Most Of Bans On Industry Are Removed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—The War Production board today gave industry a free hand—almost—to produce for peacetime. Auto makers were told they can go the limit.

All but 40 of the 400 WPB controls will be wiped out by next Monday. And those 40 will be only temporary.

This was announced by Chairman J. A. Krug at a news conference where he issued the WPB's detailed plan for reconversion of war industry.

The agency removed bars from makers of durable goods. It also opened the way for a great program of plant construction.

Krug said the job must be done by thousands and thousands of businessmen all over the country.

Cancel Contracts

"Our policy is to encourage them by taking off controls," he said.

Krug said most of the $32,000,000,000 in war contracts that are still undelivered will be cancelled.

He disclosed that the vast munitions program—which has totalled about $34,500,000,000 for the first months of the year—will total only $3,900,000,000 during the last four months.

Krug also gave the prospects in the rest of 1945 for certain articles that consumers want. For example:

Mechanical refrigerators—third quarter 125,000; fourth quarter 700,000.

Washing machines—third quarter 50,000; fourth quarter 500,000.

Sewing machines—third quarter 10,000; fourth quarter 75,000.

Some Short For While

The WPB chief said few items will stay in short supply for a considerable period. As examples he named tin, crude rubber, lumber, certain textiles, hard fibers.

Controls will be kept on such items as these until shortages loosen.

Inventory controls will be retained "until the danger of hoarding, pre-emptive buying and stockpiling by the few at the expense of the many is over."

The WPB summerized its plan in eight points:

1. Cancel soon all but a handful of controls.

2. Release a "huge" industrial building program by relaxing industrial construction controls. This relaxation is already in effect. Controls on non-industrial construction may be lifted shortly.

Ceilings Removed

3. Remove ceilings on production of autos and other consumer durable goods. These industries now may go ahead—all out.

4. Keep controls temporarily on scarce materials.

5. Keep controls over inventories.

6. Keep preferential protection of small business for the time being "until the effects of cut-backs can be appraised and it is safe to remove them."

7. Keep WPB's powers for breaking bottlenecks or giving protection—if needed—to military or highly-essential civilian or export needs.

8. The WPB will take "vigorous action" to expand production of scarce materials to meet civilian demands.

News Censorship In U. S. Ordered Ended

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP)—Voluntary news censorship ended at 2:35 p. m. (cwt) today and censorship Director Byron Price told editors and broadcasters they had "contributed greatly to the glorious victory."

Publications and radio stations now are free to print or publish almost any facts they pick up. But censorship still applies to correspondents assigned to military and naval forces in the field, who had to sign pledges to submit stories or photographs to military censors before transmission.

And here in Washington reporters can't stroll into the Pentagon building and wander around interviewing generals without special badges and accompanying guards.

Five Airmen Killed In Crash Of Bomber

YUMA, Ariz., Aug. 15 (AP)—The entire crew of five of a B-25 Army bomber were killed when their plane crashed into Powell peak, southeast of Topoc, Ariz., Saturday, Yuma air base authorities announced today.

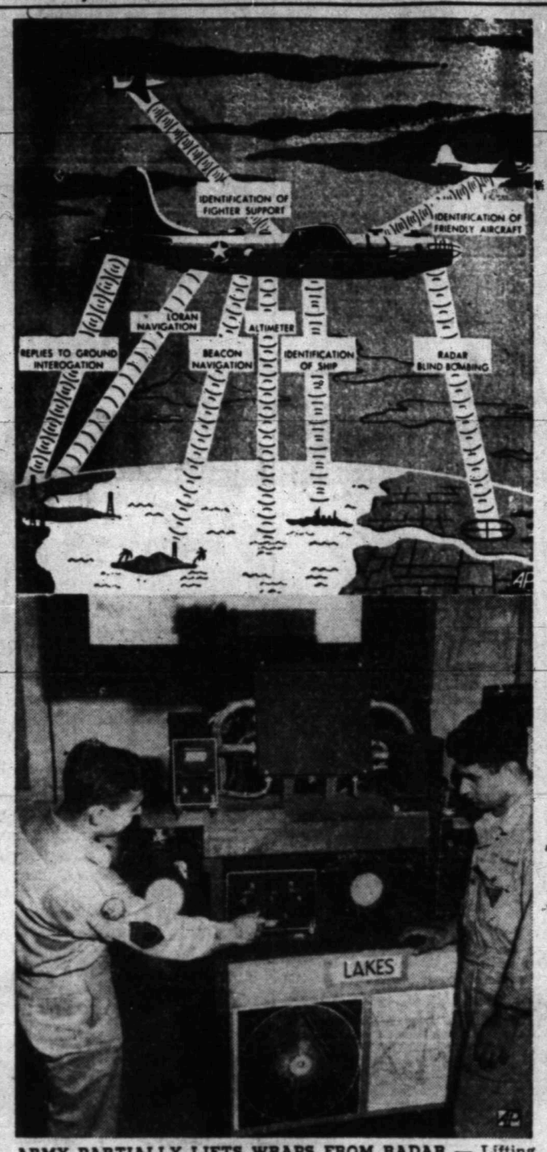

Pilot was Robert Lloyd Laird, 21, of Laredo, Tex., son of Col. John A. Laird, attached to the 801st specialized depot, Buffalo, N. Y. The plane was on a routine combat training mission.

PRODUCTION HALTED

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Air Corps Technical Service command today ordered all airplane engine manufacture terminated immediately at the Dodge-Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, world's largest airplane engine factory.

Three Services Set Demobilization Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP) — The Army, Navy and Marine corps today announced demobilization plans designed to release as many as 7,500,000 men within the next 12 to 18 months.

They are:

1. Reduction from 40 to 38 the age at which Army enlisted men may be discharged within 90 days after they ask for release. It was one step in a program to release 5,000,000 Army men within a year.

2. A Navy point discharge formula, allowing credit for age, length of service and dependency without regard to number of dependants.

3. A Marine corps discharge formula following the Army's point system, with 85 points the minimum for enlisted male personnel and 25 for women computed as of May 12, 1945.

Army Plans Revision

Secretary of War Stimson said in a statement the Army will revise its point system to make additional personnel eligible for discharge after it has made certain the Japanese "have accepted the surrender terms in good faith."

The Army said it is stepping up the demobilization of the high point men now eligible for discharge.

"Our goal is to reduce the Army by 5,000,000 men in the next 12 months, but it may take several months later," Stimson's statement said.

In fairness to the men overseas, Stimson said, Army inductions must continue even though at a reduced rate of 50,000 monthly.

Maj. Gen. S. G. Henry, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel, disclosed that the Army is starting a recruiting drive to enlist 280,000 volunteers to serve three-year enlistments.

Navy And Coast Guard

The demobilization formula applies to all personnel of the naval reserve, to inductees, and to those in the regular Navy who are serving beyond the expiration of their enlistment. The Coast Guard has adopted the same plan.

The Navy formula allows one half point credit for each year of age figured to the nearest birthday; a half point for each full month of active duty since September 1, 1939, and 10 points for dependency without regard to number of dependents. Dependents are those who receive dependency allowances from the government at the time the plans goes into effect.

Critical scores, or minimum points necessary for release, were fixed at 44 for enlisted men, 29 (Turn to Page 7, Column 5, Please)

More Troops Alerted For Homeward Trip

PARIS, Aug. 15. (AP) — Five American divisions not previously alerted were given the green light today to go home in about a month, as one of the first results of the Japanese surrender's effect on the redeployment program.

U. S. headquarters for the European theater (USFET) announced that the whole redeployment plan would be speeded up with ships becoming available as the result of declining Pacific needs.

The five divisions are the 69th and 63rd Infantry divisions of the Seventh Army, the 103rd and 6th Armored divisions of the Third Army and the 17th Airborne division. The announcement said two more armored divisions, not yet identified, will be alerted shortly.

Other thousands of Yanks at Marseille, staging area for transfers direct to Manila, were notified officially that there will be no further shipments of troops from Europe to the Pacific, pending word from the War department outlining changes in policy.

Low-Priced Shoes To Be Ration-Free Friday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (U.P.) — The Office of Price Administration today advanced the coming period for ration-free sales of certain types of low-priced shoes. Stampless sales will begin this Friday instead of Aug. 27, as originally scheduled. Sales will end Sept. 29. Only shoes selling for $3.50 or less will be affected by the stamp holiday.

Jap Balloon Bombs Prove Of No Effect

(By The Associated Press)

A JAPANESE-launched paper balloon scattered three bombs near Brownwood early this year, and two of them exploded.

A number of the Texas residents who reported they saw such balloons in the air were correct.

One of the bombs in northern Brown county went off in the air, another buried eight feet into red clay in a pasture and detonated causing a crater. A third buried six feet but did not explode.

The balloon fell near De Leon in Comanche county, west central Texas. Another balloon, which did not explode, landed early in the year in Erath county, also in the west central part of the state.

Over 200 In Nation

The balloons which reached Texas were part of more than 200 bomb-carrying, unmanned paper balloons which Japan landed in western North America out of perhaps thousands launched in a bizarre attack which fell flat as a military weapon.

To keep the enemy from learning the results details of the attacks were kept secret. The balloons fell from Alaska to Mexico and as far east as Michigan, but most frequently in British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, California and Montana.

The relaxation of censorship permitted disclosure of details.

Six persons who tampered with a bomb near Lakeview, Ore., were killed; two small fires were caused, and the balloons diverted manpower for their investigation and control. None dropped in a city or war plant.

Secrecy Relaxed Some

After the Oregon deaths the War and Navy departments relaxed secrecy sufficiently to warn of the danger, but continued restrictions on number and place of landings.

When the warnings were issued, there was no panic in Texas, but numerous false reports of seeing balloons turned up.

Once an evening star was mistaken at Brownwood for a balloon; telescopes were trained on it, and fighter planes moved out after it. Amarillo was one of several points where residents reported a silvery object high in the air.

A radio balloon such as those sent up regularly by weather bureaus was spotted by residents of Matamoros, Mexico, directly across the Rio Grande from Brownsville.

Rumors swiftly spread through both cities that a Japanese balloon was overhead, and streets and plazas were crowded by curious persons. A weather bureau statement that it had sent such a balloon aloft at that particular time quieted the excitement.

Tense Night At Dallas

Dallas had a night of tenseness immediately following the warnings. Officials called meetings to explain what citizens should do in case a balloon was spotted, and as a result distorted rumors cir- (Turn to Page 7, Column 1, Please)

Reds In China Reject Order From Chiang, Civil War Threat Mounts

CHUNGKING, Thursday, Aug. 16. (AP)—The commanders of Communist forces in northwest China today formally rejected Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's recent order for Communist troops to refain at thir present posts and forbidding them to disarm Japanese and puppet troops.

The rejection was signed Gen. Chuh Teh, the "Red Napoleon" who had said in a broadcast Thursday that he would not accept Chiang's order, and Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, deputy Communist commander.

They said Chiang's order was "definitely contrary to the interests of the Chinese nation."

Said Advantage To Japs

"We consider your order a grave mistake and are compelled firmly to refuse it," they added. "Your order is only to the advantage of Japanese and traitors who have sold out their country."

Earlier, Chiang Kai-Shek had "humbly' invited another Communist leader to confer with him immediately in Chungking—in a step apparently taken to avoid the mounting danger of civil war.

The generalissimo dispatched a radio message to Gen. Maohtze-Tung containing the invitation as Chinese Communist forces were reported—without official confirmation—to be marching on key cities in northern China in full defiance of Chiang's orders.

"We have many international and internal problems awaiting settlement," Chiang told the Communist leader. "These involve our national welfare. Please don't delay in coming here."

Occupation Of Japan

Earlier, a government spokesman said Chinese troops would participate in the occupation of Japan, and that steps have been taken to insure the surrender of Japanese troops in China only to duly accredited Allied representatives.

The latter action was regarded in government circles as an effort (Turn to Page 7, Column 3, Please)

"Fill 'Er Up" Returns to American Scene

Gasoline, Other Rationing Ends

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP) — "Fill 'er up" came back into the American language today.

Gasoline rationing ended.

