POWELL VETOES THE ORDINANCE

Hears Protests and Receives Petitions Against Proposed Street Railway to Arlington Heights

WEST FIFTH STREET CITIZENS UP IN ARMS

In Message Disapproving the Council's Action, the Mayor Gives As His Reason That Citizens Were Denied the Right to Be Heard

A delegation of citizens of the Second ward, residing and owning property on West Fifth street, called at Mayor Powell's office this morning and submitted two lengthy petitions, one signed by prpoerty owners and the other by members of the Third Christian church, protesting against the council's action of last Friday night in granting a franchise to Robert McCart and others to build a street car line along West Fifth street.

As a result of these petitions Mayor Powell vetoed the ordinance and returned it to the council.

The delegation that visited the mayor was headed by Rev. J. S. Myers of the Christian Tabernacle, Captain H. C. Holloway, Winfield Scott and other prominent citizens. They were very earnest in their desire that the mayor veto the council's action. Their reasons, as set forth in the petitions are:

It has been the custom to permit citizens to be heard before passing an ordinance of this character; the line would do irreparable injury to property on West Fifth street; it is for the benefit of persons who reside outside the city, and hence do not pay city taxes; West Fifth street is the only direct route from the business district to the western portion of the city that is not "afflicted" with a street car line, and the Second Ward is entitled to one such street.

In addition to these arguments, the Third Christian church congregation maintains that the Tabernacle would be seriously affected as a place of worship.

THE VETO

After hearing the delegation Mayor Powell announced that he would consider the matter. After the committee departed he wrote out his veto, which is as follows:

"To the Honorable City Council of the City of Fort Worth—Gentlemen: I herewith return, without my approval, the ordinance passed at your last meeting granting to R. McCart, associates and assigns, a right of way over West Fifth street for a street railway, for the following reasons, to wit:

"First, because the said ordinance was passed under a suspension of the rules on its first reading, which, it is claimed by the property owners on West Fifth street, operated as a denial to them of the right to be heard before the council in opposition to said ordinance.

"When the proposition was first submitted to me by interested parties I said to them that I was in favor of it, but suggested to them that the proposed ordinance should be referred to a committee of the council and not passed at the first meeting of the council after its filing. This was not done, and the attached petitions signed by a large majority of the property owners on West Fifth street, which are made a part of the message, present a plea to me that my sense of official duty commands me to respect.

"I realize that the citizens of Arlington Heights have a substantial right in the premises and that their means of getting into the city with a street railway necessarily will inconvenience some people and incidentally affect their property rights, and if the said ordinance had been referred to the proper committee of the council and then passed by a majority vote I would not have interposed this veto message. A sense of justice to all parties concerned impels me to give the property owners on West Fifth street a right to be heard before the city council—a right which they claim in the petition has been denied them."

It will be remembered that Mayor Powell vetoed the franchise granted to the traction company some months ago, for exactly the same reason given in this veto.

The petition submitted by the property owners of West Fifth street was signed by the following:

BARRIERS ARE BURNED AWAY

Mrs. William Astor Decrees There Shall Be No Cliques at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., August 10.—Mrs. William Astor has decreed that there shall be no longer any sets or cliques in Newport society if the social prestige of the famous American resort is to be maintained. In the invitation list for her grand ball tonight she has included everybody who is spending the summer here with whom she has an acquaintance. As she is considered the real leader of society, the matter is regarded as very significant, and is taken to mean that she disapproves decidedly of what are commonly known as social barriers.

As her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, is in mourning, Mrs. Astor's daughter, Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, will receive with her. The ball is expected to be the grandest function of the season.

A WIERD STORY TOLD OF EDGCUMBE

Former Lady of the Manor Was Supposed to Be Dead and Was Laid Away in the Family Vault

BY PAUL LAMBETH.
(Special Cable. Copyrighted, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, August 9.—There is a weird story told of Mount Edgcumbe, Plymouth, where the Prince and Princess of Wales have been stopping as the guests of the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe the greatest nobleman of Cornwall.

Toward the end of the eighteenth century the then Lady Mount-Edgcumbe died (as it was thought) after a short illness and was buried in the family vault.

It was known that she had been buried with a ring of great value on one of her fingers.

On the night of the funeral the sexto. descended into the vault and opened the coffin.

He found the ring firmly fixed, and while he was endeavoring to force it off the finger the supposed corpse set up in the coffin.

Lady Mount-Edgcumbe had been in a trance. The thieving sexton rushed off in a panic, leaving vault and church both open.

Lady Mount-Edgcumbe walked to the house in her shroud, and was met on the terrace by her husband. She fainted, and on reviving found herself in bed in her ordinary sleeping attire.

The truth was never revealed to her and to the end of her life she believed that she had merely suffered from an unusually horrible nightmare.

Mount-Edgcumbe is one of the show places of the "delectable duchy," its situation, overlooking the channel, and the highly cultivated grounds being of surpassing beauty.

Royalty is often entertained here, and on these occasions certain of the earl's retainers, dressed in quaint uniforms of scarlet, man an ancient state barge, which is placed at the disposal of the guests for river and channel excursions.

EARL DUDLEY IS POPULAR VICEROY.

The Earl of Dudley, the recently appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who has been naturally very busy during the king's visit to Ireland, is without doubt the most popular viceroy Ireland has had in several years, which is quite in keeping with the new era of concord that has commenced in the Emerald Isle.

Directly after his appointment he and Lady Dudley ingratiated themselves with the people by making a prolonged automobile tour in the west of Ireland, where they investigated the conditions under which the inhabitants of that distressed region live.

Lord Dudley is a handsome man of thirty-seven, and the second holder of a revived earldom.

He takes his title from a grimy Worcestershire town in the heart of the "Black Country," which corresponds to the Pittsburg iron district, and from whose colleries he draws an income of $200,000 a year.

His beautiful and accomplished wife was the daughter of Mr. Gurney, the was the daughter of Mr. Gurney, the great Quaker banker, but was adopted by the Duke and Duchess of Bedford.

She has a fine voice and when slumming in the East End of London with the Duchess of Bedford she was wont to charm the ears of the poor with her singing. Lord and Lady Dudley have three children of whom the middle one, Viscount Ednam, aged nine, is heir to the title.

HE HAS HAD NO EXPERIENCE.

The appointment of the young Duke of Marlborough to be under secretary of state for the colonies has caused some surprise, for beyond holding the sinecure office of paymaster-general for a couple of years, he has had no experience of administrative work.

He is, however, a good speaker though his voice is somewhat harsh.

Like so many of the young British noblemen, he served in the field during the Boer war, and though to all appearances not very strong, he returned safe and sound from the campaign.

This delicacy may be due to the peculiar circumstances in which the husband of Consuelo Vanderbilt came into the world.

His father and mother, the Marquis and Marchiness of Brandford, where traveling in India, and for some reason the Marquis left his wife up country, in the Simla Hill district, while he visited one of the neighboring districts.

While he was away the duke was born, there being no European doctor or nurse within hail, and not even a white servant in the house.

The marchiness was therefore entirely in the hands of the natives who however displayed great kindness, and in spite of the fact that the baby was delicate, he was pulled through his first trouble.

THE SALE OF OLD CURIOSITY SHOP.

The "Old Curiosity Shop," so-called, in shabby Portugal street, hard-by Lincoln's Inn Fields, has been sold to an enterprising American.

"The Old Curiosity Shop" was immortalized by Dickens in the novel of that name, but the shop so immortalized isn't precisely this one in Portugal street, although a sign over the door says as much.

Americans visiting London and "doing" "Dickensland" always go to this "Old Curiosity Shop" where they buy photographs and chat with the obliging clerk about "Little Nell."

Dickens in the novel never gave a definite location to the shop, and his biographers always scoffed the suggestion that the shop in Portugal street was the one that the novelist depicted.

Nevertheless, Americans for years have been visiting the house, No. 14, Portugal street in order to obtain realistic local color.

The sign has been a "good thing" for the proprietor, who it is reported, is selling the "Old Curiosity Shop" to an American, who is to take it down piece by piece and reconstruct it in some city in the United States, where the name Dickens is still one to conjure with.

The king, like the queen, is very fond of dogs.

He has an Irish terrier, "Jack," that he has always by his side when he is "at home" in Buckingham Palace.

Recently his majesty wanted Jack portrait painted, and as he declined to be separated from the dog long enough to permit it to go to the artist's studio for sittings, the artist, Miss Earl, came to Buckingham Palace.

There the king had a studio arranged for her, and there "Jack" sat for his portrait.

At breakfast and lunch time "Jack" couldn't sit, for he had to go to the king's dining room, where, with his majesty, the terrier always takes breakfast and luncheon, the king feeding him with his own hand.

The queen always, when in her private apartments at the palace, has a toy terrier in her arms or her lap.

It was her majesty who established the present fad, which is almost a craze, of fashionable London women, keeping tiny pet lap dogs.

Since the queen sat for her portrait with her tiny Japanese terrier in her lap, all the society women in London have been photographed likewise.

THE POPE FOND OF FEEDING BIRDS.

The late pope was very fond of feeding the doves which haunted the precincts of the vatican, and there was one in particular which was in the habit of coming to his window daily to be fed from his hand.

According to a German paper, during the pope's last illness the bird came at the accustomed hour, but found the window closed.

It attracted the attention of the pope's valet, Pio Centra, by beating on the pane with its wings and Centra was ordered by his master to open the window and feed the bird.

But the bird, refusing the crumbs, from a strange hand, flew direct to the bed of the dying pope, alighted there, and with evident delight allowed him to caress it.

RUSSIA DEMANDS THAT THE ASSASSINS SHALL BE PUNISHED

CZAR'S CONSUL DEMANDS THAT A TURKISH SOLDIER SALUTE HIM, AND THE MILITIAMAN REPLIES WITH SHOTS—WOUNDS ARE FATAL AND THE SULTAN IS CALLED ON TO IMPOSE A PENALTY ON CIVIL AND MILITARY AUTHORITIES — INCIDENT WILL AGGRAVATE TROUBLE IN MONASTIR

ST. PETERSBURG, August 10.—The czar demanded exemplary punishment, not only for the murderers of the Russian consul at Monastir, who was killed last week by Turkish gendarmes, but of all military and civil officers in any way responsible for the crime.

The assassination of the Russian consul at Monastir, M. Rostkoviski, is the second murder of a Russian consular official in Macedonia within a few months and has created intense indignation here. In reporting the occurrence to the foreign office the Russian ambassador at Constantinople telepgraphed August 8:

"The Russian consul at Monastir has fallen a victim to atrocious crime. The grand vizier, isi nformed the assassin is ter come with expressions of regret in the name of the sultan. Ferid Pasha, the grand viezier, is informed the assassin is a gendarme named Hailm, and he will be subjected to the severest punishment, and the vali of Monastir be removed from his post."

In reply Count Lamsdorff, the foreign minister, telegraphed to the ambassador August 9:

"His majesty has received a telegram from the sultan expressing his deep regret at the death of the Russian consul at Monastir. When I submitted your telegram to the emperor, his majesty gave orders you should not confine yourself to receiving explanations from the grand vizier, but should make the most energetic demands on the Turkish government for full satisfaction and immediate and exemplary punishment of both the murderer and all military and civil officials on whom the responsibility for the atrocious crime may fall."

According to a report made by the official now in charge of the Russian consulate at Monastir the murderer is a gendarme. The consul asked his name because in defiance of instructions the gendarme did not salute him. The gendarme thereupon fired several shots, mortally wounding the consul in the head and hip. The horse drawing the carriage in which the consul was riding received two bullets and shots were also fired at the coachman.

THE INCIDENT WILL AGGRAVATE TROUBLE

CONSTANTINOPLE, August 10.—The murder of the Russian consul, Rostkoviski, has caused intense excitement here, and is the sole topic of conversation in the streets, cafes and public resorts. The genral belief is that the incident is bound to considerably aggravate the already serious situation in Macedonia, and it is felt it will undoubtedly encourage the Bulgarians to support the insurrectionary movement, which is spreading rapidly, notably to South Monastir.

