Al Smith To Hammer At Religious Barrier In Final Dash

BURNING TALK AT BALTIMORE FIRST THRUST

Asserted Bigotry Looms As Greatest Obstacle To Victory

AT NEWARK TONIGHT

Labor, Tariff and Prohibition Are Likely to Be Discussed

By FRASER EDWARDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (US)—The Democratic campaign strategy was revised today when Governor Smith returned to New York after his blistering assault on bigotry in Baltimore. From now on until Nov. 6 religion will be a paramount issue in the campaign to put Al Smith in the White House.

It is not a question of Governor Smith making religion a paramount issued. He and his managers with whom he conferred yesterday, merely recognize it as the biggest factor in the campaign, and he proposes to meet it squarely in the next four speeches he will make before Nov. 6.

Religion Big Factor

The realization that religion, after all, was the one controlling factor in the campaign seemed to have struck the Democratic compaign managers and Governor Smith all of a sudden. Until a week ago they had been counting upon the Republican defections in the grain belt and in the East to pull Governor Smith through the knot-hole to the White House.

Now the Democratic managers have gone back to the idea which they had at the outset of the campaign—that religion would tell the tale on Nov. 6, and to that end they have advised Governor Smith to pound on the question of intolerance in the closing driv. for the big bloc of votes along the Atlantic seaboard.

Still Cheerful

While the supreme optimism of the governor apparently was unshaken some of those close to him were shaking their heads. They were freely discounting the effect of the governmental issues on which the governor had made his campaign.

So far as the governor is concerned, his closest friends said that he was quite sincere in the rather dramatic gesture he made in Baltimore, in which he said that he would prefer defeat to election at the hands of such an organization as the Ku Klux Klan. He admitted that he was a "little heated" on the subject of intolerance and there is no doubt that he was speaking just what was on his mind.

Speaks in Newark

Although the governor, in pursuance of his policy, refused to disclose the subject of his speech in Newark tonight, it was learned that he would take another fling at relig-

FAKE NAMES GIVEN RADIO

Demo Leaders Attack Tactics of Anti-Smith Workers

Charging intent to prejudice radio listeners against the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York by making it seem that he is being supported by Catholic priests and nuns, local Democratic leaders Tuesday said that calls to the radio station KGKO had been used for the purpose.

"A man called the station during a program being given by the Democratic women Monday night and subscribed $2.50 to the Democratic campaign in the name of Father O'Farrell of the Kemp hotel," it was said.

"A short time later, another call was received from a woman saying she was Sister Mary Etta and that she was subscribing $2.

"These subscriptions were received with many others and were not noticed until the program was over. The calls, which were all kept, were then checked over and it was found there was no such priest at the Kemp hotel. A check of the city likewise revealed no Sister Mary Etta, and the convent disclaimed any connection with it, saying they would not subscribe.

"This is but a sample of the propaganda that is being used by the enemies of Governor Smith to build up prejudice against him, not alone in Texas but all over the United States."

ZEPPELIN HALF WAY ACROSS ON RETURN FLIGHT

Fair Progress Reported By Giant Liner to Ships At Sea

BAD STORMS PASSED

Easy Sailing in View For Rest of Voyage To Germany

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (US)—Heading into what weather reports say are violent gales, the Graf Zeppelin tonight was approximately 800 miles southwest of the Irish coast, making between 75 and 80 miles an hour.

If the big silver airship is able to dodge the storm area and maintain its present rate of speed it should be over England or France well before noon Wednesday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (UP)—Stubbornly riding a cold gale over the North Atlantic, the dirigible Graf Zeppelin pushed steadily eastward in mid-ocean tonight with high hopes of finding favorable weather to speed the final half of its return trip to Friedrichshafen, Germany.

As dusk dropped over the Atlantic, the silvery commercial dirigible was more than 38 hours out of the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station and cruising, apparently at fair speed, over rough water on which the passengers could see ice cakes tossed about. From the cabins and salon of the Graf Zeppelin, the welcome report of "all's well" was broadcast occasionally to ships at sea.

Ship Sights Zepp

The steamship Capulin, reporting via the S. S. American Banker, gave the United Press the dirigible's position at 10:40 a. m. E. S. T. as 53:30 north; 37:40 west, some 1,850 miles from New York and about 700 miles from St. Johns, Newfoundland. The Graf Zeppelin's speed at that time apparently was about 65 miles per hour.

Progress of the Graf Zeppelin after leaving the banks of Newfoundland was reported through vessels which sighted the craft or communicated by wireless with Dr. Hugo Eckener, the commander.

The Cunard liner, Mauretania, was first to report the silver liner of the air after the worst storm area had been passed. The Mauretania communicated with the dirigible at 7 a. m., E.S.T. and reported it in latitude 52:30 north, longitude 40:30 west, about 500 miles from St. Johns and north of the steamer lanes.

The S. S. American Banker then relayed a message from the Capulin to the United Press London bureau, which said:

"Steamship Capulin at 3:40 p. m. G. M. T., (1:40 E. S. T.) sighted the Graf Zeppelin at 52:30 north, 37:40 west, heading east, northeast."

In Mid-Ocean

W. J. BRYAN JR. DENIES 'BOLT'

Son of Commoner Repudiates G. O. P. Claim

LINCOLN, Nsb., Oct. 30. (UP)—No comment would be made by the Republican state headquarters today on the denial of William J. Bryan Jr., son of the great "Commoner," that he had declared for Herbert Hoover.

Bryan lives in California.

"I wish to state that while I was in Lincoln last week, I did not attend such a luncheon and I did not make such a statement," Bryan is quoted in Dockweiler's telegram. ## SECRETARY OF STATE IN WAR CABINET DIES

Death Due to Heart Trouble Claims Robert Lansing At Washington

IMPOSING RECORD

Statesman Was Advisor To Wilson, Clemenceau And Lloyd George

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. (UP)—One of the leading figures of the world war passed into history here today when Robert Lansing, secretary of state under President Wilson, died suddenly of heart trouble.

His death strikes another name from the roll of statesmen of the war days. only four now are left who were instrumental in directing the policies of the allies—Col. E. M. House, confidential advisor to President Wilson, Clemenceau, former premier of France, Lloyd George, former premier of Great Britain and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who acted as the intermediary between the president and Lansing.

Since the war, Lansing had engaged in the practice of international law in Washington. In recent years he also had been general counselor to the Chinese legation. On Oct. 5 he suffered a heart attack. Since then he failed gradually until the crisis came late today.

President Coolidge sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. Lansing tonight.

Framed Warning

It was Lansing who framed the first warning note to Germany during the trying days before the United States entered the great war.

His warning vigorously protested Germany's declaration of a "barred zone" around England. At that time, Lansing commented confidentially that such a warning note was the "kindest thing one could do to Germany now."

There was a prophecy in his words for Germany ignored this and other warnings which Lansing sent until the United States entered the war and swung its decisive influence to the side of the allies.

Oppose War

Lansing never wanted the United States to enter the conflict, those who were close to him often said, and he did everything possible to prevent the actual break with Germany. He spent many hours day and night closeted with the ambassadors of Germany and Great Britain before the United States decided to cast its lot with the allies.

Finally when all avenues of peaceful settlement semed closed, Lansing joined with the president in combining the resources of the nation for the great conflict.

His friends have said that Lansing abhorred war but was willing to accept it in the promotion of a great principle or in the national defense.

Broke With Wilson

Lansing remained as secretary of state through the entire war and during the peace negotiations. In 1920 he broke with President Wilson, who demanded and received his resignation.

Many and varied are the reasons given for the shattering of friendly relations between Wilson and his secretary of state.

According to one who was close to Wilson and Lansing, the break was due to three things. First, when the president was on a western speaking tour in behalf of the League of Nations, Lansing sided with Senator Lodge and against America's entrance into the league. Wilson reprimanded him severely for this, it was related.

Then when the president suffered

Justice Takes Wings in Inquiry Of Hamilton Deaths at Rochester

Fritts Faces Possibility of Final Disposal of Charges in 10 Days After Dual Killing

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Texas, Oct. 30.—District Judge Bruce Bryant's court here looked forward to setting a new pace in Texas murder trials today, when States Attorney Clyde Grissom, in charge of prosecution of Bill Fritts, charged with the Hamilton slayings at Rochester, prepared a legal pathway that possibly will lead Fritts to freedom or the electric chair within 10 days of the commission of the alleged crime.

After a special grand jury indicted Fritts Tuesday in the killing of Earle Hamilton, youngest of the victims, District Attorney Grissom announced the case would be tried Friday, and forthwith a venire of 100 men was called. The grand jury then began investigation of the killing of D. W. Hamilton, Earle's father, who was slain with his son in front of their Rochester home last Wednesday night.

Joint Trial Urged

A report of the jury in this connection, Mr. Grissom said, is expected early Wednesday. In this case, he added, he would request the trial of Fritts on both indictments when the case is called Friday.

District Attorney Grissom stated definitely Tuesday night that when the case comes to trial he would, in behalf of the state, ask that the death penalty be assessed. He further stated that, should both charges be tried Friday, he expected the case to be in the hands of the jury by Saturday, at the latest.

Widow Appears

Both Fritts and Mrs. Hamilton, widow of D. W. Hamilton, appeared Tuesday before the grand jury, which adjourned at 5 o'clock tonight.

The Hamiltons were shot to death after a man had come to their home to warn Earle not to testify at an impending liquor trial. Fritts had been indicted for alleged dry law violations, and was to have been tried on these counts last Monday.

Thousands of voters listed for the November 6 election are under scrutiny. In Arizona and Massachusetts ballots have been ordered reprinted to avoid alleged unfairness.

"I'm Proud That I Found It," Says Wichita Woman

Says Since Taking Orgatone She Feels Better Than She Has in Eight Years

"I am now enjoying better health than I have in eight years and I owe it all to Orgatone," said Mrs. Jack Stout, residing on Wichita street, in relating her experience with this medicine a few days ago. Mrs. Stout is the wife of a well known employe of the state highway department.

"I am certainly proud and happy that I found Orgatone," continued Mrs. Stout, "for it is the first and only medicine I have taken in my eight years of suffering that seemed to do me any real good. My main troubles were with my liver and stomach and about five years ago my kidneys started to bother me considerably and I would have sharp shooting pains across the small of my back. After eating I would have a tight, bloated feeling caused by the formation of gas and I suffered from cramping in my stomach much of the time. I was constipated all the time and had to take something for this trouble continually. I would go to bed tired and was so nervous and restless I couldn't sleep soundly and invariably felt worse on getting up in the morning than when I retired at night.

"I read the testimonials in the local Wichita Falls papers about the good Orgatone was doing right around us here in Wichita Falls, and with the hope that it might help me, too, I bought a bottle and I want to say my relief has been simply wonderful. It may sound exaggerated, but it's the plain truth. I felt better after taking my first dose of Orgatone. In place of irritating my stomach as other medicines did, it seemed to have a soothing effect and after only a few days I found the gas had stopped forming after I would eat and all that cramping and distressed feeling had left my stomach entirely. My kidneys stopped troubling me and I can now eat anything anybody else can, pastries, just anything you can mention, without the slightest discomfort afterwards and I haven't finished taking my first bottle of Orgatone yet. I have been entirely relieved of constipation and I'm not a bit nervous. I sleep like a child every night now and I know I am gaining in weight and feel strong and full of vigor. Orgatone seemed to take right hold of my troubles and got me over them and I feel like a different woman. I'm enjoying life more than I have in eight years."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

REPUBLICANS SCARE IN ST. JO AREA

There are only eight Republicans within a 10-mile radius of St. Jo. This is the word brought by Mark Logan to the Democratic headquarters from St. Jo where he made an address on behalf of Governor Smith Saturday night.

MRS. WELTY SEES G. O. P. LANDSLIDE

The gradual swing to Herbert Hoover is more pronounced every day, according to Mrs. P. A. Welty at the Woman's Hoover headquarters. "Daily we talk with more people who are announcing themselves for Herbert Hoover," she said. "They are sold on Hoover better than any class of people, for they have studied the situation for several months and have taken their time making up their minds. I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see this movement gradually turn into a Hoover landslide."

TWO MORE DAYS FOR TRANSFERS

Wednesday and Thursday are the last two days in which poll tax receipt holders who have moved their residences from one precinct or county to another within the state to obtain the transfer which will enable them to vote. This announcement was made at all political headquarters Tuesday. Transfers are obtainable at the office of Guy C. Raley, county tax collector in the court house. Those who have moved from another county within the last six months may not vote, however, as they must have lived in the county for six months preceding election day, Nov. 6, according to the tax collector's office.

Death Claims Robert Lansing

his breakdown, which led to his death, an attache of a foreign embassy was charged with spreading scandalous stories about the president. Wilson, it was said, called Lansing to his bedside and ordered him to make representations to the foreign government of which the attache was an accredited diplomatic officer. Lansing did so but his language in sending the protesting note did not suit the president.

Called Cabinet Meeting

Finally when Wilson's physical condition grew alarming, Lansing called members of the cabinet to a meeting without the knowledge of the president. Admiral Grayson, then personal physician to Wilson, was summoned before the cabinet to give accurate information as to the president's condition.

Before going to the meeting, Grayson called on the president and informed him of Lansing's action. Wilson became furious, it was said, and demanded an explanation from his secretary of state. Several sharp letters passed between them until Wilson demanded his resignation.

Amherst Graduate

Lansing was born in Watertown, N. Y., on Oct. 17, 1864. He graduated from Amherst college and was admitted to the New York bar in 1889. He first gained prominence when engaged by the government to act in several international disputes, including the Bering sea fur-seal arbitration, the Bering sea claims commission, the Alaskan boundary tribunal and the American and British claims arbitration.

In 1914 he was appointed counselor for the state department which position he retained until June 9, 1915, when he was named secretary of state succeeding William Jennings Bryan.

STATE MAKES TEXT AWARDS

Two Geographies Bought After Row

AUSTIN, Oct. 30. (AP)—Fights in the courts and in the state textbook commission over geography textbooks for the state's public schools echoed again today when the commission, after a final round of dissension about the lucrative supply contract, compromised and adopted two texts for the next six years at substantially reduced prices. The adoptions are in a list of 44 books for 38 courses which the commission chose to let contracts for over periods ranging from three to six years. Cost of all may run nearly $2,000,000, as nearly as it can be estimated.

Although the commission failed to renew the American Book company geography contract, which was attacked in the courts, and which caused a deadlock in previous meetings of the commission, several ballots and much argument were necessary before two other texts were agreed upon as a compromise. Trend of the argument was only hinted at by commission members emerging from the secret sessions, but it was admitted that another deadlock was threatened.

The McMurry-Parkins complete elementary geography, MacMillan company, 90 cents, and the Dodge-Lacey complete advanced geography, with Texas supplement, Rand-McNally company, $1.15, were adopted.

State School Supt. S. M. N. Marrs, secretary of the commission, estimated that the savings on geographies under the new contract as compared to the old, will be about $200,000.

The change will be gradual. New texts will be bought as they are needed under the three-year gradual introduction feature of the new textbook law.

The fact that books are ordered in lots only as they are needed precludes any definite estimate as to what any given adoption will cost the state.

An entire new list of 21 supplementary readers was adopted.

Michigan—Ten warrants were served in Detroit today for alleged election law violations after 25 already had been arrested on similar charges. Three thousand illegal registrations are claimed, including those of minors and aliens.