So did the rationing of fuel oil, oil stoves, and all blue point foods, but rationing of meats, fats and oil, butter, sugar, shoes, and tires will continue until lowered military requirements and increased production bring civilian supplies more nearly in balance with civilian demands.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles made the announcement of the first big break in rationing.

The order became effective immediately.

Shortly after Bowles' announcement, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, as petroleum administrator, said ample quantities of civilian gasoline will be available immediately. The petroleum administration said only a few days would lapse before better grades than civilians have been using will be available.

Supplies of heating and fuel oil will be adequate to meet normal peacetime requirements, Ickes said.

Bowles said of the prospect for future rationing cuts: "You can be sure that these items will go off the list the minute we hear that supplies are anywhere near big enough to go around."

Bowles said the immediate removal of several major civilian commodities from rationing might mean some local shortages for a while, but predicted the supply agencies would be able to take care of these trouble spots quickly.

Bowles also announced the removal of price control on a large number of minor items, and the suspension of price control on so-called luxury furs and fur garments.

Included in the items removed from price control are many items of jewelry, sports equipment, toys selling at 25 cents or less, cigaret lighters, pipes, some photographic apparatus, clothes-pins and notions.

Revising a program that had limited issuance of tire ration certificates to holders of B or C gasoline cards, the OPA announced that hereafter certificates will be granted on this basis:

1. In the case of passenger cars used for occupational purposes, tires will continue to be distributed in accordance with the importance of the applicant's work.

2. Motorists who use their cars for pleasure driving will be eligible for tires if a local ration board decides that denial of an application would cause undue hardship. The total of certificates issued to non-occupational drivers will be held to five per cent of each board's monthly passenger tire quota.

Tire certificates for commercial vehicles will continue to be issued on the basis of importance of the use of the car.

Nip Arrogance Holds Close U. S. Attention

Watch Kept On Treachery

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Japanese broadcasts implying vaguely that Nippon already looks to rebuilding her armed might got close attention from American officials tonight.

Some military and diplomatic authorities didn't like the tone of two Tokyo spokesmen in particular.

Telling Japanese troops of surrender, the chief of Japan Broadcasting corporation's overseas bureau, Jusuo Ayo, declared that "we have lost — but this is temporary." He added:

"Japan's mistake was lack of material strength and scientific knowledge and equipment. This mistake we must amend."

REVENGE IS URGED

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15 (AP) — Tokyo radio in a Japanese language broadcast to the Orient today quoted the resigning Japanese cabinet in a proclamation as calling on "our comrades to seek this revenge."

In the broadcast, monitored by the Federal Communications commission, the proclamation had pointed out the Japanese in the days ahead faced further difficulties and hardships demanding greater endurance, then added:

"We, the cabinet, here repress our tears of grief and dare to request our comrades to seek this revenge." There was no elaboration.

Suzuki Statement

And before his cabinet resigned, Premier Suzuki said that "this day has become the day that never, never will be forgotten by the Japanese people."

In telling of demobilization plans, the Army said today:

"Until our own troops have moved in and ascertained that no new treachery is being planned by any groups in the Japanese population, we must have the means to stamp out inexorably and completely any enemy uprising."

Reported plane stabs at the Third Fleet and a kamikaze attack on Ihya island both after surrender was announced, reinforced earlier doubts in Washington that Emperor Hirohito could persuade all his armed forces to quit.

Trouble In China, Too

And on this day of at least theoretical peace, China was a trouble spot too. Unofficial reports reaching Chungking said Chinese Communists were on the move to seize Peiping, Tientsin, Tsingtao and all other key cities north of the Yellow river.

But with all these disturbing incidents in the Orient, Washington was more concerned with war-end domestic problems.

President Truman, on a business-as-usual basis, tackled the tough question of veterans' welfare in (Turn to Page 7, Column 1, Please)

GUAM NATIVES GIVE THANKS — On hearing reports of Japanese surrender, these three Chamorro women, one of whom has a husband who is a prisoner of the Japs, offer prayers of thanksgiving in the temporary cathedral at Agana, Guam.

Japs Sing Familiar Refrain Over Defeat

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15 — As usual, the Japanese are blaming everything but themselves for what has happened to them.

Practically all Tokyo statements since the surrendering, including the emperor's rescript, take the line that Japan has been defeated by such western tricks as the atomic bomb and that the only thing to do now is to rebuild the country by all pulling together.

WHITE

Typical is the quavering voice of a Tokyo propagandist telling troops to surrender:

"We do not think the way we have thought has been wrong . . . We have lost, but this is temporary." He added that Japan's big mistake was her failure to build up enough resources, and that this must be amended—No hint here that it might have been wrong to conquer the world if Japan could have got away with it.

There may be a wide difference between what the Japanese people think the peace will mean to them and what we know it will mean. Consequently, when occupation comes, many Japanese may regard its more humiliating aspects as breaches of Allied faith and exceeding what they have been allowed to understand are the terms of surrender.

Possible Reaction

They are likely to regard what the emperor has to do to carry out surrender terms as violations of their stipulation that his sovereignty not be impaired. The imperial rescript mentioned only the Potsdam terms and these did not say anything about the emperor.

To the Japanese, the emperor is still inviolable.

Whether you like it or not, if we didn't have him the military in Japan might be completely out of hand by now and the whole place in chaos, which it still can become if the military decide to use the guns which they still have.

Hours after the surrender, Japanese planes were still being shot down as they approached the American fleet.

Food Shortage Still Persists

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Just because the war is over, don't expect to go out and get all the beef steaks and sugar you want.

There still is a world-wide shortage of food—a shortage this country has promised to help meet.

The removal from rationing of meats, butter, margarine, other food fats and oils and sugar may be many months in coming.

Relief Seen In Winter

It may be possible to take some cuts and grades of beef off the ration list next winter, after heavy fall and winter marketings of cattle and hogs reach slaughter pens.

Government food officials emphasized that the end of the war brought little change in the world food situation.

The surrender of Japan did permit the Army to announce a 20 per cent reduction in its food requirements, but the bulk of this reduction will be diverted to foreign relief and lend-lease shipments. This reduction in military needs was the major factor in the government's decision today to terminate the rationing of all blue-point foods—such as canned fruits and vegetables, catsup, chili sauce and fruit juices.

The broad, long term food outlook was pictured today by Reconversion Director John W. Snyder.

Emphasizing needs of the hungry abroad, Snyder called upon farmers to "keep up all-out production in the months ahead."

In the case of meats, for example, the government plans to resume lend-lease and foreign relief shipments during the October-December quarter.

It is planned to continue lend-lease aid to countries supplying U. S. troops within their borders.

Wainwright Release Story Unverified

SKANEATELES, N. Y., Aug. 15. (AP) — Mrs. Jonathan M. Wainwright, wife of the lieutenant general taken prisoner by the Japanese when Corregidor fell, was told today by the War department that no word has been received yet concerning the whereabouts of her husband.

Nearly distraught by telephone inquiries after circulation of an unverified report that her husband had been liberated by the Russians from a Japanese prison camp in Manchuria, Mrs. Wainwright telephoned the War department for information today.

No Easing Of Tire Shortage Is Seen

AKRON, O., Aug. 15 (AP) — Motorist, you'd better nurse those retreads for a while.

Rubber industry officials expect tire rationing to be abolished by the end of the year, but they don't think you'll be able to step up and buy a complete set of new tires. You may get a tire if you really need it but the supply won't be sufficient to meet demands.

Some Fronts Still Active

MANILA, Thursday, Aug. 16 (AP)—General MacArthur said today Japan has not yet replied to his order advising the date for cessation of hostilities although several Tokyo radio stations have acknowledged receipt of the order by 11 p. m. last night (Manila time).

The MacArthur order:

1. Directed immediate cessation of hostilities and a reply giving the date of cessation.

2. Set down in detail provisions for dispatching representatives to Manila by way of Ie Shima in the Ryukus to be dictated surrender terms.

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

THE Japanese decision to end Pacific-Asiatic hostilities by surrender had failed today to silence all of the guns of war in that vast theater of action.

Many hours after Nippon's emperor had announced the decision to quit these developments were reported:

Japanese suicide planes hit an American position in the Okinawa sector.

American fleet gunners shot down about 16 Nipponese planes as they approached the armada off Japan's coast.

Japanese remnants counterattacked in the northern Philippines.

Russians Drive On

The Russian Army's chief of the general staff, Gen. Alexei Antonov, told his troops that the Japanese surrender was in "general terms" and that the fight would go on until the Nipponese lay down their arms.

Battling continued in eastern Burma.

Meanwhile General MacArthur, supreme Allied commander, was prepared to hand Allied surrender terms to Japanese envoys at Manila Friday (Manila time). Under his instructions the Nipponese will fly to Ie Shima in a plane marked with Green Crosses. An American plane will take them from that island, near Okinawa, to Manila.

American forces in the Okinawa region were incensed and questioned Japan's integrity after two Nipponese suicide planes crashed into Ihya island 12 hours after President Truman had announced Nippon's decision to surrender. Several American soldiers were injured.

Last Two Raids Take Heavy Toll

GUAM, Thursday, Aug. 16 (AP) Admiral Halsey's huge Allied carrier fleet destroyed or damaged 464 Japanese planes in their final two attacks of the war—including 26 shot down in a dogfight with nearly 50 Japanese interceptors over Tokyo area early Wednesday.

The Wednesday morning strike was dispatched before the fleet received cease-firing orders, Admiral Nimitz explained. Its planes probably were attacking their targets at the very time President Truman was announcing Japan's surrender. (6 p. m. Tuesday, central war time; 8 a. m. Wednesday, Tokyo time).

31 Ships Smashed

Nimitz reported 31 enemy ships sunk or damaged off Shimoda, 85 miles southwest of Tokyo, in last Monday's carrier plane sweeps, which also cost Japan a total of 424 planes. Today's communique added 208 destroyed and 78 damaged aground to previously-reported Monday tolls.

American and British airmen were attacking Tokyo area targets in the first of six or seven scheduled missions Wednesday when orders to suspend offensive action reached Halsey. The pilots had shot down 26 of the largest group of enemy planes sighted in many weeks.

Nine more enemy planes were shot down near the fleet during the day.

Nimitz also disclosed a Japanese suicide plane crashed into an American naval auxiliary vessel in Buckner bay, Okinawa, early Monday evening, causing structural damage. Fifteen men were killed, one was missing and 14 wounded.

Even Black Market Couldn't Cut In

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 15 (AP) An excited woman called a newspaper switchboard today and asked if gasoline rationing really was ended.

"Yes," she was told.

"Thank goodness," she exclaimed. "I got so awfully tired of stealing gasoline."

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

NATURALLY enough the first thought those of us with loved ones in the service had, upon learning the glad news Tuesday afternoon, was that they were spared and sooner or later will return to make their homes with us once more. For this we were deeply humble, grateful.

We have talked much today about the return of the service man to his country, to his family, to his job. We are proud of him but we, also, today are thinking of our obligation to the dead. For while it may be a month, three months, a year or longer before Lubbock's streets again will be walked by her war veterans, we are remembering those who will never return. Those who until that last day will rest near a spray-splashed rock on a Pacific isle; who have been given to the clean salt sea or who sleep the long sleep in a cemetery marked with crosses "row on row" or in an unmarked grave near a prison camp. We shall not break the faith with them; they were the flower of our land! we loved them.

Winning a war does not guarantee peace. We will continue to have problems, troubles and uncertainties but these will not be overshadowed by the imminence of death and battle. Things have not been broken up, they have been pulled together. If you can't see this straight now can you take part in building? Utopia is not here today; but we are starting the road back, one step at a time, and this time we must make sure that we do not detour.

IN this great country of America we have created cities and highways, factories and machines that are the marvel of the world. Despite all this, there is want and there are jobless people. We must work at the job of getting everybody a chance to earn a livelihood. We have the talents to do this vigorously, persistently and in the ways of a democratic people.

We can dream but we must work to make those dreams a reality. Where there has been hatred we must sow trust and love; where there has been strife we must sow union; where there has been doubt we must sow faith; where there has been despair we must sow hope; where there has been darkness we must help to bring light; where there has been sadness we must bring joy of a new day.

