Police load empty crates onto a truck at London's Heathrow Airport Thursday after a former Nigerian minister, Umaru Dikko, and two other men were discovered inside crates marked "Diplomatic Baggage." Dikko is considered Nigeria's "most wanted man."

Reagan says 'they're not going to win'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — President Reagan, campaigning in one of the key battlegrounds of the 1984 presidential race, today accused liberal Democrats of trying to block his administration's policies but said, "Here's a flash from the Gipper — they're not going to win."

Opening a new assault against Democrats controlling the House of Representatives, Reagan said, "This is the same liberal leadership that has done nothing but stand in the way of initiatives the American people want and need."

In a speech billed by the White House as non-political but steeped in partisan rhetoric, Reagan addressed the Texas Bar Association convention in the hometown of Mayor Henry Cisneros, one of the half-dozen people interviewed by Walter Mondale as a potential mate.

Reagan accused House Democrats of blocking action on a long-stalled package of anti-crime legislation, constitutional amendments requiring a balanced federal budget and allowing voluntary prayer in public schools, tuition tax credits and other economic programs.

"The liberals in the House can stand in the way again if they want to, just as they did when they opposed spending cuts and tax cuts, rebuilding our military strength or helping El Salvador and other nations resist totalitarian rule," Reagan said in his prepared text.

"But they didn't win then — and here's a flash from the Gipper — they're not going to win now."

It was a rare public mention by the president of a nickname he earned in his Hollywood days in the film "Knute Rockne All American" when, as a dying Notre Dame football player named George Gipp, he voiced a rallying cry for the team to someday "win one for the Gipper."

Reagan's political strategists are nervous about Texas, a key state that carries 27 electoral votes, one-tenth of the 270 needed to win the White House. Although Reagan won Texas easily in 1980, his advisers refuse to predict a repeat performance.

In his speech, Reagan told the audience, "It wasn't long ago, after all, when our national economy was in its worse mess in years, when our national security was badly endangered — endangered not only by Soviet expansionism and a massive Soviet arms buildup but even by threats and aggressions from tiny nations run by bullying despots and dictators."

"From Washington," he said, "we heard only an elaborate and disheartening series of excuses about our national and international problems: we were told those problems were basically insoluble; that we had to accommodate ourselves to stagflation, to limitations on growth, to living with less."

Reagan said "there was a breakdown in America" but that it was a breakdown among politicians and bureaucrats.

The president said his administration has spent much of its time "on those twin crises we inherited on entering office: the crisis of our economy and our national security."

"But now that our economic expansion is well underway, now that America's international prestige and security are being enhanced and restored, I've had the chance to report on another crisis that we have been working on quietly but effectively, one that I know deeply concerns all of you: the crisis of crime in America," Reagan said.

Under his administration, Reagan said, crime dropped 4.3 percent in 1982 and seven percent in 1983.

In 1980 Reagan carried Texas by a margin of 55 percent to 41 percent over Jimmy Carter. Two years later, however, voters ousted a Republican governor, Bill Clements, and installed Democrat Mark White.

Nigerian exile found in crate

LONDON (AP) — Nigerian authorities forced a British airliner to return to Nigeria today, a day after a prominent Nigerian exile wanted by his government was kidnapped and found drugged in a crate at a London airport, British officials said.

The 222 passengers and 22 crew members on the British Caledonian flight to London were reported safe at Lagos Airport, an airline spokesman said. Nigeria's military government said the plane was ordered to return for "security reasons," but did not elaborate.

Home Secretary Leon Brittan told Parliament today that a crate found Thursday containing former Nigerian Transport Minister Umaru Dikko in a drug-induced stupor, was addressed to the Nigerian Foreign Ministry in Lagos from the Nigerian Embassy in London.

Dikko, who vowed to launch a holy war against the military government that seized power in Nigeria in a New Year's Eve coup, has been described as the West Africa nation's "most wanted man."

Nigerian Ambassador Maj. Gen. Halidu Hannaniya denied his government was responsible for Dikko's abduction. After being summoned by British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe for explanations, he told reporters "some patriotic friends of Nigeria" must have been to blame.

A second crate was found Thursday at the Stansted airport 30 miles northeast of London, according to the British news agency Press Association. The second crate, also awaiting shipment to the Nigerian capital, held two Israeli citizens working as mercenaries, the agency said.

The crates did not have the papers and escort needed to give them diplomatic immunity and they were opened by customs officials, Brittan told Parliament.

Brittan said 17 people, including the two in the second crate and another man found in the box containing Dikko, were being questioned.

The home secretary did not mention involvement by any Israelis, and Scotland Yard declined to comment on the Press Association report.

Dikko, 47, was reported in satisfactory condition at Herts and Essex Hospital outside London, and doctors were trying to find out what drug he was given. The hospital was heavily guarded.

Kenneth Fuller, the hospital's acting unit administrator, said Dikko arrived in "poorly condition" but regained consciousness overnight.

"We are well aware of the background in Nigeria and the possibility that the military regime there may be in some way involved," the Times of London quoted an unidentified Scotland Yard official as saying. Police have refused to make a detailed statement about Dikko's case.

The London Daily Mail said British officials believed Hannaniya was not personally involved in the case. When Dikko was abducted Thursday, Hannaniya was eating lunch at the Foreign Office as the guest of the minister of state, Malcolm Rifkind.

Smith, Painter controversy heats up over nickname

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

What seems to be a novel term in politics has cropped in the Midland County sheriff's race.

It's "Thumper."

To Gary Painter, it's an affectionate term applicable to him and to a big-hearted, big-footed loveable rabbit in the Walt Disney movie "Bambi."

To Sheriff Dallas Smith, the name Thumper connotes something else. "I think the nickname is obvious," Smith said, as he read a prepared statement at a press conference this morning in which he noted "Mr. Painter is the only (Midland County) sheriff's officer that has been sued for pistol whipping a person."

The nickname tuggle appears to be another controversary in the old race between Painter, a 37-year-old former patrol lieutenant for the sheriff, and Smith, 41, sheriff since 1977.

Painter garnered 60.5 percent of the 9,593 votes cast for sheriff in the May 5 Republican Party primary election. Smith, who had exuded confidence of a victory, drew 39.5 percent but is considering mounting a write-in campaign for the Nov. 6 general election to recoup his $35,000 job.

Painter claims Smith lost the election because the citizens wanted another sheriff and because the sheriff — who engineered a low-key campaign — did not respond to issues which Painter had addressed, that morale on the sheriff's 51-deputy force was low, and that Smith was overly confident of victory. The sheriff claims his nemesis was widespread rumors that he was a wife beater, which he says are untrue.

AS THE PAINTER-SMITH battle wears on, Midland Police Department Detective Sgt. Joe Carr, 44, is running for sheriff on the Democratic Party's ticket.

In a news conference Thursday afternoon in the Midland Center, Painter publicly introduced his nicknames "Thumper" and "Moose" to news reporters after he said sheriff's Lt. Bill Decker "voluntarily" drove to Marfa last Monday to determine the origin of the "Thumper" nickname.

Painter, a former Texas Department of Public Safety trooper, was chief deputy for Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson of Marfa for 5½ years from 1973 to 1978.

"If those are the things they want to do, that's their business," Painter said of the probe. "I have nothing to hide. The Lord is on my side. He's been with me the all the way, and I am not afraid of anybody."

Painter said Thompson tagged him with the "Thumper" nickname "because of my size." Painter, who is 6-foot-5 and weighs between 240 and 250 pounds, had included the nickname on his personnel record when he applied for a deputy's job with the Midland County Sheriff's Office in mid-1982, the sheriff said in reviewing Painter's records.

"THERE'S NOTHING there to embarrass or hurt me," Painter said. "It ('Thumper') is an affectionate nickname."

He said he was given the "Moose" nickname "because of the way I blew my nose" when he was a high school student in Plainview in the early to mid-1960s. He was graduated in 1965.

Smith said Decker volunteered to go to Marfa, which is about 200 miles southwest of Midland in mountainous ranching country, to check into Painter's nickname. He said Thompson apparently was indignant over the questioning and greeted Decker in "a rather irritable manner" and poked him in the chest. To avoid any suspicion of impropriety or possible misuse of taxpayers' funds, Smith said Decker drove to Marfa in his own car, took leave to do it, and paid his own expenses by cash and personal credit cards.

Unemployment rate reaches four-year low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment tumbled to 7.1 percent in June, the lowest in more than four years, as 460,000 Americans found jobs, the government reported today.

The 0.4 percentage point drop in the seasonally adjusted rate, the steepest plunge since unemployment fell from 8.8 percent to 8.4 percent from October to November last year, took this key economic indicator to its lowest ebb since April 1980.

At that time, unemployment stood at 6.9 percent.

Last month's good news from the Labor Department was spread across all population groups, with black Americans, whose unemployment has been more severe than that of whites, enjoying the strongest improvement.

An alternative unemployment rate, which combines the 113.8-million member civilian labor force with the 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, fell by a commensurate amount to 7.0 percent.

The total number of the civilian employed — 105,748,000 — was an all-time high. In June, the roster of those categorized as unemployed shrunk by 384,000 to 8,130,000.

Since November 1982, when unemployment reached a post-Depression peak of 10.7 percent with more than 12 million out of work, the economic recovery has generated more than 6.5 million jobs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics figures show.

Sikh militants release 250 people aboard hijacked Indian airliner

EDITOR'S NOTE: Associated Press reporter Stephen R. Wilson was aboard the hijacked Indian Airlines plane.

By STEPHEN R. WILSON
The Associated Press

LAHORE, Pakistan — More than 250 people held hostage for 20 hours in a hijacked Indian Airlines plane were freed today when Sikh militants surrendered unconditionally to Pakistani authorities.

The government said eight hijackers, who had threatened to blow up the plane and everyone aboard, were taken into custody. This reporter, a passenger on the flight, counted nine hijackers.

The hijackers fired shots through the cockpit door when they took over the plane Thursday, wounding the flight engineer in the back and stabbing him as he tried to resist. Details of his injuries and condition were not known, but he was seen standing outside the aircraft after the hijackers surrendered.

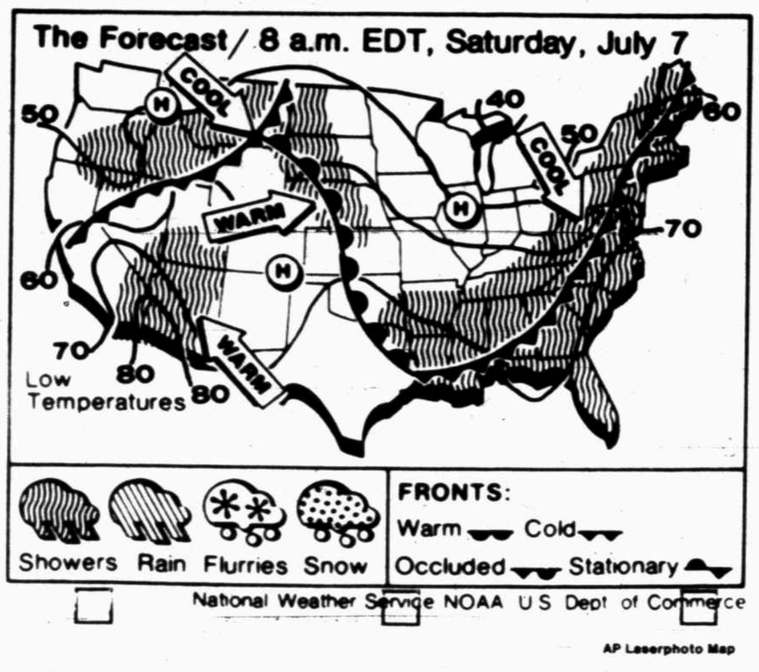

The hijackers seized the jet on a flight from Srinagar to New Delhi, threatening to blow it up unless the Indian government met a series of demands, including the release of all Sikhs arrested during recently in Amritsar and throughout the northern state of Punjab.

The airline said there were 255 passengers listed for the domestic Indian flight, presumably including the hijackers, in addition to a crew of nine. All of those freed were taken to an airport lounge, and Pakistan said it would provide a plane to return them to India today.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for Saturday for much of the country.

Weekend in Permian Basin expected to be fair, sunny

It has only been two days since the Independence Day holiday, but the weekend is already upon us, and those who haven't yet lost the holiday spirit can pick up where they left off Wednesday and continue their celebrations under sunny skies.

Tonight will be fair, with a low near 70 and winds from the southeast at 5-10 mph. Saturday will be hot and sunny, with a high in the upper 90s and winds from the south at 10-15 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Thursday's high of 95 was 9 degrees below the record 104 set in 1971, while the overnight low of 70 was 13 degrees higher than the 1931 record of 57.

STATE

Except for isolated showers off the upper Texas coast and a few partly cloudy skies in parts of South Texas, fair skies dominated the state's weather picture today.

A weak high pressure system over the northwest Gulf of Mexico continued to control most of the weather pattern over the state, the National Weather Service said.

Winds were blowing from the south and southeast across much of the state at speeds generally in the 5 to 15 mph range.

Temperatures were mainly in the mid to upper 70s except in the 60s over the Panhandle and the mountainous southwest. Early morning extremes ranged from 67 at Amarillo to 80 at Del Rio, Galveston, Laredo and Wichita Falls.

Fair to partly cloudy skies are expected through Saturday along with hot afternoon temperatures.

NATION

Violent thunderstorms carrying 60 mph winds and up to 2 inches of rain hammered the eastern half of the nation today from Georgia to Maine, while the Southwest sizzled under a relentless summer sun.

Scattered thunderstorms accompanied by hail and high winds also rattled the Plains and Great Lakes states early today.

At least 17 homes were damaged in Lehigh County, Pa., on Thursday as violent winds roared through eastern Pennsyvlania, while Philadelphia was drenched overnight with 2 inches of rain in less than two hours.

"It looked liked a battleground," said Lehigh County Civil Defense Director Jerry Duckett. "Trees were uprooted, branches down, wires were down all over. It runs from minor damage to complete roofs taken off."

Across the nation in Phoenix, Ariz., the mercury stood at 99 at 3 a.m. EDT, with an afternoon high expected to reach about 110.

In Massachusetts, a tornado touched down Thursday afternoon in New Salem, damaging some buildings, closing a road and uprooting trees and utility poles, authorities said.

Mondale meets with New York governor

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale's parade of vice presidential prospects lengthens today, even as New York Gov. Mario Cuomo publicly advised the apparent Democratic presidential nominee to bring the procession to a halt and pick his running mate.

With a morning session, Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins becomes the seventh person — and the third woman — that Mondale has interviewed at his Minnesota home. The others include two black men, a Hispanic man and one white man.

Mondale aides said no other interviews are scheduled. But Mondale has left the door open to name someone, such as presidential rival Gary Hart, who has not come to Minnesota for an interview.

Cuomo said Thursday that the well-publicized search for a vice presidential candidate and the resulting pressures from various interest groups is distracting the Democratic Party at a time when it should be uniting for the fall campaign against President Reagan.

Meanwhile, Hart said in an interview in today's editions of The Denver Post that Mondale's meetings reminded him of a movie with "one of everything in a lifeboat, including a kid who played the harmonica."

"The tradition has been...to do this more behind closed doors," the Colorado senator said. He said former President Jimmy Carter broke that tradition to symbolize his role as an outsider and that Mondale "has followed the example without the reason."

"Being an insider, he didn't need to demonstrate his independence from the political establishment," Hart said in the copyright interview with the newspaper's reporters and editors. He said Mondale's meetings have had "two down sides."

Hart stressed he does not seek the vice presidential nomination but said it would be "very difficult" to say no if it were offered. He said he would not want to be a "traditional vice president."

"I would want to play a significant role in some policy-making area, probably arms control...that is the area that I'm most interested in and it's the most overwhelming issue of our time."

Cuomo delivered his opinion in person in a meeting with Mondale in Boston.

"My instinct and judgment is that it would be best to make an early commitment to a vice presidential selection before the convention," Cuomo said after he and Mondale met at Logan Airport.

Mondale had flown east for the day to attend a fund-raiser which brought his campaign $225,000.

Before Cuomo arrived, Mondale said, "I hope to have my decision made by the time the convention convenes."

Mondale's aides deflect criticism of the vice presidential selection process, saying the exercise reflects Mondale's desire to expand the party.

In addition, Mondale simply is commited to the process of interviews.

Cuomo will deliver the keynote address at the Democratic National Convention, which opens in San Francisco in 10 days, and some party leaders have touted Cuomo as a possible running mate for Mondale.

But the governor repeatedly has insisted that he intends to serve out his term as New York's chief executive.

Mondale said that he and Cuomo met to discuss the convention keynote address and strategy for the upcoming presidential campaign.

Hart, still holding out hope for the presidential nomination, said Thursday that he is considering more than 25 people as potential vice presidential running mates. But he said he will make no public statements about a choice until the convention.

The third presidential hopeful, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, defended on Thursday his trips to Central America and Syria as having broken no law and charged the Reagan administration with using "diversionary political rhetoric" to question them.

Reagan has discouraged Jackson from going to the Soviet Union and seeking the release of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, and he has noted that the Logan Act prohibits American citizens from conducting negotiations with foreign governments.

Jackson said he still intends to visit the Soviet Union and South Africa, possibly before the general election in November, if he can obtain a visa.

NICKNAME

Smith said Decker would be reimbursed with Smith's campaign funds.

Smith is suggesting Painter should be embarrassed and that there is more than affection to the "Thumper" nickname.

Smith noted that Painter had hit — allegedly by "pistol whipping" — an 18-year-old Odessan, Michael Charles Scott, after Scott's car had struck Painter's fence on Aug. 23, 1983, following a chase. Scott subsequently was charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI), was acquitted last week in a jury trial in Midland County Court-at-Law, and filed a civil suit for damages against Painter, who, at time of Scott's arrest, was the sheriff's patrol lieutenant. Painter did not resign his post until last Feb. 6 just before he tendered his filing for candidacy as sheriff.

SMITH NOTED that Painter admitted striking the "young man, who weighed 150 pounds, with the pistol," and also said Painter had been the object of civil rights investigations.

In Scott's misdemeanor DWI trial, Painter, the sheriff said, admitted that he had "hit the youth in the back of the head with a pistol," that "the FBI had investigated him several times for civil rights violations," and that Painter "had been given the nickname 'Thumper.'"

"Why is it," asked Smith, "that a 245-pound officer who hits a 150-pound youth with a pistol during a misdemeanor arrest happens to have the nickname of 'Thumper'? Why is it that an officer who has had at least several FBI civil rights investigations happens to have a nickname of 'Thumper'?"

Painter today said that the Sheriff's Department held an investigation, "which cleared me of all charges," into the pistol-whipping allegations.

"Dallas himself made a public comment that I put everything in my report the way it happened and that he could not find where I had done wrong."

"There's nothing there," Painter said. "If I had violated the law, don't you think Dallas would have done something about it?" Painter said he had testified before the grand jury on the Aug. 23 incident, that Scott was indicted by a grand jury for aggravated assault on a peace officer but that the indictment later was dismissed on a motion by the District Attorney's Office.

Painter acknowledged that he had been investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for alleged civil rights violations. However, he said those allegations came during the early 1970s "when civil rights suits were prevalent" but were not substantiated.

"I have never been charged or disciplined in any way," he said.

Painter said the FBI investigated him in the early 1970s after he and another DPS trooper had arrested three long-haired young men who were trying to hitch a ride on Interstate Highway 20 near Pecos. One dropped or discarded a bag of marijuana. Once jailed the three men were given haircuts in the Reeves County Jail for "sanitation" reasons and to get rid of any body lice, Painter said. Their hair was "ugly looking," he recalled. The investigation came after the father of one of the young men complained that his son's civil rights were violated by his getting a forced haircut.

Painter said he does not intend to engage in any "smear campaign" tactics but will respond to questions. He called the sheriff "a professional politician."

"I've never run a smear campaign in the past," the sheriff said this morning. "I don't plan to. Smear campaigns are not popular."

Painter said that Smith as sheriff has been the object of civil rights lawsuits brought by county prisoners.

"I could bring up incidences about Dallas whipping somebody on more than one instance," he said. He certainly hasn't got any right to throw rocks at anybody."

Meanwhile, Painter, who predicted his "landslide" victory in November, said he is ready to take on Smith's challenge.

"It doesn't bother me if Dallas Smith wants to run a write-in campaign. If Dallas wants to run a write-in, I'm ready."

However, he speculated that a write-in campaign would "draw votes from me, and it would be devastating for the party" and indicated it would help Carr's chances of winning the election.

"I would greatly appreciate his (Smith's) support and the support of his followers," Painter said. "If he doesn't want to do it, that's fine with me."

CRATE

British Caledonian spokesman Tony Cocklin said the Boeing 747 was ordered to return to Lagos Airport by Nigerian air traffic control 45 minutes after it took off late Thursday. The aircraft arrived back at the airport at about 11 p.m. (5 p.m. CDT) and the passengers were being kept at the terminal, Cocklin said.

"We have had no official explanation whatsoever," Cocklin said. "The passengers are being treated courteously. Apart from the fact that they are being held, we have no fears for their safety."

The British ambassador to Lagos, Hamilton Whyte, was meeting with the Nigerian foreign minister to demand the plane's release.

Brittan warned that "failure to release the plane very promptly indeed is bound to be treated as a very serious matter."

The forced landing came less than 12 hours after two men were seen pushing Dikko into a yellow van outside his house in Bayswater, central London, at about 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Brittan said. The two crates reached Stansted airport for shipment to Lagos on a Nigeria Airways cargo plane about three hours later, the home secretary said.

The British Broadcasting Corp. said a Nigerian Embassy official supervising the loading of cargo onto the plane told customs officials the crates were diplomatic baggage, although they were not labeled as such.

Customs officers telephoned the Foreign Office and reported doubts about the diplomatic consignment, Press Association said.

Brittan said a Nigerian Embassy staff member, a Mr. Edet, was asked to observe the opening of the crates. An O. Edet is listed in the diplomatic register as an attache.

Dikko was found with a man who was conscious and in possession of "drugs and syringes," Brittan said. The two men found in the other crate also were conscious, he said. Brittan said none of the three conscious men had claimed diplomatic immunity.

Dikko was a close adviser to former Nigerian President Shehu Shagari. The Sunday Observer newspaper reported in January that his wealth was estimated at $1.4 billion.

He had vowed to overthrow the government of Maj. Gen. Muhammadu Buhari, which overthrew Shagari last Dec. 31. Buhari's government has accused Dikko of taking kickbacks for approving contracts under the former government and has vowed to bring him back for trial.

Dikko was in Nigeria at the time of the coup. He reportedly slipped out through the bush to neighboring Benin and made his way to London. Shagari is under arrest in Nigeria.

HIJACK

The leader of the hijackers said during a conversation on board the plane that they had no explosives. They were armed with two pistols, knives and two axes, and also carried a roll of toilet paper with a string attached, apparently to serve as a decoy bomb.

At one point, the hijackers announced their intention to blow up the plane and asked those on board to say their prayers, according to passenger Anil Anora, who was interviewed by the domestic news agency, Associated Press of Pakistan.

"There was some difference of opinion among the hijackers because one of them wanted to burn the aircraft," said passenger Richard Bonnichsan, a Danish journalist who also was interviewed by the news agency.

Another passenger, Harhajan Singh Longman, claiming to be personal photographer to Indian president Zail Singh, told the news agency the hijackers "were very nice to all the passengers and only wanted to agitate for the cause of the Sikh movement."

A Pakistani military source said the Sikhs would be put on trial in Pakistan on charges of air piracy. The source, who requested anonymity, said they were in custody at a Lahore police station.

The government spokesman said he had no details on the negotiations that led to the surrender of the hijackers.

The spokesman said a Pakistan International Airlines jet would fly the freed passengers and crew from Lahore to New Delhi this afternoon as a goodwill gesture.

Lahore is about 180 miles southeast of Islamabad near the Indian-Pakistani border.

Authorities said the passengers included 158 men, 82 women and 15 children.

Reports indicated there was another American aboard the plane in addition to this reporter, of Washington, D.C., who was returning to The Associated Press office in New Delhi from Srinagar, Kashmir.

A Western diplomat, speaking on condition that his name not be used, said U.S. officials at a consulate in Lahore were in contact with the airport but they were not involved directly in the negotiations.

Press Trust of India, in an unconfirmed report, said the hijackers belong to a suicide squad of Sikh fundamentalist Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale, who was killed last month in the Indian army's assault on the Golden Temple of Amritsar, the Sikhs' holiest shrine.

Last month, Indian army troops assaulted the Golden Temple to clear out armed extremists who authorities said were responsible for hundreds of killings. Officially, 492 of the Sikhs and 92 soldiers died in the attack, but military and police sources put the death toll at more than 1,200.

Troops have been rounding up suspected extremists since then, and on Thursday they killed one man and arrested 57 other people in Punjab, the United News of India said.

Unrest in Punjab and Kashmir have become major problems for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government.

Besides the Sikhs' agitation for greater political and religious autonomy in Punjab, where they are a majority, there has been scattered violence in Kashmir this week because of the firing of Chief Minister Farooq Abdullah by Mrs. Gandhi's administration.

