FIVE IN PLOT HELD IN TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA

Prisoner Brought Here After Arrest by Vernon Officers

ONE IN LOS ANGELES

Sixth Member of Alleged Gang Held In California

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 5. (UP)—Six men are under arrest in Oklahoma, Texas and California as alleged members of a counterfeit ring working out of Hominy, Okla. Four men are held in Tulsa, and one in Los Angeles and one in Wichita Falls, Texas. H. A. Elliott was arrested in Los Angeles; Harry Hoover in Vernon; and Jack Carlisle, Frank Clements, Knute Hayes and Tom Middlebrook are in custody here.

Secret agents said the alleged counterfeit gang recently got $4,000 bogus notes in Texas, some in Oklahoma and Kansas. Over a period of three years, they are said to have passed thousands of dollars.

The money was passed through bootleggers as they have no recourse in making a complaint, the agents said. The alleged activities of the gang were revealed when Carlisle told agents he and Clements paid $7.50 a gallon for alcohol in Kansas City with bogus money only to learn the alcohol contained kerosene and ether. Hayes and Middlebrook, under $10,000 bond, pleaded not guilty.

Harry Hoover, suspected of being a member of a nation-wide counterfeit ring, was arrested by Vernon officers last week, and was brought to Wichita Falls Friday, when he was formally charged with forgery and counterfeiting a security of the United States in a complaint filed with J. He was brought here for safe keeping until the federal court convenes in October, according to Sheriff W. G. Bralley.

RACKETEERING— The New "Big Business" Where Organized Crime Extorts Millions From Its Victims

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of eight daily articles by James P. Kirby, special writer for The Record News and NEA Service, on the alarming growth of "racketeering." Kirby, a trained investigator and author of textbooks on criminology, has personally investigated the conditions of which he writes.)

By JAMES P. KIRBY
Special NEA Service Writer

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Racketeering is now big business.

"The Racket,"—organized graft, corruption and crime—has grown to proportions that seem magnified beyond imagination.

In Chicago alone—the birthplace of the "racket"—the receipts of these organized gangsters are from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 annually, it is conservatively estimated by those who have made an extensive study of crime conditions here.

In addition to garnering huge profits from bootlegging, gambling and vice, racketeers now either control or are active in 50 larger and 150 smaller lines of business and other activity in Chicago and collect an enormous tribute for protection from their own violence.

For years, the "racket," has been distinctively a Chicago institution. But it has been found such a profitable form of crime there that it is spreading to the other large cities of the middle West. St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, heretofore complacent in their disdain of Chicago's terrorism, are awakening to find an invasion of racketeering with the accepted weapons—dynamite, stench bombs, the torch and machine guns.

Well Organized

Racketeering is now organized much after the fashion of big business concerns, with violence substituted for business skill. No longer can it be considered the sporadic outbreaks of small groups of criminals.

It has found that greater returns can be obtained from organization and concerted action. It has found that it is much safer and more profitable to form rackets than it is to plan big mail or bank robberies; in this kind of crime there is a chance for one big holdup occasionally, while in the racket game the "dividends" so far have been paid with amazing regularity.

In Chicago, there is a large number of "mobs," as the gangs of racketeers are now called. At the head of each mob is an acknowledged and undisputed leader. These leaders apparently have reached agreements to divide up the forms of graft and tribute and collections. For instance, Al Capone, the outstanding racketeer, controls the

HE LEADS CHICAGO "MOB"

The "Scarface Al" Capone mob is the most powerful of the 15 mobs in Chicago. The degree of its organization is amazing, including a board of directors, etc., over which Al rules supreme. The Capone mob controls the beer privileges of Chicago, and no one may operate within the loop without their approval.

Body of Wealthy Oklahoma Man Recovered From Lake Wichita

The body of Ambrose H. Ward, 24, wealthy Wilson, Okla., oil man who was drowned shortly before midnight Tuesday was reclaimed from the waters of Lake Wichita at 2:40 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, following an all day search conducted by city and county officers.

Mr. Ward's body was found at the bottom of the lake in about 24 feet of water, by E. L. Dressler and L. D. Dixon, who were assisting officers in the search.

Many Aid Search

Mr. Ward, who with a friend, Mike Baxter, had stopped for a few days in Wichita Falls while en route to El Paso, slipped from the deck of a speed boat at Lake Wichita about 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night. His companions in the boat circled the spot where Mr. Ward disappeared, but were unable to locate him.

Choppy waves and Tuesday night's rain storm prohibited further search until daylight Wednesday, when officers began dredging the lake with grappling hooks secured from Lake Kemp by Charles Gant, deputy sheriff.

John Crawford, game warden at Lake Kemp, was brought here by Mr. Gant to assist in the search.

At the time of the accident Mr. Ward was riding the boat with Marvin Johnson, John T. Pace, Finas Woods and Mr. Dressler. Mr. Dressler was piloting the boat.

The body was found about 50 feet from the spot where Mr. Ward slipped from the deck of the boat. He could not swim.

Coroner Returns Verdict

The search for the body began immediately after Mr. Gant, Mr. Pace and Mr. Crawford returned from Lake Kemp with the grappling hooks. Those assisting in the search included Mr. Gant, Mr. Pace, Mr. Crawford, Sheriff W. G. Bralley, Chief of Police Frank Burns, Mr. Dressler, Mr. Dixon and others.

The body was taken in charge by the Merkle Undertaking company pending of funeral arrangements. A verdict of death by drowning was returned at a coroner's inquest conducted by O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, Wednesday afternoon.

Almost $250 in cash and jewelry valued at more than $1,000 was found on the body. The property was turned over to an uncle of Mr. Ward's from Wilson, Okla., who reached Wichita Falls Wednesday.

MIDLAND, Texas, Sept. 5. (UP) Disappointment took the place of anxiety for the safety of Miss Amelia Earhart, "Lady Lindy," here tonight when the local airport received a message from the aviatrix, saying that she was safely down in Lovington, N. M.

WET VICTORY IN WISCONSIN IS PROBLEM

Hoover Forces Elated At Kohler's Victory Over Beck

LAFOLLETTES SPLIT

Young Senator May Wield State's Vote For President

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. (UP)—Headquarters of Herbert Hoover here were elated at returns from the Wisconsin Republican primary showing the LaFollette candidate for the gubernatorial nomination had been defeated by Walter J. Kohler, a conservative friendly to Hoover.

Several complications, however, do not make entirely a clear cut victory. For one thing Kohler won because of a split in the old LaFollette vote. His two opponents together had a majority over him. Young Senator LaFollette, who was renominated by almost two to one, supported Representative Joseph D. Beck for governor. The present governor, Fred R. Zimmerman is a former LaFollette lieutenant and still held some of his old following although a weak third in the race.

The result also has another complication in that the candidate who happens to stand nearest to Hoover on prohibition, Governor Zimmerman, ran third. The winner is wet despite his leaning to Hoover. The runner-up also is wet. Zimmerman attributed his defeat partly to the activity of the Anti-Saloon league in his behalf.

McBride's Opinion

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, told the United Press Zimmerman's defeat was not because of his prohibition stand.

Republicans here are keenly interested in the stand Young Senator LaFollette will take in the presidential fight. Many believe this young man may hold the balance of power in the presidential fight in Wisconsin.

LaFollette, if left to his own inclinations, probably would oppose Hoover and support Smith, who stands more nearly on the LaFollette Progressive platform as regards power and many other questions. To the LaFollettes in Wisconsin, Hoover means Lenroot, the former Wisconsin senator, bitter foe of the LaFollettes, and now counsel for the electric power industry.

Senator Blaine of Wisconsin has indicated leanings toward Governor Smith. But the whole situation is much complicated by the fact that the head of the state ticket turns out to be a strong Hooverite.

KOHLER LEADS BECK BY 21,000 VOTES

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 5. (UP)—Although Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Progressive leader, won the senatorial nomination by an overwhelming vote in Tuesday's primary, conservative Republicans found solace today in victory scored by Walter J. Kohler, who was chosen nominee for governor.

The Progressives, however, pointed to the fact that aside from LaFollette's renomination, practically the entire list of state candidates supported by "Young Bob" was nominated.

Practically complete returns tonight gave Kohler a lead of approximately 21,000 over Joseph D. Beck, Progressive candidate, who had the backing of LaFollette. Governor Fred Zimmerman, who had a small Progressive following and was endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league, ran a poor third.

Kohler's supporters including both regular and "wet" Republicans were claiming a lead of 20,000 for their candidate.

Senator LaFollette won the Republican senatorial nomination over George W. Mead, regular, by a majority of approximately to to 1. Practically all the incumbent congressmen were renominated.

Al to Desert Scribes by Making No Copy of His Campaign Talks

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 5. (UP)—Although Gov. Alfred E. Smith will speak without manuscript during the campaign for the presidency, he will not deliver his major addresses without advance preparation.

The fact is that Smith makes a much better impression when he appears to be speaking extemporaneously. He takes measure of his audience, recognizes its response to his words and talks accordingly.

For that reason he will not write his addresses in advance and hand copies of them to the newspapermen but will think them out in advance, organize his material, and then let the newspapermen do their best to revive their lost art as shorthand writers.

The governor said today that in his speaking tour he would elaborate on all the campaign issues, especially prohibition, farm relief and waterpower.

Smith has given no indication whether he will take note of the so called "whispering campaign" against him, which is being brought into the open and met by party leaders and campaigners.

Those who have followed his state campaigns here for years, in which "whispering" similar to that now reported has been practiced, expect that he personally will meet the "whispering" and meet it with characteristic vigor.

SEVEN NAMED IN $1,000,000 LOAN SCHEME

Mails Used to Defraud New Englanders, Is Charge

WARRANTS ISSUED

Boston Brokers Duped By Company's Effort To 'Aid Farmer'

BOSTON, Sept. 5. (UP)—Seven middle western bankers were being sought tonight by federal authorities on a charge of using the mails to defraud New Englanders of approximately $1,800,000 in a bogus farm loan scheme.

Warrants for the arrest of Guy Huston, Chicago and New York; John E. Huston, John L. Boyles and Harold A. Smith of Chicago; Orin F. Schee and Vernon U. Sigler of Des Moines, Iowa, and Walter Cravens of Kansas City, Mo., were issued today after the federal grand jury indicted them.

Many prominent Bostonians, including a prominent Harvard educator, and brokerage firms were reported to have been defrauded in the scheme.

Three companies were formed, the Missouri-Kansas Farm company, The Farm Company of Massachusetts and the Farmers' Fund of Illinois. Local brokers, who became agents for the sale of the stock, formed a syndicate for its purchase and sale. A leading banking institution here was transfer agent.

Some $900,000 worth of Missouri-Kansas stock and $600,000 worth of the Farms company of Massachusetts shares were bought in the Boston district.

Federal investigators said the most of the proceeds of the stock sales "went west" but none of it ever went to help the farmer.

Local brokers were duped as thoroughly as the actual investors, officials said. Some of them were investors, one firm putting as high as $140,000 into the scheme.

DOLEFUL NEWS FOR HUSBANDS

Says Texas Wives Will Divorce Al's Supporters

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. (AP)—There was dire news for Texas husbands at Republican national headquarters today. Mrs. J. C. Griswold, national committee woman for Texas, reported many Texas men had told her their wives would divorce them if they voted for Governor Smith, Democratic presidential nominee.

"There's great hope for Texas to go over for Hoover," she told Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, Republican national vice-chairman, "thanks to the fine Democratic women who value the welfare of their state and nation above party."

"You don't know how peppy our women are," Mrs. Griswold declared. "Our men have worn the brass collars of the Democratic party for a long time. But the women, thank fortune, have worn low-necked dresses and they aren't afraid. At any rate the men won't vote much for Smith. There's many a one who has told me his wife would divorce him if he did."

Hoover, she said, had a large "silent vote" in Texas. The Republican nominee's real strength in the state, she added, lay among the Democrats "who feel prohibition is the only issue and who distrust Governor Smith because they consider he repudiated a plank in the party's platform."

