GENERAL'S 'COPTER DOWN

Torrential Rains Deter Investigation Of Wreck

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. troops struggled in torrential rains today to reach the wreckage of the downed helicopter of Maj. Gen. George W. Casey on a hill near the Cambodian border.

Casey, 48, of North Scituate, Mass., a West Point graduate, commanded the 1st Air Cavalry Division, one of the U.S. Army's finest units. Its helicopter was shot down by Communist forces in Cambodia.

The general was a qualified pilot and it is believed he was at the controls when the crash occurred. One other pilot was aboard.

Casey was believed headed for a military hospital in Tay Ninh City, 35 miles northwest of Saigon, in the turbine-powered UH-1 Huey.

The U.S. Command said combat had dropped to its lowest level since American troops left Cambodia 11 days ago.

Cambodian government sources in Phnom Penh reported Thai troops had entered Cambodia to help protect a tiny border hilltop enclave around the ancient temple of Preah Vihear, 190 miles north of Phnom Penh. It was the first time Thai fighting men had come into Cambodia since the Lon Nol government asked help from Bangkok to fight the Communists.

There were these other developments.

—Only one major ground engagement was reported in Vietnam. Four Americans died 100 miles east of Saigon when Communist troops ambushed them with a mine and small arms fire. Guerrilla casualties were unknown.

—American B52 bombers flew eight missions overnight in South Vietnam and an undisclosed number in Cambodia and Laos, U.S. spokesmen said. All the raids in Vietnam were in the vicinity of the abandoned U.S. Marine base of Khe Sanh.

—Communist guerrillas Thursday night mortared the road junction town of Souvanna Khili in Southern Laos astride a highway to the Laotian southern military headquarters at Pakse. They missed a government barracks and hit civilian houses instead, killing 10 and wounding seven. Four of the dead were children.

—Military sources in Saigon said today the United States was paying most of the one to two million dollars of estimated costs for South Vietnam to train 10,000 Cambodian troops.

—The International Red Cross prepared to return 62 disabled North Vietnamese war prisoners and 24 detained fishermen to North Vietnam Saturday at the Demilitarized Zone.

—Cambodian spokesmen quoted Premier Lon Nol as saying about half the estimated 72,000 Communist troops in his country had returned to Vietnam. The spokesmen said it appeared those who stayed behind had retired to isolated areas to rest and reorganize during the monsoon season.

Air observers who spotted the wreckage of Casey's helicopter in the jungle hillside saw no bodies near it, raising a possibility the general and his men survived and escaped into the woods.

Cooper-Church Bill Faces Unsure Fate

House Undoes Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House, in seven minutes, has taken a long step toward undoing the restrictive legislation on Cambodia the Senate took seven weeks to put together.

By a 237 to 153 vote, the House refused Thursday to accept the Cooper-Church Amendment that would bar future large-scale military operations in Cambodia. It sent the bill to an uncertain fate in a joint conference.

Disappointed senators who guided the measure through an administration obstacle course now are worried the action will make House conferees even more unyielding on the present-setting amendment.

The Cooper-Church Amendment was added by the Senate to a $300 million foreign military sales bill passed by the House earlier in the year.

The administration and its backer in Congress want the bill—but they have not said whether they want it badly enough to accept the amendment.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said he was "delighted" at the House action. He called on the House-Senate conferees now to remove the Cooper-Church Amendment from the bill.

"The Cooper-Church language would interfere with the power of the President to protect the lives of American troops," Ford said in a statement. "Such interference is short-sighted and unwise."

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was "very pleased by the action of the House."

"Very pleased is an understatement," said Robert H. Finch, counselor to the President, who was with Nixon when he was informed of the vote. "He was elated. He was delighted."

Church vowed again Tuesday that so far as he and other Senate negotiators were concerned, the military sales bill would burn at the same stake as the Cambodia amendment if House members refused to yield.

And he said he was prepared to sit in the conference the rest of the year, if necessary, until the House agrees.

Reward Offered For Return Of Kidnaped Girl

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—An anonymous $5,000 reward with no strings attached has been offered for the safe return of Laurie Murnighan, 16. The blonde daughter of Lansing's former mayor was kidnapped by a robber from the antique store where she was a clerk.

A massive police search found no trace of Miss Murnighan, whose father is former Lansing Mayor Max E. Murnighan, or of her abductor, described as a Negro male about 25 years old wearing dark trousers and a straw hat.

Miss Murnighan was forced to accompany a gunman who held up Gallagher's Gift Shop for $80 after she told him she didn't have change for a $20 bill, police said.

Late Thursday local broadcasters played a tape recording by Ernie Boone, a prominent local black resident, who promised the reward money for her safe return. Boone gave his telephone number and promised communication by code number if someone offered information. "I will deliver the money," Boone said. "Please call me at my home."

17-Year-Old Youth Terrorizes Family

SAN ANTONIO (UPI)—A 17-year-old boy forced four persons out of their car at knifepoint in Brackenridge Park Thursday night, stole the vehicle, wrecked it and then removed all its clothes as police closed in.

Police said the youth was under the influence of LSD.

More than 200 persons watched the incident in the heavily wooded park.

James Richburg of Houston told officers he was in the car with his wife, his 14-year-old daughter and a girlfriend of his daughter's.

The car was stopped on one of the park's narrow winding roads when the youth dashed up to the vehicle and flashed a knife.

"He told me he was going to kill me if I didn't get out," Mrs. Richburg said.

All four persons in the car got out and the youth jumped in. He sped off in the car but drove it only a short way before smashing it into a tree.

Park police and San Antonio patrolmen responded to the disturbance call. Arrived at the wreck scene as the youth was jumping from the car.

The boy began stripping off his clothes and before police could restrain him he was naked. He had to be restrained before he was taken to a local hospital for treatment.

Pampa's Image Fed Into Austin Computer

A complete analysis with all information about Pampa has now been fed to the Texas Industrial Commission's computer in Austin.

E.O. Wedgeworth, chamber of commerce general manager, said today Pampa's six-month compilation of facts concerning the city and surrounding area had been sent to the TIC within the past few days.

"What it means," Wedgeworth said, "is that any industry seeking a Texas location will now be furnished with all the preliminary information it needs about Pampa as a possible location."

The report sent in by the chamber contains every known fact about Pampa and its environs from the city, county and area standpoint.

Wedgeworth said that when the Industrial Commission gets a request from a concern wanting to locate in the state, the computer information will supply the names of the five or ten top cities with facilities meeting the company's requirements.

The industry wishing to locate will then begin a more detailed study of the possible sites made available; the chamber manager explained.

"The Industrial Commission's computer program is designed to give industrial site seekers an immediate report on what is available in Texas," Wedgeworth said.

Blind Parents Asked To Give Up Injured Son

SOUTHEAST, England (UPI)—A juvenile court magistrate Thursday ordered a blind couple to give up their four-month-old son, found to have a broken leg, a black eye and bruises on his face.

The judge told the couple, a 34-year-old government employee and his wife, 28, to give the child to his grandparents on grounds they were incapable of caring for him.

OTHER COUNTS, CHARGE DROPPED

Former Aide To McCormack Convicted On Perjury Count

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Martin Sweig, suspended chief administrative aide to House Speaker John W. McCormack, was convicted Thursday on a single count of perjury.

The jury, however, acquitted Sweig of five other perjury counts and of a charge of conspiring to mislead the speaker's office for his personal gain.

He faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $2,000 fine. Had he been convicted on all counts he could have been imprisoned for 35 years and fined $25,000.

Sweig remained free on $50,000 bond sentencing set for Aug. 31. His lawyers said he would appeal.

"Thank God it's over," Sweig said to reporters who clustered around him after the jury announced its verdict. He refused further comment on the three-week-long trial in federal court here.

Sweig, 48, was indicted in October with veteran Washington lobbyist Nathan Voloshen, 72, on charges of conspiring to defraud the government by using the prestige of the speaker's office to gain favor for Voloshen's clients for fees, which allegedly amounted to $169,000 over a five-year period.

On the first day of the trial Voloshen unexpectedly pleaded guilty, leaving Sweig to stand trial alone.

The federal jury took more than 17 hours over two days to reach a verdict in the trial highlighted by the appearance on the witness stand of McCormack, who has announced his retirement from politics at the end of the year.

McCormack, 78, a veteran of 45 years in Congress, told the court he had prohibited the alleged practice by Sweig and Voloshen of using his office, his telephone and his name in their operations.

The prosecution, directed by U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour, stressed that McCormack was not implicated in the case.

The specific perjury count for which Sweig was convicted involved Gary Roth, a draft-age youth, whose father-in-law allegedly asked Voloshen to use his influence to keep him out of the Army.

According to court testimony Sweig, using McCormack's name, telephoned contacts but was unable to keep the young man from being drafted.

Government witnesses testified that Sweig persevered with the result that Roth eventually discharged from the Army as a hardship case.

New Chairman Named In Major Shakeup Of Ling-Temco-Vought

DALLAS (UPI)—James J. Ling, who built Ling-Temco-Vought Inc. into one of the nation's largest conglomerates, resigned Thursday as its president. LTV stock plunged from a high of $140 a share two years ago and closed Thursday at 12 1/2.

He was replaced by Paul Thayer, the head of LTV Aerospace Corp., an LTV subsidiary.

An official company announcement said Ling "was no longer to be an active participant in operations of the company."

Thayer was quoted in the announcement as saying the company's new leadership "would be looking to Mr. Ling for his advice and counsel based on his experience over the years."

Ling remained in the post of vice chairman of the board, taking the place of Troy V. Post, who said he was resigning to devote his full time to personal investments and real estate.

Robert H. Stewart III, board chairman also stepped down. His place will be filled by C. Edward Acker, executive vice president and general manager of Braniff Airways Inc.

Thayer will hold the titles of president, chairman and chief executive officer.

The company's executive committee also was reconstituted with E. Grant Pitts, chairman of Gulf Life Holding Co., as chairman and Thayer, Acker, Sam Wyly and Dennis G. Lyons as members.

Ling, 47, founder of the company, was a Hugo, Okla., high school dropout at the age of 14. He bumbled around for several years before taking a job as an electrician in Dallas at the age of 19.