We need to have a normal consciousness, as one young Marine officer expressed it the other night. Never again must we take our blessings for granted. In the days to come we may miss the glamor and excitement of exciting headlines and radio comment, but we know now that we are building something that will endure, that MUST endure—a new and better world.

The new order is to be Christian and we must say it and think it and act upon it.

Miss Westmoreland And Lt. Wilson Are Married At First Methodist Church

The marriage of Miss Yvonne Nadine Westmoreland, daughter of Mrs. Fay Westmoreland of 2307 Broadway, to Lt. Oran G. Wilson, jr., USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oran K. Wilson of Dumas, former Lubbock residents, was solemnized at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church. Rev. Howard H. Hollowell of Spur read the double ring service.

Fern and palms formed a background for the baskets of gladioli that decorated the candle-lighted altar.

Mrs. Mamie I. Neal was at the organ for the prelude of wedding music, the traditional marches and the accompaniment for Miss Joyce Watson who sang "Always" and "Because."

Grandfather Is Escort

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, W. L. Palmer, wore a wedding dress of white faille and white net, fashioned with a tight faille bodice edged with Venetian lace to form an off the shoulder line against the white net yoke. The full net skirt, starting from under a short flared peplum, fell over a hoop skirt. Her long train made of layers of white net, came from under the peplum and her finger tip veil of white illusion tulle was held in place with a small crown of the illusion studded with seed pearls. She wore white mitts and she carried a white orchid with cascade arrangement of stephanotis.

The bride's attendants were gowned alike in white net frocks fashioned along lines similar to the bridal dress. They carried shower bouquets of red gladioli. Mrs. R. O. Brasfield was matron of honor and Miss Betty Rhea Caldwell was maid of honor.

Lt. H. T. Wilkins, jr., served as best man and ushers were Jimmy Williams, Brady Lowe, John L. Burkholder and Raymond Tapp.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue chiffon dress with white collar and cuffs and elbow length white gloves. Mrs. Wilson, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue crepe dress with fuchsia sequin design and long fuchsia gloves.

Reception At Residence

A reception followed at the bride's home where the couple was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Westmoreland, Mrs. Wilson and feminine members of the bridal party.

The couple went to Colorado Springs for a wedding trip and after Sept. 11 will go to North Carolina where Lt. Wilson reports to the Marine Air station at Cherry Point. For travel the bride chose a beige and brown suit and dark brown accessories.

The bride received her bachelor of science degree from Texas Technological college where she was a member of Sans Souci club.

Lt. Wilson was graduated from the high school department at New Mexico Military institute and attended Texas Tech college where he was a member of Wranglers social club. He is home on leave after completing 52 missions flying a B-25 for the Marine Air corps. He was awarded the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with one battle star and the American theater ribbon with one star.

During the Gold Rush in 1849, people were so anxious to reach California that they not only paid $1,000 for a ticket, but offered to work on the boat without pay.

Support Is Given Braniff Airways

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (U.P.)—Dale Miller, Dallas Chamber of Commerce representative, told the Civil Aeronautics board today that approval of a Braniff airways application for a new Eastern route would benefit Dallas.

Braniff has asked CAB for a route from Dallas to New York via Tulsa, St Louis, Cincinnati, Columbus and Pittsburgh. American Airlines, Colonial Airlines, Chicago & Southern, PCA, United and Transcontinental & Western Air have filed application to connect Cincinnati directly with New York, Eastern Airlines has protested proposal.

Stimulating To Dallas

"The increased competition resulting from adoption of the Braniff application will be stimulating to Dallas," Miller said.

Miller said the proposed Braniff route, if granted, would provide direct service not only to New York but to Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and other Eastern cities. He said these cities are not now adequately served. He said that present service by American Airlines and Braniff to Chicago, for connections to the Northeast, did not provide Dallas and the Southwest with the direct service they require.

Growth Of Dallas Cited

Dr. Arthur A. Smith, economics professor at Southern Methodist university, told the board the wartime growth of Dallas and rapid development of the Southwest justified direct air service with the northeast.

"Few people, even in the Southwest, realize the phenomenal growth this area has made," Smith said. "We can easily provide enough traffic to take care of competitive lines."

Smith said the great industrial growth of Dallas in the past 10 years did not consist merely of wartime industries but represented a permanent expansion. He praised Braniff as "a home airline of which Texas is proud." He said people in Texas are eager to share in the expanded trade with the East that should develop from the growth of southwest industry and added that "Braniff understands our problems."

Andrew Thuss, Dallas city attorney, represented the witnesses for the city.

Carl Giessow, transportation director, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, also urged adoption of the proposed Braniff route. He said that figures on the amount of passengers, freight and mail moved annually to and from Southwest cities served by Braniff showed that line could best serve St. Louis.

Howell W. Jones, secretary of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, was scheduled to present a statement later. It was understood he, too, would urge approval of the Braniff application.

Mayor Woodall Rodgers of Dallas yesterday asked CAB to grant the Braniff route. The airline applicants were scheduled to begin testimony tomorrow, in the third day of the hearing.

TAKES GREAT PLEASURE IN ANNOUNCING THE FORMAL OPENING
of the New Jo Ann
FUR DEPARTMENT

This season, for the first time, the Jo Ann Shop adds a complete fur department to its otherwise complete ready-to-wear selections. Heretofore Jo Ann buyers were unable to locate furs that represented value comparable with the high standard the Jo Ann Shop has set for itself. This season the Office of Price Administration set a ceiling price on furs. This means that this season furs are priced in accordance with the OPA's policy of holding the line against inflation. This also means that the Jo Ann Shop buyers were satisfied with the prices that could be offered Jo Ann customers on luxurious furs for the 1945-1946. From today on, you will find a complete showing of fur coats and scarves at the Jo Ann Shop—furs manufactured by one of America's foremost and most respected furriers—the Clifford Julian Fur Co. of New York City.

As a special opening feature, Clifford Julian has sent to the Jo Ann Shop a collection of 15 especially outstanding furs. These will be on display in the Jo Ann Shop Fur department through Saturday. Whether you are interested in one of these 15 fur show pieces or not, the Jo Ann Shop believes that every woman will get a thrill out of looking at them. You are all cordially invited to stop by the Jo Ann Shop for a view of these luxuriant, especially created fur garments without any obligation whatsoever. Here is what the 15 feature garments will consist of:

Ambitious And Greedy Japan Must Retire To Her Four Home Islands

By RAYMOND M. BAXTER
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—Ambitious and greedy Japan planned to conquer and rule more than a quarter of the earth's land surface in which a billion people live.

That was the "Greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere" — a good dream while it lasted.

Now she'll have to be content with the four home islands: Honshu, the largest, Kyushu, Shikoku and Hokkaido (plus such smaller ones as we let her keep). The four cover a mere 148,854 square miles of territory and have an estimated population of slightly more than 70,000,000. And that's right back where Japan started, just 50 years ago.

Planned By Trio

Three men, backed by the will of their people, planned it that way. They were the late President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, former prime minister of Great Britain, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

They met in Cairo late in 1943 to map Japan's fate in war and the eventual peace. On Dec. 1, 1943, they announced that "Japan shall be stripped of all the islands in the Pacific which she has seized or occupied since the beginning of the first World war in 1914, and that all the territories Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria, Formosa, and the Pescadores, shall be returned to the republic of China."

Complete independence also was pledged for Korea, which has 85,246 square miles and a population of 22,000,000. Only three per cent of whom are Japanese.

Stalin Has Say Now

Now a fourth man, Generalissimo Josef Stalin, will have something to say at the peace table. Russia has a couple of scores to settle—the sneak attack on Port Arthur in 1904 and loss of the southern half of Sakhalin island in 1905.

Russia might well demand the Kuriles, the chain of 31 islands stretching northeastward in the north Pacific all the way to Paramushiro, for defensive purposes. The Kuriles have a total area of 6,068 square miles and a population of roughly 15,000. Russia may put strong claims on some of Manchuria too.

Would Have Covered Much

Japan's co-prosperity dream would have included the Asia mainland from Iran in the south to the Urals in the north. This would have included massive China with its 400,000,000 population, vast Tibet, Mongolia, Manchukuo, Siberia, fabulous India, British Malaya, Thailand (Siam), Burma, French Indo-China, Afghanistan and Iran. Each of these areas, excepting British Malaya, is larger than the four Japanese home islands.

Too, they had their eyes on a coastal strip of 700,000 square miles of Australia with an estimated population of 300,000.

Also marked—and grabbed for a time—were the 114,400 square miles of the Philippines with a population of 16,500,000. Too, the expansive Netherlands Indies covering 735,270 square miles and a population of 70,000,000 were snared for a time.

Other Areas Included

Other areas in the Japanese scheme were numerous southwest Pacific islands, including New Guinea, Borneo, New Caldonia, and British, French and United States Oceania.

Molded into one empire, Japan reckoned on acquiring 16,250,595 square miles of real estate with an estimated population of 1,045,200,000.

Japan made her first bid for expansion 353 years ago, in 1592 when her warriors invaded Korea for the first time. Only 50 years before—and 50 years after America had been discovered—a wrecked Portuguese ship gave the Japanese their first recorded contact with the western world.

Sealed Off In 1637

In 1637 the mysterious Nipponese sealed themselves off from the entire world. This lasted until 1852 when the American Commodore Matthew C. Perry appeared at Yedo (Tokyo) with four warships and a Russian ship sailed into Yokahama harbor. They separately urged Japan to open her ports to the rest of the world.

Perry returned the next year with a large force and in 1854 obtained a treaty opening Yokahama, Nagasaki and Hakodate immediately and Yedo, Osaka, Niigate and Kobe in the near future.

"Renovation" Period Followed

In the late 1860's the Mikado, aided by the Choshu and Satsuma clans, deposed the Shoguns—military governors who had held sway since around 1100—and made himself temporal and spiritual head of the nation. He also opened postal, telegraph and mint systems, opened the first railway between Tokyo and Yokahama, Europenaized her army and navy, and adopted national education. This was the period of the great Ishin or "renovation."

On the social side, feudal castles were abolished and the common people were allowed to use their own family names instead of their masters'. Warriors were encouraged to cut off their topknots of long hair and stop wearing swords on peaceful strolls in the streets.

Only Temporary Setback

In 1885 the Japanese lost a clash with the Chinese in Korea. But this was only a temporary setback.

In 1894, Japan drove the Chinese out of Korea, whipped the Chinese fleet, captured Port Arthur at the southern tip of Liaotung (Kwantung) peninsula, in southern Manchuria, and Formosa. France and Germany backed Russia in portesting seizure of Liaotung; so Japan backed down and took Formosa and the Pescadores instead.

Tropical Formosa was an important military base in this war and was bombed repeatedly but was by-passed in the northern advance of American forces. Formosa, nearly twice as large as New Jersey, has a population of approximately 3,000,000, about five per cent of them being Japanese. An important naval base was established at Mako island in the Pescadores, between Formosa and the China mainland.

China also agreed to consider Korea an independent state.

Ten years later Japan waged the 18-month Russo-Japanese war to overcome Russian objection to seizure of the Liaotung peninsula. The 1905 treaty signed at Portsmouth, N. H., recognized Japanese authority over Korea and the Kwantung area, which had been leased by Russia, and the ports of Dairen and Port Arthur, which had been extensively used by the Russians when more northern ports were frozen over. For good measure, the Japanese took the southern half of Sakhalin island. It is no larger than Vermont and Connecticut together, but has been an important source of coal, wood and fish.

In 1910 Japan annexed Korea after a resident-general had been assassinated. They renamed it Chosen.

Grabbed Germany Territory

Japan's next expansion was released in World war 1 and by an Anglo-Japanese treaty by which England and Japan were allied to protect each other's Far Eastern interests. Japan also declared war against Germany and grabbed all German-controlled territory in the far east north of the equator. This included the Marshall, Marianas and Caroline groups. By the Versailles treaty these were left under mandate to Japan, but Japan violated the mandate and built secret bases there. The Pearl Harbor attack was launched from these islands.

For the next dozen years the Japanese clashed periodically with the Chinese and occasionally with the Russians.

Then in 1931 the Japanese army began the conquest of Manchuria. The treaty of Tangku in 1933 confirmed the Japanese economic conquest of 500,000 square miles of China. They quit the League of Nations the same year, too, because the Lytton commission condemned her aggression in China.

