$175 car allowance sought

At a special meeting of the Aransas County Navigation District Tuesday, Aug. 23, in Rockport the commissioners voted to go to the Commissioners Court with a request to raise their monthly car allowance from the present $75 to $175.

Commissioner Hal B. McKnight opened the discussion among the board members saying, "We haven't raised the car allowance for 10 years. It's $75 a month which is ridiculous; we need to take this to Commissioner's Court and get on their agenda. We need to get this increased to a minimum of $175."

McKnight continued, "This is an operational cost and should have come a long time ago. The county gets $200 per month. I think we deserve it; it's not going to make anybody any money."

Charles Augstine who was elected to the ACND board in the last election, Aug. 13, replied to the request, "I haven't been with the board long enough to know what we need."

Commissioner Dave Maguglin said the board should either go with what McKnight has requested or keep records. He then asked ACND attorney Reese Rozzell, if the commissioners kept records of mileage and go by the mile, would that have to be approved by the county.

"No, I don't think so," replied Rozzell. "Reimbursement is not compensation."

"We will be making trips to Cove Harbor, and that's where we will need to be doing our work," said McKnight as the discussion continued.

Rozzell said the county commissioners just turn in mileage if they go to a meeting.

McKnight said it would be impractical to keep records. "I feel we need $175 a month car allowance."

He then made a motion to go to the County Commissioners and request the $175 car allowance.

Roy Hicks made a second to the motion and it carried with three votes, McKnight, Dominquez and Maguglin for the motion, Hicks and Augustine abstaining.

Zoning change request denied

On the basis that a zoning change requested for six lots in Harbor Oaks Subdivision would be contrary to the subdivision's deed restrictions — and therefore illegal — the request was denied in a meeting of Rockport's city council and the city planning and zoning commission Tuesday night.

Some 50 to 60 residents of Harbor Oaks crowded the council chamber at City Hall for the meeting which began with a joint council-zoning commission public hearing at 7 p.m.

The request was one of three heard during the joint session. Only one request — by Ward M. Wilcox for a special use permit to allow construction of three 40-foot piers in Little Bay for commercial use — was approved.

The request for the zoning change in Harbor Oaks, brought by D-R Properties, was for rezoning from R-1 residential to R-5 second multi-family dwelling, to allow construction of "some type of multi-family dwelling or possibly townhouses," on the lots located on Encina Drive between Encina Circle and Harbor Drive.

William Cartwright, president of the Harbor Oaks Property Owners Association, served as spokesman for the subdivision residents present. Cartwright told the council the construction of apartment or townhouse type units would be "definitely a degradation of the (adjoining) property" and pointed out that under Texas laws, a city council cannot approve a zoning change contrary to restrictive convenants in a subdivision if the deed restrictions are more stringent.

Harbor Oaks resident Earl Sword presented the council with a petition signed by other subdivision residents opposing the proposed zone change, and Calvin Scholz, who spoke

More recreation funds seen as need

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

After agreeing they will need more money for the beaches and recreation areas, the Aransas County Navigation District commissioners said they felt they would either need to ask for more taxes, initiate a hotel/motel tax or charge 50 cents per car to enter the Rockport Beach.

Saying that he believes more people than ever before will be using Rockport Beach, its mile-long road and other recreational properties controlled by the ACND, Chairman Hillis Dominguez appointed newly elected Commissioner Charles Augustine to head up a recreational board to find ways of funding the beach and parks.

Agustine, in apparent agreement with the projection by Dominguez said, "When you're looking at more money, you're looking at higher taxes and that's not very popular."

Rich Tillman, Aransas County Marine Extension agent speaking from the audience, told the commissioners that the Seagrant program is presently collecting basic data concerning traffic volume on Rockport Beach. He said he believed that some information from that data would be available soon.

Commissioner David Maguglin said, "We need to decide first what we need."

Dominguez spent a few moments reminding the board and the few members in the audience that Phase I of the beach grant is completed and that Phase II is almost complete.

He said that Phase II was the construction of the berms and signs at the entrance to Rockport Beach and landscaping around the new restroom. The only project remaining in Phase II is the new pavilion. Dominguez finished his statement telling the other board members that he is worried about the future.

Sharp foresees revolt over property tax

By Leslie Abrams
Staff writer

Salary increases for educators and changes in the teacher certification process will probably be included in recommendations of the state committee studying education when it makes its report to the Texas legislature, State Senator John Sharp told members of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association Tuesday evening, Aug. 24.

Sharp also told ACTA members that he foresees a revolt by taxpayers 10 to 15 years down the road concerning local property taxes which, he said, could seriously affect school finances. He explained that within 10 years, only 20 or 25 percent of those paying property taxes will actually have children in school. When this occurs, Sharp said, property tax payers will most likely ask for changes which will "in my opinion, disrupt the schools quite a bit."

The senator said that one solution would involve a 1-cent increase in sales tax, collected at the state level and sent back to the school districts on a per pupil basis. School districts would then be asked to lower their property taxes by the same amount.

Another development which Sharp said could hurt school district finances is the Supreme Court ruling prohibiting the capital stock tax on banks. He said that one alternative may be to place a franchise tax on savings and loan institutions, the proceeds of which would go to the school districts.

Sharp told ACTA members that surveyors from the General Land Office were supposed to be in Aransas County on Aug. 17 to survey the land at Live Oak Point, but cancelled their trip due to Hurricane Alicia. He said they would probably be down sometime during the first week of September.

The Aransas County Taxpayers Association is challenging the legality of several posts emplaced in the water off Live Oak Point by H.E.B. Inc. ACTA, along with Sharp and U.S. Congressman Bill Patman, have asked the state attorney general's office for a ruling in the matter.

Sharp then answered questions from audience members.

Mavis P .lton asked Sharp his position on bilingual education. He replied that when it originally came up before the legislature, he voted against it. He said that bilingual education can be a good thing but that the teachers and the resources are not available. Instead of concentrating on teaching Spanish-speaking students English, however, the programs tend to teach students in their native language so they do not necessarily have to learn English. He said he would prefer to see those students who do not speak the language to undergo an intensive course in English.

Harold Pinchin asked Sharp about the status of a bill on initiative and referendum, which would allow voter input on such subjects as government spending and taxes. Sharp replied that since the bill was a constitutional amendment it required a two-thirds vote of the legislature, which it failed to receive. He added that there was very little discussion of the bill during the last session of the legislature.

After Sharp's address, ACTA President Willis Pfeifer called the regular monthly business meeting to order. Treasurer Donnie Noster reported that the association had an August balance of $642.66. Secretary June Carter read the minutes of the July meeting.

Florence Samson gave Pfeifer the slate of officers for the 1983-84 elections, which are to be held during the September meeting. A nominating committee comprised of Samson, Kathryn Winkelman, Bob Stranahan and J.C. Harlan made up the slate of officers.

Pfeifer has been nominated to run for a second term as president of the organization. Frank Riordan has been nominated for vice president, Janet Noel for secretary, Celia

Appraisal district, city council set budget hearings

4.3 percent increase proposed

The Aransas County Appraisal District board of directors will hold a public hearing at 4 p.m. Monday, Aug. 29, on the district's proposed $229,114 budget for 1984.

The final proposed budget figure was worked out during a workshop session Wednesday afternoon in which $13,000 was trimmed from the budget for valuation and appraisal fees and $1,205 was added to the salaries for the district's two assistant appraisers.

The budget that will be considered Monday afternoon is some 4.3 percent higher than the 1983 budget of $219,693.

Appraisal district directors agreed to a salary increase for the assistant appraisers during a discussion started by Board Chairman Dan Shelton who pointed out the proposed 1984 salaries for the two assistants amounted to less than half the salary for Chief Appraiser Jack Groseclose.

As budgeted for 1984, Groseclose will receive $34,650, a 5 percent increase over his 1983 salary.

The two assistant appraisers — along with other employees of the appraisal district — were also scheduled for a 5 percent salary increase, which would have brought the appraisers' salaries to a total $33,795 — less than $17,000 each.

Board members questioned whether the assistant appraisers should receive more money and Director Harold Shirey, observing that "good help is worth paying," proposed an increase that would bring the assistant appraisers' combined salaries to $35,000.

This increase brings the total "personal services" budget for 1984 to $101,024, compared to the $96,186 budget in 1983.

A decrease of $13,000 in the budget for valuation and appraisal fees was reported by Groseclose who said it was the result in part of a lower than anticipated fee paid to Ernest Glover for appraisal of boats in the county this year.

Groseclose said Glover actually charged a slightly higher fee per boat than the Brownsville firm that did appraisals in 1982 but this was offset because the district didn't have to pay travel expenses as was necessary for the Brownsville firm.

City to finalize figures

In a busy session Tuesday night, Rockport's city council set dates for public hearings on the proposed 1983-84 city budget and updated city zoning ordinance and held hearings on annexation of Allied Live Oak Bank and allocation of revenue sharing funds officials anticipate the city will receive during the 1983-84 fiscal year.

A workshop on the 1983-84 city budget was set for 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 8, with the public hearing to be at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20. That date is not a regularly-scheduled meeting night for the council.

No dollar amount has been given for the upcoming budget. It is anticipated that both the budget figure and a tax rate will be proposed in the Sept. 8 workshop.

Date for the joint public hearing before the city council and the city planning and zoning commission on proposed changes to the city's zoning ordinance was set for Tuesday, Sept. 13. The hearing will begin at 7 p.m., half an hour before the council's regular session on that date.

No comments for or against proposed annexation of Allied Live Oak Bank were heard during the public hearing on that request. A second hearing will be held Sept. 13, also at City Hall, before the council can take action to annex the bank property.

Also received without comment was the city's proposed use of the $48,736 in revenue sharing funds officials anticipate the city will receive during the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Officials have recommended that the city buy two new police cars totalling $21,736 and buy a partial garbage truck with the remaining $27,000.

At this point, Congress has not renewed the revenue sharing program but city officials anticipate the program will be renewed and that the city will receive at least the same amount it received under the program in 1982-83 — the $48,736 figure.

In other action during Tuesday's session, council members voted to change the hospitalization insurance plan sponsored by the city for its employees, switching from no-

Like it or not, we live today in one world

"Mr. President, sir, this is Mark White, governor of Texas. We've had a hurricane on our coast and we need help from Washington, please." "Don't worry, buddy boy, we're already onto that," came the reply from the White House.

Of course, these aren't the exact words of the conversation a couple of days ago, but they are close enough. The national government had already swung into action before the governor's call.

This scribe assumed Texas citizenship in 1949 and since then, governors have come and gone. There have been some good ones, others who have sometimes made me laugh, but never has there been one so hapless as the current occupant of the Austin mansion. And drearily, I am caused to remember several times in each week that those whom we trust with the education of our children are in large measure responsible for the election of Mark White.

For a more cheerful change of subject, a tip of the hat to the Nueces County sheriff who has decided to let his jail inmates earn their grub. Some months back I noted with no little bitterness that incarceration of criminals costs at least $19,000 a year, per man or woman. For this you can naturally blame such notorious groups at the American Civil Liberties Union and soft-headed federal judges.

Austin at Wharf

Nineteen thousand dollars may not be a fortune in these inflated times, but thousands of couples are living decently and quite well on that sum and less. Even so, I must admit to the doubt that many, if any, would willingly change their lot for a country club jail cell. Or would they? No cooking and cleaning to do, no taxes to worry about, no utility bills, house payments. Hmmm! Okay critics, suggest that I try a few free nights in the clink.

Still I must applaud the sheriff who is going to make his charges dig gardens. Meanwhile, I must wonder how long he'll be able to get away with it? Dogooders, charge!

Hard facts, no scare tactics, thorough coverage, all advertising stopped. That was Houston radio station KTRH during Alicia. Had I been listening to the station earlier, I might have saved a trip to Corpus Christi and hurricane shelter. The few others with whom I've talked, listeners to the station, confirm my estimate. By the way, this is not a commercial for the station. I changed to tune it in on my car radio because there was a baseball game on the Furley-Looper station from Corpus Christi, the station I usually listen to in the "boat car" which has only AM stations.

On the national level — CBS reported that Russian activity in Central America seems to be lessening. There followed speculation as to the why. No doubt the speculation was "leaked" from "high sources." We are used to that, but some, specifically one bit of the speculation had no business being reported on the air, nor in print.

Herewith, and I print, quoting CBS, what should not be printed: "Speculation is that Russia is sending quiet messages to Washington acknowledging that Central America is in the United States' backyard."

Observations of that sort, in my opinion should neither be leaked or even commented upon by the politically astute newsman. Suppositions of that kind belong to what is known as "quiet diplomacy."

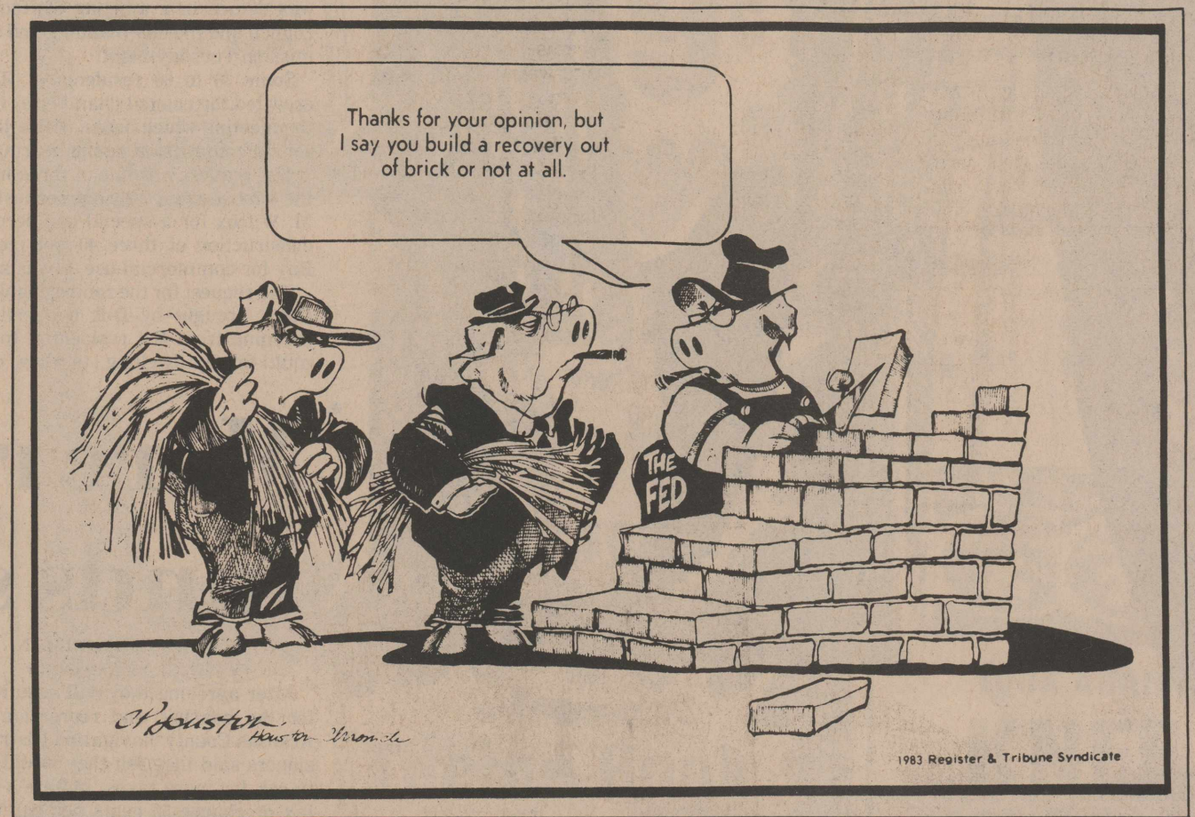

Like it or not we live today in one world, the planet Earth. If the Russians choose to back away from a stance we oppose, let them have the opportunity to do so quietly, gracefully. The same formula might at sometime apply to us.

