Citizens asked to speak out on $1.5 million funding

By CARLA WALKER

"We want to bring every piece of property in our target area — roughly one-half to the north side of the city — up to the point of meeting city standards and codes, and we need citizen input to make the program work," said Paul Feazelle, director of the Big Spring Office of Housing and Community Development, concerning an application for $1.5 million in federal Community Development Project funds.

The city has set a public hearing for 8 p.m. today at the Northside Fire Station at NE 8th and Main to get citizen suggestions on ways to best utilize the funds within the framework of nine tentatively approved proposals.

"We are already past the stage of competing for the funds, which come from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and now need only submit our final application," said Feazelle. "We have preliminary approval for our projects, and intend to conduct the hearing so that we can, as required by HUD, get citizen input into our final project proposals." This will be the fourth straight year that Big Spring has received Community Development funds.

A breakdown of the proposals and their price tags shows that $20,000 has been set aside for park improvements on the same block with the Northside Fire Station.

Street improvements within the target area are billed for $195,000, with $20,000 marked off for renovation of a building for use as a day care center.

Some $80,000 is budgeted for concentrated code enforcement such as cleaning up weedy lots, hauling off junk cars, and inspection of structures to determine if they meet city codes.

The city hopes to issue some $290,000 in rehabilitation grants over the next two years, with these funds being used to bring in contractors to make substandard housing meet city standards in instances where low income families could not afford to make the repairs. Presently, the grants have a maximum of $5,000 per habitation, but city officials concede that the sum is sometimes too low to make all the necessary repairs. Feazelle has asked for citizen input to determine the new maximum amount.

Also, to operate and administrate HUD's Section 3-12 Rehabilitation Loan project, by which low income families can receive loans at three per cent interest with terms up to 20 years, the city has requested $75,000. The loan money is to be used in repairing substandard housing, and the city of Big Spring has requested the funds to cover credit checks, administrative costs and incidental expenses in preparing loan applications over the next two years.

The next two proposals are entitled "acquisition" and "relocation" and are tagged at $185,000 and $255,000 respectively. The two work together in the case of a low income family which lives in substandard housing that would be impractical to attempt to repair.

The acquisition funds would be used to pay the family a fair market value for the home — usually from $2,000 to $5,000 according to Feazelle — with the relocation benefits — non-repayable grants — used to allow the family to buy a home in another place, have a house moved in, or a house built on the same lot. Individual allotments would vary for owners and renters with approximate minimum-maximums set at $500 to $15,000.

Funds labeled "demolition", would be used to pay a contractor to tear down substandard and dilapidated structures, including housing covered under the acquisition and relocation projects, as well as unoccupied buildings and substandard structures, commercial or residential.

The city has requested $90,000 to be used in demolition.

Funds were requested under two other categories not project oriented. First is a contingency fund in the amount of $140,000.

"We were not exactly sure how much we would need for each program, so we estimated as closely as possible," explained Feazelle.

"The contingency fund would be used in any of the projects where our estimates were lower than the actual need, while any money left over from one of the nine projects would return to the contingency fund. In this way, we can adjust each project's funding to meet its needs and not be hampered by actual figures that may vary from our estimates."

The final request in the funding is for administrative costs in each of the projects. The request comes to $150,000, 10 per cent of the total grant request.

"We have tentative approval for the first year, and should receive final approval after this last specific proposal is sent in," said Feazelle. "The first year we will receive half of the grant — $750,000 — with the $750,000 for the second year automatic if Congress appropriates funds for the Community Development Program. We will not have to make a second application for HUD approval to receive the second half of the grant."

"There are multiple benefits in bringing every piece of property up to city standards and codes," Feazelle said. "The fire hazards on the city's Northside would be substantially decreased, with low income families as the direct beneficiaries of the federal funds. Indirectly, the whole community will benefit as the $1.5 million will be spent locally and will turn over a number of times as local contractors and suppliers are paid for services and materials used in the program."

"This is, as the title says, a Community Development Program, and the city cannot run the program alone. It is a community program so we want community participation, beginning with the public hearing," Feazelle said. "All citizen proposals will be given consideration as we prepare the final application to HUD, and suggestions on the most efficient methods to implement the improvements are most welcome."

WASHOUT — Much of the city of Kerrville, Texas was isolated when flood waters washed out highways around the city after 22 inches of rain fell over the Hill Country during a 48-hour period.

Separate agencies report 9, 15 deaths

Texas Hill Country has more flooding

BANDERA, Texas (AP) — Flood-ravaged residents of the Central Texas Hill Country awakened to more rain this morning as separate agencies reported death tolls of nine and 15 from the two-day torrent.

Kerrville policeman Bill Fackelman said scattered reports came in "all night long" about deaths and missing persons. "We've got nine bodies out of Bandera, four out of Comfort and two out of Center Point," Fackelman said. He said at least nine persons were missing from Center Point and Comfort.

Department of Public Safety officials said they could verify nine dead, but said their counting procedure differed from other agencies.

Jim Robinson of DPS said he was attempting to contact Kerrville authorities to coordinate body counts and locations of the dead.

Various agencies also reported different numbers of missing persons, ranging from 12 to 20.

Two Army helicopters were dispatched this morning from Ft. Sam Houston in San Antonio, but it was not known whether they rescued anyone from new flooding.

"As the flood gets worse, and if we get requests, we'll put them (helicopters) up," said Sgt. Bob Dyslin.

Overnight rains up to 12 inches added to 20-inch amounts that fell beginning early Wednesday morning.

Hundreds of persons were evacuated from low-lying residences and several summer camps along the swollen Guadalupe and Medina Rivers.

Waters began receding late Wednesday and many evacuees returned to their homes, only to be moved again this morning.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe has asked that all three counties be declared disaster areas and made eligible for emergency assistance funds and programs. Ironically, the area has recently been plagued by drought.

Two persons were hospitalized after receiving "major injuries" in the Bandera County flooding along the Medina River, deputies said.

Entrances to the LBJ Ranch near Stonewall, Texas, were blocked by the raging floodwaters of the Pedernales River. Rising waters failed to reach the house, but came within feet of the stone fence circling the family cemetery where the late President Lyndon B. Johnson is buried.

Heavy rains in the area Tuesday and Wednesday turned several normally placid rivers into surging death traps. In a 48-hour period ending late Wednesday night, Kerrville had received 22 inches of rain.

The Medina River reached a record flood stage, cresting at 45 feet. The previous record was 43 feet set in 1919. The usual level of the river is 10 feet.

Weather forecasters said the crest on the spillway at the Medina Dam would likely reach five feet over the top.

Widespread flooding is expected from below the dam to the confluence with the San Antonio River, which was expected to crest near 44 feet where the normal level is 20 feet.

Kerrville, located on the Guadalupe River about 25 miles north of Bandera, resembled a war zone as National Guard troops, Army and state police helicopters and scores of police deposited stunned refugees at evacuation centers. Telephone communications were severely hampered in the stricken areas.

Jim Robinson, the DPS spokesman, said all youth camps along the rampaging Guadalupe River were warned at daybreak to evacuate or move to higher ground. He said all children at the Guadalupe River camps were believed safe and accounted for.

Robinson said camps along the swollen Medina River in Bandera County also had been evacuated, although deputies were unsure if everyone had been reached in time.

Children rescued from the Serendip Camp on the Medina River were taken to the Pipe Creek Volunteer Fire Department. Refugees from Camp Bandana were taken to a church in Bandera.

Late Wednesday night, National Guardsmen forced a stream late Wednesday night to rescue 156 girls from the isolated Herman-Scott camp. The girls were taken to a high school in Comfort where they were reunited with their families.

More than 150 evacuees crammed into the VA Hospital at Kerrville or into the city's municipal auditorium. A preliminary survey of the Kendall County area showed about 400 persons were left homeless and were being sheltered in emergency shelters.

In Medina, police reported the Medina River was flowing through downtown buildings. In Bandera, residents were calling it the worst flood since 1900. As floodwaters began receding, many residents returned to their homes to find they had lost everything.

In both communities, Army helicopters plucked people out of trees and off rooftops. Floodwaters peeled back the asphalt on roads and tossed cars and uprooted trees in the path of rescuers.

In Comfort, police said the Guadalupe River was seven feet deep over much of the town. The local football stadium was under five feet of water. As the flood began to recede about noon, cars and trucks were standing on end, tangled in lifeless power lines. Appliances floated downriver.

Identification was available on only seven of the eight confirmed dead late Wednesday night.

The body of Jose Antonio Morales, 76, was found in his home in Comfort, and officers identified another victim found in the town of 1,500 as 28-year-old Timothy Klemstein.

The bodies of two elderly women were recovered near Bandera. They were identified as Mrs. King Buchanan, believed to be in her 60s, and Bertha Louise Baum, 80, of Abilene. Officers said Mrs. Baum had been camping in the area.

In Center Point, between Comfort and Kerrville, four more bodies were recovered, including that of an unidentified boy believed to be about 12 years old. The others were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Johnny C. Pickett, both in their 60s, and Mrs. Claudia Livingston, of Center Point.

Action/reaction: No bus service

Q. I live on the west side of town, 18 blocks from College Heights where my first and third graders attend school. Last year they were picked up at Cedarcrest, but the district won't do that this year. We are inside the two mile limit. Will they get bus service to school? I have no car.

A. Under present school district policy, no. According to school officials, any student who resides more than two miles from the school he attends will be provided bus transportation to school. Any student residing less than two miles away will not. The district, according to officials, is operating its transportation division according to state laws. The pickup at Cedarcrest was a one-year operation due to closing campuses, but it cannot continue "or ultimately we'd have liability all over the district we couldn't handle."

Calendar: Trustees to tackle taxes

TODAY
Meeting of the Big Spring School District Board of Trustees at 5 p.m. in the board room to approve the current tax rate for another year.

Public hearing conducted by the city of Big Spring Office of Housing and Community Development begins at 8 p.m. at the Northside Fire Station at NE 8th and Main with discussion centering around use of $1.5 million in Community Development Program funds requested by the city.

Howard County delegates to the Texas Democratic Convention in Fort Worth, Sept. 15-16, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the courthouse, according to County Democratic Chairman Evan Evans.

FRIDAY
Gaylord Marshall, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, will conduct a news conference at 2 p.m. Friday in the conference room of the Chamber of Commerce. The public is invited.

Dance recital by students of Faulkner Talent World of Big Spring, 8 p.m., high school auditorium. No admission charge.

Offbeat: Family dives into music

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Carver's violin lacks strings, but it does have a diving board and underwater love seat.

Oh yes, it's concrete and 75-feet-long, fine for swimming laps. Carver offers two reasons for building his swimming pool in such an unconventional shape.

His back yard was too long and narrow to accommodate a typical pool. The Carver family is very attached to the violin. Two children play the instrument and wife Carolyn taught it in public schools. Carver says the pool shape is copied precisely from a violin in his wife's collection.

Outside: Rain

Occasional thundershowers should continue to sweep the local area through Friday, according to weather experts. High temperature today and Friday should reach the low 80s, with lows tonight in the mid 60s. Chance of rain is put at 70 per cent today, 50 per cent tonight, and 30 per cent Friday. Winds will be easterly at 10 to 15 mph.

Arab gunmen kill PLO representative

PARIS (AP) — Two Arab gunmen assassinated the Palestine Liberation Organization representative in his Paris office today and wounded two other persons before releasing hostages and surrendering to police, officials said.

The PLO representative, Izzeddin Qalaq, died from 16 bullets that smashed into his body, police said. He had been in Paris as the PLO representative since 1972 and was known as a supporter of PLO chief Yasser Arafat in his struggle against Iraqi-backed extremists who reject any idea of negotiations with Israel.

An anonymous telephone caller told the French news agency Agence France-Presse that the strike was mounted by the Rejection Front of Stateless Palestinian Arabs, a previously unheard of group.

The caller claimed responsibility for Monday's attack on the Iraqi Embassy as well as the operation at the PLO offices, which are in the same elegant building as the Arab League.

"We don't want a land of exile any more, but the promised land of Mohammed," said the caller, who identified himself as the front's commander.

"We are going to strike all over France. This is only the beginning. We will put France into flames, and its pro-Jewish, pro-American regime."

Police armed with carbines and wearing flak jackets took up positions around the building, and Arabic-speaking men appeared at windows periodically shouting from floor to floor and down to the street.

"Come on," one shouted in French, apparently an office employee urging police to close in.

A secretary at the PLO office said by telephone that when the attack began, "There was a bomb, and then shooting on the third floor."

"We're on the fourth floor. Police are trying to seal off the third floor."

The attackers were believed retaliating for the raid on the Iraqi Embassy in Paris Monday. This was one of four attacks in less than a week on Iraqi diplomats in London, Paris, Karachi and Beirut.

The attacks were believed the result of the split between the PLO and its chief Yasser Arafat, and radical Palestinians backed by the Iraqi government.

Drive for funds behind schedule

The Howard County Ministerial Alliance's drive for funds to support Bible chairs at Big Spring, Forsan and Coahoma high schools may be a little behind schedule.

The campaign got under way the past weekend. Since that time, only $335 has come in toward a goal of $10,000.

In the 24-hour period ending at noon today, only $60 was received. Those planning to participate can forward their checks either to Dr. Kenneth Patrick, c/o First Baptist Church, or to The Herald, which is helping coordinate the drive.

Bomb blasts in Tel Aviv marketplace

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A terrorist bomb exploded under a stall selling T-shirts and children's clothes in an open-air market this morning, and Israeli Radio reported 50 persons were wounded.

A police announcement earlier said at least 10 had been wounded but made no mention of deaths. The radio report said 26 persons were seriously hurt in the blast.

Blood-soaked T-shirts and children's clothing were strewn about the maze-like alleys in the center of the market, and police strung barbed wire around the area and collected bits of shrapnel from the explosive device.

Vita Meshulam, the owner of the stall where the blast occurred, said the area had been crowded with shoppers.

"I was standing across the way, and suddenly I felt a blast on my legs, but I wasn't hurt," Meshulam said. "I went running over to see what I could do."

Meshulam and others in the area said they had given first aid to the wounded before the ambulances arrived.

He said he had briefly noticed a black bag under his table before the explosion but hadn't thought about what it might be.

Man sentenced to eight years

Richard Lynn Robertson, 31, 1906 Nolan, was sentenced Wednesday to eight years in the Texas Department of Corrections. Robertson had been under a 10-year probation sentence for forgery when his probation was revoked.

The sentence was handed down by district judge Ralph Caton in 118th District Court.

Midland deputy, jailer fired

MIDLAND — Midland County sheriff Dallas Smith has fired a high-ranking deputy, Capt. Ron Wileman, for the "improper transportation" of three male and a female prisoners.

The four were picked up at various South Texas locations last weekend and returned to Midland County.

U.S. Savings Bonds

June sales of Series E and H United States Savings Bonds in Howard County were reported today by County Bond Chairman Jimmy Taylor. Sales for the sixth-month period totaled $268,437 or 37 per cent of the 1978 sales goal of $725,000.

Texas sales during the month amounted to $26,757,461, while sales for the first six months of 1978 total $156,932,590 with 51 per cent of the yearly sales goal of $306.6 million achieved.

