Q. — Isn't Mitchell County also going to have a cotton assessment election and, if so, when and for how much?

A. — The Mitchell County election to decide the "at the gin" assessment for cotton is scheduled the same day as the Scurry County referendum vote, Sept. 7. Cotton producers and land owners there will vote for or against an assessment of $1 per bale.

Dallas blaze doused

DALLAS (AP) — A five-alarm fire erupted early today in the former Texas Schoolbook Depository Building from which Lee Harvey Oswald allegedly fired the shots that killed President John F. Kennedy.

The fire, first reported at 3 a.m. and declared extinguished at 4:54 a.m., began in the basement and spread to the first and second floors, sending smoke throughout the building, Fire Chief Dodd Miller said.

The Warren Commission, which investigated the assassination, concluded that Oswald fired the fatal shots from a sixth floor window of the seven-story, brick building on Nov. 22, 1963.

Lindalyn Adams, president of a historical foundation that plans to put an exhibit on the sixth floor, said she had not been to the basement in the past couple of years but she believed it contained some newspapers from the time of the assassination, books about Kennedy, and panels from a Hertz rent-a-car sign that was atop the building at the time of the assassination.

"It's not that bad," she said after fire officials allowed her to briefly inspect the inside of the building. "It's a relief."

Miller said it was his understanding that materials in the basement could be reproduced. Fire Marshal Jim Badgett said he was told there had been reprints of Kennedy assassination photographs in the basement.

Badgett said heavy smoke made it difficult to determine the cause of the fire, but said that heat was intense in two areas of the building, suggesting that the fire's origin might be suspicious.

Miller, asked if arson was suspected, said, "Sure. We always suspect arson. We'll look for it."

"We're going to be rummaging through but there's still too much smoke," Lewis Epps, captain of the fire department arson division, said. "We can't really tell. It may have been two areas (where the fire started). But it may have been one and then spread."

Badgett estimated damage at $250,000, he said. No injuries were reported.

CRIME SCENE — Scurry County sheriff's investigators, assisted by Texas Rangers and other law enforcement agencies, are continuing the local murder investigation involving the death of William Roland Davis. Abandoned in Fort Worth...

Murder victim's auto discovered

The missing auto of murder victim William Roland Davis was found early Thursday morning after apparently being abandoned in Fort Worth.

Local investigators have identified also the time the victim was last seen alive — 2 a.m. Wednesday morning, some nine hours before his body was discovered.

Meanwhile, sheriff's officers and Texas Rangers continue their investigation into the murder of the 52-year-old paraplegic, a lifelong resident of Scurry County.

He was discovered beaten to death at his home ½ mile west of Snyder shortly before 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Investigators now believe a hammer found at the scene is the murder weapon. They indicate Davis was struck several times on the head.

Early on in the investigation Wednesday, officers suspected Davis' 1975 Chevrolet sedan had been taken from the scene. At 5:30 a.m. Thursday, it was found parked and locked on a lot in Fort Worth.

Sheriff's officers had issued a statewide bulletin on the vehicle shortly after noon Wednesday. Among other identifying characteristics, Davis' car was rigged with handicapped devices.

The victim had been confined to a wheelchair since a rodeo accident in 1955.

Reports from Tarrant County Thursday morning indicated the car had been impounded in Fort Worth and was under examination at a Tarrant County crime lab Thursday morning.

Local investigators were able to pinpoint when Davis was last seen after determining a gathering of from 10 to 15 individuals were at the Davis residence Tuesday night.

United Way effort 'way ahead' of '83

Thirteen division chairmen for Scurry County's United Way campaign began gearing up Wednesday for what is traditionally the year's largest fund raising effort.

Eight member agencies depend on United Way funds — the majority of which aid the youth of Scurry County. Agencies which receive support include the Snyder Boys Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Snyder Child Day Care Center, Oil Patch Foster Parents, West Texas Rehab Center, the Salvation Army and the Red Cross.

Campaign Chairman Roy McQueen distributed "posting sheets" to division chairmen Thursday which list past and potential donors in each division. In addition, fund raising goals for each were announced.

The campaign — slated to run from Sept. 24 through the third week in October — will attempt to raise $75,830 this year. This marks a slight reduction from the 1983 campaign goal of $77,300.

The reduced goal was taken on as a reorganization of United Way is effected. This includes a restructuring of the divisions plus an effort to place all donor information into computer memory.

McQueen characterized the campaign efforts to date as "way ahead of last year." He noted that Don Newbury, heading up a new "pacesetters" division, has already spoken to 15 of 17 businesses which have large staffs of employees.

The plan is to move the local campaign more toward the basic design of United Way — the "fair share" concept of each employee giving equal dollars based upon their means.

Its goal is set at $23,467 — the largest single division for the campaign this year.

In addition, letters have already been mailed for another new division classified under "national." This is an attempt to draw funds from local businesses with out-of-county ownership.

Chairmen for this division are Rick Conner and John Gayle and a goal of $7,276 is set.

A third new United Way division is labeled "special contributions," to be headed by Bobby Beard. It will seek donations from select individuals in the county who have traditionally "generously given" toward United Way. This division's goal is $9,210.

Other divisions for the 1984 campaign include:

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A man matures when he learns to laugh--at himself."

In case anybody's missed it--summer has arrived. It's hot, hot, hot.

John Boren said his wife stayed in the shower so long she used up all the cold water.

Those in office jobs generally have a way to beat the heat. However, it was so warm on Monday at the SDN, Shirley Gorman broke into a sweat just changing her mind.

Harold Denson said he was even looking forward to the return of those wind-chill factor reports on TV.

M. L. Chandler, owner of the Gulf station on East Highway, also expressed concern about the weather. "I sure hope my wife is smart enough not to mow the grass in this heat."

The torrid weather couldn't have come at a better time. We hope all the folks attending the Republican Convention in Dallas will remember the hot time in the old town—especially those bleeding hearts camping out on the banks of the Trinity River.

Those in Dallas this week can attest that politics is heating up.

Did you read about a vacationing wife and son of a Washington trade association official who were detained for two hours when leaving Czechoslovakia.

It seems that the youngster had some mysterious markings on an envelope he carried. State police finally accepted the boy's explanation of the markings. They were football plays he had drawn for some Czechoslovakian kids.

Things are changing in America. On the farm the mother used to signal the family in from the field for dinner with the ringing of a bell.

Later, the family knew it was time for dinner when she walked in the living room and turned off the TV. At dinner time now, she still turns off the TV but announces, "Okay, everybody get in the car."

Snyder Lions observe 60th anniversary tonight

A past president of Lions International will keynote the 60th anniversary dinner of the Snyder Lions Club set for 6 p.m. Thursday at the Snyder Country Club.

E.J. (Ebb) Grindstaff of Ballinger will speak at the dinner to commemorate Snyder's oldest civic club and the oldest club in District T-2T.

The club, with a current membership of more than 110 members, will also recognize the newest member and the member with the longest service.

Gary Roberts, club president, will begin the program and will introduce Max von Roeder who will serve as master of ceremonies. A "surprise" program will also be given by Lions Miller Robinson, John Boren, Glen Polk and Mike Dennis.

Grindstaff will then be introduced by Jim Jones, new district governor.

The long history of service rendered by the club will be recalled during the dinner. Through a variety of fund-raising efforts, the Snyder Lions Club supports sight conservation and has purchased thousands of eyeglasses for Scurry County school children.

The club also supports diabetes research, the Lions Crippled Childrens Camp at Kerrville, the Lubbock Eye Bank, Leader Dog Schools and Girlstown at Whiteface.

Howard Harrington, a former governor of District 2-T2, has served as general chairman of the 60th anniversary celebration.

