County finalist for prison projects

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Economic Development Committee members were told today that two Scurry County bids--proposals for both two 2,250-bed maximum security prisons and four 1,000-bed units to be built by the state--have made the final cut announced Wednesday morning by Texas Department of Correction officials.

A release from TDC listed the 10 finalists, but did not indicate which were chosen for what project. TDC spokesman David Nunnelee, contacted by the SDN, said that all 10 finalists will be considered for both sets of projects.

This means the county now remains in the running along with five Texas cities and five counties. In addition to Scurry, two of the other finalists are in West Texas (see related story).

Committee members were notified of the county's selection at 9:35 a.m. Wednesday. A statewide release of finalists, chosen by the TDC staff, was released by the Associated Press just before noon.

Roy Baze, bid project coordinator, received the official word from Larry Kyle, who headed a three-man TDC team visiting here Oct. 7. Kyle is the head of TDC industries.

He learned also that a second TDC visit is now scheduled, part of a statewide sweep of the 10 finalists to be completed next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The delegation will be in Snyder next Wednesday. Baze said he was told the group will consist of three TDC board members and three TDC staffers.

Although he was not given official confirmation of it, he said he expects the board members to consist of Al Hughes of Austin, the board chairman, Charles Terrell of Dallas and James Eller of Bryan.

"They said the visit would be short," Baze said, "and that they want to meet with no more than four community leaders. And that they want these four to be knowledgable of just what the county can offer."

He said the group will apparently visit all 10 finalists during the two-day period.

Baze said also in addition to the 10 finalists, he learned the TDC will be looking also at sites already owned by TDC. This includes a proposed site for one of the 2,250-man units in Grimes County near Navasota.

For the local visit, he said the indication was they wanted to look at Cogdell Memorial Hospital and the site locations. During the initial TDC visit, the group was said to be very impressed with the hospital facilities and the possible uses for Cogdell's currently vacant wing.

Baze said also the indication is the final selections will be announced at a Nov. 9 meeting of the TDC board. At that meeting, he said, it is speculated there will be no verbal presentations by finalists.

10 cities, counties make prison list

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Five cities and five counties are included in a revised list of sites for up to six new state prisons, a Texas Department of Corrections spokeswoman said today.

Amarillo, Childress, Dallas, Gatesville and Houston were the cities included in the narrowed list announced late this morning, TDC spokeswoman Shelly Zent said. Falls, Johnson, Liberty, Scurry and Tyler counties also were included, along with all land owned by the state.

Thirty-three communities in Texas originally expressed interest in hosting one or more of the proposed units, Ms. Zent said.

TDC officials are studying the possible sites for the construction of four 1,000-bed units and as many as two 2,250-bed maximum security units.

"We have not ruled out any state-owned land," TDC Director James Lynaugh said today.

Factors considered in evaluating the proposed sites include cost effectiveness, acreage, availability of adequate resources, educational opportunities and medical care as well as logistical and community support, Ms. Zent said.

The sites announced today will be further evaluated by TDC staff and recommendations will be forwarded to the Texas Board of Corrections. Public hearings concerning the selection of the sites will be held before the board's scheduled meeting Nov. 9.

First time donors set county record

A record for first time donors was set Tuesday at a blood drive featuring a competition between employees of the north and south units for Chevron U.S.A.

Each staffer was to recruit five donors, and the employee contest resulted in 76 first time donors and a total blood draw of 217 units.

The total was high enough to keep Scurry County as the leading mobile drive in a 30-county area served by United Blood Services of Lubbock. Local drives are sponsored by the UBS advisory council and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

In the Chevron competition, employees from the south office were declared the winners based upon its 46 donors and percentage of participation, listed at 79 percent.

The north office had more donors with 68, but a smaller percentage at 66 percent.

Chevron staffer Ben Wilcox was credited with recruiting the most donors, a total of 16. Each Chevron staffer recruiting at least five donors was to receive a "scrub shirt" from UBS.

In addition to the good turnout of first-time donors, drive officials honored those marking "gallon" levels of giving. These included Jim Tully, who reached the nine gallon level. Others given pins were:

—Five gallons: Cecil Z. Lankford.

—Four gallons: Burt Robbins.

—Three gallons: Donald P. Gressett, Howard Bigham, Phil Jones, Wayne Winkles, Jeff Mason and Sharon Selvera.

—Two gallons: Bob Clifton and James Etherton.

—One gallon: Edwin Stagner, Robert Barbee, Lawton Taylor, Mickey Henrick, Wayne Jenkins, Marvis Henrix, Tommy Galyean, Mary Hines and Paula Kesner.

Thanks was extended also to the Cub Scouts of Pack 258, who helped with the cleanup effort. Pack leaders are Lola Wagner, Peggy Byrom, Rosa Walker and Tammie Teel. Pack members are Donnie Durst, James Turbo, Kevin Morris, DaShwan Walker, Chris Guzman, Chris Rodriques, Timothy Escobedo, Jason Kenner, David Wagner, Bryan Robertson, Dude Robertson, Robbie Freeman and Lupe Guerra.

Training plans made for literacy program here

A workshop is scheduled here Sunday and Monday in conjunction with the Scurry County Library's effort to secure volunteers to teach adults how to read.

The Laubach Way to Reading Workshop will be held at the library. The presenter will be Jean Nettles, a Laubach certified instructor from Meadow, who will train volunteer tutors to teach adults to read by using the Laubach method.

The session on Sunday will last from 1-5:30 p.m. and the Monday session will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. with a one hour lunch break.

The workshop is open to anyone in Scurry County who is willing to volunteer time to teach. All materials will be provided.

Registration will be held from 1-1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Janice Mitchell, librarian, and three others: Beth Monroney, Phyllis McGinnis and Beth Curry, traveled to Eastland last April for a special Laubach method training session.

Library staffers are seeking additional volunteers for a literacy program which has recently started at the library. Two people are currently being tutored using the Laubach method.

The library has been granted federal funds to teach the Laubach literacy method to county adults and teenagers who are unable to read. The program is open to teenagers not currently enrolled in a local school.

According to 1980 figures, some 10 percent of Scurry County's population has an eight grade or less education. Also for the county, some 43.5 percent of those over age 25 do not have a high school diploma.