Pacemakers abused?

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors are stitching electronic heart pacemakers into the chests of people who don't need them, says a new study.

The report, prepared at the University of Oregon, recommends the sometimes risky operations be limited to patients with serious heart illness.

About 200,000 Americans now carry the battery-powered heart regulators. While the researchers declined to speculate on how many received them needlessly, they said many doctors install them in people who are relatively healthy but show presumed signs of later heart trouble.

No clout for Jaworski

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the Watergate investigation, he had the power of the courts. But the same clout wasn't available in the probe of South Korean influence-buying in Congress, says Leon Jaworski, who is ending his investigation.

Congress applied all the pressure it could in an unsuccessful effort to get sworn testimony from former South Korean ambassador Kim Dong Jo about alleged payoffs to between six and 10 congressmen — some still in Congress, Jaworski said in an exclusive interview Wednesday.

Despite State Department opposition, Jaworski has won House approval of a $56 million cut in economic aid to South Korea. But he said Congress could not risk "having a blood bath in South Korea" by cutting off U.S. military aid.

Airline gets green light

LONDON (AP) — Britain gave trans-Atlantic airlines a green light to use all available seats to get stranded American tourists home as suspension of a slowdown by French air controllers improved service for travelers flying to and across the European continent.

The British Civil Aviation Authority said it was prepared to authorize more charter flights and the airlines could use their standby quotas for the next three months at any rate they chose to assure that no empty seats cross the Atlantic.

Laker Airways, which has $114 Skytrain flight from London to New York, was told it could put Skytrain passengers in vacant seats reserved for advanced booking charters.

Thousands who flew to Europe on cheap, standby tickets and planned to return home the same way had to wait as much as five days because the European governments would not let the airlines put on more planes.

Police beat Rider hurt when cycle flips

A thief who apparently had access to a wrecker took two automobiles, neither in running condition, from the back of a garage at 207 NE 2nd between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 6 p.m. Wednesday. The automobiles, and a back windshield, for a 1959 automobile, belonged to Santos Mendoza, 901 N. Gregg.

Sam's Package Store, 2409 S. Gregg was vandalized sometime before 4:11 a.m. Thursday. A patroling police officer spotted plate glass window through which a quart soda bottle had apparently been thrown. Damage was estimated at $250.

Monroe Casey, 3315 Mishler, reported that four hub caps valued at $100 were taken from a vehicle belonging to him. The vehicle was parked in the 1800 block of W. 4th between 8 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday when the theft was discovered.

Michael Keith Fryar, 1406 E. 18th, lost control of the motorcycle he was riding as he attempted to turn at a corner at 18th and Settles at 2:15 p.m. Thursday. Fryar was treated and released at Hall-Bennett Hospital, and was later issued a citation for fleeing a police officer.

A shoplifter went through the Playless Shoe Store taking a pair of boots valued at $23.99 and valued at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

A minor accident occurred at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday as vehicles driven by Ruth B.

Carroll Turlington, 2704 Carroll, and Ernest M. Boyd, 2711 Lynn both made reports to police that tires on their cars were punctured sometime Wednesday night.

Two tires on the Boyd vehicle were punctured, with the damage estimated at $15, while four tires on two different vehicles at the Turlington residence were punctured with damage estimated at $20.

Walton Ray Burchell, 906 Baylors, was apparently turning onto Runnels street when he looked down and his vehicle cut the corner too close, jumping a curb and striking a fence in the 1000 block of Runnels.

At 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, vehicles driven by Patrick Foremyr, Glendale, Ariz., and David Larson, 1403 Robin, collided at 4th and Bell.

Vehicles driven by Jessie C. Roberts, Forsan, and Donna K. James, Coshoma, collided at 17th and Gregg at 10:32 p.m. Wednesday.

Odessa's Hoestenbach gigs House Speaker Clayton

AUSTIN — House Speaker Billy Clayton's mountain of votes that would assure his re-election has begun to erode and only time will tell whether it will crumble away.

Since the middle of last week, House members disenchanted with Clayton's handling of the current legislative special session have been meeting to air grievances.

The group has grown from a handful of more than one-third of the House, including several of Clayton's committee chairmen and a number of his formerly strongest supporters.

Rep. John Hoestenbach, D-Odessa, who did not run for re-election, is acting as moderator in the La Tour Restaurant across the street from the State Capitol.

Discussions center on grievances about Clayton and some of his key lieutenants and on needs for changes in House Rules.

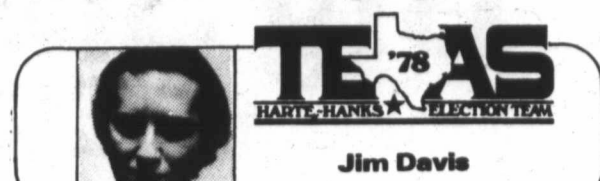

Hoestenbach's chief complaints are about Clayton's aides.

"He's the king and he's responsible for all his princes, and I think that's where his greatest problems lie," he said.

The group has not decided on a rebellion so far, but some are talking about possible alternative speaker candidates.

Rep. Ben Z. Grant, D-Marshall, is the most often mentioned name. Grant has attended one of the meetings. He hasn't agreed to be a candidate, but says he will run if it becomes obvious that Clayton can't win again.

The general sentiment seems to be that Clayton can avoid a real contest for an unprecedented third consecutive term if he will modify some rules and alter

Jim Davis

Some behavior patterns. One of the demands is certain to be removal of Clayton's executive assistant, Jack Gullhorn. That Clayton offered to replace Gullhorn with Rep. Lyndon Olson Jr., D-Waco, who made an unsuccessful race for U.S. Congress last year.

Clayton didn't comment directly on Gullhorn. Instead, he said that the report was a surprise to him. He added that Gullhorn has been talking about going into private law practice for some time.

Gullhorn reportedly was the source of a "Speaker's List" indicating how many times each House member had voted for and against the speaker's special session.

Grant said that Gullhorn had given him a copy of the list asking for help in changing some of the anti-term votes.

Grant felt some intimidation when he noticed that he was shown as having one vote with the team and six against on one of the three lists being circulated.

Committee chairmen attending the meeting were: Grant, Judiciary Committee; Bill Blythe, R-Houston, Labor; Ben Reyes, D-Houston, Rules, who broke with Clayton long ago; and Bill Sullivan, D-Gainesville, Environmental Affairs, who has all but withdrawn from his race against Clayton.

The group appointed three persons to itemize complaints for a future presentation to Clayton. Hoestenbach is handling changes in House Rules. One of the most respected members of the House, Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas, is preparing a description of what role a speaker should play, and Rep. Dave Allred, D-Wichita Falls, son of former Gov. Jimmy Allred, is compiling a grievance list.

Rep. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, believes the major concern is over the lack of communications between Clayton and House members.

That concern is voiced by many. Hoestenbach says that Clayton only talks with four or five key lieutenants and then uses the power of the speaker's office to see that the votes come out his way.

Sullivan, long the sponsor of proposals to tax agricultural land on productive value rather than resale value, said no one bothered to talk to him about the proposal currently before the special session.

Others complained that Clayton discussed the timing of the special session and the issues coming before it with only a handful of lieutenants.

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, generally considered the most conservative member of the House, reportedly objected to the transfer of power from House members to the speaker's office.

Others complained that Clayton had called persons in their district to generate pressure for them to vote with the team. They call this an improper role for the speaker.

Grant said that House needs a speaker who lets members vote as they wish rather than one looking for "a bigger hammer."

A number of House members bitterly charged that Clayton had worked against them in the Democratic primary.

Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, denies reports that he is behind the meetings. Temple is opposing Clayton in the race for speaker. Temple has all but admitted that he doesn't stand a chance.

Clayton is concerned about the complaints of the group. He says he has requested a chance to appear before them. Hoestenbach, however, says he has received no request from Clayton or anyone else for a Clayton presentation.

The Howard County Sheriff's Posse held its Tuesday night meeting Tuesday at the clubhouse on the Andrews Highway. President Frank Knapp presided during the meeting. Ruby Allred read the secretary's report. Geneva Roberts presented the treasurer's report.

The Posse rides in the Dawson County Rodeo Parade in Lamesa today. The Sheriff's Posse placed first in the Scurry County Rodeo Parade in Snyder and was presented a trophy during the rodeo.

Cecil and Ruby Allred took care of fixing the microphone and speaker system for Posse Playdays and Horse Shows. They will also arrange to have the timer repaired. Frank Knapp will take on the responsibility of fixing the announcer's stand at the arena.

The Posse will have an ice cream supper Aug. 19 instead of a previously scheduled trail ride.

The Allreds and Bells furnished refreshments for the meeting.

Bill Clements to campaign

LAMESA — Republican Bill Clements brings his campaign for the governor's seat to Lamesa next week. Clements, a Dallas millionaire, will host a public reception at 2 p.m., Wednesday in the Lamesa National Bank meeting room.

Deaths

R.E. Harter

Last rites will be said at the Sunset View Mortuary in El Cerrito, Calif., Friday afternoon for R.E. Harter, 80, who died at midnight Wednesday in a Palo Alto, Calif., hospital.

Mr. Harter, a longtime educator and a native of Canyon, Tex., was the husband of a former Big Spring resident, Grace Harter. Among survivors is a sister-in-law, Mrs. W.H. Power of Big Spring.

A son, John James Harter, is employed by the State Department in Washington, D.C. Three grandchildren also survive. Like her husband, Mrs. Harter also taught in the Bay Area.

Mrs. Harter's friends can write her at 455 E. Charleston Road, Apt. B-132, Palo Alto, Calif. 94306.

COLORADO CITY — Robert L. Pinkston, 74, of Colorado City, died 1 a.m. Tuesday in a Fort Worth hospital after an apparent heart attack. Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Kiker-Seale Funeral Home Chapel.

The Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt will officiate. Burial will be in Colorado City Cemetery.

Born Aug. 30, 1903, in Eastland County, he moved here 18 years ago and was a retired plumber and pipefitter. He married Billie Hopper March 30, 1956, in Reno, Nev. He was a member of the First Baptist Church and was an Army veteran.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Christine Foster of Big Spring and Almarie Keeling of Denver, Colo.; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Jack Hollis of Fort Worth; two brothers, John of Stanton and N.L. of Melrose, N.M.; seven grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Martha Couch leaves Friday

Martha Couch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Couch of the Luther community, leaves Friday from the Lubbock airport on a 21-day tour of the Orient.

Martha, a Borden County High School graduate, will be representing the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. She is employed as the Area 4-H and Youth Specialist in Lubbock and Amarillo.

The tour will include points of interest in Japan, Taipei, Hong Kong and Singapore. She will be touring Nikko, Kamakura, Hakone, Atami, Kyoto and Osaka in Japan. The group will view Mount Fuji, Ornamental Martyrs Shrine and the National Palace Museum.

While in Tokyo, Martha will attend a Japanese language school (Labo). Eleanor Harvey of Seminole will accompany Martha on the trip. They will fly from Lubbock to Denver and to Seattle and on to the Far East by way of Anchorage, Alaska.

Six young women will compete for the 1978 Rodeo Queen honor. The rodeo, which begins tonight, continues through Saturday night.

Hospital ups room rents

LAMESA — Increased costs have forced officials at Medical Arts Hospital to raise room rates $5 a day.

Cost of a semi-private room will now be $55 a day, still below the state's average. The room rate hike will be caused principally by the 15 per cent wage hike offered personnel in January.

Center beset with problems

LAMESA — The Water G. Horn Memorial Day Care Center is beset with financial problems and may have to close its doors.

Ray Denner, a director of the center, holds out some hope that the facility can remain open if friends rally to its support and the Dawson County United Way committee votes to boost the center's share from $4,300 to $12,000.

Expenditures at the center exceeded income by over $1,000. Of the $33,848 spent, more than $25,000 went for salaries. The facility had five full-time employees.

Public hearing to seek out local health woes

The Permian Basin Health Systems Agency (PBHSA) is holding public hearings Aug. 7-8 to seek out health problems that have not yet been identified or that need special emphasis. Findings from these hearings will be incorporated into the development of the five-year health systems plan.

Representatives from PBHSA will be at the Howard County Courthouse, second floor courtroom, at 10 a.m. Aug. 8. Residents will have an opportunity to discuss health problems here.

For the record

In Wednesday's Herald, an incident of vandalism in Comanche Trail Park was incorrectly reported to have occurred at the tennis pro shop. In fact, the site of the window-breaking incident was the golf pro shop and club house.

The city is still offering the $200 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons who did the damage, and the Herald regrets any misunderstanding caused by the mistake.

Area of health concern which have been identified in the Health Systems Plan are maternal, perinatal, child and adolescent; emergency medical services; heart; cancer; communicable disease; and drug abuse.

Others are mental health; alcoholism; mental retardation; end-stage renal disease; dental health; rehabilitation; and environmental.

Copies of the current Health Systems Plan are available in local libraries and at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commissions.

The theen candidates are Debra Kountz, Terri Myers, Melissa Webb, Lanier Beckmeyer, Pam Harper and Jana Harris.

A barbecue offered by the Dawson County Sheriff's Posse begins after the parade.

Clayton is concerned about the complaints of the group. He says he has requested a chance to appear before them. Hoestenbach, however, says he has received no request from Clayton or anyone else for a Clayton presentation.

Car demolished by freight train

STANTON — A Missouri Pacific freight train, which had J. T. Anderson of Big Spring at the controls, hit an automobile stalled on the tracks six miles west of here Tuesday night.

Kenneth Hughes Chambers, 50, of Snyder, escaped without injury although his car was demolished. Chambers told investigators he was repairing a flat when the train came roaring down the track.

The car was carried 186 feet down the track.

White named firm leader

American National Insurance Company, one of the nation's largest life and health insurers, has announced that J.H. White of the Odessa branch office has been named a company leader for the year just ended.

White qualified for membership in the company's prestigious President's Club.

The Odessa branch office address is P.O. Box 4756.

Founded in 1905, and with more than $16 billion of life insurance in force, American National Insurance Company ranks among the largest of the more than 1,800 life insurance companies in the United States. Home office is in Galveston.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Adult Education Office at 267-6311, ext. 66.

Disco dance class will be held one more time

Because there were more applicants for the Howard College Continuing Education Disco Dance class than available openings, the class is being held again. Beginning Aug. 8, the class will be held each Tuesday and Thursday evening from 7 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. through Aug. 31. Tuition for the sixteen (16) hours of dance instruction is $20.

The class size will again be strictly limited to 35 participants. There must be at least 22 persons enrolling in order to have the class.

Those enrolling will have the opportunity to learn to "The Worm", "Le Spunk", "The New York Hustle", "Shoeshine", "The Dip", and others. The first class was a tremendous success and Gloria Garcia will again instruct. Her co-instructor will be the popular and talented Elroy Green. Both instructors are very excited about the opportunity to have the class again.

Enrollment is on a first-come-first-serve basis and corresponding period in 1977. The city collected $859 in fees in July this year, compared to $135 for the same month in 1977.

Permits for three new homes were let for a total of $147,920. One of those, to be located at 1900 E. 24th St., was for $65,000.

In addition, a permit for a new commercial structure at 415 Main Street in the amount of $20,000 was issued.

