Ax-Wielding Russian Kills Swedish Tourists

MOSCOW (UPI) — A mentally deranged night watchman who "felt like killing someone" attacked three elderly Swedish tourists with an ax today on the steps of the Intourist Hotel, hacking two of them to death and seriously wounding the other.

One of the tourists was taken away with the ax still lodged in his skull.

Witnesses gasped in horror as the man, identified as Alexander Nezhinsky, 24, took long, hacking swings with an ax at a woman and two men in full view of hundreds of tourists and passersby.

One Soviet official asserted Nezhinsky could have been inspired by the "Son of Sam" killings in New York.

Soviet authorities said the man went berserk and attacked Helen Johannsen, 67, her husband, Henry, 71, and Anar Andersen, 83. Mrs. Johannsen died instantly and authorities said one of the men died in a hospital.

"I felt like killing someone today," militia officcals quoted Nezhinsky as saying. They described him as "mentally deranged" and said they were listing his motive as insanity.

The official Tass news agency also described him as "a mentally deranged person" and said, "The criminal was detained by the militia and an investigation is underway."

The Intourist is a modern 21-story structure of glass and steel situated on busy Gorky Street near Red Square and the Kremlin. Hotel guests at the moment include Christina Onassis, the daughter of the late Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, who is in Moscow on business. She apparently did not witness the attack.

Witnesses said the man appeared to be a "schizophrenic." They said moments after the attack, he was talking calmly with police when he was thrown into an ambulance and taken away.

Clifford May, a correspondent for Hearst newspapers staying in the hotel, said he emerged about five minutes after the attack and saw two of the victims still lying in a pool of blood.

"By the time I got out on the street the cleanup had begun," he said. "One body was being put into an ambulance, another was covered with a sheet, a third was still lying on the stairs, the ax embedded in his head."

Witnesses said the victims had emerged from the Intourist at about 12:40 p.m. (4:40 a.m. CDT). Intourist officials said they were Swedish tourists staying at Sevastopol Hotel.

One witness said the man followed them from the hotel and pulled the ax from a briefcase.

Senators Approve Tax Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today reversed itself and ratified a tax treaty with Great Britain, after nullifying language that critics said would usurp the right of U.S. states to tax foreign corporations as they see fit.

The 82-5 vote came after the Carter administration and Senate leaders worked out a compromise nullifying the controversial section.

The treaty, with the reservation attached, now must be reconsidered by the British House of Commons, which ratified the original version some time ago. The U.S. House of Representatives has no role in ratifying treaties.

Several senators urged the British to approve the modified version of the treaty and to resume negotiations on the question of U.S. state taxes on foreign corporations based on total worldwide earnings, not just on revenue generate in the state itself.

Sen. Allen Cranston, D-Calif., said negotiations are being held with the California state legislature to repeal the so-called unitary tax by which that state taxes foreign corporations on the basis of their total earnings, not just on income generated inside the state.

California is one of the leading states to impose the unitary tax. But both Cranston and his California colleague, Republican S.I. Hayakawa, voted for the treaty provision eliminating such a tax, saying they did so because the loss of tax income would be more than offset by increased foreign investment.

The Senate failed to approve the treaty last Friday as a result of the 44-34 defeat of a treaty reservation offered by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, to prevent implementation of language limiting the ability of states to impose the unitary tax. The vote for the overall treaty was 49-32, short of the two-thirds needed for ratification.

Church and his supporters said the provision not only would cost the states tax revenue, but would limit their constitutional authority to impose taxes on foreign corporations investing in the United States.

Through a parliamentary maneuver, the Senate then agreed to set a new vote for today on the treaty with a reservation nullifying the impact of the section that prohibited the unitary tax.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., a leading advocate of the tax treaty, called on the British to understand the American constitutional system that led to the initial rejection of the treaty.

"I hope that Parliament will see the situation as we see it and accept the treaty" as modified, Javits said.

Bloody Riot Quelled At Matamoros

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Machine-gun wielding federal troops patrolled streets in this border town today after quelling a riot by some 4,000 students that left at least one person dead and 35 injured.

There were conflicting reports of the number of dead and injured. The U.S. consul said he had an unconfirmed report of one, and possibly two, deaths. The Mexican hospital authorities said they knew of no deaths, but said 35 were injured.

The Mexican government did not immediately comment on the incident.

There had been reports of a policeman killed, but Mexican authorities denied it.

The rioting was touched off by the death last week of a teen-ager who was in police custody.

For four hours, angry students threw rocks and burned most of the businesses around the town square. Then they marched to the City Hall complex, burning the police headquarters and the jail as well as the municipal building. The jail and police station were gutted.

The demonstrators forced their way into public buildings, scattering police records in the town square. The looting and torchings spread quickly throughout the downtown area.

U.S. Consul Francis Arenz said guards panicked and there was "plenty of shooting."

He said eight Americans were in the jail at the time were uninjured and remained in custody today.

A jail official, Ontonio Perez Trevino, said 10 other prisoners escaped during the melee by just shaking bars off windows. Four prisoners were hospitalized, he said.

Five banks were also hit, but two banking officials said today no money was taken although the buildings were pretty well gutted.

He noted that other northern Mexico cities had similiar riots in recent years and "It's Matamoros' turn to catch hell."

Matamoros, which has a population of 300,000, is located across the Rio Grande from Brownsville.

Arenz said he saw what appeared to be the charred remains of someone in a state judge's office at the jail complex. He said it appeared to be a small boy or woman.

Arenz said the mayor, Antonio Cavazos Garza, was forcibly taken to the plaza and "had to run for his life" when "things got hot."

This morning, shop owners tried to wade through several inches of broken glass piled on the sidewalks to salvage what they could from their businesses.

Tourist spots in the town were not damaged.

An early report from a spokeswoman for Social Security Hospital said two high school students had been killed.

But hospital administrator Guadalupe Garza Rudeas said early today that one of the two students reported dead was still alive but "with little chance for survival."

Rain Hopes Get Boost On Plains

A-J News Services

The National Weather Service had some welcome words for Lubbock area residents this morning — a forecast of a chance of rain and some relief from the scorching heat.

Chance of thunderstorms was pegged at 30 percent today and tonight and 20 percent on Wednesday.

A high temperature in the upper 90s was predicted today after six straight days of 100-degree-plus weather. The record is 10 straight in 1924.

The high Monday was 102.

Wednesday's high is expected to be only in the mid-90s under partly cloudy skies.

A cloud bank stubbornly appeared in the sun-washed blue sky late Monday afternoon, and heavy thunderclouds developed over Lamb, Hale, Bailey and Hockley counties around 10 p.m.

Health Department Fund Hike Studied

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Additional funding for the City Health Department prompted the most discussion this morning in a City Council work session on next year's budget.

Although the council officially made no revisions in City Manager Larry Cunningham's recommended budget, the health department topped the list of probable revisions.

Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan asked that at least one sanitarian, out of five requested by Health Department director Dr. Majorie Orr, be added in October.

She also favored starting a child health clinical program in October rather than in January as recommended by Cunningham.

The city manager Monday had recommended no additional sanitarians, but following a conversation with Dr. Orr today recommended one sanitarian be added in October and another be hired in January. The additional cost to the city would be $34,500.

Cunningham said Dr. Orr told him at least one more sanitarian was needed due to the retirement of current staff members.

To begin the child health program in October would cost the city an additional $32,000, and it appears unlikely other members of the council will approve the idea.

Councilman Alan Henry called the health department "the Number One priority as far as items which are not funded, but the Number One priority of the whole budget is to hold the line," he said.

"If we do decide to fund these items, we ought to try to find it (the funds) somewhere else in the budget," he said. "We've got a mandate not to increase the budget."

The city stands to double or triple funds for the child health clinic with federal and state dollars, Cunningham said, but added the program must be operational before any such money will be granted.

Cunningham gave council members a list of increased budget requests from all departments and indicated which of those had been recommended for approval.

Of $4.4 million requested by department heads, Cunningham approved only

LULAC Claims Witness

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The shooting of a Mexican-American Sunday in Hale County that has enraged Hispanic leaders across the state may have been witnessed by someone in a nearby field, the district director of the League of United Latin American Citizens told The Avalanche-Journal today.

Earlier reports have said there were witnesses to the confrontation between Charles Cypert, a Hale County reserve sheriff's deputy, and Tim Rosales at the intersection of farm roads 179 and 1071 about 6:30 p.m. Sunday, but that the ensuing shooting that killed Rosales was not seen by anyone other that Cypert.

However, Tony Reyes, district director of LULAC, said this morning that a Mayfield man notified authorities Monday afternoon and said he saw Rosales of Hale Center get shot.

LULAC State Director Ruben Bonilla said the purported witness will be taken to see the FBI, which, along with the Texas Rangers, is investigating the case.

Cypert, 45, a non-paid, state-certified peace officer who has been with the sheriff's department since 1972, has been relieved from duty pending a final ruling in the shooting.

Tue said he was told by Cypert that the deputy stopped Rosales at the rural intersection about four miles north of Mayfield and 25 miles southwest of Plainview on a drunk and disorderly call.

Rosales, who reportedly had been eastbound on FM 1071 in a car missing to of its tires, and Cypert scuffled in the front yard of a home near the intersection when the deputy's .45 automatic pistol discharged and the bullet struck the suspect in the right part of the forehead just above the hairline.

Rosales, who was unarmed, was pronounced dead at the scene by Abernathy Justice of the Peace Jean Marr.

"There may indeed be an eyewitness to the killing," says Bonilla. The director said the reported witness's version of what happened is that "the deputy pulled his gun after getting out of the car and walked to Rosales' vehicle and put the

Magazine Gets Serial Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — "The major women's story of our time" is the way Ladies' Home Journal editor Lenore Hersey describes her magazine's latest acquisition — the autobiography of former First Lady Betty Ford.

MRS. FORD

The periodical announced Monday it bought the exclusive North American serial rights to Mrs. Ford's "The Times of My Life," which will chronicle experiences from early childhood to her recent, harrowing fight to beat alcohol and drug addiction.

"I'm pleased to have my book in Ladies' Home Journal," beamed Mrs. Ford. While the purchase price was undisclosed, the magazine's publicist used word's like "record-breaking."

"The Times of My Life" will be published in the October and November issues, Ladies' Home Journal publisher Robert Thomas said.

Pre-Game Show Features Nixon

Attending his first major league baseball game since leaving the White House, Nixon was all smiles Monday night.

In addition to posing for photographers during the Angels-Kansas City Royals game, Nixon, 65, agreed to a radio interview with Dick Enberg. But the only questions asked were about baseball.

The former president called Ted Williams the greatest hitter he has ever seen and Sandy Koufax got the nod for best pitcher.

"Williams could hit a ball anywhere," Nixon said of the former Boston Red Sox star. "He showed what a great hitter he was when they bunched up against him on the right side of the diamond.

"I was in Yankee Stadium (in 1963) when Koufax broke the World Series strikeout record," Nixon recalled. "I went bananas with everybody else when he did it."

Royal Couple See Liberty Bell

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Japan's Crown Prince Akihito was a model of decorum; but Crown Princess Michiko couldn't resist hugging little children and shaking hands as the couple toured Independence Hall and touched the Liberty Bell.

The crown prince, immaculately attired in a black double-breasted suit Monday never touched the people crowding around them. He bowed slightly from the waist, speaking both in English and Japanese.

While the royal couple received an instant history lesson, U.S. Secret Service agents and local police warily inspected the crowds, which included about 100 members of the city's Japanese-American community.

He Ate The Evidence

MARTIN, Ga. (AP) — Billy Burdette might have held the state catfish record today if he hadn't eaten the evidence.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

The fish, which was too large for conventional scales, weighed 60 pounds on a pair of bathroom scales at a nearby country store.

But Burdette, who said he had no idea the catfish was near the state record, ate most of it before state Game and Fish Division rangers could weigh it officially.

"I wish I had it to do all over again," he said Monday when rangers called him after they heard about the catch.

Officials said the state catfish record is about 56 pounds.

EVERYBODY'S HERO — Willie Mays went to Capitol Hill Monday to testify, but found he was most in demand for his autograph, even among the senators on the subcommittee on parks and recreation conducting hearings on urban recreation and recovery. Waiting their turn with Mays are Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., right, and Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., (AP Laserphoto)

Senators, Student Wait For Mays' Autographs

By DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronnie Ohringer, high school student, and Pete Domenici, United States senator, have something in common. A hero.

Both waited patiently to get an autograph from Willie Mays.

When Mays testified before a Senate subcommittee on Monday, senators did not come to question him. They came to praise him, shake his hand, stand next to him, bask in the glow of real, lasting stardom in a city where a politician is only as good as his last election.

Ohringer is 15 and from Bethesda, Md. Domenici is 46 and from Albuquerque, N.M.

But so what? Willie Mays is a hero for all seasons.

Mays is one of baseball's all-time greats. He played for the New York (later San Francisco) Giants and the New York Mets.

He is known to millions, even though it's been five years since he last played. Now he's a coach for the Mets.

He testified in behalf of legislation to provide federal aid for rehabilitating urban parks and recreation areas.

"I find out that most of them (young people), if they have something to do in terms of recreation, they have no time for drugs and no time for getting into trouble," Mays said.

But it wasn't what he said as much as his presence that drew attention.

It isn't new, having a celebrity speak in front of a congressional committee in behalf of legislation. Actor Robert Redford, for instance, has testifed in support of measures designed to protect the environment.

The belief in Congress is that a well-known witness increases public support for a bill that otherwise might not get much attention — and attracts a lot of reporters who might otherwise go elsewhere.

For Willie Mays, reporters turned out in force. Some of them even asked for his autograph.

"If I had not shown up, I would not have been welcome at home," said Domenici, the father of eight.

"Speaking for the federal government, I want to welcome you with open arms," Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, told Mays, forgetting that he was speaking only for the subcommittee, which he heads.

Metzenbaum entered the committee room accompanied by Mays and a second witness, Wes Unseld, starting center of the Washington Bullets basketball team. Even Unseld, no small-name player, seemed in awe of Mays.

"Let me apologize for being nervous, because I am," he said. "I don't know whether it's because of the senators. I tend to believe it's out of respect for the man on my left."

Mays made a brief opening statement, as did Unseld. Then the two answered a few questions. Through it all, the television cameras rolled.

When they were excused, Mays was surrounded by autograph seekers and admirers — senators included.

Public Workers Favor Tax Reform Action

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thousands of public employees, worried that a national reaction against taxes could cost their jobs, applauded their union leader's call for quick federal action on tax reform.

Jerry Wurf, president of the 1 million-member American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, told the group's annual convention Monday that California's Proposition 13 may be an omen of more tax cuts.

"What has happened in California could spread," Wurf said in the keynote address at the convention of the largest AFL-CIO union in the nation. "It is not a tax rebellion. It is a public outcry for fair play. Only tax reform can answer it."

Wurf denounced the California initiative — Proposition 13 — as "a deception" and said it would cost the state billions in federal tax writeoffs and aid.

He said the boon would go to business and industry, and the losers would be government employees.

In Los Angeles, Howard Jarvis, co-author of Proposition 13, called a news conference Monday to urge landlords to pass on savings from the tax cut to their tenants. He also said he planned to continue working to prevent the federal government from gaining a windfall as a result of tax rollbacks.

"Not only in California, but all over America the taxpayer feels he is paying too much," Wurf told the delegates. "... As taxpayers, we share the public's anger. But as government employees, we suffer the most severe consequences."

Wurf said the only fair way to finance government services is the graduated income tax. He urged President Carter to keep his campaign promise to reform the tax system.

"The administration must be pressed for federal tax reform," Wurf said.

He suggested that rewards be given in federal funds to states that adopt "progressive" local tax systems.

The tax issue was expected to dominate the week-long convention, although at Monday's opening session the 3,500 delegates heard denunciations of their convention site as a state that rejected the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution.

The union took full-page ads in local papers vowing not to convene here again because of the failure to ratify the ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex.

The amendment has been approved by 35 states and must be ratified by three more by March 22, 1979, to become part of the Constitution. Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska have rescinded their approval, but the Justice Department says it is up to Congress to decide the validity of that move. Kentucky's action was vetoed, however.

Senate Trims Foreign Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is once again feeling the effects of California's tax revolt, this time in the foreign aid program.

Ignoring pleas to keep President Carter's foreign aid spending plan intact, the Senate voted 57-22 Monday to slash the $1.86 billion program by 5 percent.

The vote reduced the authorization bill by $93 million, leaving a total of $1.76 billion. The bill with the lowered spending level was then adopted, 49-30.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., called his amendment to reduce the spending a prudent and balanced move to reduce a bloated program and provide some tax payer relief.

He said it is similar to a 5 percent reduction imposed by the House in each section of the bill.

But Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., called the Byrd amendment an irresponsible "meat ax" and said the reduction would give each American taxpayer exactly 32 cents.

"That is enough to buy a small bag of popcorn at the movies," Case said. "On the other hand, it is also enough to feed a child in Africa for three days or to immunize five children."

The vote came in apparent response to taxpayer dissatisfaction as symbolized by the 2-to-1 vote by which Californians decided earlier this month to reduce state and local spending and to cut property taxes.

Jarvis To Fight New Methods

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Landlords who stand to substantially save from tax cuts triggered by Proposition 13 should pass those savings on to their tenants, tax reformer Howard Jarvis says.

However, Jarvis said at a news conference Monday that rebates or rent cuts would not materialize if tax increases depleted savings from Proposition 13, which limits property taxes to 1 percent of market value and rolls back assessments to 1975-76 levels.

Proposition 13's co-author also said he planned to continue working to prevent the federal government from gathering a tax windfall as the result of tax rollbacks.

"We are going to stop the federal government from taking so much money from the people," Jarvis said. "But we haven't come to any conclusion on what we are going to do."

Jarvis attacked a pending Beverly Hills ordinance that would increase apartment owner license fees and similar measures that would undermine tax reductions.

Trever Grimm, one of three landlord representatives at the news conference and a member of the board of directors of the Apartment Owners Association of Los Angeles County, said the Beverly Hills ordinance would wipe out any savings apartment owners might have gained from Jarvis' tax-limiting initiative.

"Voters wanted tax relief, not a tax shift," Grimm said.

Jarvis said Washington lawmakers are considering methods to return to the states any increased revenues that would flow into federal coffers as a result of tax-cutting efforts such as Proposition 13.

Since California taxpayers will have 57 percent less in property taxes to deduct from their federal income taxes, federal revenues will burgeon by an estimated $1 billion to $2 billion annually, he said.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The boss won't pay off on conversation tomorrow, but he will on performance. This is where you'll shine. You'll know what needs doing and will do it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Unless your advice is explicitly requested tomorrow, keep it to yourself even though you know your words would eliminate another's present woes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An inquisitive friend may try to poke her nose into a confidential matter tomorrow regarding you and another. The less said the better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This may be a day when you will be required to make a difficult decision. Keep in mind: The easiest way out is not necessarily the best.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Coworkers will not be inspired tomorrow by an old-fashioned pep talk. Actions speak louder than words. Lead by example.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your first impulses regarding things of a speculative nature should not be heeded tomorrow. Take time to size up all propositions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Where minor domestic issues are concerned tomorrow you may prove to be a bit unreliable. This will not be true if there is something serious at stake.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Important decisions should not be left up to those you're in charge of tomorrow. Let them know that the final judgment rests with you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take a hard look at your budget tomorrow. You will find ways to get greater mileage from your dollars. There's some fat that's easily trimmed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though it may be all in fun with you tomorrow, be very careful about teasing others. Your barbs could hit too close to the tender spots.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Favors you request tomorrow are likely to be granted, but they're apt to have strings attached. You'll be better off to fend for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In new enterprise at this time, try not to spend too much seed money. Use your head instead of your checkbook.

LAFF-A-DAY

"But, doctor, my tongue IS sticking out!"

Sen. McGovern Sounds Attack On 'New Right'

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans for Democratic Action, the True Believers of New Deal liberalism, gathered in Washington last week to hear Sen. George McGovern implore them to keep the faith.

The South Dakota Democrat, president of the 31-year-old liberal organization, ran up the "Surrender, hell!" pennant in the face of Proposition 13, right wing primary victories and the discovery that Jimmy Carter is a centrist. He told the ADA convention that he does not and will not abandon the idea that the government can solve national problems.

Just as Barry Goldwater was annealed in his conservatism by the walloping he took from Lyndon Johnson in 1964, McGovern made clear that he remains a double-dipped, galvanized liberal despite the loss of 49 states to Richard Nixon in 1972 and the much-heralded public shift to the political right since.

"To give up on government now, to turn our backs on those who have been left behind, to decide that all we can do is keep our own share, is to give up on our own best instincts," McGovern said. "It is un-American; it is unacceptable."

Although McGovern's speech sounded like a challenge to those who say the California property tax referendum means Big Government is on the skids, even he felt the necessity to explain how to reduce government spending — cut the military. "The real spendthrifts are the hardline hawks," he said, and suggested a SALT II agreement could save the nation $75 billion in five years.

On the political level, McGovern's speech on its face was an attack on the "New Right" and the old goblins of privilege, obvious texts for a sermon by ADA's leader. But just below the surface was a threat to Jimmy Carter as clear as any a Republican ever threw down.

McGovern analyzed Carter's 1978 State of the Union address as a statement of government "powerlessness" and then, after describing Carter as "a dedicated, conscientious man who longs to be a good president," declared:

"We elect leaders to set goals and solve problems, not to plead that they are insoluble. And in the final analysis, their leadership must be a moral one. I do not mean the moralism of insubstantial pieties or dreary self-righteousness. Moral leadership does not tell us how good we are, but how we can do better."

Some of the reporters, who were given an advance text of the speech, thought they recognized an impending comeback in the making and asked McGovern if he was thinking of challenging Carter in 1980. With some emphasis, McGovern said no, his Senate term ends that year and that was what he was concentrating on.

Smithsonian Often Says No Thanks To Phony Artifacts

By DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution may be the nation's attic, as it has often been called, but there are many times when it says to would-be donors: Thanks, but no thanks.

Curators recently rejected meteorites that turned out to be ordinary rocks, 19th century copies of Gilbert Stuart's painting of George Washington, replicas of famous airplanes, campaign buttons and a 44-ton milling machine.

"We exhibit portraits of famous Americans who have been dead more than 10 years but, of course, we're always looking for the best portrait of a person," Curator Robert Stewart of the National Portrait Gallery said.

"Judging by the number of George Washington portraits we turn down — about two a week — every American artist produced a Washington portrait at some time in his career."

A woman recently offered what she believed to be Martha Washington's wedding dress for the exhibition of first ladies' gowns. A curator found it was machine-stitched.

Herbert Collins, curator of political history, says almost every old trunk in the country contains a 19th century reprint of the New York Herald Tribune announcing Abraham Lincoln's death, the 1889 commemorative hatchet marking Washington's inauguration 100 years earlier and hundreds of campaign buttons.

"Some people don't bother to call or write, they just leave their artifacts in the exhibition halls," Collins says.

A man from Paducah, Ky., identifying himself as "John Q. Collector," once sent Collins a large collection of 20th century campaign memorabilia. It was a valuable addition to the huge collection of the Museum of History and Technology, but Collins accepted it only after doing some detective work to locate the man and thank him. The Smithsonian did not name the donor.

As many as 50 or more rock samples may be offered to the Air and Space Museum every year, but perhaps only one may prove to be a meteorite. The same museum is offered many old pilots' licenses and uniforms, of which it already has a good supply.

It also turns down plastic airplane models made from kits in favor of ones made from scratch by experts. It rejects replicas of any plane when the real thing is available. One man offered a collection of old airplane cards and brochures; the museum rejected it but may acquire his collection of airline maps from the 1930s because they document flight routes of the period.

Even with careful screening, the Smithsonian added about 1½ million items to its collection last year, many of them gifts from people who decided that old treasures in their attics should be preserved in the national collection.

Analysts Claim Merger Not To Affect Market

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Steel industry analysts predict the $6.1 billion corporate merger creating the nation's fourth largest steelmaker will strengthen the merging firms but have little overall effect on the steel market.

Attorney General Griffin Bell overruled the recommendation of his staff last week and approved merger plans announced by The LTV Corp. and Lykes Corp., parent firms of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., the seventh largest domestic steel producer, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., the eighth.

Bell said Lykes faced the "grave probability" of economic failure without the merger, and thus qualified under the "failing company" exception to anti-merger provisions of antitrust laws.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube — forced last year to close its Campbell Works in Youngstown, Ohio, and idle 5,000 workers — is primarily responsible for Lykes' financial plight.