In 1946, after his discharge from the Navy, he sold his house and started Ling Electric. The company was earning $15 million a year volume by 1955.

Ling built that company into a giant conglomerate in the 1960s. Last year the company ran afoul of the federal government when it tried to take over Jones & Laughlin Steel.

The move resulted in the first antitrust suit filed by the Justice Department against a conglomerate.

The Justice Department ordered LTV to divest itself of Braniff Airways and the Okonite Co., or Jones & Laughlin. LTV decided to keep J&L.

NOBODY'S HAPPY

Nose Count Causes Big Headache For Counters

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although its massive once-in-a-decade nose count is not yet completed, the Census Bureau already is besieged with complaints from around the country about the accuracy of its early findings.

"The figures we have put out are preliminary, really preliminary," a bureau spokesman explained, explaining that census officials still are sorting out complaints and making corrections where errors are found.

Whether the complaints are valid or an expression of outraged boosterism, they tend to have one thing in common—they come from areas that have lost population or have registered fewer gains than expected.

The bureau's early figures—claims to have counted about 162 million Americans or 60 per cent of the expected 210 million total—have led to a variety of critical responses.

They were denounced in Congress. Newspapers and radio stations conducted their own campaigns to discover who went uncounted April 1. Mayors and Chamber of Commerce officials demanded recounts and one group filed a suit to stop the count.

Census Bureau officials are not surprised by the complaints. One said privately, "We figure the mayor whose city has lost population is not doing his civic or public duty as a mayor" unless he complains about the results.

The reason is that a great deal more than population hinges on the population count. It not only determines how many congressional seats each state is entitled and whether election district boundaries need to be changed, but federal aid dollars under many government programs are also distributed on a per-capita basis.

A strong distrust of the bureau's "mail-back" system of counting people was found in a United Press International survey of state and local officials after Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Mo., called for a "missed persons" campaign.

"We still have a number of people who cannot read or write," said Larry Stover, Beckley, W.Va., recorder-treasurer. "I would imagine their forms ended up in trash cans."

A bureau spokesman said 87 per cent of the census forms sent to homes were mailed back and that census takers went to (or are on the way to) every one that failed to respond. In some cases, he said, repeated visits failed to find anyone home and census information was taken from neighbors.

ABCD Gets To Top, Bottom Of Things

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Naked burlesque dancers have been ordered by the state to patch on pasties and step into panties, and topless-bottomless dancers have been told to wear at least "a fig leaf."

Furthermore, nightclub entertainment must not include nudist grating luridly.

Those orders were contained in new regulations adopted Thursday by the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Department.

"This is silly if they are going to kick up such a fuss after it's been going on for so long," said Linda Cochran, 23, a blonde topless waitress in San Francisco, when told of the new rules.

"Pasties are Gross" Sandy Matson, 26, also a topless waitress in San Francisco and a former Peace Corps member, said: "Pasties are gross. They are a pain."

A spokesman for several clubs in San Francisco's North Beach area, birthplace of topless dancing, said owners would ignore the new rules and have the whole issue resolved in the courts.

Rules were less stringent for the dancers themselves, since no mention was made of bare breasts—but dancers must perform on a stage 18 inches off the ground and six feet away from onlookers.

The rules, which become effective Aug. 10, were adopted after the ABC studied testimony delivered during a public hearing in May.

Democratic House Liberals To Be Tested To See If They Read, Write, Remember

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic House liberals like to admit they learn to count about a decade ago. They are now to be tested as to whether they also can read, write, and remember as far back as Sept. 16, 1968.

Their collective test score wouldn't matter much except for one thing: riding on it may be the fate of an effort by thoughtful House members of assorted political stripe to end the secrecy that traditionally has shrouded many key House decisions.

The reformers would do this by amending a reorganization bill set for House action next week. As it comes to the floor, the bill is a modest one, dealing with such matters as hiring girl pages and opening committee hearings to television broadcast.

Coalition leaders say putting lawmakers on record on all major issues is the very least Congress can do to affirm its integrity in an era of public doubt and dissent.

The Senate already takes record votes on most issues. The House, following a vestigial "Committee of the Whole" procedure inherited from the British House of Commons, ducks roll call votes on many significant and-or embarrassing questions. Voting instead is by "tellers," with members marching up the center aisle for and against, their bodies counted but their names unreported.

The reform plan is to put a clerk at the end of the line and enter the names, which then would be published.

So far, so good. Even House leaders have bought the idea. The problem is that the liberals — and others — have come up with many other amendments. One of these raises fresh questions about the practicality of the liberal bloc.

The liberals' problem for years in the House was that even when they had the votes they couldn't win, because they failed to produce them when needed. On many issues they guessed at the outcome instead of counting noses beforehand.

They took up counting in a serious way in the late 50s and by 1961 were able to help Speaker Sam Rayburn break the conservative grip of the Rules Committee, which had threatened to strangle President John F. Kennedy's program.

Critical Factor Since then, organized as the Democratic study group, the liberals have won some and lost some, with their ability to count frequently the critical factor. Currently it is their reading and writing talents that are being taxed to the limit. They seek agreement on hairsplitting parliamentary language that will make the record vote plan work just the way they intend.

As for their memory, it appears to be deplorably short. Among 10 amendments they have agreed to support is one with the laudable aim of "short quorum calls." They propose to modify this time-consuming call of the role by allowing members merely to sign in at the desk.

Ghost Voting When half the membership has established its presence, either in this manner or by answering the clerk's traditional alphabetical call, the roll call would be stopped. Late arrivals could continue to sign in until 30 minutes had passed.

That takes us back to September 16, 1968, the day all members learned about votes cast and quorum calls answered by some members not actually present.

If the liberals' new formula for shortening quorum calls gets into the bill, that "ghost voting" scandal may turn out to have been just a preview. More likely, with this and other amendments attached, the reform bill will be killed.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of Congress are fond of describing one another as "distinguished." But this most overworked word in the congressional lexicon is usually only a half-truth at best.

It is true that a congressman may appear distinguished when you meet him head-on. When viewed from the rear, however, he is likely to display commonplace characteristics that bleed right in with the crowd.

The unexceptional quality of congressional posteriors was the subject of a news release issued this week by Rep. Thomas M. Rees, D-Calif. Rees, who wants to reform House voting procedures, noted that many votes cast in public session are unrecorded. Which means the voting is done anonymously.

Teller Votes Important "The most important votes on the floor are teller votes," he explained. "Each member walks past a teller, a member appointed to count the votes for and against an amendment."

The members walk through the teller line in a direction facing away from the press gallery. It's hard enough for the press to identify a congressman from the front — you can imagine the trouble they have identifying one from the backside. Only a few members pass this instant backside recognition muster.

"I believe the public has a right to know what the House of Representatives is doing, and how their elected congressmen vote on important amendments in committee and on the floor."

As a frequent occupant of the press gallery, I must concur in Rees' evaluation of the situation. Of the 435 House members, the only two I can positively identify in a teller line are Reps. Charlotte T. Reid, R-Ill., and Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii.

Way to Solve Problem Rees did not spell out what remedy he had in mind, but it seems to me the simplest way to solve the problem would be to require that congressmen wear numbers on their backs.

AFTER SC RULING

TABC Official Says Clubs Will Be Given Time To Adjust

AUSTIN (UPI) — The administrator of the Texas Alcoholic Commission says his agency will give Texas private clubs enough time to adjust to the new "guest" ruling issued by the Texas Supreme Court. But he added the agency plans to strictly enforce the ruling.

A spokesman for the private clubs says the court ruling will close three-fourths of the clubs in Texas.

The Supreme Court said Wednesday private clubs could no longer issue random "guest cards" to anyone who wanted a mixed drink. The court said only "guests" accompanied or introduced by club members may be served in private clubs.

The ruling upheld a regulation of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission (TABC). Private clubs are the chief source of mixed drinks in Texas. However, a proposed liquor by the drink constitutional amendment to permit the serving of mixed drinks in places other than private clubs will be on the November ballot.

TABC Administrator O.N. Humphreys Jr. said he was pleased with the court's decision.

"We do not want to be harsh or unreasonable but at the same time the Alcoholic Beverage Commission will expect all clubs to follow the guidelines laid down in this rule and regulation," Humphreys said.

He said the TABC will try to give clubs enough time to "make such adjustments as are necessary to comply with the rule" before beginning strict enforcement.

A spokesman for the Black Garter Club in Dallas, one of the private clubs contesting the TABC regulation, said it will comply with the ruling and has no further plans to contest the suit. The spokesman said the club already stopped issuing guest cards.

Missouri School Board Vows Persistence On Tax Levy Increase

HICKMAN MILLS, Mo.

(UPI) — For the fifth time in four months, voters have rejected an increased school tax levy. The school board says it will submit the proposal every 17 days until it is approved, because classes cannot resume in September without additional funds.

The 79-cent operating levy and 75-cent building levy were defeated March 10, May 12, May 20, June 17 and once again Tuesday.

"We have to do something, but nobody knows yet what it will be," Jane Leavens, board secretary, said Wednesday after the latest voter rejection.

On June 17, the proposals, nearly passed when the operating levy received 66.09 per cent of the vote. Two-thirds majority, or 66.67 per cent, was needed.

Voter turnout was heavier Tuesday, however, and only 59.64 per cent approved.

An opposition group, the Committee of Concerned Citizens for Better Education, took the issue to the Jackson County Circuit Court and U.S. District Court Monday. But judges refused to issue a temporary restraining order against the election.

The suit alleged the district superintendent and board were "making a sham and mockery of elections" by choosing to resubmit the proposals until they passed.

Earlier, the committee asked for the resignations of board members and District Superintendent Tom V. Foraker. Foraker replied by filing a $200,000 damage suit against committee Chairman G.P. Woodbridge, saying Woodbridge alleged Foraker mismanaged district funds.

Mrs. Joseph Greene, mother of two school children and one of the leaders in the fight against the levy, said, "We want to reach a compromise on a passable levy so the schools can stay open, taxpayers can be happy—if that is possible—and the children can get an education but not be put ahead of the community."

The operating levy, which would raise the total levy to $6.8, on each $100 assessed valuation, would underwrite a $100 annual salary increase for teachers to $6,300 a year; hire 31 new teachers and absorb the costs of opening a new school building and inflationary raises in maintenance, operating and supplies costs.

