Judge Llewellyn Delivers Address Against Al Smith

Predicts Hoover Will Carry Texas and Other Doubtful States

Discusses Pledge

Declares That Pledge on Democratic Ballot is Illegal

Judge Dwight Llewellyn of Dallas spoke to an anti-Smith rally on the court house lawn in Wellington last Saturday afternoon. He was introduced by Rev. C. R. Joyner, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Wellington. Rev. Joyner declared that he was having lots of fun out of the campaign, and that he had no hard feeling for the people who intended to vote for Smith. "Neither do I think all of them crazy, but I reserve the right to vote as I please just as I give them the right," Rev. Joyner added.

Judge Llewellyn started his talk by saying that there was something to be admired about Al Smith. "Smith has a perfect record of allegiance to Tammany throughout his political lifetime," he declared, "but I don't like the rotton corrupt crowd that he has been loyal to. Now get this straight, I am not saying that all Democrats are crooks, nor that all the people who intend to vote for Smith are crooks, but I do maintain that the political bosses who started him out are as corrupt as they can be."

After this sally, Judge Llewellyn told of the doubtful states that would go for Hoover and ended this forecast with the statement that Texas would vote for Republican electors, that is they would vote for Hoover, but it would not put other Republican officials in power.

Following this prediction, he explained the purpose of a political party. "There is nothing sacred about a party," he stated. "A party is simply a machine designated to express your opinions and beliefs. When that party no longer represents your views, you have no business voting for that party. Futhermore if you believe in the kind of government that Al Smith would give this country, then it is your duty to vote for him."

At this point the speech was interrupted by someone yelling for Al Smith. Judge Llewellyn smiled and said that it was all right to yell for Al if they wanted to, and that after he had shown what kind of a crowd Al was lined up with that they could still yell for him after he had finished if they wanted to. There was no further heckling during the remainder of the speech.

Judge Llewllyn also discussed the pledge on the Democratic ballot, and said that it was illegal and that a voter was not bound by the action of the convention because the presidential candidate had already been settled when both of the primaries were held.

"Al Smith has a right to his religion," he continued, "but we don't have to vote for him simply because he is eligible for the presidency. It has been said that I am against Al on account of his religion, and that is more than half right."

Judge Llewllyn also warned the crowd about the efforts to scare voters into the Democratic party by raising the cry of "Niggers." Then he told of a colored man in New York City drawing $7,500 a year in a city office and having a white stenographer. After that he cited the nomination of a negro on the Democratic ticket in St. Louis. Se admitted that both sides were probably trying to get the negro vote, for Democrats could no longer point to the Republicans as the negro party.

Al Smith was scored on his local option and states right attitude on the prohibition question, and in this connection Judge Llewellyn declared that Morris Shepard, Sam Rayburn and Guinn Williams would be apologizing two years from now for supporting Smith in this election.

Judge Llewellyn closed his discussion with a tirade against Smith's stand on immigration and made a rousing plea for the people to vote for Hoover on November 6.

Phebe K. Warner Pays Tribute To The Leader

Mrs. Phebe K. Warner, well known club woman of Claude, paid The Leader an appreciated tribute when she spoke in Wellington last Saturday at a meeting of the County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Warner's address was a plea for better co-operation between the women of the cities and the women of the rural sections, and she declared that in her opinion, The Leader was responsible for the splendid feeling of good will which existed between all women of Collingsworth county, and commended the active part this paper has taken in all club affairs.

Senator Robinson Heard Last Week By Memphis Folk

Delivers Short Talk from Platform Enroute to Amarillo

Leader-Democrat News Alliance

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 10.—Many local citizens were given their first opportunity of seeing one of the Democratic party candidates Friday morning, when Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, Vice-President nominee, passed through Memphis en route to Amarillo where he delivered an address Friday afternoon.

Long before the Fort Worth and Denver train No. 7 pulled into the station, a considerable number of Democrats, together with a good sprinkling of Hoover Democrats were on hand. As the hour drew near for the arrival of the train, a crowd had gathered estimated at 350 people.

The news story carried in The Democrat of Thursday informed the people that Senator Robinson and party were occupying the two rear Pullmans and as soon as the passenger train came to stop, the crowd surged to the rear of the train.

As soon as the crowd had gathered in full force, Senator Robinson came out on the Pullman platform, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson. He shook hands with a number of Democrats who wished him luck. His wife also greeted many local citizens. One farmer in the crowd shouted at the nominee, "I'm shore for you Joe, I come from Arkansas." This seemed to please the Senator. He smiled and said, "That's the stuff."

Insistent cries of "Speech! Speech" were heard on every hand. Senator Robinson smilingly complied with a short, informal talk.

"I am highly pleased to receive this greeting from loyal Democrats," said the nominee. "The Democratic cause is gaining strength every day. I have just left Oklahoma after a two days' visit and I'll not have time for an extended address as my speaking schedule is heavy.

"I opened my campaign in Dallas on the third of September and have been speaking almost continuously since that time in 15 states. I think most of us are agreed that the Democratic party has the best platform. It is progressive in contradistinction to that of the Republican party which looks after the interests of the priviledged classes.

"Our leader, Governor Smith, is one of the finest leaders of the common people this country has ever known. An effort is being made to detract from his

Cotton Price is Slightly Higher Since Estimate

Cotton Still Bringing Higher Price Since Government Estimate

Cotton prices jumped approximately $4.24 a bale after the government crop estimate was issued Monday, but have gradually receded since then, so that the increase at this time is $1.50 a bale. The report indicated a crop of 13,993,000 bales based on an October 1, condition of 54.4 per cent normal was somewhat smaller than the trade expected and when business was resumed after the customary 15 minutes suspension to receive the report, the price level jumped approximately 85 points above the prices ruling just before trading was suspended.

Cotton was selling on the streets of Wellington Wednesday at 17.75.

DAIRY COWS PROFITABLE

Milk enough to pay for their own feed, food for the family of six and to pay the family gasoline and clothing bill, is the achievement of 5 registered and 3 grade dairy cows on the farm of J. G. Anderson in Cottle county, who told the county agent that with only a small cotton crop in view and a hospital bill to pay, the cows are a real life saver.

Gin Engineer is Fatally Burned in Boiler Explosion

Roy Tullick Receives Fatal Injuries at Lutie Gin Monday Night

Others Uninjured

No Others are Reported to Have Been Injured in Accident

Roy Tullick, engineer at the Lutie gin, died at a Wellington hospital Tuesday afternoon about one o'clock from burns sustained when the boiler exploded Monday night at the Lutie gin, thirteen miles north of Wellington.

Little information has been learned as to how the accident occured. The injured man was brought to Wellington for treatment but his burns were so severe that medical aid was of only slight avail.

The body is being held at the Goodson funeral parlor in Wellington pending information from relatives in St. Louis.

He was a cousin of Dave Worley of this county, and was unmarried, according to Dick Wiles, owner of the Lutie gin.

E. M. Remington's Absence is Felt In Home Town

Another of Newcastle's highly respected and substantial families moved from our midst this week, when Mrs. E. M. Remington and children left Tuesday for Wellington to join E. M., who has been there for several days. Mr. Remington takes over the management of two theatres of that place, which are owned by himself, Al Nelson and Wallace Simpson. This family was one of the pioneer families of Newcastle and in their going the town loses one of its best families. They were always active in the church, social and civic affairs of the community and their absence will be keenly felt. We recommend them to the people of Wellington as citizens of the highest type and we realize that Newcastle's loss is Wellington's gain. The Register joins the entire community in wishing them well in their new home and hopes that they may some day become citizens of our city again.—New Castle Register.

Mr. and Mrs. Tobe Deahl of Dodsonville spent last Sunday in Wellington visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Deahl.

Al G. Barnes Slips Big'uns On Local Folk

Those people from Wellington who drove to Memphis Wednesday to see the Al G. Barnes circus had the opportunity to wear the big trousers home, for the circus slipped the big 'uns on all people who drove from here to see the show. They had cancelled their date in Memphis, but had advertised it in Wellington and since local people are not as good at reading minds as they should be, had no way of knowing the circus had changed its plans. So all they got was a nice rough trip over those bumpy roads between here and Memphis.

Barnum was nobody's fool.

Hughes Estate May Be Sold for Farm Land Soon

Plan to Open Big Pasture in Collingsworth for Farm Homes

Lands owned by the W. E Hughes estate, located in Collingsworth county would be placed upon the market as farms under a plan now contemplated, Judge C. C. Small has announced.

Judge Small has just returned from Dallas where he filed a case in the courts asking construction of a trust fund deed, in which the W. E. Hughes estate is interested.

When Judge Small resigned from the judgeship of the 100th judicial court, he was appointed for the W. E. Hughes estate. The case filed at Dallas was the first under his attorneyship. It is in the nature of a friendly suit for a ruling on a trust established by Col. Hughes for Mrs. Hughes and grandchildren. The trust is $806,000 in government bonds.

Judge Small also announced Monday he would file suit some time this week asking for a partition of the lands owned by the estate in Collingsworth county, with an order to place the lands upon the market.