The situation is akin to chiding a bully who'd prefer to back away from a confrontation. Keep at him and he'll fly off the handle and act in a manner in which he'd prefer not to.

Entirely too frequently, those of us who bring you the news like to remember how we backed down the Russians in the Cuban missile affair during the Kennedy administration. A good job, but what good do we accomplish by rubbing it in?

Firmly as any newsman, I stand for the Second Amendment and freedom of the press. That freedom is not threatened so much by a sometimes angry public as by the overzealous reporter.

The U.S. press is almost certainly the best in the world because freedom allows it to be competitive, but I believe a credo should be established. The reporter with that thing called a scoop should be obliged to ask himself whether it is better to beat the competition or to better serve the public. When he and his editors fail in that respect, they should be judged by their peers and the public allowed to know the verdict.

Every little bit helps

The combined cost to government and industry to process requests for some 15 million trips made annually by employees of the federal government is estimated at $23 billion.

This expense item has been under study for months by the General Services Administration, which has come up with a plan for federal workers making business trips to start using charge cards and travelers checks this fall.

The new system, which may be expanded to cover all federal workers if an initial experiment is satisfactory, is expected to save the government and travel industry $200 million a year.

GSA said six federal agencies will participate in the first phase of the program, slated to begin Oct. 1. The plan calls for all agencies to be on the plan in three years.

Under the new system, government employees who travel often will be issued charge cards for transportation, room and meal expenses and travelers checks for out-of-pocket expenses.

Accounts will be settled monthly. After receiving an employee voucher, the government will issue a check to the worker to pay the commercial charge card vendor directly.

The contract, or contracts, will be awarded on bids solicited by GSA from 200 charge card firms and banks.

We hope this experiment works. It is heartening to know at least one government agency is interested in saving taxpayer money.

A strike against robots

It's hard to take issue with Soviet industrial workers for opposing robots and even attacking them on the job.

There is an unemployment crisis in the Soviet Union, not among people but among jobless industrial robots. It appears there are more robots than jobs, and when a robot does not work it spawns deep resentment and human workers often attack robots.

Warehouses are brimming with idle robots waiting for industrial job placement and the number is multiplying each month. Computer factories are making robots, or automatic manipulators, much faster than industry can use them.

In a nation with two million vacant jobs, why should a good robot be out of work, especially if it is designed to meet demands of increased productivity?

Soviet workers don't care about how efficient robots are. They know only that the computer-operated machines take the place of human employees.

The West German-based Institute for Eastern Market Research says 5,289 of the 8,710 Soviet robots made in 1981-82 have jobs in industry. The rest have been put in storage and the bulk of the 7,700 robots to be made this year also will have to be stored.

The number of robots being turned out this year is about 1,700 more than the 6,000 now working at industrial complexes in Russia.

Our prediction is that nobody will be able to head off the robot revolution that will result in these machines doing most or all the work in industry across the world.

Life on Earth after a nuclear war

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

If you, like so many, are one of those persons who spends a great deal of time each night lying awake and worrying that a nuclear war might remove all life from the earth, forever, I have made a few observations during a free moment that might just serve to put your mind at ease.

With all of my personal problems, plus those that others seem to want to share with me, there really isn't much time left for worrying about what a nuclear war will do as far as destroying life on earth.

Finances, the summer storms and two cats give me about all the problems I can handle, not to mention my golf game, a leaky sailboat and local politics.

Add all of that to the countless problems at work that confront me daily, and those my friends lay on me, and I have worries-amundo, so why take on the thoughts of nuclear war and the possibility of life after said war as something to fill my few remaining free moments.

But the other evening I had a few trouble-free moments to push the problems and worries aside and contemplate the destruction of life on earth after a nuclear war.

And I think I may have made, during this brief moment, a discovery that just might put your mind at ease.

Monday I made a nice hot cup of tea, the doctors have taken me off coffee, and relaxed after a more than usual hard day at the office.

I placed the tea on an end table in the living room and began my evening practice, with plastic ball, in an effort to cure a bad hook in my golf game.

I wold hit a few balls from the living room, through the hall door and into the bedroom toward a large seashell serving as the cup. Then pause and sip some warm tea and continue the practice.

As the tea got about as cold as my "golf game," I did a small stack of dirty dishes, watched a portion of the evening news and, after removing a half dozen fake golf balls from the bed, I retired for the evening.

The next four days were usual hectic days and after getting the weekend issue out I crawled home and climbed the stairs and fell on the couch. It was then I made the discovery.

If, just before a nuclear war, everyone would make a cup of tea or coffee and set it on a table it will only be a few days till all sorts of things begin to grow in the cups and in no time we will have life on earth once again.

Perhaps not as we know it, but some weird looking blue and green things will be here to take over where we left off.

Unusual punishment ruling late

While murderers, rapists, robbers and thieves have escaped severe punishment they deserved over the years, some individuals adjudged habitual criminals have been sentenced to life imprisonment with no chance of parole.

That has been one of the flaws in our judicial system, although punishment given some habitual criminals may not have been as unjust as the Supreme Court now appears to believe it was.

However, the habitual offender law in most states left courts little latitude in dealing with persons convicted of being that sort of criminal. They usually received the stipulated sentence of life in prison without parole.

Now the Supreme Court has changed the way the system operates against habitual criminals. It outlawed as cruel and unusual punishment the sentencing of such offenders convicted of "relatively minor criminal conduct."

By a 5-4 vote, the court held it was unconstitutional for South Dakota to impose a life term without parole for anyone convicted of four felonies, no matter how trivial.

Writing for the majority, Justice Lewis F. Powell said the Constitution's Eighth Amendment "prohibits not only barbaric punishment; but also sentences disproportionate to the crime committed."

A sentence of life imprisonment without parole for a South Dakota man, last convicted of passing a worthless check for $100, was thrown out by the high court in its appeal decision on the habitual offender law in South Dakota.

The court used the South Dakota case to modify a 1980 ruling in which the justices held states could impose mandatory life sentences on habitual offenders, even if their crimes were non-violent and comparatively trivial.

In that ruling, the Texas state law upheld by the court provided possibility of parole for the repeat offender sentenced to life imprisonment in the case on appeal.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, writing for the four dissenting justices said, "What the court means is that a sentence is unconstittional if it is more severe than five justices think appropriate.

"It is indeed curious business for the court to say a state legislature is barred by the Constitution from identifying its habitual criminals and removing them from the streets."

We agree with Chief Justice Burger's conclusion that society has a right to identify its habitual criminals and remove them from streets, but we believe persons convicted as habitual offenders should be entitled to consideration for parole the same as those convicted of other crimes, such as murder.

Postcard squealing

Yet another means of control

Soviet Communists have devised yet another means of tightening control over lives of citizens.

The government is experimenting with a system of denunciation-by-mail in which citizens are encouraged to inform on their neighbors by sending anonymous postcards to police.

The Communists chose the city of Krasnodar south of Moscow with a poplation exceeding a half-million to try out the "postcard squealing" experiment.

They have printed a trial run of 10,000 postcards and made them available in Krasnodar where black marketing and official corruption ran rampant when the late Leonid Brezhnew headed the government.

Reports from Moscow say some Soviets fear postcard spying could represent a return to Stalinist times, when fear of denunciation by one's colleagues, neighbors and even relatives was a more powerful instrument of control than it has been in recent years.

The cards ask only the name and address of the person to be denounced, not the informant's identity. Also on the card are 12 offenses. An informer is asked to check the ones he believes the person he is informing on has committed.

It might confound architects of the postcard plan if informers listed non-existent persons and high Kremlin officials among those who should be investigated.

Truth may make you free but it won't keep you in office

Editor's note: The Live Oak Philosopher on his grassburr farm discusses truth this week, we think.

Dear Editor:

A lot has been in the news lately about Col. Kaddafi, the Libyan dictator who has been producing all manner of trouble and misery for years, but he has now gone too far.

Kaddafi was interviewed on television the other day right when his Libyan planes were bombing neighboring defenseless Chad.

When asked why he was bombing Chad he looked straight into the camera and said: "I'm not bombing Chad. Those are not my planes."

Aside from the evil of unprovoked bombing of a defenseless country, Col. Kaddafi is giving political lying a bad name.

A political lie, everybody knows, is a lie completely useless and its reckless employment endangers one of the mainstays of politics.

As practically every political campaign since elections were invented has proved, people don't mind being lied to if it's done artfully. But put that tool in the hands of a guy like Col. Kaddafi and all the fun is taken out of it.

You measure a politician by the delicacy of his use of the lie.

An immature politician is one who will tell a lie without first checking up on how many people will believe it. He doesn't last long.

A good politician is one who won't lie unless he figures he has a good chance of getting by with it. He gets re-elected.

A superior politician is one who won't lie unless he knows it'll be at least 50 years before he's found out. He goes down in history.

If you say nobody who occasionally lies should be elected, then where on earth could you find anybody qualified to run? The truth may make you free but it won't keep you in office.

On the other hand, the number of politicians who have lied to voters is offset by the number of voters who've lied to politicians.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Re: Senate Bill S1630

Dear Sir:

I am in accord with you that something needs to be done concerning "alien" children in the school system of our country.

I am in complete disagreement with your Senate Bill S1630.

Instead of supplying monies, for the education you should be supplying immigration authorities to return them to their native lands.

This is the 21st century (almost) and our country is overflowing with people who are here just because their own countries will not care for them. We can no longer be a haven for people who will not stand up and fight for their own rights. People who will not stand up for their own rights in the country from which they came are certainly not people we want in this country.

I am requesting you withdraw your Senate Bill S1630 and I am also writing the President of the United States that should such a bill be passed in the House of Congress that he veto it.

We need to take care of American citizens first.

Senator Tower, you have been away from Texas too long, you need to come to Texas and get first-hand information on how people of Texas really feel about the situation of "illegal aliens."

You mentioned in your information to the president that the courts forced our schools to provide education for children of "illegal aliens," just who do you think writes these laws — the courts or Congress? It is your responsibility to control the courts decision by correcting the law.

A visit to payroll may be needed

If you were a little disappointed in the size of yor tax cut on July 1, when a 10 percent rate reduction went into effect, perhaps there is something you can do about it.

According to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, most taxpayers received less than a 10 percent redcution in taxes withheld from their paychecks. Some received as little as 7 or 8 percent, and a lucky few received as much as 14 percent.

Your tax cut may seem smaller because you are among the millions of taxpayers who allow the U.S. Treasury — through your employer — to withhold a higher amount of taxes than you owe.

If so, a visit to the payroll office can correct the situation. You can fill out a new form which will permit you legitimately to reduce the tax withheld from your check.

The U.S. chamber points out that taxpayers in 1982 allowed Uncle Sam to collect $50 billion more in income taxes than they owed. Three-fourths of all taxpayers received tax refunds.

Talk about cash flow! The government is getting rich by having the use of billions of dollars of taxpayers' money.

Although some taxpayers prefer to be overwithheld, in order to force themselves to save part of each pay check, Kenneth D. Simonson, senior tax economist for the U.S. chamber, believes the practice is penny wise and pound foolish.

"When interest on other types of savings range from 5 to 10 percent, or more," says Simonson, "taxpayers who let the government save for them at zero percent are giving up a lot of income."

For taxpayers who would rather not have Uncle Sam "save" for them, Simonson points out they can claim additional allowances, or reductions from their tax withholding.

Taxpayers can fill out a new W-4 withholding form, which includes instructions and work space to help taxpayers calculate their taxes more accurately and obtain additional allowances.

Here is the kicker. "Allowances" are not limited to yourself, spouse and children or other dependents, which are worth one allowance each.

The new form permits taxpayers to project or estimate itemized deductions and tax credits for the tax year, using a formula that converts the information into additional "allowances" from taxes withheld. If a taxpayer plans to contribute toward an individual retirement account (IRA), for example, this can be converted into one or more allowances, or fraction of an allowance, depending on the amount involved.

By using the new form a taxpayer can enjoy the benefit of a larger tax cut all year long.

Note in the table below how the number of allowances changes the withholding amount and increases the size of the tax savings:

(There is no limit on the number of allowances that may be claimed but employers are required to give the Internal Revenue Service the names of taxpayers who claim more than 14 allowances.)

The differences noted in the column at right represent money taxpayers can put in the "bank" of their own choosing or can invest in an IRA or U.S. savings bond.

In the latter case, Uncle Sam has use of the money but pays the taxpayer interest.

Which is as it should be.

If your head is spinning you're not alone

By SCOTT BURNS

"P.S. I have been to so many seminars on coin collecting, limited partnerships, real estate shopping centers, financial planning, etc., that my head is spinning and I'm thoroughly confused."

So ended a recent reader letter. I quote it so others will know they aren't alone, and remind you of the sign seen on so many office walls:

"If everyone around you seems excited, frightened and worried but you remain calm . . . maybe you don't understand the situation."

Like it or not, we are in a period of rapid change, great uncertainty and unrelenting innovation in financial "products."

The only way to deal with such situations is to recognize that all investments have common features and that however they are constructed, they must ultimately meet our real needs. Here are some basic rules for the preservation of your savings and sanity:

1. Avoid "cure-all" investments. If someone wants to put you in on the ground floor of sliced bread, you can be sure it will be discovered that bread is a major cause of cancer. No investment is so good it should be your only investment.

2. Accept the idea that you will lose money from time to time. I've never met anyone who has perfect timing in the best investments. Be prepared to see the value of any investment decline because you picked the wrong day or the president said something that worried everyone. If you can't accept that, you should stick to savings accounts.

3. Measure your expectations. Most people go astray when they believe they will make very high returns for a long time or that high returns don't mean very high risks. It is a fact of life that all investment returns are based on the underlying earning power of the company in which you invest. In a recent examination of the Standard and Poor's 100 — the largest companies in America — the median return on shareholder equity was 11.8 percent and 40 of the 100 had returns between 8.8 and 15.4 percent. If you expect a lot more than that you've either got to be in business for yourself, do a tremendous amount of homework, or be fantastically lucky. Preferably all three.

4. Minimize risks while maximizing potential gains. Most investors concentrate entirely on only one aspect of investing. Some avoid all risk. Others go for gains regardless of risk. Few work the territory between a secure 8 percent return and an insecure 100 percent return. In fact, it can pay off.