Mrs. Mitchell said they are looking for both men and women volunteers. She said their goal is to have enough trained volunteers to be able to match students and tutors compatibly. She said it was also possible for

SHS juniors slated for state's exit test

Snyder High School juniors will be among the more than 200,000 Texas high school students who will be tested on their knowledge of basic skills when they take the state-mandated exit level test next week.

Students must pass the test to be eligible to receive a high school diploma in Texas, and this year's juniors must meet higher standards than previous classes at SHS.

In July, the State Board of Education increased from 39 to 50 the number of items students must answer correctly in order to pass each section of the exam. There are 72 items on each part of the test.

Seniors taking the test again this year will be required to meet the standards in effect when they were juniors.

This marks the third year the test has been given. It was implemented as part of House Bill 72 mandates.

The test consists of two sections--one covering mathematics and another reading and writing, grouped as English language arts.

The math test will be given to local juniors and to students who have failed one or more portions of the test next Tuesday. The English language arts exam will follow on Wednesday.

Both tests will be given here at the Scurry County Coliseum.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Be a self-starter and you won't need a crank to get you going."

Tommy Fletcher of Fletcher's Downtown 66, dropped off an interesting article sent to him by a third cousin, Frank Taylor, owner of Taylor Made Farms in Kentucky.

Taylor attests to a unique way of breaking horses. He says the method is different from anything he's ever seen. "It works a thousand times better."

The method takes only about thirty minutes compared to the more conventional methods which might take up to a week to train a horse.

The idea is to make the horse "join up" with the trainer. An old horseman had earlier shared the secret. A horse cut off from the herd would flee if approached. If the cowboy rode away, however, the wild animal would cautiously follow. The advance and retreat method actually allows the trainer to coax a wild animal to stand still so he can be saddled.

During the past few years, word of the technique has spread throughout the racehorse community. Now some educators in Santa Barbara are looking into the possibilities of applying the method to children. In recent weeks, school administrators, teachers and psychologists have outnumbered horsemen during training sessions.

Applied to humans, the idea is to offer alternatives with no fear of pain or punishment. "Make it easy for the child or adult to join up and work with you instead of against you."

The horse trainer said the advance and retreat system of training occurs spontaneously in both human and animal interactions.

He used a high school couple as an example. For weeks the 14-year-old watches a new girl in one of his classes. By the end of October, he's discouraged.

By the time he's ready to retreat and give up, the cute little girl makes a U-turn and shows back up where he is.

It may work, but we've known some folks void of much horse-sense.

In Brief

Dow up 162

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market came roaring back from its $500 billion collapse today as the Dow Jones industrial average rose 162 points in morning trading following gains in overseas markets.

Advancing issues swamped declining ones by an 11-to-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange in very heavy trading as the Dow industrials broke through the 2,000 level.

"We see a large increase in greed here. We're seeing people throwing money fast and hard and maybe without thinking," said Thomas Czech, first vice president for research at Blunt Ellis & Loewi Inc. in Minneapolis.

The Dow industrials, up nearly 200 points in late morning, were up 162.30 points to 2,003.31 at noon. The index fell a record-shattering 508.00 points on Monday, then rose a record 102.27 points on Tuesday.

Witness: pilot bailed out at last second before crash

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The pilot of an Air Force jet fighter bailed out at the last possible moment before the plane crashed into a crowded hotel, killing nine people in a fiery explosion, a witness said.

"The (ejection) seat popped up and the plane hit, just like that," said Jim Brywczynski of Cleveland, who saw Tuesday morning's crash near Indianapolis International Airport. "I think from what we saw he probably stayed in it as long as he possibly could."

The A-7D Corsair jet, after its lone engine failed, scraped the top of a bank, skipped across a road and plowed nose-first into the Ramada Inn Airport hotel, hitting just above the lobby entrance and exploding.

A fireball engulfed the front of the hotel as fuel exploded in the aircraft and parked cars. "It was like a napalm bomb," said a witness, John Mentzer. "The heat, the flames. It collapsed the whole front of the building."

The pilot, Maj. Bruce L. Teagarden, was to be questioned today, said Brig. Gen. Thomas Hall of Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas, Nev., where the unarmed, single-seat plane was heading from Pittsburgh.

Fire Capt. Gary Campbell said the charred bodies of the dead were found in the lobby and an adjacent first-floor meeting room at the seven-story hotel, one mile east of the Indianapolis International Airport.

Seven people were injured, not including the pilot, Campbell said.

Four of those killed were identified Tuesday night as Ramada Inn employees Beth L. Goldberg, 30, Brenda J. Henry, 26, and Emma J. Brownlee, 37, all of Indianapolis, and Allen Mantor, 18, of Amo.

Efforts to identify the bodies of two men and three women continued.

Teagarden, 35, of Las Vegas, was not hurt seriously after ejecting from the aircraft less than 800 feet above ground and parachuting into the parking lot of Ace Supply Co. Inc., authorities said.

"His first call was to his wife," said Linda K. Schwartzkopf, a clerk at the supply company. He then called a superior officer. He told Schwartzkopf he had wanted to guide the plane "into the field behind us and that he wanted to miss the Ramada but he just could not control the plane," she said.

Teagarden was hospitalized at Hawley Army Hospital at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

About 100 people, including 20 employees, 38 guests and 40 to 50 people attending a conference, were in the hotel when the plane hit, estimated Neil Sullivan of the Marion County Sheriff's Department.

Officials said the plane lost power at 31,000 feet and 15 miles south of the airport.

The pilot made one pass at the Indianapolis airport runway but was traveling too fast to land, and then made an abrupt righthand turn to try to circle back to the airport or crash-land in an open area, authorities said.

ABC comes in second

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals weren't the only losers in the first two games of the World Series.

ABC came in a distant second to NBC in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings for last week after the opening game Saturday became the lowest-rated prime-time World Series game ever and Sunday's game was beaten by the made-for-TV movie "Eight Is Enough: A Family Reunion" on NBC.

The Minnesota Twins trounced the Cardinals in both games.

According to Nielsen, the opening game had a 19.2 rating. The previous low was the 1984 opening game in the Detroit Tigers-San Diego Padres series on NBC, with a 21.5. Games have been carried in prime time since 1971.

The rating is a percentage of the nation's 88.6 million households with televisions.

The final game in the American League championship series Wednesday on NBC rated higher than the opening World Series game, unusual but not a first.

