County now taking constable applicants

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

The Gray County Commissioners Court is taking applications for the constable's position for Precincts 1 and 3. Commissioners decided this morning to advertise for people to fill out the rest of the term, about two years, of Constable James Lewis, who died last month.

Applicants must live in Precinct 1 or 3 of Gray County and must be a certified peace officer.

The commission also approved a request by White Deer Land Museum Curator Anne Davidson to hire a person to replace one who's leaving.

A request by District Attorney Lynn Switzer to hire someone to replace an assistant district attorney who is taking a job in Throckmorton was tabled until Switzer returned from Washington D.C., where she is involved in the U.S. Supreme Court case concerning Hank Skinner's DNA testing petition.

Commissioners approved polling places and election judges for the Nov. 2, general election.

The seven polling places and selection judges are Judy Livingston at the Lefors Community Center, Gail Cole at Lovett Memorial Library, Heather Thompson at Grandview Hopkins School, Linda McAnear at Lovett Library in McLean, Marilyn Lewis at the First Christian Church and Wynola Sanders at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Gray County Judge Richard Peet said that McAnear is on a federal grand jury this month. If she is unable to fulfill her duties as election judge in McLean, then Wanda Lamb will serve as election judge.

The commission also approved a bid from Carrier for $4,330 for replacement actuators for the heating, ventilation and air

Chilean miner rescue hits close to home for PHS student

editor@thepampanews.com

An entire country rejoiced on Wednesday when, surrounded by a crowd of family members, well-wishers and media, Luis Urzúa, the last of 33 trapped miners in Copiapó, Chile, was pulled above ground by an international rescue team.

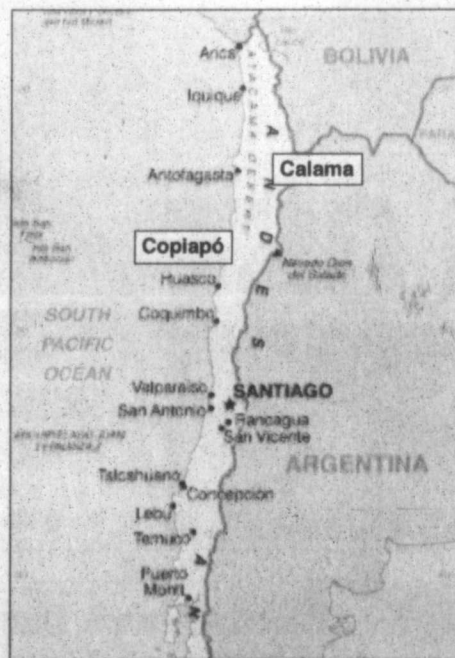

Half a world away in Pampa, Camila Vallejo breathed her own sigh of relief. Vallejo, a junior attending Pampa High School through the AFS Foreign Exchange Program, is from Calama in northern Chile, only seven hours away from Copiapó.

While her family isn't directly involved in mining (her father is an engineer), Vallejo knows very well about the mining life. The mining industry is one of the pillars of Chile's economy, with copper exports alone accounting for over a third of the country's income. A mining town itself, Calama is mere miles away from Chuquibambilla, one of the largest open pit copper mines in the world.

Many people Vallejo knows, she said,

William Ronald "Ron" Oler, 64

PERRYTON.—William Ronald "Ron" Oler, 64, died October 15, 2010, in Perryton.

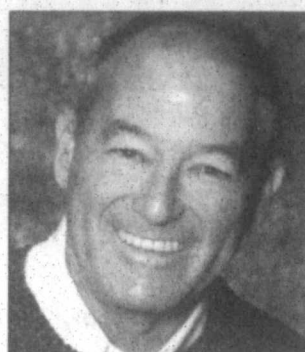

Memorial services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday, October 19, 2010, at Victory Family Church, with Rev. Marlon Sparks, pastor, and Ken Splawn, officiating. Cremation and arrangements are under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors of Pampa.

Ron was born August 28, 1946, in San Luis Obispo, Calif. to Bill and Retha Oler. He was raised in Pampa where he graduated high school. He attended the University of Houston.

Ron married Julie Scott in 1968 in Pampa. They have three children and raised them in Canadian until moving to Perryton. Ron loved being involved with his family's sports and activities. He was an avid golfer who enjoyed the game very much. In fact, he loved all sports and touched the lives of many young people through the years. Ron coached youth summer baseball for 30 years and was instrumental in chartering Little League Girls softball in Canadian in 1983.

Ron worked in the oil and gas industry all his life around the Texas and Oklahoma panhandle areas. He was a lease operator for XTO Energy.

Survivors include his wife, Julie Oler of the home; daughter, Mindy Abbott and husband Bill of Moore, Okla.; two sons, Justin Oler and wife Amber of Carrollton, and Brent Oler of Midwest City, Okla.; four grandsons, Austin, Tobin, Cole and Corbin; a precious granddaughter, Sophie; brother, Steve Oler of Richwood; and sister, Sandy Huddleston of Pampa; mother-in-law, LaVerne Scott; and several nephews, nieces and many good friends. Ron will be greatly missed by his grandchildren, and was preceded in death by his father and mother.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorials to honor Ron's life to one of the following organizations or one's favorite charity: Airborne Angel Cadets of Texas, P.O. Box 116691, Carrollton, TX 75011; Perryton Ranger Baseball Memorial, P.O. Box 1048, Perryton, TX 79070; or MYBA Baseball, P.O. Box 7621, Moore, OK 73153.

Lottie May Lance, 76

Lottie May Lance, 76, died October 14, 2010, in Amarillo.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday, October 19, 2010, at Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel, with Rev. Norman Rushing, pastor of Central Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be at Memory Gardens Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Lance was born December 7, 1933 in Parks, Ark. She had been a resident of Pampa for the past 60 years. She married Ardell Lance on March 28, 1948, in Perryton. He preceded her in death on October 4, 1987. She worked for Highland General Hospital as a nurse's aide and LVN for several years before returning to school to get her RN's degree. Lottie was a recipient of the American Business Woman's Award. She helped her husband and his business, Lance Builders, for many years. She owned and operated The Lancer Club for years.

Survivors include her two daughters, Brenda Duke and husband Kevin of Eustace; and Barbara Wright and husband Monte of Amarillo; a sister, Linda Myers and husband Neal of Borger; a brother, Curtis Ellis of Ft. Gibson, Oklahoma; three grandsons, Clinton Wright and wife Laura of Amarillo, and Daniel Duke and Tyler Duke, both of Eustace.

Memorials may be made to a favorite charity.

Judge eyes next June for first spill trial

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The first federal trial for damage claims by businesses and individuals complaining of financial losses from the Gulf Coast oil spill could be held next summer, a judge said Friday.

U.S. District Judge Carl Barbier, who presides over a batch of more than 300 consolidated lawsuits against energy giant BP PLC, said the first "test trial" for claims filed under the 1990 Oil Pollution Act could be held as early as June 2011.

A BP lawyer objected to scheduling a trial that soon. But Barbier said that if he were to adopt the company's proposed timetable, the first trial wouldn't take place until 2013 or 2014.

"That's not feasible to me," he said at a hearing Friday.

Under the Oil Pollution Act, BP's liability for economic damages such as lost wages is capped at $75 million. But Tony Hayward, then BP's chief executive officer, said in May that the cap was largely irrelevant and all legitimate claims would be honored.

Barbier

Appearing before Barbier, a lead plaintiffs' lawyer, Stephen Herman, expressed concern that BP may change positions and invoke the $75 million cap after all.

BP lawyer Don Haycraft said he needed to check with the company before he could formally stipulate that the company is waiving the cap.

"I certainly said BP will pay all legitimate claims," Haycraft said.

Barbier gave Haycraft a week to state in writing whether the company will agree to waive the cap.

"We all need to know sooner rather than later," he said.

After the hearing, plaintiffs' attorney Ervin Gonzalez said the company appears to be sending mixed signals on the cap.

Claims filed under the Oil Pollution Act include those filed by hotels and other tourism-driven businesses that say they lost revenue in the spill's aftermath.

The lawsuits arose after the April 20 explosion and sinking of the Deepwater Horizon oil rig, a disaster that killed 11 workers and triggered the spill of more than 200 million of gallons of crude oil before it was capped.