According to the Fortune 500 listings, the typical Fortune 500 company provided a total return to investors of 8.26 percent a year between '72 and '82. Move to the top 30 percent and the return was 12.2 percent, enough to turn an initial $10,000 investment into $31,616 instead of $22,114. You can make such shifts by avoiding investment failures as well as by finding the stars.

5. Prefer cash and liquidity. As long as people want and need your money, it will be valuable. Many people forget this. The same can't be said for jojoba beans, uranium mines and other items. Before you invest in anything without a ready market and daily trading, you must get a higher return or a significant tax advantage. Preferably both.

6. Minimize transaction costs. Many investment vehicles have transaction and "packaging" costs that reduce your potential gain while giving you full participation in the risks. If most investments return 10 to 12 percent, and very few return more than 20 percent, a commission burden of 10 percent can be a ticket to high risks for a mediocre return. While stock brokerage commissions are lower, a high-turnover account may never overcome the "drag" of commission costs.

7. Give your money vacations. Many people feel a compulsion to reinvest after the selling or maturing of an investment. You'll make better decisions if you let the money earn interest for a few weeks in your checking or brokerage account.

8. Have faith in your own judgement. No investments work by magic, or rise through levitation. Your experience with walking and the need to eat three meals a day is an asset, not a liability, in making good investment decisions. If you don't understand it or see what it will do for others, don't invest in it.

Savings bond sales are up in county

Boosted by sales in May of $41,906, sales of U. S. Savings Bonds in Aransas County totalled more than $64,000 for the first five months of 1983 and exceeded the goal for the year by 7 percent.

Statewide, John W. Dixon, volunteer state chairman for savings bond sales in Texas, said sales of savings bonds for January-May 1983 amounted to $113,012,014, an increase of 36.2 percent over sales for the same period in 1982. These sales represent 50.2 percent of the state's 1983 assigned goal of $224,700,000.

In Aransas County, the five-month sales total of $64,579 is 107 percent of the assigned goal of $60,000 — the highest percentage achieved in District 24 which includes Nueces and San Patricio as well as Aransas County.

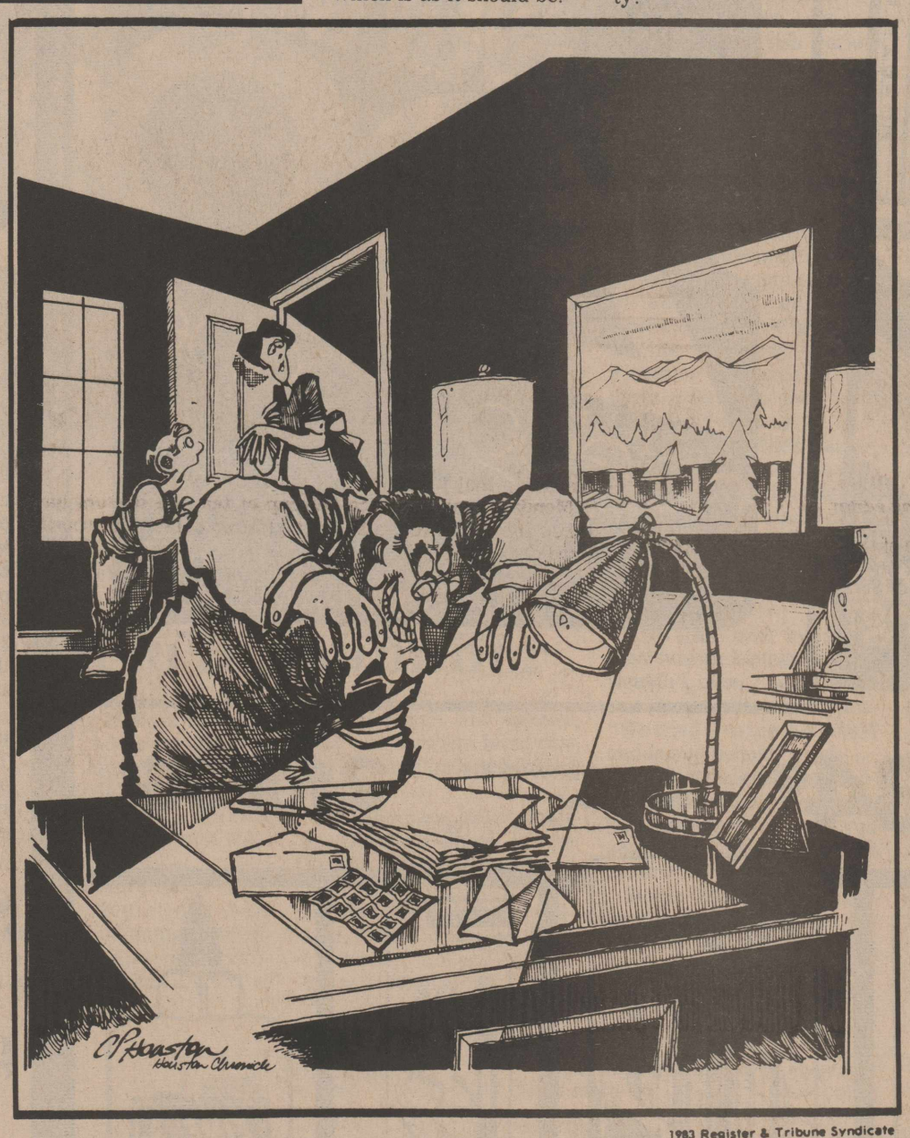

Nueces County, through the first five months of 1983, recorded savings bond sales of $1,938,970, 48 percent of the 1983 goal of $4 million. San Patricio's January-May sales of $79,889 were 37 percent of goal.

Sales of the Series EE Bonds for the entire Area 18, comprising 32 counties including Aransas, totalled $1.38 million for May, nearly $6 million — approximately 52 percent of the 1983 goal — for the January through May period.

Nationally, sales of savings bonds in May amounted to $418 million, up almost 73 percent over May 1982.

Since Nov. 1, 1982, new issues of Series EE Savings Bonds held five years or longer earn 85 percent of the average return on five-year Treasury marketable securities during the holding period, with a minimum guaranteed return of 7.5 percent for bonds held at least five years.

Outstanding Series E and EE Bonds and Savings Notes that are still outstanding and earning interest on and after Nov. 1, 1987, will earn market-based interest effective Nov. 1, 1982. The average rate for the first two six-months market-based periods is 9.87 percent.

Taxpayers can appeal tax examination

Taxpayers who are not satisfied with the outcome of their federal income tax examination have the right to appeal within the Internal Revenue Service, or through the courts or both.

According to the IRS, after the tax examination, the first step for a dissatisfied taxpayer is to request an immediate meeting with the examiner's group supervisor. The supervisor may be able to resolve the issue at that point.

If no agreement is reached with the supervisor, taxpayers have 30 days to appeal through administrative channels. It works this way: An informal conference can be arranged in any of the over 800 offices throughout the country with a representative of the regional director of appeals, who has the authority to settle the case, regardless of dollar amount.

The Appeals Division is independent of the Examination Division and the role of the appeals officer is to bring an unprejudiced and unbiased point of view to the case. The appeals officer is responsible for trying to reach a mutually satisfying settlement so that the case will not have to go to court.

Additional information on taxpayers' rights of appeals is available in the free IRS publication 556, "Examination of Return, Appeal Rights, and Claims for Refund," which can be obtained by calling the IRS forms/tax information number listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Program is offered on understanding the tax system

High school teachers and administrators across the country are again being offered the opportunity by the Internal Revenue Service to teach their students how our nation's tax system works and an overview of the U.S. budgetary system.

The free instructional program reaches millions of students each year. It typically lasts four to six weeks and students can be expected to finish the course, the IRS says, with an understanding of how to handle their own tax matters, as well as a much better concept of the economics of our tax system.

Study guides, teacher's manuals and films are supplied by the IRS to schools participating in the program. School personnel interested in presenting an understanding taxes program should contact the IRS.

Permit request

Richard W. Smith, 1104 Old Dominion Place, Mansfield, has applied for a permit to construct a T-head pier of timber and pilings which will measure 4 by 500 feet and contain a 12 by 24-foot T-head section. The pier will be for private, recreational use.

The construction of the pier and T-head will be located on Copano Bay adjacent to Lot 7, Unit 1, Copano Ridge subdivision, approximately 4 miles northwest of Rockport, in Aransas County.

A preliminary review of this application indicates that an Environmental Impact Statement is not required.

This application will be processed pursuant to Section 10 of the River and Harbor Act of 1899.

Preliminary indications are that no known endangered species or their critical habitat will be effected by the proposed work.

$53 billion necessary for public facilities repair

By Senator LLOYD BENTSEN

There are many unsafe bridges in this country, as evidenced by the recent tragic collapse of a bridge in Connecticut.

There is, in fact, an enormous amount of work to be done on all the basic facilities that comprise the foundation upon which our economy rests.

We have so many airports, dams and ports to be built or repaired that the cost of it all boggles the mind.

The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that we should be spending $53 billion a year for the rest of this decade to repair, maintain and improve America's basic public facilities.

That's a lot of money by any standard, but it is also a job that simply must be done.

It would be a serious mistake, though, to call on the federal government to provide all the needed bridges and dams and other projects. The vast bulk of the money must come from those areas and interests that will benefit most from each facility.

The current condition of these facilities and the amount of investment needed varies dramatically from community to community, state to state and region to region. Some areas need a boost to catch up on decades of under-investment. Other areas are barely keeping up with rapid growth.

Clearly, the priorities on where projects are needed should be set by state and local governments.

I have introduced legislation that recognizes that fact. It would provide $10 billion a year from 1984 through 1993 as seed money to help state and local governments build the facilities they believe are needed.

This $10 billion could generate as much as $80 billion in infrastructure investment in the first year alone.

The funds would be apportioned to the states by the secretary of the Treasury under a formula based partially on population growth between 1950 and 1980, and partially on population as of 1980.

An infrastructure bank would be established in each of the 50 states. Each bank would decide what projects should be funded in a particular state.

The federal money would be used two ways. Each year, $5 billion would be used as matching funds on a 40 federal-60 state/local basis. The other $5 billion would be used to subsidize the interest rate on project loans.

All of the federal money must be repaid by assessing fees for use of the facilities built, or in other ways set up by the state and local governments.

A National Infrastructure Commission would be established to manage the funds and ensure that the infrastructure banks are set up in accordance with the terms of the law.

The only way we can hope to approach the amount of work that needs to be done on our nation's public facilities is by providing an incentive for state and local governments to do the jobs they feel are most important.

That's the goal of my legislation.

Commissioners agree to table AD&WI lease

During the special meeting Tuesday, Aug. 23, of the Aransas County Navigation District the commissioners agreed to table a request by T.W McKinney of Aransas Drilling & Workover Inc. to transfer a lease at Cove Harbor now held by Camden Drilling Co. to AD&WI.

Reese Rozzell, attorney for the ACND, explained to the commissioners that the district has a lease with Camden Drilling Co. and the name was either changed to Matagorda Drilling or they were bought out. "I really don't know," said Rozzell.

Rozzell continued that Matagorda gave a deed of trust to Allied Live Oak Bank in Houston for security in a loan. He said that now AD&WI is going to close a deal with Allied and acquire eight drilling rigs.

Rozzell said he believes AD&WI will return to the district at a later date with all the proper documents for the lease transfer.

Commissioner Hal B. McKnight asked who the lease is now made out to and Rozzell replied it is made out to Camden Drilling Co. "They gave the lease as collateral," he said.

It was estimated that AD&WI will employee 200 workers at their site in Cove Harbor after the lease transfer.

Rozzell said he didn't believe the commissioners could act on the problem and it was tabled for a future meeting.

Cats don't always land on their feet

By Dr. Hap Lutz
Rockport Veterinarian

Dear Dr. Lutz,
Is it true that cats always land on their feet when dropped?
From a Cat Lover

Dear Cat Lover,
This statement is false. It is a myth. Cats usually land on their feet, but they don't always do so. Even if a cat falls and does land on its four feet, it can cause strains and fractures.

From your pet's best friend, the one with a warm heart for cold noses.

1983 traffic deaths down 14 percent

Texas Motor Vehicle traffic deaths continue to decline throughout the state. The Texas Department of Public Safety reports traffic deaths in the state are down 14 percent compared with the same period (Aug. 13, 1982) last year. Fatal motor vehicle traffic accidents are 15 percent less compared with last year's deaths. Two thousand one hundred seventeen people have been killed statewide compared to the 2,461 deaths recorded during this same time period in 1983.

In the 21 South Texas counties, under the command of Texas Highway Patrol Captain Charles Gunn, rural traffic deaths are down 42.1 percent and fatal accidents show a decrease of 40.2 percent. Rural traffic accidents, of all causes, are down by 12.1 percent. Captain Gunn said, "I believe these reductions are caused, in part, by the public's awareness of the DWI problem." He also stated, "Juries around the state are getting more stringent in meting out punishment in DWI cases because of this inreased awareness."

Texas recorded a 9 percent decrease in traffic deaths in 1982. Should the current downward trend continue, it will cause Texas deaths to reach levels not seen since the early 1970's "With continued support from the public, I believe it can happen," said Captain Gunn.

September oil and gas production rate set at 100 percent

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has set the Texas oil production rate for September 1983 at the market demand factor of 100 percent for the 79th month in a row. The commission first went to the ceiling level in April 1972.

Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioners Buddy Temple and Jim Nugent directed the continuance or the maximum statewide allowable after receiving and reviewing purchaser nominations for Texas oil in September totaling 2,444,632 barrels per day, a decrease of 10,035 barrels daily when compared with August buyer requests. September 1982 nominations totaled 2,464,552 barrels daily.

Next month's permissible rate of output is calculated to average 2,868,566 barrels per day with actual production estimated at 2.355 million b/d. The maximum allowable applies to all but 10 fields in Texas that are assigned lower legal rates of flow for conservation purposes. Actual production in September 1982 was 2,393,216 barrels daily.

Wallace reported that September 1983 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 18,955,002 Mcf/d (thousand cubic feet per day). Gas nominations for August amounted to 19,251,969 Mcf/d. September 1982 gas nominations totaled 21,484,229 Mcf/d.

The next statewide oil and gas hearing will be held Friday, Sept. 16, at 9 a.m. at the Kiva Inn in Abilene.

George Miller softball team still heading for state playoffs Sept. 2

The George Miller softball team is well on its way toward the state softball championships in Shreveport, La. Sept. 2-5. In the weeks since the team, second place finishers in the Corpus Christi Softball League B division, earned their place in the tourney, local individuals and businesses have donated funds enabling the group to travel to the event. In addition to these sponsors' help, funds have also been raised from a barbecue and bake sale held by the team last week. "It's looking real good," says team member Linda Heard — we've gotten so many donations."

At press time, another barbecue, augmented by a small area tournament, was tentatively planned for this weekend in Memorial Park.