Judge Small says some of the lands are very valuable, but at this time are bringing only a very small rental for pasturage. One body contains 34 sections, or 34,560 acres. A portion of this land could be sold for $75 an acre, Judge Small states, and if sold would be placed in cultivation.

The estate holds enough good land in Collingsworth county to supply homes for at least 150 farmers, and the county needs them.

Clothing Store To Hold Formal Opening Saturday

Hunter's Men's Store will hold its formal opening in Wellington Saturday of this week, according to announcements made by Sam Berry, manager of the store.

This store deals exclusively in wearing apparel for men, and is associated with the Hunter store at Quanah. Mr. Berry came to Wellington from Quanah about a month ago to supervise the installation of this store, and says that during the time he has been in this city he has been favorably impressed with business conditions as they exist here.

Mr. Berry says he will be glad for the entire public to visit his store here and inspect the merchandise he is offering. The Hunter store is located north of the Jitney-Jungle grocery.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Phillips and Mrs. Ben Moseley visited in Memphis last Sunday.

Miss Ernie Greenfield visited her parents in Shamrock last week-end.

Library Workers Visit This City

Club women of Collingsworth county were fortunate in having their district president with them October 3. One of the president's chief aims is the establishment of free county libraries. While here she gave valuable information on library work, according to Miss Katherine Boverie, county librarian.

Mrs. Helen L. Cutter, state library organizer, is expected to spend several days this month in Wellington assisting in library work.

The local librarian states that the library will gladly furnish books without charge to anyone in the county. The library hours are from 2:30 to 5:00 o'clock Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

"The public school is for but one portion of the community, the younger portion, while the public library is for all, young as well as old, and those of limited knowledge and the more learned and the accomplished alike," Miss Boverie says. "The three-fold function of the public library is to educate, to furnish mental aid and to inspire. The library is the nobelest exponent of the American spirit. Iit is the most vital, indispensable public utility in the town. It means beauty, happiness, intelligence and well being, the prosperity and thrift of its community."

Better Highways Increase Rapidly Road Bureau Says

State Highway Departments Co-operate for Improved Roads

With the cooperation of State highway departments, 8,184 miles of Federal-aid highways were improved in the fiscal year of 1927-28, and 2,014 miles that had been previously improved by Federal aid were given surfaces of higher type, according to the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture. This work was done at a total cost of $205,043,784, of which the Federal government paid $88,056,894, or 43 per cent, and the state paid the balance.

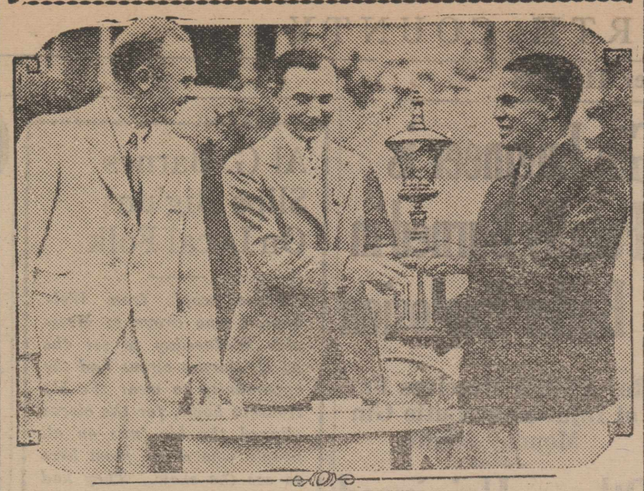

Under supervision of the bureau, 281 miles of National Forest roads were improved, bringing the total improved mileage of these roads to 3,775 miles. The National Forest road system embraces, at present, at total of 15,911 miles.

In the Federal-aid system, there are 187,753 miles of interstate and intercounty highways, of which, on June 30, 71,074 miles had been improved with Federal assistance and 1,285 miles were undergoing stone construction, that is, were being given a higher type of surface than when previously improved with Federal aid.

The 3,184 miles improved in 1928 include 2,187 miles of graded and drained earth roads; 844 miles of sand-clay; 1,836 miles of gravel; 92 miles of waterbound macadam; 464 miles of bitituminous macadam; 136 miles of bituminous concrete; 2,533 miles of Portland cement concrete, and 42 miles paved with vitrified brick. There were 54 miles of bridges and approaches.

Federal aid highways are the most heavily traveled in the country. Increased demands of a growing traffic are shown by the greater increases in the types more suitable for heavy traffic. The mileage of high types of pavements built, such at bituminous macadam, bituminous concrete, Portland cement concrete, and vitrified brick, increased 19 per cent in 1928, while the mileage of low types, such as waterbound macadam, gravel, sand-clay and graded and drained increased about 9 1-2 per cent.

IS GOOD SCHOOL LUNCH

A school lunch of buscuits with sausage, hard fried eggs, fried pie and a piece of nut candy all wrapped up in a newspaper is an excellent way to develop an undernourished and ill tempered child, so visitors at the Enloe Community fair in Delta county learned from an exhibit made by the local home demonstration club. In contrast to this example of an unhealthful lunch for the school child was exhibited a model lunch containing whole wheat sandwiches wrapped in oiled paper, graham crackers, milk custard, fresh fruit, and a bottle of milk, all placed in a regular lunch kit with a thermos bottle. The fact that no school lunch is complete without milk was emphasized.

GROUND GRAIN IS BETTER

Ground milo maize is worth considerable more than head maize for feeding pigs, so club boys of Mitchell county think after feeding both ways. The local record for the heaviest 6 month pig has been broken four times this year by club pigs weighing 324, 310, 276 and 267 pounds each, the ration in each case consisting of ground maize, skimmed milk and commercial pig feed The owners of these record breaking pigs are J. L. Galey, Varnie Prescott, Don Blasingame and William Griffith. The heaviest of four litter mates of young Blasingame's pig, fed 1 to 1 1-2 gallon of skimmed milk per day and head maize, weighed only 179 pounds. Most of the difference is attributed by the county agent to the use of head instead of ground maize.

INSURES CLEAN MILK

To insure clean milk and cream in Hood county an organization for the testing of dairy cattle for tuberlosis has been formed by the county agent with owners signing up a total of 215 cows. Testing is to be done under the direction of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry.

Miss Leah Nora Smith, Miss Dorothy Lee Loue, Mr. Carl Lucas, Carl Rodgers, were in McLean last week-end.

WHEN people looked at Anna, they marveled. For a girl reared in her father's saloon it seemed strange that such exquisite beauty could flower in such an environment.

Yet how Anna hated and loathed her surroundings! If someone would only take her away, and give her the love and respect, the chance for happiness she craved.

Then wealthy Carl Morton, struck by her beaury, went to her father and offered to "adopt" her — give her a lovely home, beautiful clothes —everything. All she had ever dreamed of seemed to have suddenly come true — until she realized she was being "bought," body and soul.

Since her father was determined on the "adoption," there was only one way out. That night she slipped out and boarded a train for the city, where, without money or friends, she soon found herself eking out a miserable existence.

And then Frank Weston came into her life. Frank, too, was poor, but he loved her—wanted to marry her. But at the thought of the future, Anna's heart quailed. Life with Frank meant honorable marriage—but it also meant more poverty and hardship, more struggle and sacrifice. Could she do it? Were honest love and her own honor worth the sacrifice? Carl Morton, who offered her every luxury, would still welcome her. Would it not be better after all to be a rich man's darling than a poor man's slave?

Emil Jannings is Coming to Rialto in "The Patriot"

Czar Paul I. of Russia who reigned during the latter part of the Eighteenth Century gained international fame by being murdered.

This fact was recently brought to light with the presentation in Berlin of Alfred Neumann's play, "The Patriot." It was written around the last few days of the Emperor's life. And in doing so, Neumann presented to the world, knowledge of the interesting and colorful incidents that led up to the assassination of "Crazy Paul."

Paramount has taken the famous play and adapted it to the screen. Hans Kraly performed this work and has faithfully followed the original play in doing so.

"The Patriot" was purchased for the screen by Paramount not only for its interesting possibilities, but pricipally because the leading character offered Emil Jannings. the acknowledged greatest dramatic actor on the screen today the opportunity to reach the peak of his dramatic ability. Jannings, as Paul I. has made that part real, and almost terrible, so realistis does he interpret the role of a mad man.

For Paul the First was mad. There is little doubt of that. Historic facts recently revealed for the first time, present him as having the heard of a child, and the brain of a tiger. His actions, his orders or "edicts" prove that statement beyond a shadow of a doubt.

Paul I. was a great man for show. He delighted in flare and color and also prided himself in his ability to be a perfect drill sergeant. He would drill his men until they dropped from exhaustion, and then to show his peculiar twist of mind, would order the exhausted ones slain or banished to Siberia for becoming in such a state.

He once ordered a regiment to march and then forgot to halt them. They were in such a state of fear that they marched into Siberia, where one by one they dropped. Paul, on being informed of this, laughed heartily.

But his subjects fear of him was no greater than his fear of his subjects. He constantly feared being murdered. He built what he though to be a murder proof castle at St. Petersburg to hide in. His greatest fear occured at night when he would be alone. He could not escape himself.

