

$1 trillion budget faces Senate, Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats pressing for final congressional approval of a $1 trillion federal budget for 1988 already are training their fire on the spending plan's most formidable obstacle: President Reagan.

By a 215-201 vote Tuesday, the Democratic-led House approved the budget, which includes $19.3 billion in new taxes, along with military spending cuts and domestic program increases — all opposed by the president.

The Senate was expected to follow suit today, although Democrats hold a slim 54-46 majority there and the tally was predicted to be close.

Reagan repeatedly has denigrated the Democratic package. Democratic leaders concede that if his opposition continues, they would be unlikely to find the two-thirds majority needed to override future vetoes.

Many congressional Democrats hurled verbal brickbats at the president Tuesday, belittling him for his seemingly unshakable stance that he would veto legislation containing new taxes or with different spending priorities than his own.

"I must say I don't have much hope for the president ... with respect to congressional budgets," complained Senate Majority Leader

Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., on the Senate floor.

Other lawmakers attributed devious motives to the president's persistence in opposing new taxes.

"What do you do when you're president, your popularity is plummeting, the Senate has gone to the other party, the Irangate hearings grind on day after day?" asked Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., during the House budget debate. "You try to create a smokescreen with your favorite issue, the budget."

"Just because the president wants to shift attention away from his other troubles, we can't let ourselves be distracted from the need to put our fiscal house in order," said Rep. William H. Gray III, chairman of the House Budget Committee.

Reagan repeatedly has said that increasing taxes is the wrong way to cure the government's chronic deficits. On Tuesday, he told the National Federation of Independent Business that with its budget plan, "Congress has declared war on American jobs and I'm not going to stand for it."

With all but three House Republicans who voted opposing the Democratic spending plan, Reagan had his share of GOP supporters.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said that the Democratic budget's reliance on taxes shows "the House is obviously ruled by the dead hand of Walter Mondale." He referred to the 1984 Democratic presidential candidate's call for higher taxes during his unsuccessful campaign.

The budget resolution does not require Reagan's signature. It is meant to guide forthcoming spending and tax bills the president will have to sign into law for the government's operations in the 1988 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

The Democrats' package would allow $296 billion for defense, permitting Pentagon spending to keep pace with inflation. But $7 billion of that amount would be released only if Reagan approves a tax increase package of $64.3 billion over three years, $44.5 billion more than the president proposed.

Reagan had requested $312 billion in military spending.

The congressional spending plan also would hold most non-military programs at 1987 levels, or allow them to increase with inflation. Agriculture, Medicare, foreign aid and construction programs such as water projects would suffer large cutbacks.

Spending for AIDS research and education would increase by almost $1 billion.

Project has 25 percent employed, procurement workshop planned

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer

Updated personnel statistics, status of negotiations for Battelle office space, and the presence of two Corps of Engineer representatives headed the list of topics in today's early morning Department of Energy briefing. The weekly 7 a.m. meeting was conducted by DOE's Salt Project Deputy Manager Robert Wunderlich and was attended by numerous local residents and state representatives.

Wunderlich reported that 92 project people are now working in Hereford, an increase of five over last week's figures. DOE now has 19 staff people working in town, Battelle has 40, Parsons-Redpath has 18 and other support contractors have a total of 15. Twenty-five percent of the total estimated 373 employees, to be employed in Hereford, are now on board.

Hereford now has 32 project personnel in residence, a gain of seven from last week's analysis. Nineteen of the employees are local hires and 13 are transferees who have chosen to live in Hereford. The transferees have 13 children who will be attending Hereford schools. The annual payroll for the current number of project personnel living in Hereford is $800,000.

This past week Amarillo's number of project personnel in residence has dropped from 35 to 34.

Revised projections of staff movement in the area for the month of June are 15 with 40 expected in July. According to Wunderlich, this does not reflect a change in total numbers but is merely a change in the timeframe some of the staff members will be joining the local offices.

Wunderlich reported that two Corps of Engineers representatives are in Hereford this week to interview local realtors and appraisers regarding land values. Wunderlich explained this is a preliminary step in the land acquisition process.

Wunderlich reported that Battelle has entered competitive contract negotiations with five firms bidding on providing permanent office space. The competitive short list is comprised of those firms whose bids were closest in competition for procuring the contract. Bids were evaluated on criteria including price, location, accessibility and potential for required renovation.

Battelle representative John Treadwell stated that the local office will require substantial office equipment. Treadwell said the company is looking for ways they can "get around previous requirements for in-house expertise." Battelle's requirement for in-house expertise effectively eliminated the ability for local office equipment suppliers to participate in previous procurement opportunities.

Wunderlich announced July 16 as a target date to present a workshop to help local vendors learn the process of competing for government procurement contracts.

The only new procurement on the horizon, according to Wunderlich, is the quest for office space to house approximately 20 project support personnel employed by CER.

Open houses for DOE and project contractors garnered substantial local interest according to Wunderlich. He said, "Three to four-hundred people came to the open houses on Saturday. We felt the open house was a success, we answered a number of questions and met some people of the community. I don't think we could have asked for a better response from the community."

DOE dignitaries in town for the open house stayed over for a quarterly status workshop in Hereford this week. A contingent of project personnel and higher-ups meet to discuss progress on the project and the make scheduling plans.

Wunderlich holds weekly Deputy Manager's Meetings on each Wednesday at 7 a.m., in the Hereford Community Center. The public is encouraged to attend these meetings where project personnel are on hand to answer questions related to the site characterization studies underway for the possible placement of the nation's first nuclear waste repository.

HPD arrests three

On Tuesday, Hereford Police Department officers arrested a 17-year-old male on warrants for burglary, a 17-year-old male on warrants for violation of driver's license restrictions and a 31-year-old male for public intoxication.

Two minor accidents were investigated and 16 citations were issued. Firemen responded to one fire call.