Past presidents of the club include J.M. Harris, Ernest Taylor, C. Wedgeworth, Warren Dodson, J.C. Smyth, J.E. Sentell, Frank Farmer, A.C. Preuitt, H.L. Wren, Willard Jones, A.A. Bullock, Herman Darby, Lyle Deffebach, Wayne Boren, R.L. Farr and Leighton Griffin.

Sam Williams, Don Robinson, R.E. Patterson, M.H. Roe, Dr. John Blum, J.J. Dyer, Woodrow W. Adcock, Haskel O. Beard, W.R. Bell Jr., John H. Boren, Charles R. Wolfe, W.W. Park, Dan Cotton, D.D. Shelburne, Wayland Holt, Phil Burns, Dr. John Hamblen, Harold Bennett, Cecil J. Boren and L.A. Patterson.

Frank Taylor, Bill Seale, Jack Gorman, Olin Bunch, Horrace Bostick, Bill Sikes, Les Francis, Howard Harrington, John Jarrell, Bill Dryden, Jerry McWilliams, Robert Watlington, Phil Fortune, Max von Roeder, Jack Cypert, Glen Polk, C.A. McCown and Dennis Chisum.

In Brief

Settle dispute

AUSTIN (AP) — After a series of corridor conferences, the Texas State Employees Union and the Texas Department of Corrections settled a dispute today over TDC handling of grievances from its employees.

"The parties have agreed that the grievance at issue will be heard before Sept. 1 and the employees may be represented by the TSEU," TSEU attorney David Van Os told State District Judge Harley Clark.

"That resolves the need for a temporary restraining ordere," Van Os said.

Bomb planted

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A bomb planted in a fruit juice vendor's cart exploded during rush hour this morning in a crowded street near the central railway station, killing at least 18 people and wounding more than 300, according to official reports.

Tehran radio said the bomb contained 55 pounds of explosives and claimed, without elaboration, that it was planted by "U.S. agents."

The blast left a six-foot-deep crater in the ground and felled pedestrians in the street, which is just off a spacious square facing the railway station. Scores of people were wounded by shards of broken glass that crashed to the ground from windows in buildings within 100 yards of the square.

Sakharov ok

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov appears "haggard" and aged in a hidden-camera videotape being broadcast nationwide tonight, but his stepdaughter thanked the Soviet Union for the apparent evidence that her parents are still alive.

ABC News showed still photographs Wednesday from an 18-minute videotape of Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, in Gorky that were supposedly taken "within the last month." Sakharov is shown in what ABC said appeared to be a hospital holding a July issue of Newsweek with pop singer Michael Jackson on the cover.

The network said it got the tape from a West German newspaper, but there were indications that it originated with the Soviet government.

Subcommittee seeks answer to disposal of nuclear waste

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal expert on toxic wastes ... "common sense tells us" that there are better ways to dispose of nuclear waste than burying it in a hole in the ground.

Hugh Kaufman of the Environmental Protection Agency said if landfills could be built that would not leak, oil companies would not need storage tanks.

"They would put it (refined oil) in the land, because it would be cheaper for them. They don't do that. They still build storage tanks," Kaufman told a House subcommittee.

Kaufman was on a panel of four expert witnesses who testified Wednesday before the House Subcommittee on Low-Level Nuclear Waste Disposal.

Subcommittee chairman Gary Thompson and others said Texas may be moving too fast for its own good in searching for a site to dispose of wastes. "In Texas we're proceeding much faster in site selection and that places some very special pressures on Texas and raises some very special legal questions," said Thompson, D-Abilene.

He also said Congress "in all likelihood" would extend a Jan. 1, 1986, deadline for forming regional compacts to dispose of nuclear waste.

Rather than forming a compact, the Texas Legislature in 1981 took the option of creating the state Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority to develop a site for handling nuclear wastes. Bob King of the Texas Agriculture Department said the presumption was the agency would seek "the best darn landfill man has ever seen."

Since then, however, "techniques have grown by leaps and bounds," said King.

Nevertheless, the agency has concentrated on trying to buy land to bury wastes. Only recently, after a storm of protest, it ruled out a possible burial site in Hudspeth County in far West Texas.

Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, whose district includes several counties considered for a nuclear disposal site, said the authority "has an extremely difficult job. No one in the state — statistics in our part of the state are 10 to 1 against a disposal site in the area. No one wants to dispose of this in their backyard — that's understandable."

Kaufman said, "It has been my experience that landfills, in general, for any toxic materials, are not satisfactory to protect the public health and environment."

Kaufman, assistant to the director of EPA's Hazardous Site Control Division, said government should not subsidize waste generators, because it removes the incentive to do a good job.

"I think that if industry is kept on the hook financially for managing their own waste, they will use the best methods, they will use the most efficient methods," he said. "As government gets more involved, it can only mess up the system."

Dole: flat tax rate could hurt industry

DALLAS (AP) — The "flat rate" tax proposals floating around Congress may sound appealing, but they could be trouble for the oil industry, Sen. Robert Dole says.

"Before you buy off on any flat tax or fast tax or fair tax or any of these, keep in mind one thing: if they were adopted, you'd lose your (oil) depletion allowance," Dole, R-Kan., told Texas delegates to the Republican National Convention on Wednesday.

Dole, speaking to a meeting of the delegates, said he has heard from many people who support the concept of a straight percentage rate of taxation for all.

"I run into a lot of people who say they want that flat tax. But I want the Texas people to keep in mind what you give up," Dole said.

"If you want to give up the depletion allowance, and you want the intangible drilling costs capitalized instead of expensed, then you've got a winner. You're for the flat tax

"If you want to lose your investment tax credit if you're a businessman or businesswoman, have at it. Start supporting that proposition."

Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he agrees that the current tax structure needs to be simplified. President Reagan does, too, he said.

"But I'm not certain it's time to sign onto some pie-in-the-sky. Once Congress gets 10 percent they may decide that next year it's got to be 20 percent and then 30 percent."

Dole and his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole — both of whom have been the subject of speculation for the 1988 presidential race — told the Texas delegates that the Reagan record is a good one.

COOL WATER

DENVER (AP) — A good idea for summer is to keep a pitcher of water in the refrigerator.

It quenches thirst, cools the body, cleanses the system and basically sustains life, says William A. Richardson, president of the American Water Works Association. And, he adds, it comes right out of the tap at a price that can't be beat.

The association says America's water is the highest quality water in the world and costs an average of $1.03 per 1,000 gallons.

People have asked me from time to time if any of my children have aspirations of being a writer.

To my knowledge, none of them has so much as written a letter since one of them forged my name to a permit slip allowing him to ditch school to see "Five Easy Pieces" as a learning experience. (One sent a Christmas card one year showing him on a motorcycle with his arm in a cast and Happy Holidays scrawled on it.)

Yet there is not a day goes by that they do not stop off at the countertop in the kitchen, shuffle through the mail and inquire, "Anything for me?"

They've been doing this since they were toddlers.

And the kicker is, due to the magic of computers; they get more mail than I do.

They receive requests to renew their subscription to Forbes. (They never had a subscription to Forbes.) They get spoken to by E.F. Hutton and they don't listen to him either. Once there was a brochure from a realty company addressed to my son and his wife asking them to put their financing problems on their doorstep. The kid was 12 at the time.

If you really want to know your children, walk in their junk mail for a day.

A plea from their college alumni association to increase last year's pledge from $3 to $2,000.

A weird radical newspaper containing ads for "Creative" Early Baking and Vasectomies for your favorite dad on Father's Day.

An ominous envelop with a window in it with the words "FINAL NOTICE" shining through from the Dept. of Motor Vehicles, Traffic Division.

A card from Al's Garage reminding them their last tune-up was in 1978.

It sounds like I sit around sifting through my children's mail. I don't I just collect it, store it, and watch them as they stand over the wastebasket reading it in mid-air as it plummets to the can.

