Former inmate suing sheriff, commissioners

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Sheriff Dallas Smith, who recommended a stockade to alleviate the Midland County jail's illegal overcrowded condition, and the county commissioners, who thrice approved and thrice rejected stockade sites, are principals in a civil-rights lawsuit filed by a former county jail inmate, Ben Hogan.

In a seven-point complaint centered around "cruel and unusual punishment" and filed in federal court in Midland, Hogan is complaining of the overcrowded jails, cold showers, hairs in his food, and, among other gripes, of the sheriff's ban on coffee drinking and cigarette smoking in the jail.

Hogan, about 30, was owner-manager of Hogan Advertising Co. at 4500 W. Illinois Ave. in Midland, and currently is serving a five-year prison sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections after he had pleaded guilty to theft by check of property on Feb. 24, 1981. He had pleaded guilty to writing a check on an insufficient bank acccount for $1,116.16 for a Mamiya camera, 80mm lens and prism-finder from Photogenesis, now Lone Star Camera. In a plea-bargaining agreement, another charge — passing a forged check of $2,534 on Sept. 3, 1981 — against Hogan was dismissed.

HOGAN, WHO WAS thwarted in his attempt to file a class-action suit, is seeking $40,000 to compensate for his suffering during the 18 days he was in the Midland County Jail last January and February. The jail takes up the fifth and top floors of the downtown courthouse.

Hogan is alleging infringements of his civil rights by:

—Overcrowded conditions of the jail. Hogan says "someone was sleeping on the floor in (his) cell" and that the "person on the floor had to be stepped over in order to go to the restroom." Hogan said a sheriff's deputy told him that the cramped jail quarters "'couldn't be helped because the jail held only 88 prisoners, and there were 115 in jail now.'"

—No smoking. "No smoking was a rule of the sheriff's to curb fires," he says in the suit.

—No coffee. In response to his request for coffee, Hogan said a jailer told him "'that it was against the sheriff's rules to drink coffee in the county jail.'"

—No hot water in showers. On Feb. 10, Hogan says, he was "forced to take showers in water well below the body temperature." A jail captain informed him, Hogan says, that the water "boilers were out" and that "they" could not afford to repair them.

—No space for inside-outside recreation. After inquiring about recreational or gymnastic facilities for jail prisoners, Hogan said a deputy told him that "'there was weights for the trusties but not for other inmates.'"

—Unsanitary and unhealthy food preparation. On Feb. 3, Hogan says, he "found several large human hairs mixed in with his potatoes. "When officer was asked if the trusties wore hats or hair nets or if the trusties had been checked by the health department, he (Hogan) was told that they did not have to be checked or wear hats."

—Inadequate health care. On Jan. 27, Hogan says he informed a jailer that he had a negative response to a tuberculosis chest X-ray, and "after requesting to see a doctor about his ulcers," Hogan says he "had to wait over two weeks to see the doctor."

Hogan also is complaining that he was refused access to the county's law library and therefore was denied "access to the courts." A sheriff's sergeant informed him, Hogan says, that "'there was no law library for inmates.'"

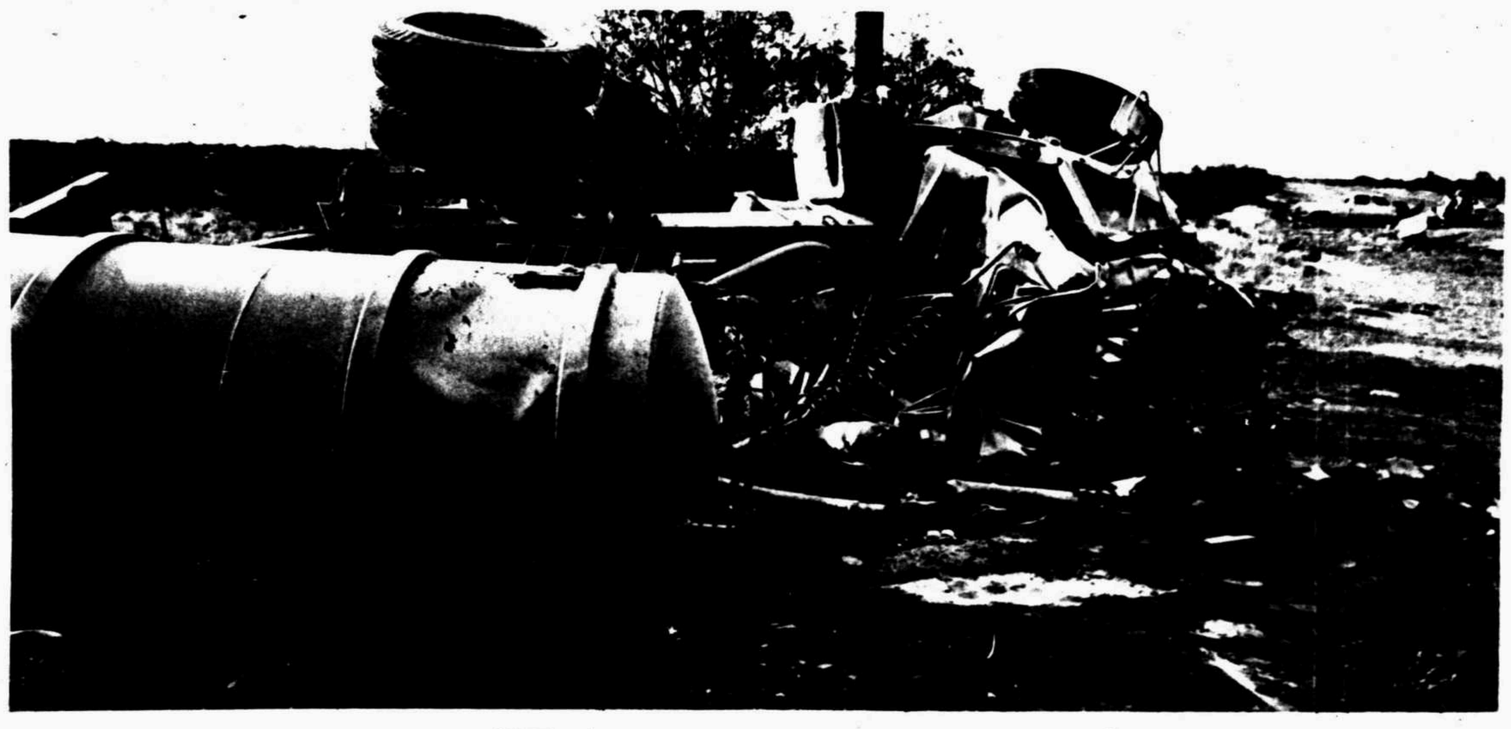

AFTER PLEADING guilty and being sentenced by 142nd State District Court Judge Pat Baskin, Hogan was taken to the TDC's Eastham Unit at Lovelady in East Texas.

Smith, who opted not to comment on the suit, on Monday said that the jail count was up to 93. "Anytime we get to 85, we're overcrowded," he said.

Smith, who noted that the "jail is not certified anymore" by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, said that his proposed stockade would have corrected that illegal status.

"Oh, yes, we would have been certified," he said, adding that "I've done all I can do; it's the (county) commission-

Two killed, two injured

Two men were killed and two others were injured when a crew cab pickup truck and an 18-wheel tanker truck collided at the intersection of FM-1317 and County Road 160 about 8:30 a.m. today. The semi was eastbound on 160 and the pickup, which became airborne for 45 yards, according to a Department of Public Safety trooper, was southbound on 1317 at the time. One man in each vehicle was killed, while the injured men were occupants of the pickup. Investigators were still on the scene at 11 a.m. and no further details were available by press time. Names of the dead and injured were being withheld pending notification of releatives.

Hearings planned on tax hike

Midland County Commissioners, who are projecting a $10.6 million budget in 1983, will hold two public hearings on a proposed increase in the tax rate.

Commissioners are proposing a 18.03-cent tax rate per $100 valuation based on full market values. The old rate of 34 cents per $100 valuation was based on the county's assessed values from the late 1950s. The assessed values adopted this year are those from Chief Appraiser Virgil Jones Jr. of the Midland County Tax Appraisal District and represent full-market values.

Overall, the county's old assessments were about half of those current ones made by Jones and staff.

Hearings will be at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 19 and on Aug. 23 in the Midland County Commissioners' Courtroom on the second floor of the Midland County Courthouse.

Related story, Page 3A

The county's expenditures in 1982 are estimated at $11.3 million. In 1981, the expenditures were $7.5 million.

The county's tax base is assessed at $3.5 billion under the newly-adopted assessments. Under the county's old assessments, the tax base was $1.6 billion.

The proposed new tax rate will bring in a projected $6.1 million, according to Tax Assessor-Collector Frances Shuffield. The county generates additional revenue via fines, fees and other sources.

French Jews may be urged to defends selves

PARIS (AP) — Two Americans were among the six people killed in the terrorist attack in the Jewish quarter of Paris, officials said today. Israel's prime minister said he will urge young French Jews to defend their community if the French government does not.

Menachem Begin told his Cabinet in Jerusalem: "If the French authorities will not prevent the neo-Nazi manifestation of the murder of Jews just because they are Jews, I will not hesitate, as a Jew, to call upon the youth of our people living in France to actively defend the lives of Jews and their human dignity."

Pope John Paul II, meanwhile, sent a telegram to the archbishop of Paris expressing his revulsion at the terrorist attack. "Learning with deep pain of the terrorist attack on Rue des Rosiers, I convey my feelings of a horror and indignation," the pope told Archbishop Jean-Marie Lustiger.

The attack Monday on the city's most famous Jewish restaurant left six people, including the Americans, dead and 22 others wounded, officials said.

The terrorist shooting spree in Paris heightened fears of a new upsurge of anti-Semitism in Western Europe as a result of Israel's invasion of Lebanon.

American tourist Ann van Zanten, 31, of Evanston, Ill., was killed and her husband David, 37, a professor at Northwestern University, suffered minor shrapnel wounds, police said. A woman aged about 50 was also killed, but has not been positively identified.

A U.S. Embassy spokeswoman confirmed two Americans had been killed but said the identity of the second victim could not be released pending permission from the family.

Another American tourist, Eva Shure, 65, from Illinois, was also wounded and hospitalized, police said. Her hometown was not available.

Jewish leaders said the attack on Jo Goldenberg's restaurant, was the bloodiest anti-Semitic outbreak in France since World War II. They scheduled a demonstration Wednesday to protest international terrorism.

It was the fourth anti-Jewish attack in Paris in eight days but the first to cause deaths or injuries.

Evidences of anti-Semitism also have surfaced in Italy, West Germany, Austria and Switzerland since Israeli troops invaded Lebanon June 6 to crush the Palestine Liberation Organization's military organization there.

"Jews to the ovens!" Italians shouted as they marched past a synagogue in Rome during a strike demonstration June 25.

"All Jews Forbidden To Enter," read a sign last week in a grocery window in Terni, north of Rome. The grocer told police he was showing his "solidarity with the heroic Palestinian people."

Israel 'approves in principle' U.S.-made evacuation plans

By The Associated Press

Israel today "approved in principle" U.S. plans to evacuate the PLO from west Beirut but demanded changes in the blueprint and sent its warplanes on rapid divebombing sorties of Yasser Arafat's stronghold.

The air assaults began at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) at the rate of almost one bombing sortie a minute, drawing barrages of anti-aircraft fire from Palestine Liberation Organization batteries.

The Bourj el-Barajneh Palestinian refugee camp and its approaches on Beirut's southern edge took the brunt of the first air strikes, Lebanon's state and privately owned radios said.

Jets later divebombed the Fakhani neighborhood that houses Arafat's command headquarters as well as the nearby Chatilla refugee camp, the Bir Hassan residential neighborhood along the coast and the main traffic circle on the highway to the airport.

Associated Press correspondent Earleen F. Tatro, watching from the rooftop of the AP's west Beirut office, saw 11 planes attacking in 23 minutes, shrouding the Fakhani neighborhood in a haze of smoke.

The air assaults, the second in two days, shattered a six-hour lull that prevailed after nightlong exchanges of intermittent artillery fire between Israeli and PLO forces on Beirut's southern and eastern outskirts.

Israel has insisted since it invaded Lebanon June 6 to crush the guerrillas that it would increase military pressure at the same time it negotiates for a PLO withdrawal.

The Israeli position on a PLO pullout was announced in Jerusalem by Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor, who said his government was demanding as a precondition that it be given "speedily" a list of all the Arab countries to which the guerrillas would retreat.

It also insisted that the number of departing guerrillas be equal to the number of guerrillas that Israel believes are now in Beirut, Meridor said.

Israel estimates the number of guerrillas in Beirut at more than 7,100.

"The serious problem that comes above all else now is finding the accepting countries and the exact numbers that each will accept, so that the total of terrorists departing, according to lists to be issued, will be the number of guerrillas now in Beirut," Meridor said.

Sources close to the negotiations have said Jordan, Syria, Iraq and Sudan are willing to accept some of the guerrillas, and that Egypt may take in a number as well. The latest plan was worked out by U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib in Beirut and delivered to Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Silent Samaritan saves life of accident victim

ODESSA — A passing woman motorist is credited with saving the life of an Odessa man who lost his left arm in an Ector County traffic accident about 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Arthur Farrell, 24, was in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital this morning after his southbound 1980 Chevrolet pickup truck crossed the center line of FM-181, about 10 miles north of Texas 302, and was sideswiped by a northbound 18-wheeler driven by David Freeman of Hobbs, N.M., according to the Department of Public Safety.

Farrell's arm, which apparently was out the window at the time, was severed. A woman motorist reportedly stopped and applied ice and a tourniquet until emergency crews arrived. She then left the scene without identifying herself.

A passenger in Farrell's pickup, 19-year-old Rick Tucker, also of Odessa, was released following treatment for facial and head lacerations. Freeman was not injured.

Basin Inc. officials fail to appear at RRC hearing

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Officials of Basin Inc. of Midland failed to appear Monday before a Railroad Commission hearing examiner to answer charges that the company failed to file monthly reports on its oil reclamation plant operations.

The RRC had called the hearing to give Basin a chance to show cause why the complaint should not be referred to the Texas attorney general's office for legal action.

The commission has alleged that the company failed to file monthly transportation and storage reports, which are required under RRC rules.

An RRC spokesman said the reports are required from all reclamation plant operations in the state to ensure stolen oil is not being sold to such plants as waste oil.

Hearings examiner Sandra Buch said the commission's Oil and Gas Division will now have to decide whether to subpoena the Basin officials to appear or go ahead and refer the matter to the attorney general.

Company officials could not be reached for comment by press time.

Some West Texans eligible for Home Energy Assistance

Some West Texans who suffer from a double dose of meager income and hefty summer cooling bills may be eligible for some assistance through the federally-funded Home Energy Assistance program.

Approximately 260,000 needy state residents who received June benefits from Aid to Families with Dependent Children, food stamps or Supplemental Security Income, are automatically eligible for utility-bill relief under the $12 million program.

The Texas Department of Human Resources (DHR) mailed checks averaging $39 to those households Friday. Others who have not already received Home Energy Assitance payments may be eligible and are encouraged to contact their local DHR office.

Recipients of Veterans Adminstration (VA) benefits, including some surviving veterans and the widows and children of veterans who died while in service, may be eligible for the payments. According to the DHR, veterans who receive VA benefits under sections 415, 521, 541 or 542 of Title 38 of the U.S. Code and section 306 of the Veterans and Survivors Pension Improvement Act of 1978, may qualify for the program.

Monthly gross income eligibility ceilings are $305.49 for a one-person household, $499.49 for two people, $684.49 for three people, $845.49 for four people, $998.49 for five people and $1,166.49 for a six-member household.

Applicants may qualify even if they pay only a portion of a dwelling's utility bill and even if the cooling cost is included in their rent payment.

Mall employee reports cash theft

In complaints to city police Monday, an employee of the Dellwood Card Shop in Dellwood Mall told officers $305.56 in cash and checks was taken from a car parked in the 100 block of South Main Street early Monday morning. The money was in a Midland National Bank bag. There was no sign of forced entry to the vehicle.

An employee of Bob's Rental Center at 2700 Rankin Highway reported the theft of a 10 horsepower engine from company property over the weekend. Entry was gained by cutting a hole in the fence. The motor was valued at $502.

Fire caused by overheated grease did heavy damage to a wall, kitchen cabinets and a stove in the Damasil Rodriguez residence, 1306 Hamby, about 12:15 p.m. Monday.

ers' problem at this point."

THE SHERIFF repeatedly has said that it's the Commissioners' Court responsibility to provide confinement facilities for inmates and that it's his job to operate them.

Since the commissioners have rejected the stockade option, they now are considering to let the voters decide what to do. The commissioners plan to submit a $9 million bond issue for a 225-prisoner jail on the courthouse square and for courthouse renovation and furnishings.

"We're not going to have anything fancy for the jail," said architect Walter Pate, who has been retained by commissioners to design the jail. "We're going to meet the Jail Commission's standards, but it's not going to be a plush place. It's simply going to meet the regulations."

Meanwhile, the sheriff and County Judge Bill Ahders are to meet with the Commission on Jail Standards in Austin at 8:30 a.m. Aug. 25 to explain how the county plans to correct the overcrowded jail situation and how to get the jail re-certified.

"The Commission on Jail Standards wants to know what we are going to do to alleviate the (overcrowded) problem," said the sheriff.

In mid-summer, the Jail Commission had granted the sheriff a permit for a "low-risk" stockade as a "pilot project."

But the Commissioners' Court, which had considered three sites for the stockade, approved each one at a time and then rejected them all.

The commissioners considered objections by businessmen and residents who didn't want the stockade at either of two proposed sites on Midland's east side. The citizens contended the stockade would inhibit commercial and residential developments and would present a danger to the neighborhoods.

The court rejected a third location — a city of Odessa-owned remote site in far west Midland County — due to the 54-mile roundtrip distance from the courthouse to the stockade and also cited the expense of setting up the double-fenced stockade and barracks and putting in water and sewer lines.

Elections head to purge list

Residents of Midland County who don't hold salmon-colored voter registration cards won't be eligible to vote in the Nov. 2 general election, according to Janeice Builta, county elections administrator.

According to state law, her office is getting ready to purge 3,500 names from the voters list by Monday if persons who didn't receive their new cards don't contact her office by 5 p.m. Friday. Or, voters who still hold the old white cards may make the changes on those cards and mail them to her office by midnight Sunday.

"We have at least 3,500 salmon-colored voter registration certificates which didn't go to the rightful owners," she said. They were returned to her office by the Postal Service, and the names have been placed on a strike list.