Offenses reported included burglary of motor vehicles on the 100 block of Sampson where $600 worth of stereo and radio equipment was taken, paint scratched off a vehicle parked at Deaf Smith General Hospital (estimated damage was $500), a suspicious person on the 300 block of Ave. F and pit bulldogs attacked a dog in a yard on Ave. K.

We have no idea how he will portray the repository issue in his article, but Shapiro thinks there are faults with all three sites now under consideration. Shapiro has apparently studied the issue and, in fact, teaches a journalism class at New York University on reporting on scientific and nuclear matters.

Shapiro personally thinks the Nevada site is the best of the three, but favors it only if they stop the bombing practices and nuclear tests. He says the Nevada site is located between two bombing ranges. He believes the Columbia River and the Ogallala aquifer rule out Washington and Texas.

At the public hearing here Monday night, Margie Ford, hospital board president, said the directors agreed on the principal of leasing hospital land for a physicians' office complex, but some of them differed a little on how to go about it. "Our goal is to provide services that will keep patients here and allow us to operate successfully," said Mrs. Ford. "The point is—we are proceeding in the right way to benefit the community?" asked Mrs. Ford.

The concept presented by the hospital board is to lease the land for a building, to be connected to the west side of the hospital, and allow a doctors' group or a third party to own the building. The board visualizes a condo-type arrangement with the doctors leasing or purchasing office space.

Requiring $6.6 billion revenue

Senate accepts Texas budget plan

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a two-year state budget that would require new revenue of more than $6.6 billion but Gov. Bill Clements said one major section — on higher education — is merely a dream that's not going to come true.

Clements also renewed his vow Tuesday to veto any proposal that would require more than some $2.9 billion in new or increased taxes. In fact, the governor said he would only consider extending the "temporary" sales tax and motor fuel taxes that expire Sept. 1.

The budget approved by the Senate 26-3 on Tuesday totals $39.56 billion. It was sent to the House, where a committee scheduled discussion today on a $38.3 billion budget proposal.

Even though the Senate measure is approximately $1.3 billion higher than a House proposal, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby described it a "very bare-bones budget" and "a good bill."

The Senate bill is higher, Hobby said, because "we don't want to cut AFDC (state child welfare) or turn people out of nursing homes or cripp-ple higher education — that's where the differences are."

But there are some human-services reductions in child protective services, he said. "There is a reduction to the level where not even all life-threatening cases can be investigated," Hobby said. "That's tragic, but that's the situation we're in."

Three Republican senators — John Leedom of Dallas, Don Henderson of Houston and J.E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson — voted against the bill.

The final legislative version of the appropriations bill almost certainly will be written by a House-Senate conference committee. A two-thirds vote of each house would be needed to override a gubernatorial veto.

Clements said Tuesday he was not worried about lawmakers overriding his veto.

Clements also said financing highways through bonds, which would free general revenue money, and a state lottery are being discussed.

Hobby said of highway bonds, "It's not a very good idea, no," and he called a lottery "unrealistic."

Sen. Grant Jones, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the Senate proposal would restore higher education spending to 1985 levels, plus 2 percent per year increases for four years to account for inflation.

"Texas had built up some wonderful momentum in the area of higher education," said Jones, D-Temple. "Professors from across the country were interested in coming to Texas because there appeared to be a major dedication to higher education."

"Unfortunately, in the cuts that we've made in previous years, particularly in the late-lamented special session ... Texas has a perception problem of having lost its dedication" to higher education.

Clements said restoring the funding to 1985 levels is a "dream that somebody's got that's not going to happen. You can forget that."

U.S. owes world more than twice amount it did in 1985

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States owed the rest of the world $263.6 billion at the end of 1986, more than double the 1985 total as the country lengthened its lead as the world's largest debtor nation, the government reported Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said the new debt burden was 135 percent above a revised $111.9 billion in debt to foreigners that the United States was carrying at the end of 1985.

That year marked the first time since 1914 that America was classified as a debtor nation. That means foreigners now own more in U.S. investments than Americans own in foreign investments.

For 1986, foreign investment in the United States shot up 26 percent to total $1.331 trillion. That swamped a 13 percent increase in U.S. investments overseas, which totaled $1.068 trillion at the end of last year.

The new figures confirmed how rapid the country's plunge into debt has been. In 1982, the United States was the world's largest creditor nation with an investment cushion of $136.2 billion.

But a string of record foreign trade deficits has wiped out that surplus as Americans have transferred billions of dollars into the hands of foreigners by buying imported cars, television sets and a multitude of other products.

The country's plunge into the status of a debtor country is directly linked to the merchandise trade deficits. The only way the United States will be able to pay off its foreign debt is by running surpluses in its merchandise trade accounts, something economists don't see happening for a long time.

Because of this view, economists are predicting that total U.S. foreign debt could hit $1 trillion by the early 1990s.

Pat Boone

Backyard Baptizer mentioned as possible PTL leader

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Boone, squeaky-clean crooner of the 1950s, pitchman for milk and baptizer of born-again Christians in his backyard pool, has twice been mentioned as a possible new leader for scandal-racked PTL.

Attorney Melvin Belli, representing ousted PTL founders Jim and Tammy Bakker, suggested Monday that Boone, a charismatic Christian, take over the 518,000-member ministry temporarily. Belli said Boone has "no axe to grind."

Boone, in a statement issued through his manager, Tim Swift, said no representatives of the Bakkers or of the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who took over PTL after Bakker's downfall in a sex scandal, have contacted him.

Boone said he hopes "Jerry and Jim and their attorneys will get together in a room, close the doors, pray and not come out until they have a meeting of their hearts and minds and put the whole thing to rest."

Last month, a published report said PTL contributors had contacted Boone as a possible replacement for Falwell.

But Boone said no contributors had contacted him directly and that Falwell was doing a "great job." He also said he would "cringe to be even asked to shoulder that kind of responsibility."

Boone, an entertainer for more than 30 years, has long had a wholesome image. A 1956 album cover showed him on the Columbia University campus in his trademark white buck shoes and argyle socks.

