PEOPLE SETTLE DOWN TO RECONSTRUCTION IN FLOOD AREA

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, Nov. 7.—Many agencies leading a helpline hand in flood damaged New England, with Vermont towns the chief objective, have turned from rescue to relief. Efforts to feed and clothe the sufferers, here increasing fruit tonnage on the outside seeking to help the victims, fought and won over many obstacles.

While the toll of death from the flood was not yet fully told, the latest reports from the flood areas indicated that at least 132 persons lost their lives in the flood and accompanying storms.

Trucks supplemented the faster airplanes of slight carrying capacity which have played a lone hand in the first stage, flying with medicine and food to dozens of towns struck by flood.

Roads Washed Out.
There are no roads in many places for the trucks to use, but they pushed on any way and relieved several acute situations where food was at a minimum.

Bolton, one of Vermont's chief sufferers, however, remained out of and faced a problem of going hungry unless a way is found to furnish relief.

Major General Preston Brown, commanding the first corps area, who completed a survey from the side of the situation in northern Vermont, said tonight that the problem has become one of administration. He called the flood disaster the most serious that has come to the affected section and he paid high tribute to the spirit of the people. With an absence of anything approaching disorder he found the people attacking the task of reconstruction.

Communication is needed.
A pressing need, said General Brown, is to restore roads and railway tracks, that communication may be re-established and supplies sent to the stricken areas.

FLOOD CONTROL IS COMMITTEE TOPIC

VARIOUS DELEGATES URGE IMMEDIATE ACTION BY CONGRESS ON ISSUE

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The machinery of congress to devise means of controlling floods, currently in the Mississippi valley, was set in motion today with the opening of hearings by the House flood control committee.

Before approximately 1000 persons, representing the Chicago flood conference, Chairman Field of Illinois, reviewed the various phases of the problem, emphasizing that its solution was a national question of primary importance.

Major Thompson of Chicago, the first witness, described the hardships of flood victims which he witnessed during the flood which he said the city of Chicago realized the necessity of an immediate remedy of the problem.

Mayor O'Keefe of New Orleans, and Governor Small of Illinois and Governor Sawyer of Dakota, also stressed the necessity of action by the national government.

Representative Field declared that the "problem of flood control" will not be solved by following any single theory or form of defensive works, and added the plan should include "stronger levees, widening of channels and standpipes on the main river and its principal tributaries, spillways, outlets, by-passes and overflow reservoirs."

A suggestion that money for flood control be obtained by raising appropriations for prohibition enforcement was suggested by Anton J. Cernak, president of the Cook county, Illinois board.

Thirty Strike Leaders Thrown In Jail As Colorado Starts Final Drive On Picketing

RETURN FIRE IS STARTED IN JURY MEDDLING QUIZZ

BURNS HEAD CHARGES GOVERNMENT MAN SAW JUROR

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Back fires were started today from two different sources by those who have come under grilling in the government investigation of charges of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial.

William J. Burns, founder of the detective agency bearing his name, gave life to the first with a charge that the only agent who made contact with any member of the now dismissed jury was not a Burns' man, but an employee of the federal government itself. That employee, presumably gave the "lie" direct to that accusation.

Edward J. Kidwell, "Juror II," got back into the limelight by filing a petition with Justice Riddons asking for a contempt rule against the street car conductor and newspaper reporter who said he talked freely about the case during the trial and expressed the hope of getting an automobile "black lung."

Action on the petition was deferred.

Grand Jury Continues

While these events were occurring on the outside, the grand jury inquiring into formal charges of bribery, chief justice Henry M. Daugherty, of the department of justice bureau of investigation, was the first of the day's witnesses. He came out of the grand jury room bubbling over with conversation, which he carried on with newspaper correspondents for nearly an hour.

BURGLARS SWOOP DOWN ON SLATON

(Special to The Avalanche)
SLATON, Nov. 7.—Burglars, swooping down on Slaton on the wings of the week-end norther, raided one downtown store and two residences, and escaped with cash estimated at about $300 and other valuable odds and ends of jewelry, none of great value, however.

