Seizure of Manchurian Rail Line Starts Bitterness Between Nations

TOKYO, July 15. (Monday) (AP)—A Harbin dispatch to the newspaper Asahi today says that international railway traffic across the Manchurian-Soviet border has stopped and that the frontier is in a state of blockade. Red troops were said to be concentrating near the border and activity of Soviet air forces was reported.

By EUGENE LYONS
United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 14.—A steadily mounting tide of anger tinged with a distinct military and war-like note rose in Moscow tonight against Chinese officials who seized from soviet control the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria and expelled hundreds of Russian officials.

The arrival of Chita of the first train-load of soviet officials who were expelled, increased the flame of resentment. The train-load included 120 officials and four carloads of railroad workers, many of whose families still are stranded in Manchuria.

Crowds Demand Action

The capitol was flooded tonight with demands on the government for decisive action in connection with an ultimatum which the soviet sent the Chinese national government late last night. The ultimatum gave China three days to accept proposals for Pacific settlement of the issue before Russia "resorts to other means for protection of her legal rights."

While the ultimatum increased the tenseness of the situation, the arrivals of the soviet officials in Siberia and the wrathful campaign launched here caused grave uneasiness as officials awaited China's answer.

Japs May Intervene

WASHINGTON, July 14. (US)—Threats of Japanese intervention in the Sino-Russian crisis in the far East have placed the state department in an attitude of "watchful waiting."

The United States has instructed Minister J. V. A. MacMurray, representative of this government in Pekin to watch all developments in the situation that has placed relations between the youthful Chinese republic and the Soviet union in an atmosphere of taut indecision.

ULTIMATUM IN HANDS OF CHINESE MINISTER

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., July 14. (AP)—The soviet government's ultimatum to the Mukden Manchurian and Nanking Chinese governments giving them three days to arrange amicable settlement of the crisis arising out of the Manchurian seizure of the Chinese Eastern railway has been placed in the hands of M. Liao S. K. Liao, Chinese charge d'affaires.

The ultimatum was written yesterday, after receipt of information as to the situation in Manchuria, where numerous Russian citizens have been expelled, others arrested, and the entire Russian representation on the Russian owned Chinese Eastern railway ousted.

Polite but Firm

The note, couched in polite terms, was signed by L. M. Karakhan, vice commissar for foreign affairs, and former ambassador to China. Announcement today said he sent it to the Chinese charge last night.

Despite polite language, there was firmness in its wording. It declared emphatically the soviet union would be compelled to resort "to other means in defense of the

Record Breaking Flight Ends After Ten Days

L. W. Mendell and R. B. Reinhart were forced to land their biplane Angeleno after remaining in the air 246 hours, 44 minutes, over Culver City, Calif., to set a new endurance record. The tail sections of the plane became wobbly, making another refueling in the air hazardous. Mendell is at the extreme left; Reinhart at the extreme right.

DISPUTE OVER 'NOISE' FATAL

Two Killed as Result of Man's Admonition

SOMERSET, Ky., July 14. (AP)—Two men, one of whom was not concerned in the argument, were dead today after a shooting affray at the home of Hiram Sexton, 65, last night which started when Sexton admonished several young people at his home for making noise.

Sexton's warning to the young people resulted in a quarrel and a few seconds later guns were blazing. Sexton dropped, mortally wounded, and died a few seconds later.

Witnesses said Sexton was shot by Raymond Huff, 21, one of the visitors. Huff was struck twice in the exchange of shots but his wounds were slight. The younger man after the shooting fled on horseback, followed by Claude Sexton, 21, son of the dead man.

The horseback chase continued almost to Huff's home when young Sexton fired, killing Huff's horse. Huff ran into a cornfield and hid and Sexton, thinking Huff had gone to his home, rode up to the door and demanded that he come out.

The call was answered by Cecil Merkel, 21, who was calling on his sweetheart at the Huff home. As Merkle appeared in the door with a flashlight, his sweetheart by his side, Sexton fired, killing him almost instantly. Sexton fled but was captured today at Burnside, near here.

Huff still is at large.

Houston Capitalist Sends Attorneys To Answer Contempt Citation Here

Seagrave to Claim Questions Asked in Deposition Not Legally Authorized by Court

R. O. Seagrave, Houston capitalist, cited to answer contempt charges in the 89th district court here Monday morning, will be represented by his attorneys rather than appear in court in person, according to information given here Sunday by John King, local counsel. Seagrave was cited last week on a petition brought by the First State bank of Iowa Park alleging that the millionaire had refused to answer certain questions put to him in the course of depositions taken in Houston early in July.

Judge Agrees

J. H. Gross, of the firm of Eskridge and Gross, San Antonio attorneys, will be in Wichita Falls Monday morning, bringing with him the record of the taking of the depositions in answer to the charges, Mr. King explained. Judge P. A. Martin has agreed that he will not require Seagrave's personal attendance if the case can be decided from the records.

The controversy developed from a 1921 judgment for around $7,000 obtained by the Iowa Park bank against George Smith. Garnishment proceedings brought in an effort to collect the judgment resulted in inquiries as to Smith's business relations with the extensive Moody-Seagrave interests in South Texas and Louisiana, it was explained. The petition charging contempt of court, alleges that the capitalist declined to answer certain questions asked in connection with that investigation.

Defense Given

The defense will claim in the first place the depositions were not legally commissioned and that Houston attorneys had signed no written agreement for the taking of evidence in that form, Mr. King said Sunday afternoon. The legal questions involved will turn on the materiality of the questions which Seagraves is alleged to have refused to answer, and on the interpretation of the statute governing the taking of depositions in garnishment proceedings, the attorney added.

The hearing is set among many others on a full docket in the 89th district court, and Judge Martin was not sure that it could be reached Monday. Attorneys for Seagrave, however, declared that they will be ready to go into the argument at once.

NEW GAS TAX STARTS TODAY

Four-Cent Levy Replaces Two-Cent Duty

AUSTIN, Texas, July 14. (UP)—The wise Texas motorist had a full gasoline tank tonight in expectation of the increased gasoline tax tomorrow.

Motorists were warned by Gov. Dan Moody Saturday that he expected to sign Monday a bill passed at the second special legislative session raising the gasoline tax from two to four cents a gallon. Most kinds of gasoline will sell then for 21 cents.

The farmer received special consideration in the measure. Gasoline for use in vehicles not using roads or streets is exempt from the tax. A 50 per cent reduction in motor vehicle registration fees was also passed co-incident with the increased gasoline tax.

The new tax is expected to bring about $25,000,000 annually to the state treasury. Of this amount, one-fourth will be given schools, the rest to revert to the highway department.

King George Goes Under Knife Today

LONDON, July 14. (UP)—Although still far from ease in regard to the condition of King George, the press and public tonight expressed great satisfaction that his majesty's general health is good in view of an operation which will be performed tomorrow.

The operation will be performed to relieve the same congestion which forced the king to undergo an operation during his dangerous illness of last winter. His physicians decided upon the second operation to drain the king's right chest only after X-ray photographs had been taken and studied. These photographs showed that the abscess is not draining properly and it was decided that direct treatment of the congestion is necessary.

The operation is not serious for a person in reasonably good health and general belief is that it will not keep the king in bed long.

Worker Killed in Fall From Oil Field Derrick

LAREDO, Texas, July 14. (AP)—Price Simms, 21, was killed in the Randada field in Jim Hogg county yesterday in an 80-foot fall from a derrick, said word received here today. He landed on the backup post rotary rig which was driven through his body. He was a native of Devine, Texas.

End of Special Session Tuesday Is Seen as Solons Get Set for Work

AUSTIN, Texas, July 14. (UP)—Assured of a senate quorum by the pledge of members to attend sessions, the Texas senate was ready tonight to buckle down to a final grind in an effort to pass needed appropriation bills.

Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller predicted the legislature would be adjourned by Tuesday night despite the governor submitting new topics for legislation Saturday. Conference committees worked overtime Saturday attempting to fix amounts to be allotted state departments and schools.

The coming week may determine whether another special session will be called. Conservative estimates have placed the proposed amount of appropriations at more than $50,000,000. Gov. Dan Moody has warned the legislature unless it limits the appropriations to $45,000,000, he may see fit to veto all money bills in hope of having less generous appropriations made.

Attempts were made Saturday to limit the school appropriations by eliminating allottments for secondary buildings. Even this amount is higher than that desired by the governor.

A bill will be offered tomorrow carrying out Moody's suggestion that school lands scheduled for sale Sept. 1 either be taken off the market or restrictions be made over control of mineral rights. A total of 1,500,000 acres are involved in the proposed sale.

NEGROES FLEE NEBRASKA CITY AFTER KILLING

Mob Threatens Death After White Policeman Is Shot Down

SLAYER KILLS SELF

Shooting Occurs as Officer Attempts to Arrest Wifebeater

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., July 14. (US)—Every negro in North Platte has fled from the city, the authorities announced tonight.

The negroes, 225 men, women and children, were threatened with death if they did not leave by a mob of men and boys that formed last night after a negro shot and killed a white policeman.

A negro prisoner in the county jail was released by the sheriff in order that he might join the hegira of his race.

Some of the negroes said they would return to the Southern states where they lived before coming to Nebraska. Others said they would go to Omaha and Chicago.

The demonstration against the negroes started yesterday when Ed Green, a policeman, was shot and killed while attempting to arrest Louis Seelman, a negro, charged with wifebeating. The negro is said to have committed suicide after slaying the white officer.

NEGROES DRIVEN FROM TOWN IN MARYLAND

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., July 14. (AP)—Negroes were a minus quantity here today after a clash with whites last night. The negroes were driven from the town with clubs, guns, billiard cues, bricks and other weapons. A fight between a negro and a white man caused the trouble.

After the fight an ultimatum was delivered to negroes that they keep to one side of the main street. During sporadic outbursts, in which missiles were thrown from one side of the street to the other, a white girl was struck by a bottle said to have been thrown by a negro.

It was then that the negroes were driven out and state police were sent here after a call from local police.

Mexican Church League Bans All Fighting

MEXICO CITY, July 14. (UP)—Openly admitting that the Mexican religious rebellion of the last three years had been sponsored and encouraged and directed by the national league for religious defense, the league today issued a general order to all its members to desist from further armed hostilities against the government. The action was a result of the religious settlement recently effected between the church and state.

One Killed, Two Hurt As Airplane Crashes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 14. (AP)—One man was burned to death and two others injured here today when an airplane crashed into the back yard of a suburban home and burst into flames. B. F. Dixon, 35, secretary-treasurer of a wholesale produce firm, burned to death. He was trapped in the plane wreckage. The injured are F. C. Cornelius and Robert S. Horsley, pilot.

Rebels in Holy Land Are Reported Defeated

JERUSALEM, July 14. (AP)—King Ibn Saud of Nejd and of Hedjaz was reported today to have won a decisive victory over the Wahabi rebels. Seven hundred of the rebels were reported killed. Forces of the king were led by the Amir of Hassa. The victory has caused great rejoicing at Rijbah, capital of Nejd.

Four Drown as Old House Boat Capsizes

PEQUEA, Pa., July 14. (UP)—A gay excursion on the moonlit Susquehanna river came to a grim end early today when the old sidewheel houseboat Betty Lorraine capsized in mid-stream with 16 passengers aboard. Four were drowned, and but for the aid of several cottage-dwellers on the shore many other lives might have been lost.

Steamship Off Coast Of Maine Calls for Aid

PORTLAND, Maine, July 14. (AP)—The S. S. Harvard was reported in need of assistance off the Maine coast tonight. She asked that a coast cutter tow her into port. The position given was latitude 42:15 north; Longitude 67:5 west. This is between Bar Harbor, Maine, and Yarmouth, N. S.

Plane in Air 31 Hours In Refueling Test

ST. LOUIS, July 14. (UP)—The Curtiss-Robin cabin monoplane, making a refueling test of its air-cooled Challenger motor, circled lazily over Lambert airport today in the second day of its flight. At 2:17 p. m. (C. S. T.) the monoplane had been in the air 31 hours.

Police To Quiz Driver Of Auto In Fatal Accident

Body of Tom Bennett Dragged 75 Feet, Says Somerville; Officers to Decide on Course of Action

Bob McCorkle, driver of the automobile which Saturday night struck and killed Tom Bennett, will be brought back to the police station for further questioning Monday morning, according to an announcement from George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney, who took the man's statement Saturday night.

Street Measured

The investigation Monday will result either in the filing of negligent homicide charges or the release of McCorkle, Mr. Anderson declared. Police Chief Frank Burns explained that McCorkle had been released after questioning Saturday night with the understanding that he would report at police headquarters again Monday morning.

Inquiries into the circumstances Sunday included measurements taken by Wayne Somerville, county attorney, along the section of Ohio street where the fatal accident occurred about 8:30 o'clock Saturday night. Mr. Somerville said Sunday that Mr. Bennett had been dragged a distance of between 75 and 90 feet, according to the computations made by the investigators. The attorney declared that his measurement showed the accident to have occurred about 10 feet from the curb on the east side of Ohio, near Fifth street. McCorkle was driving north, Mr. Somerville explained. The street at that point is more than 60 feet wide according to the report made by the officials.

Walked Hand-in-Hand

In his statement to Mr. Anderson Saturday night, McCorkle said that Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, hand-in-hand, were crossing the street just before the accident, and that they separated, each going in different directions, when they saw him approaching, the attorney reported. The driver declared that he had swerved in one direction only to have the two pedestrians swerve also, leaving them still in his path, according to the signed statement of McCorkle. Mr. Bennett was fatally injured. He died a few minutes later in a local hospital. Mrs. Bennett was untouched.

Services Await Son

Arrangements for the funeral of Mr. Bennett were being delayed Sunday night pending the arrival of his son from Oklahoma. The body is being held at the Burris funeral home. Tentative plans include burial at Thornberry but no hour has been set.

Mr. Bennett was born 57 years ago in Arkansas. For the past several years he has been engaged in farming near Wichita Falls.

'Untin' Bowler Is Lost in Ocean

OTTAWA, July 14. (By the Canadian Press)—The amphibian 'Untin' Bowler, attempting a flight from Chicago across the top of the world to Europe, was lost last night when it drifted out to sea near Port Burwell. No lives were lost. Loss of the plane was reported in the following official message to the department of marine:

"Plane 'Untin' Bowler was lost last night in moderate southwest gale when ice to which was moored broke up and drifted to sea. Plane when last seen from shore was surrounded by closely packed ice with bow in the air. No lives were lost."

Bill Would Give Aid To Foreign Road Makers

WASHINGTON, July 14. (US)—Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, in a letter to Senator Oddie, of Nevada, today expressed high approval of a bill that would authorize President Hoover to detail United States engineers to assist countries of Latin America in working out their respective highway systems and programs. The letter carried also an endorsement by the acting director of the budget stating that the plan would not interfere with the financial program of the president.

Police Head Accused Of Lack of Cooperation

KANSAS CITY, July 14. (UP)—Police Chief Miles of Kansas City accused Capt. William Wiebold of "lack of cooperation" in asking the officer's resignation here as part of an asserted effort to break up a police crime ring. Seven patrolmen had been suspended Friday after being charged with breaking into and looting a drug store. Captain Wiebold was said to have admitted knowledge of the police robbery which was not reported. Chief Miles said the captain was not implicated in any way.

AUTO STRIKES WICHITA BOY

Albert Sparks, 5, Seriously Hurt in Accident

Albert Sparks, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Sparks, 1419 Twenty-sixth street, was seriously injured about 8 o'clock Sunday evening when he was struck by an automobile on Holliday street near his home.

The injured was taken to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital in an Albert's company ambulance. X-ray examination of his injuries revealed no fractured bones, but there were internal injuries in the abnominal region, physicians stated. He also suffered cuts on both legs and severe shock.

Joseph Coats of Burkburnett, driver of the car which struck the boy, was released by police on a promise to return to police headquarters Monday morning. The boy started across the street and then ran back into the path of the car, it was said.