"You know, there's something about me that makes a lot of people want to throw up," he said in a 1976 interview with Rolling Stone magazine.

Boone, a Florida native raised in Tennessee, had hits with "Two Hearts," "Love Letters in the Sand," and "April Love."

His versions of Fats Domino's "Ain't That A Shame" and Little Richard's "Tutti Frutti" gave him a reputation for diluting black rhythm and blues for a still racially divided record-buying audience.

He also had a variety show on television that ran three years. No liquor or cigarette advertisements were accepted.

"April Love" was the theme to a movie by the same name. In it, Boone's reputation as too much of a good guy really took hold. He refused to kiss co-star Shirley Jones.

He did not kiss the leading woman in the next two films, and by the time he planted one on co-star Diane Baker in the 1959 "Journey To The Center of The Earth," it made news.

During that time, he wrote the best-seller "Twixt Twelve and Twenty," a book of tips for growing up good. He admitted that as a teenager, he sometimes hung out with friends, smoking cigarettes and drinking beer.

Boone's photo in front of Columbia was no white-buck shuck. He actually was attending the university, in case his career flagged. He graduated in 1958 with a bachelor's degree in English and speech.

Boone's career faltered in the 1960s with the advent of the Beatles.

In 1963, he starred in the movie flop "The Main Attraction," in which he bedded down with the heroine. He began making Las Vegas appearances, resumed drinking, and started telling off-color jokes to audiences.

There followed a series of bad investments, and Boone lost $2,500 on one visit to Las Vegas casinos. His marriage to the former Shirley Foley, daughter of country-western singer Red Foley, began to falter. The couple's daughters, Cherry, Lindy, Debby and Laurie, were beginning to feel the pressure.

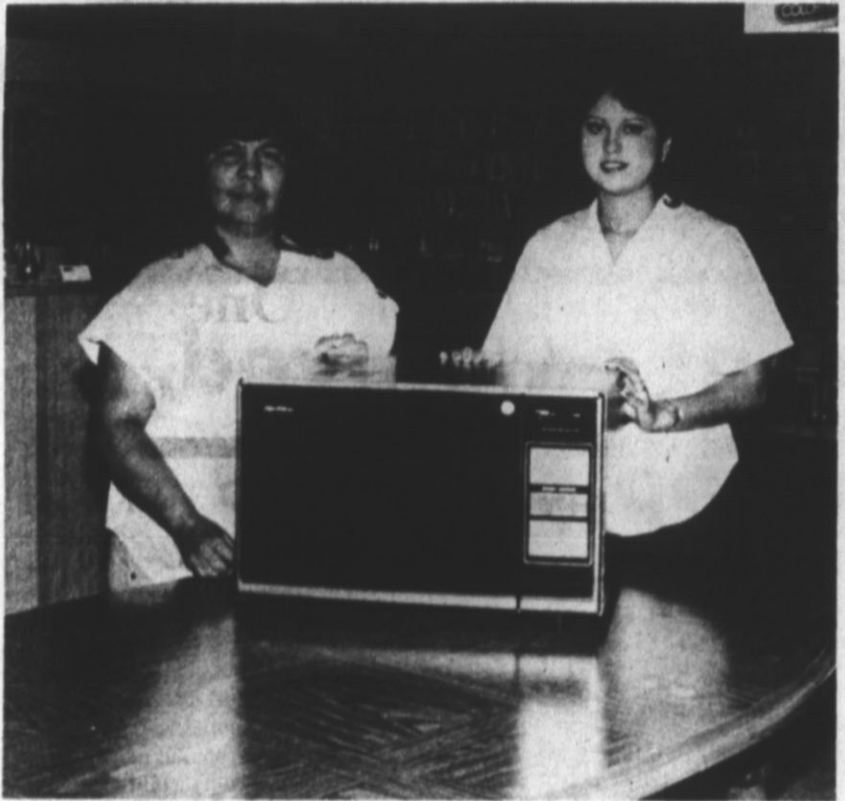

That year, a friend, Harald Bredesen, visited the troubled Boone home and prayed with the family. Boone said his life changed. And quickly.

Old show business pals started to make Boone the butt of their routines, calling him "Mr. Clean."

"That Pat Boone. He's so religious!" quipped Dean Martin. "When I shook hands with him the other day my whole right side sobered up."

Boone enjoyed the ribbing. "Let's face it," he said, "I am an oddity." In 1971, he split with the Church of Christ after church officials found that he and his wife believed in miraculous healings and speaking in tongues. It was during that time that Boone took to giving baptisms in his pool.

"Entertainers, wives and kids, young ex-drug addicts, older ex-alcoholics, business people, just about every kind of people," Boone said of the people he baptized into "the body of Christ," but no particular religion.

Government contract procurement workshop scheduled in Plainview

PLAINVIEW — Several area entities will join forces to provide information on how to secure government contracts during a one-day Government Purchasing Workshop July 1 on the Wayland Baptist University campus.

The workshop is a joint project of Wayland's Division of Business along with the Plainview Industrial Foundation and Chamber of Commerce, South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG), and the Reese Air Force Base Contracts Office.

DPS estimates 40 deaths

AUSTIN — The Department of Public Safety estimates that 40 persons will die in traffic accidents in the state during the upcoming Fourth of July holiday period.

For counting purposes, the National Safety Council has designated the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Thursday, July 2, through midnight Sunday, July 5, as the holiday period.

Last year, during the Fourth of July period, 41 persons were killed in Texas traffic accidents, with four others subsequently dying of injuries suffered during the time frame.

"Even though the 1986 and 1987 holiday periods are the same length, we're hopeful that fewer persons will die this year, in keeping with the steady decline in traffic deaths we have been observing in recent years," said Col. Leo Gossett, director of the DPS.

Though the number of holiday vehicle deaths varies from year to year, the causes of fatal accidents do not.