"These people must come in by 5 p.m. Friday to update their voter registration certificates, or give us a change of address. Otherwise, these people are purged. They will have to come by the office and fill out a whole new form," Ms. Builta said.

These procedures are being done in accordance with the Texas Election Code, she said.

Also, any newcomers to Midland County who haven't registered to vote may do so at her office in the basement of the Midland County Courthouse.

For further information, call the voters registration office at 682-9481, extension 391.

"We'll take all the calls," she said. "We want all the people registered to vote."

To vote in the Nov. 2 general election, a resident must have registered to vote by Oct. 1.

Governors lose on natural gas

AFTON, Okla. (AP) — Gov. George Nigh and the governors of Texas and Louisiana — the nation's largest natural gas-producing states — lost a last-ditch effort to prevent an anti-natural gas policy statement from being presented to the nation's governors.

The National Governors Association Committee on Energy and Environment had submitted a new policy that would ask Congress either to prohibit outright or severely restrict the use of take-or-pay clauses and also price-escalator provisions in natural gas contracts.

Kansas Gov. John Carlin, a Democrat and chief executive of a gas-producing state, is pushing the resolution to soften what he anticipates will be skyrocketing consumer prices when natural gas prices are fully decontrolled in 1985.

Louisiana Gov. David C. Treen and Texas Gov. William Clements Jr., both Republicans, and Nigh, a Democrat, sought to sidetrack the resolution when the committee met Monday afternoon to hear Interior Secretary James Watt.

But the committee, headed by Gov. Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia, voted 11-5 to keep the proposed new policy intact and submit it to the regular business session of all governors Tuesday.

Shelly Shelton Melton, a 26 year-old Midlander, sits at her dining room table with an assortment of jigsaw puzzles. Mrs. Melton, who calls herself a "jigsaw junkie," is the only Texan among 150 contestants scheduled to compete in the first National Jigsaw Puzzle Championship, to be held in Athens, Ohio, August 21 and 22.

Midland woman puts it all together

From wire reports

When it comes to jigsaws, Shelly Shelton Melton isn't puzzled. This is one woman who can put it all together, and this month she gets a chance to prove it.

Mrs. Melton, 26, is among 150 contestants vying for prizes of $1,000, $750 and $500 that will be awarded at the first National Jigsaw Puzzle Championship, to be held Aug. 21 and 22 in Athens, Ohio.

Her husband, Joe, an oil company executive, will not accompany her to the conference. In fact, he seems unsympathetic with his wife's passionate involvement with puzzles. He says he hates them.

"I don't see how anyone can play with those damned puzzles. But she just loves that junk," he said.

Mrs. Melton calls herself a "jigsaw junkie," and says she is going to the tournament not so much to win, as to meet other people who share her interest in jigsaw puzzles. She was so enthusiastic, she was the first person to enter the contest.

"There's no one else in Midland like me," she said.

During her vacation, Mrs. Melton holed up in a remote New Mexico cabin for 10 days, where she spent eight hours a day on the 50 puzzles she brought with her.

"I'm in training," she says, although when she's at home she works a puzzle every day, not stopping until it is finished four or five hours later.

She estimates that she has completed more than 500 puzzles, many more than once, and claims to have worked every puzzle on the market today.

Millions idle in accounts, says hopeful

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

More than $7 million of state money is sitting idle in numerous bank accounts because of a state policy, and treasurer candidate Ann Richards wants to change that so the money would draw interest.

Ms. Richards said Monday afternoon in a news conference at Midland Regional Airport that the only point of difference to date between her and the Republican candidate Allen Clark is the issue of continuing this policy.

The current policy calls for placing a $5,000 deposit in every Texas bank eligible for state deposits, and the number of banks is up to 1,400. By placing this token deposit of $5,000, she said, "more than $7 million of the taxpayers' money is sitting idle that otherwise could be earning interest."

The interest rate on state deposits, set by the State Depository Board, is 10.25 percent, she noted. "I can see no reason why the taxpayers should lose hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest that could be earned on the $7 million tied up in these deposits for absolutely no benefit to anyone."

The $5,000 to each bank, Ms. Richards said, "is of no real use to the community. During the primary, bankers said the small deposits are more trouble than they're worth."

Although she hasn't met Clark, Ms. Richards said he "believes we should continue this policy of putting $5,000 in every bank."

Ms. Richards isn't opposed to the idea of spreading the money around to different banks, she said. But the $5,000 minimum isn't helping the state. It should be placed in fewer banks and in larger amounts.

Ann Richards

She also proposed using these demand accounts in the various cities when the state is doing work there and needs the money for the payroll. Once the job is done, she said the account should be closed.

A former Travis County Commissioner, Ms. Richards said her background as a government official involved operating a multi-million dollar budget. Citing her knowledge of state government and officials, she said this background would be beneficial in the post as state treasurer.

In her campaign, she is advocating clearly-stated, published policies to "guarantee the fair distribution of both demand and interest-bearing deposits throughout the state. We don't know how the decisions are made now, or why one bank will receive a larger deposit than another."

Ms. Richards, if elected, would be the first woman in a state-wide office since Miriam "Ma" Ferguson served as governor more than 50 years ago. Because of this, she is looked at in the campaign as being "something different. It's like the two-headed cow story, an oddity that comes to town."

But pointing out the increasing number of women serving in local offices, Ms. Richards said that "we've reached the time and sophistication to enter statewide races."

In her travels around the state, the most interest in her race has come from women and bankers, she said.

Ms. Richards has been named one of Austin's 10 Most Influential Citizens and managed a staff of 33 while a county commissioner. She has served as Travis County United Cerebral Palsy campaign chairperson, Planning Commission of Texas on Epilepsy, Sierra Club, Audubon Society, Texas State Arts Alliance, Texas Criminal Justice Advisory Board and President's Advisory Committee on Women.

In 1981, she was selected Woman of the Year by the Texas Women's Political Caucus.

Media ask Angelo about campaign

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The press conference Monday morning had been called by Ernest Angelo Jr. to announce that U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York would be coming to Midland in September for a campaign rally for Angelo. But the main interest shown by the media was in how Angelo's campaign was going against Democrat Bill Sims of San Angelo for the 25th District state senatorial seat.

Angelo, a former mayor and longtime Republican, is seeking the seat vacated by Midlander W.E. "Pete" Snelson, who decided to run for state land commissioner.

Angelo, a petroleum engineer, said he has been campaigning since the first of June throughout the 25th District, which stretches down to almost San Antonio and over to El Paso.

"There's more interest in the campaign than I thought," he said. "We've had some tremendous results" in the small towns where normally few persons are registered Republicans. In some of these places, he said, as many as 60 to 70 persons have shown up at coffees for Angelo.

Most of the issues these people talk about are national issues, he said. But on the state level, Angelo said they are concerned about the growth in state government, school systems and quality of education.

There is some concern about water, said Angelo. El Paso is facing a near-term water shortage and the problem is number one in that town.

Angelo said he sees no problem with the funding formula for school districts and noted that education takes 51 percent of the state budget.

"We need to take a hard look at spending, and there are legitimate problems with teachers and the pay scale. But if we don't stop the growth in state spending, we'll be in a bad situation."

— Ernest Angelo Jr.

"The greater and greater surpluses we've had are a thing of the past," he said. "We need to take a hard look at spending, and there are legitimate problems with teachers and the pay scale. But if we don't stop the growth in state spending, we'll be in a bad situation. We need to start conserving now."

Crime ranks as another prime concern of the 25th District residents, according to Angelo, and especially after the John Hinckley case in which he successfully used the insanity plea after shooting President Reagan. "I would like to correct those loopholes," said Angelo.

And the problem of people driving while intoxicated probably will be addressed by the State Legislature, he noted. While acknowledging he has no definite plans on this issue, Angelo said "there needs to be some legislation to tighten up how the state treats the problem. We're working on plans. We need to get all the facts available to us."

Kemp, a Republican from Buffalo, N.Y., who has supported President Reagan's tax cuts but not his proposed tax increases, will be appearing in Midland Sept. 13 for a noon luncheon and campaign rally to kick off the final months of the campaign.

Rural Midlanders air upsets at meeting

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Rural Midland homeowners who are upset by roads in ill repair, lack of stop and speed-limit signs and possible health hazards due to overtaxed septic tanks on Monday appealed to the Midland County Commissioners' Court to help solve their ills.

"We have flagrant violations in this development and in others," said Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis, who zeroed in on one of the ills — offending sanitary septic tanks. "We need to give more attention to people out in the (rural) area."

Presenting a list of grievances to the commissioners were Elena Phelps and Al Weinhauf, representatives of the Ranchero Park Property Owners Association. Ranchero Park Estates, a T.C. Tubb development, is a 156-acre development of two- and three-acre lots south of Midland and between Cotton Flat Road and Midkiff Road.

The association proposed that the county:

—Install "stop" and/or "yield" signs at "all intersections as appropriate for safety."

—Set a 30 mph speed limit. "We have several people who use them (roads) as raceways out there," said Weinkauf.

—Install street signs.

—Repair street intersections at County Road 1207-South at CR 115-West, CR 1205-S at CR 114-W, CR 1204-S at CR 116-W, and CR 1207-S at CR 116-W.

—Maintain, upgrade and pave roads. "We'd like to get on your list for pavements out there," Weinkauf told the commissioners. "We know it's not going to be today."

—Enact county ordinances "to regulate water and septic systems" and coordinate county ordinances with state health laws.

—Enact stricter regulations of mobile-home parks.

—Get U.S. Postal Service services extended to Ranchero. "There's no postal delivery out there whatsoever," Weinkauf said.

—Control flies and mosquitoes.

—"Better and stricter law enforcement" to help curb speeding and dragging and to control loose and "diseased and sick" dogs.

Commissioner Davis assured Weinkauf and Ms. Phelps that the court is "very much interested" in improvements throughout the park but noted that the court has certain limitations.

On the control of the pests, Davis said that "last week the area was sprayed aerially" to control the mosquito population and that a Buffalo Turbine mobile unit is used to control mosquito larvae. "And they're at it again," he said of the larvicide spraying.

In addressing the septic tank problems, Davis said the water and sewer sanitation "is giving us a fit."

"There is a health danger," Ms. Phelps said of more than one family unit tied into a septic system designed for only a one-family unit. She cited five mobile homes connected to one water well and to two septic tanks and expressed fears of water pollution. "We would prefer — most of us — to use our well systems" rather than to try to get water piped in from Midland.

Ms. Phelps and Weinkauf were petitioning the court to consider enacting ordinances regulating water wells and sanitary septic tanks.

"We really don't have ordinance-making powers," said Commissioner Wm Brown. State health laws regulate water wells and septic tanks, the commissioner noted.

After the session with the commissioners, Ms. Phelps said that "We seem to get two answers — one there (from the Midland City-County Health Department) and one when we were here."

"They (health inspectors) said that they can't do a thing without the county passing a law," Ms. Phelps said of apparent health violations after the health department had approved septic tanks. She said that she would contact Don Goodrum, administrator of the Midland City-County Health Department, to clarify apparent conflicts.

Two Midlanders testify in sex-killer's trial

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — Two Texas men told a jury how they thwarted an attempt by convicted sex-killer Brett "Panama Red" Pensinger to kidnap a second little girl.

The testimony came Monday in the penalty phase of Pensinger's trial for the sex-mutilation murder of 5-month-old Michele Melander, of Parker, Ariz., whose body was found in a dump last summer along the California-Arizona border. Pensinger, 20, was convicted last week of Michele's murder, and now the jury must decide whether to sentence him to death or to life in prison.

Steve McKandles and Randy Ray Reid, both of Midland, Texas, testified they chased Pensinger after being told he had taken 9-year-old Angela Holdridge from her mother in a bar in Midland six days after Michele's body was found.

McKandles said he and Reid forced Pensinger's truck off the road, ending a high-speed chase.

"Steve went to Angela. Angela said Pensinger said he was going to make love to her," Reid testified.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Donald Feld, the 245-pound Reid testified he severely beat Pensinger, jamming his head in the car door at one point.

"I sat on him and beat him with my fists," Reid said.

While driving Pensinger back to the bar from which he had taken Angela, Reid punched Pensinger again and accused him of being a pervert.

"He started crying and said, 'Yes, I am a pervert,' " Reid testified.

Charges were never filed against Pensinger in the Texas incident, and information about it was introduced during the trial.

In other testimony, David Neil Hicks, a convicted felon Pensinger met in the San Bernardino County Jail said Pensinger told him he had abducted the girl in Texas, planning to molest, mutilate and kill her.

Cat causes fatal trip

PORT JEFFERSON, N.Y. (AP) — Robert Atkins and his family had just returned from a camping trip when he was fatally shot by his wife in a freak accident after she tripped on their cat and dropped the shotgun she was carrying.

The accident happened Sunday night as Jeanette Atkins, 42, was finishing unpacking in their Port Jefferson home from a two-week camping trip she, her husband Robert, 44, and their four children went on.

Police said Mrs. Atkins was carrying a rifle and a 12-gauge shotgun from the upstairs master bedroom to a gun rack in the downstairs den when she tripped and fell over the cat as she was coming down the stairs.

The shotgun went off and a bullet hit her husband in the chest. Atkins, an insurance salesman for Mutual of New York, was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Inmate scheduled for death

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Attorney Douglas Tinker says he will file an appeal to keep Henry M. Porter, a Fort Worth man convicted of killing a policeman, from being executed by lethal injection this week.

Porter would become the first inmate executed in Texas in 18 years and the first to die by lethal injection in the state. The method was approved by the state Legislature in 1977.

Porter, 40, was twice convicted and sentenced to death in the 1975 shooting of Fort Worth policeman Henry Paul Milloux. An appeal of the second conviction was carried to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Tinker said Monday he planned to file another appeal with the U.S. District Court in Corpus Christi.

Milloux was shot fatally in a gun battle on a Fort Worth street after he stopped a car fitting the description of a vehicle used a short time before in an armed robbery. The driver of the car escaped, but was wounded.

Porter, a relative of the car's owner, was arrested a few days later in San Antonio. Police said he had been shot through the side and had treated the wound himself with adhesive bandages.

Porter was tried and convicted in Fort Worth, but a state appeals court remanded the case for retrial. The trial was moved to Corpus Christi on a change of venue and Porter was convicted in the South Texas city.

Television's 3-D capabilities studied

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Three professors say they have developed a system for bringing three-dimensional viewing to color television without funny-looking tinted glasses.

With $150,000 from a handful of private investors, they assembled their creation on evenings and weekends in their garages to achieve what they say video engineers thought impossible.

The proof is a set of sample videotapes that can be played on cassette recorders or broadcast for viewing on standard color TV sets. Viewers see the 3-D effect with the naked eye — even just one naked eye — from anywhere in the room.

"A one-eyed person can see it as well as a two-eyed person," says University of South Carolina physics professor Edwin R. Jones. "It utilizes a totally different mechanism" than the standard 3-D, which requires two eyes and special tinted glasses.

The university called a news conference today to unveil the system, and officials said they expected network and local TV crews to be able to give home viewers a taste of the discovery.

The picture wavers a bit, and the 3-D effect is so subtle in some of the samples that the viewer has to look hard for it.

But in other tapes it is startling, and A. Porter McLaurin, chairman of the university's Department of Media Arts, said further refinements with more sophisticated equipment will triple the quality.

With a patent pending, Jones, McLaurin and physics professor LeConte Cathey have not said a great deal about how their invention works.

In its current form, images from two cameras are merged through a complex switching arrangement into one signal so the brain is tricked into thinking it is viewing a scene from two slightly different angles, as in normal two-eyed vision.

Cathey said the effect is similar to what a hawk, with eyes on the sides of its head, achieves by swooping from side to side to gain depth perception as it dives for prey.

Jones said the researchers hope to create the same effect with one special camera, if they can find someone with the money and technical knowledge to build it.

He said they want to sell their ideas to be refined by electronic and optical experts, but they believe their invention as it stands has potential applications in advertising, flight simulation, radiology, video games, sports broadcasting and other areas.

"These are hard times on academic salaries," McLaurin said, noting that some potential buyers have expressed interest.

Your horoscope

BY JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, August 11, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Syndicated columnist Carl Rowan, actor Lloyd Nolan and actress Virna Lisi share this birthday with you. For you, today is the start of a banner year. Keep your emotions in check and your career will zoom to the top. New opportunities arise. Make the most of them and your future will be secure. You are now able to enlarge your sphere of influence. Learn from your past mistakes! Choose your romantic partner with great care. Certain family relationships are redefined, and everyone involved is richer for the changes. An excellent year for partnerships and for those who work for themselves.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take an objective look at your needs and desires today. Someone special wants to know what makes you tick. Fortunately, you understand the reasons for your reactions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Moderation is the key to success and happiness right now. You enjoy greater rapport with others. Sign contracts only after reviewing fine print with lawyer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A too heavy workload causes frustration. Appeal to higher-ups for more help. If it is not forthcoming, look for new employment. Romance could result from a casual social encounter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Imaginative and creative projects flourish. Stick to a regular work schedule to increase your productivity. Children deserve to have some say in your plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A new business proposition sounds intriguing but is unlikely to work out. Seek income from regular channels. Self-reliance counts big with someone influential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If faced with a delay or setback, be philosophical. Attend conferences and make new contacts. Greater diplomacy is needed where career or financial matters are concerned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not let your personal feelings interfere with business. A small sacrifice proves worthwhile. Let yourself go where romance is concerned. New alliances are favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A conservative approach will not work with someone who is a born gambler. Information provided by your friends helps you beat the competition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A telephone call saves you money and embarrassment. Being in the right place at an opportune moment helps your career or finances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A very good day for job-hunting or seeking a new work assignment. An influential older person is looking for "young blood." Showcase your creative talents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discretion works to your advantage when you benefit from a stroke of good luck today. Use facts and figures judiciously. A new romantic interest is part of the picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can expect to take some heat for a friend or family member's actions. Exercise greater discretion and self-discipline to keep distractions to a minimum.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

At the card table, you must curb your natural impulses. The obvious play is often the wrong one!

South's hand was a smidgeon too weak for a two spade opening bid — we would have preferred two no trump, which would have led to the same contract via a Stayman sequence. North's jump to game was a specialized bid that showed good trump support but denied a first or second round control in any suit.

