College Building Committee Holds First Meeting Saturday

MILLION SET AS GOAL FOR SCHOOL FUND

Committees to Draft Plans Named at Meeting Here

ENDOWMENT NEEDED

Wichitans Pledge Support Of Big Fund For 4-Year School

The first committee meeting for the adoption of definite plans for the creation of a $1,550,000 four-year college fund for Wichita Falls, $750,000 of which will constitute an endowment, and the remaining $800,000 to be for buildings, will be held Saturday morning, according to an announcement Friday afternoon by J. A. Kemp, chairman of the building committee appointed Friday noon by Frank Kell, general chairman of the movement. Other committees, that on finance, headed by W. M. McGregor, and the endowment committee, with C. W. Snider as chairman, will meet early next week, it was announced.

Machinery designed for the raising before June 1, 1929, of more than $1,000,000 in Wichita Falls and vicinity with which to build and endow a four-year college here, toward which Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hardin this week offered $400,000, was set in motion at an open meeting of the business council of the chamber of commerce held at the Kemp hotel Friday noon with Frank Kell in charge, and with almost 200 civic leaders in this community present.

Mr. Kell's first action was the appointment of J. A. Kemp, W. M. McGregor and C. W. Snider as chairmen of building, finance and endowment committees, respectively. The building committee was charged with the work of making recommendations as to the number, size, style, arrangement, and detailed equipment of buildings for the proposed institution. Mr. McGregor's committee was asked to make an exhaustive study of plans for raising the funds required above the amount of Mr. and Mrs. Hardin's offer to erect the necessary buildings, and a finance plan for the proposed institution in operation. The endowment committee will study needs of the college for permanent income from endowment, and methods of securing such funds.

Committees Elected

A motion passed unanimously by the gathering authorized Mr. Kell's appointment of a nominating committee consisting of Charles I. Francis, Hubert Harrison, and Luther Hoffman. Upon their recommendation the following nominations were made and approved by vote of the meeting:

Theodore Roberts, 'Grand Old Man' Of Screen, Dies From Influenza Attack

Theo. Roberts

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 14. (UP)—Theodore Roberts, the "grand old man of the screen," famous for his characterizations of elderly financiers, died at his home here today after being stricken with influenza a week ago.

Roberts had been in poor health for the past five years, but was not seriously ill until stricken at the completion of a picture a week ago.

The death of Theodore Roberts takes from the American stage and screen one of its best beloved characters.

For over 10 years Roberts was the dean of character actors before the motion picture cameras of Hollywood, and during practically all of this time was with one company, the Paramount-Lasky corporation.

Born in San Francisco, Oct. 4, 1861, Roberts was educated at the California Military academy, in Oakland, and in the high schools of San Francisco. He was teaching elocution in the Golden Gate city when offered a small part with James O'Neil, then playing in "Cardinal Richelieu."

From the beginning, Roberts' rise on the stage was rapid. At the age of 20, he was playing leads with Fanny Davenport, and performed in Broadway productions.

The roles of "Simon Legree" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Svengali" in "Trilby" were two he made famous on the speaking stage.

In 1914 the motion pictures claimed Roberts. He signed a contract with Jesse L. Lasky, and went West, to Hollywood, where he afterwards made his home.

In three pictures in particular will Roberts' work long be remembered. In the title role in "Grumpy" as Moses in "The Ten Commandments" and in "The Old Homestead" he did his finest work, according to critics.

He formerly lived in a fine residence in Hollywood, and there he spent his leisure hours, or with his pedigreed dogs, his hobby.

He was an inveterate smoker of long black cigars. He liked company, and frequented the cafes of Hollywood and Los Angeles, generally with his wife and a number of young people, whom he always liked to have around him.

Roberts was an ardent sport fan, and attended ball games and athletic events whenever his work and health permitted. Rarely did he miss a week at the Hollywood American Legion boxing programs, reserving a ringside seat for the season.

Following the completeion of "The Ten Commandments," the veteran actor started a successful vaudeville tour, during a temporary shutdown of the Lasky Studios. His return to the stage was marked with welcomes in every city, and his marvelous ability as displayed in the skit further added to his historic renown.

During the weeks he was "on the road," in the tour, Roberts was much in demand as a luncheon speaker.

SENATE PASSES DAM MEASURE

Confusion Marks Voting Of Boulder Power Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. (US)—Amid scenes of great confusion, the senate this afternono passed the Boulder dam bill. The vote was 64 to 11.

The actual passage of the measure followed a parliamentary tangle during which the senate, thinking it was voting on final passage of the bill itself, was only voting to substitute the house bill for the senate measure. The vote at this time was 64 to 16.

A mighty cheer swept through the chamber as senators believing their seven-year fight for the great power and irrigation project on the Colorado river had been ended.

Another Vote Necessary

A motion to adjourn was heard in the chamber when Senator Norris of Nebraska jumped to his feet and explained to the confused members that another vote would have to be taken before the measure was passed. For a time apparently none of them was able to realize the situation that had arisen.

The senate's error was quickly righted, however, and a vote was called for final passage. And when this was taken it was found that only 11 members had voted against the measure.

In passing the senate, the bill entered its final legislative stage. It now goes back to the house for concurrence in senate amendments, after which it will go to President Coolidge for his signature. The White House has already let it be known that the measure will receive the president's approval.

Reed Leads Fight

An assault was led by Senator Reed, Republican, of Pennsylvania, who sponsored an amendment under which the secretary of the interior would have been notified that it was the sentiment of the senate that the government should build the dam and the power plant only after effort to have it done by states, municipalities or private interests had failed.

Senators Johnson, Norris and Borah led a spirited opposition to the Reed amendment, which after heated debate was defeated 55 to 24.

MRS. KETCHUM ISSUES DENIAL

Wichita Officers "Nice Gentlemen," She Says

Denying that she has involved city or county officers in her statements, Mrs. Rickey Ketchum, who ten days ago told of paying two federal prohibition agents for protection, Friday afternoon made the following announcement:

"Dear Friends and Patrons of Wichita Falls: There has been several statements printed in your home paper that have certainly been misrepresented. I have never condemned any of the officers in Wichita Falls, Texas. They are all very nice gentlemen and as far as I know, both county and city men are doing everything they can to keep a respectable county and city.

"Sincerely,

"Mrs. Rickey Ketchum."

Mrs. Ketchum was sentenced to one year and a day in the reformatory at Frankfort, Ky., a few minutes after she told Judge W. H. Atwell that she had paid $875 to two federal agents to keep her case from coming to trial. Judge Atwell stopped proceedings immediately and in open court dictated a letter to the United States district attorney in Fort Worth asking investigation of the charges.

DRINKERS FIND PROSPECTS DRY FOR HOLIDAYS

Mother Who Wrecked Saloon Sets Off Drive Against Rum

BOOZE PRICES GAIN

Federal Forces Shaken Up To Send Baccus Out Of Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14. (UP)—Baccus, the god of drink, found himself virtually dethroned here tonight as federal and local authorities concerted their efforts in one of the greatest wars on local bootleggers that has been known in the history of this midwestern city.

Addicts of strong drink seem to blame Mrs. Maude Wilson, proprietor of a coffee shop, for stirring up the cosmic dust that has thrown Kansas City into the throes of a booze clean-up. Had it not been for her hatchet, which on last Monday hacked up the interior of a soft drink stand alleged to have been dispensing liquor that was wrecking her family, the city would be going on peacefully and quietly, they contend.

Prices Soaring

As it is the city is under the surveillance of eagle-eyed prohibition forces and already Christmas cheer is selling at far above par in the marts of bootleg trade in this blushing city out here adjoining Carry Nation's own plainslands.

Tonight, in the throes of lashing prohibition enforcement, drinking men knuckle their eyes and predict a city as dry as the Sahara or Death Valley by Christmas for out of old prohibition enforcement Washington tonight has come the bootlegger's challenge, an answer to his defiance at law. It is a challenge laden with no good tidings.

THE LOCAL SITUATION

It was a pre-Christmas clean-up of the police station vault, according to Chief of Police Frank Burns.

The wisky is all labelled and is to be used in federal cases.

The beer has been used as evidence in vagrancy cases in the lower courts.

Moving Pictures of Santa Claus Arrive Here; Show at 10 Today

The Record News can make this definite announcement this morning, for the moving pictures, taken by Capt. F. E. Kleinschmidt, leader of the expedition to the home of Santa Claus, arrived in Wichita Falls shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night. The pictures were brought here from Detroit by a special speed plane. "Red" Garland, pilot of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company, brought the pictures to Detroit and chartered the special plane after Captain Kleinschmidt, with Santa Claus in his plane, had been forced down in Canada by a broken wire.

Whether Captain Kleinschmidt has resumed his flight with Santa Claus to Detroit was not known early Friday night. The last message from the captain, sent by wireless from his plane in Canada, said:

"Repairs on plane just about completed. Santa Claus in fine spirits. Tell children of Wichita Falls we will arrive at Wichita Air Transport field not later than 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon."

Pictures Praised

Kellogg Offers Aid to Avert War As Bolivia's Fervor Begins to Cool

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (US)—Secretary of State Kellogg, as chairman of the Pan-American conciliation conference, today held out an olive branch in the form of twin telegrams sent to the foreign ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay. These messages contain the text of the recommendations proposed by the special committee on arbitration and unanimously approved by the entire conference in its second plenary session this morning.

Favorable reception of the proffer of mediation contained in the despatches is expected to dissipate the spectre of war between the two Latin-American republics which has been hanging over the conference since its inception last Monday.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 14 (UP)—The tension which has gripped Bolivia for more than a week after the first crisis in the Gran Chaco boundary dispute with Paraguay began to alleviate today.

Although outbursts of patriotic and martial feeling continued sporadically, there has been a noticeable easing-off of the war spirit in the last 24 hours.

90 MINUTES REQUIRED FOR DALLAS TRIP

Daily Passenger Service Inaugurated by Wichita Firm

CHRISTEN PLANE

Akin and Harrison to Speak At Ceremony at Air Field

Daily passenger service by air, a new phase in aviation which is spreading rapidly to all the larger cities of the country, becomes a reality in Wichita Falls Saturday morning when the Stinson Junior cabin monoplane Faith of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company takes off from Staley field on the Henrietta road on the first round trip flight to Dallas, inaugurating the first service of this kind for either city.

Stunts at Airport

Capt. W. A. (Billy) Williams, one of the foremost aces of the war who was shot down several times but who brought down his share of German planes, will entertain the crowds at the field with some stunts he learned over there. Williams, who is visiting at the field, consented last night to do the stunts, according to Fulcher Armstrong.

Captain Williams was in France during almost the entire war, having joined the English air forces, later transferring to the American air army.

The schedule for the new line calls for only one and a half hours for the trip each way, including the stop at the Municipal airport at Fort Worth, and was designed by the management in the belief that the inter-city service permitting several hours for business between trips would prove useful to many local business men.

Daily Service

For the present at least, 9 a. m. will be the hour for departure from Wichita Falls, the plane arriving in Dallas before 10:30. Quick bus service, it was said, connects arriving plane passengers with the uptown district, giving between four and five hours which may be used in Dallas before the return trip which starts at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The schedule calls for return to the local field at 4:30 p. m. It was said by Fulcher Armstrong, president of the transport company, that an earlier hour may be set for departure if the wishes of passengers call for such a change.

Christening ceremonies for the Faith will begin Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, with Miss Dorothy Katharine Allison breaking a bottle of Lake Kemp water upon the ship. Mayor J. W. Akin and Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, will make brief addresses, after which the three participants in the ceremony will be taken for a short flight over the city.

Fort Worth Reception

It is expected that the flight to Dallas will start about 10:30. A stopover of more than an hour is planned in Fort Worth, where a reception program has been planned. The plane will probably reach Dallas about 1 o'clock, and will leave there at 3 o'clock. Dudley Rider, chief pilot at Staley field, will pilot the Faith on its flight Saturday. Besides Fulcher Armstrong, president of the company, S. M. Goss Jr., of the chamber of commerce aviation committee, and Louis Hamlett of The Record News and Daily Times will make the trip.

Regular passenger service will begin Sunday. Round trip tickets are $21, with a fee of $16 for one way trips, to either Fort Worth or Dallas.

A tri-motored Ford plane with accommodations for 16 passengers will land at the field early Saturday morning, it was said, and if 16 tickets over the new airline are sold by the hour of departure, the huge ship will accompany the Stinson plane on the opening flight to and from Dallas. Some tickets already had been sold Friday night, and it was expected that by taking off time Saturday morning the remaining tickets will be taken.

Opening of passenger air service here Saturday is hoped by civic leaders to be the forerunner of mail and express transportation at an early date.

'Tillie Oakley,' Whose Sad Story Brought Tears, Was a 'Brain Child'

PARIS, Ky., Dec. 14. (AP)—News dispatches a few days ago told the pathetic story of little Tillie Oakley, under a physician's care for shock induced by the information that there isn't a Santa Claus.

Well, everyone can dry their tears now.

There isn't any Tillie Oakley either.

