Bill Spruell of Canadian and Becky Smith of Pampa seem to do an expert job of administering emergency first aid to Mark Rone of Pampa, even though he didn't really need anything. All three were students in the Red Cross emergency first aid course held last week in the Gray County Red Cross rooms at City Hall. Taught by Hunter Chisum of Pampa, the eight - hour course was attended by ten residents of Pampa and Canadian.

Electoral college to vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is the day that Walter Minch of Parma, Ohio, and 537 other relatively unknown Americans are going to elect a president of the United States.

Minch and his colleagues are members of one of the nation's oldest and most exclusive colleges — the electoral college. Under the Constitution, the electoral college, and not the 79 million persons who voted last month, selects the next president.

Minch is one of the majority of electors pledged to Jimmy Carter, who has been acting as President-elect since Nov. 2 in anticipation of today's formality.

In 50 state capitals and the District of Columbia, 538 presidential electors will meet to cast their ballots. A state's electoral total is equal to the number of congressmen and senators from the state, plus three for the District of Columbia. The man who gets 270 votes wins.

If all goes predictably, Carter will get 297 votes and President Ford will get 241. The results will be sent to Washington and officially announced Jan. 6 by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

Only then will Carter officially be declared the president-elect. The drawn-out schedule is a relic of the slower pace of travel and communications in 1787, when the plan was written.

But all does not always go predictably. In Ohio, a group of Republicans is seeking a ruling from a federal judge that would block Minch and Ohio's other 24 Carter electors from voting in Columbus. They claim vote fraud tainted Carter's 11,000-vote victory there last month.

Even if their suit succeeded, Carter would stand a good chance to be elected, since he would expect to receive 272 votes, two more than the necessary majority.

There is no constitutional requirement that the electors vote for the candidate to whom they are pledged. In 1972, for example, Virginia elector Roger MacBride, pledged to Richard Nixon, voted instead for John Hospers, that year's Libertarian party presidential candidate. MacBride himself was the Libertarian candidate this year.

Actions like MacBride's are rare. But it is custom and political party discipline, not force of law, that prevent [illegible] verick votes from negating the will of the people as expressed in the popular vote.

The framers of the Constitution, in fact, did not envision direct election by the people of the president. In an age of monarchies, direct election smacked too much of anarchy.

As Alexander Hamilton wrote in "The Federalist," it was "peculiarly desirable to afford as little opportunity as possible to tumult and disorder."

The Hamiltonians felt that the election of a president was too important to be left directly to the people. [illegible] envisioned the college as [illegible] men who [illegible] still on [illegible] three presidential candidates would get the most votes, [illegible] John Quincy Adams, Rutherford B. Hayes, [illegible] Benjamin Harrison and [illegible] 1888.

Carter talking with prospects

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — W. Michael Blumenthal, a specialist in international economics who served in the Johnson and Kennedy administrations, is President-elect Carter's choice to be treasury secretary, sources close to Carter say.

Carter also was said to be "almost certain" to name Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, a former vice president of IBM Corp., as commerce secretary.

The President-elect is holding further meetings at the governor's mansion here today with other Cabinet prospects. He said he will announce some Cabinet-level appointments at a news conference at 2:30 p.m. EST Tuesday.

Another Cabinet post which Carter is believed ready to fill is that of defense secretary. Harold Brown, a Pentagon official in the Johnson administration, has been rumored as the top contender for that post.

Carter's meetings today involved potential candidates for attorney general and secretaries of agriculture and housing and urban development.

First to arrive for an interview was Rep. Bob Bergland, D-Minn., a farmer and member of the House Agriculture Committee who is being considered for secretary of agriculture.

Also on the calling list were two men considered for the top post at the Department of Housing and Urban Development: Robert C. Embry Jr., commissioner of Baltimore's housing and community development, and Franklin Thomas, a black who heads the Bedford-Stuyvesant Corp. in Brooklyn.

U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Johnson and retired Circuit Court Judge Griffin Bell, both Southerners, also were meeting with Carter. Their advice was sought for choice of attorney general, and one of them could wind up being considered for the post. Accompanying Bell was Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee which will review Carter's nomination for attorney general.

Carter's final appointment of the day was with Ray Marshall, a University of Texas economics professor who presumably could be a candidate for an economics-related post.

Carter press secretary Jody Powell said the President-elect's news conference Tuesday will be held either at the governor's mansion or the auditorium of a nearby museum. The session will be available for live television and radio broadcast, he said.

Blumenthal, 50, is chairman of Bendix Corp., the diversified manufacturer based near Detroit. He was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1947, becoming a U.S. citizen five years later.

Ford leaving successor with energy problems

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The departing Ford administration is handing the incoming Carter team a raft of unfinished energy business, ranging from fuel taxes to the fate of the nuclear breeder reactor.

President-elect Carter promised Northeastern governors last week that he would develop a unified energy policy by April 1.

A group of Carter's transition staffers got their first full-scale briefing in a recent marathon session at the Interior Department, where Ford administration officials skimmed through major issues facing the new administration.

Summarizing the briefing in an interview, Stanley Doremus, deputy assistant interior secretary for program development and budget, said offshore oil and Western coal development pose major policy questions for the Carter administration.

He said the Carter administration will have to decide whether to keep the present schedule of offshore petroleum leasing and will face other, more substantive issues dealing with the Outer Continental Shelf.

Doremus said the new administration also will have to think about a host of questions under the coal-leasing program, beginning with the issue of whether to proceed with coal leasing in the West.

After a five-year moratorium, Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe has adopted new regulations to resume the leasing of Western federal coal lands. Carter has publicly favored a greater emphasis on development of Appalachian coal in the East.

Doremus said other Interior Department issues outlined for Carter's team included:

—Plans need to be prepared to develop Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4, in Alaska, being transferred from the Navy to the Interior Department.

—A presidential recommendation to Congress is due by next Sept. 1 on the choice of a transportation system for Alaskan natural gas.

—A decision is needed on whether to authorize a pipeline system to pump Alaskan oil from a California tanker port to Texas. In the meantime, what should be done with surplus Alaskan oil reaching the West Coast?

—The new administration needs to develop a position on congressional proposals for a nationwide strip-mining control law.

Carter may consider whether to divert some of ERDA's funds from the costly breeder reactor project — aimed at developing a nuclear power plant that produces new fuel — into solar power development, research on clean ways to burn coal, or nuclear fusion.

City schedules public hearings

The first of two public hearings on Pampa's pre-application for a $250,000 handout from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development's Community Block Grant Program is scheduled for Tuesday's semi-monthly meeting of the Pampa City Commission.

The Commission will meet at 9:30 a.m. on the second floor of City Hall.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the hearing is required by law to give Pampa citizens a chance to voice their wishes on how the money should be spent — if granted.

The city manager said he understood present thoughts of the city commissioners are that it should be spent for water distribution lines in the city's south and southeast areas.

The money, Wofford stated, must be spent in what HUD describes as moderate to low income sections of the city.

Other items on the Tuesday agenda include:

Public hearing on a proposed zoning change from SF-2 to SF-3 for Lots 10 through 15 in Block 1 of the Boadmoor Addition and Lots 17 and 18 in Block 1 of the Cole Addition.

Authorization for payment of Estimate No. 12 to the Wes-Tex Construction Co. for work on the city's sewage treatment plant.

Report concerning proposed 1977 fire protection contracts with the Counties of Gray, Roberts and Carson and the City of Lefors.

First reading of an ordinance changing zoning designation on Lots 1 through 10, Block 7 of the Prairie Village Addition, from retail to commercial.

Kissinger home to stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A diplomatic era is at an end: After traveling some 564,000 miles to 57 countries as secretary of state, Henry A. Kissinger is home to stay.

"There are no more foreign trips," he said with finality as he flew Sunday from London after exploring with British officials for ways to form a transition government in Rhodesia.

Kissinger, aboard his plane, seemed at ease in gray sweater, blue slacks and black traveling slippers. As always, his trousers slid below the paunch at times, the white of his shorts showing. Ordering champagne for the dozen reporters aboard, he had a diet soft drink for himself.

During his 39 months as secretary of state, the champagne had became a custom on the last legs of Kissinger's trips as he flew abroad — to the Middle East to separate Israel and the Arabs, to the Kremlin and Peking for negotiations, to countries ranging from Afghanistan to Zambia.

There were no special touches this last time aboard U.S. Air Force 86970, Kissinger's four-engine jet, although a few more personal photographs than usual were taken.

At Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, some two dozen staff aides, their wives and children stood in a drizzle to welcome him back for the last time. The Kissinger family dog, a retriever named Tyler, also was there, tugging at the leash to greet his master.

Kissinger made no statements. At the start of the six-day final trip to Brussels and London, he even "retired" the senior official who always traveled with him and briefed the press under ground rules that required the briefer be identified only as "a senior official."

With less than six weeks in office, Kissinger was lowering his profile, going into a "decompression stage." He did not want to appear to be overshadowing his successor, Cyrus R. Vance.

"I get to pick the artist," Kissinger remarked during the trip about the portrait of him that will hang with those of Dean Acheson, John Foster Dulles and others in the State Department. "Only Vance decides which corridor it goes," he said.

Kissinger thinks he is still young enough at 53 to come back to government in some future Republican administration. "I would like to point out," he told the NATO foreign ministers at a farewell session Friday in Brussels, "that at the end of the Mondale administration, I will only be 69 years old."

This was a wry reference to the possibility that Jimmy Carter will serve eight years in the White House and that Vice President-elect Walter Mondale then will be elected president for two terms.

Kissinger's next scheduled trip overseas will be to the Caribbean sometime after Carter is inaugurated. Vacationing with his wife, Nancy, Kissinger will sort his papers and plan his memoirs.

