"When people wave at me or invite me into their homes, it makes everything much more tolerable."
— Cross-country biker Peter Damien Wannemacher

Flight attendant 'bike in the saddle'

By NANCY LORD
Lifestyle Writer

"You can tell the smiling biker by the bugs among his teeth," quipped Peter Damien Wannemacher, who breezed through Midland Thursday while biking across the country.

He was in Midland to spend the night and have minor repairs done on his bike before heading east to continue his journey today.

Peter began his trek earlier this year in San Francisco. His destination is Hollywood, Fla., near Fort Lauderdale.

Originally from Orange, N.J., Peter has traveled around the world as a flight attendent with PanAm airlines. He lived in London before taking a six month leave of abscense from the airline to bike across America. He said that he felt he ought to tour his own country since he has seen the rest of the world.

He plans one diversion from his trip. He will stop in Azle, northeast of Fort Worth, to meet his fiance, Arlene D'Allaire. They plan to fly to Hawaii to be married.

After a brief honeymoon, Wannemacher will fly back to Dallas to continue his cross-country trek. Arlene, who also is a flight attendent with PanAm, will then fly to Florida to await his arrival.

Peter pointed out that he didn't have any special equipment or prior extensive biking experiance before he began. Nor did he train for the task before he began — he just took off.

He said he got tired of so many people telling him he wouldn't make it. So, early in the trip, when asked where he was headed, he said he was just going up the road.

Now when people ask about his destination, he said he's not apprehensive about telling the truth. He figures he's made it this far, so he will make it the rest of the way.

"People have been the best part of the trip," he said. "There have been so many friendly people along the way."

Many people have invited him into their homes to spend the night. He carries a tent in which he sleeps most of the time, however.

His other supplies include two pairs of socks, a pair of shoes, a pair of riding shorts, two bottles of water, some food, tools, head and tail lamps, an extra tire and tube for his bike, a harmonica and reading material.

California is the prettiest state he has seen on his journey so far, he said. He also remembered that California had more state parks in which he could spend the night along the way.

"You see things that you never see in a car," he said.

Among the difficulties he has experienced along the way include broken spokes, flat tires, fog and a "sore rear end."

He said he often wishes he had never started the trip and sometimes would like to just call the whole thing off. But "when people wave at me or invite me into their homes, it makes everything much more tolerable.

"You get the exhilirating feeling of being completely on your own," he said of biking cross-country.

His trip will have to be completed by May 1, when his leave of abscense ends. He said he has mixed feelings about completing the journey, in that he likes his work, but also enjoys the independent feeling he has while biking.

When asked if he had any advice for those who are thinking of biking across the country, he said, "Just do it. Don't be discouraged by people who say you can't make it."

'Balancing act' questioned

Critics fear stability of 'safety net'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capitol Hill critics of President Reagan's economic proposals are questioning whether the administration can really balance the budget by 1984 without new spending reductions that would cut the so-called "safety net" from beneath the poor.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan admitted Thursday that the dilemma of identifying some $31 billion in cuts beyond those proposed Wednesday by the president is a "time bomb" that will be left for Budget Director David Stockman.

The administration acknowledges in its own projections that additional cuts of that magnitude will be necessary in the next three years if its goal of balancing the budget by 1984 is to be met.

What neither Stockman nor anyone else has spelled out is where those cuts will be made.

And what the skeptics are saying is that the only places left are some of the programs the president has pledged will go untouched.

Meanwhile, Regan and Stockman were going back before congressional committees today to continue their lobbying for quick action on those parts of the Reagan plan already outlined.

During their appearances Thursday, the two Cabinet-level salesmen encountered the most pointed questioning over Reagan's proposal to reduce personal income tax rates over three years, starting July 1. The move is estimated to be worth $1,456 to a middle-income family of four between July 1 and 1984.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, told Stockman Thursday he would support many of the proposed $41 billion worth of federal spending cuts, but he ridiculed Reagan's proposal for personal income tax reductions.

"You're fueling inflation faster than I can cut spending," Hollings said.

Democrats, and some Republicans, argue that the income tax cuts will benefit wealthier taxpayers more than others and that the reductions will not be translated into savings and investments as the administration predicts.

Pressed repeatedly Thursday for evidence on which he based his assumption that the income tax cuts would have the intended effect, Regan replied that the administration was not making "a forecast in the conventional sense" but presenting an "economic scenario."

That scenario, he said, is "based on an internally consistent set of policies which, if enacted, will produce an economic climate in which people's expectations and behavior will change."

Given the skepticism about the Reagan tax proposals, Republican leaders in the House fear a possible Democratic move to simply scrap the president's proposal for personal income tax cuts and substitute a plan of their own.

House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois acknowledged "there's no question that they (the Democratic majority in the House) have the votes" to put Reagan's plan "off on a side rail and institute their own tax cut bill."

Because of the lead time built into the federal budget process, projections of needs are made several years ahead of the time the money will be appropriated and the administration predicts it will need $30.7 billion in cuts beyond what it already has outlined. So far, those additional cuts have not been identified.

A former Carter administration official, who insisted that he not be quoted by name, said of Reagan's plan: "It is a risky proposal in the sense that it is asking Congress to slash taxes all the way up to 1984 and to take on faith that the administration will be able to identify (another) $31 billion in savings."

Regan was asked Thursday to identify the specific cuts for the House Budget Committee. While declaring that "I hate to leave time bombs," Regan replied that it would be left to Stockman to detail how the additional reductions would be made.

Space shuttle proves its power

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia, the flagship of the fleet of American space shuttles, passed a successful and spectacular firing of its three powerful engines today and apparently proved that at long last it is ready to carry astronauts into orbit.

That first orbital flight could come as early as April 7, barring any more problems in a project that is already more than two years behind schedule.

The final verdict on Columbia's space worthiness must await thorough analysis of today's test. But preliminary indications from the launch control center was that Columbia had cleared the biggest hurdle yet on its way to changing the way America operates in space.

"It looks like we've had a very successful firing of Columbia's three main engines," Hugh Harris, the control-center spokesman, reported seven minutes after the 20-second test.

Among the happiest observers were the astronauts who are to take Columbia on the first mission, John Young and Bob Crippen. They watched the test from a jet, flying 3,000 to 4,000 feet over the launch area, space officials said.

When the practice countdown reached zero at 8:45 a.m. EST, the three engines at the base of the delta-winged spaceship flashed to life, spewing torrents of almost invisible flame, steam and smoke over the launch pad and sending a thunderclap rolling across the scrub and palmetto of the Kennedy Space Center here.

"All engines are up and running," the control center announced.

The power plant — the world's most sophisticated rocket machine — generated 1.1 million pounds of thrust for 20 seconds, just as planned, while the 122-foot tall Columbia, its two solid-fuel boosters and a giant fuel tank remained locked firmly on the pad, held there by eight three-foot-long hardened steel bolts.

On an actual launch, explosive charges would sever the bolts to release the spacecraft, and the solid-fueled boosters would ignite to help it into orbit.

The test marked the first time in the U.S. manned space program that engines have been fired on the launch pad during a countdown practice. In the earlier Mercury, Gemini and Apollo projects, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration gained that experience by launching the capsules unmanned before committing astronauts to fly them.

But the shuttle is designed to return to earth on land instead of splashing down on water and officials said it would be difficult to send it aloft unmanned.

The practice duplicated all aspects of a real countdown except for the entry of the astronauts into the cockpit and was the first time that all shuttle systems had been tested as a unit. The firing had been postponed three times this week, by technical, weather and procedure troubles. Minor problems delayed today's ignition another hour.

During the final hours of the count, 526,000 gallons of fuel were pumped into Columbia's tanks.

Launch director George Page said before the test that a success would

Perot's Iran rescue plan rejected

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Millionaire H. Ross Perot, who masterminded the escape of two of his employees from an Iranian prison, concocted a scheme at the request of U.S. officials for rescuing the American hostages, but it was rejected at Pentagon meetings, a Fort Worth television station says.

KXAS-TV also reported Thursday that electronics-laced gifts and football game videotapes from Dallas Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry figured in another abandoned rescue plot, and said a Texas airman died in a helicopter crash during a practice exercise for a rescue mission.

The copyright story was based on a joint investigation by KXAS and NBC News. An NBC spokesman said the network would broadcast the report on "NBC Nightly News" today.

The practice session in which Airman Jay Schatte, 22, died last July 18 near Monticello, Utah, was training for a mission intended as a follow-up to the aborted raid April 25, that left eight airmen dead and two burned aircraft on an Iranian desert, KXAS reported.

Army spokesman Sgt. Phil Hale denied at the time that the crash was related to a second rescue attempt and told Schatte's parents the accident occurred during routine training.

But armed, uniformed men surroundedthe crash sit and kept observers at bay. And Schatte's father said he suspected his son was in training for another rescue mission.

"I sort of knew," John Schatte told The Associated Press, adding his son also had trained for the first mission. "I had an idea it was going on when he was out here (visiting in Fort Worth)."

A month after the crash, the idea for a second rescue mission, a plan so secret that former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie did not know of it, was scrubbed, the station said.

Hopes of rescue were further dashed because planners could not pinpoint the exact location of the hostages, despite efforts to plant sophisticated electronic locating gadgets on the hostages, the station reported.

U.S. officials were not available Thursday night for comment on the report. But several high-level Pentagon sources told the AP they recalled no exercises being held in preparation for a second raid.

KXAS said Landry became an unknowing accomplice by sending videotapes of Cowboy games to the hostages.

But before they were shipped to Iran, the tapes were encoded with special electronic signals that could turn television sets into secret locator beacons, the station said. Thus each time the tapes were played, they would transmit information to U.S. agents in Iran.

While the tapes could have been tracked by a homing device, U.S. agents had no way of knowing who was watching them, the station reported.

Informed of the station's report, Landry said: "That's news to me. The only thing I wanted to do was give them a chance to see some football films."

Former Defense Secretary Harold Brown confirmed Perot's attendance at top-secret Pentagon meetings.

Parkview joins MMH in opposing application

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Parkview Hospital has joined the opposition to Medical Center Hospital's application for a new cancer machine in Odessa, Midland County Hospital District directors learned Thursday when board president Ed Magruder read a letter from Parkview administrator Steve Wallach.

"Parkview Hospital and its management stand behind Midland Memorial and the district in opposition to the granting of this certificate of need," Magruder read in the letter from Wallach. "We do not feel this duplication is warranted," he continued.

The Texas Health Facilities Commission will review Odessa's application for a 6MEV linear accelerator to replace a cobalt radiation machine Wednesday and Thursday in Austin.

Opposition to the application from Midland Memorial Hospital and Midlanders falls centers around financial reasons. Since the 6MEV linear accelerator will be used in some 80 percent of the cases done at the soon-to-be-opened Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center, the opposition feels the Odessa machine would pull patients from this facility and cause Midland taxpayers to subsidize the Allison Center.

In other board news, the directors approved the purchase of some calibration equipment for the Allison Center and some other hospital equipment totaling $34,528.50.

The waterphantom ($15,100) and the thermoluminescent dosimeter system ($7,800) will be used to calibrate the 6MEV linear accelerator scheduled to be installed in the Allison Center in early March. Other equipment approved for purchase include a gastroscope ($6,900) and a dictation and transcription machine ($4,728.50).

Texas Tech University President Lauro F. Cavazos will meet with Midland County Medical Board officials and hospital officials on Monday, Magruder announced. The university's School of Medicine is planning a residency program for family practition-

One killed, one injured in accident

A Midland man died and an Odessa man was critically injured in a two-vehicle accident 14 miles west of Garden City Thursday night.

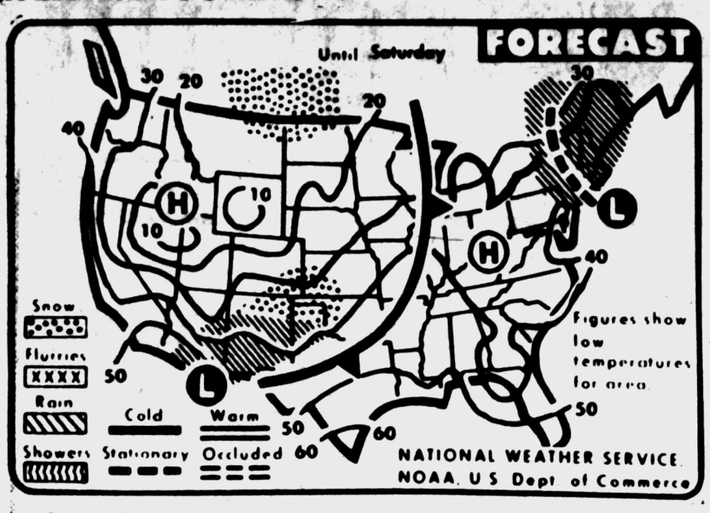

Pronounced dead at the scene by Garden City Justice of the Peace J.E. Wooten was 30-year-old Roger Gilbert Graham of 1300 Cottonflat Road, Space 9.

Graham was a passenger in a 1980 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Cleo Knight, 41, of Odessa. Knight was still undergoing surgery at 7 a.m. this morning in Midland Memorial Hospital. He suffered head and internal injuries.

The Department of Public Safety said the accident occurred at 9:45 p.m Thursday when Graham's westbound pickup swerved across the center line on Texas 158 and was struck broadside by an eastbound tractor-trailer rig driven by Jerry Ray Parker, no age listed, of San Angelo. Parker was not injured.

Graham's body was taken to Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home, where services are pending.

Extended forecast

Sunday Through Tuesday

West Texas: Partly cloudy and continued cold most sections Sunday. Fair with a warming trend Monday through Tuesday. Highs Sunday upper 40s north to mid 60s Big Bend. Highs Monday 50s north to near 70 Big Bend warming into the 60s north and 70s south Tuesday. Lows Sunday 20s north to near 40 extreme south. Lows Monday and Tuesday 30s north to 40s extreme south.

Cold front will blow in tonight

Midland's early summer will come to an end Saturday as a cold front is expected to blow through late tonight, dropping temperatures by almost 20 degrees.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport was predicting unseasonably warm temperatures for today with a high in the mid-80s. But the cold front, accompanied by 20-30 mph northerly winds, will hold Saturday's high temperature to only the low-60s.

The official forecast is calling for partly cloudy, cooler and windy conditions on Saturday, with the 20-30 mph gusts continuing through Saturday.

Friday's high of a spring-like 77 degrees almost broke the record high for the date of 80 set in 1948. This morning's low of 45 was much warmer than the record of 18 set in 1955.

The NWS is not expecting any precipitation anytime soon, which should leave the monthly total at a trace and the annual total at .56 of an inch.

The space shuttle Columbia sits on pad 39-A late Thursday night with the clock still counting for test firing early today. The space shuttle, which is two years behind schedule, is supposed to be launched in early April with a two man crew. (AP Laserphoto) clear the way for launching Columbia on a 54-hour orbital trip on April 7.

Before today's firing, Young and Crippen said they were prepared for that mission.

"We're ready to go," said Young, a veteran of four previous space flights, including a walk on the moon.

Young and Crippen have been training for three years for their shuttle ride. In that time, they have watched the launch slip more than two years behind schedule — primarily because of problems in developing such high-technology items as the three main engines and the 31,000 ceramic tiles designed to protect Columbia from re-entry heat when it returns to Earth.

On an actual launch, the space ship's three engines will fire for six seconds to build up full thrust before explosive charges sever the eight bolts to release the vehicle for flight.

During the test's additional 14 seconds, computer-generated signals were to throttle the engines and pivot their nozzles, duplicating actions required during lift-off.

J.R. Thompson, engine project manager, said each of Columbia's engines earlier was test-fired for at least two 520-second runs — the length of time they must burn to hoist the delta-winged space craft into orbit — but they have not been fired as a unit.

Following the test, specialists planned to inspect the engines, the shuttle's thermal tiles and other systems for possible damage from heat or vibration.

Repairs to the shuttle's external fuel tank pose a potential stumbling block to an April 7 launch. Some patches of insulation peeled away during a recent fuel loading test, and Page said he hoped 13 days set aside for corrections would be sufficient.

Meanwhile, NASA officials were pleased with President Reagan's endorsement of the shuttle program in his Wednesday budget message to Congress.

While the president proposed cutting some scientific space projects, he said money to develop a fleet of four shuttles with an option on a fifth would be maintained "to meet civilian and critical defense needs."

The reusable spacecraft will form the heart of the U.S. space effort — civilian, scientific and military — for most of remainder of this century. The shuttles, which will be able to carry up to seven astronauts, scientists and technicians each, will glide back to Earth on airplane-type wings and will be able to make 100 or more round trips into orbit.

However, Roy Campbell, president of the hospital's board of trustees, said the trustees "feel that we need to get additional information on just what the program will be" before making any recommendations to the directors on accepting the program.

The directors discussed the possibility of hiring an outside public relations firm for the Allison Center Thursday, as well, however no action was taken on the item. Magruder said the firm was being considered for "the purpose of assisting Dr. (Lee) Schlichtemeier (medical director for the Center) in making contact with the physicians and the public in the 17- county HSA and informing the public and physicians who might be referring patients to the Allison Center of the services offered here."

The directors further approved building change orders for Area Builders for the revovation of the physical and occupational therapy areas and the relocation of the dental clinic to the Mast Clinic. Director Pat Estes commented the dental clinic's relocation, sponsored by the Junior League, "saved the building program about $150,000" by not including it in the basement renovations. Moving the clinic to the Mast facility cost the hospital only $6,325.

Additional insurance coverage was approved for business interruptions for the boiler and machinery and for hospital malpractice excess coverage. The two items will increase the annual premiums by $688 and $237, respectively.

The directors also voted to eliminate the 220 voltage electricity line from TESCO to decrease the monthly service change, as the 220 line was no longer needed there. In addition, the board adopted payment for the relocation of electricity poles — costing the district $3,771 — which became necessary in expanding the hospital's parking area out Ohio Avenue.

The board rejected a bid from Hospital Management Associates, Inc., to run the hospital for the board. The management firm was turned down, Magruder explained, because the management agreement with the board of trustees was still in effect.

Campbell reported the Tribrook study results on the hospital's administrative bodies are scheduled for release to the boards next week. "If there is agreement (with the findings)," Campbell said, "then it (the recommendations) will be implemented through channels."

Campbell, who has worked as chairman of the operations committee in implementing other Tribrook efficiency recommendations at the hospital, said he thought the study has done the hospital some good.

"The biggest benefit is it stimulated some thinking," he told the board Thursday. Although not all the recommendations were what Campbell said were good, the recommendations "had people coming up with other ideas." He commended the department heads and the staff in working to implement their parts of the recommendations "during a difficult — very difficult — time for the hospital."

Campbell said he thought the study has promoted more efficiency at the hospital. "And I think it's set a climate for more aggressive looking for that efficiency," he added.

In other news, the board adopted April 4 for the general election day for three new directors to the five-member board.

Weatherwise, 1980 was bad year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The drought that continues to plague parts of the United States was the major factor in a "very bad" weather year in 1980 during which the government recorded more than 1,400 deaths and damage exceeding $20 billion.

"There is only one instance in the last few years that was anything even approaching this, that was the severe winter of 1976-77 when industries had to close down and there was a drop in the gross national product for the winter quarter," Malcolm Reid of the Center for Environmental Assessment Services said Thursday in a government report.

The drought and associated heat wave claimed 1,318 lives in 42 states and caused damage estimated at $19.3 billion, mostly affecting agriculture, the weather summary reports.

It also reports deaths, injuries and damage associated with other disasters, including the eruption of Mount St. Helens, blizzards, wind and rainstorms and severe tornado outbreaks.

According to the report, many of the heat wave victims were old or poor, living in non-air conditioned apartments and homes.

The heat led to a billion bushel reduction in the soybean crop, damage of up to 90 percent of the spring wheat crop in large areas of the Midwest, stunted livestock growth, and increased soil eroision because of the loss of thousands of acres of crop cover. Milk and hay production were down sharply in affected areas and water levels dropped dangerously low.

The report also chronicles more subtle human effects of the heat wave: irritability and depression, changed clothing styles and feelings of despair and doubt on the part of farmers concerned about their future.

The heat led to widespread buckling and melting of roads, drinking water became scarce in some parts of the country, power consumption jumped due to use of air conditioners and irrigation equipment, forest fires destroyed large areas of timberland and federal and state agencies spent billions in disaster assistance for affected areas.

The report estimated total climate-related damage for 1980 at $26.3 billion, including $5.5 billion in damage done by the eruption of Mount St. Helens. That eruption left 34 dead and 28 missing, the report says.