Lady Senator Gets Plastic Hip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sen.

Margaret Chase Smith, 72, the only woman in the Senate, underwent surgery Wednesday for removal of her arthritic right hip and received a plastic and metal hip bone and leg joint in its place.

The Maine Republican was in "satisfactory" condition today, a spokesman at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center said. Mrs. Smith was expected to be hospitalized for about two weeks.

She suffered from what doctors described as "a congenital dislocation" of the hip for several years, forcing her to rely on a small electric cart to get around the Capitol.

The spokesman said Mrs. Smith entered the Harkness Pavilion section of the medical center Monday to await the operation performed by Dr. Frank E. Stinchfield, considered one of the world's foremost bone surgeons.

Why Wait? "Charge It" with Ward's Charge-All Credit Plan

By Susan Van Gure

DEAR ABBY: I am the young mother of a beautiful baby girl. She is so sweet and perfect, except for one thing. Her feet are shaped like little fish. The doctor says she will be able to walk just fine, but it is very embarrassing because all the neighbor women think I am some kind of "weirdo" to have given birth to a baby with "fish feet."

One night my sister was looking at my baby's feet, and she went into some kind of a trance. She went outside and prayed to the moon for many hours. She is no weirdo either, but she said the baby's fish-shaped feet had some strange "power."

Can this be so? God help me if I have borne some kind of witch. I never was one to believe in witchcraft or things like that, but now I'm not so sure. Why else such feet on my baby? And feet that could put my sister in a trance?

Maybe all it means is that my child will grow up to be a fine swimmer? Please put my mind at ease. Being a mother yourself, you know how I feel.

DEAR WORRIED: Ask your baby's doctor for his explanation of your baby's "fish-shaped" feet. (They could be "webbed"—an abnormality which surgery can fix.) The "trance" your sister went into could be a "spell" unrelated to your baby's feet. Don't worry another moment. Seek the answers from your doctor right away.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor visits us every night. It doesn't matter if we have company or not, she comes over anyway.

Last Saturday night we had company, so she rang the bell and said, "I see you have company." Then she walks right in and sits herself down. My husband and I like a little privacy, but she doesn't seem to care. She is a widow and we hate to hurt her feelings, but we would like to be alone once in a while. Must we entertain this woman when we have company? Please advise.

DEAR TIRED: Yes, you must entertain this woman when you have company and also when you don't. If she invites herself over and is made to feel welcome. Your alternative is to ask her to please call to find out if she should come over. But then if you had the courage to do that you wouldn't have written to me. There are no easy ways to protect one's self against unwanted and unwelcome dropper-inners. If you can't tell 'em, you've got to put up with 'em.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 52-year-old widow with 12 nice children, from 13 to 33. I met this very nice, kind gentleman a year ago. Roy is a widower from another state. He has two sons, 11 and 12. Every week-end Roy comes to see me. The problem is he always brings his boys. My house is barely big enough for me and my nine children who are still at home. I have a half bed which Roy uses, so I have been sending Roy's sons to stay with my parents who live near me.

They are old and ailing and my sister and her husband and their five small children live with them, so it is very crowded there, too. Besides, Roy's boys are sassy and mean and they destroy everything they get their hands on. Even Roy can't make them mind.

My whole family is on me about Roy's sons staying with the folks every week-end.

I once hinted to Roy to please leave his boys with some of his people (he has more relatives than I have), but he paid no attention to the hint, and every week-end he comes and drops the boys off at my parents' place. Abby, I hate to hurt Roy's feelings as he is really nice to me, and a widow with nine at home doesn't have many chances. What should I do?

DEAR NO: So far, all you've gotten from Roy is his company every week-end, plus the wrath of your family for imposing Roy's hard-to-handle boys on them. Quit hinting, and tell Roy you cannot accommodate his sons every week-end, and if he wants to see you he will have to make other arrangements for them.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Readers Suggest Ways To Flatten Snapshots

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. L.W. can soak her curled snapshots in cool water until wet, then carefully take them out of the water, one at a time, and blot with a turkish towel. Place each glossy print, separately, in an old book with a piece of waxed paper against the glossy side. Check them every hour or so to be sure the waxed paper does not stick. After a time, remove to another book and omit the paper. I know this works as I have done it.

—G.A.

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. L.W. can flatten her snapshots by washing them in a solution of one part glycerin to 10 parts water and then press between two blotters until dry. Prepared print flatteners can be bought at photo supply stores and then follow directions. The prints will still curl, but only slightly, due to the paper on which they were printed.

—Mrs. T.K.

DEAR POLLY—I stuffed an old, no longer usable, hot-water bottle with discarded nylons to make a comfortable, easily cleaned kneeling pad to use while gardening.

When you have a door that binds, try cutting strips from a piece of sandpaper and tape them to the doorway. The action of opening and closing the door will doubtless smooth off the offending spots.

From the designers of the Texas Fashion Creators Association come these colorful, breezy togs for summer. Left to right, a soft echo of the '20s in a white, pleated blouse drop-waist in Encon polyester dotted in black by Mr. Mench. Top it with its own string of white pearls. For the youthful miss a gentle A-line by Main Place in navy and white Dacron polyester.

At the upper portion of the Apollo/Saturn launch rocket, 1/10 scale model, fashion focuses on a sleeveless blue key print jacquard cardigan covering a floppy crepe blouse and crisp white pleated skirt by Donovan-Galvani. Mr. "B" by Bogard has a whimsical, patterned blue-and-white tunic and white short set for sunny beach days. It is in 100 per cent cotton.

PERT, PRETTY SUN WEAR

Texas Lassos Fashion Winners To Create Comfortable Styles

HOUSTON (NEA) — Texas once again throws its hat into the fashion ring and comes up a winner.

The Summer designs for 1970 shown here to the nation's fashion press by the Texas Fashion Creators Association are the active woman will find all that she needs to suit her whims or fancies. Sun clothes go in new directions with free versatility for the beach, the tennis court or for late day.

Bare some skin to the sun with a whimsical cut-up. Backs, sides, midriffs or sleeves are cut out in squares, triangles and slashes. And so are the mini-dresses, sundresses and swimsuits.

Bared midriffs carry the cut-out look a step further with halter and crop tops that are strapped, thong-tied, elasticized or simply bow-tied. The beach top closes briefly at the bosom and opens to show a stretch of midriff and white shorts. Bare midriffs are also a perfect complement to long evening ensembles.

Comfort is the key to sun fashions and pant dresses continue to make news. Newest this Summer are pant dresses faked to look like mini play dresses. The skirts are split on the side and flip up to reveal colorful shorts. Fling a wrap skirt around a mini jumpsuit and you have a late afternoon dress.

To keep your cool, slip into a knithugger shirtdress with a ribbed sweater T-top or try an airy crochet skimmer. Or you can try a tunic shirtdress or tailored body dress sashed with fringe or belted in wide leather.

Make the beach scene in any one of several new looks. Cover your two-piece or cutoit swimsuit with a maxi beach coat in cotton knit or water-absorbing cotton terrycloth. Drape a sand-length sarong around your waist and follow an Eastern breeze. If you're the modest type, pull on a Kabuki-sleeved mini or maxi mumou with cut-out sleeves. Or make your appearances "hugely shawled and lavishly fringed."

Coffee Klatches Serve Lemonade To Beat Heat

Morning coffee klatches are all the more enjoyable when they can be held out of doors on warm Summer days.

A new insulated electric coffee maker seems to have been tailor-made for such situations.

Called a party perk, the automatic coffee maker brews up to 30 cups enough for half the neighborhood. Sealed-air, double wall insulation keeps the coffee hot for up to two hours, even without the unit being plugged in.

This means that once the coffee is brewed, the party perk can be disconnected and carried outside and kept on the picnic table where everyone can help themselves. This will save a lot of trips into the house for refills.

Another advantage of the party perk is that it doubles as a cold drink dispenser for picnics and parties. The same sealed-air insulation that keeps coffee hot, keeps iced tea or coffee, punch or lemonade cold for up to four hours. It's ideal for picnics, buffet luncheons, or patio parties.

SATURDAY, JULY 11

YOUR BIRTHDAY

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expect to differ with friends on almost any issue—give them room for thought. The passing glory of a romantic impulse may be just that.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Saturday everybody wants his due, and promptly. Get an early start. Your patience with a general failure of communications must be its own reward.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): In the midst of present tensions and excitement do something that gives you a momentary change of pace and scene, at least symbolically.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Your intuitive conclusions may be difficult to share since logic doesn't follow quite the same path—but keep trying. Your natural diplomacy is helpful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tactical approaches succeed, while secret maneuvers head toward confusion. Attentive listening brings you information which does not fit. Don't jump to conclusions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Routine activities are favored. Exceptionally large purchases are not well enough considered—look for some means of postponement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expression of personal wishes provides restless people with a target. Discretion is the key. Your acts need no explanation. You are well enough on record.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Skip making a deal rather than get involved in complicated schemes. Consult your deeper intuitions before you involve other people.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Plans are tested Saturday. Much of what you hoped to do is beyond easy reach. Your patience makes it easier to reorganize. Altogether it's a long and full day.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your normal attitudes toward people and their activities could get you into awkward moments. For now, just listen. You'll learn a great deal.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Proceed by yourself Saturday, not waiting for important people to offer help. Whatever you do now should be for immediate results. Here and now.

First Christian Church

The Rev. Shelly H. Anglemeyer will deliver the morning message for the worship beginning at 10:50 a.m. Sunday. He has chosen for his sermon topic "The Natural and the Divine," with Scriptures from I Cor. 2:5-14. Mrs. John Gill will present the Anthem.

The evening activities will begin with snack supper at 5:30 p.m. Youth groups will meet at 6 p.m. and evening Vesper, led by Rev. Anglemeyer, at 7:00 p.m.

Wednesday, at 7:00 p.m., choir rehearsal will be held. On this same night at 8:00 p.m., the Education Committee and the Elders of the church will meet.

The ladies of the church will meet for a work day on Wednesday, with Mrs. J. Stanley Hill, president of the CWF as their leader.