Besides the Oil Pollution Act claims, Barbier also has scheduled a separate trial in February 2012 designed to assign percentages of fault to BP and other companies sued over the oil spill.

Alaska to settle gas leak dispute

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Sean Parnell said Friday that the state is working to settle a legal dispute over leases that could be critical to the advancement of a major natural gas pipeline in Alaska.

Parnell declined to get into specifics but said he's "increasingly optimistic" that litigation over the North Slope's Point Thomson gas fields can be resolved out of court.

The yearslong dispute stems from the state's yanking of leases that it believes oil and gas companies sat on for too long without developing.

The matter is pending before the state Supreme Court, though a briefing schedule has been put on hold pending progress in the talks, assistant attorney general Jon Katchen said.

Man charged with kidnapping

McALLEN (AP) — A 26-year-old Mission man has been sentenced to more than 19 years in prison for taking a McAllen businessman hostage in January 2008.

Once Domingo Lara III is released from prison, he will be ordered to serve a five-year-term of supervised release and pay $101,000 in restitution. U.S. District Judge Randy Crane handed down the sentence Friday.

Lara was charged with kidnapping, accused of detaining and threatening to kill a McAllen businessman to make his family pay a ransom. The court noted that Lara had been responsible for collecting the ransom.

Lara pleaded guilty in January.

Three others have pleaded guilty and were sentenced earlier in the kidnapping.

The hostage was released with minor injuries after the ransom was paid.

No injuries in crash landing

GALVESTON (AP) — A pilot walked away unhurt after his single-engine aircraft landed on its belly at a Galveston airport.

The Houston Chronicle reported that the pilot told the tower at Scholes International Airport shortly before 2:30 p.m. Friday that his landing gear had failed and that he had to make an emergency landing.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Mike Gonzales said the single-engine model 1738 Bellanca landed on its belly shortly before 3 p.m. Galveston firefighters extinguished a small fire.

The pilot, whose name was not immediately available, had taken off from Scholes about an hour earlier.

No one was injured.

Beaumont man cops to robbery

BEAUMONT (AP) — A 32-year-old Beaumont man has pleaded guilty to bank robbery in federal court.

U.S. Attorney John M. Bales said Donald Ray Slaughter pleaded guilty to bank robbery and possession of a firearm during a violent crime before U.S. District Judge Marcia Crone on Friday.

Officials said Slaughter entered a Bank of America on July 10 armed with a gun, wearing a baseball cap and using a bandanna to disguise his face. He demanded cash and fled with $6,800. He was arrested six days later after trying to flee officers.

Slaughter faces up to 25 years for the bank robbery charge and up to five years for the firearms violation. A sentencing date has not been set.

Eight years for child porn

BEAUMONT (AP) — A 59-year-old man was given more than eight years in prison on a charge of possession of child pornography.

U.S. District Judge Marcia Crone sentenced Philip Charles Taylor on Friday. Taylor pleaded guilty in May.

Law-enforcement officials received information in January that Taylor was watching child porn in a Lufkin motel room with at least one child present.

Officials said officers received consent to search Taylor's computer and several DVDs and discovered nine videos of minors involved in sexually explicit conduct. Some of the videos depicted children less than 12 years of age engaged in sadistic or masochistic conduct.

Possible bomb in backpack

HARLINGEN (AP) — A 46-year-old South Texas man accused of placing a possible explosive device in a boy's backpack has been arrested.

Dedrick Alexander Thompson was being held in the Harlingen city jail Friday on charges of endangering a child and having a prohibited weapon. It was not immediately clear if he had an attorney.

Harlingen Police Sgt. John Parrish said officers found another possibly explosive device in Thompson's apartment.

The Valley Morning Star reports that a man placed a suspicious object in an 11-year-old's backpack after the child got off the school bus Thursday.

Once the scared boy got home, his uncle threw the object in the front yard and called authorities. The Brownsville police bomb squad responded and the area was temporarily evacuated.

No one was injured.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats' national fundraising organizations have become a silver lining for a beleaguered party that has its hands full with Republican-allied outside groups and well-financed GOP candidates.

The Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee on Friday reported raising a record $27 million during the three months ending Sept. 30, and entered the crucial final weeks of the election campaign with $25.6 million in the bank, $6.4 million more than its Republican counterpart. The Democrats' House equivalent, looking to stave off a Republican takeover, reported $41.6 million in the bank, more than twice the cash on hand reported by the National Republican Congressional Committee.

The money offers a sharp counterpoint to Republican advantages elsewhere in the political landscape. Republican Senate candidates have maintained a slight fundraising edge over Democrats. But the biggest GOP boost has come from outside groups that have spent millions on advertising, much of it in money raised from undisclosed donors in unlimited amounts.

"As Republicans nominate extremists who want to return to the failed Bush economic policies of the past, Democrats are ready to fight," said DSCC executive director J.B. Poersch.

Early financial reports show that Republican candidates in some key Senate races outraised their Democratic opponents during the past three months and had more cash on hand heading into the crucial final weeks of the midterm election campaign.

In the Illinois Senate race, a close contest for President

talking about right now, all the mining stuff," said Vallejo. "Pretty much most of the people are in the mining business. It's very dangerous."

When she first got wind of the disastrous mining collapse in Copiapó, Vallejo said, she was shocked and saddened but knew of the risk the miners were inherently under.

"You kind of understand," she said. "(I was) sad, but you know, you understand. You understand the dangers growing up in a mining town."

Still, Vallejo said, it was apparent that this wasn't just your regular mining accident.

"It's not normal for stuff like that to happen," she said. "That's the first time (I've) ever heard of that happening."

"Everybody was pretty much just shocked that they were going to stay in there for that long. I guess at first they thought they were going to stay in there until December, until Christmas. That's too long. That's not normal."

With all of Chile rapt by the tragedy, the fact that she was so far away from her home amplified her concerns for the trapped miners, Vallejo said.

"I was very worried. Even though I didn't know the people, it was in my country. We support all the people there, because it could happen to your family someday. You want to be there to give support and be more involved."

Vallejo said that she kept a close eye on the international news for the extent of the miners' ordeal. Her teachers and many of her friends all asked about the latest from her home country. Her host family, the Pirtles, kept her informed of the goings-on in the media, while her family in Chile kept her abreast of the news making the rounds locally.

The coming together of the Chilean people during the disaster was a point of pride for Vallejo, she said.

"It felt good to see everyone support each other," she said. "I was there when the earthquake hit (in March). When bad things happen, all the people in Chile come together and pray for everything to turn out good."

"On Facebook, there's always stuff about staying strong and everything will be OK. There's lots of groups that get together and try to help out. Everybody now is very happy and proud that (the miners) got out."

The unity in Chile over the miners' plight made their rescue that much more poignant, according to Vallejo.

"(I felt) happy and proud that they could survive in the mine," she said. "I was just excited and happy that they were alive."

Vallejo's host sister, Megan Pirtle, said that Vallejo's presence added a degree of closeness to the mining disaster for herself and her family.

"Probably if (Camila) wasn't here, we'd just see the face of it and not so much what's really going on, how it affects the country and everybody in it," said Pirtle. "With her here, you feel closer to all of it. We were all really concerned."

"Before she got here, I didn't really know much about Chile at all. Now, even after Camila leaves, I think we'll still be paying attention to what's going on down there."

Barack Obama's former seat, Republican Mark Kirk raised $3.12 million for the quarter and had $4.4 million available entering October. Democrat Alexi Giannoulias, who has been getting fundraising help from the president, raised $2.14 million in contributions and had $1.16 million in the bank, about a fourth of Kirk's cash on hand.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid faced an onslaught of spending from his opponent, Sharron Angle, as he struggles to hold on to his seat from Nevada. Both enter the final stretch of the neck-and-neck campaign with about $4 million each in the bank.

But Angle far outraised Reid, hauling in $14 million during the third quarter and spending much of it.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Oct. 16th, the 289th day of 2010. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 16, 1859, radical abolitionist John Brown led a group of 21 men in a raid on Harpers Ferry in western Virginia. (Ten of Brown's men were killed and five escaped. Brown and six followers ended up being captured; all were executed.)

