Evening Lions Club reopen bingo operations after June 4 fire

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Bingo is back in business at the Big Spring Evening Lions Club after a hiatus following a fire that forced a shut down of bingo operations June 4.

The Lions Club had its grand reopening of the bingo hall Saturday.

The Lions Club was all set to celebrate ownership of its building with a mortgage burning party when a fire broke out in the building's west side.

Several club operations had to be postponed or canceled because of the fire.

Club secretary and bingo operator Bob Noyes said, "this will be our first day back after the fire."

Noyes said several of the charitable things that the Evening Lions Club is a part of were set back because of the fire.

"Being back in operation will give us the ability to get back some of the funds we lost by being closed."

Noyes added the club won't be able to move as quickly as it would like to.

"We'll have to start slow," he said. "You can't just jump back in with both feet, but the annual barbecue at Big Spring High School will help us a lot."

The Evening Lions Club has 27 members and Noyes said they are ready to get back to offering some of their normal services like providing eyeglasses for children and senior citizens.

Noyes said, "School has started and the need for eyeglasses is up. The school nurse pinpoints children who need glasses and we try to help. We also do this for senior citizens too."

Club president Danny Wright said the Evening Lions Club also provides hearing aids for kids as well.

He said, "We haven't been able to do a lot of anything because of the fire, but now the building looks very nice."

According to Noyes, organizations like the Association for Retarded Citizens and Christmas in April benefit from the Lions Club being able to reopen because they use bingo as a fund raiser to help fund their causes.

He said, "We're not the largest service organization in town, but I definitely think we turn more money back into the community than any other."

The Evening Lions Club's next major event will be the annual BHS barbecue Sept. 2.

Maxine Hinsley, a self-proclaimed "regular" to the Big Spring Evening Lions Club bingo hall, marks off the numbers on her cards in the newly-renovated building Saturday. The session was the first since a suspicious fire damaged the building several weeks ago.

Tech Prep signs up Big Spring, Coahoma, Lamesa

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

It's official. Howard College, Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan and Lamesa High Schools have all signed agreements to begin computer information systems Tech-Prep programs this fall.

Barbara Brumley, division chair for CIS at Howard College, made the announcement Thursday afternoon. "I went to the Big Spring and Forsan campuses on Aug. 11. Coahoma signed the agreement earlier in the year," said Brumley. The contract with Lamesa was signed Aug. 12.

She continued, "the agreement provides students with a planned sequence of classes to follow and earn future college credit while attending high school. Nine college credit hours can be attained when enrolling at Howard College as a computer information systems major."

Last year, Brumley conducted a survey to identify the computer usage and training needs of local businesses. After tallying the results, an advisory committee revamped the CIS program to better meet the greatest needs identified on this survey which were application software and PC maintenance/support.

The program will incorporate three different options: information management technology, PC maintenance and support as well as programming.

High school students can take up to three classes and earn the nine hours towards any of the above course options.

Brumley added, "the information management technology

After 70 years, cotton harvest in Draw quiet

DRAW, Texas (AP) — For the first time in 70 years, the autumn cotton harvest here will be a silent one. Missing will be the purr of the cotton gin that kept this shrinking burg on the map.

Citing an off cotton crop and outdated equipment, the Draw Paymaster Gin has closed for this year's harvest, gin manager Bobby Mack Furlow said. And with $250,000 needed to update it, it's unclear if it will ever reopen.

"It didn't matter how loud (the gin) was, it was music to our ears," Pat Hensley, 73, told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal during a break from his daily domino game in the modest gin office.

For 15 years, Hensley has spent mornings playing dominoes with his buddies at the gin. Before then, they met at the old

Council takes up budget Tuesday

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council will again attempt to adopt a budget for the 1994-95 fiscal year.

The council will meet Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in Building 1109 at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

The budget ordinance has been table several times in the last two months. The most recent was due to a proposal made by Police Chief Jerry Edwards for additional police officers and so the council could study his proposal.

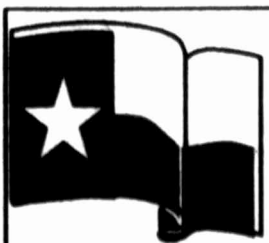

Old business at Tuesday's meeting will include the council will hearing a request from Raul Marquez concerning the Sept. 16 celebration, discussion and consideration of an ordinance setting the tax rate, and consideration of a resolution to apply for a Texas Department of Transportation Grant.

New business includes:

- Approval of a request for a carnival permit.

- A resolution authorizing the mayor to execute a contract with the Heritage Museum for Historical Preservation and Restoration Projects and an agreement for the administration of Pottin House.

- A resolution authorizing the Mayor to execute an agreement with the Chamber of Commerce for attracting out-of-town visitors to the city.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Jury selection begins in Zachery murder

MIDLAND (AP) — Attorneys hint they will present two different versions of what happened the night James Zachery died from head wounds.

Prosecutors hope to prove Zachery, a former professional football player, was murdered by 18-year-old Duann Dewayne Stewart.

"We will be putting on direct evidence of the defendant's guilt," said Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre, who plans to call about 15 witnesses.

Jury members were expected to be seated today. Testimony was slated to begin Tuesday.

Zachery, 35, was attacked about 1 a.m. Jan. 25 near railroad tracks. Witnesses reported seeing several men chasing him.

Zachery was bleeding from head wounds when police arrived. He told officers that several men assaulted him; he lost consciousness and died about three hours later at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

An autopsy lists blunt force trauma as the cause of death.

Defense attorney Bob Stevens said he intends to offer testimony from several expert witnesses, including Lubbock and Dallas pathologists who disagree with the autopsy's conclusion.

Jury selection begins in teen's murder trial

BEAUMONT (AP) — Friends describe 16-year-old Bill Travis as a quiet student at Beaumont West Brook High School. But prosecutors say he killed his parents and his best friend five months ago, inflicting almost three dozen knife wounds.

The youth, charged with capital murder, will face trial this week for his parents' slayings. The trial for the killing of Todd Thompson, 16, is scheduled later.

Jury selection was scheduled for today, with testimony scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Prosecutors say Travis was involved in a plot with Thompson to kill Travis' mother and father.

Police found the bodies of David and Kathleen Travis and Thompson in the Travis residence on March 13. Travis, a hardware store owner, was found slumped against a bedroom wall. He had been stabbed 11 times in the back and chest.

Disabled man says elderly driving him out

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 24-year-old man who lives in a federally funded apartment complex for senior citizens and the disabled has sued the facility, alleging that a "gang" of elderly residents is trying to force him out.

Kelly Lew-Hanson is by far the youngest resident at the Hereford Apartments in Austin; his neighbors say he is disruptive and frightening and they want him out.

Lew-Hanson suffers from post-polio syndrome, chronic liver disease and a brain disorder.

He contends that it's the older folks who have created a ruckus. He says they've heckled and harassed him for months.

Lew-Hanson and his mother, Siri Sophar, have filed a civil lawsuit and a complaint with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, charging that apartment management has harassed Lew-Hanson and has discriminated against him.

