Clyde Beatty Circus Thrills Young And Old Alike Here

By RONALD WATERS
Pampa News Staff Writer

In a cage-full of Black-Maned Nubian Lions and Royal Bengal Tigers, Clyde Beatty displays the unique command of jungle beasts that has won him world-wide fame. Looking ferocious and direct from Africa, these animals form a "Ring of Fear" that has delighted thousands of spectators.

Using only a whip to impress his commands, a chair for protection, and a gun loaded with blanks, Beatty exhibits a remarkable showmanship which is the feature of his circus.

The huge three-ring railroad circus played its last performance for the season here Wednesday night. After the last clown left the arena, and the lights went out on the final performance, and the crowds slowly disappeared, came the dramatic moment of a circus on the move. Acrobats and laborers, animals and trainers, jugglers and aerial artists prepared for their winter quarters at Deming, N. M.

One of the famous acts featured the Great Hugo Zaccini, the "human cannon-ball", who shot his way out of a special cannon built on the back of a while truck.

This, he claims, is his own invention based on the principle of air compression and a catapult type of propulsion. He originated the cannon in 1920 while in Egypt and promoted the idea to the U.S. Government. This principle was used in propelling pilots from aircraft, and proved of such service during World War II that President Roosevelt awarded him with a special plaque. A native of Peru, the great Zaccini says that not only has this country profited from his invention, but many other countries as well. He indicated that he would continue promoting his idea and his daring act until he was decrepit.

In two aerial ballets of artistry, the Beatty Girls performed on ropes suspended from the beams, dressed first in pink tights and later in colorful costumes while waving tamborines.

The Great Linares displayed some unique gymnastic skills on the tight wire, as he acted a little inebriated. Remarkable foot work was shown as he danced, yes danced, on the wire and turned a forward somersault as a finale.

John Cline and his liberty horses gave a fine performance exhibiting well - trained coordination. Walking and dancing around the ring, the horses reared up in a grand finale.

The George Hanneford Family were billed as the most sensational troupe of bareback riding stars of all time, mingling the merriest of comedy with a series of amazing and fearless exploits. They lived up to expectations displaying acrobatic feats on three beautiful show horses. Cutting all sorts of capers, the clown of the family almost stole the show.

Richard Shipley and his trained elephants displayed a trunk full of tricks. As the band played "London Bridge Is Falling Down," the elephants played to tune. They imitated the beautiful girls (and who wouldn't) by turning around in circles. A "locomotive" of six huge animals and three baby ones formed the finale.

How can one describe a circus? It has all the fascination of show business, appeals to youngsters and adults, — alike; it has the atmosphere of a carnival and the color of a fiesta. The "Big - Top" is an American institution, and seems destined to continue as such so long as there is one clown to perform or one child to be amused.

Vice Fighter Says Payoffs Are Made

GALVESTON —UP— One of the leaders in the drive to clean up crime and vice in Phenix City, Ala., said he is sure there are payoffs in Galveston "and that's the only real reason operators have complied with orders to shut down."

Hugh Bentley, now living at Columbus, Ga., told representatives of the Galveston and La Marque, Tex., ministerial alliances Wednesday night that until "gangsters fight back, the crackdown is having very little effect."

"People who violate the laws play for keeps and they don't shut down when law officers tell them to," he said. "Law violators never shut down unless it's to the advantage of the law enforcement officers for them to do that.

"These criminal operators can't carry on their business if they have to fight the law. No one can fight the law and win. It's cheaper to buy the law," he said.

Bentley, who showed the group pictures of how his house was bombed before he left Phenix City, emphasized that he believes payoffs still are being made in Galveston.

"If there were no money for the law enforcement officers in organized crime, there wouldn't be any organized crime," he said.

He explained that what he meant was if the law enforcement officers didn't get payoffs, then they would crack down immediately. He said the people of Galveston could know that a real crackdown was being carried out "when the criminals retaliate."

Meanwhile, Galveston and mainland ministers Wednesday won promises of full co-operation from county officials in the drive against sin and hinted at forming

British To Fight Nationalists

HONG KONG —UP— The British Navy is ready to do battle with Chinese Nationalist warships if necessary to protect British ships in the Formosa Strait, responsible shipping quarters said Thursday.

The disclosure followed the two latest attacks on shipping in the strait. Last week the British freighter Helikon was fired on off Foochow. Tuesday the Norwegian freighter Hoi Houf was strafed by two Nationalist jet fighters off Swatow, killing two crewmen and wounding six others, including the skipper.

(In Tapai Thursday, a Nationalist Chinese air force spokesman warned that all merchant ships plying and South China coast without clear identification would be attacked by Nationalist warplanes.

(The spokesman said that a freighter strafed by Nationalist patrol planes off Swatow Tuesday was a Communist vessel. He said the ship flew a five-star flag and "fired first.")

Nixon Calls Security Council In Special Meet

By CHARLES CORDDRY

WASHINGTON — UP— Vice President Richard M. Nixon, substituting for President Eisenhower, summoned the National Security Council into secret session Thursday to discuss major issues facinc the administration. The outlook for further defense spending cuts topped the list.

The top policy group, concerned with foreign and military affairs, was confronted with the prospect that defense outlays may have to rise next year and that a recently-suggested cut of $1 million this year may be all but out of the question.

Those facts bear vitally on the administration's efforts to balance the federal budget by next June 30, a goal that Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey says can be reached with a 3 per cent reduction in federal spending.

Take Different View

Pentagon officials take a different view. They argue that federal revenues are running ahead of prior estimates and a balanced budget may be reached through a combination of smaller government savings and increased revenues due to the current boom.

The budget and defense spending situations were to be discussed again Friday at a Cabinet meeting, according to treasury and defense sources.

Nixon called both meetings under the administration plan to carry on as usual while Mr. Eisenhower is recovering from his heart attack in Denver. But the likelihood of an impasse between treasury and defense departments over further military savings made it clear to authorites that final decisions would have to wait until the President can take up his tasks again.

Defense Facts Cited

The likelihood that defense spending, now set for about $34 billion this fiscal year, may have to rise next year was based on these facts:

The Army, which has been living "off the shelf" for more than a year, probably will need more money in the year starting next

Ike Asking About State Of Nation

By MERRIMAN SMITH

DENVER —UP— President Eisenhower has begun to inquire about the state of affairs outside his hospital room and has been told simply that "everything is fine," it was learned Thursday.

He had a comfortable day Wednesday "without complications" and was able to spend 13 hours outside his oxygen tent at Fitzsimons Army hospital. He was returned to the tent during the night, but only as a routine measure to help him rest, according to doctors.

At 7 a.m. mst (8 a.m. cst) the President's doctors reported that he had a sound sleep for the third night. The first bulletin on the chief executive's condition of the day said:

"The President had a very good night. He slept almost continuously under the oxygen tent from 9 p.m. to 6:15 a.m. mst."

No Business Affairs

The few people who have had contact with the President since he suffered a heart attack last Saturday have made no effort to bring up business affairs.

He has, however, made at least one general inquiry, asking how things are going. He went into no detail and the staff member to whom the inquiry was directed replied without elaboration that "everything is fine."

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has a room across the hall from the President at the hospital, sees him several times a day and may have discussed any number of subjects. But the attitude of the staff is to say nothing to him about business or official affairs and answer when asked in general phrases of encouragement.

As the President's recovery proceeds, however, he is expected to start examining documents and

Auto Death Rate Ahead Of Last Year

CHICAGO —UP— The death rate on the nation's highways is running more than 1,000 deaths ahead of last year and the most dangerous months are still to come, the National Safety Council said Thursday.

The council reported that 23,470 persons have been killed in traffic accidents from the beginning of the year until the end of August. This is a 5 per cent jump of 1,040 deaths over the 22,430 recorded in the first eight months of 1954.

Council President Ned H. Dearborn warned that the most dangerous months for drivers are still ahead.

Usually Spurts in Last Quarter

The highway death rate usually spurts the last quarter of the year, when early darkness and rainy or snowy weather increase driving hazards, he said.

"The rising tide of traffic deaths means that every driver must be his brother's keeper," Dearborn said. "The tremendous use of the automobile today calls for more social responsibility for every individual — driving and walking."

In August, when 3,600 persons were killed, the death rate jumped 10 per cent over August, 1954 to make it the sixth consecutive month to go over the previous year's record.

Low Rate on Mileage Basis

However, the council pointed out that the first seven months of 1955 also showed the lowest death rate on a mileage basis for such a period on record.

Deaths jumped 4 per cent from January to July, the council said, but mileage was up 7 per cent. This added up to a comparatively low rate of 5.8 deaths per 100 million miles, the safety experts said.

Peron Gets Spain Permit

BUENOS AIRES —UP— Ousted President Juan D. Peron has been granted asylum in Spain and may begin his flight into exile Thursday, a source close to the new president said.

The informant said negotiations for a safe conduct pass for the deposed dictator have been concluded. He said Peron will be picked up by a seaplane from the Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor and flown to Paraguay. Then he will go to Spain.

Peron will leave behind what have been described as an "Arabian Nights" treasure trove amassed during his 10 years dictatorship of Argentina. A partial police inventory of the loot recovered thus far listed almost $30 million in gold coins and U.S. and Argentine currency alone.

Worst Storm Of Season Leaving A Tragic Toll

MEXICO CITY — UP — Hurricane Janet picked up new power Thursday in her trek across open sea and bore down on the Mexican mainland with the killer force that wrought death and destruction over the Yucatan peninsula and the Caribbean islands.

The storm, the 10th and worst of the season, followed a west - northwest course which would bring it within striking distance of populated areas shortly after dawn.

Shortly before it cleared the open stretch of water between the peninsula and the mainland its maximum wind force was estimated at 115 miles an hour. But weather officials said it was constantly generating new power and might strike land with a force almost equal to the 150-mile-an-hour punch it loosed on Yucatan.

Smashes Village of Xcalak

Janet smashed the tiny village of Xcalak, 200 miles southeast of Merida, Yucatan, with the most powerful winds to be recorded on shore from any storm this year. Early reports said 97 bodies were found in the wreckage of the village and most of the dead were children.

The Mexican border town of Chetumal was reported "wiped out" by the storm. Fifty-three persons were reported killed and more than half the population left without shelter.

Another border town, Santa Elena, was flattened and destroyed by Janet's killer winds. There were no reports available immediately on loss of life.

Janet blasted across Corozal, another Yucatan town, damaging 90 per cent of the area. Six persons were killed. All communications with the town were knocked out and a rescue mission was dispatched from Belize to offer whatever aid it could.

Tales of Severe Hardship

Tales of severe hardship came from nearly all the towns and villages ravaged in Yucatan by the killer storm.

Some 10,000 homeless in Corozal and Chetumal were reported in urgent need of food and water.

Many persons were forced to

Egypt's Arms Purchases Alarm British

LONDON —UP— The foreign office announced Thursday it has instructed the British ambassador in Cairo to express this country's "grave concern" to Egypt over purchase of arms from Communist countries.

An official foreign office spokesman said instructions were sent Wednesday empowering British Ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan to inform Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of Britain's grave view toward Egypt's attitude.

Trevelyan also has been instructed to emphasize the danger arising from an arms race in the Middle East, it was disclosed. The British move was described officially as an outcome of the joint Anglo-American statement of two days ago.

That statement was issued in New York. It reaffirmed the West's determination to maintain stability in the Middle East by avoiding an arms race between Israel and the Arab nations.

Britain's pressure coincided with the departure from Washington of U. S. Assistant Secretary of State George Allen on a trouble-shooting mission to Egypt.

The foreign office spokesman confirmed that Allen's trip stemmed from the urgent Middle East discussions between Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Foreign Secretary Harold McMillan in New York following disclosure that Egypt was buying arms from Communist countries.

Shivers Hits Court Segregation Ruling

HOUSTON —UP— Gov. Allan Shivers Wednesday night accused the U.S. Supreme Court of stepping "outside the role of judicial interpretation" when it ruled against segregation.

"When the Supreme Court, basing its opinion on sociological studies, said how the cities of Houston and Woodville were going to operate their schools it stepped outside the role of judicial interpretation," Gov. Shivers told some 1,000 delegates at the annual banquet of the American Association of Oil Well Drilling Contractors.

Shivers said that, basically, the segregation issue is a "political problem" and the court's ruling on it only one "in a long series of attempts to bring about the centralization of government."

'Political Problem'

"It's a political problem because next year things will happen in which the people will have a choice," he said, referring to next year's elections.

Shivers traced a trend toward centralized government and said the only "stop" in the Supreme Court's encroachment upon the legislative field in the last 25 years was the tidelands case.

He also criticized the Supreme Court's decision that the Federal Power Commission has authority to set the price of gas at the wellhead.

"If the Supreme Court can tell the people in the oil and gas business that some board in Washington can tell you what prices you get, then they can tell you what price you pay for your dinner here," he said.

Indirect Mention of Visit

Shivers, who was absent from Austin last June when Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler visited Texas, made only casual, indirect mention of the visit Wednesday of Adlai Stevenson, 1952 presidential candidate.

Stevenson spoke at the University of Texas Wednesday night.

Shivers, in his opening remarks to the contractors, smiled and said:

"Pressing business and important visitors in Austin caused me not to be there tonight. I'm sure they will have a wonderful time."

Eight Stores Open Tonight

Tonight will find eight retail stores in the downtown area open until 9 o'clock. The stores offering the later shopping hours are Levine's Tiny Tot Shop, Kennedy Jewelry, Karl's Shoes, Franklin's, Mettler's shoes, Anthony's and Zale's Jewelry.

Holding that many are unable to shop conveniently during the day, the managers of these stores feel that the extra service of a 9 o'clock closing on Thursday nights is desired by many of their customers.

As a special incentive to Thursday night shopping, several merchants are offering special values in a joint advertisement on page 20.

Ike's Political Plans May Be Known Soon

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON —UP— The word here and from Denver is that President Eisenhower will reveal his 1956 political plans much sooner than was likely before he became ill, probably before Christmas.

The advice of his political associates and his own inclinations long had centered on an early March announcement. Mr. Eisenhower's political friends were strongly confident that he would announce willingness to accept renomination.

They are not confident now. There is a good chance that the contest for next year's Republican presidential nomination will become a free-for-all political brawl damaging to the party's election prospects, assuming that Mr. Eisenhower is out of it.

No Handy Successor

Sen. Robert A. Taft was the acknowledged leader of one large division of the Republican party. He is dead. Mr. Eisenhower was the hand-picked leader of the other division and he is not likely to continue to lead. Neither division of the party has handy a man who stands out as the natural successor either to the late senator or to the stricken President. A comparatively leaderless party can work itself into a dreadful tangle.