Other major climate events of the year and their impact, according to the report, included:

—A March 1-2 snowstorm caused heavy property damage and some fatalities in the South, including nine in traffic accidents. Circus-goers were stranded for days in Norfolk, Va., and 300 people were stuck overnight on a bridge between Georgia and South Carolina.

—Wet weather in March claimed six lives and caused widespread flooding in south central states.

—A tornado outbreak cut a path through parts of 13 states April 7-9, with at least 56 twisters reported during the three-day period. There were four deaths and 130 injuries. High winds and hail caused widespread property damage.

—Thirty-two people were killed May 9 when a ship struck the Sunshine Skyway Bridge over Tampa Bay during a blinding rain squall.

—There were five deaths and 200 injuries June 3 when tornadoes hit Grand Island, Neb. Damage was estimated at $250 million.

—Hurricane Allen killed 17 and caused millions in damage when it swept onto the Texas coastline Aug. 9-12. More than 13,000 families suffered some type of loss, but early warnings are believed to have helped keep the death toll low.

Woman hospitalized after traffic mishap

A Midland woman remained hospitalized this morning as a result of a traffic accident on East Industrial Avenue late Thursday afternoon.

Listed in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital was Leona Collins, 39, of 407 N. Loraine.

She was a passenger in a 1974 Pontiac Bonneville that went out of control and struck a utility pole in the 900 block of East Industrial Avenue about 5:20 p.m. Thursday.

The car was driven by Debra Marie Greenwood, 27, of 305 S. Madison. She was released from the hospital following treatment for minor injuries. The Collins woman suffered a fractured knee in the crash.

Another passenger in the Greenwood car, 9-year-old Loetta Goodman of 305 S. Madison, was treated and released, while a third passenger, Laruth Joiner, 7, escaped injury.

Jury finds Richard Cornett innocent of murder charge

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Richard Reni Cornett, a 26-year-old welder charged with murdering his sister-in-law and wounding his wife last June 30 in a family feud, was set free early Thursday night by a six-man, six-woman 238th State District Court jury.

Jurors found him innocent of the slaying after six hours of deliberating on a verdict.

"I had a good client," said Cornett's attorney, H. Thomas Hirsch of Odessa. "He's a good guy."

Cornett was indicted for allegedly shooting his 31-year-old sister-in-law, Norma Jean Loring of Odessa, with a .38-caliber handgun and with wounding his wife, Mildred Jo "Blondie" Cornett, at his estranged wife's 1715 E. Oak St. in Midland.

Throughout the trial, Cornett had claimed self-defense. He maintained that his hefty sister-in-law assaulted him with a butcher knife and that his wife threatened him with the pistol after he had entered the house at his wife's invitation. Instead of retreating, Cornett charged, scuffled with the women, and the pistol discharged more than once.

Cornett, who last November under went a similar trial in which he was convicted, seemed relieved by the not-guilty verdict.

"He just started crying and left," said Hirsch. "That's all he did."

Cornett's friends and parents were elated over the verdict.

"They're all happy," Hirsch said.

However, Cornett's wife and her side of the family weren't pleased with the verdict.

"They were all unhappy," the defense attorney said.

To District Attorney Vern Martin, whose staff prosecutors David Joers and Jim Rex pursued the case against Cornett, the verdict was a letdown.

"Of course we're disappointed in the outcome of the case," Martin said, "but we respect their (the jurors') decision. This is the kind of case the jury should decide."

Jurors had four options in deliberating a verdict: guilty of murder, manslaughter or aggravated assault or not guilty. They chose the latter.

A murder conviction could have netted Cornett up to life in prison.

Last November, a sympathetic jury tried Cornett on the attempted murder of his wife but found him guilty of aggravated assault and awarded him a five-year probated sentence.

"Good luck, Mr. Cornett," the lead prosecutor, Joers, had told Cornett after the first trial.

Cornett, who said he trying for a reconciliation with his wife and family last year, this week testified in his own defense in the trial.

Presiding judge was Vann Culp.

The defendant's wife had filed suit for divorce.

Cornett alleged self-defense and accidental shooting by way of the scuffle. He also admitted to firing a round into his sister-in-law, as she, already wounded in the scuffle, was charging him with the butcher knife.

A prime state witness was Cornett's 5-year-old stepdaughter, Kim Young. The child testified that Cornett shot her mother once, shot her aunt twice, and then, after going into the kitchen and returning to the den, placed a butcher knife in the left-hand of her supposedly right-handed and dying aunt.

Joers had argued that Cornett, who had knife wounds on his left arm, had self inflicted the cuts to suggest that he was assaulted by Ms. Loring and to make a case of self-defense.

Since the shooting in mid-1980, Cornett has left Midland to avoid conflict with his wife and her family, and reportedly is doing welding work in Oklahoma oilfields.

Slight quake shakes Utah County residents

PROVO, Utah (AP) — An earthquake measuring 3.5 on the Richter scale shook many Utah County residents out of their sleep early today, officials said.

There were no reports of damage or injuries.

The U.S. Geological Survey Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the quake occurred at 2:13 a.m. MST and was centered 30 miles south of Salt Lake City, 6 miles west of Orem.

That would put the quake's epicenter under the northern part of Utah Lake, said Bob Richey at the National Weather Service in Salt Lake City.

The dispatcher in the Utah County Sheriff's office said she received many calls, some of whom described the quake as "extremely strong."

But Bruce Kaliser, chief engineering geologist for Utah, said, "I wouldn't expect damage. There might be some minor effects, such as things moving on shelves. But there could be no damage whatsoever."

Jury recommends death for Weatherford mechanic

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — A state district court jury has recommended death by injection as punishment for a Weatherford mechanic convicted in the slaying of a Fort Worth teen-ager.

David Gardner, 26, was convicted Tuesday of capital murder in the Aug. 26 kidnapping and murder of Kandi Kae Reynolds, 15. The jury then set punishment for Gardner Thursday.

District Court Judge Harry Hopkins will formally sentence Gardner later.

Key testimony against Gardner came from Rocky Crecy, who was hitchhiking with the Reynolds girl when Gardner picked them up near Weatherford.

Crecy testified that Gardner told them he was a police officer and drove the two to a secluded area of Parker County where he sexually assaulted the girl and stabbed Crecy four times, leaving him for dead.

Crecy survived the attack and later furnished police with a description of Gardner's car. Gardner admitted the slaying and led officers to where her body had been concealed in heavy brush near Lake Weatherford.

Miss Reynolds had been stabbed 10 times and hit in the head with a rock, according to an autopsy.

Defense lawyer Jack Strickland acknowledged in final arguments to the jurors in the punishment phase of the trial that the crime was savage, but argued for a life prison term for Gardner. The jurors had to chose between death by lethal injection or a life prison term for Gardner.

Mrs. Carolyn Bouldin, the girl's mother, expressed satisfaction with the sentence.

"I'm pleased, but nothing will bring her back. He (Gardner) is going to have to answer to the one above," she said.

James Gardner, the defendant's brother, unleashed a bitter verbal attack on the judge, jurors and prosecutors after the sentence was set.

Officers checking vandalism reports

Two vandalism complaints, with damage in excess of $1,400, topped the list of police investigations during the past 24 hours.

The first incident occurred shortly before 1 a.m. today when an alarm went off at Carter Furniture, 501 E. Illinois Ave. Arriving officers found that a beer bottle had been thrown through a window of the establishment, causing $900 in damage.

Just prior to that, several windows were discovered broken at Midland Freshman School, Gist and Main streets. Damage was estimated at $540.

City firemen reported no activity, and the sheriff's department was working on two burglary reports and one theft complaint this morning. However, no details were available by press time.

Sweetbreads used as medicine

BOSTON (AP) — Injections of pureed calf thymus glands appear to be effective treatment for a certain immunological disorder and could someday help battle such "big league" diseases as rheumatoid arthritis, doctors say.

The pureed glands — also known as sweetbreads — reversed a disorder called histiocytosis-X in 10 out of 17 victims on which it was tested, doctors said, and they plan a national trial of the treatment.

"I think the evidence is strong enough to take that step," Dr. Fred Rosen, immunologist at Children's Hospital, told The Boston Globe.

One of the developers of the therapy, Dr. Michael E. Osband, a researcher at Boston University Medical Center, said that if the national trial is successful, "I think it would be reasonable to consider using it in big league diseases, such as eczema, systemic lupus, rheumatoid arthritis and even, perhaps, allergies."

It is believed the immune system is inadequately suppressed in those disorders, as it is in histiocytosis, which is a group of diseases in which an immune cell that should fight bacteria and viruses multiplies out of control and piles up in tissue.

The disease affects 200 to 300 Americans annually and is fatal in about half the cases.

In addition to Osband, the therapy was developed by Dr. Ronald P. McCaffrey, also a researcher at Boston University Medical Center, with researchers at Children's Hospital Medical Center and the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute.

A report on the therapy was published last month in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The researchers discovered three signs of an immune system disorder in histocytosis victims: white blood cells abnormally attacked skin cells, causing rashes; antibodies attacked red blood cells; and some white cells lacked proteins, indicating a possible lack of regulatory cells that block immune ractions from damaging normal tissue.

Two porno films seized

DALLAS (AP) — After about two years of uninterrupted daily showings, two films ruled obscene in local courts have been seized in a raid by police vice officers on a downtown adult theater.

"Deep Throat" and "The Devil in Miss Jones" were seized and a Continental Theater employee arested Monday.

Lt. J.D. Wood said vice officers had made daily seizures of the films for several weeks about two years ago.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Too much caffeine can be harmful

Dear Dr. Solomon: My local newspaper recently carried an article on a research project that showed that caffeine had an adverse effect on the fetus in pregnant rats. I believe the study was sponsored by the Food and Drug Administration. I'm not one of those who discount the importance of animal research, but I'd like to know if there have been any studies showing that caffeine has a adverse effect on the human fetus. In view of these reports, I'd also like to know whether obstetricians are now recommending that pregnant women abstain completely from the use of caffeine-containing products. — Mrs. P.D.

Dear Mrs. D.: One study of the kind you ask about was conducted in Utah by Dr. P.S. Weathersbee and colleagues. They reviewed the records of 16 women who drank eight or more cups of coffee, containing an estimated 600 milligrams of caffeine, during their pregnancy. Only one of these women had an uncomplicated delivery of a child born at term. Among the others, there were eight spontaneous abortions, five stillbirths, and two premature births.

These findings were then compared with data gathered from 104 households in which neither the women nor their partners ingested more than 450 milligrams of caffeine daily. Among these women, 75 had uncomplicated deliveries; in addition, there were seven spontaneous abortions, 17 stillbirths, and five premature births of whom three died.

Dr. Loretta P. Finnegan, of the Thomas Jefferson University Hospital in Philadelphia, is one person who has warned against the danger of excessive caffeine consumption during pregnancy. She adds, however, that a moderate intake of caffeine has not been shown to have any harmful consequences either on the pregnancy or on the new born.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband and I have decided not to have any more children, and we are considering various methods of birth control. I would prefer not having an operation because I don't know what the future will bring. While at present I am convinced that I do not want another child, I might feel different in a year or two. Is there any method of sterilization that does not involve surgery and that could be undone should I change my mind? — Mrs. F.P.

Dear Mrs. P.: A new nonsurgical technique developed by a Philadelphia physician may be of interest to you. Dr. Theodore P. Reed reports that he has been able to prevent conception by injecting silicone into the Fallopian tubes. Once it hardens, it acts as a plug, blocking the egg from traveling from the ovary to the womb. Of 101 women in whom the procedure was done, only one became pregnant.

Whether fertility is restored when the plugs are removed is still uncertain since it has not been tried. However, animals in whom the method was tested were able to become pregnant. It might be advisable to check with your gynecologist to see if he or she is familiar with the technique.

A commendable decision

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's announcement that the Reagan administration is re-examining former President Jimmy Carter's decision to shelve the controversial neutron weapon is encouraging.

Carter's decision on April 7, 1978, was only one of three decisions that year which helped the Soviets undermine the United States' military superiority. As you'll remember, on March 7 that year Carter cancelled plans for production of the B-1 bomber and on Aug. 20 he cancelled the Trident submarine.

Since that time, the United States has witnessed the revelation of this deteriorating status militarily. We have heard the rumblings of the Soviet bear as tensions between the two nations have heightened, and realized, perhaps, that it's difficult to be the protector of the free world without an adequate arsenal to back up what we're espousing.

The neutron weapon, more commonly called the neutron "bomb," isn't a bomb but an artillery shell which has enhanced radiation capability and can penetrate buildings or armored vehicles, killing the people inside. Reports indicate the weapon's design greatly reduces the blast and fire caused by conventional nuclear weapons.

Military experts theorize that Soviet strategy in Western Europe calls for the overrunning of countries with vast armored armies, spearheaded by thousands of tanks and armored personnel carriers.

The neutron weapon would prove invaluable in countering such an attack.

While deployment of the neutron weapon in Western Europe has been touted as a controversial move, the facts do not support such a conclusion; in fact, the information supports just the opposite conclusion.

Two years ago, German Prime Minister Helmut Schmidt told Carter the Germans would welcome deployment of the weapon. Later, after Carter had cancelled production of the weapon, the chairman of the German military committee of the Bundestag — the equivalent of our chairman of the House Armed Services Committee — wrote in an article for a U.S. magazine that the German people would welcome deployment of the weapon on German soil.

The French decided to produce the weapon themselves and last autumn French President Giscard d'Estaing announced that the neutron weapon was being added to that country's arsenal.

Judging from the importance of the neutron weapon and the fact that the principle for producing it reportedly is understood throughout the nuclear world, the Reagan administration's decision to re-evaluate the weapon is commendable.

It could take us a long way back toward military parity with the Soviet Union.

Where will we be?

The human brain probably hasn't changed much in the last 100,000 years or so. Computers are a different story.

Robert Jastrow, professor of astronomy and geology at Columbia University and professor of earth science at Dartmouth College, noted in a recent issue of Science Digest that silicon chips used in computers may make it possible one day to create a true "silicon brain."

"Around 1995," Jastrow said, "the curve of growth of the silicon brain should cross the line of human capability. Of course, a silicon brain that matches the human brain only in storage capacity and brute reasoning power will still lack the creative inspiration and intuition that characterize the higher realms of human thought."

Another professor, Marvin Minsky of MIT, notes in the Science Digest article that the machine in time will educate itself, reach genius level and achieve incalculable power.

And what happens to mankind as we enter this wonderful world of silicon intelligence?

"Then," notes Minsky, "if we are lucky, they may decide to keep us as pets."

"I'M GLAD I GOT OUT OF THE MARKET WHEN I DID"

CHARLIE REESE

Awakening Americans find Soviet threat bigger

Charley Reese

As sure as it rains in Maine, some Americans will accuse the Reagan Adminstration of re-kindling the "Cold War."

After all, President Reagan told a press conference that communist morality considers it proper to lie, cheat, murder and steal to advance the goal of world revolution. Secretary of State Alexander Haig said publicly that the Soviet Union supports virtually all of the world's terrorist organizations.

President Reagan was merely paraphrasing the God of communism — Lenin — and Haig was only saying what the world's press has been reporting for years. Both men spoke precise truth without a cat's whisker of exaggeration.

What is so stupendous, exceptional and thrilling is that for the first time in 20 years, two top leaders of the American government have been willing to state the truth about communism and the Soviet Union to the American people.

This is a gigantic and radical shift in American policy. It is one of the most significant events since the end of World War II, for it ends two decades of a bi-partisan policy that amounted to deception of the American people.

Beginning in the administration of President John Kennedy, the foreign policy elite — which generally surrounds every president regardless of party — decided that the American people should not be told the truth about communism and the Soviet Union, lest they pressure their government to act in ways the elitists considered unwise.

Several steps were taken. The military was muzzled. By that I don't mean prevented from publicly arguing over policy; they were ordered to stop indoctrinating our own soldiers about the evils of communism and to cease especially making any public speeches about communism. Disarmament came into vogue.

At the suggestion of the late Walter Reuther, the attorney general's list of subversive organizations was first expanded to include rightwing organizations and then abolished. The Fairness Doctrine of the Federal Communications Commission was used to drive anti-communist programs off the public airwaves. A concerted anti-anti-communist campaign was orchestrated which culminated in hysterical attacks in 1964 against the John Birch Society and Sen. Barry Goldwater. Official observances of Captive Nations Week was abandoned.

After the Cuban missile crisis cooled down. I don't believe you will find in the public record an instance of any American president or secretary of state publicly condemning the Soviet Union harshly between 1963 and the day President Carter was shocked out of his stupor by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Even while the Soviets were killing Americans by the thousands with their proxies in Vietnam, President Johnson talked of building bridges to communism by opening up trade with the Soviet's East European satellites where much of North Vietnam's armaments were being manufactured.

President Nixon and Henry Kissinger talked of detente and introduced us to SALT. President Ford signed the Helsinki Agreement, formally recognizing the Soviet Union's military occupation and enslavement of Eastern Europe. President Carter, of course, appeared to be in the process of handing over the world to the Soviet Union until his own ineptness and public opinion drove him out of office.

Some conspiracy buffs no doubt view this strange 20-year interlude as part of a sinister plot to betray the country. I believe the answer is much less dramatic. The horror potential of a nuclear war is sufficient to make bold men cautious; our foreign policy elite is not, for the most part, made up of bold men. It consists mainly of bankers, corporate lawyers and college professors, mostly all uppercrust types.

Their natural caution, their materialism, and their justifiable fear of nuclear war combined to produce a gigantic dose of wishful thinking which in turn produced gross miscalculations. Their natural arrogance which causes them to view people with different opinions as idiots if not madmen helped prolong their self-delusion.

Only when the evidence of the Soviet Union's unprecedented military build-up became undeniable and its consequences apparent with the invasion of Afghanistan, did our gurus (or most of them) wake up. It was at that point, as I reported last summer, that the Establishment abandoned Carter and shifted its support to Reagan.

Facing the truth about the Soviet Union means re-starting our side of the Cold War (the Soviets never stopped theirs). It will mean tension, confrontation, and danger. Kissinger didn't think the American people had the stomach for it. I think we do.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

GOP continuing coverup in Vesco case

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department is supposed to be in the business of digging up outrages, not burying them in an ecumenical silence.

Yet a shabby outrage was systematically covered up by the officials who were entrusted to expose it. They united to preserve the Carter administration, which would have been embarrassed by the exposure.

Now why should the Republicans, who have taken over the Justice Department, balk at discrediting a sanctified Democratic regime. Many of the survivors, who participated in the original obstruction, are still in place. Any airing of the scandal would cause a public stink, which would befoul officials who still retain their power. They aren't eager to investigate their own suppression of evidence.

Attorney General William French Smith, meanwhile, is being swallowed up by the Justice Department he is supposed to master. He is already becoming entangled in the web of concealment, which overlays the Robert Vesco-Libyan-White House connection.

During the Carter years, I reported a succession of tawdry occurrences that pointed to something amiss in the White House. I revealed that the renegade financier, Robert Vesco, had transferred $12 million worth of stock to a group of Georgians with a pipeline into the White House.

In return for the $12 million bribe, he wanted the White House to fix his legal problems. The Georgians, meanwhile, formed a dummy corporation in the Bahamas to launder the proceeds from the sale of the stock. But I began investigating the scandal before the laundering operation could be completed.

The incorrigible Vesco also became a financial adviser to Libya's dictator Muammar Qaddafi, who put up $30 million to bribe associates of President Carter. By Vesco's admission, he also encouraged Qaddafi to try to compromise the president through his brother Billy.

A Justice Department report alleges that an intermediary was offered a "substantial fee" if he "could arrange to bring Billy Carter to Libya." When Billy was later lured to Tripoli, he was told that Libya would funnel "financial benefits" to him through an oil company.

In the words of the Justice Department document, "The Libyans stated that when oil contracts came up for renewal in December, 1979, the oil allocation to the company with which (Carter) would become associated would be increased and Carter would be entitled to a commission as a result."

Billy Carter later signed a contract with Charter Oil Company, which guaranteed him 50 cents a barrel for any increase in Libyan crude. But like the $12 million in stock that was never laundered, the $30 million bribe money was never paid out and Libya never shipped the oil that would have enriched Billy. The promised payoffs apparently were exposed too soon.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department used a con man, James Feeney, to infiltrate Vesco's inner circle. Feeney told my associate Indy Badhwar: "Bob (Vesco) never really needed Billy for any of his deals. He just used him. Bob would always tell us Billy is useful to have around. He's a dummy and he'll fall into traps."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who is familiar with the evidence in the Vesco-Qaddafi-Carter conspiracy, has called it possibly the most important case since Watergate.