I haven't read even so much as a postcard since the day out of sheer curiosity I scanned a card from a skiing buddy of my son who wrote, "Did the Gatorade we put in your dad's radiator work?"

If the kids write me, it won't be humor.

Ferraro should not expect votes due to her gender

DALLAS (AP) — Women were excited by the nomination of Geraldine Ferraro as the Democratic vice presidential candidate, but they won't vote for her simply because she's a woman, says Anne L. Armstrong, former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

"I think Texas women were just delighted at her breakthrough. But now that she's a candidate, she can't be looking for votes as a woman.

"The combination of Mondale and Ferraro is one of the most liberal tickets in history. She is out of the mainstream of the Democratic Party in Texas," said Mrs. Armstrong, a delegate to the Republican National Convention.

Mrs. Armstrong, of Armstrong, Texas, was appointed ambassador to Britain by former President Ford in 1976.

She previously had been the first woman to hold the cabinet-level post of counselor to the president, given that job by Richard Nixon in 1972. Before that, she had served as co-chairman of the Repulican National Committee.

Mrs. Armstrong also was strongly considered by Ford as a vice presidential prospect, although she wasn't chosen.

In an interview, Mrs. Armstrong said she believes that although the GOP platform carries no endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment, Republicans have made significant achievements for the equal rights cause.

"I would hope that events would overtake the ERA," she said.

"We are getting up the road to equality for women, even though it's not fast enough for me. Even if the ERA doesn't have a future, I think there's a very bright future for increasing equal opportunity. It certainly can be done without ERA."

President Reagan is committed to equal rights, she said, adding that his appointment of Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor is the most obvious example.

This slam needs a delicate touch

By Oswald and James Jacoby

In his book "Better Bridge for the Advancing Player" (Prentice-Hall), Frank Stewart uses today's deal to illustrate proper handling of suit combinations to gain the requisite number of tricks. Cover the defenders' hands and imagine that you are declarer in six no-trump with the lead of the spade 10.

You play dummy's jack, East covers with the queen, and you win your ace. Now you play a low diamond to the 10. When that wins, you return to your hand with a heart and play another low diamond. The king comes up and you win the ace. Note that you did the right thing in leading low diamonds. If the diamonds are not 3-3, then any time the king is played on your diamond queen, you will be able to take only three tricks in that suit.

Now you are close to making your contract with two spades, three hearts, four diamonds, and two clubs for 11 tricks. If you can make one more with the club jack, you will have your slam. But take a failing grade if you play ace of clubs and a club to the jack. Instead, since you need only three club tricks for your contract, you should play king of clubs, a club to the ace, and then lead up to the jack. This play guards against East's holding the queen doubleton. Unless East started with four clubs to the queen, you will make the slam.

Veteran actor Robert Preston says the difference between playing the role of Prof. Harold Hill in his 1957 hit, "The Music Man," and the part of Centauri, a charming scamp, in the new movie, "The Last Starfighter," wasn't monumental. "In a way, they both are con men," says Preston, 66. Before "Starfighter," Preston had never played in a science-fiction movie. "It's a whole new audience," Preston says, "that's why I did it."

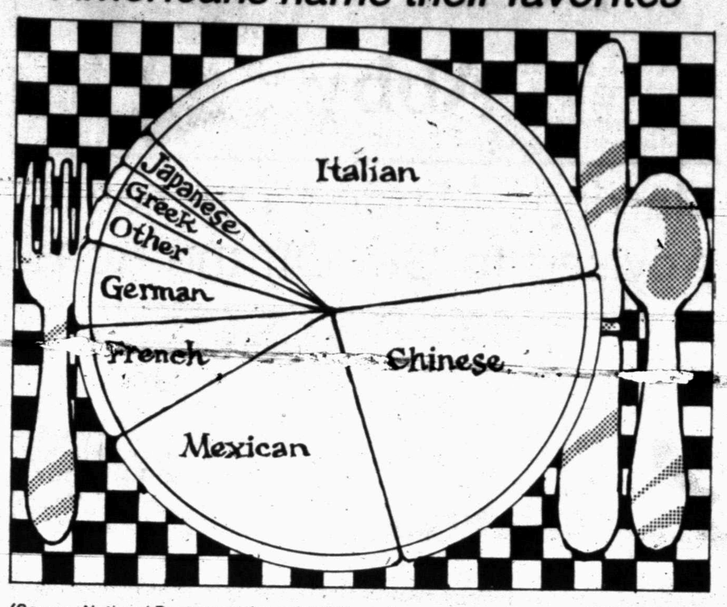
EATING OUT — ETHNICALLY

Americans name their favorites



(Source: National Restaurant Association) NEA GRAPHIC

Diners-out are most likely, among ethnic choices, to dine Italian. Thirty-six percent of restaurant-goers prefer Italian food. Chinese and Mexican foods are the next most popular (23 and 20 percent). In a distinct minority are French (8 percent), German (6 percent) and Japanese and Greek (2 percent each) food.

Folk healers remain powerful

DALLAS (AP) — In an age of high technology and state-of-the-art health care, many members of Dallas' Hispanic community still rely on the ancient rituals of folk healing — or curanderismo.

Nearly every day, Hispanics go to Juan de Dios' house seeking help for spiritual and physical problems. De Dios, whose given name is Juan Campos, is a "curandero" or faith healer.

Although he says God is the one who does the actual healing, he believes he has received a "gift from God" and is able to heal people, perform exorcisms, predict the future and break evil spells.

That is why he calls himself Juan de Dios — "John of God."

"It is God who does the healing. We are instruments of God," says de Dios, 51, a native Texan.

Members of the Dallas Hispanic community say perhaps several hundred men and women practice the ancient techniques of curanderismo, a complex folk tradition claiming the power of physical and spiritual healing.

Skepticism remains in case

DALLAS (AP) — Nearly two years after Lenell Geter was arrested and accused of a crime he did not commit, Geter's court-appointed defense attorney predicts the same type of incident will happen again soon to someone else.

Geter, a young black E-Systems engineer, was freed last December after serving more than a year of a life sentence for aggravated robbery of a fried chicken restaurant in suburban Balch Springs. He was exonerated after prosecutors identified another man as the robber.

"It's going to happen again here in Texas within a year," said attorney Ed Sigel. "But that person might not be as lucky as Geter."

Geter agrees.

"Innocence is not limited to one person who is abused by the system. You should never stop looking just because one man is free," Geter told the Dallas Times Herald in a recent interview.

Judges and attorneys concede the system that sentenced him to life imprisonment is unchanged and the injustice could be repeated.

Criticism focuses on eyewitness testimony and the prosecution's ability to refer during the trial to other crimes a defendant is suspected of having committed — significant factors in Geter's conviction.

"For a while, it caused everybody to think about what was right and wrong with the system," said Gerald Banks, a former Dallas County assistant district attorney who now is a defense lawyer in Dallas.

Convention vote off '84 campaign

DALLAS (AP) — The only negative sound from the Texas GOP delegation during the nomination vote came when a District of Columbia delegate announced he was from the home of the next Super Bowl champs.

Other than that, it was all peace and harmony as Texas fell in line and threw its 109 votes to President Reagan and Vice President George Bush late Wednesday.

"If we can't bottle this energy and turn it into a victory on Nov. 6 than it's just our fault," said George Strake of Houston, the state's Republican chairman.

"To let America slip away from what we've got going here would be a tragedy that I don't think we can recover from," he said.

The nomination was mathematically sealed long before Martha Weisend of Dallas announced the Texas vote.

"The great state of Texas, which gave President Reagan and Vice President Bush a 58 percent victory in 1980, and which will send Phil Gramm to the U.S. Senate in 1984 to continue the Reagan economic program, proudly and with privilege casts its 109 votes for the finest president ever — Ronald Reagan — and the finest vice president ever — George Bush," she said.

