"Be it resolved by the directors of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce that they look with favor upon tests which may be put down upon any undeveloped acreage near Wichita Falls and that they will be glad to see such citizens as may feel able to donate on the strictly donation basis to these projects just as they would to any other new enterprise on their own investigation." This action was taken by the chamber of commerce. "We will try and plan" said Cyrus

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Cary Mays, with one of his masterful exhibitions of box work, pitched the Yankess to a well-earned victory over the Giants in the first game of the 1921 world's series at the Polo grounds today. The blond American League twirler of the underhand delivery held the National Leaguers runless, the final score being New York Americans 3; New York Nationals 0.

It was not without some fine fielding behind Mays, some pretty work with the stick and clever running on the bases that the Yankees were able to get the jump in the first all-New York series ever played for world baseball honors. Babe Ruth, king of the long distance clouters, although he didn't make any home runs, was there with a timely hit and some inspiring and heady coaching on the lines. Mike McNally, the Yankees' third baseman, rated as one of their weakest hitters, contributed a double, which blossomed into a run and jumped into a niche in the world series hall of fame by tearing off a neat steal of home in the fifth inning for the second run of the game.

The Yankee victory was won against a determined Giant defense, the sterling feature of which was a well pitched game by Phil Douglas, the Nationals' spit ball star. Douglas had the slugging Ruth at his mercy after the fourth inning, striking the Babe out twice amid roars of approval from Giant rooters.

Douglas left the game in the eighth when Earl Smith, pinch hitter went to bat for him and flied out to Ruth. Barnes pitched the ninth inning for the Giants and was clouted for two hits.

In the field Ruth played well, getting four of the five outfield putouts. In the third inning he gave his admirers a heart pang when he caught Douglas' high fly and let it bounce out of his hands. He managed to recover the ball, however, before it could fall to the ground. He was cheered every time he came to the plate and every time he caught a fly.

In the Giants' lineup, Frank Frisch, their stellar third baseman, ran true to his spectacular form, getting four of the nationals' five hits, one of them a triple, and handling brilliantly everything that came his way.

As a whole the Giants played a heady, consistent game, except that the usually reliable Bancroft at short was a little unsteady at times—although in no instance to the detriment of his team. Their ability to hit Mays, however, was fatal, together with the unexpected dash shown by the Yankees on the base paths, the latter literally on this occasion, beating the Giants at what was supposed to be their own game.

They All Watch Babe

Undoubtedly from the standpoint of the more than 30,000 spectators in stands and bleachers the appearance of Babe Ruth at the plate was the big attraction of the afternoon. It was his first inning blow—a slashing single to center—that sent Miller home with the first Yankee run. Ruth on that occasion went out himself in a fast double play. On his second trip to the plate he received a base on balls. In the sixth and eighth innings, he struck out.

"Bob" Meusel, the Yankees heavy hitting rightfielder, another focal point of popular interest, did something toward living up to his reputation as a long distance clouter by finding Phil Douglas for a hit in the

Texas Representative Ridicules Foreign Affairs Policy of President Harding.

Peace by Treaties and Peace by Resolution Shows Considerably Changed Attitude.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS.
(Record News Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—"They may change the name plate; they may get a new license number; they may put in plush seat covers; they may put on a loud and insistent horn; but they are climbing into the same car in which Wilson rode and they are cautiously peering down the same road that he followed, looking for his tracks—they know no other route."

That is the metaphorical position of the republican party with reference to foreign affairs as voiced by representative Tom Connally of Texas in an interview today.

"Paradoxical' is the one word that describes the entire situation, according to Connally who, after recalling the bitter criticism leveled by the republican shocks troops at the democratic foreign policies, declared that the single departure by the republicans from the condemned Wilson policies has brought upon them confusion and embarrassment.

"Mr. Wilson tried to make peace with Germany by a treaty,' Connally said. "He knew that was the proper method. Senator Harding, in accepting the republican nomination said:

'I promise formal and effective peace so quickly as a republican congress can pass its declaration for a republican executive to sign.'

"That was a campaign pledge to nact the Knox peace resolution and it was forced through congress in June of the present year. The democrats unavailingly pointed out that peace could not be 'formally and effectively made by means of a resolution by congress, but that the only 'formal and effective' manner of making peace was by treaty; that the rights of the United States and her citizens could only be secured by some

The Haynes, which the Record News will give away as their capital prize, is one of a long line of Sensible Six's that have been attracting attention in the automobile world for several years. The noted easy riding qualities of the Haynes are the result of the long, slow, acting, underslung rear springs and large tires—attributes to be found only in the highest priced cars. In all Haynes, the low setting bodies, with wide spinging doors are very easy to enter, the large seats afford ample room for the proper number of occupants and the leg space and deep, luxurious upholstery add immensely to their comfort. Owners of Haynes Sensible Six's report constantly getting 18 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline. And mileages of 8,000 per set of tires are usual, while records of 12,000 miles are not infrequent.

The Haynes engine in its entirety is a capable, dependable smooth performer, accomplishing difficult tasks with least evidence of effort or strain.

Underlying all these qualities is a soundness of design and construction that insures the highest utility with the least possible cost.

The record News considered all these qualities when it went to make up its $10,000 prize list, and that the Haynes was selected as one of the prize cars, is ue to its popularity and the certainty that people like it.

The Haynes has been purchased and is on display at the Nolen-Stringer Motor Car Company. If you will call there, they will be glad to show it to you.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOLS SHOWS A BIG INCREASE

All Records for Single Year's Growth Broken by Attendance Shown at Beginning This Year.

Taken to Indicate Stability of Population and Equality of Numbers With Those of Census.

Statistical denial that Wichita Falls may be losing some of the population shown in the federal census, taken during the height of the oil boom is advanced by the numbers of school children enrolled in the city schools, according to comparative estimates given out Wednesday from the office of Superintendent Leg Clark. At the end of the first month of the current scholastic year the total atendance is shown to be 4,967, a gain of more than 500 over that of last year, when 4,430 had been enrolled at the same date.

Teachers announce that this is the biggest gain for any one year in the history of the city schools, the largest previous increases being in the neighborhood of 250 and 300. However, the officials assert, the schools have continually shown gains.

The students of this year also claim another record breaker in the number of students in the graduating class, which at the end of the first month has 116 members, exceeding the numbers in last years class during the first month by thirty-five.

For the members of the senior class, Edward Kadane, class president, declares that they mean to continue and break all past records for the number to be graduated in one body when commencement time shall come. The largest class in the history of the local schools to be graduated was in 1920 when eighty-three received diplomas. The members of this years class declare that at least 100 members will be on the rostrum at the commencement exercises of 1922.

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 5.—David Bunn, negro, tonight confessed to having attempted an attack on members of a camping party at Lake Worth last night and to the theft of jewels valued at $1,500. The negro was found at his home with the jewels in his possession at the time of his arrest. He was taken to Dallas to avoid mob violence, where police are attempting to connect him with an attack made upon a white woman near here several days ago.

Officers arrested the negro whom they had trailed for ten hours, when he attempted to make his escape in an automobile. His indictment by the grand jury will be asked tomorrow morning.

Bunn was identified by members of the party who were victims of his assault Tuesday night.

KLAN CLASH VICTIM DIES OF WOUNDS

Officials Believe Outcome of Injury Sufficient for Immediate Action.

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 5.—With the death today of Louis Crow, 61, prominent local laundry owner, whose wounds, received in a fight at Lorena Saturday night when Sheriff Bob Buchanan attempted to stop a Ku Klux Klan parade in which nine other men were injured were, the first to prove fatal, announcement of the date whe nthe McLennan county grand jury will be summoned to investigate the incident was awaited here with keen interest.

Until a late hour tonight, neither District Judge R. I. Munroe nor County Attorney F. B. Tierey had indicated when the jury would be called although both reiterated today their opinion that no action should be taken until the outcome of the wounds of those more seriously injured in the clash is known.

At this time, however, Mr. Crow was still alive and belief was expressed tonight that officials would consider the outcome of his injury was sufficient to warrant immediate action.

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 5.—"I have nothing whatever to say," replied Governor Neff tonight when questioned concerning the Lorena battle in which Louis Crow, 61, prominent laundry proprietor here, was killed and nine other men were wounded, after Sheriff Bob Buchanan and deputies attempted to halt a Ku Klux Klan parade Saturday.

Evading friends and newspaper men alike, the governor slipped quietly into Waco late tonight and clambered through a window into his old law office here, where he spent more than an hour before being found. He plans to return to Austin tomorrow.

Crowds of people who lined the streets until a late hour, expecting a Ku Klux Klan parade, began to thin out after 10 o'clock. No disorders were reported.

Three other victims of the Lorena street battle are still in a critical condition, but are reported resting easily tonight. Sheriff Buchanan is not yet able to undergo an operation for the removal of the bullet which pierced his lung.

Both Prosecutor Tirey and District Judge R. I. Munroe, curtly refused to comment on the calling of the grand jury. They formerly stated the date would be set when the condition of the more seriously wounded was ascertained.

Sheriff Buchanan and Ed Howard, among the more seriously wounded, and five others injured during the encounter, were reported by their physicians tonight as improving. Although it was at first thought that the wounds of Howard and the sheriff would likely prove fatal, it is now believed they will recover.

TEXAS SYNOD HOLDS FIRST SESSION HERE

State Meeting of Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., Convenes With Meeting Wednesday Night.

Dallas Pastor Named as Moderator, With Stamford Pastor as Alternate; Synodical Meet Today.

Electing Dr. Glenn L. Sneed of Dallas, Trinity Presbyterian church, as moderator, and Dr. Callen W. Yates of Seymour as vice moderator, the annual meeting of the Synod of Texas of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., was formally opened on Wednesday night in the First Presbyterian church, where the sessions will be held.

The state meeting followed the annual session of the Amarillo Presbytery, held in the local First Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday, at which time delegates to the synod and other business was attended to.

Today and Friday and Saturday the Women's Synodical missionary society will be held concurrently with the synod sessions, and synod will continue through Monday, coming to a close Monday at noon. By Tuesday night around seventy-five delegates and visitors to the two meetings had been registered.

The opening session Wednesday night was in the form of a public program, with the retiring moderator, Rev. W. B. Preston of Teague, delivering the opening sermon.

Mayor W. D. Cline delivered the address of welcome to the synod delegates and visitors, following his introduction by Dr. N. E. Grafton, the pastor of the local church as the most versatile speaker he had ever known. Mr. Grafton stated that he had heard the mayor make welcome addresses on many different occasions and to many different sorts of people, and that he was anxious to hear "just what he would say to a bunch of preachers."

In his welcome the mayor entirely justified the adjective "versatile" applied to him, and after a number of good natured sallies, in his customary humorous vein, turned to seriousness.

"I have had the pleasure in the past few months," he said, "to deliver welcoming addresses to a federation of women's clubs, representing the homes; and to a big teachers

VICTIMS DIE IN BURNING TRAP AT FRENCH CAPITAL

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Seventeen of those injured in the tunnel wreck have died in hospitals, according to the Havas agency, bringing the total number of dead in the tunnel wreck to 33. Exploration of the 17 burned cars has not yet been possible and it is feared that they contain additional victims.

The accident is said to have been due to the breaking of an airbrake pipe on the first train and it is thought that the train following came into collision through faulty working of the signals.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—A rear end collision of two suburban trains in the half mile tunnel leading to the St. Labare railroad station tonight led to terrifying scenes and the death of many persons bound on their homeward journey from Paris. The wrecked cars burst into flames and the disaster was made all the more terrible by the explosion of a gas reservoir.

At a late hour tonight the total known dead numbered 16. Twenty persons are known to have been seriously injured and 60 others were slightly injured. This, however, gives no idea of the extent of the disaster, because the firemen and others engaged in the work of rescue have been unable to get any distance within the tunnel, owing to the gas fumes.

The fire spread with great rapidity and for a time cries of distress and moans of the dying were heard on all sides, but these finally were silenced, though the crackling of the blazing wood coaches could still be heard.

"Vision of Hell."

The firemen were not prepared for the barrage of poisonous fumes which assailed them as they reached the scene. Finally they succeeded in playing four streams on the last coaches at the St. Lazare end of the tunnel, but these were empty and not burning while 17 coaches in the center of the tunnel, far away from the firemen's efforts, were burning fiercely. At no time could they get closer than five hundred feet from the inferno. Nevertheless, every now and then a passenger with blackened face would come straggling out, begging the helpless firemen, police and soldiers to enter the tunel and save those dying within.

"The minister of public work, who early on the scene helping to direct the rescue work, described it as a "vision of hell." He announced that the dead would be buried and the injured receive medical treatment at the expense of the state. A hundred thousand commutors, who, every evening depart homeward from the St. Lazare station surrounded the yards but were refused admittance. As a consequence there was an immense amount of confusion and many of the commutors repaired to the barracks, placed at their disposal by the government.

PRIVATE OWNERS ARE ADMITTED TO PART IN RED RIVER HEARINGS

Private parties having claims to lands now under dispute between the states of Texas and Oklahoma and the United States will be represented [illegible] in the hearing now being conducted here and in all future hearings having to do with the establishment of the south bank of the Red river, according to an order received Wednesday night from the Supreme Court of the United States.