GM's league record for the '83 season was 11-4. In addition to their league play, the veteran team participated in numerous non-league tournaments, including the ASA tournament several weeks ago, in which they placed second. The team won a tourney in Sinton, two in Corpus Christi and placed second in several more non-league events during the season.

This year's trip to the state championships is the second one for the GM ladies, who first competed statewide in 1978. At that time the team was the Disco Ladies, originally started in 1972. Organized by the late Eugene Cook, the Disco Ladies first played "just for the fun of it," recalls Heard. "We would go to towns around here and sometimes as far away as Victoria or Bloomington."

After joining the Corpus Christi league in '78 and winning their division, the team sat out a year, then returned to the league. George Miller took over sponsorship in 1980. Through the years, "we've only had three coaches," says Heard. The tight-knit group has been coached by Heard's brother Bobby Lewis, Sam Morgan, Sr. and Willie Heard.

The original nine members of the team — the first Disco Ladies and still going strong — are Alice Lewis, Freida Lewis, Barbara Lewis, Margie Morgan, Mary Morgan, Fay Walls, Marilyn Price, Theresa Bess and Heard. Joining them on this year's team are Brenda Fillmore, Sylvia Lewis, Lucy Zapata, Della Huff, Helena Lewis, Debbie Edler, Faye Lewis and Darlene Dilworth.

TP&W reports new hybrid drum

No other agency in the nation has conducted research on more non-native and hybrid sport fish species than the Texas Parks and Wildlife (TP&W) Department and biologists of the department have now developed a new fish variety believed to have excellent potential for freshwater lakes — a hybrid cross between the red drum (redfish) and black drum.

Hoping that the hybrid would be a hardy, fast-growing freshwater sport fish to complement and improve on the recent program to acclimate redfish to freshwater, TP&W biologists in the Palacios Marine Fisheries Research Station began work on the drum hybrid in February.

According to Nick Carter, a TP&W inland fisheries research coordinator in Austin, gravid black drum females were netted, then injected with spawn from redfish being held in tanks in Palacios.

"We fertilized by hand. Most marine biologists felt it wouldn't take," said Carter in a recent phone interview. "We tried it to see if it would and lo and behold, it did.

"We got excellent fertilization success and our question was answered — yes, you could produce a hybrid drum."

Some 500,000 fertilized eggs were produced and the resulting fry were stocked in ponds until they reached about 1½ inches in length. These hybrids were then stocked experimentally in Lake Creek Reservoir near Waco. According to Carter, some are also being kept in saltwater in the Palacios facilities and others are being held in freshwater at Heart of the Hills research station in Ingram. The hybrids are about 6 inches in length at this time.

Carter said the hybrid more closely resembles redfish in appearance but it is deeper-bodied like the black drum. It is mottled black and silver in color, lacks the characteristic black tail spot seen on redfish and also has lost the black vertical bars of the black drum.

As with the rapidly growing freshwater redfish fishery in Lake Braunig and other Texas reservoirs, the hybrid drum was developed primarily to stock power plant lakes, said Carter. "With power plant lakes — an unnatural man-made system — the lakes tend to go bad quickly. Exotic strains like tilapia get in the system and build up large populations. These bigger fish don't allow our native species to grow and the lake's fishing potential goes down quickly. It becomes monopolized by exotics."

Carter continued, "There are several alternatives. First, we could shut off the power plant and freeze out these tropical fish but that's impractical and would result in a power blackout for humans.

"Second, a lake can be killed out completely, but that takes the system out of the fishing scene for two years, at least.

"Third, there is biological control. Introduce bigger native fish to kill out the exotics that our native predators can't compete with. That was our solution — redfish love tilapia."

According to Carter, redfish acclimated to freshwater and the new hybrids are useful on two levels — as a lake management tool to control the exotic fish population and also as a valuable sportfish resource.

What remains to be seen, said the biologist, is how the hybrid drum population will mature and survive the coming winter. "We don't know much about this new fish yet," said Carter. "We're not sure of it's feeding habits or how it will do in the winter . . . but we're optimistic, given their excellent growth so far."

If the rapid growth of the redfish acclimated to freshwater is any indication, the hybrid drum should reach 18-22 pounds in less than three years. Their sportfish potential is enhanced by the fact that they can easily be fished from the shoreline as well as from boats.

While the hybrid drum was produced with freshwater management and sportfishing in mind, Carter stressed, "These fish definitely have a mariculture value," said the biologist.

Keeping bait alive hard in the summer

Summer weather can be tough on coastal bait fishermen, because higher temperatures mean less oxygen in bait containers and more dead bait, said Rich Tillman, marine agent in Aransas and San Patricio counties. "Keeping bait alive is a key to more successful saltwater fishing and can be done if fishermen plan ahead and use the right containers."

A new publication, "Keep That Bait Alive," is available that describes a variety of bait systems that can be purchased or constructed and offers tips to help lengthen the life of saltwater bait. Published by the Texas A&M University Sea Grant Program, it was written by William Younger, Marine Advisory Service (MAS) marine agent in Matagorda County and Russell Miget, marine fisheries spcialist with MAS in Port Aransas.

The brochure opens into a poster depicting bait systems and listing their advantages and disadvantages. It includes a chart of saltwater bait and species they are likely to lure, plus tips for handling and hooking bait.

The brochure is available at Tillman's office at the Marine Science Institute on Port Street in Port Aransas or from the Sea Grant College Program, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843-4115.

Key Allegro Marina — 729-2761 — "Moderate since the storm." Fishermen bringing in trout from near the rigs. Lots of sailfish and kings being brought in from offshore. Plenty of frozen bay and offshore bait, including ballyhoo.

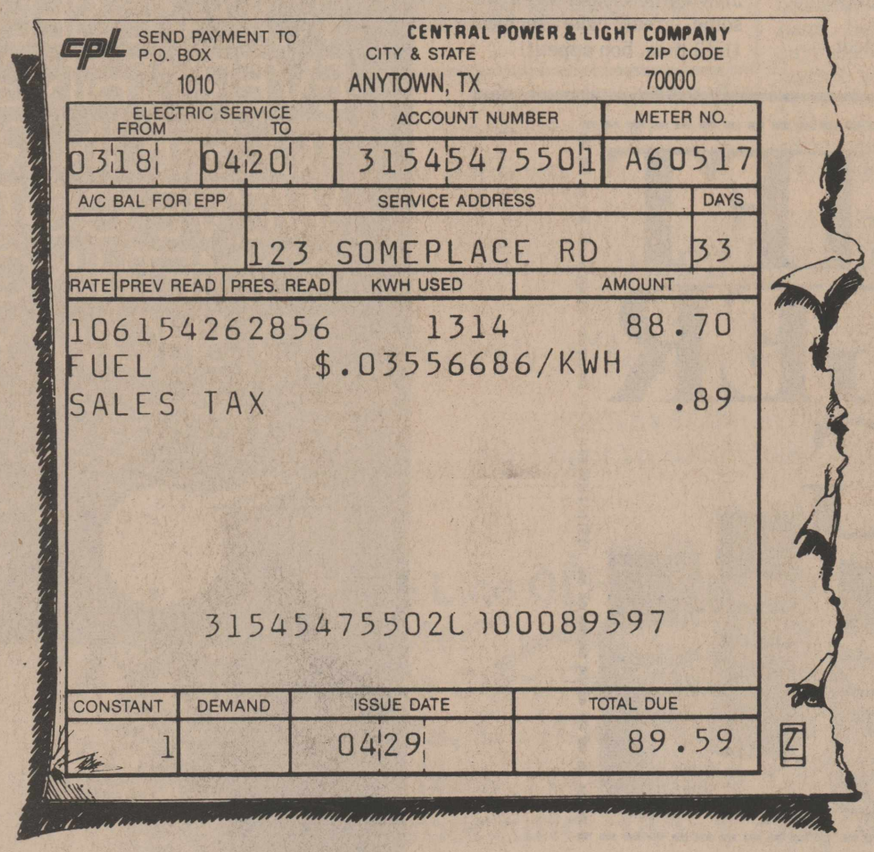

Beach Road Baithouse — 729-8614 — Pretty good lately, especially from 2 a.m.-daylight. Lots of trout off pier. Sheephead are in and biting on dead shrimp. Some small flounder. Will have plenty of dead bait, also mullet and some live bait for weekend.

Sandollar — 729-8562 — "Been good." Best time off the pier is around sundown and all through the night. Days are real slow. Mainly catching reds and trout, including some 3½-pound specks. Biting on live bait, dead bait and speck rigs. Will have plenty of live and dead bait for the weekend.

Sandbar Cafe — 729-4046 — Real good early in the week and still holding early in the morning, before 7 a.m. Bringing out and reds in from around rigs and some from flats, caught while drifting. Some flounder in the mornings, before wind picks up. Chances of live bait for the weekend are slim, so call ahead.

Fulton Harbor Bait 729-8532 — Lots of reds off the seawall and plenty of good flounder (3 pounds) off the pier. Catching flounder on live piggy perch which have been caught on dead shrimp and had dorsal fin cut off. Bait situation for weekend is "fair to middling."

Palm Harbor — 729-8540 — Guides have been having great luck. Howard Brown brought in 16 trout and five reds Wednesday and Gary got 14 trout and seven reds — reds in the 18-22-inch range. Palm Harbor resident Lee Sykes limited out on trout and Jim Metzner got 11 keepers in two hours. Most of the activity seems to be around markers 17-21 on the east side. May have live bait this weekend.

This week we have hodge-podge and again we have Pat Collins to thank for the recipes.

SHRIMP CRAB TARTS
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 6-ounce can shrimp
1 6-ounce can flaked crab meat
1 pimento, cut into small strips

Make a recipe of your favorite pastry. Press into small tart shell pans and bake at 425° F. 5-8 minutes.

Filling: make a white sauce of the butter, flour and enough milk to make a smooth, medium thick sauce. Add shrimp,crab meat and pimento. Mix well. Fill the tart shells with the warm mixture.

PUNCH FOR 150-175
1 12-ounce bottle lemon juice
2 large cans orange juice
2 large cans pineapple juice
1 large can grapefruit juice
2 large bottles ginger ale
2 large cans apricot nectar
5 pounds sugar
6 packages flavored drink mix
Crushed ice

Mix and serve. If you are not serving at once, do not add the ginger ale until you are ready to serve.

GRAHAM BREAD
2 cakes yeast
2 cups lukewarm water
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup mashed potatoes
2 cups potato water
⅓ cup molasses
⅓ cup shortening
2 teaspoons salt
3 cups unsifted graham flour
7 cups sifted flour

Dissolve the yeast in lukewarm water and sugar. Heat potato water with mashed potatoes and add shortening, molasses and salt. Add to first mixture, then add the flour. Knead. Set aside until double.

Make into loaves. Let rise until double. Bake at 400° F. first 15 minutes, then turn down to 350° F. and bake another 30 minutes. Makes 3 large or 4 small loaves.

That's it for this week. Join us here next week for some great cake recipes. Until then, bon appetit!

Before cutting down a large tree on your property think about this. There are over 80 species of birds that only nest in dead or dying trees, such as red-bellied woodpeckers, screech owls and chickadees. In return for supplying them a home, they'll eat many of those pesty insects around your neighborhood, including mosquitoes.

Services begin at new church

Services began last Sunday, Aug. 21, at Aransas County's newest church, Coastal Oaks Baptist, located on FM 3036 between Hwy. 35 North and FM 1781.

Dr. Billy Bob Moore of Portland is interim pastor of the new church which is meeting in a small temporary building pending construction of a small sanctuary and general meeting building.

"We hope to have the first building (the sanctuary and meeting hall) completed by the first of January," says J. L. Stewart, one of the organizers of the new church. The other organizer is Wyatt Means.

Dr. Moore is one of six area mission organizers with the Texas Baptist State Convention, Stewart said, and the new Coastal Oaks Baptist Church will be affiliated with the Blanco Baptist Association, the State Baptist Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention.

Stewart invited anyone interested in the new church to come help with completion of the temporary building and the permanent one and to come to services.

Services Sunday begin with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. and morning worship at 11 a.m. Evening services are 6 p.m. for training union and 7 p.m. services. Prayer meeting will be at 7:30 p.m.

Gospel Lighthouse sponsors car wash

The car wash will be from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the church on Hwy. 35 South. The wash will be $3 with $1 for vacuuming.

All proceeds will go into the building fund, according to the Rev. John Norvell, pastor of the church, to help pay for additional property purchased adjoining the church grounds.

"We are definitely going to be adding onto the present building in the near future," Rev. Norvell said.

"We are using every square inch there is (in the present building)," Rev. Norvell said. "We have the Christian school — grades K through six — and other children's programs. We're exhausting our room."

Rev. Norvell said current attendance at the church on Sundays is in the 60s and 70s. "It stayed around the hundreds during the winter," he added.

Jelly jars wanted

All Methodist women helping prepare for the annual Fall Bazaar at First United Methodist Church are invited to the Bazaar Workshop at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30, in the recreation room.

Small (six to eight-ounce) jars are badly needed by those making jellies and jams to sell in the Bazaar. Anyone who can donate such jars is asked to bring them to the church office.

The Bazaar is scheduled for November.

Singers featured in service

The Manna Group Singers will be featured in services at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the Unified Pentecostal Local Church of Rockport.

Prayer meetings will be conducted as a special service at the church daily from 10 a.m. until noon.

What kills a Christian?

The following article is taken from "The Revelation," newsletter of the First United Methodist Church of Concordia, Kans., by way of the Rockport First United Methodist's "Church Connection" newsletter:

WHAT KILLED IT?

Take a glowing coal from the fire, and lay it aside from the rest of the coals and watch as it gradually dims, then turns to gray, then black. What killed it? Why did it lose its glow and heat?

Take a leafy branch from a tree, lay it carefully aside and watch as the color slowly fades and the leaves go limp, then curl and dry. What killed it? Why did it lose its color and life?