The story was that Tillie, 9-year-old daughter of tenants on a mountain tobacco farm near here, was convinced by a more sophisticated schoolmate that Santa was a myth. Her illusions shattered, she suffered a physical breakdown and had to be placed under medical care.

The touching story was given newspapers and press associations by a country correspondent for Kentucky papers and was printed widely in this country and Canada. The day after it was published telegrams and letters began pouring into Paris addressed to Tillie Oaktures shortly after midnight, and declared the film of Santa Claus and his home one of the most remarkable ever made, considering the conditions under which it was taken. Mr. Federer will have one of his best operators in charge of the picture show Saturday morning, while various city and civic officials will help make the children at home and explain the pictures. Boy Scouts of the city, under the direction of Scout Executive Frank Creighton, will act as ushers at the show, and will help handle the big crowd of children expected at the party.

The entire program at the auditorium is free, and children 12 years of age and under are invited to see the pictures of Santa Claus.

Letters Started Hunt

The pictures are being shown here as the result of a letter contest started by The Record News and Daily Times in which prizes were offered for the best letters on "Why I Believe in Santa Claus." So much interest was created by the contest that the two Wichita Falls papers decided to send an expedition to the North Pole to determine once for all whether or not Santa Claus actually exists. Captain Kleinschmidt was secured to head the expedition, and so successful was he in his undertaking that he not only found Santa Claus and took motion pictures of his work, but was able to persuade the genial old fellow to pay a personal visit to Wichita Falls. Hundreds of letters from Wichita Falls and Northwest Texas children, expressing confidence in and love of Santa Claus, were delivered to him at the North Pole by Captain Kleinschmidt, and helped decide the good saint to come down here for a visit.

A message from "Red" Garland at Detroit, received late Friday afternoon, said he would wait there for the arrival of Captain Kleinschmidt and Santa Claus, in order that the expedition would return to Wichita Falls with all members present. Garland expressed confidence that Captain Kleinschmidt and Santa Claus will have plenty of time to get to the airport here by Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Plans are now being made for the reception of the members of the expedition, and a great welcome to Santa Claus. All the children of the city are invited to the airport to see Santa Claus land, as well as to the picture show today. C. C. Bunnenberg, head of the city park department, will be on hand with his Playground band, composed of children of the city, to play special music for the welcoming. City officials will officially greet the old fellow here, and then after he shakes hands with as many children as possible at the airport, he will be taken for a tour of the entire city. Further plans for his reception will be announced in The Daily Times Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning.

Eskimos Helped Santa Claus Expedition

The above picture, taken by Capt. F. E. Kleinschmidt, shows how the Eskimos live in the houses of ice in the far north. Pictures such as this one, as well as of Santa Claus' castle and shops, will be shown in the moving pictures here Saturday morning. The Eskimos were of great help to Captain Kleinschmidt in reaching Santa's home.

ley, assuring her that in all truth there is a Santa and urging her to get well in time for his visit on Christmas eve. Packages followed.

But search by the men who help Santa distribute his gifts and messages of good cheer failed to locate the poor little girl, and the Associated Press, which had accepted the original story in good faith, instituted a separate investigation, sending a reporter out among the tobacco farms to find little Tillie.

She wasn't there. She never had been there so far as any resident could remember. There may be a Santa Claus, and likewise there may be a Tillie Oakley, but of the two it would be easier to establish the existence of Saint Nick.

Postmaster Wilmot now has a dozen packages, more than 125 letters, many of them air mailed and registered, for Tillie, and there are a score of telegrams. From 15 states and several parts of Canada these kindly messages have come, and they are coming still.

A Great Discovery

When Pasteur discovered, in 1862, that the infection of wounds was caused by malignant bacteria, he performed a service of inestimable value to mankind. Since then medical science has been producing better and better antiseptics, to kill these germs that may enter the smallest cut and give us diseases such as typhoid, tuberculosis and lockjaw. Now, all you have to do to be sure that these dreadful germs will not infect a wound, is to wash that wound, however small, thoroughly with Liquid Borosone, the modern antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borosone, in a size to fit your needs and purse, from Miller's Drug store.—Adv.

(US)—While crowds of holiday shoppers passed unconcernedly, four bandits today held up the firm of Konvalinka and Weiss, loaded $30,000 worth of fur coats into a truck they had placed at the sidewalk and drove away. The robbery took place but a few steps from crowded Fifth Avenue.

CITY'S LEADERS BACK COLLEGE

Million Set As Goal Of College Endowment

Finance committee: J. T. Harrell, J. J. Perkins, J. S. Bridwell, John Hirschi, N. H. Martin and J. I. Staley.

Endowment committee: R. O. Harvey, J. C. Mytinger, Reese S. Allen, L. H. Cullum, Roy B. Jones.

Immediate organization of these three committees was urged by Mr. Kell with instructions given to prepare reports and recommendations which are to be presented within the next few days to the committee of six on the Hardin proposal appointed last Tuesday. Associated with Mr. Kell on this committee are R. E. Huff, W. B. Hamilton, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, J. E. Harwell, and O. L. Clark, the last two named being residents of Burkburnett.

A mass meeting of all citizens of the community interested in the project will be called, Mr. Kell said, as soon as possible after the four committees together have determined the definite plans of procedure which they will ask the people of this section to adopt for the creation of the college here.

Kell Presides

Introduced after luncheon by Luther Hoffman, chairman of the business council, with the statement that the Friday meeting was "the most important convocation of citizens in the entire year," Mr. Kell assumed charge of the meeting and said:

"We have met here to rejoice with each other and to thank Mr. and Mrs. Hardin for what I consider the most generous offer ever made to the citizens of Wichita Falls and the Wichita Falls community." At this point Mr. Kell introduced Mr. Hardin who was given a rising vote of thanks following a considerable ovation.

The speaker recited several incidents of his association with Mr. Hardin during the early days of Burkburnett's development, stating that the $200 given by the pioneer farmer of those days toward bringing the railroad into his community was in comparison a much larger gift than that offered now for a four-year college.

"Mr. Hardin has always been one of the county's most dependable and faithful citizens," said Mr. Kell.

That the promoters of the movement for the college could not keep faith with the donors of Burkburnett nor with the boys and girls of this community unless the institution were given adequate financial backing to definitely assure its success, was emphasized by Mr. Kell. Reference was made to the history of other institutions which became handicaps to the cities in which they were located because they had been started on an unsound financial basis. Oxford university in England, the Peabody Institute of Nashville, Tenn., and Rice Institute at Houston, were ponted out as illustrations of successful educational institutions which perpetuate the names of their heaviest supporters because of the endowment funds having been sufficient at the outset to guarantee adequate income.

Assured Income

"If the raising of $400,000 to match Mr. and Mrs. Hardin's offer were all that the situation required, this meeting would not have been called, for that matter would have been taken care of within three minutes," said Mr. Kell in announcing his opinion that a sum of $750,000 for endowment, above the $800,000 stimpulated for physical equipment, is requisite to the success of the project. It would be a mistake, he said, to start operation with less than $40,000 of assured income annually, and later that sum probably would be $60,000,000.

Following Mr. Kell's address and appointment of committees, Mr. Hoffman resumed charge of the meeting, and called upon a large number of leaders in various lines of civic activity for brief responses. Gratitude and commendation for Mr. Kell's leadership, and a confident determination to accomplish the goal which he had set before them, marked the expressions of each speaker.

Dr. J. W. Cantwell, R. E. Huff, J. A. Kemp, W. M. McGregor, J. B. Marlow, N. H. Martin, C. W. Snider, Reese S. Allen, W. B. Hamilton, J. T. Harrell, E. H. Eddleman, C. P. Engelking of Electra, Mayor J. W. Akin, J. E. Harwell of Burkburnett, Mrs. T. H. Lawson and W. B. Chauncey were among those called upon by Mr. Hoffman.

Reference to Religion Would Be Barred

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. (UP)—A bill making it a federal offense to refer to any candidate's religion in an election campaign, if intended to defeat the candidate, was introduced today by Representative Black, Democrat, New York. Penalties for violation of the law would be three years imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

Soap Suds Poured On Fire Fighters

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 14. (AP)—Clouds of soap suds enveloped firemen today as they fought a blaze in the plant of Lever Brothers, soap manufacturers.

Tons of liquid soap were let loose and formed huge clouds of suds when water was directed on the blazing tower.

The damage was estimated at $100,000.

Six Hidalgo County Elections Contested

Clarendon Achieves Almost Entire Goal Set Out for 1928 by C. of C.

By G. L. BOYKIN
Secretary Clarendon Chamber of Commerce

CLARENDON, Texas, Dec. 14.—In reviewing the activities of the chamber of commerce for a past year's work one readily finds the many lines of endeavor that such an organization is asked to cooperate with and take a part in helping. Some of them are worthwhile, and are engaged in, while others have no bearing on such an organization and cannot be undertaken, often to the everlasting disappointment of and sometimes enmity of the proponent.

The local chamber foresaw much of this multiplicity of demand on the local organization, and for that reason and in order to have a more definite plan of work for the year 1928 set about to adopt a yearly plan of work. This plan was adopted and included 10 main items that should claim the attention of the local organization for the year. It is interesting to note in making a survey of the year's accomplishments that the majority of these projects have been carried to completion or progress made in their direction.

The first item on the plan, the promotion of farm dairying, has been followed to the extent that 40 farmers were taken to the South Plains show at Plainview, three or four carloads of dairy cows were sold here, two Donley county farmers have entered the Panhandle Master Dairy farmers' contest, and at present the organization is cooperating with the county demonstration agent in providing prizes for contests including dairying.

Dairy Promotion

The second item in the plan was the establishment of a poultry hatchery in Clarendon. Frank White Jr., of this city has announced that his hatchery will be in operation by Jan. 1, and that he has bought a 52,000 egg capacity plant.

The third item, the promotion of farm diversification, better seed and a live-at-home program has been encouraged by the providing of pure bred seed for farmers over the county, from which many prizes were won at fairs including a first prize on kafir at the State Fair of Texas. Again prizes have been provided for by the chamber of commerce in a canning and gardening contest conducted under the supervision of Miss Harvey Thompson, county demonstrator.

The fourth item, including the sponsoring of a county fair, and exhibits to the Tri-State and Dallas fairs was carried out in full, and enough prize money taken to pay all expenses of the exhibits.

The fifth item, that of co-operating with the county agent has been fully carried to the best ability of the chamber. Prizes were awarded the winner in the dress contest, two girls were sent to Dallas to the state encampment, besides other work in this connection mentioned above.

The sixth item, the promotion of paved roads in this county and better lateral roads, has been followed up to the extent of presenting a petition for one election, securing some state work on bad spots in highway 88, being largely instrumental in getting a definite routing for highway 5 through the county and at present co-operating in a county movement to work out a plan suitable to the people for a county system of roads.

On item seven practically nothing has been done as to curbing and sidewalk building in the city, but the houses of the town have all been numbered, and the streets renamed as a move toward getting free mail delivery for this city. At this time work is going forward with the city commission to set names of streets at all intersections.

A yard and city beautiful contest was carried out in keeping with the next item on the plan and prizes were awarded to six winners in this work.

Item nine, a city auditorium for Clarendon, has not been given much attention but it was deemed that very little could be done in this matter at present. The chamber is represented on a committee of local organization representatives to work on this plan and will be ready at such time as the committee deems advisable.

Band Maintained

The last item, the maintenance of the local band has been fully cared for; paying the bandmaster's salary and sending the band to represent this city to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Fort Worth, the district convention at Pampa, and to various other places including several trips to county communities to help out with their programs of various nature, and in boosting the county fair.

Besides the above items the secretary has represented the city at various meeting of interest, has given his time in the spring to terracing a number of farms in the county, and has been otherwise useful in the community when possible. The organization has furnished expenses for a broadcasting program at Amarillo, co-operated with local merchants in the staging of a number of agricultural plays, met and requested the commissioners court for a county agent, and has taken part in other activities to various degrees.

The annual banquet for the organization this year will be held on the night of Jan. 15. At this time a new plan will be submitted for the coming year and in the face of one of the best years for the organization a much better year than the last is to be expected. At the banquet four new directors will be elected to take the place of G. G. Kemp, J. T. Patman, J. R. Porter and Joe Goldston making up the seven directors with C. J. Douglas, H. J. Edington and O. C. Watson who will serve for the year 1929.

FLOYD COUNTY TURKEYS WIN

Woman Carries Off Prizes With 12 Birds

Special to The Record News.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Dec. 14.—Convincing evidence that the production of pure bred turkeys both for breeding and marketing purposes is profitable, was demonstrated this week when Mrs. L. C. Wheeler of the Blanco community returned from the Slaton Poultry show with a beautiful loving cup, several dollars in cash and a number of ribbons which were awarded her as prizes on the 12 turkeys she entered in that show. The turkeys entered by Mrs. Wheeler were a part of the flock she has raised the past year, after marketing a number of birds in addition to selling several of the best for breeding purposes.