It was NBC's 38th win in a row. If it wins next week, it will have tied CBS' record set in the 1963-1964 television season.

For the week ending Oct. 19, NBC's average prime-time rating was 18.4. ABC was second with 15.0. CBS was third with 13.4.

CBS was first, however, in news as the "CBS Evening News" continued a winning streak into the fourth week.

Man o'War, one of the greatest race horses of all time, also was an outstanding sire. He sired two Kentucky Derby winners, three Belmont Stakes champions and one Preakness winners.

American fathers reunited with half-Vietnamese kids

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Years of letters and red tape culminated in emotional reunions for a former U.S. Army medic and the child he fathered in Vietnam, and another ex-serviceman and his two half-Vietnamese daughters.

Barry Huntoon of Paradise, Calif., and his 15-year-old daughter, Tran Thi Tuyet Mai, were all smiles Tuesday after her arrival at San Francisco International Airport.

The girl, who was spotted in Life magazine and rescued by her father from a life peddling peanuts to Soviet tourists on the beach in Ho Chi Minh City, hugged her father's wife, Laura, and bounced the couple's infant in her arms.

"I'm very happy," a beaming Huntoon said. "I have wonderful kids."

Mai, dressed in a pink jumpsuit, received a white teddy bear from her stepmother.

"She's very happy to be here and meet her parents," said an interpreter.

Nearby, two other Amerasian teen-agers, Loan and Van Nguyen Vernon, were embraced by their father, Marc Vernon of Albuquerque, N.M., for the first time since 1972.

Loan, 15, and Van, 16, were accompanied by their aunt, Lan Nguyen, 40, who had cared for the girls since their mother came to the United States to marry Vernon. The girls wore demure pink dresses.

Vernon said his daughters and their aunt carried all their belongings in three or four shopping bags.

"It's going to be a while" for them to feel comfortable in their new home, said Vernon, 35. "They're real nervous."

He said he will take the girls to Disneyland. "I think after all they've been through, they deserve some good old fun," said Vernon, a postal worker who worked with an Army intelligence unit in Vietnam in 1971-72.

The two scenes were part of a frustrating effort by veterans, Vietnamese immigrants and volunteers to reunite servicemen and other government employees who fathered thousands of children during the Vietnam War.

Hanoi has rejected the children as legacies of a bitter war.

Despite frequent bickering with Vietnam, the United States has resettled about 4,000 Amerasians in recent years. U.S. officials say about 10,000 remain in Vietnam.

Home where girl fell not registered with the state

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — The day care center where Jessica McClure tumbled into an abandoned well was unregistered, but state officials say the toddler's aunt who ran the home has suffered enough and probably won't be penalized.

Eighteen-month-old Jessica was wedged in the narrow shaft for 58 hours before her rescue Friday night.

Jessica's aunt, Jamie Moore, is cooperating with state officials to make the home legal, said David Beard, a policy specialist with the Texas Department of Human Services.

Texas law contains both civil and criminal penalties for day-care violations, Beard said.

"As to whether or not those will be pursued, I can't say. I tend to think not," he said. "I think the lady has been penalized enough through this horrible experience."

Meanwhile, doctors at Midland Memorial Hospital continued to try to save her right foot from amputation. The foot was wedged between her body and the well, causing a loss of some circulation. Doctors plan to test her blood circulation today.

Jessica remained in serious but stable condition Tuesday, undergoing oxygen tank treatments for her right foot, hospital spokeswoman Sue Ristom said.

The abandoned well was in the backyard of the home of Mrs. Moore, who was caring for several other children at the time of the accident. She was not registered with the department of human services to provide care in her home, agency caseworker Steve Horton said Tuesday.

State officials said they probably wouldn't have known about the home without the extensive publicity that followed the 2½ days of rescue efforts.

"Generally, the only way we find out about an unregulated facility is if there is a complaint or something like this," Horton said.

Horton said he talked to Mrs. Moore shortly after Jessica fell into the well last Wednesday because he wasn't aware that she was using her home to care for children.

"I look at this one as a business. Her sister, the child's mother, was working with her," Horton said. "They were providing care for unrelated children. They were subject to regulations."

He said about one-third of his caseload involves unregulated homes. Owners are given the choice of ceasing operations or registering their homes with the state agency.

"In this case, the provider is cooperating with our department and she has agreed to cease operations until we complete our investigation," Horton said.

Mrs. Moore was not immediately available for comment. Her telephone number is unpublished.

Meanwhile, Jessica is continuing to receive greetings from around the country, Ms. Ristom said.

Jesse Jackson...

Just over $1 million raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign has collected a little more than $1 million and spent virtually all of it, a state of affairs Jackson characterizes as "a poor campaign with a rich message."

In the first financial disclosure his 1988 campaign has filed with the Federal Election Commission, Jackson reported receipts of $1.04 million. The sum is less than those reported by the other five Democrats in the race, but is still more than was raised by former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., a Republican whose total receipts of $955,000 reflect the slimmest budget in the 1988 race.

By contrast, Vice President George Bush has reported raising $12.7 million, and the Democrats are led by Massachussetts Gov. Michael Dukakis with $8.1 million.

"It shows that we have the strongest candidate and the weakest financial operation," Jackson said Tuesday. "It shows a poor campaign with a rich message."

"And the message is getting through," he added. "People are responding not to our financial situation but to bold leadership and a new direction."

He said, however, that his campaign will "increase our fund-raising efforts."

Jackson's fund raising frequently occurs at revival-style rallies where he calls on those present to come down to the stage and contribute — first those who can give $1,000, then those who can donate smaller sums.

However, he held two large fund-raising events this past summer, one in Chicago and one in New York, that his staff said brought in a substantial share of his total receipts.

Two brothers suspected of shooting dad to death

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A grand jury has cleared the way for the prosecution of two teen-agers accused of fatally shooting their father, authorities said.

In his petition to the grand jury, District Attorney Jack McGaughey charged that the 14- and 16-year-old brothers intentionally shot their 40-year-old father in the back with a .22-caliber rifle while he was sitting at his kitchen table at his home in Henrietta.

The man's two oldest sons have told police they were in a bedroom adjacent to the kitchen when they dropped a semi-automatic rifle on the floor and it accidentally discharged.

The grand jury Monday certified the brothers to be prosecuted under new provisions of the Texas Family Code.