Thursday's hijacking was the ninth of an Indian plane since India's independence from Britain in 1947. The previous three, one in 1981 and two in August 1982, also were by Sikhs.

In each case the Sikhs tried to divert the planes to Lahore. Two of the attempts ended in Amritsar, where one hijacker was shot and killed and another surrendered. Pakistani authorities jailed the hijackers in the third case.

JOBLESS

At the same time, the unemployment rate has plummeted 3.6 percentage points in the speediest post-recession labor market rally since the early 1950s.

In one negative note, the bureau reported that the ranks of the so-called "discouraged workers" remained unchanged at 1.3 million in the year's second quarter. Analysts noted, however, that this total was 500,000 below that recorded at the peak of the recession in the fourth quarter of 1982.

These "discouraged workers" are people shown by government surveys to have abandoned efforts to find jobs because they feel they cannot get work. This pocket of hard-core unemployed is not included in the monthly unemployment rate computation because they are not actively seeking jobs.

Despite the overall up-beat employment report, the Labor Department was picketed by several dozen people protesting that for some Americans things are not so bright.

Frank Slobig, of the Roosevelt Centennial Youth Project, a liberal-oriented group, said that the bad news about about discouraged workers "is going to get buried in the rhetoric of Reagan euphoria about the rising tide carrying the boats. But a lot of people have not yet found the boat."

By and large, the latest employment report was a bright one, however, confirming predictions by private economists and Reagan administration officials that unemployment would continue to recede despite a slow-down in the pace of the general economic recovery.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said last week that he felt joblessness could rall to perhaps 7 percent by the fourth quarter, but the newest figures show that the trend evidently is ahead of his prediction.

"The civilian labor force typically swells in June with the summertime entrance of students and graduates," the bureau noted in its announcement.

"This June, the labor force increased by 2.1 million, with teenagers accounting for most of the gain," it said. "This was essentially in line with seasonal expectations and, thus, after seasonal adjustment, the labor force showed little change over the month."

The decline in unemployment from May to June was concentrated among those who have been out of work from five to 26 weeks, the bureau said, adding that the average duration of unemployment dropped from 8.7 to 7.2 weeks.

A separate survey of business payrolls, not used in the jobless rate calculation, showed that the number of jobs rose by 300,000 in June to 94 million. The bureau said the employment growth was "widespread" as more than 60 percent of 185 industries surveyed showed employment gains.

Construction employment, which has rebounded strongly during the recovery, rose by 75,000 to 4.4 million, "its highest level since the spring of 1980," the bureau said.

Jobless rates declined among all major worker groups last month.

REAGAN

GOP concerns about carrying the state this year have been aggravated by Mondale's consideration of Texans Cisneros and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as running mates if, as seems likely, he wins the Democratic presidential nomination.

One measure of the political importance of the state is that fact that Reagan has made nine trips, including this one, to Texas since winning the presidency.

Today's address was the finale of a three-day trip that also included stops in Florida, Alabama and Michigan. Reagan was returning to Washington this afternoon.

Stores stop selling 'The Italian mob'

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A representative of an Italian-American organization says he's "elated" that the 14 Bamberger's department stores in New Jersey have decided to stop selling clothing labeled "The Italian Mob."

The Sons of Italy "resent the implication of 'The Italian Mob,'" said John Maroccia, a lawyer who heads the group's social justice committee. The maker, Little Lisa Ltd. of New York, has said no offense was intended by the label.

Sons of Italy has suggested changing the label to "The Mob," but Little Lisa officials say that would cause a financial hardship.

Cornell graduate may face death

WILLIMANTIC, Conn. (AP) — An Ivy League graduate could be sentenced to death if found guilty on any one of six murder counts against him stemming from the slayings of six young women.

Michael B. Ross, 24, an insurance agent who attended Cornell University, was charged Thursday before two courts in the death of five young women since 1982. He has been held without bond since June 29, when he was charged with the strangulation murder of a 17-year-old woman.

Ross is charged with capital felony, which includes murder during the course of first-degree sexual assault and murder of a kidnapped person.

Muslim leader draws protest

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An appearance by Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan at the Indiana Black Expo has drawn protests from city and Muslim officials critical of Farrakhan for allegedly making anti-Semitic remarks.

Marion County Prosecutor Stephen Goldsmith refused to participate in today's opening ceremony and Mayor William H. Hudnut III asked his staff not to appear in any official capacity at the event.

Muhammed Siddeeq, a spokesman for the American Muslim Mission, congratulated Hudnut and Goldsmith for speaking out against Farrakhan's appearance. "Islam does not view white people or any people as devils by nature," Siddeeq said.

Seizure may have been warning

NEW YORK (AP) — An American biology professor who says Soviet officials confiscated his belongings and detained him believes the seizure was a warning to Soviet scientists to avoid contact with foreigners.

Hofstra University faculty member Carleton Phillips said he was detained in Leningrad while on a recently ended scientific exchange.

Phillips said Thursday that the timing of his detention coincided with a law effective July 1 that makes it illegal for Soviet citizens to have "social or non-official contact with foreigners."

Claims of sex tapes shade Morgan's death

Pancoast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The blows that crushed the life from Vicki Morgan spawned a seamy sideshow complete with alleged sex tapes, tales of greed and questionable assertions involving the late millionaire Alfred Bloomingdale and Reagan administration officials.

Most of the provocative claims triggered by the beating death remain unsubstantiated, but jurors reached one conclusion Thursday: Marvin Pancoast, Miss Morgan's sometime roommate, was guilty of first-degree murder.

The trial continues with the jury considering whether Pancoast was sane at the time of the July 7, 1983, murder. But questions about Miss Morgan's life, if not her death, will undoubtedly remain.

At the center of the swirling claims and counterclaims was a beautiful ex-model who had unsuccessfully sued Bloomingdale, the department store magnate and friend of President Reagan, for "palimony."

The confession from Pancoast — small, frail and trembling — came within hours after Miss Morgan, 31, was beaten to death with her 14-year-old son's baseball bat in the North Hollywood condominium she and Pancoast shared.

Miss Morgan once easily satisfied what Pancoast described as her craving for riches: As Bloomingdale's mistress, she said, she was given $18,000 a month. In return, she said, she was his therapist, confidante and partner in bizarre sexual escapades.

Her claims came during the hearing of a $10 million palimony suit filed a year before her death. She spoke in court of the 68-year-old Bloomingdale's penchant for binding nude women, beating them and "drooling" as they crawled on the floor.

But their affair ended abruptly when Bloomingdale's wife, Betsy, found out, she said. The money ended, too, and Miss Morgan failed to convince a judge she had a right to continued support.

Bloomingdale's death of cancer in August 1982 crushed any hopes she might have had of appealing to her lover of 12 years.

The sensational details of the 1982 suit regained the spotlight when Miss Morgan was killed. But her death also brought allegations that went beyond any she had made in the palimony trial.

An attorney who stepped into the spotlight and claimed to be representing Pancoast asserted that Miss Morgan had appeared in explicit videotapes of sexual escapades with Bloomingdale, a member of the president's "kitchen cabinet," and members of the Reagan administration.

The tapes "could embarrass everyone, right to the top of the country," Beverly Hills attorney Robert K. Steinberg said.

Pancoast obtained other counsel, but the statement set off a frenzied and ultimately fruitless search for the alleged tapes that took on a great deal of baggage along the way, including:

— Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt's claim that he had copies of the tapes.

— Steinberg's assertion, when pressed to produce the elusive tapes, that they had been stolen by a reporter.

Editorial writer freed after sources appear

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — An editorial writer freed from jail after the sources whose identities he had steadfastly refused to reveal stepped forward voluntarily has vowed to "fight to change this law from a typewriter and sleep at home each night."

Richard Hargraves, 34, was ordered released from St. Clair County Jail by Circuit Judge Roger Scrivner on Thursday after attorneys reached an agreement in the case. He was the first journalist jailed in a civil libel suit in 26 years.

Hargraves was jailed Tuesday for refusing to identify two sources he consulted before writing a 1981 editorial for the Belleville News-Democrat critical of Jerry Costello, chairman of the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors.

In a copyright story in today's News-Democrat, board member Dave Hickey said, "Apparently, I am the source who talked to Rick Hargraves prior to him writing an editorial. ... Apparently Mr. Hargraves is referring to me as one of the people he talked to."

Ed Anderson, another board member, revealed his connection to Hargraves Wednesday night on a St. Louis radio program.

Hargraves, who now works for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, would not say if Anderson and Hickey were the sources.

"I haven't broken my confidentiality pledge at all," he said.

Interviewed by telephone Thursday night, Anderson said he was one of the sources. He said Hargraves recently contacted him and said, "'I may have to go to jail to keep from revealing you.'

Anderson said he didn't know what the libel case was about. "To this day, I have never read that editorial."

Lawyer Amiel Cueto, who represents Costello, said Thursday that he spoke with Hickey and believed him to be the second official Hargraves consulted.

Reached at his home early Friday morning, Hickey refused to discuss the newspaper interview, adding, "Anything else will come out in depositions."

Costello sued Hargraves for libel over the editorial that accused the county board chairman of lying and breaking campaign promises to oppose new taxes not first approved by the voters.

The judge ordered Hargraves released after Cueto said he would not object because he now knew the sources' names.

Of the sources, the judge said: "Had they shown as much bravery as Mr. Hargraves and come forward earlier, this whole incident would have been unnecessary."

Hargraves expressed relief about being freed. "I can now fight to change this law from a typewriter and sleep at home each night," he said.

But he said his victory was a limited one.

Hargraves said that a better balance was needed between First Amendment freedom of the press rights and due process rights.

But Cueto said that argument was a "smoke screen."

Harmon cast as doctor in 'St. Elsewhere'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Mark Harmon got back from making a movie in Israel, he was called in by MTM Enterprises to talk about the role of the baseball manager in "Bay City Blues."

It would have been an ideal role for Harmon, a star quarterback at UCLA and son of legendary football hero Tom Harmon.

As it turned out, the role went to Michael Nouri, and the NBC series about a Class AA minor league baseball team lasted not much longer than a rained-out game. As it also turned out, Harmon's sister, actress Kelly Harmon, was cast as Nouri's love interest.

"They sent me down the hall at MTM to see (executive producer) Bruce Paltrow at 'St. Elsewhere,'" said Harmon. Paltrow cast Harmon as Dr. Robert Caldwell, a surgeon on the staff of St. Eligius Hospital in the NBC medical series.

"They'd planned to introduce Caldwell in the first show but they had never been able to cast the part," said Harmon. "People around me thought 'St. Elsewhere' was pretty much a dead issue. It'd be on three times then go off. But I wanted to do it. My advisers were more excited about 'Bay City Blues,' which was a lark, but I was more excited by 'St. Elsewhere.'

"'St. Elsewhere' was a firm offer. It was one in the hand vs. one in the bush. I'd been watching the show and liked it. The hardest thing at 'St. Elsewhere' is getting the job. You're not likely to be told you're doing a good job because it's expected of you. You're more likely to hear from them if you don't do a good job. Or if you do an extraordinary job.

"In a town where honesty is not a high priority, it's a pleasure for me to be in that cast. You can talk freely to the writers. Egos don't get in the way. It revolves very nicely around a team concept. In contrast to what else I know about network series I appreciate where I am."

After he finished the NBC series "Flamingo Road" nearly three years ago, he did three plays here and a movie in Israel called "Taureg."

"In the movie I played a sort of Dirty Harry on a camel," he said. "It was a real constructive experience for me. Fifteen weeks doing a movie in Burbank is a long time, but 15 weeks on the Dead Sea in the summer is a long, long time."

During the time he was in the plays he worked days as a roofer and at nights he was on the stage. "I was a carpenter before I was an actor and I still try to do it whenever I can. It helps me to keep things in perspective," he said.

Harmon said that in the past season, Caldwell was a surgeon in transition from private practice to trauma surgery at St. Eligius. "His interest is in applying his service to those who need it, as opposed to those who can afford it," he said. "I don't think he realizes how good he is, and he doesn't understand why things don't work out 100 percent of the time."

"St. Elsewhere" is a show with a loyal following, but it has never been able to capture a large rating. NBC, nevertheless, is sticking by this quality production and renewed it for a third year.

In the upcoming season, Caldwell will work on cases involving severely burned patients. Harmon spent some of his free time this spring doing research at the Sherman Oaks Burn Center.

Despite his football talent, Harmon turned down a career in the pros. He graduated from UCLA in 1974.

"I was offered bonus money to show up at camp," he said. "But I always thought I'd stop playing football when it stopped being fun, and it was getting close to that. I'd dreamed since I was a kid of coming through the tunnel wearing UCLA colors. But I figured that part of my life was over, and it was time for something else."

Harmon is an admirer of Gary Cooper. He drives a 1956 pickup truck with the license plate "YUP" and a Porsche with "UH HUH."

"I've watched a lot of his films," said Harmon. "He could do more with 'yup' and 'uh huh' than most people could do with a whole command of words."

Actor will host athletes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Raymond St. Jacques will be among the 65 special envoys who will try to make athletes from 142 nations feel at home during the summer Olympics.

St. Jacques, who starred in such film as "Cotton Comes to Harlem" and "Mr. Moses," will play host to teams from Kenya, Nigeria and Somalia.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	Dble	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

Don't lose control at the bridge table — either of your self or of the hand. Cover the East-West cards with your thumbs and decide how you would play four hearts after West cashes the king-ace of diamonds, felling his partner's queen, and continues with the jack, which you ruff as East sluffs a spade.

North's double of two diamonds was "negative" — i.e., for takeout. South's jump to three hearts was not forcing, but it did show a better than minimum opening bid, and North had an easy raise to game.

Obviously, the hand presents no problem if trumps are 3-2, but what if they split 4-1? If you cross to the queen of spades and take a trump finesse, it wins. You go back to the ace of clubs to repeat the finesse, but now East shows out and, as the cards lie, you cannot recover — down one. Try it.

The winning line after ruffing the third diamond is to play the queen of trumps! If this wins, continue with the 10 of trumps. If the defenders don't take the king, cash the ace and start running the spades. The king of trumps is the third and last trick for the defense.

Best defense is for West to win the second round of trumps and lead another diamond. But you counter by ruffing in hand with the ace, and can then cross to the board with the ace of clubs to draw the last two trumps. Now your hand is high.

You keep control by refusing to release the ace of hearts. If you play that card too soon, the defenders can defeat you either by ruffing a spade, or by setting up a low trump by forcing dummy with a fourth diamond.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge," will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Randall turns guru on NBC

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Randall looks like a cross between some biblical character and one of the cough-drop Smith Brothers in "Off Sides," a TV movie tonight on NBC that might have been entertaining at half the length.

"Off Sides" is at times as tiresome as the subject: a comic confrontation between small-town cops and hippies right after the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Randall is Organimus, an insurance salesman-turned-guru who coaches the Freaks in a showdown football game with the Clearview Police Department — the Pigs. It's an amusing idea, better executed, no doubt, by Jack Epps Jr. in his award-winning short film, "Pigs vs. Freaks."

The game itself — you won't learn the winner here — consumes maybe a third of the two-hour film, and that's fun. Organimus, whose practice sessions might as well have been at the barre, delivers a Rockne-like halftime exhortation that is genuinely funny — though hardly worth the wait.

"What are we," he demands, "a bunch of spineless pacifists?"

Until then, the movie (which appears to have been on the shelf at NBC for some time) lurches along, with an occasional jump-start to keep what is certain to be a dwindling audience interested:

First, Mickey (Adam Baldwin) is coaxed back from Canada, where he has gone to avoid the draft, to play for the Freaks, and that means Janice (Penny Peyser) has to choose between him, her former boyfriend, and Neal, her new one (Grant Goodeve).

Later, Neal, the Freaks' quarterback, bets his father, the chief of police and coach of the Pigs (Eugene Roche), a crewcut on the outcome of the game.

The film is set in 1968, just after the Democratic National Convention (Epps made "Pigs vs. Freaks" in 1970), and Clearview is preparing for a confrontation with the counterculture.

In an effort to avoid further hassle from the cops, Neal challenges one of the policemen, Cheever (Brian Dennehy), to a football game.

Neal agrees to ask Mr. Murchison, who coached the town's Pop Warner League team when he was young, to help prepare the Freaks for the game. Mr. Murchison, he discovers, no longer sells insurance; rather, he runs some kind of commune populated entirely by white-gowned females. He'll coach the team anyway.

Saturday, July 7, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Happy Birthday to you, fashion designer Pierre Cardin, "Doc" Severinsen, Atlanta Braves pitcher Len Barker, attorney William Kunstler, Ringo Starr and the Boston Red Sox' Glenn Hofman! Also born on this date: "Gone With The Wind" director George Cukor and baseball great Satchel Paige. If something isn't working out, cut your losses and try another tack. A new romance begins far from home. Avoid forcing an issue until you have all the evidence you need. October is the best time to form a business partnership. Look for financing outside the family. Go all-out for loved one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep a low profile when family members get together today. Religious teachings help you explain a fact of life to a child. Romance has you on the run. Maintain your composure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Trust your impressions and refuse to let another color your views. Your loved ones need support, not criticism. Withhold judgment on someone's behavior until you know all the facts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A love relationship deepens. You find new contentment when you learn to see things as the way they really are. Concentrate on finding a positive solution to a family dilemma.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Trust mate no matter what you overhear. Your faith in him or her is the key to your staying together. Repay a favor as soon as possible. A close friend offers support.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A political discussion could lead to arguments. Keep your views to yourself at a family dinner. Discuss only non-controversial subjects. Set aside time to write that letter you have been postponing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work harder to achieve your long-range goals. New financial prospects are better than you imagine. Display greater confidence. Let people who are more affectionate into your inner circle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A compromise will help you avoid a family argument. Steer clear of a talkative individual who has designs on your money. Cultivate a friendship with someone who could help your career.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A long-term relationship that seems to be going nowhere merits reappraisal. Help children find ways to amuse themselves while you work. Distant affairs could command your attention later today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A great day for reunions of all types. Get in touch with a former boss if looking for new employment. Stay in the background at a social event. Romance seeks you out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Quiet pursuits hold the greatest appeal today. You find yourself receiving flattering attention from romantic partner. Projects connected with distant places prosper. You could decide to take a special trip.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A confident attitude and positive thinking help you advance your goals. Be on the lookout for a golden financial opportunity. Get accounts in better order to be sure of paying bills on time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You receive exciting news today. Plan a small celebration for your family and closest friends. You find new allies at a neighborhood gathering. Follow up on a brilliant and unusual idea.

Terror network

In a world in which terroristic attacks are increasingly commonplace, it would seem relatively easy to devise a plan for combatting that kind of outlaw activity. It isn't and the world appears to remain helpless to the marauding bands of killers.

The problem with combatting terrorism is multi-faceted. There is no clear-cut definition, first of all, of what constitutes terroristic activity and, thus, no clear-cut consensus against that activity.

Summing up the problem in a recent article, Marvin Leibstone of Hearst Feature Service wrote: "Terrorism is no one-winged bird easy to blow out of the sky with a sling-shot. Veterans of the terrorism war say what the Reagan administration has suggested is sound in principle but has to be focused on the possible."

What President Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz have suggested is creation of a vast information base into which any subscriber nation can tap. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, on the other hand, believes the United Nations should build a global apparatus for the prevention of terrorism and to conduct pre-emptive strikes against perpetrators.

These are plausible suggestions, even though they obviously are not in the final form. One thing is certain. The world can not sit idly by and wait for this "one-winged bird" to shoot it down.

The simple fact that attention is now being given to the terrorism problem is promising. Perhaps that attention will lead to a better definition of terroristic groups and methods for countering their attacks.

License freedom?

The traditional threats to a free press in Latin America, or elsewhere for that matter, are well known — dictatorships, extremists of the left and right, censorship laws and terrorism. Now add a new one — licensing of journalists and their publications.

At last count, 11 Latin nations required nationals and foreigners writing primarily for domestic publications to be licensed, generally by the country's national association of journalists. Several justifications are typically advanced for these licensing laws. Some involve the supposed promotion of "professional standards" for journalists. Others talk of safeguarding journalists by providing them proof of identification.

These are laudable enough goals, but licensing laws are dangerously improper ways to achieve them. A government empowered, in effect, to decide who shall be recognized as a journalist and thus permitted to work as one can also decide who shall be excluded and thus silenced. The same can be said for laws requiring government licenses for newspapers and other publications.

No doubt this fact explains the long-standing support of the Soviet Union, among other totalitarian states and sundry dictatorships, for international licensing of journalists. The Soviets have been trying since 1948 to persuade the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) to sanction, or even attempt enforcing, licensing of all journalists.

The Soviets and their allies within UNESCO cast this as an effort to promote peace and social justice. But their actual motives have more to do with throttling a free press wherever possible, and justifying the absence of any shred of press freedom in places such as the Soviet Union.

It happens that most of the Latin nations now requiring licensing of journalists are democracies — Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica and Peru among them — but that does not diminish the case against this practice.

Putting kids to work

The administration has been pushing the idea that cutting summer wages for young people by 25 percent would help reduce disastrously high levels of unemployment among black teen-agers. New results of a major youth employment program suggest that while lower wages aren't likely to produce many new jobs for inner-city youth, that won't be because these kids don't want to work.

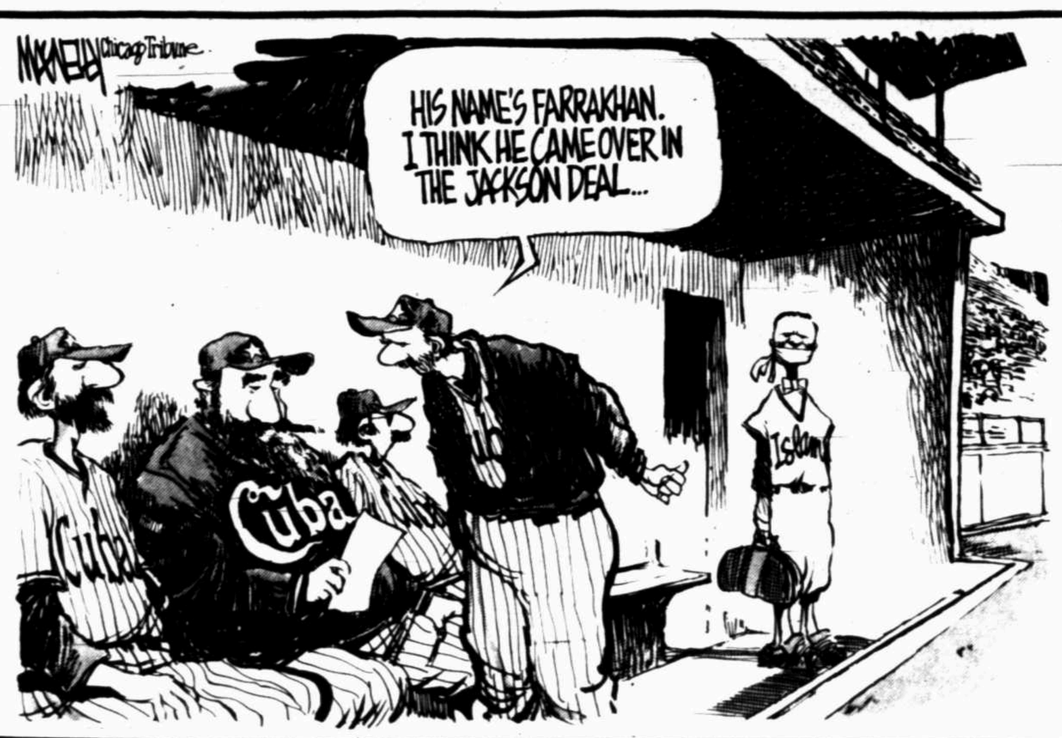

The multimillion-dollar study guaranteed part-time and summer jobs to 76,000 low-income teen-agers as long as they continued their high school educations. The project didn't have much success in persuading dropouts to return to school, but it was enormously successful for those who remained in school. At a relatively modest cost, the project was able to increase employment among minority youth to the point where it was comparable to that of middle-class white youth.

The students — most of whom were black and had never held jobs before — were extremely interested in the jobs, and program operators were able to find useful work for them. As a result, their employment rates and earnings soared compared with those of low-income youth in other cities. The gains were especially significant because many of those young people in other cities were getting help from other job programs (which have since been terminated). Moreover, the chance to work while in school seems to have had a long-term effect on the job prospects of the youngsters in the program, because gains in employment and earnings persisted after the program ended.

The discouraging aspect of the study is that the private sector wasn't very interested in helping out. Program administrators were ultimately able to find private-sector jobs for about one-fifth of participants — usually in small retail stores. But hardly any private employers would hire the youths unless the government was willing to pick up 100 percent of the wage cost.

That finding would suggest that, as other critics have contended, a 25 percent cut in the minimum wage for youths would be a nice windfall for low-wage employers, but it isn't likely to persuade many employers to take a chance on a disadvantaged kid. That's not really surprising. For most employers, saving a few cents an hour is far less important than being sure that the person hired can do the job. The project shows that government — if it is interested — can help overcome barriers to employment by giving kids a chance to prove themselves.

'Young Astronauts' idea accepted

WASHINGTON — In a dramatic bid to keep America ahead in the high-tech race, President Reagan has approved a program that he hopes will shake young Americans out of the educational doldrums and focus their attention on technological challenges.