West led the jack of hearts. East won the ace and returned the three. Declarer played low, East won the ten and continued with the king. After ruffing the heart in dummy, declarer drew trumps in three rounds, then cashed the ace-king of diamonds. He now tried to reach dummy by leading a club to the queen. East won the king and returned a heart. Declarer ruffed, but since he had no way to get to dummy to use his good diamonds, he had to concede another club for down one.

The fates were not kind to declarer. He would have romped home had either trumps split evenly or had the king of clubs been with West. Or, for that matter, had he played the hand a bit better!

See the difference if declarer refuses to ruff the third heart in dummy, discarding a club instead and letting West hold the trick! If West returns a minor suit, declarer wins, draws three rounds of trumps and unblocks the diamonds. Now he can enter dummy with a trump and take two discards on dummy's good diamonds.

Actually, West's best defense is to play a fourth heart. But declarer can counter by discarding another club from dummy and ruffing in his hand. He can then reach dummy with a club ruff.

An eye for an eye

The tit-for-tat policy of reciprocity under which the United States and the Soviet Union respond in kind to treatment of their representatives in the other country can go to juvenile extremes. But, on balance, it is a sensible way to enforce a degree of restraint in the treatment of each other's nationals.

That point was demonstrated, we think, by two news stories that crossed our desk last week.

The U.S. government, responding to the decreditation of News week's correspondent in Moscow, retaliated by refusing permission for Izvestia's Washington correspondent to return from home leave.

On the same day, in an unrelated action, the Soviet government barred American diplomats in Moscow from using a nearby swimming area. That was in retaliation for the refusal of the Glen Cove, N.Y., city government to allow Soviet diplomats to use the town's recreational facilities.

Under the rules of reciprocity tacitly recognized by both sides, both governments were right.

U.S. correspondents in Moscow are subjected to periodic harassment, and in some cases expulsion, as part of a continuing Soviet effort to discourage them from too much digging into stories that the Kremlin prefers to see unreported. The problem would get completely out of hand if the Russians had not learned from experience that Washington will retaliate with the expulsion of a Soviet correspondent.

Glen Cove justifies its treatment of the Soviet diplomats, who maintain a huge mansion there, on two grounds. One is that the Russians, being tax-exempt, do not contribute to the upkeep of the town's tennis courts, golf courses and beaches. The other is that the Soviets use the mansion for electronic eavesdropping on Long Island defense industries.

Perhaps the State Department should pay some in-lieu fees for the Russians. Or perhaps, in the name of reciprocity, diplomats in both countries should pay a reasonable fee for the use of recreational facilities.

But Glen Cove is completely out of order in justifying its action on the basis of Soviet electronic eavesdropping. Such activities may very well be taking place, but that is the appropriate concern of federal authorities who understand that the United States is not always above suspicion in its use of diplomatic facilities in other countries, either.

So the Soviets were completely entitled, in our view, to respond in kind by making life just a little less pleasant for American diplomats in Moscow.

It would be a better world if neither the United States nor the Soviet Union had to think in tit-for-tat terms. But, now, that is not the way things are.

Communist defectors

One of the prices communist governments pay for oppressing their citizenry is the embarrassment caused whenever some of them defect to free countries. The price is doubly high when the defector is an especially talented gymnast or person enjoying the best that he has to offer in your standard workers' paradise.

Now that the People's Republic of China is beginning to permit carefully selected citizens to travel to Western Europe or the United States, it is beginning to suffer the defections that have plagued the Soviet Union.

A case in point is Hu Na, the 16-year-old Chinese tennis star who disappeared recently from a hotel in Santa Clara, Calif., where she had been staying for an international tennis tournament. A week later, she turned up in San Francisco and asked for political asylum in the United States.

The State Department has taken her petition under study. Peking has reacted to demanding that she be handed over to Chinese officials for shipment home and, presumably, an appropriate spell of "re-education" in some labor camp.

International Tennis Federation officials, who seem to care less about the moral issues involved than about keeping China on the tennis circuit, are charging that Hu Na may have been "lured" into defecting by some talent-hungry professional sports promoter. Even if that's true, what of it?

Shielding young Hu Na, said to be a potential world class player, have the right to be compensated in turn for her talent and achievement? So one considered packing Martina Navratilova back to Czechoslovakia when she defected in 1975.

Chinese officials are threatening to curtail cultural and sports exchanges with the United States unless Hu Na is returned. Let them. Hu Na deserves asylum in the United States, and the State Department should grant it forthwith.

Another View:

Funeral price lists

The somber undertaking business hasn't worked up such a lather since Jessica Mitford's unmerciful critique, "The American Way of Death," tore into it 20 years ago. What's bothering funeral directors is a proposed federal regulation that would force them to offer item-by-item price lists and provide prices on request over the telephone. They're not about to take it lying down. Not on your life.

Unfortunately, they probably won't have to take it at all. By the time the Federal Trade Commission got around to issuing the regulation — 10 years after it began a study of funeral marketing abuses — the agency had lost its clout of old. New authority gives Congress the right to overturn the rule by majority votes in both houses, and you better believe the $6.4 billion a year funeral industry will be lobbying as if there were no tomorrow.

The rules may well be buried before they ever take effect.

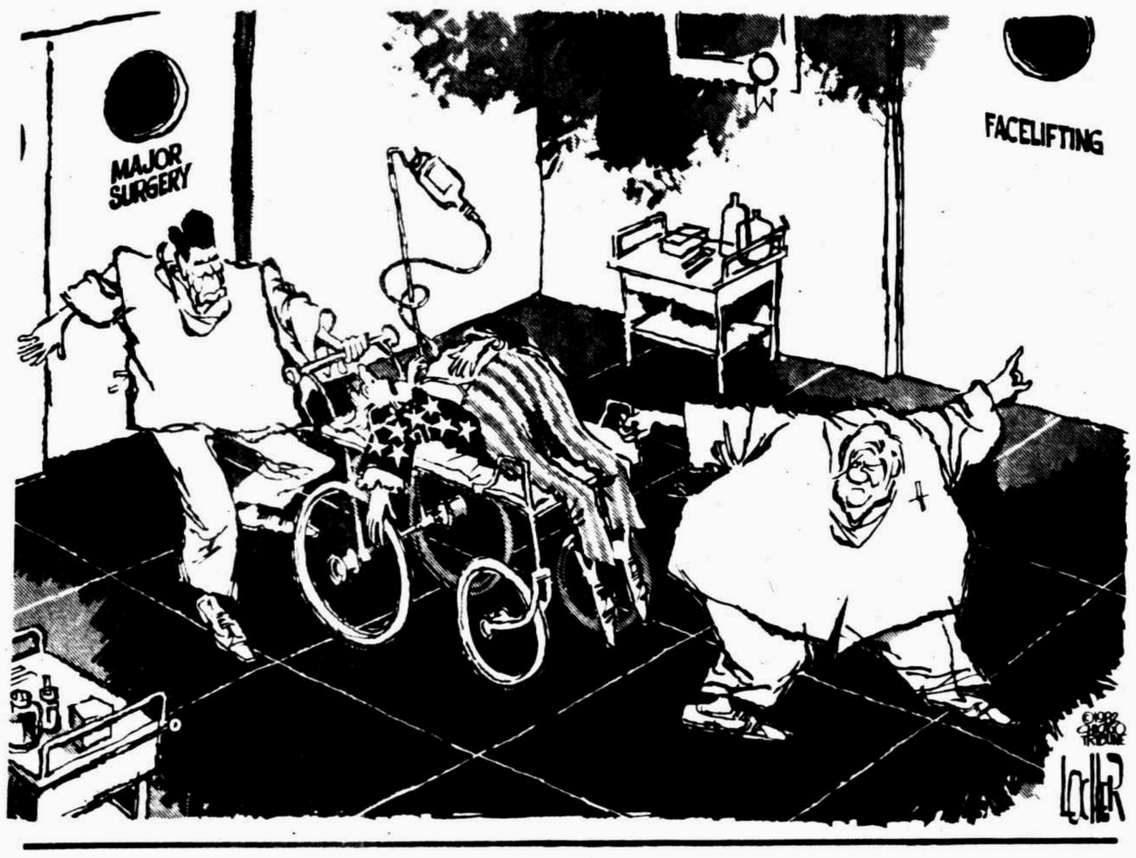

That's a crying shame. While some of the extravagant commercialism of funerals subsided after Mitford's expose, there is vast and much needed room for improvement. In its hearings, the FTC found that funeral directors generally downplay prices and discourage shopping around, making it exceedingly difficult for bereaved clients to make informed choices.

By requiring undertakers to give out specific prices over the phone and at the first meeting with family members, the commission majority — the rule passed 3-1 — was seeking to give consumers a chance to consider alternatives to the full-scale funeral with all the trimmings. Said commission member Patricia Bailey, the rule was "designed to break the prevailing taboo that price should not be a concern in such a grievous situation."

Michael Pertschuk, the only Democrat left on the commission, speculated that the rule might reduce the average $2,571 cost of funerals because consumers could better choose among services and comparison shop instead of swallowing package price funerals that many undertakers offer. It also could reduce prices by requiring funeral directors to offer inexpensive containers, rather than full-blown caskets, for cremation.

Approval of the FTC's fair pricing rules remains a matter of substantial importance.

CHARLEY REESE

Cause and effect of bad society

In the beginning is always an idea. The creative force in the human species is the mind and therefore it is also the creative force in human society. As a society thinks, so it is.

Charley Reese

Today's society, which is frankly lousy, was created by lousy thinking. Here are some of the wrong ideas which have created our society.

The First Amendment was designed to be license for unrestricted expression, including display of genitalia and the printing and speaking of obscenities.

Entirely wrong idea. The First Amendment was designed to protect ideas. This is evident from the writings of the men who were responsible for the Bill of Rights, but of course, no one these days seems to know, much less care, what they said.

The First Amendment was designed to guarantee a secular state by enforcing strict state neutrality toward religion.

Wrong again. The First Amendment was written to protect and to encourage the flourishing of religion by prohibiting the state from establishing an "official" religion or church as, for examples, the Church of England, or Islam in Iran.

The basic premise of the American Revolution is a religious premise. The Declaration of Independence states all men are created equal and endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among these life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

It was only by arguing that man's rights were gifts from God that the American revolutionaries could counter the prevailing claims that men belonged to the king or to the state. What the king or state grants, it can withdraw, but neither king nor state can withdraw what God has granted and that is the conceptual basis of our revolution, our claim to independence, our claim to individual liberty and our constitution. It is also the reason for the socialist's hostility toward religion.

Obviously, a revolution founded on a religious premise could not be militantly secular or anti-religious and ours was not. Again, the writings, public statements, and official acts of the American revolutionaires are filled with references to God and with public exhortations to the people to pray and to give thanks to God.

A third false idea causing trouble today is that some people have a "right" to the lives of others.

A right is an unarguable claim. You cannot logically have a right which necessitates the loss of another person's rights. Your right to life and liberty require only that others leave you alone and pursue their own lives. This concept was perverted, however, by asserting that needs constituted rights.

You do not have a right to health care. To assert that is to assert that some people are obligated, regardless of their desires, to provide it. You do not have a right to a home because to assert that is to assert that someone is obligated to provide you with one. For the same reason, you do not have a right to food or education or a job.

The unspoken concept held by people who assert that these desires are rights is: Some people have a right to enslave other people. That, of course, is a contradiction of terms and is un-American. It is the precisely opposite premise of the American Revolution.

Another false idea is that reason is not a virtue and that people should be guided, not by their minds, but by their feelings and wishes.

This false idea is the cause of the difference between man's technology, which is advanced, and his social life, which remains primitive. You cannot construct a bridge or a building using your emotions instead of your reason. The laws of the universe are not subject to amendment or repeal by our desires. Engineers know this; social workers and most intellectuals do not.

The nightmarish world we live in is only a reflection of the prevailing ideas. You won't change the effect until you change the cause.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Measures changed to increase a kiloton

WASHINGTON — President Reagan decided at a July 19 National Security Council meeting that he didn't want to resume talks with the Soviet Union and the British on a comprehensive nuclear testing ban. The talks were suspended in 1980.

Jack Anderson

Secret documents and intelligence sources disclose the appalling reason for the president's decision: U.S. experts do not at present have adequate means to catch the Soviets in violations of a test ban.

Eight years ago, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to limit underground nuclear tests — and the only kind permitted — to 150 kilotons or roughly 10 times the size of the Hiroshima bomb. The Threshold Test Ban Treaty was never ratified by the United States, but the 150-kt limit was observed by both powers.

Then, in 1978, U.S. scientists, unaware of their measurement system's inability, changed their methods of calculating a kiloton, in effect doubling the size of permitted test explosions. When the Soviets subsequently doubled the size of their blasts, intelligence experts were alarmed; they suspected a cheat by the Kremlin at the highest levels.

Even with the new, inaccurate method, the Soviets appear to have exceeded the 150-kiloton limit at least 11 times since 1978. One test — in September 1980 — was clocked at a likely size of 350 kilotons, according to our sources.

Indeed, as recently as July 3, the Russians set off a huge nuclear blast. It was estimated at a likely 260 kilotons or at least 110 over the limit.

President Reagan asked for more precise measurement of the Soviet explosion, so that he could lodge a vehement protest with the Kremlin. It was then that he learned such precision was impossible. A secret, highly technical Pentagon briefing disclosed that, in fact, the United States could not verify Soviet compliance with a test ban.

There was another, perhaps even more persuasive reason the president decided against a test ban treaty: U.S. scientists want to be able to test our nuclear weapons to make sure the stockpile is up to snuff.

A highly sensitive White House report shown to my associate Dale Van Atta states that the people in charge of U.S. nuclear weapons laboratories insist that they must test up to approximately five kilotons in order to be able to verify performance of the weapons for stockpiling certification.

The report explains: "In the continued non-nuclear testing of weapons components, it turns out with some regularity that individual components fail or degrade. Even acceptable components may become unavailable as manufacturers shift product lines or go out of business."

This means that new components or different materials have to be used, and the resulting weapon may simply not work. As the secret report states:

"Developing weapons remains to a considerable extent an art rather than a science. Weapons designs which seem appropriate, based on computer models, fail to work as predicted when actually tested."

Without periodic tests, the scientists say, there's no way to be certain these mongrelized missiles will do what they're supposed to do.

In short, a test ban treaty would leave the United States doubly in the dark — about the reliability of our own nuclear weapons and about any violations by the Soviet Union.

CARTOON CRUDITY: The Kennedys have always aroused strong passions, for or against. I am no apologist for Sen. Ted Kennedy, but this time I think the Kennedy haters have sunk to a new and disgraceful low with a scurrilous comic book being distributed to Massachusetts voters during Kennedy's re-election campaign.

The unsubtle smear is the handiwork of Dick Hafer, a Maryland cartoonist who was paid $20,000 by the Life Amendment Political Action Committee to research, draw and write the 38-page booklet. LAPAC says it's spending $400,000 in an effort to get a copy to every Massachusetts voter before Election Day, and says the response so far has been "phenomenal."

Hafer's research sources were admittedly one-sided — generally conservative publications, and once an unidentified "gas station attendant in Worcester." Yet he insists that the result is "no different from other campaign literature" except for its novel, cartoon format.

Kennedy's press secretary, Bob Shrum, obviously disagrees. "Some of this stuff is so low-down that it's creepy," he said. Beyond that, Shrum pointed out several inaccuracies and distortions.

One misstatement he pointed out concerned abortion, which is LAPAC's single issue. The comic book says Kennedy "cast his vote for full federal funding of all abortions." Shrum said: "This is ludicrous. No one has ever favored funding of abortions for the rich."

Kennedy's aide said the book also distorts or misstates the senator's stands on tax cuts, the Irish Republican Army, the cruise missile and Taiwan.

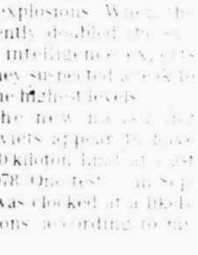

Hafer and LAPAC defend both the tone and the accuracy of the comic book. Hafer pointed out that he didn't include a reference to Kennedy's recent marital problems, because that would have been "a low blow." He did, however, devote four pages to Chappaquiddick (which he misspelled every time).

INSIDE REPORT:

U.S. passes chance to control Israel

WASHINGTON — When President Reagan ruled out punitive measures against Israel and decided instead to reserve sanctions for later use, he made a fateful decision not to strike when the iron was hottest that he may bitterly regret in days to come.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Secretary of State George Shultz persuaded Reagan that after the PLO guerrilla leaders finally leave Beirut, U.S. pressures will be needed to compel Israel to get out of Lebanon and give the Palestinians full autonomy on the West Bank. The anti-Israeli sanctions not used last week will be available.

But that sounds like tough talk to cover the timid U.S. response to Israeli flouting of Reagan's desperate appeal for an "in-place" cease-fire. When the time comes for U.S. pressure on Israel for an overall Middle East settlement, there may be less support here for sanctions and more backing in Israel for Prime Minister Menachem Begin. The moment for U.S. determination to control its headstrong little ally may have been lost.

That moment surely was at hand late Aug. 4 during a classified CIA-State Department briefing for senators. Less than 24 hours earlier, Israeli armor broke into West Beirut in defiance of Reagan's personal appeal to Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Aug. 2. Judging from the senators' reaction to the administration's cautious tone, a corner seemed to have been turned in the American political attitude toward Israel.

Ambassador Richard Fairbanks, one of the administration briefers, under heavy questioning repeatedly implied that sanctions were out for now. Sen. David Boren reworded the question: If not sanctions, are any other punitive actions being considered? Fairbanks refused to answer yes or no. He finally choked off the questions by saying he had been "instructed" not to answer and that Shultz was the only official authorized to discuss that matter.

Three staunch pro-Israeli senators present — Alan Cranston (a 1984 Democratic presidential hopeful), Howard Metzenbaum and Rudy Boschwitz — were bucking the tide. Otherwise, the sentiment of senators strongly favored any punishment Reagan might propose. When Boren said that his anger was aimed at Begin and not Israel, another Democratic senator responded: "Begin could go down in history as the man who destroyed Israel."

That shows the high degree of support for Reagan and Shultz had they decided on sanctions or some lesser punishment last week. But the administration decided that if Israel had been punished last week, in the words of one official, "they could have gone for eight months without another dime or another bullet from us." Worse, he said, sanctions would have "maximized the paranoia" in Israel, "cemented" the Israeli people behind Begin and possibly triggered all-out invasion of West Beirut.

That decision, however, risks a buildup of Begin's prestige. He will likely be credited for the exodus of PLO leaders from Beirut, the destruction of the PLO's arsenal and the end of any PLO threat to northern Israel.