McGaughey said the boys may be the first prosecuted under the provision in the Texas Family Code, which eliminates the requirement that juveniles must first be certified to stand trial as adults before they are prosecuted and sentenced as adults.

He said the new law, approved during the last session of the Legislature, also removes a previous age restriction and will allow both boys to be prosecuted and sentenced equally.

Prior law required that juveniles be at least 15 years old to be certified and then prosecuted and punished as adults.

A bidding duel to the death

By James Jacoby

North-South had 60 on score, which explains the pass of two diamonds by the Hideous Hog, reigning expert of Victor Mollo's bridge club. But East was none other than Papa the Greek, partnered by Karapet the Armenian, while the Hog's partner was the Rueful Rabbit. The strange bidding is explained only by the interplay of personalities. But notice all the honor cards in East's hand — too much of a good thing.

Declarer won the opening trump lead in dummy, played the spade ace and ruffed a spade, crossed to the ace of hearts and ruffed another spade. Then came a heart ruff, followed by the club ace and a club ruff, another heart ruff, another club ruff, and finally the fourth heart ruffed by dummy's last diamond, with East still to play. That left the following:

North

West

East
♠ K
♣ K

South

What should East discard? If he underruffs, South can ruff back to his hand to take the high heart. If he throws away a black card, dummy's corresponding nine will be a winner, and declarer will play that card right at him. In any event, the grand slam is made, and Papa the Greek could have passed it out in two diamonds.

"GOSH, MR WILSON... WHAT ELSE IS A WATER PISTOL GOOD FOR?"

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I need someone to talk to. I love my husband, but he makes me feel awfully sad. I'm fat (185 pounds, 5 feet 6 inches). He is mean to me and calls me names for being fat. I've gone to weight-loss clinics and groups, and when I start to lose weight, he gets meaner. He accuses me of flirting and cheating behind his back. I would never think of doing anything like that. He never takes me out. He says he's ashamed to be seen with me. When I look bad, he's mean, but if I look good, he's meaner.

If I put on some decent clothes, he says, "Who are you getting dressed up for?"

Our daughter is 6 years old and she is plump, too, so he's getting mean with her about her weight. I'm a grown woman, but she's just a child and doesn't understand it.

I just reread this letter. Just seeing what I have written has made me realize that my husband doesn't really love me. He doesn't even like me. I am going to file for divorce. I love him, but I'll get over it. Many years ago I loved a man who dumped me and left me broken-hearted. It was the pits, but I got over it, and I can get over this, too. Wish me luck, Abby.

FRANNIE IN SEATTLE

DEAR FRANNIE: I would discourage a woman from filing for divorce while she still "loves" her husband, regardless of whether he deserves her love. (From what you say, yours does not.) Offer him the chance to get into family counseling. If he refuses, go alone. And when you are able to put your emotions aside and make a rational decision, if you think you and your child would be better off without him, file for divorce.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, wish there had been a booklet like "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know" when my children were growing up. My daughter married (for the first time) at 16. It was a bad mistake. My son got his girlfriend pregnant, and faced up to his responsibility and married her. They were both barely 17 at the time.

By the way, I also want to thank you for your answer to that reader who asked if it was too late to fulfill his lifelong dream to become a lawyer at 70. You said, "It's too late to fulfill your dream only if you think it is."

I am a widow, age 73, and have a burning desire to become a poet. I write many poems but have never had enough courage to send any of them to a publisher. Now, I think I will, thanks to you.

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR GREAT-GRANDMOTHER: You already are a poet, but as yet, an unpublished one.

Continue to write, and send your poetry to the editors of the publications that contain your kind of poetry. And don't be discouraged by rejection. If you knock on enough doors, one is bound to open eventually. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for warning readers about how dangerous power lawn mowers can be. I know. A power lawn mower struck a pop bottle, and a piece of glass pierced the heart and lung of our 8-year-old son. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Girl mauled by lion...

More surgery said needed

HOUSTON (AP) — After being mauled by a lion 11 days ago, an 8-year-old girl is enjoying playing games, coloring and watching television as before, but her doctor says she will require more surgery.

Roxanne Hernandez was walking through a flea market Oct. 10 when the 300-pound lion attacked her. The lion, which was being led through the market on a chain, knocked her down and cracked her skull, exposing her brain. The girl was rescued after a security guard twice shot the lion.

"She doesn't say too much about it," her mother, Sonia Hernandez, said Tuesday. "She asks questions sometimes about what happened that day. She remembers getting in LifeFlight and getting here."

"I try not to bring it up because I don't want to think about it myself," she said.

At a Tuesday afternoon get-well party at University Children's Hospital in the Hermann Hospital complex, a shy Roxanne seemed happy and smiling while receiving gifts — a giant get-well card signed by Houstonians including Mayor Kathy Whitmire and Police Chief Lee P. Brown, dolls, a nightgown and a pink radio.

"Thank you," the little girl with her head wrapped in bandages said in a barely audible whisper. She then waved into television cameras to say hello to her second-grade classmates.

Neurosurgeon Dr. Michael Miner said Roxanne had undergone surgery on brain tissue and also to close as much scalp as possible. Other surgical procedures involved covering the skull with skin, he said at a Tuesday press conference.

"Medically, she's done well. She's awake and able to talk and converse," he said. "This will be an ongoing procedure. It'll take another one or two surgeries."

The little girl will stay in the hospital about two more weeks and return periodically for further treatment, he said.

The mauling left Roxanne with a 3/8-inch puncture wound to the left side of her brain and large multiple laserations to the scalp. One large area of her skull was removed, the doctor said.

"Neurologically, she'll continue to be a learning, teachable and intelligent child," Miner said. "I don't think she'll deteriorate. We'll be testing her."

Miner said Roxanne also is being treated by psychiatrists to assist her with the trauma.

"It's a major concern for us and her family," he said.

Her parents, meanwhile, have filed suit against the animal's owner and the owner of the flea market.

"There's no reason why this should have happened in the first place," her father, Joel Hernandez, said. "They had a lot of options of putting it in a cage and taking a back exit."

The lawsuit filed Tuesday in state district court seeks unspecified damages.

Named in the suit are Gary Durkovitz, the lion's owner, and James McIngvale, owner of the Texas Flea Market. Durkovitz has not made any comment about the attack and he does not have a telephone listing.