Of the 12 birds entered in the Slaton show by this farm woman the following prizes were awarded: First, second and third young tom; first, second and third pullet; first, second and third young trio; second old tom, second old hen. In addition to these premiums a display of eggs shown by Mrs. Wheeler was awarded first place, and a loving cup was presented her for the best display of turkeys. The birds, which are of the Giant Goldbank Bronze variety, originated from the well known flock of Mrs. J. D. Christian of the same community.

For several years, since the establishment of a few pure bred flocks of turkeys, chickens and other stock, there has been an opinion among many farmers that the cost and care of pure bred stock did not prove profitable, but the record made by Mrs. Wheeler tends to disprove this fact.

Beginning last year with the purchase of a $25 tom from Mrs. J. D. Christian and spending $38 for seven hens and estimating the expense of feeding the turkeys at $100 for the entire year, which includes all the feed bought, but not the home grown feed, sour milk, etc., Mrs. Wheeler now has a large flock of standard turkeys and has realized $169 from the sale of her birds both for market and breeding purposes. The sales included 14 hens at $6 each, one gobbler at $25, two gobblers at $15 each, and three gobblers at $10 each.

2,000 Poor Persons to Eat Christmas Because Al Took State

BOSTON, Dec. 14. (UP)—Because Gov. Alfred E. Smith carried Massachusetts in the presidential election, 2,000 needy persons will enjoy free Christmas dinners.

This will result from a wager between Ward J. Frost and Edward A. Filne, Boston, merchants. Frost, who picked Hoover to carry the state, has turned over the necessary funds to the Salvation Army.

In making the bet, Frost said: "The Salvation Army will need the money if Smith wins."

OVER BILLION FOR HIGHWAYS

Federal Funds 8 Per Cent Of Total Expended

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. (AP)—During the past eight years the country as a whole has spent from one to one and a half billion dollars annually for highway purposes, the federal government contributing but about eight per cent of the total.

This annual expenditure for roads was related by Thomas M. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, at a hearing of the house appropriations agriculture sub-committee. He added that there is an insistent and growing demand for an increase in federal support of the highway program.

MacDonald said that the federal government paid out $80,802,232 in federal aid for the construction last year of 8,134 miles of highways. The federal aid highway system of about 185,000 miles is more than half complete, he added.

New York received $5,061,107, he reported, and Texas $4,867,655 in federal aid during the past fiscal year. Iowa was third, having received $3,507,729.

Kinks Taken Out of Dal-Paso Highway

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Dec. 14.—The state highway department is now busy grading and shortening all bends and crooks in the Dal-Paso highway west of here. With a few more touches this route will be only 70 miles to the state line west with not a single sharp crook or turn in it. The road is in excellent condition at this time and, according to officials, it is hard for motorists to keep from breaking the state law regulating speed on this road. The 18 miles immediately west of the state line in New Mexico is being surveyed and will be put in first class condition as soon now as possible. This highway is now badly needed for connection to the new oil fields at Hobbs and Nadeen.

Lamesa C-C Joins in New Highway Project

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Dec. 14.—The highway department of the local chamber of commerce is considering the opening of a new highway which will pass from Vernon through Crowell, Guthrie, Spur, Post, Lamesa and Midland. The demand for this new route is felt by tourists of the North and Middle West who want to travel the nearest possible route to the Carlsbad Caverns, and by oil interests of Oklahoma who desire to reach the Midland fields. It is felt here that this new route will be one of the most popular and needed highways that this section of the state could build at this time, due to the demand as mentioned above.

FRUIT STEAMER CREW TELLS OF BANANA RIOT

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. (INS)—The United Fruit liner Santa Marta arrived here today, the first ship to come from the zone of the Columbian banana trade uprising, bearing the story of how 40,000 banana workers disarmed the first contingent of Columbian troops who opposed them and threw them into improvised jails.

The strikers burned and derailed several freight trains and cut off telephone and telegraph communication, officers of the ship said.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

This would be a lovely Christmas present for Dina. A nightgown ensemble. The nightgown is slip length, of course, the hem cut in points. Both the gown and the coat are of white radium with bands, scalloped edging and a monogram of violet. Cherie is so glad to have Dina's Christmas present settled and decided.

Sue likes frillier things. Sue ought to like this ensemble of pale blue georgette trimmed with ecru Alencon lace. You'd think no other lace had ever been invented, from the popularity of Alencon this year. Those pleats down the front—you never can get a laundress to put them in right. But that will be Sue's problem, not Cherie's.

Cherie bought herself a nightgown ensemble, too. She couldn't resist it. It's of pale pink crepe de chine trimmed with Alencon lace and with the further ornament of applique flowers of the silk over the lace, just in the front of the gown. Both Sue and Dina admire it tremendously. "I'd love one myself," says Sue, "if I ever had time to have breakfast in bed." Dina adds, "It almost makes me sorry that I've just bought myself a supply of pajamas." That would seem to be that, but it's quite possible that Cherie will decide to be firm with them and will do the ensembles up in tissue paper and red ribbon and offer them anyway.

Is the Care of an Adopted Baby Worth the Trouble? Why the Girl Who Lets a Man Sponge on Her Turns Him Into a Waster—Proper Title for a Father.

Dear Miss Dix—Will you please tell me what you think of adopting children. My husband and I are very well off financially and we are very happy together, but we have no children and are thinking of adopting a little boy from an orphan's home. It is a big step to take and we don't know what to do. Of course, we could spend our money on ourselves having a good time and wouldn't have the care of a baby, but we both love children. What would you advise?

—DOROTHY.

Answer: Whether you would get more fun out of a baby or a new car, whether you would find more real happiness in walking the colic or jazzing in a cabaret, are questions that only you yourself can answer. It all depends on how strong is the maternal and paternal urge in your natures and how greatly you long for the feel of a baby's head on your breast and the sound of little feet pattering across the floor.

It is a certainty that if, as the poet says, "a baby in the house is a well spring of joy," it is also the source of endless work and care. Raising one is about the most strenuous job that any woman can undertake, especially in these times when every infant has to be brought up by the book and every young mother becomes a slave to vitamins and germs and especially prepared menus and sterilized bottles and what not.

When God sends a woman a baby of her own He sends along with it the love that makes every sacrifice she makes for her child a sacred joy. She doesn't mind standing over the cooking stove for hours cooking spinach and carrots to a pulp. She gets a thrill out of washing dirty little paws and wiping dirty little noses.

She would rather stay at home and watch little Johnny or little Mary sleeping and breathing just as natural as a grown person to going to a play or a party. When you adopt a child, however, you do not start out with this miraculous mother complex, and so before you take one it is well to count the cost.

You will not be free to go and come as you please. You have to get your exercise pushing a perambulator instead of playing golf. Perhaps you will have to do with fewer hats, because keeping up a baby is one of the most expensive luxuries in which any one can indulge.

So that's that. On the other hand, there is no denying that there is no other pet in the world so interesting and fascinating as a baby. It beats a Pekinese or a parrot all to pieces, for every day it performs a new trick, and just to watch its little mind develop is a never-ending source of amazement and interest.

No man or woman can see a little child's adoring eyes turned on them with worshipful devotion and feel its little clinging hands tightening on theirs without having everything that is best in their nature roused.

Certainly no one can do a nobler act than to take a little, forlorn, homeless, nameless, loveless child and give it all the blessings of which a cruel fate has deprived it. It is righting one of the great wrongs of the world, and that is enough to square one's account in the judgment day.

It is changing a whole life. It is giving a human being a chance, giving it a home to develop in, love to sweeten it, respectability, a place in the sun. What deed can be more far reaching for the good of humanity than that?

Of course, you take the risk of the child's heredity, but there are mighty few of us who haven't some relative that we hope and pray that our own children won't take after. Of course, you run the hazard that the adopted child won't turn out all right, but neither can you be certain that your own children will be all that you want them to be.

You have an equal chance that your adopted child, if you bring it up properly, will grow into a fine man and be a solace and a comfort to you in your old age.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—When my father died he left me a comfortable fortune. I am in love with the dearest person in the world, and his being penniless only makes me love him the more and desire to make life easier for him, but I am afraid that I am spoiling him by what I am doing. When we go out together I pay all expenses. We go in my car, I pay for the gasoline and oil, and even the tips for the waiter. When I give him the money to pay for things he forgets to give me back the change. I do not wish him to spend money on me that he cannot afford, but it has got to such a pass that he never pays for anything and I fear that I am doing him more harm than good. What do you think?—JANE ANN.

Answer: I think your young man has developed into a first-class dead-beat and that you are demoralizing him. Perhaps no man can resist taking the easiest way and sponging on a woman who lets him, but it is bad for his morale. It makes him a grafter and kills his self-respect.

That is where the trouble comes in when the woman holds the purse instead of the man. It subverts the law of nature which intends that the man should be the provider and not the woman; that the man should be the giver and the woman the receiver.

When this order is reversed it invariably spells disaster. King Cophetua may marry the beggar maid and all goes well, but the millionairess cannot marry a pauper without bringing down misery upon them both. You never see the poor husband of a rich wife who is happy and contented. No love could withstand a man's having to ask his wife for carfare.

There are thousands upon thousands of wives who have to go to work to support worthless husbands, and while the men are craven enough to live upon their wives' earnings, they hate them for it and invariably flitreat them. They are dogs that bite the hand that feeds them.

My earnest advice to you is to quit financing this young man and let him do a little of the spending himself. You say he is the "dearest" person in the world. Evidently "dear" is the right word, but he is costing you too much if he costs you your respect for him.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What is the proper thing to call one's father? The other day I bought a birthday card and it had on it "To Dad," and my father refused to receive it. He said that one could call any old man "Dad," whereas, he was my father and wanted to be recognized as such. I intended no disrespect, but he seems very hurt about it.

—AN ANXIOUS DAUGHTER.

Answer: Probably "Father" is the most dignified appellation to give to one's father, but it is all a matter of taste. Personally, I like "Dad," because it is so informal and indicates such a spirit of comradeship between father and children.

I have never known youngsters to call their father "Dad" unless he was pals with them. Children who call their father "Dad" can talk over any old thing with him on equal terms, whereas they are likely to stand in awe of the august being they address as "Father."

If, however, your father wants to be called "Father," you should surely give him the title that he prefers.

During the luncheon the table was centered with a miniature Christmas tree. Appointments were tiny bride's slippers holding a little bride wearing a veil of tulle.

Men and women injuring themselves by starvation diet

THE passing fad of dieting to reduce weight is permanently injuring the health of girls, women and men in the opinion of eminent medical authorities. How dangerously serious dieting has become may be judged from the following statement by a famous doctor. He says: "Many young women to whom motherhood has been denied have come to me to learn the reason why. I have to tell them, only too often, that they have sacrificed their children for the sake of a boyish figure." This doctor goes on to show that many adults, both men and women, do injury to themselves by starvation diets from which they can never recover.

It is time to call a halt in this dangerous practice. Whoever said that two persons could have the same standard of weight? Medical science now declares that standardization in the weight of human beings is impossible, as well as undesirable.

Frederick City Council Takes First Step in Securing Adequate Airport

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Dec. 14.—The procurement of a municipal airport and the enlargement of the sewage disposal plant met with the approval of the city council at its last regular meeting. Both projects would be paid for from a bond issue, but details such as the calling of an election and the amount will be decided at the next regular meeting. J. A. Carr, chairman of the airport committee, which has been functioning the past few months, reported an option had been secured on an 80-acre tract a mile north of Frederick. The tract is "L" shaped, the west 40 acres belonging to J. A. Burt and the east part is the property of C. C. Bohannan. Burt's tract is located on the farm where his lake is located.

Burt and Bohannan each asks $150 an acre for their land and the council voted unanimously to accept the proposition. Authorities from Post field who inspected the various sites which were offered recommended this 80-acre tract. It was pointed out that this land would provide a 2600-foot runway north and south, 650 feet wide, and an east and west runway 1,320 feet long by 660 feet wide. Also a northeast to southwest runway of 2,500 feet can be had at the foot of the L. The above combinations would enable an aviator to handle a plane in almost any kind of weather, it was stated.

A written report was given by Col. W. L. Benham of the Benham Engineering company, this city's consulting engineers, in which Benham explained the construction needed for giving Frederick an adequate sewage disposal plant. The present disposal plant is inadequate, he explained, because it has been re-arranged and the chlorination system can no longer function.

His remedy provides a new system of the latest methods for sewage disposal, retaining only that part of the present plant that can be used to advantage.

FLIVVER PLANE IDEA DROPPED

Ford Says Small Aircraft Not Yet Practical

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. (AP)—Henry Ford said here today he had abandoned his experiments with a light airplane which might be used as commonly as automobiles because he believed it impractical at this time. He predicted, however, that the "flivver plane," would become a reality as soon as the public became sufficiently "air-minded" to insure it success.

Mr. Ford was questioned by newspaper men before being formally introduced at the International Civil Aeronautics conference, and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was an interested spectator as reporters fired questions about aeronautics at the manufacturer.

"It will be necessary to develop an engine of high performance and very light weight before the light plane will become practical," Mr. Ford said, adding that he believed this would be accomplished as soon as the demand was great enough.

