported stolen Wednesday here.

Officers received a report that a bicycle had apparently been abandoned behind the Townhouse Apartments. Officers identified the bike as one reported stolen from the Miguel Martinez residence Wednesday.

In other action, three suspects were jailed for public intoxication and two for DWI Friday night.

Lucas charged with 3 slayings in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor says it's "sort of scary" that self-proclaimed mass killer Henry Lee Lucas was able to remember details of slayings that took place as far back as 13 years ago.

Lucas was charged Friday with two counts of capital murder and one count of murder after taking law officers back to the scenes of the stabbing deaths of three Lubbock women, said Lubbock County District Attorney Jim Bob Darnell.

"It's sort of scary that anyone can recall in vivid detail the circumstances that happened 14 years ago and, not being familiar with the community, being able to direct people to the location 10 to 15 years later," Darnell said.

Lucas is charged with murder in the 1971 stabbing death of Naomi Miller Martin and capital murder in the 1975 slaying of Deborah Sue Williamson and the 1976 killing of Elizabeth Price.

On Thursday, Lucas pointed out the murder scenes and provided details and information only the killer could have known, Darnell said.

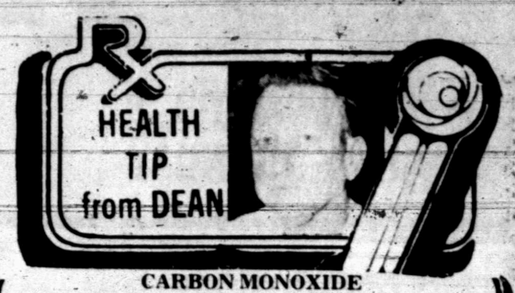

Mrs. Martin, 54, clad in pink pajamas and a blue housecoat, was found dead on her living room couch Feb. 1, 1971. She had been stabbed 25 times.

Ms. Williamson, 18, was found at her south Lubbock home with 17 stab wounds on Aug. 25, 1975 — three days after Lucas was released from a Michigan prison after serving four years for attempted kidnapping of a young girl.

Mrs. Price, 44, was found April 10, 1976 in the airport parking ticket booth where she worked. She was partially clad and had 20 stab wounds in her chest.

A 1953 typhoon killed 1,300 persons in Japan and Vietnam.

CARBON MONOXIDE

Lethal carbon monoxide is produced during the incomplete burning of fuels like wood, gasoline, oil, natural gas, coal or charcoal when they are burned in air that lacks enough oxygen for complete combustion. When no flame is produced, as with charcoal, large amounts of carbon monoxide are produced. Never burn charcoal in an enclosed trailer, tent or room. All fires should be thoroughly vented to provide ample oxygen and to carry off lethal fumes.

Restaurant management...

WTC schedules June 2 seminar

Western Texas College has scheduled a Restaurant Management Seminar from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on June 2.

Conducting the seminar will be Dr. David K. Hayes, director of Restaurant, Hotel and Institutional Management at Texas Tech University.

Topics to be discussed include cost control in hospitality operations, menu analysis, and instilling a service attitude in employees.

Cost control will cover food cost, reducing food loss due to waste and theft, labor costs, measures of labor productivity, the myth of labor cost percentage and inflation free measures of productivity.

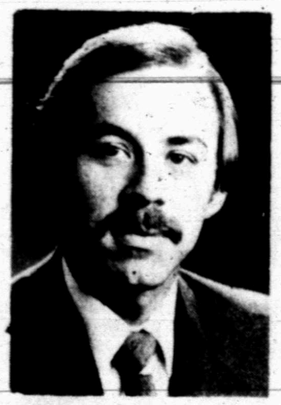

Menu analysis will help identify profitable menu items, pricing for profit, a menu analysis model and menu copy for improved sales.

The importance of a service attitude in employees, how employees can learn a service attitude and motivational techniques for service personnel and dealing with errors in service and food will be covered in the final session of the day.

Persons interested in additional information about the seminar or who wish to enroll are to call the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, ext. 240. The office is closed on Fridays under the summer schedule.

Dr. Hayes holds the bachelor of science degree, the master of science degree and the Ph.D from Purdue University. He joined the faculty at Tech in January, 1983. He wrote "Management and Supervision," a workbook for a Continuing Education correspondence course and has recently completed "Introduction of Hospitality Management and Organization."

He is currently negotiating for publication of the book. He has taught college courses including advanced food service management, quantity food production, speciality food service, personnel management for restaurants, hotels and institutions.

Duarte heading for Washington

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President-elect Jose Napoleon Duarte wrapped up a three-nation Central American trip and prepared to go today to Washington for a meeting with President Reagan.

President Reagan on Friday characterized Duarte as "a man who has dedicated his life to achieving democracy and reform for his homeland." Duarte, a moderate Christian Democrat was elected May 6. He and Reagan were scheduled to meet on Monday.

Duarte returned to El Salvador on Friday from Costa Rica, where he conferred with President Luis Alberto Monge. On Thursday, he met with the heads of state in Honduras and Guatemala.

Reagan's roving ambassador, Gen. Vernon Walters, arrived in San Salvador on Friday to meet with Duarte and offer him Reagan's congratulations. U.S. sources said Walters urged ultraconservative Roberto d'Aubuisson to accept his defeat by Duarte.

D'Aubuisson, of the Republican Nationalist Alliance, has accused the CIA of trying to ensure Duarte's victory and said there were irregularities in the presidential vote. Duarte received 53.6 percent of the vote; d'Aubuisson, 46.4 percent in the runoff election.

While in Costa Rica, Duarte said he would be willing to talk to the far right and the far left but added he "will never accept negotiations with rifles on the table." Leftist guerrillas have been waging a civil war for 4½ years against the U.S-backed Salvadoran government.

In other developments concerning Central American turmoil, the head of Nicaragua's leftist regime accused the United States of trying to draw Costa Rica into the region's conflicts. Costa Rica, which has no standing army, takes a neutral stand on the region's strife.

President Gerald Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev reached tentative agreement at a 1974 meeting in Vladivostok to limit the number of offensive strategic nuclear weapons.

Couple united in double ring ceremony

Billie Lee Owens and Brent Hayden Hibbitt were united in marriage on April 27 at the First Presbyterian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Stephen W. Smith of Snyder.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Owens and parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Valentine, all of Snyder.

A 15-branch candelabrum entwined with ming fern and white baby's breath formed the background. A large arrangement of white gladioli, purple statice, baby's breath, emerald leaves and ming fern was on the communion table with tall brass single candelabra on either side and a brass cross in the center.

Ming fern and glass votive cups and candles extended down the railing on either side of the altar area. Floral print lavender satin bows marked the family pews. A white lace covered memory candle decorated with lavender silk flowers was placed on a table covered with a white lace trimmed cloth.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father. Her formal length gown was of white chiffonet with a Victorian neckline embellished with Schiffli re-embroidered medallions. The off-the-shoulder yoke was trimmed with a wide ruffle of Wedgewood lace. Venise lace medallions embelished the ribbon lace bodice and the leg-o-mutton sleeves of ribbon lace were trimmed with white satin bows at the elbow. The A-line skirt was decorated with Venise lace medallions with a deep flounce of ribbon lace. The semi-cathedral train formed at the waist and was row on row of ribbon lace ruffles. Her matching Victorian hat was appliqued with Venise and ribbon lace with purple silk irises on one side and featured a veil trimmed in embroidered lace and a pouf of illusion.

The bride carried a bouquet of white butterfly orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and English ivy on a white lace Bible carried by her mother at her wedding. For something old she wore an antique cross encrusted with sapphires and pearls belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. W. F. Hargrove of El Paso. Something blue was her garter, something new was her bridal gown and something borrowed was her Bible. Pennies minted in the years of the couple's births were placed in her shoes.