"No matter how it happens," one administration insider told us, "Begin is going to look the hero when the Beirut tragedy runs its final course." That would produce heightened Begin popularity and credibility both in Israel and in the American Jewish community. If Reagan then decides to reach up to the shelf for the sanctions weapon, he may find it out of reach.

There would then be no nightly television drama of the battle of Beirut, no hospitals blowing up, no civilians dying. The PLO leadership and 6,000 guerrilla fighters would then be gone from Lebanon, scattered far and wide. The Lebanon invasion, given the transitory nature of events in the television age, would have faded from memory.

A Reagan decision then to play the sanctions card would likely be trumped by political reality. American voters would not be moved by Israel's failure to withdraw from Lebanon as they have been outraged by Israeli air attacks on West Beirut. With the Nov. 2 U.S. election nearer, politicians would be less critical of Israeli policy.

Thus, a turning point that might have restored a more natural balance in the relationship of the super power to its tiny democratic ally may have been lost by timidity and poor timing. When asked on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker Saturday" what the U.S. could do today about Israel, Sen. Jesse Helms answered bluntly: "Just shut off relations. We're either going to stop it — or we're not going to do anything." After the recent events in Beirut, it seems that Reagan is "not going to do anything."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 10, the 222nd day of 1982. There are 143 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 10, 1519, Spanish explorer Ferdinand Magellan began history's first recorded voyage around the world.

On this date:

In 1792, the French monarchy was overthrown as mobs in Paris attacked the palace of Louis XVI.

In 1807, Robert Fulton's steamboat, "Claremont," made its first trip.

In 1821, Missouri entered the union as the 24th state.

In 1914, France declared war on Austria-Hungary at the start of World War I.

Today's birthdays: Singers Eddie Fisher and Jimmy Dean are 54.

Thought for today: Beware the fury of a patient man. — John Dryden, English poet (1631-1700).

Hervick and Mrs. Rodney Balke, both of Arlington, and Mrs. L.L. Stakes of Big Lake; a sister, Mary Dunagan of Round Rock; three grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Pallbearers will be Jack Ham, Jim Matthews, Jess Clement and Wayne Dolan, all of Big Lake; Pete Lyles of Kent, Irvin Young Jr. of San Angelo, Austin Chriesman of Sanderson and Don S. Johnson.

Utah company's state business temporarily stopped

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

The Texas attorney general's office obtained a temporary restraining order against Nova's Inc. in Travis County Court Tuesday, suspending the Salt Lake City-based company from operating in the state without a proper certificate of authority from the secretary of state's office.

The action comes on the heels of a civil suit filed Monday in Travis County Court alleging that the company has committed several violations of the state Deceptive Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act, including the operation of a multi-level distributorship, or "pyramid" operation.

Assistant attorney general Zoleta Courtney said Tuesday that the company, which sometimes operates under the name Nova's General Store, failed to obtain a certificate of authority, mandatory for all out-of-state companies operating in Texas.

Courtney said the civil suit alleges violation of article 20 of section 17.46 of the state's Deceptive Trade Practices Act. The act states that "selling or offering to sell, either directly or associated with the sale of goods or services, a right of participation in a multi-level distributorship" is illegal.

The multi-level distributorship is defined as "a sales plan for the distribution of goods and services in which promises of rebate or payment are made to individuals recommending or securing additional individuals to assume positions in the sales operation, and where the rebate or payment is not exclusively conditioned on or in relation to proceeds from the retail sales of goods."

Literature distributed by the company at organizational meetings throughout the state, including a gathering in Odessa July 22, offers memberships to a buying club that offers consumer items at 3 percent more than dealer cost. The pamphlet states that for a $15 monthly membership fee, participants may buy products ranging from canned goods to large appliances at reduced prices.

The informational material says the company "pays our customers to enroll new members," which the attorney general's office alleges is a violation of the "pyramid" provision of the Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Ms. Courtney said that "pyramid" schemes may provide money-making opportunities for ground-floor participants, but later investors may get burned by the system.

"The problem with any pyramid is that you reach a saturation point," Ms. Courtney said. She said that if the company acquired a certificate of authority, it could legally continue to operate the buying club. She said the alleged illegality stems from the multi-level distributorship portion of the operation, which promises members money for recruiting new members.

She said Nova's Inc. representatives have also led Texas consumers to believe that the company was operating with the blessings of the state, also a violation of the Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

Ms. Courtney said the company's representatives have also been soliciting some individuals in their homes and failing to supply the consumers with a cancellation form mandated by the state's Home Solicitations Transaction Act. The form would allow a consumer to cancel any agreement within three days.

The Better Business Office of the Permian Basin reported several calls from consumers inquiring into the operations of Nova's Inc. in the area.

The company apparently began Texas operations in Amarillo, where company representatives claimed to have sold as many as 16,000 memberships. Other organizational meetings were reportedly held in Odessa, Lubbock, Austin and Andrews.

Board report on winter crash centered on de-icing troubles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal safety board, preparing to pinpoint the cause of an Air Florida jetliner crash here that killed 78 people, made clear today it will seek broad improvements in the way airplanes are de-iced during severe weather.

In advance of their report on the Jan. 13 crash, several members of the National Transportation Safety Board complained of a continued "serious lack of knowledge" about how an aircraft should be treated to assure it is free of hazardous accumulations of ice or snow.

"I'm not sure we know anymore now — even after Air Florida — about de-icing (or) anti-icing than we knew before the accident, and I'm quite concerned about it," board member Francis McAdams said.

Seven months after the Air Florida Boeing 737 struck a bridge and crashed into the ice-covered Potomac River shortly after takeoff from National Airport, the safety board began making final changes in its report on the tragedy.

The board's determination of what caused the accident and official recommendations were expected to be made public later in the day.

It became clear today, before the report was issued, that it would include strong wording on the inadequacy of the airline industry's procedures for assuring that a plane is free of ice during takeoff.

McAdams, who headed the investigation into the Air Florida accident, said the crash yielded evidence of "a serious lack of knowledge" by pilots, aircraft operators, de-icing fluid manufacturers and others about de-icing methods and what type of fluids should be used.

Fifteen students on way to Indiana for Junior Achiever's Conference

Fifteen Midland students are representing the Tall City at the National Junior Achiever's Conference in Bloomington, Ind., this week.

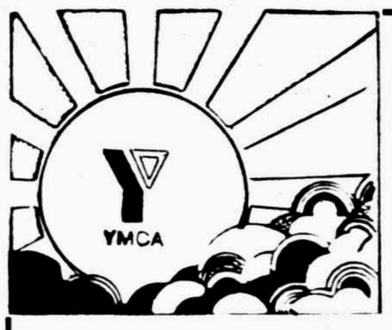

The delegates, chosen from 300 Achievers due to their knowledge of free enterprise as shown by exams taken in March, will participate in workshops, seminars, competition and will visit with business leaders.

Several delegates are involved in national competition. Those students include Wayne Reid in best president, Kyle Vernon in best sales presentation, Roger Lee in the JA Bowl competition, Sheryl Pavlock in best vice president of manufacturing, Pam Tatsch in best vice president of marketing and April Beauchamp in best vice president of personnel and corporate secretary.

In other competition, Wayne Reid is running for conference president by election, to be held during the conference, and Pam Tatsch has entered a drama act in the talent contest.

In addition, Midland will be represented by Brian Gober, Tony Dilley, Robin Black, Vickie Mims, Brian Marczynski, John Curtis, Robert Bernhart, Bill Jernigan and Charline White.

Kyle Vernon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Word, will attend as chaperones. Agustin Garza, Midland's JA center manager, is a member of the National Junior Achievers Conference Staff.

Doctors planning Hinckley's treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial over, the diagnosis done, doctors at St. Elizabeths Hospital will now work out a treatment program for John W. Hinckley Jr., who still "thinks daily about killing Jodie Foster."

Hospital spokesman Wayne Pines said Hinckley and a team of professionals will jointly work out the right mix of group and individual therapy, the proper dosage of medication — anti-depressives — and the activities in which he can participate.

Hinckley was sent to the federally financed facility on June 21 after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity on charges of shooting President Reagan and three other men.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker ordered Hinckley committed to the facility indefinitely, meaning he will undergo treatment. Until now, he has been evaluated.

Parker, accepting the report of St. Elizabeths' doctors, found that Hinckley is "at the present time and will in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others."

Hinckley, wearing a pinstrip shirt, no sport coat and dark trousers without a belt, appeared in Parker's courtroom for the first time since his acquittal.

In a firm voice, he told Parker he was waiving his right to a hearing on his release. Discussing the doctors' evaluation of his current mental state, Hinckley said, "I don't necessarily agree with their opinion."

The law allows Hinckley to petition the court every six months to free him, and he must ask permission any time wants to leave the hospital grounds, even for a few hours.

The St. Elizabeths report called Hinckley "an unpredictably dangerous person." Doctors said Hinckley suffers from four major personality disorders and major depression, which they said is in "partial remission."

"Presently, he thinks daily about killing Jodie Foster," the actress with whom he carried on a one-sided love affair and who he tried to impress by shooting the president, the report said.

Soviet newspaper frankly reports men's crime spree

By MARC ROSENWASSER

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet court called it a story of indifference, incompetence and cowardice — of men who failed to defend women who were being raped, of citizens who aided criminals and of police bungling.

Two Soviet men were sentenced last week to death and a third to prison for 15 years for robbing six stores, committing a series of assaults, raping two women, torturing and robbing an old woman of her funeral money and murdering a man.

The Communist Party Central Committee newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya (Soviet Russia) told of their month-long spree of violence in an article that was unusually detailed for a crime report in the Soviet media.

The article by Deputy Prosecutor M. Gusev and reporter I. Pyrkh included rare public criticism of the police. It also reported a "drunkard" agreed to sell the criminals' stolen goods in exchange for vodka, and a taxi driver took them where they wanted to go in exchange for money.

Gusev and Pyrkh gave this account:

V. Yefremov, a 29-year-old who had just finished his second prison term, went to work in a mine, tired of the labor, robbed an apartment and returned to Orel, his hometown 180 miles south of Moscow.

There he befriended E. Maslenkin, and the two committed several robberies, attacked a militiaman and stole his identification card. Then they moved to Kharkov, in the Ukraine 400 miles southwest of Moscow, where they posed as police and robbed two more apartments, including that of the old woman whose savings for her burial they stole.

A short time later, they hooked up with 20-year-old A. Valuyev in the nearby city of Kaluga, used him in two more thefts and obtained a sawed-off rifle from another ex-convict in the city of Bryansk, 210 miles southwest of Moscow.

After several more robberies of stores and individuals, the trio boarded a crowded bus for Tula. The driver reported that Yefremov approached him holding the rifle and warned him: "Don't turn around. Don't stop or honk your horn. I have enough bullets for everyone."

Maslenkin ordered the passengers to "get your money ready."

"Your gold also," said Yefremov.

The men robbed the passengers, beating those who resisted. Yefremov raped two women in the back of the bus while Valuyev helped hold them down and Maslenkin held the gun on the driver. The male passengers sat "frozen by fear."

The trio eventually left the bus, hid out overnight and reached Tula on another bus in the morning. Their victims had given the police a description of them, but the police did not act on the information and took more than three weeks to put out the alarm for them.

Meanwhile, the three men went to Moscow, then returned south to Bryansk.

Israel regrets harassing Americans

By GEORGE GEDDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel is apologizing to the United States for three incidents in which an American military liaison team in Lebanon was harassed by Israeli forces, including an F-16 jet fighter.

The State and Defense departments said Monday the United States lodged strong protests with the Israeli government and has received assurances there will be no further actions of this kind.

Israel expressed regret over the weekend incidents and disclaimed any intention of causing harm, an official statement said.

According to administration sources, the harassment was directed against American personnel engaged in making preparations for the possible deployment of U.S. peacekeeping units which would monitor the withdrawal of Palestinian forces from Lebanon.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said an Israeli F-16 jet fighter repeatedly and closely buzzed two U.S. helicopters. In addition, an Israeli gunboat aimed a machine gun at American helicopters and, subsequently, Israeli soldiers interfered when the American team landed at Jounieh, north of Beirut.

Officials described the incidents Saturday and Sunday as "very serious" even though no shots were fired and none of the American military personnel was harmed.

"Apologies have been received from the government of Israel and we have been assured that there will be no further actions of this kind," said a statement from the State Department.

A spokesman at the Israeli Embassy in Washington, Benjamin Ableah, said, "There were problems of communication and coordination of flights in the area. The problem has been solved."

In addition to the protest lodged with Israel, the United States also expressed concern to the Syrian government over what it regarded as inadequate security protection during a protest Monday at the U.S. Embassy in Damascus.

Aside from the American embassy, several hundred demonstrators reportedly representing Palestinian trade unions also attacked the embassies of Saudi Arabia and Jordan.

State Department officials said no Syrian security personnel were dispatched to the U.S. Embassy during the hour-long demonstration even though the presidential palace in Damascus is located just a short distance away. The demonstration was called to protest the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

In the political atmosphere of Damascus, "It is not likely that the demonstration did not have the acquiescence of the Syrian government," said one official, who asked not to be identified. He added, however, that at no time did the State Department fear that the protest would lead to a Tehran-style hostage-taking.

Following complaints to the Syrian Foreign Ministry, embassy officials received assurances there would be no repeat of the incident, the official said.

The account of the State Department official appeared to contradict that of a U.S. diplomat in Damascus, who said Syrian police chased the demonstrators away using riot equipment.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said the demonstrators penetrated the embassy compound but that attempts to enter the chancery building were unsuccessful. He said some windows were broken but that there were no injuries to American officials.

Despite the weekend reports of Israeli harassment of an American military team, Israeli military officials have been providing U.S. officers with information about the performance of American and Soviet weapons and about tactics used in the the fighting in Lebanon.

Andrew risked self, paper says

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew piloted his Sea King helicopter with 15 British soldiers on board to a safe landing on rough terrain only three or four feet from an Argentine minefield during the battle for the Falkland Islands, the Daily Mail reported today.

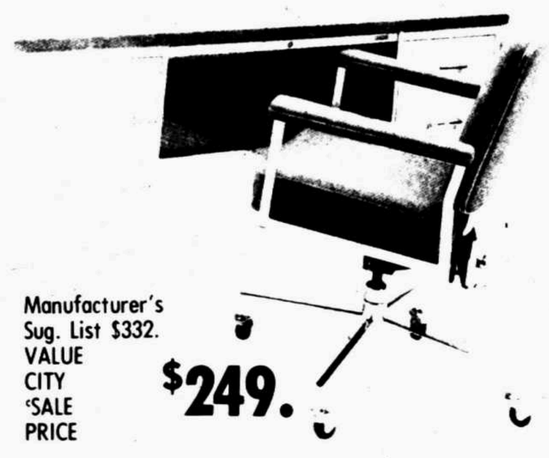

The London newspaper said the 22-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth II landed on a narrow, rough road while he was ferrying troops to the Sapper Hill base shortly before the Argentine surrender June 14.

The newspaper quoted John Roberts, a soldier in the Welsh Guards: "He must have known the risk he was running. He could have been only three or four feet from the nearest mine when he landed."

The Falklands terrain is largely bog, and helicopter landings are difficult. The Argentines, who invaded the British island colony in the South Atlantic April 2, buried thousands of mines around Port Stanley, the capital, and other areas, and the fields remain a major hazard to British forces working to return the islands to a peacetime economy.

The prince, a Royal Navy helicopter co-pilot, sailed for the Falklands with the British task force following the Argentine invasion and still is in the islands 250 miles east of the tip of South America.

Women's fortunes, roles are undergoing change

By NOEL OSMENT
Copley News Service

Some women in Africa ard gaining economic independence. Some by raising piglets and baby rabbits and selling them, while others by building up a textile business.

In Sri Lanka women are growing orchids for export.

In Oman in the Middle East, where the country has wealth but where traditional ways in rural areas have prevented enlightened health care, particularly in infant and maternal health, women are coming out from behind their veils to be trained as health workers.

In Jamaica, 1,800 women have already been trained and are making inroads into the general health problems of the island.

And in Egypt women are reading the Koran and re-interpreting it in a way that allows their lives to change.

THESE ARE SOME of the changes Helvi Sipili saw during the last half of the 1970s, and which she interprets as a sign of a better world to come.

Sipili, who ran — unsuccessfully — for the presidency of Finland in January, has been in the perfect position to monitor the changing fortunes of women throughout the world over the last two decades.

Known in Europe as "The Woman at the Top of the World," a designation taken from the title of her biography published in Finland, she has been one of the top-ranking women in the United Nations, having retired in 1980 as U.N. assistant secretary-general for social development and humanitarian affairs, and having served as secretary-general for the International Women's Year conference in Mexico City in 1975. Before that, beginning in 1960, she represented Finland on the U.N. Commission on the Status of Women.

SHE WAS INTERVIEWED recently at a convention of Zonta International, a worldwide woman's service organization of which she is a past president.

"These women (of Zonta) see the remarkable women who come from the developing countries. But it's such a small level of them who have been fortunate enough to get where they are."

Even for Scandinavia, which is considered one of the more advanced areas of the world in terms of women's progress, Sipili was herself a remarkable woman.

An elegant-looking woman with slightly graying ash-blonde hair swept back from her face, she relaxed on a hotel terrace with well-iced vodka and recalled the start of her career.

"It was not usual for women to study law and when I got my law degree in 1939, I was the 38th woman to have received one at the University of Helsinki since 1909," she said. "And I was one of a very few women practicing as attorneys when I began. Others who had gotten degrees were using them in corporations or other kinds of jobs, but not practicing."

SHE WAS ALSO THE first woman to open her own law firm in Finland, and, thus, found herself handling a large number of women clients, which gave her early on an insight into women's and family problems, she said.

Now, thanks to the U.N. activities of the 1970s — particularly the 1975 International Women's Year (IWY) Conference — the world has more understanding of the needs and problems of women, she believes.

"Before that, there had been planning (in the United Nations) of international strategies for economic growth, but they had never gone down to the lives of the individuals. When the IWY Conference was announced, we wrote a plan for world action in my office, which would not only set goals, but would ask for details and ways to attain the goals."

The plan — with 900 amendments still under study — was accepted at the Mexico City conference and adopted by the United Nations.

"For the first time, the world could know the real situation in health, nutrition, education, work and division of labor."

AFTER THE MID-DECADE IWY Conference in Copenhagen (in 1980), more specific plans were made, concentrating on health, education and employment for women, Sipili said.

"We have been invited by Kenya to hold the final conference there, which, I think, would be appropriate, since that is where much of the work has been done."