First Baptist Church

Dan B. Cameron, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will preach for the eleven o'clock morning worship from the series, "The King and I." This last sermon in the series is entitled, "walking with the King."

David Campbell will give direction to the music and present the special music which includes a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kornegay and a guest soloist, Mrs. Berna May. Mrs. May is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McMinn and a former member of the church.

Miss Eloise Lane, organist, and Mrs. David Campbell, pianist will play the offertory duet, "Did You Think to Pray?"

Dr. C. Gordon Payless, former pastor of the church, will be the guest speaker for the seven o'clock evening worship. His sermon topic is "Turn Northward." This will be the last service that Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kornegay will be with the church, and Mr. and Mrs. Kornegay and Mr. and Mrs. David will sing in a mixed quartet for the special music. Pray For America Day Proposed

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

It was a good thing to honor America, as most of us did last Saturday.

But might it not be even better, on next July 4, to pray for America?

There are two reasons why "Pray for America Day" might be more appropriate than "Honor America Day."

First, to pray for one's country is a more humble and God-fearing thing than to extol its virtues, however many and real they are.

The Old Testament prophets rarely if ever called the people of Israel together to tell each other and the world how good they were. But the prophets often summoned Israel to pray for God's help and guidance and to ask His forgiveness for failures and shortcomings.

In the New Testament, we find Jesus telling a parable to rebuke "people who were sure of their own goodness."

Here is the Parable:

Only a fool would try to rewrite the greatest story-teller of all time. Here is the parable as Jesus told it:

"Two men went up to the temple to pray: one was a Pharisee, the other a tax collector."

"The Pharisee stood apart by himself and prayed: 'I thank you, God, that I am not greedy, dishonest or immoral, like everybody else; I thank you that I am not like that tax collector. I fast two days every week, and I give one tenth of all my income.'"

"But the tax collector stood at a distance and would not even raise his face to Heaven but beat on his breast and said, 'O God, have pity on me, a sinner.' I tell you this man, and not the other, was in right with God when he went home."

"For everyone who makes himself great will be humbled, and everyone who humbles himself will be made great."

The second reason for observing next July 4 as "Pray for America Day" is that prayer is an activity in which people can join regardless of how deeply divided they are about America's current policies at home and abroad.

Those who oppose the war in Vietnam can pray for the extrication of their country from that involvement. Those who feel that racism is America's greatest problem can pray for the healing of that disease of our national soul. Those who feel that radicals are destroying the fabric of social order on which everyone's freedom depends can pray for restoration of justice under law.

How about it Billy Graham? Isn't a nation on its knees an even more impressive spectacle than a nation waving flags?

"IS POLARITY A PROBLEM OR SOLUTION?"

It was the great preacher William Temple who said, "I would urge that we try to recover some measure of the harrow of divisions among Christians." We need most of all in life to understand that because we do not agree with another's ideas, does not mean we automatically sell him down the river or completely rule out the remote possibility that he could be right and we could be wrong. Dr. Elton Trueblood in his new book, "The New Man for Our Time" says in the opening sentence, "Because Christianity exists, not for its own sake, but for the sake of the world, all mankind has a stake in the health of the Christian community." We should all be concerned that Christ's purposes be carried out first and our personal opinion be second. This could not happen unless we are willing to hear clearly what our brother is saying. The truth of the matter is our Christian community is divided. Division is nothing new, but we face a situation today in which it is taking a new form. The main difference today is not between denominations for it seems this is less of a problem than ever before. The division today is within the congregation. The witness of the church today is crippled because of the "polarists" says Dr. Trueblood.

By an activist is meant a person who holds that an attack on entrenched social evil is the only part of Christian life that is worth considering. By a pietist on the other hand, is meant a person who emphasizes the life of prayer, of worship and of devotion and of personal evangelism. Sometimes he is concerned primarily with the salvation of his own soul.

Today in our society this conflict has been sharpened to such an extent that people have become suspicious of each other.

As Dr. Trueblood closes his book he pleads for the time when polarization will not separate us but draw us together under Christ. We are today a part of a polarized generation, which may or may not be helping us.

I personally feel we need both groups in our churches working together rather than fighting each other.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Democratic 'Logic'

Many individuals who have taken the time to master basic economics and clearly understand that inflation is nothing more or less than an increase in the money supply are, nevertheless, puzzled by the government's unwillingness to admit what inflation actually is and, consequently, at its futile attempts to check it.

"If inflation is an increase in the money supply, as it plainly is, and if the government itself controls that supply, as it obviously does, then why, in the name of common sense," they ask, "does the government persist in fooling around with the effects of inflation (rising prices) instead of getting at the cause by ceasing to print and elude worthless paper into the economy?"

It is a good question, and one that used to puzzle this writer, too, but it fails utterly to comprehend the political-bureaucratic mind.

First of all, it assumes that people in government think in the same way as do we, the people, who are taxed to support the government. They don't!

Secondly, the question assumes that the government is really interested in curbing inflation. It isn't!

Thirdly, it assumes that the government, in attacking the effects of inflation rather than its cause, is acting illogically. It isn't!

Let us take these three faulty assumptions one at a time.

1. You, as a producer and earner, are interested in retaining control of as much of your earnings as possible; the government, on the other hand, is interested in transferring control of as much of your earnings as possible from you to itself. You, as an individual, are interested in retaining the maximum of liberty and freedom of choice; government, which can only grow as the individual shrinks, is interested in curtailing your liberty and freedom of choice.

2. Inflation, which taxes without appearing to and subtly enslaves, is admirably suited to the government's objectives, as outlined in 1, above, not to the attainment of yours.

3. From its own point of view,

Restraint Is Necessary

It was encouraging indeed to hear President Nixon reiterate that wage and price controls are out as means of curbing inflation. Wage and price controls, the President said, only postpone the day of reckoning, and in so doing they rob every American of an important part of his freedom. He couldn't have been more right.

Wage and price controls have doubtful results. A free market ceases to function as such when government steps in and imposes controls and what our economy needs is more freedom to expand and meet growing consumer needs. Certainly the last thing we need is bureaucratic control.

Excessive government spending over the last decade has reduced the value of the dollar (We're not far from the two-bit dollar) and brought on inflation. It follows that the way to stop inflation is to cut government spending to the bare essentials and live within our means. There's no other way out.

Unfortunately, there is strong support in and out of Congress for some sort of wage and price controls. In his speech on the national economy Wednesday, the President reminded advocates of control that he had no intention of acquiescing to control legislation. Here's how he put it:

"I will not take this nation down the road of wage and price controls, however, and in a perverse sort of way, government's refusal to admit what inflation is and its attack on inflation's effects, rather than its cause, are obscenely logical. This is so for a number of reasons, among which are:

If the government admitted that inflation of the money supply, by itself, was the cause of inflation, it would be admitting, at the same time, that it, government, is the inflation culprit.

If the government admitted that it, itself, is the inflation culprit, the logical cure for inflation would immediately suggest itself to millions of puzzled, frustrated, and plundered taxpayers — a drastic reduction in government spending and the cessation of introducing worthless "money" into the economy. Moreover, in such an eventuality, the government's attacks on the business world in its professed concern for "curbing inflation" would no longer make sense to even the economically ignorant.

And, finally, if the government admitted what inflation is, that it, itself, is the inflation culprit, and took steps to cure the cause by reducing government spending and dilution of the money supply with legally counterfeited "money," that would mean, in turn, that government would be reducing its own power, while the liberty and freedom of individuals would be enhanced. And, obviously, no government in its right mind is going to do that.

The plain, frightening, obscene truth is that government is unalterably committed to an inflationary policy and has no intentions of either reverting to a policy of sound money or of curtailing its growing power by one iota.

This is made unmistakably plain by its policy of legislating built-in escalator "cost of living" provisions into the salaries and retirement benefits of congressmen and federal employees and, now (see "Tying Social Security to Cost of Living: 'The Prospects'" in the June 8 issue of U.S. News and World Report), proposes to incorporate such an automatic escalator clause into Social Security "benefits" — and taxes.

politically expedient that may seem... The American people will see through any attempt by anyone to play politics with the cost of living. Whenever a member of Congress displays the imagination to introduce a bill that calls for more spending, let him display the courage to introduce a bill raising the taxes to pay for that program.

However, the situation could change. Copley News Service reports from Washington that the next 90 days to 120 days will tell the story of whether controls will be imposed. Carl W. Ritter, Copley correspondent, said controls seem likely unless inflation is reduced appreciably.

Objections to controls, Ritter wrote, can be expected to fade if the recently reported 7.2 per cent increase in living costs on an annual basis isn't reduced by Labor Day.

Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board indicated in a recent speech to the American Bankers Association that he is considerably less adamant against controls than the President, and hinted that some selective controls are needed to check inflation. That's what he thinks.

We think inflation would go away and the value of the dollar would return to a respectable level if the government would cut spending to the bone and forget about wage and price controls.

Alaska's Oil Fever Cools Off

By ROBERT WISCHMEYER
NEA Staff Writer

Is the bloom off the Alaskan oil boom?

For awhile, yes.

The enthusiasm and high hopes for quick riches resulting from discovery of vast oil deposits in Prudhoe Bay off the North Slope of Alaska have been dampened by practicality and Americans' new sense of ecology.

Two years ago it was thought that work on an 800-mile pipeline would begin as soon as permits to cross federal land were obtained and construction equipment and supplies brought in.

Alaskan businessmen and entrepreneurs used reserves and obtained loans to get into position to take advantage of the boom that was expected to follow the July, 1968, announcement that one of the largest petroleum deposits in the world had been found in Prudhoe Bay or the Beaufort Sea in the Arctic Circle. Up to 10 billion barrels of oil — with much more nearby — lay waiting for extraction.

Alaskan construction companies borrowed heavily to buy equipment that they would need to build the 48-inch pipeline and adjacent road from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez on the southern Alaska coast. Workers began to immigrate, anticipating big overtime pay checks.

Then obstacles arose — or rather, consideration was given to obstacles that had been there all along. Biggest one: Alaska's unusual environmental feature — permafrost.