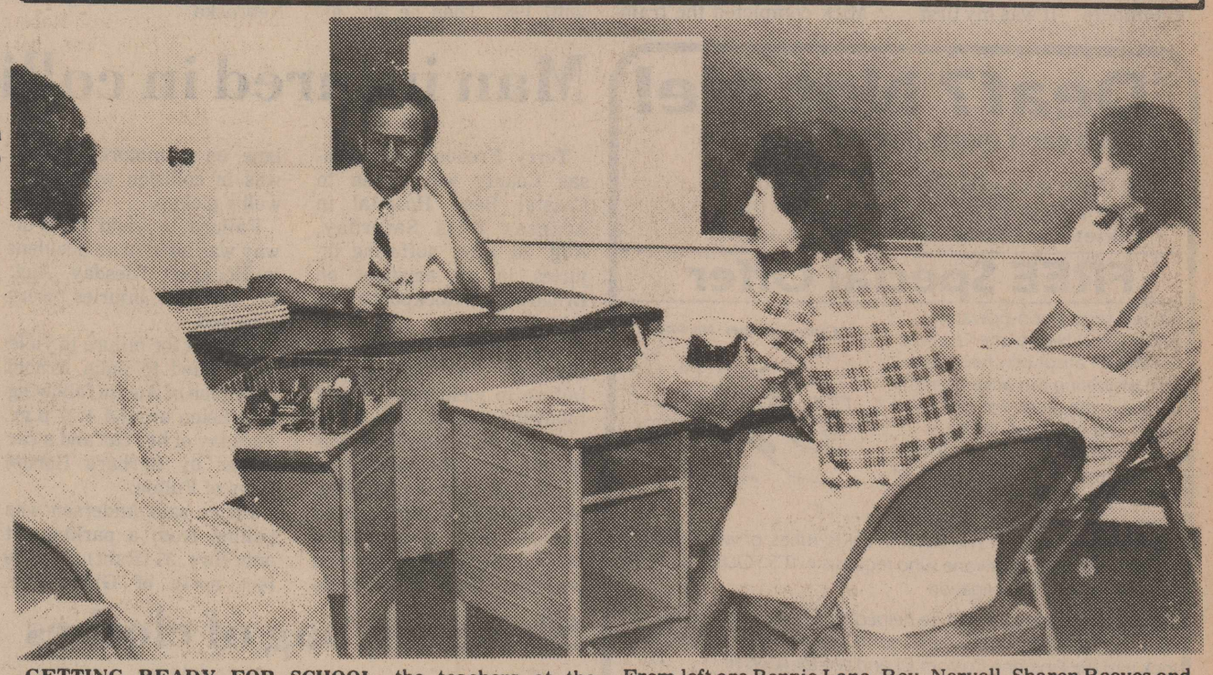

Take a fish out of the water, and lay it carefully in the grass. Watch how it frantically twists and struggles. Why does life ebb away? Why do the gills work slower and slower? Why does it soon lie still and lifeless? What kills it?

Take a child of God and carefully separate him from God and his Christian brothers and sisters. Separate him from prayer, Bible study and worship assemblies. Watch as his conscience quivers less and less. Listen as he rationalizes his neglect more and more. Listen as he tries to shift the blame away from himself by complaining about his circumstances and finding fault with the church. Why does spiritual life wane? Why does the church become less and less important? What kills a once vibrant Christian witness and worker?

"Separation" is a killer. Summer brings many opportunities for becoming separated from the church and regular Bible study, prayer and fellowship. This is a tremendously dangerous time to the Christian. He can find his priorities all fouled up, causing him to "miss a few Sundays," which seems harmless, but irreparable damage can be done. It is always more difficult than we figured to "catch up" on our personal devotional life, on our ministries in the church, and on our financial stewardship. It's bad enough that the church suffers the loss, but the danger to the soul of the Christian is much worse.

A coal can be tossed back into the fire, a branch can be grafted back into place, and the fish can be thrown back into the water, but only the dying Christian can put himself back into the fellowship of God and the Church. No one can do it for him.

If you've been separated from the glowing, growing, living fellowship of the saints this summer, why not get back into it this Sunday?

Buying Key Allegro lot was no mistake

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

"I bought my lot (in Key Allegro) the week before Celia hit," Mick Ladner said. "I thought I'd made a big mistake."

He kept the lot though, and in December 1971 he and his wife, Peg, moved into their home on Catalina — and Mick started getting involved, as a city employee for a couple of years, then with United Savings, the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary . . .

A native of Duquesne, Penn., Mick first saw Texas in 1941, after he was drafted into the Army. He'd graduated from high school in 1936 then, because it was still during the Depression and his parents couldn't afford to send him to college, he worked at temporary jobs until he was called up for the draft.

"They sent my to Camp Wallace, Texas," he remembers. "It was my first time out of Pennsylvania — I thought I was going across the world."

As it turned out, Mick was going across the world — although he didn't know it at the time. "In those days," he said, "you went in (to the Army) for one year, then got out." Except that Mick was drafted in June, and six months later, the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

Mick was stationed in Palacios on Dec. 7, 1941. He remembers, "We immediately got on a train and went to the West Coast supposedly to get on ships, but there were no ships there." He stayed on the West Coast until November 1942 then was sent to the East Coast and officers' training school.

It was there that he and Peg, with whom he'd gone to school, were married. "She had all the arrangements made," he said; the wedding was that December.

Mick completed the training school, was commissioned and sent to Europe where he served with Gen. Patton's 3rd Army. "I was in the Battle of the Bulge . . . I was on the Czechoslovakian border when the war ended."

One of his darker memories of that time was going through the Buchanwald Concentration Camp after it was captured by the Allied forces . . .

After the war, when Mick came home, "they wanted me to stay in the Army," but he returned to Pennsylvania and the steel mills — for six months. "I got tired of the strikes," he said, so in April 1946 he took an exam, was commissioned and was sent to the Philippine Islands, where he was later joined by his wife and two daughters.

It was the beginning of a lot of years of travel for the Ladners. In 1949, Mick was sent back to the States, to Ft. Sill, Okla., where he served until 1953. Then he was assigned for two years to Korea where he commanded a self-propelled artillery unit.

In 1955 he returned to the States, to Ft. Carson, Colo., where he had another artillery unit, and the following year he was stationed in Germany.

"I enjoyed that trip," he said. "I really made friends with a lot of the German people. I was stationed in this beautiful little town, Wertheim . . ."

In 1959, he was shipped to Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., to general staff college then back to Ft. Sill as a training officer with the U. S. Army Artillery Training Center.

In the meantime, Mick added, during all his prior service, he had been adding to his own education through college credit courses in night school. In 1963, the Army gave him a six-months' leave of absence so he could attend the University of Nebraska.

"So 27 years after I graduated from high school," he said, "I finally got my college education."

From the University of Nebraska, both Mick and Peg were sent to another school, the Defense Language Institute in Monterey, Calif., where they took a six months' crash course in the language of Nicaragua — which was where Mick was then sent, in 1964, as a Department of Defense attache.

Mick was in that country until 1967, a period during which he "became pretty close to General (later President) Somoza. He was then a five-star general commanding the National Guard. He was elected president while I was down there — we had a lot of fun."

Mick also "got involved in several of the minor revolutions" during his stay in Nicaragua and was involved in State Department negotiations in 1966 to secure the release of more than 100 Americans then being held hostage by rebels in the Grand Hotel in Managua.

In 1967, Mick was transferred to Ft. Sam Houston and his last assignment, working with the office of the Inspector General conducting confidential investigations for the Army Commander.

"Peg and my family lived in what had been Gen. Eisenhower's old house," he remembers. "People used to come by, wanting to see the house . . ."

Mick was still stationed at Ft. Sam Houston in April 1971 when he retired. By then, he and Peg already had their property on Key Allegro. The decision had been made, he remembers, one day when he and Peg, then visiting in Port Aransas, were "riding around. We took a ride to Key Allegro and Peg said, 'That's it!' " They had found their retirement home.

After coming to Aransas County, Mick went to work for the City of Rockport in 1971. Officially, he said, he was plumbing inspector. "But my main job was to get rid of old junk vehicles around town."

He worked for the city until 1973 when he took over operations of the United Savings office here — "until 1978. Then the interest rates went crazy, people couldn't afford to buy homes any more and I decided, that's enough. That's when I quit and started fooling around with community projects."

Among the "community projects" Ladner became involved with were the Chamber of Commerce which he served as both a director and president; the Rotary, also as director and president; and the Aransas County unit of the American Cancer Society which he served as president.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District, president of the board of directors of Aransas County Medical Services Inc., president of the Key Allegro Men's Club, chairman of the Aransas County Appraisal Review Board.

He is currently chairman of Paws & Taws Inc., the non-profit organization established first to find a new site for the Paws & Taws Building after the property on which it had been sitting was sold and then to raise funds — which Ladner is still working on — to pay for relocating the building.

"I am also," he added, "part-time cook at this (his and Peg's) house."

He enjoys life on Key Allegro, enjoys his community involvements.

What once, a lot of years ago, seemed like a "big mistake" has turned out pretty well.

Man injured in collision

Terry Freeborn of Aransas County was taken to Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass Saturday, Aug. 20, after suffering injuries in an accident on Broadway in Rockport about 5:30 p.m.

Earl Denzel Bardwell of Rockport was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way following the accident.

Police said Bardwell was pulling from the parking lot of a business in the 700 block of Broadway and pulled across both southbound lanes of the street. Freeborn was southbound in the inside lane on a motorcycle and was in collision with Bardwell's pickup.

Failure to yield right-of-way was cited in an accident in Rockport Tuesday, Aug. 23, but no injuries were reported.

A ticket for failure to yield was issued to Zelia Arnold Anderson of Austin following a collision around 4:27 p.m. Tuesday of her car and a car driven by Barbara Horton Hays of Fulton.

Police said Anderson was pulling from a parking lot onto Hwy. 35 (Raht) about 50 feet north of Glass Ave. when she drove into the path of Hays' vehicle.

Failure to control speed was cited as a contributing factor in an accident Monday on Seabreeze Drive just north of Laurel.

According to police, the incident occurred about 1:50 a.m. when Robin Dale Crisp of Rockport, southbound on Seabreeze, went off the shoulder of the road.

Attempting to hit the brake, Crisp reportedly hit the gas pedal instead and lost control of his vehicle which rolled several times Crisp was reported uninjured in the mishap.

Another accident occurred on Seabreeze near Laurel about 11:05 p.m. Sunday when Robert Matthew Logan of Rockport, eastbound on Seabreeze, reached to the floorboard of his pickup for a stereo tape.

Logan lost control of the pickup and ran off the roadway into posts set by the Aransas County Navigation District on the side of the road. Logan was also reported uninjured.

Shotgun, bag of clothes taken in Palm Harbor

A shotgun valued at $75 and a clothes bag containing assorted clothes and valued at $40 were taken in the theft from a residence in Palm Harbor but the clothes bag was subsequently recovered.

County deputies said a small car was observed in the area and, when checked, was found to contain the clothes bag and a sack of pennies reported stolen from an area business.

As of Thursday, no arrests had been reported in the incident.

A car belonging to Ted Sanford of Richardson was reported stolen Tuesday while Sanford was staying at an area motel. The vehicle was subsequently recovered.

Fulton bait stand goes out for bids again

FULTON — The bait-concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier will be readvertised for bids a sixth time, Fulton Secretary Lucille Hinson announced Wednesday, Aug. 24, since the concessioner who had expressed interest in operating the stand backed out before signing the contract.

Randy Bruce was awarded the bid on the stand during the Tuesday, Aug. 2, meeting of the town council. Fulton attorney Gene Garcia then drew up the contract, which was given to Bruce for his examination a week later.

When Fulton did not receive the signed contract, Bruce was contracted. He said there were several items he wanted to discuss before signing and arranged to meet with Garcia on Thursday, Aug. 18, but failed to show up.

Concessionaire fails to sign contract

A prospectus on the stand is available at the Fulton Town Hall. Bids will be accepted until 5 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 6, and will be opened at the council's meeting at 7 p.m. that evening.

The second public hearing regarding annexation of Fulton outlots 106 through 118 was held Tuesday evening, Aug. 23, at Woody Acres Trailer Park. No opposition was heard and the area has officially become part of the town.

Milton R. Dunlap and Garabed A. Harutunian of Triad Engineering in Austin are working on a master plan for a sewage system for the Town of Fulton. The plan will be submitted as part of the application for a sewer grant from the Texas Department of Community Affairs' Texas Community Development Program.

The town council will hold a budget workshop at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30.

Zoning

both as a resident of the subdivision and an attorney representing Harbor Oaks residents, reiterated that the council could not, legally, adopt an ordinance making zoning more lenient than the deed restrictions in the subdivision.

Rockport Mayor Burt Mills asked if there was anyone in the audience to speak in favor of the zoning request and, on receiving no reply, expressed appreciation to the residents who came to Tuesday's meeting.

City Manager Herman Johnson told those present that the zoning request had been placed on the agenda because, "when someone puts in a zoning request, the city staff cannot act as a council or zoning board. We cannot remove that request from the agenda."

Following a separate meeting of the zoning board after the public hearing, the zoning commission recommended that the council deny the request on the basis of conflict with the deed restrictions.

The zoning commission had no recommendation on a request by Linard F. Day Jr. for a special use permit to allow construction of a private fishing pier adjacent to 1401 S. Water in Rockport.

That request met protest from two nearby property owners who told the council there is already a parking problem as a result of Day's converting a residence into a motel and said construction of a pier would only aggravate that problem.

Jack Guillett, chairman of the zoning board, told the council a motion had been made during the board's meeting and that the vote on that motion was tied, 3-3. The zoning board therefore had no recommendation.

Rockport Alderman Betty Jean Ward initially moved to deny the request but subsequently withdrew her motion in favor of one from Alderman Richard Beck to table the matter pending further study. That motion was seconded by Alderman Murray McMillan and adopted 4-0.

Wilcox's request, which was recommended for approval by the zoning board, was to allow construction of the three piers south of Lot 7, Block 5 in Key Allegro Unit 1. Although Key Allegro is not in Rockport's city limits, the bay is in which the piers are to be located and a special use permit was therefore necessary before the piers can be constructed.

Blankert for treasurer. Dale Rolland and Edwina Stranahan were nominated to serve on the board of directors. Added to the list of those running for the board of directors were Jim Metzner and Blas Ramirez. Both men are currently serving on the board but their terms expire shortly.

Additional nominations will be taken from the floor on the night of the elections.

A motion by Edwina Stranahan and seconded by Ralph Winkelman to get ACTA on the mailing list for permit applications notices from the Army Corps of Engineers was approved by the membership during Tuesday evening's meeting.

J.C. Harlan made a motion to award a $20 prize to the ACTA member bringing the most members or friends to next month's meeting. The motion was seconded by Gilbert Whitcomb and approved by a majority of the members present.

Changing the association's meeting date was discussed by members. The suggested alternative is the fourth Monday of every month instead of the fourth Tuesday of the month as it is now. The question will be brought before the association's executive committee at their next meeting before it is brought back before the membership during the September meeting.

District

This reduction brought the proposed budget for valuation and appraisal fees from $53,000 to $40,000, $800 less than was budgeted for 1983, and reduced the total "other services and charges" budget from an originally proposed $116,590 to $103,590 for 1984.

During the budget workshop Wednesday, Groseclose pointed out to the district that the bulk of the $1,000 budgeted for office furniture and equipment in capital outlay is to replace equipment such as calculators. "We bought most of the office equipment used and it wears out," Groseclose said.

Other expenditures proposed under the 1984 budget include $13,000 for employee benefits: group hospital insurance, retirement, workman's compensation and unemployment insurance. This is a 6 percent increase over the 1983 budget of $12,267.

A breakdown of these figures shows an increase in group hospital insurance from $3,760 in 1983 to $4,300 in 1984; workman's comp up from $500 to $600; and unemployment up from $700 to $800. The amount budgeted for retirement for 1984 is $7,300 — $7 less than in 1983.

The proposed budget for supplies is $10,000, $500 more than for 1983, with $200 of the increase being for "forms and printing" — budgeted at $700 in 1984 — and the remaining $300 going into the "books and subscriptions" budget which is proposed at $800 for the coming year.

