During 1981...

Inflation Rises By 7 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level increased 7 percent last year, marking the slowest rise in that measure since 1977, the government reported today.

Analysts attributed the slowdown to abundant supplies of food, the worldwide glut of oil and the recession.

The 1981 rate — as measured by the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods — was well below the 11.8 percent in 1980 and 12.8 percent in 1979. The index rose 6.9 percent in 1977 and 3.7 percent in 1976, department figures show.

In explaining the easing of the wholesale inflation rate last year, the department said the slowdown was across the board.

"Energy prices advanced rapidly early in 1981 but then registered much smaller increases or moderate declines during the rest of the year," the department said. Energy prices soared 14.3 percent last year, under the 27.8 percent surge in 1980.

"Consumer food prices rose only 1.5 percent in 1981, following a 7.5 percent advance during the previous year," the department said.

The index for consumer goods other than food and energy also slowed last year, rising 6.9 percent rather than the 10.4 percent in 1980, the department said.

In December, the wholesale inflation rate went up a seasonally adjusted 0.3 percent, down from 0.5 percent in November and 0.6 percent in October. But it was ahead of the 0.1 percent of September and 0.2 percent of August, the government said.

If December's rate held for 12 straight months, the increase would be a seasonally adjusted 3.1 percent, department officials said.

Food prices in December picked up slightly, advancing 0.1 percent after falling in the three previous months, the report said.

Prices for fresh and dried vegetables shot up nearly 22 percent, reversing sharp declines registered in the three previous months, it said. Beef and veal prices were unchanged, but prices declined for pork, eggs, processed poultry and milled rice. Increases were recorded for refined sugar and soft drinks.

Energy prices climbed 0.7 percent last month, a little under the 0.9 percent gain of November, the report said.

Gasoline prices were down but home heating oil prices rose as did natural gas costs.

Prices for all other consumer goods were unchanged in December after an 0.8 percent pickup in the previous month, the department said.

Capital equipment prices rose 0.6 percent, compared with a 0.8 percent advance in November.

All the increases are adjusted for seasonal variations. In all, the unadjusted producer price index stood at 275.3 in December, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $27.53 last month.

MAJOR COLLISION—The intersection of Farm Road 1606 and State Highway 350 in Ira was the scene of a major collision around 2:40 p.m. Thursday. Kathryn Cesario Vineyard, driver of this 1980 Chrysler, and three children, passengers in her car, were transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Scurry County EMS and a local officer of the Texas Highway Patrol. Injuries to the four were not thought to be serious. Also involved in the accident was a 1978 Lincoln driven by William Joe Green of Midland. Both vehicles were traveling south on 350 and the collision apparently occurred as the Vineyard vehicle was attempting to make a left turn. (SDN Staff Photo)

Divers Recover Critical Instrument Recorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The critical voice and instrument recorders on board the Air Florida jet that crashed into the Potomac River are intact, a police spokesman said today. Investigators hope to learn from those recorders whether excessive ice accumulation kept the plane from gaining altitude.

"Instruments have detected that the equipment is intact," District of Columbia Police Inspector James Shugart told reporters at the site early today. He said three two-man diving teams were to return to the wreckage under the 14th Street Bridge to remove the recorders.

Speculation over whether the jet had been properly deiced before it crashed Wednesday grew when the pilot of another jet awaiting takeoff told investigators he had noticed ice on the Air Florida plane as it prepared to take off. Seventy-eight people died in the crash.

And Francis McAdam, chief investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, said on the NBC-TV "Today" show this morning that ice could have added weight to the plane and affected its performance. Other investigators, however, cautioned against speculating about the possible cause of the crash until information on the plane's voice and instrument recorders becomes known.

Shugart said the divers, working without lights in visibility of only 1½ feet, were "working by hand" and would likely stay in the water, although for only an hour at a time at most, until dark.

The divers deduced Thursday that the plane's fuselage is not intact, Shugart said. Today the divers, working in "a high concentration of debris," hoped to better mark where parts of the plane are.

Smuggling Fight Continues

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Attorney General William French Smith says the military and civilian law officers have teamed up to cooperate in the fight against drug smuggling, both by land and air.

Smith said Thursday "a vast new resource — the great professionalism and skill of the military — is now being used against narcotics traffickers bringing their cargoes of death and destruction to our shores." He said the new dimension is a result of an amendment signed into law recently by President Reagan.

Smith announced details of the military-civilian effort as he visited the El Paso Intelligence Center, which he described as the "contact point" for military and civilian enforcement agencies.

Alleged Victims Shown

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A Protestant delegation is taking a graphic photo album of alleged IRA guerrilla victims to the United States to try to shock Americans into ending their "romantic" support for the Roman Catholic terrorists.

The four-member delegation leaves today on a 14-city Operation U.S.A tour designed to counter the fund raising and propaganda of the Irish Republican Army in the United States.

State Wins On Prison Issue

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Texas has won a delay in some of the prison reform requirements imposed by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler — and Gov. Bill Clements says he had been optimistic all along that the state would be successful in its appeal.

On Thursday, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals stayed three of the prison reform provisions, while ordering implementation of some others. Clements told reporters in Dallas, "I'm not surprised," by the ruling.

Arabs Attempt Unity

ROME (AP) — Israel's annexation of the Golan Heights has spurred Arab leaders into another attempt to paper over their differences and form a united front.

"The Arabs realize that divisions among them undermine any united position," says a European Middle East specialist.

Initial results of the fledgling campaign for unity in a sharply divided Arab world include a push for U.N. Security Council sanctions to punish Israel for its annexation of the Syrian plateau it has occupied since the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

The United States is expected to veto a Jordanian sanctions resolution when it comes to a vote today, but observers say Syria will come away with a moral victory.

Teamsters, Truckers In Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union and the trucking industry reached tentative agreement Friday on a new 39-month national freight contract, spokesmen for both sides announced.

The accord was announced jointly in Kansas City, Mo., by Roy Lee Williams, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and Arthur H. Bunte Jr., head of Trucking Management Inc., chief bargaining arm for the unionized trucking industry.