Texans joined the prolonged balloons-and-bands rally that followed the nominating speeches.

State Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson said the emotion was real.

"I saw people jumping up and down and cheering and it was a sincere feeling on their part. They are happy they nominated Ronald Reagan again," said Brown.

Albert Fay of Houston, an alternate delegate making his fifth convention appearance, called it a "wonderful convention."

"There's not the strife you get when you have a fight. Nobody's mad at anybody else. Everybody's having fun instead of fighting," he said.

Delegate Roger Johnson of Corpus Christi also said he enjoyed a convention without fights.

Release dangerous criminals

DALLAS (AP) — Serious overcrowding in Texas prisons has led to the forced release of violent criminals — including many who have robbed, raped and killed again within weeks of their parole, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

Convicted rapist Dennis Keith Jackson, for example, was released last August when the Texas Department of Corrections implemented new policies to relieve overcrowding.

Through TDC's policy of reducing prison sentences for good behavior, Jackson was able to reduce a 12-year prison term for rape to five years, the Times-Herald reported Wednesday.

Within eight weeks of his parole, Jackson brutally attacked and raped five Dallas women at gunpoint, the newspaper said.

One of 24,000 felons freed in the first year of the accelerated release program, Jackson is now counted among an estimated 25 percent of that total who have resumed a life of crime.

The husband of one of Jackson's victim's said there is confusion about a system that freed a convicted rapist so early.

"I think, she thinks the most crimnal thing was that he was let out, because rape is what he was in (prison) for in the first place," he said. "The law ought to be changed. She doesn't think he should have gotten a break, she thinks he should rot in prison."

In late May 1983, the maximum good-time credit was increased to two extra days off for every day served. The new scale was applied retroactively so that months and, in some cases, years, instantly lopped off the terms of thousands of convicts.

Inmates, former inmates and prison officials said virtually all prisoners are given the credit even if they commit frequent and sometimes serious offenses in prison, the Times Herald reported.

The new rule resulted in the release of 8,670 felons in the first 10 months of this fiscal year, the newspaper said. Another 10,059 were released because they accumulated enough good time and actual time to complete their sentences.

Prison officials said the new policy helped all convicts, but violent felons benefitted the most.

From fiscal year 1982 to 1984, the number of murder and manslaughter convicts paroled went from 175 to a projected 835, according to statistics for the first nine months of fiscal 1984, the Times Herald reported.

The number of paroled sex assault convicts, mostly rapists, increased 1,061 percent, from 23 in 1982 to a projected 267 in 1984. The number of released robbers increased 75 percent.

Critics, including Dallas Police Chief Billy Prince, say the mass releases are threatening public safety and have contributed to a rise in the city's crime rate.

They say that scores of new crimes committed by some former inmates would not have occurred had they been kept behind bars.

"When more violent people are getting out that quickly,... that's just got to say something right there," said Charles Shandera, director of the state's Criminal Justice Police Council.

Inmates like Jackson, who has been returned to prison and is now serving a life sentence, blame corrections oficials for allowing the problem to persist after.

Jackson was first sentenced to prison in 1978 for raping a 9-year-old girl.

Without reviewing his conduct or considering whether the 24-year-old convict was ready to return to society, prison officials handed Jackson a $200 check, gave him a new suit of clothes and ushered him to the prison gate, the Times Herald said.

Suspend Plano doctor

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Medical Examiners has ruled that a Plano physician accused of incompetency by state licensing officials may continue to practice medicine under certain conditions after a one-year suspension.

The board stipulated that Dr. Ann Bhuket, 44, can return to her medical practice after a one-year suspension if she abandons her unorthodox, "holistic," medical techniques and practices under another doctor's supervision for 10 years.

Dr. Bhuket received her medical training in her native Thailand.

The board's ruling came during a closed meeting at a hotel at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport. The board also agreed to drop all complaints against the doctor, who had been accused by the board of failing to treat six patients in an acceptable manner.

Allegations filed against her by the board claimed that her patients, who had cancer, heart disease and other ailments, were treated with a variety of unorthodox treatments that were uneffective and sometimes harmful.

Marriage-Minded Trucker Is Advised to Get Off the Road

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A few words to "Lonely in Dallas," the 30-year-old truck driver who wants a wife:

Supposing you do get married. Your wife will go along with you for maybe two years, then a baby comes along, and guess who is sitting home alone for two or three months waiting for you to come off the road? Only now she has the responsibility of running a home and raising a child because you can't do it over the telephone.

Her social life is almost nonexistent because it's easier to stay home alone than to be lonely at a party.

You miss out on all the joys of fatherhood because you're not there when the baby takes his first step, says his first word, etc. Meanwhile your wife sleeps alone in a big double bed for two and three months at a time, and envies her friends whose husbands come home from work every night.

And what are you going to do for sex while you're away from home? And what is your wife supposed to do?

When your son is 4, he will feel abandoned because his daddy is never home to take him to the beach, ball games, etc.

My advice to you is get off the road if you want a wife and family. I should know. I've been married to a long-distance trucker for 14 years. Sign me ...

LONELY IN NEW YORK

DEAR LONELY: A writer from Michigan offers a surprising solution for "Lonely in Dallas." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing concerning the truck driver who wants a girlfriend. I understand his problem.

I'm a lady truck driver, and it's true that most companies will not let their drivers take an unauthorized passenger in the truck.

"Lonely in Dallas" simply needs to find a woman co-driver. There are a lot more women drivers now than people imagine. Single truckers like having a woman co-driver because it solves problems like the one "Lonely in Dallas" has.

LADY TRUCKER FROM MICHIGAN

DEAR ABBY: On several occasions I have read letters in your column from women complaining about an excessive amount of facial hair. How I wish I had their problem!

I am a male with only a few hairs on my chin. In adolescence I kept hoping I would grow more facial hair to appear more manly, but it never happened, and at 22, I am perceived to be a teen-aged boy instead of a man.

In accomplishments I am far ahead of most men my age, but my appearance is against me. I would give anything for a neatly trimmed mustache, but that's out of the question. And having hair on my chest would be too much to hope for.

Can you help me, Abby?

BABY FACE

DEAR BABY FACE: Your hairless condition may have its roots (no pun intended) in a hormone deficiency. See an endocrinologist.

Also ask your barber to recommend a hair-aids store. Stick-on mustaches are available, as well as false beards, sideburns and even hair for the chest.

DEAR ABBY: I like your definition of "bedroom eyes." When I was a young girl dating, men used to tell me I had bedroom eyes. Now that I am a grandmother, they say, "You look sleepy."

LAURA IN WARREN, MICH.

Don't ban sweets from balanced diet

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you give me some advice about my mother's diet? My mother is 84 and complains of being weak. She has been an active and physically strong woman. Until last summer, she did her own lawn-mowing and gardening, and she took care of a small orchard. She still tries these activities, but can't do them alone any more.

She does not eat regular meals, but snacks on potato chips, candy and "junk food." Recently she was visiting my brother and brought along a bag of candy, apparently to sustain her energy. She became very upset when the bag accidentally spilled onto the ground.

I have heard some athletes claim that a diet high in carbohydrates helps them to sustain their energy for demanding activities, such as running. Is this valid? Would a diet containing good amounts of protein and carbohydrate,with little or no sugar, be good for my mother?

DEAR READER — Good nutrition is important at all ages. I am not so concerned with your mother having sweets as with the vitamins, minerals and protein she may not be getting if she is not eating a balanced diet.

Many older people develop a craving for sweets and may not care so much for meat and vegetables. Don't fight it — just keep in mind that you want your mother to consume all the nutrients her body needs. A good milkshake may satisfy the sweet craving while providing complete protein from the milk plus important calcium. She may even be willing to let you add protein powders to the milkshake, providing even more protein.