Philadelphia Row

Pennsylvania—Democratic workers in Philadelphia prepared a list of 2,000 alleged illegally registered voters, which they will ask to be stricken. Democrats demanded and got 3,000 additional ballots for Luzerne county after charging a shortness of supply would hurt Governor Smith's chances.

Missouri—Eighteen election judges and clerks are under indictment in St. Louis for "false certificate of returns" in the state primary, August 7. There is talk of investigation in Jackson county, in which Kansas City is located.

Oklahoma—Republican state headquarters said it would file charges of alleged manipulation in state registration. Democratic headquarters said it had conducted its own inquiry and found no frauds.

Arizona—Because Republicans claimed the ballots of Gila county did not list the candidates in alphabetical order, superior court has ordered the ballots reprinted.

Massachusetts—A special Curtis-Hoover lawyer's committee claims to have discovered illegal registrations by Democrats, including a listing of 5,000 persons "long since dead." Democrats retaliated by charging that the first 1,000,000 ballots printed for use in the state placed the names of Governor Smith and Senator Robinson in such a position as to confuse persons intending to vote for them. Governor Fuller ordered as many of these ballots as possible to be replaced by others of clearer form.

Hoover's Silence on Prohibition Draws Criticism of Wichita Woman

Mrs. J. G. Fain Declares Party Greater Than Personalities In Giving Support to Nominees

Mrs. J. G. Fain, 2712 Ninth street, a Presbyterian and an ardent believer in prohibition enforcement, announced Tuesday that she will vote the Democratic ticket "straight" on November 6, "instead of staying away from the polls, as I planned, because neither Smith nor Hoover's stand on the liquor question measured to my ideal."

She was swung suddenly to her present decision "while thinking and praying," she said, after having listened to the radio program broadcast Monday night from KGKO under auspices of the Wichita County Woman's Democratic league.

"I suddenly realized," she said, "that the party is greater than its personalities; that, if we believe in democracy, we cannot waver or slip now, but that we must go forward in its cause.

"It seems to me that every principle of democracy demands that Democrats shall support Governor Smith. He is the choice of our party. Perhaps we may disagree with his views on prohibition, but he is democracy's chosen leader, and I am convinced of the supreme importance of restoring the party of the people to national control. For my part, Governor Smith's stand is no less objectionable to me than Mr. Hoover's comparative silence.

"From the start of this campaign, I felt that I could not support one any more conscientiously than the other. But I can support the Democrat party conscientiously when I could not give such support to a Republican party.

"I feel so much better since reaching my decision."

Mrs. Fain is a native of the South, having been born in Florida, and came to Wichita Falls nearly 23 years ago.

Russian Woman Nears Goal Of Home With Daughter Here

The coming to America of Mrs. Melany Cergieve Meglovets from Asiatic Russia and the culmination of a dream of almost eight years, was seen Tuesday in three letters received in Wichita Falls by her daughter, Mrs. Mary Ham.

One letter was from the United States consul at Harbin, China, telling Mrs. Ham that he had notified her mother to appear before him for examination and for placing on the preferred quota.

Another was from Mrs. Meglovets from whom no word had been received for almost seven weeks and for whom concern was felt by Mrs. Ham.

"I have heard from the American consul at Harbin and he tells me to go to Harbin to see him about coming to your United States," the letter said.

The third letter was from Mrs. Ham's cousin in Shanghai in connection with the case.

The Wichita Falls Community chest has been working on the proposition through Washington, D. C., officials for a number of years, and in the past year under the direction of Miss Myrle Neely, it was finally found possible to place the mother's name on the preferred list so that she may some day come to her daughter.

rigible in mid-ocean cruising steadily through a half gale. The weather reports tonight indicated that as soon as Dr. Eckener was able to guide the aircraft out of the storm area he would encounter favorable weather on to the coast of Ireland or the European coast.

The optimistic attitude of those on board the dirigible was reflected in a message which Dr. Eckener sent to the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshaften shortly before noon today.

"We hope to get out of the storm area," the message said, "reaching the Irish coast Wednesday morning and Friedrichshafen Wednesday night or Thursday."

Weather Excellent

A bright moon read over the ocean off the coast of Ireland, United Press dispatches from Queenstown reported. A soft west northwesterly wind prevailed and weather conditions generally were said to be "excellent."

After roving north and east along the Newfoundland banks during the early hours of Monday night, the Graf Zeppelin passed near Hillview, Newfoundland, where it was sighted by the radio operator heading out to sea. Darkness then concealed the maneuvers which Dr. Eckener made in an attempt to find the most favorable winds. In this he was fairly successful and the dirigible continued throughout the night at a fair speed, with its 25 passengers, 38 crew members and young stowaway.

ious tolerance. The new part of the speech will be on labor. He will speak in the armory where Herbert Hoover delivered his address on labor and the governor will take advantage of the situation to take up the same subject.

The governor saw his managers and close personal friends at the Biltmore hotel, but he denied himself to newspaper men while he worked on the Newark speech. His speech also probably will deal with prohibition and the tariff—two subjects which are of paramount interest in New Jersey.

May Have Last Word

The governor already has announced that he will speak on New York state issues at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn on Friday night. On Saturday night, he will sum up the campaign and hand it to the American electorate at Madison Square garden.

The Democratic standard bearer may have the "last word" in the campaign after all. Negotiations were under way today for a nationwide hook-up on Monday next after Herbert Hoover has delivered his final appeal from Palo Alto, Calif.

HOOVER TO KEEP COMPLETE SILENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. (UP)—Herbert Hoover will continue his policy of ignoring attacks from Gov. Alfred E. Smith until the close of the campaign six days hence, despite the Democratic presidential candidate's apparent intention to challenge him directly in a whirlwind finish.

Hoover has declined to enter any debate with his opponent, and there was only silence today on the most biting attack Smith has made—the Baltimore speech in which he again raised the religious issue, denounced intolerance and attempted to link the Republican national committee directly with Ku Klux Klan and Anti-Saloon league activities, and Hoover, himself, by association.

FIREWORKS AT ELECTRA RALLY

Cannon Crackers Fail To Daunt Preacher

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 30.—Efforts to break up a Herbert Hoover rally in the Hoover building here tonight with two explosions of giant firecrackers failed and were turned into laughs on Gov. Alfred Smith and Senator Joe Robinson by the speaker, Rev. Arthur W. Jones of Memphis. Efforts to find the perpetrators failed.

"The surest way to enforce the law is to put in office a man like Herbert Hoover, a believer in the law," the speaker said as the first explosion came.

"And that noise," the speaker continued with both arms raised aloft to quiet the audience, "is nothing compared to the noise of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York when he takes his big fall, Nov. 6.

"More than 98 per cent of the clergymen of this country favor Herbert Hoover. The Democratic speakers are attacking the preachers who are working for that which is right. They say we should talk about Christ and crucifixion. If our enemies could take our victory from us, it would be Christ crucified again."

Tammany was attacked, and Morris Sheppard was warned that the 18th amendment made him, not he it. "The same law that made Sheppard will unmake him," the speaker continued.

"No man could lead me in the direction of the wet traffic. As fine men as I think Moody, Williams and Sheppard are, I would rather go down the road with O. B. Colquitt to decency than down the others' road to perdition.

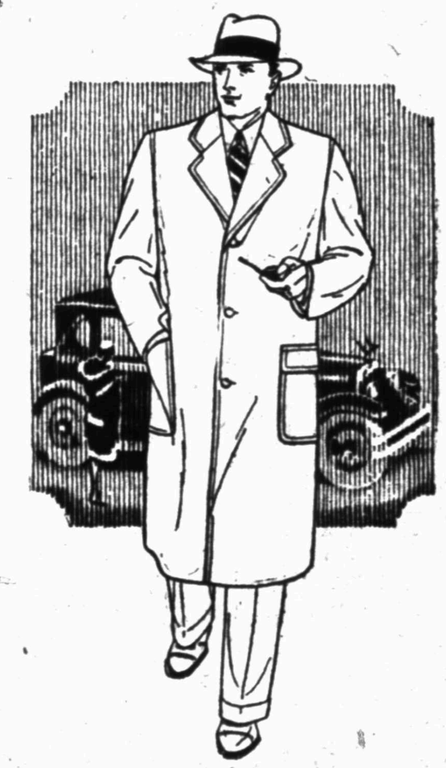

"The Democratic party could not defend its own candidate, so it has sought to defame Herbert Hoover."

At this point the second explosion came in the doorway at the rear of the building, but the crowd, which had been quick to realize the absence of danger after the first blast, scarcely stirred as the speaker continued. "That was the noise of the fall of Robinson on Nov. 6." The crowd roared.

N. CAROLINA IS CINCHED BY AL

Daniels Will Wage Successful Fight, Believed

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 30.—Of all the 16 states in the solid South, North Carolina is by common consent the one in which Herbert Hoover is supposed to have his best chance. It is, however, an outside chance with the advantage all in Governor Smith's favor. North Carolina is likely to go for Smith but by a closer margin than in any previous election. As 12 electoral votes are involved it is essential to Smith that he hold the state.

Foremost in the fight for him is Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy for eight years under Wilson, years ago a close associate of Bryan, dry to the core, member of the state Anti-Saloon league committee and the man who broke the heart of some North Carolina drys by refusing to bolt the Democratic ticket after losing this fight against Smith at Houston.

Simmons Aids Neither

On the anti-Smith side is the venerable figure of Senator Furnifold Simmons, 74 years old, for 27 years United States senator, one of the Democratic leaders in Washington, who said in a speech a few nights ago: "I would rather have my arm cut off than to vote for Smith." He has said he will not vote for either candidate, feeling unable to vote for Hoover because of his position in the Democratic senate organization at Washington.

Simmons has been a political leader of this state for years, but when he walked out of the Smith fold he went almost alone so far as the party organization is concerned. Except for him and a few county chairmen who have been displaced in the management, the organization Democrats are 100 per cent active for Smith.

The anti-Smith organization is not asking Democrats to vote for Hoover—only to refrain from voting for Smith. It is backed by the Rev. C. A. Upchurch, Anti-Saloon league superintendent. The Republicans have a regular permanent organization in North Carolina, contrary to the situation in many southern states.

Old Ballot Methods

One disadvantage to Hoover here is the fact that only a few counties in the state have the secret Australian ballot. In most counties the voter steps up to the election official and asks for either the Democratic or the Republican ballot depending upon how he wishes to vote.

Anti-Smith forces are preparing to meet this situation election day by supplying Hoover ballots themselves to prospective voters. This is said to be entirely legal and relieves the voter of having to ask election officials for a Republican ballot and incur whatever ignominy may be attached to that act in the more intensely Democratic precincts.

As Davis had an 85,000 majority over the combined Coolidge and La Follette vote, with the Democratic party not really exerting itself—it seldom has in presidential elections here—there is little likelihood Smith can lose enough votes because of religion and prohibition to be in danger.

Democrats privately claim the state by a minimum majority of 20,000 but predict Smith will run 75,000 votes behind the Democratic candidate for governor.

"No issue has been raised against Mr. Hoover in North Carolina on any ground except that having once been an appointee of President Wilson and having urged the voters to support the Wilson policies foreign and domestic, he accepted a place in Harding's cabinet after going back on the Wilson policies," Josephus Daniels said in discussing the campaign issues with the United Press.

Hoover Reactionary

"Actively or passively Hoover has been responsible for the Harding and Coolidge policies including Teapot Dome and the attempt to turn Muscle Shoals over to private interests. He is as reactionary as Coolidge to those who formerly thought Hoover was a liberal. Wilson vaccinated him for progressivism but it didn't take.

"Hoover's attitude on prohibition has been such as to cost him the vote for all staunch prohibitionists except those who had pledged themselves against Smith.

"Hoover never said he favored prohibition as a principle or a policy. He is permitting his managers to represent him as a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. He is very dry in the South and Kansas and very much in favor of modification in New York and Boston.

"Most prohibitionists in the South are convinced Smith could not procure any change in the law or the constitution. Therefore, they prefer to take Smith's statement that he will enforce the law even though he doesn't favor it to the warmed over promise of the Republican party which has been flagrantly violated. Smith could not do worse than Mellon has done in enforcement.

"The only promise I have made in the campaign is that when Smith is elected he will not appoint a distiller to enforce prohibition. He would keep his promise to enforce the law—something we have not had since Wilson went out of office.

"I accept at full value Mr. Hoover's pledge to carry out the Coolidge policies and as far as those policies on prohibition and all forms of privilege are concerned, we have had enough of those policies to last a million years."

Traveling Sky Pilot's Dire Threats Disrupt Residents of Small Town

PRETTY PRAIRIE, Kan., Oct. 30. (UP)—Religious fervor brought about by the exhortations of an itinerant evangelist, is believed by authorities here to have caused one woman to slash her throat, a man and his wife to become suddenly deranged and a third woman to become deathly ill.

It is said by those who attended the meetings that the evangelist brought the message that the universe was on the brink of the bowwows and that there was little hope for anybody. Singling out one woman, the evangelist told her she had about 10 days to live. Relatives of this woman declare she stood up well for a few days and then collapsed. She is reported in a serious condition.

Convinced by the preacher's arguments that a great calamity was just around the corner, Mrs. Simon Stuckey attempted to commit suicide by slashing her throat. Worry and nervous strain proved too much for Jacob Graber and his wife and they broke down. They were confined in a hospital for several days until they regained mental composure.

The serious consequences of the evangelist's doctrines brought about a cessation of the revival. His whereabouts are unknown.

FEDERAL VOTE PROBE DENIED

U. S. Has No Jurisdiction in Hidalgo Dispute

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 30. (AP)—The federal government has no jurisdiction over the question of barring from a ballot candidates for state and county offices, H. M. Holden, United States district attorney, today advised Mayor F. B. Freeland of McAllen, leader of the Hidalgo county "committee for election relief."

Mr. Holden pointed out that "definite charges" of violation of or conspiracy to violate federal statutes must be made to warrant a federal investigation and that allegations of specific violations had not been made by the committee in its message to him yesterday.

"If voters were being carted away forcibly from the polls in a state election, there's nothing the federal government could do about it," Mr. Holden said. "So far as I know, there has been no attempt in Hidalgo county to keep names of candidates for national office or of party presidential electors off the ballot."

But yesterday as he was bathing the babies, Christine, 1, and Claudia, 3, detectives walked into his home and arrested him. Mrs. Orey died when Christine was born.

Postal Officials Deny Vote Fixing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. (AP)—The postoffice department issued a statement today showing it had taken cognizance of published reports in the South that ballots in the Literary Digest straw vote had been improperly voted for Herbert Hoover by postoffice employes, at the same time saying there was no evidence to support the charges.

The statement declared that Postmaster General New had ordered an investigation on the strength of statements by T. H. Alexander, of the Nashville Tennessean, who said he had received letters from postal employes saying such a practice was being followed. Gardiner Shanks, the inspector who investigated, reported that Alexander "grossly exaggerated the matter and imagined the remainder, purely for political purposes."

Entire Election Board Ousted at Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 30. (AP)—The entire Cuyahoga county election board was removed from office today by Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state, and the duties of the board were taken over by his office, for alleged irregularities in the August primary election.

Brown's action went beyond a recent recommendation of a special grand jury, in that it included Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, Democratic national committee woman from Ohio and a member of the board. The grand jury, which last Friday charged the board with malefeasance and irregularities in the conduct of the Aug. 14 primary, had excepted Mrs. Pyke from its recommendations that the remaining three members of the board and its empolyes be removed.