Williams Aids Reunion Plans Of Family Separated For Eight Years

The United States consul at Harbin, China, has been given the papers and case of Mrs. Melany Miglovets by the consul at Riga, Russia, according to a letter received from Congressman Guinn Williams by Miss Myrle Neely, secretary of the Wichita Falls Community chest Wednesday. The chest is active in making possible the reuniting here of the mother, brother and sister of Mrs. Mary Ham of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Miglovets' home in Asiatic Russia, is but a short distance from Harbin, China, while Riga is 4,000 miles from her on the western shores of Europe near Scandanavia. The case was sent by the United States consular service to Riga by error and for a time Mrs. Miglovets faced the month long tour across Asia and European Russia to the point where the consul might examine her to see if she was physically eligible for admission.

Her daughter here, Mrs. Ham, was married to John Ham, an American soldier serving in Siberia in 1920. They moved to Wichita Falls soon after and since that time efforts have gone forward to reunite the family. Due to odd quirks in the immigration laws, eight years have passed and the family is not yet reunited.

However, in the past few months, considerable progress has been made, thanks to the continued efforts of the community chest, and Mrs. Miglovets' name has been placed on the preferential list for the first quota.

CURTIS MEETS TARIFF ISSUE

Republican Nominee Speaks At Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Speaking in the heart of tariff-protected New England, Senator Charles Curtis today met the Democratic challenge on the tariff issue by declaring that he favors raising instead of lowering the rates on imports into this country.

The Republican vice presidential nominee spoke at an open-air rally in Norumbege park, sponsored by the Republican state committee.

He traced the history of tariff legislation in the past, charging that the Democratic policy of tariff for revenue only has always resulted in economic and industrial depression whenever that party has been in power. The tariff plank adopted at the Houston convention, reaffirmed this policy, Curtis said, adding:

"The fact of the matter is that the entire plank neither disowns prior Democratic tariff policies nor definitely promises any new policy. It merely states a glittering generality about maintaining the wages of labor, and then it proceeds to set forth with unmistakable emphasis that what is assumed to approximate protection must be the extreme measure of any tariff rate enacted by the Democratic party.

"The Republican party recognizes no 'extreme measure or any tariff rate.' Whatever rate is necessary to protect American labor, industry and agriculture must and shall be applied."

Curtis then pointed out that in 1914, when the Wilson administration was in power, appeals were made to Senator Walsh and Mayor Curley of Boston, both Democratic officials, to throw open the armories and other public buildings so the unemployed might have places to sleep. He said:

"In my opinion the tariff should be raised not lowered. The slightest suspicion that the Democrats will lower the tariff should be sufficient reason not to give them a chance, while the certainty that they will take that action should be enough to settle all doubts as to which way you should vote."

GROUND UP

John Coolidge to Start Work in Electrical Shop

SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 5. (US)—John Coolidge may be the son of the president and a college graduate to boot, but when he enters business he's going in on the ground floor and work his way up.

It was learned here today that John is planning to go to work in the electrical appliances manufacturing plant of Governor Trumbull of Connecticut. His first job will not be of the white collar variety, it is understood, but one actually in the shops. From there, of course, he is expected to work his way up.

New Plan Devised for Inspecting Travelers

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (US)—To expedite the landing of returning over-seas travelers, and doing away with the tedious, exasperating and nerve wracking ordeal of waiting in line for inspection by immigration officials when a ship reaches quarantine, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis has devised a new plan.

He will urge placing a public health doctor, and an immigration inspector, on every big transatlantic liner and have the inspection of incoming passengers done while the ship is coming over seas.

The Panhandle band will entertain with a concert for sometime preceeding speech by Senator Bassom Thomas of Dallas on the merits of Smith and Hoover, Friday night at Bellevue park at 8 o'clock.—Adv.

ZEPPELIN HOP IS DELAYED

Super-Dirigible to Take Air On October 12

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Sept. 5. (US)—The new German super-dirigible Count Zeppelin, which is completed and all ready to take the air, will not start her Atlantic flight to Lakehurst until October 12, the aniversary of the departure of the Los Angeles from here four years ago. This announcement was made today by Dr. Hugo Eckener.

The commodore explained what he characterized as a regrettable delay was caused by the installation of the new gas plant for the manufacture of blue gas for the motors instead of gasoline. The plant was at first faced with a delay of two months behind the contract date and then with a breakdown when they started to make the gas. The actual manufacture of the blue gas began only yesterday at the rate of 1000 cubic yards a day instead of 3000 cubic yards daily that the contract calls for.

The super-Zeppelin will require between 30,000 and 40,000 cubic yards for the transatlantic flight.

Trial Flight

The filling of the 18 big gas shells with lifting gas is beginning and the giant airship will take the air for the first time next week for the first trial flight. The planned trip to Cairo and Port Said will probably not now take place until after the return from Lakehurst.

"The airship is completed, and but for the new fuel gas we would be ready to start on our long flights," said Dr. Eckener. "As this Zeppelin was not built with a view of operating with gasoline on long flights, but with the new and very satisfactory blue gas which is the same weight as air; giving us a vastly greater radius of action, we cannot very well build in the tanks that would be necessary for the 30 tons of gasoline which would be required for the American flight. We therefore have to wait until our gas plant can turn out the necessary 40,000 cubic yards of blue gas which should be not later than October 10.

To See Start

"The weather will be good on the ocean at that time as well as in the United States."

Commander Rosendahl, sent by the American navy department to make the trip on the Zeppelin, is not certain that he can wait until the middle of October to be one of the passengers. Commander Burney, Major Scott, and possibly Flight Commander Booth, all of London, are expected at Friedrichshafen, when the trial flights start.

Herb to Speak in New York Oct. 17

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. (AP)—Herbert Hoover will go into New York—home town of his Democratic opponent, Governor Alfred E. Smith—on the night of October 17 to deliver a speech at Carnegie hall.

Plans for this address, along with announcement he would speak at Newark, N. J., the night of September 17, were made known today at general headquarters of the Republican presidential candidate. At the same time Hoover revealed he did not contemplate any automobile tours about the vicinity of the two cities.

While the candidate has given consideration to the extent to which he will carry the fight into the South, no definite decision has been reached other than he contemplates a trip to carry him either into North Carolina or Tennessee, or to a point along the borderland between the two states.

Some doubt was cast today upon the possibility of his making a speech in Chicago. It became known he considered his declaration on farm relief at West Branch, Iowa, probably as close as he would come to delivering an address in Chicago.

There remained a remote possibility, however, that he would visit Ohio.

While the candidate will speak on labor in his appearance at Newark, he has given no thought as yet to the subject of his address in New York. He already has worked out a rough draft of the Newark speech, devoting some time to it during the week-end holidays.

Rumors of Chamberlain Resignation 'Absurd'

LONDON, Sept. 5. (UP)—Although certain sections of the press have reported that Sir Austen Chamberlain, now on a trip to Bermuda, would resign shortly because of illness, the rumors were characterized in official circles today as "absurd." Physicians have said that Chamberlain will be ready to resume his work as foreign secretary upon his return.

BROWN MAKES $5000 BOND

Victim of Shooting Dies In Hospital Here

W. R. Brown, who lives on the Brown ranch about six miles south of Holliday, in Archer county, charged with murder following a preliminary hearing into circumstances surrounding the death of George Elliott, 32, in Wichita Falls Wednesday morning, was released on bond of $5,000 Wednesday afternoon.

The hearing for Brown was conducted by Ben P. Allred, district attorney, before H. V. Pearston, county judge of Archer county, about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and bond was set by Judge Pearston at $5000.

Mr. Elliott, who lived at Iowa Park, was fatally shot at the Brown ranch early Tuesday morning. Brown was immediately arrested and charged with assault to murder. This charge was changed to murder after Mr. Elliott died in a local hospital at 5:05 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Testimony at the preliminary hearing in Archer City Wednesday afternoon indicated that the shooting followed an argument over an automobile. A man and a woman were with Elliott when he was shot about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The body of Elliott, taken in charge by the Hines mortuary, is to be forwarded to Seymour early Thursday. He is survived by his widow at Iowa Park and three brothers, Harry, Ed and William Elliott of St. Paul, Minn.

Physicist Makes New Discovery

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (AP)—The assertion that evidence of the daily creation of iron in inter-stellar space is almost within reach of scientific demonstration was made tonight by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, physicist, of the California Institute of Technology.

This and other evidences of elemental creation in progress in inter-stellar space were linked by Dr. Millikan with the claim nature made the world "fool proof," so that the earth is not likely, as some scientists have suggested, to disintegrate in future time, through atomic splitting up on a gigantic scale.

The address was delivered before the annual meeting of the Society of Chemical Research, which presented to Dr. Millikan its Messel medal in honor of his work on the structure and relations of atoms. The physicist responded with an address on "Available Energy."

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. For a free trial, mail the special coupon printed here:

'RACKETS' TAKE BIG TRIBUTE

Writer Tells Story of Organized Crime

beer trade and is said to direct all the rackets in the loop—Chicago's principal business section. Other "mob" leaders have other districts and indulge in other forms of racketeering. The rather frequent outbreaks of gang warfare generally can be traced to some violation or suspected violation of these agreements.

Then like legitimate business, the racketeers have hit upon the plan of extending their activities in order to increase their already fabulous profits. Gangsters trained in Chicago methods are sent to other large cities to organize rackets and in St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh are unmistakable signs of the guiding hands of the lords of the Chicago racket.

The men at the head of the rackets, although willing to approve of almost any kind of crime to achieve their ends, are not ordinary criminals. They are extremely shrewd and skillful, with a genius for organization. If they had engaged in legitimate business, the chances are that they would have been equally successful.

How can such organizations be built up in any American city? The answer, the various agencies investigating crime in Chicago agree, is that the racketeers have formed alliances with public officials and politicians and thus, until recently, have thwarted all efforts to prosecute them. The extent of the invasion of other large cities clearly depends on the real attitude of public officials.

Racket mobs in Chicago now control practically all the bootlegging, gambling and vice, but in addition have extended their domination to many forms of legitimate business. The stunt of the racket is to increase or keep up prices in any line of business, and for this service (for which the public must pay) extort enormous sums from business men. Defiance of the racket generally brings violence.

This kind of a racket started in the dry cleaning industry, with the public and the dry cleaners being taken for a "cleaning." It has spread to these lines of business, according to special assistant attorneys general, now investigating the situation.

Garages, bootblacks, shoe repairers, candy manufacturers, fruit, vegetable and food dealers, laundries, meat, fish and poultry dealers, ash and manure hauling contractors, apartment house janitors, auto trades, barbers, beauty parlors, butter and cheese stores, some dentists and doctors, excavating contractors, glazing contractors, distilled water manufacturers, junk dealers, photographers, plumbers, restaurants, roofing contractors, street paving contractors, waste paper dealers, soda water manufacturers, delicatessens, florists and others.

Best Protection

This is but a partial list of the professions, businesses, and industries which in Chicago are the victims of the racket, and while the prosecuting machinery of America's second largest city remains inert, the racket collects its millions each year.

It was because of this condition that Morris Becker, for 42 years prominent in the cleaning and dyeing industry of Chicago, observing the menace of the racket which threatened to destroy his business through its bombings, burning of his trucks, dynamiting of his plant through concealed sticks of dynamite in clothing sent in, etc., reorganized his business, taking in as a partner none other than "Scarface Al" Capone, with the declaration:

"I have no need of the state's attorney, police department or the employers' association. I have the best protection in the world."

Since that day Becker has experienced no trouble.

Friday: Chicago murders and gang warfare.

WHAT "THE RACKET" IS AND HOW IT WORKS

Chicago dictionaries, as well as Mayor Thompson's American histories, need revision, if you are to understand the slang of the racketeer.

What is a racket? It is the name applied to the activities of Chicago gangs in bootlegging, gambling and vice and in collecting tribute from business and professional men for protection against bombings, other destruction of property, and worse forms of violence.

A "mob" is a gang of racketeers, usually composed of gunmen and criminals.

"Muscling" is the picturesque term describing the encroachment of one racketeer on the agreed "preserves" of another. "Big Tim" Murphy was said to have been killed because he tried to "muscle in" on another racket.

A "muscleman" is the gangster who does the heavy work, including shooting, knifing and bombing. His most frequently used muscles are those of his trigger finger and his bomb-throwing arm.

A "racketeer" is a man engaged in racket activities. The word is apparently derived like "profiteer," the "racketeer" being a man who reaps big profits through crime.

"Talk of Wichita Falls"

"What's the charge, officer?" "This man hasn't taken his wife out to dinner in three years."