According to mail advices from Monastir, dated August 5, the insurgents who recently occupied the little town of Krushevo, twenty-six miles north of Monastir, numbered 900. They killed the garrison, consisting of fifty-two soldiers, dynamited and burned the government buildings, and then hoisted on the hill overlooking the town a red flag bearing on one side a lion with the inscription "Death or Liberty," and on the other the words, "Courage, Brethren."

The rebels were still in possession of the town when the letters were sent off.

Practically the whole country north of Monastir is in trouble.

The Turkish official report states that fresh bands of revolutionists in considerable numbers crossed the frontier from Bulgaria during the last few days. Local Bulgarian officials, however, deny this and declare the strictest watch is being kept long the frontier.

HE STRIKES SENTRY AND IS SHOT DOWN

BELGRADE, August 10—According to the latest reports received here regarding the murder of the Russian consul at Monastir, M. Rostkoviski abused a Turkish gendarme, who was doing sentry duty, for not saluting him and called him "a pig of a Turk." Then he struck the sentry with his whip, saying, "Next time perhaps you will know me." The gendarme thereupon fired on the consul. It is stated that M. Rostkoviski was hated by the Turks on account of his intense arrogance.

POPE PIUS X ACCEPTS THE PAPAL CROWN

ROME, Aug. 10.—The coronation of Pope Pius X occurred yesterday. The basilisca was crowded, and when the gleaming cross which preceded the cortege was seen it was greeted with great applause.

On the appearance of the pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, our pope, our father!" and "Long live Pius X!" were raised, notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the the basilica saying:

"Acclamations are forbidden."

A quaint ceremony was carried out. The master of ceremonies knelt three times before the pontiff, each time lighting a handful of hemp which surmounted a silver torch, and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted, "Holy Fater, thus passeth away the glory of the world."

The procession then proceeded, the pope's face meanwhile illuminated by a smile. At the Chapel of the Sacrament there was another halt, and his holiness left the sedan chair and prayed at the altar. On re-entering the chair he was carried to the Chapel of St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass, being assisted by Cardinals Macchi, Di Pietro, Segna and Vannutelli. Then all the cardinals donned their silver capes and white mitres, and the pope was borne to the throne amid renewed acclamations and waving of handkerchiefs, fans and hats.

The scene presented on his mounting the throne formed a magnificent picture, to which no pen could do justice. The central figure was the venerable pontiff, seated on the throne. Two lines of cardinals, clad in silver and scarlet, reached to the high altar with its burden of burning candles and sacred vessels, while around stood the papal guards, the pontifical court, monks and officials. The cathedral was illuminated with twinkling lights, while the marble columns and walls rendered the color scheme more vivid. Overhead was the most magnificent dome in the world, up to which floated the harmony of the music.

From the throne Pius X, surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The altar was surmounted by a baldachino, supported by four bronze pillars taken from the Parthenon. The appearance of the pope in that elevated position called forth another burst of enthusiasm. The pope then blessed the altar, and after saying the "Indulgentiam," the maniple, a symbol of the cord which Christ was bound on his capture, was placed with great ceremony upon the pope's arm. At the same time prayers for the coronation were recited by Cardinals Vannutelli, Mocenni, Agliardi and Satolli. Returning from the crypt, Cardinal Macchi placed on the shoulders of the pope the pontifical pallium and attached it with three golden jeweled pins, saying: "Receive the sacred pallium as a symbol of the fullness of the pontifical office, in honor of Almighty God, the most glorious Virgin Mary, his mother; the blessed apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and the Holy Roman Catholic church."

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, the voice of the pope becoming gradually more firm and sonorous until audible in the most distant corner of the immense church. Following this Cardinal Macchi performed the rite of incensing the pope, whom he subsequently kissed three times on the cheeks and chest, as did Cardinals Segnia and Vannutelli.

On the pope's return to the throne, the cardinals offered their last obedience to the pontiff, kissing his hands and feet and receiving embraces by him twice in turn. The bishops and archbishops kissed his foot and right knee, while the abbots kissed one of his feet. The holy father then walked to the shrine of St. ePter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony.

The whole sacred college gathered about the pope, singing Palestrina's "Corona Aurea Super Caput Ejus," while the choir burst forth into song. Cardinal Macchi then recited the pater noster and offered the following prayer:

"Omnipotent and Ever-Eternal God, Dignity of the Clergy and Author of Sovereignty, grant thy servant, Pius X, grace to fruitfully govern thy church so that he, who by thy clemency, becomes and is crowned as Father of Kings and rector of all the faithful, throuh thy wise disposition, may govern all. Amen."

"Amen" rang out from all corners of the cathedral, from the choir, from the people, the clergy and the patriarchs. Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the pontiff's mitre and Senior Cardinal-Deacon Macchi placed on the white triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir and the acclamations of the multitude, which could no longer be repressed.

When comparative silence has been restored, Cardinal Macchi addressed the pope in Latin as follows:

"Receive the tiara, ornamented with three crows. Remember, thou art the Father of Princes and Kings, the rector of the world, the vicar on earth of our Savior Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen" again burst forth from the concourse.

Pope Pius was almost overcome, with scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinals Macchi and Segna granted a plenary indulgence to all present and the procession then re-formed and left the basilica in the same form as it came.

The pope was visibily fatigued, and his right hand shook as he raised it time after time to bestow his blessing.

When the ceremony was over, all the exits to the basilica were opened, and within less than an hour the vast cathedral was empty.

GREETINGS FROM POPE

ROME, Aug. 10.—Today being St. Lawrence Day, the name of Abbe Lorenzo Perosi, director of the Sistine choir and a close friend and protege of Pius X, the pope sent him a personal greeting, accompanied by an autograph note congratulating him upon the music given by the Sistine choir during yesterday's coronation ceremonies, most of which was composed

THE COTON MARKET

NEW YORK, August 10.—The cotton market opened steady with prices net 2 points higher to 2 points lower, the advance being on better cables and covering, while on the other hand the weather map was again very favorable in the expectation of a bearish weekly report on cotton. The selling was also encouraged by the absence of bull support. Later prices were relatively firm under continued covering. August, after selling twice at 11.50c, advanced to 11.65c bid in the absence of offerings.

UNION GARMENT WORKERS MEET

Nearly Two Hundred Delegates at the Annual Convention in Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., August 10.—The United Garment Workers of America certainly have reason to feel proud of their annual convention which began in Indianapolis today. The large assembly room of the Claypool hotel was filled with nearly two hundred delegates when the gathering was called to order this morning. This number is nearly double the attendance at the last meeting of the organization. The annual address of General President Larger and the reports of Secretary White and the other officers show the organization to be in a highly flourishing condition. During the last fiscal year the membership has nearly doubled also, reaching the 60,000 mark. The income has been increased from $67,000 to $115,000. The organization's label, said the president in his annual address, has become one of the controlling factors in the manufacture of clothing, owing to the business-like methods of the general officers, the impressive advertising done, the wise discrimination made in granting it, and the judicious enforcement of the rules. During the last year, in the principal clothing centers threatened strikes that promised to be very costly and to involve great numbers and, which at times seemed inevitable, were avoided, and concessions gained thrugh skillful negotiations. Wages have been increased, hours of labor reduced and the working conditions generally improved, while at the same time friendly relations have been maintained between the union and the employers.

The present convention will be in session a week or longer. The most important business to receive attention is the question of biennial sessions, the increasing of per capita tax and local dues, the establishment of the sick and death benefit system, and a uniform system of work for the tailoring branch of the trade.

PRINTERS MEET IN WASHINGTON

Forty-Ninth Annual Convention of the International Typographical Union Is in Session

THREE OF ORIGANAL MEMBERS SURVIVE

It Includes Now Five Hundred Locals With an Aggregate Membership of Forty-Five Thousand—James M. Lynch, President, Makes Report

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 10.—The forty-ninth annual convention of the International Typographical Union of North America, which began here today, marks an epoch in the "art preservative of all arts," and commands the interest of all who are either directly or indirectly connected, with the arts and industries of printing. The organization is unique among labor bodies, as it is the only craftmen's organization in the world that has rounded out fifty years of existence.

The national body was formed in Cincinnati in 1852. Of the delegates who attended that meeting and who were instrumental in forming the union, there are three surviving. The International Typographical Union has at present nearly 500 local unions, the entire membership aggregating 45,000.

The convention was opened at 9 o'clock this morning with addresses of welcome on behalf of the district and the local printers. The Columbia theater was crowded, including the galleries, that were mostly occupied by women, who were here for the convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

After an invocation and the appointment of convention officers the president of the union, James M. Lynch, was introduced. President Lynch, in his annual address, reviewed the entire international field, saying the membership had reason for congratulation. The new year opened well and every effort would be made to avoid conflicts, and at the same time conserve the interests of the local unions. While strikes would be avoided where possible, yet if entered into, they would be prosecuted with all the vigor that could be exercised, and would not be abandoned until the unfair employer was made to feel the terrible cost attendant upon arrogance and a refusal to accord just conditions. During the year just closed, he said, several important newspapers and many book and job offices have been unionized.

The report of J .M. Bramwood, secretary-treasurer, showed the union to be in a flourishing condition, both as regards numbers and finances. The membership has increased 4,000 in the last year and it is hoped to make the membership still larger during the coming year in order that the aggegate may be brought up to the 50,000 mark. In the last year a total of 159 charters were issued, apportioned as follows: Typographical unions, 137; photo engravers, 3; mailers, 6; newspaper writers, 12, and type founders, 1.

The second annual convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union was called to order here today. Several score of delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada were present. Until last year the stereotypers and electrtypers formed a division of the International Typographical Union, but at the Cincinnati convention they organized independently, though a close connection is maintained with the parent body.

This afternoon the delegates and visitors to the two conventions are being entertained at an outing at River View by the local unions. The business sessions will be resumed tomorrow and will probably continue a week or ten days as a considerable quantity of routine business is to come up for consideration and disposal.

CANYON WINS BAPTIST SCHOOL

Panhandle Association Decide Upon the Location for New College to Be Established in Near Future

A HALF DOZEN TOWNS JOINED IN CONTEST

Committee of the Panhandle Association Meets at Claude and in Secret Session Settles the Rivalry—The Institution Promises to Be Successful

CLAUDE, Texas, August 8.—The Panhandle Baptist Association held a special meeting here today and decided to locate the Panhandle Baptist College at Canyon, Texas. There were six places contesting for the college, namely, Memphis, Clarendon, Amarillo, Hereford, Canyon and Canadian. The contest was spirited and the decision reached at a secret session, at which only delegates were allowed to be present.

This matter was first taken up at the meeting of the Palo Duro Canyon Association last year, and a committee was appointed to investigate the subject and report on the advisability of establishing such an institution. Later on two other associations, those of Red Fork and South Plains, were asked to co-operate in establishing and maintaining the college, which they agreed to do. Several panhandle towns began an aggressive campaign to secure the location of the proposed college. Clarendon raised a cash bonus of $15,000 and offered a building site, and it was understood there were other towns that were prepared to do as well.

After a considerable discussion, the association appointed a committee to decide on a location, this committee to report within thirty days. The committee consisted of one member from each competing town, five from other places in the bounds of this association and five each from the Red Fork and South Plains Associations.

Each town of course thought it had the most advantages to offer the college, and there was a spirited rivalry among them.

NEWS FROM COLORADO

COLORADO, Texas, August 10.—Mitchell county jail now has four prisoners, an unusually large number for this county. The last one to take his abode was Henry Farris, colored, on a charge of robbery. The other three are white men, but one is a transfer from another county.

About twenty of the Woodmen of Colorado camp left here early Sunday morning for the unveiling services and the big dinner at Dunn, a prosperous village fourteen miles north of this city.