Yet the Justice Deartment blocked a federal grand jury from handing down indictments in the $12 million bribe attempt by threatening not to prosecute the indictments. The grand jury foreman, Ralph Ulmer, has accused the department of obstructing the investigation "to protect the Carter administration."

In the $30 million bribe attempt, the Justice Department simply aborted the inquiry. As Feeney put it, "Justice knew it was sitting on a Pandora's box that would lead to Billy Carter, the National Democratic Committee and the White House. They called off the investigation."

When a related case came before Denver's chief federal judge, Fred Winner, he accused high Justice Department officials of "stonewalling" to suppress evidence. He signed subpoenas ordering them to appear in his court. But the Justice Department invoked executive privilege and contested the judge's subpoenas.

I have always operated on the premise that what officials hide is more newsworthy than what they announce. So I ventured to ask a top Justice Department muckamuck whether the Vesco case would be reopened now that the Republicans have acquired the keys to the files. He merely rolled his eyes heavenward and opened his hands as if to say it was all in the lap of the gods.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: It wasn't just Democrats who got the ax when the Reagan headhunters came to town. Many bureaucrats in the Carter administration were Republican holdovers who had been reappointed. Now they have been fired along with their Democratic colleagues. Several GOP congressmen have received complaints about the wholesale dismissals and have registered protests with the White House.

— Raymond Peck, the nation's new auto safety czar, is remembered on Capitol Hill with some misgivings. As an opponent of strip-mining regulation in 1975, Peck was a key member of a government task force whose statistics, according to House Energy and Environment Subcommittee Chairman Morris Udall, D-Ariz., were "the most dishonest ... I have seen in all my years in the committee."

INSIDE REPORT:

Supply-siders caught napping on Reagan's 'Black Friday'

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

EVANS

NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In rejecting a bold move to unleash American investment, Ronald Reagan went against the advice of the Treasury, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and his own instincts to accept political advice that he not risk branding himself as the rich man's president.

The markets eagerly had awaited the volcanic impact of a Reagan call to cut the top 70 percent rate on "unearned" income (dividends and interest) down to the 50 percent top on "earned" income (salaries and wages). The announcement at 4 p.m. after the close of business Friday the 13th climaxed a week of backstage debate that ended with the forces of supply-side tax reduction in retreat and confusion.

The movement's political leader, Rep. Jack Kemp, wound up opposing his own idea in return for a trade-off that vanished. The result is that President Reagan went to Congress Wednesday with a limited package, out of fear of political dangers to a conservative Republican administration defending wealth.

Therein lies the political-economic vicious circle described in George Gilder's important new book, "Wealth and Poverty," as "the gravest peril of capitalism in our current inflationary period. As the wealthy consume more and invest less, resentment toward them increases and ignorant or demagogic politicians impose yet higher rates to punish them." The circle is closed when the rich escape this punishing higher taxation, going on to even more consumption and still less investment.

To end this debilitating process, two of the Republican Party's most dynamic young figures met after the election: Kemp and David Stockman, tapped as Reagan's OMB director. They agreed nothing could help more than immediately ending the rate differential between "earned" and "unearned" income (a differential ironically imposed at the Nixon administration's urging in 1969).

But how to avoid being savaged by those "ignorant or demagogic politicians" intent on redistributing wealth? It was somewhat vaguely decided to keep the proposal under wraps until the Reagan tax package was submitted. Naturally enough, word quickly seeped out.

But the issue did not come under intense public scrutiny until Feb. 10, when the Washington Post quoted presidential counselor Edwin Meese III on page one as saying a proposed drop in "unearned" income tax rates would be contained in a hitherto unannounced second tax bill. That was a tip-off that Meese actually opposed the scheme. While the Treasury suggested a second bill as a dustbin for assorted tax schemes, it wanted "unearned" income rates handled in the first bill.

Reagan instinctively had supported the idea. But that very Feb. 10, a rainbow of Republican economic thought gathered at the White House to discuss taxes. The surprising consensus during five hours of discussions: Do not eliminate the differential between "earned" and "unearned" income.

Only one savant present, George Shultz, supported the scheme (less than vigorously). Opposed to it was everybody else from Herbert Stein (high priest of the deep root canal school of austerity) to Arthur Laffer (inventor of the Laffer Curve justifying tax reduction). So were Charles Walker, Arthur Burns and, astonishingly, none other than Kemp himself.

Kemp's rationale: It would be better to get the maximum rate on all "earned" income down to 37 percent at the end of three years (the top rate stays at 50 percent in one of the little-noticed defects of Kemp-Roth) then push for the quick drop on "unearned" income. Kemp and Laffer left the meeting elated over the prospect of a 37 percent top rate. Reagan had seemed to agree.

But later that afternoon, outside adviser Alan Greenspan entered the game. While advocating the drop in the "unearned" rate, he opposed Kemp's 37 percent "earned" rate as impractical. That was the position also taken by the Treasury and backed by Stockman.

The big political guns at the White House next wheeled into line. Meese and presidential pollster Richard Wirthlin argued that a rich man's tax cut was politically unacceptable. Meese cited supply-siders Kemp and Laffer as backing his position. But the Kemp-Laffer proposal for getting the top rate on "earned" income down to 37 percent died along with the quick drop of "unearned" rates to 50 percent.

All this is seen as tragic by George Gilder and other outsiders who consider the Reagan administration as a last hope for radical change. With even Stockman's spartan efforts unable to seriously reduce federal spending in the current physical year, such supply-siders see dramatically increased savings and investment as essential to finance the huge deficit while expanding the economy. Reagan signaled on Black Friday the 13th he will not risk bruising class warfare on Capitol Hill in quest of that goal.

Israeli diplomat in U.S.

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir is telling top U.S. officials that Israel wants their support for the resumption of talks with Egypt on the future of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Shamir, the highest ranking Israeli official to visit Washington since President Reagan took office, is also expressing concern about Israeli security should the United States approve equipment sales permitting Saudi Arabia to increase the offensive punch of its fleet of F-15 war planes.

Shamir's schedule includes a meeting today with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who has said the new administration is reviewing its entire Middle East policy and is in no rush to press for renewed autonomy talks or to set up a summit meeting between Reagan and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

The top Israeli diplomat began his visit Thursday with private meetings with the foreign affairs committees of the House and Senate.

He assured House members that Israel's elections this summer and the possibility that the Israeli parliament will oust the Begin government will have a minimal effect on U.S.-Israeli relations.

One congressman, who asked that he not be identified by name, quoted Shamir as saying there is a consensus in Israel that the peace process begun at Camp David in September 1978 should continue.

Negotiations have been at a standstill since last year. Former President Carter had planned a summit meeting with Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, but gave up the idea after Reagan was elected. Begin's mounting political problems have caused further delay.

Israel's insistence on building new settlements on the West Bank is almost certain to be raised in the Shamir-Haig talks.

Reagan broke with past administrations recently in telling reporters that he did not consider them to be illegal. Reagan did say that a "rush" to build new settlements might be ill advised and unnecessarily provocative.

But shortly thereafter, spurred by reports that Israel is reserving large tracts of land on the West Bank for even more settlements, State Department spokesman William Dyess said such actions "can only harm prospects for negotiations."

He called them "unhelpful to the peace process and ill advised."

An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said later that Israel did not view the State Department's criticism as "very serious" because Reagan was already on record as saying the outposts are not illegal.

An Israeli spokesman said on the eve of Shamir's visit that Shamir and Haig might also discuss security arrangements as Israel continues to evacuate occupied areas of the Sinai desert.

Health officials confirm five meningitis cases

DALLAS (AP) — Texas health officials have confirmed five new cases of meningitis across the state, at least one of them involving the deadly meningococcal strain.

Two cases were reported in Beaumont on the upper Texas coast, two in the Dallas suburb of Grand Prairie and one — the latest — in Houston, where the disease has afflicted 39 people and killed four.

Since the beginning of the year, there have been at least 90 cases of the viral disease statewide and 10 deaths, according to state health officials. The disease attacks the central nervous system.

In the latest Houston case, a 4-year-old boy was stricken last week. Health authorities said Thursday he is hospitalized in good condition.

Both Grand Prairie cases involved students at Grand Prairie High School, but doctors say they are not related and there is no cause for alarm.

"The students didn't know each other and they had no classes together," said school principal Phil Farris.

The students were diagnosed as meningitis victims after missing several classes during the last week in January. One of them, a 15-year-old boy, is to return to class next week but the other, a 15-year-old girl, remains hospitalized.

Meanwhile, Margie Holt, supervisor of nursing for the City of Beaumont, said two children — one from Beaumont and another from Orange County — were admitted to a hospital with the disease.

The most recent case in the Beaumont area was that of a 9-month-old Vidor infant who was admitted earlier this week to St. Elizabeth Hospital's pediatrics ward.

The child is in good condition, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

The first case, reported in January, involved a seven-month old Beaumont girl. Jan Simons, surveillance coordinator for the state health department at Austin, said the child contracted meningococcal meningitis. City health officials in Beaumont declined to provide the victim's name or current condition.

Ms. Holt said two cases do not constitute an epidemic.

"It's not uncommon to have a spasmodic case or two," she said.

Farris, in Grand Prairie, made the same point.

Plague source probed

DELL CITY, Texas (AP) — A team of plague experts has traveled to this small West Texas city near El Paso to investigate the death of a young rancher, the first human killed in the U.S. this year by bubonic plague.

The 25-year-old victim, who was not identified, apparently was bitten by diseased fleas as he skinned an infested fox about a week before he became ill, doctors said. He died shortly after being admitted to an El Paso hospital on Feb. 12.

Five people in the U.S. died last year from plague, as U.S. health officials reported a total of 18 cases of the disease, most of them in New Mexico.

The disease is transmitted from infected animals to man by fleas. It was known as the Black Death during an epidemic that killed 25 million people in Europe in the 14th Century.

Workers spray water on the smoldering remains of the Ponderosa Lodge that was destroyed by a fire. Two people were killed and 12 others injured in the blaze at the two-story wooden ski lodge. (AP Laserphoto)

Town scared, frustrated about 19-year-old underground fire

CENTRALIA, Pa. (AP) — A boy's brush with death has left residents of this small town fearful and newly frustrated over a coal mine fire that has raged beneath their streets for 19 years.

Feeding on timbers, coal and gas in a maze of abandoned anthracite tunnels that date to the 1880s, the creeping inferno is believed to have spread beneath 40 acres despite repeated attempts to curb it.

State officials toured the town Thursday, promising to appeal to the governor for help in putting out the fire. When they departed, a half dozen residents gathered on the street corner.

"Instead of going forward, we're going backwards," complained Michael Sulick, a retired miner who wants to see the fire dug out and doused, no matter the cost.

"Everybody in the town is scared. ... You can go to bed at night, but you don't know whether you'll wake up in the morning," said Sulick, referring to silent, poison gases unleashed by the fire.

"We feel like rats in a laboratory," said Bob Gadinski, a teacher who lives nearby. "No one knows what the effect of the carbon monoxide is going to be in the future. The little children — what will be the effect on them?"

Each day, inspectors from the state Health Department visit their home to see if the gases have exceeded standard levels, said Sulick's wife, Sally, unconvinced of her safety.

"My nose burns. My eyes tear. I'm like a zombie. I just feel like going to sleep all the time," she said. "If they don't soon do something for us, they'll drive us crazy."

Gazing at the street where pillars of white smoke spouted from several bore hole pipes, several residents complained that an earlier attempt to block the fire's progress with fly ash was impractical.

Two killed, 12 hurt in ski lodge fire

RED RIVER, N.M. (AP) — Fire officials were searching today for the cause of a ski lodge fire that killed two people and forced dozens of others to flee into the cold in their nightclothes.

Twelve people were injured in the fire Thursday at Ponderosa Lodge, officials said.

Mike Fawcett, of Texarkana, Texas, said he and his wife, Carol, were in their room when someone knocked on the door to warn them of the blaze.

"I put on a pair of jeans, nothing else, and rushed right out here," he said, adding the couple got into their nearby motor home and "just started picking people up just in their underclothes. It was freezing."

Police said the fire apparently started in a trash bin and spread quickly to the balcony of the room where an Oklahoma couple was staying.

The two, who were killed, apparently tried to survive by huddling in a shower, police said.

Survivors said the blaze spread rapidly.

"I don't believe that thing could have burned any faster if it was made out of cardboard," said Bill Caller, also of Texarkana.

A crew of workers operating snow-making equipment reported they saw the fire break out but the lodge was destroyed by the time they arrived.

Officials identified the dead as Stanley and Pamela Loetsch of Duncan, Okla.

The Loetschs were "literally trapped" in their room of the 20-year-old, two-story wooden lodge, said Red River Marshal Al Swann.

The injured were taken to Holy Cross Hospital in Taos, about 25 miles from the resort town.

Three of the injured were later transferred to the University of New Mexico Hospital in Albuquerque. A fourth was hospitalized at Holy Cross in stable condition with broken bones suffered when she jumped from a second-story window.

Swann said he received a call at 2:23 a.m. that there was a fire at the lodge, which has a capacity of about 60 people. Swann said three of the 21 units at the lodge were vacant.

Tommy Jones of Kennedale, Texas, said he and his wife, Linda, were in their room when "someone knocked on the door and said get out of there, there's a fire."

Mrs. Jones said, "I thought they were just kidding, but then I looked outside. I grabbed my nightgown and ran out barefoot."

Arson fears terrorize community

BRONSON, Mich. (AP) — Ralph Younce stepped from his office and surveyed the rubble on both sides of the tiny two-block downtown of this farming community.

"We don't have too much left, do we?" the 58-year-old insurance agent said Thursday after two suspicious fires in 11 days. "I've been here all my life and we've never had a serious fire. Now we have these. This is terrible."

The two fires destroyed or damaged several buildings in the small downtown area.

DEATHS

Harold P. Steck

Services for Harold Porter Steck, 71, prominent insurance agency consultant, civic and church leader and a Midland resident since 1953, will be at 11:30 a.m. Saturday in St. Luke's United Methodist Church with the Rev. O.A. McBrayer officiating. Interment will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park, with Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Steck had been associated with Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co. for 42 years.

He died Wednesday night in his home at 2603 Country Club Drive. He had been in declining health for some time and had undergone surgery last month.

Steck was born Aug. 9, 1909, at Greeley, Colo. He was graduated from the University of South Dakota School of Law. He later joined the U.S. Border Patrol, advancing to the position of senior patrol inspector, stationed at Big Spring.

He resigned from the Border Patrol to join the Fidelity Union sales organization on Feb. 1, 1939, opening offices at Big Spring. He served as a director of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, president of the Association of Life Underwriters and commander of Howard Post 355 of the American Legion. He also served as a vice president of the Big Spring Centennial Celebration.

He served as a 1st lieutenant of Infantry in the U.S. Army during World War II, serving 18 months in the South Pacific. He was a member of the Officers Reserve Association at the time of his death.

Following his release from military service, he rejoined Fidelity as West Texas district manager. He moved to Midland when the firm's office building was completed here in 1953.

He served as president of the Midland-Odessa Agents and Managers Assocation in 1956-57, and in 1963 was named Life Underwriter of the Year by the Midland Association of Life Underwriters. He had been the recipient of every honor offered by his company.

Steck resigned as West Texas manager in 1961 to re-enter the field of personal underwriting, at which time he was named senior consultant for Fidelity Union, the title he held at the time of his death. He had been awarded the National Quality Award offered by the National Association of Life Underwriters numerous times in the intervening years.

He was a former member of the Board of Stewards of St. Luke's Methodist Church and formerly served as a member of its finance and building committee.

He was a long-time member of the Midland Downtown Lions Club, serving as its president in 1967-68 and serving in various district posts.

The Downtown Lions Club honored him with a special "Harold Steck Day" last June. He had been a Lion since 1945 when he joined the club in Big Spring.

Steck also was an Objectives for Midland conferee in the late 1960s, and a former director of the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood Association.

He held memberships in the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau and Texas and National Associations of Life Underwriters.

Survivors include his wife, Helen Steck; a sister, Phyllis Noland of St. Charles, Mo.; a brother, Ronald Steck of Findlay, Ohio; a nephew and three nieces.

Pallbearers will be David E. Holster, Lester Van Pelt Jr., Victor M. Horn, Bobby Trimble, Dr. Norman Gould, W.H. "Bill" Collyns and Ervin C. Philpy, all of Midland, and Don A. Noland, a nephew, of St. Peters, Mo.

Honorary pallbearers will be all members of the Downtown Lions Club, Forrest Vaughan, Marion Taylor and Ray Gwyn, all of Midland; Dr. Carl Marcum of Kaufman; Dr. P.W. Malone and C.C. Jones of Big Spring; John Temple of El Paso; N.A. Seeley of Rapid City, S.D.; Paul Friggins of Boulder, Colo.; and E.D. Benton of Garland.

Atlanta police asked to add another child to murder list

ATLANTA (AP) — Authorities in suburban DeKalb County said today they have reopened the case of a 10-year-old black child found dead last year and recommended that he be added to Atlanta's list of missing and slain children.

Atlanta police, meanwhile, said another black child was reported missing Thursday, but that case was not immediately turned over to a special task force investigating the slayings of 17 black children and the disappearance of another.

DeKalb County Public Safety Director Dick Hand told a news conference that the case of Aaron Darnell Wyche has been reopened and classified as a homicide. Authorities originally ruled the death an accident.

"We have discussed the Wyche case with Atlanta's task force and I think it should be added to the overall list, but it's up to them," Hand said.

The child's body was found on June 24 underneath a railroad trestle in DeKalb County. The cause of death was listed as asphyxiation, but Hand said authorities believed the child had died when he fell from the trestle. Wyche was last seen alive the previous day at an Atlanta grocery store.

Hand said DeKalb police reopened the case because evidence found on and near the body indicated it could be related to the 18 other slain and missing children. He declined to say what that evidence was.

Hand also released a composite drawing of a white man wanted as a witness in the slaying of Patrick Baltazar, 11, whose body was found Feb. 13 behind an office complex in DeKalb County. Baltazar is the latest child to be found dead in the string of slayings.

The composite drawing shows a man about 27 years old with fair complexion; sandy, collar-length hair, and a mustache. Hand said he was believed to be driving a faded, light green 1969 Chevrolet.

The man may have been at the scene when the Baltazar body was discovered, he said. "I want to emphasize we want him for witness purposes only."

Atlanta police said they were looking for Curtis Walker, 13, who was last seen Thursday afternoon at a small shopping center near his home in northwest Atlanta. Police said lookouts had been broadcast for the child but his case had not yet been assigned to the police task force investigation.

The missing person report on Walker came as Gov. George Busbee predicted swift legislative approval of his request for $208,475 in state funds to help Atlanta finance the investigation into the slayings.

Sextuplets reported doing well

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Sextuplets were born to a 17-year-old girl with a plastic hip joint, one of the babies was delivered 23 days after the first five, and all are alive, two South African newspapers reported today.

They said four boys and a girl were born Oct. 15 and that a second girl was delivered Nov. 7 because the mother's uterus was twisted for a time.

The papers also said one of the babies was treated by an orthopedic surgeon for a hip problem and another infant was treated for a heart defect, but did not elaborate.

The English-language Rand Daily Mail and the Afrikaans-language Beeld newspapers said the reason the births were not announced at the time was that the father was still married to another woman.

They said the mother, Chairmain Peterson, has a plastic hip joint as a result of a childhood bout with polio. They said she had not taken fertility drugs.

The papers said the father was Frank Craig, a well-known 41-year-old fisherman.

Economic plan broom and prod

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan's economic plan is a big broom and a prod. It is designed to sweep away the governmental cobwebs that thwart productivity and goad the private sector into greater activity.

There is no question at all about how the economy is viewed:

The vast federal government, growing out of control, is killing off the nation's ability to sustain itself economically. If the economy is to be saved, power must be restored to the people, from whence it came.

It represents a huge effort, one the Reagan people say will pay for itself in the improved performance of households and industry and, as a consequence, the improved performance of the U.S. government itself.

If the plan is on target, for example, the country will turn a $54.5 billion deficit this year into a $500 million surplus in fiscal 1984. And that, we are told, would be just the beginning of the better times.

By 1985 the surplus would rise to $6.9 billion, and it would leap to $29.9 billion in 1986. No claims are made beyond that time, but the suggestion is clear: By then, the economy will be prosperous.