No arrests have as yet been made in connection with the burglaries. Sunday afternoon, while clerks were busy in the front of the Catehings' Drug Store, someone snatched about $250 in cash from the safe in the rear of the store. The combination was left open for but a few minutes, but in that short time the cash drawer was rifled.

Sunday night, while Harry Harris and his family were at church parlors entered the house and took $15 in cash and two purses.

STATE FORCE IS STRENGTHENED; MINERS SULLEN

DEFIANT ATTITUDE IS TAKEN BY SOUTHERN I. W. W. CHIEFS

(By Associated Press)
DENVER, Colo., Nov. 7.—Striking miners in Colorado's coal fields tonight found themselves without a directing hand following a concerted drive by state police which resulted in the arrest of all known strike leaders including a score of I. W. W. agitators.

Impressionment of 30 of the strike heads effected to total stamping out of picketing in the southern strike area. The state's determination to suppress such activity by the strikers was emphasized by the strengthening of a special state law enforcement unit. Governor W. H. Adams review this department last week to meet the strike emergency, exercising a statute that had been unused for many months.

Strikers Are Defiant.
Among the strike leaders held incommunicado in jail tonight were Roger Francison, chairman of the national executive committee of the I. W. W., and Kristen Svanson, in charge of all I. W. W. activities in the coal and metal mines. Members of the I. W. W. at Walsenburg hurled back at the state a declaration that "five new leaders will spring up for each one arrested."

While picketing prevailed in the southern section following the arrests, first reports were made of organized picketing in the mines north of Denver. Pickets prevented an attempt to operate the Imperial mine, which had been leased by 22 miners.

Nearly 200 pickets also blocked a road leading to the Columbine mine in Weld county, but miners reported for work without trouble. In Fremont county plans of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company to re-open the Rockvale and Coal-creek mines were thwarted when pickets visited the properties. No arrests were made. Twenty additional officers were sworn into the state law enforcement department today when word was received by state officials that the strikers intended dividing their forces into a number of small groups tomorrow to start methodical picketing.

Martin, who lives in Hidalgo county and is served by the defendant company also claimed it, together with a meeting of about 60 "sundry farmers," by "subterfuge, chicanery, wire pulling and undue pressure," set illegal water rates. The board was co-defendant because it ratified the rates fixed. Martin seeks $113,000 damages, citing various other alleged reasons for complaint.

Banquet At Tech Gives "Send-Off" To Stock-Judging Team, Leaving Tuesday

Gathered around a 115 pound roast pig which occupied the center of a spacious barbecue table, students of the Tech school of agriculture honored their senior stock judging team last night in the stock judging pavilion with a "send-off" assuring them that "every last one of us is back of you."

The team, headed by Coach Ray C. Mowery, leaves this afternoon for Wichita and Kansas City, Kansas, where they will match wits with the choice teams of the middle western states and Canada in the intercollegiate livestock judging contests at the Kansas National Livestock and the American Livestock Shows on Thursday and Saturday of this week. Between fifteen and twenty teams will take part in the contests, the Tech team being on its first out-of-state trip. Texas A. & M. will be the only other Texas team at the shows.

Approximately 80 students of the school were present together with President Paul W. Horn, E. W. Provenzo, Dean A. H. Leidigh, W. L. Strangely, C. H. Mahoney, K. M. Renner, H. J. Boyer and Coach Mowery, faculty members. A short program followed the feast in which President Horn, Dean Leidigh, Mr. Provenzo, Prof. Stangel, Mahoney and a number of students made short talks.

The 1927 team is composed of four of the men who won second place in the Fort Worth contest last spring and supporters here are confident that an excellent showing will be made. Boys making the trip with Mr. Mowery are: F. G. Blackmon, of Shallowater; Sam Chatham, of Idalou; L. C. Jennings, of Lubbock; Elton Sims, of Water Valley; R. C. Reed, of Stanton; Lennie Stutz, of Palestine and C. L. Weaver, of Levelland.

