Several persons near Abilene Thursday observed a stationary object brighter than Venus for about 15 minutes, before the object fell, leaving a glowing trail of fragments reminiscient of the July 1979 Skylab re-entry to the Earth's atmosphere. The object remained visible for about three minutes after it began to disintegrate.

Object seen near Abilene

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A luminous object appeared to hang in the sky west of this West Central Texas city about 7 p.m. Thursday before it disintegrated into a sparkling shower of debris, witnesses told the Abilene Reporter-News.

The display bore a resemblance to the break-up of Skylab over Australia in 1979, photographs showed. But the identity of the object, estimated to be 60 to 200 miles from Abilene, remained a mystery Friday.

Spokesmen said the object was not observed by personnel at Dyess Air Force Base or the McDonald Observatory near Fort Davis.

Dave Harmon of the National Weather Service Office in Abilene said he knew of no reports, and city editor George Foulsham of the Midland Reporter-Telegram said he had received no reports of sightings in the Midland area.

Mrs. J.C. Farmer of Hamlin, however, said she and her husband saw the object clearly, sometimes through binoculars, on a trip to check an oil well near their town. She said they watched the "unusually bright" white object for about 20 minutes before her husband noticed "sparks coming from it."

She said it left a vertical "smoky trail" of debris that faded from view before reaching the horizon. The luminosity of the object remained steady before it broke up, she said.

She and her husband saw a faint red glow at the bottom of the object before it disintegrated into a fireworks-like display of light, she said.

Abilene Reporter-News photographer David Kent, who photographed the object using a tripod and a 600-millimeter telephoto lens on the newspaper building's roof, offered a similar description.

Kent, who went to the roof after receiving several calls about the object, said it was difficult to discern with the naked eye.

Stockman 'irresponsible': Hance

Says eliminating depletion allowance would hinder drilling

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

David Stockman was "irresponsible" when he called for elimination of the oil depletion allowance earlier this week, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance said Friday after the annual United Way luncheon.

Hance, a Democratic congressman from the 19th District which extends to Midland, was guest speaker for the United Way event held in the Holidome. Officers and board members were elected during the luncheon, and President William Ortloff summed up the past year's drive.

After his speech on volunteerism with the United Way, Hance answered questions on current events for the media.

Hance said that Stockman, who is director of the Office of Management and Budget, was "irresponsible for saying anything about eliminating the oil depletion allowance."

With as many people in Texas who voted for President Reagan and with Vice President George H.W. Bush formerly in the oil business in Midland and Houston, Hance said he doesn't believe such a bill would get the administration's approval.

"We need to increase our drilling, and eliminating the allowance would hinder it," Hance added.

Selected as one of the best freshman congressmen in the last session of Congress, Hance supported President Reagan's actions in sending military advisers to El Salvador.

The Central American country is separated from Mexico's south border by Guatemala. El Salvador's close proximity to the United States' southern neighbor is reason enough for the U.S. to become involved, Hance contended.

The worst thing that could happen is for the U.S. to do nothing, he said. If the unrest is allowed to spread, it would no doubt hit Mexico and "that would be critical to the United States, especially the Southwest."

Hance's bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Tom Loeffler, to allow royalty owners and independent oil operators an exemption on the windfall profits tax has a "good chance" of getting through Congress, the legislator surmised.

Reagan's request for a tax cut may be approved, Hance said, but it probably will be less than the 10 percent the president was wanting. With a 10 percent slash in taxes, the deficit would be $48 billion for the first year, he explained.

"We need to increase our drilling, and eliminating the (oil depletion) allowance would hinder it."

— U.S Rep. Kent Hance

The Ways and Means Committee — one of the three most powerful groups in the House — has approved $8.84 billion in spending cuts, said Hance, who sits on that committee. This is more than the $8.4 billion that Reagan recommended.

The president's spending cuts and tax reductions should get through Congress by the middle of July, Hance predicted. Speaker of the House Thomas O'Neill has maintained the bills will be out of the House by July 10, Hance related.

Speaking before the United Way audience, Hance tied together his early experience with the UW campaign in Lubbock several years ago and his work as a congressman with the thread of volunteerism.

When people look to move a business into a community, he said, they consider civic responsibility. "If you have a strong United Way, it shows a lot of civic pride.

"One of the problems in Washington is that every group involved in a budget cut has been by to see us (congressmen). They go along with the President's idea of cutting the spending, but they don't want to be the ones cut out."

Many of the programs being eliminated or reduced are projects that should be accomplished through local responsibility, he claimed. "And the first way is through the United Way."

The history of the United States is based on charity, he said. "Charity started with your neighbors and that's what United Way is doing."

Sometimes, those volunteers receive acknowledgment for their successes, sometimes not.

Looking back at his first case out of law school, Hance recalled he had to defend a man accused of murdering another man in Crosbyton.

"The sheriff was the law in Crosby County," he said. Testimony was going against Hance's client until the sheriff took the stand and said the deceased "was the sorriest guy in Crosbyton and he needed shooting."

The jury acquitted the defendant, and Hance said he was feeling proud about his first victory until the jury foreman talked to him.

"He said the sheriff had been telling everyone for six months the defendant should get off because he had gotten rid of the guy causing all the trouble in town."

"Sometimes," Hance said in summary, "you'll have successes not directly related to something you do."

Our moment's arrived, Reagan tells supporters

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told his longstanding conservative supporters Friday night "our time is now, our moment has arrived," and declared that his economic program is but a first step in reordering the relationship between citizen ad government.

In a speech prepared for the Conservative Political Action Conference, the president said "We are not cutting the budget simply for the sake of sounder financial management. This is only a first step toward returning power to the states and communities."

Addressing his audience as "fellow conservatives," Reagan said, "We stand together, shoulder-to-shoulder, in the thickest of the fight."

"We can make government again responsive to people," said the president "but only by cutting its size and scope and thereby insuring that its legitimate functions are performed efficiently and justly."

He recalled that he has spoken to the conservative conference at all but two of the annual meetings.

"During our political efforts we were the subject of much indifference and often times intolerance," he recalled, adding "that is why I hope our political victory will be remembered as a generous one and our time in power will be recalled for the tolerance we showed those with whom we disagreed."

Earlier, Vice President George Bush was warmly welcomed by the conservatives, who fought him tooth-and-nail last year, and he assured them Reagan "is not going to be deterred or detoured" from their conservative political and economic course.

Bush, addressing a breakfast session of the Conservative Political Action Conference, asked the group to rally around the president to help him overcome "advocates of the liberal status quo."

Conservatives bitterly opposed Bush when he was running against Reagan for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination. Many expressed outrage when Reagan subsequently chose Bush as his running mate.

"It is perhaps no secret that scarcely a year ago many people in this room disagreed with the vice president on the choice of a presidential candidate," said Robert C. Heckman, executive director of Young Americans for Freedom, who introduced Bush.

Bush noted that during the campaign he probably received one vote from those among the audience, against about 400 for Reagan.

"The 400 were right and the one was wrong," he said getting a loud cheer from the audience.

The annual conference is sponsored by the American Conservative Union and Young Americans for Freedom. Other groups participating include the Conservative Caucus, Fund for a Conservative Majority, Conservative Digest and groups opposed to abortion and gun control.

Train robber kidnapped

LONDON (AP) — Brazilian police said Friday they are officially investigating the disappearance of Great Train Robber Ronald Biggs and a British newspaper reported that it had received an offer to ransom the fugitive for $1.3 million.

Biggs, 51, was sentenced to 30 years in prison for his part in the $7 million "Great Train Robbery" in 1963. Two years later he escaped to Brazil, where he could not be deported because of a legal technicality.

At first Brazilian police said they considered Biggs' disappearance on Monday a publicity stunt. But on Friday, Brazil's Federal Police said they were treating the incident as a kidnapping and were searching for four British subject in connection with the alleged abduction.

The Sun, a London tabloid, said it received the ransom offer from a London publisher acting as agent for a British-led kidnapping squad.

The newspaper said it knew the name of the agent but did not identify him. Nor did The Sun say whether it would consider paying the ransom for Biggs, who was reportedly being held aboard a yacht off Miami.

Long wants El Salvador advisers withdrawn

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key congressman just back from El Salvador renewed his call for the withdrawal of U.S. military advisers from that country, saying Friday that the Central American nation's ongoing conflict makes the advisers "hostages to fortune."

Rep. Clarence D. Long, a day after returning from his fact-finding mission, said he was "quite impressed" with Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte and the Washington-backed junta's pledge to hold democratic elections.

Long, D-Md., also said he felt reassured that Salvadoran authorities are not attempting a "whitewash" but instead are striving to investigate thoroughly the December slayings of three U.S. Catholic nuns and a woman lay social worker.

The 72-year-old congressman told reporters that overall, "I came back with a feeling that the El Salvador problem represents a far greater, long-run commitment than we are led to believe" by the Reagan administration. He said he is "convinced that El Salvador may become a metaphor of the future" in terms of Third World unrest, as Vietnam was during the 1960s and 1970s.

Long, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, said he plans to offer an amendment that would bar spending $5 million in military aid for sending U.S. advisers to El Salvador or any training of government troops within the strife-torn country. He said Salvadoran troops instead should be sent to the United States for training.

However, he declined to say how he would finally vote on the $5 million — the final portion of a $25 million military aid package requested by the Reagan administration — if his amendment fails to be adopted at a meeting of his subcommittee scheduled for Tuesday.

"I want to keep some freedom of action, that's all," Long said.

But he stated flatly: "I think we ought to get our advisers out of there."

Fifty-four American military advisers are in El Salvador or slated to arrive there shortly, with assignments to train infantry troops, helicopter pilots and mechanics.

Long said the U.S. military personnel could, in effect, become "hostages to fortune" because amid the fight against leftist guerrillas it would be impossible to guarantee the Americans' safety, although they are under orders to stay in protected base areas.

During his two-day visit earlier this week, Long met with Duarte and other government officials as well as Salvadoran military, business and church leaders.

He praised Duarte as "a very decent fellow" but indicated doubts about how long the civilian-military junta's Christian Democratic chief would b able to urvive politically.

"I was quite impressed with President Duarte and their promise to have an election, though I'm not at all certain that that promise will be carried out, can be carried out, in the 12-month time that they announced — or that Duarte would be re-elected if that occurred," Long said.

Asked about the killings of the four U.S. women, Long said he had met with two Salvadoran investigators putting together evidence in the case.

"I'd have to say after talking to President Duarte and those two investigators that it seemed to me that they were doing about as good a job as they could do, basically," he said. "It was an objective investigation. They were not trying to do a whitewash, so far as I could see."

Long's trip also included stops in Honduras, Guatemala and Panama. The El Salvador visit was not sanctioned by the State Department, but Long decided to go ahead with it anyway and pay that portion of the expenses himself.

Meanwhile, a Salvadoran opposition leader reaffirmed the guerrillas' stated desire for a "political settlement" to the civil war.

Hector Oquell, foreign policy spokesman for the Democratic Revolutionary Front, told reporters in Washington on Friday that the key to negotiations was the participation of both the United States and the Salvadoran junta.

U.S. officials have refused to join in any negotiations.

Fukuda warns Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda warned President Reagan on Friday that "peace we have enjoyed since the end of the World War could be threatened" if the current world situation were mishandled.

Fukuda, speaking through an interpreter after his meeting at the White House, said it was important for world political leaders to "exert their utmost efforts for maintaining peace in the world."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan believed "the prime minister was speaking in a global context and an economic context and not singling out anything in U.S.-Japan relations ... I don't think we regard this as a specific criticism of the United States.

John Holdridge, who has been nominated to be assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs, said that Fukuda also was referring to OPEC oil and the need to stabilize the world economy.

Fukuda told reporters that, "It is particularly very important that the leaders of the West develop consensus as to how they perceive the world and how we can best go about responding to these challenges.

"I emphasized to President Reagan that the president of the United States should play a leading role in forming that kind of consensus and Reagan said he agreed with the point that I made," Fukuda said.

Richard V. Allen, Reagan's national security adviser, said Reagan brought up the slump of the U.S. auto industry, without asking directly for Fukuda's views on voluntary import restraints.

Allen quoted Reagan as saying the auto industry was important in the United States and its health was fundamental to Reagan's economic recovery program.

Allen said the former prime minister "indicated he understood this," and said it would be a priority item next week when the Japanese foreign minister visits Washington.

Asked whether Fukuda talked about voluntary import restraints on Japanese autos, Allen replied: "Fukuda would not be expected to have any particular message on this."

Speaking through his interpreter, Fukuda said he "expressed my confidence that through our very friendly discussions these matters will indeed be resolved."

Crosbyton now has solar power

CROSBYTON, Texas (AP) — Electricity from the nation's first solar-powered steam plant was scheduled to arrive at the same time as spring Friday in this Panhandle farming community.

Officials planned to throw the switch at the new Crosbyton municipal power plant — a 65-foot mirror dish connected to a small building in the middle of a cottonfield just outside town — shortly after 2 p.m. CST.

The only hitch foreseeable Friday morning was a lack of cooperation from the sun. Clouds blocked the sky and dust was forecast for the area.

The electricity produced by the plant will come from a steam power turbine designed by engineers at Texas Tech University in Lubbock and will flow to about 15 homes in Crosbyton.

The first customer will be Rex Wheeler, 76, a cotton farmer on whose vacant field the power plant is located.

"I'm just glad to have electricity," said Wheeler. "This country was run on kerosene at one time."

"I just hope it works," said his skeptical wife, Naomi.

The director of the solar project, Dr. John D. Reichert of Texas Tech, describes its technology as "big, dumb and simple." The system, with its mirror dish connected to a steam boiler, is a design prototype for a larger unit that would contain 10 200-foot mirrors, he said.

Reicher doesn't claim the Crosbyton plant will produce the first solar power ever marketed. Small quantities of electricity produced by photovoltaic cells have been marketed before. But the plant is the first commercial endeavor offering solar steam as a source of electricity.

Texas Tech and the City of Crosbyton have invested $5 million in federal funds in the project so far. The plant was conceived in 1976 after a group of town residents worried about future availability and prices of fossil fuels approached university officials and asked them to design a solar power plant.

Unlike other solar projects receiving federal financing, the mirror in the cotton field lacks moveable parts and computer controls.

"All we can come up with is big, dumb and simple," said Reichert.

Man abandons car, escapes police

Midland police officers were still searching late Friday night for an unidentified man who led several police units on a high-speed chase through the city and abandoned his vehicle after crashing it into a yard at Ray's Towing and Salvage near Main Street and Longview Avenue.

According to a Midland Police Department spokesman, the man had been stopped on a traffic violation shortly after 11 p.m. and the officer was following him down Front Street to police headquarters — where he was to post bond on the traffic ticket — when he turned south on Main Street and took off at a high rate of speed.

As many as three MPD units pursued the vehicle, which reportedly struck two or three fences as it zigzagged through south Midland before wrecking at the towing firm. The man, described as 6 feet or 6 feet, 1 inch in height and wearing a blue sweater and bluejeans, then abandoned his vehicle and fled the scene on foot, said the spokesman.

Seized treasure boat free to leave Colombian waters

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The owner of the treasure-hunting yacht Coral Sea, seized by Colombian sailors with 14 people aboard, reported in a radio-telephone call Friday that the boat had been released and he expected to leave Colombia on Saturday.

Owner Glenn Miller, who is also skipper of the 85-foot vessel on a search for sunken Spanish treasure, told the Santa Barbara News-Press from his boat that Colombian port authorities at San Andres island, 100 miles east of Nicaragua, told him Friday that he was free to go.

The boat, with 14 people aboard, was seized by a Colombian gunboat a week ago as it lay idled by engine problems at Bajo Nuevo island, 250 miles farther east. He said no reason was given for the seizure.

Jean Wright, Miller's ex-wife, said a message was releayed to her Thursday from her son, who is aboard the Coral Sea. The message reported that Colombian authorities had returned passports, but that a national holiday prevented other action toward release on Thursday.

Miller said when he is released, he will head for West Palm Beach, Fla., to repair his engine.

Miller said he plans to steam straight for West Palm Beach, Fla., to repair his engine. He added: "I don't plan to stop anywhere between here and there."

He said the Colombians never told the crew why the boat was seized, nor was a fine or any other penalty levied on them.

Miller also said that when the gunboat appeared "I immediately got on the phone to Miami with the Coast Guard and they kept the line open 24 hours a day."

The Coral Sea has been used in television shows, such as "Switch" with Robert Wagner, and is known as the Rolls-Royce of the California pleasure diving fleet because of its comforts such as a trash-masher, air conditioner, a machine shop, a helicopter and a desalinization water system.

Miller was allowed to call home on a radio-telephone Wednesday night and Thursday. When asked why he had been stopped, Miller replied: "They never gave us any reason, none whatsoever."

Miller said his vessel had been forced to stop because of generator problems while en route to Grand Cayman Island, between Jamaica and Cuba. As he waited for the engine to cool so he could work on it, the passengers, most of them from San Francisco, went diving for relaxation in the tropical waters. Then a Colombian gunboat steamed over the horizon and took them into custody, he said.