Mr. Coolidge Sees Stability in Trade

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. (AP)—President Coolidge holds that business conditions are remarkably stable and prosperous, and that the foundation for this prosperity is securely established because it cannot be shaken by the presidential campaign now in progress.

Both imports and exports have been represented to him as keeping up and business conditions generally as being in a better state than a year ago.

In view of this, Mr. Coolidge is confident that tax returns for the current year will be large enough to wipe out the $100,000,000 deficit which had been estimated by next June 30.

Grateful Relief For Nervous Women

Delicately poised women who suffer from nervousness especially appreciate and profit by the use of Caupdine, the improved method of relief from pain and high nerve strain. In cases of periodic pains, nervous headache, neuralgic and rheumatic pains, Capudine gives most grateful relief. Being liquid, its acts almost instantly—much quicker than tablets and powders and is more effective. Capudine does not upset the stomach and contains no habit-forming drugs.

Capudine relieves nervousness and nerve pains by gently soothing the nerves—not by deadening them, therefore, it is perfectly safe. At all drug stores—30c and 60c sizes.—Adv.

Largest Woman Vote Ever Cast Is Predicted By Both Political Camps

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. (UP)—Both political parties anticipated today that the woman vote in next Tuesday's election will be the largest ever cast.

Both sides claim they will benefit tremendously from this vote, and many politicians claim that women will vote quite independently of how their "men folks" do.

Such politicians point to known examples of households in which the husband favors one candidate and the wife another. And, they insist, there are thousands of such homes in the country.

Republicans and Democrats alike have worked intensively to stir women voters. The Hoover group sent thousands of postcards to women voters asking them to pledge themselves to get a voter to the polls. Many responses came back. College women, industrial women and housekeepers were organized. Speakers were employed on both sides to draw the woman vote. Women were given important tasks in organizing their districts.

Women's Interest Stirred

The methods of each party were largely similar. Women have been told that they play a big role in this campaign, and their interest has been spurred as never before. Many authorities believe women are now only coming to a full realization of the importance and scope of "woman suffrage" though this has been effective, nationally, since 1920.

As reported by the United Press in its recent survey of registration, women have registered heavily this year. Everywhere the politicians are making special efforts to get out this vote. Arrangements are made at some points for precinct workers to see that the dinner and the baby are looked after while mother casts her vote. While the parties are organizing to get out a heavy ballot, non-partisan organizations are stressing the importance of exercising their franchise.

Fall for It

Many women have been particularly susceptible, according to reports here, to appeals based on prohibition.

On the one hand, there has been the appeal that prohibition must not be slackened. On the other there has been the appeal that prohibition requires some changes, on the claim that the present situation has in its elements dangerous to the country's youth.

The radio has played an important part in the campaign for it has reached both men and women in great numbers, whereas, "in the old days," father alone was likely to hear political preachments by going to the rallies.

SOCIETY Personals

Mrs. D. A. Baker has as her guest, Miss Lorene King of McKinney, Texas.

Miss Mathilde Weil of Rockport, Ind., arrived in Wichita Falls Tuesday to visit her cousins, Rabbi and Mrs. S. J. Schwab.

Sorosis Club To Meet With Mrs. Glover

Mrs. M. H. Glover will be hostess to the Sorosis club at her home Wednesday when Mrs. Stanley McGregor will lead the lesson.

Roll call will be answered with "Interesting Facts About Canada," and Mrs. McGregor will give a review of Mazo De La Roche's life and novel, "Jalna." Mrs. R. E. Hilburn will read a paper on "Differences in family life in Canada and the United States as portrayed by the novel."

O' These Women

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (US)—A beautiful example of what most wives aren't was demonstrated in Omaha. The wife believed in her husband, who was a huckster, thought him a good man who would provide for her and their children, so she let it go at that and didn't nag him about how much he made and what he did with it. They were happy.

He died the other day and had saved for her $43,000.

It's a curious thing how many women marry men they mistrust, thereby making jobs for judges.

There was a rule in Mexico City that there should be no kissing in public. Nobody obeyed it, and the new police inspector general threw it in the waste basket. But he did say, sort of nonchalantly, "Don't overdo it."

For instance: Don't kiss on these moving stair cases in department stores.

Don't kiss in streets except when you see stop lights. When green lights say go, then stop.

Don't kiss in crowded cafes, where waiters are carrying trays.

Don't kiss while driving an automobile.

Moving picture houses are foolproof, but it's better to watch the picture and learn how.

A woman of 68 married a youth of 28 the other day, out west.

He was born when she was 40. If she had courted him when she was 41 and he was one, it would have been easy for his nurse to have hidden him under the blankets. If at 50 she had decided he was her man, the 10-year-old boy's mother could have spanked him and put him to bed without supper. But 40 years of experience against 28 years of bewilderment could hardly be called 50-50.

The men who are forever bemoaning the disappearance of the old-fashioned, timid, feminine type will be happy to hear that in Evanston, Ill., a group of women at an afternoon lunch party called out the police to rescue them from a tiny mouse which was so frightened by their screams that he fell into a jar of jam.

A San Francisco girl killed nine polar bears and captured a cub. Not to underrate her victory, but if she is as pretty as the rest of the girls in San Francisco, one can't get excited over her markmanship. The bears probably walked right up to her and asked to be taken home.

Oakland police must have a mean disposition. A best man hurrying to a wedding with three gallons of wine for the celebration in his car, was arrested, had to post a bail of $750, and worst of all, face the wedding guests empty handed.

He was still the best man. There wasn't a better one there who knew how to get what was needed to make the wedding jolly.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

Maybe there was a time when a French designer designed only dresses, but what is that to Cherie? She palpitates in the living present and now designers have individual perfumes, jewelry and even fabrics. These are some signed and sealed French fabrics of the season. Left is a chenille velvet designed by Bianchini and featured by Callot. Next is Bianchini's black and white chiffon used by Lelong. Third is Wiener's metal brocade used by Molyneux. Fourth is Ducharne's plaid moire which Premet favors. Fifth is another metal brocade, designed by Bianchini and used by Molyneux. The designs are good as an autograph!

Cherie says "Versatile people the French"

Of course, there wasn't much Cherie could make of those swatches. Styles are not yet that skimpy. How lucky, then, that there's this fad for patchwork. Her Paris samples made a jolly sofa cushion! And now she and Dina can look at them at their leisure and decide which one they like the best. They are both dressed in gowns of taffeta because stiff fabrics are very good for evening wear. Cherie's black taffeta, to be sure, has a section of the bodice made of chiffon, but that's for contrast. Notice the irregular cut of the neckline. Dina's taffeta has a tulip design and a series of bows from the waist to the hem.

Washington Loses Popular Debs As Diplomats Receive New Posts

Brilliant Marriages to Foreigners Taking Many Society Leaders to Homes in Distant Lands

By GEORGINA WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Just at this time of year, when the diplomatic ranks are coalescing again and a new crop of debutantes is about to put in an appearance, one versed in the ways of this capital society can't help noticing how these two groups have "worked together," as it were, during the last two or three years.

I mean, to be sure, how the younger members of the diplomatic corps are carting off to the altar our prettiest and most charming girls, and vice versa. We welcome the spice young men from foreign lands who come to enliven our rather cut-and-dried parties; but never a season passes but these same prettiest girls snap them up for keeps.

Of course it's considered here a feather in any girl's cap when she can captivate a younger secretary of this or that embassy. And I wouldn't be surprised if these gentlemen themselves didn't think themselves pretty fortunate to land a Washington society girl with standing, beauty, and, ahem, a bit of cash.

At any rate, the international marriages of this sort that we have seen within the last 24 or 36 months count up right smart.

Always Transferred

The trouble is—and I don't believe the American girls always realize it when they buy their trousseaux—is that the young diplomats sooner or later, must be transferred to some unfamiliar shore, thus depriving their wives of the society in which they were brought up.

For instance, Henry L. D. A. Hapkinson of the British embassy recently had to leave this friendly town for diplomatic work in his own London. He takes with him the former Alice Eno, who is the present Mrs. Hopkinson. Alice will probably miss us this winter because she has been such a flame for the local moths to linger around.

Then there are four others of our pretty girls removed from here for similar reasons whose names come to mind this moment. Anita Henry is one of them. As the wife of Edwart von Selsam, formerly of the German embassy on Massachusetts avenue, she is now in Berlin, where her good looking husband is stationed.

It is whispered about that Anita of the scintillating personality is none too pleased over the prospect of having to "break in" over there. It's a depressing business, you know.

She who was Elizabeth Hitt, a bud of last season or so, and now the wife of Andor de Hertelendy, who used to be with the Hungarians here, is in Budapest doing the same thing as Anita.

Alison Roebling that was, now the Baroness Joseph Van Der Elst, whose brilliant nuptials are still a part of current comment, is establishing herself in Brussels; and Helen Carusi, one of the prettiest girls who ever had a debut party in Washington, has gone to Grenoble to play the part of hostess in the home of her distinguished husband, Major Emmanuel Lombard, formerly of the French embassy.

Of course there are other principals of these international marriages who are still here; but it probably "won't be long now" before they depart, too, leaving us to play matchmakers for even more romances of the same brand.

Others Remain

Major and Mme. Georges Thenault of the French menage are "in residence" in Washington; and we're afraid to breathe hard for fear they will fly the coop. Mme. Thenault was born Sara Spencer of Missouri and became a very popular girl in our own social set.

The Alfredo Gonsales Pradas, attached to the Peruvian legation, haven't moved yet either and will undoubtedly be two of the popular members of the diplomatic circle this winter. Mme. Prada was Elisabeth Howe, a Washington society girl. And the Leander McCormick-Goodharts—Mrs. McCormick-Goodhard was the beautiful Janet Philipe—are still gracing the councils of the British embassy. We are hoping they will stay a long, long time.

If we are losing many of our interesting diplomats through this process of transferrence, we are gaining a few in return. The charming Torrs, for instance.

Cyril James Wenceias Torr—to give the gentleman his full name—has just brought his young wife and their little daughter to town to settle down, Mr. Torr being the new second secretary at the British embassy.

They've taken a lovely old house in Georgetown, a place lately inhabited by a coterie of state department bachelors, and have thrown it open to guests.

Just a day or so ago I saw Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil—she who was Cornelia Vanderbilt, daughter of the present Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry—go in there, presumably for a visit. Because of her distinguished English husband, Mrs. Cecil must feel quite at home with Britishers.

Mr. Torr has a sister who will probably visit him this winter by way of keeping us interested. She is Mrs. A. T. McGrath, known through her books, travel, and lectures as Rosita Forbes.

Partnership Founded on 50-50 Basis Of Fairplay Is Ideal Marriage

The Ideal Marriage Is the Fifty-Fifty Marriage, in Which the Husband and Wife Bear an Equal Load of Responsibility in a Partnership Founded on Justice and Fair Play.

A girl asks: "What is a fifty-fifty marriage?"

A fifty-fifty marrage is the ideal of which every woman dreams and of which men—but men don't think about it at all.

It is the custom to describe matrimony as an equal partnership into which a man and woman enter, but this is a mere figure of speech. Nine marriages out of 10 are not partnerships. They are grafts in which one or the other of the high contracting parties has got a rotten deal.

Sometimes it is the man who gets the hot end of the bargain; sometimes it is the woman. There are just as many trifling, no-account wives who lie down on their jobs and let George do it all as there are lazy, loafing husbands who dump all of the domestic burdens on their wives' shoulders. There are just as many grasping, greedy husbands who take all and give nothing in return as there are gold-digger wives.

Neither sex has a monopoly on meanness. When it comes to rock-bottom selfishness and the desire to get the best for one's self, male and female are both in the running. And few there be, either husbands or wives, who can resist the temptation to trample on a human doormat if he or she happens to acquire one by marriage.

Such being the case and to meet a long-felt want, the idea of the fifty-fifty marriage is being put forth, and its design is to give both the husband and the wife a square deal. It is intended to abolish alike the parasitic wife and the serf husband and the slave wife and the Simon Legree husband.

As it is now many a man spends his life toiling to support a wife who makes absolutely no return for what she receives. He makes the money, she spends it. He can never afford to take a holiday, she takes nothing else. He is nailed to his desk the year round, she spends her summers in the mountains and her winters in Florida. He laps her in luxury, she never even gives a thought to his comfort.

In a fifty-fifty marriage the woman whose husband is able to support her so that she does not need to follow any gainful occupation after marriage feels that she is only being honest when she gives him a fair run for his money. He supplies the house and the raw materials, and it is up to her to take them and make them into a comfortable home. She feels that she would be as much defaulting on her part of the contract to be a poor housekeeper as he would be if he were a poor provider.

She considers that it would be more shameful for her husband to neglect his business and let it go into bankruptcy while he played golf than it would be for her to devote so much time to her clubs that she had none to make the beds and sweep the floors or to feed him on delicatessen messes and out of paper bags because she stayed so late at the bridge game or the matinee that she couldn't get him up a decent dinner. In a word, she goes fifty-fifty with him. He brings home the bacon and she fries it to his taste.

In these days it is necessary for many young wives to continue to be money-earners after they are married. Very often these marriages are called fifty-fifty marriages because the wife contributes her share of money to the upkeep of the home, but in reality they are nearly always 75 to 25 marriages, with the woman putting in the most.

For almost always she contributes not only her part of the money for running the home but does the work as well. She buys the food and cooks it, while husband lies on the couch and reads the paper and tells her to hurry up. She spends her evenings scrubbing and cleaning while he puts on his hat and steps out to the movies to get out of the confusion.

In a real fifty-fifty marriage, where the wife contributes half the money for the support of the home, the husband does half the housework. There is no mystery about performing on a gas range that any man who can tune in on a radio can't fathom. As a matter of fact, the best chefs and cleaners are of the masculine persuasion, and it is up to husbands to strut their domestic stuff in the cases where their wives are also tired business men. If the wife helps make the money, the husband should help with the housework.

In the fifty-fifty marriages the husbands will feel that the marriage contract is as binding on them as it is on their wives and that they are just as much married as their wives are, and that it is just as much their duty to try to make their homes happy as it is their wives'.

Heretofore men have felt that if they support their families in reasonable comfort they have done all that could be expected of them. They felt that they had the right to bring home all of their temper and nerves and dump them on the hearthstone, and if wife didn't like it she could lump it. If they were bored they considered it their privilege to sally forth in the evening in search of livelier and gayer company than that found at home.

But the fifty-fifty husband realizes that he must be a little ray of sunshine in the home also if there is to be cheer and brightness there; that he must consider his wife's tastes and whims and peculiarities as much as he expects her to adapt herself to him; that it is just as necessary for him to remain the lover as it is for her to continue to be a vamp, and that she gets fed up on domesticity and needs her night off just as much as he does.

Furthermore, in the fifty-fifty marriages the husband is a 50 per cent father instead of being a total loss, except as a bill-payer, in the way of most American men. He doesn't turn over the entire rearing of the children to their mother. He doesn't deliberately half-orphan his children because between his business and his golf he has no time for them.

He helps his wife take care of them when they are little. He plays with them when they are adolescent. He molds their character when they are plastic, and when they are grown they are an honor to him instead of a disgrace.