"Will the next 25 years witness as great a development in aviation as the past 25 years?" he was asked.

"I think we can expect greater progress in the next ten years than we have seen in the last 25," Mr. Ford answered.

"Along what lines will the development be made?"

"It may be in the lighter than air or in heavier than air, or more possibly in a combination of the two. I have thought for some time that wings might be put on our Zeppelins to give advantage."

The motor king said that he expected radical changes in the design of airplanes within the next 10 years, and that the present design is far from becoming stabilized. He declared he was investigating the possibilities of the oil burning engine for airplanes and said he felt the airplanes' future depended upon its development.

The eye of an eagle can see a man, but not a king; neither can man's unaided vision discern kingliness of character.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—It is a code among many residents of the city, especially those who speculate in the stock market, and that means nearly everybody nowadays, to carry bills of large denominations. It is nothing to see a man haul out a bank roll with a thousand or five thousand dollar bill as part of it. This is especially true at the race track.

One of these big money caddies recently owed a friend of mine $150, and had owed it to him for two or three months. My friend saw him at the track and reminded him of it, and he produced a ten thousand dollar bill and asked my friend if he had change.

"Certainly," replied my friend, and he produced a fountain pen and check book and wrote a check for $9,850 and handed it to the ten thousand dollar bill man. Rather reluctantly and certainly surprised, the other handed over the big bill.

Speculation and race track gambling have taken a tremendous hold on the more prosperous New Yorkers. The average Manhattanite will be careful about how much he pays for his apartment and will be economical about riding in a taxicab, taking a street car instead, but he will grab a tip on the race track or the stock market from almost any source and play it, even though it involves an investment of a considerable sum.

You can get a race track tip from any elevator man, head waiter or bell boy and the same applies to the stock market. A curious thing about these plungers is that they never tell you when they lose, but they always admit it when they win. If one of the bettors returns from the race track and confesses he broke even, it probably means he had a bad day, which reminds me of what George Ade once said. He asked a friend what success he had had at the track and when the latter replied, "I broke about even," George Ade said, "I am sorry to hear it was that bad."

A friend of mine who is a well known New York bachelor, lives in a magnificent house in the east sixties, with an old couple for servants. The butler is a dignified, impressive old man and his wife is the efficient member of the combination.

Recently my friend was ill with a cold and the wife of the butler took it upon herself to prescribe for him, insisting that he should have a mustard plaster on his chest. By the time she got through cooking it up and had applied it the result was such that it blew out the cold but nearly ruined the epidermis of my bachelor friend. About six weeks later he began again to have symptoms of a cold and Nora, which is the name of the mustard plaster maker, started to prepare another one for application. As soon as my friend got wind of it, he telephoned the hospital and gave himself up before she could apply the plaster. He stayed there until he entirely recovered from his cold.

The moral of this anecdote, if any, is that even bachelors have their troubles.

Here are two stories about caddies and famous people. This writer was playing golf with Ring Lardner on a course on Shelter island near New York and the club is equipped with girl caddies. When the young woman came along to take Ring's bag, he was so embarrassed, he let her walk around with him for company and carried his own clubs all the way. She got full pay at the end of the round.

Another day, Ty Cobb had a young caddy lugging his bag of golf tools wearily around the links when the great outfielder noticed the boy was getting heavy in the dogs. He solved the problem in an unique way. He would play a shot and then stick the club back in the bag and pick up caddy, clubs and all and put them on his shoulder. When he reached his ball, he would set down the whole works and play his shot and then follow the same procedure. This caddy also got paid for the full round.

Hollywood Awakens

NEWS from Hollywood has it that the "star system," which has dominated the moving picture industry since its inception, is about to go on the scrap heap. With it will go a tremendous percentage of the handsome men and beautiful women who have been kings and queens in the moving picture world.

The new talking movie, of course, is responsible. Entering the queer, topsy-turvy land of Hollywood, it is upsetting all of the old values there and bringing about a return to something like sanity and order. No longer are pictures being fitted to stars. No longer is absolute dumbness a handicap that can be easily surmounted so long as its possessor has a pretty face. To win success in the talkies an actor or actress now will have to be talented and experienced enough to win success on the regular stage as well.

It was a long time in coming, but it is happening at last. The great reign of bunk and pretense is coming to an end. Hereafter, praise heaven, it will take real ability to win fame and fortune, and some of the conceited morons who drive about Hollywood in lavender-colored Rolls-Royces may have to go back to selling ribbons and driving taxicabs.

Probably it was high time that this happened. Hollywood had, for years, stood as an irritating symbol—a supreme symbol of the triumph of bluff and make-believe. It was, pre-eminently, the place where merit was not necessary to success. It was a direct contradiction of all the homely aphorisms about determination and ability and honesty. It was inefficiency, stupidity and bunk grown rich and successful.

But it was too good—or too bad—to last. The various geniuses who devised and perfected the talking film succeeded unintentionally, in bringing the world of moving pictures under the hard, unyielding laws that govern the rest of the business and professional world.

The ordinary man who tries to make his way through the workaday world soon learns that no matter how much some people may say about "pull," "luck" and "bluff," there is no real substitute for conscientious work. To advance, he has to know something about his job and be willing to devote himself to it with all his energy. And Hollywood, where one utterly without acting ability could win wealth and fame as an actor, where one knowing nothing about the drama could become a great director, where one ignorant of literature could prosper as a writer—well, it was a bit hard to contemplate.

But it looks as if this were about ended. And whatever you may think of the talking movies as a form of entertainment, you must admit that they have done all of us a good turn, whether we ever patronize the films or not. They have extended to the world of the movies the application of the old truths about work, ability and success. They have conquered the capital of hokum.

Overheated Rooms

HERE'S a tip for parents of small children who fear that winter weather will bring their youngsters cold and sickness.

Dr. Harvey Wiley, writing in Good Housekeeping Magazine, says that the chief reason children have more colds in winter than in summer is that in the winter they are prone to live in overheated living rooms and to sleep in overheated and unventilated bedrooms.

A sleeping room, he says, should always be ventilated, even in the coldest weather, and is better far unheated in cold weather than overheated.

Probably most of us tend to overheat our homes. Any doctor will corroborate what Dr. Wiley says; the surest way to catch cold is to have too much heat.

Prohibition Corruption

IF YOU wonder, now and then, why there is so much corruption in the work of prohibition enforcement, read the stories that are coming out of Detroit, where a sweeping investigation of conditions along the border is in progress.

A policeman, formerly in the federal patrol service, testifies. He tells how one rum runner offered him $1,000 a week simply to see to it that none of his men went near a certain dock for one hour each night a week. He tells of being offered a $5,000 automobile and $500 in cash by another man if he would look the other way on one night. He tells of being offered $50,000 if he would resign. He says he could easily have made $150,000 in two years if he had cared to.

Such are the temptations that come in the path of men who are paid something like $2,400 a year. The wonder is, not that there is corruption, but that it isn't universal.

BROKEN HOMES RESULT IN CRIMES

Broken homes are responsible for 75 per cent of the boys in the Oklahoma State Training school at Pauls Valley being imprisoned and the remainder come from homes where parents are quarreling continually, Clyde Goodner, superintendent of the institution, declare.

There are 214 boys between the ages of 9 and 16 years in the institution and if there was room, 100 more could be taken care of immediately, Goodner is said to have asserted. "The boys we get," he continued, "are those who have been raised in the wrong environment. To them the wrong way is the right way and the right way is the wrong way."

A wave of delinquency now existing, was attributed by him to economic conditions.

LET US HAVE WORK

What most good citizens of Oklahoma generally, regardless of party, would like to see would be for the legislature to get down to real business as early as possible, pass needed legislation for the benefit of its highways, its schools and other institutions; give a broadminded, serious and practical consideration of such matters as affect the public welfare vitally, and perfect an early adjournment.

A long-drawn out session, with impeachment proceedings merely to satisfy the ambitions or the antagonisms of politicians will not appeal to the public, nor make nearly so big a hit with the people as some progressive laws and a short session.

—Frederick (Okla.) Leader.

TWO CROPS FROM SAME LAND

After gathering a crop of 50 bushels of oats to the acre late last spring, Mr. Hogan of Prairie Grove, Franklin county, planted cotton on the same land and made nearly half a bale to the acre. He says the oats hold the ground and keep it from washing. Another farmer demonstrating the county agent's idea of growing two crops from the same land in the same year is O. W. Gandy, who followed oats with field peas and made two good crops. He expects to plant cotton on this land next year.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By George Barr McCutcheon

COPYRIGHT, GEORGE BARR MCCUTCHEON, PUBLISHED BY DODD, MEAD & COMPANY, NEW YORK

During the summer Jonifer takes Gerane and his nephew, Peter, to Edgweiss on a pleasure jaunt. They are disguised as gypsies. While there, they see Starcourt acting as the escort of the princess, on her return to the palace. One look at Gerane's face, when she sees Starcourt, tells Jonifer that she loves him. Peter arrives at the same conclusion, and is none too pleased, for he secretly loves Gerane. However he knows he can never marry her, for not only was his father, Jonifer's half-brother, of illegitimate birth but he himself was born out of wedlock. Jonifer, being the legitimate descendant of the Duke of Droon, who was made an outlaw, many, many years ago, after his attempt to seize the throne, exercises his prerogatives as head of the family in a way that the son of his deceased illegitimate half-brother often finds distasteful. Peter instantly becomes jealous of Starcourt, who, according to a spectator, is about to undertake the extermination of the bandits in the Forest of Droon and has been made a colonel, for he has voluntarily undertaken the task.

Urged on by his mother and his brothers, who hate Jonifer, Peter contemplates a revolt against his uncle's authority.

Jonifer, who, on learning that Gerane is in love with Starcourt, makes some secret plans that involve the soldier, takes a trip to Moscow. On his way home, near the Arpham border the stage-coach is held up—not by his men, however. The arrival of a troop of soldiers results in the capture of the robbers. The incident serves to inform Jonifer that Starcourt, with 500 picked men, is in the Forest of Droon to run down the Davos band, no matter how long the task keeps him there. Jonifer and his companion.

John Crispo and Jonifer Davos quietly disappear that night and make their way home, realizing that the situation is too serious to permit of their running the risk of capture.

Jonifer's return puts an end, for a time, at least, to Peter's thoughts of rebellion. The chief's next move is an attempt to capture Starcourt in a surprise attack at night. He is defeated, however.

Later, coming upon Starcourt while he is swimming in a mountain pool, Jonifer captures him. The colonel's men believe him to be drowned.

Meanwhile, he is among the robbers in the valley, free to do as he pleases, but unable to escape.

Jonifer tells Gerane that he has captured Starcourt as a birthday present for her. The bandit chief takes it for granted that the soldier will fall in love with his daughter and that they will marry. He is amazed when Gerane, in a fit of rage, says she will marry Peter—anybody but the soldier.

Gerane, although she is not fooled by Jonifer's threat, says the soldier is not to be shot—that she has decided to have his life that he may instruct her in English.

While the Grandsire authorities are still making frantic efforts to recover Starcourt's body from the pool in which the soldier was supposedly drowned the minister of police, Baron Dangloss, is informed by one of his men, Peter Corpax, that the Countess Jabassy has in her possession a famous diamond that was taken from a Russian princess in the Forest of Droon by Davos' men. The detective also says that the count and countess are living on a scale that is far beyond their means and asks where the money comes from. He says that he believes the count and countess to be Davos' confederates.

Corpax, disguised as a fruit vender, stops the Countess Katrane on the street and, taking a long chance, tells her he is a messenger from Jonifer Davos and has been sent to tell her that her connection with the robber band is known to the police. Despite her desperate efforts at self-control, Corpax sees how alarmed she is and decides that his suspicions are correct.

As the result of Corpax's report, Dangloss sends officers to bring the count and countess before him. They, fearing that arrest will result in the disclosure of their relations with Jonifer, commit suicide.

Starcourt, now in love with Gerane, although he is unwilling to admit it, even to himself, asks her companion, Matilde, to tell him something of Gerane's mother. The old woman, who herself was the companion of Gerane's mother, tells him how they were captured by the bandits while passing through the Forest of Droon—how Louise, Gerane's mother, fell in love with Jonifer and married him.

Word comes to the robbers of the suicide of the Count and Countess, and the reason for it. Not knowing whether the authorities have learned of their hiding place, they prepare to resist attack, if necessary.

Starcourt is tortured by the thought that the defeat of the robbers, although it will mean his release, may mean death for Gerane, as a member of the band. He is amazed to hear from the mother of Gerane's cousin, Peter, that many in the valley look upon him as chosen by Jonifer to be his successor, as well as his son-in-law.

She admits her love for him, but says she cannot marry him because of her connection with the robber band and because of his oath to the crown to destroy that band. While he is protesting that he will never leave the forest of Droon unless rescued by the troops, they hear the voices of men in the distance.

Peter and his brothers come up and are joined by Jonifer. Gerane and Starcourt confess their love. Peter is furious and Jonifer is puzzled as to the future, until Starcourt tells him that he will remain with the bandits, making no attempt to escape. That night Jonifer announces the engagement, and the dwellers in the valley learn that Starcourt is an English lord, as well as a colonel in the duke's Dragoons.