"Last year, slightly more than 6 out of 10 traffic fatalities resulted from accidents in which either speed or driving while intoxicated were listed as contributing factors," Gossett said. "The message is clear—high speed or driving under the influence of alcohol, and often a combination of both, can kill motorists. It's also very important to remember to wear that safety belt and make sure very young children are in child safety seats."

As in years past, the DPS will conduct its Operation Motorcade program during the Fourth of July period, with periodic reports on the number of traffic deaths occurring during the 78-hour counting period.

Additionally, as part of Operation Holiday, DPS Highway Patrol commanders will be assigning added personnel to patrol the state's highways during the period.

It is designed especially for local and area businesses interested in obtaining government contracts for goods and services, and is open to all interested participants free of charge.

Jenny James of Lubbock, contract procurement officer for SPAG, will lead the workshop, discussing technical and referral assistance which can be provided by the Contract Procurement Center (CPC) in Lubbock.

She will explain how a business can be entered into the CPC computer system, whereby it can be notified when a government agency is in need of a product or service which that business offers.

Also on the program is Karen Nance, Reese AFB contracts officer, who will discuss the types of goods and services which are purchased through her office. "Karen will also talk about contracts for under $25,000 which do not require bidding," said Arnold, who is Plainview's representative on the Board of Directors of the SPAG Contract Procurement Center.

Area business owners desiring additional information about the workshop or the CPC may contact Arnold at 296-5521, extension 355.

Land bid sale scheduled in August

AUSTIN — Information on 260 tracts of state land included in an August high bid sale of forfeited Veterans tracts is now available, Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced today.

All tracts are available for bid by eligible Texas Veterans and many of the tracts are available for bid by non-veterans. The interest rate to eligible Texas Veterans is 8.75 percent and the interest rate for the general public bidding on non-veteran tracts is 10.25 percent. Both will carry a 30-year assumable fixed-rate loan. A $25 non-refundable bid fee for each bid submitted has been set by the board.

The Texas Veterans Land Board will finance the entire loan amount less 5 percent for both eligible Texas Veterans and the general public. There is no limit on the amount loaned.

A public reading of bids submitted to the Texas Veterans Land Board will be held on August 17, 1987 at 10:30 a.m. in Room 331 of the Stephen F. Austin Bldg. at 1700 N. Congress in Austin.

Contenders converge on convention

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Nine candidates will heat up the 1988 presidential race as they converge on the League of United Latin American Citizens national convention.

Convention organizers say the number of prominent contenders shows the importance of Texas and its Hispanic vote in the March 8, 1988, "Super Tuesday" primary.

The convention, beginning today, could be seen as the point where the 1988 campaign gets rolling, said Ruben Bonilla, convention chairman.

"I believe that it is the kickoff," Bonilla said. "and South Texas is serving as the springboard for the presidential campaign."

But a weak response from the Republican candidates invited has LULAC members and some Republicans wondering why the party is passing up the opportunity.

The convention schedule includes all of the top contenders from the Democratic Party, but only one Republican.

"The Republican Party is remiss in conceding the Hispanic vote to the Democratic Party," said Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney and former LULAC president. "Neither party has a lock on the Hispanic vote, and the Republicans' concession as reflected by their absence means the Democrats stand to gain."

He said LULAC invited at least seven of the top potential Republican nominees, as well as every Cabinet member, but only U.S. Rep. Jack

Kemp of New York accepted. Bonilla, who is chairman of Mexican American Democrats of Texas, praised Kemp for avoiding what he described as the other Republicans' "shortsightedness in writing off the Hispanic vote."

John Buckley, Kemp's press secretary, agreed. "We find it very curious that none of the other Republican candidates is interested in speaking to a group that's part of the fastest growing community in the electorate," Buckley said in a telephone interview.

By the time the convention began today, some delegates already had heard from one candidate, Democratic Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, who initially declined an invitation to speak, but later changed his mind. He fit in an appearance at a pre-convention breakfast Tuesday before a mostly South Texan group.

Other Democrats scheduled for the five-day convention are Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois.

Libertarian candidate Russell Means, known best for his activities in the American Indian Movement, also will appear.

Chairman George Strake of the Republican Party of Texas said he would like to see more GOP candidates seizing the chance to speak to LULAC.

"Frankly, I think they should have," Strake said, but added they might have been put off by LULAC's partisanship when Ruben Bonilla and his brother, Tony, held presidential posts in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

"LULAC, at least when it was under the Bonillas, became sort of an arm of the Democratic Party," Strake said, but added its current president, Oscar Moran, has been more receptive to Republicans.

"We're going to be looking at it pretty closely to see how they receive Kemp," he said.

John Weaver, the Texas Republicans' executive director, said the party will have a presence at the convention, with a booth in the

11-year-old aviator to embark on flight

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — John Kevin Hill is not old enough to be a licensed pilot.

But that doesn't stop the 11-year-old from trying to set an aviation record.

Perched atop three seat cushions, the sixth-grader was ready to fly across the Sierra Madres at the controls of a turbo-charged Cessna today trying to become the youngest pilot to complete a cross-country flight.

Two years after beginning flying lessons, John was to fly from Los Angeles to Cedar City, Utah, in the first leg of his journey.

"I'm a little nervous," said Hill, who has had 150 hours of flying experience and needs the piloting to help him see out the cockpit. "Well, I guess I'm excited and nervous."

Because he's not old enough to obtain a pilot's license, John will be accompanied on the week-long, 3,500-mile trip by his instructor, Mike Fields. Fields will take over the controls in an emergency.

They will fly to Loveland, Colo. for a stopover Friday. Then, it's on to Kansas City, Mo. and St. Louis for a stop on Sunday. On July 1, John is scheduled to reach Washington, D.C.

The journey could get the boy's name etched in the Guinness Book of World Records. The book lists a 9-year-old for setting a record in 1983 with a solo flight over Mexico. But the book has no entry for the youngest pilot to fly across the United States.

But his plans don't end there.