Teen curfews working in suburban Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Teen curfews are getting good reviews from several suburban towns that have enacted them.

During the past year, Pasadena, Rosenberg, Richmond, Humble and South Houston all have implemented curfews.

Missouri City, also in suburban Houston, adopted one just last week. The Harris County Commissioners Court also has agreed to study a curfew for unincorporated areas of the county.

While experts debate the benefits of such laws, officials in the cities that have them have noticed a drop in crime.

Waivers in ozone rules worries environmentalists

DALLAS (AP) — Local and state officials fearing the loss of federal funds for transportation improvements have asked the Environmental Protection Agency to waive or delay rules on a major pollutant, nitrogen oxide.

Some areas, such as Dallas-Fort Worth and El Paso, want the EPA to also approve transportation plans that would result in increased nitrogen oxide emissions.

Other areas, such as Beaumont and Houston, are seeking temporary waivers freeing industrial sources such as power plants from nitrogen oxide controls.

They argue that cities can clean up the air just by reducing ozone's other ingredient, volatile organic compounds from vehicle fuel and other sources.

But environmental groups disagree strongly with the cities' argument that nitrogen oxide controls aren't necessary or may do more harm than good.

They argue that the government has no business neglecting a major component of dirty air.

Ozone, the nation's most common air pollutant, is created when sunlight cooks nitrogen oxide from unburned fuel and volatile organics from vehicles, factories, lawn equipment, some consumer products and other sources.

Ozone irritates lungs and poses extra risks to people with asthma or other breathing ailments.

Groups such as the Sierra Club, the American Lung Association and the Environmental Defense Fund want the EPA to keep up limits on nitrogen oxide because of ozone's health risks and the chance cities' clean-air plans may fail.

"More emissions is not a good thing," said George Smith, the Sierra Club's national air-quality chairman. "We feel that major reductions in both (types of pollutants) are going to be needed. The sooner we get on with it, the better off we are."

Nationwide, billions of dollars in planned transportation improvements could depend upon getting the nitrogen oxide exemptions.

Everett Bacon, principal transportation planner with the North Central Texas Council of Governments, said $74 million of planned transportation projects are at stake in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The 1990 Clean Air Act and EPA rules require local transportation plans to conform to clean air plans, meaning they can't make air pollution worse — but in the case of nitrogen oxide, many would do just that.

Lower standards ups school performance

HOUSTON (AP) — State education commissioner Lionel R. "Skip" Meno achieved higher ratings for Texas schools in the 1993-94 school year by putting less-stringent standards in place, a newspaper has reported.

The Houston Chronicle said Meno implemented easier standards so hundreds of Texas schools would stay off the national "low-performing list."

Test results last year showed dramatic improvement in Texas over the 1992-93 school year. But the Chronicle reported in its Sunday editions that Meno achieved the success from slipping state standards.

The Chronicle based its story upon a review of Texas Education Agency memoranda.

The newspaper reported that the number of schools on the "low performing list" category dropped 83 percent between 1993 and 1994, from 326 in 1993 to 55 last school year.

"Absolutely, there's no question" that the standards used in 1994 were lower than originally proposed, Meno said Friday. But he denied that last year's measuring stick was lower than 1993's.

"I don't believe 'back off' is the right word to use," Meno said. "If we had put that (the tougher standards) out there, I think we would have broken the backs of the people out there in the field."

Meno said the changes were needed because the 1993 evaluations "were seriously flawed."

Meno, whom Gov. Ann Richards appointed, had touted the higher scores as proof of school officials' hard work and evidence that Texas education is on the right track.

Copies of Meno's memos to his advisory committee of school superintendents show that between Dec. 3, 1993, and

Jan. 5, 1994, Meno rescinded plans to hold schools to stringent performance standards in 1994.

Instead, he offered options that essentially allowed schools to ignore test scores in most grade levels and those of traditionally low-achieving student groups if there was no other way to show improvement.

Nearly all the changes in criteria were aimed at schools in the "low-performing" and "acceptable" categories; stringent standards were upheld for schools seeking the top two ratings of "exemplary" and "recognized."

That comes at a time when quality education is a key issue in Richards' race with Republican challenger George W. Bush.

Bush accused the commissioner of manipulating standards in an election year to make Richards look good.

"Playing politics with test scores is appalling, and it's not fair to the teachers and students of Texas, who are forced to try to measure up to an ever-changing set of standards," Bush said in a statement issued Sunday in response to the Chronicle article.

"I am shocked and angered that Ann Richards' administration not only lowered the standards during an election year, but also repeatedly tried to mislead Texans about what they had done," he said.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards, said Sunday that Bush made "political accusations that are unfounded."

"It is unfortunate that George W. Bush wants to dispute and distort the one undeniable fact and that is that test scores in Texas have improved. More students have scored higher on different tests than at any other time in Texas history," McDonald said.

"Mr. Bush does not have a personal frame of reference to understand public schools in Texas," McDonald continued. "He cannot compare his own high school experience at a prep school in Massachusetts to what a Texas kid sees in Houston, Dallas, El Paso or any other part of this state."

Meno denies any of his changes were because of political pressure.

"It was strictly my call," he said.

One memo to Meno's advisory committee indicates that he altered the accountability criteria "as a result of recommendations made during December."

Meno said Friday that the recommendations were made by the school superintendents and teachers who thought the 1993 ratings had dealt them an unfair blow because unexpected standards had been applied.

Answers few as to reasons for bloom of brown tide algae

PORT ARANSAS (AP) — Experts agree that brown tide is causing extensive problems along the Laguna Madre on the Texas coast. But they can't seem to answer the many questions about the algae bloom situation.

More than 50 environmental scientists and conservation activists representing state and federal agencies, research institutes and conservation groups debated the problem for eight hours Saturday at the University of Texas Marine Science Institute.

"We are here because the management committee of the Corpus Christi Bay National Estuary Program was concerned enough to create a task force to address the brown tide problem," said task force chairman Bob Wallace Jr. of Corpus Christi, a member of the Coastal Bend Bays Foundation.

However, Saturday's symposium devised no apparent resolution of the key issue: Is brown tide an example of a naturally recurring cycle in the lagoon or is it a manmade disaster?

The symposium panel named a select steering committee to discuss actions for both the short and long term to confront the brown tide threat.

On the committee are representatives of the National Estuary Program, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Texas General Land Office, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, Marine Science Institute, Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi and Gulf Coast Conservation Association.

One short-term action plan would focus on the problem of brown tide killing larval redfish and speckled trout at the fish hatchery of the GCCA-CPL Marine Development Center in Flour Bluff.

"The task will be to get the hatchery's production problem solved so it can be ready to supply fish for stocking the Laguna Madre if that becomes necessary," said Larry McKinney, director of the Parks and Wildlife Department's Resource Protection Division.

That would involve funding experimentation with organisms that eat the brown tide algae or viruses that kill it.

Another short-term plan is to seek ways to reduce additional clouding of lagoon waters from manmade causes, McKinney said. That would involve ameliorating the impacts of dredging and, perhaps, boat use.

Officials said all available resources will be pooled to give researchers a better understanding how the Laguna Madre ecosystem operates.