Don't fall into the trap of thinking that just because it's sweet, it's bad — or, put another way, that because it really tastes good, it must be harmful.

Desserts can include puddings, ice cream and even sweetened fruits. Again, you can provide needed milk in many of these.

Sugar or sweets are a good source of immediate energy when one has exhausted one's sugar (glucose) levels, usually from hard work. And it is true that concentrated carbohydrates are helpful for endurance athletes and for people who must do heavy labor.

A major source of energy in the muscles is muscle glycogen. This is "animal starch" and is made up of molecules that are hooked together. It takes two or three days to get the muscles loaded with glycogen. Then, when the individual works, runs or engages in other activities, that energy is immediately available.

It takes time to "recharge" the muscles with glycogen, which is why a person needs to rest two days between bouts of vigorous work or excercise.

You will have a better concept of carbohydrates after reading The Health Letter 19-4, Sugar and Sweets: Good or Bad, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Sweet liquids that are not too concentrated are the most readily available source of energy. They pass rapidly out of the stomach into the small intestine and are absorbed quickly. But protein, fats and solid foods will be held in the stomach. They cannot be absorbed from the stomach, and during the hours they remain there, they cannot provide any energy at all. This is why a steak-and-egg meal before a football game doesn't help the athlete. The steak and egg will still be in the stomach after the game is over.

Minorities shoot most policemen officer claims says offcers DALLAS (AP) — In an effort to defend the Dallas Police Department against verbal attacks from minority groups over police shootings, Police Chief Billy Prince has released statistics showing that members of minority groups are to blame for shooting 11 on-duty police officers since 1979.

A total of 13 police officers have been shot in the last five years, Prince said Tuesday.

Officials warn of other riots

BOSTON (AP) — Two weeks after Lawrence exploded in two nights of rioting, state and federal officials warn that economic frustration and ethnic tension in a half-dozen other Massachusetts cities could burst into violence.

But some mayors say the assessment is "way off base."

"I haven't worried about a riot in Holyoke for 10 years," said Holyoke Mayor Ernest Proulx.

"The Hispanics here have gone from the riot stage, to the marching stage and now they have gone to the voting booth," he said. "I think they have evolved into a far more sophisticated group" than state and federal officials believe.

"Of course it can happen again, and it will," said Alex Rodriguez, head of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination. "We can't prevent another Lawrence, it's impossible. The cities and towns have not been able to face their history and racism."

The commission, a state agency assigned to fight discrimination, is compiling a list of communities that might ignite as Lawrence did on Aug. 9 and Aug. 10, when Hispanics and whites battled in the streets of the low-income Tower Hill neighborhood.

Two nights of rioting in the city 30 miles north of Boston resulted in 20 arrests and more than a dozen injuries.

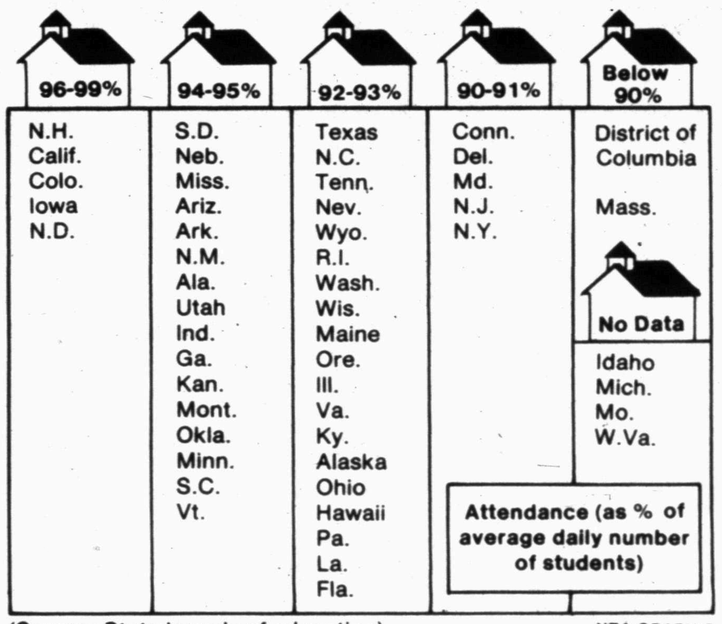
Rodriguez said Wednesday that the final "critical list" will probably include all Massachusetts communities where 50 percent of the minority population lives at or below the poverty level and where there is a history of racial discrimination and violence.

The U.S. Justice Department's community relations service in New England is also keeping an eye on several cities, said Adela Acosta, a federal mediator.

"To say that Lawrence in an aberration in the commonwealth would be unfair," she said. "We just saw the tip of the iceberg. There are other towns in the commonwealth that are at the edge. But they may never move from that edge and they may never explode.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Northeast has most truants



(Source: State boards of education) NEA GRAPHIC

On an average school day, about 94 percent of U.S. students attend classes. This figure is based on a recent study of the 1981-82 academic year. New Hampshire had the best rate of attendance while Massachusetts had the worst.

Houston law sets out business plan

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston City Council has approved an ordinance under which the city would try to send a certain percentage of its business each year to firms owned by women and minority group members.

But many black leaders said after the law passed Wednesday the goals were not high enough and that the city should be trying to give such companies 20 percent of its purchasing, construction and professional service contracts.

The council set out to send those firms 7 percent of its purchasing contracts, 10 percent of its construction and 16 percent of its professional services work.

Houston's annual construction program totals about $100 million.

At least one group of black leaders has threatened to work against a $595 million bond election set for Sept. 11 unless the council agreed to the 20 percent figure.

"You're going to see a concrete effort among leaders of the black community to defeat the bond election," state Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said after the council's vote.

The bonds are intended to fund construction of new streets, parks, fire stations, libraries and other municipal improvements for the next five years.

Councilman Ben Reyes moved to amend the measure to include the 20 percent goal.

"I cannot in good conscience vote for something that gives (the minority community) nothing," said Councilman John Goodner, who supported Reyes' amendment.

Goodner said a provision calling on prime contractors to make "good faith efforts" to meet the goals is too vague.

The annual goals are to be based on a determination of the percentage of applicable businesses in Houston that are owned by minorities or women.

But the city has had trouble finding accurate data on this subject. Mayor Kathy Whitmire said the goals recommended by her office's affirmative action division were based on the best information available.

Beverly Grisby, executive director of the Association of Minority Contractors of Houston Inc., called the goals "a quick and dirty attempt to quantify something that is not readily quantifiable."

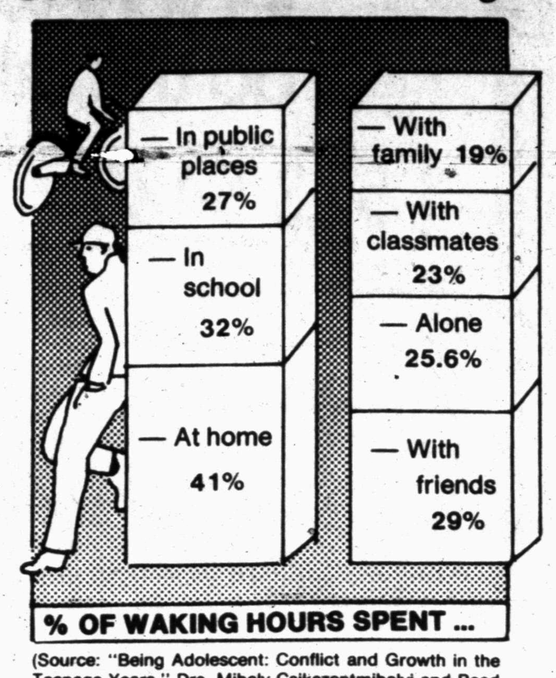
TEENAGERS' TIME

Solitude and home rank high



(Source: "Being Adolescent: Conflict and Growth in the Teenage Years," Drs. Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi and Reed Larson) NEA GRAPHIC/Moffitt Cecil

Teens in America aren't always drawn to groups — or activities. They spend much of their time at home, according to a recent study. And they spend almost as much time alone as they do with friends or with classmates. (Due to rounding off, right-hand column does not total 100 percent.)

