Candidates face voters at forum

Six hopefuls outline reasons why they should be elected

By Don Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Six candidates for county offices faced the public Thursday night and tried to explain why they are the best persons for the jobs.

It was the first time for most of the candidates to face the voters, with only one incumbent - County Commissioner Johnny Latham - seeking election.

Because only two of the major county offices are contested in the Nov. 3 election, the forum, sponsored by the Hereford Educators Association and the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, took less than an hour to conduct.

The candidates present for the forum included Latham and Jerry O'Connor, Precinct 4; Sammy Gonzales Sr. and Steve Hoffman, Precinct 2; and Darla Hale and Jean Schumacher, 222nd District Court clerk.

COUNTY COMMISSION

In their opening statements, the commissioner candidates stressed their business experience.

Latham said he's attempted to bring the experience of running an agriculture business and a small business to bear in county government.

O'Connor said he jumped into the race for county commissioner because he got tired of "gripping" and decided to try to do something about county government, which he said is relying too much on tax increases for its operations.

Gonzales said he's willing to work as hard as necessary to do the job and improve county operation.

Hoffman, a Deaf Smith County native who returned to the area from Dallas to raise his family, said farming is a business with "low profitability" and he developed good business sense - necessary in stewardship of taxpayers' money.

Latham cited his experience as a county commissioner, as well as his operation of an agricultural business and small business, plus his continuing education courses, as qualifications for another term.

Starr, long-known contacts now at issue

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Kenneth Starr's conversations with Paula Jones' lawyers in 1994 could wind up on a growing list of Democratic complaints against the prosecutor in the impeachment inquiry of President Clinton.

The discussions with Jones lawyer Gilbert Davis show Starr "never should have been appointed" to investigate the Monica Lewinsky scandal, says Rep. Barney Frank, a member of the House Judiciary Committee that is considering Starr's assertions that Clinton committed impeachable offenses.

Frank, D-Mass., said the Starr conversations were "relevant" to the impeachment inquiry because they show "he's deeply involved" in the Jones case long before he got permission from Attorney General Janet Reno to expand his Whitewater investigation to include allegations of presidential sex and cover-up.

Davis said he called Starr, then a private lawyer, as many as a half-dozen times to seek his guidance on the constitutional question of whether a sitting president was immune from lawsuits. Starr's view was that the president was not.

Discussions between Starr and the Jones team first were revealed by news organizations in 1994 and were brought up by the news media again in January. National Public Radio focused new attention on the contacts Wednesday, prompting Starr's office to issue a statement in response. Now the Justice Department is reviewing the conversations too.

"This office did not mislead the Department of Justice regarding relevant facts relating to its jurisdiction, or any expansion," Starr's office said.

At issue is whether Starr should have reported his talks with Davis to Reno in January, when the independent counsel got permission to look into Ms. Lewinsky, who was under subpoena in Mrs. Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit against Clinton.

Frank said Starr "may have wrecked the institution of the independent counsel beyond repair." White House spokesman Jim Kennedy said the conversations raise "serious questions."

Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., urged the chairmen of the Senate Governmental Affairs and Judiciary committees to summon Starr before their panels.

The prosecutor "failed to disclose to the attorney general his relationship with Mr. Davis and the assistance he had given Mr. Davis in the preparation of the Jones suit," Durbin wrote both committees.

Rep. Jerrold Nadler, D-N.Y., said the impeachment inquiry, the Justice Department review and congressional oversight hearings all were proper avenues for delving into Starr's conduct.

"He wired Linda Tripp before he had jurisdiction, he bullied Monica Lewinsky, he may have set up perjury traps for the president," said Nadler, a member of the Judiciary Committee.

"Starr deserves an investigation of his own, maybe in the context of oversight hearings next year" in the reauthorization of the independent counsel law, said Nadler.

Mrs. Jones filed her now-dismissed lawsuit on May 6, 1994, alleging Clinton sexually harassed her in a Little Rock, Ark., hotel room three years earlier when he was governor and she was a state employee. He denied the allegations.

The Justice Department is reviewing the Starr conversations and contacts by Starr law partner Richard Porter with New York book agent Lucianne Goldberg, a friend of Mrs. Tripp's who helped pave the way for Mrs. Tripp's cooperation with Starr's probe.

Other matters are being reviewed, including the taping by Starr's investigators of a Jan. 13 conversation between Mrs. Tripp and Ms. Lewinsky. Starr got authorization from Reno on Jan. 16 to delve into the Lewinsky matter.

Justice Department officials believe the attorney general's only disciplinary authority over Starr is the power to fire him for what the law describes as "good cause ... or any other condition that substantially impairs the performance of such independent counsel's duties."

Hereford author to sign book

By Speedy Nieman

Hereford Brand Publisher Emeritus

A Hereford author will be signing copies of his newly released novel about the Panhandle cattle industry during the annual High Plains Book Festival.

The festival, which began today, will continue through Sunday at the Amarillo Civic Center.

Gerald McCathern, author of "Horns," will discuss his new book, "Quarantine!," at 2 p.m. Saturday on the civic center stage.

"Quarantine!" is a contemporary fictional murder mystery set in Hereford and Deaf Smith County. It tells the story of murder, conspiracy and terrorism in the huge cattle feedlots, which are concentrated in the Texas Panhandle.

When two young boys find a dead man, his feet bound and hands tied behind his back, on their father's farm, a chain of events begins which will pull small-town deputy sheriff Buster Thornton into an international conspiracy. The conspiracy threatens to drag the United States into another Mideast confrontation.

When thousands of cattle, being fattened for market in the sprawling feedlots, begin dying from an unidentified virus, Buster's murder investigation becomes intertwined with the FBI's investigation of a terrorism strike against the nation's beef industry.

Buster brings the tactics of the Old West lawmen into play as he searches in Las Vegas, Chicago and Washington, D.C., for clues; however, he soon learns that his own life is in jeopardy when he gets too close to solving the murder and the mysterious cattle virus epidemic.

McCathern notes a recent PBS program, "Frontline," documented the possibility of such a terrorist attack, using biological weapons of destruction. One government official on the program said it "is not a question of if it will happen. The question is: 'When will it happen?'"

With "Quarantine!," McCathern brings the modern-day cowboy, murder mystery and international terrorism together for an exciting story.

McCathern's first novel, "Horns," was published in August 1997 and is now in reprint. It was a western historical novel set in the 1865-1875 period.

He also is author of "From the White House to the Hoosgow," a personal account of the great farmer protest movement of 1977-78; "Gentle Rebels," an account of the farmers' protest and great tractorcade to Washington, D.C., in the late '70s; and "To Kill the Goose," which explored the possibility of a food shortage and how to prevent it.

Inflation holds steady; prices fall for gasoline

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Inflation disappeared in September thanks to falling prices for gasoline, clothing and vegetables.

The seasonally adjusted Consumer Price Index was unchanged, following five small increases from April through August, the Labor Department said today.

There were few signs of price pressures that could cause the Federal Reserve to pause in its efforts to inoculate the U.S. economy against the world slump by cutting interest rates.

The Fed cut short-term rates by a quarter percentage point on Thursday, the second cut in just 16 days, citing concern about "growing caution by lenders and unsettled conditions in financial markets."

New evidence of spillover from the global crisis came today with a Federal Reserve report showing production at the nation's factories, mines and utilities fell 0.3 percent in September.