The order was received by Frederick Tyler, special commissioner, before whom the hearings are held just before the night session opened at the court house. Mr. Tyler read the order, which in effect gives attorneys representing private Texas claimants the same rights at the hearing as have been exercised by officers representing of Texas, Oklahoma and United States.

The order from the Supreme Court [illegible] presented to that body Tuesday at Washington by Joseph Weldon Bailey, former United States senator from Texas, who was representing the private claimants.

Attorneys representing the private claimants [illegible] Judge A. H. Carrigan, were excluded from taking part in the hearing some weeks ago by Special Commissioner Tyler when the hearings were being held at several points in Oklahoma. In barring the attorneys representing the private claimants, Mr. Tyler said that [illegible] at that time the hearing was purely a matter between the states of Texas, Oklahoma and the United States.

The attorneys concerned took exception to his ruling at that time and it was through their efforts that the matter was brought to the attention of the supreme court Tuesday.

The order Wednesday night resulted in a delay in the taking of testimony. A dispute immediately arose among the attorneys representing the states, the United States, and the private litigants as to what part of the costs in connection with the hearing the new entries into the hearing should pay. It was explained by Commissioner Tyler that the supreme court in ordering the hearings at which the voluminous testimony has been and is being taken failed to provide for the incidental costs which has already totaled thousands of dollars. In the past Texas, Oklahoma and United States have each paid a third of the cost.

It was suggested that this cost with the entry of the private litigants be split four ways, a plan which failed to [illegible] the support of the attorneys representing the private interests. After several plans had been suggested and refused Mr. Tyler appointed J. T. Montgomery, C. B. Felder, C. L. Bass, representing private claims, Attorney General Cureton, representing Texas, Assistant Attorney General George Short, representing Oklahoma, and John Fain, special assistant, representing the United States.

The committee will report this morning when the hearing will be continued.

TOM CONNOLLY BLISTERS THE G. O. P. LEADERS form of treaty and that eventually one must be made.

A Foolish Pledge.

"The project of peace by resolution of congress was denounced as merely a pretense to redeem a foolish campaign pledge. The democratic position has been amply vindicated by the conduct of the administration itself. Though the Knox peace resolution passed both bodies and was signed by the president, no proclamation of peace was ever issued."

The administration acted as though the resolution had not been enacted by congress, Connally said, and immediately proceeded to negotiate new and separate treaties of peace with Germany and Austria, which now are pending in the senate.

"If 'formal and effective' peace could have been brought about by a resolution of congress, what was the necessity for separate treaties?" demanded Connally. "The administration has realized that the resolution could not bring about peace, has abandoned its plan and has embraced the democratic policy of peace by treaty."

After all the republican tumult and disturbance at the alleged perils of the Versailles treaty? the Texan pointed out the administration has made it the basis for the present treaties, minus the League of Nations.

Although the republicans inveighed lastily against the appointment of representatives of the United States on international commissions, the present treaty specifically provides for such appointment, Connally declared.

Borah Given Double Cross.

"Strangely enough," he said, "Senator Borah is now bitterly fighting the present treaties because he says they take the United States into European entanglements through the 'back door instead of the front door.'

"But these treaties were not negotiated by Wilson and practically a solid republican vote will be recorded for their ratification. Last, but by no means least, Senator Borah says that it is the plan of the administration to finally have the United States enter the League of Nations.

"President Harding says he favors an 'association of nations' and Secretary of State Hughes, during the campaign, stated that the surest method for those who really wanted the United States to enter a real league was to vote for Harding."

Recurring to the paradoxical position in which the republican party finds itself, Connally declared that to a considerable degree, President Harding has followed the bitterly condemned policies of President Wilson, not only as to Mexico, and the Island of Yap, but in the dispute between Costa Rica and Panama.

"What is more striking, however," he said, "was the appointment by President Harding of 'observers' on the Reparation Commission, the Council of Ambassadors and the Supreme Council.

In Wilson's Footsteps.

"Denunciation of President Wilson for such a course could not be too severe, but President Harding very soon after taking office, felt called upon, even in the absence of a treaty to follow a similar course."

Connally recalled how President Harding and the Republican orators, in the last campaign made their chief attacks on the foreign policy of the democratic president and administration.

"The foreign policies of President Wilson were their constant target—nothing that he did was right, "Connally said." Here were leveled their bitterest assaults; here their choicest shock troops, Lodge, Hiram Johnson and Borah were hurled against our lines; here their smoke screens and poison gases were directed in largest measure.

"After Senator Harding became President Harding, however, when the zeal of the candidate was sobered by a resolution of his responsibilities, when there was no longer necessity in the heat of contest to criticize President Wilson in order to make an issue, the president found that it was more difficult to conduct the foreign affairs of the United States than it was to attack their conduct by another."

Major General Wood Retires From Army After Thirty-Six Years of Meritorious Service

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Major General Leonard Wood retired today from active service in the army to accept appointment as governor-general of the Philippine Islands, thus terminating voluntarily more than thirty-six years of distinguished military life. His retirement was caused by insistence of administration officials that he accept the new post and the refusal of congress to permit him to do so while continuing his active army status.

In announcing the general's retirement, Secretary Weeks said he would select a vice-governor for the islands and expected immediately to commission General Wood to duty as governor-general. He announced also that nominations would be forwarded to congress without delay promoting Brigadier General Charles J. Bailey, commanding the second coast artillery district, to fill the vacancy caused by General Wood's retirement.

General Wood began his army career as a contract surgeon in June, 1885, immediately entering service with troops in the Apache campaign in Arizona and northern Mexico. As commander of an infantry detachment in that campaign he was commended "for gallant and hazardous service, courage and energy" and later was awarded the congressional medal of honor.

When the Indians were pacified and their leader, Geronimo, taken, the surgeon dropped his fighting weapons temporarily and again returned to the practice of medicine and surgery at army headquarters in Arizona. He continued in army medical service until 1898, but when the Spanish-American war was declared in that year, he entered combat ranks, organized and commanded the first United States volunteer cavalry (Rough Riders) and later was transferred to command the second brigade, cavalry division, in the Cuban campaign, in which capacity he entered the fight at Las Guasimas and San Juan, Santiago.

When the Spanish forces surrendered, the general was appointed military governor of the island of Cuba. He turned the government of the island over to the first president of the republic of Cuba in 1902 and returned to the United States.

About a year later he was ordered to proceed to the Philippines as commander of the department of Mindanao. He also acted as civil governor of the Moro province and in other administrative work until 1908. The experience and understanding of the natives thus gained and later as a member of the special commission sent by the president to investigate conditions in the Philippines undoubtedly were responsible for his selection for the new post.

His record in the world war began with his assignment to select for the war department the sites of the great majority of the training camps for national guard and national army troops in the southeastern department, which he then commanded.

Later he was assigned to Camp Funston, Kan., to organize the eighty-ninth division. With other divisional officers he went on a preparatory inspection trip to France while the American army was in the making and was injured there by the bursting of a French gun.

On his return to the United States, General Wood completed the training of the eighty-ninth for battle, but got no chance to serve with it abroad as he was relieved on the eve of embarkation, precipitating a controversy that raged in the press for months, even during General Wood's campaign for the republican nomination for the presidency.

An achievement for which General Wood has been greatly praised was the development of the "Plattsburg idea" of civilian training camps.

ARBUCKLE ATTORNEY WITHDRAWS

sary time in San Francisco to carry on Arbuckle's defense in the courts there.

Miss Rappe, it is charged, died of injuries received at a party Arbuckle gave in his suite of rooms at the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

Domingues in his letter declared he knew Arbuckle was innocent of the charge against him and expressed confidence that the motion picture comedian would be cleared. He said he was sure justice and fair play would be accorded Arbuckle in San Francisco.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 5.—The manslaughter charge against Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle for the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, who is declared to have died following injuries suffered from the comedian at a drinking party in the Hotel St. Francis here a month ago, was on the calendar of the superior court here today, but the defendant was several hundred miles away at his home in Los Angeles.

It was learned last night from Charles Brennan, one of the defense attorneys, that Arbuckle's presence in court today was not deemed necessary as the case will come up only for instruction and arraignment. District Attorney Brady, however, intimated that he opposed Arbuckle's absence and probably would ask continuance until next Friday to enable him to come to San Francisco and appear.

Federal action against Arbuckle in connection with alleged Volstead act violations are to be held up for some time, it was announced by Robert H. McCormack, special assistant to the attorney of the United States. McCormick said he had cancelled plans which called for the immediate arrest of the comedian on a charge of unlawful possession of liquor until after full investigation of the alleged disappearance of $40,000 worth of assorted liquors from Gobey's restaurant, declared by McCormack to have been the source of the liquor supply consumed by quests at Arbuckle's party.

Late last night McCormack made public a telegram which he had received from Wayne B. Wheeler, chief counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, in Washington and which demanded immediate and vigorous prosecution of Arbuckle and others who attended his party for alleged violations of the prohibition laws. McCormack replied, he said, that a full investigation was being made and that he would undoubtedly prosecute the persons involved.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

Edwards to H. N. F. "The chamber of commerce endorsed our purpose to drill on the Hund farm at Call Field. We have decided to divide the proposition into 32,000 units and sell 600 units at $5 each, C. T. Boaz being the trustee of the interests and W. E. Wilson being the agent of the funds. This will entitle all donors to their share of the units and also avoid the double liability that so many fear. When paving oil or gas is struck a state corporation can be organized. I will personally take 50 units, thus backing my own judgment with cold cash. We earnestly and sincerely request the people of this city to subscribe to these units; make out check to W. E. Wilson, agent, Morgan building, Wichita Falls. The money will not be dispersed until 600 units have been sold. There are a great many wealthy property owners who can well afford to gamble on this fine prospect and we present it as a business proposition for the benefit of the people who make Wichita Falls their permanent home. Every member of the chamber of commerce should respond to this appeal to the extent of at least $5 for one unit. When the drill penetrates the first oil sand the units will sell for $10. Fifteen hundred dollars has been pledged thus far by a few citizens who at once answered the call. The derrick has been erected but operations will not be renewed until the small amount of money required can be secured.

World's Largest Greyhound Of the Seas Equipped With Every Known Safety Device

This will be the proud boast of the mammoth steamer Majestic, when she slides from her cradle, at Hamburg, next spring to take her place in the fleet of White Star liners plying between this city and Southampton. The steamer will be of 56,000 tons, two thousand tons larger than the Levia than.

The Majestic, formerly the Bismarck, was started in Germany before the war for the eGrman Hamburg-American Line. Under the terms of the Versailles Treaty which dismantled and destroyed the German merchant and passenger marine, the Majestic was taken over by the Allied Reparations Commission and sold in open market to the White Star Line.

The vessel will be a fuel burner, 956 feet long and capable of twenty-six knots an hour. There will be 1,245 staterooms on the liner, and she will be able to accommodate 4,100 passengers. A crew of 1,100 will be required to man the ship.

Every convenience and luxury that money can purchase, that architectural skill can devise and decorative cunning create have been lavished to make the Majestic a floating palace. All the furnishings are of superlative character. In addition to a luxuriant ballroom, salon, smoking room and main dining room, the liner will have:

A Pompeian swimming bath of marble, 820 square feet in area, 9 feet deep, with capacity for 130 tons of water.

A squash tennis court.

A conservatory for preserving flowers received by passengers on sailing.

A space for concerts, with a stage adapted to motion-picture exhibits or vaudeville.

Special quarters for dogs and other pets.

A library of 4,000 volumes.

A veranda cafe on deck, with flowering shrubs and trailing vines.

A playroom for children, fitted with nursery equipment.

A large, elaborately fitted gymnasium.

Carries Nine Decks

For purpose of comparison and to better appreciate the gigantic dimensions of the Majestic, the ship, if placed upright would tower 164 feet above the Woolworth building, the tallest structure in the world. The tonnage of the ship is nearly equal to the combined tonnage of 132 ships of the old Spanish Armada. The New York subway trains could pass abreast through any of the three smokestacks of the vessel. Four times around the ship's promenade deck is a mile.

Every known safety device against fire and sinking is being employed. Watertight compartments, a double bottom hull, smoke-detecting apparatus and an elaborate fire-alarm points connecting with a central station, are used. In addition, a complete telephone system will connect every part of the ship.

There will be nine decks on the Majestic—from the lower hold to the upper promenade. Elevators will be used to facilitate passage from deck to deck. Eight turbines for driving the vessel will be used. The weight of a main turbine is 375 tons.

SHOW LOOKS FOR EVENT OF INTEREST

It is whispered around the Gentry Bros. show here, Oct. 15, that a most interesting event is soon to occur; how soon, nobody knows; neither is anyone with the show versed in the usual method of procedure in this case without a precedent.

The manager himself, who is usually able to cope with any animal emergency, is at a loss as to what to do; no baby camels have ever been born with the show; the experts are up against it as it were.

If there is anybody in this vicinity that has had actual experience in such matters, they are requested to make themselves known, and they will be received with open arms, when the show gets here on Oct. 18th; money is no object now, experience is what counts.

The two attendants of Mrs. Camel have already fashioned a bottle out of a pickle keg and an inner tube, and are preparing for the worst, which is yet to come.

KENTUCKY GIRL WRITES LETTER

How She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sunnyside, Ky.—"I suffered for more than two years with my back and nervousness, and was not able to help my mother do the housework. I took treatment from two doctors and they did not do me any good. Mother saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the paper and I took about ten bottles. It has done me a great deal of good. I weigh 138 pounds and am in good health. I will gladly recommend Vegetable Compound to anyone who suffers with the troubles which I had, and you are welcome to publish my testimonial."—VELMER HENDRICK, Route 1, Sunnyside, Ky.

