CHS band receives Div. I rating

The Colorado High Wolf Pack marching band will travel to Euless, Texas this weekend to participate in area band competition.

The band qualified to advance to the area competition Saturday when its members received straight ones from all three judges at a District UIL Competition in Abilene.

The area competition will be held Saturday at Pennington Field in Euless, located between Fort Worth and the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

The Wolf Pack is scheduled to perform at 2:15 p.m. and will compete against 16 other area bands for first or second place and the chance to advance to state level competition.

Band Director Aaron Lewis said he was proud of the hard work and effort put forth by the band students.

"All the band students have worked extremely hard this year to accomplish this goal," he said. "We have a lot of upper classmen leadership that has helped the younger students to do very well."

Several members of the Wolf Pack Band were recognized at the UIL competition for outstanding student achievements.

They are: Alyssa Finley, Trombone soloist; Alyssa Finley, Terri Cawthorn, Marco Mendoza, Shane Kelley for Brass Quartet; Kristi Miller, Drum Major; Haley Griffin, Flag Captain; and Lieutenant Kim Russell.

Spooks, goblins will be out Monday

In spite of the fact that Halloween falls on a school night this year all trick or treaters will head out the door Monday evening.

The Chamber of Commerce will be host to trick or treating in the downtown business district of Colorado City.

Parents are encouraged to bring their youngsters out between 3 and 5 p.m. to begin door to door trick or treating at the downtown businesses.

The Chamber asks that all children be accompanied by an adult.

Police Chief David Montgomery said the department anticipated that trick or treating in residential areas would be completed by 8 p.m.

The department is requesting that children up to the 5th grade participate in trick or treating and that parents try to discourage older children from taking part.

Montgomery said the department will have extra patrols on duty Monday night and encourages parents and children to follow safety tips.

Law enforcement agencies are encouraging trick or treaters to wear light clothing so they can be seen by motorists and to be extremely cautious around cars.

Motorists who will be out are asked to watch carefully for children who may wander into their paths.

Montgomery said parents should establish rules for inspection of candy and treats before the child begins eating them.

If a parent finds suspicious pieces of candies he or she should report the situation immediately to the police or sheriff's office so that an investigation may be started.

Montgomery said he wanted everyone to enjoy their Halloween, but most of all to be safe during the holiday.

Farmers, landlords urged to attend

Boll weevil meeting set for next Tuesday

Mitchell County farmers and landlords are encouraged to attend the County Boll Weevil meeting Tuesday, November 1 at 7 p.m. at the C.C. Thompson Room.

The meeting is designed to inform its participants on the boll weevil eradication effort and the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation.

County Extension Agent Joe Raff said, "These meetings are open to anyone interested in our cotton industry and will last as long as there are questions."

Cotton farmers in Mitchell County will be given the opportunity to join together with cotton producers throughout the central Rolling Plains to eradicate the boll weevil.

Mitchell County is one of nine eradication zones established under proposed plans to eliminate boll weevils from Texas and Oklahoma.

The boll weevil has cost Texas cotton producers an average of $25-$50 million per year in crop losses and chemical treatments.

Eradication programs have successfully eliminated weevils in Arizona, California, Georgia, Virginia, N. Carolina, S. Carolina and Florida.

In these states tremendous economic and environmental benefits have been achieved.

Economic benefits include a higher lint yield, decreased crop loss, lower production costs and increased land values.

Environmentally the benefits are reduced insecticide use and more beneficial insects.

The National Cotton Council estimates that for every $1 in eradication costs returns $12 to the local economy.

Farmers from counties throughout the Rolling Plains have organized steering committees to represent them in bringing eradication to the area.

Those representing Mitchell County on the zone committee include Ray Ritchey, Carl Guelker, Bruce Rich and Woody Anderson, who is a representative of the Rolling Plains Cotton Growers.

This zone committee has helped put together plans for the upcoming referendum on which farmers will vote.