China felt the aggression in earnest in 1937 when Japan opened her undeclared war that almost brought China into the greater Japan.

For months after Pearl Harbor Japan's co-prosperity drive seemed bent on success.

But that was before Allied power really got going in the Pacific.

Juveniles Face Burglary Counts

A felony charge and a juvenile petition probably will be filed here today as result of the admissions of two Terry county youths, one 17 and the other 13, that they broke and entered seven Lubbock county rural residences since Sunday.

Dep. Sheriff Earl Horton and Ranger Raymond Waters announced late Wednesday they had recovered most of the property listed by householders as taken, but that the boys might accompany them on another inspection of bar ditches and clumps of grass and weeds here and there over the county, in search of other property.

Waters arrested the well described youths about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning when en route to his office They were strolling on a downtown street dressed completely in stolen clothing, he said.

Loot Recovered

The youths told the officers they would point out where they had hidden loot.

Recovered up to Wednesday afternoon were two watches, shirts, jackets, trousers, three billfolds, one of which contained $2 of the $5 it formerly had contained, a hat and other property.

The R. H. Wilke residence, that of Wilke's father and one of a Mexican farm hand had been ransacked in the Woodrow community. Mrs. J. E. Hancock, Mrs. Lonnie Teal and a family named Bartley, all living north of Lubbock and near Liberty school, had reported burglaries Tuesday morning. The Misses Gertrude and Hortense Wayland, who live seven and one half miles north of College Ave., said their place had been burglarized.

The officers, who were assigned at various stages of their investigations by the state highway patrol, city police and by the liquor control board office, said a city burglary may be cleared before the questioning is over.

The older boy, the younger said, had forged approximately $100 in checks "and has almost worked out the amount for the man whose name he signed." The two live approximately 15 miles south of Brownfield.

U. S. Spends Over 300 Billion During Fight On Japanazis

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP) — The United States government spent over $300,000,000,000 directly on the war before the Japanese surrender came.

This total will rise much higher before the last soldier is discharged and the last contract paid off.

The $300,000,000,000 went for direct war costs between July 1, 1940, when the defense program began, and the middle of this week.

By contrast, the first World war cost $25,000,000,000 to the middle of 1921.

Treasury figures show how much was spent in each fiscal year, as follows:

1941—$ 6,655,000,000.
1942—$28,266,000,000.
1943—$76,298,000,000.
1944—$89,722,000,000.
1945—$89,501,000,000.

Fiscal year so far—about $10,000,000,000.

Cleanup Crews Busy After Celebration

The continuing work of city clean-up crews will be directed again today toward removing vestiges of torn paper scattered by celebrants who awakened with an unusual carelessness to the war's abrupt ending.

A holiday was given to garbage and trash collectors in the residential section, and it may require another day for restoration of schedule, said City Manager Marlin R. Smith, jr.

Lacking confetti and the ticker tape, which New Yorkers wasted so prodigiously in their celebrations, local celebrants Tuesday night tore up building paper, toilet paper, wrapping paper and old magazines in giving vent to their jubilation over the return of peace.

Business To Resume After V-J Jubilee

Business as usual—a term almost lost sight of in recent years—will make a wobbly attempt to come back this morning, when establishments that closed Wednesday in celebration of the war's ending reopene their doors and scrutinize possibilities of giving public service that has been denied in face even of the best efforts of the far-sighted.

News agency dispatches from Washington revealed that the White House had declared Wednesday and today as legal holidays. The President has no authority to enforce a national holiday.

Paper Suggests That Gen. Wainwright Be On Hand For Surrender

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 15. (AP)—The San Antonio Express wil suggest editorially in tomorrow morning's edition that Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, who became a prisoner of the Japanese with the fall of Bataan, stand beside Gen. Douglas MacArthur when the Japanese surrender document is signed.

There Was No Debate About Naming Baby

FORT WORTH, Aug. 15. (U.P.)—The first baby born in Fort Worth after the Presidential announcement of the end of the war with Japan was the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Childress.

The baby was born at 6:20 p. m. cwt, at Harris Memorial hospital.

There was no debate about naming the baby.

Mrs. Childress said:

"The only thing he could be named is 'V-J'."

President Calls His Mother About Peace

GRANDVIEW, Mo., Aug. 14. (AP)—Mrs. Martha Truman, 92-year-old mother of the President, didn't have long to wait to get official word of Japan's surrender.

Just a half hour after the President had announced the capitulation in Washington, he called his mother to tell her personally of the victory.

"I'm glad Harry decided to end the war," Mrs. Truman said after she had turned from the phone.

The Mohammedans were the first recorded drinkers of coffee.

Japan's Surrender Means End Of Suffering For U. S. Prisoners

By FRANK W. HEWLETT
United Press War Correspondent

Japan's surrender will end the prison suffering of thousands of American soldiers, sailors and marines headed by Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright.

The suggestion has been made by some observers that the Japanese could evidence their good faith in surrender negotiations by producing Gen. Wainwright and returning him to the Americans forthwith.

Besides this great and beloved American general, who passed into enemy hands with the surrender in the Philippines, the Japanese should have about 15,000 Americans in their prisoner of war camps, but only time will tell how many survived more than three years of mistreatment.

Took Prisoners In 1942

The Japanese took the great majority of their American prisoners in th Philippins early in 1942. They also captured Americans on Wake and Guam, and a Texas National guard regiment which surrendered in Java.

(More than 200 of these Guardsmen were from West Texas, approximately from the South Plains area.)

Latest reports from Japan indicated that Gen. Wainwright was in Manchuria with other high-ranking American and British officers. For more than a year he was on Formosa but was moved from there in the interests of "safety," according to the Japanese.

Wainwright, as commander of corps No. 1 on Bataan and later as Gen. MacArthur's successor to command of the Philippines, became one of America's favorite generals.

Ordered Correspondent Out

This correspondent lived for months at Gen. Wainwright's jungle headquarters on Bataan. It was on Wainwright's orders that I flew from Corregidor to Mindanao island after the fall of Bataan.

On more than one occasion, Wainwright told me his ambition was to command the American army of occupation in Japan. He believed he could treat the Japanese firmly but fairly and erase the military influence from their lives.

"I am just a field soldier and don't ever expect to be a big shot like Gen. MacArthur," Wainwright said. "But I do think I could handle the army of occupation. I did that work after the last war in Germany. After a few years in Japan, I want to retire and settle down with Mrs. Wainwright and my horses."

Like Father To Aides

Those who served with Gen. Wainwright have fond recollections of his personality. He was like a father to his aides, Lt. Col. John Pugh, Maj. Tom Dolley and his orderly, Sgt. Carroll. One day when a sniper's bullet nearly hit Carroll, the general warned him: "If you don't learn to duck faster, you will find yourself in the hospital instead of with me in Tokyo."

I have never written about Wainwright's "ambition" because it might have resulted in Japanese reprisals. But even during the height of the Bataan campaign the general was quietly "picking his aides" and adding Japanese words to his vocabulary.

Transferred To Manchuria

The Japanese announced on Feb. 9 last that Gen. Wainwright and 176 other American Army and Navy personnel had been transferred from Formosa to Makden, Manchuria. With Wainwright were five major generals and 12 brigadier generals.

The Japanese radio reported in June, 1942, that 25,000 American soldiers, sailors and Marines had ben captured. In addition, the enemy claimed 64,000 British troops captured (including Australians and Canadians) and 24,000 Dutch.

Approximately 1,200 American military prisoners were liberated by Gen. MacArthur's forces in the Philippines last January and February. The remainder of the men of Bataan and Corregidor had died in prison or been shipped to Formosa, Manchuria or Japan proper.

Three Prison Ships Sunk

No fewer than three Japanese ships carrying American prisoners are known to have been sunk by American planes or submarines. The death toll was heavy but complete casualty lists have not yet been received. The Japanese radio has reported in addition that some American prisoners have been killed in recent B-29 raids on the Japanese main islands.

The greatest number of American deaths, however, are believed to have resulted from starvation, sickness and exposure. Of more than 10,000 American prisoners whom the Japanese shipped out of the Philippines last year, all were undernourished and poorly clothed. Military sources feared that the death toll among American prisoners was heavy last winter, since the men were taken from the tropics and exposed to the severe winter of Manchuria and Japan. They pointed out that Americans in the Philippines were, being forced to subsist on as little as 500 calories a day, which means death in a cold climate.

Majority Taken On Japan

Japan took most of its American prisoners with the fall of Bataan on April 9, 1942. The surrender of Corregidor came on May 6 to be followed by that of the American garrison in the southern Philippines.

The other prisoners represented 1,000 sailors and marines and 1,200 Navy civilian workers who surrendered on Wake and Guam; 11 Marines and sailors who were taken to Pieping and Tientsin at the outbreak of the war and hundreds of soldiers and sailors who surrendered on Java or were survivors of the heavy cruiser USS Houston and other American warships sunk in the Java sea battle.

William MacDougal, jr., United Press correspondent who was in Shanghai when the war started and later escaped to Free China, was captured with the capitulation of the Dutch forces in Java. A Red Cross message received by his mother in Salt Lake City a year ago said he was in a civilian internment camp on Sumatra.

The number of Americans under 25 years of age who are drowned each year is the equivalent of the normal complement of 30 U. S. Navy destroyers.

Five Injured When Auto Overturns

When an automobile overturned early Wednesday morning near Southland, five Post boys and girls were slightly injured.

They were listed by state highway patrol investigators as: Billy Wayne Garry, 16; Doyle Baxter, 16; Thelma Baxter, 17; Duder Huff, 15, and Leroy Holley, 17, the driver.

The car, a heavy coupe, is owned by R. H. Sappington of Post, officials said.

The victims were given emergency examination at Mercy hospital in Slaton, then Holley was taken to Lubbock General hospital for further examination before his release.

Widow Of Former Pastor Here Dies

Death Sunday night of Mrs. Jennie Wright Ferguson, 87, at her Amarillo residence has been announced here.

She was widow of the late Rev. C. N. N. Ferguson, who died in 1924 while serving as pastor of the First Methodist Church of Lubbock.

She is survived by two sons, Howard Ferguson of Amarillo and Charles W. Ferguson of Chappauqua, N. Y., one of the senior editors of The Reader's Digest.

Wrong Man Given Broadcast Credit

It was Phillip Nichols—not B. F. Phillips—who broadcast his intention Tuesday night to get out of the Army as soon as requirements can be met and get back to Lubbock.

Avalanche-Journal publications, advised by callers who listened to ABC broadcast from Cleveland, had listed the name erroneously, friends who recognized his voice said.

Mrs. J. A. Peel, of 2203 Twenty-second, and Mrs. Bert Dean, of 3301 Twenty-second, were among those recognizing Phillip's voice. The soldier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Nichols, have sold their home at 2207 Twenty-second, and were moving to Roswell, N. M., Tuesday at the time of the broadcast. Nichols has been appointed a New Mexico regional distributor for a tire and tube repair company and will make his headquarters in Roswell.

Another former Lubbock resident was also heard on a broadcast, from California. She was Mrs. V. H. Venable, the mother of Murray and L. D. Venable, former Westerner football players.

Mr. Drury was survived by his wife, 10 sons, one daughter, four brothers and eight sisters.

May Take Year Or More To Clear Out Japs On Scattered Islands

By RALPH HEINZEN
United Press War Analyst

The formal signature of Japanese capitulation will end the war, officially. But with a half million Japanese soldiers, deserters and die-hard civilians scattered and hidden on more than 600 islands stretching from the Equator to the Arctic, it may take a year or more to corral the last enemy forces and declare the Pacific completely at peace.

Immediately affected by the surrender act will be the five armies comprising the Japan defense army, responsible for the defense of the home islands, Formosa and Korea; the Kwantung army now engaged with the Russians in Manchuria, and the China expeditionary army.

Won't Cease Fighting

Unlikely to be reached immediately is the vast Southern army group which is spread over the Pacific islands, over Indo-China, Burma, Thailand, Malaya and the Dutch East Indies.

There is no reason to believe that all these Japanese forces will cease fighting immediately. The French are fearful of complications in Indo-China which has been lost to French control since 1940. There are few French troops left there. Japanese troops will remain unchallenged for a time by any French or Allied force in that richest colony of the French union.