To many American girls life is often a heavy drag in consequence of illness, and every mother should heed the first manifestations, such as cramps, backaches, headaches and nervousness as Mrs. Hendrick did for her daughter, and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. For over forty years this old fashioned root and herb medicine has been relieving women of just such troubles.

Business Council To Hold First of Meetings Friday

Initiation of the new year's work by the Business Council, Chamber of Commerce has been set for Friday noon of this week, according to a call addressed to the members over the signature of T. B. Noble, president of the organization, and J. C. Mytinger, chairman of the council, in which they point out improvements in conditions, and urge now as the time for effective civic work.

The letter follows:

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party. The summer with its heat and depression, in business has gone. October has opened with two advances in the price of oil and another advance predicted. One new railroad out of Wichita Falls is finished and operating and surveyors are going into the field next week to begin work on a new line giving Wichita Falls a direct outlet northward. From the Eastern financial centers good news has come which indicates a revival of business and a rapid return to normal.

"The Chamber of Commerce of Wichita Falls has been the central agency for the advancement of this city's interests through good times and hard times and it will continue to be the clearing house of the most courageous thought and action in this community.

"The Business Council will hold its first meeting this fall on Friday, October 7, at 12 o'clock in the Kemp Hotel at luncheon. All the directors who are in town will be present. All members of the council are expected to be present and every member is invited to be present. It will be necessary to make reservations at the Chamber of Commerce up to 10 o'clock Friday morning.

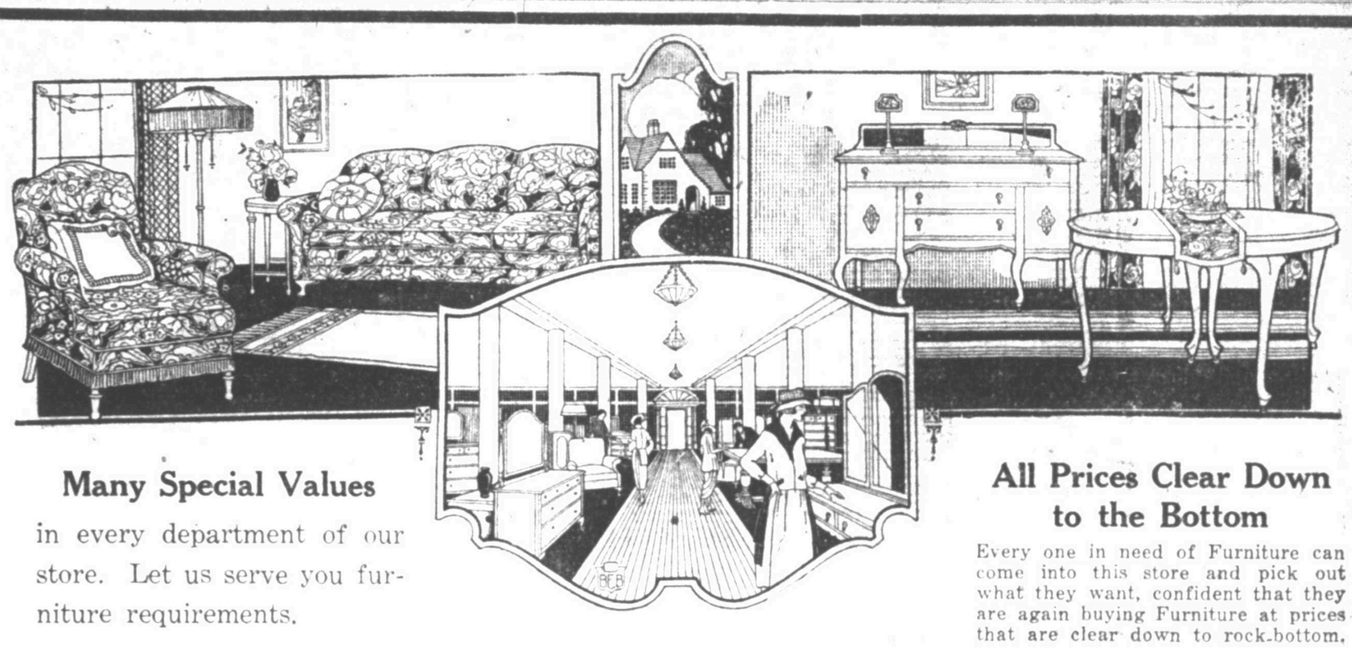

Wichita Falls needs an active, aggressive Chamber of Commerce more now than it did during the frenzied days of 1919. This will be a testing time of real citizenship. Be on hand Friday.

ERRATIC OUTPUTS OF CROPS.

Remarkable heat accumulation, which has marked weather conditions all over the northern hemisphere, this year, has produced equally remarkable and erratic outputs of agricultural crops, according to summaries of American and foreign production compiled for and by the agricultural department. The world's bread crops,, curiously enough, came to abundant fruition in spite of drouth and heat, which persisted all during the growing season. The world in 1921, up to September 30, it was indicated, would have a total wheat crop of 157 million bushels greater than in 1920.

By another freak, fruit crops, almost in a world wide sense, met havoc from cold in a season which has set new records everywhere for solar heat. This paradox was occasioned by the fact that last February the sun got at its work of bringing spring weeks in advance of normal, and trees and shrubs responded by budding out and finally coming into flower and bloom by March in nearly all areas where fruit is grown.

Frosts could not be averted on all the nights, however, and this year the United States will produce about 109 million bushels of apples, against 244 million bushels in 1920. Only the orchards of the Pacific coast, northern New England and Northern New York escaped.

Cotton, however, suffered greatly, and the the agricultural department experts assign the weather as perhaps the principal cause for a 50 per cent reduction in output. The mild weather of winter and spring gave its famous insect enemy, the boll weevil, full freedom to live and thrive, and even let him move north many miles from previous latitudes. Later drouth and sun conspired to cut down production of the fiber.

European fruit and subsidiary crops were sharply reduced, the department finds, although the bread grains survived. Their success, it was said, was due to the fact that they were chiefly fall-sown crops, which grew well in the mild winter. The spring sown grains, roots and forages, including oats and barley wheat, in the United States as elsewhere, lived through but yielded little.

Russia was the one exception in northern territory, but, in terms of statistical averages, the department says, but little grain was sown there. Italian lemons and Grecian currants, two of the greater comercial fruit crops, were both found in fair condition this fall.

As to the causes of the heat accumulation, the weather bureau suggests that the usual seasonal interchange of air, between the polar and tropical regions, was this year badly disarranged by atmospheric pressure disturbance, although any certainty on the subject is hardly possible. The barometer in "semi-permanent high pressure regions," over the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, was found to have maintained a higher degree than normal, which might have had an effect in diverting rainstorms to the north all through the season.

Then the decreased snowfall of 1921, and the thinness of ice on streams and lakes, allowed solar heat, normally expended in melting and evaporation, to be stored up, the bureau says, in heating the soil and atmosphere. Observers are convinced that these two conditions played some part in the result.

GALVESTON WHEAT IN THE LEAD

The month of August witnessed a heavy movement of wheat from the United States to Montreal for export to Europe, says the United States Market Reporter. Approximately 13,000,000 bushels were shipped to Canada from United States border ports, according to statistics obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. This statement is peculiarly significant when it is recalled that at this season last year large quantities of Canadian wheat were beginning to arrive in the United States. This diversion in transportation is said to be due to the fact that the all-water route from Chicago, Duluth and Milwaukee to Lake Superior ports, then by rail to Montreal, costs 2 3-4 cents per bushel less than the Buffalo and New York route after figuring the premium on American money and the elevator charges at New York. The lake and rail and the all-rail route from Port Arthur and Fort William to Montreal is also said to be more than 5 cents per bushel cheaper than the rate to New York. This fact, together with the exchange situation, still further reduces the cost of shipment and more than offsets the heavy insurance rates from Montreal.

The imports of wheat from Canada into the United States during August amounted to 239,556 bushels, compared with 170,274 bushels for the same months in 1920.

Galveston was first in the exports of wheat during the month, more than 20,000,000 bushels being exported through that port. New Orleans was second with 10,000,000 bushels, and Chicago third with 9,000,000 bushels.

FARMERS WHO ARE ON EASY STREET.

Harrison county is in East Texas. It is a noted cotton county. Farmers are selling as fast as they can pick and gin the staple. About ten per cent of the cotton sold is old cotton and ninety per cent new cotton. Both bring the same prices for the different grades. Homer D. Price of the Marshall Morning News says the farmers of Harrison are living on Easy street this year. Their corn cribs are overflowing, their smoke houses will be filled to the roof, they produced large crops of vegetables and now cotton is bringing ready money.

A Tyler man has captured a political job. R. G. Storey of that city has been appointed assistant attorney general in attendance on the court of criminal appeals. A citizen of Northwest Texas was offered the position but declined it and away last winter Dwight Lewelling of Dallas was tendered the position and spurned it. Storey is a former service man but he did not get overseas. He is a national committeeman of the American Legion. There are some few men who say that the Hon. Pat Morris Neff is a novice when it comes to playing the game of politics. Is he?

PROFESSOR HIGHFILL'S MISTAKE.

Educator Robert D. Highfill of Chicago advises college boys to leave the girls alone. Now if some dignified and stately feminine educator would advise the college girls to leave the boys alone, honors will be even. Since the creation boys have been fond of the girls and the girls fond of the boys and it is very late in the day for a highbrow with a geological heart to change the eternal schemo of things.

Haskell has four gins. These gins have turned out 2,500 bales of cotton to date and are paying $42 a ton for seed. There is money in cotton this year. The old king came back. Crude petroleum is selling for $1.50 per barrel. It is said that the cost of production in this territory is 70 cents. If so, the recent advances will give the producer a profit of 80 cents a barrel. It is estimated that this will help him some.

Rippling Rhymes

CHEAP SKATES.

Cheap skates are men whose idle lives no sane results are giving, who loaf and argue while their wives attempt to earn the living. While men of vim and merit chase around in high endeavor, cheap skates sit in the marketplace and trash stale themes forever. They play cheap games for cheaper stakes in joints where skates assemble, and talk of toil with hoes and rakes will make them flinch and tremble. Cheap skates are men who never pay unless through writ of judgment; their promises of yesterday but show what bunk and fudge meant. They spoil their stand-off at the start, they mangle and behead it, and now there is no store or mart where they can buy on credit. Their children have to blush for shame, their wives, as well, are blushing, while they, to play a checker game, through alleys dark are rushing. Cheap skates are chaps who have no pride, who'd rather loaf than labor, and smile when charity's supplied by some more thrifty neighbor. Cheap skates will borrow book or hen, they borrow things and break them, and never bring them back again unless the peelers make them. Cheap skates abound in every town, and rank not with its glories; they hold the shady benches down, and tell the shady stories.

Everything is coming down,
Coming down, coming down.
Everything is coming down,
But not so you can notice it.

A handsome managing editor of a newspaper, Mr. T. E. Niles, who recently returned from his vacation in the Catskills, where he never killed a cat, tells me a very peculiar story. If I had not known his frank method of expression so well I would not have believed it, but, knowing him as I do, I recommend the story to the readers as safe and sane and absolutely truthful. I noticed when he came into the office that he walked with a slight limp and I asked him the reason. He said:

"It is a long story about this limp. You see, when I left for my vacation both legs were the same length. You will agree with me, will you not-"

"I have to agree with you," I said, which I thought was a very neat reply.

But the story runs along something like this: Mr. Niles went out hunting bear one morning in the Catskills, but he made a great mistake. He took only a straight-barreled rifle. He should have taken two, one straight and one curved. Well, he finally arrived at one of the Catskills and he met a bear. I suppose it was the biggest bear that had been seen since they named Bear Mountain. The bear took one look and turned tail and fled. The hunter fired several times, but, having a straight-barreled gun, the shots didn't count because the bear was always just a little bit around the mountain and the bullets went straight and fell in the valley, thousands of feet below. Well, he chased the bear around and around the mountain, but finally he got disgusted and took the gun and banged the barrel against a tree and bent it so the bullets would go around the mountain and then he hauled off and began shooting. Well, the bullets went all the way around and he had to dodge them and so did the bear. Finally, after a couple of hours, the bear looked around to see if he was being pursued and a bullet hit him in the head and he expired.

But the way one leg got shorter than the other was that the hunter ran around the mountain so often that he wore it off several inches.

They are beginning to juggle with the tariff as though they didn't care what happened to it.

Who's Who

PRINCE TOKUGAWA.

The man who will head Japan's delegation to the disarmament conference in Washington is a man of peace and one of the most influential figures in his country he is Prince Iyesaro Tokugawa.

PRINCE TOKUGAWA

The prince is president of the house of peers. He is better known perhaps as the man whom the emperor calls upon to form new cabinets at times of graverises invoicing changes in the ministers. By some political experts the appointment of a Tokugawa ministry immediately after the conference is seen in the selection of the prince. The present cabinet is expected to resign.

Prince Tokugawa would be the Shogun today had not the imperial dynasty been restored to power when the last of the Shoguns resigned in 1867.

The appointment of the prince constitutes recognition by the Diet because of the fact that he is president of the house of peers.

