Study says income at $193 million

Scurry County residents listed a personal disposable income figure of more than $193 million during 1982, according to a recently released market study commissioned by the Texas newspaper industry.

Of this income, it is estimated $114.2 million was spent in retail sales in the county for the same period.

The study divides county retail sales during 1982 into three main groups. It is estimated that county residents spent $39.7 million at food stores and restaurants; $33.8 million with automotive dealers and service stations; and $40.7 million at department, furniture, apparel and other related stores.

These figures were part of the statewide study commissioned by the Texas Press Association. Conducting it was Communications Management, Inc. of Winnipeg, Canada.

Regarding the state as a whole, research revealed that Texans annually spend:

—$28 billion for food.

—$24 billion for motor vehicles.

—$31 billion for clothing, furniture and other department store items.

The spendable income for Texans as a whole was listed at $147 billion. The state population as of Jan. 1, 1983 was estimated at 15.4 million persons comprising 5.4 million households.

In Scurry County, these population estimates were set at 19,200 individuals comprising 7,000 households.

The study lists also "retail potential" for the county broken down into merchandise types.

It is noted that these figures are based upon a statistical model rather than actual sales. This model takes into account the demographics (types and number of population) and income level of the area and projects what might be expected to be spent.

For Scurry County, "retail potential" by merchandise items include:

—Apparel: $6.4 million.

—Footwear: $1.3 million.

—Major appliances: $1.2 million.

—Furniture: $1.6 million.

—Radio, TV, musical instruments: $890,000.

—Jewelry and accessories: $1.3 million.

—Non-prescription drugs: $852,000.

—Personal care products: $991,000.

—Household textiles: $1.4 million.

—Housewares and small appliances: $1.2 million.

—Sporting goods and toys: $412,000.

—Groceries and packaged foods: $14.7 million.

—Packaged alcoholic beverages: $1.5 million.

—Tobacco, $1.4 million.

NASA scrubs flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA scrubbed this morning's debut launch of the space shuttle Discovery after a back-up computer "hung up" just half-an-hour before scheduled liftoff. The problem resembled one which grounded the first shuttle for two days in 1981.

A six-person crew was long-since aboard Discovery when the delay was announced. Their blastoff had been scheduled for 8:43 a.m. EDT.

NASA technicians immediately moved to replace the "suitcase-size" computer and while the launch was not rescheduled, engineers hoped to find a fix that would allow the 12th shuttle liftoff to take place Tuesday morning.

But even if the swap-out is successful, weather could intervene and the shuttle forecaster said he was "pessimistic" about conditions Tuesday.

The backup computer, manufactured and maintained by IBM, would take over flight controls if all four of the shuttle's primary computers failed.

"We have a serious hardware problem," shuttle operations director Thomas Utsman told reporters. Rather than attempt to fix the errant machine, Utsman said a replacement would be cannibalized from sister ship Challenger, which is being readied nearby for a November flight. Discovery brings to three the NASA shuttle fleet.

Discovery's first countdown progressed smoothly overnight and until the final hour.

$61 billion tax hike...

Negotiators reach agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' plan to complete work this week on a "down payment" to trim federal budget deficits got a boost over the weekend from House and Senate tax writers who approved a compromise package of nearly $61 billion in tax increases and domestic spending cuts.

The measure extends an existing 3 percent excise tax on telephone use, increases the liquor tax about 36 cents on an 86-proof fifth of liquor, raises the diesel fuel tax by 6 cents to 15 cents a gallon, cuts the one-year holding period on capital gains in half, reduces tax write-offs for real estate investors and limits the authority of states to issue tax-exempt industrial development bonds.

On the spending side, the compromise calls for nearly $8 billion in Medicare spending cuts over the next three years — including a premium increase for most recipients — but loosens welfare regulations and provides new Medicaid coverage for some poor women and children.

The full House and Senate now must vote on the conferees' agreement.

It was the most significant congressional action so far to resolve differences between a House-passed $182.4 billion deficit-reduction plan and a $140.1 billion package supported by President Reagan and passed by the Senate.

Congressional leaders want to finish work on the issue by the end of the week, when the House and Senate begin a three-week recess for the Fourth of July and the Democratic National Convention. It generally is acknowledged that after the break, Democrats and Republicans will be more intent on partisan arguments for the fall presidential and congressional elections than on legislation.

It was 5:17 a.m. Saturday when the tax writers wrapped up three weeks of bickering and negotiation over 282 differences between tax measures passed by the House and Senate. That final non-stop round of private and public bargaining had begun at 8:30 a.m. the previous morning.

Throughout, the House Ways and Means Committee room, site of the public bargaining, was packed with hundreds of lobbyists, reflecting the fact that the bill was composed mostly of changes in existing taxes that primarily affect businesses, tax shelters and some complicated tax accounting practices.

"In every swing, somebody wins and somebody loses. I hope you all were winners out there," Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said at the close of the session.

'Salesman' cast announced

Jim Rambo, Western Texas College drama instructor, has announced the cast for the Summer Theatre Workshop production of Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman."

The eleven member cast will offer three performances July 26-28 in the WTC Fine Arts Theatre.

Mike Dennis, a veteran of numerous local productions, will play the leading role of Willy Loman — the "salesman" of the title.

His wife Linda will be played by WTC student Kim Lunsford.

Playing Loman's two sons Biff and Happy are Jamie Boren and Jeff Combs.

Other characters include Glenn Polk as Charlie and Jack Greene, Jr. as Ben.

Others players include Lori Grandclair as The Woman, David Brim as Bernard, Curtis Tate as Howard Wagner, Trina Lemmons as Letta and Kay Hopper as Mrs. Forsythe.

According to Rambo, the production is currently in need of donations or loans of period costumes for the show.