It followed a temporary 1.6 percent rebound in August, reflecting the end of the General Motors strikes, but it was the fifth decline this year. For

News in brief

Lawyer sues eight Texas Supreme Court justices

AUSTIN (AP) -- A Washington lawyer has sued eight Texas Supreme Court justices he claims referred him for discipline knowing he did nothing wrong.

The lawsuit, which also names the state as a defendant and seeks unspecified damages, was filed Tuesday in Nueces County by attorney Barry Nace.

He alleges the justices damaged his reputation, caused him mental anguish and violated his civil rights. He also asks the court to clear him of any implication he violated professional ethics.

Nace last December was one of two attorneys referred to a grievance committee by the court for possible discipline. Justices were angered by a court filing in a product-liability case that referred to justices as "nine nutty professors."

Nace was included in the court's disciplinary recommendation even though fellow lawyer Robert Hilliard of Corpus Christi said Nace had nothing to do with the offending filing.

McDuff set for Nov. 17 execution

WACO, Texas (AP) -- Serial killer Kenneth Allen McDuff has another date with death. Brenda Solomon, whose daughter was among McDuff's many victims, hopes this is the date McDuff keeps.

"I am going to be there, unless I am on my death bed," Ms. Solomon, of Eddy, told the Waco Tribune-Herald on Thursday after a judge ordered that McDuff be executed Nov. 17.

"I just want to make sure he's dead. I need to know he is dead, and the only way I'll know it for sure is if I witness it."

McDuff, 52, is suspected of killing as many as 14 people dating to the 1960s.

This death sentence, one of two pending against McDuff, is for the March 1992 kidnapping and murder of Ms. Solomon's daughter, Melissa Northrup, a 22-year-old pregnant mother of two.

Border check system delay in the budget package

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A much-disliked border check system ordered under the 1996 immigration law would be delayed for another 2 1/2 years under the budget blueprint painstakingly hammered out by congressional and White House negotiators.

The $500 billion budget package, expected to secure final approval in the House and Senate, is chockful of non-spending provisions, including several high-profile immigration issues.

One, in particular, captured the attention of border-state lawmakers and business leaders: Whether the Immigration and Naturalization Service would be required, as of Oct. 15th, to implement an automated system to track the arrival and departure of all foreigners at U.S. land borders, airports and seaports.

The budget deal provides INS a 30-month delay in implementing the measure, which has been denounced as unworkable and guaranteed to snarl border traffic and commerce.

"I'm pleased that the budget negotiators agreed with us that we cannot allow our border to be turned into one big parking lot," Senate Judiciary immigration subcommittee Chairman Spencer Abraham, R-Mich., said Thursday.

Underfed man's relatives win $250 million jury award

DALLAS (AP) -- Weak and malnourished, an 80-year-old North Texas man neared death at a nursing home where relatives had believed that quality care was a top priority.

More than three years after Woodrow Bryan Sellers died, family members have now received a $250 million-plus jury award in their lawsuit against the Tarrant County nursing home and its parent company.

Jurors returned their verdict Thursday following almost two weeks of testimony before State District Judge Paul Enlow in Fort Worth.

Public education funds could be applied to private schools

Texas considers paid voucher program

AUSTIN (AP) -- Thousands of parents have opened their mail to find this offer: They could apply part of the $4,340 in public funds spent on their child's education to instead send the student to a private or another public school.

If, that is, Texas creates a state-paid voucher program -- an issue the Legislature is expected to consider next year.

Putting Children First, which wants Texas to try such a program, obtained a mailing list from the Austin Independent School District to try to recruit parents to help push the effort.

"I need people in Austin that'll come work for me. That was my motivation," Putting Children First spokesman Greg Talley said Thursday.

He said he has already sent 10,000 mailers and may mail information to the whole list, which he said numbers more than 50,000. He said he has already received several hundred responses.

The group also is seeking information from Dallas ISD in hopes of doing a similar mailing there.

The mailout includes a letter to parents from James Mansour, Putting Children First chairman, saying, "As a parent with a student in public school, your support is needed for passage of a pilot school voucher bill by the Texas Legislature in January."

"For thousands of Texas school children that are required to attend low-performing and often unsafe schools, education reform has been slow in coming. Putting Children First is dedicated to giving parents the right to choose the best education for their children."

The mailout contains a certificate saying parents could apply a portion of public school funds "to send that child to the school, public or private, of their choice. The parents, not the school district, will make the ultimate decision of which school is best for a child."

Parents are asked to return a card listing their name, address and telephone number and indicating whether they are willing to do things to support vouchers such as write a letter to the newspaper, be interviewed by a reporter, help with petition drive, speak to professional or civic groups or contact their state lawmaker.

Talley said he picked names randomly from various zip codes. He didn't confine the mailout to parents of students in low-performing schools.

Walt Borges, whose 6-year-old daughter attends an Austin public school that's rated exemplary by the state, was among those receiving the packet. He's a voucher opponent. "I think it would seriously undermine the financing of public schools," Borges said.

Carolyn Hinckley Boyle of the anti-voucher Coalition for Public Schools said the mailout doesn't paint a true picture.

Killer whales wreaking ecological havoc

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Killer whales that normally hunt seals and sea lions are now feeding on sea otters and creating an ecological crisis along the entire Aleutian island chain of western Alaska.

Researchers say that the sudden loss of thousands of sea otters is allowing a boom in the population of sea urchins and these animals, in turn, are stripping the undersea kelp forest, laying bare vast areas that once were lush with the marine plant.

The whole coastal ecosystem in western Alaska is now affected, says James Estes, a marine ecologist with the U.S. Geological Survey and the University of California, Santa Cruz.

Estes said the research demonstrates how disrupting just one link in a food chain can threaten an entire ecological system.

"A wide array of species will be affected," he said. "Coastal fish, mussels, marine birds and other predators in the system could all be impacted."

Estes is co-author of a study appearing today in the journal Science.

"The otters are down about 90 percent in the areas that we studied, while the sea urchins have increased by about tenfold," said Estes.

Undersea beds of kelp, a sea plant that towers from the ocean floor and can grow in dense groves, has been reduced by 90 percent in some areas. This, said Estes, could have a serious effect on fish and other animals.

"The kelp beds serve as a nursery for small fish and other animals," said Estes. "A lot of species depend on the kelp beds for their survival."

Normally, there is a delicate balance of life in the western Alaskan waters, with sea lions and seals feeding on fish and the killer whales preying on the sea lions and seals. Independent of that, sea urchins graze on the kelp beds while sea otters feed on the urchins. This keeps the urchin population in check and allows the kelp beds to thrive, providing a home to hundreds of species.

But Estes said that starting in the late 1980s, the sea lion and seal population crashed and is now about a 10th of normal.

Deprived of their normal food, killer whales turned to the sea otter.

The otter is much smaller than the sea lions and seals so the killer whales must eat more to get the same nourishment.

Estes said he and his colleagues estimate that a single killer whale will have to eat 1,825 otters a year to get its required nourishment. At that rate, said Estes, it would take just four killer whales feeding only on sea otters to cause a crash of the sea otter population throughout most of the Aleutian Island chain.

The researchers said the killer whale predation is the only explanation for the sudden drop in sea otter population.

If the otters were being affected by disease, said Estes, there would be many bodies washed ashore. This has not happened.

Also, he said that sea otter populations protected from killer whales continue to thrive.

In Clam Lagoon, an inlet that is inaccessible to killer whales, the sea otter population has remained stable. But in Kuluk Bay, where killer whales can hunt, the otter population is down by 76 percent, said Estes.