"Well, probably it's because he never heard how good the food is at Kemp Hotel Coffee Shop. We'll place him on probation. Call the next case."

HUGHES MAY FOLLOW MOORE

Former Cabinet Officer Is Slated for Hague Court

GENEVA, Sept. 5. (UP)—The League of Nations assembly will vote Saturday on a successor to John Bassett Moore, who resigned from the Hague court of international justice, and it apparently is certain that Charles Evans Hughes will be chosen to succeed his fellow American.

The assembly expressed its appreciation of Moore's services at the Hague court and, with 30 nominations, including all members of the council except Canada, Hughes is assured of the seat.

The election of Hughes to the permanent court is frankly expected in league circles to reopen the entire question of the United States' eventual adherence to the court. Such expectation also was expressed following the signing of the Briand-Kellogg anti-war treaty.

The apparently certain selection of the American cannot fail to put the court again squarely before the public of the United States, members of the league believe, although the nominations were intended primarily as the highest possible honor for the American in recognition of his role as secretary of state and as the moving spirit of the Washington and Havana conferences.

This is the third time the complicated machinery of the league for election of judges has been put into operation. The election of all judges for the first time in 1921 and the election of Epitacio Pessoa of Brazil in 1923 to succeed his countryman, Ruy Barbosa, were the only previous instances. The election machinery is largely the idea and work of Elihu Root, who drew up the plans and statutes for the court.

If elected, Hughes' term would extend to 1930 and after that date—if the United States has not adhered to the court—it is not probable that another American judge could be elected.

$80,000 For His Discovery

Formula for Stomach Antiseptic Brings Large Sum

This is G. M. Gordon, widely known Dallas, Texas, pharmacist, who spent twenty years developing "Gordon's" (formerly Gordon's Antiseptic), an Internal Antiseptic for the stomach and bowels, for which he received $80,000 for the rights to the secret process of compounding.

"The greatest obstacle to the successful treatment of stomach troubles," said Mr. Gordon, "was fermentation (souring of food matter in the stomach and bowels), which inflames and irritates these organs and produces gas that causes much distress. Fermentation can be stopped only with an antiseptic."

"Gordon's" goes right to the seat of the trouble, because it exercises a distinctly antiseptic as well as a digestive effect. It stops and prevents fermentation, soothes and heals any irritated or inflamed condition and will bring quick relief in cases of indigestion, gas, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating after meals, excess acid, bad breath, constipation, sick headache, and nervousness, when caused by faulty digestion. It will tone up the digestive organs and stimulate the stomach and bowels to their normal functions. A few doses will convince you.

"Gordon's" is made in liquid form. A large 8-ounce bottle, price $1.80—less than 2 cents a dose—at all druggists.

Pastor-Medium Claims He Predicted Safety of Rockford Plane

NEWARK, Ohio, Sept. 5. (US)—The Rev. Frank A. Ceney, pastor of the First Spiritualist church here, predicted last week just where and how the "greater Rockford" fliers would be found. Mr. Ceney made his prediction before a public audience, wired his prediction to the search committee of Rockford, and a few days later the world was startled by the rescue of Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer.

In his prediction, the Rev. Mr. Ceney said they would be found safe; the plane was not damaged when it was forced down, because of lack of fuel, ten miles from a Greenland fishing village; that the fliers were hungry, but were in no immediate danger.

The medium also claims that he predicted the German-Irish fliers of the Bremen would be found at almost the identical spot where they were located. He also predicted that Amelia Earhart would be successful in her flight across the Atlantic.

The Rev. Mr. Ceney during the world war was located at Camp Grant, near Rockford, Ill., and was much interested in Cramer and Hassell.

Today he said:

"Several of my congregation inquired of me if the fliers would realize their hopes, or if they were lost. To this I replied on Tuesday evening of last week that I could see the plane coming down, and saw it land safely and unbroken. I saw the two men step out of the plane and examine the gasoline tank, and heard they say in unison that the fuel was all gone. They were in perfect health and spirits, and I predicted they would return safely to their homes. This statement will be substantiated by any of my congregation who were there when I made the statement."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Down in Greenwich Village if you go into one of the more popular places like the Pepper Pot, the Golden Gate, Four Trees or the Pirate's Den, most any night in the week you will find a crowd out for a good time. These and many others are typical of the places to which the visitor to New York goes to see the life of the "Village." In fact the trade of such places as well as of the night clubs uptown is made up largely of visitors. The stranger who gazes awesomely at a dark-haired, wild looking youth with the firm conviction that he is a poet, a painter, or at the very least an atheist, would be disappointed indeed to know that the object of his glances is a respectable stocking salesman from Kansas City on his vacation. Broadway, the Tenderloin, the Village, have a regular group of familiars, but the gayety of their night life is conscripted largely from the horde of visitors that constantly flow in and out of New York city.

The true New Yorker, what time the night clubs rise to the highest pitch of feverish gayety, is at home in bed. He looks on the dissipation and the night life with all the contempt and superiority of a genuine inhabitant. The froth that bubbles nightly over Broadway and the hectic current that flows through the dives and clubs is here today and gone tomorrow.

What is the best play in New York? That is a question often asked, and seldom answered with any degree of authority. Percy Hammond, dramatic critic of the New York Herald Tribune, speaking unofficially, says "Coquette." He didn't care so much for "Elmer Gantry" the dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' novel. Mr. Hammond is a member of several clubs in New York, one of which prides itself on the dignity and decorum of its members. It is an ancient club and most of the members are approaching that condition themselves. Recently Mr. Hammond announced that he had been fined by the club for "running up the stairs," it being held that such an action was indecorous and too youthful for an ancient club.

There is excitement on the waterfront when a big passenger steamer goes out. The wide cobbled street with its rumbling trucks and drays is jammed with taxis. The shouts of policemen, porters, and drivers sound above the noise of grinding gears. Many of them have come to see their friends off. But there are curious ones too, who come to see the boat sail.

Along the jetty beside the dock uniformed chauffeurs and truck drivers stand side by side. Far over their heads the prow of the huge steamer towers with a row of heads along the railing. The fussy little tugs puff in, trailing white smoke, and make fast to the great ship. Slowly, majestically she swings out from the dock. In mid stream she turns, with the little tugs pulling and chugging all around her. Then above their shrill whistles comes a long deep-throated blast from the monster ship. Handkerchiefs wave from the end of the dock and flutter in answer from the railings of the boat. She moves off down the river gathering speed slowly, bound for the Narrows and beyond that the broad sweep of the Atlantic. The gulls wheel over her as she moves proudly out to sea.

PRE-NUPTIAL ADVICE

His wedding date has been announced;
His life is Heaven, frilled and flounced
With expectation, joy, and vim,
That married life will bring to him.

Yes, he will find an ample store
Of all the joy he's looking for;
He'll also find that there will be
Some storms upon the Blissful Sea.

But now he beams with greatest joy;
He thinks himself a lucky boy.
He's much too anxious now to see
How heavy double loads can be.

I hope the smile remains with him;
I pray he keeps his pluck and vim;
When he is feeding two or more,
He'll need an optimistic store.

So smile on, boy; I like to see
A man as happy as can be.
But later, when there comes a trial,
Just don't forget the way to smile.

—John Self Elliott.

Love's Magic Symbol

A NEW YORK columnist recently made what he thinks quite a discovery.

Busy Times Square, heart of the theatrical district, he says, is full of "petters." Couples stroll up and down the street, their arms locked about one another, indulging in semi-furtive caresses in the most public place imaginable, and no one pays any attention to them.

But let a honeymoon couple stroll down the same street, be they never so circumspect and proper, and every idler and passerby on the sidewalk will pay them the tribute of a second glance.

"Let two people who are honestly in love try to walk through the theater crowd—fingers barely touching—and all New York knows," remarks the columnist.

He thinks this is surprising. But, after all, why should it be?

Petting is rather common, even unexciting, whether in New York or in Bellefontaine, Ohio. It involves no cosmic revelation or glimpse of hidden glory. The least sophisticated man can ignore it.

But to most people, if they are at all fortunate, there comes at some time or another an experience so tremendous and glorious that no care can hide it. A young man suddenly discovers that all the vague dreams and glittering legends of his boyhood are true; a girl finds that a mailed knight with a silver shield—clad, it may be, in a plain suit of blue serge—has ridden up to her and led the way to the oldest, most entrancing roadway in all the world. Is it any wonder that two such people cannot keep their discovery to themselves, no matter how hard they try?

They might succeed, perhaps, at that, if the rest of us had not been tipped off. But no matter how unlucky or disillusioned we may be, all of us, once in our lives, get a vague glimpse of the glory that lies beyond the stars. Something—perhaps nothing more than a brief hour by a moonlit beach, or a fleeting moment in a city park—comes for a short time to tell us that our dreams have not played us false. We are capable of infinite happiness, even if we do not often actually get it.

So we are in on the secret. We know that a boy and girl, untaught and unaided, can build for themselves a heaven as splendid as the one that John saw on Patmos. We know, too, unfortunately, that this heaven of theirs probably will not last; but while it lasts it is very real, and its momentary reality assures us that we are something more than animated clay.

That is why true lovers can never hope to go unobserved. The eyes of those who have seen the power and the glory of the world always betray them. They remain fixed on distant visions; and the rest of us must, in spite of ourselves, pay our tribute of a second glance in passing.

Why Byrd's Followers Are Fortunate Men

WHAT is the most fortunate group of men you can think of, offhand?

There are plenty of possible answers; but we would say that the men who are now going to the antarctic on Commander Richard E. Byrd's ship, the City of New York, are the luckiest men we know of.

We don't mean by that that they're lucky to be engaging in a great adventure—although that, if you have the right sort of temperament, is a great stroke of fortune.

They are lucky beyond all the rest of us for the simple reason that they are privileged to follow a great leader who can call forth every bit of loyalty and devotion and courage their hearts can produce.

The accounts of Byrd's departure from his crew were significant. After making a brief speech, telling the men that their families would be looked after in their absence and that they need not worry about troubles at home, the commander went about the ship taking each man by the hand, calling him by name and giving him some little personal message. Then, as he went ashore, the old ship rang with the cheers of his crew.

All that was fairly simple, of course. Yet between the lines of the news dispatches that describe it, we can read, easily enough, a tale of the most intense loyalty and affection given Byrd by his followers. No matter what mishaps or dangers these man may find down in the frostbound solitudes at the bottom of the world, it may be surmised that that they will be sustained by the most complete confidence in their leader.

And it is precisely that—the privilege of following someone to whom you can unreservedly submit—that is one of the greatest privileges life can offer.

Few of us are born to be leaders. It is our destiny to follow. Our only hope of accomplishment lies in finding the proper leader. We have incalculable capabilities within us, if only someone will call them forth. But mostly we fail. We never find the man who can draw from us the last drop of fidelity, endurance and sacrifice. Our potentialities are wasted.

Byrd's men are lucky. They have found their leader. The ordinary mortal—you and I and the rest of us—cannot hope for a greater boon. In no other way can we hope to fulfill our possibilities for service.

Radio and the Printed Page

SOME highly pertinent remarks on radio advertising, voiced by the widely-known advertising man, Thomas F. Logan, in a recent speech at Detroit, are reprinted in a little booklet and are worth considerable thought.

"Despite the great reliance we place on broadcasting as a new sales force in American business, we would not recommend to any advertiser that he place all or a large proportion of his advertising expenditure in this new medium," says Mr. Logan. "Broadcasting, for the present at least, must be an adjunct to printed salesmanship—and it is a mighty powerful adjunct."

After pointing out that newspapers, magazines, billboards and radio have each a definite place in the advertising scheme, Mr. Logan says of the radio:

"I am willing to risk my reputation as a prophet in saying that while it is here to stay, it will not and cannot replace the printed page. It is an extension of sales energy—a rounding out process, rather than a substitute. The printed page is the firm foundation of all profitable advertising."