At first the news of the betrothal brings rejoicing, but soon the younger members of the band, convinced that Jonifer means to make Starcourt his successor, begin to object to the match. They ask Jonifer to discuss the matter with them.

He tells Gerane and Starcourt of the situation. They are firm in their determination. Starcourt laughs at their belief that he wishes to be leader of the robber band, and Jonifer goes to meet his men.

They tell him that the marriage must not take place—that he must deliver Starcourt to them, and that they will hold him a prisoner. Jonifer defies them.

INSTALMENT XXXVI

Early the next morning Julius Broadaxe appeared at Jonifer's. He carried two rifles and ammunition. Rosa opened the door, holding her finger to her lips, but Broadaxe was not to be silenced.

"Do not hush me, woman," he exclaimed. "I must speak with Jonifer. Is he still abed?" He pushed past her into the big room. The early morning light was dull, but it was strong enough for him to make out the figure of a man in a chair by the fireplace. Sitting is hardly the word, for Jonifer's long frame had slumped down into the chair, his legs were outstretched, and his chin was on his chest. He was snoring lustily.

"Asleep!" wheezed Julius.

"And why not?" demanded Rosa. "He was awake all night, I do believe." She closed the door. "Where are they, Julius? We heard them making speeches till past midnight. Where are they now?"

"Shut up!" commanded the smith. He was regarding Jonifer with troubled eyes. Suddenly he peered into a dark corner beyond the sleeping chieftain. On a pile of rugs was the figure of another man, also sound asleep. Broadaxe had no difficulty in recognizing Starcourt. "Oho! So he is here, is he?" His brow darkened again. This time he leaned close to Rosa and whispered: "A word of advice to you, woman. Leave this house and seek shelter elsewhere. Take Elsie with you. Go at once, else you will be trapped here and—"

"Oh, the saints preserve—"

"Do not argue," broke in the smith. "Off with you! But wait! Where is Gerane?"

"In—in there," gulped Rosa. "She and Matilde. Am I—am I to wake her and take her with me, Julius?"

"Certainly not."

As the servant hurried away, he strode over and shook Jonifer. Instantly the chieftain was awake.

"Oh, it is you, Julius?" he exclaimed. "Well—what now? Was I asleep?"

"You were, and snoring. Anyone could have walked in here and robbed the house with the greatest ease."

"Starcourt laid down at 2 o'clock. I was to—"

"Rouse him!" commanded Julius Without a word, Jonifer nudged the sleeper with the toe of his boot—not gently, it must be said. Starcourt scrambled to his feet.

"What is in the air, Julius?" demanded Davos, turning to the newcomer.

The smith looked out of the window before answering.

"I see Peter and John coming down the road—aye, Strade and Mastil, too. You and I make six, Jonifer—six all told. They took Gratz with them last night. He will come in handy as a doctor, in case—"

"And as an undertaker," snarled Jonifer venomously. "They will need him." He grabbed up his pistols as he hurried to the window.

"Candan and Horbits have weakened. You cannot count on them, Jonifer. We six are all—"

"Are you not counting on me?" exclaimed Starcourt angrily. "Do you think I am going to sit here with my hands folded—"

"We will see about that," interposed Jonifer. "But what are we to expect, Julius? Are they coming to surround the house and—"

"I know their plans. Inside of an hour, Jonifer, they will be here, two score of them. As you know, Jan Melby set a time-limit last night. They intend to abide by the bargain they made. Some of them were for going to Starcourt's cabin last night. But Jan and the rest were against it." Here he grinned at Starcourt. "Half a dozen of them have been watching your cabin since midnight, Colonel. At noon, Jonifer, there first 40 or 50 men will be relieved by as many more. At sunset they will all be here. There will be no attack before that time. But, if the man they want is not delivered to them before the sun goes down—well, you know, Jonifer, what will happen."

"They will attack?"

"As sure as my name is Shook," replied the smith.

Just then Crispo and Peter came hurrying up to the door with Strade and Mastil. All save Peter were well along in years. For 20 years and more they had ridden the highway with Jonifer Davos; to them he was a god.

"It is all over," shouted Crispo, as he entered the house. "They have just broken into the cabin and, by this time, have killed or captured—" His startled gaze fell upon Starcourt. "You here! Then they have not—" He leaped to the door and cast a glance down the road. "Quick! Bolt the doors and windows. They are running this way—a dozen of them."

Instantly the little group leaped to action. The sturdy doors were slammed and bolts dropped into place; into each of the four window casements at the back of the house blocks of wood were fastened. Nearly every house in the valley was provided with these "stop-blocks," in anticipation of an attack by forces of the law. Jonifer's "castle," more substantially built than all the others, could be transformed at a moment's notice into a veritable fortress, secure against anything short of cannon.

He refused to have the front windows closed.

"I would not have them think that I am afraid to look them in the face," he explained grimly.

A small knot of men gathered in the road below the house. They had just come from the cabin. Jonifer threw open the door and shouted scornfully:

"So this is the way you live up to your bargain, is it? There is some difference between 6 o'clock in the morning and 6 at night, you swine. Well, the man you want is here. Thank heaven, I did not trust to your honor."

He slammed the door upon a chorus of shouts.

"Now, we will see about breakfast," he said, turning to Gerane and her companion. "Julius, do you and Strade go to the kitchen and stand guard. Peter, go at once to the stable and tend the beasts. No one will interfere. Take your time."

Crispo interposed. "Jan will attend to them, Jonifer. They have no quarrel with your cattle."

"Do as I tell you, Peter," commanded Jonifer sharply.

Matilde came in and began setting the table. Starcourt watched her gloomily. Jonifer and his two companions paid no attention to her. She stomped and spoke to him once in passing.

"This is their affair, Colonel Starcourt. I know them well. It is not you that Jonifer is thinking about. He will fight them—yes, perhaps, he may die—but it will not be for you, nor even for Gerane If he had a hundred lives to give, he would give them all before he would give even so much as an inch to these men who have challenged him. Twice before, to my knowledge, he has beaten down rebellion here. He killed the rebels as he would have killed snakes. Life would be nothing to him if—"

"But he ought to think of Gerane," grated Starcourt. "He sends her out to the kitchen, where—where she isn't safe from—"

"She is as safe there as anywhere," she assured him.

The seven men were eating breakfast when Jan Kelby and some forty-odd men took up their station in the road below Jonifer's dooryard. Gerane, rosy-cheeked and warm after her unaccustomed toiling over the stone oven, was helping Latilde serve the watchful yet hungry group. She glanced out of the window and was the first to see the besiegers.

"Here they are," she announced a trifle shrilly. Then she added with a fine show of disdain: "And they look as if they haven't had any coffee. I've never seen so many sour faces."

A thought struck Jonifer—and evidently it was a happy one, for he leaned back and laughed uproariously.

"I have it," he cried. "They are thirsty. They smell the blood of an English-man! Ho! Ho! Ho!"

Whereupon Broadaxe gave vent to his thunderous mirth, and was joined with gusto by the other four Starcourt, disconcerted, managed to smile.

The day advanced. While the besiegers came and went with grim, unyielding constancy, and without a single manifestation of active hostility, Jonifer and his friends engaged in a fruitless argument over the decision of the latter to remain in the house until the bitter end The leader pleaded with them to go; he commanded and even threatened, but to no avail. Gerane added her entreaties, begging them to save themselves while there was yet time. Matilde looked at the portrait of Louise; if her eyes could have spoken they would have asked Jonifer how he liked being at the mercy of robbers.

"You have wives and children," argued Jonifer, wrathfully. "Go home, friends. I am grateful to you all, but—"

"I have a wife," growled Broadaxe. "But what would she do to me, if I deserted you now, Jonifer? She would tear me limb from limb—and, curse me, I would not have the heart to resist."

The picture of Mrs. Snook tearing the brawny Hercules limb from limb would have been an amusing one at any other time, but now no one smiled. He was merely illustrating the story that was at the back of each man's mind. That is to say, all save Peter.

"I have no wife," said he, gruffly. "I am your nephew, Uncle Jonifer—I am of your blood. I hate Starcourt. If it were left to me, I would deliver him over to them at once But it is not for me to say. It is our blood that rules this place, call it what you will. So I shall stand by you so long as there is a breath of life in my body. And, sir, should you meet with death, I shall continue to fight Jan Melby. I look upon myself as your rightful successor. I am a Davos. There is only one way for Jan Melby to become chieftain, and that is by killing me. I shall serve you as long as I live. If you die before I do—well, that is another matter."

He cast a glance at Gerane that betrayed the very soul of him. For the first time in her life she shuddered before Peter. Her hand went to the pistol hidden in the bosom of her tunic. Somehow it comforted her.

Later in the afternoon, Jonifer opened a chest at the lower end of the room and took from it a jeweled scimitar.

"This blade," said Jonifer, "was made over a hundred years ago for the first Duke of Droon, my great-grandfather, whose picture hangs in the house where you have been living, Colonel Starcourt. His father, the ruler of Graustark in that day, had scimitars made for his two sons, Prince Caspar and his half-brother, the young duke. One is still in the castle at Edelweiss. If anything should happen to me, Gerane, this blade is yours; and, if you should have sons, let it be given to the first-born, not in my name, but in that of the Droon whose head was cut off by command of his brother. And here are the decorations and jewels that belonged to my great-grandfather. My great-grandmother succeeded in getting out of Edelweiss with her baby son and all these things. They came down to my father and then to me. I have no male heir, so it pleases me to bequeath them to my daughter. They will prove an interesting legacy for your son, Gerane."

Peter's eyes went to Gerane's averted face. Matilde was watching him. His lips moved, but no words issued from them. Nevertheless, she sensed them—and correctly. To himself he was saying: "For my son,—all these things for my son."

MORAN AND MACK

Moran—Big Boy, I QUITS this job as Santy Claws.

Mack—How come?

Moran—A little boy gets hold of my whiskers today and swings on 'em like a monkey on a vine.

Mack—Was you arrested for carelessness?

Moran—I says, "Lady, what was you' little boy doin' in a stranger's whiskers? He is TRESPASSIN'."

Mack—Continue.

Moran—Well, th' floorwalker comes up an' in order to stop th' little boy from cryin' I got to let th' little boy swing on my EARS. An' they ain't PAPER. I RESIGN.

Mack—That's all right, Stoopid. I'm feelin' industrious an' I got a NEW for you in th' mornin'.

Biblical Facts About Christmas

Seasonal Sermons of the Boy Preacher

By HENRY PAUL STEPHEN

Written by the 16-year-old boy preacher especially for The Record News

Genesis records a promise, to the people, made while the world was yet in infancy, of a new King, a Saviour who rule the hearts of men the wide world over—a Saviour who, living, should love us, dying should save us, buried should wash all our sins away—but most of all, it tells us that His resurrection would make possible His return to take His chosen ones to the house of His father.

The book of Ruth tells of an ancestor of this promised King and the beautiful, simple, sacrifical life which she lived was typical of Christ.

The Psalms tell us of the life of Christ's great-great-grandfather—of his victories and defeats, his joys and sorrows, his fellowship and depravity, his life and his sin—in all telling us that a perfect God-Man should rise from this weakness of His own people and live before men a life of love.

Woven and interwoven into the Old Testament are facts about the promised Christmas day; then three of the gospel writers herald to us the story of this first Christmas, the birthday of a Governor who should rule the people, spiritually, and now as Christmas draws near, we can turn our thoughts to God and realize that this birthday was the fulfillment of a promise that has sounded its note through all the ages.

Traffic Death Remedies Listed

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. (INS)—With Chicago's automobile deaths for 1928 reaching the 1000 mark, Coroner Herman N. Bundesen today outlined a six-ply program for ending the tragic killings.

His campaign for safety was announced at the inquest into the death of Frank Stulek, 17, helper in a department store truck, who was the thousandth victim of "reckless driving."

Coroner Bundesen, who branded the killing of three persons a day "cold blooded murder," suggested the following remedies:

1. Wider roads.
2. Grade separations at important intersections, and elevated highways for speedy traffic.
3. Greater use of traffic lights and signals and other scientific devices for safety.
4. Educational campaigns for motor safety among motorists and pedestrians, especially among children.
5. Swift punishment for drunken and reckless drivers.
6. A state law licensing all motorists.

MEMPHIS FOWL SHOW JAN. 2-5

Plans Go Forward for Better Poultry Exhibitions

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Dec. 14.—The eighth annual poultry show of the Hall County District Poultry association will be held Jan. 2 to Jan. 5, according to announcement made in Memphis this week. The show will be held in the building formerly occupied by the State Telephone exchange on West Noel street.

The show will be open to all exhibitors and it is expected that the showing will be the largest ever exhibited in Hall county or in this part of the Panhandle. Last year the show was held before Christmas, and was a success in every way, but due to the rush season this year, it was deemed advisable to delay the show until January for the exhibition.