RECOGNIZING PERFORMANCE

Gov. Ann Richards is surrounded by students from Yaleta Elementary School during her visit Friday in El Paso. Richards visited the school, one of three in El Paso participating in the state's Alliance Schools Initiative, to recognize innovations and student performance.

Rally decries perceived coverup

GILMER (AP) — About 300 people have gathered in a rally protesting the lack of progress into the investigation of the 1992 disappearance and presumed murder of a local teen-ager.

Speakers at a "Justice for Kelly Wilson" rally held Sunday on the square of the Gilmer County Courthouse rallied against satanic cults, which they say were involved in Miss Wilson's disappearance.

They also accused law enforcement agencies and the news media of being involved in a coverup.

Miss Wilson, 17, disappeared after leaving her job at a video store in Gilmer in 1992.

In January, a grand jury indicted Gilmer police Sgt. James Brown, the lead investigator on the case, and seven others in the assumed murder of Miss Wilson in the course of satanic rituals.

The state attorney general's office dismissed the indictments in March after taking over the case.

"In God we trust; in the A.G. we don't," read one sign in Sunday's crowd.

Cathy Carlson of Gilmer, the missing girl's mother, initially refused to believe that Brown could have been involved in her daughter's disappearance.

She said she changed her mind after: "I finally talked to the horse's mouth rather than it's rear end."

Don't lower education standards

If Texas education commissioner Lionel R. "Skip" Meno has done what he is purported to have done - lowered the standards for Texas' schools - every parent across this state should be up in arms.

According to The Houston Chronicle, Meno implemented easier standards so hundreds of Texas schools would stay off the national "low-performing list."

That is not the way we should want to stay off any "low-performing list," and Texas' parents and teachers should be upset that the education commissioner thinks this is the way to enhance school performance.

First, a total emphasis on education as a way of life needs to be emphasized. Then, parents have to teach their children education comes first and schools have to provide the best educational opportunities. Only then will children learn and performance levels come up.

graduate students who can't compete on more than the basic level.

We need future leaders who can think, comprehend and act - not just spew out rote memorized facts and figures without the ability to use them.

We need to quit playing with our standards for education. We need the highest standards possible for the highly technological world our children are entering and keep our aim high.

Instead of lowering the standards to meet performance, raise the standards of expectation and watch our children, teachers, parents rise to the occasion.

Adios, and keep the faith

My husband has been transferred to New Mexico and so just as I was getting my west Texas drawl down, I've got to learn to say "you guys" instead of "y'all."

Even though we've only been here a little over three years, I feel as if I'm losing life-long friends. To look on the bright side though, since we'll only be 40 miles from Durango, Colo., I expect I'll see a few of you snow birds during skiing season. I had hoped to have the time to call each of the special people who have made my stay in Big Spring a pleasure.

Unfortunately, I don't have the months it would take. To DD Turner, thanks for giving me the opportunity to write this column. She's had to put up with being late and recently not being there at all. But before I leave I would like to say this about the city of Big Spring. This city has potential! It could be the jewel of West Texas. But before that can happen, folks have got to remember it takes joint effort among all people. The divisiveness the permeates Big Spring will smother all individuals attempts to make this town the best it can be.

In closing, here's a poem by James Kenny, an Indianapolis High School student.

The Cold Within
Six humans trapped by happense, in bleak and bitter cold.

Each one possessed a stick of wood, or so the story's told.

Their dying fire in need of logs, the first man held his back,

For of the faces round the fire,
he noticed one was black.

The next man looking cross the way, saw not one of his church,

And couldn't bring himself to give the fire his stick of birch.

The third one sat in tattered clothes, he gave his coat a hitch.

Why should his log be put to use to warm the idle rich?

The rich man just sat back and thought of the wealth he had in store,

And how to keep what he had earned from the lazy, shiftless poor

The black man's face bespoke revenge as the fire passed from his sight,

For all he saw in his stick of wood was a chance to spite the white.

The last man of this forlorn group id naught except for gain, Giving only to those who gave was the way he played the game,

Their logs held tight in death's still hand was proof of human sin,

They didn't die from the cold without

They died from the cold within.

May God bless and keep each of you.

We hit-and-run visitors to the world's news fronts are not to be confused with traditional foreign correspondents.

They live in the places we can't wait to leave.

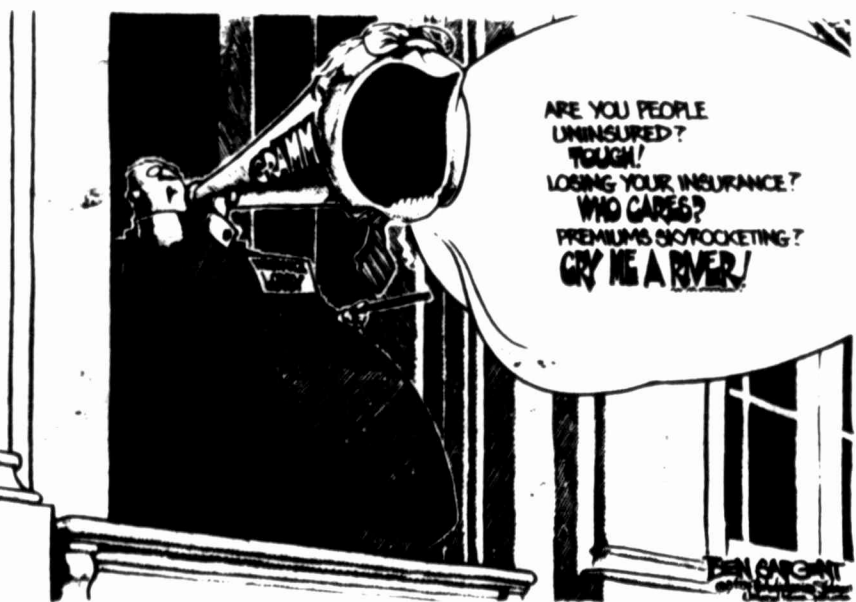

My own ABC network has had several esteemed foreign correspondents, but none with more credibility than Charles Arnot.

Frequently, I would encounter Charlie in some of the world's godforsaken places, and I always learned from his seasoned perspective.

I was in the audience when Egypt's Nasser in Damascus proclaimed, "We will fight to the last drop of Arab blood!" It was seasoned Charlie, looking over my shoulder as I typed my notes including this inflammatory utterance, who gently reminded me that such statements were not to be translated literally. "Here in the Middle East," Charlie explained, "some people are likely to sound like that when they are summoning a taxicab."

Today, all of us in the news business can be privy to Charlie Arnot's wisdom. He has written a book called "Don't Kill the Messenger."

This most shot-at foreign cor-

Much of it is a tribute to the 244 newsmen and newswomen who've died in the line of duty, including a personal word portrait of each that will be treasured by each family.

The rest of the book reminds the rest of us newsmen why we must try to live up to them. The world has further unraveled since Charlie.

A feminist author, Taslima Nasrin, has dared to write that the Koran, the holy book of Islam, "should be revised to protect women's rights."