Mr. Logan, one of the greatest advertising specialists in the country, does not see the conflict between the two types of advertising that some others have seen. He sees them as complementary; each one aiding and assisting the other.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — Fontaine Fox

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Old Winthrop Martenet, famed but eccentric scientist, who died seven years before the story opens, was survived by

Maxwell Martenet, his rather colorless son, who mysteriously disappeared and has been given up for dead for the last four years by

Julia, his wife, and

Hannan, his son, who inherits his grandfather's strength of character. On his return from abroad, Hannan is given a letter by

Mr. Curry, the family lawyer, written by Old Winthrop himself, warning the young man against

Horace Peters, and finishing with the command, "Don't open the iron door until the clock stops." At Vailhallo Noteh, Old Winthrop's mountain estate, a strange clock and an iron door guard the secret which Ernest Mallingham endeavors unsuccessfully to discover. His attempts to stop the clock by dynamite finally bury the house, with all its guests, in a landslide.

Viola Lane, pretty but mysterious girl, also tries to unravel the mystery.

John Breck, the caretaker,
Runty Duck, a guest,
Kate Wynne, a maid, and
Dr. Speck, a physician, all try vainly to penetrate the secret of the iron door.

Black Hair or Brown?

Having finished dressing his patient's wound, young Dr. Speck sat down beside Hannan's bed and sighed ecstatically. Of late Dr. Speck had been full of strange moods and tender sentiments that found expression in beatific sighs and long enraptured silences. His violently red head was in the clouds and his eyes were fixed on distant horizons.

"And she has the softest hazel eyes," said Hannan.

"Hazel?" The physician regarded his patient with alarm. He had thought the stage of delirium was past. "No, they're black—a raven black, like her hair."

"Her hair isn't black. It's brown." Dr. Speck was both puzzled and worried. He had never known a knife wound in the shoulder to result in color blindness. Still, a patient had to be humored, so he did not argue the point.

"Doctor, how soon will I be on my feet?"

"Soon, I hope." The physician looked relieved. The patient was acting normally again. "In a day or two I think you will be strong enough to move about. But there won't be much space to move about in," he added in an undertone, with a frowning look at the darkened windows.

The door opened softly and Viola Lane's lovely face appeared. Dr. Speck rose and met her.

"How is your new patient?" the young woman inquired.

"Progressing nicely. It's a curious case, though. There are indications of achromatopsia."

"What's that?" asked Viola in great alarm.

"The inability to distinguish colors. He insists black eyes are hazel and the black hair is brown. I don't know what to make of it."

Viola gave him a blank look. Then her lips twitched. Her soft hazel eyes danced slyly.

"Better go and have your luncheon, Dr. Speck," she shrugged. "I'll stay here."

The physician walked out, shaking his red head. Viola sat down, looking as if something had struck her very humorously. The patient opened his eyes. A smile drifted across his pale face.

"Funny man, that doctor," he remarked, reaching out and stroking a head of lustrous brown hair. "He's plumb color blind."

Viola raised his head and turned the pillow. For a time neither spoke. Hannan lay in a state of drowsy contentment.

"Is the shoulder still paining?" Viola asked.

"Not a bit." Hannan lied. Then his face darkened. "Poor Curry! He was a loyal friend, Viola—the best ever."

"Yes, but you mustn't think about such things for the present."

"But I want to. I have to get things clear in my mind. I feel a whole lot stronger already. Who found the—the body?"

"I did." She shivered. "I waited a minute or two after you left me on the stairs, then started to follow. I didn't know which way to turn in the dark. Then I heard a cry—an awful cry—and I ran in the direction it came from."

"Did you meet any one?"

"I—I'm not sure. Once I thought I did, but I was too excited to pay attention. Now that I think back, it seems someone passed me in the hall."

"The murderer," said Hannan grimly. "Well, what happened?"

"I found a match and then I saw the—the body. You were lying close by, unconscious. I think I must have screamed, for the others came running down the hall."

Hannan fixed a scowling look on the ceiling. "I'll never forgive myself for letting the murderer get away."

"But you couldn't help it. I'm sure you did the best you could. And you mustn't excite yourself. Let's try to think of something pleasant."

"I'll have a million pleasant things to say to you later. Now I want to talk about the things that are on my mind. It's queer about Curry. First he disappeared—dropped out of sight. His wooden cigar was found in the little hall that leads to the iron door. Then, last night, some one murdered him in that room on the second floor. Who could have done it, and why? I can't get the hang of it."

"I wonder," said Viola thoughtfully, "what happened in the hall when Mr. Curry dropped his cigar."

"Whatever it was, it's curious it should happen in that particular place, right in front of the iron door. That suggests a lot of things, doesn't it?"

"But nothing that's very clear."

"No, it's all muddled. It looks to me, though, as if someone must have attacked Curry in that hall—struck him unconscious, maybe, and then carried him to the upstairs room and kept him there until last night. But why should anybody do a thing like that?"

Viola shook her brown head and sighed.

"It would all have been cleared up quickly enough if I hadn't let the murderer get away last night," said Hannan frotfully. "Well, I'll get him yet. I'll make him pay for what he did. I only wish," he added dolefully, "that I had got a good look at him. As it was, I didn't even get a glimpse of his face. All I saw was his foot."

"His foot?" Viola echoed bewilderedly.

"Yes. You see, he kicked out from behind me all of a sudden and snuffed out the candle. That's when I saw his foot."

"What kind of foot was it?"

"Oh, just an ordinary foot. I don't remember anything about it. It happened so quickly."

"Of course. But you must have heard his footsteps as he came up behind you."

"I did, but I didn't take warning quickly enough. I was thinking of nothing but Curry."

"What did the footsteps sound like?"

Hannan stared at her. "Why, there was nothing remarkable about them. They were just—" He paused. His eyes narrowed.

The dread scene in the dim room flashed through his mind again, a picture of darkness and evil. Minor details became accentuated.

"Yes?" Viola smiled encouragingly.

"By Jove!" said Hannan. "There was something peculiar about those footsteps, now I come to think of it. The fellow's shoes creaked a little. But that," with a sigh, "doesn't mean much."

"It does," Viola declared. "It means a whole lot. These days shoes are made so they won't creak. There are very few that do."

Hannan raised his head and rested it against his elbow. His pale face was all alertness. "You take the prize, Viola," he declared. "I would never have thought of that. It's a clue! Now, all we have to do is to keep our ears open for a pair of creaking shoes."

Viola nodded. "There isn't apt to be more than one creaky pair in this house."

"And the murderer is still here," said Hannan with enthusiasm. "He can't have left the house. That's one good thing the avalanche did."

"Maybe it isn't the only one," suggested Viola vaguely.

Hannan smiled faintly. "Those big hazel eyes of yours look very wise, Viola. I wish I could have a peep into your brain. I believe you are one of those deep persons who think a lot and say little."

"Oh, no. I'm not a bit deep. Sometimes, though, I have certain curious feelings about persons and things. I may tell you about them some day. You see—" She paused while Old Winthrop's clock outside in the hall struck 2. "I am not what you think I am. Neither am I what John Breck thinks I am. He has made up his mind I am a lady detective just because I made one or two deductions from the footprints you left the night you came here. It may be that the detective instinct runs in our family. My brother is a detective. Once he demonstrated to me how pickpockets work. It was awfully fascinating. I believe that with a few lessons I might have become an expert."

"I am sure of it. That time in the taxi—"

"Oh, that wasn't a real test of my talent as a pickpocket. I was just lucky. The collision helped a lot. But even so I made a mess of it. You were too clever for me, Hannan Martenet."

They laughed over the recollection. Hannan glanced toward the door. A sound like that of a chair being moved sounded on the other side.

"That's John Breck," Viola explained. "I asked him to keep watch outside your door until you are well. At night he will move his bed up against the door so nobody can pass without his knowing it."

Hannan stared at her.

"You see," she ejaculated, "I'll feel safer about you with John keeping watch. After what happened last night—" She paused, her face darkening.

"Well," said Hannan, "that's thrilling. It's my first experience with a bodyguard. I'm sure John will make a thorough job of it. Did he seem surprised to learn that I was in the house?"

"Not very. The poor man has had so many surprises that he is beginning to take things for granted. But everybody else was startled, except Mr. Mallingham and Mr. Peters—and even they tried to pretend it was a surprise. Your mother—Mrs. Martenet, I mean—seemed absolutely stunned."

Hannan laughed softly; then his face sobered. "I seem to forget everything that's unpleasant when I am with you—the things that happened last night and the things that may happen next. How do the others feel about the—er—general situation?"

Viola's little chin drooped. "It's a gloomy crowd, Hannan, and they look all the floomier when they pretend to be cheerful."

"Don't they think there is any hope?"

"Oh, they are pretending, but I believe every one is convinced there is no chance of escape. They are all trying to resign themselves to the worst. There seems to be only one hope—that somebody may chance to come this way and discover our predicament—and that isn't very likely."

"And you? What do you think?"

"I—I hardly know. I don't want to think that this is going to be the end." She looked at the lamp on the bedside table. It seemed to burn with an enfeebled glow, as if the little flame was panting for air. A whimsical smile brightened her face. "It's curious about Dr. Speck. He seems to be the only one who isn't worrying."

"I suppose black is white to a color-blind man."

"I don't think it's that. The doctor has fallen in love with Kate Wynne. It's a case of love laughing at avalanches. You see, something fine and big has come into his life and he simply won't believe it's going to be destroyed."

"Good for him! From now on the doctor and I are friends for life. Do you know, I feel exactly the same way about it."

"And so do I," said Viola in a very faint whisper.

He reached out and drew her to him. While outside the house the imps of destruction gritted their teeth in malevolent glee, he kissed her. She sighed happily. There came a long pause.

"There's one thing that's beyond my feeble intelligence," said Hannan after a while. "Everybody in this house, except you and me and Dr. Speck, believes that we are doomed. Yet there was a murder here last night. Why should people who are face to face with death want to commit murder? The murderer knows he is going to die. He knows his victim is going to die. Where's the motive?"

"I never thought of that."

"Queer, isn't it? The murder of Curry was deliberate. I'm sure of that. Such crimes aren't committed unless the criminal thinks he is going to gain something. But where does the gain come in? Feeling as most of the people in this house do, you would think things had lost all value to them. All the crown jewels in the world aren't worth a row of pins."

Thoughtfully they looked into each other's eyes. It was Viola who spoke first.

"It does seem senseless. I can think of only one reason. The murderer must have had an idea that he is going to escape from this house and live to profit from his crime."

"That's a little too deep," Hannan protested.

"I mean that the murderer has a reason, unknown to all the others, for believing that this situation isn't as black as it looks. That's not a very good theory, but can you think of a better one?"

"No, I can't," Hannan confessed. "There's an idea in that. Find a man, outside ourselves and Doctor Speck, who believes he is going to leave the house alive, and we have found the murderer."

"And don't forget that he wears creaky shoes," Viola reminded.

"That's so," said Hannan. "That makes two clues. If this house stands up a while longer—"

He broke off. With a shudder Viola brought her hands to her cheeks. A sharp crash sounded overhead. Then a shrill shout reached their ears.

"The roof! The roof's collapsing!"

It's Time for Mothers to Rebel When Children Get Greedy and Selfish

Advice to the Mother of Greedy Children—Why It Is a Good Thing For a Man to Marry His Brother's Widow—Does True Love Come But Once?

Dear Dorothy Dix: After my husband's death I sold the farm on which we lived, as all of my children were married except one, and none wanted to live in the country. I got $20,000 for the farm, but my sons have borrowed practically all of the money from me and have not paid one cent back. One of my sons is sick, and I have to support him. One of my daughters is in a sanitarium with tuberculosis and her husband and daughter of 11 live with me and pay no board, although my son-in-law makes a good salary.

All of my children come and stay with me when they feel like it without paying anything. I am getting old. Don't you think I ought to have rest and the benefit of the little money I have left?—MRS. CAROLINE O.

Answer: I think it is high time for you to stage a performance of the "Rebellion of Mother," and tell your selfish and grafting children where they get off. The one lesson that mothers never seem to learn is that their children treat them just exactly as they have been taught to treat them. Every mother writes her own price tag for her children. If she puts a high value on herself, her children regard her as something fine and rare and priceless, but if she puts a low value on herself, they hold her cheaply and do not think her worth taking care of, or considering.

You see some mothers whose children wait upon them, who are solicitous for mother's comfort and welfare, and give her the best of things; who write to her when they are away from her, remember her birthday, and save up their money to give her some little thing that she wants.

You see other women whose children do not treat them with even common politeness; who speak to mother as they would not speak to a servant; who make her slave for them without even reward of a mumbled "thank you"; who never tell mother anything of their plans and who don't bother even to send her a postcard when they are away from her, and who never think of such a thing as making her any kind of a present.