The treasure-hunting expedition was organized by Margaret Brandeis, a San Francisco area business woman.

She told the News-Press last October that she had information, for which she had paid dearly, that a 17th-century Spanish galleon lay on the Caribbean floor with a $100 million treasure.

Spring eases in

Spring eased into West Texas Friday, carried on the winds of March that left a little bit of winter chill in the air.

While the mercury ascended to the 69-degree mark in mid-afternoon, gusty gales and hazy skies denied Midlanders the ordinary associations that spring usually brings.

Long sleeves or jackets were spotted on city streets and the sun all but refused to shine.However, by nightfall the near-full moon broke through the cloudy skies to shine.

While the National Weather Service is anticipating a high today of 70, skies will be partly cloudy and gusty winds at more than 20 mph may again leave a nip in the air.

Temperatures should be a bit cooler tonight with a low in the mid-30s, followed by a high Sunday near 70.

Midlander convicted of forgery

A 28-year-old bearded Midland man Friday was convicted of forgery, was assessed a three-year probated sentence and was fined $1,800 by a jury in 238th State District Court.

"They got me right now," the defendant, Curtis Lloyd Ray, said following his conviction. "But I still say I'm innocent."

The jury deliberated about an hour before finding him guilty and spent another hour and 10 minutes in assessing punishment.

Ray was found guilty of trying to cash a $192 check on Dec. 18 at Sundown Market off U.S. Highway 80 on Midland's eastside.

The check was signed "Larry Hamilton" of Larry Hamilton Field Service and was made out to a Rickie Charles Harris. Sundown's assistant manager identified Ray as the person who tried to pass the forged check.

In the punishment phase of the trial, Midland Police Detective Kenneth Moten testified that Ray's reputation was "bad." Later, Ray said that the detective was his cousin.

Defense attorney David Lashford had recommended that the jury give his client a probated sentence.

"He's a fine man," prosecutor Jim Frazier said of Lashford, "but I disagree with him. I think he (Ray) ought to be sent to the penitentiary.

"This is forgery," the prosecutor stressed. "He (Ray) showed no remorse. He's just sorry that he's convicted."

In countering Frazier's slant on Ray, Lashford told the five-man, seven-woman jury that "I disagree with your verdict. Of course, I respect your opinion."

Lashford alluded to Ray's misdemeanor probation for theft by check in Odessa in 1979, to his subsequent violation of that probation and to Ray's serving of six months in the Ector County Jail following revocation.

"He (Frazier) said Mr. Ray has contempt for probation," said Lashford, who noted that a probationer could be cast into prison for violation of most any state law, including driving while intoxicated (DWI) and frequenting bars.

Another prosecutor, Rob Sutphen, equated punishment with justice and said incarceration was a "deterrent" to crime and might discourage "other people" from trying to "pass bad checks."

Sutphen assaulted Lashford's plea for leniency.

"Mr. Lashford makes it sound like probation is a terrible imposition," the prosecutor said. Sutphen said that "putting him on felony probation would be a step backward...in the rehabilitation process."

Carter aides have warning for Reagan

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A "high confrontation" stance toward the Soviet Union risks making the Russians more aggressive and raising tensions, a former Carter administration official warned Friday.

Calling for a moderate approach, Marshall Shulman, a Columbia professor who was a top adviser on Soviet relations, said he doubts military competition with the Russians would lead to surrender or a contraction of the Soviet empire.

Instead, Shulman said, heightened rivalry risks "the probability of a more militant and adventurous Soviet policy."

Describing the Soviet leadership as basically cautious, at home and abroad, Shulman said Russian moves in Angola, Ethiopia, South Yemen and Vietnam "reflect a pattern of response to opportunity."

And, he said, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan "does not give a clear indication of Soviet willingness to involve its own combat forces in a non-border situation."

Shulman spoke at a conference of the American Council on Germany, a non-governmental group that seeks to strengthen ties between the United States and West Germany.

Another speaker, Karl Kaiser, director of the West German foreign policy council, questioned the Reagan administration's tough line on El Salvador.

Kaiser called for stressing economic and social reform. He said any U.S. military involvement in El Salvador, even on a small scale, undermines the Western criticism of the Soviets for sending troops into Afghanistan.

Shulman, who left the State Department last October, challenged the notion that the military balance has shifted toward the Soviet Union.

Officers elected

Statewide officers will be elected today at a re-organizational meeting of Texas Safe Deposit Association at Holiday Inn Country Villa, according to Carroll White of First National Bank.

Mrs. Jessie Q. Hillyard of Denver, Col., national president-elect of American Safe Deposit Association, will install new officers at approximately 8:15 p.m.

The Permian Basin Chapter, one of five chapters in the state, is hosting the meeting.

'I'm no rapist,' says Wallace Sims

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Wallace Lee Sims, who admits to his past involvement in crime and to spending "lots" of time in the penitentiary, Friday said his life may be tainted, but he's no rapist.

Sims, a 32-year-old honey-fry fish-and-chicken specialist, was indicted three times on the same aggravated robbery charge but was acquitted by a jury Thursday in 238th State District Court.

The second indictment, returned Feb. 11 and subsequently dismissed, alleged that he had been convicted for rape in 1973, robbery in 1972, and attempted murder in 1969. The rape accusation is wrong, Sims said.

The third indictment alleging his role — as driver of the getaway car — in the Dec. 14 holdup of the Speedy Pak Grocery Store in Midland dropped the mention of the rape offense.

And a district attorney's prosecutor said the rape enhancement was in doubt and dropped, although a rape conviction was listed in penitentiary pack obtained from the Texas Department of Corrections. The prosecution had identified Sims as Leland Eugene Bruner in the alleged rape incident in 1973 in Parmer County in the Texas Panhandle. Other convictions came out of Houston (Harris County).

"It wasn't in error," Sims said after he was released from the Midland County Jail. "It was done intentionally, saying something ill about me. No, sir, it's not true."

Sims said he fears he might have been "slandered" by the rape falsehood.

"I have been in (prison) a lots," Sims admitted, "but a person's past record shouldn't reflect on his future."

Sims, who had spent three months in jail in lieu of a $25,000 bond and awaiting trial on the robbery indictment, said he was pressured by police into initially admitting a role in the robbery. Later, Sims testified that he, like his girl friend, Jacqueline Barnes, 22, was coerced by police detectives into saying he drove the getaway car. He was guiltless, Sims said.

Instead, Sims claimed that Tony Young, 22, was behind the armed robbery, that Young implicated him in the scheme and testified against him in exchange for a 10-year probated sentence.

Sims said he was framed. The jury apparently believed him and set him free.

His defense attorney was David Lashford. Prosecutors in Judge Vann Culp's court were David Joers and Jim Rex.

Sims, who had operated Sims' Honey-Fried Fish & Chicken restaurant in San Angelo, speculated that he might set up a business Midland. Ms. Barnes was his business manager in San Angelo, but the restaurant went bankrupt due to an unfavorable location.

"I know my strengths and weaknesses," Sims said. "I'm trying to develop my strengths rather than give in to the destructive side of my personality."

Inquiries into shuttle death begin

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Government and industry boards began investigations Friday into the death of a technician working on the space shuttle Columbia. Officials said the inquiries could take "weeks or months" but would not delay the maiden voyage in April.

Another technician remained hospitalized in critical condition, suffering from brain and lung swelling. In all, five workers were injured.

Officials from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Rockwell International Co., the primary contractor, convened boards of inquiry to look into Thursday's accident, which followed a dress-rehearsal for the launch.

After an "all clear" was sounded, five technicians went into a engine compartment that had beeen filled with nitrogen to reduce fire danger. Officials said the 15-square-foot compartment should not still have contained nitrogen when the "all clear" was sounded.

One technician died, two were hospitalized and two others were treated and released. A security guard who tried to help the men was also treated and released. On Friday, the technicians who had been treated and released complained of fatigue and were sent home to rest.

"The boards of investigation are meeting today to look at procedures and that kind of thing," Kennedy Space Center spokesman Mark Hess said Friday.

The inquiries, which he said would be similar to the type of investigation that follows aircraft crashes, could take "weeks or months," Hess said.

Officials said they have not determined why the "all clear" was given.

Acting NASA Administrator Alan Lovelace said Friday on NBC-TV's "Today" show that he did not have all the details, adding: "I would only speculate it would appear there was some procedural error that allowed the workmen to enter the area that was filled with nitrogen."

The accident occurred after a rehearsal for the shuttle's first flight, now scheduled for the week of April 5.

Lovelace said it was unlikely the accident or investigation would delay the launch. "I think, from my understanding right now, there were no mechanical failures that caused this accident and as such will not affect the flow of work that will lead up to a launch in early April."

One injured man, William Wolford, said he and the others collapsed seconds after entering the chamber.

"By the time we knew that anything was wrong, it was all over," said Wolford, who was hospitalized in stable condition. "When I came to, I was out on the launch structure with an emergency crew working over me."

Rockwell spokesman Dick Barton, who was near the launch pad at the time of the accident and heard the "all clear," said officials haven't determined why the announcement was made.

Barton said he doubted a strike by Boeing Services International workers was a factor in the accident. The workers, who walked out in a contract dispute, are not directly involved in work on the orbiter.

"I don't believe the strike had anything to do with the accident," Barton said. "The investigation, of course, will look into that, but I haven't heard any indication of problems because of the strike."

A NASA official, who asked not to be identified, said "the strikers are saying that this wouldn't have happened if they had been on the job. But our analysis is that the accident had nothing to do with the strike. It would have happened in either event."

Plainview man hurt in accident

STANTON — Terry D. Smith, 41, of Plainview was listed in stable condition late Friday in Midland Memorial Hospital after sustaining injuries in a two-vehicle accident nine miles northwest of here Friday afternoon at the intersection of FM 829 and county road 1212.

Smith received a fractured left leg and arm when the car he was driving was in collision with a tractor-trailer rig operated by Glen Harper of Coahoma, who escaped injury.

The Smith vehicle was northbound on FM 829 and the Harper rig eastbound on CR 1212 when the accident occurred, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The accident was investigated by THP trooper Wade Turner of Stanton.

Chagra talks with FBI on Wood case

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — El Paso attorney Joe Chagra, a target of the federal investigation into the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., spent more than five hours Friday closeted with the FBI.

Chagra and his attorney, who apparently left through a back exit to avoid reporters stationed in a hall outside the FBI office, came to talk with the special federal task force about a report that a map and a tape recording found in Chagra's possession were related to Wood's May 29, 1979, killing.

However, FBI Agent-in-Charge Jack Lawn refused to comment about the appearance by Chagra and his attorney, Jack Ravkind of Dallas.

The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story Friday that FBI agents who searched Chagra's El Paso home on Feb. 27 found a copy of a map purportedly drawn by convicted contract killer Charles V. Harrelson to show where the weapon used to kill Wood was hidden.

Federal agents have refused to say if they have recovered the weapon.

The newspaper, which said it had obtained copies of sealed search warrants and inventories from the FBI raid, reported that Chagra copied the map while he visited Harrelson in the Harris County Jail about two months earlier.

Ravkind said earlier that Chagra had drawn the map during his conversation with the convicted hit man. He said Chagra copied the map onto a small tablet and federal agents found it in his briefcase when they searched his home last month.

However, Harrelson's Houston attorney, Bob Tarrant, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Friday that his client denied existence of any map.

"I've talked to Harrelson and he says he never drew any map at all. There's no map," Tarrant said. "If there's a map, Joe (Chagra) drew it or somebody else drew it. Harrelson says there was never any map discussed, he's never heard of a map, this was the first time he's even heard a map mentioned.

"The most interesting thing, apparently, is that the map is in Chagra's handwriting. You ever heard the old expression 'the smeller is the teller?'"

Harrelson is being held without bond in Houston on unrelated charges of possessing illegal weapons and gambling paraphernalia was well as narcotics.

The News said the tape recording confiscated in the search was made Aug. 30, 1980, three days before Harrelson was arrested at Van Horn on the unrelated charges, during a telephone conversation between Chagra and Harrelson.

The newspaper reported Harrelson said on the tape that he expected to be charged in the killing of Wood. Chagra told reporters after the search that he, too, expected to be named in an indictment.

Tarrant said aboout the tape that "my understanding is that Chagra tapes ever conversation. They probably have 100 recordings with Harrelson. He (Chagra) was his (Harrelson's) lawyer."

Vickie's ex says he couldn't be child's father

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Vickie Daniel's ex-husband testified Friday he could not be the father of a child born to Mrs. Daniel in 1978 because he was sterile when she stayed at his home during her separation from former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

Larry Moore had testified Thursday that Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in Daniel's shooting death Jan. 19, had shared his bed on four occasions when his former wife left home after arguments with Daniel.

Attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Mrs. Daniel's attorney, asked Moore if he could say for sure he was not responsible for Mrs. Daniel's pregnancy.

"Yes, I can," Moore said, "because I have been sterile by surgery since September 1972."

Moore was on the witness stand for the second day in the child custody suit filed by Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph. She is seeking custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

Two children born during Mrs. Daniel's first marriage — Kimberly, 12, and Jonathan, 10 — are living with Moore.

Moore testified that Mrs. Daniel made five visits, some lasting four or five days, to his home during the first year of her marriage to Daniel. Moore said he learned on the fourth visit that Mrs. Daniel was pregnant.

Under questioning by Haynes, Moore testified that two other girlfriends and his sister lived at his house at various times during the period Mrs. Daniel was visiting. He said none was there at the same time as Mrs. Daniel, however.

Haynes asked Moore if Mrs. Daniel had objected to bringing her two children for visits because one of his girlfriends was 16 years old. Moore, 33, replied, "No, I don't remember any such argument."

Haynes pointed out that Moore had failed to make child custody payments for six months after his divorce settlement with Mrs. Daniel.

Asked if he recalled not making the payments, Moore replied, "I don't remember."

Moore, also testified he had no reason to believe Mrs. Daniel was not a fit mother. "She kept the kids clean and she fed and tended to them," he said.

Attorney Zeke Zbranek, representing Mrs. Murph, earlier asked Moore if he ever discussed Daniel's death with Mrs. Daniel.

"Yes, I asked her what the heck happened," Moore said. "She said, 'You'll never believe this, but I tripped and fell.'"

Mrs. Daniel testified earlier in the week she did not remember firing the shot that killed her husband.

Mrs. Daniel, free on $50,000 bond, has pleaded innocent in the case, claiming self-defense.

Parents struggling to find identity of miked-up twins

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies are trying to solve an identity crisis plaguing the parents of two blue-eyed blondes.

Not that Molly and MaryAnne La , identical 16-month-old twins, are worri about who they are. They know. But nobody else does, including the mother and father who took them to the sheriff's department for footprinting.

For the moment, the twins are Baby Girl A" and "Baby Girl B." Officers tried once Thursday and were expected to try again today to match up the prints to prints taken when the babies were born.

"I think we've got these babies backwards," Randa Lay recalls telling two of her other children severa months ago. "So we looked at them. And the more we looked the more we thought maybe we had."

To complicate matters, a young house guest recently removed a necklace worn by one of the girls to disinguish her from her sister.

Discovering no necklace the next morning, Mrs. Lay said, "I thought at first I had two MaryAnnes."

Mrs. Lay and her husband, Leland, a school teacher, tried to sort out the mess by studying spots on each baby's skin, varying personality traits and even the way the children slept. Nothing helped.

So it was off to the police station where the children were perched atop a crime lab table for footprinting.

It's important to figure out which child is which because "when they know I'm confused they either won't answer to either name or they'll answer to both," the rattled mother said.

Test-tube babies soon to be routine

HOUSTON (AP) — An Australian physician who directed the first natural birth of a test-tube baby predicts his "in vitro" fertilization and embryo transfer technique will be almost routine within five years.

The procedure should increase the chances for successful full-term pregnancies from 6 percent to 40 percent or more by 1986, Dr. Alex Lopata said Thursday during a lecture at the University of Texas Medical School.

On June 23, 1980, Lopata's team delivered a girl conceived through the method to a 24-year-old former nurse and her husband without performing a Caesarean section.

"She's now nearly nine months old, a beautiful baby and developing perfectly," he said. "Actually, she's ahead of most milestone marks for her age."

Lopata, a reproduction biology specialist, said his research group at the University of Melbourne is "satisified" with their laboratory conception technique.

"But we need to work a little harder on the exact way we replace the embryos, and now that we're re-implanting the eggs earlier than we had been doing I think our successes will grow," he said.

Lopata's team has implanted embryos in four other women. Three suffered miscarriages, but the other is having "a very normal pregnancy" and should give birth in June, he said.

Another Melbourne team recently announced two women are pregnant with twins conceived through the in vitro fertilization method used by 20 research groups in seven countries.

Lopata noted there have been fewer than 10 test-tube babies have been born since Drs. Patrick Steptoe and Robert Edwards delievered the world's first test-tube baby to a British couple on July 25, 1978.