The remodeling of the band room at Big Spring High School, damaged heavily by fire earlier this year, was authorized. The permit was for $50,000.

Lambert enters Demo skirmish

Calvin Gambill of Seymour, seeking re-election as District 30 State Committeeman of the Democratic party, is being challenged for the job by Larry Lambert.

Lambert is a member of a Wichita Falls law firm of Clyde Fillmore, Glynn Purdie, Roger Lee, Thomas H. Bacus, Michael Spurgers and State Sen. Ray Farabee. Lambert writes from Wichita Falls:

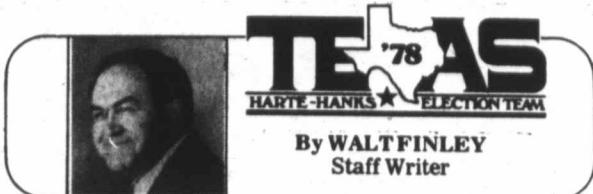

"As an elected delegate to the Democratic State Convention at Fort Worth in September, I want you to be one of the first to know that I will seek election as State Committeeman from our 30th District. I solicit your support."

"The selection of our District Committeeman and Committeewoman will be made at our district caucus in Fort Worth just prior to the State Convention. There may be others seeking this post, so the following information is furnished in order that you may evaluate my candidacy.

"I AM 47-YEARS-OLD, was born and raised in Wichita Falls, and have practiced law here since 1956. I began working in Democratic Party politics back in 1950 before I could even vote, while a student at Midwestern University here in Wichita Falls.

"I have been an active Democrat since that time, and served as Chairman of our County Convention this year. My wife, Irene, is currently President of the Wichita County Democratic Women's Organization.

"Based on my training as a lawyer, and my many years experience in party matters at the state and local level, I believe I can be an effective voice for our district. Your support will be appreciated. Please let me hear from you."

The race may turn into a summer delight. Wichita County delegation has 45 of 173 votes in the district, the largest in Texas.

HOWARD COUNTY delegates and alternates will gather in the courthouse at 7:30 p.m. today to discuss the impending Gambill-Lambert fray, convention housing in Fort Worth, Sept. 15-16 and election of a state chairman. Despite denials from all sides, reports continue to circulate that Calvin Guest again may be chairman of the party.

By tradition, the governor candidate picks the party chairman, who officially is elected by the state convention.

John Hill says Guest withdrew from the running. Guest says that isn't quite true, but he doesn't want the job and certainly wouldn't contest Hill's pick.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe anointed Guest party chief in 1972, after Guest managed Briscoe's successful bid for the nomination. Guest was lightly opposed by liberals in subsequent races for re-election.

But it is the liberal members of the State Democratic Committee who are keeping Guest's name alive as a candidate for state chairman.

THE REASON IS SIMPLE: Guest has been fair to liberal and minority members of the committee. He allowed caucuses to decide who would represent their interests, and he made sure the majority went along with those choices. The conservatives aren't as pleased with Guest.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC Chairman Evan Evans insists there is no chance that Guest will be re-elected, but the support he is getting from liberals is a notice to Hill that they like the way they've been treated and expect it to continue.

Howard County delegates, alternates, and addresses are:

Dorothy Humphreys, 803 George; Eddie Acree, 2500 Larry; Delano Shaw, 600 W. 15th; Bert Bedford, 800 Lorilla; Eugene Bryant, Gail Rt., Box 42; Jim Baum, 1000 E. 20th; Oliver Cofer, 1707 Settles; D. A. Brazel, 2817 Crestline; John Roemer Sr., 2800 Lawrence; Harvey Hooser, Box 722.

Mrs. Oliver Cofer, 1707 Settles; W. H. Smith, 801 March; Mrs. Thelma Powell, 2401 Cheyenne; Donnie Reid, Rt. 1, Big Spring; Tom Rayburn, 1743 Purdue; Mrs. Clay Reid, Box 51, Coahoma; Edgar Ray, 1404 Johnson; Sam Pendergrast, 608½ South Bell and Kenneth Howell, 2503 Carol.

Democratic Senate nominee Bob Krueger will attend receptions in Denton, Bridgeport, Bowie, Henrietta and Wichita Falls today. The two-term congressman will address the Decatur Rotary Club at its noon luncheon and hold a news conference at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls at 5 p.m.

The 21st District representative will meet with friends and supporters Friday in Archer City, Graham, Throckmorton, Breckenridge, Albany and Anson. He will end the day with a 6 p.m. fundraiser and reception in Abilene.

On Saturday Krueger will travel to Robert Lee, Bronte, Winters, Ballinger and Eden in his home district to visit with area residents and supporters.

Krueger will be in Del Rio Sunday for a fundraiser and barbecue. Beginning at 12:30 p.m., the fundraiser will be held at Moore Municipal Park.

The New Braunfels native will be in Washington Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday (August 7, 8 and 9), but will return to Texas and the campaign trail Wednesday night. Krueger will campaign throughout the state, including the North Central, South Central, Far West, Rio Grande Valley and Gulf Coast regions.

And now more "hot shots":

Our candidates for office are thinking of us, folks. We haven't heard so many ideas to benefit the taxpayers since the last governor's race.

Congress voted to bail out New York again. The lawmakers then went back into session to decide whether to buy the Brooklyn Bridge.

Overheard: That fellow has more gall than any politician I've ever seen.

We are happy to inform you of our move to new, larger modern offices at 612 Gregg Street. Ample parking space and easy access.

The same friendly and knowledgeable travel consultants will serve you and are excited about our latest move.

Construction work on adjacent offices is still in progress and we still haven't unpacked completely yet. As soon as practical we will have our formal opening. Watch for dates.

He's incredible!

Howard County Democratic delegate Larry Shaw declares:

"The little boy who never could remember what his mother sent him to the store for has now grown up and is in Congress."

A political expert is one who has spurted.

According to Demo advisor Oliver Cofer, about all there is for Mr. Carter these days is up hill and Mondale.

Several state candidates want to solve the utility rate problem by expanding the Public Utilities Commission. Following that theory, could we have better government by electing three Texas governors?

A political comment of, and-or for 1978. It was written by John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, in 1850 for his leader Charles II of England:

God bless our good and gracious King. Whose promise none relies on.

Who never said a foolish thing. Nor ever did a wise one.

Two things in life are certain—death and taxes. But says, James Baird, the way things are going lately, taxes are taking a slight edge.

I think it's a lead pipe cinch that Ted Kennedy is running for president. His wife has admitted she has a problem.

House approves amendment bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After two failures, the House finally has approved a package of constitutional amendment to ease property taxes, and Gov. Dolph Briscoe says a legislative consensus is developing.

The House approved the measure (HJR1) 113-20 Wednesday night, and Senators could vote today on whether to accept it or send it to a conference committee.

It will take a two-thirds vote in each chamber to send the final product to the voters for a decision at the Nov. 7 election.

Speaker Bill Clayton said he hoped the House could vote today on another part of the compromise that won approval of the constitutional amendments—a $450 million promise by the state to reimburse school districts for revenue lost to property tax relief.

Another key tax relief measure was on its way to a final vote. House-Senate conferees approved Wednesday a bill abolishing the 4 percent state sales tax on gas and electric bills and raising the inheritance exemption from $25,000 per heir to $200,000 per estate.

The tax-exempt portion of an estate would rise to $300,000 in 1985.

Clayton, who promoted the special session on tax relief after Californians cut their own taxes through Proposition 13, bargained and persuaded to salvage the constitutional amendments.

Some said his prestige was at stake after the House twice refused to produce the 100 votes needed to send the package to the Senate.

"I am confident that through the legislative process, which at times is slow and cumbersome, members of the Legislature will send to the people of Texas and to my desk a series of proposals in which they can take pride," Briscoe said in a statement after the House voted Wednesday night.

"It appears a consensus is building in the Legislature, and I am pleased to see such a consensus develop," he said.

Clayton gained some liberals and lost only a few conservatives in the compromising that brought success to his constitutional amendments package.

A major change added language requiring the Legislature to establish statewide standards for appraising real estate for taxation and creating countywide appraisal offices.

The new provision embraces the essentials of Orange Rep. Wayne Peveto's thrice-defeated bill to bring about greater uniformity in property taxation throughout the state.

Rep. W. S. Heatly, D-Paducah, objected strongly to putting the "Peveto language in the guts of the Constitution, where we'll never get rid of it and it will bankrupt every landowner in the state."

Heavy rains moving toward West Texas

By the Associated Press

Heavy rains that sent rivers rising above the flood level in central Texas moved westward today, threatening to cause some local flooding as they moved in.

At least eight persons were dead in the Texas flooding, and officials, who had been concerned mainly with evacuating the living from flood-stricken areas, feared they would find more bodies as they searched for victims today.

The thundershowers today were mostly west of San Antonio. More rain was expected in the central hill country of Texas.

Thundershowers moved into southeastern

New Mexico and southern Arizona.

There were scattered thundershowers from Kentucky to the lower Great Lakes. Thundershowers also spread along the entire Atlantic coast and parts of the southern and middle Plains.

Cool weather spread over the northern Plains and the upper Mississippi valley. Some areas had morning readings in the 40s.

The West Coast had fair skies with mild temperatures. The northern part of the nation from the West Coast to the Great Lakes and New England had partly cloudy skies.

More and more oldsters are taking out

Earlier this year, Congress made it possible for older Americans to remain on the job an extra five years, if they so desired. The legislative body, however, didn't create the incentive among the over-65 crowd to stay in harness, neither that nor any great desire in industry to keep them.

More and more, Americans in the work forces who are nearing 65 are saying they have had enough, that they want to throw off the shackles and reap the benefits of their labors for what ever time they have left.

ALL TOO OFTEN, industry discriminates knowingly or unknowingly against them. They invariably are the most reliable workers in industry today but there's long been a trend to hire and move younger workers ahead.

The oldsters have the know-how and the patience to do their job professionally. They acquired their expertise the hard way, by exchanging a lot of their allotted time on earth for it. Still, there is a segment in the business community which strives for that youthful image, the image that will be accepted in modern society.

It matters little that any assignment taken by the younger workers is often temporary, that one of the first things they learn is never to stay with one job in one place very long. If they can get one firm bidding against another for their services, so much the better.

The older workers can be forgiven for taking the hint. Many decide the fight is not worth the effort and they're laying down their tools in ever increasing numbers.

IN 1960, 35 PER CENT of Americans 65 years of age and older remained in the work force. In 1978, the proportion of the over 65-population still on the job or actively seeking work is down to an estimated 15 per cent.

Retirement, let it be said, is only one of the reasons for the trend. Layoffs, dismissals and outmoded skills also contribute to the growing members of at-liberty Americans. The consequence becomes particularly painful for those in the 40-to-60 age range. The prospects for their reentry into the work force weighted toward youth are anything but encouraging.

The newly retired, often prematurely so, and the involuntarily so, and the involuntarily jobless now form a distinct population category which is coming to be regarded as a national problem. Right now, the government economists haven't come up with any solutions.

Time is cheap

Around the rim

James Werrell

Time is cheap in Texas, or so it seems after emerging from the rat-maze pace of the North to the geared-down sunny South.

This fact slapped me in the face on consideration of two events, both quite different but with the same root cause, that happened to my parents.

The first, the more pleasant of the two, took place in a local greenhouse that my folks ventured into while visiting here. Strolling among the greenery, my mother's eye was caught by a jade tree of a dimension and fortitude unknown north of the Mason-Dixon.

Its trunk was as thick as a baby's arm, and its jade leaves dripped like glycerin from its stems. And its price was a full $60 cheaper than that for its cousins up north.

My mother had to have it. But the dilemma loomed: How to transport such a treasure to the cooler climes without loss of life and limb. Enter the angel of mercy, the southern saleslady.

Together, she and my mother lifted the prize onto the counter where it was gently packed into a box and cushioned for its trip homeward. Branches were lovingly secured, and the earth in which the plant rested was nourished and watered.

As shafts of sunlight filtered into the room, talk spread to other genera and species (my mother has a variety, all dead or dying) and healthful tips were proffered.

It was difficult to gauge the exact amount of time that was spent on the project. Suffice it to say, the jade grew a tenth of an inch while they talked.

"I just couldn't have imagined anyone spending that much time helping me up north," said my mother later.

She, my father and the plant arrived, tired but in good health, two days later.

Had saw the other side of the coin while he was down here.

Having heard that car body repairmen were fast, good and cheap in this part of the country, he had decided to ask one of them to turn back the forces of rust that were slowly devouring the side of his car.

Asking around, he came across a confident, youthful man who was eager to do battle with the wages of sinful salt and snow.

"When will it be ready?" my father asked early on Wednesday.

"It'll be ready to roll 8 o'clock tomorrow morning," said the body man with a smile.

Now, having lived in Texas for almost three years, I would have been able to translate that reply.

In Texanese "8 o'clock tomorrow morning" means "8 o'clock two nights from now; add a day if you want it cheap." But I wasn't there, so my father said OK and went on his merry, misguided way.

And he was at the body shop bright and early the next morning where he found his car sitting outside the shop with two small patches of rust sanded from the roof.

"Well look at this. They've almost finished part of the roof," he said with the optimism of a man crushing out his last cigarette before the guards put on the blindfold.

The plot remained pretty much the same until Saturday when it and my father's good nature began to thicken; in fact to coagulate. It seems the paint didn't match.

But the ending is a semi-happy one. As the true deadline of 8 o'clock three days later drew ever nearer, a group of the body man's relatives was called in for consultation.

After dozens of phone calls, and finally directly under my father's steely gaze, the job was completed. With paint fumes still wafting from the side of the car, its bearings were set north, and my parents were homeward bound.

To the uninitiated these might seem like to diametrically opposed experiences. But those in-the-know realize that it's just a matter of time, one of the South's great resources.

Sandwich, boondoggle?

Art Buchwald

(Art Buchwald is on assignment for a few weeks trying to find out if there are any Cuban troops on Cape Cod. He left behind his all-time favorite columns.)

WASHINGTON — My friend, Harvey Kay, president and general manager of Kay's Sandwich and Carryout Shop in my building, is watching the outcome of the Lockheed Aircraft government loan negotiations with interest. He feels if Lockheed can get the $250 million guaranteed loan, then he has a chance of the government bailing him out of a similar situation.

Harvey told me, "The Lockheed problems, particularly with their C-5A airplane, parallel mine in every way, and I am certain if the government looks on the Lockheed loan favorably they will find a way to get me off the hook, too."

This is how Harvey tells his story: "About a year ago, a section of the Defense Department was having a farewell party for one of their employees who was leaving to join an aerospace company. They asked me to develop a new type of sandwich which would give the party a big boost. But they wanted me to bring it in for a reasonable price."

"I PUT MY designers to work on it, and we came up with 'The Goldfinger,' which consisted of boneless all-white meat, deep-fried chicken fingers topped with cole slaw, Russian dressing, and pickle slices on a double-twist seeded roll. We estimated we could make the sandwich for $1.25 each, which would include a reasonable profit of 10 per cent."

"The food committee giving the party approved the design and ordered 150 sandwiches to be delivered in 30 days on the afternoon of the party."

