Crew from sunken ship clings to logs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tossed about in the Pacific's "worst weather of the year," some of the crewmen from the sunken lumber ship Carnelian-1 clung to floating logs from their vessel's scattered cargo and awaited rescue.

Two men were safely aboard the Panamanian-registered ship Hunter, itself in trouble with cargo shifting in its hold. Six others were rescued by the freighter Wisteria, which arrived on the scene, 1,400 miles northwest of Honolulu, about midnight Thursday.

A Japanese ship, Shunyo Maru, was expected there this morning, but a Coast Guard cutter dispatched from Alaska would not reach the scene until Saturday.

At last light on Thursday, the pilot of a Coast Guard plane flying above the scene said he could count fewer than half the ship's 33 crew members bobbing in the 20-foot seas.

The Wisteria's night-long rescue effort was aided by a flare dropped from a circling Air Force plane. But the Coast Guard, noting the difficult weather conditions, said most of the crewman could not be rescued before first light — about 1 p.m. EST.

Eight men were balanced on a logjam from the cargo of the sunken ship, and three more were perched atop an upside down lifeboat from the Carnelian-1.

"A few" others were seen in rubber rafts dropped from planes to the life-jacketed men, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

A second lifeboat from the sunken ship was spotted drifting out of reach.

The spokesman said the Coast Guard plane dropped six 20-man rubber rafts and survival kits containing fresh water, food, lights and flares to the men.

"We have confirmed that some of them have gotten into the rafts that we dropped," he said.

The 472-foot Hunter arrived about four hours after the crewmen abandoned the sinking Carnelian-1, but the spokesman said the shifting cargo sent it rolling on the rough seas and slowed rescue efforts.

The National Weather Service said one storm had raged through the area for "several days" and another was moving in from the northwest.

"They'll have a lull in the winds and then the next one is going to roll in on them," said meteorologist Emil Gunther. He estimated winds in the area had dropped from 60 miles per hour to 35.

"It's the worst weather of the year," said forecaster Bob Morrell.

Gunther said water temperatures in the area probably are a "fairly warm" 65 to 69 degrees.

The Carnelian-1 first radioed at 10:15 a.m. PST Thursday that a deckload of lumber had broken loose and tumbled over the side in the storm. Further transmissions indicated the ship was flooding and its pumps had failed.

At 12:55 p.m., the Coast Guard said, the radio operator of the 486-foot lumber carrier messaged he was leaving his radio to stand by his lifeboat station.

More than an hour later a Navy plane arrived to send back first reports of crewmen clinging to floating logs.

The spokesman said the Carnelian-1 disappeared beneath the waters some time after the men abandoned ship.

The Japan-bound lumber carrier was owned by the Mitsui OSK Line of Japan, according to the line's Seattle agents, William Diamond Co.

Crowd huddles outside bank

'They're out to ruin me'

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — A crowd of more than 50 persons huddled outside the First State Bank & Trust Co. today — the first day of business after the bank voluntarily withdrew from protection of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC).

Twenty minutes before the bank opened a score of persons stood outside the door, growing to more than 50 before the double doors were opened. They scurried inside, most to the savings department windows.

"They're out to ruin me," said South Texas banker-rancher Clinton

Manges of Freer. Manges controls the bank and has been critical in the past of what he claims is government harassment. He didn't make it clear whom he was blaming for "ruining me."

Manges said that depositors had withdrawn less than $15,000 in the first two hours the bank was open today. He said the bank has assets of about $19 million and that about 65 per cent of that is in loans.

Manges said this was not an unusually high figure for loans.

Daniel A. Flynn, state deputy banking commissioner, who said he was here as an observer, also said this was not an unusually high loan figure.

He would not discuss the condition of the bank.

Dist. Atty. Arnulfo Guerra met with Manges and other bank officials behind closed doors today and later told reporters he planned to have an investigation into rumors and news stories concerning the financial condition of the bank.

Guerra said that to spread a false rumor or a false report about the condition of a bank is, under Texas law, a felony.

He said it carries punishment of up to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Guerra said he was concerned about reports of a controversy between Manges' bank and the FDIC.

The FDIC said Wednesday the bank was withdrawing voluntarily from deposit insurance and that future deposits would not be insured by the government agency.

Before the bank opened today, Manges and several men huddled around the desk of bank President Frank Anderson while bank employees carried large drawers of money to the teller windows.

"I want my money. I'm coming down here to get my money," said a man in khaki pants, a sweat-stained cowboy hat and well-worn shoes.

Asked if he was going to withdraw his money, the man, who refused to identify himself, replied "I am. I don't know how things are. I've banked here a long time. They have been very nice, but we don't know what's going on."

Commission's proposals would keep rates same

AUSTIN — Residential and business telephone service charges in Big Spring would stay about the same if the Texas Public Utilities Commission adopts its staff recommendation.

Under the recommendation filed Thursday, the residential rate would be $5.50, which is the present rate. The business rate would drop from the $12.10 to $12.00.

If the full rate increase being sought by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is approved by the Utilities Commission, however, rates would rise to $7.85 for residential phones and $20.30 for business phones.

The commission began a hearing on Bell's request Nov. 1 and the hearing is continuing. Under the staff proposal, Bell's total additional revenue from its Texas service would be $49.8 million annually, compared with Bell's request of $298.3 million annually.

The staff recommendation includes some service charge increases such as doubling the ten-cent coin telephone charge now in effect for most of Texas.

Return 'could be more difficult'

Taxpayers, it figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you get a pocket calculator for Christmas, it's likely to come in handy when you tote up your federal income tax after the New Year.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander is warning taxpayers that completing the new tax return "could be more difficult" than in the past. One reason is the amount of math that will be required for the first time for many taxpayers.

Alexander's message is contained in an introduction to the new 1040, the so-called long form, that the IRS released Thursday.

This year, hundreds of thousands of taxpayers who had become accustomed to just adding up their income and then finding their taxes on a table will now have to take several other steps.

They'll start by adding up their income, as they have in the past. But then they will have to subtract either standard or itemized deductions and then personal exemptions to reach taxable income. Only at that point could new tables be used to find the tax owed.

An IRS spokesman said the service is concerned that this single change required by Congress will result in many more arithmetic errors than in previous years. The congressional tax-writing committees have claimed the change will simplify taxes by requiring only two pages of tax tables instead of the 10 used in the past.

Another change on the 1976 form involves the $30 credit for each taxpayer and dependent. It used to be a simple subtraction from taxes. This year it has been increased to $35, but also has an added complication. A taxpayer will have to decide whether a straight $35 credit is best or whether he should take the optional 2 per cent of taxable income up to a maximum $180 for most returns.

Taxpayers can expect to receive their forms by mid-January, about two weeks later than usual. Alexander said the delay results from late passage in the Congress of 1976 tax legislation.

In addition to the changes in computing taxes and the personal exemption credit, taxpayers also will find changes that allow child-care expenses to be subtracted directly from taxes owed, an end to the sick-pay income exclusion in favor of a disability income exclusion and a simplified and expanded credit for taxpayers over 65.

COLD SEASON TO END — Cathy Valdes, hiding in Jill Odom's megaphone at one of the colder football games earlier this season, depicts what may transpire tonight in the Big Spring Steer Football Stadium. Big Spring ends what has been a rather unhappy season tonight in the cold with a contest in which it will be trying desperately to upset the San Angelo Bobcats. High School students wore their clothes inside out today in a hope of pulling an upset and turning the bobcats inside out.

Swine flu inoculations can be taken Wednesdays

Swine flu inoculations are now available only on Wednesday at the city-county health unit behind the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Inoculations are given free on Wednesday between the hours of 8-11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. The public is invited to join the 2,210 citizens who have now safely taken the inoculation.

On Tuesday, the center will resume their regularly scheduled children's immunizations for school including the DPT serum, measles inoculation and others.

According to figures supplied by the health unit, the shot seems to be most popular among those between 20 and 44 years of age. One thousand Big Springers in this category have received the vaccine.

In the 45 to 64-year-old age group, 806 persons have received the vaccine; ages 65 and over show 326 vaccinated; ages five to 19 show 77 vaccinated; and under five years of age show only one.

"We feel that the number of people coming in for the vaccine on the new Wednesday-only system will be much greater," he said. He really uses some volunteers to help register people for the shots," said Buck Kirksey, director.

The record number of people vaccinated in one day is 511, more than one a minute. And that is quite a load, according to Kirksey.

In order to volunteer to help, call the center at 263-7261.

CFC surpasses its '76 goal

The final report of the Big Spring Area Combined Federal Campaign reveals it topped the goal by 102.4 per cent with donations totaling $37,880.78.

The Howard County United Way will receive 71.18 per cent of the total which amounts to $26,964. National Health agencies will get about $9,000 of the remainder while international service agencies will receive about $1,917.

Final results of individual Federal units follow, with goal in parenthesis and per cent of dollar goal reached: Social Security, $395.50 ($270), 146.5 per cent; Webb AFB $31,472.33 ($29,950), 105.1 per cent; Postal Service $793.50 ($850) 93.4 per cent; VA Hospital $5,106.95 ($5,600), 91.2 per cent; Agriculture Dept., $112.50 ($330) 34.1 per cent.

Action/reaction: Smoking law

Q. Why is there no smoking section in Big Spring theatres? Who can we ask to get one?

A. Fire Marshal Howard Dodd said that state law limits smoking to the lobby of the theatre. You would have to write the state government to attempt any change in the law.

State lost $75,000 in interest on the money

Welfare department 'squirreled' $1.2 million

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A state welfare department executive has acknowledged that the agency buried $1.2 million in a post office account — interest-free — for a year before returning the money to the state treasury.

Jack Blanton, executive assistant to Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell, said Thursday there was no evil intent on the part of the department.

But Deputy Comptroller

Randall Wood said it appeared the Department of Public Welfare had squirreled away the unspent portion of its 1975 appropriation for postage to keep it from lapsing when the fiscal year ended on Aug. 31 of that year.

"We uncovered it when we noticed their actual postal expenses were lower than what they had drawn. We asked what was going on, and all of a sudden, a check came for $1.184 million," said Wood said.

He said the state lost $75,000 in interest on the money — assuming State Treasurer Jesse James would have deposited it in an interest-bearing account.

Blanton denied the DPW had used a back door approach to hang on to appropriated funds that would have lapsed at the end of the fiscal year.

"There was no attempt to hold over funds," Blanton said.

He said the DPW drew state warrants and put the money into the postal account at a time when nobody could predict accurately the results of federalization of Old Age Assistance.

"The DPW requested the funds, not knowing how much postage would be involved because we didn't know how many people were going to be in SSI (the federal Supplementary Security Income program)," Blanton said.

"It takes some postage to get around in this business, friend," he said.

Department records furnished by Blanton showed the DPW sent the money to the postal service's San Antonio office $100,000 at a time, every few days between July 22 and Aug. 21, 1975. The department repaid the treasury on July 16, 1976.

Blanton said Vowell ordered the repayment as soon as he learned of the postal account's existence.

Wood said the welfare department evidently forgot the money was there.

Blanton said the account with the postal service represented 38 per cent of the $4.2 million appropriated to DPW for postage in 1975.

Both Wood and Comptroller Bob Bullock said their department intends to watch closely the DPW's future expenditures.

"We have informants in their department. . . Their fiscal transactions are the most interesting you'll ever run into. We have got a little project going, trying to figure out what they are doing," Wood said.

Bullock said his agency monitors DPW and the University of Texas very closely "because in the past, there have been some very questionable things that they have tried to do."

"There are two agencies that will try every now and then to speed on you — welfare and the University of Texas," he said.

Police beat Rapid robber gets away

A fleet-footed robber took the money and ran Thursday.

According to reports, a six-foot man ran into Fasgas Station, 1800 S. Greeg, around 7:35 p.m. Thursday, grabbed a moneybag containing $110.43, and ran out. Officers James Nettles, Ron Newby, Frank Costabile, Jerry Edwards, Sgt. Mike Pearson, and Detectives Tony Lujan and John Wolf reported to the scene, but were unable to apprehend the man. They do, however, have the license number of the car the robber used in his getaway.

Car burglars were also busy Thursday.

Dillard G. Johnston, Colorado City, reported that an intruder swiped a 270 cal. rifle with a scope from the rack in his pickup sometime between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday. The incident occurred while the truck was parked on the 300 block of S. Brown. The rifle was valued at $350.

A westside woman was beaten up in what police speculate was a family squabble around 2 a.m. Thursday. After the incident was reported to police, the woman was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by ambulance where she was treated and released.

Only two mishaps were reported Thursday.

A car driven by Debra A. Baty, 4205 Muir, ran into the Safeway Store on Birdwell, 9:20 p.m.

A car belonging to Jeffie Lee Phinney, Coahoma, was struck by a car that left the scene at San Antonio and West Fifth, 1:40 p.m.

Job becomes Mayor's proclamation a nightmare

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County commissioners had to work overtime early this week to recount the vote canvass.

A usually routine matter, canvassing election returns turned out to be a nightmare.

A large number of discrepancies were found in three of the precincts.

Ballots marked a straight ticket by checking the box at the top indicating a vote for each of the candidates on either the Democrat or Republican ticket, had been overlooked.

It did not change the Presidential count but changed local offices.

For instance in Precinct 1, Bentsen's tally had been 312 and became 541. The actual total for Elmer Martin in Precinct 4 had been 224 and changed to 425.

The following totals are the result of the canvass with 2,852 persons voting. Carter had 1,732 and Ford 1,058. Burleson had 2,267; Yarbrough, 1,340; Houston, 523 and Lorraine, 330; Martin, 2,439; McCloud, 2,303; Kirk, 2,368; Ginzle, 2,377; Barber, 2,298; McGuire, 2,452; Harkins, 2,411; Vest, 842 and Hunter, 760.

Dozen ex-POWs honored here

By MARJ CARPENTER

Prisoners of War who had suffered through as much as seven years in North Vietnamese prison camps, or been involved in the Bataan Death March or other tragedies of war, sat silently with their wives and watched the mechanics of veterans' organizations at an Armistice Day Dinner Thursday night in Lee Hall at Webb Air Force Base.

Twelve of the 40 former prisoners of war located by the newly-organized veterans council attended the dinner at which they were presented miniature U.S. flag pins by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

They were also honored with a special Mayor's proclamation read on the occasion by Mrs. Polly Mays, mayor pro-tem.

The group included Lt. Col. Arthur W. Burer, commander of the 83rd Flying Training Squadron, who was a prisoner close to seven years in Vietnam; Capt. Jack M. Butcher, instructor pilot, who was there two years; Wm. E. Jensen, who was captured in the Philippines during World War II as was Carl Carlsson, another special guest. James M. Riley and E. L. Fannin were also captured by the Japanese during World War II.

Prisoners of War who were captured by the Germans, most of whom went down behind the lines as pilots or gunners, were John D. Hill, V. V. Ames, Wm. R. Purser, Earl Davis and Bill Crooker.