On this date:

In 1793, during the French Revolution, Marie Antoinette, the queen of France, was beheaded.

In 1916, Margaret Sanger opened the first birth control clinic, in Brooklyn, N.Y. (The clinic ended up being raided by police and Sanger was arrested.)

In 1939, the comedy "The Man Who Came to Dinner," by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, opened on Broadway.

In 1962, the Cuban missile crisis began as President John F. Kennedy was informed that reconnaissance photographs had revealed the presence of missile bases in Cuba.

In 1978, the College of Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church chose Cardinal Karol Wojtyla to be the new pope; he took the name John Paul II.

In 1987, a 58-1/2-hour drama in Midland, Texas, ended happily as rescuers freed Jessica McClure, an 18-month-old girl trapped in an abandoned well.

In 1995, a vast throng of black men gathered in Washington D.C. for the "Million Man March" led by Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan.

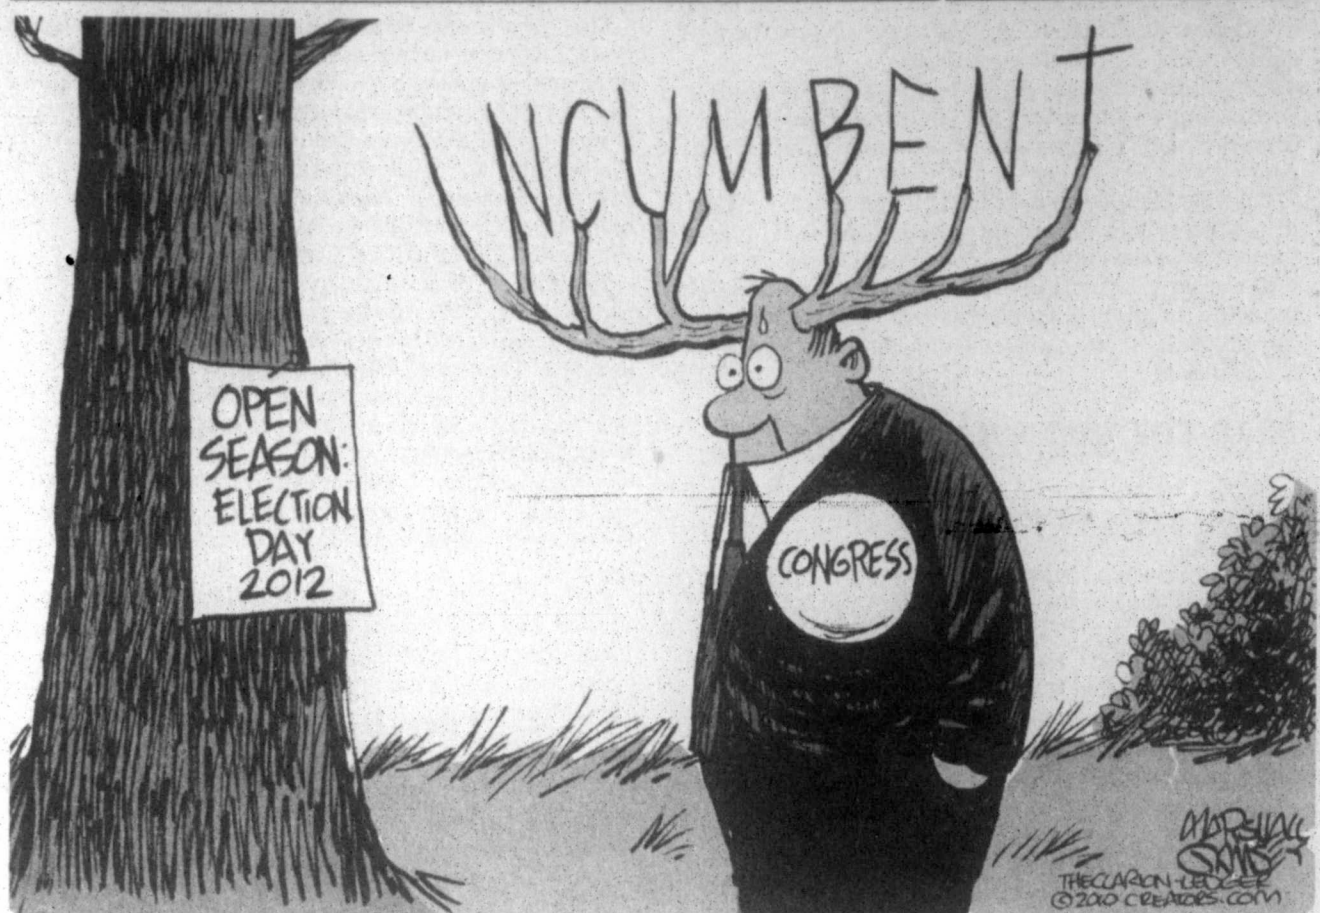

Ten years ago: Missouri Gov. Mel Carnahan and his son were killed in a plane crash south of St. Louis while en route to a rally for Carnahan's U.S. Senate campaign.

Five years ago: Elmer "Len" Dresslar Jr., the booming voice of the Jolly Green Giant, died at age 80.

One year ago: The government reported that the federal budget deficit for the just-ended fiscal year totaled an all-time high of $1.42 trillion.

Today's Birthdays: Actress Angela Lansbury is 85. Author Gunter Grass is 83. Former presidential adviser Charles W. Colson is 79. Actor-producer Tony Anthony is 73. Actor Barry Corbin is 70. Editor's Note: An occasional look at the claims made in political advertising.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Finding an actual fact in this season's load of campaign ads is like panning for nuggets. There's a lot of fool's gold in the way.

In this warped-lens world, a Democrat who votes against his party more than every other legislator except one is branded a lapdog of his party's leadership. A federal deficit from the past is attributed to a health care law that did not yet exist.

Democrats blame Republicans for wanting to tax SUVs, groceries and teddy bears without telling people that, in return, most of the income, payroll and estate taxes Americans know and hate would be wiped out.

A look at some of the wildest claims of the 2010 campaign and how they compare with the facts:

PUZZLING PELOSI PUPPETS: The National Republican Congressional Committee, believing House Speaker Nancy Pelosi to be an unpopular and imperious figure, has been out with a series of ads accusing rank-and-file Democrats of eagerly doing her bidding.

"Washington can be puzzling," says one ad against Alabama Rep. Bobby Bright. Although he claims to be independent "he voted with Pelosi over 70 percent of the time."

The facts: Bright is practically the most disloyal Democrat in Washington, judging by the same voting record that the Republicans use to point voters to the opposite conclusion. Of 435 members of the House, he is 434th in voting with his party. He voted with Pelosi less often than the iconoclast GOP Rep. Ron Paul of Texas voted with Republican leadership (only 71.6 percent vs. Paul's 76.7 percent). This, according to a Washington Post database tapped by the GOP. Idaho Democrat Walt Minnick, the top maverick in the House, voted with his party 70.8 percent of the time.

Such counts have only limited meaning even when used accurately because they include many humdrum votes — naming a post office, approving journals of House actions and the like. What really counts is how a lawmaker votes on the big, contentious issues for which party discipline is important.

On the three biggest such issues, the health care overhaul, economic stimulus and financial regulation, Bright voted against Pelosi and his party. Another Democrat targeted as "Pelosi's lapdog," Kentucky Rep. Ben Chandler, bucked the speaker on health care and the stimulus.

TEDDY BEAR TAX: Democrats have been running misleading ads in more than half a dozen states accusing GOP House candidates of supporting a hefty new national sales tax. In a typical example from the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee series, Ohio Republican Jim Renacci is said to favor "a new 23 percent national sales tax on almost everything you buy — food, gas, even medicine." A cartoonish ad against Mississippi Rep. Alan Nunnelee levies the same charge and shows a cascade of consumer goods that would be hit, among them an SUV, a child's wagon and a teddy bear.

The facts: The ads conspicuously ignore the fact that proponents of a national sales tax would eliminate most of the taxes that people pay now. Instead of income, payroll and other big taxes, money for the treasury would be raised by taxing the purchase of goods and services. This crucial part of the equation is missing in what voters are told in the ads.