For several years, Lopata said, infertility experts have said only women with damaged or missing fallopian tubes would be suitable candidates for in vitro fertilization and embryo transfer.

However, he said, the potential for the procedure " is much greater" among women with unexplained infertility problems as well as those who produce antibodies to their husband's sperm.

"In Austrailia, which has about 14 million people,, we estimate there are at least 60,000 women with some type of problem preventing them from normal pregnancies. That figures is close to 1 million or more in the United States," he said.

Atlanta police officers escort Gene Ferguson to a police van Friday at the Techwood Homes center in Atlanta. He was charged on a state statute for "possession of a deadly weapon during a public gathering." Armed patrols are organising in the area to protect children.

Two self-defense patrol members jailed in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Two gun-wielding men were arrested Friday by police who were on hand for the start of a housing project's self-defense patrol to protect youngsters against Atlanta's child killers.

Younger members of the patrol, who carried baseball bats, were not stopped but those carrying weapons were questioned by police. The two arrested were charged with possession of deadly weapons at a public gathering.

About 40 police officers, including several members of the police special weapons and tactics unit, met the self-defense patrol as it left a community center on the grounds of the Techwood Homes housing project.

Community activist Chimurenga Jenga, who was toting an M-1 carbine, struggled with officers as they tried to place him inside a police van. The second man arrested, identified as Gene Ferguson, was carrying a pistol.

Deputy Police Chief Eldrin Bell said the men were charged with violating a state statute which prohibits possession of deadly weapons during a public gathering.

Police Sgt. W. Jones said Jenga also was charged with obstruction of an officer. Both men were taken to the city jail, he said.

"They were adequately warned. We put them on notice," Bell said.

When a third armed man was confronted by police, he returned to the community center and later left without the weapon.

City officials tried to convince organizers at Techwood Homes to abandon the patrols, established because of the unsolved killings of 20 black children and the disappearances of two others.

The Ron Carter Patrols, named for a Black Panther who accidentally killed himself while cleaning his gun, consist of 16-to-21-year-olds carrying metal or wooden baseball bats who plan to use walkie-talkies to contact adults armed with guns.

When reporters were called inside the community center for a news conference, four handguns, an M-1 carbine and 13 black baseball bats were displayed on a table.

Israel Green, who heads the project's tenants association, called for national support of the patrol's right to carry arms.

"We cannot stop them (killers) by consulting psychics, by having seances, by prayer vigils or by lighting little candles or forms of distracting activity that is not directly connected to the problems we face," Green said in a statement. "We have to face these killers in the real world."

Earlier, Hall contended that 98 percent of the Techwood residents were opposed to the patrols and said they were organized by "rabble rousers from the outside."

Resident Mary Carter commented, "If the parents take their kids in at curfew (7 p.m. to 6 a.m. daily), it will be safer than people running around with baseball bats. There's enough violence going on and it might get worse."

Officials have called the patrols vigilante groups, a label Techwood officials reject.

Green and Jenga vowed they would "stop at nothing" to protect their children and go to jail if police interfered with the patrols.

Despite many speeches by Mayor Maynard Jackson and Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown proclaiming that "there is only one police department," the city said it had no plans to move immediately to stop the patrols. "We're just going to wait and see," said Dorothy Carr, a spokeswoman for Jackson.

Police Chief George Napper said he and other officers are not opposed to citizens' patrols but do object to the use of weapons.

Vets get Agent Orange information

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Information on possible hazards of Agent Orange exposure were explained to local veterans Friday as the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7208 presented a speaker and a video taped film on the subject.

"Right now there's not enough known about veterans' exposure to Agent Orange," Jerry Hummer, state service officer of the Waco regional office of the VFW, told a handful of people at the post early Friday morning.

He advised those believing they had been exposed to the defoliant to contact the nearest Veterans Administration Hospital and ask to be tested for the contaminant. "They're (the VA) required to give the (initial) examination," Hummer said.

Even though the VA currently only compensates exposed veterans for chloracne, an acne-like skin rash known to occur after Agent Orange exposure, Hummer suggested the tests for future compensatory proof.

In receiving compensation benefits, Hummer said, "the burden of proof lies on the complainant. If they (researchers) did prove that there is a disease present in the veteran due to exposure" the earlier tests would prove who was exposed.

"You don't have to prove anything at this point," Hummer advised the veterans. "They (the VA) have to give you an examination.

"Right now the residual effects are unknown," Hummer continued. "They (the VA) haven't allowed anything on what you can expect. There is a continuing research program going on now," he said. But, he added that "budget cuts in the medical field in the last administration and this administration" as well as cuts in veterans' benefits spending have held up research.

He went on to say the first areas affected in military budget cuts are the medical services and research. "They're (researchers) the ones that are going to be the scapegoats," he said.

The videotape, developed by the VA, was played throughout the day for interested persons, while Hummer answered questions.

The film reported that although Agent Orange and other pesticides seem to have harmful results now, "their use (in Vietnam) probably saved thousands of lives" by ridding jungles of foilage that would hide snipers.

"It is you, the Vietnam veteran, who has the biggest stake in the Agent Orange issue," according to the VA tape.

Bell's new rate delayed two weeks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A district judge Friday upheld a Public Utility Commission order setting telephone rates that are lower than Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. wanted but delayed the effective date of the rates by two weeks.

Bell attorneys said they would appeal to the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals here.

Bell had asked the court to block the rate order issued by the PUC in January and allow Bell to continue charging rates the telephone company has been using since November.

State District Judge Harley Clark denied the request, but then agreed to suspend his own ruling for two weeks, over the objections of PUC attorney Martha Terry.

"I don't find any authority for doing this," Ms. Terry said. "To deny the injunction and then turn around and give them a 'stay' ... it's the same horse, it just has a different name."

Bell attorney Robert Hearon said the company would use the time to gather materials and documents needed to appeal Clark's denial of the injunction.

Bell has been charging customers rates—that company Vice President Paul Roth said generate "about $3 million per month more" than would the PUC rates.

Bell's own rates would increase company revenue by $152 million a year. PUC decided in January that Bell is entitled to an increase of $114 million, and ordered the company to refund the difference to its customers.

Bell challenged the PUC rates in court, contending they were $38 million too low and would illegally compel Bell to absorb certain expenses rather than pass them on to its customers.

Elton John sues MCA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — MCA Records Inc. confirmed Friday that it is being sued in federal court for breach of contract by rock star Elton John in a dispute over a record album John recently delivered to the company.

"He's asking $1.3 million in actual damages and $10 million in punitive damages," said MCA attorney Robert Dudnick.

The suit was filed Thursday in U.S. District Court, he said.

MCA contends that the six-song album that John delivered to MCA recently doesn't meet the qualifications of an album under the contract because four of the cuts are performances of songs previously recorded for MCA, Dudnick said.

"He says that's allowed — we don't think so. So, we won't make the payment that's due — $1.33 million," Dudnick added.

One of the four songs in dispute was released as an album cut and three were released on the 12-inch extended play album called "The Thom Bell Sessions," Dudnick said.

"One seems to be a totally new performance and three are remixes or re-edits, my ears tell me," Dudnick said.

He said MCA would answer the suit in court Monday and hope for "a speedy judicial resolution."

Patrons foot trip to Israel

Eighty one-year-old shoe shine man Tommy Harris is being given a vacation to Jerusalem by a few of his customers at the barber shop of the Fort Worth Club where he has practiced his trade for 38 years.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "There's a song I've known all my life," said Tommy Harris, his eyes closing behind gold-rimmed glasses as if in prayer. "It goes, 'I want to walk in Jerusalem just like John.'

"Now I'll get to. And I'll get to wash my hands in the River Jordan."

A lot of people share Harris' desire to see the Holy Land. The trip of an 81-year-old shoeshine man wouldn't be remarkable but for the circumstances. It's like a blessing, Harris said, of a guardian angel — actually, about 20 of them.

One day last month Harris was plying his trade, as he has for 38 years, in the barbershop of the Fort Worth Club. In walked investment broker Bill Harvey, a longtime customer. But he didn't want a shine.

"He said, 'Tommy, if we send you to Jerusalem, will you go?'" Harris recalled.

Sure he would. Harvey got the names of other loyal patrons, then sent them letters asking them to contribute to the trip fund. Enough money was raised that when Harris leaves Monday, he'll take along his wife, C.V.

Harvey was out of town this week, but his secretary said the gift came about through a combination of generosity and good timing.

"Mr. Harvey had just heard Tommy mention, like he had many times, that he'd like to go to the Holy Land," she said. "The very next day at the office we got a brochure advertising a trip led by (evangelist) Leighton Ford."

Harris will be traveling with a large group, but in Jerusalem he'll get special attention. Another customer, Louis H. Barnett, gave Harris two letters of introduction to Israeli officials.

Barnett said he knows the officials because his plastics company does business in Israel. One letter is to Teddy Kollek, mayor of Jerusalem, asking him to greet Harris.

Meeting the mayor probably won't awe Harris. He's had dinner at the White House with the president of the United States.

"Before he was president, Mr. Lyndon B. Johnson would come up here when he was in Fort Worth and I would shine his shoes," Harris said. "When he got to be president, he told everyone in the shop to come see him.

"I told him I just might come. I don't know if he believed me, but two years after he got in there, we went to Washington. I told the (White House) guards to tell Mr. Johnson that Tommy Harris from Fort Worth was here, and when he said to send me in, they sure were surprised."

"Some people don't think much of shining shoes, but I like it," he said. "I'm not going to give it up because I don't feel like I could live long if I couldn't work. And I've done good in it. Bought three or four places, five or six cars."

12,000 coal miners stay off jobs

By The Associated Press

More than 12,000 coal miners ignored the pleas of union leaders and stayed off the job Friday, as wildcat strikes idled soft coal operations in at least six states in anticipation of a nationwide work stoppage by 160,000 United Mine Workers next week.

"Once the talks broke down in Washington everybody just walked off the job," said Earl Ellis, a miner in Boone county, W.Va. "They said they weren't coming back until August."

Although only 50 miners stayed away from work in Virginia, state police said they were boosting the number of troopers in the coalfields.

"We're going to see that things are peaceful," said Capt. W.S. Hucklin, who declined to be specific about the number of troopers involved. "You don't know what's going to happen. You never know. We hope it will be peaceful."

Government officials in coal-producing states girded for the nationwide strike, now considered a virtual certainty.

In West Virginia, Gov. Jay Rockefeller estimated Friday that a strike would cost the state $10 million a month in tax revenues, with a far greater effect on the overall economy.

"West Virginia does not want a strike," Rockefeller said. "West Virginia does not need a strike."

The wildcat work stoppages began after collapse of contract talks Tuesday in Washington and continued despite pleas from some union officials for workers to return to the mines.

UMW President Sam Church said at a Washington news conference Friday that he had failed in his attempt to revive contract talks with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining agent.

Church warned the impending strike could be a long one, appealing to the coal operators to return to the bargaining table and saying he would continue efforts aimed ata resumpton of the talks.

But B.R. Brown, chairman of the BOAC negotiating committee, said the industry would resume talks only "when the UMW indicates its willingness to modify its demands."

Even if an agreement were reached before the current contract expires March 27, UMW procedures for ratification by the rank-and-file require 10 days. The UMW has a strong no-contract, no-work tradition.

Some 2,000 miners were reported off the job Friday in West Virginia, 2,300 in Alabama, 1,100 in Kentucky and 550 in Illinois. Most were were, apparently protesting the stalled contract talks.

In Pennsylvania about 6,000 miners were off the job, many of them to protest the disciplinary suspension of workers at a U.S. Steel mine. Some 2,300 of the miners were defying a federal judge's back-to-work order covering five mines.

Most of Virginia's miners were back at work Friday, with only 50 reported off the job. And in Ohio, all UMW members were apparently at work, said UMW District 6 President Ed Bell.

"I don't know of any strikes," Bell said. "We got everybody working today."

At least one company said it wanted to sidestep the stalled talks by negotiating directly with the union, but UMW officials said prospects for separate talks were poor.

North American Coal Co., based in Cleveland, said it hoped to avoid a lengthy strike at its Ohio and Pennsylvania mines, which employ 5,000 miners. UMW negotiator Tommy Gaston said he thought it unlikely that the union would agree to separate bargaining.

Despite their appeals for members to return to work, some UMW officials were not optimistic about ending the wildcat strikes.

"We've got problems," said Jim Davis, a UMW District 17 representative in West Virginia's Boone County.

Tugboat strike continues

SEATTLE (AP) — Ports in Puget Sound and Alaska remained virtually closed Friday as a strike against tugboat owners pushed into its fourth day with no resumption of negotiations in sight.

The strike by about 1,000 members of the Inlandboatmen's Union of the Pacific against tugboat owners in Washington state and Alaska was beginning to force diversions of some shipping away from the affected ports, one port official said.

"At this time," Jerry Russel, president of the Northwest Towboat Association, said Friday, "we have no more talks scheduled.

"I can't say anything has changed, either. Right now, we're in a stalemate. But we're hopeful."

Federal mediator Ben Youtsey said he doubted that either side was ready for serious bargaining, adding, "It just isn't the proper time."

The contract between the union and the towboat association expired on Feb. 1. On March 9, the union members authorized a strike which carried a deadline of Tuesday.

The association says it is offering raises of 30 percent over three years. The union has said the dispute centers on wages, sick leave, vacations and workmen's compensation.

Barry Binskey, union strike coordinator, said he could not estimate the average hourly wage for striking workers.

Richard Smith, executive director of the Port of Tacoma, on Friday said his port will face a severe revenue crunch if the strike lasts much longer.

Fund is growing for woman allergic to nearly al things

BRISTOL, England (AP) — British television viewers have responded generously to the plight of Sheila Rossall, the Englishwoman allergic to nearly everything.

The 31-year-old former pop singer was flown to Dallas last month for three months' treatment at the Brookhaven Medical Center in a bid to save her life.

When the British Broadcasting Corp. showed a program about Miss Rossall's plight, viewers sent in nearly 7,000 pounds ($16,100) to help offset her expenses. It adds to an earlier fund of 8,000 pounds ($18,400) set up by friends.

Sheila suffers from "total allergy syndrome," a rare condition in which she is affected by chemicals connected with 20th century life. Doctors at Brookhaven, equipped with space-age isolation and filtration equipment, say Miss Rossall is making progress, but has shown no dramatic improvement since her admission.

She has been bedridden for three years and her weight had fallen to 51 pounds when she arrived in Dallas.

A BBC spokesman said: "Money from viewers has poured in. We are told that Sheila is responding well to treatment and has put on three pounds at the center."

Politician admits to adultery

LONDON (AP) — The Conservative politician who cast the first stone at a distinguished devotee of kiddie porn has confessed to adultery — and made his confession voluntarily at a news conference he called.

Geoffrey Dickens, who identified a former British ambassador to Canada, Sir Peter Hayman, as the retired civil servant mentioned in a child pornography case last week, told startled reporters Thursday he had left his wife, by whom he has two sons, and is living with the 43-year-old operator of a nursing home.

"I have come into the public eye beyond all expectation," said the portly, 49-year-old member of the House of Commons, "and as such I have a skeleton in the cupboard, and I have felt it was best to be honest. Some time ago, I left home to live with Mrs. Maureen Knight."

Mrs. Knight, a 43-year-old blonde divorcee who has two children, was at his side. Later she told an interviewer: "I am madly and ecstatically in love with him. We are very, very happy."

Dickens on Sunday accused the Conservative government of a cover-up because it did not prosecute the retired diplomat who was mentioned but not identified at the trial last week of the chairman of the Paedophile Information Exchange, an organization advocating legalization of sexual relations between adults and children.

Contending that the mystery man's involvement made him "a tremendous security risk...and open to blackmail," Dickens demanded that the government make his identity public. When it didn't, he identified him in the House of Commons, where parliamentary privilege protected him from being sued, as Hayman, 66, a veteran civil servant who retired seven years ago.

The government said Hayman's secret sex life had been investigated fully and he had been cautioned but would not be prosecuted. It said security had not been endangered.

Ex-hostage says Iran still 'romantic' place

NEW YORK (AP) — Barry Rosen, returning to his studies at Columbia University after being a hostage in Iran for more than a year, says his doctoral dissertation will be about a "romantic" place — Iran.

He said Thursday he would write about the history of the Iran from 1977 to 1980, including the story of the Islamic republic that held him captive for 444 days.

"The situation was agony, personal agony for me, but I have to look beyond that," he said. "Everyone has a niche in life, and this is mine."

Thus, he said, it was "without bitterness" that he would study Iran. He said it remained in his mind a "romantic" place.

Rosen, 36, was accompanied by his wife, Barbara, when Columbia President Michael I. Sovern announced he would be the first beneficiary of the Presidential Fellowship program, established to encourage young scholars at Columbia.

David Rout of Logan County, Okla., waits patiently as Julie Brooks, an employee of the Oklahoma City Internal Revenue Service office, counts Rout's tax payment — $42,000 in $1 bills. The IRS said Rout and his brother, who lives in Garden Grove, Calif., owed the money from their father's estate. Money already counted is on a table at the right rear.