The women raising piglets in Africa and the other enterprises are a project of the Voluntary Fund for the United Nations Decade for Women.

U.S.'s most beautiful women chosen

Hearst Feature Service

They're rich and famous. They're busy and they lead exciting lives. They're America's Ten Most Beautiful Women of 1982 chosen by the editors of Harper's Bazaar and featured in the August issue. They range in age from 20 to over 40. They all take good care of themselves. Here are some of their beauty secrets.

Isabella Rossellini, international covergirl, actress, and daughter of Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini, enjoys calisthenics, aerobic dance, stretching and yoga. She avoids bread and beer, but loves to eat french fries. When depressed, sick, or discouraged Isabella finds pasta "consoling."

Academy Award nominee Cathy Moriarty, is the only woman of ten chosen most beautiful last year as well as this year. She says "...you can't just starve yourself. Keeping your body toned is the most important thing about dieting." To keep fit she and her husband, Carmine Dana, regularly work out in the gym in their California home.

Actress Katherine Ross loves the outdoors. She rides horses, cycles, runs, swims and also goes to a gym. She avoids junk food and sugar. For a smooth complexion says Katherine, "One thing I do, no matter what, is apply vitamin E oil every night."

Raquel Welch, now starring on Broadway in "Woman of the Year", the mother of a 21 year-old son and a 19 year-old daughter says, "Everything becomes easier as I get older: keeping myslef looking well and feeling happy."Her beauty regime includes 1 1/2hours of hatha yoga each day. Her diet consists only of green vegetables, fruits, chicken, fish, veal, liver, rice and oat cereals.

Super-model Christie Brinkley, strong, sexy and bordering on the voluptuous must constantly diet. To look wonderful modeling bathing suits, she confesses, "No matter how much you excercise if you love to eat as much as I do you have to watch it...or else!"

Morgan Fairchild of "Flamingo Road" never diets, but controls her food intake by chopping "everything up into tiny bites."Morgan tells Bazaar, "When everyone else is finished and the plates are ready to be cleared I'm still cutting." She recommends you eat what you crave, but only half portions.

Iman, one of America's favorite black models, stays in shape by doing weekly workouts on Nautilus machines. Lucky Iman never had a weight problem, but says, "As a baby I was so fat the doctor had to put me on a strict diet!"

Model-actress Lauren Hutton, must pay great attention to her skin to look beautiful. Years of sun have taken their toll. Hutton explains, "My skin has ost a lot of its elasticity." To counteract this problem she moisturizes after every shower and sleeps on her back so her face does not press up against the pillow.

Elizabeth McGovern, the young actress who won critical acclaim for her film performances in "Ordinary People" and "Ragtime" excercises, but doesn't diet. (She has a fast metabolism). Above all she believes beauty comes from being happy.

Gorgeous Linda Evans, star of "Dynasty," spends little time primping. Off the set she wears onliy mascara and eyeshadow. To keep slim she rides a computerized Excercycle in her home gym every day. Like McGovern, Linda believes being happy is important. Says Linda, "...if you're lonely and miserable you look horrible no matter what you do to yourself."

Decalomania catching on

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Air Force One never takes off without one. The dishwasher in the kitchen may display more than one and so perhaps will the new dinnerware pieces, the piano and the pushbutton telephone.

Decals are the common denominator among these products. Although they are believed to have originated thousands of years ago in China, new technologies and needs are creating a growth market for these usually overlooked though ubiquitous transfer patterns.

As many as 4,000 companies are believed to be producing decalomania nowadays, constituting a market of over $1 billion. Furthermore, decals now figure in more than 300 industries, according to the Meyercord Co., which has been producing decals since 1892.

DECALS ARE AN IMPORTANT element in cosmetics packaging, soft-drink bottles, glass art objects and as decorations on toys, cars, motorcycles and bicycles, says Meyercord. Indeed, they have even been launched into outer space as markings on Apollo rockets.

You will also find them on construction and farm equipment where they often provide crucial operating instructions, and as tax-collecting devices on vehicle licenses, on car windshields, and on alcoholic beverage containers.

In the average home, where there are about 30 to 40 decal-decorated products, they are routinely found on appliances, china, cookware and clocks. And they are showing up more often on furniture, where they give a hand-painted look to wood pieces at a fraction of the cost of hand-painting.

ONE REASON DECALS ARE SEEN but not recognized is that technology has made it possible to fuse the design with the material to which it is affixed, thus making the decal a permanent part of the base material.

Today's designs are a far cry from the first decals which were painted on gelatin, which was then dissolved, leaving the painting behind. Nowadays, decals consist of wafer-thin, sometimes microscopic, layers of ink, chemical compounds and paints which are built up on printing presses.

The decal is released by dipping it into water or with the aid of solvents or by peeling it off pressure-sensitive paper. Various additives make it possible to produce a decal that will be weather- and water-resistant, dishwasher- and oven-proof.

THE MOST RECENT TECHNICAL developments permit manufacturers to apply decal decorations automatically at high speeds. For example, one new process is capable of decorating glassware at the rate of 300 bottles per minute. Almost any material — fabric, metal, glass, plastics, wood, ceramics — can be used with the right decal.

THE ABILITY OF DECALS to simulate a variety of decorative home furnishings finishes is giving the product a boost in objects destined for the home. One of the latest examples is a series of designs that glow in reaction to light, simulating stained glass.

New decals using this technique can be applied to windows, mirrors and lamps. "Stained glass" designs will also be showing up in Christmas ornaments later this year, according to Meyercord. Following another home fashion trend, a new white-on-white decal mimics the appearance of hand-etching when pressed on glass.

THE MODERN INTEREST in decals began over a century ago in Europe in the 1860s. At first, a varnish solvent was used to dissolve the backing which carried the designs. In the 1930s, the invention of the water slide-on decal eliminated the messy varnish process and gave a boost to the use of decals in home decoration.

Rabbits and lambs gamboled over baby furniture; swans floated on the kitchen and bathroom fixtures, and Art Deco motifs were transferred to a variety of surfaces and products. During the '30s, decals were adapted for industry purposes, too, and cereal companies began offering decal-decorating premiums for advertising purposes. The day of the Orphan Annie, Pluto and Buck Jones glass was initiated.

Tips on home care of interest to home handyman

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to the home owner:

A REGISTERED professional entomologist, Jerry Heap of the University of Minnesota, cautions home owners that multiple insecticide treatments for carpenter ants nesting in a structure are not needed if you get to the nest. He adds that spraying insecticides around the foundation or other cracks and crevices rarely reaches the ants' nests, which should be destroyed to prevent reinfestation.

IN A REPORT researched over a five-year period by Muir Publishing Co. Ltd., the claim is made that log houses are the most energy-efficient type of residential housing it is possible to build. The report says that even uninsulated log walls outperform any and all other walls whether they are insulated or not. The publishing company is a Canadian corporation with its main offices in the Montreal area. It puts out an international log-house magazine.

A REVISION required by the National Electrical Code will affect billions of dollars of new construction and renovation work throughout the country. It says incandescent fixtures that are recessed must be thermally protected and shall so be identified uless those fixtures already have been designated I. C., which means insulated ceiling. The natin's leading manufacturer of recessed incandescent lighting, Halo Lighting of McGraw-Edison, has announced full compliance with the required revisions.

HOME OWNERS wishing to sell their property by providing part of the financing are advised to watch out by Money magazine, which calls this method of selling "a potential recipe for disaster." It suggests getting your bank to service any loan you make. The charge is usually 1 or 2 percent of the loan, which includes a credit check, the handling of payment collections and, if necessary, the foreclosure. Banks also can sell you default insurance, which typically costs about $300 on a $40,000 loan.

THE BRICK ASSOCIATION of North Carolina has come up with plans for a passive solar house with three bedrooms and two baths in 1,650 square feet of surface space. The key element in the house is the use of two compatible passive-energy systems — direct gain and a thermal-storage wall. In direct gain, south-facing windows, brick floors, brick walls and a heat-circulating fireplace combine to store the sun's energy. Sunlight streaming through the glazing heats the exposed brick masonry, which gradually releases the stored heat to the interior spaces. The solar mass creates a thermal-wall concept, a system already successful in passive solar houses.

A SAW-CHAIN company claims it has designed a saw chain three times more effective in reducing chain-saw kickback. The Townsend Company thinks the chain may soon "become a standard" for the industry.

DEAR ABBY

Fat teenager gets no sympathy from reader

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I was disgusted when I read the letter from "Loves to Eat," the teen-ager whose father offered her $100 to lose 10 pounds. She lost the weight, collected the money, then reverted to her piggish ways and gained it all back again.

Her father asked her to return the $100, so she asked you if he was entitled to it. I was disappointed when you said, "No, because it wasn't spelled out when the deal was made."

Abby, the father thought "Fatso" would realize how much better she looked after she lost the weight and therefore would keep it off. All fathers want their daughters to be pretty and more desirable for marriage.

When that teen-ager is fat and 40, she'll be lucky if she has a chance to marry a widower with five kids who need a housekeeper and babysitter! — DISGUSTED IN WYOMING

DEAR DISGUSTED: You are obviously coming from the "old days" when girls were taught that all they had to do was look "pretty" and some rich man would marry them and take care of them for the rest of their lives.

Well, times have changed, thank God! Today, young women are learning to be self-sufficient, so they won't have to marry a meal ticket like some of their grandmothers did. (P.S. If you look around, you'll see many women who are fat and 40, fantastically successful, and single by choice.)

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old grandson is wearing one earring. Is there any special reason for this? — HIGHLAND PARK, ILL.

DEAR PARK: Maybe he lost the other one. Ask him.

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of three teen-age boys, may I respond to that 14-year-old girl whose parents refuse to let her have her own phone even though she's willing to pay for it herself?

I hope your parents stick by their decision. I wonder if they know how rude you are? When you telephone here asking for my son, you never say, "Hello Mrs. Jones, this is Patty. May I please speak to Bill?" All I hear is a curt, "Is Bill there?" And if I say he's out for the evening, why do you persist, "Where is he? Is he at Tommy's? When will he be home?" That's clearly none of your business!

Did you realize that while you prattled on and on last night, Bill left the phone, got himself a snack and returned without your knowing that he missed 10 minutes of your fascinating monologue?

Also, sometimes when you call, Bill is standing right here, but I tell you he's not home because he's asked me to.

An added note to your parents. I know with whom you're having an affair, lady. I also know your other daughter is on the pill and sleeps around. And, Dad, I know you cheat on your expense account and you're two months behind on your house payments. How do I know? Because your daughter who has her own phone tells my oldest son all the family secrets. Sign this ... — 'T' HELL WITH MA BELL

AT WIT'S END

Fact and fiction

By ERMA BOMBECK

You like fiction?

Some of the best being published today are the picture postcards of your home town. Ever see what tourists send home from your city? Pictures of downtown streets lined with boulevards that look like the Gardens of Babylon. A statue to the brave men of World War I with 2,000 people standing around it paying homage. And a view of the city after dark that rivals the Paris skyline.

I used to live in a small Ohio town where the high spot of our week was watching them dust the trusses in the drugstore window. There was one traffic light, a gas pump, and a karate school above the feed store. The single police cruiser kept a list of dogs in heat so they could follow up on missing male complaints.

The picture postcards told another story. There were attractions for six days, including a museum which no one had ever seen. There was a boating regatta on a river that had dried up 20 years ago. And there was a town full of traffic (including 12 taxis) that boggled the imagination. What should have tipped people off was that the cars on the cards all had running boards and wicks for headlights.

It has always been so.

There's a new book out about postcards called "Prairie Fires and Paper Moons: The American Photographic Postcard 1900-1920," by Hal Morgan and Andreas Brown, that really explains a lot of things.

In the early 1900s, postcards depicted one of two things: natural disasters like flood and fires, and personalized cards showing ordinary people in extraordinary settings.

This would certainly explain a couple of old postcards I found in a photo album of my father-in-law. One showed him in the original Wright Brothers airplane, his hair blowing from under a straw hat and a line underneath that proclaimed, "FLYING HIGH IN PITTSBURGH."

There's another one of him in a bar wearing Western attire, holding a mug of beer in one hand and dangling a redhead on his knee in the other with the message, "RAISING HELL IN CHAGRIN FALLS."

The authors of the book say that after World War I, photographic postcards were replaced by sophisticated glossy pictures of resort hotels, scenic wonders and scantily clad girls on the beach.

It's still a challenge. A couple of years ago, one of my kids found a card of an Indian and a bear posing together for a picture taken by a tourist at the Grand Canyon. My son said, "Wow! I wish I lived there."

He did.

Say it with a smile: Research says you could be telling all

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer

ATLANTA — There are grins, beams and smirks — 1,814,400 ways in all to turn a frown upside down — so when the world smiles with you it can have a world of different meanings, a psychologist says.

Larry Stettner of Wayne State University in Detroit says smiling is complicated and important form of self-expression, and improved knowledge of it has practical applications.

Besides, it feels good, Stettner said Monday at a symposium on his favorite subject at a meeting of the International Primatological Society.

"It's like discovering a language system," Stettner said. "I've become ensnared in working out the vocabulary of smiling."

Addressing the symposium, he said there are many different kinds of smiles, 1,814,400 by his estimate. "That could be off by several hundred thousand," he said, smiling.

Stettner, an exuberant man with a booming voice, turned serious to explain some of the practical applications of his work.

"A lot of people are interested in smiles," he said. People who study a foreign language, for example, ought to know what different smiles signify in different cultures.

"You learn a language but you don't learn the non-verbal language. It would be useful to know what these other people are communicating (with their smiles)."

It likewise would be useful to know when people are faking a smile. A colleague of Stettner's on a trip to the Soviet Union recently found that the KGB — the Soviet intelligence agency — was very interested in being able to spot a false smile. They questioned him in detail about his work.

Dentists and plastic surgeons would like to know more about smiling so that they can repair teeth and faces without changing the meaning in a patient's smile.

Stettner would like to determine which components of smiles — whether raised eyebrows, wrinkled noses or crows' feet around the eyes — are universal, and which are found only in certain regions or certain cultures.

"I wouldn't be surprised if the dimpler — the muscle that causes the cheeks to be sucked in — was always an indication of skepticism when added to a smile," he said.

"Something like that might be universal," he said, but other things might not be. "It's like walking. An Italian walks differently from an Englishman."

He also is looking at mother-child pairs to try to identify the meaning of various smiles.

Most of what is known about smiling comes from such studies of infants and their parents. Sidney Perloe of Haverford College in Pennsylvania tried to determine why fathers tend to smile less at the antics of babies than mothers do.

It had been thought that fathers had less reason than mothers to develop a rapport with infants because fathers play a smaller role in nurturing the infant.

But Perloe found that males are less likely to smile merely because they are aware that they are being watched by other adults, and they apparently fear that such behavior might be unbecoming.

The hot and humid weather doesn't keep Midland band students from summer practices or from pre-season competitions. In fact, as shown on the faces of these Robert E. Lee High School band students, the cloudy skies and sultry afternoon possibly increased their determination and spirit of rivalry during the annual platoon competition late Monday afternoon. Shown, above are co-leaders of the winning platoon, the Jamboree Regiment, George Yargerz, left, and Wes Coles.

Former co-stars join Greer Garson to celebrate her return to acting

Greer Garson

Walter Pidgeon

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It started as a reunion for Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, who starred in romantic films of the 1940s, but Pidgeon was ill so Ms. Garson was joined by other former co-stars — Dana Andrews, Cesar Romero and Howard Duff.

The intimate luncheon Monday honored Ms. Garson's return to acting in "Love Boat." Besides Andrews, of "Strange Lady in Town," Romero, of "Julia Misbehaves," and Duff, who appears in the TV show with Ms. Garson, she was greeted by director-friend George Cukor and Vincente Minnelli.

"I saw Walter last Saturday," said the actress, who won the Oscar for "Mrs. Miniver." "He seems well, but his balance was damaged by medication for two blood clots he received in a fall a few years ago."

Ms. Garson last appeared in "Little Women" for TV two years ago. She lives in Dallas with her husband of 33 years, Buddy Fogelson, and remains active in theater productions, especially with the Greer Garson Theater in Santa Fe, N.M.

E. Corning II

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Mayor Erastus Corning II, hospitalized for nearly two months with emphysema and asthma, is assuring residents that he'll return to the City Hall job he's held since 1942.

Speaking from his hospital bed Monday, the 72-year-old Corning said he is working at least an hour daily, meeting and telephoning city department heads. The mayor, who ordinarily runs the city with a firm hand, said he has told aides to begin exercising more responsibility.

Corning, the nation's longest-tenured mayor, was hospitalized June 15 and, except for one day at home, has remained at Albany Medical Center since. He has been listed in fair condition for several weeks.

The mayor said he decided to make the statement afer receiving more than 1,500 cards expressing concern for his health and wishing him a speedy recovery. Doctors have not said when he might be released.

Balloon stunt not hot air

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Three hundred balloons were launched in a publicity stunt that involved more than hot air — one of the balloons contained a passbook worth $500 to the lucky finder.

The red, white and blue helium-filled balloons were released Monday morning by a savings and loan association and were expected to travel as far as 200 miles.

Concert canceled

Tonight's Rainbow concert at Chaparral Center has been canceled.

The concert was canceled due to low ticket sales. Not quite 300 tickets had been sold the day before the concert.

Those who purchased tickets may get a refund by returning to the store where they bought their tickets.

'E.T.,' 'Whorehouse' lead ticket sales

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" continued to dominate the summer movie scene last weekend despite significant box office declines from a week ago.

"E.T.," Stephen Spielberg's movie about a stranded alien befriended by three children, took in $9.4 million at 1,514 theaters in the United States and Canada during the three days ending Sunday. That was $1 million less than the previous weekend, but the film continued to set box office records for its gross to date, now at $187.7 million in 59 days of general release.

"Whorehouse," another Universal film, collected $6.3 million at 1,427 theaters over the weekend, down from $9 million a weekend earlier. The musical starring Dolly Parton and Burt Reynolds has grossed $40.1 million in 17 days.

Cheech and Chong's new film "Things Are Tough All Over" proved the strongest third-place holding in 30 weeks, grabbing $5.6 million at 1,050 screens in the U.S. sleuth. Sylvester Stallone's film was bumped to fourth a week earlier as its total gross stood at $65 million.

Paramount's "An Officer and a Gentleman," a romantic story starring Richard Gere and Debra Winger, played in 346 theaters to gross $863 million for a 12-day gross of $90 million.