Paul had a good reason to fear for his life had he known it. His most trusted friend and advisor was the leading light in his downfall. That man was Count Pahlen, minister of War. He pitied the Czar, yet pitied his countrymen greater. He resolved to put the Czar off the throne and set Crown Prince Alexander up on it in his father's place.

How he accomplished this, and the many interesting incidents leading up to the climax serves to make "The Patriot" the outstanding picture and story of the year. It has been called the "wonder picture" and rightly so.

Democratic Meet Date Postponed

The Democratic rally scheduled for Friday night of this week has been postponed until Friday, October 19, due to the inability of Congressman James Young to be present this week, according to C. C. Small.

A county wide rally will be held at this later date, Judge Small says, and Congressman Young of Kaufman who is state Democratic chairman will be here to address the people. Speeches from various other people will be made at this time in behalf of the Democratic ticket.

The Good Old Days?

Now we know why the days that are gone were called "the good old days." A letter from an old timer in the Dallas News states that game was so plentiful that wild hogs freshened up the appetite jaded with wild turkey, venison and other choice eats. No wonder the days were good. No scrabbling for chuck. All you had to do was to go out with dogs and gun, round up the hogs, pick out a nice fat razorback—that you never had to feed—get your hog and live fat for some time to come. Nature prepared the food and all you had to do was to go get it, without money and without price. And you did not have to buy feed for the wild game you ate. Now the hogs must be fed and the poultry looked after and there is not much fun going out with a gun to shoot up more or less tame prairie chickens or doves. And you feel rather like a criminal to shoot ducks and geese for the fun of it. In the good old days of yore wild game was necessary for food. But the ruthless slaughter was a crime. And the penalty was the extinction of many kinds of game. So, to our shame, the good old days were not so good after all.—Higgins News.

Looking to Oklahoma City

The visit of the Oklahoma City delegation to Floydada and the East Plains this week, when business leaders of that city visualized the section of new country which the the extension of the Quanah has brought closer to the jobbing and manufacturing centers of the country, also has brought to the minds of the people of this section that they have gained access to another sizeable market, which should have some advantages for us over the markets we have already enjoyed. Indeed, Floydada, and the entire plains area for that matter, have only enjoyed the markets of the world by making a very considerable detour to get to them with what we have to sell.

After all, transportation and markets have been the things that have builded some sections of the country while others have been more backward, and the value to Floyd county of its new rail lines will not come so much in increased values as in closer contacts with markets. The values and development will increase as a result of the better marketing facilities.

If one of the results of the visit of the Oklahoma City delegations is that it will make commerce more active between the east plains and that metropolis of Oklahoma, it will have been worth a great deal to this portion of the plains country.—Floyd County Hesperian.

The Appeal of the Soapbox

A large crowd stood on a street corner listening to a soap box orator deliver a Socialist speech. It was an unusually good speech, witty and intelligent, and of course very sarcastic about wealth in certain aspects; that is there was a good bit of sarcasm about workingmen becoming millionaires, bondholders, Wall Street heroes, and residents of the Republic. Did I think for a minute that here was a crowd of workers eager to drink in wisdom, sound though, humane views on economics? Maybe, for a minute.

But I quickly saw what held that crowd, or I thought that insight was given men on this point. It was not simply the impulse of a crowd to assemble; it was not merely the love of a moment's sensation on an idle evening; these had their part, but what kept that crowd obviously, intensely interested—even, as I could see, rather dreamily and enviously interested—was the fact that the speaker talked about money, big money, lots of money, easy money.

He painted a vivid picture of the ease, the power, the advantages of great wealth—which he was careful to state was unearned, was unjustly acquired, and was outrageously held by virture of the force of the capitalistic state. It was the theme of wealth, however, that this crowd of workers enjoyed. They reveled, as I could see, in these visions spread before them of capitalists clipping coupons with an idle, bored air, of banks bursting with bonds and gold; of lordly magnate planning vacation trips to the bright, alluring, foreign part of the earth; of rich men who could have their choice of women and their fill of wine.

I judged that these listeners were not so very thoughtful, that their sense of justice was not deeply offended, that they were not inspried by thought of profound and righteous social change.

Alas, poor human nature, they were reflecting how nice it would be to stand in the wicked rich man's shoes; they yearned, and wondered how they could join the pirate crew; they thought again that in this land of opportunity they, even they, might rise to such splendid heights on the shoulders of their fellows. It was a cynical, disillusioning for me to read these thoughts in the crowd; but I am sorrowfully persuaded that my reading was correct. —The Haldeman Julius Weekly.

TEXAS & TEXANS

By Will H. Mayes

Fall Time in Texas

There is a fall tang in the air in Texas. The woods are taking on their brightest, most varied shades of all the colors, subdued at certain hours by the violet haze that hangs over hills and valleys. Flowers are gorgeous in their color schemes as at no other season. Freshened by late rains, the grasses are making their last appeal before winter to the lovers of the beautiful. From the hillsides, the browns and greens that carpet the valleys, intermingled with the brighter hues of acres of flowers, are a delight to the eye, furnishing a panorama of lovliness for the fortunate traveler never to be forgotten. The other seasons have their compensations, but fall time in Texas is the glad time, the time when nature is at her best and when man is drawn closest to his God.

The Year Has Been Good

The year has been good to us in Texas. Bountiful harvests have rewarded the labors of those who have tilled the soil. Industries of all kinds have prospered. The laborer has reaped the rewards of his toil and the capitalist has no cause to complain of his earnings. The troubles and sorrows that have fallen heavily here and there have been only such as men have endured in all times, and most of these have been met with the stoicism that has ever characterized. Whether our personal lot is one of poverty or prosperity, of suffering or rejoicing, or ease or toiler, whether it is our better fortune to have a middle place between the extremes, we can be glad that we live in a land where nature smiles so bountifully on each of us something in which we can delight.

More Than a Million Cars

Texas now has more than a million motor cars. These are pretty well distributed among all classes of people. On some recent trips in Central Texas I have noticed that while there are many fine cars on the roads most of those have seen long service and are filled with people, who, until automobiles became low-priced, seldom had opportunities to get more than a few miles from home. Makers of cheap cars have been real benefactors of the poor, and along with the manufacturers have been well to do have discarded their used cars and bought others, thus enabling many to own cars at prices within their reach. To these benefactors may be added the tax-payers who have voted bonds upon themselves that the public might have better roads over which to travel. Travel provides an education for the masses of a kind scarcely excelled by the schools. Observation teaches lessons not found in books.

* * * *

Beevile Dairy Plant

Beeville is to have a $25,000 dairy products plant, the principal output of which will be cheese, if plans that have been formulated are perfected. The capital stock is to be divided between farmers who are, or will be, owners of small dairy herds, and Beeville business men, the dairy farmers having as they should, the controlling interest in the stock. Dairy products plants have been made possible in Texas by automobiles and good roads. Until we had good roads and cars, enough cream and milk could not be concentrated at central points to make such plants profitable. Now, many communities are building and successfully operating milk plants. Wisely, most of them are locally owned and controlled. Most of the industrial enterprises in the state that have failed, have been purposely wrecked by the greedy capitalits anxious to buy up the stocks at nominal prices, effect reorganization, and put the industries on a profitable basis. This is a form of common graft against which investors in local industries should guard.

* * * *

Building Texas Resorts

Some Houston people have recently bought a tract of land on the river bank near Kerrville on which they expect to build a number of homes and establish an exclusive resort. The section of Texas known as the Hill country, including a vast area to the west of San Antonio, Austin and Waco, will some day become famous as a summer resort for the people of East and South Texas and will be equally popular as a winter resort for those seeking a refuge from the cold of the North. That section has an all year around climate that is not surpassed anywhere in America, and the people are beginning to find it out.

* * *

Special Editions

I have been in newsaper work for many years and have seen large numbers of "special editions" of weekly papers from year to year. In a peculiar way they show the spirit of the places where they are published. I have never before seen so many splendidly creditable special editions of weekly papers as have reached me this year. Tehy have come so thick and fast that it has been impossible for me to mention them in this column, however much I would like to do so. Without a single exception they have been papers of merit, of which both the communities and the publishers have right to be proud. They all show, too, that the newspapers have kept step with the progress of other lines of business in the state.

More Texas History

While in Gongales recently I saw a copy of a special edition of the Gonzales Inquirer issued in 1923 on its seventieth anniversary, by the lamented Henry Reese, shortly before his death. I brought it home with me and although the paper was published five years ago, I sat up until a late hour at night fascinated with its contents. It was different from all other special editions I have seen in that, while it contained the usual write-ups of contemporary business interests so essential to the success of such a paper, it contained column after column of valuable history of the town, so interesting that I wanted to keep the paper for future reference. Mr. Reese had the able assistance of his sister, now the Inquirer editor, and many of the old time residents of the town who wrote interestingly of historical events, many of which would not otherwise ever have been published.

* * *

Can You Beat This?

I am mentioning this as a suggestion to other editors in Texas. Why not have a well-planned historical section of your special editions and make them valuable in securing and preserving the history of your community? By doing this you will make the edition more valuable and more likely to be preserved for its permanent worth.

DECK'S Didactics

By H. D. W.