Permafrost is a ground condition in which particles of soil and rock are suspended in ice that never melts. The three major oil companies which united to form Trans-Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS) planned to bury their pipeline in it. The danger in that plan, conservationists and the Department of the Interior soon pointed out, was that 500,000 gallons of oil heated to 180 degrees in every mile of pipe would most likely melt the permafrost around the pipeline, causing the pipe to shift, sag and break. The potential for almost irreversible ecological damage was frightening.

Conservationists obtained an injunction that stopped construction by preventing issuance of permits.

Added to the outcry raised by conservationists and heeded by Interior Secretary Walter Hickel (himself an Alaskan-made millionaire) came objections from the tiny Yukon River community of Stevens Village, which obtained a federal injunction against the pipeline by claiming it crossed lands which belonged to the villagers.

TAPS organizers also failed to gauge the length of time it would take congressional committees to exempt federal lands from a 1969 freeze on their use. After congressional committees, finally gave this approval in December, 1969, five months later than TAPS had anticipated, the Department of the Interior still had to say O.K.

As yet, it hasn't, because TAPS still has not assured the department that the pipeline can be built so as to avoid oil-spilling breaks. (Besides the permafrost complication, there is another from earthquakes — the pipeline would cross three seismic zones and its southern end would be at the center of the disastrous 1964 earthquake.)

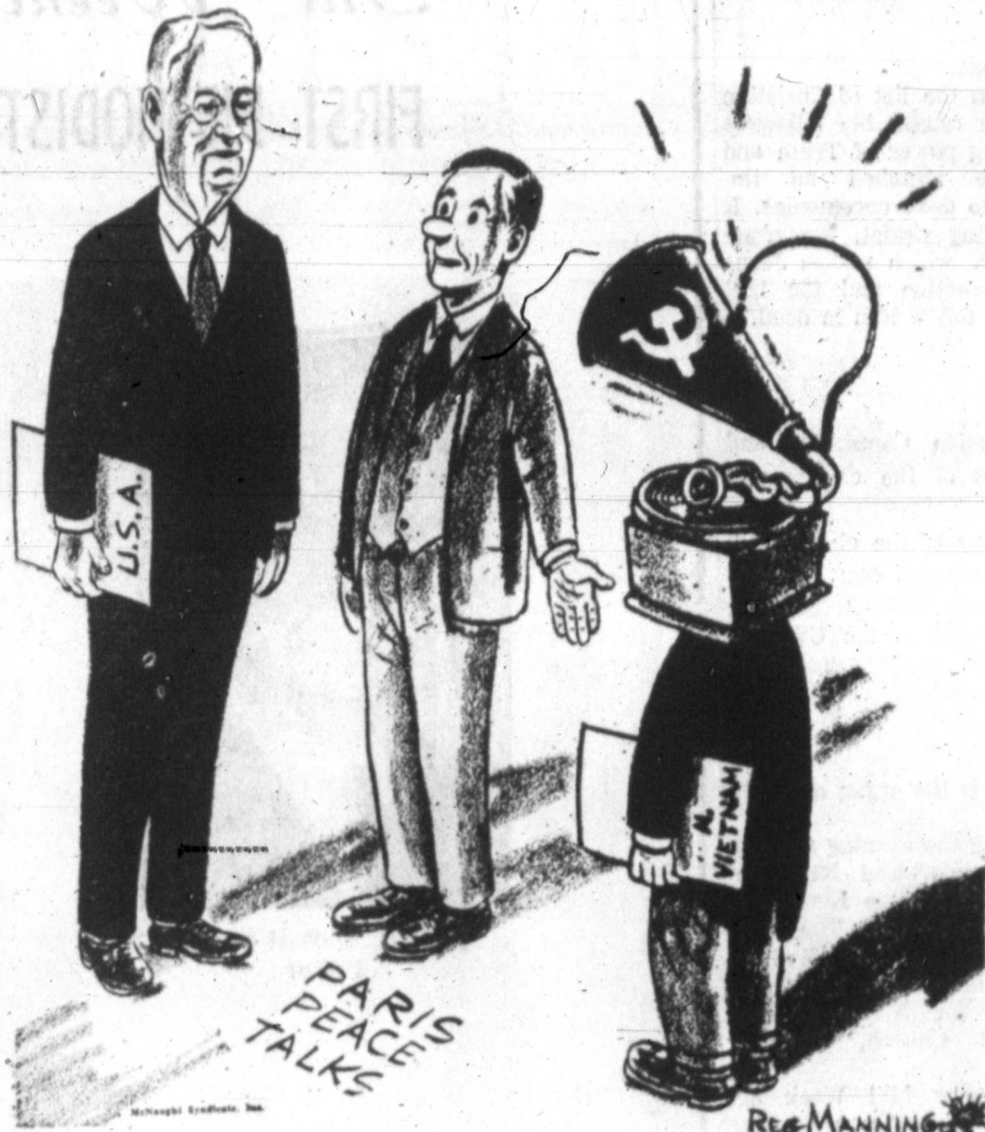

Above-ground pipelines create other problems (such as possible refusal of migrating moose to cross, thus depriving people on the other side who depend on moose for food and skins), and shipping the oil by tanker could be too expensive and impractical because of ice.

So investors and construction companies are faced with loans coming due and cash reserves depleted, and many who hoped to find steady and profitable employment in an oil-primed economy are without work.

Unemployment this spring rose to 13.6 per cent, not including the state's native population; an increase of 5.3 per cent over 1969.

All is not gloom, however. The State of Alaska took in $600 million in leases last September, more money than it had budgeted in all 10 previous years of statehood. This money draws $45,000 interest each day. Secretary Hickel — who plans to return to Alaska someday — says the pipeline will be built, but he doesn't want the state to gain now and pay later by

Import Quotas Will Test Policy On Anti-Inflation

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

Neither President Nixon nor the Congress will be in a wholly credible position in the anti-inflation fight if the lawmakers this year enact import quotas on textiles, shoes and maybe other products.

U. S. retail organizations repeatedly have warned that if quotas in the apparel field do go on the books, prices in this vital cost-of-living sector could bound upward from 15 to 25 per cent.

"Late spring House Ways and Means hearings, even before the rapid collapse of the textile talks with Japan, showed strengthening pressure for import limitations. Key legislators were in no mood to resist."

Nor, even then, was the President. Everybody understands he promised South Carolina Sen. Strom Thurmond to do something about restricting textile imports. Through Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans — now the administration's spokesman for its "reluctant" support of quota legislation — Nixon tried for more than a year to get foreign suppliers to agree to voluntary quotas. But acceptance of congressional action has always been in the background as a plausible threat if the voluntary approach failed.

Nixon likes to deliver on his campaign pledges. The rather long delay on this one has a political status in the state, heavy with textile industry and suffering some layoffs in the present business downturn. Still, if quotas do get fixed, Thurmond may retrieve his situation and, potentially, be as useful to Nixon in a 1972 race in South Carolina as he was in 1968 when the President took the state.

If the steam is maintained in the congressional push for import quotas, one has to wonder how this will be read by the President's advisers who were put on an "inflation alert" by him in his June major economic speech.

In that talk, Nixon said his economic specialist would "review" import policy and would highlight all areas of the economy where prices appeared to be rising critically. Yet he managed to avoid all mention of the quota problem as such, and of both his and the lawmakers' role in it.

The spring hearings found many of his own top associates urging against any restrictions of the sort being contemplated, though Stans naturally was not among them. Secretary of State William Rogers warned of a retaliatory trade war.

destruction of the geographical assets and animal stocks that make it the last outpost of unspoiled America.

Eventually, the oil will come coursing southward and Alaskans will see the bloom back on their boom. That may be no present consolation for unemployed workers and best suited to Alaska's long-range future.

Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin feared the same, noting U.S. farmers' heavy reliance on foreign exports and vulnerability to prospective angry cutoffs if we impose import limits.

Though these and some other officials voiced their opposition in wide terms, many took note of the probable inflationary spur.

The retail groups speak most sharply to this issue. Eugene Keeney, president of the American Retail Federation, flatly predicts that import quotas "would lead to higher prices on clothing and footwear for consumers." The shoe retailers' organization sees nothing but trouble — steeper prices included — in any new import clampdown.

Not to be overlooked is the fact that, as result of earlier pressures, voluntary import quotas of a new order are in effect on steel products. Steel prices seem to be rising at the highest rates in the last decade. The steel-using U.S. economy is widely affected.

The President's new "inflation alert" is a catchy little idea. But it won't mean a great deal if his economic advisers don't warn him of the perils of upward price pressure inherent in enactment of import quotas on basic apparel products.

Instead of formulating plans for a volunteer army, the experts let it drag and now the draft dodgers are on cloud nine. The Supreme Court has fixed it so they can't draft anybody except maniac depressives or blood-thirsty sadists...

Draft Board: "Good morning young man. We have picked your number for our local call. Would you enjoy participating in the U. S. Army?"

Draftee: "No sir, I wouldn't."

D.B.: "I assume you have a conscience about this. Will you please explain whether it is on ethical, moral or religious beliefs."

Draftee: "I just don't like the idea of killing anybody."

D.B.: "I see. And how long have you felt this way?"

Draftee: "O, ever since I was a little kid. My brother stepped on a worm once and smashed him all over the sidewalk. It made me sick."

D.B.: "Well, joining the army is hardly the same as killing worms. Do you have any other reason?"

Draftee: "A very good one sir. In fact, it is written right in the rules. It provides exemption for 'all those whose beliefs would give them no rest or peace if they allowed themselves to become an instrument of war.' Now, that fits me to a Tee, sir. I wouldn't have any rest at all in the army."

D.B.: You're excused...

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Most Arthritis Victims Require Home Treatment

Since arthritis is a chronic disease, most victims need a helpful program of home treatment. Even the best of these will not cure the disease but it can add a great deal to the victim's comfort. A good home care program aids in the maintenance of a good posture, allowance for adequate rest and the provision of graduated exercises to prevent permanent stiffening of the involved joints.

Much can also be done to make life easier for arthritis through the use of self-help devices. All this is covered in "Home Care Programs in Arthritis," available from the Arthritis Foundation, 1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036. While you are about it, ask for their leaflet, "The Diet and Arthritis."

Q—What causes ulcerative colitis? Is it contagious? What is the best diet for it? Is there any other treatment for it? Does it turn into cancer if not treated?