Angry taxpayer pays in cash

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A farmer who says the Internal Revenue Service was "underhanded" in the way it assessed taxes against his farm staged a paper protest Friday — paying the $42,000 tab in $1 bills.

"I wanted to pay in pennies, but the Federal Reserve Bank told me they didn't have enough in Oklahoma City," said David Rout of Logan County.

Local IRS officials estimated it would take three cashiers four to six hours to count the money.

Rout had two armed guards accompany him and the four large money sacks crammed with cash, then stood patiently at a cashier's window while the tedious counting went on.

Rout said the IRS notified him just last week that his farm, which the IRS included as part of his father's estate, was subject to seizure if a 1973 estate tax bill was not paid.

"If I had been notified in 1973, I might have paid it," he said.

He also contends the farm, given to him several years before his father's death, is not part of the estate.

"I thought what they did was underhanded, so I decided to pay in currency," he said.

Rout said the state had tried to assess him $13,000 in estate taxes in 1976, but he appealed the ruling to the Oklahoma Tax Commission and won.

IRS spokesman Bob Duerbrouck said federal regulations prevent him from commenting on Rout's tax case.

But another IRS employee agreed that Rout's method of payment was unusual.

"It sure doesn't happen every day."

East, West Germans swap spies

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany announced Friday it has swapped an undisclosed number of prisoners with East Germany in a deal that included Christel Guillaume, convicted of treason in West Germany's most sensational spy scandal.

The Guillaume affair forced the resignation of Chancellor Willy Brandt in 1974. Brandt stepped down two weeks after it was disclosed that Mrs. Guillaume and her husband Guenther, a close aide to Brandt, had been unmasked as spies for Communist East Germany.

The mild-mannered, pudgy Guillaume is serving a 13-year prison term. He and his wife, who was sentenced to eight years for ferrying documents from her husband to East Germans, were sentenced in December 1975.

The prisoner exchange was made "for humanitarian reasons," government spokesman Kurt Becker told reporters. He did not elaborate.

Eighteen people were involved in the exchange, which took place last Thursday, sources close to the government said.

Becker refused to say how many had been exchanged. Mrs. Guillaume was the "only well-known person" involved in the swap, he said. She was the only person identified.

In 1978, Guillaume was reported to be suffering from a kidney ailment and there were press reports that he might be involved in an exchange. Becker said the question of a premature release of Guillaume "is not up for debate."

During the past decade, the West Germans have discreetly attempted to get prisoners released from East German jails, either through exchanges or negotiations involving financial payment.

Guillaume had been found guilty of "treason of the highest order" by working two decades for the East German ministry for state security.

He entered West Germany in 1956 by faking an "escape" from East Germany and headed a spy ring in Frankfurt for several years until he applied for a job in the chancellery.

He served in Brandt's chancellery for more than four years and after exhibiting talents for organization and liaison work, became Brandt's personal aide for labor union affairs and relations with the Social Democratic Party.

After Guillaumes spy work was discovered, Brandt stepped down, saying he had been negligent by allowing a Communist agent to penetrate his top staff.

The affair was a personal embarrassment for Brandt, who won the Nobel for shepherding the series of treaties normalizing Bonn's relations with the Communist Bloc.

The scandal forced a parliamentary investigation and widespread security checks for government officials.

According to testimony at Guillaume's trial, the East Germans "automatically" fed the information to the KGB, the Soviet Secret Service, and Guillaume thereby "posed the danger of causing severe damage to the Federal Republic of Germany and the entire Western defense alliance."

Lee runs win streak to five

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland Lee stretched its winning string to five in a row with a 16-3 kayo of Pecos Friday at Lee Field and Coach Ernie Johnson would like to make it seven going into Tuesday's District 5-5A opener against Odessa High. But that will take some doing. The Rebels travel to Lubbock today to play Coronado in a doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. and the Mustangs may be about as hot right now as the Rebels.

After losing to Lee in their season's opener, Coronado has reeled off seven straight wins.

"I'll start Randy Pepper and with David Corrales and Brian Erxleben starting or working long relief. We'll also have Bill Dern for relief and if we get into a short relief situation, I can go to Alan Koonce," Johnson planned ahead. "But with Ronnie Smedley still bothered by a sore shoulder, we are hurting a little bit for pitching."

"We may need a lot of runs to stay with them, but if we can stay with them until we get into a short relief situation, then..."

WHILE THE Rebs are in Lubbock, Midland High will be seeking to square its record at 5-5 going into its District opener next Tuesday against Permian in Odessa when the Bulldogs travel to Pecos for a 2 p.m. game today.

Lee's win over Pecos raised the Rebels' record to 6-4 for the season and was the second time this week they beat the Eagles and both times the 10-run rule was imposed. This one ended after 4½ innings.

Randy Velarde got the win with an eight-hitter, six coming in the three-run Pecos fourth and three were on successive bunt singles. But by then, the outcome was out of reach. Lee scored five times in each of the first two innings and then finished off the Eagles with a six-run fourth.

THREE WALKS, a couple of errors, singles by Smedley and Dern followed by Ricky Wright's double did the damage against Pecos starter Sam Lujan. Lujan was to suffer through the second inning outburst as well, giving up a walk to Barry Corley to open the frame, a run-scoring single to Velarde, another walk to Smedley with Alan Koonce, Dern and Kevin Bradshaw supplying run-scoring hits to make it 10-0.

Velarde experienced his only difficulty in the fourth. He went into the frame working on a one-hitter on the cold, windy day, but Jimmy Galindo led off with a double and then Jaime Rodriquez, Ray Morales and Neil James dropped base hit bunts to bring in one run and leave the bases loaded. A Bobby Rayos single and a walk to Tim Windham forced in the final two runs.

Midland got to Ray Morales for the six runs in the fourth, all unearned, using a walk, two errors, Bradshaw's second single and doubles by David Corrales and David Rivas to do the damage.

Dern wound up with three rib while Corrales, Wright and Bradshaw had two each.

Velarde struck out four and walked only two.

Mike Jones sinks Jayhawks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Even though he was not the player who was supposed to get the shot, backup forward Mike Jones said he didn't hesitate to loop in a 22-foot jumper that gave Wichita State a 66-65 upset victory over Kansas in the NCAA's Midwest Regional basketball tournament Friday night.

Wichita State, working out of a split offense, hoped to get the ball inside to one of its big forwards or close in to a guard.

"But when they reversed to me, I knew I had to let it go," Jones said. "I looked forward to taking it."

FOLLOWING THE game, Coach Gene Smithson led his team in a brief victory stroll around the court, and patted Jones on the shoulder.

"I like Mike Jones," the coach said. "He parted the twine when it counted."

Kansas Coach Ted Owens said his team should have had one more chance to win it.

He said one of his players was fouled flagrantly as Kansas tried to toss the ball inbounds with two seconds left.

"I think 30,000 people knew it was a foul — except the three who did not call it," Owens said.

"I'd like to be kind about it, but it was very obviously a foul."

JONES, WHO averaged four points a game for the regular season, finished the night with eight points — four of them in the final minute of play — to send Wichita State into Sunday's regional championship game against the winner of Friday night's Louisiana State-Arkansas nightcap.

Wichita State, a four-point underdog, blew a five-point lead five minutes into the second half, rallied to go up 60-59 with six minutes to play, then fell behind 65-62 with 2:07 left in the game.

Kansas guard Darnell Valentine missed the chance to increase Kansas' lead when he missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw opportunity with 56 seconds left.

Wichita State brought the ball downcourt and Jones lofted a 22-footer to put the Shockers within a point.

Valentine again had a chance to give his team the lead when he took an inbounds pass behind the Shockers defense that left him wide open 10 feet from the basket. However, he missed the layup.

WICHITA STATE forward Antoine Carr recovered the loose ball, flipped it to teammate Randy Smithson, who put his team into a delay game with 24 seconds left on the clock.

Wichita State killed all but the final two seconds, then Jones hit his game-winning 20-footer.

St. Joseph's keeps rolling

Boston College spread fails to hold three-point lead

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Bryan Warrick hit two foul shots with 21 seconds to play, and St. Joseph's (Pa.) broke open Boston College's slowdown offense Friday night for a 42-21 victory in the semifinals of the NCAA Mideast regional basketball tournament.

With four minutes to play and a three-point lead, 37-34, Boston College went into a spread offense that resulted in three steals, three easy baskets and an eventual defeat at the hands of upset-minded St. Joseph's.

"They tried to fast-break at every opportunity," Hawks Coach Jim Lynam said of the Boston College offense, "but when they get into the half court, they have the patience. It was important that our players understood how they play the game."

"We were guarding BC today," Warrick said. "They just didn't want to shoot the ball."

Warrick said that he felt confident as he went to the line for the game-winning free throws following two consecutive Boston College timeouts. "Coach told me not to worry," Warrick said. "Just concentrate."

Boston College Coach Tom Davis, whose Eagles gave the regional championship round by beating Ball State and Wake Forest in the sub-regionals, said his team choked.

"The pressure got to us," Davis said. "I don't know why. I didn't want to hold the ball, but we just didn't shoot."

St. Joseph's advanced to Sunday's regional finals against the winner of Friday night's second game between Indiana and Alabama-Birmingham.

With St. Joseph's trailing 41-40, Warrick was fouled by Martin Clark, Boston College's freshman forward. Warrick's first foul shot tied the score, and his second, which bounced around the rim and finally went through, sent St. Joseph's one step closer to its second Final Four appearance in 20 years.

Warrick scored 20 points to pace the Hawks. John Bagley led Boston College with 11, including a pair of foul shots with 46 seconds left that put the Eagles up 41-40.

Bagley missed an eight-foot jumper with 10 seconds remaining that could have won the game for Boston College, and freshman center Jay Murphy missed the followup.

In the scramble for the rebound, St. Joseph's John Smith was fouled by Rich Shrigley. However, Smith missed the first shot of the one-and-one with five seconds left. Boston College had one last chance.

Guard Dwan Chandler took Murphy's pass just past midcourt, but he landed straddling the line and the Hawks retained possession on the over-and-back violation.

Boston College, using a very deliberate style of play, led by five, 31-26, after a seven-point run with 10:04 to play.

St. Joseph's, however, battled back slowly, and Warrick got the Hawks within one, 35-34, with a steal and a layup with 3:19 to play.

After a pair of foul shots by Murphy gave Boston College a 37-34 lead, Hawks center Tony Costner and Warrick each hit layins to put the Hawks up 38-37 with 1:38 left.

Bagley and Lonnie McFarlan of St. Joseph's then traded baskets, before Bagley's two foul shots gave the Eagles, 23-7, their last lead of the game.

St. Joseph's, 25-7, advanced to the regional chapionships with a 49-48 victory over top-ranked DePaul in the sub-regionals. The Hawks have not appeared in the Final Four since 1961, but their appearance does not show in the record books. The Hawks were later disqualified from the tourney because of NCAA rules violations regarding the ineligibility of a player.

LSU Tigers dominate Hogs, 72-56

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Led by the early scoring of center Greg Cook and late points by guard Ethan Martin, Louisiana State took a commanding first half lead and continued to roll, dominating Arkansas 72-56 in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament Friday night.

No. 4 LSU, meets Wichita State Sunday for the regional championship and a trip to the Final Four in Philadelphia. Wichita State eked out a 66-65 victory over cross-state rival Kansas in Friday's opener.

LSU is the highest-ranked team left in the NCAA playoffs after a rash of early upsets. Arkansas was ranked 20th and was only one of three teams which had beaten LSU this season.

Cook got 10 first-half points to lead LSU to a 34-18 advantage at intermission. He played under six minutes in the second half due to foul trouble and finished with 12 points.

Martin got two points in the first half and finished with 16. The 5-foot-10 guard also had five assists and two steals as LSU was building up its early lead.

Forward Rudy Macklin had 15 points and 10 rebounds for LSU.

Arkansas had three players in double figures, led by center Scott Hastings and guard Darrell Walker with 12 apiece. Guard U.S. Reed, whose 49-foot heave at the buzzer gave Arkansas a victory over defending national champion Louisville last week, got 10 points.

Arkansas finished 24-8. LSU, the Southeastern Conference champion, advanced with a 30-3 mark.

Florida Southern wins

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — John Ebeling scored nine of his game-high 24 points at the start of the second half Friday as Florida Southern held off California Poly-San Luis Obispo, 54-51, in the semifinals of the NCAA Division II basketball championship.

Mount St. Mary's of Emmitsburg, Md., played the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay in the other late semifinal game for the right to advance to today's championship at the Springfield Civic Center.

Ebeling, a 6-foot-8 center, hit a short jumper with 6:44 to play to snap a 41-41 tie and put the Moccasins, now 23-8, ahead to stay.

Mike Hayes followed with four free throws and Clyde Roberson scored a bucket to give Florida Southern a 49-41 edge with 2:54 to play.

But the Mustangs, who finished their season at 23-8, fought back to within five points, 52-47, with 45 seconds to play. They could get no closer than three points by the end of the game.

Indiana's late fireworks good for Mideast finals

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — All-American Isiah Thomas scored 27 points and muscleman Ray Tolbert added some late fireworks that powered Indiana to an 87-72 victory over Alabama-Birmingham Friday night in the Mideast Regional semifinals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Indiana will face St. Joseph's (Pa.) Sunday for the Mideast title. St. Joseph's defeated Boston College 42-41 in Friday night's other semifinal.

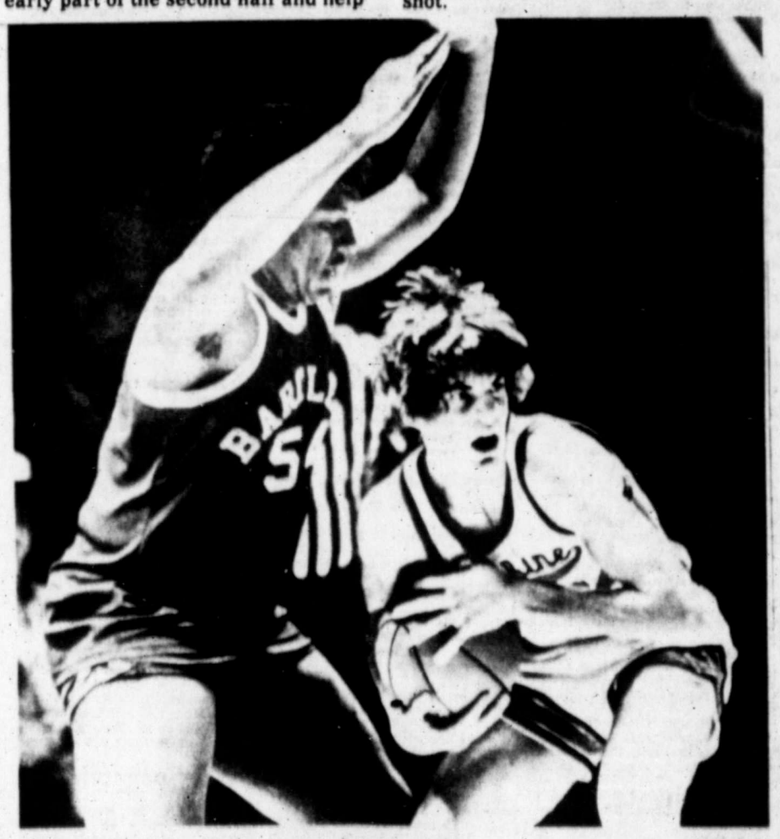
Thomas hit eight free throws in the final 2:46 and added a breakaway layup with 39 seconds to play, and the Hoosiers were one step closer to their fourth NCAA title. Randy Wittman added a career-high 20 points for Indiana.

Wittman scored four points to help Indiana outscore UAB 12-4 in the early part of the second half and help the Hoosiers break away from a 42-37 halftime lead.

Alabama-Birmingham had pulled within three points when Craig Lane scored the first basket of the second half, but over the next 4:46, Indiana opened an 11-point lead, 54-43, by scoring 12 of the next 14 points. Wittman had a pair of jump shots in that stretch and Jim Thomas, coming off the bench, also scored four points.

Tolbert, a 6-foot-9, 225-pound center, scored nine straight points for the Hoosiers, including three stuff shots, one of them part of a three-point play that gave Indiana a 73-60 lead with 6:34 left. Tolbert scored 17 points for the night.

Then, the All-American Thomas took over. Forced to foul, the Blazers sent Thomas to the line four times in the final 2:46, and he hit every foul shot.



Mitch Mitchell of Gladewater Sabine clutches the ball in fear as he thinks what Bartlett's Reginald Cobb (54) might do to him in a state Class AA semifinal contest Friday in Austin.

Dunbar, Roosevelt are both ushered from state playoffs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Michael Jaco swished a free throw with three seconds remaining in overtime Friday night as Port Arthur Lincoln edged Fort Worth Dunbar 60-59 in the Class 5A semifinals at the state schoolboy basketball tournament.