Jack Anderson

He wants to introduce children to the Space Age by encouraging them to become young astronauts. One of them will probably be invited as an observer on a future space flight.

The plan is to form "Young Astronaut" units in neighborhoods across the country. Children will be eligible to enroll as early as age 6, with the right to wear astronaut insignias and participate in National Aeronautics and Space Administration activities. The intention is to have them work closely with their schools to acquire technical skills that will prepare them for the high-tech age.

The program will be sponsored by the National Space Institute, with NASA's close cooperation. The president will call upon local businesses, schools, churches, science centers, youth clubs and community organizations to support the Young Astronaut units.

I played a modest role in getting "Operation Liftoff," as the program is called, off the ground. With a columnist's effrontery, I called on Reagan privately last October to add another idea to the array of unsought suggestions before every president.

I presented him with evidence that the quality of education in the United States is declining at the same time that foreign competition is increasing. I pointed out that there is a serious shortage in most states of math and science teachers, that American students suffer in comparison with those in other industrialized nations.

Then I left a memo with the president urging a program "big in scope and dramatic in impact" yet "easy to understand and simple to carry out." I suggested forming a Young Astronauts organization.

I argued in the memo: "America's young people are fascinated with space. They swarm to movie theaters to watch interplanetary adventure; they play space games on video sets. The opportunity to become young astronauts — with official credentials and insignias — should attract youngsters, stir their imaginations and stimulate their spirit of adventure. It might help lift their gaze from video games to real high-technology and fix their eyes on the stars."

The president was more than polite; he listened with genuine interest. He saw the need, he said, to see beyond today's limited horizon. He has a deep concern about tomorrow, and is placing new emphasis on long-range planning. The other day, he telephoned me to say that he was adopting my idea. I hope the Young Astronauts program will be ready to launch when school starts in September.

FEUD OF THE WEEK: The Pentagon and the State Department don't always agree, but they find themselves teamed against the Commerce and Treasury departments and the office of the U.S. trade representative on the delicate matter of "offsets" for countries that agree to buy U.S. weapons.

In a word, offsets are bribes to weapons purchasers: If they'll buy our weapons, we'll let them produce parts of the weapons themselves or give them other trade concessions.

Obviously, these arrangements give subsidies to foreign manufacturers that wind up competing with U.S. industries. The Pentagon and Foggy Bottom feel this is a small price to pay for ensuring that our allies are properly armed. Commerce, Treasury and the trade representative don't like them a bit.

A prime example of the problem is the recent U.S. agreement to guarantee $300 million in offset investments to the Netherlands in exchange for the Dutch government's acceptance of U.S. air-defense missiles. The hope is that the offset deal will stifle Dutch opposition to the deployment of nuclear missiles in the Netherlands.

A recent General Accounting Office study shows the extent of the offset problem. The GAO found that for $15 billion worth of foreign arms sales, there were about $9.5 billion in offset agreements.

"The primary concern ... in providing foreign military sales assistance and allowing offsets," the GAO explained, "is the adverse impact this may have on the U.S. industrial base and U.S. jobs."

In other words, American taxpayers may wind up paying for both the weapons and the subsidies that let our allies compete with U.S. industry.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: Presidential candidates take pains to appeal to a broad cross-section of the voting public, and at least one TV network was willing to help the Democratic rivals. For the nationally televised debate among the three Democratic hopefuls at Columbia University in March, CBS ordered eight of the 100 tickets for Columbia students held in reserve — in case the lottery selection of the audience turned up too few minority members. A CBS official told the university it didn't want to see "a sea of white faces" in the audience.

EVANS & NOVAK

Central bank holds all cards

WASHINGTON — When Paul Volcker and his central bank colleagues decide later this month whether to further tighten the screws on a dangerously deflationary economy, President Reagan's policy-makers will be offstage as impotent — and very worried — observers.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The administration has blinked first in its brief confrontation with the Volcker-led Federal Reserve Board. Unable to push the Fed toward accommodating the Reagan recovery, the president and his men are reduced to hoping. There is not much hope. The only disagreement at the White House is whether the prime interest rate will climb one or two additional points before the election.

The Fed's next closed-door policy-making session of its Open Market Committee (FOMC) July 16 and 17 will do nothing to push interest rates lower, and might well send them higher. The president is a passive onlooker even though spiraling interest rates could overcome Democratic ineptitude sufficiently to tighten up the election.

Reagan's advisers are well aware of this. When the CBS Evening News dwelled on the impact of the latest boost in the prime rate to 13 percent, the West Wing winced. But wincing is not the same as handling the problem. "We have no monetary policy, and we have no monetary strategy," one high-ranking administration official told us.

There is no shortage of either policy or strategy on the Federal Reserve's professional staff, whose monomaniacal fear of resurgent inflation ignores sliding commodity prices which connote deflation rather than inflation. The Fed staff wants the screws tightened further on money at the July FOMC meeting, and it may succeed. Their position is being pressed by Lyle Gramley, a former Fed staffer named to the board by Jimmy Carter in 1980.

Vice Chairman Preston Martin, Reagan's first Fed appointment, who has courageously stood alone against the rest of the FOMC beginning last December, will have one ally at the July meeting. Dr. Martha Seeger, a conservative Republican and Reagan's second Fed governor, was given a recess appointment this week after Democrats launched a fight against her confirmation. Despite equivocations at Senate hearings in an effort to get confirmed, her pertinent sentiment was her declaration about Reagan when nominated May 31: "I support everything he's doing."

But two votes are not enough. The key is Volcker, and he agrees with the Fed staff. That means overlooking today's deflation that threatens small-business men and farmers and instead worrying about tomorrow's inflation that haunts Wall Street bond traders. Whether or not the FOMC tightens further, it will not agree to a loosening that the administration wants to keep the recovery going.

When Volcker addressed a closed-door caucus of House Republicans June 14, his demeanor was widely described as "arrogant." Brushing off falling prices of gold and other commodities, he asserted that his own expectation of inflation was more important. His contempt for congressional critics suggested no fear of sniping from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Indeed, when Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told a Cabinet-level meeting June 21 there would be no more "Fed-bashing" (that is, criticism of Volcker), he was enunciating a policy set many days earlier at the White House. The non-aggression policy derives not from agreement in principle with Volcker but from fear of his support among industrialists and financiers. In the Reagan administration, their views come before those of small-business men and farmers.

Reagan political strategists say Volcker's popularity makes him a risky target (though in fact their own polls indicate he is unknown by 60 percent of all voters and is no match for the Great Communicator in seeking popular support). Accordingly, White House spokesman Larry Speakes was programmed to blame the banks — not the Fed — for the current 13 percent prime rate. In the spirit of ersatz populism, bank-bashing replaces Fed-bashing.

Paul Volcker could have celebrated his victory no later than June 14, the same day he exhibited his hauteur to the House Republicans. After that day's White House conference between the president and GOP congressional leaders, Rep. Jack Kemp showed Reagan the remarkable rise of the federal funds rate (interbank lending, which can be directly affected by the Fed).

The president expressed concern and called over Don Regan, asking him to look into it. But when Kemp's office tried to get newsmen to ask Reagan about it at that night's presidential news conference, White House aides were furious about opening up the president to attack by Volcker's defenders. No such question was asked, and no public statements about the Fed have been made.

The days of confrontation are over. What lies ahead are weeks of apprehension worrying about the impact of what the central bankers do and fail to do this month in Washington. Their secret decisions could cast long shadows over the nation's political future.

CHARLEY REESE

Defense decisions crucial

One of the hindrances in talking about defense matters is widespread ignorance of people about military matters. If you don't know too much about a subject, then you are easier to con. Let's look at some of the common cons being used in the defense debate.

Charley Reese

Suppose, for example, I come into a room with 200 people in it and I have 1,200 bullets. It is true that I have enough bullets to kill everybody in the room six times. If I only have a six-shot revolver, however, it is extremely unlikely that I could kill even three or four before the other 196 bowled me over. Furthermore, if one of the 200 had a two-shot derringer and got off the first shot, I wouldn't kill anybody.

That's why you should not be conned by those who talk about the United States having so many thousands of warheads. The number of nuclear warheads by itself is meaningless, just as the amount of ammunition is meaningless. It doesn't matter how may warheads you have if you don't get a chance to fire them or if you are unwilling to fire them.

Let's suppose, too, that I have two sticks of dynamite and 10 Chinese firecrackers. You could say that I have twelve explosives, but if you lumped Chinese firecrackers and dynamite under the single label of explosives, you would not be conveying much useful information.

The same people who cite the number of warheads to oppose improving our defenses are lumping tactical, theater, and strategic warheads to get their big number. Most of that big number is from the tactical category, small battlefield-sized warheads. They mean nothing in terms of deterring a nuclear war.

Strategic weapons are those which are designed to be delivered from our homeland or the seas to the Soviet homeland. In the matter of deterring nuclear war, strategic weapons are the ones which count.

We have 43 Titan II missiles with one warhead each; 450 Minuteman II missiles with one warhead each; and 550 Minuteman IIIs with 3 warheads each. Thus, the total number of warheads in our land-based strategic missiles is 2,143. The Soviet Union has deployed 150 SS-17s in three different versions. They have deployed 308 SS-18s in a mix of four versions. They have deployed 330 SS-19s in three versions. These missiles are estimated to carry 6,000 warheads combined. All three are cold launched. The missile silo can be reused to fire another missile. All of our present land-based missiles are hot launched. The silo cannot be reused.

Note that the Soviet design and provisions for firing reserve missiles from the launchers is evidence of Soviet belief that a nuclear war would be a protracted affair. Note also that the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaties counted only launchers, not missiles. We have estimted that the Soviets have 6,000 warheads deployed but we do not know how many additional missiles and warheads they have in reserve.

The second category of strategic missiles are submarine launched ballistic missiles. We have one SLBM submarine deployed in the Pacific; the Soviets have 24. We have 32 subs deployed in the Atlantic; the Soviets have 16. On these subs, we have deployed slightly under 6,000 warheads while the Soviets have deployed slightly over 1,500.

The bulk of our SLBMs, however, are less capable in terms of range, accuracy and yield that the Soviet SLBMs. No SLBM has the accuracy and yield to be used against a hardened military target at the present time.

By mid-1983, what stood between you and the Soviet strategic forces were 1,000 Minuteman ICBMs, 43 Titans, 241 B-52G/H bombers, 56 FB-111 bombers, 496 Poseidon missiles, and 72 Trident missiles.

Obviously if all those were successfully launched, we could wipe out the Soviet Union, but the problem of deterrence is not so simple. Deterrence depends on Soviet perception of how many of those would survive a first strike by their forces. The bombers and submarines have always been vulnerable if they are caught on the ground and in port. Now Soviet missile accuracy is such that the Minuteman and Titans are considered vulnerable. The B-52s, the Poseidons, the FB-111s and the Titans all came from the 1960s and are rapidly growing obsolete in terms of their military effectiveness. The Trident Subs, the B-1, and the MX deployed in a super-hardened silo are designed to upgrade out deterrent forces.

The facts in this column came from "Soviet Military Power," second edition, published in March 1983 by the Defense Department.

No debate in American is more important than defense so neither hide your head from the reality nor let someone con you. Our lives literally depend on our reaching the right decisions.

School officials must aid handicapped student

STATE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that an 8-year-old handicapped girl from Irving is entitled to remain in public school and receive special medical treatment from school officials.

In a related opinion, however, the high court decided that the child's parents are not entitled to collect attorneys' fees that a lower court already awarded them.

The court ordered Irving school officials to help Amber Tatro insert a catheter tube twice a day so that she can urinate. The justices said that the procedure is easy to administer and can be done without the aid of a physician or nurse.

The girl was born with a disease called spina bifida, which prevents her from voluntarily emptying her bladder.

Amber's mother said she was pleased by the court's order, while school officials said they would have to study the ruling before commenting.

The procedure is covered under a 1975 federal law aimed at allowing handicapped children to attend public schools where possible, the court ruled.

"The ruling says a layperson can perform the procedure," said Mary Tatro. "It can be done by a school nurse, and it even can be done by Amber herself. She is learning how to catheterize herself."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, wrote for the court that such services "that permit a child to remain at school during the day are no less related to the effort to educate than are services that enable the child to reach, enter or exit the school.

"It bears mentioning that not even the services of a nurse are required," Burger added. "As is conceded, a layperson with minimal training is qualified to provide" the service.

But the court denied legal expenses to those — like Amber's parents — who win suits to force school officials to provide education or school tuition for the handicapped.

The justices, voting 6-3, said those who win such cases are not entitled to recover attorneys' fees under a federal civil rights law or a separate 1973 law that outlaws discrimination against the handicapped in any program receiving federal aid.

The 1975 law dealing with educating the handicapped does not have a provision for reimbursement of lawyers' fees.

Activists sue over fence at convention

DALLAS (AP) — A newly-formed political activist group has filed a lawsuit trying to halt construction of a fence around the site of the Republican National Convention.

The fence infringes on First Amendment rights of free speech, the group said.

The suit filed Thursday accuses city officials of using the fence to keep GOP delegates "well insulated from the views and opinions of demonstrators," who have been given permission to gather in an area away from the convention center entrance.

The suit also asks the city for the same amount of financial support that is being provided the Republican Party. City officials have denied that any taxpayer money is being used for the Republicans.

SECURITY and crowd control are two of the reasons the city has given for erecting the $65,111, 6-foot-high chain link fence around the Dallas Convention Center. The fence is currently under construction.

"The events were are organizing are peaceful," said Roger Kallenberg of the Dallas March and Rally Committee. He said that with the new fence, demonstrators "can't even be within shouting distance."

Other groups who joined in the suit included Freeze Reagan-Bush; International Women for Justice; Dallas Lesbian and Gay Pride Association; and a German anti-nuclear arms organization.

Kallenberg said the group intended to pass out literature on convention center grounds during the GOP convention Aug. 20-23.

Names as defendants in the suit were Mayor Starke Taylor, City Manager Charles Anderson, the City Council, the fence manufacturer and others.

COMMITTEE attorney John Albach said the suit requests a hearing for a court order to stop construction of the fence.

The suit said the fence "entails restrictions to First Amendment rights that far exceed any legitimate security concern" while the city has give "extraordinary cooperation" and spent local tax dollars on amenities for Republicans.

The suit also says that the fence will discourage protesters from coming to Dallas and would lead to "non-peaceful activities" during the convention.

Committee leaders said that the demonstration site approved by the city is 550 feet from the front of the convention center and too far to make their protests heard.

Computer stirs tax trouble

ALVIN, Texas (AP) — Jackie Williams was less than happy to learn that Brazoria County suddenly considered his modest three-bedroom home worth $290,000.

The problem was that county officials didn't want to buy it, they wanted to tax it. A computer operator's error multiplied the value of the brick structure by 10.

Williams spent the last 1½ years straightening out the error. County commissioners court finally approved the refund this week. The house located about seven miles south of Alvin is now valued at $39,710.

In the meantime, the bank which holds the mortgage note paid $4,000 more in county and school taxes for Williams than had been paid the previous year. It also raised his mortgage payments, based on the appraised value, from $350 to $1,050 a month.

The clerks in the appraisal district office laughed when they found what had happened, Williams said.

"I guess it was hard to believe. It was hard for me to believe, anyway," Williams said. "When I saw the computer card, I nearly fainted. Then I went to Delta Savings and found out they had already paid my taxes. They said they didn't notice anything because it's all done by computer."

Correcting the school taxes was the easy part: The school district in Alvin repaid $3,200 to the bank last year.

But the bank continued to add $726 to Williams' mortgage payments for county taxes, and he complained to county officials.

"They told me they'd take care of it," he said. "But I had to hand-carry everything from office to office. I was getting a little on the angry side."

Bolivian leaders suspend talks on settling day-old strike

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Government and union leaders today suspended talks on settling a day-old strike by tens of thousands of workers, although some union leaders said they feared the strike could trigger a military coup.

The two sides were deadlocked over labor demands for a unilateral halt to foreign debt payments to commercial banks, but had reached tentative agreement on a distribution system to guarantee stable food prices, government spokesman Ramiro Barrenechea said.

Filemon Escobar, a leader of the Bolivian Labor Confederation, said only that there was "no final agreement" and the walkout by miners, teachers, factory workers and peasant farmers would continue.

However, there were signs the strike was weakening. Some labor leaders warned that continued paralysis of production might provoke a right-wing coup like the one attempted Saturday by soldiers and policemen who abducted civilian President Hernan Siles Zuazo for 10 hours.

The strike shut down the Andean nation's key mining industry as well as gasoline supplies and most commercial activity in La Paz, the largest city, and in Potosi. It was heeded partially in Cochabamba and Tarija and ignored in Santa Cruz. Unions in Sucre, the Spanish imperial capital, voted to return to work today.

Railroad workers, journalists and bus drivers throughout the country refused to join the walkout. Hospitals, airlines, electricity, water and gas workers were exempt from the strike, but the confederation threatened Thursday to shut off basic utilities and block roads Sunday if there was no settlement.

The confederation called workplace assemblies and a nationwide meeting of 100 labor leaders in the afternoon to gauge progress in the talks and to decide whether they should resume, Escobar said.

Both sides said they were far apart on how to handle a four-month-old default on payments to private banks, to which Bolivia owes $720 million of its $4.4 billion foreign debt.

"The most difficult point in the negotiations is the foreign debt, but we are optimistic about an agreement," said Barrenechea, a Communist Party negotiator for the leftist coalition government.

Under a tentative government-labor agreement reached May 30, Bolivia informed the banks it would postpone debt payments until a new schedule could be negotiated. There has been no formal reply from the consortium of 128 creditor banks.

Labor insists the agreement called for an indefinite halt of debt payments until Bolivia determined, on its own, that it could afford to resume them. The country, South America's poorest, owes $7.5 million a month to the consortium, but hasn't paid since March.

"We cannot let the banks dictate national financial policy while our people go hungry," said Noel Vasquez, permanent secretary of the labor confederation.

Government officials argue that an immediate renegotiation with the banks would cost the country less in interest payments over the long run. Much of Bolivia's debt to foreign governments has been rescheduled.

Siles Zuazo, the country's first elected leader in two decades, called the strike "unjust and precipitous."

Since taking office in October 1982, Siles Zuazo has yielded to previous labor demands in the face of repeated strikes, but he seems determined now to control inflation, running at a rate of 760 percent a year.

The government is resisting union demands for automatic wage adjustments to compensate for price increases.

Investigation into Aquino's death ends

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The panel investigating the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino ended eight months of public hearings today with a general's denial that he ordered Aquino killed.

The five-member board has viewed more than 450 exhibits and heard more than 700 hours of public testimony from 85 witnesses interviewed in the Philippines, Japan and the United States.

Board Chairwoman Corazon Agrava closed the hearing after the board heard testimony from air force Gen. Luther Custodio and viewed its last piece of hearing evidence: a compilation of 150 photographs taken seconds before and after the Aug. 21, 1983, slaying at Manila airport.

None of the photos showed the actual assassination.

The board then went into seclusion to begin considering its findings. It hopes to make a report to President Ferdinand E. Marcos and the public on Aug. 21, the first anniversary of the assassination of Marcos' chief rival.

Aquino was returning to the Philippines, against the wishes of Marcos, after three years of self-imposed exile in the United States. Before his exile, he had been imprisoned and sentenced to death by a military court on charges of killing a village leader.

Board counsel Angres Narvasa said the photos taken by 13 journalists "prove quite vividly" that both Aquino and alleged assassin Rolando Galman were already lying on the airport tarmac when soldiers who claimed they were the first to shoot Galman emerged from a van.

The last witness was Custodio, chief of the military unit assigned to protect Aquino. He denied allegations of self-professed Filipino double agent Jose Fronda Santos that the general ordered him to kill Aquino in January 1983 and again in August.

"I have never said, ordered or mentioned anything about such a thing as the killing former Sen. Aquino," Custodio said.

Mrs. Agrava left open the possibility the hearings could be reopened.

"It has been our experience that evidence crops up unexpected and from the most unexpected sources," she said.

The board has listened to several conflicting versions of the killing. Soldiers say Galman shot Aquino before they gunned down Galman, who the government claims was a communist agent.

Aquino supporters claim soldiers killed the former senator. Galman's mother, Saturnina, who attended the closing hearing with her 11-year-old grandson, Reynaldo, says Galman was framed.

The slaying led to repeated anti-government demonstrations involving hundreds of thousands of people and it was cited as a major reason for the opposition's unexpectedly strong showing in recent parliamentary elections.

Civilian airport personnel have given a variety of sketchy accounts to the board. Some place Aquino on a stairway where only soldiers could have shot him. But only one civilian claimed to have actually seen Aquino killed, and other witnesses said that man told them he was too far away to see clearly.

Mrs. Agrava told reporters the board and its staff will not comment to the news media until it issues its findings.

Mrs. Agrava said she had written a letter to Aquino's widow, Corazon, explaining the need to exhume her husband's body in order to determine the location of bullet fragments. Testimony from medical experts in the final days of the hearing raised the possibility Aquino may have been shot by more than one bullet.

Mrs. Aquino has refused to recognize the board because it was appointed by Marcos, and she told The Associated Press on Thursday that she would deny the request for exhumation.

"If I were Mrs. Aquino, I wouldn't want my husband to be exhumed," Mrs. Agrava said, adding with tears in her eyes, "She probably thinks I'm an ogre out to defile the memory of her husband."

Mrs. Agrava said that if the Aquino family refuses to cooperate, she may persuade the other board members to drop the idea of digging up the body.

Board counsel Narvasa, who narrated the exhibit of photos, noted that they showed soldiers shooting Galman as he lay "helplessly" on the tarmac.

Narvasa said one of the soldiers, Sgt. Rolando De Guzman, had testified he saw Galman shoot Aquino and didn't fire sooner because he was afraid of hitting Aquino's escort, Sgt. Arnulfo de Mesa.

DILLARD'S WELCOMES THE AMERICAN EXPRESS® CARD

McEnroe is coming

At Chap Center Aug. 9

John McEnroe

From Staff Reports

John McEnroe will face Vitas Gerulaitis Aug. 9 at the Chaparral Center in the RepublicBank First National Tennis Challenge.

The event will be presented in conjunction with The Reporter-Telegram, KMID-TV and KNFM, KMND-AM radio and the Challenge will mark the 57th stop on the Tennis Over America Tour, the largest tennis tour in history.

It will be the stormy McEnroe's first appearance in Midland. McEnroe, 25, is ranked No. 1 in the world. He has never missed a Davis Cup match and has led the U.S. to four championships in Davis Cup international competition. McEnroe also has won more singles titles and more total victories in Cup play than any other American in the history of the event.

Rather than tour foreign countries, McEnroe prefers to bring tennis to U.S. cities which normally do not attract world-class tennis.

Play will begin at 7 p.m. with a Michelob Lite Future Stars match featuring two projected stars of tomorrow. The racquets used by McEnroe and Gerulaitis that night will be auctioned off with proceeds going to Midland College.

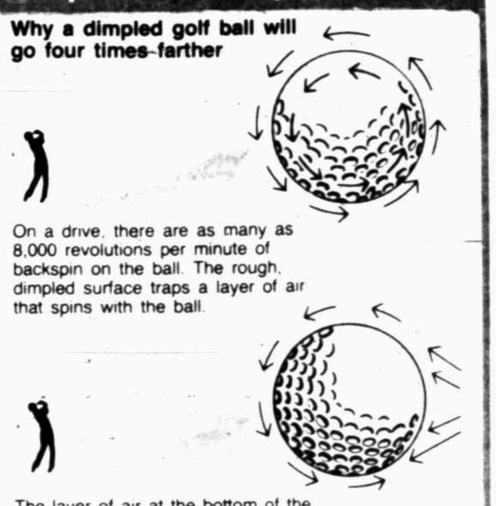

The McEnroe-Gerulaitis match begins at 8 p.m. and will be followed by a Gardski's Celebrity Doubles featuring a match in which McEnroe and Gerulaitis will team with local celebrities.

The Midland Hilton is the official hotel; Southwest Airlines the official airline and Chrysler Laser the official car of the Challenge.

Tickets will go on sale July at the Chaparral Center box office and Endless Horizons Record stores in Midland and Odessa. Reserved seats will be $20 and $17.50. A $2.50 discount coupon is available at RepublicBank First National Midland and in display ads in The Reporter-Telegram.

Dimples aren't just cute

Why a dimpled golf ball will go four times farther

On a drive, there are as many as 8,000 revolutions per minute of backspin on the ball. The rough, dimpled surface traps a layer of air that spins with the ball.

The layer of air at the bottom of the ball travels "against the wind," increasing air pressure. The layer at the top travels "with the wind," decreasing air pressure. The difference in air speeds creates more air pressure at the bottom, and so the ball sails, much like an airplane, and stays in the air longer and goes farther.

Reluctant Greg in chase again

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Greg Norman, holding the hottest hand in golf, admitted he really didn't want to be playing in this tournament.

But, despite his spectacular recent success, he found the old, pleasantly-nervous excitement still was with him and converted it into a 4-under-par 68 that placed him a single shot off the lead after Thursday's first round of the $400,000 Western Open golf tournament.