The prospertiy will be real too, unlike the ersatz type the president said we had become used to, that is, bigger pay checks but even bigger bills. And one of the main agents of that prosperity will be tax cuts.

Individual taxes will be cut 10 percent on July 1, and 10 percent more on the same date in each of two succeeding years. Industry will be able to lower taxes through accelerated depreciation, retroactive to Jan. 1. With financial power in hand, and freed from regulatory harassment, individuals and industry will have the cash and inclination to invest, the inducement being the prospect of a real return for the risk taken.

As government spending continues to be reduced as a percentage of gross national product — from a record 23 percent now to 19.3 in fiscal 1984 — and as money is put to more efficient use in the private sector, production will grow, reaching 5 percent or so late this year.

All these factors will tend to reduce high unemployment, inflation and interest rates, which have been wasting money or restricting the productive use of it. Inflation may even come down to 6 percent by late 1982. Interest rates, now near records high, and unemployment, now numbering nearly 8 million people, will fall substantially.

The program is designed to strip back government and rebuild the private sector, which the Reagan administration obvioulsy feels is the fountainhead of ingenuity, innovation, job-making and productivity.

And if it comes to be — a matter over which Congress, special interest groups, beneficiaries and others will have a say — it will represent, depending on viewpoint, either a new beginning or a big step backward.

The plan is on a momentous scale, with all but two areas of government involvement spared from the ax.

According to the White House summary fact sheet, the President's program stresses two "overriding" priorities:

"Sufficient budget resources must be provided to rebuild the nation's defense capacities;

"The social safety net of income security measures erected in the 1930s to protect the elderly, unemployed, and poor, as well as veterans, must be maintained."

Otherwise, no sacred program is immune to the gaze of the time and motion study man: "Ineffective federal programs, including CETA public service jobs, AMTRAK, energy technology commercialization programs, impact aid, federal support for the arts," says the fact sheet.

And if Big Government bows out of such areas, if it no longer pays the bills for job training and developing new energy sources and supporting the arts, who will step in to lend a hand and a dollar bill?

The private sector, of course. The freed, revitalized, inspired and newly prospering private sector. Or, as one inspired with the new philosophy might say: The people themselves.

That's the plan, the vision, the hope. And, of course, it soon will become the battle too, because nothing so vast can ever come to be without a battle royal.

Reagan will find anxiety in Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — When he visits Canada next month, President Reagan will find irritation over troublesome issues between the two neighboring nations and anxiety about what his policies will mean for North America and the world.

The overnight visit March 10-11, announced in Washington Wednesday, will be Reagan's first presidential trip abroad. The implication, that Canada is still regarded as America's closest friend, is not lost on the Canadians. Although he may run into the notorious Canadian winter, the new president can expect an otherwise warm welcome.

The disputes between the two countries range from fish to foul air and involve many billions of dollars, both American and Canadian.

For the Canadians, the most serious issue is the East Coast Fisheries and Marine Boundaries Treaties.

Hearing waived

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Health Facilities Commission has waived a public hearing scheduled for Thursday concerning an application by Midland Memorial Hospital to relocate and expand its medical records department.

Plans are to expand the department by 1,150 square feet for a total of 2,350 square feet.

Also the hospital plans to purchase an automated record storage/retrieval system and other equipment. The medical staff room and library also would be expanded.

The hearing was waived because the Commission ruled that the hospital already had presented enough evidence to support its case. The application now will go to a regular voting session for consideration.

Alaskans readying parka, dog sled for John Paul II

By BRUCE BARTLEY
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — More people have lined the streets of Manila to see the pope than live in all of Alaska, but Catholics hope they'll make up in enthusiasm what they lack in numbers when John Paul II stops here for three hours next week.

The final stitches are being put in a special parka, a seal skin is being stretched over a driftwood kayak frame and parachutes are being packed as Alaska prepares for Thursday's visit, a refueling stop as the pope heads back to Rome following a 10-day trip to Asia.

Although some crowd predictions have ranged as high as 125,000, Brother Charles McBride, who helped organize the pope's 1979 visit to Chicago, thinks 40,000 is a more likely number.

About half the state's 400,000 people live in the Anchorage area.

The pope's only other American stop on his current tour will be in Guam on Sunday. The pope was in the Philippines today.

After a greeting from local dignitaries and Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, representing President Reagan, the pope will travel downtown by motorcade to Holy Family Cathedral, where he will hold an ecumenical prayer service.

When he emerges from the cathedral, he will be greeted by a sled dog team, native dancers and the traditional Eskimo blanket toss. McBride said it is uncertain whether the pope will ride in the sled, but it will be available if he wishes to do so.

Several choirs will be on hand, and members of a local parachute club plan to form a cross overhead during a 6,000-foot free-fall.

McBride, however, warned that the Polish-born pontiff's independent manner often makes shambles of scheduling and itineraries.

The gifts to be offered the pope include a traditional knee-length Eskimo parka known as a "kuspuk." The muslin garment will be lined with rabbit fur, with wolverine fur trimming the bottom and the hood.

The parkas normally are pullovers, but native seamstresses will put a concealed zipper in the one being made for the pope to make it easier for him to don and remove.

Other gifts include a polar bear skin and the kayak, being made by Yupik Eskimos in the Yukon River Delta village of Chevak.

Tribal dancers greet island-hopping Pope

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

ILOILO, Philippines (AP) — Pope John Paul II island-hopped across the Philippines today, urging an end to Moslem-Christian warfare and protection of workers' rights. He got an exuberant welcome here from spear-brandishing tribal dancers, wildly shaking their bodies to throbbing drum beats.

More than 1 million people crowded the route from the airport into this steaming central Philippine city, the pope's third stop of the day. Many waved the yellow and white Vatican flag, and barefoot children and mothers with babies strapped to their backs craned for a look at the pope.

Nine elderly patients in wheelchairs, some still hooked up to intravenous feeding lines, waited outside the local hospital holding up a sign saying, "Mabuhay," or "Welcome" to the pontiff, who responded by making the sign of the cross.

In a speech in Iloilo's main plaza, the pope stressed the importance of religious education.

The pope's first stop of the day was the Mindanao island city of Davao in the southern Philippines, where he urged an end to the Moslem-Christian warfare that has taken more than 50,000 lives in the area in the past eight years.

Celebrating Mass at the Davao airport, he urged 300,000 cheering Roman Catholics to "see and love Christ in your neighbors." Afterward he told a delegation of 26 pro-government Moslems in the airport lounge they, too, should strive for a "more fraternal society" and "a climate of mutual esteem and trust."

"I wish you to be convinced that your Christian brothers and sisters need you and they need your love," he declared. "And the whole world, with its longing for greater peace, brotherhood and harmony, needs to see fraternal coexistence between Christians and Moslems in a modern, believing and peaceful Philippine nation."

"If my visit here would only make all of you love one another just a little bit more ... then my visit, by God's grace, would be fruitful and worthwhile," said the pope in his address during the Mass.

Oregon residents to avoid raw milk

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — Health officials are warning people not to drink raw milk following an outbreak of a bacterial disease affecting about 100 residents of Linn and Benton counties.

Raw milk is commonly available in supermarket dairy cases here.

Dr. Benjamin Bonnlander, Linn County health officer, said Thursday that the disease, characterized by diarrhea, aches and fever, is caused by campylobacter bacteria.

Investigators from the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta arrived Feb. 11 to conduct the studies with the help of local officials.

Bank treasure is shown to all

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The Pueblo Indian pots gracing the windows of the Fayette Bank & Trust Co. barely hint at the treasures inside.

The pots, some more than 700 years old, are part of a wide-ranging collection of "exotic art" gathered by the bank's president, Jay C. Leff.

"There are tremendous rarities in that bank," said Leon Arkus, director emeritus of Pittsburgh's Carnegie Institute Museum of Art.

Rare and powerful pieces of art, some dating to 20,000 B.C., are on display at tellers' windows and in private offices in the bank.

Leff, 54, is considered an important collector of the artwork, Arkus said, though the banker has no formal training in the subject.

The heart of the stunning display is in Leff's office, where the bearded banker, welcomes visitors.

"This is a working office, but it's a gallery, too," he said.

A long, wooden counter along one wall is covered by statues, masks, and other objects from around the world. Some of the items are among the most perfect examples preserved. Others are unique.

Leff described a handful of his favorites.

"She is exceedingly sensual," the banker said of a brass statue of a woman made in the 16th century by the Basohli culture of Asia. "That could be the finest item from that culture."

A long-legged, sand-colored horse from the Haniwa culture of Japan in 600-700 A.D. dominates one end of the counter.

"It's a mortuary piece made of clay. They were buried in a sand-like base. Those legs went into the sand. It's the largest and finest horse (of its kind) outside of Japan," he said.

Further down the counter is a necklace of 28 carved jaguar teeth, once worn by Mayan priests. Now it rests in a black velvet case. "As far as I know, there is no other complete necklace," Leff said.

The banker once owned about 3,000 pieces, but has refined the collection to 600 to 700 items.

In recent years, Leff has steered his buying to North American art. At first, he said, he decided an eclectic collection was too much trouble and aggravation. Later, he added a more philosophical reason.

"I am pessimistic about the condition of the world. I anticipate more violence than is in the world today. I'd like not to be responsible for the things that should be preserved.

Snacks increasing in diets

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

A recent survey by the New York State Cooperative Extension Service says that America's fondness for snacks has reached a point where one in three of us skips breakfast, one in five misses lunch and one in 20 goes without dinner.

Sales of snacks last year topped $6 billion, not including soft drinks, the survey says. The favorite of most munchers is the cracker. Two out of every three households reportedly keep pretzels or crackers handy.

There's nothing wrong with crackers per se. Many are delicious and probably quite nourishing. But if you are trying to lose weight, don't substitute crackers for bread. You are taking aboard more calories and usually more salt.

For instance, a pound of saltines has 54 grams of fat, the survey says, compared with 17 for a pound of enriched white bread.

DEAR ABBY

Leaving a sour note

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am taking voice lessons from a teacher whose fee is $45 an hour.

My problem is that when I started, he gave me an hour of his undivided attention. Now he takes time to get his messages from his answering service, and he even makes telephone calls on my time. During my lesson yesterday, he was busy on the phone for 13 minutes! (I timed him.)

I am not rich. In fact, I must make some sacrifices to study with him. He's an excellent voice teacher, and I want to continue studying with him, but he has a waiting list for pupils, so I have to be careful not to offend him. Can you help me? — SHORTCHANGED IN N.Y.

DEAR SHORTCHANGED: There's only one way to handle it. In pear-shaped tones, sing out that you expect his undivided attention during your lessons. If he's offended and drops you, there are many excellent voice teachers in New York who, for $45 an hour, will give you your money's worth.

DEAR ABBY: I was trying to tell my cousin that the children of one's first cousin are NOT second cousins, they are first cousins ONCE REMOVED, and she said I was crazy. I read this in your column not long ago, but unfortunately, I didn't clip it.

Will you please explain the cousin relationship again? And this time go into the grandnephew, grandniece, and great-aunt and great-uncle as well as great-grand-aunt and great-grand-uncle relationships. Thank you. — NEEDS PROOF

DEAR NEEDS: The child of your parent's brother of sister is your first cousin. However, your first cousin's child is NOT your second cousin, but your first cousin ONCE REMOVED. The child of your first cousin once removed is your first cousin TWICE REMOVED, and HIS child is your first cousin three times removed.

Your second cousin is your grandparent's brother's (or sister's) grandchild. That second cousin's child is your second cousin once removed, his child your second cousin twice removed, and so on.

And your third cousin? It's your great-grandparent's brother's (or sister's) great-grandchild. The third cousin's child is your third cousin once removed, his child is your third cousin twice removed.

The grandchild of your brother or sister is your grandnephew or grandniece.

The sister or brother of your grandparent is your great-aunt or great-uncle.

The sister or brother of your great-grandparent is your great-grand-aunt or great-grand-uncle.

Whew! Isn't this grand? Or is it great?

DEAR ABBY: Every year, elaborate plans are made for class reunions. It's fun to get together with former classmates to renew old friendships and see old schoolmates. But I wonder how many former school teachers are invited?

There are many teachers, principals and coaches who are still around and would enjoy the reunion, too. Please ask your readers to consider this when plans are being made for high school reunions. Thank you. — ON THE OUTSIDE LOOKING IN

DEAR ON: Your signature tells a rather sad story. Readers, please take note.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Her advice? Cut grocery bills with refunds, saving labels

LAKE DALLAS — Mitzi Eades walked away from the grocery store with $3,900 worth of free groceries last year.

Mitzi is a member of that ever-growing army of cost-conscious consumers who refuse to accept inflation as a way of life. These cost-conscious consumers call themselves "refunders." They regularly take advantage of the more than 7,000 refunds made by over 1,000 companies each year.

Mitzi acquired the nickname of Aunt Trash as a result of her refusal to throw away anything. Because of her refusal to throw anything away, she received checks, cash, gifts and free products worth over $3,900 in 1980. She's looking forward to an even better year in 1981.

Mitzi says "Anyone can do it. It doesn't take any special awareness, intelligence or ability. It only requires a desire to provide for your family on fewer dollars."

During 1980, Mitzi made several spectacular shopping trips. Once she bought $42 worth of groceries for 20 cents, another time she bought $123 worth for 23 cents, still another time $213 for 19 cents, and on, and on, and on. These super shopping trips sound spectacular, and they are, but she doesn't suggest that this is the best way to walk away from the grocery store with money still in your pocket. She suggests that this type of shopping be done on a less dramatic scale. She advocates buying on sale, using coupons and taking advantge of refund offers.

"Always buy with refunds in mind," she cautions. "When you empty a jar of ketchup, mustard or anything else, don't throw it away without removing the label.

"Save the labels! That's the key! There may not be a refund today, but there will be, someday," she further tells us. "When a particular company makes an offer, the knowledgeable refunder simply goes to her file to get the necessary proofs of purchase, instead of going to the store to buy the products." Proofs of purchase may be anything the company asks for as proof of purchase. It may be part of a label, the entire label, an inner seal or any number of things, even cash register tapes.

When a company makes an offer of a refund, it normally requires that a form printed by the company be used. The form is called a refund form. It explains what proof of purchase is needed, and what the consumer must do to claim the refund. To be a successful refunder, it is necessary to have a reliable method of knowing what refunds are available at any given time.

Several refunding bulletins provide this information on a monthly basis to their subscribers. The experienced refunder will subscribe to one, two or even more refunding bulletins to keep abreast of the current offers.

It doesn't happen overnight, but it doesn't take all that long to become a really skilled refunder. Mitze says that by the end of six months, you'll see a really big difference in your grocery bill, and every day's mail will bring money.

It's possible, no, probable, for a good refunder to pocket anywhere from 50-90 percent of the grocery money, depending on the effort and amount of time expended. Mitzi claims to spend four to five hours to get 90 percent of her groceries free.

Mitzi writes a weekly refunding column on a national scale. She is also the editor of a monthly refunding bulletin known as "Mitzi's Mad Money." She has also written and published a book which has been a tremendous asset to the beginning refunder.

The book, "Aunt Trash or Cut Your Grocery Bill Without Sacrificing Necessities, Luxuries or Quality" tells you how to do it, and the bulletin, "Mitzi's Mad Money," tells you where the offers are.

To get started in refunding, read her column, "Aunt Trash," each week, or subscribe to Mitzi's Mad Money. A year's subscription is $10. The book is $2.49. Both are available from Breakout Publications, P.O. Box 926, Lake Dallas, Tex. 75065.

Mitzi gives one last word of warning. "Once you get into it, you're hooked. It's easy to get addicted to refunding."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Paper roll blues

DEAR HELOISE:

This may not save money, but will save us some frustration.

No one ever tells me when they put out the last roll of paper towels or toilet tissue.

Since I color-coordinate these items (pink in the bathroom — yellow in the kitchen), I've found an answer.

I hide the very last roll of paper towels in a different spot that's difficult to find (you have to get down and look). It's always a different color (preferably one I hate).

As soon as I see that awful color on the rack, I know it's time to buy another supply. When I make my next trip to the store, I again purchase my coordinating color and put the odd color back in the cabinet, back behind the pretty ones.

The same scheme works for the toilet tissue. If that hateful color is seen on the roll, my alert signal goes off again. — Mary Wells

Great system, Mary, but tell us how you get the family to put even the awful color roll on the holder? — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: I noticed you doing a demonstration on TV recently where you showed a neat way to shell hard-boiled eggs.

I immediately went to my kitchen to try my hand. After putting the eggs into the water to boil and setting my timer, I began doing other chores in the house.

When the timer went off, I poured off the water off as instructed and began to vigorously shake the eggs in the pan.

Sure enough, in all my enthusiasm, I forgot one important step: I forgot to turn on the burner to cook them!

It's still a great hint, 'cause next time I did it right! — Janice

Ex-hostage gives mementos to library

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ex-hostage William Royer has solved the problem of where to store the good wishes of a nation.

He packed his Cadillac's trunk with letters, banners and home-made greetings sent him during his captivity in Iran and took the collection to his alma mater for the first public display of hostage mementos.

"There'll have to be some sorting out," Royer warned University of Texas librarians as he carted the reminders of his 444-day ordeal into the Barker Texas History Center on Wednesday.

"I'm very happy to find a home for many of the inspired and creative items citizens all around the United States" sent to his Houston residence, Royer said.

The collection, which will be put on public display, includes hand-lettered cards from elementary school students, banners signed by entire high school student bodies, a Christmas card from the city of Birmingham, Ala., and a flag that flew over a Houston home throughout the hostage crisis.

Spokesman Don Carleton said the library's collection of hostage mementos is the first such effort in the nation.

High school students using less pot

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Marijuana use among high school seniors appeared to drop off in 1980 — the first decline in 20 years — but experimentation with some harder drugs seems to have risen, researchers at the University of Michigan say.

And while American high schools likely never will be drug-free, the overall use of illicit drugs apparently has leveled off, according to a report released Wednesday by the university's Institute for Social Research.

"We still have a long way to go before we return to anything like the relatively drug-free years of the '50s," said Lloyd Johnston, one of three social psychologists who compiled the report.

"In fact, it seems unlikely that we ever will return to those levels. But the dramatic rise over the last two decades in the proportion of young people involved with illicit drugs appears at or very near an end," he said.

The report was based on a comparison of questionnaire responses from nearly 17,000 seniors in the class of 1980 with seniors from previous classes. Results of the five-year, nationwide survey will be published next month by the National Institute on Drug Abuse as "Highlights from Student Drug Use in America 1975-1980."

There was no indication how the students were chosen to receive questionnaires or what the margin of error was in projecting the results.

The study by Johnston, Jerald Bachman and Patrick O'Malley revealed that in 1980, a larger percentage of students than in years past has at least experimented with stimulants and the sedative methaqualone, better known as Quaaludes.

"The proportion of all seniors who have ever used an illicit drug other than marijuana has risen slowly since 1976 — from 35 percent in 1976 to 39 percent in 1980," the researchers wrote.

They found cocaine was increasingly popular, along with such prescription stimulants as amphetamines, which are the most widely used illicit drugs other than marijuana. At least one of every four students responding said they had at least tried them, the report said.

Marijuana use, meanwhile, declined slightly, probably because of peer pressure and increasing conservatism among high school students regarding drugs, the report said.

"It now appears that 1978 and 1979 may have marked the crest of a long and dramatic rise in marijuana use among American high school students," the researchers concluded.

Only 34 percent of the students had used marijuana in the month before the 1980 survey, compared with 37 percent the year before, the study found.

And the number of seniors who frequently used marijuana declined from a high of 11 percent in 1978 to 9 percent in 1980.

The researchers also speculated that the decline also may be attributed to medical studies that found new health risks associated with marijuana use.

The level of drug use in America, nevertheless, "is probably higher than that in any other industrialized nation in the world," they added.

Fireworks banned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There will be no more bottle rockets sold by city limit fireworks stores, the Senate said Wednesday.

The measure, approved 29-0 by the Senate, goes to the House for a final decision.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, author of the bill, said fire prevention officials say that 70 to 80 percent of all fires caused by fireworks are caused by the small rockets that are launched from a cold drink bottle. Many of them land on nearby roofs.

"This is an agreement with the fireworks people," he said. "Selling bottle rockets is a big part of their business but they don't want the responsibility for all the fires and are willing to give up these sales."