"In two years, he's going to fly around the world," said his father, Johnny Hill. "It's already set. And he wants NASA to let him ride on the next shuttle. Heck, he has more flying time than those senators they sent up."

John started flying at age 9, when his father bought him a $20 introductory flight. Soon, he began asking his parents for more lessons.

The boy's mother, Patsy Hill, didn't want him to fly but gave in after seeing his dedication. She thought he would lose interest, but now predicts he'll probably stick with it into adulthood.

John's longest previous flight was a 7,000-mile trek with Fields across the northwest United States and Canada last year.

exhibit hall, and will attend most activities.

"Something we're definitely not doing is conceding any vote to the Democrats," said Weaver, who pointed out that Republican Gov. Bill Clements was not invited to the convention featuring a speech by Democratic Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Texas is the most populous state participating in the "Super Tuesday" March 8, when 20 states will hold presidential caucuses or primaries. Bonilla said Texas' 1 million Hispanic voters are becoming increasingly active politically, but that the state's importance in the early primary is not just an ethnic phenomenon.

interested doctors to construct a building, or to conduct a bid process. Either way, board members expressed an intent Monday night to place certain restrictions on the building and to isolate the hospital district from any financial burdens.

Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, told the people at the public meeting that such an arrangement "will do some things for us that are important for health care in today's market." He pointed out that tremendous changes have been made in the health-care field. One of these is in the area of out-patient services, where hospitals are doing things in one day that use to require a week.

One citizen asked Bullard about the hospital's financial status and if there was any danger of the hospital having to close its doors. "We are not that desperate," answered Bullard. "The thing is, we have operated without reserves for a number of years and part of that reasoning was to keep taxes low." He added that 8 to 10 percent of revenue comes from taxes here, while some districts are nearing the 50-percent mark on tax revenues.

Bridal shower fetes Lisa Terrell Goen

A bridal shower honoring Mrs. John Goen of Amarillo nee Lisa Terrell, was held Saturday morning at 148 Oak Street in the home of Lois Lemons.

The table was decorated in shades of pink and teal blue. June Rudd presided at the guest book while Dee Dee Drake and Billie Reite served refreshments.

Hostesses for the occasion included Drake, Rudd, Reiter, Marjorie Thomas, Lawana Guynes, Carolyn Waters, Sharon Holmes, Betty Mercer, Ann Warwick, Joyce Wartes, Joyce Burford, Lois Matchett and Marie Stringer.

The couple married May 23 in Amarillo are both graduates of Amarillo College. Mr. and Mrs. Goen are now students at West Texas State University. She is employed by Amarillo School Employees Credit Union while her husband, a former Hereford resident, is employed at J.C. Penney in Westgate Mall.

The United Nations passed a resolution in 1947 advocating the partitioning of Palestine between Arabs and Jews.

Roundup set this weekend

The annual Rhinestone Roundup will highlight a weekend of special activities as the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center prepares to honor its 1987 inductees.

A reunion supper is planned Friday and will be followed by induction ceremonies at noon on Saturday.

Saturday evening's festivities include a barbecue meal, and a style show to be presented by 1976 Cowgirl Honoree Fern Sawyer and 1987 Miss Rodeo Texas Stacy Woods.

Stacy earned her title June 13 in Fort Worth. She competed against 14 other girls and was judged best in appearance, personality and horsemanship. She was also voted Miss Congeniality. She is the daughter of Sharon and Bill Woods of El Paso and graduated from W.H. Burges High School. She plans to attend the University of Texas at El Paso. As Miss Rodeo El Paso, Stacy will make approximately 80 appearances across the country beginning with the annual Rhinestone Roundup.

At 8 p.m. Saturday, 1987 honoree Patsy Montana will present a mini-concert. She is well-known for her hit single, "I Wanna Be A Cowboy's Sweetheart." The Sundowners from Vega will provide dance music until midnight.

Also, planned Saturday, will be two silent auctions and a live auction followed by drawings for giveaways. Auction articles range from hot air balloon rides to get-away weekends to telephones. Jim Tucker will serve as auctioneer.

Tickets for the induction luncheon, to be held at the Hereford Country Club, are $15 per person. Tickets for the Roundup are $25 each. Reservations may be made by calling the CHOF at 364-5252.

Hosts and hostesses for the Rhinestone Roundup are Richard and Berta Ottesen, chair couple, Gilbert and Janice Arellano, Earl and Dodie Brookhart, Wes and Pat Fisher, Ike and Debe Graves, Scott and Lori Hall, Jim and Sandy Herberston, Scott and Karen Keeling, Pat and Patsy McGinty, Garth and Susie Merrick, Allen and Estella Parson, Fred and Josie Rivera, Don and Alene Tindal and Jay and Donna West.

Animal groups

You can have either a clowder or a clutter of cats, a leap of leopards or a leash of greyhounds. Then there are musters of peacocks, downs of hares and sleuths of bears. You can also hear a mite of hounds, a volery of birds and a watch of nightingales.

The average adult has about 3,500 square inches of skin. The skin has roughly a billion pores.

Registration open for workshop

Advance registration is now open for Wayland Baptist University's 23rd annual Church Secretaries' Workshop, slated for July 23-25.

Gayle Hilligoss, president of Success Systems, Inc. in Lee's Summit, Mo., will keynote the three-day meeting for the third year in a row. Hilligoss' company is a consulting firm providing ministry resources and seminars to Christian professionals across the nation.

The workshop is annually one of Wayland's most popular summer events and one of the longest-running seminars of its kind in the country. Last year's event attracted some 115 participants from all across the Southwest.

The workshop is designed to advance the skills of all church secretaries, both full- and part-time, regardless of the size or denomination of their church.

This year's program will include sessions in business communications, telephone etiquette, planning a church reception, newsletters and mail-outs, and what the pastor expects.

Other featured program personalities include Dorothy Houston and Marge Storseth, owners of "Personal Touch" in Amarillo; and Ty Morris, Jr., minister of music of Crestview Baptist Church in Midland, who will provide entertainment at the Friday night banquet.