It was the second one-point victory in the 5A semifinals as Reggie Simmons drove nearly the length of the court and scored on a bank shot with 12 seconds left in the game to give San Antonio Marshall a 74-73 triumph over favored Dallas Roosevelt.

Earlier, in the class 2A semifinals unbeaten Gladewater Sabine defeated Bartlett 65-51 to set up a championship match with Shallowater, a 57-54 winner over Archer City.

LINCOLN, MAKING its first appearance in the state tournament, erased a 37-30 Dunbar halftime lead nd went aead by eight points about three minutes deep in the final period. Dunbar rallied to tie the game at 55-55 in just over two minutes and regulation play ended 59-59 as Mecheal Jackson missed a shot from the corner at the buzzer.

Lincoln's 6-foot-8 Leonard Allen controlled the tip in the three-minute overtime and Lincoln, using two timeouts, stalled until Jaco leaped high for a jumper from the left side of the basket.

Jaco missed the shot but was fouled by Zol Singleton with three seconds left. With the Dunbar spectators screaming, Jaco missed his first free throw but the second one went through without touching the rim.

Robert Hughes Jr, the Dunbar coaches son, missed a desperation heave at the final buzzer.

Jaco, a 6-1 senior led all scores with 27 points. Willie Ashley had 25 points for Dunbar and 15 rebounds and Hughes scored 15.

Dallas Roosevelt — big, quick and deep in reserves — seemed to have clinched the game in the third quarter as it took a 63-55 lead on four field goals by Kent Tillman, who finished with a team-high 20 points but fouled out with three minutes to play.

Marshall tied the game 69-69 on Vince Vittatoe's two free throws with 3 minnutes 7 seconds to play. The 6-4 senior scored 23 points and had 23 rebounds.

MARSHALL TOOK a 71-69 lead — its first since the first quarter — with 2:22 remaining when George Rodriguez popped in a 10-footer.

Roosevelt threw the ball away, and Marshall ran a minute off the clock, but Carl Wright blocked a shot by Simmons and tied the game on a shot with 58 seconds to go.

Marshall lost the ball, and Wright scored again to put Roosevelt up 73-71 with 40 seconds left. Vittatoe was fouled and made one of two free throws to narrow the margin to one.

With only 18 seconds left, Reginald Martin of Roosevelt missed two free throws that could have clinched a victory for the Mustangs.

Six seconds later Simmons hit the game winning layup.

Martin missed a tip-in at the buzzer after an outside hit the rim and fell off.

In addition to winning the game, Marshall's Vince Mery had the most spectacular play of the game as he escaped a full-court press with a behind-the-back dribble, then zipped a 15-foot behind-the-back pass to Chris Nowak for a first half goal.

Marshall's victory broke the state tournament domination Dallas teams had held over San Antonio teams, which had not defeated a Dallas team here since 1949.

Sabine, now 33-0, were led by 6-6 junior Johnny Mumphrey's 17 points and 10 rebounds. The defending 2A champions also ran up a 53-34 rebounding edge.

Shallowater used near-perfect shooting by Robert Sanders and perfect shooting by muscular Willie Ray Johnson to edge Archer City, which lost in the semifinals for the second year in a row.

Sabine led Bartlett by a narrow 26-24 margin at halftime, but rode its powerful front line — 6-10 Greg Grissom, Mumphrey, and 6-4 Mark Johnson — to a 44-37 edge after the third period. Johnson and Mumphrey were all-tournament picks last year.

Grissom, a senior, is a transfer from Big Sandy, where his father was basketball coach last year. Big Sandy is in the same district as Sabine. The massive postman had 11 rebounds, and Johnson added 10.

BARTLETT, A 69-68 loser to Sabine in last year's final, was topped by Charles Smith's 21 points. Smith was hobbled by a leg injury suffered late in the first quarter when he stumbled after hitting a 17-footer.

The Archer City Wildcats and Shallowater Mustangs battled throughout the game as the Wildcats' 6-0 Darryn Shearmire and Mustangs' 6-2 Robert Sanders traded impressive baskets. Both had 17 points at the half and finished with 29. Both wore No. 31 and showed good inside moves and outside shooting touches.

Sanders hit 10 of 13 field goal attempts. Shallowater pulled away late in the game when Johnson, a 6-5 senior, took charge inside. He scored six of Shallowater's last eight points in the closing minutes as the Mustangs turned a 50-49 deficit into the 57-54 win.

Johnson, with 18 points, was perfect from the field, hitting all eight shots. He also took game honors with 10 rebounds.

All finals are set for today.

Arkansas flips Baylor, 11-3

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Scott Tabor scattered six hits and Arkansas scored six runs in the third inning Friday to rip Baylor 11-3 in a Southwest Conference baseball game.

Arkansas evened its conference record at 2-2 and raised its overall mark to 17-8. Baylor is 1-3 in the league and 10-8 overall.

Tabor allowed one earned run and struck out six as he raised his record to 5-1. Jerry Arnold, 1-3, took the loss.

Todd Zacher, Reggie Thomas and Chris Shaddy each had three hits for the Razorbacks and Zacher and Thomas each drove in two runs.

Arkansas had seven hits in the third, including five infield singles.

Billy Dees drove in the first run with a fly ball. Then Thomas and Marty Rogers brought in runs with infield hits.

Bases loaded walks to Dave McClure and Zacher gave the Razorbacks a 7-0 lead. Keith Longoria capped the inning with a run-scoring infield single.

Rice defeats Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Pitcher Matt Williams struck out 12 Friday and designated hitter Mike Horn led a five-run explosion in the 9th with a two-run double as Rice defeated Houston 8-3 in Southwest Conference baseball action.

Rice, now 15-6 for the year and 2-2 in the SWC, led 3-2 after eight innings. But Horn's blast to right field triggered a rally that put the game away for the Owls.

Williams got the win for Rice and Jeff Achilles drew the loss for Houston, which fell to 2-2 in the SWC and 13-11 for the season.

Ursinus falls, 63-61

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Ed Jachim poured in a game-high 22 points, including a pair of crucial free throws with 15 seconds left, to lift Potsdam State over Ursinus 63-61 in a NCAA Division III semifinal basketball contest.

Potsdam State, which also got 20 points from Derrick Rowland, advanced to the finals with a 29-2 mark. The winners will meet the victor in Friday's other semifinal, between Otterbein and Augustana, Ill., for the title Saturday night.

Ursinus, which got 18 points from Tom Broderick and 14 from Kevin McCormick, exited the tournament with a 22-8 record.

Lopez gets LPGA lead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nancy Lopez-Melton, shooting for her second straight victory, fired an even-par 72 in high winds Friday to take the second-round lead in the $200,000 Desert Inn Pro-Am women's golf tournament.

Lopez-Melton, who won the Arizona Copper Classic in Tucson two weeks ago, had a 6-under-par 139 after playing 36 holes. Lopez-Melton took last week off as Patty Hayes captured the Sun City Classic.

Veteran Judy Rankin, who also had a 72 Friday, was two strokes off the pace halfway through the Ladies Professional Golf Association event. Alone in third place was JoAnn Washam, who had a second-round 74 after a 68 on Thursday, giving her a 142 total.

JoAnne Carner, who had been tied for second with Washam behind Lopez-Melton after the opening round, struggled to a second-round 79 and was well back in the field at 147.

Winds gusting to 40 miles-per-hour hampered the golfers.

Leonard Porter, a 28-year-old member of the Glen Cowboys, takes a toss in the softball throw at Memorial Stadium Friday during Midland's Special Olympics competition.

Special Olympics is big hit

The annual spring track and field meet for local Special Olympics competition, co-sponsored by the Midland Independent School District and the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, was held Friday at Memorial Stadium.

Terri Willingham of Jane Long won the girls individual trophy and was followed by Delicia King of Bonham, Daria Day of Fannin and Pat Mosley of Lee.

Bonham's Grady Henderson won the boys individual trophy and was followed by Leaytia Jackson of Jane Long, R.L. Wallace of Alamo and Bradley Wortham of Lee Freshman.

Midland Lee won the team trophy and were followed in order by the Jane Long Super Stars, Fannin, Houston, Jane Long Warriors, Alamo, CLEW, Bonahm, Carver and Lee Freshman. Participating in the Special Olympic Games for the first time were Bowie Early Childhood, Special Education classes and three wheelchair teams.

Opening ceremonies began with the athletes' parade before the Pledge of Allegience was led by Fannin's Chelle Dumas, one of the athletes. Jane Long's Frankie Chambers, another athlete, gave the Special Olympics motto. The first race was kicked off by Ed Runyan, president of the MISD school board. Marion Fisher, executive director of the MARC, served as MC for the event.

MARC head coach for the Special Olympics in Midland is Dewey Wilson. Sue Beasley is chairman of the MARC Texas Special Olympic Committee and Amy Dean served as chairman for the local meet.

School teams were sponsored by Stadium Sports, R.J.'s Bar-B-Q, Southside Lions, Tall City Office Supply, Levi Strauss, Tom's Tree House, Golden Life Spa, Upstairs-Downstaris and the Cerebral Palsy Center.

Breakfast and lunch were served on the field by Borden's, Der Weinerschnitzel, Rainbow Bread, Furr's, Frito-Lay, Jack Gilly, Corley Paper, Albertson's, Imperial Produce, M System, Safeway, Coca-Cola and Whataburger. Food chairman was Donna Dumas.

Jaeckel tames TPC winds

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Barry Jaeckel took the lead, Jack Nicklaus moved into contention and Tom Watson fell victim to the howling winds of Sawgrass Friday in the second round of the rich Tournament Players Championship.

Jaeckel, winner of one tournament in seven years of PGA Tour activity, birdied the last hole to complete a 2-under-par 70 that gave him sole control of the lead in the annual championship of golf's touring pros at 139.

THAT'S FIVE strokes under par for two trips through the Sawgrass wind tunnel that severely tested the patience and skills of golf's greatest players.

Nicklaus was able to survive the trials and tribulations of the fickle, swirling, shifting winds with a solid 68 that vaulted him past 54 players and into a contending position at 143, four strokes back with 36 holes to play.

"My objective for the day," said Nicklaus, who had opened with a 75, "was to get back in the golf tournament. I knew if I could get back to par I'd be in good shape."

He was one shot better than that.

But Watson, golf's most proficient performer over the past four seasons, was saddled with his worst score in five years, a fat 80 that included three "7s." That gave him a a two-round total of 152, one stroke over the cutoff figure required to qualify for the last two rounds of the $440,000 event that offers $72,000 to the winner.

It was the first time since the 1979 U.S. Open that Watson had missed the cut.

HE DROVE into an unplayable position for one of the "7s," took four to reach the green on another and drove out of bounds on the third.

But he was not alone in his troubles. David Graham, a former PGA champion and winner at Phoenix earlier this season, took an 80 and had a 162 total. Lon Hinkle, twice a runner-up this year, shot 81-167.

South African Gary Player almost missed the cut at 75-154.

And the co-leaders from the first round, each had varied difficulties. Mike Morley bogeyed his first five holes and shot 77. He was at 145. Dave Eichelberger required 76 shots to get around and was at 144.

Even the leader, Jaeckel, did not escape completely untouched.

Immediately after the 18th hole birdie that put him in the lead, he was fined $200 for slow play by officials of the Tour's field staff.

"I feel like I've been in a prize fight," the weary, obviously miffed Jaeckel said.

"I don't mean to be a pill about it, but I'm tired and I just got slapped with a traffic ticket and it's a little tough."

One shot off his pace at 140 were Danny Edwards, a slightly built 150 pounder who was rocked and buffeted by the 40-45 mph winds, and Dan Halldorson. Edwards had a remarkable, no-bogey 68 and Halldorson shot a second consecutive 70.

"I've played in some pretty tough conditions, growing up in Canada," Halldorson said, "but never anything like this."

Jury returns trial verdict in favor of Frank Kush

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A jury found in favor of former Arizona State University football Coach Frank Kush Friday in the first phase of a $2.2 million civil suit filed by ex-Sun Devil punter Kevin Rutledge.

The Maricopa County Superior Court jury of six women and two men had deliberated about eight hours before returning the verdict.

Rutledge is suing Kush, the university and others for $2.2 million in damages. He claims Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" after a 27-yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington on Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

Now attending the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, Rutledge also alleges that Kush and former Sun Devil assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush has denied both charges, and Maskill — via a deposition read to the court — disputed the harassment claim.

Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing, asked the jury Thursday to award his client $200,000 — claiming "$50,000 in compensatory damages and $150,000 in punative damages would be reasonable."

But Hing added that "the amount of money involved is insignificant. In terms of physical damage, there wasn't much except for a swollen lip for a couple weeks. The real damage to Kevin Rutledge is mental pain and suffering through humiliation — a devastating emotional experience.

"I'm sure if you asked Kevin about it, he'd say he'd give everything he owned not to go through it again," Hing said. "How much is it worth to get your optimism or your faith in your fellow man back? That's what he really lost."

Judge Thomas C. Kleinschmidt has instructed the jurors that a majority of six is needed to determine verdicts on allegations of battery by Kush and on alleged misrepresentation of the school's scholarship policy by Kush to Rutledge.

Ainge now faces Virginia

ATLANTA (AP) — Danny Ainge would like to be a typical student-athlete — but one could hardly call him that.

Ainge, a 6-foot-5 All-American guard, hopes to pull off another miracle when the 16th-ranked Brigham Young Cougars meet No. 5 Virginia today in the NCAA East Regional title game with a berth in next week's Final Four at Philadelphia at stake.

It took a miracle by Ainge Friday night to keep the Cougars alive in the chase for college basketball's national championship — a length-of-the-court driving layup with two seconds left that produced a 51-50 victory over No. 7 Notre Dame.

Virginia reached the regional finals by clubbing No. 16 Tennessee 62-48, with Jeff Lamp providing the spark in a second half comeback when the Vols held 7-foot-4 All-American Ralph Sampson at bay.

Ainge has two athletic lives — that of the star scorer for the BYU basketball team and another as a major league third baseman for the Toronto Blue Jays of the American League. He also is married and has a 15-month-old daughter.

"I try to divide my life into two seasons," Ainge said Friday before the Cougars went through their final workout in preparation for the Cavaliers.

"During baseball I live the life of a major leaguer," he said. "During the school year, I consider myself a student — although it's a little easier for me because I have a little more money than most students."

"And coaches," chimed in Frank Arnold, the BYU coach.

Ainge said he had trouble getting to sleep Thursday night because he kept think about his game-winning shot.

"That's probably the most exciting two points I ever scored in my career," said Ainge, who now has 2,454 points in 117 college games, scoring in double figures in his last 111 outings. "But, it's over now. We've got to get prepared for Virginia."

Ainge said he doesn't consider himself a star, although he gets the most publicity on the BYU team.

"I just play a role on the team, and my role happens to be that of scoring," he said.

Some professional scouts have said Ainge could the the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft if he weren't under a three-year baseball contract that specifies he can't play pro basketball.

"I would say to them not to draft me," Ainge said. "I don't think I would be bound to a team but for one year and I think the draft is too important for them to do that."

"We are going to be very concerned to make sure that Danny Ainge doesn't catch the ball in an open court situation," said Coach Terry Holland of Virginia.

The nationally televised game (NBC) is set for a 2:38 p.m. CST tipoff. Virginia has a 27-3 record and BYU is 25-6.

Patrick takes deadly aim on Chaparral

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Handicappers, basing their opinions on the 1980 season, easily would rate Johnny Rutherford's Chaparral of Midland's Jim Hall and the Penske cars of Bobby Unser and Rick Mears as the cars to beat in Sunday's Kraco Jimmy Bryant 150.

That race, with qualifying scheduled today on Phoenix International Raceway's one-mile oval, will mark the season-opener for the Indy car set.

BUT AT least one person in the know does not believe it's going to be business as usual for the Chaparral and the Penske.

U.E. "Pat" Patrick, the wealthy Jackson, Mich., businessman who has been fielding Indy cars since 1969, expects to get some of the action this year.

"Our team, I think, is going to be very competitive," Patrick said Friday as he watched his crew prepare the orange and blue STP-sponsored machines that will be driven by Gordon Johncock and Mario Andretti.

"We've got a new team manager in Jim McGee, we've got all new cars, we've got Gordon Kimball, who helped design the Chaparral, and we've got Mario.

"Those other guys (Chaparral and Penske) are tough, but we're going to whip their tails," added the enthusiastic Patrick.

MCGEE, WHO has been one of the most successful chief mechanics in the history of championship racing, left the Penske team late last season and wound up replacing another of the great Indy car chief wrenches, George Bignotti. Andretti, like Johncock, a former Indy 500 winner and national driving champion, also left the Penske team after the 1980 season.

"Bignotti was behind the times," the outspoken Patrick said. "We needed some changes and we made 'em. We haven't won a race in two years, but we're going to win some now.

"I've spent a lot of time putting this thing together in the last six months — maybe two days a week. But, now, Jim has got everything running smoothly, he's got the people in the right spots and I can just come to the racetrack and have some fun."