Cassidy dies in fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A smoldering cigarette may have sparked the fire that killed actor-singer Jack Cassidy, sweeping his penthouse apartment after a party and charring his body beyond recognition, a fire official says.

The body was discovered early Sunday in the West Hollywood apartment belonging to the dimpled, silver-haired performer. It was several hours before the coroner's office said that dental charts had confirmed the victim was Cassidy, 49, father of onetime teen-age singing idol David Cassidy and ex-husband of actress-singer Shirley Jones.

An autopsy was scheduled for today, but the spokesman said there was no evidence to indicate anything but an accidental death.

PUC slashes Bell proposal

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The new Texas Public Utility Commission today slashed a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate increase proposal by more than 80 per cent and ordered a $63.4 million reduction in business and residential charges.

The commission approved a rate increase of only $57.8 million, compared with the company's request for $298.3 million.

The order adopted the proposal by the commission's staff for business and residential telephones in all ten categories based on population.

The difference will be made up mainly by a $65 million increase in intrastate long distance telephone charges.

Pay telephones calls will cost 20 cents. Directory information calls over ten per month would cost 20 cents each except for the blind and physically handicapped and except calls made from pay telephones or hospitals.

Testimony before the PUC showed some businesses have been making more than 10,000 directory assistance calls per month free of charge.

PBX (switchboard) rates will go up $7 million.

Key telephone services —six button sets — would go up $11.6 million.

The company will get $13.2 million in additional revenue from service connections, moves and change charges.

Princess and trimline telephone charges will go up $3.1 million. Centrex will go up $2.9 million.

WATS (wide area telephone service) charges will go up $3.5 million.

There will be no increase in private line services, such as used by news organizations and fire alarm businesses.

Doyle Rogers, Bell's chief executive officer for Texas, said there is "a very great chance" the company will appeal the order to state district court. They will have to study it to see if it is "confiscatory," he said.

The commission also ordered the company to print on new directories examples of charges for long distance calls.

Plant employes seek benefits

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

An estimated 25 Packerland employes had registered for unemployment benefits by noon today at the Texas Employment Commission's Pampa Office.

The action follows an announcement Friday that Packerland would suspend killing cattle in Texas on Dec. 10, and the Pampa plant would be converted into a boning operation.

The original announcement by Bernard Berk, Packerland president, stated that all employes who wished to remain would be given an opportunity to do so.

"Any rumors in the community which are in anyway contrary to our present advice can be safely and completely disregarded," Berk said.

However, by noon Friday unconfirmed reports revealed that Packlerand had given orders to cut the payroll from an estimated 250 to 100 by today.

Jim Kerr, general manager, denied the rumors. "I don't know where you are getting such information, but it isn't true," he said Friday. He could not be reached for comment today.

Those who registered for unemployment this morning had worked in various departments, and were apparently earning from $3 to $4 per hour.

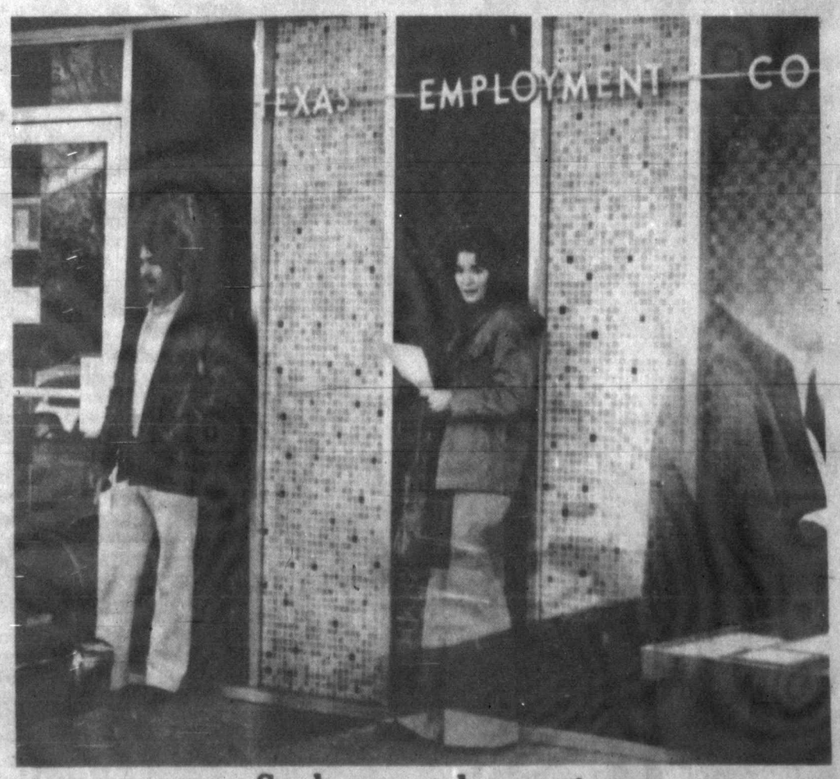

Maximum unemployment benefits in Texas are $63 weekly.

One woman, who declined to be named, said her husband was not offered an opportunity to work in the boning operations.

"This hurts right here at Christmas time," said another. Still another said when the announcement was made Thursday that slaughtering would be suspended, Packerland officials said those who wished could place names on a list for employment in the boning operations.

Some said they did. Others said they did not. One employe said he understood the plant would "start up again on April 10."

Packerland payroll Friday was estimated at $3 million annually in Pampa.

Seek unemployment

A steady flow of Packerland employes were registering for unemployment benefits today at the Texas Employment Commission's Pampa office. The apparent layoff follows a Friday announcement that slaughtering here would be suspended Dec. 10. Outside the TEC office this morning were Lisa Aufleger and Albian Baeze, who were registering for unemployment. Meanwhile inside the TEC office this double exposure depicts actions at the front counter.

For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

"What did you expect after all these years of neglect?"

thom marshall's FORUM and against 'em

We've recently heard and read much concerning conditions in Mexican prisons, as described by some of the 600 or so Americans being held down there.

I can't believe they will find their lives greatly enriched if they are brought back across the Rio Grande to complete their sentences in one of the lockups provided by their native country.

Prisons are not nice places. Whether in Coahuila, Calcutta, or California, they all are occupied by undesireables.

Like festering boils, prisons all should be opened up, drained, and left so that plenty of air can get into them and soon they will go away.

Oh, we'll still have bad folks around, but we will have admitted that concentrating badness in prisons is no way to cure the malady.

In the first place, only a teeny, tiny percentage of the criminals ever see the inside of a hoosegow. Something like 85 per cent of them never feel the slightest embrace from the long arm of the law.

Of those who do get caught, many of them get off scot-free through the efforts of their lawyers. And there are others who draw probated sentences and thereby escape serving time.

Which brings us to the second place: Since prison usage is so limited, it can't be worth much as a deterrent. Further proof of this argument is found in the high percentage of prison graduates who return to their old walls of ivy for additional courses.

They can devote full time to learning how to be better burglars, rapists, or what-have-you from fellow inmates. And they don't have to worry about providing food, clothing, shelter, medical care, etc., for themselves.

Which leads into the third place: By the time you total up the cost of catching, trying, and caging a crook, it creates a bit of wonderment about who, in fact, is being punished the most — the crooks or the taxpayers.

There's more here than the cost of some striped suits, bread and water, and the salaries of the guards.

What about the tremendous cost of the nation's many courts? If we didn't have any prisons we wouldn't need the courts creating prisoners for us. We could save all the salaries and expenses now going to city attorneys, county attorneys, district attorneys, public defenders, probation officers, county judges, district judges, federal judges, justices of the peace, court recorders, secretaries for most of them, and the multitude of other related positions that I don't have room enough or sufficient memory to list here.

So much for the judicial branch of the government. Let's look for a second at the legislative limb. We can stop going out on it as well.

When we cease punishing law breakers we will no longer need to have laws made — which is what congress does. So out they can go, just like that. No more indiscriminate creation of regulatory bureaus with unlimited powers. No more ridiculous red tape and regulations for us to wrestle with.

We're one branch away from freedom.

The third tine of the governmental trident is the executive. With no bills to sign or veto, why would we need a president?

That former goober - nut - orial executive from Georgia who's on his way to the throne under the dome at D.C. has indicated he is going to trim away excess government. He can't be serious. Hell, Jimmy, it's all excess.

If Mr. Carter would indeed set us free, let him begin by closing the prisons and let him not interfere when, following that act, nature takes its course and the entire system collapses.

We just don't need the government's threat of punishment hanging constantly over our country.

Are human interrelationships based on a fear of retribution? I think not. I believe it is the nature of a man to do unto others as he'd have them do unto him. Most of us behave properly as a matter of pride and inherent common decency. We wouldn't rob and pillage even if we were certain we would face no punishment.

Principled leadership need of US

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

It is widely believed that our great national celebration — the Bicentennial — will come to an end this year. Officially, however, the commemoration is supposed to continue through the Bicentenary of the Constitutional Convention, in 1987, and the Bicentenary of the inauguration of the first President of the United States, in 1989.

Russell Kirk, the great American scholar, recently cited the continuing nature of these national celebrations in The University Bookman. He expressed the hope that the celebrations of 1976 are "only a prelude to grander commemorations during the latter part of the Bicentenary of the American Revolution." Millions of citizens share his hope.

After all, we have plenty to celebrate in America. We continue to enjoy a very wide measure of liberty in this country, which our forefathers won for us, despite the growth of oppressive government — bureaucracy — in recent times. And the continuing celebrations will remind the American people tht they have numerous opportunities for noble efforts in defense of the liberties that are their heritage.