Estes said there is no clear explanation for the decline in sea lions and seals, but some researchers believe those animals experienced a population crash because they could not get enough high-nutrition fish, their normal food. Overfishing has severely reduced the population of some fish species, he said, although other fish, such as pollock, are thriving.

Pollock, however, lack the high oil content that sea lions and seals require to survive the winter, Estes said.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Back in 1992, you printed an essay that made a lasting impression on me. I have saved it for six years, knowing one day I would ask you to print it again. That day has come. Today, we had to put our dog to sleep. She was nearly 14 years old and couldn't hold on any longer. Taking her to the vet for the very last time was one of the hardest things I've ever done.

Please reprint this essay for my dog, Penny. She was part of our family and will be greatly missed. Thanks, Ann. — D.J. in Wausau, Wis.

Dear D.J.: Here is the essay you requested. I did not grow up with pets, but I confess, when I first read this essay, I had a clearer understanding of what a pet can mean to a family, and my eyes moistened a bit, too. It was written by Chuck Wells of Palmyra, N.Y. Dogs Don't Have Souls, Do They?

I remember bringing you home. You were so small and cuddly with your tiny paws and soft fur.

You bounded around the room with eyes flashing and ears flopping. Once in a while, you'd let out a little yelp just to let me know this was your territory.

Making a mess of the house and chewing on everything in sight became a passion, and when I scolded you, you just put your head down and looked up at me with those innocent eyes, as if to say, "I'm sorry, but I'll do it again as soon as you're not watching."

As you got older, you protected me by looking out the window and barking at everyone who walked by. When I had a tough day at work, you would be waiting for me with your tail wagging, just to say, "Welcome home. I missed you." You never had a bad day, and I could always count on you to be there for me.

When I sat down to read the paper and watch TV, you would hop on my lap, looking for attention. You never asked for anything more than to have me pat your head so you could go to sleep with your head over my leg.

As you got older, you moved around more slowly. Then, one day, old age finally took its toll, and you couldn't stand on those wobbly legs anymore. I knelt down and patted you lying there, trying to make you young again. You just looked at up at me as if to say that you were old and tired and that after all these years of not asking for anything, you had to ask me for one favor.

With tears in my eyes, I drove you one last time to the vet. One last time, you were lying next to me. For some strange reason, you were able to stand up in the animal hospital; perhaps it was your sense of pride.

As the vet led you away, you stopped for an instant, turned your head and looked at me as if to say, "Thank you for taking care of me."

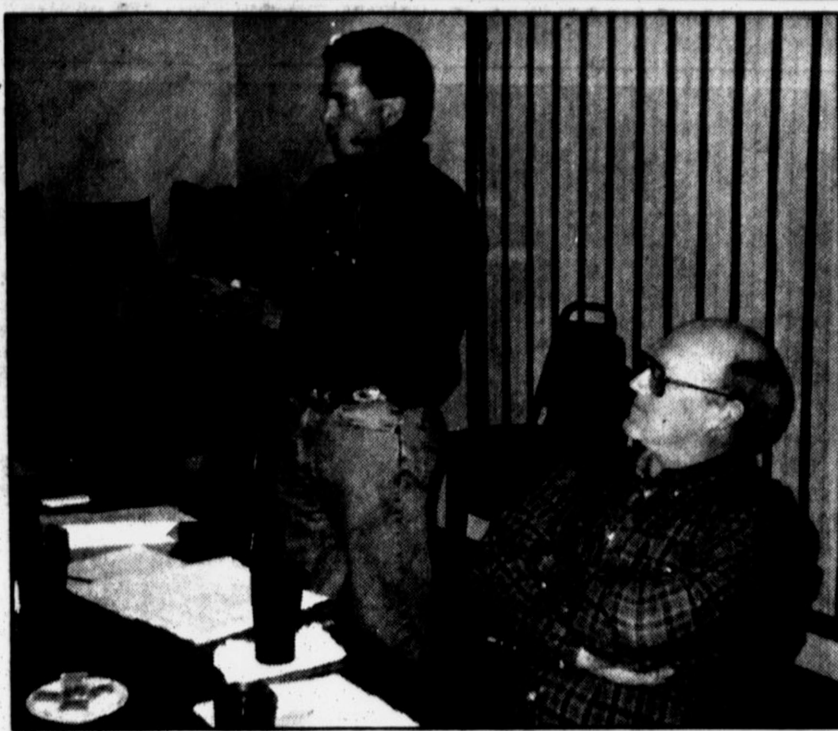

I thought, "No, thank you for taking care of me." Dear Ann Landers: Our family received two invitations to a wedding. One was addressed to me, my husband, our high school daughter "and escort." The bride knows she has been dating a certain boy for a long time. The other invitation was addressed to our college daughter, who is also a bridesmaid, and her "escort" — a steady beau also known to the bride.

One of the boyfriends asked if he should bring a separate gift. We are giving a small gift accompanied by a large check from the entire family. Are the "escorts" covered, or should they bring their own gifts? — Not Sure in Virginia

Dear Virginia: The escorts are covered by YOUR gift, but how nice that they are so well-mannered to have asked.

Hints from Heloise

DISPOSABLE VASES

Dear Heloise: My clever daughter came up with an idea for disposable vases. She cut the top part off of a liter pop bottle, covered and decorated it with foil and filled it with flowers and water. Voila! A pretty vase. — J.M. Rigney, Vancouver, Wash.

BATHTUB APPLIQUES

Dear Heloise: To get old decals off bathtubs, first peel off as much of the rubberized portion of the decals as possible. Make sure the area is dry. Apply a thick coat of peanut butter and let set overnight. Use a plate scraper, the hard plastic kind, to gently scrape the decal adhesive off. — Donna, Cypress, Texas

Be sure to use smooth peanut butter, not the chunky type! It's actually the oil in the peanut butter that loosens the adhesive. You can also use mineral, baby or vegetable oil.

The favorite Heloise hint is to use a nylon-net scrubbie and any oil-based product (like spray-lubricant oil or petroleum-based prewash spray) on the sticky residue. — Heloise

FELLOWSHIP OF BELIEVERS

How To Talk To God When You're Not Feeling Religious (Bantam, 1971) is a book by Charles Merrill Smith that is nearly 30 years old. Of all the theological tomes written about prayer, this is the pastor's favorite...because it is painfully honest, incredibly daring and laugh-til-you-cry funny. With Smith in one hand and the suggested lectionary (Revised Common) text of Luke 18:1-5, in the other, Pastor Nathan L. Stone, Ph.D., will dance with the subject of prayer this Sunday, the 22nd After Pentecost.

Taking a cue from one of Smith's chapter titles, the pastor will preach this sermon: "I Don't Know How to Pray." This is not to say he doesn't pray. It is just that he doesn't know how to pray like some people seem to know how to pray.

FOB is a work in progress. FOB calls herself interdenominational, ecumenical, progressive, inclusive and independent, so that people will have some idea of who we are. In reality, FOB prefers no label at all. All labels say both too much and too little.

Special kudos to the children of FOB for success in their great pumpkin adventure. They picked a bazillion pumpkins, presented them for donations and gathered a bazillion dollars from thoughtful and caring FOB-ers. That money forms a kitty to help with causes near to the heart of the children. The children are being "Helping Hands" indeed. Their Sunday school meets at 9:30.

FOB snacks at 9:15, dialogues about the key teachers in world religions at 9:30, sings informally around Cindy Casse's piano and in front of Bettye Owen's baton at 10:15, and gathers for worship at 10:30. Worship concludes at 11:30 or earlier.