Islamic fundamentalists ordered her dead - put a $5,000 bounty on her head. Understandably frightened, Taslima Nasrin went underground.

She lived in a single dark room with no telephone. Those who brought her food in this "dungeon in Bangladesh" she has never named and never will. But one day while Islamic death squads were still searching the streets of Dhaka, each hoping to collect the $5,000, Taslima Nasrin decided enough was enough.

She would not live out her life in the dark.

Periodically, tens of thousands demonstrate outside Parliament, demanding her prosecution for blasphemy, determined to "kill the messenger."

It's still a jungle out there, Charlie.

Obese kids risk sleep disturbances

TORONTO (AP) — Obese adolescents are at risk of developing sleep disturbances that can cause learning disorders and a significant drop in IQ, a study found.

The study was done on severely obese adolescents, but it's possible the same thing is happening in some moderately obese adolescents, researchers said.

"There's a decrease in oxygen to the brain and it leads to a type of brain damage," said the study's principal author, Susan K. Rhodes, a psychologist at the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston.

Because adolescents' brains are still developing, putting obese adolescents on diets could reverse the damage, she said.

Moroccan plane crash kills 44

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — All 44 people who were aboard a Royal Air Maroc passenger plane died when it crashed shortly after takeoff, the airline said today.

The ATR-42 twin-engine turboprop was on a flight from the southern city of Agadir to Casablanca when it crashed about 20 miles north of Agadir on Sunday evening. There were 40 passengers and four crew aboard.

Sixteen of the dead were foreigners, many of them thought to be Italian tourists, according to the state-owned airline. Aviation sources said one of the dead was an American, but no further information was available.

"It's too soon to talk about the cause of this catastrophe," said an airline spokesman who asked not to be identified by name. "The weather apparently posed no problem at the moment of the accident."

The plane "left in midafternoon from Casablanca to Agadir, where it made a stopover," Moroccan Civil Aviation Director Mohamed Mouffid told the radio network Europe-1.

"Ten minutes later, the crew sent out a distress signal," Mouffid said. "A search team was sent out and the wreckage found around 8:30 p.m. Unfortunately none of the 44 people on board survived."

Transport Minister Rachid el-Rhezuani travelled to the accident site to inspect the crash zone.

Exit polls indicate victory for ruling party

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The party that has ruled Mexico for 65 years appeared headed today for another six years in power after the most-monitored presidential election in Mexican history.

Two early exit polls showed the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party with more than 50 percent of the vote, far ahead of the conservative National Action Party, or PAN, and the leftist Democratic Revolution Party, or PRD.

The first official results were not expected until later today.

"I am happier than I anticipated yesterday," said Ernesto Zedillo, candidate of the ruling party known as the PRI, soon after the polls closed.

Zedillo, a 42-year-old Yale-trained economist, was thrust into the PRI candidacy by the assassination of the PRI's first candidate, Luis Donaldo Colosio, on March 23.

Election day is day of pilgrimage

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Dressed in black under a hot sun, Emilia Arangure knelt in the dust and prayed at the shrine to slain presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio.

"I came to give my vote to Colosio," she said, tears falling down her lined cheeks. "Men like that don't deserve to die."

In the poor shantytown where the ruling party's original candidate was assassinated March 23, Election Day also was a day of pilgrimage.

Ernesto Zedillo, Mexican presidential candidate of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) waves from the podium at party headquarters in Mexico City this morning after a speech in which he claimed victory in Sunday's national elections.

Mexico: Ruling party victorious

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ernesto Zedillo, the candidate of the party that has ruled Mexico for 65 years, declared victory early today in presidential elections that his two leading opponents charged were unfair.

The election, the most scrutinized in Mexican history, was seen as a crucial test of Mexico's democracy and its stability after an Indian uprising in January and the assassination of a popular presidential candidate in March.

After hours of peaceful voting, protests erupted across the country over shortages of ballots that kept thousands from casting votes.

"On this election day, there are no defeated. The most important victory is for democracy in Mexico. We all have a place in that," Zedillo said in a brief victory statement minutes after the first results were released.

With 15 percent of precincts counted, the candidate of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party led with 47.14 percent of the vote.

Diego Fernandez de Cevallos of the conservative National Action Party, or PAN, had 31.35 percent and Cuauhtemoc Cardenas of the leftist Democratic Revolution Party, or PRD, had 15.49 percent. Six other opposition candidates trailed far behind.

A plurality was needed to win.

Zedillo praised his rivals for their "good faith and the aspiration to serve Mexico."

"From now on, without sacrificing our differences, we should underline our agreements, joining our efforts to build in peace and harmony a more prosperous and more just Mexico for all," he said.

He had earlier predicted the cleanest election in Mexican history. The PRI, as the ruling party is known, often resorted to fraud in past elections to stay in power.

Fernandez complained today about a "profoundly unequal and profoundly unjust" election system despite reforms, and Cardenas said his own exit polls showed he was winning the election.

Both earlier vowed to lead a civil disobedience movement if the election was fraudulent.

More than 82,000 national and foreign observers monitored the elections, a test of Mexico's resolve to match the bold economic reforms of this year's North American Free Trade Agreement with political reform.

Mexicans also elected a 500-member Chamber of Deputies and 96 members of an expanded, 128-seat Senate. Southernmost Chiapas state, scene of the Indian rebellion, elected a governor, legislators and local authorities.

Turnout was 70 percent to 75 percent of Mexico's 45.7 million eligible voters, said Felipe Calderon, the PAN's secretary general.

Zedillo, a 42-year-old economist, was thrust into the PRI candidacy by the assassination of the party's first candidate, Luis Donaldo Colosio, on March 23 in Tijuana.

He vowed to continue the free-market economic reforms of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, capped by the NAFTA free-trade bloc with the United States and Canada. Salinas is barred by the constitution from running for a consecutive term and leaves office Dec. 1.

Zedillo also promised to greatly expand spending on social services and education to help the millions of Mexicans still trapped in poverty and to push Mexico further into democracy by distributing more power to regional governments.

The greatest protests, ironically, arose over an anti-fraud measure that limited the number of ballots available at 687 polling places for absentee voters to 300 each.

Water replaces weapons for humanitarian interventions

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — Water pumps, bulldozers and plastic sheets for shelter may become the U.S. military's weapons of choice as it prepares for "humanitarian interventions" around the post-Cold War world, says an officer coordinating the U.S. relief effort in Rwanda.

Although late and limited, the now month-long U.S. assistance to this terribly stricken nation has scored successes. These, and unfortunate shortfalls, are what Col. Karl Farris will incorporate into textbooks for use in future catastrophes.

"The U.S. military is the only military ... that can get to a humanitarian crisis quickly and with sufficient resources to make a difference" anywhere in the world, Farris said in an interview Sunday.

The United Nations is not structured to move rapidly enough, said Farris, director of the U.S. Army Peacekeeping Institute in Carlisle, Pa., which trains soldiers for humanitarian missions.