It is a wide open contest, therefore, as of now. Mr. Eisenhower can bring his prestige to bear in favor of his own choice of a 1956 presidential nominee only if he soon takes himself out of the running and goes all out to put his man over. It remains to be seen whether the President can dictate the party choice. There is some doubt, even, that he will seek to do so. But presidents usually want to pick their successors.

The President is not a life-long politician. Former President Truman did not hesitate to maneuver Adlai E. Stevenson into the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination. Theodore Roosevelt personally picked his successor, William Howard Taft. Mr. Eisenhower might shy, however, at that word "dictate."

Must Make Decision

But he still must take himself to the voters and to Republican hopefuls, even though he may not wish to choose among them.

Presidential primaries are coming up, the first on March 13 in New Hampshire, followed by Minnesota March 20; Wisconsin April 3; Illinois April 10; New Jersey April 17; Massachuseitts April 24. Upward of a dozen others extend through May and into June.

If Mr. Eisenhower retires and has no favorite, all hands are entitled to an equal chance at the primary gauntlet. The voters are entitled to maximum opportunity to observe the various hopefuls under pre-convention campaign fire.

If Mr. Eisenhower has a favorite, he will have to hustle him into some key primary contests not only to ward off poachers but to put his man on show. The primaries are important. They can be deadly to a loser.

Bits Of Information From The World Of Television

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK —UP— The channel swim . . .

Eddie Fisher gave Debbie Reynolds a set of golf clubs the week before their wedding. Eddie owns two sets of clubs himself, but Debbie won't have to worry about much competition from her new hubby. "Over 18 holes, I shoot about 90 — with each set of clubs," says Eddie.

Look for an overhaul of NBC-TV's "Colgate Variety Hour." Last Sunday, the show ran a poor third in the ratings to CBS-TV's "Ed Sullivan Show" and ABC - TV's "Famous Film Festival" . . . NBC TV has snapped up "Ethel and Albert," which CBS - TV dropped, and will fit it into an evening slot beginnig Oct. 14.

Shame, shame: Although "The Lone Ranger" generally is referred to as a "children's program," a survey shows that its audience is 55 per cent adult. . .

Billy Graham is using Dumont's closed TV circuit for his current series of meetings in Toronto. Dr. Graham is being seen by audiences at six theaters in the area.

The new Alcoa show (which takes over for the old Philco Playhouse) will concentrate on a big name policy. Alcoa is being pressured into the policy because "General Electric Theatre," the drama show in the same time segment, has been grabbing away most of the audience with well-known movie stars.

Strictly for the birds: That performing blackbird, "Ole Crow," that you may have seen on the Steve Allen, Ernie Kovacs and Garry Moore shows, now has a stuffed crow as a stand-in. Seems the live bird is too temperamental to attend rehearsals.

The producers of "The $64,000 Question" have decided to crack down on future contestants who accept money for writing newspaper articles while they still are with the show. Incidentally, the sponsor of "The $64,000 Question" has given Jackie Gleason permission to take part in a drama based on the giveaway show this Oct. 10 on "Studio One."

"Omnibus" is said to be planning a series that will trace the whole history of the musical comedy in America.

At Hillsboro 600 of the 700 inhabitants lost their homes and were without shelter.

Urgent requests came from many of the devastated villages for medical supplies.

Death Toll Reaches 400

Authorities said Janet's death toll early Thursday had already reached 400—200 in the Caribbean islands and another 200 or more in the Yucatan peninsula. Earlier hurricanes claimed more than 700 lives in their sprees from the West Indies to the Atlantic coast cities of the United States.

Authorities urged inhabitants in low areas in the port city of Tampico to "get out before it is too late." The port had no letup from Hilda, which took an estimated 300 lives, because rain inland kept the big Panuco River out of its banks.

Officials feared "a castrophe" from Janet's torgent would be heaped upon the "worst disaster in Tampico's history" which was left by Hilda last week.

The Brownsville, Tex., weather bureau said the fringe rains and wind from Janet should reach no farther than Ciudad Victoria, about 150 miles south-southwest of Brownsville. Squally weather from Janet is predicted for the Texas Gulf Coast, however.

Businessmen and directors of the chamber of commerce lowered the boom on organized vice in Galveston last week, claiming the city was being hurt and "honest persons" were afraid to visit the resort island.

All open bars, gambling casinos and brothels were ordered to close by noon Thursday by District Attorney Marsene Johnson or face charges.

The Rev. George Scotchmer, head of the Galveston Ministerial Association, said ministers and civic leaders would be sounded out Thursday on forming a "vigilance committee."

"We must make sure that law enforcement does not become lax," he said. Scotchmer and a delegation of 15 Galveston and mainland ministers "talked turkey" to Johnson and Sheriff Frank H. Biaggne in separate meetings Wednesday.

Scotchmer said both officials promised to "prosecute any complaints to the fullest" if any illegal bars, gambling clubs or bawdyhouses were found operating.

Two Juveniles Arrested Here

Two juveniles who admitted taking four bicycles within the past few weeks were recently apprehended by H. A. Doggett, juvenile officer.

Dogget indicated that he picked up as many as two or three bicycles a week taken by juveniles. At present he is holding a recovered bike to return to the owner upon identification.

Two other juveniles, both 16 years old, were tried before Judge Bruce Parker yesterday for taking scrap iron from one junk yard and selling it to another. One boy was turned over to the custody of his father in Houston, and the other sent to work with his brother in Plainview

Most Pleasant Day

Judging from the official bulletins and statements by Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, the President Wednesday had his most pleasant dry since he suffered a coronary thrombosis early last Saturday at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud.

In addition to being free of the oxygen tent during the day time, Mr. Eisenhower was able to enjoy recorded music in his hospital room. He also was looking forward to hearing recorded stories of western adventure, mysteries and selections from Shakespeare on "reading records."

He has not been reading newspapers or listening to the radio, so the recorded music offers some relief from the tedium of hospital routine.

Mr. Eisenhower is undergoing examination by electrocardiograph on a schedule of about twice a day. He had a total of nine examinations by this method through Wednesday.

The Mood Of Eisenhower's Staff Is Low As Expected

By MERRIMAN SMITH

DENVER —UP— Backstairs at the summer White House:

The mood of President Eisenhower's staff, as expected, is very low in the wake of the chief executive's heart attack. For the most part, the people around the President like him a lot. His heart attack produced tears by a number of his associates.

Outwardly, they present a brave and efficient front. But when they go to their rooms at night in Cullen Hall, on the massive Lowry Air Force Base, they think somberly about the implications of the President's illness.

If he doesn't run again — and this looks more likely by the minute — a lot of his closest friends and helpers will be job hunting. More important to them for the moment is the task of operating the executive branch of government-chief.

One of the Eisenhower staff's primary problems will be shifting the scene of their work-a-day operations to Gettysburg. The President, during his recuperative period, seemed like a sure bet to conduct a great deal of his official business from the comfortable study of his Gettysburg farm house.

Heretofore, his Gettysburg trips have been essentially non-working weekends. Now it will be different. He'll be having official callers at the farm. This will mean increased communications facilities, and certain members of the staff will have to pull up their Washington roots to live as working residents of Pennsylvania.

News coverage of the President at Gettysburg will be increased greatly. Reporters must conduct themselves in the future as covering a head of the nation who has heart trouble which might recur at any minute.

A visitor the other afternoon at Fitzsimons general hospital where the President is recovering was seven-year-old Lila Shaw. She came with her grandmother who was calling on another patient and grandma left young Lila in the lobby.

The moppet hunted around for companionship and entertainment and ended up with a group of Secret Service agents. To pass the time, the burly plainclothesmen had a 20-minute spelling bee with the child. They taught her two new words—uncle and alligator.

The President's food, what little he eats at the hospital, is cooked in a special diet kitchen on the eighth floor of Fitzsimons, not far from his suite.

Military police cover the elevator doors and change shifts every two hours.

Life for the secret service is much easier with the President in the hospital. They don't have to cover golf courses and trout streams, and primary protection of the building is handled by the MPs.

Mr. Eisenhower is quite irritated and frustrated by his hospital diet. He has to subsist on things like hot cereal and soft boiled eggs when he would like to be eating fried rainbow trout from his deep freeze.

Square Dance Invites Out

About 350 letters were sent out yesterday to 4-H members and parents all over the county inviting them to attend the square dance to be held next Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Hall.

Committees named for the event are: games, refreshments, and clean-up committee. Nancy Tate is chairman of the games committee which includes Shirley Chase, Nellie Greene, and Doris Bullard. The refreshment comittee, headed by Bill Greene, is made up of Tom Anderwald, Orphus Tate, and Jerry Mobly. The clean-up committee consists of Orphus Tate, Jr., chairman, Jerry McCracken, Alvin Dauer, Shirley Chase, and Darlene Ford.

Letters were sent out by Mrs. Jim Terrell, assistant home demonstration agent, and Jerry Mobly, assistant county agent.

Scout Training Courses Are Set

Training courses for Den Mothers, Cub Masters, Scout Masters, Explorer Advisors, and young men elected officers of Posts, will take place next Thursday, Oct. 6, in the City Hall.

The training session originally scheduled for next Saturday at Camp Ki-o-Wah for Boy Scout leaders has been postponed until a later date. Groups that were to participate in the session included: Explorer leaders, Scout Masters, and troop committee men of Santa Fe and Ft. Elliott Districts.

Directors for the training courses are: George Perkins, cub training; John Ayers, executive leaders training; A. D. Conway, boy scout leaders training; and R. L. Hendricks, general chairman

BRITAIN'S HEAVY-WATER VENTURE — Model, above, is nicknamed "Dido" by the British, who have it on display at the international Atoms-for-Peace conference in Geneva, Switzerland. Central unit of "Dido" is a heavy-water reactor, now under construction at Harwell, England. It will be used to carry out research which is expected to determine the pattern for power-producing reactors to be built in the future.

Expert Says Accidents Can Happen To Anyone

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK —UP— The popular theory that little Jimmy is destined to skin his knee 10 times to his brother's once because Jimmy is "accident prone" is a lot of nonsense, a safety expert says.

He believes there is almost no such thing as accident proneness, C. R. DeReamer insisted when he and other safety experts got together this week at a conference for safer living.

DeReamer based his statements on studies he has made of accident statistics as the safety consultant for the General Electric Co. He showed how they applied to homeowners because at the conference, sponsored by the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co., a survey showed that five million accidents occur each years in American homes now, and if the present rate of increase continues, the figure will reach seven million by 1975.

"All the talk about accident prone people has a bad effect on parents," DeReamer said. "If one member of the family begins having repeated accidents a parent who believes in the theory of accident proneness will feel there is nothing he can do about it. He will regard it as a problem for a psychologist.

"Accidents don't 'just happen' in most cases. They are caused. And they are caused by unsafe acts and unsafe conditions. It is up to parents to accept this basic philosophy and then take individual responsibility for developing what I call 'accident awareness' in children."

Asked in an interview how he explained statistics cited to support the theory that for some psychological quirk a person can become accident prone, DeReamer promptly answered:

"It is as natural that statistics will show that one person in 1,000 will have seven accidents while 250 of that number have none as it is that the No. 10 will come up seven times before some other number comes up once if you pick from 100 numbers in a hat."

Some people have been trained to be more conscious than others, he said, especially in industry.

Safer at Work

"A man usually is many times safer at work than he is at home," the safety expert continued. "And industry has done it, first by training supervisors in accident awareness, and then by having safety instruction for employes.

"Parents can do the same thing. They must forget all the trite phrases that blame accidents on 'the law of averages. . .my number was up. . .the price or progress.' "

DeReamer hopes there will be a concentrated program across the nation to urge parents to hold regular family safety sessions. At these the family could discuss such things as what to do in case of fire, the danger of falling downstairs (one of the most common household accidents) and how to avoid it, and the danger of using a knife improperly and how to avoid it.

"The home is a safer place to be than it was 50 years ago, because competition forces home equipment manufacturers to make it safe," he said. "Now it is up to the parents."

Milk Vs. Cream

Milk is heavier than cream. Cream in milk rises to the surface because is composed of tiny drops of oil and fat, which are lighter than the remainder of the milk.

Price Fix Hit By Farm Man

CHICAGO —UP— Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said Tuesday that the way to improve farm income is to reduce government interference in the pricing and production of farm products.

"Political pricing" actions by congress have been a large factor in the 24 per cent decline in farm prices which has taken place during the last five years, Shuman said.

He addressed a breakfast meeting of the American Bankers Association, which is holding its 81st annual convention here.

Shuman said rigid price supports at 90 per cent of parity were established during the war to encourage increased production. But "congress failed to let the flexible price support plan go into effect after wartime demands were reduced," he said.

"This has been an important factor in the accumulation of surplus farm products which now prevent farmers from sharing in the present rising tide of economic prosperity," he added.

Shuman called for emphasis on expanding domestic consumption and increasing "mutually advantageous" foreign trade as a way to "eliminate the huge surplus accumulation that is forcing farm prices downward."

"I took that how-do-you-rate-as-a-husband test for you, and I'm surprised I've put up with you as long as I have!"

Blanketed Sardines Is Tasty Oven Dish

Your family will like the flavor of this sardine - green pea oven dish. The sardines wrapped in a cheese "blanket" add an attractive and tasty topping to the casserole. The broiler makes the cheese around the sardines brown and puff to a golden bubbly goodness.

3½ cups water
1, 3¼ oz. can sardines in mustard sauce, coarsely chopped
2-3 cup uncooked white rice
1 cup uncooked green peas
2 whole canned pimientos, chopped
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
3 cheese slices, halved (cheese should be at room temperature)
6 whole sardines in mustard sauce

METHOD: Put the water, the one can of sardines chopped, rice, peas, pimientos, salt, pepper and mustard in a well-greased 2-quart oven dish. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven for 45 minutes or until the water is absorbed, but the mixture should not be dry. Stir in the hard-cooked eggs.

Wrap a strip of cheese around each of the whole sardines. Arrange the sardines over the rice-sardine mixture in the oven dish. Place under the broiler for 5 minutes or until the cheese browns. This recipe make 6 servings.

Tender-Cooked Beef Heart Is Nutritious

There's a lot of good eating in a tender - cooked beef heart, not only from the standpoint of taste and flavor, but also from nutrition in the form of vitamins and minerals. A beef heart, which is lean muscle meat, weighs about 3½ pounds and yields twelve to sixteen servings—enough for one hot meal and several servings of sandwiches.