Lykes' officials welcomed the approval which, once the merger is cleared with the Securities and Exchange Commission and agreed to by shareholders of both firms, will serve Lykes well. It is estimated the merged firm will rank about 30th in the nation, approaching the size of Westinghouse Corp.

Other major steelmakers were reticent on the merger topic, but steel analysts predicted little immediate change.

"Putting the two companies together I don't think will change materially the competitive element of either of the two units," said Al Rudd of Standard & Poor's, a New York investment firm.

Schools Begin Trend Of Failing Students

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An old practice — flunking — is becoming a new trend in big city school systems.

Education officials say the trend is toward an unbending refusal to promote children from grade to grade just to get rid of them. And they say it is rapidly paying off in better basic skills for grammar and high school students.

Pressured by taxpayers for better results, many big city school systems recently have adopted the no-nonsense approach to problem students and apathetic parents.

"We flunked about 13,000 students two years ago," said Jacksonville, Fla., school board member Bill Carter. "That number dropped to 3,000 last year. A lot more parents are now asking how their kids are doing."

Chicago school board member Henry McGee said, "I, for one, am glad those days of token 'social promotion' of students are over. We've gone through a generation who felt they had no responsibilities — only group rights. We're testing students and we find that a lot more eighth graders must go to summer school this year to cope with high school."

Noting that taxpayers are turning down school bond proposals in many areas, some cities also are testing teacher skills to weed out unqualified instructors.

Dallas school board member Sarah Haskins said the results, to be released this summer, of some teacher-testing in her district "may show we have some teachers who should not have been teaching."

The comments came at a weekend meeting of the Council of Urban Boards of Education. Representatives from many of the nation's 65 biggest cities said their school systems now:

— Test the ability of elementary and high school students at regular intervals and refuse to promote those who do not keep up.

— Put more emphasis on reading skills, and pressure parents to sign contracts promising to uphold their responsibilities in the education process.

Council chairman George Brown Jr. of Memphis said schools must let taxpayers know they are fighting waste — especially in light of the nationwide tax revolt that seems to have been heralded by California's Proposition 13.

"I think the problem of discipline is sometimes overemphasized," Brown said. "We're centering on helping all students achieve at least basic skills. The taxpayer doesn't want education mills. And we are listening."

Denver school board President Omar D. Blair said students who do not achieve are not passed in his city. He said the answer lies not only in forcing students to do their assigned work, but in making the work an interesting challenge for youngsters of all backgrounds.

Alaskan Lease May Be Illegal

LONG BEACH (AP) — Approval by the city's Harbor Commission of a 40-year lease for an Alaskan oil tanker terminal may be illegal because the lease was agreed to before an environmental study was completed, a port official says.

"Things were done to the lease I was told would not be done," the chief of port environmental affairs, Donald B. Bright, said.

"The approach being taken is at least very unethical and also more than likely contrary to the law," he added.

The proposed $500-million Standard Oil Co. of Ohio project includes an 89-acre deep-water tanker terminal and a 36-acre tank farm along with a pipeline from Long Beach to Midland. The pipeline would carry 500,000 barrels of Alaskan oil daily to Texas, for redistribution through the Gulf Coast and Midwest areas.

Sohio has obtained 844 of the 847 permits necessary to begin construction, and a spokesman said the firm expects to get the remaining three permits by the end of the year.

But Bright told the Harbor Commission at a hearing last week that it had violated the California Environmental Quality Act by agreeing to a lease before it had a complete environmental impact report.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Rally 'Round The Flub

WHILE THE White House is responsible for the poor timing, lack of coordination and inept staff work which contributed to the emasculation of tax reform programs this year, some of the blame must be shared by two other groups:

• A coalition of business, civic and public interest groups that initially rallied under the banner of "Citizens for Tax Reform in 1978"—but never delivered the promised essential support of their members; and

• The millions of middle-income taxpayers whose notoriously lethargic attitude toward public affairs resulted in minimal backing for a proposal that could have shifted at least some of the federal tax burden elsewhere.

PRESIDENT CARTER sounded the call for citizen participation earlier this year when he noted that "the voices we hear in Washington (at tax reform time) are the voices of special interests..."

The administration's effort to activate a counterforce began with a breakfast for more than 50 potential allies. Those invited were asked if they would be willing to commit themselves and their organizations to a grass-roots campaign.

Those who said yes were invited back to hear Carter involk florid rhetoric in an appeal for reinforcement from the "average Americans (who) foot the bill..."

Formation of CTR-'78 was announced the same day. In an unprecedented move, the citizens' committee sought to publicize the votes of representatives on amendments proposed in the House Ways and Means Committee—the seldom-noticed process that shapes all tax legislation.

FORMATION OF the citizens' group and plans to generate constituent pressure on members of Congress for true tax reform were bold, innovative steps—just a little too little, too late.

Organizations that promised to carry the message to their membership generally failed to fulfill that commitment.

Consequently, the bill now likely to emerge from Ways and Means contains very little of the original content plus a Carter-opposed reduction in capital gains tax for business. As a result, the proposal becomes fodder for the veto cannon.

Unfortunately, administration bungling of this well-intentioned operation went well beyond and below the normal White House lack of political agility. Chalk up another case of Carter giving good government a bad name.

IN ITS MONTHLY newsletter, the Lubbock chapter of the National Organization for Women claims credit for helping E. L. Short defeat Don Workman in the runoff for the Democratic nomination to the state senate.

"Members made hundreds of telephone calls asking Lubbock residents to support Short in the runoff," the newsletter says.

It then quotes from an analysis of the voting by Neale J. Pearson of Texas Tech's political science department:

"Tech faculty were important in increasing Short's share of the votes...Workman's positions on tenure and funding at Tech, plus the resolutions pushed through the county convention May 13, alienated many Tech faculty members and spouses as well as motivating many NOW members and supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment to support Short."

Workman, a member of the Tech Board of Regents, has challenged tenure policies and faculty complaints that higher education in Texas is under-funded. His wife has fought the ERA, which NOW is promoting.

'Divided We Fail'--Goldwater

WASHINGTON—The Carter administration's policy of moving toward normalization of relations with Communist China could destabilize all of Asia and the Western Pacific and possibly even Europe.

This is the blunt warning that Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., is circulating among Senate colleagues in a major move to rally congressional support against ending U.S. diplomatic relations with the Republic of Free China and its 17 million people on Taiwan.

The administration's move to recognize Peking and withdraw diplomatic recognition from Taipei is expected to come after the November congressional elections.

IN ORDER TO HEAD off this questionable change in U.S. policy toward China, the former GOP Presidential nominee is circulating a memorandum titled "The Destabilization of the Pacific Basin" which warns:

"If we move to formal recognition of the People's Republic and the creation of a balance of power axis, to counteract the Soviet Union, all at the expense of political integrity of the Republic of Free China on Taiwan, we will not achieve a balance of power at all.

"Instead, it is possible that the entire Pacific Basin will be destabilized and possibly Europe as well.

"INDEED, I PREDICT that if Taiwan is abandoned by us the increasingly adverse results of our late retreat from Vietnam will pale into insignificance. The awful long-term impact the Vietnam debacle is having on our foreign policy will be necessarily compounded."

Noting that the Soviet Union "will not stand idly by while the U.S. and the People's Republic move toward this balance of power posture," Goldwater stresses that the abandonment of Republic of Free China would force that government into a unholy alliance with Russia.

Pointing out the strategic advantages to Moscow of air and naval bases on Taiwan, Goldwater reports:

"As of now the Soviet Pacific fleet, including their nuclear weapon-carrying submarines, is based on Vladivostok, the only port for that purpose along the entire Soviet Pacific Coast.

"The Soviet Union's ships and submarines must pass into the Pacific waters through relatively narrow channels. These are patrolled constantly and, as of now, we know quite well Soviet naval movements.

"With the Soviet naval base in Taiwan this situation alters dramatically. The entire Pacific is open to Soviet naval power.

"Surveillance by us becomes impossible. The deep water off the east coast of Taiwan alone would insure this much as far as the nuclear carrying submarines are concerned."

A third and continguous result of the administration's new China policy, Goldwater contends "would be the absolute isolation of South Korea and its 36,000,000 people."

"Without Japan as a staunch U.S. ally, U.S. air power and troops in South Korea would be in a most dangerous position and would have to be promptly removed," warned Goldwater. "An isolated Korea will sit ready to be picked off any time the North Koreans and Russians choose."

Goldwater sees the Soviets demanding and getting naval base rights in the Philippines and in Singapore. He concludes:

"We could witness, therefore, a strategic achievement by the Soviet Union only comparable to what the Japanese sought to do in 1941. The potential threat to the U.S. from a Japan in control of the Pacific in 1941 was serious enough. The potential threat to the U.S. from the Soviet Union in control of the Pacific could be mortal."

Risk Outruns Profit In Gold Metal Race

AS THE WORLDWIDE demand for gold as a haven of safety continues powerful and undiminished in the face of all government private efforts to discourage it, the number of ways you can buy the precious metal have multiplied.

Some ways make it simpler to buy; others make it less expensive to hold; all are designed as lures to draw you into the gold market.

But do not permit yourself to be lulled into overconfidence by any of the appeals.

Gold buying is a speculation; as is true of all speculations, there are traps for the uninformed, pitfalls for the unwary.

AND WHILE IT IS indisputable that gold has been a great buy in recent years—its price has quintupled since gold was torn from its long-standing peg of $35 an ounce—it was an utterly sterile and costly holding for a prolonged span of time before the upward move finally began.

Here are several of the ways you can participate in ownership of gold—if you want to despite all the warnings and the determination of governments around the world to minimize or wipe out the role played by gold in the international monetary system:

(1) YOU CAN, IF you have a hefty bankroll, take part in the periodic auctions of gold now being held by the U.S. government. The smallest amount you can buy is a 400-ounce bar valued in the $70,000 range. Merely to submit a bid, you must place a $10-an-ounce deposit. Purchasers at these auctions have been primarily European banks.

(2) You can buy "gold deposit certificates," a new instrument introduced a year ago by the world-renowned foreign exchange firm of Deak & Co. In less than a year, Deak reports nearly $40 million of gold certificates have been bought.

You can buy the certificates in minimum units of $2,500, representing an undivided but specific interest in gold bullion with a minimum fineness of 0.995.

The metal is registered and stored in bulk at a depositary bank in Zurich.

THE POTENTIAL RETURN to you, the buyer of the certificates, lies solely in the market increase in the price of gold. If the price of the metal falls, you, as a gold deposit certificate holder, are the loser.

(3) You can buy "common" gold coins, such as the South African Krugerrand (1.0 ounce); the Mexican 50 peso (1.2057 ounces); and the Austrian 100 crown (0.9802 of an ounce).

These coins are attractive solely because of their gold content in contrast to numismatic coins which sell for large premiums over their gold content.

(4) YOU CAN BUY gold bars, but here, you must trade only via a reputable dealer who will guarantee that he will buy back the bars at a fixed markup.

It's difficult to sell gold bars to strangers which accounts for the need to have an advance commitment from the dealer as a protection.

(5) You can buy shares of good mining companies. With the exception of Homestake Mining, located in South Dakota, however, this choice involves buying shares of Canadian or South African mines.

And here, there is a clear political risk, cautions Philip R. Herzig, partner in the New York Stock Exchange firm bearing his name and a specialist in gold shares.

I MUST CONFESS to a long-standing prejudice against gold as an investment (much less, a speculation). But I also agree with Herzig that "gold is sought eagerly when people don't trust paper currency," and this is an era of deep mistrust.

Although gold has been officially kicked out of the monetary system, it still constitutes 45 percent of central bank reserves in the free world.

And the supply of gold is not only limited but also it is so widely owned that its price cannot be manipulated by any one country.

So, I bow out of the debate—and leave it up to you.

John D. Lofton:

Kemp: Carter Act Too SALT-y

WASHINGTON—Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., who is advised by one of this country's most brilliant defense analysts, Dr. William Schneider, has recently returned from Geneva, where he met with members and the staff of the U.S.-Soviet delegations discussing strategic arms limitation.

After checking out the SALT talks first-hand, Kemp, a member of the House Appropriations Defense Subcommittee, says he "deeply regrets" that he cannot recommend that these negotiations continue in their present form.

So, instead, the former Buffalo Bills' quarterback suggests a game plan of his own which President Carter would be wise to follow:

"I BELIEVE THE President should recess the talks, bring home our negotiators, and the SALT process and the Joint Draft Text be thoroughly reviewed by the executive and Congress with the intent of reformulating the American negotiating posture in a manner which would allow an agreement to be reached which would be more equitable, totally verifiable, conducive to international crisis stability, and unambiguous in its terms."

Kemp, who believes that a properly conceived arms control pact can enhance American security, says that he has arrived at his conclusion reluctantly for the following reasons:

1. The terms of the proposed SALT agreement are fundamentally unequal. They allow the Soviets to deploy and operate weapons systems which are denied the U.S.

For example, the Soviets are permitted to deploy 326 SS-18 missiles, each of which has the ability to deliver five times the payload of our most modern ICBM, the Minuteman III. The U.S., however, is prohibited from deploying "heavy" ICBM's.

SIMILARLY, THE Soviet Backfire bomber, with an unquestionable intercontinental capability, will not be counted against the Soviet Union's ceiling on strategic delivery vehicles.

2. The one-sided nature of the pending SALT agreement may very well "increase the risk of nuclear war" by making the strategic nuclear environment unstable and possibly causing the Soviet's to precipitate a 1980s version of the Cuban Missile Crisis.

The mere perception of such an imbalance of power could increase Soviet boldness and adventurism in the world.

3. The proposed SALT pact is filled with terms by which Soviet compliance cannot be verified with high confidence.

The casual attitude taken by key U.S. SALT policymakers toward verification—namely that we ought not insist that the Soviets comply with the letter of the agreement so long as their violations are not "militarily significant"—is "simply unacceptable for any American President to be asked to support, and any Congress to ratify," says Kemp. He notes:

"THE RECENTLY proposed unverifiable five-year prohibition on underground nuclear tests, suggested by President Carter, confirms the preference of his administration for taking 'verification risks' with potentially grave implications for American security in an effort to reach a speedy agreement in time for the November elections.

"Based on the Soviet efforts to evade compliance with the terms of SALT I, we cannot risk entering an agreement unless Soviet compliance with its terms can be fully verified."

4. The terms of the SALT agreement now on the negotiating table has the effect of simultaneously permitting the increase of the Soviet nuclear threat posed to our allies in Europe and Asia, while denying them the means to counter this threat by deploying, for example, long-range (greater than 600 kilometers) cruise missiles.

Kemp says that such an agreement, if ratified, would encourage the worst fears in Europe of a Soviet-American domination of European affairs —the kind of fears raised in the 1960s.

This would result in the erosion of confidence in American intentions on the part of our European allies.

He believes it must be done, because the current SALT agreement would institutionalize the incipient inferiority of American arms and codify a long-term, and perhaps permanent, Soviet military advantage.

Unless, for some strange, perverse reason, President Carter secretly desires a disastrous SALT defeat in the Senate—which would only further weaken his hand in foreign policy (maybe not such a bad thing after all, considering this policy), he would be well-advised to listen to Kemp.

If he doesn't, Carter cannot say he wasn't warned.

The New York Yankees were on TV the other night. It was the most expensive cast on the screen since The Godfather.

Taiwan Probes U.S. Priest

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — Authorities announced today they were investigating a case of possible subversion involving an American Roman Catholic priest.

The priest, The Rev. Ronald Boccieri, 47, of New York, already was reprimanded by police in 1974 for preaching "more politics than gospel," said a police officer in Pu Hsin in central Taiwan.

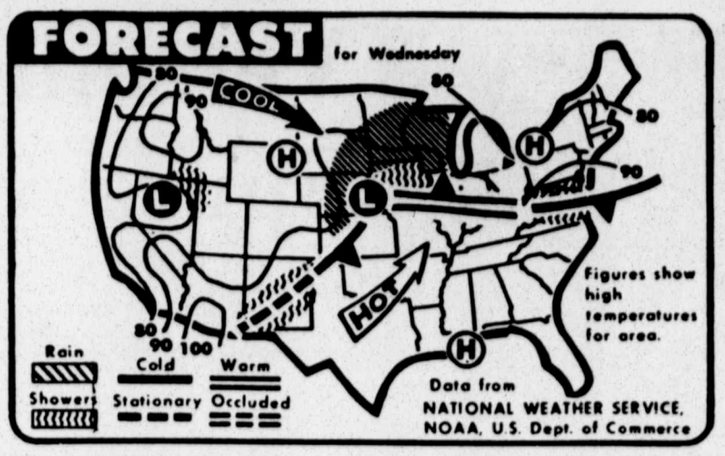
The Taiwan Garrison Command announcement said a routine check last Friday of a house in Taipei turned up "many kinds of illegal documents" and a roster of convicted subversives who had been released after serving prison terms.

A woman in the house, Chen Chu, 29, gave investigators an address where she could be reached for further questioning. Police, unable to contact her at the address the next day, tracked her to Boccieri's church in Pu Hsin.

The report said the priest at first refused to open the door of the church and turned out all the lights when the investigators called on him with a subpeona for Miss Chen. But he later changed his mind and surrendered her.

Boccieri told UPI he had "fully cooperated" with the investigators but that more than 100 people in his church were frightened when the some 30 policemen showed up in a "very rude manner" and one of them called him a "liar."

He declined to disclose the nature of the documents the agents seized in Miss Chen's house.



WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast for parts of Nevada, Idaho, Utah and New Mexico for Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service. OPEC Official Says Cartel Not Enemy

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Although the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries most likely will impose a series of small oil price increases beginning next year, the cartel should not be viewed as an enemy, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani says.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, visiting this center of Canadian energy production, told a group of oil experts Monday that the small price increases were necessary to dampen demand and to avoid sharp boosts later in the price of oil that could produce another world-wide recession.

The 1973-74 embargo by the 13-nation cartel and a subsequent four-fold price increase caused a recession that even affected OPEC members by eventually reducing the value of the money they were paid.

"Unless oil prices are permitted to grow gradually in real terms throughout the rest of the century, another sharp price increase is inevitable by the end of the 1980s by reason of the supply that is likely to occur by that time," Yamani, dressed in a three-piece suit, told about 2,000 members of the Canadian Society of Petroleum Geologists.

He said any sharp price increase could "create grave consequences for producers and consumers alike." Later, in a news conference, Yamani refused to specify how large the "gradual increases" might be, but he said any hike in 1979 could be around 5 percent although later increases likely would be higher.

As a general guideline, experts say an increase of 5 percent in the price of foreign oil raises U.S. retail gasoline prices about one cent per gallon.

Yamani, the most powerful member of OPEC but also one of the most moderate in recent years, carefully tried to soften the political impact of contemplated price increases.

"We think that OPEC will become much more strong in the future and OPEC shouldn't be looked at as an enemy organization," he said during the news conference. "I think it is an organization that will serve all of mankind."

Asked about the morality of using oil as a political weapon, Yamani responded in an almost Biblical meter:

"In 1973 (during the Arab-Israeli war) we used oil as a political instrument in order to pass the message to the Western world, telling them 'you do need the Arabs.' So we reduced a little bit of our production and the message was passed...

"In 1976 (during the recession) we passed another message, telling the West that not only do you need the Arabs, but you can depend on the Arabs. When Saudi Arabia refused to increase the price of oil, we also got that message to the West, and it was known."

U.S. Playing Down Soviet-Turkey Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department on Monday sought to minimize the significance of the recent visit of Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit to the Soviet Union in which he signed a document affirming "principles of good neighborly and friendly cooperation."

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the document was essentially a restatement of the general principles of the 1975 Helsinki agreement and was similar to statements signed in Moscow in recent years by leaders of France and Norway.

U.S. officials have been watching closely the evolution of relations between Turkey, a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and the Soviet Union.

Carter noted that Ecevit pointed out during his visit that there was mutual recognition that both nations are members of different military alliances.

Soviet Union Allies Air Absolute Loyalty Call

By STEPHEN H. MILLER

BERLIN (AP) — Confronted with the prospect of a new Chinese diplomatic venture in Eastern Europe, East Germany and other Soviet allies are calling for absolute loyalty to Moscow's leadership.

The appeals, coupled with condemnations of Peking, follows a Japanese report that Chinese Premier Hua Kuo-feng plans to visit the independent-minded

Analysis

Communist governments of Yugoslavia and Romania in October in an effort to counter Soviet influence.

A Peking correspondent for Kyodo, the Japanese news agency, said diplomats in the Chinese capital reported Hua may include France in his itinerary.

Calls by East European party chiefs to rally behind the Soviets appear aimed not only at Belgrade and Bucharest but also at maverick West European Communists trying to work out nationally tailored movements in Italy, Spain and France.

The Soviets may seek a show of solidarity during the meeting of Comecon, the East Bloc economic union, which opens today in Bucharest. Premier Alexei Kosygin will lead the Soviet delegation.

Communiques issued over the weekend in East Berlin and Warsaw appear to reflect fears among Moscow-allied party chiefs that Peking will try increasingly to split world Communist ranks, challenging Soviet influence on Moscow's doorstep.

Peking's policy, the East Berlin communique declared, is helping "strengthen the positions of the forces of imperialism and reaction in their battle against Socialism."

The communique was released following a meeting between Erich Honecker, the East German party and government leader, and Lebanese Communist boss Nicolas Chaoui. International party unity had been billed as one of the main topics of their talks.

East German and Lebanese Communists, the communique said, "decisively condemn the anti-Soviet course of the Peking leadership, which is directed against the Soviet Union, international reduction of tensions and the national liberation movement."

A similar communique was issued at almost the same time in Warsaw after a meeting between Polish and Hungarian party chiefs Edward Gierek and Janos Kadar.

Both leaders pledged firm opposition to "anti-Soviet and anti-Communist campaigns." They cited "military-industrial complexes" and Peking as forces interfering with East-West accommodation.

Neither communique singled out any Communists for criticism except the Chinese leadership, but both were couched in terms that could apply to Romania, Yugoslavia and to West European Communists trying to play down ties with Moscow.

The East Berlin communique opposed "all attacks on the general validity of Marxism-Leninism, one-sided emphasis on special national factors and all activities directed at drawing into question the vanguard role in real Socialism of the Soviet Union and the party of Lenin."

Yugoslavia, under the leadership of President Tito, broke with Moscow in the 1950s. Romania remains a member of the Warsaw Pact military alliance but is often at odds with the Kremlin on foreign policy issues and is the only East Bloc nation which does not permit Soviet troops on its soil.

By contrast, East Germany's leaders are called "the German Russians" in Eastern Europe, and the East Berlin regime's constitution promises "perpetual friendship" with the Soviet Union.

Rhodesians Deploy Army For Search

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The military command said the group of black guerrillas that killed 12 Britons at a mission school in eastern Rhodesia last week is fairly large and the government has put as many troops as possible into the hunt which entered its fourth day today.

A spokesman for the command said Monday night that a South African radio report saying security forces had trapped the guerrillas in a tribal trust land near the mission was "only a rumor." But he said the manhunt in the Vumba Mountains near the Mozambique border was still underway. He declined to elaborate.

Black members of the staff and pupils at the Elim Penecostal mission school said the guerrillas identified themselves as members of Robert Mugabe's Mozambique-based Zimbabwe African National Union. Mugabe has denied the charge, accusing black Rhodesian forces of committing the murders.

Though the Mozambique border is only about four miles from the mission, trackers said there were no indications the guerrillas had crossed to safety.

The officer in charge of the manhunt said the missionaries and their families were massacred because it was well known that there were no weapons at the mission.

"The calibre and background of these terrorists, who are — make no mistake — Mugabe's men, is such that they will only take on the softest of targets like this mission," said the officer, who could not be identified.

The officer said allegations by Mugabe that Friday night's massacre had been carried out by Rhodesian security forces were "garbage."

"No one in their right minds could accuse the Rhodesian security forces. We, unlike the terrorist leaders, have full control of our men. The best evidence on who committed this evil act came from the schoolchildren who were rounded up and lectured. The people who did this are not normal.

"I want to know who are these well-trained terrorists Mugabe and his like boast about. This well-trained terrorist, who all by himself managed to bayonet to death a three-week-old baby."

The baby was among 12 men, women and children hacked and battered to death at the mission. The only woman to survive the massacre, Mary Fisher, 28, is still in a Salisbury hospital in "very serious" condition. A hospital spokesman said she was suffering from facial and head wounds.

Guerrillas of the Patriotic Front alliance led by Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo have been fighting against government forces for six years.