There were 500 birds exhibited at the show last year, but according to plans now under way, this number will only serve as a starter for the total number of fine specimens in the coming January show. Chicken fanciers from Graham, Paducah, Crowell, Childress, Wellington, Clarendon, Kirkland, Amarillo and other Panhandle towns will have individual exhibits.

The association has secured the services of Judge Walter Burton of Dallas for two days, Jan. 3 and 4, at which time he will judge the birds and make the proper awards. Premiums and ribbons in all grades and classes of poultry will make competition keen. The secretary of the association has announced that added premiums over other years will be awarded in the turkey division.

Charlie Williams is president of the Hall County District Poultry association; J. R. Mitchell is vice president, and George A. Sager is secretary. Mr. Sager has been at the work the past week getting the details of the show in print, so they will be available in booklet form for those interested.

"The show in January will contain some very fine specimens," said Sager. "We are going to considerable expense to make the show outstanding and we expect full cooperation from all interested parties to aid us in our work."

Wichita Court Hearing to Test State Tax Levied on Bus Lines

Test of the Texas bus tax law, to determine whether the seating capacity tax will apply to strictly intra-city buses, is involved in the suit of the Wichita Traction company against Guy C. Raley, county tax collector, to come up before Judge W. W. Cook Saturday morning.

In February, 1928, the traction company was granted a temporary injunction restraining Mr. Raley from collecting the $4 per seat annual tax, assessed against buses by the state law. The hearing Saturday morning will call for action on a motion to dissolve the injunction.

The supreme court has already sustained the law as concerned with inter-city lines, and the present case is to test its interpretation when buses used only within the limits of one city are involved, according to Judge Cook.

The ruling of Judge Cook will be appealed and taken to the supreme court for the establishment of a lasting precedent.

Denver Widow 'Good Shot'; She Proves It

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. (UP)—"I come from Denver, Colo., and I'm a good shot," Mrs. Frankie McCormick, a widow, told police today after she had killed Charles Murray, a cook, who came tapping at her bathroom window while she was in the bath tub.

Mrs. McCormick said she thought the intruder was a burglar.

Boy Bankers Hop On Automobile Monarch

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. (AP)—Henry Ford's statement that "no successful boy ever saved any money," caused consternation among boy officers of the Gary Wheaton Junior bank formed to teach the young to save.

The automobile manufacturer was taken to task in a telegram dispatched today by Russell Johnson, 13-year-old caddie and president of the bank.

"I hope you didn't mean what the papers printed in an interview with you," said the telegram. "We have formed our junior bank to teach boys and girls to save regularly for useful purposes. How could you have started without some one's savings to start on?"

PHELPS LEADS EAGLE ATTACK

Smashing Offense Carries Abilene to Finals

ABILENE, Texas, Dec. 14. (AP)—"Loping Lucy" Phelps, Abilene high school halfback, spread himself all over Parramore field here today, slashing at the ends, darting through the secondary and flinging passes. When his afternoon's work was done he had scored two touchdowns, passed to Captain Dan Salkeld for another, and hopes of the Cleburne Yellow Jackets to reach the finals of the state race were dashed by a 20 to 6 defeat.

Eagles Go Wild

Abilene held to a 7-6 lead through the first three periods, unleashed an offensive in the fourth round that put across two touchdowns and fully rewarded the 7,500 spectators who had gathered to witness the fourth state semi-final game in which these same teams have battled.

A gale from the south favored Cleburne in the second and third quarters and aided Abilene in the first and fourth. The Eagles did all their scoring in the opening and final periods, while the Yellow Jackets registered their lone touchdown in the second quarter.

Phelps Goes Over

Phelps scored the first touchdown of the game in the initial period with an 11-yard canter around end; Smith booted the extra point. The visitors came back in the second period to score on an end-around play from the 6-yard line, Peyton going over. Goal was missed.

Early in the fourth quarter Phelps flipped a 15-yard pass to Salkeld and the Eagle captain raced 20 yards for his team's second touchdown. Two minutes later Phelps slipped through a hole at left guard, twisted by the secondary defense and romped 75 yards down the sideline for the score. The galloping red head was aided in his brilliant run by Kincaid, who cut down the safety man.

The elder Strong added that Kenneth and his bride, on their return from the West, would take up separate residences in New York, Mrs. Strong living in her own apartment and the football star in his fraternity house until Strong's graduation.

The couple now are en route to California for the annual East-West football game, in which Strong will participate.

Runyon Would Have Boxers Prove Their Skill in Gymnasium Tests

Thomas Kirby Follows Tunney's and Loughran's Styles But He Lacks Their Ambition, Damon Avers

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Thomas Aloysius Dorgan, alias "Tad," by all odds the greatest sports cartoonist that ever clutched drawing pen, and one of the most authoritative commentators on sport, recalls a jolly old custom of bygone days in California. When a visiting exponent of the sour science showed up around the Olympic club in San Francisco, and 'lowed that he could fight, the lads eyed him languidly, and said, "Is that so?" Or maybe, "You don't say!"

Then they gave him a chance to prove his crack by putting him in the gymnasium with one of the club fighters. If the fellow made good, all right. He was given a match for regular money. If he turned out to be a phonus-bolonus, he was awarded plenty of the wide open spaces of California.

I am inclined to agree with Thomas Aloysius Dorgan.

I would like to see our noble boxing commission appoint a test committee for visiting gladiators, made up of gents who would be sure to put the old acidosis on the strangers in gymnasium assays.

I will even tender a few nominations for the test committee, without charge to the boxing commission. I would suggest that the heavyweights be placed in the roped arena, as it is jocularly called, not with some gladiator of great renown, but with a person of no more pugilistic importance and note than Thomas Kirby, of Boston. Then let 'em do their durndest.

I have often pondered the strange case of Thomas Kirby.

He is a magnificent looking specimen of humanity. Young, handsome, a former amateur champion, and member of our Olympic boxing team of '26.

He has fought Tommy Loughran a couple of times. Stribling two or three times. They didn't do much to him. Thomas Kirby takes care that no one does much to him. Few boxers care to meet him. He is too expert. He has a remarkable left hand. It ought to be remarkable. He has practiced enough with it. He rarely lets his right go.

He isn't cowardly in the ring. He is merely conservative. Outside the ring, he has astounding nerve. He will stand on his head on a window ledge 20 stories above the street. He will climb the tallest mast and balance himself there. But he won't let 'em fly in that ring.

Give him the recklessness of Mickey Walker, and few gladiators of today would be even close to Thomas Kirby.

He doesn't regard gymnasium boxing as work. It is a terrific effort to the average gladiator, but Thomas Kirby loves it. He was greatly astonished to learn that he could get money for serving as sparring partners to other gladiators, and he accepted it the first time with some reluctance feeling that he was bilking his employer.

I believe, however, that Thomas Kirby has since overcome all compunction of conscience in that respect. He doesn't get enough regular matches to be able to afford charity. He was matched to meet Max Schmelling, the German heavyweight, at Madison Square Garden next week, but Max' operatives must have tipped him off.

Anyway, Max has declined to meet Thomas Kirby. I cannot say that I blame him. Max could have shipped that right hand off his back to Berlin. I think Thomas Kirby would have given him a fine painting.

I have no idea what Thomas Kirby's fistic future will be. Thomas Loughran fiddled along in much the Thomas Kirby manner for five or six years without getting anywhere, and Gene Tunney was the same general type of boxer. But Loughran and Tunney had what I sometimes fear Thomas Kirby lacks—something that overcomes all obstacles, and that is—ambition!

Give Thomas Kirby eight cents worth of that, and he would be a champion of the world for ten years.

NURMI DUE TO ARRIVE TODAY

Noted Finn Comes Back For Another Season

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Paavo Nurmi is due in tomorrow but the boys who have been scanning the gangplanks for the celebrated Finn won't believe it until they see him.

Even then it may not be possible right away to determine whether Nurmi intends to run here as an amateur, professional or perhaps try both in the order named. Paavo has always had a habit of keeping his affairs to himself and there is no reason to supose he has become any more communicative than before, when he did little or no talking, but a lot of eloquent foot-racing.

The best guess among Nurmi's closest friends here, including Hugo Quist, is that Paavo will remain an amateur for the time being, competing in two or three special indoor meets in New York and possibly Boston or Chicago.

Edwin Wide and Willie Ritola, who have made up the Olympic distance running big three with Nurmi in 1924, will be on hand to give Nurmi some competition. Joie Ray is out of the amateur picture but Leo Lermond, a sensation indoors last winter, is ready to represent the home talent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The Canadian minister to the United States bobs forth with a bouncing suggestion that may be the answer to the foolish question.

He has a substitute for war.

He suggests golf.

That means more war.

For there is neither border, nor breed, nor birth, when two strong men stand face to face and clout up the ends of the earth.

Golf is such a good substitute for war that it would even fool mars.

Get the boys out of the bunkers by Christmas.

Take down grandfather's old muzzle-loading mashie from over the fireplace.

The enemy has just been given a two weeks card to the country club.

Rush to the armory and grab them niblicks.

Hang out the service flag. Papa's at the nineteenth hole.

How did you get all those decorations, grandpa?

Child, I was the medal player in the world war.

Are you the man who made the gallant 600 at Balaklava?

No, but I was a caddy at the last peace conference.

What are those two men fighting about, grandpop?

They're not fighting, my child. The secretary of the navy is angry because Andy Mellon just knocked seven strokes off his own golf budget.

Where is no man's land now, grandpa?

It's the distance between two golf greens, my child.

What do nations lose in golf tournaments, grandpa?

They lose divots.

What are divots, grandpa?

Divots are colonial possessions. And, my child, they are never replaced.

MAVS FAIL TO GET STARTED

Yellow Jackets Play Abilene For State Title

MARSHALL, Texas, Dec. 14. (AP)—Although fought to a scoreless tie, Coach Tom Dennis' Port Arthur Yellow Jackets progressed to the finals of the state interscholastic league football chase at the expense of the Marshall Mavericks here today.

For the second successive week the Yellow Jackets advanced by the skin of their teeth. They penetrated the Mavericks' 20-yard marker three times, while the best the homelings could do was twice, and that decided the issue.

A week ago Main Avenue of San Antonio fought a 6 to 6 deadlock with the Jackets and each penetrated the other's 20-yard zone three times, but the flip of a coin enabled Port Arthur to remain in the race.

Plays Abilene Friday

As the result of today's synthetic victory, Port Arthur will clash with the Abilene Eagles in the final game nex week. It was thought probable the fray would be held on a neutral field.

For the first time this season, the Mavericks found themselves unable to get started in today's game. Their bright, particular star, Ralph Murfe, was held to a total of 19 yards gained from scrimmage by the fast-charging Port Arthur forwards. Two men stayed on top of him every minute and even his passes were so effectively rushed they were for the most part inaccurate.

Mavs Threaten

The Mavs threatened in the first quarter when they reached their opponents' 10-yard line twice, but after that they were checked. They missed their best chance to score in the fourth period when Reeves took a 30-yard toss from Murff and had a clear field ahead, only to stumble and fall.

Port Arthur's heavy backs ploughed through the Marshall line for consistent gains all afternoon, registering 16 first downs to 4 for the locals. The Marshall line always stiffened and held when shoved into its own territory, however.

Summary:

MARSHALL (0)		PORT ARTHUR (0)
	Position
Reeves	Left End	Domingue
Feild	Center	Turner
Taylor	Right Guard	Quebedeaux

Scott	Right End	Knight

Harris	Right Half	Barfield

MAJORS REFUSE PEACE MEETING

Reconciliation With Minor Leagues Declined

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. (AP) — The American and National league club owners have played havoc with the minor leagues' hopes of formulating a reconciliation program at West Baden, Ind., Jan. 10.

Instead of lining up with the minors' proposition of a peace meeting in January, the majors, in their joint meeting here turned thumbs down on the proposal. As a result, there will be no meeting and the present much debated major-minor agreement will have to do for another year.

The minors' failure to outline a definite plan of reform at Toronto was given by the majors as the reason for deciding against sending a committee to the conference. They did give minor league proponents of the plan an opportunity to explain why there should be a conference, but when the vote was taken not a supporter of the minors could be found among the club owners.

Carbon Monoxid Poisoning

Every cold winter takes a toll of deaths from carbon moxonid poisoning. This gas, being colorless, orderless and tasteless, gives little warning of the approach of danger.

Carbon monoxid gas is usually formed wherever there is deficient combustion of fuel. It is present to some extent in both artificial and natural gas, and may form from charcoal, coal or gasoline. Wherever these fuels are used, one should be careful that either a large supply of oxygen reaches the burner, or that the fumes are carried off by an unobstructed flue or chimney.

Last year many deaths occurred to people who remained in closed garages while their automobile engines were running.

Carbon monoxid gas, when inhaled, forms a very tight union with the hemoglobin of the blood and prevents the latter from conveying oxygen. Degenerative changes of the brain cells result quickly, making this poisoning extremely dangerous, as the damage persists even after the carbon monoxid has been given off by the blood.