A—The cause is now believed to be a deficiency of one or more of the intestinal digestive enzymes. Allergy to certain poisons appears to be a factor in some cases. It is not contagious.

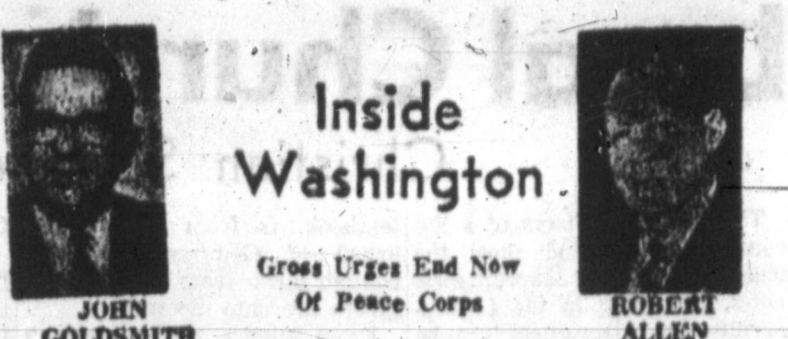

Skillful treatment is required. Great care must be taken to avoid all roughage (even cooked vegetables and fruit) and other intestinal irritants. This necessitates taking vitamin supplements. About 20 per cent of the victims do better when milk and milk products are omitted from their diet.

Adequate rest is an essential part of the treatment. One authority advocates inducing sleep in the hospital for 14 days. Alcohol and tobacco must be avoided. Drugs of the cortisone type are given, preferably on alternate days, to combat the inflammation. Other drugs are given to check the diarrhea and to reduce nervous tension. Every effort must be made to avoid infections and, when they do occur, prompt treatment with antibiotics is necessary. In untreated cases and in some who do not respond well to treatment there is an increased risk of cancer of the colon.

Q—What causes night sweats and what can I do about them?

A—Night sweats may be due to tuberculosis, a general run-down condition or a deficiency of vitamin C or D. The treatment would depend on the cause.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Gross Urges End Now Of Peace Corps
ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The once-glamor-gilded Peace Corps is facing the fight of its life.

A powerful group of Republicans and Democrats will seek to kill the newtivist and dove-wracked foreign aid program when a bill authorizing a new $96.9 million budget is taken up by the House.

Spearheading this bipartisan drive is Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa.

Long a foremost economy advocate, Gross has under consideration an amendment to completely disband the Peace Corps and end all further spending on it.

It is Gross' vigorous contention that not only has the Peace Corps outlived its usefulness, but that it has become a frequent source of embarrassment to the U.S. due to leftist agitational activities and pronouncements by the so-called volunteers.

Cited as glaring instances of Peace Corps turmoil and dissension are:

The increasing number of countries which have ousted the volunteers as personally and ideologically undesirable.

Steady decline in the number and quality of volunteers — without an equivalent decrease in the cost of the program.

Anti-Vietnam demonstrations by volunteers, both in foreign countries and the U.S. At some of these affairs Corpsmen paraded Viet Cong flags.

The forcible seizure of the Corps headquarters in Washington by a group of volunteers, and the over night sit-in they staged in the office of Director Joseph Blatchford. As part of their turbulent demonstration they submitted a number of demands, among them the recall of all U.S. troops in Vietnam.

Director Blatchford was caustically grilled on these and other disturbances when he testified before the House Foreign Affairs Committee during its consideration of a $96.9 million authorization bill.

BIPARTISAN CRITICS — Rep. Clement Zablocki, Wis., and Wayne Hays, O., second and third-ranking Democratic committeemen, joined Rep. Gross in assailing the Corps.

record and bluntly questioning the desirability of continuing the program.

Sharply stressed was the fact that the Corps' overseas strength declined in the past fiscal year from 10,229 to 8,423, and is estimated to drop to 7,703 in this fiscal year. Gross also noted that there is considerable duplication in the activities of the Peace Corps and the multi-billion dollar foreign aid program.

"The emphasis the Corps is now placing on sending technicians and specialists of various kinds abroad," he said, "is directly parallel to what the foreign aid program is doing. It's out-and-out duplication, and an indefensible waste of money. And this is just one instance of such squandering of public funds. In fact, it can be fairly and accurately said that the whole Peace Corps program is a duplication of other foreign aid activities on which billions are being spent."

Above all, Gross maintained that the urgent need for economizing and concentrating taxpayers' funds on pressing requirements at home necessitates putting an end to such "frills and luxuries" as the Peace Corps.

"The state of the domestic economy and our insurmountable needs insistently call for spending every available taxpayer's dollar to meet home demands," declared Gross. "This is no time for grandstanding and ostentation. No matter how long a program or project has been in existence, when it has outlived its usefulness it should be discarded."

"That sound rule certainly applies to the Peace Corps. Whatever its original aim and record, it's very different now. Now it is not only a source of national embarrassment and complications, but a wholly unnecessary burden on taxpayers. The tens of millions of dollars it is proposed to spend to continue this useless program would do infinitely more good here at home."

"It is time to face up realistically to conditions, and to act intelligently and courageously," said Gross.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION — Health and education go together, but why must welfare be lumped in there too?

ANSWER — We presume the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which is the fastest growing department of government in Washington.

It is only natural that the socialistic departments of government, schools, government health care and government payments to the indigent should be lumped together. All are interventions into matters that once were considered private affairs of individuals, but through the years have been accepted more and more as a function of government.

The original concept of government health programs was linked to the police powers by prevention of spread of communicable diseases. Then it expanded into consumer "protection" through the Food and Drug Administration, also as a "police power," since it was an attempt to prevent the sale of injurious products. Now it has expanded into policing producers and sellers of products medical and hospital services.

Schools originally were considered to be purely local matters, basically of the parents and students. They have become largely government in the last century — first at a local level, then the states gave tax support and control; now the national government is increasingly financing and controlling the schools.

Welfare, until the 1930s, was considered an individual matter. Local governments provided some assistance for the needy, primarily in "poor farms" and "orphans' homes." With the advent of the New Deal, local, state and national governments have increasingly taken over the responsibility that formerly was considered that of neighbor.

bors, churches and voluntary charitable organizations.

Thus, it was only natural that the national government, during the Eisenhower administration, should try to put all of these welfare-type bureaus under one cabinet department, which now has become one of the most potent agencies for distributing tax funds out of Washington.

Unfortunately, what looms from the amassing of bureaucratic bodies is not the importance of citizens, but the importance of the state. It is the state — the health of the state, the educated productivity or wealth of the state, and the living conditions or welfare of the state — that is the destined beneficiary, always according to state plans. Whether it is fluoridating one's teeth, attending school, or purchasing insurance, individuals should have freedom of choice, and with the wisdom of their choices will the state flourish. Health, education and welfare should not be dictated by the state for the state.

Russians Have Gone Ahead With New Missile, Laird Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Thursday that the Russians have gone ahead with new intercontinental missile deployment, including the huge SS9, since the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks began in Vienna in April.

But Laird told a Pentagon news conference that he still is confident the United States and Russia can reach an agreement that will spare both countries from a further acceleration of the arms race.

The secretary also said: The United States will reduce its force of 64,000 troops in South Korea early next year, and there is no standing agreement to prevent such a reduction. He did not confirm reports that the cut might be 40 per cent, but said the United States still will have a "substantial military presence in South Korea after the reductions are made next spring."

The U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean includes two aircraft carriers and 40 other vessels ready for action if needed in the Middle East crisis, but that there are no plans for such use.

The United States will "beat" President Nixon's goal calling for withdrawal of another 50,000 U.S. troops from Vietnam by Oct. 15 and another 150,000 by next spring. He would not say how much greater the reductions would be.

Laird would not say how many intercontinental missiles the Russians had deployed since the so-called SALT talks began, but said he would be testifying to members of Congress soon and would present new figures at that time.

His use of the same figures on several occasions, crediting the Soviets with an operational force of 220 of the SS9s and another 60 under construction, had left an impression that the Russians had not been adding to this force in recent months.

Laird said specifically today that the Soviets have started construction of new missiles and that some of those formerly listed as under construction now are considered operational, both since preliminary SALT talks began in Helsinki, Finland, last November, and since the formal negotiations began in Vienna April 15.

The United States has deployed no new ICBMs since the talks began but has mounted multiple warheads on missiles formerly carrying a single nuclear charge.

The Defense Department has estimated that when the Soviet have a total of 420 SS9 missiles

White Deer Youth Attends FFA Leadership Conference

Mike Williams, of the White Deer FFA Chapter at White Deer High School is attending a National Future Farmers of America Leadership & Citizenship Conference in Washington, D.C., this week. The week-long conference is being held at the National FFA Center near the Nation's Capital.

Besides the training session, the FFA program also includes visits to Mount Vernon Plantation, the National Archives, Arlington National Cemetery, and several other historic monuments and memorials in and around the Capital.

A highlight of the week's activities came on Wednesday morning when Mike met with Congressman Bob Price of Pampa. Later, Mike attended a Capitol Hill luncheon where he and other FFA members discussed the Congressional process with the Hon. E. Ross Adair (R) of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Mike, 16, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton D. Williams, of White Deer. His vocational agriculture instructor is R. T. Laurie.

Peace Restored In Riot-Scarred Asbury

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (UPI) — Unarmed black youth patrols and state police maintained peace in the violence-scarred streets of this resort community today while Negro leaders canvassed West Side ghetto residents on city government reactions to their 20 demands.

Approximately 300 black leaders met five hours Wednesday with Mayor Joseph F. Mattice to discuss the demands which included a proposal to grant amnesty to the 225 persons arrested during three nights of violence in which 160 were injured and damage was estimated at more than $1 million.

No serious incidents were reported Wednesday, as the black youths acted as a buffer between ghetto residents and police in an effort to end the violence. Only 12 arrests were reported during the day.

Black leaders were slated to meet again with Mattice today. Although none of the official decisions on the black demands was revealed, Mattice and black leaders such as Willy Ham expressed optimism. "We feel encouraged by it," Ham said of the meeting.

Other key demands included establishment of a civilian police review board and withdrawal of all state police and outside policemen from the community.