Needed are a number of men's suits from the 30's and 40's in assorted sizes ranging up to a 46.

They are also seeking women's day dresses and cotton house dresses of the same period in sizes up and including 12.

Anyone having these items and willing to loan or donate them to the theatre department should call Jim Rambo during the day at 573-8511, ext. 233.

Old settlers here to be recognized

Three plaques will be presented to both longtime and returning Scurry County citizens July 3 at the Old Settlers Barbecue and Hootenanny.

The event is being planned here as part of the Scurry County Centennial Celebration. The reunion and hootenanny is under the direction of the Scurry County Historical Commission.

Plaques will be awarded to the oldest resident in attendance; the one who has come the farthest distance to attend; and to the resident who has lived in Scurry County the most continuous years.

To be recognized, persons must register at the event — set to begin at 6 p.m. at the Towle Park Pavilion. Tickets for the barbecue are $5 and must be purchased beforehand.

At the hootenanny, which will begin at 7 p.m., area and local musicians are scheduled to play.

Hermleigh line requested

Problems associated with a 1-inch water line which serves a row of Hermleigh residences were again voiced to Scurry County commissioners Monday morning.

The court was first told of water pressure and supply problems associated with the line three weeks ago. The line is a portion of the Hermleigh water works which is county maintained but not county owned.

Monday, Glen O. Butler sought help from the court after being told that there will be no water available for a mobile home he had hoped to move in at the end of the 1-inch line.

Butler told the court he had first been told that there would no problem with water, but said last week he was informed that no water would be available.

The alternative proposed to Butler — laying a

In Brief

School bill still mulled

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate negotiators were scheduled to make another effort today for a compromise school reform bill.

The 10-member conference committee met for about an hour Sunday, without any votes or discussion, then broke up for separate sessions the rest of the day and into the night behind closed doors at either end of the Capitol.

"It's more a matter of time while we work out differences among ourselves," said Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, one of the House conferees.

The 10-member conference committee from both houses met for about an hour Sunday morning and listened to a staff recital of the differences in the two bills before recessing until 5 p.m.

Oil tanker reported hit

By the Associated Press

An Iraqi missile hit a Greek-registered supertanker loaded with oil as it headed for the Persian Gulf port of Dubai, the first attack on a commercial ship in the gulf in two weeks.

The Greek Merchant Marine Ministry said the Alexander the Great was damaged in the attack Sunday but was able to continue toward Dubai, in the United Arab Emirates, with its cargo. The ministry said none of the 26 crewmen were injured.

Iraq claimed its pilots hit "four big naval targets" Sunday near Iran's Kharg Island in an attack intended to enforce its blockade of Iranian ports, but there was no independent report that any other ships were hit.

Today, Iraq accused Iran of violating a 14-day accord banning attacks on residential areas in the two warring states. It was the sixth time Iraq has accused Iran of a violation since the accord took effect June 12.

'Thorny' issues due votes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some administration supporters in the Senate are pushing for a compromise that would let them vote for politically attractive summer jobs and nutrition programs and delay the thorny issue of aid to Nicaraguan guerrillas.

That issue and several others, including a national legal drinking age of 21, are coming to a boil as Congress goes into its final week before a recess that will last until July 23, after the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco.

House-Senate negotiators also have been at work on an estimated $50 billion tax package and a $284 billion military spending bill with 15 or more of the MX intercontinental ballistic missiles President Reagan wants built.

The impasse over aid to the Nicaraguan guerrillas, who seek to overthrow that country's leftist Sandinista government, grew out of an administration move in March to attach $21 million for this purpose to a House-passed bill providing African drought relief.

New commander takes over

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gen. Michel Aoun took command of the Lebanese army today and begin preparations for rebuilding the shattered military and reuniting Beirut, both of which have split along sectarian lines.

Aoun, 49, took over from Gen. Ibrahim Tannous, 55, in a ceremony at the Defense Ministry in suburban Yarze, five miles east of Beirut.

Some Moslem leaders had accused Tannous, a Christian, of anti-Moslem bias, and Prime Minister Rashid Karami's coalition Cabinet decided on the change of commanders as part of a army shakeup. The plan gives more powers to Lebanon's Moslems, who make up a majority of the population and who have bridled at Christian domination of politics and the military.

Soviet relations topic of talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will discusss U.S.-Soviet relations in an address at the White House on Wednesday to participants in a conference on cultural and scientific exchanges with Moscow, a senior administration official said today.

Home care not covered by Medicaid

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — Lee Holt, a partially paralyzed teen-ager born with a congenital heart defect, would like to live with her mother at home.

But the Texas Department of Human Resources says if she wants Medicaid to cover her numerous medical expenses, she must go to a nursing home.

The 18-year-old can't understand why.

"I have a lot of physical problems," she said, "but there's nothing wrong with my brain. It's about the only thing that works."

A Medicaid program allowing care at home has been available for two years, but Texas chose not to join, the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported Sunday.

DHR Commissioner Marlin Johnston said Texas didn't join because the program was unproven fiscally and because of unknown health risks of removing children from controlled environments.

"Our initial look was that it wasn't going to save money," Johnston said. "Maybe we were wrong, maybe we are wrong. We will look at it on a limited basis."

Since 1981, the federal government has offered a Medicaid program for states which want to provide assistance to terminally ill children in the home. The program requires a special Medicaid waiver showing the child would have to be institutionalized at taxpayers' expense if the family doesn't get some kind of financial assistance.

Children in the program must show that care in the home would be cheaper than in an institution.

The DHR has recently moved toward approving a pilot program that would reach 50 children. Officials say 90 have already applied.