The referendum will help to officially establish the Central Rolling Plains Eradication Zone; elect a Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation Board Director from the zone; and establish the assessment rate for paying for the program.

Ballots are expected to be mailed out around the middle of November. The election date has been scheduled for December 1.

All cotton farmers and land owners renting land on a share of the crop are eligible to vote.

Persons may vote by mail or in person at the county extension office. All ballots by mail must be post marked by December 1.

The proposed assessments with for the program with financing are $5 per land acre planted in cotton in 1995 and 1996, with 10$ per acre each year after until the costs of the eradication program have been paid.

The total cost to the farmer will depend on the amount of federal cost-sharing dollars available and savings resulting from natural weevil mortality.

Ritchey, Chairman of the Mitchell County Cotton Producers said anyone with an interest in cotton production in Mitchell County should be well informed of the program, its details and its importance.

"It doesn't matter if you're for or against this program," he said. "It's just important that everyone know as much as possible before they vote."

Additional information can be obtained from the Mitchell County Extension Office at 728-3111; Rolling Plains Cotton Growers at (915)773-2581; or the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation at 1-800-687-1212.

TP investments losing money

"TexPool, the investment pool operated by the Treasury for local governments, has run six straight months of book-to-market losses totalling nearly $60 million," Austin banker David Hartman said.

Hartman is the Republican nominee for State Treasurer.

According to Hartman, the treasurer's "mismanagement of TexPool's investments led directly to lower incomes for TexPool's investors."

Hartman said that although the current treasurer has called the situation paper losses, investment incomes have dropped to below-market levels and local governments are withdrawing their money.

He said that the treasurer's "mismanagement of TexPool's investments led directly to lower incomes for TexPool's investors."

"TexPool is now paying nearly 3.4% less than a six month T-Bill, a risk-free security of comparable maturity to the average TexPool investment. "In the real world, this spread translates into $30 million a year in lost income for TexPool's investors," Hartman said.

"This is costing millions of dollars for the city and county taxpayers of Texas," Hartman concluded. "Texas taxpayers can't afford anymore of these so-called 'paper losses.'"

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (SWBT) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) to restructure the current PLEXAR I and II service offerings. This restructuring will significantly change PLEXAR I and II services.

The restructuring of PLEXAR I will, among other things: (1) reduce the maximum line size from 30 to 9; (2) obsolete and grandfather certain optional features; (3) eliminate the requirement to subscribe to Feature Package Two in order to subscribe to certain optional features; (4) reduce the nonrecurring and monthly rates of certain features; and (5) increase the nonrecurring charges for the PLEXAR I System Charge ($2.10 to $8.00), Call Transfer Disconnect feature ($3.00 to $8.00), and Convenience Dialing I feature ($6.35 to $8.00). All current PLEXAR I customers will have the option of keeping their current PLEXAR I service, switching to the new restructured PLEXAR I service, or switching to PLEXAR II service with ten or more lines.

The proposed PLEXAR II restructuring will, among other things: (1) change the tariffed offering to serve the market segment of 10-74 stations; (2) create two station pricing structures, one for customers with 10-29 stations, and one for customers with 30-74 stations; (3) reduce the sensitivity for the loop portion of the rate to two price bands: 0-2 miles, and beyond 2 miles; (4) offer a PLEXAR II basic station that can be flexibly configured, from a number of standard features, to meet the individual customer requirements; (5) change the way the termination liability is calculated so the customer is responsible for 65% rather than 56% of the present worth of the remaining monthly payments in the contract; (6) create an option that allows month-to-month customers to convert to long term contracts of at least three years and receive a credit or "contract signing bonus"; and (7) establish a System Subsequent Change Charge which applies per serving central office when changes are made that affect the entire system.

Current PLEXAR II customers will also have the option of keeping their current PLEXAR II service, or switching to the new restructured PLEXAR II service. PLEXAR II customers with at least 75 stations also have the option of switching to PLEXAR Custom service in certain situations.