It's not even an issue GOP candidates have been pushing in their campaigns; rather, they've indicated they like the idea when asked about it. National consumption or value-added taxes are used in some liberal democracies to help pay for a social safety net, but they've failed to gain political traction in the United States. Such taxes are regressive, meaning they take more from middle-income earners than from the rich, as a percentage of their income.

CROSS-WIRED CROSSROADS: American Crossroads, a group launched under the direction of former Bush administration operative Karl Rove, is disparaging Senate and House Democratic candidates in an aggressive series of ads touting the facts. In one, Colorado Sen. Michael Bennet is described as "the deciding vote on Obamacare," an overhaul that meant "we got tax increases, billions in Medicare cuts and record deficits."

The facts: Bennet was no more the deciding vote on the health care law than were the 59 other senators who voted for it. If anything, his vote was less decisive because it was not in doubt.

The U.S. posted a record deficit in 2009, then a slightly smaller one in the 2010 budget year that ended this month. The health care law would reduce the federal deficit by $143 billion from 2010-2019, according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office.

American Crossroads may be a new voice in political advocacy but it resorts to one of the oldest dodges used in Washington by both parties: casting a reduction in spending growth as a "cut." The new law slows projected increases in Medicare payments to providers but expands benefits in the traditional program instead of cutting them. However, seniors in Medicare Advantage plans offered through private insurers can expect higher out-of-pocket costs and fewer benefits. That's because the companies were getting paid more than it cost to provide care under traditional Medicare, and the law reins that in.

The health care law raises Medicare taxes on earnings over $200,000 for individuals and $250,000 for married couples and imposes a tax on unearned income for richer people. It provides tax credits to help the uninsured buy coverage.

SOCIAL SECURITY INSINCERITY: "If Walorski's plan was in place two years ago, you could have lost nearly 40 percent of your retirement savings," Jackie Walorski. We can't afford the risk." That's a Democratic ad against a Republican candidate in Indiana, misrepresenting Republican proposals to let people invest a portion of their Social Security taxes privately. WATCH cont. on page 5

SAMPLE BALLOT

To the right is the sample ballot for the 2010 general election, with Election Day scheduled for Nov. 2. Early voting in Gray County will be from Monday, Oct. 18, to Friday, Oct. 29, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Gray County Courthouse in Non-Jury Courtroom 104.

Your precinct is designated on your voter card. The precinct in which the ballot is valid is denoted in the upper right hand corner (the precinct in the sample ballot is Precinct 5). The sample ballot is the same for precincts 1-7.

All local races are uncontested and declared "elected."

Watch

GOP candidates Sean Duffy in Wisconsin, Dan Benishek in Michigan and Andy Barr in Kentucky are similarly depicted as reckless gamblers with Social Security money.

The facts: The 40 percent figure bears no resemblance to Republican proposals.

It is based on the percentage drop in the 2008 stock market crash. Republicans have never proposed personal savings accounts for all Social Security money. And the current House Republican leadership has not agreed to support any private investment program.

The main Republican initiative comes from Rep. Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, who would give workers under 55 the option of investing a third of their Social Security taxes in personal retirement accounts managed by the Social Security Administration. The government would guarantee that nobody loses money.

JOBS JUMBLE: Republicans and their allies are attacking the economic stimulus not just as a waste of money — an arguable point — but a killer of jobs. In Wisconsin, Democratic Rep. Steve Kagen is upbraided because he "promised us jobs, voting for the $787 billion stimulus. Cost: another 77,000 jobs lost." In Maryland, another GOP ad says, Rep. Frank Kratovil "promised the stimulus would save or create jobs but we've lost over 78,000" since he voted for it.

The facts: Whatever economists think of the stimulus, they do not think the infusion of money from Washington actually destroyed jobs. At worst, it did not create enough jobs and cost too much for the employment it did manage to generate. The claim in the Wisconsin ad and the implication in the Maryland one is that the stimulus is responsible for draining employment. The Republican ads simply record job losses in a particular state over a particular time and imply the blame rests squarely on stimulus measures.

TAX TANGLE: Democrats and their allies are eager to tie Republicans and their supporters to foreign interests, going so far as to accuse the U.S. Chamber of Commerce of using overseas money for political ads helping the GOP, without offering any evidence. The effort goes beyond that to portray Republicans as guardians of job outsourcing. In one example, a Democratic ad against Harold Johnson, Republican candidate in North Carolina, shows jeans, a sweater vest and a baseball cap and states: "This is a candidate for Congress helping make sure they're all made in China or Mexico. Harold Johnson signed a pledge that protected tax breaks for outsourcing jobs overseas."

The facts: The pledge, from Americans for Tax Reform, makes no promise to protect these companies. It says nothing about jobs. It's a pledge to oppose tax increases.

Democrats have tried to end tax breaks used by companies that ship jobs overseas, and Republicans have opposed that. The pledge, however, simply says the candidate will oppose increases in income tax rates and oppose cutting deductions or credits unless matched dollar-for-dollar by lower rates.

John Kartch, spokesman for the group, said it would be possible to end tax breaks for overseas companies while honoring the pledge, by substituting a tax reduction of equal value elsewhere in the tax code.

Rain helped a bit, but much of east, central Texas still dry

ROBERT BURNS
Special to The Pampa News

COLLEGE STATION -- While most of the state enjoyed mild fall weather that was conducive to harvesting row crops and even taking another hay cutting, much of east Texas and parts of central Texas remained dry, according to Texas AgriLife Extension Service personnel.

East Texas got some relief from drought conditions as a cool front brought an inch or more of rain over the weekend.

Though the rain was welcome, many East Texas counties remained critically dry and with short hay supplies going into the winter, said AgriLife Extension county agents.

"We got our first rain yesterday, the first rain in at least a month to a month and half," said Randy Reeves, AgriLife Extension agent for Harrison County, north of Longview.

Harrison County has had only a 0.5 inch of rain in the last two months, Reeves said.

"I heard that as of a week or two ago, Harrison County was the driest county in the state," he said. "I don't know if that's true or not, but we're really dry here."

Reeves said there was a lot of damage to existing pasture stands, and some of the producers in his area have been feeding hay to livestock for the last month.

"We've got folks who have been frantically calling to even find hay to buy," he said.

To the south, in Rusk County, the situation isn't quite so dire, mainly thanks to the cold front bringing 3 inches or more of rain, said Blaine Jernigan, AgriLife Extension agent.

Until the rain, Rusk County had burn bans in effect. The rain will allow producers to plant winter pastures, Jernigan said.

Earlier rains helped the hay situation, and although there won't be a surplus, most livestock producers should have enough to get their herds through the winter, he said.

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

PANHANDLE: The region had cool nights and warm days. Daytime temperatures were slightly above average, while the evening temperatures were normal. Soil-moisture levels varied from very short to adequate with most areas reporting short to adequate. The corn harvest was ongoing with good yields reported. Cotton was in fair to good condition. Growers continued planting winter wheat. Rangeland conditions ranged from very poor to good with most counties reporting poor to fair. Cattle were in good condition.

brought to you by

ROLLING PLAINS: Cooler weather arrived with overnight temperatures dipping into the mid-to-low 40s and daytime temperatures reaching the high 80s. Cotton growers either began harvesting or were preparing to do so. Most cotton fields were ready to harvest, but there remained a few acres that need more days of good weather before becoming fully mature. Overall, the crop appeared to have excellent yield potential. Earlier-planted wheat began to emerge. Fears of armyworm invasions caused some growers to delay planting wheat, but to date, reports of grasshoppers were worse than armyworms. Already planted wheat and oats needed a good rain. Dry conditions caused some producers to stop drilling. Farmers were taking the final hay cutting of the season. Pastures and rangeland began to show moisture stress. Landowners were concerned as there was still an abundance of grass from earlier rains, but with the drier weather the wildfire risk was becoming critical. Some producers began cutting fireguards around pastures and rangeland. Livestock were in good condition.

SOUTH PLAINS: The region had mild, open weather, which allowed continued cotton defoliation and harvesting. Soil moisture was short to adequate. The corn, cotton, sorghum, sunflower and peanut harvests were in full swing. The silage harvest ended. Winter wheat planting continued. Pastures and rangeland were in fair to good condition but in need of rain. Cattle were in good condition.