The Clinton administration was criticized for responding too slowly to the vast refugee flows and aftershocks of tribal massacres that erupted in Rwanda in April. An estimated 500,000 people were killed in 14 weeks of civil war.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Refugees thought they had made it

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The three Cubans clinging to a raft of lashed-together tree branches wept and shouted with joy when the Coast Guard boat neared. They'd survived hunger, sharks, the scorching sun and battering waves during six days of paddling through the Florida Straits.

Now, they thought, they'd reached America at last. They were wrong.

The Coast Guard crew that scooped up Florentino Gonzalez, 34, Jose Gonzalez, 40, and Abel Vidal, 22, from their precarious raft Sunday took them not to Florida, but to a cutter loaded with hundreds of other refugees bound for the Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Hoping to stem the swelling tide of boat people, President Clinton on Friday reversed the United States' longstanding open-arms policy toward Cuban refugees, who in the past were virtually assured of asylum. Now, those who reach U.S. shores are being detained indefinitely, and those picked up at sea are taken to Guantanamo Bay.

Chavis declares himself free man

BALTIMORE (AP) — Declaring himself a free man, the ousted executive director of the NAACP blasted the organization's leaders as puppets of the corporate establishment.

"How can you have a freedom movement if somebody else is paying for your freedom?" Benjamin Chavis said at a rally Sunday night, surrounded by about 150 supporters, including Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan.

"I am committed to the struggle of our people in a way that does not make one want to bend," he said. "Too many of our leaders have bent over."

Tropical storm cruising uneventfully past

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Chris was taking an uneventful cruise past Bermuda on Sunday night on its way to the north Atlantic, where it was expected to die harmlessly.

Chris, which was the Atlantic season's first hurricane, had been downgraded to a tropical storm after its winds diminished.

At 8 p.m. EDT, the disorganized center of the storm, which had maximum winds of nearly 40 mph, was at 32.4 degrees north latitude and 62.7 degrees west longitude, or about 110 miles east-southeast of Bermuda.

It was moving northwest at nearly 18 mph, and was expected to curve slightly more to the north and pass near Bermuda late Sunday, said forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables. Islanders were told to expect winds of tropical storm force, but only briefly.

"As far as I can tell it's not having very much effect on Bermuda," meteorologist Miles Lawrence said. "It's brushing by it right now."

Chris was downgraded from hurricane status Saturday after its winds dropped below the threshold of 74 mph. Little significant change in strength was expected again through early Monday.

Woman killed after holding cat hostage

GRESHAM, Ore. (AP) — Police shot and killed a woman who was holding her cat at knifepoint in a grocery store on Sunday.

The woman came into the store with her Siamese cat and a knife and sat down in an aisle, said Sgt. David Lerwick, a police spokesman.

Managers placed rows of shopping carts at either end of the aisle, moved bystanders away, and called police.

Officers asked the woman to drop the knife and she began threatening to kill the cat, Lerwick said. The woman has not been identified.

The woman got up and began walking toward the officers, who sprayed her with pepper mace in an effort to stop her advance.

White House calls filibuster threat 'disgrace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said today it would be "a disgrace to the country" if opponents of the House-passed crime bill are able to block its passage through a filibuster in the Senate.

The bill cleared the House 235-195 in a rare Sunday session, after key Democrats and moderate Republicans bargained until dawn and 3 a.m. the two previous nights.

It now goes to the Senate, where Democrats must find the same kind of help from moderate Republicans that rescued the $30.2 billion compromise in the House.

"I think the Senate is going to act to get this passed," Panetta said today, calling "the issue of crime the fundamental issue that most concerns Americans."

Panetta said on NBC that opponents "may try procedural blocks. They have the filibuster available to them. But I think it's going to be a disgrace to the country if the Senate at the last minute decides to filibuster a major crime bill."

Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said debate should begin today on the bill designed to: help hire 100,000 new police officers; build new prisons; and, much to the consternation of the powerful National Rifle Association, ban military-style assault weapons.

With the outcome uncertain for hours, a crucial preliminary vote Sunday flashed the results of deals that cut $3.3 billion from the earlier bill, mostly from crime prevention programs.

Forty-two Republicans supported the motion to allow consideration by the full House, compared with 11 when a similar move failed 10 days ago. The Aug. 11 vote sent shocked Democratic leaders and Clinton into a tailspin, forcing them to negotiate with the GOP moderates — and causing a potentially devastating delay in the timetable for health care reform legislation. "In the past few days, we on our side have had to reach out to moderate Republicans. It was painful," said Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on crime.

"Many of us had to give in ways we haven't had to give before. But it will produce a bill and it is the way we should go in the future."

Democrats will have to go that way in the Senate. Majority Democrats have 56 senators, some of whom are likely to defect, while 60 are needed to hurdle procedural obstacles that Republicans threaten to erect.

GOP senators, like the Republicans who opposed the House compromise, believe the House-passed bill still spends far too much on prevention instead of punishment.

"This fight is far from over" in the Senate, Clinton said after the vote. He lauded the bipartisan House cooperation saying, "This is the way Washington should work, and I hope it works this way in the future."

But Sen. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah, senior Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee, warned, "It still may collapse." Hatch vowed to fight "soft, fluffy language that will not do anything against crime."

Hatch said the House bill falls short of the money needed to build more prisons, reach the goal of hiring 100,000 new police officers and combat gang violence.

Battle over blood samples continues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prosecutors and the defense are battling over what might be the most important evidence in the O.J. Simpson double-murder case: blood samples taken from the crime scene and Simpson's estate.

Simpson's lawyers claim the samples were grossly mishandled — perhaps badly enough that results of DNA testing should not be allowed in court. Prosecutors deny it.

A hearing on the blood feud was scheduled for today. Lawyers were to attempt to determine how much blood is available for testing and discuss the role DNA evidence plays in the case.

Judge Lance Ito was also expected to decide whether he will unseal the so-called mystery envelope, which Simpson lawyer Robert Shapiro handed over during an earlier hearing.

Speculation about the envelope has ranged from the suggestion that it contains the murder weapon to the theory that it holds tapes from surveillance cameras at Simpson's Brentwood mansion.

Simpson, 47, has pleaded innocent to murder charges in the slaying deaths of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman outside her Brentwood condominium on June 12. His trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 19.

According to CNN, tests on some blood samples taken from the crime scene suggest a genetic match with Simpson. But sources told The Associated Press that preliminary tests on drops found at the site did not match Simpson's blood.

The blood has been the focus of repeated pretrial arguments.

Firefighters work to dig a fireline on a mountain in the Payette National Forest near McCall, Idaho, Sunday. Two out-of-control fires raced toward nearly 70 homes in Montana.

Pair of out-of-control fires race toward Montana homes

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — A pair of fires roared uncontrolled and partially unfought through northwestern Montana today, advancing on nearly 70 houses and forcing dozens of evacuations.

"Primary residences and lives are threatened," said Ed Conley of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's regional office in Denver.

The worst blaze covered 12,000 acres in the Flathead National Forest, less than two miles from a 30-house development near Whitefish. Residents began leaving Sunday. Officials expected the fire to reach the development today.