Your horoscope

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Witty humorist Erma Bombeck shares this birthday with you, as does dynamic Larry Hagman—the wicked "J.R." on TV's "Dallas." In the year ahead, Pisceans who are self-employed will make greater strides forward than those who work for others. So if your regular job is not a fulfilling one, you may want to explore the possibilities of free-lancing on weekends. It will take lots of hard work and dedication for you to achieve the successes you envision. Romance moves into high gear in early fall and again around Christmas. Attractive newcomer shares both your ambition and your wide-ranging interests.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This holiday weekend proves to be lots of fun. Mate shows new interest in your special goal. A romantic interlude could change the course you plan to follow in the future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Innovative ideas lead you in exciting new directions. Be sure to keep loved ones informed of your plans. Change in money situation helps relieve tension. You find imaginative solutions to pesky problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Weekend plans may have to be revised because of some event affecting loved ones. New parent-child understanding inspires older people to resolve their differences. Family members draw closer together.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish any major tasks you have begun before going out shopping. Diet and exercise programs can be quite successful now. Search for new apartment or house could be part of day's plan.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Heed inner voice. Mixed emotions regarding new romantic partner gives you cause to say "no". Someone may change his or her mind at the last minute. Spur-of-the-moment invitation holds great promise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Know your priorities and stick to them. Do what your heart tells you is right. Member of opposite sex will be impressed by your idealism. Put teenager on regular allowance to avoid squabbles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Weekend project could hold certain romantic overtones. Social life is on the upswing. Keep your distance from those who seem to be unhappy all the time. Entertainment costs should be kept at reasonable level.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your willingness to help others will be rewarded in a unique way. Unexpected disclosure will thrill you! Flowers or a small love token will delight those who are romantically inclined.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This should be a very interesting weekend for romance. Do not risk your future happiness by indulging someone else's whim. It is impossible to be enthusiastic without being foolish.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be a bit bored by today's slow pace but you profit from extra rest, relaxation. Someone you once doubted now shows you the importance of trust. New alliance looks promising.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You find that you are now getting more out of life than in the recent past. Older person shares valuable experience that can help you live better. Delay signing legal document.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Early replies to letters can mean more good times in the near future. You receive an invitation you did not anticipate. Hobby could grow in importance. Travel will be a source of delight.

4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Bridge is not a game for hotheads. If you get rattled and make a hasty play, you might find that you have lightened your wallet unnecessarily.

North made the technically correct opening bid of the suit below his singleton. When South responded one spade, North realized that there should be a play for game even if his partner had a minimum response, so he took the pressure off his partner by jumping to four spades.

West led the king of clubs and hit the panic button when he saw dummy. He was afraid of setting up two club tricks in dummy, so he decided to shift. In an effort to cut down on dummy's ruffing ability, he led the ace of trumps and another.

Declarer won in hand and led another club, and the ace of clubs was the last trick for the defense. Two of declarer's diamonds were discarded on dummy's queen and jack of clubs.

Had West retained his composure, he might have found the winning defense. He could account for three probable tricks in his own hand and, unless partner held the king of spades, the only source of a fourth trick was the diamond suit. For a trick to materialize there, East would have to hold the queen of diamonds.

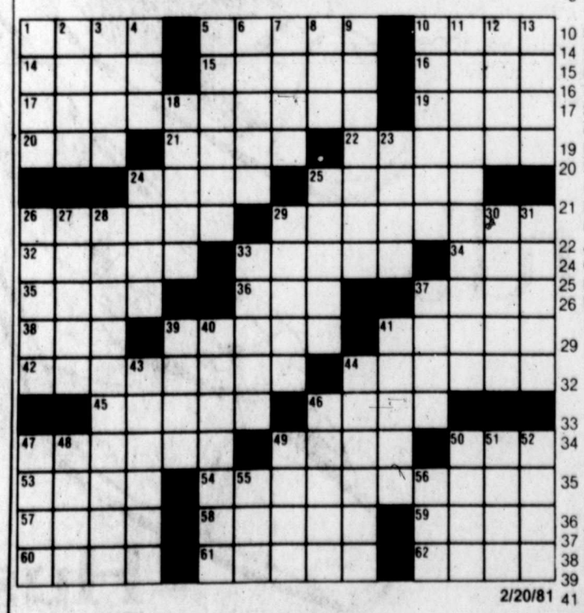

Thus, West should have concentrated on making sure that declarer had no place to get rid of his diamond losers. Clubs represented a source of discards, so West should have tried to neutralize that suit.

After winning the king of clubs, West should continue with the ace and another club. Declarer can take one diamond discard, but that is all. When declarer leads a trump, West must grab the ace and lead a fourth round of clubs. East ruffs and, although declarer can overruff, he is deprived of his second diamond discard. No matter how hard he tries, he has no way to avoid losing the setting trick to East's queen of diamonds.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Confederate Air Force Col. Joe Mabee of Midland makes a strafing pass over his ranch in his Grumman F4F-4 Wildcat, a World War II aircraft carrier-based fighter. Colonels get primed for spot landing

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Those gray-clad colonels who take their flying more seriously than they do themselves will be trying to "hit the spot" Saturday afternoon in a spot-landing contest at Big Spring Airport.

Their aim preferably will be to bring it in gently or, in the alternative, to "plunk down" their aircraft on a mark about 1,500 feet beyond the threshold of the 9,150-foot 17-right runway at the old Webb Air Force Base. That approach is contingent on the headwinds. If the winds shift, the approach will from the other end of the 150-foot wide strip.

Entry fee is $1.78, unless you're a newcomer — then you pay $2.02.

"Everybody's out practicing," said Col. Joe Mabee of the Confederate Air Force."I don't need practicing; I'm already real good."

For humor's sake, Mabee talks like one of those cocky fighter pilots who wouldn't be seen incognito in a bomber, although he owns and flies a twin-engine A-26 Invader.

MABEE, WHO'S always primed to fly, looked down the mile-long landing strip at his ranch on an afternoon this week and spied a couple of light aircraft winging in for a landing.

One, a DeHavilland Chipmunk piloted by Col. Paul Erdmann, settled on the strip but veered as if it were looking for a bite of dust with it propeller, righted itself and taxied on in. Behind him was Col. Tom Cloyd in a 1950 Cessna 140.

Mabee, in the CAF tradition, joshed Erdmann even before the colonel was within earshot.

"Erdmann has trouble finding the airport, let alone finding the runway," Mabee said.

Erdmann, who's leader of the CAF's Desert Squadron, will be flying his Chipmunk in all of its glorious British markings to the spot-landing bash.

And just as Mabee had ribbed him, Erdmann returned the compliment.

"That's cheating," Erdmann charged of Mabee's unsolemn pledge to fly his antique Grumman F4F-4 Wildcat naval fighter in the spot-landing contest. "That's made for landing on a carrier."

Mabee has vowed to "blow" or otherwise "blast" every other pilot, especially Big Spring's Connie Edwards, off the runway with the prop-wash of his immaculate Wildcat.

Approximately 25 CAF colonels flying warbirds from the 1939-1945 era and other aircraft made before and after the World War II will be flying in the just-for-fun spot-landing contest. Admission is free.

The idea for the spot landing was devised by Erdmann.The contest is being coordinated by Col. Tom Dollahite, who made up the rules and who is toying with the idea of flying Mabee's A-26 Douglas Invader in the landing. The A-26 is a twin-engine attack bomber that's fast, sassy and as mean as an aroused and hungry tiger.

THE CONTEST PITS the Midland-Odessa CAF Desert Squadron against eight other squadrons in the CAF's West Texas Wing and against the New Mexico Wing. The action will start warming up about noon Saturday.

Col. Robb Satterfield, the Desert Squadron's training officer, will brief the pilots; Col. Bill Stepp, the squadron's safety officer, will talk safe flying. Col. Doug Warren of Big Spring will host the post-landing bash in R.E. "Bob" McClure's Trans Regional-Air hangar.

Dollahite has set rules for both tail-draggers and tricycle-landing geared aircraft pilots to abide by:

—Tailwheel airplanes are to land on the "spot" in the three-point attitude. If, however, all three wheels do not simultaneously touch the runway, the five judges will "award" the pilot a 300-foot penalty.

—Nosewheel aircraft are to land nose high; the main landing gear's tires are to touch the pavement at the same time. If the three wheels on a tricycle-geared aircraft hit the pavement at the same time, the judges will assess the 300-foot penalty.

—Power is critical. Once an aircraft is 300 feet above runway on final approach, the pilot may not increase power. If he does, he will be docked 300 feet.

—The judges' "suitable landing" standards also means that aircraft have survived the landing; the airplanes must be able to exit the runway under their own power. Pilots of crashed aircraft will be docked.

Each pilot will be permitted three landings. Scores will be figured on the total distance in feet from the point of touchdown to the nearest main gear tire to the center of the landing spot.

Rules outlaw rotorcraft, including helicopters and autogyros; gliders, airships and balloons.

The Piper Super Cub, which Mabee revels in calling "Paper Cub," and the Cessna 140, which Col. Dallas Smith may be flying in lieu of his and Satterfield's Mustang, can land on the proverbial dime.

But what may penalize many of the fun fliers will be another one of Dollahite's rules: each pilot in the spot-landing contest must fly the type aircraft of his highest rating.

The air over Big Spring will be reverberating with the sounds of warbirds, possible including AT-6s, BT-13 Vibrators, the STOL Fieseler Storch, Wildcat, Invader, Stearman biplane, Me. 108, Harvard Mark II and IV, the F4U Corsair, other warbirds, and a host of Mabee-deemed "Paper Cubs."

Erdmann, true to the CAF tradition, in absentia "shot down" Smith, the Midland County sheriff, whom the CAF accuses of "running the best little ol' jailhouse in Texas." The sheriff may be flying something far less powerful than that Mustang.

"Even Dallas is back in his (Cessna) 140," said Erdmann, "and he was calling around, looking around, for an instructor."

Erdmann promises a decent spot landing, judged by Edwards, Cloyd, Dollahite, Stepp and Warren.

"It's going to be fair and square."

Harris trial jurors enter fourth day of deliberation

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — With Jean Harris "stashed" at a secret location minutes away, weary jurors were going back to court today for their fourth day of deliberations in the trial of the former headmistress, who is accused of murdering Dr. Herman Tarnower.

The panel quit early in exhaustion Thursday after listening to a stenographer read Mrs. Harris' account of the March 10 shooting of the millionaire Scarsdale Diet developer, her longtime lover.

Defense lawyer Joel Aurnou said his client also was exhausted and that he remained "worried sick" as long as the jury was out.

Looking tired and pale, Mrs. Harris appeared briefly on the arm of her brother and sister to hear her testimony read.

Aurnou said she had been "stashed" nearby and would not return to court unless the jury asked to rehear testimony or announced a verdict.

Carl Vergari, the Westchester district attorney, said he was "delighted" the eight-woman, four-man panel, which received the case Tuesday, began its deliberations by scrutinizing Mrs. Harris' account of the shooting.

The 57-year-old former administrator of The Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., is charged with killing her lover of 14 years in a bedroom of his Purchase, N.Y., house in what the prosecution maintains was a jealous rage over Tarnower's affair with a younger woman.

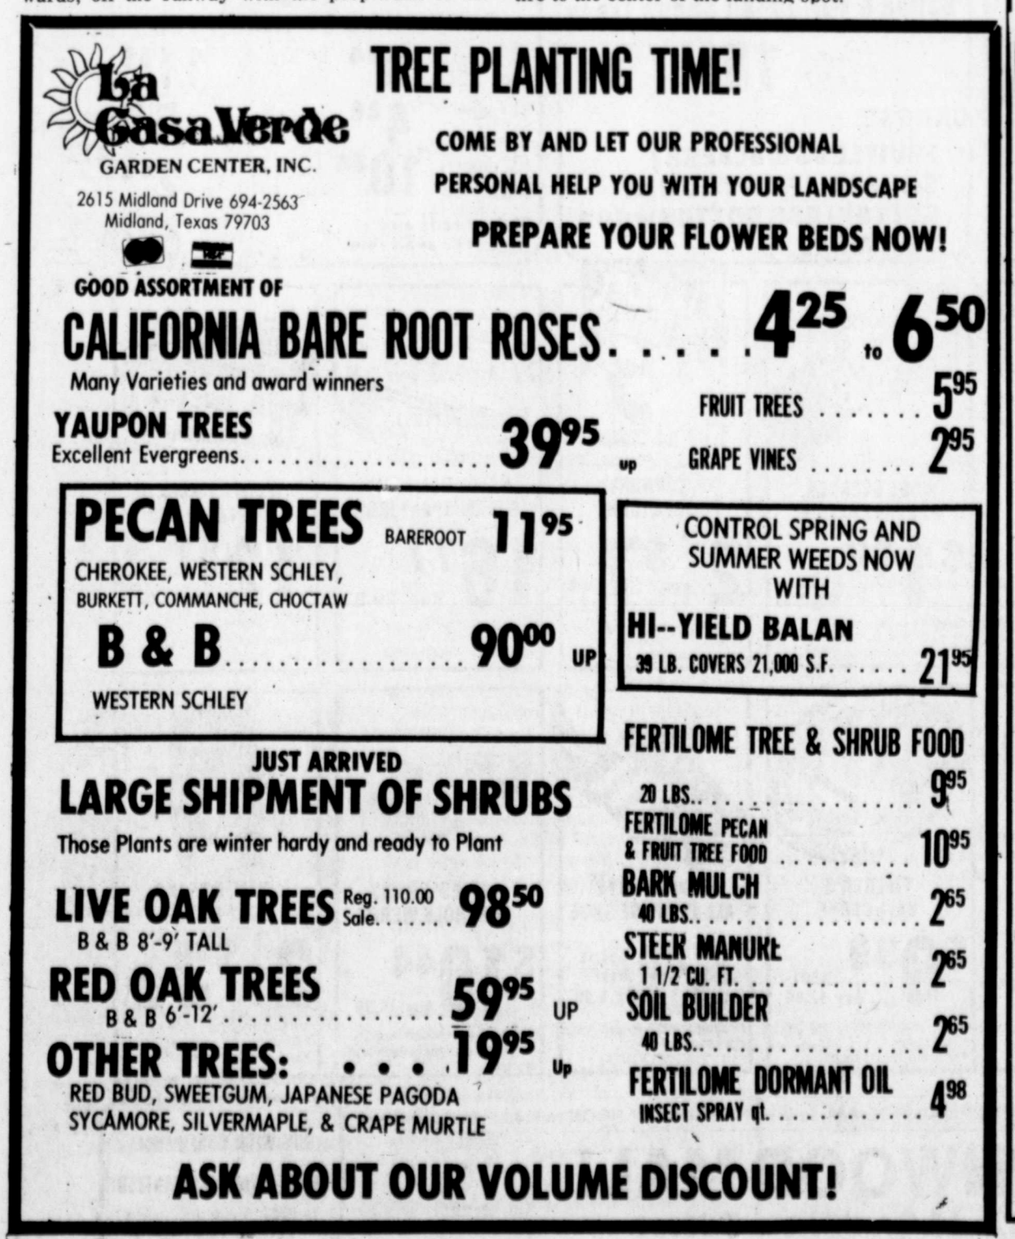

During her eight days on the witness stand, Mrs. Harris testified that she only remembered shooting the 69-year-old Tarnower in the hand as he grabbed for her gun in what she said was an attempt to kill herself.

Jurors interrupted the court stenographer's reading of her testimony several times to hear details of the struggle.

Stenographer Jerry Pellis read several times Mrs. Harris' testimony that Tarnower grabbed her wrist as she tried to retrieve the gun to kill herself.

Egyptian ambassador enjoying assignment in Israel

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Ambassador Saad Mortada of Egypt sees the holes in his social calendar as a sign that peace between Egypt and Israel is taking root. Nearly a year after taking up his post, the novelty of an Arab ambassador in Israel is wearing off.

Mortada is quietly overseeing the first steps toward friendly relations and trying to persuade Israeli skeptics that peace is worth withdrawing from the security belt of the Sinai Peninula and its abundant oil seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

His arrival here Feb. 24, 1980, heralded a new era in the Middle East: the opening of full diplomatic relations between Israel and an Arab country after 32 years of hot and cold war. The process was begun in the Camp David meetings among President Jimmy Carter, Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt.

His reception at that time surprised him. "At first there was a rush to invite me everywhere. Now I feel that I am treated more normally. I don't attract attention any more," he said in an interview at his embassy in a middle-class neighborhood of Tel Aviv.

"That gives me a sense of normalization between our countries."

Mortada is persona non grata in the Arab world, which has cast out Egypt as a traitor to the Arab cause because of its peace efforts with Israel. Last year he held a family reunion in Western Europe instead of Morocco, where he was once ambassador, because the Moroccans would not let him into the country.

"Any regret I have is not because I cannot go to these countries, but because they don't understand us. Egypt is the only country that is trying to solve the problem," he said.

Mortada, a bachelor and career diplomat who has served in North Africa and East Europe, says he finds Tel Aviv living "comfortable." He studies Hebrew, eats at the kitchen table "with the children" in the homes of Israeli friends and enjoys the social rounds of the foreign diplomatic community in Israel.

But he bridles at the constant shadow of Israeli security agents who follow him on the golf course and into restaurants. "We have a saying — he who is afraid dies 100 deaths. I'd rather die only once," he said.

His key task is to nudge along the normalization of Egyptian-Israeli relations — trade, tourism, culture — that the Israelis demand constantly as a kind of barometer of the climate of peace.

For instance, Israel recently had an unpleasant experience at the Cairo International Book Fair. Its exhibit was placed next to a Palestinian stand and it was forced to take down its flag. Israelis were outraged.

Columnist Yoel Marcus of the influential Haaretz newspaper called normalization a "delusion" and a "one-sided courtship."

Mortada called Marcus into his office to refute the charges. "Such people are not informed," he says, pointing to achievements of the last year ranging from tourism (50,000 Israelis to Egypt, 1,500 Egyptians to Israel) to cooperation between gynecologists on birth control.

But Mortada walks a thin line with doubters in his own Foreign Ministry in Cairo who argue that full relations with Israel deepens Egypt's isolation in the Arab world.

"Normalization is proceeding normally," he says. He meets regularly with Israeli reporters and says he enjoys meeting Israeli "extremists" who object to the peace process as a threat to Israeli security.

"I have no ambitions to convince them, but I want to show them the other side of the coin," he said.

Israel probably will be Mortada's last post and he is looking forward to retirement at 60 in two years.

"Until then I have a mission to finish," he said. He wants to witness Israel's evacuation from the final one-third of the Sinai Penisula in April 1982, to see the level of normalization raised and to see a resolution of the Palestinian problem.

"Then I can celebrate the end of my career."

ON THE ROAD

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a new weekly column in which questions, anecdotes and observations about driving will be shared.

By SUE ALFORD
Traffic Safety Planning
Midland College

In the past year, you probably were very aware of all the motorcycle accidents reported in the news. Well, that's because there were a lot ... in Midland, 102 to be exact, with two fatalities and 89 injuries.

With gasoline prices spiraling, we're going to see more and more motorcycles commuting daily on Midland streets. So, the motorcycle now faces and poses a new accident risk because we motorists in city traffic tend to see what we expect to see ... and that isn't a motorcycle.

Since studies suggest a car or truck turning left into the path of a motorcycle is involved in almost half of all motorcycle accidents, it seems that motorcycles and automobile drivers should learn what is needed of each other to prevent accidents. Of course, motorcyclists need to make their intentions clear and themselves visible; then, automobile drivers need to become more concious of the likelihood of a motorcycle sharing the road with them.

Not to lay all the responsibility of preventing accidents on motorists, I would even go so far as saying that since the automobile requires far less "body concentration" to operate than a motorcycle, the car driver has greater opportunity for "mind concentration" on defensive driving.

The motorcyclists, then, can help us defensive car drivers by riding with headlights on at all times, wearing bright-colored clothing, signaling with electric signals and hand signals and trying to make eye contact with us who seem to be yielding to you at intersections — with eye contact, you'll know you've been seen.

Only practice will help us get along on the road.

JUST FOR FUN: Remember those delightful old Burma Shave signs that used to decorate Texas roadsides? Here's a memorable one: "At school zones ... heed instructions ... protect ... our little ... tax deductions."

TRAFFIC TIPS: Midkiff, from Illinois to Storey ... if not already open, should be open any day.

Midkiff, from Andrews Highway to Golf Course ... will be closed the day the Illinois/Storey section opens. No time table yet for rebuilding this stretch.

Garfield Ditch ... work pregressing well, the utilities have been relocated. No specific completion date from contractor, but look for it in next month. In the meantime, we strongly urge you to use the outside travel lane around the Chaparral Center when detouring through Midland College ... otherwise th Chap parking lot turns into a crash derby.