In Siam many women are employed in army workshops in factories and on the railways and roads, where they are paid the same rates as men for equal work.

TIMELY VIEWS NOT IN THE NEWS

"FARMERS NEED MARKETS, NOT CREDIT," SAYS VROOMAN.

"What the farmer requires primarily is not more credit, but more markets," declared Carl Vrooman, former assistant secretary of agriculture, in criticising the outcome of the export bill. "The treacherous slashing out of the provision to extend credit to foreign purchasers of agricultural products was a betrayal of millions of garmers now under the sentence of financial death by the slow but sure process of being smothered in their own surplus crops."

Carl Vrooman

The export credit feature of the bill was eliminated late before the recess of congress, when there was no quorum present, according to Vrooman's statement. It had previously been passed, be said, by a unanimous vote of the house and had been slated for final passage before recess by a gentlemen's agreement between accredited leaders of both houses of congress.

"The emasculated bill as passed will give no direct help to the mass of our farmers," declares Vrooman. "More credit without more markets is a grim jest. A large percentage of them were given more credit last fall and winter than was good for them. How many of them would not be money ahead today if they had been given less credit and had been forced to sell their crops six or nine months ago? Holding crops on a falling market ise the costliest of follies.

"Unless we finance the sale of a part at least of our surplus crops in foreign markets the present crisis must go from bad to worse until through years of suffering and catastrophe we finally adjust ourselves to our unthinkable, stupid, self-imposed limitations upon exportation and protection."

In pointing out some of the dangers that may come from striking out the export credit provision, Vrooman says that America has a billion dollar agricultural surplus for which there is neither a domestic nor a foreign cash market, and that this surplus has depressed the prices of the rest of the crops approximately $5,000,000. It has left this country with about 95 per cent of its agricultural surplus and every dollar's worth is doing the farmer at least $5 worth of harm, he thinks.

Trouble does not end with the low prices of the farmers' surplus, and he is convinced that "they are clogging and damming the whole current of our economic life. The destruction of the buying power of the farmers, constituting 40 per cent of our population, is sawing off the limb on which the retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, the railroads and labor alike are sitting."

Baked Stuffed Eggplant—Boil an eggplant for twenty minutes in unsalted water, take out, cut into halves and scoop out the centers, leaving a wall half an inch thick. Chop the portions that you have removed, mix with half a cupful of grated bread crumbs and add two tablespoonfuls of melted bacon fat, one chopped hard boiled egg, two tablespoonfuls each of minced ham and parsley and salt and paprika to taste. Dust the interior of the eggplant with a little salt, put in the filling and brush the top with melted pork fat. Bake in a quick oven for thirty minutes.

Baked Plum Roll—Make a plain pie crust, chill on the ice and roll rather thin. Spread with a little softened butter and arrange halved, pitted plums over the crust. Dust with sugar and add a seasoning of grated nutmeg and ground cinnamon with the grated rind from a small orange. Roll up like jelly roll, brush with beaten egg yolk, mixed with a little cold water, and bake in a quick oven until crisp and brown.

"THE ORDERLY"

Comes now another French film. It is "The Orderly," from Guy de Maupassant's story. It will be distributed by Pathe. K. Kolas plays the role of the kindly but tragically fated Colonel de Limousin. Pani Hubert and Madame Nathalie Kovanko, both favorites with Parisian audiences, will have leading parts.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

NED RETURNS

The train boomed in, slowed down, and stopped with a final snort. Another instant and Cherry felt herself swung up into her husband's arms. They kissed each other, ecstatically, without any thought of who might be observing them, and then Cherry whirled herself free just in time to see Mrs. Randall come puffing up to where they stood.

"Why, mother, this is good of you," said her son, smiling as he bent down to kiss her.

"Mercy on my soul, I've been calling to you for the last five minutes," Cherry," began that lady, as soon as the greeting was over. "Didn't you hear me once?"

"No, mother, not once. My ears were all for Ned's train and my eyes, too, for that matter, I must confess. It never occurred to me that you would come down here all by yourself, anyhow. I'm sorry," said Cherry in dulcet tones.

"You're looking beautiful this morning, darling," Ned whispered as they turned to leave the station. His eyes were for his wife alone, and Mrs. Randall Sr. felt herself succumbing to a growing feeling of irritation against her own flesh and blood that was appalling.

"Now, mother, we'll get right into this taxi and go home, I want to have a chance to have hours and hours with Cherry alone. It seems years and years since I last saw her." He finished with a squeeze of her hand. Mrs. Randall sniffed.

"And have you been happy and busy since I left you, Cherry? How's everything down at Hamblen's?"

Cherry assured him that things had been running smoothly in all directions, then inquired for Jane.

"Oh, Janey's fine as silk. Met her day or so ago, took her to mothers', and let her loose among Sisters Mary, Virginia and Gail. They hit it off immediately and began buzzing about beaux, dances and all the things flappers are interested in."

"We just did get her away in time, Ned. That dreadful Sills man has been hanging around her ever since the dance. He's not fit for Jane to associate with, I fear, and yet she was on the verge of falling in love with him, if not with running away with him." This, in an aside so as not to reach her mother-in-law's ears.

"Well, everything went fine out in the big city, dear. I've put through all the business I went for and a heap more. I'm certainly due for some substantial sort of recognition from the firm now. And I am going to get it, or well there will be a rival firm started up in Wellsburg if I don't. That's all. With whatever I get we'll be able to start that house o' dreams, you and I. What do you say to that?"

"What's that you say?" asked his mother, sharply, at this point. "House? Is this true what Cherry spoke of the other day about your leaving me all alone and going off by yourselves, son?" There was a plaintive note in her voice.

"Surest thing you know, mother mine. Cherry and I want our own little nest, same as you and father had before us. And we're going to have it soon, too!"

There Was a Young Feller, McNally -- Who Started a Yankee Rally -- And Shufflin' Phil, He's A-Wonderin' Still -- How McNally Stole Home With theTally.

sixth inning which would have been a triple but for a slip on the part of the Yankee member of the Meusel family—a break which if the game had been closer might have done his team an extremely ill turn. "Bob's" hit scored Roger Peckinpaugh from second, but unfortunately for the batter, he failed to touch first in rounding that bag and was declared out while standing on third. Some one in the Giant dugout had caught the omission on his part, and the ball was called for and thrown to first, whereupon Umpire Moriarity declared him out.

The Yankees' three runs came in the first, fifth and sixth innings. Miller opened the game with a single to center and took second on Peckinpaugh's sacrifice. Douglas to Kelly. Miller scored when Ruth hit the first ball pitched to him to center field. It was a hot drive and brought great cheering from the big crowd.

The Yankees got men as far as second base in the second and fourth innings. In the fifth McNally opened with the only double of the game, was advanced to third on Schang's sacrifice, Douglas to Kelly, and stole home.

The third run came in the sixth. Peckinpaugh singled to short. A passed ball by Snyder allowed him to gain second. After Ruth struck out trying to put the ball out of the lot, Bob Meusel hit to left center, scoring Peckinpaugh. Meusel drew in on third for what looked like a perfect three-bagger, but was called out for not touching first base. After that inning only one Yankee reached third.

Giants Threaten Twice

The Giants threatened the home plate twice. The best chance to score came in the fourth inning with Frisch on third and only one out. He had reached first on a single to right, stole second and took third on Young's sacrifice, Mays to Pipp. He was left there as Kelly struck out, and Emil Meusel grounded out, Peckenpaugh to Pipp.

The other chance came in the sixth on Frisch's triple after two were out. Young, however, was not equal to the occasion, going out, Peckenpaugh to Pipp. The Giants had men left on second in the first and second innings.

One of the surprising things about the game was the fact that while the Polo Grounds will accommodate nearly 39,000 persons, the official attendance figures showed but 30,203 persons present. The upper grand stand, to which admission could only be obtained by purchase of tickets at the gates after they were opened, showed large stretches of empty seats at the extremes of the stand. That was easily accounted for, however, when it became known that the police orders to keep non-ticketholders from the vicinity of the field after 1 p. m. had been strictly enforced, with the result that thousands of late comers, who might readily have been accommodated, were kept beyond the reach of the box offices.

As for the temper of the crowd, it can remarked that some degree of the enthusiasm witnessed at most world series contests, seemed lacking. There was a ready enough explanation of this too, when it was recalled that this crowd was one divided against itself, with probably something like a fifty-fifty split between Giant and Yankee rooters. From this it need not be taken that the usual roaring outbursts of gleeful fans were not in evidence when things took favorable turns for one side or the other, but simply that at no time did bleachers and grand stands rise and shout the shout of the joyful. Something like half the crowd didn't feel much like shouting.

Few Tense Situations.

For another thing—and that probably was the compelling reason—the game lacked really tense situations. It was close throughout, but the Yankees, took an early lead and not only were they never headed but never was there a chance on the part of the Giant rooters to cheer a possible tied score or a successfully rally. The Yankee rooters made plenty of noise when the game was ended spectacularly by a flashing double play with Peckingpaugh and Ward as the leading figures.

The Giant fans had held hope of a score up to that point, for Frisch got a clear single to start the inning and visions of a rally were indulged in. Frisch, however, was forced by Young and then Kelly's hit to Peckingpaugh was tossed by him to Ward, forcing Young, Ward then wheeling and throwing to first, getting the batter and ending the game. The only other double play of the afternoon was made by the Giants in the first inning. There was one out when Bob Meusel forced Ruth at second, Frish to Rawlings and was himself thrown out at first.

In base running the Yankees outsprinted the Giants two to one. McNally's two steals could not be matched by the Giants, whose only pilfered base was earned by Frisch. Pipp of the Yankees tried to go to second, but was thrown out, Snyder to Rawlings. Four sacrifices were made in the game. Two of them by Peckinpaugh and Schang, figured in two of the Yankees three runs. Others to sacrifice were Pipp and Young.

Douglas gave four bases on balls. The men who received the passes were Ward, Ruth, Pipp and Schang. His passes did not figure in the scoring. Mays was very steady. He gave no passes, but hit Rawlings, the ball striking the Giants' second baseman on the leg.

An analysis of the pitching shows that Mays in nine innings pitched 82 times, an average of 9 1-2 an inning. Twenty-eight of these were balls, 18 were strikes and 9 foul balls. Twenty resulted in fi-field outs and five outfield flies. The five hits of the Giants and a hit batter accounted for the remainder.

Douglas sent the ball to the plate 103 times in the eight innings he worked, almost thirteen to the inning, thirty-nine times pitching balls, putting over 35 strikes and six foul strikes and being touched for three fouls which did not count as strikes. and the Yankees' five hits made up fifteen infield outs and the Yankees five hits made up the remainder. The Yankees' other two hits were made off Barnes, who pitched 22 times,—ten balls, seven strikes, one foul strike and two infield outs.

Douglas Fans Six

Although Douglas was credited with a lost game, he struck out six to Mays' one. Ruth fell a victim twice in his last two trips to the plate. On one of these occasions there was a man on second. Peckinpaugh, Ward, Schang and Mays whiffed one each Schang also was struck out by Barnes. The only Giant to fan was Kelly, who cut the air with a man on third.

An odd incident of the game was that not a Giant outfielder made a put out.

With an attendance of 30,023, the official announcement gave the gate receipts as $103,965, a new record. Of this the players funds get $53,027.15, the two clubs a total of $35,348.10, and the National commission $15,594.75. The only other case of the gate receipts at a world series game running over $100,000 was the sixth game of the Cincinnati-Chicago series in 1919, when the receipts were $101,728.

Some 400 odd newspapermen gathered to report the series, said to be the largest number ever assembled for that purpose. The great majority came from the eastern section—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts being the most heavily represented.

YANKEES WILL WIN THE SERIES— TAKE IT FROM LUCKY MASCOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Play a hunch, folks and bet on the Yankees. With Eddie Bennett filling the role of mascot they can't lose.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, part owner of the club, and Babe Ruth, champion batsman of the team, both say so.

Eddie admits it.

"Absolutely the luckiest kid in the world. He's the one perfect mascot," is the way the Yankees' owner put it, adding, "Everything else being even, Eddie'll pull us through to a pennant and a world's championship.

"As fine a kid as ever sat in a dugout. He's covered all over with horseshoes and four-leaf clovers," said Babe.

And the record books seem to bear out the colonel's and Babe's statement to the letter. The only one who disagrees with Eddie and his pal is Tommy McQuade, mascot of the Giants.

Eddie was hanging around the Cincinnati ball park during the world series of 1919. The White Sox had lost two games and were rather dejected. Blamed their "luck."

"Hap" Felsch, leaving the park after the second defeat, saw little mishapen Eddie and called him over.

"Are you lucky, kid?"

"Sure!"

"Come on over to Chicago and help us out, will you?"

And Eddie did. But the White Sox lost the series, and Eddie, for the only time in his life, didn't bring sure luck.

The next season Uncle Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn team was in the field for a capable mascot and gave the position to Eddie, who played his original successful trick of hanging around the park.

Eddie carried the Robins through to the National league pennant. The world series opened in Brooklyn with Eddie on the bench. The Robins won two out of three, but the next day they left for Cleveland without Eddie. The result is well remembered—Tris Speaker's crew turned the balance—because Eddie was peeved and had taken off his curse.