The Forest Service designated the fire its top priority. Even so, resources were scarce. Fire commander Wally Bennett said he doubted he'd get the additional two dozen crews he requested.

"If the No. 1 fire can't get any resources, imagine what it's like when you're lower down the priority list," Bennett said.

Elsewhere in the West, the National Interagency Fire Center said more than 18,700 firefighters were battling 30 major fires that were out of control. The fires covered 455,897 acres in Idaho, Montana, Utah, Oregon, Washington and California.

Firefighting efforts have been hampered by a shortage of firefighters and the numbers were shrinking as crews closed in on mandatory rest periods after 21 consecutive days on the line.

Montana's firefighting force totaled just over 6,000, including more than 1,000 Army soldiers and Marines and more than 100 National Guard members. But officials said there were so many fires that many couldn't be fought at all.

More than 600 soldiers from Fort Lewis, Wash., began arriving Sunday and will be sent out later this week after training.

Perry visits Florida to witness exodus of Cuban refugees

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — As Cuban refugees took to the sea in record numbers, Defense Secretary William Perry headed for southern Florida today to observe the exodus of Cubans and to meet with top Navy and Coast Guard officials.

Perry was scheduled to meet with Coast Guard officials in Key West, Fla., before conducting an air tour of the Florida straits to assess the flood of refugees.

A senior defense official, speaking on board Perry's aircraft, downplayed reports of a potential blockade against Cuba.

"The idea of a blockade is not something currently at the forefront of our planning," the official said.

Perry flew from Washington this morning with Deputy Transportation Secretary Mortimer Downey to Norfolk, where they picked up Adm. Paul D. Miller, the four-star admiral in charge of U.S. naval operations in the Atlantic region.

On Sunday, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta raised the distant possibility of a naval blockade, presumably to prevent other countries from selling goods to Cuba, as a way to turn up the pressure on Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

"We've got to continue to put pressure on Castro, because the problem here is not the problem of refugees, it's not the problem of migrants. It's the problems within the Castro regime," he said.

Another official, who spoke on condition of not being identified by name, said the Navy has contingency plans to put as many as 10 Navy ships to work picking up Cubans adrift at sea. Up to now, mainly Coast Guard vessels have been used.

Panetta said the pressure on Castro now is coming in the form of economic sanctions announced Saturday by President Clinton, including a ban on cash payments sent by Cuban-Americans to their relatives in Cuba.

"We want to see Castro move toward a democratic form of government, and that clearly is not happening. As a consequence, we're putting pressure on the Castro government," Panetta said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Some Republicans have rebuked the White House for focusing too much on the refugee exodus, and not enough on pushing out Castro.

Reversing a 28-year U.S. policy, the Clinton administration announced last week that Cuban refugees interdicted at sea would be turned away from the United States and detained at the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Clinton barred cash payments by Cuban-Americans to relatives in Cuba and put new limits on flights between the United States and the island nation. He also pledged increased and amplified U.S. radio broadcasts into Cuba warning residents not to take to the sea.

There were no signs that the new policy had stemmed the tide of Cuban refugees making the treacherous 90-mile journey across the Straits of Florida.

On Sunday, the Coast Guard intercepted at least 1,293 refugees from boats and rafts, the most in a single day since 1980, when 125,000 Cubans flooded to Florida in five months during the Mariel boat lift.

The numbers have surged since Aug. 5, when Castro threatened to open his coast and the United States responded by vowing not to allow another Mariel.

Pentagon considers cutting contracts

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pentagon is considering cutting or delaying most major aircraft contracts, The Wall Street Journal and Washington Post reported today.

Based on a memo from Deputy Defense Secretary John M. Deutch to members of the Defense Resources Board policy council, the papers said the cuts could come as soon as next month.

Deutch, the Pentagon's acquisition chief, has reportedly targeted:

The Air Force F-22 fighter by Boeing, the largest planned U.S. procurement for a single weapons system.

The Army's Comanche, or RAH-66, helicopter, jointly in development by Boeing and the Sikorsky unit of United Technologies Corp.

The Navy and Marines' V-22 Osprey, a versatile two-engine craft that can fly like a plane and land like a helicopter, in development by Boeing and the Bell Helicopters unit of Textron Inc.

The cost of helping Cuban and Rwandan refugees, plus the fight against drug traffickers, has forced the Pentagon to find savings by delaying high-priced weapons, The Post said.

A spokesman for Deutch would not confirm the memo, the Journal said.

"You're going to hear a lot of screaming" by Air Force brass over delaying the F-22s, The Post quoted an unidentified Air Force official as saying.

"This'll be a blow to the Navy ... and it's scary," a Navy official told the paper.

Defense contractors were less dramatic in their assessment.

Steer

full
strengthBy DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers may have to engineer a few comebacks on the scoreboard this football season, but one player has already made a comeback of his own.

David Foresyth, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior defensive end, has been an interesting story this season and last. Last season, Foresyth was an unknown commodity, a player that wasn't even a lock to make the varsity squad in Big Spring coach Dwight Butler's eyes.

He went on to make the all-District 3-4A team.

This season, Foresyth is well-known among Steer fans, and he'll be a leader of the defensive unit. However, Foresyth had to work hard to maintain that status.

Harder than you might think. Foresyth became ill about two weeks before Christmas of last year, he said, and what was a bad case of flu (are there good ones?) progressed into strep throat, then a more advanced form of strep throat. Before it was over, Foresyth missed almost two weeks of school and lost 25 to 30 pounds, he said.

"It was flu, then I went into strep throat, then it was beta strep throat," he said. "But I got all of the weight back during the off-season. Then in the workouts, we all got in shape. Especially in the heat during two-a-days."

Butler said Foresyth couldn't have worked harder to return to top playing form. Foresyth supplied 79 tackles and nine quarterback sacks for the Steers last season, and last winter Butler was starting to wonder if his star defensive end would be returning in '94.

"He looked like a gutted rat," the coach said.

It was merely a formality, since everyone on the team knew Foresyth was ready, but Friday's scrimmage at Lamesa gave Foresyth his return to the football field - against people other than his teammates, anyway. The defense started slow, surrendering three touchdown runs to Lamesa, but defused the Lamesa offense after that. Foresyth had three solo tackles and three assists in the scrimmage.

"I'd like to show people that you can come back from a really good season and have another," he said. "And we're going to prove a lot of people wrong. Those people out there that think we're going to be 3-7, the papers that have said that - well, we're going to be better than they think."

Players, owners setting ground rules for talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Before baseball players and owners talk, they have to talk about talking.

In the weird world of baseball labor relations, nothing is simple these days. So as the strike enters its 11th day, union head Donald Fehr and management negotiator Richard Ravitch are set to get together to discuss the rules of engagement for their next negotiating session, now scheduled for Wednesday.

Fehr compares the pre-discussion discussion to the Paris peace talks on the Vietnam War.

"I assume this means we'll be arguing about the shape of the table," he said Sunday. "We intend to tell them they can sit where they please."

Delegations from each side will meet separately Tuesday with federal mediators. Bargaining, which broke off when the strike began Aug. 12, then will resume Wednesday with owners at the table for the first time since talks began on Jan. 13, 1993.