Brenda Alexander of San Angelo, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Kim Harlin was maid of honor. They wore tea length gowns of white lace over lavender taffeta with yokes of white dotted net decorated with embroidered lace medallions and sashed with lavender taffeta. Their wide brimmed hats were lavender covered with a white lace ruffle and lavender silk flowers and lavender satin streamers in back. They carried bouquets of lavender and purple silk tiger lilies, miniature carnations, and baby's breath tied with floral satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Sherette Kimmel of Lubbock, Jill Kidd and Donna McGee. Their attire was identical to that of the honor attendants.

Tondya DeBusk of Lubbock was candlelighter. She wore a pale lavender silk blouse and pale lavender velvet straight skirt. Flower girl, Michell Peace of Big Spring, wore a lavender voile dress with rows of white lace and ruffles and lavender satin ribbons in her hair.

The groom wore a white Bill Blass tuxedo with white pleated shirt with wing tip collar and white satin ascot tie. His boutonniere was of purple stephanotis, ming fern and baby's breath.

Bryan Hibbitt, the groom's brother, was best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Allen Fletcher, Walley Holmsley, Craig Randolph, and Gerald James of Rotan. They wore pearl gray Bill Blass tuxedos, white pleated shirts with wing tip collars and gray satin bow ties. Their boutonnieres were white silk miniature roses, lavender baby's breath and ming fern.

Traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. Lynn Wormringer. She accompanied Fred McFarland as he sang "Through the Years," "What I Did for Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of silver gray chiffon with silver beading at the shoulders. Her corsage was of lavender silk flowers.

The groom's mother wore a street length dress of lavender chiffon and lace and a corsage of lavender silk flowers.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the church. The bride's table was covered with a floor length cloth of white lace over a lavender underskirt. Coffee and punch were served from a silver service and silver punch bowl. Nuts and mints were in silver dishes. Tall lavender tapers were held by antique crystal candleholders. The white three-tiered cake decorated with lavender confectionary flowers was made by Ida Mae Stark of Jacksboro. A hand decorated egg made by the groom's mother adorned with white doves and miniature white and purple flowers topped the cake.

The groom's table was covered with a floor length royal purple cloth with a cream crocheted lace table cover made by his grandmother. Coffee was served from a brass tea service. A brass bowl held purple and white grapes and melon around a glass bowl of strawberries. The chocolate cake was decorated with chocolate frosting and frosted confectionary nuts and berries, also made by Ms. Stark.

Belinda Bridges of Lubbock, sister of the groom, registered guests at a table covered with a white cloth trimmed in white eyelet.

Guests tables were covered with white cloths trimmed in white eyelet and centered with wine glasses holding lavender votive candles and floral print lavender ribbons and bows.

Stacy Reed, Sherry Mayes and Shauna Randolph served at the bride's and groom's tables. Members of the houseparty were Mmes. Roy Kidd, Dave Harlin Jr., Alvin Orr, Jimmy Hogan, Jerry Smith, Weldon Perry, Jim Anderson, Maurice Kelley, Barbara McGee and Virgie Tharp.

A rehearsal dinner hosted by the groom's parents was held at the Snyder Country Club April 26.

A bridal luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Jerry Smith on April 14. Hostesses were Mmes. Smith, Hogan, Orr, Kelley and Harlin.

The bride graduated from Snyder High School and Angelo State University with a degree in accounting. She is employed by Monte West, C.P.A. of Snyder. The groom graduated from Snyder High School and Western Texas College. He is employed by AAA Exterminating of Snyder.

After a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple will be at home in Snyder.

For going away, the bride wore a silk cream colored split skirt with matching jacket and sweater. The groom wore khaki pants and turquoise cotton shirt.

New system

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. (AP) — A new office building here is the first in the country to have a new lighting system that reduces electricity used for illumination by about 45 percent.

The system, installed in a Honeywell division here, uses sensors that detect changes in the level of light in a building. Fluorescent lights are automatically adjusted to give only the illumination needed.

The building is divided into inner areas, and outer areas which are especially affected by daylight. A modulating system lowers lamp output to correspond with increases in daylight, but if it gets cloudy or dark outdoors, the lights get brighter inside.

BEWARE OF INSECT DANGERS

Spring weather can mean danger for Texans who get bitten or stung by insects.

Insects cause a number of injuries to people each year when outdoor activities increase. The worst offenders are bees, wasps and yellow jackets. The greatest peril from insect/people encounters is allergic reactions. Insect bites kill at least nine times more Americans than do snake bites.

People have different reactions to insect venoms, and allergic reactions are classified by the severity of one's body reaction.

There are at least three levels of reactions insect bites and stings can cause:

--Slight reactions, including itching, inflammation of the skin or anxiety.

--Moderate reactions, including swelling, abdominal pain or nausea.

--Severe reactions, including difficulty in breathing or swelling, hoarseness or confusion.

Most severe would probably be shock reaction that causes a drop in blood pressure, collapse or unconsciousness. Moderate and severe reactions from an insect bite or sting are enough cause to see a doctor. Capture the offending insect if possible to help the doctor in providing treatment.

To reduce contacts with venomous insects, do not walk around in the yard barefooted; avoid wearing sweet smelling colognes or perfumes; keep ripened fruits, watermelons, soft drink cans or other sweet smelling materials covered when outdoors; and avoid mowing lawns or working in flower beds when bees or wasps are active. Insects are less active in the early morning hours.

Remain still if a stinging insect is near. Brush it off if it attacks but don't slap it to prevent a sting. If attacked by a swarm of wasps, yellow jackets, hornets or bees, leave the area immediately while protecting the face with hands and arms.

Among the variety of venoms produced by insects are these:

--Those producing blisters, caused by certain stinging caterpillars, centipedes and blister beetles.

--Those attacking the central nervous system, produced by scorpions, black widow spiders, bees, wasps, yellow jackets and hornets.

--Those destroying skin tissue, produced by fire ants, wheel bugs, brown recluse spiders, mites, scorpions, chiggers, bees, wasps, yellow jackets and hornets.

--Those preventing blood from clotting, caused by fleas, lice, mites, ticks, biting flies and true bugs.