In each case the mother is merely reaping what she has sown. One mother put herself upon a pedestal and demanded respect and reverence from her children, and she got it. The other mother made herself a doormat for her children, and they kicked her around and trampled over her, which is what happens to all doormats.

The most foolish thing that any mother ever does is to give all of her property to her children, because those who are willing to rob her of her last dollar are the selfish, greedy ones who will most resent having to support her when she becomes dependent upon them.

It is hard for a mother to say "no" to her children when they come begging her for money to put in their business, with a story of how they could prosper if they had only a little more capital. Or how happy they could be if she would give them the money to buy a home, and how she could live with them and be the most cherished guest, with the best room and the warmest seat by the fire.

However, once they have got mother's money, it is a different tale. Somehow, the business doesn't prosper as it was expected to do, or, if it does, mother reaps none of the profits. And once the home is theirs, mother is made to feel that she is a dependent in it. Many an old woman is an unwelcome guest in the house she has paid for.

After all, even one's children are human beings, with human faults and weaknesses and human reactions. It is human to respect those who force us to respect them, and to treat with more deference those who are independent of us than those who are parasites upon us. Money talks inside the family circle as well as outside it.

Between mother with her own independent fortune, who can give gifts and bestow favors, and mother with her empty pocketbook, there is a great gulf. The one sure tip I would give all parents is this: Help your children all you can without impoverishing yourself, but keep enough of your money to make yourself financially independent of them. Your good children don't want to rob and graft on you, but you need to protect yourself against those of your children who are willing to sacrifice you to their greed.

In your case, Mrs. O., you will be wise to have a housecleaning. Sweep your children and your in-laws who are sponging on you out of doors, and try to save what is left of your little fortune.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widower in love with my brother's widow, but my friends and neighbors seem to think it is scandalous for us to think of getting married. We are both in the 50s and need companionship, and we feel that we would be happy together. Please give me your honest opinion as to whether there would be anything wrong in my marrying my sister-in-law.—ANXIOUS HARRY.

Answer: Certainly there can be no objection to such a marriage. On the contrary, it is most fitting and suitable, and if you need any authority for such a marriage you will find it in Holy Writ. In the Old Testament men were repeatedly told to marry their brother's widows.

I have known numberless cases in which brothers and sisters-in-law have married and lived happily ever after. Indeed, such a marriage is a foredoomed success because the man and woman have known each other for years, and know each other's taste and habits, and whether they will be congenial or not.

Also they have a common background, and nothing makes for companionship more than to have memories in common and to be able to say, "Don't you remember?"

So disregard your friends' and neighbors' criticisms and go along and get married. It is none of their business to begin with, and after the little gossip has died down they will forget that they ever criticized you. You are wise to remarry and provide yourself with a companion of your own age with whom to amble down the last lap of the journey of life.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you believe that people can love as much the second time as they did the first? I have been married and loved my husband as well as any one ever loved a man, but I left him because he was untrue to me. Now my faith in men is gone, and I do not believe that I will ever love or trust one again.

But I know a man who is a widower. He said he loved his first wife devotedly, but he feels that he can love me as well as he did her. I say this is impossible. You cannot love any one as well as you loved your first love. Am I right or wrong? Could I ever love or trust a man again?—DOUBTFUL.

Answer: I think that most people can love a second time, or even a third time, as well as they did the first. Perhaps a second love is never just like the first. It may lack the glamour and the romance, or perhaps even the blind faith of a first love; but it can be just as true and sincere an affection.

The second love may be an even more enduring than the first, because the first is more a love of the flesh and the second more a love of the spirit. A boy falls in love with a girl because she is pretty and has a physical attraction for him, but the older man loves a woman for her soul as well, and because she has the qualities of heart and mind that appeal to him. We love for many different reasons, and so it often happens that men and women pick out for their second choice people who are totally unlike their first mates, but to whom they are equally devoted.

Of course, there are people who only love once, who give their all to their first loves and have nothing to give another. Perhaps you are one of these, but you are foolish to say that you will never care for or trust another man because one has failed you. The fact that one apple in a barrel is bad doesn't prove that all the apples are rotten.

How an Expectant Mother Prepared for Baby's Coming

IT has been proven conclusively that much of the suffering experienced during expectancy, as well as at childbirth, is entirely unnecessary.

Tight tissues, binding muscles, sensitive nerves—all tend to set up an aggravated condition—sapping strength and leaving the expectant mother unprepared to meet the crisis.

Mother's Friend is a comfort to expectant mothers. Externally applied, it relieves prenatal distress by relaxing tight tissues and muscles. And it is so soothing. Its daily use makes the skin soft and pliable.

Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., writes: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

Mother's Friend is the discovery of an eminent physician. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. For over three generations Mother's Friend has relieved expectant mothers of much useless suffering. Begin using Mother's Friend today. The sooner the better. Sold by drug stores—everywhere.

FRAZIER HURLS STEERS TO 3 TO 1 VICTORY OVER SPUDDERS

GARMS STARS IN DEBUT HERE

Kallina Hits Homer; Orr And Robertson Play

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Vic Frazier stood the Spudders on their individual and almost collective heads yesterday and the Dallas Steers won the opener of the series out at our playground. The score was 3 to 1, the three representing the efforts of the Bovines in hammering Herb Cobb for 10 hits in eight innings.

The one represents a home run by Ed Kallina, or "Cleanup" Kallina as he should be designated. Ed's smash was a wallop over the left field wall in the fifth inning but there was no comrade on base.

Debs Garms, the boy shortstop from Abilene, making his debut in Spudder regalia, was another of the chosen few whom Mr. Frazier did not baffle. To the contrary, the youthful Garms maced two of the Spudders' five hits, one a three-base smack, and he clouted the ball hard on his other two appearances at bat.

The Boy Is Fast

Garms also looked like a sweet ball player defensively, handling nine chances and making one error. He is fast, takes a sharp cut at the plate, looks sure on ground balls and apparently is about all that a good ball player needs to be.

Garland Orr, another rookie from Abilene, pastimed in right field. Though he failed to get a hit, Orr also hit the ball very well, Happ Morse robbing him of a safe knock. Not a ball was batted Garland's way by a hostile so his prowess as a fielder, if any, is hidden under a bushel.

A third young man played his first game for the Spudders. He is a catcher. Introducing Claude Robertson, the Beaumont manager, loaned to us in our extremity, and too well and favorably known by the thousands of the readers of this piece to merit further discussion.

Having disposed of the new Spudders, let us return to Vic Frazier, who has been patiently waiting for the acclamation due him and then with a few well chosen words will bid us adieu. And good riddance, we shall say.

In addition to hurling five-hit ball, Mr. Frazier struck out eight and passed only two. He retired the champions in order in the last four innings.

Herbie went along letting the enemy get some hits but turning them back scoreless until the fifth when he issued a brace of passes with a knock for a run. Cobb yielded the other two runs and gave way in the eighth for a pinch-hitter, Steengrafe working the ninth.

Garms Clouts Triple

Both clubs had runners on bases in the first inning but failed to score. Garms' throw pulled Kallina off the bag on Jeffries' grounder after Debs made a fast stop, but the Steers failed to advance him. Garms opened the Spud half with a triple to the right-center wall but was caught off base later.

Pierce and Jenkins clouted singles in the second with one out but both were left on first.

Frazier started the third with a hit. Jeffries and Morse skied out. Oglesby singled but Turgeon tossed out Rosenthal.

Cobb strolled with one out but was left.

Tate walked in the fourth after two were out but Mealey struck out.

Jeffries started a double play that helped halt the Spuds after Orr had been passed.

The Steers tallied in the fifth. With two out, one of which was on Jenkins' sparkling catch of Jeffries' drive, Morse and Oglesby strolled. Rosenthal singled to center, scoring Morse.

Ed's Homer Ties Score

Kallina's homer tied in the Spudder fifth, and though Cobb doubled to the right field fence and Garms beat out an infield hit, there was no further scoring in that round.

The Bovines went ahead in the sixth with a counter. Pierce led off with a hit over short. Tate was passed. Mealey lifted to Jenkins. Frazier forced Tate, Turgeon to Garms, Pierce going to third. Jeffries singled to left, scoring Pierce.

The Spuds went out in order.

Gingiardi singled past Swenson in the seventh but two were out and it went for naught.

Nary a Spudder got on in their half.

Steers Score in Eighth

The Bovines tallied in the eighth. Tate was safe on a scorching grounder. Mealey singled to right, Tate going to third. Frazier bounced to Turgeon who made a fine peg to Robertson, but Claude dropped the ball and Tate was safe.

The Spuds went out one-two-three.

Steengrafe went to the hill in the ninth. Gingiardi walked but Milt turned them back scoreless.

Wichita Falls was retired in order, due partly to Morse robbing Orr of a hit when he speared a harsh liner.

Notes of the Game

The Spudders and Steers will play Friday's game as part of a double header today. The kickoff is at 3 o'clock.

Steengrafe and Chick Galeria, the southpaw who was with our nine in the spring and with Dallas this summer, will hurl.

Two more members have been added to the Spudder hospital list. Joe Kiefer was hit on the right foot yesterday by Ed Kallina's terrific smash while pitching in batting practice. No bones were broken but the wound is painful and will keep him out of the game a few days.

Tom Estell suffered an injured finger on his throwing hand while tossing to the batters Tuesday at Dallas. Tom thought nothing of the injury until it became painful yesterday. The digit was lanced but he will be able to toil within a day or two.

The two other cripples, Buck Stanton and Doc Smith, were out at yesterday's game. Whether they are able to participate in the Houston playoff and the Dixie series will depend upon their convalescence between now and that time.

Sale of tickets for the playoff games here Wednesday and Thursday will be opened tomorrow at the Miller and the Renfro Drug stores. Tickets for both games will be on sale Friday and for single games Saturday.

Grid Committee Clarifies Rules

Interpretations of 'Shifts' May End Arguments

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (AP)—There will be no controversies, no violent arguments, no rushing to the intercollegiate football rules committee this season to settle squabbles over interpretations of the pigskin code if E. K. Hall, chairman of the committee, can help it.

Concerning questions of "when is a shift not a shift" and other teasers, the rules committee, in a bulletin issued today, attempted to choke off argument and prevent varied interpretations of rules by officials in various sections of the country.

After issuance of the 1928 rule book in June, each member of the committee collected from coaches and officials in his district during the summer "all questions concerning which there might be reasonable doubt." These were considered and the questions answered for publication in bulletin form after a meeting of the committee in Montclair, N. J., Aug. 24 and 25.

"Shifts" Puzzle

While many of the questions considered required only the quoting of rules for answers, 13 were considered important enough for publication. Five of these dealt with "shift" interpretations, which the rules committee is trying to wipe out. All of the answers contained in the bulletin have the effect of official decisions "and may be treated as having the same force and effect as an approved ruling in the rules book." Nation-wide distribution through the same agencies handling the rules book has been undertaken by the committee.

The most important of the "shift" decisions, in the opinion of Hall, places a penalty of 15 yards on any lineman charging into the neutral zone less than one second after a huddle and before the ball is put in play. The lineman has violated two rules, the first against off-side play and the second calling for a full stop of at least one second after a huddle or shift. The greater penalty of the two, that of 15 yards for an illegal shift, therefore is imposed.

An end may move one or more steps along the line of scrimmage to join a wing back charging a tackle, provided he waits one second after his team has gone through a shift. Neither end nor back may be in motion at the same time. Both must come to a full stop before the ball is put in play.

Ruling On Safety

A safety is scored when a protected backward pass is batted back across the offensive team's goal line by a defensive player and recovered there by the offense. If recovered by the defnse a touchdown is scored. An eligible man cannot return to the end zone to catch a forward pass once he has stepped over the end line.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Tex Guinan's racket isn't doing so well in the California cafeterias.

The famous night hostess of the New York flea-bags intended to act in the talkies.

They made a test.

And discovered that Tex's voice was too manly.

When Tex walked into the Los Angeles cafeteria a big husky bouncer said:

"Give this little girl a big platter."

The only thing sadder than a middle-aged oyster is a night club hostess beneath the California sun.

Tex hasn't seen daylight for so long that she has forgotten how to talk. She hoots like an owl.