William K. Sparks, father of the boy, is a fireman on the Fort Worth and Denver railroad. The accident occurred just around the corner from the boy's home from which he had just gone on an errand.

SIX HURT IN IOWA PARK CRASHES

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, July 14.—Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Betty and Miss Ida Emanuel, all of Amarillo, were seriously injured near here about 10:30 o'clock this morning when the automobile in which they were riding overturned on the Electra highway, pinning them under the car. Rescue work was made difficult because of the fact that the injured persons were on opposite sides of the wrecked car and attempts to extricate one of them would place the weight of the car on the body of another, it was reported.

The injured persons were taken to Wichita Falls by a motorist who volunteered his services.

Two Federal Men Face Trial in Dry Slaying

TECUMSEH, Okla., July 14. (UP)—Two members of a federal officers' dry raiding squad were held in jail here today for trial on charges of murder growing out of the death of James Harris and Oscar Lowery, farmers and world war veterans, who were slain during a dry raid.

W. W. Thomason, who led three other men in the raid, and is a veteran enforcement officer of the Seminole oil region of Oklahoma, and Jeff Harris, charged with firing the fatal shots, were returned to jail to face the charge after a preliminary hearing Saturday.

Lake Breezes Break Chicago Heat Wave

CHICAGO, July 14. (US)—The heat wave was broken in Chicago today when the wind blew inland from Lake Michigan. The temperature which had been up to 85 dropped to 68. Temperature was lower over most of the upper Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes region, although in the Missouri valley and in the eastern part of the country there was little relief from the heat.

Injured Athlete Losing In Fight for Life

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 14. (UP)—Sustained for five days by artificial respiration, John Wessel, 17-year-old Bemidji athlete, was losing rapidly today in his fight against paralysis.

Wessel's condition, Dr. Rice said, dates back to an injury suffered in a basket ball game at Bemidji last May. The youth's parents said John had complained of a slight numbness in his hands after a fall in a basket ball game.

New Federal Farm Board to Start Administration of Relief Today

WASHINGTON, July 14. The new federal farm board with a fund of $500,000,000 will begin to administer relief to the agricultural industry tomorrow.

The eight members of the board already named are to gather with President Hoover in the cabinet room of the White House and then will plan what is to be done with the vast fund which congress has put at their disposal to stabilize the marketing of products of the soil.

President Hoover, after a long series of preliminary conferences with Alexander H. Legge, Chicago, formerly president of the International Harvester company, and chairman of the farm board, has worked out a complete program which is to be submitted to the meeting tomorrow. It is to be a long detailed statement which will be made public immediately upon its delivery.

In this statement the president will review the situation in the rural and farming industries of the nation. He is to stress over-production, increased acreages and the impossibility of many foreign countries absorbing the surplus produced on the American farms as well as the tariff. His statement, it is understood, is to be without rec-

EXPLOSION OF PLANE FOLLOWS ISLAND CRASH

Ludwik Idzikowski Fatally Hurt While Kubala Is Injured

COSTE TURNS BACK

French Plane Meets 'Stone Wall' of Wind And Returns Safely

LISBON, July 14. (UP)—The governor of the Azores islands notified the government tonight that the Polish airplane Marshal Pilsudski crashed on Graciosa island at 7 p. m. (Azores time) Saturday.

The message said the accident occurred at a spot described as "Guadaloupe."

The death of Louis Idzikowski, chief pilot of the big transatlantic plane, shocked authorities on the island, the governor said, adding that an imposing funeral was given the flier this afternoon at 3 p. m.

The funeral services included military honors for Idzikowski, rendered by Portuguese colonial troops in the presence of authorities on the island and the local population. About 9,000 persons live on Graciosa island.

The governor's message contradicted earlier reports that Idzikowski had been buried on the island. It said his companion, Casimir Kubala, who was injured in the crash, asked permission to return the body to Warsaw for burial.

HORTA, Azores, July 14. (AP)—The attempt of the two Polish aviators, Maj. Ludwik Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, to cross the Atlantic in their land airplane, the Marshall Pilsudski, has ended in disaster—death to one of them, serious injury to another, and complete destruction of the plane.

The transatlantic plane, buffeted by adverse winds but within sight of safety, early last night crashed near the Isle of Graciosa, about 35 miles northeast of here. Major Idzikowski, according to meager reports reaching here, was killed in an explosion which occurred as the plane struck the water, demolishing the craft and injuring Kubala.

Fahy Forced Down

WICHITA Kan., July 14. (AP)—Lieut. Herbert J. Fahy, attempting a non-stop flight from Los Angeles to New York, was forced down this afternoon at Kiowa, Kan., by oil pump trouble and proceeded to Wichita, landing his plane at Central airport at 3:30.

Their Competitor Quits

While they were attempting to land here their competitor in the transatlantic air race which began Saturday at daybreak, Capt. Dieudonne Coste, turned his plane, The Question Mark, about and reached France safely, failing in his flight venture but saving his and his pilots lives.

Pending establishment of a more complete communication with the Isle of Graciosa, one of the five islands of the central group, it was necessary to piece together the story of the disaster from reports which were current here.

It appeared the aviators, who had wirelessed that they would attempt to land at Horta shortly after 9 p. m., were compelled to abandon their flight because of engine trouble and the same hurricane-like adverse wind which forced Captain Coste to return.

It was believed that as the fliers approached the archipelago they became lost and finally in desperation sought a landing at Graciosa. There were conflicting reports as to what happened then but that generally accepted was that they came down on the water instead of land and that an explosion wrecked the plane as it crashed, killing Idzikowski and injuring Kubala.

Radio reports received here were said also to have indicated that the body of Idzikowski was being interred at Graciosa. Major Kubala was in a hospital, his condition undetermined. The Polish battleship Iskra, on receipt of news of the disaster, left here at 5 p. m. to go to the island and do what it could.

Horta was in a state of excited expectancy all last night. When at 9 p. m. the last wireless was received from the Poles saying that they would land at this city shortly

JUST THE Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 14. (US)—Mr. Wong Wow, of Seattle, than which there is no point westerner, has established a legal scramble which will be very difficult to duplicate.

Wong Wow, who might as well be a Mongolian cheer leader, was hailed before the Seattle federal court, charged with the joyful crime of bigamy.

Wow! And also Wong!

It seems that Wong married a Seattle girl before getting the divorce business from a wife in China.

That's a couple of Wows.

The federal court pondered wisely and deeply upon the fickleness of the Wows and ordered Wong deported.

America is no place for a celestial pessimist, who, having the choice of two evils, chooses both.

But Wong knew that a federal decision, like a waiter's collar, can be easily reversed.

He packed his lawyer into a chummy roadster and demanded that more law be showered upon his ochre brow.

And just last week the U. S court of circuit appeals reversed the postscripts and by-laws of the Seattle conference and decided that a Chinaman, speaking English, is entitled to a wife in each language.

How's your Esperanto?

If those western courts would only make up their minds we might know where we're at.

In considering the case of Wong Wow the learned judges did not overlook the Oriental slant on things. There is one thing that even a jury will admit. And that is—

That Wong has violated his marriage wows.

But you can buy a wife in Hong Kong for three dollars and when you want next year's model she has a trade-in value.

A Mandarin of the old school is entitled to 20 or 30 wives. Romance in the east is more or less a study in mob psychology.

We do not know whether Wong wanted to retain both wives or not.

He was probably hoping the courts would make him a bachelor.

Anyway, Wong has a wife in America and another in the land of the Lotus blossom. Now that the courts have decided he can keep them both we hope he finds a superior court that can keep them apart.

So endeth the story of Wong who beateth the brow of humility upon the carpet of equity in the halls of the strange white barbarians. He was a stranger within our gates and we gated him.

The warp and the woof in the fabric of justice are tangled and knotted with bickerings and delays. But he who crieth aloud six times in the market places, is entitled to our constitution without the amendments.

Wong, thou sought the justice of the Caucasian devil. And it sideswiped thee.

Death Claims Sister Of Wichita Falls Men

Word of the death of Mrs. Marion Flynt of Coleman, daughter of Mrs. M. V. Truly, 1911 Ardath street, and sister of Henry Truly and Tom Truly of Wichita Falls, was received here Sunday. Tom Truly went to Coleman Friday after being called by the serious illness of Mrs. Flynt, and attended the funeral services held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Ballinger, the former Truly family home. Henry Truly and Mrs. M. V. Truly were unable to attend the services, Mrs. Truly being ill in Wichita Falls at present.

Sleeping Man Falls Off Box Car in Vernon

VERNON, Texas, July 14.—A man giving his name as R. E. Morris of 5239 Richards avenue, Dallas, was found paralyzed below the waist yesterday morning in the Fort Worth and Denver railroad yard. Morris said that he came to Vernon on a truck about 1 o'clock this morning and went to the railroad yard to sleep in a boxcar. Failing to find one open he climbed to the top and fell off in his sleep and received the injury to his back and legs. He was given railroad fare to Dallas by county officials.

Endurance Fliers to Be Given Banquet Tonight

LOS ANGELES, July 14. (US)—Beginning a round of fetes honoring Loren Mendell and R. B. Reinhart, newly-crowned endurance kings of the air, a gigantic aviation banquet will be held at the hotel Biltmore Monday night. C. M. Fuller, president of the Richfield Oil Co., will act as host to the now-famous fliers and to the tireless-ground crews—the "men-behind-the guns."

Two Negroes Killed In Lake Worth Accident

FORT WORTH, July 14. (AP)—Two negro workmen were killed and four men were injured when a steel caisson at the new Lake Worth bridge collapsed today, burying the two men 40 feet beneath the surface of the water. Bodies of the men, O. B. Galloway and Will Jackson, had not been recovered this afternoon but rescue workers announced they had located one body. Professional divers were at work to remove the body and find the other.

SCHOOL VOTE DATE IS SET

Donley County Election Called for August

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, July 14.—Clarendon and Donley county, the home of the first college in the panhandle of Texas and long a leader in educational development, is planning to be the first to establish a union junior college under the new junior college bill passed at the last session of the legislature which authorized the establishing of such schools.

A college has been located in Clarendon since 1898 when the Methodist church established a denominational junior college. In 1925 this school was made a senior four-year school but was discontinued by the church conference in 1927. Clarendon people, long accustomed to the benefits of a college, felt that they should continue to have one, and voted bonds on the Clarendon Independent district to purchase the buildings, equipment, and grounds and continued to run the school as a municipal junior college. The school has operated successfully for two years and has received a number of marks of efficiency, having been admitted to the membership of the Texas association of colleges and given the rating of a first-class junior college which carries with it affiliation in all its work, thereby giving any student credit for entrance to any college in Texas and allowing him to enter the junior class in a senior institution should he desire more school work. The school is recognized by the state department of education and all work done in this institution can be used for credit on teachers' certificates.

Upon passage of the junior college bill legalizing the establishment of such institutions to be supported by a small tax on state and county valuations the people of Donley asked that an election be called to make the school a county junior college. Accordingly petitions were circulated over the county and 676 signatures were signed asking the county board to petition the state board for an election in Donley county for above stated purpose. The petition was presented to the state board on July 10 and they subsequently approved the petition and authorized the county board of education to call the election for some date in August.

Friends of the movement here predict very little opposition and say that if the election carries that it will be the first county junior college established in the state under the new law. The provisions of this law allow a 20 cent tax on state and county valuations. This will supply sufficient funds to operate the school and any student who is a resident of Donley county will be allowed to complete two years of college work without any tuition.

Donley county is taking advantage of the most unique opportunity in the state since the buildings, equipment and grounds are all paid for and no money will need be expended for any purpose except for operation of the school. This condition is made possible by the Clarendon school district which has offered the resources of the present plant if the county will help operate it.

Polish Flier Races to Death

it was believed they were safe. There is no landing field here but an improvised airdrome was made at the football ground for their expected descent.

SOS Received

Finally at 9:30 p. m. (5:30 p. m. E. S. T.) an SOS message, indicating motor trouble, was received from the Marshal Pilsudski. The populace at Horta did not suspect that anything had happened in the nature of disaster and for hours expected the plane to come over their football ground and land—the first land plane ever to land on the island of Fayal.

In the absence of further news authorities grew anxious and the Iskra, which happened to be in the harbor at the time, at midnight was ordered out to skirt the island in search of the plane.

Even then the people did not lose hope. No one had any thought of going to bed. At the football field all was gaiety and a number of youths were unable to resist the temptations of experimenting with a generous supply of flares. Not only on the field itself but on the surrounding hills churches and buildings where every view was obtainable families were gathered in the gayest mood, imagining a sudden swoop from the dark that would bring the transatlantic plane safe to haven.

Still Held Hope

The danger was obvious to the island authorities but the islanders themselves seemed unable to grasp the situation. When finally today well in the afternoon news was received of the plane's disaster it struck consternation among the inhabitants.

Major Idzikowski and Major Kubala set out from Le Bourget flying field, near Paris, at 4:47 a. m. Saturday morning (10:47 p. m. Friday E. S. T.) intending to fly to New York. If their disaster occurred as seemed likely shortly after 9:30 p. m. Azores time (5:30 p. m. E. S. T.) Saturday, they were in the air approximately 18 hours and had flown probably 1,800 miles or more since their departure.

FRENCH AIRMEN TO TRY FLIGHT AGAIN

By THOMAS TOPPING

By AP Staff Correspondent

VILLAGOUBLAY, France, July 14. (AP)—Depected but undaunted Capt. Dieudonne Coste, France's premier airman, returned to his homeland today, landing here at 9:27 a. m. (3:27 E. S. T.) after a brave but futile attempt to span the Atlantic to New York.

Although the morale of the conqueror of the South Atlantic was shaken he showed not a trace of physical fatigue from his 28-hour battle with the elements aloft, during which he was not able to take his hands from his plane's controls for a second.

Battled High Wind

A stonewall westerly wind which he met just west of the Azores, causing an excessive consumption of gasoline, and slow progress, were the determining factors in his decision to turn back when his plane was almost as near to the American Atlantic seaboard as to France.

"We will try again," Captain Coste said as he stepped from his plane. "But we will pick our own time; we must have a maximum of chances in our favor on this side.

"It is a colossal bone to chew."

He turned to the small group, which, warned by radio reports that he would land at Villacoublay, had gathered:

"Don't cheer, boys."

"There is nothing to cheer about. We just missed out, that's all." His demonstrances did not deter the handful of newspapermen, mechanics and spectators at the airfield from their applause, however.

Asked About Poles

"Where are the Poles?" he asked them.

He was given information reaching here in the shape of rumors, later to be negatived by other reports of disaster, that they had been forced to land in the Azores, but had done so safely.

His face brightened, and he remarked: "They met the same stone wall we did."

He reiterated "it is a tough bone to chew."

Jean LaCoste, builder of the planes motor, joined him, and Captain Coste explained his failure. It was at 6:18 p. m. (apparently G. M. T.—1:18 p. m. E. S. T.) when he ran into the "stone wall" and had to turn tail and run. He had traveled nearly 1,500 miles from Le Bourget.

Fuel Ran Low

"We found our gas consumption mounting terribly," he said, "while we were behind both in kilometers and gas."

The aviator told M. LaCoste that up until 3:30 p. m. G. M. T. (10:30 a. m. E. S. T.) the flight was uneventful, the Question Mark averaging 125 miles an hour. Then the headwinds commenced, just a fresh zreeze at first, which gradually increased into a mild gale, culminating into a hurricane.

At times, with the motor at full speed the plane was able to advance only 50 to 55 miles an hour, a decrease of from 70 to 75 miles from normal speed.

"It was hard with our motor turning beautifully to see our gasoline evaporating without our advancing. The mechanics guaged the tanks and found that during the 28 hours flying—or, to be exact, 27 hours and 55 minutes—the motor had used up more than 3,900 liters (1,085 gallons) of the 1,450 gallons of gasoline with which it started on the trip." On the return flight of course the plane was helped by following winds.