A farm crew worker at the Texas AgriLife Research and Extension Center at Overton disks a Bermuda grass field to prepare it for over-seeding of a cool-season grass seed for winter grazing. Until mid October, the soil-moisture level in many East Texas fields was too low to make emergence of new seed possible.

40 Days of Prayer for our Nation!

Central Baptist Church invites you to join in

"40 Days of Prayer for our Nation!"

Our nation was founded upon God and His Word and He remains our foundation. It is time for God's people to pray and surrender to His Lordship over our lives and our nation. Many significant events in scripture were based on the number 40 and our coming election is significant in turning our nation back to God.

Beginning Friday, September 24, and continuing through November 2, Central's sanctuary will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. for anyone who would like to pray for our nation.

You may come by before work, on your lunch break, or any other time during the day.

"Nevertheless I have this against you, that you have left your first love. Remember, therefore from where you have fallen; repent and do the first works, or else I will come to you quickly and remove your lampstand from its place unless you repent."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 12-year-old girl with a big problem. My class recently learned about reproduction. All of the girls accepted it in a mature manner, but it's another story with the boys.

Now all the boys look at me funny when I walk through the hall. It makes me feel awkward. Should I ignore them or should I say something? — EMBARRASSED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Right now, I suspect most of your classmates are feeling awkward. A frank discussion about reproduction has been known to make students older than you uncomfortable. It is, however, a part of life — and contrary to what some may think, ignorance isn't bliss.

Acting the way the boys are is normal for their age. But if it continues, rather than saying anything to them — which might encourage more of the same — talk to a teacher about it.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly before I started college, a relative introduced me to "Paul," who would be attending the same school, and told us we were distant cousins. Paul and I became friends. We socialized together often and all our friends knew us as cousins.

It wasn't until after graduation that our parents told us that while we have a relative in common, it is by marriage, and we are not related to each other. Paul and I have a lot in common, and he has expressed an interest in pursuing a relationship with me.

Paul is a great guy, but I'm reluctant to date him because all our friends think we're related. It almost feels like we are doing something wrong. Can you please share your opinion on this situation? — IT'S ALL RELATIVE

DEAR ALL RELATIVE: There is nothing to stop you and Paul from becoming romantically involved if you're both leaning in that direction. The way to deal with it would be to tell your friends, before you start being seen together, how "amusing" it is that you were led to believe the two of you were related, when it turns out that you AREN'T. It was all a big mistake. (Ha-ha.)

That should quell most of the gossip you're concerned about. And if you're asked directly, repeat what you told me.

DEAR ABBY: I have been involved with a man, "Seth," for more than two years. We share mutual interests and he makes me laugh. For the most part we're happy, but I have one concern. I have yet to receive flowers from Seth, although he has mentioned many times that he had sent them to his ex while they were together.

Is it wrong for me to expect flowers, or should I just forget the idea and leave it alone? — WAITING FOR ROSES IN HOUSTON

DEAR WAITING: Not knowing Seth, I can't say whether his unwillingness to send you flowers is because after what happened with his ex he considers them a bad investment or whether he's just cheap. But because the absence of flowers is bothering you, ask HIM about the omission.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 25-year-old woman who is involved in a serious relationship with a wonderful man. We've been together for about three months and we're very much in love.

My problem: I think I'm obsessed with him. I am happy only when we spend time together. When we're not, I feel sad and alone. I spend my time following his activities on social networking sites and constantly checking my cell phone, hoping he sends me a message.

This is my first serious relationship. I know he loves me as much as I love him because he has mentioned marriage and having kids together someday. Is what I am experiencing normal? — LOVESTRUCK IN NEW YORK

DEAR LOVESTRUCK: It's not unusual for a first relationship, but you're right to be concerned. Take a step back and look at what you're doing. We cannot depend on someone else to make us happy or make us whole. When a woman spends all her time tracking what her boyfriend is doing when he's not with her and waiting for the phone to ring, it makes her a less-interesting person to be around than she could be. And that kind of dependency can drive a man away.

It is important that you create a balance between what's going on in the relationship and continuing to develop yourself as an individual. Your boyfriend seems to have no problem doing this.

20th Century Club meets

The Twentieth Century Club met at the home of Mrs. Louise Bailey, 2617 Fir, on Oct. 12, 2010 at 1:30 p.m.

The President, Mrs. Pat Terry, called the meeting to order. The Club Collect and pledges to the flags were led by Mrs. Cleo Worley.

Mrs. Sue Pribble, Secretary, read the minutes (approved as read) and roll call with 12 members present.

Mrs. Myrna Orr gave the Treasurer's Report. Correspondence from Mrs. Maxine Hawkins was read.

The program was given by Mr. Howard Graham, a retired Pampa High School history teacher. His topic was on World War II and how the Office of Price Administration affected America and sugar stamps, tire stamps and many other items that were in short supply. He displayed his mother's books that had been saved after use.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Sue Pribble's home, 2321 Aspen, on Oct. 26 at 1:30 p.m.

Six months after disaster, ecologists lower Gulf health grade

ST. PETE BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Six months after the rig explosion that led to the largest offshore oil spill in U.S. history, damage to the Gulf of Mexico can be measured more in increments than extinctions, say scientists polled by The Associated Press.

In an informal survey, 35 researchers who study the Gulf lowered their rating of its ecological health by several points, compared to their assessment before the BP well gushed millions of gallons of oil. But the drop in grade wasn't dramatic: On a scale of 0 to 100, the overall average grade for the oiled Gulf was 65 — down from 71 before the spill.

This reflects scientists' views that the spilled 172 million gallons of oil further eroded what was already a beleaguered body of water — tainted for years by farm runoff from the Mississippi River, overfishing, and oil from smaller spills and natural seepage.

The spill wasn't the near-death blow initially feared. Nor is it the glancing strike that some relieved experts and officials said it was in midsummer.

"It is like a concussion," said Larry McKinney, who heads the Gulf of Mexico research center at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi. "We got hit hard and we certainly are seeing some symptoms of it."

Will the symptoms stick around or just become yesterday's headaches? That's the question that couldn't be answered at a conference earlier this month of 150 scientists at a hotel on a Florida beach untainted by the spill. The St. Pete Beach gathering was organized by the White House science office to coordinate future research.

"There's the sense that it's not as bad as we had originally feared; it's not that worst case scenario," said Steve Lohrenz, a biological oceanographer at the University of Southern Mississippi. "There's still a lot of wariness of what that long-term impact is going to be."

Steve Murawski, the chief fisheries scientist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, compared scientists research to a TV crime drama: "It's the end of the story that counts, not all the steps along the way."

We're only at the 30-minute break in an hour-long drama, Murawski said.

And there's a plot twist. Research findings already released have led scientists and the government to shift their focus from the sea's surface to deeper waters and the ocean bottom.

A month-long cruise by Georgia researchers on the ship Oceanus reported oil on the sea floor that they suspect is BP's but haven't proven yet. Government officials still question whether there is oil on the sea floor, but the Georgia scientists say the samples smelled like an auto repair shop. They took 78 cores of sediment and only five had live worms in them. Usually they would all have life, said University of Georgia scientist Samantha Joye. She called it a "graveyard for the macrofauna."

"The fact that there isn't living fauna is a signal that something happened to these sites and these sediments," Joye said in a phone interview Friday. "The horrible thing is they've been inundated with this oily material... There's dead animals on the bottom and it stinks to high heaven of oil."

University of South Florida's Ernst Peebles said the oil on the floor "is undermining the ecosystem from the bottom up."

David Hollander, also at South Florida, found some of the first plumes of the oil beneath the surface, something that government officials first disputed but now concede is real. Keeping the oil off the surface minimized damage to wetlands, beaches and some wildlife, so in some ways, "we dodged the bullet," he said.

There are several reasons a sizable amount of oil didn't make it to the surface where it could do more visual harm. For one thing, BP used 1.8 million gallons of chemical dispersants to break up the oil. But scientists give more credit to the high pressure and high temperature of the gusher that spewed the oil in droplets so tiny, they didn't float to the surface.

"We still don't know the long-term effect," Hollander said.

Scientists worry the oil deep below will get into plankton and the food web, maybe not killing species directly but causing genetic mutations, stress or weakening some species, with effects that will only be seen years later.