This application has been assigned Docket Number 13210. Persons who wish to comment on this application should notify the Commission by November 28, 1994. Wolves to host Greenwood

The Colorado City Wolves host league-leading Greenwood Friday night at Wolf stadium in the Wolves final home game of the year. Six Wolves will be playing their last home game at Wolf stadium. Eli Ornelas, Clint Sims, Phillip Garcia, Frank Casares, Daniel Silva, and Jason Castillo are all letterman and will close-out their home schedule at Wolf stadium Friday night. The Wolves will take on a very good Greenwood team. The Rangers are 6-1 on the year and are the only undefeated team (3-0) in District 8-3A. C-City is coming off their worse defeat of the year. Kermit stung the Wolves last Friday night 55-14. The Wolves will be trying to end this year's 8-game losing streak.

Wildcats lose to Borden Co.

Westbrook hosted the Borden County Coyotes last Friday and lost 74-28. Westbrook scoring came from Jeff Hill's pass to Casey Hill in the 2nd quarter. Jeff connected again this time to Shawn Daniels for the touchdown. Jeff would use Casey one more time in the 2nd quarter to bring the score to 40-20 at halftime. Westbrook's last touchdown came in the 4th quarter as Jeff connected again with Casey. Westbrook Wildcats will host the Hermleigh Cardinals tomorrow night. Gametime is 7:30.

W'brook Jr. Hi. loses, 20-8

Westbrook Jr. High traveled to Borden County last Thursday and came up a little short as the game was called in the 4th quarter because of weather. Borden County scored on their first possession and led at the end of the 1st quarter 8-0. Westbrook could not get untracked with their offense until late in the 4th quarter when Randy Byinton completed a pass to Justin Hill for the touchdown. Game was called due to lightning. Final score 20-8. Westbrook Jr. High travels to Hermleigh today.

Rivera wins first in contest

A niece, Karron Darzab from Iowa Park, Texas and her cousin from Dallas stopped by for a visit and lunch with Iva and Gun Armstrong recently.

Jackie Hallman is in Loraine this week seeing to the needs of her dad, Jack Richey, after his recent surgery. Jackie and husband Bob are proud grandparents to their first grandson, born to Robert and wife in Connecticut. Congratulations to all in the family. Get well, Jack, so you can enjoy pictures of your great-grand!

Bobby Hamrick says he has some great white hunters out on his place -- shooting!! They are hunting dove and whatever moves.

Leila Beaty's nephew Chris Seaton visited with her last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Quail Dobbs from Coahoma came over to visit with J.M. and Laura Lewis last Thursday.

Dr. and Mrs. W. N. Porter (Mrs. Nell Porter) from Dennison came by the 24th to visit J.M. and Laura Lewis.

They were on their way to Garden City to visit Ruth Cook's.

Andrew Jones who resides in the late T.J. Green Sr.'s home in Loraine has taken over the operation of the Kerr McGee service station left vacant by the DoYLES. He will appreciate your business.

Billie Schroeder has just returned from a two week tour through several states and Washington, D.C.

The first stop was in Mississippi at Vicksburg Military Park.

The next day they visited the beautiful Callaway Gardens in Columbus, GA. Then on to Atlanta and Stone Mountain to see a memorial carving of Jeff Davis, Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson. Riding the ski lift to the top of the mountain was great fun, she said.

Their next stop was Colonial Williamsburg, VA. with 173 historic areas, then on to Washington, D.C. and a tour of the Whitehouse. Billie said it was impressive and the grounds and gardens were beautiful.

They took in the capital, House of Representatives, Lincoln Memorial, Vietnam Memorial and others.

After leaving D.C., coming back west, they took the Skyline Drive at Shenendoah Valley where fall colors were gorgeous.

They visited Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home and garden, the Natural Bridge in Virginia, then on home.

The tour was with Leisure Time Travel Club out of Abilene. Billie said they travelled 3,475 miles and enjoyed every mile.