Wind Ruins Radio

Bellonte, the navigator-mechanic-radio operator, who had kept himself in background, clipped in: "The wind was so strong it carried off my reception antennae. I could send all right but I could not receive."

Coste explained he had struck out over the ocean between La Rochelle and Bordeaux. They saw three ships. "We saluted one by flying very low and waving a handkerchief. They responded from the deck."

The pilot sai dhe tried every altitude to circumvent the wind wall. "There were times when we flew 60 feet over the water; later we mounted to 9,000 feet but everywhere always that gale hit us in the face.

"I knew that crossing from East to West was very difficult but never in my most pessimistic visions could I imagine anything like this. The Southern Atlantic from Senegal to Brazil was child's play compare dto this job.

To Try It Again

"But we will try again. We are not tired."

He asked again for more definite information about the Poles. "They didn't crash, did they?" There was nothing more definite to tell him.

Coste had landed about 1,000 feet away from the sheds. He got back in his plane, started his motor and taxied over the ground perfectly, although he still had more than 300 gallons of gasoline aboard.

On getting out again he told of the return flight:

"We struck the coast of Spain about day break on our return trip but the weather was so bad over the Bay of Biscay we decided to skirt the Spanish coast rather than strike across the sea. We passed our Santander and San Sebastan. This prolonged our voyage a couple of hundred miles but we thought it was better to be safe than sorry."

Flier Is Douwncast

Jean LaCoste—Father of Rene LaCoste, world's tennis champion—attempted to cheer up Captain Coste, whose dejection seemed to increase.

"Don't worry, you will get another chance to do it, but when you start next time we will try to have all the trumps in your hands."

Coste replied earnestly: "I would rather attempt 10 times to New York to Paris flight than the Paris to New York flight once." He added semi-facetiously, "there must be something wrong with the fotation of the earth."

The big Red Bird was wheeled into a shed, Coste following very much downcast. He turned to his immediate followers "the more I try to cross the ocean the more I realize what an incomparable flier Lindbergh is."

He said he did not once catch sight of Idzikowski's and Kubala's Marshal Pilsudski, which had a 45 minutes start over them from Le Bourget.

County Commissioner to Begin Study of Tax Rate at Meet Today

Members of the county commissioners court will begin the task of setting the 1929 tax rate for Wichita county Monday, when the tax assessor turns in his $60,000,000 estimated valuation. The estimate will be placed in the hands of Paul Barnett, county auditor, for apportionment and the rate itself is expected to be set at the meeting July 29. Officials are in disagreement about the possibility of a raise in the rate but members of the court have declared that no increase will be voted except in the case of absolute necessity.

John P. Marrs, county judge, said Sunday that the board of equalization has not yet adjourned and that several disputed valuations have not been definitely settled.

The commissioners will also discuss the problem of finding the right man to fill the dairy expert's job now open in the county, but no definite action is expected.

New Federal Farm Board Meets Today

The first matter which is to receive the attention of the new board is that of grain. With 1,100,000,000 bushels of wheat in sight there is every indication that there will be a surplus of approximately 300,000,000 bushels, which must be taken care of by exports or a foreign market. The grain is now beginning to pour into the various elevators and there is a congestion.

The president and the farm board will work out at their first meeting a plan or policy to deal with this particular situation. It was learned that the president, after his experience with the food administration, is to urge caution in anything which may be construed as an effort at fixing a price on grains, but rather to devise some means of getting rid of the surplus to the very best advantage.

In this he is in almost continuous conference with Chairman Legge, who was his associate in the food administration during the world war.

Realizing that anything they may say or do may upset the grain, cotton and other farm stocks on the market, it was learned that the board and the president will proceed with caution in any and all pronouncements and with the exception of the president's opening statement the board will meet in executive session for several days.

SIX HURT IN PARK CRASHES

Three Sericusly Injured Brought Here

near Iowa Park Sunday morning, were brought to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital at 12:30 o'clock Sunday. Examination of their injuries revealed broken ribs and severe bruises in the case of both Miss Emanuel and Mrs. Betty and bruises and shock in the case of Mr. Betty, physicians reported. Their conditions were not considered critical, it was said.

FATHER AND TWO SONS INJURED IN WRECK

IOWA PARK, Texas, July 14.—J. Gardner and his two sons, Lynn, 15, and Alvin, 12, of Iowa Park, suffered severe flesh wounds, scalp wounds and bruises about 10 o'clock Sunday morning when the truck which Mr. Gardner was driving overturned about seven miles north of here on the Electra highway.

The accident occurred as a result of faulty brakes on the truck, it was reported, the machine going into the ditch when the brakes failed to operate. The injured persons were given treatment by Dr. O. L. Woodall, who reported that they were resting well Sunday night. Mr. Gardner has lived in Iowa Park for several years.

SERVICES AT ELECTRA FOR AUTO VICTIM

ELECTRA, Texas, July 14.—Funeral services for J. D. Johnson, former Electran who was killed former Electran who was killed last Friday in an automobile accident near Willis in Montgomery county, will be held in Electra at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. B. R. Hutchins.

Mr. Johnson, 30, unmarried, was almost instantly killed when his machine overturned on the highway near Willis. His body was brought back Sunday to Electra, his home until three years ago.

Rev. C. C. Klingman, pastor of the First Christian church, will conduct the services Monday afternoon. Besides his sister, Mr. Johnson is survived by his father, G. W. Johnson, and four brothers. They are G. F., J. C., and S. M. Johnson of Electra and J. B. Johnson of Dallas.

CONDITION OF INJURED GIRL UNCHANGED

The condition of Miss Ethel Bain, 611 Michigan avenue, who was seriously injured late Friday night when she fell from the rail on the dance floor of the Lakeside pavilion, was reported unchanged Sunday at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital where she was taken in a Burris ambulance.

The young woman had been dancing at the pavilion but was preparing to leave because of dizzy spells which she had complained of all day. She was seated on the rail near the ticket booth on the east side of the pavilion when she suddenly fainted and fell forward, striking the rocks at the edge of the water more than 20 feet below.

Examination of her injuries revealed an ankle broken in two places, broken ribs, a small bone broken from the spine and severe scalp wounds. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Bain, 611 Michigan avenue, and has been employed as office manager of the Remington Rand Service Company, Inc., during the last two years.

TWO BOYS HURT IN ACCIDENTS IMPROVING

Fred Brown, 12, stepson of C. A. Stobaugh, 2411 Kemp boulevard, who suffered severe bruises and other injuries when he was struck by the rear wheel of a Wichita Ice company truck from which he had fallen shortly before noon Saturday, was reported much improved Sunday at the Hargrave-Walker hospital.

James Pate, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Pate, who became ill Saturday following an accident Friday evening in which he was struck by an automobile, was reported fully recovered Sunday at his home, 1918 Eighth street. The boy told the driver of the car that he was unhurt after the accident, but he was confined to his bed Saturday, suffering from pains in his abdomen and leg. The pains had left him Sunday, it was said.

War Threatens Eastern Nations

U. S. S. R.'s legal rights" unless the Chinese within three days agreed to its peaceful policy.

It added that notwithstanding "violent and provocating actions of the Chinese authorities" it once more expressed its willingness to enter negotiations with China regarding all questions connected with the Chinese Eastern railway.

Demands Citizens' Release

The note continued that such negotiations, however, would be possible only in the event of immediate release of arrested citizens of the soviet Republics and cancellation of all "illegal orders" by Chinese authorities.

The soviet government proposed:

First, to call a conference immediately to regulate all questions connected with the Chinese Eastern railway question.

Second: That the Chinese authorities immediately should cancel all arbitrary orders regarding the Chinese Eastern.

Thirdly: That all arrested citizens shall be released immediately and that Chinese authorities cease all persecution of soviet citizens and soviet institutions.

The note suggested that the Mukden government and the Nationalist government at Nanking weigh the serious consequences which rejection of these proposals would have and declared Russia would wait three days for an answer.

Warning Uttered

The missive then warned that if this answer was unsatisfactory the soviet would be compelled to resort to other means.

At another point in the note the Russian government warned the Chinese authorities it possessed sufficient means to safeguard the lawful rights of people of the U. S. S. R. against violent infringements.

Meetings of protest and indignation of the happenings in Manchuria were held throughout the soviet republics, with the press fanning emotions with big displays to developments and accompanying commenting editorials.

Izvestia, official organ of the central executive committee, displayed a cartoon of a scoffing Chinese military commander with a white Russian guard in the background, and featured the following demands and resolutions of the workers at their various protest meetings:

"The workers of the soviet union demand:

"Immediate release of all soviet citizens arrested.

"Immediate withdrawal of Chinese troops from our frontier.

"Immediate restoration of our workers' organizations.

"We don't want war but if attacked we will all tax one shoulder with a rifle in defense of our proletarian fatherland, etc."

'Playing With Fire'

Izvestia, editorializing, said in part: "The soviet government sums up the gravity of the situation reminding the Chinese authorities that the soviet union is in command of ample means for defense of its rights and legitimate interests."

No paper hints as to the nature of the action contemplated in the event the Chinese do not reply in three days, Izvestia merely saying: "In the face of soviet public opinion we reward the Chinese provocateurs and brigands to cease playing with fire."

Montgomery Urges Approval Of Supreme Court Changes in Election

Editor, The Record News:

On Tuesday, next, occurs one of the most important elections in my judgment that has been held in a long time in Texas. At that time the people will be called upon to accept or reject a constitutional amendment increasing the supreme court from six to nine members. The effect of the amendment will be to abolish the present commission of appeals of six men and to increase the size of the supreme court as it now exists, from three to nine members. If the amendment is adopted it will not increase the number of appellate judges and the principal effect will be to have a larger supreme court which can more efficiently and promptly dispose of the public business. I served upon the commission of appeals for a time and feel that I am in position to know how the present system works.

Under the present system only three judges of the supreme court have any authority to decide anything. We have a commission of six men to whom cases are referred who hear arguments and prepare opinions to be submitted to the supreme court. These opinions may be either accepted or rejected and frequently are rejected when prepared by one section of the commission, and the case is then referred to the second section and then finally perhaps withdrawn by the supreme court and decided by it. Thus the same case is frequently argued two or three times. This condition it seems to me, is intolerable. The judges of the commission are usually men of as much experience and ability as the supreme court, and yet their opinions even if adopted are of no weight as a precedent. The only states in the American union which have as few as three supreme court judges are Nevada, New Mexico, South Dakota and Wyoming, and certainly Texas in population and resources is not in the same class with these states. We have the same number of supreme judges to finally decide the law in Texas that we had in the days of the republic when Texas had only about 50,000 population. From my experience I will say positively that I do not think that any three men ought to be trusted with the duty of finally deciding what the law shall be in a state like Texas.

The supreme court has more to do with establishing the laws than the legislature and this task in a state of this size should not be imposed upon three men. The present chief justice has stated that it is a physical impossibility for any three men to properly perform the duties imposed by law upon the supreme court.

This is a non-partisan question and I earnestly ask every man and woman entitled to vote to investigate it and to cast a vote for the amendment if possible, but in any event I think they ought to vote.

—J. T. MONTGOMERY.

Pampa Hotels Crowded; Men Find Rest In Cemetery

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, July 14.—Over in Pampa, where the oil boom in Gray county has made living quarters in hotels, rooming houses and private homes scarce, they are taking to sleeping in the cemetery.

The Schneider hotel is so full it is almost impossible to get a room. Other hotels report similar conditions.

The other night two men spent the better part of the night seeking a place to rest. They were unable to locate a single cot.

After hours of search the tired pair drove to Fairview, the Pampa cemetery, where they parked their car for the night and slept on the ground.

6,183 ATTEND BIBLE SCHOOL

17 of 30 Churches Show Attendance Loss

Although 13 of 30 local churches reporting showed Sunday school attendance larger than that of July 7, the total figure for Sunday fell 313 short of equalling that of the preceding week.

Many of the gains shown in the reports were as small as one additional pupil, while the 17 schools reporting reduced attendance include many of the larger churches, where vacations account for the absence of many pupils.

For the first time since the first of the year, no single Sunday school had as many as 1,000 present. The First Baptist church reported 945, to head the list for July 14.

The reports follow:

Race Prejudice And Hatred To Fade, Class Told

"Every individual must stand upon his own record, and accept the full responsibility of his own misdoings instead of shifting the blame to his forefathers," said Judge B. D. Sartin in an address before the men's Bible class of the Highland Heights Christian church Sunday morning.

Speaking upon the subject of personal accountability, Judge Sartin drew upon the book of Ezekiel the prophet, which he said should be considered one of the highlights of the entire Bible. Recognition of the common interest and common purpose ultimately of all states and all nations is a requisite to the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies and the teachings of Christ, the speaker said, but added that the same relationship must exist between individuals.

"Politics may delay the organization of a league of nations, or a world court, and a world government based upon the principles of international law and with a world constitution, but the leaven of Christianity is at work in the affairs of man and in God's due time will usher in the brotherhood of man and we can no longer say that we are not our brother's keeper. It was Cain in the beginning of time who tried to deny this fundamental fact of society. The Apostle Peter was compelled by a vision on the housetop by the side of the sea before he could realize that God was no respecter of persons and that the program of the Christian religion was meant for the Gentile as well as for the Jew. National lines and race prejudice and hatred will fade before the advancement of the kingdom of Christ."

Webb Speaks At Electra

Anti-Saloon Head Urges Law Enforcement

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, July 14.—In two addresses made to large audiences in Electra Sunday, Dr. Atticus Webb, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in Dallas, appealed for the cooperation of the citizenship of the country in the enforcement of the dry law.

Dr. Webb spoke Sunday morning at the First Baptist church and in the evening addressed a joint meeting of the congregations of the Presbyterian and Methodist church, held at the First Methodist church.

"We are inexorably committed to dry policies" the speaker declared. "The time for opposition has passed and all criticism of the law and its enforcement should cease. We have put our hand to the plow and we will not be turned aside."

Although Dr. Webb avoided political issues in his address, he reminded his hearers that the results of the election last November will put a dry congress in the capital. He declared that the house will have a majority of three out of four members affiliated with the prohibition forces, and that five out of six senators will vote dry.

Of the new faces in congress, he added, 10 out of 11 were elected by dry constituents.

"We can draw only one conclusion from these figures" Dr. Webb went on. "They mean that the voters of this country are for prohibition in the same proportions as the leaders they have selected to guide their policies. Most of these men were elected on dry platforms, promising enforcement; many of their opponents appealed to the wet interest. In the election results we have the answer of the people of this country."

VERNON TAX VALUES GAIN

New Record of $33,332,391 Reached

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, July 14.—Wilbarger county tax valuations for 1929 reached a new high total of $33,332,391, according to a preliminary report filed yesterday with the commissioners court for the purpose of making the 1929 tax levy, which was placed at $1 on the $100 valuation, a reduction of 25 cents in the rate made possible by increase in valuations of more than $9,000,000. The bulk of the increase is a result of oil development, which furnished almost half of the total valuations.

The total this year shows an increase of more than 100 per cent within 10 years. The 1927 valuations were next highest with $26,566,965 and the 1928 valuations dropped to $24,103,232.

In the tax levy of $1, 22 cents is for maintenance purposes for the road and bridge fund, 44½ cents is levied to pay interest and provide sinking funds for the various road and bridge bond and warrant issues, and 24 cents for general miscellaneous expenses of the county.

Plains Water Plants Sold

Dallas Firm in Market For Utilities

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, July 14.—The Texas-Louisiana Power company of Dallas which several months ago bought the Inland Utility company plants in Spearman, Perryton and other towns in the north part of the Texas Panhandle, is again in the market for municipal plants. This time the company wants water systems.

An offer of $100,000 is said to have been accepted by the Perryton city council, subject to approval of voters of the town, for the plant there. The company wants a 50-year franchise.