State Sen. Kent Caperton of Bryan said he has been looking into the problem. "We've all heard examples of agencies making mistakes, my position after being informed of the facts was that they (DHR) made a mistake," he said.

Ted K. endorses Walter Mondale

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy endorsed Walter F. Mondale's bid for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination today, shortly after Mondale aides said the former vice president will meet chief rival Gary Hart on Tuesday.

"Now is the time for us to stop debating ourselves," Kennedy said during an appearance with Mondale in the rotunda of the state Capitol building.

"This is the best speech you've ever given," responded Mondale.

Kennedy's endorsement was a critical step in Mondale's efforts to unify the party behind his candidacy, and the meeting in New York City with Hart, arranged during a telephone conversation between the two candidates Sunday night, could be another.

Until now, Kennedy had remained studiously neutral in the contest for the nomination.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, meanwhile, was in Panama City on the third day of his Latin America trip and was meeting today with El Salvador President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Jackson met Sunday with Salvadoran guerrilla leaders who offered to begin cease-fire talks immediately with the Salvadoran government. But there apparently was no immediate positive response from Duarte, who has demanded that the guerrillas put down their arms as a condition for such talks.

The Democratic Party's Rules Committee was convening in Washington today, with the other presidential hopeful, Gary Hart, still saying he hasn't decided whether to challenge some of the Mondale delegates he has labeled "tainted" because they were chosen with the help of money from political action committees.

Maxine Isaacs, press secretary to Mondale, said that Mondale invited Kennedy about 10 days ago "to come out here and talk about the convention and the general election campaign."

She said "we assume he (Kennedy) will play a major role" at the Democratic National Convention next month in San Francisco.

But she declined to discuss what that role might be, particularly if Kennedy might deliver the speech offering Mondale for the presidential nomination.

The other major speaking role at the convention, the keynoter, already has been filled by Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York.

She said that both Mondale and Kennedy "consider themselves friends."

For years they were liberal allies in the Senate. Kennedy was elected to the Senate at age 30 in 1962; Mondale was appointed to succeed Hubert H. Humphrey in 1965 when Humphrey became vice president.

But their friendship was strained during the 1980 campaign when Kennedy challenged President Carter for the Democratic nomination.

Mondale was Carter's vice president and drew the assignment of doing most of the direct campaigning against the Massachusetts senator while the president stayed close to the White House.

At one point, Kennedy accused Mondale of questioning his patriotism when the vice president attacked the senator for refusing to support Carter's decision to embargo grain shipments to the Soviet Union.

Kennedy persisted in his campaign into the convention even though Carter had accumulated a substantial majority of the delegates in the primaries and caucuses.

After his loss to Ronald Reagan, Carter placed part of the blame on Kennedy.

But this year, Kennedy apparently was unwilling to offer any support to Hart's attempt to continue his fight for the nomination in the face of Mondale's delegate majority going into the convention.

Before Kennedy's arrival on Sunday, Mondale met with Judy Goldsmith, and Rep. Mickey Leland.

Dear Abby

Reckless Teen-Agers Don't Always Get a Second Chance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: On May 20, two wonderful 17-year-old boys from our school, both fine athletes, were on their way to a party. They were speeding on an unfamiliar road, missed a turn and were killed in a terrible accident.

I cannot describe the grief that this small town is feeling. It's the first time I've ever seen grown men cry. Both boys who died were to have graduated on May 26.

Almost every year you have run the column titled, "Please, God, I'm Only 17." It's too late for these two boys who died in Caldwell, Ohio, on May 20, but it's not too late for others. Please give it another run.

TRACY IN CALDWELL

DEAR TRACY: Here it is. Let's hope it helps:

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrible jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head! I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please ... somebody ... wake me up! Get me out of here! I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can hardly walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

Majority of Americans give public schools 'c' rating only

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans give mixed ratings to public schools across the country, but are more likely to approve of the schools in their own neighborhoods, according to a new Associated Press-Media General poll.

Americans also think it is more important for high school students to study computers than to learn a foreign language, according to the telephone survey of 1,243 adults in a nationwide random sampling.

Asked what grade the nation's schools deserved, just 1 percent gave them an "A." Twenty percent gave a "B," 49 percent a "C," 10 percent a "D" and 3 percent an "F." Seventeen percent said they didn't know what grade to give.

The grades improved, however, when those surveyed were asked about their neighborhood schools. Nine percent gave an "A," 35 percent a "B," 31 percent a "C," 8 percent a "D," and 3 percent an "F." Fourteen percent were undecided.

A plurality of 45 percent said they personally feel the quality of education in the nation's public schools is "so-so," while 28 percent said it is good and 21 percent said poor. Six percent were unsure.

Similarly, 36 percent said the quality of education is about the same as five years ago, while 28 percent said it is better than five years ago and 25 percent said it is worse. Eleven percent were undecided.

People with children in the public schools were more likely to give the schools higher ratings than people who do not have school-aged children or send their children to private schools, according to the survey.

In addition, poll participants were asked whether each of 13 common academic subjects should be graduation requirements for all high school students.

Seventy-three percent said they would require all high school students to pass computer science before they graduate, while 25 percent disagreed and 2 percent said they were not sure.

In contrast, 58 percent said they would not require a foreign language, while 40 percent said they would require a foreign language and 2 percent were not sure.

Ninety-nine percent said mathematics and 98 percent said English should be graduation requirements, along with 90 percent for U.S. government or history, 84 percent for health education, 84 percent for science, 72 percent for business and 68 percent for physical education.

Only 28 percent agreed that art should be a graduation requirement, along with 30 percent for music, 37 percent industrial arts and 45 percent homemaking.

People who said they do not have children were more likely to say that foreign language, art and music should be mandatory.