Need religion for guidance Reagan says

DALLAS (AP) — President Reagan, testing his re-election themes as he prepares to accept renomination from an adoring Republican convention, branded opponents of school prayer today as intolerant and said that politicians "need religion as a guide."

In remarks prepared for a prayer breakfast only hours after all but two of the 2,235 delegates voted to renominate him Wednesday night, the president said he was frustrated by people who say they oppose school prayer "in the name of tolerance and freedom and open-mindedness."

"I submit to you that those who claim to be fighting for tolerance on this issue may not be tolerant at all," he said.

Reagan and Vice President George Bush, both nominated for second terms on a single roll call that was the most predictable moment of this tightly scripted convention, will deliver their acceptance speeches at the climactic convention session tonight.

Reagan received 2,233 votes, with two delegates abstaining. The tally for Bush was 2,231, with two abstentions and one vote each for U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

The president told the prayer breakfast of ecumenical Christians that "religion and politics are necessarily related."

"We need religion as a guide; we need it because we are imperfect," he said. "And our government needs the Church because only those humble enough to admit they are sinners can bring to democracy the tolerance it requires in order to survive."

Reagan's schedule also included a meeting with Hispanics and a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising luncheon.

This evening, Reagan will appear at the 33rd GOP convention to accept renomination from delegates heeding Nancy Reagan's call to "make it one more for the Gipper."

Before they voted, the delegates cheered descriptions of the president as "a leader who is not afraid to lead," and the cry of "shame on you, Walter Mondale."

For the third time in as many GOP conventions, Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, placed Reagan's name in nomination for president and said that voters this fall will have the "the clearest of choices."

Laxalt's speech touched off the first riproaring, band-playing, sign and flag waving, red-white-and-blue balloon demonstration of a convention that until then had all the emotional pizazz of a Rotary Club luncheon. Even then, the most enthusiastic of the demonstrators were young people who were bused to the hall and marched through the aisles for 20 minutes.

Reagan and Bush, sitting in the president's 27th-floor suite in the Anatole Hotel a few miles from the hall, watched the session on television.

Protest policies...

Demonstrators march through Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Police watched as a dozen banks and businesses throughout downtown were littered with paper and paint before corralling 97 rowdy demonstrators near the Republican National Convention site and busing them to jail to end a freewheeling two-hour tour of vandalism.

Wednesday's march against President Reagan and companies with government contracts resulted in the first mass arrest of the four-day GOP convention, which ends today. It also was the most severe test of Dallas police restraint.

The group, organized by the Youth International Party, splattered paint, set off fireworks, spit on passers-by, ripped GOP signs, overturned newspaper vending racks, disrupted businesses, and burned a U.S. flag during the procession.

Police said they could do nothing but watch members of the "Republican War Chest Tour" until the group was cornered in an area suitable for the mass arrest.

After encircling the group in City Hall plaza, near the convention site, officers arrested them one-by-one, two officers to a demonstrator.

"It's not like we wouldn't like to take action," Police Cpl. C.W. Franklin Griffin said before the arrests, but added, "You can always clean up the paint."

The protesters, many of whom cheered when the arrests began, were charged with disorderly conduct, a Class C misdemeanor carrying a maximum bail of $200. Police said they believed the rowdies wanted to be arrested.

"They're not dummies. They were marching the wrong way down a one-way street and things of that nature," Deputy Chief William Newman said. "This group announced their intentions a month ago."

One "Yippie," who said his name was simply Maroon and his occupation was "political agitator," explained the march was intended "to point out the war preparations of the Reagan administration."

The marchers — some with long hair, some with crewcuts and many with "war paint" over their faces and bodies — drew both bemused and disgusted stares from afternoon crowds as they paraded through downtown, chanting obscenities.

The group struck at several buildings, including a bank, a defense contractor, a hotel and the fashionable Neiman-Marcus department store, before congregating in City Hall plaza to take a leisurely swim in a fountain.

American Civil Liberties Union monitor Kurt Albach of Dallas said police had shown "more restraint than I ever have seen."

"This is not the kind of thing we condone," Albach said. "Burning the flag we don't condone. That's against the law. We condone free speech."

At Neiman-Marcus, the group chanted "Eat the rich," and "Let's go shopping! Let's go shoplifting!"

The procession included members of Freeze Reagan-Bush, the Rainbow Peace Movement and several others who called themselves independent anarchists or punks.

Police in earlier convention protests avoided arrests, allowing a pro-legalization of marijuana group to stage a "smoke-in," and separating a violent skirmish between two factions of Iranian students without arrests.

Protests during the convention typically have amounted to far fewer demonstrators than organizers predicted, and steamy temperatures above 100 helped thin the number of protesters gathered in a city-sanctioned Tent City.

An hour after the mass arrests Wednesday afternoon, city workers had painted over graffiti on white flagpoles and picked up trash, returning the city plaza to its original pristine cleanliness.

The demonstration started with protesters chanting outside Dresser Industries and entering the lobby of the LTV Corp., a major defense contractor.

At RepublicBank Corp., the demonstrators staged an anti-nuclear "die-in," littered deposit slips in the lobby and splattered red paint on the floor.

"I wish they'd leave so we could get back to work," said Mike Schiff, a RepublicBank credit administrator. "This is incredible."

One protester, Jaydene Blount of Dallas, tried to clean up the paint, saying, "Our presence here is enough. I don't think this mess is necessary."

At the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel and adjoining Southland Life building, demonstrators kicked trash cans through the lobby, tore down a sign welcoming the Arizona GOP delegation and splattered more paint.

Moving to the downtown Neiman-Marcus store, the protesters beat on the windows.

Implanted device slows racing heart

BOSTON (AP) — Implanted devices that zap the heart with electric jolts may someday be a key weapon against cardiac arrests by slowing the rapid heartbeat that precedes half the 400,000 fatal heart attacks among Americans each year, researchers say.

Such treatment has been available in emergency rooms for three decades, but often the patient arrives too late to be helped. So researchers are attempting to shrink these hospital machines enough to insert them inside potential victims' bodies.

The idea is to provide the life-saving shock automatically on the spot, whenever the device senses that something is wrong.

The latest of these devices, developed at Indiana University School of Medicine, was described in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

"I personally think we are embarking on a new era in therapy of tachyarrhythmias," said Dr. Douglas P. Zipes, the inventor. "That will be a greater and greater reliance on electrical devices."

Tachyarrhythmia and tachycardia describe heart rates of more than 100 beats a minute. Often, this condition can be controlled with drugs. But when it cannot, doctors must shock the heart back to a normal rhythm by placing electrical paddles on the chest. Otherwise, the heart may go into fibrillation or cardiac arrest that stops blood circulation and quickly leads to death.

Murder victim vehicle found still being questioned Thursday morning, officers say.

Davis' body, along with the claw hammer found at the scene, were taken to the Southwest Institute of Forensics in Dallas Wednesday afternoon.

Investigators report that robbery is still the most likely motive for the killing. Other than his vehicle, the only other item determined missing is Davis' wallet, they say.

Rumors and reports circulating Wednesday afternoon raised the question of Davis' possible involvement in the illegal sale of alcholic beverages at his residence.

Scurry County Sheriff's Deputy Joe Cheyne, asked to confirm those reports Thursday morning, said several cases of beer and bottles of liquor were found in the residence, but that there is no evidence to indicate the victim was involved in any illegal activities.