PAINTING DESTROYED BY BOMBING — The remains of Debret's painting of Napoleon presenting the first Legion of Honor medals, painted in 1812, hang from a wall on the ground floor of the Chateau de Versailles near Paris following Monday's bomb explosion. Three underground organizations claimed responsibility for the bombings, which damaged 16 paintings, three plaster busts and some furniture. The estimated repair cost will exceed $1 million. Versailles Data Spurs Arrests

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — Police began rounding up Breton separatists today after receiving evidence that they were responsible for bombing a wing of the historic Palace of Versailles in which a number of Napoleonic relics were damaged, officials sources said.

The sources said France's State Security Court has taken over the investigation. A prosecuting attorney for the court, which investigates and tries offenses against the security of the country, was giving instructions to police investigating the bombing, the sources said.

The Breton Revolutionary Army and two little known leftist groups have claimed responsibility for the Monday morning explosion. A police spokesman said the bombing was "completely in conformity with the style, form and tone" of previous Breton bombings.

Police said the roundup of Bretons "is continuing" in the Brittany region but would not say how many had been picked up.

The Breton Army is an underground arm of the Breton Liberation Front, declared illegal in 1974. The army has claimed responsibility for 204 bomb attacks in the past 12 years, most recently destroying the major television relay station for Brittany, on France's northwest coast.

In a tract found Monday on an expressway in Brittany, the Breton Army said its "soldiers" had carried out the bombing. It said "the Breton people are oppressed, the land of Brittany is occupied by French military camps, and the language and culture of Brittany are denied and destroyed by French imperialist power."

A small minority of Bretons, probably numbering in the hundreds, demand either autonomy or independence from the French state. Their arguments have been based on a demand for increased use of the Breton language and an improved economy for the region.

Only recently have students in Brittany been able to gain credits for the study of Breton. The autonomists say all schooling should be in Breton, but French remains the language of education.

The autonomy movement is small and has never has any noticeable electoral effect. It has been operating since before World War II. Some members were tried or went into exile after the war, accused of cooperating with the German occupation forces in the hope of realizing their aims.

Museum authorities suggested that the 2 million visitors a year to the premier monument of France's Golden Age might in future have to go through "airport-type checks."

The blast wrecked three ground-floor rooms in the Midi Wing of the 17th-century palace, badly damaging 16 paintings and wall panels, three plaster busts, a dozen antique chairs, assorted candelabra, ornate curtains and sculpted woodwork in galleries devoted to the Napoleonic Empire period.

German TV Officials May Edit 'Holocaust'

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West German television officials say they may cut "Holocaust," the 7½-hour American miniseries about the Nazi extermination of Jews, and shunt it to regional channels.

WDR, one of the semi-autonomous, government-owned stations in the national ARD network, bought the NBC film for $500,000 while it was being aired in the United States last spring. Other stations in the network are objecting to the cost, and several newspapers and TV station officials oppose the film being broadcast in Germany.

Officials of the national network are to decide the program's fate in the next 10 days, Helmut Oeller of the Munich station Bayerischer Rundfunk said. One of the critics, he says "Holocaust" is "a commercial concoction" that is "unsuitable to adequately commemorate the victims."

An official of Radio Bremen, Helmut Lamprecht, said that instead of broadcasting "Holocaust," the network should be giving extensive coverage of the Maidanek war crimes trial that has been under way in Duesseldorf for three years.

The conservative Bonn newspaper Die Welt said the Nazi uniforms in "Holocaust" were inaccurate, Nazi leaders "once again" were caricatured and the emaciated concentration camp inmates were played by well-fed extras.

"When the time comes, a version cut to 90 minutes will be concealed on the WDR regional channel as an embarrassing gesture toward an enraged public to justify at least partly the wasted vast amount of public funds and to cover up the huge disgrace of those responsible for the purchase," the paper predicted.

Peter Maerthesheimer, a spokesman for the station that bought the film, acknowledged that it might be cut and said he favors showing it in the regional services. Each of the nine stations in the ARD network has two channels, one carrying the same program simultaneously nationwide, the second broadcasting programs tailored to each region.

Maerthesheimer said "Holocaust" should be scheduled on the regional programs "because they adapt better to our program schedules."

"We could use it as a 'locomotive' for a number of supporting programs, additional documentaries and television debates," he said.

"Roots," the other American TV blockbuster bought for West German television, was shown on the national channel, and after each chapter ARD carried short documentaries on the history and situation of American blacks.

According to newspaper reports, ARD paid about $700,000 for the account of an African brought to America as a slave and his descendants.

Hirsch Auction Nets $28.8 Million

LONDON (AP) — Bidders paid $306,900 for rare porcelain from the late Robert Von Hirsch's collection today and $6.06 million for Impressionist and post-Impressionist paintings Monday night, raising the total for the record-shattering auction to $28.8 million with one more session to go.

The showpiece of this morning's sale was a 26-inch Meissen white porcelain bird, which was bought for a record $189,000 by the Cologne Museum of Art.

The bird was made for Augustus the Strong, king of Poland from 1697 to 1733.

A Meissen "Augustus Rex" vase made in 1745, painted with a parrot eating cherries, brought $48,600. The buyer's name was not disclosed.

Meissen, in East Germany, has been an important porcelain manufacturing town since the early 18th century.

Impressionist and modern drawings and watercolors remain to be sold.

The total take already is more than double the previous record of $11.8 million for a single sale realized by Sotheby at the sale last year of the contents of Mentmore Towers, the home of the Earl of Roseberry.

The session Monday night set records for paintings by Matisse and Pissarro and equaled the record for a Toulouse-Lautrec. Nine paintings were sold for more than $250,000 each.

The night's top price was $558,000 for Matisse's "Still Life with Sleeping Woman," bought by a London dealer for an unidentified buyer.

A Toulouse-Lautrec portrait of a red-haired girl went to a London dealer for $414,000.

West German museums, which spent $19 million earlier in the sale to get back German cultural treasures, apparently were not interested in increasing their French collections. The auction house said not one major work went to a German buyer.

Von Hirsch, a Jew who bought many of his treasures at bargain prices between the two world wars, fled from the Nazis in 1933 and settled in Basel, Switzerland. He died there last November at the age of 94.

China Claims Vietnam Refugees Number 140,000

TOKYO (UPI) — Chinese authorities say the number of ethnic Chinese who have fled Vietnam has reached 140,000, Japan's Kyodo news service reported today.

Kyodo said in a special dispatch from Kunming in southern China that the Chinese government has spent about $1,100 per refugee, or at least $14.6 million, to help all the refugees resettle in mainland China.

The Kyodo correspondent was one of four foreign reporters allowed to travel to Yunnan province on the Chinese-Vietnamese border.

They were told by senior Chinese officials that the rift between the two Communist states had developed since the start of the border war between Vietnam and Cambodia.

Kyodo said Kunming airport was heavily guarded by troops and about 20 jet fighters and two large transport planes were standing by.

A senior provincial official told the visiting journalists about 140,000 ethnic Chinese have fled Vietnam, about 39,000 of them escaping from the Vietnamese border city of Lao Key to the small Chinese town of Hokou.

When asked about the possibility of an armed conflict breaking out between China and Vietnam, Yao Po-sheng, the official in charge of the refugee problems, replied, "It depends on what moves the Vietnamese make."

But he added, "China and Vietnam have shared a long history of friendship."

The Kyodo dispatch said a steam-powered train travels some 350 miles between Kunming and Hokou each day to take the arriving refugees to state farms in several Chinese provinces.

In Yunnan province alone, the Kyodo correspondent reported, 11 state farms are being used as refugee resettlement areas.

American Dies In North Sea

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Police today identified an American as one of 18 persons killed when a helicopter plunged into the North Sea west of Norway on a ferry run to an offshore oil rig.

He was Dennis Ivar Kahn, 27, a permanent resident of Stavanger, Norway, a city in that country's southwestern region, police said.

Police did not immediately indicate where in the United States he was from.

The other victims of the crash northwest of Bergen were 14 Norwegians including the two pilots, two British men and a French man.

There were no survivors.

The Sikorsky S-61 helicopter was on a 109-mile flight from Bergen to the state-owned Statfjord-A oil rig when it plunged into the sea.

An official probe was ordered into the crash — the second in seven months involving the Helicopter Service company which owned the craft.

A helicopter went down in the North Sea last November on a flight to Norway's Ekofisk oilfield. All 10 Norwegians aboard perished.

Chinese Seeking Technical Personnel

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese government is conducting a nationwide survey to locate all scientific and technical personnel, the official Hsinhua news agency says.

The report explained that the activities of the "Gang of Four" radicals during Mao Tse-tung's last years disrupted scientific and cultural work.

Boy Scouts Sue Clothing Maker

NORTH BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — The Boy Scouts of America has sued a sportswear manufacturer, saying it is making baby clothing bearing the scout motto "Be Prepared" on the seat.

A Scout spokesman said Monday the suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan against Popsicles Playwear Ltd., sought an injunction barring production and distribution of the diaper sets and $250,000 in damages. Scout attorney David K. Park said the scout insignia appears on the left breast of the outfits and the American flag and the words "Baby Scouts of America" on a pocket patch.

Teacher Admits Drug Pushing

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — Timothy J. O'Rourke, a former Catholic high school teacher, has admitted giving Quaaludes to a 16-year-old student, who in turn sold the depressant and other drugs to fellow classmates.

O'Rourke, 30, of Hollywood, pleaded guilty Monday to a single felony count of furnishing drugs to a minor. Superior Court Judge Thomas C. Murphy set sentencing for July 31. He was freed on $10,000 bail.

The former history and Spanish lay teacher at Bellarmine Jefferson High school admitted giving Quaaludes to the unidentified student last Jan. 11.

Police were led to O'Rourke after the 16-year-old student and another 17-year-old boy were arrested on drug charges. The student said he had been selling drugs for O'Rourke and leaving payments in the teacher's school desk.

British Chief Favors Aid To Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — British Prime Minister James Callaghan says Soviet and Cuban activities in Africa should be met with a "measured and appropriate" response so that disarmament is not imperiled.

At a "Tribute to Hubert Humphrey" dinner Monday night, Callaghan said the United States and other Western nations should respond to Communist efforts in Africa by sharing technology and other aid with that continent's developing countries.

"Overwhelmingly, I believe, they will prefer to collaborate with those of us whose friendship is based on equality and takes the form of helping them to solve their own problems," he said.

"The West has more to offer Africans than simply to treat them as pawns on a chessboard," he said. "The countries of Africa know this. They can recognize without anyone lecturing them the new imperialism that comes from the East.

"In every case our response to political or military adventurism must be measured and appropriate, and this is certainly true in Africa."

Callaghan said that while the British are willing to "repel any threat to their freedom," they also are eager for disarmament.

He rejected the proposition that "NATO and the Warsaw Pact should be condemned to the present levels of arms expenditure or, even worse, condemned to an ever-upwards spiral of arms costs."

In the long run, Callaghan said, "if our democratic values are to triumph, we must embark upon an international program of partnership and sharing unmatched in history."

He said he expected his country to convert past loans to poor nations into grants within the next few weeks. A similar bill that was sponsored by Humphrey is being considered by the U.S. Congress.

"What better way to honor Hubert Humphrey's memory than for Congress to pass such a bill and so combine generosity with enlightened statesmanship?" Callaghan suggested.

Vice President Walter Mondale introduced Callaghan to the 600 diners at the dinner, which raised funds for the Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota.

Before the dinner, Callaghan was presented with the first Hubert H. Humphrey International Award by the National Committee on American Foreign Policy.

Volcano Erupts In Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A volcano erupted today in the central Philippines and local authorities ordered the evacuation of people living at the foot of the mountain.

The Volcanology Commission said 8,086-foot Mount Canlaon, located about 320 miles south of Manila, rumbled to life early today, ejecting dark grey ash clouds 1,500 feet above its summit.

It was Canlaon's first eruption since Oct. 10, 1969, and followed the eruption early last month of another volcano, Mt. Muyon, 200 miles south of Manila.

The official Philippine News Agency said Mayor Isidoro Bautista Jr. of Canlaon city, located only six miles from the mountain, ordered all residents to evacuate the area at the base of the volcano.

The Volcanology Commission in Manila said it instructed those living within a six-mile radius of south and southwest sections of Mount Canlaon to be on the alert in case the volcano's activity becomes more severe.

Lobster Overharvest Reported

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — There's some bad news this year for Maine lobster lovers.

The director of research for the Maine Department of Marine Resources says overharvesting has reduced lobster populations, limited early catches this year and kept prices high.

"There's a very clear relationship between overfishing and the decline in catch," Robert L. Dow said Sunday. "This (decline) is despite the fact that we've had optimum water temperatures in the last five to six years."

Dow said the lobster catch of 1,772,000 during the first five months of 1978 was 585,000 pounds lower than during the same period last year. He said lobstermen have been getting an average of $2.55 a pound for their catch this year compared with $2.14 a pound during the first five months of 1977.

He said lobster should be more plentiful in the next few weeks as they finish a molting process and become more active, but he predicted lobstermen will find them in smaller numbers than in previous years.

Hospitals Termed Underutilized

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the number of hospital beds in the United States has been reduced by 250,000 in the past decade, hospitals still are grossly underutilized says retired Admiral Elmo Zumwalt.

The company puts up ancillary buildings to enable hospitals to better utilize their beds and outpatient facilities.

"We put up all the kinds of medical buildings patients don't spend the night in," Zumwalt explained. "We do a turnkey job that may even include organizing a medical team to use the building," he said.

The philosophy of the business, founded in 1965 by Joseph Checota, is simple. Despite the decline in the number of hospital beds, the bed occupancy rate of American hospitals has dropped from 80 percent in 1950 to 76 percent last year. That's not making the most efficient use of expensive beds and other services.

Yet the need for health care and the cost of health care still are rising steadily. So is the number of doctors. In 1950 there were 141 doctors per 100,000 population, now there are something over 190 per 100,000.

"There will be tens of thousands of new physicians in the country in the remaining years of the century. The methods and conditions of modern medicine make it increasingly impractical for a physician just to take space in an ordinary office building. The parking problem involved in the special comfort and mobility requirements of patients and the placing and operation of sophisticated equipment dictate buildings specially designed for medical purposes.

Accentuating the need for specially designed buildings is the accelerating trend toward group practice. In 1946 there were 404 group practices with 3,493 doctors enrolled. By 1975 that had jumped to 8,483 groups with 66,842 doctors.

The other thing going for Checota and Admiral Zumwalt is the desire of the medical profession, the government and everybody to check the rising cost of medical care by reducing the remaining surplus beds and increasing outpatient treatment. This requires buildings that can handle a big flow of patients every day.

American Medical Buildings isn't a big company — it did about $16 million in business last year — but it has a team of real experts and boasts it never has had a cost overrun on a contract.

Admiral Zumwalt became president of the company last August, giving up his plan to make another race for the U.S. Senate from Virginia to take the post.

A native of California, Zumwalt was a victim of his own success in the Navy. Graduating from Annapolis on the eve of World War II, he went up the ladder fast and at 49 became the youngest chief of Naval operations in history.

"But you can only serve a stated term at the top," he explained. "At the end of my term I was offered any four-star post I chose but I couldn't accept because I had preached for years that senior officers shouldn't stand in the way of younger officers' advancement. If I had stayed in and prevented some other admiral from reaching four-star rank, I would have made a hypocrite of myself."

Anway, he said with a smile, what he really liked during his Naval career was commanding ships, not the lofty staff jobs.

A&P Drops Ad Campaign

DETROIT (AP) — A&P is going to swallow its Pride and give up on Price.

Officials of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. say the firm will abandon an advertising campaign for A&P grocery stores that featured two characters named Price and Pride.

A new promotional program will be launched soon, chairman J. L. Scott told shareholders at the company's annual meeting in Detroit Friday.

Failure of the sales campaign was part of the reason for a $9.9 million drop in first quarter earnings, Scott said.

The company spent heavily on advertising and took a lower gross markup on all goods, he said, but sales climbed only 1.8 percent from the comparable 1977 quarter.

"We made an effort to try to regain sales. We were certainly successful in reversing the trend," Scott said. "But for the money we spent, we didn't get the results we expected."

The company's 1977 earnings were $5.4 million on record sales of $7.28 billion, Scott reported. In 1976, A&P earned $23.78 million on sales of $7.2 billion.

Directors voted Friday to omit a dividend for the first quarter of 1978, but gave some 150 stockholders at the meeting a pound of A&P coffee and some coupons.

Funds' Misapplication Denied By Defendant

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Defendant W. Jaye Ford took the witness stand today to deny he had misapplied funds of the Slaton Savings and Loan Association in a controversial deal involving the sale of approximately eight acres of land near Quaker Avenue and South Loop 289.

Greg Wood, now a vice president of Lubbock's State Savings and Loan Association, had testified Monday he made a false appraisal of the property in order to justify a loan in 1973.

"Did you ever discuss the appraisal of the eight-acre tract with Mr. Wood?" defense attorney Tom Sims of Houston asked Ford.

"Absolutely not," the soft-spoken, 36-year-old defendant, reportedly a former Oklahoma bank examiner, answered.

Ford indicated he never even saw the controversial appraisal until later civil litigation.

"Did you ever discuss the appraisal with Mr. Wood before or after (the appraisal was made)?" Sims continued. "I never discussed it with him at any time at all," Ford said.

The government earlier today rested its case against Ford, accused of conspiring to profit from Slaton Savings and Loan transactions and of causing false land valuation in order to influence the association to make loans.

Basically, the government charges that Ford was connected with the Slaton financial institution and acted as its agent while at the same time being connected with another company, Bay Tree Investments, Inc.

Testimony has indicated the savings and loan association purchased the eight-acre tract in early 1973 for approximately $300,000.

Ford is accused of being instrumental in the production of the alleged false appraisal made in July of that year, which showed the market value of the land as $625,000. The indictment says the alleged false appraisal was made in order to influence the association to make a $500,000 loan to Bay Tree, which reportedly purchased the property for $400,000 acquired in the loan.

The land was reportedly used as collateral for the loan.

Ford is alleged in the indictment later to have received $94,000 of the proceeds of the association loan to Bay Tree in the form of a check from Bay Tree payable to Bankers Financial Services, Inc.

Ford was asked if he had ever asked the owner of the loan association to sell the property to Bay Tree. Ford said he had not done so.

He said he had not helped negotiate the sale. "Absolutely not. I didn't even know what the figures were or anything," Ford stated.

The defendant said he had nothing to do with the original purchase by the association of the property in question and did not know what the association had paid for it.

Ford also said he had never been an officer or director of Bay Tree, though he indicated he was involved in common business ventures with the organization, basically supplying financial backing.

He said he had not known that the $94,000 which went to Bankers Financial Services — a company in which Ford said he had a 40 percent interest — came from proceeds of the Bay Tree sale.

Earlier, Fred Morgan Jr. of Houston, a Bay Tree executive, had indicated Ford helped arrange for the approximate $500,000 loan from the association to Bay Tree.

"Did you ever talk to anyone else to arrange that loan?" Assistant U.S. Attorney Bob Slough had asked in testimony Monday.

Morgan said he had not.

Also Monday, Wood indicated to Slough he was told by Ford and former association owner and board chairman Edward T. Miller that the association was going to sell the property and needed an appraisal. He indicated he was informed that a $500,000 loan to the buyer (Bay Tree) would be made in connection with the purchase.

Slough asked if Wood were told what the amount of the appraisal should be.

Wood said he was told to make an appraisal sufficient to justify the loan. He explained that a loan could not be for more than 80 per cent of the appraised value, and that, therefore, with a $500,000 loan, the appraisal would have to be at least $625,000.

Wood said that as one basis of his report he compared the property in question with other tracts. He said that his report indicated that the other tracts were comparable to the eight-acre tract when, in some instances, he did not actually believe the comparisons to be valid.

Most of the tracts used as comparables were on 50th Street, he said.

Wood had indicated that he made the appraisal at the bequest of Miller and Ford.

But, under a savage cross-examination from defense attorney Sims, Wood wavered on the question of Ford's alleged participation, saying he was "not 100 percent" certain Ford had been present when he was instructed to make the appraisal.

Wood indicated to Sims he was never told by Miller to falsify the report, but indicated he presumed he had been ordered to do so because of the need for justifying the loan.

"You're telling the jury today, that's a big lie?" Sims asked of the $625,000 figure during the scathing cross-examination. "In my opinion, yes," Wood answered.

Wood, of 3312-A 74th St., indicated he had in his opinion done what he had been told to do. When Sims asked if he had told a certain superior at the association that he had "lied," Wood answered: "He knew what I had done."

Miller, 45, of Dallas, a former co-defendant in the case, earlier pleaded guilty to one count of the indictment charging him with willfully making a false statement to a bank. The government agreed to drop the other five counts, including allegations surrounding the land appraisal in question.

Train Crash Survivor Critical

The father of two children killed in a car-train collision remained in critical condition today at Methodist Hospital.

Staff Sgt. Cornelius Roy Lewis, of 316 Arnold St. in Reese Village, suffered head injuries in the 4 p.m. accident Monday at Quaker Avenue and Brownfield Road.

Services are pending at Resthaven-Singleton-Wilson Funeral Home for Patrick Lewis, 2, and his brother, Shaun, 4. The older boy died Monday night at Methodist Hospital. It wasn't until he and his father were taken to the hospital that rescuers discovered the small hand of Patrick upraised in the back seat. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Witnesses said it appeared Lewis, southbound on Quaker, tried at the last moment to avoid the Santa Fe locomotive as it crossed the avenue at about 50 mph. The car was dragged more than 800 feet before the train was able to stop.

Witnesses said the crossing warning lights were working at the time of the mishap.

"He (the engineer) was on his horn all the way," said Tim Baugh, a service station cashier who was on his way to work. He said he was driving on Brownfield Road, parallel to the tracks, and estimated the train's speed "at about 50 mph."

Lewis was conscious when ambulances arrived and was able to crawl from the mangled wreckage. The top of the 1977 Thunderbird was cut away before the body of Patrick Lewis was removed.

Lewis' wife, Loma, was at work at a nursing home about five blocks from the accident scene.

The deaths pushed Lubbock's traffic fatality toll to 21 for the year, three behind the grim count on the same date in 1977.

U.S. Soldiers Killed In Helicopter Crash

WURZBURG, West Germany (AP) — Nine American soldiers assigned to the 8th Infantry Division were killed today in a helicopter crash about nine miles southwest of here, the U.S. Army announced.

According to the announcement, the UN-1 helicopter was on a flight from Baumholder to the Army's sprawling Grafenwoehr training area near the Czechoslovak border.

The cause of the crash had not been determined and names of the victims were being withheld pending notification of kin, the Army said.

Among the dead were three crewmembers and six passengers, the Army said.

Water Panel Grants Oil Mill Request

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has granted the application of Plains Cooperative Oil Mill to change effluent limitations in the permit already granted for its mill at Avenue A and East 34th Street.

The change will permit rainfall runoff from the cottonseed oil mill to run into the 26th Street storm sewer and eventually into the Brazos River.

FAA To Honor Gutierrez For Heroism

Amando Gutierrez, a Petersburg resident and once the "mystery man" in a daring rescue of a plane crash victim at Town and Country Airport in November, will be presented the Federal Aviation Administration's Certificate of Appreciation tonight.

The honor will be bestowed at a presentation beginning at 8:30 p.m. at the parish council meeting of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Petersburg.

Gutierrez is credited with helping save the life of Edwin F. O'Connor of 6715-A Hartford Ave. when O'Connor's single-engine plane crashed Nov. 16 at the Town and Country Airport south of the city.

Gutierrez was one of four who pulled O'Connor out of the cockpit of the burning craft. However, the man being honored tonight apparently did not stick around long enough the day of the crash to be recognized for his bravery.

The FAA was alerted of Gutierrez' participation in the rescue by his employer at the time of the accident, according to Philip R. Cramer of the FAA General Aviation District Office at Lubbock International Airport.

Kevin McKelvey, Robert Williamson and John A. Couch, all of Lubbock, also took part in the rescue and received certificates from FAA on April 17.

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 2292, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Prices Mixed, Gain 3.21

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned in a mixed showing today, steadying on word that the nation's trade deficit narrowed last month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell more than 10 points Monday, recovered 3.21 to 815.49 by noontime today.

But losers held a 7-5 edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government reported today that the nation's imports exceeded exports by a seasonally adjusted $2.24 billion in May, for the smallest monthly deficit since last September.

Brokers said investors' response to that news was restrained, however, by continuing expectations of a further rise in interest rates. Analysts have forecast an upward move soon in both the bank prime lending rate and the discount rate — the charge set by the Federal Reserve on loans to its member commercial banks.