DINNER FOR SIX

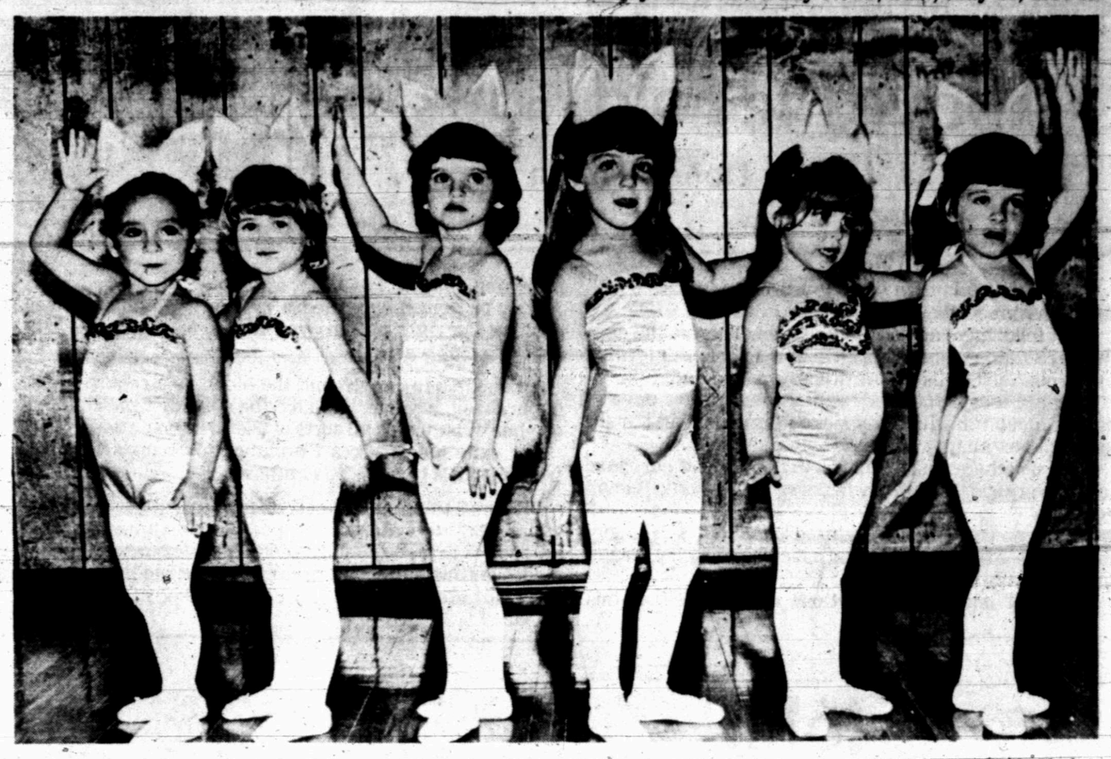

Meat & Vegetable Stew
Salad & Bread Tray
Banana Pastries & Coffee

BANANA PASTRIES

These may be new to you.

1 cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons butter
2½ tablespoons (about) cold water
3 large bananas, peeled and cut in half crosswise
Melted butter
1 tablespoon light brown sugar

Stir together the flour and salt; cut in the 6 tablespoons butter until particles are the size of peas. Gradually stir in water. Roll out dough into a 15- by 10-inch rectangle; cut into 5-inch squares. Put a banana half diagonally on each pastry square; brush bananas with melted butter and sprinkle with the brown sugar. Lap over ends of pastry toward center to cover banana and seal. Bake on a cookie sheet in a preheated 450-degree oven until golden — 12 to 15 minutes. Serve warm with a lemon sauce. Makes 6 servings.

RECITAL—These young dancers from the Elaine Lambert School of Dance will perform in the spring dance and gymnastics recital beginning at 3 p.m. on Sunday, May 20, in the Jerry Worsham Auditorium. By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Frank Stewart, in his book "Better Bridge" for the Advancing Player," has adopted a new approach, which is impossible for us to use. He shows the hand of the opening bidder and discusses the bidder's problem. In today's hand, your problem as opening bidder is whether to open one spade or one no-trump. You believe that one spade is the better opening. However, upon looking to your left, you see Bob Hamman (perhaps the best player in the world) and you decide to open one no-trump to make it hard for Bob. Your partner raises you to three no-trump and Bob leads the six of clubs, which you win with your king. You cash your king and queen of spades. East's jack falls under your queen.

Visions of sugarplums dance in your head. You lead your seven of hearts to dummy's nine and East's jack. Back comes a club. Hamman ducks and lets dummy's jack win. You cash your remaining three spades, discarding a diamond and the useless queen of clubs from dummy.

Now you lead your 10 of hearts and Bob plays low. Should you finesse? The answer is a resounding NO!

Bob should know every high card in your hand. If he held the king of hearts, he would surely have taken his ace of clubs to keep you from a possible seven. East must hold the heart king. You rise with your ace. East's king drops and you have at least a tie for top score.

Hamman, always a gentleman, will compliment you on your fine play.

For our birthday we were given one of those multi-function runner's watches.

Most folks have no doubt seen them. They're the ones that are made of black plastic and to the uninformed eye probably look like some dime store doo-dad.

In truth, they're not very expensive. But, we haven't had as much fun with a toy since Mom and Dad bought us a Prince Valiant sword and shield set in 1954.

If for no other reason, it's worth the price of purchase to see everyone else jump whenever your hourly "beep" goes off.

This beep can either be turned on or off, so the guy whose watch blares out during assembly is being forgetful or showing off.

It is just one of the functions or "modes" of this plaything.

They're generally called a runner's watch since by pushing the right buttons you can convert it into a lap counting stop watch.

No one has to run around the block as a requirement of purchase, however. And having a handy time-counter on your wrist yields all sorts of useful information.

For example, it takes 7 minutes, 45 seconds to drive from the SDN to the WTC campus.

It takes 5 mintues, 25 seconds to take a shower (that's water "on" to water "off") and it takes 2 minutes, 15 seconds to drive around the courthouse square (this includes getting caught at three of the four red lights).

It also takes 1 minute, 30 seconds to deposit a check at the bank drive-in window. This was partly our fault, however, since we forgot to endorse the durn thing.

Our new toy also has a countdown alarm system, which goes off after you've set a self-imposed time limit.

This one is great for the absent minded. It also comes in handy for getting out of long conversations. After the "BEEP!-BEEP!-BEEP!-BEEP!" you say, "Sorry, but I've got to be somewhere."

Another mode can be set for an entirely different time of day. We suppose this is for people who do business in widely different time zones or have kids living in Hawaii.

As a military touch, you can also convert both time modes into 24-hour rather than civilian time. This would have been handy about 12 years ago, but we've found no use for it recently.

We mentioned the watch's "beeper."

This, of course, turns it into an alarm clock. Another mode then lets you set the alarm for any time during a 24-hour period.

Our's is set for 2 a.m., when we dutifully get up every morning and take the four-year-old to the bathroom.

The alarm consists of a 12-note melody. At 2 a.m., we've never taken the time to for-sure figure it out, but we swear it sounds like "Love Me Tender" by Elvis Presley.

To our mind, a combination of two great entertainers.

A lot of folks think they would like to build an underground house, myself included. The potential saving in utility bills is enormous. Plus, underground houses offer the ultimate in physical security. And it's fashionable these days to dwell in an unconventional house.

Underground makes sense. Why build up and battle the elements, when you can dig in and let them work for you? It is not exactly a new idea. There were the cave dwellers of long, long ago; and, West Texas dugouts still linger in the memories of a few of the old-timers around here.

We did, and then we didn't. Why, when circumstances permit, have we opted for the exposed side of the surface? I'm going to tell you why. Underground sounds as simple and as back-to-basics as you can get. You probably thought the Rubic's Cube was going to be easy too.

The biggest problem is water. I know we don't get much of that around here. In fact I heard a little boy at the feed store ask his wise old grandfather, "What was rain like, grandpa?"

Still, when it does come, it usually comes and comes, until we pray for it to stop.

So much for wishful thinking. Let's get on with the nuts and bolts of building underground. The most ideal place is on a slope. You can have at least one exit above ground; ventilation problems are minimized; daylight doesn't have to come solely from skylights; and the structure will blend in with the terrain.

If the slope faces south, a solar capability can be incorporated. Drainage problems are less when you live in a slope.

What about drainage problems? Nobody likes a soggy roof. A soggy living room is worse. You must build high enough on the slope so that your front door does not become a lake after a big rain, or, provide expensive run-off systems.

When streets were laid out, the engineers didn't figure on idiots burrowing into the sides of hills. If you're into solar, you might note that all slopes don't run south to north.

What about flat sites? We have a lot of those around here. First, if you dig a hole in the ground and build a house in it, there will be over 100 dumptruck loads of dirt to be toted away for an average size house. And dig this. Such a house will displace over one million gallons of water. If the structure and its contents do not weigh more than this quantity of water, after a big rain, the house could FLOAT!

On a flat site, the usual method is to dig down a few feet and then pile the dirt on three sides of the house. Drainage is more complicated on a flat site. Your old friend gravity has turned on you. Are you higher than the existing sewer line? You can install pumps, but they are expensive and use a lot of what you moved under ground to save. I've also noticed that pumps seldom work in wet weather. What about power outages that often accompany even minor floods?

With a good tractor, you can create your own slopes to drain water away from the house, but neighbors often take a dim view of this.