Crooker received word during the middle of the dinner that his father had just died and left the ceremonies.

The grim-faced former prisoners of war watched the film clips of returning Vietnam veterans with little emotion, except for the two military men who had been involved in the Vietnam return. A flicker of remembered joy went across their faces, as the film strip shown by Capt. Thomas O. Michaelis, showed the happiness of the former prisoners when they realized they were really coming home.

They listened attentively to the proclamation they approved with their smiles the short talk by Norman Ulmer, state president of the Disabled Veterans who pointed out that the POWs who returned were people whom all veterans and all Americans could point to with pride.

Their faces were quietly attentive as the Webb color guard advanced and Mrs. Marilyn Newsom sang the Star Spangled Banner.

During the long introduction of other officials and veterans group officials, they seemed lost in their own memories as they had spent the earlier part of the evening visiting among themselves.

C. B. (Buck) O'Neal, commander of regional Disabled American Veterans and M. H. Spivey, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars presented framed certificates of appreciation to Capt. Michaelis, who gave the keynote address and to Capt. Dick Risk of the public information office, for assisting them with arrangements for the event.

O'Neal called the meeting to order and gave the welcome with Chap. (Maj.) Ted Chumley giving the invocation and grace. George A. Dreher, chairman of the newly formed All Veterans Council, called on several special guests for impromptu remarks, including Col. Harry Span-naus, wing commander; Bill Martin, state president of the World War I Barracks group; Mrs. Margaret Barnett, president of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary; Mrs. M. H. Spivey; Mrs. Leta Metcalf; Mrs. Gladney Flint and others.

Commanders of the four local veterans groups include T. A. Trevino, Marion Ireland, Spivey and O'Neal. Also recognized as special guests were Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery of Howard College and J. Tom Graham, publisher of the Big Spring Herald. Chaplain Clayton Hicks gave the benediction.

Schools closed to Ohio 10,000

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The schoolhouse doors have been closed to nearly 10,000 Ohio children because three school districts have run out of money.

And three other districts, including Toledo, are slated to close by the end of next month, which would bring the number of affected children to 70,000.

The unscheduled vacations were made necessary when voters in the six districts last week rejected higher property tax levies necessary to keep the schools solvent.

Unless an emergency plan is worked out in the interim, officials said the schools will remain closed until the new year, when fresh state aid funds become available.

The Ohio situation is similar to that in Oregon, where one district with 2,600 pupils has been closed since Oct. 15 and two others with more than 6,000 pupils are preparing to close because voters refused to approve higher tax levies. The districts are forbidden by state law from accumulating a deficit by spending money they don't have.

John Hall, chief lobbyist for the 80,000-member state Education Association, said the problem stemmed from the districts' failure to provide enough funding for education.

"They are broke because they haven't matched state money," he said.

White male dominance unbroken, says Solon

By SCOTT CARPENTER
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State agency affirmative action programs have failed to infuse minorities into top level state positions, a leading black legislator charges.

Rep. Mickey Leland of Houston says he's "almost embarrassed" that he and other black, Mexican-American and female legislators have't been able to break the white male dominance in the 1,640 "exempt" positions in state government. "Exempt" positions pay the most and have the highest rank.

He's calling upon minority legislators and women to team up for a "political hijacking" of state officials "to force them to do what's right."

The first target is Gov. Dolph Briscoe, because "without the governor you aren't going anywhere," Leland wants Briscoe to instruct state agencies "to follow the Federal law" and to begin making top level jobs open to all citizens.

Figures prepared by the Legislative Budget Board show that 86 per cent of the state's top positions are held by white males. White females hold 7 per cent of the top jobs.

Black males hold 1 per cent of the jobs and black females hold four-tenths of a per cent. Hispanic males hold 4 per cent of the top jobs and Hispanic females hold two-tenths of a per cent.

The "other" category, which includes Indians and persons of Oriental extraction, hold the other 1.4 per cent of the jobs — 1 per cent by males and .4 per cent by females.

With the exception of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, Leland says that the increase in the number of blacks and browns serving on state commissions and agencies has had little impact on the number of blacks in high level staff positions. He's disappointed about that.

In 1973 Leland and other blacks argued long and hard for a state agency to work toward equal employment opportunity in state government. They fell short. However, they did get Gov. Briscoe to set up an office in his office to help agencies compile the mandatory federal reports.

They also got the legislature to strengthen a provision of the appropriations bill that seeks to penalize state agencies which discriminate.

The activities of the minority office in Briscoe's office have been limited to figure gathering, Leland charges, and the appropriations bill rider hasn't been an effective tool.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby agreed at a Legislative Budget Board meeting when he said "the appropriations bill is not the place to handle this."

Leland's call is for the black caucus of the House to join with the Mexican-American caucus and with those who are simpatico, including female legislators and white liberals. They will urge passage of a state equal employment office that will have the backing of the governor and others who can insure that the current situation is corrected.

Leland isn't a spokesman for all the groups. In fact, he isn't a spokesman for the entire black caucus. Rep. Paul Ragsdale of Dallas has become convinced that it will take action by state and federal courts to open up the higher level jobs of state government to all.

Ragsdale has filed suits against state agencies. Some of them have been dismissed and some are still pending.

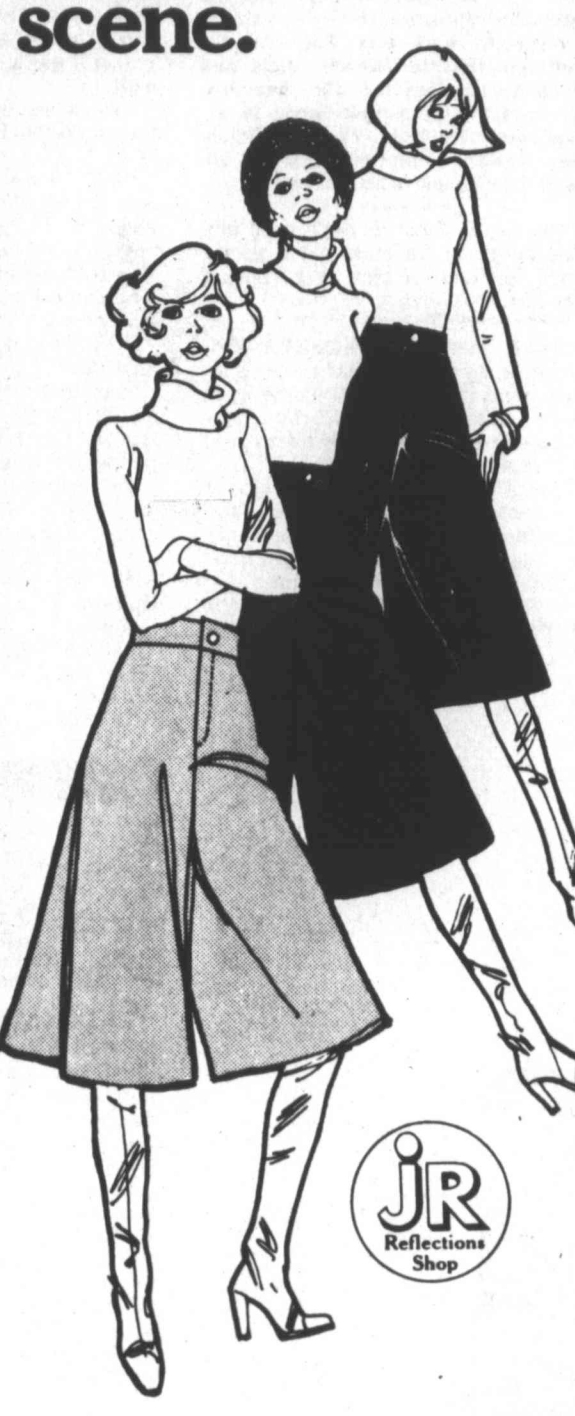

In his prepared statement about the report of the Legislative Budget Board, Leland said it "reflects severe discrimination against ethnic minorities and women. This report reflects non-compliance with the laws of this state and nation, total disregard for the basic equality of all people, and a token affirmative action effort on the part of the state."

Some of the "most shocking statistics" are in the offices of the statewide elected officials. Leland said Atty. Gen. John Hill had done the most, but he still "has a long way to go."

The report shows that in Comptroller Bob Bullock's office there are 38 exempt positions including two women and one Mexican-American; Atty. Gen. Hill, 14 exempt positions, 14 women, seven blacks and 11 Mexican-Americans; Agriculture Commissioner John White, six exempt positions, no women nor minorities; Treasurer Jesse James, nine positions, one woman; Gov. Briscoe, two positions (including his own) no minorities nor women; Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, 11 exempt positions, no women nor minorities; Railroad Commission, 19 exempt positions, one Mexican-American.

Craig, Columbus 'on their own'

"Webb wants 'monkey' on Craig's back" read the headline in the Nov. 5 Selma Times-Journal.

The newspaper's lead story, written by Times-Journal staff writer Bertrand deSouza, was coverage of the public hearing on Webb Air Force Base last week in Big Spring.

DE-SOUSA FLEW TO Big Spring because Selma, home of Craig Air Force Base, was interested in what our hearing might be like. The hearing on Craig, also a candidate to be closed, will be Nov. 15 in Selma.

The Selma reporter sat through our hearings and wrote the following lead for the folks back home in Alabama:

Big Spring, Tex. — If the decision on Air Force base closures in the Air Training Command was left up to the people of this West Texas city, Craig AFB in Selma and Columbus AFB in Columbus, Miss., would be out of business tomorrow.

After almost eight hours of hearings Thursday on the proposed closing of Webb AFB here, it was obvious that the sentiments of the residents is for the Air Force to disregard its "candidate for closure" decision on Webb and to concentrate on Craig and Columbus.

And if the Air Force believes it can slip through a decision to close Webb, it has another think coming. The Texans are in a fighting mood and their testimony before the team of Air Force officials was a preview of things to come.

But in the midst of this "each one for himself" attitude, the people of Selma managed to find an ally who pledged to help in the fight to save Craig.

U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson, D-Tex., who spoke to the Air Force team during an afternoon session, said he will work with the Alabama delegation in Washington to "plan strategy" in an effort to retain Webb and Craig.

The story by deSouza goes on to quote Cong. Burleson as saying that the draft environmental impact study is "inaccurate and inadequate," and it quotes Sen. John Tower as arguing against the closing of two ATC bases.

BUT TOWER WOULDN'T say to deSouza that he would try to help Craig. "I better concentrate on my business here in Texas," Tower told

On numerous occasions during the testimony, Columbus AFB was a prime target with officials contending that the Air Force had overlooked that base's "poor rating" because of the political clout of Sen. John Stennis, who is chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Big Spring's case was based on the findings of two subcommittees, one of which handled the economic impact on the area if Webb should close, and the other which dealt with the actual operating of the base.

Both committees put forth a convincing case that showed the Air Force was premature in its decision.

The story by deSouza goes on to note that the six ATC bases were compared in a chart using Air Force figures, and the story says that I testified that "Craig is the worst operating base in the command."

On the socio-economic impact portion, deSouza's story said the approaches between Selma and Big Spring were similar, but he concluded:

There is one significant difference, however. The (Selma) committee headed by Rex Morthland has retained the services of a Washington-based economic consultant to conduct its own economic impact study. This document will be presented to the Air Force in an effort to point out the shortcomings in the Air Force's study. Officials here (in Big Spring) estimate that in the afternoon and evening sessions of the hearings Thursday, 1,400 people were in attendance. The Air Force officials were clearly impressed with the number of people in attendance.

The Selma reporter did a good job. The people in Alabama got a pretty good picture of the Big Spring hearing.

THEY WERE DISCOURAGED, however, by the fact that Craig is an inefficient base, slightly worse even than Columbus, and the only argument that can be made for Craig is that of economic impact.

Webb, on the other hand, is one of the best ATC operating bases, and both the economic impact reasons as the operational arguments for retaining it are quite compelling.

Really didn't hurt

Around the rim

Bob Burton

As they strapped me down on the table, the bullet between my teeth, ignoring my hysterical howls for ether, sodium pentothol, or Jack Daniels, they looked me straight in the eye and said, "Don't worry, son, it will all be over in a little while."

"Do it quick," I said, "Get it over with."

"We know you're a rookie, kid," they said, "but this won't hurt a bit."

"O.K." I SAID, "I'm ready to go. Just tell me when you're going to start and I'll be ready. Anytime now, anytime."

"Could you just squeeze that metal tube in your right hand about every five seconds?"

"O.K." I said, "Give me the needle, anytime."

They told me, as I squeezed on the stainless steel tube, that I was the fourth to give blood that day. They had been hoping for twenty.

That means they had four pints for a day's work. Not really very much to support a town of 30,000.

The donations are taken from 12 to 6 each Wednesday at Malone-Hogan Hospital. Each donation takes about a half-hour.

"About 75 per cent of our donations come from Webb personnel," they told me.

"It really won't hurt a bit?" I asked.

"We take it down to the San Angelo Blood Bank where it can go anywhere in West Texas," they said.

"I still don't feel a thing," I said, "Go ahead. Hit me."

"When it's all over, we'll give you cookies and juice," they said.

"All right. Fine. Let's get started," I said.

"You know, when it's all over, you and your family will have six months of blood available in case of injury without having to replace it."

"THAT'S A BARGAIN," I said, "But if we don't get started soon, my nerve will just run out."

"Don't worry. It's just great of you to give blood. There's nothing worse than needing some and not having any available."

"Thanks."

"Will you be on call if we need you?"

"Not if you take this long just to put the needle in," I said.

"Just pump the tube once more," they said, "and you'll be all done."

"What?"

"You're a brave soldier."

"What?"

"You can open your eyes now," they said.

"That really didn't hurt at all," I said.

Fords backstage

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The nation watched the poignant scene in the White House as Betty Ford, her chin high, read the concession telegram her husband was too hoarse to read. But even more touching were the scenes that the public never saw.

Before President Ford faced the TV cameras to concede his defeat, he gathered his family in the oval office. Only a few intimates were allowed inside. They have described the scene for us. The President, exhausted and voiceless after 12 days of the most arduous campaigning any president ever endured, tried to bolster his family's spirits. Like the quarterback of a defeated but undisgraced team, he spoke words of encouragement.

The hoarse whisper made the words all the more heart-wrenching.

SONS STEVE, JACK and MICHAEL tried not to show their hurt. Michael's wife, Jayne, also managed to keep her composure. The First Lady had an air of pride, without defiance. Only daughter Susan seemed inconsolable. She couldn't hold back the tears. She turned away, perhaps to hide the tears from her father, and gazed out the window at the chilly autumn day. She continued to weep, without sobbing.

Betty Ford began reading the concession telegram softly to herself. The others hushed to listen. Then they filed into the room where the cameras were waiting.

As the nation watched, the President explained that his voice was too strained for him to speak. His wife took over. "The President asked me to tell you," she began, "that he telephoned president-elect Carter a short time ago and congratulated him on his victory."