Liberties, of course, aren't permanently won. They have to be fought for generation after generation. Sometimes, the fighting is such as took place on the Normandy beaches and at Guadalcanal in World War II. On other occasions, the struggle to preserve liberties is of a less violent but equally important sort — a political, intellectual, and moral struggle to maintain a free society.

The great danger of the late 20th century is the spread of tyrannical government, of totalitarianism in its many guises. In the Western world, the emergence of enormous, faceless bureaucracies represent a totalitarian potential.

Bureaucracies limit and then destroy the rights of individual citizens and individual communities. Enormous, centralized bureaucracies intrude into personal lives, usurp community authority, and dictate to educators and religious leaders.

Defense of our liberties also involves a defense of private property against Big Government. Indeed, there is an intimate and direct connection between property and personal liberty.

Many citizmes are aware of this and of the threat to American liberty posed by the demands of government on the property of the individual. Recently, a group of prominent citizens in Knoxville, Tenn., took the unusual and commendable step of issuing "A Declaration of National Emergency" in the form of the 1776 Declaration of Independence.

These Tennesseans issued this Declaration to warn that the nation has been put on a "collision course with financial destruction." The signers of this Declaration called for a renewed edication to "financial security, sacrifice where necessary, respect, hard work, and justice for all." They condemned the swollen size and cost of government.

Such declarations have a useful place in the celebrations of the Bicentenary. If the United States is to survive as a free and independent republic in the 21st century, it will need principled leadership in the 1970s and 1980s. It will need greater public awareness of the peril to a free society inherent in the reckless expansion of bureaucratic power. It will endure if Americans rededicate themselves to limited, constitutional government and to frugality in administration of the public business.

NO BOON TO U.S. OAS charter boobytrapped

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 — To the public at large, the name Alejandro Orfila doesn't mean a thing, but it should because he is definitely someone to keep a wary eye on.

As Secretary General of the Organization of American States (OAS), the crafty Argentinian is masterminding a potential time-bomb that could prove highly costly to the U.S. in a lot of ways.

It's a so-called "new charter" for the OAS that is loaded with pretentious gobbledegook and sly anti-U.S. boobytraps.

This draft has been in formulation for three years by the OAS Permanent Council, most of whose members are notoriously hostile to the U.S. Of the approximately 100 articles comprising the docement, the U.S. vigorously opposed some 90 per cent of them.

One good reason is graphically illustrated by the following:

An OAS member nation can be accused by one or more members of "economic aggression" and assessed "damages" by a majority vote. How much is presumably left up to the membership.

That the U.S. is the primary target of this extraordinary provision was conclusively demonstrated during the prolonged discussion of it.

Scapegoat

Virtually all the fulminations and harangues were aimed at the U.S. It was everybody's villain.

U.S. tariffs, trade policies and business practices were furiously excoriated in general and in particular. The inflamed rhetoric ranged far and wide, and alleged grievances going back decades were singled out for vehement castigation.

But strikingly, not once throughout the protracted tirading was there any reference to Venezuela — whose sky-high oil prices gouge other Latin American countries, as well as the U.S.

Similarly, nothing was said about Brazil, leading coffee producer, which wields a grasping hand in demanding all the market will bear.

Also remarkably, the draft charter wholly ignores a key OAS problem — its top-heavy, overpaid and bumbling bureaucracy.

Extensively overhauling and modernizing the OAS organizational system and personnel was a principal reason for extablishing the Permanent Council to formulate a new charter.

Instead, after three years of cogitating, orating and concocting, the council blandly disregarded this flagrant flaw.

Repeated efforts by Robert White, deputy U.S. representative on the council, to tackle it were brushed off. His remedial proposals were either pigeonholed or just plain discarded.

The council majority was patently bent on socking the U.S., and that's the kind of biased and distorted charter that was produced.

What's Next

From the establishment of the OAS in 1948, the U.S. has put up 66 per cent of its budget — approximately $60 million this year.

But the U.S. does not have veto power.

It has only one vote — the same as the other 24 members nations. Cuba, 25th member, was in effect expelled in 1962 when an OAS majority voted to deny Cuban participation on the ground of "exporting revolution."

Fate of the proposed "new charter" is questionable.

It's distinctly doubtful the dynamite-loaded document will ever come to a conclusive showdown in the OAS.

It has a long and uncertain way to go before that.

First test is slated later this month when the Permanent Council ballots on preamble and a report on the draft as a whole. From inside word about both, they too are decidedly anti-U.S. — in keeping with the flagrant bias of the individual articles.

As the council produced this opus, it's virtually certain to approve it for submission to the 24 active OAS members nations.

Once in their hands, the story is likely to be different.

Already, the U.S. has made it forcefully clear to top officials of these governments that it considers the draft charter vindictive, disruptive and unacceptable.

In effect, the U.S. has flatly condemned it and advocated its junking.

The chances appear good that's exactly what will happen.

Understandably, Secretary General Orfila is vigorously opposing that and doing his utmost to avert it. So far, the former Argentine ambassador seems to be making little headway with the home governments.

Even Buenos Aires is cold-shouldering him. In fact, under the present regime, he wouldn't even be an envoy.

Next regular meeting of the OAS General Assembly is to take place in May on the island of Grendada in the Caribbean.

So far there is, no agenda. Orfila is straining to make the draft a priority topic. Whether he can maneuver that remains to be seen. In an effort to put it over, he has slated an "extraordinary" meeting of the Permanent Council in Lima, Peru, early next year with the draft charter as the sole business.

But it's a toss-up whether the military junta ruling Peru will permit this gathering. Don't bet on it.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: The Harp Witch tells Billy he can slay Goko the giant if he brings her the Rosanna Ruby to set in a magic necklace.

CHAPTER SEVEN
THREE ISLANDS

The Harp Witch told Santa there was an island where diamonds and amethysts and pearls and opals grew on trees.

"Among the trees," said the witch, "there is a grove of rubies and here the Rosanna Ruby is to be found. It is the fairest stone of all. If you can pluck it you need have no fear of Goko. I shall put the stone in a magic necklace that will tighten around his throat and he will be helpless."

Santa and Billy rushed off with Theodore the turtle in search of the jewel. The sea was rough. The turtle's upside down shell rocked and bobbed in the waves. Water splashed over the sides. The wind beat the sail and the boom swung back and forth knocking them all to the bottom of the wobbly little boat.

At last Theodore called out, "There is an island straight ahead!"

Thank goodness, thought Billy. He was feeling seasick. He had already had enough sea voyage to last him all his life. But when they came ashore they found this was not the Jewel Island after all.

A round cheeked brownie was sitting on the beach beating on a child's drum. He told them this was the Island of Lost Toys. "Have you lost a toy?" he asked Billy.

"Oh, yes," said Billy. "I've lost lots of toys! A whistle and a red and blue rubber ball and a baseball bat and a little tin soldier and—"

"They are all here," said the brownie. He pointed to a mountain of balls and toy trucks and dolls and pocket knives and kites and tops and even pogo sticks. They were all lost toys, he explained. "Every toy that is lost is brought to this island by the Play Brownies."

"What happens to them then?" asked Santa.

"Once a year the brownies take the toys back to the world and hide them in strange places for children to come upon unexpectedly."

"I once found my missing roller skate behind the kitchen stove!" exclaimed Billy.

"I expect the brownies put it there," smiled the brownie. "Now why don't you look for your other missing toys here?"

Billy was already shuffling through a pile of tin soldiers but Santa said they must hurry on their way.

They piled back in their rockety boat and rocked off. Twice more they came ashore and twice more they found they had not yet come to the Isle of Jewels.

The first place was called Candy Island. Long ago a candy machine on the island lost a screw. Caramels and marshmallows and chocolate creams had been pouring out of the machine ever since and no one had been able to turn if off.

"Can't we stay here a while?" asked Billy eagerly.

Santa said no they must go on for they had lost so much time already and they must hurry and find the Rosanna Ruby.

The next land they came to was Kangaroo Land where kangaroos lived like you and I. They lived in houses and went to school and worked in offices. There were kangaroo policemen and kangaroo children who went to kangaroo birthday parties.

They found a kangaroo sailor standing on the shore. Santa asked him if he could tell them how to reach the Isle of Jewels.

"Certainly," said the kangaroo sailor. He pointed over Santa's shoulder. "Just hop over there!"

Santa turned and saw land that had not been there a moment before. It was an island glittering with the sparkle of precious stones.

Tomorrow: The Rosanna Ruby

The kangaroo sailor pointed to the Isle of Jewels.

Four injured

A teenage girl and three children were reported injured Saturday afternoon when this car driven by a 16-year-old girl, struck a tree in the 1900 block of North Nelson Street. The occupants were treated in the emergency room of Highland General Hospital and released. The investigating officer, Sgt. Charles Morris, said the driver apparently lost control of her car after making a right turn.

Says Yarbrough abused

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr, the lawyer for recently elected Texas Supreme Court nominee Don Yarbrough, says he gets satisfaction out of representing people abused by the government and others.

The State Bar is attempting to disbar Yarbrough, the controversial Houston lawyer who was elected to a six-year term over write-in opposition in November.

Yarbrough is also the target of 15 civil lawsuits.

Carr was hired after the State Bar began its disbarment proceedings against Yarbrough, who is to be sworn in New Year's Day.

Carr said he wants the proceedings against Yarbrough to be handled fairly.

"I think I'd call on the leaders of the bar to let this thing cool, let this thing be tried in a fair manner" Carr said on the weekly television show, "Capital Eye."

Carr represented himself in two criminal trials in federal court on charges of fraud and conspiracy that grew out of the Sharpstown Bank scandal and was acquitted in both trials.