"I ordered the ingredients, but a few days later I got a call from a secretary. She said that while the Army liked the sandwich as it was, the Navy was wondering if, instead of a double-twist seeded roll, the sandwich could be made with rye bread."

"I explained that regular rye bread would not be able to support the weight of the chicken fingers, and I would have to add a heavier rye bread with a reinforced crust, which would add another 20 cents to the sandwich."

"She said it didn't matter because the Navy said they wouldn't come to the party if they had to eat double-twist seeded rolls."

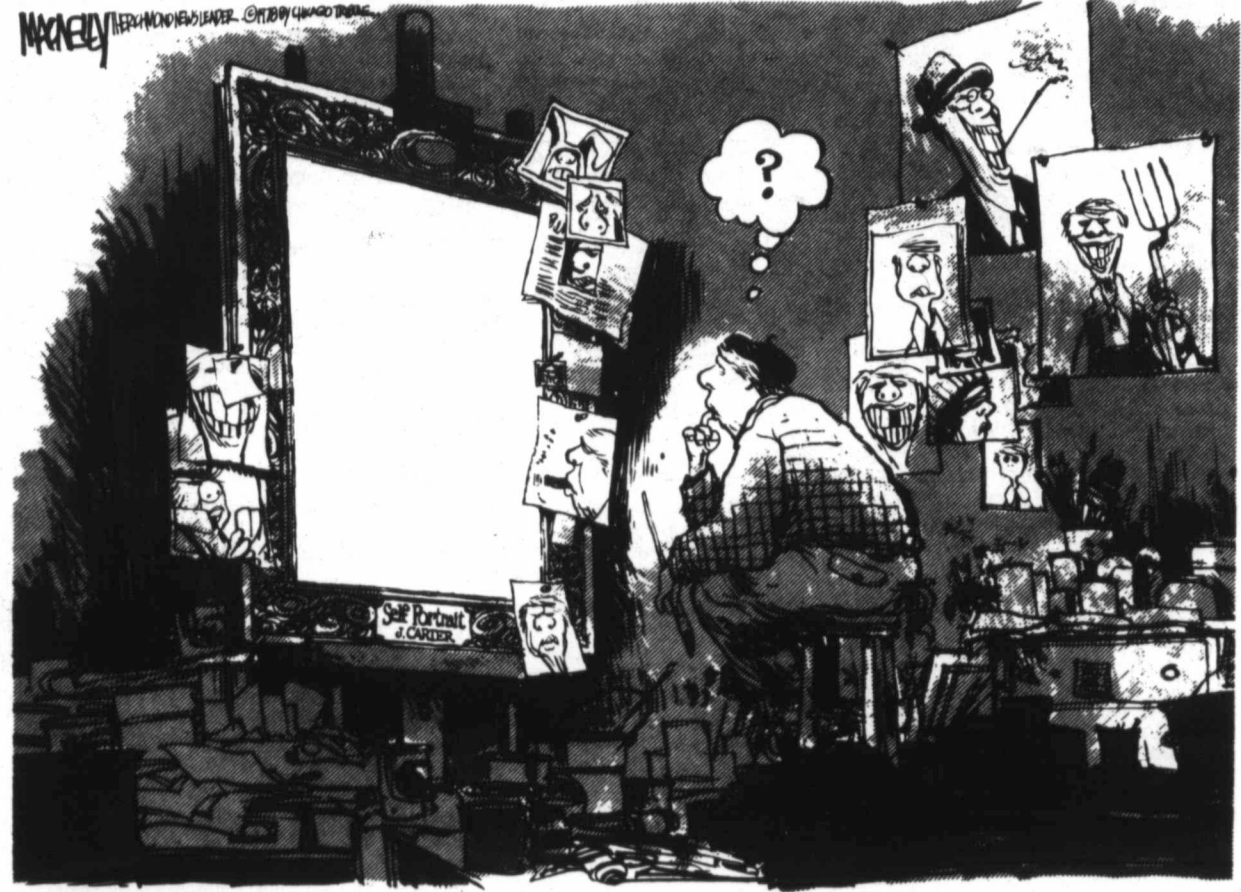

"A WEEK went by and the secretary called again. She said the Air Force had just got around to studying 'The Goldfinger' sandwich, and they wanted something more sophisticated than just chicken fingers with cole slaw and dressing and pickle slices. Was it possible to add either a slice of ham or a slice of cheese to the sandwich to give it a better taste?"

"I told her it was always possible, but if you're going to add to a sandwich you have to pay for it. It meant hiring an extra person to cut the ham or cheese, researching where the best place was to put it, testing it and retraining my employees in an entirely new sandwich concept. I couldn't see how I could bring 'The Goldfinger' in for less than $2.25."

"She said it was perfectly okay as long as the sandwich did the job."

"A week went by and I had a visit from the secretary. She told me the Army personnel in the department felt that 'The Goldfinger' should also have lettuce and tomato on it. I explained that if you added lettuce and tomato you would have to have larger slices of rye bread and heavier caraway seeds, which would bring the cost of the sandwich to $2.95."

"SHE APPROVED it, but the next day I got a call saying that because of the overrun they wanted to cut back on the order of sandwiches from 150 to 50 and asked if I would eliminate the chicken altogether."

Cellulitis is inflammation of skin tissue

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have a 30-year-old daughter who developed severe pain and redness in her right foot and ankle. After X-rays and blood tests the doctor said it was cellulitis. She was treated, and after two or three weeks the condition cleared up. We heard this can return and even enter her bones and become very serious. Can you explain what cellulitis is, its after-effects and possible complications? — Mr. and Mrs. C.W.

Cellulitis is inflammation of the skin and underlying soft tissue, usually from the staph or strep germ. Your daughter apparently had a superficial infection, which usually will clear with antibiotics such as penicillin. In more serious forms the infection can spread through the body. Bacteremia (blood infection) is a serious complication. In other forms, where other organisms are involved, infection may extend deep into underlying tissues. But I doubt, since your daughter's was treated successfully, that she need fear recurrence.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor examined my prostate and told me it was enlarged. He said it was a simple enlargement, not malignant. What is simple enlargement, and can it become cancerous later? — J.E.

It means your prostate, for one reason or another, has become larger than normal. Doctors have an idea of the status of the gland by feeling it. One hard to the touch may be malignant. If it has a rubbery consistency, the chances are it is not. The only real test, though, is through biopsy. A simple enlargement may, but usually won't, become cancerous.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been bothered by a vaginal discharge for about eight years. Doctors have called it a yeast infection. I have tried creams locally, but after I stop it returns. I wonder if this is normal. I am 63. Isn't there something I can do to get rid of this problem besides the creams, which, as I said, just don't help? — T.F.

There is something you can do. After eight years I am surprised it has not been suggested. Often oral medicine is needed to control a yeast infection. You should return to your doctor and inquire about it. See my booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment," for an in-depth discussion of these troublesome female ailments. Send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 16-year-old girl, 5-foot-5, weighing 130 pounds. The past week after jogging an hour a day I've been getting sharp pains in my legs that start at any ankles and shoot upward. Is this the shin splints one hears about? — A.E.S.

Perhaps. Shin splints are pains caused by stress on certain long muscles in the lower legs. They can occur from any unaccustomed vigorous leg exercise. They heal themselves with rest.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grand-daughter's doctor X-rayed her abdomen to find out why, after five months of apparent pregnancy, he could detect no heartbeat or other signs of life. It was thought there might be either a tumor or a dead fetus, and water was accumulating. She appeared to be about eight months along size-wise. Three months later she gave birth to three healthy little girls.

Is there a possibility that the X-rays caused damage? And what is the likelihood of her having triplets a second time? — E.W.

The greatest hazard time for X-rays during pregnancy is during the first three months. I would anticipate no problems here. A more accepted method of detecting multiple birth possibilities in pregnancy is with ultrasound. I suspect that in many cases where pregnant women write me expressing X-ray concern, ultrasound was what was done, not X-raying.

I have seen widely varying estimates of such things as odds of a woman having triplets or repeating. One figure cited for having a repeat triple birth is 1 in 59 million! But don't bet on it, grandmother. For the first triple birth, odds are 1 in 7,500.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Two years ago when my daughter was 18 she had three menstrual periods in six weeks. After an examination she was told she was OK. Soon after, she returned to her normal periods. Recently, she has been having extra periods. She is otherwise healthy. — Mrs. L.A.

This is called "functional bleeding." It can occur in any menstruating woman, but is more common at her age. The problem usually responds to appropriate hormone treatment. Often a D & C (dilatation and curettage) is needed to examine the uterine tissue. Frequently, the D & C itself helps correct matters. She should certainly return to the gynecologist, who can evaluate matters for her. She also needs blood tests to find out if the bleeding is producing any anemia.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I understand there is a foolproof blood test to tell if there is cancer present in the body. Why doesn't everyone have it so they can be treated? — Mrs. C.B.

There is no such foolproof universal test or even one approaching it. If there was one (as those we have for syphilis or sickle cell anemia) everyone would be urged to have it. Such a test would be a major "breakthrough" and great news, indeed.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My parents are always fighting and it seems they have no interest in me or my problems. I wish I had never been born. Why doesn't anyone love me? — E.P.

DEAR E.P.: I am sorry for the loneliness and heartache you feel. You may be surprised to find that your parents actually do love you more than you think, but I regret they do not express their love in a concrete way. Perhaps your letter will alert many parents to an important fact — children need to feel our love.

But aside from your parents, somebody does love you. The Bible tells us that God loves us, and that is a truth that can change your outlook if you really learn to accept it. You are not here by accident — God allowed you to be born. Was He mistaken when He permitted you to be born? No, God doesn't make mistakes! He loves you, and the proof of His love is that He sent His Son into the world to die for your sins. "How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are! . . . This is how we know what love is: Jesus Christ laid down his life for us" (1 John 3:1, 16, New International Version).

I invite you to accept by faith the fact that God loves you. He wants you to know that your sins are forgiven and that He surrounds you with His love right now. A young man with a similar problem wrote me recently: "I am learning who my real Father is." And in his joyful relationship to God, he is learning to really live.

If you invite Christ into your life, you will find there are others who love you too — other Christians. You will be part of the family of God. Perhaps you will even find others who have had a background like yours, and yet who are reaching out in love to others. They want to help you.

Bandera resident recalls flooding

BANDERA, Texas (AP)—Eighty-year-old Claribel Lovelace built her sturdy rock house in 1934, a respectful 700 yards from the sometimes stormy Medina River.

But 43 years later, the Medina paid a terrifying maiden visit — with eight feet of churning, muddy floodwaters that left her gasping for breath for two hours in the six inches between the water and her ceiling.

"My mouth was against the ceiling and my hair was in the water," said the frightened Mrs. Lovelace, who was plucked from the water by rescuers in an Army helicopter. "I only had six inches of air to breathe."

"I was there more than two hours. You'll never know how frightening it was," she added. "The river has never even gotten close to my house since I built it. The house is still standing, but everything inside is ruined."

Wednesday's record flooding in the Central Texas Hill Country devastated much of Bandera, Comfort

Dollar makes recovery

LONDON (AP) — The dollar recovered strongly on the world's money markets today, reversing at least temporarily the steady slide that took the U.S. currency to record lows against the Japanese yen and Swiss franc.

The dollar rallied in Tokyo to close at 188.85 Japanese yen, a gain of more than two percent in 24 hours.

The dollar closed Wednesday at 184.65 yen. That was the eighth consecutive record closing low for the U.S. currency since it slid below the 200-yen mark July 24.

The upward trend continued when European foreign exchanges opened. The dollar was higher against all major currencies, including the Swiss franc, which drove the dollar to a record low of 1.7125 Swiss francs at the end of the business day Wednesday.

The price of gold was "fixed" this morning at $201.75 a Troy ounce, down $2 from Wednesday's close of $203.75. The "fixing" is the price agreed to for the trading session by London's five major bullion dealers after conferring on market conditions.

The metal was unchanged at $203.375 in early trading in Zurich, Europe's other major bullion market.

The price of gold, which investors turn to in times of monetary instability, was spurred by the decline of the dollar. It breached the psychologically important $200 barrier last Friday and reached an all-time high of $207.50 during trading Tuesday.

Dealers said the dollar's newly found strength was dampening enthusiasm for the metal.

Morning dollar quotes in major European financial centers:

Frankfurt—2.04575 West German marks, compared to 2.0410 Wednesday.

Zurich—1.7295 Swiss francs, compared to 1.7125 Wednesday.

Paris—4.3805 French francs, compared to 4.375 Wednesday.

Amsterdam—2.2085 Dutch guilders, compared to 2.2025 Wednesday.

Milan—843.00 Italian lire, compared to 842.10 Wednesday.

In London it took $1.9238 to buy a British pound this morning compared to $1.9275 late Wednesday.

and Medina, killing at least eight persons and leaving others missing in the swirling waters.

In Bandera, the frothing flood waters sheared a new $150,000 rock house from its foundation, leaving a slick concrete slab. Century-old cypress trees were snapped like matchsticks. Asphalt was easily stripped from highways.

The water ripped through

Clint Dowell's automobile dealership about 150 yards from where the river normally flows, tossing dozens of new and used cars around like fishing corks and demolishing the building.

When the waters receded, Dowell's inventory was scattered up and down the Medina or stacked like cordwood in the mud-covered parking lot. He estimated the damage at more than $1 million.

Bandera's lucrative Medina River dude ranches were the hardest hit. Many vacationers were rescued from trees or rooftops by Army helicopters. The victims came out in black plastic body bags. Others were lost and feared dead in the churning waters.

More than 20 terrified Peaceful Valley vacationers, including 1977 Miss USA,

Kim Tones of Houston, were forced to cling to tree limbs while balancing for six hours on the roof of the camp headquarters. The water roared only a foot below the top of the roof, which is 20 feet high.

Houston businessman Steve Muller grasped an overhanging tree limb with one hand and held a fellow camper's 1-year-old infant with the other. The child slept through it all.

"Something woke me up about 4 a.m.," said Muller. "I put my foot out of bed and found out I was in six inches of water. I knew then that something was wrong because the water should have been 30 feet away. It rose about a foot in the next 30 seconds."

"The tree seemed as good a place as any," joked Muller. "Miss USA had the tree reserved next to me."

Muller and his two teen-aged sons escaped with only their swimming trunks. His wife, two young daughters and one of their friends had been sent to Bandera because of the high water. "If they hadn't left, I have no doubt they would have died."

Peaceful Valley owner Art Kitzman said Miss Tones has been a regular visitor to the dude ranch for several years. "She was really lucky," he said. "She was actually in the water and managed to catch the last tree before she would have been swept away."

She left Bandera later in the day and could not be reached for comment.

But 17-year-old Mike Muller said she continually boosted spirits among the stranded vacationers.

—Voted initially to halt U.S. arms shipments to Chile, and then reversed itself after strenuous objections from the Justice

The vote on Syrian aid was part of a $7.3 billion foreign assistance bill, while the Rhodesian and Chilean amendments were attached to a $1 billion foreign military aid authorization. Both measures are headed for House-Senate conference committees.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., sponsor of the Syrian cutoff for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, charged, "Syria has been waging a massive, indiscriminate shelling of a defenseless population resulting in hundreds of civilian deaths' and thousands of wounded and homeless."

Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., failed to round up support for a substitute amendment that would have slashed the aid by $45 million — enough, he said, to "send Syria a message."

But others felt the cutoff was the wrong action. Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., noting the new U.S. ambassador to Lebanon would be holding talks with Syria's foreign minister, said:

"The stakes are too high for 435 members of the House at 9:15 at night to play secretary of state."

About 25,000 Syrian troops comprise the bulk of an Arab peacekeeping force in Lebanon that arrived in 1976 after a bloody civil war. For several months, however, the Syrians have been fighting Christian forces mainly in the Beirut area and have killed several hundred.

The House vote to end participation in the Rhodesian embargo follows Senate approval of a similar bill last week. But senators added a requirement that the embargo end only after the president certified that Rhodesia had made a good-faith effort to negotiate with all parties including the Patriotic Front guerrillas.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., and other House members argued that forcing Rhodesia into all-party talks would give undue recognition to communist groups and undermine the internal settlement that has brought moderate black leaders into the Rhodesian government.

The aid cutoff for Chile was proposed by Rep. Thomas R. Harkin, D-Iowa, who wanted to halt all $28 million in military material in the pipeline until the three Chileans are sent to this country. The plan was adopted by voice vote.

But shortly afterwards, Justice Department liaison officers began contacting House members to raise objections. They argued that the formal request for extradition hasn't been made yet, and the Chilean judicial process hasn't had a chance to consider the case.

Later, Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., moved to reconsider the Harkin

Later, Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., moved to reconsider the Harkin amendment and it was overturned on a roll call vote of 243-166.

A federal grand jury on Tuesday indicted eight persons in connection with the 1975 murder of Letelier, whose car was blown up on a Washington street. Among the eight were the three Chileans: Gen. Juan Manuel Contreras Sepulveda, former head of the Chilean secret police; and two secret police employees, Pedro Espinoza Bravo and Armando Fernandez Larios.

New tax bill off to shaky beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, trying to reshape a $16.2 billion House tax cut bill, is off to an unpromising start with its last minute efforts to shift tax relief back to lower-income brackets and decrease planned cuts in capital gains taxation.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, President Carter's tax envoy, took the proposed changes to Capitol Hill on Wednesday when Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called the proposals unacceptable. Ullman's panel has written the tax plan now being the House Ways and Means Committee, called the proposals unacceptable. Ullman's panel has written the tax plan now being considered in the House.

But the chairman said discussions were continuing on a possible Treasury Department-Ways and Means Committee compromise to permit consideration, at least, of the amendments in the House.

That procedure is considered unusual because the House traditionally, when considering tax measures, takes up only proposed floor amendments already considered and rejected by the Ways and Means Committee.

Up to now, Ullman said, he has no plans to ease pressure for passage of his committee's bill with no provisions for the Carter amendments.

Although exact details of the administration plan have not been worked out, Blumenthal's discussions showed concern for:

—Directing individual tax relief to families with incomes below $40,000.

—Cutting back capital gains reductions by boosting from 10 percent to 15 percent the committee's proposed "alternative minimum tax."

That proposal would replace the current 15 percent minimum tax on one-half of the capital gain, which is not normally taxed. The minimum tax is imposed upon those who would otherwise escape taxes altogether.

The principal author of the committee bill, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., said he doubted the administration amendments would receive the support sought. But he insisted he was open-minded and would discuss possibilities with other members.

Jones said that if the bill were reshaped to Carter's liking, it would lose all or nearly all the Republican support he said it now enjoys. Although Democrats have nearly a 2-1 majority in the House, a substantial number are believed to favor the Jones bill's relatively lenient treatment of capital gains.

The basic tax relief in the Jones bill would rise sharply with income. For example, estimates by congressional specialists are that a hypothetical family of four with $15,000 income and deductible expenses of 23 percent would save $77,000, while such a family with $40,000 income would save $496,000.

The Blumenthal proposals would skewer the relief more toward the lower tax brackets.

Another administration proposal that could be expected to please the AFL-CIO would increase the tax credit in the present law from $35 a person to $100.

How Can She Keep Her Age a Secret?

DEAR ABBY: When I married Herb I knocked four years off my age because he was two years younger than I. We've been married 21 years, and Herb still doesn't know my real age.

We're planning our first trip abroad, and in order to get passports, I sent away for our birth certificates—mine to be sent to a post office box that I got especially for this purpose. My husband frequently sees the mail before I do, and I don't want him to see the year of birth on my birth certificate.

I suppose I am acting childish about this, but Herb is the kind of person who would rib me the rest of my life if he found out.

Is there some way I can doctor up my birth certificate (or the passport) so my husband won't find out how old I am?

FORT SMITH, ARK.

DEAR ARK.: Don't "doctor" up anything. Be cool. Herb may not even notice the year of birth on your passport. Or tell him in advance. If he ribs you, he ribs you. Women have been getting the rib ever since Eve.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15 and my boyfriend is 18, and we've been going together for four months. For my birthday last week, he bought me a really sharp black lace bikini bathing suit with a shorty beach coat to match.

He knew I wanted it because we saw it in a window when we were walking together. I thought it was real neat of him, but my mom hit the roof when she saw it. She said it was not a proper gift for a guy to give a girl unless they are engaged.

What's wrong with it?

PAM

DEAR PAM: Among proper people, "intimate apparel" is considered an improper gift for teens who are just "going together."

DEAR ABBY: Our son is a professional photographer and one of the best in town. He snaps everything and everybody but his own mother and father.

From the time he was a small boy, he was interested in photography as a hobby, so his dad and I always saw to it that he had the best equipment.

Now that he is a professional with a fine studio, you would think he would offer to take our pictures, but he never has. Even at family gatherings when he's busy taking candid shots, if we don't stick our faces in a couple of pictures we'd be left out entirely.

We are average-looking people and wouldn't break his camera. It would be nice to have some good studio pictures of ourselves before we get old and gray. We haven't had a decent picture taken in 10 years!

What do you suppose is the matter with him? Any suggestions?

MA AND PA

DEAR MA AND PA: He's thoughtless. Call his studio and ask for an "appointment." (P.S. And if he sends you a bill, frame it.)

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cent) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

200 years of experience

Experts ready to help with home canning

To many, the thought of canning brings back childhood memories. Of baskets of fresh-picked tomatoes, still warm and sweet-smelling from the garden sun. Of steaming kettles and rows of shining jars. Of grandmother's garden where everything from asparagus to zucchini grew in abundance. Of canning days sitting in the kitchen peeling, paring, pitting and slicing. Of mother marking the jars with red-bordered labels.

For generations, canning season has been a time for relatives to congregate and a time to be thankful for a plentiful harvest. In earlier days, canning was a near necessity. But with all the developments in food technology, processing and distribution, canning is not nearly so necessary as it once was.

Yet, home canning has grown tremendously in popularity in recent seasons. Millions of Americans are returning to a basic pioneer concept — grow your own food, preserve it for winter, be a little more self-sufficient.

Surveys in widespread sections of the nation tell the same story — not since the victory gardens of World War II have families gone in so heavily for home preservation of food as they have in the last several years.

These same surveys also suggest that many families are rediscovering that, in addition to economy, there is something basically satisfying and rewarding in preserving food. And canned foods can be enjoyed at a later time when they are needed more.

Also, fruits and vegetables can be available all year long, not just when they are in season. And most importantly, the home canner has complete control over which, if any, additives are put in the food — and home canned foods can be made to meet the specific tastes of the family.

Recognizing the increasing importance of home canning, two well-known companies, Imperial Sugar of Sugar Land, Tex.

RED PEPPER AND BASIL go a long way in adding extra zip to corn canned at home. Corn canned fresh from the garden, farmer's market or supermarket is a welcomed taste and makes a bright accompaniment with red peppers. Though corn is a low acid food and must be pressure canned, preparation is a simple process. Recipes to can corn, fruits, other vegetables, jellies, jams and preserves are in the newest, 30th edition of the Ball Blue Book now available in a special offer from Imperial Sugar. Recipe for canned corn and ordering instructions for the canning book are in the adjoining story.

and the Ball Corporation, Muncie, Ind., each with over a hundred years of experience, have joined together in a program this summer intended to encourage more people to try their hand at home canning.

A highlight of the program is the Ball Blue Book which is being made available in a special offer from Imperial. Although they have been a reliable source for recipes and cookbooks since 1915, Imperial felt the 30th edition of the Blue Book, encompassing more than 70 years of canning knowledge, technical experience and scientific study, would be more helpful and meaningful to today's home canner.

This newest edition of the Blue Book is bigger and more extensive than any of the 29 editions published since 1909. Included in the full color book are illustrated step-by-step instructions on canning fruits, vegetables, jellies, jams; yield charts processing times; types of equipment needed and instructions on the three basic canning methods: steam pressure, boiling water bath, open kettle.

The 30th edition of the Blue Book also contains a complete section on preserving foods by freezing. While freezing isn't new it has only been recently that the development of convenient home equipment and containers have made freezing practical on a wide scale.

This edition also has a special section on canning for special diets. And a new feature in this issue includes dual recipe measurements — both English and metric.

During this canning season, the Ball Blue Book is being offered at a special price by Imperial Sugar. To get a copy send $1.75, plus your name, address, zip code and pure cane block cut from an empty Imperial Sugar package to Imperial Sugar Company, P.O. Box 500, Sugar Land, Texas 77478.

Here are home canning recipes for peaches, strawberries and sweet corn. They are typical of the more than 250 tested easy-to-follow recipes in the Blue Book.

STRAWBERRY LIME JAM
2 quarts strawberries
1/4 cup lime juice
1 package powdered pectin
7 cups Imperial Sugar
1. Crush fruit; measure 4 1/2 cups into large saucepan.
Mix lime juice with strawberries.
2. Add powdered pectin to the mixture.

3. Place fruit over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add Imperial Sugar and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly.
5. Remove from heat and skim off foam.
6. Ladle into hot jars. Leave 1/4 inch head space. Adjust caps.
7. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath.
8. Yield: about nine pints.

CORN WITH RED PEPPERS
Fresh Corn
Red peppers
Salt
Dried basil
1. Husk corn; remove silk and wash. Cut corn from cob.
2. Measure corn into large kettle. Add 1 teaspoon salt and 2 cups boiling water for each quart of corn.
3. Cut red peppers into strips. Place in-kettle with corn.

4. Pack hot into hot jars, leaving 1-inch head space. Add 1/2 teaspoon basil to each jar. Adjust caps.
5. Process pints 5 minutes, quarts 1 hour and 25 minutes at 10 pounds pressure.

CANNED PEACHES
Canning of peaches may be done through cold pack or hot pack methods. The cold pack method is the most desirable way to can evenly ripened peaches. Following is a step-by-step method for cold packing peaches:
1. Select firm, evenly-ripe peaches. Sort, wash and drain just enough peaches for one canner load. Fill water bath canner half full with water. Heat.
2. Prepare medium or light sugar syrup. For medium syrup combine 3 cups Imperial Sugar and 1 quart water in a saucepan. (Use 2 cups Imperial Sugar and 1 quart water for light syrup). Cook until sugar dissolves. Keep syrup hot until needed, but do not let it boil down.
3. Using wire basket or cheesecloth, dip peaches into boiling water in canner 1/2 to

1 minute to loosen skins. Dip into cold water. Drain.

4. Cut peaches into halves, pit and peel. Drop halves into salt-vinegar solution (mix 2 tablespoons salt, 2 tablespoons vinegar in 1 gallon cold water). Rinse peaches.

5. Pack peach halves, cavity-side down, layers overlapping, in hot jars. Leave 1/2-inch head space. Cover peaches with boiling hot syrup (approximately 1 to 1 1/2 cups per quart) leaving 1/2-inch head space. Remove air bubbles in jar by running a flat, non-metallic kitchen utensil gently between fruit and jar. Add more syrup, if needed.

6. Screw jar lids down evenly and tightly. Stand jars on rack in canner with water covering jars. Water in canner should be hot, but not boiling.

7. Put cover on canner and bring water to a boil. Process at a gentle but steady boil (quarts 30 minutes, pints 25 minutes).
8. Store jars in dry, dark, cool place.

Peaches and other fruits tend to darken while being prepared for canning or after they are in the jar. Step 4 will prevent darkening during preparation. To prevent darkening in the jar, sprinkle over the fruit, 1/4 teaspoon ascorbic acid to each quart, just before capping.

Tech programs aid returning students

LUBBOCK — Women interested in taking courses or completing a degree at Texas Tech University but who have been out of school for sometime can find out about their opportunities and options at an orientational symposium on Aug. 10.

There will be no charge for the symposium which will begin at 7 p.m. in the Continuing Education Building, X-15, on the Tech campus across the street from the Municipal Auditorium. It is being sponsored by Women's Continuum, a service for mature students and coordinated by the Texas Tech Office of Student Life.

The orientation program will cover "how-to's" of admissions, enrollment and developing an educational plan and class schedule tailored to an individual's needs. A panel of Tech faculty, staff and mature students will outline university services and resources of special interest to returning students, such as career planning and placement services. Financial and practical considerations of going back to school also will be discussed.

Ridgley Denning, assistant to the director of Student Life, said that following the panel presentation symposium participants will be able to talk individually with panelists for answers to specific questions.

"This will be the first in our series of programs for men and women returning to Texas Tech this fall," Denning said. "This symposium will really explain to participants how to benefit from all Tech has to offer."

Mature students will have a chance to brush up on their study skills for the semester ahead at a seminar that will meet Aug. 21, 23 and 25, for a total of six hours, and again on Aug. 24, 29 and 30.

Also offered will be a weekend workshop August 26-27, which will give participants guidance in examining and evaluating in depth their educational and vocational interests and strengths. Participants will be assisted in clarifying their career objectives and planning any coursework desired or necessary to develop skills for the jobs they want. Registration for this workshop is Aug. 15.

Another successful program offered by Women's Continuum is a preparation course for the Graduate Record Examination. This eight-week seminar will begin Aug. 23. A program on how to use the Texas Tech Library will be presented September 14.

More information about the programs is available from Denning or Mary Reeves in the Texas Tech Office of Student Life at (806) 742-2192.

Add kid appeal to summer snacks

School has been forgotten and kids are in the full swing of summer. Outdoor activities often are more important than meals to active children. It's up to you to make their meals and snacks as nutritious and appealing as possible.

In developing meals and snacks for children use the 3-2-4-4 formula. It is based on the four food group system developed by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The USDA determined that a child needs three servings from the milk group, two servings from the meat group, and four servings from both the vegetables and fruits group and the breads and cereals group.

If you use 3-2-4-4, you can be sure your child is meeting his daily recommended dietary allowances established by the scientists on the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

If you have a problem with active children this summer, here's a snack activity that will get rid of some excess energy. Find a jar small enough for your child to handle and make sure it has a tightly fitting lid.

Place a spoonful of no-cook pudding mix in the jar and fill the jar three-quarters full with cold milk. After five or more minutes of brisk shaking, your child will be rewarded with a nutritious snack he's prepared himself.