She intends to come right back to Manhattan where the nights are closer together.

There was no brass band at the station to greet the Prima Donna of the Broadway drums.

Neither did the mayor of Los Angeles give the keys of the city to Insomnia's leading lady.

Tex intended to whack the mayor over the head with a slapstick. But the mayor didn't show up.

Maybe he doesn't appreciate talent.

Tex's next stop will be Arizona, which is California's parking state.

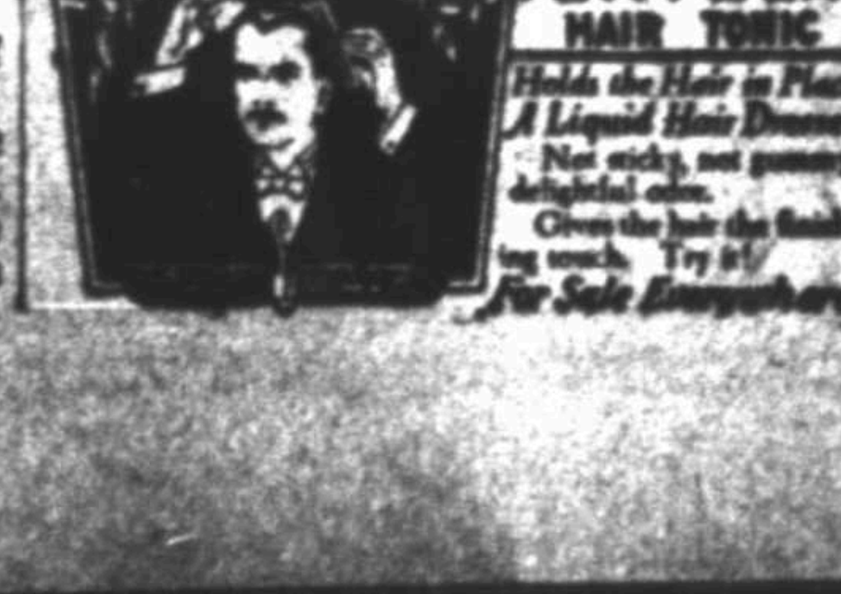

Hearing that Babe Ruth refused to pose with Hoover, Tex said: "I'll pose with Herbie. I never fell off a lap in my life."

The best she got was a motor accident when her sixteen-passenger Mack truck was sideswiped by a roving Bunker.

Tex said: "Am I hurt? Say, if the bruises were a little closer together, I would be a bottle of ink."

Possibly Tex doesn't understand that good old California hospitality without cover charges.

When they asked her about the climate, she said: "What good is it if you can't charge for it?"

YANKS RETAIN 2-GAME LEAD

Champs Split With Solons While A's Are Idle

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (AP)—The Yankees held on to their two-game lead over the Athletics today by winning the second game of a doubleheader from Washington, 8 to 3 after losing the first, 3 to 1.

Sad Sam Jones won his fourth straight victory over New York in the first encounter.

The scores; first game:

'F to K' Is An Old Boxing Writer's Notation Little Used These Days

But in the Battlin' Era It Meant "Failed to Knock Out" and Was a Common Thing in Sullivan's Record

By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (US)—Idling through the pages of a tattered old book of records of the sour science the other evening, I came upon a cryptic notation that has long since fallen into disuse.

The notation is "F to K," appearing after the name of many of the old-time gladiators in the column given over to the result of a battle. The entry is usually "W," for won, or "L," for lost. It may be "W. F.," meaning won on a foul, or "L. F.," meaning lost on a foul. Or "Exhb," meaning exhibition. Or "N. D.," meaning no decision. Or "N. C." meaning no contest. Or "Stpd. Plc.," meaning "stopped by the police."

This last was not an uncommon notation in the old days, though we don't hear much of it now. And "F to K," as I say, has been dropped from the records, and from the modern pugilistic ken. It meant "failed to knock out."

I find it on the record of Jack Dempsey, the "Nonpareil," middleweight champion of the world in his day, half a dozen times. I find it in the record of John L. Sullivan, the roaring old lion of Boston, and some of the other old boys. For in those piping times, my friends, the ablest of the sour scientists were not infrequently matched on the basis that they must flatten an opponent within a specified number of rounds, or be considered the loser.

Can you imagine one of our sour scientists of today offering to battle on such terms? No, you can't imagine it.

Present Jack the Last

In the old days of the sour science it was a common practice for champions to go around offering to meet all comers, which is to say anyone who cared to step into the ring with them.

This practice goes back nearly 200 years to the days of the boxing booths of England, when a well known fighter would travel through the country with a coterie of clouters, meeting one another, or the aspiring yokels of the countryside.

Then John L. Sullivan elaborated the thing into an offer of $1000 to any man who could stick four rounds with him. He batted out customers all over the U. S. A. on these terms. But in one or two regular bouts the conditions stated, John L. failed to deliver.

The Original Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil, who must have been one of the greatest fighters that ever lived, also went into the business of meeting all comers on a minor scale, but his record shows that he didn't bat 'em out as freely as John L. However, Dempsey weighed around only 150 pounds at his best, and naturally he couldn't smack like John L.

James J. Jeffries as heavyweight champion, made a tour meeting all comers, and at Butte, Mont., he ran into Jack Munroe, who stuck the scheduled four rounds to Jeff's subsequent profit. Jeff took Munroe on in a regular match later and belted him out in a couple of rounds.

Will H. Dempsey the Last

The last fighter to make a tour meeting comers was the present Jack Dempsey, and that was before he became heavyweight champion of the world.

The ubiquitious Dr. J. Leo McKernan borrowed John L.'s stuff, and offered $1000 to any man who could stick four rounds with the Manassa man mauler. There has always been some speculation as to what the doctor would have used for money in those days had some fellow stuck the four.

But in the main, the doctor first made certain that no strangers tried to take advantage of his generous offer, so the solvency of the Dempsey-Kearns firm was never tested. After he became heavyweight champion Dempsey wouldn't have taken off one shoe for $1000.

As a mater of fact, John L. Sullivan, Jeffries and Dempsey are about the only heavyweight champions we have ever had who could make such an offer as that involved in meeting comers without running the risk of being bankrupted.

James J. Corbett had frail hands that he couldn't afford to bend up on the thick skull of a comer. Any man who had no more sense than to take up such an offer must necessarily have had a thick skull. The same thing applied to Bob Fitzsimmons, though Fitz was a harder puncher than Corbett.

The lame, and the halt and the blind would have been jumping at such an offer from John Arthur Johnson. The milkman could have stuck four rounds with him, if Li'l Artha happened to be in good humor. Jess Willard, the Pottawatomie pounder, couldn't get unwound in four rounds and the newsboys in the street would have outdodged Tunney in four. It took a smashing hitter to meet comers.

It Wouldn't be Permitted

Anyway, the meeting comers business probably wouldn't be permitted by the minions of the sour science law these days. They have so many rules and regulations governing the sour science in this era that it would take a couple of weeks at least to arrange one bout, and the boys who were meeting comers couldn't have waited that long.

It was a night-to-night proposition with them. They were generally playing a regular theatrical schedule. Nowadays some of the types of comers that Sullivan, Jeffries and Dempsey used to bowl over wouldn't be permitted in halls of the sour science, let alone in the ring.

And I don't know a man in the game today who can punch hard enough to go around taking chances on ad lib opponents. Any truck farmer in good health might outstumble some of so-called greatest fighters in four heats. At least the truck farmer might be there at the finish.

And furthermore, the sour science has advanced to such an extent financially that our champions can get more out of one regular fight than the old timers could gather in on months of barnstorming meeting comers. That's why you never see the old entry "F to K" in the records any more, though it seems to me it ought to be there, in many cases just as penalty against some of our champs.

CHURCH FUNDS SHOW LOSSES

$1,000,000 Missing After Treasurer Disappears

ATLANTA, Sept. 5. (INS)—With an indicated shortage that may exceed $1,000,000, auditors of the Southern Baptist church continued today their work of unraveling the accounts of Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer.

For nine years Carnes was treasurer of the Southern Baptist home mission board, and millions of dollars donated in pennies, nickels and dimes by children and adult communicants of the church, passed through his hands.

He had unlimited authority, and it has just been revealed he dealt extensively with 150 banks through the south, and so complicated were his refinancing arrangements that it may take several more months to get the exact shortage.

For the last quarter alone, however, Carnes was short between $300,000 and $400,000, the auditors reported to the executive session of a score of officials who hastily gathered here to learn the truth.

Carnes suddenly left Atlanta August 15, and no trace of him has been found. An investigation was started and it was learned he had served two prison terms for fraudulent use of the mails.

Since his sudden disappearance it has been revealed that he operated a large real estate concern in Atlanta, a brick plant in North Carolina, and an automatic carlock company in Chattanooga. He joined the leading clubs and lived in a $50,000 villa in an exclusive section here.

He was well known for his large and numerous donations to church activities, and other worthy causes.

Church officials meanwhile announced they would stand behind every transaction made by Carnes.

"We are going to pay off every dollar of the notes floated by Carnes, whether we receive the benefit of the funds obtained or not," Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, Texas, president of the Southern Baptist convention, announced.

The motorboat bearing the aviators left Camp Lloyd near Mount Evans, with Professor Hobbs of the University of Michigan expedition accompanying them. Professor Hobbs was ready to return home when Hassell and Cramer were rescued after two weeks on the ice.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

The Cause of Asthma

A peculiar mental condition which the asthmatic patient undergoes is that when he first contracts this disease he is afraid of dying, and after he has had many attacks he is actualy afraid of not dying. This is because he is literally gasping for breath, and is suffering as much for want of oxygen as a fish would be out of water.

These patients suffer from an inability to draw enough air into the lungs. They can usually exhale air readily, but during an attack struggle to draw in enough air to supply the blood with its indispensable amount of oxygen.

The primary reason for this difficulty in breathing is because the diaphragm cannot be lowered far enough to draw the air into the lungs. Breathing is principally accomplished by the raising and lowering of the diaphragm, which is the flat muscle seperating the lungs from the abdomen. During exhalation, the diaphragm presses upward forcing the air out of the lungs, while during inhalation, the diaphragm lowers, and in this way draws air into the lungs.

If an excess amount of stomach and intestinal gas presses upward against the diaphragm, it is often impossible for the diaphragm to descend low enough to draw in the needed air. The heart is often affected by this pressure, and this disc asthma" because the lungs and the heart action are both affected.

Bronchial asthma is another condition often present, in which there is a large quantity of mucus which fills up the air passages, and interferes with the free circulation of air through the lungs. This excessive mucus is produced from the patient using too much sugar and starch, and too many of the fats, which load the blood with catarrhal material. This is thrown out through the delicate membranes of the lungs.

The excessive stomach and intestinal gas is produced by using too many of the starch and sugar foods, or from using foods in bad combination with each other. Foods which are gas-forming in themselves, such as onions, garlic, cabbage, brussels sprouts, turnips, etc., will also create this excessive gas, and these foods must be entirely eliminated by one who has a tendency toward asthma.

Drugs are entirely useless in the cure of this trouble. Of course, it is possible to struggle along for years using adrenalin or smoking powders which contain opium, but this cannot bring about a cure, and I find that patients who have taken these treatments are always in worse condition than those who have not, and their cases are always more difficult to cure.

Considering that asthma is a symptom and not a disease, it is of course very foolish to continue to treat such symptoms with remedies without at least attempting to remove the probable cause.

As I have explained, there are only three principal causes of true asthma or bronchial asthma. These are excessive gas pressure against the diaphragm, lack of mobility to the diaphragm, and excessive formations of mucus in the bronchial tubes. The cure then must come from removing these causes, and fully one hundred per cent of all cases can be cured through properly regulated diet and exercise.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. H. J. writes: "When I am walking my hands swell up so much that they pain me terribly, especially when I touch them. At times only one hand will swell and the other will be perfectly all right."

Answer—Swelling of the hands is quite common when walking rapidly to any great distance. The swinging of the arms forces the blood into the hands, but should not cause any discomfort unless you are suffering from rheumatism. Sometimes an impingement of the nerves which issue from the spine and go to the arms will be the controlling factor in causing one hand to swell and not the other; an osteopath or chiropractor could tell you if this cause exists.