Services for Davis are now set for 2 p.m. Friday at Bell-Seale Chapel. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens under direction of Bell-Seale.

He is survived by his mother, Eunice Davis of Snyder, three sisters and one brother.

United Way drive planning

—Oil and industry plus royalty owners: Gene Thomas and Shannon Shane will chair these two divisions which seeks donations from the Scurry County oilpatch as well as individuals who draw income from oil properties. These two have respective goals of $8,309 and $2,522.

—Commercial: This division takes in Snyder businesses and entails the largest number of United Way "packets" to be worked. Chairmen for the division are Mike Banta, Joee Gainer, Bob Clifton and Tom Latos. The goal is $8,309.

—Professional: Snyder's "professional personnel" are asked to donate in this division, to include such professions as local doctors, attorneys, dentists, accountants, college staffers and school teachers. Jerry Vestal is the chairman with a goal of $11,556.

—Public employees: Individuals working for the City of Snyder and Scurry County are targeted in this fund raising division. Polly Underwood is its chairman.

—Rural: This division seeks funds from residents living in and around the smaller county communities of Hermleigh, Ira, Fluvanna, Dermott, Lloyd Mountan, Camp Springs, Knapp, Inadale and Dunn. Chairman is Jay Martin with a goal of $2,741.

Obituaries

William Davis

Services for William Roland Davis, 52, of Snyder will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Bell-Seale Chapel with the Rev. David Halladay of Greenhill Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens under direction of Bell-Seale.

He died Wednesday at his residence. He was born July 10, 1932 in Scurry County and lived here all of his life.

He wa a Baptist and had attended Western Texas College.

He is survived by his mother, Eunice Davis of Snyder; three sisters, Mrs. Allene White of Georgetown, Tex., Mrs. Willie Wright of Milliken, Colo., and Mrs. June Haile of McAlister, Okla; and one brother, Horace Davis of Post.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were higher at midday dealings today.

The average price for strict low middling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 54 points to 62.27 cents a pound Wednesday for the eight markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 40 cents to $1.50 a bale higher than previous close. Oct 65.45, Dec 66.33, Mar 68.10, May 69.25, Jul 70.15, Oct b69.75, Dec b70.45.

Southfork Ranch has been sold

DALLAS (AP) - J.R. has sold Southfork Ranch. But no, it's not some new exotic plot for the season opener of the popular "Dallas" television series.

J.R. Duncan, who owns the ranch that is featured on the CBS nighttime soap opera, sold the 200-acre ranch north of here near the suburb of Murphy to Terry Trippett, a Dallas real estate developer, for an undisclosed price.

Trippett said in announcing the sale Wednesday that the sale price was more than $1 million, but would not disclose the exact amount.

The ranch, one of the most popular tourist attractions in the Dallas area, will be turned into a corral for Dallas parties and out of town tourists, Trippet said.

The fictional Ewing family will not be evicted, Trippett says. The show can continue to be filmed there, he added.

Trippett said he plans to remodel the 8,000-square-foot home into a "very exclusive" three-bedroom hotel that, starting this fall, will be rented overnight to guests for a minimum of $2,500 per night (more on weekends).

He also plans to add a 20,000-square-foot party building on the site for parties and dinners for up to 2,000 people. Construction of that building is scheduled to start in 10 days and be finished in November or December, Trippet said.

No long-range planning was involved in the purchase, the developer said.

"A friend of mine told me at(J.R. Duncan) was interested in selling. I came out and looked at it, and I bought it," Trippett said.

The Duncan family, who lived at the large ranch home, first objected to the ranch's popularity with tourists. Cars lined the roads in front of the ranch on weekends and during the tourist season. People lined up by the fence to pose for snapshots with the house in the background.

Duncan's neighbors objected to the sudden heavy influx of traffic and most in the area, including Duncan, posted "No Trespassing" signs in the area.

But Duncan relented and in 1980 began turning the property into a commercial operation, charging admission for a tour of the grounds and a chance to view the patio and swimming pool area that is featured in the show.

Minor accident at parking lot

A single minor traffic mishap was reported in Snyder Wednesday afternoon.

Involved in the 4:22 p.m. accident on the Safeway parking lot on College Ave. were a 1972 Ford driven by Edith Morgan Simmons of Snyder and another 1972 Ford driven by Sharon Bowlin of 3709 Highland Ave.

No injuries were reported.

Two arrests noted

Snyder police Wednesday logging two misdemeanor arrests.

One local man was jailed for public intoxication and a second suspect, originally charged with PI last weekend, was arrested on a warrant for misdemeanor evading arrest.

This was issued after he broke free from officers and fled on foot Saturday night.

Borden County judge at waste site hearing

Van York, county judge of neighboring Borden County, was among individuals scheduled to testify Wednesday afternoon at a committee hearing in Austin regarding the search for a low-level radioactive waste disposal site in Texas.

At that hearing, committee members heard a federal expert on toxic wastes warn that the concept of burying the material is a poor one (see related story, page 2).

In addition, the chairman of the subcommitee hearing testimony expressed his own opinion that Texas may be moving "too fast for its own good" in searching for a site to dispose of these wastes.

York's opposition to the plan began after negotiations were conducted in his county to locate the waste dump site there.

These negotiations ended after an unidentified property owner failed to secure a guarantee for all minerals rights to the property.

Similar negotiations were conducted in neighboring Garza County also. These "fell through" after on-site geological testing by the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority indicated improper soil conditions.

Wednesday afternoon, York was expected to voice opposition to the plan.

Agriculture seminar scheduled Saturday

Western Texas College has scheduled an agriculture seminar titled "Making Champions Out Of Your Steers and Lambs" on Saturday at the Borden County fairgrounds in Gail. Ezell-Key Feed Mill is co-sponsoring the seminar.

Consultants will be Tommy Stewman, Limousin breeder from Maryneal; Joe Ed Wise of Santa Anna, formerly Dawson County extension agent, and Dr. Stephen P. Hammack, beef cattle specialist with the Texas A&M extension service. Also assisting will be Kent Mills, sales representative from Ezell-Key Feed Mill.

The seminar will precede the Don Everett Club lamb sale and will begin at 9 a.m. Lunch will be served at noon. The sale, featuring 150 top club lambs, is to begin at 1:30 p.m.

Registration fee for the seminar will be $10 for adults and $5 for students and the fee does include the noon meal. Additional information about the seminar can be obtained by calling Jerry Baird at Western Texas College, 573-8511.

"We are pleased to have this outstanding group of speakers for the seminar," Baird said. "Stewman has been a successful showman and has worked with his family to produce stock show winners in many major shows. Wise is now vice president of the Santa Anna National Bank and manager of a sheep ranch and feedlot for Dr. Wesley Wise at Santa Anna. Hammack is based at Stephenville and works with show animals. He has also judged major shows."

Red Raiders see potential to contend in rugged SWC

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - With uncommon size, speed and experience, Texas Tech's Red Raiders loom as a time bomb in the Southwest Conference football chase this season and might make coach Jerry Moore's fourth year on the South Plains a memorable one.

"It looks like a wide open race," said Moore in assessing the 1984 prospects for his Raiders and their SWC opponents.

"I think the conference has a chance to be more balanced than it's been in some time," he said. "Somebody could run away with it but I don't see that right now."

Moore's most impressive off-season acquisition was a veteran coaching staff but he also has a team with more size, speed, talent and depth that at any time since his arrival in 1981.

The squad includes 27 seniors, giving it a new dimension in experience.

"We're going to be better this year, but so are most of the other conference teams," he said. "Just how much we've improved, only time is going to tell."

Moore said a few victories early on would enhance the team's confidence level and could propel the Red Raiders into the thick of the race.