Fruit and vegetable "kebobs" are an excellent snack. Prepare a variety of fresh fruits and vegetables ahead of time. Cut them into bite size pieces and arrange on a plate with a little fruit flavored yogurt or cottage cheese. Arm your child with a toothpick and let him dip into a nutritious snack.

Following are some suggested 3-2-4-4 snacks:

Milk Group: cold milk, chocolate milk, pudding, fruit yogurt, ice cream

Meat Group: peanut butter spread on crackers or bread, hot dog "kebobs," nuts

Vegetables and Fruits Group: Fruit and vegetable wedges dipped in yogurt, vegetable sticks, fruit and cheese "kebobs"

Breads and Cereals Group: graham crackers, soda crackers, bread sticks.

TwEEN 12 and 20 — Too old for you

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D

Dr. Wallace: My problem is really bad, I'm not pregnant — to me it's worse than being pregnant. Here it is:

My boyfriend is 26 and I'm 16. My mother won't let us date. In fact, she has told him not to talk to me.

She found out we were dating when I went to his house and spent the night. I don't like sneaking behind my mother's back but there is no other way. We plan to marry after I graduate. In December he wants to take me to Louisiana to meet his parents. I want to go very much but I don't know how to convince Mother to let me go.

I wouldn't get pregnant because I'm on birth control pills. Is there a good solution? — Marcie, Oakland, Calif.

Marcie: There is no way I can tell you how to do something that is wrong. Men who are 26 and date 16-year-old girls have severe problems.

Don't go to Louisiana with him. If you think this guy is for you, tell him to have the decency to wait until you are 18.

Doctor Wallace: What can I say to a parent that won't believe a word I say? My father becomes angry with me because he thinks I don't tell him the truth. This usually occurs after I have returned from an outing with friends. He is constantly asking suspicious questions.

I know that he cares about me but knowing that he doesn't trust me really hurts! — Susan, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Susan: Talk to your dad when things are good and ask him point blank why he thinks you are not telling him the truth. Enlist Mother's aid but don't be surprised if she can't do much to help. Fathers like yours "love" too much; many times this love causes more harm than good!

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl and my mother left the home two years ago. I was heartbroken that the family was split. Once we were a happy family but that was so long ago, I hardly remember how it was. I now live with my dad and my 14-year-old brother.

Since I'm the only female in the house I've got to do all the cooking and cleaning. Right after Mom split, I started smoking, drinking and staying out late. I have no rules so I set my own. Now I feel differently. I want to do what is right.

People are saying that I was searching for affection — affection my mom was giving me. Do you think I was? What can I do now? — Roberta, Centralia, Wash.

Roberta: There could be many reasons you set your own rules, but a good one was the fact that being the lady of the house at 15 was more than you could handle and rightfully so. You now seem to be straightened out. Do all you can to give your brother love and proper guidance. He will need it.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 25-cent stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. R. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Miss Jones weds Butler

The wedding vows of Arva Lynn Jones and Calvin George Butler were solemnized at 7 p.m., Saturday, at the home of Pauline S. Petty. Officiating was the Rev. Red Nelson, pastor of Mt. Bethel Baptist Church.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Burton. Ruby Lean McVea is the mother of the groom.

The bride wore a pink street-length dress and pink flowers in her hair.

After the ceremony, the couple were escorted to the dining room where they cut the wedding cake. The white cake, made by the hostess, was decorated with a bride and groom and candles. Serving the cake and punch was the groom's mother.

The event was attended by 21 relatives and guests.

Muriel supports ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., urged Congress Wednesday to extend the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to clear the way for "an unmistakable signal to the courts on the will of the American people with respect to equal rights for women."

Appearing as the lead-off witness in a three-day hearing on the time extension, the widow of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey described herself as a member of a "minority of two" — one of only two women in the Senate.

Among the members of the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on the Constitution listening to her testimony was Sen. Maryon Allen, D-Ala., a declared opponent of the time extension. The two women chatted amicably before the hearing.

Mrs. Humphrey and Mrs. Allen are the only women in the Senate, both appointed to fill their husbands' unexpired terms.

Mrs. Humphrey said the time limit should be extended because "a majority of Americans have already expressed their support for this proposal," because "the forging of a national consensus on any important issue takes a long time and because 'despite progress in the area of women's rights, the ERA is still needed.'"

"Clearly, enactment of the Equal Rights Amendment is needed to give an unmistakable signal to the courts on the will of the American people with respect to equal rights for women."

Big Spring Rebekahs meet at I.O.O.F. Hall

The Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 1, at the I.O.O.F. Hall, 9th and San Antonio, with June Wiggins, noble grand, presiding.

Present were 26 members, including 15 past noble grands. Members reported 28 visits made to the sick during the week.

A letter was read from Betty Reid, president of the Rebekah Assembly, I.O.O.F. of Texas, stating that she would be making her official visit to the lodge on Aug. 15. A salad supper and formal attire are planned for the occasion.

Chances for a gift were taken at a quarter per person. The winner was Jewel Fields who will, in turn, bring a gift next week.

The members voted to send $50 to the Bible Fund.

Following the business meeting, a birthday party honored members celebrating August birthdays. Cake, coffee and tea were served by hostesses.

Mildred Collins, Lillian Rhyne, Rosa Lee Hill and Errolene Bailey.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 8.

Californians apathetic about quake

EDITOR'S NOTE: Beneath California, the 600-mile long San Andreas fault lies poised to deliver a minute or two of catastrophic shaking. But most Californians don't think about that, including AP reporter Bill Gardner, who here offers some thoughts on the curious apathy of those who live atop a sleeping giant.

By BILL GARDNER

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I sometimes wonder if maybe these scientists warning of the "Big Quake" aren't in cahoots with my mom. She's always telling me I ought to come home and get the heck out of California before it's too late. It's only a matter of time, she says, before an earthquake knocks my house off its hillside perch.

Now comes this news story: "Scientists at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., say new calculations suggest that the next major earthquake on the San Andreas fault may be larger and might occur sooner than expected."

It's true, of course, that there aren't many earthquakes or hillside perches where I grew up in central Illinois. It might be nice and safe to go back, but I'm going to stay right here and take my chances with the big one.

I've hardly seen a bolt of lightning in the six years I've been here. No tornadoes, no snow, no icy roads, not many muggy days. And if I have to risk an earthquake for all this, well, nothing's free.

Mrs. Robley Evans, who came here with her husband from Wisconsin in 1959, feels the same way. They lived in the San Fernando Valley when the San Fernando quake struck in February 1971 and killed 58 people.

Thomas Nemes, a woman's clothing manufacturer, also lived in the San Fernando Valley in 1971. A few days after the quake, Nemes said he was "definitely considering leaving Los Angeles."

Seven years later, Nemes is still here. One measure of the concern people here have about earthquakes is that less than 5 percent of the homeowners had earthquake insurance at the time of the 1971 quake. It's about the same today.

The San Fernando quake was a big quake but not the Big Quake. It measured 6.6 on the Richter Scale, but scientists say a quake of more than 8.0 is due in Southern California.

They figure an 8.0 quake — which scientists consider a "great" quake — should occur on each segment of the San Andreas Fault every 100 years. Northern California last had a big quake in 1906, so one isn't due there yet. But Southern California last had one in 1857.

Earthquakes don't necessarily kill people directly. All but nine of the 58 victims of the San Fernando quake died in the collapse of one hospital. Three others died in the collapse of another hospital.

And there are plenty of old buildings around that were put up before modern construction codes required extra strengthening for earthquake protection. The City of Los Angeles is taking an inventory of those buildings. It's found 5,800 so far and expects to find 3,000 more.

A great many of these buildings are residential hotels and apartment buildings. Mostly old people live there. If anybody should be worried about earthquakes, they should.

Jim Davis lives in one of those old buildings. It's a four-story job, made of red brick and by the front door is a barely readable iron sign that says "Blasdel Arms."

But it's not the Blasdel Arms and hasn't been for some time. Painted on the building's side is another sign. Much of the paint has chipped off, but the words "Bel-Rio Hotel Apartments" can be made out.

Davis lives on the second floor. His door is open and he sits — no shirt on — by himself on his old couch, sipping something. He's 46 and says he came here 15 years ago from Oklahoma for a piece of California prosperity. He's quick to say he has a job, in the back shop at a drycleaner. Pays $105 rent.

Earthquakes don't worry him. "If it's going to happen, it's going to happen. If the quake is strong enough, it can knock down any building."

Geoffrey Goddard's wife died of cancer seven years ago and he lives by himself in a fifth-floor apartment of another old building. After years of "termites work," he's retired at 62 but looks older.

There have been several fires in his building but he feels safe. "I'm right next to the fire escape," he says. "I can get out of here in nothing flat."

QUAKE TAKES HOSPITAL IN 1971—Part of the second and third floors of the Veterans Administration Hospital teeter amid shambles the day after Los Angeles' 1971 earthquake. The hospital stood in the Sylmar section of the city. The quake measured 6.6 on the Richter scale.

Cowboys want to accomodate Efren....IF (Big 'If')

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach says the newly expanded 16-game National Football League schedule will take its toll on players, but adds that he doesn't want to miss any of the contests.

"It figures to increase the aches and pains of everyone," Staubach said, resting in his room on the campus of California Lutheran College, where the Super Bowl champion Cowboys are training for their 1978 preseason opener against the San Francisco 49ers Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

"But you want to play every week in this game," added Staubach, regarded by many as the premier quarterback in football. "I can see taking a breather if we got far enough ahead."

Staubach has no qualms about his backup, Danny White, who was a star in the World Football League before coming to Dallas three years ago.

"Danny definitely is capable of coming in if I'm hurt," said Staubach. "And he needs more playing time as he matures."

Missing from the line will be a familiar figure for 13 seasons at tackle for the Cowboys, Ralph Neely finally retired after the Super Bowl victory over Denver last January.

"Although Ralph will be missed, we are lucky because Rayfield Wright looks healthy again," noted Staubach. "Rayfield missed the whole 1977 season with an injury. But he's looked good so far in practice."

Pat Donovan, who stepped in for Wright last year, also figures to be in the starting lineup, according to Staubach. "And Andy Frederick, who had a good rookie year in 1977, is a solid backup," said the 36-year-old quarterback. "So without belittling Neely at all, I think we're in good shape at tackle."

shape at tackle."

Staubach thinks that experience will make the offensive line as strong or stronger than last year.

"We're not going to be relying on so many rookies this season," he noted. "That should be a plus for us."

He believes in depth as he approaches the 1978 season. "I think depth is important to every team, more so this year because of the 16-game regular season schedule. The teams without depth figure to be hurt."

Staubach is aiming for the opening regular season game against the tough Baltimore Colts. It's a Monday night affair, Sept. 4, at Texas Stadium.

"Our schedule appears to be tougher this year," he said.

"Besides Baltimore, we're going to be playing Los Angeles, Miami, and Minnesota outside our division."

Will the Cowboys have anything new to throw at their opponents?

"Well, nothing as noticeable as the shotgun," he said, laughing. "That's something people can see and recognize."

Staubach continues to be one of the most versatile quarterbacks in the game, averaging more than 350 passes and 50 rushes each of the past five seasons.

How long can he go on?

"I can't predict," he answered. "But I really enjoy playing, and I'll keep on doing it until it's no longer fun."

Physical papers ready for athletes

All high school and junior high athletes in Big Spring, both boy and girl, are asked to visit the Athletic offices at the high school in order to pick up forms for physicals.

Physical examinations for the upcoming school year will be held Aug. 10 at the local hospitals, and athletes will be advised of the time for their respective physicals when they obtain the form from a member of the athletic department.

Big Spring athletes are urged to obtain these forms at their earliest convenience.

Palmer gives Nicklaus nod to pull PGA 'slick' and U.S. Open titlist Andy North.

Nicklaus, coming off consecutive victories at the British Open and the Philadelphia Classic, is bidding for his fifth PGA title. That would tie him with Walter Hagen for the all-time lead.

After playing here two days last week, Nicklaus skipped all but the final practice round this week.

"I like fast greens, but I was hoping they weren't overreacting to a 63 shot here in 1973 and trying to make the golf course so nobody could play it."

Nicklaus referred to the final-round 63 that Johnny Miller shot here to win the 1973 U.S. Open. The score, still a record for Oakmont and the Open, came on a day when the greens were slow and mushy due to heavy rainfall.

"I like the fast greens because the better players win on fast greens. I've had lots of times when I've had trouble with fast greens. But when I'm playing well, when I'm right, then I feel I'm usually right up there with this kind of course," Nicklaus said.

Arnold Palmer would agree with that. He remembers when he lost to Nicklaus here in the 1962 U.S. Open.

"Jack has a knack for putting these greens which is not common among most of the players," said Palmer.

"I recall in 1962 he 3-putted only once in 90 holes, and that in itself is a major accomplishment."

That's why Palmer regards Nicklaus as the obvious favorite here.

"I don't know that there is anybody who merits the favored position Nicklaus does," said Palmer, who has never won the PGA.

"You can talk about the other guys, Tom Watson and the guys that have played good recently, and you still have to come back to Jack."

Beyond fast greens, the PGA has a $50,000 top prize that will go to the winner. There's $30,000 for second place and $20,000 for third.

The leading PGA money winner so far this year is 6-foot-4, 210-pound Andy Bean, whose checks so far total $245,588.

Second on the money list is Nicklaus with $243,622, followed by Watson at $222,729 and Lee Trevino at $203,920.

NICKLAUS AND PALMER THEN — Jack Nicklaus, left, and Arnold Palmer stand side by side at Oakmont, Pa., in June 1962 prior to start of playoff for the National Open Golf Championship. That was the year when Nicklaus, a 22-year-old pro rookie, beat Palmer, the legend, in Palmer's own backyard, and began his own ascension to a peak that may never be scaled again.

SIXTEEN YEARS LATER — Arnold Palmer puts Jack Nicklaus' belly as they kid around on the PGA tournament course. In 1962, Nicklaus won his first big tournament at the U.S. Open here at Oakmont in an 18-hole playoff.

Arnie, Jack remember good ol' days

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Like two ships in the night, the paths of Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer crossed just outside the PGA press tent, and an enterprising photographer leaped to the occasion.

"Mind if I get a shot of you two guys?" the cameraman asked. "Our office pulled an old picture when you were in the Open playoff here in 1962. Arnie, how about patting Jack's stomach — he was a little bigger then."

"Yeah, about 30 pounds," Nicklaus said, good naturedly. "Hey, Arnie, you haven't changed much."

"Ten pounds maybe," acknowledged Palmer, now a jolly-but trim-looking 190 pounds.

Harking back to that historic playoff 16 years ago which abruptly altered the course of golfing history, Palmer remembers mainly his harrowing experience on Oakmont's marble-fast greens — 11 three-putters in total — and Nicklaus recalls almost nothing at all.

"I was just a kid wanting to win my first golf tournament," Nicklaus, a 22-year-old pro rookie at the time, said. "It wasn't until years afterward, looking back, that I realized the significance of it. I said, 'Good grief, I beat Arnold Palmer, the legend, and in his own backyard.' It was a sobering thought."

It was not for a decade or more that the full impact hit home to golf observers. It was that humid weekend in June, 1962, that the curtain started falling on the fabulous Palmer era and the blond, fat kid from Columbus, Ohio, began his ascension to a peak that may never be scaled again.