On yesterday Colorado's picked nine went to Dunn to cross bats with the expert ball players of that enterprising little city. A great crowd was present and a big day was had, the game resulting 17 to 2 in favor of Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Dorrs of Big Springs, relatives of W. F. Hughes of the Alamo hotel, are visiting here today.

A friend in need society was organized here this week with J. E. Hooper, cashier of the City National Bank, as president. It admits of only 500 members and every member pays a dollar at the death of each member. No expenses and no officers' salary paid.

Very fine watermelons are coming in now in great abundance.

Cattle sales have been few the past few days.

FACILITIES IMPROVING

Cleburne Fire Company Now Has Four Paid Men on Duty

CLEBURNE, Texas, August 10.—The Telegram recently contained an account of the quickness with which a new fire company had been obtained for Cleburne with J. D. Oliger chief. The city council met and accepted the resignation of the old company, which disbanded because the council would not agree to all their requirements. The new company has been installed. An improvement has been made and the city will now have four paid city firemen constantly on duty at the fire station. As the need grows or finances admit, other improvements will be made.

A good rain fell here this afternoon, which was needed.

The Telegram is well received here, its readers considering it a good, newsy daily.

The following persons who went to Galveston from Cleburne last Wednesday have returned: Ex-County Judge W. D. McKoy, Mrs. McKoy and Miss Frida, County Commissioners Henry Friou, Tom Watkins, Matt Heisley and families, Ramsey and daughter, from Tarrant county; Miss Pyle of Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. Watters, King Watters, M. D. Watkins, Miss Maude Stewart, Miss Daisye Friou, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ransone Jr. and daughter Laurene, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Rucker and son Van, R. S. Phillips and one or two others. Judge McKoy was president of the county judges' and commissioners' convention and presided over that body during its sessions. Most of the Cleburne party went on a fishing trip to the jetties and caught about fifty pounds of fish, which they enjoyed picnic-fashion on board the Puritan. They also were tendered a drive down the island, an oyster wash and a sail, as well as the sea bathing.

Mrs. W. H. Stratton, Miss Anne, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Brown and Miss Bennie, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Styron and Miss Aileen and Frank Williams are camping out on the Brazos for a week.

Mrs. Ruth Veal of Fort Worth was one of those at this week's Parson's brigade reunion. She followed her husband, Captain Veal of the Twelfth regiment, during the entire war.

'TIS A GRUESOME FIND

Gold Teeth in Buried Skeleton Attract a Mineral Rod

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, August 10.—Four well-known citizens of Ennis have in their possession a mineral rod which they claim is guaranteed to locate gold and silver metals or buried treasure. A few days ago they were told that a large amount of money was buried at a certain point near the Trinity river. Desiring to test the efficacy of their rod, they armed themselves with picks and shovels and went out to the spot to investigate. The rod is said to have behaved nicely and soon had the place located. The men began throwing back the dirt, and after going down two or three feet they were horrified to find the skeleton of a man. The skull was in a good state of preservation and two of the teeth contained gold plugs, which, it is supposed attracted the rod.

HAD ODD PREMONITION

Memphis Farmer Dreamed Either He or Wife Would Die

MEMPHIS, Texas, August 10.—The funeral of Mr. Patterson, a farmer, whose death occurred Saturday morning, took place Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted under the auspices of the local camp of the Woodmen of the World. Mr. Patterson came here several months ago from Grayson county. In connection with his death, it is stated that some time ago both he and his wife dreamed that one or the other of the two would not live much longer, but neither could tell which one was referred to in their dreams. Mr. Patterson took sick shortly afterward with a peculiar malady, which baffled the efforts of attending physicians and he died Saturday morning. He was about 45 years old and besides his wife leaves four children.

LITTLE TEXAS FEVER

Health of Oklahoma Cattle Has Been Good This Year

The Drovers' Telegram says: The Hon. W. E. Bolton, president of the Oklahoma live stock sanitary board and also president of the interstate association of live stock sanitary boards of America, was a visitor at the yards yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bolton announced that the next annual meeting of the national association would be held at Denver, Col., the third week in September. He says Chief Salmon of the bureau of animal industry will be present and will handle the foot-and-mouth disease question, while Colonel Dean will have charge of the subject of Texas fever and Dr. McCapes, Colorado veterinarian, will talk along the line of mange in cattle. A big attendance is looked for at the meeting. Mr. Bolton says the health of Oklahoma cattle this year has been way above the average. "To date," said he, "there has not been a single outbreak of fever in the whole territory this year. Never before have we seen seven months go by without a case or two, or even more being placed on record. The coming months are likely to see a little fever develop, however, as the drying of the grass is always attended by more or less fever. On this account I do not wish to crow before we are out of the woods, but I can freely state that the first half of the year 1903 has been a remarkable one for Oklahoma cattlemen. There have been one or two instances of violations of the quarantine regulations of both the government and the territory, but fortunately they did not result in scattering fever. One of the culprits was fined $440 for his fun in running the line."

ARREST IS MADE HERE

Depot Master Fulford Aprehends a Man From Mt. Pleasant.

A. J. Fulford, depot master at the Texas and Pacific passenger station, effected a capture yesterday which will bring him a liberal reward. The prisoner, J. W. Collins, was taken to Mt. Pleasant last night by Sheriff Sam Porter, where he is charged with murdering a man by the name of Brown, a week ago last Friday. Collins' inentity was established by two young men from Mt. Pleasant who were in Fort Worth yesterday, having taken advantage of the excursion over the Cotton Belt. One of the parties had known Collins since boyhood. The latter was seen in the yards just south of the depot, and Mr. Fulford informed of his whereabouts. When confronted by the officer, Collins made no resistance and admitted that his name was Collins and that he was from Mt. Pleasant. Mr. Fulford stated today that the reward offered for Collins' arrest is $250, which sum will be equally divided among the three men.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE

Will Often Help You Greatly—Read What a Fort Worth Citizen Says

You may hesitate to listen to the advice of strangers, but the testimony of friends or residents of Fort Worth is worth your most careful attention. It is an easy matter to investigate such proof as this. The evidence must be conclusive. Read the following:

T. T. Hughes of 310 Belknap street, who is very well known to many of our readers, says: "I suffered all last year with lumbago. I had terrible pains in my back and could not stoop or bend over without intense suffering. It was also impossible for me to rest in bed with any comfort. I never seemed able to get any rest. The kidney secretions were highly colored and emitted a strong odor. I knew that I was in a bad condition. I tried several remedies which failed to bring the hoped-for relief and finally a friend of mine, a Mrs. Sinclair, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. She spoke so strongly in their favor that I went to Weaver's drug store and got a box. They proved to be exactly what I needed. The pain in my back soon disappeared and the kidney secretions were rendered normal. I cannot tell how much I appreciate this wonderful remedy."

TRADES ASSEMBLY HALL

Fort Worth Has Finest Series of Labor Halls in the Entire South

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock there was a called meeting of the Trades Assembly to hear the report of C. H. Dubois, chairman of the union temple committee and custodian of the halls.

Not enough members being present to constitute a quorum, a condensed report was made of the money collected and expended. Among the subscriptions are $300 donated by the owner of the halls for the permanent improvements made, about $300 from unions and $300 from merchants and business men generally, leaving $300 to be raised, which will entirely liquidate the debt outstanding and place the Trades Assembly free from debt and in possession of the finest series of labor halls in the entire south.

Mr. Dubois said yesterday: "The prospects for a union increase were never better. It is estimated that the increase in union membership during the next two months will exceed 25 per cent."

The Labor Temple will be used for the meetings of different fraternal organizations in the future and has been chosen as a regular meeting hall for the Fraternal Brotherhood, a fraternal insurance organization.

On Sept. 29 and 30 and Oct. 1 the State Photographers' Association convenes in Fort Worth, and the meetings will be held in the Labor Temple.

Officially Announce That Rock Island Will Change Division From Chickasha to El Reno. Will Build New Cut-off

A WONDERFUL YEAR FOR RAILROAD MEN

Roards of the Country Increase Pay of Employes Over One Hundred Million Dollars. Speculation as to Meaning of Proposed Bond Issue

It has been announced in an official way that the Rock Island will move its freight division point from Chickasha, I. T., to El Reno within a short time. Besides the transfer of the division business a large addition is to be made to the trackage of the Rock Island at El Reno and its importance to the system seems assured. El Reno is located 110 miles south of the nearest other division point and the change has been under consideration for a long time. A cut-off between the Rock Island and the Choctaw will also be constructed, a force of men and teams having arrived here to begin moving the dirt within the next thirty days. Chickasha advises deny the report and claim to have equally reliable authority that the change will not be made.

EAT ALL YOU WANT

Persons troubled with indigestion or Dyspepsia can eat all they want if they will take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. This remedy prepares the stomach for the reception, retention, digestion and assimilation of all of the wholesome food that may be eaten and enables the digestive organs to transform the same into the kind of blood that gives health and strength. Sold by all druggists.

A WONDERFUL YEAR

The adjustment of wage questions between the Rock Island and its employes adds materially to the figures which represent a large total increase.

Counting subsidiary lines, over fifty railroads, employing 40,000 men, have put the new schedule into effect. This means over $10,000,000 yearly to the employes west of a line drawn between St. Paul, Chicago and New Orleans. It is the largest aggregate increase in wages granted to railroad organizations for many years.

"It is difficult to get exact figures on wage increases," said Slason Thompson of the railroads yesterday, "but the roads of the entire country have increased the pay of their employes over $100,000,000 during the last year. The natural increase, due to growth in business and added miles of track, tapping new districts, is over $50,000,000. It has been a wonderful year for the railroad man."

"The movement of the conductors and trainmen has been successful," said Chief Conductor Clark. "The question of double headers caused much debate and delay, but the majority of managers were willing to concede that they be restricted, and over 90 per cent of them will not use two engines on trains of less than thirty cars."

THAT BOND ISSUE

Full details of the plans which the directors of the Rock Island have in mind will scarcely be made known before the meeting of the stockholders in October, and the specific purposes of its prospective bond issue will, in the meantime, furnish food for gossip. In view of the total ignorance of the full purpose of the bond issue, there have been some very reckless guessing and wild deductions, based only on hazy theories of imaginative origin. When the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company created a $100,000,000 refunding mortgage, there was the same kind of protest by practically the same coterie of regulators of other persons' affairs. According to certain statements critical of the Rock Island's new refunding and unifying mortgage bond plan, such an issue of bonds is not warranted. How these bonds, if they are used for unifying and refunding, can affect the value of the company's present securities is not easy to answer. Much of the criticism has been based on the theory that the same methods of finance should be applied to 1,000 miles of road as to 20,000 miles, that is, if a road increases its mileage five times, it should not increase its capitalization accordingly. Criticism based on facts is illuminating, but pen pictures inspired by imagination do not carry weight. The company has no loans, it has a plethora of ready money, its owners have been sitting on the fence while the market was in the throes of liquidation, so that a pressing need for cash does not inspire the new bond issue.

TO PREVENT RAILROAD WRECKS

One of the largest railroads is preparing to install a system of electric signals for the prevention of wrecks. The new device displays a white light in the cab for safety and a red light for danger. Nature has also furnished a complete system of danger signals which we must observe if we are to be strong and healthy. Inability to eat and sleep, nervousness and impure blood are all danger signals of impaired health. Nature has also provided a remedy for those who have neglected their stomach until indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness and chronic constipation have developed, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For over fifty years it has been building up run-down systems and restoring sickly people to robust health. Try it.

Heifers (spayed)	3.75

NORTH FORT WORTH, August 10.—Today's market was easily the best of the month thus far and in some respects as good as any day of July. There were more cattle and hogs of the sort the packers want and prices were also stronger than they have been since the middle of last month.

Thirty-one cars of cattle and three of hogs were offered at the opening this morning, a lighter run than for several Mondays past. More steers of good quality were received than for any day in the past three weeks. The run of cows was also good, but there was more stuff above the 3-cent market than usual.