Once the drainage problems are solved, you are still not home free. You need insulation, the expensive exterior kind. "Wait a minute," you say, "insulation? underground?" Yes. The top of your walls will be a different temperature than the bottom and condensation can result. So unless you always wanted to live in the dank, dark bowels of a cave, buy insulation.

If you use the cheaper interior insulation, walls must be framed inside the masonry shell of the house to accommodate it. This is like building a house inside a house. It is cheaper to use the expensive stuff.

And there is bad news for the lady of the house. Just like the terrain dictates where and which way the house sits, the permanent nature of wiring, plumbing, etc. makes redecorating rather inflexible. Appliances and the bigger pieces of furniture must go where they work best, not where you fancy they should be. I've never seen a woman yet who didn't want to rearrange the furniture every full moon.

You must know the future. Adding on is a major project, and resale can be a nightmare. Since the house will be specifically designed for your family, an identical family must be found if you need to sell. Is there another family just like yours?

Digging a hole in the ground and crawling in isn't as easy as it sounds.

To the editor,

I am a student at Snyder High and I am very proud of my school. I wouldn't give SHS up to any other school around. I love the building, most of the students get along, we are very rich in our abilities, and our faculty is one of the best in Texas! We are a school of CHAMPIONS! Even though our school seems flawless, I am very disturbed with one situation...the system.

I'm sure the public of Scurry County are not aware of what is going on between some of our

SUNDAY
May 13

Snyder experienced another near $1 million new construction month during April, it was reported Sunday.

The figure keeps the building year's seven month total just past the $6 million mark.

In addition, the 1983-84 building year is already three-times greater than the same period last year, city officials say.

Sunday, officials with the newly opened American State Bank of Snyder name Scurry County native Joe Jackson as the new executive vice president.

It marked the first new bank officer appointment for the facility.

MONDAY
May 14

Scurry County Republicans have approved a mixed bag of resolutions, ranging from opposition to a nuclear freeze to calling for the resignation of Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, it was reported Monday.

The action was part of county convention proceedings conducted Saturday.

TUESDAY
May 15

A new pay increase approach for 1984-85 was requested Monday by representatives for the Western Texas College faculty.

The staff seeks an across-the-board pay hike of $2,396 per year.

A decision for a new administrative offices computer system and a discussion related to adding a separate air-conditioning system for the Fine Arts Theatre on campus were offered Monday by the WTC college board.

The computer system was approved at a cost of $77,500.

Officials at the Hermleigh and Hobbs independent school districts conducted a meeting Tuesday night at the school auditorium in Hobbs to discuss consolidation of the two small school districts.

Directors for the Scurry County Appraisal District reduced an initial budget proposal submitted for collection services Tuesday, then approved a final budget figure some $15,000 less than the current operating estimate.

Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler submitted a collection budget equaling some $80,435 to the board, a figure that was whittled down to $63,050 before finally approved. The cost estimate will be in effect for 1985.

WEDNESDAY
May 16

Public comment will be accepted through Friday regarding efforts by the Scurry County Producers Association to call a county-wide referendum vote for an "at the gin" assessment on cotton, it was announced Wednesday.

Such funds would be used to finance cotton pest control efforts in the county.

Western Texas College will begin a search for a new men's head basketball coach after Barry Davis exceeded a deadline in which to sign his 1984-85 contract, Dr. Don Newbury, WTC president, and David Foster, athletic director, announced Wednesday.

The deadline for Davis to sign his contract was 6 p.m. Tuesday.

THURSDAY
May 17

The hiring of Carol Egelston to help organize the upcoming fall campaign as well as future efforts for the Scurry County United Way campaign was announced Thursday.

Phil Spradling, a graduate and former basketball star at Western Texas College and this past season the Westerner's assistant coach, has been named head men's basketball coach.

He was approved by the board of trustees Thursday night following a recommendation by Dave Foster, WTC athletic director.

FRIDAY
May 18

Although no active land negotiations are currently reported in either Scurry or Borden Counties, the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority has again identified 13 sites in this five-county region identifed as "prime locations" for its waste dump facility.

A Phase II siting study released Friday provides a close evaluation of more than 50 potential sites in 21 counties. These include two identified as Five Mile Creek sites in Borden County.

Eleven seniors at Ira High School and five at Hermleigh are graduated Friday in ceremonies at respective campuses.

Ira's top graduates are Valedictorian Lisa Allen and Salutatorian Aaren Middlebrooks.

At Hermleigh, top grads are Candance Raelynn Shoemaker, valedictorian; Alicia Beth Cutman, salutatorian; and Martin Fuentes, high ranking male.

Letter to the editor

To the editor,

On Friday, May 11, at 11:30 a.m., David Rockefeller presented the prestigious Rockefeller Foundation $10,000 "Arts in Education" Award to Snyder High School.

When he arrived, a beautifully furnished lobby awaited him, complete with lovely floral arrangements and a display of student artwork. In the auditorium, palm trees lined the stage with banners, live trees and other foilage decorated the wings, and a wonderful buffet awaited backstage. A lively musical production completed the program.

The word was that the last time anyone had seen Jerry Worsham alive was at 4 a.m. onstage, and one sweating, huffing drama mother confided to me that she hoped never to see another pineapple or finger sandwich. I also liked the student-made poster that said "Rocky is a Great Feller."

I think that Jerry Worsham, the faculty and administrators who contributed their time and energy, city representatives, parent volunteers and students all deserve a round of applause for a job well done.

It means something when a member of one of the richest and most powerful families in America stands on our little stage, and in a decidedly Harvard accent, proclaims the Snyder school system "excellent."

Chinese people enjoy benefits of train traveling

ABOARD THE KOWLOON-CANTON EXPRESS, China (AP) — Attendants once walked the aisles with grimy kettles, sloshing hot water into passengers' teacups as loudspeakers blared "The East is Red." Now they push carts laden with duty-free U.S. cigarettes, French brandy and Chinese treats, hawking them for the state.

The loudspeakers are gone, replaced by imported Japanese color televisions mounted on the walls, hooked to a central videotape system showing traditional Chinese operas.

The Kowloon-Canton Express, China's twice-daily service from Kowloon in the British colony of Hong Kong to the Chinese city of Canton 90 miles west, caters to overseas Chinese, Hong Kong Chinese and foreigners.

The Chinese communist moderates who took power following the tumultuous 1966-76 Cultural Revolution introduced the train to earn foreign exchange, not to proclaim revolutionary struggle. The duty-free products can be bought only in Hong Kong dollars.

The train does not stop at the border crossing point at Shenzhen, where other trains halt for passengers to clear a lengthy customs and immigration check. Express passengers go through these formalities quickly at special areas of the Canton and Kowloon train stations.

"This is wonderful," said Yu Wuming, an overseas Chinese from Canada, who was on his way to visit his family in northeast Heilongjiang province. He clutched four bottles of Martell Napoleon brandy he had bought for $11 U.S. each. In Hong Kong they would have cost a third more.

Speaking loud Cantonese, some passengers on the six-car train waved money at harried looking attendants, their carts crammed with cartons of U.S. cigarettes $5.90 U.S. each.

"It is usually like this," said one woman attendant, who identified herself by the tag on her blue jacket as "Train Service Worker 1336."

The train costs $36 U.S. per round trip ticket and is a three-hour journey from the concrete urban sprawl of Kowloon, past the lush rice paddies and muddy peasant villages of Guangdong province inside Communist China.

The return train to Kowloon sells highly popular Chinese products such as thousand-year-old eggs — actually eggs pickled for a few months — and dried fruits used for cooking.

"Hong dou — you peng, you leng (dried dates — they're cheap and pretty)," hawked the attendants in Cantonese, using a common expression of Chinese merchants.