Another subduing influence was President Carter's assertion late Monday of his strong opposition to proposals in Congress to reduce the tax on capital gains.

Gambling stocks were widely mixed after a sharp selloff just before the close on Monday. Caesars World and Playboy Enterprises each rose more than a point on the Big Board.

But Resorts International class A stock fell 5¼ to 75 and Resorts class B shares dropped 6½ to 79 on the American Stock Exchange.

The NYSE's composite index edged up .06 to 53.25, while the Amex market value index lost .62 to 144.97.

Assessment Doubled; Owner Irate

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The city-school tax office has doubled the assessed value of C. E. Williams' home at 4408 39th St.

Williams vows to fight it.

"I'm feeling more like Howard Jarvis every day. When your taxes go up more than 100 percent, you don't worry about how good your schools are or how well the parks are kept up. You worry about whether you'll get to keep your home," Williams said.

"Real estate people all these years have preached about the security of owning your own home. Well, a lot of people out here are being forced to leave their homes. They just won't have the money to pay their taxes," he said.

Williams said the assessed values of most homes in his area — the upper part of the city's southwest Zone 1, the quadrant revalued for tax purposes this year — went up 100 percent or more.

Williams' house now carries an assessed value of $23,000. (The assessed value is supposed to be 60 percent of fair market value. If you divide your assessed value by .6, you can determine what the city-school tax office is saying your property actually is worth. In Williams' case, the market value is being pegged by tax authorities at $38,000.)

Williams can't believe his home would bring that much. "Before I pay my taxes, I want cold, hard facts," he said.

Bobbie and Robert Green, who live in a neighborhood where assessed values were raised 70 percent, are forming a property owners' association to fight the increases.

"We are reasonable people, but we are also working people. There comes a time when people have to come together and say, 'This is it. We can't take any more'," Mrs. Green said.

The group will hold an "organization and information" meeting, open to the public, Friday at 8 p.m. at the First Federal Savings & Loan Association branch office, 3845 50th St., Mrs. Green said.

"Our main objective is to make people aware that they can do something. We will have legal counsel at the meeting to help us explore avenues for recourse," she said.

"We are not opposed to taxes. But when values go up 70 and 80 percent, we have to question the equity of the situation and how the values are arrived at."

The Greens, 3514 42nd St., got their notice of a higher assessed value Saturday. It was steep — about 70 percent — as compared with the 50 percent average found in an Avalanche-Journal survey of 100 properties.

The Greens checked with their neighbors and found that "everyone in our area was hit for an increase of at least 70 percent. One fellow said his was up 80 percent," Mrs. Green said.

That was when they decided to form an association.

"Everyone I've contacted has said they'll be there. It's spreading. This reevaluation has people stirred up," Mrs. Green said.

She said Rep. Joe Robbins, Republican nominee for state senate, will address the Friday gathering to explain his proposal for tax-limitation legislation.

City-school tax officials say the increases in assessed values simply reflect market trends. The approximately 20,000 homes in the southwest quadrant had not been revalued since 1973-74.

Persons who beleve their increases are excessive should contact the tax office by July 7.

News Briefs

Michael Arriaga, 18, of 1802 5th St., Apt. 107, was listed in critical condition today at Methodist Hospital following a motorcycle accident Saturday night in the 2700-block of E. 4th Street. Arriaga, police said, apparently failed to negotiate a left turn in the road and hit a curb. The youth, who reportedly wore no helmet, suffered head injuries.

PBS To Withhold Promoting Fall TV Schedule

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC, NBC and CBS just finished touting their fall wares to 90 TV critics here and will launch their new seasons in September amid heavy, costly ballyhoo. And public TV?

It's holding off until Oct. 1. Why? Simple. PBS's new and returning shows would have little chance for viewers against the September banzai charge of the networks.

"We think we've got a better shot then," Chloe Aaron, PBS's programs chief, says. "We won't have to compete with all the promotion dollars the networks will be throwing around in September."

PBS's fall lineup has eight new shows, two on film, another critiques of film and the rest ranging from religion to a single news topic studied each week in economic terms.

Mrs. Aaron now is drafting a proposed national program schedule for the fall. It will be made public in Dallas this week at the annual meeting of those running the nation's 200 PBS stations.

Now, NBC, under its new boss, programs whiz Fred Silverman, already has revamped its announced fall lineup, postponing "Coas-to-Coast" and moving five shows to new times. CBS and ABC are expected to make similar shifts before the new season begins.

Is there any evidence this frantic schedule-shifting before and during each season has so fuddled and disgusted viewers they are increasingly trying public TV, if only in frustration?

"It's the kind of evidence I'd love to have, but I don't," Mrs. Aaron sighed. "We're kind of going on hunches.

"But I think by the time the networks have kicked off their new seasons, with all that press attention to what's new, much of the stuff already will be changed.

"And there'll be lots of stories about why various shows were yanked. We're going to benefit from that come Oct. 1."

She also feels gripes about the light, sexually oriented content of many network entertainments will help public TV gain more viewers.

"I think probably one of the things working to our advantage right now is that critics and journalists are so dissatisfied with commercial television, as well as public interest groups ..." she said.

"That kind of reaction seems to be becoming a public reaction."

• • • •

The "Dacron Republican-American," National Lampoon magazine's spoof of a Sunday paper, was only kidding when it said TV talk show host Mike Douglas is devoting a week to interviews with such other famed talk show hosts as Dick Cavett and Dinah Shore.

But consider: Syndicated talk show host Phil Donahue, whose aggressive press agents have gotten him considerable publicity, was here recently interviewing someone for his program.

The someone? Tom Snyder, famed host of NBC's "Tomorrrow." When one talk show host is moved to interview another, the only public reaction possible is the sound of one hand clapping.

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, June 27, the 178th day of 1978 with 187 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

There are no morning stars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

Blind author Helen Keller was born June 27, 1880.

On this day in history:

In 1847, telegraph wire links were established between New York City and Boston.

In 1960, a typhoon struck Luzon Island in the Philippines, killing more than 100.

A thought for the day:

In the story of her life, Helen Keller wrote, "Literature is my utopia. Here I am not disenfranchised. No barrier of the senses shuts me out from the sweet, gracious discourse of my book friends."

Fatal Dog Attacks Discovered To Be Big Problem In U.S.

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

ATLANTA (UPI) — An estimated one million people in the United States are bitten by dogs each year and an unknown number die as a result of these attacks.

A study of fatal dog attacks conducted by federal health officicials said there is evidence the problem "is of greater magnitude than has generally been recognized."

It suggested that a surveillance program be started to determine the number of fatal incidents and the factors that cause dogs to attack people.

The study was conducted by Dr. William G. Winkler, a veterinarian and chief of the Gespiratory and Special Pathogens Branch at the national Center for Disease Control. It describes 11 deaths from dog bites that occurred in the United States during the two years from January 1974 through December 1975.

"Science Today"

"Although the lack of comprehensive surevillance makes it impossible to ascertain how many persons actually died of the trauma associated with dog bites in this country each year," Winkler said, "these 11 cases undoubtedly represent only a portion of the actual number that occurred during the reporting period."

The report lists the case histories of the 11 fatal attacks, three of which occurred in Missouri, two in New York, and one each in Indiana, Maryland, Texas, Minnesota, Nevada and Ohio. Six of the attacks happened in urban settings and five in rural areas.

Three of the dogs were shepherds and two St. Bernards. One was a Great Dune and another was a husky. A pack of dogs was involved in two of the fatal attacks. Most of the victims were children.

"Each of these attacks was obviously deliberate," Winkler said in his study. "One can only speculate as to whether the animals killed intentionally."

Winkler said rabies is often suspected in such attacks but all animals except two were tested and found negative for rabies.

"German shepherds, not unexpectedly, were the breed most often involved (three cases)." But the report said German shepherds are the most common large breed among dogs registered by the American Kennel Club and that any large mixed breed often is identified as a German shepherd.

Two attacks by St. Bernards, "suggest that this relatively uncommon breed may be a greater hazard than others," according to the study. Winkler said this suggestion was reinforced in a review of four attacks that occurred outside the time frame of his report.

Winkler said that in most of the cases the fatal bites by the dog were inflicted in the head and neck. "Death in these cases was attributed to massive hemorrhage or tracheal avulsion (separation)."

The study indicated that among the more significant factors associated with the fatal attacks was the victim's physical prowess. Except for a case involving a 17-year-old, "all the victims were apparently incapable of offering effective defense against a sustained attack. Nine were children under seven years old and one was a 75-year-old woman."

"Dog owners should be made aware that physically incapacitated persons or small children are at some risk if left alone with dogs, especially the larger breeds," Winkler said.

He said that while the stimuli that initiated the fatal attacks are not understood, "it appears that threatening behavior may be the most important single factor and should be avoided."

Agriculture Department Gives Vegetable Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says processors have contracted for 1 percent fewer acres of vegetables for freezing and canning than they did last year.

The department said in a report that about 1.66 million acres of the major vegetable crops grown for processing have been contracted this year compared with 1.67 million at this time in 1977.

QUEEN OF SCAT — Betty Carter, considered by many to be the queen of scat singing, is captured in this multiple sequence exposure during her performance in the Newport Jass Festival at New York's Avery Fisher Hall Sunday night. Archdeacon Denied Pulpit Post

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — An archdeacon appointed to replace a deposed Episcopal priest was denied access to the pulpit of St. Mark's Church here.

"I have been refused entry," Archdeacon Sydney Grant said Sunday. "I am not allowed to officiate, so therefore I do not go in."

St. Mark's Rector William F. Burns, 59, was deposed from the Episcopal Church for having abandoned the communion of the church. He has brought his congregation to the Anglican Church of North America.

He led the secession last July to protest the ordination of women and homosexuals, changes in the prayer book and a church policy which did not insist on belief of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The Episcopal Diocese of Newark last week appointed Grant to conduct the services after it deposed Burns.

"You're welcome to worship with us, but you're not going to officiate at the service," Burns told his would-be replacement.

Grant said he was "saddened" that he was turned away from the pulpit. He said, however, he anticipated the diocese would bring legal action against Burns.

Burns said he would not disobey a court order, but promised that he would appeal if one came.

Scat Queen Receives Plaudits

By DOLORES BARCLAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Carter, the queen of scat singing, proved once again that her voice is indeed a unique instrument.

Appearing in a concert that was part of the Newport Jazz Festival, she brought the audience to its feet in an explosive and spontaneous ovation that surprised Miss Carter but no one else.

Known as Betty "Bebop" Carter when her jazz singing career first started, she opened her program with the moody but mellow "I Love Music." There was still evidence of the bebop upbeat here. But it was a good tune to introduce Miss Carter's voice because it has a wide enough range to carry her from light whispers to full-throat huskiness.

As a jazz stylist, Miss Carter can just as easily travel through the samba beat of Carlos Jobim as she can peak with the driving pounce of "Moving On," or the frivolity of "The Trolley Song."

Backing the song stylist was John Hicks on piano and Roscoe Harris on bass.

Sunday night's program at Avery Fisher Hall opened with the saxaphone of Dexter Gordon.

Gordon mastered the tenor sax a long time ago — when he played with the late Charlie Parker. But his sound is more tempered today, richer and maturer.

He opened his set with the uptempo "Fried Bananas," demonstrating his skill in an easy, but excellent, run. But he really went from talent to artistry on the Billie Holiday tune, "Easy Living."

With virtually effortless playing, he managed to sustain a note and then drop it an octave to have the sax sound like an oboe.

To the general dismay of his fans, Gordon played only three tunes. The final one was "Backstairs," a selection from his "Homecoming" album. This is an even blend of 1978 style bebop and a few standard bridges.

Carter, Solons Feud Over Tax Cut Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's threat to withhold his approval of tax cut legislation if it eases the levy on capital gains is not visibly improving the chances of his own bill in Congress.

The House Ways and Means Committee has been unable to agree on Carter's proposal — or any compromise version — because of strong sentiment for cutting taxes on capital gains, the profits from sales of stocks, real estate or other assets held a year or more. Carter wants eventually to abolish the special treatment of capital gains.

In a wide-ranging news conference Monday, he lashed out at a proposal by Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Wis., to set a maximum 25 percent tax on capital gains, which now may be taxed by as much as 49 percent.

Saying the Steiger plan would provide "huge tax windfalls for millionaires and two bits for the average American," Carter said, "I don't see any possibility of my approving such a plan."

But, when pressed, Carter stopped short of saying he would veto the measure.

He included in his condemnation a compromise bill reportedly favored by the tax-writing committee that would set a maximum capital gains tax rate of 35 percent.

"I think the veto is a bluff," Steiger commented.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., author of the compromise, said he does not think Carter would veto his version when he understood all the facts.

On other issues Monday, Carter:

— Publicly urged David Gartner to resign as a member of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission because of stock gifts to his children from Minneapolis grain trader Dwayne O. Andreas.

But Gartner, former top assistant to the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said later through an aide that he "intends to remain a commissioner" and would discuss the Andreas gifts when he testifies before the Senate Agriculture Committee on Wednesday.

— Said his promised proposal for a comprehensive national health insurance program may take years to be fully implemented because of inflation and the federal deficit.

— Said he has received in the last two weeks a "very positive" response from the Soviet Union on arms reduction talks, and said prospects for an agreement "are much better now than they were a month ago."

Carter during his campaign attacked the present revenue code as a disgrace and argued specifically that capital gains, which generally carry only half the tax burden of ordinary income, should not be preferentially treated.

After taking office, he proposed a $25 billion tax cut to stimulate the economy, accompanied by changes he described as reforms to reduce special privileges.

Later, bowing to congressional pressure, he shaved the tax reduction to $20 billion. After the legislation bogged down in committee, the administration last week sought agreement on a simple $15 billion tax reduction, with the understanding that it might try to add some of Carter's other proposals when the measure reached the House itself or the Senate.

gun next to Rosales' head."

Bonilla said they were told by the man that Rosales got out of the car, and eventually both men wound up wrestling in the front yard when the gun went off, killing Rosales.

Reyes said the man told LULAC representatives he was watering a nearby field when the incident took place, and notified the Plainview Police Department Monday afternoon.

However, Plainview Assistant Police Chief Jerry Austin said he could not find any record of the man reporting the incident Monday. "No one has called in that I'm aware of...and I doubt it would have escaped my attention," he said.

Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue also revealed this morning that a man is now saying he saw the shooting. "He was at the scene and my officers asked (soon after the shooting) what he saw, and he said he saw nothing.

"Today he said he saw the guy (Rosales) fall and did not see the deputy, which would indicate he was shot from across the street," the sheriff said. He added, however, "There are a thousand things that would refute this."

Amarillo pathologist Dr. Jose A. Diaz-Esquivel, who performed an autopsy on Rosales at the order of JP Marr, said his findings confirmed the bullet struck Rosales while he was facing the officer and while both men were standing.

Tue said his deputy told him the automatic pistol was not drawn until he reached the suspect's car. Rosales apparently was unarmed, but a homemade billy club was found in the suspect's vehicle.

Bonilla said he has contacted Jim Bushala, administrative assistant to State Atty. Gen. John Hill, about that office entering the investigation. A spokesman for the attorney general's office said it had not been decided whether they will look into the case.

Tue said he expects there to be some protests over the shooting. "I think we might have some problems. To what extent I don't know," he said.

However, Reyes said this morning there were no planned demonstrations and it would remain that way "as long as we are satisfied the investigation is thorough. And I don't see any problem with that. If someone saw something, the law authorities are going to take his report."

A native of Robstown, he had lived in Hale Center since moving here 20 years ago with his parents. He had farmed in Lakeview for the past seven months.

Survivors include a son, Timothy Rosales III of Plainview; his father, T.L. of Hale Center; a brother, Rudy of Hale Center; five sisters, Elojia Balderas, Bertina Gomez and Anita Flores, all of Hale Center, Juanita Roybal of Plainview and Erma Hernandez of Robstown; and his grandmother, Isabelle Rosales of New Deal.

Cans of "Soul" brand beer, brewed in Los Angeles, brought $255 from beer can collectors on the rumor — later proved false — that the brewery had been destroyed in riots.

Fire Damages Businesses In Plainview

PLAINVIEW (UPI) — Flames shooting two stories into a predawn sky Tuesday severely damaged three downtown businesses, caused smoke damage to at least two other firms and forced the evacuation of a hotel.

Fire Marshal Joe Ferguson said firemen put out the smoldering blaze that raged through a used furniture store, pool room and restaurant about 7 a.m. An unoccupied business office on the floor above the three firms also suffered extensive damage, he said.

The fire, which started about 3:20 a.m., forced the evacuation of 10 to 15 residents of downtown hotel. However, no injuries were reported.

Ferguson said the cause of the fire was still undetermined and no damage estimate was available.

Soviet Officials Free American

MOSCOW (AP) — American businessman Francis J. Crawford was released from a Soviet prison today almost 24 hours after two Russians facing spy charges in the United States were freed in a tradeoff the two governments negotiated.

Meanwhile, the Soviet government ordered two American correspondents to appear in a Moscow court Wednesday on slander charges.

Crawford, arrested June 12 on charges of currency smuggling, was returned by police to the Intourist Hotel in central Moscow, where he has resided for the past two years. Two Russians accused of spying were released Monday to the Soviet ambassador in the United States. Soviet authorities had delayed releasing Crawford, saying they had to study documents presented by American consul Clifford Gross.

The documents were believed to center on U.S. guarantees that Crawford would be available when needed by Soviet authorities for their investigation.

The ambassadors are to hold Crawford and the Russians for trial in Moscow and the United States. But there was speculation that all three would be sent home in another exchange either before or just after their trials.

The American reporters ordered to appear in court are Craig Whitney of The New York Times and Harold D. Piper of The Baltimore Sun. They said they had no idea which of their articles prompted the slander charges, which carry maximum terms of three years in jail.

Whitney, former Times bureau chief in Saigon and Bonn, has been in Moscow less than a year, while Piper is into his fourth year in the Soviet capital.

In Baltimore, Md., Paul A. Banker, managing editor of The Baltimore Sun, said: "We have no clues as to what the charges are about. Knowing Mr. Piper's competency as a reporter, we are astonished at the charge." There was no immediate comment from the New York Times.

Both correspondents said they visited Soviet Georgia late last month and in articles quoted friends of a Georgian dissident under sentence of five years imprisonment and banishment as saying most of his "confession" had been fabricated by authorities.

The reporters said their stories about the dissident were the only articles they could think of that could have prompted Soviet authorities to file the charges.

Piper returned to Moscow Monday from a three-week assignment in Eastern Europe, prompting speculation the authorities had the summonses waiting. The correspondents said a man delivered the summonses to their offices and asked them to sign receipts, but they refused.

"We don't know what's going to happen until we appear in court, and we've been told by the Foreign Ministry that it would be strongly advisable for us to respect the court and to appear before it tomorrow and that's what we plan to do," Whitney said.

He said the Soviet dissident "made a confession which was broadcast over nationwide television here, and these friends and relatives said they thought the confession had been fabricated. Now this might explain why the state Soviet radio and television committee is bringing a suit of defamation against us; but we don't really have any details. We're told we'll get those when we appear at the court tomorrow."

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, accused Whitney in April of lying in a report that Cuban and Soviet advisers were about to embark on "military interference" in Rhodesia.

A year ago security police interrogated Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth for 12 hours and accused him of collecting secret scientific information. He had completed his assignment in Moscow and was allowed to leave the country.

Crawford has been held in Lefortovo prison where Toth was questioned.

The high bail set in the United States for the two Russian employees of the United Nations, $2 million each, had angered the Kremlin. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko personally registered a complaint with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Crawford's arrest was believed to have been in retaliation for arrest of the two Russians. Accused spies customarily are sent home quietly.

Pickup May Yield Clue To Slayings

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Discovery of a blue and white pickup camper late Monday afternoon gave authorities the break they had been hoping for in the shooting deaths last week of three members of a San Antonio family.

Agents of the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation immediately began checking the vehicle, located in the parking lot of a motel on the grounds of Will Rogers World Airport, for fingerprints and other evidence.

Authorities had checked out many possible leads since the bodies of the Melvin Lorenz family were found in tall grass along Interstate 35 near Purcell, Okla., but said location of the family's missing pickup camper would be the major break in their investigation.

A nationwide all points bulletin was issued for the dark blue pickup truck with white camper shell bearing North Dakota license tags. Authorities said it was believed there were two dogs, food, three guns and a supply of ammunition in the vehicle.

About 6 p.m. Monday, an employee of the Sheraton Inn noticed two dogs come out of a camper parked in the motel's lot, then noticed the truck had North Dakota license plates and notified authorities.

Authorities quickly confirmed the vehicle was the pickup camper sought since Sgt. Lorenz, 38, of Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, and his wife, Staff Sgt. Linda Lorenz, 31, of Lackland Air Force Base, were found Thursday.

The body of Lorenz' son, Richard, 12, was found Friday about two miles north of where the parents' bodies were discovered by a passing motorist.

All three had been shot to death while enroute to North Dakota to attend the funeral of Lorenz' mother.

Pro-Soviet Militiamen Seize Full Control In South Yemen

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Militiamen backing pro-Soviet political leader Abdul Fattah Ismail seized full control of the South Yemeni capital of Aden today after mopping up the remnants of rebellious supporters of slain President Salem Robaye Ali, the Iraqi news agency reported.

Arab diplomats in radio contact with their embassies in Aden, at the southwest corner of the Arabian peninsula, said machine-gun fire and shell explosions were heard long after midnight. But by early today, all fighting had ended, the Iraqi agency said.

The diplomats said Ismail had consolidated his grip on the port-capital at the southern end of the Red Sea oil route to Western Europe.

President Ali and two supporters died before a firing squad late Monday after 15 hours of air attacks, ground bombardment and street battles in Aden. An official announcement broadcast by Aden Radio said a special court convicted the president of trying to stage a coup against the legitimate collective leadership of the ruling National Front, which Ismail heads as secretary general.

"Ali was also convicted of horrendous crimes against the people, of violating the constitution and of trying to destroy the revolutionary accomplishments of the nation," the broadcast said.

The United States postponed a visit to Aden by a touring diplomatic mission now in Saudi Arabia and rerouted it instead to conservative-ruled North Yemen, whose president was assassinated Saturday by a bomb in the briefcase of an envoy from South Yemen.

The United States has no relations with Marxist-ruled South Yemen, but had hoped its mission would get a sympathetic hearing since President Ali had been trying to improve relations with North Yemen.

Kuwait Radio said Prime Minister Ali Nasser Mohammed was named acting president of South Yemen.

The National Front's central committee accused the former president of trying to seize complete control of the government in the furor following the assassination of President Ahmed al Ghashmi of North Yemen. But Arab observers in foreign capitals said the 43-year-old Ali, who had been president since 1969, was unhappy with South Yemen's growing involvement in Soviet-Cuban operations in the Horn of Africa.

These sources said Ismail's faction was particularly angered by Ali's decision last month to order 1,000 South Yemeni soldiers and pilots in Ethiopia not to take part in operations against the Eritrean rebels in northern Ethiopia.

Arab diplomats in Beirut gave this reconstruction of the events in Aden:

Ismail summoned the central committee to an emergency session Sunday night to discuss North Yemen's charge that Ali was responsible for Ghashmi's assassination. Ali and his supporters attended, and the president claimed he was framed. But the committee voted 121-4 to suspend Ali from government and party activities pending an investigation into Ghashmi's murder.

Ali and his three supporters left the meeting shortly after midnight, leaving Ismail and his supporters discussing how to break the news of the president's suspension to the nation. Ali ordered the Aden army garrison stationed in barracks near the presidential palace to shell the central committee headquarters. The 400-man garrison opened fire at 3 a.m., but Ismail and the others escaped to a hideout on the outskirts of the city.

Ali sent out orders to three other garrisons to march on Aden, but the central committee ordered Defense Minister Ali Antar to counterattack. Antar brought out militia forces to seal off the city and ordered the air force to strike at the presidential palace and to prevent reinforcements from reaching the capital.

Antar's militiamen marched on the palace behind an air bombardment that demolished considerable parts of the palace. Shortly before dusk, Ali realized the situation was hopeless and surrendered with two of his three supporters on the central committee. The third supporter, who was not identified escaped.

The two men who died with Ali were Jassem Saleh, a member of the National Front's politburo, and Ali Salem al Awar, the minister of presidential affairs.

Kuwait's conservative al-Rai al-Am newsaper said today the abortive revolt and execution of Ali "strengthens the Soviet bridge linking Asia and Africa.