When Waite Hoyt, whom Eddie had known in their high school days, was traded to the Yankees Eddie asked the crack pitcher to put in a good word for him with Ed Barrow. Hoyt went through and landed Eddie the job, and Eddie, as the American league standing shows, has made good with a vengeance.

And if the Yankees win the world series, oh, boy.

Well, Eddie will go into the movies with Wesley "Freckles" Barry, that's all.

WORLD SERIES ODDS AND ENDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—George Herman Ruth, chief circuit clouter of the universe and owner of a season's batting average of .378, entered the world's series today with a lowly hitting record for title series in which he has participated. The famous Yankee outfielder was a Boston Red Sox pitcher in the title games against Brooklyn in 1916 and also an incidental outfielder in the contests with the Cubs in 1918.

In the first series he failed to get a single hit. Against the Cubs his hitting mark was .200.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—President Harding in a letter today to B. B. Johnson, president of the American league, expressed his regret that public business precluded his attendance at the opening game of the world's series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Resourceful men from the ranks of the unemployed who found places far in front of the line of world's series ticket seekers last night sold these advantageous positions to more fortunate brethern this morning for $5.

A police order had been issued that such conduct would not be tolerated, but officers in charge of the blue coated squads were swayed by the pleas of the jobless, many of whom, it was said, declared that upon this one chance lay their opportunity to appease the hunger of wives and babies.

CECIL LEITCH, BRITISH STAR, ELIMINATED

By Associated Press.

DEAL, N. J., Oct. 5.—Miss Cecil Leitch, super-woman of golf, went down to defeat today before the superior playing of an older woman, Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr., of Chicago. The score was one up. That unexpected setback for the British marvel at the annual national tournament here came one of the most thrilling and tense climaxes in the history of women's sports.

For the English woman, who holds the British, French and Canadian championship, it meant the failure of a life ambition—to become a real world's champion by annexing the American crown. For the American woman it meant the attainment of something that no other woman of her nationality has ever achieved in championship competition, and that the American champion, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, Ga., has twice failed to accomplish.

The reason for the greatest upset in the history of woman's golf is best epitomized in the words of the defeated star herself—"I had a wonderful opponent, who didn't crack."

The defeat of Miss Cecil Leitch removes the most dangerous foreign contender for the American championship. There is still a possibility, however, of the title going abroad. Miss Edith Leitch, sister of the defeated star today displayed the best approaching and putting of the tournament by defeating the clever Miss Mildred Cavelry, 4 and 3.

Sneakers will be sent to the schools of the city, and every one urged to help prevent conflagations of any nature.

COLONELS HOP ON BALTIMORE ORIOLES 16-1

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 5.—Battering a trio of pitchers for 19 hits, Louisville, champions of the American Association, buried Baltimore, the pennant winning club of the International League, under a sixteen to one score in the first game of the "junior world's series" here today.

The veteran "Nick" Cullop, a left hander of Major league fame, pitched for Louisville and although touched for ten hits succeeded in keeping them scattered, with the exception of the first and third innings and in the ninth, when Baltimore, bunching two hits, managed to save itself from a shutout. Cullop fanned six and only allowed one base on balls. Score:

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

Were you satisfied? Busting right out into the first person, singular, I'll say I was! Didn't have a wager on the Yankees, either—but I sure got away to a good start on that prediction that the Yanks would win the series.

For a time, for quite a long time in fact, that ball game looked as though the Yankee team was playing against Frisch all by his lonesome. The "Fordham Flash" had a big day, cracking out four of the Giants' five hits, and showing his speed by stealing second on Wallie Schang. It was a close play, but His Umps ruled that Frisch was entitled to the bag.

But, speaking of speed, how about that gink McNally? Whatcha think of a bird that steals home in a world series game? Seems to be he's got brains, nerve and a pretty turn of speed all combined.

Perhaps some other ball player has stolen home in a world series game since 1905, but offhand, I can't recall one. The record book isn't handy at this moment, and I don't care, anyway. McNally's theft was pretty enough for me, regardless of records.

The attendance, 30,023, certainly didn't establish a new mark. Personally I expected more than 40,000 to be jammed inside the Brush Stadium. And yet a peculiar feature of the attendance lies in the fact that the gate receipts were $103,965, more maguma than ever before has been taken in at a ball park. Only once, the sixth game of the Cincinnati-Chicago fiasco in 1919, have the receipts for a world series game gone over the mark of $100,000. The prices in general were lower this year than usual, also, which makes the small attendance and large receipts still more of a puzzle. Perhaps the answer is in the fact that there are many boxes at the Polo Grounds, and these undoubtedly commanded fancy prices.

More than 400 newspaper men, also a record, witnessed the opening struggle—and there's one alleged newspaper man a-sittin' right here at his old typewriter who would gladly have given a lung to have been "among those present."

Who's going to pitch today? Tough one to answer, isn't it Let's all guess. All right; I guess Nehf for the Giants, Waite Hoyt for the Yankees. You're next.

Say, if youse ain't got nothin' better to do, and no place to go, and the sun ain't too hot, com on 'round to the Record News this afternoon at 1:00 o'clock and listen to the returns play by play. The Boss told me to buy a box of throat lozenges, and he'd furnish the megaphone. Looks as if I'm elected to bark 'em out. How'll you have your plays, in prose or verse? Name your poison.

Recent experiments confirm the earlier observations, following Hertz's discoveries, on the "fatigue" induced in metals by the continued action of the ultra-violet rays of light. This fatigue affects the capacity of metals for photoelectric effects. One investigator reports that, in studying the fatigue of zinc, he has observed that the application of the longer light waves brings about a certain amount of recovery of photo-electric activity. These results, although primarily of technical interest only possess practical importance.—Washington Star.

MILLER HUGGINS AND HIS AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPS

WAITE HOYT'S advent as a Giant in 1915 while pitching for a Brooklyn high school put him in the baseball limelight. But he has had a long battle to win a place among the big league hurling stars. Was born in Brooklyn September 9, 1899. Signed by Giants in 1915. Farmed out, recalled under optional agreements and traded. Hoyt has played with the following clubs in the order named:" Giants, Mt. Carmel, Hartford, Lynn, Giants, Memphis, Montreal, Giants, Nashville, Newark, Giants, Rochester and New Orleans. Sold by New Orleans to Red Sox in 1919 for $2,500. Failed to get going that year or next and traded to New York Yanks with McNally, Harper and Schang for Pratt, Ruel, Vick and Thormahlen.

BABE RUTH'S batting records are well known. Babe was born in Baltimore February 7, 1894. Attended school at St. Mary's industrial school there for twelve years. Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, saw Ruth in action in 1913 and obtained him for his club by signing papears as Ruth's guardian. The spring of 1914 Ruth, in exhibition games, defeated the Phillie twice and the Athletics, Dodgers and Braves, Red Sox bought him before end of season for $30,000. His hitting ability then was undiscovered. Led league in pitching in 1915 with eighteen wins, seven defeats. Won twenty-three and lost thirteen in 1916. Set world's series record by pitching twenty-eight consecutive scoreless innings. In 1919 collected nineteen home runs. Sold to Yankees for $125,000, January 6, 1920, he collected fifty-four runs in 1920.

THE YANKEES' MANAGER

BOBBY ROTH might be called one of baseball's fire-brands. His quick temper has caused him to shift clubs often. His ability as an outfielder and slugger is beyond question, however. Was born in Chicago, August 28, 1892. Began life as newsboy. Entered game with Racine in Wis-Ill. league in 1911. Between then and his purchase from Kansas City by White Sox, August 28, 1913, played with Kansas City, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Springfield, Virginia, and back to K. C. He was considered a third baseman then. Became out-fielder after being traded to Indians with Klepfer for the late lamented Joe Jackson in 1915. Traded to Athletics in 1918 for Gardner, Myers and Jamieson. Traded to Red Sox July 1, 1918, and later was obtained by the Yanks.

JACK QUINN once read that "they can't come back" and forthwith did. Born in Hazelton, Pa., July 5, 1885. Made bow with Harrisburg in Pennsylvania State league in 1908. Played there three years. After year at independent ball joined Macon in Sally league in 1907. With Richmond in 1908. Drafted by Yankees. Hurled with varying success until released to Rochester in 1912. Sold to Boston Braves August 20, 1913 and turned back to Rochester. Joined Baltimore Feds in jumping bee in 1914. Sent to Vernon under peace agreement. Signed by White Sox when Pacific Coast league suspended. Joined Yanks in 1919. Proceeded to rank among leaders in pitching. Won eighteen and lost ten for Yanks in 1920.

WALLIE SCHANG, star catcher of the Yankees, was playing independent ball with the famous Pullman team of Buffalo when George Stallings picked him up and signed him for Stallings' Buffalo International league team. Schang proved the sensation of the I. L. the first year and batted over .300. Connie Mack won him in the draft in fall of 1912. Starred with Athletics and was one of youngsters kept for nucleus of new team when Mack broke up his team in 1915. Was traded to Red Sox December 14, 1917, with Bush and Strunk for $60,000 and Gregg, Chet Thomas and Kapp. On December 15, 1920, Boston traded him with Hoyt, Harper and McNally for Ruel, Thormahlen, Pratt and Vick. Was born in Wales, N. Y., August 22, 1889.

FRANK BAKER is one of the few world's series vets on the Yankee team. His home run clouting in the 1911 world series for Connie Mack is well known. Has retired twice, only to return. Was born in Trappe, Md., March 13, 1886. Broke into game with Ridgeley, Md., in 1907, but finished season with semi-pro club. Joined Reading in 1908 and was sold to Athletics same season. In world's series of 1911 won one game with home run off Marquard and hit homer off Mathewson next day, sending game into extra innings and enabling Macks to win. Refused to report in 1915 and played independent ball. Sold to Yanks in 1916 for $25,000.

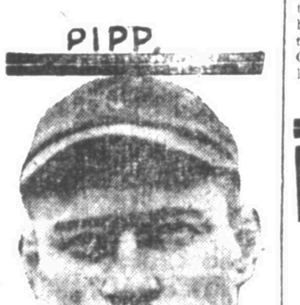

BOB MEUSEL is the main reason why pitchers want to pitch to Babe Ruth instead of walking him. Meusel bats after Ruth at a better than a .300 gait and has a faculty for hitting homers or triples, himself. Broke into baseball in 1917 with Oakland in the Northwestern league as a first baseman. Played with Spokane and Vernon in the Pacific Coast league that same year. Obtained by the Yankees from Vernon fall of 1919 for several players. In 1920 he hit .328 and slammed out twelve homers for Huggins, playing third and in the outfield.

HARRY HARPER of Hackensack was born April 24, 1895, and started southpawing in the big show with Washington in 1913. Was winning hurler for Griff four of the six years he was with the Nationals. In 1915 served brief spell in minneapolis, however. On December 29, 1919 was traded to Red Sox with Menoskey and Eddie Foster for Bobby Roth and Shannon. Trade was preparatory to sale of Ruth. Harper being obtained to fill Ruth's pitching shoes.

AARON WARD, young Yankee infielder, was discovered by one of Manager Bill Donovan's scouts in 1917 while Ward was burning up the South Atlantic league as shortstop for Charleston. The league blew up in July that year and Ward joined the Yankees. Has exceptionally large hands, which enable him to handle ground balls easily.

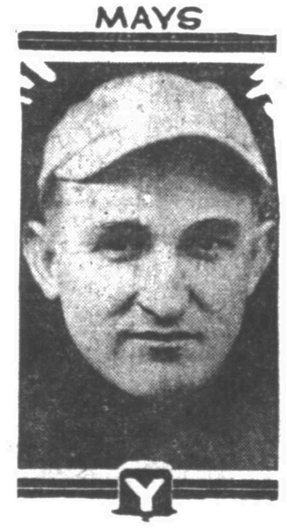

WILLIE PIPP, Yank first baseman, was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., in 1893. From diamond at Georgetown University, went into semi-pro game. Grand Rapids signed him in 1910. Played with Kalamazoo in 1911 and in 1912. Sold to Tigers August 29, 1912, and farmed out to Providence, Scranton and Rochester until sent to Yanks at waiver price January 7 1915 to help up the Yanks. Led the American league in home runs in 1916 and 1917, but failed to hit .300. Hit .304 in 1918. First four hits of 1920 campaign were home run, single, double, triple.

MIKE McNALLY does most of his playing in a quiet, modest fashion. Hence Mike doesn't attract as much attention as he deserves. Is important cog in Yankees' crack infield. Broke into pro game with Utica in 1913 from ranks of famous team that produced Steve O'Neill and others. Sold first year out to Red Sox for $4,500. Sox farmed him to St. Paul in 1914 and then recalled him. Tied with Gerber for shortstop honors in A. A. that year. Broke into one game in 1916 world's series. Went to the Yanks in eight player deal with Red Sox December 15, 1920.

BOB SHAWKEY was born in Brookville, Pa., December 4, 1890. Broke into the game with Harrisburg in Tri-State league in 1911. Connie Mack having signed him and farmed him out. Connie recalled him in 1912 and sent him to Baltimore in the International league. Returned to Athletics in 1913 to strengthen Mack's staff. Ranked second to Chief Bender in 1914. Went to Yanks by waiver route in middle of 1915 season. He had varying success since. Is great pitcher when in shape and able to locate the plate.