Ohio, at Garfield ... Ohio, east of the intersection, is closed to east bound traffic by barricades. They are working toward a permanent one-way west block there. So, east bound Ohio must turn north on Garfield and south bound Garfield must turn west on Ohio.

IT'S THE LAW: Beginning January, 1981, in Texas, individuals under 18 years of age must participate in and pass a motorcycle course to be licensed as a motorcycle driver. This requirement wasn't just an arbitrary decision by law makers. It was based, in part, on the fact that approximately 60 percent of the motorcycle accidents involve riders who have ridden two years or less ... more specifically, 25 percent involve riders who have less than six months riding experience, regardless of their age. Tax raise gets voter approval

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Voter approval of an income tax increase means Akron can go about its business without slashing services and capital improvements, says Mayor Roy L. Ray.

"It's a good day for Akron in my opinion," Ray said after Thursday's balloting, in which voters narrowly agreed to boost their income taxes by a third over two years.

Two days earlier, Cleveland voters approved Mayor George V. Voinovich's sought-after income tax hike from 1.5 percent to 2 percent.

The Summit County Board of Elections said the unofficial final tally from absentee ballots and 359 precincts was 16,955 for and 15,176 against the gradual increase sought by Ray.

Under the plan, the municipal tax on incomes will be increased from 1.5 percent to 1.8 percent this year and to 2 percent next year.

Ray said the tax boost would allow the northeastern Ohio city to maintain the services now provided its 236,000 residents.

"I'm very pleased that the tax was passed by the people of Akron," he said. "The people of Akron certainly are to be commended for their continued responsibility for the city and their concern for the city."

There had been little opposition to the issue, but many of Akron's laid-off workers had been expected to vote against it. The city is heavily industrial and has been hurt by the economic recession, especially in the rubber industry.

Summit County elections officials said the turnout represented about 27 percent of Akron's 119,428 registered voters.

The first tax boost is effective March 1. An additional $4.7 million this year and $11 million next year will be raised to augment $33 million already generated by the tax.

Ray, a Republican, had said he believed approval of the income tax increase Tuesday by Cleveland voters would encourage Akron voters.

Voinovich staged a vigorous campaign for his proposed increase, approved by 62 percent of the voters.

Six dead from poison moonshine

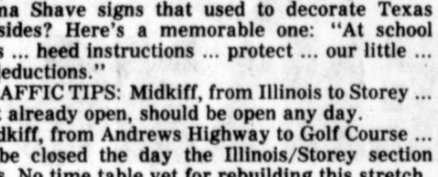

THOMSON, Ga. (AP) — A man was being held for questioning after agents seeking the source of poison whiskey that killed six people found a still and empty rubbing alcohol bottles behind his home, officials said.

The six people who died suffered from acetone poisoning, apparently caused by drinking isopropyl alcohol, or rubbing alcohol, which turns into acetone in the human body, officials have said.

McDuffie County Sheriff William Swan said no charges were filed against the man, but the man was being questioned in connection with the deaths.

"The charges are not definite yet. We'll likely charge him ... with possession of illegal distillery apparatus. He will be charged with something," Swan said Thursday night.

Study says bill could jump $667

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heating bills for average homeowners who heat with natural gas would increase by $667 a year each if controls on natural gas prices were lifted immediately, a new study says.

Immediate decontrol would cost the nation $626 billion over the next five years and could increase inflation by between 3 percent and 5 percent per year, according to the study released Thursday by Energy Action, a consumer group.

The study was released as part of a nationwide lobbying effort to block any attempt the Reagan administration might make to speed up decontrol.

The average homeowner uses 116,000 cubic feet of gas annually. The price of the gas, minus tranmission costs, makes up about 40 percent of the homeowner's bill; that cost would go up an average of $667 annually under immediate decontrol, the study said.

The study projected that immediate decontrol would boost natural gas prices to the energy equivalent of oil, meaning 1,000 cubic feet of gas would sell for $7.50.

However, an economist for the Natural Gas Producers Association recently predicted gas prices would rise to only $4.50 per thousand cubic feet under decontrol. The current wellhead price for newly discovered gas of about $2.20 per thousand cubic feet.

A spokesman for the Department of Energy, Phil Keife, said the DOE has done no recent studies on what might happen to natural gas prices under various decontrol plans.

President Reagan pledged during the presidential election campaign to speed up decontrol of natural gas prices. Last month he removed the final price controls on petroleum products.

The schedule under the 1978 National Gas Policy Act calls for prices on most natural gas to rise gradually until the lifting of most controls Jan. 1, 1985. But the Reagan administration is considering speeding that process.

Natural gas, the nation's second most popular fuel, is used for heating in 55 percent of U.S. homes. The Energy Action study says immediate decontrol would mean up to $171 billion more in natural gas costs for those homeowners in next five years.

The study notes that many other people also would be affected because products made with gas or by businesses that use gas would cost more.

U.S. industry consumes 40 percent of the natural gas produced in the United States. Immediate decontrol would cost it $237 billion more over the next five years, the study said.

Electric utilities using natural gas would pay $119 billion extra, thus increasing rates for their customers, the study said. And commercial users such as office buildings and retail stores would pay $85 billion more, the study said.

Crude decontrol order brings lawsuit

By ROBERT L. SHAFFER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lawsuit seeking to block President Reagan's oil decontrol order says the president failed to follow required procedures when he brought an early end to federal controls on oil last month.

One of the plaintiffs in the suit filed Thursday, Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said hearings are required under the Economic Stabilization Act "whenever there is a significant impact on the economy."

"The impact of decontrol has been tremendous," Metzenbaum said, predicting decontrol "will drive up the inflation rate 1.2 to 1.5 points."

Reagan's Jan. 28 order was effective immediately. Controls on petroleum products, including gasoline, had been scheduled to end Sept. 30, six years after they were established.

Joining Metzenbaum in filing the U.S. District Court suit were eight other senators and House members, the AFL-CIO, United Auto Workers, several senior citizen and consumer groups, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the attorneys general of three states — Minnesota, New York and Rhode Island.

The defendants in the suit are the Department of Energy and Energy Secretary James B. Edwards.

Department spokesman Robert G. Liming said the department would not comment until its legal staff reviews the case.

Metzenbaum said that when decontrol was announced, Edwards "told the public that gasoline prices would only go up three to five cents a gallon."

"Now, less than a month later, we are seeing increases of up to 12 cents per gallon. ... The airlines have already obtained 5 percent fare increases due to decontrol; heating oil ... is going up proportionately; farmers are being hard hit by the increases, and the result will be higher food prices this spring," Metzenbaum said.

Metzenbaum said he expects hearings in the lawsuit to be held next week.

Dependence on foreign oil declining

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — America's dependence on foreign oil is declining, according to figures released Thursday by the Railroad Commission.

Chairman Jim Nugent said crude and petroleum products imports into the United States averaged 7,056,000 barrels per day for the four weeks ending Feb. 6, a decrease of 1.4 million barrels per day from the same period last year.

The commission routinely set the statewide oil production factor at 100 percent for March. As usual, however, production in the East Texas field was restricted to 86 percent to avoid possible waste.

Here are the March nominations by major purchasers of Texas crude oil, in barrels per day, with any changes from February in parentheses:

El Salvador to get more aid

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, determined to make El Salvador a test of its strongly anti-communist foreign policy, is planning a big boost in economic and military aid to the civilian-military junta running the Central American country.

At the same time, the administration is urging the West European allies to support the U.S. position that the Soviets and Cubans are helping leftist terrorists wage a guerrilla campaign against the junta.

A State Department statement Wednesday emphasizing the U.S. commitment to "peaceful and democratic change in El Salvador" was designed to go beyond a reaffirmation of American support for human rights.

It was intended also to make it easier for skeptical West Europeans — who want to be on good terms with Moscow — to back the administration's tough line by affirming that U.S. officials are committed to an evenhanded approach in El Salvador.

Allied leaders would be less likely to accept U.S. representations of Soviet influence if they believed the United States' main interest in El Salvador was having a regime subservient to Washington.

French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet may make a statement during a visit to Washington next week condemning communist intervention in El Salvador.

Sources who asked not to be identified said he wasimpressed with evidence of Soviet and Cuban involvement delivered to Paris by Assistant Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger.

And yet, in his talks with President Reagan andmSecretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., the French minister is expected to advise putting the emphasis in U.S. aid on programs that encourage social reform.

Administration officials said there was no doubt Congress would be asked to boost aid above the current level of $73 million, which includes $10 million in military support.

But the hike in economic assistance, one official said in an interview, could be anything from $20 million to $100 million over two years.

An American study group is in El Salvador now making an assessment of the country's problems. Apart from the economic setbacks related to the civil strife, the Central American country has suffered a major failure in its coffee crops.

Sometime next week, the Reagan administration will issue a "white paper" in Haig's name attempting to document the U.S. case against the Soviets and Cubans for providing weapons and other support to Salavadoran leftists.

In El Salvador, the ruling junta and U.S. Embassy sources denied accusations by leftist leaders Thursday that 100 U.S. military advisers are in the country masterminding a counter-insurgency plan.

U.S. Embassy sources said there are 18 U.S. advisers in the country, 13 assisting pilot training for six helicopters given to El Salvador in January and five advising on "protection for the harvest."

"None are combat advisers, none leave the capital, none has ever accompanied a military patrol into the combat zone and none has ferried troops to a combat zone on a helicopter," said the embassy source, who asked not to be identified.

Ruling junta President Jose Napolean Duarte also strongly denied the left's allegations.

"El Salvador rejects and repudiates any kind of intervention," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "We are seeking Salvadoran solutions for Salvadoran problems."

Donovan meets AFL-CIO

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — While defending President Reagan's budget cut proposals, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan is insisting he will do everything in his power to head off a full-scale confrontation between organized labor and the new administration.

Donovan arrived in this resort city just north of Miami Beach for the annual meeting of the AFL-CIO's executive council as President Reagan and federation chief Lane Kirkland exchanged long-distance barbs brought on by the labor organization's refusal to support the president's economic program.

Reagan said in Washington that he felt the AFL-CIO's leaders sometimes fall out of touch with their rank-and-file union members. Kirland quickly retorted that the processes by which the AFL-CIO decides its policy may be more democratic than those in the administration.

Donovan, who was to appear before the 35-member policy-making board today, attended a luncheon Thursday sponsored by the International Longshoremen's Association and the AFL-CIO's Building Trades Council.

He declared that the administration's program "is as honest an attempt as possible to share the little pain" resulting from budget cutting.

Kirkland and the executive council went on record in opposition to the Reagan plan earlier in the day, saying it "fails to meet the essential test of fairness and equity." Kirkland announced plans for the labor federation to join forces with a host of civil rights groups and other organizations to lobby against the budget reductions on Capitol Hill.

Donovan, however, said that in seeking to slice $41.4 billion from the fiscal year 1982 budget, the administration is pursuing programs promised in the presidential campaign.

"I think the American people made this decision on Nov. 4. We're just implementing it," he said.

Donovan expressed concern about an open break between the AFL-CIO and the administration, adding, "With my credibility with labor, I can bridge that gap."

Asked to comment on Reagan's statement about labor leaders occasionally failing to reflect the feeling of the membership, he replied: "That's a broad indictment. Since I don't know their exact position, I can't say. All I know is that I come from the rank-and-file area and I know they have viewed this as fair ... and that makes me optimistic."

A high-ranking AFL-CIO official, declining to be named publicly, said he wasn't surprised by Donovan's comments.

"They're going to be very polite to us. They don't want a confrontation," he said.

In refusing to support Reagan, the AFL-CIO leadership said it agrees that inflation must be stemmed, "but we cannot agree with the measures the president outlined to achieve that goal."

"His proposals require more sacrifice from those who have little 'o give more to those who already have much," the executive council said in its resolution.

The federation said that instead of a proposed 10 percent cut in individual tax rates July 1, which it claims favors those in heavier brackets, the government should enact a refundable individual tax of 20 percent of Social Security taxes.

It also said that broad-scale investment tax breaks for business is the wrong approach and should be replaced by tax cuts targeted to industries most in need of new investment capital.

Ford lost more than Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has reported the largest full-year loss in American corporate history — far outstripping even a record loss reported by Chrysler Corp. — but analysts say Ford is in no danger of falling into Chrysler's deep financial rut.

Ford says it fully expects to recover from the $1.55 billion loss reported for 1980, but warns that its success may be in the government's hands.

"Much depends on ... the U.S. government's ability to reduce inflation without bringing on massive unemployment," Ford said.

The No. 2 automaker on Thursday reported that its 1980 loss amounted to $12.83 per share. Of that, $316 million, or $2.63 per share, came in the fourth quarter.

In 1979, Ford earned $1.2 billion, or $9.75 per share, with a fourth-quarter loss of $41 million, 35 cents per share.

"What Ford now needs most is what American needs most — a strong and confident economy," Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell and President Donald Petersen said in a statement.

Encouraged by the Reagan administration's vigorous economic plans, they said they intend to "offer the administration our strong support."

Until Thursday, Chrysler Corp.'s 1979 loss of $1.1 billion had been the largest ever reported by a U.S.-based corporation.

But the No. 3 automaker is expected to plunge even deeper into the red when it officially reports 1980 results next week. Its loss has been estimated at $1.77 billion. It has been forced to seek government loan guarantees to bail itself out.

The giant General Motors Corp., largest of the Big Three automakers, reported a $763 million loss for 1980, its first loss since 1921, and a fourth-quarter profit of $62 million.

American Motors Corp. was expected to announce its 1980 results later today.

Losses by the Big Three are expected to exceed $4 billion for 1980.

Harvey Heinbach, an automotive industry analyst with Merrill Lynch, said that despite the massive loss, Ford was in a much better position than Chrysler.

"Ford has good, strong overseas operations that will prevent them from becoming another Chrysler," he said. "Ford is a low-cost producer in Europe and will make money in the long run."

It was Ford's first full-year loss since 1946, when it lost $8 million.

The company's poor showing stemmed from "depressed" car and truck sales in the United States and to a lesser extent in Europe, as well as continued intense competition from Japanese imports, Caldwell and Petersen said.

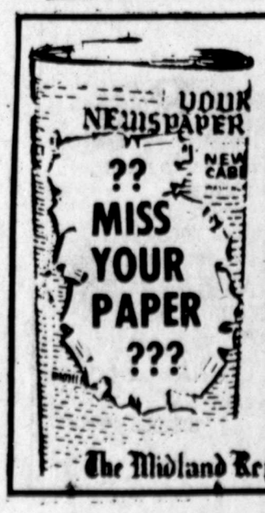

Ford, nevertheless, has come through "this trying period without basic damage to its operations or a reduction in the scope of its plans for future products," they said.

Former company chief executive Henry Ford II, in Brazil to visit a plant operated by a subsidiary, warned the U.S. auto industry faces "an economic Pearl Harbor" and needs help to meet Japanese competition.

Arvid Jouppi of John Muir & Co. said: "Ford may operate at a profit in the June quarter, which will ease the short term considerably. But they have got to have financing at some point and they are interdicted by high interest rates. It is not a comfortable situation."

Counting tractors, Ford's wholesale sales of vehicles fell 26 percent in 1980 from 5.94 million to 4.43 million. Outside the United States and Canada, the decline was only 13 percent, from 2.19 million to 1.91 million.

Pack, Rebels try Odessans in 5-5A play

Coach Jack Stephenson's Midland Bulldogs, currently on a 14-game winning streak, take on the winless Odessa High Bronchos today in the Chaparral Center while Midland Lee travels to Odessa to face Permian's Panthers in District 5-5A basketball action.

Tipoffs are set for 8 p.m. In other 5-5A action tonight, San Angelo is at Abilene High and Abilene Cooper at Big Spring.

Radio Station KBAT-FM will carry the broadcast of the Lee-Permiam game tonight.

MIDLAND, WITH A 28-3 season record and a 4-0 reading in the second haf of te race, is well on its way to the Class AAAAA state playoffs. The Bulldogs, behind Herb Johnson's 37-point performance Tuesday against San Angelo, gunned down the Bobcats, 63-45 to take command of the second half of the chase. San Angelo is 3-1 with the loss and the only hope of the Concho Cats is for MHS to lose two of the final three games. Midland won the first half outright with a perfect 7-0 record.

Lee takes a 13-18 season record into the Permian Fieldhouse tonight while the Rebs, like the Panthers, stand 2-2 in the district race. Mojo, meanwhile, is 16-11 on the season and beat the Rebels, 69-60 in Midland in the first half of the race.

While Midland appears to be in great shape to represent District 5-5A in the state playoffs, other loop titles are not decided yet. Denton is winning District 6-5A and if the Broncos beat Wichita Falls Rider in Denton tonight, they will take a big step towards a bi-district game with Stepehson's Purple Pack. Denton is 16-10 on the year and won the first half of 6-5A with a 5-0 reading and is tied with Rider in the second half with 2-0 marks.

IN EL PASO, District 1-5A finds El Paso Burges on top with a 9-2 loop mark followed closely by Andress and Jefferson with 8-3 readings with three games left. A district tourney with the top four finishers, will determine the bi-district represenative there.

Burges' Mustangs have a 22-7 season record while Andress is 23-9 and Jefferson's Silver Foxes own a 23-8 mark.

In 2-5A, surprising Ysleta High's Indians are on top with a 7-1 loop mark. Riverside and Eastwood follow with 7-2 and 6-2 records despite the fact that Ysleta's season mark is only 13-11 compared to 22-5 and 28-3 records by Riverside and Eastwood.

This league, too, will play a post-season district tourney to see who squares off with the 1-5A winner in bi-district. All seven teams in 2-5A will play in the tourney with the loop winner and runnerup drawing a first round bye.

Pampa and Amarillo Tascosa are currently hooked up in a close race in District 3-4A. They tied with 3-1 marks in the first half of play. This league, like 5-5A, will not have a post-season tourney.

Lubbock Monterey and Plainview share first place in the 4-5A race with 6-1 marks. In 4-5A's tourney, the No. 2 finisher will square off with the No. 5 finisher while No. 3 will face No. 4 with the winner drawing a bye to the finals.

DISTRICTS 7-5A and 8-5A will meet in bi-district play with the winner advancing to the Class AAAAA Regional Tournament, set for Midland College's Chaparral Center, March 13-14. The winner there, advances on to the state tournament in Asutin.

This year, the state tourney starts a week later than usuual due to the NCAA Regional Tourney being played in Austin.

Midland Lee tumbles, 50-44 in playoff tilt

Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — Jeanne Bryant's big third quarter and crucial free throw shooting down the stretch lifted the San Angelo Central Bobcats to a 50-44 win over Midland Lee in a playoff between the girls basketball champions of District 5-5A's two rounds of play Thursday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the campus of Howard College.

The win sends the Bobcats, 26-3, into next week's bi-district playoff action against Lewisville. Lee, which had a nine-game winning streak snapped, ends the season at 20-11 and misses advancing to the bi-district round as the district representative for the first time in four years.

COACH SHIRLEY Stephenson said, "They (San Angelo) just played better than we did tonight." Stephenson added, "I think they'll represent our district well."

Going into the third stanza, San Angelo lead 23-21 in what had been a nip and tuck first half. Over the next eight minutes, the Bobcats outscored the Rebels 14 to six to take command of the closely fought contest.

Gale Wilson, Lee's leading scoring with 15 points, and Bryant, top Bobcat scorer with 19 tallies, traded buckets in the first minute of the third period.

Stephenson then took Wilson out and disaster hit the Rebels. San Angelo started to control the middle, reeling off nine unanswered points — including two straight three point plays, one by Bryant and another by Lisa Lisewsky — in the next three and a half minutes to take a 37-25 lead.

BRYANT WAS the key. Bryant continually worked free under the bucket for easy passes that resulted in hoops or trips to the charity stripe. In all, Bryant beat Lee's backline defense for nine third quarter points.

While the Reb defense was having troubles, their offense just about disappeared. Lee managed only six points in the quarter on three of 13 shooting from the field.

Heading into the final period the Rebels found themselves down by 10, 37-27. Three times the Rebels pulled to within six points only to see Elas Ornelas or the troublesome Bryant drill one-and-one opportunities from the free throw line to push the margin back to eight.

The first half was a close affair, with neither team able to build more than a three point advantage as both squads tried to make game adjustments during the heat of battle. In the early stages both clubs looked nervous and seemed to be pressing their play more than normal. Both squads soon settled down and played the kind of ball that was anticipated by the some 225 fans in attendance.