TOP STEERS, $4.25

There were only 10 in the bunch of top steers and nine were polled Angus. They averaged 1,250 and were shipped by J. L. Chadwick of Cresson, who was at the yards a couple of weeks ago prospecting and who liked the looks of the market so well that he sent up the steers, along with eight spayed heifers, as a trial shipment. The heifers averaged 1,007 and brought $3.75, which is in itself a top figure for several months back. They were the first spayed heifers sold on the yards here for some time.

TOP HOGS, $5.62

The top hogs were shipped by E. P. Wilson of Ponca City, Okla. There were 81 head, averaging 204 pounds, and of good quality.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES

STEERS—The quality of steers offered this morning was above the average, but save for the ten head which averaged 1,254 pounds and brought $4.25, the general run brought perhaps 10 cents less than last week's figures. Most of this morning's offerings were bought by Swift, including the tops. One of the best sales made at the yards in several weeks was that of the 130 head shipped in by C. Branch from Edna, which averaged 924 pounds and brought $3.10. Mr. Branch is a regular shipper to the Fort Worth market. The sales:

STOCK YARD NOTES

L. B. McMurty of Wichita Falls was a visitor at the stock yards today. He had in two loads of cows.

J. L. Chadwick of Cresson, who topped the market today with eight spayed heifers, averaging 1,007 pounds, at $3.75, accompanied his shipment to the yards. "I believe in patronizing a home market," said Mr. Chadwick, "and I believe if Texas cattlemen don't ship to Fort Worth and create a big market here, no other packers will come in."

Twelve carloads of cattle were received at the yards Sunday afternon and reshipped north. Most of them came from the western part of the state.

J. J. Mullinax of Jacksboro had 47 cows on today's market which he drove overland from that place.

L. G. Gould of Waxahachie was a visitor on today's market. He has some stuff for shipment later in the season.

J. E. Stevens of Pecos City had 149 sheep, averaging 79 pounds, on today's market. They brought $2.75.

OF INTEREST TO STOCKMEN

General Manager Phipps of the Hammond Packing Company at St. Joseph, Mo., has received notice from President Lyman that the company has decided to rebuild its plant recently destroyed by fire at St. Joseph and that work will commence at an early date.

Charles F. Martin of Denver emphatically denies the story that there is any difficulty between himself and Live Stock Commissioner F. D. Coburn of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition over the exhibition of cattle in car load lots at the world's fair. The campaign against Mr. Coburn's ruling, says Mr. Martin, is in charge of E. H. Grubb and Fred P. Johnson of Denver. A meeting of the different western associations has been called to assemble in Denver August 12 to prepare a protest, which will be forwarded to the world's fair authorities.

The X I T steers recently sold at Chicago by Senator Chapman of Jerseyville, Ill., to Swift & Co., and which were said to have been the best fed Texas steers ever sold on the Chicago market, dressed 62 per cent and are now being admired in the coolers of the company's Chicago plant.

Jasper county, Iowa, is said to be the best county in the United States in so far as the production of Shorthorn cattle is concerned. Between thirty and forty firms are engaged exclusively or almost altogether in cattle breeding or the cattle brokerage business.

Iowa leads all states in the number of hogs raised at her state institutions. There are now between 5,000 and 6,000 head at the various agricultural schools and colleges.

PROFIT NOT FOR PACKERS

Charge That They Are Sqeezing Market for Own Advantage Not Borne Out by Facts

The following pertinent remarks are made by the Texas Stockman and Farmer on the tendency of the packers to hold on to all they get and keep an outstretched hand for more: There appears to be no good reason why good beef cattle should be selling at prevailing low prices. The mills and factories all over the country are running on full time and wages are better in all lines of trade than for years. The consumption of beef is greater now than for some years past and this increased consumption is not due to low prices for meats. Beef on the block retailed at the same price when cattle on the hoof brought a great deal more money. It appears to be the policy of the big packers to keep up the price of the dressed product and keep down the price of the cattle on the hoof. And this very thing they are easily able to do. But will these big packers ever let up? It seems to us that they have squeezed the producer long enough and hard enough and that it is now time to give him a little breathing spell, and then, of course, there will be a little more fat-frying. By this time surely the packers have made back their losses by reason of the recent floods at Omaha, St. Louis and Kansas City. Whatever the cause of low prices, it is to be hoped that stockmen will be given a chance to share in the general prosperity in the near future.—San Antonio Express.

The foregoing paragraph seems to have met with favor in several exchanges, who have stockmen among their readers. As far as Fort Worth is concerned, the packers are not the ones who are profiting by the decrease in the price of cattle on the hoof, while the price of dressed meats on the block undergoes no change. As a matter of fact, the Fort Worth Packing House last year sold the best quality of steers, dressed to butchers, at 9 cents per pound. The same kind of steers are now being sold by the packers at less than 7 cents per pound, the average running between 6 and 6½ cents. Cows that sold dressed last year at 7 cents have been similarly reduced.

FIGURES IN CHICAGO

The Chicago Live Stock World has taken the trouble to compare quotations of dressed bullocks this year with those of last and makes the following comparisons:

"An average steer on May 17, when beef prices were highest, was worth in the carcass $9.39. Today the same steers realize $7.64. Here is the difference in prices of the cuts:

	May 17, '02.	May 17, '03.
Ribs	$12.97	$10.84
Loins	12.44	11.76
Rounds	9.43	8.02
Plates	6.64	3.67
Chucks	7.74	5.11

"The drop has been most marked in the low-priced cuts, demand being greatest for ribs and loins."

CHARGE DOESN'T STICK

It is generally admitted that the price of live stock on the hoof this year is much lower than the abnormally high figures of last season. Nevertheless, charging the packers up with the discrepancy does not stick in the light of facts which are to be found by merely looking at the prices today and the record a year ago.

NO ADDITIONAL DEATHS

Over One Hundred People in Hospitals As a Result of Accident

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10.—No additional deaths occurred during the night as a result of the accident on Saturday at the National League ball park. There are seven persons in different hospitals, however, who are lying at the point of death, and whom the physicians say have but slight chance of recovery. Of this number, five are suffering from fractured skulls and two from concussion of the brain. There remain in other hospitals nearly one hundred persons, victime of Saturday's accident. Their injuries consist chiefly of fractured limbs, sprains and contusions.

The game scheduled for today between Boston and Philadelphia has been declared off on account of the accident.

There will be a conference of the directors of the Philadelphia National League club later in the day at which the unfortunate affair will be thoroughly gone over in an effort to place the blame for the disaster.

COLLISION IN DALLAS

Two Katy Passenger Trains Came Together on a High Embankment.

DALLAS, Texas, August 10.—Two Katy passenger trains collided, head on, last night shortly after 8 o'clock at a sharp curve on the high embankment which leads to the bridge across the Trinity river, about two miles south of the city.

Four persons were injured—two of them seriously—passengers in both trains were thrown to the floor or hurled over seats, the engines were considerably damaged and in nearly every car panes of heavy plate glass were shattered to atoms.

The injured:

George Gumpert, engineer, No. 34, north bound; both legs broken.

James Alders, engineer No. 5, south bound; collar bone fractured.

Ike Smith, colored, porter on No. 34; leg broken; severe cut on head and believed to have sustained internal injuries.

Harry Thompson, colored, of Corsicana, passenger on No. 5; head cut.

All the injured trainmen are reported at noon to be doing well at the St. Paul's sanitarium.

It is now believed that Engineer George Gumbert will recover. The negro porter, Ike Smith, seems to be in a most serious condition.

The tracks were cleared today and trains probably will be running over them by night. The morning trains were sent by way of Fort Worth.

THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, August 10.—Although very irregular and excited at the opening, today's stock market reflected very slightly the last week's demoralization and alarm. There were no large losses in actual transactions and trading was not large in volume. There is not much evidence of further liquidation. The greatest losses are 2 points in Norfolk and Western and Virginia-Carolina Chemical, 1½ in Delaware and Hudson and 1¼ in Texas and Pacific and United States Realty preferred. Rock Island common and preferred also sold down. Much early improvement was lost at the end of the first hour. Canadian Pacific sold off in common with the rest of the list. A premium of ½ per cent was bid for Canadian Pacific till tomorrow. All sheets went through the Stock Exchange clearing-house.

SWIFT'S BUYER TALKS

Tells Live Stock World That Hogs Will Be Higher

Among the many contributions of opinions regarding the much-predicted fall rise in the price of hogs, the following interview given by Frank Bixby, head hog buyer for Swift & Co., in Chicago, to the Live Stock World is especially interesting. Mr. Bixby is quoted as saying:

"The let-up in hog receipts this week plainly shows we are at the end of the big runs. It also shows that the panicky feeling in the country is over. The cost of yesterday's droves of packing and shipping hogs was 25 to 40 cents higher than the same droves cost last Saturday. The supply this week includes distinctly fewer lard hogs and fancy fatbacks. This shows that the liberal receipts of good hogs the past two weeks were contracted for July delivery, and I think it a conservative prediction to say we will not see as many good hogs again for a year. Buyers this week all are competing for the best heavy hogs. They are beginning to appreciate that with corn at 50 cents and the resulting economy in feeding there will be vastly fewer of this grade of hogs and a much larger percentage of thin, shrinky, grassy hogs. I think the prime fat hogs within thirty days will be selling $1 per hundred higher than the shrinky, grassy hogs. All the packers complain of a big falling off in the yielding tests. This is significant in itself. August, September and October are the three biggest months of the year for the distribution of hog products, and with both lard and ribs nearly $3 per hundred lower than at this time last year I look for a big increase in the demand over that of last year, and before Nov. 1 I predict that the stocks of provisions will be entirely cleaned up. It now looks as if both hogs and provisions had seen bottom for some time to come."

Things Heard In Hotel Lobbies

Edward F. Harris, representative of Galveston county in the Texas legislature, was here yesterday en route to Chicago, from which city he will go to Seattle to represent Texas at the Trans-Mississippi Congress. Mr. Harris is one of the brilliant men of the Texas house. During the last session he made quite a reputation by his oratory, so much so that when the president of the State university was looking about for some one to deliver the annual address at the commencement exercises, Mr. Harris was selected. He will make an address at the Trans-Mississippi Congress, his subject being "Texas and Galveston Harbor." Speaking of the proposed meeting, Mr. Harris said: "Texas goes to Seattle better fortified than any other state. We have Galveston harbor and Buffalo bayou to tell the people of, and in telling we are relating the history of something in which all have an interest. The improvements of Galveston harbor and Bouffalo bayou are being made under the government supervision. The fact that the government pays the bill makes all interested, as the revenue comes from all parts of the country. Now, what do we offer? Galveston can handle goods for export cheaper than can any other port in the country. I say this advisedly, as I have the figures to prove it. The Texas delegation will present a solid front at Seattle. There Houston and Galveston will lay aside the jealousies existing between the two towns, and we will talk for all Texas."

Senator R. V. Davidson of Galveston was here yesterday en route home after a visit to Dublin, where he made an address. The senator would not discuss the report that he is a candidate for attorney general, but there is no doubt that he will be in the race. His friends expect that he will make a formal announcement of his candidacy within the next few days. He is at present senator from the Galveston district. Speaking of his visit to Dublin, he said: "I have never had a more enjoyable visit than that which was afforded me by my trip to the Confederate reunion. It was a fine crowd we had there, and the entertainment features were truly delightful. Crop prospects in that section are good."

Colonel W. D. Hornaday, staff correspondent at Austin of the San Antonio Express, was in the city yesterday, a guest of newspaper friends. He has been on his vacation and made a trip to El Paso and Juarez, where he had a delightful time. "I look for rather a lively political campaign next year," he said to The Telegram. "In the contests for attorney general, comptroller and other state offices there will be several candidates, and they are commencing early. I have an idea that they will wake the state up. In view of the new election law, which fixes primaries on a certain day throughout the state, a new system will be followed and it will puzzle the old campaigners to get around and fix the fences. Heretofore they have taken the counties in the order in which they hold their primaries, and fix one after the other, at times persuading pivotal counties to hold early so as to swing the sentiment for one or the other of the candidates and thus force some of the candidates out of the race. The new system will keep every fellow in the race to a finish, and it will be interesting to watch it."