McIngvale, owner of Gallery Furniture, had no comment on the suit. Last week, he said he thought market management had banned the animal from the premises four months ago.

Brown Investigation and Security also was named a defendant for alleged carelessness in helping Durkovitz lead the lion into the flea market.

The attack on the girl occurred as the lion was being led on a long chain to an exotic animal photo booth, police said. The wounded animal was later killed.

Apartment rented for drug usuage

DALLAS (AP) — Stan Poling had no interest in learning about Jamaican drug dealers, but as the owner of an apartment complex in south Dallas, he was left with little choice.

Poling is a victim of what police describe as standard operating procedure for the Jamaican "posses" that have been the subject of raids in Dallas and 15 other cities across the country this week.

Local people with no criminal record and good references were paid by the dealers to rent an apartment, no questions asked. The renters never moved in, but the drug dealers did.

The technique has thwarted authorities' attempts to arrest the Jamaican gangs, who have been linked to 44 killings in Dallas and more than 600 nationwide.

Each apartment is used as a "crack house" only for a short period of time, and there is virtually no paper trail linking members of the drug gangs to the apartment.

In armed raids Monday, authorities arrested 44 people, including 28 Jamaicans, at crack houses as part of a nationwide sweep of Jamaican posses, believed by some officials to be the most violent organized crime organization in the country.

The unwanted tenants are usually evicted in about a month, but Poling said there always seem to be more moving in.

"We're approached by legitimate people," he said. "How do you tell they're renting for a drug dealer?"

Teacher of Year got late start on going to college

DALLAS (AP) — Margurette Troutman, a contender for National Teacher of the Year, didn't decide to go to college until she was 32, divorced and the mother of a young child.

She soon made up for the lost time, finishing four years of college in 2½ years and graduating with honors.

Now in her eighth year of teaching 10th- and 11th-grade English at Highland Park High School, Ms. Troutman has been honored as Secondary School Teacher of the Year by the Texas Education Agency and will represent Texas in the national contest.

Ms. Troutman, 59, has taught school for 23 years.

When she decided to get a degree, she borrowed money and rode a school bus 100 miles a day to and from the nearest college because there was no college in her small hometown in Arkansas.

"Every day I stepped aboard the school bus I grew younger," she wrote in a biographical essay about her life. "I fell in love with young people, with the magic of learning."

Could Linda be 44 today?

Congress likes new budget talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic and Republican congressional leaders are praising President Reagan's decision to seek a budget compromise but the White House says lawmakers are overemphasizing a hint that he'll consider a tax increase.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said he was ready "at any hour to sit down" and negotiate with the White House.

"I hope that we all will approach the task ... with open minds and a determination to put politics aside and deal with difficult questions to which there are no simple answers," Byrd said Tuesday.

Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas said he hoped "that meeting will come very quickly."

"I hope his statement will reassure American investors that we're going to deal with this problem, and our economy is essentially strong and sound," Dole said in the wake of Monday's record stock market plunge.

Reagan announced Tuesday, after a meeting with his top financial advisers, that he wanted to open talks with the bipartisan congressional leadership on a budget compromise. Then, in response to a reporter's question, he seemed to crack open the door he shut long ago on the possibility of a tax boost to reduce the deficit.

"I presented in my budget a program that provided for $22 billion in additional revenue, which was not necessarily taxes. And I'm willing to look at whatever proposal they might have," Reagan said when asked if he'd compromise with Democrats seeking a tax increase.

The revenues in the president's budget included sales of government assets and some taxes the administration calls "user fees" instead. Reagan's spokesman quickly tried to play down the president's remarks.

"I wouldn't count on Ronald Reagan being amenable to tax increases," spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. "The president envisions whatever revenue increases are discussed as coming out of his existing budget proposal."

Fitzwater also said Reagan would dispatch his chief of staff, Howard H. Baker Jr., and Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III to negotiate with Congress and the president did not see himself as personally taking part.

Another White House official, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said the president's remarks were aimed largely at calming the financial markets.

Monsanto may field-test altered bacterium

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has given permission for Monsanto Corp. to field-test a genetically engineered bacterium in South Carolina, the agency said Tuesday.

The test will investigate the survival and detectability in the field of the altered bacterium, which the company expects will prove to be useful in carrying substances into the roots of plants.

Most replacement players pack up; some find a home

by The Associated Press

For hundreds of replacement players, the end of their NFL careers coincided with the end of the three-week strike of regulars.

"We expected it," said safety Harvey Allen, one of 43 replacement players released Tuesday by Seattle. "I've been playing football since the eighth grade, but I think it's pretty much over. At least that's how I feel today."

"I didn't expect to stay," replacement linebacker Julio Cortes said. "I just came to have fun."

"They told us thanks. I wish there had been something more long-term, but it was fun," departing tight end Mark Keel said.

The Seahawks kept quarterback Bruce Mathison, wide receiver Jimmy Teal and seven-year Seattle veteran Eric Lane, who had been released by the team in their last cut before the season began.

The St. Louis Cardinals decided to retain nine replacement players, including quarterback Sammy Garza, while dropping 27.

As the replacement players left, following a team photo, St. Louis Coach Gene Stallings said, "I told all of them I appreciated them being here and helping us out. It (the strike) was hard on everyone."

One player, Pittsburgh backup quarterback Bubby Brister, returned to the Steelers and said his demotion from second string to third string was a result of his refusal to play during the strike.

"Maybe they're trying to make an example out of me," Brister said. "I know they're making examples out of guys on a few teams."

The Buffalo Bills retained 15 players, including quarterback Brian McClure, who helped beat the Super Bowl champion New York Giants 6-3 in overtime last Sunday.

The Miami Dolphins released three replacement players - wide receivers Eddie Chavis and Dameon Riley and nose tackle Ike Readon.

The Kansas City Chiefs kept seven replacement players, including quarterbacks Doug Hudson and Matt Stevens.

Defensive lineman Stafford Mays, 29, who had been cut by Minnesota during training camp and had played seven seasons with St. Louis, was the only replacement player retained by the Vikings.

The Washington Redskins said quarterback Ed Rubbert and running back Lionel Vital would be among 17 replacement players retained by the club.

Also, offensive linemen Jon Shields, Gary Walker, Dave Burnette, Sal Cesario, and Gary Westberry; tight end Tim Hendrix; defensive linemen Walter Johnson, Ray Perkins, and Javan Ross.