Fehr said he has no great expectations for the week, insisting that acting commissioner Bud Selig has a "calendar" for management's actions during the talks.

"It doesn't make any sense to try and figure it out. They'll tell us," Fehr said. "The notion that anything we say or do matters is simply wrong. They set out to have a strike and they'll negotiate to end it when they want to end it."

The strike canceled 14 games Sunday, increasing the total to 131, nearly 6 percent of the entire season. Players have lost about $44.2 million in salary and owners have lost an estimated $85 million in revenue.

There have been no signs that owners will alter their demand for a salary cap, although Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris repeated during the weekend that he doesn't think a cap must be part of the solution.

"I have no idea whether there'll be progress," Ravitch said Sunday.

Ravitch also said he didn't know if Wednesday's session would continue through the latter part of the week.

"We'll have to see whether it's likely to be meaningful," he said.

Fehr declined to respond to reports that the delegation of owners may include just one person with direct investment in a team: Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf.

Fehr didn't think the renewed session would provide an indication of whether the presence of owners at the table would provoke movement in the talks.

"We won't know that this week, I think," he said.

Meanwhile, players continued their summer holiday.

The Atlanta Braves held a clinic for about 80 youths on Saturday at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. While players didn't attend, pitching coach Leo Mazzone and bench coach Jim Beauchamp showed up.

Emmitt stars

bomb Denver

IRVING (AP) — Emmitt Smith, making his first appearance since an MVP outing in the Super Bowl, took up where he left off in the Georgia Dome by scoring a touchdown, setting up another, and rushing for 110 yards on 21 carries in the Dallas Cowboys 34-10 preseason victory Sunday night over the Denver Broncos.

Smith sat out the first three preseason games, resting the right shoulder he injured in last year's NFC championship game against the New York Giants. He showed training camp practice makes perfect.

On the Cowboys' first possession, he rushed nine times for 30 yards, caught two passes for 9 yards, and scored on a 1-yard run. Of the 17 plays on the 85-yard drive, Smith was used on 11.

The second time Dallas had the ball, Smith gained 44 yards rushing and had a brief visit to the sidelines for some smelling salts from trainer Kevin O'Neill after taking a hard hit. Smith had runs of 4, 9, 9, 12 and 10 yards on the drive before Lincoln Coleman took over for a 4-yard touchdown run.

Smith had 16 yards on a third Dallas drive before proving he was capable of human error by fumbling the ball away on the Denver 10. He played on Dallas' first possession in the second half and took the rest of the night off.

Kevin Williams scored the Cowboys' third touchdown on a 79-yard punt return to give the Cowboys a 21-3 lead and delight the announced crowd of 63,923 fans in Texas Stadium.

John Elway finally got the Denver offense going with a 39-yard touchdown pass to Anthony Miller in the second quarter. Elway hit eight of 15 passes for 100 yards in a half of play.

Troy Aikman of the Cowboys hit 15 of 23 passes for 156 yards before Rodney Peete took over. Peete hit tight end Coleman Bell with a 32-yard fourth-quarter touchdown pass to wrap the Dallas scoring.

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Mike Brisky shot a 5-under-par 67 to match a Nike Tour record with a seven-stroke victory in the Texarkana Open on Sunday.

Brisky, who earned $36,000, had a 22-under 266 total on the Texarkana Country Club course to break the tournament record of 267 set last year by Hugh Royer III. The seven-stroke margin tied the mark set by Jon Christian in the 1992 Connecticut Open and matched by Tim Conley in the 1993 Knoxville Open.

Sonny Skinner closed with an even-par 72 to finish second. David Duval (67) and David Kirkpatrick (69) tied for third at 274.

The Colorado City Bass Club is hosting an open fishing tournament Saturday, Sept. 10, and more than $6,000 in cash prizes will be up for grabs.

It is a black bass tournament - three fish - at Lake Champion and/or Lake Colorado City. Stew will be served Friday night before the tournament.

There is also an optional $5 calculutta. For more information, call 1-728-8436 or 1-728-3709. First place is worth $2,000 guaranteed.

Dove Hunt comes to Colorado City

The 4th Annual Colorado City Rotary Club Dove Hunt will be Sat., Sept. 3.

There will be a morning and evening hunt, and lunch will be provided for participants. Sufficient prime dove hunting locations have been found by members of the Colorado City Rotary Club, which is hosting the event.

Hunters will meet 6 a.m. at the Villa Restaurant for registration. The restaurant is located at the intersection of Interstate 20 and Highway 208. Transportation will be available to the hunts for those registering and those who have preregistered.

Kill the polls, keep the bowls in college football

Now that the NFL is alive and well and able to draw 112,000 fans to Mexico City's Aztec Stadium for a muddy, almost scoreless preseason game between the Cowboys and Oilers, let's talk college football.

It won't be long before Texas, Texas A&M, Baylor, and Texas Tech say so long to the Southwest Conference and hello to the soon-to-be Big 12 Conference.

Rice, Houston, Southern Methodist, and Texas Christian will be left to find another home, but not to worry - the Western Athletic Conference looks like a probable new home.

The SWC hasn't been the same since Earl Campbell left Texas. The conference has been good enough to contend for the national title only twice since then.

Currently there are 12 major Division I conferences - with a total of 112 teams - and 11 major independent Division I colleges and universities that compete for a shot at the national title. College football needs to drop its so-called alliance system and adopt a definitive system of crowning a college champion.

Who will forget the 130 record BYU posted to win the national title a few years ago? Who did they play? Several teams that had just one loss cried foul because they played the tougher schedules, but BYU had the No. 1 ranking and the unblemished record.

Recently it was decided that the Orange Fiesta, and Sugar Bowls will host the national championship game on a rotating basis for the next three years. The Cotton Bowl was left out, which upset several people, but it's understandable considering the upcoming changes the conference will undergo and with Texas A&M being on probation.

Money is the key issue when it comes to changes in college football, but why not try a playoff system?

Simple. Keep the bowl system, but use it after a national champion is crowned.

Generally, the college season is finished just before Thanksgiving, and some teams have to wait as long as five weeks to play for the national title or just to play a New Year's Day bowl game.

College football is a mainstay in America, so I don't see a national championship playoff hurting the game, but I can see it adding a little more parity to teams' schedules.

Take the champions from the 12 major conferences and the four best records from among independents and conference runner-ups to form a 16-team playoff.

The playoff grid could be split into two regions, such as East and West, with the teams being seeded according to their record and strength of schedule.

The first week of the playoff would include four first-round games in each region to determine quarterfinal teams, and so it would go until two teams are left.

I see this type of system doing several things, such as forcing a lot of independents to join conferences. It will definitely make conference races more competitive, and more schools would be able to enjoy the benefits of playing in a postseason bowl game.

After all, you have to admit there is just a little too much status quo in major bowl games.