THE WRONG WILLIAM.

It is told of the German emperor, and while it may be merely ben trovato, it is certainly ben venuto. At dinner one night, when the emperor was staying with Lord Lonsdale, a guest talking to another across the table quoted a little-known passage from Shakespeare and, that there should be no mistake on its source, ended with the words, "as the divine William said." There happened to be a lull in the conversation at the time, and the remark was audible to everyone, the emperor included. Turning to his host, the emperor said, with a puzzled expression: "Curiously, I do not remember that my sainted grandfather ever said that."

POLITICS NOT MERIT

Inspired by the recent events in the army, incidental to the advancement of a soldier surgeon to a high rank when others who have spent years in the service of the military branch are kept back, the New York Evening Sun suggests that West Point be abolished, as it is an antiquated idea conceived by men in older and less strenuous times. The up-to-date soldier can be and is made with less trouble and no expense to the government. Why waste the time of these young men as well as the government's money? At West Point the sole object of the instructors is to teach young men to choose when, where and how the oncoming battle shall be fought. On this subject the Sun says:

The most successful soldier in the United States—chosen for his place by the wisest head in the nation—never wasted any time in preparing for a military career. A glance at the records of the 494 men he has passed in the race for the prize they all coveted reveals how they wasted their time. Some of them were honor men at West Point, a number of them spent their time in study during the Indian wars, and many of them were brevetted three and four times for the old-fashioned soldiering at Antietam, Ball's Bluff, Lookout Mountain and Gettysburg. But so deficient are they in the knowledge and duties of a soldier that few can distinguish between colic and appendicitis! How many of them can discover the psychological moment for administering subnitrate of bismuth or colocynith hyoscyamus? It is such soldierly duties as these that call for the abolition of West Point and the establishment of a greater school where the future generals of the army may learn the art of medicine and the science of smooth politics.

This is very fine sarcasm and it draws out forcibly the injustice which has been done the officers of the army by the action of the president in advancing his personal friend over men who have merit and who wear shoulder straps because they have earned them. Men who were officers when Custer was killed, who met and conquered the redman and who have slept on the ground on the plains, must remain unrewarded while the president's puppet is given the honors of the war branch.

A SAD STORY

It was a sad story of life which was told in the columns of The Telegram Saturday. On one page was an account of "One more unfortunate weary of breath, Rashly importunate, gone to her death." and upon the other, in a column almost directly opposite, was an account of the sale by her husband of the handsome home he had built upon his ranch property.

What caused the self-destruction is known to no one. She carried with her the secret of her desire to end this life, and that secret is locked in the cold embrace of death. In her good-by to the world she said she could not carry on the struggle longer and desired to go. The story of the sale of the ranch property is a companion one to the story of the suicide. It was the most palatial country home in Texas. Its construction was the best known to the builder's art, its interior furnishing was the handsomest and its location was admirable. It was fixed upon an eminence in the center of a stretch of property upon either side, and from its handsome windows the owner could look out upon his holdings and realize that in this world's goods the Divine Ruler had allowed him much. He could look about within the sacred precincts of the home and be satisfied that he had prepared a pretty place for the loving wife. But in this case as in many others wealth did not buy happiness and the happy life, the pretty home and the delightful life in the country, is interrupted by the cloud that enters the family circle. Wealth fails to supply the one thing needed to make that happiness complete. Wealth fails to bring back the companion, wealth fails to put color in the cold cheeks or bring the sparkle to the closed eyes, wealth fails to blot from memory the thoughts of what has occurred and to revive what "might have been.' The average reader will pass the story by with the remark, "It is but another," but the thoughtful one will think over this happening and wonder if it is not too often that too little thought is given to the future and too much given to the enjoyment of the life which money provides. Too many live in the present; too many do not look to what the future has in store. The greatest blessings are at times lost to those who have enjoyed too well that which has been provided.

CONDITIONS DO CHANGE

A story is told of Andrew Carnegie that when a friend remonstrated with him for riding in a third-class coach, referring to it as a "dirty old cattle box," Mr. Carnegie replied:

"Cattle are not to be despised, my friend. They are of more value to the human species than many men I have met. Besides, I cannot expect to give my money without something approaching its value in return, and as I am as comfortable as I care to be in the third class coach, I do not see why I should get myself in the habit of indulging in unnecessary luxury. I am going to die a poor man, and I must try meanwhile to accustom myself to new conditions."

Whether this be a true story or but one of those tales of fiction which are always told of men of prominence, it teaches a lesson which could very well be studied by all of us. Mr. Carnegie is a man of wealth, and is giving all the time, declaring that he proposes to be poor before he dies. He knows he will be poor, but there are many who have the wealth who do not expect reverses. They are accustomed to the luxurious life and continue to seek more and more the good things which money will buy. When fortune's wheel turns against them, they are not prepared for the rough living that necessarily follows. They should be careful in their requirements, even with vast wealth, so that if the morning of changed conditions dawns for them they will not be so thoroughly helpless as they will be if tastes are too refined or abilities are in restricted channels. Some men start in life with the silver spoon between their teeth and they find a finish in the most magnificent casket the trimmer can produce. They meet no reverses. Others are not so fortunate and the change of life finds them unprepared. Do not despise the third class coach, the lunch counter and the public drinking fountain. These are necessities for certain people and misfortune may some day bring you to all of these.

Things were evened up in the two games with Dallas yesterday. In the first game Ury hit a home run, and in the second the umpire made him run home. Less kicking and more hitting would make Dallas a better team.

There is a difference between the baseball rooter and the train man. Railroad employes object to double-headers, but the rooter is in his glory when two teams arranged to try it a couple of times Sunday afternoon.

THE IDLER'S NOTE BOOK

I see by the papers that under a recent ruling, a tax of 20 per cent ad valorem must be paid on all mummies imported into this country for museum exhibition or any other purposes. This, of course, doesn't interfere with the work of the Delphic Mummy Manufacturing company of West Oberlin, Ind., but it will have a serious effect on the business of those who have endeavored to import into this country specimens of ancient Egyptian embalming. For my own part, I'd rather patronize the American manufacturers of such goods, but there are still a few old-fashioned schools and colleges that seem to want to have the real article and now they are raising a complaint because the Treasury Department is to be enriched at the expense of science.

Now, I don't care anything about the cause of science, ever since I quit dissecting cats in my school boy days. I care less for the Treasury Department because I believe that if all the money it controls were distributed equally among the people I wouldn't have to wear one set of trousers without creasing until I raised the price of another pair.

But I do have some feelings for the mummies. The idea of being roused out of a 4,000-year sleep to be hauled across the sea for inspection by a lot of country bumpkins at a second rate college appeals to my sense of reverence and respect for things aged. Besides, I believe it would be more instructive to our young, instead of gazing in wonder at the mummified sacred bull of some defunct Pharaoh, to go to one of our packing houses and watch a veteran of the plains turned into bologna, but that's neither here nor there.

The disregard of the feelings of a man dead for forty centuries is but another evidence of the thoughtlessness of the age and I'm glad that the government in its humble way has been partly instrumental in curtailing the practice.

But looking at it from the mummy's standpoint, do you suppose that Rameses II. ever thought in the wildest pipe dreams of his debauches on the River Nile that his lifeless form, wrapped in pitch and tarpoulins, would ever be hauled across the ocean to a barbarous country where they would demand a 20 per cent ad valorem tax before letting him get in?

And even Egyptian mythology, with all its weird imaginings of the judgment after death, the perilous journeying over the sword-edged path ssupended over a fathomless gulf, and the awful majesty of the judgment hall ruled by the avenging Isis, contained nothing quite so wonderful as the thought that after going through all this the mummy had to go up against a 20 per cent tax in a United States custom house.

It only goes to show how little we know and how the ancient priests, who advised storing away coins in the linen wrappings, knew their business better than they thought.

I can imagine the comments of the mourners at one of those funerals, and a publican saying, "Poor fellow, he was as good as most folks go. His lodge dues were all paid and I guess the widow is well provided for. I think he'll make heaven all right, but I have my doubts about New York."

It only goes to show that no man can escape death and taxes, and in this case, as least, taxes get in the last word.

AN IDEAL SPOT FOR THE CAMP

Those Attending Y. M. C. A. Summer School Are Delightfully Located Near the Town of Lampasas

SULPHUR SPRINGS ARE ALL ABOUT THEM

Every Comfort Is Provided. Secretary J. G. Reeves of This City Is Chairman of the Affair—Many Are in Attendance From Fort Worth

Y. M. C. A. Camp, Hancock Park, Lampasas, Texas, August 7, 1903.

There is no more ideal spot in Texas for such an encampment. The selection of Hancock Park by the committee was after visiting a number of the most available points in the state. It furnishes more nearly all the essentials for the school.

The park is just one mile from Lampasas. It embraces about forty acres of natural forest trees, pecan, oak and elm. The camp is located in Horseshoe bend, the most beautiful corner of the park. It is bounded on almost three sides by Sulphur Creek, a beautiful stream of clear, sparkling water, which is a perpetual delight to the younger members of the camp for wading and the joy of the older ones for the afternoon swim. It also furnishes splendid fishing and boating. The athletic field in the center of the park is sufficiently large for the baseball field, tennis courts, etc., and is surrounded by the dense shade. In the lower corner of the park are the famous Hancock springs. One of these bubbles up in the center of the swimming pool building. The other on the outside of the building is about eight feet deep, and its water is so clear that a pin can be seen on the bottom. This water at this time is rather strong of sulphur, varying in strength at different seasons of the year.

The stronger sulphur water, however, is a mile away at the Hanan springs. The altitude of Lampasas is about 1400 feet. There is no malaria, mosquitoes or anything to mar the comfort of the campers. All the campers sleep in tents, fanned by the cooling breezes, and are awakened in the morning by the singing of the birds. The park is truly a white city, dotted here and there by a tent shaded by some friendly oak. The large dining hall near the springs furnishes a delightful meeting place three times a day.

The day opened up with morning prayers in the big tent immediately after breakfast. This was followed by A. C. Hart, of Mobile, in his Bible study in training of workers. He is one of the strongest teachers in this line in the south and a splendid personality. Dr. Clyce's devotional Bible study was at the same hour. Following this was a conference on association committee work conducted by J. G. Reeves, of Fort Worth. Then followed A. C. Kincaide's association history class. Rev. Luther Rees gave his third lecture on the second coming of Christ at the close of the morning hour. The afternoon was given, as usual, to gymnastics, athletics and recreation. The closing of the day was a life purpose talk on teaching by Dr. Clyce, and at night an address on missions by Rev. John V. McCall.

Fort Worth is well represented. Secretary Reeves wife and baby, W. B. Thompson, M. W. McDaniels, Jacob Tudor, Miss Mamie Griffith and Mr. McArthur. They all express themselves as delighted with the camp and school. Mr. Reeves, who is chairman of the summer school, expressed himself as greatly encouraged with the results thus far obtained, and says the committee in its session this afternoon decided to establish the school and camp permanently.

SYNOPSIS.