Perhaps no one has better defined the Hereford Whitefaces' surprising rebirth in 1998 than Amarillo Palo Duro coach Steve Culwell.

"The sum of all their parts is what makes them so much better," Culwell said. "You've got to cover everything, they don't give you a break anywhere. They've got too many weapons."

The sum of all those parts finally clicked on all cylinders against Dumas. The Whitefaces rolled up 570 yards of total offense en route to crushing the defending District 1-4A champions 54-21.

"We're very concerned," Culwell said. "They had an offensive explosion Friday night. They put their whole plan together. You can tell their getting better every week."

Tonight, the Dons (1-5), (0-1 District 3-4A) will get their shot at containing the offensive explosion of Hereford (5-1, 1-0) when the two teams match up in a District 3-4A game slated for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Dick Bivins Stadium.

"It's one of those games," Hereford coach Craig Yenzer said. "Palo Duro still has a lot of good athletes. They've had some tough luck, but you still have to be concerned about those athletes. All they have to do is get in synch and we worry about them getting in synch against us."

That getting better every week thing is what concerns Culwell very much.

Greg Ewing — the Hereford tailback — has gotten better every week. After struggling in the first three games,

Yankees say they'll be best ever with title

NEW YORK — The greatest ever? By winning the World Series, the '98 New York Yankees think they'd be just that.

"Since everything is based on the bottom line, I guess so," Yankees manager Joe Torre said Thursday, two days before the opener against San Diego.

"It's tough to look back at the '27 Yankees and say we're better position by position, but everything is based on bottom line," Torre said. "If we get to four more wins — now 121 wins is pretty mind-boggling, 125 would be the ultimate."

After going 114-48 during the regular season, sweeping Texas 3-0 in the first round and beating Cleveland 4-2 for the AL pennant, the Yankees are a heavy favorite against the Padres, who at 98-64 had the worst record of the three NL division winners.

Yet, the Padres beat Houston 3-1 — defeating Randy Johnson twice — then upset Atlanta 4-2, with two wins over Tom Glavine and one over Greg Maddux.

"Not many people gave us a chance against Houston, or against Atlanta," said Tony Gwynn, back in the World Series for the first time in 14 years. "There are guys over in our clubhouse that believe that we've got a shot. As long as we believe we have a shot and we go play like it, we think we're going to be fine."

New York has 23 Series championships, San Diego has none.

The Yankees have won 113 Series games. The Padres have won one.

"I've never been to Yankee Stadium," Gwynn said. "You've probably going to hear some stuff out there you probably haven't heard for a while. And to me, that's part of the game. They're trying to take your mind off what you're supposed to be doing. But 17 years of experience, I hope, will help get me through it."

The Yankees, who finished off the Indians on Tuesday, resumed workouts Thursday. San Diego, which beat Atlanta on Wednesday, traveled to New York and will practice at Yankee Stadium on Friday afternoon.

While the stands were empty as the Yankees practiced, the ballpark was surrounded by thousands of fans buying tickets for the first two games of the Series.

Inside, workers were repainting walls in preparation for Saturday night's game.

"We'll be the best ever if we win the World Series," Chili Davis said. "Maybe we would have to exhume the '27 Yankees, bring back a couple of bodies and play them."

David Wells, who pitches the opener against Kevin Brown, went on Howard Stern's radio show and predicted the Yankees will win in five games.

"If Boomer pitches five games, we win in five," Davis said, laughing.

Wells said he spoke out only to be outrageous on Stern's show.

Many Yankees are looking forward to seeing their former teammates on San Diego — NLCS MVP Sterling Hitchcock, Brian Boehringer, Ruben Rivera and Jim Leyritz, a postseason hero for the Yankees two years ago and the Padres this year.

Even Bernie Williams appeared to lighten up Thursday. Williams, just 8-for-32 during the postseason, has often been remote the last few weeks.

He's eligible for free agency, so the World Series could turn out to be his final games with the Yankees.

"I don't know if I'll ever be here again, so I'd be a fool not to enjoy it," he said.

Baiul hopes past troubles behind her

By NANCY ARMOUR
AP Sports Writer

Oksana Baiul lay in bed last November, tossing and turning, crying as if she would never stop. She had a gold medal, adoring fans all over the world and a second chance after what could have been a deadly car crash.

And yet she was dreadfully unhappy.

"I think I had a nervous breakdown, because I was so out of control," she said Thursday. "I was so unhappy for the last couple of years, yes. Because of my skating, my situation, I felt like I was so alone in this world. It was so hard for me to take help from other people."

"I decided, if I won't go to rehab, if I won't try to change my life, then I'll die soon," she said. "And I didn't want that. So that's why I changed my life. I just wanted to be a happy person, like everyone wants."

After four years of partying and living life on a very dangerous edge, Baiul is in control again. She's been through alcohol rehabilitation, and put her wild days behind her.

Now she's ready to reclaim her career. Training with new coach Natalia Linichuk at the University of Delaware, Baiul hopes to return to the eligible ranks and compete at the 2002

Salt Lake City Olympics.

"She was born for figure skating," said Linichuk, the 1980 gold medalist in ice dancing with husband Gennadiy Karponosov. "She was born for ice and she must do this."

A tiny, waifish teenager, Baiul captivated millions when she won gold at the Lillehammer Games. She'd overcome so much in her young life, never knowing her father, orphaned when her mother died of cancer in 1991.

But with her gold medal came money — lots of it — and temptations she didn't know how to handle. She bought a $500,000 house in Simsbury, Conn., and a fast Mercedes-Benz. She began partying, ignoring the advice of the Ukrainian figure skaters who had been her surrogate family.

In January 1997, she was driving 100 mph when her Mercedes went off the road and into a cluster of trees. Amazingly, she suffered only a cut on her scalp that required 12 stitches to close.

Then 19, her blood-alcohol level exceeded the legal limit in Connecticut. She escaped prosecution for drunken driving because of a technicality, and pleaded no contest to a charge of traveling unreasonably fast. The charge was dismissed in September after she completed her probation and an alcohol education program.

Though she swore she learned a lesson, it wasn't until last November, at a professional competition, that Baiul hit bottom.

"I was flipping in my bed, crying," she said. "I was supposed to skate another number the next day and I couldn't go. I was too scared, too weak even to go."

She entered alcohol rehabilitation in May and decided to return to serious skating. Though she'd been touring and competing professionally, Baiul had gained weight and was woefully out of shape.

Convinced she couldn't work on her own any longer, she sought out Linichuk, who coaches ice dancers Anjelika Krylova and Oleg Ovsyannikov, the world champions and Olympic silver medalists. Baiul moved to the University of Delaware in late July.

"I'm only 20 years old and it's very important for me to compete again," she said. "I did learn a lot those last few years, I did learn a lot about professional skating. It feels good to me, to put both of them together. Pros are not jumping, amateurs are not skating. So what I wanted to do was put skating and jumping together."

Because she turned professional after Lillehammer and participated in events not sanctioned by the International Skating Union, Baiul lost her Olympic eligibility. But the ISU has let professionals regain their eligible status in the past, and she hopes it will give her similar consideration.

She hasn't talked to the ISU about her plans. She will skate professionally this year — her first competition will be "Ice Wars" on Nov. 18 — but hopes to regain amateur status in time for next season.