They will judge at the Kansas National in Wichita Thursday, November 10, and then the American Royal in Kansas City on Saturday, November 12. A large number of trophies and prizes will be awarded to the winners of the various classes. The contents will consist of judging of cattle, sheep, horses, and hogs.

The boys will return to Lubbock about Wednesday of next week.

Private men state that many farmers are holding their grain for higher prices while many expect to store and feed and market their crop on foot.

Carnegie Medal Is Conferred For Act Of Big Spring Girl

(Special To The Avalanche) BIG SPRING, Nov. 7.-The Carnegie hero fund commission of Pittsburgh has awarded a silver medal to L. V. Thompson of this city in recognition of the heroic act of his daughter, Mildred V. Thompson, who was drowned on May 24, 1925, attempting to save the life of a girl companion. Mildred was 14 years of age and succeeded in keeping Nancy Jones and Pearl Bostic from drowning until help arrived, but in doing so lost her own life. Out of 46 heroic acts recognized by the commission, Mildred Thompson was the only girl to lose her life in the performance of an heroic act.

Youth Cut In Fall From Motorcycle CANYON, Nov. 7.-Ed Colling, a student in the high school department of the West Texas State Teachers College, narrowly escaped death today when he fell from his motorcycle on a steep hill near Canyon. When picked up he was unconscious, bleeding profusely from both ears, and had a long gash in his scalp. Indications were that he had suffered a fractured skull; he was immediately rushed to a hospital in Amarillo.

JAPAN REGULATES DANCING TOKYO.-The modern dance imported from American shores the attentions of Japanese police. A number of licensed dance halls have been closed because there was too much "bugging" and "peep" holes have been installed by police at dance halls which have been permitted to continue. Every person who enters a dance hall must give his name to the policeman at the entrance. The police say western dancing is most immoral from the standpoint of the Japanese.

NORFLEET

The Manhunter's Own True Story
Gordon Hines

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD:—
Frank Norfleet, a Texas rancher, is swindled out of $45,000 by a gang led by Joe Furey. He resolves to track up this ring if it costs him his last cent. After considerable trouble he captures two of his men at San Bernardino, California and goes to Florida to continue his search. He is amazed and greatly handicapped by the duplicity of some of the police who seem to stand in with the swindlers and he has a narrow escape when posing as a sucker, in a gambling den. Later at Key West two pseudo-officers help Joe Furey to escape when it seems that Norfleet is sure to capture him. Tired and discouraged Norfleet returns home for a rest. His home is in a small apartment building. He has learned that Furey had purchased a stolen coat from a young shoplifter in San Antonio. He goes there and finds no trace of the coat but discovers in the Parsons Post records that an unnamed party had sent a mysterious package to an unnamed party at the same address. Following this clue, he stops at San Bernardino where, investigating the hotel records, he finds that Joe Furey has telephoned a number in Glendale. The number appears to be that of Joe Furey's home and Norfleet shadows the place, making the acquaintance of Furey's young son. Enlisting the help of the police department, Norfleet leaves two officers guarding the Furey home and goes to San Francisco where he makes a careful search. He then goes across the bay to Oakland to have a look there. Failing to find a trace of his men here, he goes back to San Francisco to investigate the Stanford-Court Apartment Club. After some effort and considerable difficulty Norfleet enlists the aid of Essie Carson, a young friend who dresses as a child of fourteen and plans to go to 504 Stanford Court pretending that she has a little dog to sell. She is to use whatever rug may occur to her to get a look at the apartment and its occupants.