Greenfall Lorry, an American, wealthy, globe-trotter, meets by accident charming young lady foreigner while traveling from Denver to Washington. Taking exercise on the station platform during the temporary stop of the train, they are left by the flyer. He telegraphs to hold the train at the next station, procures a wagon to drive four miles. They separate at Washington; she goes to New York with her uncle and aunt. Finishing business, he tries to meet them in New York. Reaches there in time to see the young lady, Miss Guggenslocker, sail. She waves to him from the steamer. Then follows a chase. Lorry leaves for Europe with a companion and starts a continental tour in search of her. One evening while rambling about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the Princess of Graustark. They overhear a plot to abduct the princess and resolve to capture the plotters red-handed. Following the conspirators, Lorry finds himself in a room he hears them designate as that of the princess. Lorry tells the princess of the plot. Mutual recognition; she is Miss Guggenslocker. Dawnox, the guard, is in the abduction plot. He fells Lorry with a terrible blow. Anguish to the rescue. Lorry quartered in the castle. The princess visits him, but forbids all talk of love. Graustark is bankrupt and owes the neighboring princedom of Axphain $30,000,000. The creditor demands cash or the cession of the richest districts of Graustark. The Prince of Axphain offers to extend the loan if the princess will marry his son Lorenz. Prince Gabriel of Dawsbergen also bids for the princess' hand with offer of a loan. Yetive tells Lorry that she belongs to her people and will marry Lorenz. Lorry discovered kissing the princess while she is seated on the throne. He quits the castle by royal command. Betrothal of the princess to Lorenz. The Americans recognize Gabriel as chief conspirator in the abduction plot. Lorenz toasts the princess lightly in a cafe. Lorry dashes the glass from his hand. Challenge to a duel. Lorenz assassinated. Lorry charged with the crime. Princess Yetive commits Lorry to prison. All Graustark rejoices at the The princess helps Lorry escape. Axphain offers Graustark a consideration to have Lorry executed before Nov. 20. Yetive offers a reward for the capture of Lorry. Lorry prevails upon Quinnox, an emissary of the princess, to conduct him secretly to the castle.

"Impossible!" exclaimed Quinnox. "I cannot allow that, sir. My instructions are to"—

"Hang your instructions! All the instructions on earth can't compel me to sit up here and see this sacrifice made. I am determined to see her and put a stop to the whole affair. It is what I feared would come to pass. She is willing to sacrifice herself or half her kingdom, one or the other, in order that I may escape. It's not right, captain; it's not right, and I'm going to stop it. How soon can we leave this place?" He was pacing the floor, happy in the decision he had reached, notwithstanding the danger it promised.

"You are mad, sir, to talk like this," protested the other despairingly. "Edelweiss swarms with Axphain soldiers; our own men are on the alert to win the great reward. You cannot go to the city. When a safe time comes, you will be taken from this place, into the mountains instead of through the city, and given escort to Dassas, 100 miles east. That step will not be taken until the way is perfectly clear. I tell you, sir, you cannot hope to escape if you leave the monastery now. The mountains are full of soldiers every night."

"I didn't say anything about an escape, did I? On the contrary, I want to give myself up to her. Then she can have Gabriel thrown over the castle wall and say to Bolaroz: 'Here is your man. I've gained the ten years of grace.' That's the point, Quinnox. Can't you see it? And I want to say to you now I'm going whether you consent or refuse. I'd just as soon be in jail down there as up here anyhow. The only favor I have to ask of you is that you do the best you can to get me safely to her. I must talk with her before I go back to the tower."

"God help me, sir, I cannot take you to her!" groaned Quinnox, trying to control his nervous apprehension. "I have sworn to her that I will keep you from all harm, and it would be to break faith with her if I led you into that mob down there."

"I respect your oath, my friend, but I am going, just the same. I'll see her, too, if I have to shoot every man who attempts to prevent me. I'm desperate, man, desperate! She's everything in the world to me, and I'll die before I'll see her suffer."

Quinnox calmly placed his hands on the other's shoulders, and, looking him in the eye, said quietly:

"Her suffering now is as nothin compared to what it will be if you go back to the tower. You forget how much pain she is enduring to avoid that very suffering. If you care for my mistress, sir, add no weight to the burden she already carries. Remain here, as she desires. You can be of no service down there. I implore you to be considerate."

It was an eloquent appeal, and it struck home. Lorry wavered, but his resolution would not weaken. He argued first with Quinnox, then with himself, finally returning to the reckless determination to brave all and save her from herself. The soldier begged him to listen to reason, implored him to reconsider, at last turning in anger upon the stubborn American with a torrent of maledictions. Lorry heard him through and quietly, unswervingly, announced that he was ready to leave the monastery at any time his guide cared to depart. Quinnox gave up in despair at this, gazing hopelessly at the man he had sworn to protect, who insisted on placing his head in the lion's jaw. He sat down at the window and murmured dejectedly:

"What will she say to me—what will she say to me?"

"I shall exonerate you, captain. She can have no fault to find with your action after I have told her how loyal you are and how—how—well, how unreasonable I am," said Lorry kindly.

"You may never live to tell her this, sir. Then what is to become of me? I could not look her in the face again. I could only die!"

"Don't be so faint hearted, Quinnox!" cried Lorry, stimulated by the desire to be with her, recognizing no obstacle that might thwart him in the effort. "We'll get through safe and sound, and we'll untangle a few complications before we reach the end of the book. Brace up, for heaven's sake, for mine, for hers, for your own. I must get to her before everything is lost. The fear that she may marry Gabriel will drive me mad if I am left here another night. Come! Let us prepare to start. We must notify the abbot that I am to go. I can be ready in five minutes. Ye gods, think of what she may be sacrificing for me!"

Lorry soon was attired in the guard's uniform he had worn from the tower a month before. His pistol was in his pocket, and the bunch of violets she had sent to him that very night was pinned defiantly above his heart. Quinnox smiled when he observed this bit of sentiment, and grimly informed him that he was committing an act prohibited in Dangloss' disciplinary rules. Officers on duty were not to wear nosegays.

"Dangloss will not see my violets. By the way, the moon shines brightly, doesn't it?"

"It is almost as light as day. Our trip is made extremely hazardous for that reason. I am sorely afraid, rash sir, that we cannot reach the castle unseen."

"We must go about it boldly; that's all."

"Has it occurred to you, sir, that you are placing me in a terrible position? What excuse can I have, a captain of the guard, for slinking about at night with a man whom I am supposed to be tracking to earth? Discovery will brand me as a traitor. I cannot deny the charge without exposing her royal highness."

Lorry turned cold. He had not thought of this alarming possibility. But his ready wit came again to his relief, and with bright, confident eyes he swept away the obstacle.

"If discovered, you are at once to proclaim me a prisoner, take the credit for having caught me and claim the reward."

"In that case you will not go to the castle, but to the tower."

"Not if you obey orders. The offer of reward says that I must be delivered to the undersigned. You will take me to her and not to the tower."

Quinnox smiled and threw up his hands as if unable to combat the quick logic of his companion. Together they made their way to the prior's cell, afterward to the abbot's apartment. It was barely 11 o'clock, and he had not retired. He questioned Quinnox closely, bade Lorry farewell and blessed him, sent his benediction to the princess and ordered them conducted to the gates.

Ten minutes later they stood outside the wall, the great gates having been closed sharply behind them. Above them hung the silvery moon, full and bright, throwing its refulgent splendor over the mountain top with all the brilliancy of day. Never before had Lorry seen the moon so accursedly bright.

"'Gad, it is like day," he exclaimed.

"As I told you, sir," agreed the other, reproof in his voice.

"We must wait until the moon goes down. It won't do to risk it now. Can we not go somewhere to keep warm for an hour or so?"

"There is a cave farther down the mountain. Shall we take the chance of reaching it?"

"By all means. I can't endure the cold after being cooped up for so long."

They followed the winding road for some distance down the mountain, coming at last to a point where a small path branched off. It was the path leading down the side of the steep overlooking the city, and upon that side no wagon road could be built. Seven thousand feet below stretched the sleeping, moonlit city. Standing out on the brow of the mountain, they seemed to be the only living objects in the world. There was no sign of life above, below or beside them.

"How long should we be in making the descent?" asked Lorry, a sort of terror possessing him as he looked from the dizzy height into the ghostlike dimness below.

"Three hours if you are strong."

"And how are we to get into the castle? I hadn't thought of that."

PANTHERS TAKE BOTH GAMES

Fort Worth Takes Six Straight From Dallas—Oil City Wins Double-Header From Waco

Fort Worth polished Dallas off in both of the games yesterday by the same score, 2 to 1. The first game looked like Dallas until the last innings, when a batting rally sent the two runs across the plate. The second game was Fort Worth from the start to the finish, although the score was small.

In the very beginning of the last game it looked as though things were going to end without a game being played. Poindexter had hit to center and gone as far as third when Nickell let the ball roll through him. Buchanan hit a fly to right and Poindexter scored. Bashore was not able to throw the ball all the way home, so Anderson caught it and sent it to third, claiming that Poindexter had left the base before the catch was made. Thereupon the Dallas team congregated about Umpire Blasingim and told him of the errors of his ways. Ury grew so talkative that he was ordered to the bench. Berry then started to lead the talking and while the team was kicking the manager packed up the bats and called the players in from the field. Several of the Dallas players had left the grounds when Manager Ward went down and reminded the Dallas owners that such an action would cost them the $150 fine imposed upon a club for leaving the grounds and forfeiting a game. That brought them to their senses and the game went on.

Dallas played four games here in the last series and lost them all. In each one of the games one of their players was removed by the umpire for talking too much. Barrett was the man to go in the first game yesterday. He made a safe hit to right and when Poindexter fielded the ball to first both he and Disch fell over each other for a while and when they untangled Barrett was several feet from the base. He did not hurry back and the result was that Disch touched him when he did get to the bag. Thereupon he, too, grew talkative. His excitement grew so great that he raised his arms and pushed Blasingim away. Then he was rewarded with a silence pass for the rest of the game.

The attendance yesterday was the largest that has attended a home game this season. The total number of paid admittances was 1,602, which does not include the holders of season tickets. There would have been over 2,000 if the weather had been clear.

FIRST GAME

Ury started the scoring in the first inning by placing the ball over the left field fence.

Affairs went along without any more runs until the last inning. Fort Worth looked as though she would score several times, but inability to hit spoiled excellent chances. Dallas was cut off without any scores in a couple of innings by the fast fielding of the Panthers.

In the last of the ninth, with a shutout staring them in the faces, the Panthers started in and before the second out was made the game was over. Reitz opened the outburst with a single to left. Disch picked out a nice, heavy bat, but was not allowed to use it, as Reagan threw the first ball right at him and gave him a pass to first. Schaetzke bunted and was thrown out at first, but not until both the other runners had advanced a base on the play. Poindexter was the next man up. By this time the excitement in the stands was tremendous. The Dallas rooters were not silent, either, as they were calling upon Reagan to strike him out or do some other desperate thing. Poindexter was not to be denied, however, and he placed the ball just between the shortstop and the third baseman. Reitz scored easily and then the crowd watched Disch as he tore from second on toward home. When about fifteen feet from the plate he dived forward and slid the rest of the way. His haste was unnecessary, however, as Doyle allowed the ball to roll past him. It was doubtful whether he could have thrown Disch out at home anyway, as he was half way from third before the ball got to the fielder.

Before Poindexter had started in from second the rain of silver started with a large cart wheel. When it was all over Dee was the richer by nearly $25 for his work of a single moment.

SECOND GAME.

Fort Worth won the second game easily, although it was exciting enough to satisfy any of the spectators. The Panthers scored in the second and the fourth innings, while Dallas made the single run in the sixth.

Buchanan and Anderson were the oppositing pitchers in this game. Buck pitched as good a game as he has this year. Anderson held the Fort Worth batters down very well. He is probably the quickest pitcher that has been on the home grounds this season, as he caught three men napping on the bases.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS

According to the standing which was adopted at the last meeting of the league owners, Fort Worth went into second place by winning both the games yesterday. If Corsicana had lost to Waco the Panthers would have been in first place.

The question of which standing should be used is now up to Farrel, the secretary of the minor league. If he should decide that the action of the league in the last meeting in throwing out the games in which Gray and Barrett played was illegal, the clubs will have to go back to the old standing. This would make a considerable difference in the standing, as it would place Dallas in first place instead of third and would take Corsicana out of the leader's position and place her in third place. Fort Worth is in second place either way it is figured, while Waco is last.