For a savory beef heart dish, serve it stuffed and baked. To prepare, wash a large beef heart, then remove veins, arteries, and any hard parts. Blend three cups of bread crumbs with three tablespoons melted fat, 1 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon each, marjoram and pepper, 1 slightly beaten egg, 1 small minced onion, and ½ cup finely chopped celery. Stuff the heart cavity loosely and fasten opening with skewers. Roll in seasoned flour, brown quickly in hot lard. Place in casserole; add small amount of water to pan in which meat was browned, heat and pour over heart. Cover casserole and bake in a 350 degree F. oven 2½ to 3 hours, or until meat is tender. Thicken drippings for gravy and serve with heart. Cut heart in crosswise slices to serve.

Energy Pick-Up Is Cake And Milk

When those hungry youngsters come running home from school wanting an afternoon snack a simple way to slake their hunger and thirst, and give them a quick energy pick-up, is cake and cold milk.

Cake is no longer a problem to bake in this wonderful age of simplification. You can use a wonderfully convenient packaged cake mix, with little effort involved in preparation. It takes only a few minutes to keep your family supplied with their favorite cake for afternoon snacks or lunch-box desserts.

A suggestion from the Gladiola Kitchens for a cake your family will applaud is made with Gladiola Golden Yellow Cake Mix. Bake this cake in an 8" x 8" loaf pan so you may cut it in convenient sized pieces for the children. Frost the cake with Fudge Icing that's as tasty as it is simple to make.

SIMPLE FUDGE FROSTING

3 cups sugar
½ cup cocoa
(or 3 sqs. unsweetened chocolate)
Dash of Salt
1 cup milk
3 Tbs. light corn syrup
3 Tbs. butter
1-½ tsp. vanilla extract

Mix all ingredients except butter and vanilla in sauce pan, blending well. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Continue cooking, without stirring, until the syrup forms a soft ball in cold water. Remove from fire, add butter and vanilla. Allow to cool until lukewarm, then beat until frosting is of the right consistency to spread. Place mixture over hot water to keep it soft for spreading.

Easy-To-Prepare Loaf For Supper

You can make this meat loaf in a hurry just before mealtime because the recipe calls for ready-to-use meat in a can.

It's so easy to spoon the tasty rice and American cheese mixture between slices of luncheon meat to make the loaf. The loaf is baked in a "sauce" of garlic-spiked tomatoes and golden corn kernels.

HURRY-UP SUPPER LOAF
String Beans
with Butter and Almond Topping
Tossed Vegetable Salad
Hot Biscuits
Lemon Snow Pudding

INGREDIENTS:

1½ cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2-3 cup uncooked white rice
1 No. 303 can tomatoes
1 cup drained whole kernel yellow corn
½ teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon black pepper
Generous dash of garlic powder
1 cup grated American cheese (use some sharp cheese if desired)
1, 12 ounce can luncheon meat

METHOD: Put the water, 1 teaspoon salt and rice in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove saucepan from heat but leave lid on 10 minutes.

While the rice cooks, place the tomatoes, corn, salt, pepper and garlic powder in a shallow baking dish about 10" x 6" x 2". Mix well. After the rice cooks, stir in the cheese. Cut the luncheon meat crosswise into 8 slices. Spoon the rice-cheese mixture between the slices to make a loaf. Place the loaf in the tomato-corn mixture. Light the oven and set the oven control at 350 degree F. Immediately place the baking dish in the oven. Bake for 30 minutes or until the meat and cheese are the desired degree of brownness. Once during the baking, spoon some of the tomato juice over the loaf.

Recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

No need to get out the thermometer if the instruction tag on a new dress advises lukewarm suds. Test just as for baby's bath; it's lukewarm if it feels neither hot nor cool to the wrist.

There are more than 40,000 Christians in Israel, served by about 1,000 religious functionaries. Christians in the little country have more than 160 places of worship, plus about 50 religious schools.

Fix Vegetable Dish In Finnish Manner

The whole family will love carrots when they're served in this Finnish manner. Here's an easy vegetable dish to prepare because it cooks in the oven and needs no attention.

Rice is the basic ingredient and cooks tender in the oven. An interesting variety of seasonings gives the carrots and rice a slightly sweet and most intriguing flavor.

Pork Roast
FINNISH CARROTS
Buttered Broccoli
Hot Bread
Deep - Dish Apple Pie

INGREDIENTS:

3 cups water
2-3 cup uncooked white rice
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups coarsely grated carrot
1 egg, well beaten
¼ cup light brown sugar
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1-4 cup slivered almonds

METHOD: Put the water, rice and salt in a greased 1 ½-quart oven dish. Place the carrots over the rice. Place in a pre-heated 350 degree F. oven for 45 minutes or until the rice is tender. Do not stir during the baking.

Stir in the egg, brown sugar, butter or margarine, nutmeg and almonds. Return to the oven for 15 minutes or until most of the liquid is absorbed.

This recipe makes 6 servings.

Spareribs And Apples Make Good Fall Dish

The bright red skinned apples that appear in grocery stores during September and October tempt most cooks into using them often, not only in salads and desserts, but in main dishes as well. A particularly tasty use of the crunchy fruit is in a stuffing for meaty spareribs:

Apple Stuffed Spareribs

2 sides spareribs
Salt, pepper
½ pound salt pork, diced
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
5 large red-skinned apples, diced
¼ cup brown sugar
2 cups toasted bread crumbs
1-3 cup chopped parsley
3-4 cup water or bouillon

Sprinkle both sides of ribs with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Fry salt pork until crisp; remove pieces. Cook onions and celery in drippings three minutes; add apples, sprinkle with sugar. Cover pan and cook 10 minutes longer. Add remaining ingredients and 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and spread on one section of spareribs, cover with other section and skewer or tie together. Roast on a rack in shallow pan at 350 degree F. 1½ hours, 4 to 6 servings.

About eight per cent more butter and 13 per cent more margarine was purchased for household use in April, 1955, than in April, 1954.

Good Beginning—Good Ending

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE BEING IN THE MOOD TO WHISTLE while you work . . . or, at least, on the way to work. Regular breakfast eaters enjoy this happy sensation. And, because time is no longer an obstacle in preparing breakfast with ready-to-eat cereals, more people are experiencing this good cheer.

Among the favorites heading the cereal list is candy-coated puffed wheat. Since it's pre-sweetened, the only addition necessary is milk unless you like thick slices of delicious bananas to top it with. For those heartier appetites, an easy-to-boil egg with buttered toast and coffee will top off a perfect breakfast.

Remember though—cereals have a place of honor in other meals, too. Here's a novel dessert featuring candy-coated puffed wheat cereal, to end the day as well as start it—with zip!

EY CRUNCH SUNDAE PIE

1½ cups Sugar Crisp
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup shredded coconut, toasted
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Place cereal in greased bowl and set aside. Combine honey, sugar, and salt in saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring to dissolve sugar. Continue boiling until a small amount of syrup forms a firm ball in cold water (or to a temperature of 246° F.). Add butter. Pour syrup over cereal in bowl, stirring lightly to coat. Add toasted coconut, combining quickly. Press mixture gently on bottom and sides of well-greased 9-inch pie pan. Chill. Fill with vanilla ice cream, serve with fudge sauce.

To give your plants a steady supply of water if you're away for a few days, place a basin of water beside the flower pot. Make a wick from an old piece of cotton material folded and stitched. Place one end of the wick in the water and the other end in the flower pot.

Hamburger Patties On An Onion Ring

BARBECUED HAMBURGER STEAK ON ONION RING

Mold hamburger patties to desired size. Place on onion slice in a well greased broiling dish or aluminum foil with ends turned. Dash several drops Colgin Liquid Smoke on each pattie. Broil for 5 minutes on each side, or until done. Baste frequently with juices. Serve with French fries.

Three Meat Standbys Of School Lunch Box

Sandwiches are the backbone of the school lunch box, for they are easy to eat and easily prepared. And meat sandwiches are among the most popular ever wrapped for the school lunch!

Three meat standbys — ideal for luncheon sandwiches — are bologna, smoked liver sausage and luncheon meat. Use them with interesing seasonings, such as these:

1. Bologna: Use a slice or two of bologna between two slices of whole wheat bread spread with a mixture of butter, horseradish, and minced parley.

2. Liver sausage: Blend 2-3 cup mashed liver sausage with 3 tablespoons chopped celery and enough pickle juice to moisten. Sandwich with sliced hard cooked eggs between slices of rye bread.

3. Luncheon meat: Mix 2-3 cup chopped canned luncheon meat, ¼ cup finely chopped stuffed olives, a dash of Worcestershire sauce and enough mayonnaise to moisten. Use as filling for split hamburger or frankfurter rolls. Wrap lettuce leaves separately to insert in sandwiches just before eating.

Most fruits hold their fresh color, flavor and texture longer when frozen with sugar or syrup than when packed unsweetened.

BARBECUED SHRIMP LOUISIANA

1 pt. peeled shrimp
4 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. minced onion
4 tbsp. flour
2 tbsp. Colgin Liquid Smoke
2 cups milk
2 tbsp. minced parsley
4 tbsp. catsup
1 tsp. salt

Cook onion in butter until soft; add shrimp (fresh cooked or canned) broken in pieces and brown. Stir in flour, salt, Colgin Liquid Smoke and then gradually the milk. Cook five minutes. Add tomato catsup and parsley. Steam several minutes. Serve over hot rice.

CAMPUS QUEEN — Kathryn Rogers, new national College Queen, is surrounded by runners-up in the contest at Asbury Park, N.J. The 19-year-old beauty from Germantown, Tenn., attends the University of Mississippi. She won on the basis of beauty—50 per cent—and intelligence, scholastic standing, and participation in college extracurricular activities. Girls standing are, from left, Ginger Stein of Philadelphia, last year's queen; Petey Dunn of Florida, second-place winner, and Sue Curtis of Alabama, who placed third.

5 Senators Visit London

LONDON —UP— Five United States senators arrived Tuesday on a three-week tour to see if enough money is being spent on American bases in Spain, Britain and Turkey.

Sen. Dennis Chavez, (D-N.M.) told newsmen:

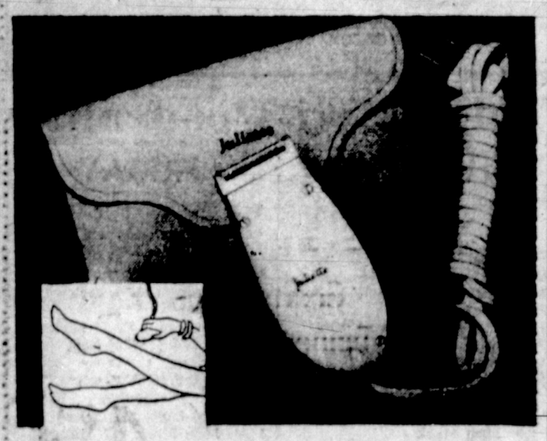

"We are here to find out how much is being spent and how much we need to spend to keep our defense commitments up to the mark.

"We may not be spending enough either in Britain or in Europe. That is what we are here to see."

Others in the party were Democrats Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia, John L. McClellan of Arkansas, and John Stennis of Mississippi, plus Republican Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

Their tour, starting Tuesday night, includes 19 bases in Britain.

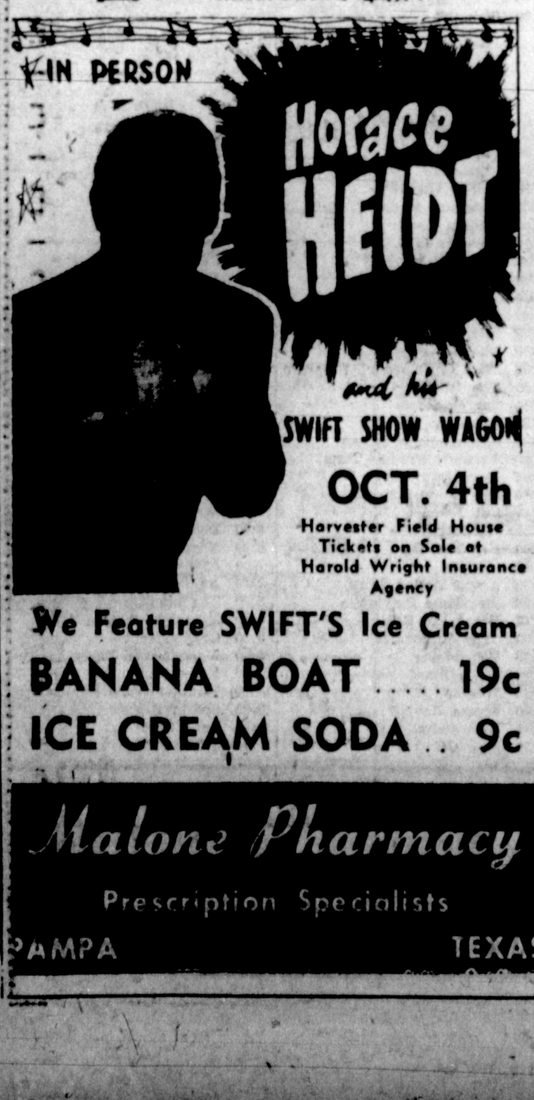

In Spain, they will visit airfields being revamped for the U.S. Air Force under a bi-lateral agreement.

Problem Of Moslem Wives Has Now Reached The U.N.

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

The problem of the Moslem wives, which started a battle of the sexes in Southeast Asia 15 months ago, has reached the United States.

The problem is whether the Moslem husband, who is legally entitled to four wives, should content himself in these modern times with one.

President Soekarno of Indonesia started it in June, 1954, when he took a second wife — a beautiful divorcee with five children.

Premier Mohammed Ali of Pakistan was next. He married a second wife in Beirut, Lebanon, last April. She had been his social secretary.

King Idris of Libya followed suit. He took his second wife on June 5.

Women throughout the Moslem world were outraged by the second marriages. There were indignation meetings of women's organizations in cities all the way from Cairo, Egypt, to Manila in the Philippines.

The palace in which Soekarno maintained wife No. 2 was stoned. Shouting women demonstrated outside Ali's home.

It was all a just problem for the Moslem husbands and wives to fight out — until Mohammed Ali brought wife No. 2 to the United States and wife No. 1 followed him.

That presents a problem for American and United Nations officials and hostesses. Should they recognize wife No. 1 or wife No. 2 or both?

It happens that Mohammed Ali was ambassador here once before. Then he had only one wife. She was one of the most popular women in the diplomatic corps.

Ali was premier when he remarried. Now he is out of the prime ministry and back here as ambassador and chief UN delegate.

The plural wives problem seems to have arisen first because leaders in some newly liberated Moslem countries decided, in their prosperity, to go old fashioned as regards marriage.

A Social Crisis

But the problem assumed the proportions of a social crisis in the Moslem world because the women are determined to win complete sex equality. They want to go forward, not backward.

Soekarno must have been surprised when he started it all. He married secretely, and the news leaked out only weeks afterward.