"Spotlight"

This week's spotlight shines on J.A. Sadler, Jr.

His parents J.A. Sadler, Sr. and Nora Lindley Sadler moved from Brown County and settled at Iatan in 1908. Soon after, Mr. Sadler established the Colorado Drug and at one time was mayor of Colorado City for 14 years.

A daughter was born to this union, but died in a flu epidemic in 1918. J.A., Jr. was born July 6, 1925, later going to school in Colorado City.

He says his first job was taken at the age of 10 years old. He and Robert Charters worked at the swimming pool and park. They had to sleep at the park to get an early start at the pool. Jr. says he received all the candy he wanted, a free place to room, plus getting one dollar in cash a week.

After graduating high school he worked a short while for the highway department, then went to Stephenville to go to John Tarlton College.

He then decided to enlist in the Navy. He said he joined the Navy to see the world and all he saw was a lot of water.

At 21, J.A. came home from the service and worked in real estate for a short time before getting a job with the city.

In 1947, J.A. married Yvonne Mickle and they later had two sons. J.A. stayed with the city job for 20 years then went to Merkel as city manager and stayed until his retirement. He says he doesn't miss the job, but misses the people.

The Sadlers bought the Mahon family home about a mile north of Loraine. The house was nice upon purchase, but they did remodeling to suit their tastes and needs and are now enjoying living in their lovely home a short distance from downtown.

J.A. stays busy since his retirement, working at his stock farm six miles northeast of Roscoe, being active in the Masons, going to the Baptist Church and other things that interest him. He's on the board of directors at the senior center in Loraine and he just completed working on the Old Timers Reunion.

He says he checks with Yvonne to see what her agenda is, then they make their plans for the day.

The Sadlers now have four grandchildren and are enjoying them as well.

We are glad these nice people decided to make their home here. We sure consider them good friends and an asset to the community.

Senior Center Highlights

Visitors to the center this past week include Ray and Sylvia Spivey who at one time not too long ago lived north of Loraine. They moved to Snyder and go to their center there, often.

Nancy Henderson, Debbie Zabica and Joshua came the 24th to the center. Both friends needed to make a trip to Midland so Nancy came to Loraine from Buffalo Gap and Debbie and Joshua from San Angelo (to meet in the middle). Meeting at Loraine gave Debbie and Nancy a chance to visit with Debbie's mom, Margaret Brame.

After eating lunch and visiting, the three headed out for Midland (Nancy, Debbie and little Joshua). Don't you know they had a time talking and laughing and catching up on news?

Last Wednesday the 19th, Gus Armstrong and Sarah Carter came down again and we enjoyed some mighty fine music.

This time they brought Sarah's sister Inez Hock and she sang a lot of the good old time popular hits. They all did a great job.

It's nice to look out over the crowd at the center now and see Jasper and Nell Doyle.

Leon and Frances Alexander from Roswell, NM came down the 24th to visit and eat. They are house guests of Verland and Maxine Pierson. (Maxine and Frances are sisters).

Maxine is cooking for us while Millie Rose is on vacation. If Monday's meal was any indicator of her talents, we say she is a good cook.

Members at the center having birthday this month are Billie Powell, Tharon Henderson, Garvis Craighead, August Armstrong, Billie Sheffield, Verna Mae Adkins and Ray Harris.

Billie Schroeder made the cake this month for the special party table.

"Positive Thinking"
Hello big brother - you alright?
Yea, I am now. I've been listening to several positive thinking tapes and my scattered fragmented negative thinking is a thing of the past, I'm having positive thoughts now.

Really, what about?

Well, for starters, I'm positive that Dora is homely, boring and argumentative and I'm going to tell her so tonight.

You had better keep in mind that those words could land you in divorce court, Hank!

I know, I'm positive that this is what I hope will happen...

--the judge will give her the car and I will keep the pickup,

--she will get the house and I will get the lake cabin,

--I'm not a bit selfish either, she can have half of the bills, too.