Danny Edwards, winner of four PGA Tour titles, and career struggler Loren Roberts set the pace with 67s on the Butler National Golf Course that never played easier.

"We enjoyed optimum conditions," said Edwards. "The golf course was just fabulous, the weather beautiful and you've got a lot of great players here. That tends to produce low scores."

In fact, it produced the lowest scores in the 11 years Butler has served as the site of this old tournament. The previous record for subpar rounds in a single day was 24. That was raised to 42.

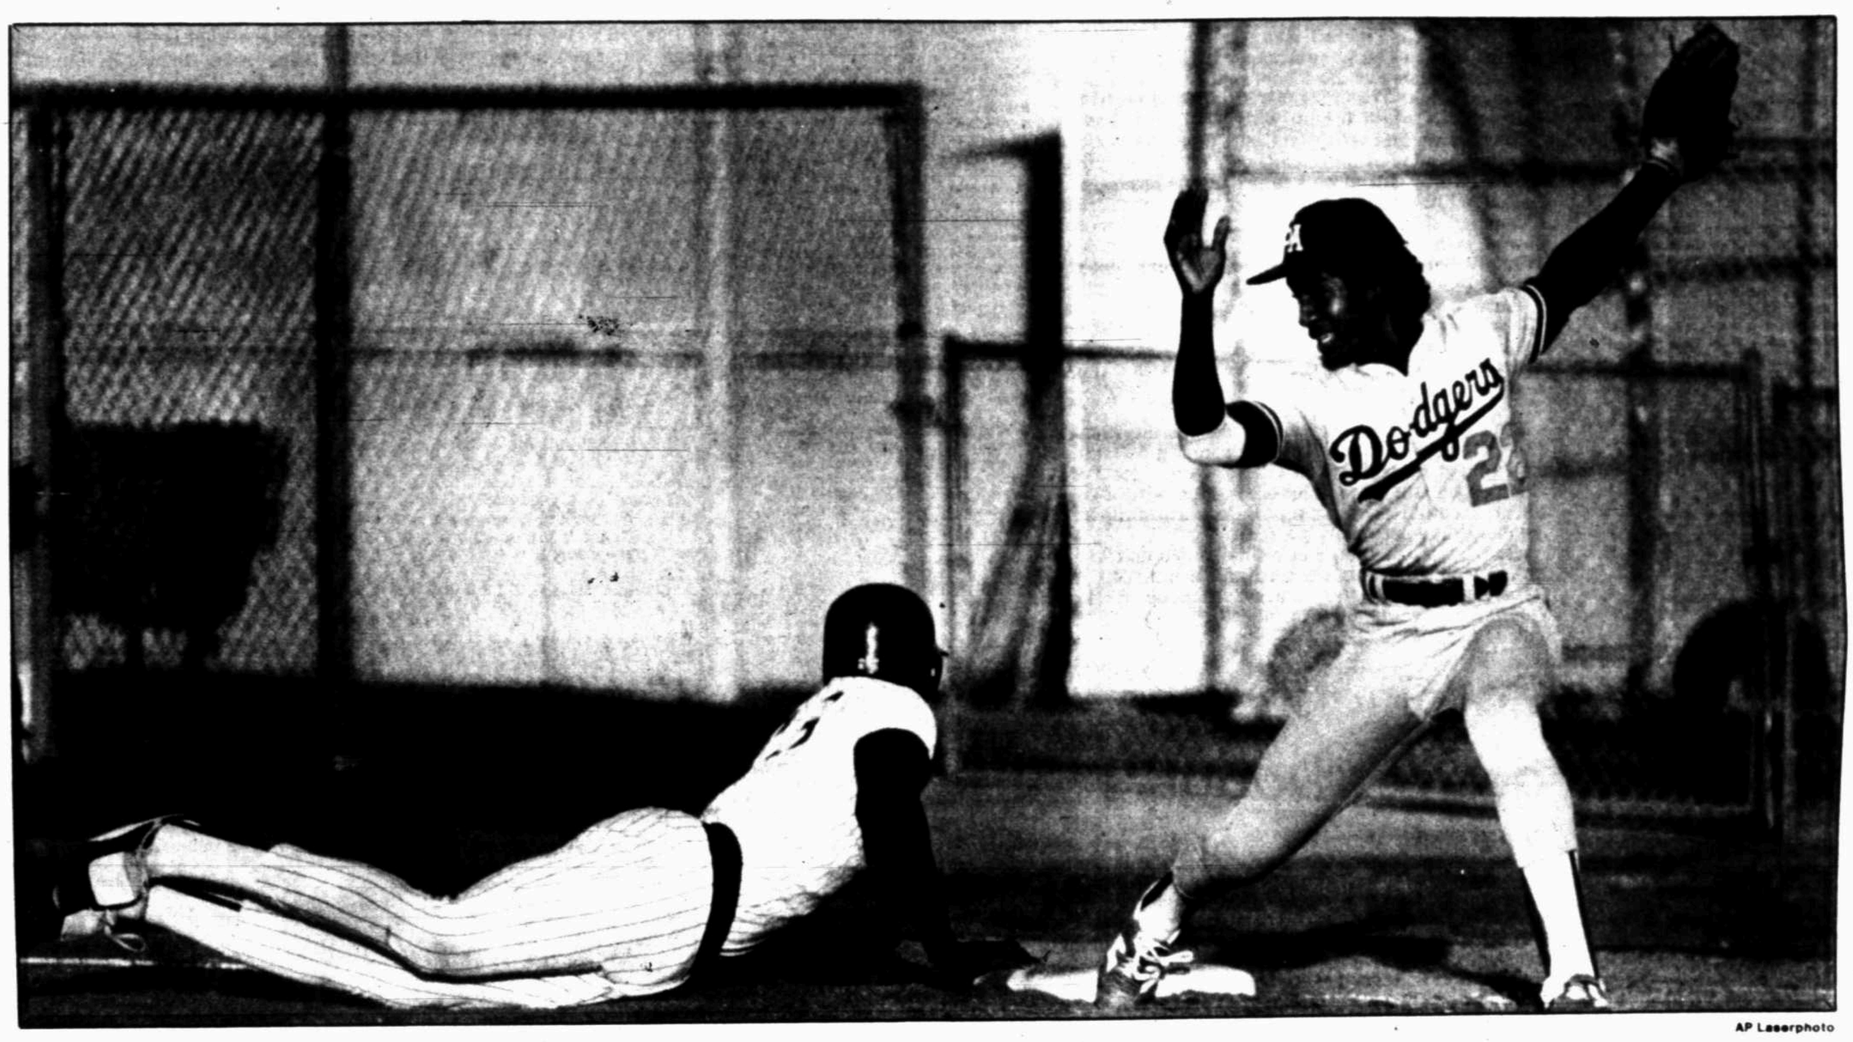

Tom Watson was among them. Despite a ball in the water, he managed a 71. But Masters champion Ben Crenshaw was not. He struggled to a 75 in the warm, sunny weather.

Norman, who has won twice and lost in a playoff for the U.S. Open in his last four starts, was tied, a single stroke off the pace with six others.

Chief among them was Nick Price, the young South African who led through three rounds of last week's Canadian Open.

Dodgers' five in ninth sinks M-Cubs, 9-7

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland Cubs' Tony Woods dives head first back to first and is safe despite the triumphant look on face of San Antonio's Mariano Duncan.

The Midland Cubs were three outs away from victory Thursday night when they ran into pitching trouble. The San Antonio Dodgers took advantage of the situation, turning a 7-4 deficit into a 9-7 Texas League victory at Cubs Stadium.

Cub starter Troy Chestnut had the 7-4 lead when he came to the mound in the ninth inning. Dodger lead off hitter Todd Gauntlett hit a high one-hop single well over third baseman Tony Woods' head and Manager George Enright and pitching Glenn "Goose" Gregson figured it was time for some relief help.

"Any time a guy pitches eight innings, is tiring a little bit and you go to the bullpen and can't get three outs before giving up five runs...," said Enright. "The bullpen gets paid to close the door for the starting pitcher. We scored enough runs to win tonight. We just didn't get the pitching from the bullpen."

"You like to see young pitchers come out on a positive note," said Gregson about Chestnut, who is in his fourth year in the Cubs' organization. "He pitched eight good innings before being pulled."

WITH GAUNTLETT aboard in the top of the ninth, Enright called for Ron Kaufman to relieve and he immediately gave up an infield single to Carmello Alvarez and a walk to Larry See to load the bases.

Mariano Duncan followed with an rbi ground out to first baseman Jeff Jones who looked home before deciding on taking the out at first, cutting Midland's lead to 7-5. Cub second baseman Gary Varsho then made Midland's only error on the night after roving to his right for Cecil Espy's rbi grounder which scored Alvarez. Varsho's throw to first pulled Jones off the bag and hit the screen, sending Espy to second and allowing See to come home with the tying run.

Enright made a second pitching change, calling for Jeff Moscaret to face hot Stu Pederson. Pederson, who was already working on a 3-for-3 night including two doubles, took Moscaret's first pitch and drove it to the center field fence for his third double of the game, bringing home Espy with the go-ahead run.

Moscaret got Ralph Bryant on a called third strike for the second out and then gave up an RBI single to Gilberto Reyes for a 9-7 score before getting Joe Vavra to ground into a force play to end the inning.

BEING SO close to victory, the Cubs weren't quite ready to taste defeat. Varsho and Don Hyman opened the bottom of the ninth with singles and Woods moved them to third and second, respectively, with a sacrifice bunt before the Dodgers' third reliever, Steve Martin, got Joe Henderson to ground out back to the mound and Mike Brumley to pop up at third.

"It was a good come back," said Dodger manager Gary LaRocque. "Everybody hung in there, even in the middle innings when we were down. In this park, if you get a couple of guys on base, anything can happen and tonight it did."

LaRocque credited his bullpen for giving his team the chance to notch the victory.

"I thought the middle relief pitchers did a great job holding Midland at seven," said LaRocque. "First (Jody) Johnston, then (Bill) Skudder came in and then Martin and they all did the job."

Martin picked up his sixth save of the season with his one inning of duty and Skudder the victory for his first decision in relief in the seventh and eighth frames. Kaufman took the loss and fell to 1-2 on the year.

IN THE first four innings of play, it looked like it was going to be a long night for San Antonio. The Cubs opened their 13-hit attack in the bottom of the first when Mike Brumley led off with a double to the right field fence followed by Darrin Jackson's walk. Two outs later, Danny Norman walked to load the bases, setting the stage for Varsho's

Summer heats up

A long, hot summer indeed. The turmoil and unrest continues.

First, it was the hike in the golf fees at Hogan Park...frayed tempers, nasty words said in haste, a portent of things to come.

And now the Chicago Cubs, of all people...enraged fans wreckless charges, truths and half truths swirl around the WGN-Cable TV hassle.

All this, and John McEnroe is still a month away...more moods and disturbed discourse.

But for right now, the disappearance of the Chicago Cubs and WGN from the local cable scene holds center stage. Scotland Yard has been summoned, but no answers, excuses or alibis appear likely to soothe this savage beast. He not only demands "Where's the Beef?", he wants to sink his teeth into it, which, in this case, happens to be Midland's cable TV people.

What they did was delete WGN from the roster of stations and substitute "another religious network", according to one caller.

The excuse was something about not being allowed to pick up two "distant" signals, so a survey was taken and Atlanta-based WTBS won out over Chicago-based WGN by an alleged margin of 2-to-1.

Removing either station would have resulted in a storm of protest, and storm is what has been what hit Midland.

Cable TV couldn't have picked a more inopportune time to ax WGN. It's true the Chicago Cubs haven't won a pennant since 1945, but this season the Cubs are the most exciting thing in baseball, unless you've got access to Detroit games and the Tigers are so far ahead they really aren't that exciting.

If WGN had been dropped in the fall, the reaction would have been mild...unless it happened to sign Notre Dame to a TV contract.

The survey may have shown WTBS 2-to-1, but none of the calls received at the R-T sports desk favor the loss of WGN. There are some very unhappy people out there in that great wasteland that watches TV and some are suspicious of the motives of the cable company.

One guy called up to point out that a not-too-distant West Texas city gets both WGN and WTBS and CNN and USA and WOR—I lost track after that, I couldn't write that fast— and, what's more, for the same price as Midland's "skeleton" roster.

That's a claim viewed with suspicion. It's hard to believe the Midland cable TV people would not be in line with other cable companies in the area, but....

A lady threatens to drop her cable in protest, but first she's going to try to do something about it. "I enjoy watching the Cubs. In fact, I work at night just so I can watch the Cubs during the day."

Another lady was so upset she called WGN. They told her they didn't know anything about it. As far as they knew, they were still being carried in Midland.

Another viewer wasn't as upset about the Cubs as he was about the loss of Windy City news. "It's the best news on TV. There's no more graft and corruption or violence anywhere than in Chicago. That broad they had for mayor was one of the most colorful in the country. They lost something when they lost Jane Burns, and now that the scandal is beginning to leak out, they are beginning to find out just how much.... It's the most fun news on TV, better than Elliot Ness."

Another dissatisified customer had his own theory. "That telephone sales pitch the cable people conducted a couple of weeks ago, you know get Disneyland, Showtime and that other fluff for $19.95, I think it was, extra a month, must have fallen flat and now they are using WGN and the Chicago Cubs to blackmail us."

Come on now, the Chicago Cubs as blackmail? Let's be serious...now, perhaps the Cleveland Indians, but the Chicago Cubs....?

Chris isn't in Martina's league

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Kathy Jordan doesn't think Chris Evert Lloyd is in Martina Navratilova's league.

Despite Lloyd's thrashing of third seed Hana Mandlikova in the semifinals of the All England Lawn Tennis tournament, Jordan doesn't "give Chris much of a chance" in Saturday's final between the three-time Wimbledon champion and Navratilova, a four-time and defending Wimbledon champ and Grand Slam titlist.

"I hope she gives Martina a good match, but I have seen the past results, and it hasn't been that close," Jordan said after being ousted by Navratilova 6-3, 6-4 in Thursday's other semifinal.

In three previous title clashes on Wimbledon's Centre Court, Lloyd has yet to prevail over Navratilova.

On that historic turf today, John McEnroe, bidding to become the first American since Don Budge in 1938 to repeat as singles champion, faced an unexpected semifinal challenge from unseeded Pat Cash. The 19-year-old Australian right-hander gained the last four by ousting sixth seed Andres Gomez of Mexico in the quarterfinals.

The other men's semifinal featured No. 3 seed Jimmy Connors — playing in Wimbledon's semis for his eighth time — and No. 2 Ivan Lendl, the Czechoslovak ace who upended McEnroe in the finals of the French Open on clay four weeks ago.

Connors has the edge in his career series with Lendl, 11-5. But Lendl has won most of their recent meetings, including this year's Volvo Masters indoor tournament and the WCT Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills in New York on clay. In the latter, Lendl demolished Connors 6-0, 6-0, the only time in his pro career that Connors has been shut out.

Lloyd, who dominated women's tennis for a decade and took singles titles here in 1974, 76 and 81, has been overshadowed on the women's circuit by the seemingly invincible Navratilova, who already has beaten Lloyd four times this year.

After Lloyd's loss two weeks ago to Jordan in the semifinals of the Eastbourne, England, grass court tournament, tennis pundits began asking if she's got what it takes to stay in the top echelon of the women's game.

Red Sox slam A's again, this time with Evans, 13-9

Tigers get well again at sight of Rangers

By Associated Press

The opposing teams were different. The strategy was the same. The batters were different. The result was the same. On consecutive nights, the Boston Red Sox rode grand slam home runs to slugfest victories.

Boston's Jim Rice was the hero on Wednesday when his 10th-inning bases-loaded homer beat the Oakland Athletics 13-9. Thursday, Dwight Evans became the man of the hour when he homered with three aboard as the Red Sox downed the California Angels 12-7.

"My other was against Joe Decker of Minnesota in 1975, the year we won the pennant, but I barely remember it," Evans, who drove in six runs in the game, said.

Tony Armas extended his hitting streak to a career-high 18 games with an RBI-single and Bill Buckner had four hits for the Red Sox.

Blue Jays 10, Mariners 8

Willie Upshaw snapped out of a hitting slump as he drove in four runs with two hits to pace Toronto. Upshaw, who entered the game with three hits in his last 42 at-bats and an 11-game streak without an RBI, singled in a run in Toronto's four-run first inning, then capped a four-run second with a bases-loaded triple.

White Sox 7, Indians 6

Greg Walker homered with two outs in the bottom of the ninth off Neal Heaton, 5-8, who was making his first relief appearance of the season. The White Sox had four other homers in the game — two by Carlton Fisk, who was reactivated only hours before the game from the disabled list, Greg Luzinski's sixth of the season and 300th of his career and Scott Fletcher's second of the season.

Brewers 7, Athletics 5

Jim Gantner and Robin Yount drove in two runs each and Ben Oglivie had three hits to lead Milwaukee to its season-high fifth straight victory.

Rollie Fingers, the third Milwaukee pitcher registered his 18th save as he worked out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the top of the seventh.

Tigers 7, Rangers 4

Kirk Gibson's three-run homer highlighted a six-run ninth inning as the Tigers snapped a four-game losing streak. Texas starter Charlie Hough, 8-7, entered the ninth inning with a 4-1 lead, having allowed five hits. With one out, Chet Lemon and Larry Herndon singled and, one out later, pinch hitter Johnny Grubb walked to load the bases.

Lou Whitaker singled to score two runs and Alan Trammell singled to tie the score. Gibson then followed with his 12th home run of the year to snap Hough's personal six-game winning streak and the Tigers' longest losing streak of the season.

Aurelio Lopez, 7-0, the third Tiger pitcher was the winner, while Willie Hernandez got the last out in the bottom of the ninth for his 15th save. Gary Ward drove in three of the Texas runs with a single and a two-run double.

Twins 5, Yankees 4

Ron Washington's two-run triple was the first of five consecutive hits in the sixth inning as Minnesota rallied to raise its record to 41-40. New York starter Ron Guidry, 6-7, breezed along with a two-hitter through five innings before running into trouble in the bottom of the sixth.

Ron Davis got the game's final two outs for his 14th save in support of starter Ken Schrom, 2-3.

Dave Winfield, who figured in three of New York's runs, went 3-for-4 to raise his league-leading batting average to .357.

Cardinals' Allen dazzles Dodgers

By Associated Press

Joaquim Andujar and Bruce Sutter are All-Stars. If you ask the Los Angeles Dodgers, Neil Allen probably belongs in that category too.

At least he looked like it Thursday night, as did his fellow St. Louis pitchers as they combined on a three-hitter to lead the Cardinals to a 3-0 victory over Los Angeles, the second time in three games the Dodgers have been blanked.

Andujar went the first four, giving up one hit before leaving with a slight hamstring pull in his right leg, the same injury which has cut short his stints in his last three outings. He fell short of becoming the major league's first 14-game winner.

Allen, 4-2, blanked the Dodgers on one hit over the next four innings, then Sutter pitched a scoreless ninth, allowing one hit, to register his 21st save.

St. Louis got two runs in the seventh. George Hendrick boomered deep into the left-field seats. One out later, David Green beat out an infield single to short and scored on Ozzie Smith's triple down the right-field line.

Green's RBI-single in the ninth finished the scoring.

Andujar's injury was not expected to keep him out of the All-Star Game, scheduled for next Tuesday in San Francisco.

Phillies 1, Braves 0

Hudson, 8-6, struck out six and walked two in earning his first major-league shutout. Atlanta's Rick Mahler, 6-4, pitched just as well, holding the Phillies to three hits and registering a career-high eight strikeouts.

The Phillies scored the game's only run in the second. Ozzie Virgil opened with a double, Von Hayes walked and Glenn Wilson singled to load the bases. Virgil scored on an infield out by Kiko Garcia.

Astros 2, Expos 1

At Montreal, Jerry Mumphrey doubled home a pair of first-inning runs, all the offense Mike LaCoss and Bill Dawley would need. LaCoss gave up three hits through eight innings, then Dawley surrendered one in the ninth to pick up his first save of the season; he had 14 last year.

Mets 4, Reds 3

Darryl Strawberry belted a two-run homer in the first inning as the Mets jumped ahead 3-0. But visiting Cincinnati chipped away to tie the game 3-3.

Then Reds catcher Brad Gulden's wild throw on an attempted pickoff of Ron Gardenhire at first base in the seventh inning allowed Mike Fitzgerald to score from second with the winning run.

Cubs 9, Giants 3

Ron Cey belted a pair of homers, giving him 38 in his career against San Francisco and four of his overall total of 12 this year. Scott Sanderson came off the disabled list and pitched five shutout innings. Sanderson, who hadn't pitched since May 29 because of a back problem, stopped the Giants on three hits through the first five innings, striking out five.

Dave Owen followed Cey's homer in the third with the first of his major-league career.

Padres 2, Pirates 1

Tony Gwynn doubled in a run in the first, then got his seventh game-winning RBI of the season when Pittsburgh reliever Rod Scurry walked him with the bases loaded in the ninth. Scurry, working his second inning in relief of starter Jose DeLeon, struck out Kevin McReynolds to open the ninth, then walked Carmelo Martinez. Martinez went to second on a wild pitch and, after Garry Templeton struck out, Scurry walked pinch hitter Kurt Bevacqua and Alan Wiggins to load the bases. Then he walked Gwynn on a 3-2 delivery.

El Paso explodes against Beaumont, 11-1

By The Associated Press

El Paso thumped Beaumont 11-1, Shreveport defeated Arkansas 3-1 in 10 innings, and Jackson defeated Tulsa 6-2 in Texas League action Thursday.

El Paso led 1-0 through five innings, but the Diablos exploded for eight runs in the sixth inning. Mike Samuel's bases-loaded, two-strike suicide squeeze bunt highlighted the inning. Stan Davis hit a three-run double shortly later.

Cam Walker was the winning pitcher, getting his first victory after three losses. He held Beaumont to five hits, but lost his shutout on Jim Thomas' two-out homer in the eighth. Bill Long, 9-3, was the loser.

Arkansas took a 1-0 lead over Shreveport in the third inning after Larry Reynolds got to second base on an error and wild throw to first. Curt Ford singled him home.

Philadelphia Stars' Jim Mora

USFL selects Stars' Mora

From wire reports

FOOTBALL—The Philadelphia Stars' Jim Mora was voted USFL Coach of the Year after guiding the Stars to the best record in the league the last two seasons, fubusgubg 15-3 in 1983 before losing 24-22 to Michigan in the title game. And this year the Stars took a 16-2 record into the playoffs...

Houston Gamblers offensive coordinator Mouse Davis, creator of the team's "run and shoot" offense, says he expects to be offered the Denver Gold coaching job, but he hasn't made a decision on what to do if he gets the offer from Gold owner Doug Speddling...

BASEBALL—The National League set a new single-day attendance record Wednesday when 245,192 fans, led by 52,134 in San Diego, attended games. The previous record of 242,167 was set July 31, 1982. In addition to the San Diego crowd, there were 50,010 in New York, 47,431 in Atlanta, 46,747 in Los Angeles, 28,085 in San Francisco and 20,785 in Philadelphia...

Warren Cromartie hit a three-run home run and Reggie Smith belted a two-run homer as the Yomiuri Giants beat the Yakult Swallows in Japanese League action. Cromartie has 20 home runs and Smith 10 this season. The Yokohama Taiyo Whales, led by Leron Lee's 14th homer, downed the Hanshin Tigers 11-6 while Steve Ontiveros hit a two-run homer as Seibu beat Lotte, 4-3...

BOXING—Louie Burk,f Las Cruces, N.M., will square off with Charlie "White Lightning" Brown July 22. Brown, the 11th-ranked lightweight according to Ring Magazine, replaced Hector "Macho" Camacho as Burke's opponent at New Mexico State University's Pan American Center in Las Cruces and the bout will be televised nationally by CBS...

Jiro Watanabe of Japan scored a split decision over Thailand's Payao Poontarat to capture Payao's WBC junior bantamweight championship in a 12-round title bout. Watanabe is also the WBA junior bantamweight champion, although the WBA had threatened to strip that crown from him if he fought in the title match under WBC rules...

BASKETBALL— Defending champion U.S. defeated Canada 80-61 to retain its title in the William Jones Cup men's championships Thursday. The U.S. had a 9-0 record and Canada finished 7-2...

If the NCAA decides to hold its 1989 championships in Denver, the city and county will pledge $557,500 worth of improvements at McNichols Sports Arena. Wes Martin, the city's manager of general services, emphasized the improvements are subject to the city being awarded the championships. The NCAA will decide where to hold the championships at its summer meeting next week in Colorado Springs...

Dallas course worries drivers

DALLAS (AP) — Formula One drivers are generally small in stature, but few people would question the size of their competitive hearts.

The drivers, in hot, humid Dallas for the inaugural Grand Prix event here, underwent their official weigh-in Thursday prior to the opening practice session on the new circuit winding through Texas State Fair Park.

Riccardo Patrese of Italy, who drives for Alfa Romeo, was the heaviest of the 27 drivers, weighing in at 181 pounds. Frenchman Jacques Laffite, who drives for Williams, was the smallest at 127.

The relatively small group would appear to be in for a rough weekend here, with temperatures each day expected to top 100 degrees.