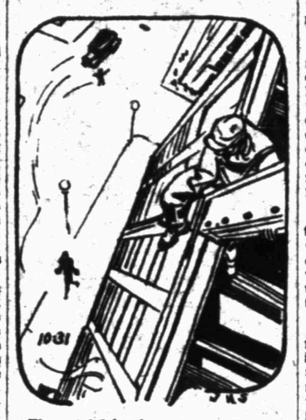

That is what the fifty-fifty marriage is going to be. And it is going to make the old fairy tale come true: "And when they were married they lived happily ever afterward." Because the ideal marriage is founded on justice and fair play, and that always works out successfully.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Christopher Morley, our well-known American author of books and plays, has joined with Cleon Throckmorton, successful scenic designer, whose stage settings have been the object of much admiration on the part of the theatrical public—Henry Wagstaff Gribble, who has given Broadway many a big hit, and finally Conrad Milliken, sponsor of New York plays—and together they hied themselves to Hoboken, in the neighboring state of New Jersey. There they have formed the Hoboken Theatrical company, and at the Old Rialto theater, are offering an excellent stock company's efforts in Broadway shows. Some of them are successes of recent years, while "the-first-time-on-any stage" productions will be included in the season's roster. Mr. Morley himself, contributes to the latter class. Recently he told of an amusing line, sent to him, by a friend, who wrote:

"—and now I know, Morley, why you chose Hoboken, as the scene of your newest activity. St. Christopher was ever the patron saint of ferry-boats."

Charlotte Temple—remember the volume that tells of the fate of the unhappy girl, who came here during early American days? How she is said to have married a handsome young English officer, who deserted her? And how she died—broken-hearted, and rests these many years, in Trinity churchyard, there at the head of Wall street? Almost mockingly—to be buried within the shadow of a mart, known for its wealth—a girl, who knew dire poverty in a strange land, among strange people. Time has worn down the stone that marks poor Charlotte's grave, but the romantic ones of life, will ferret it out, as long as ever a sign of it remains.

Two old ladies, stood close to the iron fence, that surrounds the old church and its adjoining God's-acre. Pointing to a half-sunken slab of stone, one said—

"I think that is where the poor, dear girl lies buried. My, oh my, I've at last seen it. Since I've been a young girl, I've always wanted to see the spot where Charlotte Temple rests—and now I'm here." After musing a minute, the lady remarked— "The rake—to have left her thus—to find death, while still so young! Men—oh, what men there are in the world." And while the occasion hardly warranted a smile, the speaker did resort to one, when her companion, a gray, curly-headed little old body—active beyond her years, replied—"Yes—and the devils are as bad now-a-days, as they ever were."

Orchard street— the place where you can buy anything from a penny dill pickle to a Kolinsky fur coat for milady. Ah, there's the place to shop. But watch your step—the merchants are keen—as the housewife who comes to drive a bargain over a karp for Friday evening's meal. A corner of the towners, there's a wealth of human Big City, quite unknown to out-of-push-carts that line either side of interest, hemmed in by the rows of the East Side street. Its fame has come to be known to shrewd buyers and it is no uncommon sight to see strangely affluent appearing women arguing about the price of silk underwear or gossamer hose. A young helps to cover her young infant, mother, wearing a shawl which stands nearby, too bargaining, but in a strange tongue. The colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady, are sisters under the skin!

Living by Bread Alone

IN THE state of Connecticut there is a peaceful little village that has been drowsing beneath the shade of its great elm trees since before the revolution.

Main street swept down a gentle hill in a wide, lazy curve. Giant elms flanked the length of it. Behind them were the colonial houses, trim in white clapboards and green shutters, looking very much as they looked when Washington's army marched through. There were no street cars, no busses, no factories and no noises. The town was simple, concentrated peace.

But last summer the state began a highway improvement program. The road that curved through the village had to be widened and straightened. Down came the magnificent elms. The wide lawns were chopped off ruthlessly. Now a broad, straight belt of concrete runs through the town. The trees are gone. The old houses have lost their dignity. Huge convoys of trucks rumble through at all hours. The peace and quiet of colonial days have gone.

All of this, no doubt, comes under the general heading, "Progress."

Progress, of course, is our national watchword. Nowhere on earth is there such a fear of being behind the times as in this country. If chopping down an irreplaceable row of elms and ruining the beauty of a town that took two centuries to mellow will give us progress, we are always ready to get our axes.

But we really ought to go a little slowly.

The effort to live by bread alone is always a bit dangerous. There are times when we seem to be trying it. This Connecticut road-building job—which, of course, might have happened in any of the states—is evidence to that effect.

What is America, anyway? It is not simply a collection of industrial sites and transportation facilities. It is not simply a huge group of highly prosperous individuals who never cease to praise heaven that they are richer than any other men on earth. It is not simply a machine for producing things in ever-increasing abundance. Those are only part of its aspects.

It is, among other things, a land of great and varied beauty; beauty of sleepy New England towns, beauty of flat mid-western prairies, beauty of southern plantations, beauty of western mountains and northern forests. This beauty has had a deep effect on the national character. It has helped, in no small way, shape the idealism that has made us great.

But sometimes we actually seem to dislike this beauty. We plaster the country side with big billboards, marring scene after scene. We disfigure mountain valleys with incredibly squalid mining towns. We turn pleasant rivers into factory-stained sink holes. We destroy the charm of ancient towns to make wider roads.

It won't do. If we cannot preserve the beauty and charm that still remain to us, no other nation on earth ever will envy us, for all our wealth.

Horses for Airplanes

SCORE one for the horse, fighting a losing fight against mechanical means of transportation.

A Chicago-Omaha air mail plane made a forced landing the other day at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Heavy rains came up, and when the pilot tried to resume his flight the plane was too deeply mired in the muddy field. He could not budge it.

How was the problem solved? With the aid of the horse! A farmer brought a team, which was hitched to the plane was dragged out to dry ground, from which it was able to take off successfully.

You can't quite count the horse out, even in this day of travel through the air.

The Tragedy of the Aged

A HOME for the aged is not, probably, an extremely pleasant place. Undoubtedly, its inmates are people who entered only as a last resort, when in danger of actual starvation.

Yet a report from the Welfare Council of New York city reveals that in New York there are at least 6,000 people, most of them over 80 years of age, awaiting their chances for admission to one or another of the 82 homes for the aged in that territory. The situation probably is proportionately the same in most other large cities.

What tremendous tragedy lies behind that statement! Think of the broken hopes, the despair, the loneliness that it represents. Surely, welfare organizations, and society in general, have no greater duty than to see to it that everything possible be done to avert or soften these tragedies.

THIS IS THE YOUNG MAN'S WORLD

A successful business man tells young men: "There was a day when you had to have gray hair to be trusted with large responsibility. But that time is gone. This is an age of young men. If you train yourself to work hard as a youth, all opportunity is yours." But when the youth's hair turns gray will he still have the opportunity that once belonged only to the gray haired? Every age will have to be recognized for its special worth and given its due of opportunity and reward.

GIVE HAND TO YOUNG LADIES

Monday and Tuesday Gainesville will have the privilege of rallying to the support of an organization whose purpose is "to find and give the best"—Y. W. C. A.

Surely our citizens will deem it a happy chance that they are to have this opportunity to render a definite benefaction to the girlhood of the city and its environs.

When we render assistance to this organization, we are helping an association which aims to help do these things for each member: "Make her physical self as perfect as possible through happy, wholesome recreation and a striving for health; make her mind keen and alert, keep her thoughts clean and kind and to keep her spirit lovely and loving through putting it in the keeping of our Friend, Jesus Christ; these three—body, mind and spirit—she dedicates to the service of God and our country, and of the girls the world over."

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, successful young novelist, has hidden from the world his old name Paul Forrester, because the latter was connected with a self-defense killing out West, and Dean still carries the scar of that encounter. But a series of circumstances swirls him into a vortex of mysteries. First he reads a deathbed confession of the murder of Paul Forrester five years before, made by Martin Lamont, western business man, on a visit to New York, and witnessed by Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, and Dr. John Ballinger, well-known doctor. Then a mysterious lady, Viola Gray, visits him and Lieutenant Shane finds the remains of the murdered man in "The Room Under the Stairs," of Dean's deserted family home. A watch marked "P. F." completes the identification, although Dean finds pieces of another watch crystal at the scene of the murder. Later an attempt is made on his life by Freddie Mills, a hired assassin, and Dean's subsequent appearance alive produces a startling effect on both Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger. Finally, after Dean has heard a woman's screams through the dying man's telephone, Lamont is murdered, and Dean trails the lawyer to a hidden room in the latter's house. There he finds Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter, held as prisoner and is discovered by Littleby, who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes. Trapped together they can find no way out of the secret room. Meantime, Lieutenant Shane finds Miss Gray in "The Room Under the Stairs" at the old Forrester home and shares her discovery of an important piece of paper. Together they set out for Littleby's house. Trapped together Dean and Shirley are nearly suffocated by a gaseous cloud that descends on them in the secret room, but a sudden ring at their telephone shows that Littleby is willing to make terms. Appealing to his chivalry, the lawyer forces Dean to suicide to save the girl.

The Shattered Crystal

Ghosts everywhere! Ghosts of dimly remembered days, of childhood and early youth, of love and tragedy and death. They seemed to peer out from dusky corners, where the light from the candles on the mantel-shelf did not reach, whispering dark and sinister secrets.

With Shirley Lamont walking in moody silence before him, Dean followed Lieutenant Shane through the old house on Hudson street. The lieutenant, always thorough-going in his methods, had expressed a desire for a final glance at the place—"just to check up on a few points," he he had confided to Dean before they started.

They paused before the door to the room under the stairs, and Dean recalled with a shudder what he had seen in there, the ghastly heap whose presence in that particular place had seemed a mocking travesty, a challenge to his reason.

"Guess we won't go in," said Shane, with a glance at Miss Lamont. "We'll let the ghosts rest. They need it after all this hulabaloo. Suppose we step in here?"

They returned to the sitting room, where the candles had been lighted once more, for it was late in the evening of the day following Littleby's suicide in his house at Kew Gardens. Dean placed one of the old chairs for Miss Lamont.

"It's been a day I'll never forget," sighed Lieutenant Shane.

"I shall remember it chiefly," said Dean, "as the day on which I escaped becoming a millionaire." That afternoon, with the assistance of Dr. Ballinger, he had searched Littleby's papers until he found the lawyer's copy of the formula for arselene. Then the lawyer had surrendered his own, the only other copy in existence, and they had burned them both, jestingly remarking as they did so that $15,000,000 were going up in smoke. "On the whole, I think," he added, "that the world is better off without such diabolical things as arselene."

"Guess you're right, seeing how much devilitry has grown out of it already," Shane assented. "But $15,000,000 is a lot of money."

"It makes my head ache to think in such vast amounts," Dean confessed.

"Mine, too," said Lee promptly.

Dean gave her a mysterious glance. "Two headaches under one roof would be an awful calamity. Now, dear," as she blushed confusedly, "don't waste your blushes on a hardened ruffian like Shane. He knows I am hopelessly in love with you."

"I've got eyes," said Shane dryly, but with a twinkle in his astonishingly blue eyes.

"And I've got ears," Dean rejoined. "There's something they are aching to hear. Who was murdered in this house five and a half years ago?"

Shane waited a few moments before he replied. Lee sat tremulously erect in his chair, casting fascinated glances into the dim corners.

"A man called Parson Bill," said the lieutenant. "He was one of the group your father associated with out West. I don't know how keen a judge of character your dad was, but he seems to have made one or two bad mistakes in picking his friends. One of them was Littleby, though he didn't turn bad till he saw a chance of making a pile of millions. The other was the fellow known as Parson Bill. Now, I haven't found anybody who knows the whole story, but I've pieced it together from what I could get out of Miss Farnham and from what Dr. Ballinger and Miss Gray told me. Great girl, that Miss Gray! She's smarter than she looks, and I guess a few years older, too. Had me all up in the air for a while. Guess she will likeep Dr. Ballinger guessing, though she is just as wild about him as he is about her. It's a good match. Dr. Ballinger is what I would call a twenty-four-carat man, and though he's all of 40, there's a lot of the twenties in him."

"But what about Parson Bill"? inquired Dean.

"He was bad clean through, as near as I can judge from reports. Somehow he seems to have got into your father's confidence. As you know, your dad traveled about a lot and spent very little time in New York, except when he came East on business.

"He wasn't particularly fond of New York and now and then he would send Parson Bill here to look after things for him. Your father told him to put up at this house and make himself at home. He even gave him a set of duplicate keys. It seems Parson Bill objected to staying at hotels for some reason, so the arrangement suited him fine. I guess, Dean, you didn't spend much time in this house after your mother died and your father got the wanderlust. That's why you never ran into Parson Bill."

Dean nodded.

"It seems," Shane continued, "that there was a young girl in this town that Parson Bill had his eye on. She was very young then, and she didn't care for him, but he was a friend of her father's, so she had to stand for a certain amount of attention from him. One night Parson Bill struck New York and started drinking. By some hook or crook—possibly by pretending he had a message from her father, who was then in Colorado—he induced her to call on him at this house. There was a scene; you can imagine something of what happened. The girl fought like a hyena. Finally, in desperation, she picked up the fire tongs. When it was all over Parson Bill was lying dead on the floor, and the girl was terrified at what she had done. She couldn't report the facts without starting all sorts of nasty gossip. She was strong, and Parson Bill didn't have any flesh on his big bones, and her only clear thought was that the body mustn't be found there—at least not for a awhile. She hid it, together with the fire tongs, in the room under the stairs. Now maybe you understand?"

"The girl was Viola Gray?" Dean exclaimed.

"Right. For a long time she told no one but her father what had happened. Somehow Littleby, who was a member of the same group, got hold of these facts, but he kept them to himself. Later, when Dr. Ballinger began making love to her, she confessed to him, and he treated her confession as any 24-carat man would. Now you understand why he has kept his mouth closed and looked mysterious throughout this whole mess. Littleby had the facts, and he used them to exert pressure on the doctor. Then early yesterday morning, as we were leaving Littleby's house, little Miss Gray decided that matters had gone far enough and told me the whole story."

Dean and the girl had listened with rapt attention. A little pause followed the lieutenant's recital.

"But Lamont's confession?" asked Dean, reverting to the core of the mystery.

Shane smiled wryly. "There's such a thing as being too thorough-going," he said musingly. "That was Littleby's fault. He wanted to improve on an almost sure thing. The arselene project was coming along in fine shape, except for one thing. The formula was by rights the property of Paul Forrester. Everybody thought Paul Forrester was dead. Littleby was almost sure of it, but he had no proof. He didn't want to bring matters to a successful conclusion and then have Paul Forrester walk in on him some bright morning and claim the entire profits.

"Such a thing wasn't likely to happen, yet it might. Littleby wouldn't take chances. He decided to appeal to the courts to have Paul Forrester declared legally dead, as is sometimes done when a person has been missing a number of years. But the courts would insist on some proof, aside from the mere fact of Paul Forrester's absence, Littleby had none.

Shane cast a solicitous glance at the girl. "Then Mr. Lamont came to town, a very sick man, and Littleby invited him to his house. A telegram was sent to Miss Lamont, at Wichita, advising her to come to New York at once. Then—Will you tell the rest or shall I, Miss Lamont?"

"Go on," said the girl in a low voice.

"Miss Lamont has already told me," Dean put in, "how she was trapped by Littleby and made a prisoner in his house."