Your Birthday

May 20, 1984

In the year ahead the market will beckon you to present your wares to the public. You could be quite successful at selling your product, whether it be an idea or an item.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to make winning or fulfilling your ambitions too important today. It might cause you to take actions which would be offensive to others. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest in the year ahead are revealed in your Astro-Graph predictions for the coming year. To get yours, mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're not apt to experience peace of mind today if you sweep your responsibilities under the rug. Be duty-conscious first, play later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Personal acquisition is possible today, provided you're prepared to earn what you want. Free rides aren't in the offing at this time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Major domestic decisions should not be made today without first consulting your mate. To avoid trouble, be certain he or she is in accord.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unless you have something nice to say about others today, it's best not to voice your thoughts. Critical remarks invite rebuttals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to be prudent today, instead of being a plunger. Spender's remorse will set in later if you squander your resources foolishly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Being too pushy or aggressive today will work against your best interests. Lady Luck smiles when you let things happen spontaneously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Unusually you are philosophical regarding the outcome of events, but today you may worry about things that will never come to pass.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial conditions are a trifle topsy-turvy today. You could gain from an unexpected source and lose from something that looks like a shoo-in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Everything should go smoothly for you today, provided you don't let your pride or ego dominate your actions. Play it humble.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things which are difficult for others may prove to be easy for you today. Don't discount their worth or value if this should occur.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you borrow anything of value from a friend today, make every effort to see that it is returned in the same condition in which you borrowed it.

May 21, 1984

You are likely to be luckier this coming year in ventures or enterprises initiated by others than in those you originate yourself. Team up with persons who have a history of being successful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep all of your dealings out in the open today. If you try to do something coy, no matter how harmless, it could have repercussions. Major changes are in store for Geminis in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your feelings could be hurt today if you expect more from loved ones than they're able to deliver. Try not to be demanding or possessive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In ventures that require a collective effort, don't take full credit for things others help to bring about. There's room onstage for everybody.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not assign critical tasks today to those of questionable abilities. If they make a mistake it might be difficult to correct.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful regarding romantic involvements today. If you tread forbidden paths, you could end up with a headache or a heartache.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to placate someone of whom you're fond, you might feel obligated to make a commitment today that does not necessarily serve your best interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you fail to shift into full gear today, your time will not be used productively. Stop looking for excuses. Get down to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally you're a person who gets pretty good mileage from the dollars you spend, but today you could have blinders on where real values are concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may unrealistically harbor self-doubts regarding your leadership qualities today and fail to personally direct a matter affecting your self-interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to let your emotions dominate your thinking today. If feelings cloud your judgment you might make a poor decision.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your judgment in friendships could be questionable today. There's a chance you might cater to the undeserving and ignore those you should be helping.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) To achieve important objectives today you'll have to press forward vigorously. If you're not properly motivated you'll miss the mark.

Night drivers' cautious tips

NEW YORK (AP) — A car pulls up alongside and its occupant signals the lone driver over to the side of the road, indicating there's a problem with the car. Emerging to investigate, the driver becomes the victim of a mugging, robbery or worse.

If you're driving at night, there are precautions you should take, advise experts at the Carter Automotive Division of ACF Industries, who offer these suggestions to drivers, especially women.

Don't stop without first checking. Is your car steering abnormally, are there unusual smells, strange noises from the engine or beneath the car, smoke visible around the hood or from the rear view mirror? Car manufacturers have equipped dashboards with built in warning signals to let you know when your car is in trouble. If you have no clear indication that something is wrong, ignore the passerby. Wave your thanks and drive cautiously to the nearest service station.

If you do stop, keep car doors and windows locked. In the city, steer your car into a well lighted area. In the country, try to get to an intersection or well-trafficked part of the road. Should the motorist stop, only lower the window far enough to ask him to phone for help. If he wants to help, he'll do it. If not, you have him safely locked out.

Equip your car with a highway emergency kit, including a flashlight, flares and heavyduty jumper cables. Depending on where you live, you may want to add a few items to cope with weather conditions. A shovel and some old rags take up little trunk space and can be a blessing if you're stuck in mud or a snowdrift.

Prevention is the best insurance against an actual car breakdown that could invite criminal attack, say the Carter experts. A once-a-year tuneup is a must.

Check your gas supply before you drive. Don't take a chance on a near-empty tank.

Women who frequently travel alone at night should consider purchasing an emergency CB radio.

Take care and be alert when stopped at an intersection. If the window is open or the door unlocked and you are lost in thought, you could be victimized.

Try to park as close to the entrance of a building as possible and only patronize garages that are well lighted and have 24-hour attendants.

Always check a car carefully before getting in to avoid being surprised by someone hiding in the back.

If you are driving alone and suspect you are being followed or if you are forced off the road or into the curb, use your horn to attract attention. If you do go off the road, throw the car in reverse and try to zigzag away from the other car and continue until you reach a more populated area.

Know where your car's emergency signals are located and how to turn them on. If you're caught in a crisis, immediately hit the switch — usually marked "Hazard" — that converts a car's turn signals into four-way flashers. It's a way to let other drivers know that you need help.

United World College to graduate first students

MONTEZUMA, N.M. (AP) — In the isolated beauty of northern New Mexico, not far from the birthplace of the atomic bomb, another experiment intended to change the world has sprung to life.

Some 40 years ago, the Manhattan Project, organized in secrecy at Los Alamos, unleashed upon the world the specter of nuclear war Today, in this dusty village of 150 people and a smattering of sheep, global peace is the goal of a human laboratory in the wilderness.

The Armand Hammer United World College of the American West is two years old. On May 24 it will graduate its first class of 98 students. They will receive an International Baccalaureate Diploma, which is equivalent to the last year of high school and the first year of college in the United States.

British Ambassador Sir Oliver Wright is to be the commencement speaker. The 85-year-old Hammer, one of the world's premier capitalists as chairman and chief executive officer of Occidental Petroleum Corp., and the college's Daddy Warbucks, intends to be on hand. Prince Charles, in his capacity as president of the international council which oversees the six United World Colleges on four continents, will send his congratulations. VIPs galore will be shuttled across a one lane bridge to ceremonies at the small campus' setpiece, a 99-year-old castle originally built as a resort hotel.

Hammer bought it from the Catholic church in 1981 after promising Prince Charles' uncle, Lord Louis Mountbatten, that he would oversee formation of a UWC campus in the United States. Lord Mountbatten was killed by Irish Republican Army terrorists in 1979.

But the real stars of the event, which will take place at an elevation of 7,000 feet, alongside the Gallinas (Wild Turkey) River, are the 197 teenagers from 63 countries who were chosen to christen the two-year institution by becoming the classes of 1984 and 1985.

The young people, ranging in age from 16 to 21, traveled thousands of miles to live and learn together. They came from the People's Republic of China and Hungary, Nepal and Swaziland, Israel and Lebanon. They represent Communist bloc nations, totalitarian regimes, the oldest democracies on earth, and about 30 languages and a dozen religions.

Nearly all receive financial aid which pays up to the full $10,000-a-year cost.

Many of the students face an unusual problem: learning to live with peers who are potential enemies.

Daphna Ron, daughter of an Israeli diplomat, had never met a supporter of the Palestine Liberation Organization until she arrived on campus in August 1982.

"My country was at war in Lebanon," she says. "I arrived and began shaking hands with the other students. But the Palestinian boys wouldn't shake hands with me. They said, 'You killed my family.' So I said 'You killed my friends.'

All classes are taught in English, and the four dormitories are arranged two students per room — one fluent in English, the other needing practice. A first-year student bunks with a second-year student. No television sets, video arcades or junk food machines in the dorms. A student center has one TV set and a single cola machine.

Leroy Lim Leng, 20, of Singapore, says he's "spent a lot of time discerning the differences between cultural aspects of people, and personality conflicts with them."