Percy Bones, the celebrated columnist, is lamenting over the failure of Schell Brothers to stop in Shamrock with their show last week. Naturally Percy feels slighted at this treatment of his city, but he will never guess what he missed.

I went to see Schell Bros. so-called show on a pass and I believe I got cheated. I left before it was over, but Ross Wilkerson told me of the climax of the performance. The elephant, the only one they had, was brought out and a harp was put in her mouth and she blew it and then she did a few steps, after which the man said: "Now watch Ruth." Then Ruth performed. From Ross' description of the affair, and the fact that the elephant is the emblem of the Republican Party I judge it must have been a landslide for Hoover.

I heard two good automobile stories at the banquet at Mrs. Blanton's last Saturday, given in honor of Mrs. Warner. Mrs. Warner told the first one: A man picked up a pedestrian on the highway between Goodnight and Claude. Soon after a big car passed and forced them into the ditch. The man who had been picked up told the other driver that if they ever caught up with the big car he wanted him to stop.

A little further up the road they met the big automobile, and its driver was out fixing the tire. They stopped their car and the former pedestrian got out.

"Can I help you?" he inquired politely.

"No," replied the man who had forced them in the ditch.

"Well, I believe I can. You are the man who ran us in a ditch."

With that he lit in and gave the fellow in the big car two blue eyes, a red nose and a couple of pink ears, and when he had finished he remarked that this ought to make him think twice before he ran anyone else in the ditch.

Mrs. J. B. Stevenson told one concerning an incident that happened near Wellington, although she did not know the names of either man. A man was driving down the road like he owned it, and forced a frightened woman into the ditch. She told her husband, and the husband got out an old wreck of a car that he had and hunted up the offender, and ran right into him. Then he said: "Wait just a minute." Then he backed off and ran into it again and again until both cars were badly damaged.

The driver who passes me in a faster car and then pokes along just far enough in advance to give me his dust is my grievance. I don't mind anyone passing me if they will keep on going, so I can maintain my usual gait, but I do hate for them to drive by in a cloud of dust and then force me to slow down to about fifteen miles an hour to keep out of their dust. These same nuisances are the ones that speed up when you try to pass.

Every day I watch the cotton buyers in front of the office. I wonder if they get mad at each other when they are outbid. No, I don't wonder about that either. I know they do. What I wonder is how would you go about measuring their anger.

I don't want it to freeze and stop the cotton from filling out, but I would like to see a few cool days. August had nothing on the first part of this week.

SIX BALES ON 5 ACRES

Six bales of cotton has been made by E. Whitmire of Madison County by the use of 5500 pounds of fertilizer costing $75.50. The 6 bales of cotton and 2 tons of seed are worth $660, making a net profit above the cost of cultivation and fertilized of $542. At a field meeting on this plot arranged by the county agent, and attended by 47 farmers, Mr. Whitmire pointed out that his success was due to deep breaking, proper cultivation and heavy fertilization. A five acre check plot unfertilized, produced only 1 1-4 bales of cotton and 1-2 ton of cotton seed all of which was worth only $140.

Graveyard Stuff

BY BUDGE

If the old man in the graveyard doesn't look as happy as usual this week, it must be because the Schell Brothers "Wild Animal Show" was here last week and disturbed him.

That isn't funny, you say. But neither was the circus. And, anyway, it serves as the first paragraph for this column.

We take great pleasure in announcing to the young ladies of Wellington that Bill H. Howell is again an emplyee of The Leader. Bill has deserted Amarillo for Wellington, and will spend at least a part of his time in this office.

Caude Savage is so industrious that when he runs out of anything to do at the post office, he comes down here and starts correcting our mailing gallies. Claude should get him a job as mail carrier in some city and then he could go for long hikes when he found he had a few leisure hours on his hands.

Much as Shamrock hated to see them do it, the Skyrockets drubbed the Childress Bobcats in the football game last Friday. We've an idea that Shamrock would like to see the Skyrockets win cellar honors this year, but it looks as if the Irishmen are due a disappointment. True enough. Shamrock may beat Wellington when the two teams play, but they'll have their usual hard time in doing it.

Bura Handley must be a politician. He said Tuesday morning that he didn't have a bit of trouble in being reelected to the office of Chief of the Wellington fire department.

Wellington has one saleslady that should make a mark in life. She sold a jar of cold cream to a negro man telling him it would remove the blackheads from his face. If that isn't salesmanship, it's the next thing to it.

SATURDAY IN WELLINGTON

Came the week-end with more and more wads of cotton collecting on the streets, giving the effect of a half-melted snow; (that is, if a person can strain their imagination that much); with Coach C. B. Harrson wearing a grin tied behind each ear; with George Anders carrying an armload of groceries; with several people grouped on every corner talking either against or for Al Smith; with the Western Union boy steering his bike wth one hand and licking on a frozen sucker which he was holding with the other; with Winfred Panye collecting laundry bills; with eight or ten mongrel dogs chasing a rat underneath Mr. Dukeminier's building; with a fruit vendor unloading big red apples from a truck into a Ford coupe; with Bill House offering to buy his friends a root beer; with Harry Garbee trying to check up on the cotton production; with high school students buying geometry paper and with a negro inquiring if we pressed pants in this office.

Judging by the way so many people come in this office thinking it is a tailor shop, or a cotton exchange or a grocery store, we believe Ray Goodson has been directing everybody here when any stranger asks him where anything is located. We have a plan whereby we are able to get even with him—we've started sending all peddlers to him, recommending him as a good prospect.

The Amarillo paper carried a story last week stating that the Clarendon Bronchos defeated the Memphis Cyclone 47-0. The score should have appeared just the opposite. We ask Jack Knight's attention here, so that he may infer that we aren't the only reporters who occasionally get our wires crossed.

The receiver on the telephone in this office is shattered so badly that it won't hang on the hook. This is the second receiver that has been broken this fall. If Maria Reed, the telephone operator for our line, doesn't quit speaking to us so harshly when we "call by name instead of by number," she's going to bankrupt the telephone company by breaking so many receivers.

Unity of time, place and action is always valuable though by no means often employed on stage or screen as Aristotle would have hoped for.

In "The Night Watch," starring Billie Dove, which comes to the Rialto Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, October 17 and 18, the action is mostly based on board a French cruiser on the eve of the World War. A French courtroom is the ony other scene of importance. Most of the important scenes take place during a night—"that night before Armageddon."

The story centers about one woman and three men. The woman is Miss Dove, wife of the captain of the cruiser. Donald Reed is one of the men, one who would like to be her lover; Paul Lukas is the captain; Nicholas Soussanin is the cynical and revengeful heavy.

About the quartette is woven a drama that is one of the most poignant ever conceived. Alexander Korda, who directed the picture, has given it the true European atmosphere and quality. The scenes are all effective, the drama is convincing and it is declared that in no recent First National Picture, has the beautiful star appeared to better advantage.

The settings are really superb, That on the turrent deck of a cruiser. with the enormous guns and the various trappings the sailors and the activity, is exceptional. These match with actual ship scenes made at sea.. Then the French court, so different from those in this country, the brilliant assemblage of officers in their glittering uniforms, lending an air of distinction and unusualness to the tribunal.

There is a murder, the trial starts, and then the story is recapitulated as it occured, showing how the wife fought for her honor and how the actual crime was committed.

It is an unusual handling of an unusual picture that should please every type of film patron and lend new lustre to Miss Dove's already brilliant record as an emotional actress of rare beauty and ability.

Meeting is Held In Memphis For Panhandle Doctors

More than one hundred doctors from 23 Panhandle counties were in Memphis Tuesday and Wednesday of this week to attend the meeting of the district medical society which was held there at this time. The attendance this year surpassed that of any past year's record. The Memphis physicians, together with those of the Four-County Medical Society, embracing the counties of Hall, Donley, Collingsworth and Childress, were hosts at this meeting.

Two Wellington doctors were on the program at the meeting. Dr. E. W. Jones, chairman of the division of gynecology and obstetrics, presided at the Wednesday morning session. He spoke on avarian cyst. Dr. Clifton E. High spoke on eclampsia.

FORM TESTING ASSOCIATION

Cow testing associations, for the purpose of weeding out the boarder cows and increasing herd profits by the feeding of balanced rations, have been formed by the county agents in the following counties: Wise, Bexar, Potter, Randall, Deaf Smith, Hale, Swisher, and Hartley. Similar associations are contemplated or in process in Denton, Tarrant, and Galveston counties.

Fighting Fire is Big Job Requiring Nation Attention

Best Method of Combat is to Fight Fires Before They Start

By Bura Handley
Chief, W. F. D.

America's fire waste has long been a most serious matter. During the eight years of 1920 to 1928 an annual average of 500 million dollars worth of property values were consumed by fire in this country, while the past quarter of a century has witnessed a destruction that is well within range of twenty times that figure.

But far more important than these financial figures is the fact that fire is responsible for many deaths and injuries every year. Statisticians tell us that ten thousand persons were burned to death and twenty thousand were injured by fire last year in the United States and Canada, eight being of the dependent class—mothers, children, the sick in hospitals, and unfortunates in state institutions.

Have we any right to tolerate conditions that promote such wholesale death and suffering? Can we morally refuse to devote our energies to spreading the message of Fire Prevention? Insurance money may rebuild the house. But how about the family, the home, the family treasures, and the job?