He was extremely upset at the refusal of some of his colleagues to help him because he could not pay the legal fees they asked.

Asked why he was taking on the Yarbrough case, Carr said Yarbrough has been "abused by people in government."

"I get a great deal of interest and satisfaction out of representing people who are being abused by the government or by other people," Carr said.

Because of comments by members of the bar that Yarbrough is "unfit," Carr said, "If we're not careful, we'll have a vigilante move in the bar."

He said Yarbrough's "constitutional right to a fair trial is very seriously threatened" in Houston and Austin. Carr apparently was referring to the widespread publicity and remarks by bar members in those cities.

Asked if Yarbrough was able to pay him, Carr said, "I believe Mr. Yarbrough when he gets where he can will pay me, but quite frankly, no. I don't think he has enough money to pay me a fee at this time."

Carr said he did not even vote for Yarbrough, but Yarbrough "knew that I was sympathetic with his problems."

"How did he know?"

"I told him I was, some time ago," Carr replied.

Carr said a jury trial would be "vital" to Yarbrough's chances in court, and he added that the case probably would not be tried before April at the earliest.

New Mexico convicts saw way to freedom

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Three convicts, one of them a convicted murderer, were at large today after they sawed their way out of a state prison cell block and scaled an outside fence under fire from a tower guard.

Five prisoners were involved in the escape Sunday night from the New Mexico Penitentiary south of Santa Fe. Prison officials said one was captured before he got over the fence and another was found this morning, with a sprained ankle, near the women's prison facility outside the main prison's fences.

Warden Clyde O'Malley said the prisoners apparently used a hacksaw blade to cut through window bars in cell block 5, then headed toward the west fences when they were seen by a tower guard.

"The guard shouted for them to halt before he fired four rounds. One of the men was captured before he could scale the fence," another prison spokesman said.

Warden O'Malley said it wasn't known if any of the escapees were wounded by the shots.

Prison spokesman Maurice Trimmer said tower guards spotted the men heading for the west fences about 7:30 p.m.

"I understand the tower began firing shots at the men as they were between the two fences" surrounding the prison, Trimmer said.

The four who got outside ran west toward nearby Interstate 25.

Trimmer identified those still at large as Franklin Harrison Jr., 26, of Gallup, who has been on death row since his November 1975 felony murder conviction; Jacob Armijo, 40, of Bernalillo County, who began serving terms totaling 21-150 years last January for trafficking in heroin; and Faustino Castillo Jr., 24, of Luna County, sentenced to life imprisonment for raping a child under 13 years old.

Didn't trust banks, lost money anyway

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 99-year-old inventor with a "deep and abiding mistrust of banks" may never know how an old sock stuffed with $2.4 million in negotiable bonds disappeared from his house.

Some investigators speculate that Robert Werk accidentally left the sock in his back yard. But Werk insists the bonds were stolen from the dresser drawer where he kept them, because — according to court testimony — he didn't trust banks.

The two dozen $100,000 U.S. Treasury notes have left a bizzare trail. They wandered for two years through the nation's underworld and into Mexico, and three of them are still lost.

One man has gone to jail and faces a possible second term, and another man has been sentenced to prison in the case.

The notes have now matured and only Werk, who made a fortune by devising a method for extracting oil from cottonseed, can convert them to money. Nevertheless, he stands to lose from $200,000 to $600,000 — part in lost interest and in the missing notes and part depending on litigation over one note cashed by a Mexican bank.

A security guard in the affluent neighborhood where Werk lived testified that he found the bulging sock on a nightly round Nov. 21, 1974. He said it was lying five feet from Werk's back door.

Meryl Rabideau, the guard, said he gave the bonds to attorney Earl J. Schmitt, hoping he would help him get a reward for finding them.

Schmitt said he gave them back, but a jury convicted him of theft and a judge sentenced him to a year in prison. Schmitt appealed and his case remains unsettled.

Fire kills brothers in Fort Worth house

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Two small brothers died Sunday night as fire swept their small home behind their grandfather's house in Southeast Fort Worth.

The brothers — Jason Taylor, 1, and Paul Taylor, 3 — died from inhaling smoke before reaching a hosital.

Their grandfather, Jack Hasty Sr., said he was getting ready to take a bath when a neighbor, Jeffrey Niehay, 16, ran to his door and told him the one-room house in the back was ablaze.

Hasty said the children's mother already had pulled Jason from the buring house by the time he reached it.

"She was screaming, 'Paul's in there!', as she held the other child in her arms," Hasty said. "I hosed myself down with water and ran in to try and save Paul. He was lifeless when I reached him."

He said fire and smoke were heavy in the house — a garage converted into living quarters — as he groped through and found the stricken boy crouched behind a sofa.

District Fire Chief H.E. Shaw theorized that Paul ran behind the sofa in an effort to escape the smoke. He said a gas heater with a rubber hose connection may have caused the fire.

The grandfather said the children's mother was in the house 10 or 15 minutes before Niehay reported the leaping flames. Hasty said the father was not at home.

Delaware cancels lottery bets

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Delaware lottery agents expect to hear from lots of angry bettors after the state canceled all bets on its football lottery over the weekend from fear it might come out on the losing end.

One agent said the state was acting like a bookmaker who closes up shop when he's made too many bad bets.

"Only the state can't leave town," said Charles O'Connor, who sells lottery tickets at his Wilmington pharmacy.

Lottery Director Peter M. Simmons announced Saturday night that the Touchdown II game was canceled. He said the state's line, or point spread, on several games had become especially popular, creating the possibility that the state would have to pay out more in winnings than it took in on bets.

Simmons said he would announce today a program for making refunds on the bets.

The line is a prediction of which team will win and by how much. Delaware's card favored the San Francisco 49ers by 6½ points over the New Orleans Saints.

Gas causes protection questions

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Should gas masks be issued to persons living near the Baton Rouge petrochemical plants? Louisiana Administration Commissioner Charles Roemer says it might be a good idea.

Roemer supervised the evacuation of 10,000 persons Friday night after a chlorine leak at an Allied Chemical Co. plant caused a 42-mile-long cloud of poisonous gas to drift over Central Louisiana.

"What this emergency really showed us was how ill-prepared we were," Roemer said. "Next time we might not be fortunate enough to have the wind blowing away from the population centers."

The poisonous gas drifted northwest of the city, over a sparsely populated agricultural area. Three persons were treated at a Baton Rouge hospital for minor skin and eye irritation.

Although some 100 tons of chlorine vaporized and fell to earth, state wildlife officials said it didn't appear to have much effect on animals, except possibly a few small birds.

The poisonous cloud left some officials worried, however, that next time everything might not work out as well.

"The more time I've had to think about it, the more concerned I am," Roemer said Sunday night. "If the wind had been blowing in any other direction, we would have had a catastrophe."

Roemer said he would ask Gov. Edwin Edwards today to appoint a committee to draft plans for dealing with future leaks of poisonous substances such as chlorine.

And Roemer tossed out his own idea: Supply a gas mask to every person living within five miles of the petrochemical plants that sprawl along the Mississippi River in North Baton Rouge.

"We could have a series of stations for gas masks near the plants," Roemer suggested. But he said "the only effective method would be to have them at every house or every block within five miles of the plants."

Roemer said providing a mask for everyone within five miles of the plants would give officials "a 30-minute warning period" for planning evacuations of areas outside the five-mile radius.

He said he didn't know how much such a system would cost. "But if you put the cost on the basis of one gas mask-one life, I think the cost would be put in the proper perspective."

Roemer said he felt industries would be willing to pay some of the bill.

When evacuations became necessary Friday night, the governor told Roemer to do whatever was necessary, keep up with the costs and give the bill to Allied Chemical.

Roemer said computing the bill would take most of next week. He said he didn't expect any problem in getting the company to pay, adding, "They have insurance to cover this. I'm sure they have contingencies built in."

Socialists take lead

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's ruling Socialist party led today in early returns from nationwide local elections viewed as a referendum on Premier Mario Soares' four-month-old government.

The Socialists had 30.8 per cent of the votes counted, down considerably from the 36.9 per cent they got in the April parliamentary election. But Soares claimed a victory and said that returns from the cities of Lisbon, Oporto, Coimbra and Faro would increase his party's share.

Election officials said less than 20 per cent of the votes Sunday were tabulated, and it was too soon to predict the outcome.

Official returns from 1,526 of the 4,035 election districts gave the Socialists 226,082 votes, the moderate Social Democrats 198,802 (27.1 per cent), the pro-Moscow Communists, running under cover as the United People's Electoral Front, 126,341 votes (17.2 per cent) and the right-wing Social Democratic Center 124,620 (17 per cent).

The rest of the votes were spread among splinter parties and independents.

The Communists more than doubled the 8 per cent they had in the presidential election in June and exceeded their 15.5 per cent in April. But much of their gain appeared to be at the expense of the far-left Popular Unity Movement, which had only 9,456 votes and was hurt by the muzzling of its popular leader, Maj. Otelo Saraiva da Carvalho. He got 17 per cent of the vote in the presidential election and then was banned from politics for taking part in the attempted leftist coup a year ago.

About 61 per cent of the 6.5 million registered voters cast ballots, continuing a declining trend from the 83 per cent turnout last April and 75 per cent in June. The large number of abstentions had been expected to favor both the Communists and the rightists at the expense of the Socialists and Social Democrats.

Soares was attacked from both left and right over measures to check inflation and unemployment, halt Communist land seizures and restore social discipline. Observers said if the Socialists' share of the vote slipped badly, three things might happen: the premier might be forced to resign; he might have to form a coalition with the Social Democrats, or President Antonio Ramalho Eanes might decide to call on the military to take over the government again.