The Raiders open at home against UT-Arlington, travel to Albuquerque to meet New Mexico and then entertain Baylor in the SWC opener.

"Realistically, we've got a chance to get off to a good start, but you never know," Moore said. "That's how it looked last year, too."

Tech unexpectedly dropped three non-conference games to Air Force, New Mexico and Tulsa and despite a fast start in SWC action limped to a 3-7-1 season.

Moore felt his kicking game cost the Raiders two or three more victories but he predicts that place kicker Ricky Gann and punter Dennis Vance will have a spectacular year.

"They're both fifth-year seniors, they've got the experience and the pressure shouldn't bother them," Moore said. "We're not the kind of team that can afford to go out and miss field goals or get 26-yard punts and stuff like that."

A total of 38 lettermen are returning, including eight starters on offense and six on defense.

Though veteran quarterback Jim Hart is gone, Moore said he thinks Perry Morren, another fifth-year senior, is an adequate successor and "the kind of guy who makes things happen."

He said his main concern is offensive consistency and added that "We are going to have to depend on a lot of young players for depth in the offensive line, so it's important that they get ready to play as quickly as possible."

The biggest plus, he said, is "the depth defensively, especially at linebacker and defensive end. Offensively, we return seven two-year starters and their experience should be a plus."

Newly acquired offensive coordinator Tom Wilson, a former Tech quarterback and head coach at Texas A&M, has a couple of premier players in guard Danny Buzzard and tight end Buzz Tatom and a stable of swift split ends and wide receivers.

Former Texas Longhorn assistant Spike Dykes, the new defensive coordinator, has half a dozen outstanding veterans back, including tackles Ronald Byers and Brad White, linebackers Dwayne Jiles and Mike Kinsey and cornerback Carl Carter.

Oilers looking to sign Rozier

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers would like to sign Mike Rozier, now under contract to a USFL team, but the running back will have to back off his current salary demands for that to happen, Oilers general manager Ladd Herzeg says.

Herzeg told the Houston Chronicle Wednesday his club plans to offer Rozier a contract in the range of those signed by the first two players selected in the 1984 draft, Irving Fryar and Dean Steinkuhler, Herzeg said.

Fryar, Steinkuhler and Rozier played at Nebraska last year, when Rozier won the Heisman Trophy.

But Rozier's agent, Art Wilkinson, said at a news conference in Pittsburgh that talk of his client leaving the Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League is premature.

"There has been a tremendous amount of recent press about Mike Rozier leaving the Maulers," Wilkinson said. "The Oilers saw fit to make what amounts to an open proposal in the form of a press release, issued (Tuesday) at their training camp.

"To set the record straight, we have not discussed in any formal setting any contract proposal or engaged in active negotiations about Mike becoming an Oiler before his contract with the Maulers ends after the 1986 season," he said.

Wilkinson also said that if the Oilers are really determined to limit Rozier's salary to what Steinkuhler and Fryar make, "Mike Rozier most certainly will remain a member of the Pittsburgh Maulers."

Fryar signed a four-year, $3.1 million deal with the New England Patriots and Steinkuhler signed with the Oilers for $2.6 million over four years.

Wilkinson, is seeking a $5.5 million to $6 million deal. Rozier's current contract is worth about $3.1 million over three years.

"The thing they have to understand is that Fryar and Steinkuhler have set the precedent as to what the market value is for a high first-round draft choice in 1984," Herzeg said. "Right now, Rozier's value has to be somewhere in the Fryar-Steinkuhler range, but he doesn't have as much value in 1984 as Fryar or Steinkuhler because he's missed so much time."

Ira to scrimmage; 4-A south rejects New Home effort

The south zone of District 4-1A will stay with five teams this season after officials voted Wednesday against permitting New Home to enter the league.

New Home had petitioned to enter the zone after Hermleigh dropped its varsity football program for the 1984-85 school year.

Teams in the south zone include Ira, Borden County, Highland, Grady and McCaulley. The north zone of 4-1A consists of Paint Creek, Weinert, Rochester, Jayton, Lueders-Avoca and Rule.

In other south zone related news, Borden County will scrimmage Whitharrel at Gail, 6 p.m. on Aug. 24. The Coyotes travel to Loop for their second scrimmage on Aug. 30, also at 6 o'clock.

Ira entertains Guthrie tonight and travels to Blackwell on Aug. 31 for another workouts. Both have 6:30 p.m. starting times.

WTC clubs will stage women's extravaganza

The Western Texas College Rodeo Club and the Rodeo Booster Club are sponsoring a Women's Extravaganza on Sept. 3, Bob Doty, WTC rodeo coach, has announced.

Events will be barrel racing, goat tying and breakaway roping. Prizes will include Skyline buckles valued at $400 each, with cash prizes one fourth the total gate prorated as to the number in each event, plus added money.

A Skyline buckle will also be given to the contestant who enters all three contests, places in at least two and wins the most money.

Entry fee for the barrel race is $75, with $10 of this going for office charges. Breakaway and goat tying contestants will pay an entry fee of $100 each with a $25 office and stock charge taken from the total.

Format for the barrels will be one round and a short round. In goat tying and breakaway, there will be two goes and a short round with the top 10 or 10 percent (whichever is greater) qualifying for the short go.

Entry deadline is Monday, Aug. 27. Cashier's checks or money orders for fees are to be made payable to Western Texas College and mailed to Doty in care of WTC, Snyder Texas, 79549.

Gooden sets Mets on fire

by The Associated Press

Dwight Gooden has yet to rewrite the record book, but he's already started on the dictionary.

Aside from being a walking definition of "promise" and "potential," the youngest player in the major leagues has drawn raves that test the language's supply of superlatives.

Gooden's numbers Wednesday - two runs allowed and nine strikeouts in the New York Mets' 5-2 victory over the San Diego Padres - were not stunning in themselves.

But - Gooden allowed the two runs on a Graig Nettles' homer, one of only three Padre hits in the game.

But - with the nine strikeouts, the 19-year-old Gooden became only the 11th rookie in baseball history to fan 200 batters. He ran his season total to 202, tops in baseball. He is 43 away from Herb Score's rookie record of 245 strikeouts.

And, to top it off, Gooden did not issue a walk. His strikeout-to-walk ratio this year is a truly startling 202-62.

"When I go out there I forget about my age," Gooden said. "If you can do the job you can do it whether you are 19 or 40."

Nettles' homer was the night's second record. In the last six games that Nettles has played he has homered.

Nettles, who turned 40 on Monday, has hit seven homers in those six games to tie a National League record also held by George Kelly, Walker Cooper and Willie Mays.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis downed Cincinnati 6-3, Houston stopped Chicago 8-3, Montreal defeated Los Angeles 5-3 in 11 innings, San Francisco outscored Philadelphia 7-5, and Pittsburgh bopped Atlanta 7-2.

In the American League, Kansas City beat Boston 6-2, Detroit shelled Oakland 11-4, Chicago clubbed Tornoto 13-3, Baltimore blanked Seattle 4-0, California nipped New York 2-1, Texas took Chicago 3-1, and Minnesota swept Milwaukee, winning the first game 5-2 and then the nightcap 4-3.

Cardinals 6, Reds 3

Joaquin Andujar gained his 17th victory, tops in the major leagues, and Bruce Sutter got the last out for his league-leading 34th save.

The Cardinals jumped on Mario Soto, 13-5, for two runs in the first and four in the third. Mike Jorgensen hit a three-run homer and Terry Pendleton added a two-run shot.

Soto and relievers Bob Owchinko, Ron Robinson and Tom Hume combined to strike out 14 Cardinal batters.

Ron Oester singled to extend his hitting streak to 21 games.

Pendleton's homer was his first in the major leagues.