Patrick's new Cosworth-powered Wildcats have been tested thoroughly, both in a wind tunnel and on tracks, but Kimball already is working on the 1982 car.

"You can't waste any time in this business. You've got to think ahead," Patrick explained. "And it's like in my oil business. All my geologists are dreamers.

"They're constantly thinking about what might happen if they drilled here, or did something else there. Then you've got to have the idea men who have the guts to back up their ideas. That's Gordon Kimball."

Also on hand this weekend will be Tom Sneva, who won the race here last November in a car fielded by Jerry O'Connell.

Sneva apparently is set to drive a new Cosworth-March for a new team put together by Bignotti and Chicago businessman Dan Cotter, but the English-made chassis were not ready for Phoenix. So, Sneva will be back in the same Cosworth-McLaren that carried him to victory last fall.

Kansas State fumes at 'Cinderella' image

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Today's NCAA West title clash between North Carolina and Kansas State will not, say K-State's coach and players, involve any "Cinderella team."

Nevertheless, the unranked Wildcats, who tied for second in the Big Eight, figure to be distinct underdogs against the Tar Heels, ranked No. 4 nationallly and champions of the prestigious Atlantic Coast Conference.

Following a succession of upsets over taller, heavily favored San Francisco, Oregon State and Illinois, K-State brings a 24-8 record into the 12:24 p.m. CST tipoff. North Carolina, given a bye in the first round, smashed Pittsburgh and whipped Utah by six points to arrive with a 27-7 mark.

The game also will match two of the game's master tacticians, North Carolina Coach Dean Smith and K-State boss Jack Hartman, and teams whose heady, highly disciplined styles practically mirror each other.

The Wildcats admit they were one of the last squads picked to fill out the 48-team field.

"But we don't consider ourselves a Cinderella Team," said Rolando Blackman, Kansas State's 6-foot-6 senior guard. "To me, that means we don't think we belong here. I think we do belong here. I don't believe in the Cinderella Team thing at all."

"I'm almost sorry to hear Rolando say that," said Hartman, tongue in cheek, "because things like that can be turned to a psychological advantage. But I'm going to have to agree with him. We've always felt we belonged here. And, thankfully, we've managed to win and prove that we belong. Needless to say, I'm very proud of this team."

For the fourth straight NCAA Tournament game, the Wildcats will be struggling against a height mismatch on the front line. North Carolina's freshman sensation, Sam Perkins, stands 6-9, two inches taller than Ed Nealy, Kansas State's 6-7 junior. Against the much taller Illinois inside men in Thursday night's regional semifinal, Nealy dominated with 14 rebounds.

"He stands 6-7 but he plays 6-11," said Smith. "He went against (6-11) Steve Johnson of Oregon State, and guess who won that battle?"

Still, the Tar Heels appear to have the Wildcats at a disadvantage on the front line. Perkins and forwards Al Wood and James Worthy combined for 45 points against Utah Thursday night. Kansas State will counter with forwards Randy Reed, 6-7, and Tyrone Adams, 6-6, streaky shooters who have been known to get hot and dominate games.

If Kansas State has, at least on paper, a distinct advantage it would be at guard, where the wily, willowy Blackman holds forth. A U.S. Olympic teammate of Wood, Blackman leads Kansas State with a 15-point scoring average despite taking only about 12 shots per game.

North Carolina will start Mike Pepper, 6-3, and Jimmy Black, 6-2, at guard.

Hartman and Smith, who are close friends, have rung up 792 victories between them and have a great deal in common in style and philosophy.

"In Kansas State, we are facing a team that is just outstanding," said Smith. "In Jack Hartman, Kansas State has one of the great coaches of all time. I really respect him."

Each team will strive to control the tempo, but Hartman says that doesn't necessarily mean little scoring.

"Controlling the tempo can mean controlling it either way," he said. "Dean's teams are very adept at this. We are not adverse to running. In fact," he added with a grin, "we scored 70 points once this year."

The winner will advance to the Final Four in Philadelphia and meet the winner of Saturday's Virginia-Brigham Young clash in the East Regional.

NFL loses venue change bid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An appeals court turned down a bid Friday by the National Football League to have the Raiders-NFL antitrust suit tried outside Los Angeles.

The league had filed an emergency appeal with the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals after U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson denied an NFL motion for a change of venue.

The appeals court, in upholding Pregerson's ruling made Tuesday in Los Angeles, paved the way for the trial to begin. Pregerson had said that it could start 10 days following the appeals court decision.

Joseph Alioto, who represents the Oakland Raiders in their bid to move to Los Angeles, said he expects the trial to begin on April 7. Pregerson is scheduled to hear some motions on the March 30, said Alioto, the former mayor of San Francisco.

"They (the NFL) have been trying to stall while we have been trying to keep the court date," said Alioto. "They made a massive filing with the court of appeal that we consider an attempt to intimidate Judge Pregerson.

"It looks like they're at the end of their rope," Alioto said. "We have every confidence we will win ..."

The trial originally had been scheduled to start on Feb. 9, but that date was delayed until March 23.

New Denver owner opts for youth

By MELVIN DURSLAG
Hearst Special News Service

You ponder the case in the afterflow and you still aren't able to explain it.

Why did the guy who bought the Denver Broncos fire Red Miller? What cerebral cyclone bore down on him, inspiring such an act of lunacy?

And if a new owner is capable of such capriciousness, is he not a threat to the mental health of the Denver following, perhaps the most devoted in football?

For a price believed to be $30 million, a gentleman named Edgar F. Kaiser, Jr., purchased the team. He is the 38-year-old grandson of the late Henry Kaiser.

FIRING MILLER, who is 53, Kaiser said he wanted a "young organization."

And the thought occurred instantly that if Henry Kaiser had been forced to cash in at 53, the grandson might not have the money today to buy a football team for $30 million.

I mean, firing Red Miller is so preposterous that people in Denver had better keep an eye on that owner. He's dangerous.

Tom Landry is 56, the same age as Don Coryell. Don Shula is another one of those old fellows at 51, a year younger than Al Davis, who, in his dotage, led the Raiders to the Super Bowl.

Then you have a relic named Bud Grant, who is 53, and an ancient party called John McKay, who has neckties as old as Edgar Kaiser Jr.

At 69, Sid Gillman was implored by the Eagles to stay on as offensive coordinator, but Sid wanted to get with a younger crowd and retired.

THE POINT is, if Red Miller, at 53, is too old to suit the program of the Denver owner, the whole town may as well jump a bridge.

All Miller did in his four years on the job there was go to three playoffs. He also went to the Super Bowl in 1978, won his division twice and missed a third time on the last game of the season.

And he never had the luxury of a quarterback wanted by anyone else.

Picking up a team which had been given a good start by his predecessor, John Ralston, Miller developed the Broncos into a major power, a club no opponent relished meeting. His worst season was 1980, and he still finished .500 in a very rough division and a rougher conference.

In the process, the Denver following came on like a massive avalanche. Attired in orange, the folks subscribed in such numbers that it become impossible to buy a season ticket.

WITH A stadium seating 75,000, the Broncos have a current waiting list of 11,000 for season accommodations. It has been calculated there that if a child is born this year, he will be 101 before he gets a shot at a season ticket.

This didn't happen by accident. Red Miller whipped this team into gear, and it's pretty hard to find a person in the National Football League who will testify that Red doesn't know what he's doing -- even as an antique, a dottering old man of 53.

Interpreting the action of the new owner, you would guess that Red was walking around with his pants unzipped.

HIS REPLACEMENT at Denver, Dan Reeves, is a bright personable gentleman whom you almost fear to call young at 38.

An assistant to Landrey at Dallas, Reeves had been interviewed a number of places for head jobs, lucking out when he was rejected by Los Angeles.

He was passed in favor of George Allen, who enjoyed a lengthy tenure of two exhibition games before he was uncoupled.

Since George today is 58, he would be rated something out of the Pliocene Age by Denver standards. It may not be known there that the New York Times didn't hire Red Smith until he was 66 -- and the Times worried a little because it was looking for someone with more experience.

You have to assume that somewhere in this land, oh beautiful for spacious skies and amber waves of grain, a place exists for Red Miller, a fossil of 53.

Red has been coaching now for only 32 years. He doesn't wear a hearing aid, hasn't yet acquired a hairpiece, and hasn't been caught tapping with his foot to the music of Lawrence Welk.

If Miller doesn't get a job, you must assume he will be moving to St. Petersburg to join the old gentlemen in the lawn bowlers league.

Edgar F. Kaiser Jr. can call and inquire about his prostate.

A good word, at last, for computers

Los Angeles Times

I don't know about you, but computers have never done one thing for me. I mean, about all they do is send you warnings that bills you paid a month ago are past due and please remit soonest or the sheriff will be around to take your car.

When you arrive at a hotel in the dead of a winter night, in a strange city, the computer has lost the reservation you made six months ago. Crooks may be able to extract endless amounts of money from them for phantom fight promotions but all the bank computers ever do for me is flash a warning light when I want to cash a $50 check.

I have always considered computers my sworn enemies, to be feared the way a zebra fears a lion or a Sioux, a white man. They'll get you in the end.

Up till Sunday, I had not considered the racetrack much of a buddy, either. When the house cuts 17 percent of your play before you cut the cards, you don't figure they've got your best interests at heart.

WELL, SUNDAY was the day at the track when two longshots came in for me -- the computers and the track.

The details begin with my buying a losing ticket on a horse in the fourth race at Santa Anita, across-the-board on No. 6, Spring Digger, an also-ran.

I also bought a win-place-show ticket on a horse called Trabitan in the fifth race. He won. Prior to cashing that ticket, I decided to tear up my losing ticket on Spring Digger.

You guessed it. When I got to the window, the computer rejected the ticket I presented. "A losing ticket," the clerk told me, pushing it back.

I knew instantly what had happened. Since I had bought only two tickets that day, and tore one up, if I had a losing ticket, my winning one was in shreds in the bottom of a trash barrel.

Now $29 is not the national debt, but I did what I always do in a crisis -- panicked.

I began to rummage through the garbage pail like a skid row loser. Around the track, they call guys who go around scanning the ground for discarded winning tickets "stoopers."

I GAVE a new meaning to the term. I rummaged through rotting banana peels, apple cores, pieces of Kleenex from people with head colds. Beer cans, broken bottles, hotdog buns, hotdogs. I prayed no horses had been around. An ex-colleague, John Hall, was cynical. "An exacta ticket?" he asked sweetly. The exacta had paid $269. "No," I answered, my voice muffled from the bottom of the barrel, "just $2 across. It's the principle of the thing."

Well, I found two ragged crinkled pieces, barely 60 percent of a whole ticket. I couldn't even be sure they were the right pieces. The number of the horse wasn't even on them. I couldn't find that piece.

"Wait a minute!" interrupted Dan Smith of Del Mar as I began to throw them back in the barrel. "Every ticket has a serial number on it. The computer has the information on that ticket, whether it was a winner, a loser or what. Can you see a serial number?" I could, "568 1201 129 289 and something else," I told him.

WE TOOK the torn, partial ticket to the mutuel man, Pat Ganley. Pat made a call, then punched the numbers into the computer. "Welcome!" it flashed. "$29.00."

It could never have happened pre-computer. Find me a mutuel machine -- or a bookie -- that would accept a torn ticket without the number of the horse on it in the old days and, well, I'll buy the lunch.

"Was it worth it?" Hall wanted to know. "You could have got pellagra rooting through there."

"You know," I told him, "it reminds me of the old Jackie Vernon routine. He's driving through the South and he feels a call to nature. He stops at a farm house, and the farmer directs him out to the family Chic Sales 20 yards behind the house. It's a two-seater, and, as Jackie comes up, one of the farm hands is just putting on his jacket when several pieces of change fly out of it and down through the seat. 'Oh, that's too bad,' Jackie sympathizes. 'How much was it?' '45 cents,' says the man disconsolately, and thereupon opens his wallet and drops two $20 bills down there. 'What'd you do that for?' asked the astonished Jackie Vernon. 'You don't think I'm going down there for 45 cents, do you?' challenges the man."

Next time, that's the way I'm going to do it. I'm going in and buying two exacta tickets on the next race and dropping them down the barrel. That way, I won't be risking beriberi for a lousy $2 across-the-board bet. But, from now on, too, computers get new respect from old Bet-A-Million Murray.

Scott is convicted

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Boxer James Scott, once among the world's top-rated light heavyweights, was sentenced to life in prison Friday for the 1975 execution-style slaying of a reputed Newark drug trafficker.

U.S. District Judge Nicholas Scalera imposed the term to run concurrently with the 30 to 40 years Scott now is serving for a related armed robbery.

Assistant Essex County Prosecutor Lloyd Levenson asked for consecutive terms, citing Scott's long history of violent crimes that kept the 34-year-old fighter imprisoned for most of his life since age 12.

"What's most important is not what he's like in prison, but what he's like out on the street," said Levenson, asking the court to disregard the highly successful boxing career Scott developed as an inmate.

A ferocious fighter, Scott rose to national acclaim through televised bouts inside Rahway State Prison, building an 18-1-1 record including a triumph over Eddie Gregory, now known as Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, the current World Boxing Association light heavyweight champ. Scott was stripped of his No. 2 WBA ranking in 1979 because of his inability to fight outside the prison.

Baseball's 'Trader' dies at age 85

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — "Trader" Frank Lane, who wheeled and dealed his way through four major league baseball clubs, has died at the age of 85.

The longtime baseball executive died Thursday at the Apple Tree Nursing Home in this Dallas suburb after a long illness. Funeral arrangements were pending Friday.

Lane was in charge of four baseball front offices during his long career, including stints as general manager of the Chicago White Sox, St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City A's. He later was executive vice president of the Cleveland Indians.

Baseball experts estimate he made more than 400 deals for the four clubs. With the White Sox alone, Lane arranged 241 deals involving 353 players.

In 1960, Lane made trading history for the Indians, swapping American League home run champion Rocky Colavito to Detroit for league batting champion Harvey Kuenn. He followed that blockbuster by trading his manager, Joe Gordon, to the Tigers for their manager, Jimmie Dykes.

His nickname in baseball circles became "Trader Lane," as he often used hotel telephones while his room-service meals cooled to work out deals that often would send a hometown favorite packing.

When criticized for trading fan favorites, Lane replied sarcastically, "Maybe I was wrong. Maybe I should have taken a vote of the fans before I made the deal."

Sitting in the stands at a White Sox home game, Lane complained loudly and profanely about an umpire's call to American League President Will Harridge, who was watching the game from a box seat.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick fined Lane $500 and ordered him to give Harridge a public apology.

Lane then started a feud with White Sox owner Charles Comiskey, who had censured Lane for his conduct. Lane left the club with five years remaining on his contract.

His baseball front-office career began in 1933 as a general assistant for the Cincinnati Reds.

He was Cincinnati's farm director until 1941 then, after four years in the Navy, was hired in 1946 to run the New York Yankees' farm teams and be general manager of the Kansas City Triple-A club.

Rangers pace star picks

The two leading scorers and the leading assist man for the Greenwood Ranger state semifinalist basketball team have been named to the District 14-A All-District team.

Greenwood, who ended its season at 32-5 after a loss to Snook in the state semifinals Thursday in Austin, had Tommy Pyle, 6-1 senior; Homer Lopez, 6-0 junior; and Rex Evans, a 6-2 senior, named to the elite squad.

The Rankin Red Devils had two respresentatives on the team. Making the squad for Rankin were Terry Turner, a 6-0 junior, and Dennis Black, a 5-10 sophomore.

Rounding out the team were Sheldon Collins, Buena Vista, 6-1 senior; Joe Sconiers, Iraan, 6-1 senior; Romea Marquez, Grandfalls-Royality, 5-7 sophomore; Junior Perales, Bunea Vista, 5-9 senior; and Adrian Moore, Grandfalls-Royality, 6-3 sophomore.

MC faces San Angelo tourney

Midland College men's golf team returns to San Angelo Monday and Tuesday for more golf action.

Coach Delnor Poss has named five players to compete in the Angelo State Invitational. They are Brent Barrs, sophomore from Kermit; Bruce Carroll, freshman from Big Spring; Mike Petersen, freshman from Sioux City, Iowa; Bobby Tuttle, freshman from Andrews; and David Waszak, freshman from Albuquerque, N.M.

Bando may call it quits

MESA, riz. (AP)— Third basemn Sal Bando of the Milwukee Brewers says he might quit playing baseball if he's faced again this season with riding the bench.

"If it's going to be like last year, I'd rather retire," the 37-year-old Bando said Thursday.

Bando, a former star at nearby Arizona State University, played in 78 games last season and had 254 at bats, both lows for his 13-year professional career.

Buck Rodgers, the Brewers' manager, said he wouldn't know what he could promise Bando until near the end of spring training.

Roy Howell, a free-agent acquisition, and Don Money, who had knee surgery last October, have been playing third base most of the time in exhibition games. Bando has batted 10 times in Milwaukee's 10 preseason games.