Neither side would discuss terms of the agreement, which would replace the existing three-year accord that expires March 31, if approved by union bargaining councils and the 300,000 rank-and-file truckers and warehouse workers covered by the National Master Freight Agreement.

Rep. Grubbs Files For Reelection

State Representative Walter Grubbs of Merkel has officially filed for reelection to the Texas Legislation to represent the new 78th District which includes four of his five counties from the present 61st District.

He filed with the state Democratic Executive Committee in Austin Thursday. In filing to get his name on the ballot for the Democratic Primary in May, Grubbs said he is pleased with the opportunity to seek reelection in this new 12 county 78th District.

The new district includes Taylor, Nolan, Jones and Fisher Counties in Grubbs' present district in addition to Scurry County from the 63rd District, Lynn County from the 77th District and Garza, Kent, Stonewall, King, Knox and Cottle counties from the 101th District presently represented by Bill Heatly of Paducah.

Statistically, 56 per cent of the new 78th District are presently represented by Grubbs and 18 percent by Heatly and 26 percent would be new constituents for both Grubbs and Heatly, being the people in Scurry and Lynn counties.

Water Sought For New Development

Possibilites of water service to Roundtop Acres, a new residential development south of town, and mobile homes were prime topics last night at a work session of city council members and city zoning officials.

The council met with members of the planning and zoning commission and the zoning board of adjustments at city hall.

Edwin Parks, developer of Roundtop Acres, located a mile south of Western Texas College, said a water supply is being sought for the development and that he would be interested in making arrangements through the City of Snyder or the Ira-Dunn Water Authority for water service, or he would provide the system and contract for purchasing water from either source.

After discussion, it was indicated that the best possibilites would be for either Parks himself or the Ira-Dunn Water Board to seek a certificate from the Public Utilities Commission. City Attorney Ernie Armstrong said that regulations were changed with passage of the Public Utility Regulatory Act and that certificates are required now from the PUC.

The city groups also began a study of the city's zoning ordinance, dealing mostly with mobile homes at last night's session. They plan other sessions in the future to continue the discussion of mobile homes as well as subdivisions.

Prior to the joint work session last night, the planning and zoning commission gave its approval to a change from a commercial zone to multi-family for Lots 1 and 2 in Block 12 of the Graham and Nelson Subdivision. The change was requested by Harvey Stevens.

Jack Dupree, who has requested a approval of a replat of Block 7 in the Cody Addition, asked that his request be tabled, pending revisions to the zoning ordinance concerning mobile homes that might develop from the study sessions.

Group Discusses Lease On Building

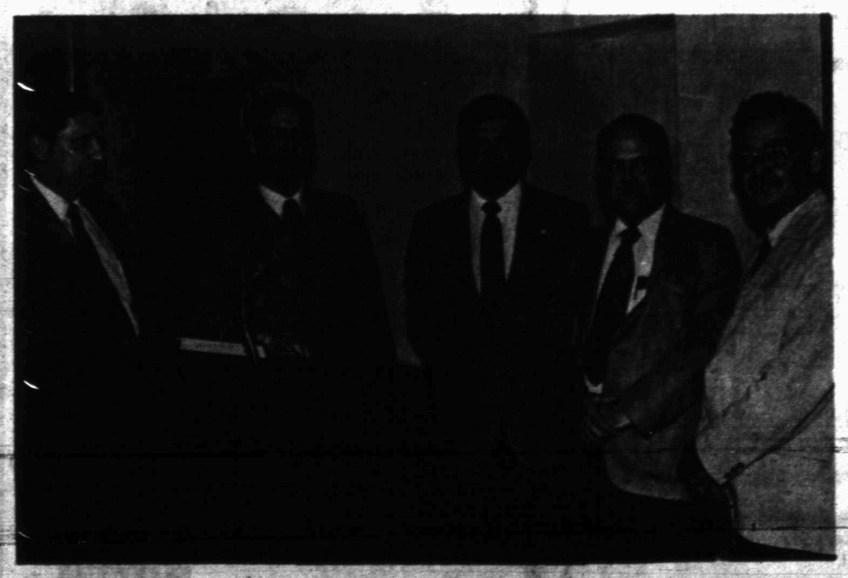

A brief report on the status of the property occupied by Northern Electric Co. was presented Thursday afternoon at a meeting of Scurry County Industrial Foundation directors.

Also sitting in on the session were representatives of financial institutions involved in financing the building on the property, the chamber of commerce, the city and the board of county development.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, and Ernie Armstrong, attorney, gave a brief report on the contract with Northern. The company announced last week that it was suspending operations at its automatic blanket plant here because of large inventories and general economic conditions. Armstrong said the firm had made it clear in a formal letter to the foundation that it was not abandoning the building, and its lease is paid up until July at which time it has the option to continue.

No action was taken, but it was agreed informally that the local interests will wait until Northern reaches a decision in July before beginning any movement to put a new tenant in the building. There is a chance that Northern will resume operations at a future date, according to its announcement last week.

Warner said Thursday's meeting was called merely to bring those involved in the lease up to date on the situation.

Ask Us

Q.—Why does the school not have more concern about working mothers? If other school districts can announce the night before what the school will do, why can't Snyder?

A.—We assume you are referring to last Monday when children were sent home during the noon hour. School officials had no idea that gas service would be suspended to schools until shortly before 8 a. m. Monday, said Jack Gorman, assistant superintendent-administration and personnel. By that time buses were already on their runs and some were even returning with pupils. So, they decided to keep them long enough for the noon meal, and by that time buildings were getting cold. It was announced that day that there would be no school the next day, and on Tuesday, it was announced that weather conditions would determine whether school would be held on Wednesday. Unfortunately, there was no way to determine Tuesday night what the situation would be on Wednesday morning.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

The year 1981 was a fairly good year for production but not much for revenue in the farming and ranching business. Nevertheless, people in that line of work seldom lose their sense of humor.

Speedy Nieman of the Hereford Brand reports this comment by a cattleman there:

"We missed a good deal on the pheasant hunters coming to Hereford. We should have let them on our pastures and charged half price for each cow they shot. That way, we wouldn't lose so much."