The workers of many trades may be subject to chronic monoxid poisoning. This sometimes occurs with furnace tenders and miners. But it is difficult to gather actual statistics about this condition because many cases are unrecognized.

The principal symptoms of carbon monoxid poisoning are a general weakness, dizziness and sometimes headache and vomiting. The subject notices a feeling of drowsiness. If the monoxid is present in sufficient quantity, unconsciousness will follow. The skin assumes a peculiar lived color. The pulse is fast and weak, and convulsions often occur. After a coma has lasted for 24 hours, death is almost inevitable, and even in cases of recovery from this poisoning, there may be bad after effects, such as pneumonia, paralysis or neuritis.

The treatment should be to give the patient plenty of fresh air. Artificial respiration may be necessary. Most hospitals, fire departments and gas companies are equipped with tanks of oxygen and other apparatus for giving first aid to these cases.

Blood transfusion does not seem to be of assistance and is in many cases actually harmful. The patient should be encouraged to use deep breathing exercises. The diet should be carefully moderated for the first few days. Alternate feedings of orange juice and milk at about two hour intervals should, as a rule, be continued for two or three days before the regular diet is employed.

Poisoning from carbon monoxid is really inexcusable, and, if you suspect this is occurring in your own home, you should call a furnace inspector to see that the amount of air mixed with the fuel is sufficient to entirely consume all of the gas, or that the fumes are conveyed to the outside of the building by the proper flues.

If you drive an automobile, be careful never to permit the engine to continue running in a confined atmosphere.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Talking in Sleep

Question: M. Y. asks: "What causes one to talk in his sleep?"

Answer: Talking in one's sleep is usually due to digestive disorders. This trouble keeps the sleeper half way between a sleeping and waking state, and his subconscious mind is constantly at work. One in this twilight sleep state is liable to speak the thoughts going on in the unconscious mind.

Pleurisy

Question: Mrs. D. writes: "I have been told that I have a case of dry pleurisy. Does pleurisy come on in attacks being entirely free from pain, or does it pain most of the time? I have a sever pain most all the time under my left shoulder blade and between my shoulder blades. It also pains me in my chest and lungs."

Answer: Pleurisy may be either acute or chronic. It is due to an infection of the membrane which covers the lungs. Acute attacks often turn into serious pleural disorders when adhesions form. Treat the parts affected with intense heat from an electric pad or therapeutic light, and after the pain has subsided, take deep breathing exercises to prevent adhesions from forming.

Codliver Oil

Question: A Reader asks: "When should a school child begin taking codliver oil? I mean what month is best?"

Answer: Codliver oil may be used during any month in the year, but it usually unnecessary at any time if the child uses plenty of fresh green vegetables which contain the valuable vitamins found in a more expensive form in codliver oil.

FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By BARNEY OLDFIELD

If you don't know who Barney Oldfield, the racing driver, is, ask any man, woman, child, a handy mounted police or white wing.

BARNEY OLDFIELD

"There was a workman," said Oldfield, "who was employed by a big business organization. One of those huge corporations which, according to Socialistic publications, 'grinds men's souls to dust.'

"This workman approached his foreman with great fear and much knee-knocking. Then he shuffled uneasily from foot to foot, twisting his hat in his hand, while the man who directed the destinies of the big plant looked down upon him.

"'Well, what is it?' he boomed.

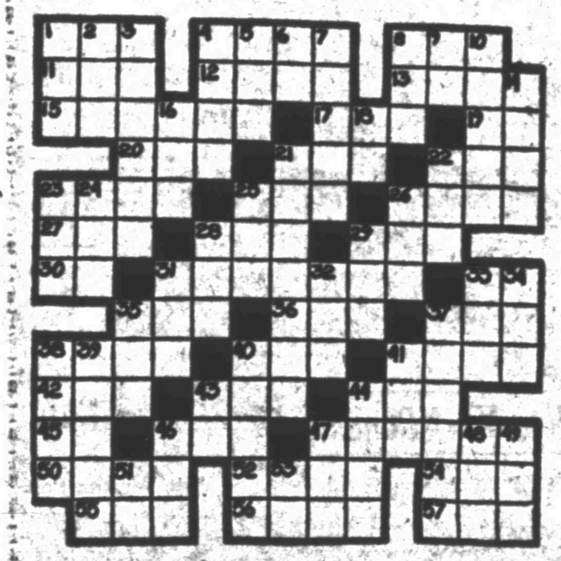

"'Please, sir,' began the man, 'I'd like to have a small increase in my wages. You see, I married almost a year ago, and now . . .'

"'I'm very sorry, my dear man,' broke in the foreman, 'but I cannot help you under the circumstances. You see, the company is not responsible for accidents which happen to our workmen outside the factory.'"

TEXAS ROYALTY MEN TO MEET

Division to Organize At Fort Worth

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Dec. 14—The Texas division of the Mid-Continent Royalty Owners association will be organized at Fort Worth on Jan. 10, so officers and directors of the association decided at a meeting Thursday.

The Winkler County Royalty Owners association will meet at Fort Worth at the same time and form the nucleus of the new division. Royalty owners in other sections of Texas are being invited to attend the meeting there.

The consolidation of the Texas royalty owners group with the Mid-Continent Royalty Owners association was brought about through the efforts of the two working together on identical lines. Guy H. Woodward, counsel and manager of the Mid-Continent association, said that officers and directors of the two associations have found that the interests of the members of the two were analagous in many respects; the problems before both common, and the merger would help both.

E. O. Bedford, vice president of the Winkler County Royalty Owners association, is in charge of plans for the Fort Worth meeting.

Steps are to be taken at the Fort Worth meeting to combat the present practice of many Texas counties of allowing Thomas Y. Picket and company of Dallas to determine values of property in their counties for taxation purposes.

A value of $28,000,000 on certain royalty interests of Winkler county, on protest was reduced to $12,000,000, and as a result royalty interests of other Texas oil counties are aroused. Investigation shows that the commissioners of many Texas counties surrendered their own tax fixing rights on a basis of five cents per each $100 of valuation that it can have placed on the tax rolls.

The Texas royalty owners, it is learned, plan to seek legislation relief from this condition, if it cannot be gotten otherwise.

'400 Bbls. Hourly New Well's Mark

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 14 (UP)—Oklahoma City's discovery gusher oil well begin flowing at the rate of nearly 400 barrels an hour late today after drillers had deepened the original hole three feet.

The increased flow is 170 barrels an hour more than the flow when the well blew itself in more than a week ago. The total depth of the well now is 6506 feet.

The volume of gas increased, along with the flow, to approximately 7,000,000 cubic feet.

Officials announced the well would be permitted to flow to capacity so long as the pipe line is able to handle the oil.

Jail Break Scare Causes Transfer Of County Prisoners to New Cells

The evidence of a piece of steel piping, a knife, an ice pick, and an improvised sling shot, found in a cell of the Wichita county jail Friday morning, pointed to plans of the prisoners to make a break for freedom when they were moved from one floor to another during the completion of construction work, officers said.

Warned by efforts of the prisoners to get access to a box of workmen's tools Thursday night, the jailer and his assistants Friday morning forestalled any plan of violence by taking each prisoner, stripped of clothing, from the third to the second floor, making an attack with concealed weapons impossible.

Workmen have been building vestibule doors to the cages during the past 10 days, and prisoners are believed to have been watching their opportunity to make use of the necessary movements from cell to cell and from floor to floor to escape.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. (AP)—Early declines were followed by rallies in the cotton market today, but prices weakened again in the late trading under southern selling and liquidation. January contracts, after selling up from 20.24 to 20.48, broke to 20.22 or 13 points net lower and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 9 to 13 points, the lowest figures for the day in months.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 6 points and the active months showed net losses of 7 to 11 points right after the call under southern selling and liquidation. The latter may have reflected some disappointment over the showing of the census report which placed the domestic consumption of lint cotton in this country for November at 610,884 bales compared with 618,788 for October and 626,742 for November last year.

There had been talk of slightly larger figures which had probably promoted some buying earlier in the week. The offerings were not particularly heavy and the report was regarded in some quarters as in keeping with current ideas of probable domestic requirements.

The market soon steadied and prices advanced during the middle of the morning on covering and trade buying. December sold up to 20.55 and May to 20.42, making net advances of 9 to 14 points on the active months and the highest prices touched since the break on the government crop report of last Saturday.

The demand seemed to taper off as the market approached the 20¼-cent level, however, and offerings increased during the afternoon when a more reactionary sentiment was in evidence. This appeared to be based on an idea that the technical position of the market had eased on the rally of about 90 points from the low level of last Monday. There was also southern selling on the decline which carried the market off to 20.31 for December and 20.19 for May or about 10 to 15 points net lower.

Closing prices were at about the lowest figures of the day on most positions. December notices were issued representing about 2,000 bales of cotton, according to estimates and caused some liquidation in the spot month, but December closed 12 points over January compared with 11 points at the close yesterday. Private cables reported continental and London buying in Liverpool and freer buying of cotton cloth by India and China in Manchester. Exports today, 124,683, making 4,307,793 so far this season. Port receipts, 46,213. U. S. port stocks, 2,364,111.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14. (AP)—Although supported for a time by general buying the cotton market worked lower in later trading today under realizing and evening up for the week-end. March sold down from 19.85, eased off and closed at 19.69, or 10 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady 7 to 10 points down.

Liverpool cables were 1 to 2 points better than due but the influence exerted by this factor was offset by the bearish character of the census bureau's consumption total by domestic mills during November. The figures showed 610,884 bales consumed against 618,788 during October.

First trades were one point up to 4 to 5 points down and offerings inducted by the bearish consumption figures soon carried January off to 19.60, March to 19.64 and May to 19.60, or 11 to 13 points net down.

The decline was checked at these levels by rather general buying which some traders claimed was due to a belief that the long side of the market was in the hands of a strong interest. The bulge carried January back to 19.83 and active positions generally to levels 21 to 23 points above the lows.

Considerable realizing and week-end evening up developed, probably attracted by the higher prices and the market gradually eased off almost reaching the early lows in final trading. The market closed 1 to 3 points above the lowest with January at 19.62 and May 19.61.

Radio Soars As Merger With Victor Is Consummated; Victor Also Gains

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. (US)—Radio soared 42 points as shorts rushed to cover in advance of closing of merger deal with Victor today.

Victor followed along and gained over 19 points for the session but otherwise the stock market session was the most uninteresting of the year to date. Decline in loans failed to arouse much enthusiasm as it was realized that further correction was necessary.

Professionals were afraid to sell short and the bulls remained too scared to add to holdings materially so that prices backed and filled in a very narrow range and the total turnover was barely above the 3,000,000 share level. Drop in the call rate from renewal of 7 to 6 per cent also failed to give any stimulus to buying.

General Motors was under professional pressure and lost 2 points but other standard industrials held to fractional range. Great Western and Delaware & Hudson featured a strong railroad list.

Drop Reflects Cash

There was little hope for any definite easing in money rates in the federal reserve bank statements. While the loans were off $219,000,000, the advances made "by others" to brokers increased $51,000,000. That was further evidence that the drop in the call rate of the last few days simply reflected the huge amount of cash accumulated by banks and corporations in preparations for big payments.

It is estimated that with the $500,000,000 government financing the actual turnover of funds dated today will run well over $1,000,000,000. Just when the full effect thereon will be shown by advancing the call money rate is problematical, but it seems certain that the resulting tightening of money conditions will be enhanced by the necessity of banks to prepare for big dividend and interest payments as of Jan. 1. The withdrawal of funds for holiday purchases is another influence to further advance in the money rates before long.

Investment Rails Taken

Quiet absorption of investment rails continued with the more speculative issues also reflecting long pull accumulation. Erie's strength in particular reflected expectations of further improvement in income during the early months of next year. Utility and power stocks remained the subject of bullish talk, also, and were quietly picked up on scale orders. National Power, Public Service and New Jersey, Electric Bond & Share and Electric Power & Light were all mentioned in connection with consolidations of the most powerful interests in the industry. Pittsburgh Coal was reported under accumulation in expectation of increased income next year. United Electric Coal, however, is sponsored by those who over-manipulated and over-exploited Houston.

Professionals Cautious

Professional operators are feeling their way on the short side. They have not forgotten the bad lickings they received over the last two years and therefore are timid about taking an extended position. They know the "Big Ten" cashed in big profits in recent weeks and are liable to take advantage of a crowded short interest whenever it appears. However, they continued to apply pressure to General Motors and Chrysler.

There was further advice from Chicago that important interests have passed on part of their Montgomery Ward. Koster derived sentimental benefit from the radio developments but met continued bear resistance. There was some short covering in Columbia Graphaphone which the managers of the belated pool operations therein tried to take advantage of.

Radio and Victor amalgamation, exclusively forecast here several months ago, is practically consummated. It was rumored that dominant interests in both companies had agreed on basis of exchange and would announce the plan at "the right time." The interests concerned, it was stated, had not definitely settled whether the merger should be put through before forming the new communications company or not.