At Spearman the city council accepted an offer of $67,500 and an election will be held July 21 to vote on the proposal. There is said to be but little opposition.

Second Delay Seen In Gibbs Mandamus

Further postponement of the hearing on mandamus proceedings brought against O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, by four defendants who pleaded guilty to vagrancy in the justice court three weeks ago is expected Monday because of the continued illness of Earl Kuntz, attorney for the petitioners. Mr Kuntz is not expected to be able to be in the courthouse all week.

The four petitioners, two men and two women, are asking for an order requiring Judge Gibbs to grant them a retrial on the vagrancy charges to which they pleaded guilty in a late night session of the court. They claim that they entered such pleas to avoid spending a night in jail.

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

By Wymond Garthwaite

MOPSY

Miss Margaret Jane
Has lots of toys.

And nice ones too, of course;
But best of all she loves
Somehow
A most peculiar "horse."

He's not at all
The kind you buy in shops.
We made him up
One afternoon
From one of mother's mops,
Some wire, and sticks and string,
And buttons, too—
Just bits of everything.

He's hardly pretty—
No, not a bit—
In fact, he's awfully plain!
Just what there is
To love in him
You'll have to ask
Miss Margaret Jane.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Since we wrote about trees in Wichita Falls last week, we have lived and learned.

◇ ◇ ◇

For instance, concerning that live oak planted on the Junior college campus, we learned from R. O. Jonas' notes on the history of Junior college: "The first of campus historical traditions was established in the planting by the State Congress of Mothers of a tree on the east campus with appropriate ceremonies. The tree, presented for the occasion by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Downing, was grown from an acorn off the famous old Independence Oak under which the ceremonies of declaring Texas a free and independent nation, were held in the revolution of 1836."

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. Thomas Clement speaks of the row of locust trees planted back of her house on Ninth street. We have driven in Mississippi along shady roads where limbs of locust trees met above us, and when they bloom, their sweetness goes far beyond their shade.

◇ ◇ ◇

We thought there were only three maples in the city; we have learned there are three others at least. One is in Mrs. A. H. Carrigan's yard. The maple is her favorite tree.

◇ ◇ ◇

The other two are living memorials. They are on the grounds of the First Presbyterian church. The Woman's Missionary society of that church planted a maple in memory of Lieut. A. H. "Pat" Carrigan; on the tree protector is a bronze plate, bearing his name and "142nd Inft., 36th Div., A. E. F. Killed in action October, 1918."

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. Carrigan gave the other maple and the Missionary society put around it the tree guard with the plate bearing these words: "Corp. Gordon Mattison, 359th Inft., 90th Div., A. E. F. Killed in action Sept. 15, 1918."

◇ ◇ ◇

Around one of these trees, grows violets and around the other, tall chrysanthemums. They are watered and cared for. No shaft of marble could make so beautiful a memorial as a tree.

◇ ◇ ◇

And then we learned that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Roberts on Tenth street, there is a red bud tree. If only we might find a dogwood.

O far away, so far away,
The dogwood trees are flowering;
White blossoms, tipped with faintest green
The southern woods a'bowering.
Virgins of the forest they,
Caressed by spring, yet chaste always.
If memory is a fickle thing,
Then why's my heart so sorrowing?

And far away, so far away,
The red bud tree is blushing;
In forests dim, by deep, still streams
Bare limbs with flower are flushing.
Spirit of the mist are they,
Soul of the deep wood's waterway.
O memory, you're no fickle thing!
Your weight my heart is crushing.

DeMolay to Initiate Eight at Ceremony

Eight neophytes will be initiated into the Order of DeMolay at Hope chapter's summer ceremonial at Maskat temple on top of the City National bank building at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. It was announced by Robert Crocker, master councilor, who will conduct the ceremony.

Burris C. Jackson of Hillsboro, past president of the past master councilor's association of Texas and vice president of International DeMolay alumni, is expected to attend the ceremonial. All master Masons have been invited to attend, it was said.

PORTER AT BURK

Special to The Record News

BURKBURNETT, Texas, July 14.—The Rev. Paul C. Porter, a returned missionary, delivered the morning and night sermon at the First Baptist church here Sunday.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, July 14. (US)—"I don't mind the heat at all," said Olga, who has a book store in New York, "except that I have to listen all day to the customers complaining how hot it is."

Dallas, Texas, now bans all married women from working outside their homes, "except under especially mitigating circumstances." The mayor of the city has fired all married women from city jobs.

City employes seldom with the work habit? It isn't likely that this particular move will make for activity in the home.

Other married workers may do a few whirls around the kitchen, but the ex-city employes will be found under a tree in the hammock.

The increase in divorces at Reno jumped a thousand last year, and the weddings jumped two thousand.

Denoting a fashion in quick turnovers.

The Prince of Wales is engaged in becoming engaged, if you believe the newspapers. But Clara Bow actually is engaged. The only girl in the world with beautiful Bow legs.

A Detroit girl arrested for stealing, says that she was getting a trousseau. She is in jail, so after all the best way is to keep handing the bills to father. If he hasn't it and doesn't know where to get it, save them and give them to the groom after the wedding. Never before.

Washington, D. C., always sending out bright news, says that out of 859 arrests for speeding, only 28 were women. It argues that women are better drivers and tells why.

They are merely better arguers. Nobody knows why.

A sane officer who would look into the barrel of a gun and refuse to throw up his hands, would put them up rather than face an argument with a damosel.

When it comes to getting away from a speed cop, rolling the eyes wins over dropping the R's.

Anyway, where a pretty woman is concerned, what gets a police officer all "hot and bothered" is not the fact that she has been speeding. It's the sweet, big-eyed look when she says she is sorry.

A 9-year-old boy in New York was found sleeping off the effects of a bottle of wine he swiped from his grandmother.

And when grandma staggered home at 2 a. m., I'll bet she gave him a good trouncing.

Pretty Shower Honors Miss Jo Kelly

Honoring Miss Jo Kelly, Mrs. E. L. Gambrill, assisted by Mrs. John Kelly, entertained Friday afternoon with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Kelly, 2409 Buchanan street.

A yellow and white color motif was observed, masses of Shasta daisies being used in all the rooms. The honoree was showered with many lovely gifts.

After a pleasant afternoon, a delicious refreshment plate was served to the honoree, Miss Jo Kelly, Miss Aubrey Jane Warren, Mesdames O. H. Karr, Pat Kelly, E. M. Moss, Wright, George Hill, Harwell, H. M. Hines, Benson, Ed Ward, Whitehead, Ed Russell, Near, Knight, Gambrill, John Kelly and Miss Fetna Bivins.

New Traffic Head To Assume Duties Tuesday

Johnny Sewell, newly appointed captain of the traffic department of the police force, will assume his duties in that capacity Tuesday morning, it was announced at police headquarters Sunday. Captain Sewell succeeds Capt. J. H. Scott, who died following a heart attack several weeks ago.

The new captain was chosen from among the members of the traffic department because of the quality of his work during the several years he has served, Chief Frank Burns stated.

Woman Can't Take Love of Husband As "Fixed" Thing

"Marriage Is No Longer a Place of Safety to a Woman," Cries the Wife Who Took Husband's Love for Granted—"It Is a Place of Peril, Where She Has to Be Up and Doing to Hold Her Own"

A very unhappy and lonely woman said to me the other day:

"Sometimes I feel that I have a mission to my sex and that I should go through the length and breadth of the land preaching to wives and saying to them: Wake up! Realize, before it is too late, that the old-fashioned until-death-do-us-part marriage, with its security for the woman, is played out.

"Face the fact that the relationship between husbands and wives has changed and that men no longer feel any more bound to go on with a marriage that is a failure than they do to stick to any other bad bargain.

"Don't befool yourself with any of the old sophistries about winning back your husband's affection after you have once lost it, or reviving his interest in you after he has got tired of you. You can't do it. And when the other woman comes on the scene just recognize that there is nothing you can do about it except to retire as gracefully as possible.

"If I had known these hard and bitter truths, I could at least have saved my face and kept the respect of my friends, but I belonged to the old school of wives who thought that their husbands were their personal property, and that they owned them body and soul, and that they could punish the woman who took them away from them just as they could a thief who had stolen their jewelry.

"So five years ago when my husband asked me to divorce him and let him marry the woman he loved I refused and started in to revenge myself. I was so jealous and angry and infuriated that I said and did terrible things and made myself notorious by publicly threatening to kill them and by humiliating them in every way.

"This not only gave my husband the grounds of mental cruelty upon which he got his divorce, after I had fought him for three years about it and forced him to go to the supreme court in order to get it at last, but it made people think me mean and jealous and hard to get along with, so all of my old friends dropped me. I am practically ostracized. Everybody believed that my vicious disposition had driven my husband away from me and sympathized with him instead of me.

"As I look back now upon the mistakes I made, I realize that I had a lot of old-fashioned ideas in my head that bound me like steel bcains, and it makes me wonder how many other wives are ruining their lives by being held by these old out-modeled traditions that have no place in modern life and modern marriage.

"I believed, as I said, that when a woman married a man he belonged to her, and that she could treat him pretty much as she pleased because he was bound to her. He couldn't get away from her. I thought that he was held to her by all the power of church and state and society, and that he would be disgraced if he left his family.

"I found out that people no longer look upon divorce as a disgrace, and that they do not scorn the man or woman who breaks up a miserable marriage. They think they have done an intelligent thing.

"I thought that the woman a man married was his only real love, and that all the rest were affairs to be destroyed by the wife. I found out that very often a man marries when he is very young and he outgrows his wife, or a husband and wife develop along different lines, or he marries under the spell of a passing infatuation that soon wears off, and then, perhaps, when he is middle-aged he does meet the woman who was his predestined mate and who inspires in him the grand passion.

"I thought a man honored and respected his wife, just because she was his wife, more than any other woman in the world, no matter what she did or said, so long as she was faithful to him. I found out that a man takes it for granted that his wife will be faithful and that she has to have many more virtues than chastity if she holds him. I found out that being virtuous doesn't atone for a wife's being narrow and dull and nagging.

"I thought the other woman threw a spell over a man and as soon as the wife humiliated her the husband would return. I found out that the other woman's magic consists in generally being everything the wife isn't, and that once love is dead no wife can work the miracle of reviving it.

"I failed to recognize the power of a clever, beautiful woman. I saw her as a fallen woman. I didn't match my wits against hers. I simply sought to destroy her as I would a snake. She destroyed me. I failed to see that the other woman is a great and mighty power and that she cannot be crushed by scandal from the lips of an angry and injured wife. She is here to stay and, more than that, she is recognized by decent people.

"If I had known how public opinion has changed, I would have been a wiser and a happier woman. I depended upon traditions to solve my difficulties. They have all gone into the discard. I have learned that a woman can't hold a man just because she is married to him. I always boasted what I would do if the other woman ever came into my life. I thought everything I would have to do would be to fight and everything and everybody would be on my side. I know better now. And I know that there were many things I could have done to make myself over, to improve myself, that would have gone far to help me hold my husband, but I didn't think I had to. I thought that a wedding certificate was all that a woman needed.

"And that is the mistake that I would like to warn other women against making. Wives are brought into competition now with other women as they never have been before and they have to meet it. They have to be as good-looking, as interesting, as snappy, as adept in jollying as their rivals, if they hold their jobs as wives. They have to be understanding and sympathetic and tender if they want to keep their husbands from hunting up a soulmate. For marriage is no longer a place of safety to a woman. It is a place of peril where she has to be up-and-doing to hold her own.

"And if she loses out, the only wise thing for her to do is to be a good sport and take her loss without whining."

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been going with a man for over a year who has professed to love me and he has even gone so far as to take me out and show me where he would bury me if I should die, and now he wants to break off the engagement because he has met a rich widow. I have spent over $500 in getting ready to get married. Would you sue him for damages? I love him and would rather suffer every day the rest of my life than see him suffer one hour, yet he has wronged me beyond pardon. What would you do? —A BROKEN-HEARTED WIDOW.

WIDOW.

Answer—Well, a man who took me out and showed me my future grave wouldn't make any hit with me, and I would be glad to let him put the other widow in it and think I was lucky to have escaped it and a husband whose mind run on mausoleums. So brace up and shed no more tears over this faithless lover. There are as good fish in the sea, you know, and widows are mighty good anglers.

Don't sue the man for damages. You can't really heal a hurt heart with a poultice of greenbacks, and a breach of promise suit degrades the woman who brings it and shames all the balance of her sex.

Just be a good sport and console yourself with the reflection that any man who marries for money is not worth the price a woman pays for him.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorcty Dix—I know a man who is good and kind and a splendid provider for his family. His table literally groans under the good food, yet his table manners are so horrible that instead of enjoying a meal it is an ordeal to his wife and children. He gulps his coffee, he mops his plate. He chews with his mouth wide open so you can hear him in the next room. And all of this mortifies his family so that they never invite a guest to the house. His wife has corrected him not once but a hundred times, until he himself says that it has got almost unbearable. She has appealed to his self-respect, the reputation of his family, but all to no avail. What can she do?

Answer: I should say the best thing to do would be to let the poor man alone and to stop badgering him about his table manners. Probably he has been nagged about them until he has got his back up, and is determined to eat as he pleases, just to show that he won't be henpecked and chickenpecked. Eating with his knife and sopping his gravy is a gesture of defiance and a proclamation of personal liberty.

Therefore, if the wife will drop her criticisms and let her husband think that she has given up the fight, the chances are that he will profit by some of the corrections that he has heard a million times and modify his faults at the table. But if he doesn't, why not just accept the inevitable and try to make the best of the situation instead of getting morbid over it?

After all, bad table manners are not a capital sin. They may get on your nerves, but they don't break your heart. It isn't as bad to have a husband who gobbles his food as it is to have one who doesn't provide any food at all for his family.

It isn't as bad to have a husband who gulps his coffee as it is to have one who is always finding fault with it and wondering why you can't make a decent cup. It isn't as bad to have a husband whom you can hear eat as it is to have one who is buying eats for flappers.

Don't let your husband's manner of eating wreck your home. Good manners and good principles are more important than table etiquette.

But what a lesson this story should teach mothers about the importance of teaching children how to eat properly, for we are judged by our table manners!

—DOROTHY DIX.

Postal Receipts In Memphis Show Gain

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Texas, July 14.—As evidence that Memphis is gradually gaining in population, the postal receipts, according to Postmaster W. M. Owens, for the month of June showed quite a gain over the same month of 1928. The receipts for the month of June ran $5,247.06, compared to $4,424.54 in June, 1928. The month of July so far, says Mr. Owens, is a good one.

Charming Fashions for a Summer Day

There are two correct answers to the question of dress for this summer. For active service, sports frocks of cotton or washable silk crepe, and for more dressy occasions—luncheon, bridge or graceful lounging—the softer models with fuller skirts and cape collars, usually sleeveless, fashioned of georgette, chiffon or voile.

The tub frock is most practical as one must be dainty and fresh as well as comfortable, and every woman needs an assortment of frocks that will launder well and not fade in the sun. Cotton was introduced early in the season and is now at the peak of the mode. Exquisitely designed and colored linens, piques, shirtings, crepes and ginghams are shown in all the shops, and are comparatively inexpensive.

Today we have chosen two of these styles—designs 1691 and 1696 present the charm and beauty of the afternoon mode at its best. Delightful prints are used in fashioning these models, and these may be selected in any number of striking patterns and favorite color schemes.

Representing the sports mode are designs 1695 and 1622. The latter may be made with or without sleeves, as one wishes. These patterns fit so well that it is only necessary to bind the armholes when sleeves are omitted. Note the use of tiny buttons on both models, the season's popular trimming on wash frocks.

For our youngsters this week, we have chosen two different types of frocks. One for play and one for best. The miniature mode has adapted many of the grown up details, as to fabric and style, in fact mother may use the same materials for her smallest member of the family, as for herself.