"I didn't know if I was capable of being good again, you know what I'm saying?" she said. "I was feeling like maybe I'm getting too old and maybe I cannot do that, the girls are jumping so high and so much right now. I was just really kind of feeling weird and strange."

"But I realized that I know I can do it."

Even if she doesn't make it back to the Olympics, Baiul has finally found happiness. She's made some costly mistakes, but she's learned from them and is ready to move forward.

"Sometimes I do act like such an older person. And sometimes when I do something crazy, I feel like a little kid. I like that. I don't want to forget about that," she said. "I'm still a kid. But a kid who's been through a lot."

Roll

Ewing has ripped off three straight 100-yard games, culminating with an 186-yard effort on 13 carries against the Demons.

"He's a great back, he does a great job for them," Culwell said.

The last three weeks have propelled Ewing to 632 yards on 98 attempts this season — second only to Eron Hayes of Borger's 867 yards in the District 3-4A rushing statistics.

Hereford's sophomore quarterback Cody Hodges is already at the top of the District 3-4A passing stats. Through six games, Hodges is 70-for-108 for 834 yards with five touchdowns, although in recent weeks his passing numbers have suffered as the Hereford ground game has gained momentum.

On the other side, to say the Dons have struggled on offense is an understatement. While Hereford leads the district in scoring with 160 points, Palo Duro has scored only 16 points in six games.

"We're not happy with our offense at all," Culwell said. "It just hasn't come along for us as we'd liked."

In contrast to the Whitefaces — who seem to bristle with offensive weapons at just about every skilled position, Palo Duro has very few.

Montray Williams leads the Dons in rushing, but with only 374 yards in six games, and he has yet to find the end zone. Still, he's gotten Yenser's attention.

"Montray Williams is a good tailback," he said. "He's a good player all-around. We're equally impressed with him defensively, as well as offensively."

Williams — who also plays outside linebacker on defense — is about the only star the Dons have on a defense that's allowing an average of nearly 30

THE GAME — Hereford (5-1, 1-0) vs. Amarillo Palo Duro (1-5, 0-1) at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Dick Bivins Stadium.

THE COACHES — Hereford: Craig Yenser, 3rd year. Palo Duro: Steve Culwell, 4th year.

THE OFFENSES — Hereford: I-formation; Palo Duro: I-formation.

THE DEFENSES — Hereford 5-2; Palo Duro 4-3.

THE INJURIES — Hereford: Cory Marsh — out (knee), Daniel Fangman — probable (knee), Johnny Zammaripa — probable (neck), Joe Mendoza — out (back), Palo Duro: Eric Mims — probable (shoulder).

THE TURNING POINT — This game is one of those games you put a mark by and look back on. Will Palo Duro turn their season around, get three district wins and still make the playoffs. Culwell is hoping the Dons can. Hereford, on the other hand, has the opposite problem. They have to keep things going the way they are. Playing a team that hasn't had much success will be a test for the Whitefaces — will they continue to play well? Or have they spent too much time reading their press clippings?

THE OUTLOOK — This game looks like a blowout for Hereford on paper. But the game is played on paper. It's played on grass — well synthetic grass anyway (in this case). The Whitefaces should be able to score as many points as they want against the Dons. But Yenser's warning about Palo Duro's athletes should be heeded. The Dons have plenty of them. If they get going in the right direction — and Hereford has a letdown in intensity — Palo Duro might just not be dead, yet.

points per game.

"Defense is his real forte," Culwell said. "There are several schools that are looking at him at that position — Tech, Kansas and Nebraska."

Quarterback Eric Mims will trigger the heretofore anemic Don offense. He's currently near the bottom of the district passing statistics at 33-for-90 for 223 yards with no touchdowns and

Herd frosh rallies past Valley View

From staff reports

AMARILLO — Hereford rallied for 16 fourth-quarter points to edge Valley View 16-13 in freshman "A" football Thursday.

Quarterback Barry Kriegshauser and receiver Jeffrey Marquez teamed up twice on scoring tosses of 37 and 42 yards for the Whitefaces.

Juan Ayala added both two-point conversions for Hereford on passes from Kriegshauser.

Valley View had a 7-0 lead at half.

The Hereford freshman "B" squad was in Vega and defeated the Longhorns 20-14 with a fourth-quarter touchdown on a pass of one yard from Matt Rivera to Rodney Gaitan.

Also scoring touchdowns for the Whitefaces were Gaitan and Josh Rodriguez on a fumble recovery. Rodriguez also had an interception.

DC Comics goes after Schulenberg over logo

SCHULENBURG (AP) — The envelope may as well have contained Kryptonite. Instead, it was a letter from Superman's bosses with a simple warning to Schulenburg High School: Stop using his logo.

DC Comics, a subsidiary of Warner Bros., has informed the Central Texas school it must stop using the company's copyrighted Superman logo. The Fayette County Record reported this week.

The familiar "S" set within a shield appears on football helmets, uniforms, class rings and even school district letterhead.

Warner Bros.' anti-piracy department has asked that the logo be eradicated within a year.

"We're a poor school district," Schulenburg Independent School District superintendent Michael A. Bonner told The Record, "and we don't want to have to buy new uniforms next year."

The district will ask Warner Bros. if the Class 2A high school can continue using those uniforms that cannot be altered economically. Stickers can easily be peeled off football helmets, for instance, but other clothing might be tougher to replace.

Tenaha will try to go 6-0

DALLAS (AP) — Tenaha is the only team in Texas high school football this week to receive every first-place vote in a poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Tenaha (6-0) tries to keep its perfect record intact in Class A with a game this week at Mount Enterprise. A stumble would likely propel second-ranked Iola, third-ranked Aspermont or fourth-ranked Era into consideration. They're all unbeaten also.

Longview was the only No. 1 team to fall last week, dropping a game to Marshall, which earlier had beaten Killeen Ellison, knocking it out of the top spot in Class 5A. Marshall went from being unranked to being sixth.

Trinity beats Eagles

From staff reports

Nazarene Christian Academy suffered its third loss of the season Thursday, falling 42-28 to Trinity Christian Fellowship of Amarillo in six-man football at NCA Field.

Esrael Silva led the Eagles with three touchdown passes and a touchdown run. Silva hit Teel Merrick twice for touchdown passes and also hit Josh Casey with a scoring pass.

Silva was also the Eagles' leader on defense, picking off three passes. NCA is now 10-3 on the year.

In volleyball at NCA Gymnasium, NCA defeated Trinity 15-11, 15-13 Thursday.

The Lady Eagles were led by eight service points from Carlie Henson. Kealie Fellhauer added seven for NCA.

In the "B" match, Trinity defeated NCA, 15-10, 15-5.

The Lady Eagles will finish their season next week with a home match Tuesday against Lubbock All Saints at NCA Gymnasium, and then end the year on the road at Lubbock All Saints Thursday.

Lions martyr Packers, 27-20

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit defense torched Brett Favre for three interceptions while Charlie Batch played like anything but a rookie in the Lions' 27-20 victory over the Green Bay Packers in an NFC game Thursday night.

It was the second straight loss for the Packers (4-2) and dropped them further behind the Minnesota Vikings (5-0) in the division race. The Lions (2-4) fought back from a 10-0 deficit and outscored Green Bay 17-7 in the fourth quarter.

Batch, who was 16-of-19 for 218 yards without an interception, hooked up with fellow rookie Germane Crowell for a 68-yard touchdown pass play to take a 17-13 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter and Barry Sanders, who had 155 yards on 25 carries, sprinted 73 yards for another touchdown with 8:05 left.