The workshop will begin at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, July 23, and conclude at noon Saturday, July 25.

Registration fee is $63 per person and covers meals and housing as well as the workshop. A $10 deposit is required to guarantee reservations.

Interested participants should contact Wayland's International Occupational and Lifelong Learning Center at (806)296-5521 as soon as possible.

Annual picnic held

White, Joyner homer for California

Rangers lose to Angels, 8-6

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — On Monday night, when California's Devon White had three hits and made a sparkling defensive play, Angels manager Gene Mauch said his rookie outfielder was going to get better and better.

True to Mauch's prediction, White did even better Tuesday night, hitting home runs left-handed and right-handed in leading the Angels to an 8-6 win over the Texas Rangers.

"Last night (Monday), Devon showed you his arm, speed and defense," said Mauch. "And tonight he showed you something else."

When White went to the plate for the third time Tuesday night, Rangers starter Charlie Hough was working on a no-hitter through 5 2-3 innings and was nursing a 2-0 lead.

Two swings of the bat later, the score was tied as White connected for his 12th of the season to break up the no-hitter. And on the next pitch, Wally Joyner hit his 15th of the year to tie it at 2-all.

"The home runs are unexpected," said White, who last year hit 14 in 112 games for Edmonton of the Pacific Coast League. "But Hough hung one of his knucklers up there and I got a pretty good hack at it. I was surprised it went so far."

His second of the night — and 13th of the year — went even farther, into the centerfield bleachers off reliever Mitch Williams.

"I'm not a power hitter," said White, who has 40 RBI to share second on the club in that category with Brian Downing. "I could go the next 30 games without hitting another one."

Hough, 7-3, was victimized by his own lack of control and by shaky defense. Four of the seven runs charged against him were unearned, including three in the Angels' seventh that turned a 4-4 tie into a 7-4 California lead.

Joyner drove home two of the runs with a 2-out double.

Willie Fraser, 4-5, survived six innings of near-disaster to earn the victory.

He allowed nine hits, at least one in each inning, threw three wild pitches and gave up Oddibe McDowell's seventh home run of the season.

Gary Lucas and Greg Minton followed Fraser to the mound with Minton getting the save, his second in two nights.

"We had some missed opportunities early and some missed opportunities late," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "We should have scored more runs off them."

The Rangers out-hit the Angels 13-7 but left runners stranded in each of the first five innings in which they had built a 2-0 lead.

McDowell had four of the hits and drove in two runs while Pete O'Brien singled in his final at-bat to extend his consecutive-game hitting streak to 11.

Co-ed, women's softball tournaments set this weekend

A slowpitch softball tournament with an open co-ed division and an open women's division have been scheduled in Hereford this Saturday and Sunday.

Entry deadline for the tournament is today at 8 p.m. The tournament is being organized by Friends of Special Olympians, and will be held at two softball fields — St. Anthony's field and the Veterans Park field.

Entry fees are $95 per team plus playable U.S.S.S.A. blue stitch restricted flight softball. The first 16 teams that turn in their entry fees will be accepted for the tournament.

Awards will include team trophies for the first, second and third place teams and individual trophies for a limit of 15 members of the first place team.

To enter the tournament, make checks payable to the Hereford Chapter of Texas Special Olympics and turn in the entry at the Hereford Satellite Center at 218 N. 25 Mile Avenue in Hereford. For more information on the tournament, call Janie Maldonado at 364-5681.

Teams are responsible for finding out their playing times. The tournament schedule will be available after 2 p.m. on Thursday by calling 364-4370 or 364-5681. Also, Jerry or Irene may be contacted at 364-6990.

YMCA plans co-ed softball leagues for youth 6 to 12

Youth co-ed softball leagues for ages six to 12 are being organized by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

Two leagues are planned, one for boys and girls ages six through third grade, and the other for boys and girls in the fourth through sixth grades.

The league season will be six games plus playoffs. Practice starts on July 20.

Registration deadline is Thursday, July 16 at 5 p.m. Registration fees are $8 for YMCA members and $12 for YMCA non-members.

Teams will be drawn by the YMCA staff. Rules for the league includes one in which each player participates in half of a game and that no individual plays the whole game unless fewer than 12 players are present for the game.

For more information, contact the YMCA at 364-6990. Registration forms are available at the YMCA.

Keeping cholesterol low opens up clogged vessels

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study showing that reducing blood fats actually opens up some clogged blood vessels offers hope that drugs and a low-fat diet can decrease the risk of heart disease in millions of people with high cholesterol, researchers say.

A major study of heart bypass patients published today in the Journal of the American Medical Association contains the first solid evidence that past blood vessel narrowing can be reversed with a combination of cholesterol-lowering drugs and low-fat diets, the scientists said.

Previous smaller studies hinted that sharply lowering blood fats might reverse some effects of atherosclerosis, the narrowing of blood vessels caused by a buildup of fatty deposits or lesions, they said. But the new study is the first providing definitive evidence of such an effect, they said.

Dr. Claude Lenfant, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, said the Cholesterol Lowering Atherosclerosis Study has major implications for hundreds of thousands of people with heart and blood vessel disease and millions more at risk because of high blood fats.

"For the first time, we are presented with evidence regarding regression of lesions in humans," Lenfant said at a news briefing on the study sponsored by his agency.

Studies sponsored by the National Institutes of Health indicate half of all adults have cholesterol levels higher than desirable and 25 percent have moderate to severe elevations.

Restricted vessels deprive the heart of oxygen-rich blood and can lead to painful angina or heart attacks. When heart arteries become clogged, doctors can bypass them with transplanted veins to carry blood past the blockage.

The two-year study by University of Southern California Medical School scientists found that in 162 bypass patients, 16.2 percent of those getting the combination treatment showed regression in their restricted vessels, versus only 2.4 percent of control patients.