PATTERN 1697

For example, this adorable frock fashioned of printed and plain pique. Isn't it cunning with its trimming of ruffled fabric around collar and cuffs? Four pleats afford ample freedom and fullness. Small colorful designs on a white ground for frock and bloomers, white for trimming—for a smart rig.

May be obtained only in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 2¾ yards printed and one-half yard plain material, each 40 inches wide.

PATTERN 8044

Her small friend is all dressed up for an ice cream and cake party, and doesn't she look delectable? Her frock is made of organdie and trimmed with rows of narrow lace ruffling. Tiny tucks create much fullness and grace. Other suitable fabrics are voile, georgette, ponge and silk crepe. Pastel shades are lovely.

May be obtained only in sizes 2, 4 and 6. Size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 36 to 40-inch material.

PATTERN 1696

The fresh charm of cottons is undisputed when one sees a model like design 1695. The shaped neck band and the unusual side skirt pleats are details of decided interest. Plain or printed linen, pique or gingham fashion this adorable frock with contrasting trimming. Attractive buttons add a final touch of chic.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards dress material and 1¼ yards trimming, each 36 inches in width.

PATTERN 1622

The attractive rounded yoke of design 1622 creates a frock that is decidedly new and different. Fullness over the bust is given through gathers below the yoke. The skirt is pleated in front and straight in back. As was suggested, the sleeves may be omitted and the arm holes bound with a bit of bias material. Smart buttons finish the vestee. Plain or printed pique will fashion this frock in stunning manner.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 54-inch material, 4¼ yards of 40-inch material.

PATTERN 1691

Outrageously pretty and chic to the last degree is this exquisite frock made of printed georgette or chiffon. The buttoned, graceful collar, the pointed skirt yoke and the fully fluted skirt are delightful details that harmonize beautifully. So youthful, too, this design 1691, that every smart woman will adore it. Other suitable fabrics for its development are flowered voile, organdie, silk crepe and soft taffeta.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 40-inch material.

PATTERN 1696

Another graceful frock is sketched in design 1696. Its outstanding feature of interest is the slit sleeve which effects a cape collar. The skirt is fully gathered and the hips are held snugly by a wide girdle that crushes softly and finishes in a part bow in front. Printed chiffon, georgette, voile or organdie are delightful mediums for making this model.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of material 40 inches in width.

These models are easy to make. No dressmaking experience is necessary as each pattern comes to you with simple and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. You will be delighted with the fit and simplicity of the patterns.

Patterns will be delivered to you upon receipt of 15 cents in U. S. coins or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern wanted.

Our latest fashion book will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Martin Pays Tribute to Man's Will in Bible Class Address

In a discussion of "Individual Accountability" before the members of the Men's Bible class at the Floral Heights Methodist church, Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning paid a tribute to what he called "Man's most Godlike attribute"—his will.

The speaker attacked the "time-serving sycophant" whom he described as "a religious parasite, a political nondescript, and a moral coward," and declared that a mistaken man who stands by his own strength of will and decision is more to be admired, in spite of his errors, than "figurehead who cringes before adverse criticism and simpers over crums from rich men's tables."

Judge Martin took his text from the book of Ezekiel and outlined in detail the historical background of the lesson. A synopsis of the address is given below:

Twofold Message

"The lesson for today from the prophecy of Ezekiel is a message of hope and at the same time a message of despair; of hope to the penitent sinner and of despair to the self-righteous Pharisee, depending on his ancestry, his church or his forms and ceremonies to save him from the consequence of his sins.

"The Hebrews had an old proverb 'The fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge.' It meant literally that a man is the product of his ancestry and environment; that the sins of the fathers are so fastened upon their children that they cannot get away from them; that the curse of God rests upon unborn generations of people on account of the sins of their parents and the grandparents. Ezekiel says that God has announced through him, as his prophet, that Israel shall never have occasion to use this proverb any more, but that God has said

'Behold all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; the souls that sinneth, it shall die.'

Timely Teaching

"It was an ideal time to teach the great doctrine of individual responsibility to the scattered children of Israel. Sargon, of Egypt, had destroyed Samaria and carried away into everlasting oblivion the '10 lost tribes' constituting the northern kingdom; Nebuchadnezzar had taken Jerusalem and had removed to his capital, Babylon, all that was worth taking of the two other tribes and with no king and no country of their own; thrown upon their individual resources, the scattered remnants of a once powerful people were ready to hear the great doctrine of individuality and there, right in the capital city, Babylon, there arose some of the greatest exponents of individuality in all history, such as Daniel, Shadrach, Meshack and Abednego, Queen Esther, and the Jew Mordecai; all of whom by dint of their own individuality wrote their names high upon the walls of the ancient hall of fame.

Preserved Traditions

"I want to digress, right here, to say that it was doubtless due to the kindness of Nebuchadnezzar and his people that these captive Jews were permitted to keep their literature and their traditions and thus preserve to us and to all the world the wealth of the Old Testament. In the general destruction and desolation of Jerusalem these were preserved to posterity and for this we owe this heathen people a debt of gratitude.

"Resuming our subject let us consider what is meant by individuality. Phrenologists tell us that it is a quality of the brain existing somewhere back of the ears through which and by which a man determines what he shall do and what he shall not do; it is the imperial will of man, sitting in royal judgment upon its throne and directing all the other elements of a wonderful kingdom; it orders the voice to speak, the hands to execute its bidding, the feet to go into forbidden or unforbidden paths; it waves its wand and awakens the daughters of music or it orders up its minions to perform miracles in the field of science; it calls to its aid the great council of human reason and when all the 'whys and wherefores, the ifs and ands' of a given proposition are duly considered it makes its royal decision and decree, for the right or for the wrong. This is individuality—the human will. It may be the soul of man; certain it is that it is the highest, most Godlike attribute of man; some writers think that it was in this respect that man was created in the image of God; that his power to discern and choose between good and evil is the nearest approach to the divine in man; I do not undertake to say as much but I do say that it is the quality most admired of men. All men have a contempt for the time-serving sycophant who is blown about by every wind, having no fixed ideas or purposes of his own, no power of decision, simply a 'figure-head' in the affairs of life, following the leadership of Romans when in Rome and of Greeks in Greece, a religious parasite, a political nondescript, a moral coward afraid of public sentiment, cringing before adverse criticism and simpering in childish glee over crumbs that fall from rich men's tables. You know the kind of creature I am talking about; the man who has no individuality of his own, or who has sinned against it until it has ceased to characterize his actions in any respect.

Individualist Admired

"On the other hand all men admire, though they may disagree with the man of individuality; that fellow over there with the 'underslung jaw' and the wideawake observing eye. He is going to do what he thinks he wants to do, or ought to do, regardless of what the other fellow thinks or says or does and regardless of all consequences to himself. He may be all wrong; he may choose the left hand when he should have taken the right, but he has the distinction of having at least made a choice. He may lead a 'forlorn hope' and get run over in the race of life, but men will sit up and take notice of him anywhere and everywhere, and, when such a man, under the impulse of the divine will chooses to do right 'though the heavens fall' he stamps his individuality upon the age in which he lives and builds to himself a monument more enduring than perennial stone.

"These old prophets were men of such character. Jeremiah could not be quieted by all the powers of Judah; Ezekiel continued the teaching against all odds; Daniel, in captivity, risked his life praying in his windog looking toward Jerusalem. In later days Peter and John defied the Sanhedrim of the Jews when ordered to quit preaching. On down through the ages martyrs have paid with their lives for the privilege of venting their opinions and through ages to come men will continue to look squarely into the face of the world and proclaim what they believe to be right un-trammelled and unafraid; such men we all admire.

"And I think that when such a man, however far he may have wandered into forbidden paths, calls into executive session his immortal powers of reason and decides to turn from his wickedness and his sin and do that which is right in the sight of God there must be joy in heaven, as well as on earth."

COURT OPENS TRIALS TODAY

Anderson Gives Docket for 30th District

Walter Gorman, charged with forgery in connection with the presentation of checks bearing the signature of Prince company, Electra, will be called to trial in the 30th district court Monday morning, George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney, announced Sunday afternoon.

Trials of Eddie Boone and Frank Houston, both negroes, are also set for Monday morning. Boone is accused of taking furniture from an unoccupied home here and Houston is charged with the theft of a wrist watch from the home of Tom Ballard here about two months ago. The watch, which belonged to Mrs. Mary Newsom, 89th district court reporter, has been recovered.

Because of the illness of Earl Kuntz, defense attorney, officials Sunday foresaw the postponement of the trials of Hub Stanley and Hugh Butler, indicted on burglary and theft charges in connection with the loss of $700 from the Silver store here on June 23. The trial of Stanley has been set for Tuesday, but physicians have indicated that Mr. Kuntz will not be able to act in the case by that time.

Professor Peacock To Address Kiwanis Club

Professor Wesley Peacock, head of the Peacock Military institute of San Antonio, and a recognized authority on psychology, will be the principal speaker Monday noon at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel.

A musical program for the meeting has been arranged by Mike Ellis.

WORKS HARD IN THE FIELD

Relies Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rankin, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic before and after my first child was born six years ago. Then when my second child came and I felt weak and rundown, I took it again. I am still taking it and I am feeling better. My mother used it for herself when I was small and always got good results. She still takes it. I do all kinds of heavy work, including my housework and I also help in the field. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and I am willing to answer any letters."—Mrs. [illegible] OBERLAND, Route 2, Rankin, Illinois.

BUSINESS personnels are slated for drastic reorganizations. Several thousand sales managers, traveling men and auditors who refuse to become air-minded, will very soon be seeking new jobs and assuming duties which permit them to remain on terra firma.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who likes evil and enjoys evil doing is evil."

Many live evil lives, not because they want to, but, because they do not have the strength to break away from their environment and no one offers to help them to do so. Before condemning the sinner, ask him this question with kindness: "Are you satisfied with yourself as you are and the way you are living?"

An Indiana boy was chosen as the most entertaining student at Princeton university. We used to think Tom Heflin was the most entertaining member of congress, but during the recent battle about rules, it began to look as if there were 40 odd senators who have Tom backed off the boards.

Secretary Stimson's parrot, "Old Soak," chewed three buttons off the captain's coat on the boat that brought him from the Philippines. That bird ought to have a picnic in Washington with so many admirals around.

"We are the most resourceful people in the world in the matter of making money and among the most ignorant in the matter of spending it."—William Mather, president Lafayette college.

Detroit typifies the American melting pot, a Detroiter writes to the newspaper. And the melting pot, by the way, produces some pretty good brew.

Getting the City Man Out Into the Country

A GOOD MANY weighty articles have been written telling how the automobile has brought the farmer into contact with the city. Good roads and fast machines have ended the traditional isolation of the country districts. The hick is being done to death by Henry Ford and his co-workers. But, on the other hand, the automobile has brought the city dweller into contact with the open country. And that, considering the cramping tumult of the average city, is quite an achievement.

In rural regions, a few years ago, the city boy was looked upon with a sort of contempt. He was astoundingly ignorant; he couldn't tell a horse from a sheep, and he thought the docile cow in the barnyard was apt to bite him.

Today the city-bred youngster is different. He has been places and seen things. His father's auto has carried him into the country time and again; and if he knows nothing about farm life, he at least can recognize the livestock he sees in the meadows, and he knows a field of green corn from a white expanse of blossoming buckwheat.

Now all of this is rather important. For if the automobile gets the city youngster out into the open country, it also gets his father and mother out there; and this is all to the good.

The city, when you stop to think about it, is a poor sort of place anyhow.

Winter submerges it in dirty snow, dangerous ice and dismal slush. Then spring comes and tantalizes the city folk with faint hints of an awakening life in which they cannot share; and summer, loafing indolently over the land, only makes the city a place of steaming canyons and hot pavements, where even the faintest breeze, laden with fumes of gasoline and coal smoke, is a gift from heaven.

So, on evenings, and on week-ends, the roads from the city to the country are filled with autos, bearing people out of the city into the country.

What do they get out of these brief pilgrimages? Nothing much—and everything. They get a glimpse at their earth as it is meant to be, and not as man has defaced it. They get a chance to see how a rolling green field, a purple hill or a stretch of woodland can put to shame the finest skyscraper, the most glittering of city avenues. If they can listen, they get a priceless encouragement for their daily routine.

The earth is a living miracle, and those who inherit it must, after all, be destined for some sort of ultimate glory. And that is the sort of thing one forgets in the city.

The Coast Guard's Real Job

DUE TO THE WAY the war on liquor smugglers has been getting into the papers lately, most of us probably have come to look on the coast guard solely as an organization designed to prevent violation of our customs laws. The rescue of 240 passengers from the liner Prince George, off Boston, serves to remind us that the coast guard's primary function is to save lives at sea.

The cutter Mohave, which brought the liner's passengers to safety, has a rather distinguished record along that line. Last winter it brought to port two freight steamers, crippled by gales, that would have been lost without its help.

Jobs like that are the coast guard's regular routine. It is an extremely useful organization, with a gallant record. Let's not let its more spectacular activities against rum row make us forget that.

The State and Public Parks

GOVERNOR FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT of New York recently made a trip on the state barge canal in a private yacht, and marveled at the opportunity which the wide, empty fields and woodlands bordering the canal gave for the state to set up new parks for the recreation of its citizens.

As soon as it could be done, he promised, he would endeavor to have such parks established, so that fresh air, sunlight and room for recreation could be made available to upstate citizens of New York.

Action of that sort is the mark of an intelligent executive. No state can spend money to better advantage than by establishing parks for its citizens. In added health and contentment they pay for themselves many times over.

Quotations Worth Noting

TOONERVILLE FOLKS By Fontaine Fox

The GREEN SHADOW - By Herman Landon
(Copyright by Public Ledger)

Police Captain Summers is meditating on the escapades of the Picaroon, whom he is convinced is really his friend, Martin Dale. Mr. Alexander Ferryman calls to relate a tale of strange happenings at 262 Bank street and requests police investigation. Axelson, a watchman employed by Ferryman, has heard footsteps and seen an eerie green light. Ferryman is showing the captain a picture when the telephone rings. A voice tells of finding a woman's body at the above address—the dead woman is Ferryman's wife. Summers finds only one clue, a bit of green lens.

Meantime, the Picaroon has written a note to Adele Castle requesting a meeting in Central Park. Adele has had a terrifying experience. Taken by a mysterious Miss Conway to a strange light through which she could glimpse only the faint outline of a man, calling himself Dr. Moffett, she is told that her father has been connected with a crooked financial deal. Dr. Moffett demands $100,000 for his silence and certain papers.

Adele and Dale meet. He tells her he was present during her strange interview with Dr. Moffett and promises to help her. Dale also meets Adele's friend, Paul Ainsworth. They become suspicious of one another. Dale "on his own" enters the house where the murder occurred and is trapped within by Summers, Ferryman and Axelson, who discover Dale taking a rope of pearls from behind a sliding panel. Dale darkens the room, throws Axelson through a window, and in the resultant confusion escapes.

Summers at luncheon next day receives a note and package from the Picaroon. In the package he finds the missing pearls.

Meantime, Dr. Moffett is getting anxious and telephones, giving Miss Castle just 24 hours in which to make payment to save her father from disgrace and prosecution.

Dale draws cash from his bank and makes an appointment with Adele. He then visits the Ferryman home, agreeing to capture the murderer within a week.

Adele Castle is instructed by Dale how to handle Dr. Moffett when he telephones. Wambley, a servant, is revealed as a spy.

All is set for the Mummers Frolic, where Adele is to make a $50,000 payment to Dr. Moffett's agent. Dale is also present, disguised as the Picaroon.

Miss Castle reviews certain papers presented to her by Dr. Moffett's agent on a balcony just off the ballroom. A streak of fire shot into the sky brings the exchange of papers for $80,000 to a climax. Temporarily, at least, the deal is off.