"I don't think anybody is doing anything special to prepare for the heat," said Patrick Tambay, a Frenchman who drives for Renault. "We just know it's going to be very, very, very difficult Sunday."

The new circuit, which snakes around the Cotton Bowl Stadium, is 2.424 miles long and includes 15 turns, most of which are negotiated in second or third gear.

"It's a very quick circuit, much quicker than Detroit," noted Tambay, referring to the street circuit on which the Formula One drivers competed two weeks ago. "There are some problems, but I think we can make a good race on it."

Besides the heat, the drivers generally were concerned about the bumpiness of the track and the lack of runoff areas at the end of the quick straightaways.

"It's very bumpy and it's hard to get traction, so you're constantly spinning your wheels," said ATS driver Manfred Winkelhock of West Germany. He drew applause and smiles from some of the other drivers when he added, "But, we're in Texas, and it's a bit like horse riding."

Derek Warwick of England led the first practice session in a Renault. He toured the tough circuit in 1 minute, 38.617 seconds, an average speed of 88.487 mph (142.406 kph).

Nigel Mansell of England was the only other driver to get below 1:40 in the one-hour session Thursday. His Lotus turned a 1:39.531, which translates to 87.674 (141.098).

SWC to discuss court ruling

DALLAS (AP) — Representatives of the nine Southwest Conference schools scheduled a meeting here today to discuss the recent decision by the Supreme Court that voids the NCAA's exclusive television scheduling of major college football games.

"It's really just a fact-finding meeting," assistant SWC commissioner Dutch Baughman said Thursday.

Mets' Gooden youngest all-star

NEW YORK (AP) — Strikeout specialist Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets is astounded at his leap — from Class A ball last year to the National League All-Star team this year.

The 19-year-old rookie, who leads the National League with 125 strikeouts to go with a 7-5 record and an earned run average of 2.83, spent last year at Lynchburg of the Carolina League. He became the youngest player ever named to an All-Star team Thursday.

One of the oldest, 45-year-old Phil Niekro of the New York Yankees, who notched his 3,000th career strikeout Wednesday, was also among the 16 pitchers named to take part in Tuesday's All-Star Game in San Francisco.

"It's been an unbelievable year," said Gooden.

The other starters named by National League Manager Paul Owens of the Philadelphia Phillies are Joaquin Andujar of the St. Louis Cardinals, Charlie Lea of the Montreal Expos, and Mario Soto of the Cincinnati Reds.

Andujar, who is tied with Lea for the NL lead in victories with 13, has been favoring a slightly pulled hamstring in his right leg, but promised to play.

"I will be all right for the All Star Game," he said. "My leg doesn't hurt me that much. It is a great thing to have a good year and be selected to the team. I will be there pitching."

They are joined by four relievers, Bruce Sutter of the Cardinals, Jesse Orosco of the Mets, Al Holland of the Phillies, and Rich Gossage of the San Diego Padres.

"Being selected is a great honor. It's something you always look forward to and you never get tired of it," said Sutter, now a six-time All-Star, who leads the NL in saves with 21. "There are a lot of great pitchers in the National League. To be counted among them is a great feeling."

The knuckleballing Niekro, who was named to four National League All-Star teams while with the Atlanta Braves, has an 11-4 record with a 1.84 ERA in his first American League season.

He is the second-oldest player named — only Satchel Paige, a member of the 1953 American League team at the age of 47, was older.

Altobelli also selected relievers Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, who leads the majors with 22 saves, Bill Caudill of the Oakland A's, and Willie Hernandez of the Tigers. Hernandez is the AL's only left-hander.

In addition to Gooden, Lea and Holland will be making their first All-Star appearances. Gossage will be on his eighth All-Star squad, six of them in the American League; Andujar and Soto on their third; and Orosco on his second.

Gossage, who has 14 saves this season, was surprised to learn of his selection. "It's always an honor and a privilege because the manager picks the pitchers. I'm impressed that he (Paul Owens) picked me.

"There are so many great relievers in this league and there are so many who deserve it, I wouldn't have been disappointed (not making it)," Gossage added.

Orosco, who has saved 16 games this year as the Mets have fought for first place in the NL East, said: "What makes it so exciting this year is that we're (the Mets) doing so well as a team and that makes my selection even more meaningful."

In the American League, the selections were the first for Boddicker, Dotson, Caudill and Hernandez. It will be the fourth appearance for Stieb, third for Quisenberry and second for Morris.

Dailey, Peterson lead in LPGA Farr

By The Associated Press

GOLF

TOLEDO, Ohio — Dianne Dailey, who never has won on the LPGA tour, and Lauri Peterson shot 4-under-par 68s to share the weather-delayed, first-round lead in the new LPGA Jamie Farr Toledo Classic.

CYCLING

LE MANS, France — France's Laurent Fignon, one of the Tour de France favorites, won the unusually long 41-mile time trial from Alencon. Ireland's Sean Kelly was second.

TRACK AND FIELD

NEW YORK — Yiannis Kouros of Greece, covering 91 miles during the third day, amassed a total of 359 miles to continue as the leader in the New York Six-Day Run at the midway point of the event at Randalls Island. Eleanor Adams, a 36-year-old housewife from England, continued as the women's leader with 245 after running 69 miles for the last 24 hours.

Soviets make TBS offer for Communist Games

ATLANTA (AP) — The Soviet Union has given Turner Broadcasting System an offer for cable television coverage of the Communist bloc's alternative Olympics, TBS said.

The Soviet bloc nations, which are boycotting the Olympics because of alleged security flaws, plan to stage the "Friendship Games" in Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 16-30, said Robert Wussler, executive vice president of TBS, which operates the WTBS cable "superstation."

Wussler met Thursday with TBS President Ted Turner, who said no decision had been made.

"I'm quite aware that it would be controversial," Turner said. "That's not always a bad thing."

The Atlanta Constitution quoted sources within TBS as speculating Turner is giving the appearance of seriously considering the Friendship Games offer only to avoid jeopardizing ongoing negotiations on a news-sharing arrangement between Turner's Cable News Network and Soviet and Eastern European television.

The newspaper, in its Friday editions, also quoted Tony Lunt, staff executive for the Association of National Advertisers in New York, as saying that American advertisers might shy away from the Friendship Games for political reasons.

Express-Wranglers switched to night kickoff

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — United States Football League Commissioner Chet Simmons says he changed the start of Saturday's Western Conference championship game between the Arizona Wranglers and Los Angeles Express from afternoon to night at the advise of health experts.

The kickoff time was officially switched from 1:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., "in the interests of the players' health and the well-being of the Arizona fans," Simmons said Thursday in a telephone conference call.

The National Weather Service said a temperature of 103 degrees with 28 percent humidity was expected at the originally scheduled starting time. But conditions could have reached 125 degrees down on the natural grass playing surface of Sun Devil Stadium in suburban Tempe.

The temperature in the evening should be in the mid 90s, possibly dropping to the upper 80s during the second half, according to the Weather Service.

"That's more like it," said Express Coach John Hadl, who earlier had feared "somebody could actually die in that heat."

Simmons said he consulted a sports medicine expert in Phoenix, a physiologist with the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo., and the team trainers with both the Wranglers and Express before making his decision.

"There was a consensus of opinion that the game could have been played in the afternoon if proper precautions were taken. But the advice I got from the people I spoke to was that it was really a question of health. The issue was just one of safety," said Simmons. "The interest in this was not in hype and not in television. It was for the particular interests of the players and the fans."

Saturday's game was to have been played in the Los Angeles Coliseum until the Pacific Division champion Express ran into scheduling conflicts with the U.S. Olympic Committee. They tried unsuccessfully to switch the site to the Rose Bowl or Anaheim Stadium.

Hadl tried all week to convince ABC-TV to change the starting time to mid-morning or early evening or get USFL officials to switch the game to Sunday in Los Angeles, but to no avail.

The game now will be televised live nationally by ABC with no local blackout, said Wrangler owner Dr. Ted Diethrich. Earlier it was announced the ban would not be lifted until at least 35,258 tickets were sold — matching the club's highest home attendance figure this season.

Wrangler officials now expect a crowd of 30,000 to 35,000 at 70,021-seat Sun Devil Stadium.

triple through the gap in right-center.

Midland made it 4-0 in the second when Woods scored on Jackson's single to left and 6-0 in the third when Norman singled and ended up scoring one out later on Hyman's second home run of the year.

The Dodgers cut the lead to 6-2 in the fourth on runs scored by Pederson and Vavra, to 7-3 and 7-4 after Pederson doubled and scored in each of the sixth and eighth innings.

Midland's final run came in the fourth when Shawon Dunston collected a one-out double up the middle and scored on Norman's double to the left field corner.

CUB NOTES: Dunston's double in the fourth (2-for-5 on the night) upped his hitting streak to 14 consecutive games...Varva saw his string of terror over the Cubs in this series diminish a bit, going only 2-for-5 and falling to 9-for-13 (a mere .692 average)...Pitchers for tonight's fifth game of the six-game stand will be right-handers Mike Cunningham, 0-0, for the Dodgers and Larry Hrynko, 0-2...With the victory, the Dodgers take a 3-1 lead over the Cubs in this stand and improve to 15-4 over Midland on the year...

Few endangered species inhabit Midland area

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Midland animal lovers searching for the local equivalent of Save the Whales could be rebels without a cause. Of the 21 endangered or threatened species of wildlife native to Texas, few inhabit the Midland area.

Most endangered animals spotted in the area are migratory, according to William C. Brownlee, program director for the Nongame Endangered Species division of Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Endangered species are those whose prospects for survival are in immediate jeopardy. Endangered animals may be listed as threatened, rare and critically endangered. In most cases it is illegal to kill or disturb an animal listed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service as endangered or threatened.

Frances Williams, a member of Midland Naturalists Inc., has compiled a list of more than 350 birds that can be seen in Midland County. Endangered fowls that migrate through the area include the Arctic and American peregrine falcon, brown pelican, red-cockaded woodpecker and an occasional bald eagle.

Another migratory bird, the American bittern, is on the threatened list.

Three birds now living in the county are becoming scarce, she said. They are the Swainson's hawk, snowy plover and loggerhead shrike.

"I would say there's not a tenth as many Swainson's hawks now as there were when I first started watching birds in 1944," Ms. Williams said. Insecticides used to kill grasshoppers, the hawks' main source of food, and a lack of nesting places are responsible for the decline, she said. "That is one bird I'm seriously worried about."

Sale to benefit learning center

From Staff Reports

Native plants will be on sale and free tours of the Midland Outdoor Learning Center will be offered this weekend, according to Dick Hagelstein, district conservationist of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) for Midland County.

Five species of plants, indigenous to Midland County, will be on sale by research horticulturist Burr Williams for benefit of the 49-acre Outdoor Door Learning Center at Hogan Park.

The center is north of the Midland Woman's Club in the southeast corner of Hogan Park off Wadley Avenue.

The sale will be held from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile, Midland ornithologist Frances Williams will conduct tours along the center's Nature Trail, which Burr Williams plotted in 1981.

Mrs. Williams, Burr Williams' mother, will conduct those tours at 8 a.m., 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. both days.

Plants in the sale will include the Big Bend salvia, Austin salvia, the trumpet vine, the evergreen red honey suckle, and the desert willow.

Williams, 29, owns the Gone Native nursery south of Midland.

Mrs. Williams, former Midland County head librarian and an avid birder botanist, is editor of "Phalarope," a monthly newsletter about birds and plants in the Midland area, and is Great Plains editor for the National Audubon Society's "The American Bird" quarterly magazine.

The center is sponsored by the Midland County Soil and Water Conservation District and is leased to the district from the city of Midland under a 25-year contract, which took effect in 1979.

The center's primary goal is to heighten citizens' awareness of the fauna and flora in their environment, the impact man has on the environment, and the importance of conservation, according to Hagelstein. Last schoolyear, about 5,000 Midland public school students toured the center and conducted research projects.

Funds raised will go toward building a 10,731-square-foot building to serve the center. So far, approximately $159,000 has been raised for the project.

Buildings not safe from flying debris

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Building codes designed to protect buildings from high winds aren't protecting them from debris carried by those high winds, according to a Texas Tech researcher.

But even though debris carried by a tornado could cause extensive damage to Midland's many office buildings, local building officials aren't convinced that there's any practical way to protect them.

Dr. Joseph E. Minor, director of the Institute for Disaster Research and the Glass Research and Testing Laboratory at Texas Tech in Lubbock, has studied building performance during 58 windstorms, including tornadoes and hurricanes, and concluded that more protection from windborne debris must be included in building design codes if wind damage is ever to be reduced.

"Windborne debris and the effects of internal pressure are prominent causes of building failures in all of these events," he said in a press release.

Buildings can be severely damaged even by winds that are within the range they are designed to handle, said Minor, if the winds pick up some solid object and slam it through the glass windows. Once the shell of the building is punctured, internal pressure multiplies the damage, as the wind roars through the building in search of an exit.

Minor points out that current codes haven't protected Houston from millions of dollars in windborne debris damage during hurricanes, but he admits that the cost of protection would also be high, a point echoed by Midland Building Official J.B. Keaton.

"Any time money's no object, you can do anything you want to," said Keaton. "All those suggestions are valid if you don't consider the cost."

Though a tornado would probably inflict extensive damage to Tall City buildings, Keaton said, there really isn't any practical solution, at least at the local level.

"It's conceivable we may have a problem in the future. But it's something that should be addressed nationwide."

Keaton said Midland's buildings are stressed for certain windloads, "But that doesn't protect the glass." Glass windows in office buildings are thermo-plated — they consist of two sections sealed together to form a pane at least one inch thick, "and they do suffice in all cases except when you have flying debris," he said.

Minor suggested the possibility of installing impact-resistant cladding, such as laminated or special tempered glass, or sheathing buildings with a protective latticework or designing them to better withstand internal pressure after windows break. But Midland architect Les Burke of Pate and Associates said building owners wouldn't be willing to pay for these innovations.

"Yes, it can be done, but it would definitely cost more," said Burke. "You could design an external skin to withstand a certain impact, but most owners wouldn't go to the extra expense to do that."

Only generous tax breaks or insurance discounts might tempt builders to safeguard their buildings from windborne debris, and the results might not be very popular with the people who have to work in those buildings, Burke said.

"What do you do, build a building without windows? You're probably better off protecting yourself with disaster insurance."

Despite the high winds which regularly whistle through the tall buildings of downtown Midland, windborne debris isn't usually much of a problem here, said Stan Loyd of Glasco, a local glass company. But if a tornado struck, debris "would be a major problem."

But Loyd questioned how effectively windborne debris could be resisted, even if Minor's suggestions were adopted.

"I don't know of types of glass that could withstand that kind of force," he said. "I don't think there would be much that you could do."

Anticipating these objections, Minor held back from making any strong recommendations until he had further studied the cost-effectiveness of preventive design and code restrictions.

"All I would advocate at this time is that the designer be aware of the debris problem, recognize the potential hazard and, if it exists in any special situation, make plans for it."

Inmate takes early walk from jail

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

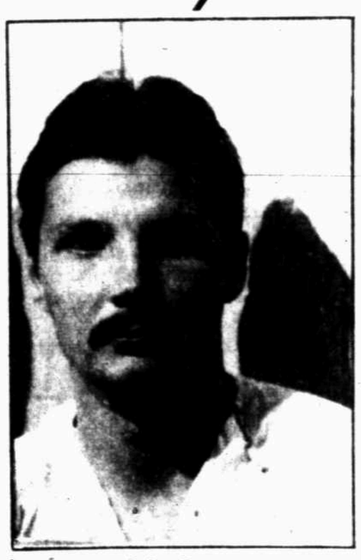

ODESSA — An Ector County jail inmate who reportedly would have been released in the next few days remained on the loose Friday morning after a Thursday escape.

John Alex Boggs, 27, who gave sheriff's deputies a Fort Worth address, has been missing since 10 a.m., Thursday, since he apparently walked away from the county's vehicle maintenance facility where he had been working as a trusty.

Boggs was on parole from the Texas Department of Corrections for felony theft. Although he might have been released soon from the county jail, reports of the misdemeanor theft and his escape would be made to the state parole board for consideration of revoking his parole and sending him back to prison.

Capt. Gene Kloss said Boggs, who had been in the county jail since June 13 awaiting prosecution on misdemeanor theft charges, had been driven to the maintenance facility at 8th and Vine St. about 8 a.m. and left under the supervision of the building supervisor.

The sheriff's office received a call about 10 a.m., said Kloss, that Boggs was missing. Kloss said Boggs was scheduled to go to court Thursday, and that prosecutors in the county attorney's office said Boggs probably would have been released soon based on credit for time he had already served.

John Boggs

No vehicles were reported stolen from the vicinity of the building, leading sheriff's deputies to believe Boggs had walked away, said Kloss. The building is located about one mile from I-20 in South Odessa.

While Boggs apparently would have been released soon, he now faces felony escape charges and could be sentenced to time in state prison. He had been transferred from the city jail to the county.

Boggs had not been sighted since his escape, said Kloss, but bulletins had been released in the area and Fort Worth. Boggs is described as a Caucasian, six-feet, three inches tall, weighing 180 lbs, with a mustache, and short brown hair, and wearing a white t-shirt and blue jeans.

Kloss said trusties, inmates in jail for misdemeanor offenses who the jailers decide are trustworthy, occasionally escape, but usually are picked up within hours of their escape. He said the last escaped trusty had been found swimming in a Holiday Inn swimmming pool.

"(Boggs) has probably got a two-hour jump on us," said Kloss. "All he's doing now is facing a long sentence."

Police reports indicate Boggs was arrested June 10 at the Sands Motel on 2nd St. in Odessa for theft of $25 from an associate pastor from Sherwood Baptist Church.

The pastor allegedly gave Boggs $25 after Boggs had called local ministers, representing himself as a U.S. Army chaplain. He reportedly told the ministers his brother (actually Boggs) was stranded at the hotel and, that if the minister would give Boggs $25, the chaplain would pay back the debt.

Richards want Bentsen as Veep

AUSTIN (AP) — Walter Mondale should either select U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a woman or a member of a minority group to be his running mate, says state Treasurer Ann Richards, who met with Mondale this week.

"My choice from a Texas perspective is Lloyd Bentsen. But I told him if he chooses not to put Bentsen on the ticket, then I felt he needed to do something dramatic such as naming a woman or minority, someone who would lend excitment to the ticket," she said Thursday.

Ms. Richards was one of a group of about 20 women who met with Mondale at his Minnesota home on Wednesday.

She said that during the two-hour session, Mondale appeared pleased with the advice offered. The discussion ranged from his vice presidential choice to such practical suggestions as making certain Mondale representatives attend local political gatherings.

"When we had finished, he said, 'I don't think I have ever been in a meeting where I felt the people were as well-prepared and as concise as you've been,' " Ms. Richards said.

Among those attending the meeting was Judy Goldsmith, president of the National Organization of Women, which at its convention last weekend passed a resolution stating the Democrats should nominate a woman from the convention floor if Mondale doesn't choose one.

However, Ms. Richards said, all the women at the meeting assured Mondale they will support him whoever he picks as his running mate.

Mondale has or will interview at least three women in his vice presidential search — San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, New York Rep. Geraldine Ferraro and Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

"I've met them all and I think they all are outstanding in their own ways," Ms. Richards said.

Selecting a woman for the No. 2 spot on the ticket would be such a "bold, progressive move," Ms. Richards said, that it would be difficult to estimate the impact.

"Should he choose a woman, all of the old political measuring sticks go out the window. I just don't think there is a way to measure what is an extraordinary change until it's done.

"There's no way to take an ordinary poll or look into a crystal ball and determine what the results would be. It would offer the kind of impetus and excitment for the campaign that I think is lacking now," she said.

Ms. Richards said she realizes that if a woman shares the ticket with Mondale and President Reagan wins re-election, blame could be aimed at the woman candidate.

"I think it is possible that a woman would be blamed. That's part of the risk," she said.

However, she added, "I don't think any of the women who met with Mondale yesterday had any suicidal tendencies politically."

Ms. Richards' own name has been talked about as a vice presidential possibility or for a cabinet post should Mondale win.

Asked about such speculation, she said, "I don't particularly want to talk to him about that (No. 2) job."

State wants waste sites cleaned

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Department of Water Resources has nominated four sites of Houston-area hazardous wastes for inclusion in a program established to clean up locations which endanger health or the environment.

Two of the sites are in Houston. Another, near Friendswood, leaked tars which crept within a few feet of residential yards, officials said. The fourth site is in Liberty County. The state wants them added to the federal superfund, a $1.6 billion program, officials said Thursday.

State officials expect the Environmental Protection Agency to release an expanded superfund list later this summer. Ten of the 11 Texas sites currently on the list are in or near Houston.

The sites recently nominated are Brio Refining Co. near Friendswood; a 46-acre site in northeast Houston where Water Resources spokesman Tom Milligan said compounds associated with creosoting wood have been found in the soil; a spot near the Astrodome; and a Liberty County location about a mile north of Moss Bluff.

The Brio site, an abandoned plant, was used for reclamation of styrene tars, copper catalyst regeneration and oil blending and refining, state officials said Thursday.

Smelly tars that leaked from pits on the site had approached within six feet of residential yards last September when state officials said they were looking for a responsible party to clean up the site. Milligan said the tar has contaminated shallow groundwater.

Friendswood Mayor Ralph Lowe, who once owned the facility, said he severed all connections with the plant when he sold it to a company that later sold it to Brio Refining.

"The people that bought the plant bought the problems," he said.

Wood was treated with creosote at the northeast Houston site beginning in 1911, Milligan said.

Mrs. Beezley was born Oct. 2, 1913, in Windom, and had been a resident of Monahans since 1962. She was a retired clerk dispatcher for the Monahans Police Department, and a Methodist.

Survivors include a son, John Beezley of Twin Lake, Mich.; and a grandson.

Inez Preston

Services were scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the Ellis Chapel for Inez Preston of Midland, who died Tuesday.

Mrs. Preston was born Jan. 19, 1898, and had lived in the Midland area since 1900.

Pallbearers are to be Bob Midkiff, John Midkiff, Bill Sanders, George Anderson, Marion Golf and Flynt Preston.

Time running out for Czech immigrants

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — This Fourth of July could have been the last taste of American freedom for Michael and Marcella Trubka, Czech aliens in Victoria for whom U.S. immigration laws are tightly shut.

Red, white and blue carnations gave Mrs. Trubka a brief moment of happiness earlier this week when a bouquet and corsage from friends were delivered to her desk at a downtown Victoria bank.

"Wishing you all the luck in the world..." read the inscription on the flower delivery Tuesday.

The Trubkas could use more than luck now. They could use an act of Congress — to either grant them resident alien status under a private bill, or passage of an amnesty act for aliens in their category.

The couple will be deported to Czechoslovakia, if that government agrees to admit the Trubkas who fled there in 1969.

Every appeal they've made since 1978 to Immigration and Naturalization Service officials to stay here has failed.

Trubka, recovering from a back injury sustained in March while working for a local oilfield company, has been imprisoned in a Pearsall detention facility for illegal aliens, according to the INS, because he has refused to leave the U.S.

"I was there Sunday," Mrs. Trubka told the Victoria Advocate. "He was looking really better. He was real down, real pale after three weeks, but he's better."

The Trubkas have no relatives in the United States, which is the surest way of becoming a permanent resident. They also lack any special preferences to qualify under the current 270,000-immigrant quota.

"In a nutshell, if they don't have immediate relatives and don't fit in the preferences, they can't immigrate," explained John Abriel, INS deputy district director in San Antonio.

The 270,000 quota is filled up by waiting lists of aliens who qualify under seven preference categories, including skilled workers, investors and professionals, said Abriel.

"The Trubkas have no preference they could fit into," he said.

Groups of Victorians have been circulating petitions supporting amnesty for the Trubkas, a coworker of Mrs. Trubka said Tuesday.

Mrs. Annie Krebs said she and many others had signed the petitions, which they want to present to government officials.

She said Mrs. Trubka, who had sought aid from U.S. Rep. Bill Patman's office, was told by the Ganado, Texas, Democrat's staff that her family is the victim of U.S. immigration policy.

The Trubkas might fit under the amnesty bill Congress is considering, Abriel said, because they came to America on passports from Australia in 1976.

Ladonna Jones, 11, of the Dallas suburb of Lewisville, wrote superstar Michael Jackson last week complaining that she couldn't afford to attend one of his Dallas concerts July 13-15 despite saving almost $30 for a ticket because tickets must be purchased in lots of four. After Jackson mentioned her name and said he was asking promoters to change the ticket system at a news conference Thursday in Kansas City, Miss Jones was told that she would be allowed to attend one of the concerts free.

School clerk's books urge sex with children

AUSTIN (AP) — A clerk for the Austin Independent School District has published several pamphlets urging adults to have sex with children, the Houston Chronicle reported today in a copyright story.

David Sonenschein, 43, is also listed as the associate editor of a newsletter published by Childhood Sexuality Circle, a California group that advocates homosexual, heterosexual and incestuous sex between adults and children and repeal of age-of-consent laws, the newspaper said.

His superior, Associate School Superintendent James Jeffries, said he was unaware of Sonenschein's published works and would take no action until he has reviewed them.

Jeffries said he learned of Sonenschein's activities Tuesday, when an Austin police investigator called requesting information on Sonenschein.