Other cost increases are budgeted for data processing, $19,800 for 1984 compared to a 1983 budget of $17,000; a $500 increase for bookkeeping and auditing services, budgeted at $3,300; a $300 increase in the telephone budget, $1,800; $200 for utilities, budgeted at $2,000 for 1984.

A $50 increase is budgeted for rental of office equipment, anticipated to cost $350 in 1984. The $2,500 proposed for maintenance of office equipment is $200 higher than for '83 and the $900 for insurance and bond premiums represents a $100 increase over 1983.

The capital outlay budget of $1,500 — which includes $1,000 for office furniture and equipment and $500 for "miscellaneous" — is the same as for 1983.

No action was taken by the appraisal district board of directors at Wednesday's meeting other than to call the public hearing date. In addition to Shelton and Shirey, board members Jerry Ledbetter and George Taggart III were present. Board member Horace Naquin was absent.

The switch was recommended by City Manager Herman Johnson who told the council that, effective Oct. 1, the premium for no-deductible coverage was going to increase from $41.34 to $60.07 per employee per month.

Johnson said by switching to the $100 deductible plan, the city would save $5,966 per year. He added employees would also save under the new plan on the cost of covering their dependents.

The council adopted on second reading an ordinance adopting an increase in the Updated Service Credit and Annuity to city employees covered under the Texas Municipal Retirement System.

First reading was given to an ordinance that will close Live Oak Street between 2nd and 3rd streets and authorize sale of the property to Juanita Wagley for the appraised price of $9,600. The ordinance must be read a second time before it can be approved.

The council voted to hold a workshop Thursday, Aug. 25, on capital improvements, annexation, city hall expansion and an agreement relating to the city's effluent ditch.

Also adopted was a resolution urging Gov. Mark White to place on the agenda of any special session of the Texas Legislature remedial legislation to correct an oversight of the Legislature in the current Municipal Courts Continuing Education Bill.

The current bill provides that 50 cents will be added to municipal court fines to go to the state for funding the muncipal courts continuing education program. But no provision was made for getting this money out of the state's general fund.

The resolution adopted by the council urges Gov. White to place consideration of such a provision before the Legislature in a special session.

Rockport Mayor Burt Mills read a letter from San Patricio County announcing an increase in the fees the county will charge Rockport for unloading garbage trucks at the Gregory landfill. The new fee, to be effective Jan. 1, 1984, will go from the present $1.75 to $2 per cubic yard of refuse.

Funds

"We will spend $19,000 more this year and that cannot continue. We can raise the 2-cent tax, or come in with a motel tax or charge 50 cents a car to use the beach."

Newly elected Commissioner Roy Hicks said he felt the cost of collecting the 50 cents per car would be greater than what would be taken in.

Hal B. McKnight, newly ,elected, at-large commissioner, said the 50 cents per car should bring in about $1,350 per day to the Aransas County Navigation District.

Aransas County Harbor Master, Bernie DeForest, said he felt something needs to be done about many of the cabanas on the beach that are in bad condition and he told the commissioners there is a serious problem with the breaking away of the shoulder of the mile-long beach road.

Dominguez asked Augustine if he could have a report ready in 30 days and Augustine said he would like more time.

McKnight told the other board members, "What we need to go for are some funds for this road, maybe a grant that would pave that road. We put a light in and we end up paying the bill for the light."

Tillman told McKnight the only way the ACND could get a grant for the road would be if the road was connected to a new park.

"I know we need more money, increasing taxes isn't popular and I will always be apposed to charging to use the beach. The motel/hotel tax would hurt our community the least," said Augustine.

The commissioners then entered a discussion on the motel/hotel tax and Hicks said that other counties have one and he said he would favor one for Aransas County. "I wouldn't think motel operators would object to it if they are below the surrounding rates."

No action was taken on the proposed motel/hotel tax and the board will wait for a report from Augustine.

Capital punishment, prison favored by majority of Texans

TFCS survey results

Texans overwhelmingly favor strong measures to combat crime, according to a recent survey commissioned by the Texas Foundation for Conservative Studies (TFCS), Dick Collins, president of the TFCS, said today.

In the survey, which was conducted by Arthur J. Finkelstein and Associates, Texans favor capital punishment, mandatory prison sentences and a crime victims bill of rights. It also showed that Texans want the state government to spend more money on law enforcement and the construction of prison facilities.

"The results showed that a substantial majority of Texans — almost 75 percent — approve of capital punishment. And, an even greater majority of Texans — 85.6 percent — believe in mandatory prison sentences for specific crimes.

"The support for capital punishment and mandatory prison sentences cuts across ideological lines with the majorities of liberal, moderate and conservative Texans in favor of both concepts," Collins said.

Collins also noted that Texans strongly support a crime victims bill of rights, with 62.5 percent approving and only 19.8 percent disapproving.

"Victims of crime have been virtually ignored in the criminal justice system. Our survey showed that Texans believe that crime victims also have rights that need to be addressed.

"The Foundation recently published a study that provided the research for a law that passed the state legislature during the past session. Our study dealt with the issue of crime victims restitution centers and how to make them work," Collins said.

Another question asked on the TFCS survey was whether Texans want more or less state money spent on law enforcement and on construction of prison facilities.

Collins noted that an overwhelming majority of Texans surveyed want more money spent on law enforcement, with 74.4 percent saying more state money should be spent, 18.5 percent saying that the current amount spent is sufficient and only 4.6 wanting less money spent for law enforcement.

"The majority of Texans also want more money spent for the construction of prison facilities," Collins said. "Our survey indicated that 55.4 percent said more money should be spent on construction of prison facilities, while 16.3 percent wanted the amount to remain the same and 19.3 percent wanted less money spent."

The TFCS is a policy research and education organization that seeks to define critical problems facing Texas, and to develop practical conservative solutions to these problems and to articulate these solutions to the public.

Make Someone Happy

Card of Thanks

I WOULD LIKE TO TAKE this time to give a word of thanks to all the people who came to my aid — the EMS personnel, my fellow associates & all the other people who helped me, but, most of all, I'd like to thank the person or person who freed my finger from the machine it was caught in.

Thank you very much. All of you

Donna Sanchez

Carefree Lawns Inc. can give you beautiful care-free lawn

Part-time as well as full-time residents have always had a problem maintaining the beauty of their lawns and gardens when they are busy or not in town. For homeowners who want to put these worries behind them, Carefree Lawns Inc. can help.

Carefree Lawns Inc. of Sinton is run by partners Ira Higginbotham and Harvey Fromme. The firm provides sprinkler and drip irrigation systems and does everything from design and installation to service.

Ira is a former Extension agent whose special area of knowledge is irrigation and landscaping. He is licensed by the state of Texas as an irrigator.

Carefree Lawns Inc. will design sprinkler and irrigation systems for residential or commercial lawns. In addition, the firm can design low-maintenance landscaping. They usually select hardy native plants which do not require a lot of pruning and may not require a lot of water.

Between Ira and Harvey, they carry close to 25 years experience in landscaping and irrigation.

"A sprinkler system is not as expensive as most people think," Ira says, since sprinkler systems are designed to use water efficiently. In addition, these systems will generally use less water than someone using a hose would. Carefree Lawns Inc. gives free estimates.

Another point Ira emphasizes is that a sprinkler system is an investment in a piece of property that will increase the value of that property.

Carefree Lawns Inc. is located in Sinton. Interested persons may call collect 1-364-3900 from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. After hours or on weekends call 1-368-8902 or 1-528-2052.

TIPS ON TRIPS

Booklet Offers Tips To Guard Against Theft

Because their purses are generally in plain view, women suffer seven out of ten card thefts, reports a new booklet that offers tips to travelers to guard against thefts.

The booklet, called "International Travel," also provides useful travel information, such as a list of holidays in 35 countries, world time and metric conversion.

Written by Visa International, the booklet cautions women not to leave a purse unattended under any circumstances. It says many thefts occur when a purse is laid aside momentarily in a crowded setting, such as a restaurant or shopping area.

A few other tips are:

- Make a list of card numbers, including addresses and telephone numbers of issuers to aid in promptly reporting lost or stolen cards.
- Leave unnecessary cards at home in a secure place.
- Check your cards and travellers cheques periodically.

A copy of the booklet is available by sending a self-addressed envelope bearing 40 cents postage to: Visa International, Public Relations Dept., P.O. Box 8999, San Francisco, CA 94128.

"The sinner who spends and gives away is better than the devotee who begs and lays by." Sadi

Parson Jones

Once in a while a college professor says something profound. Our local intellect, Dr. Longview, said recently, "History repeats itself!" What this great prophet forgot to tell us was that every time history repeats itself the price goes up. In fact, he failed to observe that there have been so many "repeats" that a lot of folks are going broke....including churches. Nothing looks worse than a church going out of business, so now an enterprising group of clergy has come up with a crash course in "church survival".

I went to one in our area....to see how one could "crash" and "survive" in the same course. A number of successful preachers gave their own reasons for "making it big". Dr. Airway, noted radio and TV preacher, declared that keeping those cards and letters coming in is what kept his money coming in. The Rev. Healmore confirmed the value of radio and TV. "I've healed a lot of people who just touched their sets, and in turn they sent money to God, through me.

One clergy advocated the "Warm Bodies" approach. "The more people you get to church, the more money you'll get!" he said. Another man of God suggested chicken suppers followed by bingo games. The Rev. Doctor Fiskel said it was time to get back to basics. "We need to cut the fat in our churches and deal with our needs....water, light, heat, air conditioning, comfortable pews, and a nice building."

The only time I ever heard more noise than I did at this survival course, was at a Gooney Bird Farm! Jesus never said anything about our keeping the church alive! The Good Book calls the church "the body of Jesus Christ".

How To Shape Up Your Space

DECORATING FOR LESS

A new look for your old house at minimal expense.

You can transform one room or the entire house for amazingly little expense, by using your own ingenuity and a bit of do-it-yourself-ism.

This attractive window treatment is a good case in point. It illustrates what can be done with a plain wall by adding paint, pillars, paneling and some attractive, airy lattice work.

The pillars and lattice-work arches are an easy-to-build system with vertical members made of fir 1x6s nailed together in a U shape. Molding is attached at the floor and about two-thirds of the way up. Molding also forms a track for the arches.

The window unit is actually a prefabricated greenhouse unit that brings summer indoors, no matter what the season. Deep enough for large, potted plants, the unit is fitted into a 34 and 1/2 inch opening.

THE REAL ESTATE CONSUMER

Real property is bundle of rights

Real property consists of a bundle of rights. For example, ownership of real property confers on the owner the right to possess and enjoy land and buildings, the right to use them, the right to sell all or part of them and the right to pass them to heirs.

The case of leased real estate is a common example of a split bundle. For a periodic payment of rent, the owner has temporarily surrendered to another the right to possess and enjoy the land and buildings. At the end of the term, that portion of the bundle of rights leased to another returns to the lessor, and the bundle of rights becomes whole once more.

During the term of the lease, the tenant holds a leasehold estate and has a property right of specified duration. During the lease period, the landlord holds a diminished set of rights to the land and buildings. But each party has an interest in real property.

Foreign investment small problem in Texas

Foreign investors now own nearly one million acres of Texas agricultural land. This represents six-tenths of 1 percent of all privately owned agricultural land in Texas.

As a comparison, two million acres of Maine's forest land are owned by corporations in which foreigners own nearly one million acres each in Georgia and California.

In August 1982, the Governor's Task Force on Foreign Investments in Texas found the amount of Texas farmland acquired by foreign interests to be minimal. The task force concluded that there is nothing sinister or wrong with the acquisition of some Texas farmland by foreigners. It did recommend that the Texas Department of Agriculture continue to monitor, analyze and distribute information about foreign investment in Texas agricultural land.

Lower interest rates stimulate housing market

Existing single-family home sales in the United States are expected to total 2.7 million units in 1983, well above the 1.9 million homes sold in 1982.

This is according to the National Association of Realtors' most recent outlook for real estate. The reason, say the Realtors, is lower mortgage interest rates that have led to improvements in the pace of the resale market.

According to the NAR, total resales will likely surpass three million units in 1984 and could reach 3.5 million units in 1985. For all of 1983, the NAR predicts about 1.6 million new housing units to be started — 50 percent above the 1982 level. The Realtors also predict the number of new-home sales to increase to about 600,000 units this year — up from 417,000 last year.

Texas population growth

Texas' rapid growth has given the state's real estate industry a big edge over other states. Never before in its history has Texas added so many people as in the last dozen years.

The state added over three million people during the 1970s and another one million between census day, 1980 and July 1, 1982. During the 15-month period immediately following the national census, Texas was the No. 1 population growth state. And all of these additional people have to be housed. Many of them form new businesses and purchase business sites. Others increase the demand for office space and invest in real estate ventures of different kinds.

Thus, the Texas real estate industry has a real advantage over other states whose populations are growing more slowly, or, as in the case of five states, are actually experiencing population losses in the 1980s.

Land office resources offered

AUSTIN — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro responded to the devastation of the Texas Gulf Coast and the suffering of its residents in the wake of Hurricane Alicia by offering the expertise and resources of the General Land Office to individuals affected by the storm and to other state agencies.

"I'm extending the full resources of this agency to help preserve and rebuild our fragile Texas Gulf Coast. Texans are blessed with a beautiful and unique natural heritage in our coastal area and our agency will do everything under its authority to maintain and restore this beautiful and productive resource," Mauro pledged.

The General Land Office is responsible for managing the state's coastal lands and waterways and monitoring and protecting environmentally sensitive areas.

Mauro said his agency will provide aerial photo surveillance of the entire Texas Gulf Coast affected by the hurricane to other state agencies and that other agencies are invited to participate in the flights as observers.

Mauro, who serves as chairman of the School Land Board, said he will request that the board waive for one year the normal permit fees required for the rebuilding of privately-owned cabins, piers and docks destroyed by the storm. Structures must be rebuilt at the same location and to the same dimensions.

The same waiver will also be requested for counties that administer fishing piers that were damaged or destroyed.

Mauro said his agency will lend its expertise and technical assistance to local governments to aid in rebuilding and revegetating damaged sand dunes along the coast.

Mauro will also request a grace period on dredging fees associated with maintenance necessary to unclog migratory channels for fish or to reopen clogged channels associated with the oil and gas drilling industry and other commercial endeavors.

Carlton Bell, deputy commissioner for Land Management, said that the hurricane's 115-mile-an-hour winds altered numerous coastal boundary lines, creating unintentional violations of the Open Beaches Act. Bell said his staff will work with the attorney general's office "to resolve questions brought about by the realignment of these property lines."

Service receives Hockaday award

The Texas Marine Advisory Service (MAS) received the Hockaday Memorial Award for outstanding service at this summer's Texas International Fishing Tournament (TIFT). Jay Meade, president of TIFT Inc., presented the award that was created in 1967 in memory of the tourney's founder, J.A. Hockaday.