The Vanishing Candle

Joan's hand fumbled along the wall. An opening appeared. Adele hesitated a moment. All she could see was a dark place.

"Get in!" Joan ordered. "Caesar will keep you company.

A surly snarl and a nip at her ankle drove Adele forward. Darkness rolled in over her from all sides. She felt a furry, loathsome form rubbing against her legs.

Joan laughed spitefully. "There, smarty! Now your friends can search for you all they like."

Adele shivered. She heard the sound of a door closing, and then all was still.

The period of waiting, with Caesar's eyes glinting menacingly in the darkness, grew to be a torture. Whenever she moved, a light patter of paws reminded her of the brute's vigilance. She had tried friendly overtures at first, but the dog had spurned them with growls and nips at her heels, and in the end she gave up the attempt to win him over.

Now, her nerves demanding action of some sort, she groped along the wall, Caesar pursuing her with muffled snarls and an occasional tug at her skirt. She thought there must be a door somewhere on this side, but her fumbling hand found only an unbroken expanse of wall.

Suddenly she stopped. She pressed her ear against the surface. Caesar emitted a low growl and pressed closer to her. Her heart gave a little bound. She strained her nerves to catch the faint sounds which told her the search was drawing close. Little by little they grew more audible. There were movements on the stairs outside. She could hear voices. People were passing down the hall.

Her heart beat tumultuously with hope and anxiety. Would they find her? As if her tension had been communicated to Caesar, he stopped his intermittent growls and pressed still closer. She stood in an agony of suspense. Her hopes began to totter. The footsteps and voices were moving away.

A shout trembled on her lips, but in an instant, before she could make an audible sound, the beast was upon her, his paws clawing at her breast and his jaws worrying at her throat. The shout died in a feeble groan of horror.

Her hopes ebbed quickly with the dwindling footfalls. She could hear no sounds now. The silence told her with stinging emphasis that the chance of rescue was gone. No one would find her now. She tried bravely, but it was hard to shake off a sense of chill despondency, and Caesar's nearness kept her in a constant state of dread.

As she stood leaning dejectedly against the wall a sharp quiver ran through her. She stared into the darkness toward the opposite wall. She stood rigid, scarcely breathing. A startled movement on Caesar's part told her that he also had heard something. The slight sound was followed by an interval of nerve-tearing stillness. Hot and cold pulsations shot through her body. Then a little jar came, a squeak like that of an unoiled hinge, and then there appeared to be a pause, a period of uneasy waiting. A whisper floated out of the stillness:

"Caesar!"

A rasping breath on the silence, and then Caesar appeared to be all attention. Again a muffled voice trailed through the darkness.

"Good boy, Caesar! Come here!"

A scraping of paws, a short, low, friendly bark signified that the dog recognized the voice.

"Come here, old fellow!"

She listened in acute bewilderment. A fresh hope had sprung up within her when she first heard the furtive sound at the other side of the room. Now, as she heard Caesar bounding lightly toward the speaker, the hope began to waver. The voice continued to address the dog in an undertone, and Caesar responded with a series of low, friendly growls. Consequently the newcomer must be either a member of the household or a frequent visitor. Otherwise Caesar would not have responded so readily. In either case she feared the person at the other side of the room had not come with friendly intentions.

Again she started sharply. She heard her name spoken in a hushed voice. Astonishment and a conflict of hope and dread filled her anew. If the newcomer were a member of the household or a friend of Dr. Moffett, why did he approach her with such stealth, as if he did not wish his actions to be known to the others in the house?

"Where are you?" came his whisper out of the darkness.

"Here," she whispered back, acting on an instant's decision. She could not make her predicament worse by heeding the voice of the unknown and there was a possibility, despite Caesar's quick response to his call, that he had come as a friend.

She heard cautious footsteps coming in her direction, and she moved forward quietly. A fumbling hand found her arm.

"Sh!" a voice whispered as the contact made her start and slip a little. "Not a sound! This way."

She was being led forward. She heard a low whine and a patter of paws.

"It's all right, Caesar, old fellow," the man at her side whispered.

They were moving quickly, silently across the floor, in the opposite direction from the point where she thought she had entered the room. A queer sensation hammered at her brain. That voice? It had spoken only in whispers, yet there was something familiar about it. But it couldn't be. Not here—

"Careful," her guide whispered.

A small creaking sound came, and they squeezed through a narrow opening. Now the man left her side and walked ahead of her. They appeared to be in a hall so narrow that she could feel the wall at either side. Caesar was following behind her. Somehow she felt the dog was not entirely at ease, but the impression was quickly dispelled by other things. She was in a state of trembling uncertainty, hopes clashing with fears.

Suddenly the man stopped and gripped her arm. The touch telegraphed a sense of danger to her brain. A quiver of uneasy premonition ran through her. Her guide was holding his breath. His clutch on her arm tightened.

Then, as she stood trembling with a tension that seemed to have communicated itself even to the dog, a commotion broke sharply on the stillness. The sounds of running feet came from the front and from behind. A mutter of chagrin fell from her guide's lips. Caesar growled loudly.

Then a light flashed sharply in her eyes, momentarily blinding her. She was pushed roughly aside. Shouts dinned in her ears. Through the hubbub cut Caesar's thunderous barks. Another violent push sent her reeling to the floor. A thud sounded sickeningly in her ears. For a few moments her senses swam in billowing confusion and then a light shone in her eyes. Someone reached out a hand to assist her to her feet.

"The excitement is over," said Axelson in a tone of grim satisfaction.

She rose dazedly. On the floor, just beyond the range of Axelson's flashlight, she saw a dark, motionless form. The face was turned downward, one arm flung wide. The others—she felt certain from the violence of the brief commotion that there had been others—were gone. She shuddered as her trembling gaze fixed on the still figure sprawled out on the floor.

Axelson pushed her forward. "Step lively, miss. You're pretty cute, but you've only made more trouble for yourself."

She cast a glance over her shoulder. "Who is that?" she could not resist asking.

Axelson chuckled maliciously. "No need of telling you. You know. You're a smooth pair, you two. He had us fooled for a while, but not for very long. Careful, miss. These steps are a bit steep."

They were descending a stairway. Adele's mind was full of parring perplexities.

"Who are you talking about?" she asked, wondering if it were even remotely possible that she had correctly identified the voice she had heard in the dark.

"Aw, you know. You had it all framed up between you. I'll say you're smart, you two. But he didn't get very far, and neither did the cops."

"The cops?" she echoed as they started down another flight of stairs.

"As if you didn't know! The Stamford cops, of course. How you got word to them is more than I can figure out. Anyhow, we fooled them."

She listened with a sinking heart. The searchers who had passed so close to her must have been the police of Stamford, then. Some one must have communicated with them. But the other one; the one whose whisper had startled her after the searchers had passed? The sight of a black, still form haunted her imagination.

Axelson opened a door and stood aside to let her enter. She walked into a large room illuminated by a candle on a table in the center.

"Sit down and make yourself comfortable," the old man suggested sneeringly. "Dr. Moffett will be here directly."

With that he closed the door. Dr. Moffett! Her heart skipped a beat as she heard the name again, but she tried to collect her wits for the forth-coming ordeal. The room was sparsely fitted up with old pieces of furniture. The candle's pale sheen fell on a dreary scene that seemed to have been set for some depressing ritual.

Reluctantly she sat down in an old chair with an antimacassar spread over the back. As if to fix her mind on the least depressing object in the room, she gazed at the tall candle in it's holder of tarnished brass. It was a green candle. She stared at it as if it were a thing of weird symbolism. Another scene, with a voice speaking out of a green light, filled her with a morbid fascination. And then the candle flame began to flutter. She became aware that a door had opened somewhere, that a current of air was sweeping lazily through the musty atmosphere. She gazed into the far corners of the room, but it was dim and shadowy back there. And now a strange sensation was stealing over her. The atmosphere seemed to change. The dim corners of the room were brightening.

She sprang up with a little gasp. A green illumination, rich and soft as velvet, was falling over the room, transfiguring the decrepit furnishings, touching the faded draperies with a caressing and rejuvenating film of verdant color. Her pulses were racing; she felt a tightness at the throat. Footsteps were coming toward her, but she strained her eyes in vain. She could see no human form.

And then she stared in stupefaction at the candle flame. Everything about her was strange, but what she now saw was stranger than all the rest. She clasped her hands to her cheeks. She shuddered with a sense of the inexplicable. The flame was still there, although now it seemed to burn less brightly than a few moments ago. She could plainly see the tarnished brass candlestick, streaked with tallow at the sides. But the candle itself was gone!

She swallowed, opened her eyes wide. Was she going mad? No, the thing was actually as she saw it. There was the flame, a luminous wraith in the air, glowing in empty space. And six or eight inches lower down was the tarnished brass holder, but nothing — absolutely nothing—between the holder and the flame.

A small, hoarse cry, an expression of sheer uncanniness, sprang from her lips.

In the back of the room, bathed in a green sheen, a voice sounded:

"Blow it out: We shan't need it at all, and it seems only to distress you very much."

She continued to stare at the wraithy flame. A flame without a candle! It seemed even stranger than the footsteps which were approaching her without the accompaniment of a human form. As if to smother something gruesome, she blew it out. The spectral flame vanished. Only the tarnished candlestick showed now. And then, little by little, the candle appeared to return. There was a thin, elongated shadow, a blurred shape of green all but submerged in a brighter and richer green.

From sheer exhaustion she sank back into the chair. Her pupils were beginning to respond to the strange illumination. She could see the candle quite plainly now, but its outlines were still befogged by the surrounding emerald radiance.

A chair creaked. As on the former occasion Dr. Moffett had sat down about half a dozen feet from her. She felt he was looking at her, but she could see no face, only a greenish smudge that blended elusively into the verdant light.

"Queer about that candle, wasn't it?" he murmured. He spoke in the same deep, pleasant voice she had heard the other time, but again she perceived a slight twang which told her that he did not wish her to recognize his voice. "Yes, very strange. Yet it only seemed strange. It was perfectly natural. The same thing happens when you drop a ruby into a glass of red wine."

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, July 14—A young friend of mine has recently established himself as a construction engineer with a large firm—and, like all college men starting out in life, he is working from the bottom up. They have put him to work making excavations; or rather, super-intending them. He is very proud of his work and his authority and enjoys nothing more on his Saturday afternoon off than taking his wife about town, showing her the progress of the various holes. They are, it appears, works of art, and the wife admires them rapturously. Every Saturday she gets a lesson in basement-building, and is now amazingly familiar with the technical terms of the profession. A steam shovel is not merely a steam shovel to her. Its name depends upon the character of the scoop that does the digging.

Squelched

My wife had never been to Chinatown until the other day, when she insisted that I take her there for dinner. It would be thrilling, she thought. It would not, thought I—and I was right. But we took the elevated down to Chatham square, and had dinner at the Port Arthur. Then we went back to more familiar haunts. At Times square a Chinatown bus was parked at the curb, and the barker was slooking for customers. "Take you to Chinatown," he said to us, "for $1." My wife smiled sweetly. "No thanks," she said, "We've just come from there for a nickel."

Synthetic Sniffs

It was late Saturday afternoon when I walked past one of the big department stores. The store had long been closed, and, for New York, the passersby were few. Out from the side of the building stepped a roughly dressed fellow with a truck driver's license pinned in his cap. A driver of one of the delivery trucks," I thought. "Say Jack," he said (it used to be Mac to strangers), "I need some dough. I've got twenty-four bottles of Black Narcissus that I'll let you have for $50." For a minute I thought he was trying to sell me some liquor, and then I remembered that Black Narcissus is a perfume. "I couldn't use it," said I. "Well," he pursued, "how would you like to take home a bottle? I'll let you have it for $2." And he showed me a beautifully wrapped and sealed bottle, with a price of $7.50 marked on it. But I didn't want it. Later I learned that selling bootleg perfume is becoming as profitable a game as selling bootleg liquor, and much less dangerous. The scent is ten-cent store stuff, and the bottles and labels are careful counterfeits of the real thing. As in all similar dackets the rat of selling depends upon a furtive air persuading the customer that he is buying stolen goods.

Concerning Sherriff

The story is old, but it still deserves being made public. R. C. Sherriff, the young London insurance adjuster who wrote the season's second most successful play, "Journey's End"—"Street Scene" being the biggest hit—was at a cocktail party given one midnight in his honor here in New York. Dramatic critics and dramatic editors were plying him with questions concerning himself and his play, wherein two officers who are about to go on a raiding party while away the horrible moments by reading and quoting "Alice in Wonderland." Sherriff was asked whether he had had anw misgivings about the reception his drama would get from American audiences. He confessed that he had feared we would not understand the allusions to "Alice." It seems that we are still barbarians to the British. Sherriff, back in England now, has given up his insurance job. Sherriff, back in England.

He intends to complete his education and become a teacher, but meanwhile he is, according to reports, writing a play about the Scott expedition to the South pole.

Things Worth Forgetting

Enterprising jewelers are selling eyeglasses set in platinum frames studded with diamonds and sapphires, at $300 the frame. . . . As soon as chorus girls begin rehearsals for a new musical comedy, they must brush their teeth five times a day . . . One of the automatic cigarette vending machines in town bellows "Please use good money" if a lead quarter is dropped in the slot . . . One of the best known theatrical producers can't read, and a famous comedian signs all his $1,000 and $2,000 a week contracts with an X . . . Jane Cowl starts all her new plays in Boston, because it brings good luck, and Doris Keane has to go all the way to Los Angeles for the same reason.

Stage Triumphs

For a period of several weeks, there was not a single legitimate show on Broadway, and that astonishing state of affairs was duly noted all over the country. Talking motion pictures had occupied every Broadway playhouse. But, as I informed you, some of the pictures did not do as well as had been expected, with the result that the film companies were stuck for huge rentals on darkened houses. Justice has been done in one case. One of the most popular of the Broadway temples o fthe stage had been occupied by a musical comedy that did excellent business. Along came a film company and offered more rent. The musical comedy was forced to move, and died from lack of business in its new location. But the film that replaced it died, too. The one of these cheap summer plays, badly written and standing little chance of success, started its career 'way down a side street. It, too, was dying, for it needed a good location. The management was struck with a bright idea. Why not rent the Broadway house? No sooner said than done. The film company was desperate, and any income was better than nons at all.

Radios and Cows

Dairy cows like radio programs. There is nothing better than a good rousing ginger ale, baking soda, automobile, canned soup or salad oil hour to make them contented. Western dairymen have been experimenting with radios in the cowsheds and they report that the bovines seem happy, calm and more efficient sprayed with tenor solos, jaz melodies, bedtime stories, etcetera.

The cows no longer have to be driven home by a shepherd dog. They come in when they hear "heigh-ho everybody, heigh-ho!" "You wouldn't fool me, would you?" or "button up your overcoat."

If the milk doesn't taste right these days, don't blame the cow; it may be static.

Extensive tests are now being conducted from coast to coast by nearly every farmer with one or more cows. "Tune in on your favorite station and get more milk" is becoming a broadcasting slogan. "You're the cream in my coffee" has produced the best results to date, according to returns from 26 states, with 187 cowbarns missing.

There is only one number the dairy farmers won't allow played to the cows under circumstances. That's "hold everything."

Elmer Twitchell is among those experimenting. He is always trying new stunts with his radio set, and when he read about this he immediately went out and bought himself a cow. He says the radio has worked wonders with her. "The cow," says Elmer, "has taste. She likes classical stuff. I got three quarts more milk than her schedule calls for the other evening by tuning in on the Goldman band playing Rachmanioff's prelude. She likes Chopin and Mozart, too.

"Toscanini is one of her favorites and she will come galloping out of a brook any time to hear something by Tschaikowsky. The only time I ever knew her to rebel at any radio number was night before last, when a quartet sang "The Old Oaken Bucket.' She's a good cow and gives honest milk."

Mr. Twitchell is thinking of swapping the cow for a bull. He wants to determine how it will react to the Toreador song.