It reminded us of an East Texas farmer during the "great depression." Nobody was selling enough farm products to make any money, but fortunately, gardens flourished and it seemed that every farmer in the country had a lush field of blackeyed peas. Thus, there was food on the table, even if there was no money in the bank. But after a few weeks, a steady diet of one dish leads to monotony, and this farmer summed it up with a bit of poetry: "Peas on the middle, peas on the row; peas on the table everywhere you go."

In Slaying Of 11 Children...

Cliff Olson Pleads Guilty

Columbia (AP) — A defense lawyer says it was "insane" of police to pay $76,000 to Clifford Olson to lead them to the bodies of 10 of the 11 children he later pleaded guilty of killing.

"This is the first time I'm aware of in Canadian history where an accused, as opposed to an informant, has been paid money," lawyer Robert Shantz said Thursday.

The startling disclosure about the Royal Canadian Mounted Police came after Olson pleaded guilty to the 11 child murders that terrorized this province the past year and a half, and elicited comparisons with Atlanta, haunted by the slayings of 28 young blacks.

He was sentenced to prison for life and it is up to federal officials to decide whether he ever should get parole, for which he is eligible in 25 years. There is no death penalty in Canada.

In all, Olson got $90,000 in Canadian money — worth nearly $76,000 in U.S. currency — which was put into a trust for his wife, Joan, and their baby boy, British Columbia Attorney General Allan Williams said.

The deal was made, Williams said, to get evidence to support the murder charges and to console the parents whose missing children had not been found. He said the grieving parents wanted "Christian burials" for their sons and daughters.

Williams said Olson was promised $30,000 for giving the locations of four bodies then $10,000 each for the next six.

Shantz, who objected to the payments, and special prosecutor John Hall disclosed the deal. Williams then held a news conference outlining the payments and saying the Mounties' actions were authorized by the federal government.

Olson, his voice cracking, pleaded guilty to the first-degree murders in which he bludgeoned, stabbed or strangled the seven girls and three boys, ages 9 to 18, whose bodies were found in shallow graves in bogs and gravel pits.

The payments were made for the discovery of those 10 bodies. The body of the 11th victim has not been found, and Olson was not charged with the death. However, he pleaded guilty to that slaying as well Thursday when he entered his other guilty pleas.

Shantz said the payments were morally, if not legally, wrong.

Shantz said he [illegible] wanted Olson to keep his original innocent plea, but his client changed his mind Wednesday afternoon when, while in court, he noticed the anguish on the faces of victims' relatives.

Solicitor General Robert Kaplan said in Ottawa, the nation's capital, that the Mounties told him of the arrangement two days after it was made, though it department had no role in the payments.

New cataract operation?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had my eyes examined recently as I knew I needed my glasses changed. The doctor told me I have cataracts. I'm now concerned about having the cataracts removed. I've heard that a new method permits them to be removed at an early stage rather than waiting until they are ripe. Also there is one way called an implant which is fairly new.

Would you please tell me if it is possible to have them removed at an early stage and what the operation is called?

DEAR READER — Before you start worrying about which operation to have you need to know if you even need an operation. The decision on whether cataracts should be removed or not is based mostly on two points. How good is your vision? Are cataracts your only problem or do you have other defects that may affect your vision?

Many people have small cataracts that are not in the line of sight through the lens and really do not interfere with vision. These don't need to be removed. You will need to depend upon your eye doctor's evaluation of your eyes to get an answer that applies to your particular condition.

If you need surgery the choice of the type of operation also depends upon the characteristics of your own eyes.

You are asking me about the phacoemulsification technique. It is described briefly in The Health Letter number 13-6, Your Cataracts Are Coming, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The phacoemulsification technique uses ultra sound and a small incision. Yes, you can literally have the lens of the eye removed at any stage of a cataract if it is advisable to do so.

Yes, the cataract lens can be removed and a new lens implanted within the eye. This type of surgery is not for everyone. It is more often used in older people. And it has many advantages in selected cases. As new contact lenses are developed that can be left in for weeks, months and maybe even years the advantages, if any, of implants compared to contact lenses may not be very important.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column about the little girl who developed rheumatoid arthritis. My grandson, also 12 years old, was diagnosed as having rheumatoid arthritis. However, when the treatment did not help he was referred to another doctor. He actually had rheumatic fever. His treatment was changed and he is doing fine now after about a year. I wondered if the little girl could also have the wrong diagnosis.

DEAR READER — Rheumatic fever is sometimes hard to differentiate from rheumatoid arthritis. Rheumatic fever can, and in some regions often does, cause red hot swollen joints, an inflammatory reaction. It is caused by a complication of streptococcal infections (strep throat, for example).

The cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not known, although there are encouraging leads in some cases, related to infections, too. With laboratory tests, such as those that measure the immune reaction to streptococcal infections, it is usually possible to separate the two conditions. And, of course, most cases of rheumatic fever can be prevented if streptococcal infections are diagnosed and treated soon enough.

In some cities in the United States criminals are made to pay their victims.

The idea of letting non-violent criminals live in restitution centers at night and work by day began about four years ago. One of the first cities to adopt the program was Pascagoula, Mississippi. Let's see how it works there:

Historically, convicted criminals are expected to "pay a debt to society." Instead, they become a further burden on society, locked up and fed and clothed at a continuing cost to taxpayers averaging $17,000 a year; that 's more than it costs to send a student through Harvard.

Nuts to that! In Pascagoula, Mississippi, instead of paying a "debt to society," they pay their own upkeep and repay their victims.

Under this restitution program, a court may sentence a non-violent criminal to confinement at night and work by day. The work may be almost anything — from construction to food service to service station.

So successful was the program in Pascagoula that it quickly spread to other Mississippi cities; Hattiesburg, Brandon and Greenwood.

After the first 52 months of "Operation Restitution" inmates have earned $1,677,000.

They have repaid to victims of their crimes $215,000.

They have paid $414,000 to the state for their own room and board.

They have paid $145,000 in fines and court costs.

They have paid $140,000 toward the upkeep of their own families.