"I think populations are going to be affected for years to come," said Diane

Blake, a Tulane University biochemist. "This is going to cause selective (evolutionary) pressure that's going to change the Gulf in ways we don't even know yet."

It was a long-term assault from the well. From April 20, when the Deepwater Horizon rig exploded, killing 11 people, to July 15 when the well was initially plugged, oil bled at a prodigious rate that BP and government officials had a hard time understanding. Initially, officials said only 42,000 gallons a day was flowing, but government scientists eventually said it was as much as 2.6 million gallons a day.

One of the species mentioned most often during two days of scientific sessions in Florida doesn't even live in the Gulf. It's herring. After 1989's much smaller Exxon Valdez spill, it took awhile for the effects on Alaska's herring to be noticed, but the once prolific species crashed to extremely low levels. While other species in Prince William Sound recovered, the herring population has yet to bounce back. And Gulf researchers are wondering if that sort of thing will happen again.

If one species in the Gulf is likely to wind up like the herring, it's probably the bluefin tuna. And answers about its fate may be sitting in a lab in Poland.

Thanks to a 30-year agreement that dates to Cold War politics, that distant lab is analyzing samples of Gulf water collected in the spill area for the U.S. government. The tests are to find out what the oil did to the larvae. The bluefin was already in trouble before the spill, its spawning stock down 90 percent in the last 30 years.

The spill, 50 miles off the Louisiana coast, happened in the precise place at just the right time to threaten the bluefin larvae bobbing on the surface. The Gulf of Mexico is the only known spawning area for western Atlantic bluefin.

"Was it catastrophic for the bluefin? Probably not," said NOAA's John Lamkin, who expects data back from Poland near the end of the year. But he added: "Any larvae that came into contact with the oil doesn't have a chance."

Scientists participating in the AP survey were not optimistic about the bluefin. They ranked the health of the tuna before the spill at a fragile 55. That's now down to about 45.

The Associated Press initial survey in July asked Gulf scientists to give the region and several categories baseline grades for ecosystem health before the spill. The scale was 0 to 100, with 0 being dead and 100 being pristine. Seventy-five responded and the overall grade averaged 71, a respectable C.

This month, the AP asked scientists to grade the Gulf's health now; 35 scientists responded. The overall average dropped about 10 percent, to 65, a struggling D. Scientists were asked about detailed categories and calculated the most noticeable harm to bluefin tuna, oysters, sea turtles, crabs, the sea floor and marshes.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Oct. 18, 2010:

This year, you will get a new beginning if you can give up certain ways of thinking. You tend to be hardest on yourself, and can get depressed if you don't learn to let go. You might want to indulge yourself more often without breaking the bank. If you are single, many people could be intrigued by you, but choosing the right person could take a lot of talent. If you are attached, the two of you will become even closer if you plug in a little more romance. PISCES might be good to work with.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Know when to back up and handle a matter differently. Someone you trust could be extremely idealistic but not very practical. Your instincts serve you well. Don't force yourself. Use time as your ally. Tonight: Vanish while you can.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

A boss might be extremely idealistic. For some, this person could be an authority figure in your life. This person's idealism might be inspirational; your job will be to harness it. Tonight: Off to the gym or where people are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

When questioning which way to go, others drop the decision on you. Do needed research, but understand that your sources are off. Creativity, optimism and facts braid together under your guidance. Tonight: Could be late.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

A partner or associate sometimes is very practical or very hardheaded. Use this trait as an asset as you eye a long-term decision. Travel and education could be involved. Toss negativity aside. Tonight: Seek out more ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Work with others, and give full attention to each individual. You might want to reorganize your schedule. Don't be stern, even if you are questioning the validity of another's idea. A family member's gesture could mean a lot. Tonight: Visit over dinner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Others dominate.

and you might not be sure which way to go. Listen to a neighbor, relative or someone you see daily. This person's perception, though rosy and optimistic, might be valid. Tonight: Just don't be alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Focus on one task at a time. You have unusual creativity and ideas. You could be a little too uptight. Relax and be willing to indulge a little more. That might look like an easy conversation or two. Tonight: Do something just for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

First decide that there is no obstacle that you cannot find a way around. Communication could be dynamic, especially if you let go of preconceived ideas. You are your harshest critic. Remember that. Be generous with a loved one. Tonight: Leave today behind, and start the evening fresh.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

If you can handle a domestic matter head-on, you will stay on top of any issue. Establishing a home-based business might be a smart move. Brainstorm with others, and you'll find an unusual path. Tonight: At home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

You are in the home stretch. Some people might see you as rigid. Be willing to flex and allow in more creativity. You could find a meeting or key person to be extremely helpful. Use your ability to communicate to realize a dream. Tonight: Hang out with a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

At times you have a tendency to go overboard and wonder what needs to occur. If you are willing to change, you'll discover the power of openness. Help someone get past a grudge, and enlist his or her help. Tonight: Buy several needed items on the way home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

You are on top of your game. Don't worry about a difficult associate. You will learn a lot about what is ailing this person, but only on his or her schedule. A discussion helps point to another key goal. Tonight: Whatever puts a smile on your face.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Oct. 17, 2010:

This year, you can move through any potential challenges with creativity and determination. Often, you end up going overboard trying to deal with others or enjoying yourself. Don't lose your focus. If you do, you could go overboard with ease. If you are single, you could have a ball partying and dating. You might not be ready to settle down just yet. Take your time. If you are attached, the two of you open up to a new sense of closeness. Let go and enjoy this phase. AQUARIUS is always fun!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ Don't let a hassle color your day, let it go quickly. Join family and/or friends. Go off to the movies or where there is some mind candy. Tonight: Having fun. This Week: You might be slow to start, but you finish on a high note.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Stay above the fray. Invite family or friends to join you. You can meet and go to the movies. Allow your imagination to play out when making fun plans. Tonight: Start thinking "work." This Week: Use today and tomorrow to the max. Network. Schedule meetings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Keep reaching out for others. You have a little too much energy. Go for a hike or go to a flea market or art show. You might want to be physical while relaxing. Use your imagination. Tonight: Maximize your free time. This Week: You are "Johnny on the spot." Everyone seems to need you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Rethink a decision involving a partnership. Someone has the ability to pull the wool over your eyes, and knows it! Be careful with your dealings here. If you feel lucky, buy a lottery ticket or play bingo! Tonight: Let another person decide. Go along for the ride. This Week: Look past the obvious. Find appropriate answers before you act.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Someone creates an uproar in your inner circle. The trick is not to respond. Let go and join a loved one or friend for a day outing. You might be overwhelmed by all the conversation. Just listen and allow yourself to flow with the moment. Tonight: Go with someone else's ideas. This Week: Be willing to debate both sides of an issue. Then, midweek, you will know what to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Schedule time for relaxation, and indulge yourself a little. Take a walk near water and enjoy the fall foliage. Let your mind wander: be less concerned with the moment. Recharge your energy by letting go of your cares and worries. Tonight: Treat yourself well. This Week: Understand that others need you to listen. Look at yourself as the paddle in a ping-pong game. This, too, will pass... next week.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Allow yourself more flex. Refuse to beat yourself up about a bad decision. Know that next time when you are faced with similar circumstances, you will make a better decision. Avoid wild raving. Tonight: Act like it is Friday night. This Week: With all the up-urn around you, focus on work. You won't be able to clear out until Wednesday.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ You could be more upset about a domestic matter than you realize. Stay close to home and relax. You might need to have an important discussion with a friend or loved one. Tonight: Put on a favorite movie, TV show or music. This Week: Your imagination needs discipline, but that isn't news to you!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Your ability to communicate comes through. If you are aggravated about a matter, clear the air before your feelings develop into anything more. Take the time to catch up on a sibling's or neighbor's news. Tonight: Hang out. This Week: Do as much as you can from home through Wednesday. Become proactive on Thursday.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ Be careful dealing with a friend who agitates you and carries on until he or she gets his or her way. Decide if you want to deal with this behavior anymore. Drop in on an old friend or relative. Tonight: Treat another person to dinner, but also a long-overdue chat! This Week: Speak your mind. Open doors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Someone you look up to doesn't hesitate to express his or her irritation. An opportunity to detach and perhaps take off for the day is just what the doctor ordered. Tonight: Play out a special fantasy. This Week: Handle finances with kid gloves. Ask questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