The week's other new film, 20th Century Fox's "The Pirate Movie" starring Kristy McNichol and Christopher Atkins, drew a respectable $2.5 million at 757 theaters.

Other films grossing in excess of $2 million this weekend: MGM-UA's "Rocky III," $2.4 million at 1,024 theaters. Ladd Co./Warner Bros.' "Night Shift," $2.3 million at 667 theaters, and ABC/20th Century Fox's "Young Doctors in Love," $2.1 million at 728 theaters.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dialysis may improve psoriasis

Dear Dr. Solomon: There may be worse diseases than psoriasis but I haven't heard of any. One of my co-workers says he's heard that dialysis can help. Would you recommend it? — Sal, Wilmington, Del.

Dear Sal: There is evidence that peritoneal dialysis may be effective in the treatment of psoriasis that has not responded to other forms of treatment. A study of five patients with psoriasis who were treated in this fashion showed that four had significant improvement. Why not discuss the advisability of such treatment with your physician?

I don't know what other forms of treatment you have been subjected to, but you should know that phototherapy has also proved helpful for a number of patients.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I remember when I had the measles many, many years ago, my mother used cornstarch to relieve the itching. Yet today there are all kinds of powders on the market but I rarely ever hear cornstarch mentioned. Have doctors learned anything about cornstarch that my mother did not know about? — Elsie, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dear Elsie: Cornstarch may be staging a comeback. Dr. James J. Leyden, of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia, says that cornstarch is superior to talc in preventing diaper rash in babies. He explains that diaper rash is usually the result of friction. Since talc cakes up when the skin is wet, it may actually increase friction and therefore aggravate the condition.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine was laid off from his job and became so upset that he had to see a shrink. I wouldn't like to lose my job either, but don't you think it's wrong for someone to let it get to him so much that he has to have treatment? — Ben, New York City.

Dear Ben: I fail to see how a moral value such as "wrong" or "right" has any bearing on a person's emotional reaction to a stressful situation. Different people react to stress in different ways. It is not so much the specific event that is important but the person's perception of it.

Individuals have different emotional resources available to help them cope with stress, and each perceives a similar situation differently. For example, a 20-year-old man faced with loss of a job is in a much different situation from a 50-year-old man faced with loss of a job. Similarly, a young woman who prides herself on her figure may react more strongly to the need for a mastectomy than a much older woman who is not as concerned about this aspect of her appearance.

But how can anyone say that one reaction is "right" and the other is "wrong?"

For Mr. P.H. (Cincinnati): The anti-smoking shot is given in Baltimore. The program is coupled with a diet which cleanses the nicotine from your body, and instruction in behavioral modification to help you break the habit of smoking. The psychological aspects are very important.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had a creepy experience lately. I was spending the weekend with friends and one of their children walked in his sleep. I had never experienced anything like it. Isn't this unusual? What causes it? — Pam, Norfolk, Va.

Dear Pam: Sleepwalking is seen more commonly in children than in adults. About 6 percent of children sleepwalk, and it occasionally occurs in adults who had the condition when they were children. No one really knows why it occurs or specifically what it signifies.

The classic episodes of sleepwalking are usually harmless but may occasionally pose some danger to the patient. Medication given at bedtime can be effective in eliminating the episodes or in reducing their severity.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been on tetracycline as a way of getting rid of acne, and while it's done some good, the results have been less than what I had hoped for. Is there anything else I can do to help speed things up? At the rate I'm going, I'll be retired on Social Security before my face clears up. — Diane, Rochester, N.Y.

Dear Diane: I can understand your frustration, but I'm certain it will not be too long before the acne is only a memory. However, you might want to discuss with your doctor the advisability of adding vitamin A to the treatment.

Dr. Albert M. Kligman, professor of dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia, has reported that large doses of oral vitamin A may be helpful in the treatment of acne and can be used in combination with tetracycline. However, side effects are a possibility and I would warn against self-treatment. In addition, I don't advocate treatment with oral vitamin A for anyone who is overweight or relatively inactive.

Why not check with your doctor to see if he or she believes that a trial with vitamin A may be helpful?

Dear Dr. Solomon: Just about a month ago after my doctor suggested I watch my blood pressure, the place where I work put in a blood pressure machine which anyone working there can use. Is this a good idea? I don't like to play doctor and I'm wondering whether having such a machine around can do any good.

Dear Jeffrey: Monitoring your own blood pressure does not substitute for care by a physician, but it can prove helpful. If you are able to check your blood pressure regularly, you will be more aware of whether it rises, falls or remains the same.

Certifcate interests downs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting today, banks and savings and loan associations may pay as much as 11.357 percent on $10,000-minimum six-month money market certificates, down from last week's 11.614 percent.

Also today, S&Ls may pay as much as 10.025 percent and commercial banks as much as 9.775 percent interest on $7,500-minimum three-month certificates, up from last week's 9.633 percent and 9.383 percent.

The yields were set Monday when the Treasury Department auctioned $5.5 billion in six-month bills and $5.5 billion in three-month bills.

The six-month bills were sold at an average discount rate of 10.94 percent, up from the 10.671 percent last Monday, and the three-month bills went for an average rate of 10.025 percent, up from 9.633 percent.

Monday's yields, a measure of the cost of government borrowing from the public, were the highest since the July 26 levels of 11.378 percent for six-month bills and 10.559 percent for three-month bills.

Installment debt at $1.3 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Showing a bit more caution in expanding their debt than in May, U.S. consumers took on $1.35 billion more in installment debt than they paid off in June, a new government report indicated.

The figures showed no sign of any spending boom that might help push the national economy out of its year-long slump.

However, the May and June increases in spending on credit, though far below levels that would be typical for a robust economy, were still well above the levels recorded last winter when the economy was in steep recession.

The Federal Reserve Board said Monday that consumers took on $29.74 billion in new installment debt in June, up 1.8 percent from May, while paying off $28.39 billion, up 2.1 percent.

The figures cover short-and medium-term credit agreements. They do not include home loans or other long-term arrangements.

Dollar surges to record high

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar's surge to record highs against several currencies in European trading puts extra cash in the pockets of American tourists but increases financial headaches for European governments already battling an economic slump.

The stronger dollar will increase Europeans' oil and gasoline import bills which must be paid in dollars. Foreign governments or companies holding debts denominated in dollars must come up with more local currency to them off.

The cost of imports direct from thes at the height of the tourist season in Europe, sparking hopes in the industry that Americans visiting the Continent will spend more on the now cheaper souvenirs, hotels and restaurants.

"As the dollar goes screaming up against everything, it makes it very cheap for Americans," said Richard O'Brien, chief economist for the American Express International Banking Corp. in London.

"I don't feel that this late in the season, it will affect where people go," he said. "But they might spend more just because they feel wealthier."

Furniture chain in banking

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — In an unusual move, the federal government awarded its first commercial bank charter to a non-financial institution — a retail furniture chain, the government announced.

Western Family Bank, being set up by McMahan's Furniture Co., will open its first branch by the end of the year in Carlsbad, the company said.

Richard A. McMahan, president of the company, said the depositors probably would be "primarily our customers who have been doing business here for the past 60 years. Our customers make their purchases on conditional sales contracts and they frequently come into the store on a monthly basis to make payments."

Leonora Cross, a spokeswoman for the controller of the currency, said Monday the approval for the McMahan application was the first ever for a non-financial company. The controller of the currency regulates commercial banking.

McMahan said his company applied for a bank charter last February and approval was given for three branch offices, in Carlsbad, Colton and Fresno.

Mexico our new Saudi Arabia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico has supplanted Saudi Arabia as the largest supplier of foreign oil to the United States in recent months, but an Energy Department spokesman said this is probably more a result of price than of any long-term trend.

Trade figures from the Census Bureau, disclosed Monday, show a shift in imports occurred in May and continued in June, with more oil coming from Mexico than from the traditional big supplier among nations belonging to OPEC, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

In May, U.S. imports of crude oil from Mexico totaled 22.3 million barrels, while those from the Saudis were 12.2 million barrels. For June the figures were Mexico 27.4 million barrels and Saudi Arabia 21 million barrels.

Jay Vivari, an Energy Department spokesman, said Saudi Arabia's refusal to lower the price of its Arabian light from $34 per barrel was the main factor in the shift. The latest Energy Department figures show Mexico charging $32.50 for a barrel of its light crude.

Steel production falls slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel production fell to 1.257 million tons in the week ended Aug. 6, a decrease of 0.7 percent from the previous week's 1.248 million tons, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported.

The industry's production, released Monday, amounted to 42.6 percent of capacity during the week, compared with 42.3 percent in the previous week.

Estimated figures for the year to date showed production at 49.472 million net tons, a decrease of 36 percent from the 77.284 million net tons in the previous year.

Production so far this year used 53.6 percent of capacity, compared with 83.4 percent a year earlier.

Recovery may not lower jobless rate

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Even if the economy expands strongly, it might be more difficult than in prior recoveries to lower the jobless rate.

That discouraging assessment, shared by many economists and even by some government labor analysts, is contrary to the White House position that its policies will lead to long-term reductions in unemployment.

The doubts arise for a variety of reasons, the most important of which appear to be automation, foreign competition, and a widespread recognition by employers that they must shave their operating costs.

The difficulties might also be compounded by a recovery that seems likely to be weak, even when measured by administration forecasts, which private sector economists generally regard as overly optimistic.

In July, the employment situation worsened. With the jobless rate rising to 9.8 percent of the civilian work force, analysts had to search back to the tailend of the Great Depression to find comparisons.

About 10.8 million individuals sought but failed to find jobs in July. Another 1.5 million were said to have stopped looking for work, and 5.5 million more were working part-time in the absence of full-time jobs.

In previous recoveries since World War II, the gross national product expanded sharply in the first few months of recovery, sometimes at a 10 percent annual rate. Optimistic White House forecasts are half that.

Commerce Department analysts already have predicted that even when the automobile industry recovers, employment might be at lower levels than before the recession, and that part of the reason might be automation.

Robert Dederick, Commerce Department assistant secretary for economic affairs, told a Senate subcommittee in January he expects the industry to have 200,000 fewer workers in the mid-1980s than in late 1978.

He blamed the situation on slower growth in the demand for cars, increased use of foreign-built parts, the switch to smaller cars and increased automation. Carmakers are depending heavily on the latter factor to reduce overall costs and remain competitive with imports.

The 200,000 figure used by Dederick almost coincides with the number of hourly workers on indefinite layoff from the five major automakers. Last week, 213,921 workers were listed in that category.

Most economists agree that future productivity gains in manufacturing will rely heavily on greater use of automation, including robots, a situation that at least temporarily could mean fewer jobs.

Robert Theobald, economist, futurist and adviser to corporations and municipal groups, says promises of more jobs are short-sighted and bound to fail, since they are based on outdated economic patterns.

He reasons that noninflationary economic expansion, such as President Reagan seeks, demands the use of automation. To promise jobs too, he says, is a contradiction and a promise that cannot be fulfilled.

Instead, he argues, the prosperous economy of the future should be anticipated now by studying the "refiguring" of work patterns to include job-sharing. While maintaining a high level of production, he says, robots will free people for more education and recreation.

While the first impact of automation already is being felt, according to Theobald, other observers are keeping their focus attuned to more prosaic factors, such as the apparently greater willingness to fire.

Because of the recession, and repeated assertions by economists and others that American industry is suffocated by its own bureaucracy, almost every large company today has examined its job structure.

The result is the elimination of many thousands of white-collar jobs, the consolidation of divisions under trimmed-down management, and the elimination of the least profitable operations in large companies.

The fact that once strong American industries are beset by foreign competition, especially steel and including textiles, shoes and consumer electronics, adds to concerns about reducing unemployment.

Whether the Reagan team, or any other, can contend with these multiple challenges is hard to say. What can be said is that the job of creating jobs might be tougher in the future than over the past 20 years.

Rotan predicting more bankruptcies

HOUSTON (AP) — A brokerage firm specializing in the securities of oil and gas companies is predicting increased bankruptcies among energy companies because of slow recovery of drilling and drilling-related activity.

A Rotan Mosle report said there would be no dramatic resurgence in drilling activity this year and warned "the frequency of bankruptcies is likely to increase."

The report also said the decline in the number of active drilling rigs will bottom out this month and gradually increase during the final four months of the year.

Hughes Tool Co., which compiles a weekly count of active oil and gas drilling rigs, reported that the total dropped to 2,656 last week, down 15 from the previous week and 1,450 below the total during the boom of 1981.

The drilling decline was blamed on weak demand for oil, anemic prices caused by the sluggish international economy, disappointment with the results of the 1981 domestic drilling spree, and a shortage of capital from investors.

Recovery, said the Rotan Mosle report, "may be very gradual unless there is a sudden upheaval in the Middle East."

Some drilling contractors have been charging rates at below cost "in order to keep their fleets operating at the highest possible levels," the report said.

DOE hits Sohio for $15 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department says the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) has agreed to pay $15 million to settle allegations of overpricing crude oil and refined petroleum products over a 7½-year period.

Sohio did not admit to the violations but said it agreed to the consent order to avoid a lengthy, expensive legal battle.

Under the agreement announced Monday, Sohio will pay $5 million to the federal government and $10 will be distributed to the governments of 19 states and the District of Columbia.

The distribution is to be proportional to the amount of business Sohio does in the various states.

Ohio, where Sohio is headquartered, will get largest state share, $4.4 million. Pennsylvania is next with $1.4 million.

It will be up to state officials to decide what to do with the money.

Energy Department spokeswoman Susanne H. Howard said Sohio was accused of exceeding price controls set by the agency's Economic Regulatory Administration. Neither the department nor Sohio would give details.

This is the second such settlement. A similar $25 million settlement was reached last fall between the department and Chevron.

Economy wipes out dealers

DETROIT (AP) — In the first half of this year, the five major domestic automakers reported a drop of 556 U.S. dealerships as high interest rates and poor car sales took their toll, a trade journal says.

Automotive News reported Monday that the decline of new car dealerships was the third-worst in 22 years.

The carmakers had 21,124 dealerships July 1, down from 21,680 at the beginning of 1982. That compares with a drop of 325 in the first half of last year.

The worst record for the first six months was in 1980 when there were 930 fewer dealerships, followed by 1961 when the drop was 728, Automotive News said.

Specifically, General Motors Corp. suffered its worst decline in the past 22 years — losing 285 dealers. Ford Motor Co. was down by 158, and Chrysler Corp. by 19. American Motors Corp. was down 37 dealers and Volkswagen of America Inc. was down 39.

City OKs 58 building projects

The city of Midland granted 58 building permits in the first week of August, for construction and alterations worth $4,031,100. This brings the total for the year to $206.28 million.

Topping the list was a permit given to J. R. Peck for Mission Square Shopping Center on the east side of N. Big Spring at Palmer Street. The $1,806,000 project calls for 103,000 square feet of retail and office space on a 7.21-acre site.

Other commercial permits for construction or alteration were granted to: C. H. B. Construction for a 15-unit apartment complex at 3007 W. Louisiana for $340,000; Greg Frazier, Hogan Park, new concession and restroom facility, $25,000; Henley Metal Buildings, 3312 W. Wall, $1,000; Exploration Services, 701 S. Pecos, $6,000; Billingsley Enterprises, 17 spaces at La Villita, 3325 W. Wadley, for numerous commercial alterations totaling more than $100,000; Rykin Pump, 611 S. Big Spring, $5,000; Mid South Construction, 1407 W. Illinois, $11,200.

Permits for 20 new single family residences were issued, for construction ranging from $39,600 to $300,000; the remaining permits were for residential alterations, swimming pools, commercial signs and moving in a mobile home.

UAW may hit Chrysler with one-day strikes

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers president Douglas A. Fraser says the union might resort to one-day strikes at selected Chrysler Corp. plants if there is no agreement on a new contract by Sept. 14.

"We would have no inhibitions," Fraser said Monday. "There would be no contract and we could do it with immunity. It would be a way to bring the issue to a head without endangering the company."

Contract talks have been under way since July 20, but there has been little apparent progress. The current pact, covering some 43,200 U.S. hourly workers plus another 40,000 on indefinite layoff, expires Sept. 14.

Fraser said he does not favor extending the contract. He also said he doubts a settlement will be reached before Chrysler's directors meet Sept. 2.

"I think you should extend the deadline only for a couple of reasons — when the problems involved are so comlicated that you need more time, or when you're so close that you just need a bit more time to complete a settlement," he said.

Chrysler is seeking to hold the line on its total hourly labor costs. The union is demanding an immediate pay increase and the return of some wages and benefit sacrificed by workers under Chrysler's recovery plan.

Legal problems plague NFL as pre-season opens

Cocaine, Senate bill overshawdow training camp news in '82

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

The National Football League is creeping closer to its first full week of pre-season play, but it's still having trouble shaking player-related drug problems that surfaced earlier this summer.

Don Reese, the former New Orleans Saints defensive lineman, was told to report to a private detective twice a day by a Florida Circuit judge while awaiting an Aug.31 hearing on charges that he violated his drug trafficking probation.

Reese, who gave the league's drug problems its greatest exposure, admitted his addiction to cocaine in the June 14 Sports Illustrated article. He is accused of possessing cocaine while serving time in the Dade County stockade, using the narcotic after his release and being present in places where illegal drugs were used.

Reese could face up to 29 years in prison if convicted of violating probation.

Ironically, Reese's probation ends today and he could not have been brought up on charges if the magazine article had been delayed two months.

Chuck Muncie, Reese's former teammate at New Orleans and a player Reese alleged used drugs with the Saints, began the second phase of a drug rehabilitation, the San Diego Chargers said Monday.

Muncie, the Chargers' top running back, told a news conference recently that he had undergone rehabilitation, helping him get rid of his dependency on drugs.

"We've been advised by the people counseling him (Muncie) that he should go through a second phase of rehabilitation and that's what he's doing," Chargers Coach Don Coryell told newsmen Monday.

Muncie's agent said he would undergo three days of rehabilitation.

A full slate of action this week is kicked off Thursday when New Orleans visits Houston, while Cincinnati travels to Kansas City and Seattle is at home against St Louis Friday.

On Saturday, it's Buffalo at Dallas; Cleveland at Detroit; Denver at Los Angeles; Minnesota at Atlanta; the New York Jets at Green Bay; the New York Giants at Baltimore; the Raiders at San Francisco; Philadelphia at Tampa Bay; Pittsburgh vs. New England at Knoxville and Washington at Miami.

Chicago is at San Diego on Sunday.

In other news, U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter introduced legislation to prevent professional teams from leaving town unless "they cannot survive as a profitable business."