Once it was done, the family separated. Ford stepped into the crowd, mouthing silent hellos. Then he disappeared into the oval office, alone except for his appointments secretary, Terry O'Donnell, and photographer-friend David Kennerly.

Inside, he threw a strong arm around O'Donnell's shoulder. Another man might have spoken of his own pain of defeat or, at least, might have asked how the TV performance looked.

But Gerald Ford apologized to his young aide. "I see you so often," said the President, "and I still don't get a chance to thank you for the great help you've been to me."

Suddenly, the tough O'Donnell's eyes were afloat.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" pressed the President. "If there is, let me know."

KENNERLY, TEARS streaming down his cheeks, walked from the room. O'Donnell struggled to control his emotions, so he could tell the older man what he had meant to them all. The aide spoke of the President's courage and humor, of the miracle comeback against the odds. O'Donnell started to add that he had never seen such manliness and dignity under fire.

But the words choked in his throat; he broke down. The President cut him off. "We've got a lot to be proud of," he whispered. Then he smiled and growled through his frog's throat: "Come on, keep your chin up!"

O'Donnell, the tears now in flood stage, left the office. And the President of the United States, lips tight, turned to the papers on his desk.

Footnote: Later, the President met informally with a few top aides. It was a relaxed session. But before it was over, he reminded them: "I am still President until January 20." He asked them, therefore, to continue their duties without letdown.

WATCH ON WASTE: The six members of the International Trade Commission are supposed to advise the President and the Congress on tariff matters. They appear to spend most of their time, however, in the pursuit of unique and ingenious ways to waste the taxpayer's money.

Recently, for example, the ITC discovered a budget surplus of $20,000. Instead of returning the funds to the Treasury, the ITC went on a shopping spree for new office furniture.

Earlier this year, the ITC ordered up $5,000 worth of official Commission flags. Ten of the handsome, hand-woven banners were delivered to Commission offices, along with decorative official ITC seals.

ONLY ONE MEAGRE voice, that of Commissioner Daniel Minchew, was raised in protest. "Since I was able to perform my duties for 18 months without the benefit of a Commission flag and seal in my office," fumed Minchew in a memo to his colleagues, "I can manage now without them."

Minchew may have spoken like a government servant should, but he, too, has partaken generously of public funds. He once spent $115.50 on a junket to Georgia for the opening of a federal law enforcement center. The expenses were legitimate, he told us, because he "mentioned the Commission in a speech" he delivered while there.

Minchew is not the only culprit, nor the worst. Another Commissioner, former Rep. Cathy Day Bedel, R-Wash., apparently thinks she is still entitled to the perquisites of a lawmaker.

She frequently flies first class, despite government regulations that frown on it. She has taken several trips to her home state of Washington, ostensibly to make speeches, pick up trophies and once to participate in an "asparagus investigation."

On one trip to Los Angeles, Bedel holed up in a posh hotel, attended some "hearings on plant hangers," then submitted a request that her allowable expenses be increased to cover the high cost of her hospitality.

Meanwhile, according to Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., who is investigating the Commission, the ITC is so immersed in partisan politics that it is unable to perform its basic mission.

Footnote: An ITC spokesman argued that the flags and seals "added dignity" to Commission proceedings. Commissioner Bedel told us she flies first class only when "necessary."

'Cooking Plain'

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP) —

While America munches frozen dinners and such exotic dishes as Lobster Thermidor and Chicken Tetrazzini, Helen Walker Linsenmeyer evangelizes for simple fare.

The 70-year-old librarian is hoping to capitalize on what she calls "the nostalgia binge" with her new book: "Cooking Plain."

"There are no elaborate, fancy recipes such as we have today," she said. Instead, her recipes, saved from generations of Southern Illinois, Indiana and Missouri families, feature the kind of fare that kept the settlers alive — fried squirrel, venison roast and molasses taffy.

Her book allows kitchen artists to recreate the mead wine served to militiamen of Jackson County, as well as sumac lemonade, Mrs. Linsenmeyer said. Other recipes tell how to prepare such little-known items as Mushroom Catsup, Clover Bloom Vinegar, Head Cheese, Rose Hip Jam and Peach Leather.

One way to look at it

Reagan's Plan

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Suspicions that Ronald Reagan is considering another presidential run in 1980 were heightened inside the White House by secret contacts between President Ford and the man he barely beat in Kansas City.

Most important was Reagan's telephone call to Ford campaign chairman James Baker, shortly before the election. Infuriated by reports he was deliberately muting his support for Mr. Ford, Reagan demanded to know whether Baker was the source, as reported in a network news program. Baker fingered one of his aides, Norman C. (Skip) Watts Jr., as the culprit and promised Watts would not repeat his error.

REAGAN FEARED, with good reason, that the White House was setting him up for the role of villain, whether Mr. Ford won or lost. If he won, the word would be: we did it without Reagan. If he lost: it was all Reagan's fault.

Reagan intimates justify his refusal to make a late October trip into Dixie on this ground: if Reagan had gone South and California had gone Democratic, Reagan would have been blamed.

Before his call to Baker, Reagan had telephoned Gerald Ford himself alarmed over statements from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and speeches by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller suggesting a softening position on strategic arms talks, Korea and Taiwan. Reagan threatened to stop campaigning if Mr. Ford departed from the conservative 1976 platform.

The President satisfied Reagan with "full assurances" on all points. In the campaign's last days, Reagan regularly mentioned Mr. Ford's name; earlier, he barely managed to get it out.

ARMS FOR PANAMA Although armed clashes between U.S. and Panamanian forces are possible if the Canal Zone crisis deepens, the State Department is routinely approving sale of U.S. military hardware to Gen. Omar Torrijos's Panamanian dictatorship.

FOUR LATE MODEL armored cars, bristling with machine guns, were surreptitiously unloaded in Panama last month for delivery to Panama's national guard (combination national police force and army). Twelve more such vehicles will follow. Not a single one could have been purchased had not the State Department quietly approved the sale, an action apparently resulting from bureaucratic stupidity unusual even in the State Department.

Considering Torrijos's threat of force, which overlays U.S.-Panamanian negotiations on the canal, dispatching weapons is not only stupid but dangerous. What's more, Canal Zone employees who live in the Republic of Panama grumble about harassment and provocations by national guardsmen.

According to U.S. officials, the Torrijos government arranged to purchase armored vehicles commercially from the Cadillac Gage Co., of Warren, Mich., after being turned down for U.S. military aid.

WASH. POST

Pre-game emotions may help performance

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know how to get rid of bad nerves. Mine are so bad my whole body shakes when I argue (which I try to avoid). The same is true when I'm in front of groups of people. I don't drink or smoke. — T.S.

There are three basic emotions — anger, love and fear. From your letter it appears to be fear that you are dealing with — more specifically anxiety, a relative of fear.

In lower animals we don't speak of emotions, but of instincts. The biological facts are about the same, though. The animal in a situation involving potential physical harm uses the same protective mechanisms as does man. The body is flooded with secretions of various glands, preparing it to face the cause of danger. With man the dangers are more likely to be mental than physical. We refer to these reactions as "cold sweats" or "chills up the back."

The anxiety an athlete feels before a contest may have its advantages. Many experience this and enter the fray primed for action, even as the anxiety subsides.

For some folks anxiety may hinder performance. One thinks of the public speaker who chokes up when he should be calm or on his toes mentally. More often than not he is better prepared to fight lions than to address a Lions Club meeting.

If the situation becomes chronic there can be physically harmful effects. One authority lists some of these as increased levels of cholesterol in the blood, a tendency toward the pre-diabetic state, and a settling out in the blood of clotting substances. The risk of coronary artery disease is increased.

Often "nerves" of the kind you describe can have physical causes. You should be checked for overactive thyroid, which can cause symptoms such as shaking. If those factors are ruled out, you can turn to psychological counseling to ferret out the causes of your emotional instability. Once you understand them you will be better able to cope with them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can shingles be transmitted from person to person? Please answer yes or no. — Mrs. E.P.

Curiously, most of the questions for which readers want yes or no answers can't be answered that simply. There's usually more to it.

The viruses causing chicken pox and shingles are thought to be the same. Chicken pox is a childhood disease, whereas shingles occurs primarily in adults. Shingles can occur in adults exposed to chicken pox. We are not certain why this occurs. It may be that, because the viruses are so similar, antibodies against one may produce symptoms of the other.

However, I have no evidence that shingles is transmitted between adults.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Months ago my daughter and her fiancé became "one flesh." They both asked the Lord's forgiveness for this sin. Now they are no longer engaged. My daughter feels that it would be a sin, under the circumstances, for her to marry any other man. Is she spiritually correct? — Mrs. I.G.

DEAR MRS. G.: Your daughter has put herself in a precarious position. She compromised her ideals, lowered her moral flag, and thereby lost her boyfriend. What most girls don't realize is that sexual compromise, rather than drawing lovers together, usually drives them apart. Many a boy (and boys are different from girls in this respect) has as his goal total sexual commitment. Hence, when this is attained, interest wanes.

It is my opinion that your daughter has lost her boyfriend for good. Therefore, since you say she has sought and found forgiveness, she should forget the past and give up her boyfriend. I realize she believes that, since she has had sexual contact with one man, she would be committing some sort of adultery to marry another. But she must remember that her first sexual commitment was wrong in the sight of God. It has been forgiven. And the Bible says that when God forgives, he forgets (Jeremiah 31:34). This in no way means that her sin was not serious, but Jesus Christ has made full atonement for all our sins.

Having been forgiven, she is acquitted, absolved of her sin, and free to marry another. Many people feel that sexual sins are unforgivable. But if this were true, some of the great people of the Bible would be lost. "Thou has cast all my sins behind thy back."

Your daughter should not let Satan plague her with guilt. She has every right to marry a man of God's choice for her.

May go to court to keep jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some federal employees who oversee billions of dollars in Farmers Home Administration loans and grants are thinking about going to court to keep their Republican-appointed jobs after Jimmy Carter's administration takes over.

Some of the agency's 46 state directors, whose salaries range from $24,308 to $33,739 a year, reportedly feel they have legal grounds to prevent the Democrats from firing them.

They have not yet decided, however, on whether to go to court.

The directors, who discussed the idea of a suit when they met in Alexandria, Va., earlier this week, feel that their jobs are in "a twilight zone" between politically appointed posts and civil service jobs, an FmHA official said Thursday.

Career civil service employees of the federal government are protected from political firings. So-called "Schedule C" employees, who are all politically appointed, have no protection and are almost automatically fired or voluntarily quit when administrations change.

The FmHA state directors are in a "Schedule A" that lies between the career civil service and the Schedule C categories.

But traditionally, their jobs are filled by the political party in the White House. An agency spokesman said all the present directors were appointed during the past eight years of Republican rule.

The FmHA directors reportedly are looking for protection to a U.S. Supreme Court decision last June that, in effect, said certain public employees cannot be fired solely for political reasons.

The case involved the firing of some Republican employees in the Cook County, Ill., sheriff's office who were not protected by civil service. The court held that their constitutional rights were violated.

But the court said that employees in "policy-making positions" of government could be fired for political reasons.

Pros say farmers can expect lower prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a larger 1976 corn crop than was forecast a month ago, government experts say farmers can expect lower prices while U.S. reserves of the important livestock feed grain probably will rise a year from now to their highest level since 1973.

Using the new production figures, analysts said that by next Oct. 21, when the new 1977-78 corn marketing year begins, the amount of corn left over as a reserve will be about 578 million bushels, compared with 399 million this Oct. 1, and 359 million bushels a year ago.

But the report showed that domestic use of corn, including livestock feed, will be a little larger than previously counted on. In all, the report showed that nearly 4.29 billion bushels will be needed domestically this season, up from less than 4.02 billion in 1975-76.

A near record wheat crop this year also will mean larger reserves of bread grain in 1977 than had been expected.

Officials said the wheat reserve next June 1 at the beginning of the new marketing year for that crop may be about 948 million bushels, compared with 664 million last June 1. Last month the wheat carryover next summer was projected at about 873 million bushels.

The Agriculture Department's latest corn harvest estimate is for a record 6.06 billion bushels. That is up 5 per cent from last year's crop and 198 million bushels from the USDA forecast in October.

Prior to this week's larger 1976 crop estimate, the department said the corn reserve next fall could be around 430 million bushels.

According to records, the corn stockpile next fall — at 578 million bushels — will be the largest since the "carryover" reserve of 709 million bushels on Oct. 1, 1973. The stockpile soared to more than 1.1 billion bushels on Oct. 1, 1972.

In its new analysis, the department said corn exports in 1976-77 will be about 1.6 billion bushels, unchanged from the previous forecast on Oct. 22.

A much smaller soybean crop this year will mean a reduced stockpile by the time next year's crop is ready.

Last hurrah in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Many livestock men who once helped make Chicago known as the "hog butcher of the world" are gathering for a last hurrah in the Stock Yard Inn before it is torn down.

Slabs of prime rib will be the main course served in the mahogany-paneled Saddle and Sirlon Club where scores of portraits hang of the men whose names are synonymous with the yards.

Swift, Armour, Morris, Wood Prince and Potter.

Among the diners will be 73-year-old Joe Gregory, of Chicago, who helped organize the $12-a-plate "last meal" and hopes to have a yearly reunion of the old stock yard gang somewhere.

"I began working in the hog pens in 1916 and when I retired in 1968 I was president of the Iowa Livestock Commission Co.," said Gregory. "In the old days we used to take the buyers right into the pens and talk prices among the hogs. You'd have to just guess the weight of those hogs and if you missed by 15 pounds you could lose your profit. It was unbelievable in those days — untold thousands of people, billions of dollars and millions of animals, all in that one square mile. There's never been anything like it in the world."

Gregory said he will make a little talk at the dinner.

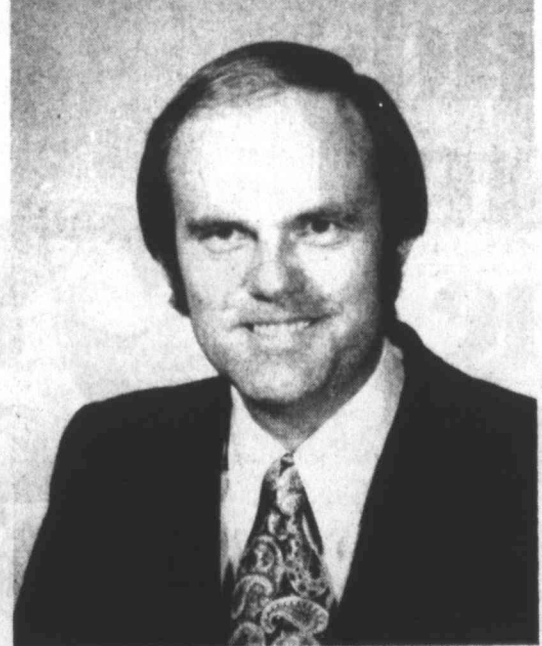

"I have some amazing figures," he said. "The biggest daily cattle run at the yards was 49,128 on Nov. 16, 1908. The biggest sheep run was 71,792 on Oct. 16, 1911. The biggest hog run was 122,749 on Dec. 15, 1924. Records show that on that big hog run, the market went up instead of down. How about that?"