"The Soviets now want to strengthen their hold on the bottleneck at the Strait of Bab el Mandab (the southern entrance to the Red Sea) and pose a real and direct threat by getting closer to the oil wells," it said.

The execution of Ali, the newspaper said, "was a maneuver to hold him responsible for the parcel bomb assassination" of the North Yemeni president on Saturday.

"The important thing is not whether Aden was behind the Ghamshi murder, but the fact that the superpowers are currently engaged in a race for the control of the Bab el Mandab Strait, and consequently for the control of oil," the newspaper said.

dissipated by the early morning hours, weathermen reported.

Monday high temperatures over the South Plains generally were a couple of degrees lower than during the weekend, when it was 105 Sunday and 103 Saturday in Lubbock.

Area readings included 105 at Littlefield, Plains and Morton, 103 at Friona, Olton, Plainview and Spur, 102 at Brownfield, Muleshoe, Paducah, Seminole and Tulia, 101 at Abernathy, Crosbyton and Hereford and 100 at Lamesa, Matador, Post and Tahoka.

It was 98 at Silverton and Floydada and 99 at Snyder.

The temperature is expected to be in the mid-90s Wednesday in Lubbock.

A southerly wind of 15 to 20 miles an hour is expected for today and tonight.

The West Texas extended forecast calls for sunny, hot days Thursday through Saturday with temperatures from the high 90s to 104.

In New Mexico, sunny weather and some afternoon thundershowers over the mountains are predicted for today and Wednesday.

Trade Deficit Dips In May

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit dropped to the lowest level in eight months during May but still continued at the record pace of last year, the Commerce Department said today.

Americans bought $2.23 billion more than they sold to foreigners last month for the 24th monthly trade deficit in a row. The continuing trade imbalance has contributed to inflation in this country, the decline of the dollar overseas and can threaten economic growth.

In May, however, exports reached a record $11.75 billion, a slight increase from the $11.6 billion in exports the month before. Imports declined sharply from $14.49 billion to $13.99 billion, mainly because of less demand for overseas steel.

The $2.23 billion trade deficit for May was the smallest since a $1.90 billion deficit in September 1977. However, if the May deficit continued for 12 months it would still lead to a trade deficit similar to last year's $26.5 billion deficit.

Mrs. Jordan also said she would like to find a way to include some increased funding for the Municipal Court in next year's budget. Of the approximately $40,000 in additional funds requested for the Municipal Court, none was recommended by Cunningham.

Mrs. Jordan suggested possibly increasing fines for parking violations and moving vehicle citations to offset Municipal Court costs.

However, that suggestion sparked a debate on whether traffic fines should be a deterrent to traffic violators or a source of revenue.

The council will continue working today and possibly Wednesday before approving the 1978-79 budget.

MSG Myth Rapped

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate it if you could tell me something about monosodium glutamate (MSG).

We heard a talk the other night and they advised people never to buy anything that had monosodium glutamate in it. It showed two rats in a cage. One had a very small amount of it and the other had not had any. The one that had a small amount of it was sitting on the bottom of the cage and his eyes were gray and was very quiet and the other rat was very active.

They said that if you used anything with it in it, the MSG could damage the lower part of your brain. A good many around here would like to know about the dangers of eating foods that contain monosodium glutamate.

DEAR READER — Whoever they are they should immediately rush into print with their scientific protocols because it will certainly be a first and they deserve full credit from the scientific community for it.

Of course I'm being facetious. Monosodium glutamate has been one of those fads that have been kicked around by people who want to alarm the public or have some other ax to grind. The truth is monosodium glutamate is a completely natural food product. That must be a big kick in the pants to those who are natural food buffs.

It comes from the sugar beet. It's nothing more than sodium like the same sodium that's in your table salt combined with a basic amino acid (glutamine) that's common to most of the proteins.

Anybody who eats protein gets glutamine (from glutamic acid). That includes meat and milk in our common basic foods. Now you can top that off by realizing that for thousands of years the orientals have used monosodium glutamate as a taste enhancer. Apparently it enhances the taste buds so that food tastes better.

It is true that some people have an adverse reaction to monosodium glutamate and this is sometimes called the Chinese restaurant syndrome. How can that happen with something that is a natural food? It's not too surprising. Many people have reactions to various natural foods which we call allergies. This can run the gamut from having allergies to milk to having allergies to tomatoes.

Some people just respond differently that others. This doesn't mean that a substance that's used in food or cooking has to be banned for everybody anymore than it would mean that because some people can't tolerate tomatoes or strawberries that they should be taken off the market.

There was a study of the injection of MSG in mice and another of a huge dose in a single monkey. There were changes noted in the brain. These resulted in a "down with MSG or ban the beet" movement. Subsequent studies have shown, however, that the problem with MSG in these experiments was that it was injected by needle rather than ingested by mouth and it does made a difference.

After all the facts were studied the National Academy of Sciences made a statement that there was no evidence that MSG in reasonable amounts in food was a hazard to either older children or adults. It is a natural product. If you happen to be one of those people who are sensitive to it you ought to leave it alone just the same as people who can't tolerate tomatoes would do well to get their vitamin C from some other source.

Report Claims Liquid Protein Diets Linked To Heart Attacks

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women on a diet of liquid protein and nothing else may be running a 30 times greater risk of a fatal heart attack, says a Food and Drug Administration report released by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

"These statistics bear out my original contention expressed last November in a letter to FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy that there appears to be a direct cause-and-effect relationship between the liquid protein fast and the deaths," Percy said in releasing the documents Sunday.

"I am even more convinced now that liquid protein should be ordered off the shelves by the FDA pending proof of its safety and efficacy," he added.

The FDA has 58 deaths under investigation, the last one occurring in March. Sixteen of the fatalities are believed linked to the diet while the others have been found due either to prior medical conditions or are still under investigation.

A Percy aide said, "at this point the researchers don't know the exact cause of death but they suspect the very nature of the diet — 300 or 400 calories per day — may be it. An FDA search of literature found that even in the worst Nazi concentration camps in southern Holland the inmates got at least 800 calories per day."

He said the 30 times greater risk factor may actually be conservative.

Percy released a letter from the FDA commissioner which said the agency's investigation showed that those on the diet exclusively for two months suffer a mortality rate from heart attacks of 59 per 100,000 women in the 25 to 44 age group.

That compares to preliminary estimates of two deaths per 100,000 women from the same cause in the same age group, normally occurring among those not on the diet, Kennedy said.

"The liquid protein dietary regime, if followed exclusively for more than two months, would appear to account for almost a 30-fold increase in mortality," Kennedy told Percy.

Last week Dr. Robert Linn, author of the "Last Chance Diet" book which gave life to the liquid protein fad, said his analysis of the deaths showed a lack of potassium supplements in the diet — not the diet itself — was the cause of the fatalities.

Since the adverse publicity about the diet, sales of liquid protein have crashed, and the prices have dropped considerably.

The FDA in the next few weeks plans to make final its regulations covering liquid protein products, requiring them to carry warnings about the need for a doctor's care while the diet is in progress.

Percy said all 16 of the confirmed deaths occured in persons who were under a doctor's care.

The Percy aide said an analysis done for FDA by Chilton Laboratories showed that perhaps 37,000 women in the 25 to 44 age group were on the liquid protein fast for more than two months last year.

Survey Predicts Decline In Consumer Spending

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A buy-in-advance psychology and fear of inflation are causing brisk consumer spending that could fall off late in 1978, University of Michigan researchers said today.

The current level of spending "should continue in the near term, but the outlook is less favorable for late 1978," according to the survey of consumer attitudes.

"The overall stability in consumer sentiment during the last few months masks divergent and offsetting patterns of change," said the report, written by survey director Richard T. Curtin and survey founder George Katona.

Sentiment in favor of spending remained strong in May and was slightly stronger than in April, the survey said.

"Overall, buy-in-advance price rationales cointinue to be mentioned by more than one in three respondents," the survey said.

Consumers expect an 8.2 percent increase in prices over the next 12 months, the highest rate of expected inflation recorded since 1974-75, it said.

Fifty-six percent of all respondents expected interest rates to continue to climb, compared to 39 percent a year ago. Only 7 percent expected interest rates to go down.

"Since early 1977, business expectations have turned increasingly pessimistic, and by May 1978 more consumers expected bad rather than good times in the economy as a whole, especially over the long term," the survey said.

"Heightened fear of inflation ... coupled with buy-in-advance psychology and declining confidence in the government have promoted and reinforced these divergent trends."

Respondents were evenly split over whether to expect good or bad times in the economy during the next year, but confidence in the government's ability to fight inflation and unemployment was low.

Thirteen percent said the government was doing a good job on the economic front, while 28 percent rated government's performance as poor.

AROUND THE CAPITOL

Strauss Recalls Campaign Trick

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fill a room with more people than it's meant to hold. Turn on banks of high-intensity lights to drive the temperature to the equivalent of high noon in the Sahara. And in the middle of it all, plunk down Robert Strauss, political magician and inflation-fighter.

It all happened when the former Democratic National Committee chairman appeared before a congressional committee to report on the Carter administration's war on inflation.

Strauss is President Carter's top field commander in that war and a crowd quickly filled the hearing room. The 50 seats were taken in moments. People stood against the walls and sat on the floor. Others lined up outside, hoping for a chance to squeeze in the door.

Throughout it all, the Texas lawyer remained cool.

He gave the latest economic news and then offered this touch of political history to the sweating spectators:

"Back in 1960, I was campaigning in Texas to get the Democratic presidential nomination for Lyndon Johnson.

"We would hire big halls and get 1,000 or so people out for meetings, but they were spread out and the press would report that Johnson spoke to an empty hall.

"The Kennedy people would hire little cramped halls and the press would report that Kennedy spoke to an audience that burst the seams of the hall and spilled outside.

"We caught on after four months. By that time, Kennedy had the nomination.

"I hope the press will report today that the audience burst the seams of this room and spilled over to hear about the administration's moves against inflation."

Future Generations

Washington is loaded with people who like to say they are acting on behalf of "future generations of Americans."

At a recent meeting of the White House Council on Environmental Quality, the inevitable question was raised:

"What will be the impact of this on future generations of Americans?"

From the back of the room, a voice asked, "What have they ever done for us?"

Delayed Mail

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., spent much of the last five weeks on the Senate floor listening to the filibuster that finally forced a controversial labor bill back to committee.

A day or two before Williams and other backers of the bill were forced to withdraw it, a letter reached the New Jersey senator.

It was one that Williams sent 12 years ago to a constituent in Robbinsville.

The envelope was stamped "Damaged in Handling," and "Not Deliverable as Addressed."

In the letter, Williams explained why he supported an unsuccessful effort to break a filibuster on a bill to repeal the right-to-work provision in the Taft-Hartley Act.

Filibuster Box Score

If you were keeping a filibuster box score, here are the final figures as compiled by opponents of the labor bill:

A total of 136,864 lines in the Congressional Record were filled by the debate.

Wordiest of all were Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, who led the opposition and filled 24,485 lines, and Williams, who filled 15,789 lines with arguments in support of the bill.

Panel Seeks New Grant, Hits Rules

By BOB COCKRUM
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Transit Advisory Board approved a $3.3 million capital grant application Monday, but not before aiming verbal fireworks at the federal government.

"It's just blackmail like everything else," member Bill Dean said, responding to a staff discussion of efforts to comply with civil rights regulations. Federal monies could be at stake. In fact, of the $3.3 million project, 80 percent of it would be federally funded.

Concern about minority opinion had prompted a compliance officer with the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) to suggest the transit staff attend local meetings of minority groups.

"This is the most absurd thing I have ever heard of," Dean said. "This is more of the same kind of thing that's wrong with government in this country."

Dean said the board has minority representation now, and the board meetings are open to the public. He said "bus service vitally affects" minority groups and suggested board meetings be held at night every three months with a special effort made to get black and Mexican-American attendance.

The suggestion was expected to be relayed to UMTA for its comments.

Transit coordinator John Wilson told the board that a bus schedule also will be printed in Spanish in order to meet federal requirements. He said it will be available with the maps, printed in English, showing bus routes.

The City Council will examine the grant application during its July 13 meeting. If it is approved, Wilson said, a public hearing will be scheduled.

The largest expenditure in the proposal is $1.4 million for 15 additional buses intended to serve the Texas Tech University campus.

"They're larger, holding 40 to 45 passengers, and they'll better serve that area," said Wilson. The basic Citibus fleet is composed of 21-passenger vehicles.

The application also sets aside $650,000 for renovation of facilities to house the Citibus headquarters and shop.

In other business, the board approved a doubling of the fare charged elderly and handicapped persons using a specially-equipped bus. The vehicle offers door-to-door service for those with medical appointments. The charge has been 20 cents, but it will be raised to 40 cents in about two weeks.

In checking monthly figures, the board found revenue up for the month of May by 1 percent compared to the same time last year.

June's operating losses were set at $44,540, up from almost $30,000 last month. The reason was dismissal of classes for the summer at Tech.

Ernie Prenevost of Lubbock Transit Corp. said the costs incurred to date are under the budgeted amounts. The company, which operates the bus system under contract with the city, projects a fiscal year deficit at the end of September of $462,501.

Carter Asks For Probe

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1973 shooting death of a Mexican-American boy while in the custody of a Dallas policeman has caught the attention of President Carter.

During Monday's press conference, Carter said he has asked Attorney General Griffin Bell to "look into" the slaying of 12-year-old Santos Rodriguez, who died instantly when patrolman Darrell Cain placed his .357 Magnum to the boy's head and the gun discharged.

Santos was sitting in a patrol car at the time, being questioned as a suspect in an $8 service station burglary.

The Rodriguez killing spawned a night of riots and looting in Dallas by irate blacks and Hispanics.

Cain was convicted of murder with malice and is serving a five-year sentence in the state prison.

Justice Department spokesman John Wilson said Assistant Atty. Gen. Drew Days, head of the civil rights' division, has the case under consideration and a decision "is expected soon."

Wilson added that the five-year statute of limitations on the case expires July 24.

The president was asked if during last week's trip to Texas he had promised Mexican-American leaders that Bell would personally look into the matter.

"An erroneous press report — which sometimes occurs in our nation — which indicated that Drew Days had made a decision and that he had recommended to Mr. (Benjamin) Civiletti, who pursues criminal cases, that his case not be pursued further," began Carter. "We inquired of Mr. Days about the accuracy of that report. He has not made a decsion as to whether he will recommend any further Justice Department involvement.

"I asked the attorney general, which is appropriate, to look into the case himself," the president continued. "This is a case of high interest to the Spanish-speaking community in the Southwest and again his decision would be made on the merits of the case but Mr. Days had not made any decision on his own. He has not made any recommendation to Mr. Civiletti which was erroneously reported by the press."

Wilson said that of the 185 cases nationwide alleging civil rights violations involving Spanish surnamed persons, 64 of the alleged incidents occurred in Texas. Only Puerto Rico ranks ahead of the Lone Star State in that category, he added.

Carter also said Monday that he and Bell share a concern "about the mistreatment of minority citizens in this country — blacks, hispanics and others...there is a duality in culpability among those who commit some crime.

"One is the actual criminal case where you punish someone for abusing some other person...another element of criminality is violation of the American Civil Rights Act where a person's rights are deprived, even the loss of life," continued Carter. "If in the judgement of the attorney general — and he makes the judgement, I don't — the original case is not actually pursued nor the punishement meted out is adequate for the crime...if there is a gross abuse of that, then the attorney general reserves the right to enter the case and try the perpetrator of the crime on the basis of a civil rights violation."

Satellite Boosts PBS Economy

By TOM JORY

DALLAS (AP) — The closely guarded independence of the country's 276 noncommercial television stations has been strengthened by the development of a satellite system that allows stations program selection not available before this year, a Public Broadcasting Service official says.

Stations in the PBS network can now choose from three programs offered by satellite at the same time, "and that kind of autonomy is basic to public television," said Dan Wells, PBS' senior vice president for technology.

Wells made the observation in an interview Monday as representatives of the network's member stations gathered for their annual meeting.

Wells told station officials earlier in the day of a system being developed to offer up to four channels of high-quality television sound to PBS stations. The Digital Audio in Television system — called DATE — will be available early next year, he said.

Before this year, Wells said, public television stations received their programs the same way stations affiliated with the commercial networks do — one at a time, transmitted through ground lines leased from the telephone company.

"Now, instead of having one channel for transmission, with the satellite we have three and we will add a fourth in 1980," Wells said. "Today, we're feeding three programs simultaneously, primarily for the purpose of time zone delay. But that does allow stations to make choices.

"When the fourth channel comes on, that will definitely be for program selection," he said.

Wells said the satellite system — the satellite, Westar I, is leased from Western Union — costs essentially what the ground relay operation cost.

"Before we went ahead, we did a cost analysis and found we could do it for no more the price we were paying ATT," Wells said. "The directors said that would be fine as long as we considered that the limit, and we've been able to do that."

In addition, the PBS official said, the network will own the transmitting and receiving equipment in 10 years, once debt service on the capital is paid.

PBS now feeds programs to 148 satellite receives from five regional transmitters — in Washington, Columbia, S.C., Tallahassee, Fla., Lincoln, Neb., and Denver. A sixth station, on the West Coast, will be added, Wells said.

The 148 receivers feed the network's 165 licensees, who in turn provide programming for the 276 stations.

On the four channel sound system, Wells told station representatives DATE can pave the way for stereophonic television in the home. The system, once operational, will significantly improve the quality of sound distributed by PBS and regional networks to local stations, he said.

Pending development of suitable home receiving equipment, Wells said, there are immediate applications of the four-channel system. PBS can feed programs with sound in up to four languages, he said, and programs can be distributed with two or more channels of high-fidelity sound, thus making possible immediate TV-FM radio stereo simulcasts.

PBS is also actively involved in the development of a closed caption system for transmitting programs with visible script for the deaf, which is scheduled to be operational in the fall of 1979, Wells said.

And, he said, an effort to improve the quality of transmissions for stations in the ultra-high frequency — or UFH — band is another PBS priority.

Many public television stations see the fact that a large number of non-commercial stations are UHF as a key reason that public television is not competitive with commercial TV in audience. "And with improved UHF equipment, among other things, it could be competitive in most cases," Wells said. "The technology is there."

John Montford Outlines Program To Expand Lubbock DA Office

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

John T. Montford outlined a program Monday to add up to five investigators, an office administrator and a "business crimes" division to handle bad checks when he takes office as Criminal District Attorney next year.

Meeting with Lubbock County commissioners, Montford asked their support in a grant application to fund the program.

He already has been working on the grant application for about $68,000 and will file it through the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) or the Texas Council on Criminal Justice, he said.

County Judge Rod Shaw told Montford the application will be considered as part of the office budget in hearings to begin July 10.

Shaw said a point that must be considered on grants is whether the county will be required to continue funding when the initial grant money runs out and whether the program will be worth the expense after that point.

Montford also won permission to submit his own budget for next year.

In a lengthy Monday afternoon presentation, the unopposed Democratic nominee said he would like to increase the number of investigators from two to five.

He has been recruiting former assistant district attorneys with trial experience and hopes to reduce the number of attorneys from 14 or 15 to 11 or 12, he said.

One assistant will be assigned to head a business crimes division primarily to handle hot checks and coordinate those cases with justice of the peace courts. In some instances cases now are being filed sometimes in all three Lubbock J.P. courts on the same person.

The commissioners heard a report from Lubbock County Hospital District and approved three items requested by hospital administrator Gerald Bosworth and board chairman J.C. Rickman.

Approval was given for the hospital to handle outpatient billing on Tech patients instead of Tech doing the billing and reimbursing the hospital.

A budget revision was approved to allow for the new agreement, and the commissioners okayed the installation of main outside signs, parking signs and emergency room signs for the hospital.

Sheriff C.H. Blanchard asked for two more secretaries to handle criminal warrants, which he said are being filed at an increasingly heavy rate.

"We had 92 filed before 10 o'clock this morning," he said. "It's getting to the point where the two girls I have can't handle it."

Briscoe Slates Decision Dates

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The decision on a special legislative session on tax relief probably will come "the latter part of this week, at the earliest," Gov. Dolph Briscoe said.

"I'm not putting any time frame on it. I want to make sure we have our homework done. I want to make sure the proposals are sound and ready to go," he said Monday. The governor was in San Antonio to address the annual Governor's Conference on Aging.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton have expressed support for a special session on the heels of California's overwhelming approval of Proposition 13.

Briscoe said various plans for tax relief, tax reduction and tax limitation are being studied by staff members.

He said he supported a stipulation that future tax bills must pass by a two-thirds majority in both the House and the Senate. "That's extremely sound government. I think that's the way it ought to be," Briscoe said.

Governor Names New Judge, DA

AUSTIN (AP) — Humble attorney Charles J. Hearne was appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe Monday to be judge of the 263rd Judicial District in Houston.

The appointment, effective until the general election in November, is for a new court created by the 1977 Legislature.

Briscoe also appointed Hereford lawyer Roland D. Saul to be criminal district attorney for Deaf Smith County until the general election. He replaces Andy Shuval of Hereford who resigned.

ACORN Shuns Welfare, Demands 'Lifeline' Rate

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP) — Information on food stamps and other welfare was displayed at the back of the room, but members of ACORN told the Public Utility Commission they didn't want welfare — they wanted fair electric rates.

"The time has come for the commission to put up or shut up," Angela Moore of Houston said.

Three examiners listened to testimony in the third week of a hearing on different ways of setting electric rates. The 1977 Legislature instructed the commission to conduct the hearing and report back in 1979.

Hearing examiner John Cunningham noted that the Department of Human Resources had provided welfare information, which was displayed along with pamphlets on energy conservation.

"We're tired of talking and are ready for some action," Mrs. Moore said. "We want this commission to take the information you've collected and act on it. We won't be satisified with a report to the Legislature next January."

The members of ACORN — Association for Community Organizations of Reform Now — came on four buses from several cities, including Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, Waco, Tyler and Marshall.

The demonstrators put up a large sign that said, "We agree with Jimmy. Talk is cheap, energy is not. We want lifeline."

"Lifeline" rates are supposed to provide a minimum amount of electricity to maintain a modest quality of life at a low cost.

Lena Hodge of Dallas said Dallas Power & Light has more than 67,000 households that use less than 400 kilowatt hours a month. "Are these customers rewarded for conserving electricity and holding down demand? No — they're being kicked in the teeth by the company, the city of Dallas and the Public Utility Commission, who all want to slap a big 'customer charge' on them."

"Why don't we want energy stamps? Because we're not here looking for welfare. We just want fair rates," she said. "We are tired of conserving electricity and paying through the nose for it anyway."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I became pregnant by a man (whom I shall refer to as "The Heel") after dating him for less than six months. (I'm 28, no babe in the woods and accept half the responsibility.) We agreed that an abortion would be the best solution, and he insisted on paying for it. (I wanted to pay half, but he wouldn't hear of it.)

The Heel escorted me to the doctor's office and everything went very well. No problems. He wrote out a check for $300 and gave it to the nurse.

Two weeks later I received a call from the doctor's office. The Heel's check bounced! I got in touch with him, and he assured me there was a "misunderstanding" and he would take care of it.

Within a week, I was being badgered by the doctor for the money. After many fruitless phone conversations and promises from The Heel, I paid the doctor and urged him to prosecute The Heel. (Writing bum checks is a crime.) The doctor refused to go after The Heel, so guess who's stuck?

Is there any way I can get my money back? I don't want a messy legal suit, but I'd like to teach The Heel a lesson.

HAD IN HOUSTON

Dear Had: Time heals all wounds, but doesn't necessarily wound all heels. If there should be another time, get half the fee in advance.

DEAR ABBY: We have a 7-month-old son and a big problem. My husband's father gives our baby dog biscuits, saying it is good for the baby's new teeth. I say a baby should not be eating dog biscuits, but my father-in-law says his kids were raised on them! And my husband says he remembers eating them and it never did him any harm.

Are dog biscuits OK for children? Let me know fast so I can get both my husband and his father off my back.

NEW YORKER

Dear New Yorker: If you have any question concerning what to feed your baby, ask your pediatrician. But common sense should tell you that products made specifically for animals usually are not fit for human consumption.

DEAR ABBY: We have a nice backyard and I make good use of it on warm summer nights. I like to relax in a reclining chair with a cool drink, enjoying the evening breezes. The scenery is nice, too. Our neighbor has a beautiful 17-year-old daughter whose bedroom has a picture window that is easily visible through the trees. This girl has a habit of walking around nude in her bedroom.

I make no special effort to see, I simply lie back in my chair with my eyes open.