Mission En Route To Timor

A Portuguese military mission is en route to the Japanese occupied Portuguese island of Timor. But there is no indication whether the Japanese will give up their arms to the Portuguese.

The anticipated center of greatest resistance is Thailand. The Japanese hold a strong position there and the portion of the Southern army, under Field Marshal Count Hisaichi Terauchi, which has escaped the British encirclement operation in Burma is retreating into Thailand.

It is the same story in Malaya and the Dutch East Indies where the Japanese find themselves in a land of plenty.

The disarming of the main Japanese army in China can be accomplished by Chinese forces.

The quickest way to insure safe occupation will be for the British and American fleets to occupy the major ports—Singapore, Saigon, Cam-Rahn Bay, Hong-Kong, Shanghai. There are very few Japanese naval units left in any of these ports to disarm, but merchant shipping must be interned.

The French have part of their fleet actively engaged in the Pacific and those units may carry the Tricolor back into Indo-China swiftly to protect the rich French investments there.

Returning Servicemen Legalized To Drive

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (U.P.) — More than 100 new driver's licenses are being issued daily to returning servicemen, D. O. Wilkerson, chief examiner for the State Highway patrol at Fair park, reported today.

"This is principally due to war veterans whose licenses expired while they were in service," Wilkerson explained.

Under a new law applying to servicemen, a driver's license which expired while a man was in service may be renewed without examination if the veteran presents his honorable discharge when applying for the new license within six months of his withdrawal.

The human ear, it is estimated, can distinguish 500,000 different tones.

Texan Leads Final Raid Against Japs

GUAM, Aug. 15. (AP)—Col. Carl R. Storrie of Denton, Tex., commanding the 314th wing, led his planes against Kumakaya early today as B-29s struck in their final mission against Japan before President Truman announced Japan had accepted surrender.

The U. S. Army Strategic Air forces announced that the final Superfortress raid on Japan cost four escorting fighters, but not a single B-29.

In the final raid 363 of the Superfortresses bombed the cities of Kumagaya and Isezaki and an oil refinery at Akita, and mined Japanese waters. The planes were returning to their bases when President Truman made his announcement.

The attacks were accomplished by radar through an undercast. Large fires were observed and bombing results were declared good. This was the first mention of radar in an official Army press release.

Ford's Dallas Plant To Begin Production

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (U.P.) — Ford Motor company's first 1946 model to be completed in Dallas will roll from the assembly lines Monday, Asst. Manager L. T. Verner, announced today.

"We will be making lots of automobiles right here in Dallas in a few weeks," Verner said. "I can't say just what quota will be allowed Dallas, but we feel the plant will be able to aid materially in reemployment after demobilization of the armed forces gets underway."

Officials Clarify Date Of Reunion

MATADOR, Aug. 15. (Special) —Twenty-third annual reunion of Dickens-Motley counties Old Settler's association will be held at Roaring Springs, Aug. 23 and 24, C. C. Haile of Afton, president of the pioneer organization, announced.

Through a misunderstanding, other officials of the association erroneously announced the dates last week as being Aug. 30-31. The standing dates, Haile explained, are the fourth Thursday and Friday in August.

Parade, Dances Slated

A parade at 10 a. m. Thursday will open the meeting and be followed by memorial services for pioneers of the two counties who have died the last year. A similar service will be held at 2 o'clock p. m., with Post Commander Vernon Doss of Fleming Post of the American Legion making the address.

Arrangements have been made for food stands on the grounds, including a chuck-wagon, to serve the crowd at minimum cost, Haile said.

Entertainment wil include a rodeo, carnival concessions and dancing. Dances are scheduled for the nights of Aug. 22-23-24 and during the afternoons of Aug. 30 and 31. a pre-reunion dance will also be held the night of Aug. 17, to raise money to be used in defraying expenses of the organization, Haile said.

Hope For Just Peace Expressed By Pope

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 15. (U.P.)—Pope Pius XII expressed the hope today that, with the end of the war "a real and just peace will finally shine upon the world."

The Pope referred indirectly to Japan's surrender at the conclusion of a 12-minute address to 6,000 working women at the Vatican.

"Now we hope that after the cessation of monstrous killing and massacre that hatred will cease together with ambition for domination and oppression of the weak," he said.

He said it was fortunate that the national church holiday of Assumption of the Virgin coincided with the end of hostilities throughout the world, "especially for you women who have suffered so many sorrows as mothers, wives, sisters and financees."

He emphasized the church's recognition of the right of women to receive equal pay with men for equal work.

AAF Softball Champions Open Tournament Today

The opening guns in what is expected to be one of the hottest softball tournaments in the city's history will be fired at 3 o'clock this afternoon when eight championship service teams from Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and New Mexico tangle at Hubber Park in the first of a two-day event which will be climaxed with the crowning of a champion Friday night.

Taking the spotlight for the next two days the affair, the Northern Division AAF CTFC playoff to name a representative for the command-wide playoffs at San Antonio later this month, is expected to draw some of the largest crowds of the season. Two games are scheduled for this afternoon, two more tonight, two more Friday afternoon and the finals that night.

Opening Game At 3 O'Clock

Lubbock Army Air Field is playing host for the tournament, the opening blast in the AAF's big program of athletics which will continue through the rest of the year and into 1946 to name champions in 12 major sports. Lubbock as headquarters for the Northern Division has become the sports center for this four-state area and as a result is playing host for the opening event which will see some of the topnotch teams and individual sports stars of the AAF converge on the city in the next few months.

Admission for the tournament is 30 cents a person for each two game series.

Adequate Stands Have Been Built

The opening game at 3 o'clock this afternoon finds Pampa AAF playing Childress AAF, two of the toughest teams in the tournament. Pampa is one of the heavy favorites with 12 wins and only two losses while Childress has a record of six wins and only one loss for the season.

Second game on the menu at 5 o'clock finds Carlbad AAF, N. M., tangling with Enid AAF's Billy Mitchells, another strong club. Enid has won eight, lost two while Carlsbad as the "darkhorse" of the tournament has an undefeated season.

Night Games At 7:30

The night program gets under way at 7:30 o'clock with Frederick AAF and Liberal AAF meeting. Frederick is another unknown but promises strong competition for Liberal AAF's Big Bombers, one of the all enlisted men's teams in the tournament.

In the final and climaxing contest on tonight's program, Lubbock Army Air Field's hard hitting Fliers tangle with Perrin Field in what may turn out to be the feature game of the opening day's card. LAAF has bolstered its lineup and is now ready to make a strong bid for the title. Little is known of the Perrin Field club except that it has one of the better records in the Northern Division.

Friday's schedule gets under way at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 o'clock that night with the championship contest scheduled for 9 o'clock Friday night.

Friday's schedule — 2 o'clock, Winner of the Pampa AAF-Childress AAF game vs. winner of the Carlsbad AAF-Enid AAF game; 4 o'clock, Winner of the Frederick AAF-Perrin Field game; 7 o'clock, Third Place—Losers game No. 5 vs. Losers Game No. 6; and 9 o'clock, Finals—Winners game No. 5 vs. Winners game No. 6.

Play will be single round "sudden death" basis with only one setback putting a team out of the championship running.

Cubs Slaughter Dodgers, 20-6

BROOKLYN, Aug. 15 (AP) — Bouncing back from a defeat at the hands of the tailend Phillies last night, the first place Chicago Cubs slaughtered the Dodgers today, 20 to 6, in the opening game of a series that may decide Brooklyn's pennant hopes.

For three innings the Brooks stayed within hailing distance at 7 to 4, but eight Cub runs in the fourth inning broke up the game and gave Hank Borowy his third triumph since joining the Bruins from the New York Yankees.

A crowd of 25,110 (18,891 paid) saw eleven Cubs come to bat in the big fourth.

Gillespie, with two homers and a single in three times at bat, sparked the Bruins by driving in six runs.

Sports Expected To Enter Airplane Age

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (AP)—Ending of the second world war indicates today the coming of the airplane age in sports.

In much the same manner that organized sports expanded after previous wars, the surrender of Japan is expected to start an era of unprecedented prosperity in the athletic world.

With the means to transport teams across continents and oceans in a matter of hours, plus the goodwill tactics of our American soldiers in all parts of the globe, international meetings in all sports may become commonplace.

A straw in the wind was the recent announcement that the majority of the major league baseball teams had agreed to use airplanes after the war, a development that may lead to drastic revision of the present big league setup.

Boxing and horse racing already are booming, but even greater heights seem ahead. Mike Jacobs, top fight promoter, plans to promote international shows in most of the world's leading cities.

Transportation of race horses in airplanes, already done as an experiment, would make the top races of the turf truly international events.

History shows that sports, especially baseball, boomed soon after Lee surrendered in the spring of 1865. The Washington Nationals became the first team to cross the Allegheny mountains on a tour.

The present American League came into existence after the Spanish-American war in 1898.

Baseball Speeds Up Post War Planning

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP)—Baseball got away to a running start today on its post-war planning by making room for returning veterans in the World Series and other post-season play.

But before officials opened their two-day major-minor league meeting, Ernest Stewart, 35, youngest member of the American League umpiring staff, disclosed that he had been "fired" by Will Harridge, league president, as a result of a squabble over salaries.

The action on the war veterans, in the form of recommendation, must be approved by the leagues, and will apply to the little world series and Shanghnessy playoffs in minor leagues as well as the World Series.

If a player comes back any time in September he can play in the series, and no limit was placed on the number of veterans each club may sign after Aug. 31, the normal deadline for establishing eligibility for such games.

The question of holding the World Series was not discussed in two lengthy sessions, but officials said they were "prooceeding on the assumption that it's going to be played."

Baseball reiterated its determination to also see that returning veterans enjoy the same status they previously held, plus any advantages they would have gained, had they not gone into service.

SOONERS BEAT COKES

AUSTIN, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Altus, Okla., Beavers tonight eliminated the Albuquerque, N. M., Cokes from the Region Six American Legion junior baseball playoff by taking a 6-1 game.

Minnesota and Ohio State have never beaten Notre Dame in football.

Optimist Nine Ekes Out Win Over Lions

Jerry Golden's triple, following Fullerton's single in the seventh inning broke up a pitching duel between Jackie Cook of the Optimists and Jack Martyn of the Lions club, and gave the Optimists a 4-3 victory Wednesday afternoon at the Lubbock Boys club diamond.

The two pitchers breezed along in a scoreless deadlock for four innings, but both sides began to score in the fifth. The Lions pushed over the first run, then the Optimists came back to score three times. The Lions tied the score in the seventh's top half.

Zones Of Allied Occupation Set

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (AP)—The United States, Britain, Russia and France today announced the lines along which they are carving up Germany for occupation purposes.

The portions will be divided roughly one to France and two parts each for the other three major allies.

French hopes of administering most of the Rhineland and part of the Ruhr were ended, for the immediate future, although France, the United States and Britain will review the assignment of areas among themselves later in the occupation.

France And U. S.

For the present France will administer a figure-eight-shaped area in Germany's southwestern corner, embracing coal-rich Saar; the southern half of the Rhineland; the Bavaria Paltinate; Hohenzollern, and slices of Hesse, Baden and Wurttemberg.

The American zone, bordering the French area on the east, includes all or most of the provinces of Bavaria, Wurttemberg, Hesse and Hesse-Nassau.

Britain And Russia

British forces will hold northwestern Germany, including the industrial Ruhr. Provinces included are Schleswig-Holstein, Hanover, Hamburg, Bremen, Oldenburg, Schumberg-Lippe, Brunswick, Lippe, Westphalia and the northern part of the Rhine.

Russia's zone borders the British area on the east and the American section of the southwest. It embraces Mecklenburg, Saxony, Thuringa, and a section of Brandenburg.

Berlin falls within the Russian zone, but will continue to be administered, and occupied jointly by the four powers.

Balloon Bombs

culated that a balloon had been spotted, a balloon had fallen nearby, and that north winds were bringing balloons towards Dallas. Newspaper and news service telephones rang constantly.

Later, Denison newsmen reported a balloon falling near Lake Texoma, and said farmers and a doctor had said they had seen it fall and explode.