'Believe it or not' Ripley's reunion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Believe it or not," age takes its toll even among the select few whose odd exploits have won them a place in Ripley's cartoon strip.

So when a dozen veterans of the strip held a reunion Thursday, there were some displays of dexterity, but more talk of what used to be.

Simon Argevitich of Oakland, Calif., was there. He made the widely syndicated strip in 1970 by stuffing 12 cigars into his mouth and doing bird calls. Today, the white-haired Argevitich can manage only six. But the bird calls are as strong as ever.

Karate expert George Dillman of Reading, Pa., boasts he can simultaneously break four blocks of ice weighing 1,000 pounds with his elbow.

Although clad in karate garb at the reunion, Dillman did not repeat his famous stunt. "No ice," he murmured.

The reunion was called at "Ripley's Believe It or Not" museum at Fisherman's Wharf to honor Robert L. Ripley's first cartoon 58 years ago. It was published in the old San Francisco Call in December 1918.

Ripley died in 1949, but others continued the cartoons which still appear in more than 300 newspapers.

Also attending the nostalgic affair was Plennie Wingo of Los Angeles, a smiling, elderly man who walked backwards across Europe and the United States.

Lena Deeter Bare of Van Nuys, Calif., sported a copy of the cartoon that featured her more than 30 years ago as a coed at Arkansas State Teachers College.

Now an elementary school teacher, she is just as good as ever at her specialty — writing forward, backward, upside down or backward with either or both hands at the same time.

Cruel, unusual punishment?

Gilmore gigs reprieve

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Board of Pardons may have little choice when it meets next Wednesday but to grant killer Gary Mark Gilmore's request to die before a firing squad, the board chairman has indicated.

"If a person comes there and says he doesn't want it (clemency) and no reason is presented to us for it, what can we do?" said George Latimer, chairman of the three-member board to which Gov. Calvin L. Rampton sent the case Thursday after staying an execution scheduled for Monday.

In a letter to Latimer, Rampton, who leaves office in January, said he wanted the board at Wednesday's public hearing to "review the decision of the trial judge" to determine whether capital punishment would be "appropriate."

Utah law does not grant the governor clemency powers, and Rampton, an acknowledged supporter of capital punishment, made no recommendation Thursday in delaying the execution.

Gilmore, 35, has said repeatedly he wants no delay in carrying out his death sentence for the murder of Provo motel clerk Bennie Bushnell during a robbery last July. When told of Rampton's action Thursday, Gilmore complained he was being subjected to "cruel, unusual and inhuman punishment."

Latimer, who opposed the death penalty as civilian defense counsel at Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s court-martial for the My Lai massacre, said the board does not concern itself with the question of whether Utah's death penalty law is constitutional.

If the sentence is not commuted, Corrections officials said mid-December would probably be the earliest Gilmore could meet his executioners.

Utah requires a 30-day lapse between sentence and execution. But it was unclear whether the 30-day rule would apply to a resentencing.

The governor acted after the Utah Supreme Court first stayed the execution and then, on Wednesday, reversed itself when it heard an unusual personal appeal from Gilmore to end the delays so he could "die like a man." Rampton said he felt the state constitution required him to intercede.

Gilmore would be the first man executed in the United States since 1967, and many of the more than 400 death-row inmates around the country fear the consequences of his rush to death.

Prison officials refused to allow Gilmore to hold a news conference Thursday night and said reporters would not be told in advance the location of the execution nor be allowed to witness it.

Warden Samuel Smith of the Utah State Prison and Ernest D. Wright, the state corrections director, said at a news conference the secrecy also would apply to names of five men on the firing squad. Smith has said more than two dozen persons have volunteered for the squad.

Judge Bates convicted of accepting big bribe

HOUSTON (AP) — Criminal District Court Judge Garth Bates, convicted of accepting a $59,000 bribe, will be sentenced in about 10 days to two weeks.

The veteran judge who will decide the punishment said it will be "the hardest job of my life."

A state district court jury found Bates 62, guilty Thursday night. The panel of six men and six women deliberated just over two hours before returning the verdict in the court of visiting Judge John Barron of Bryan.

Bates could receive up to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Defense attorneys gave notice of plans to appeal.

Bates, a former city councilman and a judge for four years, went on trial Nov. 1 on a charge of accepting a $59,000 bribe from Nukie Fontenot, 38, a pawnshop operator, in exchange for a promise Fontenot would not be sent to prison in a robbery case.

Fontenot was not indicted in the bribery case and testified as a state witness that he delivered $59,000 in marked $100 bills to Ed Riklin, 46, an associate of Bates.

Riklin, described as a go-between in the bribery case, was indicted with Bates and is awaiting trial.

Barron said he postponed the punishment phase of the case to reflect on what a suitable penalty would be.

Derailment cause sought

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities attempted today to determine the cause of the derailment of 12 cars of a 100-car Missouri Pacific freight train on the edge of downtown Houston.

There were no injuries. Five of the cars overturned in the Thursday derailment and one leaked a chemical for about two hours causing the evacuation of an eight block area for a time as a precautionary measure.

However, Dow Chemical Co. said the car contained 20,000 gallons of dichloropropene which is used by the tobacco industry as a soil fumigant to kill nematodes.

A Dow spokesman said the cars would be returned to Freeport when righted and on wheels.

Saxbe to quit

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — William B. Saxbe plans to leave his post as U.S. ambassador to India on Dec. 4, a close family friend says.

H.K. Crowl, a Dayton broadcasting executive, said the Saxbe family told him the ambassador will return to his cattle farm outside Mechanicsburg in Champlain County.

Saxbe's departure would leave the top job at the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi untended until after President-elect Jimmy Carter takes office Jan. 20 and names a replacement.

If the Colorado City Wolves win district tonight, it will be the first time since 1954.

There's a Big Spring woman who can well remember that championship season. She is Jean Wilder, wife of Hawk Coach Harold Wilder and she was a cheerleader that year in Cee City.

Other cheerleaders were Beth Newell of Silver, Lou Watson, Nancy Myers and Clara Mae Whitley. Jean was Jean Rogers at the time. That's before she met Harold at Sul Ross. Incidentally, Harold is in his 20th year of coaching and has never had a losing season.

But back to Colorado City's winning season in 1954. During the regular season the Wolves played Ranger, Monahans, Cisco, Andrews, Winters, Ballinger, Hamlin, Stamford, Rotan and Anson. After they won the championship, they beat Seymour in bi-district.

Then they went to Texas Tech and played Phillips. There it ended with Phillips winning 34-21. But the score is not what Jean remembered. It was the weather.

"There was such a bad sandstorm. It was right in the middle of the drouth. The sand blew the paint off some of the cars on the way to Lubbock."

"Our hair became so entangled that when the cheerleaders got home, they had to cut all their hair to get the tangles out."

That's the way Jean remembers it anyway. Three members of that winning team — Hollis Gainey, Arlis Parkhurst and J.B. Pageant — went on to play the University of Texas. Gainey later coached at Andrews and now coaches in Lubbock. Captains of that team were Parkhurst and Weldon Ennis. The coach was Dillard Adair. Bob Riley was assistant.

There was a great pep squad called the Wolverines," Jean recalls, "and its sponsor, Jane Merrill, was really enthusiastic."

C-C says Army should build new ammo facility

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A Texarkana Chamber of Commerce report released Thursday argues that the Army should build a new facility at the nearby Lone Star Army Ammunition Plant.

The report was in answer to a group at St. Louis that is trying to obtain the facility there.

Rep. Ray H. Thornton said he supported the Texarkana facility and said the report was "a clear rebuttal" and would be useful information pretty happy days in Colorado City in 1954 when they were winning ... even though it was in the middle of the drouth.

The drouth since then in Colorado City and Big Spring and several towns in the area has been a shortage of championship football for "those of us who are arguing for Texarkana."

The reports from both Texarkana and St. Louis will be evaluated and sent to the secretary of the army for a final decision probably sometime next month.

The Texarkana report says it would be cheaper to build the facility on Lone Star property, that manpower is available, that raw materials are nearby and plentiful, that there would be savings in transportation and that electricity is available.

teams.

But perhaps Colorado City Wolves have found the key and may snag a championship tonight.

Jean Wilder says, "I have a cousin Jackie Ellis, on this team. I sure hope they win. And I hope they're having as much fun as we did back in 1954."

During the Happy Days — and the victory days — in Colorado City, everyone was having fun and that's one of my favorite towns to ride fence in — when I'm out ridin'.

Little progress expected before January

U.S., Viet talks open

PARIS (AP) — Little or no progress is expected before January in the talks opening today in Paris between the United States and Vietnam.

U.S. spokesmen say any major decisions on relations with Vietnam must await President-elect Jimmy Carter's inauguration. Observers also say the Vietnamese Communist party is expected to redefine the reunited nation's foreign policy at its congress in Hanoi next month.

No improvement in Vietnamese-American relations appears likely after the change in U.S. administrations unless Hanoi meets the American demand for a full accounting of the 800 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Vietnam.

This was promised in the 1973 Paris peace agreement, and President Ford has made the information the precondition for progress toward normal relations. Carter during the campaign approved Ford's stand.

Vietnam demands that the United States live up to its promise in the peace agreement to help rebuild the war-ravaged country. But Washington has said Hanoi lost any right to aid when its troops overran South Vietnam last year.

Vietnam also wants the United States to stop blocking its admission to the United Nations. But the Ford administration says it will veto the Vietnamese application as long as the information on the missing Americans is not forthcoming.

The talks are the first between the United States and its Communist adversary in the long Vietnam war since the 1973 peace negotiations. The two governments are being represented initially by the second-ranking officers of their Paris embassies, Samuel R. Gammon and Tran Hoan.

There has been no indication of how frequently Gammon and Hoan will meet or when higher-ranking officials might take part.

A report issued in Washington Thursday by the Indochina Resource Center, a private American group, said Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told a congressional committee early this year that Vietnam wants normal relations with the United States to balance the influence of the Soviet Union and China.

"They need normalization more than we do," Kissinger reportedly said. "They have to come to us."

The report said Kissinger also told the committee the United States was prepared to discuss "economics and trade" with Vietnam but not reconstruction aid.

"I gag at direct aid," Kissinger reportedly said.

Wife of missing dentist will 'never quit searching'

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Teatsy Nichols, wife of a McAllen dentist missing for almost a month, said she will "never quit searching" for her husband although the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) suspended "one of the most massive air and ground searches ever in the Rio Grande Valley" earlier this week after failing to find a trace of the man or his aircraft.

Mrs. Nichols said she last saw her husband, Dr. W.S. Nichols, on the morning of Oct. 15 shortly before he boarded his red-and-white Bellanca airplane alone en route to a high school reunion in Gatesville.

"I'll never give up hope," she said this week from her fashionable home in one of the more elite sections of McAllen. "I believe we will find him somewhere. "You don't just loose an airplane."

The CAP announced this week it had "suspended" the search for the single engine plane and its pilot after it had spent 600 flying hours involving about 100 aircraft covering 369,000 square miles.

Mike Henry, a CAP officer in McAllen, termed the search "one of the most massive air and ground searches ever in the Rio Grande Valley."

Mrs. Nichols, her hoarse voice attesting to the mental and physical strains of the month-long ordeal, said the family is still offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the discovery of the plane.

"I feel now that our best hope lies with deer hunters," she said. "I feel they may run across something if they are aware of our problem."

Mrs. Nichols said she will continue searching along with friends and "anyone that has a plane and wants to look."

"His missing hasn't caused any financial burden to us," she said. "He had a good profession and a good practice. I'm not sure about the insurance yet but I won't have to delve into the insurance for quite a while."

The search for her 38-year-old husband, coupled with caring for her two sons, three-year-old Billy and eight-month-old Scott, has taken its toll.

"Right now, I'm mentally and physically exhausted," she said. "But I'll never quit looking for him. I know there is only so much I can do, but I'll search forever."

Beta Omicron chapter meets

The regular meeting of the Texas Beta Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Monday. Mrs. Pam Carroll, president, presided. After opening the meeting with the ritual, Mrs. Carroll welcomed Mrs. Beverly Knous, guest, and the five new pledges to the chapter.

The pledge ritual for Mrs. Claudia Cannon, Mrs. Lauretta Glass, Ms. Elizabeth Phelan, Mrs. Fran Roberts, and Mrs. Rose Stukel was held Thursday, Nov. 11 at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room at 7:30 p.m. All members were encouraged to attend.

A program on poetry was presented by Mrs. Lillie Curry. The program defined the different forms of poetry. Several of the members read their favorite poems and discussed what they mean to them personally.

A second program was presented by Mrs. Stephanie Roll. This program on prose stressed how prose is used in education, publicity and politics. All of the members joined in a discussion of the different forms of prose and discussed their own favorite form of literature.

The Thanksgiving dinner will be held on Nov. 13, for all the members and their guests. The progressive dinner will begin at 6:00 p.m. in Apt. 3C7 of the Park Village Apartments and then move on to various members homes for the different courses of the meal.

Mrs. Doris Arcand read the Chapter By-Laws to the membership to remind the regular members of their duties and to initiate the new pledges into the traditions of the Beta Omicron Chapter.

Plans are being made for the Holiday Bazaar to be held Dec. 4 in the Highland Mall. A work meeting will be held Nov. 18 at 10:30 a.m. at 2600 Clanton for the members to work on their items for the sale.

The members voted to visit the Hillside Nursing Home on the third Thursday of every month. Their visits will include playing bingo and just socializing with all the people in the home. Mrs. Becky Childers will be in charge of this activity.

The Heritage Heartbeat was read by Mrs. Katherine Bartholomew. This is a little news item sent from the international office to illustrate the love and sisterhood within Beta Sigma Phi.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Lillie Curry and Mrs. Doris Arcand. The next meeting will be held Nov. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Texas Electric Reddy Room. Dr. Wayne Bonner will be the guest speaker.

"Helping hand"

The Moss PTA met Tuesday evening, Nov. 9 in the school cafeteria. The program, "Helping Hand," was presented by Ed Kissinger of the Big Spring Police Department.

A film, "Beware of Strangers," was shown to the group. Projects decided on from funds collected at the Halloween carnival were two folding tables for the cafeteria. Each teacher received $30 to be used for their classroom. Room count was won by Mrs. Hyman's class.

Mom can't love her ugly duckling

DEAR ABBY: I know I should be grateful that my 13-year-old daughter is healthy and bright, but she is so ugly that it's hard to love her. I am often cruel to her, and then I feel guilty because I know it's not her fault that she's not better-looking.

Both my husband and I are fairly attractive. We've done everything to help her—teeth straightened, good hair cut, nice clothes, treatment for acne, etc., but she's still a very homely girl.