To all of this Texas contributes a full share of the dead and injured, and her portion of the property loss has been approximately 20 million dollars annually.

Figures compiled by the National Board of Underwriters prove that at least three-fourth of the fires that occur are preventable. Of the well known fires six were charged with 31 per cent of the loss last year as follows: Matches, cigars. cigarettes, etc., started fires causing a loss of more than 3 million dollars. The development of careful habits would eliminate such fires. Defective flues and chimneys were responsible for 28 million dollars and furnaces and boilers and their pipes cause 27 million dollars loss. Spontaneous ignition is given as the cause of 19 million dollars of the loss. Many of these fires originates in oily rags, mops and the like. Electricity and electrical appliances caused a loss of 1 million dollars. Of all these fires 37 per cent were due to carelessness with electric flat irons. Much of the remaining electrical loss was the result of improper wiring, overloading and over fusing circuits. Electrical fires are largely preventable by proper wiring installations and by the care in the use of irons and other devices.

America's per capita fire loss is about 10 times as great as that of continental Europe. And why? European countries for years have been fighting fire before it starts.

Listed as follows are ten rules of fire prevention:

1. Keep matches in closed metal containers and away from children.

2. Keep all gas lights and open fames away from the the woodwork and other sombustible materials. Do not allow curtains to hang near these flames, for the wind will blow them into contact with the fire. Do not use rubber tubing as gas connections to the stoves.

3. Disconnect electric smoothing irons, toasters, heaters and all other appliances of a similar nature from their sockets when not in cutal operation. Use pilot lights.

4. Inspect, clean and repair your chimneys and flues both in the spring and fall of the year.

5. Place hot ashes in metal cans, and do not dump them near out houses, fences or anything that will burn.

6. Promptly collect and remove all rubbish from the attic, cellar and the spaces under the stairways and house.

7. Do not try to start a fire in the stove with gasoline, benzine kerosene or any other explosive.

8. If you must clean with gasoline, do the work out of doors.

9. Learn the number of your house and what street you live and in case of fire, call central and tell her that you wish to report a fire.

10. Inspect your property frequently for fire hazards. And remember that a clean house seldom burns.

Dorothy Greathouse To be Presented In Recital at Memphis Tuesday Nite

Is Brought to Neighboring City as Experimental Program

Leader-Democrat News Alliance

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 10.—Dorothy Greathouse, lyric colorat ura soprano, will be presented in recital at the Gem Theatre here Tuesday night, October 16, at 8 o'clock. Miss Greathouse is being brought to this city under the local management of William Russel Clark, managing editor, and Lyman E. Robbins. advertising manager of the Memphis Democrat.

Advance seat sale begins this week. Mail orders will be accepted. Checks should be made payable to either of the local managers. All seats will be reserved. The first seventeen rows will sell at $1.50 and remainder of the house at $1.00. Top prices for this attraction are usually $2.50 and $2.00. Miss Greathouse is being brought to Memphis as an experiment, and if the recital is a success, other similar attractions will be booked during the winter season.

Miss Greathouse was recently presented in recital in Amarillo under the auspices of the Tri-State Fair and she was accorded one of the greatest ovations a musician ever received in the Panhandle city.

Dorothy Greathouse is an American artist, who not only brings vocal beauty to her art, but also has the ability of singing the story of the song into the hearts of her audience.

Being endowed with a beautiful soprano voice, capable of portraying tenderness in songs of love, brilliancy in sparkling coloratura numbers, sadness in the dark tone poems of pain and sorrow, together with a charming personality, and highly intellectual interpretative powers, she has succeeded in captivating her audiences wherever she has appeared, and today is one of the outstanding concert artists.

Miss Greathouse is late of the Chicago Civic Opera company. She was the Prima Donna Soprano with the sterling operetta, "The Student Prince." Last season. She was featured on the Keith Orpheum circuits in a program of operatic arias and songs.

The repertoire of Miss Greathouse incorporates Opera Arias in English as well as in the original languages, English ballads, German Litder, French chansons and standard Oratorios. However, American songs and ballads have a prominent place in her recitals.

Hardships are Endured to get Western Picture

Hardships lass perilous but just as real as those endured by those who blazed the trail for them in '61 were encountered by the people who made up the covered wagon caravan in Paramount's Zane Grey western epic "The Vanishing Pioneer." The wagon train scenes were taken on a wind swept stretch of desert in Southern Utah called Hurricane.

On the days that members of the unit, headed by Jack Holt, worked at Hurricane it was bitterly cold. Although it was in early April, and fruit trees were in bloom just a mile away, the sage dotted desert where the motion picture people worked was swept by an icy wind. The cameramen had numbed fingers and were blinded by the sand at times. It whined through the canvas tops of the covered wagons and chilled the drivers and their passengers to the bone.

Imbuded by the same spirit that had carried the early settlers through similar situations which had the added metal hardship of danger, the wagoneers moved steadily onward while the camera continued to click.

The sun was just peeping up over the edge of the weirdly colored rock cliffs which sprawl in grotesquely picturesque fashion over that section of the country when the film unit started to work at Hurricane in the mornings. In spite of numbed fingers wind and sand blinded eyes and painfully chapped faces there was no let-up, except the time necessary to eat cold lunches, in the day's work until the sun had vanished behind the western cliffs.

Drivers of fifty covered wagons which made up the train were practically all natives of the region. Their wives and children were their passengers. Not a word of complaint did they utter during the trying day's work for they are of the true pioneer stock. The picture will be at the Rialto Theatre Saturday, October

In the Wake of West Indian Hurricane

Fan Says Team Needs Support

A Wellington football fan who signs anonomously as "Passer-By" names some of the things which are needed for the local football team. The unknown writer says the Skyrockets need a pep squad to accompany them to all their games, and most especially when they play in other towns. Other needs are listed as: an interested group of people to attend the games both in Wellington and elsewhere; people who will talk football, encourage the boys and help them win; people who will furnish automobiles for the pep squad as well as the team to take them to the contests, and the most urgent need at this time, the writer declares, is a large crowd to go to Clarendon next Friday to see the game.

character and ability, but it is meeting with small success. In order to form an estimate of him you must remember that he has been elected Governor of New York four times in a state ordinarily Republican. You realize that he must have received many Republican votes to bring this about and that will give you an idea of the popularity of the man where he is well known.

"Fault has been found with Governor Smith because he is a member of the Catholic church. During the time he has been Governor of New York, you couldn't tell what church he belonged. He hasn't been a Catholic Governor or a Methodist Governor, but he has been an outstanding American Governor. I ask you to review his record of public service. You will find that he has wrought more reforms for women and the children than any executive this country has ever known.

"I think the Democratic party might have selected another man in my place, but I am happy that the party selected a Southern man. This is the first time in 65 years that a Southerner has been on the national ticket. The South ought to be proud of the fact that she has been honored.

"Recently while in Georgia, a staunch Southerner told me that the South was still in the Union, having reference to the recognition accorded her in the selection of a running mate for Governor Smith.

"I am happy to see you all. I wish I might talk longer, but my speaking enaggements will not permit."

Mrs. Robinson was called upon for a speech, but she said she thought one speaker in the family was enough.

Senator Robinson's talk was frequently interrupted by cheers and as he vanished into the car cheers and yells were intermingled.

The crowd hovered about the station until the train got in motion and the last picture of the next vice-president was as he stood on the rear platform of his car, a smile on his face, waving a friendly goodbye to the people of Memphis.

Skyrockets Defeat Bobcats Friday in First Conference Game; Score 25-0

Will Meet Clarendon Bronchos in Their Corral Friday

After dropping two games in a row, the Wellington Skyrockets came from behind Friday afternoon and opened up a brand new type of football that swept the Childress Bobcats from their feet and sent them home with their ears badly singed. Coach Harrison has worked out a new combination for his team that looks much better than any of the previous line-ups. and which will make the Skyrocket goal-line harder to cross than in past games.

Coach Harrison and the entire squad are in high spirits following Friday's game, for the outcome brought the locals a victory of 25-0 in their first conference conflict.

The locals directed their attack through the air, and many substantial gains were made on passes as well as by nicely executed end runs. At times the Skyrockets showed flashes of sheer brilliance, and were decidedly better than at any previous time during this year. If they improve as much within the next two weeks as they have during the past two, Wellington will have a squad that will be able to repeat the splendid performance made by the local team last year.

Raymond Powell, adroit quarterback for the Skyrockets, ran the team two hundred per cent better than in the previous games and played an all star game himself in view of the fact that three of the touchdowns were carried over by him. Lindsey plowed the line for the other counter. Powell kicked extra point following one touchdown, but the other three punts went astray.

The first score of the game came in the second quarter when a long pass from Glasgow to Powell netted a touchdown. Lindsey tallied again in the same period, with the score standing at 13-0 at the half. Powell circled left end for another touchdown in the third quarter.

Childress made their lone touchdown late in the game when Bybee plowed through for a counter after the Skyrockets had held the Bobcats for three downs within a few yards of the goal line.