"We'll make an evaluation near the end of the spring on Money's leg and on Sal," said Rodgers. "I don't think we'll carry three third basemen."

Bando has one year remaining on the five-year, $1.4 million contract he signed with Milwaukee as a free agent in 1977.

"If he doesn't go north as a player, he'll probably be an instructor or a coach for us," said Rodgers.

Military-type group arrested near nuclear plant

Some of the band of 13 men discovered in a secret encampment doing mercenary-type training partially cover their faces Friday while awaiting a courtroom appearance on felony trespass charges.

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (AP) — Thirteen men wearing military fatigues and armed with automatic weapons were arrested for trespassing near a nuclear power plant where they had set up camp and were engaging in hand-to-hand combat training, authorities said Friday.

Citrus County Sheriff Charles Dean said the men told him they had been hired to do "deep jungle-type warfare, survival and defensive posture." The sheriff said he did not know who did the hiring, but said the men had no connection to the American military.

The 13, all described as "clean cut, straight-looking guys in their 20s and 30s," were arrested late Thursday on felony trespassing charges on a ranch adjacent to Florida Power Corp.'s Crystal River nuclear power plant. Officials said there was nothing to indicate the men posed any threat to the plant.

They were being held without bond Friday in the Citrus County Jail, where agents from the FBI and the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms questioned them about the Soviet, Israeli and Japanese automatic weapons and one American-made M-16 with which they were armed.

According to Dean, the men said they picked the site by "accident," using a 1954 map.

"They just picked a bad place to do training," Dean said.

Although no identities were released, the sheriff said the leader claimed he had four years military experience, served during the Vietnam War and had passports and visas from Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Mexico and other nations.

Eleven of the men were American citizens and two were foreign nationals, apparently Latins, officials said. All spoke English.

They were found in a wooded section near the 825-megawatt nuclear plant on Wednesday by Dixie M. Hollins, owner of the sprawling Hollinswood Ranch.

The rancher said he heard rapid fire from automatic weapons about a half-mile from his barn Wednesday night and went to investigate.

Hollins said Friday that he found the men next to a dirt bank and told them they were trespassing. When he asked for identification, they asked him for his, the rancher said.

"A lieutenant came out and approached me ... (He) demanded to know what I was doing on this property," Hollins said.

He said the group claimed to be part of the 197th Battalion from Fort Benning, Ga., on training exercises. The lieutenant said their leader, a Capt. Algood, was on the nearby Florida Cross Barge Canal with military vehicles.

Hollins went home and called the sheriff.

Deputies contacted Fort Benning and initially were told there was a military unit training in the area, the sheriff said.

But, Dean said, he was not satisfied with the Army's answer and returned the next day, finding numerous rounds of automatic weapons ammunition on the ground.

Suspicious because some of the ammunition was not military issue, Dean again called Fort Benning and was told by a security officer, Col. Lou Marcotte, that no Army units were training in the area.

The Pentagon also denied that the men were part of the American military. "We can assure you that they're not army," said spokesman Maj. Jim Weiskopf.

Other military units based in Florida also denied any connection.

Laurence Fann of the FBI's office in Jacksonville said his agency was looking into the matter "simply because it is an unusual situation, obviously, and we're trying to make a determination of any possible violation of federal law that we have jurisdiction on."

P.J. Doyle, an official with the Florida Department of Criminal Law Enforcement in Tallahassee, said he sent one of his agents down to get more information, but knew little else about it.

Sheriff Dean said the men were arrested without resistance after he tracked them to their camp. He said when he peered into the camp from tall brush, the men were doing hand-to-hand combat training.

"I eased back, I knew they had live ammo," said the sheriff, who was armed with only a shotgun. "I didn't know if I had a drug-offloading operation, a subversive group trying to get the power plant or a CIA operation."

Dean said the leader had "military-type" identification printed in Arabic and some in Spanish.

The ranch and the power plant are in the northwest corner of Citrus County near where the Cross Florida Barge Canal meets the Gulf of Mexico. The area is about 80 miles north of Tampa.

Franklin Joseph Camper, 34, of Dolamite, Ala., leaves the Citrus County jail Friday for a courtroom appearance on a felony trespass charge after police discovered a secret military-type training encampment near a nuclear site. Camper was identified as the leader of the 13 men, dressed in fatigues and armed with commando-type weapons.

Harris gets minimum sentence

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Jean Harris was sentenced Friday to a minimum term of 15 years to life in prison for the love-triangle slaying of Scarsdale Diet author Dr. Herman Tarnower, the millionaire bachelor who jilted her for a younger woman.

The sentence, for second-degree murder, means she must serve at least 15 years before being considered for parole unless she is given clemency by the governor at some earlier time.

"I did not murder Dr. Herman Tarnower, but I loved him very much," the former headmistress of a Virginia girls' school said in a clear voice. "I am innocent as I stand here."

"I found you to be a brilliant woman," Westchester County Court Judge Russell R. Leggett told her. "But the best I can say to you is, 'Best of luck.'"

The judge added, "I wish that the events of March 10 never took place and that you'd never left Virginia."

The maximum sentence would have been 25 years to life.

Assistant District Attorney George Bolen asked the judge to "consider the devastating impact the defendant's actions have had on people's lives, like Dr. Tarnower, who was a decent ...."

At that point Mrs. Harris tried to jump up from her chair, but was restrained by a touch from one of the two female sheriff's deputies who were guarding her.

Leggett ordered Mrs. Harris taken "forthwith" to Bedford Hills Correctional Facility, the state's only maximum-security prison for women.

The judge said he hoped that Mrs. Harris would teach inmates there as she did while awaiting sentencing in the county jail.

"You can be a most useful person in that facility and bring some light into some other people's lives," Leggett said.

Defense attorney Joel Aurnou served Bolen a notice of his intent to appeal.

In addition to the second-degree murder charge, Mrs. Harris was found guilty of two weapons counts. Leggett sentenced her to up to four years and up to three years on those two counts, but said those sentences would run concurrently with the murder term.

Mrs. Harris protested the sentence.

"For you to arrange my life so I'm living in a cage every minute with irons on is a travesty," she said.

She said she had reviewed 10,000 pages of testimony heard at her trial and insisted, "There isn't a sentence that suggests how I was guilty of intentionally hurting Dr. Tarnower."

"I did not wish him ill," she said. "No one in the world feels that loss more than I do."

A round of applause broke out in the back of the courtroom as Mrs. Harris sat down.

The sentencing had been delayed by a bomb threat and when Mrs. Harris' lawyer, Joel Aurnou, asked Leggett to set aside the conviction.

He served the papers on Assistant District Attorney George Bolen four minutes before court convened for the sentencing.

The blond, blue-eyed Mrs. Harris was pale and apparently nervous when she was led by sheriff's deputies into the 10th-floor courtroom.

A prank bomb scare forced evacuation of the 12th floor, where the proceedings had been scheduled.

The prosecution had said it would not request the maximum penalty of 25 years to life for the 57-year-old woman, convicted of killing her lover of 14 years after he cast her aside for a younger woman.

Mrs. Harris was brought from the Westchester County jail in Valhalla, her hands cuffed in front of her, dressed in the mauve Chanel-style suit and lilac blouse she wore for much of her three-month-long trial.

Her hair was slicked back under a brown band, her face was colorless and she clutched a white tissue.

The former headmistress of the Madeira School in McLean, Va., was convicted Feb. 24 of firing four shots into Tarnower at his estate in Purchase on March 10, 1980. The government said she was in a jealous rage over Tarnower's affair with his 37-year-old office assistant.

During eight tearful days on the stand, Mrs. Harris testified she was trying to kill herself and only remembered shooting the 69-year-old Tarnower in the hand as he tried to grab the gun.

The millionaire bachelor sustained four bullet wounds, and jurors said after the verdict they did not believe Mrs. Harris' account of the shooting.

"I can't sit in a jail," Mrs. Harris told her attorney moments after the jurors convicted her of second-degree murder, the most severe charge possible in the case. She was sent to the county jail and placed under a 24-hour suicide watch.

Officials said that earlier this week, apparently nervous over the pending court appearance, Mrs. Harris developed an arm tremor. A brain scan revealed nothing unusual, they said.

As she was being taken to the medical examination, Mrs. Harris let out a string of obscenities and just missed striking a jail guard in apparent anger at being handcuffed.

CRMWD averts problem

BIG SPRING — A policy of maintaining terminal storage reservoirs at near maximum capacity, plus fast work, averted a possible water delivery problem for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Tuesday morning when the switch was thrown for the starter on a repaired pump at the Moss Creek station, there was a tremendous arc and electrical fire. All the motor starters, which are in one bank, were disabled by carbon deposits as well as the starter which was badly damaged.

Because Moss Creek station is the main relay on the pipeline from Lake E.V. Spence, the major source of supply, was cut off to the west. Fortunately, the Odessa terminal storage was full. Daily delivery from Lake J.B. Thomas was immediately jumped to 12 million gallons a day, which took care of Big Spring and Midland.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, said that the Ward County well field would have been brought on ahead of schedule had not CRMWD crews cleaned up one starter and had a 10 million-gallon-a-day pump been brought back on within 12 hours after the mishap.

Another was restored Wednesday to bring the station back to 18 million gallons a day, normal for this time of year. In the summer, 40 million gallons a day pass through the station 10 miles southeast of Big Spring.

Editor, gossip columnist, distributor removed from Carol Burnett's suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge removed the editor of the National Enquirer, a gossip columnist and the tabloid's distributor Friday as defendants in Carol Burnett's $10 million libel suit. But he declined to dismiss the suit against the publication itself.

Superior Court Judge Peter Smith denied a defense motion to dismiss the suit entirely, but granted a motion for "non-suit" by the Enquirer to dismiss allegations against editor Iain Calder, columnist Steve Tinney and ARA Services Inc., which distributes the publication, leaving the Enquirer as the only defendant.

"I had anticipated the judge would do just what he did," said Enquirer attorney William Masterson, add)n$vk,e.y / ind)vid¾als to the writing of the story in dispute!— an! account ?f a! purqor cokwtero

Clso, Ed Bronson, Miss Burnett's attorney, announced that the s¼ar does not %xpect to collew the full $10 million in her suit, nor would he argue for such an award.

"I think it was a statement of damages we, by law, were required to put in the complaint," Bronson said. "It is more than we are going to ask for." But he would not give a specific amount.

The judge said Calder, who was present in court, "... is the most responsible party, (but) he had very little to do with this. There certainly is not sufficient evidence to show the malice required."

Smith said Tinney, who was not present, "... had his name on the column (but) he didn't have anything to do with the writing of the article."

And the judge said to hold the distributor, ARA Services, liable, would be to treat them "almost like an insurance company. I don't think anyone would want to distribute any newspaper if they were to be held liable in such a situation."

Smith denied a mistrial motion Masterson filed on Wednesday, saying jurors had been "tainted" by a televised outburst against the Enquirer by entertainer Johnny Carson.

On the "Tonight Show" Tuesday, Carson denounced the tabloid for reporting that his marriage was breaking up — a report he said was false. He called the Enquirer editors "liars" and dared them to sue him for slander.

Smith dismissed two jurors who had heard Carson's remarks, but the case proceeded with 11 jurors including the alternate juror.

Aside from Friday's dismissal motions, the day was spent mostly on procedural matters, planned jury instructions and legal definitions. Both sides rested their cases on Thursday, and the jury was sent home for the weekend.

Masterson rested without calling a witness.

"We have already put on that which we have to offer," he told the judge.

National Enquirer taking trial, TV attacks in stride

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — Executives of the National Enquirer, the popular tabloid under fire in court by Carol Burnett and on television by Johnny Carson, are taking the attacks in stride and say they don't expect the furor to have any impact on sales.

The officials also say they believe their weekly publication is more reliable and respectable these days.

A Los Angeles jury is expected to begin deliberations Monday after attorneys make final arguments in Ms. Burnett's $10 million libel suit against the Enquirer. Both sides rested late Thursday.

The week-long Burnett trial, based on a 1976 article that said a "boisterous" Ms. Burnett argued with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a Washington, D.C., restaurant, has drawn in other celebrity comment, upsetting Enquirer defense lawyers.

Carson used his "Tonight Show" forum Tuesday night to blast the Enquirer as "liars," facing his television audience with the current edition that features a cover story bearing this headline: "Johnny Carson's Third Marriage Hits the Skids."

The article quotes unidentified sources who claim that Carson and his wife, Joanna, will split soon. One typical passage reads: "'The Carsons are definitely getting a divorce,' declared a friend who talks regularly with Joanna."

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. telephoned Ms. Burnett on Thursday to wish her well in the trial. Enquirer attorney William Masterson later commented: "I wish the chief executive of the State of California would keep his opinions to himself and not exercise his First Amendment rights ... when the case is still on trial."

Nevertheless, Enquirer officials in their southeastern Florida offices here say they don't believe the trial or the involvement of Carson and Brown will affect their sales either way.

"We haven't increased the press run because of the trial," a company executive said this week, explaining that recent bigger runs were ordered to accommodate expected demand in response to regional TV advertising campaigns.

The executive asked that his name not be used because of the continuing Burnett trial.

Haydon Cameron, the Enquirer's senior staff editor, said the tabloid takes pains to be accurate, using a team of legal researchers who review the copy to check for accuracy and potentially libelous statements

"When we make a mistake, we make it before our 20 million readers. We have to try very hard not to make a mistake because we're totally naked in the public eye," Cameron said in an interview before the Burnett trial began.

More than half the Enquirer's news tips, which Cameron said come from such sources as journalists, officials, servants and waiters, are tossed out because they prove to be false.

Besides the Burnett suit, the Enquirer faces $65 million worth of other libel suits. But editors insist the tabloid is not the wild "screamer" it is often reputed to be.

"We are an escapists' newspaper," Cameron said. "We look for inspirational stories because one of our beliefs is that people are blitzed out by daily newspapers.

"All they get is Iran, Afghanistan, the MGM fire ... last night's rapes and murders and deaths. At some point, you just don't want to read that stuff any more."

Typical Enquirer buyers, according to company research, are people between the ages of 18 and 49 with at least high school education who earn more than $20,000 annually. Women account for 54 percent of sales.

Since the mid-1970s, the Enquirer has developed a new "formula" that steers away from the psychic predictions and men from Mars.

In an average week, Cameron said, about 30 percent of the Enquirer is reserved for coverage of Hollywood and international celebrities. Other reports involve medical breakthroughs, suggestions for self-improvement or features about people overcoming odds.

In the latest issue, for example, the one with the Carson cover story, other articles tell about a woman who lost 402 pounds, a man who owns rabbits which have only one ear and the latest swimsuit fashions. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale wrote a bylined article about how to find joy in life.

The sales success in a given week can be greatly changed by the cover material, Cameron said. Covers featuring Larry Hagman, star of "Dallas," or Jackie Onassis, long an Enquirer favorite, are considered near-certain big sellers.

Children die in car fire

WACO, Texas (AP) — The father of two young children left unattended in a car watched as a fire engulfed the vehicle Friday, unaware that it was his car burning, authorities said.

Anthony Navarro, who works at an automobile dealership, saw the blaze break out in a shopping center parking lot nearby and called firefighters. Navarro learned later that his two children had been killed, investigators said.

The victims were identified as Toni Navarro, 2, and Anthony Navarro, Jr., 11 months.

Justice of the Peace Joe Johnson said the children were burned almost beyond recognition.

Some of the band of 13 men discovered in a secret encampment doing mercenary-type training partially cover their faces Friday while awaiting a courtroom appearance on felony trespass charges.

Clements opposes amnesty

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday amnesty is out of the question as a means for relieving congested conditions in Texas prisons.

"I would not be for amnesty," Clements told his weekly news conference.

Georgia officials recently granted amnesty to thousands of prisoners to comply with a federal court order that it put an end to overcrowding in its penitentiaries.

Clements criticized two members of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles who indicated in a newspaper interview that 20 percent of Texas' inmates could be granted amnesty without endangering the public.

George Killinger and Reuben Torres were quoted by the San Antonio Light on Friday as saying they could go along with amnesty under certain conditions, including a federal court order and board screening of each amnesty case.

"You have a lot of people (imprisoned for) property crimes, first offenders, DWIs — those people wouldn't be a problem," Torres was quoted as saying.

"Their expression is one good reason why I have recommended a bill reorganizing the parole board," Clements said. "My pending legislation would go a long way toward straightening out that situation."

Killinger is regarded as the most conservative member of the board. Clements' bill is addressed mainly toward weakening the independence of the six parole commissioners by making them employees of the three-member board.

About 2,800 state prison inmates sleep on the floors of cells shared with other inmates. U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ruled the overcrowding, and other prison problems, violate inmates' constitutional rights. He is expected to issue an order ordering a variety of remedies.

Clements said he, Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have advised Attorney General Mark White to bring in outside lawyers for Texas' appeal of Justice's decision and promised their help in getting a legislative appropriation to pay them.