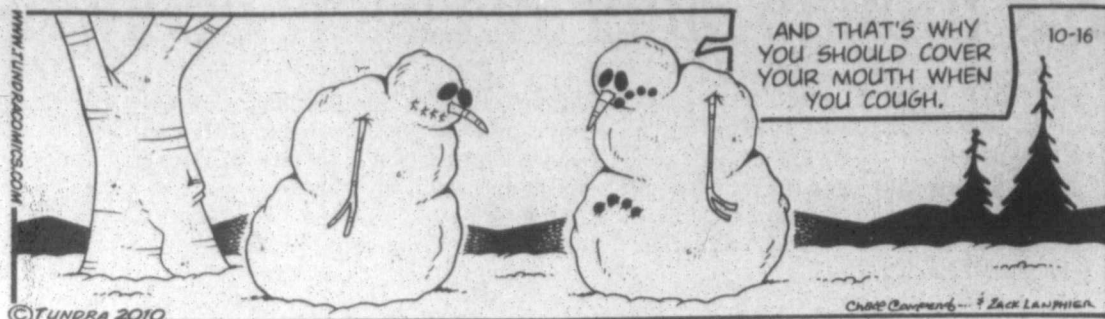

★★★ Take some time for yourself. You could be overly tired or drawn. You might need to stop and consider certain options. News from a distance could force a change of plans. Listen to a dear friend or loved one. Tonight: Do whatever makes you happy. This Week: Use the beginning of the week to the max.

Bulldogs run loose on Harvesters, playoff hopes slide

aglover@thepampanews.com

For the first time since 2000, the Pampa Harvesters and the Borger Bulldogs faced off as district opponents Friday at Bulldog Stadium. In the return of the rivalry, bragging rights went to the Bulldogs in a 28-7 victory.

Head coach Heath Parker said it was a disappointing loss.

"You put all that work into it from a player standpoint, and you prepare yourself for two weeks like we did, and it doesn't come out the way you want," Parker said. "That's an emotional letdown for them."

In the first quarter, the Bulldogs used a strong rushing attack to gain the lead. Senior running backs Shavoyiea Clement had five carries for 55 yards and Ty Brown had two carries for 68 yards and two touchdowns to lead the attack. Borger head coach Rusty Purser said the early success with the running game was key.

"We've honestly done a good job up front with the running game," Purser said. "The goal tonight was to come out and prove that we could be more physical than Pampa was tonight. We established the running game early and didn't feel like we needed to do anything else but give it to the backs."

The Harvesters did get big plays with their passing game. Junior quarterback Reid Miller completed a 43-yard pass to Garrett Ericson and a 63-yard pass to Latigo Collins for what would be Pampa's only score of the night. Miller completed five of nine passes for 127 yards in the first quarter. Pampa trailed 14-7 after the first.

In the second quarter, the Bulldogs offense held Pampa to 20 yards of total offense. The Harvesters averaged 1.6 yards per carry and 1.5 yards per play in the second. Pampa had two turnover on downs and a punt. The Harvesters had the ball inside the Borger 30 twice, but didn't come away with points.

Parker said the missed opportunities on offense hurt them.

"I felt like we had a good enough offense that we would get our chances in the red zone," Parker said. "We had to come away with something and we didn't do that. The game kind of swung out of control in the second half."

Last second hail mary cages Tigers, ends win streak

aglover@thepampanews.com

The McLean Tigers only loss of the season before Friday was by a last second field goal in Week 0. Last night the Tigers saw a similar result as a last second hail mary handed them a 63-59 loss to the Kress Kangaroos Friday in McLean.

Head coach David Jurado said Kress just made a good play.

"The quarterback scrambled out and threw it in the end zone," Jurado said. "I was hoping we would make a play and and stop Darren Amador. He's a phenomenal athlete and is tough to stop."

The Tigers drove down the field and scored a touchdown to take a 59-57 lead with 17 seconds left. Jurado said senior running back Clay Crockett and junior quarterback Jordan Herring were his leaders.

"We ran a lot of bootlegs and Herring ran for two touchdowns and threw for two," Jurado said. "We ride Crockett's back. When he gets good blocks, he's tough to stop."

The Tigers (5-2, 0-1) visit Follett (6-1, 2-0) 7:30 p.m. Friday. Jurado said they will have to regroup like they did after their opening loss.

"We regrouped after that Holy Cross loss," Jurado said. "We took a tough loss. We're not down. What doesn't kill us makes us stronger."

My adventures in Borger end in defeat: A running diary

Last night, the Pampa Harvesters and Borger Bulldogs met as district rivals for the first time in a decade. For me, the interesting thing is that I have my own story in this rivalry, as I almost ended up on the other side.

I was hired by the Borger News-Herald in March 2009 of my senior year at Texas Tech, but due to the recession period the offer fell through and... you know the rest of the story.

Believe me, I got the better end of the deal, because softball wouldn't have been that much fun up there and we have a much better tailgate before football games.

Let me walk you through my night in the place that almost ended up being home.

5:45 p.m. — I depart Pampa for that land 45 minutes west of us.

6:39 p.m. — I step foot on the home turf of our rival, high-five with members of the R.I.O.T., then go grab an overpriced dinner of two pizza slices and a Coke.

7:05 p.m. — The lineups of both teams are introduced and they finish warm-ups on the field.

7:18 p.m. — Pampa's school song is played beautifully, followed by Borger's, which, from where I was standing, sounded like a jumbled mess.

7:24 p.m. — The Harvesters win the coin toss and advance to 1-0 in district play. But... not so fast, my friend. The game is determined by what happens in the next 48 minutes of game clock.

7:25 p.m. — The Harvesters make their grand entrance, followed by the counterpart Bulldogs arrogantly prancing with hands held high. (Not really — I just put that in for entertainment.)

7:29 p.m. — Cheers erupt after fans find out the Texas Rangers lead the New York Yankees in the top of the third in the American League Championship series.

7:39 p.m. — The Harvesters first drive ended with turnover on downs, Borger's first drive gets them on the board. Bulldogs gain the first momentum; can the Harvesters answer back?

7:46 p.m. — Pampa does indeed answer back in spectacular fashion. Reid Miller to Latigo Collins, 63 yards and Touchdown Harvesters. This has the looks of a good game.

7:53 p.m. — Borger's running game leads to another touchdown and retakes the lead. Can the Harvesters respond again?

8:01 p.m. — The public address announcer mistakes the end of the quarter for a time-out. Never mind the P.A. announcer; the Harvesters trail 14-7 at the end of one but are driving.

8:07 p.m. — Pampa doesn't answer Borger's score and needs their defense to get the first stop of the night.

8:13 p.m. — The Harvesters still cannot stop the Bulldogs' running attack and Acton Smith increases the Bulldog's advantage to 21-7. Pampa needs a score to stay in this one.

8:25 p.m. — Starting quarterback Reid Miller intercepts a pass and returns it to the Pampa 35. Maybe this will be the game changer the Harvesters need.

8:31 p.m. — The Harvesters don't capitalize on the turnover and head to the locker room behind 21-7. Starting the second half strong will be crucial.

8:45 p.m. — I need a calculator to total Borger's first quarter rushing totals. That's right, I have one on my phone. Yay me.

8:59 p.m. — After an impressive performance from the Pride of Pampa marching band, the Harvesters kickoff to Borger to start the third. A defensive stop is almost a must-have.

9:04 p.m. — Ty Brown scores from 45 yards, but hold on, there's holding on the play, no touchdown. Maybe Pampa can take advantage of this chance.

9:08 p.m. The Harvesters don't take advantage as Smith scores his second touchdown and the Bulldogs hold a 28-7 edge. Now is the time for Pampa to step up.

9:19 p.m. — Reid Miller finds Garrett Ericson on fourth down and 15, touchdown Harvesters. But wait — it's coming back on an apparent holding call (heavy sigh).

9:24 p.m. — Still holding out hope for a fourth quarter comeback.

9:26 p.m. — Well, maybe Pampa just might do it. Trace Carter recovers a fumble and Pampa needs to take advantage if they are going to have a chance.

9:43 p.m. — That's all she wrote. Sadly I left Borger not avenging my loss from last year and falling to 2-7 in the games I've covered for either Pampa or Lefors.