The respondents for the poll included a random, scientific sampling of adults across the country June 7-19. As with all sample surveys, the results of AP-Media General telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,200 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of additional reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Camisole comfort

By Judy Love

Playtime! That's what summer means to many of us, a time to relax and to enjoy its balmy days and nights. This form-fitting camisole is the kind of thing you throw on for a morning of golf or an afternoon of poolside bliss.

This camisole may be worn with casual shorts, or it could go beneath a smart jacket worn over crisp linen trousers. However you plan on pulling it together, this great wardrobe piece works with a variety of garments in many styles.

A certain amount of expertise is required for this camisole; so if you're just learning to knit, this project isn't for you. We used Bernat Pearlspun yarn in an icy blue and lavender. You will need five 50-gram balls of yarn and circular knitting needles No. three, 10 buttons and two bobbins also, are needed.

Pearlspun is a nylon, linen and rayon blend. Nylon nubs on the linen create a seed pearl effect. It has an elegant soft hand that suggests the luxuriousness of silk.

Pearlspun is hand-washable or you may have it dry cleaned.

Directions are for sizes small (8-10), medium (12-14), and large (16-18).

Order your directions now by sending one dollar to Stitchin' Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Ask for leaflet S659 and be sure to include your name, address and ZIP code.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love:

I live in a small apartment and even though I have a nice big closet, I'm short on drawer space. I usually hang my sweaters in the closet, but my mother always told me to fold them. Will all those wool sweaters I made be ruined? — S.T., New York.

Dear S.T.:

Wool, cotton and linen are natural fibers and do stretch out of shape if hung on a hanger. You should fold your sweaters to keep them in their original shape and perhaps you can find an empty shelf where they can be stored. If not, there are storage boxes which can be purchased inexpensively and slipped under the bed. Since you have ample closet space, you may want to purchase a plastic bag with sturdy cardboard shelves that hangs in the closet. You can store all your handknits in it — sweaters, gloves, scarfs, hats, etc. Happy knitting. Judy Love

Fluvanna resident visits Washington

Mary Gill of Fluvanna has recently returned from a trip to Washington D.C. where she attended the annual convention of Amway Corp. and toured the city.

Along with 12,000 other people from all over the world, she heard guest speakers, Bob Hope, Pat Boone, General Hagg, Senator Dole and many top achievers in the business.

The Up With People group performed for the meeting as the company kicked off its 25th year celebration.

In 1934, the Soviet Union executed 66 people charged with plotting against the Stalin government.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

South had a problem on his second bid. He had enough high cards in every suit to play no-trump, but what if he belonged in his six-card heart suit? Those players who elect to play a strong artificial one-club opening have a leg up on the rest of us when deals like this occur. Be that as it may, South chose the unnatural rebid of three clubs. With nothing in either spades or diamonds, North made a preference bid of three hearts. South carried on to four.

To bring home his contract, declarer had to match his unnatural three-club rebid with an apparently unnatural play in the trump suit. His goal was to restrict his trump suit losses to only one. Do you see the right play? And what's more important, why it is right?

Declarer led the 10 of hearts from his hand at trick two. When West played low, the seven was played from dummy. Had South peeked at the opponents' hands? Not really. On any three-two division of trumps, declarer will lose only one trick. Sometimes the Q-J will be alone and then South has given up the chance to take all the tricks in hearts, but it is worth it if he can guard against many unfavorable heart splits.

If an honor is played on the 10, declarer will win his ace and run the seven of hearts as a safety play against four to the J-9 or Q-9 in the East hand. Note that sometimes a careless defender in the West position might decide to cover the 10 with J-9-5-2 in trumps. Now East-West's two natural trump tricks will be reduced to only one, as dummy's ace takes West's jack and East's singleton queen.

The recommended play is correct only because of the heart seven in dummy. If that card were interchanged with either the five or the deuce in the West hand, the 10 play would be valueless.

Home movies

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Many Americans like to watch movies at home.

Richard B. Williams of General Electric says this attitude "seems to coincide with the boom in the sales of videocassette recorders and widescreen televisions in 1983.

HE Club's speaker talks on dehydration

Stargazers Extension Homemakers Club met Thursday in the Reddy Room at Texas Electric for their regular monthly meeting. Dorthy Hanks, president, presided with five members and one guest present. Members answered roll call with "a vacation I am planning this summer."

Mrs. Hanks read the thought for the day, "Love doesn't make the world go round. Love is what makes the trip worthwhile." Members were asked to think about things they could enter in the Scurry County Fair in September.

She introduced Kathy Roberts, extenson agent, who presented a program on "Dehydrated Foods." She told of different ways to prepare fruit for drying including blanching, syrup blanching, ascorbic acid treatment and sulfuring. "Sulfuring is the easiest and the fruit maintains a better color," she said. She told the group other ways to dry fruit is by sun drying and oven drying. Information for drying foods is available at the Extension Office or call 573-5423.

Pauline Withers was hostess and Dorothy Hanks received the hostess gift. The club's next meeting will be July 12.

Weed timing

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Spring is the best time of the year to apply weed killers.

Spectrum, a maker of lawn weed killer, says that early in the year weeds are visible and susceptible to weed killers because they are not yet well established with deep roots.

Spain declared war on Britain in 1804.

Snyder S&L has new lobby design

A redecoration of the lobby at Snyder Savings and Loan was completed last week. It marked the first change to the area since the building was built in 1963.

Aimed at promoting an updated image for the financial institution, the new decor features all new furniture for the lobby area along with a new window treatment and several one-of-a-kind accessories.

The change includes new vertical blinds and drapes and modern furnishings in shades of turquois, coral and beige.