The standing of the clubs as it is with the games thrown out follows:

	Games Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
Corsicana	31	17	14	.548
Fort Worth	39	20	19	.513
Dallas	32	16	16	.500
Waco	30	13	17	.433

The standing as it would be if all the games were counted:

	Games Played.	Won.	Lost.	Per cent.
Dallas	39	22	17	.564
Fort Worth	39	20	19	.513
Corsicana	40	19	21	.475

BIG PRIZES OFFERED IN THIS NEWS RACE

CONTEST AMONG THE TELEGRAM'S YOUNG READERS WILL START TOMORROW—FIRST PRIZE IS $10, SECOND PRIZE $5 AND THIRD $2.50 — ALL CHILDREN INVITED TO ENTER

Before the opening of the school year The Telegram desires to conduct one more news contest among its young readers, and for the purpose of arousing new interest and making the race bigger and better than any of its predecessors were, larger cash prizes are offered.

Heretofore the prizes have been:
First, $5.
Second, $3.
Third, $2.

In this contest, which will start with tomorrow's issue of the paper and end with the issue of September 6—a little less than four weeks—the prizes will be as follows:
First, $10.
Second, $5.
Third, $2.50.

And contestants who make good records, but who fail to win one of the prizes, will not be forgotten, but will be given substantial recognition, either in cash or otherwise.

The Telegram believes that the prizes now offered should awaken the contestants to redoubled exertions; also that they should lead to the entrance of some who have not participated in previous races. The Telegram would like to see Dudley Tarlton, Philip Lopp, Mortimer Newlin, Walter Sloan, Argyls Purcell, Lonel Howard and many other boys and girls who have taken part in contests that have gone before, enter this one. It would like to see every district of the city and also the suburbs represented.

Those intending to enter will do well to bear in mind that the race starts tomorrow. By starting at once they will prevent others from opening up long leads and thus will avert being handicapped at the start.

The Telegram, at the opening of each of the contests already held, has explained just what news is and what it desires to receive from the contestants and there is no necessity for taking up valuable space with another explanation. The contest editor will explain any points to contestants, personally, on their request. All the boys and girls who have taken part in contests up to date understand perfectly well what is wanted and the rules governing the contest.

News must be written legibly on only one side of the paper. Items containing names of persons and not giving their initials, will be rejected.

The contest will be decided on the number of items accepted and printed from each contestant.

ELECTION TO BE NEXT SUNDAY

R. E. Lee Camp Proceedings at Regular Weekly Session Sunday Afternoon

The election of a successor to W. T. Shaw, commander of R. E. Lee camp, United Confederate Veterans, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, was postponed one week.

Commander Shaw resigned recently, having been appointed adjutant general and chief of staff under W. L. McGaughey, brigadier general of the Fifth brigade.

The application of H. A. Andruss for membership was read by Assistant Adjutant McNeeley. The application was properly indorsed and was approved by the camp, and the applicant was enrolled as a member.

A report was made to the camp of the serious illness of Colonel Overall, editor of the Railway Illustrator.

Authority for the recognition and control of the hall was conferred upon the executive committee.

The investigating committee was instructed to meet at the hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon to further prosecute its business.

APPRECIATED CAMP'S INTEREST

Judge S. P. Greene read the following communication from Mrs. M. B. Harrison in recognition of the interest taken by Lee camp in the burial of General Waul, who recently died in Hunt county and was buried in Fort Worth:

"To Judge S. P. Greene, Adjutant General—My Dear Sir: Will you kindly convey to R. E. Lee camp, United Confederate Veterans, my heartfelt appreciation of the attentions shown by them to my late uncle, General T. N. Waul?

"It is a comforting thought that he rested under the flag that he loved so well and was attended by a body of men who represented what he loved above all else.

"Your selection of the Sons of Confederate Veterans as his active pallbearers would have pleased him, for his heart went out to the younger generation always, with the hope that they might be true to the cause that their fathers honored. With most sincere thanks, I am, yours respectfully,

"MATTIE B. HARRISON."

On motion of Colonel Taylor a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Harrison for the patriotic spirit shown in her communication.

IS A TEXAS PRODUCT

The Telegram takes pleasure in calling the attention of its readers to the advertisements of the B and B soap, which appear in this issue. The soap is the product of the Armstrong Packing company's plant of Dallas, Texas, and is an article of such real merit that eastern soap manufacturers have paid it the compliment of imitation. It is well known to the housekeepers of Fort Worth as a reliable laundry soap, and its size and shape recommend it to those who are not informed as to its merits. The company has recently enlarged the size of the bar and has changed its shape, which improvements will no doubt put it still further into the good graces of the busy housekeeper. This company is a firm believer in the efficacy of printer's ink in making the goods known to the consumer, and always selects mediums of known circulation. Its other brands are the Star and White Rose, both of which are good sellers.

THE TELEGRAM IS APPRECIATED

This letter of commendation for the excellence of the newspaper being printed by The Telegram Company is but one of many that come to The Telegram office nearly every day:

"C. D. Reimers, Publisher, Fort Worth—Dear Sir: Inclosed find 50 cents, for which please continue sending me paper for one month. I enjoy The Telegram very much. You are certainly putting out a good paper. Yours very truly,

THE HUMBERTS ARE ON TRIAL

Notorious Family of Swindlers Are Facing Judge and Jury in City of Paris on Serious Charges

PEOPLE TRAVEL FAR TO HEAR THE CASE

Therese Humbert Interrupts Reading of the Indictment and When Asked Where She Lives, She Replies, "In Prison."

PARIS, August 10.—The notorious Humbert family today faced judge and jury to meet the charge of having perpetrated what former Premier Waldeck-Rousseau described as "the greatest swindle of the century."

Investigating Magistrate Leydt in May decided to commit Therese Humbert, her husband, Fred, and her brother for trial on charges of forgery, use of forged documents and swindling. He dismissed the cases against Eve Humbert (Therese's daughter) and Maria Daurignac (her sister).

Public curiosity which has followed the fortunes of the family since the days of its social brilliance, is again intensely wound up, chiefly centering in "Le Grand Therese," who has promised to produce at this trial the mysterious American millionaires, the brothers Crawford, on whom she based her story of the inheritance of $20,000,000, which she put forward as security for loans she obtained, amounting to about $10,000,000.

The palais de justice early this morning was surrounded by large crowds eager to get admittance to the court. A heavy force of municipal guards preserved order. Many excursions came from different points on the railroads, treating the trial as they would a national holiday. One of the excursions came from Melun, which was the constituency that Frederick Humbert represented in the chamber of deputies, and where was located the famous Humbert chateau with its parks, lakes, yachts and fleet of gondolas. Of the thousands who sought admission, only a few hundred highly favored gained entrance to the court. The scene within the court room recalled the tense days of the Dreyfus and Zola trials. Presiding Judge Gaston Bonnet occupied the center of the semi-circle, his associates being Judges Monier, Planteau, Pigcluded diplomats, academicians and members of the Legion of Honor. Many ladies were present, their rich gay gowns contrasting with the gravity of their surroundings. Many ladies carried dainty luncheon bags, evidently expecting to spend the day in court.

Mme. Humbert had a whispered conference with her counsel, Maitre Labori, who defended Dreyfus at the Rennes court-martial, while the indictment was being read. There was a large array of counsel, representing the numerous interests on both sides. The early hours of the hearing were occupied by the reading of the indictment, formal pledging and selection of the jury from the regular panel.

Mme. Humbert frequently interrupted the reading of the indictment with scornful exclamations which could be heard throughout the court room. When asked where she lived, she replied in prison.

LOUBET TAKES ACTIVE INTEREST

President of France Visits the Hospitals of Paris, Selecting Two or Three a Week to Honor by His Presence

HE WANTS TO KNOW THE DAILY MENU

Invalid Soldiers Delighted With His Presence—Speaks Long With the Nurses and Shows Interest in the Babies in the Operating Ward

(Special Cable. Copyrighted, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

BY JOSEPH CONWAY, M. A. ....

PARIS, August 10.—President Loubet takes an active interest in the hospitals of Paris and for three months has made it a point to visit one or two every week.

These visits are not mere ceremonies for M. Loubet insists on going through all the wards, talking to the sick on their couches and taking a look at all the offices.

Thus last week he went to the military hospital of Val de Grace, where he talked for a long time with a number of invalid soldiers and insisted on visiting the ward reserved for contagious diseases.

He inspected the gardens, where a number of improvements are in progress, and give his views personally concerning them. The invalid soldiers were delighted at his visit, and it was the first time in many years that a president has visited the establishment.

M. Loubet went next to the Maternity Hospital, where he was received by the entire staff and spoke long with the nurses, visiting the cots of the babies and the operating rooms.

In the kitchen he asked for a description of the daily menu, and even suggested some additions.

He was accompanied by Generals Andre and Dubois and the officers of the Paris Dispensary.

On leaving the hospitals a great crowd assembled outside and cheered him enthusiastically. In spite of his politics, the president is becoming dear to the people.

SANTOS DUMONT LEADS A SPORT.

M. Santos-Dumont is continuing to make a stir in Paris. Ballooning as a sport is becoming quite fashionable, and he is daily besieged by crowds of visitors who come to see his collection of balloons at Longchamps.

He has opened a kind of school for fashionable ladies who are anxious to learn ballooning from him, and one of his most apt pupils is Mme. de Gast, the famous sporting woman, who was the only woman to take part in the ill-starred Paris-Madrid automobile race.

He is about to make a series of trips to the surroundings of Paris, in which he will take as many as a dozen passengers, all of the highest society.

As regards his proposed visit to the United States next year, it is far from becoming certain.

At present, in spite of the newspaper announcement to the effect that great prizes will be offered at the St. Louis Exposition he does not believe that any such thing will be done and has received no offical confirmation of the supposed offer.

The balloons he has so far succeeded in making seem to be safe enough, and recently he took a number of children on little trips over the Bois de Boulogne and brought them back again safely to their anxious mothers.

ESTABLISHMENTS MUST BE CLOSED.

The government has decided on the fate of forty-three more establishments of nuns in Paris, which will have to be closed.

They are all dependent upon congregations of nuns that are authorized, but had no special permission for the establishments in question. The nuns tried hard to maintain their institutions.

In one of them, all the nuns had obtained a letter of secularization from the Archbishop and had dressed up in civil costumes.

The effect was rather startling on the police officers, who were surprised to find so many of them young and pretty, and their new fashionable gowns forming such a striking contrast with their short hair, for it had not yet had time to grow.

The circumstances looked so exceptional that the police commissioners suspended operations and referred the matter a second time to the courts.

The convent is that of St. Louis, dependent on the nuns of St. Mary de Jailly in the Rue des Martyrs.

Among the establishments closed were several of the nuns of St. Vincent de Paul, or Sisters of Charity. They have been allowed three months' time and must be dispersed by the first of October.

The government has left unmolested two hundred and twenty-one other establishments which have a long standing authorization.

THE AUTO CRAZE POPULAR IN FRANCE.

The automobile craze has become so popular in France that even little country cures are buying small machines and trying them on the backs of their parishioners.

At Montreuil sous Bois a curate, in fact ran over a pious old lady just as he came out of the yard of the presbytary and as she was going to enter the church for her devotions.

At Troyes, Rev. Petit, curate of the church at Dampierre, was also driving in an automobile he had just bought in company with another ecclesiastic, the parish priest of Vaucogne.

On a steep down grade near Jassenins he lost control of his cart and it started racing at a wild pace down the hill.

The conclusion of the voage was a somersault into a ditch at the bottom of the road where both ecclesiastics were found an hour later by a man passing in a donkey cart.

The driver, Abbe Petit is seriously hurt and fears are entertained for his life. His companion was able, after some repose to return to his own parish on horseback.

The Bishop of Troyes is said to be disposed to forbit ecclesiastics of his diocese from driving automobiles.