CARL MAYS is the only "submarine" hurler in baseball. He literally stands on his head when he delivers the ball. Born in Louisville, Ky., 1891. Played semi-pro ball in Utah in 1911. With Boise, Western Tri-State league, 1912. Joined Portland in Coast league in 1913, and later released to Portland Northwestern league team. Drafted by Providence in 1914 and transferred to Red Sox under working agreement in 1915. Won twenty-four and lost eight games for Sox that year, but did not get chance to show in worlds series which Sox took from Phillies in five games. Traded to Yankees July 30, 1919 for cash and players McGraw and Russell.

ROGER PECKINPAUGH, still a resident of Cleveland, was an Indian at one time, but his weak hitting and a surplus of veteran infielders spelled his doom. He now ranks as a slugger and is captain of the Yanks. Born in Wooster, 1891. From Cleveland high school played in city league. Signed by Naps in 1910, sent to New Haven. Recalled next year and sent to Portland. Recalled and played short most of 1912 season. Traded to Yanks May 20, 1913, for Lelivelt and Strang. Managed Yanks from September 12, 1914, to close season during change in regime.

FANS GATHER AT MIDNIGHT BEFORE POLO GROUNDS, AND LIVE ON HOPE AND "HOT DOGS" UNTIL GATES OPEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—New York was awake early today to enjoy the initial game of its own world's series. Hours before the two teams, the Giants and the Yankees, went to battle at the Polo Grounds, crowds of fans from the four corners of the earth were hurrying toward the park, hoping to gain admittance to the mecca of the baseball world.

Some, in fact, didn't sleep at all. At midnight several of them gathered at the entrances to Brush Stadium, the first in line and the first in the park—if they didn't fall asleep and awake to find some more alert fan in their place. By 1 o'clock fifty of them were in line.

Heading the line was Charles M. Kierst, 20, a fireman from Auburn, N. Y. He said he had not missed a world's series yet and does not intend to. Behind him was Leslie Carpenter, a 15 year old high school lad from Jamaica, N. Y., while third in place was Joseph Jakoud, 26, also of Auburn, who came to New York with Kierst. The boy had managed to wiggle his way between the two upstaters and they were good enough sports to permit him to stay there.

But perhaps it was just as well that Carpenter was second, as he was a strong Yankee rooter, while Kierst was for the Giants, so that the first two fans into the park this morning were evenly divided in their sentiments as to the winner. Jakoud had hoped to make it "two straight" for the Giants.

It was a cold night for the waiting fans. A raw wind accompanied by frequent showers brought out overcoats, blankets and even old newspapers to keep the enthusiasts warm. But the inclement weather failed to faze them. They stuck to their posts like sentinels.

Not a few brought their own sandwiches and hot drinks in vacuum bottles, while others bought early breakfasts of "hot dogs" and coffee from vendors who did a lively business.

The fans afoot were not the only ones among the early arrivals, a number of automobiles reaching the surrounding streets soon after midnight. Drawn curtains indicated the occupants were asleep awaiting daybreak and a chance to buy a ticket.

Boys did a thriving business selling small wooden boxes to use in line so they could rest their weary bodies. But they had short use of them as the police ordered the line occupants to destroy them soon after they were purchased. Even this did not peeve the fans. They complied willingly.

Toward daylight, as the crowd grew larger and the line longer, the police had some arguments to settle, but it wasn't strenuous labor.

Among the early arrivals was Miss May Abrams of New York who, accompanied by her brother, had intended to wait in line until the gates opened. But she changed her mind when it became chilly and left with her brother, their places being taken quickly by two more stout hearted male waiters.

If the opinion of the bleacherites was any indication of the outcome of the game, the Giants would have won. All along the line the National leaguers were favored over the Yankees, yet those who supported the latter club made up in noise what they lacked in numbers.

JURY FINDS FOR WELL SHOOTER

After deliberating six hours a jury in the 89th District court late Wednesday returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff in the damage suit of W. H. Ellis, oil well shooter, against the Illinois Torpedo company awarding him $5,000.

The verdict Wednesday is the second time that a jury had awarded the plaintiff damages. The Civil Court of Appeals recently reversed the judgment rendered in the first trial of the case held several months ago in the 89th district court.

The case dates back to 1919, when the plaintiff was alleged to have been injured while in the employ of the defendant company as an oil well shooter. He alleges in his petition that the injury resulted when a shot of nitro-glycerine exploded prematurely due to defective tools furnished by the company.

DEFENDANT WINS SUIT

Following a two day trial of the case in the 78th District court before Special Judge John Kay, a jury late Wednesday evening returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the damage suit of John E. Healey vs. the M. K. & T. railroad. The jury was out one hour.

In the suit the plaintiff was suing for alleged false arrest and mistreatment at the hands of special agents of the defendant company. The arrest was made in connection with an investigation conducted following the theft of property belonging to the railroad. The charges against Healey made at the time of his arrest were later dismissed, according to the evidence presented at the trial.

MOTHER SEARCHES FOR SON IN OIL FIELDS NEAR HERE

A request for aid in a search for Neal White, who is supposed to be employed in connection in the oil industry in Wichita Falls or nearby territory was issued Wednesday by Mrs. C. E. Ousley, secretary of the welfare council.

According to Mrs. Ousley, Mrs. T. A. Booher, mother of the wife of Mr. White came to this city to visit her daughter and son-in-law, without knowledge of their address, except that they received their mail through general delivery at Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Booher is spending her days at the Union station and can be located through the Y. W. C. A. travelers' aid at that place or through the Welfare Council.

Mayor Now Solid With Girls Club; Pushes 2 Shows

Mayor W. D. Cline yesterday made himself "solid" for life with the young business women of Wichita Falls. Without the slightest hesitation, and in the most nonchalant way he might have assumed responsibility for the success of "Springtime," the musical play which the Business Women's club of this city intends to present late this month. And here's how he tells it:

The Business Women's club for months had been planning, organizing, speculating, worrying and preparing to launch "Springtime." The skids were quite naturally, needed greased before the launching so there for the young women labored long and labored hard with their plans, thinking, however, a national situation to overlook—the necessity of publicity. Finally, they settled on October 27 and 28 as the proper dates for introducing the Wichita Falls public. Here comes Act II:

The Shrines in the meantime also were preparing to stage a musical revue, "Oh, Joy." Masculine-like, they came a running to the newspapers, and the first inkling the business women had of the competition they must face appeared in the form of a news story announcing the plans of the Masons and stating that "Oh, Joy," would be produced at the Wichita Theater on October 18 and 19.

Can you beat it? "Oh, Joy" among the business women? Nay, Oh, Gloom, rather. Here was a musical revue due to capture Wichita Falls dollars only slightly more than a week before the young women expected to capture the same dollars with their "Springtime." What happened?

Miss Florence Jackson, president of the Business Women's club, went to Walter Cline in search of consolation, assistance, advice, et cetera. Mayor Cline admitted he was embarrassed, almost ashamed, he declared—and he convinced Miss Jackson that the Shriners had been in complete ignorance of the existence of "Springtime" when they announced "Oh Joy" to the public.

"But," he said, and the famous Cline smile appeared, "I do hereby promise as a Shriner to get my gang of good Shriners, gentlemen every last one of them, together and place their support solidly behind your musical play. Every Shriner will go to see 'Springtime,' and will even help you sell tickets. Well push 'Springtime' to beat the band. Miss Jackson, The Business Women's club, I know, is one of the finest organizations in Wichita Falls and we are glad to help such an organization."

And there you are! Happiness, Springtime, Oh, Joy—everything. Now the Business Women's club has packed the Palace theater for one night only, but to make arrangements to advance their dates to Oct. 27 and 28, with the Wichita theater secured as the playhouse.

Come on, you 78th, Judge Kay and "Springtime"!

KERR BLANKS CUBS IN OPENING GAME OF CHICAGO SERIES

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Dick Kerr was a better pitcher than Grover Alexander today and the Chicago Americans shut out the Chicago Nationals 2 to 0, in the first game of the series to decide the city championship. It was the first meeting of the two clubs since 1916. Kerr allowed his opponents only five scattered hits, three of which were made by Barber, while the National Leaguers ace was touched for ten safe blows.

STETCHER GETS DECISION OVER STRANGLER LEWIS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Joe Stecher won a referee's decision over Ed (Strangler) Lewis after two hours wrestling without a fall here last night. Both Stecher and Lewis are former world's heavyweight wrestling champions.

TREATY DEBATE FEATURES DAY IN U. S. SENATE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary were before the senate all day, with a speech of six hours by Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, in opposition to ratification, and an address by Senator Moses of New Hampshire, a republican irreconcilable, in favor of the treaties.

Senator Sheppard discussed proceedings of the League of Nations, which he declared the United States should join, and Senator Moses in favoring ratification, declaring the treaties were the "consummation of the struggle * * * to maintain the independence of the United States."

"It cuts us loose at once and I hope forever," said Senator Moses, "from that hole of death known as the League of Nations."

The New Hampshire senator opposed American representation on the allied reparations commission, although he said it was no secret that Secretary Hughes favored such representation. He added, however, that he did not share the fears expressed by Senator Borah, of Idaho, another republican "irreconcilable," that the treaties would force the United States into the league. "I can see no reason why any irreconcilable should withhold his assent to its ratification," he said.

Senator Sheppard declared "the only honorable course for this nation is to ratify the treaty of Versailles and join the League of Nations," the league, he added, had already justified its existence.

"I cannot vote for any enactment," said Senator Sheppard, in which once more asserting our isolation from the league, we emphasize our desertion of humanity."

FROM AROUND THE STATE

VERNON.

VERNON, Texas, Oct. 5.—County Judge T. L. McHugh bluntly told representative citizens of Wilbarger county that the property owners must provide the money or the commissioners court would be compelled to abandoned road working. There is a bond proposition before the voters of the county and if it carried some of the money will be used to cover the worst places in the county, speaking of roads, giving easy access to the farmers from every section who have business in town.

A war has been declared on vagrants and idlers who frequent the railway stations. A special officer has been employed to work inmates rounded to the city jail. A prisoner is allowed 50 cents a day and board when he work on the road and $3 a day and board when he stays in jail.

A great deal of interest has been aroused on the proposition of issuing bonds to the amount of $600,000 for road improvements. There is no money now for road work and will not be until the spring of 1922 unless the bonds are voted. Those who favor the bonds are making a publicity drive in order that all qualified voters may have the facts before them.

Two negroes were arrested and placed in jail after fifteen gallons of choc beer had been confiscated by the sheriff. Authorities are warring upon moonshiners and sellers of illict beverages.

NEWCASTLE.

NEWCASTLE, Texas, Oct. 5.—Tom Slaughter, who killed a trusty at Little Rock, is one of the bandits who robbed the Guaranty State Bank at Graham over a year ago and stole about $4,000.

Graham Methodists are building a $100,000 church and the building is nearing completion.

Young county is building a $150,000 jail and the Newcastle Register insists that the commissioners court court went about $40,000 beyond what was necessary.

A company of local people all practical miners have opened a new coal mine south of town on Whiskey Creek. The quality of the coal is of the best. From now until the fifteenth of October, in order to have sufficient room to work, they are offering coal at $5 a ton at the mine or $6 delivered in Newcastle.

Oil City is the newest town in Young county and is growing by leaps and bounds. Messers. W. F. Faggard and D. B. Tomb have charge of the townsite. In addition to a large number of wells it is said that about a hundred new ventures will start within the next few months.

Rev. E. L. Coale of Los Angeles may be called to hold a co-operative meeting in Newcastle, beginning the third Sunday in October.

Rev. J. B. Riddle, pastor of the First Baptist church is leaving with his family this week for Paducah. Cottle county, to take charge as pastor of the Baptist church at that place. Newcastle is parting with Dr. Riddle with sincere regret.

Cotton is selling around 20 cents, the crop is practically gathered and the children ready for the fall and winter school work.

It is announced that the Woolfolk coal mine across the river from Newcastle has been re-opened for the fall and winter trade.

Miss Lola B. Lisle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Lisle, died at a sanitarium in Dallas where she had been taken for treatment. Sixth grade pupils of the high school were dismissed to attend the funeral.

FRONTIER DAYS RECALLED IN RIVER HEARING

Captain S. B. Burnett, W. T. Waggoner and D. P. Taylor in Testimony Assert Boundaries Meant Little.

All Testify Red River Channel Ordinarily on North Side; Changes Affect Wichita County Slightly.

Featured more by interesting reminiscences as told by Captain S. B. Burnett and W. T. Waggoner, two of the most widely known pioneer ranchmen of the southwest and D. P. ("Phy") Taylor, hotel and land owner of this city, than by evidence which had direct bearing on the disputed boundary of the states of Texas and Oklahoma, the first day of the boundary hearing for Wichita county before Special Commissioner Frederick Tyler closed at 5:15 Wednesday afternoon after the last witness has spent the entire afternoon on the stand.

Commissioner Tyler announced that time that a night session would be held which would open at 7:30 and extend to 10:30 p. m.

At witnesses for the state of Texas the three witnesses testified that during their life time and from what they had heard from older residents long since dead there has been little change in the present river boundary as it pertains to Wichita county. The channel was ordinarily on the north side, all testified.

The Big Bend area on which are the only lands of any special value involved in the entire dispute was practically the same as it now is for 100 years back, according to the three witnesses. This testimony is in line with the Texas contentions as to the boundary line of the two states indicated by the course of the river.