Unique items in the new decorating scheme — designed by Interiors, a locally based interior design firm — are a one-of-a-kind handcarved swan from Spain and limited edition art works for the walls along with specialy crafted silk flower arrangements.

Snyder designers Gay Idom, Sally Walton and Judy Grimmett created the lobby's new look.

Clean your tongue

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Your recent letter from a young girl with bad breath prompted me to write. I'm now an elderly person but in my youth I, too, had bad breath. I was sanitary in every way, healthy, no body odors, athletic, regular dental care. No doctor could find a reason. I even persuaded my doctor to have my tonsils removed at Johns Hopkins. This didn't help either.

I chewed gum and kept it in my mouth while I dated. I survived and have had a happy life due to a very fine and understanding husband.

However, I did learn a secret that might work for others. While brushing your teeth in the morning, extend your tongue as far as possible and scrub it way down. You may even gag a bit. Get it good and clean with your toothpaste and brush. So simple but it's effective. After breakfast brush your teeth and tongue and you are set for the day.

Please share this with that little girl. It may change her life as it did mine. Now I'm relaxed and confident.

DEAR READER — Yes, you're absolutely right. It's just as important to clean the tongue as the teeth to prevent mouth odors. I've discussed this before, but since so many people never think of brushing their tongue, it's worth a reminder. Some people even use a metal tongue scraper. I can add that not all dentists are aware of the role of the tongue as a cause of bad breath.

The tongue constantly sheds, and its gray-white coating is from shedding cells. Food particles accumulate on the tongue as well. The area is a fertile one for the growth of bacteria. The bacteria then release chemicals that cause odors.

I wish all bad breath problems were as simple as needing to brush the tongue. Unfortunately they're not. I've discussed the other causes and management in the Health Letter 9-4, Halitosis: The Breath Problem and What to Do About It, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me what would help cramps. I have them in my legs all the time. I even wake up with them. I have them when I'm working. The doctor says there's nothing he knows of that he can give me for them.

DEAR READER — I'm glad you have had an examination as some leg cramps, especially leg cramps caused by exertion or walking, are caused by blockage of the arteries to the legs. In those cases the arterial blockage should be removed, or an arterial bypass operation may be done in some cases.

But the majority of leg cramps that occur at night or while resting are another matter. These may respond to an increased intake of calcium. Quinine or any of the medicines related to quinine help other people. Yes, some of these are heart medicines used to calm the contractions of heart muscle and they calm the contractions of leg muscles that lead to leg cramps. Vitamin E is also helpful for some.

Stretching those leg muscles helps. Be sure to stretch those calf muscles. Do that regularly and especially before going to bed. Use a board on its edge at the bottom of the bed to keep the covers off your feet and sleep on your side with your toes up, not down. A pillow next to the footboard to push your feet against helps this.

Keep your feet warm with long heavy socks that extend over the calf, especially during the night. Avoid coffee, tea, colas and chocolate which contain caffeine or related drugs.

Conservatives parting ways with crusader over education

AUSTIN (AP) — H. Ross Perot's battle to reform public education in Texas is making him enemies among former allies — conservatives.

Perot, who built an image as an ultra-conservative superpatriot with personal crusades against drugs, North Vietnam and the government of Iran, is now drawing flak from the far right.

"I'm disappointed. I think he has sold us a bill of goods," Mel Gabler, a leading conservative force in Texas public education for two decades through his textbook crusades, said of Perot's education reform efforts.

"He (Perot) is going contrary to everything the average parent I know wants," Gabler said. "Very many are disappointed in him."

Gov. Mark White, a Democrat, tapped Perot to head up the Select Committee on Public Education, which studied the state of the schools, drafted sweeping reforms and offered them to the Legislature, which is meeting in special session on the issue.

Perot is advocating higher teacher salaries, more time for study and less for athletics, an appointed state Board of Education, teacher competancy testing, basic skills testing for children and other programs expected to cost nearly $1 billion.

The antagionism toward Perot has spread to the most conservative members of the Legislature, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

"I'm disillusioned with Ross Perot," said Rep. Randy Pennington, R-Houston. "I think Mark White appointed him education czar to pull his political chestnuts out of the fire. He (Perot) said if he didn't get his way, he'd kill the education bill, and it appears to me everyone capitulated to him."

Perot is offering no apologies.

"If you're not looking at it politically, the label is not the issue," Perot said. "The proper course of action is the only issue."

He says the conservative does not belong on much of the work he has done. "Just look at the record going back to the late '60s," Perot said. "For years I've been putting my time, energy and money into programs for children, into programs for people who needed help."

His education program, conservative parents say, is not help they need.

Parents have been walking the Capitol hallways during the special session to collar lawmakers and explain why they oppose many of the changes Perot wants, especially the optional pre-school program for disadvantaged 4-year-olds.

"For one thing, I believe parenting belongs to parents, not the schools or the state," said Houston parent Kathy Thurston.

Gabler said he and other conservatives understand the concern.

"That's based on the principle of Big Brother government — that government should take care of everything and everybody," Gabler said. "It would be replacing the family as the fundamental unit of society, and on a philosophical basis that is going opposite of our Constitution.

"I can see why so many parents are very concerned about this issue: When is it the schools' function to take care of children? They're supposed to educate," he said.

Perot said he is surprised the pre-school program has drawn so much opposition, especially from middle class parents.

"They're fine people. They're wonderful parents. I wish every child in Texas had parents like these. If they did, we wouldn't need a 4-year-old program," he said.

"But unfortunately, we have children who are street children at 3 and 4. If we don't put these children into an early education center, and get them ready for the first grade, ... bad things happen when they enter the first grade," he said.

2 are dead in ongoing feud

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Ronald Lopez made an ominous statement in anger last month after his mother was critically wounded by gunshots fired into their southside home — at least the eighth time the home had been riddled with bullets.