One of the hardest adjustments he had to make, he says, was the behavior of many of the girls from Western societies. "At first they struck me as cantankerous, outspoken, not observing proprieties dictated by my culture. I used to conclude that if I didn't like the behavior, I didn't like the people. I don't feel that way anymore."

Dormitories and classrooms are comfortable but not luxurious. Spending money is limited, by vote of the student body, to $250 a semester. Many students are from poor or middleclass Third World backgrounds.

Classes begin shortly before 8 a.m., and often study groups don't break up until the 10:30 p.m. curfew.

English teacher Hannah Tyson worries that students study too hard. "They know they're special or they wouldn't be here, and that puts a tremendous responsibility on them to succeed."

She and her husband, Dan, who teaches history, are resident tutors who live on the ground floor of a dormitory. In their kitchen they have a mug tree with 51 handmade cups they bought for the students who live above them.

"We toss hot cocoa parties during tense times, such as exams, and at Christmas time we had everybody put out their stockings for little treats," she says. "We thought they'd think that was corny, but they loved it. Sometimes, because they're so bright and mature, you almost forget they're kids."

Jin will return to the campus next year. Daphna Ron will be in the Israeli army. Leroy Lim Leng will be serving in Singapore's military, with his entry into Princeton deferred until he fulfills his army obligation. His countrywoman, Kathy Soutien Lai, and American classmate Mark Larrimore, will be at Oxford. Marie Dixon, the only child of a Jamaican mother who raised her alone, will study humanities at Yale as a first step to her goal of becoming a neurosurgeon. Vanessa Campbell and her classmate Yves Cassagnes of Toulouse, France, are taking a year off before college to teach wilderness courses at a private school in the Philippines. Andrea Tisi will enter Amherst to pursue a career in international diplomacy.

In the two years that the members of the Class of '84 coexisted in a 110-acre petri dish at the end of a dirt road in the Rocky Mountains, they have grown to believe that they are special. They've put faith in other people's hopes that they will change the world some day.

By Marvin Ensor
Extension Agent

Many pecan growers in Scurry County have contacted my office regarding when to treat for the Pecan Nut Casebearer. At this time indications are that the best time for applying a spray for this insect will be around May 30. This is still an estimated date and the pecan growers should be prepared to treat their trees a few days earlier if needed.

A field inspection made in Scurry County on May 17 found no moth activity or egg laying.

To time spray applications for casebearer control, first check for eggs on a daily basis. Eggs are usually found on the tip of nutlets and are about the size of the ball in a ballpoint pen. The eggs are white when first laid, then turn red over a three-to-five day period before turning white again after they hatch. Apply an insecticide the third day after the eggs hatch so as to kill the larvae before they enter the nutlets. Since the larvae will hatch over a week-long period or more, a second spraying may be necessary.

Insecticides recommended for casebearer control include Sevin, Guthion, Malathion and Zolone. Homeowners may want to include a fungicide such as Benomyl for scab control and NZN should be added for growth and control of rosette.

A good mixture for the homeowner would be four (4) tablespoons Zolone three (3) tablespoons Benomyl and six (6) teaspoons NZN for three gallons water. Other insecticides can be substituted for Zolone according to the manufacturers label recommendations.

The most important part of this mixture of course is the insecticide for the control of the pecan nut casebearer, the other ingredients can be added at the discretion of the homeowner. But the timing of the application should be delayed until after the eggs have hatched.

The County Extension office will maintain a current status report on this insect during the next two weeks.

Remember the Pecan Nut Casebearer is a perennial pest that can completely destroy a pecan crop if not controlled. Also, remember the casebearer has three generations per year and they are approximately 42 days apart. The total nut loss is usually greater during the spring generation because an individual larvae may destroy a complete nut cluster. Later generations usually damage one or two nuts in the cluster.

Lover's Favor to Friend Makes Woman Feel Cheated

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Gary," the man I live with, informed me on Saturday night that we would have to be out of the house on Sunday afternoon because he promised to do his friend "Johnny" a favor. When I asked him what kind of favor, he told me that Johnny wanted to use our house to meet with his lawyer. Johnny is married and has two young children. Well, I came home a little early and was shocked to discover that Johnny was using the house to commit adultery!

Abby, Gary knew what Johnny wanted to use our house for and he allowed it. I never thought Gary would help anybody cheat on his wife because he caught his first wife cheating on him; that's why he divorced her.

I told Gary that I no longer respected him, couldn't trust him and I didn't want to sleep in the same bed Johnny and his girlfriend used to commit adultery. Then I packed up and moved out.

Gary says he can't understand why I left him. Can you?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Yes. Because you no longer respect him, can't trust him and didn't want to sleep in the same bed Johnny and his girlfriend used to commit adultery.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: We are having an ongoing battle at our house, which I hope you can settle. We have three children, Karen and Karla, 10-year-old twins, and Heather, who is 8. We live in a small apartment and have only two bedrooms for the three girls, so the twins have always shared one bedroom and Heather has had a room to herself.

When they were little, everyone was happy because the twins always wanted to be together. But all of a sudden the twins feel that it's not fair for them to have to share a room while Heather has a private room all to herself. So Karla and Karen want Heather to move out of her room for about six months while one twin moves into the private room, and the other twin shares a room with Heather. After six months, the other twin will get the private room and repeat the cycle.

Heather is heartbroken. She doesn't want to move out of her room because she has helped select the carpet, curtains, etc., and she feels it is "her" room for eternity. On the other hand, each twin feels she should have a turn at the private room, too.

They have been fighting like cats and dogs over this, and I want to do what would be fair for all concerned. How would you settle it, Abby?

MOTHER IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR MOTHER: All three girls should be treated as individuals. Having been born together should not deprive Karen and Karla of their rights as individuals. Each sister should occupy the private room for an agreed length of time.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I read your advice to "Unsure About Rocky." You said, "Spaying a female reduces her chance of uterine infections ..."

Since the uterus is removed in doing a spay, it's like saying, "A guillotine will reduce the chances of a headache."

IRENE W. BRYANT, D.V.M.

Six countries create exclusive club

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Gray-haired, mildmannered, quietly dressed, Carlos Castro Madero passes unnoticed down Buenos Aires streets. But the fate of the Earth may rest as much in the hands of men like him as in the doomsday computers of the superpowers.

The retired admiral, until recently Argentina's nuclear energy chief, has led his country into the "can-do" club of the atomic age — those nations able to produce nuclear bomb material on their own.

The Argentines insist their intentions are peaceful. But their new uranium-enrichment plant stands as a symbol of how technology and Third World scientists are outstripping international controls designed to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

India, in 1974, was the last nation known to have tested an atomic explosive device, making it the sixth acknowledged nuclear power, with the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and China.

But since then, Israel, South Africa, Pakistan and now Argentina — all of which reject the 119-nation treaty against "club."

"With the spread of nuclear technology and equipment, it may be that the first nuclear conflict will break out between nations other than the U.S. and U.S.S.R.," Paul Leventhal, president of the privately financed Nuclear Control Institute, says in a Washington, D.C., interview.

Economic forces underlie the push to "go nuclear."

Developing nations short on oil see nuclear power as the route to energy independence. Hard-pressed nuclear-equipment manufacturers, largely shut out of the U.S. market because of safety worries, see the developing world as the way to keep business alive.

Although they reject international safeguards against nuclear weapons development, India, Israel, Pakistan and Argentina have had little trouble buying technology for advanced facilities, or developing their own.

Leading South American nations — Argentina, Brazil and Chile — appear ready to sidestep the treaty permanently.

A final ingredient in the proliferation mix, U.S. critics say, is the Reagan administration's decision to relax restrictions on American nuclear exports.

The Reagan administration argues that a policy of simply denying such exports to nations with "unsafeguarded" nuclear programs will not keep them from crossing atomic thresholds.