The Cowboys also announced the signing of free agent tight end Steve Folsom.

Lamesa wins, 15-11, 15-11...

Girls suffer tough defeat

Snyder's Lady Tigers suffered a disappointing loss to Lamesa here Tuesday - a loss which all but knocks the Tigers out of a chance at the Class 4A volleyball playoffs.

The defending state champion Lady Tors used a strong spiking game to overcome the hopeful Tigers, who fell 15-11, 15-11. Tuesday's loss puts Snyder three matches in back of the second-place Tors with only three left on the schedule. One more win by Lamesa would seal up second place for the Tors, who are 11-2 in District 2-4A play now. Snyder is 9-5. Pecos is winning the district with a 13-0 mark.

"First, I'd like to thank all the people who came out. By far it was our best crowd of the season," said Snyder Coach Vicki Nelms. "Our kids feel bad they didn't have a victory for them. But we feel like we played a good game and we appreciate the outpouring support from the people."

Snyder had trouble at times defending all-state player Jolanda Demerson, and made too many costly mistakes.

"We didn't really block well the first game. We did a better job in the second game. The Demerson kid was all-state last year and you could see why," said Coach Nelms.

"We made some mental mistakes that we shouldn't have that probably cost us the match. At one time we had three net fouls in a row and another time we played three balls that would have gone out of bounds. So that cost us six points right there," she said. "We were our own worst enemy. We had 16 errors in the game and that's too many. It definitely showed up in the final score.

"On the other hand, the kids played hard and they never gave up."

Scoring on serves for Snyder were Denise Overton and Sandra Morin, 4 each; Melody Pickering, LaFon Williams and Holly Fuller, 3 apiece; and Becky Becerra, 2.

Snyder managed 11 kills, including 4 from Pickering, 3 from Rhonda Echols and 2 from Paula Caldwell. Overton stood out defensively at the net with 5 solo blocks. Pickering had 4 solos and 3 assists.

The loss puts the Lady Tigers at 14-10 for the season as they prepare to play in Andrews on Saturday. The match has been rescheduled for approximately 12:30 p.m. It will immediately follow a junior varsity match which is slated to begin at 11 a.m.

"Realistically, we can't expect a team as good as Lamesa is to lose all three of its final matches, so our goal now is to go out on a winning season," pointed out Nelms. "I don't think many people expected us to do this well this year and if we could win the rest of our matches it would be a good season for us."

Tiger JV earns 20th victory of '87 season

Snyder junior varsity volleyball team posted its 20th win of the season in dramatic fashion here Tuesday evening, defeating Lamesa 10-15, 16-14, 15-12 before a vocal crowd at Snyder High School Gym.

"I was really proud of the way our girls worked together. They never gave up. They fought for every point they got," said an elated Coach Patti Grimmett. "We want to thank everyone who came. It really helped at those crucial times to have a good crowd behind them. The win was a total effort from everybody on the court and off the court."

The victory put Snyder at 20-3 on the season as the young Tigers prepare for an 11 a.m. match Saturday in Andrews.

Scoring on serves for Snyder on Tuesday were Shelly Tomlin 12, Jennifer Pate 10, Teena Braziel 7, Cindy Srna 5, Annette Ramos 3 and Angie Brewster 1. Brandi Bell, Anne Osborn and Amber Adams also played.

"We had some trouble with our serve receives but we had some real good blocks and our offense was good also," noted the coach. "We played good defense, too. We were down 5-0 the last game and came back."

Cardinals take advantage, 3-1

Lack of DH befuddles Minnesota

ST. LOUIS (AP) - As the World Series moved to a National League venue, DH took on new meaning. To the St. Louis Cardinals, it meant "Do Hit." To the Minnesota Twins, it meant don't.

"Today told us we were capable of beating these guys," Cardinals center fielder Willie McGee said. "We already knew they were capable of beating us."

Facing a must-win situation, John Tudor and Todd Worrell combined to halt a dominating Minnesota offense, and Vince Coleman drove in two runs with a double as the Cardinals defeated the Twins 3-1 Tuesday night in Game 3 of the World Series.

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak by St. Louis in the World Series. The Cardinals lost the final three games to Kansas City in 1985.

The Twins had won the first two games in their home park, the Metrodome, 10-1 and 8-4, but the Cardinals returned home for Game 3 to the friendly, unconfining expanses of Busch Stadium, where homers turn into fly balls.

On a night that began at 49 degrees and progressively cooled off, Tudor held the Twins to just one run on four hits through the first seven innings. Worrell allowed one hit the rest of the way. That was five hits in all for the Twins, who had 21 hits in the first two games of the Series and had scored five or more runs in seven straight postseason games - a historical first.

"You've got to walk away from a game like that and tip your hat to them," said Tom Brunansky, who drove in Minnesota's only run. "We got beat by an outstanding pitcher."

"There's no place like home," McGee said.

With the World Series in St. Louis, the Twins played Game 3 without the designated hitter, which they had used all year long. The no-DH rule probably cost the Twins at least one run, maybe two, and it forced Twins Manager Tom Kelly to make a decision - maybe a wrong one. Kelly took his starting pitcher, rookie Les Straker, out of a game when he was pitching a shutout.

Straker led 1-0, and there were two out and none on in the seventh inning when his spot in the batting order came up. Kelly chose to go with pinch-hitter Gene Larkin, who grounded out in a useless at-bat.

Straker, 8-10 for the Twins this year after 10 seasons in the minors, had given up just four hits and walked two. Juan Berenguer came on to pitch the seventh and gave up three St. Louis runs before he was lifted.

Jose Quendo and Tony Pena started the Cardinals' rally with consecutive singles off the hard-throwing Panamanian, who had allowed just one hit and one run in six innings' work during Minnesota's five-game American League playoff victory over Detroit.

Terry Pendleton, pinch-hitting for Tudor, sacrificed the runners ahead, and Coleman hit an 0-2 pitch down the left-field line for a double, driving in the tying and go-ahead runs. Coleman then stole third and scored on a single by Smith.

NFL's Oilers expected to remain in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers may announce as early as today that they are staying in Houston and not moving to Jacksonville, Fla., a broadcast report said.

The Oilers have been wooed by Jacksonville city officials who offered the team $125.8 million package to make the Gator Bowl their home.