"Well, Littleby had a bright idea," said Shane contemptuously. "He thought he saw his chance to fabricate evidence that would induce the courts to pronounce Paul Forrester legally dead. A confession of murder would serve as well as anything. He knew a great many details about Forrester's life until the time he disappeared. He also knew about the heap of bones in the room under the stairs. He pieced all those things together and dictated a confession which the persuaded Mr. Lamont to sign. It was complete and convincing enough to satisfy anybody. But just how he got Mr. Lamont to put his name to the paper in the presence of a notary is something I don't see. I have an idea, but——"

"I think I understand," Dean interrupted. Scraps of observation, together with scattered remarks dropped by the girl, became suddenly a unified whole in his mind. "Mr. Lamont knew that his daughter was kept hidden in Littleby's house. He was warned that she would be put to death unless he signed the confession. There was a telephone at his bedside, and whenever he showed signs of wavering he was told to listen in on the wire and hear his daughter's screams as she was being terrorized by Littleby's henchman. Mr. Littleby loved his daughter, and he simply did what any real father would have done.

"Then I appeared on the scene, after the confession had been published in the newspaper, and several circumstances led Littleby to suspect that I was Paul Forrester. He tried first to frighten me away, then to have me murdered, but he failed both times. Then, in the event that I should declare myself as Paul Forrester—which, by the way, I had no intention of doing—he tried to substantiate the confession still further by compelling Mr. Lamont to give added details—such, for instance, as having noticed a scar on his victim's neck. He was even forced to declare that he suspected me of trafficking after his life.

"If at any time he rebelled, the screams on the wire quickly subdued him. He had been warned that if he told any one—Dr. Ballinger, for instance—of his daughter's presence in the house, she would be instantly murdered.

"A strong and healthy man would have yielded to such persuasion, much more readily a dying one. And in the end, fearing that he might live long enough to retract his confession, Littleby murdered him."

Dean's voice grew a little thick toward the end. Even now that Littleby was dead, he felt a resurge of rage against the man. "Arselene was too good for him," he muttered.

"He isn't the first man who's lost his head over a bunch of coin," Shane philosophized. "By the way, remember those pieces of glass, Dean? What do you make of them by this time?"

"Oh," said Dean thoughtfully, "I think I can turn my imagination loose on that problem and solve it, though it puzzled me for a while. I suppose Parson Bill's watch was broken in his struggle with Miss Gray. The fragments I found were from his watch. Littleby, I suppose, inspected the room under the stairs when he arranged his material for the confession. Mr. Lamont was to sign, and he found the broken watch. Perhaps there was something distinctive about it; anyway, he feared it might upset his whole scheme. While roaming about the house he had found an old watch of mine, and he substituted it for Parson Bill's. That's how I would dope it out."

Shane grinned. "You're improving. Last time you tried to theorize about that watch, you handed me a solution that was full of holes. But maybe," with a shrewd wink in the novelist's direction, "you were only shamming."

"Perhaps," said Dean evasively. "Anyhow, I've come to the conclusion in the last few days that truth is a lot stranger than fiction—even my sort of fiction."

Shane yawned ostentatiously and got up. Soon he bid them goodnight and walked out. For a time they sat silent in the wavering glow of the red and green candles, the Dean took her hand and led her slowly from the room. In the hall their steps faltered; by common instinct they stopped in front of the room under the stairs.

"Tommie," she whispered, leaning against his shoulder and drawing a long breath, "life has its happy endings, too, hasn't it?"

"Happier," he said with great conviction. Then, impetuously, while they were still standing in front of the room under the stairs, he tilted her head back. His cheek brushed hers. Then a kiss—their first.

"That will lay the ghosts," he declared triumphantly.

FAVORITES

It's a very good plan to be cheery,
As you follow your long, rocky road,
Although you're disheartened and weary
From lugging a terrible load.

It's a sensible plan to be doing
Some real, honest work while you can,
For the goddess of luck is pursuing
The toiling, industrious man.

It's easy to loaf and to loiter,
And revel in ease and in fun,
Yet it seems that the Lady Luck sorter
Favors men who can toil in the sun.

JERSEY BRIDE WARMLY WOOED

Both Al and Hoover Claim Electoral Dowry

By D. FIELD BRITTLE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 30.—Having been showered with flattering attention that bespeaks the value of her favor, New Jersey is in fluttering preparation to choose between two ardent wooers, Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith.

The electoral head of the family is receiving a wealth of counsel as to whether the dowry of 14 votes should remain with Hoover in the Republican household of Coolidge or should return with Smith to the Democratic possession once shared by the family of Wilson. Mr. Hoover has paid his call in person and left able seconds on the premises, while Governor Smith has made fleeting visits and is returning with more flowers.

Both Claim Favors

If New Jersey is at all undecided, the candidates' lieutenants are not; the rival camps are assuring themselves that the decision is made. For the Democrats' part, they expect the governor's forthcoming Newark declarations definitely to bind the pact, but the Republicans argue that nothing can change the outcome. They talk of majorities up to a quarter of a million.

Aside from the normal value of 14 electoral votes, New Jersey's have added importance in the battle plans of both sides. Those at stake here are a worthy part of the even 100 for which Smith is fighting in Eastern seaboard states, and it is conceivable that the loss of any considerable portion of them might turn the scales. Likewise, it is the Republican belief that if Hoover drives a large wedge into the combined strength of New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Delaware, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, that division will assure him victory.

In this state it appears that as usual the decision will be written here in Hudson county and its neighbor, Essex, the two holding the populous Jersey City and Newark, where strong Democratic majorities in the past have given the party its advantage.

Registrations Jump

In these two counties that make up approximately one-third of the state's total vote, registration of voters suddenly increased by leaps and bounds, so suddenly and heavily in fact as to arouse Republican suspicion and to bring prompt action. After making charges that apartment houses, sail boats, tombstones and dead persons were registered as voters, Republican election officials struck about 40,000 names from the polls. Those scratched have had to resort to crowded legal channels to seek reinstatement.

Another source of embarrassment to the Democrats here is the Republican legislature's investigation of the administration and activities of this city's Democratic mayor, Frank Hague, who also is the party's leader in the state. There are some who believe that the investigation will react unfavorably upon Smith's chances, but Hague is as confident as ever that his following will remain intact.

In this state of undisputed wet tendencies, in both parties, it is a strange consideration that the Democratic campaign thus far has not been very loud in its emphasis of the prohibition question.

But despite the lack of fireworks on the subject, it is the known wetness of voters in the industrial regions of the normally Republican strongholds that is attracting the close attention of both camps.

Chest Issues Appeal For Final Payments

Appeals which recently were mailed out by the Wichita Falls Community chest to those who have not yet completed payment on their past due subscriptions to the chest have met with slight response on the part of Wichitans it was revealed Tuesday.

The notices sent out covered delinquent payments total ing $12,000, and the response has been less than $200.

Chest workers said Tuesday that they hoped to receive a number of checks in the next few days. The need of paying the subscriptions at once was emphasized as there are heavy expenses yet to be met out of this year's budget.

First License Under New Ordinance Issued

GYPSY TICKET SALE STARTS

Monday Night Musicale Draws Interest

Considerable interest is being manifest among music lovers of Wichita Falls in the musicale, "Twilight in Gypsyland," which the Woman's Forum will present in its auditorium next Monday night. Ticket sale opened Monday at the McConnell Furniture company's store on Indiana street and a large crowd is expected to witness the production which promises to be one of the season's interesting events.

"While Twilight in Gypsyland" is of sufficient interest in itself to occupy the center of activities, it will serve as the opening event of the forum's annual flower carnival which opens at the Fritz Motor company's building the following morning. In connection with the production the coronation of the rose queen who will preside over the carnival will be staged.

In typical Gypsy stage settings, more than 60 singers, comprising leading soloists and members of the various local choral organizations, will appear in costume and the program will present lilting melodies for solo voices, duets, quartets and ensemble arrangements. In addition to vocal numbers several dance selections will be offered.

Rehearsals for the production have been in progress several weeks under the direction of Mrs. Lois Parker and only one more rehearsal will be held before "Twilight in Gypsyland" will be staged Monday. The singers will assemble in the parish house of the Episcopal church Friday night for the last rehearsal.

The Reader's Opinion

The columns of The Record News are open to its readers for the discussion of questions of current interest or import. Letters should be not more than 300 words in length, preferably shorter, and should be signed with the name and address of the writer. Initials, or pen-name, will be substituted upon request. Letters must be free of personal abuse or libel, and the editor reserves the right to reject parts or all of letters.

RANDLETT, Okla., Oct. 30.—Editor Record News: I again wish to thank you for printing my last letter. However, I will have to ask you to correct one word.

You made me say fictitious when I said "facetious." I did not want to say that about your comment on one of my former letters; you have been too fair; I could not say that.

Please bear with me as I have had a vision, part of which has been at close range and part farther away. On that vision I am going to base a prophecy. I do not claim that the vision was or is of heavenly origin except in so far as all good thoughts are of God.

I saw our good old Democratic "mule" pass through such a terrible experience that changed him in most all of his vital parts. We honestly toiled on that mule more than seven years, buoyed up with the hope that a good, dry Democrat would ride him into the White House. But, behold, after working on that mule in precinct, county, state and national conventions, presto, what a change. That mule went to Houston a well fed, well groomed and well behaved mule—there dictated a perfectly dry platform.

During all of our labor on that mule, Tammany hall was tutoring, coaching and preparing an expert surgeon known as the Tammany tiger. That tiger was secretly taken to Houston, where our good old, honest, dry mule was operated upon by that tiger.

First, Tammany anaesthetized that mule by giving him a dose of what they called tolerance. That mule did not want to take it, but Tammany gave Al Smith a big stick which he held over our mule's head and said, though our mule kicked and reared, gave the sign of distress of all good Democratic mules—Al said, "Shut up. I'm your boss. take it." Then the Tammany Tiger performed a most diabolical operation on that mule, dismembering, disemboweling and removing vital parts, leaving only his gall. That gall was openly injected with more gall and a lot of booze before leaving Houston.

Since that time that gall has been travelling in an eleven coach train all over this good old United States and at each stop has been injected with more gall and booze until it is so enormously distended that on the sixth of November it is going to burst and cover Al Smith under an avalanche of righteous votes.

Now if you will bear with me, I am going to place the responsibility of that operation. First, it lies with Al Smith (a self styled) Democrat, and John J. Raskob (a self styled), Republican. Second, a wet press, and third, a bunch of loud mouthed Tammycrats i. e. politicians. Now don't make me say "Tom Cats" for I regret to say that both sexes are engaged in this despicable work.

God being our helper, there will be a day of reckoning, there will be a tomorrow. Look out, yellow streaked politicans and watch your step. The voters of America are watching you.

I am a natural fighter—however I always come out in the open and fight fair. I never strike below the belt. I always endeavor to wham the Devil in the nose no matter whose mug he may be hilding behind. I do not hesitate to take what I consider the side of right on any public or private question.

My father fought and my mother prayed four long bloody years for what they believed to be right. And during that unhappy period on the 12 of Nov. 1864, my mother went down into the valley of the shadow of death and brought forth my trembling spul. So you see it is natural for me to pray as well as fight. Oh God, strengthen our courage, teach us how to live. If it be they blessed will that we die—may it be as pure Americans and true Christian soldiers. Amen.

GARDNER SECURES FOUR NEW PLAYERS FROM MINOR LEAGUES

SPUDDER PREXY BUYS LEFTIES

Shortstop and Catcher Also Obtained

By GORDON FULCHER

Cold weather is by no means hindering J. Alvin Gardener, president of the Wichita Falls Baseball club, in obtaining new players for the 1929 Spudder team. Four new men, two left hand pitchers, a shortstop and a catcher were drafted from minor leagues and will report to the Spuders next spring.

The two pitchers which were obtained in the draft by Gardner are Fred Stieley, from Scranton, Pa., in the New York-Pennsylvania league, and Edwin Ellis, from Jacksonville, Fla., in the Southeastern league. These two left handers, along with another southpaw which Gardner intends to deal for in the major leagues, will take the place of Mike Cvengros, Wichita Falls pitcher, who was drafted into major league baseball this fall, according to Gardner.

Newcomers Sluggers

George Spiers of Greenville, S. C., in the South Atlantic league, is the new Spudder short stop. Spiers batted .300 last season with Greenville. Jack Crouch from Joplin, Mo., of the Westren association, will be the new Spudder catcher. Crouch hit .357 last season.

All of the four men who were obtained in the draft are reputedly good ball players and highly recommended by major league scouts, according to the Spudder president. Gardner now asscrts that he expects to produce as good or better team than has ever been turned out in Wichita Falls next season.

Other New Players

Debs Garmes, a short stop, who was with Abilene in the West Texas league last season, and a star player from Howard Payne college will battle with Rabbit Benton and Spiers for the short stop position, next spring while Garland Orr, outfielder, who led the West Texas league in hitting, last season will also report to the Spudders this season, according to Mr. Gardner.

Three men who were acquired from the St. Louis Browns in a trade for Tom Jenkins and Herb Cobb will be secured by Gardner when the Browns report for spring training at West Palm Beach next spring.

Several other new players will be secured at the twenty-seventh annual convention of the National Association of Baseball leagues at Toronto, Canada on Dec. 5, 6 and 7, Mr. Gardner stated. Jim Galloway, Spudder manager, and Gardner will attend the convention as representatives of the Wichita Falls club.

Tex Opens Winter Boxing Card Nov. 5

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (UP)—With only one championship bout scheduled during the remainder of this year, the boxing business around New York is in a sad state of affairs.

Little interest is being shown in any division and those boxers—Mickey Walker, Jimmy McLarnin and Knute Hansen—who might attract a profitable crowd, refuse to meet a first rate opponent for anything less than preposterous guarantees.

Paolino at Garden

Madison Square garden will return to its weekly boxing program in November, offering as the first attraction, a heavyweight bout between Paolino Uzcudun and Otto von Porat, an inexperienced Norwegian. Paolino in his last appearance against Big Boy Peterson at Ebbetts field, drew only 5,000, one of the smallest crowds of the outdoor season.

Tiny Roebuck, the 235-pound Choctaw Indian, will make his debut in the semi-final of the same card against Arthur de Kuh.

Palino was not suspended today by the New York State Athletic commission for fouling Peterson last week, but will be allowed to go through with his bout against Von Porat, after which the customary 30-day suspension will automatically go into effect.

One Title Batte

The only championship bout booked for the rest of the year will take place Nov. 16, when Joe Dundee, the welterweight, titleholder, meets "Blackjack" Thompson, the California negro, in a 15-round bout. Thompson won on a technical knockout in a previous bout at Chicago in which Dundee's title was not at stake. The four bouts booked for Madison Square garden follow:

Nov. 5—Paolino Uzcudun vs. Otto von Porat, heavyweights, 10 rounds. Semi-final—Arthur de Kuh vs. Tiny Roebuck, heavyweights, 10 rounds.

Nov. 16—Joe Dundee vs. Jack Thompson, welterweights, 15 rounds; title bout.

Nov. 23—Young Stribling vs. Napoleon Jack Dorval, heavyweights, 10 rounds.

Dec. 10—Rene de Vos vs. Ace Hudkins, welterweights, 10 rounds.

Auto For Horse Chief

PITTSBURGH.—The city has provided an auto for David G. McDonald, chief of the bureau of horses. However, McDonald must get along with transportation valued at not more than $700 instead of the $1,200 model he had selected.