Police Chief Thomas Smith, a black, said he was "cautiously optimistic" that serious disorders may have ended in the resort community of 22,000 persons.

State police announced earlier Wednesday Maj. Harold Graff, head of the Criminal Investigation Bureau, would lead an investigation into shootings Tuesday that resulted in 46 persons being wounded, four seriously. Police said they fired into the air in a brief battle with a crowd of 200 persons.

Nixons Help Presswomen Celebrate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and representatives of seven previous White House occupants helped the Women's National Press Club celebrate its 50th birthday Wednesday night.

Nixon stopped by the organization's glittering dinner dance for a few minutes of small talk, Mrs. Nixon at his side.

The affair drew a wide collection of big names, including several who reflected every administration in recent years.

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI) — One man was gored seriously and 38 others were bruised in Wednesday's running of the bulls as part of Pamplona's San Fermin Fiesta.

The most seriously injured was a Spaniard gored in the left leg as a crowd of young men ran six fighting bulls through the streets to the bullring for the daily bullfight.

The weeklong festival opened Tuesday with the biggest crowds in the history of the celebration.

The boy, named Ethan Michael, is the senator's first grandchild.

Self-Destroying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A type of DDT that self-destructs to prevent residual contamination has been developed under a government-sponsored research grant.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel announced today a second contract has been awarded the developer to determine if there is any danger from the residue into which the DDT breaks down chemically.

Hickel said the new type of pesticide holds promise of eliminating pollution of the environment by DDT, which accumulates in fatty tissues of humans and animals, remaining indefinitely. It is believed to sometimes cause death in some animals.

Hickel said the new chemical also may be used to neutralize residual DDT already in the environment.

The Aerojet-General Corp., El Monte, Calif., under a $135,000 federal contract, developed a catalytic agent that breaks down the DDT into a substance with only 10 per cent of the original toxicity of DDT.

Television In Review

Television In Review
By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Two new summer series guaranteed to paralyze the television audience arrived on ABC-TV Wednesday night: The Smothers Brothers show and the Everly Brothers program.

On the Smothers premiere, the brothers kidded on the square about their past censorship troubles, and promised they wouldn't compromise, and occasionally threw barbs at establishment values, and needed their new network for putting on such shows as "Let's Make a Deal," "The Newlywed Game" and the Lawrence Welk series.

Curiously, though, despite all the self-aimed jokes about censorship, the Wednesday night debut seemed to emphasize comedy—or at least the unique kind identified with the Smothers: Not merely the heavy social satire, but simply their wildly personal and very funny off-center humor.

Instead, we got an awful lot of singing, or so it seemed—not just from the expert Smothers themselves, but also from Nancy Sinatra, Harry Nilsson, and Bobby Stevens with the Checkmates.

Furthermore, one of the program's main features was a young girl, Natalie Brown, who is an incredible baton twirler, and who was introduced by the longtime host of the traditional "Amateur Hour" show, Ted Mack.

The Everly Brothers show was also curiously interesting. They are known to have been admired as pioneers by such pop heroes as Bob Dylan and the Beatles. But television is not usually kind to pioneers. It waits until they have been accepted everywhere else and are safe, so when they finally get to video, their pioneering days, and the freshness that went with them, are gone.

Perhaps the Everly Brothers would have seemed about from the blue if put on years ago with a series. Nowadays, however, unless one is a dedicated fan of this kind of music, it seems to me they don't sound much different than countless other singers who have undoubtedly been influenced by them. Timing, alas, is everything.

Commission To Consider New Deer Dates

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission met Thursday to consider among other things new dates for the deer season.

The commission was expected to set the deer season for most of the state from the Saturday nearest Nov. 15 to the first Sunday in January. Under this rule, the 1970 season would open Nov. 14.

Under present rules the season begins the second Saturday in November and runs through Jan. 1. That rule would have opened the deer season this year on Nov. 8.

The board also was expected to consider 10 other changes in the state's fishing and hunting regulations. The regulations included:

- Closing the fishing season on porpoises, dolphins and whales and opening the season with no restrictions on forms not protected.
- Removing the seasons and bag limits on bullfrogs and crayfish.
- Prohibiting the use of trot lines on bodies of water 500 acres or less which are totally within the boundaries of a state park or in that portion of a stream bordering a state park.
- Making it illegal to shoot or take any fur bearing animal from a boat or public waters.
- Prohibiting the use of any .22 rimfire ammunition or the use of a .22 caliber jet gun in taking deer, elk, antelope, Aoudad sheep or bighorn desert sheep.

The board is also considering legislation against hunters who shoot deer from public road. It also may open a special archery season on deer.

Phillips Women Fire Low Total On Club Course

The female delegation from Phillips' Golf Course in Borger fired a team total of 275 Thursday at Pampa Country Club to win the third round of the Panhandle Women's Golf Association's summer tour.

Pampa followed with 277, Huber of Borger totaled 280, Tascosa Country Club carded 222, Amarillo Country Club fired 222, Ross Rogers shot 296 and Dumas finished with 306.

Ruby Holmes of Tascosa Country Club won low gross honors with a score of 79. Lois Watkins of Pampa won the low net award with a 65.

Amarillo Country Club leads the standings after three 18-hole rounds with a total of 868 strokes. Tascosa is second at 855, followed by Huber (879), Pampa (895), Dumas (899), Phillips (908), and Ross Rogers (929).

Cree, Jaycees Win

Cree Drilling and the Jaycees advanced into tonight's semifinal round of the Babe Ruth City Baseball Tournament with high-scoring victories in the quarter finals Thursday.

Cree nipped Pampa Lumber 14-13, and the Jaycees smashed the Lions, 14-8. Cree will meet First National Bank at 6 p.m. today. The Bankers reached the semi-round with an 8-7 conquest of Roberts Butane, Wednesday. The Jaycees will battle Pampa Hardware at 8:30 p.m. Hardware crushed Ideal food Wednesday, 7-0.

Winners tonight will vie for the city title in the championship game at 8:30 p.m. Saturday following a barbeque and the crowning of the Babe Ruth Baseball Queen.

Lumber tallied seven runs, five hits in the top of the second Thursday but watched Cree explode for 11 in the bottom of the frame on only two hits.

A five-run fourth put the losers back in the lead, 13-12, but Cree again tied it up as winning pitcher Rick Levech sacrificed a runner from third. Mark Baird's punt in the last of the seventh squeezed home A. J. Brewer with the deciding tally.

Brewer drove in three runs with a triple in the second. Roy Hendrick took the loss for Lumber.

Lumber outlit the winners, 12-7. Hardware jumped to a quick 2-0 lead in the top of the first but a six-run fourth put the Jaycees ahead to stay, 10-7.

Chuck Reeves closed the scoring for the Jaycees with a two-run inside-the-park homer to deep center in the sixth inning.

The Jaycees rapped 10 safeties to the Lions' five. Carl Farrell was the winner and Carson Watt took the loss.

Lee Leads Jack

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) —When Lee Trevino won the U.S. Open in 1968 at the Oak Hill Golf Club, Rochester, N.Y., some sneered that it was a fluke, an outrageous long shot, and predicted Chunky Lee would soon fade from the scene.

Today the bouncy, wise-cracking Mexican-American stands poised to add the British Open championship to his mantle.

Trevino, 30, shot a pair of 68's for an eight-under-par total of 136, to lead 80 qualifiers into today's third round of the British championship at the home of golf. Perched menacingly behind him at 137 were Jack Nicklaus, the man who finished runner-up at Rochester four years ago, and Englishman Tony Jacklin, a national hero at the age of 26.

Trevino has had the worst of what weather has been going over the first two days. He was midway through his opening round Wednesday when the course virtually disappeared under water because of a sudden violent thunderstorm.

He had to resume where he left off Thursday morning—and complained bitterly about that fact in not too gently couched terms—but showed his undoubted skill by hanging on to card a 68 in cold rainy and windy weather.

It was something Jacklin couldn't go. He was eight under after 13 when the rains came, but was unable to combat the changed conditions on the resumption and dropped three strokes on the run-in to finish with a 67.

Both had to go back out there almost immediately and it was to their credit that they recorded such fine scores. Trevino had a little more wind than Jacklin for most of his second round.

Nicklaus on the other hand, was blessed both days. He was back in the clubhouse before the storm broke Wednesday and by the time he went out for his second tour Thursday, the rain had stopped, the course dried considerably and the sun shone fitfully.

It could be an omen, but you can bet Trevino won't accept it.

Seaver Hurls 7-1 Win For Mets

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

The American League gets a break in the All-Star game next Tuesday night because Tom Seaver won't be able to pitch more than three innings for the National League.

The 25-year-old righthander posted his seventh consecutive complete game victory and also hit his first major league home run Thursday night while pitching the New York Mets to a 7-1 triumph over the Montreal Expos, and he likely will be Manager Gil Hodges' choice to start for the NL in the All-Star game.

Seaver allowed the Expos only three hits in pitching his 14th victory against five losses this season and he struck out nine. However, the articulate Californian was not overly pleased with his performance. "My fast ball was good, but my breaking stuff wasn't working like I wanted it to," said Seaver. "And I walked three. That's too many."

In other NL games, San Diego edged Cincinnati, 10-9; Houston defeated Los Angeles, 9-5; Pittsburgh trimmed St. Louis, 6-0, and San Francisco nipped Atlanta, 7-6, in 11 innings. Philadelphia and Chicago were not scheduled.

Washington beat Cleveland, 9-3; New York topped Baltimore, 7-5; Chicago edged Milwaukee, 6-5; Detroit defeated Boston, 7-

3, and Minnesota defeated California, 4-2, in American League games. Oakland and Kansas City were not scheduled.

Steve Hunt's sacrifice fly with one out in the 10th inning scored Ramon Webster and enabled the Padres to defeat the Reds for the second straight game. The Reds got two two-run homers from Johnny Bench and a pinch-hit three-run blast from Bernie Carbo. Dave Campbell and starting pitcher Dave Roberts homered for the Padres.

Menne Leads At Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —Par came easy Thursday in the first round of the $110,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament—especially for little-known Bob Menne, one of the "poor" men in the rich professional golfers' tour.