"The hell with the law," Lopez, 19, said May 21. "(We're) going to take care of it ourselves."

Saturday night, Lopez and 18-year-old John Moreno were shot to death in a gun battle that erupted near Ector Junior High School in south Odessa, police said. A 15-year-old youth also suffered stab wounds.

Authorities said the shooting appeared to be the latest in a series of attacks — all involving gunfire — between feuding families and youth gangs. Police have organized community meetings to ease tensions and appealed for calm.

"I'm sorry the deaths happened and regret the meetings were not 100 percent successful," Detective Pete Gonzalez said late Saturday.

Jessie Lopez, Ronald's 37-year-old mother, said last March her home had been riddled with bullets eight times in the preceding months.

On Feb. 21, she said she was forced to roll from her bed to escape a barrage of automatic weapon fire. Shortly after that incident, Mrs. Lopez and her family moved from their Belmont Avenue home to a residence in west Odessa. The gunfire followed them.

"We're under their control," she said last March. "The police are not controlling this town; the gangs are."

Early May 20, Mrs. Lopez was critically wounded by a barrage of shots fired into her home, prompting her son's bitter reaction.

"Some of the families themselves don't even know how it started," Gonzalez said last month of the feud.

LAFF-A-DAY

© 1984 King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved. 6-25

"I think the government's in trouble — there's a note in my tax refund that says not to cash it until next Monday."

Paul Harvey

I've waited for such a day as today when hard news is in suspension, so that I could read one of those interesting things which "anonymous" wrote a while ago.

It's called, "What Is a Salesman."

It says:

A salesman is a pin on a map to the sales manager, a quota to the factory, an overloaded expense account to the auditor, a bookkeeping item called cost-of-selling to the treasurer, a smile and a wisecrack to the receptionist — and to buyers a purveyor of the balm of flattery.

A salesman needs the endurance of Hercules, the brass of Barnum, the craft of Machiavelli, the tact of a diplomat, the tongue of a orator, the charm of a playboy and a brain as quick as Univac.

He must be impervious to insult, indifference, anger, scorn, complaint and the effects of drinking all night with a customer.

He must be able to sell all day, entertain all evening, drive all night to the next town and be on the job fresh at 9 a.m. He must be good enough to play and willing to lose at golf, cards and storytelling. He wishes his merchandise were better, his prices lower, his commissions higher, his territory smaller, his competitors ethical, his goods shipped on time, his boss sympathetic, his advertising more effective and his customers more human.

But he is a realist who realizes none of this will ever be.

But he is an optimist — so he makes the sale anyway.

He lives or dies by the daily report.

He rolls his days away in a tedium of planes, trains and cars. Sleeps his nights away in a cheerless hotel room.

Yet, each morning he hoists onto his back the dead weight of last year's sales record and this year's quota.

And goes forth to do it all all over again.

Yet, for all that and all that he can't for his life imagine anything he'd rather do, anybody he'd rather be — than a salesman.

Your Birthday

June 26, 1984

Your possibilities for success look very good this coming year, provided you do not take on more things than you can handle. Finish the project at hand before beginning a new one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's important to bear in mind today that giving and taking is a two-way street. Don't be an anxious receiver and a reluctant reciprocator. Want to find out to whom you're best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) By all means be optimistic and hopeful today, but don't build your dream castle on sand that the tides can wash away. Realism is essential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unfortunately, you cannot put too much stock in the promises of big wheels and hotshots today. Their offers may lack true substance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will take more than your charm and good looks to get you by in testy career situations today. Do not be flippant when serious deliberations are required.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day to take foolish financial risks in hopes of making a quick kill. If you get reckless, you could suffer a reversal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's imperative at this time that you manage your resources prudently, or you may later show a deficit where you thought you'd have a surplus.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's important today that you strive to be self-reliant. Persons upon whom you normally can depend may not be in a position to help you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be charitable today, but also be sure you're helping the right persons for the right reasons. Don't allow the undeserving to take advantage of you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Obesity is the fine we pay for exceeding the feed limit. Keep this in mind today so you won't be tempted to go back for second or third helpings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your lot in life today is what you make it, although from where you're sitting it may appear as if others are getting the breaks denied you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Braggarts are the types of persons you usually find unappealing. Today you must be careful not to give pals reasons to think you might be one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless you truly know what you are doing it's best that you don't try to manage the affairs of another today. You could make a big mistake.

Kyle leads Western Texas to 7th place at CNFR

BOZEMAN, Mont. -- Western Texas College's Kellie Kyle ran a 14.3 in the barrels here Saturday to place fourth in the short go-round and the average of the College National Finals Rodeo.

Kyle's effort placed her seventh in the final national barrel race standings, and gave WTC's women's team an equal seventh place finish at the CNFR here.

The finish was the highest by a junior college in the women's division.

Western's only men's team competitor to reach the finals, Shane Smith, failed to mark his horse out in the bronc riding and did not place.

Western was one of 10 men's teams which did not point in the rodeo, won by Southwest Texas State University with 526.5 points. Sul Ross State University, which had won here the past two years, placed fifth with 357 points. Blue Mountain Community College was second with 477 and Dawson Community College was third with 411.

Sam Houston State University won the women's division with 540 pints. Second was the University of Arizona with 354.

"I really felt good about (the WTC teams) making it to the finals but I was disappointed at how we did at the finals, to say the least," said WTC Coach Bob Doty. "We have a good chance to next year to take our girls back, but it will be tough to get the guys back. I feel that way every year at this time though. They sort of count us out every year but we seem to come through."

Coach Doty expects his three-member finals team of Kyle, Canita Cass and Judy Cox to return to WTC next season, as well as Regina Begay, Nixie Brewster and Tina Morris.