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, AUG. 22, 1994
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be aboveboard in handling a problem. The clearer you are about goals, the more a partner can respond financially and emotionally. Your capabilities get you ahead. You make all the difference. Tonight: Be your happy-go-lucky self. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get an impulsive idea that is hard to ignore. Listen to your instincts about a family member or partner. Take an active stance in the morning. Later in the day, gather information rather than make statements. Tonight: Let those creative juices flow. ***

GEMINI (May 20-June 20): Be anchored when dealing with a partner. You will succeed if you open to change. Your intuition can lead you to opportunities. Touch base with others. Now is the time to express that special wish. Tonight: Party with friends. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reach out for others at a distance. You gain new insight because of your approach to a situation. Stay on top of a problem. Don't hesitate to ask for support. Use creativity in approaching others. Finances flourish. Tonight: Consider taking a drive. ***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Close relating brings financial success. A boss's news could surprise you. Your flexibility concerning money, partners and business puts you in the winner's circle. Check out a family member's view before investing. Tonight: Celebrate over dinner. ***

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You become more playful. Be aware of your strength when dealing with others. A partner needs to talk to you about feelings. Be open, yet listen to your intuition. A creative approach gets you far. Tonight: Make time for a special friend. ***

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get work done early in the day, when your creativity is flowing and your instincts are on target. You are entering a period in which you'll need soul-searching to come up with powerful solutions. Follow through on your priorities. Tonight: Out on the town. ***

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be aware of a partnership's worth. Communications are exciting. In the next month, focus on goals and desires. Be ready for excitement. Later today, tackle you work. Tonight: Have fun. ***

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are coming from a secure vantage point. Use intuition when dealing with a family member. Prepare to act and accept responsibility. Be more secure and let your creativity flow in the afternoon. Tonight: Have a little more fun. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It is a winning day. Make the best of a special opportunity. Communications from a distance are highlighted. Ignore office gossip. Your aboveboard approach makes you feel good. Tune in to your inner desires. Tonight: Entertain at home. ***

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An impulsive action could lead to excessive spending. One-to-one relating allows you to see a financial matter through another's eyes. Communications are activated in the later part of the day. Make that call now. Tonight: Chat up a storm. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make the most of the early hours, when you are in prime shape. Your creativity is high, and you feel good. Touch base with a loved one. Make the most of an opportunity. News from a distance is stunning. Tonight: Balance your checkbook. ***

IF YOUR BIRTHDAY IS AUG. 23: It will be an unusually creative year for you. Work will be dynamic. Finances will improve because of your intuitive understanding of others and how they play into your financial welfare. An investment will perform well. By January, you will be more upbeat and ready for a more creative approach. If you are single, partnerships will flourish, particularly later in the year. If you are attached, you'll establish stronger foundations and go to the next step; be prepared. ARIES is a pal.

The Asterisks Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Hubby's clumsiness may be in his head

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite letters from the early 1970s.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband has had three serious accidents at work in the past two years. I have quit asking him to do chores around the house because he is always smashing his fingers with a hammer, cutting himself, or falling off the ladder while changing the screens or storm windows. It's a good year when he hasn't had a couple of automobile accidents.

The doctor at the plant where he works suggested that he see a psychiatrist! Why? He isn't crazy. -- HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: People who have more than their share of "accidents" could be subconsciously punishing themselves for unresolved guilt. And they need not be "crazy" to do so. I think the plant doctor planted a very sound suggestion in your husband's mind.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that concerns my parents, myself and music. I am 13 and I hate taking piano lessons. My parents know this, but they are forcing me to take lessons anyway.

The lessons are expensive and I seldom practice, which makes it a waste of money, right? My mother says I am so unpleasant at home that I will have to continue taking piano lessons until my disposition improves. My father threatens me by saying that if I don't shape up, I will have to take piano until I am 18!

So will you please tell me, what is the point of taking piano lessons when it is only a waste of time and money? -- HATES PIANO music, and must be nagged, bribed and threatened to practice, can't help but learn something about music, which in your parents' view is better than no musical education at all.

DEAR HATES: There are two schools of thought on that. One: Even a child who "hates"

The other school: Never force music lessons on a child. He or she will only grow to hate music. My view: Music lessons are like a vaccination. It's temporarily painful, but if it takes, it's worth it.

DEAR ABBY: I recently rented an apartment I have in my back yard to a 19-year-old boy with the understanding that he would be living there alone.

Since then, I have seen him with his girlfriend at 7:45 nearly every morning. The girl is 16 and a junior in high school, so I assume he is taking her to school. The girl's parents are divorced, and the girl is supposed to be living with her father. Several other people have told me they have seen her coming and going from my apartment just like she lives there, and this has me upset.

Should I call her father and tell him what I suspect? Ask the boy I rented the apartment to if that girl is living with him? Ask him for the apartment and give him some other reason for wanting it? Or should I ignore the whole situation completely as none of my business? -- LANDLADY IN L.A.

DEAR LANDLADY: Talk directly to the boy. After all, you and he did have an understanding that he would be living there alone. And their ages might also be a factor.

DEAR ABBY: What does it mean when a person puts a stamp upside-down on an envelope? -- DELAWARE

DEAR DELAWARE: It could mean, "I love you," "I'm in a hurry" or "I need glasses."

Abby shares more of her favorite, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, More Favorite Recipes, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

This date in history

Today is Monday, Aug. 22, the 234th day of 1994. There are 131 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 22, 1485, England's King Richard III was killed in the Battle of Bosworth Field, ending the War of the Roses.

On this date:

In 1762, Ann Franklin became the first female editor of an American newspaper, the Newport (R.I.) Mercury.

In 1775, England's King George III proclaimed the American colonies in a state of open rebellion.

In 1787, inventor John Fitch demonstrated his steamboat on the Delaware River to delegates of the Continental Congress.

In 1846, the United States annexed New Mexico.

In 1851, the schooner America outraced the Aurora off the English coast to win a trophy that came to be known as the America's Cup.

In 1893, author, poet, critic and wit Dorothy Parker was born in West Bend, N.J.

In 1902, President Theodore Roosevelt became the first U.S. chief executive to ride in an automobile, in Hartford, Conn.

In 1911, it was announced in Paris that Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" had been stolen from the Louvre Museum sometime during the night. The painting turned up two years later, in Italy.

In 1956, President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon were nominated for second terms in office by the Republican national convention in San Francisco.

In 1968, Pope Paul VI arrived in Bogota, Colombia, for the start of the first papal visit to Latin America.

Ten years ago: The Republican national convention in Dallas nominated President Reagan and Vice President Bush for second terms in office, breaking with tradition by approving both nominations with a single roll-call vote.

Five years ago: Black Panther co-founder Huey P. Newton was shot to death on a street in Oakland, Calif. The gunman, Tyrone Robinson, was later sentenced to 32 years to life in prison.

One year ago: NASA engineers continued trying, without success, to re-establish contact with the Mars Observer, a day after losing contact.

Today's birthdays: Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping is 90. Author Ray Bradbury is 74. Heart surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley is 74. Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf is 60. ABC newsmen Morton Dean is 59.

Thought for today: "Life does not give itself to one who tries to keep all its advantages at once. I have often thought morality may perhaps consist solely in the courage of making a choice." - Leon Blum, French statesman (1872-1950).