Nicklaus, now 38, lean, poised and handsome as a matinee idol, goes after a record-tying fifth PGA championship today and his 16th major title covering also the Masters, British and U.S. Open classics. Palmer, never regaining his old last-gasp magic, has drifted gracefully into the background.

"That big strong dude," Palmer said of his arch rival. "I knew he was pretty good. He had come close when I won the Open at Denver in 1960. But I never seriously considered him as the man who was going to take over golf."

"Beating me as he did here in the Open certainly had to have a great deal of influence on the game — more from his standpoint than from mine. It gave him a tremendous confidence. If I had won, I might have been able to hold him off a few more years."

He didn't, and he couldn't. Tying Palmer in the 1962 Open and forcing a playoff, Nicklaus threatened golf's reigning hero.

Yanks, Bosox kiss

NEW YORK (AP) — It all depends on your point of view, so the Boston Red Sox acted like they won Wednesday night's game while the New York Yankees were the men of losers.

The scoreboard, however, read 5-5 when play was halted after 14 innings at 1:16 a.m. today. The game will be completed before tonight's regularly scheduled contest.

The Red Sox, who have been slumping of late, felt like winners because they trailed 5-0 after three innings, caught up with two runs in the fourth, two in the sixth and one in the eighth and survived New York threats in the 12th and 14th.

And the Yankees felt like losers because they helped the Red Sox rally by contributing three wild pitches and a pair of bases-loaded walks and wasting a 12-7 hit advantage.

Don Zimmer, whose Red Sox have dropped 11 of their last 14 games and have seen their American League East lead shrink from 10 games on July 8 to 4½ over the Milwaukee Brewers — the Yankees trail by 6½ and the Baltimore Orioles are 7½ out — isn't about to throw back anything these days.

In other AL action, the Orioles edged Milwaukee 6-5 in the completion of Monday night's suspended game, but the Brewers took the regularly scheduled contest 5-3; the Cleveland Indians downed the Kansas City Royals 5-2; the California Angels trounced the Oakland A's 8-2 and the Seattle Mariners defeated the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Gary Burgmeier, Bill Campbell and Dick Drago held the Yankees to six hits and no runs over the last 11 innings. Rich Gossage allowed two hits and was charged with one run in seven innings and Sparky Lyle hurled two scoreless innings.

"The way we hit tonight, I'd have to say I'm happy to be tied," said Zimmer, whose suddenly impotent sluggers managed only seven hits and haven't homered in six games. "We didn't exactly knock the ball all over the place."

The game was held up for 35 minutes in the top of the eighth and again for 18 minutes after 12 innings.

Orioles 6-3, Brewers 5-5

Larry Hise and Sal Bando blasted home runs and Mike Caldwell notched his seventh straight victory as Milwaukee defeated Baltimore, beating Jim Palmer for the first time in 11 outings.

Prior to the regularly scheduled game, a two-out, 10th-inning single by Mike Anderson gave the Orioles a 6-5 victory in the completion of a contest suspended after nine innings by a local curfew Monday night.

Caldwell, 14-5, allowed solo homers to Ken Singleton and Doug DeCinces before needing relief help in the ninth from Larry Sorensen, who gained his first save.

Mariners 3, Twins 1

Jim Colborn fired a six-hitter and designated hitter Bob Robertson blasted a two-run homer in the sixth inning as Seattle defeated Minnesota.

Juan Bernhardt had an RBI single as Colborn chalked up his third victory in 12 decisions. Minnesota's only run scored in the fourth on Butch Wynegar's sacrifice fly.

NFL pre-season is this weekend

By the Associated Press

Tom Landry doesn't expect the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys to make many changes this season. But kicker Efren Herrera is making that a hard promise to keep.

"I can't think of anything radical we might do," Landry said Wednesday during a break in training at Cowboys' National Football League camp at California Lutheran College. "Certainly we're not going to stand still but the changes we do make will be subtle."

Herrera is not being subtle. The Mexican place-kicker asked the Cowboys to trade him, saying the team hasn't offered a salary commensurate with his standing as the top kicker in the NFL.

The Cowboys and the rest of NFL open their preseason this weekend. San Diego faces Seattle on Friday. On Saturday, it's San Francisco at Dallas; Cincinnati at Tampa Bay; Oakland at Chicago; Kansas City at Green Bay; Washington at Minnesota; Philadelphia vs New Orleans in Mexico City, Mexico; New England at Los Angeles; St. Louis at Miami; Pittsburgh at Baltimore; Denver at Houston and Buffalo at Detroit.

In an off-the-field settlement, Los Angeles County's Chief Attorney

John Larson said he has concluded that neither the county nor the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission could prohibit the Rams from keeping the Los Angeles designation after their move to Anaheim in 1980.

Meanwhile, the Colts and Lyell Mitchell have still failed to come to contract terms and the running back missed his 12th day of camp. He is being fined $500 for each day he misses the training sessions.

In other training camp activity, a bolt of lightning struck the north goal posts at the New Orleans Saints ran through a passing drill. Coach Dick Nolen halted the practice 15 minutes ahead of time.

Chrissie, et al get ready

ATLANTA (AP) — Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova, the top two women tennis players in the world, will compete in Atlanta's $100,000 women's tennis tournament this fall.

Defending champion Evert, ranked second in the world, entered the tournament Wednesday. Top-ranked Navratilova already had entered the event, which is scheduled Sept. 25-Oct. 1 at Georgia Tech's Alexander Memorial Coliseum.

Evert won the Atlanta event last year without losing a set to finalist Dianne Fromholtz. She defeated Virginia Wade, the 1977 defending champion, in the semifinals.

This year's purse for the singles champion is $20,000.

Rose, Richard are tops

NEW YORK — Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds, whose 44-game hitting streak was the second longest ever, was selected the National League's Player of the Month for July, league President Chub Feeney announced.

Rose's during July batted .379 on 44 hits in 116 at-bats, scored 17 runs and had eight runs batted in.

NEW YORK — Right-hander J.R. Richard of the Houston Astros, who won all four of his decisions in July and had a 1.29 earned run average, was named the National League's Pitcher of the Month.

Top seeds germinate

NEW ORLEANS — Top-seeded Roscoe Tanner beat Rick Fisher 6-1, 6-2 in a $75,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament.

In other matches, fifth-seeded Vic Amaya whipped Lito Alvarez 6-1, 6-2 to advance to the singles quarterfinals. Sixth-seeded Brian Teacher also made it by beating Trey Walke 6-2, 6-2 and Dick Stockton beat Marcelo Lara 6-3, 6-4 in a first-round match.

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. — Top-seeded Eddie Dibbs overpowered Van Winitsky 6-1, 6-0 in a second-round match at a $175,000 international tennis tournament at Mt. Crammont Stadium.

Defending champion John Alexander of Australia, the No. 9 seed, downed Chris Sylvan 6-4, 6-2. Second-seeded Brian Gottfried beat Pat DuPre 7-5, 6-3 and seventh-seeded Wojtek Fibak eliminated 10th-seeded Arthur Ashe 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

Third-seeded Manuel Orantes downed Mike Fishbach 6-1, 6-0 and fourth seed Corrado Barazzutti defeated Francisco Gonzales 6-1, 6-2.

In other second round action, unseeded Tom Gullikson upset No. 15 seed Bob Lutz 7-5, 6-4; No. 5 seeded Harold Solomon defeated Doug Palm 6-0, 6-1; Heinz Gundhardt defeated Zeljko Franulovic 5-7, 7-5, 6-1; and No. 12 seed Tim Gullikson defeated Johann Kriek 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Guillermo Vilas beat Butch Seewagen 6-2, 6-0 in the $75,000 Grand Prix tournament at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

John McEnroe moved into the quarterfinals with a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Keith Richardson.

Third-seeded John Lloyd also advanced to the quarterfinals in the competition, beating John James 6-1, 6-0.

In other first-round matches, fourth-seeded Balazs Taroczy defeated Alvaro Botanour 7-6, 6-0; Peter McNamara downed Erick Iskersky 6-0, 5-7, 6-2; Paul Ma-Namée eliminated Christophe Roger-Vasselin 7-6, 6-2 and Pat Corney whipped Francois Jauffret 7-6, 6-2.

Marr at PGA, sans clubs

Dave Marr, semi-retired pro golfer, will be at Oakmont this weekend for the 60th PGA championship, but he won't need his clubs. Marr, who rarely plays in tournaments these days, will stick to the broadcast booth where he will handle color commentary for ABC.

"I've only played in two tournaments this year," says Marr, who won the PGA in 1965, "and I won't play in any more. I just haven't had the time. You have to really work at golf to be any good. You have to practice constantly."

"It's just not something you can turn on or off like a faucet."

He has found time, however, to cover about 10 tournaments for ABC. That takes much less practice. "On TV I'm discussing something I know about. I've been around golf all my life. I know my subject. And I've been with ABC for nine years so I know what they expect from me."

"The hardest thing doing golf on TV is to know when to be brief," he says. "You don't want to get caught out on a limb when the picture changes to another golfer. After a while you begin to sense when you have to be quiet."

Marr prefers working in the broadcast booth alongside the 18th green to the old days when he wandered the course with a portable microphone. "It's much better at 18," he says. "That's where it's going to finish and, most likely, that's where the excitement will be. Everything's coming your way."

Who does Marr feel is the man to beat at the PGA? No surprise here. "Jack Nicklaus," he says, "is still No. 1. He is the best."

Cowboys and 49ers open pre-season play Saturday

By DOUG TODD

Public Relations Director

The touted Dallas Cowboys offense, ranked No. 1 in the National Football League in 1977, will be looking to "smooth out," according to Coach Tom Landry, when the World Champions open 1978 pre-season play Saturday night at Texas Stadium.

Saturday's game with the San Francisco 49ers, which gets under way at 8 p.m. and is the annual Salesmanship Club Charity game, is a renewal of the NFL's highest scoring regular season game of 1977. This time there promises to be additional offensive fireworks in the game since the 49ers have added O.J. Simpson via a major off-season trade with Buffalo.

Last December the Cowboys and 49ers hooked up in a Monday night game in San Francisco. The Cowboys prevailed, 42-35, but not before 49ers quarterback Jim Plunkett — a disappointment prior to that night — threw four touchdown passes.

Simpson and Plunkett were renowned collegiate players, both having won the Heisman Trophy as seniors — O.J. at USC and Plunkett at Stanford.

The Cowboys counter with a pair of Heisman Trophy recipients of their own on offense in quarterback Roger Staubach (Navy, '63) and running back Tony Dorsett (Pitt, '76).

It is offensively that Landry is looking for improvement over the performance turned in last Saturday during the Cowboys intra-squad scrimmage at their training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

"We put our entire offense in during the previous week," related Landry, "and now we need to smooth it out. We have a complex, multiple offense and it takes time to re-install it — even for our veterans, and our offense mostly is a veteran unit."

Landry said he was pleased with the performance of Staubach (6 of 7 for 101 yards and one touchdown) and the running of Dorsett (33 yards, 6 carries) and Robert Newhouse (50 yards, 10 carries).

DALLAS COWBOYS

He added that Newhouse's backup at fullback, Scott Laidlaw, also ran well (6 carries for 29 yards) and that rookie tailback Alois Blackwell of Houston had his second impressive scrimmage performance in a row.

Despite the above, Landry feels the offense needs to sustain its drives better. "We're not doing enough things well, but I have confidence we will. Dorsett needs to be grooved into the blocking patterns but he has looked good and I expect him to have a good year."

The Cowboys offense again will feature in addition to the 36-year-old Staubach and the second-year runner, Dorsett — all-pro wide receiver Drew Pearson, who looked in mid-season form in Saturday's scrimmage, and tight end Billy Joe DuPree. A member of the Pro Bowl the last two years, DuPree's status is questionable because of hand injuries that need to be healed sufficiently enough for him to play.

DuPree suffered a cracked left thumb in practice early last week, then split the webbing in his right hand (requiring 10 stitches) later in the week. He has not practiced in several days and did not scrimmage Saturday.

One other change at present has tackle Pat Donovan manning left offensive tackle (in place of retired Ralph Neely) after playing right tackle in '77. Donovan replaced injured Rayfield Wright last year. Now Wright is attempting a comeback at age 33 following knee surgery.

Starting right guard Tom Rafferty, like Donovan a new starter last year, also missed Saturday's scrimmage with a calf strain but will work back into practices and should play this weekend.

Defensively, Landry expects his unit to be a full-strength. Cornerbacks Benny Barnes and Aaron Kyle, along with backups Randy Hughes and Bill Gregory, are rounding into form following off-season surgery, and the front four of Ed (Too Tall) Jones, Jethro Pugh, Randy White and Harvey Martin have had impressive training camps to date.

The 49ers finished 5-9 in '77 and have a new coach this year, former Redskins assistant Pete McCulley. The Cowboys were 12-2 during the '77 regular season and won Super Bowl XII over Denver, 27-10.

Dodgers say: 'Ouch! Padres not Patsies anymore!'

By the Associated Press

For years they've been waiting for the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Diego Padres to develop a real rivalry in Southern California.

Well, they've finally got one.

The Padres, longtime patsies to their powerful neighbors to the north, are no longer playing that role these days.

They've won a club-record nine straight games, including a four-game sweep of the Dodgers that culminated with Wednesday night's 2-1 victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati whipped the Atlanta Braves 6-2; San Francisco stopped the Houston Astros 4-2; the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets 8-6; the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0 and the Chicago Cubs edged the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

Winning pitcher Bob Ojeda and relief ace Rollie Fingers combined to hold Los Angeles to just five hits. The victory, before a sellout crowd of 46,751 at San Diego Stadium, gave Ojeda only his second career victory over the Dodgers. Losing pitcher Tommy John surrendered just seven hits.

Reds 6, Braves 2

Pete Rose doubled, singled twice and hit a home run in his first four times at-bat and Tom Seaver hurled a three-hitter to lead Cincinnati over

New York.

The Phillies gained an 8-0 lead in the first five innings and escaped with the victory despite a five-run rally by the Mets in the eighth featuring Lee Mazzilli's two-run homer.

Pirates 3, Expos 0

Bruce Kison and Kent Tekulve combined on a three-hitter and Phil Garner hit a solo home run as Pittsburgh beat Montreal.

Kison struck out seven batters, including the side in the sixth, and walked only two before needing ninth-inning relief help from Tekeulve, who notched his 18th save. Kison reportedly was developing a blister on his pitching hand.

REGGIE GOES DOWN SWINGING — Reggie Jackson goes down on one knee as he swings and misses in the rain to strike out in the 12th inning of the rain delayed game with Boston in New York Wednesday night. Jackson struck out four times and failed to get the ball out of the infield in six times at bat. The game was postponed in the 14th inning because of curfew after Jackson struck out.

Astros' 8-game streak busted

HOUSTON (AP) — San Francisco right-hander John Montefusco knew he had his work cut out for him before he fired his first pitch.

"We really needed this one," said Montefusco, who scattered seven hits as the Giants snapped Houston's eight-game winning streak with a 4-2 triumph over the Astros Wednesday night.

"The last two games, the clubhouse had been kind of quiet," Montefusco said. "But tonight, everything was back to normal before the game and I think that made a difference."