I find myself bitter and resentful of my friends' attractive children because my daughter is so ugly. What can I do?

CRUEL AND FEELING GUILTY

DEAR CRUEL: If you condition your love on the cosmetic qualities of your daughter, you are the ugly one, only your ugliness doesn't show.

I regard your frank confession as a cry for help. Get into therapy before your "bright and healthy" daughter suffers serious psychological damage from your cruelty and sadly twisted values.

DEAR ABBY: My husband went on a 10-day business trip recently, and he wrote me three letters. He addressed the first one to "Mary Smith," the second to "Mrs. Mary Smith," and the third to "Ms. Mary Smith."

I have a friend who studies psychology, and she told me that my husband's addressing me as he did—carefully avoiding using "Mrs. John Smith"—was his way of "de-wifing" me.

I should add that when my husband returned from the trip, he was as affectionate and loving as ever, and he certainly didn't "de-wife" me then.

What do you think of my friend's theory?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Not much. And if I were you, I would "de-friend" her.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for four years, but my husband still maintains the bachelor apartment he had before he married me. (He and I are now living in my apartment.)

We are in need of a new TV. He has a very good one in his apartment, which is hardly used and was purchased just before we were married, but he refuses to move it over here, even though nobody is getting any use out of it where it is.

This is only a minor issue. Why he needs to keep that apartment is what really bothers me. He keeps kidding me about wanting a place to go in case we have a fight or decide to separate.

I care for him a lot and would hate to break up over his keeping that apartment. How do you figure this?

IRKED IN N.J.

DEAR IRKED: Your husband's insistence on keeping an apartment suggests that your marriage is near the reef. Why not ask him to rent a "retreat" for you? His excuse is as flabby as the idea is shabby.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

New York's '21' club hires 'waitperson' Jeanne King

NEW YORK (AP) — The posh "21" Club, known as one of those restaurants where everyone who's anyone is sure to turn up, has hired its first waitress and coined the term "waitperson" to cover all its serving staff.

Jeanne King, 30, a college graduate and professional waitress, has started work as a part-time apprentice and will begin waiting on tables by herself in two weeks.

Miss King was hired as a result of an out-of-court settlement by "21" in a suit charging it and seven other well-known New York City restaurants with discrimination against women.

The "21" Club, just off fashionable Fifth Avenue, is known for its high prices as well as its high society. When President-elect Jimmy Carter lunched there with business leaders last summer, his well-publicized hamburger cost about $9 with tax.

Like other quality restaurants, "21" uses European tableside service. Food comes from several different serving areas in the kitchen, with the entree delivered either in a casserole or silver serving dish. Vegetables, side dishes and garnishes all are served separately.

The suit is a class action started by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of Miss King and Cathryn Smith, also a professional waitress. The restaurants named in the suit were all alleged to have rejected employing the two only because they are women.

The suit is still pending against such restaurants as Lutece, La Cote Basque and the Four Seasons.

The "21" Club agreed in the settlement not only to hire Miss King, but to pay her an undisclosed fee and to pay the ACLU for legal fees.

Terry Dinan, a member of the "21" management team, said the practice of hiring only male servers was a longstanding tradition among New York's first-class restaurants.

"It's hard to be the first to break a tradition," Dinan said in an interview today. "It takes a big person. Well, we're a big restaurant, and

Dodd speaks to chapter

Ferrol Dodd, a member of the State Hospital staff, spoke to the Big Spring Chapter of Parents Without Partners Tuesday evening at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center on "Reality Therapy" and how it can be applied to the average person.

Mr. Dodd explained that in order to get control of one's life, a person must become reinvolved with those around him or her, and must make an effort to make new friends, especially ones who are successful and enthusiastic about life.

People, he said, need to establish priorities and make a commitment to either the spiritual, to another person or to himself. Self-defeating excuses should not be accepted. Dodd added that people need to make an effort to evaluate the consequences of their actions and never to give up on something they feel is important.

Ms. Laura Boubek hosted the meeting. PWP will hold a pot luck supper at 8 p.m. Friday Nov. 12 in the Community Center. Saturday night entertainment will consist of dinner at the Spanish Inn followed by dancing. All single parents are invited to call 263-3515 for more information.

Gypsies for Jesus lead revival here

"They call us 'Gypsies for Jesus'" says Gary Hines who is leading the revival this week at the Baptist Temple Church from Nov. 15-21.

Services will include a children's puppet show at 7 p.m. followed by a worship service at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday starting Nov. 15. Sunday services will also include Sunday School and the 11 a.m. worship.

Monday is Meet the Evangelist Fellowship with Church Loyalty night on Tuesday; family night, Wednesday; Sunday School night, Thursday; children's night, Friday and youth night, Saturday. Mike Crowley will lead the singing.

Gary Hines doesn't leave his family behind when he takes on a revival. He brings them along and home for the family since last July has been a 29-foot travel trailer pulled by a van. The van doubles as a bedroom for Jay, 11 and Jeff, 10.

"We pull the van up beside the trailer and plug it in," said Hines. The wife, Cheryl and daughter, Charise, complete the family. Before he took up traveling evangelism, Hines pastored in churches 12 years in Oklahoma, Texas and Tennessee.

They had a giant garage sale, sold everything and took off. He said that his wife has to hunt every weekend a different laundromat, "but it's worked out fine." She also bears the responsibility for educating the three youngsters.

She uses correspondence lessons from the Calvert School in Baltimore, conducting school for three and one-half hours each morning five days a week.

Their home church is Orchard Hills Baptist in Garland. They forward their mail and keep in touch.

The Hines family plans to keep on doing evangelism. "We are all adjusted to it, so we have no plans for going back. Most people look forward to traveling when they retire. Maybe when I retire I'll look forward to staying in one place."

THE FIRST DOLLAR EARNED

Today Donald arrived. Not at the zenith of success. Just at the threshold of opportunity. He made his first dollar... and put it where it will keep on working for his future.

Up to now Donald has depended on an allowance. That means living on money given. Now Donald will be moving toward financial independence. That means living on what you have earned.

Spiritually we arrive the same way. Our parents, if they are wise and caring parents, give us faith. They bring us to church. They encourage our Christian growth. They set moral standards in an atmosphere of religious conviction.

On the day that we do arrive... we begin providing for our spiritual needs voluntarily. Only then are we ready to be spiritually independent. That means living by the faith you have gained.

Ultimately we have to make our own decisions about our principles and convictions. There is no substitute for early religious training in preparing for that day.

Carter says he likes competition among staff members

Tug-of-war for high stakes

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says he likes competition among his staff members, but there are signs he may be getting more than he wanted.

The gentle tug-of-war between the old Carter hands and the button-down newcomers that simmered during the campaign is picking up now that the high-stakes game of building an administration has begun.

One sign this week was the thick memo that campaign manager Hamilton Jordan sent to Carter suggesting ways to staff his administration.

This product duplicates to a degree the voluminous recommendations of Carter's transition staff, headed by Atlanta lawyer Jack Watson.

A former campaign Carter aide said Jordan was "moving to head off Watson."

One Carter insider, referring to the Watson-Jordan situation, said: "I guess we can expect more of that. I don't think there's any doubt Jimmy's going to receive competing recommendations, and he's not going to say, 'Hey, stop that,' because he likes competition among the corps."

"Jimmy's pretty happy with what's going on," this source said.

What's going on apparently is an effort by Jordan to re-establish himself in the Carter hierarchy now that his campaign job is over.

The pecking order among the Carter cadre turns largely on how long and how well a member has known the chief. The senior member, Charles Kirbo, goes back to 1962, when he won a lawsuit that saved Carter's election to the state Senate from alleged vote fraud by the opposition.

Jordan came in the next group, consisting of those who worked for Carter in his losing bid for the governorship in 1966. Press

Major changes are in store

Construction planned by First Federal Savings and Loan will transform the entire south half of the 500 block of Main.

Statistics noted in the building permit issued Tuesday show that within five years the area which formerly housed the Downtown Tea Room and Bradshaw's Photography Studio will look quite different.

The lot will contain three drive-in teller windows, 31 feet by 9 feet-7 inches apiece; an extension to the existing bank building, 57 feet-3 inches by 21 feet-7 inches; a basement beneath a new parking area, 92 feet by 62 feet; two new parking areas; and two enclosures near sidewalks, containing plants.

R. B. Sneed Construction Co. of Odessa will do the work on the $350,480 project. Most structures will be made of concrete with a marble, outer finish. All curbs on the south side of the block will be torn out and repaved, according to plans.

Dawson official quits Jan. 1

LAMESA — Clyde Bostick submitted a letter to Dawson County commissioners resigning as county treasurer, effective Jan. 1.

He took office Jan. 1, 1951. His resignation will be filled by an appointment made by commissioners court, until the next general election two years hence.

The commissioners will accept applications until Dec. 13 when they will make an appointment.

Glasscock pecan show Nov. 22-23

The second annual Glasscock County Pecan Show will be held in Garden City Nov. 22-23 at the courthouse.

There will be an open Pecan Show division and producers from Howard, Sterling, Midland, and Reagan Counties are being invited to participate.

Each entry must have at least 40 pecans of the same variety. Pecans must be exhibited in their natural state; with no artificial alterations. There will be classes for three and six varieties by one grower. All pecans, when entered, become the property of the Glasscock County Pecan Show. The first three winners in each category division will be submitted to the regional pecan show.

Pecan growers are urged to select their entries as soon as possible and turn them in to Oliver F. Werst, Glasscock County Extension Agent, at the Courthouse in Garden City. Entry deadline is 8:00 a.m. Nov. 22. Plaques, rosettes and ribbons will be awarded through three places.

The Pecan Food Show will take place Nov. 23. The Grand Champion Food of the Show will receive a $25 savings bond. All entries must contain pecans and must be turned in for judging between the hours of 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23. Foods entered must be on disposable containers because all entries become the property of the Pecan Show, and will be sold to the public beginning at 3 p.m. Nov. 23.

There will be no limit on the number of entries. Kathryn Burch, County Extension Agent for Glasscock-Martin Counties, is in charge of the Pecan Foods Show.

Members of the Pecan and Foods Show Planning Committee are James Currie, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Calverley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Calverley, Mr. and Mrs. David Harris, Mrs. Asta Cook and the County Extension Agents.

Secretary Jody Powell joined in 1970 when Carter ran for governor again and won, and he has been one of Carter's closest aides ever since.

Jordan, meantime, served as Carter's executive secretary and began planning the drive that climaxed this month with a Cinderella capture of the White House. Friends say Jordan fully expected that when the battle was won, he would resume his place at Carter's right hand in building the new administration.

Last summer, however, Watson proposed to Carter a plan for preparing the White House transition in advance and laying the groundwork for anticipated legislative programs and executive initiatives.

The idea was to enable Carter to hit Washington on the run and make his imprint quickly instead of settling slowly into the job the way most presidents have, with the exception of Franklin Roosevelt's first 100 days which had been planned by a similar "brain trust."

It suited Carter's style, and he bought it. Watson set up shop shortly after the Democratic party nominated Carter last summer. The result was a detailed presidential preparation which even Jordan has called "a fantastic job."

But the old guard began to stew as Watson and a crew made up largely of outsiders began planning the coming administration without them. The transition team included "Washington establishment" types, Ivy League eggheads and Kennedy-Johnson holdovers, they said.

The most valid complaint the original Carter squad has leveled against Watson and his group is that the transition team has been working in an insulated world of abstraction and lacks the political savvy that they used to make Carter president-elect.

And they turned this to an early victory over Watson's suggestion that Carter spend most of his time during the transition period in Washington — which incidentally would have had him close to Watson and the transition team.

At first Carter agreed publicly to Watson's proposal that he spend three or four days a week in Washington, but a couple of days later he announced he would spend most of his time at his Plains, Ga., home until he is inaugurated Jan. 20.

"I don't think there's any doubt but that Hamilton and Jody were behind it," a Carter watcher said, "and I think this again illustrates that perhaps they are more politically attuned than Watson."

"By staying in Georgia, Carter avoids the appearance of a government in exile stalking President Ford," this source said, "and I think it's wise, and more in line with what Carter wants."

Longtime associates who know all the actors in this drama consider it perfectly normal as long as no one loses his temper.

"Jimmy likes competition," a friend observed. "But in the end it's going to depend on the product. He'll buy the better product."

THROUGH the fieldglasses

By Danny Reagan

One season ends...

This will be the last bull out of the chute for all local and area teams tonight, as far as 1976 Schoolboy football goes. Two exceptions just might be Forsan and Colorado City, who could advance to bi-district games with wins tonight.

The Steers end their season in Memorial Stadium in what is expected to be the coldest and maybe wettest game of the year. Put on your longjohns and go out there and support them.

And the Coahoma Bulldogs and Stanton Buffaloes round out their season tonight in what should be winning efforts for the good guys.

On this last weekend of the season, Herald sports has hit the jack-pot. We'll have someone at every game. Marj Carpenter will of course be following her Forsan Buffs to Snyder. Bob Burton will travel to Colorado City to cover that shoot-out. Bill Werrell will be in Coahoma for that match-up, and Joe Autry will be in the Stanton press box.

Don't let a little inclement weather bother you, go out and support your favorite team.

...another begins

As most of you already know, roundball has hit the hardwoods in every wide spot in the road, and the fans are gearing up for the transition from gridirons to gymnasium.

Talking to BSHS basketball coach James "Griff" Griffin last night at the Hawk slaughter, I found that his 1976-77 squad is ready for action.

Watch for a promo on the team (with pictures) in this Sunday's sports section.

And let me take this opportunity to remind someone from Coahoma, Stanton and Forsan to send me a basketball schedule.

Hawks versus Cowboys

There comes a time when a conflict of interests just looks too great to resolve, as in the case of the Monday night Cowboy game on TV and the Monday night Hawk game in Hawk Gym.

At first, such fanatic Poke fans as Jim Baum and myself felt we would have to stay at home and send Pearl and Parnell Jones to cover the Hawks, but then Head Coach Harold Wilder came up with a simple solution.

The Hawk games start at 7:30 this year, and are usually over by a little after 9 o'clock. The Cowboy game doesn't start until 8 p.m., and there will still be time left in the first half when all the Hawk Boosters race back to their TV sets from the game.

And we all know that the Cowboys are a second-half team anyway. So don't miss the running, gunning, grinning and winning actions of the Hawks. See both.

And one more added incentive to attend the HC game against Angelo State JV's. The Hawks will be wearing brand new solid red uniforms. Wilder gave me a preview look at them last night, and they are SHARP!

Quote for the day

"That three-second thing's dumb!" — Phyllis Gus at her first basketball game after being informed of the reason for a Hawk turnover.

Win rematch 112-90

Hawks pale Palominos

By DANNY REAGAN

"Welcome Howard, Alex and Frank. Hawks and ABC are number 1," read one of the signs being held aloft in Hawk Gym Thursday night. "Send in Crooks," read another.