Health and Diet Advice

The Best Time for Fasts

Bountiful summer time brings us a profusion of the most healthful and tasty foods. This is the time when nature produces the greatest quantity of the cleansing fresh juicy fruits and the succulent vegetables. Now is the time when people who have ill health should make up their minds to become well.

Many people object to the wintertime for fasting and dieting because they complain of feeling chilly, but this excuse does not exist during warm weather. When surrounded by warmth, the body is more capable of eliminating catarrhal troubles and rheumatic toxins.

The profusion of bulky vegetables makes the summertime an excellent season for overcoming constipation. In other words, summertime is the perfect purifying season to those who wish to take advantage of its opportunities.

This is an ideal time to start the out-of-door habit. When a beautiful summer day comes along, you feel that it is a shame to waste it indoors. Take advantage of this feeling and go out into the sunshine and fragrant summer air. At this period the flowers, the songbirds, the freshness of nature, and and wide spaces are waiting to be enjoyed. There is no excuse now for keeping your windows down. Open them up and let the fresh, health-giving air circulate throughout the house.

Summertime is vacation time. Everyone should undergo a complete change of environment, at least once each year. Changing our old habits and developing new interests will prevent physical and mental stagnation. Nothing tends to prolong youth more than a good circulation of blood and ideas.

Give your body a chance to profit by the cleansing harmonies of nature. You can now avoid those heavy, dulling foods, and make use of the lighter, succulent, energizing, living summer food crops. The heat gives us a natural inclination toward the juicy fruits, the melons and the fresh crisp salads. Don't make the mistake of substituting the heavy sugared soda soft beverages for the fresh, pure fruit juices.

The body cleanses itself through perspiration. Help it out by drinking plenty of water and taking frequent showers or swims. You need practically none of the heating foods.

Those who are trying to reduce will find that they can live on nothing but fruits and vegetables until they have reduced to normal. Nature tempts us to make this a season of rejuvenation. Why not resolve to profit by the healthful aid of the summertime.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Gout

Question—T. G. H. asks: "How is it so many of my friends have gout? I thought it was caused by drinking alcoholic beverages, but since prohibition that cause should be almost entirely removed."

Answer—If you take prohibition statistics seriously, you would also enjoy reading "Jack The Giant Killer." Gout is one form of rheumatism and is caused by their rheumatic toxemia which comes from over-eating, overdrinking, using wrong kinds of food, and in improper combinations.

Kidney Trouble

Question—G. C. writes: "I have a case of kidney trouble. Have been on a diet of just milk and one orange a day. Everything has cleared up in the urine but the albumin, which is three plus. I have no more casts or acids, but still the albumin doesn't go down.

Answer—You do not say how long you have been on the milk diet, but as this is an excellent treatment for albuminorrhea, I would advise you to continue on such a diet until you show still more improvement. If the albumin does not disappear enough it would be a good plan for you to take an orange juice fast for a few days, then go back on the milk.

Home Canning

Question—Housekeeper writes: "We have a garden growing practically all of the non-starchy vegetables you recommend, and there will be a surplus for canning for winter use. What method of canning do you advise?"

Answer—The best method of canning is the cold pack. After proper preparation, the food is packed in the containers and cooked in boiling water to insure sterilization, after which the cans are tightly sealed. This process conserves the valuable mineral salts that otherwise are thrown away when the vegetables are first cooked and then placed in the cans.

From High to Low Heels

Question—K. J. writes: "When changing from high-heeled slippers into low-heeled ones I seem to have a cramp in my foot, and just before I get into the low-heeled slippers my foot seems to snap like when you try 'finger-breaking.' Can you tell me what this is, and what to do about it?"

Answer—The change from high-heeled slippers to low-heeled ones must be made gradually. The unnatural position of the foot in a high-heeled shoe changes the positions of the bones of the foot, and it takes some time before they will return to their normal shape after such a shoe has been continually worn. The "cracking" is due to the bones or ligaments slipping into position.

College Recieves Gift of Books

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, July 14.—The Children's library, which includes the high school and grade school library at the West Texas State Teachers' college and which is located in the education building, has recently received a gift of 50 English books through the generosity of Professor L. A. Osgood, head of the English department of the college. The books touch upon all the various fields of English, from grammar to junior high literature, and from the classics of Shakespeare to the modern "Today and the Future Day" by Arthur Brisbane.

Miss Mary Morgan Brown, of the public speaking department, has also donated several books to the library, as has Miss Jennie C. Ritchie, dean of the high school.

A check on the number of books used in the college library during the month of June shows that 16,264 books were checked out. The daily average use of library books in the college library alone has been approximately 1,000. The number of people coming into the library has also been noted, and the most crowded day netted 813.

GLAZNER EFFECTIVE AND STEERS EVEN SERIES WITH 6-3 WIN

STEEN ROUTED BY CHAMPIONS

Bischoff Clouts Homer and Rosenthal Three Doubles

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Whitey Glazner, who was rendered hors de combat in the opener of last Tuesday's double header here when he was struck by a batted ball early in that pastime, went back to the hill yesterday and pitched the Steers to victory. Thanks to hard clubbing by his comrades and his own excellent pitching, Whitey scored a 6 to 3 decision and evened the series at one-all.

Dallas drove Milt Steengrafe off the hill in the fifth inning after a savage attack of nine blows, which included a home run by Bischoff and several two-base knocks. Lester White, making his first Spudder start since recalled last week from Abilene, replaced Steengrafe and chucked an excellent brand of ball, halting the hostiles in the fifth and giving up only one run and four hits, two of which were scratches, the rest of the way.

Mavs Hammer 12 Hits

The Mavericks pounded 12 hits, eight off Steengrafe. Eight of the Steer blows went for extra bases, with Si Rosenthal hammering three two-base smacks and Johnson, Jefferies and the two Moores, Randy and Jim, bashing a double apiece in addition to Bischoff's circuit drive which was landed with a runner on the lines.

Save for the fourth round when the Spudders bunched four hits for all their runs Glazner was in fine fettle, limiting the hard-hitting Wichita Falls clubbers to seven hits. In five innings Whitey turned back the Spudders in order.

Fitzgerald and Stapleton led the Spudder offense with two hits each, one of Bud's going for two bases. Hermann's double was the only other Wichita Falls extra-base knock.

Fast Fielding in Contest

Both clubs flashed some speedy fielding and an outfielder at third and a catcher at first did not handicap the Steers in their defensive work. Indeed, Randy Moore came up with a pair of sparkling plays at the hot corner.

The feature of the day was a catch by Johnson after crashing into the fence that saved a hit and probably averted a run or two. Jefferies, Bennett and the Spudder infield also sparkled afield with Stapleton again performing amazing contortionist and acrobatic stunts at first base.

Spuds Field Fast

Fast fielding helped Steengrafe turn back the hostiles scoreless in the first inning. Bennett went into foul territory for Morse's lift and Stapleton dug Benton's toss on Rosenthal's grounder out of the dirt. R. Moore singled over Turgeon. Hermann made a speedy snatch of Bischoff's roller to his left and forced Moore at second.

Glazner retired the Spudders in order, aided by R. Moore's fast play on Turgeon's tap.

The Steers tallied after two were out in the second. Johnson doubled to center and scored when Benton threw over Stapleton on Mealey's grounder.

Hermann doubled down the left field foul line, the first Spudder to get on base, but two were out and he was left on the lines.

Mavs Score Two More

Dallas scored two more in the third. Rosenthal doubled to center and R. Moore walked with one out. Lapan snapped a throw to Hermann that caught Rosenthal stealing. Bischoff hit over the left field wall, scoring R. Moore ahead of him.

Glazner again turned back the home nine one-two-three.

Jeffries started the fourth with a slashing two base smash to left but Kane called out Johnson on a close decision on a grounder to Benton; Sullivan took Mealey's hoist and Benton threw out Glazner.

The Spudder scored three in their fourth to tie the count at 3-all. Turgeon, Fitzgerald and Bennett clouted consecutive singles to fill the bases. Johnson made a magnificent catch of Sullivan's drive against the left-center fence, Turgeon scoring, and Fitzgerald tallied and Bennett went to third on Jeffries' wild peg to first. Hermann fouled to R. Moore. Stapleton's hit to deep second scored Bennett.

Herd Tallies in Fifth

The Mavericks tallied two in the fifth and drove Steengrafe off the hill. Rosenthal hit to center for two bases, his second double, after one was out. R. Moore doubled to center, scoring Rosenthal. Bennett was under Bischoff's fly. Jim Moore hit to left for two bases, sending R. Moore home. White went to the mound and Jeffries lifted to Sullivan.

J. Moore came in fast for Turgeon's hoist for the third out in the Spudder half.

Johnson beat out an infield hit to open the sixth but White bore down and retired the next three stickers.

Fitzgerald hit to center but Bennett hit into a double play on another close decision at first base that favored the Herd.

Dallas Gets One More

Dallas filled the bases and squeezed in a run in the seventh. Rosenthal whacked his third double to center. R. Moore strolled. White threw out Rosenthal at third on Bischoff's bunt. J. Moore was safe on a tap to White, filling the bases. Jeffries singled to short right, scoring R. Moore. Benton threw out Bischoff at the plate on Johnson's grounder and Lapan took Mealey's pop.

Stapleton doubled to right but he got no farther.

White set down the Bovines in order in the eighth.

Randy Moore's fast play on Turgeon's harsh bounder helped Glazner turn back the Spudders one-two-three for the fourth time.

Jim Moore walked in the ninth but two were out and Lapan caught him trying to pilfer second.

The Spudders again failed to get on base.

BOONE-KEMP IN CITY LOOP WIN

Autoists Victors Over Dimock Plumbers, 7-3

Timely hitting and good fielding allowed the Boone-Kemp team to wallop the Dimock Plumbers yesterday afternoon at Katy park to the tune of 7 to 3. The car company athletes gathered 13 hits off Geyer and with the help of four Dimock errors scored enough tallies in the first few innings to cinch the victory. The Plumbers slugged out 11 hits but three double plays by their opponents and loose baserunning kept the sacks unoccupied.

Meyers led the attack for the losers with a double and two singles in four times at bat. Belcher also hit the apple with a triple and single in four times at bat. Crowley was the big noise for the Boone-Kemp aggregation with three singles in an even half dozen times at bat.

Both teams displayed excellent fielding with Allison and Ayers shining for the Boone-Kemp, and the pipefitters, respectively.

The victory threw the Boone-Kemp nine into a tie with the Producers Creamery team for the league leadership. Score:

Last Home Game Today

Righthanders probably will work the final and rubber game of the series today. Skipper Milt Stock of the Mavs last night indicated that Sarge George Connally, the former Chicago White Sox, will be his pitching selection. Bill Goff or Skinny O'Neal probably will be named by Foreman Jim Galloway.

Today's contest will be the last played here for 12 days.

The Vardon Swing

"Any further proof that might be needed about the greatness of Harry Vardon's swing was shown on our recent trip to Great Britain," Tommy Armour remarked.

"Vardon is now about 60 years old. Yet he could still hit a wooden club or an iron shot better and straighter than any professional from this country or any English or Scotch pro. Naturally he hasn't got the distance now. He gets tired more quickly, and his putting is worse than ever. But as an artist using wood and iron, I still think he is in a class by himself, better than any of us, or all of us. He never had much ability at getting the ball into the cup, for his chip shots were only fair and his putting was poor. But when it came to a matter of sheer art—a matter of hitting almost every drive and almost every iron shot straight for the pin—day after day and week after week—there was no one like him. And there is no one today as accurate, as steadily on the straight line. He could hit the ball the same way, and that happened to be the right way, oftener than any golfer I have ever seen." All of which brought back the Vardon of 1920 at Inverness. He was then around 50. And yet I recall one march where he played 28 consecutive holes in par. He had no birdies and he had no hole over par. Just 28 pars without a slip, until he finally took three putts on a short hole when his iron was only a short distance from the cup.

There was little of the emotional about Vardon. He had a great swing that was marvelously groomed and he was never inclined to any great tension. If he had been as fine a putter as Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen he might have won 10 or a dozen championships. He was good enough at 50 to have the U. S. open sewed up by several strokes, until a heavy windstorm caught him tiring, with just six holes to play, where he began to take three putts on almost every green. Even then he could lay one on the line, shot after shot, with remarkable skill.

Another Firpo—Or What?

"Here's another Firpo," he said. "Only he is bigger, faster and better than Firpo. Or rather, he will be, with a little more experience." The name was Vittorio Campolo, who is something up around six feet six or seven inches in height with 240 pounds to carry. When you figure weight, speed and displacement in general, Campolo is the most formidable of all the fighters in a physical way. He is not only big, but he is fast and strong and he can also hit. How much he can fight may be proved when he meets De Kuh at Ebbets field this week. De Kuh isn't the greatest heavyweight in the world, but he is fair enough, and Jack Sharkey couldn't bowl him over in 10 rounds. Also, De Kuh can hit.

According to one or two South Americans who seem to know what they are talking about, Campolo's ring reflexes are not the quickest in the world. But for that matter a number of people took Firpo for a 220-pound joke until he belted Dempsey out of the ring.

A fellow who is six feet, six or seven, who is fast, who knows something about boxing and hitting, ought to be pretty good if he can take a trifle, and if there is any coordination in his system. These well-over 200-pounders are hard to coordinate. There is too much ground to cover. A Babe Ruth doesn't happen along every year or so. Or every 50 years or so.

There have been 220-pound ball players who could hit, but not so many who could field and run bases and act after the manner of the gazelle.

Campolo comes at a time when the situation is ripe for a killing. If he is "another Firpo" he can take more than a million back home in a little while.

A Heavyweight Echo

There is a chance that some new angle may be added to the heavyweight situation before the week is over.

Campolo could stir up new interest by knocking out De Kuh. Either Loughran or Braddock might become a heavyweight possibility by putting on the right show—an aggressive, winning fight. Loughran might be able to outpoint any heavyweight now, but Braddock is a younger fighter and a harder puncher, and, therefore, a better future attraction in the heavyweight market if he has the stuff.

If these two fights are poor shows, then even the winners will be counted out of the running. Much depends on how much class the winner can show while winning.

Hale Is Victor In Wichita Golf

[illegible]ck Beats Pond, 3 and 2 In Championship Flight

Jack Hale defeated R. K. Pond, 3 and 2 in the championship flight of the all-city golf tournament being played at Weeks Park Golf club under the direction of Phil Hesler, professional at that course.

F. K. Craig eliminated Ed Fizer, 1 up on the 19th green in class D in the feature match of the week.

E. P. Bass disposed of W. P. Kennedy, 6 and 5 and Jim Haines defaulted to J. D. Bright in class B; C. F. O'Hara beat R. W. Seyler, 3 and 2, and Frank Parsons defeated H. S. Davis, up in class C; O. Calhoun was victor over J. C. Harris, 4 and 3.

Germany Is Victor In Davis Cup Tennis

BERLIN, July 14. (AP)—Germany conquered England, three matches to two, in the final round of European zone play for the Davis cup, completed today.

Germany thus gained the right to meet the United States, American zone winners, in the interzone finals at Paris July 19-20-21.

Prank Causes City's Water Supply to Falter

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., July 14.—Complaint was made to the city commissioners this week by Troy Huffington, city water superintendent, that some person, or persons, had made two attempts in the past month to impair the city's water system. Mr. Huffington, who has complete charge of the pumping machinery, has automatic appliances on all machinery at the plant which allows him a few hours daily away from the plant. During his absence a stick was placed under a pump float, thereby causing the pump to lose its prime and consequently fail in its duty to furnish the town with water. No damage was done, however, as the trouble was found shortly after the pump began to falter.

CRAZY ABOUT HER

STORRINGTON, England—Through an article in a London paper in which she extolled the wonders of simple life at her colony, the Sanctuary, Vera Pragnell one of the most sought-after young ladies in England. Some 80 males, seeking wonders of simple life, have proposed marriage to her. But they're doomed to disappointment, for she is married to Edward Denis-Earle, a wealthy young heir.