In the treated group, total cholesterol levels fell 26 percent and other blood fats called triglycerides were down 22 percent. Cholesterol is a waxy substance in the blood that, depending upon the fatty proteins attached to it, can contribute to heart and blood vessel disease.

Diet was a significant part of the therapy and people should not think they could use cholesterol-lowering drugs alone to reduce the effects of atherosclerosis, the researchers said. They also noted there are risks to taking any drug used to lower blood fats.

They may be purchased at the door, from church youth, or by calling King's Manor. Preparing for the dinner, which will also feature various salads cobblers and hot rolls, are (from left) Jan Barnes, Mildred Fuhrmann, Margie Thomas, and Helen Spinks.

Ann Landers

'Secret meetings'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Something that appeared in your column in 1974 prevented me from making a damned fool of myself. It also may have saved my marriage. Foolishly I met an old flame (recently divorced) at an out-of-the-way place for lunch. I didn't tell my husband about it but someone else saw us and passed the word. That evening my husband handed me a column he had saved since 1974. It's quite funny, but it hit so close to home that I decided, no more secret meetings. Will you please print it again?—Ida in Idaho Falls.

DEAR IDA: With pleasure! The author, Judith Viorst, is a gifted writer and a nifty lady.

SECRET MEETINGS
Ellie and Marvin
Have been having secret meetings twice a week
For the past six months
But thus far failed to consummate their passion Because
While both of them agree
That marital fidelity is not only unrealistic but irrelevant,
He has developed sharp shooting pains
In his chest, and she's got impetigo, and He's got pink eye.
Ellie and Marvin
Drive 40 miles to sneaky luncheonettes
In separate cars
But have thus far done no more than heavy necking

Because
She's developed colitis, and
He has developed these throbbing pains in his back, and She has started biting her nails, and He's smoking again.
Ellie and Marvin
Yearn to have some love in the afternoon at a Motor Hotel
But have thus far only had a lot of Coffee
Because
He is convinced that his phone is being tapped, and
She is convinced that a man in a trench coat is following her, and
He says what if the Motor Hotel catches fire, and
She says what if she talks in her sleep some night, and She thinks her husband is acting suspiciously hostile, and

He thinks his wife is acting suspiciously nice, and
He keeps cutting his face with his double-edged razor, and
She keeps closing her hand in the door of her car, so While both of them agree that guilt is not only neurotic but Obsolete
They've also agreed to give up Secret meetings.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, sped? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Last chance to donate sale items

The Problem Pregnancy Center is still accepting donations of sellable items daily from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. in anticipation of Saturday's yard sale.

Volunteers will pick up such items if they are contacted at 364-2027.

Located at 505 E. Park, the Center will conduct the sale from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

All proceeds will benefit the Pro-Life activities at the Center.

The oldest trees in the world are reputed to be the bristlecone pines, the majority of which are found growing along the arid crags of California's White Mountains. Some of them are estimated to be more than 4,600 years old.

Veterans' directory underway

A director of all veterans is underway.

The directory will include the names of war-time Veterans, non-war Veterans and peacetime military personnel. Also included, will be listings of all civilians that participated in every war or conflict.

This is a free service, however, the organizers are asking for donations to accompany the listing information.

The money generated from the Directory sales will be given to our neediest Veterans, according to Ron McGinnis, organizer of the nonprofit project.

Those interested in receiving more information about the director may call their office at (612)836-2770 or send self addressed stamped envelope to Veterans Directory Inc. P/O Box 171, Freeport, MN. 56331.

Museum reopens after five years

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — One of Holland's most intimate museums reopened its doors this month, five years after architects took on the tricky task of making an architectural gem into a more suitable home for 800 Old Masters.

The Mauritshuis Museum, first opened in 1822 and dubbed one of the world's richest repositories for Dutch paintings of the 17th century by New York Metropolitan Art Museum director Philippe de Montebello, has been extensively renovated and was officially reopened by Queen Beatrix on June 4.

The two-story Dutch Baroque cube of gray sandstone and brick sits on the shores of the Hofvijver Lake that also laps up against the Dutch parliamentary complex next door.

Built by soldier-statesman and art patron Johan Maurits, the mansion dates from the same period as the treasures it contains: works by Rembrandt, including "Anatomical Lesson" and "Self-Portrait as an Old Man"; Van Ruisdael, Hals and Vermeer, to name a few.

Less a public building than a home that houses paintings instead of people, all 14 of the museum's viewing rooms have seats and benches for the more contemplative aficionado.

"You could say that on the surface, nothing really has changed here," museum director Hans Hoetink said in an interview. "We've tried to retain the atmosphere from before the renovation — what I call its hominess, its human scale."

The modernization program began in 1982 after decades of what Hoetink called "subtle but general decay. ... Paintings are like old people. If they catch a draught they die."

Climate control equipment was installed, the museum's security system was improved and the lighting was redesigned.

But the most difficult task was to find more space without altering the building, which was built in 1633-44 by Dutch architect Jacob van Campen and is considered part of the collection it houses.

Since any above-ground addition to the symmetrical mansion was unacceptable, a two-story basement was sunk into the soggy soil under the front courtyard. That took double the 2 1/2 years time estimated for the renovation.

The addition contains offices, a library, a research center, workshops and a huge vault for the 600 or so paintings not on display at any one time.

The museum used the renovation period as an opportunity to promote itself by sending 41 masterpieces on tour in France, Japan, Canada and the United States. Exhibitions in Washington, Fort Worth, Chicago, Los Angeles and New York drew a total of more than a million visitors.

In Paris alone, more than 30,000 catalogs were sold at $35 each.

To emphasize the museum's intimate atmosphere, visitors pay their $2.50 admission fee only when they leave the building. "Ever been to a cafe where you had to pay for your drinks in advance?" asked Hoetink.

Love reviews... season after season.

U.S. to press for end of ag subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. representatives to a meeting next month of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade are putting the final touches on a proposal to rid the world of subsidized agricultural exports and costly domestic farm programs.