Women's organizations protested to him, to his cabinet and to parliament. There was a call for a world congress of Moslem wives to demand that plural marriages be legally banned.

Before Mohammed Ali remarried, it was disclosed that two of his cabinet ministers had taken second wives. Apparently he determined to follow their example.

King Idris is the only one who can give a real excuse. He is 66. His first wife has borne him no children. He holds that as a monarch he must beget an heir.

Men Over 40 See Doctors

NEW YORK —UP— President Eisenhower's heart attack has sent men over 40 to their doctors' offices in numbers described by one specialist as "fantastic," it was learned Thursday.

The New York Heart Association said its telephone information service has received three times its usual number of calls each day since the President was stricken. Most callers want to know what to do about their own or a relative's real or imagined symptoms, the association said.

A check of three eminent heart doctors showed two had "very noticeable increases" in the number of persons asking for examinations. The third said that in the few days since the President's attack he has booked appointments which will keep him busy for weeks. He said there was as yet no let-up in the number of requests.

Virtually every applicant for a heart check is a man over 40, the three doctors said. That was the danger age and sex referred to by the Boston heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, called to Mr. Eisenhower's bedside.

One individual who has long worked for public education on the problems of heart disease expressed the belief that the President's illness, tragic though it is, may have done great good in awakening people to the seriousness of the problem.

"It's scared some people into finding out about themselves," he said, "and the fact that the newspapers are full of so much information about what heart disease is and what can be done about it may have long-range benefits for everyone."

Quotes In The News

By UNITED PRESS

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) expressing hope President Eisenhower will be able to run for a second term:

"Duty is the shiny, iridescent word the President learned at West Point. The President knows and will know where his duty lies."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) on the number of candidates who will seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1956:

"We're loaded. Our convention in Chicago next summer will be a real donnybrook."

Dr. Paul Dudley White, nationally known heart specialist, who treated President Eisenhower, after receiving a report on the latest cardiogram of the President:

"He's not out of the woods yet, but he's coming along nicely. The cardiogram was a favorable one and he seems to be making good progress toward recovery."

Spokesman for Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson on visit by Adlai Stevenson to Johnson's ranch:

"Anyone is wrong who attempts to read any high level political significance into the meeting. It simly isn't there. It is purely social."

Former New York football Giants Coach Steve Owen, now Baylor University assistant, after scouting Maryland - UCLA game in preparation for Baylor's date with nation's top-ranked football team this weekend:

"A fine ball club, . .the only time I saw UCLA in Maryland territory was when trey went into the field house at the half."

Leon Keyserling, former chief economic adviser to President Truman, on the nation's economy:

"We have doubled our national income within the last 15 years and we will double it again during the next 25 years, regardless of whether the Republicans or Democrats are in power."

Dr. Sanford Marcus of San Francisco after being reunited with his baby which was kidnaped Sept. 19:

"The baby's fine and my wife is fine — so now we're going home and live happily ever after."

Smith Griswold, director of the Los Angeles county air pollution control district, when asked by a state assembly committee if he expected smog conditions to get worse before improving:

"That is about the easiest prediction ever made. The worst smog attacks of this year are probably still to come."

A. J. Gock, leading California Republican, on talk of GOP presidential candidates other than President Eisenhower:

"Any talk among Republicans of candidacies or succession to the presidency is presumptuous and in very poor taste."

The longer potatoes are stored, the less mealy and the soggier they become.

Work, Sleep, Play In Comfort

Without Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, headache, or muscular aches and pains may come on with over-exertion, emotional upsets or day to day stress and strain. And folks who eat and drink unwisely sometimes suffer mild bladder irritation ...with that restless, uncomfortable feeling.

If you are miserable and worn out because of these discomforts, Doan's Pills often help by their pain relieving action, by their soothing effect to ease bladder irritation, and by their mild diuretic action through the kidneys —tending to increase the output of the 15 miles of kidney tubes.

So if nagging backache makes you feel tired-out, miserable...with restless, sleepless nights...don't wait...try Doan's Pills... get Doan's more happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. Get Doan's Pills today!

Eisenhower Cooperative Patient In Early Stages

By WARREN DUFFEE

DENVER —UP— Backstairs at the temporary White House:

President Eisenhower is a cooperative patient during his hospitalization because of a heart attack, although the close confinement undoubtedly will become more chafing as the days wear on and he begins to feel better.

The chief executive picked up noticeably in spirits when he was allowed to eat substantial food on the third day of the hospitalization.

The meals are not heavy and the portions are modest. But the President usually eats everything the Fitzsimons Army hospital dietician gives him.

Since he has been allowed to eat, breakfast usually includes oatmeal, fruit juice, toast, milk and a soft-boiled egg.

For lunch and supper, there usually is a small portion of meat with vegetables, fruit, milk and perhaps a little soup.

Although he probably would like more, the President hasn't complained.

Mr. Eisenhower's doctors aren't requiring him to wear one of those long, one-piece hospital gowns that men hate.

He wears his own pajamas.

The President so far hasn't been allowed to do any reading, even of the light, recreational type. Nor does he have a radio in his eighth-floor room at the Fitzsimons.

The doctors want complete quiet, with any possible distraction eliminated in the interest of total rest.

The tremendous influx of television and radio equipment into the cramped White House press headquarters at Lowry Air Force Base after the President's attack has badly strained the building's power system.

The makeshift press room is in a converted hallway, with big windows which normally allow plenty of light.

But the overburdened power system picked a grey, gloomy day to break down.

Newsmen were almost literally in the dark for 15 minutes, while Air Force electricians located the overloaded circuit and replaced fuses.

Besides a huge crowd of American reporters, photographers, radio and television men covering the President's illness, three foreign countries also are represented.

The press corps includes representatives of two London papers, one Canadian paper, a French news agency and one French newspaper.

So far, however, there is no sign of Tass, the Russian news agency, which covers the White House in Washington regularly.

Sun's Power To Be Used

TOLEDO, Ohio — UP— The use of the sun's energy for heat and conversion to electric power can be expected within the next 20 years, a leading science educator believes.

Dr. George Granger Brown, dean of the college of engineering at the University of Michigan, told nearly 300 industrialists and scientists attending the opening of the new Owens-Illinois technical center that the practical use of solar energy in this country will be realized long before there is a critical shortage of coal, oil and gas.

"This energy is free for the taking, but the taking is extremely difficult," said the former director of the Atomic Energy Commission's engineering division.

Several large solar furnaces operating in the United States and abroad have already attained temperatures above 7,000 degrees Fahrenheit, Dr. Brown said.

Following brief ceremonies Tuesday dedicating the glass industry's most advanced research center, O-I scientists showed a new process for making glass jars 20 per cent lighter and just as strong, and a new low-temperature solder glass for sealing color television picture tubes. Both were being shown publicly for the first time.

Dope Hearings To Open Oct. 12

WASHINGTON —UP— The Senate narcotics subcommittee, revising its hearing schedule, announced it will open hearings in Austin Oct. 12, with Rep. Homer Thornberry (D-Tex.), former U.S. District Attorney Charles Herring, and Col. Homer Garrison, state public safety director, as first witnesses.

The subcommittee will hold hearings in San Antonio, Oct. 13-14, Houston 17-18; Dallas 19-20 and Fort Worth Oct. 21.

The subcommittee will hold hearings in California the last week of October and complete its work later in the year in New Orleans, Chicago, Detroit, and Cleveland.

The New Orleans hearings will be held sometime early in November.

West Big 3 In Accord

NEW YORK —UP— The western Big Three Wednesday announced "complete accord" in their discussions preparing for the Geneva foreign ministers' conference.

The British, U.S. and French communique on the two-day meeting of foreign ministers here announced they would continue consultations with NATO members and will meet in Paris with other council prior to the opening of the Geneva meeting Oct. 27.

Authoritative sources said the Big Three ministers and West German foreign minister Heinrich von Brentano were in full agreement on all aspects of their plans envisioning a reunified Germany within NATO and linked to a European security pact.

Brentano offered "various" suggestions at Wednesday's two-hour meeting and an informed source said all were acceptable to the Big Three.

No Relation

MINNEAPOLIS —UP— The Six Fat Dutchman, and old-time orchestra in southern Minnesota, is composed of 10 members, all skinny. One old-timer said he doesn't know where the orchestra got its name in the first place because it started out with seven members.

Optimists' Tree Sale Plan Set

The Pampa Optimist Club has already made plans to sell Christmas trees in Pampa this year. The club has ordered some of two thousand trees scheduled to arrive in Pampa Dec. 1. The trees range from three to 12 feet in height.

The trees have been ordered from British Columbia to insure Pampans of best Douglas Fir trees on the market. They are to be cut from virgin timber, according to tree chairmen Oren James and Newt Secrest.

The plans for the advance sales of the trees will be discussed on Staff Breakfast over radio KPDN Friday morning by Joe Tooley, Johnny Campbell and Secrest.

A group of boys, numbering 60 to 70, will be canvasing the city starting Saturday morning selling cards for $1 that will be worth $1.25 on a tree. Only one card however will be taken on a single tree.

Pampa's Optimist club with the cooperation of Pampa's merchants has given the boys of the city a summer recreation program for the past two years and the winter boxing program will continue again this winter. All proceeds from the Christmas trees will be used for the "Boys Work Program" of the club.

The lot has not been definitely located but will be in the city, convenient to all.

Though often denounced for destroying birds, the skunk aids man by eating vast hordes of cutworms, potato beetles, white grubs and other crop ravagers.

"Okay, Daniel Boone, you can explore the forest between here and the corner—but be back at the settlement by five sharp!"

Mobeetie Personals

By MRS. O. G. BECK
Pampa News Correspondent

Mobeetie Hornets scored a victory over the Miami Warriors last Friday night, on the local gridiron in their first conference game of the season. Friday night, they will go to Booker to compete in another conference game.

Dr. J. Edmond Kirby, district superintendent of the Pampa District of North West Texas conference, will be in the pulpit of the First Methodist Church, Sunday evening at 7:30. After bringing the evening message he will hold the first quarterly conference for that church.

People of the Mobeetie community wish to extend sincere sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Scribner in the loss of her mother, Mrs. J. J. Simpson, Plainview. Mrs. Simpson passed away Friday morning in the Plainview hospital. Services were held Monday morning at 11:00 o'clock in the First Baptist Church in Plainview.

We would like to welcome to Mobeetie, neveral new families. Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd, Sr. and son Bill, Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd, Jr., and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Kennedy, all with the Boyd Drilling Co., and Mr. and Mrs. 'Dub' Houching and family of Dalhart. Mr. Houching is a district supervisor for the F.H.A.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Burch, C. W. and daughters of Tucumcari, New Mexico, were guests last week end in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Wright. They also visited her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Hooker and Jimmy.

Mr and Mrs. A. A. Burch, C W. Burch and Glynnda Beck, were visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sackett and family, of Pampa, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Willard of Farwell, were weekend guests in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Totty. They, with Mr. and Mrs. Totty, attended Sunday Morning Worship at the First Methodist Church in Mobeetie.

Harold Hooker, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Hooker and a senior student at W.T.S.C. in Canyon, spent the week end in his home in Mobeetie.

Frank Lee was a Sunday dinner guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. French Arrington of Canadian.

Mrs. Guy Holiday was released from the Wheeler Hospital Tuesday morning, after being confined there for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Keahey, Janet and David, attended the Fair in Amarillo, Friday.

Lee and Vicki Corse of Sunray spent last week visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Corse and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Beck.

Mr. and Mrs. Foy Farmer attended the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Beck and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coward and family spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Tom A. Beck and Stanley of Amarillo. They attended the Ice Follies and Tri - State Fair, while there.

Jimmy Dale Barton, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barton, entered the Wheeler Hospital, Friday, for medical treatment.

Ralph Sims left Sunday for Roswell, N.M., where he has been transferred from the Southwestern Public Service at Jowett, to a company plant in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Beck and Paula of Miami visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Beck Friday night and attended the football game between the Hornets and the Miami Warriors.

Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Corse attended the Tri-State Fair and Ice Follies in Amarillo Friday.

Mrs. Mayme Patterson of Amarillo and her sons, Harold Gatlin of Pampa and Gary Gatlin, who is in the U.S. Air Force, were guests last week end in the home of her mother, Mrs. Susan Gary.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Reynolds of Amarillo, formerly of Mobeetie, are the proud parents of a baby daughter born recently. The little lady has two big brothers and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Reynolds of Mobeetie.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Russell of Miami, visited Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Beck, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crump of Pampa and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Brown and girls also of Pampa, were Sunday visitors in Mobeetie and Wheeler.

Marion Reed, who recently received a naval discharge, went to Amarillo Monday, to go to work in the Southwestern Public Service plant in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Matthews and Mrs. LaVerne Scribner attended the funeral of Mrs. J. J. Simpson, Plainview, mother of Mrs. J. H. Scribner, principal of Mobeetie High School. Mrs. Simpaon passed away Friday morning in the Plainview Hospital. Services were held Monday morning at 11:00 o'clock in the First Baptist Church, Plainview.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Greenhoune met Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Mixon, Dumas, in Amarillo Friday and enjoyed the fair and Ice Follies together.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hathaway and son Dwight were shoppers in Amarillo Friday and attended the Tri-State Fair.

Mrs. Geoge B. Dunn and children, Bo and Tanya, visited last week end in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Corse, Sunray.

Rotary Hears Mrs. Salmon

The Pampa Rotary club yesterday heard Mrs. R. L. Salmon relate her experiences while in Europe as a teacher of the children of military personnel. Most of her time was spent in France and Germany but many trips afforded an opportunity to view the sights of every country this side of the Iron Curtain except Yugoslavia.

Mrs. Salmon also showed colored slides of some of the more famous places she visited.

Three new members were inducted into the club after being introduced by Travis Lively. The new members are J. B. "Woody" Woodington, Bert Arney and Dr. Walter Bertinot.

Guests for the day were Ed Morris, Leon Cuzion, John Clinton, Al Metz, Ott Shewmaker, George Culpepper, Rev. Bob Stroble and Frank Culberson.

Dallas Seeks New Airline

DALLAS —UP— The city of Dallas filed its final brief with the Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday in its efforts to obtain additional airline service to the northeast.

Currently, the only major airline service from the southwest to northeastern cities, such as Washington, New York and Pittsburgh, is by American Airlines.

At the same time, Braniff Airways filed application with the CAB for a route extension that would provide service from Dallas to northeastern points.

Oral arguments in the case are scheduled before the five-man CAB Oct. 12 in Washington.

The city of Dallas and the Dallas Chamber of Commerce said in the final brief that American Airlines held the No. 1 monopoly in the nation's air transportation system in Dallas-Washington-New York traffic.

The brief said Dallas sought competitive air service with Washington, New York, Chattanooga, and Pittsburgh.