Question: Mrs. H. K. L. writes: "My husband has to take his lunch, which now contains wholewheat bread, cheese, ham, salmon, also a couple of cakes. Would you please give me some fillings for sandwiches, also a dessert?"

Answer: The wholewheat bread sandwiches can be made of cheese or any one kind of meat, or filled with peanut butter, avocado, or just plain lettuce and butter. A handful of raisins or dried figs makes a fine dessert for a noon lunch.

Question: J. T. asks: "What can be done for a 6-year-old boy who is constantly making faces? The doctor calls it some form of nervousness. Have had his tonsils removed, but certainly cannot see any improvement, and his face is gradually growing out of shape. Would be glad of any help."

Answer: The greatest cause of such nervousness is from irritations of the gastro-intestinal tract. Irritating food mixtures have an effect upon producing irritation all over the body. I have never seen a case of these troubles with children that could not be quickly cured by putting them on a well balanced, non-irritating diet. I will be glad to send you an article outlining the proper diet for children if you will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By VINCENT LOPEZ

Vincent Lopez is a man of note—being one of America's foremost orchestra leaders, composer of popular airs, arranger of jazz music and master of ceremonies in New York night clubs.

VINCENT LOPEZ

Jazz is hooted at by the highbrows—they say that it is degrading, and that jazz is leading American people into a pit of destruction. The intelligentsia would have one believe that this pit has a Black Bottom.

"I was visiting some friends the other night," Lopez told me, "who have a little 5-year-old daughter. During a lull in conversation the child asked her mother if she could have a cocktail.

"'What on earth do you want it for?' asked the surprised parent.

"'Oh, mummy, you see, I'm tired of being treated like a child, and I want to have a grown-up breth like daddy's.'"

Young Coolidge Arrives in Gotham To Seek Stepping Stones of Career

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (UP)—Another bright young man, college-educated, with good connections in the middle-west, came to New York looking for a job today—and had to be fenced by a squadron of police from an onslaught of 50 photographers and reporters as soon as he stepped from the train.

Meanwhile, John Coolidge's father was out in Wisconsin shooting clay pigeons and his mother was reading on the front porch at Brule, both of them hoping he'd get along all right.

He did. Accompanied by R. C. Woods, a bodyguard, young Coolidge gave the smart city newspaper men the slip and while they were still hunting for him in the big station he was already in conference with E. G. Buckland, vice president of the New York and New Haven railroad. Presumably he was asking about work. But he would not say and the crowd at the station caught only a glimpse of a flushed young face beneath a gray hat.

"You can't make a statement about a job until you get one," explained the bodyguard. "Now can you?"

Girl Mill Workers On Hunger Strike

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 5 (US)—Despite pleas of friends and sympathizers that they give up their hunger strike, Mertice Hudson and Amanda Rittner, both still in their teens, obstinately clinged to their purpose today.

A tempting array of dishes has been offered them every day since they were arrested, Aug. 7, for picketing in the Allan A. textile mills strike, and have been taken away untasted. The girls asserted they would not eat until the strike is settled favorably for the strikers.

Both girls normally weigh around 100 pounds, but have lost considerable weight and were sinking into a state of apathy, sleeping most of the time, jail authorities stated.

The girls' hunger strike and imprisonment is entirely voluntarily. By signing their own personal bonds they would be immediately released, but this they have refused to do.

A close watch is being kept over them by physicians, but as yet no attempt has been made at forcible feeding.

Kansas Sets Record In Gas Tax Collections

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 5. (UP)—A new record in gasoline tax collections for a single month in Kansas was set in August when $629,601.07, or an increase of $125,377.39 over the previous record, was collected, Seth G. Wells, state oil inspector, reported today.

The old record was $504,223.77 set in August, 1927. Since May 1, 1925, when the 2 cents tax became effective, $15,734,570.34 has been collected.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. (AP)—An early advance of 23 to 27 points on unfavorable weather and crop advices was followed by partial reactions in the cotton market today. The general market closed very steady, at net advances of 8 to 15 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 5 to 10 points, after slight irregularity the market worked higher on covering by recent sellers, apparently combined with some commission house and trade buying. The fairly steady showing of Liverpool, reports of heavy rains in the eastern belt, and unfavorable features in the weekly report of the weather bureau were factors emphasized on the advance.

October sold up to 19.05 and March to 18.84, but offerings increased slightly around the 19-cent level for near months, while demand appeared to have been pretty well supplied. At any rate, buying tapered off and the market eased during the afternoon under liquidation or realizing which was later supplemented by some southern selling, supposedly in the way of hedging.

Prices lost 14 to 18 points of their early gains, but selling was not particularly heavy and the market steadied up a few points in the last few minutes.

Three more private "end-August" crop reports were issued. One covering the 12 leading states made the condition 59.8 and the indicated yield 14,591,702 bales. Another gave no condition figures, but placed the indicated crop at 15,016,000, while the third placed the condition at 56.8 and the indicated crop at 14,347,000 bales. Up to the close of business tonight ten private reports had been issued showing yield indications which ranged from 13,929,000 up to 15,518,000 bales and averaged 14,515,000. The figures appeared to be without particular effect on today's market.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5. (AP)—Favorable Liverpool cables and unfavorable weather and crop reports sent the price of cotton up 7 to 15 points here today.

The market was quiet with trading restricted mainly to evening up transactions in anticipation of the government crop report due Saturday. Many reports of crop deterioration and weevil damage were received and the weekly weather and crop reports were unfavorable.

After advancing 21 points to 18.43 December eased off to 18.32, 11 points down, and closed at 18.35.

Liverpool was 2 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 6 to 9 points. Prices continued to advance on bad crop reports and October traded up to 18.33 and December to 18.38, 16 to 18 points above the previous close.

In the second hour the market rallied additionally when the weekly weather and crop report was issued. By the time demand was supplied October had advanced to 18.38 and December to 18.43, 21 to 23 points above the previous close.

After mid-session the market fluctuated rather narrowly and eased off at one time 11 points from the highs. October closed at 18.30 and December at 18.35, net gains of 7 to 15 points for the day.

Four additional private crop estimates were issued, making the crop from 14,161,000 bales to 15,016,000. The estimates had no appreciable effect on the market.

Port receipts 60,342, for week 163,221, for season 437,067, last season 679,868. Exports 56,886, for week 108,399, for season 370,964, last season 422,227. Port stocks 524,353, last year 1,172,500. Advance of New Favorites Sends New York Market Higher

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Unexpectedly large expansion in stock exchange loans failed to stem bullish enthusiasm today as new favorites were brought forward to lead the stock market higher.

The performance of the general list, after an early period of weakness occasioned by overnight liquidation by nervous holders, clearly demonstrated that the powerful bulls are convinced there are many issues remaining which have hardly begun to discount their true worth and prospects.

Volume exceeded 4,000,000 shares. Money, despite forecasts of a higher rate, remained throughout the day at 7¼ per cent. This factor proved quite encouraging and in reality turned the market upward after the initial selling wave. It indicated that the public requires only the slightest confidence that the money market will not be unduly stiff to renew buying of the best-grade stocks.

Dullness ruled in the foreign exchanges, while the commodity markets displayed irregularity. Cotton was up, also corn, while wheat sold off.

Radio Scores

If the market required any evidence that the biggest interests are still arrayed on the bull side, it was undoubtedly furnished by the rapid advances in Radio and General Motors. The former established a new record price for all time on concentrated buying traceable to the same strong group responsible for its sensational advance of earlier this year. Some of the same interests, strengthened by others of similar power and market prestige, staged the General Motors advance which was helped considerably by the large short interest in that issue. As a matter of fact, the general market's position is materially aided by the very substantial short account. Radio and motors represent able substitutes for the other recent market leaders, such as American Can, U. S. Steel and Baltimore and Ohio, which were allowed to rest.

Others Gain

Shorts in several other stocks also suffered, Warner Brothers scoring a new top. Chrysler likewise reached a record high. The oil shares reflected the quiet absorption which has been taking place under cover for several weeks. The situation in this industry has greatly improved and there is little danger of a renewed flood of oil which would again demoralize prices.

Moving pictures shares continued in demand, as encouraging reports were heard of impending developments and increasing earnings. Paramount is expected to make an important announcement shortly with respect to one of its leading subsidiaries. Victor Talking Machine also improved on reports that the company is planning to introduce a new machine which will be available for the smaller moving picture theaters.

Calumet and Arizona held firm. This company is expected to be the next of the copper group to enlarge its dividend, probably to a $7 annual basis. Reo Motors was helped by a rumor that a leading operator was endeavoring to acquire a large block of the stock at a price considerable above the current market. Savage Arms improved despite semi-official denial that the leading factors in the Baldwin-Westinghouse deal were interested in the company. American Tobacco was higher on expectation that a split-up may be approved by directors late this year or earlier in 1929.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 5. (AP) (U. S. Department of Agriculture)—Grain fed steers and yearlings again were in the spotlight at most points around the 11-market circuit and further price gains were scored at several markets; choice 1320-pound steers in Chicago established a new high level for the season of $18.10, which closely approaches the year's high mark of $18.50, paid last January; desirable grades of western grass steers were on a firm basis with a broad feeder outlet; a decided drop to the market on this contingent; off quality light weight grassers were slightly lower at some centers, where the supply was liberal; fed Kansas grassers at Kansas City that averaged 1313 pounds cleared to a finished at $14.25; choice light weight stockers are eligible to $14.00; total receipts were estimated at 51,725, an increase of 9,300 over last Wednesday and 6,800 more than a year ago.

Offerings of hogs totaled around 68,900, as compared with 66,219 a week ago, and 58,138 a year ago; increased receipts resulted in a general decline of 5 to 15c; heavy butchers showing the most loss; the day's top of $13.00 was paid at Chicago.

The uneven distribution of the supply accounted for an uneven fat lamb market; Chicago with a liberal run of 30,000 opened 15-25c lower but closed mostly steady; other points were on a steady to 25c higher basis; aged stock was unchanged; range lambs in Chicago cashed up to $15.50 or equal to the best price on Tuesday; total arrivals around the loop were estimated at 67,300, against 62,592 a week ago, and 73,704 a year ago.

MARKET REVIEW

R. O. Harvey and Co., rooms 630-34, Harvey-Snider Bldg., received the following Wednesday on cotton, grain and stocks from their New York and Chicago connections:

Cotton

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Market narrow and shows poor response to present adverse weather conditions in the east belt and reliable deterioration reports from Texas. Hedge sales small. Present sentiment inclined to bear side due to absence of aggressive trade demand and variance private crop reports. While we believe any important development prior to report is hardly to be expected we would not be surprised to see a fair sized covering movement develop.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Generally speaking, the market appeared more confused and erratic than it has for some days past. At times it created the impression of an impending general reaction. Around midday for instance, it was quite obvious that the industrial list was being called upon to withstand a great amount of selling pressure but just when sellers appeared to be making definite progress toward creating lower prices, General Motors and Chrysler were taken vigorously in hand and bid up aggressively. The feature of the last hour was a brisk advance in Texas Corporation. To a new high of 70. It has been known for some time that the Fisher Bros. were counted among the large stockholders of the company and there were rumors abroad of further recent acquisitions of the stock by the same group. Some of the other oils followed moderately the lead of Texas Corporation. The large selling orders came into the industrials during the morning were attributed to the unexpectedly large increase in brokers loans during August as reported by the New York stock exchange statements. Call money renewed at 7½ per cent and stayed there all day. Wide movements in the Motion Picture stocks in the morning were regarded as a cautionary signal by the more conservative trading elements. Heavy profit taking in Fox and Warner Bros. appeared around midday.

Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Wheat market was dull and prices averaged slightly lower on scattered local and northwestern selling. There was fair support at times, but the market was easily influenced. Weather conditions in Canadian northwest were favorable for harvesting and official reports indicated that rapid progress was being made. Forecast was for generally fair and warm. Movement of new wheat in prairie provinces is increasing rapidly. Export demand at seaboard was slow with sales of 300,000 bushels reported in all positions. Liverpool closed ⅛ to ¼ lower. Crop comments from Australia and Argentine were favorable. Buying against bids checked the decline.

September corn was somewhat easier on scattered selling, part of it attributed to longs, while deferred futures held within narrow limits and received fair support on dips. Forecast indicated possible light frost in extreme northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota, but had little effect. Spot basis steady to ½ higher.