Shields for Bespectacled Stars

Wearing glasses is no longer any permanent obstacle to modern football players. Here are three 1928 players who have special helmets with unbreakable lenses to shield their "cheaters." And they're all backs, engaged in the rather rough business of cracking the line. They are Harold Faist (left) Georgia Tech half; Joe Golan (upper) and Robert E. Lee (lower), halfback and fullback, respectively, on the Dartmouth squad.

Betsy Bain Ranked Best in Second Amateur Show at Theater Here

Betsy Bain emerged winner of the Tuesday night's program of "Discovery Week," which is being staged at the Olympic theater by the Brown Theatrical company of New York, with local talent. The show is under the direction of Alec B. Ross.

The winner of each night's program will be paid for a night's performance at the Olympic next week.

Miss Bain's skit of acrobatic toe dancing won the judges' decision though the audience attributed the best performance to a song by Lois Merle Daubert in its applause of each act, according to Mr. Ross.

Tuesday night's performers were rated on the percentage basis as follows by the judges: Acrobatic toe dance by Betsy Bain, 78; chalk talk by Aubra Warnock, 77; song, "Sidewalks of New York," Mary Edith James, 76; dance, "Liefesfreed," by Charlotte Sutton, 75; bits of harmony by Edwin Sutton, 75; musical moments by Wayne Borah and Jack Ballard, 72; song by Lois Merle Daubert, 72; the Highland fling by Bernice Taylor, 69; a reading, "The New Piano," by Evelyn Lewis, 68.

Wednesday night's program will be as follows: Vanity dance by Ruth Anette Finley, acrobatic dance by Ruth Harwell, moments musical by Betty Sullivan, Scotch dance by Peggy June Schoop, song and dance by Maxine Croson, Bowery dance by Edwin and Charlotte Sutton, song by Bob Gallagher, Spanish dance by Kathlene Cason, old time melodies by J. E Tucker.

Here's "Limit" Set By Police Chief For Fun Making on Halloween

The full traffic force of the Wichita Falls police department will patrol the street Wednesday night in an effort to keep peace and order among Halloween celebrants, according to Chief of Police Frank Burns.

Halloween pranks always bring considerable trouble to police with numerous calls for petty occurences, and steps to prevent the usual damage of property will be taken this Halloween by the police department.

Persons who insist upon causing traffic disturbances and damaging property wil be arrested, according to Chief Burns. Throwing of talcum powder, flour and powdered chalk, which has been one of Wichita Falls' chief means of celebration, is harmful both to health and clothes of people on the streets and it will not be tolerated this year, the chief said.

"I am right with the kids for having a good time on Halloween night so long as they stay within the bounds of reasonable fun. I want them to refrain from throwing chalk, flour and talcum powder and to be careful of injuring people and damaging property in their celebration. It is necessary that we keep the traffic moving Wednesday night and I am going to keep the downtown traffic officers on duty. People who insist upon congesting the traffic will be arrested."

Screen Players Keep Wedding Deep Secret

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30. (US)—Jimmy Murphy, film actor, and Lucille McNames, also a screen player, were married at Tia Juana on September 13 last, their Hollywood friends have just learned. Miss McNames came here from Columbus, Ohio. She had been in pictures for three years. Murphy recently has been playing leading roles.

Youth Admits Robberies Were For College Fund

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 30. (UP)—Police here today arrested a 17-year-old high school graduate who confessed to the robbery of 22 homes within a radius of two blocks of his East Dallas home during the past several weeks to get money to help pay his way through college when he enters next February.

BUYS NEW PLANE

The first clear sky from here to Denver will see a new mechanical bird winging its way to Wichita Falls. Fulcher Armstrong of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company, has announced the purchase of the newest model Hispano-Suiza-Eaglerock.

Dudley Rider, his pilot, is in Colorado Springs at the Eaglerock factory, and is testing the ship and awaiting fair weather before the homeward flight.

One-Fourth Life Lost

SKY RECORD

Stinson's Plane Here Remained in Air 56 Hours

Eddie Stinson's world endurance record airplane which remained in the sky 56 hours may be viewed at the Wichita Falls Air Transport company field on the Henrietta road Wednesday morning.

The ship arrived in the city Tuesday carrying W. A. Mara, vice president of the Stinson-Detroiter company which built it. Randolph Page is the pilot. The visitors have been the guests of Fulcher Armstrong while in the city.

Ad Club Offers Aid In '28 Chest Drive

Municipal problems and questions were the chief topics of discussion in a talk-fest held at the weekly luncheon of the Wichita Falls Advertising club.

The members of the club voted to offer their services for advertising and publicity during the Wichita Falls Community chest drive from Nov. 25 to 30 and to also assist in advertising the Wichita valley. Several projects among which was a movement toward the construction of a dormitory at Wichita Falls Junior college were discussed.

The club voted to set aside Tuesday, Nov. 13, as discussion day for city zoning plans.

Letters of appreciation to the club from the tenth district convention of the International Advertising association, which met here Oct. 21-23, and from Don Ross, Scoutmaster of troop 12, which presented an Indian dance at the convention, were read by A. E. Kelly, president of the club.

CITY'S DEBT REDUCED

Wichita Falls warrant indebtedness was reduced from $203,000 to $198,000 Tuesday when W. E. McBroom, city clerk, forwarded a check for $5,807 to the National Bank of Commerce at New York city in payment of warrant debt and interest due.

The debt is on a 1923 water and sewer line purchase in the Highland Heights addition. There is still $27,000 to be paid on this issue.

DEMPSEY-FIRPO RETURN LOOMS

Man Mauler's Theatrical Bubble Bursts

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (AP)—Ears that listen at cauliflower keyholes are tingling these days to whisperings that indicate the return of Luis Firpo, prosperous business man of Buenos Aires, and John Harrison Dempsey, actor and California real estate magnate, to the more rugged lines of endeavor they knew before affluence set in.

Dempsey, led to believe that he possessed the qualities of a great thespian and convinced that he never could whip Gene Tunney in a dozen comebacks, announced last spring that he was "through" with the prize ring forever. Today his stage bubble has burst, the contract he signed for $5,000 a week for 20 weeks in a Broadway play has been cancelled. Tunney has passed from the ring picture and Dempsey, twice whipped by the big marine, is listening to daily advice and pleas that he don the padded mittens just once more to save the heavyweight ranks from utter stagnation.

The old Man Mauler, despite his 33 years, is wavering. Tex Rickard won't talk but Jack is believed to have set a $500,000 price tag on his services for one more battle. The mogul of Madison Square Garden is gunshy now when requests for guarantees of that kind are shoved in his face. Tex still is a bit punch drunk from the financial beating he took when he guaranteed Tunney $550,000 for blasting Tom Heeney before a crowd that paid little more than that to view the tidbit of the summer season.

The case against Firpo, the shaggy-haired bull who lost the greatest of modern ring battles to Dempsey in 1923, is more obvious. Firpo actually is in training in South America, whittling away flesh from a body grown huge and soggy since he retired to a life of physical leisure in 1925. He has contracted for two matches and is negotiating for a third. Rickard has made him an offer to fight here. Firpo insists on finding out what fighting ability he has left before accepting.

Baer Facts

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The campaign has reached that delicate stage where the candidates are speaking straight from the shoulder, conversing with the elbows and explaining with the wrists.

They are also handling things without gloves and pulling stuff out of the sleeves.

Both candidates are speaking about water power. Any good boob shootcher can tell you there ain't no power in water.

We like the old-fashioned campaigns when honor was worth two dollars a vote.

When candidates spoke for six hours straight without approaching the subject. What's become of those magnificent statesmen with high silk hats, low woolen sox and bruised whiskers, which looked like a bearded Niagara cascading over a rainbow of soup and egg stains?

Every argument was meat for the cranial machinery of the old-timer, even though it emerged from his mouth in the form of verbal frankfurters.

When the oldtimer viewed with alarm his eyebrows semaphored disaster and his eyes looked like portholes in the wreck of the Hesperus.

He had the courage of his convictions but was always out on ball.

He was for hospitals for the healthy, a full dinner pail for the dyspeptics and playgrounds for the aged and feeble.

His lamp lighted the way to prosperity but you had to furnish the oil and the wick.

He was always running for office and from officers.

He was a man among a million.

But he could also pick up a living among a thousand.

When you had to choose between him and his opponent, the third and most popular choice was an exit.

He believed that you must break eggs to make omelets and that a little bacon wouldn't hurt, either.

He was a second Moses who struck the rock and applesauce gushed forth. His only fault was that he was so busy saving the country that he lost all the states.

Grand Jury Names 250 In Graft Investigation

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 30. (UP)—The Allegheny county grand jury today completed a five weeks' investigation of graft charges against city officials by recommending indictment of more than 250 persons.

The jury recommended the indictments on charges of widespread graft and various law violations.

Plane Lands at Sydney In Hop to England

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 30. (AP)—The airplane "Spirit of Australia" piloted by Capt. Frank Hurley, landed at Broken Hill, N. S. W. today having covered 600 miles of a projected 23,000-mile flight from Sydney to England and back.

It's Those Big Gates of Yore Which Make Dempsey Likely As Comeback

Runyan Says Tex Rickard Likely to Match Mauler With Heavy Tourney Winner

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—William Harrison Dempsey, the Manassa Man Mauler, will probably take on the gent who emerges the least scathed from the pulling and hauling of the heavyweights this winter.

I mean to say the opponent must have the earmarks of a drawing card. For it will cost the entrepreneur just $500,000 for William Harrison alone. On that basis the entrepreneur must have an opponent who would produce another $500,000 in gate receipts.

Allowing that the opponent would be working on a percentage, the entrepreneur would have to have a total gate of $1,000,000 to permit of any profit to himself. The guarantee that Mr. George Tex Rickard made to the erstwhile Gene Tunney of $500,000, cost Mr. Rickard plenty.

Dempsey Attracts

Mr. Rickard had no difficulty drawing with William Harrison Dempsey and the terrible Sharkey man, a non-championship proposition. He made plenty of money on that one.

If William Harrison Dempsey had been in there with Thomas Heeney, the pulverized Rock of Down Under, Mr. Rickard would have drawn more than he drew with Heeney and the erstwhile Gene. For William Harrison Dempsey is a natural $1,000,000 draw on his own account, even if he chanced to be fighting Mr. Rickard himself.

However, it is only fair to the erstwhile Gene to say that he would have drawn to a profitable gate for Mr. Rickard with Senor Paolino Oo-Scray-Umbay, the Beezark of the Basque, as an opponent, instead of Thomas Heeney. He didn't even draw to the natural strength of the heavyweight title with Heeney.

Big Gate Certain

Now then, as matters now stand, old Oo-Scray looms up, as we say, as the fellow William Harrison may meet in June. They can't miss a gate of $1,500,000 for it would approximate a heavyweight championship struggle.

Of course something may happen to the Beezark in the meantime. He may get licked. But the guy who licks him may have the same potentialities in the matter of drawing as the Beezark himself.

On the fifth of November, Senor Oo-Scray meets a party called Otto von Porat, a gangling Norwegian, with a terrible punch. If Otto von Porat happens to tag the Beezark of the Basque properly, I guarantee you that the old Beezark will be all spread out.

They brought Otto von Porat to New York a year or so ago and stuck him in with Martin Burke, the redheaded galoot from New Orleans.

Burke Stopped Him

It was one of Otto's earliest professional fights, and he didn't know what time it was. Burke stopped him, an incident that many ringworms remember to Otto's discredit, holding that Martin Burke wasn't such-a-much. Yet this same Martin Burke scrambled through about 30 rounds with the erstwhile Gene Tunney without a scratch.

Just a couple of weeks ago, Otto whacked the rubbery Chuckle Wiggins around a Chicago ring until old Chuck fouled out. Nobody licks Chuck. That was a real good performance by Otto.

I thought they had him overmatched with the Beezark, because of the Beezark's style. But a fellow who can hammer through Chuckle's peculiar style isn't apt to be bothered by any style whatever.

None the less, Otto von Porat would probably show to better advantage against some big tall loogan on the order of Knute Hansen. Otto can get a good tag at that kind.

I note that Knute is going out to Cleveland or Detroit to fight a chap called K. O. Christner. Now K. O Christner is unknown to New York fame but he is a big puncher, and he may end all that argument about the management of Knute.

K. O. Christner is out of Akron. He is no spring chicken. Around 35, I would say. But he can topple 'em when he lands. And yet, as a philosophical manager always reflects, if Knute can't lick that kind, what good is he?

CONFERENCE TO REVEAL TRUTH

Texas Colleges Get Down To Champ Play

DALLAS, Oct. 30. (AP)—Actual strength of Texas conference football squads, which have spent the first part of their schedules in brushes with opponents ranging from the Southwest's best elevens to comparatively obscure rivals, is due to be revealed during the coming week-end.

Two conference clashes bringing together Howard-Payne and Trinity at Waxahachie Friday and Austin college at Simmons at Abilene one the same day may furnish the basis on which the fate of members of the "Big Six" may be reckoned.

Howard-Payne, a co-leader in the standing column with St. Edwards by virtue of their one victory, meets a team with a potent punch in Trinity. Simmons, which threw a scare into S. M. U. by holding the Mustangs to one-touchdown margin earlier, has an easier foe in the Austin Kangaroos. It is the Cowboy's first conference gesture, but likely will attract little attention. Austin college has dropped both its games with teams in the loop and looms as the stepping stone for other elevens.

Marine, Loyola Game At Dallas Canceled

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30. (UP)—Cancellation of the football game between the Quantico Marines and Loyola university, scheduled to be played in Dallas Nov. 3, has been announced here. Withdrawal of support by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce was given as the reason for the cancellation.

Graham to Defend Title Against LaBarba, Nov. 20

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30. (INS)—Bushy Graham, recognized in New York as the world's bantamweight champion, will defend his title here on Nov. 20 against Fidel La Barba, retired flyweight champion. The bout was signed today by Matchmaker Wad Wadhams. The fighters have agreed to scale not more than 118 pounds at 2 p. m. on the day of the fight, which is slated for 10 rounds.

Jury to Try Alleged Negro Attacker Chosen

GREENVILLE, Texas, Oct. 30. (AP)—A jury was completed and testimony opened late today in the trial of Willie Grady, 20-year-old Greenville negro charged with attacking a white woman. With the exception of two merchants the jury is composed of farmers.

State Rangers J. W. Aldrich and J. P. Huddleston are in attendance at the trial as a precaution in case feeling should get out of control.

NOVEMBER FULL OF BIG GAMES

Contests Next Month Will Test Many Teams

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (UP)—The critical football games of the 1928 season are just around the corner in the brisk, merry month of November.

Such teams as the Army in the east, Georgia Tech in the south, Iowa and Nebraska in the middle west and Leland Stanford on the Pacific coast, obviously the leading elevens of the year, now must prove their worth.

It is one thing to get through October undefeated, and quite another to pass the tests of November. The same thing applies to prospective individual stars of the season. It is not sufficient to run wild against early season opponents. Your true All-Americaa star must stand up against the sterner competition of the second half of a football schedule.

For the enlightenment and edification of the nation's football fans, it is fortunate that the schedules of 1928 have been so arranged as to permit reasonable judgment to be passed upon prospective national champions of the year.