Straw for livestock feeding should be taken from the field as soon as possible after combining.

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD — UP — Milton Berle, Mr. Television himself, left a gap in the New York scene when he moved his show to Hollywood this week to start his eighth TV season as another "new Berle."

Uncle Miltie is one of the few TV stars who has been around long enough to reminisce about the "good old days" eight years ago when he put on a show with a $12,000 budget for a handful of viewers.

Now his budget is eight times that, and the one-time brash pusher of seltzer bottles is a subdued 47-year-old who has settled down to "a country life" in the California sun. He is producing, directing and appearing on 13 color shows from NBC here, and he speaks loftily of contributing to "the progress of television."

"I changed my format last year, and now I've changed again to a variety show," explained the comedian as he relaxed, or tried to, after his strenuous hour program.

"As I'm going on every third week, you can't use continued stock characters or situations.

"I've always had the urge," he continued, waving his cigar. "To further the progress of television, to try to create something for the future."

Down the years Berle has withstood an onslaught by the critics. He's been accused of borrowing his material and hogging the show. But his philosophy remains: "I do the best I can — you can't please all of the people all of the time."

"Of course the critics have bothered me," he said. "We all are human and sensitive. I've been the butt of these things for years. But this is my 42nd year in show business."

Why has he lasted? Berle's solution is that "TV consists of one thing, a personality, and if the audience likes the personality, the show is sustained.

Mr. TV deserted New York because "I like it here, and, let's face it, I'm getting old. I want to slow down. I want more time for a social life."

Berle is happily situated in a rented home among the palm trees of Beverly Hills and he insists he hasn't shed one tear for Sardi's or Lindy's in New York.

"I will not miss any place that my wife, Ruth, isn't in," he said gallantly. "I should have met her 25 years ago, but, then, she would have been only eight."

Navigable

Virginia's York River is navigable from its mouth to its source, being formed by the conjunction of the Mattapoin and Pamunkey rivers.

Radical New Train Designs Planned By U.S. Railroads

By ALFRED LEECH

CHICAGO —UP— American railroads are banking on radical new train designs — lighter, faster, more comfortable coaches and pullmans — to lift their money-losing passenger services out of the red.

They hope to lure travelers from airlines, bus lines and private cars with inovations in speed and luxury. At the same time, the new trains would carry more passengers at less operating cost and help wipe out the $700 million a year deficit now plaguing the passenger lines.

In a year or two your train ride may be in a high, double-deck coach with seating area "upstairs" and lavatories and baggage compartments "downstairs."

Or, depending on which railroad you take, it may be in a low-slung car where you step down into the seating area as if entering a sunken living room.

Some in Service

Some of the new trains already are in service. The more revolutionary ones are still in the testing stage and will not board their first paying passengers until 1956 or later.

Chicagoans got a look at one of the most unusual new trains at the recent General Motors Powerama exhibition. It is GM's "Aerotrain," which the New York Central plans to put in service for the first time on its Chicago-Detroit run next spring.

The cars are an adaptation of a 40-passenger bus GM manufacturers for intercity bus routes. The train car is 18 inches wider than the bus, however, providing wider seats and greater aisle space. Ten cars are to be pulled by a specially designed single-unit diesel locomotive.

So light is the aluminum-bodied Aerotrain, according to GM, it can haul 400 passengers from Chicago to New York for about $125 worth of fuel at a top speed of 102 miles per hour.

The lightweight "Talgo" train that has been used in Spain for six years will be introduced to Americans in December as the "Jet Rocket" on the Chicago-Peoria run of the Rock Island Railroad. American Car & Foundary Co. describes it as a modernized, more flexible version of the Spanish Talgo.

Each car is made up of three jointed units which allow the train to bend more readily. This, along with a lower center of gravity, reduces sidesway and permits greater speed rounding curves. The Talgo car weighs only half as much as a standard coach.

No Center Sill

Another train of low center of gravity is being built by the Budd Co. of Philadelphia for the Pennsylvania Railroad. Like the Talgo, it employs the tubular principle of construction. The heavy center sill running the length of an ordinary car is dispensed with, and the walls, floor and roof provide the firmness for the car.

The Budd train, which the Pennsylvania will put into operation early next year, will consist of seven coaches seating 574 passengers, plus a separate car for lighting, heating and air conditioning units. The floor of the train is only 22 inches above the rails, compared with 51 inches on ordinary trains.

Budd also is building a self-propelled coach car called the "Hot Rod" for the New Haven Railroad. Each of the six cars in the train is equipped with two 300-horsepower diesel engines.

Cattle sheep and goats have an extra stomach that predigests rough feeds.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO

Pampa News Women's Editor

SINCE THIS IS FOOD DAY, or recipe day, I think I'll call this column a "ragout," or a little bit of everything. Only it's not going to be about food, very much, although I may add one or two short recipes. There are several things I'd like to tell you about and a few things of which to remind you.

GIRL SCOUTS will be my first topic. I come in contact with quite a few GS leaders as well as making frequent visits to the Girl Scout office to see Marian Osborn and Fern Dawson. This is the time of the year when new troops are being organized and old are being reorganizd. Fern and Marian have been working hard and announce that there have been 14 new troops of about 205 girls organized in the past two weeks. This makes an approximate total of 90 troops of about 900 girls in Pampa and the surrounding area. Quite an accomplishment!

I wonder how many of you realized the scope of Girl Scouting before reading those figures. I know I didn't. To go along with offering the Scouting program to that many girls, there is a need for leaders. Fern and Marian say the response has been good, but they still need more. Anyone who has worked as a leader can tell you that it is rewarding, although it does involve time and effort. It's an intangible reward, which we too often fail to realize, in these materialistic times, is the greatest of all rewards — the feeling of accomplishment, of having contributed something worthwhile to our young girls.

So, why not call up the Girl Scout office and volunteer to take a troop or to help with a troop. As my husband once said about helping in work with young people: "No one HAS the time — they FIND the time."

DON'T FORGET the bridge tournament the Ladies Golf Association is sponsoring Friday. It will be a lot of fun, and you'll be helping to redecorate the powder room of the Country Club. It's $1 per person, which is little to pay for a day's good entertainment. There will be a luncheon at noon, but, I believe, noon today was the deadline for reservations for that.

Here are the recipes I promised. Soup for breakfast is fast becoming a favorite. It's both quick - to - fix and satisfying, too. Try this soup - ceral combination in the morning. Have cooked white rice in the refrigerator in a covered container. Add 1½ cups cooked rice to 1 can condensed tomato soup and 1 ½ cans water. Mix and heat until very hot. Serve in soup or cereal bowls with a crunchy topping of crumbled crisp-cooked bacon. This is a hearty, healthy way to start your day.

Add more milk to children's diets by cooking rice in milk and serving it as a breadfast cereal or as a dessert.

Cook 1 cup uncooked white rice in 4 cups of milk over a low heat for 45 minutes or until the rice is tender and most of the milk is absorbed. Keep the rice and milk, covered and stir occasionally. Sweeten to taste if desired. Serve with additional milk or cream or topped with fresh, frozen, canned or dried cooked fruit.

Make a company fancy desert by folding whipped cream into the sweetened rice cooked in milk, then pressing the mixture into a ring mold or fancy mold. Serve with sundae sauces or fruits

Shamrock Shower Honors Bride-Elect

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Miss LaRue Strickland, bride - elect of Lt. Carl D. Wall, was honored at a tea and miscellaneous shower recently in the home of Mrs. Bit Mayfield. Co - hostesses with Mrs. Mayfield were Mmes. Howard Sherwood, Denton Moore, Claude Pillers, Clayton Sanders, Dean Howard; Misses Pat Sanders and Pat Walraven.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Mayfield, the honoree and her mother, Mrs. John Strickland, and Mrs. Carl D. Wall, mother of Lt. Wall.

Mrs. Dean Howard presided at the guest register.

Yellow and brown were emphasized in decorations. The tea table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of artichoke blossoms, flanked with yellow tapers in crystal candelabra.

Miss Sanders poured and Miss Walraven assisted at the table. Mrs. Pillers and Mrs. Sanders presided in the gift room. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Sherwood assisted with the serving.

Piano selections were played by Miss Linda Skidmore and Miss Connie Lewis.

Baby may not talk until he's two or even three. Don't be upset about it. He may not have found anything worth while to say. Seriously, late talkers are a bright as early talkers and some are brighter.

Perryton Woman Feted At Shower

PERRYTON — (Special) — A pink and blue shower was held in the home of Mrs. Chris Bechthold recently, in honor of Mrs. Bechthold.

Hostesses were Mmes. Archie Fronk, Freddie C. Pshigoda and Bechthold. Games were played.

Plate favors were miniature diapers, used as mint cups and safety pin storks.

Approximately 24 guests were present.

Birthday Party Given For Perryton Couple

PERRYTON — (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Correl, 506 S. Colgate, were hosts for a covered dish dinner recently, honoring Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Whippo on their birthday anniversaries.

The dinner table was centered with an arrangement of pyracantha and red cannas.

Those present were Messrs. and Mmes. E. R. Thurman, Archie Correll, Jean Lou and Susan, W. E. McMillen, A. K. Wilson, Spencer Whippo and Ruth; and Alan Benny Rupprecht.

If Baby has a persistent rash problem that can't be solved, start at the bottom. Sun the mattress thoroughly, wash and boil the waterproof sheet or get a new one, boil the sheets and pads. Then try for a solution with the ointments and powders, too.

Bolivia has no seaport, being completely landlocked.

Perryton Garden Club Holds Family Picnic

PERRYTON — (Special) — Members of the Red Bud Garden Club and their families held a picnic recently in the City Park.

Mrs. Ivo Nelson and Mrs. E. H. Fike were hostesses.

Those present were Mmes. Donald Ellis, Phil Daley, Garland Daley, Gene Cudd, Byron Tevis; Messrs. and Mmes. Bruce Baumann, Loyd Morgan, Weldon Wright, Tip Collingsworth, and Ivo Nelson; Smith and Kenneth Ellis, Jim Daley, Sherron and Danny Baumann, Philip and Neal Morgan, Mike and Don Cudd, Terry Wright, Billy Brownlee, Denzel and Tevis, Dave and Laura Nelson.

Miss Amelia Anthony of Girlstown, near Whiteface, will be honored with a coffee from 9 to 10 a.m. Friday in the home of Mrs. W. A. Spoonemore, 617 N. Gray. Co - hostesses with Mrs. Spoonemore will be Mmes. Rufe Jordan, W. A. York, Julian Key, H. H. Boynton, Jess Clay and Roy Dawson.

All friends of Miss Anthony and anyone interested in meeting her are invited to attend.

Oh, well, it had to happen. There are now Davy Crockett diapers, in addition to p[illegible]otted ones, ones with animals, [illegible]e with elephants or donkeys for political years). So goes fashion for the youngest.

Pampa B&PW Club Has Fall Round-Up

The Pampa Business and Professional Women's Club held a "fall round-up" party Tuesday evening in the City Club Room. Mrs. Lorene Lock was hostess, assisted by Mrs. Grant Anderson and her social committee.

Each member was dressed in a costume, western, pioneer or Southern. A chuck-wagon dinner including barbecues and baked beans was served. The serving table was covered with a checked cloth and centered with a pumpkin encircled by gilded grain kernels.

Special guest was Miss Amelia Anthony of Girlstown, near Whiteface, who spoke on the improvements at Girlstown.

During the short business session, led by Mrs. Hattie Holt, president, plans were made for the district meeting to be held in Pampa next week. Mrs. D. C. Ash, chosen "Business Woman of the Week" in observance of National Business Women's Week, was introduced. New yearbooks were distributed by Mrs. Gladys Jaynes.

Attending were Mmes. Mable E. Winter, Lola Killen, Emmett Gee, Eli Etheredge, Jewell Howell, Lorene Locke, Laura Bell Cornelius, Grant Anderson, Hattie Holt, D. C. Ash, Faye Trader, J. L. Mulanax, Nelda Monday, Ruby Earhart, Bernice Hollars, Frank Lard, Marguriete Nash, W. A. York, Hazel Jay, Dovie Breeze, May Etta Powers, Lillie Mae Fowler, G.E. Tinnen, H. F. County HD Council Re-Elects Officers

The Gray County Home Demonstration Council met recently in the office of Miss Helen Dunlap, county HD agent.

Officers re-elected for another year were Mrs. Walter Noel, chairman; Mrs. J. L. Carlton, vice-chairman; Mrs. John Brandon, treasurer; and Mrs. A. A. McElrath, secretary.

During the business session, plan were discussed for a Christmas party. Club reports were given, and Mrs. Ernest McKnight read the financial report of the THDA. Miss Dunlap asked that all clubs have annual reports in for the October meeting and suggested that all club committees attend the meeting. It was also announced that the exhibit chairman from each club is to send her report to Mrs. Charles Warminski, Route 2, White Deer.

Reporters' books from each club are to be brought to the November Council meeting to be judged. The awards will be made at the Christmas Party.

Friendship Class Has "High Tea"

A "high tea" was held recently in the parlor of the First Methodist Church by members of the Friendship Class, in honor of the teaching staff and retiring officers. The newly-elected officers were introduced.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. H. P. Dosier. Roy Johnson sang "Love Is A Many Splendored Thing" by Fain; "My Own True Love" by Steiner; and "Blue Star" by Victor Young. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. C. S. Boston, assisted by Rev. W. W. Adcock, conducted a brief memorial service in honor of two deceased members, Mrs. Edwin Vicars and Mrs. Horace McBee.

Mrs. W. C. Hutchinson gave a brief account of the history of the class. Gifts were presented to the teachers and other members of the executive board.

Teachers for the coming year are Mmes. Ben Ogden, Walter Purviance and W. C. Hutchinson. New officers are Mrs. C. S. Boston, president; Mrs. W. L. Rowntree, first vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Jarvis, second vice-president; Mrs. J. A. Knox, secretary; Mrs. Clifford Ryan, assistant secretary; and Mrs. J. Herman Jones, treasurer.

Hostesses for the tea were Mmes. Ruth Spearman, Fanny Skaggs, Frank Yeaky, H. P. Dosier and Wayne Exley. Mrs. Boston presided at the lace-covered table. Refreshments of tea, sandwiches and cakes were served.

Attending, other than those already mentioned, were Mmes. Joe Dunham, S. C. Evans, J. W. Markee, Guy Farrington, C. F. Kitto, W. W. Adcock, Joe Shelton, Henry Butler, Luther Pierson, Irvin Cole, C. O. Drew, Mamie Suttle and W. R. Campbell. Mrs. R. K. Elkins of Dallas was a guest.

GRAPE AND PEAR JAM on a hot homemade roll goes well with Rochester, Vt., Inn's special baked beans.