Army officers were flown to Brownwood and a military guard was thrown around the area in which the bombs fell. Citizens were sworn to secrecy. Residents of Brownwood reported seeing several other Jap balloons, some of them passing over Camp Bowie at high altitudes.

The balloon which fell in Erath was intact and taken to Washington for study.

Most Frequent On Coast

The ballons landed most frequently in the west coast regions, but probably far more came down at sea than ever reached the continent. Many still are being recovered in isolated areas, where unexploded bombs remain a menace.

Investigation showed they were 33-foot, hydrogen-filled bags made of five layers of paraffined rice paper; that they travelled at around 30,000 feet with prevailing Pacific winds, coming from Japan in three and a half to four and a half days, at 80 to 120 miles an hour. Each carried five bombs, four incendiaries, and a 33-pound fragmentation type anti-personnel bomb.

The numbers arriving reached a peak last March and dropped to a dribble the last two months. Authorities attributed this to the fact summer winds are unfavorable for sending gasbags from Japan.

Army and Navy set up joint operations centers in the Army's western defense command from which planes were sent to shoot down the balloons. They destroyed comparatively few. Cooperation of state and local authorities was enlisted. "Recovery teams" pursued and disposed of the balloons.

Jap Arrogance

a conference with Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines. Bradley was sworn in today as administrator of veterans affairs, succeeding Hines.

In midafternoon, the chief executive received ambassadors of Allied powers in the historic White House east room.

Jewish Greetings

In a new year's greeting to Jewish citizens, Mr. Truman declared thatall faiths unite in thanks to God for victory over forces of evil which "would have destroyed completely all freedom of religion."

It was disclosed today that the chief executive found time in all the bustle and confusion attendant on surrender to telephone Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in New York last night.

"The President," explained Secretary Charles G. Ross, "wanted to express the wish that the late President could have been here."

Early Ration Release On Footwear Expected

DALLAS, Aug. 15. (AP) — Leather and rubber footwear may be released from ration lists "as early as three weeks from now" W. A. Orth, regional Office of Price administration head, predicted today.

The release of tires probably will follow shoes, Orth said. He added a major survey would have to be made by supply agencies controlling production of various rationed items before dates for removing ration points can be determined.

Rent control probably will be continued for some time in the Dallas area, he added.

SCHOOL LUNCH PROGRAM

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (AP)—The U. S. Department of Agriculture will spend between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000 this year for a school lunch program in the Southwest, Miss Gaynell Hawkins, regional school lunch program representative for the department, said today.

Far-Reaching British Program Presented

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Britain's new labor government, through King George VI, today presented to Parliament a far-reaching program calling for state ownership of the Bank of England and the coal-mining industry, and for early "full self-government" for India.

With the whole kingdom tumultously celebrating victory, Parliament met solemnly to place a strong Labor government in power for the first time and to institute an administration which promised sweeping reforms and a new order for the common man.

King George rode in regal pomp from Buckingham Palace past cheering tens of thousands of his subjects, and then from a glittering throne in the House of Lords read the speech, prepared by Prime Minister Clement Attlee, outlining Labor's immediate legislative objectives.

Surrender Plans

pronouncement that "offensive action in all sectors has been halted."

Other Japanese planes—totaling about 16—were shot down by U. S. Third Fleet gunners as they approached the armada 100 miles off the Nippon coast. One Japanese bomber was bagged 14 minutes after victory banners had been run up. The others were shot down later, hours after the official surrender announcement had been made.

Admiral Halsey said "it looks like the war is over but if any enemy planes appear shoot them down, in a friendly fashion." The chief of the Third Fleet placed it on a "watchful waiting" status after cease fire orders had been given.

The Nippon agency Domei acknowledged some post-surrender attacks and added imperial headquarters was trying to prevent any recurrences.

Carrier Plane Blow

Carrier planes of the Third Fleet had their last pre-surrended fling at the Japanese homeland Wednesday morning, Tokyo time. They shot down a half dozen Japanese planes in furious dog fights over Honshu.

An American soldier was killed in the mountains of the northern Philippines when Japanese remnants counterattacked after Tokyo's surrender decision was announced.

These events within Japan were reported by radio Tokyo after Nippon acceptance of Allied surrender terms:

The Suzuki cabinet fell.

General Korechika Anami, war minister, killed himself to "atone for his failure in accomplishing his duties as his majesty's minister."

Press Plays Up Story

Tokyo newspapers "banner-lined the end of the war" and there were "no disorders" in the city.

Kusuo Oya, chief of the overseas bureau of the Japan Broadcasting corporation, took to the air to say "we have lost, but this is temporary." Japan's mistake, he said, was lack of material strength, necessary scientific knowledge and equipment and, he added, "this mistake we must amend."

Sundry Japanese leaders called on the people to obey the imperial command, cease hostilities, and devote themselves to post-war endeavors.

Prior to its fall the cabinet issued a proclamation naming the atomic bomb and Russia's war declaration as prime reasons for the surrender decision.

Resistance Continues

Moscow radio quoted General Antonov as saying Japanese armed forces continued to resist. He declared Soviet armies in the Far East "will continue their offensive operations."

A Russian communique said the Red Trans-Baikal Army, punching through inner Mongolia's Chahar province, was only 150 miles northwest of Peiping. Other Soviet forces in Manchuria gained 20 miles on the road to Harbin.

Unofficial reports reaching Chungking indicated that Chinese Communist forces were moving in an attempt to take control of such key cities of north China as Peiping, Tientsin and Tsingtao. Unconfirmed reports said underground forces had seized control of Shanghai and were prepared to hold the city panding arrival of Chinese national troops by air.

Chinese quarters hoped that Shanghai and Nanking would be taken over by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's troops.

Familiar Refrain

appears to be concerned about this. His orders to the Japanese have been worded mildly, and he used such expressions as "it is desired" that the Japanese do so and so rather than telling them outright to do it, period. Such orders mean the same to us and to the Japanese who have to carry them out, but are less likely to provoke the unstable military who now may be seething with indecision as to whether to submit, commit hara kiri, or keep on fighting.

Save Core of Tradition

Meanwhile, it appears a fact that the Japanese have, by preserving their emperor, preserved the core of their tradition, and that tradition may be strengthened with every high Japanese militarist who follows the example of War Minister Anami and kills himself.

This looks formidable now and will require the most adroit and effective handling if it is not to be turned against us.

Occupation and disarmament may teach the Japanese the falseness of their beliefs. They will regard it as unjust, certainly at first.

After World war I the Germans didn't learn. They didn't want to.

The Japanese don't want to either.

Wage Restrictions To Be Maintained

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (U.P.) — Reconversion direction John W. Snyder said today that wartime wage controls would be retained to prevent price inflation.

"Wherever price ceilings will not be endangered," he said, "collective bargaining will be restored."

He emphasized, however, that strikes "must be held to a minimum" in the postwar economy, and that wages must be controlled wherever increases "would cause inflationary prices."

Meanwhile, President Truman was expected to issue directions shortly clarifying the War Labor board's authority over wages and labor disputes.

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach wants the various agencies now dealing with labor to be consolidated within his department.

to avoid open civil conflict.

The spokesman asserted that the central government intended to re-establish its authority as soon as possible in all important cities of China, but said no details could yet be given as they concerned "military plans."

He added also that the communists "must obey" the order from Chiang not to take any "independent action" against the Japanese forces in China.

Message To Commander

The Chungking radio said that Chiang has sent a message to Gen. Yosuji Okamura, commander of Japanese forces in China, directing him to cease hostilities immediately and await military instructions from Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, Chinese military chief of staff.

Chiang said Japanese troops would be permitted temporarily to retain their arms and equipment for maintenance of public order. Fear has been expressed in Chungking that the Japanese might turn their arms over to the Communists.

Chiang issued an order to Communist General Chu Teh on Aug. 12 forbidding his forces to take any independent action against the Japanese and demanding that they remain at their posts and await instructions from Chungking.

Three Million Japs Left In Pacific Are Problem For Allies

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP) — Approximately 3,200,000 Japanese soldiers are believed to be deployed throughout the vast Pacific reaches which Japan once hoped to make her "greater East Asia empire."

Getting them back to the home islands poses a postwar problem comparable to that faced by this country in returning its own armed forces from overseas. It probably will have to be done by the Allies, for Japan has only a fraction of her pre-war merchant marine fleet left.

In Japan itself are reported to be armies aggregating about 2,000,000 men who must be demobilized under supervision of the Allied occupying forces.

The Japanese are believed to have had in excess of 6,500,000 men under arms since Pearl Harbor, of whom upwards of 1,500,000 were killed or captured. Their casualties may be even larger.

PARIS, Aug. 15 (AP)—Marshal Petain, convicted of treason and sentenced to death, was removed to remote Fortress Portalet high in the Pyrenees mountains today with his fate—death or life imprisonment—squarely in the hands of Gen. de Gaulle.

He will remain at the prison pending de Gaulle's decision regarding disposition of the sentence which was imposed on the aged marshal early today.

The court, which deliberated seven hours, recommended that the death sentence against former chief of the Vichy state not be carried out.

De Gaulle, now president of the French provisional government, is a former protege of Petain who was once his regimental commander.

Intimates of de Gaulle said the French leaders was almost certain to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Atomic Bomb Future Put Up To Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Congress will have the last word on whether the United States will continue to produce atomic bombs, a War department spokesman said today.

In the meantime, the department said, information about the super-weapon will remain a closely-guarded secret despite the war's end.

AP's Cooper Has The Right Idea

THE spectacle of the managing director of The Associated Press springing to the defense of the United Press might cause long-gone newsmen of an earlier age to "turn over in their graves." But to us, the attitude expressed by Kent Cooper in connection with the United Press' being victimized by the sender of a false "victory flash" last Sunday night is to be commended by everyone—those in the news business and those which it serves.

Mr. Cooper, managing director of The Associated Press, has recommended to his colleagues that the AP add to the $5,000 reward the UP has offered for apprehension and conviction of the miscreant who "sneak-filed" the utterly false announcement that Japan had capitulated as of Sunday, U. S. time. As a member paper of the Associated Press, which also is served by the day report of the United Press, The Morning Avalanche will be happy to furnish its pro-rata part of any AP reward which may be paid.

There was nothing "funny" about the "false flash" stunt.

Whoever perpetrated it injured not only the United Press, (although that estimable organization "caught" the trick in less than two minutes after it had been conjured up) but victimized millions of Americans, as well. And among those victims were countless men and women to whom victory over Japan meant the chances of seeing a long-absent loved one sooner than they once dared hope, or pray.

The UP's prankster not only demonstrated a maniacal sense of humor. He violated a federal statute.

If and when he be found and convicted, he should get the limit of punishment set out by the law.

A Watchword: "Vigilance!"

TO an American reader there are many passages in Emperor Hirohito's "alibi speech" to his people that are laughable.

In fact, if one did not know that the Japanese nation has been soundly trounced and defeated, he might gain the impression from the emperor's statement that Japan has scored a great diplomatic victory for world peace by accepting "the Potsdam Declaration."

"To strive for the common prosperity and happiness of all nations as well as the security and well-being of our subjects is the solemn obligation which has been handed down by our imperial ancestors," asserted the emperor, in explaining Japan's objective in making war. He contended that Japan acted only "to insure Japan's self-preservation and the establishment of East Asia, it being far from our thought either to infringe upon the sovereignty of other nations or to embark upon territorial aggrandizement."

Yet while we may laugh at the emperor's alibi, we may soberly question whether it is well for the Japanese people to be given an untruthful statement of affairs.

We should also question the surrender statement made by Radio Tokyo—"We have lost, but this is only temporary."

The radio station continued: "We have bowed to the enemy's material and scientific power. However, in spiritual power we have not lost yet. We do not think the way we have thought is wrong. Of course, we do not say that we were right in everything; of course not."

Japan's mistake, the spokesman added, was the lack of "material strength and necessary scientific knowledge and equipment. This mistake we must amend."

This is a subtle warning for the future that America must heed and remember. Just as Japan was aroused to respect modern armaments when Commodore Perry forced that nation to open its ports to world trade, so today Japan is dreaming of acquiring and using the secret of the atomic bomb against us. This she must never be permitted to do. Our policy must be one of eternal watchfulness. We must never relax our vigilance.