10:55 p.m. — I head to Pampa's locker room and do my normal post-game rituals. Can the Harvesters rebound next week against the Rangers and put themselves in position for the playoffs, or will football season not go beyond October 29? Hold your hopes for the Harvesters for next weekend's edition. Same Harvester newspaper, same Harvester sports section.

Harvesters

Senior center Reid Bradley said a lack of communication on the line was key to the offensive struggles.

"Miscommunications and penalties is what killed us," Bradley said.

Borger kept having success running the ball as they racked up 128 yards on 13 carries. Clement had nine carries for 70 yards to up his rushing total to 125 yards. Brown had two carries for 52 yards upping his rushing total to 120. Senior quarterback Acton Smith scored on a one-yard run to expand the Bulldogs' lead to 21-7. Borger rushed for 259 yards in the first half.

Senior linebacker Trent Carter said they were in the right positions but didn't make the plays.

"We just had people miss tackles, me included," Carter said. "They ended up going off for big runs. If we would have made those tackles, who knows how the game would have turned out."

In the third quarter, both teams went on lengthy drives. The big difference was that Borger scored on theirs and the Harvesters did not. The Bulldogs opened the third on a 12-play 79-yard drive. Smith finished the drive with his second rushing touchdown.

The Harvesters went on a 14-play 34-yard drive. Pampa converted a third down and a fourth down on the drive. On first and ten from the Borger 16, Miller fumbled and recovered, resulting in a five-yard loss. After two incomplete passes, Miller threw a 21-yard touchdown pass to Ericson. However, a holding penalty called back the touchdown and put Pampa in a fourth and 25. Miller threw an incomplete pass to turn it over on downs.

Miller completed 11 of 24 passes for 155 yards and a touchdown. Senior Kendrick Alexander led the Harvesters in rushing with 23 yards. Ericson led the team in receiving with seven receptions for 86 yards.

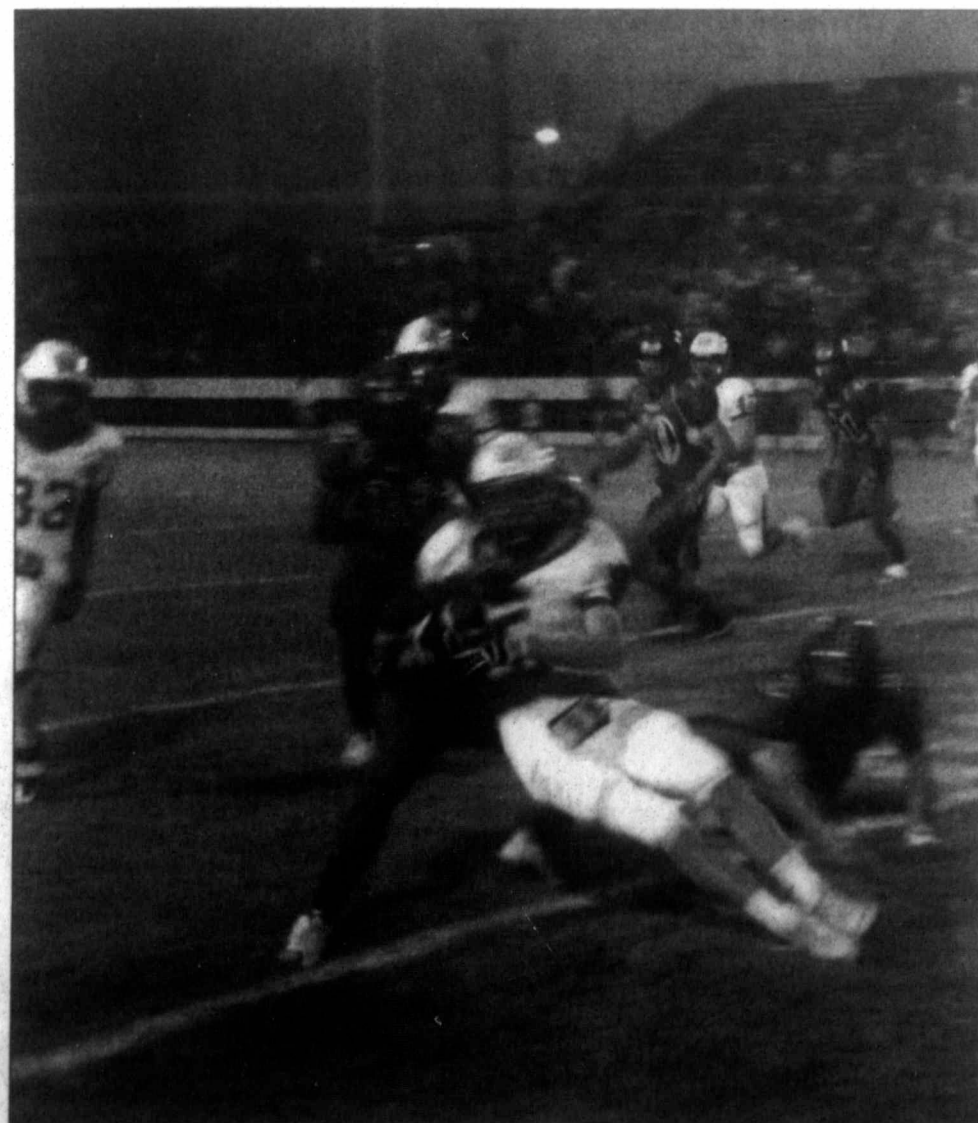

The Bulldogs (3-4, 1-0) only attempted two passes, with Smith completing one for -1 in the first quarter. Clement led Borger in rushing with 202 yards. Brown rushed for 142 yards and scored two touchdowns. Cody Davila caught the only pass. The victory gave Borger their first winning streak in the series since 1999 and 2000.

The Harvesters (2-5, 0-1) host Perryton 7:30 p.m. Friday for senior night. Perryton lost 41-10 to Dalhart. Parker said it will be a playoff game for them.

"The key is for this football team to regroup as fast as possible," Parker said. "The story of this season is still to be painted. The season is not done. What we will accomplish this season as far as what we are trying to get done is still in front of us."

PJH Football White teams victorious

CLINT ALLEN
Special to The Pampa News

The Pampa 7th and 8th grade White teams battled Dumas Monday night at Harvester Field.

The 7th grade beat Dumas 36-0 and wasted little time scoring on a 37-yard run from Christian Gutierrez on the first series. He would score three more times. Aaron Arreola also crossed the goal line for the Reapers. In a rarity seen in seventh grade football, the Reapers managed to successfully kick four of five extra points. Gutierrez kicked while Brandon Moore snapped and Arreola held. Others getting in on the action on offense were Seger Jones, Kenda Young, and Trevor Turner who all had productive runs. On the defensive side of the ball, the relentless attack continued. Jesus Holguin had 4 tackles for losses. Gutierrez, Jones, Thomas Keith, Alex Lopez, Calderon, and Solis all had good games.

In Game Two, the 8th grade won

40-6. Eduardo Pepi scored on runs of 55, 15 and five yards. Chris Perez scored on runs of six, three, and ten. Also having good runs were Taylor Patterson and Terry Botello. Pepi and Alex Salazar both had interceptions. Dakota Roberson and Perez had big tackles for losses. Colton Lesley pounced on a well placed kickoff to give Pampa the ball.

According to Coach Troy Fry, "I have really been pleased with how these guys have been playing. They are really working hard."

The Pampa High School boys golf team competed at Canyon October 9 and the girls golf team finished fourth in Amarillo October 8-9. Head coach Alan Segura said the conditions were rough for the boys and they didn't score well. Logan Reagan and Brendon Burrell led the team with an 84. Jonathan Polasek scored a 91, Joseph Mechelay scored a 96 and Corban Rhodes scored a 97. The girls competed against eight teams and finished 40 strokes behind Amarillo Tascosa, who finished third. Liz Hoelting led the team on both days with a 100 and a 102. Sam Kelly scored a 108 and 107. Lindsey Brown scored a 108 and a 116. Cori Cook scored a 109 and 110. Alison Alexander scored a 121 and a 118. The boys compete at Borger today and the girls wrap up a tournament at Randall today.