San Angelo coach Sylvia McClure said, "We played with a lot of pose and class. Jeanne Bryant, Elsa Ornelas and Regina Cole played very well; they were especially effective on defense."

LIKE THEIR meeting on Feb. 9 in Midland when the Rebels beat the Bobcats, the charity stripe played a pivotal role in the final outcome. On Feb. 9 the Bobcats hit only 12 of 32 charities and at one time missed seven straight one-and-one tries. Thursday night, San Angleo netted 16 of 26 from the line and hit the curcial one-and-one while Lee managed eight of 14 free throws. When asked if the Bobcats had worked on their free throw shooting coach McClure answered, "You sure bet we did."

Lee hit one more basket than the Bobcats from the field. The Rebels tossed in 18 of 50 field goal attemps while San Angelo netted 17 of 39 shots. Both squads suffered problems handling the ball early. Lee ended with 22 turnovers while 21 were charged to San Angelo.

San Angelo and Lewisville will tangle Tuesday at either Tarleton Universty in Stephenville or McMurry College in Abilene.

Iowa center punched in face

During 78-65 rout of Indiana in Big 10 tilt

By The Associated Press

Steve Krafcisin, Iowa's 6-foot-10 center, brushed off the incident. "It's no big deal," he said. "It happens all the time."

Krafcisin was referring to a punch in the face he got from 6-foot-1 Indiana guard Isiah Thomas Thursday night as the 12th-ranked Hawkeyes were administering a 78-65 beating to 16th-ranked Indiana.

"It was just a reflex more than anything," Krafcisin said. "He came up and apologized later. He said he was sorry and that it was an accident."

THOMAS WAS ejected from the ballgame with 39 seconds left after he tried to fight his way between Iowa players and took a swing in a crowd at Krafcisin.

"I can't blame the officials," Thomas said, adding he never had been thrown out of a game before. "It was just a stupid play."

After Thomas was tossed out, Krafcisin hit a pair of free throws that gave the Hawkeyes a 71-63 lead.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight was assessed a technical shortly afterward, and he said he would reserve judgement on Thomas until he had seen the films. He said it appeared Krafcisin had grabbed Thomas' jersey.

"It was not a good play," Knight said. "It sure was a play you don't want to see, but I'm anxious to look at the film."

KRAFCISIN WOUND up with 18 points, and Vince Brookins topped Iowa with 19. Landon Turner led Indiana with 18 and Ray Tolbert had 17. Thomas had 16 points.

Iowa, 18-4 and atop the Big Ten with a 10-3 conference mark, hit 15 of 16 free throws in the final two minutes after going into a four-corner stall to ensure the victory.

In games involving other ranked teams, sixth-ranked UCLA downed California 72-66, No.9 Utah whipped New Mexico 90-73, New Mexico State upset 14th-ranked Wichita State 82-80, 15th-ranked Illinois defeated No. 18 Michigan 67-64 and No. 17 Brigham Young beat Texas-El Paso 84-75.

Mike Sanders scored 20 of his 24 points in the second half, rallying UCLA over California in the Pacific 10 Conference. UCLA trailed 33-30 early in the second half, but the Bruins took the lead 48-46 on a layin by 7-foot-2 reserve center Mark Eaton and later stretched their advantage to as many as 10 points.

UCLA IMPROVED its record to 17-4, 10-3 in the Pac 10, with its sixth straight victory.

Tom Chambers scored 27 points, and Utah held New Mexico's high-scoring Kenny Page to just seven points in the second half to break open a close game. The victory kept Utah two games ahead of BYU and Wyoming in the Western Athletic Conference with an 11-1 league mark, 22-2 overall.

Page led the Lobos with 21 points, and Karl Bankowski added 16 for the Utes.

JEROME AKINS came into the game shooting only 37 percent from the foul line, but he hit a pair of free throws with 22 seconds left that boosted New Mexico State over Wichita State in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Akins' free throws gave New Mexico State an 82-79 lead, and Tony Martin pulled the Shockers within one when he hit a foul shot with three seconds left. Martin intentionally missed his second shot, got his own rebound but missed a jumper at the buzzer.

Jamie Pena led the Aggies with 26 points, the fifth game in a row in which he has scored 20 or more. Randy Smithson had 22 for Wichita State.

James Griffin scored a three-point play, and guards Craig Tucker and Perry Range each added two foul shots to rally Illinois over Michigan in the Big Ten. Griffin's three-point play with 1:02 left put Illinois ahead by one, 63-62. Eddie Johnson led Illinois with 18, and Mike McGee paced Michigan with 24.

Fred Roberts scored 28 points, including 15 of BYU's fial 23, to help the Cougars take revenge against Texas-El Paso in the WAC. The victory improved BYU's record to 19-5 overall and 9-3 in the WAC.

Texas-El Paso upset BYU 64-62 last Jan. 17, but the Miners never led in this game.

Chaparrals clinch tie for crown

BORGER — Kevin Willingham's tip-in with nine seconds left lifted the Midland College Chaparrals to a 57-55 basketball victory over the Frank Phillips College Plainsmen Thursday night.

The victory enables Coach Jerry Stone's Chaps to clinch a tie for the Western Athletic Junior College Conference title.

Midland has two regular season games left before the regional playoffs in Brownwood, March 5-6-7. The Chaps take on Odessa College Monday night in Chaparral Center in their Homecoming game and then wrap up WJCC play next Thursday in Snyder against Western Texas College.

MC came from a nine-point deficit in the final five minutes of play to capture the win which gives the Chaps a season record of 26-2 and WJCC mark of 14-2. The win avenges a two-point loss to the Plainsmen earlier in the year in Midland.

The Plainsmen are now 12-4 in conference play with the loss.

Virgil Slay's great defensive play helped ignite the rally for MC. Slay blocked a pair of shots by 6-foot-8 Larry Hubbard late in the game to turn Frank Phillips away empty-handed.

Puntus Wilson who scored 21 points, began hitting his patent jumper during the final five minutes of action and that was the difference. Charles Johnson also turned in another solid performance with 14 points for the Chaps.

Frank Phillips was led by Curtis Adams and Hubbard with 17 and 18 points, respectively.

In other WJCC games, Howard College downed Odessa College, 78-71 and South Plains took a high-scoring 104-92 victory over New Mexico Junior College.

MIDLAND COLLEGE (57) — Wilson 10-1-4-21; McCain 3-0-2-6; Tutwiler 1-0-2-2; Slay 3-0-3-6; Freeman 0-0-0-0; Johnson 6-2-2-14; Willingham 4-0-3-8; Tate 0-0-1-0. Totals: 27-3-17-57.

Brown leaving UCLA for New York Nets

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite repeated denials by both sides, UCLA basketball Coach Larry Brown has agreed to a four-year contract to coach the New Jersey Nets beginning next season, the New York Daily News said in today's editions.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying Brown, who led the Bruins into the national championship finals last year, has denied the agreement publicly because he believes an announcement that he was leaving would ruin UCLA's season and hurt recruiting.

The story said Brown is still dedicated to his players on the team but has been turned off by constant comparisons to UCLA coaching legend John Wooden and unsupportive alumni.

The hiring will be announced the first week of April, the News said.

Out for '81 season

BALTIMORE (AP) — Orioles shortstop Bob Bonner has contracted viral hepatitis and will likely miss most — and possibly all — of spring training, the American League club said.

Considered a future replacement for regulars Mark Belanger and Kiko Garcia, Bonner has been hospitalized in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Rookie of the year last year in the International League, Orioles officials said he will not be able to report to spring training, which begins March 3 in Miami.

Bonner batted .241 with two homers and 41 RBI for Rochester last season and appeared in four games as an Oriole last fall.

Buffalo seeking Major League team

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A consultant told local officials Thursday that the Buffalo area could support a major league baseball team. But he said a tough question is whether to build the stadium before the city is sure of getting a ball club.

TED BATTLES

Fred Akers signs Midland's Feldt

From innovated minds that discovered, developed or refined such offenses as the Shaughnessy T, the Split-T, Winged-T, the Shotgun, the Wishbone, the I-formation and defenses like the 3-4, the 5-3, 4-3, the Flex, the Zone, there must be a better way.

Perhaps it is, indeed time to go back to the Single Wing, Notre Dame Box and 6-2-2-1.

Consider Fred Akers' frantic Wednesday. He originally was scheduled to fly into Midland at 9:30 a.m....hey, he'll be here at 10...oops, make that 10:45, no fooling.

When Akers finally grounded at Terminal in his private jet, he barely had time to sign Midland High's Michael Feldt to what at last was a binding letter-of-intent, make a few cross-country phone calls in an attempt to let other waiting athletes and parents know he was running behind schedule, "We got socked in by fog at Lubbock and we're an hour 45 minutes behind schedule...Hey, is that a rest room...I think that's my engine running out on the apron."

BEFORE arriving in Midland, the University of Texas football coach had touched down at Lubbock to sign defensive back Jerry Gray of Estacado, then mesquite-hopped over to Snyder to book defensive tackle Tony DeGrate to four years of room-and-board at Austin.

After Midland, it was Dallas, Kansas City and St. Louis, where linebacker Tony Edwards was waiting pen in hand.

"We signed Michael as both a quarterback and defensive back," both positions Akers felt required urgent attention for the future in dispensation of the 29 scholarships he has available for freshmen this year.

"It's automatic that we have to sign linemen every year. If you don't sign good ones, it doesn't matter what else you sign. But last year we didn sign any quarterbacks or wide receivers."

WITH TODD Dodge of Port Arthur Jefferson's state 5A finalists and three others signed specifically as quarterbacks, Akers didn't seem too disturbed that Lance McHan escaped his clutches and signed with Arkansas. "We had Lance in for a visit and talked with him, but with all the quarterbacks we signed we really didn't press it. With the scholarship limit, you can't afford to overload."

As for Texan Lance Hardin's defection to Oklahoma, "Some of the good ones get away. You can't win 'em all."

Akers returns both Donnie Little and Fort Stockton's Rick McIvor at quarterback next year and he feels pleased with the progress being made by McIvor. "You know, he is very young and inexperienced at quarterback. He played the position only one year in high school. Although we lost, I think he played his best game against North Carolina in the Bluebonnet Bowl."

The mere fact that it was the Bluebonnet, rather than the Cotton, was another unwanted reminder of the past season.

ONE OF the prerequisites for a national championship for either Oklahoma or Texas is victory in their annual Dallas encounter, a game the Longhorns won with a dazzling forth quarter exhibition of running and passing by Little. One got the impression at the time, "Just let Alabama make one little mistake and..."

"I thought so, too," said Akers, "Only we lost six starters and never did recover. At the time, I thought we were in good shape even with the injuries, because we had an open week following OU." Texas and Arkansas had rescheduled their game for the season's TV opener.

"We lost A.J. Jones for three weeks. When he came back, he got hurt again and was out for the season. We lost offensive guard Joe Shearin and offensive tackle John Tobokla and, even though they returned, they were never the same. We lost Keonning (wide receiver) and Maurice McClonney (wide receiver), both in the OU game, although they returned. And we lost Rodney Tate and he never recovered."

With Wednesday's Midday ride of Paul Revere, Fred Akers hopes to fortify his Steers against a repeat showing.

Montreal downs Buffalo on ice

By The Associated Press

It was a spotless first period for Montreal goalie Richard Sevigny — thanks to a shotless first period by the Buffalo Sabres.

Unable to produce one shot on goal in the first 20 minutes, the Sabres skated to the dressing room losing 3-0. And that was only the beginning of their frustrations Thursday night as they lost a 5-2 National Hockey League decision to the Canadiens.

"I think the game tonight showed that if we're ready mentally and physically, if our goaltending is good and the team is in good health, we can get very close to the top (of the point standings)," said Montreal left winger Yvon Lambert.

The Canadiens currently are ranked sixth in the NHL's overall standings.

"The big games are coming and the guys are taking things more seriously," said Lambert. "It doesn't matter what team you're playing when there's only 20 games or so to go. There's something wrong when you can't get up for a game at this stage of the season."

The Sabres' failure to record a shot on goal in the opening period, by the way, tied an NHL record, last matched Feb. 26, 1979, when the New York Islanders played a second period against New York Rangers without a shot. A shotless period occurred on two other occasions since 1978, when the league began kept keeping track of such statistics.

In other NHL action, it was Calgary 5, Philadelphia 4; Pittsburgh 6, Hartford 2 and Detroit 7, New York Rangers 3.

Lambert connected for a pair of goals and Sevigny produced some key third-period saves as the Canadiens ended Buffalo's 12-game unbeaten streak. The victory prolonged a pair of streaks for the Canadiens, who are unbeaten in their last seven games and have not been beaten at the Montreal Forum in 16 straight games. They have won 14 and tied two in that stretch.

Sevigny, an onlooker as Montreal outshot the Sabres 13-0 in the first period, rose to the occasion in the final period as the Sabres mounted their most concerted effort of the game. The Canadiens' rookie faced 26 shots in all, 17 of them in the third period.

The victory enabled Montreal to move within one point of the Los Angeles Kings, who lead the Norris Division. It also brought the Canadiens within three points of the Sabres, who are fourth in the overall standings.

Flames 5, Flyers 4

Guy Chouinard's second goal of the game at 6:13 of the third period lifted Calgary over Philadelphia. Chouinard knocked in his own rebound from about 20 feet out to give the victory to the Flames, who had built a 4-0 lead early in the second period.

Brian Propp and Ken Linseman scored within one minute and 21 seconds in the third period to draw the Flyers into a shortlived tie before Chouinard's goal.

The game was filled with 25 penalties and marred by a flareup between the Rangers and fans at the Joe Louis Arena.

As the teams left the ice, seven Rangers climbed into the stands for a fist-throwing, beer-slinging confrontation that ended when Detroit police and arena ushers separated the players and fans.

New York native Nick Fotiu led his teammates after some fans who, he said, had bombarded the Rangers' bench with debris during the final minute of play. No fans were injured in the incident, but Fotiu said he suffered a cut on his hand.

The Rangers admitted being tired and edgy after their charter flight was re-routed to Cleveland because of heavy fog in Detroit. They had a four-hour bus trip from Cleveland.

Connors in easy net victory

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors had no difficulty in reaching the quarterfinals of the $175,000 Grand Marnier-ATP Tennis Games, but the same couldn't be said for second-seeded Ivan Lendl and fifth-seeded Roscoe Tanner.

Connors crushed Terry Moor 6-0, 6-2 in a third-round match Thursday, but Lendl, of Czechoslovakia, struggled to a 6-1, 4-6, 6-4 triumph over 13th-seeded Bob Lutz, and Tanner had to rally for a 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 victory over unseeded Hank Pfister.

Also advancing to today's quarterfinals at the La Quinta Hotel Resort were third-seeded Harold Solomon, who whipped Trey Waltke 6-3, 6-2; seventh-seeded Eliot Teltscher, who eliminated ninth-seeded Eddie Dibbs 6-2, 6-1; eighth-seeded Brian Gottfried, who ousted 16th-seeded Mel Purcell 6-3, 6-4; 14th-seeded Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia, who topped Paul Kronk of Australia 6-1, 6-3, and unseeded Pat DuPre, who beat Phil Dent of Australia 6-4, 6-0.

Connors was scheduled to face DuPre, Lendl was to take on Tanner, Solomon was to meet Gottfried and Teltscher was to battle Smid.

"I hit the ball pretty well today," said Connors. "But I don't think that he played as well as he would have liked. I broke him the first game that he served and that kind of set a precedent for me."

Lendl struggled for the second straight day — he needed three sets to eliminate unseeded Martin Davis on Wednesday.

Jackson under arrest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Billy Don Jackson, a former UCLA football player, has been arrested in the stabbing death of a Los Angeles-area man last October, according to police.

Houston girl gains semifinals in Avon Tennis Championship

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston schoolgirl Zina Garrison, a product of the city's public courts, gave a partisan crowd a few thrills but it was third-seeded Kathy Jordan who finally won the match and left the court the villain.

Jordan understood the environment she was playing in and made the best of it, fighting an erratic serve to defeat the 17-year-old Garrison 6-2, 6-3 to gain the semifinals of the $100,000 Avon Tennis Championship of Houston Thursday night.

"I think it's tough when you are a little younger and you don't even know many of the players and just the social chit-chat is tough," Jordan said of Garrison. "All that, besides having to go out and play some of the toughest players in the world."

Before Jordan disappointed the crowd by defeating the hometown favorite, fourth-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia also subdued a balky serve to defeat Joanne Russell 6-3, 6-4 and Pam Teegarden defeated West Germany's Heidie Eisterlehner 6-1, 6-3.

Garrison, who had to win a qualifying tournament just to play with the pros, provided her biggest thrills in the seventh game of the second set with Jordan serving for the match.

She fell behind 40-15, then hit three winners and fought off three match points to break Jordan's service with a backhand passing shot that brought the biggest cheers of the tournament from the crowd.

Jordan held her poise, however, and won it in the ninth game at the fourth match point with a forehand volley winner.

"I felt a little pressure, but then anytime I go out there I feel some pressure," Jordan said.

Jausovec and Russell exchanged service breaks to start their second set and Jausovec threatened to break again in the fifth and seventh games, but Russell held each time. Finally in the ninth game, Jausovec broke Russell and served for the match, winning at the first match point.

"After the first five games I sort of let down," Jausovec said. "She (Russell) started putting more pressure on me. She didn't play her usual game. She knows I like the hard shots so she kept them soft and it was hard to make points."

Second-seeded Hana Mandlikova meets Kate Latham in the featured quarterfinal match on tonight's program. Finals are scheduled Sunday, with the winner to earn $22,000.

Sports writers determine games

ATHENS, Ga. AP) — Sports writers, helped by "loud-mouthed coaches," can help determine who wins football games, Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said Thursday.

The writers don't have go on the gridiron to block and tackle, the coach of the national champion Bulldogs told a gathering of newspaper editors and executives on the University of Georgia campus.

"But blocking and tackling is affected by the emotions one has and I know the press can very much affect the emotions of how one blocks and how one tackles," he said.

On the negative side, Dooley said, reports that Assistant Coach Jim Pyburn would quit the team probably contributed to the Bulldogs 31-0 loss to Virginia in 1979. The report was published on the day of the game.

On the positive side, Dooley related how South Carolina Coach Jim Carlen was reported to have said before his team's 1980 game against the Bulldogs "in effect that Georgia was not all that good."

"In fact before the game he told me he thought we were better than they were," Dooley said. "That being in the newspaper — that had a reaction on our team."

Dooley said the report was a "motivating factor" in the Bulldogs' 13-10 victory over South Carolina, despite the efforts of Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers.

Pintor battles Uziga

HOUSTON (AP) — Lupe Pintor, whose brawling, jackhammer style has carried him through five defenses of his World Boxing Council bantamweight title, will try to fend off the rapier left jab of Argentina's Jose Uziga Sunday in a 15-round title fight at Sam Houston Coliseum.

Pintor, who once helped support his family in Mexico City by selling home made ice cream on the streets, will earn $100,000 for his day's work while Uziga will make $20,000, which he plans to use to purchase a home in Buenos Aires.

Midland United Girl's Soft Ball Association will hold a general meeting at San Jacinto Jr. High School auditorium Sunday Feb. 22, 1981 at 3:00 p.m. to elect officers for the 1981 season.

Okamoto captures golf lead

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Three years ago, Ayako Okamoto tried but failed to qualify for tour status at the Ladies Professional Golf Association winter trials here.

But this year, Okamoto came back and succeeded. Today, Okamoto — winner of 12 tournaments on the Japan tour of the LPGA — leads the pack at the $150,000 Bent Tree Ladies Classic here with a 5-under-par 67.

Okamoto birdied the first two holes from 15 and 20 feet Thursday and then went on to record six birdies and only one bogey.

Just last week, she had missed the cut in an LPGA tournament in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Sandra Post, winner of the 1980 West Virginia LPGA Classic, and JoAnne Carner were one stroke off the lead and tied for second with rounds of 4-under-par 68.

Carner said she thought she was playing well and hoped to do better in the second round.

"I'm not hitting anything poorly," she said. "I'm driving very well."

Carner said that some patches of the 6,088-yard course were rough.

"The greens are slow and I had a couple of 20 footers. It's hard to keep your stroke consistent. The course is in good shape otherwise."

Post said the stiff afternoon winds affected play.

"The wind blew in the afternoon, but we should be used to it after the first three weeks," Post said. "Good players can play well in the wind."

Three other contenders — Kathy McMullen, Dot Germain and Cathy Sherk — were tied for fourth, shooting 3-under-par 65s.