My wife says I am no better than a common Peeping Tom. I say I am just taking advantage of the lovely scenery, and I don't think I should be required to look the other direction.

What do you think?

NATURE LOVER

Dear Lover: I think your wife should wise up the neighbor girl about the "lovely view" she's providing.

At the bridge table it is very easy to be too clever. West outsmarted himself on this hand from the Philip Morris European Cup tournament held in London.

West chose to lie in wait rather than make some jump in spades at his first turn. When it looked as if the opponents were going to subside in five clubs, he came up with his master stroke—a sacrifice of five spades. North passed to show that he was prepared to play six clubs if South wanted to, and South accepted the invitation. East's double was more pique at his partner for interfering than any firm belief that he could set the contract.

West led the ace of spades and continued with the queen. Since it was obvious that East also had a singleton spade, declarer was forced to ruff with the queen to prevent an overruff. It now appeared that East had a certain trump trick, but watch what happened.

Declarer led the eight of trumps from dummy, intending to run it if East played low. East split his honors and declarer captured the ten with the king. He crossed to dummy with the jack of hearts and led the six of clubs. If East covered, he would be giving up his trump trick, so he played low, and South remained in dummy as he followed with the four.

The ace-king of diamonds and a ruff set up dummy's diamonds while allowing declarer to sluff his remaining spades. Declarer got back to dummy with a low heart to the queen, and began to run the good diamonds. East was helpless. He could ruff at any time he chose, but declarer would overruff, draw the outstanding trump and claim the rest of the tricks for his slam.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Clip 'n' Cook

GRILLED CHICKEN AND CHEESE BUNWICHES

3 cups finely chopped cooked chicken, turkey or ham
½ cup minced celery
½ cup shredded carrots
¼ cup seedless raisins
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 tsp. curry powder
salt
6 Kaiser rolls or individual hero loaves, split
6 slices American cheese melted butter or margarine, about 1/3 cup
Heavy duty aluminum foil

In a bowl mix meat with celery, carrots and raisins. Stir in mayonnaise and curry powder. Season to taste with salt. Spread filling on bottom half of rolls. Top with cheese slices. Replace top of roll. Brush both sides of sandwich with melted butter. Wrap rolls individually in foil and seal well. Place wrapped sandwiches on grill rack, 6 inches above medium hot coals. Grill 10 minutes, turn and continue grilling 10 more minutes or until sandwich is piping hot. Serve with raw relishes and pickles and olives. (Makes 6 servings)

STICKY RICE

Short grain rice is stickier than long grain rice after cooking. It's good to use in some desserts. Good to eat cooked "as is," too, if you like the sticky quality. Some eaters do.

White House Becomes Part Of Package Deal For Fund-Raising Organizations

By DOROTHY MARKS

WASHINGTON (WNS) — "Tacky, tacky, tacky" said the well-heeled blonde member of the Board of the National Symphony Orchestra here when told she would be charged $10 to attend a White House reception for the national trustees of the symphony on the occasion of their annual meeting here. That was the word transmitted by a low-ranking member of the White House social office to John Henry, the symphony's director of development.

Then a late-night call from White House Social Secretary Gretchen Poston, out of town on a spa-vacation, put things right. She explained that Mrs. Carter really wanted to serve as hostess at the reception and there would be no charge after all.

The incident catapulted into headlines a practice of the Carter White House not known to the general public — that of hiring out the White House for receptions as part of expensive package deals involving major fund-raising drives by organizations such as the American Film Institute and the United Service Organization. It was on May 25 that Bob Hope and pals raised some $400,000 at the White House for the United Service Organization (U.S.O.). At the Kennedy Center boxes went for as high as $5,000 each.

All three theaters of the Kennedy Center — the Opera House, Concert Hall and the Eisenhower Theater — have presidential boxes which, when the president or members of his family do not attend, are filled with other White House and Cabinet personnel.

It appears that recently when the White House entertained members of the National Panama Canal Citizens Committee, the State Department paid the bills. When it entertained the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, the florists themselves picked up the tab.

When the American Film Institute raised some $350,000 on the occasion of its 10th anniversary, the White House reception, included as part of a package deal to benefactors, was paid for by the Institute.

When the American Society of Newspaper Editors met here in April there was some disgruntlement that the Carter White House had not invited the group to the White House — the custom under previous administrations. It seems the White House was unwilling to pay for such entertainment but loath to charge the group for the privilege.

During his comedy routine, Hope quipped, "We're mighty glad the Carters are letting us rent the White House for our V.I.P. reception tonight." At the head table, Mrs. Carter was not amused.

While other government agencies sometimes picked up the tab, it was not the practice of previous Democratic administrations to entertain private groups and let them pay "White House housekeeping expenses," a spokesman for the Lyndon Johnson administration said. "After all, it is giving unfair competition to hotels and private caterers here and somehow cheapens the aura surrounding a White House invitation."

Herb Alpert Returns To Performing World

By ROB PATTERSON

In 1961 he met Jerry Moss, then an "under-assistant West Coast promotion man" on the way up. Together they shared the dream of one day starting a small, artist-oriented record company. Fifteen years later, Alpert and Moss' A &M Records is the major independent record company in the industry. And they've just released an album by another combination of A&M that Herb is equally proud of -Herb Alpert & Hugh Maskela.

But Herb Alpert isn't a man to rest on his laurels. Begun with an initial investment of $500 and based out of Moss' garage, A&M had a hit from their very first single -"The Lonely Bull" -by Herb Alpert and The Tijuana Brass. By 1966, Herb and the Brass had a landmark five albums in Billboard's top 20 in one week, and a year later A&M moved into new offices on Charlie Chaplin's old film lot.

After moving into rock with the signing of Joe Cocker, A&M went on to become an unstoppable force. "We have three of the largest selling albums in history," says Herb with a touch of pride. "Whipped Cream & Other Delights" (by Herb and Tijuana Brass), Carole King's "Tapestry" and "Frampton Comes Alive."

Since disbanding the Tijuana Brass in the late sixties, Alpert has concentrated his own efforts on record production, working with Gato Barbieri, singer Lani Hall (who in private life is Mrs. Alpert) and South African singer Letta Mbulu. It was working with Mbulu which led Alpert to an interest in South African music.

"The 'High Life' (an African jazz style) form really began to intrigue me after working with Letta, and I realized there was a connection between what I was instinctively doing with the Brass and South African music," explains Alpert.

"After that album, I started working with Caiphus Semenya, Letta's husband, and we set out with the intent of trying to cross African with West Indies and Tijuana. We came pretty close to something we both liked, but each time we got close to the wrap-up, there was one missing ingredient. To me it felt like I was trying to impose myself in an area where I didn't belong.

"Hugh got into the picture purely by accident," Alpert continues. "I was calling Stewart Levine, a friend of mine (and producer of The Crusaders and Sea Level), and Hugh was there and happened to answer the phone. He told me he was in a transitional period, and I told him what I had been doing with Caiphus, who used to play with Hugh in South Africa. We got together that afternoon to talk about recording, with the idea of making it, as opposed to a battle of the horns, a dialogue."

The album itself was recorded in a mere three nights -taking mostly live performances right onto the tape. As Herb explains -"We just let it fly."

And fly it does, with the interplay of Alpert's and Masakela's trumpets wafting over a bubbling, syncopated back-up. The results so excited both of them that a tour was the next logical step, and suddenly Herb Alpert, record executive and producer, was back on the road.

Judging from the response they got in New York, the audience was as excited to see Alpert as was Alpert to be there.

"I feel real good about it," he says. "I feel like it's a start...It's a far cry from where it can go," he modestly admits. But he remains committed to "us getting together for a period of time and letting it evolve.

"I'm getting a big buzz out of it," concludes Alpert. "I didn't give South African music as much credit as it deserved prior to working with Letta and Hugh, but it's a beautiful sophisticated art form."

Carly Simon recently broke a three-year hiatus from live performing with a series of club dates, a curiosity for an artist of almost superstar status. Her uneasiness on stage was the given reason for Carly's reluctance to perform. But witnessing the event, you would never have known that such a charming, witty performer even knows what stage fright is.

Appearing with some of New York's best session musicians (including A&M recording artist David Spinozza and his buddy Michael Manieri on the vibes, who were the opening act), Carly proved to the audience, and maybe even to herself, that she's one of our great national musical resources. Her wit between songs (one intro -"This song was written by James (Taylor) from a woman's perspective -which makes him a lot like Tolstoy") and delivery of her songs in a soaring contralto were sheer joys.

Joined by hubby James Taylor for an encore, Carly seemed absolutely radiant as both a person and a performer. This listener hopes the boost this tour and her new album -"Boys in the Trees" (Elektra/Asylum) -has given Carly will build up the confidence to get her out on the road in some slightly larger venues. Because frankly, it's a show nobody should miss.

Filmmaker Believes 'Age' State of Mind

By GHITA LEVINE
Women's News Service

Nov. 24 was a commonplace enough birthday for Garson Kanin, author, filmmaker and producer. It didn't strike him as particularly significant until two days later when he heard Eric Severeid make his goodbyes to his television public on the evening news.

Then it hit him.

Both men had just turned 65 and for most Americans that meant an abrupt transition into non-persona status. Kanin, as a self-employed writer, could continue on as always. But Severeid, as an employee of CBS, had to retire.

It didn't make sense.

Propelled by outrage, Kanin made a public retort two nights later on the same CBS news program, lambasting the folly of a mandatory retirement policy based solely on an arbitrary age.

"It's time to declare war on the mindless Youth Cult that has our time in its grip: demoralizing our people, weakening our system, depleting our energy, feeding our depression, wasting our experience, betraying our democracy, and blowing out brains," he said.

Besieged with letters, telegrams and phone calls, Kanin quickly expanded his feelings into a book, simmering his anger in a bubbly broth of humor. Called "It Takes a Long Time to Be Young," a phrase coined by Pablo Picasso (published by Doubleday at $6.95), the book is a certain "upper" for an anyone who is feeling blue about his or her age. For age has nothing to do with vitality.

As Kanin says, "I know many young people in their 70s and a few old fogies of 40."

Kanin himself has been remarkably free of the neurotic constraints of age. His wife, actress Ruth Gordon, is 16 years his senior and going strong in movies, television and on the lecture scene at 81. And she is not unique. A quick survey of famous people shows many who have achieved great ends in their older years (a cheering exercise for anyone to try).

Take Marlene Dietrich, playing to sell-out houses in her 70s. Or P.G. Wodehouse and Somerset Maugham who wrote some of their best books in their 90s. Frank Lloyd Wright's later work was more imaginative than his earlier concepts. Marc Chagall completed some marvelous stained-glass windows for the Chicago Art Institute when he was 90. Georgia O'Keefe is painting daily at the age of 90.

And there are others. The remarkable Golda Meir was nominated to become Israel's most vigorous prime minister at the age of 71. Marion Hart, the oldest woman to ever fly the Atlantic alone, piloted her single-engine Beechcraft plane from Washington, D.C. to Dublin when she was 83.

Some people are retired only to be recalled when others recognize the loss. Adm. Hyman Rickover is still on duty as head of the Navy's Nuclear Propulsion Program at 77, because the Navy needs his talents and rehires him despite compulsory retirement rules.

Similarly William M. Blackie was recalled from retirement at 72 to revitalize the troubled and flagging Genesco Corporation, a conglomerate interested in profits, not people.

Some never stop. Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito remains a powerful leader at 85 and George Meany, at 83, leads the 14 million members of the powerful AFL-CIO.

Not only famous people keep their verve when they're up in years. Hoyt Catlin started selling instant-growing plants after he retired at 65 and now his Fertl, Inc. is a million-dollar business. Irene Auberlin, who began her non-profit World Relief Inc. 25 years ago continues, at age 82, to distribute more than 20,000 tons of free medical supplies all over the world.

The point has been made. Age is not the factor that determines a vigorous old age or a sagging, sorry time. Ill health may be a decider but so are society's rules and it takes extra motivation and drive to break through the barriers set up to stop people over 65.

Two things are needed: A personal morale-boost accomplished quite simply by finding all those older people who have managed to keep going despite massive societal restraints, and a publicity campaign, barely begun, to force the truths on younger folk that people need not, and should not, be put down.

Book Reveals Family, Insight Of Carl Sandburg

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

He'd always go away again, of course, being a man who had to wander and write poetry, sing songs, tell stories, fight for socialism and try to earn a living as a newspaperman (and, earlier, house painter, three-dimensional "stereographs" salesman and ersatz fireman).

But he'd always come home to Lilian Steichen Sandburg. And their third, youngest, daughter, Helga, wanted to know why.

True, Lilian was something to come home to. A real beauty, the brightest girl in her class in Milwaukee, strong, willful, the sister of gifted photographer Edward Steichen who said she was a genius and should be a poet.

She wanted to when she was a student at the University of Chicago, and later when she was a teacher. She liked to write "word melodies." But then she met Carl Sandburg, a tall, rumpled socialist organizer at party headquarters in Milwaukee and saw what he was writing. That was real poetry and she knew it, even if the world at large wouldn't for another 10 years, when he was 40.

Helga found that out in the gushing letters her parents exchanged while courting and after they married. And Helga collected and sorted the letters and put most, it seems, in "A Great and Glorious Romance," her new book about her parents, published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. Because 1978 is Carl Sandburg's centenary and she wanted people to know about him and Lilian.

"My father always came back because he'd be renewed about this idealistic feeling they had about the country," Helga Sandburg says. "You know, when my parents first married in 1908 in his letters he said, 'I can't wait to get home to you and sit in the chair and have you look at me with your wise gray eyes and hear you speak the truth.'"

The truth — how socialism would save the masses — that's what this son and daughter of poor immigrant families — hers, from Luxembourg; his, Sweden — throve on. That's what Lilian loved about Carl's poetry, his passion for people and nature and living. And since he needed freedom to feel all that, she stayed wherever they were living in the Midwest, tending the home, and let him go.

"Her whole life was devoted to his message. She was so overwhelmed by his poetry, it was as if she'd suddenly come upon a treasure and she guarded it until the day he died."

But life wasn't dry and tract-filled. Helga, 59 — looking like a Swedish farm woman — wheat-colored hair pulled back, rimless glasses, neat and prim in a white cotton blouse and black vest and trousers — says growing up in Harbert, Michigan, a village of 50, was full of animals and fun and freedom. And having her father there, and then not having him there.

"When he'd go away," she says, "the house would be serene and delightful. You could yell and sing when you wanted but then there was the lonesome time after supper when you began to miss him. And then he'd be home and everyone would meet him at the door screaming with delight."

At dinner, he'd bring down whatever he was working on — poetry, his Lincoln books — "and he'd read to us because he knew it would give us pleasure. And also he could try out his prose."

Then he'd get his guitar and sing and laugh and after a couple of hours, he'd go back upstairs to work some more. And the house would be quiet again.

It was wonderful, Helga recalls. "The farm, the animals — I eloped with a farmer because I wanted to be one. And my mother and I did run a very successful dairy farm for awhile."

But Helga was "the romantic of the family," she laughs, and so she married two more times. "My present husband is a famous surgeon. We live in Cleveland with two swans in the backyard."

And she wrote books, with the shadow of her father falling on them for the most part, but not so much anymore, she says.

In the early years, though, no one's shadow fell on her because she wasn't the first-born. She wasn't her sister, Margaret, treasured because she was first, cherished because she had epilepsy which was controlled eventually. But not before she took all Lilian and Carl's attention and devotion. "No one paid any attention to me, but the greatest debt I owe them is they let me grow up alone," Helga insists. "They let me read what I wanted and do what I wanted."

Margaret, therefore, was another reason Carl always came home. "I think she was one of the strong ties between my parents," Helga says. "I found these strange, sad, courageous letters between them. My father was amazed how beautifully my mother took the responsibility of caring for Margaret which allowed him to go out and say all these things for the cause of mankind."

And if that meant Lilian must be alone, well, she said later in life, that didn't bother her a bit.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — The government's downward revision of the amount of soybean stocks that will be left at the end of summer spurred gains in the soybean complex on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

After trading ended last week, the Department of Agriculture projected that 130 million bushels of soybeans will remain at the end of this marketing year, which runs through August.

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was slow on Monday. Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations remained unchanged. The base price of grade 41, staple 34, mikes 3.5-4.9, stood at 55.60 cents per pound, 50 points lower than a week earlier.

Farm Credit Bill Has Opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Urban lawmakers are threatening trouble on an emergency farm credit bill approved by House and Senate conferees because of an unrelated section they say will raise consumer beef prices.

The compromise credit bill was approved by conferees Monday and now goes back to the House and Senate for final approval. It is designed to help hard-pressed farmers and ranchers obtain the credit they need to maintain operations in times of rising costs and low market prices.

In addition to the $4 billion emergency credit program, the bill substantially increases the amount of money farmers can borrow under traditional mortgage and farm-operating loan programs run by the Agriculture Department's Farmers Home Administration.

Before giving final approval to the legislation, house conferees accepted, 14-3, a controversial, unrelated Senate provision that would make it easier for the cattle industry to set up a beef promotion fund, known as a check-off.

Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., warned that the action could alienate urban lawmakers and jeopardize the bill in the House because of its potential impact on meat prices.

The provision lowers from two-thirds to a simple majority the number of beef producers who must vote "yes" to establish the beef check-off.

When Congress approved the beef check-off fund earlier, it required the two-thirds approval. In balloting last year, the check-off proposal fell short of the needed two-thirds, gaining only 56 percent approval.

Supporters say the promotion fund, which would come from a producer-paid assessment on each head of cattle sold, is needed to stabilize the industry and stop the price fluctuations of recent years.

But Richmond says the industry will pass the check-off fee on to consumers and it will "in one fell swoop increase the price of meat to consumers by $50 million."

The bill sets up a special program of government-insured and government-guaranteed loans for farmers and ranchers who might not otherwise qualify for credit. The money could be used for either farm ownership or operation purposes or to cover farm and home debts.

In addition to the emergency program, the bill modernizes the regular Farmers Home Administration credit program by raising the ceiling for mortgage and farm operating loans.

Another section of the bill sets up a special program for low-income and beginning farmers unable to qualify for regular Farmers home mortgages. They could qualify for real estate loans with interest rates of 5 percent or less, and a 40-year repayment schedule that includes reduced payments during the early years.

Agencies Experience Difficulty Agreeing On Forestry Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another inflation-policy brouhaha is slipping out from the Agriculture Department for airing at the White House. This time, however, the "renewable resource" involved is trees instead of something edible like sugar or meat.

One of the suggestions President Carter floated in his inflation-policy speech in April was an increase in the sales of timber from federal lands, a major source for the housing industry, one of the economy's most sensitive elements.

Carter's pending budget proposals contained cuts for USDA-Forest Service programs to make those forests more productive. Despite the apparent contradictions, an administration task force was assembled under USDA officials to report to him on the issue.

That report is expected this week. Congressional sources, who are gearing up to pick it apart, say that it is likely to contain a multiple-choice "recommendation" for the president since the economic, environmental and forestry advisers can't seem to agree.

John Fedkiw, a policy developer who is the main staff aide from USDA for the task force, said Monday that the problems are now not so much what to present to the president but how — "what angles to stress, how to weigh the viewpoints, that sort of thing rather than substance."

He said that a draft of the task force report was being prepared and, if agreement on the presentation among the various agencies can be reached quickly, the recommendations could go to the White House as early as late this week.

In a report Monday to members of the congressional Environmental Study Conference, staff aide Sherry Howman said, "The main disputes center on how much an increase in harvests would actually deflate housing costs, whether the Forest Service can sell more timber without a bigger budget and the accuracy of Forest Service estimates of how much federal timber can be cut without depleting the long-term supply base."

Carter's Office of Management and Budget, the kingpin in federal policymaking at the Cabinet level, says that about 15 percent of the cost of housing can be attributed to timber products, so a supply increase sufficient to cut timber costs 10 percent should produce a 1.5 percent reduction in the cost of a house — or $675 on a new $45,000 house.

Others, said Mrs. Howman forecast a 0.5 to 3 percent reduction from such a larger supply. Tim Mahoney of the Wilderness Society says that national forests supply only 20 percent of the nation's timber needs, so the anti-inflationary effects would be minimal.

The House has passed appropriations that would provide the Forest Service with enough funds in fiscal year 1979, by its estimates, to manage the sales of 12.4 billion board feet of timber, or 200 million more than it has money for this year. Carter's budget would have covered 11.5 billion board feet.

The Forest Service estimates that up to about 16 billion board feet could be harvested, if it had the personnel to manage the process, without undermining the long-range supply of trees.

American To Take Firm Stand In Trade Talks

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland says the United States is interested in expanding foreign trade with the Soviet Union but will take a firm stand during negotiations.

Bergland, addressing the 95th annual Convention of the American Seed Trade Association Monday, said the outcome of such talks would not be at the expense of American grain needs.

"I'm going to bargain with the Russians, but I'm not going to give them anything," Bergland said. "We're not going to let them raid our pantry as they did in 1972."

The agriculture secretary said the United States also was interested in expanding its market to China, and he said he hoped to visit that country soon.

Bergland said the government was willing to help develop policies at home to correct a rail car shortage which has slowed the transportation of grain.

The government, "which has never taken a regular role in transportation and is now willing to do so," is ready to help financially troubled railroads which will be called upon in future years to ship larger and larger amounts of grain, he said.

Bergland also announced a 10-cent increase in wheat loan rates to farmers, from $2.25 per bushel to $2.35 per bushel. The increase will offer farmers cash flow assistance but will not affect the market price of wheat.

In addition, the secretary announced an increase in the farmer-held reserve release level from $3.15 per bushel to $3.29 per bushel. Under the increase, designed to help stablilize seasonal market movements, a farmer can release his stocks from reserve at no penalty when the wheat price climbs to the release level.

Labor Force Drop Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hired labor force on farms decreased 12 percent from the mid-1960s to the mid-1970s, largely because of a 50 percent drop in the number of blacks in that labor market, figures from recent Agriculture Department studies show. Most of the decline occurred in the late 1960s.

By 1976, in addition, young persons under 25 made up almost 60 percent of that work force, with the median age dropping from 25 to 23 in a decade, says a report by Leslie W. Smith and Gene Rowe of the economic-development division.

The total of about 2.8 million in the hired farm work force, they said, hasn't changed much since 1971.

The proportion of women in it, 26 percent, is about the same most years.

The decline in black workers parallels in the figures a drop by almost 50 percent in the number of migrant laborers since 1960, with an estimated 200,000 in that line in 1976.

By then, almost one-fourth travelled at least 1,500 miles to work fields and orchards before returning home, with Spanish-surnamed and blacks travelling the farthest, they said.

About 12 percent are working 150 to 249 days a year. That cadre did 68 percent of the farmwork two years ago, the report said.

Near Record Crop Predicted For '78

LONDON (AP) — The 1977-78 world wheat crop could be the second largest in history, totaling between 400 million and 410 million metric tons, the International Wheat Council says.

The record year was 1976, when 417 million tons were harvested. Last year's crop was estimated at 384.5 million metric tons.

'Frostbelt' Solons Battling Southern Stronghold

By MILLER BONNER

"We are just playing a rather pale, unsophisticated version of a script written a long time ago by the best political base in the country: the South," said the founder and chairman of the Frostbelt's most powerful coalition, Rep. Michael J. Harrington, D-Mass. "They got their act together. They understood leverage and understood the mixture for public and private sector cooperation better than we did.

The small Confederate flag adorning the Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition office serves as a vivid reminder of the heated congressional battles being fought over Uncle Sam's money.

The conflicts have been compared to a modern-day War Between the States that began to escalate sharply after the 211-member coalition won several skirmishes.

Although the battle lines have been drawn similar to those of the Civil War, today's conflict pits the 16 "Frostbelt" states against the "Sunbelt."

Harrington and his Frostbelters formed their coalition in 1976 "not to re-enact the Civil War, but to establish economic stability throughout the nation."

In 1977, the coalition scored three significant victories.

The $11 billion Community Development Block Grant Act was amended to include a formula that based distribution of grants on the age of housing in a locality. Federal funds in two other lucrative areas — the Public Works Employment Act and revenue sharing — were also tied to formulas that grossly favored the Frostbelt, claimed Sunbelters.

Recently, the coalition set its sights on the defense budget. In a letter to President Carter, the coalition called for "a moratorium, or the equivalent, on base closures or major mission reduction in coalition states."

Sunbelters, faced with the chilling thought of losing billions in federal dollars to the northeast-midwest, began mounting a counter-offensive.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, has been an outspoken critic of the Frostbelt coalition and the "very disruptive" force it exerts on Congress.