HAS NO SEX APPEAL

ST. LOUIS—When Paul Whiteman, king of jazz, stopped off home here on a tour west recently, he gave a reason for his success in the music world. "I have no sex appeal," he said. "I am not a fad, and what I have to offer is not a fragile vogue of the moment. In short, I am just a good band manager, although some folks call me lucky."

Lamesa Fair Board Named

Evans Slated to Be Manager Again

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, July 14.—The Dawson County Fair association was organized recently when business men and farmers met in the county court room to the call of O. B. Norman, chairman of the agricultural department of the local chamber of commerce.

Norman served as chairman of the meeting and the following men were elected to serve as executives board for the fair this fall: W. B. Collins, W. W. Evans, O. B. Norman, W. K. Crawley, Doc Mathews, J. M. Peterson, and C. M. Burton. This body was instructed to convene within the next week. W. W. Evans, county agent, will likely be selected by the executive board as manager of the fair again this year, having managed a very successful county fair last year here. In addition to the executive board 30 men have been named representing the 30 rural communities in the county as a general advisory board whose duty it will be to urge all communities to exhibit at the fair this fall.

Each man on the general committee will serve as "contact" man for the executive board and the county agent, Miss Genevie Chipman, home demonstration agent will have charge of all girls' and women's exhibits.

Canyon Students To Visit Pike's Peak

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, July 14.—Besides the usual week-end trip to Carlsbad cavern which has been the rule at the West Texas state teachers' college since the opening of summer school, a group will make a trip to Pike's Peak and the Royal gorge, July 14-16. They are Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Golden, Miss Robbie Anderson, Miss Dora Holt, and Mrs. Viva Humphreys.

Recreational tours to the Palo Duron canyons, Colorado, and New Mexico are lending additional interest to summer school at the teachers college. A trip to the famous JA ranch is being planned for the week-end of July 21-22.

Bell Captures New York Title

Texan Defeats Shields In Empire State Tennis

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 14. (AP)—Berkeley Bell of Texas, today won the New York state singles tennis championship by defeating Frank Shields of New York, tenth ranking player in the United States, in the final round of the state tournament, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4.

The doubles title went to Fritz Mercer of Bethlehem, Pa., and J. Gilbert Hall of Orange, N. J., who defeated Bell and his fellow Texan, Bruce Barnes, 6-3, 6-0, 7-5.

PARIS CHURCH HAS BEGGARS' MASS

PARIS.—The church of the Sacred Heart, rising on the heights of Montmartre, has what is claimed to be the only mass of its type held in the world.

It is called "Beggars' Mass," and from all the hovels and haunts of beggars in Paris down and outers flock to the church at 8 o'clock on Sunday mornings.

There is no collection taken at the mass and on departing the poor each receive 25 centimes—about 5 cents in the old days—and a card good for some food. An office is also maintained to help them get work.

They are all proud of this special church service and it is well attended.

Boy Scout Camping Schedule Completed

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., July 14.—A complete schedule has been booked for the Craterville Boy Scout lodge which is now under the supervision of the Navajo Mountain council.

Five camps will be held at the place between July 17 and Sept. 1.

The Washita Valley council, whose headquarters are at Clinton, will hold a week's camp from July 17 to Aug. 3. Approximately 150 Camp Fire girls from Wichita Falls, Texas, will occupy the camp from Aug. 3 until Aug. 17. During the latter week troop No. 16 of the Wichita Falls Boy Scouts will also be encamped at Craterville. The State Federation of Women's clubs will have a one-day meeting on Aug. 19 to 20. From Aug. 23 to Aug. 30, the local Navajo Mountain council will have its final summer camp.

Dirt Burned By Electricity Shown At Borger Plant

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, July 14.—What does 66,000 volts of electricity do to the earth when that amount of electricity strikes it?

This question has been partially answered by employes of the Panhandle Power and Light company, who exhibited a bit of earth, about two feet long and nearly a foot in diameter, that is burned to almost glass.

Recently one of the company's big high lines was broken and one of the ends of the wire struck the ground.

Linemen, repairing the break, found the burned dirt. They dug it up and brought it to Borger for observation.

The dirt is burned black. It is hard and a strong blow of a heavy instrument is necessary to break off a piece.

Widow to Trace Billy Dixon's Relatives

BORGER, Texas, July 14.—Mrs. Olive King Dixon, widow of the late William "Billy" Dixon, pioneer scout and plainsman, whose remains were recently brought here for reburial, is planning to search for information about the family of her famous husband.

In the fall she plans to go to the East, by way of Chicago, New York and Washington on a visit.

"I am going down into West Virginia where my husband was born to see if I can find any of his people," she said. "He had a brother who died early. I want to find out if there are any people there who knew his father and mother. They died when Billy was a small boy."

Dixon came west when he was about 13 years old. He said very little about his people Mrs. Dixon says. He was born in what is now West Virginia. As far as Mrs. Dixon knows, there are no near living relatives. There may be some distant relatives, however.

Large Crowds Attend Bowie Legion Carnival

BOWIE, Texas, July 14.—(Spl.)—Large crowds are in daily attendance at the carnival being held here, sponsored by the American Legion. The H. B. Poole shows are furnishing the attractions which consist of five rides, a number of novel side shows and a troupe of trained monkeys and dogs that is attracting much attention.

Members of the legion are cooperating for the success of the carnival.

BORGER 'HOAX' CASE UNSOLVED

Fake Telegram Cost Woman $300

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, July 14.—Efforts to trace the two men who are said to have "worked" Mrs. Don C. Dilley, wife of Don Dilley, former president of the chamber of commerce, through a faked telegram have so far failed. No arrests have been made.

Two men were suspected and they were taken to Dalhart for identification. There, two of the people who saw them were positive in their identification, but the third was not. The case was dropped.

Dilley and some friends had gone to northeastern New Mexico on a fishing trip. Next morning Mrs. Dilley received a message stating that the car had been wrecked and that $300 was needed for bond. She sent the money and became suspicious when she heard nothing further from her husband.

When Dilley returned it was learned that inquiries had been made at his place of business after he left town, about his plans, his name and other information of a personal nature.

Western Union Gives College Grads Jobs

NEW YORK, July 15.—The young college graduate, contrary to the popular idea, is far from being a person of leisure or one who takes himself to Wall street and spends the remainder of his life peaking easy money. The great majority of them find hard work and stern reality before them, as in the case of the large group selected each year from the country's greatest technical schools to enroll in the Student Engineers' Training course of the Western Union Telegraph company.

Somewhere between Red Bank and Little Silver, N. J., a gang of those boys are digging post holes, setting up posts, donning the spikes of a lineman and stringing wires. They study also blueprints and listen to intricate lectures, but six whole weeks of their training consist of actual field construction work, with such plebian contacts as poles, cross arms and cable manholes. They find no leisure on Wall street. They spend no lifetime seeking easy money.

Tunic Style

A crepe Elizabeth frock in aquamarine blue has a long tunic, ending in a pleated ruffle. The tunic is tucked vertically at the waistline to give it a somewhat form-fitting effect.

TRIBUTES PAID HOMER WADE

Stamford Men Praise Former W. T .C. C. Official

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, July 14.—The regular meeting of the Stamford Exchange club Friday turned into a ceremony of tribute to Homer D. Wade, resigning manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce who has been a citizen of the town for the last quarter century.

J. R. Pratt and W. D. Swenson both appraised his leadership in the devolpment of Stamford and West Texas and the phenomenal development of West Texas under his leadership as manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was told.

"It is not only for the splendid development achievement he might have wrought that West Texas will remember him, but first because of his appreciation, fidelity, and love—traditions of which are to be plainly read in his heart by those who know him best," they said.

Wade graciously responded to the tokens of felicitations and spoke in appreciation of the lasting friendship that it had been his privilege to enjoy.

"Physically I will remove myself to become a citizen of Dallas, but I will by no means remove my heart from among the people of West Texas with whom I have worked for the past 25 years," Wade stated.

The exchange program was arranged by W. S. Cooper, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, and featured by music by the Exchange orchestra. The Stamford Jubilee chorus, a colored quartet of women sang three popular folklore songs, typical Southern religious melodies. Judge Charles E. Coombes addressed the club on the traditions of the old South.

Declares Result Has Been Amazing

M. K. T. Electrician of Wichita Falls Says Troubles Are Now Gone Since Taking Orgatone

It is not what the manufacturer claims for it, but the testimony of the multiplied thousands right here in Wichita Falls, who have been benefited by it that has made Orgatone the most famous medicine in Texas today. H. A. Wright, of 1308 Eighteenth street, Wichita Falls, Texas, a well known electrician from the M. K. T. railroad, who has followed this trade for the past 23 years, in relating his experience with Orgatone, said:

"For five years I have had an awful lot of trouble with my stomach. Everything disagreed with me and after meals I would get puffed up, bloated feeling and belch up my food, sour and undigested. I got to the point where I was almost afraid to eat anything because of the suffering I knew it would cause me. I was constipated, had terrible headaches and my sleep was very poor. My system seemed to be all run down, I was so dizzy and bilious at times, it seemed like I would almost topple over. I was losing ground all the time and felt that unless I could get the right medicine my troubles would soon become serious.

"I had been keeping up with the Orgatone testimonials, and decided to try it and it has not only relieved me of my troubles, but has built me up amazingly. I have taken two bottles and my stomach is now in good shape. My appetite is fine and I can eat what I want without feeling a sign of indigestion. My constipation and headaches and all that tired feeling is gone and I have gained in weight besides. Orgatone has been a great thing for me, and I don't think anybody suffering like I did can make a mistake by giving it a trial."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by Allison's Drug Store, who are direct laboratory agents. —Adv.

An antidote of unfailing effectiveness is provided in the current Majestic program by the Vitaphone comedy for those tender hearts too deeply moved by Eddie Dowling's fierce tugs at the heart strings in "The Rainbow Man." The Mister and the husbands of three other matrons play bridge, if you please, "as women do." Reform is at hand.

◇ ◇ ◇

Even in the throes of heart-crushing anguish the exquisite beauty of Billie Dove refuses to be marred. Noah Beery, whose sepulchral tones bespeak his dark villainy, and Antonio Moreno as the virtuous under-secretary, enact a very stirring drama around the fair Billie in "Careers," at the Strand, but it's the queenly "Helene" your friends will hear about.

Grandfield Farm Leads Wheat Growers

Special to The Record News

GRANDFIELD, Okla., July 14.—Otto Mundkowski, wheat farmer, residing north of Grandfield, is at the present leading the other farmers in the county for wheat acreage for the year. Mundkowski's acreage this year totaled 625 acres, with an average of 8 bushels to the acre. His greatest yield is on a farm of 150 acres which harvested 2,400 bushels, or 16 bushels to the acre.

Mr. Mundkowski says his crop this year was reduced by late wheat, the greatest yield coming from the early sowings that were killed out by drought and came up as a sucker crop. It is this crop that is making the best yield. The late wheat did not have time to mature.

METHODISTS ANSWER SOLON

Temperance Board Says its Non-Partisan

WASHINGTON, July 14. (US)—The Methodist board of temperance prohibition and public morals is "absolutely non-partisan" politically and "does not concern itself with political questions, save as they may relate to public morals," and therefore is not a lobby, according to a statement issued today by its headquarters here.

The avowal was made in answer to recent attacks against the board on the part of Representative George Holden Tinkham, Republican of Massachusetts, in which he demanded prosecution of the board for its activities in the recent presidential elections and its failure to make a report of its expenditures as required by congressional act of 1927.

The board today stated that it asks favors of congressmen only 1-30 as often as congressmen asks favors of it, and that representatives of the Roman Catholic church are far more active in congress than its own representatives are.

The statement characterized the aims of the board as an effort to "make more effective the efforts of the church to crystallize opposition; to all attempts to undermine and desrtoy civil and religious liberties."

Pathfinder Aviators Received In Private Audience With Pope Pius

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

ROME, July 14. (US)—Pope Pius at 1 o'clock this afternoon received Roger Q. Williams and Capt. Lewis A. Yancey in private audience, at which time the Pathfinder fliers delivered to his holiness the letter they brought from Cardinal Hayes of New York. They were accompanied to Vatican City by Monsignor Burke, of the American college.

The fliers were ushered through rows of court officials to the presence of his holiness. Following the usual etiquette, they knelt only once instead of three times, the pope giving them a paternal welcome.

Pope Makes Speech

The pope made a short speech in Italian which was translated for them by Monsignor Burke. In his address the pope said that he was happy to see them after their supreme, most memorable flight. He the bringing together thus of great improvement in our civilization—the bringing togethe rthus of great nations belonging to the same Christian brotherhood.

The pope asked them many questions about their flight which they answered in detail. Taking the letters they brought, he thanked them for having brought the messages from his "beloved sons in America."

After 20 minutes conversation the pope presented the fliers with two medals just colned, like those that are to be issued next week commemorating the reconciliation of the church and the Italian state.

Simple Reception

Captain Yancey afterwards declared that what impressed him most was the simplicity of the reception by the pope, which impressed him far more than all the pomp of the vatican court through which they had passed.

Williams and Yancey today sent a message of regret to King Alfonso of Spain in answer to his invitation to them to dine with him at Madrid.

Tomorrow morning the fliers leave at 8:30 for San Rossore, the summer residence of the royal family, near Pisa. General Balbo, under secretary for air, will personally pilot his own plane carrying Williams and Yancey. It is a big Savoia 55. The American embassy staff will follow. The entire party will be entertained at lunch by King Victor Emmanuel.

To Visit Paris

After the royal lunch the fliers will go by plane to Seste Calende, on Lake Maggiore, to visit the great Italian hydroplane station. They will return to Rome Tuesday.

The Americans will leave Wednesday for Paris in a big Bellanca plane. They will remain at the French capital for two days and will then go to London for two days and sail from there on the first big liner they can catch. The Pathfinder will go with them on the same ship.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, July 14.—The war play, "Who Won the War?" presented by the Oscar Frye post of the American Legion at Burkburnett Thursday and Friday nights in the high school auditorium, drew a crowded house each night. The play was directed by H. O. Rupnow of Chicago.

FARM COUNCIL MEETS JULY 18

Plans Ready for Tillman County Meet

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 14.—Farmers, merchants and clerks will be included in the tour of Tillman county farms to be conducted next Thursday, July 18, as a feature of the Tillman County Farm council which will meet here. The trip was planned after it was requested by the extension department of the Oklahoma A. & M. college, according to L. M. Wagnon, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

L. H. Beaty, county agent has issued a call to all farmers that can spare the time to accompany the motor caravan on its tour. It is expected that a large number of them will respond to his invitation.

Mrs. Edith Craig, assistant county demonstration agent, has said that a number of club women will make the trip.

Representatives from Oklahoma A. & M. college will be on hand and will accompany the trippers. Three reels, depicting the master farmers of Oklahoma will be shown in the afternoon at the conclusion of the trip.

At noon the caravan will stop at Jackson's park, 10 miles east of Frederick where a farm women's club will serve lunch and refreshments to members of the body.

A special feature of entertainment will be seen at the farm home of L. L. Kinder, east of here, where Kinder has arranged to entertain the visitors with "wild Brahama" steer riding.

Frederick Opposes Sale Of Oklahoma Railroad

FREDERICK, Okla., July 14.—R. H. Birkhead, local agent for the M. K. & T. railroad states that the Katy, together with the Rock Island, is seeking to get the Beaver Meade and Englewood railroad, in the northwest part of the state. He says the Katy has always furnished that small line with locomotives and cars. Citizens of Woodward, Hooker and other points are objecting to the purchase of the line by the Rock Island claiming if the purchase were made grain shipments would cost more than at present because of getting into differential territory. The Frederick Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution at its meeting Thursday night similar to the one adopted at Woodward and Hooker.