Oats held within narrow limits and failed to get more than a fraction away from yesterday's finish with September inclined to show relatively more strength than the deferred deliveries.

Rye was influenced largely by action of wheat.

Grain

GRAIN REVIEW
By THOMAS HEYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 5. (US)—Wheat dragged lower today and, like a fat man on a vacation, grew heavier and heavier. Corn stood practically at rest until late in the session when a little short covering pried the load upward slightly.

At the close wheat was down ⅜ to ⅝; corn was ⅛ to ⅜ higher; oats were ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher; rye was off ¼ to ⅜.

Hedging began to make its appearance in the wheat pit. Selling against wheat in the northwest was trickling into the pit all through the session. The volume of this selling is bound to increase from now on and by next week is likely to be too wet for the market to absorb without price readjustment.

Another local private crop report was issued today. This placed our spring wheat crop at 319,600,000 bushels and the corn crop at 3,088,000,000 bushels. The corn crop last year was 2,774,000,000.

The weather map and the government forecast promises fine and generally warmer weather over the corn belt. A possibility of a light frost in the northeastern corner of North Dakota and the extreme northern part of Minnesota last night was expressed.

Nothing that could do any harm to either wheat or corn is in sight. The corn market acted as if it were shaping itself for a supposed frost scare. The cautious trader will be very slow about following any bulge in corn, no matter what is said to be the cause, if it takes place.

Early strength in wheat today may bring an increase of selling. In any event neither wheat nor corn look like a good purchase to me at the present time.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to ½ lower; corn was unchanged to 1 lower; oats were firm; rye was quiet; barley was unchanged.

SKELLY'S NO 3 STILL ACTIVE

Well Swabbed 1057 Barrels Sunday

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 5.—The Skelly Oil company's No. 3 Armstrong-Byrd in J. W. Proctor survey of southeastern Moore county, the Panhandle field of Northwest Texas, continues to activate that sector of the Panhandle district. At a total depth of 3224 feet it swabbed 1057 barrels Sunday, a wire from Borger says.

Major operators in the Panhandle are again buying in Moore county as a result of the Skelly well's showing. Dixon Creek Oil company has bought the M. V. Cadman and others tract of 860 acres in section 68, block M-3 of G. and M. survey, on which the discovery well in Moore county is located. It is a 50-barrel pumper at a total depth of 3360 feet.

Phillips Petroleum company has purchased 300 acres offsetting the new Skelly well, all being on the Joe Sneed ranch, in the Maltilda Robinson survey, and the Texas company bought 80 acres in the west half of the northeast of section 70, block 3 of G. and M. survey.

Another failure is chalked up for the Sparks area of Lincoln county. The Bu-Vi-Bar Petroleum corporation's No. 1 School Land, in the northeast of the southeast of 16-13n-4e, has quit with a hole full of water at 5330 feet.

The north area of the Champagnolle pool of Union county, Arkansas, is yielding some oil in spite of its spotted territory.

Skelly Oil company No. 1 Slade in the southwest of the southeast of 3-17-14, had a broken sand from 3212 to 3236 feet, and after shutting off water, swabbed 100 barrels of oil in 16 hours.

GAS DEMAND ON INCREASE

Tourists Swell Average Consumption

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 5.—Mid-Continent refiners report that gasoline consumption records were broken and all refineries were drawn on heavily by tourists and vacationists. Ideal weather helped the auto owners to get out into the country.

The heavy demand of late August and depleted stocks during the three days holiday has caused jobbers to enter the September market and order fresh motor fuel supplies in a brisk fashion. As a result U. S. (58-60, 437 endpoint) motor grade is firm at 9¾ cents. Shipments are also reported going forth briskly.

High Gravities Firm

The higher gravities are also firm, but the absence of any export buying is causing quotations to hold. The 60-62, 400 endpoint, grade is held strong at 10¼ cents; the 390 endpoint material of 64-66 grade is at 10⅝ cents, and the 375 endpoint material firm at 10⅜ to 10⅞ cents.

Natural gasolines, which sagged a week ago from a peak of 10⅜ cents and dropped to 9⅛ to 9¾ cents, seems to be holding thereabouts. Development of new supplies from the more active spots in Seminole field caused the drop, coupled with a tendency on the part of some customers to curtail purchases. A survey of the Seminole field gasoline plants shows that 880,000 gallons is being manufactured daily, and this averages 100 cars a day, while the new plants and additions will swell this total to over 900,000 gallons a day and approximate 106 cars a day.

Sinclair Leads

Sinclair Oil and Gas company leads with a daily production of 267,000 gallons; Carter Oil company is second with 190,000 gallons; Empire Gasoline company third for 133,000 gallons; Victor Gasoline company, 41,000 gallons; Roxana Petroleum corporation, 35,000 gallons; Pure Oil company, 34,000 gallons; Amerada Petroleum corporation, 30,000 gallons; Barnsdall Oil company, 30,000 gallons; Forrest E. Gilmore company, 28,000 gallons; Independent Oil and Gas company, 27,000 gallons; Magnolia Petroleum company, 23,000 gallons; Moran & Gillespie, 20,000 gallons; Crosbie & Moran, 17,000 gallons; Skelly Oil company, 8,000 gallons and others, 16,000 gallons.

Burning oils are all improving. The 41-43 grade of kerosene is strong at 6½ to 6¾ cents, with 42-44 grade commanding 7⅛ to 7¼ cents and very scarce. Shipments are good.

Fuel oils are reported perking up and the 24-26 grade is reported at 62½ to 67½ cents a barerl.

Chinese Fruit Grows Well in Texas Soil

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 5. (AP)—The jujubee, a fruit of Chinese origin is seen here as a crop with bright possibilities for the future.

It grows on a tree that resembles the apple, both in taste and appearance. Three trees planted here mainly for a novelty have borne heavily this season and horticultural experts are investigating the feasibility of its being grown on a commercial basis.

Apples will not thrive in this section due to the salinity of the soil.

HOW COME?

Texas Convict in Two Pens at Same Time, Almost

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 5. (AP)—Joe Bakasha was in prison in Texas and Utah at one and the same time, records showed.

Joe was sent to prison in Texas. A. F. Bennett, inspector in charge of the immigration bureau here, learned that Joe was liable to deportation to Albania as an unlawful resident.

"Where did you live before you came to Texas?" Bennett asked Joe.

"Oh, I was in the Utah penitentiary," Bakasha replied.

Bennett wired the Utah prison officials and they replied that Joe Bakasha couldn't be in jail in Texas because he was in the Utah prison. Bennett then asked Joe "how come?"

"That's easy," Joe replied. "You see, that's my cousin with the same name as me."

So when this Joe Bakasha finishes his term at Hunstville he will get free passage to Albania.

Poisoned Booze Seized in Raids

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 5. (UP)—Drinkers of bootleg whisky in Kansas City are being poisoned, judging from evidence obtained in extensive police raids the last three days, police officers declared today.

In one of the most extensive drives on bootlegging and gambling joints in recent years, 38 places were raided and 40 persons arrested. Several thousand gallons of liquor were confiscated. Of the first 16 cases examined by the prosecutor's assistants today, only seven were filed on in justice courts.

"Most of the stuff seized is of so low a quality that it is surprising that drinkers are able to walk away," Sergt. Elmer Duncan, who had charge of the raids, said. "In the majority of the places raided we found denatured alcohol in the whisky an dbeer, and in many instances we found no effort had been made to remove the poison from the alcohol.

"The indifference of the bootleggers in poisoning their patrons was evidenced by the fact bottles of alcohol bearing 'poison' labels were found in the places raided."

New Rudder to Increase Speed of Steamships

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 5. (AP)—Six vessels of the Lykes steamship line, which make South Texas ports are to add a knot an hour to their speed by the installation of a "streamline" rudder. A contract has been awarded for the work. The new type rudder which adds speed without increase in fuel consumption has been tested on one of the vessels extensively before decision was reached to install it on other ships of the line.

Imprisoned Cat Draws Aid by Lamentations

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Sept. 5. (UP)—Apparently anxious to test the superstitution that a cat has nine lives, someone imprisoned a feline between floor and ceiling of a vacant house here. A neighbor, disturbed by the constant cries of the cat for the past nine days, reported the disturbance to police. They ripped up the floor and out leaped the cat—black, white and hungry.

SCHOOLS SEEK NEW BUILDINGS

$9,828,950 Appropriation Is Asked

Special to Record News

AUSTIN, Sept. 5.—Educational buildings and purchases of additional land at state schools of higher learning, to cost $9,828,950 have been asked by presidents and regents of the institutions, for inclusion in the 1929-30 state budget.

The board of control has acted on part of the requests. Under a new ruling of this board, its action on the various items will not be disclosed until the budget is completed and printed, about next January.

It is known the building requests will be trimmed sharply. Unofficial estimates indicate the board of control will cut them below half; while the legislature itself may cut some items still more and has the power to restore items stricken out by the board.

The building requests include $3,448,000 for A. and M. college and its branches, the item for A. and M. proper being $1,150,000 for the two years. It includes $3,526,500 new construction and land purchases for the system of teacher colleges. Under a ruling of the attorney general, the School of Mines at El Paso, subordinate to the University of Texas, has been held the only university unit empowered to receive building appropriations. A total of $116,079 remains on the delinquent rolls for 1927 and prior years, it was revealed Wednesday by W. R. Hyer, city tax assessor and collector.

"When I first took office several years ago, I felt that it was kindness to people to give them considerable time when they asked for it in the payment of their taxes.

"I have found that it was the greatest injustice that could have been done in the majority of cases, as the person who was allowed to let his tax payment ride for a while would awaken all of a sudden to find he had two years to pay instead of one."

It was pointed out that the $116,079 now outstanding carries a 10 per cent penalty for being allowed to go delinquent. This sum totals $11,607.90 which the taxpayers have needlessly saddled on themselves in addition to the $116,079, Mr. Hyer said.

SOUTH PLAINS BUILDS ROADS

Harrison Tells of Progress On Highways

Hurbert Harrison, general manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce returned Wednesday bringing the word of good roads and good road work from the South Plains area he has been visiting and assisting on roads at the request of the directors of the local chamber.

Particular interest was centered in highway 28 which c 's off of the Glacier to Gulf highway at Vernon and runs west to the New Mexico line through Crowell, Paducah, Matador, Floydada, Plainview, Olton and Muleshoe.

Mr. Harrison said that much highway improvement work is being done all over that territory and that plans for paving and otherwise improving highway 28 have been completed in every county save Floyd, in which is located Floydada.

The people in that part of Texas feel kindly to Wichita Falls he said, due to the friendly interest shown by this city and the help and assistance that has been given whenever needed.

The roads in the South Plains country have improved to such an extent that there is no comparision with the roads of a few years ago, he said.

Asking for Information About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. GLADYS ROGERS
Route 5, Grand Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl about 14 years old, when I was just entering womanhood. Then after I married, I took more of it. During the time before my baby was born this medicine gave me splendid results. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation also and recommend these medicines to my friends and will answer letters asking about them."—Mrs. Gladys Rogers, Route 5, Grand Avenue Atlanta, Georgia.

A Lot Better By Taking It

Trafford, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I could not eat a thing. I had no appetite whatever and never felt good. I was talking to my friend one day and she passed the remark of how thin I was getting since I got married and I told her my trouble and she advised me to take the Vegetable Compound. I feel a lot better now since I have been taking it regularly and I can eat most anything. I recommend your medicine to anyone who tells me of troubles like my own, for I know what it has done for me. I have also used your Sanative Wash. I am willing to answer women if they ask about the medicine."—Mrs. E. Gelatic, Box 502, Trafford, Pa.

FILL HERE for extra miles

ALONG all the important highways and main arteries of traffic—and even in the more remote places—you will find pumps displaying the familiar Continental Soldier trade-mark.

And it will pay you well to fill your tank only at these pumps. For only then can you be sure of getting Summer Conoco Gasoline, the real extra miles motor fuel.

Right now in the fifteen states comprising Conocoland motorists are enjoying the free trips which Conoco's extra miles make possible.

If you want to save money and make your car cover more ground per gallon of gasoline, you'll be at the Conoco pump at filling time.

The first rule for economy in summer driving is to look for the sign of the Continental Soldier.