The bill deals with issues raised by the Raiders plans to move from Oakland to Los Angeles. It recognizes hometown fans' "proprietary interest" in their team, which should halt an owner's moving plans unless the franchise is failing financially, Specter said.

The Raiders left Oakland this year despite being heavily supported by the Oakland community.

Green Bay officials say they have made tentative reservations in both Oakland and Los Angeles for their Aug.29 exhibition against the Raiders. Tom Miller, the Packers assistant to the president for business, said: "We are just waiting for the word, like everybody else," as to which city to team will play in.

Atlanta running back William Andrews reported to camp, saying he missed his teammates too much and "the sweating part of it" in ending his eight-day holdout for an extension or renegotiation of his contract. The Falcons said Andrews, who will make approximately $250,000 this seeason, had been fined an undisclosed amount of money.

Detroit Lions' linebacker Steve Towle announced his retirement because of a recurring groin injury. The former defensive captain of the Miami Dolphins missed all of last season because of the injury and aggravated the injury again during summer training camp.

Doug Paschal, Minnesota's fifth-round draft choice in 1980, also retired Monday. The former North Carolina running back spent last season on the Vikings' injured reserve list after knee surgery.

The Lions also released free-agent linebacker Jim Szczepaniuk.

Buffalo released seven players, including Colorado State center Aaron Finch and Ron Crews, a defensive end from Nevada-Las Vegas.

Nine players were released by the St.Louis Cardinals, including three veterans — wide receiver Ralph Clayton, defensive lineman Chris Combs and linebacker Doak Fields. The team's 11th-round draft choice, defensive end James Williams of North Carolina A&T, also was cut.

Cincinnati's Matt Bahr has virtually sewed up the Bengals kicking duties for this season following the release of free-agent kickers Harry Oliver of Notre Dame and Stephen Steinke of Utah State.

The Philadelphia Eagles got their roster under 100, releasing five players including local punter Casey Murphy of Temple.

San Francisco 49ers wide receiver Renaldo Nehemiah's NFL debut may be postponed. The world record holder in the hurdles has just gotten over a minor injury and may not see action in the 49ers' game against the Raiders.

"Renaldo is not ready yet to face those guys," 49er defensive back Dwight Hicks said.

Midland uses home run to gain split with Gold Sox

AMARILLO — The Cubs split a twin bill with Amarillo and gained a half a game on the Western Division leaders by virtue of a El Paso's defeat of San Antonio.

Midland lost the opening game 7-2 but came back in the nightcap for a 6-1 win.

El Paso moved in to first place with the victory and could shut out any payoff hopes for the other teams in the West since they the winners of the first half title.

In the nightcap Carmelo Martinez and Mike Diaz had the big bats for the Cubs as they lead the club in the bounce back win, 6-1.

Martinez' got his 23rd blast of the year in the fifth inning after Joe Carter had singled. He was 3-for-6 on the night.

Diaz' slugged a solo homer to lead off the fourth stanza, capping his 2-for-3 performance in the second game. Diaz, who did not catch in the opener, also doubled in Midland's first run in the second.

Dan Purpura put the only blemish on Carlos Gil's pitching performance when he hit his first homerun of the season in the sixth inning. Gil raised his season's record to 5-6 for the Cubs.

George Hinshaw got hits in both games to extend his hitting streak to 19 games for the Sox.

In the first game Marty Kain turned in a strong performance as he went the distance for the Gold Sox. Kain gave up six hits while holding the Cubs to single runs in the third and fifth innings.

Jimmy Thomas and Jeff Ronk provided all the firepower that Amarillo needed to set down the Cubs.

Thomas was 2-for-3 and drove in two runs while Ronk drove in two on a double in the third inning.

In that third stanza the Gold Sox had two doubles, two singles and took advantage of a Mike Kelley error in left field to score their four runs.

Martinez scored Midland's first run in the second a Carlos Lezcano ground ball. Martinez lead off the inning with a single.

In the fourth it was again Martinez, this time with a two-out walk, as he scored on Dave Owen's double.

Mike King dropped his record to 6-11 with the loss and Kain broke the .500 mark, 9-8, with the win.

Diablos move ahead of SA

By The Associated Press

Jerry Jenkins took over mound duties for the El Paso Diablos with the bases loaded and only one out in the fifth inning. Jenkins was able to pitch out of the jam and hold the San Antonio Dodgers hitless for the rest of the game as the Diablos took a 14-5 Texas League baseball victory.

The victory moved the Diablos into first place in the Texas League West, a half-game ahead of the Dodgers.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa edged Arkansas, 3-2, Jackson swept a doubleheader from Shreveport, 4-1 and 2-1, and Amarillo and Midland split a doubleheader. Amarillo won the first game, 7-2, and Midland took the nightcap, 6-1.

Jenkin, 4-2, was the winning pitcher for El Paso. Tom Klawitter, 9-10, was the loser.

Dan Davidsmeier had a two-run homer for the Diablos. German Rivera slugged his 13th homer of the year, a solo shot, for San Antonio.

Jon Hansen had four hits, including a double, in five trips to the plate for the Diablos and teammate Kurt Kingsolver was also 4-5.

Shake Moore had a homer as the Tulsa Drillers scored three runs in the third inning for a 3-2 come-from-behind victory over the Arkansas Travelers.

Arkansas grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Jack Ayer got an infield hit and scored on Jim Adduci's double. The Travelers added a run in the third when Ayer doubled, went to third on a groundout and scored on a wild pitch.

The Drillers got their big inning off to a good start in the third when Moore slugged a solo homer. Curtis Wilson, Mike Rubel and and Tommy Dunbar singled to load the bases and Steve Bouchele walked to force in a run. The third run came when Jerry Neufang hit into a fielder's choice.

The winning pitcher was Brad Mengwasser, 12-3. The loser was Mark Riggins, 9-6.

The Jackson Mets were able to bunch their runs together into two big innings as they swept a doubleheader from the Shreveport Captains.

The Mets scored all four runs in the second inning of their 4-1 victory in the first game.

Rob Deer had a solo homer. Billy Beane and Al Pedrique each singled home a run and Jim Woodward tripled home the final run.

Jeff Bitteger allowed only three hits as he boosted his season record to 11-4. Larry Williams, 1-5, was the losing pitcher.

Terry Blocker doubled home one run and Ron Reynolds drove home the other with a single in the bottom of the seventh inning as the Mets took a 2-1 victory over the Captains in the second game.

NL roundup

Atlanta continues nosedive

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Joe Torre isn't pressing the panic button yet, but he figures his Atlanta Braves better get on the stick soon.

"We need our pep and spirit back," said the chagrined Atlanta manager after watching his nosediving team lose 3-0 to the San Francisco Giants Monday night.

"I'm not taking anything away from Jim Barr. He pitched a super game — but we didn't have it tonight."

The Braves only managed three hits off Barr, who is usually a relief pitcher and was making only his second start of the season. The result was Atlanta's seventh strawght loss.

"Maybe it's because of what happened over the weekend, but we're down," said Torre, referring to a four-game sweep by the Los Angeles Dodgers. "We didn't have any life at all tonight."

The Dodgers, by the way, trailed the Braves by 10½ games 11 days ago in the National League West, but are now only a half-game behind the Braves as a result of their 3-2, 13-inning victory over the Cincinnati Reds Monday night.

Torre held a 15-minute meeting in the clubhouse with his team following Monday night's loss to one of baseball's hottest teams. The Giants have won eight straight.

"Going nine innings made me happy. But I can't say I'm surprised that I could do it," said the 34-year-old Barr, who hadn't pitched a complete game since 1980.

Barr, 2-2, the veteran right-hander who started one game in April and has 36 relief appearances this season, walked none and struck out two. Barr allowed singles in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Atlanta starter Pascual Perez, 0-2, allowed only one hit and faced the minimum 12 batters through four innings. Reggie Smith's leadoff single in the fifth started a two-run Giant rally. Jeff Leonard doubled home one of the runs and Barr singled home the other.

The Giants scored an unearned run in the sixth and added insurance in the eighth on a two-run triple by Darrell Evans.

Dodgers 3, Reds 2

Pedro Guerrero slugged Jim Kern's first pitch of the 13th inning for his 22nd home run to lead Los Angeles over Cincinnati, the Dodgers' seventh straight win and 11th in their last 12 games.

Reliever Dave Stewart, 7-6, retired the last 18 batters to earn the victory. Stewart, who was 3-1 against the Reds last year with one save, walked one and struck out five in his six innings of hitless relief.

Cubs 9, Expos 2

Bill Buckner went 4-for-5, including a pair of solo home runs, and Ryne Sandberg added a three-run shot as Chicago defeated Montreal for its fifth straight victory. The Cubs have won seven of their last eight, and the five-game winning streak is their longest since August of 1979.

The Cubs put the game away early, taking a 7-0 lead after 5½ innings as Buckner hit his two homers and Sandberg belted his shot off Scott Sanderson, 6-11, who lost his seventh straight game.

Ferguson Jenkins, 7-13, gained his first victory since July 9.

Astros 4, Padres 3

Alan Ashby hit two solo home runs and Don Sutton and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter to carry Houston over San Diego.

Sutton, 11-8, struck out one and walked three in 72-3 innings before getting relief help from Bert Roberge and Dave Smith, who gained his ninth save after giving up two runs in the ninth on an error and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua.

John Montefusco, 9-7, pitched the first seven innings for the Padres, allowing all Houston's runs.

Newcomers could make or break Longhorns' season

One of a Series
By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas — Texas, which followed its seniors to a No.2 ranking last year, must rely on newcomers to remain among the nation's major-college football powers this season.

Coach Fred Akers said goodbye to 15 senior starters, 12 of whom were drafted by the pros, including top choice Kenneth Sims, a two-time All-America defensive tackle.

Although Akers does not argue with forecasters who pick Arkansas, Southern Methodist, Texas A&M and Houston as probably the top four teams in the Southwest Conference, he feels "we might surprise some people."

"We like to think we've got the kind of guys that believe they're better than that any year. We expect to be more competitive than that," he said.

"It's a fiery bunch. I think they can be awfully exciting," Akers continued, referring to this season's squad. "I don't think I've had a more enthusiastic, aggressive group in the spring than this."

Texas finished second nationally last season after rallying to beat Alabama 14-12 in the Cotton Bowl for a 10-1-1 record.

Akers said that four defensive ends — "our strongest position" — and 6-foot-6, 253-pound tackle John Haines are set on defense. But, he added, "We have question marks at the other places."

Akers acknowledged that outside linebacker Jeff Leiding, who is shifting to the middle, should put Texas "in good shape there." Leiding, a 240-pound junior, was fourth on the team in tackles last year with 107. He also recovered two fumbles and had two pass interceptions even though he often was replaced on third down by a fifth defensive back.

End Kiki DeAyala was fifth with 91 tackles, and had 14 quarterback sacks and pressured the passer 47 times, both tops on the team.

The secondary will be new, but should feature Mossy Cade, Craig Curry, Jerry Gray and possibly Robert Smothers.

Senior quarterback Robert Brewer, a former walk-on who was the star of the Cotton Bowl, will operate behind a line that lost four, four-year lettermen, including All-America tackle Terry Tausch.

Akers said guard Doug Dawson and tackle Bryan Millard will start, but the other positions are unsettled.

The key to the offense could be the health of tailback John Walker, 6-1 and 200, who was Texas' third-leading rusher as a sophomore with 714 yards and a 4.6-yard average.

Walker injured his right knee in spring training, and Akers said "it will be close as to whether he will be ready."

Walker's absence would remove Texas' backfield speed and probably force the Longhorns to pass more. There seems to be no shortage of receivers.

"We certainly can't afford any injuries, and I don't know of anyone that can," Akers said.

Rallies highlight NL games

Phillies 4, Pirates 3, second game suspended

Pinch-hitter George Vukovich drove home two runs with a bases-loaded double in the eighth inning off ace reliever Kent Tekulve, enabling Philadelphia to edge Pittsburgh in the first game of a doubleheader.

Mike Easler drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a two-run single, as the Pirates rallied from a 5-0 deficit to take a 9-6 lead with two out in the eighth inning of the second game when it was suspended under a major league rule.

The Pirates had scored four runs in the top of the eighth when the game was halted by rain. The rule prohibits resumption of play following a rain delay past 12:45 a.m. The suspended game will begin prior to tonight's game between the two teams.

Cardinals 7, Mets 2

Willie McGee hit a two-out, bases-loaded triple that fueled a four-run, fifth-inning rally and carried St. Louis over New York.

The inning erased a 2-1 Mets' lead and made a winner of Jeff Lahti, 3-2, who took over for Dave LaPoint in the fourth inning.

LaPoint was charged with both New York runs in the fourth which gave the Mets their 2-1 lead. But the Cardinals came back in the fifth under a constant drizzle to score their game-winning runs and chase right-hander Charlie Puleo, 8-9.

The victory was particularly pleasing for Manager Whitey Herzog because the Cards scored more than just a few runs for a change.

"We've had a problem scoring runs," Herzog said. "We've been awfully inconsistent."

Chicago, New York use home-run ball to stage comebacks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The long ball helped start the Baltimore Orioles' downfall, but what really did them in were a couple of short balls.

The Orioles led Chicago 5-3 in the seventh inning when Greg Luzinski slammed a leadoff homer for the White Sox. When the White Sox finally stopped running around the bases, they had scored six times, helped by two misguided throws from Baltimore reliever Tim Stoddard on bunts, and defeated the Orioles 9-5.

But Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver was more upset with starting pitcher Jim Palmer and reliever Tippy Martinez than Stoddard's throwing goofs.

"It wasn't one of his better games," Weaver said of Palmer, who was staked to a 5-0 lead in the second inning. "All I know is if Tippy Martinez gets two guys out there wouldn't be any bunts."

In an even-more dramatic comeback, the New York Yankees roared from an early 7-0 deficit and downed the Detroit Tigers 9-7. In other American League games, the Milwaukee Brewers thumped the Texas Rangers 9-1, the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Boston Red Sox 4-2, the Kansas City Royals pounded the Cleveland Indians 12-2 and the Oakland A's trounced the Seattle Mariners 9-4. California and Minnesota had the night off.

After Luzinski's 425-foot home run chased Palmer, Steve Kemp and Carlton Fisk singled off Martinez, who then gave way to Stoddard. That's when the fun started.

Pinch hitter Chris Nyman bunted and Kemp and Fisk both scored when Stoddard threw wildly past third trying for a forceout, with Nyman taking second. Vance Law also bunted and Stoddard threw late to third in an effort to get Nyman, who scored when Aurelio Rodriguez grounded out.

The White Sox then loaded the bases on walks to Rudy Law and Tony Bernazard and Harold Baines completed the six-run burst with a two-run single. Kevin Hickey earned the victory with 51-3 innings of scoreless relief.

"I'm not sure Stoddard's throws were that bad," said Weaver. "But you can't blame it on errors. If we were still winning 5-0 or 5-1 there wouldn't be any bunts."

Yankees 9, Tigers 7

The Tigers built a 7-0 lead against Ron Guidry on Lance Parrish's two-run homer in the first inning and a five-run third, capped by Glenn Wilson's two-run double. But George Frazier, Dave LaRoche and Rich Gossage held them to two hits the rest of the way and the Yankees began their comeback with two runs in the fifth.

Dave Winfield's three-run homer in the seventh made it 7-5 and Roy Smalley opened the eighth with his 11th homer, chasing Detroit starter Dan Petry.

"I figured when we finally got Petry out of there we had a chance," Winfield said. "He's one heck of a pitcher. You just don't figure to get back from that far out with him on the mound."

Dave Rucker came on and gave up a single to Ken Griffey, who was sacrificed to second and scored the tying run with two out when Rucker threw wildly to first after fielding Willie Randolph's high chopper. Randolph took second on the error and Jerry Mumphrey doubled him home. Oscar Gamble homered in the ninth for New York's final run.

"Woooo! I tell you, this is a fun club to watch," raved Manager Clyde King. "What a comeback!"

"This hurts," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "This is an awful loss. It's an embarrassment when you're leading by seven runs."

Brewers 9, Rangers 1

Mike Caldwell pitched a six-hitter for his third consecutive victory and Robin Yount drove in four runs with a double, grounder and sacrifice fly as Milwaukee opened a 3½-game lead on Boston in the AL East, the Brewers' largest margin of the season.

George Wright's home run in the third inning gave Texas a 1-0 lead and snapped Caldwell's string of 18 shutout innings. But the Brewers scored four runs in the fifth against Doc Medich, two on Yount's bases-loaded double and two on a bases-loaded single by Gorman Thomas. Jim Gantner homered for Milwaukee in the eighth.

Blue Jays 4, Red Sox 2

Rance Mulliniks' leadoff home run tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning. Loser Dennis Eckersley then issued one-out walks to Willie Upshaw and Hosken Powell and was replaced by Bob Stanley, who surrendered consecutive RBI singles to Barry Bonnell and Lloyd Moseby. It was Boston's eighth setback in the last 11 games.

Royals 12, Indians 2

George Brett had four hits and Amos Otis collected two doubles and a single, driving in three runs and scoring three. Willie Aikens, Don Slaught and Hal McRae also had three hits apiece as the Royals punished two Cleveland pitchers for 20 hits, making Larry Gura, who went seven innings, an easy winner.

A's 9, Mariners 4

Davey Lopes drove in four runs and scored three, leading a 13-hit Oakland attack as the A's rolled to their fifth consecutive victory and handed Seattle its fifth straight loss. Lopes slammed a three-run homer in the second inning and also drove in a run in the sixth with a groundout.

Floyd joins 'Untamed Single Athletes'

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Are you falling down on the job? Do you feel you have lost motivation? Is there is a feeling of floating around the clouds, going nowhere in particular?

Don't despair. Write Dr. Raymond Floyd in Miami, Fla. Or call him at 63-69-68-72 — 272, toll free. He can change your life.

"It's very simple," says Floyd, who used 14 steel-shafted clubs as if they were surgeon's scalpels in winning the 64th PGA golf championship Sunday by three strokes at the Southern Hills Country Club.

"Get married and have kids. It did wonders for me."

The hefty, 200-pound six-footer, whose golfing life has received a rare stimulus at age 39, acknowledges that he was a swinging, carefree bachelor with no priorities for 10 years. Then he met a pretty Italian brunette named Maria Fraietta in 1973, married after a whirlwind courtship and they proceeded to produce three healthy offspring — two sons and a daughter, ages 7, 6 and 2½.