"We just don't have anything yet," Jeffries said. "I'll have to see the pamphlet."

Sonenschein works in the school district's student records division and is not in contact with children, Jeffries said.

Sonenschein would say only that his pamphlets are self-explanatory, adding, "We have found it is not in our best interest to talk to the press."

Sonenschein's publications include "How to Have Sex With Kids," "What is Pedophilia Anyway?" "Women Pedophiles" and "Children and Sadomasochism."

Austin police said they began investigating Sonenschein after Houston police found his name and address in the wallet of a man they had charged with manufacturing child pornography and sexually abusing a 6-month-old infant, the Chronicle reported.

One of the dozen pamphlets Sonenschein offers for sale is a 17-page text with a cover featuring a frame from the movie "Frankenstein" in which the monster is crouched by a river bank, accepting a flower from a little girl. Inside are numerous cartoon depictions of adults and children, pondering the thought of sex, and the dedication, "To all thoughtful people!"

He includes a chapter on "Meeting Kids," which advises the reader to use his job, friends and children he already knows as a source for sexual contacts and to use caution initially.

"After you get to know each other and start having a sexual relationship, you can go to unknown and secret places," it states.

"It's also a good idea to get to know parents," the text continues. "Sometimes you can get baby-sitting tasks or you can just take the kids places when they know you and know that the kids like being with you. Sometimes parents can introduce you to other kids, too."

The booklet includes a seven-page section, which begins with tips on how to coax a child into a sex act ("Curiosity is a big factor"), then turns to various acts that can be performed and how to most easily accomplish them.

"The point is," the text states, "none of it is 'sick' or 'sinful' or 'inappropriate.' It all ought to be just fun where nobody owes anybody and no one direction is best."

Girl writes own ticket to Jackson concert

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas girl who worked odd jobs to earn money to buy a ticket to see a Michael Jackson concert — only to find that she was $100 short — will get to see the superstar perform after all, thanks to a letter she wrote him.

Promoters of the concerts by Jackson and his brothers, scheduled for July 13-15 at Texas Stadium in Irving, told a Dallas radio station that 11-year-old Ladonna Jones will get her wish to attend one of the three performances.

"They said they would guarantee that she will see one of the performances," said Bob Morrison of KVIL.

The sixth-grader wrote Jackson last week to tell him she was disappointed that despite her hard work to save $30, she still couldn't attend one of the concerts because tickets had to be purchased in blocks of four, at a cost of $120.

But in a news conference Thursday in Kansas City, where the group's Victory Tour begins tonight, Jackson mentioned the girl's name and predicament and said he had asked promoters to work out a new way to distribute tickets.

Ladonna, from the Dallas suburb of Lewisville, told Jackson in her letter that she had saved nearly enough for one ticket by working odd jobs.

Jackson also said in the news conference he would donate all the money he makes from the performances to charity.

Neither Jackson nor his manager, Frank DiLeo, said how much money might be given away or exactly where it would go. There have been published reports that Jackson and his brothers are guaranteed as much as $40 million.

Promoters also added 10 cities to the tour, which now includes 13 stops and 37 concerts. Added Thursday were New York City; Knoxville, Tenn.; Indianapolis; Detroit; Los Angeles; Buffalo, N.Y.; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Cleveland; and Anaheim, Calif.

Tour promoter Chuck W. Sullivan said the new ticket system would go into effect with the group's appearance in Jacksonville, Fla., later this month.

Earlier Thursday, Mayor Richard Berkley and Randy Jackson distributed the first of 1,500 free tickets for this weekend's three concerts to disadvantaged and handicapped youths.

Sullivan said the Jacksons will appear in Madison Square Garden in New York City Aug. 2-5 after completing the previously announced stops on their tour: Kansas City, July 6-8; Dallas, Texas, July 13-15; and Jacksonville, Fla., July 21-23.

Other concerts are scheduled Aug. 10-11 at Neyland Stadium in Knoxville, Tenn.; Aug. 17-18, Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis, Ind.; Aug. 25-26, Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome; Sept. 2-4, 7-9 and 11-12, Los Angeles Forum; Sept. 28-29, Buffalo, N.Y., Rich Stadium; Oct. 5-6, Philadelphia's JFK Stadium; Oct. 13-14, Pittsburgh Three Rivers Stadium; Oct. 19-20, Cleveland Stadium; and Nov. 7-8, Anaheim, Calif., Stadium.

Negotiations are taking place with a few other cities for possible concerts, Sullivan said, indicating Chicago was among them.

Third session of summer programs to begin Monday

The third session of summer programs will begin Monday, according to the Parks and Recreation Department. Children who have registered for these programs should report to the following places:

—Summer Fun Camp: Ulmer Park.

—Swimming lessons, Basic Water Safety Rescue and Aid or Advanced Lifesaving: Doug Russell Pool.

—Cerebral palsy recreation: Cerebral Palsy Center.

—Tennis lessons: Lee High School.

Children should report to class with their registration forms.

The summer playground program, which is free, will be continuing. On Monday the van will be at Henderson Park; Tuesday, Wadley-Barron; Wednesday, Tumbleweed; Thursday, Grafa; and Friday, Lancaster.

Further information can be obtained from the Parks and Recreation Office, 683-4281, extension 316.

SPECIES

Another is the loggerhead shrike. "In the summertime there's just a few, but in the winter there's a lot, so we don't really know the status of that one here. But most people report it's definitely threatened."

Two birds no longer found in Midland County are the Aplomado falcon and the lesser prairie chicken. The last Aplomado seen in the county was in 1913, Ms. Williams reported. They are still found in New Mexico, and environmentals at the Chihuahuan Desert Research Institute in Alpine are trying to breed and replenish this species, she said.

The prairie chicken disappeared when most of the land was plowed. The last reported sighting was in 1956.

The bald eagle, another endangered bird, is rarely found in Midland County. "I think once every five years we see a bald eagle here," Ms. Williams guessed.

Brownlee added a few more species to the list. The least tern, a small sea gull, and Texas horned lizards, both found in Midland County, are classified as protected nongame species.

Other endangered animals native to Texas, according to the Animal Protection Institute of America, include: Texas blind salamander; Houston toad; fountain darter (fish); Big Bend, Clear Creek, Goodenough, Pecos and San Marcos gambusia (fish); Comanche Springs and Leon Springs pupfish; jaguarundi (wildcat); and gray and red wolves. Threatened animals include the American alligator and San Marcos salamander.

Two residences burglarized

From Staff Reports

James C. Kruse of 1604 North D Street told police that guns, watches, stereo equipment and cameras worth $9,484 were taken in a burglary at his home Thursday.

In another burglary complaint, Roger Gutierrez of 415 E. Pine said two handguns and a rifle were missing from his residence. Entry was apparently gained through an unlocked window. No dollar loss was placed on the weapons.

Fireworks blamed for apartment fire

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities say fireworks launched by a youngster probably triggered a five-alarm apartment fire that left more than 50 people homeless and caused at least $1 million in damage.

One firefighter was slightly injured when he was overcome by heat exhaustion, said Deputy Fire Chief Jimmy Hatcher. Authorities said residents of La Alta Apartments escaped unharmed Thursday.

Officials said 24 units in three buildings of the 10-building complex were damaged before firefighters extinguished the blaze.

"Some people said they saw kids shooting fireworks just before it started," said Assistant Fire Chief Jack Hickey.

Arson investigator Don Howard said it was unlikely the youth suspected in connection with the fire would be charged because he is only about 10 years old and the blaze was apparently an accident.

Sudden onset of headaches organic basis

Dear Dr. Solomon: Why would a healthy person suddenly begin to get headaches? The person seems to be in good health and does not have any more emotional problems than anyone else these days. — Sonny, Tampa, Fla.

Dear Sonny: I cannot give a specific answer to your questions; however, a sudden onset of headaches may indicated some organic basis.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My brother recently was hospitalized with a myocardial infarction. When I spoke with him about it, he told me that one of his symptoms was a pain in the back. I have often heard the symptoms of a heart attack described, and no one ever mentioned a pain in the back. Is this something new? — Raphael, San Antonio, Texas

Dear Raphael: A myocardial infarction may be a cause of back pain.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been reading all about the pros and cons of the vaccination for whooping cough for children. What I would like to know is whether adults can also get whooping cough or whether this is strictly a children's disease. — Mrs. T.L., Austin, Texas

Dear Mrs. L.: Dr. Alan R. Figelman, of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., says that adults are also susceptible to whooping cough (pertussis). Moreover, it is possible for adults to pass the infection to infants and children.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I want to lose some weight and your idea of a gradual loss rather than a crash diet makes good sense to me. Can you give me some idea about how I can combine dieting and exercise so that I can lose about 10 pounds over a period of a few weeks? — Grace, Rochester, N.Y.

Dear Grace: A weight loss of one to two pounds a week should be sufficient. Since a reduction of 3,500 calories is the equivalent of one pound of weight loss, a deficit of 1,000 calories a day (7,000 calories a week) should result in a loss of two pounds for the week.

If you would like to inclue exercise in your program, bear in mind that one hour of strenuous exercise will result in an expenditure of 300 to 1,000 calories. Therefore, it may be possible to lose two pounds a week by exercising vigorously for an hour a day, without even changing your diet.

Polish 'fiddler' helps rebuild Jewish cemeteries

POZNAN, Poland (AP) — A production of "Fiddler on the Roof" here ends with an army officer ordering Jews to leave their village. It is a poignant scene in a nation which in the past 50 years has witnessed the destruction and exodus of a large Jewish population.

"I wanted to produce 'Fiddler' here, where there are practically no longer any Jews," said Antoni Marianowicz, who translated the popular American musical into Polish and is the driving force behind Polish productions of the play.

Marianowicz also convinced lyricist Joseph Stein and the play's American agent, the William Morris Co., to direct their royalties from the Polish production to rebuilding the nation's 412 Jewish cemeteries.

Nearly a quarter of the cemeteries have disappeared entirely, and most of those that survive are a tumble of tombstones overgrown by grass, shrubs and trees during the 45 years since Nazi armies invaded Poland at the beginning of World War II.

"Most of them were ruined in the war, and not much has been done for them since," Marianowicz said in an interview.

DURING THE German occupation, 3 million Jews died in Nazi death camps located in Poland. The Nazis also killed 3 million Poles who were not Jewish.

Most Polish Jews who survived the war fled. A second exodus came in 1968, when Polish Interior Minister Gen. Mieczyslaw Moczar led an official campaign against Poland's estimated 30,000 remaining Jews, prompting all but a few thousand to flee.

Most of the remaining Jews were elderly and not equipped financially to care for the hundreds of thousands of graves which have fallen into ruin or disappeared.

Several dozen Jewish and Roman Catholic artists and intellectuals formed the "Committee to Save Jewish Cemeteries" in the late 1970s to preserve what the former chairman, Eryk Lipinski, called "an important part of Poland's cultural heritage."

The governing board of the committee, including Lipinski and Marianowicz, resigned in late 1983 because they lacked support from the authorities, Lipinski said.

The government's problem is apparently financial rather than philosophical. In the grip of an economic crisis since 1979, Poland is more than $25 billion in debt to the West.

REPRESENTATIVES of Poland's Religious Affairs Ministry, which oversees the graveyards, declined to discuss their restoration efforts with an AP reporter.

"Anti-Semitism in Poland is theoretical now, because there are virtually no Jews," said Marianowicz.

Another leader of Warsaw's Jewish community, Jewish State Theater Director Szymon Szurmiej, said in an interview that there is little ill will by the government toward Jews, "but where there are Jews, there is anti-Semitism."

In an April 15, 1981 letter to Marianowicz, himself a Jew, Stein said he hoped the arrangement would have "some small effect in helping the Polish people in their struggle for political liberty and against anti-Semitism."

Marianowicz hopes the "Fiddler" productions will net $9,000, which is only a fraction of the $1 billion the cemetery committee estimates is needed to restore the graveyards.

Retail sales up

The Associated Press

Sales continued strongly at the nation's major retailers in June, but the post-recession momentum has slowed to a more leisurely pace.

Earlier in the year sales increases over the comparable month in 1982 were mostly in double digits, often more than 20 percent, but the latest month saw more restrained gains.

Among the top five retailers reporting Thursday, June sales were up 7.5 percent at Sears, Roebuck & Co., 6.3 percent at K mart Corp., 17 percent at J.C. Penney Co., 11.7 percent at Federated Department Stores Inc. and 14.6 percent at Dayton-Hudson Corp.

Sears, the world's largest retailer, said its merchandise sales for June were 7.5 percent higher than in June 1983, which was a particularly strong month compared to the depressed sales of June 1982.

Sears said its sales last month, with major gains in appliances and home entertainment merchandise, were a record $2.52 billion, up from $2.35 billion in June 1983. For the retailing fiscal year, which begins with February, Sears' sales were a record $10.26 billion, up 6.8 percent from $9.61 billion.

K mart, the No. 2 retailer, said it had a 6.3 percent increase in June, citing particular gains on seasonal goods such as fans and air conditioners. Sales totaled $1.96 billion, up from $1.84 billion. For the fiscal year, sales were $7.75 billion, up 6.9 percent from $7.24 billion.

Penney, ranked third by 1983 sales, said store and catalog sale soared 17 percent in June to $1.11 billion from $945 million a year ago. For the year, sales were up 17.6 percent to $4.48 billion from $3.81 billion.

No. 4 Federated, which operates chains nationwide under a number of names, said June sales were up 11.7 percent from a year ago, to $817.2 million from $731.7 million.

Mexico's president denies distance between government, workers

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite calls for prosecution of a clique of powerful oil union leaders, President Miguel de la Madrid went into the center of their activity and said there is no distance between workers and the government.

"We are part of the same system and allied in the revolution," the president said in Ciudad Madero. "We are going to continue struggling and to show that there will not be any maneuvers, intrigues or slanders that might distance workers and their unions from the government of the revolution."

De la Madrid spoke before more than 10,000 members of the Mexican Oil Workers Union. His stop Wednesday in Ciudad Madero, on the Gulf of Mexico just north of Tampico, was part of a two-day tour of the northeastern border state of Tamaulipas.

The 190,000 member union is the strongest and wealthiest labor group in Mexico. Its operations are critical to the continued flow of petroleum, which by far is the No. 1 source of dollars badly needed to meet payments on the country's massive $87 billion foreign debt.

Dissident worker groups and politicians have called for an investigation into allegations that union leaders siphoned off millions of Mexico's petroleum dollars. Although none of the allegations mention how much money might have been lost to corruption, more than $50 million a day entered Mexico from oil sales abroad during the height of the oil boom in 1981.

De la Madrid took office in December 1982 promising a campaign of "moral renewal" to rid the country of endemic corruption. His willingness to investigate the oil workers union is considered a test of how far he is willing to push the campaign.

At a news conference earlier this year, the president was asked if the government has any intention of investigating oil worker union leaders Joaquin Hernandez Galicia or Salvadoran Barragan Camacho.

"In any case, and without referring to specific cases, when there are adequately based denunciations before the authorities, with impartial and objectively carried out investigations, the corresponding decisions will be taken," de la Madrid replied.

Hernandez, known by the nickname La Quina, has no official title in the union but is known to have controlled it since 1958 through a network of followers in the 29 locals. Barragan Camacho, who is a senator from Tamaulipas of de la Madrid's ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, is Hernandez' close associate and the union secretary.

DALLAS (AP) — Hunt International Resources Corp., which is controlled by Dallas' billionaire Hunt family, failed to make a $1.4 million interest payment due on its Series A debentures, a company spokesman said Thursday.

Spokesman Robert White said the firm failed to make the payment, due Monday, because of declining sales and operating revenue from its two principle ventures — selling sugar and chartering offshore oil rigs.

The company has been selling some of its assets, including Shakey's Inc., Impel Energy, Shakey's International Ltd., and California City Development, White said, but had not generated "sufficient funds ... to cover debt service requirements."

He declined to comment on why the wealthy family couldn't make the payment owed by a company it controls.

White said operations of its sugar and drilling rig leasing operations will not be affected by the action Monday.

Hunt International Resources controls the Great Western Sugar Co. and its subsidiaries.

Nuclear 'jumper' high-risk occupation

MONROEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Tim Dayton may work only a few minutes but still draw a day's wages on top of his meal money and expenses for his motel, car rental and air fare.

There's one hitch, however.

Dayton is a jumper, which is shoptalk for a temporary nuclear worker who hops into a plant's radioactive area and repairs what he can before exceeding his exposure limit to radiation.

Other names are glowboys, sponges, minutemen and fresh meat.

He gets plenty of overtime and a chance to travel. But he has no union and no health insurance, and some nuclear critics say he is a walking time bomb who runs the risk of delayed cancer or genetic damage.

"Nobody honestly wants to go in there. But you're there to do a job. Everybody has to have an income," said Dayton, 29, a father of two and a former auto mechanic who has been a jumper for six years.

"Common sense tells you there has to be some risk. Getting cancer may be one of the consequences you may suffer. We know we can't come back to the company and say, 'You did this to me 30 years ago,'" he added in an interview.

"But I don't worry about it or concern myself with it. I think this is a safe industry. There are a lot worse jobs. I really enjoy this. When they call me, I'm always ready to go. I've never turned a job down."

Dayton works for Westinghouse Electric Corp., the world's largest manufacturer of nuclear reactors. The company is also among the leaders in nuclear servicing and in development of machines and robots designed to keep humans out of hostile environments.

Westinghouse has 327 jumpers or casual workers on call in the Pittsburgh area, an additional 122 in South Carolina and others in California. The starting salary is $5.50 an hour, although specialists can earn $3 more.

Primarily, jumpers repair the rainbow-shaped tubes in an atomic power plant's steam generators. The tubes carry water heated to 550 degrees in the nuclear furnace and flash a second water source in the generator to steam, which in turn drives turbines to make electricity.

The tubes, however, can leak or fill with deposits. Jumpers go in to plug, sleeve or weld the balky tubes. The routine work is usually done in the spring and fall when demand for power is down.

The workers don layers of plastic clothing, gloves, boots and respirators so they won't breathe or touch radioactive particles. But ionizing radiation can be stopped only by layers of lead or concrete.

When the workers reach their exposure limits — known in the jargon as "burning out" or "crapping up" — they are commanded by radio to leave.

"It's high-tech feudalism," said Robert Alvarez, a radiation expert with the anti-nuclear Environmental Policy Institute, a research and lobbying group based in Washington, D.C.

"In the nuclear power industry, it's probably the most significant problem for occupational and health safety," he said. "Radiation health effects are not readily apparent and take a long time to manifest themselves."

Workers are limited to three rem (3,000 millirems) of exposure in a three-month period by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and Westinghouse has a tighter limit of 2.75 rem.

Dollar eases; Gold drops

LONDON (AP) — The dollar eased against all other major currencies except the Japanese yen and Swiss franc in early trading today. Gold bullion prices also dropped.

Despite its decline from Thursday's record-high levels, traders said the dollar continued to be underpinned by expectations of higher American interest rates.

The dollar began the trading day on strong note in Tokyo, rising to a new nine-month high of 241.00 Japanese yen, up from 240.45 yen Thursday and 3.55 yen higher than last Friday's 237.45 yen.

Market sources said the Bank of Japan stepped in to keep the yen from sagging further, but the amount of the intervention was not known. Later in London, the dollar was quoted at 240.80 yen.

A spokesman for West Germany's central Bundesbank in Frankfurt also confirmed that it had intervened in the market. Traders estimated the bank's dollar sales at between $50 million and $100 million.

The British pound, which hit an all-time low of $1.3180 late Thursday, edged up in early dealings to $1.3220.

--2.3775 Swiss francs, up from 2.3735.

–8.6765 French francs, down from 8.6795.

–3.1875 Dutch guilders, down from 3.1915.

–1,738.25 Italian lire, down from 1,739.25.

–1.32685 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3280.

Gold and silver bullion, meanwhile, continued trading at their lowest levels since the autumn of 1982.

London's five main bullion houses fixed an indicative gold price of $358 an ounce, down from $364.20 late Thursday.

In Zurich, gold was bid at $356.50, down from $364.75.

Gold was bid at $359.50 in New York late Thursday.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Steel mill products imports remain high

WASHINGTON — Imports of steel mill products in May remained close to the record-high levels reached in earlier months of this year, the American Iron and Steel Institute has reported, based on its compilation of commerce department figures. Imports in the first five months of this year were 81 percent ahead of the same 1983 period, and captured 25 percent of the American market.

Amax Inc. to restructure metals group

GREENWICH, Conn. — Amax Inc. has announced a restructuring of its metals group to create two major commodity metals business units and a new specialty products sector.

A newly organized alloy division will include the former molybdenum, nickel and tungsten divisions. The base and precious metals division will include the former copper, lead and zinc divisions as well as Rosario Resources Corp. The specialty products sector will consist of the company's magnesium and refractory divisions and a new specialty chemicals division.

Raw steel production at recession level

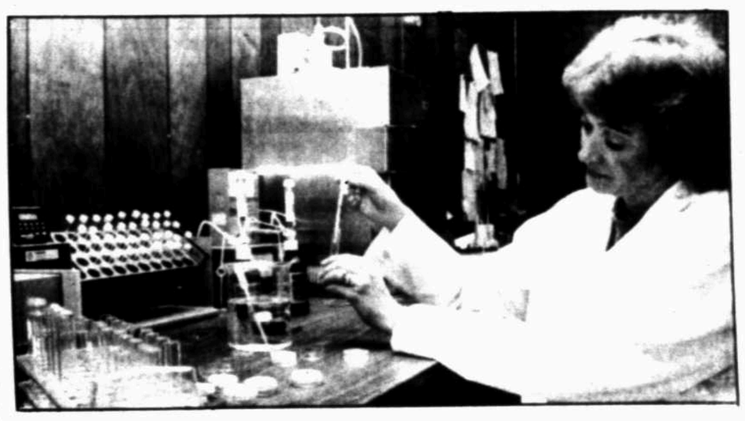

WASHINGTON — Raw steel production in the United States during May continued at the recession-level plateau which has prevailed for several months, the American Iron and Steel Institute has reported. A decline in tonnage has also been noted in the Institue's preliminary reports for the first weeks of June.

The indications are, the Institute said, that there has been an earlier than usual onset of the summer slump in the steel business, due not only to the seasonal dip in order intake but also to the rise in imports of steel.

Commission to hear oral arguments

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has agreed to hear oral arguments by United Parcel Service and companies opposed to UPS' application for authority to transport packages from point to point within the state. The commissioners will hear arguments by both sides at 2 p.m. on July 9 at the Railroad Commission headquarters building here.

The request was filed with the Commission's transportation division after the hearings examiner in the case recommended the Commission deny the UPS application. That recommendation was delivered to the commissioners during their regular weekly conference on transportation division matters held June 18.

Testing for formaldehyde vapors.

EPA may regulate formaldehyde in homes

PRAIRIE DU SAC, Wis. — A new regulation on the allowable levels of formaldehyde in homes is expected from the Environmental Protection Agency. Since 1982 the EPA has maintained that dangers from formaldehyde vapors were not a large enough risk to public health to warrant regulation. Now, as a result of a recent court action, the EPA has earmarked formaldehyde for immediate regulatory consideration which could lead to tightening existing restrictions on wood products and other materials which go into conventional and mobile/manufactured homes.

Donoghue's Money Fund Average (Averagee for all 256 taxable funds)		36	10.05	9.96

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and 30-day period. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. x - average term to next rate adjustment date. g - one-time sales charge. r - restricted availability.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 256 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (R) of Holliston, Mass. 01746 decreased $575.5 million to $168.4 billion for the week ended July 3, 1984. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 10.06 percent from 10.04 percent. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 9.96 percent from 9.89 percent. The taxable funds' average maturity decreased to 36 days after one week at 37 days.

William E. Donoghue says, "The slight increase in the 7-day average yield for all taxable money funds was due to the lower yields of money funds that invest solely in U.S. Government securities. Yields of government-only money funds, which comprise 35 percent of the taxable funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT, have declined during the past three weeks, while yields on broadly-based funds have been steadily increasing.

Assets of tax-free money funds exceeded $22 billion for the first time this week. Tax-free money fund assets have increased $5.8 billion since the end of December 1983." Reprinted in condensed form with permission from Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT of Holliston, MA 01746. 617-429-5930.

Polish 'fiddler' helps rebuild Jewish cemeteries

POZNAN, Poland (AP) — A production of "Fiddler on the Roof" here ends with an army officer ordering Jews to leave their village. It is a poignant scene in a nation which in the past 50 years has witnessed the destruction and exodus of a large Jewish population.

"I wanted to produce 'Fiddler' here, where there are practically no longer any Jews," said Antoni Marianowicz, who translated the popular American musical into Polish and is the driving force behind Polish productions of the play.

Marianowicz also convinced lyricist Joseph Stein and the play's American agent, the William Morris Co., to direct their royalties from the Polish production to rebuilding the nation's 412 Jewish cemeteries.

Nearly a quarter of the cemeteries have disappeared entirely, and most of those that survive are a tumble of tombstones overgrown by grass, shrubs and trees during the 45 years since Nazi armies invaded Poland at the beginning of World War II.

"Most of them were ruined in the war, and not much has been done for them since," Marianowicz said in an interview.