It was the third straight game in which Favre has thrown three interceptions. His third against Detroit set up Jason Hanson's 36-yard field goal to ice the victory with 2:08 remaining.

Favre, who was 22-of-43 for 300 yards, had a 67-yard touchdown pass to Antonio Freeman in the first quarter and a 14-yarder to Freeman with three seconds left in the game.

Favre has thrown 17 interceptions against 14 touchdown passes in the Pontiac Silverdome.

Sanders had an 80-yard touchdown called back by a holding penalty about two minutes after his 73-yard score.

The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES -- Consider
these words:

It is hard to imagine a more eloquent condemnation of a soulless enterprise, or any better source: Olaudah Equiano, who was kidnapped as a child in Africa, enslaved in America in the 1700s and, finally, emerged a man who seized freedom.

Using personal stories to give life to history is a favored technique of today's nonfiction filmmakers, and "Africans in America" makes the most of it. With 18th- and 19th-century diaries and other sources, many recently discovered, the series allows people to illuminate themselves and their time.

The irony of a man who would help win the American colonies' freedom from Britain so casually enslaving others is inescapable.

The film dissects the attitudes that allowed for slavery's acceptance and how the process affected our developing national character and society.

"We tried to broaden the series and make it a much more expansive story of the impact of Africans coming to America and what that meant in terms of what this nation would become and what its people would ultimately become," said Orlando Bagwell, the project's executive director.

"It's clear that some of these ideas that are born in this period are ideas we still live with today, attitudes we still live with, things we cannot change or lose that quickly," Bagwell said.

Angela Bassett, the actress, provides an effective narration. The series also features readings by Andre Braugher, Avery Brooks and William Hurt. A companion book to the series was co-written by Charles Johnson, Patricia Smith and researchers at public television station WGBH Boston. (Smith is the Boston Globe columnist who was fired for fabricating people and quotations; PBS has said her work on the book was thoroughly vetted.

The documentary's first chapter, "The Terrible Transformation," relates the arrival of a handful of African slaves in 1619, just 12 years after the first colonists landed at Jamestown. It was a precursor to a lucrative human trade that ultimately would ensnare more than 20 million black Africans. Most perished along the horrific "middle passage" across the Atlantic Ocean to the Americas, in which shiploads of chained human beings were stacked like firewood, given little if any food or water and virtually no fresh air.

By 1738, the Carolina colony's population had a black majority: They outnumbered whites by two to one. By 1750, when Georgia legalized slavery, every corner of British North America allowed slave-owning.

There was conflict from the start, with violent slave rebellions and violent reactions to fears of slave uprisings. And the turmoil was not limited to the South: Thirteen slaves were burned alive at the stake and 18 hanged in New York in 1741 after coerced witnesses alleged an insurrection plot.

In "Revolution," the second episode, the American colonies fight for freedom from England as slaves challenge their bondage. The role of blacks as soldiers on both sides of the struggle is detailed, as is the nascent split between Northern and Southern states over slavery.

"Brotherly Love" looks at the first four decades of the new nation, including the growth of Philadelphia's unique free black community, the role of black churches in demanding the end of slave laws and the westward spread of slavery fueled by cotton farming.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the book of I Samuel intending to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

DAVID AND SAUL

BECAUSE OF SAUL'S JEALOUS FEAR THAT HE MIGHT LOSE THE KINGDOM TO HIM, DAVID HAD TO DWELL IN THE ROUGH WILDERNESS WITH HIS MEN OR BE KILLED, NOW...

WHAT IS THAT HUGE CLOUD OF DUST IN THE DISTANCE?

...DAVID'S SCOUTS DISCOVER ARMY COLUMNS ON THE MOVE, NUMBERING AT LEAST THREE THOUSAND MEN...

...AND WHO CAN MISTAKE THE GIANT FIGURE OF KING SAUL AT ANY DISTANCE?

WITH BUT A SINGLE THOUGHT IN MIND, DAVID'S MEN RUSH OFF TO REPORT BACK AT CAMP—KING SAUL HAS AGAIN TAKEN TO THE FIELD, IN THE HOPE OF CAPTURING DAVID AND KILLING HIM, TO END THE FEAR THAT THIS SON OF JESSE WILL ONE DAY TAKE AWAY THE THRONE FROM SAUL AS PREDICTED BY SAMUEL!

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

Pioneer Concrete of Texas, Inc. has applied to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) for issuance of Air Quality Permit No. 38745 to authorize construction of a Concrete Batch Plant located approximately 2,000 feet south of the intersection of US Highways 385 and 60 southeast of Hereford, Deaf Smith County, Texas. The proposed facility will emit the following air contaminants: particulate matter including (but not limited to) cement, aggregate, and road dust. A person who may be affected by air contaminants emitted from the proposed facility may request a hearing.

If the applicant demonstrates the proposed facility will comply with all applicable air quality requirements, the applicant will qualify for issuance of a permit. The subject of a hearing would be limited to applicable air quality requirements, which do not include issues such as water quality, noise, traffic safety, or zoning. If a hearing is held, it will be a legal proceeding similar to civil trials in state district court.

To request a hearing, you must submit the following: (1) your name (or for a group or association, an official representative), mailing address, daytime phone number, and fax number, if any; (2) the applicant's name and permit number; (3) the statement "I/we request a public hearing"; (4) a brief, specific statement of how and why emissions from the proposed facility would adversely affect you in a way not common to members of the general public; and (5) the location of your property relative to the proposed facility.

Hearing requests or comments on the application must be received in writing at the Chief Clerk's Office, MC-105, TNRCC, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087, within 30 days after the second publication of this notice. This notice is to be published on October 16, 1998 and October 18, 1998.

"At some point, the American public will have to decide which is more important -- if the president they like remains in office or if the rule of law is upheld. I believe it will be the rule of law."

TV newsman: Clinton will resign if crime is shown

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) -- TV journalist Sam Donaldson told the nation's editors on Thursday he expects President Clinton to resign from office if a House of Representatives probe finds that he committed crimes.

Although admitting he was "just dumb" to predict a Clinton resignation within days when the Monica Lewinsky scandal first broke last January, Donaldson said he's renewing the prediction on different terms.

"Certainly the president will continue to fight hard," Donaldson said. "But at some point, if the evidence is there, I say he's going to resign."

Donaldson made his remarks in an address to the Associated Press Managing Editors national conference.

"At some point, the American public will have to decide which is more important -- if the president they like remains in office or if the rule of law is upheld. I believe it will be the rule of law."

Donaldson said his TV commentator colleague George Stephanopoulos, a former Clinton spokesman, believes the president will not resign even if he is impeached, but will fight all the way to the Senate vote on whether to remove him from office.

Donaldson disagrees.

"If the evidence is there that the accusations are correct, he will resign," Donaldson said.

Donaldson returned to covering the White House for ABC-TV just before the Clinton-Lewinsky scandal broke. He had taken a hiatus from the job after decades on the beat during the Nixon, Carter and Reagan presidencies.

ABC's chief White House correspondent, who also doubles as a commentator on the Sunday "This Week" program, said he believes the public can differentiate his opinions from his reporting.

He also is aware the public wants no more of the Clinton scandal. "Look, I'm sick of it, too," he told the editors. "You're tired of putting it in your papers ... But we're not going to stop reporting on this story as long as it's unresolved."

It's not reporter's job to censor sexually explicit details, Donaldson said.