But KTRK-TV reported Tuesday night that Oilers Owner Bud Adams may announce as early as today or as late as Monday that the team will stay in Houston.

Harris County Judge Jon Lindsay told KHOU-TV that the Oilers and the Houston Sports Association, who manage the Astrodome, had come to an agreement on lower rent at the Astrodome, a share of advertising revenues and concessions revenues and increased parking spaces.

"Things are looking very promising," Lindsay said. "I'm very optimistic."

Report: loud explosion may have involved power plant

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A loud explosion was heard this morning off the southern Kuwaiti coast, and fragmentary reports said it may have involved a power plant accident.

Meanwhile, the latest convoy of U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tankers resumed its voyage down the gulf after an overnight stop north of Bahrain, gulf-based shipping sources said.

First reports of the 8:05 a.m. blast said it occurred off the Saudi Arabian port of Ras Al-Khafji. But sources said later that it appeared closer to the southern Kuwaiti oil port of Zour, also known Mina Saud, about 20 miles to the north.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the bang appeared to have been caused by something exploding offshore.

Shipping and business sources said the explosion may have involved a power plant, and added that there were reports of electric power outages.

The area is 80 miles from the Faw peninsula, from where Iranian forces fired Silkworm missiles that struck a U.S.-owned ship and an American-flagged tanker off Kuwait's coast last week. The Silkworm has a maximum range of about 50 miles with a full-size warhead.

In retaliation for the Iranian missile attacks, the U.S. Navy demolished two Iranian oil platforms in the gulf on Monday. Iran has vowed it will strike back.

Officials of the Kuwait Oil Tanker Co. said the convoy of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers and Navy warships that had sailed from Kuwait's main oil loading terminal was not affected.

Some shipping executives, who spoke on condition they not be named, speculated shortly after the blast that it might have been caused by a Silkworm missile fired at Khafji, a joint Kuwaiti-Saudi oil field.

Hours before the bang was heard, the official Iraqi News Agency said Iraqi warplanes raided "a large naval target off the Iran coast" at 11 p.m. Tuesday.

The agency, monitored in Cyprus, quoted an unnamed military spokesman as saying the attack was "in compliance with Iraq's determination to choke the enemy's oil exports and revenues which are used to finance the war against our country."

A U.S. convoy set out Tuesday from Kuwait for the 550-mile voyage out of the gulf. It included the 80,000-ton Ocean City and the 46,000-ton Gas King tankers, as well as the guided-missile frigate USS Ford, the Pentagon said.

Shipping sources in the gulf said the tankers linked up with three U.S. warships overnight.

Solow wins Nobel economics prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — American Robert M. Solow won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences for his contributions to the theory of economic growth, the prize committee announced today.

Solow was chosen by the economics faculty of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences.

In the 19 years since the award was created, 15 U.S. citizens have received it.

Last year, James M. Buchanan of George Mason University in Fairfax, Va., received the prize for basic work on the theory of decision-making.

The Nobel Foundation, a legacy of Swedish industrialist Alfred Nobel, sponsors annual prizes in medicine, literature, physics, chemistry and work for peace. The prizes were established in Nobel's 1895 will.

The economics award was established in 1968 by the Bank of Sweden as a memorial to Nobel. The winner of the prizes receives the equivalent of about $343,000.

Nobel is credited with inventing dynamite, which became a cornerstone of his business empire.

The prizes for peace, medicine, physics and chemistry were announced last week. The prize for literature will be announced Thursday.

Two Americans, Donald Cram and Charles J. Pedersen, shared the 1987 chemistry prize with Frenchman Jean-Marie Lehn. A West German, Georg Bednorz, and a Swiss, K. Alex Mueller, shared the physics prize.

Susumu Tonegawa, a Japanese researcher working in the United States, won the prize for medicine. The coveted Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to Costa Rican President Oscar Arias for his Central American peace plan.

The prizes will be distributed Dec. 10 in Stockholm and in Oslo, Norway.

someone to take the workshop at the end of the month even if they are not presently able to help tutor.

The literacy program was developed by Dr. Frank C. Laubach who established Laubach Literacy International some 52 years ago. Headquartered in New York, the organization conducts programs worldwide.

LLA estimated that some 27 million adults are functionally illiterate and that illiteracy among blacks and Hispanics is two to three times greater than the national average.

Illiterate adults earn 42 percent less than a high school graduate. LLA also estimates that 20 percent of America's adults cannot vote, cannot seek employment and cannot take advantage of assistance programs because they are unable to read.

According to statistics, 21.6 percent of all Texans over 25 have an eighth grade or less education.

Junior testing due next week

Across the state, it is estimated 15,000 seniors will retake the section of the exam they failed as juniors. Approximately 330 students who did not graduate last year because they failed the test have registered to retake it.

Students have four opportunities to pass the exit-level test, in the fall and spring of both their junior and senior years. The spring administration is scheduled for May 3-4.

2 wrecks noted

Police investigated two traffic accidents Tuesday in which no one was injured.

A 1972 Chevrolet driven by Brian Linza Sherrard of DeLeon was in collision with a 1983 Dodge van driven by Mary Hernandez Rodriguez of 3730 Austin at 11:25 a.m. at 37th St. and College Ave.

A parked 1981 Chevrolet owned by Erna Chauncey of 2006 37th St., No. 7, was hit by an unknown vehicle and driver at 2:34 p.m. in the Senior Citizens Center parking lot.

Be prepared for adoption

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — We are thinking of adopting a baby. The birth mother is mildly retarded due to a high fever when she was a child. The father is more seriously retarded, due to a fall when he was young. What are the chances of the baby being retarded or a slow learner? Are there any tests for a newborn to measure ability?

DEAR READER — From the information you supply, it seems that the natural parents have mental retardation because of injuries. If this is so, the baby is unlikely to be retarded. However, there is a risk: Perhaps the parents would have had some retardation even without the fever or injury. What is the mental status of their siblings and grandparents? In adopting the child of retarded parents, you should accept the real possibility that the baby could be retarded, too. This isn't necessarily a reason not to adopt, but you should be prepared to take responsibility for the child if that is the case.

Despite the risks, you may choose to adopt this particular baby — and your life might be richer doing so. A child is a child; retarded youngsters need the same love and support as normal children. However, you also must be prepared for this and be fully committed to it. Before you do this, seek medical help. Learn what you can through scientific testing (does either parent have chromosomal/genetic abnormalities?) and through talking to the birth mother's obstetrician or to a pediatric consultant. With more information, you'll make a more appropriate decision. Let me know what you decide.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What causes hiccups?