The fans were emotionally ready for the Hawks' third game of the season, and there was little doubt that the Hawks themselves couldn't have been more ready.

Before an enthusiastic bunch of hollering basketball aficionados, the Hawks, all 11 of them, soundly whipped the visiting Laredo Junior College Palominos 112-90.

The Ponies didn't have a chance. From the very beginning, Paul Cathey and Lowell Walker intimidated the LJC board men, who had difficulty getting an offensive rebound all night.

With the rebounding of Cathey (16 on the night), the feeds by Walker, and the quick hands of Marc Meyers and Mike Little, plus a healthy HC press, the Hawks built up a 31-12 lead with 8:48 remaining in the first half.

At that point, head coach Harold Wilder sent in the reserves. The second team saw as much action in the walk-away as did the first five.

Joe Cooper, the Hawks' tallest player at 6'9", continued to improve as he has in every ballgame. "Coop" produced 18 points and hauled down 10 rebounds.

Eugene Williams, another improving freshman, also had 10 rebounds and 12 points. He and Cooper played aggressively throughout the night, both of them blocking Laredo shots at will. Williams brought the roar of the crowd to ear-busting level when he dunked a shot in the second half.

Wilder had praise for all his team, and especially noted speedy freshman guard Marc Meyers. "Marc is a great team member. He's no hog, and really has a good attitude," Wilder said. Meyers had 13 points, seven assists and hit five out of six from the field, and three from the line.

For the night the Hawks hit 57 per cent of their shots from the field and at one point in the second half were shooting at a 72 per cent rate. The good eye on offense, and the press on defense helped the Hawks to their biggest lead of the night, 88-56, with just over nine minutes to go in the game.

The running, gunning, grinning and winning philosophy of the Hawks this year makes for a great game for the spectators, and their potent offense also is a crowd-pleaser. With 4:58 remaining in the game, Marc Meyers hit a free-throw and the Hawks busted the century mark for first time this season at 100-72. The crowd shook the rafters again.

After the first period explosion by the Hawks, the desire seemed to leave the Palominos, and they just seemed to run down the court, shoot and foul. A total of 77 fouls were called in the game.

Wilder and his assistant Leroy McClendon sent in the reserves each time the score would bulge too much, again, much to the enjoyment of the crowd.

The Hawks' next game is Monday night in Hawk gym, sporting brand-new uniforms against the Angelo State University Junior Varsity. Game-time is 7:30.

'You'd never know she wasn't a boy'

Deborah hangs up cleats

CLEVELAND, Mo. (AP) — Deborah Brinkley, at the carry old age of 13, is hanging up her cleats.

After two years of carrying the football for tiny Cass Midway Junior High School, Deborah is calling it quits.

"This is my last year in football," says the 5-foot-3½, 103-pound teen-ager.

"It was my decision. They get pretty big up there (high school). I learned a lot, though."

Deborah overcame the fears of her parents, resentment from her male opponents and doubts by athletic officials to become a better-than-average player for the Cass Midway squad two years ago.

But she, her parents and Coach Garold Drake agreed that she might face problems as the boys grew bigger and stronger in high school — even if the Missouri State High School Sports Activities Association did not ban girls

Conners favored,

Borg is favorite

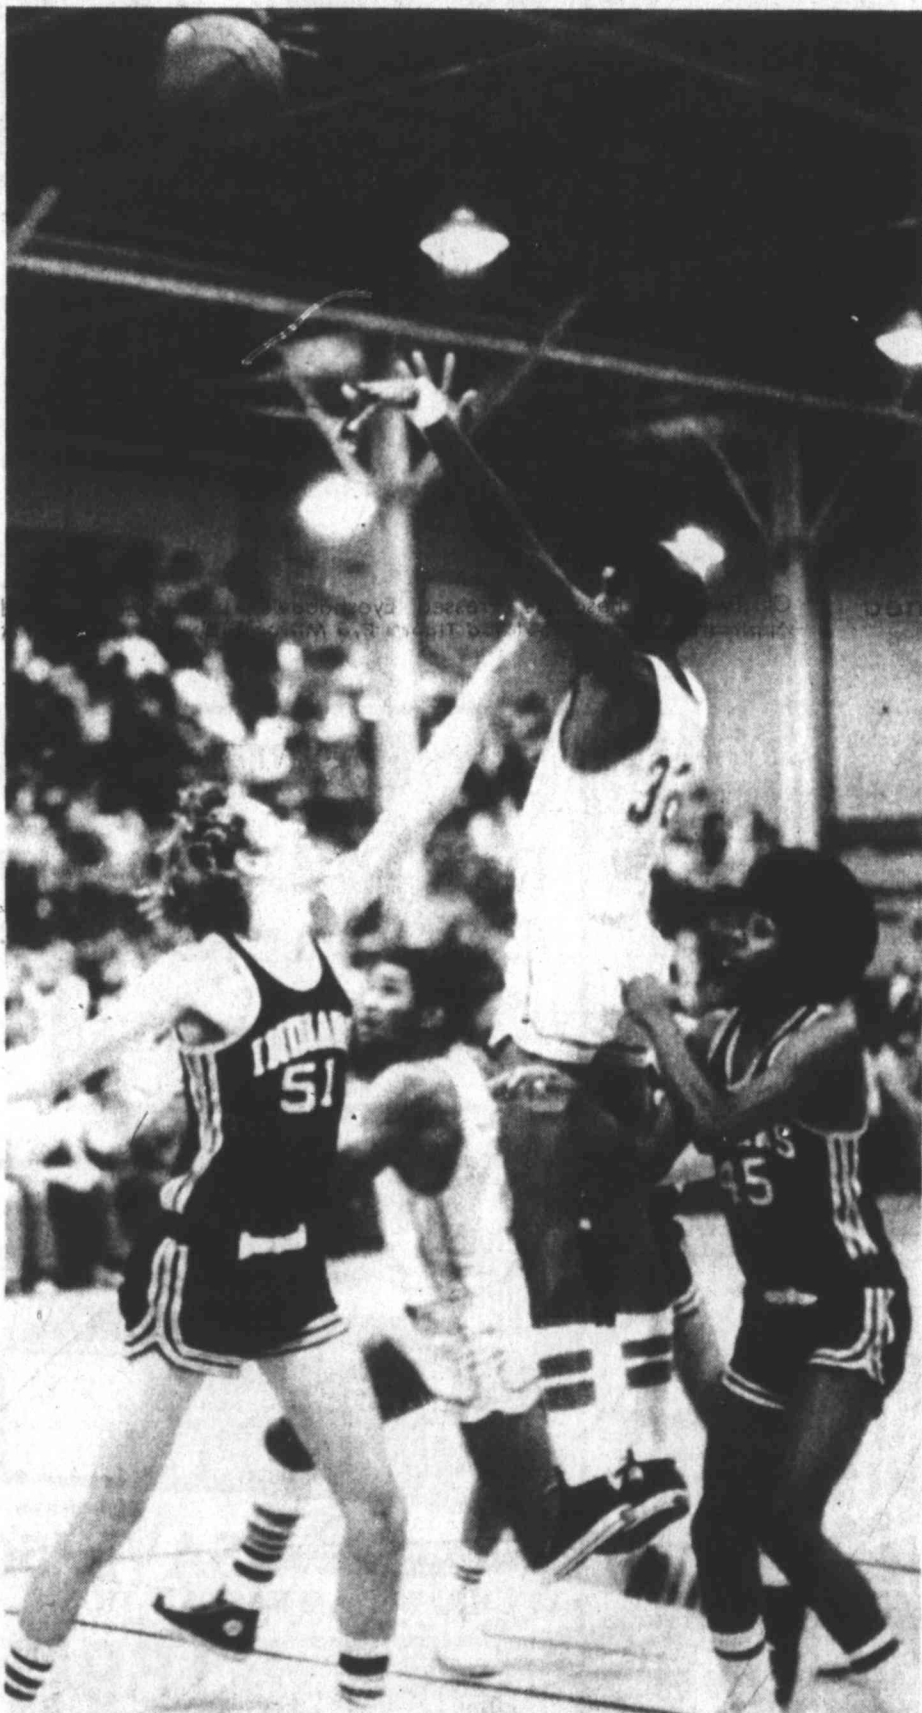

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjorn Borg may be seeded second to Jimmy Connors in the $150,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament, but there is no doubt he is the sentimental favorite of the crowds.

Before advancing to today's quarter-finals with a hardfought 6-2, 6-7, 7-6 triumph over Britain's John Lloyd Thursday, Borg was honored in a colorful ceremony by King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia of Sweden. Borg and the other members of Sweden's Davis Cup team were presented a royal gold medal of first class in recognition of Sweden winning the Davis Cup for the first time last year.

Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was Borg's quarter-final opponent. He advanced with a 6-3, 6-4 triumph over Stan Smith, Sea Pines, S.C.

In other quarter-final matches, Connors met fifth-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico, Byron Bertram of South Africa battled Mark Cox of Britain, and Haroon Rahim of Pakistan faced third-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain.

Rahim, Cox and Bertram all upset seeded opponents to advance into the quarter-finals.

Sands sweeps Garden City

The Sands roundballers took three games from Garden City Thursday night. The "A" boys team came out on top 72-53, the "A" girls won theirs 55-27, and the "B" girls barely survived a fired-up Sands team 27-22.

For the Sands boys, Martin Nichols with 27 and Gary Webb with 20 were high-pointers. Spence and Hirt for the Bearkats each had 14.

Jill Flores with 24 and Susan Martin with 17 led the Sands girls "A" team in scoring, while Johnson and Plagens had 14 and 11 respectively for Garden City.

Linda Kenema had 18 points for Sands in the girls "B" game, and Swartz led Garden City with eight points.

The Sands boys teams travel to Bronte tonight for a game there at 6:30, and the two girls teams have contests in Wilson Saturday at 5 p.m.

Winners, losers, hopers all try to survive

NEW YORK (AP) — Survival.

That's what the National Football league season has come down to for the Pittsburgh Steelers and Miami Dolphins.

Winners of the past four Super Bowls, the Steelers and Dolphins got off to a staggering start this season. Pittsburgh dropped four of its first five games but has turned that around with four straight victories, the last three on shutouts. Miami was 2-4 before winning three straight.

Now both teams stand 5-4 and are thinking about the wild card berth that could sneak them into the playoffs. There will be room, however, for only one of them and that's why Sunday's showdown in Three Rivers Stadium carries so much importance.

The Pro Picker, who survived with an 11-3 record last week raising the season's mark to 86-39-1 for 588, likes the Steel Curtain Sunday.

The picks: Pittsburgh 17, Miami 7. Let's just say the Pro Picker has more faith in Mean Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes, L.C. Greenwood and Dwight White than he does in Bill Arnsparger.

Los Angeles 24, St. Louis 20. The California sunshine should help the Rams

(AP WIREPHOTO)

DRIVING FORCE — Los Angeles Rams running back Lawrence McCutcheon (30) grinds ahead for a gain as Cincinnati Bengals defenders Gary Burley and Reggie Williams (57) reach in to pull him down in the second half of an NFL game in Cincinnati Monday night. The Bengals won the game, 20-12.

recuperate from their frigid Monday night in Cincinnati in time to handle the Cardinals.

Baltimore 33, New England 16

The Colts have the AFC's leading runner, Lydell Mitchell, and leading passer, Bert Jones.

Chicago 19, Green Bay 10. Both are 4-5, but that's deceptive. The Bears are the best 4-5 team in the league. The Packers may be the poorest.

Cincinnati 23, Houston 7

The Bengals like the atmosphere on top of the AFC Central and they plan to stay there. Houston is hurting.

Denver 26, San Diego 14

Did John Ralston run it up on Tampa Bay last week? Not really. The Buccaneers' mistakes were translated into touchdowns. San Diego makes fewer boo-boos so it stands to reason the Broncos will score fewer points.

Oakland 30, Kansas City 6. After last week's close call at Chicago, the Raiders won't take any chances against the Chiefs. Not with the division title ready to be nailed down in the next couple of weeks.

Washington 21, NY Giants 10. The good news here is that the Giants will score a touchdown for the first time in a month. The bad news is that Washington will score three of them.

Minnesota 17, Seattle 7. The Seahawks come back to earth after upsetting Atlanta. The Vikings, they will discover, are in a different class than the Falcons.

San Francisco 28, Atlanta 10

The 49ers have dropped two straight after winning six of their first seven. They can't afford a slip here with Los Angeles coming up next.

Philadelphia 20, Cleveland 17. The young, ambitious Eagles gave St. Louis a scare last week. The Browns aren't as tough as the Cardinals so here's this week's Upset Special.

Detroit 27, New Orleans 21. The Saints have dropped four straight but could make this one close in the cozy Superdome.

NY Jets 24, Tampa Bay 10. Some people will tell you this is Tampa Bay's only chance to win a game this season. Listen to the folks who tell you that this is the Jets' only chance to win another game this season.

Dallas 34, Buffalo 14

Like offense? Watch this Monday night game. The Cowboys get revved up for the cameras.

While the going gets rough at the top of the National Football League, a couple of teams which have had it rough all season hope to finally get going Sunday.

Of the 28 teams in the NFL, only the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and New York Giants have nothing to show for nine weeks of hard work — except nine losses.

But again they take the field with renewed hopes, the Bucs in New York to face the Jets and the Giants at home in East Rutherford, N.J. against the Washington Redskins.

In Sunday's other games, it will be Miami at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at Oakland, Seattle at Minnesota, San Francisco at Atlanta, Philadelphia at Cleveland, Houston at Cincinnati, New England at Baltimore, Green Bay at Chicago, Detroit at New Orleans, St. Louis at Los Angeles and Denver at San Diego. On Monday night, it's Buffalo at Dallas.

John McKay, who left his highly successful head coaching job at the University of Southern California to try and mold the Bucs into a respectable team, knew it would take time — but apparently he did not know it would be so disheartening at the outset.

"I will not concede until the 14th game," he snapped after last Sunday's loss when someone asked him about the prospect of a winless season. "But winning one or two won't make me that happy. A 2-12 record is repugnant. An 0-14 record is equally repugnant."

A loss to the Jets might demolish any hopes McKay has of avoiding that 0-14 record. The Bucs' final four opponents are Cleveland, Oakland, Pittsburgh and New England, all with winning records now and fighting for division titles or playoff berths.

The Giants, at least, have the luxury of being able to say they were looking ahead to next week if they lose to the favored Redskins. Next week they play Seattle, the NFL's other expansion team. The Seahawks have won two games.

Miami, which has won three straight, will be trying to slow down Pittsburgh, which has won four straight, the last three on shutouts. The most recent victim was Kansas City, which will be trying to slow down Oakland's march to a fifth straight divisional crown. And Minnesota can take another step toward a fourth straight regular-season title by beating the Seahawks.

BULLETIN

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — It appears certain that the Texas-Texas A&M football game will be televised Thanksgiving night, although ABC-TV said it will not announce its decision until Saturday.