"We consider the Hockaday Award one of our highest awards," said Meade. It is a perpetual award, given at the discretion of tournament officials to someone who has shown dedication and a willingness to work extra hard to support and improve TIFT. Usually the award is given to an individual; MAS was the first group to receive it.

The tournament, held this year during the first week in August, was one of several that MAS participated in this summer.

"At tournaments," explained Rich Tillman, marine agent in Aransas and San Patricio counties, "MAS researchers check entries to be sure that frozen fish, caught long before a tournament begins, aren't allowed to compete for trophies or prize monies. In some tournaments, like TIFT, fish must also be judged to be in edible condition. Fish are checked in a mobile seafood quality and safety lab that MAS also uses to run seafood quality tests for Texas seafood industries and to provide university researchers with information about seafood processing."

At TIFT, Debbie Ellis, a master's degree candidate in food science technology, and Brenda Holt, a bachelor's degree candidate in food science technology, manned the mobilelab. Annettee Reddell Hegen, MAS seafood consumer education specialist, demonstrated how to prepare smoked fish. Tony Reisinger, MAS marine agent for Cameron County, was assistant weighmaster. Darrell Freeman, a master's degree candidate in Texas A&M University's Recreation and Parks Department, interviewed tournament officials and gathered background information for an in-depth socioeconomic study of TIFT.

"The study will combine economic information with a survey of participants' likes and dislikes. It should give data that will help Texans plan future tournaments based on what we learn about what works best," said Freeman.

"Part of the study is aimed at giving us an idea of how much money is spent during the five-day tournament. We'll estimate the initial local impact of those dollars plus the secondary impact the money has when it's respent in the county. There's a multiplying effect. Tournament-goers pay for meals, lodging, fuel, ice, bait and other items. That represents income, above what would normally be available to local businesses, that can be respent by local owners and operators. For every dollar spent at TIFT, it looks as though probably 67 cents is added to the economy at the county level," Freeman said.

Freeman talked with tournament officials about TIFT's history and goals before and during the tournament. This fall he is mailing out a survey to all adult fishermen who participated in each of the fishing divisions: offshore, bay, surf and tarpon. He hopes to have a rough draft of findings by October.

Melva J. Hodges completes training

Melva J. Hodges, daughter of the Rev. Melvin Hodges of 6734 Glen Oaks Drive, Baton Rouge, La., and Tommie Brown of 604 E. Ave. H., Robstown, has completed training in fundamental military skills at the Army ROTC basic camp at Fort Knox, Ky.

The basic camp is designed to give junior college graduates and college sophomores who have not taken ROTC courses the chance to enter the program. The camp also qualifies high school graduates for the ROTC program at any of the nation's six military junior colleges.

During the encampment, cadets received training in basic rifle marksmanship, military drill and ceremonies, communications and individual and small unit tactics.

Hodges plans to enter the ROTC program at Prairie View A&M College.

She is a 1982 graduate of Robstown High School.

Future of gardening is full of possibilities, says expert

Looking ahead and speculating about the future of gardening offers a lot of interesting possibilities.

Plant scientists and researchers have made great strides in improving methods and making the gardener's lot in life a little easier. But the future holds even more innovative time- and labor-saving ideas that will make landscape and garden maintenance easier, believes a horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

For instance, plant breeders are developing smaller, more compact plants to satisfy the landscape requirements of smaller homes and residential lots, says Everett E. Janne. Smaller plants will mean less need for pruning and easier care, such as insect and disease control.

Breeders are also working on vegetable and flower varieties which will be resistant to diseases, such as the new tomato varieties that are resistant to verticillium wilt, fusarium wilt and nematodes, Janne points out.

More biological controls are being developed as a safer means for homeowners to control insects, says the horticulturist. One, usually referred to as B.T. (bacillus thuringiensis), is already on the market and is being used to control loopers and catepillars in home gardens. Use of sterile males to reduce populations is also being developed. This technique has reduced and almost eliminated the screwworm and Mediterranean fruit fly.

Plant breeders have also developed sterile lines of bedding plants, such as tetraploid or mule marigolds, which produce only flowers and no seeds.

Growth-regulating chemicals are also being researcher, notes Janne, but because of the minute quantities and close tolerances of these chemicals, they cannot yet be released for general distribution. But the potential exists for replacing lawn mowers and hedge trimmers by simply spraying with a growth regulator.

Biodegradable containers which will disintegrate when buried in the soil are being developed.

Slow-release fertilizers are another innovation and are constantly being improved, says the horticulturist. Someday it may be possible to combine a slow-release fertilizer with a growth regulator, apply the mix to the lawn in early spring, and keep the grass green all summer with little or no mowing, Janne predicts.

These are just a few of the futuristic possibilities that gardeners may be dealing with in the years ahead, notes Janne.

MAE WEST
THE ONE AND ONLY

At the end of her long career, Mae West was able to look back on her life and say: "There'll never be another star like me."

Mae's forthright approach to sex shocked the world when she burst on the scene in the early 1930s and her famous one-liners are still being repeated today.

Born on August 17, 1892, in Brooklyn, New York, Mae West went the usual route of appearing on stage and in vaudeville as a teenager.

She appeared on Broadway in the musical "Sometime" (where she danced the shimmy for the first time) and then began to write her own material. Mae's talents always leaned toward composing her own lines with her career consisting of a number of successful plays and movies where her writing made the vehicle a hit.

"Diamond Lil" was Mae's most famous stage play and it served as a base for two subsequent films. It was after Mae's debut appearance in "Night After Night" that Paramount signed her to make the film version of "Diamond Lil."

George Raft was originally intended to benefit most from "Night After Night"...the movie was written with him in mind. However, when the forty-one year old blond bombshell got her hands on the script and added her own interpretation of the role, "Night After Night" turned into a Mae West success.

The first of Mae's well-known quips came from her first movie. When Mae walked into Raft's night club to check her coat, the girl noticed her jewelry. "Goodness, what beautiful diamonds," said the hat check girl. "Goodness," replied Mae, "had nothing to do with it." As Raft ruefully remarked at the end of filming, "She stole everything but the camera."

"Beulah, peel me a grape," was another Mae West classic statement made in "I'm No Angel." And the ultimate, of course, was the original remark of "Why don't you come up sometime, see me," spoken to Cary Grant in "She Done Him Wrong," which has been slightly altered over the years.

Mae was, incidentally, responsible for Grant's casting as the Salvation Army man in that 1933 production. She spotted him on the Paramount lot and knew that there was always room for his kind of looks in her movies.

By 1936, Mae West was the second highest paid person in the country, exceeded only by William Randolph Hearst, who was not amused by Mae. Neither were many other moralists of the time.

Six months after "She Done Him Wrong" was released, the Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures was formed - whose main creed was denouncing the American motion picture of the thirties as tending to promote immorality.

'The Code' was a direct result of the Committee's actions, and Will Hays worked diligently to bring back America's morals.

Mae West, whose risque performance started the whole furore, bowed to the dictates of the Code. Her new film, entitled "It Ain't No Sin," was quickly re-christened to "I'm No Angel." Mae wasn't - and her fans loved her that way.

At the grand old age of 87, the original blonde bombshell died quietly in her Ravenswood, Los Angeles apartment. After being blessed by the Roman Catholic priest from her church, she fell into a peaceful sleep and died five minutes later. It was November 23, 1980 - and the end of an era.

At Six Flags Stars Hall of Fame in Orlando, Florida, Mae West appears on the set of "She Done Him Wrong." The dress worn by the Mae West wax figure was reproduced with the help of original designer, Edith Head and the paste jewels were donated to Stars Hall of Fame by Mae West to be on permanent display in the museum.

RISKY BUSINESS, from Warner Bros. Written and directed by Paul Brickman. Starring Tom Cruise, Rebecca DeMornay, Joe Pantoliano. Rated 'R' ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

If the spate of teen scream movies seems to be waning it is only because filmmakers are discovering that it's just as profitable to have teen-agers take their clothes off as it is to chop their heads off, slow-motion or otherwise. Current films in release such as "Class" with Jacqueline Bisset and "Private Lessons" give every sign that a new trend of films is on its way, the post-pubescent sex farce.

The most successful of these is "Porky's" (which was originally rated "X" by the way) and its sequel, "Porky's II." "Risky Business" at first glance may appear as just another in the trend. It is, but so far, it's the best of the lot.

Exploitation films of this variety thrive on the simplicity of the situation: a little story, a lot of skin. "Risky Business" actually takes a few risks, and dares to make a few comments on youth, capitalism, and the American dream, while still including a little sex.

Most teens might be happy to know, however, that "Risky Business" can be enjoyed on a superficial level. Joel is a high-school senior worried about what college he's going to and his future in general, but right now he's got the entire house to himself while his parents are on vacation. Goaded on by his friends, he summons up enough courage to call a call girl. A few mishaps later, such as dunking his father's Porsche into Lake Michigan, Joel needs some cash quick, and his risky business has him operating a high-school house of ill repute.

Writer/Director Paul Brickman shows signs of being a major talent. His comedic eye is just right, with some clever visual gags. His script avoids the cheap joke, even though the temptation must have been strong.

The tone here is more that of an allegorical tale of "the American way." It might be morally reprehensible that the whorehouse business gets Joel into Princeton, but, says Brickman, this is junior achievement only a few exaggerated steps from senior achievement.

Week of August 28-Septembper 3

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Don't trust anyone who offers to do you a "tremendous" favor for nothing. Be on guard for you could be mislead by this person at your expense.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) Be careful not to spend more than you can really afford. Look for bargains that are real and not just "doctored" up for the sake of a sale.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) If someone is constantly on your mind and in your heart, do something about it, don't brood and hope that everything turns out well.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) You could become involved in something very slight but it could inconvenience you for a long while. Haste makes waste.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) Get involved in all forms of good entertainment. You are in the mood for the time of your life and it's now or never.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Work may be humdrum and you don't like playing second fiddle to someone who may not be as talented as you. Beware of that person's offer of friendship.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Be comfortable in your usual surroundings and try not to economize in areas that are unnecessary. You may find that you become unproductive in so doing and earn much less moneywise.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Love and romance do not go hand-in-hand with finances. Keep both separate and you'll be happy you did. Accept social engagements and enjoy yourself more with friends.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you feel you are going to be successful in a new area of business, try it, don't hesitate, otherwise you will later wonder about your present lack of courage.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) A new face in your usual circle of friends could intrigue you more than you are willing to admit. Take the time to meet this person and learn to enjoy his or her company.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) You humanitarian ideals may conflict with a desire to get ahead at the expense of many friends and co-workers. Don't let the world tell you about the honorable poor, just do your thing.

The Wine Rack

FRENCH WINE TOURS

The origins of the lovely vineyards we now associate with the country of France date back to ancient times -- 600 BC when the Phoenicians cultivated the wild grapes already growing in the area of Marseille. Oenophiles, amateurs and everyone else who seriously appreciates good wine surely longs to see the exquisite countryside where the world's most famous wines are made.

A travel organization, The World of Oz (3 East 54th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10022, (212) 751-3250, organizes "Roads of Wine" tours to Burgundy and Bordeaux throughout the summer and through October (when airfares are often lower). Air France offers reular flights from New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Houston.

The ten-day tour of Burgundy (land costs $1690) offers an exploration into the historical architectural treasures of the area (the Old Port, the fortified village of St. Paul de Vence, the Palance fo the Popes in Avignon), as well as a gourmet adventure into some of the best french cuisine -- Michelin three-star restaurants such as Moulin de Mougins, Paul Bocuse, and Bonne Auberge, are visited during the tour. The wines of Burgundy -- the perenially favored Beaujolais, and the highly esteemed white Burgundies, often described as the world's best white wines, from Solutre and Pouilly-Fuisse -- offer a special enticement to the palate.

The eight-day Bordeaux tour ($1645 covers land costs) includes visits to Orleans, Chambord, the chateau of Francois 1st, Chinon (where Joan of Arc met Charles VII), and La Rochelle. Restaurants included are Barrier, Lucas Carton, Dubern and Moulin de la Molle for fresh foie gras.

SOAP BUBBLES

By Seli Groves

TELESCOOP: Another column hint confirmed: Jacqueline Courtney (Pat, "One Life To Live") is leaving the show. Dorothy Lyman will leave "All My Children." She has signed an exclusive contract with NBC.

Nancy Stafford (ex "Doctors") is now on "St. Elsewhere." Her beaming beau, Michael J. Stark (ex "Guiding Light" and "Edge of Night") gave us the good news. Michael also revealed he has several exciting film and TV projects in the works in the Florida area. TIP: Keep your eye on Stark and Stafford; they're a team for many reasons.

Damion Scheller (Josh, "Search For Tomorrow") wouldn't be born for nearly 20 years after the 1951 debut of his soap. In those days, all soaps were done live. Later, of course, they were all taped at least ten days before air date. Well, it turns out that the tapes for the August 4 segment mysteriously disappeared. "Search" producer Joanna Lee assembled her talented troupe of thespians and on August 4 they did the show live. Damion, 13, is, what they call in the business, a quick and accurate study. Needless to say, he not only came through the show well, he was the only member of the cast who got every word in every line absolutely right.

P.S. At this writing, no one yet knows who the worm was who took the tapes. Could you justifiably call him a "tape worm"???

Melinda Cordell (Natalie, "General Hospital") owns a play that shows what life in the dancers' world is really like and hopes to have it produced soon. Meanwhile, the dancer and actress (ex "Somerset," "Search," "Edge of Night" and "Young & The Restless") says about her "GH" character: "I find Natalie exciting and full of hidden depths which I look forward to learning more about as I play her."

SOAP SCRAPS: John Wesley Shipp (Kelly, "Guiding Light") owns a rare record album on which the great opera singer, Eileen Farrell, sings classic blues songs. Shipp, also a fine operatic singer, isn't at all blue about the prospects of sharing some love scenes with his new "GL" co-star, Susan Pratt (Claire) ... Although Shipp and Pratt will "play doctor" only on screen, Christian LeBlanc (Kirk McColl, "As The World Turns") actually studied medicine at Tulane University before the acting bug bit and produced a delightfully incurable maladay: showbusinessitis. (Aren't we fortunate the malady lingers on for folks like Chris?) Anyway, Chris, who hails from Cajun country, can whomp up a mean mess of tasty Louisiana fixin's ... Also from Louisiana is Taylor Miller (Nina, "All My Children") who can turn out great cooking as well. But it's what "AMC" is cooking up for Ms. Nina that should have soap fans salivating ... Phil Brown (Steve, "Search") is not just a good skate; he's also a fine skater. He does all his own stunts in a roller skating role on a "Tucker's Witch" segment ... Jeremy Slate returns as Chuck to "One Life To Live" for six months.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

Which are safer medicines: prescription medicines or non prescription medicines?—A.M.

According to a recent survey, most people think that prescription medicines are safer than non prescription medicines. The truth is all medicines should be considered powerful and therefore potentially dangerous. In addition, prescription medicines are more powerful and have a greater potential for being more dangerous.

What can I do to prevent chigger bites? Also, what is a good remedy for them? — K.H.