DURING THE German occupation, 3 million Jews died in Nazi death camps located in Poland. The Nazis also killed 3 million Poles who were not Jewish.

Most Polish Jews who survived the war fled. A second exodus came in 1968, when Polish Interior Minister Gen. Mieczyslaw Moczar led an official campaign against Poland's estimated 30,000 remaining Jews, prompting all but a few thousand to flee.

Most of the remaining Jews were elderly and not equipped financially to care for the hundreds of thousands of graves which have fallen into ruin or disappeared.

Several dozen Jewish and Roman Catholic artists and intellectuals formed the "Committee to Save Jewish Cemeteries" in the late 1970s to preserve what the former chairman, Eryk Lipinski, called "an important part of Poland's cultural heritage."

The governing board of the committee, including Lipinski and Marianowicz, resigned in late 1983 because they lacked support from the authorities, Lipinski said.

The government's problem is apparently financial rather than philosophical. In the grip of an economic crisis since 1979, Poland is more than $25 billion in debt to the West.

REPRESENTATIVES of Poland's Religious Affairs Ministry, which oversees the graveyards, declined to discuss their restoration efforts with an AP reporter.

"Anti-Semitism in Poland is theoretical now, because there are virtually no Jews," said Marianowicz.

Another leader of Warsaw's Jewish community, Jewish State Theater Director Szymon Szurmiej, said in an interview that there is little ill will by the government toward Jews, "but where there are Jews, there is anti-Semitism."

In an April 15, 1981 letter to Marianowicz, himself a Jew, Stein said he hoped the arrangement would have "some small effect in helping the Polish people in their struggle for political liberty and against anti-Semitism."

Marianowicz hopes the "Fiddler" productions will net $9,000, which is only a fraction of the $1 billion the cemetery committee estimates is needed to restore the graveyards.

Retail sales up

The Associated Press

Sales continued strongly at the nation's major retailers in June, but the post-recession momentum has slowed to a more leisurely pace.

Earlier in the year sales increases over the comparable month in 1982 were mostly in double digits, often more than 20 percent, but the latest month saw more restrained gains.

Among the top five retailers reporting Thursday, June sales were up 7.5 percent at Sears, Roebuck & Co., 6.3 percent at K mart Corp., 17 percent at J.C. Penney Co., 11.7 percent at Federated Department Stores Inc. and 14.6 percent at Dayton-Hudson Corp.

Robert Christian, chief economist with Provident National Corp. in Philadelphia, noted the more dramatic earlier sales increases were comparisons with "the pits of the recession." He called the June figures much more "reasonable."

Jeffrey Feiner, retail store analyst with the Wall Street firm Merrill Lynch & Co., said his company expected similar increases to June's figures through the second half of the year.

Sears, the world's largest retailer, said its merchandise sales for June were 7.5 percent higher than in June 1983, which was a particularly strong month compared to the depressed sales of June 1982.

Sears said its sales last month, with major gains in appliances and home entertainment merchandise, were a record $2.52 billion, up from $2.35 billion in June 1983. For the retailing fiscal year, which begins with February, Sears' sales were a record $10.26 billion, up 6.8 percent from $9.61 billion.

K mart, the No. 2 retailer, said it had a 6.3 percent increase in June, citing particular gains on seasonal goods such as fans and air conditioners. Sales totaled $1.96 billion, up from $1.84 billion. For the fiscal year, sales were $7.75 billion, up 6.9 percent from $7.24 billion.

Penney, ranked third by 1983 sales, said store and catalog sale soared 17 percent in June to $1.11 billion from $945 million a year ago. For the year, sales were up 17.6 percent to $4.48 billion from $3.81 billion.

No. 4 Federated, which operates chains nationwide under a number of names, said June sales were up 11.7 percent from a year ago, to $817.2 million from $731.7 million.

Mexico's president denies distance between government, workers

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite calls for prosecution of a clique of powerful oil union leaders, President Miguel de la Madrid went into the center of their activity and said there is no distance between workers and the government.

"We are part of the same system and allied in the revolution," the president said in Ciudad Madero. "We are going to continue struggling and to show that there will not be any maneuvers, intrigues or slanders that might distance workers and their unions from the government of the revolution."

De la Madrid spoke before more than 10,000 members of the Mexican Oil Workers Union. His stop Wednesday in Ciudad Madero, on the Gulf of Mexico just north of Tampico, was part of a two-day tour of the northeastern border state of Tamaulipas.

The 190,000 member union is the strongest and wealthiest labor group in Mexico. Its operations are critical to the continued flow of petroleum, which by far is the No. 1 source of dollars badly needed to meet payments on the country's massive $87 billion foreign debt.

Dissident worker groups and politicians have called for an investigation into allegations that union leaders siphoned off millions of Mexico's petroleum dollars. Although none of the allegations mention how much money might have been lost to corruption, more than $50 million a day entered Mexico from oil sales abroad during the height of the oil boom in 1981.

De la Madrid took office in December 1982 promising a campaign of "moral renewal" to rid the country of endemic corruption. His willingness to investigate the oil workers union is considered a test of how far he is willing to push the campaign.

At a news conference earlier this year, the president was asked if the government has any intention of investigating oil worker union leaders Joaquin Hernandez Galicia or Salvadoran Barragan Camacho.

"In any case, and without referring to specific cases, when there are adequately based denunciations before the authorities, with impartial and objectively carried out investigations, the corresponding decisions will be taken," de la Madrid replied.

Hernandez, known by the nickname La Quina, has no official title in the union but is known to have controlled it since 1958 through a network of followers in the 29 locals. Barragan Camacho, who is a senator from Tamaulipas of de la Madrid's ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, is Hernandez' close associate and the union secretary.

Hunt's payment past due

DALLAS (AP) — Hunt International Resources Corp., which is controlled by Dallas' billionaire Hunt family, failed to make a $1.4 million interest payment due on its Series A debentures, a company spokesman said Thursday.

Spokesman Robert White said the firm failed to make the payment, due Monday, because of declining sales and operating revenue from its two principle ventures — selling sugar and chartering offshore oil rigs.

The company has been selling some of its assets, including Shakey's Inc., Impel Energy, Shakey's International Ltd., and California City Development, White said, but had not generated "sufficient funds ... to cover debt service requirements."

He declined to comment on why the wealthy family couldn't make the payment owed by a company it controls.

White said operations of its sugar and drilling rig leasing operations will not be affected by the action Monday.

Hunt International Resources controls the Great Western Sugar Co. and its subsidiaries.

Nuclear 'jumper' high-risk occupation

MONROEVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Tim Dayton may work only a few minutes but still draw a day's wages on top of his meal money and expenses for his motel, car rental and air fare.

There's one hitch, however.

Dayton is a jumper, which is shoptalk for a temporary nuclear worker who hops into a plant's radioactive area and repairs what he can before exceeding his exposure limit to radiation.

Other names are glowboys, sponges, minutemen and fresh meat.

He gets plenty of overtime and a chance to travel. But he has no union and no health insurance, and some nuclear critics say he is a walking time bomb who runs the risk of delayed cancer or genetic damage.

"Nobody honestly wants to go in there. But you're there to do a job. Everybody has to have an income," said Dayton, 29, a father of two and a former auto mechanic who has been a jumper for six years.

"Common sense tells you there has to be some risk. Getting cancer may be one of the consequences you may suffer. We know we can't come back to the company and say, 'You did this to me 30 years ago,'" he added in an interview.

"But I don't worry about it or concern myself with it. I think this is a safe industry. There are a lot worse jobs. I really enjoy this. When they call me, I'm always ready to go. I've never turned a job down."

Dayton works for Westinghouse Electric Corp., the world's largest manufacturer of nuclear reactors. The company is also among the leaders in nuclear servicing and in development of machines and robots designed to keep humans out of hostile environments.

Westinghouse has 327 jumpers or casual workers on call in the Pittsburgh area, an additional 122 in South Carolina and others in California. The starting salary is $5.50 an hour, although specialists can earn $3 more.

Primarily, jumpers repair the rainbow-shaped tubes in an atomic power plant's steam generators. The tubes carry water heated to 550 degrees in the nuclear furnace and flash a second water source in the generator to steam, which in turn drives turbines to make electricity.

The tubes, however, can leak or fill with deposits. Jumpers go in to plug, sleeve or weld the balky tubes. The routine work is usually done in the spring and fall when demand for power is down.

The workers don layers of plastic clothing, gloves, boots and respirators so they won't breathe or touch radioactive particles. But ionizing radiation can be stopped only by layers of lead or concrete.

When the workers reach their exposure limits — known in the jargon as "burning out" or "crapping up" — they are commanded by radio to leave.

"It's high-tech feudalism," said Robert Alvarez, a radiation expert with the anti-nuclear Environmental Policy Institute, a research and lobbying group based in Washington, D.C.

"In the nuclear power industry, it's probably the most significant problem for occupational and health safety," he said. "Radiation health effects are not readily apparent and take a long time to manifest themselves."

Workers are limited to three rem (3,000 millirems) of exposure in a three-month period by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and Westinghouse has a tighter limit of 2.75 rem.

Dollar eases; Gold drops

LONDON (AP) — The dollar eased against all other major currencies except the Japanese yen and Swiss franc in early trading today. Gold bullion prices also dropped.

Despite its decline from Thursday's record-high levels, traders said the dollar continued to be underpinned by expectations of higher American interest rates.

The dollar began the trading day on strong note in Tokyo, rising to a new nine-month high of 241.00 Japanese yen, up from 240.45 yen Thursday and 3.55 yen higher than last Friday's 237.45 yen.

Market sources said the Bank of Japan stepped in to keep the yen from sagging further, but the amount of the intervention was not known. Later in London, the dollar was quoted at 240.80 yen.

A spokesman for West Germany's central Bundesbank in Frankfurt also confirmed that it had intervened in the market. Traders estimated the bank's dollar sales at between $50 million and $100 million.

The British pound, which hit an all-time low of $1.3180 late Thursday, edged up in early dealings to $1.3220.

Other midmorning dollar rates compared with late Thursday included:

–2.8254 West German marks, down from 2.8290.

--2.3775 Swiss francs, up from 2.3735.

–8.6765 French francs, down from 8.6795.

–3.1875 Dutch guilders, down from 3.1915.

–1,738.25 Italian lire, down from 1,739.25.

–1.32685 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3280.

Gold and silver bullion, meanwhile, continued trading at their lowest levels since the autumn of 1982.

London's five main bullion houses fixed an indicative gold price of $358 an ounce, down from $364.20 late Thursday.

In Zurich, gold was bid at $356.50, down from $364.75.

Earlier in Hong Kong, gold fell $2.92 to finish at a bid of $365.43.

Gold was bid at $359.50 in New York late Thursday.

Silver traded at a bid of $7.62 an ounce in London, down from 7.915.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Steel mill products imports remain high

WASHINGTON — Imports of steel mill products in May remained close to the record-high levels reached in earlier months of this year, the American Iron and Steel Institute has reported, based on its compilation of commerce department figures. Imports in the first five months of this year were 81 percent ahead of the same 1983 period, and captured 25 percent of the American market.

Amax Inc. to restructure metals group

GREENWICH, Conn. — Amax Inc. has announced a restructuring of its metals group to create two major commodity metals business units and a new specialty products sector.

A newly organized alloy division will include the former molybdenum, nickel and tungsten divisions. The base and precious metals division will include the former copper, lead and zinc divisions as well as Rosario Resources Corp. The specialty products sector will consist of the company's magnesium and refractory divisions and a new specialty chemicals division.

Raw steel production at recession level

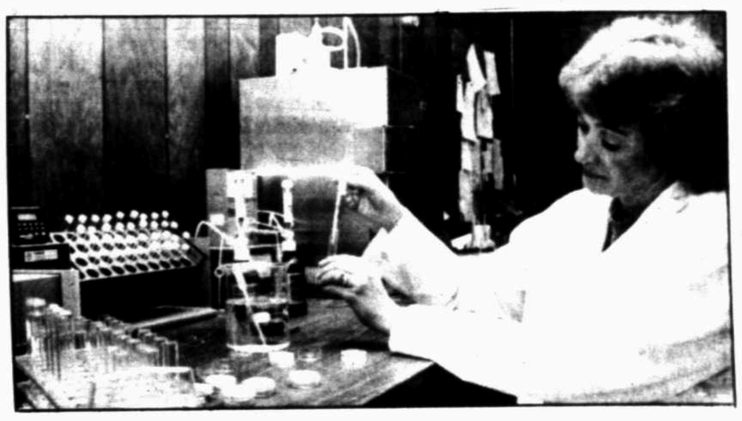

WASHINGTON — Raw steel production in the United States during May continued at the recession-level plateau which has prevailed for several months, the American Iron and Steel Institute has reported. A decline in tonnage has also been noted in the Institue's preliminary reports for the first weeks of June.

The indications are, the Institute said, that there has been an earlier than usual onset of the summer slump in the steel business, due not only to the seasonal dip in order intake but also to the rise in imports of steel.

Commission to hear oral arguments

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has agreed to hear oral arguments by United Parcel Service and companies opposed to UPS' application for authority to transport packages from point to point within the state. The commissioners will hear arguments by both sides at 2 p.m. on July 9 at the Railroad Commission headquarters building here.

The request was filed with the Commission's transportation division after the hearings examiner in the case recommended the Commission deny the UPS application. That recommendation was delivered to the commissioners during their regular weekly conference on transportation division matters held June 18.

Testing for formaldehyde vapors.

EPA may regulate formaldehyde in homes

PRAIRIE DU SAC, Wis. — A new regulation on the allowable levels of formaldehyde in homes is expected from the Environmental Protection Agency. Since 1982 the EPA has maintained that dangers from formaldehyde vapors were not a large enough risk to public health to warrant regulation. Now, as a result of a recent court action, the EPA has earmarked formaldehyde for immediate regulatory consideration which could lead to tightening existing restrictions on wood products and other materials which go into conventional and mobile/manufactured homes.

Donoghue's Money Fund Average (Averages for all 256 taxable funds)		36	10.05	9.96

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and 30-day period. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. x - average term to next rate adjustment date. g - one-time sales charge. r - restricted availability.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 256 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (R) of Holliston, Mass. 01746 decreased $575.5 million to $168.4 billion for the week ended July 3, 1984. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 10.05 percent from 10.04 percent. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 9.96 percent from 9.89 percent. The taxable funds' average maturity decreased to 36 days after one week at 37 days.

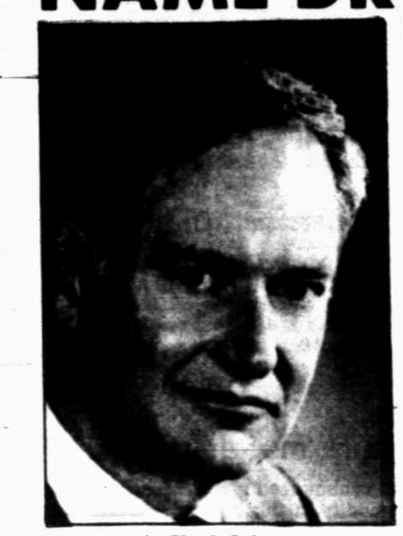

William E. Donoghue says, "The slight increase in the 7-day average yield for all taxable money funds was due to the lower yields of money funds that invest solely in U.S. Government securities. Yields of government-only money funds, which comprise 35 percent of the taxable funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT, have declined during the past three weeks, while yields on broadly-based funds have been steadily increasing.

Assets of tax-free money funds exceeded $22 billion for the first time this week. Tax-free money fund assets have increased $5.8 billion since the end of December 1983." Reprinted in condensed form with permission from Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT of Holliston, MA 01746. 617-429-5930.

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, NJ — Allied Corp. chairman Edward L. Hennessy, Jr. has announced that A. CLARK JOHNSON, president and chief operating officer of Union Texas Petroleum, Allied's oil and gas subsidiary, has been named chief executive officer of Union Texas, effective August 1.

Hennessy said Johnson is being named Union Texas CEO in preparation for the long-planned retirement of WILLIAM D. GEITZ, Union Texas chairman and CEO, next year at age 62. To assist in a smooth transition, Geitz will continue as chairman of Union Texas and as an Allied executive vice president until his retirement.

Johnson is expected to be elected an executive vice president of Allied by the Board of Directors at its July meeting. He also will become a member of Allied's Executive Committee.

Johnson, 53, who holds an M.B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania, joined Union Texas in 1968 as a marketing manager and rose to executive vice president in 1976. He subsequently served as president of Allied's former specialty chemicals division and as a group vice president of the parent corporation and president of its former Allied Chemical Company unit before returning to Union Texas as president and chief operating officer in July 1983.

PATSY BOHANNAN of Midland has been elected to a second term as regional vice president of the Texas Association of Realtors. The election took place during the association's annual convention in Corpus Christi. More than 1,000 realtors from across Texas attended the conference which included committee meetings, educational seminars and industry-related exhibits.

Bohannan has been involved in real estate sales for almost 15 years, during which she has been an active leader on both the state and local level. In 1975 she served as president of the Midland board of realtors. She is a past member of several TAR committees and is a TAR and National Association of Realtors' director.

Bohannan was appointed by Governor Willim P. Clements to serve on the Texas Real Estate Research Center Advisory Committee, and in 1983 her term was extended by Governor Mark White.

DAVID HAM of Peyton's Bikes in Midland has become a member of the exclusive Schwinn 1000 Club, an achievement that places him among the top bicycle dealers in the country.

FORT WORTH — Directors of Texas American Bancshares Inc. have elected a new assistant vice president and appointed six new officers.

Elected assistant vice president was CHERYL J. BOURDIER, supervisor of wage and salary administration.

New officers appointed were WILLIAM B. ANDERSON, accounting officer; DAVID V. AULD, accounting officer; DEBRA ANN BRADFORD, accounting officer; NANCY R. COLE, training officer; VICKI GALATI, accounting officer; and MELISSA MEALER, personnel officer.

Bourdier, supervisor of wage and salary administration, joined Texas American Bank/Fort Worth in 1975 as a part-time employee in bank card. She worked in installment loan operations, personal banking and the Tandy center facility, before transferring to the employee relations department in 1979. She was named compensation analyst in 1981 and was promoted to personnel officer later that year. In 1983 she was promoted to manager of compensation/benefits for Texas American Services Inc. She transferred to TAB in her present position in June 1984. Bourdier received her BBA degree in banking and finance from Texas Wesleyan College.

Anderson, bank analyst, joined TAB in 1982 in his current position in TAB accounting. He received his BBA degree in accounting from Baylor University and is a certified public accountant.

Auld, tax accountant, joined the corporate staff in 1982 in his current position in corporate accounting. He received his BBA degree from Texas Tech University.

Bradford, bank analyst, came to TAB's accounting department in 1982 in her present position. Her BBA degree in accounting is from the University of Texas at Austin.

Cole, training specialist, joined TAB in 1983 in the training department. She received her bachelor's degree in education from Texas Tech University.

Galati, supervisor-general accounting, joined TAB as general ledger accountant in 1977. She was named management report specialist in 1981 and bank analyst in 1983. In May 1984, she was promoted to supervisor in general acccounting. She is currently attending the University of Texas at Arlington.

Mealer, senior compensation analyst, worked with the TAB/Fort worth employee relations department as a part-time employee from 1980-1982. She was employed by TAB human resources in December 1982 as compensation analyst and received her present title with her promotion to officer. Mealer received her BBA degree in marketing from the University of Texas at Austin and her MBA degree in management from Texas Christian University.

DENVER — KIRK "CAP" BELL has been appointed as senior vice president-operations for Emcor Petroleum Inc., formerly Energy Methods Corp. Bell will be responsible for the daily management of the land, engineering and production operations departments.

Prior to accepting employment with Emcor, Bell was vice president of production with Premier Resources since November 1980. Before 1980 he held various managerial and technical positions with Deb Resources Inc., Western Slope Gas Co. and Fuel Resources Development Co. Bell holds a degree in petroleum engineering from the Colorado School of Mines.

THE WOODLANDS — JACALYN DUNCAN, formerly assistant manager, has been named manager of financial accounting for Mitchell Energy Corp.

In her new position, Duncan will be responsible for the financial statements of the exploration and production and the transmission and processing divisions. Her duties include compiling, coordinating and monitoring the accounting data within the divisions.

Duncan joined the Mitchell organization in may 1978. She previously was associated with Union Texas Petroleum.

She holds a B.A. in accounting from Texas A&M and is a member of the American Institute of CPA's, the Texas Society of CPS's and other professional organizations.

Briercroft to participate in program on 'Fix the Federal Deficit Now'

LUBBOCK — Briercroft Savings Association will participate, during the month of July, in the "Fix the Federal Deficit Now" program sponsored by the U.S. League of Savings Institutions.

Petitions will be available at each Briercroft branch office for the general public to sign. The petition notes the individual's concern over the mounting federal deficit and requests U.S. legislators to pass a bill that will effectively curb the deficit — now at nearly $185 billion annually.

The problem, according to John H. Mackey, president and chief executive officer of Briercroft, is that "mounting federal deficits threaten to soak up capital needed for housing, industry and the private sector. The deficit has already triggered a new round of high interest rates and could lead us back into inflation."

Mackey further stated, "I invite every interested citizen, customer or not, to stop by any of our branches and sign the petition." The total group of names will be sent to Texas congressmen at the end of July.

The Briercroft Branches in Midland are located at 200 N. Lorraine and Illinois Avenue and Midkiff Road.

New home sales decline

WASHINGTON — The annual rate of new home sales declined during May for the third cconsecutive month, pushing the inventory of unsold units on the market to its highest level since September 1982, the U.S. Commerce Department has reported.

"Higher mortgage rates are bumping buyers out of the market and the inventory of unsold units is building up," said Kent Colton, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders. "The second half of 1984 could be more difficult than we anticipated a few months ago, particularly if interest rates don't level off or settle down."

New homes were sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 612,000 during May, down 4.4 percent from April. Sales declined in all regions except the Northeast where the rate rose almost 34 percent. Sales fell 27 percent in the North Central region, three percent in the South and nine percent in the West. The inventory of unsold units rose to 335,000, representing a 6.7 months' supply at the current sales rate.

During the first five months of 1984, 292,000 new homes were actually sold. The median price of new homes sold during May was $80,900, up from the $79,400 price recorded in April.

According to a monthly poll conducted by NAHB among builders nationwide, builder expectations have declined significantly over the last three months. In March, 53 percent of the builders polled said they expected "good to excellent" market conditions for the next six months; in June only 19 percent said they expected "good to excellent" conditions for selling homes over the second half of the year. In March, 52 percent of the builders rated the number of prospective buyers looking at their homes as "high to very high." In June, only 18 percent said subdivision traffic was "high to very high."

Although NAHB is expecting as much as a 20 percent decline in sales and production later this year, Colton said the economy was at the crossroads and could go either way.

AT&T Information Systems still local firm

With a full crew of business telephone installation and maintenance people located in Midland, AT&T Information Systems is still much a local company, according to Bill Ward, manager.

"Even though divestiture split the Bell System into several parts, there are still a lot of us who work for AT&T in this area who are ready, willing and able to help our customers," Ward said.

In the post-divestiture world, AT&T Information Systems provides business and residence customers with telephone equipment. AT&T Communications provides long distance services. Southwestern Bell provides local exchange service.

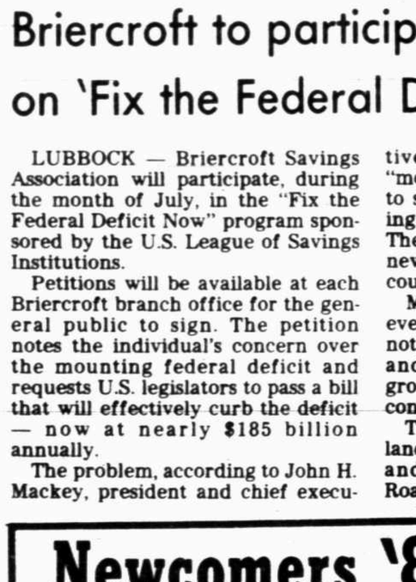

"The main thing we're trying to help customers understand is that we're still here to service and maintain their business telephone equipment," Ward said. "Although our people drive new vehicles with the AT&T sign on the side, they're still the same people who drove the telephone company vans before the divestiture."

Part of the divestiture agreement called for customer telephone equipment to be transferred from Southwestern Bell to AT&T Information Systems January 1. When that happened, the people who serviced that equipment moved.

The systems technicians in Midland install and maintain the equipment. Each technician is backed up by an extensive service and support system known as the "Circle of Service," a nationwide network of people and diagnostic systems to maintain service to every business customer. Further support is provided by a nationwide corps of account executives and service representatives who recommend communications systems to business customers of all sizes.

'WHEN YOU'RE 17, YOU THINK YOU'RE GOING TO LIVE FOREVER.'

"This term a very gifted student sat here. She knew Shakespeare, Shelley, Keats. And could she write. But the day before graduation she was in a car crash. They said if she'd been wearing a safety belt, she might have had a few bruises...not brain damage. Now she won't read or write or ever think again. When you're 17, you don't think about those things. You think you're going to live forever. She was 17."

The times have changed. So have we.

Delta Drilling Company started building its reputation 53 years ago in the East Texas oil field.