And $315,000 has been placed in savings accounts for the men to collect when they are discharged.

And they are allowed to keep and spend in the local economy $20 a week.

Other Mississippi communities where jails are full are contemplating this alternative; Tupelo and Jackson.

Nationally, a curtailment of CETA funds from the federal government should invite a proliferation of the program.

Mickey Chambers of the Mississippi Department of Corrections says, "In property crimes this program lets the victim feel that there is some real justice and it gives the offender a chance, if he wants to, to get himself right."

Inmates who do not have a high school education have a further opportunity to attend an adult learning center and work toward the equivalent of a high school diploma.

And most significantly, recidivism nationally averages 74 percent — that is, 74 percent of released prisoners then commit other crimes.

But, among those released from restitution centers so far, the return rate is only 3 percent.

Your Birthday

January 16, 1982

This coming year you might get off to a rather slow start, but don't let this discourage you. Once you get on track, your progress will be consistent and begin to speed up before your next birthday.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Steer clear of situations today where you know, going in, the odds tend to favor your opposition. Your time will come later. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your new Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes your hunches are dead on the mark, but today your intuition could play tricks on you, so be careful. Rely on your logic, not your inner voice.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Though a friend may not do things to your liking today, don't try to make that person over in your own image. Accept his or her faults, along with the virtues.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Teaming up with the wrong type of associates today could seriously impede your progress toward an important goal. Cohorts' aims must harmonize with yours.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Beware of tendencies today to make hard work out of something which should be rather easy. A sour or negative attitude is your worst enemy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Complications could result today if you make unreasonable demands. Try not to dictate what others must do. Also, avoid being too possessive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is not a good day to try to resolve an issue which could trigger an argument between you and your mate. Neither is likely to appreciate the other's views.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're very analytical and observant today. It will be easy to spot the faults in co-workers. However, it's best you don't bring these up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your normal caution and prudence could desert you today. You may be tempted to take unwise risks against your better judgment. Think twice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) For one who is a master of diplomacy, you could do things today that are completely out of character and needlessly alienate allies.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Challenges tend to bring out your better qualities, but today the opposite might be true. You could bend under pressure because of a defeatist attitude.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to avoid activities today where you have to spend a lot of money in order to have a good time. Chances are you won't receive value for your dollars.

Meeting Set In San Angelo

Mardoqueo Maestas, spokesman for the group here, said over 1,500 persons are expected for the two-day session of Bible-related instruction and fellowship. "The programs are designed to help us face the future successfully," he said, "and to live with the day-to-day pressures affecting modern society."

Principal address will be delivered by Angelo C. Manera Jr., district overseer working out of the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, N. Y. His subject will be "Deliverance in a Time of Anguish."

Mother Pays Through Nose For Son's 'Perfection'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a widow with a 36-year-old son, and he's my problem. All his life he's been a perfectionist. Picky, picky, picky!

He buys a house he thinks is perfect, then he tears it up and remodels it. He remodeled the same house twice. Nothing ever suits him. His jeans have to fit perfect. He went to the tailor's twice because he wasn't satisfied the first time.

His nose went twice, too. He had his father's nose. (I fell madly in love with that man. All the girls went crazy for him, even if he did have a big nose.) My son thought he would never get a girl because of his nose, so he had it done over by a plastic surgeon. It didn't suit him, so he went back and had it done again.

He finally got a girl, but she didn't marry him for his nose — she married him for his money, and now they're divorced. (I had to pay for the divorce, too.)

Do you think he will ever support himself?

I love my son, Abby, but I'm sick of hearing, "What's wrong with me, Ma?" Please tell me, who's nuts? Him or me?

DEAR HAD IT: Neither one of you is nuts, lady. You're a soft touch for a son who's hard to please and knows how to get what he wants. He may never support himself. And why should he as long as he has you?

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Nameless in Maine" could have been written by me a few years ago. My husband never took an interest in our sons when they were little. Like "Nameless," I knew he loved us and was a good man, but knowing how hard he worked to support us, I counted my blessings and kept quiet.

Your advice to "Nameless" was terrific. I hope she tells her husband that she needs his help in raising their children, and they both should get counseling from professionals.

Mail-Order Business Booming...

Buyers Are Happy, But Be Forewarned

NEW YORK (NEA)— It starts small: a pound of Gorgonzola, a non-stick egg poacher, and the next thing you know, you're sending away for a spiral staircase, a harpsichord, a weeping fig tree.

People do, you know. All those things are in "The Furnish Your Home by Mail Catalogue," by Sarah Gallick (NAL, $9.95), who says: "Once hooked, people who buy by mail, buy a lot by mail. This year, the industry expects to do more than $7 billion worth of business."

Yet for all that money and merchandise, there's apparently little dissatisfaction on the part of the consumer. Says Ms. Gallick: "Most companies bend over backward to be cooperative because they depend on magazine advertising to reach consumers, and magazines won't carry advertising from companies that cause them headaches. They don't need it."

Neither, of course, do you, so keep the following thoughts in mind when ordering by mail:

"The size of an item is often the biggest source of complaint from consumers, so read descriptions carefully and then consult a ruler if necessary. A 3-inch tin box will not hold a full-size fruitcake," she says.

"And when you're ordering clothing, if a size chart isn't included, or if the catalog doesn't indicate what the cuffs look like or whether there's a pleat in the back, call the company, even if there's no 800 number and you have to pay for the call.

"It's better to find out beforehand if they have what you want and whether, in fact, the item is still in stock. Sometimes when the merchandise is imported, the factory doesn't fulfill the commitment, or the company gets more orders than it can handle."

In fact, says Beverly Charles, an attorney and program adivser for the Federal Trade Commission's mail-order rule enforcement, "The primary number of complaints we get seem to be lodged against mail order houses experiencing rapid growth whose ad campaigns are more successful than they ever imagined.

"But the vast majority of larger mail-order companies," she says, "are in substantial compliance with our rules."

Those FTC rules concern time and money. Says Ms. Charles: "First of all, the seller must ship the merchandise when he says he will, six to eight weeks, etc. If he doesn't specify a time, then the FTC assumes he will ship within 30 days.