Grateful Dead guitarist's second wife accepts settlement from his estate

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) -- The second wife of the late Jerry Garcia has accepted a $1.5 million settlement from his estate in a dispute over her divorce from the Grateful Dead guitarist.

A judge awarded Carolyn "Mountain Girl" Adams Garcia $5 million last year in a tiff with wife No. 3 over the amount of her 1993 divorce settlement. The judgment was under appeal when Carolyn Garcia agreed recently to the lesser amount, said Paul Camera, a lawyer for the estate.

Garcia died in 1995 in a drug treatment center. Third wife Deborah Koons Garcia claimed he had been in a drug haze when he agreed to give Carolyn Garcia $250,000 a year for 20 years.

Garcia's estate is valued at about $15 million.

Lawrence Ferlinghetti

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -- In the 1950s, Beat poet Lawrence Ferlinghetti saw San Francisco as "this far out city on the left side of the world, a frontier for the free poetic life."

Now he worries the town is being trashed by corporations and tourism.

"All that made this city so unique in the first place seems to be going down the tube at an alarming rate," Ferlinghetti told an audience Tuesday night at his inauguration as the city's first poet laureate. "This past weekend North Beach looked like a theme park, overrun by tourists. Kitsch was king."

Ferlinghetti wants the neighborhood, the inspiration for many of his poems, made into a historic district like the French Quarter in New Orleans. He also wants downtown closed to cars, thinks city officials should consider "painting the Golden Gate Bridge golden" and suggests tilting the landmark Coit Tower.

"Just half an inch, that's all I'm asking," he said. "Look what it did for Pisa."

Francis Ford Coppola

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- A judge threw out the $60 million punitive damage award Francis Ford Coppola won against Warner Bros. over his failed "Pinocchio" movie project.

Superior Court Judge Madeleine Flier left $20 million in compensatory damages intact Wednesday but said no substantial evidence of outrageous conduct, malice or fraud exists to support punitive damages.

"This case still has a long way to go," Coppola said in a statement. "It will be on appeal for perhaps two years, and there is many a slip betwixt the cup and the lip."

The maker of the "Godfather" movies and "Apocalypse Now" plans to appeal, and Warner Bros. said it will now work to have the rest of the judgment dismissed.

Warner Bros. bought a treatment of the screenplay from a Coppola collaborator in 1991, then threatened to sue any studio that tried to produce the movie even though it refused to pay Coppola to develop the film.

A jury said in July that Warner Bros. had unlawfully interfered with Coppola's attempt to take the project to Columbia Pictures.

Queen Latifah

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- Queen Latifah has a new jewel for her crown: talk show host.

The hour-long "Latifah" is scheduled to debut this fall on several Fox-owned stations, producer Telepictures said Wednesday.

The 28-year-old rapper and "Living Single" actress, whose real name is Dana Owens, was brought into the fold by Rosie O'Donnell, a Warner Bros. Telepictures star.

"Rosie recognized that Dana is a very smart woman who is very driven, and at an early age had a vision of what she wanted to do," Telepictures President Jim Paratore said.

"The show will be built around Dana and her point of view," he said. "She's a multidimensional person and the show will reflect that. We'll have some real-people stories and some topical stories, and we'll also have celebrities and music."

Kim Grant

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) -- A Walt Disney World employee filed a battery complaint against Shaquille O'Neal, accusing him of grabbing her by the neck.

Kim Grant told authorities she was standing outside the entrance to B.E.T. Soundstage at Disney's Pleasure Island on Oct. 5 when she was approached by the Lakers star and two other men. O'Neal asked her name and inquired if she had any friends, Ms. Grant said.

Ms. Grant, 23, tried to end the conversation after O'Neal and the other men told her they were "going to look for girls," according to the complaint filed Tuesday with the Orange County sheriff's office. Ms. Grant told authorities that she told O'Neal: "Be my guest."

At that point, O'Neal grabbed her by the neck, pulled her to him and said, "I was just playing. Can't you take a joke?" according to the complaint.

O'Neal then held her by the arm and wouldn't let go until she threatened to file charges against him, the complaint said.

Ms. Grant wasn't injured and no charges have been filed.

O'Neal's agent, Leonard Armato, did not immediately return a call Thursday.

Nicole Kidman

NEW YORK (AP) -- Nicole Kidman is coming to Broadway in "The Blue Room," a sizzling adaptation of Arthur Schnitzler's daisy-chain drama of sex and seduction.

Kidman has helped make the production the hottest ticket in London, where one critic called her "pure theatrical Viagra."

She plays several characters, including a drug-addled model, an amorous maid and a politician's wife. The London production closes Oct. 31 and it opens a three-month Broadway run on Dec. 13 at the Cort Theater.

Meanwhile, Kidman said in the November issue of Ladies' Home Journal that recent tabloid reports of a cell-phone screaming match with husband Tom Cruise were true, but the papers spliced several parts together in published transcripts.

"We were fighting about how many people to invite to (son) Connor's birthday party, and then we started fighting about which one of us was more tired and who was working harder. Quite boring, actually," she said.

Gonzales stressed his knowledge of the area and work background as qualifying him for the Precinct 2 position.

Hoffman said he has a civil engineering degree, which will be beneficial in identifying problems with roads and drainage, as well as his knowledge of budget development/maintenance.

O'Connor also stressed his business background as a major qualification for the position, saying he "knows the value of a dollar ... how to spend money wisely."

All four candidates voiced confidence they know their precinct very well, with each stressing extensive travel over all of the county roads.

In looking at the responsibilities of the position, Latham cited maintenance of county roads as the major duty of a county commissioner, "keeping the crews going and equipment in shape," working within the constraints of a budget. He also said he considers a chief responsibility to be development of a budget that provides the necessary services while holding a rein on taxes and spending.

Hoffman said the major responsibility is to operate the county government in an efficient, business-like fashion, working "with the budget and listening to the people, the constituents."

Both O'Connor and Gonzales stressed the budget, holding the line on taxes and improving efficiency in government.

All four candidates said they would do whatever is necessary, including using their own money and time, to learn what is necessary to do the job more effectively.

In the closing statements, Latham said the biggest challenge facing Deaf Smith County is its declining tax base, which he said will require the county commissioners to control the budget. He said the county roads, which must be maintained and improved, are better than those rural roads in adjacent counties.

O'Connor also noted the county's tax base is the "biggest obstacle" facing county government. He praised the Hereford Economic Development Corp. and the chamber for their work on behalf of the county. He also said the county government must become more efficient and cut "fat" — but I'm not talking about cutting pay and I'm not talking about laying people off — "so taxes will not have to be raised."

Hoffman said the biggest challenge will be to reconcile the county's needs with its resources.

Gonzales said he wants to work harder to help the people, hold the line on taxes and improve efficiency.

DISTRICT CLERK

There is no incumbent in the 222nd District Court clerk's race, although Darla Hale almost qualifies — she's been working in the office for more than 15 years.

The position opened up when longtime District Clerk Lola Faye Veazey decided not to seek re-election.

Hale, a native of Hereford and graduate of West Texas State University (now West Texas A&M), is the chief assistant in the clerk's office.

Schumacher, a divorced mother of two, also is a Hereford native and a former school teacher who works as a legal secretary.

She said she wants the "challenge" of running the district clerk's office.

Schumacher said the chief responsibility of the clerk is to coordinate court operations, meet deadlines and monitor wisely collection and distribution of child support payments.

Hale said the most important function of the district clerk is to "serve the public ... (and) meet deadlines efficiently."