White has indicated he might hire outside attorneys, but would not let the prison system retain outside counsel of its own.

Clements also expressed the hope that Justice would delay issuing his order requiring Texas to provide bilingual education for students who need it all the way through the 12th grade.

The governor said his task force on bilingual education should make its report by April 15.

"If Judge Justice will just be patient ... I think we can address this issue and satisfy him," Clements said.

On other matters, the governor said:

— He favors Rep. Senfronia Thompson's legislation to relieve the plight of Jessie Johnson, a Leon County farmer who recently discovered the state owns the land he has farmed for 50 years. Ms. Thompson, D-Houston, has introduced a resolution clearing title to the land.

Others with the same problem should be "considered on a case-by-case basis" rather than with sweeping legislation, Clements said.

— State usury ceilings are unrealistic in a time of wildly fluctuating interest rates, but he will not endorse any interest rate bill "until I finally see the ultimate result" of legislative action on the subject. The House votes Monday on a bill raising most interest rate ceilings.

— He sees "merit" in a constitutional amendment eliminating the $80 million-a-year limit on the amount of state funds that can be spent on welfare payments and predicted legislators would approve the measure for submission to the voters.

— Assertions by educators' organizations that Texas ranks 33rd in the nation in teacher pay are "propaganda" because the state is "in the exact middle" when geographic differences in the cost of living are considered.

— His legislative program "is doing fine" as the 140-day lawmaking session approaches its midpoint on Monday. He said he expects most if not all his bills will be reported out of committees around April 1.

"I predict practically all of it will pass in one form or another. ... I'm talking about crime, education, the drug program and initiative and referendum," Clements said.

Philadelphia transit strike expands

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The six-day transit strike that has hurt Philadelphia business and halted city buses, trolleys and subways for 400,000 riders intensified Friday as pickets disrupted most commuter train service.

Injunctions were swiftly issued banning the secondary picketing after thousands were stranded trying to ride trains in and out of the city. By the evening rush hour everything was normal on the rail lines.

Common Pleas Judge William Marutani, who on Tuesday allowed two pickets to march in front of each Conrail entrance for "informational purposes," vacated that order Friday.

As the walkout by Transport Workers Union Local 234 spread in the morning rush hour to the 13 rail lines operated by Conrail for the struck Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority, many people switched to autos, taxicabs, skates, and bicycles, or walked.

Traffic on the major roads into Philadelphia was heavier than usual all day, and often bumper-to-bumper.

"It's a mixed bag," said a SEPTA spokesman after many trains remained idle because of a shortage of crews. "Some commuters will be luckier than others."

An anonymous telephone caller claimed a bomb was planted in the Reading Terminal, one of the three main downtown commuter rail terminals, but a member of the city's bomb squad said, "it obviously was a hoax ... no device was found."

At first it was believed that the bomb threat had shut down the terminal, but later it was reported that the presence of pickets was responsible.

James Whitaker, speaking for Conrail, said "all employees at the Reading Terminal walked out in sympathy with the TWU strikers" because of pickets on the sidewalks outside. That wiped out service for most of the day for some 15,000 riders.

On the old Penn Central division, which terminates at Suburban Station six blocks from Reading Terminal, trains operated with just slight delays.

However, in mid-afternoon pickets walked into the station, where they were forbidden, and sympathetic United Transportation Union crewmen refused to take out five trains. About 1,500 riders were temporarily stranded.

Marutani's new injunction quickly resulted in eviction of the pickets, and trains resumed their regular schedules at all stations.

"It was just a matter of getting the pickets out, and we were back in business," said Conrail spokesman Joe Harvey.

It was the second time since the strike's start that pickets had disrupted train service. The first occurred briefly on Monday. On Friday the pickets not only went to the two downtown terminals but also blocked entrances at 15 suburban stations where incoming trains originate.

Judges in the suburban counties also issued injunctions removing the pickets.

Negotiations to end the labor dispute, and get the 4,900 TWU drivers, mechanics and cashiers back on the job remained snagged over the hiring by SEPTA of part-time workers during rush-hour periods.

"That certainly is the primary issue," said John T. Markle, Jr., SEPTA's chief negotiator.

William G. Lindner, TWU's national president who is assisting Local 234 president Dominic DiClerico, said if SEPTA is "going to hang on (over the part-timers) they're going to have a long, tough struggle."

Wages are not a crucial factor. SEPTA already has offered a 16 per cent pay increase over two years. Union bus drivers and mechanics now get $8.13 an hour.

Pahlavi wants revolt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Reza Pahlavi, son and successor of the late Shah of Iran, called on Iranians at home and in exile Friday to unite and save their country from its "present cataclysm" under Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolutionary regime.

The message from the 20-year-old Reza was sent to news agencies in Cairo, his family's exile home, on the occasion of the Persian New Year holiday period beginning Saturday.

It came at the end of a week during which Khomeini had to intervene in the political struggle between revolutionary factions in Iran and ban speechmaking by top officials until the end of the war with Iraq.

Although the political infighting and the 6-month-old war continue to pose threats to the Iranian regime, there have been few overt signs of popular support for the young Pahlavi, who was proclaimed Reza Shah II in a ceremony here last October, three months after the death of his father, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

In his message, Reza "solemnly" asked "all political and military figures who are opposed to the present regime, whether they be within the country or outside, to unite and regroup themselves for the liberation of Iran."

"... We can no longer tolerate that the blind and senseless egoism of a few persons who keep themselves in power through terror should any longer be considered as the voice of Iran."

LEGAL NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE REQUESTING PUBLIC COMMENT
PPG Industries has requested authority to construct a new fiber glass manufacturing facility in Midland, Midland County, Texas. PPG Industries has submitted an application to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) pursuant to the requirement for Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD) of air quality in the Clean Air Act, 42 U.S.C. 7470, and regulations promulgated by EPA in the Federal Register on June 19, 1978, and amended on August 7, 1980. EPA is proposing to approved this application and is hereby extending the opportunity for comment concerning the following proposed project:

1. Applicant:
PPG Industries
One Gateway Center
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 75250
PSD-TX-290

2. Project Location:
The proposed fiber glass manufacturing facility will be located 6 miles west of Midland, Midland County, Texas between U.S. Highway 80 and Interstate 20. This is a Class II area and no impacts on any Class I areas are expected.

3. Project Description:
The proposed facility will manufacture fiber glass products by melting various raw materials to form glass, drawing the molten glass into fibers, and coating the fibers with an organic material or binder. Emitting facilities consist of 12 storage silos, 10 scale surge bins, two mixed batch bins, four furnace holding bins, a central dust collector, two blenders, two glass melting furnaces, 12 drying ovens, four post bake ovens, and two boilers. The facility will be a significant source of sulfur dioxide (820 tons/year), nitrogen oxides (977 tons/year), particulate matter (35 tons/year), and fluorides (35 tons/year).

4. Best Available Control Technology (BACT):
For the proposed project, the use of best available control technology (BACT) is required by the PSD regulations to control emissions of a pollutant with an allowable increase of over 50 tons per year considering such factors as energy, economics, environmental impact, and technical feasibility. The following BACT analyses have been performed for the proposed emission sources of SO2 and NOx.

SO2
The chemical injection method in which chemicals are injected into the gas stream to convert gaseous sulfur compounds to particulates through chemical reactions is considered BACT for control of SO2 emissions from the glass melting furnaces. Natural gas firing is considered BACT for the operation of the drying and post-bake ovens and for the boilers.

NOx
Control of NOx emissions from the glass melting furnaces will be accomplished by the use of a computer to control the air/fuel ratio in order to maintain a constant level of excess oxygen in the furnace atmosphere. Natural gas firing is considered BACT for the operation of nthe drying and post-bake ovens and for the boilers.

5. Air Quality Impact:
The proposed new facilities were subject to review of their potential to cause or contribute to a violation of the National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS) for SO2, NOx, and PM. EPA-approved computer modeling showed that no violations are likely.
PSD increments presently exist for SO2 and PM. PM emissions from the proposed new source were found to insignificantly impact the ambient air quality, and therefore; further analysis was not warranted. EPA-approved computer modeling indicated that no violations of the SO2 increment standard are likely to accur. The following table presents the resultsof the SO2 increment analysis:

Pollutant/Averaging TIME	Total Increment Consumed (ug/m3)	Class II Increment Standards (ug/m3)
SO2
3-Hour	353	512
24-Hour	36	91
Annual	7	20

Analysis also indicates that stacks will be designed according to Good Engineering Practice and that no NAAQS violations are expected to occur due to downwash from stacks.
In addition, it is expected that there will be no adverse impacts on Class I areas, or upon visibility, soils, or vegetation of the surrouding area, and that there will be no significant impacts on commercial, residential, or industrial growth due to the proposed project.
A copy of all materials submitted by the applicant is available at the office of the City Secretary, James McCullough, P. O. Box 1152, 300 N. Loraine, Midland, Texas 79702, telephone number (915) 683-4281 and in the Air Programs Branch, EPA Region 6, First International Bank Building, 28th Floor, Dallas, Texas 75270, telephone number (214) 767-1594.
Requests for a public hearing concerning the above proposed project must be accompanied by the anticipated comments to be presented during such public hearing. Written comments and requests for a public hearing on the proposed project may be submitted to the Air Programs Branch, EPA at the above address until 30 days after publication of this Public Notice. It is requested that comments and hearing requests specify Permit Number PSD-TX-290 and that such comments be based on the requirements as set out in the Clean Air Act, and the PSD regulations published June 19, 1978, and amended August 7, 1980. Public comments submitted in writing will be considered by the EPA prior to making the final determination of the proposed project, and will be available for public inspection in the offices of the City Secretary, James McCullough and of the Air Programs Branch, EPA, addresses above.
The EPA will notify the applicant in writing of its final determination. A copy of such final determination will be available for public inspection in the offices of James McCullough and of the Air Programs Branch, EPA, at the above addresses.

STILL AVAILABLE AT RAMCON

Quality Homes, Friendly Neighborhoods, Affordable Prices. That's our goal.

While other builders are slowing down, RAMCON is moving ahead! Our philosophy must be working because more and more of our buyers come to us through referral. One friend tells another, "Go see RAMCON HOMES." That makes us work harder to fulfill your expectations.

The Rev. L.L. Martin invites the public to attend this Sunday's service.

New program to be presented Sunday

"Families Are Forever" is the title of a special program to be presented at 9 a.m. Sunday by the Midland 2nd Ward primary children of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 2101 Tarleton St.

The program is centered on the principle of love at home and the eternal nature of the family unit. The program is mostly musical and performed by the children with some adult narration.

The public is invited to attend.

Churches ask for aid for displaced Salvadorans

NEW YORK (AP) — Church World Service, the international relief and development agency of the National Council of Churches, has asked member denominations to contribute $1.5 million to aid the people of El Salvador.

The aid "for those uprooted by the civil strife" will be channeled through a coalition of Protestant, Catholic, evangelical and humanitarian agencies known as the Salvadoran Ecumenical Association for Service and Humanitarian Aid.

The council has voiced objection to the Reagan administration's increased support of the government of El Salvador.

The aid program is intended to help the estimated 150,000 displaced persons within El Salvador, said church spokesman David Osborne.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HE ALWAYS HAD THE PERFECT ANSWER

When the chief priests and religious leaders heard about this story Jesus had told, they wanted Him arrested immediately, for they realized that He was talking about them. They were the wicked tenants in His illustration. But they were afraid that if they themselves arrested Him there would be a riot. So they tried to get Him to say something that could be reported to the Roman governor as reason for arrest by him.

Watching their opportunity, they sent secret agents pretending to be honest men.

They said to Jesus, "Sir, we know what an honest teacher you are. You always tell the truth and don't budge an inch in the face of what others think, but teach the ways of God. Now tell us--is it right to pay taxes to the Roman government or not?"

He saw through their trickery and said, "Show Me a coin. Whose portrait is this on it? And whose name?" They replied, "Caesar's--the Roman emperor's."

He said, "Then give to the emperor all that is his--and give to God all that is His!"

Thus their attempt to outwit Him before the people failed; and marveling at His answer, they were silent.

Mormon document second major find by young collector

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — As a boy, Mark William Hofmann collected coins — but what really excited him was finding a $10 note signed by Mormon Church founder Joseph Smith Jr.

Now 26, the collector of Mormon records has provided the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints with two major historical documents within a year — the latest a 137-year-old blessing in which Smith promises the church's presidency to his son.

And Hofmann, who abandoned plans to be a physician in favor of life as a full-time trader in collectibles, says his private collection has other important Mormon works, including "one particular item that its very significant, but I don't want to comment on that."

The latest document, apparently a text of a blessing given by Smith to his 12-year-old son, Joseph Smith III, in 1844, promises the boy will succeed his father as church president.

The document is significant because the presidency of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, which the younger Smith later founded, has always passed to direct descendants of Smith. Mormon Church presidents, on their deaths, have always been succeeded by the senior member of the church's Quorum of the Twelve Apostles.

Upon the death of the church founder, the presidency was bestowed upon Brigham Young, who led the main body of the church to Utah. The Reorganized church is in Missouri.

RLDS church spokeswoman Renee Murray said Thursday the document is "concrete evidence of what the RLDS Church has believed all along," and poses "a big problem" for the Utah church. But Mormon officials said the document will make no difference in the way church leadership is now conferred.

Hofmann, a seventh-generation Mormon, said the document "might prove to be a rude awakening for the general membership of the church, but I think scholars of the church have acknowledged all along that such a blessing existed."

He said other documents indicate Smith had, at different times, named a number of persons to be his successor, "perhaps up to six." But he said Smith also intended that whoever he chose be approved by the church membership.

"Although Smith wanted his son to succeed him, he (the son) never received the proper priesthood keys that were given to the Twelve Apostles," Hofmann said.

Mormon officials said Thursday they will trade the document for an 1833 copy of the Book of Commandments held by the RLDS Church. The book contains revelations Smith said he received from God and is accepted by both churchs as scripture.

Last April, Hofmann announced the discovery of a list of "reformed Egyptian" characters that Joseph Smith Jr. said he copied from golden plates given to him by an angel in preparing the Book of Mormon, also accepted as church scripture. That document is thought to be the the earliest sample of Smith's handwriting.

Hofmann said he became interested in Mormon records at age 12 after finding a $10 note issued and signed by Smith in Kirtland, Ohio.

He received a biology degree last spring from Utah State University, but decided instead to deal in collectibles. "My real hobby is Mormon material — that's my first love," he said.

He said he bought the document from descendants of Thomas Bullock, a clerk to Smith who apparently copied down the blessing just six months before Smith was killed by a mob in Carthage, Ill.

A Haitian woman takes a break from reading her Bible in the women's facility at Miami's Krome North refugee camp, which is housing some 500 Haitian refugees that arrived in South Florida last week in addition to those that had already been living there. Officials speculate that the Haitian exodus this year could rival last year's influx, which averaged 1,000 refugees arriving every month during February through October, 1980.

Increased success cited with marrow transplants

CHICAGO (AP) — The odds of surviving a bone marrow transplant have improved greatly since the first successful operation was performed in 1968, a new study says.

A team of researchers studied patients who underwent transplants between 1975 and 1978 because their bone marrow, which normally manufactures new blood cells for the body, stopped producing the cells due to a condition called severe aplastic anemia.

Of the 114 patients, grafts were initially successful in 76 percent and 44 percent survived at least a year after the operation. The disease was apparently cured in 90 percent of the one-year survivors.

The team reported its finding in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Prior to development of bone marrow transplants in 1950, the condition meant certain death as victims' red and white blood cells dwindled away.

Even after 1950, chances of survival were dismal because the bodies' immune system rejected the foreign cells or because the foreign cells, which have their own immune response, rejected their new home.

Since 1968, when the first successful transplant was performed, results have improved markedly because physicians learned to predict the cells' compatability with the host by matching tissue types, the researchers said.

The team also found that marrow from male donors is less likely to cause rejection than that taken from females, "probably because the female immune system is better than the male," said Dr. Mortimer Bortin, a Medical College of Wisconsin researcher who helped report the study.

Before performing a transplant, doctors place the patient in strict isolation — even filtering the air — then wipe out the patient's natural immune system using radiation and powerful drugs.

Doctors extract marrow from the pelvic bones of a donor by drawing it out with a needle. The cells are purified and injected into the donor's vein, and the cells find their way to the recipient's marrow. If all goes well, the newly transplanted marrow begins producing blood cells within two to three weeks.

Eric Clampton in serious condition

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — British rock star Eric Clapton, undergoing treatment at United Hospitals in St. Paul for an ulcer, is responding but is still in serious condition, a Clapton spokeswoman said.

Clapton was admitted to the hospital early Saturday after performing in Madison, Wis., Friday night as part of a scheduled four-month U.S. concert tour.

The remaining 47 dates of the concert tour have been canceled, said Ronnie Lippin, director of national publicity for RSO Records of Los Angeles.

Ms. Lippin said Clapton is responding to treatment but will remain hospitalized for two to three weeks.

He was listed in serious condition on Thursday, she said.