Bentsen also blasted the coalition for "manipulation of federal forumlas" and causing the "Balkanization of the segments of our country."

Noting that congress is crawling with coalitions of all different sizes and persuasions, House Majority Leader Jim Wright said recently that coalitions make "it more and more difficult to achieve a national policy that serves everyone."

Wright, whose political pull and eloquence perhaps epitomizes the Southern politician whom Harrington branded the best in the business, is also a critic of the "disbursement formulae" that irritated so many Sunbelters.

Wright, however, cited the need for national unity as one of the overriding factors in his backing the controversial New York City aid bill that survived the House and is scheduled for a Senate vote this week.

Former Houston Mayor Louie Welch heads the National Economic Research Institute, which is currently headquartered in Austin.

Welch assembled a formidable group of business and goverment leaders from across Texas who, in turn, hope to rally the rest of the nation against the Northeast-Midwest legions.

"The initial goal of the institute will be the arousal of all the states to the point that the Northeast-Midwest coalitions come to understand the advantage of reasoning together," stated the institute's initial press release.

Teen-Aged City Woman Reports Attack By Unknown Intruder

An 18-year-old Lubbock woman said she was assaulted by an unknown man in her home late Monday. Extremely abbreviated police accounts gave few details of the alleged incident.

The sketchy reports that were available said only that the intruder cut a door screen and forced open a chain lock to get inside the 42nd Street apartment. According to the victim's account, the man choked her and stuffed a sheet in her mouth and ran out the back door of the residence.

Police said that when they arrived, the woman had cuts in her mouth, bruises on her throat and her face still was blue.

There were relatively few recent crime reports available from Lubbock police today, but they did show that a local resident lost $2,000 worth of firearms to burglars.

According to Earl Seagraves of 2802 33rd St., intruders broke a door glass and reached through to unlock the door. Reportedly taken were seven rifles and a pistol.

Christa Lee Dobbs of 5507 28th St. said $575 worth of property, including recorders, clock radios and a camera, was stolen from that house Monday.

A necklace and bracelet, together valued at $640, reportedly were stolen from John F. Cary's 5430 49th St. house last week by whoever pried out a window pane and ransacked the home.

According to Nicholas Martinez of 1515 E. 17th St., someone broke into a garage at 1005 Idalou Road late Sunday or early Monday and hauled away several transmissions, radiators, batteries and an assortment of tools. Police said they followed leaking transmission fluid for a short distance from the scene.

A 37-year-old Levelland woman told Lubbock County Sheriff's Department deputies she and her 18-year-old daughter were raped repeatedly by four suspects last weekend.

The woman said she and her daughter had gone to an East Lubbock club about 9 p.m. Friday, but left soon after arriving.

In the parking lot, the woman said she was hailed by a man, who grabbed her and her daughter seconds later and forced them into a brown van bearing Michigan registration.

From there, the woman said she and her daughter were driven to the Buffalo Springs Lake vicinity, where both women were raped repeatedly by four men.

After the alleged attack, the woman said the men drove them to a spot two miles south of US 62/82 where they were shoved from the van. From there, the victims said they walked to a farmhouse nearby and telephoned authorities.

Though a suspect was detained by lawmen Monday, he was released sometime later when the Levelland women failed to show up at the sheriff's department, Capt. J.B. Douglas said.

However, Douglas said the investigation is continuing.

Vic Alexander of the House of Alexander said a recent inventory revealed the disappearance of an estimated $12,000 in assorted diamonds. The store owner said the gems apparently were taken from a showroom sometime late last week.

Bentsen Says Pollution Cleanup Proves Costly

HOUSTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, says the country has made commendable progress in cleansing its environment but the job has turned out to be more costly and difficult than many people expected.

He said that while many Americans were once willing to pay the price for a cleaner environment, pollution spending has now run up against "the hard realities of life in this country."

Bentsen said in considering clean air legislation, he must weigh its impact on "the ability of our people to find work, the ability of our cities to grow and prosper, and the ability of American industry to compete in the international marketplace.

This involves, Bentsen said, a careful cost-benefit analysis that "frequently pits one commendable objective against another."

Bentsen said many people have underestimated the cost and difficulty of cleaning up air and water pollution.

"It might be fairer to suggest many people felt we could pay any price, accept any social or economic cost for a cleaner environment," Bentsen said.

"It establishes a market for pollutants," Bentsen said. "If we're not careful, pollutants will be listed in the Wall Street Journal and traded on the commodities market."

Bentsen said offsets give industry no incentive to cut pollution, but encourage industry to "keep plants as dirty as legally permissible" so there will be emission tradeoffs for future expansion.

The Environmental Protection Agency will make a series of billion-dollar decisions to implement the 1977 clean air amendments, Bentsen said. He feels the EPA in the past did not always consider the economic impact of its regulations.

The EPA now is taking reasonable, responsible approach, he said, and has earned the opportunity to show it can do even better."

Holiday Celebration To Honor Pioneers

Reservations for the 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. luncheon may be made by calling the chamber at 763-4666. Tickets are $3.50 per person.

The Early Settlers Reunion provides Lubbock's pioneers and their families a chance to visit friends and renew old acquaintances and, also, to celebrate July Fourth.

Rex Webster will host the program which will feature live music as well as recognition of the earliest settler and the resident who has lived in the community the longest.

Bargaining Suggested For Eminent Domain

AUSTIN (AP) — The government should use old-fashioned bargaining, not expensive court fights, to acquire private land for highways and other necessities, farm and ranch spokesmen said Monday.

"The biggest problem we have is getting someone willing to negotiate with us before we get to the courthouse," Robert Heard, a cotton producers representative, told a House committee. "When we're forced into the courtroom, it's more expensive on both sides and the state could probably have gotten the land much cheaper if we could settle out of court."

Federal and state governments exercise eminent domain by declaring that a clear and pressing public need exists for private land, which then is bought at fair market value. Utilities, railroads and other public service companies also can condemn land for use.

The House Agricultural Interim Committee on Eminent Domain is studying whether agencies have abused this power and whether additional limitations should be placed on its use.

Farmers and ranchers realize that without condemnation proceedings, a single landowner could hold up highway construction by demanding exhorbitant prices, Heard said. However, rural landowners always pay a price for allowing right-of-way across their land, he added.

"In many occasions on West Texas, the most efficient methods of irrigation are not allowed to be used because utility poles are put across the farms," Heard asserted.

The Texas Legislature should prohibit land condemnation for park use, said Pat Smith of Texas Farm Bureau.

Smith said his organization also favored strict controls over whether public agencies actually use the land for its intended purpose. He called for companies to be held liable for any damage done on easement property obtained by condemnation.

"Ranchers want a stronger check, by a jury or court of peers, to really decide whether there is an essential need for government to step in and take their land," Ed Small, attorney for the Texas Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, said.

July 4 Traffic Death Toll Estimated

AUSTIN (AP) — A total of 53 persons will die in traffic crashes on Texas highways and streets during the July 4th holidays, the Department of Public Safety has forecast.

There were 35 deaths in Texas during the 1977 holiday period and 48 in 1976.

Col. Wilson E. Speir, DPS director, said Monday one reason for the increased prediction came from plans to collect traffic accident statistics over a 102-hour period, from 6 p.m., June 30, to midnight, Tuesday, July 4. In the two previous years the death figures came during 78-hour holiday periods.

"July 4th is traditionally one of our more dangerous driving periods and I am hoping that all Texans will do their best to prevent accidents," Speir said in a statement.

He asked all motorists to join DPS troopers in burning their low-beam headlights during daylight hours throughout the holiday period as a safe driving reminder to others.

Speir said all available DPS troopers will be on duty, keeping a particularly close watch for drunken driving, excessive speeding and other hazardous violations.

ENROLLMENT INCREASE

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the number of children enrolled in nursery schools has increased by 39 percent nationwide since 1970. By 1976, about one-third of all 3-and 4-year-olds were in schools, compared to about 20 percent enrolled in 1970.

Mrs. Snyder Elected To National Rural Board

BAIRD (Special) — Mrs. James L. Snyder of Baird, ranch woman and member of the Texas State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, has been elected to the board of directors of the National Rural Center.

Mrs. Snyder fills one of five director positions left vacant by board members who joined President Carter's cabinet or filled other top-level government positions.

The NRC and its Rural Information Center in Washington, D.C., is an independent, tax exempt, non-membership, non-profit organzation governed by its president, John M. Cornman, and board of directors.

Established to develop policy, alternatives, and to provide information which can help rural people (particularly the rural poor) and their communities to achieve full potential, the NRC engages in research, demonstration projects, program evaluations and the monitoring of federal laws and regulations affecting rural people.

NRC is pursuing rural policy questions in the fields of health, communications, employment and training, small farms, education and legal services.

The NRC is funded by a combination of grants and contracts from private foundations, other non-government organizations and government agencies. The Rural Information Center is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration, while the Ford Foundation has awarded the NRC a grant to pursue development of small farms policy options.

General support grants have been contributed by the Winthrop Rockefeller Charitable Trust and the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. NRC's current budget is $1,500,000.

The new board members succeed Dr. Ray Marshall, secretary of labor; Dr. Juanita Kreps, secretary of commerce; Ernest Green, assistant secretary of labor; Alex Mercure, assistant secretary agriculture; and Arabella Martinez, assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

FILM INSTITUTE GRANTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Film Institute will award $340,000 in grants next year as part of its Independent Filmmaker Program. The grants range from $500 to $10,000 each. Student and professional filmmakers who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents may apply.

Monaco's Citizens Satisfied With 'Le System'

By KEVIN DOWLING

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — It's traditional to assure the bridegroom that he's a lucky man but the phrase has never been uttered more fervently than by the friends of Philippe Junot.

Not only is the 38-year-old businessman and boulevardier marrying the prettiest princess in Europe this week but he acquires thereby membership in a ruling family whose domain is innocent of income tax, wealth tax, dividend tax, interest tax and capital gains.

The vividly attractive 21-year-old Princess Caroline, daughter of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, is a great prize on her own — the speculative linking of her name with famous young men such as Prince Charles, heir to the throne of Britain, is proof enough of that.

But in addition to beauty and wealth, she also brings tax exemption as part of her dowry, whenever Junot wants to take advantage of the opportunity.

Not even Princess Anne, the daughter of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, could offer such privileges to her husband.

For Monaco means money, the kind of money that invites you to a party, insists that you wear black tie but leaves you free to choose the color of the Rolls Royce you arrive in — as long as you arrive in a Rolls. It would sound an exaggeration anywhere else, but in Monaco someone recently did give a party at which possession of a Rolls was a condition for admission.

What kind of money is it?

Karl Marx was wrong when he wrote that the day the gambling casino in Monte Carlo closed would see the end of the principality. With gross profits of about $40 million a year, the casino is by far the largest in Europe, but Prince Rainier has so diligently and shrewdly expanded other sources of income — such as the sale of postage stamps to tourists and collectors — that the gaming tables provide only 3 percent of the budget.

And the tax haven status of Monaco is guaranteed by an agreement signed with France, the protecting power, in 1963 after a confrontation of sorts with President Charles de Gaulle over French tax avoiders seeking residence here. Under the agreement there is a mandatory period of residence before the French can achieve tax freedom.

Americans are taxed back home no matter where they live. But such world-famous names as Christina Onassis, Greek shipping tycoon Stavros Niarchos, Baron Heini von Thyssen and British playboy millionaire Michael Pearson are happy to accept generous facilities for protecting and increasing their personal fortunes. Italians and English predominate in the wealthy foreign colony, which makes up the bulk of the state's estimated 27,000 inhabitants — a population whose density per square kilometer exceeds that of Hong Kong.

For those who are neither French nor American but who possess that supranational attribute, wealth, Monaco is ideal individually and corporately. The profits of Monaco-based companies are taxed at 35 percent but well known and perfectly acceptable accounting procedures actually bring the figure well below that. Executives' salaries can be lower than elsewhere, since they pay no tax on them. It's all part of what the natives call "Le System," and it works almost to everybody's satisfaction.

Monaco is surrounded by French communities that voted Communist in the last election and presumably would like France to swallow the principality if the left ever attains power. But no one worries much about that. Monaco even has its own Communist Party but its sole delegate to the National Assembly lost his seat last January. He was never much of a threat to the established order.

The Manhattan-like skyline of 55-year-old Rainier's domain rises over a scramble for real estate that makes property in Monaco among the most expensive to be found anywhere. Current prices for a studio apartment run at some $3,000-$4,000 per square meter.

Caroline's Gifts Go On Display

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — The thousands of gifts lavished on Princess Caroline for her wedding this week — all but a couple of Siberian tiger cubs — went on public display at Town Hall today.

Many of the wedding guests arriving in Monaco during the weekend found a fresh Mistral wind from the sparkling Mediterranean had cleared away the gray clouds that marred early preparations for the wedding.

The guests as well as many Monegasques and about 1,000 journalists covering the celebrations filed into Town Hall today to view the thousands of gifts that have poured in from nearly all parts of the world.

The mayor of Monte Carlo announced all gifts would be put on display, except for a pair of Siberian tiger cubs sent from Germany and being kept in a cage and out of sight.

Princess Caroline, who arrived on the famous Blue Train from Paris Saturday, spent the weekend in consultations at the Palace with Marc Boham of Christian Dior, who is designing the dresses she will wear for the wedding celebrations.

The growing list of people now invited has obliged authorities to hold Wednesday's lunch, following a civil wedding ceremony, in the public square instead of the palace as planned.

The palace has also announced Princess Caroline will make a "walk-about" after her religious wedding ceremony Thursday so that Monegasques can see her in her wedding gown.

DEALER OPPORTUNITY IN RECREATION VEHICLES

Vesely Company, maker of Apache Camping Trailers, Travel Trailers and Mini-Motor Homes, plus Empire Travel Trailers and Mini-Motor Homes, is looking for a dealer in the Lubbock, Texas area.
Please contact Mick McGuire, Dealer Development Manager, Vesely Company, Box 370, Lapeer, MI 48446. Our telephone is 313-664-9961.

VESELY COMPANY

WE TAKE THE GUESSWORK
out of choosing the right business!

We put people in business for themselves . . . that's our business! People just like you: ready to own and run a business, but unsure how to begin. WE SHOW THEM HOW!

First we show them our high-impulse hardware & variety products that are proven sellers. Then we tell them about our national network of HHC Dealers, servicing their Handy Hardware Center displays in busy retail locations—and earning a 50% mark-up on every product sold!

We show them how they DO NO SELLING! . . . and need little business experience to begin. We show them how they can begin earning profits their very first day. We tell them how flexible our opportunity is: how THEY choose the size business that's right for them, beginning at $7950. Of course we tell them we secure all stores, train all Dealers, provide continuous promotional support and protect our Dealers with a Buy-Back Agreement. Then we show them our busy Home Office and say this: INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY!

And their choice is always easy. Because WE TOOK THE GUESSWORK OUT! Let us take the guesswork out of YOUR decision and help you choose the right business! Call or write Mr. Weston today for our FREE brochure, which spells out full details.

ROLLING
CULTIVATOR
● cultivates at speeds up to 10 mph — pre-emerge to tool bar height.
● mulches tough crusts and aerates the soil — also helps to retain moisture.
● incorporates pre-emerge or post-emerge chemicals — well into the soil.

'Lucky' Borg Advances

LONDON (AP) — If you want to equal a 40-year-old record and win Wimbledon for three years running, you have to play a 6-foot-7 giant with a reach like an octopus and a service like a cannonball. Bjorn Borg, the young Swede who won here last year and in 1976, had to do that, anyway.

Borg beat towering American Vic Amaya by the narrowest of margins in five sets after at one time looking set for defeat.

"Of course I want to win Wimbledon three times in succession," said Borg. "I'm glad I've got that match off my chest. It can't get much more difficult."

Borg admitted he was lucky to come away with a pulsating 8-9, 6-1, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory, adding that there were stages in the match when he believed he was going to lose.

Borg's worst moment came when he trailed two sets to one, 1-3 and 30-40. A superb service pulled him out of trouble and from then on his game grew in stature against a 23-year-old opponent blessed with a booming left-handed serve.

But he said: "I thought maybe I was going out in the first round this year. It was his match. When you survive matches like that, it gives you confidence."

The ice cool Borg had plenty of praise for his opponent, who is ranked No. 47 in the world according to the computer rankings.

"He was playing very well today," Borg said. "He had me worried. He never gave me a chance to play."

Amaya, whose giant frame makes him almost impossible to pass, said: "I will kick myself later. I had a good chance and I felt that I played well enough to win—but maybe I'm a little inexperienced.

"I learned today that I am a good enough player to beat the Wimbledon champion," Amaya said.

Borg was not the only seed to have a rough ride into the second round.

Jimmy Connors, seeded second and favored by many experts to be the man to take Borg's crown, was under a lot of pressure in his match against lanky young New Zealander Russell Simpson.

Simpson led 4-2 in the first set and looked capable of taking it on a couple of occasions before Connors finally won it 7-5.

The second set went to a tiebreaker which Connors won 7-2, and that was virtually the end of Simpson's resistance. Connors swept through the third set to finish a 7-5, 9-8, 6-1 winner.

One seed to make a rapid departure was the American Dick Stockton.

Stockton, seeded 10th, was suffering from back trouble and lost to Australian John Marks in straight sets, 6-2, 9-8, 7-5.

For the rest of the seeds who played on a cold, blustery day, the going was fairly easy.

Ilie Nastase of Romania beat South Africa's John Yuill 6-3, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, while Britain's Buster Mottram eased past Sweden's Douglas Palm 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

Third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis beat Henry Gunthardt of Switzerland 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, while No. 5-seeded Brian Gottfried led Britain's John Lloyd by two sets to one when the match was postponed because of fading light.

The Gottfried-Lloyd match will be resumed today.

Roseboro Vs. O'Malley

HERSKOWITZ

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ
And STEVE PERKINS

Q. The Old Dodger catcher John Roseboro has written a book that I understand is a downer about how he went broke. What is Roseboro doing now?
—Godfrey White, Altoona, Pa.

A. The last we heard Roseboro was a batting instructor with the Dodgers, but he may not be by the time you read this. Walter O'Malley — the real "Dodger in the Sky" Tommy Lasorda is always talking about — was quite unhappy with the book.

"This could be a charming story," O'Malley told an interview, "but he has to go into this sex thing, with the performance of players with prostitutes, unnatural sex. Kids will read this and they will think everybody does it. It's terrible. We hired him. I don't know how long he'll continue."

Q. During halftime of one of the NBA playoff games I heard mention of an NFL meeting that was going to make several owners give up their interests in other sports franchises. I never saw anything in the papers about this. Which owners are involved, and did anything happen?
—Sam Dahlgren, Cincinnati.

A. Not even many people in the NFL office know what went on behind closed doors on this subject, but it was plenty. The NFL constitution and by-laws will be changed to specify that no NFL owner will be allowed to own a percentage of another professional club in any sport. Those who do will have 18 months to divest themselves of their interest.

The rule applies to Lamar Hunt of the Kansas City Chiefs, who owns half of the Dallas Tornado soccer club in the NASL and 18 percent interest in the Chicago Bulls of the NBA; and to Jack Kent Cooke of the Washington Redskins, who also owns the Los Angeles Lakers, the LA Kings and the Forum where both teams play.

The Minnesota Vikings objected to competition from the NASL Minnesota Kicks, and the fact that American Conference president Hunt lends soccer considerable credibility.

Cooke's situation is complicated by the fact that all his holdings are frozen while he goes through a divorce. He will eventually sell out everything in LA, move to the Virginia countryside and content himself with the Redskins.

Q. I have just bought a Sony Betamax tape recorder and would like to build up a library of NFL games and highlights, but I have so far been unable to find out where I can purchase the tapes. Please advise me where they are for sale.
—Guy Kinella, Tallahassee, Fla.

A. About the only thing you can buy at this time are boot-legged items, privately taped and sold under the counter (about $125 for a full Super Bowl, $65 for 30-minute highlights).

Ed Sabol, head of NFL Films, from whence all TV tapes will eventually flow, tells us that the market is not yet large enough for his firm to plunge in, though he has had talks with the Sony people. However, he is bullish on the prospects. "Lurking out there," says Sabol, "is a big sleeping giant."

Junior Golfers Tee Off

Brian Sheffield, Jeff Watts and Cliff Baggett played Meadowbrook Golf Course frequently in the spring, as members of local high school teams.

The trio hopes the experience will pay off this week as they fight for the City Junior Golf Championship. The tournament began this morning at Meadowbrook.

Golfers, with more than 40 entered in six age divisions, will compete of 54 holes of stroke competition, with the championships to be awarded Thursday afternoon.

The field is bracketed for 9-and-under golfers, 10-11, 12-13, 14-15, and 16-18. The schoolboy favorites will be competing in the oldest group.

Another golfer with experience on the Meadowbrook course will be bidding for one of the younger age-group titles. David Alderson won the 12-13 age title in the West Texas PGA junior meet at Meadowbrook last week, and he will be reaching for the 12-13 title this time around.

In the 14-15 group will be Miles Mathis, a cham pion from the 15-16 WT PGA tournament. Mathis will tee off this morning in the 14-15 flight.

Weaver Finds 24-10 Score Hard To Believe, Too

By The Associated Press

Toronto has had a team in the American League for less than two years, but as far as Earl Weaver is concerned he's already spent a lifetime in the Canadian city.

The Baltimore manager has been the center of controversy in two wild affairs involving the Orioles and Blue Jays. Last Sept. 15, the Orioles forfeited a game in Toronto because Weaver objected to the position of a tarpaulin in the team's bullpen. The next time the Orioles visited Toronto was Monday night and all Weaver really could object to was the quality of Baltimore's pitching. The Orioles were shellacked 24-10 by the Blue Jays.

With Baltimore behind 19-6 in the fifth inning, Weaver decided to give his beleaguered pitching corps some rest by inserting outfielder Larry Harlow to pitch. Harlow, who pitched two games in the Florida League in 1971, got out the first two men he faced, then surrendered two walks, a wild pitch, Rico Carty's two-run single, another walk and John Mayberry's three-run homer, his second of the game, giving him seven RBI for the night.

When the next batter walked, Weaver replaced Harlow with player-coach Elrod Hendricks, normally a catcher. Hendricks, 37, just lobbed the ball over the plate. He walked his first batter, then got rookie Brian Milner to fly out and didn't allow a run before being replaced in the eighth.

"It's tough pitching with seven years between starts," quipped Harlow, who was told to warm up while Weaver determined if the move was legal. The Blue Jays protested but withdrew the protest when informed by the American League office that the move was not against the rules. "I was doing OK, getting those first two guys out, but ran into trouble when (Bob) Bailor walked. Then I had to go into my stretch. My stretch killed me."

"My pitchers weren't doing the job so I had to go somewhere else," said Weaver, who probably preferred to be someplace else as the Blue Jays scored nine times in the second inning, including two doubles each for Otto Velez and Dave McKay in the inning. "Take a look at the record. They got 19 runs off my pitchers and five off the others. My only mistake was not bringing in Elrod first."

The 24 runs were the most the Blue Jays have scored in a game. It was also the most runs ever scored against Baltimore.

The modern major league record for runs by one team in a game is 29, set by Boston on June 8, 1950, in a 29-4 pounding of the St. Louis Browns and tied by the Chicago White Sox in a 29-6 beating of the Kansas City A's on April 23, 1955.

The 34 runs scored in the game were two short of the AL record set in a 22-14 Boston victory over the Philadelphia A's on June 29, 1950. The major league mark is 49, established by the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies in a 26-23 Cubs' win on Aug. 25, 1922.

Royals 4, Angels 0

The Angels were shut out for the third straight game and fourth in their last five. Kansas City rookie Rich Gale, 7-2, pitched a seven-hitter and Art Kusnyer hit his first major league homer in six years.

"I had no idea I was playing until game time," said Kusnyer, whose two other homers came in 1972 as an Angel. "It's a great feeling to hit a home run. . . it's a great feeling to start a game."

Former President Richard Nixon, attending his first major league game since leaving the White House in 1974, sat in Angels' owner Gene Autry's private box. He declined to talk to reporters but did appear on the Angels' pregame show.

"I'm delighted to be here again," Nixon said. "The last time I was here was opening day in 1973. Nolan Ryan pitched and the Angels won 3-2. I don't see many games in person but I hear a lot of games on the radio, particularly when the Angels are at home."

Red Sox 4, Yankees 1

Boston continued making a shambles of the AL East race, moving 9½ games ahead of the Yankees as Jim Rice and Carlton Fisk homered and Dennis Eckersley combined with Bill Campbell to silence the Yankees and a sellout crowd of 52,194.