Hale said her major qualification is her 15-plus as an employee of the district. She also noted she has already had the responsibility for running the office in Veazey's absence.

Schumacher cited her teaching experience and her legal background as qualifying her for the position, noting she has "the knowledge of the documentation used in the District Clerk's Office."

In looking at the challenges, Schumacher said the district clerk must balance the public's needs and the court's needs while dealing with an increasing work load.

Hale said the clerk must know how to work within the constraints of a budget and work with the county commissioners to do the most efficient job with the resources that are available.

In her closing statement, Hale noted her experience in the clerk's office and said she has confidence she's doing her job well.

Schumacher closed by saying her "world has been small" and she wants the new challenge. She also said she will consider anyone who enters the clerk's office to be "our client."

Economy

the third quarter as a whole, production was unchanged — the weakest performance since January-March 1991, at the end of the last recession.

The absence of inflation and the weak industrial production reinforced Wall Street's view that Fed policy-makers were prepared to cut rates again, perhaps as soon as their Nov. 17 meeting.

In early trading, the Dow Jones average of industrial stocks added to Thursday's 331-point advance by rising 63 points to 8,362.

"Things are volatile globally, but our economy is largely intact. For the time being, we might as well enjoy the benefits of the lowest inflation in a generation," said economist Bill Cheney of John Hancock in Boston.

The inflation rate for the first nine months of the year was just 1.4 percent — even better than the 11-year low of 1.7 percent recorded for all of 1997.

The good news on prices translated into a disappointing cost-of-living raise for the 44 million Americans getting Social Security checks. Their benefits will increase just 1.3 percent next year, the smallest raise since 1987.

Based on the movement in a special price index for urban wage earners, the average monthly gain will be $10 to $780.

Farmers to receive bonus in payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — All farmers would get a 50 percent bonus in their annual government payments, and producers who lost crops to drought and disease would split $2.6 billion in disaster relief under the deal struck between the White House and Congress.

At the insistence of Republicans, farmers also would get $1 billion in tax breaks over the next five years, bringing the total value of the package, including the tax benefits, to $7 billion.

Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, said it was "a monumental victory."

His state would get the biggest share of assistance, $1 billion excluding the tax savings, followed by North Dakota with $400 million, Iowa with $370 million and Minnesota with $320 million, according to preliminary Agriculture Department estimates.

President Clinton vetoed as inadequate a $4.3 billion farm-assistance plan passed by the Republican-controlled Congress. The GOP leadership agreed to add $1.7 billion in emergency aid and then put in the tax benefits.

USDA already had started to gear up to deliver the money before lawmakers reached agreement on the plan. "We're going to get it out as soon as we possibly can," said Parks Shackelford, who oversees subsidy programs for USDA's Farm Service Agency.

Republicans argued that the tax breaks would prove to be the biggest long-term benefit.

The tax deduction for health insurance premiums would rise from 45 percent this year to 100 percent by 2003, under the budget deal set for a vote late today.

Income averaging, which lets farmers even out their taxes from year to year, would become permanent, and producers would be to write off losses against income they received in previous years.

A push for new tax-deferred "FARRM" accounts, to which farmers could contribute up to 20 percent of taxable income annually for up to five years, was dropped Thursday because of objections from the House Ways and Means Committee chairman, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas.

The emergency aid would come on top of $5.5 billion in "market transition" payments farmers already were guaranteed for next year under the 1996 farm law, and $1.3 billion in conservation payments that go to growers who idle environmentally sensitive acreage.

Both Republicans and Democrats claimed victory.

Democrats, led by Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., got more money in the bill. But Republicans resisted his pressure, backed by Clinton, to increase price supports, and they got some of the tax breaks they had been seeking.

"It's going to alleviate some of the cash-flow difficulty right now, but if these low prices stick around, we've got the same problem next year," said Dwight Aakre, a farm management specialist at North Dakota State University.

Farm income is expected to drop 16 percent this year nationwide because of low grain and livestock prices and weather-related crop failures.

Aakre, who farms across the border in Minnesota, estimates that North Dakota could lose 1,500 of its 30,000 farms next year.

For 147 million working Americans the maximum annual earnings subject to Social Security taxes next year will also rise, to $72,600 from $68,400, though the tax rate remains 6.2 percent. That means a maximum Social Security tax of $4,501 for workers.

However, today's price report shows that inflation remains substantial in some areas where the elderly incur disproportionate expenses. The cost of medical care, for instance, jumped 0.3 percent in September and was up at a 3.7 percent rate so far this year.

Prescription drug costs shot up 0.7 percent last month and have risen at a 5.4 percent rate from January through September.

Energy prices in September fell 1.3 percent, pulled down by a 2 percent drop for gasoline and smaller declines for fuel oil, electricity and natural gas.

Many senior citizens depend heavily on the few extra dollars a month that Social Security's annual cost-of-living raises bring.

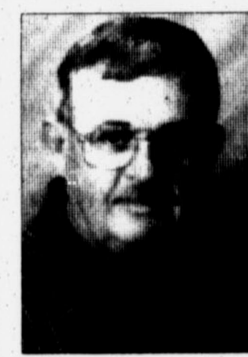

Gasoline prices have fallen at an 18.8 percent annual rate this year. Though analysts don't expect a big increase anytime soon because of falling world demand for energy, they don't expect prices to fall much more either.

Food prices were unchanged last month, but are up at a 2.1 percent rate year-to-date. In September, pork costs fell 1.4 percent, the largest drop in nine years. Fruit, vegetable and coffee prices also fell.

Excluding volatile food and energy costs, core prices rose 0.2 percent in September and are up at a 2.4 percent annual rate this year, compared with 2.2 percent for all of last year.

Last month, tobacco prices jumped 3.3 percent. They're up at a 16.8 percent annual rate as tobacco companies seek to recoup the cost of multimillion-dollar liability lawsuits.

Clothing costs, heavily influenced by the increasing availability of inexpensive imports from Asia, fell 0.7 percent, the largest decline in 19 months.

Social Security gives lowest COLA in 12 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 44 million Americans getting Social Security checks will see them grow by just 1.3 percent next year, the lowest cost-of-living raise in a dozen years.

The 1999 increase is so small mainly because a healthy U.S. economy has kept inflation firmly in check.

Social Security Commissioner Kenneth S. Apfel said today the cost-of-living adjustment, or COLA, means the average monthly check for retirees will rise by $10 to $780 from $770.

The maximum monthly payment for 6.6 million low-income individuals receiving Supplemental Security Income, known as SSI, also will rise 1.3 percent. That will boost the maximum SSI check by $6 to $500. For a couple, the $741 maximum goes to $751.

The increases will begin showing up in checks received in January.

"Inflation remains under control," Apfel said in a statement. "Low inflation is good for America, particularly for many Social Security beneficiaries living on fixed incomes."

Monthly checks from the government's biggest benefit program are adjusted annually to keep rising prices from eroding recipients' buying power. Since 1975, the adjustment has been automatic, requiring no vote by Congress. It is calculated based on changes in the Consumer Price Index from the third quarter of one year to the corresponding quarter of the next.

Because of low inflation, the yearly benefit boosts have been below 3 percent since 1994. Next year's increase matches a record low of 1.3 percent set in 1987 — not counting six months in 1983 when the update was skipped to help Social Security out of a cash crunch.

In contrast, double-digit inflation in the late 1970s drove the cost-of-living increase up to a record 14.3 percent in 1980.