"Therefore, if no delivery time is given, the 30 days go into effect from the time the company receives a properly completed order form and a check or money order. With respect to credit-card purchases, the 30 days begin the day the seller charges your account, which can be any time."

Suppose, now, you order a crate of olive oil from Tuscany, and Italy's shippers go on strike, and the mail order company can't meet its delivery date. In that case, says Ms.Charles, "the seller must send the consumer a notice of delay and provide a prepaid way of accepting that delay or canceling the order and getting a refund. If a refund is requested, the seller must mail it within seven business days; with a credit card purchase, he has one billing cycle to adjust the bill.

"However," she continues, "if the consumer doesn't inform the seller that he wants to cancel the order and the company later ships the merchandise, the consumer must accept it."

On the other hand, if you receive no notice of delay and no merchandise on time, she says, "You are entitled to a prompt refund whether or not that's specified in the catalog."

None of this may happen — but in the event things don't go smoothly, make sure you're armed for battle. Keep records — of when you placed the order, a copy of your first irate letter (never send the company your canceled check to prove it was cashed; send a photocopy, front and back), etc.

And if your efforts come to naught, says Ms. Charles, "Write to the postal authorities or the the Office of the Secretary, FTC, Washington, D.C. 20580. We generally cannot sue if there's just one complaint, but if there's a pattern of abuse, we're empowered to charge up to $10,000 per violation and to enjoin the company from violating the rule in future. And the postal authorities can go after the company for criminal mail fraud."

So much for delivery of your purchase. As far as satisfaction goes, you're on your own, she says. "There is no federal rule about returns, so if you're dealing with a company for the first time and the item is expensive, find out what the company's return policy is if it's not stated in the catalog or on the shipping label. Soemtimes, the label says 'do not accept package if damaged'; if you open that package, from the company's perspective, you have breached the contract and you may not be able to get a refund."

And keep one more thing in mind before ordering the little machine that slices, dices, grates, peels, and answers the phone, for $22.95. Says Ms.Charles: "If the ad looks too good to be true, it probably is. Don't expect something for nothing. And if the stores in your neighborhood carry the same item for $20 more than the mail-order catalog, it's probably worth $20 more.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

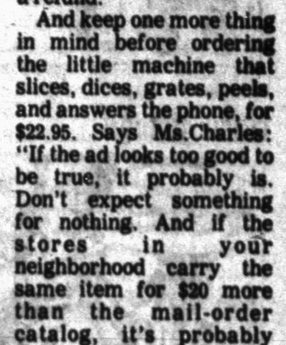

MAIL ORDER—Buying may start small — a pound of Gorgonzola here, a non-stick egg poacher there — but before you know it you've ordered a spiral staircase and a weeping fig tree. And generally there's little dissatisfaction on the part of the consumer.

SMU's Ron Meyer Reportedly Next Coach For New England

DALLAS (AP) - Ron Meyer, a young and ambitious coach who said he would only leave Southern Methodist University for a chance to direct a National Football League team, was to tell his squad today he is going to the New England Patriots, a source close to the school's athletic department said.

Meyer, 41, scheduled a team meeting at noon to announce he will replace fired Patriots Coach Ron Erhardt, the source said.

"Yes, I have been offered the job with the New England Patriots," Meyer told The Dallas Morning News on Thursday. "The decision is up to me. I'll make a decision within 24 hours."

SMU Athletic Director Bob Hitch, who said he had not spoken with Meyer, said, "any news regarding this situation will be coming from New England."

Meyer met with Patriots officials in New York Thursday, the source said.

"As of now, we do not have a press conference scheduled...," Tom Hoffman, director of media relations for the Patriots. "We can neither confirm or deny anything to do with the coaching situation ... until we have the new coach signed and at that time we will make the formal announcement."

"We have said all along that we would like to name a new coach hopefully prior to the Super Bowl."

The Patriots previously were turned down by Southern California Coach John Robinson and Penn State Coach Joe Paterno as replacements for Erhardt, who led the team to the worst record in the NFL, 2-14, in the just concluded season.

Members of the SMU coaching staff told the Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel Star that Meyer met in New York with Patriots President Billy Sullivan, his son Chuck, the Pats' executive vice president, and General Manager Bucko Kilroy. Meyer was supposed to return to Texas immediately after the interview but made such an impression in the session that he was given the job, the newspaper said.

Meyer checked into a New York hotel under an assumed name and met wth Kilroy for several hours Thursday, hammering out details of a four-year contract for an estimated $700,000, the Sentinel Star said.

Only two months ago Meyer said, "I would not leave SMU for another college ... but there is no secret about my ambition to coach in the National Football League."

In just six years, Meyer brought the Mustangs from a dismal 3-8 record in 1976 to the Southwest Conference championship with a 10-1 mark in 1981 and to their highest ranking in The Associated Press poll in 30 years.

But the 5th-ranked Mustangs could not play in the Cotton Bowl because they were on probation.

Meyer was 62-39-1 in nine seasons as a head coach, first at Nevada-Las Vegas and then at SMU. He coached UNLV into the 1974 Division II playoffs.

Meyer was a scout for the Dallas Cowboys and Gil Brandt, the personnel director who hired him, said, "I've been a Ron Meyer fan since I hired him. ... He is an extremely bright coach and will do a very good job ... he is highly organized."

The source close to the SMU athletic department said Meyer was expected to take a number of his assistants with him to New England.

Speculation for his replacement has already centered around Cowboy's innovative assistant coach John Mackovic, who has spent a year under Tom Landry.

The Sentinel Star also said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne would be considered for the SMU job.

Schembechler To Decide On A&M Job

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M officials say a decision is imminent by Michigan football Coach Bo Schembechler on whether he will accept a 10-year, $2.25-million offer to become the new A&M athletic director.

The Bryan-College Station Eagle Thursday quoted A&M Board of Regents Chairman H.R. "Bum" Bright as saying that Schembechler had been offered the job to replace Marvin Tate, who resigned in September.