On the other hand, there is a strong possibility that the emperor's alibi statement will aid us in assuming control over the now submissive Japanese. Thinking they have won a diplomatic victory, they will be more willing to cooperate.

But our watch-word must continue to be: Vigilance.

A New Victory Cry!

AMERICAN motorists had a new victory cry yesterday. It was: "Fill 'er up!"

Elimination of wartime controls over gasoline and canned foods will bring home to millions of hungry, war-tired citizens the full meaning of victory.

One of the things we were fighting for was release from such restrictions and burdensome bureaucracy.

President Truman has again demonstrated his good generalship and his closeness to the people in ordering the immediate lifting of gasoline and food rationing.

Yet it may be sometime before rubber is available in sufficient quantities to assure new tires for every motorist. So there will still be an economy in driving.

However, some of the principal restrictions are off and we can begin to live again!

This is a true story of the men who fly the "hump" — carrying passengers and cargo over the high Himalyas between India and China. Pilots call it the toughest airline in the world.

"PUPS ARE NOT ALLOWED"
XXI

"So sorry, Sahib," the hotel clerk said when he saw Spitfire and Margot poke their heads out of the basket and blink up at him there in the lobby. "Pups are not allowed in the hotel. Government regulations."

"These aren't pups," I said. "They're kittens, and they won't cause any trouble. We'll keep them right in our room. They're the quietest and cleanest little fellows you ever saw. They'll be all right—"

"I cannot help it, Sahib. They cannot be kept in the hotel."

Gingiss picked up the basket and said, "Go ahead and sign for a room, Gen. I'll take the cats to a veterinary and board them until we leave."

That was an easy solution. There was a small veterinary shop a couple of blocks from the hotel, and the old Englishman who operated it was familiar with baby leopards. He told us about giving them barley water with their milk as a means of helping digestion; he also gave them their first taste of meat.

Tony Mercede and Suzzy Q arrived in Karachi a day ahead of his original schedule, so we immediately arranged for train transportation to Bombay. The trip to Bombay is about 700 miles through desert country, and the passenger accommodations are more or less on afterthought, consisting of one or two sleeping cars casually added onto a slow, noisy line of freight cars. Even so, the compartments were all well filled and it cost us an extra five rupees to get the conductor to assure us a compartment to ourselves.

As we showed our tickets before climbing aboard, the uniformed inspector looked suspiciously at the big basket I was carrying. "What's in there?" he asked snappishly. "No pups allowed on the train, you know."

"Pups?" I repeated, laughing as if that were a very funny joke. "What would I be doing with pups? This is just our laundry—soiled clothes, you know." I took hold of the shirttail that I had left showing from under the newly acquired cover for the basket. "Best not to get the dirty things mixed up with the clean!" I explained airily — and hustled on ahead of Gingiss and Tony. One of the little devils tucked in their under the dirty shirts was starting to whine. . . . Before we reached Bombay we had refused five times to allow anyone, even the conductor, to enter our compartment.

Once during the night the train stopped on a siding some distance out of the next village. Gingiss and I stepped outside for a few minutes, leaving Tony to guard the cats. The heat and the sand blowing into the compartment had been bad enough all day, but the increasingly foul smell of the cats was making the night really wretched. Standing out there breathing in clean air was a treat. Gingiss thought it would be a good idea to bring the cats out and air them and their basket and as far as we could figure it out later, that must have been when the cats were discovered.

In the morning, about an hour before we were due in Bombay, the smell was almost as bad as it had been before the airing, and I knew that we had no chance of fooling the inspectors who would be waiting to inspect everyone's baggage at the depot.

Finally we got an idea. We had noticed that the train always slowed down to a bare crawl as it approached a station, so Gingiss was elected to jump off the train with the cats as soon as we got to the outskirts of town. We emptied the clothes out of two canvas duffle bags, cut holes into them; Spitfire in one and the two females in the other. Then we opened the compartment door and tossed the basket—fetid smells and all—out on the sand. When the train slowed down to about five miles an hour a few minutes after we entered the city, Gingiss said, "If I'm not at the Delamar Hotel in half an hour you'll find me in the clink." Then he took the two bags in one hand, swung himself to the ground with the other and was gone.

The minute the train stopped there was a pounding on our compartment door. Tony turned the handle and two burly Indians wearing baggage inspector's uniforms barged in. "You got some pups in here!" one of them shouted. "We got a wire. Where they at?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," I said. "You can see for yourself that there aren't any pups in here."

"You got them in a basket," the man said angrily, his flinty brown eyes scanning the little room.

Tony growled and his big ham of a hand pushed me to one side as he moved forward, shoulders hunched menacingly. "Get out of here, you fools," he said. "The wire was mistaken. You can see that for yourself. Not beat it."

The two men looked at each other in bewilderment. They groped around the compartment again, but there was no sign of pups or basket. At last they shrugged, mumbled their apologies, and withdrew. Tony and I, with a show of great indignation, summoned a porter to handle our bags and stalked from the train.

By-Passing Leaders In Japan Planned

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (U.P.) — The United States, it was learned today, will order its occupation officers in Japan to by-pass the entrenched leadership and deal directly with the people in order to foster democracy.

This policy is based on the conviction that the only way to develop a democratic Japan is to work with persons closer to the masses than the militarists and industrialists who long have dominated the Japanese government.

Representatives of the War, Navy and State departments as well as other interested government agencies were expected to meet today to put the final touches on a directive outlining this nation's occupation policy.

The directive was prepared by the War department on the basis of research by several agencies over the past two years. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, newly named commander of occupation forces, has seen the directive, it was said, and may have recommended some changes.

The directive is intended for the initial period of occupation. It will be expanded or revised as experience in Japan warrants.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

CORPORAL Julia K. Atchley writes me from Patterson field., Fairfield, Ohio, and calls me to account for having written a column in which I complained about losing two of my lovely old trees in a recent thunder storm.

I had intended to send her a letter, but I think the subject is of sufficient interest to use in this column of mine.

BRANDEIS

This is what Corporal Atchely writes:

"I enjoy your column very much, but the other day your gripe, as we would say it in the army, surprised me very much.

"You complain about your trees being blown down. I love trees, even though I never lived in the country.

"But those were only trees. You can plant another and watch it grow.

"But how about those thousands of boys that are being blown down before they even had a chance at life? And you are crying about trees!

"How do you think the mothers and fathers feel about that?"

I think, my dear Corporal Atchley, that those mothers and fathers will be doubly smypathetic.

I think that having had a loss of their own they will so much better understand another's loss.

Just because you have lost one possession that is dear to you, you should not close your heart to the loss of something else or to some other person's loss.

I have the deepest feeling for every mother and father who has lost a son.

And no tree, of course, can be compared with that.

But, as you say in another part of your letter, you concede that, "Only God can make a tree."

Trees are a true embodiment of God. You can plant the seed, but you can't make the seed.

The seed of a tree or a flower or of a stalk of corn is one of God's mysteries. The seed is the promise, the tree the fulfillment.

TO ME, to sit in the shadow of my tree is to sit in the shadow of God.

"You can plant another and watch it grow."

My dear Corporal Atchley, it takes fifty years to make an oak or a maple or an elm be anything like the trees I lost.

Those trees had come to me from another generation and I hoped that they might remind some coming generation of me and my time.

To lose those trees only emphasized the poignancy of my loss.

To see those thousands of boys "blown down" should only make you more human because it should make you realize how precious life can be — whether it be the life of a boy or of a tree or of a flower.

I hope you'll understand. I know that every mother and every father will.

France Hits Hollywood

Allies "Chisel" Into Territory

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

GEN. Charles de Gaulle's stubbornness may lead to a serious slump in the quality of motion pictures provided by Hollywood for millions of American theater-goers.

So far the State department has not been able to budge the Paris government from its insistence on a partial blockade of the showing of California productions in French cities.

Under prewar treaty arrangements American producers were permitted to ship 188 films annually to France. Now the French have reduced our yearly quota to only 60, allocating the same number to the Russians and the British. Inasmuch as London never turned out more than about 120 in any 12 months, and Moscow's production is about 30 for the same period, the small number allowed to the world's screen capital—Hollywood—appears to be the rankest sort of discrimination.

TUCKER

Our diplomats suspect that the British and Russians helped to engineer the deal lest our superior films, portraying the wealth and might of America, counteract their influence in a restored France.

De Gaulle, naturally, wants to develop the motion picture industry at home. He also fears that our extravaganzas, which depict a scale of living that his nation can never expect to equal, may lower him in the eyes of his countrymen. Therefore, he insists that 55 per cent of the screen time he devoted to native showings, with 45 per cent divided among the three other nations involved.

Paris also imposes other restrictions on Hollywood producers. They cannot take out of France the profits which they make there. In fact, they are required to spend their hard cash in that country. We have agreed to restrict the number of our films to 108 as against the treaty total of 188. If de Gaulle will not compromise on that basis, we may pull out entirely.

Here is how the controversy may hurt the American theater-goer: Almost 40 per cent of the gross revenue from distribution is derived from Hollywood's export business.

A picture may be a "bust" in this country, but receipts from abroad enable the producer to break even on that particular film. But if he losses that surplus income, he may have to trim on future production outlays, and turn out shoddy or second-rate stuff for the home trade.

WEAPON: The eventual peacetime commercialization and use of the atomic energy released in hideous and primitive form on Japanese cities may force the nations employing this new source of industrial power to adopt some sort of "State Socialism" for their own protection.

This aspect of the new development has not been grasped generally by the public. But it highlighted the discussion of the subject which President Truman recently had with Dr. Vannevar Bush, head of the Office of Scientific Research and development, who took part in the earliest and latest experiments; Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Chief of Staff George Marshall and other key actors in this modern drama.

In view of this cosmic weapon's destructiveness, it seems obvious that it must be kept at all times under the control of the governments which possess the secret. There must be a sort of O'Sullivan law against its private and indiscriminate use. A tool which can destroy mankind, if misused, can no more be distributed carelessly than bombs or tommy-guns can be handed over to big city gangsters by the police.

CONTROL: Thus, in permitting private industries, the railroads, home builders and others to take advantage of the harnessed atom, government must have the final voice as to its employment.

In short, federal control of this storehouse of solar heat is equivalent to giving Washington or London complete supervision over such sources of energy as coal, oil, natural gas, water power and all the ingredients thereof.

The utilities once complained that a series of TVAs and MVAs would drive them out of business because they could not face federal costs and competition. Now, these companies and every other industry may eventually have to stand up against a government which has a mortgage on the sun.

SCIENCE: Twenty years at least may pass before the atomic power unveiled over Japan can be controlled and commercialized for everyday use in homes and factories, according to scientists here who participated in the making and testing of the world-shaking bomb.

Not until about 1965, although they advance no dogmatic forecasts in view of their present ignorance of the future possibilities of this Frankenstein-like miracle, will a nugget as large as a piece of coal heat a house for years; operate a great plant more efficiently than is possible with coal, oil or water power; propel an automobile for its lifetime; drive our trains, ships and planes; cure the deaf and the blind through its therapeutic application.

These are only a few of the potentialities which men like Doctor Bush foresee for the far future.

CAUTION: Like other scientific discoveries that have been applied technologically, atomic energy may still further reduce the workday—possibly to a 120 minutes in the 24 hours. In short, once it has been developed to the degree envisaged by Doctor Bush and his associates, it will revolutionize living as completely as it has changed—or possibly outlawed—warfare.

Even when the atom has been harnessed and made to behave, it may deliberately be withheld from frail, mortal use for fairly obvious economic reasons. The world's present physical structure—homes, industrial plants, transportation facilities on land, air and water, farms etc.—would become obsolete almost overnight if this strange source of energy were adapted too quickly to everyday usage.

The banks, insurance companies and other institutions which have underwritten every kind of property would go under.

The price factor may provide another deterrent to general and prompt use of atomic engines and furnaces and locomotives, even after this kind of power becomes available in commercial form. History furnishes many examples.

Time was when the automobile, electric lights, the telephone and the radio were beyond the reach of the ordinary purse. Only the wealthy could afford them until an Edison, a Ford, a Gifford and a De Forest came along. It will still be some years before the airplane or helicopter will become the daily means of travel for the ordinary man. So it will be with this mad machine which can destroy—or revitalize—mankind. Don't order that atom yet awhile!