Next were JoAnn Washam and Beth Daniel, LPGA 1980 Player of the Year, tied for seventh with 2-under-par 70s.

Daniel, who missed five chances to birdie in the last five holes, offered no explanations for her performance.

"There is no excuse for not making birdies at 17 and 18," Daniel said. "I'm disappointed in myself. I should have had a better round."

Morgan's 65 gains LA lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you look close enough, history can repeat itself.

And who can look closer than Dr. Gil Morgan, an optometrist who is more concerned with golf balls than eyeballs? He doesn't practice his medical art.

Morgan went into today's second round of the $300,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament, which he won in 1978, with a one-stroke lead after firing a 6-under par 65 Thursday.

Morgan opened in 1978 with a 66 and went on to win when Jack Nicklaus played a duffer's shot on the final hole.

"My game has matured a lot since I won here," Morgan commented. "I think I'm a little bit smarter, especially around the greens. And I think I am better tee to green."

But look out for the bridegroom.

Namio Takuso, on his second marriage, decided to take his bride to Honolulu where he found there was a golf tournament going on. He joined the Monday morning rabbits and attempted to qualify.

He did, and finished 73rd in the tournament. But since one golfer in front of him was an amateur, he qualified to play at Los Angeles.

And he came out of the first round in a six-way tie for second place after shooting a 32-34—66. He was better than Jack Nicklaus, 71, Tom Watson, 72, and Lee Trevino, 72.

Tied with the Japanese bridegroom were John Cook, Johnny Miller, Bruce Lietzke, Keith Fergus and Miller Barber.

Then came amateur Ron Commans, a University of Southern California collegian, who shot a 32-35—67.

"I don't think Riviera (the 7,022-yard Riviera Country Club course) is going to give up a whole lot," Morgan commented. If it gets wet, it will be tougher."

In answer to a question about his playing partner, Watson, the leading money winner four years who hasn't won in 1981, Morgan said, "He got started bad and made bad chips. He didn't hit as solidly as I remembered him."

The golfing doctor said he always likes to be in the lead and rated this the lowest he has ever shot at Riviera, a demanding layout which truly tests the skill of the golfer. Fergus, who never has won a PGA event, said: "If the weather stays good, somebody can shoot a 63. It's a good course with a lot of good holes and the greens are not real hard yet. But I predict the scores will go up."

Leonard set for title bout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard will defend his World Boxing Council welterweight title on March 28 against one of three opponents, Leonard's attorney said Thursday.

According to Mike Trainer, the possible opponents are Larry Bonds of Denver, ranked fourth by the WBC; Jorgen Hansen of Denmark, ranked seventh, and eighth-ranked Hwan Chung Jae of South Korea.

Three sites are under consideration for the fight, Trainer said. They are Syracuse, N.Y.; Hartford, Conn. and Houston.

The lawyer said selection of an opponent and a site are expected in the next few days. The March 28 fight is to be broadcast over Home Box Office television.

Leonard has come under criticism from the WBC for not defending his title.

On Wednesday, the WBC warned Leonard it would strip him of his title if he failed to defend it three times in 1981.

Trainer refused to label the March bout a tuneup for Leonard's June 19 date with Ayub Kalule. The June 19 fight, to be held in Las Vegas or the Meadowlands in New Jersey, will be for Kalule's World Boxing Association junior middleweight title.

Leonard regained his WBC title on Nov. 25 in New Orleans when he defeated champion Roberto Duran.

Amputee selected as new VA chief

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — Vietnam veteran John Behan, a 36-year-old Republican state assemblyman who lost both legs in the war, says he will become the next chief of the Veterans Administration.

If confirmed by the Senate, Behan will succeed Max Cleland, another Vietnam veteran, as head of the agency. Cleland lost both legs and an arm in the war.

News of Behan's nomination came during the Suffolk County GOP's annual Lincoln's Day dinner-dance here Thursday night.

Behan told the crowd of about 1,400 that he learned of the nomination through Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

He said the nomination would be announced today.

Soon after the informal announcement, the nominee was in Washington soliciting support from other senators and members of the Reagan Administration, The New York Times reported today.

Meanwhile, the Times quoted an unidentified White House source as saying three other major appointments would be announced today:

—John J.R. Shad, a $375,000-a-year vice chairman and major stockholder of E.F. Hutton & Co., as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Shad would have to divest himself of his shares in the company and pay substantial capital-gains taxes on the transaction to accept the $55,000-a-year post, the Times reported.

—Anne McGill Gorsuch, a lawyer for Mountain Bell, the Colorado telephone company, as administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. She served two terms in the Colorado House of Representatives and has been active in state environmental issues.

—M. Michael Cardenas, a certified public accountant in Fresno, Calif., for the Denver-based Fox & Co. CPA firm, as head of the Small Business Administration. He was described as a charter member of the American Association of Spanish Speaking CPA's.

Frank Sinatra, accompanied by Jilly Rizzo, right, enters hearing room for Nevada Gaming Commission meeting. The Commission subsequently granted the state gaming license to Sinatra. (AP Laserphoto)

Sinatra allowed back in game

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Frank Sinatra says he may eventually open a hotel-casino of his own now that he has persuaded the state to give him back the gaming license it revoked 18 years ago amid allegations the singer had links to the Mafia.

The Nevada Gaming Commission voted 4-1 Thursday to approve Sinatra for licensing as a "key employee" at Caesars Palace, a Strip resort that has hired him as an entertainment consultant.

Commission members praised Sinatra for his charitable works, at the same time chastising journalists for stories involving his reputed associations with underworld figures.

"The record indicates quite conclusively that the case against Mr. Sinatra has been manufactured out of printer's ink," said commisson member Carl Dodge, adding that for a number of years the mob association stories "have been feeding upon themselves."

Testifying before the commission, Sinatra said mobsters "become star-struck" and "seek actors out."

"It's not true that actors seek them out," he said. "It goes on today. I'm not being frivolous about it, but they become star-struck. They seek us."

Under questioning by commission members, Sinatra confirmed that he might be interested in owning a hotel in Las Vegas or elsewhere in the state.

Sinatra, who testified last week before the Gaming Control Board which recommended approval of the license to the commission, said he and his attorney-business associate Milton Rudin had "discussed" the possible purchase of a club.

"And if the day ever comes we would be happy to be involved," he said. "But I see nothing on the horizon. It's a fine investment."

Most of the hearing focused on the 1963 incident that cost Sinatra his Nevada gaming license. The late Sam "Momo" Giancana, a reputed Chicago mob figure blacklisted by area casinos, visited singer Phyllis McGuire at Sinatra's Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe.

Sinatra said that when he learned Giancana was there, he immediately ordered hotel executives to ask the visitor to leave.

Welfare gets custody

HOUSTON (AP) — Family Judge Criss Cole placed a 7-month-old girl under temporary emergency custody of the Harris County Welfare Unit after authorities charged her mother with attempting to smother the infant in a hospital bed.

Cole scheduled a hearing for March 2.

Lillian Black, 32, of St. Louis Park, Minn., was charged with injury to a child during a visit to her daughter in Houston's Methodist Hospital Feb. 11.

Police said a hospital technician noticed on a monitoring screen that the child had gone into cardiac arrest and her brain waves had ceased. She called a doctor and the girl, Susan, was revived.

Doctors later studied a videotape of the child and found pictures showing what appeared to be the mother's right hand covering Susan's face and nose.

The child's father, Tom Black, is a minister of an Evangelical Free Church in Minnesota.

ACLU challenges New Orleans three-week old juvenile curfew

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has gone to federal court to challenge a three-week old curfew, arguing that it deprives families of the right to raise children as they see fit.

The class-action lawsuit filed Thursday on behalf of two parents and their children claims the curfew is too broad, vague and violates rights to privacy and travel.

Aimed at curbing juvenile crime, the curfew forbids anyone under 17 years old to be on New Orleans streets between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. on school nights and between midnight and 5 a.m. on weekends.

Parents can be fined $25 to $100 if a child under 17 is stopped twice in a four-day period for a curfew violation. After four days, the juvenile's record of curfew violation is purged.

"We're against juvenile crime, too," said Carole B. Shauffer, the ACLU lawyer who filed the suit.

"But we believe there are other ways to handle the problem of the very, very small number of juveniles who are involved in crime without interfering with the rights of the majority of others."

Police Capt. Ray Holman said the curfew showed results in the first week it was in effect.

Two youngsters stopped for a curfew violation turned out to be wanted for armed robbery, and a third was arrested on a concealed weapons charge, he said.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of Elaine Warner of New Orleans, her 13-year-old daughter Michelle, Freda Nicolosi of Jefferson Parish and her three children, Michelle, 16, John, 14, and Steven, 13.

The ordinance that established the curfew exempts children on a reasonable errand or emergency missions and those working under child employment laws.

But the ACLU lawyer said the exemptions are vague.

"A parent might also want to let a child go out with a grandparent or with an older brother or sister," she said.

California fighting Texas' ordered fruit quarantine

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he wants his state attorney general to "use every effort" to challenge in court a proposed quarantine by the state of Texas on shipments of fruits and vegetables from California.

The quarantine, scheduled to take effect March 1, is intended to protect Texas agriculture from the Mediterranean fruit fly which has infested produce in some parts of California, said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

The quarantine bans any produce from California which has not be fumigated or held in cold storage.

But Gov. Brown said the infestation is confined to about 500 square miles in the San Jose area, and that it is "unjustified" to impose a quarantine on fruits and vegetables from the entire state.

He said he asked Attorney General George Deukmejian to fight the quarantine in court.

He also said the will try to persuade Texas Gov. Bill Clements to lift the ban when they meet at the National Governors' Association meeting next week in Washington, D.C.

Farmers celebrate decision

SIKESTON, Mo. (AP) — Plates heaped high with barbecued pork, 1,000 farmers celebrated victory in a week-long showdown with Uncle Sam over soybeans siphoned from a bankrupt grain elevator.

"I originally set a goal of getting my money out," said Puxico farmer Wayne Cryts, who defied a federal court order and removed $250,000 worth of soybeans from the Ristine Grain elevator.

"But I realized I had to set a higher goal. That higher goal was to find out if grain receipts are valid."

They weren't, the government decided Thursday.

But as a country and western band played to a packed house Thursday night, the farmers from across the Midwest said the fight was worthwhile because it clarified the risks of storing crops.

U.S. Rep. Bill Emerson, R-Mo., has said he will push for new federal laws "so we can say Ristine nevermore."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture decided that the government holds the original receipt when grain is stored under a federal loan program. The farmer's copy is non-negotiable, the department said.

"We're assuming the warehouse receipt is not any good," Cryts said. "And we're telling farmers this invalidates private ownership.

"We have set some precedents down here, and I don't want any one of them taken back except one — and it's got to be taken back," Cryts said. "A civilized society has got to be governed by law. I hope they don't let me get away with what I (have) done."

He said he would turn himself in if a warrant were issued for his arrest in the elevator break-in Monday, when he and about 500 supporters seized Cryts' beans after prying the elevator open with crowbars.

A farmer normally stores his harvest to wait for favorable market conditions. The warehouse receipts issued for the stored grain were considered legal tender, often accepted as collateral for bank loans.

The decision means a farmer's grain can be sold to satisfy creditors any time an elevator fails, said Alvin Jenkins, an American Agriculture Movement spokesman.

"It's a risk," Jenkins said. "Your grain is only as good as the elevator in which you put it."

Cryts' 30,000 bushels of soybeans, and commodities stored in 10 other elevators owned by the James Brothers of Corning, Ark., have been the subject of a legal wrangle since August. The James Brothers declared bankruptcy when a bank called in a $3 million loan.

A bankruptcy judge in Arkansas ordered the grain, valued at up to $8 million, sold to pay off the debts and told farmers to wait in line with other creditors. The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals stayed that order to allow parties in the dispute to negotiate.

But Cryts said he could not afford to wait and led a convoy of farmers to the elevator, where the sixth-generation farmer took the law — and the beans — into his own hands.

He has since agreed not to sell the grain while the appeals court works on the case and said he will plant his spring crop despite his earlier insistence that he could not do so without the profits from the beans.

'Trick list' will be published

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Officials of a monthly newspaper, jubilant after a federal judge's favorable ruling, say they soon will hit the streets with editions bearing names of 3,000 alleged patrons of a local brothel.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions said Thursday he would not prohibit El Pueblo's publication of the "trick list," which was seized by police during an Oct. 2 raid.

Several prominent San Antonians are on the list, say El Pueblo editors, who plan to print about 100 names in one edition and others in later editions.

Publication could come as early as today "or in a few days," El Pueblo spokesman Antonio Cabral said Thursday. "It could be within 24 hours."

Publishing the list would expose a "double system of justice," showing that some men who make and enforce laws have been violating the laws against prostitution, he said.

The list was at a secret location, and the newspaper had moved its office because of a threat it would be "burned to the ground," Cabral said.

Staffers of the anti-establishment newspaper also had been offered money not to publish the names, he added.

Meanwhile, lawyers for the alleged brothel madam, Theresa Brown, vowed to keep trying to stop publication of the list. A columnist for El Centro said she received the list from Ms. Brown via a third party.

The lawyers had obtained a 10-day temporary restraining order from a state court, but as a hearing began Thursday on whether to make that order permanent, an El Pueblo lawyer said he had requested the case removed to federal jurisdiction.

Three hours later, Sessions ruled that the restraining order issued by State District Judge James Onion had expired and the federal court had jurisdiction.

He refused to issue a federal restraining order to replace the state order.

Ms. Brown's lawyer, Pat Maloney, disputed El Pueblo's arguments that the case had become a confrontation between the First and Sixth Amendments of the Constitution, which guarantee freedom of the press and the right to trial by an impartial jury.

"There is a constitutional issue involved, but it's the Sixth Amendment, the right to a fair trial," Maloney said. "To use the First Amendment for garbage like this would tend to dilute it."

Dallas City Council bans beer from parks

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas City Council has thrown a curve at amateur softball players who enjoy swilling suds between their pitches.

After hearing a parade of witnesses say they are afraid to enter city parks because beer-drinking teenagers have taken them over, the council voted unanimously to ban the consumption of alcoholic beverages near municipal ball diamonds, swimming pools, tennis courts and parking lots.

Wednesday's council decision exempts golf courses, city park interiors, and Fair Park — site of the Texas State Fair — from the ban on alcoholic beverages.

The ordinance provides a fine of up to $200 per violation.

Tow-truck operators work to clear a section of Interstate Highway 20 west of Terrell Thursday after about 50 vehicles crashed into each other in dense fog. The pileup began about 8:15 a.m. and one person was killed with about 13 injured. (AP Laserphoto)

One killed, 13 persons injured in big chain-reaction collision

TERRELL, Texas (AP) — An elderly woman stopped her car during rush-hour interstate highway traffic because she could not see through Thursday's thick, early-morning fog, causing a 50-vehicle crash that killed one and injured 13, investigators said.

Nanci Hallmark, 25, of Fruitvale was killed instantly when she lost control of her car while trying to avoid the chain-reaction collision and, as the car slid sideways down the highway, and a tractor-trailer rig collided with another vehicle, jackknifed and rolled on top of her car, police theorized.

Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Gary Farley described the accident as a "domino reaction," with the twisted wreckage stretching for more than a mile in the westbound lanes of Interstate 20, a major commuter route to downtown Dallas, 30 miles to the west.

Farley said 60-year-old Lottie Farley of Rockwall stopped her car in the middle of the highway about 8 a.m. apparently because of dense fog which limited visibility to 100 feet. Seconds later, a tractor-trailer rammed into her vehicle, creating a roadblock.

Six trucks and 40 to 50 automobiles were involved in the chain-reaction collision, Farley said.

Nearly twenty DPS troopers were dispatched to the scene. Police closed the eastbound and westbound lanes for more than two hours as authorities cleared the highway of twisted cars and trucks.

Robert "Sonny" Ramsey, a truck driver for Central Freight Lines, said his tractor-trailer rig was the fourth or fifth vehicle to come upon the pileup.

"It was the biggest mess I've ever seen," said Ramsey. "We got on the two-way (Citizens Band radio) and started telling them (other drivers) to slow down. I'm sure at least 50 vehicles were involved."

DPS troopers established a medical command post at nearby Terrell Community Hospital to handle what eventually turned out to be a surprisingly small number of injuries.

Ten people were taken to the Terrell hospital. Nine were treated and released, one was admitted to the hospital for treatment of broken bones.

Two others were taken to Colonial Hospital in Terrell, and both were treated for minor injuries and released, a spokesman said.

Power loss contributed to crash

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The crash of an Air California jet that skidded on a runway at John Wayne Airport may have been caused in party by a power loss in one of the jetliner's two engines, the pilot had told federal officials.

National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ira Furman said Thursday that Don Clark, pilot of the jet that crashed and injured 34 people, said one of his plane's two engines did not produce as much thrust as he expected.

The pilot said he gave it full throttle to abort the landing in order to miss another Air California plane cleared for takeoff on the same runway.

Instead, the plane, bound from San Jose, thudded onto the runway, went into a skid when its front wheel gear collapsed, split in half and burst into flames Tuesday night.

Because of the crash, the airport's commercial runways were closed until Thursday night, when workers using a crane hauled the wreckage about 900 feet away.

Furman said traffic controllers had expected the plane waiting on the ground — Air California Flight 931, bound for San Jose with 112 passengers and five crew members — would have time to take off when they cleared it.

But it was only halfway down the 5,700-foot runway when controllers apparently realized a collision was imminent and ordered Flight 931 to abort its takeoff, officials said. It taxied safely onto an apron off the runway.

Furman said Flight 931 had had to delay its takeoff to allow required space for a Western Airlines jet that had landed just ahead of it on the runway. Federal regulations require 6,000 feet clearance between planes landing and taking off on the same runway, Furman said.

In the 20 seconds after tower controllers ordered the ill-fated jet not to land, he said, Clark retracted the plane's landing gear, gave the plane full throttle, then — when it became obvious he was going to hit the runway — put the landing gear back down.

An investigation of the wreckage showed the plane's wing flaps were at a 15-degree angle, indicating the pilot was trying to climb as ordered, Furman said.

Why the engine did not perform to the level expected by the pilot has yet to be determined, Furman said, adding that the engine's maintenance records have yet to be examined.

Furman said the NTSB will continue to gather information which will be forwarded to NTSB's governing board in Washington, D.C. for a ruling on a probable cause.

One issue still to be investigated, he said, is why four rows of seats collapsed when the plane cracked open in the crash landing.

Meantime, Furman credited quick action by the cockpit crew of Flight 336 with preventing fatalities.

Just moments before the crash, he said, the pilot and/or co-pilot threw the switches necessary to cut off the fuel supply, generators and engines.

When the plane crashed, its right wing was ripped off and fire broke out. But the flames were quickly extinguished because the plane screeched to a stop only 250 yards from a fire station and firemen sprayed foam over the fuselage.

Mayors will spur activities at UTPB science emphasis

ODESSA — The mayors of Midland and Odessa will be on hand to kick off the final day of activities when The University of Texas of the Permian Basin hosts its second annual Science and Engineering Days Feb. 27-28.

Midland Mayor Thane Akins and Odessa Mayor Bob Bryant will arrive by helicopter to begin the activities in style. Dr. David Eggleston, chairman of control engineering at UTPB, said Akins will arrive at UTPB about 10 a.m. Feb. 28 and Bryant at about 10:20.

"We feel the Science and Engineering Days are important to both Midland and Odessa since these fields are closely tied to the industry of both cities," Eggleston said.

Eggleston noted the program is intended to promote interest and enthusiasm for science and engineering. Students of all ages representing elementary and secondary schools from throughout the Permian Basin are expected on the UTPB campus for the two-day event.

Saturday's events will feature various contests including a mousetrap-powered car contest, a paper airplane contest and an egg-drop contest.

Exhibits, open both days, will give participants an opportunity to experience some of the developments in science and engineering.

Included in the exhibits and demonstrations are a variety of computers, a wind-powered automobile, a biofeedback demonstration, an aircraft simulator, an operating flat-plate solar collector system, microprocessors, a microprocessor-based data logging system, an ergometer demonstration of human power output, a jet helicopter, a hot air balloon, a ham radio and an automobile computer command and control.

Exhibits for both days will open at 9:30 a.m. The public is invited to all events free of charge.

Few desire name change

CLUTE, Texas (AP) — Apparently all the furor over changing the name of this small South Texas city has been for naught.

City Manager Bill Pennington says the current tally on changing the town's name from Clute to Brazoswood is about 10 to 1 — against.