Army Meets Nebraska

The Army, outstanding eleven of the east, with only New York university as a sectional rival, meets Nebraska, Notre Dame and Stanford in late season games. A lineup on the real strength of N. Y. U. will be obtained when the Violet meets Missouri and the Oregon Aggies. Stanford in the west, has lost to only one rival, and that was the Olympic club made up of college stars and not a fair test of intercollegiate strength. If the Army gets by Notre Dame and Nebraska, the game with Stanford may be the decisive one of the year.

There will be little opportunity for Georgia Tech to claim intersectional honors this season, despite the sound defeat which Bill Alexander's Golden Tornado administered to Notre Dame. Yet the football teams of the south appear stronger, when taken as a group, than ever before, and if Georgia Tech comes through undefeated, its team will be well worthy of national recognition.

Big Ten Group

Three elevens of the "Big Ten" remain in the race for Western conference honors—Iowa, Ohio state and Illinois. The Hawkeyes, rated the strongest of the three survivors, were fought to a standstill by the Minnesota Gophers, whom they nosed out by a single point.

Mayes McClain, the Cherokee chief, backfield star of Iowa, proved no such great ground gainer as early season reports had led one to expect. But the Indian may come through during November to trample his way to All-American recognition.

It is unfortunate that Iowa is meeting few formidable elevens outside the "Big Ten."

Nebraska comes east next month to test the Army, after having barely beaten syracuse. Yet the Cornhuskers, by their decisive victory over Missouri, stand out as champions of "The Valley," and may upset the nicely balanced state of affairs existing at present by beating the cadets at West Point.

Army Stands Out

Until some eleven comes along with the formula to stop "Chris" Cagle, however, the Army must be reckoned as the leading team of the year. This twisting, tearing ball carrier around whose fleetness of foot the hard driving Army attack has been built, is for the moment the back of the season.

Notre Dame will present a difficult obstacle to Army ambition on Nov. 10, despite early season setbacks sustained by Knute Rockne's Irish.

As far as the east is concerned, once the Army is acknowledged supreme, there remains a fine scramble for section honors in prospect. Yale and Dartmouth will meet at New Haven Saturday in a game which means a lot to both. Then there will be the Princeton-Yale game, with all the local rivalry such a contest involves.

Altogether, it seems to be a most satisfactory football season from the fan's point of view.

Ponies Dig Up Second Star

DALLAS, Oct. 30. (AP)—Keenly alert to the fact that Redman Hume, Southwest conference scoring pace setter, will be a marked man in the approaching melee with Texas, Southern Methodist coaches started today to groom another ball-carrying ace for the most important tilt on the Ponies' schedule.

Campus gossip had it that Head Coach Ray Morrison had selected a reformed lineman, whose identity has been kept a dark secret, to carry on when the huge orange line centers their attention on the youth dubbed the "Galloping Gazelle." The back in question has seen little action in recent games, although he participated in the Army clash, and followers of the team interpreted that Morrison had wisely saved back this phantom player for the crucial game of the season.

This man, they assert, may turn in some lengthy runs while Longhorns are concentrating on the none-too-easy task of stopping Hume.

Ray Schalk Assures Harris He's Ready

DETROIT, Oct. 30 (AP).—The Detroit News today says that Ray Schalk, veteran catcher and former manager of the Chicago White Sox, has informed Stanley Harris, new manager of the Detroit Tigers, he is ready to sign a contract to play with Detroit next season.

The newspaper says it learned that Schalk, after considering an offer from John J. McGraw of a three years contract with the New York Giants at $10,000 a year, decided he would prefer to remain in the American league and a few days ago told Harris if he wanted him he was ready to sign.

A decision is to be reached soon, according to the newspaper article. If Schalk joins the Tigers, the newspaper says, he probably will coach pitchers and catchers.

Joe Dundee Unable To Defend Championship

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (AP)—Joe Dundee will be unable to defend his welterweight championship against Young Jack Thompson, sensational San Francisco negro, at Madison Square Garden, Nov. 16, as scheduled, his manager, Max Waxman, reported to the New York State Athletic commission today.

Waxman submitted medical statements which said the Baltimore Italian had been obliged to undergo a minor operation for an elbow infection.

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

The Pumpkins of Halloween

Halloween was originally a day set apart by the church for the vigil or the Feast of All Saints, and the original meaning was "Hallowed Evening." The superstition of the peasants modified the original sense and surrounded Halloween with delightful and mysterious tales of ghosts, witches and hobogoblins, possibly a survival of the ancient Druidic rites when fires were lit to keep away the witches, ghosts and wicked souls called forth that night by Shamen, the lord of death.

The children in Europe celebrated the day by scooping out the interior of large turnips and cutting in eyes, nose and mouth so that when a candle was placed inside the shell, the light shone through in a realistic manner at night. These were the original Jack O' Lanterns, but it was not long before the playful peasantry substituted pumpkins for turnips because they were not only easier to prepare, but presented a more hobgoblin-like appearance.

The demand for pumpkins around Halloween and Thanksgiving has so increased the price that they are now a profitable crop. The pumpkin was cultivated along the fields of corn by the Indians long before the coming of the white man as it still is by American farmers fully five centuries later.

Pumpkins vary in size from one to two pounds to two hundred pounds or more. The fruity part next to the rind is most nourishing and is eaten in many ways, from the pumpkin soups of France and Italy to the pumpkin pie of America. The seeds have long been used as a remedy for tapeworm—in fact, they are regarded as almost a specific.

The Pumpkins of Halloween

Pumpkins, although a fall crop, may be kept until spring if stored in a cool, dry place and protected from frost.

Quite an industry has recently developed for the purpose of drying and grinding pumpkins into pumpkin flour for the use of bakeries in preparing pumpkin pie. The pies prepared from this flour are equally as well flavored as those prepared from the fresh pumpkin, and have the added advantage that may now enjoy pumpkin pies the year round. The dried pumpkin is equally as nutritious as the fresh, which is rich in sodium and phosphorus. Here are a few suggestions for pumpkin recipes:

Pumpkin and Spaghetti Soup

Use two cups of chopped pumpkin pulp, a quarter of a pound of spaghetti, and six cups of water. Cover these ingredients, and boil slowly until the spaghetti is cooked, then add one cup of hot milk and boil for one minute. Add one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of butter, and seasoning to taste. (This is a starchy soup and should not be used with acid fruits or at a protein meal.)

Pumpkin and Potatoes

Two turnips (optional), three cups of chopped pumpkin pulp, four medium sized potatoes peeled: Boil these ingredients in salted water until soft. Drain and mash. Add one-fourth of a cup of condensed milk or cream, one tablespoonful of butter, mix and serve. The juice that is poured off may be used as the base of a soup.

Baked Pumpkin

Cut off the stem end of a small pumpkin, scoop out seeds, and fill pumpkin shell with chopped apples, raisins and pulverized walnut meats. Mix ingredients with ground Melba toast, moisten with small amoun of milk, and place in baking pan. Bake in moderate oven for 50 minutes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Running Sore

Question: K. S. P. asks: "Can a running sore from a bone be cured? If so, what is the remedy?"

Answer: Your question is too broad a one to be answered in this column. Many running sores from the bone can be cured if the right treatment is taken in time, but a careful examination of each case must be made to determine the cause. The method of treatment would depend upon the findings of such an examination.

Non-Weight Producing Foods

Question: Mrs. R. S. writes: "Please advise what foods can be eaten without putting on weight. I walk about four miles a day."

Answer: The non-starchy vegetables and acid fruits are not fattening. All fats, proteins and carbohydrates are fattening to some extent to people who are susceptible. Some protein may be used in the anti-fat diet, but the carbohydrates and fats should be avoided until the weight is normal.

Stomach and Brain Trouble

Question: Mrs. H. A. S. asks: "Would a continued stomach trouble destroy brain cells and they be lost forever?"

Answer: I am sure that any stomach trouble always has an effect upon every part of the body, including the brain. The brain cells are constantly dying and new ones growing in their place; unless there is an abnormal degenration of these cells they are always replaced. When a large group of brain cells becomes destroyed, it is liable to produce paralysis or some other trouble which is very marked. In such a case, the destroyed cells are usually not restored.

Here's the favorite one from "Trixie's Bag o' Tricks."

"I believe the funniest thing that ever happened to me—besides getting married," Trixie told me, "came about in Pittsburgh a few weeks ago when I was playing there in vaudeville.

"Due to its nearness, I walked to the station on my last night there. On my way over a man tried to flirt with me. You know—smiled, winked, coughed and all that sort of thing. When I didn't give him a tumble he got so bold as to walk up and catch me gently by the arm.

"I whirled about, took off my hat, and said:

"'Shame on you, have you no respect for these gray hairs?'

"'Cheds, I'm sorry,' said the man, 'but honest to Gawd I thought you were a blond.'"

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (AP)—The cotton market just about lost yesterday's advances during today's trading owing to liquidation or reselling by recent buyers influenced by better weather reports than expected, and a tendency to increase estimates of the crop. January contracts sold off to 19.30, or 42 points from the high level of yesterday and 32 points net lower. They closed at the lowest, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 32 to 38 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 5 to 9 points owing to the failure of the weather advices to contain any mention of the freezing temperatures apprehended in the southwest and relatively easy late cables from Liverpool. The forecast for warmer weather in the south brought additional selling after the opening and prices soon showed net losses of about 21 to 26 points. Moderate rallies followed on trade buying and covering, but the comparatively light demand was soon supplied, and the market weakened again later in the day when there may have been some selling on a private report estimating the crop at 14,400,000 bales. This estimate compared with a forecast of 14,508,000 bales of the same authority a month ago, but it appeared to promote talk of a probable increase in crop indications of under 14,000,000 bales owing to the comparatively open weather of October.

Some stop-orders were uncovered on the afternoon decline, while toward the close there was a little more southern selling. December worked off to 19.30 and May to 19.15, making net losses of 32 to 38 points and carried the market back to just about or a shade below the closing quotations of last Saturday. Last prices were at the lowest of the day except for March which showed a closing rally of 2 points on covering. There was some buying early accompanied by reiterated reports of a stiffer spot basis in the southwest, while except for some selling at the start and again toward the close, southern offerings were not greatly in evidence.

Liverpool cables said that calling and continental buying had absorbed hedging and Bombay liquidation in that market. Exports today 116,184 making 2,163,274 so far this season. Port receipts, 129,451. U. S. port stocks 2,103,201.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30. (AP)—Cotton prices declined nearly $2.50 a bale here today under liquidation promoted by the failure of the predicted freezing weather to descend on the cotton belt. At the lowest December contracts traded at 18.69 and closed at that figure compared with 19.15, yesterday's closing quotation. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 42 to 47 points.

With Liverpool 3 to 4 points lower than expected and the weather map failing to show the freezing weather predicted yesterday, the market opened easy. First trade showed losses of 17 to 20 points and although reports of heavy rains in the belt induced some trade buying on the scale down causing insignificant rallies, prices at noon had sold off to levels 29 to 32 points under the previous close with December at 18.84, January 18.86 and March 18.83.

Around noon there was another rally of a few points on some covering but the liquidation by longs who purchased yesterday on the predictions of freezing weather in the belt was renewed and there was also some selling by ring traders attributed to expectations of increased crop ideas as a result of the heavy movement of the crop to market.

The market continued downward all during the afternoon session reaching the lowest right at the end when December sold at 18.69, January 18.72 and March 18.70, or 42 points net down. Final prices were the bottom.

A private crop estimate of 14,400,000 bales was issued during the day but failed to influence trading.

Activity on Stock Market Falls Off As Traders Await Election Outcome

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (US)—Irregularity increased as the stock market quieted today. Trading fell off to the 3,500,000-share level as the leading operators reduced their commitments and many traders stepped out of dealings until after election. Radio dropped 8 points and Victor 5 but losses in other parts of the list were limited by quiet but steady support. Nickel advanced over 6 points with Durant brokers buying aggressively while Kolster and a few other specialties benefited by continued courageous operations of interested groups. The stimulus to trading influenced by pool acitvity of recent weeks, was lacking, however, and for the first time in many weeks the tape kept pace with the market for a good part of the session. Oils and coppers slumped with the rest of the list. Rails were lower on the average also but there was evidence of quiet accumulation by those who see a "rail market ahead."

Accounts Kept Liquid

Pre-election influence was reflected in the quieter trading. Not that any one in the street is unduly disturbed as to the outlook but because numerous traders who have collected big profits think it wiser to wait until after next Tuesday before taking an important position again. Furthermore the more powerful operators who want to stage a "demonstration" are satisfied with a quieter market for a few days. There is growing belief that more drastic steps will be taken to correct the credit structure of the market after election. Except for those who are in the most select of the "selected stock," therefore there is a growing tendency to keep accounts as liquid as possible until such correction is experienced.

Kolster Radio's consistent strength further reflected the belief that the International Telephone and Telegraph company eventually would take over control. The quiet absorption of the stock in recent weeks was credited to International Telephone interests and more active demand of the last few days resulted from strengthening of merger belief due to announcement of the Radio Corporation-Western Union deal. Warner Brothers was in a much better demand coincident with estimates that earnings this quarter would prove the best in the history of the company. It was maintained, also, that recent buying of Shubert was further indication that the Warners have not finished with their expansion plans.

Sinclair Climbs High

Paper shares were sold on announcement of price cutting. The same influence added to the liquidation in Abitibi which primarily resulted from worry over the dividend cause by report of smaller income. Underwood held leading place among specialities due to realization that it offers more attraction than other business machines companies due to increasing earnings, strengthened financial position and comparatively high return. Sinclair registered a new high as Cutten was elected a director. Mexican Seaboard was bought more aggressively as prominent midwestern financiers who have taken a substantial interest in the company arrived in this city. Coincident with their arrival there were further reports of the satisfactory outlook of the California holdings of the company.

Motor Chiefs Arrive

Arrival of important General Motors directors from the West caused belief the finance committee would act on melon cutting this week. President Sloan arrives from Europe today but the finance committee will not meet officially until next week. Then it will decide to recommend stock dividend on which directors will vote the following week. However, soon after their arrival these motor officials held conferences with other members of the "Big Ten." It was learned they held to their optimistic outlook as to the main trend of business as well as to the main trend of stock prices although recognizing the dangers in the technical position of many industrial stocks as well as in the loan figures.

Foreign exchange turned very quiet with sterling and other European currencies holding firm. Cotton turned irregular on realizing by professionals coincident with issuance of bearish private estimate. Wheat and corn remained under pressure in a generally unsettled commodity market.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 30. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Better grades of beef steers and yearlings moved freely at most points around the 11-market circuit with prices generally steady to strong. A weak undertone prevailed on other killing classes and at points where supplies were liberal short fed steers and the lower grade of she stock suffered a moderate decline. No material change was registered on stockers and feeders, country demand continuing slow at last week's uneven and sharply lower prices. Chicago scored $17.50 on choice yearling steers and realized $17.35 on choice weighty steers. Aggregate receipts were around 48,100 as compared with 49,498 last Tuesday and 59,676 the same day a year ago.

Hogs received a price setback of 10c to 35c with closing trade at most centers 25c or more than Monday's average market. The day's extreme top of $9.25 was paid both at St. Louis and Chicago. Total offerings were estimated at 103,100 a decrease of 5,000 from a week ago, but an increase 36,000 over the corresponding day last year.

Although values on fat lambs were little changed trade was marked by less activity. Aged stock held fully steady. Choice native lambs in Chicago reached $14, while choice rangers at Kansas City brought $13.65. The supply was around 71,000 against 66,829 a week ago and 43,150 a year ago.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 (US)—Gimpless grain markets dragged downward through a dull session today to a close that was at the bottom for the day. Bullish sentiment was at low ebb.