DANGERS: For two reasons, once we discovered that we had forestalled Der Fuehrer's atomic experiments, we made no attempt to drop the bomb over the Reich. There was always the chance that, owing to the complicated nature of the releasing mechanism, a missile might wreak destruction on France or some other Allied or neutral nation.

Even more dangerous, knowing the ingenuity of German scientists, and what the Anglo-American strategists at the top level feared most, was the possibility that an atomic bomb might land without exploding and that the enemy would get the key to its ingredients and manufacture.

We entertained the same fear regarding the Norden bomb sight, and for that reason every plane carrying this novel device was equipped with self-destructive apparatus in case it was captured by the enemy.

With Hitler on his last legs through use of now obsolete weapons—planes, tanks artillery, machine guns, rifle fire—it was not worth the risk. We reserved Uranium 235 for Hirohito. Otherwise, Hitler would have been atomized.

"The postwar model house will have rooms," says an architect. You don't say! How very old-fashioned!

What strange environment causes a hill-billy singer to have melancholia and adenoids?

How Shall We Employ Our Leadership?

Victory Has Its Responsibilities

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — This is the victory.

The din of celebration crashed up from the streets far below.

The scraps of paper whirl by the window, spiralling downward upon the exuberant, shrieking, half-crazy crowd.

This is America, yours and mine, in victory.

A sailor with a bottle. A girl with a horn.

The surrender finally came. President Truman sent out the word. A mob of weary newspapermen dashed through the corridors to his office. They stood about in a tense circle. He gave out the long-awaited news.

STOKES

Later he and his wife, two simple, Midwest Americans, walked out on the lawn of the White House to wave at the crowd gathered behind the high, iron fence and pressed tight against it, thousands of them. Some had come every day for several days to wait for the news—there in the park across the street where Andrew Jackson perpetually rears his horse, and where, at the four corners, are the figures of those foreign officers who came over and fought beside us for our freedom in the revolution. These were LaFayette, Rochambeau, Von Steuben and Kosciusko, French, German and Pole.

Victory For Melting Pot

Here in the crowd are representatives of all those nationalities and of many others, now plain Americans, lovers of the hog dog, and roasted peanuts, and ice cream sodas, and jitter-bugging and hard whiskey.

The melting pot has proved itself again.

It has made this sturdy, free and independent people who are celebrating their victory against a trio of tyrants far across the seas.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN says only that he wished the late President Roosevelt could be here.

Roosevelt, and his ancestors, were Dutch.

Franklin Roosevelt, who saw it all so clearly, who sensed the meaning of this struggle before most of us, is missing.

And so is Wendell Willkie, who saw it all so clearly, too, and did his best to wake up his country.

And Willkie's forebears were German.

Tragic that those two men could not see the hour of victory.

It is characteristic of Harry Truman, in his hour of triumph, that he did not forget his predecessor.

Marching Throngs Appear

The crowd moves about restlessly, ecstaticaly, and then, out of it, there comes a marching throng, soldiers and sailors and young civilians with their shirts open at the collar and girls with their hair streaming behind them and children, a motley, happy thing, swaying about as they march.

People who created the French revolution marched that way, except they were hungry and sore of heart and full of misery.

This crowd is gay. They have won their revolution, except it was a revolution not confined to one country, but gripped the whole wide world, a whole planet. They do not think of this, but they exemplify its spirit all the same.

FOR they are free people, still free.

Their very happiness and frenzy express that spirit, whether they stop to think about it or not.

And so it is over all America. They have proved the strength of democracy, democracy fused of many races and many people, here gathered in a broad and lovely land.

Never have we had such an opportunity to spread it all over the world. For our American democracy is now the foremost nation in the world.

There was no humility in the crowds which celebrated all over America, but neither was there any blatant braggadocio.

It is time for us to be very humble, for this is the beginning of our test of world leadership. It is a solemn responsibility. It is ours.

What will we do with it?

Labor Considers Its "No Strike" Pledge Ended On V-J Day

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (U.P.)—Labor considers its war time "no strike" pledge technically at an end of "V-J" day. But neither the Congress of Industrial Organizations nor the American Federation of Labor anticipate any widespread outbreak of work stoppages after hostilities cease.

AFL President William Green and CIO Chief Philip Murray both have stated that they will try to keep their wartime record of cooperation with management and government in effect through the critical reconversion period.

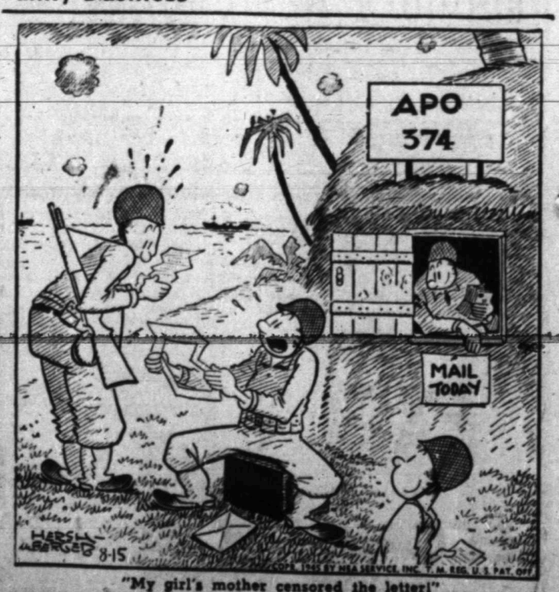

Both AFL and CIO spokesmen warned, however, that despite the efforts of the parent unions, strikes will probably be more prevalent after V-J day than before.

RAMS AVERAGE $50

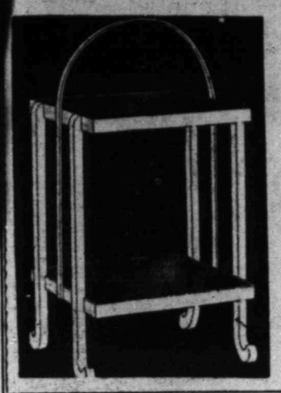

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 15. (AP)—The annual ram sale, sponsored by the New Mexico Growers association yesterday brought an average price of $50 a head compared with $64 last year.

Top price was $400 paid by Al Hall, 15, Aztec, for a Rambouillet ram consigned by the Deer Lodge Farms Co., Deer Lodge, Mont.

Bradley Assumes Veterans' Post

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. (UP) — Gen. Omar Bradley took office as Veterans administrator today and announced that his policy toward veterans would be to "get them back and give them jobs."

Taking over from Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines just in time to catch the full force of post V-J demobilization problems, the 52-year-old four-star Missouri general said that "certain changes in organization and methods" in the administration may be necessary.

He brought with him a temporary staff of military advisers, including three generals, most of whom served with him in his 12th Army group's victorious sweep across France and Germany.

Bradley took sharp issue with the occasionally expressed feeling that veterans are likely to be problem children.

"Most veterans," he said, "are better equipped for civilian life than when they went away. Most of them want to get back to normal life. If we can get them back and give them jobs and homes, that's all they want."

Bradley and the 66-year-old Hines, leaving the post after 22 years, called on President Truman after Bradley was sworn in by Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens of the circuit court of appeals here.

"It was more or less like the new and old officer of the day reporting," Bradley said.

In a memorandum to employes, Bradley said:

"In order to meet the increasing load certain changes in organization and methods may be necessary. These changes will be made when and if thorough study indicates them advisable."

Part Of Wraps Are Removed From Radar, Remarkable War Weapon

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—Most of the wraps on radar—the most remarkable defensive and offensive weapon of the war—were lifted today by American and British Allies who declared the development should prove as valuable in peace as it has been revolutionary in conflict.

Radar, whose name stands for "radio detection and ranging" has been one of the top secrets of the war.

Civilian scientists of the Navy, as far back as 1922, were doing research of the type that led to the development of radar independently in the United States, England, France and Germany during the 1930's. Britain was the first nation to employ it operationally.

Some Facts Revealed

Today, military and scientific leaders of Britain and the U. S. disclosed all that can be told now of the technique which detects objects by means of radio-wave echoes in somewhat the same way we can detect the presence of an unseen cliff by uttering a shout and listening for the sound echo.

The facts released by our armed forces and the Office of Scientific Research and Development (OSRD) and the British information service in this country relate the story of an electric "cat's eye" that can see through darkness, fog, smoke and the thickest clouds.

It is the story of something that has rendered sea and aerial navigation virtually fool-proof, thus presaging a new era of safety for civilian transport by sea and air. (Radar's application to land transport is still a question mark.)

New Warfare Dimension

It is the story of an entirely new dimension in warfare—the ability to shoot accurately at an unseen enemy and to trace his advance long before he comes into view.

It is the story of instruments so sensitive they can trace the flight of a projectile from a naval gun and even show when it strikes the unseen target miles away or splashes to a "miss."

A transmitter sends out radio energy in very intense bursts, of small duration, called pulses. These pulses may be only a millionth of a second long and they travel with the speed of light—186,000 miles a second. They travel with such speed that they show up on an instrument panel on the radar set as a single line. This line serves as a "time base." (A cathode ray tube allows the visual presentation.)

It's a Radio Echo

When the transmitted pulses strike an object, a radio echo is sent back to a receiver, and a vertical projection or "pip" appears at some definite place on the "time base" line. Since the speed of the pulses is known, the distance between the beginning of the time base and the received "pip" is an indication of the range of the reflecting object.

The bearing of the detected object from the radar transmitter point is determined by noting the position of the antenna at the time the echo appears. The antenna is of the directional type which sends out pulses in a narrow beam, like a searchlight, and can sweep through the entire circumference of a circle.

On some radar instrument panels, or "scopes," range and bearing can be noted simultaneously. On some, the altitude of a detected object is shown.

Tucumcari Buys Horse For Admiral To Ride

TUCUMCARI, N. M., Aug. 15. (U.P.) — The citizens of Tucumcari have bought a white horse for Adm. William F. Halsey to use in his ride down the streets of Tokyo and are awaiting shipping instructions from the Admiral.

Mayor Henry R. Priddy said today that he had sent a cable to the famous naval officer informing him of the purchase and asking for shipping instructions.

The Gallup Poll: Franco Is Still In "Dog House" With Majority In U. S.

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 15.—The American public doesn't like General Franco any better today than seven years ago.

At that time, when the Spanish civil conflict was raging, surveys showed three out of every four persons sided with the Loyalists against Franco.

GALLUP

It is therefore not surprising to find that today the vast majority approve the decision of the Big Three Potsdam meeting to bar Franco Spain from the United Nations.

This of course is the opinion of people who know who Franco is. It is in a sense "informed" opinion.

The question, asked of persons able to say correctly who General Franco is, was this:

"Should Spain become a member of the United Nations under its present government?"

The replies:

No	76%
Yes	12
No Opinion	12

When asked to state their opinion of the Spanish dictator, only six per cent among those interviewed gave an answer which might be interpreted as somewhat favorable.

An interesting sidelight when field reporters asked people to tell who Franco is: Among people who said they read a daily newspaper, six out of 10 could say who Franco is. Among people who said they do not read a daily newspaper, eight out of 10 could not give an answer or gave a wrong reply.

Throughout the country as a whole, 53 per cent were able to say who Franco is. Nine out of 10 among persons who had attended college could give a correct answer. Fewer than four out of 10 could do so among those with an elementary school education or less.

The American people opposed Franco in the Spanish civil war in every survey taken on the subject. In February, 1937, 65 per cent said their sympathy was with the Loyalists. By December, 1938, 76 per cent indicated sympathy with the Loyalists.

Nine Members Of Faculty Resign

College officials announced Wednesday that resignations of nine Texas Tech faculty members had been accepted and that one other, of Mrs. Juanita B. Mooney, instructor in accounting and secretarial studies in the division of commerce, was pending.

Two other members of the commerce division who have resigned are Frank Graydon, instructor in accounting, and Dr. J. Marvin Sipe, associate professor and acting head of the department of accounting and finance. Both of their resignations will become effective Aug. 31 and both will assume duties Sept. 1 at the University of Houston.