COOK'S NOOK

Vermont Inn Bakes Beans With Maple Syrup Flavor

By GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Food and Markets Editor

LEONTA QUINN, Vermont born, helps her husband run the Rochester Inn. Ie's in Rochester, Vermont, on the White River near the Green Mountain National Forest, on Route 100 off Route 4 from Rutland. Tom, her tall Vermonter husband says her beans baked with maple syrup are the best in the world. Her 21 - year - old son, David, now in the Navy, writes from the Antarctic that he dreams of her grape and pear jam. Her two other sons, 10 and 16, as well as the guest at this country inn, voted her special jam their pin - up recipe of the year.

Mrs. Quinn met her husband when she was working in a restaurant, and he, a student at the University of Vermont, worked in the same place at night to help finance his education.

VERMONT BAKED BEANS
(LEONTA QUINN STYLE)

One quart yellow eye beans — or soldier beans, 1 pound lean salt pork, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ⅛ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup Vermont maple syrup, 1 medium onion studded with two whole cloves.

Soak beans overnight, drain and parboil in water to cover until skins will curl up when blown on. Put onion in bottom of bean pot 3-quart size. Fill with drained, parboiled beans. Make several slits in salt pork and lay on top of beans with the rind side up. Combine other ingredients with enough water to cover beans. Bake covered at 300 to 325 degrees F. for about 8 hours.

Her grape and pear jam is made of ripe grapes and ripe pears and bottled liquid fruit pectin. She is writing down her recipe for us and we will run in next week.

Stengel's Gamble On Southpaw Works In Opener, 6-5

Yankee Sluggers

JOE COLLINS

ELSTON HOWARD

By LEO H. PETERSEN

NEW YORK —UP— Cocky Casey Stengel, having gambled and won with his first southpaw starter, nominated a second one, icy-nerved Tommy Byrne, to face the Brooklyn Dodgers Thursday and put the New York Yankees two games up in the 1955 World Series.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston countered with right-hander Billy Loes, who has proven Brooklyn's most consistent pitcher during World Series competition against the Yankees.

Although no left-handed pitcher had gone the route against the Dodgers and won during the regular National League season, Stengel took a chance with left-hander Whitey Ford in the opener Wednesday and Ford was credited with the Yankees' 6-5 victory, although right-hander Bob Grim mopped up in the ninth ininng.

Not Pressing Luck

Stengel doesn't feel he is pressing his luck with the left-handed Byrne Thursday and neither do the odds-makers, who have installed the Yankees 6-5 favorites for this contest and 2-1 favorites to win their sixth world championship in seven seasons.

Byrne, at 35, has been "around the block," as the ballplayers say. He has pitched for the Chicago White Sox, Washington Senators and St. Louis Browns as well as for the Yankees and he isn't the kind who gets rattled in the clutch.

Many observers believed that the unpredictable Loes, who posted only one victory after the All-Star game this year, could hold the key to the Dodgers' Series chances. If he stops the Yankees Thursday, the Dodgers will square the Series at one game and be in a strong position when the Series shifts to Ebbets Field for three games starting Friday. Loes had a 10-4 record during the season.

Nothing to Dampen Spirits

Stengel, who was the picture of confidence before the series started, saw nothing to dampen his spirits Wednesday although he admitted he would like to see Mickey Mantle back in the lineup.

Mantle, hobbled by a pulled hamstring muscle in his right thigh, sat out Wednesday's game and wasn't very hopeful about seeing action in any of the future frays.

"I felt worse today than I did yesterday," he said glumly, after Wednesday's contest, "I guess I tried to run too fast a little too quickly."

The Yankees didn't miss Mantle's bat too much in the opening game of the Series as first baseman Joe Collins hammered two homers to drive in three runs and left fielder Elston Howard, first Negro ever to win a job with the Yankees, knocked in two runs with another homer.

Duke Snider and Carl Furillo each homered for Brooklyn, but unfortunately from the Dodgers' viewpoint, both blows came with the bases empty.

Newcombe Knocked from Mound

Big Don Newcombe, the Dodgers' 20-game winner, was no great shakes as the Yankees raked him for eight of their nine hits and shelled him from the mound after 5 2-3 innings Wednesday.

Jackie Robinson, who may be putting in his last season with Brooklyn, supplied the most electrifying play of the game when he stole home in the eighth inning as Yankee catcher Yogi Berra angrily protested plate Umpire Bill Summers' "safe" decision and looked for a brief moment like he might even climb all over the veteran arbiter.

Billy Martin, an old Dodger plague — he tied a Series' record against them with a total of 12 hits in 1953—took right up where he left off before entering service with a triple and a single.

Stengel and Alston indicated there would be no change in either lineup. The weather forecast was fair and cooler for the second game of the Series and the attendance Thursday was expected to approach Wednesday's paid total of 63,869.

Martin And Campanella Have Hot Feud Brewing

NEW YORK —UP— A red-hot feud was simmering Thursday between brash Billy Martin of the Yankees and normally easy-going Roy Campanella of the Dodgers in what threatens to erupt into the best World Series scrap since the Ducky Medwich-Marv Owen incident of 1934.

It started back in the 1953 Series and it flared anew Wednesday when "Billy-the-kid" tried to steal home in the sixth inning of the Yankees' 6-5 victory over the Dodgers.

As they arose from the pileup at the plate, the stocky Dodger catcher gave Martin an extra bump with his shoulder. The Yankee pepperpot immediately shoved Campanella back.

"I wasn't sore," Martin said later in the dressing room. "I just don't like being pushed around. I might have punched him on the nose if it wasn't the World Series."

Campanella, still smarting from some newspaper quotations attributed to Martin only a week ago, reacted just as angrily.

After revealing later that Martin had taunted him on the field with the crack "I didn't think you tagged guys at home plate," Campanella steamed:

"I missed him by about three inches. I should have tagged him on his big mouth."

The same two principals squared off two years ago when Martin tried to score from second base on a "suicide" run and wound up the final out in the fourth game of the '53 Series. An easy out at the plate, Martin didn't even try to slide but barged into Campanella like a fullback in an effort to knock the ball out of his hands.

Only a few days ago, Martin was watching a Dodger game on television and allegedly observed within earshot of newspapermen:

"I see Campanella is still tagging runners high. What's the matter, is he spike shy?"

Collins Wanted Three Homers In First Game

(Editor's Note: Joe Collins slammed a pair of homers and drove in three runs Wednesday to lead the Yankees to a 6-5 victory over the Dodgers in the first game of the World Series. Here he tells how it felt).

By JOE COLLINS
As Told to United Press

NEW YORK —UP— I was tickled to hit two, but frankly I was trying for three.

Believe me, I was really "going for the downs," as we players say, when I came up for the fourth time in the eighth. But all I could do was fly out to left field. I hit that ball pretty good, too.

Don Newcombe wasn't exactly a stranger to me. I hit against him in 1948 when he was with Montreal in the International League. I was in the same league and I remember I always had good luck against him. Not great, you understand, but good enough to keep me happy.

He's certainly not the fastest pitcher I've faced this year but he's fast enough. Reminds me a lot of Willard Nixon, the guy with the Red Sox who gave us all that trouble this year. Newcombe has good stuff; he's no soft touch in any league.

I don't think they pitched me the same way twice all day.

Newcombe kept the ball inside on me when I walked in the second inning. Then I hit a low fast ball for my first homer in the fourth, and in the sixth, the ball I hit into the bleachers was high and outside.

Give some of the credit to Mickey Mantle. I was using his bats. I picked up a couple of them a few days ago and I like them, so have decided to use them. You bet I'll keep using them for the rest of the Series.

I've hit two homers in one game twice before during the year, but naturally these two gave me more of a kick. As a matter of fact, I'd have to call this my best day in baseball—as far as thrills go, anyway.

Early Wynn of the Indians and Dick Donovan of the White Sox were the pitchers I hit two homers off in the same games earlier this year.

I certainly would have given a lot to have gotten that third one but you can't have everything, I guess.

Besides, maybe it's a good thing to save one of 'em for a little later.

Gauntt Leads Sooner Open

TULSA —UP— Defending titlist Jimmie Gauntt clung to a three-stroke lead in the Oklahoma Open here Thursday with only 18 holes separating him from another championship.

The Oklahoma City golfer fired a one-over-par 72 Wednesday which with his opening 68 gave him a two-day total of 140.

Four strokes behind and tied for third place were professional Roland Harper of Salina, Kan., and Charley Coe, 1949 National Amateur champion from Oklahoma City.

Rollie Selby of Henderson, Tex., and Joe Moresco, Memphis professional, were tied for fifth with 145.

The 54-hole meet winds up on the Southern Hills course here Thursday.

Ex-Sooner Heath Is Service Coach

By HARRY CULVER

FORT SILL, Okla. —UP— Being the coach of a national championship football team doesn't necessarily involve worrying about gate receipts, or alumni, or where next year's players are coming from.

Recruiting rules, practice limitations, eligibility of players or how to pay them enough to keep them—these things may worry some coaches, pro or amateur. But for coaches like Leon Heath, the one-time "mule train" for the Oklahoma Sooners and the Washington Redskins, such problems don't exist.

About the only thing Heath has to fret about, as a matter of fact, is how to win the next ball game. And the Army doesn't fire a man for losing, if it's only football.

Heath, 26, is the new coach of the Fort Sill Cannoneers, all-service champions last season. His lineup will include seven professional grid-iron veterans and several top collegiate stars, plus GI's with a yen to play just for the fun of it.

The Cannoneers, representing the 14,000 men based at the field artillery and guided missile center here, have won their last 15 games. Heath, an Oklahoma graduate of 1950, was assistant coach last season, under Lt. Fred Smith, and got the top job when Smith was transferred to Fort Riley, Kan., and later to Europe. Heath played three years for the Redskins between his college and service careers.

The Fort Sill team plays Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex., here Saturday. Other opponents will include Fort Ord, Calif., Fort Belvoir, Va., Bolling AFB, Washington, D. C., Fort Carson, Colo., and four teams in the Fourth Army Conference.

Heath, a second lieutenant in the field artillery, says the Cannoneers will stick as close as possible to the split-T formation he learned under Coach Bud Wilkinson at Oklahoma. Five recent Oklahoma graduates — all at Fort Sill after reserve officer training at the University — will be on Heath's squad. They are halfbacks Merrill Green, Billy Vessels and Buck McPhail, center Bert Clark and quarterback Jack Van Pool. All but Van Pool were on last year's team.

"Only in service football," Heath said, "will you see professional type players running from the Split-T formation. We run it as much as possible like Oklahoma, but we have several trap plays we run that are a variation."

Heath doesn't worry about recruiting, because the rules say only men stationed at Fort Sill can play on his team, and nobody—at least no football coach—tells the Army where its men will be stationed.

"We simply post notices on the bulletin board and ask men interested in football to get in touch with the special service officer," Heath said.

"We practice only after duty hours, about an hour and a half five days a week. It's a lot of fun for the players. We don't worry too much about fundamentals. We have so many experienced players you just can't teach them that way.

"Besides, this is the army. Things are different," Heath said.

Pitt Goes After OU String Saturday

By CARTER BRADLEY

NORMAN, Okla. —UP— Oklahoma puts her unbeaten record, which started 20 games and two years ago at Pittsburgh, on the line again Saturday against Pittsburgh at Norman.

The fourth-rated Sooners are given a two-touchdown handicap by the professional odds-makers. They haven't lost or tied a game since Pittsburgh lassoed them 7-7 in 1953.

Coach Bud Wilkinson, who has led his split-T touchdowners to their sixth and seventh Big Seven Conference championships since that 7-7 squeak, scoffed at the odds. He sees this Saturday's match as a test, mainly, of power vs. agility.

Sees Tougher Team

Compared with North Carolina, which Oklahoma overcame with some difficulty 13-6 last week, Wilkinson said Pittsburgh has "poise, power and much more experience." Wilkinson normally avoids comparisons, but he has indicated repeatedly he believes Pitt will give his lighter squad possibly its toughest competition of the regular season. Pitt steam-rolled California and Syracuse the past two weeks, coming from behind in both games.

Sooner fans, optimistic by habit after all these years, see Oklahoma as almost a sure-fire entry for the Orange Bowl if it slaps down Pitt. No Big Seven team is considered as strong, although Wilkinson already has hoisted storm warnings for the Nebraska game far off in November.

"If I had told you a week ago Nebraska was going to play Ohio State such a close game, you'd have thought I was crazy," Wilkinson said.

The Sooners, whose only notorious weakness has been their pass defense, have adopted an official attitude that it's the Pitt line-smashing power plays which worry them most. But from behind the canvas of the Oklahoma practice field here have come the clod-hopping sounds of a team attempting to build its aerial defenses.

Good Connecting

Corney Salvaterra, a Pitt quarterback, has hit 6 of 11 receivers for 106 yards and two touchdowns.

Nebraska goes against Kansas State, and Kansas journeys to Colorado as Big Seven competition begins to pick up this weekend. Other conference teams play intersectionally, with Iowa State at Illinois and Utah coming to Missouri.

Missouri Valley strong points will begin to show up this weekend as Wichita plays at Detroit on Friday night, Texas Tech comes to Stillwater, Okla., to meet Oklahoma A&M Saturday afternoon, and Houston goest to Texas A&M and Tulsa to Marquette on Saturday night.

Odds Favoring Yanks Increase

NEW YORK —UP— The New York Yankees were quoted as 6-5 favorites to win Thursday's second game of the World Series and 2-1 picks over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series.

The odds against the Yankees making it in four straight are 6-1.

Pee-Wees Host Borger Eleven Today

Coach Frank Craig's Pee - Wees kick - off their second game of the 1955 season today at 3:30 at Harvester Park against the Borger Junior High Poodles.

Craig, assisted by Don Hinton and Melvin Romine, coached the 7th and 8th graders to their first victory over Dumas (13-0) last week and are out to down the Borger squad today.

Coached Craig announced yesterday that he would have his first string center and quarterback out with injuries for today's game.

Terry Jo Haralson is out with an injured leg muscle and Lynn Boyd is sidelined until a chipped bone heals.

SWC Has Tough Slate This Week

By UNITED PRESS

The Texas Longhorns flew to Los Angeles Thursday to meet Southern California Friday night to lead off a strong intersectional slate for Southwest Conference teams topped off by the first loop game of the year this weekend.

The Steers, who evened their record by beating Tulane last weekend, left Austin by airliner at 7 a.m. Thursday.

All other games this week fall on Saturday with Southern Methodist meeting Georgia Tech at Atlanta, Baylor playing Maryland at Waco, Texas A&M meeting the University of Houston at College Station, Rice playing Clemson at Houston and TCU and Arkansas clashing in the first conference game at Fayetteville, Ark.