You know, Hank, sometimes things don't turn out like you plan.

I've heard of several cases where wives get good lawyers and husbands come out with zero, nada, zilch!! Remember Bo Peterson? His wife got everything, even Bo's dog.

Are you serious? You know Joe, the more I think about this the more I'm positive that Dora doesn't look half-bad when she's all gussied up -- and she never argues about the same thing everyday and at times

she can even be fun.

Hank, you're my brother and I love you, but have you looked in the mirror lately. You look like

Winston Churchill in a cowboy hat and boots. Poor old Dora, if the truth was known, she's probably been dreaming of divorce court herself. Maybe you should listen to some more tapes, old boy, and count your blessings.

Yea, I'm positively thinking the same thing!! My pasture grass is already pretty green.

Here's hoping you get all treats and no tricks and have a fun time during Halloween.

Take good care and see you about town.

TELCOT[®] Report

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF COTTON MARKETING NEWS

FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 20

The water from Southeast Texas to the Delta and the Southeast U.S. was not the only thing muddled this week. Weather-related harvest delays, increasing potential for U.S. exports based on fundamental factors along with unconfirmed rumors and reported inquiries, combined to create more questions than answers for many cotton traders.

The result was a recipe for volatility in the cotton futures market characterized by wide price swings throughout the week. Initial panic set in upon reports of rain in the Delta and Southeast along with forecasts for additional heavy precipitation which sent futures soaring on Tuesday, Oct. 18.

However, reality returned when it was learned the rainfall amounts in the Delta were much lighter and more widespread than first reported, and forecasts for extended heavy downpours such as those experienced in Southeast Texas did not materialize. The fact is that 60 to 80 percent of the Delta crop is off the stalk, and the only serious question is in regard to impact on fiber quality. The Southeast U.S., on the other hand, is a different story. Harvest there is not as progressed as the Delta, and there could be some impact on yields as well as quality.

Volatile futures markets had little, if any, negative impact on spot cotton prices this week as some may have expected. Prices remained quite strong in relation to futures which, combined with a harvest that is well underway, encouraged many Texas/Oklahoma producers holding marketable cotton to sell this week.

Sales on TELCOT totaled 35,364 bales for the five trading days ending Oct. 20, up from 9,680 the previous week. Average daily prices received by producers during the week ranged from 61.98 to 63.25 cents per pound. The week's largest daily volume on TELCOT occurred on Oct. 18 when 17,739 bales were traded which coincided with the jump in futures prices and is considered exceptional this early in the season.

The most-often-asked questions this week centered around the amount of export business being conducted. These questions have existed for several weeks, and they were partially answered last week when USDA reported a net increase in U.S. export sales of 2.95 million bales for the week ended Oct. 6. The dramatic announcement may have been precipitated by the season's first marketing certificate valued at 135 points.

The following week's certificate value fell to 51 points which appeared to squelch foreign buyers' interest. The next week's certificate escalated to 109 points, then to 184 points for the week ending Oct. 27, the highest value of the current season. This seemed to rejuvenate foreign interest in U.S. cotton. USDA offered some more insight on Oct. 20 when it announced export sales of U.S. cotton increased a net 215,200 bales in the week ended Oct. 13.

Numerous reports and rumors of inquiries, especially from China, circulated throughout the market this week. However, on trade analyst noted that the potential for business with China often if more bullish than fact. Another analyst counted by stating the country needs cotton not only to keep its mills running at current levels, but also to build stocks that were depleted by last year's short crop.

This, along with generally tight world stocks is leading many analysts to predict larger U.S. cotton exports this year than has been estimated by USDA. Earlier this month, the department lowered its export projection to 7.0 million bales, compared to the September figure of 7.3 million. Now, however, some analysts are expecting 8.0 million bales could be sold overseas. U.S. export commitments now stand at more than five million bales for the 1994-95 marketing year with more than eight months remaining in the season.