Menne toured the 7,135-yard North Shore Country Club course in a 6-under-par 66 to hold a two-stroke lead going into today's second round. Seven other golfers were bracketed at 68 and five carded 69s as 34 golfers shattered par and 17 others matched it with 72s.

"I made a lot of putts," said Menne, who ranked a lowly 45th on the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) money winning list this year. He won $20,000 of his $28,980 by finishing second in the National Airlines Open—a tournament he lost in a two-hole playoff to Lee Trevino.

At 68 were Dick Crawford of Bella Vista, Ark.; Ted Hayes of Atlanta; Terry Dill of Austin, Tex.; Dean Berman of Bethesda, Md.; Harry Toscano of New Castle, Pa.; Doug Olson of Medford, Ore., and Dave Bollman of Norfolk, Va.

At 69 were Butch Baird of Galveston, Tex.; Jim Colbert of Kansas City, Kan.; Don Masengale of Jacksboro, Tex.; Dick Rhyen of Sylvania, Ohio, and Jack Lewis Jr., of Florence, S.C.

Jones Passes Runner After Grand Slam HR

By STU CAMEN
UPI Sports Writer

It's unlikely Dalton Jones will ever forget his first major league grand slam homer, even when he finally hits it.

Jones thought he had accomplished the feat Thursday night when he pinch hit for Detroit catcher Jim Price with the bases loaded and one out in the seventh inning against Boston with the score tied 3-3. Jones slammed a 2-2 changeup from Red Sox reliever Vicente Romo into the upper deck in right field.

But he didn't notice he was passing teammate Don Wert between first and second base. The umpires noticed with more than passing interest, however, and Jones was declared out on the spot and given a three-run single.

"I got excited that's what happened," Jones explained afterwards. "I knew it was gone and I watched the ball hit in the seats. I got halfway between first and second before I came to my sense. Then I saw I passed Wert."

Luckily, for the Tigers, they didn't need Jones' run since his "grand slam" single was more than enough to power them to a 7-3 victory. Daryl Patterson relieved Denny McLain in the seventh and permitted the Red Sox only one hit the rest of the way to gain his second victory. Dick Schofield homered for Boston's first run.

In other American League games, Minnesota beat California, 4-2, New York downed Baltimore, 7-5 in a game called in the eighth inning because of rain, Chicago nipped Milwaukee, 6-5, and Washington beat Cleveland, 9-3. Oakland and Kansas City were idle.

Leo Cardenas' two-run homer in the ninth snapped a 2-2 tie and paced Minnesota past and paced Minnesota past California for the Twins' fifth straight victory. Reliever Tom Hall, who had singled prior to Cardenas' blast, hurried three innings of shutout ball to pick up his fifth win. Eddie Fisher, in relief of starter Rudy May, took the loss.

The Yankees salvaged the finale of a three-game series against Baltimore as Jerry Kenney's two-run single capped a three-run sixth-inning rally. John Cumberland got the win and Marcelino Lopez took the loss.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Canadian-born Glenn Ford is the leading farmer in Beverly Hills with a truck garden on his almost two-acre estate.

Ford has written about his experiences as a city slicker farmer in a new book which, he says, he wrote because it is one of the new volumes around that isn't filled with sex, brutality or science fiction. The book is titled, "Glenn Ford, R.F.D., Beverly Hills."

"I really started the garden for my son, Peter, when he was just a boy," he explained. "Pete wouldn't eat vegetables as a youngster, so I thought if I taught him to grow his own food it would make a difference."

Pete Begins Eating
"Sure enough, Peter began eating everything we grew. Now I keep the crops growing all year around. I raise squash, tomatoes, beans, peas, carrots—everything. I have a hundred fruit trees, too."

"All of the vegetables are organically grown. No pesticides."

"I get out in the yard and hack away with a hoe and rake and do the weeding myself. I was raised on a farm in Canada, so all this isn't really new to me."

"There's so much extra, that I give a bag of fresh fruit and vegetables to friends who come by the house."

Ford ran into a little more trouble when Peter refused to eat eggs. His actor father smuggled forty white leghorns onto his property and built hen houses—real eggs to go along with the eggplant in the garden.

"The original forty hens increased to about 140 chickens," Ford reported, laughing.

Beverly Hills Chicken Farmer
"It was all strictly against the law. I was the only chicken farmer in the history of Beverly Hills. Soon we had enough eggs to feed an army. It wasn't long before Peter was eating eggs."

Glenn, however, came a cropper when a mauling dog came down from the hills and killed several of his chickens. "I decided to get the fox," he recounted. "So I sat up in a tree one night with a shotgun. When I spotted the fox I fired and missed. But the blast woke up a couple of dozen neighbors. They called the police. When they came to investigate I learned it is just as illegal to go fox hunting in Beverly Hills as it is to raise chickens. That was the end of my chicken farm."

MISSION MAN NAMED

AUSTIN (UPI) — Santos L. Garza, 40, of Mission was named Wednesday public health advisor of the regional Office of Economic Opportunity. Garza has practiced pharmacy in Austin since 1961.

Market Absorbs Poundings Rebounds With Small Gain

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market, which absorbed poundings earlier this week, rebounded Wednesday, although trading continued light.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had plunged nearly 20 points earlier in the week, climbed 12.73 points to 682.09. The UPI market indicator of all stocks gained 1.49 per cent, while the New York Stock Exchange index average common share price rose 74 cents. Volume was 10.97 million shares.

North American Car Corp.,

which leases freight cars to railroads and shippers, was the most active issue as it traded a block of 500,000 shares at 20. It finished up 1 1/2 at 17 1/2 on 544,900 shares.

The big winners Wednesday were the so-called glamor stocks which had taken a beating the first two days of the week. The gains apparently reflected continued strength in the bond market, short covering in many of the depressed issues and President Nixon's move to avert a threatened nationwide railroad shutdown.

Of the 1,560 issues crossing the tape, there were 936 advances and 354 declines, a marked contrast to trading earlier in the week.

A federal District Court in Philadelphia denied a request of a group of banks headed by First National City Bank of New York, to take title to all common stock of the Pennsylvania Co., a subsidiary of the Penn Central Transportation Corp.

Encouraging news came from Ann Arbor, Mich., where Dr. Thomas G. Gies, finance professor of the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration, predicted the Dow Jones industrial average would rise above the 800 level by September or October.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The increase in the money supply in the first half of 1970, "bodes well for stock prices in the second half," according to Thomson & McKinnon Auchincloss Inc. The company says the expected 10 per cent drop in first half corporate earnings should not "negate the possibility of earlier stock market improvement reflecting the increase in the money supply."

The firm says "the drop in stock price averages in 1969-70 of about one-third... has more than offset a 10 per cent earnings drop."

The Research Institute of America, Inc., disagreeing with the bearish view that "the slowdown is becoming cumulative," claims "The available figures show a stabilizing picture." The firm believes the downturn "hasn't ended but it has slowed," and any pickup in orders will bring "a prompt production spurt" because inventories are no longer piling up. However, the firm cautions that a long auto strike would "upset the cart."

"The market is approaching a new phase in which carefully selected issues will move independently of market direction," Edward A. Viner & Co., Inc., believes. The company says it is "highly likely" a new test of the recent lows may occur, but believes the "selected issues will begin to move."

"The market is again well into oversold territory though not nearly to the extent it was at the end of May when it reached unusual proportions," E. F. Hutton & Co. says. It oversold enough, however, to our expectation of a "technical rebound," the company believes. But the company adds that "the overriding factor" could be the Middle East situation which from a market and historical standpoint has a number of similarities with the Cuban missile crisis of 1962."

Robert Jr. Hurts
Wrist In Fall
HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI)—Robert Kennedy Jr. fractured his right wrist Wednesday night when he fell about 25 feet from a tree as he attempted to recover his pet falcon.

Robert, 16, second eldest son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was reported in good condition at Cape Cod Hospital here. He was expected to be released today or Friday.

AUSTIN (UPI) — Six authorities on Mexican-American history will be among the speakers at the first model program for teaching Mexican-American culture and history in Texas public schools. The program will be presented to 26 teachers during a five day workshop beginning Monday.

Quotes In The News

NEW LAW
BOSTON (UPI)—A new state law goes into effect which permits women to stand at the bar and lift their drinks with the men.

Massachusetts law had prevented women from being served at a tavern unless seated at a table or bar. The 1970 legislature repealed this statute as discriminatory under a suggestion from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

POSTAGE DUE
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—Gov. Walter Peterson's office had to shell out six cents Wednesday to read a letter from Gov. Claude R. Kirk of Florida.

The letter, mailed July 2, arrived with a postage due stamp on it. An aide to Peterson remarked, "I guess this is just the height of fiscal economy."

AMMO CONFISCATED
DAMASCUS (UPI) — About 32,000 rounds of ammunition en route to Jordan from West Germany were confiscated by Syrian customs officers at the Port of Latakia Wednesday, the official Syrian Arab News Agency reported. It gave no reason for the seizure.

TAKES A RIDE
KAILUA KONA, Hawaii (UPI)—Police Captain George Iranon Wednesday noted a fire truck zig-zagging down the highway—nearly heading toward any particular fire.

He followed it and soon arrested Terry L. Goodwin, 26, Portland, who, officers said, had taken the truck from the airport for a ride.

JUST NOT NEEDED
DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Parks and Recreation Department Wednesday closed five downtown public restrooms for lack of attendance.

"Very honestly the use has not been high in these locations," Richard Fanning, assistant superintendent, said.

FILLS NEED NO DOUBT
EVERSHAM, ENGLAND (UPI)—Post Office officials have threatened to fine garage owner Fred Matthews because he painted a telephone pole outside his garage to improve its appearance. The officials said the paint job makes it impossible to check for rot.

SOME HONEYMOON
LONDON (UPI)—Victor Lupton, 27, went on his honeymoon Wednesday with 35 girls. His bride Margaret, 22, had brought along 34 teen-age girls from a school where she used to teach. Margaret had a year-old commitment to take the girls on a cruise at this time.

ARSON SUSPECTED
ANGELINA, Tex. (UPI) — Forestry service officials said Wednesday they believed a fire burning out of control in East Texas was started deliberately. The fire destroyed more than 200 acres of timberland but posed no threat to homes or residents.