ELECTRIC TRAMWAYS CURIOUSLY CONSTRUCTED.

Some of the electric tramways in Paris are so curiously constructed that passengers are liable at any moment by merely touching the guard rails to be treated to electric shocks.

The chief of police has been obliged to interfere and the cars on three lines, Vanvas-Clamart, St. Germain and St. Philippe du Roule, were ordered to be replaced.

The company tried to plead in behalf of its ill-constructed cars, and one of the arguments it advanced was a profound study by a medical doctor of Paris, who stated that the electric current was not only not dangerous, but was to be considered to have curative efects on the passengers.

In spite of this the chief of police decided that the cars were to be changed.

If the people want to submit to an electric cure they have only to go to the hospital or to a private establishment.

The generosity of the tramway company in offering to treat its passengers free of charge was thus declined with thanks.

STONE PAVING IS TOO NOISY.

The Paris board of public schools has decided that all the streets within a certain distance around the schools and colleges are to be paved with wood.

The present stone pavement, wherever it exists, is too noisy with the countless carriages and wagons running at breakneck speed over them at all hours of the day.

The professors of the various colleges have signed a petition some time ago requesting this reform, as they found it impossible to make themselves heard by the scholars in class.

The technical committee charged with studying up the probable expenses involved states that a sum of two and a half million francs will suffice to make the change and suit both scholars and professors.

NEW POSTAL BROOM SWEEPS CLEAN.

A new broom sweeps clean, and the proverb applies to Mr. Berard, director of the Paris postal service, who has not ceased, since he took up the office a few months ago, from making very important changes.

His latest is quite a marvel of sanitary zeal and might be offered as an example to all chiefs of postal service in the world.

He has issued a circular which contains very minute descriptions concerning the telephone and cleanliness in the two hundred bureaus with which Paris is endowed.

The waiting rooms, he says, must be always cleanly swept, the furniture dusted twice a day, the paper, ink, pens, etc., must be perfectly clean; the rooms must be disinfected every morning, the walls of the telephone boxes must be washed every day with an antiseptic preparation, the telephone receiver and transmitter must be wiped carefully each time it has been used by a flannel cloth impregnated with formol and phenic water.

Parisians are waiting to see if he wil soon order each person also to be sprinkled before entering a postal bureau and get a douche of carbolic acid on leaving it after buying a postage stamp.

WHO IS LEGAL OWNER OF HOUSE.

A curious case has come before the Paris courts to decide who is the legal owner of a house near the Marne.

It is a small brick building and has been owned and inhabited for years by a certain Mr. Emile Durand, an old man of seventy.

Several people wanted to buy it from him and at last he consented to sign a promise of sale to a Mr. Petit, who had treated him to copious drinks.

On leaving the notary's office another man, Edouard Monot, treated the proprietor to still more drinks and got him to sign an actual deed of sale, which they went to have recorded.

On the following day Emile Durand having sobered up, was surprised to find that he had sold his house to two different purchasers and remembered to have received money from none.

The court will have to decide now to whom of the three the house really belongs. It is probable that it will have no difficulty in leaving the old man in possession.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Ninety-nine out of every one hundred diseases that children have are due to disorders of the stomach, and these disorders are all caused by indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is just as good for children as it is for adults. Children thrive on it. It keeps their little stomachs sweet and encourages their growth and development. Mrs. Henry Carter, 785 Central street, Nashville, Tenn., says: "My little boy is now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. I have had the best doctors in Nashville, but failed to do him any good. After using one bottle of Kodol he is a well boy. I recommend it to all sufferers." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by all druggists.

"BALD-HEADED STIFF," NOT ABUSIVE LANGUAGE

The trial of Professor Morley DeWitt Francis, an attenuated person of musical proclivities, on a charge of hurling large quantities of red-tinted conversation at a venerable patriarch named Whitman, interested the motley gathering in the police court this morning.

Mrs. Francis, who is as plump as her spouse is osseous, was the principal witness for the defense while the prosecution, in addition to Mr. Whitman, presented Miss Louise Whitman, a dignified young lady of 11 years, who testified that Mr. Francis' remarks on the occasion mentioned were "very abusive, indeed!"

Mr. Whitman testified that Mrs. Francis borrowed certain articles from him and when he asked to have them returned she grew indignant and summoned her husband, who proceeded to abuse the witness in picturesque terms. Indeed, the language was much worse than "Gad zooks!" or "Zounds!" although witness did not care to enter into particulars because of the presence of a lady in the court room.

"He called me several kinds of scamps and rascals," said Mr. Whitman.

Then Mrs. Francis took the stand. She said that Whitman, who lodges across the hall from her in a Main street apartment house, entered her suite on the occasion in controversy and abused her because of a misunderstanding in regard to a duster. Her husband, who was in the next room, bore with Whitman's tirade, she said, as long as he could and then threw himself into the scene.

"He told Mr. Whitman to get over on his own side of the hall and stay there," she said, "and Mr. Francis also told him that he was an old stiff. That was the only language he used that might be termed abusive. 'You old stiff,' he said, 'You old, bald-headed stiff!'"

Mr. Francis then testified. He said that he did not use abusive language, but told Mr. Whitman that out of respect for his bald head and gray hair he would not harm him if her Whitman, would cease tormenting Mrs. Francis.

Judge Prewett discharged Francis.

"Hello, Central! Hot, isn't it? Well, give me the weather bureau, No. 423. I'll try to make it hot for the recorder up there a while. But what's the use? He isn't to blame for anything today. Everything is prospering in the weather line.

"Hello, this the weather bureau? What? Mr. Reeder isn't in? Well, now, if that wouldn't that jar you? He rang off.

"Hello, Central, give me the police station, 251.

"Well, is this the policeman on duty? Well, my name is ——. How is that? You know me already? Well, all right. I want to talk about the weather. Say, that was a fine storm that we didn't get yesterday, wasn't it? I never saw better looking prospects for breaking up a game of baseball in my life. Did you notice how vicious those clouds looked as they rose up from the horizon toward the south and sailed swiftly toward town? I came near not going to the ball game myself when I saw what the weather office had dished up for the occasion. What's that? Disch didn't win the game? Well, he scored the winning run.

"Well, did you notice the fact that Houston, Galveston and Paris had nice rains yesterday. It is a good thing that we didn't have any weather like that here, for some people I know of would have gotten wet. Now, wait a minute, I didn't mean you. You all over there know enough to come in out of the wet.

"Say, what are you going to do tonight when that forecast says occasional showers with slight changes in temperature. Of course, you don't mind the changes in temperatures, but it is unpleasant if you are sitting in a boat at Handley to have an occasional shower drip suddenly down your neck. What's that? One has to fix such things with the weather man ahead of time? That's all right as far as the rain from the clouds goes, but suppose that it comes from the oars in the hands of the fair one?

"Say, wouldn't you like to be up in the Dakotas this morning with the temperature ranging about 42 degrees?

"What's that? Have I got any charge to register against the weather man? Why, no. What made you think that? You haven't time to talk to me, then? Well, say——Why he's gone. Say, isn't it too bad? When I get oiled up to talk at a good rate the party on the other end always hangs up his receiver. I'll fix him by dropping in on him some day and button-holing him."

GEORGIA'S GOVERNOR ENDORSES ROOSEVELT

ATLANTA, Ga., August 10.—The governor today endorsed the contents of President Roosevelt's letter to Governor Durbin of Indiana in regard to the recent action of Governor Durbin to prevent lynchings in that state. Coincidental with the endorsement Governor Terrell stated speedy trials should be granted all offenders and punishment should not be delayed by technicalities. Governor Terrell gave the following statement to the Associated Press this morning:

"I think President Roosevelt is on the right line and I am in hearty accord with the views he expressed. The majesty of the law should be unheld, but at the same time there should be prompt and speedy trial of offenders in cases of that crime which most frequently excites the anger of mobs and leads to lynchings, and punishment should not be delayed by technicalities.

"We have so amended our criminal laws in Georgia as to have speedy trials by authorizing our judges to order special courts to try criminals. No law, however strictly enforced, will absolutely stop lynchings for criminal assault, but speedy trials tend to lessen the number and practically serve as a preventive of lynching for other offences. It is interesting to note that the numberous lynchings in the North and Northwest brought forth such action from the president, while the number of them in the South have been so few, within the same period, as to attract little or no attention."

NAMES FOR DEER GIVEN BY TELEGRAM READERS

Although the sky looked threatening yesterday afternoon, a large number of children went out to the City park in order to get a glimpse of the new deer which was placed there last week by Neil P. Anderson.

Big children, little children and medium children all pressed about the wire screen which surrounds the enclosure and made friends with the animal. Many hands were passed over the sleek coat of the animal during the day. All the children who went out there yesterday are the sworn friends of the deer now. He is not a bit afraid of them and allows each one to pet him without making a move. Indeed, he looks as though he enjoyed the strokes which are given him.

The smallest children had to be lifted up in order to touch his back. They would grasp his horns and coo over the softness of them when they had always been told that deer's horns were hard.

The Telegram has been in receipt of several letters from its little readers who are anxious to give a name to the deer. At present the animal goes by the name of "Bill," but that is only a temporary title until a better one is suggested which will appeal to all as being a good name.

Among the names thus far suggested are "Fleet," "Don," "Mercury" and "Telegram." Have you a better one?

The order by which C. J. Larimer is made chief dispatcher and trainmaster of the International and Great Northern at Mart is being received with much favorable comment in Fort Worth today. Mr. Larimer was formerly general agent for the Chicago Stock Yards Company in Fort Worth and has a host of friends in this city. About two months ago he left here to go to Boyce, La., as yardmaster of the Texas and Pacific at that place and today becomes associated with the International and Great Northern in a position which represents a creditable promotion to him.

A man by the name of Guay fell off a stock yards car at the north terminal of the line last night about 9:30 and sustained a few slight injuries, including a cut under the eye. NORTH SIDE AND ROSEN HEIGHTS

Squatters Continue to Vacate Stock Yards Property—Need of a Good Water System

The people of North Fort Worth are still discussing the fire of Saturday morning, and the probabilities of the outcome of the action taken by the Fort Worth Stock Yards company and the city of North Fort Worth in ordering that the property owned by the stock yards company be vacated by the tenants who have been living in tents along the creek bottom for the past twelve months.

City Marshal Dick Howell stated this morning that some of the squatters had already moved, while others were making preparations to vacate at once. Most of them are moving to the vacant ground west of the stock yards and Armour & Company's plant. Marshal Howell anticipates some trouble with a few of the squatters who contend that they have a right to live on unfenced property which is not being used for any specific purpose.

GOLDGRABER'S STATEMENT.

In speaking of the recent fire, J. Goldgraber in a conversation with a reporter this morning said that until North Fort Worth could offer better fire protection to business property, he would not re-build. The Goldgraber building, which was used as a city hall, was not only convenient as a hall for meetings of various kinds, office rooms, and as a place for social entertainments, but was a necessity to the town, as there is at present no building which will meet the demands of the town for a public building.

T. T. McDonald, deputy grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Texas, is inviting members of the order in Fort Worth to assist him in the installation of a new lodge of the K. of P. in North Fort Worth tomorrow evening. The North Side lodge will start off with a large membership and enthusiasm characteristic of North Fort Worth enterprises. Mr. McDonald is in receipt of a communication from John T. Butts of Weatherford, deputy grand chancellor, stating that on the night of August 4 he installed J. B. Price as keeper of records and seal of Lone Star lodge No. 4, vice John H. Prince, resigned.

The Daniel & Watkins Produce company, which occupied the Hewitt building, destroyed by fire, have moved its stock into one of the vacant store rooms in the Rosen Inn building.

Miss Annie Taylor of Blum, who has been visiting the family of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Gallaway, left this morning for a visit with friends at Denton.

Miss Evelyn Duvall is expected home today from a week's visit with friends in Granbury.