The network apparently has no choice since Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan has refused to move the Tech-Arkansas game from Nov. 27 to Thanksgiving, Nov. 25.

Tech plays Houston Nov. 20, and Sloan said there is "no way we could play our two most important games of the season in five days."

UT and A&M moved their Thanksgiving night last summer at the network's request, but the so-so records of the two teams prompted ABC to look elsewhere for another matchup.

The network will announce the Thanksgiving lineup during the telecast this Saturday of A&M and Arkansas.

But not for dinner

Dame-Bama bash brews

By the Associated Press

There aren't any national championships hanging in the balance this time, but two of the most storied names in college football — Notre Dame and Alabama — are about to clash again.

This is the first-ever regular-season confrontation between the 18th-ranked Fighting Irish of Notre Dame and the 10th-rated Crimson Tide of Alabama and it's anything like their two bowl matchups a winner won't come easy.

Notre Dame won the 1973 national championship over Alabama by nipping the Tide 24-23 in a Sugar Bowl showdown. The following year, the Irish knocked 'Bama and the Bear out of another possible title with a 13-11 upset in the Orange Bowl, an emotional game which ended the Era of A Parseghian.

Alabama will be making its first Midwest appearance since a 1928 trek to Wisconsin and the Tide's last venture as far north as chilly South Bend, Ind., came in 1946 against Boston College. For precedent lovers, 'Bama lost the former 15-0 and the latter 13-7.

Alabama is 7-2, Notre Dame 6-2 and both are still seeking a major bowl bid, if it's not too late. However, the Crimson Tide has won five in a row after a stumbling start — "The greatest turnaround I've ever been connected with," says Bear Bryant.

"Alabama has been coming along quite well in recent weeks," says Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine. "They are particularly dangerous on the ground with some very fine runners. With the excellent backfield depth, they just keep coming at you all day."

Elsewhere, Pitt displays its wares for the first time as the nation's new No. 1 team by entertaining West Virginia in one of those neighborhood rivalries where the record book usually doesn't mean a thing. Meanwhile, deposed Michigan, down to No. 4, hosts Illinois.

With their Pacific-8 shootout one week off, second-ranked UCLA visits Oregon State while third-ranked Southern Cal is at home against Washington.

The rest of the Top Ten finds Southern Methodist at fifth-ranked Texas Tech, the Southwest Conference leader; Clemson at No. 6 Maryland, which is after its third straight Atlantic Coast Conference crown; No. 7 Georgia at Auburn, with the Bulldogs seeking to nail down a Sugar Bowl berth; No. 8 Ohio State—tied with Michigan atop the Big Ten—at Minnesota and No. 9 Nebraska, the Big Eight leader, at Iowa State.

In the Second Ten, it's No. 11 Missouri at No. 14 Oklahoma, No. 16 Texas A&M at No. 13 Arkansas, No. 15 Florida at Kentucky, No. 17 Oklahoma State at Kansas State, Kansas at No. 19 Colorado and Wake Forest at No. 20 South Carolina. Twelfth-ranked Houston is idle.

The only teams with perfect records are Pitt, Texas Tech, Maryland, Colgate and Rutgers. Colgate visits Army while Rutgers is at Tulane for a night contest. Southwestern Louisiana has won them all on the field but had to forfeit two games for using an ineligible player. The Ragin' Cajuns visit Northwestern Louisiana under the lights.

DALLAS COWBOYS

COWBOYS NOTES

With the 9-3 squeak over the New York Giants Sunday, the Dallas Cowboys equalled their best start ever. They were 8-1 after nine games in 1969, when they finished 11-2-1. Dallas has never won nine games out of the first ten, a record it will be shooting for against Buffalo Monday night.

Efren Herrera's three field goals in the Giants game continued a hot streak that has seen Herrera boot 14 of 17 three pointers this season. He has not tried one inside the 20, but has booted 7 of 7 inside the 30, 6 of 7 inside the 40, 1 of 2 inside the 50 and has missed one try from outside the 30. Herrera has contributed field goals in 8 of the 9 games to date, with the three against Baltimore and the Giants (second meeting) being the maximum.

Roger Staubach, who has fallen to a 63.4 passing completion percentage with a couple of mediocre games (and several drops) the past two weeks, nevertheless is shooting at his own best mark. Staubach's current 63.4 is slightly above his (and the Cowboys') all-time best for a full year, 62.6 in 1973.

Staubach, incidentally, who is no stranger to the Acapulco trips furnished by sponsoring Oak Farms dairies, once again has a healthy lead in the Favorite Cowboy contest. Staubach had 3866 votes, followed by Drew Pearson with 2517 and Golden Richards with 2438.

Harvey Martin is making up for lost time. The big defensive end, dubbed Harvey (Trapper) Martin in some circles because he has led the Cowboys in quarterback traps since he was a rookie in 1973, got off to a bad start this season. He had one trap through the early part of the season. But he took the lead at the midway point with six traps and with three against the Giants, has a chance to make it his best year ever. His total of nine to date brings him to 38 in his pro career.

Drew Pearson has 165 catches in his fourth year with the Cowboys, placing him No. 5 among all-time Cowboys receivers. Drew's 35 catches to date have moved him above Calvin Hill, Don Perkins and Billy Howton on the Dallas receiving charts. Pearson has made at least one reception in the past 26 games. The Cowboys record for a string belongs to Lance Rentzel with 36.

The Cowboys have met Buffalo and Atlanta, their next two foes, a total of only six times. The Cowboys are 1-0 against Buffalo, winning a game played there in 1971, 49-27. And Dallas in 5-0 against Atlanta, in three games played there and two in Dallas with the first meeting in 1966.

Billy Joe DuPree's 30 catches for an even 500 yards tie him with the best at tight end has ever done for the Cowboys. Mike Ditka had 30 catches for 360 yards through the entire 1971 season.

John Bushong's singing with the Giants leaves the Cowboys with four players on the injured reserve. Remember John Smith, Duke Ferguson, the rookies, and Percy Howard and Kyle Davis. Smith is a running back, Ferguson and Howard are receivers and Davis is a center.

The Cowboys obviously have no reason to wish the San Diego Chargers ill luck, except . . . Except that every game SD loses helps the Cowboys move toward the top of the collegiate draft list, providing there is one, of course. As part of the Clint Longley deal, Dallas and San Diego traded places in the first round.

Some of the Cowboys' extra choices, if and when, include SD's eighth choice for Mitch Hoopes and Toni Fritsch, Philadelphia's third choice for John Niland, Buffalo's second for Pat Toomay.

The win over the Giants assured the Cowboys of their 11th straight winning season. Coach Tom Landry's 134-91-1 record is an even more remarkable 109-38-2 since the club's first winning season in 1966. Landry now ranks No. 2 among the NFL's winningest coaches and is No. 2 behind Don Shula's of those coaches who are still active.

McAdoo, McAdoo!

By the Associated Press

Denver met one of the National Basketball Association's top stars for the first time Thursday night and its honeymoon in its new surroundings ended.

Bob McAdoo, the league's scoring leader each of the past three seasons, scored 22 points and pulled down 25 rebounds for Buffalo as the Braves handed Denver its first loss in nine NBA starts, 105-94. It was the fourth straight victory for Buffalo, 6-4, which got off to a slow start when McAdoo missed the first four games with back problems.

In other games, Atlanta edged Portland 107-105, San Antonio topped the New York Nets 108-104, Phoenix outscored Indiana 108-98, and Kansas City stopped Golden State 94-86.

NBA fans are seeing McAdoo, who had 19 defensive rebounds, and the Braves perform differently this season in their bid to dethrone Boston as Atlantic Conference champion.

"McAdoo is passing more," said Buffalo Coach Tates Locke. "And we are depending on contributions from the bench. Each of our reserves has to understand he might be a big hero one night and not play much the next night. If they can accept that we can win."

David Thompson, who was 14-for-25, led all scorers with 36 points for Denver. He hit his first six shots in the final quarter as the Nuggets cut a 15-point deficit to four.

And Thompson, who averaged 26 points per game as an American Basketball Association rookie last season, still is adjusting to his new role as a guard after performing at forward in college and last season.

"It's a little different," Thompson said. "You have to handle the ball more and try to set up other players too. At forward I was mainly trying to get myself open. I drove more to the basket and used my quickness to get there before the defense set up. Now I've got to pull up for a jumper and use a pick."

Hawks 107, Trailblazers 105

John Drew fired a 24-foot jump shot with three seconds left to snap Portland's five-game winning streak. The offbalance shot gave Drew 25 points, but veteran Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 33 points.

"He (Drew) took a very difficult shot and made it," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay.

Spurs 108, Nets 104. George Gervin scored 30 points and former Nets player Larry Kenon 29 as San Antonio won the battle of former ABA clubs. New York's John Williamson led all scorers with 31.

Steerettes lose title to Midland

The Big Spring Steerettes crumbled Thursday night in Snyder and lost the district championship to Midland High in two games 15-12 and 15-2.

The girls have been second in district for two straight years behind the Midland team, losing to them on five occasions including once in each half last year, once in each half this year and in the play-off.

The Steerettes in their other games played great volleyball defeating Permian, Cooper, San Angelo, Lee, Abilene and Odessa High with ease. Two of the teams they defeated, in turn beat Midland, once each half causing the district tie.

The score of the first game was a close 15-12 and the second game was played like Big Spring had failed to come for the game, Midland won 15-2.

The girls froze up, became completely rattled, played out of position and returned one lone spike in the contest during the second match.

Coaches Nancy Deason and Wanda Ferguson were in Canyon today where they are serving as officials in the tournament there.

Athletic Director Don Robbins, who went to the contest said, "The girls have had a great season. But they froze up in Snyder Thursday night."

"We have an attitude in our school and community that is difficult to overcome where deep down our kids are convinced that they aren't supposed to win because we're the smallest school in the district."

"It shows up time and time again in crucial moments in our competition."

SO THERE — Rose Magers slams one back at San Angelo while Emily Boyd and Cathy Forman back her up. The little Japanese girl at the far right was tough competition both games this season when Big Spring met San Angelo. The Steerettes lost to Midland High Thursday night 15-12, 15-2 in Snyder in the championship play-off.

Undefeated, untied and unfortunate too

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Southwestern Louisiana is undefeated, untied and unfortunate.

Just about the time Southwestern was recovering from the stiff penalties ever imposed on a school by the National Collegiate Athletic

Lutherans host

Westmin(i)sters

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Unbeaten and top-ranked Texas Lutheran will entertain Westminster College of Pennsylvania in a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Division II football semifinal playoff game Nov. 20 at Seguin, Tex.

Texas Lutheran, two-time defending champions in NAIA Division II, meets an 8-1-0 Westminster team that won the Division II title in 1970 and was runner-up team in 1971.

Valley City College of North Dakota will meet an unnamed opponent in the other Division II semifinal playoff contest.

Association, another blow fell. The Ragin' Cajuns had to forfeit two games and were made ineligible for the Southland Conference championship.

In 1973, Southwestern got caught paying basketball players. The NCAA cancelled its basketball program for two years and put the school on probation for four years in all sports.

This year came the second jolt, despite a new athletic director, new coaches in basketball and football and a special faculty committee to oversee recruiting, scholarships and eligibility.

The Southland Conference found two ineligible players at SLU.

"It was just a question of us not being as careful as we should have been," said Athletic Director Toby Warren, hired to help get athletics off to a clean start after the 1973 disaster.

"The way these things are handled, Coach (Augie) Tammariello will present to me a list of the people he wants to sign. I will check the manual to see if — on the surface — everything looks okay, sign the list and pass it along to the committee," he added.

Attorneys to appeal White's death sentence

MCKINNEY, Tex. (AP) — The attorney for Robert Excel White says he will appeal White's case to the U.S. Supreme Court despite the condemned man's plea to be executed.

J.E. Abernathy, White's court-appointed attorney, said the appeal would be instituted although White has told a state district court judge he could not live with his crime.

White, 30, made his plea Wednesday to State District Court Judge Tom Ryan, who had allowed television crews to film the scene "because it might save somebody's life."

Ryan then set the execution date for Dec. 10 and told White:

"Any compassion that this court might show you, sir, is not directed at you, but at the three lives you destroyed."

With the same decision, Judge Ryan sentenced White's accomplice, James Owen Livingston, 23, to die on the same date "before dawn" at the Huntsville State Penitentiary.

Meanwhile in Dallas, 30 miles to the south, Judith Time, president of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said her group had not been contacted about White's case.

Mrs. Time said White "is asking to commit suicide. He's crying out for help."

Livingston stood before the judge after learning of his date with death and whispered: "I ain't got a word to say."

White and Livingston were convicted several months ago of the shooting death of Preston Broyles, 73, a grocery store attendant, on May 10, 1974. They were also charged with the shooting deaths of Billy St. John and Gary Coker, both 18, during the robbery that netted White and Livingston, and Livingston's brother, Gary Dale, a total of $60.

Gary Dale pleaded guilty and was sentenced to life in prison.

White, dressed in rumpled casual clothes, stood with his handcuffed hands in front of him as he told the judge: "I don't want to live with myself no more. I don't want no appeals...I want to drop all actions in all of it...I have finally put together how three people died and I'm the one who killed those people and it's a helluva thing to live with, sir. I am not going to ask forgiveness from no one because I don't deserve it. All I ask is for the court to grant me the nearest execution date possible and give Collin County justice as it should have."

Judge Ryan said he allowed the court proceedings to be televised because "it just might save somebody's life if capital punishment does deter crime...If one person was impressed by that, then it's worth it."

He added he felt no compassion. "It's a hideous crime...I just kept thinking what happened to those people."

White and Livingston are the third and fourth men to have execution dates set since the Texas death penalty was ruled constitutional earlier this year. There are 48 men on death row.

If White is executed, he will be the first person since 1964. Ernest Benjamin Smith was scheduled to die on Nov. 22, but the date was stayed by the U.S. Supreme Court pending appeals.

Auto rebate revival grows

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors' Chevrolet division has joined the auto rebate revival, saying it will pay $200 in cash to anyone who buys a new mini Chevrolet or subcompact Vega before Jan. 10.

The announcement Wednesday by Chevrolet — saddled with huge stocks of unsold Chevettes and Vegas — comes a day after smaller specialist American Motors began offering rebates of between $25 and $225 on 1977 cars and Jeeps to retired persons.

Chevrolet said under the program, which begins today, customers may choose either a direct factory rebate or use the $200 as part of a down payment on any 1976 or 1977 model purchased from an authorized dealer.

Officials searching for clues

Fire kills mom, dad, three kids

BELLMMEAD, Tex. (AP) — Fire officials searched today for the cause of the fire that swept through the trailer home where James Sanders had moved with his wife and their young three children only last week.

All five family members died Thursday when their mobile home turned into a blazing metal coffin in this Waco suburb.