Bishop forgives thousands

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — Despite criticism, Bishop Carroll T. Dozier has performed a "Rite of Reconciliation" for the second straight Sunday, granting mass forgiveness of sins to thousands of Roman Catholics.

"In times past, all of us have been hurt and all of us have hurt. Now we ask forgiveness, we forgive each other," Bishop Dozier said in giving general absolution to about 2,000 Catholics here.

The first such rite, attended by 12,000 people in Memphis last week, was unprecedented in the United States and brought criticism from some Catholic leaders. They felt the forgiveness without individual confession of sins should be administered only in emergency situations, such as to soldiers entering battle.

After last week's ceremony, some bishops said general absolution might be helpful in bringing some Catholics back to active participation, such as those who had been excluded from communion for remarrying after being divorced.

Ray not framed says high court

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to review James Earl Ray's unsuccessful attempts to withdraw his guilty plea in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

The court voted not to consider Ray's contention that he was "framed by the FBI and local police, and then coerced by his own attorney to plead guilty against his will."

Just last week, a special congressional committee authorized $6.5 million for the first year of an investigation into the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and the Rev. Mr. King, one of the nation's leading civil rights activists.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Ray's attorney said the case "raises major constitutional issues with respect to voluntariness of the plea, waiver of conflict of interest on the part of criminal defense attorneys, professional and ethical competence and obligations in representing a defendant ..."

King was killed by a rifle blast in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968. Ray was arrested in London a short time later and extradited to the United States to stand trial for murder.

His case never reached a jury because he subsequently pleaded guilty.

Ray's appeal for review by the high court said his financial agreements with attorneys Arthur Hanes and Percy Foreman and author William Bradford Huie precluded his chance to receive fair representation. Ray said Foreman forced him to plead guilty.

The appeal said other, conflicting considerations by Ray's attorneys led to a "gross violation of the right to private attorney-client communications."

A lower court's finding that there was "potential and limited actual conflicts of interest" by Ray's defense attorneys should be enough to have his case reviewed, his appeal said.

"The charge is that those who did kill Dr. King are still at large, protected in part by the unwillingness of the courts to face these unpleasant facts," Ray's appeal said.

Ray is now an inmate at the Tennessee State Prison where he is serving a lifetime sentence.

Rhodesia nixes new proposals

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he considers that the Geneva talks on a transition to black rule in his country are now "further away from the objective than when we started."

He said there is still hope as long as work continues on finding a solution, but at no point since the talks opened in October could he report any real progress.

Smith spoke to reporters at the Johannesburg airport on his way back to Rhodesia after rejecting new British proposals for a peaceful transfer of power to the black majority.

Informed sources said the new plan called for a direct British role in the government of the breakaway colony during the transition from white to black rule, including possible British control of military and police forces.

Smith told reporters he liked the latest British suggestions "no more than I like the other ideas that have come from the British."

British control of the security forces is "a ghastly thought," said Smith, who 11 years ago unilaterally declared Rhodesia's independence from Britain.

The white leader insisted once again on the "Kissinger plan" outlined to him by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in talks last September. This provides for a mixed black and white government during a two-year transition period. However, a white man would head the government, and whites would control the military and police forces.

The four black leaders attending the conference have rejected Kissinger's proposals.

The new plan was presented to Smith on Sunday by Ivor Richard, British chairman of the stalemated Geneva conference on Rhodesia. Richard consulted over the weekend with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland and Kissinger in London.

The negotiations will probably be adjourned this week for the year-end holidays. Richard said he would meet with the black delegations today before deciding on an adjournment.

Fires, crashes mar weekend

By The Associated Press

Fires and private plane crashes helped swell the death toll from violence in Texas during the weekend.

There were at least 18 fatalities, including seven in traffic accidents, four in apartment or home fires, three — possibly four — in the wreckage of light planes, two shootings and a stabbing. These occurred between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

Two young brothers — Paul Taylor, 3, and Jason Taylor, 1 — perished Sunday night as flames swept the one-room Fort Worth house where they lived behind the home of their grandfather, Jack Hasty Sr. Both deaths were laid to inhaling smoke.

Bodies of the Rev. Ernest Devers, 42, of Thrall, Tex., and his daughter Laurie were found Sunday with their single-engine plane, which went down during the weekend in Lake Belton. A search continued for the minister's daughter Cindy, 6, who was believed to have been with them.

Ronald N. Heartline, 39, mayor of Renner, Tex., was killed by a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun Sunday at Bonham. Officers held a man without immediate charge.

Police said railroad crossing warning lights were flashing at Pecos, where Fay Gordon Ellis, 26, and Earmer Lee Cochran, 52, died as a Missouri Pacific freight train knocked their car 203 feet from a crossing Saturday night. Both were Pecos residents.

Jerry Lee Elliott, 21, a Crockett resident attending Paul Quinn College in Waco, died Saturday when his car hit a bridge culvert on Texas 164 near Groesbeck.

Police in Brownfield said Ed Rhodes was stabbed to death at a motel Sunday morning. Officers apprehended an 18-year-old male Sunday.

A pilot identified by police as John Schineman, 52, a pipeline company engineer, was killed Saturday night when a private plane crashed in a muddy field west of Hobby International Airport at Houston. Officers said he was starting to land after a flight from Huntsville.

John S. Sutton, 53, was found dead Saturday evening in a flame-filled dining room of his home at Lancaster. Firemen said he apparently collapsed while trying to carry a smoldering cushion from a couch to the back door.

Fellow policemen said city narcotics agent Gregory Urquiaga, 24, was shot and killed by mistake Saturday during a raid by officer Anthony Martinez, who fired after sighting him gun in hand in a stairwell.

Fire which destroyed six small business places Saturday in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas claimed the life of Edwin C. Whipple, 44. It was seven hours after the predawn blaze before the body was discovered in an apartment behind a family store, where Whipple often spent the night.

Alonzo M. Morin, 31, of Corpus Christi and Howard L. Pratt, 60, of Hernando, Fla., were killed near midnight Friday when a car driven by Morin and a van collided north of Raymondville in South Texas.

Nicholas L. Borjas, 55, of Edinburg died Friday night near Elsa in a crash on U.S. 107 of a pickup truck carrying him as a passenger into the back of a tractor-trailer truck.

Gary D. Elmquist, 19, of Hereford was killed near there Saturday as his car ran off a farm road.

Rudolph Dosel of Los Indios was shot about midnight Friday at Mercedes and another man was wounded, police reported.

Former princess shot: husband tries suicide

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The estranged husband of a former Egyptian princess is reported in satisfactory condition after he allegedly shot her to death and then turned his gun on himself.

Riad Ghali, 56, was transferred Sunday from UCLA Medical Center to the jail ward at County-USC Medical Center with bullet wounds in the head. Police said his wife, Fathia Ghali, 45, died of gunshot wounds to the head and face.

The body of the former princess was found Friday by her son, Rafik, at the modest West Los Angeles apartment she shared with her mother, 81-year-old Nazli Fouad, Egypt's former queen mother.

The couple had been separated for seven years. Ghali has been accused of causing the financial downfall of his wife and reportedly was upset over the family's financial condition.

Mrs. Ghali's royal title was taken from her by her brother, the late King Farouk, when she married Ghali in 1950. The former princess turned to domestic work recently when she was beset by financial difficulties.

Farouk, a Moslem, had disapproved of the marriage to Ghali, a Christian and a commoner.

Farouk was overthrown in a 1952 coup. He died in exile in 1965 at the age of 50.

Ghali and his wife lived in luxury for many years from assets they were able to bring to the United States. They once owned a 28-room mansion in Beverly Hills and another lavish home in Hawaii.

But the money ran out, and Mrs. Ghali filed for bankruptcy in 1973.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

© 1936 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Getting one of those mimeographed newsletters at Christmastime is like being stuck with a non-stop talker. No doubt a handful of friends and relatives are interested in knowing what every member of the family did last year, but why must everyone else they know be subjected to all that drivel?

Receiving a Christmas card with a short personal note is a pleasure, but spare me from those six-paged mimeographed Christmas newsletters!

ANTI-NEWSLETTERS

DEAR ANTI: Some Christmas newsletters are newsy and interesting. Others are boring. But all are sent in the spirit of generosity and sharing. They take time and energy to compose and they're not inexpensive to print and mail. When one receives a book as a gift, he should appreciate the thought, but he doesn't have to read it unless he wants to. However, here's another reader who shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: Can you believe the utter conceit of those people who send a five-page "newsletter" to friends as a special "Christmas treat"? They all sound like this:

Dear Friends: Harold is now chairman of the board having passed the presidency of his company on to Clyde, our son-in-law who won the club golf championship last year. Clyde was so proud of our Beth when she was elected treasurer of the Junior League that he surprised her with a new Mercedes.

Our little beauty, Kathy, was runner-up for homecoming queen. She also made the National Honor Society.

Buddy was accepted at Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth and Princeton, but he thinks he'll go to a little junior college up state.

Our hospital auxiliary put on "Hello, Dolly" for our annual charity musical, and I played the lead. We had a terrific director from New York, and he said I was better than Carol Channing!

Blah, blah, blah, nothing but brag, brag, brag. It's nauseating!

Next year Bob and I are going to send those bragging bores our own Christmas letter, and it will go something like this:

Hi, everybody! Well, another miserable year has passed. Grandpa was recovering nicely from his prostate operation when he fell down the cellar steps and broke his good leg. (Luckily we kept Bob's crutches after his ski accident last year.)

Susie, our No. 1 daughter, is back in therapy, poor kid. Her boyfriend called off their engagement, and we don't know what to tell people. (He went to work on the Alaskan pipeline.)