Chapter Twenty-six
"If I was you, I'd get a little bit with the pop-eyed elevator boy. That will help to disarm him. If you learn nothing in the apartment, I want you to see the elevator boy pin your telephone number in his cap so that he can tell you when the man of the household get home. Promise him half the money you are to get from the puppy."
She dropped down over the wall, and I sat on the grass and watched her slip childishly across the street to the big entrance. I could look directly into the court, and saw her enter the building. She passed several of the uniformed employees, but they must have taken her for a child, for no one stopped her.
I waited. It seemed hours. I reasoned that her long absence was encouraging and consoled myself thoughtfully.
Lucille came back all smiles. I knew that she had had some success.
"Well," she gasped, thrilled beyond words, "it worked fine. What do you think?"
She told me how she had flirted a little with pop-eyes and how he had responded by flirting a little. She reached the apartment without a word of protest from anyone. A little boy answered the door.
She asked if they were ready to have their puppy delivered, and the child ran back, calling excitedly to his mother. A young lady came to the door and said that she was quite sure there was some mistake, her mother had not ordered a dog.
Lucille fumbled with the note in her hand.
"Why, I'm sure she did. The number is right. My mother told me to come and ask if you were ready to have it delivered."
The young lady reached for the slip of paper and Lucille gave it to her. She looked at it and stepped back into the room to confer with her mother. Then the mother came to the door. She was a middle-aged woman with an irritable expression and she snapped out her words declaring that she knew nothing of having ordered a dog.
Lucille showed her the slip and the woman examined it closely. Lucille was busy talking in as much of the apartment as she could see through the door. A black derby hat hung on a tree in the reception hall. Across a chair in the same room was a Hudson seal coat. She could see the photograph that resembled the corpulent Furey.
The woman said she did not want a dog and called attention to the slip, saying that it was probably meant to be 501. She remarked that they had had bad luck with dogs. The last one had died, and she did not wish to try to keep another in the apartment.
"Did he sit at the fire?" Lucille inquired, with much interest.
The woman replied that he had.
Lucille was deeply grieved and very sympathetic. She said that her mother had a remedy for canine incense that had never failed and that she would be glad to send the recipe. "To whom shall I send it?"
"I'd be glad to get it. I am Mrs. Mabel H. Harrison."
Lucille remarked that she must be getting home or her mother would be worried. During the conversation Mrs. Harrison had passed the door, nervously passing her hand to her forehead as if greatly upset about something. Perceptively she stood out on her forehead and her hands twitched. As Lucille turned away, the door was slammed.
On the elevator, Lucille told the porter that she was going to see the puppy. He was sorry to sell the puppy. He was sorry too, she explained that the little boy had said that he might get the puppy when his father came home she asked if he happened to know down at San Antonio who was doing time in prison in order that Mabel H. Harrison might sport a Hudson seal coat. Surely, Furey knew that the erring child had been convicted and sentenced. I came to know him well enough, later, to realize that he never allowed himself to worry about the helpless souls he had crushed, figuratively, beneath his heavy heels. The kid in San Antonio had just as well be in jail all out; she would probably have got there anyway. Besides, Mabel would run him crazy for a new coat, and that was an easy way to get it. So he reasoned.

Mrs. Harrison's agitation as reported actually troubled with a conscience or had she received ill news from Joe Furey? I couldn't drop it out, so I dropped worrying about it. That evening, Lucille, Mrs. Carson and I celebrated with a little dinner, we enjoyed ourselves greatly and I could not express my gratitude to the girl.
Shortly before midnight, I returned to my hotel and found a message for me from Officer X, asking me to get in touch with him immediately. I could not reach him at that hour, but called him early in the morning at his office in the Hall of Justice. I told him nothing of the Stanford Court affair.

A little later I dressed and went to see him. He seemed very glad to see me and I couldn't imagine why. I had little confidence in his good intentions, so far as my case was concerned. He said he had received a wire from a certain Los Angeles party, which said that Furey was registered at the U. S. Grant Hotel in San Diego, and he advised me to get down there as quickly as possible. He told me the best route to take to save time.
I hardly knew what to do. I suspected him, of trying to lead me from Furey's trail rather than to ward it, but I could not afford to pass up a hot tip if I was misjudging the man. He became anxious to get me started, going so far as to put my hat on my head and take my arm to lead me out.
In the outer office, in the presence of other officers, I remarked, "Well X if you hear anything of Furey or my other man, let me know."
His manner changed. Apparently he did not want the others to know that he advised the trip to San Diego. His reply was sarcastic.
"I'll let Jesse Brown know. I don't recognize you in this case at all."