"That's the job that's offered right now and he is considering it," said Bright. "I can only say that Texas A&M would be pleased and honored to have a man the caliber of Bo Schembechler come to A&M."

Schembechler could not be reached for comment Thursday night and reportedly was huddled with Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham and University President Harold T. Shapiro.

Canham told the Dallas Times Herald there would be a statement by Schembechler today.

"But we are going to do what we can to keep him," he said in a separate interview with the Detroit News.

The Houston Post said current Head Coach Tom Wilson, whose contract was extended last month for another season, will be fired and his contract paid off. Wilson was on a recruiting trip and could not be reached for comment.

But interim A&M Athletic Director Wally Groff denied Schembechler had been offered the coaching job.

"We've already got a coach, and he's contracted for one more year," Groff said. "The only opening we have right now is for the A-D position."

The Post said sources told the newspaper Schembechler tentatively agreed to a contract after the Bluebonnet Bowl, but has delayed making a final decision at least twice.

Schembechler, 52, the dean of Big 10 coaches, has compiled a 123-24-3 record in 13 seasons at Michigan. He was named college Coach of the Year in 1969 and Big Ten Coach of the Year in 1972 and 1980.

Tiger Teams Challenge Loboes Here Tonight

Snyder's Tigers make their final home stand of the first round here tonight before heading to Andrews for a possible share of the District 2-AAAA title.

Snyder is second in 2-AAAA play with a 5-1 record, while Andrews is 6-0. The two meet Tuesday in Andrews in what is expected to determine the outcome of the first round.

Monahans is 2-4 in loop competition and 7-9 for the season. The Loboes, though capable of upsetting Snyder, are not expected to spoil the Tigers' chances against Andrews next week.

Monahans comes off of an 81-66 loss to the No. 4 ranked Andrews team, while Snyder garnered its seventh straight season victory with a 61-44 win over Lake View earlier this week. Snyder is 17-4 for the season.

Elsewhere tonight, Snyder's girls, 7-10 and 2-7, travel to Monahans to meet the Loboettes.

Both varsity games will be at 8 and will be preceded by junior varsity tilts at 6:15.

Western Pair Falls To Amarillo

AMARILLO – It's soul-searching time for Western Texas College's Dusters, who have lost three of their past five ballgames now, including last night's 78-74 squeaker to Amarillo College here.

The situation is similar for Coach Larry Dunaway's Westerners, who also lost 80-73 in overtime here. Meanwhile, both teams will stay in the panhandle through the weekend, preparing for Monday's games with nearby Frank Phillips in Borger.

WESTERNERS

"The kids played a heck of a ballgame," said Dunaway, who was pleased, despite the loss. "When you play the No. 7 team into overtime on their own gym and they shoot a bunch of freethrows and you don't...you have to be happy with the effort," said the coach, whose team overcame a 13-point deficit to force a 65-65 tie at the end of regulation.

Western went cold midway through the first half and fell behind by 13 points, but came out in the second stanza and used a half-court trap to catch the Badgers. Western went ahead 65-64 with about 1:30 to play and had the ball. Robbie Sumlin took a shot and it went down to give WTC a three-point lead, but officials called him for pushing off on the play and nullified the basket. Amarillo then made a freethrow to send the game into OT.

Amarillo got the top in the extra period and turned in a three-point play. Western stayed close but was forced to foul with about a minute left and Amarillo made its shots to put the game out of reach.

Western, led by Daryl Ward's 18 points, out-shot the Badgers 33 field goals to 30, but Amarillo got 20 points from the charity stripe and WTC managed seven.

"I was proud of the effort the kids put out," said Dunaway. "If we could have gotten a break, or gotten several freethrows, we would have won the game."

Darren Lee had 15 points for Western and Derrick Grow notched 14. Dickerson had 28 for the Badgers, now 17-0, and Tony Chennault added 23.

Western is 10-9 for the season and 2-4 in WJCAC play.

DUSTERS

"It was a good ballgame. If I hadn't been a coach I would have enjoyed it," said Cushing.

But Cushing is a coach, and he knows because of the current situation, the future of his team could go either way.

"It's a situation where we can go backwards or forwards from here. I really think we could be 18-0 right now. We're more talented than the teams we've played...But I think it's time for a gut-check to see where we are and what we're trying to do."

Western trailed by 14 points on three occassions and by 11 on another, but rallied each time. With about two and a half minutes left in the game the Dusters broke on top 69-68 but Amarillo went back in front, 70-69.

"We had a chance to convert and missed a layup on the fastbreak," said Cushing, "and Amarillo rebounded and went down the court and scored. Then we had another chance and missed and Amarillo scored again."

Shooting was WTC's primary problem. The Dusters managed 27 of 73 field goals for 37 percent and hit only 20 of 31 charity shots.

"Individually we had some people who had a real good game and a few people who didn't play worth a flip," noted the coach.

Offensively it wasn't a good night for WTC's guards, especially for sophomores Cindy Maddox and Cindy Goltl, who had been averaging about 10 points apiece. Their combined efforts produced 8 points, while backup Dale Pieper scored only two.

But that wasn't the only problem. Despite a fair shooting night by the Dusters' inside people, "we missed a lot of layups," noted the coach. "We would miss and rebound and lay it up again and miss again," he said.

Western actually beat the hosts on the boards 50-35, but Amarillo shot almost 50 percent (31 of 66) and took advantage of WTC's missed shots and free throws.

"We out-hustled Amarillo all over the floor. We just couldn't get anthing to fall," he added.

Western was led by 20 points from Vickie Teal, 18 from Dorcas Perkins, 14 from Valerie Wells and 11 from Norma Frazier. Amarillo got five girls in double figures; Marie Linggi and Ramona Ogas with 18 each, Mitzi Marquart with 16, Kellye Richardson with 14 and Nancy Kocurek with 10.

The victory leaves Amarillo at 4-0 and leading the conference. The Lady Badgers are 11-5 for the season.

The two teams meet again Feb. 15 in Snyder.

Gophers Upset Iowa; Hurricane Wins Again

by The Associated Press

A change in strategy might lead the way to the change in the rankings that the Minnesota Gophers feel is warranted.