"We have to stop and think that we're still on top and we're fighting for the playoffs. There are only two months left in the season and we're going to have to give it our best shot every game."

Montefusco, 8-4, picked up his first victory since June 25. He went the distance for only the third time in 25 starts this season as the Giants broke the Astros club record-tying home winning streak of 11.

Terry Whitfield's eighth home run of the season, a three-run blast off losing pitcher Tom Dixon, 5-8, proved to be the deciding blow as San Francisco managed to hang on to its slim one-half game lead over second-place Cincinnati in the National League West.

Whitfield, who sustained a head injury that required 20 stitches in Monday night's game, said being a starter this season has helped his mental outlook.

"It was tough on me last year to come to the ball park and not know whether I was going to start or sit on the bench," he said.

"It was frustrating to sit on the bench last night (because of the injury) and watch my teammates play hard, but still lose."

Cushing moves to Western TC

SNYDER — Joe Cushing, formerly a member of the coaching staff at Forsan High School, has been named women's basketball coach at Western College.

A native of Loraine, Cushing is a graduate of Angelo State University and a veteran of four years service in the U.S. Navy. He is a member of the Texas High School Coaches Association and of the Texas High School Girls' Coaches Association.

Cushing coached at Bellville, a suburb of Houston, for four years before moving to Forsan to coach women's basketball and track in 1977-78. He has a 190-58 record in his eight years of coaching basketball.

Forsan won district in girls' basketball and track this year. Bellville won the state track championship in 1976 under Cushing's guidance and was state runner-up in 1977. Two of Cushing's basketball players were named to the All-State team two consecutive years.

Cushing enjoys hunting and fishing as hobbies. He and his wife have a four-year-old son, Toby Joe.

Cushing will replace Dr. Sid Simpson as women's coach.

WHY ARE WE SO BIG ON ASTOR-THRIFTY MAID BRANDS?

These "store brand" items are those that we ourselves produce in our own plants, or strictly control their production in plants under contract to W/D Buddies. Products bearing our own labels are produced under rigid W/D standards for quality and wholesomeness. Because we produce them or supervise their production, we offer them at prices lower than you would pay for some other comparable brand. Just another example of how "you can feed your family for less when you shop at Buddies or Winn-Dixie Stores."

GREBID

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

Answer: A "HURRY-TWEAK-NATURE-DAINTY" (Answers tomorrow)

Yesterday's Jumbles: HURRY TWEAK NATURE DAINTY
Answer: "What do I get - a general or a local anesthetic?" - "ETHER"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to combine your intuitions and your judgment by which you can best extend your activities into more productive lines, especially where culture, art and music are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have new ideas at this time which can bring you recognition if you follow through on them. Prove your devotion to the one you love.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you concentrate now you get the right solution to a perplexing problem. Be sure to handle a business matter wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the best way to gather the information you need to improve your routines. Come to a better accord with family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan the most practical way to add to present abundance via orthodox methods. Avoid arguments with your mate tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Showing more affection and thought for family members is wise. Try to be more outgoing and less temperamental at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show your devotion to friends by helping them with their affairs. Also, discuss a personal matter with one who can assist you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact a congenial you want to accompany on a trip and gain mutual benefit. Be sure to handle your money wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to pay more attention to civic matters and gain more respect. Make plans to improve your career in some way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A new project crops up that you should look into very quickly and make it part of your life. Your intuition is accurate now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Seek the right methods of handling obligations in the future and become more efficient. Be careful with finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Discuss a new plan with an associate first, then seek approval from a higher-up. Show that you have poise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A time to enjoy yourself and remove any tensions you may have. Study your financial situation and cut down on expenses.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will learn the lessons of life well and should therefore be given the finest academic education possible to prepare for a most successful life. Add some musical training.

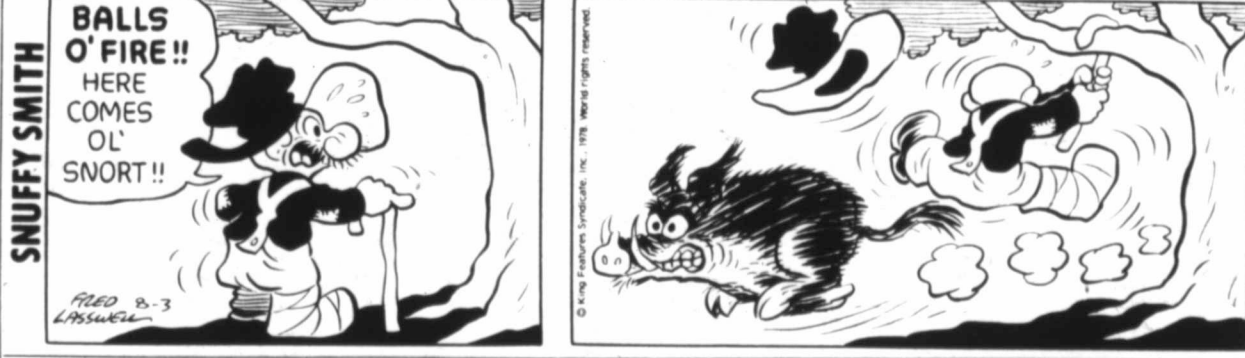

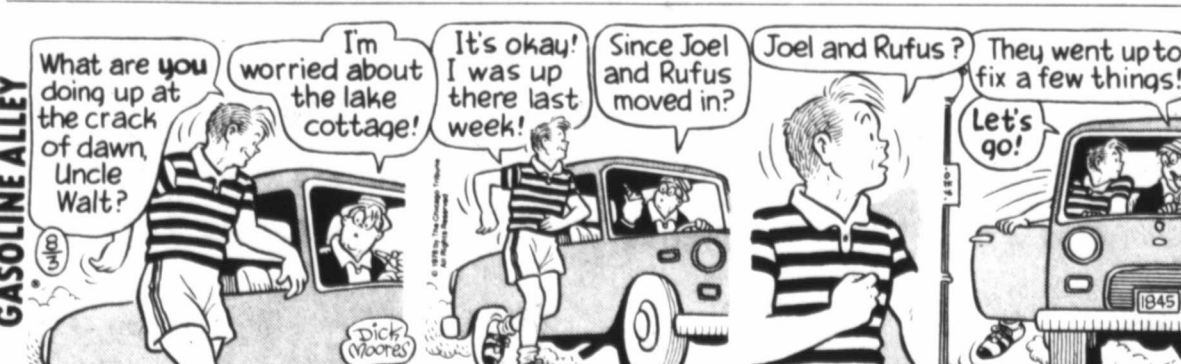

Don't neglect ethical studies early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely YOU!

Small businesses recover slowly

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since World War II, when the growth of Big Business was spurred by the need for huge amounts of armaments, Small Business has felt neglected and even discriminated against.

Now it is beginning to feel better. As one small business advocate put it: "The time seems right for a compensatory period of growth of the entire entrepreneurial independent small enterprise part of the economy."

In the past month the House Ways and Means Committee approved a tax bill that delights Small Business, the White House scheduled a Small Business Conference and Congress approved a Small Business advocate.

Milton Stewart is the advocate. Nothing new in that, say friends who have listened to him denounce the stranglehold of Big Government, Big Business and Big Labor. Those are his words quoted above.

What is different now is that the Small Business Administration has an executive, the first ever, who will argue before other government agencies the wisdom and justice of keeping Small Business in mind.

Why should they? Self interest, for one thing. Small Business is the primary creator of jobs. Small Business is innovative and inventive, where as Big Business sometimes turns sterile and bureaucratic.

Stewart, who once headed a venture capital firm and later the National Small Business Association, cites figures showing that between 1969 and 1976 and 9 million jobs were created in the United States.

Now that he is president, Small Business supporters will not let him forget. Nor are there indications he has. The president's letter to Cabinet heads regarding the White House conference made that clear.

In the letter he told them to appoint "either an assistant secretary or personal aide to deal with the Honorable A. Vernon Weaver," administrator of the Small Business Administration.

PID: late phase of gonorrhea

~AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "PID" is an abbreviation for pelvic inflammatory disease, and a state health official says for women it can stand for pain and trouble.

PID — a serious infection and inflammation of the organs in a woman's pelvic cavity — may be associated with numerous organisms, says Dr. Charles Webb Jr., but he noted that it is a late complication of gonorrhea.

Webb, chief of the state health department's bureau of communicable disease services, said in a statement: "Gonococcal PID has predictable severe consequences, and I consider it the most important infectious disease problem in Texas today."

He said 9 to 15 per cent of all women with untreated gonorrhea develop a case of acute PID. The consequences include sterility, which is caused by scarring of tissue in the Fallopian tube, he said.

In about 4.5 per cent of all cases of chronic PID, Webb said, surgical removal of the reproductive organs is an unavoidable result.

He said since gonorrhea in females usually produces no early symptoms, the health department strongly recommends that sexually active young women request gonococcal cultures during routine pelvic examinations.

In 1977, he said, gonorrhea increased 4 per cent in the 20-24 age group, 17 per cent in the 30-34 age group and 11 per cent in the 35-39 age group. There was a 6 per cent decrease among Texans, age 15-19.

Long overdue

with Marj Carpenter

Back in May, long overdue honors were paid to a Marine hero.

Here we are three months later running it, but Gilbert Quinney wouldn't care.

He never did care if he got a Silver Star or not.

The ceremonies were held in San Angelo in May for the 80-year-old former Colorado City resident. The medal he finally received is the nation's third highest award for gallantry in battle.

It was presented almost 60 years after Quinney's discharge from the Marine Corps. Recently he was a patient in the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

Quinney, discharged in 1919 from the Corps, had been notified in 1940 that he was to be the recipient of the medal. The notification was set aside and completely forgotten by both Quinney and the Corps.

Gilbert Quinney could have cared less. According to Col. A. F. Bauer, deputy director for the Eighth Marine Corps District, based in New Orleans, "bureaucratic red tape" had been responsible for the delay in presentation of the medal.

He became eligible for the Silver Star when he received two citations for gallantry during World War I.

The slight was brought to light when he contacted local recruiters and told them of the two citations.

It was during the bloody battle of Blanc Mont Ridge in France and subsequent capture of St. Etienne that the young Marine private earned his citations from the highest ranking Army and Marine general in France.

He and his company commander, Capt. Charles Roberts, were credited with capturing 42 German soldiers in an underground structure. The next day, he and the captain and another runner were caught in the shelling.

"We were all together when it happened but I hit the ground faster than they did," he recalled. "They were both still partly mobile and I helped them get back to the aid station."

The former Marine recalled that his company was comprised of 250 men and that there were 750 names on the roster as having served with the company in France. "This means 500 were killed," he added. Only six survived the war with being wounded. Quinney was also one of the last six alive when he recalled his belated Silver Star.

Quinney was a runner in the 82nd Company, Sixth Marine Regiment of the Second Army Division. A runner was a message carrier and "that was the most dangerous job in the outfit."

And it created a little excitement when he finally got his Silver Star.

But having the medal or not having the medal never changed the acts of bravery for which he was cited. Quinney was a real hero — and one well-known and well-loved long before people knew he was a hero.

He was well-loved in Colorado City where he grew up. He was well-loved in Pecos where he resided for many years. And he is well-loved in San Angelo, where he now lives.

Quinney and his wife, Hazel Cook Quinney, have made their home in the Rio Concho Manor in San Angelo.

As a matter of fact, when he spent three weeks in the local Veterans Administration Hospital here in Big Spring for two surgeries and dental work, he was well loved right here — out where I ride fence.

Food pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first agreement has been signed under the Food for Development phase of the Food for Peace program.

The Agriculture Department said that the pact signed Wednesday with Bangladesh provides for financing of the immediate sale of $26 million in U.S. wheat and flour.

In return, Bangladesh is to use the funds from selling the grain there to carry out specific grain-growing and rural development projects.

Farm

Veto threat hangs over aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee generally has gone along with the Carter administration on the funding of farm and food-aid programs in the year that begins Oct. 1 but a veto threat still hangs over the bill.

When the Senate takes up the fiscal year 1979 appropriations bill for the Agriculture Department and food agencies elsewhere, it will see proposed spending of almost $23.6 billion — not quite double this year's $12.9 billion.

It will also see that the House approved $18.4 billion. But, the Senate committee noted in its report Wednesday, the House did not even consider $5 billion in new borrowing authority recently requested for the Commodity Credit Corp.

It also had not received President Carter's request that 25 new watershed projects be fully funded in the 1979 budget rather than having their cost "disguised" — spread out over several years.

When that is taken into account, the Senate bill is $121 million less than the House version but "a prudent" $272 million more than Carter wanted, the committee said.

Administration budget officials have passed along veto threats for any appropriations bill going over his proposals.

All but about $5 billion of the money is for price-support and other farm-income programs, food-stamp aid and such subsidized nutritional programs as school lunches.

The Senate panel did make most of the changes Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland practically begged for in the House bill.

The Senate bill, for example, would again allow him to ban from the school breakfast program the fortified grain and fruit products known as "super-doughnuts."

The Senate bill, like the House one, continues $3.5 million in funds for tobacco-production research Carter tried to kill. But it also continues a year-old program of competitive grants to scientists outside the traditional complex of land-grant colleges and department laboratories that the House would have ended.

It also calls for rolling back House-passed increases in spending for experimental solar farms, urban gardening projects and farmer-to-consumer direct marketing programs.

Because so many pet projects of individual senators and groups didn't make it into the bill, a floor fight is expected, committee aides say.

Farmers loaned $420 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department in the first nine months of this federal budget year has loaned farmers almost $420 million to build crop-storage facilities on their farms.

In the first 28 years of the program, a total of about $1 billion had been borrowed.

But in the spring of 1977 the new administration decided to key its farm programs to reserves owned and held by farmers, so it liberalized the program's requirements as an incentive for grain growers and others to build silos, bins and the like.

Legislation in the fall expanded it still further and loans for remodeling are now available.

The figures released Wednesday showed that in the year ending last Sept. 30 some 25,705 producers borrowed $156.9 million to construct facilities to hold 220.1 bushels.

In the next nine months, the department loaned $419.7 million to build 47,975 new facilities for 491.2 million bushels.

Under the program, farmers can borrow $50,000 or 85 percent of the cost of buying and installing storage facilities and drying equipment, whichever is less.

Labor officials caught off guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Department officials, caught off guard by a Senate vote to free many small businesses from safety and health regulations, say the move would deprive millions of workers of their "fundamental human rights."

But backers of the proposal, adopted Wednesday as the Senate voted to reauthorize Small Business Administration programs, say it will ease the regulatory burden small businesses must bear.

"I think it's very tragic and somewhat shortsighted," Occupational Safety and Health Administration spokesman Frank Greer said after the vote.

"It would seem it is a basic denial of fundamental human rights to deny workers protection because they work in small businesses."

But Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who voted for the provision, said it was necessary because "very small businesses don't have ... the wherewithal and the auditors and everything else to go along with these particular regulations."

The proposal, sponsored by Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., would mean that businesses with 10 workers or less in a non-hazardous industry would no longer be subject to inspection by OSHA officials.

Labor Department officials said the change would affect about 10 million workers.