Tina, who just turned 19, had to drop out of college last quarter. The doctor said it was mononucleosis. (Thank God she wasn't pregnant!)

Timmy, our problem child, got busted for pot. (Only using, not selling.) Fortunately we were able to keep it out of the papers.

Bob was passed over for promotion again. He lost out to a younger man. They tried to make up for it by giving him a fancy title, but we were counting on the money. It looks like Bob will have to borrow on his life insurance to pay his taxes.

You know his father died last year, and if his mother sells her house and moves in with us I'll kill myself.

Freckles, our faithful cocker spaniel, is failing fast. He's practically blind, can hardly get around, and we may have to put him to sleep.

Well, I've gotta run. The whole family is down with some kind of flu, and guess who the nurse is? Merry Christmas.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb
By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What does alcohol do to a person's brain and personality nervous system and stomach? I have a friend who drinks lots of beer, even before breakfast. It makes him mean and nervous, also dangerous. He takes money his family needs for food and medicine to buy beer. What can be done? He says there is no such thing as an alcoholic, but I think he is one.

DEAR READER — On the basis of what you state I think you are right — he is an alcoholic. The responsible members of his family should try to get help. I would suggest checking the Yellow Pages of your phone directory under Alcoholism and see if there is an Al-Anon organization in the community. If so the family member can call them and ask for guidance in handling the problem.

If there is no Al-Anon organization and there is an Alcoholics Anonymous organization perhaps some help can be obtained there. The family might ask the family doctor for his suggestions or help. You may find other organizations in the same listing in your phone book that help with problems of alcohol.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer, to give you more information on the adverse effects of alcohol. Suffice it to say here that alcohol damages the brain or nerves, the digestive system, the liver and is a major cause of death in addition to the human misery it causes as a social problem. Others who want information on the effects of alcohol can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for that issue of The Health Letter. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a man of 77 years of age. I do a little jogging, about three miles in one hour. I also have high blood pressure and take one and a half water pills a day for it.

I have enjoyed a drink of brandy and wine mixed, also now and then I take a bottle of beer. The last seven days I have not taken any alcoholic drink at all.

About three weeks ago I was having nose bleeds, but since leaving the drinks off, I have not had a nose bleed. Would the alcohol be responsible for my nose bleeds?

DEAR READER — Alcohol does dilate the small blood vessels. You see this effect when the face flushes after a drink or two. If you have dilated small vessels it is easier for them to bleed from any cause.

You may have had some irritation of the lining of the nose that contributed to the problem. As you get older or are in a dry climate or very dry room the lining of the nose may become excessively dry. The irritation may lead to "picking" and injure the nose resulting in bleeding.

Individuals with high blood pressure are sometimes subject to nose bleeds. Decreasing the blood pressure may help relieve the condition.

You are better off not drinking anyway so you might as well avoid it. If you have any excess weight, loss of body fat may help control your blood pressure. Finally if your nose is dry put a little petroleum jelly or other lubricant in the tip of your nose in the morning and evening to stop the excess drying and irritation.

Polly's pointers
By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — I am up in years and seem to be chilly most of the time. This past year I have started to wear warm slacks, but my feet, legs, arms and shoulders would still get cold. I bought pantyhose that helped with my legs, feet and hips. Then I cut off the thick toe parts of a used pair of pantyhose and made a two-inch slit in the crotch across from one seam to another and a three-inch slit down the middle front seam. I slip this over my head and my arms go down in the legs with a neat cuff turned up. They do not have to be hemmed, since the fabric just rolls. They are so warm and I no longer need to wear a heavy sweater in the house. Many of my friends here at the home are doing the same and like it very much. — ARLENE.

Beatles won't like their new record

LONDON (AP) — Butcher "King Size" Taylor once turned down $50 for a tape recording he made in 1962 of a group of young, tough Liverpool boys. That tape of the Beatles may make $16 million as a double LP record to be released soon, according to London's Evening News.

However, the release of the tape made in Hamburg, Germany, when the Beatles were playing for a few dollars a night, is almost certain to lead to more courtroom battles for John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr.

The former members of the now-scattered group are not eager for the record to be released, the newspaper said Saturday.

Those who have heard the old recording, which has been remixed to upgrade the technical quality of the tape, describe it as being far rotgher than their later work. But they say the tape captures a raw Beatles sound rarely heard before.

The tape includes stage talk from the Beatles aimed at their German audience. John Lennon is heard bawling at the boozy, brawling crowd to "shurrup" (shut up), and yelling at his girlfriend of the time, a barmaid named Bettina, to bring more beer. He is also heard cracking jokes about Hitler.

Tracks on the record will probably include "I Saw Her Standing There," "I Love Her So," "Kansas City," "Long Tall Sally" and "Roll Over Beethoven," the newspaper said.

"It's a fantastic, fantastic tape and I think the millions of people who have followed the Beatles should be allowed to hear it," said Paul Murphy, managing director of BUK Records and one of the three men involved in the project.

The other two are Taylor and Allan Williams, the Beatles' first manager. Taylor, now a butcher in Southport, Lancashire, was a friend of the Beatles in their early days of struggle.

Five years after the group broke up, re-released Beatles singles are selling by the hundreds of thousands. The four have turned down numerous million-dollar offers to get back together.

Lennon, 36, lives in New York after fighting off an attempt by U.S. immigration authorities to deport him. McCartney, 34, who has had a number of hit records with his new group Wings, lives in Scotland. Harrison, 33, recently lost a breach of copyright case over his hit single "My Sweet Lord," and Starr, 36, has been making movies.

Murphy said the biggest single problem was proving that Taylor owned the copyright to the tape and was allowed to release it.

"Our breakthrough on that one came when he stumbled on an old letter from Brian Epstein, the Beatles' manager, saying that he would offer Mr. Taylor 20 pounds (then worth about $48) for the tape even though 'there does not appear to be any commercial value to the recording'."

Taylor refused the offer and kept the tape, which lay in a cupboard in his home until 1973.

"I was thinking about this rock'n'roll revival going on and suddenly remembered I had this tape from the old days," said Taylor. "And I reckoned it must be worth something."

Paid movie in the offing

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last July 4, Israeli commandos stunned the world with their daring raid at Uganda's Entebbe Airport and their rescue of 103 persons, mostly Jewish, held hostage by Palestinian terrorists.

It was an incredibly dramatic story. Predictably, two networks — ABC and NBC — scrambled to have it recreated as a TV movie. ABC was determined to show its version first. It'll achieve its goal tonight.

And its three-hour "Victory at Entebbe" is generally a first-rate production, even though made against a brutal deadline that had producer Bob Guenette still working on the program last weekend.

The cast is quite good, although two "name" stars — Kirk Douglas and Elizabeth Taylor — have roles so brief I suspect they were installed only for publicity reasons and to aid overseas theater sales.

Written by Ernest Kinoy, this well-paced, tightly-edited show starts with the terrorists' June 27 hijacking of an Air France jumbo jet with more than 250 persons aboard.

The Tel Aviv-to-Paris flight makes a brief stop in Athens, Greece, where lax airport security permits the hijackers, two of them German nationals, to board the ship with hidden guns and grenades.

And the terror starts moments after takeoff as the German leader of the terrorists, brilliantly played by Helmut Berger, dashes into the cockpit and sets into motion the events that led to the Entebbe raid.

"We're not blood-thirsty murderers, no matter what the world Zionist propagandists say," he tells the passengers over the intercom of the plane when it lands at Entebbe after a refueling stop in Libya.

He says the hijacking aims at calling world attention to the Palestinian cause. He haltingly adds: "I don't want to kill you. But I'm a little tired and very confused ... and now, you have a little inkling of a lunatic's mind at work."

The tension builds in scene after scene, be it the cabinet meetings of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin (Anthony Hopkins), the planning of the raid by Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres (Burt Lancaster) or the bizarre, unreal posturings of Uganda President Idi Amin.

(Amin was to have been played by Godfrey Cambridge. The actor died of a heart ailment last Nov. 29 after completing only two scenes. Julius Harris, a relatively unknown, was rushed in to replace him.)

Harris does a superb, Emmy-caliber job, likewise Bibi Besch, frighteningly real as a screaming, Nazi-like member of the terrorist gang.

Texas in 1800's book subject

"Journey from Ignorant Ridge," a book of stories and pictures of schools in Texas in the 1800's, has recently been published by the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers as an official Bicentennial project.

The title of the book comes from a school in Hansford County, more properly known as Pleasant Hill, but called Ignorant Ridge. Mrs. A.T. Leveridge, Jr., Texas PTA president at the time of publication, states in the foreward, "We like the name Ignorant Ridge, for a school and for a book about early schools in Texas. The name shows the perspective of a people confronted with hardships and filled with vision. Although their purpose was certain, their resources were meager. They did the best they could."

The book is the day - to - day drama of schools in Texas in the early days. The material for the book came from individuals and organizations from throughout the state. Not all of the material could be used, there being enough for a dozen books, but some of all is intertwined into the story.

Panhandle area schools listed and narrated include some in Carson County, Motley County and in Amarillo, as well as Ignorant Ridge.

Members of the Texas PTA Bicentennial Committee which gathered the material were: Dr. Kate Bell, chairman, and Mrs. V.F. Herbster of Houston; Mrs. William Tippin of El Paso; Miss Harriet Griffin of Fort Worth; Mrs. J.B. McCray of Panhandle; Mrs. G. Kent Rider, Thomas J. Prather and Ms. Mary Ley of Austin; Tom Means of Richardson, and Mrs. Leveridge of East Bernard.

Order forms may be obtained by contacting local PTA officers or by writing to the Texas PTA, 408 W. 11th St., Austin, Texas 78701. The first 1976 books printed will be numbered collector's item.