The victory was Boston's 15th in its last 17 games, a pace that doesn't surprise Rice a bit.

"Why should I be surprised we're playing this way?" asked Rice, whose homer was his major league-leading 23rd. "With the talent we have on this club, why should we be surprised we're playing .700 ball?"

New York manager Billy Martin was told before the game he would remain the team's field boss for the remainder of the season.

Brewers 8, Twins 2

Lary Sorensen won his 10th game of the season and Dick Davis and Ben Oglivie slammed two-run homers for Milwaukee.

"I'm halfway to 20 but the important thing is we're halfway to 80 wins with 40 now," said Sorensen, 10-4. "I'd be thrilled to death to win 20 games and I feel I have a good chance now. I think the team will get it for me because I'm not pitching that well. Heck, with eight runs, you're supposed to win.

Indians 5, Tigers 4

Gary Alexander blasted a three-run homer to power the Indians' triumph, their fifth in the last six games. Reliever Dan Spillner saved the victory for Don Hood, 4-3, by striking out five of the seven men he faced.

Mariners 8, White Sox 3

Bob Stinson lashed a three-run homer in a five-run first inning as Seattle won its seventh game in the last eight and its fifth straight against the White Sox.

Patterson Gets 18th Save

By The Associated Press

Dave Patterson struck out five El Paso batters in two innings to pick up his 18th save of the year and preserve San Antonio's 4-2 Texas League baseball victory over El Paso Monday night.

In other Texas League action, Amarillo beat Midland, 4-1, Shreveport edged Tulsa 3-2, and Jackson slipped past Arkansas, 10-8.

Patterson saved the game for Gerald Hannahs, now 3-1. Ken Schrom, now 5-2, took the loss. Danny Goodman slammed his 18th homer of the year for El Paso and teammate Jay Peters had his eighth, but it wasn't enough.

Jim Beswick and Paul O'Neil homered for Amarillo as the Gold Sox defeated Midland, 4-1. It was Beswick's 10th of the year and O'Neil's third.. Larry Rothschild, now 4-3, was the winning pitcher. Randy Martz, now 7-5, was the loser.

Shreveport scored two runs on three base hits and a walk in the ninth inning to take a 3-2 victory over Tulsa. Tulsa first baseman Marty Scott had a solo homer in bottom of the ninth, but the Drillers fell one run short and lost to the Captains. Dave Rignetti struck out 13 Shreveport batters, setting a record for the Drillers, but still took the loss. Rafael Vasquez gave up only four hits and picked up his ninth victory of the season.

Brooks Benton drove in two runs with a double as Jackson scored six runs in the ninth inning to take a 10-8 victory over the Arkansas Travelers.

Dave Penniall had his sixth homer of the year for Arkansas. Jeff Grose, now 1-0, was the winning pitcher. Ryan Kurosaki, now 4-3, was the loser.

Cepeda Starts Prison Term

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP) — Former major league baseball player Orlando Cepeda, who has begun serving a five-year federal sentence here for possession of marijuana, says he plans to attend school during his prison term.

Wearing a white leisure suit and carrying one suitcase, the 40-year-old Cepeda flew to the north Florida base Monday from San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he coached an amateur baseball team.

During a short drive from the airport to the prison, Cepeda asked about the base and a nearby junior college. He said he didn't know what he'd be allowed to do while in prison, but was curious about what work-release program would be available to him.

"I definitely plan to go to school," Cepeda said. "I like to work with kids and baseball."

Cepeda was convicted in 1976 of possession of 100 pounds of marijuana and will be eligible for parole in 30 months. At the time of his arrest in 1975, he was playing professional baseball for the Boston Red Sox.

Cepeda, who also played baseball for Atlanta and St. Louis, was the National League's Most Valuable Player in 1964.

Steinbrenner, Martin: Stars In NY Drama

By WILL GRIMSLEY

After donning a black hat a week ago to dangle an axe over the head of his manager, Billy Martin, he swapped it for a white hat prior to Monday night's vital game with the Boston Red Sox at the Stadium.

"Don't fret yourself, Billy Boy," he said in effect. "Nobody's going to take your toys away from you—not now, anyhow. So relax. Go out and win another pennant and World Series."

Analysis

"Thanks, boss," Martin replied with a sigh of relief.

Thus another Yankee crisis has passed, just as at least five such crises went up in smoke a year ago before Martin led the Yankees to baseball's highest pinnacle and got a new limousine as a bonus.

The Yankees aren't happy unless they're fighting. They thrive on controversy. They gouge each other's eyes out, then kiss and make up.

Reggie Jackson, the team's premier performer, put it in the best perspective after being told that Steinbrenner and Martin, constantly at odds, had staged a 2½-hour eyeball-to-eyeball session which cleared the atmosphere.

"It never really concerned me," Jackson said, pulling on his long white socks in front of his locker. "Whether Billy was fired or stayed never affected my playing. I don't play for management. I play for myself.

"But I'm happy it's all over. If Boston wasn't playing .700 ball nobody would be talking about a new manager. It's Boston — nobody else — that put Billy's job on the line. Now we gotta slow this Boston train down so Billy the Kid and his gang can derail it and get the loot."

Meanwhile, Steinbrenner came forth to acknowledge that he had triggered the latest storm in order to snap his million-dollar babies out of their lethargy.

"I guess you would say I was the heavy in this little melodrama," the Yankee owner confessed. "When I made that statement in Boston last week I realized that I was taking an unpopular stance. The players wouldn't like it, the fans wouldn't like it.

"But I think it served its purpose."

In throwing down the gauntlet to his manager, Steinbrenner said only two members of the team — first baseman Chris Chambliss and third-baseman Graig Nettles — were playing up to their potential and intimated that the rest of the team was dogging it.

"I could tell that the guys were preoccupied with themselves and their problems," Steinbrenner said. "I had to take their minds off their own troubles and channel it somewhere else. It was a psychological move, intended to shake them up.

"Munson probably was infuriated. Jackson was fit to be tied. So what happens? They vent their anger on me. I figured I could take it. They forgot themselves and said, 'We'll show that Steinbrenner.'"

Martin, who has another year after this to go on his $100,000-a-year contract, is not completely out of the woods yet. He must harness his arrogance and combativeness, polish up his back alley behavior and try to be a good boy.

"There were no threats or demands," said Billy, who is thought to have a self-destruct complex. "I made no promises."

Bell Sidelined For Ten Days

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians say third baseman Buddy Bell is expected to be out for about 10 days due to a lower back ailment.

Bell, 26, leads the Indians and is among the American League leaders with a .314 batting average. Team officials said he has been bothered by a sore back for several weeks and may have aggravated the problem Sunday with two head-first slides while running the bases.

The seven-year veteran has suffered occasional back problems since 1970 when he was involved in a minor automobile accident.

Seaver Thinks Way To Win Over Astros

By The Associated Press

On days when Tom Seaver feels he doesn't have it, baseball is a like a chess game for him.

And Monday night, he helped checkmate the Houston Astros.

"Games like this can be rewarding," said the Cincinnati ace after a 4-3 victory over the Astros. "Sometimes you have to win mentally instead of physically."

Seaver found out early in the game that his "fastball wasn't there." That resulted in three Houston hits and two runs in the first inning.

"In this type of situation," he said, "you just have to battle and find something along the way."

What he found was a "good slider and a good curveball." That resulted in just three more hits off Seaver in the next seven innings. He departed after the eighth, and later had the good fortune to be credited with the victory as pinch-hitter Dave Collins delivered a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

He also had the good fortune to have a strong defense behind him.

"On days when you don't have very good stuff," said Seaver, "you most certainly have to have good defense behind you."

Collins' ninth-inning fly ball scored Dave Concepcion from third to preserve Seaver's ninth victory in 14 decisions. Concepcion led off with a single, took second on Cesar Geronimo's sacrifice and went to third on pitcher Mark Lemongello's throwing error.

Padres 2, Giants 1

Tucker Ashford drew a bases-loaded walk from Gary Lavelle in the bottom of the 10th to force home the winning run in San Diego's victory over San Francisco.

Richards opened the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second by Ozzie Smith. After Fernando Gonzalez grounded out, Dave Winfield was given an intentional walk. Lavelle then hit Oscar Gamble with a pitch to load the bases before walking Ashford.

Braves 5, Dodgers 2

Rowland Office, Gary Matthews and Bob Horner powered home runs and right-hander Adrian Devine scattered five hits over seven innings to lead Atlanta over Los Angeles. Devine also drove in what turned out to be the Braves' winning run with a single in the fifth inning.

"Devine pitched a good ballgame," said Dodger manager Tom Lasorda. "We only got five hits and two runs so he held us down pretty well."

Expos 5, Phillies 1

Steve Rogers scattered six hits and finally got some offensive support from his teammates as Montreal whipped Philadelphia. Rogers, 9-7, got almost as much help from the Phillies as from his own team, which has rarely produced runs for him this season. The Phillies made two errors in the fourth inning, resulting in three runs and another error in the seventh that cost one more run.

Cubs 10, Mets 9

Dave Rader's pinch grand slam homer highlighted a six-run fifth inning to help Chicago beat New York. The Mets had scored six times themselves in the top of the inning to take a 7-4 lead before the Cubs rallied.

The decision snapped a six-game losing streak for Chicago and was the Mets' 19th defeat in 27 games.

Pirates 5-11, Cardinals 4-8

Rookie Don Robinson pitched three scoreless innings of relief to preserve Pittsburgh' 5-4 victory over St. Louis in the completion of a suspended game begun April 23.

Dave Parker and Ed Ott rapped home runs as the Pirates rallied from five runs behind to beat St. Louis in the regularly scheduled game.

Attention Brings Calls

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — George Gervin's banner 1978 National Basketball Association season has brought fame, fortune and countless phone calls. Just ask Ron and Sue Ellen Zielinski, the unfortunate individuals who inherited Gervin's old phone number.

"We've just been getting lots and lots of phone calls. They've been driving us crazy," said Mrs. Zielinski, who until last week had never heard of the San Antonio Spurs' all-star guard.

"It has slowed up some, thank goodness. Most of the calls came in the daytime when I was in the pool, so I had to get out of the pool and run to the phone," she said. "It got to be very annoying."

Even though the number was unlisted, Gervin has been deluged with phone calls since leading the NBA in scoring last season with a 27.2 per game average.

Many of the calls were from agents, who had heard Gervin was shopping for a new agent and wanted to renegotiate his contract.

He changed the number last week, which was just about the time Mrs. Zielinski requested a new number. Her reason? Crank phone calls, of course.

"I didn't have any idea whose number it was. I didn't even know who he was," she said.

"One of the first callers was real nice. He asked if I knew who George Gervin was. I said I didn't and he said, 'Evidently you're not a sports fan. Boy, are you in for it.'"

The calls came from all over the nation. Since Gervin is known as "The Iceman" or "Ice," many of the callers just asked for him by that name.

"I wondered why people kept asking for Ice," said Mrs. Zielinski. "One guy then explained to me that he was called 'The Iceman.'

"It's been interesting. One guy called from San Francisco. He was real nice and talked a long time," she added.

To alleviate some of the problems, the Zielinskis adopted a ring code to alert each other that its a personal call, not one for Gervin.

The Zielinskis, who moved here in 1977 from Hagerstown, Md., have yet to attend a Spurs game. "But now I will want to go to one of the games," said Mrs. Zielinski. "This has kinda inspired me. I'd like to see who this guy Gervin is."

Gervin could not be reached for comment. It seems nobody knew his new phone number.

Hodgson Resigns To Join Chargers

The unexpected resignation of Pat Hodgson to join the coaching staff of the San Diego Chargers has left Texas Tech head coach Rex Dockery in the market for two assistants—and the time until start of fall drills growing shorter.

The Chargers announced Monday the hiring of Hodgson as receivers coach. And he is expected to report for duty with the NFL club almost immediately; the Chargers' rookies will report for camp next Sunday.

At Tech, Hodgson was ticketed as receivers-quarterback coach. He had come to the Raiders in the spring, prior to spring training, as a member of Dockery's initial staff.

Dockery has been out of the city for the past ten days on vacation but was spending part of his vacation time on the telephone trying to locate one assistant, to replace Jess Stiles who had resigned about a month ago.

Now, the list of openings has doubled.

Dockery had said prior to leaving on vacation that he hoped to have a coach hired this week, but thus far, he has not made any announcement.

From San Diego, Chargers coach Tommy Prothro issued a short statement, in announcing the hiring of Hodgson. "I had heard a great deal about him and contacted him in regard to the position here. And I was very impressed with him."

There had not been any previous connections between Hodgson and Prothro.

Hodgson came to Tech from the University of Georgia where he had been a receivers coach since 1972.

Broken Wrist Stops Snead

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — J.C. Snead, runner-up in the recent U.S. Open golf tournament, could be absent from the PGA tour for close to three months after breaking his left wrist, the Roanoke Times and World-News reported Monday night.

The 36-year-old Snead pulled out of last week's Canadian Open after eight holes on the first day and returned to his home in nearby Hot Springs to recover from a case of the flu.

Snead, who tied with Dave Stockton one stroke behind Open winner Andy North, now stands 26th on the PGA money list with earnings in excess of $61,000. The high finish in the Open has qualified him for next year's Open and Masters tournaments.

Kuhn Remains Alive

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

"I am no stooge, never was a stooge and never will be a stooge for anybody."
—Bowie Kuhn, 1969, after being named baseball commissioner.

"In six weeks, Kuhn has done more to destroy baseball than all its enemies in 100 years," charged Judge Roy Hofheinz, owner of the Houston Astros, when Kuhn let stand a Montreal-Houston trade after Donn Clendenon threatened to retire rather than join the Astros.

But Kuhn, now in his 10th year, has kept his cool and his job despite one of baseball's stormiest periods, an era punctuated by player strikes, the advent of free agentry and skyrocketing salaries.

How did he survive?

Through sound judgment, according to 82-year-old Warren Giles, one of baseball's "old guard," a man who served 18 years as National League president.

"I question whether Judge (Kenesaw) Landis would be as effective under the conditions which exist today," said Giles, referring to baseball's legendary iron-fisted czar. "Landis assumed authority and nobody questioned it. The players association has changed a lot of things.

"They had some rights due them for a long time and now they are going too far the other way," said Giles, who lives in retirement in in Cincinnati.

"He has been a good commissioner. He has made some unpopular decisions and sometimes he has used a poor selection of words, but he has handled the issues well. He is trying to prevent money from becoming the dominating factor in deals. Otherwise, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer and the game suffers."

Giles, who was almost named commissioner in 1951, thinks baseball was wise "not to take a member of the lodge and give him power."

He feels the job demands good judgment—and wrist slapping when necessary. He believes Kuhn, a longtime legal adviser for the National League before replacing Eckert, has acted firmly, but fairly.

During his tenure, Kuhn has riled ownership by nullifying deals which some contend is an abuse of his power. A movement was afoot last spring to oust Kuhn, primarily because his critics feel he has entered areas the owners consider their private domain.

Kuhn's loudest detractor over the years has been Charlie Finley, the Oakland As' maverick owner who has hauled Kuhn and baseball's hierarchy into court on several occasions.

"Finley wouldn't think God could make a good commissioner," said Giles.

Mentioned Briefly

TENNIS

WIMBLEDON, England — Bjorn Borg, bidding for his third straight Wimbledon tennis title, struggled for 2½ hours to overcome Vic Amaya 8-9, 6-1, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3 in first round action. Jimmy Connors, the second seed, took almost as long to defeat Russ Simpson of New Zealand 7-5, 9-8, 6-1. Third-seeded Vites Gerulaitis beat Henry Gunthardt of Switzerland 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, while No.5 seed Brian Gottfried led Britain's John Lloyd two sets to one when the match was postponed because of fading light.

Dick Stockton, one of seven Americans among the 16 seeds, was hustled out quickly under the strain of back trouble. John Marks of Australia, No. 132 in the world according to computer rankings, defeated Stockton 6-2, 9-8, 7-5. Twelfth-seeded Buster Mottram of Britain beat Douglas Palm of Sweden 7-5, 6-2, 6-2 and Ilie Nastase of Romania, the ninth seed, beat John Yuill of South Africa 6-3, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2. In an all-American duel, Billy Martin came back to beat Jeff Borowiak 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Altogether, because of rain and poor light, only 19 of the scheduled 64 matches Monday could be finished.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK — John Milner of the Pittsburgh Pirates hit .666, with two home runs and six runs batted in, and was named National League Player of the Week for the period ending June 25. Milner hit a bases-loaded home run to beat the New York Mets Saturday and hit a two-run shot to help beat his former teammates Sunday.

NEW YORK — Jason Thompson, slugging first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, was unanimously voted the American League's Player of the Week for the period of June 18-25. Thompson had one home run, scored five times, hit three doubles and had a slugging percentage of .720.

BOXING

SAILING

LOS ANGELES — Sorcery remained the leader in the Los Angeles to Tahiti sailboat race, cruising along 500 miles ahead of second-place Tula. Sorcery was reported 482 miles from the finish. Westward was third, 15 miles behind Tula. In last place was Celebration, more than 500 miles behind Westward.

Threesome Shows Up— But That's Irrelevant

By PATRICIA GATES

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The third annual "Irrelevant Week," honoring the final player chosen in the National Football League draft of collegiate players, was almost a bust, but it might end up being three times as much fun.

That's because offensive guard Lee Washburn of Montana State, the final player picked in the draft, is only one of three players on hand at the festivities, which began last Friday and run through the rest of this week.

Washburn, tabbed by the Dallas Cowboys as the 334th selection, arrived Monday morning. Officials of Irrelevant Week weren't certain he'd show up at all because of a back injury that has bothered him since last fall.

Last week, when Washburn's status was unknown, officials attempted to contact quarterback Bill Kenney of the University of Northern Colorado, the next-to-last player chosen, but were unsuccessful.

So they got in touch with Southern California wide receiver Randy Simmrin, who wasn't drafted following an outstanding collegiate career but later signed a free agent contract with the Buffalo Bills.

Simmrin accepted the invitation, but when Kenney, drafted by the Miami Dolphins, found out what was going on, he expressed interest in attending. Washburn made it a threesome Monday.

Visits to Disneyland, Catalina Island, Hollywood Park, Universal Studios, the Tonight Show and Las Vegas are planned, along with a banquet and sports celebrity roast, a cheerleading contest and a regatta in honor of the trio in Newport Harbor.

"I don't know if anyone knows what to make of it," said Washburn. "But I think it will be fun. It sounded good to me, to come out here and have a good time. My Dad wanted to come down from Montana."

Paul Salata, who came up with the idea of Irrelevant Week three years ago, said, "If things don't work out, it really doesn't matter. It's irrelevant."

On Monday, certificates of honor were awarded the three athletes by Newport Beach Chief of Police Pete Gross and Sheriff Brad Gates. In addition, a proclamation of congratulations was signed by the mayor.

A dinner scheduled for Wednesday night will help finance the week. Other expenses are being picked up by Salata and friends along with donations. Another dinner held Monday night helped defray expenses.

Irrelevant Week hasn't exactly been a blessing its first two years. Both players honored previously — wide receiver Kelvin Kirk of Dayton, drafted by the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1976, and fullback Jim Kelleher of Colorado, picked by the Minnesota Vikings last year — were unsuccessful in their attempts to make it in the NFL.

NO WEIGHT PROBLEM—Amanda Bradshaw, 3, clad in a jockey's outfit of the Queen's racing colors, would encounter no weight problem as a jockey, and race fans attending the Royal Ascot in Ascot, England, look on approvingly. Amanda stood in the royal enclosure in a bid to see the Queen last weekend. A stewart attempted to reunite her with her mother, but Amanda was adamant. She stayed and saw Queen Elizabeth drive past in her carriage. (AP Laserphoto)

Running Club Sets Races

BROWNFIELD (Special)—Three races will be on the Independence Day schedule for members of the West Texas Running Club, it was announced.

The three races for next Tuesday will be held here, beginning at the corner of Elm and Hester streets.

There will be a mile run for girls 11-14 and 10-and-under, and for boys 12-13, 10-11, 8-9 and 7-and-under.

The three-mile run will have categories for 15-and-under, high school and under, open, 30-39, 40-and-over, and women 25-and-over and women 24-and-under.

The 10-mile course will have classes for high school and under, open, 30-39, 40-49, 50-and-over, and women.

WTRC members can enter for a $1 fee, non members must pay $2 and those entering the one-mile race will pay $1.50, according to James Morris, the meet director.

The mile race will begin at 8:45 a.m., the ten-and three-mile races 15 minutes later.

Redskins Continue To Swap Players

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Washington Redskins don't have coach George Allen anymore, but they apparently still want to trade their high draft choices for veteran players.

The Redskins, who once went to the Super Bowl with their "Over the Hill Gang" of veterans put together by Allen, Monday traded their first-round draft pick next year to the Cincinnati Bengals for cornerback Lemar Parrish and defensive end Coy Bacon.

Parrish, a 30-year-old seventh-round pick in 1970, had announced he was playing out his option with Cincinnati.

Boone Shipped To Lakers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Kings have picked up the rights to a standout play-making guard — and this one wants to come to Kansas City.

Not only that, but the Kings also now boast a power forward they believe can be the game-breaker they've been looking for at that spot.

"You can never have enough good players," said Kings president and general manager Joe Axelson Monday after Kansas City acquired forward Darnell Hillman and guard Mike Evans in a three-way trade with the Denver Nuggets and Los Angeles Lakers.

The Kings sent guard Ron Boone and a 1979 second round draft pick to Los Angeles, which also got a 1979 second round pick from Denver. Los Angeles sent guard Charley Scott to Denver and Denver sent Hillman and Evans to Kansas City.

Kansas City is having problems signing guard Phil Ford of North Carolina, its No. 1 choice in the recent National Basketball Association. Ford has said he doesn't want to play with the Kings because they don't have a winning tradition.

But Evans, Kansas State's leading all-time scorer with 2,115 points and Denver's second first-round pick, apparently has no such qualms.

"He's very excited," Jim Paliafito, Evans' representative, said Monday. "He's had some very good games in Kemper Arena (the Kings' home). I really feel Michael will have a chance to step in and play."

Axelson said the Evans acquisition was not a hedge against not signing Ford, claiming the Kings had talked the Nuggets into taking Evans in the first round so they could make a deal for him.

Axelson said Kansas City had also been after Hillman, a reserve at Denver, for some time.

"Darnell is a big rebounder and shot blocker who can help us at two positions (forward and center)," said Axelson. "He loves to slam dunk it in traffic and we have seen his aggressive play lift his team out of the doldrums many times."

Hillman, 28, has played five NBA seasons and two seasons in the ABA. He averaged 10.8 points a game duirng the 1977-78 campaign.

Boone, who will be 32 in September, is a 10-year National Basketball Association and American Basketball Association veteran from Idaho State. He was selected by Kansas City in the ABA dispersal draft of 1976.

Axelson said the strategy of the two-for-one trade "gives us better ball handling and better defense and it clears the way for Otis Birdsong to play the big guard position full time.

"We expect Bird to be one of the league's biggest scorers next season. Last year his 48-minute average was over 29 points," Axelson said.

"We hate to lose Boone, but one has to give up something to get something, and since he'll be 32 when the season starts, we thought we'd better move him while he still has value."

Sign Up For Independence

When young people sign up for newspaper route work, they are really signing up for independence. The kind of independence that goes with earning your own money, running your own business, and dealing with people on a one-to-one basis.

Our carriers are young business men and women. They provide a vital service, handle their own finances and reap a handsome profit from their efforts. What better training to prepare them for the future?

If you are interested in stepping into the business world and declaring your own independence, contact our carrier manager right now. He'll give you all of the important facts about carrier work. Then, if you are still interested, he'll provide the pen and show you where to sign . . . even if your name is John Hancock.

Phone Tip Aids Drug Officials

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Richmond County police say a telephone tip led to the seizure of a Lockheed Lodestar airplane, 300 pounds of suspected marijuana and the arrest of four persons Monday.

Sheriff's deputies said the pot was confiscated when one of the suspects was arrested at an old dirt landing strip in south Richmond County near the city of Hephzibah.

His arrest led authorities to Augusta's Bush Field where the twin-engine Lodestar was seized when it landed with three persons aboard. No pot was found on the plane but police said they had evidence linking the Lodestar with the 300 pounds found at the dirt strip.

The four men were identified as John L. Bolin, 45, Ivan Garniff, 33, both of Miami, Fla., Jack S. Stroming, 22, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Nathan M. McDaniel Jr., 23, Korintze. They were charged with violation of Georgia's Controlled Substances Act.