In Congress, both houses have passed amendments to close loopholes in U.S. law that allowed exports last year.

The key to the nuclear club is the fuel cycle, a scientific-engineering process with a split personality — civilian and military.

Most of today's power reactors use fuel of enriched uranium, natural uranium whose content of the fissionable uranium isotope U-235 has been increased to 3 percent, from natural levels of less than 1 percent.

But the plants that produce 3 percent uranium can also raise the U-235 to 20 percent, the enrichment level used in research reactors, or all the way to 90 percent, the level needed for material to make a bomb like the one dropped on Hiroshima.

The preferred explosive material, plutonium, used in the Nagasaki bomb, is a byproduct of power-plant nuclear reaction. A reprocessing plant, through chemical methods, extracts this dangerous element from the spent fuel.

All it takes to build a weapon, specialists say, is a handful of skilled people, 15 to 20 pounds of enriched uranium or plutonium, and a rudimentary factory.

The Argentines' two nuclear power plants do not use enriched uranium, but a combination of natural uranium and heavy water. Castro Madero says the 1,100 pounds of 20-percent-enriched uranium to be produced annually at the new enrichment plant will supply Argentina's five small research reactors and any small reactors it exports to other Latin American countries.

But some are skeptical. Leventhal's Nuclear Control Institute estimates the Argentine research reactors require a total of only 60 pounds of enriched uranium per year.

Argentina's severe economic problems may force it to rein in its nuclear ambitions, which include plans for four additional power reactors. The new civilian president, Raul Alfonsin, seems eager to give some signal of good nuclear intentions. He has ordered a review of nuclear policy and replaced Castro Madero with a civilian, though he retains the admiral as an adviser.

In neighboring Brazil, the government last year scaled down its nuclear plans because of an economic downturn. But the November announcement by Argentina, traditional rival for influence in South America, clearly troubled the Brazilians, who then pointedly made clear they were ng Brazil with an advanced, "jet nozzle" uranium enrichment facility, scheduled for operation next year.

Pond Size

The size of your pond is one of the major factors that will determine what fish you need to stock, the intensity of pond management needed to maintain these fish, and how many fish you can harvest each year. Most ponds in Texas are constructed to serve as collectors of run-off to provide livestock water and are about one acre or less in size.

Traditionally pond owners want bass in their "tanks" but those ponds smaller than one acre are not ideally suited for good bass production. Bass populations in small ponds typically become "unbalanced" and require renovating if fishing pressure is not controlled.

Catfish stocked alone or with fathead minnows provide excellent fishing recreation and meat for the table. Those ponds of one to five acres are more suitable for bass populations. If these larger ponds are stocked, managed, and harvested properly, the pond owner can expect many years of pleasurable bass fishing. Ponds which have a fluctuating surface area should be stocked on the basis of average annual low water surface area.

Muddy Water

Many ponds have a tendency to stay muddy. This condition is caused by soil particles suspended in the water. Usually if a person looks, a reason can be found for the turbidity. Wave action, large populations of rough fish such as bullheads and carp, or cattle wading and stirring the mud can cause muddiness. Correction of the problem will usually result in the material settling to the bottom of the pond.

If the suspended material is caused by clay particles, it will not settle out and organic material or chemicals must be added to the water to correct the situation. Seventy-five pounds of cottonseed meal or 25 pounds of sugar phosphate per surface acre will clear a muddy pond. Catfish perform better in muddy water than do bass which are primarily sight feeders. Forage, such as bluegill, usually become overpopulated in muddy ponds because bass are less capable of seeing and feeding upon these fish.

Water Fluctation

Ponds here in West Texas may experience drastic drawdowns during summer months. These drawdowns concentrate all the fish in small areas and can reduce population either through predation or oxygen depletion. Pond owners can minimize the impact of such drawdowns by providing deep water (10-12 ft.) in part of the pond. If your pond fluctuates yearly, more forage fish should be stocked to maintain a balanced population after the pond fills again.

Boy turns wood block into lifelike bird model

READING, Pa. (AP) — Gary Fehr has found a way to make birds lay golden eggs. The 17-year-old Wilson High School senior carves birds out of wood, and his hobby has not only won him national honors, it has also paid off as an enjoyable way to make money.

Four years ago, Fehr became interested in bird carving through the example of his neighbor, Fred Cutts, a carver who won first and second place in the Ward Foundation World Championship Wildfowl Carving Competition in 1976.

Fehr works in a neat, well-lit workshop in a corner of the basement of his parents' Whitfield home. He is surrounded by various woodworking tools and source books for bird photos and paintings, such as the Audubon Society's field guides.

To make each bird, Fehr draws a pattern on paper, then carbons it onto the wood, using a band saw and belt sander to make the rough cuts and smooth them.

"I use basswood, which comes from the linden tree, because it has little grain, and it works well," Fehr said. "It's soft but not too soft — you don't lose the effect you want."

For the fine, detailed work such as the feathers, intricately reproduced down to the individual barbs on each feather, Fehr uses a variety of grinding, burring and woodburning tools.

Depending on the coloration of the bird, Fehr either burns the color into the wood, or paints it with acrylic paint.

"I use acrylic because of the quick drying time," he said.

Fehr even makes remarkably natural-looking settings for his birds. It is nearly impossible to tell, even at close range, that the tuft of grass on one of his models is made out of aluminum.

A nest for another bird was made out of shavings Fehr had left over from carving the bird.

The only parts he doesn't make himself are the feet and the eyes.

"The feet are cast from metal, mostly lead, and the eyes are made of glass, the kind taxidermists use," Fehr said.

It takes Fehr somewhere between 15 and 30 hours to complete each bird, and how much he sells them for depends on how much time they take.

"I've sold eight or nine of them for prices ranging from $80 to $120," he said.

The ribbons Fehr has won for his carving illustrate the respect and admiration he has won from his peers.

In 1969, Willy Brandt became the first Socialist chancellor in West Germany's history.

Asner visits Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — Edward Asner, formerly television's "Lou Grant" and now president of the Screen Actors' Guild, wound up a work-and-pleasure trip to the Soviet Union by saying, "This it the hardest week I've had in a long time."

Asner, 54, whose visit ended Thursday, came to Moscow last weekend for an international actors' conference on the status of artists.

Among the resolutions adopted by the conference, attended by 100 participants from 40 countries, was one pledging to promote the role of women in the performing arts. Asner told a news conference. The aim was to correct the "terrible percentage" of unemployed women artists, he said.

White buffalo was valuable Mooar thought

John W. Mooar (left) and Josiah Wright Mooar (right) display the hide of the white buffalo which J. Wright Mooar killed on Deep Creek near Snyder, Texas on October 7, 1876.

When Mooar killed the white buffalo, he knew that he had gained a valuable possession. Few of the white buffalo were found among the millions slaughtered by hunters on the western plains. Mooar carefully skinned the buffalo and preserved the hide. He had ridden all day October 7, 1876, and was returning to his camp when he saw the white buffalo.

The animal was grazing peacefully with a small herd near a cottonwood tree in the valley carved out by Deep Creek. Mooar saw the buffalo just as the sun was sinking to the west. He rode swiftly into camp and persuaded Dan Dowd, a fellow hunter, to go with him to kill the prized beast.

When he took aim, Mooar said to Dowd..."Take a good look Dan, there is the gamiest animal on earth--a white buffalo."

With these words, he took careful aim at the white beast and pulled the trigger of his Sharp's rifle. Mooar and Dowd were almost killed by the stampeding herd as they were angered over the slaughter of the white buffalo cow.

The hunters quickly skinned the animals and hung the carcass high in the cottonwood tree for the night. The hide would remain with Mooar for the rest of his life. Mooar met President Teddy Roosevelt at Saint Louis in 1904 and the president offered him $5,000 for the hide.