Wellington's entire backfield looked good Friday. Charlie Sullivan was changed from a wing position to left half and showed up splendidly. Sullivan is a fast player, has plenty of football talent as well as nerve, and is one of the most valuable men on the squad. Glasgow is another half who looked good Friday, and Lindsey, shifted from the line to fullback, gave a splendid account of himself. The coach is pleased with this combination in the backfield and will probably retain these men in these positions all through the year. Sullivan, Glasgow and Powell are all good at passing, at receiving, at skirting the ends and at building up interference. The Skyrockets are much more formidable with these men in the rear ranks.

If "dope" counts for anything at all, the locals should be able to defeat the Clarendon Bronchos Friday afternoon when they invade the corrals of the Clarendon team. The Bronchos were handed a 47-0 defeat by the Memphis Cyclone last Friday, and in view of this disasterous defeat, they should not be especially tough for the Skyrockets. The locals are looking for no cinch, however, as most of them have had football experience enough to know that there are no cinches when football is concerned. They are going perepared to put up a stiff fight, but the boys are optimistic in regard to the game.

Bobcats—Bybee by Bradshaw; Sport for Goff; Coleman for C. Newberry; Bradshaw for Bybee; Goff for Coleman.

Mr. W. H. West visited friends in Hollis last Sunday.

Childress Gins Pass 4,000 Mark During Past Week

There were 1,591 bales of cotton ginned during the past week at gins in Childress according to an announcement made by the Childress Index. The week before the ginnings had totaled 2,514 bales, so the ginning up until Saturday night, therefore, amounted to 4,105 bales.

This number is for the city of Childress only, and does not include any cotton which has been handled at rural gins of that county.

Many people of that section are of the opinion that Childress will make practically as much cotton this year as it did last. This is partly due to the fact that rainfall in that secion came at intervals when it was most needed.

Test Shows Water at Shamrock Pure

Shamrock's water supply is not contaminated and is perfectly safe for drinking purposes, according to a report received from the State Board of Health at Austin by Dr. W. W. Beach, city health officer. The report is on file at the office of the city secretary of Shamrock.

A sample of the water, procured at the Burcham Springs, source of supply, was sent to Austin last week. This action was taken to set at rest any fears that might exist among Shamrock people that the water might be contaminated with typhoid or other germs, city officials say.

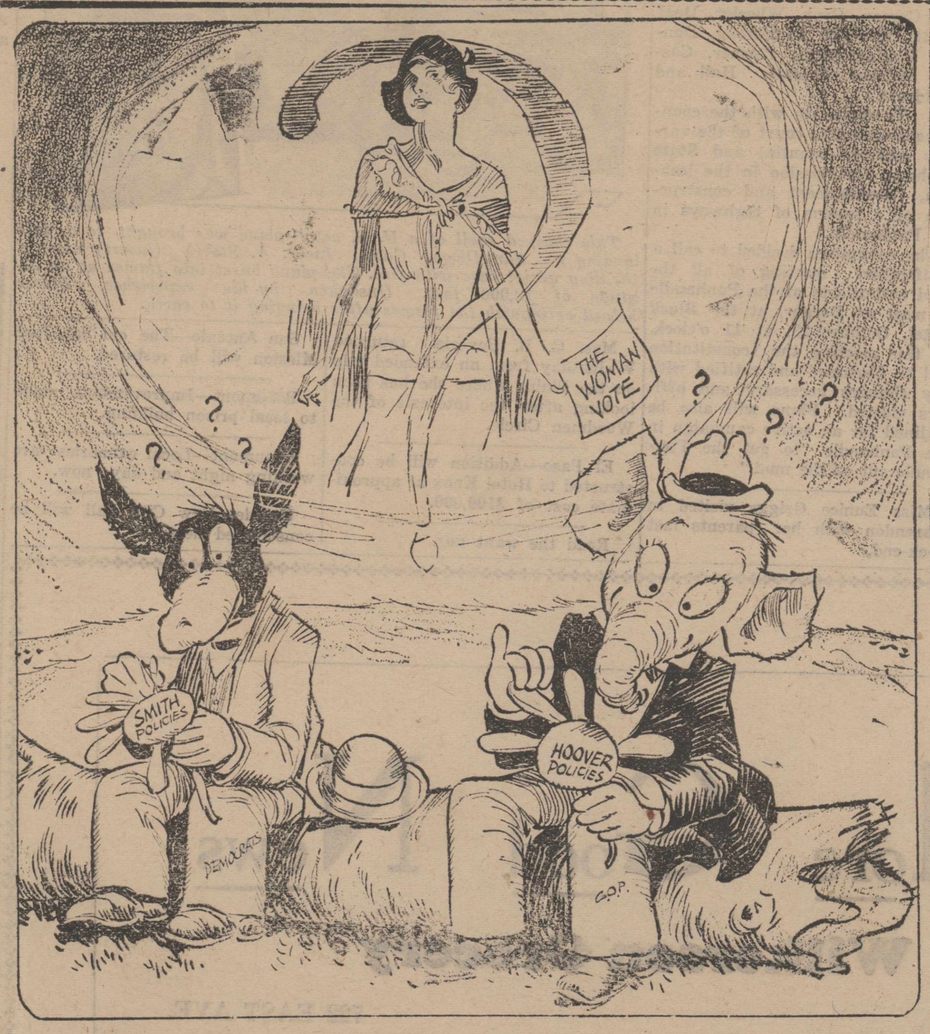

As a further precaution against possible contraction of disease from the water, the clorinator purchased by the city several months ago, was connected last week and is now in operation.

Pinkston Speaks To Kiwanis Club At Hollis Tuesday

Shows Possibilities of Smaller Clubs and Results Obtained

S. R. Pinkston, president of the Wellington Chamber of Commerce was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon Tuesday of last week in Hollis. Mr. Pinkston talked on the possibilities of the smaller clubs and the results obtained from the association with other members of the clubs, the advantages, etc. His address was well received and was considered among the best ever delivered to the Hollis organization, according to Sidney J. Easley of the Hollis club.

A number of other business men of Wellington were guests of the Hollis club at this time, including Lee O'Neil, F. L. Emanuel, Milus Little and E. L. Winn.

The Hollis orchestra furinshed music for the occasion, playing a number of selections that were greatly appreciated.

E. P. Keen, prominent teacher of Harmon county, was introduced as a new member of the club.

It is said that there is a possibility of business men of Wellington establishing a Kiwanis club in the near future

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Knight visited in Memphis last Sunday with relatives.

Pinkston, managers of the Lewis, Wooldridge and Shamburger lumber yards in Wellington respectively, attended a meeting of the "Hoo Hoo," national organization for lumbermen, in Altus Friday night. According to Mr. Pinkston, the local men had been "kittens" up until Friday night when their eyes were opened at this meeting and they became "cats."

Mr. Pinkston says the meeting was quite interesting to all who were in attendance.

Childress Schools Get State Funds

Thirteen rural and small town schools in Childress county will receive more than $6,000 in state aid this year, if they can show that they need all they are eligible for, according to information given to Miss Mabel Hare, county superintendent of Childress.

Heretofore, Childress county received practically all it has applied for, she said, and the fact that the unlucky number of 13 schools are applying this year has not discouraged her in the least.

The amount asked for in the applications range from $60 to $1,153.18, depending upon the amount each school is eligible for.

Miss Hare is thoroughly familar with the state aid lay, and has aided in the preparation of all the applications.

The schools making application are: Union Flat, Arlie, Loco, Highpoint, Garden Valley, Shore Creek, Plainview, Whites Creek, Rivercamp, Ceder Hill, Gilpin, Kirkland and Tell

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hix, Argen and Margaret Hix, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Royal, Miss Bess Royal, Sam Lane. Tom Royal, Dale Watkins, and La Verne Hayhurst visited in Granite, Oklahoma, Sunday.

Wells and Mrs. John W. Harper.

Work on New Christian Church Will Be Completed Within Three Weeks

All work on the new First Christian church will be completed by November 1, according to a statement made this week by J. E. Leggitt, chairman of the church board.

Work on this structure has been delayed somewhat since the building was first started, due to the fact that much of the material was late in arriving.

The new church will afford the city with another attractive edifice that will count for another asset for Wellington. The erection of this church has involved an expenditure of $20,000.

At this time, the church board has not employed a pastor. The church has been without a regular pastor for several months, but the church board plans to make a selection by the time the new building is ready for occupancy.

"We feel that the members of our church are greatly pleased with the new building," Mr. Leggitt stated Monday.

Benge Plays With Wentworth at N. Y. Against Army team

Lester Benge, former end on the Skyrocket eleven, left Lexington, Missouri, Sunday with the footfall team of Wentworth Military Academy enroute to West Point, New York, where his team played the "Plebes" of the United States Military Academy on October 10. This trip covered three thousand miles and is the longest trip ever taken by an athletic team representing a military school in the middle west. The athletes will be gone a week. Lester is playing end with Wntworth's first squad.

Lester is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Benge of this city, and played football for Wellington high school last year. He was responsible for Wellington's victory over Clarendon high school here last year, scoring a safety late in the last quarter of the game, enabling the Skyrockets to win by the slim margin of 2-0. Lester was graduated from the local school last spring.