At the end wheat was down 1⅛ to 1⅜; corn was ⅜ to ½ lower; oats were off ⅛ to ¼; rye was down 1 to 1⅛.

Wheat opened a shade higher, but the appearance of strength was deceiving. The market had no real buoyancy after the first half hour or so of trading.

December wheat at the close was still up about three cents above the point where the last advance started from. The market continues to look to me like a poor one for the ordinary trader to fool with at present.

All the bearishness of the situation is quite as evident as ever, and the market may respond to it slowly, but until after election day, at least, it seems to me wiser to keep out of it—especially off the short side.

SHAW TALKS OF WORLD PEACE

Socialism Best Enemy of War, He Says

By HENRY T. RUSSELL

(Copyright, 1928, in all countries by United Press)

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A tall man, with kindly eyes and a long white beard, had been discussing steps for universal peace with the United Press correspondent, when the following question was asked:

"What steps do you advocate for the prevention of future wars and the final settlement of the peace question?"

George Bernard Shaw settled himself a little deeper in his armchair and replied:

"Any step which will hasten the advent of socialism."

At the famous satirist's apartment in Whitehall court, where a glimpse of the British war office is visible from the windows, G. B. S. dealth with treaties and armaments in typical Shavian style.

"If they disarm they can still fight with their table knives and rabbit guns, or their teeth and claws," was his reply to a question as to whether the nations of the world would ever agree to disarm.

Kellogg's Peace Pact

"Do you believe that pacts like the anti-war treaty are of any use in prevention of future wars?" he was asked. "Are you satisfied that the United States is anxious to foster peace and good will among nations? Do you believe that these efforts, past and present, will have a serious effect upon the outlook of peace?"

"The United States proved in 1917 that it was more frantically bellicose than any of the European combatants," replied Shaw. "It sent girls to prison for 18 years for deprecating war and arrested men for quoting the constitution. All Christian nations preach peace and good will until the first shot is fired and then—!"

Asked for his views on the Russian proposal for complete world disarmament, Shaw said:

"It called our peace bluff very effectively. When we turned it down under cover of refusing to speak to the wicked Russians we did not foresee that Mr. Kellogg would pick it up again and that we could not turn him down in view of all the money we owe his country."

Disarmament Superficial

Shaw was asked if disarmament was necessary for world peace.

"Disarmament is a very superficial remedy for war," he replied.

"Do you think that if there was another world war in prospect the influence of modern womanhood could stop it?"

"Yes," he answered, "if it is sufficiently pacifist and plucky."

"It has taught us," he said in reply to a question as to what war had taught the world, "what savages we are underneath our civilian garments. We are living in a world which has found itself out and yet does not know in which direction to flee from the wrath to come."

"To what extent do you think socialism will influence the future peace of the world?" he was asked. "Has the movement progressed to such an extent that it might be expected to prevent another outbreak of the last war's magniture?"

"Socialism is not pacifism," Shaw replied. "It makes for peace inasmuch as every socialist knows that the killing of a German soldier is as great a loss to France as to Germany, and conversely in short, the slaughter of men who are not criminals is a loss to the world, and the nations have a common interest in the world. But capitalism, by throwing men into competition instead of co-operation, and allowing the world to be privately appropriated, makes for war, not only between nations in search of additional 'places in the sun' to exploit, but for war on socialism as such.

Shrieks for War

"We have widely circulated English newspapers shrieking daily for war with Russia because the Russians have adopted socialism as their constitutional principle. And as socialism will fight for its life, and, if successful, possibly for the suppression of capitalism as such, we must, as M. Briand hinted at Geneva, be prepared for wars to arise out of socialism just as the 'wars of religion' rose out of the reformation.

"Pacifists must make a frontal attack on war, and not trust to free trade or socialism or any other economic or political development to do their work for them."

Shaw was dressed in a cozy brown pajama suit. He speaks so masterfully that it makes his visitor feel very thin—even though the kindly eyes of the satirist are as blue as those of a fair haired girl.

Spot Gasoline Prices Softer

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 30.—The wholesale spot gasoline market in the Mid-Continent refinery district which has been strong for weeks and weeks at 9¾ cents a gallon in tank car lots has softened one-fourth of a cent a gallon, dropping to 9½ cents flat.

The change was promulgated by a number of refiners at once. Barnsdall Refineries, Inc., and Empire Oil and Refining company were among the first to lower their U. S. motor quotations, after learning definitely that others were doing so.

As a result of the reduction, higher gravities also weakened, but not so much as the U. S. motor grade. The 60-62, 400 endpoint, grade is now at 9¾ to 10 cents; 64-66, 390 endpoint, at 10 to 10¼ cents, and 64-66, 375 endpoint, at 10⅛ to 10¾ cents.

Kerosene remains easy at 5¾ to 6 cents. Fuel oil is firming up with 62½ to 67½ cents being the range for 18-22 grade.

Natural gasolines, however, are scarce and firm, with manufacturers all in a good frame of mind over the price situation. Both "A" and "AA" grades are tight at 10¼ cents a gallon, and with "B," "BB" and "C" at 10 to 10⅛ cents a gallon. The domestic demand of October has been larger and steadier than manufacturers expected it would be.

Grain Dealer Freed In Slaying on Bond

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 30. (AP)—Walter L. Liggett, prominent grain dealer who shot and killed Turner M. Cunningham, local hotel manager, late yesterday, was released from the Davidson county jail today under $25,000 bond. He was immediately named in a peace warrant sworn out by Cunningham's widow, who had told police in a formal statement that Liggett had been attentive to her.

Mrs. Cunningham charged that Liggett had treated her cruelly and had threatened her life on more than one occasion.

Carbon Monoxide Gas Levels Football Team

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 30. (UP)—Twenty-six members of the heavyweight Rockford high school football team were recovering today from the effects of carbon monoxide gas.

The fumes came from a new gas heater in the gymnasium where the team was practising yesterday. The players felt no effects of the deadly gas while in the gymnasium, but later when they went to the field to finish their practice one by one they collapsed.

MEXICO CITY, Oct 30. (AP)—A Vera Cruz dispatch to El Universal today said that an attempt to smuggle liquor into the United States by a Mexican naval officer had been revealed.

BLACKMER CASE TO BE PUSHED

U. S. Will Not Drop Charges Against Fugitive

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.
Universal Service Correspondent

PARIS, Oct. 30.—The United States will stand pat in its demand that Henry M. Blackmer, fugitive American oil man, return to the United States to face charges pending against him in the American courts.

This much may be stated positively tonight, answering reports from America relative to the alleged negotiations for a settlement of the differences between the magnate and his government.

The state department's case asking France to extradite Blackmer for trial in his own country has been reinforced with additional data supporting the United States argument before the French foreign office.

"Compromise" Flouted

Whether his return is the result of extradition, or his own voluntary action, there is not the slightest prospect that those charged with the prosecution of the oil cases will agree to any "compromise" whereby Blackmer will escape prosecution through the payment of the government's claim against him.

Blackmer himself, however, had another story to tell when interviewed by a Universal Service representative tonight. In violent terms he denied he had the slightest intention of seeking peace with the United States government, or that he would return voluntarily to America. He exclaimed:

Assails Newspaper Men

"I won't return to the United States until they drop the charges against me, and give me a square deal. Why should I want to return to a country which has given me such a deal. The whole thing is absurd. The government has acted perfectly silly. It is useless to discuss the matter because all has been grossly exaggerated and misrepresented.

"The government started it. Now let them finish it."

The fugitive oil man was especially violent in his denunciation of newspaper men who uncovered much of the evidence in the Teapot Dome case. He declared:

"All they do is tell a lot of lies for a little money. They are a lot of insignificant fools."

Cotton Picker Shot to Death

HILLSBORO, Texas, Oct. 30. (INS)—Earl Adams, 26, who came here from Oklahoma to pick cotton, is dead and R. C. Ball, of Fort Worth, is in the Hill county jail charged with murder as the result of a shooting here last night.

Members of the sheriff's department allege that Ball shot Adams in the neck with a pistol following a dispute over a gambling transaction.

G. D. Clapper, who lives six miles northeast of Hillsboro, and who was with Adams and Ball at the time of the shooting, ran to Sullivan's cafe and notified the occupants that "an accident" had occurred. He then returned, he said today, disarmed Ball and marched him at the point of the pistol to the sheriff's office. Officers hurrying to the scene found that Adams had crawled a few steps down to street toward a hospital and then collapsed and died.

Moran: Say, big boy, whose you THINK is going to get elected, Smith or Hoover?

Mack: Yes.

Moran: Yes, what?

Mack: Smith or Hoover.

Moran: They both can't get elected.

Mack: They both got nominated, didn't they?

Moran: Yes, but only one can get elected.

Mack: Then they's foolish.

Moran: How's they foolish?

Mack: They both should have been satisfied with the nomination. They shouldn't carry it so far.

Moran: They gotta nominate a man so's they can vote for him.

Mack: If I was nominated, would you vote for me?

Moran: I would, if you had two dollars to carry my district.

Mack: Who's in your district.

Moran: Just me.

Mack: Then I REFUSE the nomination.

"Broadway After Dark" is the risque title given the midnight ramble at the Mission theater to celebrate Halloween. The special show will be given at 11:45 o'clock Wednesday evening and will be staged by "Mullen's Musical Maids." A special picture will also be shown at the Mission.

A change in the other midnight matinee has been announced by H. C. Federer, manager of the theater. The show will be presented at the Majestic theater instead of at the Strand as previously announced.

In addition to a surprise performance which will be the feature of the Majestic party, "The Thirteenth Juror," starring Anna Q. Nilsson and Francis X. Bushman Jr. (how times does fly—I remember Francis the elder pretty well, don't you?) will be shown.

The management bears down on the "Big Surprise" at the Majestic. Fans are not to let in on the secret until the opening of the midnight show at 11:45 o'clock.

Theater people are watching the coming of Baclanova, who so far has not starred but has always supported leads in big pictures. Baclanova is coming again in a strong supporting role in "Docks of New York," a Paramount picture which will open at the Majestic theater Saturday.

George Bancroft plays the lead in "Docks of New York" with the diminutive Betty Compson as his leading lady. Bancroft has been starred in a succession of good pictures, recently having pleased audiences principally in "Underworld" and "The Drag Net."

◆ ◆ ◆

"How to Handle Women" should attract a large attendance at the Olympic theater for the opening performances Thursday afternoon. Aside from the highly educational value suggested by the title this incident might be utilized as a gauge of its worth—Mr. Morehead of the Olympic and Mission theaters called the press frantically Tuesday afternoon to demand an accurate description of the picture the morning paper had planned to use.

The nightly vaudeville programs of "Discovery Week" at the Olympic theater are attracting good attendance and exciting a great deal of interest.

Judging from the first performance of Monday evening, Wichita Falls has more than amateur talent to present. From six to eight and even nine numbers are presented on the vaudeville programs each evening. Alec B. Ross is in charge of the performances.

A comparative percentage rating will be published of all the numbers given this week, following the last performance of the week Saturday evening.

Glenn Tryon and Marian Nixon will star in "How To Handle Women" to open at the Olympic theater Thursday for a three day run.

DUMB PERSONS NOW CAN TALK

Artificial Voice Box Used Widely at Present

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 30. (AP)—Science has tackled the human voice and out of the laboratories have come sound speech for the dumb and a sound code which may be used readily to replace all codes used heretofore in war and peace.

An artificial larynx has been made to do the work of the human vocal chords and voice box in those persons who have found it necessary to have this organ removed through a malignant disease, said Dr. Sergius P. Grace, assistant vice president of the Bell Telephone company, and scientist in the New York City laboratories of the company.

He demonstrated the instrument at a session of the American Institute of Electrical engineers here last night.

Persons who lack a voice box, Doctor Grace pointed out, have no further use for their throat as far as breathing or speaking is concerner, but breathe through a small artificial outlet just about at their collar bone. They are unable to make a sound through their mouth.

Words Audible

So for the benefit of these persons the artificial voice box was made. It is composed of a black tube about a quarter of an inch in diameter with an enlargement and then a continuation of the tube, in all about eight inches long. If air is forced through the longer tube, the thing emits a sound something like that of a hand organ. But then if the other end is placed in the mouth and the lips and mouth are formed as in speaking, words themselves become audible and are clearly distinct.

In persons who have the artificial breathing opening in their neck, the latter may be provided with a connection to the "voice box" for the purpose of furnishing the air pressure. In that case the person carries his voice in his pocket and takes it out whenever he wishes to speak.

Or on the other hand he may have his organ that science built provided with a small bellows.

At first, Doctor Grace explained, these "voice boxes" made only a monotone, but now they are made so that an accomplished person even may sing with them, not to mention talking over the telephone.

Instrument in Use

The scientist said that several hundred people now use this means of talking.

Then Doctor Grace set up a loud speaking set and spoke into the transmitter. Unintelligible expressions came out of the speaker. When they were passed through laboratory instruments they came out normal again.

"Inverted frequencies," he explained.

"Crinkanope," said Doctor Grace, and out of the loud speaker came the word company." Vice versa the word "company" spoken into the transmitter came out "crinkanope."

It was explained that words are expressed in vibrations. The number of vibrations per second determines the word. The instruments used, inverted the frequency of each sound so that totally unintelligible words issued from the speaker or by passing these latter back through the apparatus the reverse process occurred.

Transatlantic telephony, it was explained, may be coded so that it will be intelligible only to the person on the receiving end. In case of war, it would be possible to obtain hundreds of combinations for use as a secret code in transmission of orders.

Driver Lashes His Team And Part of Whip Injures Orb

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Oct. 30. (UP)—Just as Bill Wright snapped his whip at his unruly team of horses yesterday he was knocked flat on the wagon by something that struck him in his eye.

His son, who was with him, saw a stream of blood flow down Wright's face and believed his father had been shot. He brought Wright to town, believing that a bullet was lodged in his father's eye.

A physician removed from Wright's eye a piece of leather a half inch square that had snapped off the whip. Wright is expected to retain sight of the injured orb.

TEXAS HOOVER DRIVE PLANNED

Creager Sure G. O. P. Will Carry State

DALLAS, Oct. 30. (INS)—An intensive drive to bring every Hoover supporter in Texas to the polls on election day will be made by the Republican party in Texas during the remaining days of the presidential campaign, R. B. Creager, G. O. P. national committeeman, declared here today.

"We will organize down to the last precinct," he declared, "placing a man and a woman checker at every election box to check the voters who appear during the morning. In the afternoon, those who have not voted will be urged by telephone, messengers and personal visits to come out and vote."

Creager warned that all frauds during the coming election will be vigorously prosecuted in federal court by the Republican party.

"We do not anticipate any fraud," he said, "but if it occurs, it will be prosecuted in federal court since this is a federal election, regardless of which party the guilty persons are affiliated with."

Hoover will carry the nation by an "overwhelming majority," Creager stated. Asked for a prediction on the result in Texas, he said:

"My personal investigation, made by asking half a dozen persons in each Texas county for an impartial estimate reveals 125 counties sure for Hoover, 50 certain for Governor Smith and the rest doubtful."

Creager declined to comment on the recent action of 2,000 citizens of Hidalgo county, neighboring county to his own county of Cameron, in asking President Coolidge for a federal investigation of alleged election abuses there.