Redskins bury Dallas to make playoffs

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

And now it is on to the National Football League's second season.

The Washington Redskins, left for dead earlier in the year, completed the field for the post-season playoffs by scoring an impressive 27-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in a must-win situation.

"We were written off, pronounced dead and buried, but we've got some gutsy guys who just kept coming back," said Washington Coach George Allen, whose Redskins came back one last time with two touchdowns in the fourth quarter to defeat Dallas.

The victory, which gave Washington the National Conference wild card berth in the playoffs, was especially sweet for Allen, who came under heavy criticism when the Skins failed to make the playoffs last year.

"We were supposed to be too old, too slow and over the hill," he said. "But if you have the right kind of veterans, age doesn't mean a thing."

Former Cowboy Calvin Hill, who has had a rather quiet year since signing a seven-figure contract with Washington, scored the go-ahead touchdown with 4:34 to play, circling the right side from 15 yards out.

After Washington regained the ball on the Dallas three on a Dennis Johnson interception, Hill helped clinch the victory and the playoff spot with a crushing blocked that cleared the way for John Riggins' scoring run.

So the playoffs shape up this way, with game times in EST:

Saturday Dec. 18

Washington (10-4) at Minnesota (11-2-1), 1 p.m.

New England (11-3) at Oakland (13-1), 4 p.m.

Sunday Dec. 19

Pittsburgh (10-4) at Baltimore (11-3), 2 p.m.

Los Angeles (10-3-1) at Dallas (11-3), 5:30 p.m.

Washington's upset knocked St. Louis out of a playoff spot. The Cards edged the New York Giants 17-14 earlier Sunday and would have gotten the NFC wild card bid had Dallas defeated Washington.

Baltimore, meanwhile, clinched the home field advantage by routing Buffalo 58-20. That gave them the spot as AFC East winner and made New England, a 31-14 winner over Tampa Bay, the AFC wild card club.

In other games Sunday, the Cincinnati Bengals whipped the New York Jets 42-3, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the Seattle Seahawks 27-10, the Green Bay Packers trimmed the Atlanta Falcons 24-20, the Denver Broncos beat the Chicago Bears 28-14, the Kansas City Chiefs topped the Cleveland Browns 39-14, the San Francisco 49ers defeated the New Orleans Saints 27-7 and the Oakland Raiders blanked the San Dieo Chargers 24-0.

On Saturday, Pittsburgh clinched a playoff berth with its ninth straight win, a 21-0 shutout of Houston. In other Saturday games, the Minnesota Vikings whipped the Miami Dolphins 29-7 and the Los Angeles Rams slipped past the Detroit Lions 20-17.

The Washington defense completely throttled Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, sacking him five times and limiting him to five completions in 22 attempts for 91 yards.

Billy Kilmer, arrested Saturday near his Virginia home on a charge of driving while intoxicated, completed 14 of 30 passes for 199 yards including a six-yard scoring pass to Jean Fugett.

Cards 17, Giants 14

The Cards did what they had to do, beating the Giants, but it was not enough to make the playoffs. The running of Jim Otis and Steve Jones keyed the victory, Otis rambling for 119 yards and Jones scoring two touchdowns, including the game-winner in the fourth quarter.

Colts 58, Bills 20

Bert Jones passed for three touchdowns to lead Baltimore's offensive show, which came following four lackluster efforts.

The loss was the 10th straight for the Bills, but there was one bright spot: O.J. Simpson rambled for 171 yards on 28 carries to capture his fourth rushing title in five years.

Simpson, who started the game nine yards behind Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, finished with 1,503, including 647 in his last three games. Payton gained only 49 against Denver, leaving in the third period because of injury, and finished at 1,390.

Raiders 24, Chargers 0

Oakland closed out a 13-1 season with its first shutout and will try to avenge its only regular season loss, to New England, in the first round of the playoffs.

Passing ace Ken Stabler took the weekend off, so reserve Mike Rae threw three touchdown passes for the Raiders, and Mark van Eeghen rushed for 95 yards to finish with 1,012 for the season.

Patriots 31, Buccaneers 14

The Buccaneers faded before 17 fourth-quarter points by New England and became the first NFL team ever to go 0-14.

Bengals 42, Jets 3

The Bengals, shut out of the playoffs when Pittsburgh won its ninth straight game Saturday, took out their frustration on the Jets. They broke the game open with three touchdowns in the second quarter, including an 85-yard bomb from Ken Anderson to Isaac Curtis. Cincinnati's defense picked off six New York passes, four off Joe Namath.

Chiefs 39, Browns 14

Ed Podolak scored three touchdowns and surpassed Abner Haynes to become Kansas City's all-time leading rusher. The Chiefs, guided by by reserve quarterback Tony Adams, clinched it with 17 points in the third period.

Eagles 27, Seahawks 10

Tom Sullivan rushed for 121 yards and two touchdowns and Mike Hogan ran for 104 yards for the Eagles, who snapped a five-game losing streak. Jim Zorn of the Seahawks completed 24 of 49 passes for 237 yards and set a single-season passing record for a rookie with 2,571 yards.

Kentucky blasts Kansas

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

At Kentucky, basketball is king — and Adolph Rupp is the crown prince.

They paid tribute to one of college basketball's most famous coaches Saturday night with the official opening of Rupp Arena at Lexington.

It was a night that Rupp will not forget for a long time. As a matter of fact, neither will Kansas Coach Ted Owens.

"I haven't seen all the great teams around the country, but Kentucky certainly has to rank among the best of them," said Owens after his Jayhawks suffered a 90-63 trouncing by the nation's fourth-ranked team.

The 27-point margin was even more impressive, considering that Kansas was undefeated in five games before Saturday and is one of the favorites to win the Big Eight Conference title.

"We were very impressed with Kansas, but our defense overpowered them," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "They could very well be the Big Eight champions this year."

Outside of the notable victory, another highlight for the fans was the presentation of the game ball to Rupp. It was used in the first half, then given to college basketball's greatest winner.

Elsewhere in college basketball Saturday, second-ranked Marquette walloped Penn State 79-49; No. 7 Notre Dame stunned No. 3 UCLA 66-63; fifth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas outscored San Diego State 118-113; sixth-rated San Francisco defeated Utah 91-81 in the final of the Utah Classic after 15th-ranked Tennessee won the consolation game with a 99-90 beating of Seton Hall.

Also, No. 8 Cincinnati routed St. Joseph's of Indiana 122-78; No. 9 Arizona trimmed the University of Pacific 78-60; No. 12 North Carolina defeated Virginia Tech 81-77; Purdue upset No. 14 Louisville 72-70; No. 16 Clemson beat Tennessee Tech 133-78; Hofstra edged No. 18 Southern Illinois 67-66 in the final of the Pittsburgh Classic, and No. 20 Syracuse whipped Canisius 75-59. On Sunday, 17th-ranked Maryland beat No. 19 DePaul 92-74.

Jack Givens fired in 15 points, including four quick field goals early in the first half, helping Kentucky outclass Kansas. The fourth of Givens' field goals put Kentucky ahead 16-6 with 13:48 left in the first half and the Wildcats never were threatened after that.

James Lee added 14 points, while Rick Robey and Dwayne Casey had 13 apiece for the Southeastern Conference team. John Douglas led all scorers with 17 points for Kansas.

Butch Lee's 18 points led Marquette to its easy victory over Penn State. Reserve guard Mark Rosenberger shredded Penn's State's zone defense early, hitting four 20-foot shots as the Warriors opened a 24-14 lead and improved that to a commanding 50-29 advantage with five minutes gone in the second half.

A 34-point performance by Sam Smith led Nevada-Las Vegas over San Diego State. Bill Cartwright scored 21 points.

Orantes struggles by Fibak for first prize

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Spain's Manuel Orantes considers himself a fighter but being reminded of it via the Summit's telescreen while trailing two sets to one and 1-4 in the fourth set, proved to be just the push he needed.

On the brink of defeat against Poland's Wojtek Fibak in the championship match of the $130,000 Masters Grand Prix tennis tournament Sunday, Orantes struggled back to whip his younger foe 5-7, 6-2, 0-6, 7-6, 6-1 to earn the $40,000 first prize.

An interview with actor Kirk Douglas and his wife flashed on the Summit's telescreens above the court as the players changed courts with Orantes 1-4 behind in the fourth set.

Mrs. Douglas told the audience not to count Orantes out because he's a fighter." Orantes, toweling off his racket before taking the court, heard the interview to and, raising his fist in acknowledgement, started an amazing comeback.

Rockets end SuperSonic streak

By The Associated Press

For a change, Tom Nissalke was on the winning side in Seattle Sunday night . . . and for a change the SuperSonics were not.

Nissalke, dismissed several years ago when the Sonics were chronic losers, returned as coach of the Houston Rockets, who registered a 96-92 triumph, ending Seattle's 29-game home winning streak, seven short of the National Basketball Association record.

"We made Seattle play our tempo and it's something not many teams have been able to do in Seattle," said Nissalke. "This game was not that much of an emotional game for me and I just took it as another game."

Moses Malone grabbed a key rebound and followed with a pair of free throws, clinching the triumph. Mike Newlin hit a 22-foot shot with 32 seconds remaining, putting Houston ahead 92-90. Seattle's Fred Brown missed a shot, Malone cleared the boards with 20 seconds to play and was fouled in the backcourt. He made the free throws and Newlin went the length of the court to score after Seattle's Leonard Gray missed a shot.

Rudy Tomjanovich led Houston with 22 points and Calvin Murphy added 18, becoming the club's all-time leading scorer. Malone had 20 rebounds.