The Wentworth squad going to New York included 21 players and three coaches. About 25 students of the school were also in the party which traveled in three special pullmans. Stops were made in Buffalo and Niagra Falls on the way to West Point and the team had a work out Monday at Niagra Falls. On the return trip, the party will visit New York City, Washington and Cincinnati, taking in the points of interest there. The instructors of Wentworth decreed that the cadets should take books on the trip and classes are being held on the pullman cars.

The Wentworth Red Dragons are coached by Captain W. V. Cox, former star athlete of the University of Oklahoma. In their section they are known as a hard team to beat, and Coach Cox gave his men rigid training before meeting the West Point Plebes so that the Dragons could put up a hard battle.

Major L. B. Wikoff, athletic drector of Wentworth, and Captain C. N. Jackson, professor of military science, also accompanied the team to New York.

Hollis Plans for Municipal Airport

Joe Glass, of Houston, Texas, president of the Houston Airway, air transport, was in Hollis the first of the week, conferring with members of the city council in regard to the establishment of a municipal airport in Hollis.

No action has been taken as yet on Glass's proposal to establish an airport and flying school here, but it is believed that the council looks at the matter in a favorable light.

Glass is an expert flyer, and is taking extensive interest in the development of municipal flying in the southwest. He visits Hollis quite often, and has at various times during the past few years expressed a desire to establish an airport and flying school in Hollis.

Sam Pritchard of Temple, Texas, has been visiting in Wellington for the past week with relatives and old friends.

Delivers Inspiring Address to Members of County Federation

"The rural home must be protected from disintegration." With this plea Mrs Phebe K. Warner of Claude, nationally known clubwoman, opened a two year campaign to secure cooperation between the rural women and the club women of the small towns, and cities, in a speech before the Federated Women's Clubs of Collingsworth County, Saturday, October 6 at the Methodist church in Wellington.

Mrs. Warner was recently appointed chairman of the National Committee of Rural Cooperation by Mrs. John S. Sippel, prestalk Saturday was the opening ident of the National Federation. Mrs. Warner declared that her gun in a campaign that she intended to conduct for two years in order to secure better rural cooperation over the entire United States.

Mrs. Warner told of the work done by Mrs. Sherman, retired National president, to get the club women of the United States interested in the home, and then went on and explained how Mrs. Sippel was expanding this idea to apply to the community, for the community is only an enlarged family where many individuals live.

"We must give the raural people an opportunity to develop leadership in their own communities," Mrs. Warner declared. "If we do not, the rural homes will disintegrate, and we can help protect them from this danger. I know that the women in the country want to know their sisters in the city, and that the women in the cities and small towns want to know them although I have been told that they can never be brought together. On my part I believe they can, and I intend to devote my time to that end."

Mrs. Warner complimented the splendid work of the Home Demonstration Clubs and said that the Press, the Chambers of Commerce and the Government were all backing this work, and that the Federated Clubs should get busy of they would lose their point of contact, even though they were the agency that had brought the Demonstration Clubs into existence.

She also mentioned the part played by the newspapers in developing a feeling of good will between the women in town and in the country, and said that she believed the work of the Wellington Leader had played a vital part in developing the friendly feeling that now exists between the rural women and the town women of Collingsworth county.

The meeting of the county federation was called to order by Mrs. H. A. Winkler, president of the organization. Minutes were read by Mrs. S. G. Henry, secretary, followed by the critic's report which was given by Miss Katherine Boverie. Mrs. R. L. Templeton reported from the treasury after which Miss Boverie gave a report from the county library.

The women at this time elected a delegate to the state meeting. Mrs. H. A. Winkler was chosen as delegate, with Mrs. Claud Thompson as alternate.

Following a report from each club included in the county federation, Mrs. Jack B. Deahl played a piano solo, after which Miss Rose Starkey read "The Way of a Girl."

Mrs. G. Ward Moody then favored the meeting with a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Hermina Stover. Miss Argen Hix played Romance in A, by Thurlow Lieurance as a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Edwards.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, president of the city federation, after which Mrs. S. P. Buster introduced Mrs. Warner who delivered her address on rural cooperation.

At the close of the program, refreshments were served to all present by the Plymouth home demonstration club.

Sport Dopesters are Beginning to Pick the Winners in Football Now

State University is Favored to Win Conference Title

DALLAS, Oct. 9.—Scarcely has the 1928 football season in the Southwest got underway before sport dopsters begin predicting the winners, two months hence.

Although there are no comparative scores upon which to base the predictions, Texas University is doped to win the Southwest Conference title, with Southern Methodist University a close second. The Longhorn school is given the preference only because the schedule calls for the playing of her most important games on her home grounds.

Texas plays Arkansas, Southern Methodist and Texas A. & M. at Austin. She is conceded to win over Baylor at Waco and Rice at Houston. The probable outcome of the Baylor game at Waco might be questioned by other sport writers, however, because the Bears are known to fight and fight hard on their home field.

The week preceding the Texas-S. M. U. game, Texas plays Rice at Houston, while S. M. U. plays Trinity at Dallas, a non conference game. In former games with Rice, the Owls have upset the championship hopes of Texas and always there have been players sent to the bench because of injuries. The Owls are a tough bunch to play, at least Texas should think so. S. M. U. will invade the Longhorn stronghold with her full strength.

Texas A. & M., given third place in the conference standing is conceded to win over T. C. U. and Rice at College Station and Arkansas at Fayetteville. Not much is known of T. C. U.'s potential strength and the Horned Frogs might spring a surprise on the Aggies. Likewise, Arkansas, playing on her home field, will be hard to beat. Although Mississippi handed the Razorbacks a drubbing last week, 25 to 0, they were minus their star quarterback, the mainstay of the Arkansas backfield.

The probable outcome of the Southwest Conference race can be carried no further because the outcome of the remaining games is purely a speculative matter. Baylor might upset the dope and down S. M. U. at Waco. The Bears have the odds in their favor because they scored two more touchdowns against Denton Normal than did the Mustangs.

In the Texas Conference, preseason dope, the only kind that is available now, favors the race to be narrowed to Simmons, Trinnity, Southwestern and Howard Payne.

Howard Payne, Trinity and Southwestern have seen action against Southwest conference teams. Their performances were very creditabe and the Southwest members were forced to use a "Classy" brand of football to overcome them.

Simmons has the best outlook of the four because of the excess of material which Coach Frank Bridges has to choose from. It is said to be the best at the University in years. Bridges has hopes of getting into the Southwest Conference in the event Arkansas is dropped. The possibility of this, however, is slight. If the Southwest Conference is ever reduced to six members, the chances are that it will remain that way. The goal of the Southwestern members is toward a more compact organization. Admitting Simmons would not help the conference.

The race in both conferences is apt to be very close. There does not appear to be any outstanding team in either conference. One consilation, unlike baseball. the race is not over until the final games are played on Thanksgiving. Not until then can the preseason predictions be corrected.

Intersectional tilts which have been booked, coupled with conference games, promises this section the best program of football games ever to be seen in years.

Highway Body Holds Meet at Pampa Friday

The Panhandle Highway Association took one more step to complete its organization at a meeting of the By-Laws and Constitution and Nomination Committees at Pampa last Friday, September 28. The By-Laws and Constitution were drawn up and the following men were nominated to hold office for the ensuing year:

Judge A. A. Callahan of Panhandle, president; vice-presidents, L. A. McAdams, Canadian; Judge A. C. Hoffman, Memphis; S. B. Hale, Spearman; C. W. Warwick, Canyon, and C. H. Walker, Dalhart; secretary-treasurer, Geo. W. Briggs, Pampa.

The purpose of this association is given in the preamble of the constitution, which is as follows:

'The present rapid growth of the cities in the Panhandle of Texas and the tremendous immigration now settling therein makes it imperative that immediate attention be given to our Highway system, and we believe that this can be better obtained through the organization of a Panhandle Highway Association, and we further believe that if united in a common purpose, greater and quicker results can be obtained.

Therefore, the purpose of this association shall be:

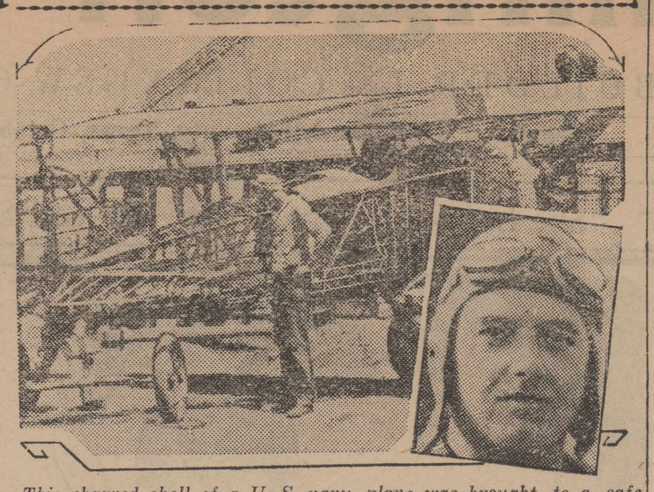

1. To promote a coodinated system of highways in the Panhandle of Texas, comprising 26 counties as follows: Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Hall and Childress.