"She screamed as much as her lungs could hold, then she just quit," a neighbor said of Mrs. Faye Sanders, 22, who died along with James, 40, and their children Janet, 3, Brenda Faye, 18 months and Alvin James, 6 months.

The Sanders family had come to Texas two months ago from Portland, Tenn. Officials said autopsies have been ordered on the parents in an effort to learn the cause of the fire.

Police said Ivey Lee Brown, 63, identified as a friend of the family, managed to escape the fire by kicking out a bedroom window.

Authorities said they did not question Brown immediately because he was still shaken over the tragedy. He also suffers from a heart condition.

"Foul play in this case has not been ruled out because we found a tremendous amount of blood near where the woman was found," Deputy Sheriff Vince Incardona said.

Officers said they found a .32-caliber pistol, reportedly kept by Sanders, and determined it had not been fired recently.

All five victims were pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace John Cavaniss.

Shirley and Jim Mason, who lived in a mobile home nearby said they heard glass breaking before they saw the flames.

"Fire and smoke were everywhere," Mrs. Mason said, "especially from that middle bedroom. One of the neighbors tried to get them out, but it exploded when he opened the door."

Bellmead Fire Marshal Walter Shelton said the James and Faye Sanders were found in the bedroom. "The baby was in the crib in the living room and the two and three-year-olds were in the front part of the trailer," Sanders worked as a service station attendant at a travel center on a nearby Interstate highway. Mrs. Sanders worked at the center as a waitress in the restaurant.

Seminar slated on diabetes

The Permian Basin Diabetes Association will present a seminar next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Midland Hilton Hotel. Two nationally recognized authorities in diabetes research will speak at the meeting, which is open to the public at no charge.

Dr. Jaime Davidson, Director of the Diabetes Control Center of Methodist Hospital in Dallas, will discuss "The Importance of Diabetes Education and Control." Dr. Rubin Bressler, Head of the Department of Pharmacology and Professor of Medicine at the University of Arizona Medical Center in Tucson, will speak on "The Action of Insulin."

Midland physician Dr. Ralph Greenlee, who heads the seminar committee, stated that the Permian Basin diabetes group is fortunate to obtain the services of these two well-informed experts on diabetes.

He urged all diabetics in the area and interested persons to attend the seminar Thursday evening. It is being held during National Diabetes Month in conjunction with the monthly meeting of the Midland County Medical Society.

Workmen's comp hiked

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Insurance Board has increased workmen's compensation rates by an average of 4.6 per cent, effective Jan. 1.

Insurance companies had requested a 10 per cent increase.

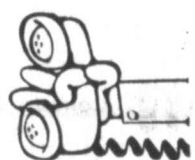

This will be the third increase in 10 months. Rates were jumped 7.1 per cent on March 1 and another 5.5 per cent in September, when maximum benefits increased automatically from $70 to $77 a week.

About $30 million in additional premiums will be generated by the increase.

Rates for manufacturing firms will rise 7.6 per cent, contractors 3.8 per cent and the "all other" category 5.2 per cent. Oil companies will receive a 5.2 per cent reduction.

Businessmen buy workmen's compensation insurance to pay for medical treatment, death benefits and part of the wage losses sustained by employees through on the job accidents.

Dentist penance

PROSSER, Wash. (AP) — A dentist whose drunken driving caused the deaths of two persons has been sentenced to spend one day a week for a year providing free dental care to the elderly.

"There is no way we can bring back these lives, but perhaps we can put your talents to use and get some goodness out of this tragedy," said Benton County Superior Court Judge Al Vencopal in announcing the unusual sentence for Dr. Edgar Mays.

Vencopal said Mays, who pleaded guilty to negligent homicide, could have been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

But, the judge said, "There are a lot of senior citizens on fixed incomes who need some dental work done and can't afford it. I want those people helped."

Mays, 45, of Kennewick, agreed to set aside one day each week to treat any elderly person who walks through his office door, providing even expensive items like dental plates. He estimated the free dentistry could be worth as much as $35,000 over the course of a year.

Vencopal said Mays must "get the word out" to senior citizens' organizations in the Tri-Cities area of southeastern Washington. He said he wants Mays' office filled on days set aside for the elderly, and will check to see that it is.

He also ordered Mays not to drink during a four-year probationary period.

Mays, 45, pleaded guilty in the deaths of Fred and Dixie Hanes, both 27, who were killed last May after his car struck the motorcycle on which they were riding.

Mays declined to comment on the unusual sentence.

But Mrs. Rex Vought, manager of the Kennewick Senior Citizens' Center, said "This is a wonderful thing."

"We all know prices for dental work are out of sight for most of our senior citizens. I thank Judge Vencopal for all of them."

Carter to get Army Engineers out of dam building business?

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Hanging over the heads of Army Engineers, which has a division here, is a threat to get them out of the business of building dams.

President-elect Jimmy Carter was quoted last summer as pledging to "get the Army Engineers out of the dam building business."

The implication was that he would radically change the engineers' function and, if the pledge is carried out, undoubtedly curb it sharply.

The Tulsa office is the control point for Engineers' operations in Oklahoma and parts of Texas, Kansas and Arkansas.

It has built, and is building, huge dams in the area and one of the major operations is the Oklahoma portion of the Arkansas Navigation System, extending downstream from near Tulsa to the Mississippi River.

Eleven projects are now in operation in the area, all costing millions of dollars.

The projects:

In Kansas, construction of the El Dorado and Big Hill dams is under way. There also is a flood protection project at Marion, Kan.

Oklahoma has the most in various stages of work:

Birch reservoir is virtually complete and is due to be impounded in December; Skiatook—work has been started with present concentration on relocation of Oklahoma 20; Caney Reservoir, to start in 1977; Copan, work under way along with relocation of U.S. 75; Clayton, in the early stages with work beginning;

Waurika, ready to be impounded in February or March, and Optima, work under way.

In Texas, a salt water research project has been started on the Red River southwest of Wichita Falls.

The Corps of Engineers traditionally is the construction agency for the Army and Air Force. Its civil construction has grown vastly, also, and they are now building throughout the country an estimated $7 billion worth of dams and more than $21.5 billion worth of other civil works projects.

Band going to contest

The Big Spring High School Steer Band travels to W.T. Barrett Stadium in Odessa Saturday afternoon for their annual U.I.L. contest. They march at 3:15 p.m. The band has made a first division 10 times in the past 13 years. The public is invited to attend the showings Saturday as there will be bands performing all day, and an hour for lunch is provided.

The band will also be performing their regular half-time show Friday night at the Steer-Bobcat game. This presentation will be the final show of the year for the band. It will consist of the "Steer Band Fanfare" in the opening of the show and the march of "Klaxon" will then be played while the band marches down the field in company fronts.

The Pride Drive twirlers will be the main attraction next when the band plays "That's The Way I Like It." The flags will be performing an awesome 28 count twirl during the number. "Prelude To Brians' Song" introduces the theme song from the hit novel and movie "Brians' Song."

The group will exit and close the show to the climaxing ending of this selection.

Ma Bell appeals

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says it is appealing a court ruling that the company must pay death benefits and a monthly pension to the widow of T.O. Gravitt, the one-time head of Bell's Texas operations.

The 4th Court of Civil Appeals Wednesday affirmed a lower court order that the telephone company could not withhold $80,000 in death benefits and a $587 monthly pension from Mrs. Oleta Gravitt.

A Bell spokesman said Thursday the company is asking the Texas Supreme Court to review the appellate decision.

"We want to avoid double jeopardy," the company spokesman said. "We feel payment should be withheld until resolution of the pending $29.2 million suit."

Gravitt committed suicide at his Dallas home in October 1974.

The multi-million dollar suit was filed in 1974 by the Gravitt's family and Bell executive James Ashley.

"Bell has every intention of paying Gravitt's widow all benefits due her under the employee benefit plan," the Bell spokesman said. "Our objective is simply to insure that Mrs. Gravitt, the company and its rate payers are treated fairly."

Low bid made by firm here

Price Construction Co., Big Spring, has entered the apparent low bid for grading, structures and surfacing on 8.9 miles of FM 8095 from FM 1379 to FM 2401 near Midkiff in Midland and Upton counties, the Texas Highway Department has announced. Price's bid was $244,994.

Fire death investigation

HOUSTON (AP) — One of six men injured in an explosion and fire at a chemical manufacturing plant has died in a local hospital.

Maurillo Gonzalez, 30, of Odessa, died Thursday of injuries suffered in the Thursday fire at the Rohn and Hass Texas Inc. plant.

Four of the other five injured were listed in critical condition.

Officials of the plant said an investigation into the cause of the explosion and fire was under way.

Energy Oil prices warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. diplomats, trying to head off any price increase by the oil exporting countries, are warning that higher oil prices would seriously hurt economies around the world by fanning inflation and stalling growth.

The oil exporting countries, affiliated in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), are scheduled to meet Dec. 15 in Qatar in the Persian Gulf, and oil prices are expected to be on the agenda.

U.S. diplomats say if OPEC boosts prices by 15 per cent, for example, it would mean a $5.5 billion increase in the American oil bill. That in turn would raise the U.S.

inflation rate from its current 6 per cent to 7 per cent and cut the economic growth rate of 4 per cent to 3.4 per cent.

Although the OPEC countries have not announced what price decisions will be made next month, there has been speculation price increases could go as high as 20 per cent. The Shah of Iran has suggested a 15 per cent hike.

Meanwhile, the Financial Times of London reported today that the 24-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development is forecasting a world recession for the second half of next year. This forecast by the organization, composed of the major Western industrialized nations and Japan, is aimed at persuading OPEC to moderate future oil price increases.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Robert Funseth argued against any oil price increases by asserting that it would hurt OPEC countries also.

Funseth declined comment on a report that high administration officials want to threaten Iran with a reduction in U.S. arms sales in retaliation for higher oil prices.

The report said that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has rejected such a step in the past but might reconsider now because of the deteriorating worldwide economic situation.

Consumer groups seek mandatory refunds vow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Challengers to new higher price ceilings on natural gas want court-enforced guarantees that an estimated $1.5 billion in annual increases will be returned to consumers if the price hikes are eventually rolled back.

Consumer groups and public representatives urged an appeals court on Thursday to require mandatory refunds of the money if the courts ultimately revoke the new nationwide gas rates adopted one week ago by the Federal Power Commission.

The price hikes would add about $15 to $18 to the

Sadat thinks he should wait

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat thinks he should wait six months and then meet with Jimmy Carter, according to the Middle East News Agency.

Sadat was quoted as suggesting to a group of U.S. congressmen that such a meeting — as well as Israeli withdrawal from land occupied since 1967 — should precede peace talks with the Israelis in Geneva. The agency said Tuesday that Sadat estimated the Carter administration will need at least six months from now before it will be able to turn to the problems of the Middle East. "After this time, Carter will be ready for us and we could sit together and then go to Geneva to talk with the Israelis about peace," Sadat was quoted as saying.

Military Heavy shelling starts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy shelling broke out between the Christian and Moslem sectors of Beirut today despite the presence of thousands of Syrian troops ringing the city to enforce the three-week-old cease-fire.

A crowded market in the Moslem sector received several direct hits that killed a dozen civilians, civil defense rescue teams on the spot reported.

Loudspeaker vans and jeeps toured the area urging the people to get off the streets. The Lebanese Arab army, made up of deserters from the Lebanese army, threatened to strike back "mercilessly" at the Christian half of the city unless the Syrians stopped the Christian bombardment. "Damn the Arab deterrent forces," said a young boy standing beside the blood of a victim. "Why don't they come here?"

Artillery in the Moslem sector began firing at random into the Christian sector.

It was the second major break in the truce in less than 24 hours. Savage house-to-house fighting broke out Thursday afternoon between Christian militiamen and radical Palestinians in the ravaged downtown commercial center of Beirut, causing many fires in the adjacent port area. Hospitals and militia sources reported more than 15 persons killed, one of the highest tolls since the cease-fire was declared Oct. 21.

Meanwhile, Syrian armored columns were consolidating their hold on the city's rear areas, tearing down street barricades and taking over snipers' nests, in preparation for the dispatch of forces to establish a buffer zone through the middle of the city.

Pierre Gemayel, whose Phalange party has the largest Christian militia, said the fighting and an attempt on the life of Christian politician Raymond Edde were "last-minute desperate attempts to sabotage the peacemaking process in Lebanon.

"But these attempts are doomed because 95 per cent of the Lebanese and Palestinians are for peace," Gemayel said. "The remaining five per cent of radicals can easily be dealt with. Their days are numbered."

Edde, an unsuccessful candidate for president last March, said he was getting out of his car Thursday afternoon when four men in a car pulled up and one of them opened fire with a submachine gun. A bullet grazed his hip.

Other Christian leaders, the leftist Lebanese Moslem command and spokesmen for Palestinian chief Yasser Arafat all denounced the assassination attempt and other cease-fire infractions. Arafat, the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was reported to have warned radical Palestinian groups that reject his leadership that his men would disarm them by force if they did not respect the truce and give up their heavy arms.

DFC won by Roser

Capt. Steven A. Roser of Webb AFB said he couldn't talk about the mission that earned him the Distinguished Flying Cross since "most of the work was highly classified."

That mission took place Nov. 24, 1973, in Southeast Asia and involved the helicopter recovery of reconnaissance aircraft.

The citation accompanying the honor said, "While flying an extremely hazardous mission, Captain Roser displayed exceptional airmanship and professional skill in securing intelligence information of vital importance to the nation's security."

Flying a CH-3 helicopter out of Thailand, Captain Roser and his crew's job was the mid-air recovery of unmanned reconnaissance planes known as "drones."

"The very nature of the work is hazardous under normal conditions," said the 28-year-old Massapequa Park, N.Y., native. "Throw in some bad weather and the danger really increases."

The captain has been at Webb five months and is a student in the Fixed Wing Conversion program. He said he is looking forward to piloting the C-141 out of Charleston AFB, S.C., after his class graduates Dec. 2.

NCOA names chairman

TSgt. Charles D. Back, from the Field Maintenance AGE shop, at Webb AFB was elected man of the Non Commissioned Officers Association Permanent chapter. He replaces TSgt. Harvey J. Schirmer Jr., who has a new assignment.

Back has been active in the chapter for well over a year. In other elections, Russell Buske will be a trustee and vice chairman to succeed Back. A permanent trustee and retired NCO, Mrs. Buske has been active in the NCOA many years.

The chapter plans to hold another auction late this month or early in December. Items for auction are needed. Those who would like to donate anything are asked to contact one of the members.

A chapter membership drive was announced. Either active duty or retired NCOs are eligible to belong to the 150,000-member strong fraternal benevolent association.

Council meets here Monday

The Base-Community Council will meet Monday at noon in the Webb AFB Officer's Club lounge for its regular bi-monthly business session.

The group will hear reports from each of the four standing committees which met earlier to address items within the scope of their charters.

One item expected to be decided is the date for the annual Christmas bingo party for company grade officers and cadets.