The National Cotton Council (NCC) apparently sides with the analysts. With the potential for increased exports and strong domestic demand facilitated in part by a global shortage of polyester, NCC this week recommended to USDA a zero set-aside for the 1995 U.S. cotton crop. The council stated that based on this excellent demand, a zero set-aside will be necessary to meet the 29.5 percent stocks-to-use ratio that is mandated to manage supply and bring ending stocks within budgetary requirements.

USDA is expected to make a preliminary announcement by November 1 and a final announcement by January 1. Some analysts say a set-aside rate of 5.0 to 7.5 percent is more likely.

PCA to finance eradication program

Three Production Credit Associations (PCAs) recently signed a $4.5 million loan agreement with the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation, Inc. to finance a boll weevil eradication program in the southern Rolling Plains area of Texas.

Foundation Chairman and Colorado City resident Woody Anderson said the financing would allow eradication efforts to begin this fall in a nine-county zone that includes Mitchell County.

This program would be the first cooperative effort to eliminate the devastating boll weevil from Texas cotton fields.

Texas PCA President Ken Smith said that the PCAs have recognized the importance of cotton in the Texas agricultural economy.

"We are pleased to participate in such a massive boll weevil eradication effort," he said.

Funding is being provided by the Stamford-based Rolling Plains PCA; Texas PCA, headquartered in San Angelo; and Wichita Falls PCA.

"This partnership with Production Credit is allowing us to be at the forefront of the boll weevil's eradication," Anderson said when signing the loan agreement.

"Nowhere else in the Cotton Belt have farmers, themselves, taken the lead in financing boll weevil eradication," he added.

Approximately 200,000 acres of cotton are grown in the southern Rolling Plains. The zone includes the counties of Coke, Coleman, Concho, Irion, McCulloch, Runnels, Schleicher and Tom Green, and a portion of Taylor County.

Cotton producers in the southern Rolling Plains voted last winter to establish a boll weevil eradication zone and to cost-share a weevil eradication plan through an average assessment of $10.80 per acre at time of certification, to be collected by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The federal government traditionally pays 30 percent of eradication costs and producers pay the remaining 70 percent.

The other eight zones have not yet approved eradication plans.

"While we are still counting on federal funding, this PCA loan lets us go forward in the meantime," said Anderson, who farms near Colorado City.

Financing from the PCA will also allow program costs to be pro-rated and extended over six years.

PCAs are agricultural lending cooperatives that provide short- and intermediate-term loans to farmers and ranchers. They are part of the nationwide Farm Credit System.

October 31 is deadline to insure fall seeded crops

Congress has recently enacted the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1994, which contains important deadlines for farmers concerned with maintaining eligibility for participation in the Farm Programs.

The new law requires producers of insurable crops to take out at least the minimum level of insurance to remain eligible for USDA benefits.

Producers of fall seeded crops have until early report year to sign up for catastrophic coverage and remain eligible for benefits.

Those who want "buy up" coverage for their fall seeded insurable crops must purchase this coverage by October 31. "Buy up" coverage is available only through private crop insurance agents.

Farmers seeking only catastrophic coverage may sign up within the next few months at either the local ASCS office or their private agency.

Beginning with next year's crop, the new law will combine crop insurance and disaster assistance programs into one program.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

BY JIM BAUM

The year was 1985. That's when Colorado City went Hollywood. Or, Hollywood came to Colorado City. Will the world ever forget it was here that Shadows on the Wall was filmed?

What inspired that epic of the '80s, anyway? Who were the local stars who are now a part of video immortality? What were their roles and what did they think of the finished product when they saw it?

Well, let's go back to the day Pat Poole, director of the never-to-be forgotten (in Colorado City) film arrived in Mitchell County. "I came into town and saw that old hotel and I started thinking about it. Two hours out of town I had a story concept. Then I went home and wrote it."

Just like that. A film is born! Although most theatre goers won't need their memory jogged, Shadows on the Wall centered around Colorado City's famed but rundown Baker Hotel. The show involved a murder. Let me give away too many details, best we leave it at that.