It is now stated that the split up of Radio shares on a five for one basis will wait upon the amalgamation with Victor. In acquiring Victor the Radio corporation strengthens its position as leader of the Radio field in all its aspects.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 14. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Opening hog trade around the 11-market circuit was slow at steady to 10c higher prices and on the close several points reported values weak to 15c lower than early. The day's top of $8.80 was paid at St. Louis. Total offerings were around 84,400, a decrease of 8,500 from a week ago but 8,000 more than the corresponding day last year.

Chicago set the pace in the sheep market realizing strong to 25c higher prices on fat lambs and securing a 25@50c advance on fat ewes. Killing classes at other centers ruled steady to strong. Chicago had a top on fat lambs of $14.35; the supply approximated 36,000 as compared with 34,501 last Friday and 26,774 a year ago.

Although aggregate receipts of cattle estimated at 8,800 were around 5,500 short of a week ago and 4,000 less than a year ago, trade at most points where supplies were sufficient to test market conditions ruled very slow at the week's uneven and sharp decline; Eastern dressed beef markets were in a sluggish condition with some centers showing additional declines; one load of Christmas yearling steers at Kansas City scored $17.

FORT WORTH, Dec. 14. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—The usual light receipts of cattle and calves arrived for today's livestock trade. Very few slaughter steers or slaughter yearlings received in the limited receipts bulk of the run consisting of she stock, low cutters and mixed butcher classes.

Trade in all classes ruled slow, most sales steady to lower. Butchers and low cutters at prices about steady. Bulk of the cutters and low cutters sold at $4.75@5.50. Only one car slaughter steers had sold up until the noon hour; these sold at $3.35, about steady with the decline of the week. No sales of consequence noted in slaughter yearlings and heifers, a few bids denoting small declines. One carlot of sausage bulls sold at $6.85. About in line with yesterday's prices. No stock or feeding cattle of consequence noted in the day's receipts.

Slaughter calves very slow, most bids showing declines of quarter to half dollar. One car heavy slaughter calves sold to shippers at $10; mediums at $10@10.10.

Trade in hogs uneven. Packers paid prices 5 cents higher for good rail butchers, while truck hogs and one load rail hogs to small killers sold 15c to 20c higher. She load of 200-pound butchers made a top of $8.75 and two loads good medium butchers sold up to $8.65. Bulk of the better grades, 175-250 pound truck hogs sold at $8.10@8.35.

Practically all of the sheep and lambs for today's trade on through billing and no sales of consequence reported.

Grain

CHICAGO REVIEW

CHICAGO, Dec. 14. (AP)—Suggestions that domestic winter wheat is now in danger of widespread damage such as witnessed last year did considerable to lift wheat prices today. Trade readjustments to anticipate any surprise in the government crop report tended likewise to make all grain values average higher.

An unexpected reduction of 55,000,000 bushels from the government November estimate of the 1928 yield of corn was generally construed tonight as bullish. Otherwise, the government crop report was about as had been looked for.

Last quotations on wheat today were firm at a rise of ⅛c to ½c net. Corn finished a shade to ½c up, oats at ⅛c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 7c setback to an equal gain.

Although many wheat traders were inclined to hold off from new commitments pending issuance of the government crop figures late today, special interest was taken in a report from a leading unofficial authority here that out-of-season conditions are prevailing in United States winter wheat territory. He said that, with unusual mild temperatures, plentiful rains have been soaking the soil to an extent which may result in a serious situation should severe frost occur. This condition, he added, is similar to that which in December 1927, brought about big injury to winter wheat east of the Mississippi.

Advices that Argentine farmers are refusing to sell wheat at current prices tended further to give an advantage at times to traders here who were friendly to an advance. Another fact which helped the bull side of the market was fair demand for wheat from North America.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Trade reports this week point to the interplay of seasonal trends, with retail business bulking larger, while wholesale and jobbing trade volume has tended to taper off, except where small reorders of a filling-in character are concerned. Industry, also, has slowed down slightly as the period of inventory taking approaches, although in the case of the largest single maker of small autos a notable expansion is reported within the past few weeks. In the three divisions of production in distribution however, the indications at most cities favor distinctly more doing than was noted a year ago, when industry, especially, was receding sharply and lack of employment tended to render buying rather less buoyant than normally. The week, it may be added, has seen considerable money distributed in the form of Christmas savings funds, and this has undoubtedly been an important influence in swelling the volume of sales of holiday specialties, which, filtering down through the various divisions of trade distribution, have resulted in a slightly better trend of reports as to collections.

Weekly bank clearings $14,307,842,000, an increase of 32.7 per cent over a year ago.

500 ATTEND MEN'S PARTY

Now They Know What To Buy Her For Christmas

The fifth annual men's party was celebrated by 500 guests in the P. B. M. store Friday evening.

The party, put on for the benefit of the bashful members of the masterful sex who may feel some hesitancy about buying pink silk unmentionables while milady is hanging around, saw the men thoroughly at home while they watched the models switch back and forth in the display of those things about which most men know little.

Lounge suits, pajamas, robes, furs and many other necessities in a woman's wardrobe were displayed on models, while the Electrola from the Nunn Electric company played musical comedy airs.

Among the favors given away were six tickets, each good for an airplane ride, cigars, cigarets and tobacco.

The store, decorated especially for the evening, was particularly well jammed upstairs where the models were on display. The whole store was busy, however, with aid being offered and information being given the male of the species in his quest for those things that are to make him Lady Wichita's Santa Claus.

Special entertainment numbers were given. They included vocal solos by Ernest Reeves, accompanied by George Kerns, and selections by the City National vocal quartet including Messrs. Minter, Thurman, Lacy and Oakes.

Good Crowd Attends Boy Scout Jamboree

More than 200 Boy Scouts representing 17 troops of this city, together with numerous visitors, crowded the basement of the First Christian church Friday evening on the occasion of the last quarterly jamboree of the present year.

Contests between troops were held in knot tying, fire by friction, a compass game, and the test of tests.

For the winning troop in each event a pennant is to be awarded, while a pressed bronze wall plaque awaits the troop winning the highest total number of points. Compilation of credit could not be made Friday night.

At the conclusion of the games, Voyle N. Armstrong of the Wichita Daily Times advertsing department, entertained the boys with cartoons of miscellaneous subjects. The jamboree was in charge of Frank B. Creighton, local scout executive.

Parking Barred at New Postal Substation

The new postoffice substation at 612 Eighth street, in the room formerly occupied by Owens Clothing store, was opened Friday. It is for parcel post and is open from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening.

Frank Burns, chief of police, called attention Friday to the fact that parking in front of the new substation is prohibited and that signs to this effect have been posted by the police.

Lawyer Chases Wichitan From Court

Brief Scrap Thrills Spectators at Courthouse

Called from their Friday morning's work by loud cries of alarm, courthouse officials reached the hallways just in time to see one man hurriedly disappearing through the front door, while another, a former high court official, briskly rubbed his hands together and resumed his coat.

The fight was over.

It all started in the 89th district court room before court convened Friday morning. The former official, now a practicing attorney, was awaiting the calling of a case when the party of the second part called him away from his brief case for conference.

Much of the conversation was hushed, but just before things started happening, the visitor was overheard to say:

"Yes, I said it. What are you going to do about it?"

"I'm going to take you out and give you a licking," responded the jurist, calmly removing his coat.

Then, according to eye witnesses, the visitor started moving. He got as far as the door way to the court before the attorney overtook him with a smart blow to the arm.

The visitor, who had already shown a marked inclination to depart, fell to the floor, uttering cries of alarm. He was next seen as the front door closed behind him.

The attorney turned, reached gravely for his coat, and began the perusal of his papers.

Clean-up Makes Sahara of City

ings for those who would overstep the prohibition law and the city finds itself in the midst of a big booze cleanup. Sam Hadley, federal prohibition director for Missouri and Arkansas, arrived here this morning to help in the campaign.

Sleuths Replaced

It was learned today that the 35 prohibition officers in this district would be replaced by new men, which it is hoped will aid in cleaning up liquor law violators. The statement was issued by Dr. J. M. Doran, national prohibition administrator, at Washington. This is being done with hopes of more complete enforcement of the federal prohibition laws. The dismissal of the agents is believed to have been hastened by the hatchet wielding episode of Mrs. Wilson.

The grand jury in session at this time is investigating every angle of the booze situation with the hopes that it can soon bring into court and punish those guilty of trafficking in illegal intoxicants. Those indicted today were not made public.

Tonight Kansas City awaits patiently the outcome. Every law enforcement department including local and federal authorities have allied themselves in the clean-up of the city.

Meanwhile with his hazards increasing, raises the price of his liquor. The man who now partakes of these vianda finds the price increasing hourly as the noose of the law is drawn tighter.

Local Plumbers And Steamfitters in Banquet

Two hundred local plumbers and steamfitters and their wives gathered at the Labor temple Friday night for the annual banquet and ball of Local No. 293.

Ollie M. Reeves acted as toastmaster at the banquet, and introduced Ben Ray of St. Louis, who made a short talk. W. H. Willingham, supply dealer of Fort Worth, also spoke.

George Taylor, with his banjo guitar, entertained the gathering with several songs.

Following the dinner, dancing was enjoyed.

Playground Band Serenades Papers

Buck Hoover led the Wichita Falls Playground band right into The Record News and Times building Friday for a concert. The band, under the direction of Paul Seeds, was applauded.

The stunt was a part of the advance advertising being done in connection with a 101-hour drive which Buck will make while chained to the wheel of a Durant car starting Tuesday. The drive will be made without food or sleep, and Buck will check in at the police station every hour of the 101 hours.

The whole stunt is to advertise a dance which is to be given at the Kemp hotel to raise money for uniforms for the Wichita Falls Playground band.

FIRE DAMAGES AUTO

An automobile driven by F. L. Adair of 1310 Giddings was damaged by fire late Friday night in the 1400 block on Giddings. The flames were extinguished with a loss of $50 to $75, according to fire department estimates.

INJURY KILLS MEMPHIS MAN

Meningitis Follows Hurts Of Crash Victim

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Dec. 14.—Jess Ballew, 32, died this afternoon, his death being caused from meningitis, resulting from injury received in a wreck on Nov. 21, when he ran his car into a concrete bridge between Memphis and Newlin. He received a terrific blow on the head, which the attending physicians say caused the disease to set up.

Mr. Ballew was thought to be recovering from the injuries, and was down town on Tuesday, going home that night complaining with a severe headache and by 10 o'clock was unconscious.

He was the son of Dr. J. M. Ballew well known and prominent physician of Memphis, and had lived in Memphis most of his life coming here when only six years of age. He had operated a number of service cars in Memphis for several years, and at the time of the accident was returning from a trip to Plainview, and had fallen asleep, losing control of his car.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 o'clock at the First Baptist church, the Rev. E. T. Miller, pastor, officiating. Interment will be in Memphis cemetery. Surviving Mr. Ballew are his wife and two children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ballew, Memphis, three brothers, Raymon and Tom, Memphis, and Jim Ballew, who is traveling out of Houston for the Star Engraving company and one sister, Mrs. Clara Messick of Odessa, Mo. All were present when death came.

State Veterinarian Opens Hospital Here

Dr. Fred Gross, former assistant state veterinarian and assistant laboratory director for the Texas Livestock Sanitary commission, has opened a small animal hospital and will engage in a general veterinary practice in Wichita Falls, according to announcements made here Friday night.

The new hospital has been named "Our Pets Home" and is situated at 1405 Lamar avenue. Service to cats, dogs, poultry and livestock of all kinds is included.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME

Fire caused $700 damage to the home of J. G. Lowden at 1413 Sixteenth street Friday evening. No one was at home when the blaze started. The cause was unknown.

Teacher's Illness Postpones Play

The sudden illness of Miss Georgia Kimbrough, one of the members of the cast, Friday evening forced the postponement of a dramatic performance at the Travis school after the audience had gathered to see the play.

Members of the faculty of the school had planned to give "The Laughing Cure," and Miss Kimbrough took one of the principal roles. She was stricken with chills and with severe pains from a burn suffered about a week ago, and was forced to abandon her plans after she had arrived at the school. She was rushed to the hospital, where she was said to be suffering from an infection verging on blood-poisoning.

Twenty children of the school, directed by Mrs. Betty Andrews, gave the operetta, "King Christmas." Later W. E. Walker, principal of the school, explained the postponement to the audience and refunded money paid for admission. He expressed the disappointment of the faculty as well as of the audience and told of the hard work the teachers had put forth in an effort to make the Christmas program a success.

Farmer Makes Bond After Alleged Threat

Horace Eubanks, farmer living near the Friberg community, Friday afternoon made bond on charges of threatening to kill. E. G. Boswell, a neighboring farmer, entered the complaint in the office of County Attorney Wayne Somerville. The difficulty arose over a dispute about a boundary fence, according to Sam B. Spence, assistant county attorney.

Chest Headquarters At Auditorium Monday

The offices of the Wichita Falls Community chest will again be in the Memorial auditorium next week. This announcement was made Friday by Miss Myrle Neely, executive secretary, who said she was closing the campaign office in the Hamilton building so that business might start in room 105 of the auditorium Monday.