Witnesses testified that they could recall no changes in the north bluff nor in the valley lands to the south of any special importance.

Although agreeing in the main there was some conflict among the witnesses as to dates and locations concerned with conditions 30 to 50 years ago in this section.

Due to the health of Captain Burnett it was found necessary to take his testimony at his room in a local hotel. The other witnesses were examined in a justice court room at the courthouse. The hearing was attended by about 50 people, many of whom are to be examined later. Attorney General Cureton of Texas had charge of the examinations for the most part for Texas with the afternoon cross examinations being made by J. M. Tellier, special attorney representing the United States.

Colonel Roosevelt

The Roosevelt hunt near here in 1902 when the former president was the guest of Captain Burnett, was mentioned in the testimony.

"He was a wonderful man and I wish there were more like him," declared Captain Burnett, referring to Roosevelt after he had told of the hunt attended by a number of pioneers in this section.

"We had all the wolves in the country for him," declared Phy Taylor who had charge of the chuck wagon on the occasion, "before the hunt we killed steers and scattered the meat for a radius of three miles to attract the wolves.

"There never was a better man" the witness declared when asked his opinion of the ex-president.

Questioned by attorneys it was apparent from the replies of the witnesses that in the early days of settlement of this section there was little attention paid to boundary lines. Efforts to establish boundary lines previous to the introduction of fences proved futile the witnesses only caring to make guesses.

Tells of Quanah Parker.

Captain Burnett's remarks about Quanah Parker famous Indian chief with whom he was personally acquainted for a period of years were followed closely although having no apparent relation to the boundary dispute. He told of the business methods of the chief and of his family together with many interesting customs of the Indian tribes. Asked about the chief's family the witness said amid laughter that it was pretty good sized—about six wives and sixteen children.

Mr. Waggoner gave in detail the holdings of he and other members of his family from their first arrival here following the war. From the testimony given it was not apparent that the present holdings of the Waggoner family are not concerned in the boundary dispute. He said that at no time had he ever heard of the land south of the river bank being claimed by any one except Texas. He said that the largest flood that ever visited this section was in 1876 when the Red river was like an "ocean" and the present side of this city covered with water.

Phy Taylor who apparently had a better recollection of details in connection with early development than did the other witnesses, told of the country from the time he came here with his father in 1876 and settled on what was termed the Dent place, a few years later moving near the mouth of Gilbert Creek.

The witness told of early day life from several angles. He was asked numerous questions about cowboy life and the holdings of Burk Burnett for whom he worked for a period of several years.

"I am sorry to state that Foster Crawford who robbed the City National Bank as a fellow cowboy for a couple of years while working for Burnett" Taylor said when questioned concerning his early friends and what had became of them.

The answer brought forth the comment from Attorney Tellier "that cow punching like politics apparently made strange bed fellows."

The witnesses was cross examined by Attorney Tellier for over two hours regarding the habits of the Red river as he had observed them. He said that he did not remember the flood of 1876 but that he recalled one in 1891. He said the flood waters only made minor changes in the river. He said that the stream was generally along the north bank.

EXPLOSION IN GREAT CHEMICAL WORKS AT OPPAU, GERMANY, DRAWS ATTENTION TO BARRING POISON GAS IN FUTURE WARS

Upper photo shows small section of village of homes about plant at Oppau, wrecked by the explosion. Thousands were killed in these homes. Lower photo shows remains of huge gasometers which blew up.

The recent tragedy at Oppau, Germany, which resulted when gasometers at the great Badische chemical works blew up, wrecking the city of Oppau and surrounding towns and killing thousands, may be the means of bringing before the disarmament conference the question of eliminating poison gases in warfare. It was the Badische works which produced most of the eighteen different kinds of deadly gases used by the Germans in the war. The plant was enlarged to meet the needs of the chemical warfare division of the German army.

YANK MARINERS OPERATE UNDER BRITISH RULE

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The international mercantile marine company asked for and obtained from the British government in 1903, an agreement for the operation of its ships, as a protection for American shareholders of an American corporation, P. A. S. Franklin, president of the corporation, today told the United States shipping board.

That agreement, called to the attention of the board last March, was declared by the board to be "inimicable" to the upbuilding of the American merchant marine, in that it appeared to provide that the corporation should not pursue a policy injurious to the British merchant marine or British trade.

The I. M. M. when it was organized, Mr. Franklin said, absorbed several leading British flag lines, including the White Star Line with its great ocean liners. Its stock, he added, is held almost entirely by American citizens.

The British government, Mr. Franklin asserted, was "deeply concerned" when the I. M. M. acquired the British companies. "We were faced with a possibility of that government giving valuable preferential concessions to rival British lines," he said.

"We went to them," he added, "and asked for equal favors, and we made the agreement in question with the understanding that at all times our American flag companies should be exempt from any control the British government might assume over our policies or our business."

This provision was specifically made in a supplemental agreement which was asked for by the shipping board last March, and, he said, was filled with the board on September 9 last.

Had the agreement with Great Britain not been made, he added, the British flagships destructed,—valuable assets of his corporation—would have been subject to confiscation by the British crown.

In all the years it has been in effect, he said, nothing has ever been done that was detrimental to American flag subsidiaries. The British companies, while owned by the American corporation, have their British directorates and officers as provided by British law. Should the British flag ships ever be taken over by the government, he was satisfied, he said, that full compensation would be rendered.

DRY GOODS.

By Associated Press.

NEW York, Oct. 5.—Future openings of staple dress goods for spring were announced today on a price basis substantially the same as that prevailing for fall. The change made on some cloths did not exceed a 10 per cent decline. Cotton goods were firm with trade of moderate volume in dry goods. Worsted yarns were slightly higher. Burlap were quiet with prices easy. Knit goods were more active, stimulated by the cooler weather.

Stocks

NEW YORK STOCKS.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The stock market was under continuous selling pressure today, traders paying little attention to improved industrial conditions, easier money rates and the buoyancy of foreign exchanges.

These factors were counterbalanced in a measure by reports adversely affecting Mexicon oil properties and the increased weakness of sugar and tobacco shares, due to their more doubtful dividend status.

Leaders were freely offered from the outset, but became especially heavy in the final hour. Mexican Petroleum made an extreme decline of 6 points. Pan-Americans were increasingly heavy and seasoned rails, steels, equipments and motors lost one to three points.

Among specialties losses of 1 to 7 points were sustained by Sumatra Tobacco preferred, Columbia Graphaphone preferred, International Nickle, preferred, Pierce Arrow preferred and Kresge, the latter losing more than half of yesterday's 12 3-4 point rise. Sales amounted to 575,000 shares. Call money was abundant on the flow of funds from Interior sources, the rate declining from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent at midday on the exchange, while outside loans were contracted on a four per cent basis.

Authoritative surveys of the steel and iron trade indicated further expension of pig iron production and corresponding increase of manufactured products by leading mills, including the United States steel corporation. The copper market also hardened on the foreign demand for metal.

In its broader aspects the sharp rise of International remittances was the most significant development of the day. The British rate of 3.77 1-4 for demand showed a gain of 3 cents in the pound and continental bills were higher by 4 to 20 points. Drachmas, or Greek exchanges was the one striking exception, losing from 20 to 35 points on that country's further military reverses.

Liberty and Victory bonds against were heavily dealt in mostly at gains, exceptions being the Liberty 3 1-2's and Victory 4 3-4's. Other domestic issues were irregular, but Internationals were firm. Total sales par value $17,250,000.

INVOLUNTARY BANKRUPTCY.

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the federal court today by James R. Sutherlin, head of the Sutherlin Securities Company here. Liabilities amounting to $1,080,736 are listed; assets are estimated at $36,904.

Livestock

FORT WORTH LIVE STOCK

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 5.—Cattle and calves sold on a very weak demand today, slow trading being featured througnout. Receipts amounted to 3,000 head of cattle and 2,000 calves. Steers were weak to ten cents lower, canners and fat cows declined 25 cents, heifers and yearlings were 15 to 25 cents lower and undesirable calves, which constituted the chief quota of the receipts, were weak at the 50 cent drop since last Saturday's close.

An advance of 15 to 25 cents resulted in an active hog market. Packers and shippers paid $7.85 for desirable consignments and most of the run cleared at $7.50 to $7.75. Pigs gained 10 to 15 cents, several sales being made at $7.60. Hog receipts were 1,000 head.

Sheep receipts reached 3,000 head, but of that number more than 2,500 head were on through billing. The market supply consisted of wethers and yearlings which brought $2.25 a steady price.

Quotations:

Cattle weak to 25c lower; beeves $3@5.75; stockers $3@4.50; cows $3@4; canners $1.50@2.75; heifers $3@6.50; yearlings $3.50@7; bulls $2@2.75; calves $2@5.50.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—There was a break of about $4 a bale in the cotton market here today under heavy general liquidation and scattered selling. December contracts sold off to 19.52 or 83 points below last night's closing and 243 points below the high price of Monday morning. December closed at 19.56 compared with 20.35 the previous day, with the general market closing barely steady at a net decline of 70 to 84 points.

Liverpool cables were lower than due and after opening barely steady at a decline of 7 to 31 points the market became very weak under liquidation, local Wall street and southern selling. Stop orders were uncovered when prices broke below 20 cents for December, and after the execution there were rallies of 25 to 30 points from the lowest on trade buying and covering. The demand proved comparatively small and the market weakened again in late trading under a renewal of more or less general pressure, accompanied by reports that trade buying orders were being withdrawn. October sold off to 19.48 and January 19.20 or 75 to 84 points net lower and the close was at the lowest of the day.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—The opening was lower in the cotton market today and the decline persisted throughout the session, lowest prices coming late when trading months were 80 to 90 points under the last price of yesterday. On the close the decline amounted to 73 to 85 points. December traded as low as 19.10 and closed at 19.18. Little ability to recover from the decline was in evidence at any time and the strongest period followed the first flurry of selling, when, after declines of 50 to 60 points was a recovery to within 16 to 28 points of yesterday's close.

The lower opening was in sympathy with a poor Liverpool but the market soon had to face a great deal of hedge selling and firmly liquidation of long contracts on a much larger scale than most brokers thought possible after all the liquidation of the earlier sessions of the week. As the decline progressed, bearish traders became aggressive and their selling was the main factor in the late trading.

Claims of more liberal offerings of spots in some sections of the belt and better reports on the crop from the government than expected, combined to keep the decline going.

COTTON OIL.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Tenders of 15,000 barrels on October contracts and consequently heavy liquidation in that delivery, along with general selling on the weakness in other commodity markets, carried cottonseed oil lower. Closing bids were 41 points lower on October and 10 to 31 net lower for balance. Sales 20,500 barrels. Prime crude 7.50 bid; prime summer yellow spot 9.00@9.50; December 9.24; March 9.47; May 9.64 all bid.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—All deliveries of wheat, corn, oats and rye swept downward today to a new low price record for 1921. Large visible supplies totals proved to be a heavy handicap on values. Wheat closed weak 3 1-2 to 4c net lower, with December 1.11 1-2 to 1.11 3-4 and May 1.16 to 1.16 3-4.

Corn lost 1-8 to 3-4 and oats 1-2 to 7-8. In provisions the outcome was unchanged to 15c down.

General liquidation took place in the wheat trade and at the finish the market was at bottom of the day, 8 3-4 to 9 1-4c off compared with yesterday's top figures. Bears put special stress on the big stocks at Kansas City and on the possibility of shipments being made from there to Chicago. Besides loadings were said to have increased in the northwest and a larger movement of the spring crop within a few days was predicted. Rallies took place at times as a result of covering by shorts but no real strength was apparent, and the upturns failed to last.

Declines in corn and oats were largely due to the action of wheat.

Provisions weakened in sympathy with grains.

Like the art of song that of the dance is employed by many birds primarily in the courtship of the female. The biggest bird of all—the ostrich—is a most indefatigable dancer, particularly enjoying the waltz. The moor cock is another dancing bird from which the peasants of upper Bavaria have borrowed their famous "flat shoe dance," or clog dance.

EUROPEANS MUST POSSESS $500 TO ENTER MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 5.—Because Mexico already has multitudes of poor people the government wants no additions from foreign lands. For this reason a decision has been reached that immigrants from Europe must possess 1,000 pesos, or $500, to be admitted into Mexico.

This is to prevent an inrush of poverty-stricken families which, instead of developing farm and aiding to the wealth of the nation, would immediately center into competition with Mexican wage earners.

A number of colonization schemes will be affected by this new requirement that newcomers must have $500. There are plans on foot to bring into Mexico great numbers of immigrants from Russia, Germany, Austria, Italy and other countries, in the manner in which hordes were shipped to the United States in former years.

But Mexico is not like the United States. It does not need and could not receive even a small part of what was once the annual inflow into the United States of men and women who carried with them empty pocketbooks, good appetities and immediate need of work.

Some hard experiences have guided the Mexican government to its new policy. Arrivals who have come for the purpose of forming the "farming colonies" have proved to be nothing more than groups of wage earners, with no thought of engaging in agriculture. These have scattered to various cities and have become competitors of Mexican workers at a time when work has been scarce in Mexico. One party of six hundred German farming colonists did not proceed further than Mexico City. Numbers of the "farmers" came to Mexico with the intention of seeking work at Tampico, having heard tales that enormous wages were paid there.

It is said that more recent arrivals from Germany are actually going upon the land and that some prosperous calonies have been formed.