DEAR READER — Hiccups are due to periodic spasm of the flat diaphragm muscle that controls respiration. This can result from irritation of the muscle itself or of the nerves that feed it. More often than not, doctors are unable to identify the precise cause of hiccups; they just come and go. Several medical writers have described a surefire way to cure hiccups: Quickly swallow one or two teaspoons of dry table sugar, with no liquid. No one know why this works.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report, WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NURSING HOMES, offers a step-by-step guide to rating facilities and finding the best care available. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Dallas leads nation in arrests

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities said 55 suspects have been arrested in Dallas, the most of any city during a nationwide crackdown on Jamaican narcotics rings believed responsible for 625 drug-related killings, including 44 Dallas area homicides.

Officials today planned to continue the operations that already netted 124 suspects in 13 states. In Dallas, authorities had already reported seizures of $133,858 in cash, $13,445 worth of narcotics and 27 weapons Tuesday during raids on heavily armed "crack houses" run by gangs said to show "no respect for human life."

Task force members estimated about 75 Jamaican-run labs have been operating in Dallas at profits of about $400,000 a day.

In Houston, one Jamaican male was arrested in the sweep, said Phil Chojnacki, agent in charge of the bureau's Houston division. More arrests are expected, but Chojnacki said his division's investigation has "not progressed to the point of the one in Dallas."

The raids were part of the bureau's crackdown on the Jamaican Posses, gangs that take their name from television Western shows and have been connected to drug-related murders, kidnapping, narcotics trafficking, gun trafficking, robberies, assaults and money laundering.

The Dallas raids began on Monday at 14 locations by heavily armed local and federal law officers. More arrests were expected today as warrants were executed, said Richard L. Garner, agent in charge of the Dallas office of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

He said that 240 arrests are expected nationally by the time the 13-state crackdown concludes, and expects Dallas to continue leading the country in the number of arrests.

"The Jamaicans are opportunists. They believe they can make money in Dallas, so they are here," said Garner.

Police Chief Billy Prince said the Jamaican drug ring made nearly $400,000 in profits each day among 75 Dallas crack houses before the raids.

He said an 18-member task force was formed and a local investigation began in November 1986 when authorities noted a sharp increase in murders attributed to Jamaican traffickers and an 18-member ral task force was formed.

"It's new, it's moved fast into Dallas and it's multiplied fast," said Charles Storey, an investigator in the city police's Intelligence Division. Some 27 Jamaican gangs are believed to operate in the city.

Chojnacki said the problem is new in Houston, too, but said he couldn't compare Jamaican drug trade there with that in Dallas.

Garner said the Jamaican organizations are characterized by the drugs, greed, an affinity for automatic weapons and a "total disrespect for human life."

"It doesn't matter if it's a uniformed officer, an agent or a citizen; they just simply do not have respect for human life," Garner said. "I think everyone would agree that these are some of the most vicious and violent criminals we've encountered."

At a Tuesday news conference in Dallas, officials displayed a cache of weapons and narcotics seized in the raids.

"We find that they not only have high-quality type of weapons, but they also have a lot of them," Garner said.

Among the weapons seized in Dallas were several machine gunes, including Uzis and Mac-10s, authorities said. But, they said, all the arrests so far have been made peacefully.

The Jamaican organizations are active mainly in lower-income, minority neighborhoods, police said. The drugs with which the Jamaicans are allegedly involve include cocaine powder and "crack," an inexpensive cocaine derivative.

"They are run very much like a lottery operation within a gambling organization where you have people bringing in the drugs and other people coming in and picking up the money," Garner said.

The organizations operate with small quantities of cash and drugs to avoid felony arrests and reduce their loss of profits, he said.

150 plus arrested during crackdown

by The Associated Press

A three-day, nationwide crackdown on murderous Jamaican gangs began drawing to a close today with more than 150 suspects under arrest, officials said.

"They are probably this country's most violent" organized crime group, said Stephen E. Higgins, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Washington, D.C.

As of Tuesday night, the sweep in 13 states and the District of Columbia had netted 152 suspects, with agents in Dallas arresting 45, said Jerry Rudden, an ATF spokesman.

Law enforcement officials had confiscated narcotics, $159,000 in cash, a hand grenade and more than 60 guns, including five machine guns, he said. Higgins said officials expected more than 200 gang members to be arrested by tonight.

The gangs, known as the Jamaican posses, came to the United States in the early 1980s and have been connected to 625 drug-related murders, along with kidnapping, narcotics dealing, gun trafficking, robberies, assaults and money laundering, officials said.

"This is probably the fastest-growing violent criminal group in the United States, bar none," said Miami ATF agent Joseph J. Vince Jr.

"They are getting more powerful, more violent, and more wealthy. What we're trying to do is put an end to it now before it gets out of hand."

Higgins said the posses deal in crack and heroin, in smaller quantities than many other organized-crime groups, "but in terms of violence in this country they have to rank up there."

Richard Garner, agent in charge of the ATF Dallas office, said the groups are responsible for about $400,000-per-day drug trafficking in the Dallas area.

In 1984-85, Dallas Police Chief Billy Prince said, police attributed three murders to Jamaican trade in Dallas, and from 1986 to the present, that number rose to 41.

"These are people who love automatic weapons and aren't afraid to shoot," said Charles Storey, a Dallas police investigator. "They have killed a lot of people."

Hall ticketed for eating banana

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fawn Hall, former secretary to Lt. Col. Oliver North, received a citation Tuesday on a charge of refusing to stop eating a banana in a subway station, but she said the police are going to have to prove their case in court.

Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority police said Ms. Hall was cited when she did not stop eating a banana after being told to do so by Metro transit officer D. C. Saunders.

But Ms. Hall said she trashed the banana as soon as she was told to do so and only finished eating a small piece that she already had to her mouth.

"It is insane. It's crazy," she said. "I didn't refuse to stop eating."

Ms. Hall said she was standing by a trash can and was holding a newspaper and the banana in one hand was breaking off small pieces to eat with the other hand.

"I had broken off a piece of about two inches. I had bitten into it when he called, 'Miss. Do you realize it unlawful to eat in Metro station,'" she said.