Three of the six-member men's team will not be eligible. They are Smith, Randy Bomar and C.J. Urbanek. Dale Gideon, Van Hale and Gary Rowe are eligible.

"We've got some good kids coming back including some who weren't on the team to Bozeman," said Doty.

In other action at the CNFR:

-Sul Ross' Tuff Hedeman won the men's all around with only 60 points. He also finished second in the national all-around standings.

-Lynn McCaffety of Sam Houston won the short-go and average in the barrel race to give her school 240 of its 526.5 points. She also placed first in the national standings. Teammate Jackie Lynn Head won the short-go and average in breakaway for another 240 points.

-Freddie B. Lucero and Ed Fernandes of Sul Ross took first in the short-go and second in the average of the team roping.

-Rocky Stegall of Sul Ross was second in the short go and first in the average of the bull riding.

The CNFR short go-round is expected to be televised sometime between July 14 and 17. Those interested are urged to check local listings.

Stones chalks 7-8 high jump

LOS ANGELES (AP) - High jumper Dwight Stones, dwelling in the shadows of his sport in recent times, soared back into prominence, and a couple of America's premier runners wound up second best as the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials drew to a dramatic close.

Stones, an ebullient 30-year-old who admits he relishes the limelight, capped a well-planned comeback when he cleared an American record 7 feet, 8 inches in the high jump final Sunday night at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Meanwhile, Mary Decker and Steve Scott, who've dominated the U.S. men's and women's 1,500 meters, each failed to win their events.

Unheralded Ruty Wysocki, with a time of 4 minutes, 00.18 seconds, handed Decker her first defeat in four years, and Jim Spivey overtook Scott to win the men's final in 3:36.43.

During a busy finish to the eight-day trials at the site of the upcoming Olympic track and field competition, Carol Lewis won the women's long jump at 22-7¼ to join her brother, Carl, on the U.S. squad; Doug Padilla took the men's 5,000 meters in 13:26.34; and Leslie Deniz won the women's discus with a throw of 202-7.

Doug Nordquist, a distant cousin of Stones and a Washington State graduate, came up with his best effort ever to finish second in the high jump at 7-7, while Milt Goode got the third and final Olympic berth with a height of 7-5¾.

Diana Richburg finished third in 4:04.7 to earn the third berth in the 1,500.

Kite soars for crown at Atlanta golf classic

ATLANTA (AP) - Tom Kite says he'll leave the rating of golfers to others - the fans and the media.

"I'm an awfully good player, but I'm certainly not ready to put myself in the great category," Kite said Sunday after claiming the $72,000 first prize in the $400,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I don't know that I'm a better player today than I was three days ago," Kite said after accomplishing one of his goals - winning two titles in the same season.

A winner of the Doral-Eastern Open earlier in the year, he became only the third two-time winner of the season with Sunday's victory.

"Believe me, it's a nice situation," Kite said after his closing 67 that left him with a 19-under-par 269 total on the 7,018-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course.

"It's sometime I felt I should have done for the last two or three years. It seems like I struggle and struggle and finally win one. Hopefully this won't be the last one this year."

Kite made it look like a Sunday afternoon stroll, building a one-shot advantage at the start of the day into a five-shot victory over Don Pooley, who closed at 71-274 to finish in the runnerup slot for the third time in the last five Atlanta events.

First round leader Mike Donald and Tim Simpson tied for third place at 275 and five others were deadlocked at 277 - Bobby Wadkins, Jay Haas, Mike Sullivan, Jim Colbert and Scott Simpson.

Halfway leader Tommy Valentine was 73-278 and tied with two others, including last week's U.S. Open runnerup Greg Norman, who had a 68 Sunday.

Defending champion Calvin Peete had a 73-282, Masters winner Ben Crenshaw a 72-284 and U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller 69-285.

League aces...

Former Westerners pace scramble field

Former Westerner Mike Standly and partner Darrell Burtschell fired scores of 62 and 59 for a 121 to win the Western Texas College Two-Man Scramble by three strokes here Sunday.

The two-day, 60-team tournament featured 11 former Western Texas golfers, an annual appearance by former NFL great Sammy Baugh and a first-ever hole-in-one by Snyder's Joe L. League.

Standly - who will play for the University of Houston next season - and Burtschell, Commanche, edged out the team of Bruce Carroll and Doub Daabs for first place in the Championship Flight. Carroll, Big Spring, and Daabs were hampered by a 64 on Saturday. They came back to shoot a fine 60 on Sunday for a total 124.

Terry Jackson, Austin and Drew Ragland took third place after tying WTC exes Eric McGraw, Abilene, and Mark Ingbrightsen, Fort Worth. Both teams tied with 126s before Jackson and Ragland won on the fourth playoff hole.

League and partner David Sisson, playing for second place in the Third Flight, edged Darrell Lester and Bill Stuckey on the ace.

"That's the first one I've had anywhere," beamed League, who hit the shot on No. 6 with an eight-iron. "My wife (Gertrude League) has had two, so now maybe I'm catching up with her," he laughed.

Snyder's Ricky Hopper and Frank Woner of Hobbs, N.M., both former WTC players, won the First Flight after defeating Dave Minemier and Mark Duke, Snyder, in a three-way playoff. Hopper-Woner, Minemier-Duke and Kenny Thompson and Scott Jones of Andrews all tied at 135. Woner and Hooper won on the first hole and Minemier and Duke defeated Thompson and Jones on the second hole. Mike Cloud and Bill Whitaker of Midland were fourth with a 137.