Minnesota, 10-2, and rated 11th, beat No. 5 Iowa 61-56 Thursday night in a battle of Big Ten powers. The Hawkeyes, also 10-2, led by two points at halftime, but Minnesota went to a man-to-man defense rather than a zone and that turned the game around.

Randy Breuer, the Gophers' 7-foot-3 center who led the way with 22 points, agreed with his coach after Minnesota's first home victory over Iowa in four years.

"The zone wasn't doing it for us," said Breuer. "We had to go to the man-to-man and it picked up the tempo and they couldn't keep up."

Both teams now stand 2-1 in the Big Ten.

In other contests involving ranked teams, it was No. 3 Virginia over Wagner 99-67, No. 16 Wichita State beating Creighton 69-56, and 18th-ranked Tulsa topping Drake 71-54.

A 21-2 burst in the first half propelled Virginia past outmanned Wagner. Craig Robinson, playing without one of his contact lenses, had a career-high 24 points for the Cavaliers and All-American center Ralph Sampson chipped in with 12.

Wichita State, playing its first game since being placed on a three-year NCAA probation, was tied 30-30 with Creighton at the half. But guards Tony Martin and Aubrey Sherrod paced the Shockers in a 16-5 burst in the first six minutes of the second half.

Freshman Steve Harris came off the bench to hit six of eight field goal tries and a pair of free throws, his 14 points keying the Tulsa triumph, its 25th straight at home.

Kite Pushing Rookie's Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - The obscure Japanese rookie had the lead but Arnie's biggest money-winner last year, Tom Kite, was in a threatening position after two rounds of the five-day Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

And Kite, who last season had one of the most consistent records in the game, had but one thought in mind - winning more often.

"That's my goal, one of my goals, this year. Win and win often."

A 6-under-par 66 Thursday at tough Eldorado gave Kite a 134 total, 10 under par, and lifted him to within two strokes of the surprise leader, long-hitting Jet Ozaki.

Ozaki, younger brother of former Japanese star Jumbo Ozaki, used his vast distance off the tee to birdie all of the par-5 holes on the way to a 68 at Bermuda Dunes. That gave him sole control of the 36-hole lead at 132.

Journeyman Rex Caldwell, who shared the first-round lead with Ozaki, shot a 69, also at Bermuda Dunes, and was one stroke back at 133.

Tied with Kite at 134 were former PGA champ Lanny Wadkins, Skeeter Heath and Cal Peete. Peete had a 65 at La Quinta, Wadkins 69 at Eldorado and Heath 67 at Indian Wells.

Swann Picked Man Of Year

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - Lynn Swann, the Pittsburgh Steelers' big-play receiver deeply involved in his city's civic and charitable projects, has been named the 1981 NFL Man of the Year.

The Pro Football Hall of Fame, which administers the annual award for sponsor Miller High Life Beer, announced that Swann had been selected over four other finalists - quarterback Archie Manning of the New Orleans Saints, wide receiver Jerry Butler of the Buffalo Bills, running back William Andrews of the Atlanta Falcons and quarterback Ron Jaworski of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Photographs By Sewell Shown

The Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College has named Morris Sewell as Scurry County Photographer of the Month and will feature an exhibit of his photographs from Sunday through the coming month.

Sewell owns and operates Sewell Cash Foods at 112 25th St. He became interested in photography about 15 years ago through a friend, Ben Jernigan, when he lived in Big Spring. Jernigan was a professional photographer and helped Sewell learn the basics of photography and darkroom techniques.

Sewell makes most of his photographs with a Canon AT-1 and sometimes borrows a Canon AE-1 from his son, Raymond Sewell, who lives in Abilene. They also swap camera accessories, which gives them greater versatility.

The Sewells' daughter, Sandy, shares their interest in photography. Mrs. Sewell, who is employed in the Western [illegible] office, is not a photographer but enjoys displaying the finished works in their home.

Unlike many photographers, Sewell enjoys mounting pictures in albums and has them handy without having to dig through boxes of miscellaneous pictures.

His favorite subjects include children, older people, and animals in outdoor settings. Other hobbies include hunting and fishing, which afford him opportunities for nature studies with the camera.

The selection of the Amateur Photographer of the Month was begun by the museum last year, and persons interested in being considered are invited to contact the museum office.

IN EXHIBIT—A mallard duck swimming quietly in a tranquil pond provided the subject matter for one of Morris Sewell's favorite photographs. He will display it and other photos in the Scurry County Museum through the coming month in the museum's Amateur Photographer of the Month program.

Criticism Aimed At Society

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute is under fire for spending $159,000 to publish a magazine that a long-time critic charges was "entirely devoted to...self-glorification and self-promotion."

Factions Fight Over Ski Area

MESA, Colo. (AP) — The Grand Mesa, at 10,500 feet the world's largest flat-top mountain, is a winter sports paradise in the rarified air of western Colorado.

On a clear day, with the snow sparkling under a bright sun and the air so sharp the world seems new again, a cross-country skier can cover miles effortlessly and a snowmobiler can glide like an airplane.

"It could not be better designed for winter sports," says Dale Bittle, a U.S. Forest Service worker.

Cross-country skiers and snowmobiles have crossed paths — sometimes violently — in the rolling hills and high timber of the mesa. And like the cattlemen and sheepherders of 80 years ago, these 20th century combatants are being forced — albeit reluctantly — to learn to live with each other.

Across northwestern Colorado in the 1890s, sheep ranchers sought to establish a place for themselves, contending there was enough land for everyone. The cattlemen tried to force them out, saying sheep ruined the range by destroying the grass.

It took time and Forest Service action to separate the warring groups and bring peace to the range early this century, according to a local historian, Dave Fishell of Grand Junction.

Ironically, the Forest Service today is using the same solution to solve the same argument — who uses the public lands. It hasn't been easy.

"There's enough room for everyone" on the Grand Mesa, said Gary Hunt, co-owner of Grand Junction's largest snowmobile dealership.

"But you hear complaints about them tearing up ski tracks," said Eric Oakley, a cross-country skier and owner of a ski shop.