"We intend to put a very bold paper on agriculture on the negotiating table on July 6 and 7," U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said Monday at a conference at the State Department.

Agriculture Department officials have been indicating for weeks that they intend to press the matter when the 92-country GATT meeting gets under way in Geneva, Switzerland.

Mike Masterson, an aide to Undersecretary Daniel Amstutz, who oversees USDA's international and commodity programs, said the plan referred to by Yeutter includes many "points that we have discussed before" as well as some additional framework to the U.S. proposal in its final form.

The plan generally, he said in an interview, will call for "the phase-out of direct and indirect subsidies, the access that we want to have for agricultural commodities in all markets, to harmonize the animal and plant health inspection procedures and rules" among U.S. trading partners.

"Everything will be on the table," Masterson said. "But nothing will be given up unless there would be 100 percent commensurate reduction by the other ... contracting parties to the GATT."

A recent issue paper by the department's Economic Research Service notes that the broad objectives and principles for the GATT negotiations, called the Uruguay Round, were set forth in a ministerial declaration signed in Uruguay last September.

"The United States and the other key players in world markets have ambitious goals for agriculture in the Uruguay Round, including broadly reducing trade barriers imposed by many developed and developing countries," the report said. "A trade environment more responsive to market conditions is needed to expand the market for U.S. farm products."

It added: "Dispute over the use of export subsidies, export credits and potential restrictions abound, and the potential for more intense trade confrontations seems always to be simmering. This widening potential for confrontation is currently threatening to further undermine the operation of world commodity markets."

Airports have stockpile of leaded fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aviation fuel stored at airports could be the answer for farmers who need leaded gasoline to protect the engines of their old equipment, an authority says.

"I don't think there's an airport that wouldn't have a bulk storage tank to supply farmers within a hundred-mile radius," said Walter R. Haessner, executive director of the International Society for Vehicle Preservation.

He spoke at a hearing Monday by the Environmental Protection Agency and Agriculture Department on the effects on farm equipment of EPA-ordered lead reductions.

Performance tests conducted in April resulted in some engines performing poorly with lead-free gasoline.

Natural repellent found in potatoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department scientists say the Colorado potato beetle quickly loses its appetite for a new kind of potato that carries its own insect repellent inside the plant.

Scientists predicted Tuesday that the successful experiments could lead to commercial development of insect-resistant potatoes several years from now.

Team leader Stephen L. Sinden, a plant physiologist in the department's Agricultural Research Service, said the two-year project involved the fusing of single cells from wild and commercial potato plants, then regrowing the hybrid plants from the fused cells.

Sinden said the hybrid potatoes contain a rare gene for leptine, a chemical that repels insects. The leptine was passed on from the wild plant.

"The most devastating pest of U.S. potato fields, the Colorado potato beetle, is repelled by leptine," he said. "The beetles land on the hybrid plants as usual. They peel back a little skin on leaves and nibble, but then fly away. The plants are barely touched."

Beetles in recent years have developed a tolerance to chemicals sprayed on potato fields, operations that cost more than $120 million a year, Sinden said.

In further tests scheduled this summer, it's expected that the hybrids will resist some other insects such as potato leafhoppers, he said.

Cell fusion used to develop the hybrid potato is a form of genetic engineering in which the DNA, or hereditary material, remain intact.

"The advantage of cell fusion is that we know the fusion hybrids not only have the desired genes but also that the genes are likely to be expressed in the plants," Sinden said.

"This advantage could help breeders develop insect-resistant varieties (of potatoes) within several years," he predicted.

The project was carried out at the department's research center at Beltsville, Md., where work is continuing to breed insect-resistant varieties for the eastern United States. Similar work is being done at Prosser, Wash., to develop varieties for the western region.

Leptine may be toxic to humans in large doses, Sinden said. However, the hybrid plants make leptine only in the leaves, not in the potatoes.

The hybrid plants produce much larger potatoes than the wild plants and are at least half the size of commercially grown potatoes now available, he said.

"We're also pleased that the fusion hybrids are fertile, that they can be cross-bred to improve tuber (potato) yield and quality," Sinden said.

Cloth preservation found through cattle research industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says a laboratory procedure developed to help cows eat better may come in handy for preserving valuable cloth relics such as the Star-Spangled Banner.

J. Michael Gould, a biochemist at USDA's Northern Regional Research Center, Peoria, Ill., first used a light-beam technique called photoacoustic spectroscopic analysis in 1981 to study the molecular structures of two substances in plants, lignin and cellulose.

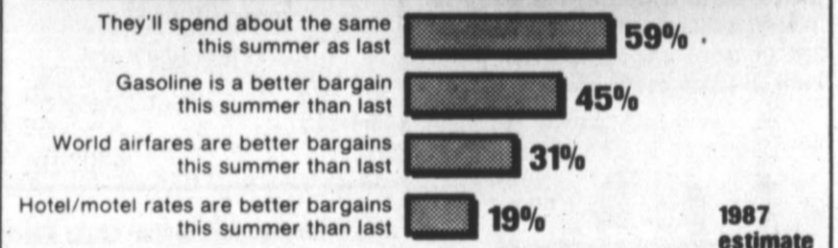

Gould found that fibers from plants and ancient cloth such as mummy wrappings generate steady, almost musical notes when bombarded by rapid pulses of the light. The tone can indicate how well the cloth has done over the centuries and how much it has been weakened by time and the elements.

The initial research pioneered by Gould led to a chemical process to break apart the two plant substances, allowing the nutritious cellulose to be fully digestible by cattle.

Jeannette M. Cardamone, a professor of textile science at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, saw the technique as a possible new way to monitor the deterioration of historically valuable textiles, especially natural cotton which is a pure form of cellulose.

Ms. Cardamone said the procedure developed by Gould means that precious samples of historical textiles can be continuously monitored for deterioration without being harmed in the process.