Delano Womack, who may play at fullback, and Ed Kelly have been named co-captains for the Longhorn's tilt with Southern California. Wednesday Coach Ed Price drilled the Steers on a defense against the dual single wing and T offenses of the Trojans.

The Baylor Bears, who come up against a Maryland team rated first in the nation, polished their offense Wednesday, particularly passing, as Coach George Sauer sought a quick-striking offense to throw at the Terps.

Halfback Del Shofner, slowed by ankle trouble, showed some improvement, but was held out of contact work again. He will play some Saturday, but if improvement is not rapid, Sauer indicated he would shift Weldon Holley from right half to left and start sophomore Bobby Pefers at right.

Coach Woody Woodard, apparently confident that his SMU Mustangs would recover from their fumbleitis loss to Notre Dame, said "they showed more fight Thursday than anytime this year" after Wednesday's workout. The Mustangs will be at full strength for the Tech Yellowjackets.

The Mustangs are the only conference team without a mark in the win column.

Coach Jack Mitchell got some good news when he learned that halfback Preston Carpenter is completely recovered from a leg injury and will be ready to play Saturday when the Arkansas Razorbacks host the TCU Frogs.

The defending champion Hogs, evidently stronger than expected in most quarters, and the aspiring Frogs, boasting one of the best lines in its history and a breakaway back in James Swink, are both undefeated in two games.

The Texas Aggies, who enlivened the conference race with a 28-0 rout of LSU last week, listened intently to Coach Bear Bryant yesterday when he told them that unless they played as well as they did against the Tigers they won't even be in the game Saturday night against the University of Houston.

Bryant said the Cougars are bigger, faster, have more depth and have a polished quarterback in Jimmy Dickey.

Jean Farras, speedy 220-pound junior right tackle, will probably start for the Rice Owls Saturday night in place of Eddie Rayburn who is sidelined with a broken nose.

Four Records Set Or Tied

NEW YORK —UP— Records set or tied thus far in the World Series between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers:

Most Series games won by one team — New York Yankees, 72 (added to own record).

Most games played at shortstop —Phil Rizzuto, New York Yankees, 46 (added to own record).

Most home runs hit in World Series by a National Leaguer — 6 (added to own record).

Tied record for hitting homer first time up in a World Series — Elston Howard, New York Yankees.

Wrestlers Stage Show After Match

Wrestling continued in the dressing rooms and showers after a hot and furious battle between Austeri and Martindale last Monday night at the Sportsmans Club Arena.

After one shower was torn loose from the wall and the referee put under another the Pampa Shrine Club boys got the two separated and with the aid of Gene Detton they got them signed up in a main event with no time limit scheduled for Monday Oct. 3. Detton will referee this match also.

The fans who missed the matches this week missed some good rough and tough wrestling. Austeri and Martindale were opponents in an Australian Tag Team Match and Martindale didn't like Austeri's illegal tactics while Austeri claimed Martindale was choking.

Tickets are on sale at the Modern Pharmacy for the rematch next week. All proceeds will go to the Pampa Shrine Club crippled children fund.

Harvesters, Tech Winless This Year

The Fighting Harvesters and Ft. Worth Tech, both teams previously have had to play in the mud, are scheduled to fight it out at Harvester Park Friday night.

Tech has played all of their first three starts this season on muddy fields while the Green and Golders have had only one decently dry field for their two games.

Kilgore handled Ft. Worth Tech pretty easy according to scouting reports when they handed them a 28-0 defeat in the mud for the first game of the season three weeks ago at Ft. Worth.

Crozier Tech edged them out 7-6 again in the mud, but reports from scouts indicate that the Ft. Worth Bulldogs should have taken that except for some bad breaks.

Then last week Ft. Worth Tech journeyed to the Panhandle to play once more on a muddy field. They took on the Borger Bulldogs last Friday and came out on the short end of a 33-13 score.

Coach Lockett stated last night that the game this week will be the first game either team has played on a really dry field if it is dry. He further emphasized that "I hope we can see our boys on a dry field this week so we will know what they can do."

"This team will possibly be the only team the Harvesters will outweigh all season." Lockett said as he pointed out that their heaviest man weighs only 195.

Predictions are that the Harvesters and the Bulldogs will both be out for their first win this week since Tech has a 0-3 record and the Green and Golders stand at 0—1—1.

Get Things Done

There are two ways to get things done. One is through the use of force, coercion and threats. The other is to offer incentives and high hopes. A good example of these diametrical opposites is found in oil production in this country as contrasted with Russia.

Searching for oil is a long-shot proposition. The great majority of wells drilled in new territory turn out dry and worthless. One Texas oilman has actually sunk 196 dry holes in a row. But he's still working and hoping. For, if the dream of a big strike is realized, he'll be able to reap a good profit in return for the time and money and labor he expended, and the risks he freely took.

In Russia, according to a Soviet geologist who escaped to this country, it's a criminal offense to fail to strike oil. Under Soviet law, a geologist who brings in a dry hole can be, and sometimes is, packed off to forced labor in Siberia.

How do these two systems of getting results work out, compartively speaking? Here's the answer: American oil men produce close to 6,500,000 barrels of crude oil daily to Russia's 1,000,000 barrels. Putting it another way, we produce 46.3 per cent of the world's oil, while Russia together with all her satellites produces only 11.5 per cent.

You can make a man work by putting a gun in his back, but you'll always get minimum results. Prison labor is less productive than free labor. And that is why an economic system based on free enterprise — on getting results by voluntary action spurred by inducements — is always far more productive than a system based on the power of government to order men and women about.

Chain The Monsters

Politics is a dirty, dangerous game. The dirt and the danger actually mean that every day in every way we need better and better men for the game, knowing that the game will grind them down. Things are bad enough in the country now, but they would turn worse overnight if we ceased to send out good men, and became cynically willing to settle for men of lower morality, and mentality.

Ours is a continuous, uphill, seemingly hopeless fight to get decent limited government for our country. America deserves it. This nation was established as a republic, but it is presently inflicted with the cursed combination of excess democracy and surplus capitalism. The fashion at the moment is to use milder terms—Big Government and Big Business — but let's not mince any words.

Our excess of democracy — snob appeal to the mob — has hurt all good men in the political game. But the hurt, the danger, the dirt, must not drive good men out of the game, leaving the country more destitute than ever.

It's the same way with the other twin evil, surplus capitalism. The economy becomes surplus, and somewhat ceases to be capitalism, when it produces goods and services for Government instead of for the open consumers' market. When the commercial farmer raises food for the Federal warehouse, when the airplane and ship manufacturer builds mainly for the Government, when power producers generate their electricity solely for the bureaus, there is Big Business of a sort that Alexander Hamilton and Mark Hanna never imagined.

Surplus government, like excess democracy, should never — or we are lost! — drive good men out of politics. The only solution for the fix we're in is for good men to chain and subdue these monsters.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

A difficult and rather common problem for both physician and patient alike is brought up in the first question today.

Q—Recently a friend noticed a lump in her breast which the doctors felt certain was not cancer. However, when the lump was removed a pin dot trace of cancer was found and my friend has been told that as a precaution the breast should be amputated because of the probability of malignant growth later. My friend would rather wait and continue to be under the regular care of her doctor. Is the risk too great?—M.G.R.

A—I can understand how your friend is hesitant and wants to wait under the circumstances outlined. Nevertheless, medical opinion is, I believe, unanimous that when cancer cells are found in a breast tumor the safest procedure is to remove the breast. While it is, of course, possible that no further trouble would develop the risk probably is too great.

Q—About a year ago my brother, age 53, became ill with a great deal of numbness and pain in his hands and feet. His doctor diagnosed nicotine poisoning and advised my brother to stop smoking which he did. In a short time his hands and feet returned to normal but about 60 days after he quit smoking several teeth became loose and my brother thinks this happened because he stopped smoking cigarettes. What do you think?—M.

A—If certainly sounds as thought your brother was wise to stop smoking. I do not know of any reason to believe, however, that loosening of his teeth could be related to his sudden cessation of smoking; probably the loosening of the teeth just happened to occur at the same time.

Q—Why can't some kind of anesthetic be given to a patient who needs a few stitches taken at the hospital?—Mrs. A. N.

A—It would, of course, be possible to give a general anesthetic if it is needed when a few stitches, (presumably following an injury) are taken in the skin. I believe that a local anesthetic for such purposes is often avoided because of the danger of carrying infection deeper into the issues. In other words, pain of this sort can be eliminated if it seems wise to do so.

Q—Can one have arthritis in the hip and yet no redness or swelling? The doctor says I have one leg a little shorter than the other. Could this cause my hips and knees to hurt? He suggested a build-up in my shoe.—M. A.

A—Yes, one can have arthritic changes in the hip without redness or swelling. Yes, also to the second question; it is commonly believed that difference in the length of the legs may cause excessive strain on the lower back or hip joints and sometimes pain disappears when the shoes on one side are built up.

Are We Following Israelite Way To Bondage? Installment 5

Here's a continuation of James M. Rogers' article in Ideas on Liberty on how the Israelites promoted slavery. From here on Rogers speaking.

"The experience of the Israelities early in the history of the world, proved the truth of this fact about government: When the people turn to the source of creation for leadership—instead of to the authoritarian arrangement whereby the mind of man rules men — they have a chance to accomplish great things.

"This wonderful idea of government was never really tried again for many hundreds of years. It was only after many nations of men had collapsed under the weight of their so-called divine kings, and had become a rubble over which succeeding generations and armies had trampled, that a handful of people finally crossed the wide expanses of the great sea to America. Here this idea was to have a chance to work its wonders again.

"In this new climate, there were still many persons who thought it would be sure death to the people if they did not have a king to whom they might look for leadership. So they maintained allegiance for many years to their traditional kings across the sea. But when the king began to increase his take of the percentage of their productive efforts—and continually called upon them to support and fight his useless wars —some of the wiser people in this new land saw the potential of permitting God to do most of the ruling.

"This new experiment was to be quite different from the first one n Canaan. The early Americans had learned that it was not necessary to have a judge to intercede with God for them. They had learned that every man might approach this great source of power and wisdom if he so desired. Every man was potentially capable of finding his own answers. And so, essentially, that was the way they decided to run the country. The lion's share of government was to be a matter between the individual and whatever he found to be his Jehovah. In fact, about all they decided to leave to organized and formalized government was the power to restrain those persons who injured other persons. Vast areas which had theretofore always been the province of a ruler of the people, were going to be handled in this new and revolutionary manner of individual authority and responsibility.

"Just think of it! All aspects of the individual's life and his right to live it; all aspects of the individual's liberty and his right to be a free man; all aspects of the things he would decide to do for the pursuit of happiness; all these things were going to be governed in this revolutionary fashion outside the authority of formalized government whereby some men have always directed and controlled other men!

"It was to be chiefly a most unusual kind of theocracy. God would be ruling the nation, not through any one man but through each man as he knew his own God.

"The results of this revolutionary concept of government were extraordinary. The people prospered as no people had ever prospered before them. They grew strong—both materially and spiritually. They invited the poor and downtrodden of all nations to leave their man-ruled societies and move to this land of freedom under God where every man was his own master and responsible for his own actions. The freedom-hungry foreigners poured in by the millions. The old and the new lived together, worked together, worshipped together, and prospered together. They were free and unafraid. As long as they held to the original concept of a partnership between God and man, all went well.

"But somewhere along the way the people faltered. They began to lose their faith. They began to fear the consequences of their own free choices. Without even realizing it, they began to reject God and personal responsibility, and to clamor for a man-ruler to look out for their welfare and bear their burdens for them.

"Had this covenant between God and man been dissolved by man in one fell swoop, maybe Jehovah would have ordained some 'Samuel through whom he would have passed the same judgment on these Americans that he did on the Israelites when they dissolved the arrangement. However, the Americans began doing it a little at a time. They did not start right off and say they were going to have a king to rule in all the areas which were originally reserved to the individual and his Jehovah. They made this decision piecemeal.

"When the people first began turning their responsibilities over to government on a small scale, they didn't realize that they were actually dissolving their relationship with God; but they were. And the judgment which was passed on that group of Israelite elders clear back at Ramah, began to settle on them. Little by little, these Americans began to become slaves of the men to whom they were giving God's job.

"At first it wasn't much, just a matter of two or three per cent of the total productive effort of the people that was being assigned to those who were going to assume Jehovah's responsibility. This money was to be used by the officials for the general welfare, such as charity, education, public works — 'things which all men of goodwill ought to be doing anyway.' But then it was 10 per cent. Then 25 per cent, and more. At the same time, millions of our young men were drafted against their wills and sent to fight foreign wars which didn't concern them. As we look at it now, it seems strange that more of the people—especially the religious leaders—didn't see the connection between this and the judgment at Ramah. But the transfer of responsibility and authority continued and the percentage of slavery increased."

Probe Might Be Attack On Ike's Administration

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The Senate investigation of alleged violations of civil rights threatens to develop into frontal and concerted assault on the Eisenhower Administration. It has a strong liberal and Democratic flavor, in view of the list of prospective complainants — individuals and organizations.

Senator Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., of Missouri, Democratic proponent of the inquiry, heads the investigating group, which will open public hearings October 3. Although designed sincerely by Hennings to ascertain the need for amendment of existing laws, or revision of administrative action and interpretation, it appears that the hearings will provide an airing for all kinds of grievances against the Party in power.

Hennings' staff plans to screen applicant witnesses. But it will be difficult to reject anybody without nullifying or stultifying the very purpose for which the study was authorized. Even crackpots enjoy constitutional rights!

The opening preview suggests that there will be few defenders of things as they are. And yet, the inquiry may yield good fruit. It is the first time that the American Congress has asked the people to step up and "get their gripes off their chests" — a sort of "letters to the editor" department.

Negro spokesmen, for instance, charge that Washington is making no effort for prompt implementation of the Supreme Court's ruling against segregation in the public schools. They allege that violence has been used in some instances to prevent their children from attending white schools.

Certain clergymen condemn the House Un - American Activities Committee and Attorney General Brownell's list of "subversive organizations" as "subversive." They denounce proposals to establish a diplomatic mission at the Vatican as departure from the concept of separation of church and state.

Champions of a free press complain that there has been too much suppression of legitimate news by Administration agencies, especially by the Department of Defense. They point out that more than a third of Congressional Committee hearings are held behind closed doors. Is this any way to treat the taxpayers who foot the bill?

Educational representatives report that a "climate of fear" depresses their faculties. For fear of losing their jobs, teachers avoid discussion of both sides of a question, especially if it verges on communism. Academic freedom, they insist, has vanished from the halls of ivy and ivory.