Two years ago, fistfights broke out between snowmobilers and cross-country skiers on the Grand Mesa, which at 547 square miles is half the size of Rhode Island. There were rumors among snowmobilers — never proved — that skiers were stringing piano wire between trees.

The skiers, meanwhile, denounced their snowmobiling foes as "drunk, obnoxious and rude," and complained that noise and exhaust from their machines had destroyed skiing on the mesa.

"We had some incidents," Bittle said. "We had a gun pulled once, and there was a fellow who ended up with a concussion."

The conflict was inevitable, some state officials say, especially with the growing popularity of both activities. People who cross-country ski do so because of "the quiet, pristine environment, while snowmobiles can destroy tracks and they're noisy," says Bill Haggerty of the state Division of Wildlife.

Snowmobilers point out the Grand Mesa is public land. They also say that skiers who want truly isolated trips can use the Western Slope's wilderness areas, where machines of all types are banned.

Eighty years ago, the Forest Service defused the range war by creating the Uncompahgre National Forest and doling out grazing permits that served to keep the sheep away from the cattle.

Today, the Forest Service, in concert with the Colorado Parks and Recreation Department, has designated certain areas and trails for the use of each separate group.

Signs on 15-foot poles mark the different areas. Maps, showing separate trails for snowmobilers and skiers have been printed and will be available next week at area gas stations, convenience stores, bars, and Forest Service stations.

The move has gone a long way toward defusing the issue.

"I got together the various ski clubs and snomobilers' groups," said Bittle, who has taken charge of marking trails to separate the sportsmen. "We cussed and discussed and finally worked out courtesy closures to satisfy as many people as we could."

It was a move popular with sportsmen in both groups.

"There are getting to be so many snowmobilers and skiers alike that we need designated areas," Oakley said. "This conflict can be solved very simply. I believe there is enough land for everyone, as long as it can be properly designated."

Calvert Talks To Educators

Dr. Stanton Calvert, Director of Community College Programs and Director of Institutional Certification for the Coordinating Board of the Texas College And University Systems, was the featured speaker Thursday at a luncheon for area school officals hosted by Western Texas College.

School officals from Snyder, Rotan, Stamford, and Ira were among those in attendence.

Dr. Calvert spoke to the group about the state of programs in the state's community colleges and challenges facing the colleges for the next 10 years.

Calvert cited enrollment figures showing an increase of 300 percent in community college enrollment over the last 10 years as evidence of the basic health of the programs.

He called the necessity for upgrading the academic programs and reputations of the two-year schools, while maintaining their current reputation as outstanding providers of education for non-traditional students, the most important challenge of the 80's.

According to Calvert, the education of non-traditional students, especially the older-than-average, will become increasingly important to the community colleges.

He cited a recent study showing that over 25 percent of community college students go on to study in the state universities. In light of the constantly increasing cost of higher education, which leads many students to the community colleges, the upgrading of the traditional arts and sciences programs should be a high priority for the next decade.

This upgrading, he says, is necessary to maintain the credibility of the schools in the face of widespread public and professional criticism.

On more general matters, he said the future of the community colleges looks bright.

Pleads Guilty

Ricky Dewayne Cox of Snyder entered a guilty plea to charges of burglary of a habitation in the 132nd District Court Thursday.

Cox was charged with the Jan. 4 burglary of the D. W. Kitchens residence near Union. Taken in the robbery were nearly $300 in quarters and half-dollars.

District Judge Wayland Holt fined Cox $500 and ordered him to pay restitution. He was also sentenced to five years probation for the offense.

Mishaps Reported

Snyder police officers investigated three minor traffic mishaps Thursday morning.

The first accident of the day occurred in the 3700 block of Houston Avenue around 9:46 a.m. Involved in the mishap were a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Dwight Levon Webb of 4103 Kerrville and a 1978 Dodge operated by Margaret Colyer Cochran of 4017 Irving.

Police received reports of the second accident around 10 a.m. A 1976 GMC driven by Jeffery Lee Concarik of 1806 Ave. T and a 1980 Chrysler driven by Stephen William Goodwin of Post were involved in a collision in the 1700 block of College Avenue.

The last accident of the morning occurred around 10:54 a.m. in the 900 block of U.S. 84. Involved in this accident were a 1979 Buick driven by Sandra Nichols Cargile and a 1973 Buick driven by David Lynn Carter of 1914 Coleman Avenue.

No injuries and only minor damages were reported in all of these mishaps.

In other action, police arrested three men on charges of public intoxication and one on charges of DWI.

Report Cards Are Going Out

Report cards for the fall semester were being distributed today to pupils in the junior and senior high schools, principals reported.

OBITUARIES

Brown Rites

Funeral service has been set for 1 p. m. Saturday in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for James A. Brown, 86, who died Monday in Oakland, Calif.

A former resident of this area, he had lived in California for a number of years and was a Buick mechanic until his retirement in 1964.

The Rev. Miller F. Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, will officiate at the funeral service, and burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale.

He was married in 1928 in Sacramento, Calif., to Georgia Miller. She survives.

Other survivors inlcude two sisters-in-law, Opal Spikes of Snyder and Sally Rogers of Colorado City.

Fire Damages Snyder House

Units of the Snyder Fire Department were called to the scene of a house fire about 17 miles northeast of the city around 2:50 a.m. Friday.

Only minor damages were reported to the house which is owned by P. C. Lacisio and occupied by Chuck Kimmel.

Grubbs

Legislature, Grubbs said he feels he has the background and experience to represent this West Texas district.

He added, "I have been exposed to the legislative processes for about 26 years and I found it very gratifying trying to serve the fine people in this big West Texas area."

Grubbs said he would be making a formal announcement in the near future after the federal courts have made their final decision on the Texas House redistricting plan which is expected by mid February.

He explained, "Since the filing deadline is Feb. 1, I felt I should go ahead and make my intentions known by filing officially at this time."

He concluded, "In a more formal public announcement in the near future, I plan to express my conservative Democratic philosophy in detail and will be visiting extensively in all 12 counties in the near future."