The buffalo hide is now in the possession of Mooar's granddaughter, Judy Hays, who lives within 300 yards of the site where Mooar shot the white buffalo.

coaches and their supervisors. I'll go right out and say that I'm a volleyball player (or used to be, I'm a senior). I love my coach very much. She's been more than a coach and a teacher, she's been a very reliable friend to the whole team. When we have a problem we would go to her. We are open to her and she is open to us. I believe that she was the reason that kept us a team. Believe it or not it's been six monhts since our last huddle together ad we are still a team — you can't beat that. She is very special to us all. This coach is no doubt one of the best coaches Snyder has ever had. But she, like the football coaches, have handed in their resignations and are leaving us. (It's really hard to write this without crying because these coaches have become very important in my life.) My coach, as well as the other coaches, love SHS. They wouldn't do anything to hurt our school. Our coaches support every activity participated in. I remember a time when some of us volleyball players had cut down a group at school. Even though our coach was influenced by us in some ways, she also had a mind of her own. She made sure that we never said anything to put another group down. She supported everybody. She took up for our school not too long ago and as a result she handed in her resignation. She is not the only coach who has done this. Our head football coach was a winner as a basketball coach. He tried football for two years and had some bad seasons and all of a sudden he is out. (I might point out that it didn't take the Dallas Cowboys a few years to be successful). What's winning? They were a team learning to work together. Isn't that what counts? Our football staff received a bad name from those who didn't know them. I have one thing to say about that, this past year's staff is one of the best Snyder High has ever had. If they were such bad coaches why are two of them going to coach at Coronado High next year? They carried their record with them but they are two of the finest coaches SHS ever had. Why do they have to leave? We are not only losing some great coaches but we are also losing personalities that made our school a more happy place to be. But why do they have to leave? I want an answer. We (the student body) want an answer! I believe some dirty pool has been going around. If you (the public) want an answer as bad as we do, go to the high school and find out. The way things have been put across to the students is that we are a whole bunch of "nobodies" walking around the school. (If it were not for the students the teachers, administration, the school board would not have a job. And yet we are "nobodies?") Nobody will listen to us. Even though our coach has handed in her resignation, many of us have gone around asking people to sign a petition asking for the continued contract of our (volleyball) coach. Like I said, "we are little nobodies" walking the halls of SHS. We were told to stop asking people to sign because we were wasting our time. Whatever happened to "when people get together things are changed?" What about our forefathers who fought for what they thought was right? So as you see we need your help. I'm sure that after what has happened not one coach would want to come back. Not because of the school, I know they love SHS, but because of a few individuals who are the reason behind all of this. (We won't mention any names) Are we (the public) going to let things like this happen to us? They seem to misunderstand that only a few people are relieved that they are gone (namely one) while hundreds are knashing their teeth unable to say or do anything. That's what this letter is for. Not to rehire the coaches, even though that would be nice, but rehiring them would only make more waves. The reason for this letter is to take a stand that something like this never happens again. I truly respect the new coaches who have already come and those who will be coming next year. These men and women will truly have a great effect on next years season. Good luck! I'm behind you and your players 100 percent.

If the students don't speak up against the system who will? We have tried but our voices are too small. Are we going to stand up for the public rights or are we just going to let it ride like we have for so long? Some will think that this letter is immature (which I do not), but I look at it as sticking my neck out for what I believe is right. I also accept all responsibility for this letter.

I have one more thing to add. To the coaches who are leaving us. You are a very special group of people to the whole school. You will always be in my prayers and I hope that you will have better luck in your next coaching job. Thank you for your guidance and care for each of your players and students, we were truly privileged to have all of you during these years. And to those who are looking for great coaches, consider these without jobs from Snyder High. Thank you.

Like I said before, I love Snyder High, and we are a school of CHAMPIONS!

Washington, Ky...

Historic town prizes its traditional ways

WASHINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Old-fashioned buildings and old-fashioned virtues are somthing to be prized in this small Mason County community four miles south of the Ohio River.

The town's bank is in a log cabin and so is the post office. On Sundays, a church bell rings from an 18th-century steeple. And the mile-square area of downtown is called "Old Washington," just to distinguish it from the newer suburbs that also have a "Washington" address.

A new home along the main street is anything less than a century old and residents look on old homes as challenges they can turn into antique shops.

This is a town with a past to be proud of. In 1790, it was the second largest city in Kentucky, with 462 people. It has about the same number today.

Washington stakes a claim to being the first town west of the Alleghenies to have public waterworks, a macadam road, and a post office, which was the distributing point for all points west.

In 1809, Zachary Taylor, who later became president, performed his first public duty when he was stationed here for recruiting purposes, and Confederate general Albert Sidney Johnston, was born here in 1803.

The town's fall as a "mefropolitan" center started in the early 1800s when steamboat traffic along the Ohio River began expanding neighboring Maysville, which had grown to a city of 5,000 residents by the time the county seat was moved there from Washington in 1848.

Washington remained an educational and cultural center through the late 1800s, although it steadily lost population.

The town remained relatively unchanged through the first 50 years of the current century. Postmistress Mary Bickley said an attempt to bring something new into town about 25 years ago had sparked a revival, getting people to think about what treasures they had.

"What really got things started was they wanted to turn the old Methodist Church into something we didn't want," Miss Bickley said.

Since then, Miss Bickley said many area residents had been taking a second look at their homes and their town. A historic district was created in 1969 and it was placed on the National Register of Historic Places.

No longer does Washington enjoy the commercial success it had in the 18th century. Even U.S. 68 was moved out of town and out of the middle of things. Nowadays, Washington has one service station, one convenience market and 15 antique shops.

But its renovation draws busloads of people in the summer to wander the tree-lined streets and look at the old buildings. The Harvest Festival in August drew about 3,000 people in 1983, and tourists came again in the winter to help Washington celebrate its "Frontier Christmas."

Perhaps people come because it reminds them of a time gone by.

When the alarm goes off in the bank, Miss Bickley says, it has always been a false alarm. Once in a while, she says, the service station has trouble with youngsters. For most of the residents, however, no news is good news.

"Washington is full of good neighbors," said Miss Bickley, who has spent all but a few days of her 64 years in Washington. "You don't have to be afraid. No one bothers anyone."

Elaine Cotten agrees. "It's quiet and quaint," she said. "You can go out and leave things unlocked. Everyone watches out for everyone else."

It's easy to tell what was once here. Many of the houses display historical markers, and those that don't can be easily identified by Miss Bickley.

Like many of Washington's residents, Miss Bickley knows she lives in an old-fashioned town with old-fashioned virtues. "I started here, and I hope to end here," she said.

After 12 years job's available

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Ron Hom applied for a job as a New York City garbageman 12 years ago. His number came up the other day.

"When I applied I heard there was a waiting list. But I had no idea," said Hom, now 30 and living nearly 1,200 miles away on Florida's Gulf Coast.

The cook in an Oriental restaurant said he got word Sunday from his brother-in-law in New York that the city's Sanitation Department wanted him to come in for a physical exam. Hom went North on Tuesday and took the test.

"It's kind of strange," he said. "A lot of people here had a good laugh that someone would wait 10 years to be a garbageman."

Hom was 18 and living in New York when he applied. He moved to Pinellas County in 1973.

His name was pulled from a list of 36,000 applicants, many of whom had applied in 1974 and had been ranked according to results of tests given at the time. The New York City Sanitation Department has about 500 openings a year.

"I'm not secure with my job. I have no benefits and I work six days a week at night," he said Wednesday, wondering how it's all going to turn out.

As a sanitation worker, he would start at $19,400. After three years he'd be earning $25,000.

Hom said if he passes his physical, he's ready. "All they've got to do is call me."

But then, he's a patient man.