"My life turned around completely," he said, "and I wouldn't have had it different for the world."

Floyd thus gained honorary membership in Jimmy Connors' "Family Man Club for Untamed Single Athletes."

Connors, the world's best tennis player in the mid-1970s, was a court maverick who defied the establishment, wrangled with court officials and turned off fans with vulgarity and profane gestures while his skills deteriorated.

Then he married a beauty queen, had a young son and became one of the nicest men in the game. Did it help his tennis? Well, he just beat John McEnroe to win Wimbledon and recently has licked Bjorn Borg in two big-money, head-to-head matches. It was a stabilizing elixir.

"I can understand that," Floyd says. "Once you get married and have responsibilities, it changes your whole character and sense of priorities."

Floyd was an Army brat who grew up in Fort Bragg, N.C. He attended the University of North Carolina briefly and hit the golf trail at age 19 after deciding he wasn't going to be a big league baseball player.

"Winning tournaments meant nothing to me," he said. "I thought the tour was just one big ball, traveling from Miami to Los Angeles to New York and all those other exciting cities."

The new PGA king — he won the title before in 1969 — admitted that while his bachelor life was free and exciting his public image was grossly exaggerated by the press.

"I became friendly with Doug Sanders," he related. "Doug helped me when I was getting started. We often went out together.

"Doug had a reputation of being a playboy and thrived on it. He didn't drink but he would stand around sipping ice tea and telling everybody it was scotch.

"He prided himself on being seen with pretty ladies. If I was out to dinner and had a few drinks the next day I'd hear I was carousing until 4 o'clock in the morning and drunk.

"I was a friend of Joe Namath's, too. Joe didn't drink at all. But he got a reputation of being a swinger. I never was a big party guy. I didn't dissipate."

Floyd's image wasn't enhanced by his close friendship with Leo Durocher, whose Las Vegas associations made baseball nervous.

"I met Leo in Los Angeles," Floyd said. "He always called me 'Whale.' When he became manager of the Chicago Cubs he let me go to spring training with the team. There's still a locker at Wrigley Field with my name on it."

Ray's wife, a retail designer, said she knew of Floyd's reputation when she met him.

"We were introduced at the Palm Bay Club in Miami in the winter of 1973," Maria said. "Believe me, he was a playboy. We hit it off very well. He didn't want to get married. Neither did I. That made marriage inevitable."

The next year, Floyd was playing so poorly in Jacksonville he decided to pull out midway of the second round.

"I told him, 'No,'" Maria said. "I told him I had come to Jacksonville to stayfour days and I planned to stay four days.

Hasek, Morse lead TAGS

City of Midland swimmers Michaela Hasek and Laurie Morse completed their competition in the 12 and under division of the Texas Age Groups State Swim Meet in the Houston Woodlands with an eighth and two 10th place finishes.

Hasek placed eighth in the 100-meter freestyle in a time of 1:06.6 while Morse finished in 10th at 1:07.1. Morse also added a 10th place in the 200-meter IM.

For their weekend effort, Hasek and Morse compiled 71 points (unofficial) toward the TAGS team title. This weekend, eight COM swimmers will be competing in San Antonio in the 13 and up age division. The points scored in the meet will be added to the 71 scored in Houston to determine the team champion.

North Carolina Heels picked over national champions in ACC race

One of a Series
By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

PINEHURST, N.C. — Coach Dick Crum won't predict where North Carolina will finish in the Atlantic Coast Conference football race this season, and has even less to say about his team's chances for a national championship.

The Tar Heels were chosen in a media poll over defending national champion Clemson to win the conference championship. Crum, always cautious and looking for his fourth consecutive trip to a bowl game, isn't sure about the team's fortunes.

"I thought we had a good nucleus coming back until I looked at Pittsburgh and discovered what they had coming back, and we don't have much compared to them," Crum said. North Carolina opens its season against the Panthers Sept.9.

Nevertheless, North Carolina's offense will be virtually the same unit which closed 1981 with a victory over Arkansas in the Gator Bowl. Four of the six linemen who provided tailback Kelvin Bryant with his second 1,000-yard season in three years are returning.

Bryant suffered a knee injury in last season's fourth game, yet managed 1,015 yards and 18 touchdowns.

Crum is seeking replacements for tackle Mike Marr and tight end Shelton Robinson, who started 36 straight games. Senior Doug Sickels will fill Robinson's slot, said Crum.

Bryant's injury opened the way for Tyrone Anthony to rush for more than 200 yards against Wake Forest. After Anthony sprained an ankle, freshman quarterback Ethan Horton replaced him and rushed for 93 yards and a touchdown against Maryland.

Bryant did not play in the public scrimmage that ended the Tar Heels' spring drills. Crum said, however, that the Bryant of old was back.

"If he's lost any speed, I fail to see it," Crum said.

Quarterback Rod Elkins was hurt late last season, but worked to improve upon a 50 percent pass completion rate and cut down on nine interceptions. Most of his receivers return, including senior Victor Harrison and sophomore Larry Griffin.

All-ACC selection William Fuller returns at tackle, joined by Jack Parry and Steve Fortson along the front. Chris Ward succeeds Darrell Nicholson at one linebacker position, while Aaron Jackson is slated to move into the spot vacated by Calvin Daniels. Bill Sheppard is the third linebacker, with a fourth spot up for grabs.

The secondary, a source of concern before Crum became head coach, seeks to improve upon a sixth-place ACC finish in pass defense. It has Greg Poole and Walter Black at the corners and Willie Harris and Sammy Johnson at the safeties.

"We'll be more experienced this season, especially in the secondary," Crum said. "I think one of the keys to our defense is the experience our down lineman have. They have the ability to change the complexion of a game."

Monahans visitors leave their 'footprints on the sands of time'

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

MONAHANS SANDHILLS STATE PARK — The nomadic Indians found life-giving water within the eternally shifting sands, the early settlers, frustration as their wagons bogged. Then and now, it is a wilderness of solitude, where but for crests of reddish sand sheered linear by the prevailing southern winds, sense of direction would be a memory.

For the past 25 years, the State of Texas and the Sealy Foundation have set aside 3,840 acres of this vast sandhill country which stretches 200 miles from southeast of Monahans well into New Mexico to preserve the "geological and biological oddities," said superintendent Laird Fowler.

The unwary among the 70,000-90,000 persons who trod these dunes annually may be surprised to discover an abundance of surface water, trapped among patches of willows by the sand.

"It has lots of surface water, compared to areas out of the dunes," said Fowler. "In all the low spots you can dig down and find lots of water. The Cavalry used to think if they drove the Indians into the sandhills they could starve them out, dehydrate them, but they weren't familiar with this country."

BUT THE CASUAL visitor may be in store for an even greater surprise, for here in the seemingly treeless desolation of the Permian Basin lies one of the most extensive oak forests in the world.

"In no other forested section, Amazon valley not excepted, is there to be found a higher fruit to wood ratio than in this Liliputian jungle in the northern part of Ward County," wrote noted naturalist Roy Bedecheck. "Vegetatively considered, it is as much a natural curiosity as the Painted Desert or the wonderful areas of Yellowstone."

"You don't expect a forest here, because you don't see majestic, towering oaks," said Fowler.

What visitors do discover on closer observation, however, is Shin Oak (Quercus havardii), which averages only two to three feet in height. Bearing a giant acorn, this remarkable dwarf, which has a life expectancy of several hundred years and a root system 90 feet long, stretches the length of the sandhill country, stabilizing all but the "pure" dunes and providing shelter and forage for the denizens of this land — the coyote, badger, cottontail, jackrabbit, packrat, kangaroo rat, rattlesnake, blue quail, Harris hawk.

THEY HAVE ruled the ripples and pockets of water ever since the Pecos River migrated 40 miles westward one million years ago, leaving sand to be molded by the gusting winds into a swath 20-30 miles wide across two states.

The Wednesday Study Club of Monahans attempted to persuade the National Park Service to develop the sandhill country into a national park as far back as the 1940s, but because potential oil reserves lay beneath, its owners refused to yield mineral rights and the federal government abandoned the idea. However, area residents continued to work toward the goal of a wilderness park and the State of Texas reached agreement for a 99-year park lease of six sections of Sealy-Smith Foundation Land in Ward and Winkler counties on Oct. 22, 1956.

Initially, the state of Texas managed the grounds while Ward County Sandhills Association operated the museum, but in the early 1970s the state assumed full responsibilities.

Open 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. for day use at $2 per car, Monahans Sandhills offers several picnic areas, some of which have shade shelters, while overnight campers can take their pick from 26 sites at $4 with electricity and $3 without.

"We used to have 28 (sites) but the dunes got two of them," said Fowler.

THE ETERNALLY changing topography in the heart of the sands intrigues hikers who traipse across 50-foot dunes and endure the reflective glare of sunlight. The dunes also have claimed a backcountry road through the park and are threatening another.

During a tour of the facilities, Fowler pointed out a 15-foot dune which has swallowed half the pavement.

"There's a campsite under there, with an electrical hookup and everything," he said. "Been buried since before I came here 17 months ago."

The effect of the wind on the dunes was the subject of a study conducted by The University of Texas several years ago, said Fowler, and researchers discovered that although dunes migrate two or three feet seasonally, there is a net gain of but one to two inches a year.

"But get a good norther and you can notice the shifting of the dunes almost on a day-to-day basis," said Fowler.

Although many persons have the misconception that great expanses of water are necessary for weekend recreation, Monahans Sandhills disprove such. In fall and spring, especially, hundreds of West Texans and Interstate 20 travelers seek the sandy slopes to play in Texas' biggest sandbox — sand surfing, riding spinning discs, chasing Frisbees.

Wilderness advocates generally worry when great numbers of persons trod on backcountry turf, but it seems unlikely increased visitation should have much impact on these forested dunes stretching from horizon to horizon. Man may carve his footprints into the sands, all right, but the ripples of nature replace them with the first gust of wind.

HIKERS EXPLORE the backcountry, perusing the minnows in the pockets of water, watching the shadows of morning or evening define the wind-shaped ripples, discovering the vast variety of fauna and flora held captive by this Sahara-like expanse. Dune buggying, once an in-park concession, is no longer permitted, but the current concessionaire rents surfing equipment and stocks other supplies.

Visitors who must suffer with not-especially-tasty water in their native West Texas cities may be surprised at what cools their palates within park boundaries.

"We've got the best water in the entire region — very clean and clear," said Fowler. "A water quality official comes out periodically to check it, and he always brings along a couple of jugs to take some back home with him."

In addition to the 80,000 day users of Monahans Sandhills in 1981, 7,000 made it an overnight affair, and Fowler believes statistics for each could reflect even higher visitation in the future.

"We hope to have 20 more shade shelters in a year or two," said the superintendent, who leaves in September for a new assignment in the state park system. "It has a high priority and should increase visitor use."

Additionally, he said, the fact that Interstate 20 traverses the southern boundary of the park soon will be reflected in visitation rates.

"We think now that I-20 is open throughout Texas, we'll pick up a little more of the traveling public," he said. "We'll always retain our locals. We're basically a fall and spring weekend park, with about 100 cars in on Saturdays and 300 on Sundays. Easter's our biggest day of the year, with in excess of 1,000 cars."

Wilderness advocates generally worry when great numbers of persons trod on backcountry turf, but it seems unlikely increased visitation should have much impact on these forested dunes stretching from horizon to horizon. Man may carve his footprints into the sands, all right, but the ripples of nature replace them with the first gust of wind.

Expatriate author not homesick

By CHARLES J. HANLEY

MULLINGAR, Ireland (AP) — J.P. Donleavy, the Brooklyn fireman's son and novel-writing expatriate, sits in manorial splendor in greenest Ireland, regretting that he is missing all the action in his American homeland. But only for a moment.

"If I'd stayed in America, I might be buried by now," he says. "It's too tough. I don't know how I would have survived."

The 56-year-old author of the black-humor classic "The Ginger Man" survives quite comfortably in his adopted Ireland, thanks in great measure to the Finance Act of 1969, which gives authors, artists and composers tax-free status here.

James Patrick "Mike" Donleavy, prolific writer of seven novels, four plays and two books of short fiction, is one of the better-known beneficiaries of this bit of Irish largesse.

"Money and taxes," he tells a visitor in explaining why he settled in Ireland for good in 1969 and became an Irish citizen.

The mercenary spirit often animates the plots of Donleavy novels as well. "Money has always played a large role in one's books," he acknowledges with third-person candor.

Donleavy's domain is Levington Park, a 180-acre spread of paddock, pasture and woodland sloping down to the blue sparkle of Lough Owel, outside this town 50 miles west of Dublin. Crowning Levington Park's hill is a lordly gray-stone manor house, Queen Anne vintage, of "about 25 or so" rooms.

HERE THE bewhiskered, be-tweeded, soft-mannered author resides with his second wife, Mary, their two children, an Irish wolfhound, a half-dozen show horses and a hundred head of beef cattle — and a shelf-full of fictional characters who have drawn a devoted following over three decades.

It began with "Ginger Man" Sebastian Dangerfield, the amoral, deadbeat American whose raunchy escapades in postwar Dublin helped set the tone for a generation of fictional anti-heroes. A succession of novels followed, sometimes cynical, sometimes hopeful, always uproarious — "A Singular Man," "The Onion Eaters," and "Destinies of Darcy Dancer, Gentleman."

Donleavy's play "The Beastly Beatitudes of Balthazar B" is currently delighting audiences in London, where Punch magazine called it "one of the great comic creations of our time." Plans are being made to take this story of two young men, wild times and lost love to the United States.

The Irish-descended Donleavy had strong personal ties here even before the Dublin Parliament decided 13 years ago to reward creativity with deductibility.

After studying zoology at Dublin's Trinity College on the GI Bill, he completed "The Ginger Man" in 1951. But it was not published until 1955, first in France, then in expurgated form in Britain. He traveled between the States and Britain in the 1950s and 1960s before finally settling in Ireland.

"Most beautiful country in the world," the fictional Ginger Man said of his adopted island. "Stay here to die and never die."

But the Emerald Isle is several steps short of paradise, says Donleavy.

"The pervasive atmosphere is that deep dampness, that cold, that chill. And inefficiency is the way of life somehow. There's no way you can get ahead of yourself in Ireland. It requires enormous patience living here."

THE WRITER, long and lean, speaking in an accent now more Belgravia than Brooklyn, was interviewed in a tall-windowed sitting room of Levington Park, in the sweet warmth of a peat-burning hearth.

What Ireland offers, especially to the writer, is fertile soil for the mind, Donleavy says.

Doesn't he miss the States?

"One realizes there's part of life that you're somehow missing," he says. "You're aware that whatever happens to humanity first happens in America."

He crosses the Atlantic frequently enough, Donleavy says, but "you can only absorb so much of America" because it is "corrosive" of the writing spirit. "It's not a place where you can experiment."

He noted he could not find a U.S. publisher for "The Ginger Man" until after it was a hit in Europe.

In America, he said, "an author is generally considered as someone getting up to bat to smack a home run. Unless he does this, he somehow is felt not to exist anymore."

HIS IMAGE of the American writing profession is of a club where everyone is reading over everyone else's shoulder.

But, for Donleavy, "it wouldn't really concern me as to what is the latest book coming out." In fact, some of his favorite reading is chanced-upon items in medical journals and movie magazines.

The rough-and-ready Brooklyn boy writer of 30 years ago, whose punch-outs with hard-drinking playwright Brendan Behan became part of Irish literary lore, has given way to the canny professional.

DINERO PLAZA

Situated in the northern section of Midlands' central business district, a totally planned office environment and architectural excellence combined to make Dinero Plaza the most desirable business location in Midland. This prime location in the 1000 block of North Big Spring, bounded by Cuthbert & Whitaker Streets and the downtown YMCA, is conveniently located to all downtown facilities.

Many offices overlook the six-story skylit atrium while others enjoy the unobstructed view of downtown Midland. Suites to full floors can be professionally designed by our space planners for January 1983 occupancy. In addition to the features expected in a first-class, luxury building, Dinero Plaza offers a fully sprinklered building, ample parking with reserved guest parking at the entrance, emergency electrical backup systems and many other features.

You can't afford NOT to buy any longer!

*Total cost of $525K is based on 5% down or $3800 plus $145K limited closing cost. Count on 15 days prepaid interest. The first year's payment of $673.30 (principal and interest only) is based on a loan amount of $71,400. The first year's payment and buydown subsidy will be calculated assuming rent to a rate of 10 7/8 %. All loans bear interest will be charged at a rate of 15 7/8% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months, interest will be changed at the most recent 6 months Treasury Bill plus 4.2%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.5% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be established using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 2.25%. The maximum increase can be more if the original loan principal exceeds 80%. At each year anniversary date, the payment may be adjusted to allow the loan to fully amortize the loan. Annual percentage rate approximately 13.5%.

IS LIVING NEAR SCHOOL IMPORTANT TO YOU? Just a few blocks from Elementary and Junior High and you have this quality built home in a most desirable area. 3 bedrooms, 2½ baths, formal living and family rooms, large kitchen and dining area, beautiful landscaped yard with sprinkler system and plenty of storage space. A very attractive home you will love to call your own. Only $98,500.

IF YOU THINK OF YOUR FAMILY...Picture them in this 3 bedroom home across from Midland Christian School. Formal living and dining, step-saving kitchen, den with woodburning fireplace, 2 baths, double gargae and quiet fenced-in backyard. All we need is one call-one showing and you will say "this is it".

AS TIME GOES ON! You will be paying more and more rent and have less and less, so why not buy your home now. This exceptionally nice 3 bedroom may be just the one. Truly a storybook home completely redone inside. Designer wallpaper, new carpet throughout, built-in kitchen appliances including microwave oven, fireplace, formal dining, fenced-in yard and much more. Great starter home in good area for just $85,000.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT...it all begins when you pull into the circular drive and park under the covered porte-cochere. This elegant colonial home has been completely remodeled, refurbished and redesigned. 3 large bedooms, 4½ baths, gameroom, formal living and dining rooms, 2 fireplaces, large covered patio. A home you must see at a value you will not believe.

THE ULTIMATE IN ELEGANCE is resting on this tree shaded lot in one of Midland's most desirable neighborhoods. The Texas size family room with woodburning fireplace and wet bar is truly the main focal point. The richly appointed formal dining and living area is also endowed with a fireplace. Three lovely bedrooms, and three radiant baths along with the enchanting kitchen complete the balance of the normal daily living areas. This is truly one of the finest homes Midland has to offer the discriminating buyer. If you prefer, immediate occupancy can be arranged. Under $200,00.