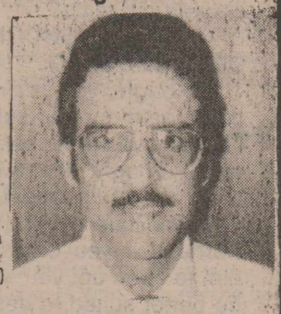

You can prevent these bites by wearing high boots and closely knitted clothing with tight fitting edges. Also, insect repellents applied to the skin or flower of sulfur on the clothing may help. If you are bitten, take a hot bath as soon as possible. This will rid the body of most of them.

Do many medicines reach the public before they are found to be too dangerous and must be removed? — S.E.

The Federal Drug Administration has approved over 580 new drugs for marketing during recent years. Of this number, approximately 16 have been recalled. Three of those were removed because of safety reasons. The others were removed for technical reasons, such as failure to report to the government periodically as required by law.

SCHOOL'S IN DRIVE CAREFULLY

Dear Debbie

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

DEAR DEBBIE:

After several happy years of marriage, or so I thought, my husband has just come home to tell me he wants a divorce. I am so shocked. I never suspected in my wildest dreams that he was unhappy. I have begged him to please reconsider, but he is adamant. Please help me, Debbie. I don't want to lose my husband. I love him and our life together too much to lose him. How can I get him to change his mind?

SHOCKED

DEAR SHOCKED

Although you haven't come right out and said it, I suspect you didn't ask him what brought this whole thing about. I suggest you waste no time in doing this. Perhaps if you could get him to open up, you would be better suited to dealing with whatever problems exist.

Once you have established what the problem is, seek a marriage counselor. If your husband will not go, I suggest you go by yourself. With the help of the counselor, perhaps the two of you can eventually see your way through this crisis.

* * *

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am a successful, liberated career woman of the 80's. I certainly don't harbor any hopes of settling down at home, keeping the home fires burning! In fact, I never did. However, I have become involved with a most wonderful man and I find myself doing the most extraordinary things.

I actually enjoy doing domestic chores for this man. I also find myself becoming embarrassingly dependent on him. I'm quite uncomfortable with this, but can't seem to be able to help it.

What disturbs me most is that the very qualities that attracted this man to me were my independence and aggression. If I lose these, will he become disinterested? Also, why on earth am I becoming what I've always despised — a clinging vine?

VERY CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED

Let me reassure you, there is nothing unusual happening here. As I've stated before, we are all victims, to a certain extent, of conditioning. While not knowing your background, I would find it safe to assume you were exposed to "typical" housewives and mothers as role models, perhaps this was not the case in your home, but in your friends' homes and on television.

Therefore, it is only natural that since you've become seriously involved with a man, you try to please him (subconsciously) in ways you've always seen other women please their men. Believe me, this in no way classifies you as a "clinging vine." The same holds true for the man involved. While he is attracted to your strength, I would venture to say there is a part of him that responds very well to your "typical" feminine behavior. Of course, it would probably be difficult for him to consciously verbalize this, but I'm sure he's somewhat aware of it. However, if you're really upset about this, just be direct. Tell him how you feel about what's happening. Get his thoughts on it. I'm sure you'll be quite reassured at the outcome.

Why 'Tree' resprouted

By Kate Woods

Cast of 'Family Tree'

I'm glad to see "Family Tree" is back on again. Why was it briefly off the air? — B.S.

This fine series originally aired early in '83 as a limited-run series. It didn't fare well enough to garner a spot in the upcoming fall schedule. However, it just recently finished an "emergency" encore of four weeks. NBC mercifully canned its pitiful "The News Is the News," also took "Taxi" off, and planted "Family Tree" in the Wednesday night spot for four weeks. Unfortunately, we probably won't see it again.

SIMON-IZED — How does "Simon & Simon" rate with other TV shows? Will it be on this fall? Is Jameson Parker married? When is his birthday? — A.B.

This season "Simon & Simon" has done quite well in the ratings. But the two brother private eyes weren't always so lucky. They got off to a slow start in 1981, mostly due to an overdose of pre-empting. But Jameson Parker — born on Nov. 18, married and the father of a 4-year-old son, Francis Jameson Parker III — is proud to say that the show climbed to seventh place in last year's final ratings after finishing 58th as a rookie. The show is currently in production for the fall and will return in its usual CBS Thursday night spot following "Magnum, P.I."

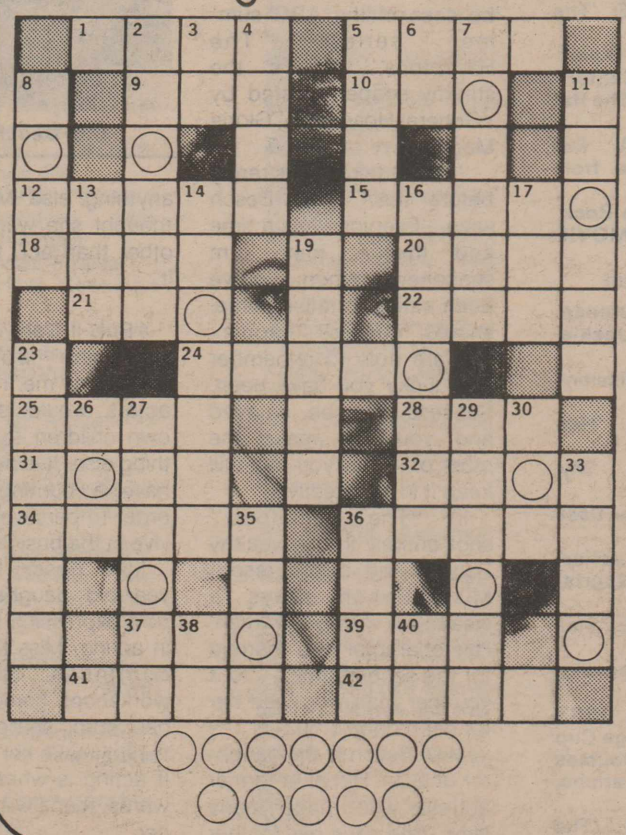

MONKEE MANIA — I am a Monkees fan. I was wondering what they are doing now. I know about Davy Jones and Mickey Dolenz, but what about Peter Tork and Michael Nesmith? — B.J.

They're still involved with musical pursuits. Peter Tork is touring with a band called the Peter Tork Project. Nesmith, now sans his fabled wool hat, is an award-winning producer of rock videos. Last year he also produced his first feature film, "Time Rider."

Bibi gets her break on 'Hamptons'

By Joan Crosby

Bibi Besch

Bibi Besch is a creamy-skinned, blue-eyed blonde, who, after 20 years as an actress, is now just being recognized.

She had a leading role in "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan," and now she can be seen in the ABC summer series, "The Hamptons." That's the steamy soaper created by "General Hospital's" Gloria Monty.

"I don't think I was ready before this," Miss Besch says. "Everyone has a time and this is mine. I'm seasoned. When you've been acting for a long time, should success happen, you are able to remember how lucky you have been. Success can be enjoyed and you can make the most of it, but you can still keep it in perspective."

In "The Hamptons," shot entirely in the wealthy Long Island beach resort, Miss Besch plays a wealthy, vampy woman. Her character has married for the second time — to a younger man who wed her for her money.

Miss Besch is the daughter of Gusti Huber, a former actress who made many films. She says her mother advised her if there was anything else Miss Besch thought she wanted to do other than act, then to do it.

"But, if I only wanted to act, she would then encourage me. I think most actors would prefer their own children to do something else. It is necessary to have a burning desire in order to persevere and survive in the business."

Miss Besch has a 13-year-old daughter who is now expressing her interest in acting. Miss Besch, who continues to go to workshops herself to keep her craft sharp, says "I think I'll take her to classes. If acting is what she really wants, then I will encourage her."

Movie Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

A question that had plagued Hollywood for years — should motion pictures be pure, 100 percent entertainment, or should they make serious comments on social problems? — was answered once and for all with the production of "The Lost Weekend." Here was a film that was neither entertaining nor amusing, but which became a critically acclaimed box-office bonanza.

This 1945 Billy Wilder film, adapted from Charles Jackson's realistic novel, took a hard look at the alcoholic and the torment of his desperate need for liquor. In "The Lost Weekend," there was no compromise with the notion that alcoholism was suicide, and many scenes were filled with stark terror. Wilder was named Best Director for his deft handling of the controversial topic and he was also honored, along with Charles Brackett, for his screenplay.

Answer: Ray Milland

Will Chris Evert Lloyd regain U.S. Open title?

Chris Evert Lloyd

HOT SHOTS — Chris Evert Lloyd, like any great champion, knows how to play her best when it counts the most. For her, now is the time.

Miss Evert Lloyd, the defending champ, is the top female star at the 1983 U.S. Open Tennis Championships, which take place from Tuesday, Aug. 30, through Sunday, Sept. 11, at the USTA National Tennis Center at Flushing Meadow, N.Y.

Coverage of the '83 U.S. Open by CBS-TV Sports will include a variety of taped and live reports (check daily listings). Providing the commentary for CBS will be Pat Summerall, Tony Trabert, John Newcombe, and Virginia Wade.

As the first player in women's tennis to reach $1 million in tournament earnings, Miss Evert Lloyd has more than 100 titles — including multiple victories at the U.S. Open, French Open and Wimbledon.

She is married to British tennis star John Lloyd. She has also been a close friend of Jimmy Connors, the defending U.S. Open men's champion.

Miss Evert Lloyd is one of four past women's Open champs in the tournament this year. The others: Tracy Austin, Billie Jean King and Virginia Wade.

With six Open titles, Miss Evert Lloyd will seek to become the first woman to win successvie championships since her 1975-78 victory streak. She and Tracy Austin have alternated winning U.S. Open titles since 1979.

Miss King is the winner of four U.S. Open titles, the most recent being 1974. Miss Wade of Britain was the 1968 U.S. Open women's champion.

It's been 10 years since a foreign woman has earned the U.S. Open tennis championship. It last happened when Margaret Smith Court defeated fellow Australian Evonne Goolagong Cawley in 1973.

Miss Goolagong Cawley is one of six U.S. Open runners-up to compete this year for the woman's title. She was runner-up four consecutive years from 1973 to 1976. Hanna Mandlikova, runner-up to Miss Evert Lloyd last year and in 1980, is joined by another two-time finalist, Rosemary Casals.

The other previous finalists who have entered this year are Pam Shriver, (1978), Wendy Turnbull (1977), and Martina Navratilova (1981).

Joan Armatrading

On Aug. 28, MTV's "The Cutting Edge" will feature Joan Armatrading, one of pop music's most versatile performers. Born in the West Indies and raised in Britain, Miss Armatrading combines many different musical styles, including reggae, rock, calypso, folk and jazz in a way that is her own. Her songwriting is first-rate and she has a powerful voice. Miss Armatrading is equally comfortable in belting out a song or in singing a delicate ballad. If she has any fault, sometimes her rock numbers are a bit too slick or a little lacking in melodic interest.

The same show will also include performances by the hardcore band Kraut. Like most of these bands, Kraut specializes in maximum speed, incoherence and suburban anger.

ESPN will televise the CART/Los Angeles Times 500, live from Riverside, Calif., on Aug. 28. Defending champion Rich Mears will race against a field of Indy 500 drivers.

•

Nickelodeon will launch a new series Sept. 2, when it premieres "Into the Labyrinth." The series describes the adventures of three time-traveling teen-agers in a race against the forces of evil. The outcome of the series will depend on whether one of the teen-agers can master cosmic forces in order to defeat the bad guys.

A couple films on Spotlight:

"Love at First Bite" (Aug. 29) — George Hamilton stars in this amusing spoof of flicks. Hamilton plays this Dracula very campy. The problem is, how much more campy can you get than Bela Lugosi in the original "Dracula"? Still, Hamilton is not bad. But vampire movie doyen Christopher Lee made an even funnier movie along this line many years ago.

"Smokey and the Bandit" (Aug. 31) — Now this is a really funny movie. Burt Reynolds and Sally Field star as a trucker and his girlfriend fleeing from Sheriff Jackie Gleason. It features lots of smashed, burning, sunken, broken police cars and a lot of good-natured laughs.

INSIDE TV

BY CHRIS COLBY

CLOSEUPS: Joel Higgins is a multi-talented man. Besides playing Ricky Schroeder's dad in "Silver Spoons," he writes jingles for commercials, among them, Coors, Schweppes, M&M's and the famous "Kids are Kids" Kool-Aid jingle. "It's difficult wearing two hats," he says. "It seems an ad agency always wants a rewrite on the day I have to learn many pages of dialogue or on the night before a taping when I need rest." ... "It's all a matter of timing," says David Hasselhoff. "I was on an airplane during terrific turbulence along with Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC entertainment. I knew he was there and he had asked who I was. We never met, but I understand he suggested me for 'Knight Rider' the next day." David began his career at the age of 7 when he portrayed Peter Pan in a school play ... Erin Gray of "Silver Spoons" can't seem to get away from robots. During the new season, a robot named Foobie who develops a crush on Erin will be introduced on the show. When she starred in the "Buck Rogers" series, there was also a robot named Twicki. "At least," says Erin, "they never forget their lines."

DONNA MILLS

FOCUS: Hard to keep up with Donna Mills' romances. At this writing, she and Richard Holland, her longtime boyfriend, seemed to have cooled the relationship ... Paul Anka receives a $200.00 residual check each time the "Tonight Show" theme is played and that's five nights a week. Anka wrote the tune back in 1962 ... At one of the parties launching Linda Evans' new keeping fit book, the beauteous one appeared with her current "bf" George Santo Pietro. However, ex-husband, realtor Stan Herman, arrived to wish her well. Her other ex, John Derek, was NOT there ... Richard Thomas, Michael York and Sir Alec Guiness star for CBS in "The Master of Ballantrae." That's a powerful parlay of talent ... Jessica Walter and husband Ron Liebman (Linda Lavin's ex) divide their time between his New York flat and her Hollywood pad, depending on where the work is ... Margaux Hemingway and her husband are hard at work on a TV documentary about her famous grandfather, Ernest Hemingway ... "The Jeffersons" Isabel Sanford was one of ten prominent Los Angeles women honored by Los Angeles Scouting at "Salute To Women In Business" award luncheon ... Joan Collins said "no, no, no" to all kinds of goodies till she took off twelve pounds. Now, says "Dynasty's" Alexis, "If only I could grow five inches."

COMING EVENTS: Production is underway on ABC's new series "Webster" starring Susan Clark and Alex Karras. The comedy series is about a honeymooning ex-football pro turned sportscaster and his bride, a successful ombudsman. Their budding domestic life is disrupted when they suddenly find themselves parents of an irresistible seven-year-old orphan ... The new season is almost upon us and "Dynasty" watchers wait with bated breath to see last season's cliff hangers resolved. Here's what we were left with: Krystle (Linda Evans) walked out on Blake Carrington (John Forsythe); Kirby (Kathleen Beller) learned that Adam (Gordon Thomas) is the father of her unborn child; Fallon (Pamela Sue Martin) believes Adam may be responsible for Jeff's poisoning.