Those ancient enemies — the American Federation of Labor and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce — agree for once, but only on the fact that they have grievances. The union regards Taft - Hartley and right - to - work laws as an infringement on their economic liberties. The C of C argues against "compulsory unionism" and Federal invasion of states' rights in the field of industry.

The farmers, as represented by the conservative Farm Bureau, protest against "centralizing tendencies." They refer to Federal controls over crops, acreage and agricultural problems in general. They want freedom on the farms.

In short, it seems that nobody is entirely satisfied with Uncle Sam's attitude toward their particular field of human activity. This assumption becomes authoritative, in view of the fact that the Hennings Committee Staff has requests for the right to squawk from witnesses who will try to refute all these indictments.

The only groups which believe that this is the best of all possible countries are the American Legion and other veterans' organizations, the American Bar Association, the Knights of Columbus — and Eisenhower Republicans!

The CRACKER BARREL

EAGLE ROCK — The struggle still goes on for the mind of youth on many a college campus in America. And it's going in the direction of controlled thought and intellectual slavery. Governor Shivers was heckled and picketed when he kept a speaking engagement at the University of Southern California. William F. Buckley, Jr., author of "God and Man At Yale" (and an effective anti-Communist) was smeared by having his name printed under a picture of Hitler in a student publication when he appeared at Haverford College. But Simon W. Gerson, legislative chairman of the New York State Communist party was cheered when he spoke at Cornell. When he was asked, "Would a Communist defend America in the event of war with Russia?" the presiding chairman ruled the question "IMPROPER" amid thunderous applause. Paul Robson has been invited to speak at Northwestern and the Universities of Kansas, Wisconsin and Chicago. His theme was coexistence and more "civil liberties." MORE FOR COMMUNISTS AND NONE FOR ANYONE ELSE.

BID FOR A SMILE

An artist famous for painting animals was motoring through Iowa, when he saw a very animated looking bull. Thinking he would like to take him on canvas, he got permission of the owner. In due time he produced an excellent likeness of the bull which he sold for five hundred dollars. On seeing the farmer a year later, he told him he had sold the picture of his bull for five hundred dollars.

Old Farmer—Good Lord! Why I would have sold two real bulls for less than that one imitation of yours.

Italians Have light Regard For Clare Luce And Hubby

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

ROME — That mysterious State Department of ours is still a house divided and, as Frances Knight recently proved in a series of newspics, heavily infested with rats and termites. Frances is the beautiful woman with the studied expression of inanity who slipped into the passport bureau when Mrs. Ruth Shipley retired. This mask of hers, concealed for 20 years the patriotic purpose and special intelligence of a girl who might well have been called an undercover American in the Roosevelt-Truman bureaucracy.

The Rome Embassy and the United States Information Service, which is just another of a long series of parasitic tumors on our foreign relations, are an embarrassing spectacle. Clare Boothe Luce is the Ambassador, but protocol is strange so Henry Luce's friend, Eisenhower, gave him the title of Minister so that he could qualify as an official, however synthetic and pathetic, for invitations to dinners and ribbon-cuttings which he delights in. Otherwise, he could go only as the Ambassador's husband and sit back by the kitchen door.

The Italians have been under Clare's thumb in economic phases and they have had to contain their sense of affront at Ike for sending a female to their capital. But they have droll, Italian humor about sex and the status of the husband in the domestic situation and in many little ways, a certain inflection of a word or a gesture of a few fingers, they express themselves. We have no repartee to cope with them. We and dad in the sea. If only Henry, Clare and Ike were the butt of this that would serve them right. But the American Sisterhood of Sovereign Republics and our people are also on the receiving end. However, many Americans resident in Rome and, secretly, some of the bureaucrats in Clare's own political plant, enjoy the spectacle as much as the Italians, realizing that Clare could have spared little Chine-boy this unique distinction and that Henry is still so sophomoric that he seems to think he is a great fellow by marriage. He could have had top billing, himself, and she could have been the wife.

Ben Hecht told me an anecdote recently, bearing on Henry's personality.

We were in Hollywood plotting our Al Capone movie which probably will be frustrated because so many of the magnates would be principals in the Browne-Bioff phase of the scenario, when we fell to talking of fabulous characters of journalism. I nominated a cub in Chicago who hopped a freight for the Cairo race riot, hoping to sell a few yards of space to papers around the country, on queries. He was pinched as a bum in Herrin and found himself rooming with a Negro vag charged with raiding a hen-roost. The colored fellow had $10 in the sole of one shoe and my boy talked him out of it by representing that he was a lawyer. The judge fined my boy, the Negro's $10 and went along toward Cairo.

"Well, but what did you do about this colored guy?" we asked when he had drifted back to Chicago.

"Oh," he said. "I got him bound over to the Grand Jury. They probably will vote no bill, and he will be a free man. It was my first case."

Hecht said "The dumbest guy that ever lived in this business was on the old Chicago Daily News. I was writing a daily column and it was hard going. The leg-work was using up my time and energy. So I asked Henry Justin Smith to give me a leg-man without too much savvy. I said I wanted a guy dumb enough to put down notes on everything he heard and bring them to me. Henry said he had just the man and this kid reported and I gave him a rough idea. But after a week or so I had to turn him back to the desk. I said to Henry Justin Smith: 'This guy won't do. He believes everything!'

"But you know the way of the Greek Mythus. Never kick a toad. It may turn out to be a God or a King. This guy was Henry Luce."

And so, a few days ago in Rome, at a solemn, forlorn little huddle in an ugly stone room in a 16th century castle, the Palazzo Antici-Mattei, Henry Luce, made a little speech on the cultural value of religion in America. I wish I had heard it and it is not my fault because he was not billed on the invitation which I received through the, as it were, Pro-American Maquis of the American Colony in Rome. On my invitation, Clare, his wife, was down for an address of welcome, but I heard later, per grapevine, that she took one look at the house, got took real bad and beat it for home.

Henry was an added starter. It was only by hearsay that I got his subject. I was talking to J.E.B. Rose, director of the International Press Institute, Zurich, whatever that may be, and formerly an editor of the London Observer. He seemed professional and I thought he gulped when I asked him: "Why was Luce invited to speak here?"

"Why," Mr. Rose said, taken off guard, "Because his wife is the Ambassador." Then he apparently, thought that didn't sound quite appropriate so he added, "—And also, I suppose, because he is the whole business of this little convention."

That was it. They got up a convention to evince "culture" and brought in Erwin Canham of The Christian Science Monitor and Paul Hoffman of the Ford Fund for the Republic, who play China-boy's stripe of politics, and this was one of Henry's few opportunities. Clare gave it the snoot as well la belle might snoot a scattering of eighty people up three flights of old stone stairs with four gruesome old stone caesars bending empty orbs on the scene. But Henry does the best he can.

Mac Says Decorating Houses Is For The Birds

By HENRY McLEMORE

Among the magazines which come to our home each month are several which invariably include a section devoted to pointing out to a woman what is wrong with her home and how she can improve it.

These sections are mischief-makers from the word go, and I have often wondered why they weren't barred from the mails by some Postmaster General whose wife was a subscriber.

What business is it of an interior decorator how a house hundreds of miles away is furnished, painted, papered and arranged? How could it possibly affect him (or her) if a house he will never see, which is lived in by folks he will never meet, has wallpaper with cerise polka dots on a mustard background, salmon carpeting with purple dragon designs on it, and a grandfather's clock, laid on its side, for a coffee table?

But these magazine editors make it their business. Their aim (or so it seems) is to make housewives look at what they have done to their homes, and then set about doing things over. Most women trust these decorators as they do their pastors, and would hang a stuffed billy goat over the mantlepiece if advised to do so.

Mary is a truster. This is odd, too, because if a friend told her she didn't have good taste (which she has) she wouldn't like it. But let a decorator a thousand miles away correct her and she takes it right to her heart.

Every month, soon after the arrival of the magazines, our home is partially done over. We don't repaint the walls, or throw out the carpeting, but we move everything under creation from one place to another.

For a reason I'll never know, this disarranging is called arranging.

This monthly game usually starts with Mary saying something like this:

"Now just sit there. Don't move, and don't get sore. I am going to move the sofa from where it is to the other side of the room."

After watching her heave and tug for a minute only a cad would keep to his chair and not lend a stronger back. Then she moves three or four more chairs, until there is only one left in place — and you know which one that is, and what I have to do with it.

Then all the lamps have to be unplugged and switched to new locations, the rugs have to be shifted, and after that it's the turn of the coffee table and end tables to get the heave-ho.

Finally, when every single thing is in a new location, there is always the same remark.

"There, now! Doesn't that look a lot better? Wonder why I didn't think of arranging things this way in the first place."

A month later, as certain as the full moon, there's another reshuffle.

We rent, otherwise the house wouldn't look the same. Women love to do over houses. If I were a builder I'd build a development of old, old houses, not new ones. I'd advertise that every one of them was crying out for a woman to do them over.

"Dilapidated but Charming."

"Falling Apart, But What Fun to Fix Up!"

That's the kind of an ad I'd run. I'd sell a hundred a day.

And on the side I'd build a sanitorium for the husbands of the wives who bought them. It would be packed the year round with the most melancholy bunch of men you ever laid eyes on!

GOAL RUSH—The Russian goalkeeper and a teammate both leap high to intercept the ball during an attack on their goal by the Florence, Italy, team, in the latter's football stadium. The Italians defeated the Moscow Dynamos, 1-0, in the thrill-packed soccer match which was well attended.

SPECTACULAR SPOKESMEN—West Berlin motorcycle cops execute a 17-man pyramid act on three cycles at Wiesbaden. The daredevil demonstration of group riding took place at the USAFE Command Road-eo at the Wiesbaden Air Base.

GIG GARB—Pretty Wendy Blair is showing what the well-dressed frog gigger should wear as she aims for a little hopper at Miami, Fla. The outfit includes a headlamp for following the sport at night. It must be said that the frog was most obliging to hold that dangerous pose for the camera as Wendy went about the details of a frog-leg dinner.

PICTURE NEWS
AROUND THE SPORTS WORLD

GLORIES OF THE PAST — The ways of the old rootin', shootin' cowboys of the Wild West are not unknown to young Mike Killen, left, and his brother Joe. This pair of straight shooters was attending the District Fair at Ukiah, Calif., and few visitors got out of line with them around.

ODD COMPANION — Caddie, a kitten, makes the rounds of a Philadelphia golf course with Mrs. Benjamin F. Brandon who was sharpening her game up for some tourney competition. It's almost certain that Caddie was hoping Mrs. Brandon would get a "birdie."

BIRD'S EYE-VIEW—Spectators of the Grand Prix of Nations motorcycle race in Monza, Italy, really got a bit high the better to see part of the race. This fearless sextet perched way atop a pole for an unobstructed look.

DOING HIS BIT—U.S. Olympic decathlon champ Bob Mathias corrects the shot-put form of a young German athlete in West Berlin. On leave from the U.S. Marine Corps, Mathias is making a State Department-sponsored goodwill tour of Europe. He's lecturing and showing some Olympic films.

IT'S LIKE THIS—At a ranch in Montana, Van Naden is taking a fall off Happy Days, as the two of them practice bareback bronc riding for the World's Championship Rodeo in Madison Square Garden. A lot of cowboys are putting their mounts through strenuous paces for it.

GOOD GOING—The Sunshine Skyway, connecting St. Petersburg, Fla., with the Palmetto-Bradenton area, is a favorite place for fishermen. Of the two seen here, one has made a catch with a pole, while the other prefers skin diving.

REALLY GETS AROUND—French acrobat Raymond Legrand, left, is in a spin during an 83-mile unicycle endurance test as he rides through Maubeuge. He covered the distance in 11 hours and 21 minutes to set a new world's record. He held the old one, too, and plans another attempt to try to set a new one in the near future.

TEACHERS ON THE RUN—Barefoot schoolteachers competed in a foot race at Colombo, Ceylon, during the Athletic Championships for schoolgirls in the western province. The school marms put on a fine show of speed for the 1,000 girls competing in the events.

RETURNING — This 20-foot statue of Christopher Columbus will soon stand in Columbus, Ohio. Seen encased at Genoa, Italy, the explorer's birthplace, the 38-ton statue, by Edoardo Alfieri, is a gift of Genoa to the Ohio city. It will be unveiled in Columbus on Oct. 12, the day Columbus first sighted the New World in 1492.

IT'S THE LAW ★ IN TEXAS ★

Misunderstanding of simple driving rules by numerous motorists is one factor which places Texas right at the top in number of traffic deaths. Possibly the most mystifying of all traffic rules to the average driver are those relating to "Right of Way" at an intersection.

In trying to understand the laws regulating intersecting traffic, it is best to start off with the premise that all streets are of equal dignity, legally speaking. Traffic signs and signals may vary this rule somewhat, but when in doubt it is safest to assume that all drivers crossing your path have a claim to the right of way equal to your own.

Obviously, however, in many cases one driver or the other will be legally entitled to the right of way. When it becomes necessary to determine right of way in a particular situation, the driver who reaches the intersection first, or who is going to get there first, is ordinarily favored.

But when two automobiles are an equal distance from the intersection, that one approaching from the other driver's right normally has the right of way.

Some intersections are known as "courtesy corners," having a stop sign or a flashing red signal facing each direction of approach. The first driver reaching the corner and coming to a complete stop will normally have the right of way over other vehicles not already in the intersection. However, don't depend too much on the other fellow's courtesy, and be sure to keep a "proper look-out" and your car under "proper control," as explained in a previous column.

At intersections involving one through street and another street having a stop sign, a driver approaching the stop sign and coming to a full stop is ordinarily said to have the right of way over vehicles approaching on the through street but not already in the intersection.

However, this last rule must be qualified by saying that you should not proceed, cross or turn onto the through traffic street until you can do so without interfering with oncoming traffic. In other words, if an approaching car will arrive within the intersection before you are completely clear, wait just a little longer. The same rules apply to entering a highway from a side road containing a stop sign.

Many drivers violate the rules of right of way covering left-hand turns at intersections. When turning left, you should always be on the inside (or center) lane, displaying the proper hand signal. You must allow cars coming from the opposite direction, already in the intersection, to pass through before completing your turn. Even when the intersection is cleared, do not proceed unless other oncoming traffic is far enough away to be able to see your signal and slow down to allow you to turn with safety to all concerned.

Stay in the inside lane until your left-hand turn is entirely completed, and only then move gradually over to the right-hand lane if you wish. When turning right, stay in the right-hand lane at all times. Do not swing wide into the center lane, as to do so is unnecessary, unlawful and dangerous.

Many detailed rules and suggestions for safe driving are included in the official "Texas Driving Handbook" which is available to any person requesting same from the Texas Department of Public Safety, Drivers License Division, Austin, Texas.

This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever attempt to interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts, because the facts often change the application of the law.