PAYMENTS OF TAXES ARE OFF

Despite the fact that the collections for Wednesday were below expectations and far below the average day's run which must be received to insure collection of $100,000 worth of city taxes by October 15, City Tax Collector H. J. Anderson was confident that the collections will be made and on time.

Several payments, he said will be made within a few days which will send the totals leaping toward the amount desired.

The total collection at the end of business on Wednesday was 3,532.44.

Citizens who made their payments Wednesday were:

Maggie Nim.
Perry Funk.
Mrs. C. L. Burchard, "Est."
Will Strewe.
Mrs. T. D. Graves.
J. S. Yausey.

BRANCH BANK OPPOSED BY ASSOCIATION

By Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 5.—Money was the root of all questions here today in the second session of the American Bankers' association annual convention. One question with a promise of making itself one of the big themes of the convention was revealed in alignment of forces, for and against extension through branch banks, especially by national banks, as suggested in a proposed law reported to be fostered by national banks. Oscar W. Schaeffer of Girard, Kansas, declared that an "octopus" menaces state banks. Branding extension through branch banks as a forboding of ruin, Schaeffer asked the state banking division:
"Are you going to let the octopus get its tenacles around you on the state banks?" The division went on record as "absolutely opposed to branch banking," with the understanding that the question would be taken before the general session tomorrow.
Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger told the bankers today that profiteering banks must beware, for the government is watching them and will not hesitate to charter new national banks within their territory.
From the financial standpoint the important feature today of the general session of the convention was the report of the economic policy commission. It recorded that the worst financial stringency was over and natural recuperative forces were working for recovery.

The change is being sought by the Cuban commercial mission now in the United States.
Growing severity of competition, especially from Germany, emphasizes the greater need for preferential arrangements with Cuba, the resolution maintained.

DEFENSE FOR MRS. SOUTHARD SCORES POINT

By Associated Press.
TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Oct. 5.—That the Widal test for typhoid was reliable and that specimens of blood taken from the body of Meyers, 30 hours prior to his death reacted positively to the test was drawn from Dr. J. F. Coughlin, witness for the state in the case of Lydia Meyers Southard, charged with the murder of her former husband, Edward F. Meyers.
Dr. Coughlin had previously stated that in his opinion ptomaine poisoning was responsible for Meyers' death but in explanation of the signing of the death certificate which attributed death to typhoid, declared he was guided by the tests made by the pathologist of the Twin Falls county hospital which tests showed a positive reaction indicating Meyers was suffering from typhoid.
In his own judgment, he said, death was due to the presence of some factor other than the germs of typhoid, probably ptomaine poisoning.
On one occasion Mrs. Meyers said that she "knew her husband could not get better" according to one of the witnesses.
A drug clerk who said he sold insect exterminator to the defendant in August last, testified that the purchase was of an unusual amount and at that time he said to the defendant "what in the world are you going to do with it all?" to which the defendant replied that it was to go to a ranch. The witness fixed the date of the purchase as upon August 13, or immediately after, last year. Meyers died September 7, 1920.

NOTED ARMY RIFLEMAN IS VISITOR HERE

General Paul Wolfe, noted army rifle shot, and one of the most expert riflemen in the world, and an officer with a distinguished record of service overseas with the 33rd division, is a visitor in Wichita Falls, stopping off here Wednesday night on the way to rejoin his organization, the Second division, at Camp Travis. General Wolfe has just ended a detail in command of the recent training camp at Fort Logan, Colorado.
His purpose in visiting Wichita Falls to stop over with Major W. L. Culbertson, recently detailed national guard instructor with headquarters here, and who is in General Wolfe's present command, the Ninth Infantry. While here he also expects to call on Mayor Cline, whom he met while the mayor recently visited at Camp Travis with Major Culbertson. He was accompanied by Capt. H. B. Wolfe and L. W. Brown.
General Wolfe was in command of the rifle team representing the A. E. F. at the international shoot in the summer of 1919 when it defeated rifle teams representing all the allied armies. For many years previous to that time he had been recognized as an authority on the rifle in the army, and a large portion of the instruction given by the army in rifle shooting is based on his work.
While serving overseas General Wolfe's distinguished service was such as to win recognition from every allied government.
Prior to the war he was in command of one of the Plattsburg encampments, and in 1917 commanded one of the first series of training camps which graduated a large number of temporary officers.
He expects to be here all day Thursday, probable leaving Thursday night for San Antonio to take up his new command. Of all the places he has been stationed, the visitor said, he would rather serve in Texas, if for no other reason for the wonderful climate and the hunting provided in the neighborhood of Fort Sam Houston and along the Texas and Mexican border.
He declared himself delighted with Wichita Falls and asserted that it far exceeded his expectations as a city.

TAX WRANGLE CONTINUES TO HOLD CONGRESS

President Intervenes in Effort to Make Progress, Conferring With Senate and House Leaders.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The tangle in congress over tax revision legislation was given the attention of the administration today at a succession of conferences between President Harding and senate and house leaders.

What position the president may take regarding substitution of a sales tax for the miscellaneous excises in the pending bill was not disclosed, those who saw Mr. Harding declaring that he was keeping an open mind on the subject for the present.

Meantime groups in the senate went forward with conferences on the whole subject and opponents of the pending measure continued their assaults on it. The Democrats on the finance committee put in their minority report in which they declared that the bill "neither fulfills the promise of the Republican party for a simplification of tax law and procedure nor satisfies the demand of the Democratic party for a complete survey of existing taxes and their modification and simplification."

Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, a Republican member of the finance committee, also filed a minority view, declaring that he was in general accord with the Democratic report insofar as it criticised the "proposals of the majority to reduce the supertaxes upon large individual incomes, to repeal the excess profits tax and the capital stock tax."

"There is nothing to be gained by the forced and inconsiderate enactment of the present bill," said the minority report. "The bill affords no relief to the country. There will be no reduction effective during this calendar year—nine months after the advent to full power of the party which promised immediate relief from oppressive war taxes."

Practically every change in the rates or repeal of present taxes is postponed until January 1, 1922 and are to be accomplished through promised cuts in expenditures that may not materialize, with contingent borrowings in that event as well as certain borrowings to pay the $170,000,000 estimate to meet savings stamps and Pittman act redemptions and expenditures.

"The purpose of the Republican majority seems to have been centered upon the exemption of millionaires from the higher surtaxes, and the exemption of corporate interests and monopolies from the payment of proper taxes upon in-ordinate profits. In pursuit at once of this purpose the committee has divided the income tax payers of the country into two classes: Those who have incomes greater than $66,000 a year and those who have incomes less than $66,000 a year.

"There are 11,077 millionaires in the first-class and 5,321,683 people in the second-class. The committee in its solicitation for wealth has accorded these 11,077 millionaires very substantial relief by repeal of the higher brackets of the surtaxes, while the 5,320,683 ordinary taxpayers have been given no substantial relief."

The Democrats gave notice that they would offer amendments to the bill largely increasing the surtax rates on incomes up and above $500,000; reducing the normal tax on incomes below $15,000 limiting the exemptions allowed to heads of families to incomes below $20,000 and repealing the taxation freight, passenger and Pullman transpogtation.

"The pending bill as framed," the minority report concluded, " is not calculated to promote or protect domestic commerce, or bring about the stimulation of enterprise or increase the profits from which the federal revenue ought to be raised.

"The bill does not accommodate the fiscal requirements of the government. It will merely thrust the question into the field of politics and propaganda. Our revenue system cannot be placed upon a permanent and rational basis by a failure to comprehend the factors in the problem and to meet them with reason and effectiveness. No other action is worthy of congression in the present state of the country."

Those signing the report were senators Simmons, North Carolina; Williams, Mississippi; Jones, New Mexico; Gerry, Rhode Island; Reed, Missouri and Walsh, Massachusetts.

TOO MUCH OF THEORETICAL SAYS FORBES

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The present system of federal vocational training contains "decidedly too much theory," and needs the injection of practical methods, Director Forbes of the Veterans Bureau declared in a report to President Harding made public today and covering his recent countrywide inspection of hospitalization and vocational training facilities.

In making public the report, Colonel Forbes characterized the system as "unmistakably and absolutely wrong," and expresse doubt whether "very many men have actually been rehabilitated by the government and gone back to their respective communities as wage earners and as assets."

"We have farmed men out under this system," the director added in commenting on the report. "It is nothing short of crime and slavery to put men into some of the places they have been put. I am opposed to the sweat shop system and I do no propose to let more of the former service men be exploited by mushroom houses that have sprung up merely to exploit the soldiers and get the government's money."

Government hospitalization of former service men was said by Colonel Forbes in his report to be nearly equal to the needs, except in certain localities, such as California, but he added that it would be necessary to continue expanding. Hospitalization would continue to be a problem he said, in contending that there could be no justification on the part of the government for failure to push to completion the permanent program.

Colonel Forbes reiterated to the president the belief that a government vocational university for former service men and women would in a measure solve the problem. Few of the beneficiaries of the system, he added, get what they desire in the way of training and the government loses sight of them once they have been "farmed out to somebody who thinks only of the money they will make off them."

PRESIDENT FELICITATES GEN. WOOD

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Appreciation of the services performed for his country by Major General Wood were expressed today by President Harding and Secretary Weeks in messages to the general on his retirement from the active list of the army, to become governor general of the Philippines.

The president referred to General Wood's "most distinguished services" in the army, and Secretary Weeks in speaking of his military career, said it belonged to "the army as an inspiration to high aims and energetic accomplishment.

"I want to express my own and the country's satisfaction," President Harding said, "in knowing you are to assume civil authority in the Philippines and that retirement from your brilliant career in the army not end your service to your country and its government. Most cordial good wishes."

HARDWOOD LUMBER MEN APPLY FOR RATE REDUCTION

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Representatives of the hardwood industry in southern and northern states and from points as far west as Arkansas brought to hearings before the interstate commerce commission today their application for general reductions on freight rates on hardwood forest products.

All of the score or more witnesses called by the complainant stated that the desired rate reduction would assist in bringing about a general price reduction, while railroad attorneys in cross examination endeavored to secure admission from the witnesses that transportation expenses were so small a percentage of the industries' operating cost that it could not be considered important.

FORT WORTH PLANS HELP FOR JOBLESS

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 5.—Plans for permanently relieving the unemployment situation in Fort Worth were formulated at a conference here this afternoon. Business men, bankers, labor union heads, city and county officials, representatives of building material concerns and officials of the chamber of commerce advanced many plans for temporary and permanent relief of the situation.

Construction by both city and county of all projects for which bonds were issued was urged. Committees also were named to further and carry through plans to obtain a railroad terminal and a few federal building for Fort Worth on which construction may begin during the winter.

Jules G. Smith, local grain dealer and a director of the chamber of commerce urged that organized labor voluntarily reduce wages from 16 1-2 per cent to 20 per cent. Labor union heads promised co-operation but declined to discuss the wage reduction. However, they promised to bring the matter up at a meeting tomorrow night at a meeting of building trades workers.

PROPOSED INCREASE IN FREIGHT RATES DENIED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Railroad proposals to increase trans-continental freight rates on lumber and forest products moving from Oregon, Washington, Utah, and Idaho to El Paso, Texas, by 25 per cent were held not justified today by the interstate commerce commission.

The commission also refused the railroad's request for an increase in lumber rates to and from intermediate points.

By Associated Press.

Discussions were said to have been limited to the suggestions for the stabilization of business advanced by the economic advisory committee of the conference with particular attention paid the problem of effecting a commercial revival of permanence without a consequent recession in the movement.

CAR BURNED BY OWN IGNITION; LATER STRIPPED

Suddenly fired from the ignition through undetermined causes, while it was being driven by a mechanician in whose hands it had been placed for repairs, a five-passenger touring car belonging to Deputy Sheriff Ollie Mc Donald was partially destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock. After the blaze was extinguished the machine was left on the old road to Lake Wichita, a short distance from the street car line.

Late Wednesday night during a short absence of watchers who had been guarding it, anto stripers are reported to have stolen one front tire, the head light lenses, rims and globes and the radiator cap. The radiator was reported found with one bolt loosened, as if the thieves had attempted to make away with it and had been frightened away before completing their job, according to the report of officers.

COTTON OPENS RAPIDLY WITH WARM DAYS

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Under the influence of "persistent" warm weather in the southern states during the last week, cotton bolls continued to open very rapidly and picking and ginning made generally good progress, although there was some interruption by rain in a few localities, particularly in parts of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Western Florida, according to the weekly review of the national weather and crop bulletin issued today.

The bolls are mostly open to the northern limit of the belt, said the review, and picking is well advanced even in the more northern districts.

Recent rains have been beneficial in checking deterioration in North Carolina, the report showed, but added that weevil and worms continue very active and damaging generally, especially in Texas and Oklahoma.

The review continued to predict "little or no top crop in any portion of the belt."

Corn matured rapidly in the south and harvesting was carried on satisfactorily in nearly all sections. The review further reported:

"Soiled conditions greatly improved in the south Atlantic states by showers the latter part of the week. Rice harvest was delayed by rain in Louisiana and along the Texas coast but made good progress in Arkansas."

Truck crops improved by the rain in southern and southeastern districts.

Sugar cane benefited by rains. The digging of sugar beets advanced and the cutting of tobacco satisfactorily progresses.