2. To cooperate with the county commissioners court of the various member counties and State Highway Commission in the location, development and construction of a system of highways in the Panhandle."

The committee decided to call a ratification meeting of all the road enthusiasts of the Panhandle to meet at Borger, at the Black Hotel, October 23, at 11 o'clock. At this meeting the constitution will be discussed and ratified with any changes necessary and officers elected. Plans will also be outlined for an active campaign in the Panhandle "to get the Panhandle out of the mud."

Miss Eunice Griggs visited in Clarendon with her parents last week-end.

WHY SPEND ENDLESS HOURS In Your Kitchen

Few women in this modern age do their own canning, but even fewer do their own baking. And why should they? Isn't it easier to buy fresh, pure bread and pastries every day than it is to spend hours of drudgery in a hot kitchen?

And it isn't only easier, but it is MORE ECONOMICAL. You can actually save money if you buy all your baked products here, because you can get your finished, appetizing and delicious products CHEAPER than the ingredients.

Farm Women Meet in Group

Two demonstrations were given at 2:00 p. m. Saturday at the Jackson county court house in Altus for members of the federated farm women's clubs. Miss Emma Burgess, home demonstration agent sponsored the work.

First a lesson was given on how to conduct a club meeting. "I believe many women in various communities would not object serving as president, secretary or any other if they always knew what would be expected of them. This problem was solved at this meeting Saturday," Miss Burgess said.

This demonstration was followed by a demonstration on tomato catsup and green tomato pickles.

Mrs. F. B. Baker, Pleasant Point, who was the county delegate to the state fair school also gave a report of her findings while at Oklahoma City.

"There are some lessons that need to come before our club members that it is impossible to give out in each local community, due to equipment, place of meeting and other such reasons, therefore, it has been agreed by various delegates who were in the office last Saturday to have me give county-wide demonstrations on various subjects, such as: preparation and serving of meals. The members decided that it will be best for me to stay away from the adult club meetings in various communities for the next six weeks and give some of these county wide programs," Miss Burgess continued.

Similar demonstrations will be given each Saturday during the next few weeks. Between 75 and 100 people are expected to attend the meetings in Altus each Saturday afternoon.

What Has Business to Expect From Alfred E. Smith?

(By JOHN J. RASKOB)

In all of its diversified industries and commerce honest business has no truer friend than the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Honest business might comb the country from coast to coast and find no stauncher protector.

No man in public life in the past ten years has equalled Governor Smith's capacity for handling large business affairs or exceeding his understanding of the relationship between the security of business and the prosperity of the whole country.

A great many business men are aware, either from personal acquaintenceship with Governor Smith, or through their study of his career, that all this is true, and they have turned from long-time affiliations with the Republican Party to align themselves in the Governor's support.

There is nothing that a business man values more highly than integrity and honesty, with courage and ability, are the hallmarks of Alfred E. Smith. Governor Smith has never been known to break a promise or evade a pledge. In the most literal sense his word is his bond. With him there is no such thing as a political promise—a promise given to attract support—a cheap, deceitful, vote getting artifice. This fact is recognized by his political opponents as well as by his friends. As Governor Smith of New York, he has made many appointments requiring Senate confirmation as President Coolidge has made, I suppose, and only once in the eight years of his Governorship has he had a Democratic Senate to send his appointments to. Yet there is not a single instance where the Senate failed to confirm. Nor is there a single instance in the whole eight years of the Republican legislature passing a bill over his veto. All of this means something to the business man. It means honesty, courage, adherence to the pledged word, the gift of selecting men eminently qualified for holding office, wise leadership.

The Governor knows that this country is committed to a high standard of living which requires high wage rates. High wage rates makes production costlier in the United States than it is abroad. Therefore, we must have tarriff protection. Alfred E. Smith comprehends this as clearly at I comprehend it, or as any other business man comprehends it. He knows that high wages, both in industry and in agriculture, and a fair return on Capital employed in both, spell increased purchasing power. Purchasing power is the basis of all prosperity. High wages means increased consumption. Increased consumption means increased production. Increased production means increased employment. Increased employment means high wages. And thus the cycle of prosperity is completed. No man in public life has a clearer understanding than Governor Smith of these economic principles. No man would be less likely to disturb the very base of the country's prosperity.

He could not have been Governor of New York for eight years unless the business interests of the State—the multitude of small business men as well as the big ones—had acquired confidence in his judgment and intentions. He could not have been reelected time after time unless the wide business interests of the State had not correctly estimated his conception and grasp of the fundamentals upon which business depends. Business in New York has quietly observed Alfred E. Smith for a good many years and has learned not only to trust him but to follow him with entire confidence in his leadership. It has seen him transform the insurance and banking departments of the state government, eliminating scandal, waste, incompetency and public distrust. It has seen him introduce common sense and modern business practices into state government. It has seen him seize upon and carry through vast financial projects of government with a sure grasp of the practical possibilities and the business realities. It has seen him face problem after problem and successfully solve every one of them, keeping his feet on the ground and always facing the facts. That is one thing that business men who know Governor Smith like best about him—his fearlessness in facing the actual facts around him. This is intellectual honesty of the first water, and none too common. Business men never fear their ability to handle any situation provided they can have all the facts. Governor Smith is like that. He insists on dealing in facts rather than fancies or hopes. He is no dreamer in the business of government or the eighteen departments whose heads are responsible to the Governor.

Another very important business accomplishment which must be put to the credit of Governor Smith was his reorganiaztion and reconstruction of the machinery of the State's government. By that reorganization 187 departments and agencies, with wasteful, overlapping and confusing functions, were consolidated into Until that business reform was brought about the State's business handled just about the way it had been handled a half century before. The Governor realized that the consolidation and reorganization of the multiplicity of separate and independent state agencies was an absolute necessity in meeting the trend of modern business. The trend of modern business is to centralize and to fix responsibility upon department heads. More and more, emphasis is laid upon centralization and responsible management as a principal factor of business succuess. The trend of modern business is to cut down overhead expense. It is relatively as important in the affairs of the great business corporation known at the State of New York as it is in the affairs of that other vast business corporation, the United States of America.

If he is elected president he will do something that should have been done years ago, that has been persistently avoided and neglected, because of politics. That is, the reorganization and reconstruction of the activities of the United States Government. With the aid of Congress, Governor Smith would effect a real reorganization and consolidation of government activities, putting them upon a real business basis, and instituting the true economy which comes comes from prudent expenditure. He will do it in Washington what he has done in New York—put modern business principles and practices into the government. thereby doing away with waste and improving efficiency. Time and again he has saved large sums of money for the State of New York by his knowledge of real estate values and his business sense, cutting down expenditures for rents while providing ampler quarters.

Governor Smith said only recently: "Everywhere the demand grows more insistent that government be placed upon a sounder business basis that has theretofore been obtained. A wasteful inefficient government cannot meet the demands of the people. It is not responsible. The problems, of government which permit of political division are, after all, very few. But unfortunately partisan advantage is often sought by injecting politics into what should be the strictly business questions of government; problems that ought really be solved only on the basis of what is best for the people, and not upon the basis of what is best for the politicians. So far as I, myself am concerned, I have invariably, over a long period of years, concerned myself almost altogether with a strictly business handling of State affairs. That, with its underlying human basis, I hold to be the very essential of good government. I have invariably regarded myself as the responsible head of a great corporation. charged with the duty of reporting from time to time to the stockholders, and concerned at all times with and

Since Governor Smith, as business men in New York are perfectly aware, has at all times been concerned with and for the prosperity of part of the people in one state, it is not conceivable that President Smith would assume different attitude toward the prosperity of all the people in all the states.

"For a while I suffered with bad pains in my back and sides. At times, these would distress me so I would seem past going.

"We had known of Cardui in our family for a long time, so I thought I would try taking it. I soon began to improve. I grew strong and well, and was able to resume my household duties without the least inconvenience."

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

Diagram showing water currents through radiator. Inset—Thermostat controlling water temperature.

IMPROVED COLD WEATHER PERFORMANCE Resulting from the

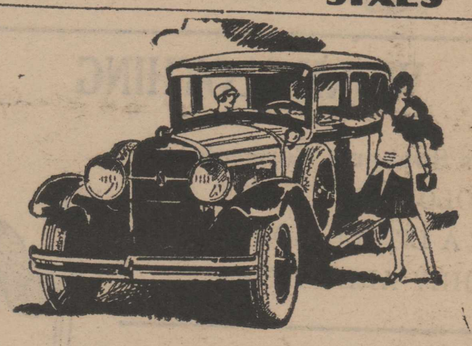

CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR

The cross-flow radiators in the cooling systems of the Pontiac Six and the Oakland All-American Six reduce to a minimum the evaporation of water and alcohol. An automatic thermostat prevents water circulation until the engine reaches correct operating temperature. As a consequence the engine warms up quickly and less choking is needed, reducing dilution of crankcase oil. Because of the protection the cross-flow radiator provides against losses of water and alcohol, the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six require less attention in winter than other cars. Also, through their thermostatic control, they reveal far better performance than other cars in their fields when the temperature is low . . . The cross-flow radiator is available only on the Pontiac Six and the All-American Six. Come in and see it.