In other NBA games, the Philadelphia 76ers outlasted the Milwaukee Bucks 107-102, the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Denver Nuggets 112-83, the Detroit Pistons downed the Kansas City Kings 110-104 and the Phoenix Suns burned the Atlanta Hawks 106-91.

76ers 107, Bucks 102

George McGinnis' 27 points led Philadelphia, 15-9, to an unexpectedly tough victory over 4-24 Milwaukee. Bob Dandridge scored 30 points as the Bucks tied the score 10 times in the third quarter and occasionally took the lead. But dunk shots by Julius Erving and Caldwell Jones helped Philadelphia to a 101-92 lead with 4:11 left.

Lakers 112, Nuggets 83

The hot shooting of Lucius Allen and aggressive defense by Kermit Washington led a first-half Los Angeles assault. The Lakers led 33-22 at the quarter and 60-39 at the half. Allen had 14 points in the first half and 18 for the game, while Washington, who did not start, added 10 points and six rebounds in the first half.

Denver star David Thompson hit just one of 11 shots in the first half and finished with 12 points, 14 under his average.

Pistons 110, Kings 104

Ralph Simpson scored 12 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter and the Pistons' tall front line wore down the Kings. Kansas City lost momentum after rookie Rich Washington fouled out with 5:04 remaining.

Kimbell 27th in state meet

AUSTIN — Sherry Kimbell of Pampa, 13th here last year, placed 27th Saturday in the state cross country meet.

Only the top 10 finishers received medals. Amarillo High's girls team won the overall championship.

Harvesters grab 3rd-place trophy

LAWTON, Okla. — Pampa crushed host Lawton High, 81-54, for the third - place trophy in the Bi-State Classic Invitational Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

The Harvesters, now 8-2 for the season, were led by all - tournament selection Rusty Ward, who connected on 13 field goal attempts and finished with 30 points.

Don Hughes added 15, Brian Bailey 14 and Rickey Bunton 13. Tony Seals led the Wolverines with 17 points, nine on free throws.

The Harvesters led, 46-23, at halftime in the contest, which was never close.

"We played real well Saturday night, as well as we've played all year," Pampa Coach Robert McPherson said. "We played more aggressive than we did against Borger (the Bulldogs tripped Pampa, 72-68, the night before), didn't commit as many turnovers and were mentally sharper.

"We just got it on. Any time you go to a tournament and win two out of three you've done pretty good. Only one team (Lawton Eisenhower, an 81-67 winner over Borger in Saturday's finals) won three games."

The Harvesters Thursday through Saturday will compete in the Wichita Falls Midwestern University Invitational. Pampa meets Wichita Falls Hirschi in the first round at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Ford prepares for retirement

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — His own retirement imminent, President Ford has been asking questions about how his predecessors, from Dwight D. Eisenhower to Richard M. Nixon, organized their days after the White House.

In some cases, particularly that of Lyndon B. Johnson, the President was curious about the projects the former presidents interested themselves in, "what they focused on" after leaving office. In Nixon's case, Ford's interest apparently was confined to logistical questions such as the staff, office equipment, communications he needed in retirement.

Ford's inquiries are being handled by his military aide, Maj. Robert Barrett, who has pursued them by personal visits, reading and phone calls to aides of former presidents. Barrett said that he visited San Clemente, Calif., late in November but did not see or ask to see the nation's only living ex-president. He talked with Jack Brennan, Nixon's aide.

Has the 38th President talked personally with the 37th President about life after the White House? "I don't know," Barrett said. "Probably not."

Ford himself has yet to announce his retirement plans. From another White House source (not Barrett), it was learned he has received offers to head or teach at a university, to join law firms, to become board chairman of a private company or a foundation — "all at an exalted salary."

Ford dispatched his military aide to Texas Nov. 28 for a long talk with Tom Johnson, publisher of the Dallas Times Herald, who was executive assistant to Lyndon Johnson in his retirement. Additionally, Ford himself talked about 15 minutes with the publisher Thursday morning.

"The President sounded in very good spirits," Johnson said.

"... He did mention there had been several offers of boards, both public and private, and that he would be looking at those more seriously after he left office."

Tom Johnson told Ford that the late president had five major projects in retirement — his memoirs, a series of television interviews, the Johnson Library, the Johnson School of Public Affairs and to help Lady Bird Johnson with her book of reminiscences. President Johnson completed those projects before his death on Jan. 22, 1973.

The publisher said Maj. Barrett came to see him to get a "perspective on the problems a president can expect to confront in retirement, to review the kinds of things President and Mrs. Johnson had to handle, how they set up a staff, how they handled the mail."

The publisher told Barrett that the former president received 80,000 letters in his first year out of office and as many as 500 phone calls a week in the early weeks of his retirement. Both the calls and the mail fell in volume later, the mail down to about 100 a week before his death. In his first six months out of the Oval Office, Lyndon Johnson had a staff of 26. Later, it was reduced to eight.

Ford also had available to him retirement information on Eisenhower, the size and scope of his staff at Gettysburg College, the range of his out-of-office activity, from his memoirs to the occasions his successors in the Oval Office sought his counsel.

Meanwhile, President Ford, as he probes his future possibilities, seems to have emerged from his grim postelection mood. He has begun giving interviews again, he is dancing again at White House parties, he is looking forward to his ski vacation in Vail, Colo., beginning Dec. 19. While there, Mrs. Ford said, he will also spend some time considering his job offers.

At a news conference Thursday, after a meeting to discuss politics with Ronald Reagan, John B. Connally and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, the President was asked by a reporter if he planned to run again in 1980.

"Do you want me to?" he asked. And Gerald R. Ford laughed.

House may rule on baseball

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Select House Committee on Professional Sports is expected to approve a staff report recommending that baseball be stripped of its exemption from the antitrust laws.

In its report today to the full committee headed by Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., the staff said it had concluded that "adequate justification does not exist for baseball's special exemption from the antitrust laws and that its exemption should be removed in the contest of over-all sports antitrust reform."

Baseball, among all the major professional sports, has been excluded from the antitrust laws since the Supreme Court ruled in 1922 that the game was not "commerce" in the legal sense of the word.

The nation's highest court ruled, and several subsequent decisions confirmed, that if baseball was to be included with football, basketball and hockey Congress should pass legislation doing so.

The House sports committee was formed last May after baseball refused to return a team to the nation's capital to replace the Washington Senators, who were moved to Texas and became the Rangers in 1971. Sisk headed an ad hoc congressional committee which unsuccessfully sought the return of baseball to Washington.

In its other recommendations, the staff urged the Congress to determine the most appropriate means of expediting the resolution of labor disputes in sports.

Woodcock declines post, at least for time being

WASHINGTON — (LENS) — To the surprise of his trade union colleagues and of political observers, Leonard Woodcock, the president of the United Automobile Workers, told Jimmy Carter last week that he was withdrawing his name from consideration as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). This was the position in the Carter cabinet that he was most attracted to, because of his intense interest in the enactment of national health insurance.

During the campaign Woodcock was the first major union leader to give Carter his total support and partly for that reason it was generally thought that he could have the HEW post if he wanted it.

That, indeed, may have contributed to his decision to withdraw. After a critical study of his own position, Mr. Woodcock concluded that if he were to accept the cabinet post and leave the union presidency five months before his official retirement, it would contribute to the public lack of faith in the political process.

Cynics inside and outside the trade union movement would have been encouraged to say that his support of Carter was being paid for with a place in the cabinet. So when Woodcock was confronted with the choice, he said no; and when he told the conference of leaders of the General Motors division, the largest component of the UAW, last week that he had asked Carter to count him out, he received the warmest reception of his career.

Several elements in his union's affairs contributed to Woodcock's feeling that he would do better to stay where he was for the present. By leaving the UAW presidency Woodcock would have plunged the union into an election crisis of its own. A successor would have had to be chosen by the union's international executive board in January instead of through the normal constitutional convention process in May.

Very much on Woodcock's mind is the difficulty the union has had in winning ratification of its recently concluded three-year contract. A large section—though not a majority—of the membership in the skilled trades resisted the proposals. The skilled trades have a constitutional power of veto over the entire contract despite the favorable vote of the production workers. Union leaders are perplexed about the size of the negative vote and its causes.

Woodcock wants to be on hand at the convention to sort this out, which he could not do as a member of the Carter administration.

Still more strongly he feels the need to think once again about the advantages and disadvantages for the UAW of returning to the AFL-CIO, nine years after Walter Reuther marched his union out after a prolonged clash of policies and personalities.

Woodcock favors a return. He probably has the majority of the leadership with him, but men like Irving Bluestone, a vice-president, and Emil Mazey, the union's secretary-treasurer, have misgivings. If there is a return, Woodcock wants to be in charge of the negotiations.

Another pressing question is automobile emission control, which will come before the next session of Congress. On this matter Woodcock believes that he and his union have more credibility than any industry spokesman.

Despite the cogency of many of these considerations against accepting a cabinet post just now, Woodcock has not ruled out a cabinet place in the future. Speaking to a reporter last week, he said that his refusal applied until the end of his term as union president. After that, he said, he might think again.

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit policeman Harry Larsosa was sitting at his dispatching console at police headquarters when the men in blue came for him.

Larsosa, 25, was taken to the ninth-floor lockup, fingerprinted and booked Friday night on a warrant signed by a traffic court judge. He was released later on $500 bond.

Larsosa had 48 unpaid parking tickets.

Officials said he was one of a number of motorists caught in a departmental crackdown on traffic scofflaws, including two people who were fined about $700 and a woman who paid $1,000 for more than 100 tickets she and her daughter had accumulated.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Twenty-five art works using materials such as film, video tape, sound tape and photographs, have been donated to the University of Georgia in tribute to President-elect Carter.