"It's kind of a Hitchcock type of thing," Poole pontificated. When asked if Shadows would open in New York or Hollywood, Poole said, "It will probably be tested in Texas, then go out to major markets."

Well, it's still being tested in Texas and the only major market it's seen has been on WGN, Chicago, about two o'clock one morning.

Somehow the film escaped serious review, although it headlined such stalwarts as Wilfred Brumley (The Natural and Cocoon) and Pat Swanson (son of one-time movie star Gloria Swanson) and Tandy Curlee, silver-haired leading man of Playhouse fame, as well as a cast of quite a few other natives.

Just for kicks, for the first time ever, let's talk to some of Colorado City's own stars of the silver screen and get their recollections of that day in the sun.

Introducing...Queetie Ausbie. Who could ever forget her performance as she sat on a bench at Mt. Olive Baptist Church? For an hour to an hour and a half, she was on the set. She says her debut appearance lasted only a few seconds on the screen.

Her instructions were to give "this white man a dirty look when he passed by us." Because she was just a face in the crowd, one of many in the scene, Queetie didn't realize it was her dirty look that would be selected by the director.

"Evidently," she told us, "I give a pretty good dirty look." Mrs. Ausbie says her brief appearance in the drama has brought her some recognition.

"This man called me, you know, he stayed up all night and watched movies and he said he'd seen me in the movie on the Chicago channel." That's Queetie Ausbie, fans, number one in the heart of insomniacs everywhere.

Actually, she enjoyed the experience and has even been asked for her autograph.

Then there's the local living legend, Tandy Curlee. "They wanted someone who looked like a grandpa," he told us modestly. (Immediately, Curlee sensed this would not be a romantic leading role.)

"The scene I was in, I was sitting with this little girl in the old Palace Theatre. We were eating popcorn and we were supposed to be irritated about the film breaking. So, I looked back toward the projection booth."

He was paid $35 for his irritated look and critics said his sour expression ranked right along with Mrs. Ausbie's dirty look. (Maybe that's why Poole decided to film his show here; he liked all the dirty looks he saw as he came into town.)

Robert Lewis Ramage was another flash-of-the-flick. In fact, he was so meteoric in his rise to fame he was cast in not one, but two roles.

"I was a firefighter and a deputy sheriff," he explained in his best John Wayne sounding voice. As for the length of time he appeared on the screen, Ramage says, "I was in one quick scene." If you want to catch Ramage in his sterling performance ("getting out of a firetruck"), don't blink.

"You have to know what you're looking for," Robert says, somewhat downcast.

Marsha Moore, who has logged more time on the Colorado Playhouse stage than some of the two-by-fours, was a mourner in the cemetery scene. She says her screen time was clocked at 3.5 seconds, not quite as long as the hangtime on a good NFL punt.

"The scene was filmed from so far away you couldn't tell who I was," she told us. Somehow we got the impression she was pleased her appearance might go unnoticed. Still, the $35 was good money for no longer than she mourned.

Quite a few of the local stars say they had signed up for parts in the movie. Not so with real-life cowboy Ronnie Clark. He was asked to be in it. Clark makes a living toiling on the Spade Ranch and his chance at fame came as he watched a barroom scene being filmed at Silver.

Clark had gone with Rudy and Erlene Gabaldon, also Spade folks, and they had a dog scheduled to be in the film. "We had been working cattle and I had on my hat, boots and spurs," Clark related, "and this lady asked if I wanted to be in the show." The next thing Ronnie knew, he had a part in the never-to-be-forgotten movie.

"I was just standing there [in the barroom] when they were having a spat between him and her." The pay? Ronnie says he made $60. "That was for two days. Two 14-hour days."

And that's not bad pay for just standing in a barroom. (Next week, memorable performances discussed by Earl Plagens, Bob McNeal and Tommy Dixon, plus local stars give their ratings to Shadows on the Wall.)