That must have been said for effect, what effect I could not guess unless it was to establish the thought in the minds of his fellow officers that he would not give me information if he had it.
I told him that I was the party most interested in the case, that I was paying all the bills, and that I was an officer. I could see no reason why I should not receive information about my own affairs.
He came back with a snappy retort of his former remark and urged me to get going toward San Diego.
I barely reached the train before it departed. Officer X watched me until the train pulled out.
I got off the train at Los Angeles and called at the office of Al Manning, undersheriff. He said Anderson and Lips were still on duty, that the place would be well watched and that there was no news of any kind. I did not see either of the deputies.
I said nothing to him about the San Diego tip. X's wife had been from some officer in Los Angeles, according to his own statement, but as Manning did not mention it, I concluded the he knew nothing of it. Probably he didn't.
I went to see District Attorney Woolsting and told him of the over-sage. He made no comment but gave me Kirkman, one of his trusted detectives, to go to San Diego with me.
Kirkman registered at the U. S. Grant Hotel and I went to a smaller hotel under the name of a friend of Furey, under any of his aliases. He also searched other possible haunts in the city very conscientiously and found not a single indication that Furey had been in San Diego, in many months.

I was perplexed. Perhaps he might have gone over to Tinajas for the races. Immense crowds were going over and many of the swindling fraternity work such places or make them for recreation between jobs. I concluded it might pay me to have a look. Kirkman went back to Los Angeles, and I went over the border to one of Mexico's worst hell-holes.

Varied Physical Training Is Given Canyon Students

CANYON, Nov. 7.—Five hundred forty-nine young women are receiving physical education at the West Texas State Teachers College here. Mrs. Ethel Gray Shaw, head of the department, gives instruction to 314 girls each week, and her assistant, Miss Ruth Cross, has 236 in her classes.
Swedish gymnastics, swimming, indoor games, outdoor games, folk dancing, and public school gymnastics make up the activities of the girls.
Field hockey is a new sport for women here and is being enthusiastically received by them. The game requires a high degree of skill and considerable endurance. Competition between teams adds to the zest of the game. The unusually warm weather and absence of rain have made this fall a favorable time to start this new sport.

CANYON STUDENTS ARE GENERALLY VERY HONEST
CANYON, Nov. 7.—College students are usually honest if those in the Teachers College at this place are typical. Lost articles of considerable value, none of them with identifying marks, including wrist-watches, purses, containing money, fountain pens and many other things have been placed in the office of the dean of women to be returned to their owners.

Miss Mary McLenn, the dean of women, believes that this apparently unusual degree of honesty indicates a fine solidarity of feeling and realization of common interests within the student body which numbers more than 1100 students.

UNUSUAL TERMS AND DIFFERENT PLANS OF PURCHASE CAN BE ARRANGED

The following plan provides that one-half of the purchase price or $17.50 per acre can be paid under the Crop Mortgage Notes Plan. Purchaser delivers one-third of all cotton raised each year until the proceeds from one-third of all cotton raised on land purchased pays the $17.50 per acre in full. Purchaser to plant at least one-third of all land purchased, in cotton each year. Cotton seed and all other crops raised to belong to the purchaser. Purchaser to pay all ginning charges.

$ 5.00 per acre cash.
$ 6.00 per acre due in 10 years.
$ 6.50 per acre famous Amortization plan.
$17.50 per acre payable as stated above from one-third of all cotton raised.

Total $35.00 per acre.

ATTENTION

The purchaser shall pay seven per cent interest annually on the Crop Mortgage Notes, and also on the $6.00 per acre note due in 10 years. The $6.50 per acre payment under the famous amortization plan, represents a loan due the Dallas Joint Stock Land Bank, which bears six per cent interest payable semi-annually, also approximately one per cent annually payable semi-annually on the principal, which payments will completely pay off this $6.50 per acre loan and all interest by the year 1957.