Second Flight winners were Ray Hill and Billy Brock of Snyder, who shaved Saturday's round of 74 to a 67 for a 141 total. Joel Park and Henry Villalobos were second with a 142. Ricky Moreno and Danny Daniels took third place by defeating Mackey Greene and Bush Jordan on the second hole of a playoff. Both teams had turned in 144s.

Laddie McMillan and Billy Wayne Harms were Third Flight winners. They shot a 149 to keep out of a possible three-way playoff. Sisson and League claimed second place after League aced on the third playoff hole. Sisson and League had shot a 150 to lock with Darrel Lester and Bill Stuckey.

John Smith and (Jimmy) Joe Fowler were fourth in the flight with a 153.

Also playing in the tournament were former Western Texas College golf coach Bob O'Day and Baugh, a member of the Professional Football Hall of Fame.

Overstreet dies in fiery crash

WINONA, Texas (AP) - Miami Dolphins players and coaches reacted with shock to the news that running back David Overstreet died in an auto crash, the third tragic death in the National Football League team in the past four years.

Overstreet, a running back preparing for his second season with the Dolphins, was killed here Sunday when his car went out of control, crashed into gasoline pumps at a service station and exploded.

The vehicle burst into flames, instantly killing Overstreet, according to state Trooper Joe Abernathy. No other injuries were reported.

The 25-year-old Texas native apparently fell asleep while passing through here on the way to his nearby hometown of Big Sandy at about 6 a.m. CDT, said Abernathy.

Overstreet is the third Dolphin to die in the off-season in the past four years. Linebacker Rusty Chambers died in auto accident in 1981 and linebacker Larry Gordon suffered a heart attack while jogging last summer. Gordon died one year ago Monday.

"I can't remember any team having three losses like this in three years. The only thing that we can do is continue on and do the best we can and feel sorry for the family of the players," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula.

Overstreet's body was taken to McCauley Funeral Home in Gladewater. He is survived by his wife, Johnnie, and two children.

Doctors compile candidates' list for new hearts

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The calls have come in by the hundreds, some from the merely curious, but others from desperately ill cardiac patients who see the artificial heart as their only hope for life.

"They are very matter-of-fact. They know their situation and in most instances they know that they are dying and their time is short," says University of Utah Medical Center spokesman John Dwan.

From this flood of inquiries, Dr. William C. DeVries, who implanted the first permanent artificial heart in a human nearly 19 months ago, is compiling a list of candidates for six more implants.

The calls to the medical center were triggered by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's approval last week of DeVries' request to perform the experimental implants on patients healthier than the first recipient, Barney Clark. The retired Seattle-area dentist died March 23, 1983, after 112 days on the air-driven Jarvik-7.

Clark, 62, who was near death from degenerative heart disease at the time of the implant, died of multiple organ failure which doctors believe was unrelated to the plastic pump.

"The phone rang all day yesterday," DeVries said in an interview late last week. "We've had many calls.... We're looking at around 10 (potential candidates) so far."

Calls now are running about 20 to 30 a day, Dwan said.

Doctors are uncertain when the next implant will take place. It took DeVries nine months to find Clark after the FDA approved the first set of guidelines.

"The implant is not imminent," said Dwan, who fielded about 60 calls in three hours after the FDA's approval last Tuesday.

Indeed, DeVries is starting from scratch. None of the 77 cardiac patients who applied with Clark for the first implant will be on his new list. DeVries remembers how they continued to call after Clark's Dec. 2, 1982, operation, hoping approval for the second implant would come in time to save their lives.

"After that heart was implanted, many people kept calling me back and calling me back," DeVries said. "Everyone on that list has died."

The newest applicants face weeks and possibly months of an exhaustive winnowing process. And to the person finally chosen will belong an uncertain future — just how uncertain is starkly spelled out in the patient-consent form.

DeVries said he doesn't relish having to turn away those who see the polyurethane heart as their only chance for survival, but it's a grim task not confined to artificial heart research.

"We do that daily in medicine. You see patients with terminal cancer, with terminal heart disease.... It's unrealistic to assume we can do all things for all patients. There are simply some diseases we can't handle," he said.

The heart received by the next recipient will be basically unchanged from Clark's, with one important exception — the welded valves used in Clark's model, one of which broke, have been replaced by valves fashioned from solid titanium.

The FDA also honored DeVries' request to experiment with the purse-size Heimes portable heart driver — a battery powered, 10-pound device designed to give the patient mobility for up to three hours. Most of the time, however, the heart will be driven by a trimmed-down, 230-pound version of the drive system that was attached to Clark's heart by 6-foot hoses.

Under the broader criteria approved by the FDA, a potential candidate can be a male or female, but must be at least 18 and in Class IV of the New York Heart Association's system for labeling heart patients. Class IV is for the most critically ill.

Further, the heart now can be implanted in someone who, having undergone serious cardiac surgery, cannot be weaned from a heart-lung machine.

Implant candidates first must be referred by their physicians to DeVries, who then reviews their medical histories.

Up to a third of the applicants will be turned down because they fail to meet medical requirements, or simply are not the right size. The patient must weigh more than 135 pounds and have a chest cavity large enough to host the Jarvik-7.

The next step for prospective candidates is a series of preliminary examinations by DeVries and others covering medical, psychological and social aspects of the implantation.

"I get more of a relationship with the patient," DeVries said. "I can usually screen out 85 to 90 percent of those who aren't going to make it. If it looks good, I take them to the evaluation committee."

The six-member committee, which must unanimously recommend implant candidates, consists of DeVries as chairman, two cardiologists who have never before seen the patient, a psychiatrist, a social worker and a member of the medical center's nursing staff.

The psychiatrist determines whether the patient has a history of medical compliance and a stable psychiatric background; the social worker assesses the patient's support from family and friends, and the nurse evaluates potential nursing care demands.