Since then, a lot of dedicated people have worked hard to make Delta's name one of the most respected in the oil and gas business.

But something happened along the way. We became more than just a contract drilling company.

Today, we're involved in exploration and production of oil and gas in the South, Southwest and Northeast United States. We process and sell gas liquid products. We operate a gas pipeline subsidiary. And, of course, we're still involved in contract drilling, both in the U.S. and Italy.

To reflect our growing diversity, we've given Delta a new name... DeltaUS Corporation.

There will continue to be a Delta Drilling Company, but it will function as the contract drilling division of DeltaUS, operating much like our other divisions and subsidiaries.

While our name has changed, some things will not.

We remain committed to the search for oil and gas.

DELTAUS

A name that reflects our past... and introduces our future.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Strawn test pays off in Borden

The Strawn play in northern Borden County continues to yield rewards, as evidenced by a recent wildcat discovery.

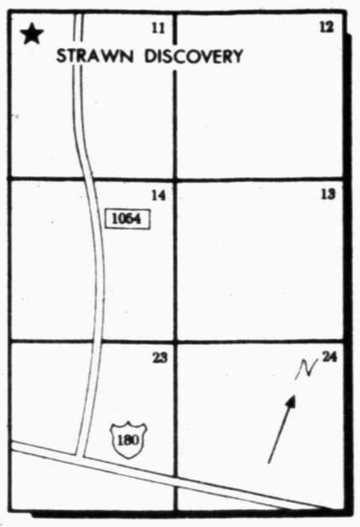

MARSHALL & WINSTON INC., Midland, completed its No.1 Clinta B. Borden, 10 miles northwest of Gail, flowing 169 bopd of 40 API crude and 449 bwpd through a 20/64 in. choke from perforations at 9,262-9,266 ft., after being drilled to 9,960 ft. and being plugged back to 9,306 ft.

The well is located 417 ft. from north and 506 ft. from east lines of Section 11, Block 32, T-5-n-, T&P survey. It is 3/8 mile north of the Blackard field which was finally classified as Fusselman, after some speculation as to whether the pay was actually in the Fusselman, Ellenburger or Montoya. Both tests in the field were drilled by Marshall-Winston. The Strawn discovery well is also 1.5 miles east of a 9,970 ft. Ellenburger test which came up dry.

The discovery well in the Blackard was completed earlier this year flowing 432 bopd and no water on a 10/64 in. choke, through perforations at 9,818-9,834 ft. The offset well was completed in perforations from 9,880-9,890 ft. and flowed 470 bopd with no water on a 10/64 in. choke.

Marshall & Winston is now drilling a third well in the Blackard field, the Blackard A-2, which is in Section 10 with the other Blackard wells, and Exxon has permitted a well in the southeast cornor of Section 3, which should define the geology of the area more precisely.

The area of interest is extremely "wildcattish" in nature, with the Fusselman characterized as fleeting. No big play is anticipated as a result of the discoveries, but the operator is optimistic about the area of interest, expressing the opinion that it would probably be "big".

Glasscock Wolfcamp well comes up dry

DIAMOND SHAMROCK EXPLORATION CO., Amarillo, has plugged its No.1-29 Calverley in the Bialock Lake E. (Wolfcamp) as a dry hole, after it was drilled to 7,817 ft.

The well location is 1,650 ft. from south line and 1,900 ft. from east line of Section 29, Block 39, T-3-S, T&P survey, 7 miles southeast of Garden City.

OIL & GAS DIGEST

Republic of China to purchase system

PASADENA, Calif. — Geophysical Systems Corp. has announced that the People's Republic of China has indicated its intent to purchase for approximately $1.3 million a configuration of the company's Geocor I system that will be shown in Beijing at the International Geological Exhibition next August. The Geocor IV unit has been shipped from Long Beach enroute to Beijing. The company has agreed with its banks to pay approximately 41 million of this amount to the banks to reduce the amount of the company's debt to its banks incurred prior to the filing of the company's chapter 11 proceeding.

Firms to co-produce generators, equipment

HOUSTON — Houston Systems Manufacturing Co. and Si Fang Boiler Works, Shanghai, have reached agreement to co-produce and market E.O.R. steam generators and water treatment equipment in The Peoples Republic of China. Jack R. Hilder, president and CEO, of HSMC said the China National Machinery Import and Export Corp. (Machimpex) of Bejing has placed an initial order with the co-production partners for five 20-million BTU per hour steamers and related equipment to be delivered in October of this year.

Fifty countries to be represented

NORMAN Okla. — Representatives from 50 countries including China are expected to participate in the First International Conference on the Development of Shallow Oil and Gas Resources July 25 — August 3 at the University of Oklahoma. Principal co-sponsors of the world conference are the OU Energy Center and United Nations Institute for Training and Research, which directs programs to pioneer new approaches and focus attention on neglected resources.

The conference will assemble the most up-to-date information on all aspects of shallow oil and gas exploration and development.

Deca Energy announces well completion

DENVER — Deca Energy Corp. announced the No. 1 Powder River oil well is now on production with an initial potential of 165 barrels of oil per day on a 24-hour test.

The well is located in the SWNW section 32, T-52-N, R-69-W in Campbell county, Wyoming. Production is from the Minnelusa formation with perforations between 7,628 feet and 7,636 feet.

Deca Energy has a 3.5 percent overriding royalty interest before payout and a 37.5 percent working interest after payout. Powder River Oil Co. of Fort Worth, is the operator.

A south offset to the No. 1 Powder River well has been drilled and completed by Deca as operator and presently is waiting on testing and installation of production equipment. The well is the No. 1 McBeth-Brown, and Deca has a 75 percent working interest in this well.

InterNorth to buy P&O subsidiaries

OMAHA — InterNorth Inc., of Omaha, Neb., and Peninsular & Oriental Steam Navigation Co. of London, England, have announced they have signed an agreement in principle under which InterNorth will purchase two subsidiaries of P&O.

Under the agreement, InterNorth will purchase P&O Falco Inc. and P&O Falco Limited, which are principally involved in crude oil transportation and trading, plus exploration and production. P&O Falco Inc. is headquartered in Bossier City, La., near Shreveport, while P&O Falco Limited is headquartered in London, England. The sale price is $58.4 million plus profits for the six months ended June 30, 1984.

Exxon reports two new gas discoveries

CORPUS CHRISTI — Exxon Co., U.S.A.'s Corpus Christi District has announced two new gas discoveries in Nueces and LaSalle counties south and west of Corpus Christi.

The No. 1 Womack, an 8,765-foot upper Vicksburg test near Petronilla, 15 miles west of Corpus Christi in Nueces County, encountered over 30 feet of gas pay in an upper Vicksburg zone at 8,348 feet. The well tested at an absolute open flow rate of 19 million cubic feet of gas per day with gas liquid recovery gauged at 25 barrels per million. Flowing tubing pressure was stable at 2,970 pounds per square inch.

In LaSalle County, four miles northeast of Encinal, the No. 1 Schoolfield tested daily rates of 2.1 million cubic feet of gas and 20 barrels of condensate after a fracture treatment of a zone at 8,250 feet. The discovery is in the upper Cretaceous Olmos sand, which has been the objective of a considerable amount of area drilling activity during the last two years.

'Little picnic' brings in bucks for Battered Women's Center

By DAVID LEE FORREST
Lifestyle Writer

Even indoors, in Midland Center, "The Most Expensive Little Picnic in Texas" fundraiser for the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children managed to have some old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic atmosphere.

Red, white and blue balloons bobbed in the air-conditioned breezes over the tables while the Levee Band played a selection of oldies.

The few Independence Day picnic fixtures missing from the $100-per-couple event were ants and politicians stumping for votes.

Both the Democratic Women's Club and the Tall City Republican Women tried to fill in for the latter with their tables (located on opposite ends of the room, of course) loaded down with donkey and elephant paraphernalia.

Other tables lining the walls displayed arts and crafts for sale by local artists, "pre-owned" blue jeans for "$1 or whatever ya want ta donate," and cookbooks.

Recipes in the cookbooks were compiled by residents, volunteers and staff of the Battered Women's Center.

Big blue stars were hung on the walls and emblazoned with the names of sponsors who had donated $250 to the event, which was held to raise money for a full-facilities dormitory so the center's can provide temporary emergency shelter for an additional 40 people.

The center itself is currently full and within the past month, six women and 17 children have had to be temporarily housed in other facilities because of lack of space, according to Irene Clouse, executive director of the center.

"It's a hard situation for us and it's hard for the women," said publicity chairman Lesa Deason-Kubik. "It's a crisis situation."

An auction highlighted the evening, with a variety of items offered for bids, ranging from a 1920s nightgown to an iron dining room chandelier.

A trio of Oil Patch Cabbage Patch Dolls wearing gold and diamond stickpins and mink trimmings sold for $550 each, which auctioneer Tommy Marricle said he believed was a record price for Cabbage Patch Kids.

"The highest I ever heard of one of these selling was for about $350," he said.

"Out of the generosity of his heart, the man who purchased them donated them back to the center for re-sell," said Mrs. Kubik. "That was the highlight of the evening for us."

A set of four stained glass windows, circa 1917, from the original Scharbauer home, sold for $2,300.

A 1946 Seibring Symphanola jukebox, short and rotund with bright colored lights which made it look like a 1940s version of "Star Wars" R2D2, was purchased for $1,750.

The jukebox came complete with a stack of original 78-rpm records, including such classics as "See You Later Alligator" by Bill Haley and the Comets, "Coffee Pot" by Tex Ritter and "Managua, Nicaragua" by Guy Lombardo.

The jukebox's number six song, "Crying in the Chapel" by Darrell Glenn, had an unusual connection with on of the participants in the picnic. Bill Hudson, guitarist for the Levee Band, played lead guitar on that recording.

Hudson recalled the record being made in 1955.

"I remember that because Darrell went out and bought a 1955 Crown Victoria and took me for a ride in it," he said.

He also said Glenn had offered him 25 percent of the song's profits, rather than a flat fee for his guitar performance.

"But I told him I'd just take a flat payment," Hudson said, shaking his head ruefully. The song later sold one million copies.

The picnic itself perhaps turned a better profit, although all the proceeds have not been tallied yet and it appears that additional money will be needed to build the dormitory, according to Ms. Clouse.

Money raised by the picnic "will certainly help a lot," she said. "We're going to set up a building fund and add to it."

"We are still taking donations," Mrs. Kubik stressed, and looking for volunteers.

Anyone interested in donating time or money may call 683-1300 or 563-0800 for more information.

New baby boom generation faces new situations, problems

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Copley News Service

We are in the midst of a baby boom again, and it is expected to peak around 1986. Exciting as this may be, there is apparently a new type of woman who is becoming pregnant. She is older, better educated and usually a career woman who has postponed early marriage and pregnancy. Now, she is over 30, married and wants a family, and she may be having some problems.

Dr. Vicki Georges Hufnagel, a Los Angeles obstetrician and gynecologist who spoke to food editors and writers at the 14th annual nutrition press conference sponsored by the Dairy Council of California, warned that older prospective mothers may face certain health risks, often due to prior and current lifestyles.

These career-oriented professional women live in a stressful world, and usually have all the destructive habits that stress produces. Though they may be highly motivated towards pregnancy, the ingrained habits developed in coping with stress can put them into both nutritional and physical risk situations. Hufnagel spoke of the "coffee drinkers, the smokers, and the wine-for-lunch group, who are too busy to exercise," as the women most likely to be at risk.

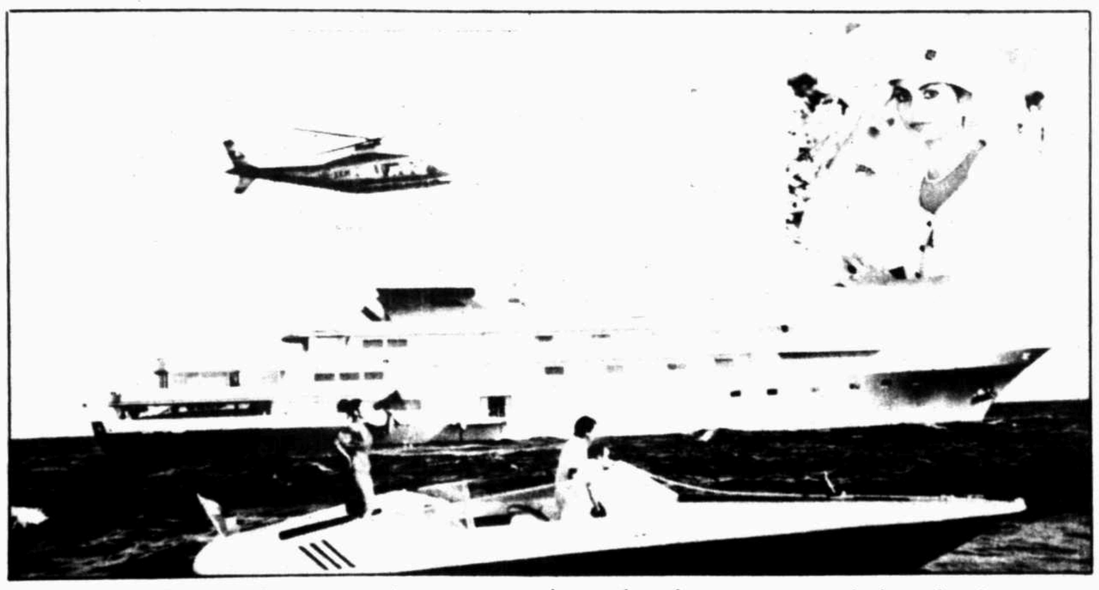

Today's fad of overdoing things and the sometime neurotic need to look like a magazine fashion model can also be non-productive when it comes to making healthy babies. Heavy aerobics can expose a pregnant woman to hyperthermia (excessive body temperature) which elevates the body core temperature and produces smaller growth of the fetus. Running marathons while pregnant can produce a stillborn child if the cord happened to be in the wrong position. Hufnagel also warns against heat-producing saunas and Jacuzzis because high temperatures can be dangerous to a developing fetus.

Working toward a healthy pregnancy is easier if couples have preconception process counseling to learn what to do, and what not to do before pregnancy occurs. Nutrition and education begin before conception. Outdated ideas and old-time notions have to be replaced with current information on needed nutrients and safe exercise.

Today, the male is also involved. His nutrition, alcohol and cigarette use prior to conception are important in his sperm, chromosome development. Men with low vitamin C levels have been found to have a slow-moving sperm, a possible infertility problem.

The most important time in pregnancy is the first 6 to 12 weeks, because the neuro-cord and brain development begin. Fat is vitally needed for brain development, and if the nutrition of the mother is enhanced well ahead of time, many sad, unnecessary problems might be avoided. Women are urged to gain between 25 and 30 pounds for a healthy pregnancy. It is no time to go on fad weight reduction diets. The stakes are too high.

Coffee, tea, alcohol, cola drinks and smoking are strictly prohibited during pregnancy. A fluid intake of 8 to 10 glasses per day is necessary to provide adequate body fluids, which are often low in older pregnant women.

Nabila Khashoggi, 22, commands a crew on the yacht whose system rivals that of a destroyer.

Heiress wealthy, but not idle rich

Hearst Feature Service

The daughter of fabled Saudi Arabian arms dealer Adnan Khashoggi goes to sea in a fabulous yacht that would make Cleopatra's barge look like a dinghy.

Nabila Khashoggi, 22, the cover girl of July's Town & Country, gets away from it all on a 270-foot, 3,500-ton yacht — staffed by a crew of 40 — that carries along two 30-foot Riva speedboats and its own helicopter.

The polished steel yacht, named Nabila for its mistress, boasts satellite and navigation systems that rival those of a destroyer.

Guests aboard the Nabila — and there's room for more than 65 of them to dine in the circular dining salon and in other dining areas — eat with vermeil flatware the concoctions prepared by three chefs, Arabian, French and Chinese.

Entertainment includes a discotheque and a cinema with an 800-film library.

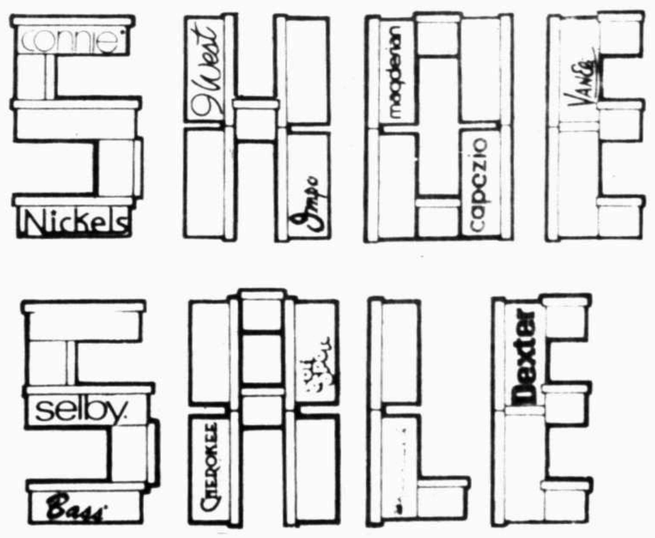

Sleeping quarters include 11 circular suites named for precious stones — much of the living quarters aboard the yacht feature a circular design. Nabila stows her gear in the suite called Ruby.

Nabila is no member of the idle rich — just rich. She was educated in England and Switzerland; tutored in business administration and marketing. She trained at a London ad agency and a Beirut bank before taking over her present jobs in the family empire — president of the Triad Commercial Corporation; a partner in Infolex, a new computerized advertising information medium; and a director of the philanthropic Khashoggi Foundation.

"My father and grandfather taught my brothers and me from earliest childhood to love and be proud of our religion, our king and our country," she told Town & Country. "My father always impressed upon us that education and the gift of knowledge were of greatest importance, and that while he would always take care of us, he would also want us to decide our own destiny."

DEAR ABBY

Woman stumped by simple math

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: So you think you've heard it all? Well, please don't make a face or roll your eyes up into your head when you find out what I want. First off, I am no dummy, but there are times when I think I am. There may be others who suffer from the same problem. If so, you may print this, but for heaven's sake don't use my name.

I am a 22-year-old married woman who is absolutely stupid when it comes to math! I can count money, and if I take my time I can figure out how much to tip, but if I'm in a big hurry I draw a complete blank! Recently I went to a sale where all merchandise was marked 25 percent off, and I felt like a fool because I couldn't figure how much I'd have to pay for a dress marked $110.

I know they offer classes for people who are illiterate, but how about people who need to learn math from the bottom up? I'm ashamed to admit I need that kind of help. (Nobody would believe it.) — PENNSYLVANIA DUMMY

DEAR PENNSYLVANIA: I wouldn't call anyone a "dummy" who recognizes a problem and seeks to solve it. Call your county department of public education and explain your need to learn math "from the bottom up." Inquire about adult education classes and private tutoring, and your problem should be as simple to solve as adding 2 and 2. (It figures.)

DEAR ABBY: I've followed your Fat Fannie Panty Hose comments with amusement and feel it is my duty to share with you one more use for old panty hose – Fat Fannie or otherwise.

I cut the leg portion into three pieces, and use them to tie up my tomato plants. The stretchy material doesn't "bite" into the stem as the plant continues to grow. — IRENE IN COLUMBUS

DEAR IRENE: Thanks for an idea tomato growers will dig. Panty hose were created for "tomatoes" in the first place.

DEAR ABBY: "Animal Lover's" letter suggesting caution in giving dogs to new owners by way of want ads brought to mind a story I heard.

There was this sicko who collected kittens – he answered ads reading "Free to good home." Upon investigation, it was found that he collected kittens to feed to his pet boa constrictor!

How can we protect these helpless creatures? — ANOTHER ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Never give more than one pet to a person. And before giving the "helpless creature" away, be sure to tell the prospective owner that you will be dropping by from time to time to see how the little fellow is getting along.

CONFIDENTIAL TO OLD-TIMER IN PASADENA: Before you put down the youth of today, read this: "Our youth now love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority; they show disrespect for their elders, and love chatter in places of exercise. They no longer rise when elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their food and tyrannize their teachers."

Socrates wrote that in the fifth century B.C.

Entomologist offers suggestions for pest-free picnics

For pest-free picnics, an entomologist offers these suggestions in Family Circle magazine:

— Insect populations flourish near lakes, ponds and rivers, particularly after a rain. Picnicking in a dry, open area away from water means fewer insects.

— Wear light-colored clothes. Avoid floral prints or anything resembling a flower.

— Don't wear perfume, scented hair spray, body lotion, suntan lotion, talc.

— Ward off mosquitoes and other flying insects with a repellant containing diethyl toluamide. Or try taking 100 milligrams of thiamine (a B-complex vitamin) on a daily basis or for a few days before and during the time spent in "buggy" areas. Thiamine is secreted through the pores, emitting a scent that repels all insects.

— Place domed net covers over food.

— Use pale-colored picnic baskets, utensils and tablecloths. Bright colors attract bugs.

— Eat and store food off the ground on a table.

— Reduce the risk of an insect invasion at picnics by excluding fruits with a very high sugar content (especially grapes and melons), tuna and other high-scented fish and meats, sweet fruit drinks and desserts. Substitute milder-scented foods such as vegetables; meats like ham and turkey; non-smelly cheeses; apples and pears; dry low-sugar snacks like pretzels, chips and nuts; drinks like iced tea, seltzer.

— Keep all foods in sealed containers or in "zippered" plastic bags to mask odors.

— Mix one cup sugar and 1/2 teaspoon carbaryl (an insecticide available at garden centers) with sufficient water to form a thin syrup. Divide syrup into a few pie tins, away from but surrounding the picnic area. The insects will be more attracted to the sweet syrup than to the food.

Study finds arrest prevents repeated family assaults

WASHINGTON (AP) — Domestic violence is twice as likely to recur in families where police try to mediate a dispute than in households where a suspected attacker is arrested, according to a new study.

The study shows that "the police should use arrests quite frequently in typical domestic violence cases if they want to reduce assaults," James K. Stewart, director of the Justice Department's National Institute of Justice, said.

The traditional police response to family violence — providing advice and mediation or removing the attacker for eight hours — has been criticized in recent years by women's groups seeking to increase the use of arrest.

The institute-sponsored study, conducted in Minneapolis in 1981-2, was the nation's "first controlled experiment in the use of arrest," Stewart said. And it found that an arrest, even if not followed by conviction, was a far more effective deterrent than the traditional police response.

The experiment was conducted by the Police Foundation, a private, nonprofit police reform group, and by the Minneapolis Police Department in misdemeanor assault cases between family members where there was no life-threatening or severe injury. The three responses — arrest, removal and advice — were used on a random basis.

In 35 percent of the cases in which police did not make an arrest, victims surveyed later said there was a recurrence of violence within six months. But in those cases where police made an arrest, only 19 percent of the victims reported repeat assaults.

The results were even more dramatic when measured by official police reports rather than follow-up interviews. In 22 percent of the households in which no arrest was made, another crime report was filed within six months. But a subsequent police report was found on only 10 percent of the households where an arrest had initially been made.

The study also found that when police officers took time to listen to the victim before making an arrest, the deterrent effect doubled. The study suggested that this procedure lets the suspect know that the victim can influence police behavior.

Like other studies of family violence, the Minneapolis experiment found that its 314 cases usually involved unmarried, minority or mixed-race couples with less-than-average education and a greater-than-averae likelihood of being unemployed and having a previous police record.

Of the 136 arrests in the study, only three resulted in convictions, prompting Stewart to conclude that "arrest appears to deter violence even when the courts take no action."

Preliminary findings from the experiment were released a year ago, and Stewart said, "Some police departments around the country, including New York City, Houston, Dallas and Minneapolis, have already revised their policies in light of these results."

The study's co-authors, Police Foundation vice president Lawrence W. Sherman and sociology professor Richard A. Berk of the University of California at Santa Barbara, said that 22 states still bar police officers from making arrests unless they have a warrant or they actually witness the assault. "This report shows that, at the very least, those laws need to be changed," Sherman said.

A Police Foundation survey of police departments serving more than 100,000 people found that only 10 percent currently encourage arrests in domestic assault cases. Almost none of the departments kept separate statistics on domestic assault cases.

Minneapolis Police Chief Anthony V. Bouza attributed the traditional reluctance to make arrests in such cases to "the absence of legislation that would enable officers to make arrests in misdemeanor cases that did not occur in their presence; the male-dominated psychology of a police world that did not relish interference in a 'man's castle' and affairs.

"Some people only live this way two weeks a year."

Welcome to vacation living all year long. Welcome to Saddle Club Apartments. Saddle Club isn't a resort-we just look like one. We offer you 2 sparkling swimming pools, 2 lighted tennis courts, 2 indoor racquetball courts, a universal gym, indoor and outdoor jacuzzis, and wet and dry saunas.

There's privacy here, but if you want activities, we have planned resident get-togethers.

Rent beginning at $310. We're located only minutes from major businesses, recreation, fine restaurants and entertainment. We're probably only a few minutes away from where you work.

So if you feel like taking a vacation that never has to end, take a drive over to Saddle Club and let us show you how.

Once inside a Saddle Club apartment home you can cozy up to a warm fireplace, relax on your own patio or balcony and enjoy the feeling of luxury living.
